Southern Living Magazine's issue for March has a story on the Diamond M Museum here, along with three pictures.

The story gives a brief history of the museum, which evolved from C. T. McLaughlin's interest in art. McLaughlin is pictured with some of his personal mementos in the museum, and Mr. and Mrs. Buster Anderson, who occupy offices in the Diamond M Building, are shown looking at some bronze sculpture, with a painting in the background.

The article also notes that the Diamond M Museum has been instrumental in launching and pushing along careers of a number of current western artists.

Incidentally, one of those whose career moved along rapidly following a show at the Diamond M is Ronald Thomason, who will be back here the coming weekend to serve as juror for the annual Snyder Palette Club Art Exhibition. He had his own magazine spread recently in the Southwest Scene, a weekly supplement to the Dallas Morning News.

Bill Love said his barbershop was visited by an inspector the other day, which was nothing unusual, but it turned out to be the most unusual inspection he had ever witnessed. There was an extra inspector on hand this time. He came along to inspect the inspector.

So, the inspector inspected the shop while he was being inspected by the inspector of inspectors.

Today In History

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, March 15, the 75th day of 1975. There are 290 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1802, Congress authorized the establishment of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y.

On this date—

In 1521, the Portuguese navigator, Ferdinand Magellan, reached the Philipines.

In 1534, England severed all relations with the Papacy. In 1676, Indians destroyed the Rhode Island settlements of Warwick and Providence.

In 1830, it was a slow day on Wall Street, with only 31 shares of stock traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

In 1945, Japanese resistance on Iwo Jima came to an end after one of the bloodiest battles of World War II in the Pacific.

In 1962, New York Governor Nelson Rockefeller's wife divorced him after 31 years of marriage.

Ten years ago: The Soviet Union moved closer toward economic relations with the West by announcing its intention to join the international agreement on patents.

Five years ago: City services resumed in San Francisco after a crippling four-day strike by city employees.

One year ago: President Richard Nixon spoke at a dinner of the Executive Club of Chicago and said he would not resign because he refused "to be party to the destruction of the presidency of the United States."

Drinking Water Guides Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting under the mandate of a recently enacted law, the Environmental Protection Agency has proposed the first national quality standards for drinking water.

The proposed interim standards, published Friday in the Federal Register, set maximum permissible levels for a variety of contaminants and specified requirements for monitoring most of the nation's 240,000 public water supplies.

The interim standards will take effect next June after a three-month period to receive and consider public comments, and permanent standards will take effect in December 1976.

"These proposals represent the first comprehensive effort to regulate uniformly and effectively the purity of the nation's drinking water," EPA Administrator Russell E. Train said in a statement accompanying the proposed standards.

"And, this is just the first step in our research and standard-setting activities designed to protect public health and provide the highest quality water supply for the American people," he said.

Creation of the regulations was required by the Safe Drinking Water Act, signed into lae by President Ford last Dec. 17. The measure authorized $156.5 million for water quality improvement projects.

Primary responsibility for assuring safe drinking water still rest with the states, however, provided they demonstrate their ability to enforce standards at least as stringent as the federal standards, the EPA noted.

It said federal officials would intervene only in cases where a state either fails to enforce the accept responsibility.

The new law requires a public announcement if a local water system does not comply with the standards or does not perform proper monitoring.

The proposed regulations set maximum permissible contaminant levels for 10 inorganic chemicals, total concentrations of organic chemicals, nine types of pesticides and fluorides. They also specify maximum levels for 10 inorganic chemicals, total concentrations of organic chemicals, nine types of pesticides and flourides. They also specify maximum levels for the turbidity, or murkiness, of drinkin water and for microbiological contaminants.

Train said the regulations will be adjusted as more information becomes available from research projects, including one involving a study of organic chemicals in 80 water supplies.

Previous EPA studies of drinking water in New Orleans and Cincinnati disclosed the presence of orgar material that has cancer-causing or poisoning potential.

Radiological contamination is not covered by the new regulations, but standards for those will be added soon, the EPA said.

Besides accepting written comments on the regulations, the EPA will conduct public hearings in Boston, April 15; Chicago, April 17; San Francisco, April 22, and Washington on April 25.

'Open House' Is Set At Cogdell Hospital Today

"Open House" has been set this afternoon at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Visitors are invited to tour the hospital facilities between the hours of 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Members of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary will be hostesses for the open house and will conduct the guided tours.

The auxiliary is sponsoring the Medical Student Scholarship Program here which will provide scholarships for medical students who will practice medicine in Snyder following completion of their medical education.

HEAVY FIGHTING RAGES

S-Vietnamese Move Army Headquarters

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The South Vietnamese command moved its central highlands headquarters to the coast today and a U.S. Embassy spokesman said almost all Americans in the highlands were evacuated because of expected North Vietnamese drives in the region.

Reliable sources said the cutting of vital highways linking Pleiku to the sea and a buildup of North Vietnamese forces in the area forced moving the South Vietnamese headquarters to Nha Trang, a city on the South China Sea, 200 miles northeast of Saigon.

It was the first time in the Vietnam war that one of South Vietnam's four regional military headquarters has been moved.

The U.S. Embassy spokesman said 27 Americans were flown out of Pleiku, Kontum and Quang Duc provinces, many of them missionaries, "as a precautionary, temporary measure." He said the evacuees also included U.S. Embassy employes.

The headquarters shift and evacuation of Americans came as heavy fighting raged in the highlands and North Vietnamese forces overran yet another outpost guarding the provincial capital of Tay Ninh.

In other Indochina developments:

—A refugee relief worker returning to Phnom Penh from the besieged Cambodian naval base at Neak Luong, 30 miles southeast of the Cambodian capital, said hundreds of dead and dying are scattered all over the town. He said insurgent gunners have been pumping more than 1,000 artillery rounds a day into the base for the last three days. Meanwhile, France reduced its embassy in Phnom Penh to consulate status and Singapore removed all its diplomats.

—In Saigon, police shot and killed a French journalist as he tried to drive away from national police headquarters, authorities said. Officials said Paul Leandri, 37, deputy bureau chief of Agence France Presse, had been interrogated Friday about a dispatch he wrote on fighting at Ban Me Thuot. Sources said he refused to name a priest cited in the story and was summoned to police headquarters for further interrogation.

Leandri quoted the priest as saying the fighting in the provincial capital of Ban Me Thuot, 155 miles northeast of Saigon, was a revolt by anti-government Montagnard tribesmen. The government claims the Montagnards are anti-Communists. France is protesting Leandri's shooting.

The outpost defending the provincial capital of Tay Ninh was the fourth along the Cambodian border to fall in two days. South Vietnamese officers said the attack on the outpost was part of a preparation for an assault of Tay Ninh City, 55 miles northwest of Saigon.

Government forces reopened the only overland route to Tay Ninh from Saigon, enabling a large South Vietnamese convoy to reach Tay Ninh with large stocks of munitions and fuel in anticipation of a largescale North Vietnamese assault.

In the central highlands, a 300-man garrison fell to a tank-led North Vietnamese attack 25 miles northwest of Ban Me Thuot, a provincial capital 155 miles north of Saigon which the Viet Cong claimed had fallen to Communist-led troops.

A military command spokesman today denied the claim, saying "both South and North Vietnamese forces are now in the city."

The command spokesman said Communist sappers launched attacks Friday and early today against government positions close to Kontum and Pleiku.

A government ammunition depot five miles northwest of Pleiku and the airbase closer to the city were attacked and 1,000 artillery rounds were destroyed by commando squads, he said.

In Saigon, Indonesian representatives on the four-nation peacekeeping commission announced they were pulling out of 10 team sites in South Vietnam because of danger to personnel. A statement said one Indonesian was trapped by the fighting at Ban Me Thuot.

In Cambodia, Communist-led insurgents shelled the isolated Mekong River naval base of Neak Luong for a second straight day, military sources said.

More than 1,000 rounds slammed into the town, killing 50 persons and wounding 150 persons, most of them civilians, and the situation was "critical," military sources said.

Insurgents cut the Mekong in January, leaving Phnom Penh dependent on a U.S. airlift of rice, ammuntion and fuel.

SAYS SCOTT CONTACTS FBI

Grand Jury Preparing To Reopen Hearst Inquiry

By The Associated Press

A former attorney for Jack Scott said today that Scott personally contacted the FBI after published reports connected him with fugitive newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst. He flatly denied that Scott was arranging Miss Hearst's surrender.

"Scott himself called the FBI yesterday to get in touch with his lawyer in San Francisco to find out about what they wanted to talk to him about," Charles Garry said.

However, Charles R. Bates, FBI agent in charge of the Hearst case, denied that the FBI had received a call from Scott.

Garry, who serves as the lawyer for professional basketball star Bill Walton, said Friday afternoon he had dropped Scott as a client because of a possible conflict of interest. Walton had been questioned by the FBI about his friendship with Scott.

Garry refused to name Scott's new lawyer, but he said that speculation that Scott might have anything to do with Miss Hearst possibly giving herself up was nonsense.

A federal grand jury in San Francisco is preparing to reopen its inquiry into the year-old Hearst case amid reports that the FBI has shifted its search for Miss Hearst to new areas, including the West Coast.

The Washington Star said today Miss Hearst "now is believed back in the San Francisco area, possibly to give herself up through Jack Scott."

Scott, a former college athletic director, reportedly has been sought for grand jury questioning about a farmhouse hideout supposedly used by Miss Hearst last fall.

The Star said it has learned that Scott has called friends to say he has retained a lawyer "to bargain with the FBI and make arrangements to come out into the open." The newspaper said one friend quoted Scott as saying "that the whole thing will be over soon enough."

The New York Times said today Scott had called the paper and implied he knew something of Miss Hearst's activities since she became a fugitive last year.

The San Francisco Chronicle reported today that, after leaving a South Canaan, Pa., farm hideout last fall, Miss Hearst and several companions traveled back to the West Coast in a van reportedly rented by Scott.

"The van was in Portland (Ore.) sometime in October. Police routinely turned it over to the local office of the rental agency, unaware of its importance," the paper said.

Reports this week that Miss Hearst and several associates hid out in a Pennsylvania farm house last fall triggered new sightings and possible fresh leads for investigators.

But Washington sources told The Associated Press the Pennsylvania hideout was a "cold trail" and the investigation was now focusing on Las Vegas, among other areas.

"We've gone into new areas of inquiry," said San Francisco FBI agent Thomas Druken.

The Chicago Tribune said today that the the trail has led the FBI from Las Vegas to Palm Springs, Calif., to the San Francisco area. The San Francisco Chronicle said the FBI had alerted border patrols in the San Diego area Friday to watch for Miss Hearst.

Ari Onassis Dies At 69

PARIS (AP) — Greek shipping tycoon Aristotle Onassis died in Paris today, the American Hospital announced. He was 69.

His daughter Christina was at his bedside as his condition worsened overnight, until his death at 12:30 p.m.—7:30 a.m. EDT—of broncho-pulmonary infection, the hospital said.

But his wife, the former Jacqueline Kennedy, was in New York and was flying to Paris tonight, the hospital's director, Perry Cully, said.

Earlier reports had erroneously said that Mrs. Onassis was in Paris.

Onassis had been suffering for some time from myasthenia gravis, a progressive weakening of the voluntary muscles.

While the disease was said to have been arrested, it was thought to have contributed to severe respiratory problems which at one point forced his doctors to put him in an oxygen tent.

Onassis entered the hospital on Feb. 6 and had his gall bladder removed three days later.

During his treatment, doctors had said that Onassis' heart was in very poor shape, adding to his catalogue of illnesses—myasthenia gravis, gall bladder trouble and severe bronchial ailments.

He was the Golden Greek with the Midas touch. Beginning with nothing as a refugee from Turkey, he amassed a fortune in the hundreds of millions of dollars. He built the largest private shipping fleet in the world, he had his own airline and sailed one of the world's most opulent yachts.

ARISTOTLE ONASSIS

He didn't break the bank at Monte Carlo. He bought it.

It was in 1968 that Aristotle Socrates Onassis won as his wife the world's most eligible widow—Jacqueline Kennedy.

He was friend and host to the likes of Winston Churchill, Greta Garbo, Margot Fonteyn, Gina Lollobrigida, Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco and the Kennedys, and for many years he was a special friend to Greek opera singer Maria Callas.

There seemed to be nothing he couldn't have. But fate deprived him of a male heir. In January 1973, Onassis' only son Alexander, 24, was fatally injured in the crash of a family plane. The death was known to have embittered Onassis, and he later offered a half-million-dollar reward for proof that the plane had been sabotaged.

Most of Onassis' private life was screened behind the shield of his money. His wedding to Jacqueline Kennedy, for instance, took place on the remote Greek island of Scorpios—which he owned—with only crumbs of information fed to a curious world.

Onassis was born Jan. 15, 1906 is the date most often given to a Greek tobacco merchant in the Turkish port city of Smyrna. The 1922 Greek-Turkish war ruined his family, and he was driven out as a stateless person.

He made his way to Argentina at the age of 16, where he got a job as a telephone operator.

Comparison Of Senate, House Panel Tax Cut Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a comparison of the $19.9 billion 1974-75 tax-cut bill approved by the House and the $29.2 billion version voted by the Senate Finance Committee Friday.

1974 REBATES: Each version includes $8.1 billion in individual rebates on 1974 taxes. The maximum would be $200, the minimum $100.

STANDARD DEDUCTION: The House approved a $5.1 billion increase in the value of the standard deduction, which is available only to those taxpayers who do not itemize deductions. The Senate eliminated this increase.

