Court action means Permian won't be in playoffs, lawyer says

By Rick Brown
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Odessa Permian football team is out of playoff contention this year after an Austin appeals court Monday declined to overturn sanctions imposed by the University Interscholastic League, an attorney said.

Jerry Treece, who represents 12 Permian football coaches in their suit against the UIL, said the Third Court of Appeals declined to rehear his motion for a temporary injunction that would have permitted Permian to play.

State District Judge Pete Lowry of Austin ruled against the reigning state 5A football champs Oct. 29, prompting the appeal to a higher court.

Treece said he would abandon the injunction because of time considerations. Playoffs begin Nov. 16.

However, the coaches will continue to pursue their suit against the league in Lowry's court, asking for both punitive and compensatory monetary damages, said the attorney.

Treece said he would have to consult with his clients before deciding how much in damages to seek. One Permian football player, senior defensive tackle Chris McMillan, also is a plaintiff in the case.

The UIL Executive Committee on Sept. 20 banned Permian from post-season play, suspended the team's varsity and junior varsity head coaches for two games and placed the 12-man staff on a year's probation.

The committee determined that the team had broken two league rules that indicated summer practices were more organized than permitted and gave the school an unfair advantage.

Committee members later rescinded the year's probationary punishment imposed on eight of the coaches since they had not appeared in person to argue their case before the state panel.

The departure of the Panthers from the playoff picture means the Midland Lee Rebels, Odessa High Bronchos and San Angelo Bobcats are virtually assured playoff berths. The UIL for the first time this year is allowing three teams from each district into the post-season play.

Said Treece, "If we didn't have three teams going, this would be a moot question anyway. Permian would be out of it." The Panthers are 3-1-1 in District 4-5A play, having tied San Angelo this past Friday.

Bush signs budget bill

■ The president spends the day before national elections campaigning in Texas for Clayton Williams and accentuating the positive about the United States.

By Tom Raum

HOUSTON (AP) — President Bush signed a $492 billion deficit-reduction package into law Monday night, a reluctant election-eve reminder to voters of pending tax increases.

Bush delayed signing the controversial budget package until 8:20 p.m. (9:20 p.m. EST), beating a midnight EST deadline when temporary spending authority was to expire. The torturous passage last month of the package, which includes $140 billion in tax increases as well as significant cuts in government spending, plunged Bush's administration into disarray and crippled his once-high approval ratings.

The president, who spent the day campaigning on behalf of Republican candidates in Texas, also signed the 13 appropriations bills that provide money for the government for the next 11 months.

Bush wound up five days of political travel urging voters to "get out there and vote," ending a midterm election campaign marked by mixed messages and squabbling among his advisers.

The budget package caused the president considerable political damage within his own party, and White House advisers had worked hard to move voters' attention off the budget fiasco.

Campaigning in his adoptive home state, the president sought to emphasize positive election-eve themes, acting on a recommendation from some advisers to look more "presidential."

In the final days leading up to today's midterm elections, Bush has been buffeted by conflicting recommendations from senior advisers about how to make the best of his falling popularity, said aides who spoke on the condition of anonymity.

After Bush found that the slumping economy and his wavering positions on tax and budget issues were not playing well to Republican audiences, he first embarked on a blistering attack on Democrats — blaming them for shoving new tax increases down his throat.

Aides said that the Democrat-bashing approach, primarily urged by Bush's combative chief of staff, John Sununu, appeared to be backfiring.

According to sources, Bush's former pollster, Robert Teeter,

Justice sending lawyers to enforce voters' rights

■ North Carolina's Republican party has pledged not to use information obtained from questionable mailings to try and challenge any voter's eligibility.

By James Rowley

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department sent lawyers to North Carolina Monday to try to ensure that black voters aren't disqualified at the polls with information gathered by the state Republican party.

Assistant Attorney General John R. Dunne said the state GOP has pledged not to use any information it obtained from returned postcards to challenge the eligibility of voters at the polls today.

Democrats charged the GOP sent out the postcards to intimidate black voters and discourage them from casting ballots in the neck-and-neck race between GOP Sen. Jesse Helms and former Charlotte mayor Harvey Gantt, who is black.

In addition, Democrats feared that in cases where the postcards were returned to the state GOP as non-deliverable, indicating that someone had moved, the party might challenge those people at the polls if they tried to vote.

Dunne said a team of Justice Department lawyers would be in the state Tuesday to consult with election officials and, if necessary, seek court injunctions to prevent the misuse of information from the postcards.

The postcards advised voters that they were ineligible to cast ballots if they had moved in the last 30 days. Officials feared that if the returned postcards were used to challenge eligibility it would place an unfair burden of proof on voters.

"In our judgment, the statement on the cards was misleading if not totally inaccurate," Dunne said.

National rig count hits 3-year high

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas added 23 rigs to its count to boost the nation's number of working oil and gas rigs to 1,144 — the highest tally in nearly three years, Baker Hughes Inc. reported Monday.

The overall count this week increased by 37 rigs from last week's total of 1,107. A year ago this week, the count was 1,042.

Ike Kerridge, a vice president at Baker Hughes, said the rig count is the highest since Dec. 28, 1987, when there were 1,145 rigs. The count represents the number of rigs actively exploring, not producing, for oil and gas as of last Friday.

The rig count "is well in line with our expectations," Kerridge said.

"This is a period of seasonal increases," Kerridge said in explaining the large increase. "And you also are seeing the results of higher oil prices."

Since Iraqi soldiers invaded Kuwait in early August, oil prices have soared to around $40 per barrel.

Kerridge, however, could not explain why Texas was the only state to show a sharp rise in its rig count. Other states posted only modest increases or slight declines.

Baker Hughes, a Houston-based oil toolmaker, has kept track of the rig count since 1940. The rig count is the widely watched index of drilling activity.

At the height of the oil boom in December 1981, the count reached a peak of 4,530. But the rig count plunged to a low of 663 after oil prices collapsed in the summer of 1986.

Among other major oil-producing states, Colorado, Oklahoma and North Dakota's counts were each up by two and Wyoming's count was up four.

California lost one rig, Ohio and Pennsylvania each lost two and New Mexico lost three.

In some of the other states with drilling activity, Alabama added five rigs, while Arkansas and Mississippi each added two rigs.

Many GIs in Saudi Arabia fail to vote

By Edith M. Lederer

IN EASTERN SAUDI ARABIA (AP) — A handful of GIs voted by fax and thousands more cast absentee ballots. But other troops in Operation Desert Shield said they had too much on their minds to think about Tuesday's elections back home.

"What election is it?" asked Sgt. Marceline Griffin, 39, of Philadelphia, an operating room technician with the 326th Medical Battalion. "I haven't seen an absentee ballot yet."

Cpl. Patrick Locke, 20, of Spokane, Wash., who was repairing the engine of a tanker on Monday at a forward Marine base in eastern Saudi Arabia, was equally astonished.

"I think we have so much on our mind now, and have so much work to do, we don't have time to think about it," he said. "The way they vote, they help decide how long we'll be over here. I wish I knew more about it."

A three-week "get out the vote" blitz on Armed Forces Radio and voting information booths in many of the big mess halls produced good results. About 100,000 applications for absentee ballots were handed out by the Judge Advocate's office of the Army Forces Central Command, which was in charge of promoting registration.

The Navy launched a similar campaign for the elections, which include congressional and gubernatorial races. Sailors aboard the USS Biddle, a guided missile cruiser, voted by absentee ballot three weeks ago in Alexandria, Va.

'Probably, of those who were over here, more of them voted in this election than would have voted had they not been here because it was made easier for them. They didn't have to drive down to a polling place and take time off from work to vote. We came right to them.'

— Lt. Col. Kevin V. Murphy, deputy staff judge advocate

"Voting is your right," said Chief Petty Officer Steven Sisk, 45, of Fremont, Calif. "If you don't vote, don't bitch."

Maj. Jerry Kineen, 46, of Boston, a lawyer on the staff of the Judge Advocate in the Army Forces Central Command, said it's a misconception that most troops didn't vote.

"Probably, of those who were over here, more of them voted in this election than would have voted had they not been here because it was made easier for them," said Lt. Col. Kevin V. Murphy, 44, of Hanover, Mass., the deputy staff judge advocate.

"They didn't have to drive down to a polling place and take time off from work to vote. We came right to them," he said.

Marine Cpl. Daryl Cherry, 21, of Harrington, Del., watching a football game during a break from work, said: "I know the opportunity is here to vote. Really, I don't know who to vote for. I don't even know who the candidates are. It would be like drawing straws and I'd rather not do that."

Staff Sgt. Lee Corkran, 28, of Tucson, Ariz., who is with the Air Force Combat Camera Team, said he didn't vote because he felt removed.

"From here, America seems like some kind of dreamland," he said.

Many servicemen said they had trouble with the mail.

Cpl. Frank Gillyard Jr., 21, of Mansfield, La., with the Marine Wing Support Squadron, said he hadn't received his absentee ballot and probably wouldn't get to vote.

With 60 to 90 tons of mail arriving every day, and delays on outgoing mail as well, it's impossible to say how may servicemen and women actually received ballots and voted.

"There has been a limited voting by fax. Some of the individual cities and towns did allow this," said Kineen.

The Justice Department, meanwhile, filed suit against Tennessee, the only state it said had refused to accept absentee ballot applications sent by fax by GIs stationed in the Middle East.

The lawsuit seeks a court order directing Tennessee officials to accept three applications sent to Shelby County voter registrars. The department also wants the state to send absentee ballots to the three GIs so they can vote in today's election.

Murphy said a few ballots arrived by fax, and were faxed back after completion, but added, "One of the problems of sending them by fax is that there is no envelope to put the ballot back in. It's supposed to be a secret ballot."

Lt. Col. Bill Hagan, 43, of Key West, Fla., the staff judge advocate with the Army who is in charge of the registration program, said he sent his absentee form early.

"I'm so glad I voted because I got mail — I got campaign mail from across the board in Florida," he said.

BUSH: Democrat-bashing no longer strategy and his 1988 media consultant, Roger Ailes, bypassed Sununu last week and persuaded Bush to lighten up and to stress positive themes.

As Bush's political sights began to refocus toward his own 1992 reelection effort, the president also vented his frustration at commentaries on his diminished popularity and the mood of the electorate.

At a GOP rally in Tyler, Bush lashed out at "the cynics, these Washington pundits that we see on these tiring shows all the time."

"I don't know if you're like me, maybe you've enjoyed these things. But I can only take so much self-flagellation," Bush declared.

"Don't tell me what's wrong with this country, show us what's right about it," he asserted, with GOP gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams at his side.

At a rally in Waco, Bush raised the specter of former President Jimmy Carter, saying "I get so tired" of contentions that "there's a great malaise about the political process."

Bush also continued his barrage against Saddam Hussein, demanding the Iraqi leader withdraw from Kuwait.

"Unchecked and uncontrolled aggression could be world war tomorrow," he said.

At a final campaign gala in Houston, the presence of three or four protesters shouting "No war for oil" gave bush an entry into one of his favorite lines — that the U.S. military buildup in Saudi Arabia is not to secure oil, but to oppose "naked aggression." The protesters were hustled out of the room.

Bush was to vote in Houston today before returning to Washington.

As Bush and his wife Barbara campaigned across Texas, the Massachusetts-born and Connecticut-raised president boasted of their longtime ties to the state.

"I am a Texan and I am proud of it and I know Texas quality when I see it," Bush told his Tyler audience. He noted he had voted in Texas in "every election since 1948."

Meanwhile, in La Joya, campaigners for Ann Richards passed out buttons Monday reading "I paid my taxes in '86!" at a rally where she nicknamed her opponent "Mucho Dinero."

She used the Spanish phrase, meaning "lots of money," in accusing Republican Williams, a millionaire rancher and oilman, of trying to buy the governor's office.

Richards again criticized Williams for not paying any federal income tax in 1986 and then spending more than $8 million on his own money in the gubernatorial campaign.

Williams, who made the admission last week, has said he did not pay taxes that year because his businesses lost money in the poor economy and he didn't have any taxable income.

Richards said Williams and other wealthy individuals can "afford all the sophisticated professionals to take advantage of the loopholes" in tax law.

"One of the richest men in this state didn't pay any income tax," she told a group of retirees earlier in Houston. "I say it was a bad year for the schoolteachers too, and I'll bet they paid their income tax. Anybody who wants to be governor of this state should accept responsibility."

Richards also used the campaign's final day to stump in San Antonio and Austin.

RIGHTS: Race now focus in Senate contest

(From 1A)

Dunne said the investigation began last Friday, a day after Democratic Party Chairman Ron Brown charged in a letter that the North Carolina GOP had sent postcards bearing misleading and false information to residents of heavily black precincts.

Brown's hand-delivered letter demanded an investigation by the Justice Department's civil rights division.

The charge was made as race flared as an issue Helms' bid to defeat a stiff challenge from Gantt.

Helms has accused Gantt of favoring racial job quotas and he is airing an advertisement showing the hands of a white job applicant crushing a rejection letter. The announcer states that the job went to a minority applicant to fulfill a hiring quota.

The votes of blacks in North Carolina are considered a crucial ingredient in Gantt's efforts to unseat Helms, a three-term conservative Republican.

Dunne said the investigation determined that the postcards had been "disseminated on a fairly broad basis."

Earlier in the day, a federal judge in Newark, N.J., held that the Republican National Committee was not involved in the North Carolina mailings, which Democrats charged violated a 1982 consent decree signed by the national GOP.

FBI agents spent the weekend interviewing state party officials and two Justice Department voting rights lawyers were dispatched to North Carolina Monday to pursue the investigation. Others were being sent to join them, Dunne said.

"We will continue to look at the whole scheme that was utilized" to determine if any civil rights violation occurred, Dunne said. "What we were concerned about in the short term was countering any negative or deterring effect these cards might have."

The investigation so far has determined that the postcards were mailed to voters in 29 different counties, though Dunne said the department had not had an opportunity to verify the Democratic charge that they were targeted to heavily black precincts.

Dunne said investigators were compiling a list of the precincts "for the specific purpose of advising our team what to look for."

Dunne said a large number of mailings were made in Mecklenburg County, near Charlotte. Some were also reported in Edgecombe County, in eastern North Carolina where 36 federal officials had already been sent to observe the election.

The North Carolina Republican Party has turned over documents from the mailing campaign to the Justice Department. Dunne said evidence of any violations could be used to pursue a civil suit.

He stressed that there was no evidence of any criminal violations of civil rights laws.

Republicans had dismissed the Democrats' complaint about the mailings as "much ado about nothing."

"It's merely an effort to ensure that it's a fair, honest election," Rick Shelby, political director of the National Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee said last week.

Jack Hawke, the North Carolina GOP chairman, last week defended the postcards, saying "the only people who received a mailing from us are those that are improperly registered."

Israeli militant Kahane killed in New York hotel

NEW YORK (AP) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, who campaigned to drive Arabs from Israel and urged American Jews to arm themselves against anti-Semitism, was shot to death Monday night after a speech at a Manhattan hotel.

Police identified the assailant as El Sayyid Al-Nosair, 35, of New Jersey. He was wounded by a postal police officer as they exchanged gunfire outside the Halloran House, said police spokesman Officer Scott Bloch.

The postal officer and a bystander in the hotel were also wounded, police said.

Kahane, 58, a Brooklyn-born Israeli extremist who once served in the Israeli parliament, was pronounced dead at Bellevue Hospital, said hospital spokesman Peter Schectman. Kahane had been shot in the neck, he said.

Mayor David Dinkins said the shooting was "an international tragedy that shocks all of us."

Kahane was head of the anti-Arab Kach party in Israel. The party advocates the ouster of all Arabs from Israeli-held territory and a ban on Jewish-Arab marriages. The movement's symbol is a clenched fist inside a Star of David.

Kahane founded the militant Jewish Defense League in the United States in 1968 to mount armed responses to anti-Semitic acts. The group organized classes in karate and weapons training and held patrols in high-crime neighborhoods.

Seymour Reich, chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American-Jewish Organizations, called Kahane "a highly controversial figure who had strong supporters and opponents."

"Whatever one thought about his political program, his shocking assassination will be deplored by friends and foes alike," he said.

Witnesses said Kahane had given a speech to about 60 people at a meeting of the Zionist Emergency Evacuation Rescue Organization. Shortly after 9 p.m., as Kahane mingled with guests, a gunman came into the conference room and fired at least two shots at Kahane.

The assailant ran from the room, bumping into a man, whom he shot in the leg, said Capt. Steve Davis, a police spokesman.

The gunman fled outside and tried to hijack a taxi, Davis said. An on-duty postal officer outside a nearby post office intervened. They exchanged gunshots and both were wounded.

The officer was shot in the arm and the gunman was hit in the chin.

PERMIAN: Coaches will still argue rights violated

(From 1A)

A spokesman for the UIL, Peter Contreras, said the league "felt all along that the state executive committee acted accordingly, regardless of what the perception was by some people."

Contreras, who attended the hearing in Lowry's court, felt the league's attorneys already have proved sufficiently that the coaches were not harmed unduly by the sanctions.

But neither he nor UIL attorney Matthew Trevena would comment on the ongoing nature of the case.

Despite the loss before the Third Court of Appeals, Treece said the 12 coaches "still have plenty of standing" to argue that their constitutional rights were violated by the UIL.

Treece said the process which led to the sanctions violated both state and federal constitutions in regard to due process and civil rights.

The Ector County Independent School District first determined that the violations occurred and reported them to the District 4-5A Executive Committee. That panel also concurred that violations had occurred, but left punishment up to the UIL State Executive Committee.

Treece said the eight coaches who did not come to Austin for the state committee meeting but still were penalized have a particularly strong case. In the suit, Treece calls these eight the "blindsided coaches."

Permian coaches in Lowry's court have said their chances for advancement to higher paying jobs are jeopardized by the executive committee's actions.

Although ECISD earlier was added as a defendant to the suit, Treece said he and the coaches will not seek monetary damages from the district.

ECISD will be dropped from the suit at a later date, he said, since the district's inclusion only was intended to help the attorney more easily argue in favor of a Permian playoff appearance.

Permian head football coach Tam Hollingshead did not return calls from the Reporter-Telegram requesting comment on Monday's developments.

Shining Path kills policemen in Peru

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Bombs set off by Maoist Shining Path guerrillas killed two policemen and seriously injured 20 people in the capital and two major cities, police said Monday.

The attacks came in response to the government's lifting of the state of emergency in the Andean city of Ayacucho where the guerrillas began their insurgency in 1980.

Rebels late Sunday shot to death two policemen in Lima, police said. The killings followed a bombing attack the same night on the U.S. consulate, which broke several windows but caused no casualties.

The Shining Path early Sunday lobbed two grenades at police and soldiers in the main square of Ayacucho, seriously injuring 17 members of the armed forces and two civilians, police said Monday.

The government lifted the state of emergency Oct. 24 in Ayacucho, a departmental capital 230 miles southeast of Lima and the birthplace of the Shining Path.

In the coastal city of Trujillo, 305 miles north of Lima, rebels Sunday detonated a car bomb outside government health offices and dynamited state telecommunications offices, seriously injuring a guard, police said Monday.

Weatherford mourns the death of Mary Martin

WEATHERFORD (AP) — Flags fluttered at half-staff Monday across Mary Martin's Never-Never Land.

It was here, in a still gracious Victorian country home, that the beloved Broadway star was born 76 years ago and where she returned often during a career that won her worldwide renown.

Critically acclaimed and widely admired for her roles in a number of blockbuster musicals, it was a tune called "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" that launched her career, and it was her stage and screen renditions of "Peter Pan" that made her famous.

And she brought the magic of both back home, in her own special way.

In her book, "My Heart Belongs," she honored her hometown with a chapter titled "My Heart Belongs to Weatherford," and she reminded the folks of that in 1983 when she was here to receive many honors.

On July 4, 1976, America's 200th birthday, Martin came home to unveil Ronald Thomason's statue of Peter Pan that was being placed in front of the Weatherford Public Library in memory of her parents.

Quoting from her most famous role, she said: "I have a place where dreams are born and time is never planned; it's not on any chart, you must find it with your heart, Never-Never Land."

Weatherford, she said, was her Never-Never Land.

On Monday, the home at 414 W. Lee St. had two pumpkins and a wooden swing on the front porch, a "For Sale" sign in the front yard and a family of admirers occupying the rambling, five-bedroom, turn-of-the-century dwelling. "Everyone loved her," said Molly Carpenter, who has lived in the house eight years with her husband Jim and two daughters. The family is preparing to move to nearby Fort Worth.

"She was a remarkable person and part of this town," she said. "You could stand in the middle of the street and scream, 'Who's a fan of Mary Martin's?' and they'd come pouring out of their doors."

Mrs. Carpenter said she met Martin's son, "Dallas" star Larry Hagman, many times, but the Broadway star herself only once, when she came back to Weatherford for the funeral of a friend.

About three years ago, Martin had a friend take her picture in front of the house.

She sent the Carpenters a copy which said: "To the Carpenters, in the house where I was born. With love, Mary Martin."

The flag at the old brick post office flew at half-staff Monday, as did others scattered about the city of some 15,000 residents.

Old friends remembered Martin as much for her close ties to Weatherford as for her legendary star status.

However, Marge Ashcroft, a high school classmate of Martin's, told the Weatherford Democrat she keeps thinking of the scene in "Peter Pan" where he encourages the audience to clap their hands to bring back a fading Tinker Bell.

"It kind of makes us want to clap our hands to bring her back," she said.

Letter delivered 19 years later

DALLAS (AP) — A letter complaining about slow postal service has been delivered to a Dallas woman nearly 20 years after it was mailed, she said Monday.

Ellen Wallace said she got dizzy when she recognized the handwriting on the air mail envelope delivered Nov. 1.

"I was sick at my stomach," she told WBAP Radio. "When I finally got my chair and sat down and turned it around, I realized that it was a letter from my parents."

Mrs. Wallace, 62, is a native of Breslau, Germany; now Wroclaw, Poland. Her father, Karl Leowski, died in 1976 and her mother, Marha Leowski, died in 1982.

The letter had been mailed from Magdeburg, Germany on Jan. 30, 1971.

Candidates make final campaign appearances

California Democratic gubernatorial candidate Dianne Feinstein follows "Sweet" Alice Harris, carrying a towel reading "Run Dianne Run," as she leaves a rally at Santa Monica Airport Monday. Mrs. Feinstein was running to catch a plane to her next election eve stop in San Luis Obispo.

Associated Press

Candidates for Congress and 36 governor's seats made their final campaign rounds Monday amid signs of extraordinary voter dissatisfaction but without any indication of a looming anti-incumbent landslide on Election Day.

Democrats were confident they would retain their majorities in both houses of the new 102nd Congress, and nary a Republican disputed their claim.

The GOP hoped to counter with victories in the big-state gubernatorial races.

Buddy MacKay, a Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor in Florida, spoke for nervous candidates everywhere when he declared, "I'm not saying the race is over. Anything can still happen." His running mate, gubernatorial candidate Lawton Chiles, was leading in the late polls.

