DAVIS' MIND FOUND SUB-NORMAL

Letter From Mother Causes Hickman To Lose Bravado At Last

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (AP)—Babe Ruth came to bat again for Gov. Alfred E. Smith tonight—this time in a radio address over a nation-wide hookup.

It is because Governor Smith is "the greatest friend of American sport in public life today," and because he never has forgotten his boyhood friends that the Yankee home run king would like to see him elected.

"The other day I took a ride down to Oliver street in New York City just to look at the little 'two by four' home that Governor Smith was born in," said Ruth. "It reminded me of my own two by four home in Baltimore, and what a wonderful thing it is to think that whether you were raised by poor parents in Oliver street, New York, or by poor parents on the river front in Baltimore, there is a chance for every boy to get to the top in America whether he wants to be a president or a ball player.

"The greatest thing of all about Governor Smith is that he never forgot his love for Oliver street. He has never left his home town or his home state or his old time friends on Oliver street but for 25 years has been their public servant. And here is the worst of it, Alfred E. Smith, who has done more for New York than all the ball players in captivity, does not get the salary of many big league ball players. While some men desert their old friends, their home town and their obligations to the public for great big salaries Al Smith, four times governor of New York, has given his life to the public."

Hickman Seemed to Realize Seriousness as Doom Approached

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Calif., Oct. 19 (UP)—A last letter from mother, the mother who reared and taught him the virtues of righteousness, broke the iron nerve of William Edward Hickman, and he fell through the death trap today in a virtual state of collapse.

"The Fox," slayer of Marion Parker, Los Angeles school girl, was hanged at 10:10 a. m., the state of California claiming its toll for the most atrocious crime ever committed within its borders.

The bravado that amazed even the most seasoned prison guards and officials and caused them to call him "the coolest man that ever faced death," snapped completely the moment he stepped on the death trap. His knees sagged and for a moment it appeared he would fall to the floor.

Guards Assist Him

Attendant guards stepped forward quickly, braced the shaking form, and an instant later the hangman's signal to cut the rope that sent Hickman to his death, was executed.

Fifteen minutes later he was pronounced "dead."

The final message from his mother, Mrs. Eva Hickman, brought the first withering of the calm, cool manner with which the youth had discussed his fate. The letter was one of four taken to the death cell shortly before the guards came to lead him to the scaffold.

He tore open the letter hurriedly and read it eagerly. Turning aside

WEEKS RELATES HISTORY OF FARM SUCCESS

600 Hear Promise of Great Development in Wichita Valley

Charles Weeks painted pictures of gold, as developed through the Weeks Community of Little Farms in California, at a mass meeting held in the Wichita Falls Memorial auditorium here Friday night. Six hundred persons from every profession sat through a talk illustrated with pictures that told the story of intensive farming.

Confident of Success

How the "waste" space atop his hen houses was utilized as brood houses for the baby chicks; how the "waste" space taken up with the driveway from the road to his garage was utilized by making a grape arbor out of it; how the "waste" space above the garage was used for bee hives, and how every other inch of space on his tiny tract of land in his California project was utilized, was explained by Mr. Weeks, who said in answer to a question by J. S. Bridwell:

"If you desire that I come here to colonize the Wichita irrigated valley and develop it with a system of small poultry and dairy farms and if I attempt it, it is done."

Mr. Weeks, who came here at the request of J. A. Kemp and other Wichitans after they had visited him in California at his colonization project there, told tales of farming on small tracts of a few acres that started with bare land, and ended with a "paradise in California" in periods of five and six years.

Mr. Weeks and the landowners of Wichita county have not finally announced a decision on the possible colonization of the Wichita valley, and the meeting Friday night was generally informative on the kind of work Mr. Weeks has done.

The meeting, which was under the auspices of the agricultural committee of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, was opened by a short introduction of Mr. Weeks by J. T. Harrell, chairman of the agricultural committee of the chamber.

Five-Acre Farms

"The intensive little farm here should not be smaller than five acres," Mr. Weeks said.

"It might run 5, 10, 15, 20 or even

WIFE OF FLIER KEEPS UP HOPE

Pilot of Tiny Plane Still Not Reported

LONDON, Oct. 19. (UP)—Alone except for the wavering optimism of Stag Lane airdrome authorities, Mrs. H. C. MacDonald, wife of the retired naval commander who started Wednesday noon on a flight from Newfoundland to England, waited tonight for a message which might indicate that her husband was safe.

Her long vigil, broken only by fitful snatches of sleep, was marked by her confidence in the ability of the quiet young man who left Harbor Grace in the smallest plane ever used on a projected transatlantic flight, a Gypsy Moth of 85 horsepower with a flying range no greater than 3,500 miles under favorable weather conditions.

MacDonald's little plane was forced down not long after noon Thursday at the latest, officials estimated, and his only chance of safety lies in the fact that he might have landed beside a ship without wireless facilities or on some remote part of the Irish or Scotch coastline where communications would be slow.

The liner Paris and other ships which arrived today reported that they had seen nothing of MacDonald in mid-ocean although the weather was said to have been fine. The only report from the Moth plane placed it about 775 miles north and west of St. Johns, Newfoundland, north of the regular route to England.

DEMO WOMEN OPEN CLUBS IN THREE TOWNS

Burkburnett, Iowa Park and Electfa Are Visited in First Tour

Formation of clubs of Democratic women voters was started in the principal towns of Wichita county Friday when leaders of the recently organized Woman's Democratic league led a political trek through Burkburnett, Electra and Iowa Park, with stops of more than an hour in each place.

Rally Tuesday at Electra

In each of the Wichita county towns emphasis was placed by speakers on the efficient and statesmanlike administration of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, as contrasted with the inefficiency and corruption of Republican administrations. Former Governor Oscar B. Colquitt, Tom Love, the Rev. John Roach Straton of New York, S. D. Sartin, Senator Borah and others of the anti-Smith leaders came in for scathing denunciations at the hands of the speakers.

"The declaration of the New York pastor that a man from the sidewalks of New York isn't fit to be president of the United States is an insult to every mother's son born in poverty," cried E. R. Surles, one of the speakers, in appealing to voters in Electra to remain loyal to the Democratic party.

In each of the three Wichita county towns, women in the delegation collected the names of other women who are to form the nucleus of clubs in each city. Formation of the Electra club, already planned by its leaders, is expected to be well under way by Saturday afternoon, and plans were announced at that place for a rally Tuesday night to which residents of the entire county will be invited, especially women who wish to hear discussion of the records of the two presidential nominees.

Hecklers at Iowa Park drew an unexpected and fiery denunciation from Edgar Scurry, county Democratic chairman, Confederate leader and veteran party worker.

Talks to Hecklers

Scrambling up on a truck at the end of a talk by J. B. Hatchitt, Mr. Scurry addressed his remarks directly to a group of men who

'Whisper' Against Hoover Brings Bilbo Hot Reply

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (AP)—George Akerson, assistant to Herbert Hoover, today telegraphed Governor Bilbo, of Mississippi, denouncing as "unqualifiedly false" a statement attributed to the governor that Hoover had called upon and danced with a negro woman during his flood relief trips to the Mississippi river district last year.

Akerson, who accompanied Hoover on all of his trips into the flood area, characterized the utterance as "the most indecent and unworthy statement in the whole of a bitter campaign." The Bilbo statement was said to have been to the effect that Hoover called on the woman at Mound Bayou.

"Mr. Hoover was never in Mound Bayou except for a three-minute stop of his train there," the telegram said. "He never left the platform of his train but received there a memorial from the colored people of that vicinity for the service he had rendered their race."

Drive Started on 'Lady Mashers' to Protect Men on Wichita's Streets

Constable Works on Theory 'Sauce for Goose Is Sauce for Gander' and Two Arrests Result

While other agencies of the county have been campaigning to protect women against the wiles of youth who chortle invitations from automobiles, Constable Frank Morgan Friday opened war on "lady mashers." Constable Morgan has instructed his deputies to make arrests in all cases where women approach men on the streets of Wichita Falls.

The newest campaign, designed for the protection of members of the male sex against the women, was started by Constable Morgan after two young women had attempted to "inveigle" an innocent-looking deputy whose car was parked on the "main stem" in Wichita Falls Wednesday night.

Suggest Joyride

The deputy constable, whose name was withheld, was approached by the women who suggested a large evening to start with a jaunt in the deputy's car. One of them climbed into the front seat with the deputy, whose identity had not yet been divulged. The other got in the back seat after the deputy had promised to find her a "papa" so the party would be a foursome.

The girls found plenty of company, for they were taken immediately to the county jail and both paid fines in justice court the following morning on vagrancy charges.

"We have received a number of complaints of this nature," Mr. Morgan said, "and, again, young men have told me it is hardly fair to arrest them for flirting along the streets when women are going about Wichita Falls stopping men here and there."

Protection for Boys

"What is sauce for the goose is also sauce for the gander," the constable declared. "Of course we are working in harmony with other agencies but I feel as though the boys should have protection as well as the women," he said.

Sheriff W. G. Bralley said Friday that the masher campaign being waged by his department was designed against both sexes. He declared his men have picked up two women on mashing charges and that he has instructed his deputies to arrest persons of either sex.

NEGROES SLUG WICHITA MAN

C. E. Prothero Tells Police Of Attack

C. E. Prothero, 40, 1712 Magnolia avenue, was slugged by two negroes who threw him out of his car on the Windthorst road about 9:30 o'clock Friday night, Prothero reported to police. No trace of the negroes or Prothero's Chevrolet sedan had been found at midnight Friday.

Prothero, who called the police station about 10:30 o'clock, said he was lying about 50 yards from the roadside when he regained consciousness about an hour after he had allowed the two negroes to get into his car at the union station in Wichita Falls. The assailants had taken his pocket book which contained little if any money.

The man declared he had taken a woman to the depot from Twenty-Second and Holliday after she had missed a bus and as his passenger alighted at the station two negroes asked him for a ride to Seventeenth and Holliday. He allowed the two to get into the car and as he passed the corner of Eleventh and Holliday he was struck on the top of the head, he told police.

Prothero said he remembers no more until he awoke in a field off the Windthorst road about two miles from the city. He walked to a filling station on the Fort Worth road and called the police station.

City Detectives Nathaniel McKelvey and Noah Daves answered the call and an effort was started at once to locate the car. Prothero could not give a description of the negroes. He bore a slight wound on the top of his head and an abrasion on his right forehead.

BORAH, WORK BEAR BRUNT OF SMITH'S JIBES

Idaho Senator's War Speech And Work's Oil Lease Record Assailed

CHICAGO, Oct. 19. (UP)—The Republican record on prohibition, farm relief, water power and corruption was assailed here tonight by Gov. Alfred E. Smith in his farewell western speech.

The Democratic presidential nominee directed his caustic remarks particularly at Senator William E. Borah and Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee. He quoted from Borah's wartime speeches against the Republican presidential nominee, Herbert Hoover, terming them indictments of Hoover's efficiency and ability. He linked Work with the Salt Creek lease obtained by Harry F. Sinclair, the Teapot Dome oil magnate.

Says Action Delayed

Smith charged that the Sinclair lease matter had been called to the attention of the department of justice last March and that only three days ago did Attorney General Sargent hand down his decision invalidating it.

"I do not know how the American people will feel about it," he said, "but I ame forced t othe conclusion that there was an attempt to suppress this decision until after election, and I am satisfied that it would never be given out in the heat of a political campaign if it was not forced into the open by the insistence of Senator Walsh, and newspaper activity."

Borah was characterized by Smith as "the chief spokesman of the Republican party." The governor said Borah had been campaigning about the Republican farm relief policy whereas he voted against the only bill suggested to bring that relief, and at the same time offered no solution of his own."

Borah Quoted

Then he quoted Borah as saying during the war that Hoover had permitted individuals "to fix their own prices whereby they gained from 25 to 40 per cent profit. He quoted also another paragraph from Borah: "No man who has such perverted views of decency ought to be trusted with unlimited power to deal with $100,000,000," and indicated Borah referred to Hoover.

"Senator Borah was either right in 1919 or he is right today," Smith said. "Which is it? He cannot have his pie and eat it. If he was wrong in 1919, he was reckless in speech; and that raises, naturally, the question of how much importance ought to be attached to the speeches in this campaign of a

'WOODY' TESTIFIES

12-Year-Old Boy Again Appears In Shook Murder Case

EASTLAND, Texas, Oct. 19. (AP)—Dr. Guy F. Witt, associate professor of mental disorders at Baylor Medical school in Dallas, testified tonight that Tom Davis, being tried for the slaying of Lucian Shook last month near Leeray, was "subnormal" mentally.

The question of "legal insanity"—usually defined as knowledge of the difference between right and wrong and the ability to resist wrong when it presents itself—was not gone into fully by Dr. Witt.

As the result of the second straight night session held introduction of testimony practically was completed and it was anticipated that the case would reach the jury tomorrow. Clyde Thompson, alleged companion of Davis, was convicted of the murder of Lucian Shook Tuesday and given the death penalty.

Davis took the stand in his own behalf at the night session, testifying that the statement signed by him and introduced by the state today was not dictated by him from his own knowledge of the killing of Lucian and Leon Shook but was, rather, what he had been told by Thompson. In part of the statement Davis was quoted as saying "we" in relations the killing of the brothers.

The defense placed its principal witnesses on the stand during the afternoon session. The courtroom was crowded all day.

Defense Scores

The defense scored once in the afternoon session when, after the state had introduced a statement purported to have been made by the defendant soon after his arrest, Deputy Sheriff Lee Reid testified under cross examination that the statement was obtained at a time when Davis was in an excited mental state and in no condition to give a coherent account of the slaying of the Shook brothers, Lucian and Leon.

In the statement Davis asserted that he and his brother, Woodrow Wilson Davis, 12, were within a few feet of Clyde Thompson when Thompson shot the Shook boys to death, whereas the testimony of Woodrow in the trial of Thompson who was given the death penalty Tuesday, set forth that he and his brother were hiding in the brush 50 yards away when the double slaying occurred.

Woodrow On Stand

After the state had rested with introduction of the defendant's statement, Woodrow Wilson Davis took the stand and reiterated his testimony in Thompson's trial earlier in the week, that he and his brother watched the slaying from a distance.

The only other witness to testify at the afternoon session was Sam Davis, father of the youthful defendant.

"Why did you permit your sons to associate with a boy like Thompson?" the state asked Davis. "Didn't you know he was a dangerous companion for your boys?"

"I did not," was the reply. "Thompson joined the church not long ago and I later heard him conduct a prayer meeting so well that I gave Tom and Woodrow permission to go around with him."

Thompson's attorney yesterday filed motion for a new trial.

Tally Claims Self Defense When He Tells of Shooting Frank Hall

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 19 (AP)—Self-defense will be the plea on which Joe Tally, Karnes county ranchman, will seek acquittal for the slaying of Frank Hall at Karnes City on June 8, 1925, it was revealed when Tally took the witness stand today in his trial on an indictment charging murder.

Tally testified that Hall had drawn a pistol from his inside pocket and started toward him when he fired the fatal shot. The defendant also testified that friends had told him Hall had threatened his life.

Having been given this warning, Tally testified, he drove to the Karnes county courthouse, armed. When he drove up to the courthouse, Tally testified he saw Frank Hall and his son Braxton.

"As I started walking toward the courthouse," Tally testified, "Hall pulled a pistol from his inside pocket. I fired one time with my Winchester shotgun."

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Oct. 19. (AP)—Speaking on the scene of one of the bloodiest battles of the war between the states, President Coolidge reviewed here today the progress which the United States has made since that time, declaring the union which the war of the states preserved was the basis on which present day prosperity was built.

KNOX COUNTY COTTON GOOD

Big Yield Expected in Spite Of Drouth

Special to The Record News.

BENJAMIN, Texas, Oct. 19.—The cotton yield all over Knox county is better than was thought possible earlier in the season on account of the drouth.

Some of it has been raised with practiacly no rain at all. The fields are white, with not much of it picked yet. Many fields of late cotton will need only one picking to finish them, though some of the farmers say they will make twice as much or more than they thought.

Cotton and feed stuff constitute the chief crops all over the county, with not so much of the latter. The best of both are on the river valley farms.

TEXAS NURSERYMAN LOUD IN HIS PRAISES OF ORGATONE

Alford Had Suffered for Many Years From Kidney Trouble and Rheumatism; Takes Orgatone.

"I was troubled for many years with kidney trouble and rheumatism," said Mr. Will M. Alford of 1721 South Travis street, Sherman, Texas, in conversation with an Orgatone representative at his home, "and I got to where I had no appetite at all, and what little I did eat gave me heartburn and caused me to be very restless at night."

"I could find no relief," continued Mr. Alford, or "Will," as his friends commonly call him, "and told my wife that I would have to take a vacation and rest up. I have been with the Texas Nursery company at Sherman for many years as their foreman, and it just seemed that I could not afford to leave my work but something had to be done before I was past going entirely.

"Several of my friends kept telling me to try Orgatone and finally I did start using it, and after the first two or three weeks I commenced to note that my kidneys were not bothering me as much as usual, and that I did not have those rheumatic pains, and my headaches were gone, and then my appetite commenced to return and I could sleep good at night, and then I got to where I could eat any kind of vegetables and really enjoy them, and now I am as happy over the results of using this wonderful preparation as were my friends when they advised me to start using it. They surely did me a good turn when they told me to try Orgatone, and every time I see any of them they are telling me how well I am looking and how Orgatone is helping them also."