TAX CREDIT: Instead of raising the standard deduction, the Senate committee voted to allow each taxpayer the option of taking a $200-per-person tax credit, rather than the current $750-per-person exemption. This provision, which is not in the House bill, would cost $6.1 billion and would benefit most those large families making $20,000 a year or less.

TAX RATE: Unlike the House, the Senate Finance Committee voted a 4 per cent cut in the basic tax rate on the first $4,000 of taxable income. This provision, costing $2 billion, would allow every taxpayer an extra $40 tax cut on 1975 and 1976 income.

RELIEF FOR POOR: The House voted a 5 per cent refundable tax credit, up to $200, for single and married persons grossing less than $6,000 a year. The Senate bill would allow a 10 per cent credit, up to $400, for families with children below the $8,000 level. The House version would cost $3 billion, the Senate plan $1.7 billion.

HOUSING CREDIT: The Finance Committee approved a 5 per cent tax credit, up to $2,000, for a person who buys a house or mobile home as his principal residence between March 13 and Dec. 31, 1975. The cost: $3.2 billion. No similar provision is in the House bill.

BUSINESS TAXES: The House voted $3.7 billion in tax breaks for business by raising the investment tax credit to 10 per cent for one year and by increasing the amount of corporate income taxable below the 48-per-cent rate. The Senate panel raised the total for business to $8 billion by increasing the investment tax credit to 12 per cent for two years and then to 10 per cent permanently. Also, the Senate version would repeal the excise tax on trucks and buses and allow firms extended time to write off their losses.

TIMING: The House bill provides relief only from 1974 and 1975 taxes. The Senate version is based generally on permanent tax cuts.

VIEWPOINT

History Goes Unheeded

Who says we learn from history?

It is not that history doesn't provide valuable lessons. The trouble is, man tends to ignore it.

Nearly everybody is working on a solution to this country's energy problems these days, and unfortunately some have short memories. A group of U.S. Senators is working on a bill providing for the Federal Power Commission to regulate the price of all natural gas in the country. The FPC has been regulating the price of gas in interstate commerce for over two decades, and its regulations have been blamed for some of our shortages today, because, in its efforts to assure cheap gas for the non-producing regions of the North and East, interstate gas has not returned enough revenue to producers to pay for exploration needed to keep supplies abreast of demands.

Intrastate gas—that produced and used within a single state,—has been left to the states as it should be. Now, however, some of our lawmakers would apply the same depressant to intrastate gas that has plagued the interstate market for many years.

Lone Star Gas Company officials who were in Snyder the past week seeking a rate increase said the rate for interstate gas (under FPC regulation) was around 51 cents per thousand cubic feet at that time. Meanwhile, Lone Star had been low bidder on some new reserves on a quotation of $1.65 per MCF. This means that gas leaving Texas via interstate pipeline, truck, train or barge is returning less than one-third the revenue producers could expect on the intrastate market.

Now, the FPC has asked to be relieved of the responsibility of regulating interstate gas rates. But the group of Senators not only wants FPC to continue regulating interstate gas, but to take over regulation of intrastate gas prices as well. In other words, they would prescribe more of the same medicine that caused the allergy as a remedy for relieving it.

If such legislation should ultimatley be enacted, it undoubtedly would be challenged on constitutional grounds. However, the country could ill afford the damage that would be inflicted while it was in litigation.

History isn't worth much to those who refuse to heed its lesson.

The Automated Trough

Holy cow! Researchers with the Agriculture Department's Agricultural Research Service and the Illinois Agricultural Experiment Station at Urbana have designed an electronic feed-dispensing system which they say will liberate Bossie from the hassle of struggling for her share of grain at the community trough as well as save trouble for Farmer Brown.

Each cow wears an electronic device called a transponder that fits on a neck collar. The transponder serves as a kind of "credit card" and activates a feed dispenser when the cow sticks her head into a feed trough.

The transponders are electronically tuned, or coded, to identify each cow according to her milk production. When the cow moves her neck into a loop formed interrogator antenna to reach the feed, high frequency radio energy flows to the transponder. The transponder's coded memory device begins to charge electronically and drives a signal generator which, in turn, causes feed to dispense slowly as the cow eats.

When the memory device is fully charged, the dispenser stops and the cow gets no more feed. With the passing of time, the electronic charge leaks off and the cow may eat again. Her ration is computed on a 12 hour basis and she may consume it in many or few installments.

The agricultural engineers have found that, with reasonably accurate calibration of the feed dispenser and transponder, they can limit errors in feeding rates to within 10 per cent of prescribed allocations better than that exercised by conventional feeding methods. Performance trials showed no significant difference in milk production, whether the cows were hand fed in the milking parlor or with the electronic feeder control.

Letter To Editor

To The Daily News

As a citizen of Snyder, I was particularly interested in your recent article on the use of the College Ave. left turn lane (SDN Column March 11).

While several drivers are just now realizing what this lane is and are using it properly, several are missing it in another way. Many drivers pulling onto the street, turning left, are using the left turn lane as an acceleration lane. They then wait until the left lane of through traffic is clear to move over. They may be in the left turn lane for blocks, not intending to turn left at all. More than once I have come close to being side-swiped or having a head-on with these drivers.

Frankly, I do not mind giving them a "terrific blast on the horn" and I hope that they can hear those unflattering words from my lips. Hopefully, it will avoid a collision and possible injury.

Traffic Death Toll Lowest Since 1963

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. traffic death toll last year was the lowest since 1963, and the nation's highway chief says the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit had much to do with it.

The 1974 toll of 45,534 fatalities was some 9,450 below that of 1973, James P. Gregory, head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, told a Senate Commerce subcommittee Friday.

The fatality rate per 100 million miles traveled has declined from 5.7 in 1966 to 4.20 in 1973 and an estimated 3.56 last year, Gregory said.

He added: "With the permanent national 55 m.p.h. speed limit, we look forward to a continuation of lowered traffic fatalities as the states intensify their speed-limit enforcement and implement increasingly effective highway safety programs."

The lowered speed limit was imposed more than a year ago primarily as an effort to reduce gasoline consumption during the energy shortage.

Illegal Acts Discovered On Student Loans

DALLAS (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill has told a group of lawyers that there have been definite illegal acts discovered in the manner in which loans were made under the Guaranteed Student Loan Program.

Hill told the State Bar of Texas Institute Friday that he disagrees with the policy of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare which administers the loan program which looks "solely to the student for collection of the indebtedness while ignoring other parties equally liable."

"In this regard I respectfully request...that in future you be more vigorous in pursuit of the offending proprietary schools and lenders."

The major problem with proprietary, or private, schools has been in connection with past due or unpaid tuition refunds to students and the collection of federal funds.

Hill said he is looking to the Texas Education Agency (TEA) to enforce the Texas Proprietary School Act.

"The quality of education at some institutions is subject to question and it is an area the TEA I think is interested in," Hill said.

The attorney general told the lawyers his office is conducting a primarily intrastate antitrust investigation involving such things as meat, movies, health services and laundry products.

Piano Students Set Recitals

Teresa Stuart and Susie McCormick, pianists, will be presented in a recital at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Fine Arts Theatre at Western Texas College. Both Miss Stuart and Miss McCormick are students of Dr. Thomas Redcay at Texas Tech University.

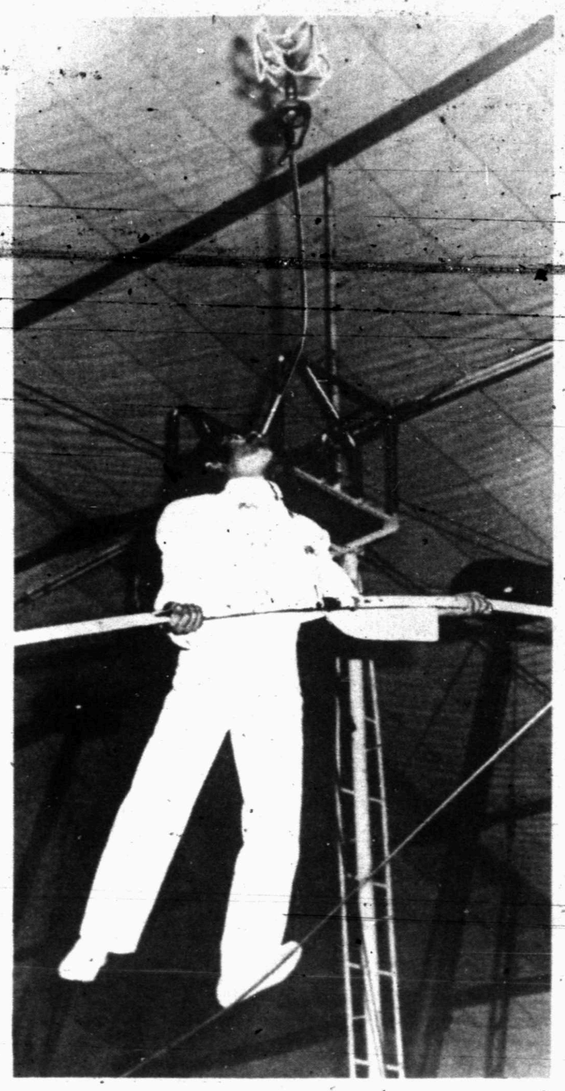
Selections on the program will be Piano Sonata No. 3 by Dello Joio; Piano Sonoto, Op. 109, by Beethoven; Sonetto del Petrerca No. 104 by Liszt; Ballade in F Major by Chopin, and Barcarolle; Op. 60 by Chopin.

The public is invited to attend the recital and there will be no admission charge.

Plan More Fund Drives For Nixon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rabbi Baruch Korff said Friday he plans fundraising luncheons in Cincinnati and Dallas to raise money to pay former President Richard M. Nixon's legal fees.

In a telephone interview from his New England home, Korff said the Nixon Justice Fund must raise $30,000 to pay fees due this month. The fund has already paid $120,000 to Nixon's attorneys, Korff told the Los Angeles Times, which reported the conversation in its Saturday editions.



ACCOMPLISHING THE IMPOSSIBLE—The Amazing Alain, from Marseilles, France, holds audiences spellbound as he precariously balances sword-tip to sword-tip while ascending a slanted wire. He is just one of the 32 featured attractions appearing in this year's edition of The American Continental Circus which is coming to the Scurry County Coliseum Wednesday, March 19. Performances are set for 4:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Tickets will be on sale at the door one hour before each performance, priced at $3.50 for adults, $2.50 for students and $1.50 for those through 14 years of age.

Man Charged In Fire Deaths Of Two Sons

McKINNEY, Tex. (AP) — Capital murder charges have been filed against a 24-year-old McKinney man in the fire deaths of his two young sons.

The children, Jason Ray Turner, 4, and Jerome Shane Turner, 23 months, died in the early Friday morning fire which destroyed a frame home here. Their mother, Connie Jean Turner, 22, was hospitalized in critical condition.

Robert Ray Turner, 24, was charged later Friday with two counts of capital murder. Justice of the Peace Jack Cope ordered him jailed without bond.

Police said Mrs. Turner gave them a statement, but would not elaborate on it.

Flames had already engulfed the home when firemen arrived in 25-degree cold to battle the blaze. They said they pulled Mrs. Turner out of the house, but were unable to save the children. Their bodies were found near a door in a front bedroom.

A ruling on the cause of the deaths was pending.

Miss Hayward Dies Of A Brain Tumor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Susan Hayward, the flame-haired actress who played real-life, hardluck women in her most famous roles, has died of a brain tumor. She was 55.

The Academy Award-winning actress had lived more than two years with a brain tumor before the fatal seizure Friday at her Beverly Hills, Calif., home.

Miss Hayward's physician, Dr. Lee E. Siegel, said most people with such tumors die within months.

"There was no other case like it, nothing in the medical literature," Siegel said. "It was amazing to live that long with this type of lesion. She was one of the great fighters. I've never seen anything like it."

He said Miss Hayward had suffered many seizures but that the seizure Friday "was massive, which was fortunate because she was in a terminal state. It allowed her to go peacefully."

Nominated for an Academy Award five times, Miss Hayward won an Oscar for best actress in 1958 for "I Want To Live." It was the story of Barbara Graham, who died in the San Quentin gas chamber after being convicted of murder.

In 1952, Miss Hayward was nominated for an Academy Award for "With a Song in My Heart." She played real-life singer Jane Froman, who was crippled in an airplane crash.

Her role as alcoholic Lillian Roth in "I'll Cry Tomorrow" also won her an Academy Award nomination.

Other "best actress" nominations came from "Smash-Up" in 1947 and "My Foolish Heart" in 1949.

Her most recent roles were two television movies, "She played a lawyer in "Heat of Anger" for CBS and a doctor in "Say Goodbye Maggie Cole" for ABC.

A 1971 role in "The Revengers" with William Holden was her last motion picture.

Her other late films were "Valley of the Dolls" and "The Honey Pot" in 1967 and "Where Love Has Gone" in 1964.

Miss Hayward was born Edythe Marrener on June 20, 1919, in Brooklyn and went to Hollywood for her first screen test in 1939.

SDEC Panel To Select Three

DALLAS (AP) — The State Democratic Executive Committee (SDEC) met here today to select three new members of the National Democratic Committe from Texas and to consider adoption of a revised affirmative action plan for the state party.

Texas was alloted three new members of the national committee at the Democratic mini-convention in Kansas City last summer. Two are expected to be filled by women.