Overall, pollsters and analysts said Tuesday isn't likely to bring a thorough house-cleaning of the political establishment.

"Americans are very dissatisfied with the way things are going in this country," and mention economic concerns more than any other, said Frank Newport, editor in chief of the Gallup Poll.

Still, he said, in an assessment shared by others, "It's not necessarily clear we're going to have a massive get-rid-of-the-incumbent" outcome.

Fresh evidence of voter dissatisfaction emerged in an ABC News poll, which reported that 77 percent of those surveyed believe the economy is getting worse, and only 4 percent believe it is getting better.

In the biggest state of all, GOP candidate Pete Wilson embarked on a five-city tour of California, tagging Democratic rival Dianne Feinstein as soft on crime and a big spender.

Countered Ms. Feinstein, trailing in the polls, "For eight years they (the Republicans) have taken us in the wrong direction. For eight years we've had uncontrolled growth, increasing crime and declining schools."

In all, 34 Senate seats are on Tuesday's ballot, a new 435-member House will be chosen and three dozen governors will be elected. More than 6,000 legislative races, local contests and a healthy assortment of initiatives complete the ballots.

The legislative races, in particular, were drawing more interest than usual from the national parties. Both sides want the legislatures on their side when states redraw the boundaries of U.S. House seats to reflect population shifts detected in the 1990 Census.

Newport said a late-October poll found that only 24 percent of those surveyed approved of the job Congress was doing.

SUBJECT: Filming of the Volvo "Monster Truck" Advertisements

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

For nearly 35 years Volvo has earned an outstanding reputation not only for high quality products but for high quality advertising as well. Through Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox we learned that there were concerns about the validity of a recent Volvo advertisement. We have reviewed the matter in great detail and wish to share these facts with you.

The concept for this advertisement came from an actual "Monster Truck" event which was sponsored by the Arthritis Foundation of Vermont on September 11, 1988. According to information received by Volvo, after repeated passes by a "Monster Truck," the passenger compartment of a Volvo 240 station wagon remained largely intact and uncrushed while the cars surrounding it were flattened.

On June 12, 1990 in Austin, Texas, a film production company hired by Volvo's advertising agency staged a dramatization of the Vermont event for the purpose of making a Volvo advertisement. The company recruited approximately 400 local residents to participate as crowd extras in this production. Two "Monster Trucks" were hired, 3 used Volvos and approximately 20 other used cars were collected for the filming. Unlike a typical "Monster Truck" event, this was a filming for a commercial which required numerous partial runs and reruns to secure all the photography necessary.

The advertisement which was produced inaccurately characterized the event as a car crushing exhibition when in fact it was a dramatization of the actual event in Vermont.

On October 24 Volvo received a letter from Attorney General Jim Mattox of the State of Texas alleging several violations of the Deceptive Trade Practices Act. Volvo responded immediately and voluntarily sent a team of company and advertising agency management to meet with the Attorney General's staff.

On October 30 Volvo management learned for the first time that the film production team had apparently made modifications to two of the vehicles. There were two reasons for the modifications: first, to enable the filming to be done without threatening the safety of the production crew, and second, to allow the demonstration Volvo to withstand the number of runs by the "Monster Truck" required for filming. We are proud of the strength of our Volvos, but even they cannot withstand being run over so many times by a "Monster Truck." Volvo management immediately ordered its advertising agency to withdraw this advertisement from its print and television schedule. Volvo also instructed its dealers not to display or use the advertisement.

Volvo has built its reputation on honesty and candor. It was never the intention of Volvo to produce an advertisement which deceived or misled. We would like to thank those individual Austin residents and Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox for bringing this matter to our attention so that we could take corrective action and insure that this does not happen again.

Very truly yours,

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India's governing party split Monday under pressure from three months of class and religious riots, stripping Prime Minister V.P. Singh of his chances to stay in office.

The split in Singh's Janata Dal party put former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi in the role of kingmaker — and conceivably of king — one year after leading his long-ruling Congress Party to defeat.

But with the nation in disarray and his own party still weak, Gandhi was unlikely to seek the prime minister's post. Gandhi has indicated he will support Chandra Shekhar, leader of the faction breaking with Janata Dal.

V.P. Singh

Chandra Shekhar

The Hindu-Moslem tensions that helped precipitate the political crisis continued Monday. News agencies said 15 people died in three states, raising the two-week toll to more than 345 in clashes over Hindu efforts to seize a Moslem mosque and replace it with a temple.

New Delhi Monday was paralyzed by a strike called by a fundamentalist Hindu party, the Bharatiya Janata Party, which supported the temple project and abandoned Singh's government when he moved to stop it.

Police used tear gas and bamboo staves to break up unruly demonstrations and arrested 600 people on charges of rioting and arson, Press Trust of India reported.

The split in Singh's party was engineered by Chandra Shekhar, a long-time rival of the prime minister's, and by Devi Lal, a patrician farmer Singh fired as deputy prime minister last August.

While Singh chaired a meeting of his Parliamentarians Monday, the splinter group of 82 legislators met separately to elect Chandra Shekhar their leader, said a spokesman for the breakaway group, Harmohan Dhawan.

The splinter group agreed to request that President Ramaswami Venkataraman ask Chandra Shekhar to form a new government, according to Dhawan.

The exact breakdown in the new faction was not immediately clear, but Chandra Shekhar, who customarily uses both names, said he would submit to the president a list of Parliamentarians backing him.

Singh was to have faced a no-confidence vote in Parliament on Wednesday and there has been no word on whether or not the session will go ahead. Parliamentarians must now wait for the President to establish the procedure.

On Monday, Venkataraman accepted the resignations of six ministers from the 38-member Cabinet who split with Singh. The resignations were handed in over the past week.

Singh's tailspin began in August when students poured into the streets to protest his plan to reserve nearly half of government jobs for low caste Hindus.

Nearly 150 people died during several weeks. About half the victims were students, mostly teenagers, who committed suicide by burning themselves or by consuming poison.

A second dispute, which began as a clash over the mosque in the town of Ayodhya, fueled nationwide riots.

But on Sunday, Hindu fundamentalists agreed to call off their attempts to take over the mosque, which they believe stands on the birthplace of an important Hindu god.

Under a bargain struck with civil authorities, about 7,000 Hindus Monday were allowed into a section of the mosque to recite prayers and sing hymns. At least 22 people were killed trying to storm the building last week.

"We welcome the election of Chandra Shekhar as leader of the Janata Dal," said Congress Party spokesman V.N. Gadgil. He reiterated that his party would cooperate with any "alternative leader."

Gadgil declined to say whether the cooperation would be based on a specific program, or if policies would be discussed at the meeting.

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A senior Communist leader who was believed to have helped plan the 1989 killing of a U.S. Army colonel was arrested on a suburban street, the military announced Monday.

Reynaldo Bernardo, alleged deputy commander and intelligence chief of the New People's Army in the Manila area, was arrested Sunday as he was waiting for a ride in Quezon City, according to Maj. Gen. Guillermo Flores, chief of the Philippine army.

Flores said Bernardo was involved in the planning of the April 21, 1989, killing of U.S. Army Col. James Rowe, who was gunned down on his way to work at the Joint U.S. Military Assistance Group in Quezon City.

French youths riot

PARIS (AP) — Youths wrecked stores and stoned riot police Monday as more than 100,000 high school students nationwide joined marches demanding more teachers, better facilities and improved security on campus.

Authorities said most of the marchers in more than a dozen cities were orderly. But scores of youths threw stones and bottles at riot policemen deployed near the National Assembly building in Paris, where lawmakers opened debate on the 1991 education budget.

At least five policemen and eight journalists were injured by projectiles, police said.

Police responded to the bombardment by pushing back some of the youths with clubs, but generally avoided confrontations.

Church delegates meet

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Archbishop Desmond Tutu urged churches once divided over apartheid to work together for a peaceful future as he opened a church conference Monday.

About 300 delegates from 90 churches are meeting in hopes of reaching agreement on how to help South Africa move peacefully to a non-discriminatory democracy. They will spend five days at the National Conference of Churches, billed as the largest such meeting to be held in South Africa.

Israeli government barely makes it through no-confidence vote

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's government narrowly defeated a no-confidence motion in Parliament Monday, the second such challenge to his fragile right-wing coalition in two weeks.

In the occupied Gaza Strip, soldiers kept 150,000 Palestinians under curfew for a third day. One Arab was killed and at least 185 people were wounded by army gunfire during weekend rioting.

Eight Palestinians and an Israeli soldier were wounded in continuing clashes in Gaza Monday, Arab reports said. In one attack, masked assailants opened fire on soldiers and troops fired back, but there were no reports of injuries.

Reporters were barred from Gaza unless under military escort.

Defense Minister Moshe Arens said the unrest "will not move us to surrender (control of the occupied lands). ... It will not influence us."

The parliamentary challenge to Shamir was called by seven opposition parties protesting the government's failure to build enough housing for an influx of Soviet immigrants.

A record 120,000 immigrants arrived this year and at least 75,000 more are expected through December. But according to Israeli reports, fewer than 10,000 new apartments are being built. Much of the lag is because of bureaucratic infighting among ministries.

Fueling the anger of left-wingers was a Cabinet decision Sunday to give Housing Minister Ariel Sharon a free hand in distributing lands to contractors. The move was said to be an attempt to cut through red tape, but critics said it left the door open to corruption.

"All this time nothing has been done and now suddenly you wake up and see there's no housing, so you take emergency powers to get things done?" complained Labor Party legislator Shimon Shitreet on Israel television.

"The mishandling of the immigrants has broken all records ... lots of panic with no action," Avraham Shohat of Labor told lawmakers.

Sharon responded by accusing his detractors of trying to delay efforts to provide housing and seeking to "deter Russians from immigrating."

"When I look at the way the opposition benches are acting, a wave of sympathy engulfs my heart," Sharon added.

'Keating Five' must all testify

The U.S. Senate has never held a disciplinary hearing into the conduct of so many of its members. The Keating Five have become symbols of one of the greatest debacles in Senate history — the $500-billion savings and loan scandal.

In about 10 days, the Senate Ethics Committee will open public hearings on the fate of the five Alan Cranston, Donald Riegle, Dennis DeConcini, John McCain and John Glenn.

McCain and Glenn are upset that they must now suffer the personal disgrace of defending publicly their actions in favor of Charles Keating, who owned California's Lincoln Savings and Loan. He allegedly bilked stockholders of hundreds of millions of dollars. Special Counsel Robert S. Bennett recommended that the committee drop charges against the two. However, the three Republican and three Democratic committee members voted unanimously to include the pair.

Neither has anything to complain about. Both have already admitted receiving large campaign contributions from Keating and joined with the three other senators to seek favors for Keating in meetings with federal regulators. The size, timing and meaning of their actions could not be clearer. A powerful bloc of senators was putting pressure on federal bureaucrats to help Keating while he was — whether they knew it or not — allegedly milking men and women of their life savings.

McCain has argued against going before the committee more than anyone. He says Bennett's exoneration is sufficient. Yet McCain's actions may be more reprehensible than any of the others. He not only accepted free vacation plane rides and hospitality from Keating in the Bahamas, but his family was involved in other dealings with the alleged fast-buck artist. There was never an arms-length relationship between the two.

Since the American people must pay for the extraordinary savings bailout, they have a right to an open and full explanation from McCain and Glenn about their actions. Implict in McCain's argument is that, as a former naval officer and prisoner of war, he deserves to be treated as a man or honor. He means freed from testimony. On the contrary, as a man of honor, he should welcome testifying and so should the other four senators.

Timing is everything in war with Iraq

WASHINGTON — If the United States goes to war with Iraq, President Bush believes it must happen in a three-month window between mid-November and mid-February, according to high-level administration sources.

Anderson

While there are many reasons not to go to war at all, one big reason it has not happened yet is that the timing is not right. Bush wants to wait as long as he can to see if his sanctions will pinch Iraq into submission. The Central Intelligence Agency is working up an estimate of the effect of those sanctions and will finish by mid-November. So far, the Iraqis on the street are feeling the pinch, but the military is not.

Bush also needs more time to complete the troop deployment, which has taken a month longer than originally planned. The troops will be in place when the window of opportunity opens. White House sources explained to us why that three months is as ideal as Bush will get in the Persian Gulf.

The weather in the region is best between now and mid-February. After then comes "khasiin," which means 50 — the 50 days or so of blinding sandstorms, day after day. Visibility is poor and even spy satellites are stymied. (If the United States begins the war, it will most likely happen on a moonless night when U.S. military strategists say their night-vision equipment will give them their best advantage.)

Any war must be over by March, which begins the month-long Moslem observance of Ramadan. The holy days celebrate Mohammed's receipt of the first revelation of the Koran. Moslems spend the days praying and reading the Koran.

If Ramadan comes and goes with U.S. troops (i.e. "infidels") still in Saudi Arabia, the Saudis will definitely want the foreigners out by June. That is the time of the "hadj" or the holy pilgrimage to Mecca. Every Moslem must come at least once in a lifetime, and every year hundreds of thousands of them travel to Saudi Arabia. No non-believers are allowed near Mecca. Although most of the U.S. troops are far away, there is an Air Force wing using a field in nearby Taif. The hadj would be no time for Americans to disrupt the sacred rites of the Moslems. In 1979, the mere rumor that Americans instigated riots during the hadj caused a mob to set fire to the U.S. Embassy in Pakistan. Two people died in the fire.

The longer Bush waits, the stronger Iraqi defensive positions become. More than 2,000 Iraqi tanks are already dug in behind sand barriers, barbed wire, land mines and even napalm mines. The Iraqis hope their fortifications will cause so many quick U.S. casualties that the American people will demand withdrawal.

And the longer Bush waits, the more Kuwait is pillaged and decimated by Iraqi troops. Some intelligence estimates indicate that already as many as two-thirds of the Kuwaitis have been moved to Iraq. They are being replaced by a migration of thousands of Iraqis looking for a higher standard of living.

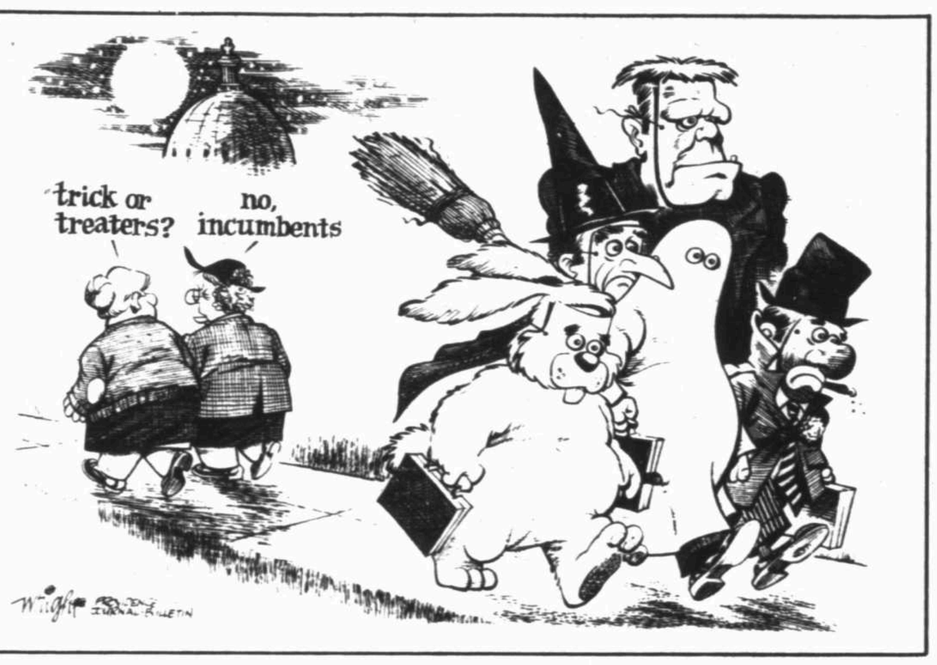

The morale of U.S. troops erodes every day that they spend waiting. Pentagon reports say they are already losing their fighting edge.

The world alliance against Saddam Hussein is also eroding. Bush knows that the longer he waits, the more likely it is that some of those allies will wash their hands of the whole mess.

Finally, American support for war is diminishing, and along with it, Bush's popularity. The longer he waits to attack, the less support he will have for that attack when — and if — it happens.

TRACKING SMUGGLERS — A U.S. task force is looking for smugglers who have tried to break the blockade against Iraq. The task force has access to U.S. intelligence technology and can monitor banking transactions. Several black-market operators, including some legitimate companies, have tried to make under-the-table deals with Iraq. They have been reported to their respective governments.

Jack Anderson's and Dale Van Atta's column is distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Splendor that we lose with 'progress'

The National Council of Churches a month or so ago gave birth to a Revised Standard Version of the Bible. A Bible for a new day: updated, pomaded, ready to rock and roll.

Scholarship has marched on since the original RSV came out in 1952; likewise, social sensibilities have changed. Feminists, for instance, object to the use of "man" and "mankind" as social generics. Better "One does not live by bread alone" than " Man does not live by bread alone." Anyway, the former is now what the Good Book says. Doubters and troglodytes will please get with the program.

Murchison

Various other linguistic changes reflect modern social mores, such as they are. The most beguiling, maybe, has to do with St. Paul's account of his tribulations in Second Corinthians. "Once I was stoned," the RSV has the apostle declare. One (in the current parlance) can see the problem, though the full context of Chapter 11 makes it clear the apostle had not, in fact, been attending a rock concert. Primly the revisers tidy up with "Once I received a stoning."

The new RSV, for all the changes it enjoins, is not the event the original one was. The original was meant to supplant the beloved King James Version, whose supporters erupted in fury at the notion of tampering with words obviously dictated by God.

But oh, the style, and, oh, the language! And, oh, the loss! Are we better off with seamless modern English than with the "verbal archaisms" of the 17th century? I somehow doubt it.

A modern writer shouldn't make this known, but modern writers aren't as proficient as their forbears. More than one viewer of PBS' "The Civil War" series talked rapturously to me about the beautiful English in letters written by soldiers and other ordinary people.

Were these folk more literally gifted than we? I think not. Their advantage was that, as they wrote, they drew unconsciously from a well of English such as we in modern times have allowed to silt up; dignified, poetic, leisurely, frequently inspired. The King James Version was on the very surface of the well.

Among our ancestors, Bible-reading was as normal as eating. Our ancestors masticated and digested the KJV's sublime poetry, its lofty cadences. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the Shadow of Death ... He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live ... And, behold, the veil of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom.

John Bunyan wrote self-consciously plain prose, but see him send Mr. Valiant-For-Truth off across the River Jordan: "My sword I give to him that shall succeed me in my pilgrimage, and my courage and skill to him that can get it. My marks and scars I carry with me, to be a witness for me, that I have fought his battles who now will be my rewarder. So he passed over, and all the trumpets sounded for him on the other side." Words of one syllable, mostly, yet this necklace of zircons, so beautifully stung together, glitters like diamonds.

No one talks like that any more, we are constantly reminded. I won't argue about that either. I would argue, possibly, that we might talk – and write – better were we not told that no one talks like that any more.

Even conservatives sometimes dismiss the King James Version. I myself laid it aside for a while in favor of the New English; I have lately taken it back up, with renewed appreciation of its splendors. Splendors of any kind are hard to come by in the age of George Bush, Dick Darman, Dan Rather, Joseph Biden, and Luther Whatever-his-name-is who beat the obscenity rap in Florida.

Have a nice day.

Readers react to Bush's crazy crusade

My little contest to explain President Bush's reasons for his crazy crusade in the Persian Gulf has produced several hundred entries, about five of which buy the president's public explanation.

Reese

I haven't decided yet who will get the prize, but I thought I would share some of the entries. I won't identify people by name since that wasn't part of the deal.

But here are few sample entries:

Wrote one: "To challenge Islam, the last bastion against secular democracy."

A more tongue-in-cheek entry was: "A subversive element of former LBJ advisors, directed by exiled French generals, have infiltrated the National Security Council in an effort to discredit our president."

I'd say they're succeeding.

One entry not especially flattering (or accurate) to Arabs goes: "Iraq is powerful, ruthless, Arab and hates Israel. The Arab masses will support power and hate. America is preventing an Arab-Israeli nuclear war."

No prize for that one.

Another entry the president won't like goes: "Bush sent troops to the desert to totally destabilize the area, thereby allowing his rich oilmen pals in Texas to drill for more U.S. oil, inland and offshore, making them even richer."

A couple of entries hit on the theme expressed in this one: "He did it to test the waters for One World government by the U.N., also to divert the nation's attention away from our bankrupt status and political corruption at home."

A retired general offered this entry: "Beware the oil industrial complex! The current crisis is an unconscionable profit surcharge by oil companies, big banks, governments and other thieves for the naive."

This entry clearly came from a Democrat: "Any military buildup spurs a sagging economy and also hides other serious national problems, budgets, saving and loan, HUD and all other Republican scandals started in 1980."

One of my favorite entries came from a former Royal Air Force bomber pilot: "For the same reason we abandoned making synthetic fuels in 1953 — stupid politicians and big buck lobbies."

An intriguing entry, alas more than 25 words, was that Bush wanted "to bail out the Soviet economy but thought the American people wouldn't allow direct aid, so he cooked up the oil crisis to boost the price and help the Soviets, who are indeed a big oil exporter and are being helped."

A lovely three-word entry was: "Money, Power, Sanctimony."

Another entry from a man who volunteered his prize to the exiled Kuwaiti royalty, who are having to rough it on $2,000 a day at five-star hotels, listed these reasons: "Oil, special interest, greed, arrogance, forgetfulness of past mistakes, military contracts, politics and most of all, stupidity."

This entry is from an Arab-American: "We are there basically to control and monopolize the Arab oil and render the Arab world divided, weak, recolonized and hence unthreatening, especially to Israel."

Several entries came from people who think we are there as a result of biblical prophecies. One thing for sure, when it comes, it will be a war in which everybody getting killed is convinced he is on the side of God. Personally, I've always thought God had better things to do than involve himself in mankind's stupid and endless quarrels.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

Holyfield's from Atlanta — my kind of town

ATLANTA — They just can't mess with Atlanta anymore. The city's been the laughingstock of the sporting world for years with its pretenders in the major leagues, but so what?

Grizzard

Atlanta went out and won the 1996 Summer Olympics and now it can boast of Evander Holyfield, champion of champions, the king of heavyweights, Atlanta's own.

I watched the fight on television. Buster Douglas, the former champion, comes out in a white robe with a hood on it.

Somebody watching the fight with me said, "If he'd turn that hood around and put some eyeholes in it, he'd look like the Grand Kaboola of the Klan."

Then Buster took off his robe. You knew he didn't have a chance then. He looked pregnant.

I've seen better bodies on a pulpwood truck grinding up a steep hill.

When he danced up and down, the excess fat rolled up and down. The announcer said, "He looks like jelly."

But Holyfield. Black steel. He wore the face of swift death. The only way it could have been a fair fight is if Buster Douglas had had a knife.

The betting started. Somebody still wanted Buster. I love a pigeon. I made gas money for a month.

The only thing that worried me about Holyfield was that his wife had filed divorce papers against him earlier in the week.

She charged him with adultery and physical and mental cruelty. That will cost him some bucks.

I had to wonder if he was thinking to himself, "I wonder if she's already got my stereo."

It has been my personal experience that the first thing an angry wife does when she decides it's time to split is she takes your stereo.

Then, I thought, "Maybe that's good news. Maybe he'll take it out on Buster."

And he did.

First round goes easy for Holyfield. He looks like lightning. Buster has all the moves of a tub of lard.

Second round. Holyfield again. Upside the head. In your belly. Now I'm here. Now I'm not.

It's as delicious as it might be if the Braves had a 15-game lead in the National League West.

You knew it couldn't go much further. The guy who wanted Buster said, "I've got a wife and kid at home. Can I get out of the bet?"

Not in this life.

Buster's big right hand upper cut missed in the third round. And there he stood. Off balance. Chin exposed.

And Holyfield's right struck quickly and decisively. Ever been run over by a beer truck? That's probably what it felt like to Buster.

Down he goes. And stays.

"Think he's dead?" somebody asks.

Ol' Buster just stretched out with his eyes closed. I couldn't feel too sorry for him, though. He came in fat, and that was his fault.

And what did he get for the fight? Twenty-four million?

He was probably hearing the referee's count:

"One million... three million... ten million... "

I just hope Buster's got some left six months from now.

It's been a great year for my town. The Olympics, now Holyfield, and I read a story in the papers the other day that murders are down 14 percent in the city.

Evander Holyfield gets hit with a divorce suit and wins the heavyweight boxing championship in the same week.

That's my kind of man. This is my kind of town.

AP Laserphoto

Construction continues near Columbia, Mexico, on the Rio Grande on what may be the world's biggest border crossing, one of a number of Mexican projects designed to prepare for an expected jump in trade with the United States.

COLOMBIA, Mexico (AP) — Mexico is building seven border bridges and thousands of miles of highway to handle the boom in traffic from an expected free-trade agreement with the United States.

With help from private investors, President Carlos Salinas de Gortari set a plan in motion last year to improve Mexico's inadequate roads and customs system.

Solidarity Bridge and border crossing at Colombia, now a cinder-block town of only 350 people, is the largest project.

A 66-mile highway linking Colombia to an improved road between Laredo, Texas, and Monterrey will cut the driving distance between the border and Monterrey to 140 miles from 180.

More than 2,480 miles of highways are to be built before the president's six-year term ends in 1994. Half will be financed through private investment.

The other bridges, under construction or planned, will be in Matamoros, Nuevo Laredo and Valle Hermosa, all in Tamaulipas state; Piedras Negras and Ciudad Acuna in Coahuila, and Ciudad Juarez in Chihuahua state.

Mexican officials say the improvements are needed to strengthen trade links with the United States and compete with the economic blocs of Europe and Asia.

Trucks crossing into Mexico often must wait for hours, then negotiate undivided, two-lane highways riddled with potholes.

"We don't need to be a rich country to have good roads, but we need good roads to become a rich country," said Carlos Joaquin Vallejo Rivero. He directs the state highway office in Nuevo Leon, the northeastern border state where the Colombia project is being built.

"It costs more and takes more time to transport things via bad roads because of higher insurance and loss of goods," he said.

Trade with the United States took off in 1986 when Mexico joined the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, lowering import duties on hundreds of foreign products and making exports of Mexican manufactured goods a priority.

From less than $30 billion in 1986, two-way trade rose to $52 billion in 1989. Mexico is the third-largest U.S. trading partner.

A U.S.-Mexican trade agreement that would remove tariffs and other barriers is under discussion. It may be linked with the similar U.S.-Canadian pact of 1988 to create a single North American trade zone of 335 million people.

Salinas and President Bush are to discuss the proposal at a meeting Nov. 26-27 in Monterrey.

"All indications are that we are going to have even more intensive trade with the United States, and we are just not prepared," said Antonio Fuentes Flores, director of the Trust for the Development of Nuevo Leon.

Folklore forecasters plentiful on the prairie

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Everybody in Texas talks about the weather, but nobody seems to be able to predict it.

Not that there's a scarcity of indicators, natural or otherwise, for doing so, or those who believe they can interpret them. Old-time farmers and ranchers have studied everything from woolly bear caterpillars to ant mounds to calculate the chances of rain, hard winters, late frosts and drought.

While the accuracy of such methods may be in question, their legend has not died. Just ask any rancher on sale day at the Arrowhead Auction Barn.

"All I know is when the ground's wet, it's a sure sign it's raining," said D.C. "Slim" Sparkman of Bowie, grinning slyly from his comfortable seat in the auction hallway. "I've been hearing about weather signs most of my life, and they don't work. I remember them saying something about if the sun sets behind a cloud on Sunday, it'll rain by Wednesday. I just hope there's some clouds come Sunday 'cause we could sure use the rain."

Sparkman presented his business card, which across the top reads, "Ranching — feedlot — dominoes."

"Now when I plant my garden, I go by the moon, but that's all I'm sure of," said Mack Roberts, who's been calling in the rain report from Antelope to the Times Record News for more than 25 years.

"I've heard that you can go by how squirrels gather nuts to tell if it's going to be a hard winter."

"Out here on this bald prairie, you just don't see that many squirrels though," chimed in Sparkman. "At least not the four-legged kind."

Despite the scarcity of squirrels, the two could agree on the reliability of mesquites. Farmers long have depended on the budding of mesquite trees to mark the passing of winter's final frost.

"When turtles and tarantulas are crossing the highways in large numbers, that's supposed to mean we're in for a spell of dry weather," said T.E. Morrison of Scotland, Texas, as he roamed the holding pens, examining some Holstein calves. "I think they're supposed to be headed from one pond to another, seeking a better source of water, but I'm not sure. Like the man said, when it's cloudy all over and the rain's pouring down ..."

PERSIAN GULF CRISIS

Baker, Saudis agree on chain of command

Associated Press

Secretary of State James A. Baker III reached agreement Monday with Saudi Arabia that if U.S. troops go to battle against Iraq they will be under American command, a top Bush administration official said.

A former West German chancellor meanwhile flew to Iraq to seek freedom for foreigners held hostage by Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein, and the European Community convened a special session in hopes of keeping members in line.

The decision on command and control was announced after Baker held a two-hour meeting with King Fahd.

The senior official, who insisted on anonymity, said the Saudis would play a decisive role because they would share command of American troops used to defend Saudi Arabia and would have to give a green light before the 100,000 U.S. troops in the oil-rich kingdom are sent into action.

Once the Americans enter battle, U.S. commanders will direct them, the official said.

The USS Midway, one of four American aircraft carriers deployed as part of Operation Desert Shield, entered the Persian Gulf Monday. Like the USS Independence, which left the gulf last month after a few days, the Midway apparently was sent in as a show of force.

Later Monday in Washington, a Pentagon source said the Marine Corps is ordering the first call-up of reservists for combat roles in the gulf crisis. The Marine call-up is relatively small and will not add substantially to the estimated 220,000 U.S. forces in the gulf region.

However, the Pentagon is considering calling major Army reserve combat units to active duty, possibly before the end of the year, the source said.

Iraq, meanwhile, said that in the event of war over Kuwait, it would attack Arab countries participating in the U.S.-led multinational force.

The latest mission to Baghdad was mounted by former Chancellor Willy Brandt, who arrived in the Iraqi capital late Monday aboard a chartered Lufthansa Airbus that can carry about 250 people. Brandt, who was seen off by Iraq's ambassador to Germany, carried letters and a bouquet of flowers from relatives of the estimated 400 German hostages.

Brandt's mission has the backing of the German government despite the EC's stand against negotiating for the release of the hundreds of foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait. Saddam has tried to use the hostages — whom he calls "guests" — to splinter the alliance against him.

Also Monday, a delegation of Irish legislators left Baghdad after talks with Iraqi officials aimed at winning freedom for an estimated 220 Irish citizens.

"We are given to believe that the Iraqi government will soon resolve the issue of Iraqi guests," said Irish lawmaker Michael Higgins.

Former Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone of Japan also was meeting with Iraqi officials in hopes of winning the release of more than 300 Japanese hostages.

Diplomatic sources in Baghdad said David Lange, a former prime minister of New Zealand, and Anker Jorgensen, a former prime minister of Denmark, plan to come to Iraq.

Ireland, Germany and Denmark are EC members. A special meeting of European Community foreign ministers was scheduled in Rome for Monday night to discuss departures from the EC policy.

Iraq preparing defensive 'wall of fire,' general says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iraq has complicated American military planning in the Persian Gulf crisis by raising the prospect of an oil-fed wall of fire around its defenses in Kuwait, the second-ranking Marine Corps officer said Monday.

Gen. John R. Dailey, the deputy commandant of the Marines, said U.S. ground forces could overcome most Iraqi fire obstacles in Kuwait, but smoke would reduce the effectiveness of close-air support, artillery and naval gunfire.

Dailey, speaking in an interview at Marine Corps headquarters, said Iraqi President Saddam Hussein had used the three months since his army invaded Kuwait to erect elaborate defensive positions on Kuwait's southern border and eastern shore.

The Pentagon estimates that 430,000 Iraqi troops are in and around Kuwait. The U.S. force in the area is nearly 240,000, and more than 100,000 other foreign forces are there, too.

In addition to the traditional techniques of laying mines, erecting earthen mounds, stringing wire and digging anti-tank ditches or traps, Iraqi troops have filled some of the ditches with oil or other flammable liquids, Dailey said.

The idea would be to help slow a U.S.-led ground attack to retake Kuwait. Dailey stressed that the U.S. military forces in the gulf have not been ordered to undertake an offensive in Kuwait, although that remains an option.

Shoeshine lady says working on people's feet is therapeutic

By Erin Blair
Staff Writer

Nita McDonald slaps the cordovan brown polish on the customer's shoe with her fingers, working the wax into the leather. The customer visibly relaxes on her throne.

"It's like giving them a foot massage," Ms. McDonald said. "Every time you work on someone's feet it's really therapeutic."

Ms. McDonald knows her business. She's been applying her healing touch to wingtips, loafers, pumps and boots at her Midland International Airport shoeshine booth for seven years.

She can get a customer with a plane to catch shined up in three minutes, four minutes if he's in boots.

"During the oil show I was doing 50 pairs a day," Ms. McDonald said. "I thought my hands were made of leather."

The majority of her customers are businessmen wanting to put their best foot forward and folks going to Las Vegas. The Vegas customers seek her out for "good luck" shines.

"I tell them it's good luck and hope and pray they win," she said.

Ms. McDonald's put polish on quite a few famous feet, including those of Johnny Lee, Larry Gatlin, Tommy Lee Jones, Bob Lilly and Buck Owens.

She's got autographs from all of them.

But it's her regular customers that keep Ms. McDonald going.

"I catch them coming or going; we have a good time," she said.

"On Halloween I was a gray bunny with the ears and a tail and people were joking about it. I tell you, I laughed more that day than I have in a long time."

"I'm glad we have her," said Marcy Blauvelt, the assistant director of airports at Midland International Airport. "It's an added service we can offer."

She said the trend in airports is to provide more amenities for travelers. Larger airports are installing mini-malls, children's playrooms and art museums, as well as fax machines and notary services, which Midland has.

They exist not only for the flying public's sake but for the economic health of the airport.

Ms. Blauvelt said the airport, which is self-supported, collects between 5 and 10 percent on con-

Last minute appeals close out campaigns

■ Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas endorsed Republican Clayton Williams for governor.

Staff Report

In a wave of last-minute campaigning, three politicians brought their messages to Midland on Monday:

■ Midland Mayor Carroll Thomas endorsed Republican Clayton Williams for governor.

■ Democrat Bob Krueger, a candidate for the Texas Railroad Commission, said he is opposed to U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

■ J.E. "Buster" Brown, Republican candidate for Texas Attorney General, touted his plan to relieve overcrowdedness in state prisons.

Thomas, appearing at a press conference Monday morning, said he had taken the step of formally endorsing Williams because it is "a unique opportunity" for Midland and West Texas to have a voice in Austin.

"Clayton Williams knows oil and ranching inside out," Thomas said. "He knows our needs, our problems, our opportunities. He could be a tremendous help in getting this area back on its feet."

"It is unusual for a nonpartisan office holder to endorse in an election, but we've never had anyone from Midland run for governor before," Thomas said.

"I thought this was important enough to call to the attention of the citizens, that they should give serious thought to casting their vote for a fellow Midlander."

Thomas also said it provided an opportunity to keep West Texans on important boards and commissions at the state level.

Those members include Midlander Bill Roden, who will serve on the University of Texas System Board of Regents until February 1991; Odessan Ray Stoker, who will serve on the Highway and Public Transportation Commission until February 1991; and Midlander Frank Cahoon, who will serve on the Higher Education Coordinating Board until August 1993.

Meanwhile, Krueger, also appearing at a local press conference on Monday, said he was spending the final hours of his campaign in Midland because of oil's importance to the local economy.

"If oil's worth dying for in the Middle East, it's worth drillling for in Texas," said Krueger, who is running against Republican Beau Boulter.

He told reporters that it makes sense to drill domestically rather than overseas because it prevents the United States from being held hostage for oil.

Imported oil now comprises more than 50 percent of oil consumed nationally, while only one new offshore rig and no new land rigs have been built in Texas in the past five years, Krueger said.

Texas oil production has decreased from 1 billion barrels in 1982 to an estimated 360 million barrels in 1990, he added.

"Our import dependence grew year after year while domestic production suffered and no one tried to save it," he said.

Krueger wants to see a national energy policy that would promote domestic drilling with tax incentives for high-risk investments.

Precious prison space is going unused in Texas, Brown told reporters Monday during his Midland campaign stop.

Brown, who is opposed by Democrat Dan Morales in the attorney general race, said court orders and ill-advised agreements have artificially reduced the number of beds available in the state's prisons.

"When they're releasing (early) a hundred prisoners a day...and they've got 6,000 beds empty, that doesn't make any sense to me," Brown said.

Staff member to expand services of Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs

By Melia McEwen
Staff Writer

Nearly five years after it began, Midland's Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs is hiring its first staff member.

MBCE President Robbyne Fuller announced at Monday's monthly chamber meeting that the new staff member will be introduced at the December meeting, and will be responsible for running the chamber offices and coordinating activities of the Business Development Center, located at 2707 N. Big Spring.

"We've waited a long time for our first staff member," Mrs. Fuller observed.

She also reported that, beginning next week, the chamber offices and business center will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. She added that chamber members can visit the center to check out books on a variety of business topics, from starting a business to how to better manage one. In the near future, the chamber hopes to build a library of videotapes on how to start specific businesses.

Mrs. Fuller also announced at Monday's meeting that the chamber will bring in the Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble dance group on Feb. 22, 1991, at the Yucca Theater, in conjunction with Midland Community Theater. Tickets — available at the MBCE office today at 7:30 p.m. — are $22.50 and include the performance and a reception following at the Midland Center. Proceeds will benefit the chamber's scholarship fund.

MBCE Vice President James Fuller is seeking volunteers to help with a variety of related activities, from selling tickets to helping prepare the stage and handle costumes and props for the performance.

The Fullers said the Ailey group will be the first of a number of cultural activities, most of which will benefit the scholarship fund.

"This is a cultural revolution," Mrs. Fuller stated, adding that black artists and theater are gaining support nationwide.

The chamber also will auction an original Carol Joyce painting next month, with the minimum bid set at $350. Proceeds will go toward a scholarship in Ms. Joyce's name. Also, limited edition works by Trinidad artist Brian Joseph are also available.

Mr. Fuller reported at the meeting that the recent seminar on minority procurement efforts by Texas Instruments was a success, attracting approximately 30 participants.

"Jeff Ware and Dennis Hiser did a commendable job of providing information on Texas Instrument's minority procurement thrust," he said. "I think the most useful aspect was the informal sessions in which Dr. Jerry Jones of the Small Business Institute and Ware and Hiser were able to provide information on the various goods and services available.

"The public and chamber members need to understand that this is a major corporation that has begun a major thrust in the procurement process. The most significant challenge to the chamber and the community is to identify businesses that are equipped and qualified to do business with Texas Instruments."

Geologist says quakes not unusual in Trans-Pecos

■ Faults, also called lineaments, are moving, in an action called "continental drift."

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Though certainly not cataclysmic, earthquakes do occur in West Texas which, according to Midland geologist G. Pat Bolden, sits atop wrench-fault lines which he discovered and named.

Along the Pecos River, "little earthquakes are happening all of the time."

An earthquake struck at Valentine, near Marfa, in the 1950s.

Earthquakes along the Pecos River in Trans-Pecos have been "attributed to many things," including the injection of brine into salt-water disposal wells or pumping oil out of the ground. The reasoning was that underground pressures are changing, Bolden said.

But Bolden finds no validity to those speculations.

Rather, faults — also called lineaments — are moving, just as are the Earth's land masses in an action called "continental drift."

Earthquakes have shaken West Texans.

On June 16, 1978, an earthquake, which measured 4.7 on the Richter scale, was centered 20 miles north of Snyder.

"That's a pretty good shaker," said Bolden.

The earthquake was felt from Abilene to San Angelo. Four years later, on Nov. 27, 1982, another earthquake was centered there. Both were on the Double Mountain Lineament which parallels seven major faults from the Texas Panhandle to the Rio Grande.

Bolden identified and named six major West Texas lineaments on which he expounded in the American Association of Petroleum Geologists (AAPG) journal in 1984.

More recently, Bolden documented a shift in the earth's surface near Dryden in Terrell County. He found a 27-inch shift which occurred over a 25-year period from the surface all the way down to molten rock, he figured.

"One of the most unusual things

Midland geologist G. Pat Bolden has defined several fault lines crossing Texas from the Panhandle to the Rio Grande. Movement along those faults, which results in earthquakes, is attributed to continuing continental drift, he says. Along the Pecos River, "little earthquakes are happening all of the time," Bolden said.

Citizens oppose toxic waste disposal

DRYDEN — Tremors, earthquakes, and rumors of earthquakes in West Texas are rare, mostly remote.

But events suggest changes — some radical, some inch-by-inch like the continental drift — of land masses in West Texas.

And threats of tremors and earthquakes may give ammunition to citizens who are opposed to using West Texas land, even remote stretches, for burying hazardous and toxic wastes.

East of Midland, near Colorado City, citizens are mustering forces to dissuade a company from putting in incinerators and landfills for disposing of toxic wastes.

South of Midland, near Dryden in remote ranching country in Terrell County, a firm is considering 2,000 or 3,000 acres within which to put a toxic and hazardous waste landfill.

Neither company has yet applied for Texas Water Commission permits to burn and bury wastes.

But compounding the safety question of clay-bottomed and plastic-lined burial grounds for wastes is the location of the dump grounds. Are they on fault lines, which geologists call "lineaments?"

Midland geologist G. Pat Bolden's discovery of major and minor wrench-fault lines in West Texas suggests a possibility of shifting and thrusting land masses.

Pecos surrenders berth

AUSTIN (AP) — Pecos High School voluntarily relinquished a place in the Class 4A state marching band contest, after being incorrectly declared a winner in regional competition, the University Interscholastic League said.

UIL director Bailey Marshall said Monday that judges had mistakenly broken a tie between Pecos and Hereford in favor of Pecos.

The mistake at the regional meet in Odessa was not discovered until after the results had been verified, and Pecos was not obligated to relinquish its spot in the state finals to Hereford, UIL officials said.

Monahans also advanced to the finals Nov. 12 in Austin from that West Texas region, the UIL said.

Marshall said Pecos school officials agreed Hereford should advance to the finals.

"If everybody did this, we wouldn't have problems," Marshall said. "We wouldn't need all those (UIL) rules."

QUAKE: Bolden documents shift near Dryden

in that outcrop is the fact that it is still moving," said Bolden, "and I can prove it."

Bolden, a 65-year-old consulting geologist and a member of the AAPG, discovered six lineaments which range between the well-established Amarillo-Wichita Uplift in the Texas Panhandle to the Texas Lineament near the Rio Grande. The Texas Lineament runs northwest to southeast and extends into Mexico.

The faults, which Bolden suggests run throughout much of the subsurface of the continental United States, run 200 to 330 miles in a generally northwest-southeast vein.

Though a science, Bolden's finding of major and minor fault lines is also a prospecting technique for finding oil. Some of the larger oil field and fresh-water springs are associated wrench faults.

"The Permian Basin is controlled by wrench faulting," he said.

When he was a geologist for Shell Oil Co. from 1951 to 1978, Bolden discovered 25 million barrels of oil in Borden, Garza and Oldham counties. Since then, he has generated prospects.

Lineaments which Bolden discovered and documented to AAPG strict criteria include:

■ Palo Duro, which is 330 miles long, runs from the Panhandle county of Oldham on the Texas-New Mexico border to Graham south of Wichita Falls. The fault goes down the Palo Duro Canyon and takes in segments of Prairie Dog Town Fork of the Red River, the North Wichita River and the Brazos River.

■ Double Mountain, which extends 200 miles past Lubbock to Abilene to north of Brownwood.

■ Concho, which is 330 miles long, extends from near Bagley Field in New Mexico, follows Mustang Draw for 90 miles and North Concho River for 70 miles, and runs past San Angelo and Mason to the Llano Uplift. The Concho Lineament runs through Gaines, Martin, Howard, Glasscock, Sterling, Tom Green, Concho, Menard, McCulloch, and Mason counties. At its closest, the line is about 25 miles northeast of Midland and goes through the town-site of San Angelo and "goes right up the Concho River."

■ Pecos, which extends 320 miles, begins at Carlsbad Caverns, N.M., and nearly traces the Pecos River for 150 miles but separates at the Yates Field and goes beyond Rocksprings.

■ Val Verde, which is 210 miles long, runs from the Garza Field near Fort Stockton, through Little Canyon, along the Brown-Bassett Field, the Devils River arm of Amistad Reservoir at Del Rio, to Brackettville and the Fort Clark Springs.

■ Apache, which is 250 miles long, starts at the north end of the Diablo Mountains, extends to Apache Mountains, goes through Balmorhea Springs, north of Jeff Davis and Glass Mountains to Goodenough Springs, which is covered by the Pecos River branch of Amistad Reservoir, to San Felipe Springs at Del Rio.

What Bolden calls "the big movement" in the Permiam Basin occurred at the end of Mississippian time, which some scientists associate with the super-continent Pangaea.

The continental drift theory holds that Pangaea started breaking up into continents and drifting about 200 millions years ago.

"It started moving almost at the beginning of time," Bolden said of Permian Basin, "and it's still moving."

In the United States, perhaps the most infamous of the movements of the Earth's plates is associated with the 750-mile-long San Andreas Fault in California.

"In San Francisco, they know it's still moving," Bolden said. "I can prove it's still moving down here at Dryden, (near) Sanderson. So, it's still moving.

