Unemployment falls to 4.8%

Stock prices soar amid lowest levels since 1973

By Dave Skidmore
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate dropped to 4.8 percent in May, a level last seen when Richard Nixon was president.

Wall Street cheered, sending stock prices to record levels despite talk the strong economy will push interest rates up.

After four consecutive monthly declines, the jobless rate is now the lowest since November 1973, the Labor Department said Friday.

"Anyone who wants to work pretty much can, given a modicum level of skills and training," said economist Mark Zandi of Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa.

"That's pretty much across the country, from Boston to San Francisco, and across industries," he said. "Employers are increasingly having a difficult time finding unemployed people who want to work."

That's not to say that everyone has benefited equally. The May rate was 3.8 percent for adult men and 4.5 percent for adult women. But for teens it was 15.6 percent and for black teens, 33.2 percent. For all blacks, the rate was 10.3 percent, for Hispanics, 7.4 percent, and for whites, 4 percent.

"While there is much to celebrate about the economy, we must work to ensure that everyone shares in this economic prosperity," said Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., noting that unemployment in his home state appears stuck at 6.5 percent.

Bond prices initially tumbled in reaction to the report. The fear is that tight labor markets will cause employers to bid up wages and raise product prices to compensate — and that the Federal Reserve will seek to dampen inflation pressures by raising short-term interest rates.

McVeigh trial

Clint Seidl is surrounded by fellow victims' family members as they wait to enter the U.S. Courthouse in Denver, Colo., Friday, June 6, 1997, during the penalty phase of the Timothy McVeigh bombing trial. Survivors and victims' relatives line up each morning in front of the courthouse door to gain entrance. Seidl was scheduled to testify, but the judge found his statement to be too inflammatory.

Customs note

Midland International Airport's federal designation as a border-entry airport took effect Friday. The designation allows the airport's U.S. Customs Service agent to process more general aviation aircraft entering the United States from Mexico and is expected to increase business development at the airport. The designation was a joint venture of Midland-Odessa civic and business leaders and the aviation community.

Daughter puts dad up for BIG man's contest

By Dana Bartholomew
Staff Writer

He's big enough. He's good enough. He's cool enough. He's my dad.

Such sentiments, from an 11-year-old Midland girl, were enough to send daughter and dad to New York next week as finalists in the "world's biggest fashion event" for vertically and horizontally unhindered men.

David Floyd, a 400-pound Midland geologist, will don haute couture Wednesday for a 1-in-10 shot at "the most beloved big guy" at Manhattan's trendy Fashion Cafe. Floyd is the only finalist from Texas.

And Meagan, whose three-paragraph essay vaulted dad over 2,100 national nominees for the "Big Guys are Good Guys Contest" finals, will riff lovingly on her father before such judges as baseball MVP Frank "Big Hurt" Thomas and Dr. Ruth, nationally syndicated sexologist.

The Floyds, needless to say, are stunned by their opportunity.

"I'm speechless," said Floyd, 36, a Tulsa native who grew up in Wichita Falls and graduated from Midland Lee High School.

"Us poor little podunks from Midland doing something trendy like that — we'll be out of place, won't we?"

When two weeks ago Floyd opened a Fed-Ex invitation saying "You're one of 10 finalists ..." he thought it was a joke, he said. Debbie, his wife, wept. Meagan almost fainted.

"They said big, good guys and I thought my dad was a big, good guy," said Meagan, a shy redhead who'd submitted her essay after shopping with her dad at a Rochester Big and Tall men's store in Dallas. Rochester, a San Francisco-based clothier, is the contest's sponsor.

The contest, the store's first, was open to any man standing taller than 6-feet, 2-inches or sporting a jacket larger than a size 46 who "made a big difference in people's lives."

Next week's finalists will be judged on their magnitude as role models during a 3-minute presentation by their nominators.

And unbeknown to Floyd this week, they will also be scrutinized for their dapper ability to saunter down Fashion Cafe's 20-foot runway before such supermodel co-owners as Claudia Schiffer, Naomi Campbell, Elle MacPherson and Christy Turlington.

"People going to work in the morning can see the guys on the runway," said Carol McConnaughy of the Fashion Cafe, in Rockefeller Center. "So you'll get a lot of spectators looking in."

"Oh yeah, I'm real fashionable."

Floyd joked upon being told of his fashion debut. "My idea of fashion is boots and jeans."

And oh, he adds in a whisper, "Claudia Schiffer is supposed to be there."

Meagan, an avid hockey fan and fifth-grade student at Greathouse Elementary, had good reason to nominate her father.

Conoco plans exploration in national park

From Staff and Wire Reports

SALT LAKE CITY — Conoco officials Friday said the company has begun moving equipment to its state of Utah lease in the Reese Canyon area of the new Grand Staircase-Escalante National Monument to prepare the site for exploratory oil or natural gas drilling. Though within its boundaries, state acreage is exempted from the monument and is held in trust for Utah schools which would share in any oil or natural gas-related income.

"I have absolute confidence in our ability to work safely and with maximum regard for the land," said Conoco president and CEO Archie W. Dunham. "Respect for the environment is a core value to each Conoco employee. Even though the Reese Canyon lease is not in a particularly scenic part of the monument, we will treat the land there as a treasured resource."

Conoco said its work on the state lease at Reese Canyon will be confined to approximately two acres. "That represents about on one-millionth of the monument area," said Bob Ireland. Conoco regional manager for its mid-continent exploration and production operations headquartered in Midland.

Said Ireland: "I have every expectation that we will prove our ability to work within the monument while safeguarding

State may seek death penalty for Frederick Keck

By Alice Ashmore
Staff Writer

Seventeen-year-old Frederick Keck of Midland could face the death penalty when he goes to trial for the alleged capital murder of 53-year-old Helen Johnson, an Odessa school teacher.

"A final decision on that (seeking the death penalty) has not been made, but we are proceeding forward in that direction," Midland Assistant District Attorney Eric Kalenak said Friday.

Pretrial hearings took place Friday in 385th District Court before Judge Willie DuBose. Among the 20 pretrial motions filed by the defense was a motion to poll residents of Midland County to see if a fair trial could be held in Midland.

Participants get ready for 10th annual Ranch Rodeo

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

West Texas ranchers and their cowboys will be "back in the saddle again" on their favorite mounts next week demonstrating ranch work's trials and routines in the 10th annual Midland Ranch Rodeo and Western Heritage Week.

The event will recognize "the integrity that it takes to endure the hardships" associated with ranching and will salute the founders of the 1988-established Ranch Rodeo, according to J.P. "Pat" McDaniel, who is directing the annual event.

"There are generations that are coming up that need to know that things don't just happen," McDaniel said in alluding to the Western ranch heritage that is rooted in lore and reality stemming from the late 1800s.

The focus of the week will be the 6 p.m. Saturday, June 14, Ranch Rodeo where cowhands from nine West Texas ranches will compete

Military balance tilts toward Muslims, Croats in Bosnia

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Tanks and armored personnel carriers roared in formation along hedgerows, laying a well-timed smokescreen for advancing infantry. In the distance, gunners barked out coordinates for a mock artillery barrage.

Bosnian officers at the first post-war maneuvers of the army's Fifth Corps beamed with pride at the coordination of its units and enthusiasm of its troops.

"Our objective is to create a modern, professional fighting force, using standard NATO doctrine," declared Gen. Rasim Delic, commander-in-chief of Bosnia's Muslim-Croat federation army and a standout artillery officer in the old communist Yugoslav military.

The Fifth Corps' showing in the exercises illustrates the transformation of the Bosnian army, which was hurriedly formed under Serb attack in 1992 as a makeshift force of home guards, street toughs and policemen.

Western training and an influx of modern Western armaments are gradually shifting the balance of power between the former — and possibly future — adversaries.

For the past year, the federation army has been trained by Military Professional Resources Inc., a Virginia-based company run by a group of retired U.S. generals. The same group helped neighboring Croatia turn its army into a modern fighting force that stunned Serb rebel foes in 1995.

The $400 million "equip and train" program for the Bosnian army, financed by Washington and moderate Muslim countries, is designed to create military parity with the Bosnian Serbs, who used their superiority in armored forces to devastating effect during the 3 1/2-year Bosnian war.

Washington has donated 45 M60 tanks, 80 armored personnel carriers, 15 helicopters, and other equipment. The United Arab Emirates are delivering 100 French-made AMX-30 tanks and APCs, and 116 U.S. howitzers are on their way.

In contrast, the Serb army has been in steady decline since the 1995 Dayton peace accord, which ended fighting in Bosnia. The agreement created a joint Bosnian state with two entities: the Muslim-Croat Federation and the Serb Republic.

But Serbs have reneged on the agreement's central provision: repatriation of hundreds of thousands of Muslim and Croat refugees they expelled during the war. This is putting political pressure on the federation government to consider regaining territory by unleashing a new war.

With 30,000 NATO-led peacekeepers serving as a buffer, fighting is unlikely until next June, when the force is scheduled to depart.

During recent Bosnian army exercises, coordinators from Military Professional Resources Inc. led an artillery group through a scaled-down approximation of an actual attack. After the "bombardment," tanks kicking up clouds of smoke and dust pushed forward, and foot soldiers bound through the rocky terrain behind them.

While the American advisers rarely talk to reporters, NATO officers monitoring the exercise praised the army's staff and logistics work.

Surprisingly, in view of the long-term threat posed by the Bosnian army, the governing Serbian Democratic Party has weakened its forces by purging the officer corps, replacing wartime commanders with political hacks. Its new head, Lt. Gen. Pero Colic — a sergeant in the Yugoslav army until 1992 — owes his rapid promotions to close ties with the party leadership.

"We are watching the graph going upwards on the federation side, and coming downwards on the other side," said a NATO general who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Trying to retain military superiority, Serbs have refused to cut heavy weapons to levels specified by a disarmament accord. It allocates 273 tanks and 1,000 artillery pieces to the federation, and 137 tanks and 500 guns to the Serbs.

Serbs have about 1,000 tanks and artillery pieces over the limit, said David Foley, a spokesman for the organization overseeing the arms control process.

The international community has retaliated by blocking aid to the Serbs, leaving their republic one of Europe's poorest regions. Monthly salaries average just $30.

"The Serbs' main military problem now is their poverty," said Djuro Kozar, a Sarajevo military expert. "They cannot afford to maintain the bulk of their weapons."

Lack of cash means Serb soldiers' pay is late, and all army exercises are curtailed.

Morale has plunged, fed in part by the plight of families of Serb soldiers killed or maimed in the war.

RODEO: Events begin Friday night in five events at the Midland County Arena near the Midland County Exhibit Building east of town.

(From 1A)

"I just enjoy the Ranch Rodeo," said Scharbauer Ranches cowboy Lex Crawford, who has competed in each of the rodeos since the first one in 1988. "You see a lot of people you neighbor with" and help out in roundups and other ranching chores.

Rodeo events will include wild-cow milking, steer doctoring, team sorting, calf-branding, and double mugging. Ranch teams who have signed up for the Ranch Rodeo are those from the Lone X Ranch, Reynolds Ranch, the NT Ranch, the Y Bar O Ranch, Hooper's Triple Seven (777) Ranch, the Scharbauer Ranches, Cedar Mountain Ranch, the Munsell Ranch, and the Dean Ranch.

Events on Ranch Rodeo day will include cooking at the chuckwagon, singing of cowboy songs, telling of tales, and the showing of cowboy equipment and wear in the Bit, Spur, & Collectibles Show.

Kicking off the Western Heritage Week will be the 10:30 a.m. Sunday, June 8, "Preaching on the Porch" and "Dinner on the Ground" event sponsored by the Midland County Historical Society (MCHS) at the historic Brown-Dorsey Medallion Home at 213 N. Weatherford St. just east of downtown Midland off Illinois Avenue.

People who would like prepared box-lunches following the preaching and singing by cowboy minister Leonard Cotten and the Country Chapel Worship Team may telephone MCHS President Nancy McKinley in at 682-2931.

The dramatization of the 1907 "Wedding of Sarah Brown" will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday, and Saturday at the Brown-Dorsey Medallion Home.

Then, on Friday, ranchers and their hands will be moving in their chuckwagons to the Ranch Rodeo grounds, and horse-traders and other dealers will be setting up the Bit, Spur, & Collectibles Show.

There will be singing of cowboy Western songs around the campfire at 9 p.m. Friday, June 13, and Saturday, June 14, by Trudy Fair of Weatherford, R.W. Hampton of Stead, N.M., and Jeff Gore of Austin.

At the Ranch Rodeo, McDaniel said that the principal founders of the event will be recognized. Those include Candi Cowden, John Butler, Bill Collyns, Ralph Powell, and the late Charlie Welch, who had noted that the Ranch Rodeo was conceived to "honor the ranch heritage of the community," to provide wholesome family entertainment, and to benefit the Midland County Livestock Show for youngsters.

A team of Percheron draft work horses named Bert and Bart, owned by Jim and Belinda Hecht of Aspermont, will be carrying spectators to the Ranch Rodeo grounds.

Times for Ranch Rodeo happenings include:

■ Friday, June 13: 9 p.m. Cowboy Singing at the campfire.

■ Saturday, June 14: 9 a.m., opening of the Bit & Spur Show; noon to 2 p.m., Chuckwagon Feed; 3 p.m., Ugly Truck Contest; 6 p.m., Ranch Rodeo events; 6:15 p.m., presentation of chuckwagon awards; 7 p.m., Cowboy Singing at the campfires, and 9 p.m., Ranch Rodeo Dance featuring Craig Carter & Spur of the Moment Band.

■ Sunday, June 15: 9 a.m., Bit & Spur Show; 9-10:15 a.m., 4-H Club Omelette Breakfast; 10:30 a.m., Cowboy Church Service, and 11:30 a.m., Youth Playday.

WHAT'S NEW & HOT FOR '97

NEW TEXAS SAGE/SILVER SAGE
A superior seedling selection with a silver gray foliage and profuse purple blooms that appear summer through fall. A dense rounded habit, this shrub is a dwarf, reaching only about 4 foot by 4 foot. Leaves are more evergreen and have a more appealing year round habit. Available in #5 Gallon size.

BLACK-EYED STELLA DAYLILY
ALL AMERICAN DAYLILY - This hardy heat tolerant Daylily blooms from EARLY SUMMER till frost (150 to 180 days per year when established). Good for borders, ground cover, or containers. Full sun is ideal, but will grow in areas that get 6 hours a day or more. This plant is so special it has the first and only patent ever issued for a Daylily! Available in #1 Gallon and #3 Gallon size!

CLEYERA
TERNSTROEMIA COPPER CROWN - A more compact full growth habit. New foliage has a copper coloration.

BOSTON IVY LOWII
DWARF LEAF BOSTON IVY- much smaller that the standard. Leaf size is approximately the size of a quarter. Leave turn a brilliant red in the fall.

MEXICAN FLAME VINE
This annual vine has by far the showiest blooms we have seen on any vining plant. Brilliant fluorescent orange blooms from spring till frost. Don't pass this one up!

BIG: Contest aims to show big guys are good

(From 1A)

When Meagan said she wanted to be the first girl to play roller hockey in the Midland Inline Hockey League (in addition to the first woman goalie in the NHL), Floyd had her signed up within a week.

And when Meagan's Red Wings suddenly found themselves without a coach this spring, Floyd, by invitation from the team, didn't hesitate to assume the role.

Never mind he'd never been on Rollerblades in his life and his only experience as coach was couchside during televised hockey games.

"With or without ice, it's the COOLEST GAME and he's the COOLEST COACH," Meagan says her contest essay. With Meagan covering the net, the Red Wings managed a third-place finish for the season.

"Go Meagan, skate!" shouts Floyd, zinging a forward pass during a practice session with his daughter at Reyes/Mashburn/Nelms Park inline hockey rink.

"Break away, break away, break out!"

Floyd, at nearly 400 pounds, cuts a Liberty-Bell figure with his 60-inch waist. But like other "Bug Guy" contestants, he's unabashed at being big.

"I'm not a bad guy," said Floyd, a jovial man who can chuckle at his own expense. "I'm fat, so what?"

But Floyd has also taken a lifelong beating for his obesity. At birth, he weighed 9 pounds, 9 ounces and by his graduation from Lee he was 6-foot-1, 240 pounds.

He's ignored whispers at the mall and taunts about town.

"I'm trying to get rid of the stereotype of big, grumpy guys, 'cause you get that 'fat slob, grumpy pig'" commentary and, interjects Meagan sadly, "Santa Claus.

"Why wouldn't it make me mad?" she asks, "people looking funny at my dad."

"There's a (negative) connotation we associate with big people," said Marc Altieri, spokesman for the contest. "(But) some of these people are pretty amazing."

Unlike his 380-pound California roommate, who at 5-foot-10 is "just pathetic and never gets off the couch," Altieri said finalists like Floyd "are doing things."

Like the 380-pound finalist who has volunteered 20 hours a week for 20 years for the Red Cross near Boston. Or the 280-pound entry who started Athletes Helping Kids to benefit young survivors of the Oklahoma City bombing and opened clinics in 900 cities. Or the 270-pound man who rescues children from crack houses in Washington D.C.

"And this year you've got the people like Floyd, a family man who's your basic 8-hour (a day), 40-hour a week guy who makes the extra time for his family ... for being a good dad ... and for coaching his team well.

"And he couldn't even Rollerblade."

But not all of the contest's 2,100 entries were stellar role models, Altieri said.

"We got these guys at 6-foot-3, wearing Speedos (in photos), looking like body builders ... who obviously missed the point of the contest."

On Monday, Floyd and his daughter will be flown to New York and put up in the Doral Tuscany Hotel in Midtown, with a $75 a day per diem and lunch with Thomas of the Chicago White Sox.

Wednesday's winner will receive $5,000 in Rochester duds and a stretch limo for "a guy's night out" with the two-time American League most valuable player.

Wife Debbie Floyd and son Montgomery, 6, will accompany the father-daughter duo to such sites as the Empire State building, Tiffany's and an obligatory excursion to Madison Square Garden, home of the New York Rangers.

"It's going to be a blast," he said. "I'm excited about going. "It's a big honor to be selected out of 2,100 people."

To the Floyds, however, dad's already a winner.

"We've already won," Floyd said. "Just being one of the 10 is winning to me. We're just really simple people — home, church — we're not really glitzy."

"A fun weekend for us is going to the zoo in Fort Worth, or a (Dallas Stars) hockey game."

In time, however, Floyd may no longer contend for Big Hero, and big clothes, which he says can run $30 for a t-shirt, $50 for jeans and $80 for a garden variety dress shirt — if he can find them.

After learning he is diabetic, the self-admitted "sweetaholic" has dropped 50 pounds in an effort to alter his lifestyle.

"It's no fun," Floyd said. "No sugar, no candy, no Cokes, no cake. Black forest cake, oooh, I miss it. Snickers, Butter Finger, Score bars — that's part of the reason I'm so big."

But for now, Floyd is glad to be a big hero. And a likely winner of "Big Guys are Good Guys."

The same day he recieved his invitation, his wife won a trip to Los Angeles from a local television station. The same week she won $212 from a local radio station, her second radio bonanza.

"We're waiting on the lottery," Floyd said, shaking a ticket. "That's the only thing we've never won."

the purposes for which it was created."

Ireland told a news conference that Conoco has repeatedly sought serious dialogues with the U.S. Department of the Interior and with environmental organizations to discuss the feasibility of swapping its acreage in the monument boundaries for government-controlled acreage elsewhere with similar potential. "There has been no indication that a serious discussion for an exchange is likely, even though we have held off drilling for more than 60 days to see if we could work together toward a solution," Irelan said.

"The federal Bureau of Land Management in Salt Lake City has conducted an environmental assessment of our adjacent federal leases at Reese Canyon and reports that our proposal to drill and possible to develop a single well there does not indicate a significant impact to warrant a more detailed environmental impact statement," he said.

"During all this, the clock is ticking on our leases. We have leases that will expire later this year unless we undertake exploration activity on them soon."

Irelan said that even though Conoco will begin drilling at its state lease at Reese Canyon, it still is willing to discuss an exchange of properties if the DOI and the environmental organizations come forward with a fully valued exchange opportunity.

Irelan said preparing the site for drilling would take two to three weeks, and another two weeks would be required to set up a drilling rig. Once drilling commences, it will take the company about 70 days to reach the target depth of more than 14,000 feet.

He said results of such an exploratory well could range from dry hole to a major strike.

Under a development scenario at Reese Canyon, Irelan said no more than 100 surface acres would be disturbed. Compared to the size of the monument, that amount of land would be proportionate to two pieces of standard size notebook paper on a football field.