Among women under consideration are State Rep. Eddie Bernice Johnson of Dallas, Lois Ham of Fort Worth, Betty Fisher of Arlington, Alicia Chacon of El Paso, Claudia Brummett of Alvarado and Annie Laurie of Brookshire. Other leading possibilities are Lem Allen of Seguin, Leo Riedel of La Marque and State Rep. Anthony Hall of Houston.

The affirmative action plan to be considered by the SDEC was approved unanimously by the state party rules committee Friday.

The revised plan follows generally the pattern of the affirmative action plan devised in 1974, with revisions to fix "weaknesses" described by the national party.

Hall, chairman of the subcommittee that drafted the revised plan, said the Compliance Review Commission of the Democratic National Committee said "our affirmative action plan needed a more solid base of financial support, involvement of more people, a broader outreach program and a formal system of monitoring."

He added, "The revised plan makes changes to alter these weaknesses."

Affirmative action is a program designed to insure participation of all Democratic voters in the delegate selection process and the processes through which party leaders are elected.

The revised plan provides for Texas to be divided into 11 districts, each of which is expected to file regional affirmative action plans and set up specific goals and reporting procedures.

Statewide financing for affirmative action is to be made on a fixed percentage of the revenues of the State Democratic Party, with the rate to be determined by the finance committee of the SDEC.

Satellite Sweeps Closest To Sun

WASHINGTON (AP) — Helios 1, a joint U.S.-West German satellite, swept nearer to the sun than any previous man-made object today as it passed within 28 million miles of the searing surface.

The satellite, named for the sun god of ancient Greece, made its closest approach at 5:13 a.m. EDT at a speed of 143,000 miles an hour and then moved away from the sun on its journey through the center of the solar system.

The previous record holder was Mariner 10, a U.S. spacecraft which flew within 42 million miles of the sun last year.

Several innovative thermal control systems are protecting Helios 1 from temperatures up to 700 degrees Fahrenheit on its [illegible] the outer edge of the solar corona, or atmosphere. Among them are reflecting mirrors, insulation and a spacecraft spin rate designed to keep temperatures on sensitive instruments at 86 degrees or lower.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration reported all instruments functioning well. They are returning data on the solar wind, magnetic fields, solar and galactic cosmic rays, electromagnetic waves and micrometeorities.

Scientists say the data will add considerable knowledge about interplanetary space and how the sun controls the solar system and affects weather and other conditions on earth.

Dr. James H. Trainor of NASA said, "Helios will not only take our instruments in closer to the sun than ever before, but it also will provide observations of activity on the backside of the sun. This hidden activity may well be responsible for interplanetary effects seen near earth."

Helios 1 was launched Dec. 10 from Cape Canaveral, Fla., with the sun then 93 million miles away.

This is the first major space project conducted jointly by the United States and West Germany. The Germans developed the satellite and seven of the 10 experiments. The United States contributed three experiments, technical advice and the booster rocket.

Both nations are tracking the probe and are receiving information. Germany's Ministry for Research and Technology has over-all management responsibility.

The project includes launch of a second Helios later this year. Cost of the two missions is $260 million. The German share is $180 million and the American share is $80 million.

Copies Made Faster With New Printer

Patrons of the Western Texas College library can now make copies of microfilm pages in less than a minute per page using the microfilm printer recently added to the facilities of the library.

The new unit is a combination reader-printer. Users insert the film as on a regular reader and see the page or pages to be copied on the viewing screen. The unit is equipped with a motorized film advance for rapid advance of the film and manual advance for normal reading speed.

The reader-printer is at the circulation desk in the library and staff members there will assist library patrons in making copies. The cost will be five cents per page.

The WTC library is located in the Learning Resource Center. The library houses a large collection of microfilm of interest to persons doing genealogical research and has about 100 periodicals dating back to 1967 on film. A copying machine is available for making copies of printed materials not on film.

Kleasen To Be Co-Counsel

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Robert Kleasen will represent himself as co-counsel Monday when he tries to show he is sane and able to stand trial in the slayings of two Mormon missionaries.

State District Court Judge Tom Blackwell reluctantly agreed Thursday to grant Kleasen co-counsel status after rejecting Kleasen's attempt to fire his three lawyers.

The lawyers want to show Kleasen suffers from mental illness and cannot effectively assist them at a murder trial.

They told reporters Kleasen fears he will be found insane and sent to a state mental hospital, where he might be held for years, perhaps for the remainder of his life, or until he is determined to be fit to stand trial.

That's why he tried to fire the lawyers.

But the judge said federal psychiatrists say Kleasen is incompetent, and two psychiatrists appointed by the judge have conflicting views on his sanity. The judge said he is required by law to hold a sanity hearing in such circumstances, whether Kleasen wants one or not.

"He said he doesn't want to hurt our feelings, but he just doesn't trust lawyers," lead defense attorney Bob Gibbins told reporters. "I'll say this: he is one of the most interesting individuals I've ever known. He's a brilliant man, with a most interesting background, riddled with tragedies, and some injustices."

Kleasen had at least seven different lawyers in a felony assault case in New York four years ago before he fled and forfeited $2,500 bond when the case finally came up for trial.

Gibbins said, "I kind of like him." And he wishes he could represent Kleasen on the murder charges. "We think their (the state's) case is weak," he said.

The judge said he probably would allow Kleasen to fire his lawyers after the sanity trial and, if he is found to be sane, hire new ones for the murder trial.

The 42-year-old, slope-shouldered defendant is accused of killing Gary Darley, 20, of Simi Valley, Calif., and Mark Fischer, 19, of Milwaukee, Wis. The state says he cut up their bodies with a band saw in a taxidermy shop.

The sanity trial that begins Monday will determine Kleasen's present sanity. His sanity at the time of the slayings will be determined at the same time his guilt or innocence is decided at a murder trial.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

For Sunday

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't jump to derogatory conclusions over a money matter you're discussing with a friend. Sleep on it to gain perspective.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The temptation will be great to place your self-interests above those of others. Sober reflection will prove your motives are far too selfish.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll feel that someone is placing too great a load on your shoulders. Time will prove that his prodding was for your mutual benefit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you'll cross paths with one for whom you have perceptible ill feeling. Your coolness will chill your companions as well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You are ambitious, but your zeal will be disastrous if you use poor timing and turn people off whose assistance you need.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An old friend's urgent request will take you away from what you'd like to do. You'll help, but he'll never know of your sacrifice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Avoid taking a flyer with an individual you know has a poor track record. The pitch may be new, but the results will be similar.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Harmony in a close personal relationship is important to you today. It can only be attained if you make the major concessions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This is not a good day to overtax yourself physically. Your best work will be done with your brains.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're too loose with your bread today. Beware — your mate is about to declare a moratorium on your spending.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's necessary that you do certain chores around home today. No use complaining — they won't get done otherwise.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your tendency today is to blurt out the first thing that comes to your mind. This may not be complimentary. Be careful.

your birthday

March 16, 1975

You'll make many friends and acquaintances socially this year. This is to your benefit, but don't neglect proven pals. You can count on their faith and reliability.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

For Monday

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll profit today from something unusual that happens behind the scenes. News of the occurrence will later come to you accidentally.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A friend you have not known too long will prove a valuable ally in helping you further an aim that's presently important to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're going to come up with a new approach on how to attain a goal that's eluded you. The method you'll employ will be unorthodox.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is a pleasant surprise in store for you socially. Someone you'll meet by chance will prove to be a stimulating companion.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll conduct yourself in a manner today that will gain others' respect, though your deeds won't be done to win applause.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Valuable knowledge will be acquired now if you do more listening than talking to a pal who has a wealth of know-how.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're sharp in business matters today if you follow your hunches. Don't let others influence you against your better judgment.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You grasp the essence of situations very quickly. You'll be able to make snap decisions. They'll surprise your associates.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A problem that has you temporarily stymied can be overcome if you try new methods. Use imagination. Try a totally different approach.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be extra-attentive and friendly to new contacts you make socially at this time. They'll fit into your plans later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A good tip that can help your career — and moneywise — will come from a family source. Keep your ears open.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) News from a distance provides a favorable climate for an activity you've planned. It will cause you to alter your course of action.

Kermit Nips SHS In 1-0 Thriller

MONAHANS—Kermit's Yellow Jackets shaded Snyder's Tigers 1-0 in a pitcher's duel here Friday afternoon in the second round of the Monahans Baseball Tournament.

In a first round game Friday morning, Andrews beat El Paso Bowie, 2-1, but then lost to Odessa, 6-7, in the second round Friday night. Snyder met Andrews at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon for third place and Odessa battled Kermit for the championship Saturday night.

Kermit's King twirled a sparkling 1-hitter. The only hit he gave up was a single by Kelly Ragland in the 7th inning. But Ragland never got beyond first base as the next player hit into a double play and the third batter popped out to end the game.

Kermit got only three hits off Snyder pitchers Gary Greenlee and Ricky Beard. Greenlee pitched the first two innings, and Beard worked the last four.

Kermit got its only run in the bottom of the 5th when King was hit by a pitched ball, took second on a passed ball, and scored on a single by Hunter. Gregory and Arnold got the other hits for Kermit.

It also was a good defensive game with each side committing just two errors.

Snyder, now 5-5-1 for the year, visits Andrews for a 4:30 p.m. tilt next Tuesday, then enters the Andrews Tournament the following Thursday through Saturday.

Girls Track Team Scores 37 Points

SPUR—The Snyder High School girls track team showed a lot of improvement in a meet here Friday, scoring 37 points. Abilene High was the winner.

Martha Braziel won the shot put with a heave of 37-4.

Teresa Thompson was third in the 60 yard dash with an 8.0 clocking after turning in a time of 7.8 in the prelims. She also placed third in the 100 yard dash with a 12.8 after scoring a 12.4 in the prelims.

Debbie Newman was fourth in the 220 with a 29.5.

Pattie Wolfe was fifth in the 880 with a 2:56, and Lisa Voss was 6th in the same event with a 3:03.1.

The sprint relay team comprised of Toni Taylor, Glenda Treat, Debbie Newman and Teresa Thompson placed fourth with a 4:47.9 clocking.

Toni Taylor ran a 67.7 in the prelims of the quartermile, but she placed seventh in the finals.

Coach Jim Bartlett said the races were run into a stiff breeze. He said he hopes the Snyder girls will reach their peak at the district meet, and he expressed the belief they will if they continue to improve each week.

The Snyder girls will be in the Canyon Reef Meet next Saturday, competing against six other teams.

LPGA Pacts To Be Changed

HOUSTON (AP) — The executive director of the Ladies Professional Golfers' Association (LPGA) says LPGA tournament contracts will be changed to avoid a repeat of last week's cancellation of the $100,000 LPGA tournament here.

"Our normal contracts say we'll be paid at the conclusion of the tournament," Bud Erickson said. "We ask the sponsors to give us the money on Friday morning (the first day of the tournament) but we don't insist. We've always operated on the theory that people are going to be straightforward with us."

Announcement that the women pros had voted not to play the tournament claiming that the sponsor couldn't come up with the prize money came at an inconvenient time for the LPGA.

Benitez Eyes Title

FORT WORTH (AP) — Salty Amarillo ringmaster Eloy Benitez climbed another run toward a third state Golden Gloves title Friday night with a unanimous decision over San Antonio's Derly Cirlos en route to the light-middleweight semifinals.

The 156-pound Benitez, making his seventh appearance in the state tournament, outpointed the lighter Alamo City entry, who weighed 148.

Benitez, who won the welterweight crowns in 1972 and 1973, appears on a collision course with the defending light-middle champion, Ray Phillips of Fort Worth. Barring upsets Saturday night, they will meet in the finals Monday night.

Phillips, who has won the division title the last two years, scored an impressive victory over Wichita Falls' Troy Vaughn. The fight went the three-round distance.

Houston's gangly Felix Cora used effective jab and short rights to decision Fort Worth's Sam Hatton in the middleweight quarterfinals.

The best fight of the 38-bout card was a light-heavy war between ex-champ Carl Ivy of Tyler and Fort Worth newcomer Don Fitzsimmons. Ivy floored Fitzsimmons twice in the second round but the 174-pounder arose to make a game fight of it. Ivy was awarded a decision.

Another former champ, El Paso's Junior Vicencio, impressed in his first bout of the tournament, scoring a victory over Larry Lloyd in the light-weight division.

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — West Germany completely outclassed Malaysia 4-0 to win third place in the World Cup field hockey tournament here today.

White Stars Nip Gold Team, 36-35

The White All-Stars nipped the Gold All-Stars, 36-35, in a thrilling Little Dribblers' All-Star contest in Tiger gym Friday night.

The Gold took a 9-4 lead in the first quarter, but fell behind, 13-17, at halftime. The White stayed out front, 21-20, after three quarters. Each team scored 15 points in the fourth quarter.

Barry Tubb sparked the Gold Attack with 19 points. Sam Willis contributed eight points, Chris Seale 4, and Neil Evans and Carlos Martinez, 2 each.

Brent Duncan led the White team with 10 points. Mark Bartlett scored 8 while Jerry Green, Paul Faigin and Mike Roemisch each scored four. Tommy Gressett, Donny Morrell and Devin Donelson each tallied two points.

The All-Star team that will represent Snyder in the regional playoffs, probably in Seminole, was selected following the game. The All-Stars include Jerry Greene, Mark Bartlett, Brent Duncan, Keith McClain, Mike Roemisch, Sammy Willis, Kris Seale, Barry Tubb, Allan Wallace and Carlos Martinez.

Ali May Fight Bugner

LOS ANGELES (AP) — World heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali will defend his title against England's Joe Bugner in Chicago on June 8 if Ali defeats underdog Chuck Wepner, The Associated Press learned today.

