Small Business Program Talked

WASHINGTON (UP) — President Eisenhower's small business advisory committee has recommended a 14-point program designed to aid small businesses. The program includes tax cuts.

The committee, set up last April, is headed by Dr. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the presidential council of economic advisers. It made the recommendations in an interim report Thursday.

Mr. Eisenhower assured the group he would give the recommendations "the prompt and favorable consideration they deserve — Both in preparing for executive action and in drawing up the administration's legislative program for the new Congress."

Nine of the committee's 14 recommendations require legislative action. The others can be carried out by the various departments concerned, a White House official said.

The first recommendation and the one containing "the greatest punch," the official said, would reduce the basic corporate tax from 30 per cent to 20 per cent on net income under $25,000.

The tax rate on net income over that amount is now 52 per cent. The basic rate will drop to 25 per cent next April unless Congress extends the present law.

The committee said the tax cut and other suggested changes would have "very little impact" on the budget, costing about $600 million the first year and some $740 million the second year.

Other taxation recommendations would permit business to depreciate used property purchases up to $50,000. Such tax deductions now are limited to new machinery, buildings and equipment. It was also recommended that small corporations with under 10 stockholders be allowed to be taxed as partnerships.

Coal Cart Blamed In Tragedy

MARCINELLE, Belgium (UP)— A loaded coal cart on the wrong level toppled over and turned the "Bitter Heart" coal mine into a possible mass grave for more than 200 miners, preliminary investigations indicated today.

Experts told Investigating Magistrate M. Casteleyn that Belgium's worst mine accident in history may have been caused by a mixup in operating orders.

At least 243 miners were missing and 24 were known dead. But little hope was held out for the men of many nations—mostly Italian—entombed more than a half-mile below the surface. They have been there for two days.

Rescue efforts continued 48 hours after flames spread through the two main shafts of the 3,500-foot mine.

Suez Conference To Be Held Despite Reds, Egypt

Armed Forces Flexible

WASHINGTON (UP) — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said today that America's armed forces are flexible enough to meet "whatever situation might arise" with whatever weapons are needed.

Against a background of rising Army concern that the nation is becoming too deeply committed to air-atomic strategy and slighting conventional forces, Wilson said "emphasis has been placed on weapons best calculated to deter aggression."

That was an obvious reference to air-atomic power. But the secretary asserted that "our nation is not committed to a single strategy. He said "flexibility has been retained to meet with the most appropriate weapons whatever situation might arise."

Wilson's comments were made in the Defense Department's report to President Eisenhower and Congress for the year which ended June 30, 1955. The Pentagon gave no explanation for the almost 14 - month delay in issuing the 300-page report.

Tourists Enjoy The Rodeo

Pampa's Tourists - Of - The-Day for yesterday were a woman and her son from Mesa, Ariz.

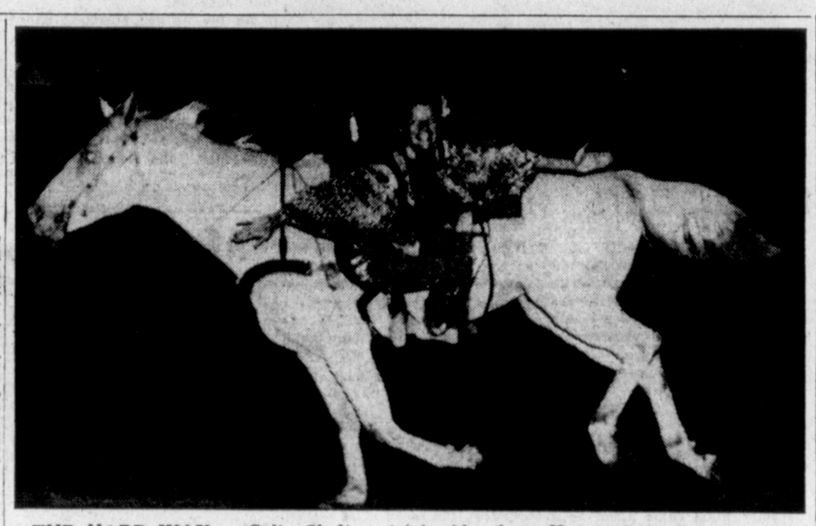

Mrs. John Ferris, whose husband is sa columnist for the New York World - Telegraph and Sun, and her son, Steve, an art student at Arizona School of Art, Phoenix, Ariz., were "ticketed" as guests of the tourist development committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Ferris and Steve were given free lodging at Murphy's Courts, dinner at the White Way Restaurant, had their car serviced at Kitchen's Gulf Service Station, received flowers from Clayton Floral and were escorted to the rodeo by their hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Waldon Moore.

The pair had been visiting in Falls Village, Conn., and were returning to Mesa, Ariz., when they noticed a signboard proclaiming U.S. Highway 60 the "shortest route to California" and turned off on the road which took them through Pampa.

They were accompanied on their trip by a small dog and a Minah bird, whose first words after be-

First Go-Round In Rodeo Completed

The 12th Annual Top o' Texas Rodeo has passed the halfway mark as contestants completed the first go-round Thursday night.

Those competing in the events Thursday night were in competition with the records set in Wednesday night's show.

A capacity crowd witnessed plenty of action during the second performance as the cowpokes displayed their ability to stay on the wild broncs and bulls, showed how to wrestle a steer to the ground and tried to set a record in roping and tieing a calf.

Smiley Burnette, that one-man show from Hollywood, had the crowd in hysterics as he told interesting jokes and sang "It's My Lazy Day."

Smiley had several young cowboys from the crowd in the arena with him and had them display their six-gun ability. One of the boys, according to "The Frog" gave him a bath as he displayed his sound effects.

The Notables, rode clowns, kept up a steady barrage of antics during the show and during a part of the bronc riding they played a game of poker in the middle of the arena with much argument. The game finally ended when one clown shot the other with a shotgun.

The clowns produced a duck and a baby goat as one of them had a stomach ache. The other clown produced the animals from the first one's clothes to the relief of the ache.

The crowd enjoyed Peb Evans and his trained pig, Porkchop, and the pig pulled Peb around the arena in a two-wheeled cart. Porkchop had trouble staying upon his perch as he drank a Coke but he finally succeeded in emptying the bottle.

Winners in the first go - round calf roping contest were announced this morning with 1st and 2nd places split between T. B. Brown of Bradley, Okla., and Jack Strickland of Abilene. Taking 3rd place honors was Jimmy Bird of Post and Clifton Smith of Childress placed 4th.

Winners in the double muggin contest for the first half of the rodeo were: Bobby Goodspeed of Watumka, Okla., 1st place; Clifton Smith of Childress, 2nd place; Jack McMordie of Canadian, 3rd place; and Preacher Stevens of Bangor, 4th place.

In the bulldoggin' contest the results for the first go-round showed that Fred Cordill of Childress had the best time and took top money. Taking 2nd place was Eldon Dudley of Perryton with Joe Nelf of Colorado City placing 3rd and Richard Walters of Amarillo coming in 4th.

In the saddle bronc riding contest Joe Collier of Wichita Falls took the top money. Others taking money in the contest were: John Farris of Iowa Park, 2nd place; Jimmy Moore of Post, 3rd place; and T. Hibbert of Breckenridge, 4th place.

In the bareback bronc riding contest five cowboys split the prize money for the first four places. Duke Holland of Childress and Dave Hopper of Lubbock split the money for 1st and 2nd places. Jerry Eggelston of Knute, Okla., Wayne McMurtry of Silverton and Bill Killian of Breckenridge split 3rd and 4th places.

The bull riding contest found Bill McLannahan of Perryton taking top money with the other three places being split among John Farris of Iowa Park, Dave Hop-

British Families Leave Cairo

CAIRO (UP)—Eighty-four British wives and children of Shell Oil Co. employes left Cairo by plane Thursday night for sanctuary in the West. For many it was the second exodus from Egypt.

They were the vanguard of 900 British dependents to be evacuated from Egypt and the Suez Canal zone. They were advised by the British foreign office to leave if there was no "compelling reason" for them to remain.

Soviet Acceptance Of Bid To Attend Meet Blasted

By WILLIAM SEXTON
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON —UP— The West will go ahead with next week's conference on internationalizing the Suez Canal despite Soviet objections and an apparent Egyptian boycott, official British sources said today.

Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd conferred today on the Soviet "acceptance" which some British sources said was an effort to turn the 24-nation conference into a "three-ring international circus."

Eden was in constant contact with Washington and Paris on the Kremlin's reply to the Western invitation and the Soviet suggestions for postponing the conference, moving it to Cairo and enlarging it to include Communist countries and the Arab world.

Although Egypt has not replied to the Western invitation, there was little doubt Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser would boycott the session and let the Soviet and Indian representatives in London state his case.

Postpones Moscow Trip

Informed sources in Cairo said he was postponing a trip to Moscow to remain in Egypt during the conference "in order to be in complete control of any developments." Egyptian diplomatic sources in Moscow said earlier he would be visiting the Kremlin next week.

No official British reply to Russia was expected until Eden consults his allies. But official sources said Britain was firmly determined to go ahead with the original conference on the specific topic of placing the Suez under international control.

The offical sources stressed that British and French military precautions were continuing. They said the halting of a big airlift of troops to the Mediterranean was postponed for 24 hours but not cancelled. The airlift was to have begun today.

Note Causes Confusion

The West was thrown into confusion by Moscow's assertion it "will delegate its representative to this conference" and Moscow's failure to say whether attendance depended on acceptance of its proposals.

They said any move to turn the 24-nation conference into a 46-nation meeting would automatically turn the conference into a three-ring circus. They said such an unwieldy meeting might drag on for months while Egypt consolidated its hold on the Suez Canal.

In Washington American officials were heartened today by Russia's decision to attend the London conference on the Suez Canal crisis.

Nixon And Dewey Hold Conference

WASHINGTON (UP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon and former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York held a behind-the-scenes conference Thursday night in a hotel room three blocks from the White House.

Dewey said he and the vice president and "others" present "talked about a lot of things" including politics. But he declined to say whether they discussed Harold E. Stassen's "dump Nixon" campaign.

Dewey was one of the first major GOP leaders to proclaim continued backing for Nixon after Stassen announced his drive to replace him on the GOP ticket with Gov. Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts. Stassen scheduled a news conference today—his second in two days—to discuss his drive's progress.

The former New York governor —a leading GOP strategist and twice the GOP's unsuccessful presidential candidate—said he had dinner in his room at the Sheraton-Carlton Hotel with Nixon and a "very small group of friends." He said "others" dropped in during the evening.

Dewey said Deputy Attorney General William P. Rogers was present, but he declined to name the "others." He said he, Nixon and Rogers were present "most of the time."

Rogers, an old friend and neighbor of Nixon, was one of the first persons Nixon contacted after President Eisenhower suffered a heart attack last fall. He spent the night at Rogers' home.

Dewey said he came here especially for the pre-arranged meeting and planned to return to New York early today.

Suspense Mounts As Harry Considers The Candidates

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP)—Former President Truman was under heavy pressure from old associates today to support Gov. Averell Harriman for the Democratic presidential nomination, but early arriving delegates saw him giving the nod to Adlai E. Stevenson.

Whichever way he goes, Mr. Truman injected an element of suspense into plans for next week's Democratic national convention by promising an endorsement by the end of a week.

The weight of opinion among delegates already here had it that Mr. Truman would endorse Stevenson, but many had a pro-Stevenson bias.

Hosts Harriman Agents

In the face of this opinion, a stream of Harriman agents moved in and out of the Truman suite in the Sheraton-Blackstone hotel.

Harriman was due in Chicago today and was expected to pay his respects soon afterward to the man he served in a number of jobs.

Carmine DeSapio, Tammany chief and quarterback of the Harriman campaign, also was expected to see Mr. Truman today.

Mr. Truman arrived here Thursday and was welcomed by Stevenson at the railroad station. But almost every place he turned later in the day, there was a Harriman supporter in view. Samuel I. Rosenman, former counsel to Mr. Truman and a Harriman worker, was staying a few doors from the ex-President and moved freely in and out of the Truman suite.

Harriman Backers Encouraged

Supporters of Harriman, the underdog contender, heard with glee that Mr. Truman told a news conference Thursday he was "not a bandwagon fellow." The Stevenson bandwagon has been picking up a lot of passengers in the past two months.

There was no hint that Mr. Truman had given either the Stevenson or Harriman camps any word of his intentions.

But the mere fact that he had promised an endorsement caused nervousness among Stevenson supporters and buoyed the hopes of the Harriman organization.

Long regarded as privately pro-Harriman, it was reported before Mr. Truman's arrival that he had decided not to buck the Stevenson trend. But no announcement was expected on the eve of the convention.

Stevenson backers reasoned that Mr. Truman would risk defeat and a deep split in the party if he endorsed Harriman. They also felt that his appearance before the platform committee Thursday showed him in a mood for moderation, which is the tone of the Stevenson campaign, not Harriman's.

The ex-President went before the committee to urge a strong civil rights plank, slam the Eisenhower administration and give party spirits a lift by assuring the Democrats that they can win next November.

"I don't think the present administration knows anything about what they are doing on anything," he said.

Although he made clear that he favored a strong civil rights plank, he refrained from any specific recommendation. He spoke with favor of the Supreme Court decision against segregated schools but did not urge an explicit endorsement of the decision.

Show's On The Road! Little Ol' Harry Has Arrived

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP)—The show's on the road. Little ol' Harry's here. From the hub-bub around him, you'd think .. oh, well, never mind what you'd think. Harry says it isn't so. He's not in it.

But there's no doubt that the preview of the Democratic national convention caught fire from the moment former President Truman showed his grinning face in town.

"Hi, Harry' they hollered at the station. "Welcome, Harry!" they whooped at the Sheraton - Blackstone hotel, where the Trumans have a suite—for the duration.

"We love you in southern Ohio," a Democratic platform committeeman told him. That was during HST's testimony at a platform committe hearing Thursday and it was quite a session.

In the Blackstone's Mayfair room—a night club turned into a news conference room—Mr. Truman sat in front of 11 microphones at the spot where the floor show used to go on. Ringside seats were at a scuffling premium. Democrats and press packed into the place until the standees were bumper-to-bumper behind the seats probably violating all fire laws.

Mr. Truman was happy. His every utterance drew applause or laughs. He said that the man who gets over to the people the importance of the "the welfare of the Democratic party rather than the welfare of General Motors, will win this election."

Harriman To Take Personal Charge Of His Campaign

By KIRTLAND I. KING
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP)—Gov. Harriman of New York headed here today to take personal charge of his uphill fight for the Democratic presidential nomination.

He was scheduled to arrive by plane from Buffalo, where he said Thursday night he was confident of winning the nomination. He declined to say on what ballot he expected victory.

Harriman's backers planned to meet him at the airport with optimistic reports of gains in delegate strength. They attributed the increase in Harriman support to former President Truman's remark that he "is not a bandwagon, fellow."

Truman's Choice Saturday

Mr. Truman said he would make known his choice for the nomination some time Saturday and the Harriman campaign managers hope he will put his arm around their candidate.

"If Mr. Truman announces his support of Governor Harriman, we have won the battle," a spokesman at the governor's headquarters said. "If it goes against us we have a real tough fight ahead."

The spokesman said he did not think Harriman would withdraw from the race if the former President endorses Adlai Stevenson.

Supporters of Harriman called on Mr. Truman in an effort to win his support. They came away, however, without a commitment. Harriman was expected to call on the ex-President later in the day.

Samuel I. Rosenman, who was confidential assistant to Mr. Truman; New York Democratic State Chairman Michael H. Prendergast, Gov. Raymond Gary of Oklahoma, who heads up Harriman's western campaign committee, and Lloyd Benefield, Harriman's national campaign manager, all talked with the former President.

We talked about many things and that's all I can say," Prendergast said. "However, I will say that I am not discouraged."

Carmine DeSapio, Democratic national committeeman from New York and top Harriman political adviser, said he and other supporters had talked with scores of delegates during the past 24 hours.

"It is very encouraging," DeSapio said. "Governor Harriman will be nominated.

Adlai's Camp Says They Can Win Without Harry

By THOMAS P. NELSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson's camp contended today that even an endorsement from Gov. Averell Harriman by former President Truman wouldn't necessarily hurt their convention favorites chances.

The Stevenson aides argue that Southern delegates, who are cold to Harriman's civil rights views, would join the Stevenson bandwagon if Mr. Truman gave Harriman his political blessing.

Stevenson and his strategists played a waiting game today until Mr. Truman announces whom he favors for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Truman's Support Unknown

They admitted they don't know which way Mr. Truman will throw his support.

Mr. Truman's decision could be crucial. He indicated he will break his silence and neutrality

Teenage Drinking Becoming Problem

By JACK V. FOX
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) — A police roadblock was set up on a road on the New York-New Jersey border on a recent Friday night and, in the course of three hours, 135 cars were halted to check in intoxicated drivers.

Sixty-eight cars bore teenage boys and girls who had been drinking.

It was symptomatic of what authorities say is a fast growing "fad" on the part of the high school set to drink liquor and beer and also of an unusual situation that prevails in New York and a few other areas of the nation.

The minimum age for serving liquor in New York is 18. In neighboring Connecticut and New Jersey, as in most states, it is 21. The result has been carloads of teenagers driving across the border to drink and returning intoxicated. So serious has been the resulting accident rise that both states have called on New York to get its age limit in line.

A United Press poll of all the states showed teenage drinking is on the increase across the nation although in only a few places has it brought any significant jump in auto accidents.

Heman Stark, director of the California Youth Authority, says, "We consider juvenile drinking more serious than dope because there is so much of it." A reform school in that state checked for one month and found that more than 50 per cent of the boys 17, 18 and 19 sent there had been drinking at the time of their lawbreaking.

Philadelphia reports drinking among teenagers definitely on the rise with 58 boys and girls arrested the first half of 1956 for drunkenness. Idaho reports fatal traffic accidents up 30 per cent and the state says in many cases it can be traced to teenage drinking.

Oklahoma, Louisiana

The New Orleans area is wide open to drinking by youngsters. The minimum age is 21 but police admit that bartenders let 18 year olds have liquor and get away with it. Oklahoma is a "dry" state but the Oklahoma City Times recently sent teenage employes on a tour of local bootleggers. They were able to buy liquor at four of six places.

"Teenagers definitely are drinking in Boston and in the state," says Charles Gaughan of the Massachusetts Public Health Department. "There is hardly a high school in the state in which the principal doesn't mention it."

Washington, D. C., has the same situation as New York— an age limit of only 18 which draws youngsters into the capital from Virginia. Canadian teenagers come across the border into Buffalo and Niagara Falls to drink.

Air Force To Start Reserve Program

WASHINGTON (UP)— The Air Force soon will adopt the six-month reserve training program now used by the Army and Marines.

The service, which opposed the program at one time andwascool program at one time and was cool to it when Congress adopted it a year ago, said it will recruit 2,500 six-month trainees between next Oct. 1 and July 1, 1957.