"Development would require no new roads, and needed pipelines would be buried adjacent to existing roads," Irelan said. "As far as producing wells are concerned, today's technology allows such a well be no more than a short length of pipe protruding from the ground, with some gauges attached. Pumping mechanisms are below the surface, and the only surface evidence of the well is confined to a very few square yards."

appointed attorneys, said, "We are considering hiring an independent polling company to determine whether or not too much information has been made public."

Cantacuzene characterized the motions for discovery as "mostly routine."

Also filed Friday by defense was a motion to declare the death penalty unconstitutional on the grounds that it is cruel and unusual punishment.

Cantacuzene cited recent action by the American Bar Association. "They (the ABA) have proposed a moratorium on the application of the death penalty." He added that Georgia is already considering such a ban.

The state is seeking more information before making a final decision to seek the death penalty. "We need to look more into his background and his propensity for committing future crimes," Kalenak said.

The circumstances of the case make it a capital crime, "The murder was committed in the course of another felony crime — burglary of a habitation," Kalenak said.

The nature of the crime is also considered by the state in seeking the death penalty. Kalenak noted, "The facts are more sensational than your average murder."

Keck was Ms. Johnson's next-door-neighbor at the time of the murder. Three other 17-year-olds are charged with lesser crimes related to Ms. Johnson's murder.

Cantacuzene told the Reporter-Telegram Friday, "We are considering a motion for a change of venue. It is a little to early to tell."

The case is scheduled to go to trial September 15, said Cantacuzene.

Midland attorney Cliff Hardwick is the lead attorney in Keck's defense.

U.S. envoy demands probe of refugee massacres in Congo

upport for President Laurent Kabila's government will depend on his willingness to clean up his human rights record and democratize Congo, Washington's ambassador to the United Nations said Friday.

Kabila's administration, still in its infancy, already has a human rights record that worries Washington. The United States is particularly concerned about allegations that Kabila's fighters slaughtered Rwandan refugees when they swept across the country in their war to oust dictator Mobutu Sese Seko.

"We want the reports of those massacres investigated. We want those involved in these massacres to be punished," Ambassador Bill Richardson told reporters on arriving in the capital, Kinshasa.

Richardson planned to visit refugee areas in the east of the country Saturday after meeting with Kabila in southern Congo.

The ambassador praised Kabila's promise to hold elections in two years and his creation of a government including representatives of various political affiliations. But the United States, he said, expects more.

"The level of American engagement is going to depend on the type of policies that are pursued by the Kabila government in the political, economic and humanitarian areas," Richardson said.

Kabila, who rules by decree and has banned political activity, must move more swiftly toward full democracy, he said.

The government has backed down from earlier assertions it had nothing to do with the alleged massacres of Rwandan refugees, acknowledging some may have been killed in cross fire during the civil war.

Kabila, apparently wanting to avoid spending the first months of his administration on the defensive, agreed this week to designate a Cabinet minister to deal with the United Nations on the plight of refugees in Congo.

It was far from an admission of wrongdoing, but indicated he was moving toward taking more responsibility for refugees' well-being to secure international aid.

A delegation from the U.S. Agency for International Development arrived Tuesday to assess whether to resume its assistance program to Congo now that Mobutu's discredited regime is gone.

Before the abrupt aid cutoff in 1991, the country formerly known as Zaire received an average of more than $40 million a year in U.S. assistance during a 15-year period, much of it in loans that have never been repaid.

Since the beginning of the year, the United Nations has sent about 225,000 Rwandan refugees back home by land and by air. Another 60 were to be flown home Friday.

Nearly all the refugees are Hutus who fled Rwanda for fear of reprisals after the 1994 slaughter there of a half-million Tutsis by militant Hutus. They have accused Kabila and his Tutsi-backed army, which was heavily backed by Rwanda's Tutsi-led government, of targeting them.

The Rwandan connection has dogged Kabila since his army's victorious May 17 arrival in Kinshasa, prompting opposition militants to accuse him of making the country a colony of Rwanda.

Fresh protests Friday involved supporters of opposition leader Etienne Tshisekedi who marched through downtown chanting "No to dictatorship, no to recolonization of our country!"

"If we owe them something for liberating us, we will pay the debt, but they must go home," one marcher, Panzu Sukama, said of Kabila's Rwandan backers.

The march began with about 50 people and grew to 1,000. A truck carrying soldiers followed alongside but did not intervene despite a ban on political protests.

Kobe killer taunts police in newspaper letter

TOKYO (AP) — A man who claims to have beheaded a schoolboy threatened in a letter published Friday to kill three more people a week, expressing hatred for Japan's high-pressure, conformist education system.

The letter was received by a newspaper in Kobe, the city where the boy's head was found May 27. Police said the handwriting appears to match a note found in the mouth of the 11-year-old mentally handicapped boy.

The killing has been a big story in a country that is unaccustomed to violent crime. The latest letter appeared Friday on front pages of national newspapers and quickly became the focus of TV talk shows.

"I am putting my life at stake for the sake of this game," said the letter, which the Kobe Shimbun newspaper received Wednesday by mail. "If I'm caught, I'll probably be hanged ... police should be angrier and more tenacious in pursuing me."

The rambling and sometimes incoherent 1,400-word letter describes killing as a kind of release and included a threat to kill "vegetables" — a word police took to be the writer's disparaging term for people.

"It's only when I kill that I am liberated from the constant hatred that I suffer and that I am able to attain peace. It is only when I give pain to people that I can ease my own pain."

It was signed "Seito Sakakibara" or "Apostle Sake Devil Rose." The writer claimed that is his real name. He was apparently angered that "devil's rose," words that turned up on the first note, were interpreted to be an alias.

"From now on, if you misread my name or spoil my mood I will kill three vegetables (people) a week," the letter said. "If you think I can only kill children you are greatly mistaken."

The letter published Friday expresses hatred for Japan's education system, renowned for its quality and discipline, but also for bullying.

"I haven't forgotten to take revenge on the compulsory education which formed me, an invisible person, and also the society which created it," the letter says.

Jun Hase, 11, of Kobe, had been missing for several days when his head was found in front of a junior high school in the city, where a devastating earthquake killed 6,300 people two years ago. His body was later found on a hill 500 yards away.

Police believe the killing could be related to two assaults in March in the same neighborhood, 270 miles west of Tokyo. One girl was killed and another seriously injured in those attacks.

Investigators reportedly also have noted similarities with the so-called Zodiac killer in the San Francisco area in the 1960s.

A cross-like symbol was found on notes by both killers and some of the contents of the messages were similar, Japanese media have quoted unidentified police sources as saying.

The San Francisco killings by someone calling himself "The Zodiac" were never solved and the case remains officially open.

While the letter published in Kobe on Friday was also taunting, it did not appear to have any other similarities to the Zodiac letters.

At Last! How to buy a new Central Air System for less than $18/week with lower electric bills ... and best of all, you choose no payment, no interest for one full year or 9.9% interest or $500 rebate.
But you must act now while the special circumstances that created this unique offer are still available.

Air Conditioning, Refrigeration & Plumbing
7900 WEST HIGHWAY 80 • MIDLAND, TEXAS 79706-2825 • (915) 561-9440

Dear Friend,
Right now I have created a new program that will allow homeowners to buy a new central air system with no money down and less than $18 per week. Actually with this program, homeowners will probably be able to buy a new system without taking any money out of their pocket. I'll explain later. You may be thinking

"Why Would He Make This Incredible Offer?"
The answer is simple. Summer is almost here. At this time of year my calls start to slow down because it is so early in the season. Most people, whether they are having problems with their air conditioner, or it's just an old inefficient unit, are not thinking of replacement. They would be miserable now and wait until next year to change out their system. And right now, it is still too cool out for them to think about replacement of their system. This creates a problem for me and

My Problem Is Your Opportunity
Every year I have to guess how many air conditioners and furnaces to buy to meet the "Emergency Demand". Of course I'm never exactly right. These systems are brand new 1997 models. They are NOT seconds or blems or standard "builder" models. They are factory fresh Amana air conditioners and furnaces and have a full factory warranty.

Here's How You Benefit From My Problem
In order to create a demand for these systems, I negotiated a plan to give me a financial program with a low interest rate and low monthly payments that would be irresistible to those who would normally wait until next year to install a new system. Right now you can buy a new central air conditioner and furnace with NO money down and less that $18 a week.
No other company in the Permian Basin is willing to give you such an incredible offer, and

There Is Another Remarkable Advantage.
If your central system is over 10 years old, the money you save on utility costs could be enough to offset the monthly payment on your new system. Image that - "buy a new central heating and cooling system without taking any money out of your pocket" It's like having the electric company buy you a new air conditioner and furnace. Here's the best part

Ironclad Guarantee
I'm so confident that you will save at least 25% off your utility bills (I'm projecting more like 30% to 50%) that I will pay you Double the Difference if you don't the first year. There is no way you can lose. If these Amana systems were not among the best on the market, I couldn't afford to make such a promise

Here's How
Just call Carol at 561-9440 anytime and she will set up an appointment for your FREE survey. A design consultant will come and measure your home (and determine the availability of the proper size) and explain this new, fantastic financing plan that I have created. Don't forget, I only have match systems. When they are gone, this remarkable offer ends.

No obligation
Even after we come out and explain the installation and the finance plan, there is no obligation. If you decide you don't want to take advantage of the spectacular offer - that's okay. I will give you a surprise gift worth $50 because you are kind enough to read this letter and give me a chance to solve my problem. I want you to think good of Claire's Services even if you don't buy.
Please call us now at 561-9440. Thank you for reading this rather long letter. I hope you will profit greatly because of it.

For Greater Comfort,
Tim Claire, President

Call 561-9440

PS. Six months from now, this will probably be the most appreciated opportunity ever extended to homeowners in the Permian Basin. Every one of the proud owners will have an unfair advantage over the utility company.

PPS. Don't forget ... if your air conditioner and furnace is over 10 years old, a rewarding $50 surprise gift awaits you. And there is no obligation.

Dems urge even enforcement of codes against adultery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force Gen. Joseph Ralston's bid to become the nation's top military officer was in serious doubt Friday, as senior Democrats urged the Clinton administration to ensure the military evenly enforces its codes against adultery.

Defense Secretary William Cohen went to Capitol Hill on Friday to measure sentiment against the possible promotion of Ralston to chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff following disclosure that Ralston had an adulterous affair in the 1980s. Even lawmakers willing to give Ralston the benefit of the doubt were sounding pessimistic.

As Cohen met with senior lawmakers, new names surfaced at the Pentagon for possible promotion to the Joint Chief's post. And some senior military officers suggested privately that Ralston withdraw his name from consideration to spare Cohen and President Clinton further embarrassment.

The White House pointedly avoided questions about whether Ralston should be promoted. Asked whether the Pentagon was following a double standard, treating Ralston more leniently than women and lower-ranking officers, Vice President Al Gore said, "We think that there should properly be a high standard and the secretary of defense is in agreement with that."

Sen. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., the Senate minority leader, said the military must enforce the rules of conduct equally.

"That has to be the guiding determination here. Is it being applied similarly?" Daschle said. "If it isn't, then I think the Pentagon needs to re-evaluate whether this nomination ought to go forward."

Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said the "burden of proof" was on the Clinton administration to show that Ralston deserved the job.

"The timing here, the coincidence of events is very awkward and makes this nomination more difficult," said Lieberman, a reference to the recent dismissal of Air Force bomber pilot Kelly Flinn for adultery and other offenses. "Bill Clinton may be able to make the case, but my worry would be, unless it's a very strong case, what message does that send down the chain of command about what behavior will be tolerated?"

Asked if Clinton was concerned about the reaction that women's groups would have to a Ralston promotion, White House spokesman Mike McCurry said, "He understands that people have to know the facts and learn more about this and we'll see what they'll think."

Ralston is now vice chairman of the Joint Chiefs, a post he gained before his superiors knew of his affair 13 years ago with a civilian employee of the CIA.

The Ralston affair came to light just a few days after the Air Force ended the career of the first female B-52 pilot in Air Force history. Flinn, a first lieutenant, was granted a general discharge in lieu of court-martial for adultery, lying, disobeying orders and fraternization.

Asked the difference between the two cases, McCurry said, "I'm not aware General Ralston had been charged with insubordination or lying."

Ralston's affair occurred while he was legally separated from his wife, whom he later divorced. Flinn had an affair with the husband of an Air Force enlisted woman, then denied it to her superiors and disobeyed an order to break off contact with the man.

But Ralston's conduct — including his failure to report the affair until recently, when news organizations began asking questions — is being compared to that of Air Force Lt. Gen. Thomas R. Griffith. In 1995, Griffith reported to his superiors that he had committed adultery with a civilian. In that 1995 case, Ralston was the enforcer. He stripped Griffith, a 28-year veteran, of his command of the 12th Air Force because, the Air Force said, Ralston had "lost confidence in Griffith's ability to command due to inappropriate personal conduct."

The buzz words circling around this latest military sex controversy were "double standard," over whether Ralston was getting more lenient treatment than others, and "witch hunt," over whether the military has gone overboard in enforcing codes governing personal behavior.

While military law does not specifically bar adultery, the code against conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline in the military has long been applied to adultery cases. Typically, those cases must involve more than just infidelity and include an additional element, such as an affair with a subordinate or the spouse of a service member. It is this concept that Cohen has been emphasizing in defending Ralston.

"The president believes the secretary is correct, that the issue is good order and discipline and not necessarily adultery," McCurry said. However, McCurry said Clinton was not taking a position on whether Ralston should be promoted.

That issue is still in Cohen's hands and the defense chief told members of the Senate Armed Services Committee in a closed meeting Friday that he would wait until he meets Ralston face to face before making a decision. Ralston has been traveling in Asia on official business — accompanied by his second wife, not the woman with whom he had the affair. The four-star general is due back in Washington on Monday.

Pentagon officials who have been in contact with Ralston said he was in a fighting mood to attain the coveted Joint Chiefs chairmanship, replacing Army Gen. John Shalikashvili, who is retiring this summer.

Meanwhile, two new names emerged as possible candidates for the job: Adm. Joseph Lopez, commander of Navy forces in Europe and the likely choice to succeed Ralston should the general get the top job; and Army Gen. Wesley Clark, head of the U.S. Southern Command.

Report: Engineer voiced concerns about water slide

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A city engineer raised concerns about the water slides at a theme park years before a collapse Monday that killed a teen-ager and injured 32 others, the San Jose Mercury News reported Friday.

Nevertheless, the city of Concord issued permits to the attraction.

Concord officials said Thursday the engineer's concerns two years ago had nothing to do with the collapse, which happened when 33 youngsters piled onto the Banzai Pipeline. The chute broke apart, dropping some of the teen-agers 40 feet.

Park officials said the weight of the teen-agers was simply too much for the slide, a contention that was supported Thursday by a Houston engineer hired by the park to investigate.

Two building department documents obtained by the newspaper showed that a former Concord city engineer, Nick Theophanous, had questions about the design of towers at the 20-acre attraction before it opened.

Theophanous wrote the note "potential failures" next to a drawing of a flange in documents about the park. A week later, he was dismissed. City spokeswoman Emily Hopkins would not say why.

The newspaper said files it obtained indicate Theophanous was told by his supervisor to approve the project without further checking of the slide once he was assured that the city would not be held financially responsible in case of an accident.

Clinton, GOP wrangle over disaster aid bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton and congressional Republicans wrestled for political advantage Friday over a veto-threatened $8.6 billion bill that combines disaster relief with unrelated provisions unacceptable to the White House.

"Unfortunately, the Republican leaders of Congress have chosen the path of partisanship and confrontation," Clinton said in a written statement that reaffirmed his intention to reject the measure. He called on lawmakers to "honor the sacrifice and aid the recovery" of disaster victims by passing a revised bill he will sign.

Countered House Majority Leader Dick Armey of Texas, "This is a good bill. It comprehensively responds to the needs" of the nation. He urged Americans to call the White House and urge Clinton to sign the measure.

Ironically, the bill's funding has generated relatively little controversy. It includes $5.6 billion in relief for victims of natural disasters in 35 states, the flood-ravaged Dakotas and Minnesota among them. Also contained in the measure is $1.9 billion for the Pentagon, much of it to cover expenses incurred by peacekeeping operations in Bosnia.

Clinton's objections centered around two other GOP-inspired provisions.

One is designed to prevent a government shutdown this fall, regardless of whether the White House and Congress reach agreement on regular spending bills. And while it would provide for continued funding beyond the Sept. 30 end of the fiscal year, Democrats said it allows less money than is envisioned in the balanced budget accord recently negotiated between the White House and the GOP leadership.

The second provision would ban the Census Bureau from using sampling techniques to provide a more accurate count of Americans in the 2000 census. Republicans argue that approach is of dubious constitutionality, and say they are willing to provide Census officials with enough money to physically count everyone.

Beyond that, Republicans fear that if sampling is used, their majority in the House could be in jeopardy when legislative district lines are redrawn in several states before the 2002 elections.

The measure cleared Congress Thursday night. After initially indicating they would ship it to the White House as early as Friday, Republicans said it would be Monday before the bill makes the 16-block journey down Pennsylvania Avenue. The delay means Clinton cannot cast his veto while lawmakers are away from the Capitol for a long weekend.

Nor would Republicans discuss what action they would take to pass a follow-up bill once the veto is cast.

In the interim, the Republican National Committee announced plans for radio advertising effort beginning this weekend in Minnesota and North Dakota. "Bill Clinton says no to disaster relief because the bill would also prevent another government shutdown," says the commercial. "A shutdown that could keep the government from getting that disaster aid to you and your community."

And increasingly, the disaster aid controversy bore a resemblance to the political maneuvering that surrounded the twin government shutdowns of two winters ago.

Defense makes plea for McVeigh's life

DENVER (AP) — Timothy McVeigh's lawyer quietly pleaded for the life of the convicted Oklahoma City bomber Friday, urging jurors to view him not as a monster but as a model soldier deeply disturbed by his government's role in the disaster at Waco.

"You will hear that the fire of Waco did keep burning in Mr. McVeigh," death penalty attorney Richard Burr said in his opening statement of the penalty phase. "He is at the middle of this, and there is violence at both ends."

About 80 people died in the catastrophe at the Branch Davidian complex near Waco, Texas, which burned to the ground on April 19, 1993, exactly two years before the Oklahoma City bombing that killed 168 people.

While never flatly saying the 29-year-old Gulf War veteran admitted to the bombing, Burr told jurors that it should be viewed through "two realities."

The first, he said, is McVeigh's background as a stellar soldier who took the time to help his comrades and sometimes drove them home when they were drunk.

The second, Burr said, is "the reality of what Mr. McVeigh believed happened at Waco."

Burr said McVeigh turned to far-right videotapes and to publications such as Soldier of Fortune to learn more about what happened in the siege. He concluded the government murdered women and children at Waco, and was thus a threat to all.

"There will be some answers. There will be no complete answers. But the questions of how did this come to be, and why did this come to be, will be answered if you open up to what Tim McVeigh is," Burr said. "There is also a person at the center who you'll not be able to dismiss easily as a monster or a demon."

Burr was careful not to minimize the horror of the blast, pointing out the defense didn't cross-examine any of the survivors who for 2 1/2 days testified for the prosecution how the bombing shattered their lives.

"Leave the emotion as best you can there," he said, "and let the facts simply reside with you in a calm way."

Speaking in a soft, calm voice, Burr described McVeigh as "just like any of us," a man "who could be your son, who could be your brother, who could be your grandson."

McVeigh's sister, Jennifer, sat in the front row. When McVeigh was escorted to his seat by marshals, he saw her, smiled and told her he was "OK."

As friends took the stand later to describe his military career, McVeigh sat with his hands clasped in front of his mouth, occasionally smiling. He beamed when a defense attorney held up his military dress uniform with a cluster of medals, showing jurors his "Big Red One" patch and the Bronze Star that McVeigh won in the Gulf War.

Earlier Friday, in a compelling finale to their case for McVeigh's execution, prosecutors presented testimony from a tearful father who had struggled to explain to his son why the little boy's mother was gone.

"I have to look for answers and it's tough sometimes," said Glenn Seidl, whose wife — the mother of now-9-year-old Clint Seidl — was killed in the blast. "I deal with Clint's hurt all the time. We try to live a normal life, but this isn't a normal situation."

Clint had been scheduled to testify, but U.S. District Judge Richard Matsch excluded him, ruling the account would be inflammatory.

Instead, the father read the jury a message from the son.

"I miss my Mom, we used to go for walks. She would read to me. We would go to Wal-Mart," the boy wrote. "I will still make my mother Mothers Day and Valentine's Day cards like the other kids."

The testimony left three jurors and two alternates in tears. Others rubbed their temples or looked down.