A source told The AP that contracts have been signed for an outdoor fight between Ali and Bugner, the European champion, at Chicago's Soldier Field.

Ali fights Wepner in Cleveland on March 24 and is an overwhelming favorite to defend successfully the crown he won by knocking out George Foreman last October.

Agreement on the contract was reached in London, the source said.

There was no immediate confirmation from the camps of either Ali or Bugner.

According to the source, the fight will be on home television but not the closed circuit of recent heavyweight title bouts. Plans are to scale the 110,000 seat stadium at modest prices.

Lamar 9th Won 10-4

The Lamar 9th grade girls volleyball team ended its 1975 season with a 10-4 record.

In district play, the Cubs were 6-2, losing only to a strong Lamesa team. In tournament play, they were 5-2, losing only to Lamesa and Denver City. Lamar won consolation in the Big Spring tournament. Andra Crenshaw was selected to the All-tournament team. Snyder also won second in the Snyder Tournament. All tournament players were Tonja Banks, Shelly Nutt, Charlotte Pierce, and Andra Crenshaw.

Soccer Chief Resigns Post

DENVER (AP) — Norm Sutherland, general manager and coach of the Denver Dynamos of the North American Soccer League, resigned Friday.

The resignation came a week before the Dynamos were scheduled to open training camp and six weeks before the opening of the team's second season in the league.

Richard Olson, chairman of the board of the Dynamos, said the team would seek a replacement for Sutherland and would enter the league season as scheduled.

A BRAND NEW TIRE ...NOT A BLEM!

Here's Tire Quality Designed To Meet Inflation Head-On

$15.50 B78-13 blackwall plus $1.88 F.E.T. and old tire

All-Weather 78

The all new All-Weather 78 gives you honest quality in every detail. The bias-ply body is built with polyester cord that is first tempered in an exclusive Goodyear process to set the cord at optimum strength and resilience. The wide 78-series tread is "reverse molded" — a technique borrowed from race tire production — to help assure full flat contact with the road. The rib-type tread is well-grooved and exposes plenty of traction edges for a decisive grip. Why settle for a "Blem" or a "Seem" when Goodyear new tire quality is so competitively priced. Get the All-Weather 78. It's available now in sizes to fit most cars.

RAIN CHECK — If we sell out of your size we will issue you a rain check, assuring future delivery at the advertised price.

KENT ALLISON RICK BULLOCK BARRY DAVIS SONNY PARKER DAN KRUEGAR

Aggies Hog All-Southwest Conference Cage Honors

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

Texas A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf is The Associated Press Southwest Conference Coach of the Year and juniors Barry Davis and Sonny Parker of the 1974-75 champions earned first team honors.

"I'm surprised because I thought Eddie Sutton of Arkansas might get it," said Metcalf. "It's really quit an honor and a tribute to the most unselfish team I've ever coached.

"I voted for Carroll Dawson of Baylor. That's the least I could do after the way those guys helped us."

Baylor upset both Texas Tech and Arkansas in Waco with the Aggies the only team able to handle the Bears at home in Heart O' Texas Coliseum.

Texas A&M finished with a 12-2 SWC record and became the first team in the school's history to win 20 games. The Aggies lost six and met Cincinnati Saturday night in the NCAA first round playoff.

Joining Davis of Galveston and Parker of Chicago, Ill., on the coaches first team were Rick Bullock of Texas Tech, the SWC's most prolific scorer, senior Kent Allison of Arkansas and Dan Kruegar, Texas' high-scoring guard.

Davis averaged only 13 points per game but was the inside scoring catalyst of the depth-laden Aggie team. Parker averaged almost 15 points per contest.

Parker was named Newcomers of the Year.

Bullock was named Player of the Year as he paced the second place Red Raiders and the league with a scoring average of 21 points per contest. He also led the SWC in rebounds with 11 caroms per contest.

Allison, a transfer from Western Kentucky, averaged 17 points per game while the classy Krueger collected 13 points per contest.

Metcalf said he appreciated the coaches voting Davis and Parker to the first team because "Our players sacrificed all personal statistics. They got together and made their own training rules which included curfews starting the night on the night before a game. We didn't have an offender all year."

He added "If I get a heart transplant, I want Barry's. He plays with great intensity. I'm trying to talk him into going into coaching because he has such a great understanding of the game."

The modest Metcalf, who won the AP SWC Coach of the Year for the third time in his 12 years at A&M, said "I had great people on the floor and on the bench. My assistants, Norman Reuther and Bob Gobin took a lot of the load off my shoulders."

DALLAS (AP) — Here is The Associated Press 1974-1975 All Southwest Conference basketball team as selected by the coaches:

ORIOLES WILL REMAIN IN BALTIMORE IN '75

MIAMI (AP) — Now that the Baltimore Orioles know where they'll be playing the home portion of the 1975 baseball season, Manager Earl Weaver can go about the job of molding another pennant contender.

After board chairman Jerold C. Hoffberger offered to sell the team last October, there was considerable speculation that the franchise would be shifted out of Baltimore.

But Hoffberger, whose biographical sketch and those of other front-office personnel were left out of this year's club information guide, told the players at the outset of spring traning that Baltimore's Memorial Stadium will be home again this year.

Although the Orioles top the major leagues with 586 victories in the past six years while winning five of six American League East Division titles, home attendance has been below one million for each of the past three seasons.

An upsurge at the gate is expected this year for three reasons: public response to the threat of a move, more home run power by the Orioles, and the likelihood of a tight division race.

The New York Yankees, who finished just two games behind Baltimore last season, should be even more formidable with the addition of pitcher Catfish Hunter and outfielder Bobby Bonds.

But the Orioles figure to be stronger, too, as the result of off-season trades.

They've added power with the acquisition of first baseman Lee May and outfielder Ken Singleton, an experienced catcher in Dave Duncan, and pitcher Mike Torrez, who had a 15-8 record last season at Montreal.

Among the players the Orioles had to give up in exchange were pitcher Dave McNally, who holds the club record of 181 victories, and Boog Powell, Baltimore's all-time home-run leader with 303.

May, who has averaged 30 homers and 96 runs batted in for the last seven seasons, joins an infield of three 1974 Gold Glove winners in third baseman Brooks Robinson, shortstop Mark Belanger and second baseman Bobby Grich.

Singleton, a switch-hitter who slumped at Montreal last year after hitting .302 with 23 homers and 103 RBI in 1973, could be an outfield regular.

The other top outfield candidates include Paul Blair, another Gold Glove winner who hit 17 homers last year; Don Baylor, who batted .385 during Baltimore's 28-6 finish of 1974, and Al Bumbry, who slumped to .233, or 104 points below the mark which earned him Rookie of the Year honors in 1973.

The pitching staff probably will be strong again, provided Jim Palmer avoids a recurrence of the arm trouble which dropped his record to 7-12 last season.

The 1973 Cy Young Award winner will be in a rotation with Mike Cuellar, who has won 125 games in six seasons with Baltimore, Torres, and Ross Grimsley, an 18-game winner in his first season with the Orioles.

Cuellar was 22-10 last season and, along with Blair was named a co-winner of the Most Valuable Oriole award.

Right-hander Bob Reynolds and Grant Jackson, a left-hander, will form the backbone of the bullpen. Wayne Garland, Doyle Alexander and Jesse Jefferson will likely be both spot starters and relievers.

The addition of Duncan behind the plate will make one of Baltimore's other three catchers expendable.

Andy Etchebarren, who remained the team's last holdout as exhibition games began, has asked to be traded. And Earl Williams could be on the block after failing to produce as expected the past two seasons. Elrod Hendricks might stick mainly because he bats left-handed.

"We look fairly solid," said Weaver, who has a .608 winning percentage for 6½ seasons and can afford a little understatement. "I believe that we'll be in the fight."

"Grich and Baylor are about ready to do it all," he continued. "If Baylor can get hot for 12 weeks instead of six, he'll lead the league. Either one could be a candidate for Most Valuable Player in the league and you can throw Blair in that category if he bats .280 and hits 20 homers."

If the Orioles get some power at the plate again, Weaver probably will abandon the running strategy he employed the past two years.

"It we start hitting home runs early," he said, "we'll just run a little bit less early in the game. We could play the way we did in 1969 and 1970—wait and see how the game's going to develop before risking a gamble that may take the team out of a rally."

Collins Won 100 Yard Dash

Ronnie Collins, Travis 8th grader, won the 100 yard dash at the Sweetwater Meet a couple of days ago with a fine time of 11.4 seconds. His name was inadvertently left off of a list of results of the meet.

Success Hasn't Spoiled Friendly Joe Garagiola

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — If he had been a more ruthless man, Joe Garagiola might have dug a spike into one of Jackie Robinson's outstretched palms and shattered baseball history.

Instead, he used to discretion and shattered his right shoulder in a thudding crash that changed the life of Joe Garagiola.

"That accident didn't exactly knock me out of baseball, but it helped," the jovial, bald-pated bricklayer's son said.

Instead of pursuing a baseball career he turned to pursuing the players as one of the busiest, most successful and highest paid of the sports broadcasters.

More than that, he has become something of an institution in the nation's living rooms as television talk show host, game show master of ceremonies, huckster and commentator.

He was making $12,000 a year when he quit baseball in 1954—four years after the Robinson incident—to take the microphone for the St. Louis Cardinals. Now he is paid more than most of the sport's superstars and has the highest identity factor of any [illegible] figure with the possible exception of Howard Cosell.

As he swept through the Florida training camps last week putting together film for his "Baseball World of Joe Garagiola" series on NBC—principally the one hour feature, "Next Year Is Here," to be televised April 6—the friendly, garrulous one-time catcher stole the limelight from the game's biggest personalities.

Kids lined up for autographs and old timers elbowed their way past Lou Brock and Willie Stargell to shake his hand.

Success hasn't spoiled Garagiola, the Italian kid from St. Louis' "Hill."

The earthy quality has proven to be a strong Garagiola asset. "Anthony Quinn said once you're poor if you're never rich," Joe quips.

Undoubtedly Joe could be richer than he is. Within the past couple of years he has abandoned a $75,000-a-year job as a regular on the "Today" show, ended lucrative contracts as a game show host and cut down heavily on personal appearances.

The Garagiolas live in Scarsdale, N.Y., have a penthouse apartment in Marco Island, Fla., where he is connected with a land development firm. They have two sons and a daughter.

Garagiola, 49, the son of an immigrant Italian, grew up across the street from Yogi Berra. He spent eight years in the National League as a left-handed hitting catcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, Pittsburgh Pirates, Chicago Cubs and New York Giants.

"I thought I was modeling uniforms," he says of his diamond career.

He was just 20 and fresh out of the Army when he caught for the Cardinals in the 1946 World Series against the Boston Red Sox.

"When Ted Williams came to bat I didn't know whether to call a pitch or ask for his autograph," he says.

It was in 1950 at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn when Garagiola, trying to beat out a hit, crashed head first trying to avoid stepping on Robinson. He suffered broken ribs and a shattered shoulder and never threw well after that.

Wake Forest In Slim Lead

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (AP) — Wake Forest, the NCAA champion, held a one-stroke team lead and Vance Heafner of North Carolina State held the same individual advantage going into Saturday's second round of the ninth annual Palmetto Golf Tournament.

Heafner toured the 6,800 yard, par-72 Orangeburg Country Club course Friday in 71, carding four birdies and a pair of bogeys on the front nine to turn in 34. He had a bogey and eight pars on the back nine.

Wake Forest, using the five best rounds of its six players, had a team score of 369, bettering N.C. State by a stroke.

Georgia Southern, the tournament's defending champion, was third in the field of 19 teams with 371.

The 54-hole tournament's final round will be played Sunday.

BLONDIE

DENNIS THE MENACE

CELEBRITIES ON THE COUCH

By Dick Maurice

Bob Crane and Trisha Hart are the new "Mary Tyler Moore, Dick Van Dyke" team of nighttime television. Both light on the tube on Thursday nights on NBC. Bob is no newcomer to television for he starred on "Hogan's Heroes" for six years. Trisha you will recall from NBC-TV's comedy series, "Occasional Wife." Later she played the title role in the TV series "Blondie." We visited with them in their homes in Hollywood and on the set of "The Bob Crane Show."

MAURICE: The show was orginally going to be called "Second Start." Now, it's the "Bob Crane Show". What was the reason for the change in title?

CRANE: The name change happened by an evolution of our show being delayed twice. We were origianlly supposed to start last September; we never got on-then we were going to get on in January; and we never got on and at that point when NBC said we are going to start you in March then the producer of our show said as long as we are going this far with a twice delayed show it's really ridiculous to call it "Second Start" cause the critics, if they like us, will leave the title alone but if they dislike us they're going to say 'This never should have had a first start.' There are too many ways they can play off the title.

MAURICE: Why haven't you accepted any of the offers to do another series since "Hogan's Heroes"?

CRANE: The offers that I received were pretty much in the same area of mama, daddy and the kids and I just didn't want to go back to the Donna Reed school of comedy which is what was being offered to me.

MAURICE: Do you think this is your best shot?

CRANE: I really can't say that this is my best shot. My old radio show was my best shot, let's put it that way because the radio show was myself and my engineer and you go ahead and do what you want. When you're in a television series you rely pretty much on the character you are given, the material that's written for you, the producer taking the film afterwards and cutting it properly. So therefore, it's a group effort and you can't have everything done your own way. It's a team effort.

MAURICE: They say 30 is the age of crisis but the age 40 plays an important part on your show.