Genuine Orgatone is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by the Allison's Drug store, 716 Indiana avenue, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative who is meeting the public daily and charges nothing to explain his theories on health and hygiene.—Adv.

Smith Attacks Work and Borah

man so palpably careless in his public utterances."

Smith condemned what he called "the black, disgraceful record of public corruption disclosed in connection with the oil reserves," and said, "A large part of the money growing out of the oil scandal found its way into the treasury of the Republican national committee." He told in this connection, too, how Borah had sought to raise "a conscience fund to pay Sinclair's contribution. He said Borah had "borrowed a halo and a pair of wings for his conscience fund" before the Republican convention but that instead of his sought-for fund of $260,000 all he got was $1.36.

Attacks Work

Turning to Work and the Salt creek lease Smith said: "The public official responsible for the renewal of this invalid and illegal lease (the Salt creek lease) is no less a personage than the chairman of the Republican national committee and according to the newspapers, his only explanation is: 'I have no comment to make. Those things are past.'"

Smith chose as the text of his address the statement made by Hoover praising the record of the Republican administration during the last seven and a half years. The governor tried to show the farmers that if the record of the administration on farm relief was continued it will mean "the realization of the ruin that threatens agriculture." In this connection he contrasted the stands taken by Borah and former Governor Frank Lowden of Illinois, advocate of the McNary-Haugen bill, sayins Borah was "a politician seeking success at the polls and Lowden a statesman devoted to a principle."

War veterans too may not expect much from continuance of the present administration, Smith contended, citing the conviction of Charles R. Forbes, former director of the veterans' bureau in connection with the scandals in his department.

West's Fitness Questioned

The candidate charged that Republican election inspectors at Tupper lake, New York, had refused veterans in a sanitarium there the right to register as voters.

In connection with the water power record of the administration he questioned the appointment of Roy O. West as secretary of interior "in view of his long history of connection with private power companies."

The record of the Republican party on prohibition "is one of double dealing and of double-crossing, he said. "It has attempted the impossible by trying to carry water on both shoulders. It has tried to be dry among the drys and wet among the wets." Smith reiterated his stand on prohibition, promising to enforce the law as long as it is on the statute books.

He closed with the following summation of his argument:

"The Republican party never sees anything new: they never make any progress; they never attempt to meet new conditions; they never attempt an up to date solution of the problems of government.

"Reactionary to the last degree, steeped in bourbanism—they frankly say that the record of the present administration is a guarantee of wha tmay be expected from them in the next. Tht holds out to the American people no hope of a sane or sensible solution of any of the problems pressing them at this time."

Hempen Noose Collects Debt

from Warden James Holohan, he fell to his cell cot and burst into tears.

Hickman made a brave effort to regain his composure when the death march was started but an ashen face, frightened expression and a faltering step, belied any attempts to carry his bravado to the gallows.

Realizes Plight

It seemed as though he realized for the first time the seriousness of the next few minutes ahead and the penalty he was paying for forgetting his mother's boyhood teachings.

Hickman looked out upon a beautiful world today at the first sight of his last day to live. He arose at 5 a. m. and started playing the phonograph that had been brought to the death chamber for him.

A bright sun was rising across San Francisco bay and as the condemned youth saw his cell become gradually brighter and brighter, he turned to his guards and said:

"Just a few hours now."

His voice then was steady and he seemed eager to talk.

Visited By Priest

Hickman, who had embraced the Catholic faith, since his crime, was visited by Father William A. Fleming in his last hour. The priest gave him the last solace of the faith and remained with Hickman in the cell.

Father Fleming and Warden James Holohan heard Hickman's last words and the death march to the gallows started.

With a guard at either side, holding him under the arm pits, the wild-eyed "Fox" walked weakly to the chamber of death, a distance of 30 feet.

Hickman was ushered inside, preceded by the priest who chanted the litany of the saints.

Inside a roped-off space around the gallows waited the prison physicians and additional guards. On the other side of rope stood the official witnesses, most of them peace officers and newspapermen, numbering more than 200.

Father Fleming marched ahead up the 13 steps to the scaffold platform, reading a last prayer for the murderer's soul.

Hickman, supported by the two guards, followed. The hangman adjusted the mask over the youth's face and adjusted the noose that dangled from a cross beam.

The big knot of the noose fitted under the left jowl at a slit in the mask.

The executioner's signal for the trap to spring was carried out by three men, none of whom knows which one actually executed the death order.

SALT CREEK PROBE LOOMS

Sen. Walsh to Quiz Work About Contract

BUTTE, Mont., Oct. 19 (UP)—Another congressional investigation looms on the Salt Creek horizon, Senator Thomas J. Walsh said today when he reached at Winnett, Montana's first oil field, on arrival from a 150-mile Democratic campaign jaunt into Montana's measureless hinterland.

The new investigation, the Montana senator said, would seek to determine the reason why the Sinclair contract for Salt Creek royalty oil was not invalidated until Tuesday of this week. Walsh, the leader of senatorial action in the various oil investigations, declared that the blame rested largely with Dr. Hubert Work during his period as secretary of the interior.

"On reconvening of congress I shall undertake to have an inquiry prosecuted into how it came about that Secretary of the Interior Work failed to get a reliable legal opinion on validity of the option clause in the Sinclair contract for purchase of Salt Creek royalty oil before renewing it," Walsh said in a statement given the United Press.

"The inquiry would determine how it happened that though the department was informed as early as last April of legal infirmity of the contract, neither he nor his successor did anything about it until after the unauthorized renewal was exploited in the press six months later;

"Why it took the department of justice some months after the matter was submitted to it to solve a legal question that could easily have been determined in three days and that was so promptly determined after publicity was given to its procrastination;

"Why special assistants to the attorney general deputized to inquire into the purchase contract did not discover and report on the frailty in the contract and call it to the attention of the department of the interior; and finally,

"Why the counsel employed by the public lands committee to aid it in its investigation into legality of the Salt Creek leases and royalty oil purchase contract remained ignorant or at least silent as to the fatal defect in the contract so manifest to any lawyer charged with duty of studying it to determine its validity."

ALL U. S. OIL PACTS SCANNED

Secretary West Declines To Discuss Case

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (AP)—Secretary West of the interior department said today that attorneys in his office were examining all oil leases and contracts and that possibly one contract might come under the attorney general's proscription.

This contract was made comparatively recently, probably about the same time as was the Salt creek contract recently cancelled, he said.

"I do not wish to discuss it, however," he added, "because it might develop that the contract is all right and I do not wish to make a statement concerning it until I have all the facts before me."

SEMINOLE VICE PROBE STARTS

Governor Appoints Counsel To Investigate

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 19. (INS)—The long-bruited state investigation into vice conditions in the Seminole oil fields was one step nearer accomplishment today with Gov. Henry S. Johnston's appointment of W. P. Morrison of El Reno, special counsel to conduct a grand jury probe at Wewoka.

Actual date of the grand jury's convening was in doubt, however, for the state supreme court had not acted on proceedings brought to compel disqualification of George W. Crump, the resident district judge, who ordinarily would empanel the probers.

A grand jury which returned a clean bill of health against the local enforcement officers of Seminole county several weeks ago was severely censured by Judge Crump, who also took occasion to rap the state attorney general's office and ordered Assistant Attorney General W. C. Lewis from his courtroom.

An Oklahoma City newspaper campaign against vice in the oil fields reached its climax Thursday afternoon with the arrest of a reporter, Capt. Jack Carey, at Seminole, charged with carrying concealed weapons. He was released after a short stay in the town jail.

Seminole business men sponsored a boycott against Oklahoma City wholesale houses in retaliation for the newspaper stories and bought liberally of advertising space in the Oklahoma City paper which did not join the "expose." Full page ads Thursday afternoon, paid for by the Seminole Chamber of Commerce, contained just these words: "He who is without sin among you, let him cast the first stone."

HOOVER MEETS ZEP OFFICERS

Eckener and Lehman Guests Of Candidate

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19. (AP)—Herbert Hoover, in receiving Dr. Hugo Eckener and others who crossed the Atlantic on the Graf Zeppelin, expressed the hope today that a regular transatlantic air service could be built up, adding that in every shortening of communication there was added solidarity between people.

Dr. Eckener told the Republican presidential candidate that this trip was the first of several trial flights he hopes to make, first, to establish confidence in lighter-than-air transportation, and second, to investigate and determine the routes necessary for the most expeditious transit.

Captain Ernest A. Lehmann, first offer of the Graf Zeppelin, while at the Hoover headquarters, expressed pleasure at meeting the man whom he described as "the savior of Germany" during the post-war period.

"It is a great pleasure to be here," Captain Lehmann said. "Had it not been for Herbert Hoover and his efforts for the relief of Germany thousands and thousands of our people would have starved after the war."

FOOD VALUE IN VEGETABLES

Mrs. Chitwood Tells How To Purchase

Editor's Note: Ida M. Chitwood, author of the article below, is one of the best known culinary experts in the country. She is to open the Record News and Daily Times' cooking school at the Memorial auditorium next Monday, offering to the housewife of Wichita Falls a series of lectures and cooking demonstrations lasting for four days. Special articles by Miss Chitwood dealing with various aspects of the culinary art will appear each day both in The Record News and Daily Times.

By IDA M. CHITWOOD

From the standpoint of nutrition vegetables play an important part in the diet, but remember when you buy vegetables that price is no indication of food value. Cabbage, for instance, a vegetable which can be obtained at almost any season of the year and in almost any locality at a low price, is one of the most valuable foods we have whereas mushrooms, almost the highest priced of vegetables, has very little food value.

The homemaker must lear to cook the cheaper vegetables in novel and appetizing ways. Cabbage, turnips, squash and carrots hold many surprises for the family of the good cook. Some of the cooking school recipes will enable you to see this.

Most vegetables should be cooked as quickly as possible and in very little water so that their nutritious substances will not be boiled away. Boiling vegetables in a large quantity of water is no longer considered the best way. The only exception to this rule are potatoes, dried beans and peas, and the other starchy vegetables, which should be cooked slowly in plenty of water, and whenever any water is left from cooking vegetables, save it and use it for soup.

Vegetables contain very little fat. Potatoes, indeed, are mostly starch and dry eating unless fat in some form is added to them. When served with sauces or mashed and beaten up to a fluff, or scalloped with butter dotted over the top, or in other very nutritious ways, which you will be shown in the Cooking school, the potato takes a new lease on life and grows in popularity.

Buy vegetables in their season. Out of season they lack flavor and are expensive. Don't buy vegetables that are old or wilted, moldy or over-ripe. Buy green vegetables in small quantities as you need them. Buy winter vegetables in larger amounts if you have space to store them.

Soak green vegetables in cold water to make them fresh and crisp. Soak potatoes in cold water to make them mealy when cooked. Wash all vegetables in cold water before cooking.

Cook vegetables in boiling salted water quickly, using as little water as possible. Never allow potatoes to stand in water after they are cooked. Drain immediately and keep hot over water.

Include vegetables in your diet every day. They are necessary to good health. Save the small amounts of left-over vegetables for salads, soups, fritters, and croquettes.

Frank P. Timberlake Jr., has just returned from New York where he has spent the last two weeks seeing things with his mother. Not many youths of this locality can boast of this at so early an age, would be the opinion of this department. However, Frank is remaining fairly complacent about it and won't say a great deal about the eastern trip.

Frank is dark and quite handsome as the picture above will prove. In addition to this, he is an all-around good sport. He is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Timberlake of 2107 Miramar.

Four Cures for Jealousy of Wife Set Forth by Noted Woman Writer

Four Ways in Which a Wife May Cure Herself of Jealousy—The Curse of the Back-Door Neighbor. How Long Shall a Widow Remain a Widow?

Dear Miss Dix—I am coming to you with a problem that I have worn myself out with fighting. My husband is utterly devoted to me. He loves me with all his heart. He gives me no cause whatever for jealousy, yet I am insanely jealous of him. After he has had just a casual conversation with a woman at a party, I have come home and locked myself in the bathroom and fought with myself to keep from pouring out my wrath upon him until I was mentally and physically exhausted, and the next day was ill from the nervous strain I had been through. I know all of this is wrong. I know it is foolish, but I can't conquer it.

What causes this jealousy? Is it selfishness? If I had a child, would it lay this demon that possesses me? Can you help me?

C. H. T.

Answer: You have to save yourself, Mrs. C. H. T. All I can do is to stand on the sidelines and cheer you on in the brave fight you are making against your particular personal devil. And I can say for your comfort that you will be victorious in the end if you will have the courage to carry on.

You have won the first skirmish against the enemy by controlling your tongue and shutting your teeth on all the bitter and cruel things that jealous women pour out in their fury. And, believe me, every time you do that you take another trench, for we develop the strength of our souls just as we develop the muscles in our bodies by exercising them. Every time you control yourself you make it a little easier to do so.

Also, by refraining from making scenes and hurling unjust accusations against your husband, you keep his respect and love. There is no way in which a wife can more quickly alienate her husband's affection than by making him afraid to speak to another woman. And there is no way in which she can so surely implant the idea in his mind that he is a lady-killer than by always suspecting that he is having surreptitious love affairs with every flapper he sees. He naturally reasons that if he is going to have the name he might as well have the game.

I think a baby would do a lot to help you cure your jealousy, because it would give you something else to love and something to think about besides your husband. A mother with a restless youngster doesn't have much time to brood over hypothetical, sentimental situations. She is too busy doing the million and one things to keep a youngster healthy and happy and entertained.

Besides which you will know that you have tied your husband to you with the strongest of all possible cords. For when a man already loves a woman and she gives him a child, she is set apart in his mind and heart from all other women in the world. Those little hands are a talisman that keep him safe from the charmers, charm they ever so wisely.

But the real sovereign cure for jealousy is common sense. Apply that where needed, and as often as the occasion calls for it. When you begin to get green-eyed because your husband looks at another woman, say to yourself, "I know that he loves me, and prefers me to any other woman in the world, because he selected me for his wife." Keep that thought continually in your mind. Resist the inferiority complex. Cultivate the belief that you are just as good-looking, just as intelligent and entertaining, just as charming as other women.

And, finally, refuse to insult your husband by believing that he is such a poor weakling that he can be taken in by any designing woman, or that he is so disloyal to you that he cannot be trusted to have even a casual acquaintance with a woman without betraying you.

PREVENTS GOITER
AND POURS FREELY IN DAMP WEATHER

WHEN IT RAINS -IT POURS.
What more can you ask of a table salt than that it protect your children from simple goiter and pour as freely in damp weather as in dry? Morton's Iodized Salt does both and does them well.
When you consider that goiter threatens 2 out of every 3 children, the importance of using an iodized salt is obvious. But be sure to choose a reliable brand, for iodized salt can do more harm than good if not properly mixed.
Made by one of America's oldest and most reliable salt makers, Morton's Iodized Salt contains just enough tasteless iodine to prevent goiter . . . but not enough to disturb the most delicate system. Get it from your grocer at once and use it on the table and in cooking.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Perhaps the unique group of radio entertainers in New York is the Hotel Commodore's collection of canary songsters. Several times a week, over one of the big stations, the 20 eager vocalists pour their little hearts straight into the harmonies that violins and cellos are building in the main orchestra.

The clear, flute-like voices of the canary orchestra have deceived many persons who could hardly be persuaded that real birds were singing. The Commodore has been host to the radio songsters for several years and treats them as distinguished guests. There isn't much one can feed even a distinguished canary, but you may be sure they get the choicest of seeds and lettuce leaves.

Probably they are the only canaries in the world who put up at an expensive hotel and who have a suite of rooms exclusively for themselves. Besides they have a personal valet who does nothing but look after them and seek to maintain their delicate health. They are watched over with the care and tenderness that are often lavished upon children. The valet knows each individual among the singers and each to him has a distinct individuality.

They are temperamental artists, these radio canaries, as temperamental as prima donnas of the opera or as motion picture stars. They cannot stand late hours, of course, and their valet tucks them into their little beds by 9 o'clock every night. That is to say he draws a little dark curtain over their gilded cages. At 10 o'clock in the morning they take their bath in the purest of water, a proceeding which they enjoy hugely—if a canary can be said to enjoy anything hugely. On special days their private manicurist arrives with her files and clippers to pare their little toenails and forfend danger of blood poisoning or other affliction. At 11 o'clock in the morning their day's work begins and their work is to sing with all their heart and soul and make human beings feel that the world is not such a bad place after all.

When the orchestra starts its morning and evening concerts the cages are moved near to the music and it is then that the golden troubadours really let themselves go, each trying to outdo his fellow; each trying to outsing the violins and outcarol the cellos. Different birds in the group respond to different instruments. There is Cheepee, for example. Cheepee is a plump, roly-poly rascal of a brilliant yellow hue. He prefers the violin. Violin stirs all there is of melody in Cheepee. He is usually silent until the violin strikes into the orchestral whole and then he is heard from.

Modern jazz seems to delight these canaries, although a few of them respond better to old-fashioned music. There is one quiet, dull-coated bird with a penchant for Tschaikowsky. Whenever Tschaikowsky is played he tunes up enthusiastically, and is invariably silent, rather morose, during the jazz numbers.