Lead prosecutor Joseph Hartzler wiped his face with a blue handkerchief. Another prosecutor, Vicki Behenna, wept, her face turned away from the jury box.

McVeigh showed no emotion during Seidl's testimony; he wrote in a yellow legal pad and watched stoically.

Oklahoma City police chaplain Jack Poe holds up a copy of the Rocky Mountain News outside of the U.S. Courthouse in Denver, Colo., Friday after the prosecution rested in the penalty phase of the Timothy McVeigh bombing trial. Poe showed the media the newspaper that shows Clint Seidl, the child who lost his mother in the bombing and was supposed to testify in the penalty phase, and said "If these eyes don't tell the whole story I don't know what does."

Officer Donald Browning described his recurring nightmare since the weeks he and his search dog, Gunny, combed the remains of the building, finding many bodies, including those of babies.

"I dream that I'm crawling through the rubble. It's dark. I can hear children crying from in front of me and to my right," Browning said. "As I crawl towards it, I began to feel the ground tremble underneath me. I turn and run and the kids keep crying. I feel very guilty that I didn't get to them."

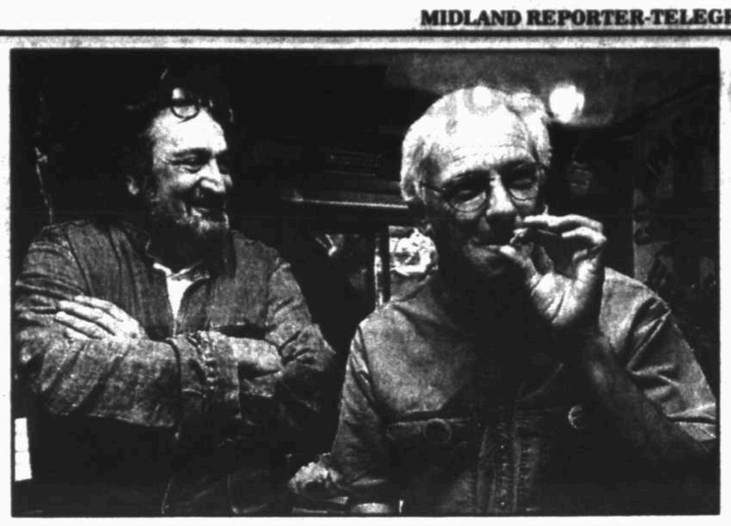
Marijuana clubs remain outlaws due to ill-defined California statute



AP Laserphoto

Dennis Peron, leader of the campaign for Proposition 215 and founder of the Cannabis Buyers Club, right, smokes a marijuana cigarette next to Jack Herer, of Los Angeles, Wednesday, Nov. 6, 1996, in San Francisco. Since California legalized medical marijuana in November, the state's marijuana clubs have evolved from black market drug dens to bona fide cannabis retailers. They pay taxes, take bank cards and register patients.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The strains of sitar music mingle with the smoke at the Cannabis Cultivators Club, a '60s-style bistro where the menu lists eight grades of "top quality" marijuana.

A glass counter displays the best sellers: marijuana-filled brownies and peanut butter cookies; "merry pills"; and rum bottles and glossy red-and-green boxes bearing the club's Phoenix and Amigo brands.

"We call it the pharmaceutical nightclub," said Tracy Williams, 30, who is paralyzed and often travels nearly 60 miles from his Santa Cruz home for the drug he smokes to ease his muscle spasms.

Since California legalized medical marijuana in November, the state's marijuana clubs have evolved from black market drug dens to bona fide cannabis retailers. They pay taxes, take bank cards and register patients.

But the state's ill-defined medical marijuana statute still makes outlaws of buyers clubs. And the patients — who come in wheelchairs or on canes and often bear the purplish lesions that mark AIDS sufferers — risk arrest daily in the effort to ease their pain.

"I've known two people who have been busted in the last few weeks," said San Franciscan Jay Segal, 48, who smokes marijuana to relieve the side effects of AIDS drugs. "The funny thing is that the right-wingers all say marijuana leads to crime. Look around you — a lot of stoners laying on couches. This is crime?"

At least a dozen clubs have opened in California, including sites in Los Angeles, Sacramento, Santa Cruz, San Jose, Hayward, Marin and seven locations in San Francisco.

But the law's silence on key legal questions has led to widely varying enforcement from city to city, arrests of patients, federal agents threatening doctors, black market deals between growers and buyers clubs and the federal raid of a San Francisco club.

The November citizen referendum, Proposition 215, legalized as of Jan. 1 marijuana possession by anyone with a doctor's recommendation. But transporting it — even to the user's home — remains illegal.

Authorities are grappling with such unanswered questions as whether smoking in clubs violates state anti-smoking statutes, whether cultivating the drug off club grounds remains a felony and whether sales between grower and club are illegal.

Even clubs that adhere to a conservative interpretation of the law by growing their supplies on the spot break the law by buying black-market seeds, according to state and federal authorities.

"Prop 215 is a mess," said Karyn Sinunu, assistant district attorney in charge of the Santa Clara County narcotics unit. "I don't know if the voters thought this stuff would fall from heaven or what, but that just wasn't addressed before this thing was passed."

Helen, 79, who asked that her last name not be used, risks a prison term each time she carries a bag of low-grade marijuana on the two-hour drive from the San Francisco club to her home in Sacramento. The marijuana cookies she bakes allow her 79-year-old husband, Norman, to sleep through the pain of a condition that leaves nerves exposed.

"At least he sleeps," she said, standing out in her neatly pressed suit near a customer in a Grateful Dead T-shirt and a shirtless man with necklace of cannabis leaves. "I don't care what the federal government says, it has helped this man."

Foundation donates $200 million to start college

BOSTON (AP) — With the kind of largesse once practiced by railroad and steel barons, a foundation has pledged $200 million to start a brand-new four-year college near Boston that will reshape the way engineers are trained.

The gift from the New York-based F.W. Olin Foundation — the largest donation ever to an American college or university — will launch the Franklin W. Olin College of Engineering in Needham.

The first class of 50 to 100 students would start in 2001 under the current proposal. Enrollment would eventually grow to about 800.

The foundation hopes the endowment will be large enough to make the school tuition-free.

Students will get a broader science education than many engineering schools now offer, and there will be more emphasis on communications, business and marketing.

"We want to develop a new paradigm for undergraduate engineering education and to be a model for other institutions," said Lawrence W. Milas, president of the Olin Foundation.

It will be the first new college in three decades in the Boston area, which already has 55 colleges and universities, one of the highest such concentrations in the country.

The $200 million grant eclipses the previous largest gift of $125 million, donated to Louisiana State University by Claude B. Pennington in 1981.

Franklin W. Olin, who established the foundation in 1938, was trained as an engineer and made his fortune with the Olin Corp., which produced chemicals, sporting goods, munitions and metals. Before his death in 1951, he talked about establishing a college.

Among other schools founded by captains of industry is Stanford University in California. Railroad builder Leland Stanford endowed the school as a memorial to his son in 1891.

Olin College will be next to Babson College, whose business programs have a strong reputation. Olin students will be able to take advantage of those programs. The two schools may also share some facilities, at least temporarily, such as a dining hall and athletic fields.

The Olin Foundation plans to buy about 60 to 80 acres of land now owned by Babson for an as-yet unspecified price.

Although Massachusetts already has a wealth of engineering schools — most notably the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge — proponents said Olin College would breathe new life into the field.

The National Science Foundation has spent the last six years pushing for reform in engineering education after a series of studies found that engineering graduates are often narrow-minded in their approach.

"They were trained very well in analyzing problems, but there was not sufficient attention to solving the problems," said Sue Kemnitzer, NSF deputy division director for engineering education.

The NSF made several recommendations for the country's 300 engineering schools, which turn out about 60,000 graduates each year. Among those recommendations were better business and communications skills.

The proposed college, Kemnitzer and others said, is a step in the right direction.

Several observers said the new program is likely to frighten some of the nation's top engineering programs into altering their approach.

"If we can put some shivers through some spines, I'm all for that," said Milas, who is not an engineer. "Competition is what drives people away from complacency and to improving their own institutions."

Robert Brown, dean of MIT's engineering school, said the university has been working for years to change the way it teaches engineering.

Controversial music-lyrics ban in state budget targets 'gangsta rap'

DALLAS (AP) — A Texas state senator would like to wash Snoop Doggy Dogg's mouth out with soap.

Barring that, a bill is sitting on Gov. George W. Bush's desk intended to do the next best thing.

In a legislative maneuver that has made the provision all but veto-proof, a measure has been appended to the state's 900-page budget bill to make Texas the first state where state agencies may not invest in companies whose artists' songs promote violence or degrade women.

Authored by state Sen. Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, the measure targets "gangsta rap." And even the governor's office concedes the bill will be signed, regardless of what Bush thinks of it.

Because the bill is a rider, Bush won't have the option of utilizing his line-item veto power, said Ray Sullivan, a spokesman for the governor's office.

Angry radio disc jockeys have told audiences to call the governor's office and complain about the legislation.

"A lot of people have been calling to protest," Sullivan said. "But we really just try to tell them how little control we have in this situation."

Ratliff and other senators who supported the measure say they are trying to halt an ongoing "American tragedy."

"I defy any newspaper in Texas to print those lyrics," Ratliff challenged. "If they can't be printed in a newspaper, why can they be pumped into 13-year-olds' brains for three to four hours a day?"

Under the bill, state agencies would not be able to buy stock in companies like Seagram Co., which has rights to the lyrics of songs performed by such artists as Snoop Doggy Dogg and Tupac Shakur. All agencies would have to sell the stock or risk losing state funding.

The Employees Retirement System said it had a Seagram investment worth about $8.4 million as of Dec. 31. The University of Texas System said the Permanent University Fund and Long Term Fund had a combined ownership in Seagram of $3.8 million, or .05 percent of their $7.5 billion investment portfolio.

Universal Music Group, which is owned by Seagram Co., declined to comment on the legislation. However, the Recording Industry Association of America says the measure is typical from a state that doesn't seem to have much respect for the First Amendment.

"They know they can't get away with outright censorship, so they're taking it one little move at a time," said RIAA president Hilary Rosen. "They won't be looking at ZZ Top or Willie Nelson, who sing songs that could be construed as degrading women. The bill is aimed at specific groups and artists that have dared to offend the Legislature."

The music industry intends to seek a ruling from Texas Attorney General Dan Morales on the measure's constitutionality. It also intends to file a constitutional challenge in court, Ms. Rosen said.

Patrick Wiseman, an Austin lawyer and state board member of the American Civil Liberties Union, said the bill may not withstand a court challenge.

"It's an attempt to use the state's power to pick and choose which artists are going to receive investments — and it's based on whether or not they exercise rights given them by the First Amendment," he said.

David Douglas manages a small Dallas music store, Pagan Rhythms, that sells some gangsta rap compact discs and tapes. He said the bill is just the latest attack on the musical genre.

"Who are they kidding? They aren't looking to screen all types of music ... They've taken aim at gangsta rap because that's what they don't like," he said. "Gangsta rap is the new heavy metal."

Although many state lawmakers endorsed the spirit of the provision, they objected to how it reached the governor's desk.

By making the bill a "rider" to the budget bill, Ratliff did an end run around a House committee that had killed the measure. A rider is a small attachment to a budget bill meant to amend budgetary matters. In Texas, it has been a way for legislators to circumvent a governor's possible veto or legislative opposition.

Valley growers cope with latest crop crisis

SAN BENITO, Texas (AP) — Friday morning at the local branch of the federal Farm Service Agency was too quiet for Cristobal Perez.

Perez, who oversees the office, is responsible for lobbying the U.S. Department of Agriculture for loans to help farmers struck by disaster.

But his job doesn't get done until the farmers come in and report their losses. And on this day, there wasn't a soul in sight.

"We need to know what their losses are. If it's significant, that could increase the amount of loans they're eligible for," Perez said.

His message is especially significant as Rio Grande Valley farmers struggle to cope with their latest blow from Mother Nature.

This time downpours, not drought, did the damage, destroying thousands of acres of melons and vegetables and dealing a $66 million economic blow to one of the state's most impoverished regions.

Perez is working with local officials to obtain federal loans for growers who are eligible — those whose revenues are less than $2 million.

In addition, state Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry is urging President Clinton to declare four Rio Grande Valley counties disaster areas, which would give growers access to additional loan money.

For growers ineligible for those programs, industry officials are examining whether they can obtain loans from other sources, such as a fund earmarked for projects related to the North American Free Trade Agreement.

"We are working to see what other alternatives are out there," said Ray Prewett, executive vice president of the Texas Vegetable Association and Texas Citrus Mutual.

After three dry seasons in a row, Mother Nature pulled a fast one earlier this year and finally sent some rain to the Rio Grande Valley. But it was excessive and ill-timed.

Melon and vegetable growers, who were getting ready to harvest their crops, had to hold off because the fields were so wet. Then disease set in.

"We had the best crop we've ever had. Then we started noticing spots coming up on the melons," Robert A. Peterson, president of Starr Produce in Rio Grande City, said of his 1,400 acres of cantaloupe. "It was just devastating us, devastating our crops."

Peterson estimates he lost 70 percent of his cantaloupe crop to disease. More than half of his 1,000-acre onion crop and 60 percent of his 900 acres of honeydews also were destroyed.

The company, which usually grosses about $25 million annually, will lose millions, he said. And the outlook for next season may be even grimmer.

"I'm scrambling to find somebody to finance us again," said Peterson, whose revenues make him ineligible for federal assistance. "If I don't get financing, we're going to have to close the operation down. There's no other way to do it."

Regionwide, melon and vegetable growers lost up to $45 million in production alone, a total economic impact of $66 million, said Jason Johnson, an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Cantaloupe and onion growers suffered the brunt of the damage, with up to 90 percent and 60 percent of those respective crops destroyed. Honeydew melons, carrots, cabbage and other vegetables also were ruined.

Benefit raises $94,000 for victims of tornado

AUSTIN (AP) — Central Texans are rallying around tornado victims with their pocketbooks.

After state emergency officials called for a moratorium on volunteers, food and clothes, area residents have responded with cash.

About 2,800 fans turned out Thursday for the Tornado Jam benefit concert at the Austin Music Hall, which raised about $94,000 for the victims of the May 27 tornadoes.

The tornadoes that pummeled Jarrell and nearby Cedar Park last week destroyed or damaged 239 homes and businesses. Twenty-seven people were killed in Jarrell; one in Cedar Park.

With performances by the likes of Harry Connick, Jr., Jimmie Dale Gilmore, Ian Moore, the Toadies, Storyville and more, plus a promise that all the money from ticket sales would go to relief funds, the event sold out in less than a week.

The event itself brought in approximately $67,000 in ticket and t-shirt sales and the bartenders' tips. Southwestern Bell donated $25,000. And area emergency medical service personnel collected approximately $2,000 more, according to Austin Music Hall spokesperson Lesli Seymour.

The music also offered a brief reprieve from the tragedy.

"We're hoping it will ease the tension a little," said Jarrell resident James Taylor, who attended the show with his wife, Kelly. The couple's house was destroyed in the storm.

Controlling the flow of unwanted email seems like an unconquerable task

By Hiawatha Bray
N.Y. Times News Service

Recently people like me, who have railed against government regulation of the Internet, have begun to demand government regulation of the Internet. All it took to change our minds was a tidal wave of unwanted electronic mail.

Back when I got two or three pieces of junk e-mail every week, I'd simply chuckle and delete the stuff. But now it's up to four or five pieces a day and building. Thanks to the Internet, an infinite number of monkeys have finally been given an infinite number of typewriters. And don't hold your breath waiting for "King Lear."

Instead you'll get ads and more ads — offers of unsecured credit cards, cheap airline tickets, books on how to take revenge on an enemy. And yes, sex.

But worst of all is the junk e-mail that offers software that can be used to create more junk e-mail. Many of these products boast that they let a user conceal the source of the mail, so you can't write back to demand that they knock it off.

And listen to these unsolicited testimonials from satisfied users: "We only sent out 5,000 letters and have 4 orders," shrieks a user of one popular spam program. "I did a test e-mail of 10K (10,000)," raves another spammer, "and within two days I have received 50 super responses with several dozen buying my product.

You do the arithmetic. These morons sold fewer than 50 units of whatever rubbish they're peddling, at a cost of clogging the Internet with 15,000 pieces of mail. They could as easily have sent a million pieces a day. And why not? E-mail costs the sender almost nothing. Those who received the mail, and the Internet firms that delivered it, were saddled with the bill. This is what

Ask the Doctor

By Dr. Emilio Bombay
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

DEAR DR. BOMBAY: I've found out that Intel has more than 90 percent of the IBM/clone microprocessor market. How has Intel gained that position?
—Market share

DEAR SHARE: By ruthlessly undermining and eliminating any possible rivals and keeping a stranglehold on all existing markets, they have monopolized the business and can ask any price, however excessive, for their product. By teaming up with the despotic forces that control other facets of the industry, they have ensured a reign of unending subjugation over the people who desperately need what they make.

No, wait, I'm wrong! I was thinking of Al Capone and his boys again. I'm terribly sorry! Just because a company has grown into a mega-corporation because their microprocessor was used in the first serious desktop computer is no reason to believe there's something shady going on. Although, if Intel hadn't had Bill Gates around — and I'm still not convinced he isn't the Prince of Darkness — to provide software that would make the chip do something useful, they might be long gone.

There was also a lot of luck involved. If IBM hadn't had that wild hair to put a computer on everybody's desk, or Big Bill and his geek buddy Paul Allen had been reading Playboy instead of Popular Electronics, or Intel had decided to concentrate on mainframes, then we'd all be using Macs.

Sorry, didn't mean to scare you PC users. Hope you don't all wake up in a cold sweat screaming your lungs out tonight.

Anyway, there are actually other PC chip makers, like Cyrix, out there. But because all PC software is built with Intel chips in mind, those companies have to make their microprocessors dance to Intel's tune while not violating any copyrights. Not a job I'd pick, since I'd imagine Intel keeps a "consigliere" — Whoops! I meant to say "lawyer," of course — or two on retainer.

DEAR DR. BOMBAY: Why are notebook computers so much more expensive than desktop computers?
—Size counts

DEAR COUNTS: By ruthlessly undermining and eliminating any possible rivals and keeping a stranglehold ... Wait a minute. I already did that joke.

It takes a lot of engineering to shoehorn everything that's in one of those big boxes into something that weighs less than 6 pounds and can fit into your briefcase. The components are more expensive because they're designed to operate on a minimum amount of juice and to be bounced around, two things that desktop manufacturers don't have to worry about. Even the worst laptop screen costs around $700. Pay up.

DEAR DR. BOMBAY: Are you a real person? If you're not, then how can you write such funny columns? Does your word processor help you? Was there a sentence in this letter that wasn't a question?
—The Riddler

DEAR RID: Actually, the columns, as originally written, are as dry and humorless and lacking in originality as any other computer column in any medium. It isn't until I employ an undocumented feature of Word (called Microsoft Yux) that the funny stuff is automatically inserted according to pre-defined algorithms.

If you'd like to try this feature of Word, go to the Page Preview screen, type in "DOOFUS," then simultaneously hold one hand to the top of your head while you press Alt-F4. It never fails to work.

Gates speaks to wizards of Silicon Valley

By Zachary Coile
N.Y. Times News Service

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — Among Silicon Valley's entrepreneurs and power players, Microsoft Corp. Chairman and CEO Bill Gates is much envied and often despised. He's never ignored.

When the world's richest man, the man from "up north," walks into the belly of the beast — the heart of the software giant's competition — people listen.

'We need computers that can listen to speech and speak to us.'

"Everyone wants to hear Bill Gates," said Mike Greenberg, president of San Jose-based Sequent Associates. "He's the driving force in the software industry."

Before a sellout crowd of more than 600 at the Santa Clara Marriott on Tuesday, Gates laid out yet another road map to the future and tipped his hat to Bay Area entrepreneurs for helping bring the personal computer — and hence Microsoft — to prominence.

"The whole PC thing has been driven by companies here in Silicon Valley," Gates told the Churchill Club, a valley business group.

Gates' version of the future begins with smart TV sets, which he said soon will enable consumers to explore the Internet easily from their homes. Gates also envisions a business world where every employee has e-mail, access to the Internet and video conferencing — as well as smarter PCs.

"We need computers that can listen to speech and speak to us," he said, predicting

Smothers Brothers' censored bits now on the Internet

NEW YORK — Back in what seems like the Stone Age, in fact not long after Fred Flintstone was a prime-time player, a titanic battle raged between the Smothers Brothers and network censors.