CRANE: In this show the whole idea is a 40 year old man goes back to college and he's in an element that's a little strange for him. I was surprised to learn that there are a number of guys in their late 30's, early 40's in med school. It's not common, but it's not that unusual.

MAURICE: If you weren't doing this, what would you be doing?

CRANE: I'm perfectly happy with my career but if I weren't, I'd be drumming with Stan Kenton.

MAURICE: Trisha Hart plays your wife on the show. Could you work with your real wife who is an actress?

CRANE: I don't know whether I could necessarily work with my wife. We did a play together a couple of years ago and I had a tendency of being on edge. You hope that they are going to perform at their best. I'm so rapped up in what she's doing that I could be goofing because I'm so concerned about her.

MAURICE: Is is difficult playing the wife of someone in a show?

HART: Yes it is. With women being so liberated as they are today writers have to think a little bit differenlty than they did before. I meet with the writers constantly to help develop my character. Women don't sit in a room quietly anymore. They are part of what's happening. I feel as if I'm fighting for my character, always as far as keeping her soft and lady-like but yet liberated.

MAURICE: Do you find it difficult acting the part of a wife and being a real wife?

HART: No I don't because the character and I are so much alike. Both have careers-in the show I'm a real estate sales lady and in real life, I'm an actress. However, both my husband and I are able to divorce ourselves from our careers when we come home from work.

MAURICE: Would you like to direct sometime?

HART: Yes I would like to get into directing. The industry is very open-minded now for women to get into directing. Mary Tyler Moore has been directing some of her shows, Nancy Walker has directed some of the Mary Tyler Moore shows. It's just a wonderful opportunity now for women to get into directing. I would like to do it because I've been acting for so long that I feel that I have a communication with other actors.

MAURICE: Some people refer to actresses as being dumb. How do you feel about this?

HART: I find that most women that I work with are very bright, they know what they are doing and have a lot to say and a lot to offer. And men are listening because let's face it men have been carrying the burden of this world for a long time and I would think that it would be nice in some areas that now they can relax and they don't have to carry the whole thing.

MAURICE: Was there anyone you patterned your career after?

HART: Well I adore Audrey Hepburn. Everyone said when I was growing up 'gee you look a little bit like Audrey Hepbnurn'. My husband suggested that I cut my hair a certain way and what he was describing was Audrey Hepburn and he said 'well why not' and I said, right. Why not. I love the way her career has gone.

MAURICE: How do you keep that Audrey Hepburn figure?

HART: I love to dance. I think it's the best exercise in the world. As a matter of fact, I thank my lucky stars that my parents gave me the opportunity to study dancing.

MAURICE: When you went to New York did you think it was going to be chorus girl becomes star overnight? Did you go with a dream?

HART: Yes, sure. I had a dream. I learned very quickly in New York that the only way you got a close-up was if you said something.

MAURICE: If you had one wish, what would you wish for?

HART: Oh wow! I don't have a wish. My wishes have all come true.

Lawyer Speaks To WTC Class

Dan Cotton, Snyder attorney, was guest speaker for the Sociology of Family and Marriage class at Western Texas College Thursday.

Cotton discussed the new Texas family code and what it means to Texas residents contemplating divorce, Dean Morgan, instructor said. The session was also opened to students not enrolled for the course.

Fleas Thriving In Florida

MIAMI (AP) — It has been a sensational season in South Florida, for fleas.

"I know of people who have given away their animals because of fleas, but that only forces the insects to a new food source," Director Kenneth McGovern.

Exterminator Eugene Solomon says fleas have proliferated because Florida's moderate winter has provided ideal breeding conditions for the insects.

"It's collossal, the worst I've seen in 25 years in the business," Solomon says.

He says people try an assortment of measures as flea collars and aerosol fumigation bombs to de-flea but there is no completely satisfying solution to the problem.

"What it comes down to, is that fleas are hardy little rascals that come and go according to the elements, temperature and humidity, and to hell with the insecticides," Solomon says.

"They have developed immunities to certain chemicals and can hide out in suspended animation in the larval stage until the right environmental circumstances come about."

Solomon says that a person can pick up a flea from an animal and take it home with him, "and a single flea can lay as many as 450 eggs in 20 days."

He says a recent cold wave in South Florida has helped level off the problem, "but as indicated by what's going on with fleas, I would say we can expect an early and very big season for roaches and chinch bugs.

"Just resign yourself to the fact that the insects will inherit the earth."

MEET JOE SENTELL

Let it be known that we never claimed JOE SENTELL to be a great pitcher like, say, Lefty Grove or Koufax.

Personally, we don't think he could hit home plate if he stood on it. His fast ball would get there quicker by parcel post. The important thing, however, is that Joe Sentell won't throw you a curve in matters of insurance.

He can write you better, sounder coverage. He can tailor insurance to your exact needs and save you a bundle in the process. So, if you have any insurance problem, drop in and bat it around with Joe Sentell. You'll find him in the bullpen at 2615 College, 573-3791.

WEED SPRAYING:

It looks like a good year for broomweed on range and pasture lands in Scurry County. The boom in broomweed growth seems to follow moist fall and winters when competing vegetation is short. Some of these plants may germinate in the fall and live through the winter in a 2-3 leaf stage, while others will germinate in the spring following spring rains. According to this, conditions are favorable for an abundance of broomweed this year.

Most producers are familiar with the broom of the common broomweed plant. After the plant has reached this broom growth, it is difficult to control. By June 1 the plant has usually reached the broom stage. It has also used an abundance of moisture by this time.

Broomweed that is in the vegetative stage and growing rapidly is very susceptible to herbicides. This is usually between April 15 and May 15 in our areas. It is also a time when susceptible crops may be in the area and caution must be exercised to prevent injury.

Effective control of broomweed can be obtained by applying onehalf (½) pound of 2-4-D per acre when the broomweed is between 4 and 8 inches tall and the central stem is elongating.

Make your range check on broomweeds now and plan for this season. This will keep down a pest and save moisture for use by good vegetative growth later in the season.

FERTILIZER TIPS FOR GARDENERS:

Fertilizers and fertilizer use has been around for quite a number of years, but sometimes it is good to go back to some basics of fertilizers.

The contents of a fertilizer are shown by three numbers on the label. The first gives the percentage of nitrogen; the second, the percentage of phosphorus; and the third, the percentage of potassium. The numbers tell the buyer how many pounds of a particular nutrient are in the fertilizer. A 50-pound bag of 10-10-10 contains five pounds each of the three plant nutrients.

Nitrogen, a nutrient essential for plant growth, development and green color, is often deficient in soils. It generally needs to be applied more frequently than the other nutrients because it tends to wash out of the soil. Nitrogen should be used sparingly, through, as excessive amounts will burn plants as well as cause excessive growth.

Lack of nitrogen in the soil causes yellowing of lower leaves, stunted growth and reduced flowering.

Phosphorus, which is necessary for the development of younger plants, does not need to be applied as often as nitrogen. It should be mixed well into the soil when applied as it does not move down more than a few inches.

Plants lacking phosphorus have abnormal bluish-green to reddish-purple lower leaves and tender growth.

Potassium, a nutrient necessary for growth, maturity and the chemical balance of plants, is usually adequate in Texas soils. However, deficiencies may occur in sandy soils.

Lack of potassium will result in mottling and browning along the edges of older leaves.

Iron and zinc are two minor nutrients which are sometimes deficient in alkaline soils. Plants use only minimal amounts of the nutrients, so they should be applied cautiously to the soil.

CROP PRODUCTION MEETING:

We have scheduled Dr. James Supak, Area Agronomist and Mr. Marvin Sartin Area Economist for a meeting on April 3. A discussion on herbicides, crop production practices, sunflower production and outlook on several agricultural products for 1975-76. We will discuss this more in detail in later columns.

Poison Prevention Week Proclaimed

Mayor Bill Vestal met Friday with representatives of the Fisher, Mitchell, Nolan and Scurry Counties Pharmaceutical Association and its Women Auxiliary and signed a proclamation designated March 16-23 as "1975 Poison Prevention Week in Snyder."

Poison Prevention Week is traditionally observe nationally the third week of March each year. Area pharmacists are placing special emphasis on poison prevention during this week and encourage the public to consult them on how to protect their families from accidental poisoning.

The mayor's proclamation follows:

WHEREAS progress in science and technology has brought with it unfortunate advancements in certain dangers, among which are the problems of poisons in various products found around any home; and

WHEREAS it is important to keep the public aware of the dangers in such products as furniture polish, dishwasher detergent, drain cleaners, paints, turpentines and medicines; and

WHEREAS the Fisher, Mitchell, Nolan, Scurry Counties Pharmaceutical Association and its Women's Auxiliary is conducting a special information program on poison prevention during the third week of March;

NOW, THEREFORE I, BILL VESTAL, Mayor of the City of Snyder, Texas, hereby proclaim the week of March 16-23, 1975 as Poison Prevention Week in the City of Snyder, and urge appropriate Organizations and individuals to participate in this program to alert our citizens to the potential dangers of misusing medicines and household substances;

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this fourteenth day of March nineteen hundred seventy-five.

Bill Vestal
Mayor, City of Snyder

Local SCD Is In Race For Honors

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District is in the race for top honors in the 28th annual Goodyear Conservation Awards program, W. L. (Bill) Wilson Jr. of Big Spring, district chairman, announced.

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District will be competing on the basis of its record of service to land users in the contest sponsored by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company in cooperation with the National Association of Conservation Districts. An independent judging committee will select the award-winning districts.

Each first place district will receive expense-paid vacation study trips for its outstanding cooperator and a member of the districts board of directors. Representatives of the top 53 districts nationally will be the company's guests on the grand awards tour. Last years winners went to Marco Island, Florida.

The awards program also provides recognition of the outstanding cooperator who will be selected by the district board from the 1,091 land users enrolled in the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District program.

Members of the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation Districts Board are W. L. (Bill) Wilson, Jr., Big Spring, Chairman; Walter Stirl, Loraine, Vice-chairman; Carl Williams, Hermleigh, secretary-Treasurer; Leroy Key, Snyder and Burl Belew, Fluvanna.

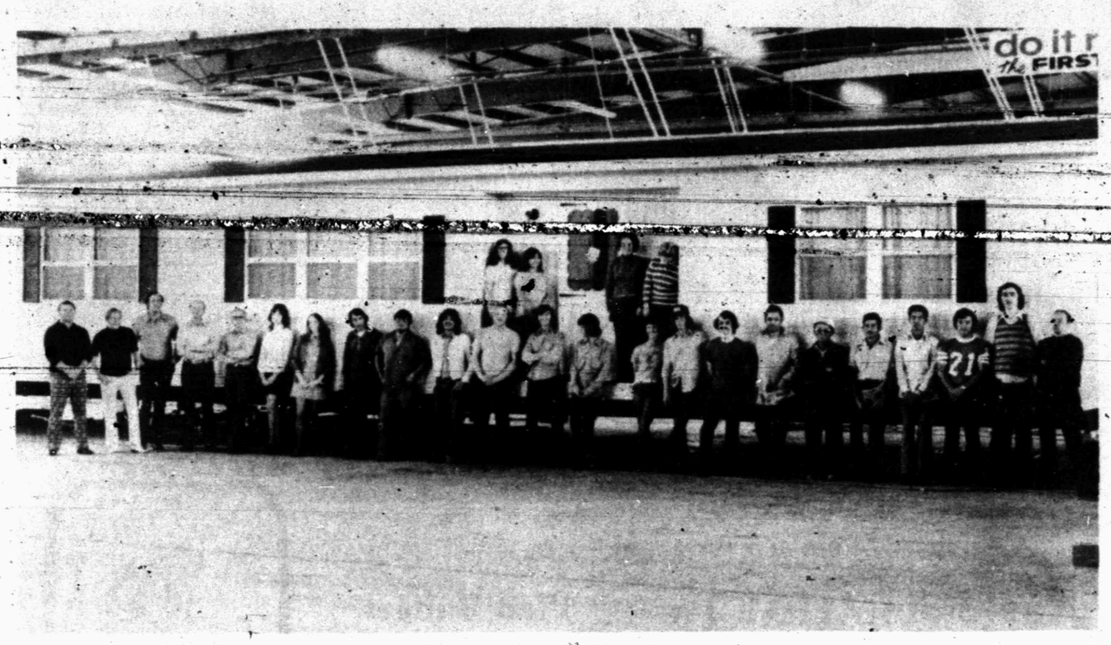
THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS

SECTION B, MARCH 16, 1975



WICKES' BIG 24-FOOTER—Staff and crew at Wickes Homes' Snyder plant lineup beside the plant's first big, 24-foot, double-wide, mobile home which rolled out Friday and immediately went on display at a show in Abilene. It is 60 feet long, has three bedrooms and two full baths.

Wickes Turns Out First Big, 'Double-Wide' Unit

Wickes, Inc.'s answer to the housing shortage rolled off the assembly line Friday afternoon at it's Snyder plant in the form of a new 60-foot long, 24-foot "double-wide" Woodfield mobile home.

It was the first 24-foot double-width home produced at the Snyder plant, and it will be on display at Westgate Shopping Center in Abilene all day today.

"This is the answer to the housing situation for many people," explained Dug Grimes, general manager at Wickes' Snyder plant. "This home is hitting the market for people who used to buy the $15,000 to $20,000 conventional home, which isn't available anymore. A conventioned home that used to cost $13,000 now sells for about $34,000.

"Seventy-five per cent of the homes we sell on the West Coast are the "double-wide" homes. They cost only about $12 per square foot completely furnished compared with $20 to $24 a square foot for a conventional home."