The Commodore's canaries are recruited from the bird shops of New York. They are just ordinary canaries. There is nothing special or wonderful about their breed. They are German of origin, "roller" and "chipper" canaries, with good natural bodies and a tendency toward sturdy health. Good food, good care and cleanliness especially do the rest. They eat the usual canary seed and "song restorer" and eat whenever they please and as much as they please. Nobody worries about their figures or as to how overeating might affect their tones. They are noted, too, for their longevity, despite the fact that they live pretty much in public and must be subject to something like a nervous strain.

Rum Runners Are Angry

A WRITER in a Detroit newspaper remarks that rum runners on Lake Erie are highly indignant at the activities of border smugglers who make a business of bringing alien immigrants illegally into the United States. The smuggling of aliens, it seems, is interfering seriously with the trade of smuggling booze.

Federal agents, he says, eager to stop the influx of aliens, frequently stop peaceable vessels loaded to the guards with Canadian liquor. And, having stopped them, there is nothing for the federal men to do but confiscate their unexpected prize.

Can you blame the rum runners for being sore?

A Drunken Driver Gets Four Years

A KANSAS CITY man has been sentenced to four years in the penitentiary for driving a motor car while intoxicated.

His escapade didn't kill anyone, although he knocked over a boy and girl, injuring them rather badly, and crashed into another automobile. The sentence given him is undoubtedly the stiffest ever given for the offense charged.

Even so, it is hard to see where it is unduly severe. We must recognize that no one has any business driving an automobile unless he is in complete control of all his faculties. A drunken man in a car is a potential killer. It is time that every driver understood that he can commit no crime much greater than taking the wheel while under the influence of liquor.

A few more penitentiary sentences for this offense might go far toward stamping it out.

A New Hunting Grounds

THE AMERICAN sportsman who will travel long distances in the fall to get a shot at a moose or a deer is beginning to give earnest consideration to Alaska as a hunting ground, according to a report from the interior department.

Hunters are going to Alaska in ever-increasing numbers, the report says, and the town of Anchorage is becoming a great headquarters for hunting parties, with guides, outfitting stores and so on in profusion. The back country offers an abundance of caribou, moose, mountain sheep and black and brown bear.

Alaska, the department remarks, is second only to Africa as a place for the shooting of big game—and American sportsmen are discovering the fact.

Poison Booze and Dry Raids

EIGHTEEN men were killed in the lower East Side of New York City a few days ago by poisoned liquor. Whisky containing wood alcohol is believed responsible.

The police set out at once to rectify the situation. Forty detectives went to work, and in a short while had raided a dozen speakeasies.

That's interesting. It looks as if the police knew all the time where speakeasies were operating, but didn't bother to molest them until after the poison scare. And then, be it noted, they were not primarily trying to close up speakeasies, but to put out of business the unknown purveyor of wood alcohol!

Rather a striking comment on the state of law observance in the year 1928, isn't it?

Why Reform Waves Fail

A PHILADELPHIA police captain, a patrolman and a detective have been indicted on charges of bribery and corruption. An additional score of patrolmen have been suspended, and one man already has pleaded guilty.

Thus the big investigation by District Attorney Monaghan bears its first tangible fruit.

It would be very nice to assume that this investigation will continue until every guilty man has been brought to book; to assume that Philadelphia, after it is over, will be given complete decency and probity in its law enforcement activities. But surely one may be pardoned for being a trifle cynical about it.

No American city can go very long without being swept by a reform wave. The noisome aroma of our metropolitan politics is bound to become too strong to be ignored every so often; so all of us are familiar with the sight of investigations, revelations, indictments and so on.

But the only trouble is that it is almost invariably the small fry that get caught. The higher-ups go free; they are seldom even mentioned. And after the smoke has cleared away they can usually be found doing business at the old stand in the old way—a little quieter, perhaps, but essentially unchanged.

And—worse yet—the system that makes all this graft and corruption possible is pretty much the same now as it was in the days of Tweed. Reform waves come and go, but the system under which an unscrupulous political machine can fasten itself on a large city and have its own way is never touched.

The fault, after all, lies in ourselves. Political corruption, on a greater or smaller scale, seems to be almost inevitable under present conditions. When half of the electorate will not take the trouble to go to the polls at all when the nominating of candidates is left strictly in the hands of those who have an ax to grind; when the average citizen takes it for granted that his city government will be woefully lax and inefficient in places; when all of these things are true, the wonder is not that there is corruption, but that there is not more of it.

District Attorney Monaghan, of course, is to be commended for his work in Philadelphia. It is through repeated exposures such as his that we can be aroused sufficiently to give our selves consistently good government. But his work will be wasted if we conclude that everything will run sweetly once a few rascals have been jailed. The thing lies deeper than that.

"THAT'S MY STORY"

The slanders on Governor Smith have been carefully disproved, one by one—but the Catholic-haters continue to tell them with the persistence of the drunken husband who said, "Thash my story and I'm goin' stick to it."

"RACKETS" CLASSIFIED

It seems that "racket" now connotes a good deal more than disagreeable noise. Among the various meanings given to "racketing" are night carousing, bootlegging, hijacking, and getting easy money in such ways as selling $5.00 tickets to banquets to distinguished persons whereat "the food served is actually worth about 65 cents."

The Room Under the Stairs

The Baffling Story of a Man Who Read of His Own Murder

By HERMAN LANDON

Copyright by G. Howard Watt — Serialized by Ledger Syndicate

Thomas Dean, successful young novelist, has hidden from the world his old name Paul Forrester, because the latter was connected with a self-defense killing out West and Dean still carries the scar of that encounter. But a series of circumstances swirls him into a vortex of mysteries. First he reads a deathbed confession of the murder of Paul Forrester five years before, made by

Martin Lamont, Western business man, on a visit to New York, and witnessed by Dennis Littleby, famous lawyer, and Dr. John Ballinger, well known doctor. Then a mysterious lady,

Viola Gray, visits him and

Lieutenant Shane finds the remains of the murdered man in "The Room Under the Stairs," of Dean's deserted family home. A watch marked "P. F." completes the identification, although Dean finds pieces of another watch crystal at the scene of the murder. Later an attempt is made on his life by

Fraddie Mills, a hired assassin, and Dean's subsequent appearance alive produces a startling effect on both Miss Gray and Dr. Ballinger. Finally, after Dean has heard a woman's screams through the dying man's telephone, Lamont is murdered, and Dean trails the lawyer to a hidden room in the latter's house. There he finds

Shirley Lamont, the dead man's daughter, held as prisoner, and is discovered by Littleby who warns them both and mysteriously vanishes.

Shirley Lamont, the dead man's daughter, held as prisoner, and is discovered by Littleby, who warns them both and mysteriously vanishes. Trapped together they can find no way out of the secret room.

Behind the Door

It was a few minutes after 11 when the door of the old Forrester house on Hudson street turned on its squeaking hinges, admitting Lieutenant Shane and a gust of wind and rain into the pitch-black interior.

It threatened to be a profitless as well as a most disagreeable night for Lieutenant Shane. He had just returned from Kew Gardens, where he had gathered the outstanding facts of Lamont's death from the local police authorities. What he had learned was not very illuminating, but it had provided much food for thought, and Shane had pondered the information given him so diligently that after arriving at the station he had walked through the downpour all the way to Hudson street, receiving a thorough drenching. When in deep thought, he usually forgot such conveniences as street cars and taxicabs, not to mention umbrellas. Furthermore, he seldom cared whither his steps led him. That in this particular instance they should have led him to the Forrester house might have been either an accident of else some subconscious urge stampeding his mental processes.

Closing the door behind him, he shrugged a cascade of raindrops from his gray sack suit, drew an electric flashlight from his pocket and hung his limp and dripping hat on the newel post in the hall. What he had hoped to accomplish was not clear in his mind, but it was his habit, when in doubt, to take things in their chronological order. The death of Lamont, although it constituted a sensational development, was antedated by five and a half years by the tragedy in the Hudson street house, and there were several circumstances pertaining to the latter event that Shane was anxious to clean up. He had told Dean that Lamont's confession left nothing unexplained, but since his interview with the novelist a number of vague doubts had arisen in his mind, centering largely round the two fragments of glass Dean had shown him.

Shane was half annoyed with the novelist for upsetting, by random hints, and vague innuendo, what would otherwise have been an altogether simple case. In fact, in the last few days Dean had been beyond comprehension. Only that morning Shane had listened patiently, keeping his doubts largely to himself, while the novelist told an astounding tale of having been attacked by a hired assassin whom he had subsequently locked up in his garage. Only a few hours later the lieutenant had paid a flying visit to Top O' The Hill finding the garage empty. This, in the natural order of things, should have confirmed his suspicion that the novelist had been fabricating a story out of whole cloth. Yet Shane was loath to jump at conclusions. He and Dean had been friends a long time. And it was just possible that the thug had managed to escape. Guided by the beam from his flashlight, he entered the sitting room, dreary and musty smelling and full of ancient scents. There was a dead stillness in the room, except when the old timbers shook before a blast of wind. The furniture looked uncomfortable enough to be genuine antique. On the mantel shelf were a row of candles, red and green, with little ridges of drip along the surface. Possibly Dean had lighted them the night he found the two pieces of glass. The lieutenant scanned the cracks in the floor as if expecting to find additional fragments. His forehead wrinkled in petulant bewilderment. Dean and his pesky pieces of glass could go hang. What did they amount to, anyway? Why, nothing at all! Yet the moment Dean told about his find Shane had felt one of his familiar hunches impinging upon his well-ordered mind. It was ridiculous, and yet—

He raised his flashlight a little higher, until the little white gleam caught one of the candles on the mantle. It was a green one, and he would scarcely have singled it out for special attention except that he noticed it had burned a little lower than the others, being fully an inch shorter than its companions. He regarded it with an intent, narrowing eye. No reason, as far as he could see, why that candle should have burned down faster than the others. Instinctive his mind fastened on the trivial circumstance. He touched the formation of drip.

It was warm and pliant, suggesting that the candle had been burning within the last hour.

Shane looked about him in the light of his electric flash. Nowhere could he see the slightest sign of a recent intrusion, yet the little green candle gave ample evidence that there had been a trespasser in the room not long ago. His mind instantly turned to Dean registering still another item of questionable conduct on the novelist's part.

After another long glance at the candle, he slowly walked away from the room, reflecting that Dean, if indeed he had visited the old house, had probably departed by this time. Something made him turn toward the hall and the room under the stairs. He proceeded quietly, making no unnecessary sounds, one half of his mind still occupied with the conclusion he had drawn from the green candle. Everywhere were creeping, gnawing noises, as if the shadows were grumbling at being disturbed by the flashlight. Even a man of Shane's unimaginative mold of mind felt a gently tingling sensation as he approached the little room whose ghastly contents had been so recently removed.

At the door he paused and stood listening. Into his face came an alert, curious look. He smiled rather grimly, flung the door open, then stood blinking in amaze at the sight he saw.

The trespasser was not Dean, but a woman—a flapperish young thing, as Shane would have described her. His quick eye registered a pair of great, startled amber eyes, a flashing mass of flaxen curls beneath a jaunty little toque, uptilted nose and gaping lips, a highly utilitarian raincoat, with a glimpse of knickerbockers underneath, all revealed in the light of a candle, this time a red one, socketed in an empty ink bottle.

"Oh, how you startled me!" she gasped.

"Sorry," muttered Shane dryly, drawing closer for a better inspection. "Looking for something?"

She did not answer, and he glanced over her slight shoulders at the confusion of odds and ends in the room, as if trying to find the answer to his question. There was nothing that gave the slightest clue to her presence, nothing but the same dusty and hopeless accumulation of scraps that Shane had already gone carefully over.

"Suppose you give an account of yourself," he suggested with official brusqueness.

The woman—she seemed more mature and less flapperish on closer inspection, despite her shy airs and hoydenish attire—was evidently searching her mind for a convenient subterfuge.

"You are an officer, I suppose?" she ventured.

"Lieutenant Shane is my name."

"Oh yes," brightening. "I've seen your name in the papers. You have been investigating the Lamont case. I know you are tremendously clever. It must be great to be a famous detective. There's nothing I'd rather be—except, possibly, a writer. Do you know Thomas Dean? I just adore him!"

It was an odd time and place for a discussion of literary values, but Shane could not repress a smile. Her naivete, even if partly assumed, as he strongly suspected, had about it a sort of infectious drollery. Besides, he had already reconciled himself to the prospect of a profitless night.

"Yes, I know Dean," he declared. "Great imagination he has. Never had the pleasure of meeting you before, though."

"I am Viola Gray," she announced simply, as if that explained everything.

Shane searched his memory, but there was no Viola Gray registered there. His broad, freckled face was an arena of warring expressions. Suddenly he asked:

"Did Dean send you here?"

"Mercy, no!"

"The doors were locked."

She smiled tantalizingly.

"Hairpin, I suppose?" he said dryly. "I've been told a woman can open almost anything with a hairpin."

She tossed her head, shaking her flaxen curls by way of emphasizing their independence of such implements.

"I suppose you smashed a window then?"

"I found one that didn't need smashing. All I had to do was to take out a piece of broken glass, stick my hand through the opening, and loosen the fasteners. Simple!"

Shane nodded. She seemed full of unsuspected capabilities. It would be a shame to disturb her blithe innocence by reminding her that there were laws against housebreaking.

"What a delightfully spooky old place!" she exclaimed, with an enraptured glance about the walls, thus forestalling further questions.

"That's what Dean thought when I showed it to him. Queer place for a lady to be prowling around in, this time of night. What were you looking for?"

"Nothing in particular. You can never tell what you may expect to find in a room like this. Scraps of paper, for instance."

"Paper? Is that what you have been looking for?"

"Oh, no! I've just kept my eyes open for anything that might prove interesting. Talking about old scraps of paper, I found one this morning that—" She came to a mysterious pause. "By the way, do tell me what you think of Lamont's confession."

"I think it speaks for itself," said Shane, deciding to humor her whims a little longer.

"You actually believe Lamont killed a man named Paul Forrester in this house five and a half years ago?"

"Not a doubt of it."

"It was on the night of the 16th of November, wasn't it?"

Shane nodded. Through careful perusal of the confession, the date was well fixed in his mind.

"I can imagine what kind of night it was," she confided.

"Raw, blustery, with lots and lots of clouds, and maybe a little snow on the ground. Doesn't November seem the ideal month for murders, just as June is the ideal month for brides?"

The inverted comparison made him smile.

"Are you sure it was the 16th of November?" she asked abruptly, with a little thrill in her voice that belied the apparent casualness of the question.

"Lamont didn't seem to be in any doubt about the date. He remembered it particularly because it was the day after his birthday. But I don't believe he would have forgotten it, anyhow."

"No, I suppose not. If I ever committed a murder, I should look back upon the day when it happened with the awfulest shudders." She demonstrated the assertion with a shiver. "Are you familiar with Lamont's handwriting?"

"I couldn't mistake it," said Shane with conviction.

"Then just look at this." She picked up her bag, extracted from it a folded piece of paper and handed it to him.

A Letter

"Lamont's handwriting," muttered Shane as he glanced at the contents. The paper was of cheap quality and slightly faded from age. He began to read:

Dear Jimmie—Your letter received. Am starting tomorrow for Butte to take up the matter with the Amalgamated people. If they won't listen to arguments, we will find a way to convince them that—

"You needn't read any further," interrupted Miss Gray. "The letter itself isn't of any consequence. The only things that matter are the handwriting and the date. Look at the date."

Shane's narrowing gaze moved to the top of the sheet. "Leadville, Colo., Nov. 15, 1917," he muttered, then glanced curiously at the girl.

She was again fumbling in her bag. "Here's the envelope," handing it to him, her hand trembling a little. "You will find that the postmark agrees with the date of the letter."

Shane examined it with a gathering scowl of perplexity on his forehead. "Where did you find this letter?" he demanded, almost gruffly. "Here?"

"No, I found it—somewhere else. It doesn't matter, does it? What I don't see is how Lamont could be in Leadville on the 15th of November and commit a murder in New York the next day. Do you?"

"It's a bit thick," Shane admitted, again scanning the letter. "And he says he was starting the next day for Butte. There must be a mistake somewhere."

"I am sure there is."

Shane's eyes left the letter and slanted downward to a point on the floor. "There's no mistake about what we found there," he said significantly. "Dean turned sick from just one look at it. And the fire tongs and the monogrammed watch? I don't see how— Who's this Jimmie the letter is written to?"

"Does that matter?"

"It might. If he is still living—"

"He isn't," interrupted the girl tensely.

"Oh," giving her a sardonic glance. "Been going through a dead man's papers, eh? Well, you certainly turned up something interesting. It's a great little mix-up—what with scars and pieces of glass and other things. Too bad that everybody who could have explained matters to us is dead. If Lamont had only lived a few hours longer—"

"Lamont?" she echoed in a dazed, horrified tone. "Lamont dead?"

"Murdered about three hours ago. The morning papers will tell you all about it."

"Murdered?" she gasped, then stood rigid, a great pallor dimming the brightness of her piquant little face. Her eyes, full of dread, appeared to be fixed on some distant point, far removed from the confines of the room. For the moment she seemed to have forgotten Shane's presence. "If Lamont is dead," she said tonelessly, "then Littleby murdered him. I didn't think he would—"

"Who said anything about Littleby?" interrupted the lieutenant impatiently. "Littleby seems to have a perfect alibi. He and Dr. Ballinger were talking together when the shot was fired."