Yes, long before their act was derided as "the Lawrence Welk of comedy," as it has in recent years, they were cool and cutting edge.

Now, just as censorship on the Internet is becoming a hot issue, they're getting on the Internet, showcasing 17 censored segments from their original "Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour."

The bits include Pete Seeger singing "Waist Deep in the Big Muddy," a clear rebuke of U.S. involvement in Vietnam; Joan Baez dedicating a song to

Year 2000 bug might plague cars, appliances

By Joann Muller
N.Y. Times News Service

Take a quick mental survey of your home and consider its microchips: the ones in the television, the VCR, the microwave oven, the thermostat, the telephone. While you're at it, throw in the computer chips in your car, the elevator in your apartment building, your home security system. Now, think about what would happen if all the microchips in these devices went haywire at the same moment.

Some scientists and engineers now say the Year 2000 bug threatening to wreak havoc on the world's computers and PCs at the stroke of midnight on Jan. 1, 2000, could also affect the tiny built-in chips embedded in everyday products.

SMOTHERS: Brothers' career never really recovered after series her draft-resisting husband; and a skit in which after a black groom and white bride recite their wedding vows, the minister marrying them says, "Rope, please."

Some people may see this foray into another medium as a pathetic attempt by has-beens to trade off their proverbial 15 minutes. One glib criticism goes: If you think of the Smothers Brothers, you think of the '60s, but when you think of the '60s, you DON'T think of the Smothers Brothers.

But their show, which aired from 1967-69 on CBS, is seen as historically important, and it's still fondly remembered by fans, particularly those who shared the program's left-wing politics and opposition to the Vietnam War.

"It was a beacon in and of its time, a show whose emotional residue runs a lot deeper than punch lines or comic characters," writes David Bianculli in the "Dictionary of Teleliteracy."

"You had to be there — but if you were of that era, especially at the right age, it was as important as TV could get," Bianculli said.

Tom and Dick Smothers say people come up to them all the time and say how warmly they recall their show.

"My heart skips a beat when I get it from the Vietnam vets," Dick says, "because we get a lot of those guys. And I would say 99.9 (percent) is positive. They didn't want to be there. And they thought the people like us (opposing the war) were doing a good thing."

'We were in a very exciting era. We didn't create the era; we just happened to be at the scene of the accident, as Tommy says.'
— Dick Smothers

And fans still want to know the story about them being taken off the air 28 years ago. "I hate going back to it," Tom says.

The network maintained that they had failed to deliver a show in time for the required preview, although political pressure always was suspected. (Nixon had taken office 10 weeks earlier.) And the show's countercultural skits, including "Have a little tea with Goldie" (who clearly was high on something), caused constant skirmishes with the censors.

"We were in a very exciting era. We didn't create the era; we just happened to be at the scene of the accident, as Tommy says," Dick says.

To get some recompense for that "accident," they sued CBS for $31 million, and after a trial several years later won $775,000.

Their careers together never recovered, and Tom individually brooded for years afterward. He says he lost his sense of humor and that it took him a long time to isolate his personal politics and his sense of outrage.

"I learned after the fact that if you get involved in the issues, you no longer become a satirist, you are 'a person in support of' — an advocate," Tom says. "I got involved in the issues. That's why I lost my balance there."

They split up for a while in the '70s, when they started a Northern California winery. But by the late '70s, they were on Broadway in "I Love My Wife."

"We just keep resurfacing. We're just not in everyone's face long enough to really get old," Tom jokes, about how they come back but not for long.

"And now we do something unique that used to be common," he says, referring to how they're virtually the last of the old-time comedy teams a la Martin and Lewis, Rowan and Martin, and Nichols and May.

One reason for that is no one dreams about growing up to be a comedian who's just part of a team, Dick says. He asks: "Can you imagine someone thinking, 'I want to grow up to be a straight man'?"

The duo who used sibling rivalry for successful shtick ("Mom always liked you best") is still touring, performing at least 100 dates a year as they mark four decades in show business.

They still do social and political satire in their act, but it's rather limited and tame.

"We don't name any names anymore," Tom says. "Except for one little thing (in their act): 'George Washington said I cannot tell a lie; Richard Nixon said I cannot tell the truth; and Bill Clinton said I cannot tell the difference.'"

The brothers have returned to television several times, and on a few different networks — ABC in 1970, NBC in 1975, CBS in 1988. They also appeared in 1993 on the E! cable network, which aired some of their original shows with new commentary from the brothers.

Tom Smothers— now 60, married a third time, and with a 4-year-old son and 1-year-old daughter — says he would embrace another shot at the big-time stardom the original show gave him and Dick, now 57, and also remarried.

"I enjoyed the power of being a star," Tom says, "which power was creating people, people that you like. Seeing Pat Paulsen and the Steve Martins, and Rob Reiners and allowing those things to happen and finding writers, and that creative energy — I could do one more.

"I liked doing that. That was fun."

Student pressured for using Microsoft name

N.Y. Times News Service

What's in a name? Apparently everything when it is on the Internet. And especially when the name is Microsoft.

A California college student has been using the online moniker of microsoft network.com for his company's World Wide Web page. And Microsoft Corp., which became aware of the address late last week, is trying to make him stop.

The student, Daniel Khoshnood, a junior at California State University Northridge, bought the name for his Web page design company through Internic, the Internet's clearinghouse for domain names. He also bought more than a dozen other addresses with names related to Microsoft products.

Khoshnood says he does not yet know how he will use the Microsoft names to — "There are so many different options," he said — but after his activities were reported last week by the online news service C-Net, Microsoft leapt into action.

"He is clearly involved in copyright infringement, trademark infringement and unfair trade practices," Mark Murray, a Microsoft spokesman, said yesterday. "We will try to contact him and request him to stop. Failing that, we'll send a cease-and-desist letter requesting he stop infringing upon our name."

Khoshnood has to desist, at least for now. After Microsoft complained to US Internet Inc., the access provider he uses, it shut off Khoshnood's account. "We don't need the extra headaches," said Chris Van Dromme, director of operations.

2000: Big Three automakers say their cars won't be affected

(From 1B)

Whether the problem will result in minor annoyances or extreme chaos is the subject of a debate that is likely to continue. But most specialists say there could be dozens of dastardly millennium bugs lurking in every home.

"There is literally nobody on this planet who can tell you whether the failure rate will be .0000001 percent, or 90 percent. It's an unknown. That in itself is a risk," said Peter de Jager, a doomsday prognosticator who has emerged as the leading Year 2000 guru. He even has an index named after him on the American Stock Exchange, the de Jager Year 2000 index, which includes 17 publicly traded companies that focus on Year 2000 fixes.

Like the software in many mainframe and personal computers, some embedded computer chips use a two-digit shorthand to keep track of the date, so that the year 1994, for instance, is written as 94. The problem is that when the new century arrives, some microcontrollers might interpret 00 as 1900, instead of 2000, causing appliances and other devices with embedded chips to go haywire.

A microwave on the fritz isn't nearly as calamitous as, say, the collapse of the nation's air traffic control system, but it would be aggravating for people who depend on the conveniences of automation.

Consider this scenario: You wake up shivering on Jan. 1, 2000, because your home's programmable thermostat shut off the heat. (If the pipes freeze and burst, that's an even bigger problem.)

Outside, the automatic lawn sprinkler spurted into action overnight, and the yard resembles a skating rink. You make your way to the driveway and find that your car won't start.

At work on Monday, Jan. 3, 2000, you encounter many of the same problems. The building's security system doesn't recognize ID badges, the elevator's grounded and the fax machine is spewing out 100-year-old memos. You'd complain, but the phones are down, too.

Of course, this is a worst-case scenario dreamed up by Year 2000 specialists trying to draw attention to date rollover issues beyond the software problems programmers already know about.

Will such automation nightmares really occur? It's hard to say.

While de Jager and others warn of the mysterious electronic failures that might occur when the calendar flips to the year 2000, they're hard-pressed to offer concrete examples.

"Companies are unwilling to talk about the problem," de Jager explained. Many are worried about the liability issues and warranty problems that could result if their products malfunction after Jan. 1, 2000, he and others said.

But Lindsey Vereen, editor of a San Francisco-based trade magazine called Embedded Systems Programming, says all this fuss about computer chips is nonsense.

"In most embedded systems, the real time issue is not calendar time, but duration," he said.

The chip in a car's engine controller, for instance, doesn't care what day it is, only how long the engine has been running. That helps it to monitor such things as maintenance schedules.

Engineers for the Big Three US automakers insist that even their most electronically advanced cars won't be affected by the Year 2000.

While Vereen conceded there may be problems with equipment that contains older chips, he blamed politicians and nontechnicians for "fanning the flames and implying the problem is greater than it is."

In fact, experts have only begun to look into what will happen to electronic devices and automated systems that contain embedded computer chips. Until now, they've mostly been focused on the software and hardware systems that handle a company's core operations.

"In the scope of the year 2000, I'm not that concerned about the date on my fax machine," said Steven McManus, communications manager for BankBoston's millennium project team. "It's much more important that we have commerical loan applications that are millennium compliant," he said.

But some chip-related problems have already cropped up at BankBoston, prompting McManus to take a closer look at the bank's entire operations.

For instance, the bank recently had to replace many of the cash advance terminals in its branches because the chips inside the machines couldn't recognize newly issued Visa cards that listed "00" as the expiration date.

"The machine knew the expiration date couldn't be less than the current date, and decided 00 is less than 97, so it refused to process the cash advance," McManus said.

Now his team is looking at the Year 2000 not simply as a technology problem, but as a business problem. He's even checking to make sure the computer chips that run the bank's automated heating and air conditioning systems are ready for the rollover.

There are literally billions of embedded computer chips in the world today, powering everything from copy machines to medical devices to nuclear power plants.

Giga Information Group, a Cambridge, Mass. research firm, estimates that up to 5 percent of them — hundreds of millions — could potentially fail because of Year 2000 problems.

But it's impossible to check every chip for date-related malfunctions.

"The fact of the matter is, there's no control mechanism that's very good to go back and find out how each of those chips was programmed," said Ann Coffou, managing director of Giga's Year 2000 relevance service.

International Data Corp. of Framingham, Mass. found that out when it asked Honeywell Controls whether its so-called "smart buildings" would still properly control heating and air conditioning systems after 2000.

George Haynes, research director with IDC's Virginia-based government division, said Honeywell told him it had no way of knowing unless the building's original contractor could provide a building's exact specifications.

Chip makers, such as Motorola Inc. and Digital Equipment Corp., say there's nothing inherent in the design of a microcontroller chip that would cause a problem when the Year 2000 rolls around.

Instead, it's the customized software that is programmed onto the chip at the customer's request that can cause the potential problem.

"What a computer does when it encounters something strange like this depends on what the programmer who wrote the code decided to tell it to do," Haynes said. "It may issue an alert. It may make an assumption and keep processing, or it may refuse to process any further."

Fixing problems caused by embedded computer chips is, in some ways, a tougher challenge than correcting Year 2000 problems in a software program.

Though it's a tedious and labor-intensive process, the coding in software programs can be revised, line-by-line, to recognize the new millennium. But the date clock in an embedded computer chip is often burned into the chip and therefore can't be changed.

Often, Haynes said, the only way to fix a chip is to replace it.

"Computers just aren't as smart as we people are."

CONCURRENT TAAS/TEAMS TESTS ADMINISTRATION
July 15, 16, and 17, 1997

On Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, July 15, 16, and 17, 1997, the exit level sections of the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS) test will be administered to eleventh and twelfth grade students who have failed to master one or more parts of the test, and to eleventh and twelfth grade students taking the test for the first time. During the same testing period, TAAS and the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills (TEAMS) tests will be administered to out-of-school students who have completed all course requirements for graduation but have not mastered all sections of the tests.

TAAS test registration for students no longer enrolled in a Texas public high school and all students taking TEAMS must be received in Iowa City, Iowa no later than 5:00 p.m. on Friday, June 13, 1997. Students enrolled in Grade 12 in the spring of 1997 are considered enrolled students. Registration packets may be picked up in the high school counseling centers, district central office or regional service center.

Test dates are as follows:

Dates	TAAS (Exit Level)	TEAMS
Tuesday, July 15	Writing
Wednesday, July 16	Mathematics	Mathematics
Thursday, July 17	Reading	Language

Students must be present each day at the assigned test location no later than 8:45 a.m. There are NO make-up days. If there are questions regarding the test, please contact the Department of Guidance and Testing at 689-1009.

In high-tech White House, Clinton working without a net

By Julia Malone
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — President Clinton has criss-crossed the nation as the first promoter of the great American school linkup to cyberspace. His White House has installed a library of information on the Internet.

And to worried parents, he has proposed the reassuring idea of a computer chip to keep their kids from calling up sex sites and bomb-making manuals.

But a deep, dark doubt hangs over the first cyberspace president.

Does he ever belly up to a keyboard and surf the World Wide Web? Does he call up the search engine "Yahoo" and enter key words to retrieve the latest data on hot topics?

Well, as they say in the car rental ads, not exactly.

Clinton joined in demonstrations of computer wizardry in the Oval Office one Saturday in April for a radio address to promote use of the 'Net. But he had vice presidential guide and techno-junkie Al Gore at his side.

After the photo op, the gear was whisked away. All that was left was the president's laptop computer, which — the low-tech truth be told — he rarely uses.

So, it was not without a tiny hint of discomfort that Clinton confronted fifth-grader Ashby Hardesty at a question-and-answer session at a school last month in Clarksburg, W.Va.

"I was wondering if you use the Internet in the White House?" Ashby wanted to know after hearing the president tout the virtues of the Internet.

"We do," Clinton responded, but then added a slew of qualifiers.

"My daughter uses it more than I do," he confessed. And so do his speech writers, he said. And so does Gore, he went on.

"When I become curious, I can always go down to the vice president's office, because he's a bigger expert than I am, based on things he pulls up for me on the Internet," the president continued in what amounted to a admission of total computer cluelessness.

Some of that could change when daughter Chelsea, who graduates from high school this Friday, goes to Stanford University in California. The president and First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton expect to use computers "a lot more often" to send e-mail messages to her, said White House press secretary Michael McCurry on Monday.

Robotics offers modem special

N.Y. Times News Service

U.S. Robotics Corp. promised rebates, money-back guarantees and free upgrades this week to persuade consumers to buy its new 56-kilobit modem.

Analysts say the company is trying to stay ahead of rivals, which started shipping competing 56k modems last month.

Chairman Casey Cowell said yesterday the company will offer an unconditional, 30-day money-back guarantee to anyone who buys a U.S. Robotics 56k modem between June 1 and September 15. The modems cost $200 to $220.

Also, Robotics will upgrade all of its 56k modems to new international standards when they are established next year.

Finally, the Skokie, Ill., company said it would offer rebates up to $25, to any buyer who signs up with one of 350 Internet service providers that support Robotics' 56k modem technology.

Dataquest analyst Lisa Pilgrim said the sales incentives are timed to steal the limelight from rival vendors.

Robotics got its 56k modems, dubbed x2, to market in February. Rockwell Corp. and Lucent Technologies only got their competing K56Flex modems into stores last month.

GATES: Innovator sees 'wallet PCs'

(From 1B)

that such computers will be on store shelves within a decade.

Gates also sees a world where people carry "wallet PCs," wireless computers that fit in a pocket, and smart cards, which allow consumers to carry cash on a plastic card.

"Fairly quickly, every PC will have a smart card reader," he said. "Pretty quickly, you'll find smart card readers all over the place."

Having been told earlier in the day by San Jose Mayor Susan Hammer that her city's school district has more computers per student than any school district in the country, Gates expressed his own vision that every student have his own PC.

"That's going to take some time, but I have no doubt that's the direction we're headed in," he said.

Tom Thorner, president of Thorner Ventures, a venture capitalist firm, said the crowd's ambivalent feelings toward Gates stem from a deeper fear.

"Microsoft is a huge company," he said. "A lot of people are aware that they could be squished if Microsoft came into their area."

SPAM: Unwanted email wastes time the economists call "market failure," and it makes even us free-enterprise types start calling for the cavalry.

A couple of would-be saviors have appeared in the Congress. Alaska's Republican Senator Frank H. Murkowski has served up a bill that would require all e-mail advertisements be clearly marked as such. That way, you could program your computer to delete them automatically. Then there's the bill by New Jersey Republican Representative Chris Smith, which would flatly ban unsolicited e-mail ads.

Citizens of the 'Net aren't used to regarding Smith as a homeboy; he's a staunch supporter of the ludicrous Communications Decency Act (CDA). But many netizens who cheerfully tolerate smutty Web sites are rallying behind Smith's junk e-mail ban, saying that Murkowski's law is too lenient.

A case of liberal hypocrisy? Not exactly. The dreaded CDA mainly targets sleazy Web pages and Usenet messages. This is absurd, because you'll never see any of this smut unless you go looking for it. Who needs a law?

But junk e-mail is different. It shows up unbidden, forcing you to spend time and effort weeding it out. Murkowski says that for many Alaskans, picking up the e-mail requires a long-distance phone call. They don't like it when the box is filled with come-hither messages from some guy named Candy.

The Murkowski bill would let spammers keep sending out e-mails by the millions. But each of them would have to be branded with an electronic mark of Cain, causing all well-bred computers to shun them.

It's awful hard to argue with an idea this sensible; even Sanford Wallace, perhaps the Internet's leading creator of junk e-mail, has said he could live with it.

But the bill would also require Internet service providers to offer software to filter out the junk. Many of them say they shouldn't be forced to pay the tab. The Smith bill fixes that. It would simply make junk e-mail disappear.

I'm leaning toward the Murkowski bill. I have that healthy American distaste for banning stuff. Better to regulate it. But one way or another, something has to be done, before the flood of junk e-mail becomes intolerable.

It's no fun, calling in the Feds. It contradicts an old belief of mine that the cure to the evils of technology is more and better technology. Well, maybe not this time.

SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1997

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, June 7, 1997:
Think through decisions carefully this year. Once you are committed to a course of action, you have a difficult time backing off. Do what is right for you; avoid going after something "just because." You will get what you want, perhaps to the point of no longer wanting it. Focus on enhancing your money-earning abilities, utilizing an unusual talent and building self-confidence. If you are single, a friendship could develop into a lot more. Is that what you really want? If attached, your relationship grows because of a commitment the two of you make to a key project. CANCER is rather intense.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ The pressure around you could be a bit depressing. You are negative, without realizing the implications. Pull back, and do what is good for you. You need a nap or change of pace. It's OK to be out of kilter; a friend will understand. Tonight: Make it easy.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Figure out what is happening between you and a loved one. Discussions could be difficult, but they are noteworthy. Listen to the other side. Spend time in a different setting. Resolutions seem to just happen. Sensitivity and nurturing pay off. Tonight: Hang out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ You are dismayed by the cost of achieving a difficult goal. Take a different point of view. There could be another way to do this, but it escapes you. Carefully consider all the options. Remain confident. Visit with friends. You need a change of pace. Tonight: It's your treat.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★★ Someone you care about is unusually demanding. Be polite, but do your own thing. This weekend is made for you. Make the most of the moment. A smile does much to ease tension. Make plans that suit you; others will join in. Tonight: You are a force to behold.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★ You need time off to mope and think. You do not have all the answers now. View what has happened positively. Discussions with a trusted pal reveal the good points. Make time for an outing, in a quiet place. Tonight: Do for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Determine what is going on with a partner. The vibrations are off. Eye the future. Sharing your hopes adds to the bonding between you and a friend. Make time for a fun get-together. Tonight: Celebrate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★ A friend is downright difficult; nothing you do is going to change his mood. Make a "must" appearance. Handle responsibilities; you'll feel good about yourself. This is an excellent opportunity to take care of yourself. Others seek your advice. Tonight: Head out and about.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ Remain sure of yourself. You are pressured by a work-related matter. Take a day outing to get away from it all. You gain a new perspective and recharge in another setting. Let your mind go. Tonight: Find the music.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ Your determination to root out a problem pays off. A loved one acts strangely. You know that you don't have the full story. Be nurturing. It is time for a little indulgence, for you as well as another. Don't be stingy! Tonight: Have a good time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ A home situation weighs heavily on you. You don't have all the answers, but you are certainly looking for them. A friend can help you figure out what to do. Be open to feedback. Eye the big picture. Tonight: Accept a dinner invitation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ A difficult talk throws you into an off mood. Understand that you might not have all the pertinent details of a situation. Your sense of humor goes a long way in easing pressure. Share a favorite hobby with a loved one. Tonight: Do something that relaxes you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You can resolve a money matter. The answers might be elusive, but don't think that someone knows more than you. Turn on your creative genius, and find another way to solve the problem. Love and fun abound. A relationship grows. Tonight: Allow another to lure you.