Grimes said the new "double-wide" Woodfield mobile home has 1,400 square feet of living area. It comes with a shingle roof overhang with recessed entry, and is available in four different floor plans. Most of the homes have three bedrooms, two full baths, a living room, a den, a dining room, a kitchen and pantry, a utility room and plenty of closet space. They are carpeted throughout.

"The Den could be converted into a fourth bedroom or made into an office," Grimes said.

The Wickes manager pointed out the new "double-wide" Woodfield home will be available either furnished or unfurnished. Regular equipment includes stove, refrigerator and central heating, but you can put just about anything in them, including garbage disposal, dishwasher, washer-dryer, microwave oven, television, stereos, built-in radios, etc. Cost is only about $15,000 to $17,000. Of course, overall cost depends on how much you want in them.

"We're getting away from the mobile home concept," Grimes pointed out. "Most of these doublewide homes are moved just one time. However, they are built in two units to that they can be transported, You could move them any number of times. It just takes a day or two to set them up and you're ready to move in."

Grimes said there is a possibility Wickes may retail the doublewide homes in Snyder soon. At any rate, you can buy them through the Abilene dealer and have them moved here.

The general manager also revealed plans of Wickes to double its production in Snyder.

"We're looking for employes now," he said. At the present time, Wickes has 35 employes at its Snyder plant and in the near future will add an additional 14 or 15.

Discussing the double-wide home further, Grimes pointed out that, "This is a milestone for Wickes because it is the first one of its type to be built at the Snyder plant."

Along with the double-wide homes, Wickes also builds mobile homes in 12, 14 and 16 foot widths. They and the 24-foot width home are available from 52 foot to 80 foot in length in several different floor plans.

"We'll have a factory representative at the Westgate Shopping Center in Abilene to answer questions all day today (Sunday)," Grimes concluded.

The first home was taken to Abilene Friday afternoon, assembled that night, and ready for the the mobile home show Saturday and Sundav.

COGGroup To Meet With HUD

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — A delegation representing 43 small city members of the North Central Texas Council of Governments (COG) will confer with top U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development officials April 3 about the plight of funding projects within their cities.

The cities are those excluded from HUD funds when HUD discovered a multi-million dollar error in its estimates of available funds.

The April meeting in Washington was arranged by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen.

During a meeting here Friday representatives from most of the 43 cities met to discuss possible ways they still may seek federal funding for projects.

COG representatives Jim Parr explained the cities could seek allocation through the HUD transition fund or the HUD secretary's discretionary fund.

Urban areas within what is known as standard metropolitan statistical areas have funds allocated for projects. First year funding has been approved for Fort Worth, Dallas, Garland, Irving, Arlington, Mesquite, Grand Prairie, White Settlement, and Lancaster and Tarrant County.

Al Ruschaupt, mayor of McKinney and COG vice president, empahsized area small cities are not fighting the larger ones.

"We understand their problems and I think they understand ours. There are 9000 small cities in Texas and when you multiply their populations it's not just a few people and Washington needs to know this," he said.

He advised his listeners to contact their congressional delegates in Washington, urging that they work to see small cities throughout the nation are given more attention.

The group approved a resolution urging congressional delegates to consider passage of special emergency appropriations and that HUD shift funds from the "transition and urgent needs funds" to meet the needs of cities cut out of the allocations.

French Newsman Killed

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — South Vietnamese police shot and killed a French correspondent Friday night after he tried to drive out of a compound where he was summoned for interrogation about a dispatch he had written, national police headquarters said Saturday.

Officials said the newsman, Paul Leandri, 37, died from a single bullet in the head. He was deputy bureau chief of Agence France Presse. His wife is expecting their first child.

In Paris, the French Foreign Ministry said it is protesting Leandri's death in the "very strongest" terms. It said news of the shooting was received in Paris "with stupor and indignation."

The ministry said it had instructed the French ambassador in Saigon to "raise the very strongest protest over the conditions in which Mr. Leandri was convoked and held by the Vietnamese police services and the circumstances in which he later died."

Texas School Districts Question Probe Ruling

By The Associated Press

Texas school district officials say a federal judge's ruling calling for investigation of their schools for possible violations of civil rights laws is not based on accurate information.

All school officials contacted after the announcement of the decision by U.S. District Court Judge John H. Pratt, stated that they were in compliance with regulations set down by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. They stated that their districts have been reviewed regularly by the Office of Civil Rights. That added that in some cases a few changes have been made following suggestions by the Office of Civil Rights, but that no charges of violations have been filed.

Judge Pratt orderd the HEW to investigate 129 school districts in 16 states. Fifty one of the districts are in Texas.

Pratt told HEW to contact each of the districts within 60 days "putting them on notice to rebut or explain the substantial racial disproportion."

The judge also indicated possible cutoff of federal funds to the schools.

Some Texas officials reacted with anger to the ruling:

Doyle Little, superintendent of the Tuloso-Midway District called the decision "an asinine suit."

"I am glad he said 'possible'," Little said, "because we have no segregation in our district. It really irritates me greatly that their decisions are made not knowing a local situation; that because you have an imbalance selected by the people, that's racial discrimination."

In Amarillo, deputy school superintendent David Austin said: "We think we are in compliance. We don't have any idea what the investigation could be over."

In the Rio Grande Valley, Harlingen schools superintendent Jim Tighpen said he had no knowledge "of what the federal judge was talking about."

He said the schools had been in touch with HEW for about two or three years and did not know that Harlingen had any problems.

Nearby, in McAllen, school board president Jim Moyer said: "It looks like we are being ordered to correct something we did not even know we were accused of. The McAllen District had visits from HEW investigators about a year ago and we haven't heard a thing from them yet."

He said the district has not had any civil rights problems in any of its schools.

Ross Snyder, public information consultant for the El Paso District, said the decision "could be a mistake."

He added the district was accused some time ago by HEW of mot having an adequate bilingual program but HEW officials investigated the district and found it had, in effect, "a model bilingual program and apologized."

Snyder theorized that the same list of districts could be making the rounds of federal courts.

Pasadena school board attorney Stanley Baskin said: "We have never had any desegregation suits filed against us." He said only a few blacks live in the district.

Fort Bend superintendent said simply: "Whatever review they want to me to make, I'll be happy to make it."

Bay City superintendent John Briggs said: "This is the first I've heard of it... this should all be interesting."

C. J. Howell, deputy superintendent in the North Forest District added: "I really think this will turn out to be a mistake of some kind."

Dr. Charles H. Hitt, superintendent of the San Antonio District, said school officials had done "everything feasible" to comply with HEW regulations. "I think we are always going to be in this kind of row ... we have accomplished here and of here."

In Pleasanton, a small city south of San Antonio, superintendent Drew H. Reece said: "It shocked me. We have three elementary schools and one junior high school and one high school They are all integrated. One of the elementary schools, about 21 miles from town in another community, has a large percentage of Mexican-American pupils because most of the residents in the area are Mexican-Americans. Reece said HEW officers from Austin have visited the school to check the racial proportion. "But they also look at the reasons," Reece explained.

"We never had any racial trouble here," he added. "With this kind of thing we are being thrown into a category of others who have had trouble. I am going to call our representative in Congress (Abraham Kazen) to find out what this is all about. We've always been proud of what we have accomplished here and of our kids."

Schools officials in Palestine, Jacksonville, Kerrville, La Porte and other districts also stated that they were in compliance of HEW regulations.

Hall To Appeal Conviction

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Former Gov. David Hall says he will appeal his conviction on cha[illegible]f extortion and conspiring to bribe a public official.

Hall, elected on a law-and-order platform in 1970 after a brilliant career as a prosecutor, predicted he will be vindicated and said, "Now I just want to spend some time at home with the kids."

The federal court jury Friday also convicted Dallas financier W.W. "Doc" Taylor on charges of attempted bribery.

Hall remains free on his own recognizance and Taylor is free on a $25,000 bond pending sentencing and appeal procedures.

Hall, a 45-year-old Democrat, has been the target of federal grand jury investigations since shortly after he took office.

Hall contended during the trial that he was framed.

U.S. Attv. William R. Burket, former Republican state chairman, led the frequent grand jury investigations of the Hall administration. He said he was pleased with the verdict, but "this is not something you can rejoice over."

Concluding a three-week trial, the jury of five men and seven women deliberated almost 16 hours over a three-day period before finding Hall and Taylor guilty on all charges.

They were convicted on three counts each of conspiring to bribe Secretary of State John Rogers to use his influence as chairman of the board administering the state retirement fund to swing a $10-million investment to a Dallas firm owned by Taylor.

Hall also was convicted on one count of extortion for demanding $50,000 from Taylor to exert his influence as governor on the board.

Hall faces a maximum sentence of 35 years in prison and $40,000 in fines. The maximum sentence for Taylor is 15 years in prison and $30,000 in fines.

A sentencing date will be set next month. Chief U.S. District Court Judge Fred Daugherty said he will set a sentencing date next month.

Rodeo Club To Sponsor Two Events

The Western Texas College Rodeo Club will sponsor an open jackpot roping and barrel race on March 23 in the rodeo arena on West Thirtieth Street, Van Rigby, Rodeo Club sponsor said.

Books will open at 10 a.m., with the jackpot starting at 11 a.m. Calf ropers will pay $25 for two head or $50 for three head. In the open barrel racing, riders will pay $22 for one run or $44 for two runs. Novice barrel racers may enter for $12 for one run, and junior racers will pay $7 for one run.

Persons wishing further information may contact Rigby at extension 216 at WTC, 573-8511, or at 573-3863.

School District Charged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a list of Texas schools U.S. District Court Judge John H. Pratt ordered the federal government to investigate Friday for possible violations of federal civil rights laws:

Districts alleged to have substantial racial disproportion:

Gandy's gains international recognition and a new symbol

QUALITY CHEKD

We're mighty proud! After 41 years of consistent quality and service, Gandy's has been honored with international recognition! Aware of Gandy's high standards, the Quality Chekd people invited Gandy's to join their international association of more than 100 independent dairies. To become a member of the Quality Chekd group, Gandy's products underwent 38 rigid "special exams" for everything from cows to cartons. Gandy's products passed with honors; therefore, Gandy's only changed its carton designs. The same high standards of quality, freshness and service which have made Gandy's Texas' largest independent dairy REMAIN THE SAME.

You will receive the same great Gandy dairy products produced by the same Gandy people right here in West Texas. Look for our new Quality Chekd cartons at your grocers. We look forward to sharing our honors with you!

MR. AND MRS CARY MAX COFFEE

(Photo By Craft)

Couple Repeats Vows

Christi Lynn Meynig and Cary Max Coffee repeated solemn wedding vows at 10 a.m. on February 28 at the First Baptist Church in Colorado City. The Rev. Glenn Roenfeldt of the church officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. A.D. Meynig of Colorado City are the parents of the bride and Mr. Max Coffee of Big Spring and Mrs. Jerry McCarver of Midland are parents of the groom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white panne satin. The yolk and sleeves were out of chiffon. Around the hem was a double row of chantilly lace and a single row accented the yolk and cuffs with tiny rad lace made by Mrs. Dell Thompson. The Juliet cap held one floor length and three fingertip veils of nylon net edged with white lace made by the bride's mother. She carried a bouquet of red roses, and white carnations. The bride carried out the tradition of something old, new, borrowed and blue.

The couple stood before a green archway with red and white ribbon with two candelabra on each side. The couple knelt on a prayer bench as "The Wedding Prayer" was sung by Jane Hill, accompanied by Elaine Ruffin. While the couple lit the memory candle, Jane Hill read a poem by Helen Steiner Rice. Other musical selections included "A Time For Us", "Traditional Wedding March" and "First Time Ever I Saw Your Face."

The bride's mother chose a floor length rose pink dress while the groom's mother wore an off-white dress with a jacket. Both had corsages of red roses and white carnations.

Susan Meynig of Colorado City served her sister as Maid of honor. Vicki Murray of Snyder was bridesmaid. They wore red double knit gowns trimmed in white lace flowers. They carried a single long stemmed white carnation with a red velvet ribbon attached.

Shelly Barber of Colorado City was flower girl. She wore a white double knit dress with an empire waist trimmed in red lace and red satin ribbon.

John Zalmon IV of Hermleigh, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer. He wore a white jacket with red and white plaid pants and carried a red satin heart shaped pillow with white lace and streamers.

Best man was Bill Reily of C-City. Groomsman was Robbie Sterling of Ira. Ushers were Ralph Castillo and Kenny Hammond of C-City.

The reception was held at the First Baptist Church Parlor. Presiding wre Mrs. Benny Hollis, Mrs. John Zalmon III, and Kim Coffee.

To leave on a wedding trip to El Paso and Old Mexico, the bride chose a navy double knit shirt waist dress with red and white inlays at the collar and cuffs with white accessories. Following the trip, the couple will live at Ira. The groom is employed by American Magnesium Co.

The bride attended Snyder High School and Colorado City High School. She was a member of Lucky 13.

The groom attended Colorado City High School and attended Western Texas College.

Out of town guests were from Midland, Big Spring, Dallas, Ft. Worth and Snyder.

A Good Time To Review Exterior

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Winter is the ideal time to review the exterior decoration of your house with spring improvements in mind. Look at it not only from an aesthetic viewpoint, but from a practical one — proper placement of plantings can make a house warmer, blocking north winds and letting in sunlight, an economy factor, too.

It is a good time to observe the outdoor incinerator, clothes dryer and barbecue in relation to the landscape. Should any of these things be screened out with trees, bushes, other plantings? You may need to purchase older plantings that can serve as screens in the immediate future, but the cost should be viewed as a long-term investment.

A method chosen by one family began with photographs, long shots and close-ups of their house, front and back. They examined enlarged photographs to decide how plantings in front of the house could be improved and they used black markers to draw a more attractive size and dimension for some bushes that needed only ruthless pruning. Two cedar trees that were keeping sunlight from the dining area were earmarked for removal because the family used the room for breakfast and it seemed dreary. They decided they couldn't be sentimental about it. They replaced the trees with rhododendron.

Some people have the problem in reverse — plantings haven't grown as they had anticipated, and sometimes all the plants grow out of the balance that they had envisioned when they planned the plot. If plants are put in willy-nilty, you can't always tell how they will look in relation to one another when they grow. Experts should be consulted about any plants bought to use around the house.

On noisy streets, some plantings — hedges, bushes, trees — could be denser. But density need not look like uncultivated brush.

After you decide on the symmetry you might need, a visit to a nurseryman with before and after pictures can enlist knowledgeable advice. After all, you'll want to know how tall the plants you've sketched in the photograph will go, how soon and so on. For example, it may seem like an utter waste to plant white pine, spruce or fir six feet apart so they can be used as a screen, but within a few years these trees will have spread considerably. They can be planted in such a way that they can serve as a screen meanwhile. The pictures may be a good guide for your gardening expert but then again he may volunteer to visit your plot.

There is a lot a do-it-yourselfer can do to improve the land around property, and a good head start for a spring upheaval could be made now. Consider these ideas:

...Ridding the landscape of eyesores: screening backyard incinerator, clothes dryer and so on. Sapling fences might be a good bet in some areas and they offer instant screen.

...Choosing a ground cover for bare spots: Ajuga, myrtle, pachysandra, English Ivy are good choices, depending on the soil.

...On the north side of the house, fast growing trees could serve as a windbreak against north winds that keep the furnace jogging.

...Make plans to plant trees where misplaced screened porches or decks get the full brunt of the afternoon sun.

...Rock gardens can emerge from unsightly mounds. Plan to dig them out to see if you can expose enough rocks to make a little garden. Make a notation of plants that would grow in that area. If you get an early start you could grow the seed in flats, bringing down the cost of the plants.

Quotable Women

By The Associated Press

Here are some quotable quotes from women during the week.

"Whatever anybody feels comfortable in utilizing. The important thing is that they address me and that they feel confortable doing it." Carla Anderson Hills, new secretary of Housing and Urban Development who was sworn in by President Ford, who said she wasn't fussy about her title.

"I'm tired of being castigated, of being thrown down the drain. It strains me, it takes the blood out of my body even talking with you all." Martha Mitchell, who said she will soon retire from public view.

"I'm not looking for much. I definitely want a Catholic family, someone living who would keep the kids together, but I don't care whether they're rich or not." Linda Hardy, a terminal cancer patient in Columbus, Ohio, whose last wish is to find a good home for her three children.

RONALD THOMASON

Texas State Artist To Judge Show Here

Ronald Thomason, Texas State Artist for 1974, will be in Snyder the weekend of March 22 23 to judge the Annual Art Exhibit to be held at the Scurry County Coliseum.

The Texas Historical Commission sponsored the spring exhibit and reception in Austin where Thomason was honored as State Artist of Texas.

Thomason's home is a couple of miles south of Weatherford. Sometimes he works as many as 40 hours at a stretch, seated cross-legged on the floor of his studio, applying color with minute strokes of a near-dry brush to one of the works which has brought him critical recongition as a leading realist of the West.

Although both dry brush watercolor and egg tempera are slow, tedious techniques, Thomason favors them because of their fresh, crisp quality. The delicacy of his brush work is due in some measure to his year of studies with K. Salamote at the University of Nagasaki Japan. Later he completed his study of art at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

Ronald's dry brush watercolor, "The Federal City", a 20 by 30 painting, will hang in the Archives of the United States near the original copy of Delecaration of Independence. The painting is also being reproduced on the cover of an 80 page book, "Washington-The Design of The Federal City," published by Hennage Creative Pointer, Washington, D.C.

Ronald Thomason loves to paint old buildings, also, old chimneys, old fences, old walls - enduring things that is the handiwork of people. The remains of any important human handiwork are appealing to him. An abandoned oil well with its leaning derrick calls to mind hectic scenes of the most exciting industry that America has known.

Thomason makes distinction carefully clear. "I'm an artist of the West, not a western artist," he says earnestly. "A lot of people refer to me as a cowboy painter, or western painter. But really, a western painter's work will tell a story—of Indians capturing a small boy, or ranch hands brandifig cattle. I try to create a point of mystery, lead people into a painting. Sometimes you can take something out of context and make it interesting. An old house after a snowfall, for instance—you can leave an upstairs window open, and suddenly the viewer is saying to himself "I wonder why that is? And he'll want to walk around back and find out."

Awards for the Snyder Art Show will be presented at 3 p.m. Sunday, March 23 at the Coliseum.

Ira P.T.A. To Meet

The Ira P.T.A. will have a night meeting on March 18. The meeting will be in the gym at 7:30 p.m. A film "The Dollar, The Scholar and You" will be shown.

At the conclusion of the film and Open House will be held in the main building. Everyone is invited to attend.

Plan Budget Habits Early

COLLEGE STATION—Even though today's young adults start out with more education in financial matters than previous generations, they can still go overboard when spending money, Mrs. Lillian Chenoweth, family resource management specialist, reminded this week.

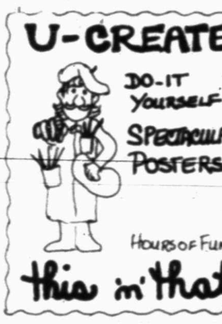
"First requirements for trying to avoid debts is a realistic view of actual income available. The lifestyle of young adults should be based on net income, not on how much can be charged," the specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, said.

Just existing from paycheck to paycheck with no plan usually results in ending up short of cash with debts piled up, she said.

"One problem the young adult frequently faces is that of buying a home. Adding to this problem is his desire to fill the new home with new furniture, new appliances and an endless list of wants—causing an equally long list of bills to pay."

Mrs. Chenoweth pointed out that unrealistic standards in relation to income is a treacherous trap for young adults.

"Some people feel they should immediately have the standard of living that their parents worked many years to acheve," she noted.



Announce Marriage

HEALTH TIP from DEAN

Parents should be sure to caution children against the dangers of fire. In case of a clothing fire, warn them not tor run or remain standing, but to drop down and roll on the ground. I f indoors, drop to the floor and roll into a rug to smother the flames. If no rug is handy, a heavy coat or wool blanket. will do. Jumping under the shower or spraying with a garden hose is effective. It is wise to keep a garden hose attached and coiled both indoors and outdoors, for emergency fire use.

Reception Honors Artists Of Month

Martha Ann Woman's Club, during the month of March, presents the local School Art Instructors in an exhibit of their creative efforts.

A reception honoring the artists will be held today from 2 until 4 p.m. at the Club. The MAWC Board of Directors extends an invitation to the public to attend.

All Texas Public School Art Teachers are required to be certified. Art training includes such things as Art History, Textiles; batik, weaving, macrame and tapestry weaving; Printmaking of all kinds; ceramics, wheel thrown and hand built; photography; woodcarving; jewelry, freehand drawing; design, graphics, painting in all media; sculpture in all media and many more techniques. The MAWC exhibit has several of these techniques, and some totally new ideas.

High School Art Instructor Ted Bigham came to Snyder in 1968 to teach art for three years at Travis Junior High. He then moved to Snyder High School where he has been for the past four years.

Mr. Bigham grew up, on a stock farm, in the southwest part of Taylor County, in the Bluff Creek Community. He graduated from South Taylor High School and received a B.S. in Business Administration from Howard Payne College in Brownwood. He later received a B.S. and an All Level Art Education Certificate from Hardin Simmons University in Abilene. Additional education has been acquired from Texas Tech University and McMurry College.

Mr. Bigham excels in a variety of media, particularly oil, watercolor, acrylic, hand built and wheel thrown pottery, and photography.

Travis Art Teacher, Kenny Miller was born and reared in Haskell County. He is a graduate of McMurry College with an All Level Art Certificate.

Mr. Miller is married to the former Sandra Kay Ward of Hermleigh. They have two daughters, Amy and Mendy.

Choosing from his extensive media training, Mr. Miller works mainly in oil and experimental acrylic painting. The Miller home is decorated with several of Mr. Miler's woodcarvings.

Jo Bailey Flynn, wife of Doug Flynn, teaches Art and Homemaking at Lamar Junior High. She is the mother of three sons, Captain John Flynn, Lakenheigh, England, Lieutenant Michael Flynn, Wichita, Kansas and Tim a Junior at Snyder High.

Mrs. Flynn, a native of Lamesa and a graduate of Texas Tech University, with a B.S. in Home Economics Education. She also holds a Texas Certificate for Teaching Secondary Art.

She studied Art at Texas Tech University. University of Texas at El Paso, and Hardin Simmons University. She has also studied with such outstanding professional artists as Dr. Clarence Kincaid, Dr. Emilio Cabellaro, Robert E. Wood, A.W.S., Rex Brandt, A.W.S., Robert Gartland, A.W.S., Ronald Thomason, and Bud Biggs. She is a member of the Palette Club, West Texas Watercolor Association and the Texas Art Education Association.

Mrs. Flynn has on exhibit cast and fabricated jewelry, tapestry weaving, watercolor and oil paintings.

Spanish Rice Is Still A Great Dish

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Years ago when I was food editor of a magazine, my assistant Roslyn Beilly would invite me along with other friends to her family's house in Brooklyn for a special menu. Roslyn's parents, Dr. Jack Beilly and his wife Bess, were wonderfully hospitable and their cook's fried chicken and Spanish rice dinners became famous among Roslyn's friends. I had never come on the combination before and never have since, but it has stayed in my memory es particularly delectable. This is how it came into being.

The Beilly's cook, Jeanie Reid, came from North Carolina and no one needed to tell her how to make the best fried chicken in the world! But Spanish rice was new to her and when Roslyn gave her a rather mundane recipe for it to serve with roast veal, she made it her own and to the Beillys' surprise and delight, offered it with her fried chicken. Her trick was to add pimiento-stuffed green olives to the rice dish which gave it a real lift.

I'm afraid I do not have Jeanie's recipe for the chicken — no one in the Beilly family ever did find out how she conjured up that particular culinary magic. But Roslyn carefully kept the recipe for the Spanish rice and passed it along to me. Recently we recreated it in my test kitchen and it came up to every expectation.

SPANISH RICE

¼ cup olive oil
1 cup extra long-grain or converted-type rice
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped green pepper
Medium clove garlic, crushed
16-ounce can whole tomatoes, undrained
½ cup chopped pimiento-stuffed green olives
½ cup water
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
Powdered saffron to taste, if desired
Whole pimiento-stuffed green olives and parsley sprigs for garnish

In a 10-inch skillet heat the oil. Add rice, onion, green pepper and garlic; cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until rice is lightly browned — about 10 minutes. Add tomatoes; with a wooden spoon break them up. Stir in chopped olives, water, cayenne and, if used, the saffron. Heat to boiling; reduce heat to low; cover and cook until rice is tender and liquid has evaporated — about 25 minutes. Spoon into serving dish; garnish center with whole olives surrounded with parsley sprigs. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

. Currently, cases of diphtheria, infectious encephalitis, gonorrhea and meningoccal infections in Texas are up from a year ago. This also holds for cases of aseptic meningthis, salmonellosis, tuberculosis, typhoid fever and strep throat, including scarlet fever, notes Dr. Barbara Sears, health education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Search For Aircraft Resumed

TUCUMCARI, N.M. (AP) — The Civil Air Patrol was to resume searching east central New Mexico today for what may be a downed aircraft.

The search was launched Friday after weak radio signals and an emergency locator transmitter beacon were heard by pilots Thursday near Tucumcari.

The Federal Aviation Administration said no planes had been reported missing.

A CAP spokesman said 10 aircraft participated in the search Friday.

Scurryly Speaking

NOTE: Today's account of an event that happened in 1917-18 in Scurry County is written by W.C. Fargason of Hermleigh. Mr. Fargason, a member of the Scurry County Historical Survey Committee since 1966, was postmaster for over 25 years at Hermleigh. Prior to that he and his brother were in the grocery store business there. Always an active and interested citizen of the community, Mr. Fargason states that he wasn't much hand to join clubs—the following story probably gives a clue as to why he was subsequently reluctant to join other organizations.

By W.C. FARGASON

In reading past issues of Scurryly Speaking, the County Historical Committee's Newsletter, and in association with that committee, I learned that every community, however small it may be, has some interesting history that goes to make up a more complete history of an entire county. My story is about an event in the small community of Lone Wolf.

Soon after the United States declared war on Germany in World War I, and the draft went into effect, an organization known as the "Farmers and Laborers Protective Association of America" sprang up in Central Texas. The State Representative of the organization came into the community of LONE WOLF, got a group of us together and explained how we could band together and save a lot of money by cooperating together and buying in bulk. Naturally that appealed to us farmers and stockmen who were experiencing a severe drouth.

So we organized, electing two prominent citizens as president and vice president. I was elected secretary. We operated fine for a few weeks. We were taking in new members; meeting once each week, introducing several of the "Woodman of the World" side degrees, we were having a lot of fun.

Most convincing speakers have some following, and this organization was no exception. The cooperating benefits, as explained to us sounded good, and we seized the opportunity by going together and ordering a car load of coal.

We were unaware of the main purpose and intent of the organization which was seditious subversion; to resist the draft, which we had no intention of doing. My brother and I, single and of draft age, had no intention of resisting the draft and placing a stain on our family that time could not erase. We were in fact arranging our business at that time to answer the call to military service.

Everything in that organization came to a head when a man from Snyder came down one night to speak to us. Before he could finish his speech, it looked like we were going to have a real fight. Both the speaker and the president pulled their knives, ready for the kill. The war was on. This broke up our meetings, but as secretary, I continued to receive the literature. By this time an investigation had begun, and one of our members was placed in jail at Sweetwater under tight security. He was soon released after Federal authorities learned the facts.

The activities of the Farmers and Laborers Protective Association received wide publicity in the newspapers at that time, the accounts written with much emotional details.

According to the Dallas Semi-Weekly Farm News, dated, June 1, 1917, Clarence Dubose, staff special to the News, filed this news item from Abilene, Texas on May 28, 1917:

"What punishment will we give a traitor? Death! Death! Death! was the response chorused by men grouped around the leader in a lodge of the so-called Farmers and Laborers Protective Association. With each pronouncement of the word 'Death', they pointed with extended forefingers at the book and emblems about which they stood—the emblems being a whip, a dagger and a pistol. Government officers from a certain point saw and heard this at a meeting of this particular lodge at a place in Taylor County."

According to the Farm News, some lodges were more radical than others. The Taylor County Grand Jury reported: "that a large majority of those who were induced to join did not indorse these things and endeavored to get out of the lodges and quit them, but were threatened with death if they did," so they waited until an opportunity presented to tell it with safety to officers. This grand jury further found that no fault attaches to the original purposes of the lodge as expressed. "The trouble is," said the grand jury, "that after the organization is perfected, radical leaders lead the members on step by step until they are in the pitfall without realizing it and until it is too late to get out with safety."

Further quoting the Dallas Semi-Weekly Farm News of June 1, 1917, is told "how members of a lodge near Snyder, having repudiated it and fearing death, drove across country to San Angelo at night to invoke Federal protection and disclose their information of the organization to United States officials.

According to the Farm News, by this time a full scale investigation had begun, generally in eight or nine counties. Within two weeks after the active investigation had begun, the association had been practically dissipated; a mass of evidence had been gathered; a number of arrests made and a number of other men placed on observation and many witnesses ordered to appear before the Federal Grand Jury at Dallas.

In the meantime, I pondered the question of what to do about the literature in my possession. I was the only one who knew about it. Not even the president of the organization or any other member or my family knew about it. I wondered if I should turn it over to investigating authorities and tell what I knew, risking ambush from some radical member outside our community? Punishment for reporting or testifying against the organization was drastic: the guilty would be "taken care of" by a committee. After several sleepless nights, my mind was made up! To avoid involvement of myself and of anyone else in the community, I opened the door of the hot pot-bellied stove and poked the literature in.

Newsmen Are Ushered Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Photographers and newsmen were ushered out of the Cabinet Room at the White House in the middle of a speech by Soviet Food Minister Voldemar Petrovich Lein.

The action came before President Ford had a chance to reply to Lein. White House aides gave no explanation.

White House custom often allows newsmen into such a meeting just long enough for photographers to take a few pictures of the participants. It is unusual to ask newsmen to leave in the middle of a speech.

Lein brought Ford greetings from Soviet Communist party chairman Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Trudeau Arrives In Irish Capital

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau of Canada has arrived in the Irish capital for talks with government leaders on his country's links with the European Common Market.

Trudeau, who arrived here Friday from London, is the first Canadian prime minister to visit the Irish republic. The visit marks the last stop on Trudeau's European tour.

For a thrifty meatless main dish for supper top a cooked vegetable casserole with corn muffin batter — homemade or from a mix. Or serve poached eggs on buttered toasted English muffins and top with a cheese sauce.

To make your own "cocktail" soybeans, soak the dry beans overnight, then drain and spread them on a cookie sheet; leave them at room temperature until their surface is dry. Fry, in small batches, in hot deep fat (about 350 degrees on a frying thermomenter) for 8 to 10 minutes. Drain on brown paper and while the beans are still warm, sprinkle with seasoned salt.

Closing Of A&P Stores In Spotlight

NEW YORK (AP) — The A&P food store chain, whose advertising campaign Where Economy Originates (WEO) failed to boost sales, decided to take its advice to heart this past week.

Directors of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., the nation's largest food chain, approved management's preliminary plans to close 1,250 small, unprofitable and obsolete stores, or more than one third of the chain's 3,500 total.

Partly replacing these outlets A&P said it has plans underway to construct about 160 new, larger supermakets. "We must move ahead to complete the transition other chains completed long ago," said Chairman J.L. Scott, brought in Feb. 1 to help revitalize the New Jersey-based company.

A&P, which said it was establishing a $195 million reserve to cover losses from the closings, added that final decisions regarding individual stores and employes would depend upon negotiations with landlords, unions, and banks. Management hopes to achieve the closings in 12 months.

A company spokesman emphasized the program and loss reserves were not connected with a $32 million judgement recovered against A&P in California recently in a civil antitrust suit concerning the pass through of meat prices. A&P is appealing that decision.

In Washington the Senate Finance Committee worked over President Ford's recession-fighting tax bill even as Ford himself expressed disappointment with the congressional delay.

The committee sweetened the House-approved bill by adding a tax credit for 1975 home buyers and other measures which raised the size of the tax cut to $28 billion.

That was still $2 billion short of what AFL-CIO president George Meany said was necessary but $7 billion more than what Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns said the economy could accept without renewed inflationary pressures.

To approve the bill by Easter, the President's goal, it now appears likely the move to repeat the controversial oil depletion allowance will either be compromised or left out entirely.

Ford economic adviser, Alan Greenspan, told Congress the first quarter's business slide may be greater than earlier estimated but that recovery should still be underway later this year.

And in fact there were signs that an economic spring may be approaching:

—The Commerce Department reported business inventories declined in January for the first monthly fall in almost five years. Economists believe inventory liquidation is essential for any recovery.

—Interest rates continued to fall, with New York's First National City Bank joining a handful of other majors at an industrywide low prime rate of 7¾ per cent.

—The nation's automakers said early March sales slumped only 3 per cent from depressed year-earlier levels despite an end to their rebate programs. Analysts read the results as promising.

—Private economists predicted the recession would cool inflation to a yearend level of around 6 per cent, about half of last year's torrid pace, with a chance it may be even lower.

Kidnaped Boy Back Unharmed

PORT ARTHUR, Tex. (AP)- Mark Hayes, 15, was back home today unharmed, 24 hours after he was abducted and after his parents paid a $60,000 ransom.

Police said one man was taken into custody.

Young Hayes broke into tears Friday night when reunited at the police station with his father, Lloyd Hayes, a former mayor of this Southeast Texas city and now a prominent land developer.

PUBLIC NOTICES

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District is taking bids on the following equipment: (1) Soil Mover, 1 yard capacity and (2) Hydraulic Scraper, 25 D. This equipment will be sold to the highest bidder in AS IS condition. This equipment may be seen at the Murray Jackson Chevron Service Station at Union, Texas. Dr. Lamb

Having sex is not like giving blood

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—It seems so many men have been dying of heart attacks and also losing their hair at an early age that there must be some reason.

[illegible] I heard that a little sex is good but too much will hurt you. It weakens the heart and the circulation gets poor, especially in the head (scalp) where the veins are small and the hair dies and falls out. Is this related to too much sex, the heart attacks and baldness?

I have also heard that the amount of energy a man loses when he has an orgasm is about equal to that of a woman's when she has her period. One fellow said when a man has sex it is like giving a pint of blood.

I'm almost 69 and have a full head of hair and have not had a heart attack. I've not gone too heavy on sex. I thought my questions might help others.

DEAR READER—From all available statistics, if having sex were like giving a pint of blood I'm afraid most men would be needing a blood transfusion rather regularly. There is nothing to that story. About the only energy lost is the few calories in semen and the calories used in the exercise. Neither one has prevented widespread obesity in a rather sexually active society.

Nor is sexual activity related to baldness. It is true that male hormone is a factor in baldness, but inherited characteristics may be more impoprtant. No small number of women also become bald even when they have a normal hormone balance for women.

There apparently is an upsurge in male hormone production in men who have been away from women in anticipation of returning to an environment with female companions. This is associated with increased beard growth. And, it is also true that when the male is castarated early in life he is less likely to become bald. But many a man with a full head of hair has had his full measure of sexual activity.

Sex does not hurt the heart or circulation in a healthy person. In this regard it can be considered as another form of exercise. A healthy person who is able to engage in normal amounts of regular physical activity will also be able to engage in sex without problems.

To the extent that exercise is useful in preventing heart and vascular disease, sex is also useful. It is limited in its use as an exercise program because of the short time interval of physical exertion involved, at least in most instances.

Actually there is a good bit of evidence that rather than too much sex causing heart and vascular disease, in our society widespread vascular disease decreases sexual performance.

Those fatty cholestrol deposits in the arteries to the heart also develop in other arteries, the brain to cause stroles, and even to the arteries supplying the sexual organs of the male. the circulation to the testicles is diminished there may be decreased testicular function and less male hormone production.

In rarer instances the blood supply necessary for normal erection will be blocked by artery disease from fatty cholesterol deposits. For those who want to continue a normal, active sex life, it is important to follow those recommendations to prevent heart attacks, avoid smoking, overeating and get regular amounts of safe and sane exercise. The exercise can include sex.

DEAR DR. LAMB—About a year ago I was assaulted in the street, about 9 a.m. on a Monday morning at our post office. I struck him back and knocked him down. He was a tall man, about six feet and weighing about 200 hundred pounds. I had experienced a heart attack before this happened. My doctor called it atrial fibrillation.

I was perfectly calm and serene at the time I resisted him and knocked him down. When I arrived home the reaction set in. The end result was I landed in the hospital and was ultimately operated on to install a pacemaker.

I would deeply appreciate it if you could inform me how long it takes before I need new batteries for this pacemaker.

DEAR READER—Heart pacemakers have been an important addition to the treatment and management of heart disease. They are highly successful in maintaining regular heart action.

The first one was implanted in 1958 and since then more than 120,000 have been implanted in the United States alone. As of 1972, 90,000 of the people who received pacemaker implants were still alive. Considering the amount of underlying heart disease in these cases, that is truly a remarkable record.

The biggest drawback to the pacemakers is the short life of the batteries. You can estimate that the lifespan of the batteries in most current pacemakers is only two to three years. There is quite a spread on this and individuals with pacemakers should be under the supervision of a heart specialist of a clinic. They can test you from time to time and advise you when you may need to [illegible] is very important that you have this kind of supervision and you should establish this at once.

There has been considerable news coverage about the new nuclear batteries that could last longer than the patients. These hold great promise for the future but are considered still in the investigational phase and are not generally available yet.

As a matter of interest, the range of price for the different models of pacemakers is currently from $800 to $5000.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Would you explain what "staph disease" is?

DEAR READER—That is a slang term for staphylococcus, a particular type of germ The germs clump together like a cluster of grapes. The "staphylo" comes from Greek meaning bunch of grapes, while "coccus" means berry.

Some varieties of these germs are harmful to man and other varieties are not. They are commonly on the skin and when they set up housekeeping around the root of the small hair they cause pimples or worse. Many people have harmful "staph" germs on the skin and are more prone to skin problems.

Staphyloccus germs grow rapidly in puddings, cream pies, potato salad and similar foods when they are left at room temperature. When this happens they can cause one form of food poisoning.

Collins Award To Graves

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — John Graves was picked Saturday night by the Texas Institute of Letters as winner of the institute's oldest award, the Carr P. Collins award of $1,000 for the best non-fiction book, "Hard Scrabble."

Graves, a native of Fort Worth who lives in Glen Rose, has said his book is about "a one-way love affair with a patch of land," his 400-acre ranch in Somervell County.

Eight awards totaling $3,900 were presented at the annual awards dinner.

The Jesse H. Jones Award of $1,000 for the best work of fiction was won by C.W. Smith, a native of Corpus Christi, for "Thin Men of Haddim."

Edgar B. Kincaid Jr., Austin, won the Friends of the Dallas Public Library Award of $500 for the book making the most significant contribution in the field of general knowledge, "The Bird Life of Texas."

The Stanley Walker Award of $500 for the best work of journalism was won by Griffin Smith Jr., Austin, for "Forgotten Places" published in the Texas Monthly.

The Short Story Award went to J.Y. Bryan of Riverside, Calif., for "Frontier Virgil," published in the Southwest Review.

The Voertman's Poetry Award went to Michael Ryan of Dallas and the Steck-Vaught Award for the best book for children went to Joan Lowry Nixon of Midland.

The Texas Collectors' Institute Award for the best book design was won by David Holman, Austin, for "Hard Times in Texas," a one-man production.

New members of the institute installed at the dinner included: William Broyles, Austin, editor of Texas Monthly; Lolah Burford, Fort Worth novelist; Preston Jones, Dallas playwright; Michael Mewshaw, Austin novelist; Charles Oliver, Dallas short story writer and Robert Sherrill, Washington journalist.

Huntsville Civic Center Dedicated

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Huntsville residents have dedicated a $15 million civic center to Dr. Werner von Braun.

Von Braun headed space research at Redstone Arsenal here from 1950 until 1970, when he left to become president of Fairchild Industries, Fairchild, Pa. The arsenal later became the Marshall Space Flight Center.

The dedication Friday was almost a birthday present for von Braun, who will be 63 on March 23.