"Dr. Ballinger?" She came out of her abstraction with a start. "Are you sure of that?"

"Well, both of them told the officers out there that they were talking on the balcony when the shot rang out. Unless they are in cahoots and faked up an alibi—"

"No," she declared with conviction. "Dr. Ballinger wouldn't do such a thing. He's an honorable man."

"That's the way I sized him up, and his word is good enough for me when he says that he and Littleby were talking on the balcony when the shot was heard. Who killed Lamont is a poser, unless," and Lieutenant Shane smiled a grim, baffled smile, "my friend Dean had a hand in it. The Kew Garden authorities are looking for him."

"For Mr. Dean?" she exclaimed incredulously. "Was he there?"

"He turned up just after the murder was discovered. Admitted he had been in the house for two hours, but couldn't give a very satisfactory account of what he had been doing. Then he disappeared, just before the police arrived. Can you beat that?"

The girl stared at him, her face alive with indefinable fears. Suddenly she pulled herself together, adjusted her hat and started for the door.

"Quick!" she said. "We must go to Kew Gardens at once—before there's another murder."

Shane started at her for a moment, shrugged his broad shoulders, then followed.

"Well, I'm damned," he muttered.

TO A GROWING BROTHER

Never give your precious vow
To a girl who lies;
Shun the women who know how
To have tearful eyes.

Do not hold a heart of love
For a nit-wit lass;
Keep your vision far above
Pretty ones you pass.

Never cry, and don't deplore
Love that's lost to you;
If you heed these words, it's more
Than your bud could do!

DEMO WOMEN MAKING TOUR

Burkburnett, Iowa Park and Electra Visited

had interrupted the remarks of Mr. Hatchitt from an opposite corner of the street.

"The man who is afraid to talk, or who is afraid to hear another man talk, is my idea of no man," he declared.

"Do ypu stand on that corner over there because your masters won't let you come over here? The Republican party has caused your mothers and fathers more sorrow than any other organization in the world. Ask the men who marched to the polls through lines of negro soldiers.

"You shout for Herbert Hoover. He's the man who brought his negro employes out of the basement and placed them in the same quarters with white employes, with negro men dictating to white stenographers. That may be what some of you want. But it's not what I want, and it's not what I'll have as long as I have breath to fight against it."

Political Speaking Monday

Announcement of the political rally here Monday night, when Guinn Williams, United States representative of this district, and Mrs. W. D. Moore of Denton will be the principal speakers, were made along the route by Edgar Scurry, Democratic county chairman. Principal speakers in the party Friday included Mr. Scurry, E. R. Surles, Tarlton Morrow, H. J. Bruce and J. B. Hatchitt. Fred Spurlock, attorney of Electra, introduced the speakers there, and thanked members of the Woman's Democratic league for their visit.

According to leaders of the league, the tour of Wichita county was designed chiefly to show that Democratic women are loyal to their party, and to advertise the political rally here Monday night. Mrs. Moore, noted woman club leader of Texas, is being brought here by the league of women as their first speaker in the campaign for the Democratic nominees. Additional trips over the county are also planned to complete organization of women, it was said.

Led by Ballard's band, the Democratic delegation left Wichita Falls shortly after noon, with 15 automobiles in the group. A truck was used to transport the band. About 35 women and 15 men made the trip.

The first stop was made in Burkburnett, with the band doing service in rallying the crowd to the tune of "The Sidewalks of New York." Mr. Scurry introduced E. R. Surles, the first speaker.

Majority Rule

"I am here to preach a doctrine of majority rule," declared Mr. Surles in opening his address.

"The Democratic party has selected as its nominee a man who has an outstanding record as the governor of the greatest, wealthiest and best-governer state in the nation. He was named by an overwhelming majority, and I say that we should abide by the rule of the majority.

"Majority rule has been written into the constitution of this nation and this state, and it is the very foundation of our government. Without majority rule, we have anarchy or a dictatorship. It is the basic factor in our republican form of government, and certainly if our government can trust its life and its existence to majority rule, the Democratic party should do likewise."

The speaker listed as the chief objections to the nominee by anti-Smith Democrats, the fact that the New York governor "is a Catholic and a member of Tammany hall." Replying to these claims, Mr. Surles asked his audience to consider the records of national officials in the Republican party.

"Remember that the record of Tammany hall to which Republicans refer is ancient history, while we can turn to acts of perfidy and corruption by high government officials in the last few years that make Boss Tweed look like a piker."

Against the record of Tweed, and "all of Tammany hall," the speaker urged that the voter compare the records of former Senator Albert Fall, Will Hays, Harry Miller, former Secretary of Navy Edwin Denby, Harry Daugherty and others.

Senator Borah's "conscience fund," in which he asked public subscriptions to repay $185,000 Harry Sinclair had secretly contributed to the Republican party, reaped "$6,000, just about the size of the Republican conscience," he declared.

Practice Religion

Religious freedom is written into the constitution, he pointed out, with the specification that at no time shall a man's religion be a test of his fitness for office.

"I am a son of a Baptist preacher, and myself a Methodist. I question no man's right to worship as he pleases, nor have I criticism for his religion as long as he practices it."

H. J. Bruce, who followed Mr. Surles, looked on the humorous side of the campaign, and his own activities.

"I am six feet in height, weight 135 pounds and measure 19 inches in the waist," the speaker declared and turning out his empty pockets, added, "I am a perfect living example of Republican prosperity."

"I have been asked to speak on Hoover. I never had such a big looking subject with so little in it. There are Democrats, plutocrats and Hoovercrats. We all know how to define the first two, but I have searched all the books and records, and no where can I find anything resembling a Hoovercrat. The nearest approach is a pollywog."

G. O. P. Story in Ohio.

Tarlton Morrow, speaking at Electra, the second stop, urged his audience to remain loyal to the Democratic party, which is far more important to the South than the nominee, he declared. He traced the history of the Republican party, declaring that it "came into power as a result of the Civil war, and is built upon the ashes of the South."

Mr. Morrow read a clipping issued by the Republican organization of Ohio, which declared that Governor Smith, if elected, could do nothing to change or amend the prohibition laws.

"They use this argument—that Smith can't change the prohibition laws—in Ohio to appeal to wet Republicans. Then they come to Texas and tell you that he can and will change the prohibition laws, and the only hope for prohibition is to vote for Hoover."

With only 47 per cent of the entire membership of congress known as "wet," and with the senate holding the power to reject nominations, there is no danger that there will be either a repeal of the law or any danger of refusal to enforce it, the speaker declared.

Pleading for religious tolerance, he pointed out that Lord Baltimore of Maryland, a Catholic, was the first to establish religious freedom in the colonies, while Roger Williams, a Baptist was driven from Massachusetts and established his own colony in order to have freedom of worship.

"The highest right of man is his political right," he declared "and when you seek to destroy it by religious intolerance you take from him his most precious possession."

Mr. Surles followed Mr. Morrow, with an address along the lines of the one delivered in Burkburnett. Touching on the prohibition issue, he pointed out that opponents admitted that "Governor Smith is personally honest."

"I'll ask you what other kind of honesty is there?" he shouted.

"You admit he's personally honest. You know he'll keep his word, and Al Smith has pledged his word that as long as the prohibition statute is on the books, he will enforce it to the utmost of his ability."

J. B. Hatchitt, speaking in Iowa Park, denounced the Ku Klux Klan in scathing terms. He declared the one hope of the Republican party of victory in the presidential election "is hypocrisy and the intolerance of the South." The Republican party is in open alliance with the klan wherever possible, he charged, and is spending "thousands of dollars in Texas and in the South to get votes."

He pointed out that the South, an agricultural country has no hope of assistance from the Republican party "controlled for privilege and pillage."

From Iowa Park, the delegation returned to Wichita Falls and disbanded at Democratic headquarters in the Hamilton building.

Smith Is 'Overnight Convert' to Tariff Principle, Borah Declares

Republican Campaign Ace Delivers Broadside in Louisville, Where Smith Recently Spoke

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 19. (AP)—In an attack on Governor Smith's stand on the tariff, Senator William E. Borah of Idaho here tonight declared that the Democratic presidential nominee had been "converted overnight" to the policy "protection of American industries by the tariff."

Replying to the governor's exposition of his tariff views made here in a campaign address six days ago, the Idaho senator campaigning for Herbert Hoover, in a speech prepared for delivery at the Jefferson county armory, said the Democratic candidate four years ago had characterized the protective tariff as "a holdup of the American people" and now in his election race was supporting the policy.

Senator Joe T. Robinson, Democratic vice presidential candidate, also was said by Borah to have opposed the protective tariff policy and "seems still to entertain views as pronounced against the protective system as those formerly expressed by the governor, (Smith)."

CANYON SCHOOL OPENS HALL

State Colleges Send Delegates to Dedication

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Texas, Oct. 19.—Every state senior college of Texas was represented in Canyon today for the opening program of the dedication of the new education building of the West Texas State Teachers college, which has just been completed at a cost of $300,000. The two-day celebration will reach its climax tomorrow at 10 o'clock when Dean J. W. Withers of the University of New York will deliver the dedicatory address and Dr. W. P. Morgan, president of the American Association of Teachers' colleges, will be heard.

R. B. Cousins, first president of the Canyon college and now president at Kingsville, opened the program this morning with an address in which he declared the West Texas State Teachers college was the parent of the training school method of preparing teachers for the public schools of Texas. He reviewed the history of the school from its opening in 1910 and paid tribute to the members of its first faculty, four of whom are still members of the faculty at Canyon. They are Miss Mary E. Hudspeth of the Spanish department, Miss Jennie C. Ritchie, L. G. Allen and J. A. Hill, now president of the college.

W. S. Younger, superintendent of Tulia schools and W. A. McIntosh of Amarillo, presided at the meeting. R. L. Marques, president of Denton Teachers college; H. W. Morelock of Alpine, W. L. Hughes, president of the State Teachers association, and L. H. Hubbard of C. I. A. made addresses on educational topics. Homer D. Wade, secretary of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and A. M. Bouriand, president, represented that body at the celebration.

L. H. Hubbard made a significant speech today in which he stressed the opportunity for private benefactions to the institutions of higher learning in Texas. He mentioned the great gift of the State university and declared it the duty of every college to acquaint the wealthy of its territory with the possibility of service through gifts to public institutions. H. Y. Benedict, president of the State university and Bruce R. Payne, president of Peabody college, Nashville, appeared on the program tonight.

Great numbers of ex-students and friends from all parts of Texas, Eastern New Mexico and Oklahoma are in Canyon for the event.

'Tiger' Praises Colonel House

PARIS, Oct. 19. (UP)—Happy to be "far away from politics now," Georges Clemenceau, war-time premier of France, today recalled Col. E. M. House as one of the "finest and most honest statesmen I ever met."

The "Tiger of France" spoke affectionately of Colonel House when he was shown excerpts from the latter's book of peace conference memoirs and papers in which Clemenceau was described as holding love of his country above everything.

"Colonel House is right," the aged statesman said when shown the papers. "He and I understood each other. He trusted me and I trusted him. He always rallied to my views when he felt I was right. He did many things to help France.

"I am now far away from politics," he continued. "I am happy for it is much more agreeable outside than inside politics. It is a disagreeable master and anyone engaged in politics is never free.

"But I always remember a few such happy incidents in my political career as my relations with Colonel House, who was one of the finest, most cordial, and most honest statesmen I ever met."

Health And Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper

Dried Beef

Dried beef is one of the most delicious and tasty meats, but is not quite as digestible as the fresh beef because the smoking and salting have had a toughening effect upon its protein. The usual method of preparing beef for drying is to soak it for about ten days in a mixture of salt, sugar or molasses and, usually, a small amount of saltpeter. The meat is then taken out and smoked like ham, cut into thin slices, and dried. The thick flank or round steak is the part generally used.

Even though not quite as digestible as when fresh, dried beef is quite wholesome if soaked in water to remove the surplus salt, and has the added advantages of keeping for a long time in almost any climate and being easily transported because of its light weight.

When properly prepared dried beef shows a fine, firm, red texture and has the agreeable tasty flavor which accompanies all smoked meats.

The Indians found that by mixing dried beef, buffalo, moose meat or venison with acid berries, dried currants of raisins, a very concentrated food was produced, which would sustain life almost indefinitely and was for this reason especially suitable for carrying on long expeditions.

In preparing chipped beef, it should be removed from the first water in which it has been soaking, then boiled in fresh water. Cream dressings with flour should not be used, but some of the following recipes will be found both appetizing and wholesome.

Cooked Mock Pemmican

To one pound of chipped beef, soaked for one hour and parboiled for 10 minutes in fresh water and then drained, add one-fourth cup of raisins and one-fourth cup of chopped celery. Stew in enough water to cover until the celery is soft, then remove the cover and evaporate most of the water. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter and serve.

Dried Beef and Spinach

One pound of dried beef, soaked, parboiled, drained and chopped, should be mixed with three cups of washed spinach. Place in a baking pan in a hot oven. Keep the pan covered until the spinach has wilted, then remove the cover, add one-fourth cup of cream and bake for 20 minutes. Add on tablespoonful of butter and serve.

Chipped Beef Sandwiches

Between slices of buttered wholewheat bread, place shredded lettuce, mustard and chipped beef (either soaked or dry).

Cream Chipped Beef

Parboil for 15 minutes the amount of chipped beef desired. Drain off all the water and add small amount of cream which has already been slowly heated in another vessel. This makes it possible to combine the cream and beef without cooking them together. Do not add flour or anything else to this mixture. Serve only with cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables and no starches.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Kidney Stricture

Question: I. D. asks: "Can stricture of the kidneys be cured?"

Answer: Stricture of the kidneys can be cured but, of course, I could not advise you through this column about such a serious condition.

Stomach Worms

Question: Mrs. J. asks: "What is the cause of stomach worms?"

Answer: Stomach worms are caused principally from using under-cooked meats. Your physician or druggist can give you a worm remedy, after which you can avoid further trouble by preparing your meats properly.

Potash

Question: Mrs. K. O. writes: "A doctor told me the wholewheat bread contains too much potash, causing nervousness, but that rye bread is all right. Please give me your opinion."

Answer: In three analyses of rye and wholewheat bread flour which I have at hand, the rye contained slightly more potassium or potash than the wholewheat, and a great deal more than the white flour. However, I do not know of any reason for suspecting that potassium in foods would produce nervousness.

Autointoxication

Question: A. H. writes: "I have recently been examined. Heart, lungs, etc., in good condition, but have depressed feeling all the time. Am sitting down all day and get little exercise."

Answer: You are undoubtedly toxic from eating too much and not exercising enough. Even though you do not have any specific disease at the present time, you must remember that self-poisoning is the foundation upon which practically all diseases are built. Get rid of this trouble now and avoid worse trouble which will otherwise follow.

Lya De Putti cannot speak English—but neither could the Queen of Sheba! Lya scored her first success in Europe but it was not until she crossed water to Hollywood that she became a star in pictures. She was an immediate hit, and now desires to strut back to the Continent and wear tall millinery in her old rendezvous.

Lya De Putti

Miss De Putti said, translated, that she liked the story about a man who was trying to kiss his sweetheart. "She refused,' Lya related, "and then the man said: 'Well, it is always possible for a man to kiss a girl at will—whether she chooses to permit or not!'

"The maiden was firm in maintaining that such was not the case. Finally, it was decided that the only way to settle the argument would be by a practical demonstration, one way or another. So, they tried it. They clinched, and the battle was on. After a lively tussle, they broke away. The girl had been kissed—ardently. Her comment showed an undaunted spirit:

"'Oh, well, you really didn't win fair. My foot slipped . . . Let's try it again.'"

TUF-NUT GARMENT PLANT TO HOLD FORMAL OPENING TODAY

METHODS TO BE DEMONSTRATED

Plant Open to Visitors at 2 o'Clock

How a modern garment factory operates with such speed as to produce 150 dozen garments per day will be demonstrated in part to the public Saturday, when, between the hours of 9 a. m. and 5 p. m., the Tuf-Nut Garment Manufacturing company, Fifth and Travis streets, will be host to all who care to attend the formal opening of the local plant.

The general public has been invited through several notices sent out by J. B. Fulkerson, general sales manager of the company, and in addition about 20,000 invitations to residents of Wichita Falls and vicinity have been mailed.

Colleen Moore carries a different role in "Oh Kay" than in most of her pictures where she is shown as a poor girl with plenty "it" arising to heights, or at least achieving something of success in her vamping roles. In the production now being shown at the Majestic theater she is cast in the role of a noble-woman who, notwithstanding her high position, has her adventures or misadventures galore.

And she is as attractive as she was in "Sally" or in "Irene" or any other of her "from cement office to orchids" roles.

With the production of such master pictures as "King of Kings" which opens for a week's run with the midnight matinee at the Strand theater at 11:30 o'clock Saturday evening the permanence of the new art of synchronization is practically assured, say critics of the movie industry.

"King of Kings" pleases laymen and clergy alike, and has been endorsed by leading dramatic critics and high members of the church of every denomination. It has been termed a greater achievement than "Ten Commandments" which a few years ago set the movie world on its toes with its moral lesson and the beauty with which that lesson was sent home to spectators.