Ray Wilson becomes third singer for Genesis: New album to debut soon

LONDON — A little-known singer has been chosen by the rock band Genesis to take the place of superstar Phil Collins.

Edinburgh-born Ray Wilson, 28, who sang with rock band Stiltskin, said he is nervous about his role in Genesis, which has sold 90 million albums in its 30-year history.

"Fronting a band with such a history is an incredible challenge," Wilson said Friday.

He will be the third front man for Genesis. Peter Gabriel was Collins' predecessor and both went on to success as solo artists.

Collins quit in March 1996 after more than 20 years with the band, saying he wanted to devote more time to his solo career.

"We listened to hundreds of tapes but Ray's voice really stood out," said keyboardist Tony Banks. "It had a quality that really moved us. His voice is thicker and harks back more to the early Genesis."

Wilson sings on all 11 tracks of the new Genesis album, due out this summer. Their last album, "I Can't Dance," was released in 1992.

NASHVILLE, Tenn.— A museum dedicated to the lives of the late Grand Ole Opry stars Minnie Pearl and Roy Acuff has opened at Opryland USA theme park.

A museum opened to honor Minnie Pearl and Roy Acuff.

"We've brought Roy and Minnie together again — via the new museum — just as they were during their heyday," said Jack Vaughn, president of Opryland USA hospitality and attractions.

The museum has memorabilia and vintage musical instruments from the two stars' former separate museums. It includes a working guitar shop and interactive exhibits. Visitors are able to "mix" their own Acuff songs to hear how different instruments sound, said Opryland spokesman Todd Smith.

Pearl died in 1996 after suffering a stroke. Acuff died in 1992 of heart disease.

NEW YORK — Katie Couric is taking some time off from NBC's "Today" show as her husband reportedly battles colon cancer.

Jay Monahan, 41, a lawyer and legal commentator for MSNBC, is on medical leave from the cable network. NBC said he was scheduled to undergo surgery Friday, but the network didn't specify his illness.

The Washington Post and the Star tabloid reported that Monahan has colon cancer and was receiving treatment in New York.

"His prognosis is excellent and he's expected to return to the legal beat in a few weeks," said NBC spokeswoman Erica Proto.

Monahan reportedly was diagnosed with cancer in April after being taken to a hospital with pain.

Couric, 40, a co-host of NBC's "Today" show, is taking vacation time until June 16, Proto said.

The couple married in 1989, a year after meeting in Washington, and have two daughters. Couric became a "Today" show anchor in 1991.

TOKYO — Rick Danko, bassist for The Band, faces trial July 2 on charges of smuggling and possessing heroin during a tour of Japan, court officials said Friday.

The Band's bass player is accused of carrying heroin.

The 53-year-old singer is accused of having a parcel containing 1.25 grams of heroin, divided into small packages and hidden inside magazines, shipped to him from the United States.

A delivery company detected the heroin at the airport and notified police, the Japanese news agency Kyodo reported.

Danko was arrested May 6 after receiving the package, and was charged on May 23, authorities said. If convicted of heroin possession in Japan, a nation that prides itself on a relative absence of drug abuse, Danko could face up to 10 years in prison.

COLOGNE, Germany — Princess Stephanie's ex-husband stormed off a talk show set in a rage after the Belgian stripper with whom he had an affair made an unannounced appearance.

Daniel Ducruet kicked in a door, upended dressing room furniture, broke a window and tore up a bathroom when Fili Houteman walked into the studio Thursday night.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Bible schools

■ Vacation Bible School at St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St., is set for Monday through Friday.

Preregistration forms are available at the church. Leaders will meet at 4 p.m. Sunday at the church. Guides are needed to lead children from room to room.

Mothers Day Out summer session begins June 3. Hours and days are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday and will last until school starts. Call Karin Sanford, 697-2649, or the church office, 683-3339.

Also, the church is now receiving applications for a permanent director of Mothers Day Out. Interested parties are asked to come by the office and fill out an application.

■ First Christian Church, Disciples of Christ, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave., will hold its annual Vacation Bible School from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday.

Children, 2 years old through the sixth grade, are invited to attend and learn about "Stories Jesus Told." Preregistration is available in the church office. Registration will be taken the first day of VBS. For more information call the church, 682-2541.

■ Grace Lutheran Church, 3000 W. Golf Course Road, will hold its annual Vacation Bible School from 9 a.m. to noon June 16-20.

Children ages 3 and a half to sixth grade will be passengers on board a train bound for fun and fueled by Bible stories. To register early call the church, 697-3221.

■ Vacation Bible School is set at Valley View Baptist Church, County road 140 and farm to Market 1213, June 9-13.

The theme for this year's Bible School is "The Wild, Wild West." All children ages 4 through sixth grade are invited. Hours are 6:30 to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday. The school will include games, crafts, Bible stories and music missions. This year's project will be collecting school supplies for local children's homes.

Refreshments will be served. Family night will be held at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

For more information call 682-6250.

■ Beacon Light Outreach, 412 N. Terrell, plans its third annual Vacation Bible School for Monday through Friday from 6 to 9 p.m.

Classes will be offered for all ages. Snacks will be served. The church's pastor, the Rev. C.E. Hunter Sr., invites the public to attend. For more information call 682-2281 or 685-0183.

Joint service set

Grace Presbyterian Church and Mt. Calvary Missionary Baptist Church will hold a joint worship service at 5 p.m. Sunday in the Mt. Calvary sanctuary, 303 E. Shandon.

The service, entitled "One Faith, One Spirit, One Father of All," will be led by the Rev. Robert Lathan of Mt. Calvary and the Rev. Bill Clark of Grace and will feature special music by a massed choir of vocalists from both churches, a combined men's chorus, the Mt. Calvary Sanctuary Choir, the Mt. Calvary Youth Choir and Grace Presbyterian's handbell choir, Celebration! and vocal ensemble, "Eternity."

A love offering will be collected, with the monies being contributed to the Habitat for Humanity's Miracle on Jackson Street project.

The public is invited to attend.

New meeting site

The Bethel family, a United Methodist congregation, will not meet Sunday at the Alamo YMCA. Instead, the Bethel congregation will gather at the Hollowell United Methodist Church, 400 S. Marshall St., for a combined service beginning at 11 a.m.

The Rev. Hadley R. Edwards, pastor of Hollowell, will preach his farewell sermon before leaving to paster in New Orleans. K.C. Blackketter is the pastor of the Bethel family.

Adults to serve

The adult classes of Ranchland Heights Baptist Church will serve hamburgers and all the trimmings to the Ruth Class, Youth Class and Children department following the morning worship Sunday.

The Sunday School classes have been in a highly contested attendance contest said Earl Selman, Sunday School director. The adult classes lost.

The church will hold its Vacation Bible School June 23-27 from 6 to 9 p.m. All children kindergarten through sixth grade are invited to participate.

For a ride to any of the activities of the church call Don Walton, 687-5341 at home, or 560-0531 on the pager. The church is located at 3203 South County road 1211. For more information call the church office, 677-4471, and leave a message. The church's pastor, the Rev. Robert Kepple, invites the public to attend.

Jubilee held

A Gospel Jubilee will be held at Midland Suburban Lions Club, 2550 Flynt, today.

The event is open to all who enjoy gospel music. those attending may sing, play or just listen. No admission is charged. the event is held the first Saturday of every month.

The Lions serve a food buffet for $3 which includes dessert and tea or coffee. All proceeds go toward the Lions' many community projects.

Food is served from 6 to 7 p.m. Singing is from 7 to 9 p.m. For more information call Pat Merritt, 682-9844, or Leonard Hanson, 684-7233.

Studies planned

Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas Ave., begins a new study on the "Fundamentals of Our Faith" at 4:45 p.m. Sunday.

The study, covering the major Christian doctrines, will be taught by Russell Livingston Jr. and will meet in Suite 1 in the Educational Activities Building.

In addition to this study, another workshop entitled "Cult Watch" will begin at the same time and day in Suite 4.

"This study will deal with major cult groups in the Midland area," said a release from the church. For more information call the church, 697-7701.

Author to speak

Steve Murrell will be speaking at Mid-Cities Community Church at 10 a.m. Sunday.

Murrell and his wife, Deborah, have been working in the Philippines for more than a decade where they now oversee more than 30 churches. Murrell is the author of several booklets including "One 2 One."

Murrell also will speak at the Sunday Night Live service at 6 p.m. Sunday. the church will be hosting its citywide outreach to all 12-28 year olds in the Permian Basin. The Hip-Hop Dance Team and Drama team will be performing.

Coming Sunday

Ever wonder how your favorite high school team stacks up against the rest of District 4-5A?

Well, Sunday the Reporter-Telegram will try to answer that question for you in a detailed look at the sports teams of District 4-5A through the decade of the '90s.

Not only will you find out who is the best and worst in all 4-5A UIL sports, but you will find out how schools in the district compare over an extended period of time in terms of overall success.

We will bring you the District 4-5A Decade All-Sports Points Championship, a points system designed to let you know how your teams perform in relation to the rest of the district through the decade of the '90s. It also awards teams for their postseason efforts with bonus points.

And you can survey it all Sunday with the most comprehensive points system ever designed for the district.

Cowtown gets team

The Western Professional Hockey League announced Friday that Fort Worth was awarded the league's 12th franchise for the 1997-98 season.

Fort Worth will join the Odessa Jackalopes as one of the new franchises joining the WPHL, which completed its first season last spring. The other new franchises are in San Angelo, Lake Charles, Shreveport and Monroe.

Midland Country Club gets revenge on 2nd day of Texas State Amateur

By Stewart Doreen
Sports Writer

The course bites back.

Friday, the Midland Country Club course, which had been brought down to its knees with 24 golfers shooting below par in the first round of the Texas Golf Association Men's Amateur Championship, got some help from Mother Nature and punished the players for getting too greedy while the monster was in a playful mood.

"You were always behind the eight ball," said tournament leader Chip Stewart of Dallas. "The course played a truer measure of itself today because you are supposed to have 15-to-20 mph winds out there today and we did. I feel like I was seven shots higher than I was."

The 1992 champion of the Texas Golf Association Men's Amateur Championship put himself in the lead of the 88th edition of the tournament by not bringing the course to its knees but by staying afloat with an even-par 72.

Stewart's two-day total of 139 put him two-strokes ahead of Midland's Trey Womack and Dallas' Dean Overturf, and like the rest of the field, bulls-eye golf on Thursday became a test in survival on Friday. In all there are 20 golfers within five strokes of the lead and many hoping that the course's

Jazz strike back in Game 3

By Chris Sheridan
AP Basketball Writer

SALT LAKE CITY — Back home, where they have yet to lose in the playoffs, Karl Malone and the Utah Jazz built enough of a comfort zone to withstand the inevitable surge from Michael Jordan and the Chicago Bulls.

Malone broke out of his finals funk with 37 points — the first time in nine games he has broken the 30-point mark — and Greg Foster led a 28-point contribution from Utah's bench as the Jazz beat the Bulls 104-93 Friday night.

The victory cut Chicago's lead to 2-1 in the best-of-7 series and kept the Jazz from falling into an 0-3 hole that no NBA team has recovered from.

Utah, which hasn't lost at home since Feb. 23, went ahead for good midway through the first quarter, opened a 16-point halftime lead and built it to 24 at the midpoint of the third quarter.

The Bulls weren't finished, though, and used a 16-3 run to pull within 11 with 7:43 left. There was plenty of time for more from the Bulls, and Jordan and Scottie Pippen put a scare into the raucous Delta Center crowd that gave Utah such a big early boost.

Jordan hit a pair of 3-pointers and Pippen nailed three in a row from behind the arc, the second of which pulled Chicago to 90-83 with 2:52 left. Pippen tied an NBA Finals record with seven 3s.

But Jordan, strangely quiet through the first three quarters, missed his next three 3-pointers. Utah, which lost Game 1 with some crucial misses at the line down the stretch, closed the game by making 14 consecutive free throws.

The series resumes here Sunday evening.

Malone's 37 points were his most since scoring 42 in Game 4 of the second round against the Lakers.

"We ask our small guys to do a lot for us," Malone said. "Now's the time for our big guys to step up."

Foster, one of those big guys, finished with 17, matching his career-high.

"I don't want anybody thinking about Greg Foster," he said. "I just want to go out and have fun and do my job. Tonight, we came out and showed some spunk."

John Stockton had 17 points and 12 assists and scored Utah's final six points from the free throw line.

Pippen finished with 27 and Jordan 26 for the Bulls, who dug themselves too deep of a hole to climb out of.

The main reason was Malone, who had a look in his eye, a spring in his step and a confidence in his game that had been so obviously missing in the first two games of the series.

He scored 15 points in the first quarter alone, when the Jazz got a boost from the raucous Delta Center crowd that is such a big part of Utah's 9-0 home playoff record and 38-3 regular season home record.

Malone scored eight straight points for Utah to break the game's last tie midway through the first quarter, and Foster took over in the second quarter when the Jazz started to turn it into a blowout.

The backup center, who totaled only six points combined in the first two games, had 15 of his points by halftime, when Utah held a 61-45 lead.

He even outscored both Jordan (14) and Pippen (12) in the first half.

It was more of the same for the Jazz early in the third quarter as the Bulls came out flat and couldn't stop anything.

A 14-6 Jazz run, ending with a steal by Malone and a feed ahead to a wide-open Bryon Russell for a highlight-reel reverse slam, made the score 77-53 and forced Chicago to call a timeout.

When the Bulls came back, they were ready to make a game of it.

Chicago scored the final seven points of the quarter and Jordan opened the fourth with a driving basket to make it 77-62, and a tip-in by Brian Williams, who finished with 16 points, cut the deficit to 11.

Then it was time for Jordan to take over. The only question was whether he could do enough.

He hit a 3-pointer, a jumper and another 3-pointer, then fed Pippen

Silver Charm on track for run at Triple Crown

By Ed Schuyler Jr.
AP Racing Writer

NEW YORK — A commoner named Silver Charm is a horse who would be king.

The colt can join such racing royalty as Citation, Secretariat and Affirmed by winning the Belmont Stakes and becoming the 12th Triple Crown winner.

"He's just an average guy, who made it to the top," trainer Bob Baffert said of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner. "He's come from humble beginnings. He didn't come from blue blood."

Actually, Silver Charm is 1 1/2 miles from the highest rung in American racing.

The Florida-bred Silver Charm is by the modest stallion Silver Buck, now 19, who stands for $6,000 in Florida, out of Bonnie's Poker. While the gray colt's blood might not be blue, there are strains of talent and toughness in it.

Silver Buck finished fourth, beaten only by a length, to the great John Henry in the 1 1/2-mile Jockey Club Gold Cup in 1981. The next year he won the prestigious Whitney and Suburban handicaps.

Bonnie's Poker had 63 starts and won 11. Both she and Silver Buck broke their maidens

Kuerten, Bruguera reach French final

By Stephen Wilson
AP Sports Writer

PARIS — Three weeks ago, Gustavo Kuerten was playing in a small-time satellite event in his native Brazil. On Sunday, the man with the technicolor outfits and No. 66 ranking will be playing for a Grand Slam title.

Kuerten, nicknamed "Guga," extended his improbable run Friday with a four-set victory over Belgian qualifier Filip Dewulf to become the unlikeliest of finalists in this most unpredictable of French Opens.

"I wonder if it's real," said Kuerten, the first Brazilian man to reach a Grand Slam final. "It really is a dream for me."

His opponent in Sunday's championship match will be Spain's Sergi Bruguera, the 16th and lowest seed in the draw. The two-time champion overcame the serve-and-volley game of Australia's Patrick Rafter to win 6-7 (8-6), 6-1, 7-5, 7-6 (7-1) in the other semifinal.

Kuerten is the lowest ranked finalist in French Open history, and the sixth unseeded player in the Open era to make it to the men's final. Only two nonseeds have won the French Open, Marcel Bernard in 1946 and Mats Wilander in 1982.

"I'm very happy, but I'm not satisfied yet," said Kuerten, who beat the 122nd-ranked Dewulf 6-1, 3-6, 6-1, 7-6 (7-4). "I really want it more now. I really have a chance to win the tournament. Why not?"

Bruguera, the 1993 and 1994 champion, hasn't won a tournament in three years and is still fighting to regain full form after a series of injuries that saw him drop as far as No. 81 at the start of the year.

"Now it's different," he said. "I'm trying to come back. I'm very hungry to win."

Weimar, Fayetteville capture state titles

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Jared Barton went 2-for-4 and scored three runs and Patrick Colon pitched a complete game as Weimar beat Alto 9-2 to repeat as Class 2A state champions Friday.

Fayetteville defeated Spurger, 6-2, to claim the Class A championship. Only two games were decided Friday because of rain.

The Class 4A championship halted with Saginaw Boswell leading Highland Park 3-0 in the top of the fifth inning. It will resume at 10 a.m. Saturday.

The 5A championship between Round Rock and Lubbock Monterey will start at noon, and the 3A championship between Halletsville and Medina Valley will begin at 2:30 p.m.

Class 2A

Weimar 9, Alto 2

Barton ended up going 6-for-8 in the final and the semifinal — a 12-6 victory over Gunter in which he also was the winning pitcher.

Weimar, which beat Gilmer Harmony in last year's title game, finished the season 22-8.

Alto, led by Miguel Heredia who went 2-for-4 and scored the team's only two runs, finished the year 27-2.

Weimar leaped to a 4-1 lead in the first inning as Josh Prihoda, Barton and Colon all singled and scored. Lance Heger walked and later scored from third on a wild pitch.

Barton singled and scored in the second, putting Weimar up 5-1. He reached base on a fourth-inning error, then stole second before Colon singled him home for a 6-2 lead.

Weimar added a run in the fifth by Matt Kutac, who doubled and scored on Bobby Grohmann's ground out. The Wildcats added two more runs in the sixth inning on scores by Colon and Lee Mueller.

Colon was strong on the mound and managed to avoid disaster in the first and third innings. With Alto's Jeff Duplichain on third and David Heredia on second and only one out in the first, Colon struck out the next two batters to escape the inning.

In the third, Alto's Miguel Heredia scored, then Stancy Skinner reached third and Duplichain reached second with no outs. But Skinner was thrown out at home and the next two batters popped out and grounded out to end the threat.

Colon (8-3) gave up two runs on six hits with two walks and five strikeouts.

■ UIL Championships

Duplichain (4-1) was the loser, giving up seven runs — five earned — on eight hits with one walk and one strikeout in four innings.

Class A

Fayetteville 6, Spurger 2

Ryan Frerichs tripled home the winning run as Fayetteville scored four runs in the top of the ninth.

Fayetteville, making its first trip to the state tournament since finishing runner-up in 1985, finished the year 21-6-1 and relegated Spurger to the role of runner-up for the second straight year.

Spurger, which finished the season 25-5-1, lost in last year's title game to Thorndale.

The game was tied 2-2 at the end of seven innings of regulation play. Both teams went three up and three down in the eighth inning before Fayetteville broke the tie in the ninth.

Josh Vitek walked and then Frerichs ripped a triple down the third base line, scoring Vitek. Evan Alford batted next and ripped a double into the gap in right center field, scoring Frerichs. Brian Krenek then singled home Alford and later scored on a wild pitch, giving Fayetteville a 6-2 lead.

Spurger was unable to answer in the bottom of the ninth. After Marcus McCabe and Cory Jeansonne walked, Ricky Fortenberry grounded out, Andy Odom popped out and Josh Sirmons struck out to end the game.

Fayetteville took a 2-0 lead in the first inning after Vitek doubled home Cody Fritsch and Daniel Sehley.

Spurger answered with one run in the bottom of the first as Justin McCabe blasted a triple into the gap in left center field and then scored on a wild pitch.

After loading the bases with one out in the fourth inning, Spurger tied the game 2-2 as Marcus McCabe scored from third on a passed ball.

Fayetteville's Vitek, who came in relief of starter Schley, then settled down and struck out the next two batters to end the inning with Spurger runners on first and second.

Vitek (13-3) earned the victory, going 5 2-3 innings without giving up a hit. He had two walks and seven strikeouts.

Justin McCabe (9-2) was the loser, giving up four runs on three hits with two walks and seven strikeouts in 3 and 2-3 innings.

Alabama gets past Miami to meet LSU

By Barry Bedlan
Associated Press Writer

OMAHA, Neb. — The College World Series championship game became an all-SEC encounter when Alabama beat Miami for the second straight day.

"We had joked with each other, with the LSU players this season, that we would see each other in the championship game of the College World Series," said Matt Frick, who hit a three-run homer in the Crimson Tide's 8-2 victory Friday. "It's nice to see the two best teams playing for the championship."