One of Bolden's major proofs of the shift is in offsetting drilling holes, uncovered in a 1965 road cut, eight miles north of Sanderson, west of Dryden.

"It's moving so much that it is thrusting," Bolden said. The offsetting of the drill holes, which are three inches in diameter, indicates the movement of 27 inches in 25 years."

Along the lineaments, such as the Concho, tension builds if there are no tremors.

"That's what happens in California. It doesn't move, and the tension builds up. The longer it goes without moving, the more the tension builds up and 'Whamo!' "

"This (wrench fault) is just the end result of the continental drift," Bolden said. "The continental drift is the biggie."

TOXIC: Colorado City citizens fight waste disposal

(From 1B)

"toxic and hazardous waste facility" three miles of east Dryden in Terrell County.

"It's not some fly-by-night company," said Terrell County Judge Charles Stavley, who declined to identify the company.

While the judge and the county commissioners seem interested in the proposed 200 to 300 jobs to be created by the facility, some others are opposed to turning ranchland into wasteland.

"There's always controversy in everything you try to do," Stavley reasoned. "We have some opposition."

The site would not be used for "nuclear or radioactive waste," he said.

The wastes, which would be shipped in on Southern Pacific Railroad, would undergo "detoxifying, solidifying and capsulizing" before burial in clay and plastic-lined landfills.

Stavley didn't seem overly concerned about the fault line near Dryden or the underground water.

For one, water wells are 800 to 900 feet deep, he said.

For another, Stavley said he has visited hazardous-and-toxic waste landfills, including near the San Andreas Fault in California.

Furthermore, Stavley said he was "confident" in the state of Texas and in the Texas Water Commission which, he said, "is not going to issue a permit to some wishy-washy company." Stavley said he will continue to support the proposal "if we can be assured that it is safe."

Midland geologist Bolden doesn't offer that assurance. He has evidence that a land mass near Dryden has moved 27 inches in 25 years.

"If that thing is sliding right now at an inch a year, how long is it going to take that envelope of wastes to bust open?" he asked. "In 50 years, it's going to slide 50 inches. That will tear it open. I'll guarantee you."

Eventually, Bolden said, the waste would get into Lake Amistad along the Rio Grande at Del Rio. "That's an international deal. Mexico owns half of the lake."

East of Midland, particularly in Mitchell and Howard counties, a group of citizens has formed the coalition VOICE (Volunteers Organized to Implement a Clean Environment) to ward off efforts to install hazardous waste incinerators and landfills on the Colorado River watershed near Colorado City.

The area falls between the Double Mountain and Concho faults which Bolden discovered and named. The site is south of the epicenter of the 1978 and 1982 earthquakes north of Snyder.

"Many people," said VOICE spokesman Marilyn Read of Coahoma, "just want to believe that West Texas is wide open spaces where no damage will be done if hazards substances are dumped. But that's not true."

She identified the company seeking to move into Mitchell County as the National Waste and Energy Development Corp. of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Read, a retired school teacher and wife of rancher Bob Read, fears wastes eventually would "wash downstream" to the Colorado River and its lakes which supply municipal and industrial water from Austin to Midland-Odessa.

VOICE suggests there are safer ways to deal with wastes.

But "most of all," VOICE is asking the Texas Legislature to put protective laws in place.

"The laws are inadequate and antiquated," Mrs. Read said. "The regulatory agencies are all appointed people who are not necessarily responsible to the needs of Texas."

Big Spring geologist Mike Robinson currently is examining oil well logs from near the proposed landfill site in western Mitchell County.

Dumping wastes in West Texas is a "trend that we don't want to get started," Robinson said.

The Mitchell County Commissioners' Court, he said, has tried to "railroad this thing through over the objection of citizens."

"If we just passively sit back and don't much of anything this time, what are we going to do when the next dozen projects want to move in?" he asked.

"I don't want out-of-state people to start thinking West Texas is a cheap and easy place to bring stuff in to burn, bury and forget about it.

"Who wants to live in the Hazardous Waste Capital of North America?" he asked. "That's what we are fighting against."

Peggy Maddox, a Sweetwater schoolteacher-rancher who is co-founder of Texans Against Pollution, said grassroots environmental groups across Texas are "calling for an agenda of general environmental reform and hazardous waste reduction."

Ms. Maddox said that some waste-disposal companies, such as All American Environmental Corp. and National Waste and Energy Development Corp., have "innocent-sounding names" but are imposters. Citizens in Stanton defeated an attempt by All American Environmental Corp. to locate near that agricultural community just east of Midland.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower recently said Texas should lead the way "out of our hazardous waste disposal problems by adopting tough state regulations that protect people rather than polluters." Currently, at least 14 hazardous waste disposal sites, mostly in rural areas, are "either burning toxic wastes or are under consideration for hazardous waste combustion facilities."

ELECTION: Last minute appeals close campaigns

(From 1B)

Under a 1986 State Supreme Court order, Texas prisons are required to operate at 95 percent capacity or below in order to reduce overcrowding. But even operating at 100 percent capacity, Brown said, prisons would have excess space.

That's because of a 1985 agreement signed by current Attorney General Jim Mattox which limits prison capacity based on inmate comfort requirements, he said.

At a news conference at the Midland County Detention Center, Brown said that if elected, he will support a three-point plan which he claimed "will end prison overcrowding in Texas."

Brown's plan calls for the elimination of the 95-percent cap through legislative action, which Brown promised to defend in court if necessary. The plan also calls for restoring prison beds lost under the 1985 Mattox agreement.

Central to the plan is the use of abandoned Texas military bases to house inmate overflows.

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter, who attended the news conference, endorsed Brown's candidacy.

"He's a lawyer who represents the interests of law enforcement and the interests of the people of Texas," Painter said.

cessions such as shoe shine stands.

"But it's also kind of fun," she said. "When you travel it's kind of a hassle and you're at your nerves' end. These services make travel more pleasant."

Ms. McDonald said hers is a happy job, "and the pay's good." Her regulars make it worthwhile, she said.

Like the two serious businessmen whose sensible shoes she buffed every week or so. Recently, one of them sat down on the two-seater Honduras mahogany throne for a shine while the other went to get the boarding passes.

When the second man returned he started fighting with his colleague over which one should have the first shine.

"I told them I could do them both but they were pushing and shoving and everyone was standing around staring and I didn't know what to do," she said.

Finally they stopped their bickering and asked if they'd "gotten" her. Turns out the two professionals were brothers with a wide goofy streak in them.

Ms. McDonald said they took her in on that joke, but she has had a few near fights when travelers on busy schedules think they've had to wait too long for a shine.

She had to pick up her speed when she moved the booth upstairs to the gate area about three years ago. Her business increased dramatically and she practiced "about a week" to become ambidextrous.

"I can do this blindfolded," Ms. McDonald said.

Actually, things are kind of slow now, compared to the boom, she said. At that time, there were two shoe shiners on duty all the time. Now Ms. McDonald does the day shift and her friend Susan Dove works nights at the stand.

Ms. McDonald, an Odessan, got into the business during the boom after raising her kids, Greg, 15, and Gina, 12. She waited two months for a position to come open at the airport. Now she's the manager of the stand.

She buffs the customer's loafers to a high luster, a boar bristle brush in each hand. When she's done, the customer can see her face in the glossy leather.

"I never get my own shoes shined," Ms. McDonald said, looking at her ropers. "I'm like the mechanic who never gets his car fixed."

"But Sue did my boots for me yesterday and, girl, it felt so good."

Volvo agrees to pull 'monster truck' ads after challenge

AUSTIN (AP) — Volvo Cars of North America pulled an advertisement showing a Volvo withstanding attempts by a "monster truck" to crush it, after Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox challenged the ad as misleading.

"Volvo was touted as a car that you can believe in. Unfortunately, these ads, you could not believe in them," Mattox said Monday.

William Hoover, senior vice president of Volvo Cars of North America, said the company does not want to mislead the public and emphasized that Volvos are safe.

"We agree that the consumers in the state of Texas, as well as consumers throughout the country, deserve better advertising," he said.

But Hoover added, "The mistake was not with the claim that Volvos are safe cars, because there are numerous independent studies that substantiate that Volvos are in fact among the safest, if not the absolute safest, cars on the road today."

Under an agreed court judgment, Volvo will not make claims about their vehicles that are not proven through evidence; will run corrective newspaper ads in the form of a letter to consumers; and will pay the state $316,250 in investigative costs.

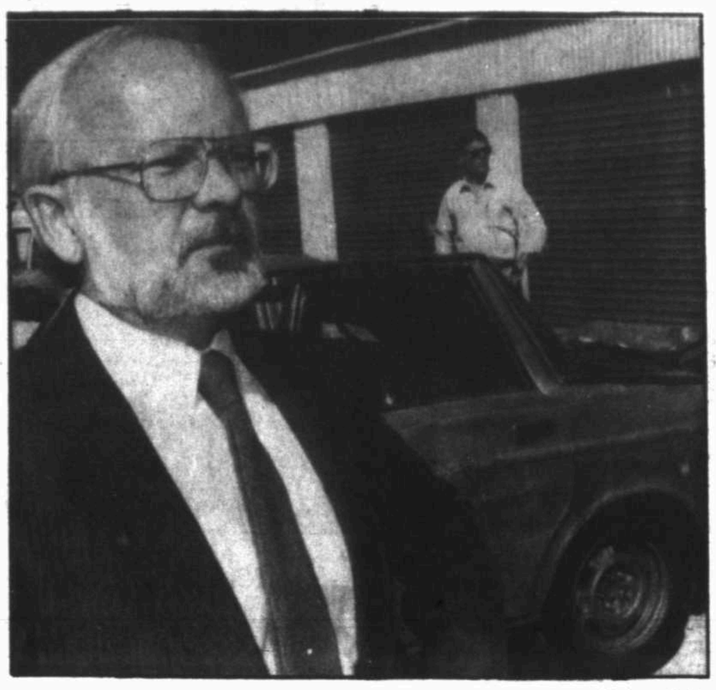

Volvo admitted no fault and no legal violations.

In the ad, filmed in Austin in June, a Volvo appears to be the only car left standing after being run over by a large-tire pickup. The ad is a dramatization of a 1988 Vermont event, according to the company.

However, the ad is not billed as a dramatization. And Mattox said the other cars in the ad were weakened structurally, while the Volvos were reinforced with steel or wood.

Hoover said Volvo did not know the cars were modified until told by the attorney general. The modifications were made to ensure the crew's safety and to allow the Volvo to withstand the number of runs required by the truck in filming, according to the company.

Some of the shots of the "Bear Foot" running over the Volvos also may have been fabricated, Mattox said.

Texas groups ready to battle new NC-17 movie rating

DALLAS (AP) — The movie industry's new adult rating will open the floodgates to movies featuring pornography and excessive violence, say Texans who are determined to topple the NC-17 category.

"Hollywood will now be able to pump celluloid sewage into the country's neighborhood theaters at will," wrote John Evans of Richardson, editor-in-chief of "Preview Movie Morality Guide," in a letter to readers.

Evans and other opponents of the new rating argue it will enable movies featuring pornography and excessive violence to be advertised more extensively and shown in the multiscreen theaters that many families patronize.

The rating, announced by the Motion Picture Association of America on Sept. 26, restricts children under 17 from viewing movies with adult themes and replaces the infamous "X" category.

"It's basically the same thing as an X rating, and this now opens the door for the mainstream theaters to show what formerly were X-rated movies," said Debbie Dena, president of the Tarrant County Chapter of the American Family Association.

The organization said it would ask its 2,600 members to mail their complaints to MPAA president Jack Valenti. It also will ask members to telephone theaters and urge them not to show NC-17 movies.

In a telephone interview from California, Valenti told The Dallas Morning News that theater owners have told him they intend to "sternly and effectively" police the NC-17 rating.

Filmmakers won't rush to get an NC-17 rating, Valenti said.

"When you have a NC-17, you are cutting your potential audience by 30 percent," he said. "I don't know of a single producer in this country that wants an NC-17 if he can avoid one."

Industry observers say the new rating helps correct a classification system that allowed excessively violent films to carry the R rating, while eroticism got stamped with an X rating.

In contrast to the X rating, the MPAA has copyrighted NC-17 so that it won't become a free-for-all category. The association must view a movie before the NC-17 rating is used.

"Our belief is that the NC-17 rating is very helpful insofar as it distinguishes high-quality, sophisticated films that have adult content and adult appeal from the pornographic segment of the market," said Richard King, vice president of operations of American Multi-Cinema Inc.'s Southwest division in Dallas.

"It allows those films to play without that kind of stigma," he said.

On Nov. 16, representatives from religious and secular groups are expected to gather in Washington, D.C. to discuss the rating system.

The one-day conference is being organized by the National Coalition on Television Violence, a television and film monitoring group based in Champaign, Ill., and Good News Communications, a Christian organization based in Atlanta.

The groups will consider forming municipal or statewide film and video ratings boards. Rating boards "would allow the community to use community standards to protect their children against movies that can be detrimental," said Ted Baehr, chairman of Good News Communications and publisher of "Movieguide," a film rating service.

Dallas is the only major city in the country that has its own ratings classification board. Established in 1965, the board views only those films rated PG or PG-13. The board automatically places "suitable" on G-rated movies and "not suitable" on those with R ratings.

Records destroyed at firm linked to Libya, paper says

HOUSTON (AP) — Business records reportedly were destroyed at a bankrupt company with ties to an Iraqi man who was accused of involvement in the development of a Libyan chemical weapons plant.

Ed Durante, senior vice president of IBI Industries, contacted the U.S. Customs Service after learning that records held by the company were destroyed late at night last month, the Houston Chronicle reported Monday.

Sources who asked to remain anonymous confirmed that Durante named the individuals he believes are responsible for destroying the records, the Chronicle said.

The records were destroyed by men associated with the business apparently to prevent the disclosure of involvement of the now-deceased Iraqi, Dr. Ihsan Barbouti, and his eldest son, Haidar, in the activities of IBI and other companies, the sources said.

Thomas Herter, an attorney and company director representing IBI, denied during a bankruptcy hearing that any records were destroyed.

On Sunday, Herter said there must have been a misunderstanding. He said he directed an accountant and a helper to preserve IBI records.

Destroying or concealing company records after a bankruptcy filing is a federal offense.

Last month, a Houston-based Customs investigation led to the seizure of $3.8 million from New York City and Miami banks on grounds that Dr. Barbouti allegedly sold aircraft parts to Libya in violations of a U.S. embargo.

Records allegedly destroyed at the Houston IBI office are suspected of being related to illicit trade with Libya.

U.S. officials last year identified Dr. Barbouti as designer of a Libyan chemical weapons plant that was later destroyed.

Plaintiffs in lawsuits filed against Barbouti interests claim that Dr. Barbouti, who died in July, set up operations in Houston in 1988 to clandestinely export petroleum related products to the Libyan government of Moammar Gadhafi and to Iraq.

The assets of IBI and other Barbouti interests are being sought by the former business associates or employees in several lawsuits, which includes tens of millions of dollars in claims and allegations of theft of technology and failure to fulfill contracts.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1990

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Look forward to making some important changes in your life as 1990 draws to a close. New insights result in a reordering of priorities. A rewarding romance will greatly influence your views on a wide variety of subjects next March. Do what you can to increase the value of investments by spring. You may have to play the waiting game at work for a while. Career momentum will be greatest after next summer.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: composer John Philip Sousa, actress Sally Field, guitarist Glen Frey, actor Lance Kerwin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your business alliances grow stronger now. Check details carefully to avoid making expensive mistakes. Feel free to ask your partner direct questions. The answers will please you!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What you know is more important than who you know. Act confident and a crisis will quickly pass. Dwelling on depressing thoughts could lead you to make mistakes. Maintain a positive outlook.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Listening to the views of experts will benefit you financially. Now is the time to set realistic goals and initiate a new course of action. Compromises help promote domestic harmony.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Do not let someone's hostility provoke you into losing your temper. It is essential you remain calm. Relatives or friends are eager to help out during an emergency.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Joint ventures can yield hefty profits now. Key goals can be reached by forging an alliance with a shrewd acquaintance. Romance is a source of delight. Spruce up your home on the weekends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are back on track where your career or finances are concerned. A big business deal deserves closer scrutiny. Behind closed doors, you can wheel and deal all you want. Put romance on hold.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may be in line for a promotion or bonus. Confidential dealings are good for both business and your reputation. Play your hunches. Come to grips with any feelings of jealousy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It is a good idea to take periodic breaks during the workday to relax both your mind and body. Stress exacts a price. Do not mince words with your loved ones.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Take a more active interest in finance and business; you have an eye for spotting quality. Concentrate on private enterprise when talking with top brass. Resist an urge to gamble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stay calm if turbulence mounts on the business front. Consult experts if you need guidance and be willing to pay for the best advice available. Have fun rather than tackling chores tonight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Keep a low profile today to avoid clashing with those who have power over you. All goes well on the domestic scene. An intelligent compromise is best.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The first order of the day is to determine which way the wind is blowing. The next step is to convince your associates to go along with your ideas. A close relationship needs nurturing.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are gentle, perceptive and serious. The life of the mind is very important to these Scorpios and they often learn to read at an early age. Analytical and independent, these youngsters have the ability to figure things out for themselves. Count on them to be especially compassionate with the less fortunate. They also seem to have a special rapport with the elderly. Although these children appear to be "old souls," they seem to get younger and more lighthearted as they mature.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ◇

One of the advantages of Jacoby Transfer Bids is that it enables the stronger hand of the partnerhip to declare, with the accompanying advantage that the lead comes up to the strong hand not through it. Sometimes, however, the cards can prove perverse, as this hand from a pair tournament proves.

Where North-South were using the convention, North became declarer at four spades. Looking at two almost sure trump tricks, East usually led the ace of hearts, and the defenders took two heart tricks and two trumps for down one. At other tables the auction followed more traditional paths, as above, and South declared. An immediate heart attack here would have resulted in down two, but who would lead a heart from that holding?

The usual opening lead was a diamond, and South had received a reprieve. One intrepid declarer ran that to his jack—unlucky; down two. The natural line was to win in dummy and play three rounds of clubs, discarding a heart from hand. Some declarers now led a spade to the jack and, when that held, returned to dummy with a high diamond for a second trump lead. The queen won, but when West showed out, declarer could not avoid losing two tricks in each major for down one.

The winning line is to play off four rounds of clubs, discarding a second heart from hand whether or not East ruffs. That way the defenders can score no more than one heart trick and two trumps. This fails only if one of the defenders holds specifically one trump and three clubs, but then the contract would have been doomed anyway.

Rogers' recovery a 'happy tale'

"He's not up to jumping up and down yet," said Roy "Dusty" Rogers Jr. His father underwent surgery Oct. 21 to correct an aneurysm in his aorta, the body's main artery.

The actor-singer, released Friday from St. Mary Desert Valley Hospital, is on his feet and able to walk around the house, his son said. Recovery is expected to take six to eight weeks.

Rogers starred in 87 Westerns, including 35 with his wife, Dale Evans. He recently recorded a country-western record album in Nashville with guest appearances by Willie Nelson, Waylon Jennings and others.

During the recording session, 35 artists also joined Rogers in the studio to sing "Happy Trails," the theme song for Rogers and Miss Evans, 77.

Brightman

Judge Clive Callman granted the divorce, after six years of marriage, on the uncontested grounds that Lloyd Webber, 42, had committed adultery.

In spite of the divorce, Miss Brightman, 30, is scheduled to take over the role of Rose in the Broadway production of "Aspects of Love."

Lloyd Webber has said he intends to marry his girlfriend, Madeleine Gurdon, as soon as the divorce is finalized, which usually takes up to six weeks.

TORONTO (AP) — Drawings the late John Lennon made while he and Yoko Ono brought their peace protest to Canada are returning to the city for an exhibition.

The one-monthy at The Animation Gallery Ltd., which opens Nov. 9, includes the simple but sexually explicit line drawings from the Bag One Suite in a hotel where they camped in a protest of the bad things in the world.

Britain's Scotland Yard confiscated the drawings in 1970 for being pornographic.

"And now we're in an age where Jesse Helms is trying to suppress all kinds of artwork, so nothing's really changed," says Ono, referring to the U.S. senator who blocked federal arts grants for an exhibit of photos by Robert Mapplethorpe.

"I don't know what politicians think (about Lennon's art), but I know ordinary people are far more sophisticated and accepting of it," she said.

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the rock superstar's birth and the 10th anniversary of his death. He was gunned down in New York City on Dec. 8, 1980.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — More than 400 people crowded into the pews to hear the Rev. Jeb Stuart Magruder, one of the Watergate conspirators, deliver his first sermon as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

Magruder

Magruder, 55, said that if "people came because of Watergate, that's great." He said he hoped the crowd would benefit from his words.

During his 25-minute sermon Sunday, the new senior minister at First Presbyterian talked briefly about Watergate and the painful process of searching for himself.

He said memory of the past, however painful, is "everything for a people of faith."

He came to the $77,000-a-year job in Lexington from Columbus, Ohio, where he had been executive minister at the First Community Church.

He pleaded guilty in 1973 to conspiracy and perjury charges stemming from the break-in at offices of the Democratic Party at the Watergate complex in Washington, D.C. He entered a Presbyterian seminary after serving seven months in a prison.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Political cartoonist Daniel Sanchez Flores, known throughout Latin America by his penname Roger, has died of cancer, the newspaper Barricada reported Monday. He was 30.

The newspaper, a pro-Sandinista publication in which Sanchez's incisive cartoons ran, carried a story about his death Sunday with a banner headline proclaiming, "National Humor is in Mourning."

Sanchez directed the weekly humor sheet La Semana Comica, wrote several comic books and contributed to various newspapers, including the pro-government La Prensa.

He condemned double standards, bureaucracy and authoritarians. He admired the Sandinista revolution, but criticized it for its shortcomings.

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway producer David Merrick declared war Monday on The New York Times theater critic who panned his latest effort.

The producer placed an ad in the newspaper with an oblique reference to the critic's love life. The Times pulled the ad after the first edition.

The critic, Frank Rich, savaged Merrick's "Oh, Kay!" a musical revival that opened last week.

Paying bills possible, even when broke

By Leonard Sloane
N.Y. Times News Service

With layoffs high and money tight, more and more consumers are finding it hard to make their monthly payments on credit cards and installment loans.

In response, lenders have developed more flexible policies in recent months to let people rearrange their debts. They are more likely to extend the term of the loan or temporarily reduce payments so that their customers can keep their credit in good standing.

Here are adjustments that some creditors are offering:

- Accepting only the interest for a couple of months or more.
- Refinancing a loan to lower the amount of the monthly payment.
- Allowing a debtor to remain in arrears awhile before turning the account over to a collection agency.
- Canceling the interest for an agreed-upon period of time so the borrower can make affordable payments.

Experts warn, however, that the total debt is rarely reduced and that interest usually accrues even when the principal is unpaid, since a price must be paid for every day that a lender's funds are used. In addition, many lenders will freeze a debtor's credit line, barring further transactions on a card or account.