Serial fans are still giving vent to conjectures concerning the identity of the "Frog" in "Mark of the Frog" which runs in installments at the Mission theater on Saturday and Sunday. The "Frog" is known only by the mark on his arm. His band of crooks has terrorized New York, baffled the police and defied detection. But the "Frog" has shown bad judgment in love (or does one show judgment in love?) and he is intrigued with the charms of a woman not of the underworld. And that is to prove his undoing, but how many escapades and adventures is he going to have to undergo before he is at least brought to light?

Tom Mix has by no means lost his popularity despite his lack of versatility in playing and his "Horseman of the Plains" to end today at the Gem theater is attracting groups of Tom Mix adherents.

H. T. Federer is actively in actively in charge of the Strand and Majestic theaters until an adjustment can be made concerning the management of the string of theaters in the city. C. M. Morehead says he is being kept fairly busy seeing that Bill Saling is being fittingly advertised as the new organist and accompanist and what-not (musically speaking) at the Olympic beginning with the Sunday afternoon program. The Wurlitzer pipe organ at that theater has just been remodeled in order to give Mr. Saling a suitable instrument for his genius.

FLORIDA FIGHT THREE SIDED

G. O. P. Hopeful for First Time in History

By D. FIELD BRITTLE

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 19 (AP)—Busy with its rebuilding in the wake of a recent and more realistic high wind, Florida now is rocking in the same political gusts that are sweeping all Dixie. They spring from well-charted areas of high and low pressure for and against Alfred E. Smith and Herbert Hoover, and are blowing up a fine storm to break about the ballot box on November's first Tuesday.

Florida is witnessing a three-sided fight for the favor of her six electoral votes. The elements are two against one, for the steadfast partisans of the state's democracy find themselves attacked by their fellows who dislike Smith and by a rejuvenated Republican opposition.

It is a sign of the times that the Democrats who have looked on November elections as a sort of extra but unnecessary attraction added to the primary fight are working now, having organized a state headquarters, and that the Republicans who heretofore made a perfunctory effort and accepted their usual defeat are going about with a gleam in they eyes and claims of victory in their voices.

Native Republicans look on Florida as their best bet for Hoover in the south but Democrats maintain that if there is a breach in the south's wall of democracy, it will not be here.

If ordinary circumstances prevailed now, Republicans would have to swing a great turnover of the electorate to win for Hoover, for other presidential years have recorded uniform majorities of two to one or better for Democratic nominees. But the situation is unusual, and it is to Democrats who reject Smith that the opposition look for the necessary support. The Democratic split is upon the three rocks of Governor Smith's wetness, his Tammany connection and his religion.

The Democratic campaign is getting under way still bearing scars of the pre-convention split over Smith. The party delegation to Houston was solidly anti-Smith, having been selected by a three to one majority over the pro-Smith ticket. At the convention the delegation stuck to Senator George of Georgia and was one of the few states that refused to participate in the religious equality demonstration and the later parade after Smith had been nominated. Several of those Democrats are now working for Hoover, and adverse sentiment has so spread that the chairman of one county organization is working for Hoover but supporting the Democratic state nominee.

It was to heal matters that Senator George made two speeches in the state not long ago, appealing for adherence to the party lest that party dissolve altogether, and for religious tolerance. He has been followed by Senator Robinson, the Democratic vice presidential nominee; Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy under Wilson and the state's own senators, Duncan D. Fletcher and Park Trammel.

The Republican party has unseated George W. Bean as national committeeman and leader of the "Black and Tan" faction and seated Glenn E. Skipper, leader of the "Lily White" group. The party's electors are all white, the negroes having been ousted from their usual places on the ticket.

All things considered through Republican eyes, Hoover managers are optimistic that this state will lift itself out of the Democratic column into the Hoover column.

The calculations of both parties consider that this county, Duval and Hillsborough and Dade (Tampa and Miami) potentially hold about one-third or more of the state's total vote. They are the centers of greatest activity, and the Hoover people maintain that Duval, for example, will go Republican by a two to one majority.

Aware of these developments and claims, Democrats say their biggest task is to get out in November the Democratic gave in the June primary. Last June about 280,000 votes were cast and although it is recognized that many Republicans vote in the state primary, the Smith men insist the Democratic majority is large.

All the state's Democratic nominees have endorsed the national ticket.

Newspapers of the state are divided, about 90 per cent of the dailies supporting Smith and an equal percentage of the rural weeklies advocating Hoover.

BOY BOB

Eckener Demands Usual High-Clip Finish For His Hair

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (US)—One of Dr. Eckener's first requests when he reached the comparative privacy of his suite on the thirty-first floor of the Hotel Warwick after the rousing reception given his party by the city, was for a real German haircut.

No German barbers were available in the hotel, but the commander finally compromised on an Austrian, one Adolph, who was sent post-haste to the suite with all his tools, as is the continental custom.

Adolph had to make two trips of it, as Dr. Eckener wished the familiar high-clipped German style of cut, which required another type of clipper than that Adolph had with him. This was soon procured, however, and the commander of the Graf Zeppelin went on to dinner at the Ritz Towers entirely satisfied with his latest haircut.

LLOYD GEORGE VISITS RACES

But British Statesman Does Not Bet

LONDON, Oct. 19. (US)—David Lloyd George had a big time at the races today but at the expense of becoming a fallen idol. Always an ardent Baptist, he has throughout his active life been held up to the youth of the nation by the non-conformist churches as an admirable pattern because of his temperate life and complete lack of interest in horse racing.

No wonder that tonight hundreds of thousands of sincere non-conformists read with shuddering dismay the lyrical account of his visit to Newmarket and an amusing cartoon reflecting on the political consequences of the Liberal party leader's day out. Ever since it became known a week ago that the war time premier intended to pay his first visit to the race track, protests and earnest appeals to abstain have deluged Lloyd George.

His mail was also enormously increased by special tips and requests to open accounts with book makers.

Turning a deaf ear to all protests and novice, and wearing his every day town clothes and derby hat, he proceeded to Newmarket heath this afternoon. He chose the day of the far famed autumn classic, the Cesarevitch, and ever susceptible to the influence of huge crowds, quickly attuned himself to the passions of the mass of spectators as one thrilling race succeeded another.

But he would not bet. Offers of especially good prices for whatever horse he might fancy were shouted to him from the bookmaker's ring, but to all these and also to the good humored chaff to which he was subjected, he merely smiled amiably.

His only explanation of his sudden departure from his lifelong disregard of racing is that "anything that plays so great a part in the social life of the nation as racing, demands my attention."

Probably his dismayed political supporters will excuse his belated interest in the turf on the ground that inasmuch as the state has now legalized betting by taxing bets, Lloyd George was bound to gather some first hand knowledge of what happens at racing.

MAN FOR SALE

Impoverished Miner to Sell Himself to Aid Family

LONDON, Oct. 19. (US)—A man for sale is England's latest sensation. An unemployed south Wales miner has offered his body for scientific research in order to buy food for his family.

Without a single day's work in two years and reduced to desperation by the struggle to support his wife and five children, the miner has written the press offering himself to any university or hospital on the condition that his family be given food and in the event of his death that his wife will receive the widow and orphans' pensions.

U.S. CAPITAL TO BUILD SHIPS

Scientist Says Work Need Not Be Done Abroad

By DR. R. A. MOORE
Dean of Science Purdue University
Written for The United Press

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 19. —Dr. Hugo Eckener, who has so successfully brought the Graf Zeppelin across the Atlantic, states that he is interested in getting $14,000,000 of American capital for the purpose of constructing four airships and operating them between Germany and the United States.

It is not necessary for American capital to go to Germany for either the building or operation of airships. A contract has just been let by the navy with the Goodyear company for the construction of two airships nearly twice the size of the Graf Zeppelin.

In addition capitalists in the east have been interested for a number of years in the construction and operation of airships and such a line would have been in operation by this time had it not been for the fatal accident of the Shenandoah which gave the "heavier than air" men an opportunity to influence public opinion adversely.

An airship company controlled in Germany, even though it is financed by American money, would not be able to use helium as there is a United States embargo on helium at the present time. Any airship company using hydrogen runs a serious risk which would not, be the case if non-inflamable helium were used.

The United States possesses the only large supplies of this gas, and therefore any airship company financed by American capital should be operated from this country in order that this gas may be available. National defense also makes it imperative that ownership and control of such a line should be in America.

Venezuela Seen as Presidential Entry

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 19. (UP)—Return of Gilberto Valenzuella, now en route here from London where he has been minister for three years, has caused political observers to suggest that he will become the presidential candidate of the National-Revolutionary party at the next constitutional election in 1929.

The candidates for constitutional president must be announced within a month and all soldiers or public office holders who become candidates must resign at least a year before the election. In view of these requirements, Valenzuella's return to the capital at this time has caused predictions that he will become a candidate and probably will be supported by the National-Revolutionary party.

President Calles, after his retirement Dec. 1, will lead the National-Revolutionary party, it is now understood, and the party will select its candidate formally at a convention in February.

Another possible choice of the party is Aaron Saenz, governor of Nuevoleon, who is reported to have the support of the president.

Randall County Agent Elected Fair Official

Special to The Record News

CANYON, Texas, Oct. 19. —W. H. Upchurch, county agent of Randall county, has been elected vice president of the State Exhibitors association of the Dallas fair.

The association plans to make radical changes in the rules governing entries in the exhibit and to carry out a 10 year program. Boys' and girls' work will be stressed.

Upchurch has been an unusually successful exhibitor for several years, Randall county receiving second place this fall.

Communist Defeat Not Mars' Victory

BERLIN, Oct. 19 (UP)—Although the communist attempt to force a referendum on the construction of a new armoured battleship as voted by the cabinet failed, it would be erroneous to interpret the defeat as meaning that a large number of German citizens favor militarism.

According to unofficial figures, the referendum was given even less support than the communist voters displayed at the elections last May.

The battleship dispute grew out of the authorization by the cabinet of Chancellor Herman Muellor for construction as provided in the budget. The Socialists had bitterly opposed the building of a new vessel before the May elections and the party leaders were severely criticized when they permitted such a move to be approved by the cabinet.

WICHITA FALLS BEATS RANGER IN CONFERENCE OPENER, 9-0

INDIANS SCORE EARLY TO WIN

Touchdown, Safety on 1st Quarter Beats Invaders

By GORDON FULCHER

Scoring their first victory of the season the Wichita Falls Junior college Indians fought their way to a 9 to 0 victory over Ranger Junior college Friday afternoon in the conference opener at Athletic park.

The Indians outplayed the Rangers through the greater part of the contest and but for poor playing and tough breaks would have emerged from the game with a heavier score. During the first half the Indians played almost entirely in Ranger's territory but lacked the drive to plunge over for more than one touchdown.

Ranger staged somewhat of a comeback in the last half and played on even terms with the Wichitans during the third period. Once during the third quarter Taylor ran 35 yards through the Indians to the Wichita Falls 30-yard line. The march toward the goal line stopped when the Indian line held and Berry punted across the goal line.

Ranger Score Disallowed

Ranger crossed the goal line once in the last few minutes of the second quarter when Taylor ran 45 yards around right-end but the play was called back and Ranger penalized for holding. The visitors failed to make the distance after the penalty and the ball went over shortly before the end of the half.

The Wichita Falls touchdown was scored in the first five minutes of the game. Ranger received on their own 30-yard line and after three attempts at the line Knight punted to Harvey who returned seven yards. Castelberry ran 40 yards in a cutback through right tackle on the first Wichita Falls play of the game.

Mitchell and McMillan made first down on the Ranger one yard line. Castelberry lost three yards on an attempt at the line and Mitchell carried the ball over for a touchdown on the next play on a lateral pass from Castelberry. Castelberry scored the extra point from placement.

Indians Count Safety

The Indians made the score 9 to 0 on the fourth play after the kickoff followin~ the touchdown when Gabbert Stephens blocked a punt on the 10-yard line and a Ranger man was downed behind the line with the ball for a safety.

Castelberry played a whale of a game at halfback for the Indians, ripping off gain after gain and leading the Wichita Falls pass receiving. Harvey, Junior college quarterback, played the best game of his career in returning punts. The little fellow brought them back time after time for long gains.

Hutcheson and Mitchell also played good games in the Indian backfield.

Taylor Ranger Star

Taylor was by far the outstanding player of the Ranger team, being the only dependable ground gainer for the Indians.

Hutto, G. Stephens, McMillan and Pinney stood out in the Indian line play while Knott, Johnson and Pratt were the outstanding players in the Ranger forward wall.

Bill Habern, the Junior college guard who suffered a broken arm while fighting fire last Sunday, entered the game near the end of the final period. The scrapping little guard put the fight into the line which had begun to weaken and despite the fact that his arm was in a brace he tore through the Ranger line and threw the plunging Taylor for a three-yard loss on the first play after he went into the game. Lineup:

WICHITA FALLS	Position	RANGER
Pinney	Center	Boswell
J. Barton	Right Guard	Pratt
Ramey	Right Tackle	Britton
Stephens	Right End	Nourse
Harvey	Quarterback	Berry
Castelberry	Left Half	Thompson
McMillan	Right Half	Trammell

Hayes Picks Joie Ray To Defeat El Ouafi

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (UP)—Johnny Hayes, who used to be a marathon runner himself, has looked over the entrants in Sunday's professional race and names Joie Ray as the certain winner.

Hayes, who won the Olympic marathon in 1908, after Dorando of Italy had been disqualified, later engaged in a series of professional match races with the Italian. He ran in the old Madison Square Garden, under conditions similar to those which will prevail in the new Madison Square Garden Sunday night, when Ray meets El Ouafi of Algiers, winner of the 1928 Olympic marathon, and seven other distance stars.

The short turns necessitated by a 10-lap track will wear down the Algerian, who is accustomed to the open spaces of the African deserts, Hayes believes. Joie Ray has done most of his running indoors and is accustomed to the conditions in the Garden.

Underdogs May Arise and Smite Favorites

By HAROLD BANKS

DALLAS, Oct. 19. (AP)—Football underdogs, those lowly-rated elevens which occasionally rise to inspired heights in a single brilliant gesture of the season, may change materially the aspect of the Southwest conference before the sun sets on the Texas gridirons tomorrow.

Arkansas, T. C. U. and Rice are the three teams whose performances against supposedly stronger foes either will elevate them to them to championship possibilities or relegate two of their number—the Horned Frogs and Owls—to the place of oblivion marked out for them more than a month ago when the training season got under way.

It is through the air that this trio, rankled by the odds they face, will bid for victory.

Bell Drills in Air

Under the watchful eyes of Head Coach Matty Bell, who guides the destinies of the T. C. U. Purple, the Frogs have labored long and hard this week in efforts to mould a passing attack that will enable them to carry on a sustained drive against the Texas Aggies at College Station. Convinced that his wingmen will not be able to halt the Farmer line attack, Bell plans to depart radically from the strategy of past clashes. He will match offense with offense.

Because the Frogs have entered the Aggie game for the past three years rated two or more touchdowns in strength below their opponents, yet have won one and tied two of the contests, the Southwest believes their chances of creating an upset are rosier than the giant Arkansas squad or the thoroughly determined Rice Owls. In view of this situation, the game assumes outstanding importance as the conference goes into full swing.

Despite their clear-cut 14 to 0 triumph over Baylor last week the Razorbacks rate below Texas in potential power.

Porkers Formidable

"The team that beats Texas will be the championship squad," was the cry that arose after the Longhorns' heart-breaking one-point defeat by Vanderbilt last Saturday, but grid mentors who have seen their charges humbled by the tricky outfit from the Arkansas hills have been many.

Cole, wizard in hurling passes into the arms of a teammate, no longer wears the Porker red, but in his place Coach Francis Schmidt has found others to carry on, and Texas faces a hard assignment in stopping the overhead offensive they will encounter and the line thrusts of Garland Beavers, rugged fullback.

If Texas, with Steve Wray, the best center on the squad out of the lineup, stops Arkansas, hopes for success in later games will burn brighter.

Rice May Upset Ponies

Rice, normally the weakest conference representative, has staked everything on the possibility of catching S. M. U. in a mental letdown, and for the first time since injuries and misfortunes stalked the camp in September, will be able to answer the opening gun with its most impressive lineup.

It is no secret that the Owls have pointed for the game. Herting, a great back, has been kept on the sidelines to allow bruises to heal completely in order that he might be available for the Mustang clash. Allnoch and Braden have stamped themselves as broken field runners of proved caliber against St. Edwards and Trinity and a veteran line has earned the plaudits of many. The team, too, enters the game with the psychological advantage of having been termed a setup by the Mustangs—a condition which has been used as a talking point by Coach Claud Rothgeb to spur his players to a dangerous mental attitude.

Baylor meets Centenary at Shreveport in the only "outside" game of the week-end. Victors last week over A. & M. by six points, the Gentlemen, whose exploits sound like an echo of Centre's Praying Colonels of a few years ago, are picked to win easily.

Altus Victor Over Mangum by 13 to 0

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Oct. 19.—Altus defeated Mangum, 13 to 0, in one of the most hotly contested games of the season. This is the second Southwest Oklahoma conference victory for Altus.

Vivian Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grady Russell, was crowned queen of the Altus football team. She won this honor in a contest which closed today.

About 1,500 people attended the game which was the largest crowd to witness a game here this year.

DANIEL BAKER WINS

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Oct. 19. (AP)—The Daniel Baker Hill Billies annex their second T. I. A. A. victory today by downing the Sam Houston Teachers of Huntsville, 17 to 0. The Billies ran up 13 first downs to six for the visitors.

WACO SCORES 109 POINTS

WACO, Texas, Oct. 19. (AP)—Displaying a dazzling offense and a sterling defense, the Waco high Tigers, scholastic champions of Texas and last year claimants of the national schoolboy title, this afternoon plowed their way to a 109 to 0 victory over Hillsboro here, to open their 1928 championship season.

AUSTIN, Oct. 19. HARRIS NAMED TIGER MANAGER

Jack Warner Traded to Nats For New Detroit Pilot

DETROIT, Oct. 19. (AP)—Stanley (Bucky) Harris, former pilot of the Washington baseball club, signed as manager of the Detroit Tigers today, and his first act in assuming his new duties was to announce acquisition of Roy C. Johnson, star outfielder of the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast league.

The Detroit club is reported to have given $75,000 for Johnson.

Announcement of the signing of Harris came two days after George Moriarty turned in his resignation as pilot of the club. Jackie Warner, Tiger third baseman, goes to Washington in the Harris deal.

Information as to the length of Harris' contract and its financial terms was withheld.

Harris, who led the Washington club to two pennants and a world's championship, was relieved of his managerial duties with the Senators at the close of the baseball season this year.

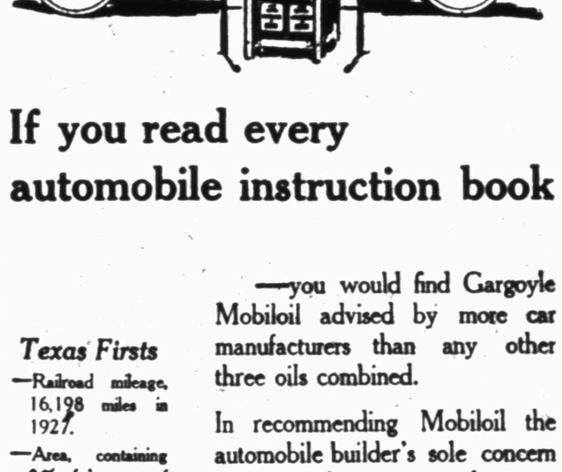

Morarity, who managed the Detroit club two years, resigned after the Tigers had gone through an unsuccessful season. His management was criticized during a greater part of the season. In his resignation he blamed "unfavorable circumstances" for the Tiger slump.

Aggie Frosh Squad Is Trimmed to 65

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 19 (AP) —Roswell Higginbotham, freshman football coach at Texas A. & M., has trimmed rapidly his squad down to tha size that will enable the mentors to devote more time to the individual problems of candidates.

Out of 212 players who reported at the beginning of the training season only 65 remain. The squad has been divided into two groups, one working under Higginbotham and Tucker Lister, and the other under Coaches Frank Anderson and Rektorik.

Special attention is being paid to line prospects.

Paolino Loses On Foul in 2nd

Basque Hits Peterson With Knockout in Sight

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

EBBETS FIELD, BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 19. (UP)—Big Boy Peterson, towering New Orleans heavyweight, won an astounding victory over Paolino Uzcudun, Basque wood chopper and one of the leading candidates for the vacated heavyweight title—on a foul after 2 minutes 20 seconds of fighting in the second round of a scheduled ten-round bout tonight.

The end came with dramatic suddenness and left a crowd of 5000 spectators gasping. Paolino had floored Peterson for a count of nine with a left hook to the jaw early in the second round and the big New Orleans heavyweight was reeling and rocking around the ring on the verge of a knockout when the foul occurred.

Standing over Peterson, after fooring him, Paolino hit his fallen opponent with a vicious left uppercut. Referee Lou Magnolia was on top of the fighters and quickly seized Paolino by the shoulder and jerked him so hard the Spaniard fell bodily to the canvas.

Dumbfounded, Paolino stood near the ropes unable to comprehend Referee Magnolia's decision. Peterson, glass-eyed and still on his knees, was unable to rise under his own strength. Magnolia attempted to lift Peterson to his feet, but the New Orleans heavyweight was in such a lump that Magnolia was unable to get a firm hold on him. Peterson's seconds were called into the ring and helped him to his stool.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

THERE ARE NO MORE setups in football this season. If you don't believe it, look at the schedules today. See any teams easy for their opposition? It's just one battle after another in a flock of intersectional affairs and games involving sectional titles on gridirons throughout the country (and city) and the list of unbeaten teams will be greatly augmented by today's contests.

◆ ◆ ◆

Three contests are scheduled in the Southwestern conference and while the critics are of one opinion regarding the victors, reversals of form may be expected in all or any of them. Texas is favored over Arkansas, but the Porkers beat Baylor handily last week and will be anything but easy for the Longhorns. T. C. U. has shown power in preliminary games and will give Texas Aggies their usual stiff battle. The Aggies are figured, however, to be strong enough to break the existing two-year tie with the Frogs. S. M. U. should win decisively from Rice. They SHOULD.

◆ ◆ ◆

BAYLOR GOES outside the conference to meet mighty Centenary, conqueror of Texas Aggies, and a victory for the Gentlemen is presaged. There are other noteworthy games below the Mason and Dixon line. One of the most notable engagements of the day is the intersectional clash of Notre Dame and Georgia Tech at Atlanta. This is a meeting of an ordinary Irish eleven with a good Tech team and is viewed as little more than a tossup. Alabama has the edge on Tennessee and Georgia is better than Furman. Vanderbilt should beat Tulane, though not without a hard game. Virginia and Virginia Military will fight all over the gridiron in a strenuous affair. West Virginia and Washington and Lee play one of the most interesting games in the South.

◆ ◆ ◆

THERE ARE FOUR Big Ten combats today. Indiana, victor last week over Michigan, meets Illinois, 1927 champions. The Illini, with another powerful combination, looks slightly better than the Hoosiers. Minnesota probably will beat Chicago. Football isn't what it used to be at the Midway and the Maroons, beaten last Saturday by Iowa are not as good as the Gophers. Ohio State is figured stronger than Michigan. Wisconsin apparently has what margin there is over Perdue. Iowa should beat Ripon with reserves, but Northwestern will have to fight to turn back Kentucky.

◆ ◆ ◆

Interesting games are carded in the Missouri valley district. Missouri's mighty machine seems headed to a win over Iowa State. Bo McMillan's Kansas State looms slight favorite over Kansas. Marquette should beat Oklahoma Aggies. Oklahoma may reverse a defeat administered last week to Oklahoma Aggies by Creighton. Syracuse goes to Lincoln to return a trek east of the Cornhuskers last year. A Nebraska victory today is imminent. Colgate clashes with Michigan State and this eastern eleven should cop.

◆ ◆ ◆

OUTSTANDING in the day's football in the east is the engagement of Army and Harvard. This is the first meeting of the Cadets and Crimson since 1910. Army has never beaten Harvard. But since their last battle, the prestige of Army football has grown tremendously while that of Harvard has waned. So today the Army is the choice to win its first game from Harvard, but the heavy Crimson wall and a fast backfield may offer determined resistance.

◆ ◆ ◆

YALE'S POWERFUL juggernaug should sweep over Brown. Dartmouth will be extended by Columbia but the Big Green should win. Pennsylvania is out to reserve a 1927 deefat by Penn State in a game of hallowed and ancient traditions. Bucknell and Lafayette will fight an even battle. Carnegie Tech has a slight edge over Washington and Jefferson. Holy Cross' well-balanced eleven will trounce Fordham.

◆ ◆ ◆

Princeton, fought to a scoreless tie by Virginia last week, probably will rally today to rout Lehigh. Navy, beaten three times in as many starts, should crash in the win column in its game with Duke. New York will romp with Rutgers as will Pittsburgh with Allegheny. "Little three" members, Amherst, Williams and Wesleyan should beat their adversaries, Hamilton, Rennsselaer and Rochester, respectively.

◆ ◆ ◆

CALIFORNIA BEARS and Southern California Trojans clash in the feature battle in the far west, a game bearing on the Pacific coast title. It's a tossup. Take your choice. The champion Colorado Aggies of the Rocky Mountain conference will be extended by Utah but should win in the rarified atmosphere of Salt Lake City.

(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. —A Yonkers judge bobs up as the most likely candidate for the office of filling Solomon's vacated whiskers.

The time has gone when lover's lane was a shady nook, love letters were left in a hollow tree and Dan Cupid was a cherub.

Now, lover's lane is a one-way boulevard, the hollow tree is a detour sign and cupid is a traffic cop.

Yonkers has its state quota of parking petters. Every small town has its spooners. True love not only laughs at locksmiths but also makes chummy roadsters out of police wagons.

The judge fined a young man $15 for parking on a lonely road without lights.

The young man gallantly paid the entire 15 bills in spite of the fact that a young lady did half of the spooning.

After pocketing the official plunder, the judge read the young man a lecture. He could afford to.

"We have no objections to petters in Yonkers," said the judge, looking at the young lady.

"But you must keep the lights on," said the judge, looking at the young man.

"And while gentlemen may prefer blondes, I am thankful we are living in a more Democratic age," the judge continued, looking at the traffic cop.

Yonkers wishes to encourage romance," was the judge's next statement, looking at the $15.

"But you must keep the lights on," he remarked.

"The lights must be on in order that the police can protect petters from hi-jackers and hold-up men."

"And if the lights are on, I promise you that the police will not even look in the car."

We like that judge because he had not forgotten that he once had been a parker himself.

But if you have the lights on, what's the use of parking?

And how is he going to keep the cops from looking into the cars unless they wear blinkers?

And why should taxpayers furnish their own illumination when they pay the city to do it?

And why should a young man with $15, all he has in the world fear a hi-jacker any more than a judge?

Wichita Falls Opens Conference Season Today on Electra Field

Hard Battle Forecast When Coyotes and Tigers Clash; Pack Matches Brawn Against Foe's Speed

PROBABLE LINEUPS

Wichita Falls:	Position	Electra:
Powell	Left End	D. Kownslar
J. Bell	Left Guard	Brown
Beaty	Center	Whitesides
R. Saye	Right Guard	Loftin
E. Bell	Right Tackle	Browning
Bains	Right End	E. Kownslar
Lee	Quarterback	Cloninger
Davis	Left Halfback	Culpepper
Elliott	Right Halfback	White
Mills	Fullback	Crass

Time—3 p. m. Place—Electra.

By GORDON FULCHER

With prospects of victory none too sure the Wichita Falls high school Coyotes take off at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the first conference clash of the season with the Electra high school Tigers on the Electrans' field.

Pep squads at the local high school have been "whooping is up" during the latter part of the week. One hundred and thirty-five brand new uniforms were received by the school Friday and pep squad will attend the game today in a body in an attempt to cheer the Pack on to victory.

Probably the most capable team encountered this season will face the Coyote gridders in the interscholastic opener this afternoon. The Tiger team lacks the weight of the invading Wichitans, but this handicap is well counterbalanced in the superior speed of the Electra team.

Electra Line Strong

The Electra line, a fast and hard fighting aggregation, is led by Captain Smith at tackle, with the Kownslar brothers at ends and Whitesides at center, with other capable men in forward positions. Hub White and Crass at halfbacks, Culpepper at full and Cloninger at quarterback compose the speedy ball-toting quartet.

The Coyotes are seriously weakened through the loss of Capt. Harvey Black at quarterback, who was declared ineligible for high school competition last week.

Kenneth Mills, the veteran fullback, is counted upon as being the most dependable offensive player on the team as well as its ace of the secondary defense in today's contest. The big fellow is probably the most serious threat of the Wichita Falls eleven, and upon his shoulders will rest the duty of carrying the Pack through the roughest sailing during the game.

Pete Powell at end, Monk Hodgkiss at tackle, and Tom Beaty are expected to be the strength of the Coyote line play. Hodgkiss has been a defensive star in early contests and his hard tackling will no doubt give the Tiger backfield considerable trouble.

Coaches Bud McCallum and Bill Morris have spent the greater part of the week in fitting their team to skirt ends and smash gains on inside tackle plays. The Coyotes will probably rely on the ball carrying powers of Lee, Mills, Elliott and Davis on the offense since the loss of Captain Black put a woeful crimp into the Pack's passing attack.

Black was the mainstay of the team in the passing end of the game, and the Coyote coaches have yet to develop a capable man to throw the ball.

35,000 to See Notre Dame And Georgia Tech

ATLANTA, Oct. 19. (AP)—Southern conference football teams this week probably will play before record-breaking early season crowds with some 125,000 fans expected to see the 13 games in which their favorites play.

Georgia Tech, meeting Notre Dame at Grant field here, is expecting 35,000 while approximately 20,000 is the forecast for Tulane and Vanderbilt at New Orleans. These are expected to be the largest attractions.

FIND "FRIEND IN NEED"

Mother and Daughter Praise Vegetable Compound

Johnson City, N. Y.—"My daughter was only 20 years old, but for two years she worked in misery. She was all run-down, nervous, had aches and pains and no appetite. I was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with good results so she decided to try it. Before she had taken two bottles her appetite was better, she was more cheerful and was able to work. I cannot praise your medicine too highly. It is wonderful for mothers and for daughters. It's surely 'a friend in need.'"—Mrs. L. R. Hall, 223 Floral Avenue, Johnson City, N. Y.

SO WEAK, FELT SHAKY, JUST TOTTERING AROUND

"I read about Cardui, and it occurred to me that it was just what I needed for my trouble," says Mrs. Ella Scarborough, of Dothan, Ala. "I was in a bad state of health. Several different things were recommended to me. First one and then another would suggest remedies, but I did not get any real relief until I began to take Cardui.

"I was as weak as I could be. My legs were shaky, and often I would just totter around the house. I finally got so bad that I was in bed for several weeks.

"It was then that I began to take Cardui. I kept it up for quite a while, and at last I regained my health. Cardui was certainly a friend to me in time of need. I was much better after taking it, and I have recommended it to others who suffer as I did.