Defending champion Louisiana State and Alabama, seeking its first NCAA baseball title, are each 56-13. The Tide won three of five games against the Tigers during the final two weeks of the season, including 28-2 on May 10, the worst loss in LSU history.

For the first time, the top two seeds advanced to the CWS final.

"I think that helps when you know the team," Alabama coach Jim Wells said. "We certainly won't have to spend all night going over scouting reports."

The Tide, in the final for the first time since 1983, scored eight runs in the third against Miami (51-18), which lost last year's final 9-8. The Hurricanes, who beat Alabama 6-1 Monday before losing 8-6 Thursday, lost two games to the same team in the CWS for the third time in four years.

"It's hard to talk about the end of another season like this," Miami coach Jim Morris said. "Alabama has a great ballclub. I've said that many times."

Mark Peer capped the eight-run inning with a two-run homer off J.D. Arteaga (11-4).

Peter Fisher (10-3) allowed three hits in eight shutout innings for Alabama.

"Pete Fisher saved his best for last," Wells said. "It's probably the best he has pitched all year."

Robbie Tucker, David Tidwell and Joe Caruso opened the third with consecutive singles, and Andy Phillips' grounder was misplayed for a run-scoring error by third baseman Patrick Burrell, who tried to field it with his bare hand.

Dustan Mohr followed with a comebacker that knocked off Arteaga's glove for a single, making it 2-0. G.W. Kweller hit an RBI grounder and Frick followed with his 16th homer for a 6-0 lead.

Nate Duncan tripled to the right-field corner, where Jason Michaels knocked the ball around on the grass before fielding it. Peer then homered just inside the right-field foul pole, his fourth.

Miami scored its only runs in the ninth when Aubrey Huff singled, Mandy Jacomino doubled and Mike Lopez-Cao brought them in with a single.

KC pitcher heeds father, defeats Texas

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Growing up in Puerto Rico, Jose Rosado was taught to obey his father.

So when Tony Rosado watched his son pitch in the majors for just the second time and kept motioning at him to keep the ball down, Jose kept the ball down.

And the Kansas City Royals, with the help of a rare misplay by All-Star catcher Ivan Rodriguez, emerged up with a 2-1 victory over the Texas Rangers on Friday night.

"It meant so much to have my mother and father here from Puerto Rico to watch me pitch," said Rosado (5-3), who beat John Burkett for the second time in six days.

"They were sitting right behind home plate. Every time I would make a pitch high, I would look to my dad and he would make a motion with his hands telling me to keep the ball lower I'm 2-0 with my mom and dad watching me. They saw me win my first major-league game in New York."

Rosado, a 6-2 winner over Burkett at Texas in his previous start, gave up five hits, struck out six and walked only one in his first complete game of the year.

"He spotted the ball down and away," Texas manager Johnny Oates said. "It was a well pitched ballgame."

The Royals got the go-ahead run in the fifth when Sal Fasano reached on Rodriguez's throwing error and later slid under the tag of Rodriguez to score.

"He was back anticipating for me to bowl into him," Fasano said. "But I happened to slither in there under him. I don't know how, but I did."

With the score 1-all, Fasano led off the fifth by pounding Burkett's pitch into the ground in front of the plate. But Rodriguez's throw sailed high over first baseman Will Clark and Fasano wound up on second.

After Jose Offerman's bunt single put runners at the corners, Jay Bell hit a slow grounder to third baseman Dean Palmer, who threw home. But Fasano managed to score ahead of Rodriguez's tag on a close play.

"No excuse. I just threw the ball away," Rodriguez said. "Nobody's perfect in baseball. I'm not perfect. There are going to be days like today."

Offerman, who has six multihit games in his last seven starts, singled leading off the first. Tom Goodwin reached on a force play, stole second and scored on a single by Chili Davis.

■ AL Roundup

Burkett (4-5) allowed seven hits in eight innings. He struck out four and walked two.

"It's the first mistake he's made this year," Burkett said of Rodriguez.

Texas tied it at 1 in the second when Mike Devereaux doubled with two out, took third on Rosado's wild pitch and scored on Bill Ripken's single.

Notes: Ripken has hit safely in 13 of his last 15 games. ... The Royals went into the weekend as one of five major league teams with losing records at home and at least break-even marks on the road. ... Benji Gil singled with two out in the fifth but was picked off first by Rosado. ... Jeff King was called out in the sixth when a teen-ager stuck his glove over the railing and caught his pop foul as Clark reached for the ball. The kid was escorted out of the park.

Blue Jays 4, Athletics 1

TORONTO — Roger Clemens raised his record to 11-0, becoming the top winner in the major leagues by pitching eight scoreless innings as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Oakland Athletics.

Clemens, who leads the AL with a 1.69 ERA, allowed five hits, struck out eight and walked two in winning his eighth straight start.

Mike Timlin took over to start the ninth and gave up Mark McGwire's 23rd homer. After Jose Canseco singled, Dan Plesac relieved and got one out. Paul Quantrill finished for his second save.

Mariners 6, Tigers 3

DETROIT — Jose Cruz Jr. hit a pair of two-run homers, helping fellow rookie Derek Lowe earn his first major league victory as the Mariners extended their winning streak to a season-high five.

Lowe (1-1), who took Dennis Martinez's spot in the rotation last month, went 5 1-3 innings and allowed three runs and five hits. Bobby Ayala pitched two innings for his second save.

Curtis Pride hit a three-run homer for the Tigers. Omar Olivares (4-4) gave up six runs and eight hits in six innings.

Indians 7, Red Sox 3

BOSTON — Sandy Alomar tied a major-league record with four doubles and Jim Thome hit his fourth homer in four games.

Alomar doubled to left field in all four at-bats, drove in a run and scored twice. He is the 38th player with four doubles, the first since Jeff Bagwell last June 14.

Orel Hershiser (6-2) allowed one runs and eight hits in seven innings. Tom Gordon (3-6) gave up six runs — four earned — and eight hits in 4 1-3 innings.

Yankees 6, Brewers 3

NEW YORK — Kenny Rogers (4-3) won for only the second time in eight starts since April 23 but allowed three runs and six hit in 5 1-3 innings, and Cecil Fielder homered for the second straight game.

Luis Sojo drove in two runs with an RBI single and a sacrifice fly, helping the struggling Yankees win for the fourth time in six games. Mariano Rivera pitched a perfect ninth for his 17th save in 21 chances.

Brewers starter Jose Mercedes (2-2) gave up five runs — four earned — and five hits in 3 1-3 innings.

White Sox 7, Orioles 3

CHICAGO — Albert Belle went 4-for-4 and Frank Thomas hit his 16th homer before leaving in the seventh with a rib injury as Chicago stopped Baltimore's seven-game winning streak.

Belle, fined $5,000 earlier in the day by the AL for making an obscene gesture at Cleveland fans on Tuesday, matched a career-high with the four hits. He doubled and had an RBI single during a five-run fifth.

Doug Drabek (5-4) gave up eight hits in 5 1-3 innings, and Roberto Hernandez got the last out for his 12th save. Scott Erickson (8-2) lost for the first time in eight starts, allowing 10 hits in five innings.

Twins 9, Angels 7

MINNEAPOLIS — Paul Molitor had four hits, including a three-run homer in the eighth off Pep Harris (0-2) that broke a 6-6 tie.

Tim Salmon homered and drove in three runs for Anaheim. He singled home a run in the ninth before Rick Aguilera finished for his 14th save.

Greg Swindell (4-2) went 1 1-3 innings, allowing one hit.

Diablos utilize thunder, lightning to beat Angels

Staff report

EL PASO — The longball early and the rain late combined to do in the Midland Angels Friday night.

Jarrod Washburn gave up three home runs in the first two innings to put the Angels in a deep hole from which they never recovered, and despite rallying late, they fell short in an 11-8 loss to the El Paso Diablos.

The game started badly for Washburn (5-7), who gave up a solo homer to Mike Kinkade in the first inning which got the Diablos on the board. Things slid further in the bottom of the second when Scott Krause hit another solo home run for a 2-0 lead.

El Paso then played short ball, hitting four straight singles to bring in one run and leave the bases loaded for Darrell Nicholas. That brought the fatal blow as Nicholas cleared the bases with a grand slam, marking the point of no return for Midland.

Trailing 8-0, the Angels got a short-lived boost on a solo homer to right by Aaron Guiel. They chipped away at the Diablos, scoring four runs in the seventh, and adding a run in the eighth to cut it to 11-8 before the rain came down.

The game resumed with Kevin Young on first base, and a single by Tim Harkrider and a walk to Keith Luuloa loaded the bases. However, reliever Frank Rodriguez struck out Danny Buxbaum to kill the threat.

In the ninth, the Angels again had the tying run at the plate after Chris Norton singled and Guiel was hit a by a pitch, but Jason Herrick struck out to end it.

The series will conclude tonight at 8:15 CDT. Rafael Quirico (2-1, 6.45 ERA) will take the mound for the Angels and be opposed by Travis Smith (3-2, 4.15), a Texas Tech product.

Lee's Hall inks with Midwestern

Staff Report

Michael Hall, a standout linebacker at Midland Lee the last two seasons, has accepted a scholarship to play football at Midwestern State in Wichita Falls.

Hall was a key figure on the Rebel defense which helped the team go undefeated each of the last two regular seasons. The six-foot, 194-pound Hall was a first team All-District 4-5A selection last season as a senior.

Midwestern State is a Division II school competing in the Lone Star Conference.

NBA: Jazz cut Chicago's lead to 2-1 for a pair of 3s that made it 88-80. Malone scored on a drive to bump the lead back to 10, but that would be Utah's last basket of the night.

(From 1C)

Another 3 by Pippen made it an eight-point game, and his fourth of the quarter with 31.2 left made it 98-91.

But the Jazz were then in the midst of their run of consecutive made free throws to end the game, and Chicago got no closer.

"We got very casual and didn't handle the ball well," Jazz coach Jerry Sloan said of the fourth quarter. "The turnovers were because of that. When you have a big lead, you tend to get conservative. You play not to lose, instead of doing the things that got you the lead."

The Bulls got little from anyone other than Jordan, Pippen and Williams, Dennis Rodman had no points and three rebounds in 24 minutes and sat out most of the fourth quarter. Ron Harper scored only two points and was burned by Stockton several times on drives to the basket.

Notes: Pippen was whistled for a second-quarter technical by referee Hue Hollins after a blatant non-call on which Adam Keefe climbed over his back.

Bucs' Johnson saves job with clutch single

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Just when the Philadelphia Phillies seemed to have their rally caps fitting just right, Mark Johnson turned them in the wrong direction.

Johnson, his starting job in jeopardy because of a prolonged slump, had a game-winning pinch-hit single in the 10th inning off Ricky Bottalico to rally the Pittsburgh Pirates past the Phillies 5-4 Friday night.

"I don't care what anybody says. I like Mark Johnson up there in that situation every day," the Pirates' Jason Kendall said of Johnson, who had only two hits in 24 at-bats.

Johnson had struggled so badly since leading the majors in spring training RBIs — he is batting only .100 in his last 10 starts — there was speculation the Pirates might send him to the minors to straighten out his swing.

"When you see a guy getting beat up in the papers like he has been, it bothers him and the whole team," Pirates manager Gene Lamont said. "It was kind of nice to see him come back and throw it in people's faces."

In his last start Wednesday, a 10-0 loss to the Cardinals, Johnson was 0-for-4 with three strikeouts and stranded six base runners.

"You're only as good as your last at-bat, I know that," Johnson said. "But I'm going to go up there and do what I did tonight, and that's keep battling. It was a situation where I had to come through — and a situation where I hadn't been coming through."

The surprising Pirates, in first place later than in any season since 1992, won their sixth in nine games.

■ NL Roundup

The Phillies, despite rallying from a big deficit for the second night in a row, have lost nine of 11. Their 20-38 record is the worst in the majors.

Francisco Cordova, whose brought the majors' third-lowest ERA (1.82) into the game, saw a 4-0 lead evaporate in a four-run Phillies' eighth. Philadelphia also rallied Thursday on Mike Lieberthal's tying three-run homer in the ninth before beating Chicago 9-8 in 10 innings.

"It makes you laugh, it makes you cry when you play close games like that all the time," Phillies manager Terry Francona said. "You're not going to win all of them. You wish you would, but that's not reality. You're not always going to do it, especially on the road."

Phillies reliever Jerry Spradlin (1-2) started the 10th by walking Kendall, who had three hits and an RBI, bringing on Bottalico, the NL reliever of the month in May.

Kevin Young flied out deep to right, advancing Kendall to second, and Joe Randa was intentionally walked ahead of Johnson's line-drive single, which produced only his sixth RBI since April.

"If I put a pitch in that place again, he's going to hit it," Bottalico said. "I was trying to get it on the outside part of the plate and I got it right over the plate. He did what he's supposed to do with a pitch like that, he hit it."

Bottalico had allowed only one other inherited runner to score in his 24 appearances.

Marc Wilkins (5-0) pitched a scoreless 10th for the victory.

The Pirates won despite starting a lineup that included four rookies and a second-year player, Freddy Garcia, with only one career RBI.

Cordova left after Mickey Morandini's one-out single, Darren Daulton's walk and Scott Rolen's two-run double made it 4-2.

Cardinals 3, Dodgers 1

LOS ANGELES — Ray Lankford continued his hot hitting with a pair of solo homers, and Alan Benes pitched eight strong innings as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the struggling Los Angeles Dodgers.

Lankford, who returned from offseason shoulder surgery on April 22, connected twice off Chan Ho Park (4-3), raising his season total to 14. He has homered in four consecutive games and has a 12-game hitting streak.

All the Cardinals' runs came on homers. Ron Gant hit his 11th to put St. Louis up 3-0 in the fourth.

Benes (5-5) allowed one run and seven hits, struck out seven and walked four as he avenged a 6-1 loss to Park and the Dodgers at St. Louis last Sunday. Dennis Eckersley finished with a perfect ninth for his 12th save.

In addition to his 14 homers in just 39 games, Lankford has driven in 43 runs, scored 34 and is hitting .386.

With two outs in the first, Lankford hit a 1-1 fastball from Park into the right-field bleachers.

In his next-at-bat, in the fourth, Lankford connected with an 0-1 fastball and sailed it even deeper into the bleachers in right. One out later, Gant homered to left.

The Dodgers' only run came in the fifth, after Todd Hollandsworth hit a dribbler up the third-base line for a hit and went to second when Gary Gaetti's throw was wild for an error. Hollandsworth advanced on a groundout and scored on Nelson Liriano's double just inside the first-base line.

Expos 3, Cubs 0

MONTREAL — Jim Bullinger pitched a six-hitter for his third career shutout and started a two-run fifth with an infield single as the Montreal Expos beat the Chicago Cubs.

Mike Lansing and Mark Grudzielanek hit consecutive RBI doubles in the fifth and Henry Rodriguez homered in the eighth as Montreal stopped a three-game losing streak.

Bullinger (3-5) won for the first time in six starts since May 4, striking out two and walking four.

Rookie Jeremi Gonzalez allowed two runs and eight hits in six innings.

Reds 5 Mets 2

CINCINNATI — Brett Tomko (1-1) pitched six innings for his first win in the majors and drove in Cincinnati's go-ahead run with his first big league hit.

Tomko held the Mets to one run and four hits in six innings in a steady rain. The right-hander struck out seven, walked two and hit one batter in his second major league appearance.

He also doubled off Rick Reed (4-3) to put the Reds ahead 2-1 in the fifth, his first RBI in four major-league at-bats. Bret Boone had a two-run double, and Joe Oliver hit a solo homer and an RBI single off Reed.

Philly coach wonders if his Flyers are choking in Stanley Cup finals

By Tom Canavan
AP Sports Writer

DETROIT — The Philadelphia Flyers are just about cooked in the Stanley Cup finals, and coach Terry Murray suggests his team is choking.

Less than a hour after assailing his players for losing the first three games to Detroit, Murray said his team was not rising to the moment and was handing the Red Wings their first NHL title in 42 years.

Even Eric Lindros was not spared by Murray. He said the star center must play better in Game 4 at the Joe Louis Arena on Saturday night if the Flyers are to avert a sweep.

The word "choke," in any context, is sensitive stuff. Fans use it and so do reporters. But when a coach uses it, that's startling, especially in reference to his own team.

Murray is trying to figure out what has happened to a club that was playing so well and so confidently after beating the Rangers in the Eastern Conference finals.

The Flyers clearly played like a beaten team in losing 6-1 in Game 3 on Thursday night.

"I don't know where it has gone," Murray said at a news conference Friday. "But many teams have been through this problem before and it is basically a choking situation that I call it for our team right now. That can turn around. The one thing about going through that phase is that it is a mental block as much as anything."

When asked to clarify his comments, Murray said his team simply was not playing at the level demanded of a champion.

"If that is not happening you are never going to break through and you are going to be one of those teams that were also-rans your whole life," Murray said. "You are going to choke. You are going to get into a competitive situations and you are not going to know how to break through and get the job done. That is something you learn as an athlete and a team."

The remarks seemed to stun his players, who are facing the prospect of an embarrassing sweep in a series they were favored to win.

"It's a hard thing to hear from someone else," alternate captain Eric Desjardins said. "I don't know of any professional athlete who wants to hear that, especially from his coach."

John LeClair made a strange look when told what Murray said.

"Is he saying the whole club?" LeClair asked. "Like I said earlier, I don't know if it's choking, we just feel we haven't played the way we want to play and it's real frustrating for us."

Sergi Bruguera hits a backhand to Patrick Rafter in the semifinal of the French Open Friday in Paris. Bruguera advanced to the final against Gustavo Kuerten with a 6-7 (8-6), 6-1, 7-5, 7-6 (7-1) victory.

AMATEUR: Stewart takes over lead bite caused by West Texas' winds is less severe.

"This course grew fangs," said Ed Brooks, who lived in Odessa from 1971-85. "You have to hit good golf shots out here. If you do, you will be rewarded. If you don't, you will be penalized hard. I have played this course enough to know that if the wind blew, it would be awesome."

Brooks, whose son Jason was a member of Midland College's national championship team in 1995, was not the only Amateur veteran to be affected by the gusty winds that played havoc with the course, firmed up greens and sent the ball in every direction but the intended one.

"The wind makes all the difference here," said 1994 champion John Grace who shot a 73 with just one bogey. "I was struggling for par on every hole. The course is so tight that when the wind is coming across you have to play well to keep in the fairway. It also made the greens firmer. I figure it made a difference of two-and-a-half shots."

Grace, a 49 year-old who has seen his fair share of Amateurs, was close. Of the 30 golfers at even-par or better at the beginning of the day, their cumulative score was 83 shots over-par. That averages to 74.9 or 2.9 shots over par. On Thursday, the top 30 averaged 69.9 or 2.1 under-par.

Only five of the top 30 shot even-par or better. Only two, Austin's Bob Dickerson and Dallas' B.J. Staten, were under-par. Both shot 71. Also, compared to the 24 under-par rounds on Day 1, 10 were under par on Friday. Also at the end of Day 2, 13 golfers in the whole field were under-par for the tournament after Day 2. The best round of the day belonged to Commerce's Casey Devoll, who shot a 68.

If Friday's conditions continue over the weekend, making up strokes on Stewart could prove to be difficult.

"The course is tight off the tee box, and with the wind, it is hard to get the ball in the fairway," Brooks said. "If you are off the fairway, it is hard to get off a shot (to the green). I guess if the winds blow, the score will stay up there."

Stewart, a Dallas resident, says that he is prepared for the latter to happen. He would not be surprised if the winds stay around and make it interesting for the whole field.

"The wind was blowing and I didn't hit it close all day," Stewart said. "If it is like this, 140-144 (4-under to even par over the last two rounds) will be pretty strong."

The tournament's first-round leader, Womack, said that he wouldn't mind seeing the wind stay around for a few days. Womack won the qualifier at Green Tree Country Club in winds gusting as high or maybe higher than Friday's.

"I'd (prefer) it blows and blows hard," Womack said. "I like the wind. It didn't affect me."

Womack followed his magnificent 66 on Thursday with a three-over-par 75 on Friday. Although the consistency of the day before was gone, Womack still didn't play too poorly and showed some character in the process. After bogeying 12 to go 4-over for the day, he played the last six holes at 1-under, coming up with quality shots and clutch putting down the line to put him in the tournament's last pairing on Saturday.

"Maybe this is the worst round," Womack said. "The birdie helped me turn things around and then I made key putts when I needed it. I feel I can play OK (tomorrow).

"If anyone said I would be 3-under after two rounds, I would say 'Hell yes'."