A Different Smiley In Each Interview

By JANE KADINGO
Pampa News Staff Writer

It's a different Smiley Burnette during every interview, Pampans are finding as the cowboy comic makes the rounds of personal appearances during his rodeo stint here.

This morning in an interview with Ray Keelin over radio station KPAT's "Talk of the Town," he displayed his Frog Millhouse character and told of some of his experiences while making movies.

Smiley's "Frog Millhouse" characterization came about as a result of some horseplay during lunch while on location for a cowboy serial he was making early in his career. He used his now-famous "frog" voice to greet the director, who liked it so well he put it in the serial.

"Every actor has to have an identity," Smiley explained. "Eddie Cantor is known as the man who has the big eyes, and Jimmy Durante is known as the man who has the big nose. I affected the froggy voice, black hat, checkered shirt and a white horse with black circle around its left eye."

He pointed out that the movies are made by scenes — each scene filmed separately. He told of the men's sometimes getting the ring around the horse's eye on the wrong side, making it appear to shift during the movie. He also told of shifting his neckerchief slightly to the left during each scene in one movie. When it it was completed, the neckerchief seemed to move around and around his neck.

"They sure loved me when they saw that," he laughed.

"I created Frog Millhouse in 1934," he continued. "He's a big, fat, friendly, bubblesome character, getting everyone into a mess In the movies, Gene Autry was always turning the outlaws over to Frog, who always let them go. I once told Gene Autry that if he didn't have Frog in his pictures, they'd be over in four reels."

He explained that his famous black hat started when he was sent to find a costume for his first movie. He came across a lot of old hats from Mack Sennett comedies among which he discovered an "enormous, wide - brimmed black hat." In his earliest pictures, the brim was not bent up. Smiley said while making one of his early pictures, it was so windy the big hat brim kept falling in his eyes.

"Since you can't make an instrument landing from a horse, I decided to pin it up," he laughed.

He has had four black hats, he explained. The one he is wearing in the Top o' Texas Rodeo appeared in 63 of his pictures.

About his family, Smiley explained that he has four adopted children, and that he reared a fifth, whom he did not adopt and who is now married. He explained he met his wife, a newspaper columnist, at a picnic in 1936.

"From then on it was one, two, three," he stated.

His wife and three of his younger children were in Pampa Wednesday to see the rodeo, he explained, but had to leave Wednesday afternoon due to the illness of their oldest son who remained in California. Since then, Smiley received word his son is all right.

When asked about his age, Smiley quipped: "I look real young, don't I? I'm going to be the nicest old man you ever saw. I'm going to sit in a rocking chair and tell the young people how it's done."

He pointed out that "It's My Lazy Day" is his most famous song.

"I have to sing it in every picture," he stated. "I asked Gene Autry if he ever forgets the words to 'Back In The Saddle Again' and he said he does. I do that, too."

In conclusion, Smiley told of one of his young admirers approaching him at the rodeo and asking: "Are you really Smokey Brunette?"

Infant's Rites Set Tomorrow

Funeral services for the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lilbert Lockhart, 1319 Coffee, will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday in the Baby Garden of Fairview Cemetery. Rev. William Cloud of the Lamar Christina Church will officiate.

The baby died at 5:30 p.m. Thursday in Highland General Hospital. She is survived by her parents; and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lockhart of Amarillo and W. F. Wolf of Clovis, N.M.

Mrs. Ferris said she had never stayed in Texas and, according to Jones, proclaimed Pampa's hospitality was certainly fine.

Jones said that Mrs. Ferris remarked she had seen only one rodeo before and that was in Madison Square Garden in New York. She said she had never seen anything to equal the Top o' Texas Rodeo, however.

Mr. and Mrs. Bunny Shultz will host today's tourists who will lodge at the Pampa Hotel, eat at Johnson's Cafe, have their car serviced at Ogden's Sinclair Service Station, and receive flowers from Parker's Blossom Shop.

In the cutting horse contest four more horses displayed their ability last night with J. T. Fisher of Midland, riding Chichasa Mike, making a total of 145 points to lead the others. The winner of this contest will not be determined until after Saturday night.

In the Cowgirls Sponsor Contest the girls riding Thursday night came up with some fast time to lead the field. Making the best time was Betty Osborne of Pampa with a time of 15.5 seconds for the barrel race. Frances Motley made the second best time with 15.6 seconds.

A new rodeo begins tonight as the contestants in the second go-round try to take top money for the various events.

The cowboys in the second half of the rodeo will be competing with those who competed in the first half for the honors as the best all around cowboy.

this week end. An endorsement of Stevenson virtually gives him the nominaton, according to most strategists. Stevenson claims 630 convention votes of the 686½ needed for nomination.

The Stevenson sources said the delegates who might be influenced toward Harriman by a declaration from Mr. Truman already have come out for Harriman, on the basis of rumors that Mr. Truman has been near his corner.

Another guess heard often from Stevenson backers was that Mr. Truman might find a loophole and not endorse anyone before the convention. His continued neutral position would satisfy Stevenson supporters.

Stevenson Moves Today

Stevenson was expected to move today from his farm home near suburban Libertyville, Ill., to the convention headquarters hotel in Chicago. His campaign manager, James A. Finnegan, already was installed in the $150 a day suite on the 23rd floor of the hotel.

All week, Stevenson has kept himself out of the limelight, with some exceptions. Monday night he was coaxed into a television interview in which he expressed a stronger view on civil rights than he had before — an interview assistants insist they did not condone.

Harry Says School Fund Idea 'Good'

CHICAGO (UP) — Former President Truman today described as "good" the theory of withholding federal aid from states that permit segregation and discrimination.

The former chief executive made known his sharp views on civil rights legislation as he strolled at a rapid pace around Grant Park early this morning.

Mr. Truman in his appearance before the Democratic platform committee Thursday commended to the members as a "completely good" document a report made to him in 1947 by a special presidential commission on civil rights.

The report contained a section which suggested that all federal grants-in-aid should be withheld in any form from states that permit segregation and discrimination for reasons of race, creed or color.

As the former president paced at 120 steps per minute through the lakefront park fronting his hotel, reporters asked him whether he thought the ban of federal aid to segregation states was still "a good idea."

"It is just as good today as it was then," the former President said.

Yarborough Holds Regional Meets

By UNITED PRESS

Candidate - for - governor Ralph Yarborough scheduled regional meetings with supporters in Amarillo, Lubbock and Tyler today while Sen. Price Daniel lined up a network of stations for a statewide television speech tonight.

Yarborough returned to El Paso the town where he began his career as a young lawyer a number of years ago, and campaigned Thursday night, promising that his five-point soil and water conservation plan would lick the drought.

Daniel made a television appearance in Fort Worth and repeated an earlier charge that out-of-state union bosses and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People are spending money in an effort to defeat him.

Proposes Cash Aid

He said that many "independent thinking union members refused to be dictated to" and voted for him, adding: "These people know that I am opposed by outside labor bosses and pressure groups such as the NAACP which want to control politics in Texas."

The five - point drought relief program that Yarborough outlined included: (1) Long Range drought relief planning on a "permanent basis" (2) Immediate "cash aid" to farmers and ranchers.

(3) A long-range water plan based on construction of "thousands of little ponds, larger dams on the headwaters of rivers and a hundred big dams on the main basins of Texas rivers.

(4) Expanded soil conservation practices, and (5) more research on drought.

Denies NAACP Aid

Daniel's statewide television speech originating in Dallas will begin at 7 p. m. He said he would "hit hard on the real issues of the runoff campaign."

In other developments:

1. U. Simpson Tate, regional counsel of the NAACP, denied that the Negro organization had come out officially for or against any one candidate.

2. Tom Moore Jr., of Waco, campaigning for attorney general in the runoff, called for a "strict lobby control law as the surest way of returning clean, honest government to the people of Texas."

3. Will Wilson of Dallas, Moore's opponent, said that the Freedom Party in Duval county seems to "have at last broken the tight grip of the (George) Parr machine."

Herbert Hoover Has Birthday

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Former President Herbert Hoover turned 82 today with a word of advice for fellow oldsters: Keep busy.

"Otherwise you will degenerate into talking to everybody about your pains and pills and income tax," he said.

The white-haired, rosy - skinned elder statesman who practices what he preaches planned to pause in his busy workday to attend a dinner in his honor given by a small group of old friends at a local club.

"I expect there'll be a cake," he said. "I said I'd come if . . . I didn't have to make a speech."

propaganda a series of qualifications and complaints about the conference attached to the Russian acceptance. The United States had expected as much from the Soviets.

Authorities predicted the London meeting—to which 24 nations have been invited—will take place next Thursday as scheduled, even though the Russians suggested postponing it until the end of the month.

They also predicted rejection of Russia's proposal that the conference be enlarged to include Red satellites, Arab nations and Red China.

French Against Delay

French spokesmen in Paris said Russia's bid to invite 22 more nations to the conference would get short shrift. The French also said they would refuse to delay the conference.

French commentators appeared unhappy but not surprised at the long Russian note but said "the Russian answer gives some idea of the position the Russians will take at the conference."

Spain officially accepted an invitation to the Thursday conference. That left only Egypt and Greece as nations which have not replied to the invitation. Greece earlier this week suggested th conference be enlarged and postponed but did not give a yes or no answer.

Pampa News Women's Editor

IN PLANNING THE DETAILS of her wedding, the bride should put a lovely complexion at the top of her list. How much makeup to use, or how little, and what kind — Dorothy Gray's wise advice is that a bride take her inspiration from the romantic atmosphere of the day. Color should be dainty, never deep or harsh. Yet it should have enough strength not to get lost in the grey shadows of a cathedral or the brilliance of candlelight.

IF A GIRL customarily wears a lot of makeup, she would be well advised to gentle it down for her wedding. The rare one who uses but a little, should reach for her palette with firmer hand. It is not the day for noble experiments in makeup.

By collecting powder base and powder, lipstick, nail polish, and perhaps some rouge and eye makeup early, wearing it a bit and getting used to applying it, she will find she can apply it easily and beautifully when the wedding day arrives, even if she feels a bit strained.

Dorothy Gray advises the bride to choose foundation and powder with glow and to select lipstick, rouge and nail polish in medium-light shades, pinky or coral depending on skin tones.

She should be sure the bridesmaids wear cosmetic colors that will look pretty with their dresses.

IT IS the tinted makup base that helps powder cling hours longer. It should be dotted with fingertips onto forehead, cheeks, chin and throat, then blended lightly as far down as the dress neckline will come.

Face powder should then be applied — pressed on with cotton. The cotton should then be turned over and the extra powder dusted off, with a bit more pressure used where the necklines of the dress will go.

If the skin tones are good and neither very pinky nor very peachy, foundation and powder should be selected in the shade nearest the skin's own tone. Powder and base somewhat pinky in tone will brighten a sallow skin; in rachel tones, they will tone down a too pink skin.

Lipstick, of course. A bit of rouge should be used if a girl is very pale, has dark circles, or customarily uses it. Nail polish should be a soft pink or coral, a shade similar to lipstick and rouge. If the natural nail look is preferred, a colorless polish should be used and a whitening stick run beneath the nail rim.

Usually a bit of eye makeup makes any girl's eyes look bigger and deeper. It can be applied so inconspicuously as to be unnoticeable. Light brows and lashes really need a bit of darkening with eyebrow pencil and waterproof mascara. Iridescent eye shadow, patted on lightly, deepens and beautifies the expression of the eyes.

DURING the crowded and tiring days of planning and festivity that procede the wedding, there will be a temptation to fall into bed without giving the face a proper cleansing. One night of complexion neglect can take days to repair. An unclean skin is fertile breeding ground for skin blemishes, the last thing the bride wants to have happen.

Emotional excitement preceding the wedding can sometimes bring out a bump or two on the skin, so the bride-to-be should be particularly careful about the nightly cleansing.

Throat and face should be cleansed each day with cleansing ceam that best suits the skin. If the skin is young, normal, or sensitive, a light, fluffy salon type of cold cream should be used. It if is really dry, it will benefit from use of a dry-skin cleaner, which lubricates as it cleanses and discourages flakiness.

Creams and lotions are best applied with upward, outward motions, starting at the base of the throat and working up onto the face.

Skin lotion on cotton, used after the cream has been tissued off, takes off the final film of dirt and stale makeup picked up by the cleansing cream.

Then a night cream should be applied.

If a bride-to-be follows this three step beauty routine each day in the weeks before her wedding, she will find she can do it very quickly.

Before the tinted foundation is applied, the face and throat should be prepared in the same way as the first two steps above, with cleansing cream and lotion.

DURING the days before the wedding, the bride-to-be should get as many full nights' sleep as she can. With them will come nature's blessing in the form of a relaxed, clear-eyed expression and calmer nerves.

She should have her hair shampoo'd and set at a time that will make it look just right for the wedding. Some heads look best a day after they are done, others, two days after.

On the day of the wedding, the bride should allow plenty of time to dress and apply her makeup, so that she will keep calm. All makeup application and hair combing should be done before she puts her gown on. When this is finished, she puts on her dress, throwing a light scarf over her head before she slips it on so her makeup won't smudge or get on her dress. A little flick of the comb will put back any disturbed locks.

One kind of powdered bleach is safe for repeated use on white nylon clothes. A few weeks of washing in it can often restore some whiteness.

Program On Making Cookies Presented At Meeting Of Merten HDC Members

A demonstration on the making of chocolate chip cookies was presented by Misses Diane Huff and Mary Alice Coombes, both 4-H girls, at a meeting of the Merten Home Demonstration Club in the home of Mrs. V. Smith, Merten Lease.

The young women pointed out during the demonstration that chocolate chip cookies were originally called Toll House cookies. They advised the women to always break eggs into a separate bowl to prevent getting egg shells into the mixture.

They said oven should be preheated 375 degrees before beginning to made the cookies. The method they used was to cream one cup shortening, add 12 tablespoons white sugar and 12 tablespoons brown sugar and cream some more. They then added two eggs, beating well. The dry ingredients of one teaspoon soda, one teaspoon salt, 2¼ cups sifted flour were added, along with a few drops of hot water, according to the dryness of the dough. One cup chopped nuts, one package chocolate chips and 1 teaspoon vanilla were the final ingredients added. The dough was dropped by teaspoonfuls onto a slightly-greased cookie sheet and baked for 10 to 12 minutes.

Following the demonstration, Miss Shirley Chase, another 4-H girl, presented several vocal selections and led group singing. During the social period, Mrs. Jack Prather led a game with a prize going to Miss Chase. Refreshments of cookies, rolls and coffee were served.

It was announced the next meeting will be at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 21, with Mrs. L. F. Watt, Merten Lease.

Shirley Keel Feted With Bridal Shower

Miss Shirley Jeanette Keel, bride-elect of Paul Coronis, was complimented with a shower recently in the parlor of the First Baptist Church. Hostesses were Mmes. R. T. Parker, J. C. Daniels and H. O. Darby.

The honoree, her mother, Mrs. Joe Keel, and Mrs. Bill Coronis, mother of the prospective bridegroom, were presented corsages of pink carnations.

Guests were registered by Mrs. Jack Imel, and background music was provided by Mrs. Harold Lewis.

The serving table was covered with a pink linen cloth, centered with an arrangement of pink and white daisies in a crystal bowl. Flanking the centerpiece were pink tapers in crystal holders.

Refreshments of cake and punch were served. Mrs. J. C. Daniels presided at the punch bowl, and Mrs. H. O. Darby and Mrs. R. T. Parker served the cake.

About 60 persons attended or sent gifts.

Christian Science To Discuss Healing

How Christ Jesus healed sickness and discord of every kind will be set fourth at Christian Science services Sunday.

The Master's reply to the messengers of John the Baptist will be included in the Scriptural readings in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Soul" (Luke 7:22): "Then Jesus answering said to them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached."

Among the correlative selections to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy is the following (210:11—16): "Knowing that Soul and its attributes were forever manifested through man, the Master ig aaesh tchee dklve the Master healed the sick, gave sight to the blind, hearing to the deaf, feet to the lame, thus bringing the scientific action of the divine Mind on human minds and bodies and giving a better understanding of Soul and salvation."

Irrigationists Are Alarmed By Dam Financing Plans

EDITOR'S NOTE: United Press Houston Bureau Manager John Colton has been looking into the Brazos River Authority's water conservation plans and the opposition to them. The following is the fourth dispatch of a five-part series.

By JOHN COLTON
United Press Staff Correspondent

HOUSTON (UP — Irrigationists in the lower reaches of the Brazos River are alarmed by a plan to finance six dams on the upper Brazos by selling hydroelectric power.

Principally they are worried that most of the water with which they irrigate some 85,000 rice acres below Richmond, Tex., will be held back to generate the power to be sold. Also, they contend the price of water will jump from $1 an acre-foot to a whopping $9 for the same amount over a period of years.

On this last score, they have the word of the Ambursen Engineering Co., Houston, which prepared the six-dam project report for the Brazos River Authority that the price of water is due for a rise.

New Industry Seen

The Ambursen report, anticipating growth of the market for higher-priced industrial water to be used by new industry attracted by additional water supplies, estimates "the additional dependable water supplies provided can be sold at an average rate of $4 per acre-foot in 1970, increasing to $9 by the year 2000."

Industry, the report said, would buy the higher-priced water; agriculture the cheaper water.

The water interests also oppose the "pump-back" system which the BRA proposes to produce the electricity to be sold to help finance the project. By the "pump-back" gimmick reversible turbo-generators will make current from water dropping from lake to lake and then the water will be pumped back to the top lake again to be used over again.

Plan Called Fantastic

"The rice industry, directly and indirectly, provides jobs for thousands of workmen and thousands of industrial workers in Texas City are dependent on Brazos River water," he said.

"If the power companies put up the money for these dams, by agreeing to buy the power, they are going to call the tune," he added, "and any water we may get at the mouth of the Brazos will be priced so high that we automatically will go out of the rice-farming business."

Actress Is Former Dean Of Students At University

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Riding herd on a bunch of college students is a far cry from putting on pajamas and looking over the footlights at a critical theater mob.

But Marguerite Shaw has played both roles and loved both. Before she joined the road troupe of the play "The Pajama Game" she was dean of students at the American University here.

Although she was no stranger to acting Marguerite had never thought of making a career of it before "The Pajama Game." Up to then acting was strictly for relaxation.

Had it not been for a little prodding from her sister, Reta, a long time professional in the theater, Marguerite would not be where she is now.

Reta played the part of "Mabel" in "The Pajama Game" on Broadway. When the road company was organized she suggested her sister for the same role. Nobody is sorry Reta did.

The theme of the play is set in a pajama factory and the plot is wound around a spat between labor and management over a 7½ cent an hour bost in pay for the hired P.J. hands. Fun is poked at both sides in balanced doses.

As "Mabel," the bookkeeper, Marguerite gets herself into a number of pretty funny jams.

One time she and Buster West were doing a soft shoe dance and our gal did a prat fall. Buster gathered her up and that took a bit of doing. No lady likes to admit that she stretched the scales to 180 pounds, even in flimsies like pajamas.

Marguerite can lay claim to a fine education. She holds an A.B. degree from Bates College and has a master's degree from Columbia university. She calls South Paris, Maine, her home town.

Maybe you have wondered how show people doll up for a performance. Applying the lip rouge and such. The "bookkeeper" showed me her own system.

First, she washes her face, then applies some grease paint. After that she puts on some wet rouge, and next the eye shadow. Face powder is smoothed on and she sees that the brows of the eye are free of paint and powder.

"Then," she said, "I dab some rouge under the chin—shying away from the second one."

She used a lucky rabbit's foot to smooth her face after the make-up is on.

Young Woman! How Will Your Future Hubby Look?

By ELIZABETH TOOMEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—If your boy friend is round shouldered and flat footed at the age of 22, watch out.

If he is straight, muscular, slightly pigeon-toed and energetic, he has a good chance of having a middle-aged figure to compare to Clark Gable's.

This is a reply to the London figure expert who Wednesday reported some gloomy facts about women's figures and how they will change in 20 years.

Men, warned Joe Bloom, should beware of signs like fat knees or flabby upper arms in current bathing beauties. They'll be too plump in 20 years, predicted Bloom, who even suggested that Marilyn Monroe could look like "a sack of flour" and Liz Taylor was "bound to be hippy."

That's only the half of it, according to two figure experts on this side of the Atlantic.

The very fellows who are looking for danger signs in their girl friends' figures may probably show positive signs of flabby futures themselves.

What's more, the two American figure analysts agreed, young women have more chance of overcoming innate figure faults as they grow older than men do. Women have more drive to keep their figures and more time to spend on themselves, they said.

"Men who give promise of falling apart physically at the age of 22 usually do fall apart," Bonnie Prudden, head of the Institute for Physical Fitness, stated. "If a young man is not hard and straight at that age, he'll never be. Women, however, have the drive to change their figures as they grow older."

Warning signs for men are subtle, said Harold J. Reilly, founder of a famous health and exercise center in Rockefeller Center.

"The man who walks pigeon-toed or with toes straight out has a tendency to be cleaner limbed and have less fat on his hips as he grows older," Reilly said.

"If he is knocked kneed and walks with his toes out, that is bad. A low back curve usually means a protruding stomach later in life."

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

REV. J. E. NEELY
First Assembly of God Church
Pampa, Texas

"IN THE SCHOOL OF PRAYER"

"And it came to pass, as He was praying in a certain place that when He ceased, one of His disciples said to Him, "Lord teach us to pray." (Luke 11:1)

It is in intercession that the church is to find and wield its highest power, that each member of the church is to prove his descent from Israel who was a prince and had power with God and with men and prevailed.

It is under the deep impression that the place and power of prayer in the Christian life is too little understood that this has been written. I am sure that as long as we look on prayer chiefly as the means of maintaining our own Christian life, we shall not know fully what it is meant to be. It is on prayer that the promises wait for their fulfillment, the kingdom for its coming, the glory of God for its full revelation.

"Lord, teach us to pray." At first there is no work appears so simple; later on, none that is more difficult; and the confession is forced from us: We know not how to pray as we ought.

Prayer must be in full surrender to His will, in full assurance of faith, in the name of Jesus, and in a perseverance that, if need be, he refuses to be denied. All this must be learned and it can be learned only in the school of much prayer for practice makes perfect.

Let but the deep undertone of all our prayer be the teachableness that comes from a sense of ignorance, and from faith in Him as a perfect teacher, and we may be sure we shall be taught; we shall learn to pray in power.

Jesus knows what prayer is. He learned it amid the trial and tears of His earthly life. In heaven it is still His beloved work, His life there is prayer.

Lord, grant that we may sit at the feet of the Master and learn to pray. May we share the burden of the Lord in intercessory prayer that souls in bondage may be delivered and the Kingdom of God be advanced.

NATO South

From time to time the American people are reminded that their government can be a rather profligate and wasteful accumulation of bureaus. But even we were a little startled by the revelation in Time Magazine for July 30 of the fantastic operation of what is called in the military, NATO South.

This is a Navy deal. It began in 1951 when a few Navy ships dropped anchor in the blue bay of Naples to establish what in wartime would constitute the command post of the allied forces in the Southern half of Europe. Since there is no war, the command post of NATO South has absolutely nothing to do, especially true since all member nations of NATO command their own personnel.

The command actually contains 692 U. S. Navy officers and men. But in order that they may live comfortably and avoid the nostalgia of homesickness, the Navy has imported some 2,103 military and 534 civilian aides to the city of Naples. This is augmented by some 3,166 wives and children, who with their pets, their cars and TV sets, now constitute the elite of the European squanderbund.

These 6,000 plus Americans are living a life that even Riley would envy. What do they do? According to one Navyman: "All those people take in each other's washing." According to the facts of the case, they don't even do this.

An average day begins when the men of the CSCNHSA, to-wit: Commander, Subordinate Command, U. S. Naval Forces Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean, Commander, Headquarters Support Activities, leave for work, either in their own cars (2,487) or on any of five Navy-run bus lines. Wives hustle their children off (on any of eight Navy-run school bus lines) to the world's largest Navy-operated dependent's school.

The "work" performed by the officials constitutes a great shuffling of paper. Actually there is an order in force since May 18, 1956: "Personnel are encouraged to take an occasional morning or afternoon off," which is most eagerly obeyed by one and all.

To obey this dictum in style appears to be the one ambition of personnel, NATO South. To assist them there are: a 112-bed resort hotel, a miniature golf course, boating, roof garden, dancing palace and some of the world's finest beaches. There are ten-day, low-cost excursions to the Isle of Capri — Navy transports manage the excursions — and to Athens, Istanbul, Izmir, Alexandria and Tripoli ($26.00 apiece).

Of course this is only the beginning. Navymen are thinking big. They are planning in addition to the luxury they now enjoy, the acquiring of a second hotel, a new nine-hole golf course, enlarging the school, adding a high school newspaper, modernistic shopping center with new commissary, clothing store, other shops, perhaps even an automotive center.

Of course all of these extras will require still more personnel to service them.

Well, as we've often noted, nothing is too good for our men in uniform

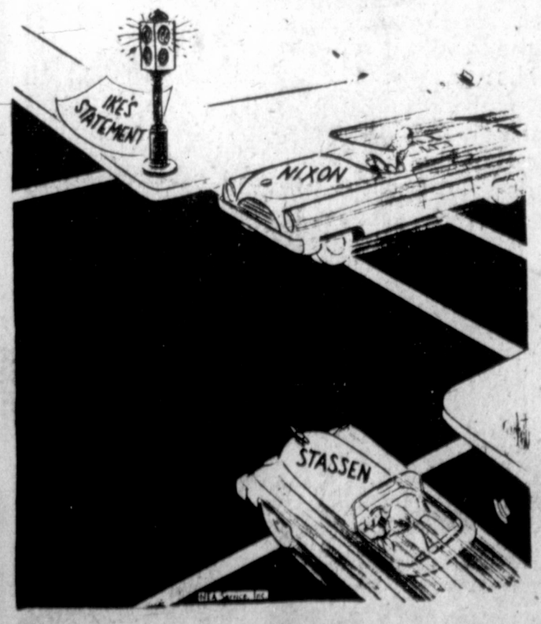

There is just one nagging fly in the balm of luxor spooned up by our Navy brass. That is, that the whole doggone thing is paid for by the American taxpayers, and that in return, these persons are performing no useful service whatsoever.

NATO South, North, East and West could be disbanded and forgotten without hurting America in the least. It is just this kind of profligate living which is creating such a scandal concerning Americans in European capitals. How can foreigners take us seriously when we spend our substance in riotous living right under their noses?

And this is just one example. There are literally hundreds of others. American military and government men are disporting themselves in foreign climes in a most prodigal and useless fashion. No wonder signs, "Yankee Go Home," are appearing with increasing regularity everywhere.

It would be a real relief, taxwise and otherwise, if these 6,000-odd appendages to our socialistically dominated government came home and went to work in some productive fashion. The perpetuation of this posh layout is a national disgrace.

Eminent Domain And The Suez Canal

Isabel Paterson, in her great book," the God of the Machine," says if you concede the right of eminent domain you are lost as far as liberty and the American way of life are concerned.

When people in each community believe the local taxing unit has a right to appropriate land for parking lots, libraries, schools, county buildings, etc. and pay for them at a price established by the citizens who will have to help pay for them, man's rights in property are not secure. It is only natural that the jury whose members will help pay for the confiscated property will not be 100 per cent impartial. Their judgment will be warped. Just as the Egyptian government will be warped when they attempt to appraise the true value of the canal.

As I understand it, a contract or agreement was entered into that the canal in 1968 was to become the property of the Egyptian government. But the Egyptian government, believing in the right of eminent domain, as do the Russian Communist and all collectivist governments is not willing to live up to their contract. They want to use the right of eminent domain to confiscate other people's property.

England, which owns a good fraction of the company, doesn't have clean hands to object to having its property taken by right of eminent domain. Remember, the English government, representing the English people, used the right of eminent domain to take over the banks and the railroads, the coal mines and quite a portion of private enterprise. They, of course, paid for it by giving notes and having their own government establish the price.

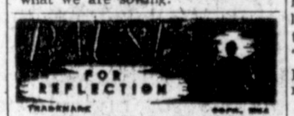

The right of eminent domain is based on the theory that all the land belongs to the government. The man who saw how land could be useful to society and improved it accordingly is obliged to take what the government, the robbers, say he should take. They do not have to reward him sufficiently so that he will voluntarily exchange his property for what the government is willing to pay. Property he took when no one wanted it or bought from their successors.

It is a little hard to see how any man who believes in the Henry George theory could object to the Egyptian government seizing the canal because he believes in land rent, and believes they must pay, to what he calls society or government, whatever the government contends he should pay.

In other words, the right of eminent domain is based on groups of men representing the government having a right to do things that they would not claim they had a right to do as individuals. In short, it is a form of polytheism, a form of worshipping the idol of the state. That the state is omnipotent. It is relieved of obeying moral laws that the individual, if he is to have a clear conscience, must obey.

The right of eminent domain is the same theory as government education — that the majority has a right to force the minority to pay for something they do not want. In the right of eminent domain, it is reversed. Owners are obliged to sell for a price less than they are willing to take. Both of them are based on the use of aggressive force, rather than both sides of the transaction believing they are benefited by the exchange. And, of course, when people believe the government has a right to use aggressive force, the results are what we have today — fiat money, stupendous debts, draftee soldiers, might-makers-right schools, tariffs, immigration quotas, and almost continuous war.

Yes, we are reaping exactly what we are sowing.

...with JAMES C. INGEBRETSEN
President, Spiritual Mobilization

"The good of the governed," declared John Adams, "is the end, and rewards and punishments are the means, of all government. The government of the supreme and all-perfect Mind over all his intellectual creation, is by proportioning rewards to piety and virtue, and punishments to disobedience and vice. . . .Human government is more or less perfect as it approaches nearer or diverges further from an imitation of this perfect plan of divine and moral government."

How does the present government of the U. S. rate when compared to that standard? Is the good of the governed its end — or only the "good" of some of the governed? Or even only the "good" of the governing? How near does it approach — or perhaps it would be more pertinent to ask how far does it diverge from — the "perfect plan of divine and moral government"? For instance, is the [illegible]ization — and thus the rewarding — of violence or threats of violence when committed by members of labor unions consonant with the divine plan? Are such acts right or wrong only in relation to who committs them?

These are among the questions that the grave and wise statement of John Adams raises. It would be well to pause and seriously reflect upon them.

Stassen Really Working For Presidential Nod?

WASHINGTON — Harold E. Stassen's belated effort to sidetrack Vice President Richard M. Nixon is actually a bid for the 1960 Republican Presidential nomination, in the opinion of friends and foes in political circles. Their reasoning, which is based on their knowledge of the Minnesotan's cherished ambitions and on his recent actions and statements, appears to be sound.

Despite his denials, the inappropriately titled "Secretary for Peace" indicated recently that he has not abandoned his 20-year-old dream of landing in the White House some day. In discussing the GOP's November chances without President Eisenhower heading the ticket, he declared that either he or Chief Justice Earl Warren could win easily.

He did not mention Vice-President Nixon, or the man he now thinks should supplant the Californian — Governor Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts.

To the surprise — and chagrin — of Twin City Republicans, Stassen has begun to resume political interests and contacts which he had severed back home. He announced that he regarded Minnesota as his "home state," and said that he had kept his residence there during his years at Washington and as former president of the University of Pennsylvania.

Finally, he proclaimed that he would make Minnesota his "base of operations for the future." He has not been active there, politically, since 1952, when he went to the national convention as a "favorite son," and threw his support to Ike during the victorious roll call.

Naturally, his reaffiliation with Minnesota is essential to his 1960 plans, for he would not be acceptable to conservative Pennsylvania GOP-ers, and the voteless District of Columbia is not fertile Presidential soil.

In linking his name with Chief Justice Warren, as well as in his boosting of Governor Herter, Stassen obviously seeks to identify himself with the liberal and anti-Nixon wing of the GOP. Although his strategy may seem illogical and ill-timed he is preparing to pose as Ike's heir, no matter how the latter may feel about it.

But he must first weaken Nixon, even if he cannot succeed in displacing him. Should Ike become incapacitated during a second term, which almost everybody concedes him, Nixon, like Coolidge in 1924, would take over the Party. Even if Ike finished his second term, Nixon would be in a strong spot for 1960.

His California rivals — Senator William F. Knowland and Governor Goodwin Knight — would be out of the running under such circumstances. Warren would be too old in 1960, whereas Stassen will be only 53. Herter would be 65. None of the other prospects — Thomas E. Dewey, Henry Cabot Lodge, Sec. Geo. M. Humphrey — would be in as strategic a position as "Childe Harold," or so he thinks, provided he can remove Nixon from the field.

Stassen's choice of the supervisor of his second Nixon - Herter poll supports this viewpoint and analysis. He is Adolph Toigo, president of the Madison Avenue advertising firm of Lennen & Newell.

Toigo was an active Stassen-for-President man in 1952. In fact, he was a campaign adviser at Milwaukee headquarters when Stassen ran in the Wisconsin Presidential primary.

Politaker Toigo first predicted that Stassen would win 30 delegates, but subsequently reduced the figure to 20. The Minnesotan failed to obtain a single delegate.

Toigo's erroneous forecasts then have raised doubts about the accuracy of his recent report on Nixon's political weakness and vulnerability, especially as it was conducted in the utmost secrecy.

A teacher called on little Oscar, and said,

Teacher — Tell me what you know about George Washington. Was he a soldier or a sailor?

Oscar — I think he was a soldier.

Teacher — Why do you think he was a soldier?

Oscar — I saw a picture of him when he crossed the Delaware. A sailor would know enough not to stand up in a row boat.

Conductor (brusquely) — It is. Where's your ticket?

The old man fumbled in the depths of an ancient shot-bag.

Mac Places Self In Hands Of Mohammed

By HENRY McLEMORE

CAIRO — I have placed myself in the hands of Mohammed.

Not because of the anti-American feeling which pervades this city at the moment, but because Mohammed is his name.

His card reads: Mohammed Hassanein Khallab. TWA. Official Chief Dragoman No. 1. Contractor for Trips In and Around Cairo.

He works out of the TWA office and bears the company's recommendation. It is a blessing to have him, because the choice of a dragoman, or guide, can make or break your trip to Cairo. There are hundreds — maybe thousands — of dragomen in Cairo, and most of them are pests.

You have no peace until you engage one. They tug at your sleeves, dog your every step, block your way, and come close to driving you crazy. May travellers — and I am one of them — like to wander about without a guide, trusting to a guidebook to fill in the many blanks in their knowledge.

This is possible in most cities, but not in Cairo. The dragomen descend on a new arrival like locusts, and there is no getting rid of them. This is doubly true these days, when a Britisher or an American had better think twice before talking sharply to a citizen of this part of the world. You have to hide your annoyance, tough as it is to do. To show it is to ask for trouble.

Since we got here no one has been out-and-out rude or surly. From what we have seen, to say that we are in any danger would be foolish. We walk freely through the streets, and the glances we get, while not friendly, certainly aren't hostile. It's a sort of sizing-up, what-are-you-doing-here look.

In our hotel, or when we stop in cafes for a drink or a bite of food, we are served, and not reluctantly. But the service has an air of uneasiness about it. The best way I can describe it is to say that both parties — the Egyptians and Mary and I are wary; that we are playing some sort of game we don't like, and one in which we aren't sure of the rules. There is no such thing as ease of manner. All the Egyptians I have talked to, some of them acquaintances made on a trip here seven or eight years ago, have all asked me if I don't notice a great difference. My answer of "Yes, I surely do," was the real truth.

The over-all feeling I have, I guess, is that of visiting in a home where you are received, but not welcome.

I wish the Egyptians knew exactly why I am here, which is purely to see Cairo with Mary. The financing of the dam, and the seizing of the Suez Canal, are not my worries. I'll leave that to Mr. Eisenhower and Mr. Dulles. I'll promise to be a real good boy if they'll just let us visit the Pyramids and the Sphinx, take a boat ride on the Nile, wander about in the bazaars, see the ancient wonders in the Museum, and watch a little Egyptian dancing after the sun has gone down.

Cairo is still a wonderful, fascinating city, no matter what's going on in it, and well worth a few days of awkwardness on the part of the traveller. From our hotel balcony we could throw a stone into the Nile, just across the street, and silhouetted against the horizon the Pyramids are clearly visible. Farouk's yacht, now used as an annex to the hotel, is anchored just in front and rides gently on the swells of the barges that pass in a steady flow.

We arrived here ready to smother in the summer heat, but the weather isn't at all bad. Step in the shade and you're cool enough, and like California the nights are chilly.

Pooh on what the Egyptians think about us! We like Cairo.

The Doctor Says

By EDGAR P. JORDAN, M. D.

Sometimes I think science may be advancing too fast.

Q — I read an article about a London psychiatrist who has given 11 timid people a new drug which gave them self-confidence, power of decision and initiative. In six days the most timid of the group were giving orders to the others and later proposed marriage to a girl. Also, a 14-year-old boy suddenly became a good football player. When will this drug be available here?—Miss C. C.

A — I do not know anything about this drug. I doubt that making ourselves a nation of lions would be wholly desirable.

Q — I am 26 years old and have one child. I would like another but have high blood pressure and Rh negative blood. Should this be a matter of concern?—Mrs. L.

A — They are matters of concern, for which you should receive expert advice both in relation to another pregnancy and for their own sakes.

Q — Will you please say something about surgical mumps? Almost nine years ago I had what the doctor called surgical mumps following the removal of my gall bladder. —Mrs. R. H.

A — The location of ordinary mumps is in the parotid glands near the angle of the jaws. On rare occasions following some operations the same parotid glands become enlarged and painful probably as a result of their infection through the blood stream. This condition is what is called surgical mumps. I would suspect that some cases would yield to one of the antibiotic drugs, though possibly surgical incision and drainage might have to be performed in some instances.

Q — Is it possible to have a backache resulting from an ulcer of the stomach?—R. C.

A — This is certainly not a common cause for backache. I should think it might be possible that if the stomach were low-lying and the ulcer located on the back wall of the stomach that there might be some pain referred to the back.

Q — I am supposed to have an operation of the eye for a detached retina. Will this help the eye? I cannot see with it now. — Mr. H.

Q — My niece has cystic fibrosis of the pancreas. Is this a rare disease and is there a treatment? — F. L.

A — It should be classified as a relatively rare disease. It is an hereditary disorder with many complex features. Treatment with antibiotics is said to be often successful in checking its progress. Surgical treatment may also be indicated.

Q — I have read that Scotch whisky is being used as a medication for arthritis. What do you think of this?—L. T.

A — It probably will make the patient forget the pains and aches for a time but will not cure the arthritis.

THE NATION'S PRESS

A LAW TO PROMOTE CRIME?

N. Y. Daily News

A new legal botch called the Youth Court Act, slated to become New York State law next Feb. 1, is just being exposed to some much-needed light and air. Among its provisions this act empowers judges to protect from public record or knowledge first offender felons aged 18 to 21, accused of any crime short of murder or kidnaping.

The young hoodlum may have a record as a "youthful offender," but if he has never before been convicted of a felony, his case could be swaddled in secrecy unless the judge decided to turn him over to another court. He may be a mugger or perhaps caught out on his first heisting job; the act would still apply.

This do-gooders' dream slid through the Legislature in its closing rush and it is doubtful that either house gave it much study. The court setup — a judge assisted by a committee of laymen — would naturally be susceptible to pressure and misguided sympathy.

The act still awaits the attorney general's interpretation, but already the County Judges of Western New York have called for sweeping amendment, including abolition of the secrecy clauses barring press and public from Youth Court proceedings. The New York State County Judges' Association and the State District Attorneys' Association have requested postponement of the act's official effective date by several months. The state court supervisors ask a year's delay.

The 16 to 18 age bracket already has adequate protection from public and police record under the Youthful Offender Law. Then, too The News and most other newspapers voluntarily omit the names of offenders under 15 — even though given out by the police — unless the crime is unusually serious or vicious. We shall continue to do so.

But here we have the prospect of a press muzzled to protect a large new segment of the criminal population who drink, drive cars and have virtually all adult privileges except the right to vote. It seems to us that such a law can do nothing but encourage young hoodlums to commit more serious crimes.

We believe the Youth Court Act should not be amended or postponed; it should be wiped out by repeal before Feb. 1. Then let's draft a sensible, workable law that, among other things, protects the public's right to know.

Oilers Split With League Leading Sports

Win Opener, 8-6
Lose Nightcap, 3-2

HOBBS — The league leading Hobbs Sports and challenging Pampa Oilers split a twin-bill here Thursday night. The Oilers eked out an 8-6 win in the opener and the Sports bounced back for a 3-2 victory in the nightcap.

The first game saw the Sports lead all the way until the top of the seventh inning when Pampa pushed across six unearned runs to go ahead to take win. The big blast of the final frame and the one that broke the Sports back was a three-run homer by Jim Martin.

In the finale the Sports put single tallies on the scoreboard in each of the final three innings. The big blow for Hobbs was a round tripper collected by diminutive Ossie Alvarez in the fifth frame.

Hobbs pushed home three runs in the opening frame, on a walk, a hit batsmen, and inside the park homer by Sports Dan Dobbek. The Sports added two more in the second and notched their final tally in the third. A single by Pete Aldazabal, a stolen base and a two-base hit by Ike Seaone which alowed Aldazabal to score with the Sports final run.

Pampa surged back in the fourth to push two runs homeward. Len Tucker was safe on a fielder's choice play, went to third on a single by Johnny Bruzga and scored on a bingle by Bob Flores. Bruzga scored the second tally when Kretschmar hit a ball to shortstop Alvarez that was labeled double play but was only a single outfielders choice ball.

In the top of the seventh Pampa put Sports starter Ronnie Bloodworth out of business with a single, walk, double and an error by Bloodworth. Oliva came on in relief for the Hobbs club and served up the homer to Martin to chase enough runs home to charge Oliva with the loss.

The second game resulted in a torrid mound duel between Oilers Hoyt Benedict and Chinique for the Sports. Benedict was hit for only six bingles but one of them was Alvarez's homer and two others were doubles by Carlos De Sousa and Hank O'Neal. O'Neal's two-base wallop came in the sixth frame and a single by Dan Dobbeck chased him home with the winning run.

The same two clubs will conclude a four-game series here tonight with Buddy Woods the probable starter for Pampa and Bill Kearns the likely mound choice of manager Pat Stasey of Hobbs.

All-Stars May Rock Browns With Lambeau Pro Coaching

By JIMMY BRESLIN
NEA Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO — (NEA) — It is easy to understand why this year's All-Star squad has been given the highest regard of any group in the past several years in which the best from the colleges have squared off with the professional league champions at Soldier Field.

The talent isn't the only answer. There have been other All-Star teams which have had players comparable to Howard Cassady and Earl Morrall and the rest of this year's club which takes on the Cleveland Browns the night of Aug. 10 with the usual 90,000 plus in attendance.

The answer can be seen in the way Curley Lambeau, running his second All-Star camp, handles matters. You can't reach Coach Curley on the telephone throughout most of the day. He's too busy putting his 50 man squad through heavy workouts at Northwestern University in Evanston.

Lambeau, the old Green Bay coach, poured over lists of college stars, figured out the players he wanted to contact.

It was this way last year, too, when his Ralph Guglielmi-led team defeated the Browns, 30-27, in an effort which erased most of the bad impressions left by the Detroit Lions' 41-6 smackover of the Stars the year before.

When the Lions took the Stars apart in 1954, the end of the Star game seemed near. Each year, the top college coaches in the nation were assigned to the Stars. But they had taken it as a lark.

So Lambeau and a pro staff was inserted. They ran the team as if it were a pro unit last season and it showed in the results.

It is the same story this year. With Don Kindt, Hampton Pool and Tony Canadeo on his staff, Lambeau and his club leave the impression that they will make a considerably better than decent showing against the Browns.

Morrall, the Michigan Stater, probably will be the starting quarterback. Navy's George Welsh is behind him.

For runners, there are Cassady, the Ohio and NEA All-American Lions after the game; Don Schaefer, Notre Dame's ground-eating fullback; Lenny Moore of Penn State and Jack Losch, the Miami of Coral Gables halfback who has been the talk of the camp.

Up front, Hal Burnine of Missouri, Ron Beagle of Navy, another NEA All-America, and Army's Don Holleder, at his proper position, will handle pass catching duties.

Bob Skoronski of Indiana, a bulky tackle, has made the best line showing in the Stars' camp so far. With him are such as Tackle Sam Huff of West Virginia and Bob Felligrini, the Maryland center, both NEA All-Americas, along with big-legged Hugh Pitts, Texas Christian's pivot man.

The Browns, training at Hiram, O., come into the game with the usual pro problem. Paul Brown wants to use most of his squad to determine which players he'll drop from an overloaded roster.

The big deal with the Browns is their quarter back situation. Otto Graham is gone for good this time and Babe Parilli, with the Packers before entering service, seems to have taken over. George Ratterman, the perennial sub, is behind him. It was Ratterman who ran the Browns against the Stars last year.

Babe Parilli must fit neatly into Browns' automatic system or the National Football League champs could be in trouble.

Elks Lose Opening Tilt; No Games Here Tonight

The Elks tournament has no games on tap for tonight at Oiler Park, Rath's Blackhawks will play their game with the Am-Jets in Amarillo tonight.

The championship will be decided here tomorrow. Pampa's club will be matched in the opening tilt of the twin-bill with the loser of the Rath-Am-Jets feud.

Perryton's powerful Ranger packed team had to withdraw from the tournament due to certain conflicts.

In the only tilt of the Elks semi-pro tournament which got underway Thursday night at Oiler Park, the Rath Blackhawks settled the Pampa club sponsored by the Elks, 6-2.

The Elks team started off in fine fashion getting one lone tally in the first to take a 1-0 lead. But the local aggregation was kept in check scoring only another one lone marker in the sixth.

Rath's scored one run in each the third, fourth, and sixth frames and fired home three tallies in the fifth for their biggest scoring splurge of the night.

Cecil Reynolds started on the hill for the Elks and went the full route as he was touched for the loss.

Ballinger Blanks El Paso Texans

By UNITED PRESS

League-leading Hobbs and third place Pampa divided a twin bill in the Southwestern League Thursday night.

Pampa won the first game 8 to 6, but the Sports came back to grab the nightcap 3 to 2. Hobbs increased its league lead to 10 games over second-place El Paso because El Paso got the whitewash from Ballinger 10 to 0.

In other games, Carlsbad tripped Midland 13 to 2, San Angelo beat Clovis 3 to 2 and Plainview whipped Roswell 16 to 10.

Tonight's schedule remains the same: Pampa at Hobbs; Plainview at Roswell; Clovis at San Angelo; El Paso at Ballinger; and Carlsbad at Midland.

Pampa trailed Hobbs 6-2 going into the seventh inning of the first game but came up with a six-run rally, featured by Jim Martin's three-run homer. In the second game, Hobbs' Art Chinique surrendered only five hits for the victory.

Bums, Redlegs Pick Up Wins; Mantle Collects 39th Homer

By CARL LUNDQUIST

Taylor Phillips and Bob Trowbridge, whose names are as strange to the pennant race as if they had just stepped out of a space ship, were keeping the Milwaukee Braves in first place today at a time when their veteran heroes were faltering.

Phillips, a 23-year-old who shed his GI khaki for a baseball uniform this season, pitched a three-hitter in his first major league start Thursday night to beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-1. It was vital that he did because the Cardinals won the second game, 5-1, by belaboring Gene Conley. The previous night it was young Trowbridge who came to the rescue by beating the Cards with a six-hitter after which Lew (Best Bet) Burdette, another trusty veteran, also suffered a defeat.

The victory was extra sweet for Phillips because he was a private in the same company where Cardinal pitcher Vinegar Bend Mizell was his sergeant and "Well, we weren't exactly buddies." He would have preferred beating Mizell instead of Murry Dickson, but was happy to settle for his performance wherein he struck out six Redbirds. Stan Musial banged home three runs to give Tom Poholsky an eight-hit second game triumph.

The Dodgers moved within a game and a half of the top by defeating Pittsburgh 7-3 on a 13-hit job in which they also made use of three Pirate errors. Junior Gilliam made four hits, two of them doubles. Carl Erskine failed in quest of his ninth straight triumph but reliever Ed Roebuck gained it instead.

Cincinnati chugged to within two games of the top by defeating the Cubs, 5-3, in 10 innings on Gus Bell's 22nd homer and his third in four games. Ted Kluszewski tied it up at 3-3 with his 27th homer with a man on in the eighth. Brooks Lawrence won his 16th game in a relief role.

The Giants ended the six-game Philadelphia winning streak with a 5-2 victory in which Jackie Brandt propelled two homers. Willie Mays and Bill White also homered for the Giants. Andy Seminick hit a two-run homer for the Phils.

Mickey Mantle went 11 games ahead of Babe Ruth's home run pace with his 39th homer in a 15-7 Yankee triumph at Washington in which Hank Bauer banged four hits and Billy Martin, Bill Skowron and Andy Carey had three each.

TV Is Muscling In On Politics

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION HEADQUARTERS, Chicago (UP) —Your home picture machine will serve up a streamlined version of the Democratic convention next week.

TV is muscling in on politics. The plan is to make the convention breezier. It'll be done by taking some of the wind out.

According to the present blueprint, the speeches and demonstrations will be shorter. And the delegates and alternates — more than 4,000 of them—will curb that impulse to wave to Aunt Minnie back home.

"You can't expect 4,000 people to sit on their fingers and we don't want 'em to," says Jack Christie, radio and TV director of the Democratic national committee. "Our philosophy is let them be natural—if they feel like cheering, let 'em cheer.

Speeches Cut

"But TV has called attention to the fact that some things can be done to make for a better convention. We feel strongly this year about trying to cut down on the length of speeches, demonstrations and that sort of thing."

Among other things, Christie said, TV has been responsible for the elimination of the middle aisle from the convention hall this year.

"It'll do away with traffic congestion during demonstrations, we hope," he explained. "During the last convention, everybody streamed down all three aisles and nobody went anywhere.

"This year, the demonstrations will start in a side aisle, move up front past the rostrum, swing up the other aisle and make a complete circle back to the starting point."

Nobody Tall or Short

Because of TV, the rostrum has been redesigned, too. An elevated platform has been built inside it so that all speakers will appear to be the same height. The elevator will enable each speaker to meet the TV camera at eye level.

The revamping of the speaker's platform has eliminated side ramps as well. That means there won't be any hassles over the microphone between delegates who have vaulted on stage. There's only one way to get on board this year—from the rear where a sergeant-at-arms will be stationed.

"We hope to hold all demonstrations down to 10 minutes," said Christie, "and there's talk of holding nominating speeches down to 10 minutes and seconding speeches down to three."

Part In 'Bridey Murphey' Was Demanding On Actress

EDITOR's NOTE: Aline Mosby is on vacation. today's guest column is by Teresa Wright on her adventures in 'starring in "The Search for Bridey Murphy."')

By TERESA WRIGHT
Written for the United Press

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — During World War II there was an expression, "Oh, my achin' back." I heard soldiers originated it from long hikes with full packs.

But I didn't have sympathy for their plight until I did "The Search for Bridey Murphy." Never has an actress taken such a back-beating.

This is the story about Colorado housewife Ruth Simmons who allegedly was "age regressed" to another life in 18th century Ireland by hypnosis. I had to lie flat on my back for almost six weeks while Louis Hayward went through his hypnotic routine.

The first three days on the couch were fine. I went home every night rested. But after that, it was murder.

"Bridey" was the most demanding picture I've ever made. Can you imagine having to act 90 per cent of a picture with your eyes closed?

Hayward would pretend to hypnotize me and then the camera would move in close as I told, in an Irish brogue, about my life in Belfast. Knowing that the camera was several inches from the end of my nose, I always had the temptation to open my eyes and look into the lens. It was disconcerting having to emote in the darkness. Try running through 20 or 30 facial expressions with your eyes closed.

I practiced facial expressions in front of a mirror, putting on a look of joy, or of anger or fear. Then I'd turn around and repeat them in front of my daughter, Mary, with my eyes closed.

Anger was the tough one. Mary said, "Mother, with your eyes closed, you don't look angry. You look silly!"

To make it more difficult, I had to assume the voices of the "age regressed" Brideys. I had to talk like Bridey as a four-year-old at 8, 17 and 66. I got the voices mixed up several times. Only I used the 66-year-old voice for the eight-year-old Bridey and didn't realize it.

The director said, "Teresa, I want a grammar-school voice, not something from the old ladies' home."

Don't let anyone tell you that lying down on a couch and acting with your eyes closed is a relaxing, soft job! It was torture.

Actor Asks 'Quo Vadis' Television

By JIM BACKUS
Written for the United Press

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—I think television is getting a little reckless.

What with hillbilly singers gyrating as if they'll bust their britches, stark cotton-pickin' stark realism in some of the dramas, double entendre from panelists — the audience is becoming jaded. You can't even shock them with give-away figures any more.

Whither goest TV? These give-away shows will have to go, or the next big headline-hunting program probably will be an audience participation show called "Stand the Pain."

The Emcee will simply - drool over his prospects. "Now for your first plateau," he'll say: "We'll give you five dollars for every tooth we pull."

A broken arm gets you $100. The grand prize is an appendectomy for the entire family, with two gay colorful weeks at Cedars of Lebanon hospital!"

Now about those "television visits so-and-so at home" type program. I think the public is getting wise to that show where everybody loves everybody, the kids are bright little angels and everything's dusted.

In the future I'd like to see a show which reveals pop up on the chandelier after getting a snootful the night before, with mom ragging him in the middle of a dirty room, and the kids, in need badly of a change of clothes, tearing at her skirt.

Variety shows will have to come up with entertainment instead of catalogues. This tremendous competition might lead masters of ceremonies to list stars — just list them.

Maybe they'll be in the audience, maybe they'll be at home watching the show, maybe he'll mention he saw them in an alley off Broadway, but the list is so long, you never get a chance to see the show — only the credits.

I don't blame the actors for these trends in TV. It's not the easiest way to make a living, working in television. The fault may well rest on the unpadded shoulders of the crewcuts of Madison Avenue whose ticket to TV and show business was earned by a semester in the glee club at Princeton 30 years ago.

It's enough to make your hair turn charcoal gray.

Celanese' Net Income Is Reported

Celanese Corporation of America has reported for the first six months of 1956 net income of $6,185,602 after charges and taxes, equivalent to 65 cents a common share after preferred stock dividends.

The 1956 first-half earnings compare with earnings during the like period last year of $7,221,797, equivalent to 83 cents a common share. Included in the first six months of 1955 was a non-recurring profit item from sales of investments equal to 13 cents a share after taxes.

For the three months ended June 30, the company's net income was $2,723,836, equal to 26 cents a common share after preferred stock provisions.

Net sales for the first half of this year amounted to $94,421,267 compared with $93,248,262 in net sales for the comparable 1955 period. Second quarter sales this year totaled $45,943,380.

In the report, President Harold Blancke noted that with the new Celanese triacetate fiber arnel appearing assured of commercial success, facilities are being expanded to increase its production, which is currently inadequate to supply market demand. He said also that production has been started in the company's new chemical plant at Point Pleasant, W. Va., and new plastic film casting facilities at Belvidere, N.J., both of which should help to expand company markets.

Blancke reported that the company has acquired from Celatino, S.A., a Panamanian subsidiary, its investments in Celanese Mexicana, S.A., and Celanese Colombiana, S.A., with the result that future corporate profit reports will include such income as may be realized from these investments.

N.A.A.C.P. To Ask For Fine Review

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will ask the State Supreme Court Monday to review its $100,000 fine for contempt of a circuit court.

The Supreme Court set Monday as a hearing date on an NAACP request for a writ of certiorari, which would force the lower court to submit its records for review.

The writ would automatically stay execution of the fine until a Supreme Court decision is handed down.

The NAACP was fined July 25 when it refused to surrender its membership lists as ordered by Circuit Judge Walter B. Jones. The state sought the records to use as evidence in its battle to prevent the NAACP from dissolving a temporary injunction issued June 1, banning it in Alabama.

The Negro organization submitted all other records asked, but balked at giving up its membership rolls on grounds it would open up its members to mistreatment and discrimination.

Unlucky Day

Friday is considered as an unlucky day everywhere in Christian countries. Its association with ill luck probably arose from the connection of Friday with the Crucifixion.