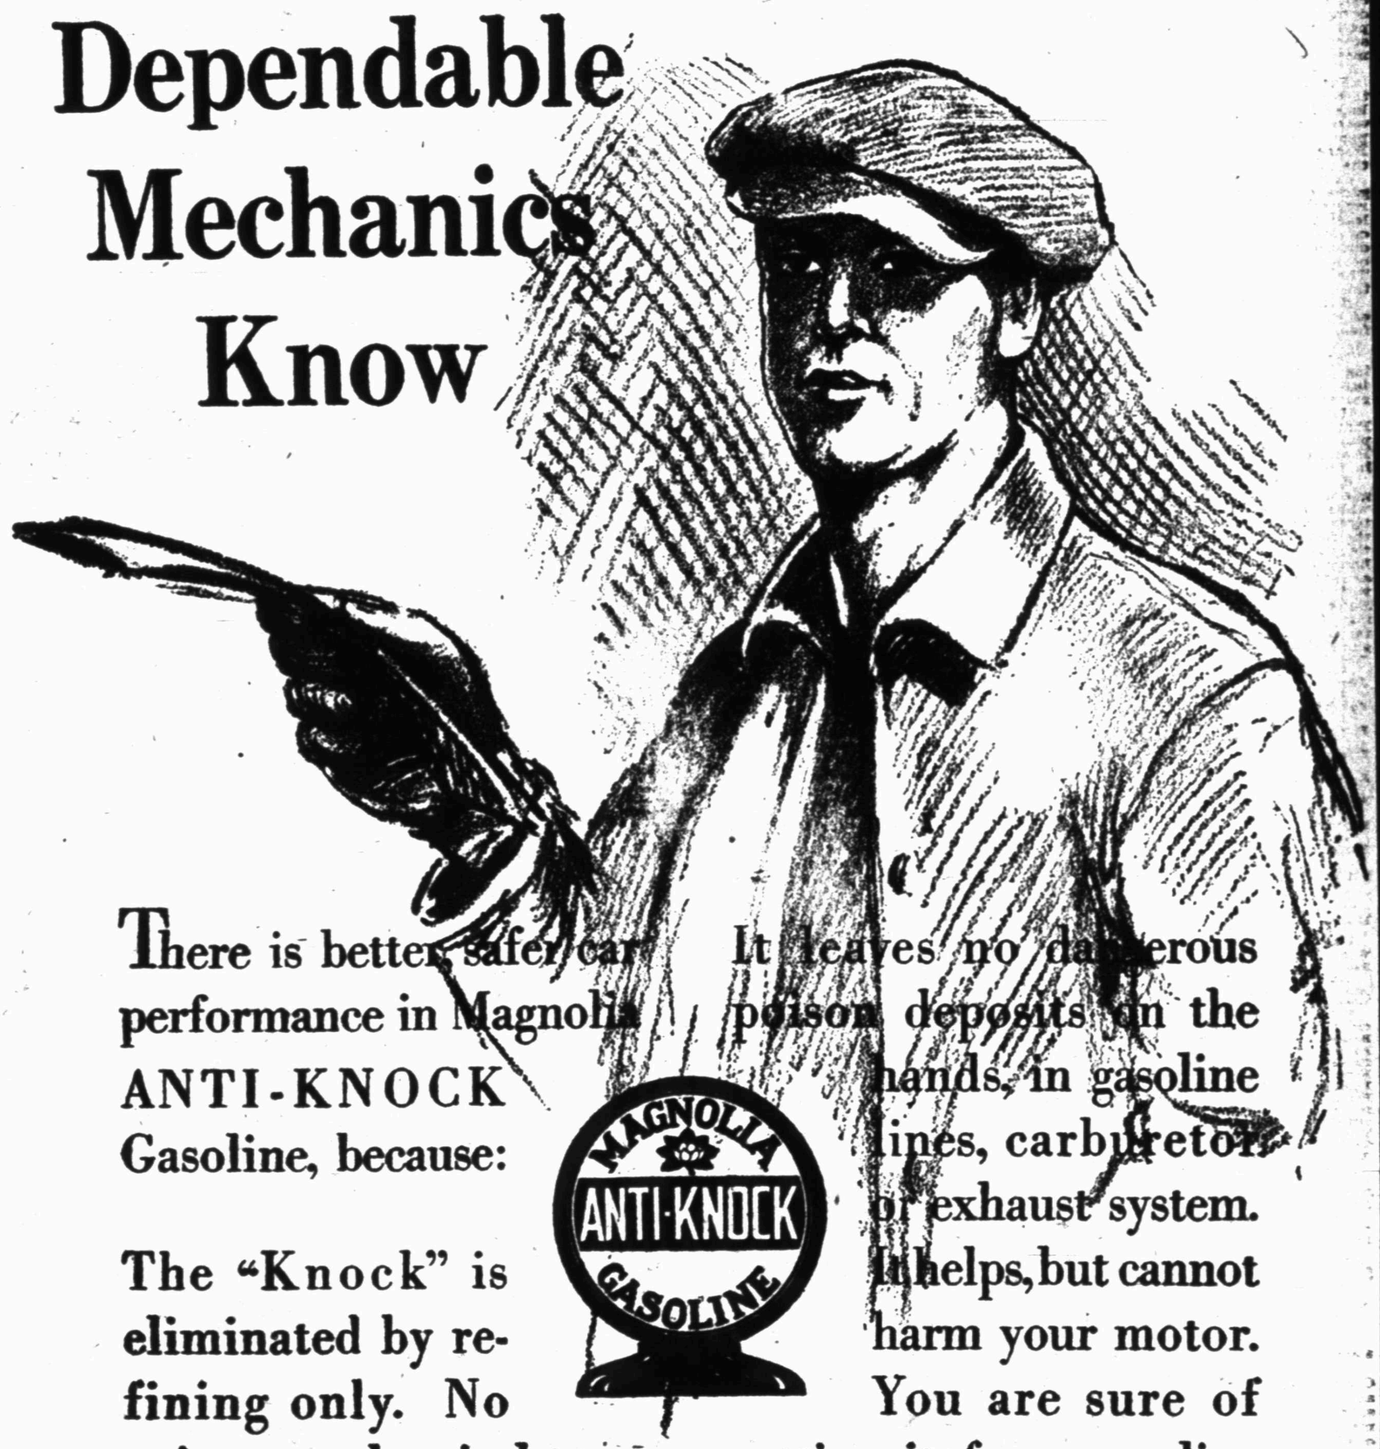

"My health is splendid now, and I seldom have to use medicine, but I gladly say a word about Cardui whenever I find a friend going through the same suffering which I endured."

Thousands of others have praised Cardui, after their suffering due to weakness had been relieved. (K-84).

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (AP)—After advancing early on relatively steady Liverpool cables and predictions for frost in northern Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle, the cotton market eased off under realizing and southern selling accompanied by reports of a somewhat easier spot basis in the southwest. December contracts sold off from 19.85 to 19.55 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 4 to 20 points.

The opening was steady at a net decline of 1 point on July but generally 3 to 6 points higher in sympathy with relatively steady Liverpool cables. There was a good deal of southern selling and realizing, but the demand was sufficiently active to absorb it, and prices worked upward during the early trading with October advancing to 19.93 and March to 19.76 or 11 to 16 points net higher.

On the whole, however, the demand seemed to be less active or aggressive than recently, and the advance was checked by increased offerings. They included southern selling as well as week end realizing and there may have been some local selling later on reports that the spot basis in the southwest had eased slightly, combined with a bearish interpretation of the week end statistics. The latter showed an increase of 495,978 bales in the world's visible supply of American cotton for the week compared with a gain of 272,013 bales last year and reflected a heavy into sight movement while there was some falling off in spinners' takings.

The official forecast was for frost in some northwestern belt sections but some of the local students of weather conditions said they did not expect damaging temperatures and weather conditions otherwise were considered favorable. Prices eased off to 19.75 for October and 19.48 for March and the close was at the lowest of the day on most of the active months. October was relatively steady. Private cables said that hedging and continental selling had been absorbed by trade calling and Bombay buying in Liverpool. Exports today 50,066; making 1,790,470 so far this season. Port receipts 89,466. U. S. port stocks 1,645,884.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 19. (AP)—After advancing in early trading today on predictions of frost in Oklahoma and northwest Texas which promoted good trade and speculative buying, the cotton market eased off nearly $1.50 a bale from the highs, when ring traders sold on fears of large ginning totals and longs liquidated probably prompted by the large movement of the crop into sight for the week. December sold off from 19.27 to 19.00 and closed one point above the low, net 27 points lower for the day. The general market closed steady at a net decline of 6 to 9 points.

Liverpool cables were relatively steady but the local market opened irregular, 3 points down to one up. Demand increased, however, right after the start when the official forecast called for frost in parts of Texas and Oklahoma. The active trade and speculative buying as well as covering by shorts soon carried December and January contracts to 19.27 and March 19.20, or 17 to 18 points above the previous close.

Around noon the demand seemed to have been satisfied and prices gradually worked lower under offerings made up of liquidation by longs and ring selling. Near the end December traded at 19.00, January 19.01 and March 18.95, or 25 to 27 points below the highs of the morning. The close was steady and near the bottom.

The movement into sight for past week totalled 916,109 bales, which traders construed as bearish but its influence on prices was probably offset somewhat by the large exports for the week of 405,526 bales.

Radio Puts on Good Show as Trade Goes Wild on Dizzy Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (US)—Merger rumors flew thick and fast through Wall street today, as leading stocks soared dizzily, in an increasingly active market.

Radio was the outstanding performer, gaining 20 points net for the session, with Montgomery Ward up 18, Nickel 17, American Smelting 13, Victor over 6, and numerous others jumping 1 to over 5 points. Increase in loans were ignored and except for momentary relapse in the morning the several warning advices issued by leading brokerage firms had no effect in stemming the growing tide of speculative enthusiasm. Oils and rails lagged behind, although remaining orderly throughout, but other groups shared in the greater amount of public buying evidenced.

Total trading amounted to over 4,700,000 shares with the tape running more than half hour behind for most of the session. Call money held at 6½ per cent throughout with the brokers securing funds without difficulty.

Increased Loans Forgotten

Further increase of $74,507,000 in brokers' loans to a new high of $4,664,390,000 was forgotten within half hour. Montgomery Ward's sensational skyrocketing of 20 points in the first half hour followed by the wild price movements elsewhere completely overshadowed the further weakening of the credit structure of the market. Comparative ease in call money market enhanced enthusiasm somewhat, also, although in reality it is a bearish development. The only reason that commercial demands for funds have not increased as they should at this time of the year is the high rates now in effect. Eventually this will have an effect on general business unless corrective steps to reduce stock market borrowings are taken. From all indications no more drastic measures will be adopted by the money powers for the next fortnight and it is on this belief that the speculative furore is increasing.

Corners Effected

There can be no doubt that at least technical corners have been effected in Radio and Nickel. General Electric owns something close to 500,000 shares of Radio while American International, and Westinghouse have close to 200,000 shares more. This stock together with holdings of Raskob and other individuals leave practically no floating supply. The same condition exists in Nickel where operations are largely under the dominance of Durant interests. When such a market is brought about those in control can do as they please as to price fluctuations and whenever the smallest short interest is caught the daring operators who have sold can be made to pay any price desired for the stock.

Cerro de Pasco was being taken by interests in close touch with the property. Extra dividend is expected and in addition some other favorable developments are hinted at. Simmons additional accumulation by Chicago interests was followed by even more enthusiastic estimates as to coming increase in earnings. The utility shares attracted somewhat more attention with United Gas & Improvement plan for acquiring additional properties talked of again and influencing buying in Public Service. Kansas City Southern held its leading place in the railroad group due to the belief that special distribution is planned. Although the oils gave rise to further disappointment because of their sluggishness in quarters close to the most active market interests the report persisted that favorable happenings in connection with the Sandard companies. Pan American, Sinclair and other independents were not far off.

Merger Rumors Thick

Some part of Radio's sensational climb was attributed to the merger rumors that were in the air. They also caused buyin gof Keith-Albee, Warner, Fox and other amusement shares as there was report that several important deals were being consummated. Fox Film interests, it was intimated, are working out arrangement whereby the Fox properties will be operated as a unit. The next stop will be acquisition of some 300 theaters in and around New York by Fox Theaters. This will bring earnings of the theaters subsidiary up to the annual rate between $8 and $9 a share, it was claimed. If the rumors concerning Radio's expansion plans work out it will result in the most gigantic operation of its kind in history.

Foreign exchange quieted with sterling remaining practically unchanged while the German mark added slightly to its recent gain. Commodities turned more irregular on bearish crop and weather advices. Cotton was rallied spasmodically but closed net lower.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19 (AP) (U. S. D. A.)—Considerable losses prevailed on hogs around the 11-market circuit with a few points holding steady; but most centers showing additional prices losses. The day's top of $9.90 was paid both at St. Louis and Chicago. Total offerings approximated 68,900 as compared with 28,143 a week ago and 58,931 the same day last year.

Fat lamb trade was unevenly steady to 25c higher. Choice native lambs at Chicago brought $13.50 and the same price was realized on Nebraska offerings at St. Joseph; range lambs at Kansas City cleared at $13.35; the supply approximated 49,400, a decrease of 12,000 from last Friday and 5,700 short of a year ago.

Outside of a strong price on she stock no material change was registered on killing classes of cattle. The strike of kosher butchers at New York is not expected to affect the trade on western grass cattle but it will have a tendency to slow up the outlet on the better grades of matured native grain feds. Country demand for stockers and lightweight feeders had sufficient breadth to maintain firm prices. Shipments of cattle and calves to the country out of Kansas City this week will be the second largest of the season. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 16,500 against 13,753 a week ago and 19,792 a year ago.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Oct. 19. (US)—Grains looked weak at the close today and finished with small losses for most of the futures. Corn was strong and up during all the fore-part of the session.

At the end wheat was off ⅛c to ⅜c; corn was ⅜c lower to ⅛c higher; oats were unchanged to ⅛c lower; rye was down ⅜c to ⅝c.

Wheat opened a shade above its previous closing level, but the market had little pep. Several times during the early part of the trading period it did lift itself up with a jerk for a moment or two, but it settled back again and late in the day petered out all together to a close at the bottom.

Wheat offers little attraction for the average trader. As suggested here today he will probably be better off if he stays away from it for the present.

The wheat situation looks intensely bearish, but until after election day there may be too much hazard in pressing the market on the short side to make that worth while. The chance for the longs of getting a sharp upturn on short coverings is in the market, but it does not seem to me to be worth the wear and tear on patience that may be necessary to get advantage of it if it comes.

Tomorrow wheat may open weak and sell down early. If it does it may be just as well not to sell it short. In fact a sharp break at the outset may be the precursor to a strong reaction late in the short session.

Corn was strong after an early decline today. Short covering in the December future was supposed to be the particular cause. Bulls who were wise enough to refrain from buying on the bulge saw the advantage of their restraint later, for the market eased off toward the close.

LETTER SHOWS DEATH PLOTS

Sheriff and District Attorney Are Subjects

LADEDO, Texas, Oct. 19 (AP)—Plots against the lives of District Attorney John A. Valls and Sheriff Joe Condren of Webb county were said to have been exposed in a letter received today by the sheriff.

The plots, the letter said, were being made by three persons recently expelled from the United States. Sheriff Condren said he knew the persons mentioned, and if the charges against them could be substantiated he would order their arrest.

Valls was shot at two months ago, but this is the first exposed threat against Condren.

Jazz Age Taking Flappers' Health

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Physical breakdowns threaten the modern American girl because of her intensive pace in the whirl of the present jazz age, according to the United States public health service.

This conclusion was reached by some health service physicians, who have conducted a study of the situation. They find that a slight increase in tuberculosis among women is resulting.

Numerous causes were cited as leading to breakdowns. Foremost among them were hurried social life; strain from school or business, not taking sufficient time to eat; insufficient rest and scanty clothing. These factors tend to wear out the body, health service physicians find.

Four things are held necessary to lifetime good health, they say; eight hours' sleep a night, regular meals three times a day, six glasses of water daily and proper clothing.

TOPEKA, Kan., Oct. 19. (P)—Ralph Scott, serving a 10 to 21 year sentence in the Kansas penitentiary at Lansing for the robbery of a jewelry store at Parsons, has been granted a 60 day parole in order to visit his mother, reported near death. Judge A. S. Foulks, pardon attorney, announced today.

Scott was alleged to have been a member of the "Terrill gang" of robbers.

G. O. P. Happy Over Straw Vote but Keep Up Efforts

NEW YORK, Oct. 19. (UP)—Chairman Work of the Republican national committee is highly pleased at the Literary Digest presidential poll which shows Herbert Hoover leading Alfred E. Smith in 44 states, but said, "we shall not relax our efforts anywhere."

"The forecast, if such it may be termed, is encouraging to the Republican workers in every state," Work said.

FRENCH WOULD REGULATE TIPS

But Custom May Resist Proposed Changes

PARIS, Oct. 19. (UP)—The tipping system—bane of every American tourist from the moment he sets foot in France—is the windmill at which M. Justin Godart, French senator, has set his lance in an effort to get legal regulation of the custom.

The "pourboire"—as the French call a tip and which literally means "for a drink"—is now too fundamental a part of the national life to be controlled by legal rules, observers believe. In almost every walk of life where service is rendered, a tip is expected even though the client is overcharged to start with.

The pourboire system operates throughout Europe but most iniquitously in France where the trouble centers mainly on the fact that a large number of French people exist solely on tips without the benefit of salary. For this reason the employe in many cases looks upon a tip as his rightful source of income and, to add to the trouble, some proprietors of restaurants demand a premium from their employes in view of the opportunities afforded for fleecing rich Americans and others.

Although in Spain there has been a government attempt to regulate or prohibit tipping in certain institutions, the French system has resisted all attempts to place it on a sensible, equitable basis. The introduction of a 10 per cent charge at hotels and restaurants has led to abuses on the part of unscrupulous proprietors who pocket a fat share for themselves, leaving the balance for distribution among employes.

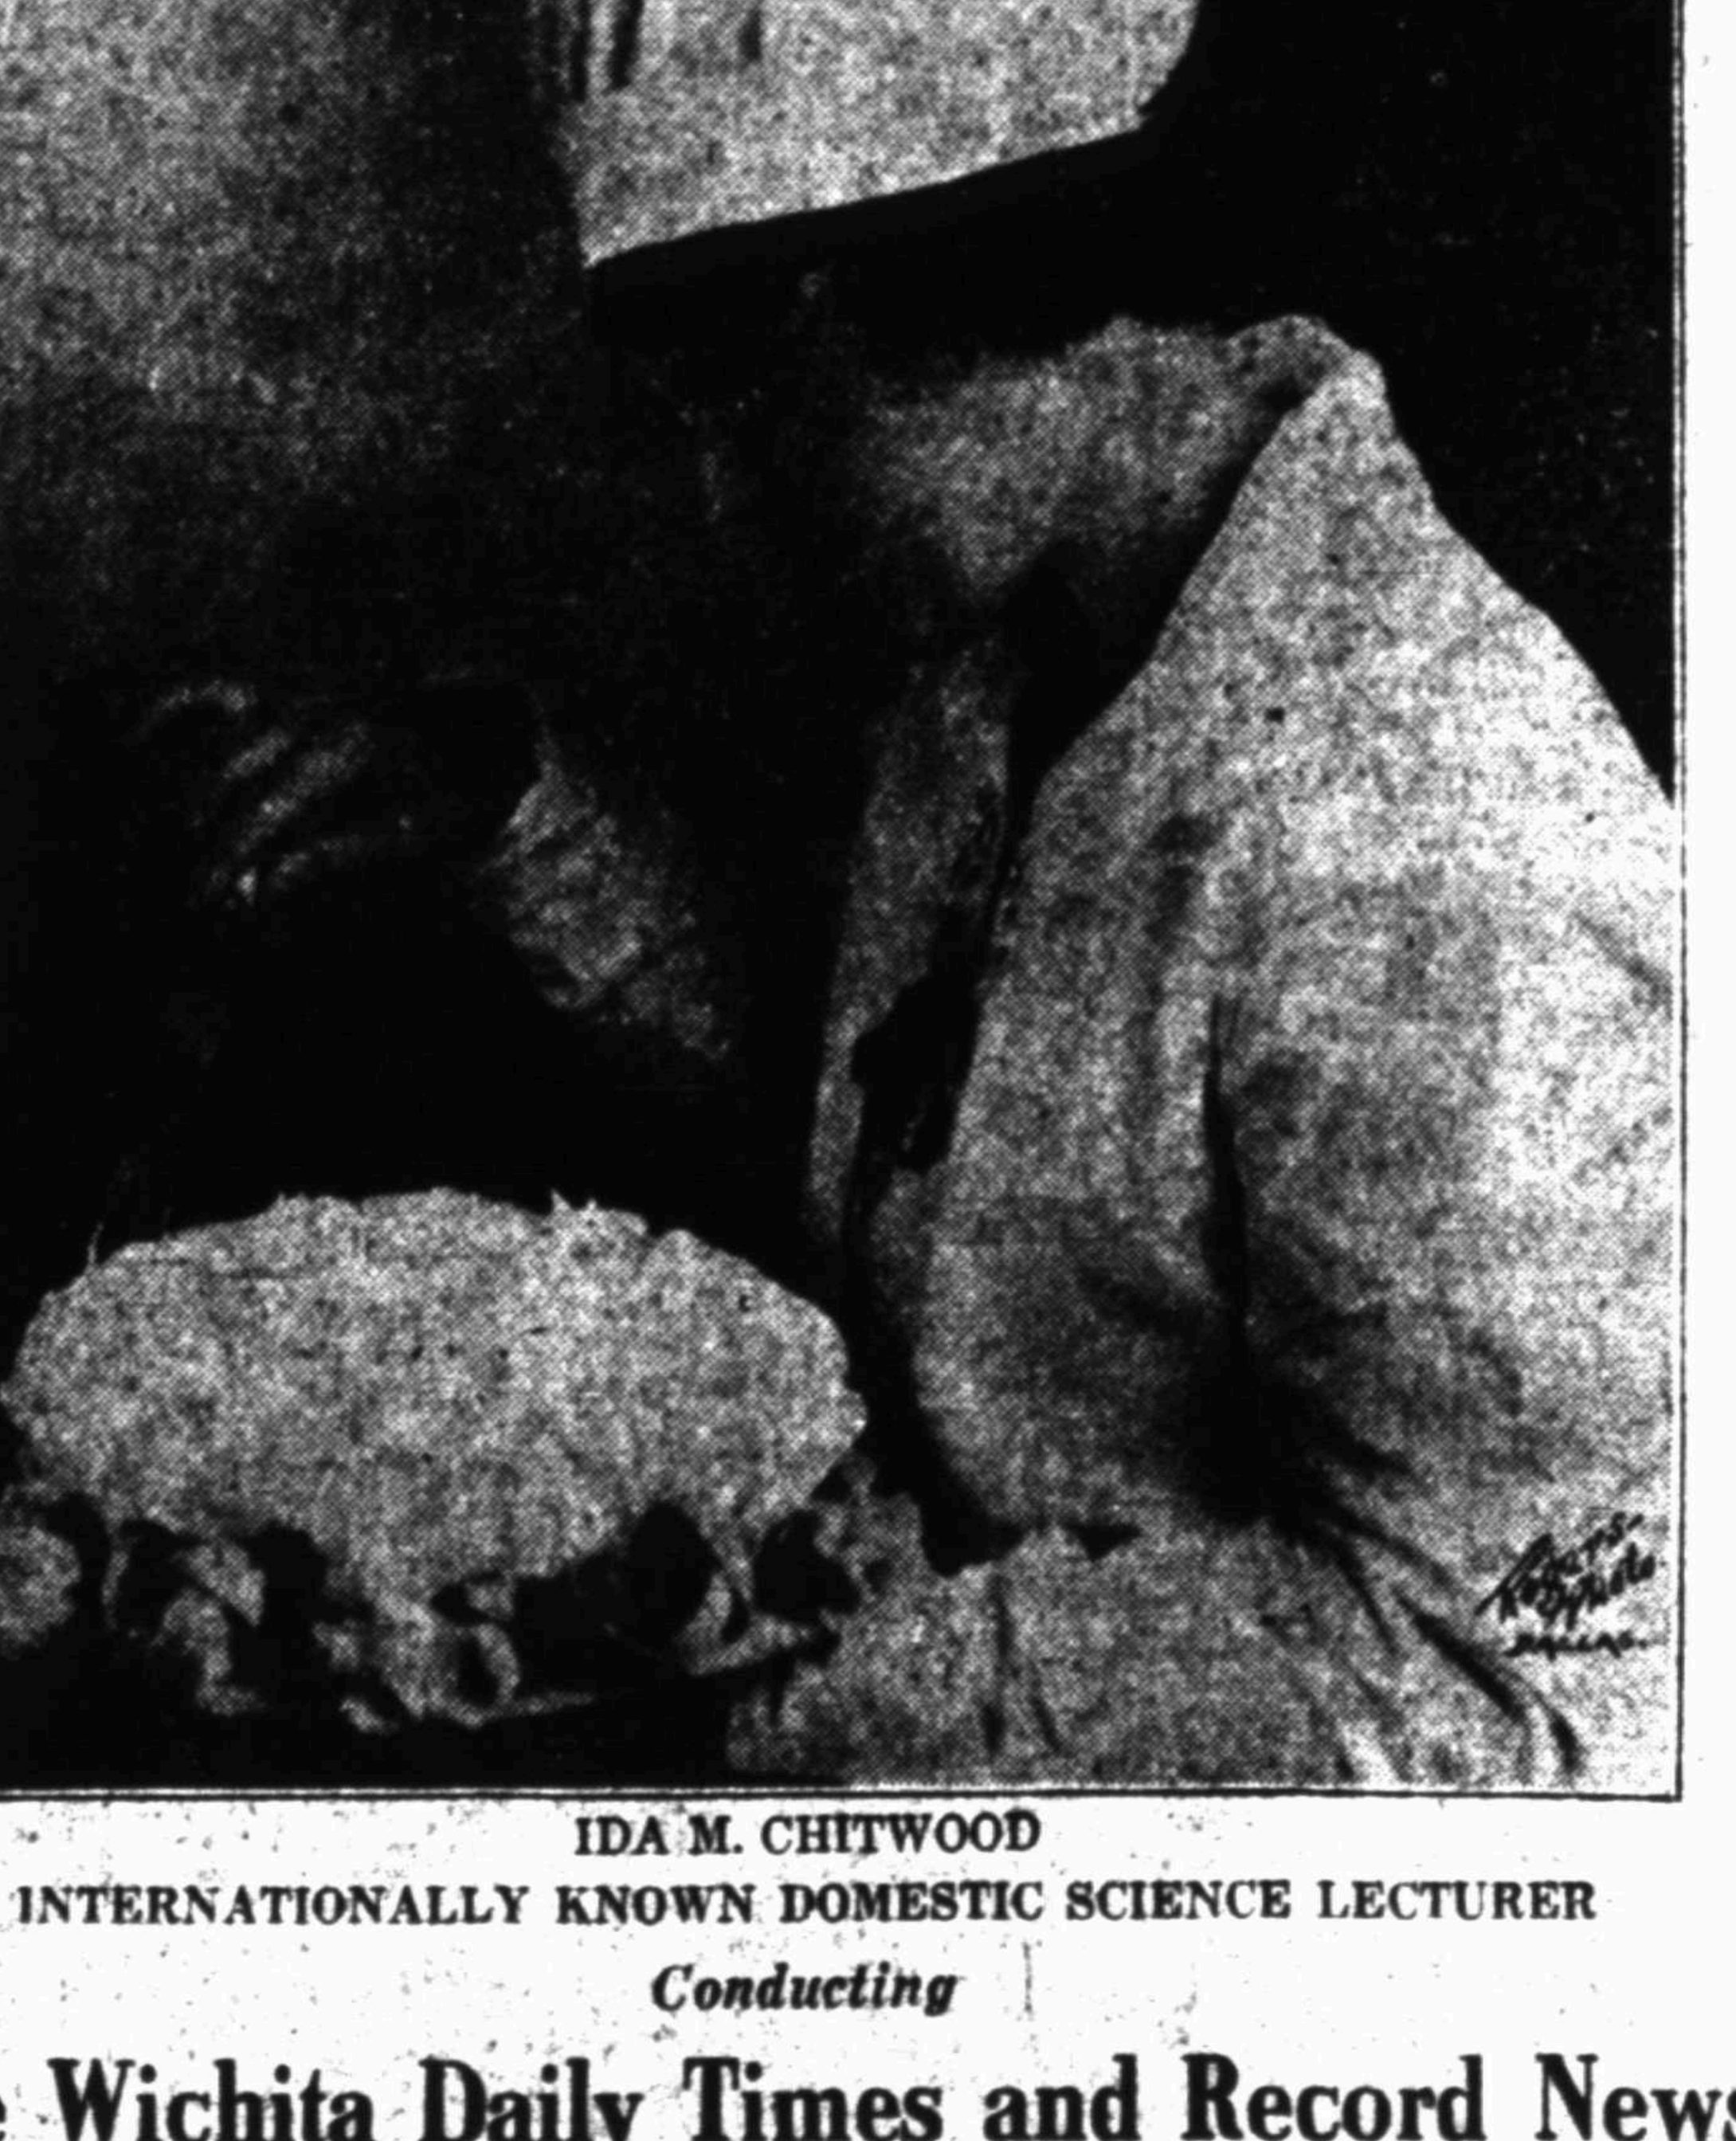

Senator Godart has drawn a bill which would force the management of every institution which permits tipping to distribute under penalty a percentage charged the customer. The customer's tips therefore would be paid as a regular part of his bill and distributed in graded sums to various employes.

FALL DEFENDS ROYALTY SALE

Claims Walsh Knew Of Proceedings

EL PASO, Texas, Oct. 19. (UP)—Sale of royalty oil from the Salt Creek federal reserves in Wyoming, declared invalid Tuesday by Attorney General Sargent, was defended today by former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, who negotiated the original deal with the Harry Sinclair interests.

Fall declared that there was nothing secretive about the contract for sale and that Senator Thomas J. Walsh and other senators were cognizant of the proceedings. At least 14 oil companies submitted bids before the contract was awarded, he said.

"I have no apologies to make to anyone about the matter," the former cabinet member said.

Revocation of the Salt creek contract was the third such action against oil deals made through Fall's office.

"Every one of these bids was discussed with Senator Walsh, Senator Kendrick of Wyoming and with Senator Warren, and others," Fall said. "The various bids were analyzed in detail and the result of such analysis submitted to me in writing and the analyses were submitted to the gentlemen named and others.

"Correspondence between myself, the secretary of the interior and these and other gentlemen concerning these bids, and the result of the analysis of the same, can be found in the office of the interior department at Washington, and possibly some of it in the office of Senator Walsh, unless such files have been destroyed.

"As a result of these bids it was unanimously decided by my advisors and agreed to by every one with whom I discussed the matter that the so-called Sinclair bid was the highest and best bid, and by such a margin that there was scarcely any comparison to be made. Sinclair bid for all these oils to be taken from the wells without any expense of storage, at the daily field prices at the great Mid-Continent market of Tulsa."

Fall claimed that the government received about $8,000 a day for the oil, more than it had been getting under a previous contract.

The opinion declaring the sale arrangement void was based on assertions that Fall's negotiations with Sinclair in December, 1922, were in secret and that Sinclair was granted a renewal option without public advertisement for bids.

WEEKS HINTS MARKET PLAN

Farm Expert Explains Co-operative System

The irrigated Wichita valley has agricultural possibilities yet untried, was the opinion expressed by Charles Weeks, California colonizer, brought here by the agriculture committee of the chamber of commerce, in a brief talk before members of the business council of the chamber, Friday noon at the Kemp hotel.

Mr. Weeks spent Thursday making a tour of the valley in company with Wichita Falls citizens who are contemplating the colonization project of the irrigated district near the city.

"Large farmers from the Atlantic to the Pacific oceans cannot get enough crops from the soil because the fertility of the land has been exhausted and because of the high wages demanded by farm employes.

Will Advertise Valley

"Thus farmers are learning that they must take up group farming in intensive and small farms. The products may be marketed through community warehouses," the speaker said as he gave a hint of the method of farming through a co-operative system of scientific farms and marketing through a chain of stores which would carry eggs and other farm products to the consumers in New York and other eastern markets.

"Then, through specialty farming can the product be put on the market and the valley advertised wherever the product is sold."

Mr. Weeks called attention to the fact that land values rise with increased population and that land now selling for a nominal sum may be developed to sell for thousands of dollars within a few years.

J. T. Harrell, chairman of the agriculture committee of the chamber of commerce, who is heading the group of citizens contemplating the colonization project, introduced the speaker.

Announcements Made

Luther Hoffman, chairman of the business council, gave a short talk in which he expressed the opinion that if citizens of Wichita Falls were privileged to pay taxes quarterly, th enumber of delinquent accounts would probably be decreased.

Announcement was made of the conference game played Friday afternoon between the Junior college and Ranger football teams by Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of schools. J. H. Allison also announced the convention of the tenth district of International Advertising clubs opening Sunday for a three-day session in Wichita Falls.

The Simmons-S. M. U. football game was announced as a 1929 event by Hubert M. Harrison, who estimated 3000 persons saw the contest between these schools here last Saturday afternoon when the chamber of commerce sponsored the game.

City Sanitary Department Gives Plans for Dairies

Plans prepared by the city sanitary department are being used as guides by six dairymen who sell milk in Wichita Falls for their dairy buildings, it was learned Friday from Dr. J. M. Farrell, chief sanitary inspector. The plans were drawn by the city engineer's department, and are free to those asking them.

More modern dairy barn arrangements are indicated on the blue prints which are available, and many dairymen have praised the city for the free service offered.

600 Hear Story Of Weeks Farms

40 acres, but the tiny one and two-acre tracts of California are not needed here due to the lower cost of land here as compared to California.

"Chickens come first, as they represent the greatest income that can be obtained off of a small tract. A few good cows, 10, 15 or 20, should be on every farm."

On learning that Orville Bullington was in the audience, Mr. Weeks called on him for a short talk, and Mr. Bullington told of his Jerseys, most of which are registered by the American Jersey Cattle club for their excellence.

Vegetables, fruit trees, garden stuff, green feed for the chickens and all the phases of the farming done by the Weeks community farmers, were described by Mr. Weeks who placed special emphasis on the green clover which is used as rough feed.

"Without this green roughage, it is almost impossible to make any money on chickens," he said.

"The money is made in the clover raising," he continued.

"We sell this clover to the people, but we fool them by delivering it to them in the shape of a perfect little white egg.

Community Purchasing

"Communities make their greatest money when they are able to ship by the car, for the carload shipments make the easiest sales. Large sales and large purchasing means more power than individual selling and buying. On our farms, we sell in large quantities and we buy those things which we need in larger quantities.

"The Weeks farms now sell in New York city, clear across the continent from their location near Los Angeles. If Wichita Falls joins with a project, the Weeks name, now known in many parts of the world, will be used as an aid in marketing.

"I will market your eggs for you at a better price, for with the intensive farming practices you will raise better hens and better eggs."

Frank Kell of Wichita Falls was called on by Mr. Weeks, and told of his own inspection of the Weeks project and of investigating all angles of the operation and also of Mr. Weeks personally. Putting an unqualified stamp of endorsement on Mr. Weeks, Mr. Kell said:

"Mr. Weeks can prove every statement he has made to you here tonight. The pictures he has thrown on the screen while he has talked do not exaggerate the story of what he has done in California. They do not half tell the story for they cannot.

Advantages Here

"If he has done what he has done in that country that is man-made, the possibilities in this country that is God-made are unlimited. We have a better climate; we have water that costs $3.50 a year while that in California costs five times as much. We have every advantage which that particular country has not."

Mr. Weeks said that in his California they had suffered their first frost before he started his present trip eastward, and that he had not even brought his overcoat to Texas.

The longer warm season here, and the great area under irrigation was held up by Mr. Weeks as added reasons why the Wichita irrigated valley has such unlimited value for community development.

"In California the development of a tract starts the minute a piece of property is taken," Mr. Weeks said. At the end of two years the fruit trees are properly trained and are bearing.

"A man has to be farm minded to succeed. If he is not, we soon find it out, and I go to him and try to get him to let me sell his place for him so that he will not lose everything he has, and so that the community will retain its high standard."

Speakers of the evening, in addition to Mr. Weeks, Mr. Kell, Mr. Harrell, Mr. Bridwell and Mr. Bullington included J. A. Kemp, M. Johnson, Col. William White of New York, James Baber, James Marlow, R. O. Kenley and J. C. Ward.

DR. SANDIFER TO SPEAK HERE

Educator Will Take Platform for Hoover

Dr. Jefferson Davis Sandifer, president of Simmons university of Abilene, will speak in the Wichita Falls Memorial auditorium at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening, it was announced at the anti-Smith Democratic headquarters Friday.

Dr. Sandifer, a pioneer Texas educator, will make a political address on behalf of Herbert Hoover and will be introduced by C. H. Clark of Wichita Falls.

Mr. Clark will reply to statements made recently at the auditorium by A. H. Carrigan and John C. Kay, in a short speech which will precede Dr. Sandifer's talk, it was announced.

BUILDING PERMIT GIVEN

A permit for the construction of a brick veneer house at 3219 Miami was issued by the city clerk's office Friday. The residence will cost $5,000 and will be built by R. E. Lee.

State Grants Charter To Corporation Here

A state charter was granted Friday to Palmer and Burch, Inc., according to an Associated Press dispatch to The Record News. The company is an incorporation of an old partnership formerly known as the Chenault-Palmer and Burch Oil company.

The newly chartered corporation has a capital stock of $100,000 with W. F. Palmer, G. R. Burch and Lenore Shaw a sincorporators, with offices in the Waggoner building.