"THE KEY is that people have to talk to lenders," said Barbara Berger Opotowsky, president of the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York. "Companies are anxious to work things out."

H. Spencer Nilson, publisher of the Nilson Report, a credit-card newsletter based in Santa Monica, Calif., has this advice: "As long as somebody writes a letter or makes a phone call, lenders will be more lenient. After 60 days late, they've got to jump on you, so just stay under 60 days."

Many have been caught short in 1990. Delinquencies on automobile, personal and similar installment loans at commercial banks increased to 2.55 percent at the end of the second quarter, up from 2.3 percent a year earlier, the American Bankers Association reports. Bank credit card delinquencies also rose to 2.36 percent from 2.2 percent at the end of June 1989. A payment is considered delinquent when it is 30 days overdue.

The number of personal bankruptcies is also growing. More than 660,000 petitions were filed in the year ended June 30, 1990, up 14 percent from the previous year, and a 10 percent increase is expected in the year ending June 30, 1991, according to the Administrative Office of the United States Courts.

None of this is good news for lenders, and more of them are developing flexible repayment programs. For example, on occasion, some may accept less than the standard minimum monthly payment, which typically is between 2½ percent and 5 percent of the total on credit card debt and more on installment debt.

LENDERS SAY that they want to create an atmosphere that is acceptable to both parties and, not incidentally, to make sure the loan is repaid, later if not sooner.

"If a customer had a financial setback, we would try to see what the problem is," said Donald W. Grigley, chairman of the consumer credit division of the bankers' association and a senior vice president of the Connecticut National Bank. "And we might offer the flexibility of an alternative, like an extension for a two-month period."

Almost 500,000 customers of General Motors Acceptance Corp., the financing arm of General Motors Corp., used such extensions in the first eight months of this year, up from 486,000 in the similar period of 1989, said H.L. Davis, a senior executive.

Creditors say that because their primary objective is to recover the principal of the loan, they are willing to take different approaches. "We'll say, 'Can you make a half payment?' " said Dean E. McKnight, senior vice president of the Mid-State Bank in State College, Pa. "But we might very well freeze your credit card line."

Lenders are also training and encouraging collectors of overdue debts to be as sensitive to the customers' needs as the sales representatives who originally made the loan.

"When there's stress, you try to relieve the stress," said Richard G. Federman, chairman of the banker association's consumer debt management subcommittee and a vice president of Citibank. "Depending on the situation, the softer approach can work."

If a borrower does not make the lender aware of financial difficulties, banks and finance companies will follow established procedures for dealing with past-due accounts. These procedures vary on a lender-by-lender and sometimes on a borrower-by-borrower basis.

UNITED FINANCE Co., which has its headquarters in Portland, Ore., writes to customers who are 15 to 20 days delinquent and, if no response is received, the company calls when the account is 30 days late.

"On average, if you don't pay for three consecutive times after getting your first bill, it goes to collection," said Ash Gupta, a vice president of American Express Co., whose bills are due upon receipt of the monthly statement. Thus a charge made Jan. 15 might initially appear on a bill dated Feb. 1. If that payment is not made by May 1, a collection agency will institute proceedings.

"Lenders will stretch out your payments, but they won't forgive them," said John Love, president of Faulkner & Gray, publisher of Credit Card Management magazine. "Banks are essentially in a race with each other to collect funds from prospective deadbeats."

■ Best Western Motels/Hotels have introduced its "Inn-Touch" telephone service for travelers. According to a press release about the service, it "will access up-to-the-minute local and national weather reports, sports information, financial data and local entertainment and event information for the traveler who needs to stay in touch."

To use the service, Best Western guests just press "I" and "T" on the push-button telephones. Cost is 95 cents per minute.

Of course, you have to be staying in a Best Western motel or hotel to take advantage of this offer.

■ For travelers who are going a little bit further afield, the Tropical Medicine and Traveler's Clinic in Miami, Fla., has produced a 20-minute video call The Very Healthy Traveler. The video — done by Dr. Caroline MacLeod, whose credentials include president and clinical director of the travel clinic, and founder and research director of Institute of Tropical Medicine in Miami — includes information on such travel-related issues as jet lag, immunizations, motion sickness, precautions with food and water, and AIDS.

The video, which costs $24.95 plus shipping, can be ordered by calling (305) 663-9666 or by fax at (305) 663-9671.

Homebrewers look for good beer

By Mitchell Landsberg

NEW YORK (AP) — The Outlaws had made a sizeable dent in the evening's beer supply by the time Charlie Papazian rose to deliver the invocation. He raised a glass of frothy ale, grinned through his beard and led the crowd in the familiar chant:

"RELAX! DON'T WORRY! HAVE A HOMEBREW!"

Up went a hundred glasses and down went the beer.

Down went Sal Pennacchio's BME Porter, a rich, black ale with a toasty aroma, and down went John Quinn's Spiced Brown Ale, redolent of chocolate and cinnamon. Down went a nutty German-style ale and a malty, golden Pilsener, and down went several other brews that will never be found at your neighborhood tavern.

The beers were the star attraction at the annual dinner of the Outlaws of Homebrew, one of a growing number of clubs around the nation devoted to home beer brewing. The dinner (the food was bratwurst and sauerkraut) drew more than 100 people to Brooklyn Brewery's distribution warehouse on a dark industrial block in Brooklyn.

It's estimated that somewhere between 500,000 and 1 million people in the United States brew their own beer. Homebrewing has been legal since 1978, and by all accounts is in the midst of a heady spurt of growth.

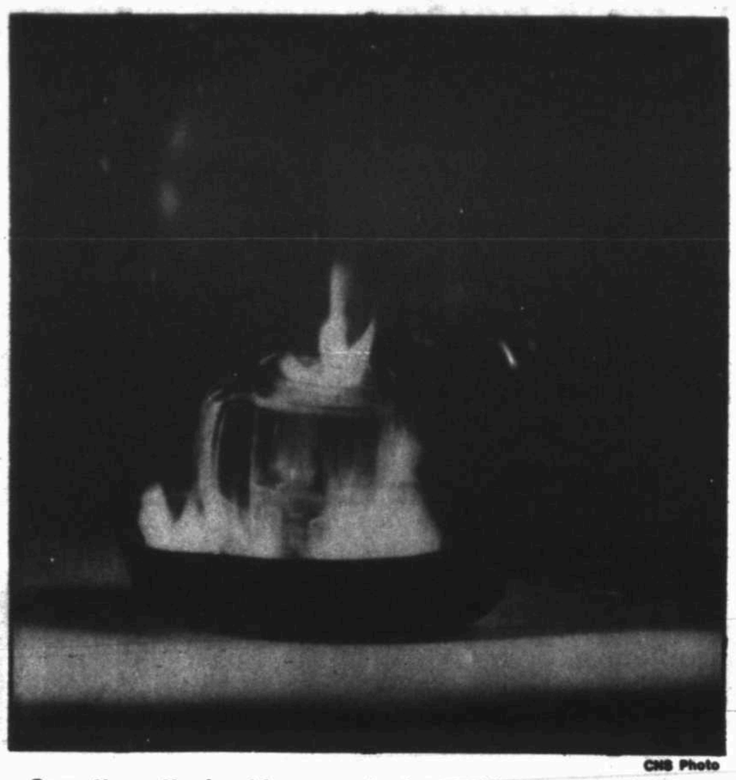

"I THINK PEOPLE are paying more attention to what they're putting down their mouths," said Papazian, whose book, "The Complete Joy of Homebrewing," is the hobby's bible.

Membership in the American Homebrewers Association, which Papazian founded in 1978, is up 41 percent in the past year and is expected to top 10,000 by year's end. There are at least 150 homebrew clubs in the country and 1,200 retail supply shops.

"It's growing tremendously," said Seth Schneider, the general manager of Crosby & Baker, a brewing supply manufacturer and distributor in Westport, Mass. "We're still on the steep part of a growth curve."

The growth in homebrewing has mirrored the development of microbreweries — small breweries that typically devote themselves to full-bodied, high-quality beers. These beers account for a microscopic .15 percent of the national market, but loom large in the world of homebrewers.

There is a strong symbiotic relationship between homebrewers and microbrewers. Homebrewers are microbrewers' most loyal customers; microbrewers frequently sponsor the homebrewers' organizations and events.

CNS Photo

Sometimes the best beer can be brewed in your own kitchen.

THE OUTLAWS OF Homebrew dinner, for instance, was sponsored by Brooklyn Brewery, which provided the warehouse and two varieties of its own beer. Company founder Steve Hindy is himself a homebrewer who likes to tinker with recipes in his kitchen before trying them out in the brewery.

"Actually, right now I'm brewing something I call a chocolate stout at home," he said.

The attractions of homebrewing are several. Foremost is the ability to make good beer; quality has improved mightily in the past decade as homebrew suppliers have become increasingly sophisticated.

"A homebrew rivals the best beer you've ever had," said Schneider. "It hasn't traveled, it has more body, it hasn't been filtered ... and you can make it exactly to your taste."

Some of those tastes are exotic — some would say bizarre. Homebrewers have been known to toss all manner of ingredients into their brew. Spruce beer, cherry beer and ginger beer are among the more common of the strange brews.

Sal Pennacchio, treasurer of the Outlaws of Homebrew, recalls what happened last November when his wife was about to toss out the Halloween pumpkin. The result was his Pumpkin Ale, which won third prize in a national homebrew competition; it tasted, he said, "just like pumpkin pie."

"I THINK THAT'S the great thing about homebrewing," Pennacchio said. "With a little experience, you can create anything you want."

Not everyone wants a Pumpkin Ale, of course, but a more run-of-the-mill brew is a simple thing to make. Beer essentially consists of malted barley, yeast, hops and water. With those ingredients and a few rudimentary pieces of equipment — a bucket, some plastic tubing, a siphon, an air-lock valve, a capping tool and caps and bottles — anyone can make beer.

Equipment for a novice costs about $45. Ingredients for two cases of beer run about $15, or roughly 35 cents a bottle. But that can vary widely depending on the kind of beer being made.

A survey a few years ago by the American Homebrewers Association found that the overwhelming majority of homebrewers were white males, somewhat to the chagrin of those who champion the hobby. Brewers also tend to be married, well educated and divided almost evenly among cities, suburbs and small towns.

UL tests yield high safety marks

By Roger M. Showley
Copley News Service

RALEIGH, N.C. — The treadmill was supposed to meet the standard of a 200-pound man running at top speed at the highest elevation for 20 minutes. Brian Janshego, an electrical engineer, brought in his workout clothes and performed the test during his lunch hour.

The infant's life jacket was required to support a baby weighing 8½ pounds and keep its head above water. Mel Fehrenbacher, a marine testing supervisor, paid local citizens and staff $15 each to bring in their babies to undergo the test.

The door was designed to hold back fire for four hours. As a test, Dan Ryan, a fire safety expert, installed a sample door in a giant furnace and ran the temperature up to 2,000 degrees for the required time.

Check the vacuum cleaner, a light bulb, your neighbor's ski boat and the office soft drink machine. Chances are you'll find a "UL" mark somewhere on each one.

That's a sign that the people at Underwriters Laboratory Inc. conducted a series of tests to check each item against a predetermined set of standards of safety. And if you follow directions, you can rely on the lab's assurance that the device is safe to operate.

FOUNDED IN 1894 after the Chicago World's Fair, Underwriters Laboratory is headquartered in Northbrook, Ill., and operates three other testing labs in Long Island, N.Y.; Santa Clara, Calif.; and Research Triangle Park outside Raleigh, N.C.

Operated as a not-for-profit corporation, Underwriters Laboratory has a long reach. Last year, its 800 field inspectors — including part-time college professors and high school teachers — made 81,000 unannounced inspections at the plants where UL-tested products are produced. If manufacturing does not meet published standards, UL can threaten to forbid the use of its trademark — and thus affect the manufacturer's reputation.

Six major departments investigate nearly 13,000 different types of products for fire, electric shock and casualty hazards that could affect human life or property. Each year, more than 6 billion "UL" marks are placed on consumer and industrial products.

"We're not like Good Housekeeping," said Tom Wollan, fire protection manager in the Raleigh lab. "We use the lowest acceptable standard."

But even for something as simple as an electrical switch, that means setting up a device to push a button 6,000 times to see if the switch works properly.

TO TEST THE explosiveness of a television tube, technicians put one inside a doghouselike box and swing a lead ball against it to see how far the glass shatters.

A specially designed indoor swimming pool was built solely to test how long it takes to sink a speedboat.

The 126,000-square-foot lab in Raleigh — a second building is under construction nearby — is a tinkerer's dream workshop. All kinds of Rube Goldberg devices are set up to test hot tubs, chicken-coop heaters and ice-cream carts.

In one room are a half-dozen soft-drink dispensers. They aren't there for staff breaks. They're waiting to have their refrigeration tested. But Carl Radcliffe, head of heating, air conditioning and refrigeration, said he hasn't been asked yet to test the machines' reliability for returning change.

Manufacturers volunteer to have their products tested — and pay Underwriters Laboratory to do the work. For a vending machine, the cost is about $3,000.

If a product fails the test, a lab technician will call the factory and either run the test again on another sample or send it back for redesign. On a light bulb, the rating may be reduced from 60 watts to 45 watts if the test shows that too much heat is produced at the higher energy level.

LAB TECHNICIANS regularly testify on behalf of manufacturers in product-liability cases. But lab managers take pains to keep the manufacturers from influencing the testing or production specifications.

For example, field inspectors are rotated regularly among factory sites to keep them from developing cozy relationships with factory managers.

Wollan, the fire protection manager, said the lab constantly looks for new or existing products to test. Food preparation tables represent a new line because health officials and manufacturers want to assure buyers that the design presents no sanitation problems. Underwriters Laboratory checks the metal or plastic seams and folds in these tables to make sure that food cannot be trapped in a corner.

FURNITURE ALSO is being tested for flammability, especially for prisons and hospitals, whose officials are concerned about mattresses catching on fire.

The U.S. Coast Guard has an ongoing contract with the Raleigh lab to test life jackets and other flotation devices. The lab maintains a list of 600 volunteers, who receive $15 each to come in for a series of tests.

DEAR ABBY

Husband has two wives too many

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband is an American, but I was born in the Philippines. Wilbur is 51 and I am 36. We've been married for eight years, and he adopted my two children. (I was a widow.)

Van Buren

Yesterday I got a telephone call from a woman who said, "Hello, my name is Mary Elizabeth ( )," and her last name was the same as mine, so I said, "Oh, you must be related to Wilbur." She said, "Yes, he's my husband."

I was so shocked I could hardly speak, then I told her that Wilbur was also my husband. She was very surprised and said she hadn't seen him in many years, but she wanted a divorce so she could marry someone else.

Abby, Wilbur never mentioned that he was married before. Anyway, I took her number to give to Wilbur. When he came home, I told him about Mary Elizabeth, and he just laughed and said he had not thought of her for a long time. Then I said, "Maybe you have yet another wife who would like a divorce?" To my surprise, he said, "Yes, I have. Last I heard she was in San Antonio, Texas, but if she doesn't bother me, I won't bother her."

I asked if he had any children. He said, "No, my first wife gave me a vasectomy for a wedding present."

Abby, now I worry about whether our marriage is legal. He's a kind and decent man, owns his own business and has been a fine father to my children. We were married by a Navy chaplain. But are we really married? Please tell me what to do. — VERY WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Your husband should see a lawyer. He has at least two marriages that need to be dissolved before he is free to marry you.

DEAR ABBY: Please help settle a family argument. My husband thought "Traci," our 14-year-old daughter, was spending too much time on the telephone, so he gave her a five-minute limit on all telephone calls. I think this is unfair.

I equate Traci's telephone calls with "hanging out," as we did on street corners before we had telephones and lived near enough to walk to our friends' houses. Therefore, my heart is not really into enforcing Dad's five-minute rule — especially since we have "call waiting." Your opinion, please. — TRACI'S MOM

DEAR MOM: First, some pertinent unanswered questions: How are Traci's grades? Has she been neglecting anything of importance in order to "hang out" on the telephone?

The telephone to some teenagers is a lifeline, so since you have "call waiting" — and if Traci hasn't been neglecting her homework and chores — imposing a five-minute limit borders on cruel and unusual punishment. I think Dad should lighten up.

DEAR ABBY: I am a bandleader who frequently gets requests to play a song in honor of a wedding anniversary. I always get a laugh when on the occasion of the first anniversary I play "Night and Day."

For the fifth anniversary, I play "Saturday Night."

For the 10th anniversary, I play "Once in a While."

For the 25th anniversary, I play "Now and Then."

For the 50th anniversary, I play "Thanks for the Memories."

Any suggestions for anniversaries over 50? — OPEN TO SUGGESTIONS

DEAR OPEN: How about, "We Did It Before and We Can Do It Again"? Or, "Never in a Million Years"?

Mold bound to break when running into gender barrier

By Erma Bombeck

It's never easy to break the gender barrier, whether it's male or female. History and tradition have dictated that man and woman know his or her place and stay there.

Bombeck

There is a misconception that it's fun for women to enter an all-male stronghold or a kick for men to be surrounded by a lot of women on their own turf. Grow up.

The latest flap in the rites of passage over sex lines concerns a woman's right to be in men's locker rooms as a reporter. Several years ago I was doing a boxing story for "Good Morning America" and entered the jock sanctuary of a Philadelphia gym. If I had wanted to inhale the sweat of a million camels, I could have stayed at home and sorted socks. If a man or woman wants to brave that for a guy wrapped in a towel and swilling champagne who says, "We came here to win," it's OK with me.

One thing is sure. The molds have been broken. Women will continue to race cars, build skyscrapers and go to the moon. Men will infiltrate elementary classrooms, run child-care centers and become airline stewards.

It's probably a generalization, but women seem to handle the crossover better than men. At least I have never heard of a male nurse being surrounded by a group of female nurses in the nude when he showed up for work. Or even of a male secretary being chained to a toilet as an initiation ceremony.

Why is this? Who knows. Maybe it's because women don't feel as threatened as men. Or maybe it's because they appreciate what it was like to be on the outside looking in for all those years.

Ohhh Cisco! Chaps lose

■ Cisco's Wranglers spoil the 1990 basketball debut of Midland College with an 82-81 victory at Chaparral Center.

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

Junior college basketball returned to the Midland College Chaparral Center Monday night, sloppy though it was.

Call it opening night jitters or call it a team that has yet to come together, but no matter what the term, Midland College's disappointed Chaparrals called it a loss. Cisco Junior College downed the Chaps, 82-81, the second straight season-opening loss MC has suffered.

A somewhat optimistic Reggie Franklin, MC's fourth-year head coach, liked to think of the loss as a learning experience.

"This game had to serve as an experience game," Franklin said. "It was a great opener, it's just too bad we didn't win."

Had a missed shot here gone in, or a turnover there been averted, the one-point loss might very well have been a four or five point MC victory.

In particular, one turnover hurt more than all the others combined.

With four seconds remaining and MC desperately hoping to connect on a court-length pass and a quick bucket for the win, sophomore Eric Walker threw an inbounds pass in Carroll Boudreaux's direction. Boudreaux, waiting three-quarters of the way down the court, could only watch in despair as the pass sailed high over his head and out of bounds. Cisco gained possession with two seconds left and went on to retain its one-point, winning margin.

When the Wranglers inbounded, MC tried for a quick foul, but the official ruled time had expired before the foul had occurred.

MC had moved ahead 81-80 when Boudreaux hit a turn-around jumper with 11 seconds left.

Boudreaux, though, was burned on the defensive end of the court just seconds later, however, when he went to the glass to try and block a Bill Hampton shot. Boudreaux was called for a foul on the shot, and Hampton connected on both ends of his free throws to take the 82-81 lead.

Boudreaux, despite his 28 points to lead all scorers, was distraught with his play.

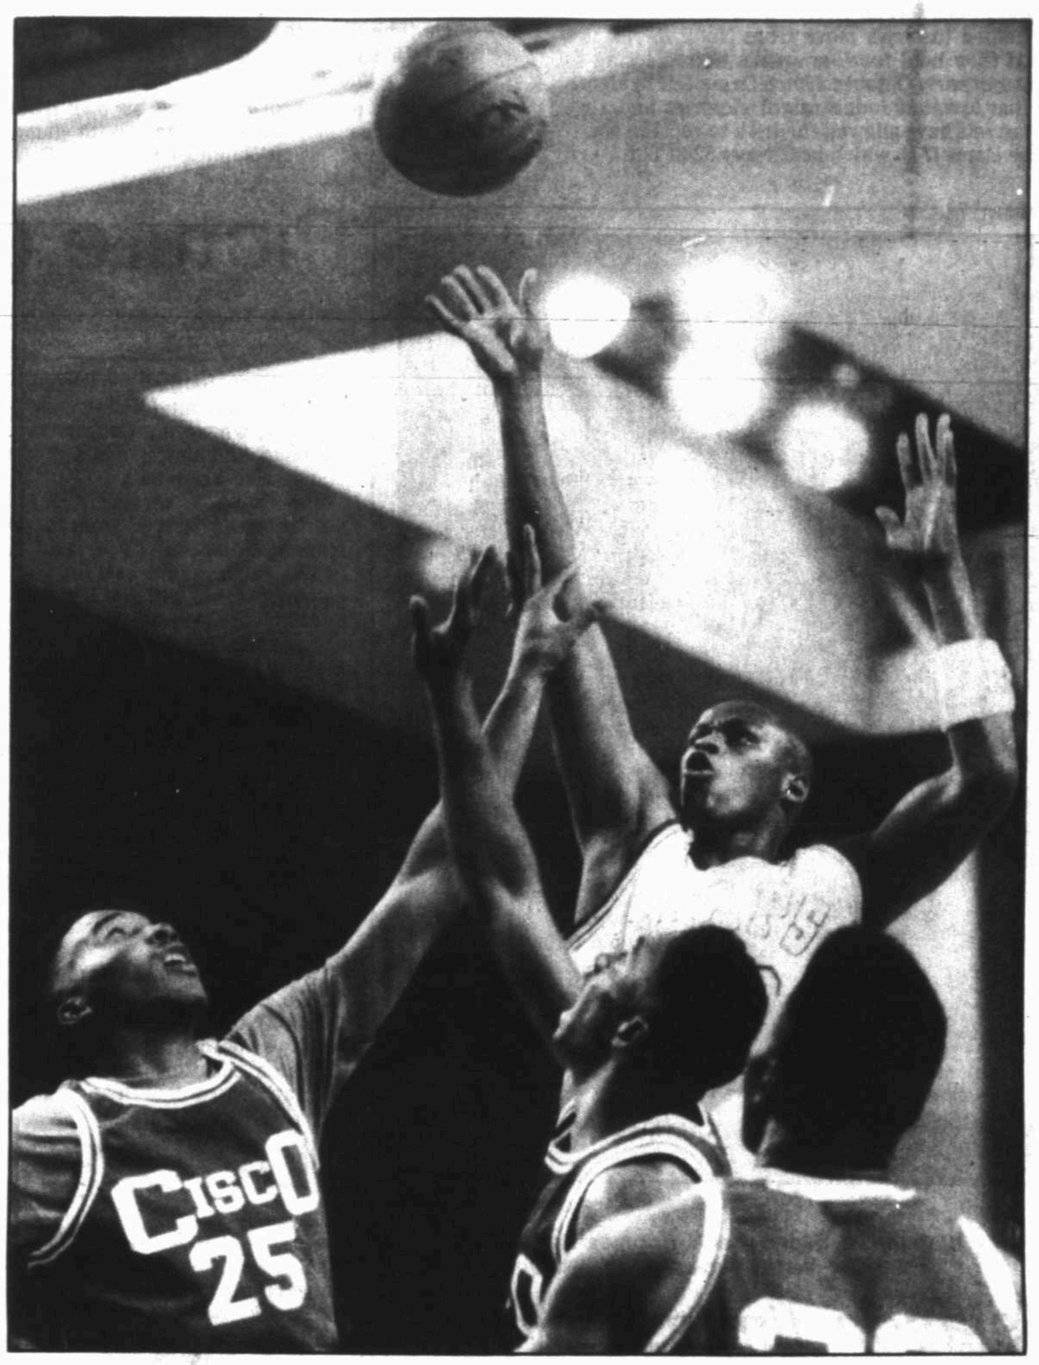

"I don't have anything to say," Boudreaux said. "This team will get back together. I didn't play basketball the way I play basketball."

Boudreaux said he felt "uptight" after having to sit out almost a full year after transferring to MC from Delgado (La.) Junior College.

As for the team mistakes, they were prevalent on both sides. The Chaps turned over the ball 24 times, Cisco, 21. MC shot 61 percent from the line while Cisco connected on 40 percent from the field.

Connecting on almost 50 percent of their shots from the post players, perimeter shooting was almost non-existent for MC.

Giants roll over struggling Colts

■ The New York Giants keep pace with the San Francisco 49ers at 8-0 in the race for the NFL's best record.

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — The New York Giants continue to play their own personal game of "chicken" with the San Francisco 49ers.

The Giants steamrolled over the Indianapolis Colts 24-7 Monday night to join the 49ers at 8-0, the first time in 56 years that two NFL teams have been unbeaten this deep into the season.

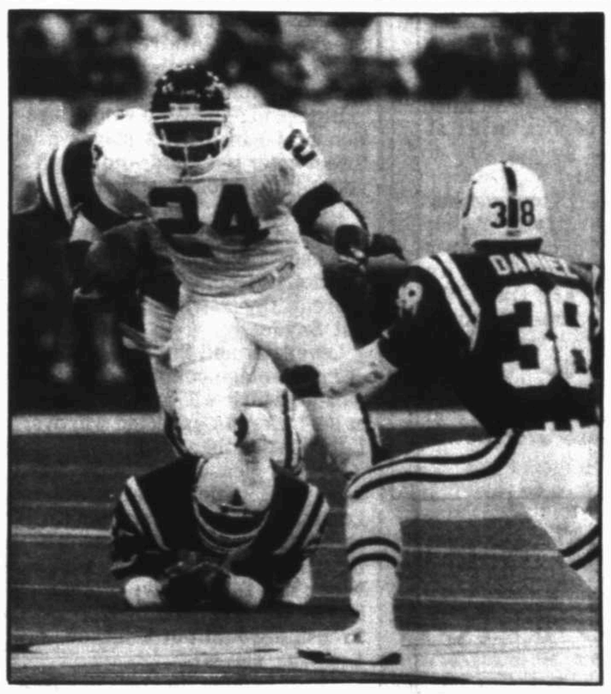

They did it as usual with a smothering defense, two Ottis Anderson touchdown runs, a lot of jitterbugging by Dave Meggett and precise passing by Phil Simms, who completed 17 of 21 for 172 yards. Then they clinched it with a 31-yard fumble return by Dave Duerson, one of the members of their newly acquired over-the-hill gang.

It was the Giants' 11th straight regular-season win going back to last year and brought them one step closer to a Monday night meeting at San Francisco in three weeks with the 49ers, winners of 16 straight.

The last time two teams were 8-0 was in 1934, when Chicago and Detroit both started 10-0. New York and San Francisco would both be 11-0 if they get throught their next three games.

This one was no contest in the first half as the Giants scored on their first three possessions — a 23-yard field goal by Matt Bahr and touchdown runs of two and three yards by Anderson. In fact, the Giants had more touchdowns in the first half — two — than the Colts had first downs — one — as New York went off with a 17-0 lead.

The Colts came back to take the second half kickoff and march 80 yards for a TD on a 1-yard run by Albert Bentley.

Playoff story still muddled

By Bill Grimes
Staff Writer

It's playoff time for high school football teams — almost.

While many districts are all but decided, several playoff spots are still up for grabs going into the last week (or two) of the regular season.

Here is a district-by-district rundown of loops with at least one Reporter-Telegram area team:

Note that districts 3-4A, 9-A and 8-A have two more regular season weeks because of a relative scarcity of schools in both classifications.

District 3-4A: This one became a three-team race after Andrews dispatched Monahans last Friday.

Beating Big Spring by any margin might be enough to get Andrews into the playoffs at the expense of Sweetwater. Reason: While Sweetwater beat Andrews by 4, the S-Mustangs lost to Big Spring by nine, giving them a -5 in the points formula. Andrews' loss to Sweetwater gave them a -4 going into Friday's game.

It would appear that W.T. Stapler's Andrews 11 need only win each of its last two games to get better than a -4 in the point system.

A loss to Big Spring would eliminate

Voting booth no place for the hasty

Haste is like a fake punt. Sometimes it gets the job done, but nobody ever gets a kick out of it.

Wyatt

Today is an especially bad day to be hasty. It's election day, and each vote you cast should be premeditated and for the good of society. Haste should play no part in the selection process.

Haste on one election day led to one of the world's greatest faux pas. Famous writer Jules Verne was tinkering with his hot air balloon when a neighbor came out and said, "Don't forget to cast your ballots."

Verne thought the guy had said "ballast," and it took him 80 days to get to the polls.

The unfortunate thing about election day is we seldom really know our candidates on a personal level. We know them as Tom, Dick or Mary Candidate, but we don't know what they truly feel about the issues that are important to us.

Naturally they all have let us read their lips regarding taxes. And their strikingly similar stands on crime, abortion and economics have all been laid before us. But as you step into America's most hallowed haven for taxpayers — the voting booth — ask yourself: "Does this candidate seem like the type that would actually condone the designated-hitter rule, and if so, what other bastions of American tradition would he/she be willing to tear down?"

One fellow that would get my vote today is Winston Churchill, the stogie-puffing Englishman who was referring to instant replay as an officiating tool in the National Football League when he said: "Never has so much done so little for so few." Or something like that.

Taxes, I am told, are as certain as life and death. Such platform issues as the DH rule, the use of instant replay or locker rooms and the media are not, and they should be taken into supreme consideration at the polls today because these are the things that make tax-paying America tick. And if the truth were known, these athletic issues are probably among the greatest differences of opinion held by most candidates, any of which would lead the government to the best of their abilities while decrying the tax burden and calling on harsher penalties for criminals.

Even if you do it with your eyes closed, most candidates you vote for today will be serious, qualified souls. But with no time left on the clock, would they go for the win or the tie? Its up to us to decide because today we make the calls.

To make them hastily would be like running the old fake punt...you may find yourself on defense, and replays will almost certainly be ruled inconclusive.

Notre Dame climbs back on top of AP's elite

■ Houston, the only unbeaten, untied Division I-A team is listed third behind 8-1 Washington in the AP Top 25 poll.

Associated Press

Notre Dame's rollercoaster ride in the rankings reached another peak Monday when the Irish regained the top spot in The Associated Press college football poll.

Georgia Tech's 41-38 victory over top-ranked Virginia helped the Irish move from No. 2 to No. 1, a position they held for four weeks before losing to Stanford in early October. Notre Dame fell to eighth after that loss, but four straight victories and a series of upsets have allowed the Irish to reclaim No. 1.

Notre Dame (7-1), which beat Navy 52-31 Saturday, received 37 first-place votes and 1,456 points from a nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters. Washington (8-1) is second with 13 first-place votes and 1,403 points, and Houston (8-0), the only unbeaten, untied team in Division I-A, is third with five first-place votes and 1,337 points.

Notre Dame coach Lou Holtz, who was unhappy with his team's performance against Navy, said the Irish don't deserve the No. 1 ranking.

"We aren't the No. 1 team," he said. "You can't be a great team until you play great on defense, and we haven't put that phase of our game together.

"I'm not concerned about who's No. 1 now or at any other time other than Jan. 2, and I think there are 10 or 15 teams that have a better chance of getting there than we do."

Holtz is known for poor-mouthing his own team, but this time he may have a point. With games remaining against No. 9 Tennessee, No. 21 Penn State and No. 23 Southern Cal, the Irish may not hold onto the top spot for very long.

"Any time Notre Dame is ranked No. 1, the students in Grace Hall put up a big No. 1 that lights up at night," Holtz said. "They may decide it's not worth the effort to put it up there this time, considering the chances of us being there for any length of time."

Washington was one spot below Houston at No. 7 in last week's poll, but the Huskies moved ahead of the Cougars after routing Arizona 54-10. Houston, which is eligible for the national championship despite being on probation, beat Texas Christian 56-35.

Colorado (8-1-1) moved up five places to fourth after handing Nebraska its first loss, 27-12. The Buffaloes got five first-place votes and 1,310 points.

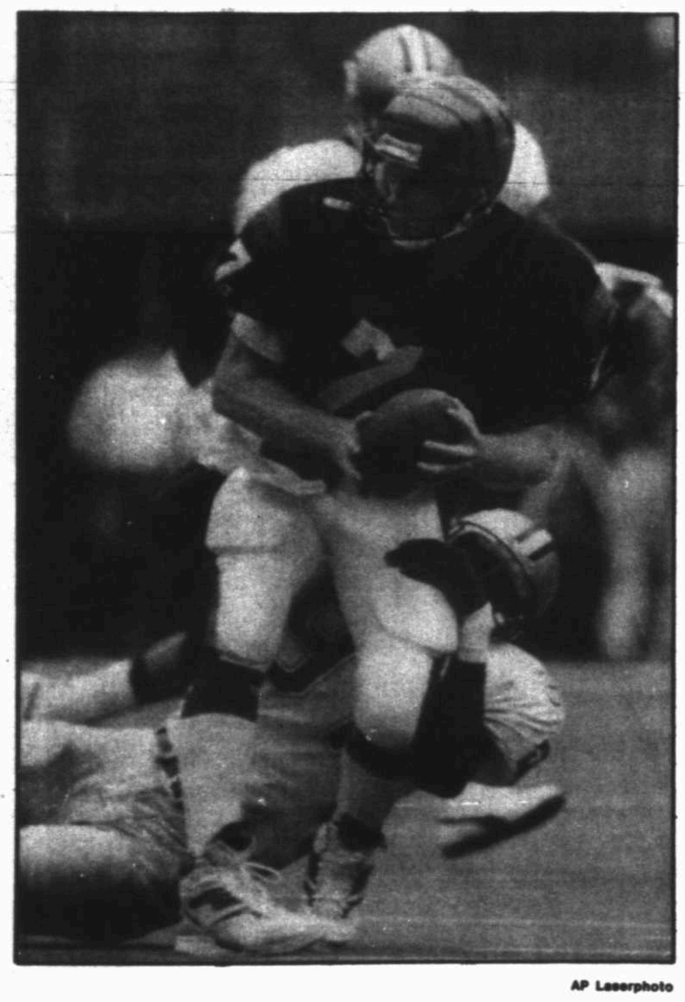

Miami is fifth, followed by Iowa, Georgia Tech, Brigham Young, Tennessee, Florida, Virginia, Florida State, Nebraska, Texas and Auburn. Rounding out the Top 25 are Mississippi, Illinois, Clemson, Michigan, Oregon, Penn State, Louisville, Southern Cal, Michigan State and Wyoming.

Virginia and three other teams in last week's Top 5 — Nebraska, Auburn and Illinois — plunged in the poll after losing on Saturday. The Cavaliers (7-1) dropped to 11th after holding the No. 1 spot for three weeks.

Nebraska (8-1) fell from third to 13th, Auburn from fourth to 15th after getting clobbered by Florida 48-7 and Ilinois from fifth to 17th following a 54-28 loss to Iowa.

Miami (8-2) moved up three places after beating Pittsburgh 45-0, and Iowa and Georgia Tech made even bigger jumps. The Hawkeyes (7-1) rose seven spots and the Yellow Jackets (7-0-1) moved up nine notches.

Arizona, No. 23 last week, dropped out of the Top 25 and was replaced by Michigan State, which beat Indiana 45-20.

For the last four weeks, he's bounced passes in front of receivers, sailed the ball over their heads and made hasty decisions while scrambling away from the rush. The NFL's MVP two years ago has become the Cincinnati Bengals' most mysterious player of 1990.

And he knows it.

"I don't think I've ever felt as low as a professional athlete," Esiason said. "Right now I feel lower than low. I feel worse than I've ever felt as a pro."

This is as bad as he's ever played as a pro.

The Bengals are 5-4, and Esiason accepts a large share of blame for the club's offensive inconsistency. Look at his passing yards this season: 202, 250, 271, 128, 490, 130, 85, 199 and 138. He's thrown 13 interceptions with his 14 touchdowns.

Sunday was perhaps his worst day. The Bengals returned home from a five-game road trip, a crowd of 60,067 was ready to cheer, and Esiason left them booing.

He missed four of his first five passes. He completed just 10 of his first 26. He finished with 15 completions in 32 attempts as the Bengals lost to New Orleans 21-7.

Eight of the 17 incompletions were the result of poorly thrown balls. He routinely overthrew, underthrew or led receivers too far. Once, he dumped the ball into the turf in front of an open receiver just a few yards upfield.

Picture clear for uninvited Houston

By Hal Bock
AP Sports Writer

If college football's national championship picture seems muddled, it's perfectly clear in Houston, where the Cougars are the only undefeated and untied team in the country.

And also uninvited.

The Cougars, serving a three-year NCAA probation, are barred from the bowls, but not from The Associated Press poll. After winning eight straight games and leading the nation in passing offense with 448.8 yards per game and total offense with 564.0 yards per game, they are ranked No. 3 behind Notre Dame and Washington in the poll of broadcasters and sports writers. Coach John Jenkins thinks they ought to be better than that.

"We should be ranked No. 1," he said. "If we're the only team without a blemish, we ought to be ranked No. 1."

THERE IS, however, one blemish — a probation cloud that hangs over all the accomplishments. The 15-page, single-spaced bill of particulars in Houston's folder at the NCAA charges the Cougar program with all manner of misdemeanors.

"The (infractions) committee determined that a considerable number of major violations of NCAA legislation occurred in the university's football program," the report said.

"These violations included the provision of cash and extra benefits to student-athletes on occasions so numerous that the former head football coach and his assistants, even after they began to tell the truth, were unable to recall the number of occasions they gave money to student-athletes."

Those crimes led to the NCAA probation and the decision of the American Football Coaches Association to bar Houston from any honors, including voting for the Cougars in the United Press International coaches poll.

"We don't think you ought to break a rule and win the championship," said Charlie McClendon, executive director of the coaches association. "It's unfair. You're playing under a different set of rules."

McCLENDON SAID it made no difference that the crimes for which Houston was cited began in 1978, when quarterback David Klingler and running back Chuck Weatherspoon were in grade school, playing peewee football.

"That was two coaches and one athletic director ago," said Klingler, who has thrown for 34 touchdowns and 3,570 yards this season.

'We don't make the NCAA rules," McClendon said. "We just follow them. If you're on probation with them, then you're on probation with us. They're a non-program as far as we're concerned."

Don James, coach of No. 2 Washington, agrees with McClendon.

"You can always argue that it's usually the team that played three or four years ago that got them in trouble," he said. "If you go out and cheat and you win games by use of it, you do enjoy the visibility. It still does help. So from my standpoint, I would be strongly opposed to having a team on probation win a championship."

Darrell Christian, sports editor of the AP, explained the news agency's position. "Probation and other sanctions are imposed by the NCAA, not the AP, and none of those sanctions specify that a team cannot win a national championship," he said.

"If a team is allowed to play, and therefore be compared with others on the field, it logically follows that it should be allowed to be compared with others off the field. That's the foundation of the AP poll — to determine, according to the collective judgment of a select national panel of sports writers and broadcasters, the best teams in the country."

Houston has three games to play — on the road at Texas this week and then home to Eastern Washington before finishing with Arizona State in Tokyo Dec. 2. A sweep would mean an 11-0 season and possibly the first split national championship since 1978, when Alabama finished first in the AP poll and Southern California topped the UPI vote.

TWICE BEFORE, teams on probation won the AP national championship. In 1974, Oklahoma began the year as No. 1 and won 11 straight games to finish No. 1. Auburn went 10-0 in 1957 and was crowned national champion while under NCAA sanctions that kept them from the bowls.

PLAYOFFS: Rankin is in

(From 1C)

Andrews, even if Monahans knocked off the Steers the following week, because the best the Mustangs could do at that point would be a tie for second with teams that have already beaten them.

The only way Big Spring could miss a repeat trip to the playoffs would be with losses to both Andrews and Monahans, providing that Sweetwater defeated Fort Stockton and Andrews slipped past Lake View, both of which are likely possibilities.

Big Spring goes into Friday's action at 4-0 in district play, while Sweetwater is 4-1 and Andrews 3-1 going into Friday's action.

District 2-4A: Here's a shocker. On the strength of Levelland's 9-7 win over state-ranked Lubbock Estacado, the Loboes pulled into a share of the district lead with red-hot Snyder.

Levelland and Snyder, both 3-1, are percentage points ahead of Estacado, which will probably finish at 3-1-1 after an expected win over Lubbock Dunbar on Friday.

Neither leader is home free, however. Snyder must travel to Lamesa, which tied Estacado earlier this season, while Levelland must visit Wolfforth Frenship, which has an explosive offense. A loss by either Snyder or Wolfforth Frenship would put Estacado, 3-1-1, in the playoffs.

As for Lamesa, the best the Tors can do is a tie for third with Estacado, and even that is unlikely because Dunbar would have to beat cross-town rival Matadors and Lamesa would have to beat red-hot Snyder.

District 6-3A: Greenwood dealt its playoff hopes a lethal blow with a 25-21 loss to Sonora last week. Colorado City took care of the Rangers' only other chance with a 17-14 win over Reagan County.

The Rangers could still tie for second, if Crane beats Sonora and Greenwood knocks off Colorado City, but wouldn't get the playoff berth because of last week's loss to Sonora.

District 6-2A: Iraan and Wall play for the district championship Friday night. Both have already clinched playoff berths with 6-0 district marks, because all other district teams have at least two losses with one game to play.

Mathematically, the state-ranked Bearkats can still miss the playoffs with consecutive losses in their final two games.

But do you really think that will happen? Roby has split its first four district games, while Sterling City is winless in district play. Next!

District 8-A: Rankin meets Fort Davis for the district championship this week to wrap up its regular season. Even if they lose to Fort Davis — which is unlikely — the Red Devils seem to be in the clear for yet another playoff berth.

(From 1C)

Fifty-nine of Midland's 81 points came from MC's four players in the paint (Boudreaux, Charlie Craine, 17, Eugene Witherspoon, 10, and freshmen Marlon Jefferson, 4.)

"(There was) no need for (outside shooting)," Craine said. "When your big people are playing like that, let us get the ball in the hole. When you've got a 6-8, a 6-10 in the paint, why not go to them? On down the road we'll have some three point shooters."

MC out-sized Cisco man-to-man, something that didn't seem to concern the Wranglers, who weren't afraid to go underneath and jump over the sky-high Chaps.

"We can't be (intimidated)," Cisco head coach Doug Galyean laughed. "We're awfully small. I was really pleased with the way we battled."

Time will show just how far the Chaps can go and to what extent their first-game kinks can be exorcised.

Craine confidently feels it won't take long for the team to gel.

"Thursday," Craine said, when the Chaps meet Murray State in the first round of the 13th annual Chaparral Classic. "Everybody has their jitters out. That's gone. Now it's time to play basketball."

CHAP NOTES: After 14 straight victories in season debuts, Midland College has now lost it's last two openers ... MC leads the overall series with Cisco 14-3, but the Wranglers have won two of the last three ... MC starting point guard Steve Armstrong will apparently not miss any playing time, but did suffer severe cramps in his left thigh during Monday's game after initially injuring the muscle in Sunday practice ... In other games involving Western Junior College Athletic Conference teams, Western Texas took advantage of 17-for-35 three-point shooting to defeat Cedar Valley Community College 148-103, and Howard College defeated Ranger Junior College 137-104.

Opening night action at the Chap Classic has Howard College vs. Angelina (5 p.m., Murray State vs. Midland College (7 p.m.) and Western Texas vs. Jacksonville (9 p.m.)

Big Scrubber

War could shrink big oil profits

N.Y. Times News Service

DALLAS — The modest prosperity that big oil companies reported in the third quarter could swell significantly in the next few quarters under almost any series of events except war in the Middle East, many analysts say.

War would likely send crude-oil prices surging, perhaps above $60 a barrel. That would resume the squeeze on refining, marketing and petrochemical profits that kept most of the big integrated oil companies from showing much gain, if any, during the third quarter.

But stable or falling prices would bolster the refining, marketing and petrochemical segments that rely on crude oil as a raw material.

And revenues from crude-oil production will probably be higher than during the winter and spring months of last year. Antonio M. Szabo, an analyst at Bonner & Moore, refining consultants in Houston, said refiners have cut back output and raised prices in recent weeks.

Rising prices for natural gas, now $2.35 for about 1,000 cubic feet for December delivery, could give yet another lift to production profits should they remain high.

"This is the time to buy the oil stocks," said George F. Friesen, oil analyst at Deutsche Bank Capital, in New York. "When crude prices fall, you'll have higher earnings. People are focusing too much on the very depressed profits in refining and marketing."

Paul Mlotok, oil analyst at Morgan Stanley & Company, said profit margins in refining units were improved in October, with crude costs lower and gasoline prices higher.

"The fourth quarter looks as if it will certainly be better than August and September was," he said.

The average price for self-service, unleaded gasoline was unchanged last week at $1.38 a gallon, according to the Automobile Association of America, but more increases are expected.

Refinery operations for most of the big companies suffered in the third quarter because crude-oil costs rose by twice as much as their wholesale gasoline prices.

Higher crude costs and resistance to higher prices for gasoline, chemicals and other refined products were the factors holding back earnings for most of the giant "integrated" companies, which compete in all segments of the oil industry: exploration, production, refining, marketing and chemicals.

Some companies that produced nearly as much crude oil as they refined avoided the political hazards of reporting staggering profit gains by slowing their price increases at the pump and by special write-offs.

President Bush and Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas, the minority leader, had urged oil executives to restrain gasoline prices in the quarter.

The ARCO Oil and Gas Co., which reported a 21.9-percent profit gain over all, froze gasoline prices for two weeks in August as wholesale prices soared and reduced earnings by $26 million by settling a royalty dispute with the Alaskan government.

Chevron Corp., the nation's biggest marketer of refined products, broke even in refining and marketing operations, but the unit reported a $53 million loss because of a $53 million write-off mainly for pollution cleanup at terminals and service stations.

Like ARCO, Unocal Corp. fared better because it did not have to buy much crude at rapidly rising prices in the wholesale market.

Unocal's refineries used 270,000 barrels a day in the quarter as the company pumped 243,000 barrels a day. Profits jumped by 53.2 percent, to $121 million, or 52 cents a share.

But Chevron purchased more than a million barrels a day. Chevron's refineries used 2 million barrels a day, and its oil production averaged 909,000 barrels a day.

Even though profits more than doubled in its crude-oil production unit, to almost $400 million, Chevron's total net income in the quarter slipped by 2.6 percent, to $403 million, or $1.14 a share. Chevron also had to buy 400,000 barrels a day of refined products to supply its wholesale and retail marketing network.

Shell Oil, a subsidiary of the Royal Dutch/Shell Group, had the same problem. The company bought more than 200,000 barrels a day of refined products, mostly gasoline, at rising prices to supply

European beef ban has U.S. stewing

■ European ban of U.S. beef has erupted into a potential trade war.

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — A European ban on practically all imports of American meat has angered U.S. officials, brought threats of reprisal and caused a general scratching of heads here.

The dispute comes as the European Community and Washington are locked in battle over billions of dollars of farm subsidies, which the United States has pressed to reduce sharply.

The 12-nation community has not even been able to agree on a response to the United States, and the dispute has paralyzed the four-year talks about liberalizing world trade that are scheduled to end next month.

The community's ministers are meeting Monday in Brussels for one more try at breaking the deadlock.

The fight over meat not only complicates the broader negotiations at a sensitive time but also throws the spotlight on yet another issue that has inspired much rancor over the years: the use of health inspection standards to restrict imports.

The European Community justifies its ban by citing its dissatisfaction with the the results of checks by its inspectors on carcasses in 39 American slaughterhouses. The inspectors found a lack of safeguards against trichina, the worm whose larvae lodge in a pig's flesh and cause trichinosis, the community says.

U.S. officials say the health and sanitation criticism is a ruse behind which the community can hide to block imports, which would help trim a mountain of surplus meat caused by big farm subsidies.

Home sales slip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of existing homes from July through September slipped 2.5 percent from their level a year earlier and will remain slow in the first half of 1991 because of the weakening economy, a real estate trade group said Monday.

The National Association of Realtors said sales of previously owned homes totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.66 million units in the three-month period. Sales declined in the year's two previous quarters as well.

The Realtors recorded sales of 3.78 million last year, down from 3.95 million in 1988.

Although there were areas of strength in the housing industry during the third quarter, sales declined in 28 states and were unchanged in Oregon. Nineteen states posted increases. Statistics were unavailable for Alaska and Maine.

Overall, however, "the market will remain slow for the rest of 1990 and into the first half of 1991, as the country experiences a mild recession," Realtors President Norman A. Flynn said.

The Realtors also reported the median price of an existing home was $96,600, 1.8 percent above that for the third quarter of 1989. It ranged from $375,000 in Honolulu to $49,200 in Saginaw, Mich., among the 96 metropolitan statistical areas surveyed.

The only region experiencing increased sales was the South, where sales rose 1.4 percent to an annual rate of 1.42 million. Several oil patch areas that had suffered adverse market conditions in recent years recorded increases.

Texas had a third-quarter increase of 8.8 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 246,300 units. Oklahoma, another oil-producing state, posted a 7.3 percent gain to 55,100 units. Sales were up 5.9 percent in Louisiana to 37,100 units.

The median price of a home in the South was $97,200, up 1.8 percent from a year earlier.

The Midwest's sales rate of 1.0 million units dropped 1.0 percent in the third quarter. The median price jumped 3.6 percent to $75,100.

Christian group ends Burger King boycott

N.Y. Times News Service

After reaching an agreement with a religious group, Burger King Corp. has begun to take out newspaper advertisements declaring its support for "traditional American values."

The Christian Leadership for Responsible Television last week agreed to call off its boycott of the fast-food chain. The group had complained that the company's commercials supported television shows featuring sex, profanity and anti-Christian stereotyping.

Burger King, a unit of Pillsbury Co., which is owned by Britain's Grand Metropolitan P.L.C., said it was running the ads of its own volition to inform its customers of its position on American values.

Christian Leadership, which called the boycott on Sept. 1, said last week that it had canceled the action after reaching a mutual understanding with Burger King officials.

After weeks of discussions, the religious group said that it was convinced Burger King shared its concern for quality television programming and that the company would act on that concern in the future.

A spokeswoman for Burger King said Sunday that the company has not changed its ad-purchasing policies.

Prices fall

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices fell more than $2 a barrel Monday, reflecting what traders called the growing realization that global demand has declined and supplies remain adequate despite the Persian Gulf crisis.

Oil trading strategists noted that the market has now gone more than a week without any wild trading based on war jitters or speculation that peace could be near.

West Texas Intermediate fell $2.04 to $31.96 per barrel for December delivery contracts on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

List of unemployed growing

By Jane Bryant Quinn

NEW YORK–One of the world's hardest words to say is "fired." You say, "I was laid off" (although that falsely implies you'll be laid on again). You say, "I left," not specifying how. "Fired" is a violent word, and so truly expresses the assault you feel on your sense of worth that it's hard to get it past your lips.

Quinn

But the rolls of the fired continue to grow. Private payroll employment dropped steeply in October and the U.S. Department of Labor predicts worse news ahead. Not all the fired are from industries in trouble. Nowadays, even high-profit companies "downsize" to keep costs under control.

On the unemployment lines, the color of the collar is changing. Of nearly 81,000 positions eliminated in 1,219 companies in the year ending last June, almost half were professional and managerial, according to the American Management Association.

The traditional cushion against job loss is three months' living expenses, held in cash or other liquid assets. But the more you earn, the longer a job hunt is likely to take.

If you're fired, the first thing you'll need is a bare-bones budget. List the critical expenses: mortgage, rent, utilities, insurance, car loan, food, gasoline, job-hunting costs. Pay only these; put other bills in a box marked "later."

Then add up the income you still have: spouse's paycheck, interest from savings, unemployment pay. Write down the gap, if any, between your income and the basic bills.

Next, total your ready cash reserves–your severance pay, bank accounts and liquid investments like stocks and mutual funds (don't count any lump-sum payout from a retirement plan; that comes in later). If you can, take a fast loan against your home-equity line, to give yourself some extra cash.

Use some of this reserve each month, to fill the gaps in your layoff budget. Your goal is to cover basic expenses for at least nine months, while you hunt for work.

Reduce other expenses that look immutable but might not be. The day-care center might let you coast for a couple of months. Your children's orthodontist may agree to wait for the money.

Do not pay what you can't afford to pay! That sounds obvious, but it's a rule of survival that fired workers often violate. Make no payments on postponable bills, including credit-card bills, if doing so means that you'll run out of money within a few months. Forget about hurting your credit rating; it's repairable. What matters is keeping the lights on, the telephone working, gas in the car, and food on the table.

For every bill in the "later" box, write to the head of the credit department. Say that you've lost your job, cannot pay, but will in the future. Send monthly $10 good-faith payments. This strategy won't work forever, but it could buy you six months.

If most of your life insurance came from your employer, and you have a family to protect, buy an inexpensive term policy. You can't afford not to have this coverage, even on a bare-bones budget.

For health insurance, you have some choices. If you're married, the family may be covered by your working spouse's plan. If your company employs 20 or more people, the law lets you stay in the group plan, usually at your expense, for up to 18 months. (You have a 60-day deadline for signing up.)

Smaller-company employees can often convert to an individual policy without taking a health exam. Normally, these plans are too costly to bother with. But if someone in your family is ill or a health risk, you cannot afford not to take the coverage. It may be the only policy that will ever cover the person who's ill. Alternatively, ask an insurance agent to find you a three-or six-month policy. Or buy Blue CrossBlue Shield, pay by the quarter, and drop the coverage when you latch onto a new group plan.

If you get a distribution from a retirement-savings plan, keep it sheltered from taxes by rolling it into an Individual Retirement Account invested in a money-market mutual fund or bank money-market account. If you spend from this fund, a chunk of it will be lost to taxes–so use it only as a last resort.

Dollar falls to new lows overseas

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar fell sharply Monday, reaching a new post-war low against the German mark and new lows against the Swiss and French francs, as traders continued to take a pessimistic view of the U.S. economy.

Gold prices rose in response to the dollar's decline.

Market watchers said they expected the dollar's decline to continue.

The dollar fell to a new post-war closing low against the German mark. The U.S. currency closed at 1.4850 German marks, down from 1.4945 on Friday, its previous low.

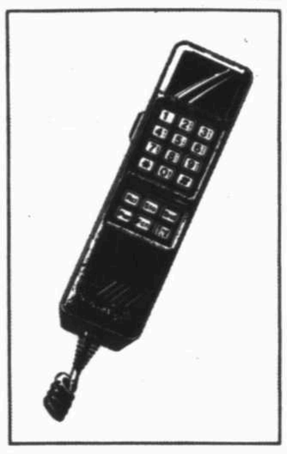

The dollar also reached a new closing low against the Swiss franc, ending at 1.2505 francs in New York, down from late Friday's 1.2605. The previous low was 1.2558 francs on Aug. 23.

And the dollar also reached a new closing low against the French franc, falling below 5 francs for the first time.

ANALYSIS

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 11.39 to 2,502.23 on top of last week's 54.70-point gain.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by more than 9 to 5 on the New York Stock Exchange, with 1,027 up, 543 down and 424 unchanged.

The NYSE's composite index gained 1.42 to 171.49.

Analysts say the market has drawn support lately from expectations of a drop in interest rates.

With evidence mounting of weakness in business activity, many observers say, the Federal Reserve is getting more and more leeway to relax its credit policy.

Wall Streeters hope cheaper money will alleviate the credit problems that have been unsettling the banking industry and the real estate market.

Falling oil prices provided another plus for the market. Crude oil for December delivery dropped about $1.20 a barrel, to $32.80 a barrel, on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

WAR: Will hit big oil its gasoline stations and other customers.

Shell Oil said it lost $64 million in refining and marketing in the two months after Iraq invaded Kuwait in early August.

Most of the big international oil companies have been in Chevron's and Shell Oil's position — producing far less crude than required by refineries and less refined product than demanded by marketing outlets — since members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries nationalized crude oil production within their borders in the early 1970s.

But a dependency on wholesale purchases of crude oil and refined products is an advantage when crude oil prices are stable or falling and wholesale prices often are lower than a refiner's crude inventory.

That is why Friesen of Deutsche Bank Capital, who anticipates lower crude oil prices, recommends the purchase of big refiners, including Amoco, Chevron, Exxon, Mobil, Royal Dutch/ Shell, Sun and Texaco.

Bryan Jacoboski, an analyst at Paine Webber, also endorses most big-oil stocks. "To a large degree, companies in the best position for the long term and for a normal operating environment were hurt the most" in the third quarter, he said.

"Generally, it is more efficient to buy some spot product than manufacture 100 percent of your product needs," he said. "Mobil, Chevron and Exxon could be the big, positive surprises of the fourth quarter."

charges. The Community has not yet produced any.

"The sort of improvements that we were looking for simply hadn't been made," said a spokesman for the European Community here. "We wouldn't de-list them if they had done what we asked them to do. We're certainly not trying to block imports."

But Julius L. Katz, the deputy U.S. trade representative, said in an interview: "We are fully satisfied that under our law, high health standards are maintained. Our meat products are every bit as sanitary and wholesome as are theirs."

The subsidies dispute underscores the influence on the Community of its 10 million-member farm population.

American agricultural interests are pressing for a tough response by Washington.

"The U.S. government must be very resolute," said Philip M. Seng, president of the United States Meat Export Federation in Denver. "The Community has acted in a cavalier fashion."

As of Oct. 31, the Community banned American slaughterhouses as suppliers of pork. It said it will impose a similar ban on beef beginning Dec. 31.

The trade is relatively small, about $90 million last year for the two products. Should a trade war actually break out, the Community is itself vulnerable, since it sells many times as much beef and pork to the United States, about $240 million last year.

More S&Ls changing to state charter

Hearst News Service

SEATTLE – The savings and loan debacle has spawned its own battle between federal regulators and thrift industry executives who are putting their own twist on states' rights.

The fight centers on moves by savings and loan institutions to escape federal regulatory oversight by turning themselves into state-chartered savings banks.

Federal regulator Timothy Ryan insists he's trying to prevent another multibillion-dollar thrift crisis.

On the other hand, the executives and their supporters in state government contend they want to save money and escape an oppressive bureaucracy.

In Washington state, at least eight savings and loans have made or are in the process of making the change and nearly a dozen more have inquired about doing so.

Ryan, the director of the federal Office of Thrift Supervision, directs his ire mainly at states like Illinois where legislation has been passed recently to allow thrifts to switch to a state savings bank charter.

Ryan calls such bills blatant attempts to evade the tougher regulatory standards of the major thrift bailout bill, known as the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989, or FIRREA.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Take care seeking consolidation loan

By Bill Doyle

Q. I have been trying to obtain a loan to consolidate my high-interest credit card debt. Banks will not even talk to me, because I have only average income and no collateral, although I have an excellent credit rating.

Doyle

I have contacted some "loan broker" companies. But they want "up-front" fees and other charges. I have already been ripped off by one of those companies, located out of state. Fortunately, the fee was minimal. I am sincere in trying to obtain a consolidation loan, but I cannot afford a large fee or the risk of losing money in a scam.

Are there any legitimate companies of that nature?

A. Beware of outfits offering debt consolidation loans. They are banned in at least half of the 50 states. Where they are allowed to operate, their interest rates can be as high or higher than the worst credit cards. Tack on their fees and you would come out a loser.

You can try personal finance companies. But it's doubtful the interest costs would be lower than what you are stuck with on the credit cards.

It's plain that you need individual credit counseling to help get you out of hock. A good counselor will work out a budget for you to live on and a debt repayment schedule with your creditors. Credit counselors have more influence than you might think. Credit card issuers and other creditors are accustomed to dealing with those counselors.

Nonprofit credit counseling agencies exist all around the country. Funded by corporate donations, foundations and, in some areas, the United Way, their charges to individuals range from very low to zero.

To obtain a list of such agencies in your area, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the National Foundation for Consumer Credit, 8701 Georgia Ave., Silver Spring, MD 20910, or call toll-free 1-800-338-2227.

Q. I believe there is some formula to determine the length of time necessary to double one's money, based on the interest rate. Am I correct? If so, please print that formula.

A. You are thinking of the "Rule of 72." That's a very simple formula used to determine approximately how many years it takes for money to double when earning interest compounded annually. If goes as follows: 72 divided by the interest rate equals the number of years.

For example, 72 divided by eight equals nine. So, you know dollars you invest at 8 percent will roughly double in nine years. And, at 9 percent, your money will just about double in eight years.

It should be noted that the Rule of 72 is an approximate, not an exact, formula. Run it through your calculator and you will see that $100 invested at 8 percent interest compounded annually becomes $199.89 in nine years.

Q. I will soon receive $50,000 from my mother's estate. I have the column in which you suggested that a reader open 12 certificates of deposit with maturities of one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, 10, 11 and 12 months and, as each CD matures, obtain a new 12-month CD. That way, a CD will come due every month.

I like that idea, but I have been unable to find a bank that will issue CDs for less than six months. Of course, I haven't gone in and talked to them with the money in hand. I have just called on the phone. Any suggestions?

A. Phone a number of banks again and talk to the officer in charge of CDs at each. Banks can issue CDs for any and all time spans. Any bank officer worthy of the title — and salary — should bend over backwards to accommodate you and get your $50,000 into his or her institution.

Q. Is daily compounding of CD interest better than quarterly compounding?

A. Of course. The more frequent the compounding, the higher the yield. Quarterly compounding is better than annual compounding. Monthly is better than quarterly; daily is better than monthly. The thing to look for is the "annual effective yield," also called the "anl percentage yield." That tells you the exact amount your money will earn when left on deposit for a year.

Lifetime Siding & Window: Save on siding, storm windows

Have you recently received an estimate for storm windows or siding that you thought was too high? Do you keep painting and repainting the outside of your home because you think maintenance-free siding is too costly?

Just one more estimate might change your mind.

Neil Letkeman, owner of Lifetime Siding and Window, encourages you to call 689-0307 now for a free estimate and special savings on storm windows, storm doors and vinyl, steel and cedarwood-style siding. He is able to offer lower pricing on home improvement products and expert installation with screws and rivets, rather than staples, thanks to smaller overhead costs.

Cecil Hernandez, who lives at 4605 Thomason Drive, refers Lifetime Siding and Window to his friends and neighbors. "I got several quotes on soffit, fascia and storm windows from other businesses, but no one came close to Neil's bid. We are extremely pleased with his work."

"I had other friends who had some bad experiences with other contractors," Hernadez recalled. "One friend had soffit and fascia installed with staples and before long, it was warping. I won't have to worry about that on my house because Neil uses screws and rivets in his installations."

"The job Neil did for us has really improved the appearance of our home."

Through the end of the year, be sure and save $20 per storm window and storm door from Lifetime Siding and Window. Make your home energy efficient, and keep noise and dust to a minimum with storm windows and doors. And don't pass up the additional opportunity to save 25 percent on siding, eaves and overhang improvements.

"If you've ever had an estimate," said Letkeman, "be sure to call and get a money-saving estimate from us. We find that the people who are most pleased with our estimates are those who have had previous estimates from other companies."

"We offer the same materials to our customers that the bigger companies have," Letkeman explained. "Our craftsmen have many years of experience, and specialize in installing a variety of improvements."

You won't have to be convinced at the affordability of siding and other home improvements. The dollars and sense of an estimate by Letkeman speaks for itself.

If you own a brick home, Letkeman said, you may not be aware that you, too, can benefit from steel or vinyl siding. If you have any problem areas on your home's exterior which require painting, such as eaves and overhangs, siding is the answer for you. You'll never have to paint again!

You don't even have to do all of the house at once, if your home improvement dollars need to be spread out.

All siding products come with a lifetime warranty system. You can also have insulation installed under your new siding. You can also have insulation installed under your new siding. Lifetime Siding and Window Company also sells and installs at reduced prices other home improvements such as storm and replacement windows and storm doors.

You can count on Letkeman's experience as a home improvement products salesman, manager and applicator when you place your order with the company.

There's no better time than now, when the weather is cooling off and with the special incentives for savings, to give Lifetime Siding and Window a call. See for yourself how affordable improving your home can be! For a free estimate, please call 689-0307.

Classes forming now at Avalon Vocational-Technical Institute

If you have been considering a career change but are undecided about what area to specialize in, Avalon Vocational-Technical Institute in Odessa may have the answer for you. Avalon now offers a diploma in the growing field of Credit and Collections Specialists.

Classes are forming during a flexible three week period from November 7 to November 29.

The Credit and Collections Specialist course provides the knowledge of state and federal laws and information on personal credit matters. Instructor Clay Francell, formerly co-owner and manager of the Credit Bureau of Odessa for 15 years, has helped to create a professional curriculum that prepares students for a challenging career. Students receive training in business and computer courses as well as five topics critical for Credit and Collections Specialists.

The five topics Francell addresses are knowledge of state and federal laws, credit analysis, claims, disputes and the techniques of skip tracing. Practical training, such as job simulations, will give students the confidence to do their jobs.

"Credit is a growing field," said Francell, "because we are in a credit society. In businesses, not many people are trained to read a credit report to decide if someone should be extended credit. We train students also how to attempt to collect debts."

Clay Francell, instructor for Avalon Vocational-Technical Institute's new Credit and Collections Specialist program, helps two students enrolled in the program.

Careers begin at Avalon Vocational-Technical Institute in Odessa and you can start work on improving your career success right away. All that you learn is reinforced with an intensive placement program which will help you develop the skills to find a satisfying, challenging job in your field.

It's no secret that in today's challenging job market, education increasingly makes the difference in measuring career success. Avalon provides specialized business, technical and vocational training along with job seeking skills for the constantly changing business world.

Avalon is a school which genuinely cares for its students, and Placement Director Denny Youngblood is truly dedicated to the students who take his Professional Development course, which is required for graduation.

The course prepares him/her for successful, secure job training. Topics include preparing an effective resume and standing out in a job interview. Active student participation is required in all phases of the course, including contact with potential employers, interviewing techniques and follow up contacts.

It's dedicated instructors such as Francell and Youngblood who make Avalon the well rounded educational institution that serves the Permian Basin.

Generally speaking, two courses are taken for night sessions and three are taken during day sessions. Air conditioning classes begin every three weeks for day classes and every six weeks for night classes.

Admissions representatives are on campus each evening until 7:30 for your convenience. Another Avalon advantage for Midland students is the free daily transportation between Midland and Odessa.

Have a great Christmas with fun gifts from Bo's Video

"We save memories" is a truly descriptive slogan for Bo's Video, Midland's unique and growing video production company. What better way to savor precious memories of your child, or even your own childhood, than by viewing these events and more in the comfort of your own home on your video cassette recorder.

Strengthened by their commitment to invest only in state of the art industrial-quality equipment, owners Bo and Karen Alexander offer a complete video recording and preservation service. Business presentations, weddings, group activities, school and church programs, business meetings and home movie to video transfer can be professionally handled by Bo's Video.

Just one call to Bo's Video will save you time and energy during this holiday season and you can shop for just about anyone on your gift list.

One of the newest tricks on the market is processing photographs made from your favorite video, home movie or computer. Bo's has purchased the equipment which will freeze the video at just the spot you want and then presto! Out pops a photograph of a loved one or a special event. You'll have a memory that you can hold in your hand. Mention that you read this article and get one free picture with your order.

Another great gift idea is Bo's Video transfers from 8mm or 16mm film. There is a nominal price charged per foot of tape. With the minimum order, the tape is free. Best of all, there are no surprise charges. Splicing, rewinding, editing and music are free.

You could also use Bo's Video to edit the best shots of all of your video tapes onto one tape.

For a keepsake like no other, let Bo's Video make a video interview of your child. Called the Kiddy Klip, Bo's can capture the magic of your child on tape as he/she plays, talks, relates with others and grows. Another way to share a smile with distant loved ones this Christmas is to send them the Holidaygram video letter. Make the Holidaygram as elaborate as you like — show your kids clowning around, singing songs, having fun in the kitchen, playing the piano or just gatheirng around the camera and "show and tell" them all your news.

Bo's Video tapes are all augmented with creative computer graphics and new digital effects such as paint, strobe and mosaic. It is the only company in Midland other than the television stations which has the capabilities of adding computer-generated graphics and titleing. And what a polish it adds to any tape!

In addition to gift ideas, Bo's Video works year round at business presentations, weddings and other special events.

Enhancement of sales presentations is a reality when a polished, professionally edited video tape is available for business meetings. Sales people also have found it beneficial to put their presentations on video.

These are some of the companies Bo's has worked for: Exxon, Texaco, Midland Memorial Hospital, St. Andrews Mission and Hospice.

How often has someone let their uncle or a friend be in charge of the wedding video to find out later that the tape is less than good quality? You should let them enjoy the wedding while Bo's Video tapes the entire ceremony, plus other events of the day. Bo's Video has excellent examples of weddings on tape, with computer graphics, use of two cameras, music, fading and other high quality production techniques.

Did you miss getting last year's high school graduation or Midlander's All-Night Party video? Bo's Video keeps master tapes of all events they shoot, so you can order copies at a later date.

Are you in one of these events shot by Bo's Video since 1985?

■ Church events at Kelview Heights Baptist, Parklea Baptist, Alamo Heights Baptist, Word of Life

■ Dance recitals at Bingham, Barbara Craig, Dee Ann's, La Petite

■ Various Lee High, Midland High, Greenwood, Midland Baptist Temple and Hillander school events such as graduations, proms, dances, cheerleader squads, pep rallies and football games

Doug's: What's new with Little Tikes for Christmas

Delight all of the youngsters on your Christmas shopping list with the latest in fun from Little Tikes toys, the toys that last. You can find a huge selection of Little Tikes quality products at Doug's Baby Store, located in San Miguel Square at Midkiff and Wadley. And there's no better time than now to layaway for Christmas with Doug's no charge easy layaway plan.

What's new with Little Tikes this holiday season? Perhaps the biggest addition to the line is the Workshop, shown in today's picture. Designed for children aged two to six years, this bright, junior-sized 34"L x22"W x41"H piece includes many interesting activities. Your child will spend hours with the drop-leaf worktable, built-in ruler and vise, play hammer, screwdriver, wrench and paint brush, tool storage board, sink, cordless play phone, four bins, play radio, chalkboard, six Wee Waffle Blocks, three nails and three bolts.

Another new toy sure to please kids from three to 10-years-old is the Big Semi Truck. This bright blue and white truck is made to be driven hard! It features soft tires, turning cab and open windows. Side and rear doors open for loading and unloading and the Big Semi Truck also doubles as a ride-on.

Little Tikes knows that kids want to look their very best, and with this in mind, new this Christmas is the Pink Vanity with chair. Designed for girls aged two to six-years-old, the vanity top lifts to reveal a shatter-resistant mirror. The storage area has three compartments. It would go great with the other Little Tikes pink housekeeping items such as the doll buggy, doll high chair, doll stroller and doll cradle.

As you may know, Little Tikes successfully introduced a large doll house last Christmas and this year a smaller version for ages three and up is available. Grandma's House is a pink and white two level house which is open on all four sides to promote group play. The stairs lead to the second floor, which contains two built-in beds. A cozy dog house in hidden under the stairs. Grandma's House includes Grandma and Grandpa dolls, a Party Kitchen, two chairs, a dog and a high chair. An open carport is designed to hold the Family Van or the Cozy Coupe (both sold separately).

Toddlers from one to three-years-old will love the Little Tikes Push 'n Ride Walker. This combination walker/racer features sleek styling, high spoiler and big tires. The spoiler is also a sturdy handle when used as a walker.

Also for the same age group, the Toddler Tractor and Cart is a realistic tractor with big tires and a big steering wheel. The cart attaches easily and can be used separately.

The Rocking Horse is a one piece ride-on with a friendly face and detailed molding. Other features include a high seat back, easy-grasp handle and low center of gravity for stability. For children ages one to three.

And don't forget the year round Little Tikes favorites, including:

- Country Cottage
- Log Cabin
- Little Tikes Place
- Party Kitchen
- Cozy Coupe

Doug's is the only store in West Texas to carry the popular Little Tikes Elephant Slide, the Giant Slide and the Giant Waffle Blocks. Count on Doug's to find just about anything in the Little Tikes line — more than 75 different types of toys are for sale.

Deer smashes way into bank

AMBRIDGE, Pa. (AP) — A deer broke through a bank's window and smashed three others Monday, apparently mistaking its reflection for a rival, authorities said.

It took police and game wardens about an hour to get the bleeding buck out of the Mellon Bank branch.

A road crew used shovels to break the rest of the glass, lined up and drove the buck through the window and into a nearby forest.

The damage was mostly blood stains and glass in the lobby, bank spokeswoman Norma Buhrman said.

Game wardens and police suspect the buck thought his reflection in the bank's window was a rival. Deer are in their mating season and become protective of their turf.

UPI says liquidation hinges on pay cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Press International said Monday it will be forced into liquidation in less than two weeks unless union employees of the news service accept a 90-day pay cut of 35 percent.

A spokesman for the Wire Service Guild, which represents the employees, said the union is recommending rejection of the proposal.

Pieter Vanbennekom, UPI executive vice president, told employees, "A 'no' vote to the company's request will simply mean that after Nov. 16 ... we cannot ensure that we will have enough cash on hand to meet the payroll and other life-or-death obligations for the next two weeks."

"Therefore, we will have to take the once unthinkable step of putting UPI into liquidation," Vanbennekom said.

"At this point we see no real alternative if the vote is against the proposal," UPI vice president and spokesman Milt Capps said. He declined to say how the liquidation would be carried out.

Chris Dahl, secretary-treasurer of the guild, said from the union's headquarters in New York, "There is little doubt in our minds that the company needs a lot of money and it needs a lot of money fast. We are simply saying that they are coming to the wrong people to get that kind of money."

Baby survives car crash

MANKATO, Minn. (AP) — A woman pregnant six months was killed in a car accident, but her baby was delivered, authorities said Monday.

Lori Jean Childs, 28, of rural Mankato, died after the car she was driving struck a protective barrier and rolled Sunday, according to Blue Earth County Sheriff LaRoy Wiebold.

Childs was pronounced dead at Immanuel-St. Joseph's Hospital in Mankato.

Her baby boy was delivered at the hospital and taken to the University of Minnesota Hospital, where he was in critical condition Monday.

IRA member stays in jail

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge today declined to set bail for Joseph Doherty, the Irish revolutionary who has been jailed in New York for more than seven years.

U.S. District Judge Miriam G. Cedarbaum ruled that Doherty would likely flee if his release were approved.

"The evidence is overwhelming that petitioner, if released, would pose such a substantial risk of flight that no condition of bail could reasonably assure his surrender for deportation," Cedarbaum said in a 23-page decision.

Doherty, 35, faces a life sentence in the United Kingdom for the murder of a British officer killed in a gunfight between British troops and Doherty's four-man IRA unit.

He escaped from a prison in Northern Ireland in 1981 and came to the United States a year later. He was arrested in New York in 1983 and has been imprisoned in a Manhattan jail since then.

Doherty has never been charged with a crime in the United States; he's been held without bail the entire time.

Strikers to get funds

NEW YORK (AP) — Local and national labor leaders pledged $2 million Monday to help the unions striking the Daily News, as circulation seemed to be dipping during the second week of the dispute.

The tabloid has continued to publish since the strike began nearly two weeks ago with editors joined by reporters and editors from other newspapers, union members who have crossed the picket line and new hires.

But with editorial and production problems apparently licked the job of getting the paper to would-be readers remained.

Eight unions struck on Oct. 25, followed the next day by the Newspaper Guild, which represents reporters, photographers and other workers. About 2,000 people are on strike, although some have returned in various Guild departments.

The unions went on strike over what they termed unfair labor practices. They had been involved in negotiations since January over contracts that expired in March.

The printers stayed on the job to preserve lifetime job guarantees negotiated when automation was introduced.

New guidelines expected to change school lunches

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dietary guidelines published by the federal government Monday look a lot like the old ones — eat more vegetables, less fat, sugar and salt — but there should be a greater effect this time.

The guidelines will cause changes in school lunches eaten by millions of young Americans and in meals for mothers in government feeding programs.

The recommendations, said Health Secretary Louis Sullivan, are also more specific than guidelines issued in 1980 and 1985.

The new ones "include more positive advice, oriented to the total diet, with clear wording and specific numbers," he said.

For example, the 27-page booklet of guidelines being distributed by the government says Americans should get 30 percent or less of their calories from fat, with only 10 percent of that from animal fat and tropical oils.

Other guidelines:

—Eat two or three servings daily of meat, poultry, fish, dry beans or eggs. But no more than 6 ounces a day.

—Trim fat from meat. Remove the skin from poultry and have cooked dry beans and peas instead of meat occasionally.

—Have two or three servings of milk and dairy products daily. A serving is one cup of milk or yogurt or about 1½ ounces of cheese.

—Have three or more servings of vegetables daily, eating dark-green, leafy and deep-yellow vegetables, dry beans and peas often. Also eat starchy vegetables, such as potatoes and corn.

—Eat two or more servings of fruit, such as one medium apple, an orange or a banana, daily.

—Use sugar and salt in moderation.

—If you drink alcoholic beverages, do so in moderation.

The guidelines define moderation in drinking alcoholic beverages as one drink per day for women and no more than two drinks a day for men. One drink means 12 ounces of regular beer, five ounces of wine or 1.5 ounces of distilled spirits, 80 proof.

Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter said the new guidelines would influence the national school lunch program run by USDA and the Women Infant and Children program, which provides food, vouchers for food and nutritional information to poor, pregnant women, nursing mothers and their babies.

"We reach a large segment of the public with our food programs," said Yeutter, who released the guidelines at a press conference with Sullivan.

"As children begin to eat with the family, usually at about 2 years of age, they should be encouraged to choose diets that are lower in fat and saturated fat and that provide the calories and nutrients they need for normal growth," says the pamphlet.

What's revolutionary in the new recommendations, says the American School Food Service Association, is that the government is applying the guidelines to children for the first time.

Anne Gennings, president of the school food service association, said schools across the country already offer a variety of food choices lower in fat, sugar and sodium. The report reinforces that effort, she said.

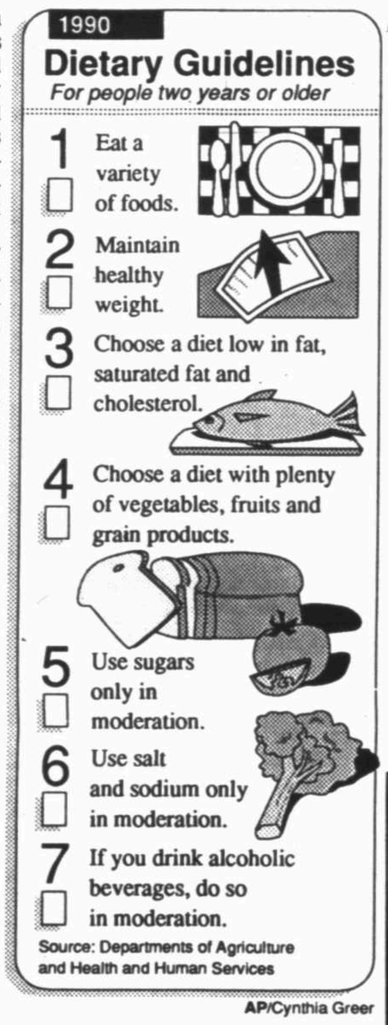

But Ellen Haas, executive director of Public Voice for Food and Health Policy, said the government could do more.

"What's important now is not focusing on the guidelines themselves, but concrete action plans for translating the guidelines," she said, advocating laws or regulations requiring schools to cut meals to no more than 30 percent fat, for example.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest also was critical, saying the guidelines were weak and "devoid of the urgency that the situation deserves."

"The government's mealy-mouthed advice can hardly be expected to spur the major overhaul in eating habits that most Americans should make," said Jane Hurley, the non-profit group's associate nutritionist.

Food industry organizations, however, were supportive.

AP/Cynthia Greer

"The Salt Institute is pleased that the revised Dietary Guidelines now encourage Americans to 'use salt or sodium in moderation.'" said the trade group, which opposed the words "avoid salt" in the 1985 guidelines.

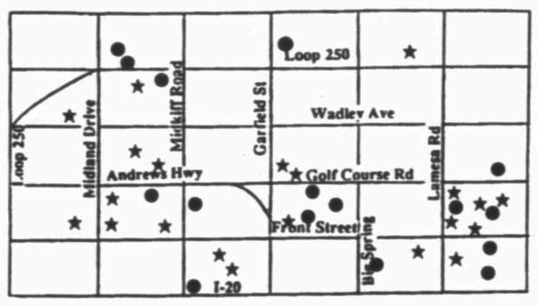

The American Meat Institute said the guidelines were "a prudent road map to healthy, delicious and varied diets" that "provide ample room for all foods from all food groups to be included in Americans' diets."

"Today's lean, trimmed beef fits well into the kinds of diets being recommended," said the National Cattlemen's Association.

Court rules Stuart's attorney doesn't have to give testimony

BOSTON (AP) — Charles Stuart's lawyer doesn't have to tell a grand jury about a conversation in which prosecutors suspect Stuart admitted killing his pregnant wife, the state's highest court ruled Monday.

"The mouth of the attorney shall be forever sealed," the Supreme Judicial Court said in a 4-1 ruling.

Justices rejected the contention of prosecutors that John Dawley's attorney-client privilege was undone when Stuart apparently jumped to his death off a bridge, throwing a new twist into the mystery over his wife's shooting.

In the ruling, the court said only a client can release a lawyer from his obligation to confidentiality.

Stuart's wife, Carol, was shot to death Oct. 23, 1989. Stuart originally told police they were attacked by a black gunman in their car after they left a child-birth class. The couple's baby, delivered prematurely after the shooting, died 17 days later.

Stuart, 30, became the prime suspect after his brother, Matthew, implicated him in the crime. Matthew Stuart told authorities that under his brother's instructions, he drove to the crime scene and retrieved personal belongings of Carol Stuart and a gun believed to be the murder weapon, prosecutors said.

Dawley met with Stuart for about two hours Jan. 3, the day before Stuart's apparent suicide. Investigators contend that Stuart, a fur store manager, admitted to his lawyer that he killed his wife.

Thomas Mundy, a Suffolk County assistant district attorney, argued the grand jury would be deprived of "potentially relevant information" if Dawley did not testify.

Attorneys representing the Stuart family argued the court would be setting a dangerous precedent by tampering with the attorney-client privilege.

"I am happy that the Supreme Judicial Court has reaffirmed the right of every citizen to repose the utmost confidence in his attorney and to make a full and complete disclosure in the knowledge that the attorney-client privilege is sacred," Dawley said.

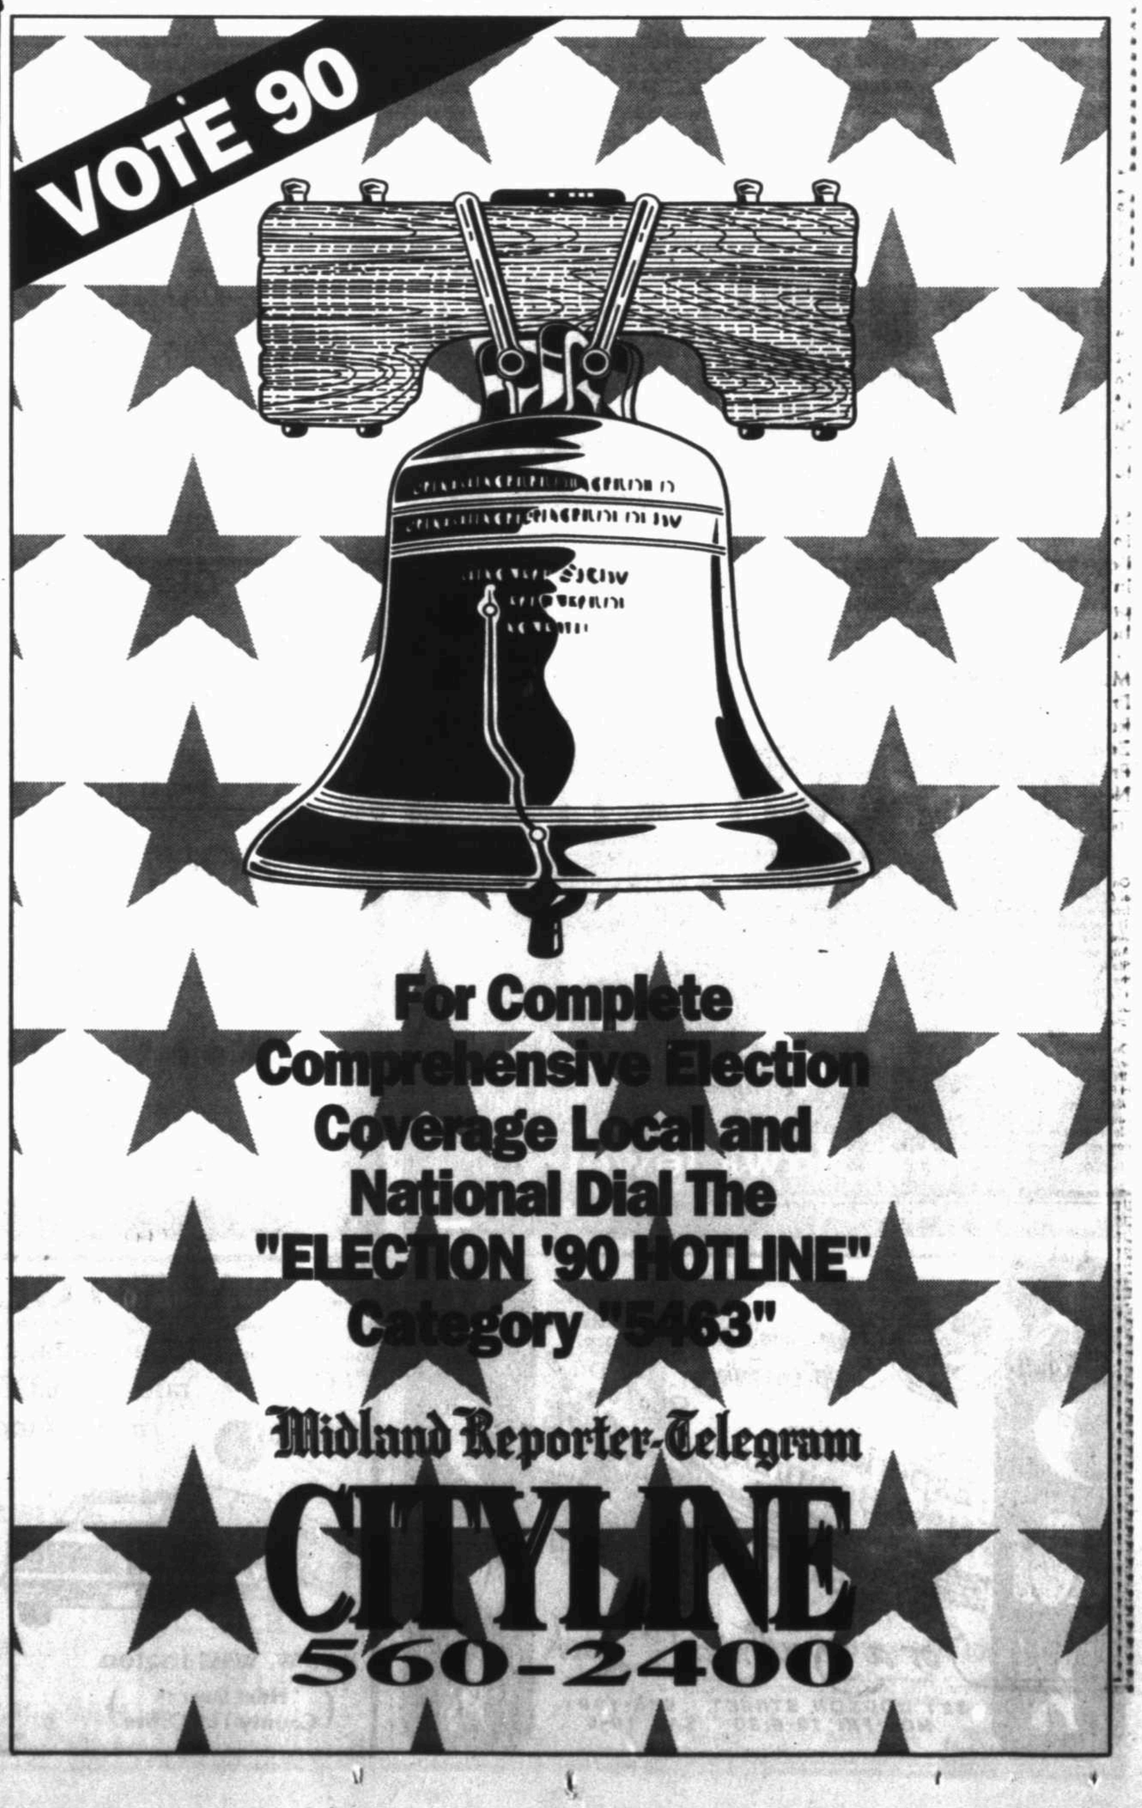

The state had argued that Stuart "no longer can be harmed by the disclosure of his communications to his attorney" and the privilege should be overridden because of "society's interest" in finding who killed Carol Stuart and her son.

The court disagreed, saying "the client's and the public's interests are best served by a rule of confidentiality that applies both before and after the death of the client."

In a dissenting opinion, Justice Joseph R. Nolan argued the attorney-client privilege should be denied because the possibility that Stuart did not shoot his wife meant the killer could still be on the loose.

District Attorney Newman Flanagan would not comment on the ruling, spokesman Dave Rodman said.

"The grand jury will be notified to reconvene to hear additional testimony," Flanagan's office said. "No further comment will be made while the grand jury investigation continues."

CARRIERS NEEDED

THE MIDLAND REPORTER-TELEGRAM needs carriers in the following area:

Lee Freshman School

This is early morning work!
Dependable transportation is A MUST!!!

CALL CHRIS BRADFORD
682-5311

PART-TIME INCOME AVAILABLE

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has several routes which need to be re-filled with qualified, responsible individuals. Now is one of the best times ever to obtain a route in your area!

Often asked questions:

Is it worthwhile for adults also?

Yes! Our current carrier force is already 65% adult and 35% youth. Morning newspaper routes are attractive for:

- •ADULTS who have full-time jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job.
- •MOTHERS who can't justify a small job and daycare, because as a carrier, you do not need daycare!
- •COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
- •YOUTHS who are involved in afternoon school functions, but want to work!
- •SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends.

How much money can I make as a carrier?

Depending on the size of the route(s) from $200 to $600 monthly! Some motor routes make even more. Although no motor routes are expected to be available, depending on your service record, you may qualify to move up to a motor route later!

How long does it take?

The actual delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, again depending on the size of the route(s). Also, a few hours a month are needed to collect from subscribers. Many carriers choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in subscribers' papers. Collecting in person will be necessary though!

When do papers have to be delivered by?

6 AM Monday - Friday and 7 AM on Saturday and Sunday

Do I ever get a day off?

The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, carriers do take days off by finding a friend or family member to substitute for them!