Joining Womack in the last pairing will be Stewart and Overturf, teammates on the University of Texas golf team in the late 1960s. Overturf won the TGA Mid-AM two years ago when it was held in Midland, so Stewart knows what he can do here. So, it should be a couple of old friends enjoying 18 holes of golf.

"We are lifetime friends and I look forward to playing him," said Stewart, who paused and added, "I want to beat his brains out."

THE CUT: The half-way point of the Amateur means that the field was cut to the top 55 scorers for this weekend's play. This year's cut line ended up at 8-over par (150).

MIDLANDERS: Four Midlanders will be playing in the final two rounds. Along with Womack, Reggie Howell, Kirk Branum and Steve Whiteside all scored 150 and lower. Howell shot a second-round 76 for a total of 148. Branum is one-stroke higher at 149 and Whiteside was on the magic number with a 150.

CHAMPIONS IN THE HUNT: Five of the six former winners of the Amateur made the cut for the final two rounds. John Grace (1994), Bob Hullender (1996), Brad Elder (1995) and Randy Sonnier (1986, 1991) are within six strokes of the lead held by Stewart (1992).

Hingis would join select company by following Aussie win with French title

By Salvatore Zanca
Associated Press Writer

PARIS — She is the youngest player this century to win her first Grand Slam. Now Martina Hingis is on the verge of becoming the youngest in history to win her second.

She is unbeaten this year and going after her second straight Grand Slam title following her victory in January at the Australian Open.

Hingis' opponent Saturday in the French Open final is Iva Majoli. A victory would put the 16-year-old Swiss star in a select group of women who have won the Australian and French Open in the same year: Margaret Court, Steffi Graf and Monica Seles.

She may lack the power of Court, Graf or Seles, but Hingis has an understanding of the game that surpasses all of them at her age.

When Hingis won the Australian Open she became the youngest Grand Slam winner since 1887, at the age of 16 years, 3 months and 26 days. If she wins Saturday, she will be the youngest winner of two Grand Slams, at barely 16 years, 8 months.

The previous youngest was Lottie Dod, who was 16 years, 10 months when she won her second Wimbledon title in 1888.

Hingis is an overwhelming favorite to win the French Open title over Majoli and take her seventh consecutive tournament and 41st match of the year, including three Hopman Cup victories.

What most people count as the unofficial final for the tournament — Hingis vs. Seles — took place in the semifinals with Hingis winning in three sets.

Seles, who won the French Open three times, knows why Hingis is unbeaten for the year.

"Martina is really good everywhere," she said. "She doesn't have a weakness that you can say 'OK, if I do that, I'll win the point.' That's why she's so good. She's tough mentally."

Hingis became the youngest No. 1 when she supplanted Graf in March, passing Seles as the youngest top-ranked player in history.

Majoli has a victory over Hingis last year, one of Hingis's 16 losses in 1996. However the 19-year-old Croatian lost to her three times since, including a 6-1, 6-3 rout in Paris indoors in February.

"I just think of her as another player," Majoli said. "I know she's great. She's done so much. She's playing great tennis."

Seeded ninth, Majoli could become the lowest seeded woman player in the Open era to win a French Open title.

"I really have nothing to lose," she said. "I can really just play the best tennis of my life."

Majoli has been fighting a cold and said she will get as much rest as possible for the final.

Hingis had a knee operation more than six weeks ago after injuring herself in a fall from a horse.

"I didn't know what to expect from myself from this tournament," she said. "It's never easy to come back from a surgery."

Hingis said she is still getting treatment on her knee, up to an hour a day. She didn't get much rest Friday. She and Aranxta Sanchez Vicario lost 10-8 in the fifth set of the women's doubles semifinals against Natasha Zvereva and Gigi Fernandez.

FRENCH: Kuerten breaks into final from various setbacks, the 20-year-old Kuerten has come out of nowhere. He has won 11 straight matches, a streak that began at a challenger event in Curitiba, southern Brazil.

"That tournament helped me a lot," he said. "I took a lot of confidence there. The crowd was unbelievable. Since then, I didn't lose yet."

Dressed head to toe in the blue and yellow colors of Brazil, Kuerten brought a soccer-style atmosphere to Roland Garros on Friday.

His family and friends chanted, "O-LE, O-LE, O-LE, O-LA .... Gu-GA, Gu-GA!" He repeatedly turned to his entourage in the players' box, pumping his fist, looking for encouragement.

After winning points, Kuerten would skip and hop, scurrying back into position for the next serve.

"I lost a little bit of my excitement in the second set," he said. "That's why I try to jump a little bit, to start to take it again the good feeling, to enjoy the semifinal. When I really enjoy the match, I start to jump all over."

Kuerten said he was inspired by the arrival of his mother and grandmother from Brazil.

"I really take energy from them," he said. "I really enjoy to play like this."

A lanky and skinny 6-foot-3, Kuerten still generates great power from his groundstrokes and serve. He always looked the stronger player, especially when he broke in the seventh game of the fourth set and served for the match at 5-4.

But Dewulf suddenly picked up his game, applying pressure and cutting down on mistakes. After the Belgian broke for 5-5 and held for 6-5, a disgusted Kuerten tossed his racket toward his chair.

But Kuerten held serve at 15 to set up the tiebreaker. Dewulf led 4-3, but then slapped two identical forehand approach shots into the net to go down 5-4.

On the next point, Kuerten ended a long rally by hitting a backhand volley that clipped the top of the net and dropped over for a winner. The match ended on the next point with Dewulf sailing a forehand long.

"Maybe God is from Brazil," Kuerten said of the net cord.

Dewulf, who was playing his ninth match after making it through the qualifying rounds, admitted he never thought he could win.

"I was not having fun any more on the court," he said. "The desire to fight to the end was not really there today."

In the second semifinal, Rafter showed plenty of his desire as he tried to serve and volley his way past Bruguera, the ultimate baseliner.

The match featured several outstanding points, with Rafter guarding the net, sprawling for reflex volleys, as Bruguera tried to pass him from all angles.

After Rafter clinched the first-set tiebreaker by jumping high for Bruguera's lob and smashing it away, the Spaniard responded by running off the next set while dropping only one game.

Rafter led 5-2 in the third set, but let the match slip away. Serving for the set, he played a terrible game, making three bad errors and a double fault. Bruguera won six straight games to close out the set and go up 1-0 in the fourth.

But Rafter didn't fold, fighting back to go ahead 6-5 and earning two set points. But Bruguera saved the first with a passing shot, and Rafter wasted his chance on the second by slapping a forehand return into the net.

Bruguera cruised in the tiebreaker, going up 6-0 and then 6-1, before converting the second match point in a long rally that ended with Rafter netting a volley.

Bruguera buried his head in a towel, then looked to his father, Luis, and held up a fist.

BELMONT: Silver Charm seeks crown on the Belmont track, where Silver Charm will be racing for the first time.

(From 1C)

Silver Charm was purchased as a 2-year-old by Baffert for Bob and Beverly Lewis and would be only the third Triple Crown winner not to have been bred by the owner. Sir Barton, the first winner in 1919, was purchased for $10,000 as a 2-year-old, and Seattle Slew was bought for $17,500 as a yearling.

Silver Charm went on the auction block at the Ocala Breeders' Sale of 2-year-olds in the spring of 1996. His owner bid $100,000 in an effort to force up the price, but no one topped that bid. So he went back to the owner, who had to pay a sales commission.

Baffert then bought him privately for $85,000 for the Lewises and then was put on a van for a five-day journey to Baffert's base in California.

The colt arrived by chartered plane in New York on Wednesday from Churchill Downs at Louisville, Ky., where he was training after his Preakness victory May 20 at Baltimore.

Silver Charm's success has put him the public eye. He was the subject of stories this week in Time and Newsweek.

A crowd of 2,500 watched his final workout Tuesday at Churchill Downs. He was given a police escort from Kennedy International Airport to Belmont Park, where he was greeted by a crush of visitors. There were 18 stretch limos in the neighborhood of Silver Charm's barn.

Lewis chartered a 110-seat plane to bring friends and family to New York and took 100 rooms at a hotel not far from the track. On the plane were Baffert's wife and three sons and a daughter, ranging from 3 1/2 to 11 years old.

Baffert intends to fly back Sunday with the Lewis contingent.

"I might be riding in the front of the plane or the back," the trainer said. "I don't know yet."

On Wednesday, the day of Silver Charm's arrival, the New York Racing Association's web site took 100,240 hits and the site was visited 143,685 times Thursday.

NYRA officials hope Silver Charm's Triple Crown bid against six other 3-year-olds will draw the biggest crowd since 64,959 watched Sunday Silence fail to win the Triple Crown by finishing a distant second to Easy Goer in 1989. Silver Charm is the first 3-year-old to bid for the Triple Crown since Sunday Silence became the 12th to fail.

There was a crowd of 65,417 when Affirmed became the last Triple Crown in 1978. The largest crowd to see a Belmont was 82,695, which turned out to in 1971 to watch Derby and Preakness winner Canonero II finish fourth, with Pass Catcher the winner.

Among those trying to foil Silver Charm's bid will be Free House, third in the Kentucky Derby, and second by a head in the Preakness; Touch Gold, fourth in the Preakness; Crypto Star, fifth in the Kentucky Derby; and Wild Rush, winner of the Illinois Derby.

Outsiders in the field are New York-bred Irish Silence and Panama-raced Mr. Energizer, supplemented to the race by owner Robert Perez for $50,000.

Missing will be Captain Bodgit, second by a head in the Derby and third by two heads in the Preakness. He has been retired because of a foot injury.

Barry Irwin, who managed Captain Bodgit's career, was at Silver Charm's barn Friday morning. Irwin was asked if he was rooting for Silver Charm.

"Why not," he replied.

Ex-coach Stallings recovering nicely

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — It's June and — as usual — Gene Stallings is getting edgy.

Naturally, the recently retired Alabama coach still has lingering thoughts about football, but he's also worried about all the work left undone on his Texas ranch since he went down with a broken right hip seven weeks ago.

"There are so many things that need to be done out there, it's hard to think about," said Stallings, who wore a Crimson blazer and used crutches to walk to the podium, where he spoke to a graduating class of state troopers Friday.

Stallings, 62, must spend about five more weeks on crutches while his hip heals. While working on the family ranch in Paris, Texas, in April, he was trampled by three horses, who knocked him down while trying to get to a feed bucket.

"I'm moving around fine, but I can't do a lot of work with my hands," Stallings said. "It's a little frustrating."

He can't do any work that would require him to take the bulk of the weight off of his crutches.

He said he is still adapting to being out of coaching for the first time in 40 years. Normally in June, he would spend much of his time worrying about where his players were and what they were doing to prepare for the upcoming season.

"I'm getting a little edgy," he said. "This time of year, you get used to thinking about what you have to do to get the team ready."

Stallings still comes to Alabama often for meetings and fund raisers and has no plans to shirk from Crimson Tide games when fall rolls around, as many ex-coaches do when they retire.

"I plan to go to some games and I'm looking forward to it," Stallings said.

New Texas Motor Speedway throws curves at drivers

By Jaime Aron
AP Sports Writer

FORT WORTH — Modern Indy cars have never raced at night. In the brief history of the Indy Racing League, drivers have never steered through turns as steep as 24 degrees.

All that will change Saturday night with the True Value 500K, which is expected to draw the second-biggest crowd to see an IRL race to the new Texas Motor Speedway.

"At these speeds, at night — it's definitely going to be interesting," driver Davey Hamilton said.

IRL officials were concerned the high banking could be dangerous, so they ordered some body changes aimed at keeping cars to 210 mph or less. Nine drivers broke that speed in Wednesday night's unique two-lap, one-pit qualifying, with 14 of the 43 laps clocked at 210.28 mph or more.

Tony Stewart, who reached 217 mph in a practice lap, went over 216 mph in both of his qualifying laps to earn the pole position and a $25,000 bonus.

Stewart said he's adjusted to the 1 1/2-mile oval so quickly because of his background running midgets and sprint cars — both of which run at night on tracks with steep corners.

"I think running at places like Winchester (Ind.) sure doesn't hurt you running at this place," said Stewart, who was fifth at the Indy 500 after leading for 63 laps. "A lot of these guys aren't used to having to look up and see the end of the corner when they're on the banks."

When NASCAR helped unveil the track in April, the stock car drivers wrecked on the first turn of their first lap and kept running into each other all day. They later blamed it on lanes that were too tight.

Track officials responded by widening the straightaway between turns 4 and 1 by 5 feet. The IRL guys used the extra pavement in practice Tuesday, but by Wednesday didn't need it.

"I think now that it's wider, it feels a little more comfortable for a lot of guys," Stewart said. "It's got bumps like any other track, but I haven't been to one yet that's been glass-smooth."

The Winston Cup Interstate Batteries 500 race didn't feature much passing because the new surface was basically running as a one-groove track. Stewart said that won't be the case Saturday night.

"This track is so comfortable, you can run anywhere," said Stewart, who proved it in practice Tuesday when he and fellow Team Menard driver Robbie Buhl sandwiched Eddie Cheever Jr. in turn 3.

The only serious wreck of the week came during Tuesday's first practice session, when points leader Mike Groff spun out in turn 4, slamming the driver's side of his car against the wall.

AP Laserphoto

Indy Racing League driver Tony Stewart leaves the pits after a pit stop during Wednesday's qualifying for Saturday's True Value 500 in Fort Worth. Stewart earned the pole position with a time of 167.133.

Groff punctured his left leg and broke his left tibia. He had three small screws inserted into his leg Thursday in Indianapolis and won't be able to walk for about six weeks, although he may drive before then.

The last time Indy cars raced at night, the old models were just beginning to consistently top 100 mph. The last two major events under lights came in a national championship series in 1968 and 1969 at the Nazareth (Pa.) National Speedway. Al Unser Sr. took the first; Mario Andretti the second.

Because the race is scheduled to begin at 7:06 p.m. CDT, many of the 208 laps will be run under natural light.

The $1.7 million lighting system probably won't take hold until around 9 p.m., which could make for some tough driving between dusk and total darkness.

Drivers had nothing but rave reviews for the lights after running under them Tuesday and Wednesday.

"The dollars they spent were well-spent," said driver Greg Ray. "There's no glare whatsoever, no shadows. It's fabulous."

Driver Affonso Giaffone compared driving Indy cars at night to playing tennis under lights.

"It takes a little bit of getting used to at first, and then it's like day," he said.

Mid-week fears of rain have diminished in the latest forecasts. Good weather could help the race draw well over 100,000 fans into TMS' massive grandstand, which would easily be the IRL's biggest non-Indy 500 crowd.

It also would be the second-biggest audience for a sports event in Texas, behind only the 200,000 fans who attended the Interstate Batteries 500 in April.

Earnhardt's winless run has reached 15 months

By Dick Brinster
AP Sports Writer

LONG POND, Pa. — When will Dale Earnhardt win another race? That question has been asked frequently this year, and the seven-time Winston Cup champion's winless run has reached 15 months.

Worse, another loss would be his 40th — matching the worst run of futility in his career — since he won the Purolator 500 last March in Atlanta.

What are his chances of winning Sunday in the Pocono 500? In one word: Poor.

Earnhardt has just two of his 70 career victories on the 2 1/2-mile Pocono International Raceway, and has never won a pole in 34 attempts. He qualified 12th Friday.

A loss Sunday would mean Earnhardt would set a new negative record with a setback June 15 in the Miller 400 at Michigan.

Things have gotten so bad for Earnhardt that he started 43rd — last in the field — last Sunday at Dover. He wound up 15th in the wreck-strewn Miller 500.

Hamilton claims Pocono pole

By Dick Brinster
AP Sports Writer

LONG POND, Pa. — Bobby Hamilton accomplished something that always eluded car owner Richard Petty by putting his Pontiac on the pole Friday for the Pocono 500.

Petty never led the field to the green flag at the 2 1/2-mile Pocono International Raceway in 30 tries during a career that produced a NASCAR-record 200 victories. Hamilton did it in his 12th try, turning a lap at 168.089 mph.

So, on Sunday, for the second week in a row, the third brand of Winston Cup racing goes from the first spot on the grid. Hamilton's lap on a cool, overcast afternoon came a week after Bobby Labonte won the pole at Dover Downs.

Last year, when its only victory in 31 races was Hamilton's breakthrough at Phoenix, Pontiacs were on the pole four times to 17 for Chevrolets and 10 for Fords. The pole also was the first for a Pontiac at Pocono since Rusty Wallace started this race on the point in 1989.

"This is a brand new Pontiac, and for them to build something like this from scratch is quite an accomplishment," Hamilton said of the crew that gave him the third pole of his career and first since last September. "From the minute we unloaded, we were fast."

The pole came as no surprise to Hamilton, 40, whose effort combined with that of Labonte marked the first back-to-back poles for Pontiacs in more than a year.

"We were fast all the way through practice," Hamilton said. "I made a mock qualifying run, and that ended up third-quickest."

When it counted, he was even quicker.

"I don't know if it was a prefect lap, but it's what I like," he said.

Second-fastest in the session to set positions 1-25 for the $1.3 million event was the Ford of Dale Jarrett, who qualified in the top 10 for the 12th time in 13 races this season. He solved the mostly flat, triangular-shaped layout with a speed of 168.026.

But he figured he should have done better.

"I left a little bit in turn three," he said of the sweeping curve where he crashed and broke his knee while warming up for his time test last June. "The car slid up in the corner there, and I was a little late getting back into the throttle."

Neither Hamilton nor Jarrett came close to the 169.725 track record set a year ago by defending race champion Jeff Gordon. He was 11th-fastest in a Chevrolet, turning a lap at 166.991.

"We did everything we needed to do in practice," Gordon said. "We just should have been a little better in qualifying."

The strong Pontiac run continued with Ward Burton qualifying third off a lap at 167.507. Astride of him in the second row Sunday will be the Chevy of Greg Sacks, which checked in at 167.470.

None of the first four drivers had previously won a pole at Pocono, which conducts two Winston Cup events each summer.

Bill Elliott was the best of the past pole winners and the fastest of the Ford drivers at 167.383. He will occupy the inside of the third row.

Next to Elliott will be Ricky Rudd, who won last weekend at Dover. Rudd's Ford was clocked at 167.364.

Rounding out the top 10 were reigning Winston Cup champion and current points leader Terry Labonte, four-time Pocono winner Darrell Waltrip, John Andretti and Rick Mast.

Seven-time Winston Cup champion Dale Earnhardt, whose 39-race losing streak leaves him on short of tying his career-worst drought, will start next to Gordon on the sixth row.

Ken Schrader, the Pocono pole king with five, was among those who will have to attempt to qualify Saturday. Schrader, in search of his first victory in six years, posted the 34th-fastest time.

MARLIN'S BAD LUCK: It's been a while since Sterling Marlin visited the winner's circle. Until he does, the 39-year-old Tennessean doesn't recommend anybody follow him around — on or off the track.

"It's hard to believe the luck we've had this season," Marlin said as he began preparing for the running Sunday of the Pocono 500. "I'd go looking for a four-leaf clover, but I'm afraid I'd slip and break a leg or something."

The affable Marlin, always ready with a quip despite a winless run of 39 races, says he is beginning to make his team a bit nervous.

"Nobody's said anything, but I get the feeling people are afraid to get on an airplane with me," he said. "I know this much: This ain't the year for me to try to hit the lottery."

Wiebe, Weibring lead tourney in anonymity

Associated Press

POTOMAC, Md. — On a day when the huge Kemper Open crowds flocked to the dream grouping of Greg Norman and Nick Faldo, the leaderboard was overtaken in relative anonymity by a player allergic to grass and trees and another trying to rediscover a passion for the game.

Followed by galleries of a few dozen instead of a few hundred, Mark Wiebe and D.A. Weibring overcame the TPC at Avenel's bumpy greens to shoot 4-under-par 67s for 136 totals and a one-stroke lead over Norman, Tom Lehman, Omar Uresti and John Morse.

"Anytime you have a strong field, you really want to play well," said Wiebe, referring to the all-star contingent using the Kemper as a warmup for next week's U.S. Open in nearby Bethesda. "Everybody's kind of jacked this week. It makes it a little bit sweeter."

In addition to Norman and Lehman, there were plenty of those all-stars bubbling under the leading scores and ready to burst through this weekend.

Faldo had the round of the day, a 6-under 65, to move within two of the lead. Faldo was tied with Nick Price, who had shared first place with Norman after the opening round. Curtis Strange, Jose Maria Olazabal, Paul Stankowski, John Daly, Paul Azinger and Corey Pavin were among 29 players within four shots of the lead.

"It was very simple, play better and putt better," said Faldo, who held his hand to his heart in disbelief after making a tantalizingly slow 45-foot birdie putt with a 6-foot downhill break at the par-3 17th. "I feel like I've done enough work the last few weeks; this is how I feel like I should be playing, so it's nice."

While as many as four armed policemen were among the crowd trailing Faldo and Norman — whose even-par round including a splash in the creek while going for an ambitious eagle at the par-5 sixth — there were few witnesses to Weibring's eagle at the par-4, 301-yard 14th. He teed off with a 4-wood, then chipped in from 68 yards with a sand wedge.

"A lot of the passion has been missing (from my game)," said Weibring, who hasn't had a top-30 finish this year and failed earlier this week to qualify for the U.S. Open. "I'm trying to take it one step at a time."

Weibring had a decent year last year, including a victory in Hartford, but he said he got diverted mentally by the demands of working with his course design and management company. It seemed to be the theme of the week, after Norman and Price on Thursday both cited reductions in off-the-course diversions for their recent improved play.

As for Wiebe, his distractions are definitely on-course. After being dogged by welts on his arm from an unknown allergy for years, he went to a doctor after this year's Nissan Open and discovered the culprits: oak, elm and cottonwood trees, certain types of food, and Bermuda grass.

"He thought it was pretty funny," said Wiebe, noting that, at 39 years old, it was "too late to change occupations."

Robbins takes Olds lead

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Kelly Robbins shot an 8-under-par 64 on Friday to take the lead midway through the $600,000 LPGA Oldsmobile Classic.

Robbins, whose 64 matched her career-best round, moved to 9-under for the tournament and leads the event by two strokes over

Golf Roundup

Leta Lindley and Laura Baugh, who at 42 is playing while seven months pregnant with her seventh child.

Lindley posted a 69 and Baugh shot a 67.

An eagle on the 460-yard, par-5 sixth hole got Robbins' round rolling.

"I had a lot of short opportunities and I took advantage of them," Robbins said. "(Thursday) I didn't play bad, but today I took advantage. It's only Friday though, but I'm anxious for the weekend."

Robbins also posted four birdies in a six-hole stretch midway through her second round.

"I was able to keep the ball in play and make putts," Robbins said. "The wind was a lot less. It was not blowing as bad as yesterday.

"I have to keep things in perspective. I made the cut and that's important. Any time you can shoot 64 though, it's great. It can be a fun weekend."

Robbins is a five-time winner on the LPGA Tour and is third on this year's money list, with more than $400,000 in earnings.

Lindley shot a 68 in Thursday's opening round at Walnut Hills Country Club and now stands at 7-under-par.

Morgan shoots 8-under 64 for 1st-round lead at BellSouth

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Walter Morgan isn't afraid of experimenting. If something isn't working, he's ready switch to something else and go on.

With a new putter in hand, the Army veteran shot an 8-under-par 64 in rainy conditions Friday to take a three-stroke lead after the first round of the $1.3 million BellSouth Senior Classic.

"This one just feels so solid and soft. I just like the feel of it," he said of the putter after his eight-birdie, bogey-free round.

David Graham and J.C. Snead opened with 67s, and Kermit Zarley, Graham Marsh, Hubert Green and John Jacobs were four back at 68. Gil Morgan, who won last week, topped an eight-player group at 69.

For Walter Morgan, his round highlights his best streak since joining the Senior PGA Tour in 1991. The Army veteran and club pro has finished in the top 16 the past nine weeks with six top-10 finishes.

"Everything's clicking," said Morgan, a three-time tour winner.

He started by parring the first three holes. He started his birdie run on the 391-yard No. 4, hitting a pitching wedge from 135 yards to 10 feet, and holing the putt with his new putter.

Morgan birdied Nos. 6, 7 and 8 with his longest putt coming on the par-3 eighth where he sunk a 35-footer from the fringe. Making the turn at 4-under, he quickly two-putted from 40 feet on the par-5 No. 10 and sunk a six-footer on the 11th.

His putter kept working as Morgan hit a 12-footer for birdie on the 323-yard No. 13 and a 15-footer on No. 17. His touch deserted him slightly as he missed a 6-footer on the par-4 18th.

Morgan, who has several putters including a couple of other Rick Hamilton models, said he doesn't plan on changing anything else right now as he tries to win his fourth victory since joining the Senior Tour in 1991.

LSU erupts for wins in relay, triple jump

NCAA Track & Field

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — After going scoreless for two days, defending champion LSU broke through Friday in the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships, racing to victory in the 400-meter relay and winning the triple jump with Suzette Lee.

LSU, which has won the team title the past 10 years, beat runner-up Texas by more than 3 meters in the relay. Juniors Astia Walker and Kwajalein Butler and freshmen Sadonna Thornton and Peta-Gaye Dowdie were timed in 43.17 seconds.

It was the Lady Tigers' sixth consecutive victory in the event and eighth in nine years. Texas, the only team to interrupt LSU's streak, in 1991, finished second in 43.42.

"The weather was a big factor because we all had to run more carefully," Butler said, referring to the relatively slow time over the rain-soaked Billy Hayes track.

Lee, one of LSU's few seniors and the NCAA indoor champion, successfully defended her outdoor triple jump title, leaping 45 feet, 8 inches, a career-best. Her effort also made her the No. 2 all-time performer in NCAA history, behind only Sheila Hudson's 46-0 3/4.

The Lady Tigers also saw Dowdie and Butler advance to Saturday's 100 final, Walker reach the 100 hurdles final with the fastest qualifying time of 12.94, and Walker and Dowdie move into the 200 final.

UCLA, seeking to end LSU's team winning streak, led the women's point standings with 46 after 10 events. Texas was second with 21 points and LSU third with 20.

After 11 men's events, Texas led with 28 1/2, followed by SMU with 28 and UCLA with 21. Five-time defending champion Arkansas was sixth with 16, but Texas coach Bubba Thornton said of the Razorbacks, "They still have a lot of bullets left."

Meanwhile, Vanderbilt and Northern Arizona collected their first ever NCAA titles, in the two 400 hurdles races.

Ryan Tolbert of the Commodores took the women's event in a meet-record 54.54, and Joey Woody won the men's hurdles at 48.59. Both times were the fastest by collegians this year and put both among the world's top 10.

"It was hard to run fast, because there was no one close to me," Tolbert said. "It was very stressful, but very satisfying."

Woody said, "This is everything I hoped it would be. This has been a five-year race for me. I finally got my No. 1."

Sophomore Jason Tunks of SMU, the collegiate leader this season in the discus, rallied from eighth place after the trials to win at 195-11. He soared into third place on his fifth throw before winning on his final attempt.

Despite winning, he was not satisfied.

"My distance was terrible," said Tunks, who has thrown 214 feet this season.

Tunks, who is getting married Oct. 11 to SMU shot putter Teri Steer, is considering turning pro after this season.

The wedding will be nearly a year after Steer accidentally hit Tunks in the right shoulder and face with a shot put while warming up for an intrasquad decathlon competition.

Upon being struck, Tunks collapsed and Steer thought she had killed him.

"I thought someone had punched me," said Tunks, who sustained a bruised and separated shoulder and several cracked teeth.

Steer, last year's NCAA shot put champion, broke an ankle while playing basketball and did not attend this year's meet.

Despite the slick track, there were some outstanding performances.

Texas A&M's 400-meter relay team of Michael Price, Toya Jones, Billy Fobbs and Danny McCray won in 38.80, the third-fastest time in the world this year.

"All year people didn't give us any respect," Price said. "We kept winning the big meets and still didn't get any respect. Hopefully, people will give us some now ..."

And Sevatheda Fynes of Michigan State won her 200 semifinal heat in 22.60, the world's fastest time this year, and took her 100 semifinal in 11.24.

Other men's winners included Bryan Woodward of Georgetown in the 800 at 1:46.45, a career best and the fastest by a collegian this year; Pascal Dobert of Wisconsin in the 3,000 steeplechase at 8:31.68; and Bengt Johansson of Southern Cal in the hammer throw at 230-1.

Criminal busted after good round

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Criminal Court Judge Stephen Bevil was checking the scores from a local charity golf tournament when he noticed Clint Wolford was only five strokes off the lead on the 72-par course.

Good golf. Bad decision.

Last year, Wolford pleaded guilty to the 1992 death of Rodney Walker. For his plea, Bevil suspended Wolford's four-year prison sentence for vehicular homicide on the condition he serve six months on work release, perform 100 days of community service and not drive for a year.

Under the agreement, Wolford could work during the day, but had to spend the rest of his time at the county workhouse.

That doesn't allow time for golf.

Bevil hauled Wolford into court Thursday and asked him how he had the audacity to play in the Golden Gallon Muscular Dystrophy Association's Select Golf Tournament when he was supposed to be behind bars.

Wolford, 27, apologized. The salesman said he was playing to improve a business relationship with a customer.

Bevil said if Wolford was playing golf under the guise that it was work, he wondered what else he was doing using that excuse.

Wolford won't get the chance to find out. Bevil revoked the work release condition and sent him to the Hamilton County Jail to serve out the rest of his sentence.

Buick Skylark Discontinued in '98

If you've been thinking about buying a Skylark, the time is now. Buick will discontinue the coupe for the '98 model year, while the sedan is slated to be sold to fleet buyers. Standard equipment for the '97 Skylark includes; driver and passenger air bags, four-wheel anti-lock brakes, Passlock passive theft deterrent system, electronically controlled automatic transmission with overdrive, traction control, automatic door locks, an adjustable steering column and power windows. Buick has a $1,000 customer rebate on new '97 Skylarks that expires June 30th.

Chrysler offers incentive on sliding door

As an incentive to minivan consumers, Chrysler is offering free the driver's side sliding-door on its minivans until July 7. Normally a $595 option, the offer is available on the following 1996 and 1997 models: Dodge Caravan and Grand Caravan; and Plymouth Voyager and Grand Voyager. The Chrysler Town & Country has a cash equivalent since the door is standard equipment on the upscale minivan.

Results of first side-crash test released

The results of the first set of side impact crash tests performed by the National Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) were released earlier this year. The new test is a part of the New Car Assessment Program which NHTSA has begun using this year. The highest scoring vehicles are as follows; Chevrolet Camaro and Lumina, Dodge Intrepid and Ford Crown Victoria. In these tests, a deformable barrier is driven into the vehicle at 38.5 mph. Further tests will be conducted throughout the year.

Ford and Chrysler Offer Customer Cash

Two of Detroit's Big Three are offering rebates on selected new models through July 7. Ford cash includes: 1998 Windstar $1,000 and Contour (except SVT) $500; 1997 Taurus $1,000- $2,000; Escort and Crown Victoria $1,000; Probe $800; Mustang (except Cobra) Convertible $1,500 and Coupe $750; Aspire, Thunderbird, and Contour $500; Aerostar, Windstar, and Ranger $1,000. Mercury rebates include: 1997 Villager $2,000; Sable, Tracer, and Grand Marquis $1,000; Cougar and Mystique $500. Rebates may be applied to 24-month leases and 1.9 to 7.9 percent financing is also available. Chrysler rebates include: Chrysler Cirrus, Concorde LX, and Sebring coupe $1,000; Dodge Intrepid ES $1,500 and Neon, Stratus, base Intrepid, and Avenger $1,000; Eagle Vision TSI $1,500; Vision ESi and Talon $1,000; and Plymouth Breeze and Neon $1,000.

A Tale of Two Coupes:
Plymouth Neon/Buick Skylark

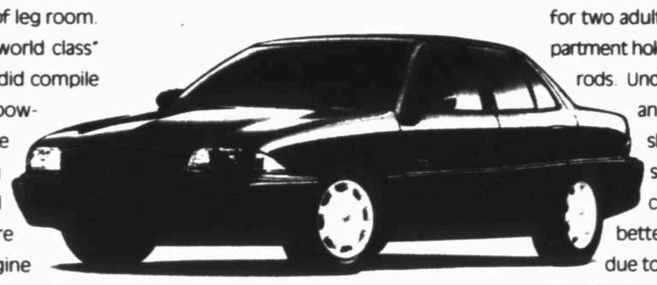
Wheelin'&Dealin'

By Kenneth Chester, Jr.

Consumers shopping for a new subcompact coupe have a respectable list of choices in the current automotive marketplace. Long gone are the days when such cars were an "afterthought" by domestic automakers, resulting in questionable build quality. I recently sampled two domestic subcompact coupes to experience the many improvements incorporated over the years. The Dodge/Plymouth Neon coupe is a recent all new entry into the marketplace while the Buick Skylark coupe is the mechanical twin to the Pontiac Grand Am and Oldsmobile Achieva initially launched by GM during the Mid-'80's.

Plymouth Neon

The Neon coupe was launched after the sedan during the 1995 model year. The front drive coupe is available in Base, Highline and Expresso trim packages. The 132 horses found in the all new base 2.0L four cylinder engine bolted to a five speed manual gearbox makes it easy for you to break away. Third and fourth gear feel especially strong when needed. The small Chrysler feels very substantial, without the many sins and shortcomings of its predecessors. Displays were clear and easy to read while visibility from the drivers seat was good all around, particularly the side view. The back seat had gobs and gobs of leg room. However, the target defined as "world class" continues to move forward and I did compile a short list of faults: The optional power steering felt non-existent; the control for the heating/cooling fan is confusing to use; and although the important fluids are labeled in yellow in the tight engine compartment, drivers may get confused when trying to check or add coolant to the radiator. While the coolant reservoir is next to the firewall, the cap for the radiator is located in the top coolant line in front of the engine! Standard safety equipment for the Neon includes: dual airbags, and side impact door beams. Four wheel anti-lock brakes are a $565 option. Traction control is not available. Fuel economy figures range from 29 city/39 highway for the base 2.0L four cylinder engine/five speed manual to 25 city/ 33 highway for the optional high performance 2.0L double overhead cam engine/three speed automatic. Retail sticker prices start at $10,800 for the base coupe upto $12,770 for the Neon Expresso. The destination charge adds $500. Chrysler currently has a customer rebate of $1,000 on the Neon that expires July 7th. Supplies of the coupe are good.



Buick Skylark

One word can best describe this Buick—Value. The Premium Motorcar division of General Motors has sought to differentiate the Skylark from its mechanical siblings by packing this vehicle full of equipment normally available for extra cost on other cars. This front drive coupe is available in Custom, Limited and Gran Sport trim packages. I drove a Skylark Limited coupe. The the optional 3.1L six cylinder engine joined to a four-speed automatic transmission was powerful and responsive. A 2.4L four cylinder engine is the standard engine in the Skylark. An extensive redesign inside and out for the 1996 model year has improved the product. Displays and controls are excellent, while the driver has a decent view of the road. The standard armrest doubles as storage, with an additional outlet for a cellular phone and/or laptop computer built-in. At speed, the Skylark felt solid without being heavy. Handling was safe and predictable. Back seat room was fine for two adults. The hood to the engine compartment holds itself up with two hydraulic prop rods. Underhood fluids were clearly marked and easy to get to. My gripe list is short: the driver's seat could use some more lateral support, the cupholders need rubber inserts for better grip, and cargo space suffers due to the lack of a fold down rear seat. Standard safety equipment includes: dual airbags, side door beams, four wheel anti-lock brakes, and traction control. EPA fuel economy ranges from 22 city/32 highway for the 2.4L four cylinder engine to 20 city/29 highway for the 3.1L six cylinder engine. Retail sticker prices range from $15,970 for the Custom to $18,276 for the Gran Sport. Destination charge adds $525. Buick is offering a $1,000 rebate on Skylark that expires June 30th. Supplies of the coupe are light.

The new Esteem, a sedan squeezed from Suzuki's pint-size Swift hatchback and cast in a shapely format which includes a genuine trunk and conceals a wee 98 horsepower 4-inline engine, ranks as that rare 4-door whose base price slips below $12,000.

Suzuki Esteem subcompact sedan promotes economy with a punch

BY BOB PLUNKETT
Special to Midland Reporter-Telegram

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — The Big Muddy, mighty Mississippi River, boiled in massive spring flow below the I-40 freeway bridge which leads into Memphis, but one driver dared not scope that scene because the view through the windshield revealed far too many vehicles jostling through multiple lanes as we all rolled across the river.

Huge 18-wheel semi-rigs of interstate haulers, outnumbering commuter cars and maintaining rapid speeds while leapfrogging in elaborate lane-changing dances, became the denizens to watch due to their massive bulk and surprising agility.

So why, you may wonder, was I passing such behemoths in the subcompact confines of my econo-car?

Esteem also generates superb fuel economy figures.

But my dash across the Mississippi River in a "Polar White" edition of the top-end Esteem GLX confirmed that this Suzuki also stocks an asset I had not anticipated: Reasonable peddle power.

In fact, when teamed with its standard 5-speed manual shifter, Esteem pops off the line at stop lights and through lower gears behaves aggressively when racking the revs up to higher rpms.

Even in overdrive fifth gear at freeway pace, a driver gets a kick when pushing the pedal, prompting this car to lunge ahead of lesser traffic.

The optional 4-speed automatic transmission will dim this liveliness only slightly but it also takes a small bite out of Esteem's fuel economy figures.

Beyond the reasonable base price and thrifty engine management, I also liked this little sedan's slick shape.

The front hood slants sharply forward to a pair of corner-mounted aerodynamic headlamps, which remind me of oblong eyes dotting Esteem's face with that below-bumper air vent in a low oval mouth.

A sharply raked windshield rises to a flat roofline terminated by the smooth descent of C pillar and followed by a final flat deck of the trunk. Low protective molding and scooped shaping of side doors accent horizontal lines of Esteem and make it appear stretched and perhaps larger than physical dimensions actually indicate.

Beneath Esteem's shell, chassis and suspension hardware compare to those parts of Suzuki's 3-door subcompact Swift hatchback which was redesigned two years ago with a longer wheelbase and more safety assets, such as dual airbags.

In an alliance with General Motors, Suzuki constructed a North American production facility in Canada to supply many of Suzuki's products for the United States market, as well as several labels in GM's Geo line.

Swift comes off of this Ingersol, Ontario, assembly line, yet Esteem ships ashore afer production at Suzuki's Japanese plant at Hamamatsu.

For Esteem, designers further extended Swift's wheelbase by 4.5 inches, which shows up most notably in the cabin where there's 12 more cubic-feet of space including two inches added for passenger legroom in the back seat.

In addition, Esteem's sedan trunk brings a secure enclosure measuring to 12 cubic feet.

The expanded wheelbase for Esteem affects more than cabin space, since it also results in a smoother and more stable ride quality that's particularly evident when tackling road bumps like the thump-thump-thump which I experienced coming from expansion joint jolts while driving across that Mississippi River bridge.

The most important elements of Esteem cannot be seen.

For instance, the framework of the sedan consists of a steel safety cage that wraps around the passenger compartment and includes front and rear crumple zones and extra braces added to side doors. The A pillar represents a single strong and rigid piece, while B pillars have been fortified to impart rigidity to the overall structure.

Safety assets include dual airbags, front seat head restraints, firm anchors in the rear to secure a child's safety seat, laminated safety glass for the windshield and breakaway dual exterior side mirrors.

Inside, in a layout with twin bucket seats set in front of a rear bench that fits up to three riders, you won't feel squashed and crammed into a mobile sardine can because Esteem manages to deliver the impossible: Elbow room.

The interior measurement of shoulder space tallies to 51.8 inches up front and 52.1 in the rear. Bucket seats with firm side bolsters seem ideally placed to keep you from bumping against either a fellow rider or the door panel.

Esteem skews to the two trim levels of GL and GLX.

Standard features on base GL range from air conditioning and power steering to reclining front bucket seats and rear folding seatback, remote fuel door and trunk releases, intermittent wipers, rear window defogger and daytime running lights.

Esteem GLX adds power interior controls, a sound package, tachometer, and split folding rear seatback.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF INTENT

Notice is hereby given to all interested parties and owners of mineral interest in and under lands and leases in the SE/4 of Section 5, the S/2 of Section 6, all of Section 7, the W/2 and SE/4 of Section 8, and the W/2 and NE/4 of Section 18 of Block 32 TWP-4-S and the E/2 of Section 12, the E/2 of Section 13, and the NE/4 of Section 24 of Block 33 TWP-4-S T&P RR Survey, Glasscock County, Texas, that Mineral Technologies Inc. (MTI), the operator of the aforementioned properties and wells, formerly known as the Apple Creek Fussselman Unit, intends to re-establish production on said leases from existing shut-in wells. Due to the marginal economic risk of this proposed project, MTI is requesting a surface commingling permit from the Texas Railroad Commission and MTI proposes to allocate production on the basis of Railroad Commission approved well testing methods. Any mineral interest or royalty owner under the above lands wishing to file a protest of this request should submit their protest in writing within fifteen (15) days of publication, to MTI at the following address:
