FRIDAY

Kid overboard!

Kaysi Knight, 4 1/2, doesn't seem to mind being thrown by her water horse while playing in M.K. Brown Municipal Swimming Pool as she joins other youngsters Wednesday in cooling off from this week's hot spell. Hot weather is expected to simmer Pampa area residents through the weekend, with temperatures remaining in the mid to upper 90s.

McLean Round-Up to feature Old Route 66 Poker Run, rodeo, dances and other events

McLEAN - Aficionados of cars and cards will be equally interested in Saturday's Old Route 66 Poker Run, a centerpiece for the 80th annual McLean Round-Up.

Sponsored by the McLean Roadrunner Car Club, the event will include 200 participants driving a 46-mile relay and picking up sealed envelopes containing playing cards at five stops along the way.

At the conclusion of the rally, which runs on and around historic Route 66, the best seven hands of cards will receive trophies.

A briefing for the rally will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the Bank of Commerce parking lot. Then, at 9 a.m., the cars will begin their trek. A $5 entry fee will be charged per vehicle entered.

Along with the car event, Saturday will include plenty of activities for those less motivated by all things motorized. A craft fair will be held in the Jasper Roofing building from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., with all of the crafts being made by McLean artists.

Other events will include a flapper contest, celebrating the fads and fashions of days when Route 66 was the nation's number one thoroughfare. Also on tap are the annual TCRA rodeo, a parade, food booths and turtle races.

Events tonight include:
8 p.m. - Rodeo at arena.
9 p.m. - Rodeo dance
Saturday events:
10 a.m. (or conclusion of rally) - Classic Car Roundup at City Park.

10:30 a.m. - Flapper Contest at high school.

1 p.m. - Old Timers Reunion at museum.

2 p.m. - Grand Rodeo Parade with Mrs. Flapper winner to serve as grand marshal.

8 p.m. - Rodeo

9 p.m. - Rodeo dance

Sunday:

1 p.m. - Carl Henley Memorial Roping, rodeo arena.

Waiting for the carnival

Recently-elected Pampa High School Band Council members survey the Pampa Mall parking lot where the band's annual carnival will be set up next week. Pride of Texas Shows are to arrive here this weekend and set up for the carnival scheduled for June 11-16. Profits from the annual event go to the Band Booster Club and help finance the band's trips each year. Clements signs school bill; legislators adjourn session

From Staff and Wire Reports

AUSTIN - Texans will foot the bill for school finance reform through higher state taxes and fees - including a quarter-cent sales tax increase and boosts in the levies for mixed drinks and tobacco.

But state leaders said the $528 million school finance reform bill - passed in response to a unanimous Texas Supreme Court order for change - will be worth the cost.

"We could have increased education funding in Texas without raising taxes. But I have relented in the face of a greater cause," said Gov. Bill Clements, a Republican whose previous opposition to new state taxes caused a three-month stalemate with the Democrat-controlled Legislature.

"Because of these reforms, greater student performance will now be the overriding principle that guides our entire education system," Clements said Thursday, after the Legislature adjourned its record sixth special session.

State Rep. Dick Waterfield, R-Canadian, expressed continued disappointment in the tax increase, however, insisting lawmakers had found enough fat to trim in the state budget to have made a tax increase unnecessary.

"The education bill is a better bill than any we had voted on in the previous special sessions," Waterfield said, "and it will provide more money to the rural and poor schools in this area."

"My biggest disappointment is that the Legislature turned against the hard-working taxpayers to finance these reforms."

Waterfield insisted $48 million in budget cuts could have been made in the state budget to fund the finance bill, but "the majority decided to turn to taxes, instead."

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, defended the tax increase, saying, "We've got to have a strong education system for this state to survive and really move forward into the next century."

Under the state Supreme Court's order to make more money available to poor school districts, Lewis has said insufficient state funding could result in money being shifted from wealthier school districts and force higher property taxes.

Clements signed the bill outlining education reforms, along with tax and fee increases to pay for it, on Thursday. He has said he agreed to the sales tax increase, after months of adamant opposition, to fend off a court-written funding plan for schools.

The $13.5 billion-a-year school finance system relies on state aid, local property taxes and some federal money.

Lawmakers have met in four special sessions since Feb. 27 on school finance; the last session began Monday. There were two special sessions last year on workers' compensation reform.

The tax increase, along with budget cuts and fund transfers, will pay for overhauling the school finance system and provide about $100 million for financially strapped social service programs.

Without new money, officials in the departments of Health and Human Services warned cutbacks could occur in programs for the needy and elderly. Officials in the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation said they needed extra money to meet mandates of a federal judge for the MHMR system.

Besides raising the sales tax to 6 1/4 cents on the dollar, the revenue bills would increase the:

- Mixed drink gross receipts tax by 2 percent.
- Cigarette tax by 15 cents per pack.
- Fee for a duplicate driver's license from $5 to $10.
- Chewing tobacco, snuff and smoking tobacco tax rate from 28.125 percent to 35.213 percent of the factory list price.
- Fee to use public highways to move overweight or oversized items by 50 percent.

Among reforms in the education package are gubernatorial appointment of the state education commissioner, currently named by the State Board of Education; increased testing for students; and exemptions from certain state rules for exemplary schools.

Some state lawmakers say the reform plan does not go far enough to meet the Supreme Court's order to develop a constitutional finance system and predicted it would not stand up to court scrutiny.

"I'm sure it will be challenged, and I'm very sure that it's going to be overturned ... It does not address equity sufficiently," said Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi, chairman of the House Mexican American Legislative Caucus.

But Speaker Lewis has predicted the reforms would meet court muster.

"You're going to see those poor school districts that never had the opportunity to have adequate classrooms, or adequate supplies or adequate instruction tools, you're going to see them for the first time have this," he said.

County cancels emergency meeting to discuss matters in sheriff's office

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

An emergency meeting of the Gray County Commissioners' Court, tentatively set for this afternoon, has been canceled, according to County Judge Carl Kennedy.

Preliminary plans for the meeting were laid on Thursday to discuss "personnel matters in the sheriff's office," Kennedy said Thursday afternoon.

In a brief telephone interview Thursday from Waxahachie, where the judge and commissioners were touring the new Ellis County Jail, Kennedy said the group would have a meeting at 3:30 p.m. today.

However, after circumstances changed course, the meeting was canceled. A spokeswoman in the county judge's office said this morning there would be no meeting today.

Rumors circulated this week that Gray County Sheriff Jim Free would submit his resignation to the Commissioners' Court, following investigations into his office by the Texas Rangers.

However, on Thursday morning, Free denied the rumors were true, saying he had no intentions of resigning the position.

The Texas Rangers were called at the request of District Attorney Harold Comer in mid-May to investigate allegations in the sheriff's office. The two Rangers - Alvin Schmidt of Amarillo and Jim Mull of Plainview - are continuing their investigation.

The Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Officer Standards and Education (TCLEOSE) has also reopened its investigation. Initially, TCLEOSE was looking into the alleged forgery of a high school diploma submitted for Chief Jailer Othel Hicks.

Jack Irwin, a TCLEOSE investigator, said this morning in a telephone interview from Austin that he has reopened his investigation after "other information" developed in the case. He had turned over his information from the investigation to TCLEOSE legal counsel on May 15.

Irwin said today that he has retrieved the information turned over to legal counsel.

"I thought it was over, but then there is something else that has developed," he said, adding that he could not reveal the contents of the new information.

Irwin said he is waiting on other reports from the Texas Rangers to aid him in the TCLEOSE investigation.

TCLEOSE has power to suspend or revoke jailer and peace officer licenses. Any other action taken would have to be recommended to the district attorney for prosecution, Irwin said.

Hicks, along with Chief Deputy Ken Kieth and Deputy Secretary Sue Matthew, were suspended with pay by Free on April 27. They were suspended amidst allegations that they were involved in "tampering with a governmental record," - the high school diploma - and remain on suspension.

Also suspended with pay on April 27 was Sgt. Dave Keiser, who

Chamber to hold luncheon Tuesday

Mike S. Edelmann, director of economic development for Southwestern Bell Telephone in Dallas, will speak at the Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce membership luncheon Tuesday in the M.K. Brown Room of the Pampa Community Building.

The meeting is sponsored by Hoechst Celanese.

With a number of businesses becoming involved in public education, Edelmann will speak about the efforts of the Texas Business and Education Coalition, an initiative of the Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Edelmann has been instrumental in the formation of the coalition as well as the formation of the Texas Department of Commerce and the Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Using the logo "A Partnership for Educational Excellence," the Texas Business and Education Coalition states that its mission is "to dramatically increase learning in the Texas public education system." By bringing together existing community, education and business based interests, the coalition aims at preparing the future workforce to compete in a global society.

Since 1986, Edelmann has worked on several regional and statewide economic development projects. During this time he has developed and is charged with implementing Southwestern Bell Telephone's statewide economic development program. He has also worked on the Governor's Business Development and Jobs Creation Task Force and the Texas Strategic Economic Policy Commission in which he helped develop the state's strategic economic plan.

He remains active in several projects to stimulate business and work force development in the state.

Chairman of Interlink, a regional planning effort in the greater Dallas/Fort Worth area for vocational and technical training, Edelmann is on the board of directors of the Texas Industrial Development Council, the Texas Economic Development Council, the Association for Higher Education of North Texas, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research Advisory Council, the Advisory Council of the Northwest Texas Small Business Development Center and the Advisory Council of the Greater Dallas Economic Council.

He is also a member of the Arlington School District's Partners in Educational Excellence. He graduated in 1969 from the University of Little Rock, where he received a bachelor's degree with a major in political science and a minor in economics. He and his wife, Dana, have three children and live in Arlington.

The luncheon will be catered by Dyer's for $5.50 per person and begins at 11:45 a.m. To make reservations, contact the Chamber at 669-3241.

Senate moves to tighten cable TV regulations

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate is moving toward reimposing price restraints on cable television six years after it decided to lift controls on a younger, less powerful cable TV industry.

Faced with rising constituent complaints about prices and service, the Senate Commerce, Science and Transportation Committee on Thursday approved a bill that would allow local governments to control some cable TV prices.

"This is a major victory for the American public," Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., said following the 18-1 vote. "Millions of subscribers are fed up with high prices and 'who cares' service. The message is that help is on the way."

"We oppose the bill, but we recognize, too, that it is a significant improvement over the original staff draft," said John Wolfe, spokesman for the National Cable Television Association.

The association was concerned over last-minute changes on how cable must deal with competitive distributors such as satellites and "wireless cable" trying to acquire cable programming.

James Mooney, president of the association, said his group also was concerned about provisions ordering the Federal Communications Commission to consider limits on the number of cable systems one company may own and the number of channels that may be occupied by a programmer in which the cable operator has an interest.

Mooney said that while his group would work to effect a "reasonable bill" in Congress, "We cannot accept legislation that hampers the ability of our industry to continue to grow, and to serve our subscribers."

Thursday's vote marked the first time lawmakers have moved to restore some of the regulation of the cable industry that Congress lifted in the 1984 Cable Act.

The 1984 law ended local rate regulation effective in 1987, and since then cable prices have risen dramati-

Outgoing Rotary Club President Bob Williams recounts the organization's achievements of the last year during an installation banquet for new officers Thursday night at Pampa Country Club.

Pampa Rotary Club members install officers at Thursday night banquet

By BEAR MILLS
 Staff Writer

Members of the local Rotary Club were commended for fulfilling the organization's motto, "Service above self," in a variety of ways during Thursday night's installation banquet for new officers at the Pampa Country Club.

Outgoing Rotary President Bob Williams, who is also president of the Federal Land Bank Association of Pampa, passed the club's gavel to Dr. Harry Griffith, superintendent of public schools, who will lead the group for the next 12 months.

In his remarks to the club, Williams noted, "Our club has pushed Rotary Foundation and we now have 30 percent of the members of our club who are Paul Harris Fellows."

Rotary Foundation is the world's largest charitable trust and funds trips by 1,200 groups of non-Rotarians each year to foreign countries to build an environment of world understanding. In addition, the foundation has funded worldwide immunization of over 250 million children for polio, Williams said.

Paul Harris Fellows are Rotarians who have contributed - or someone else contributed on their behalf - $1,000 or more to the work of the foundation.

Williams said the club has 10 sustaining members, which means they are working toward the $1,000 contribution.

"Our club has excelled in attendance and our numbers have grown," Williams said. "That is especially interesting in this day and time, when most civic clubs have dwindled. We have actually increased our numbers 15 percent this year."

He also noted that Rotarians are well known in the city for their involvement with charitable causes.

Griffith stated, "The thing that Rotary brings to the community is it gathers businessmen and businesswomen from all parts of the community. They devote their energies and time to projects that do not benefit them personally."

"They are designed to benefit individuals in our community who are having economic difficulties, to promote better understanding of international relations by bringing foreign exchange students into Pampa and the continuation of other clubs around the world where businessmen are in very exciting times in world history."

Griffith and Williams said that in addition to Rotary having the distinction of being the largest and the oldest civic club in the world, it is also the first such group to form chapters in communist countries.

Rotary recently announced new clubs in Poland, the U.S.S.R. and other "formerly captive nations," Griffith said.

"Imagine an organization dedicated to free enterprise having chapters in communist countries," Williams noted.

Town grieves over valedictorian's death

PROSPER, Texas (AP) - Less than two weeks after Mimi Bayne gave the valedictory speech at Prosper High School, she was dead after suffering cardiac arrest, leaving relatives, classmates and friends devastated.

Ms. Bayne, 18, died Thursday at Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas where she had been treated since she suffered cardiac arrest June 1, a week after her graduation. She had been in a coma since she was stricken and was declared brain dead Thursday.

"It's just devastating," said Joyce Hall, Mimi's high school counselor. "She had a bright, bright future ahead. Not just because she was young, but because she had laid the groundwork for her future and was willing to put in the energy to make it come true."

Word of her death spread rapidly across the North Texas town of 1,000 about 40 miles north of Dallas.

Postmaster Jim Spradley recalled her valedictory speech and how it moved her classmates.

"She talked about the relationship between parents and kids," Spradley said, staring out the front window of the post office. "Her chin started quivering and she stopped to compose herself. It seemed like 10 minutes."

"Then she went on and gave a beautiful speech. She touched a lot of hearts," he said.

was reinstated on May 5 after an internal investigation by Sgt. Terry Cox cleared Keiser of any wrongdoing.

At the time of the suspension, Free said Keiser's suspension was for alleged "official misconduct by a peace officer," after allegations surfaced that Keiser had acted inappropriately with a female inmate in the Gray County Jail.

Comer said earlier the Rangers are investigating both the alleged forged high school diploma and the allegations against Keiser, as well as other allegations related to the sheriff's office.

State leaders say crises looming in education, social services

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers predicted that the next regular legislative session will begin like the special session ended: in a fight over money for education and social services.

In addition, the next Legislature, new governor and new lieutenant governor may have to deal with a jail lawsuit that could cost $500 million.

After six special sessions, the 71st Legislature adjourned Thursday having passed a quarter-cent sales tax increase and increases in other fees to fund a $528 million public school finance bill and a $100 million bailout of social service agencies.

The public school bill was in response to a Texas Supreme Court ruling that ordered the state to make more money available for poor school districts. But plaintiffs in the lawsuit have already said the bill signed into law by Gov. Bill Clements doesn't go far enough and they will challenge it in court.

The $100 million appropriation to the Departments of Human Services, Health and Mental Health and Mental Retardation was needed to prevent cuts in critical programs for the needy and to meet federal court orders in the mental health system.

But senate health leaders have said this was just a Band-aid to keep the programs going into next year and that another emergency appropriation will be needed.

And a state district court judge has ordered the state to reimburse 12 counties for holding prisoners awaiting transfer to state prison. The case will be appealed, but state officials said if they lose it could cost $500 million.

"This is our next phase of crisis management," state Rep. Mark Stiles, D-Beaumont, said. "You are going to have to vote for a tax bill to pay for that price," he told House members.

The 12 counties that filed the lawsuit are Nueces, Bexar, Collin, Dallas, El Paso, Galveston, Hidalgo, Hunt, Lubbock, Tarrant, Travis and Victoria.

When lawmakers tackle these problems, there will be two new players in the top two jobs, since Clements and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby have not sought re-election.

Asked about having to work with new partners, House Speaker Gib Lewis, said, "I hope it doesn't take very long to House train them."

Having battled Clements on tax bills for years, Lewis offered advice to gubernatorial candidates Ann Richards, a Democrat, and Clayton Williams, a Republican.

"I would encourage the candidates to keep their options open," on the subject of taxes. Both candidates have promised not to raise taxes, a pledge Clements made when he won election in 1986. One year later he signed a record $5.7 billion tax bill.

Lewis said more money will be needed for social services, education and prisons. He said lawmakers will look at the current tax structure that he said was unfair.

"Everyone feels that there's too much spending in government," he said, but added that budget cuts would mean "our human services go bad, people lose their lives because we don't put in additional funding or people starve in the street because they don't have the adequate nutrition."

Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, who sponsored the education bill, said candidates who promise not to raise taxes "better learn how to count or eat crow."

Bush to consult with Kohl on summit

By RITA BEAMISH
Associated Press Writer

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — President Bush, shifting from two days of politicking back to international diplomacy, is consulting with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl on U.S.-Soviet differences over a reunited Germany.

Bush returns from a Midwestern trip to host Kohl tonight for dinner at the White House.

He planned to brief Kohl on last week's superpower summit, during which Bush and Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev disagreed on which alliance a reunified Germany will join.

Bush had consulted closely with Kohl by telephone before and during the summit talks, which ended without agreement on whether Germany will belong to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization or the Soviet-allied Warsaw Pact.

The president acknowledged the current impasse on Germany, but still declared Thursday he believes "last week's summit can alter history."

"Our many hours of talks led to a better understanding and a new candor in our relationship," he said. He also noted the signing of a chemical weapons pact and a statement of intention to reduce strategic weapons.

Before returning to Washington, Bush today planned to wrap up a four-state Midwestern political swing with appearances to help raise money for Republican Gov. Terry Branstad in Iowa and Senate candidate Hal Daub in Nebraska.

He also was talking to the National Pork Producers' Council.

The president on Thursday wooed Midwestern farm interests by touting the five-year grain export agreement he reached with Gorbachev, and looking ahead to a trade agreement he wants to take effect if the Soviets enact laws guaranteeing free emigration.

"This agreement, which depends on the passage of key emigration laws within the Soviet Union, certainly is in the best interest of the United States," Bush said in Chicago, where he helped boost the campaign coffers of Republican gubernatorial contender Jim Edgar at a $1 million fund-raising dinner.

"It will mean an improved trade relationship between our two countries, expanded markets for American goods and services — and expanded markets for Illinois workers and farmers."

Earlier Thursday, stumping in Wisconsin for Gov. Tommy Thompson's re-election bid, Bush praised his Soviet counterpart as a "remarkable man" with "a forthright spirit." However, he said, problems between the two nations can't be solved in one summit meeting.

Demonstrators in Chicago staged protests criticizing the president for not being tougher on Gorbachev on the issue of Lithuania.

Before the summit, administration officials, when discussing prospects for new trading relations with the Soviets, frequently objected to the Soviet economic blockade of the breakaway Baltic republic.

Columbia launch delayed to August; Atlantis shuttle flight planned in July

By MARCIA DUNN
AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A fuel leak will keep the shuttle Columbia and its $150 million Astro observatory grounded at least until August, says NASA.

The next shuttle mission will be that of Atlantis, to carry a secret military payload into orbit in mid-July.

"It is our intent to make sure that these vehicles are ready and safe to fly," said shuttle director Robert L. Crippen on Thursday.

"When we have a problem such as this, and this is the nature of the machines that we're dealing with, we just have to fall back and regroup and put them in a condition that is safe to go fly."

Columbia's upcoming flights will be pushed back "in an orderly fashion," Crippen said.

A scientific research mission scheduled for August is now set for December, pushing Columbia's December mission with a microgravity laboratory into next year.

Columbia will be moved from the launch pad back to the hangar next week so the hydrogen leak can be repaired, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Wednesday.

The leak was detected as more than a half-million gallons of super-cold liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen were being pumped into the shuttle for last week's launch attempt.

The Astro mission, the first in five years dedicated entirely to scientific research, already was two weeks late because of cooling system repairs. The mission originally was scheduled for 1986, but was delayed by the Challenger explosion.

Discovery's flight in April with the Hubble Space Telescope was two weeks late because of a malfunctioning power unit that had to be replaced at the launch pad.

Crippen said mechanical problems are to be expected now and then.

"Flying the space shuttle is not like operating an airline and it never will be," he said.

"It is a very complex vehicle ... that is going to have problems show up periodically and yet it does offer us a way to get large payloads into space on a fairly frequent basis."

A test Wednesday confirmed NASA's suspicion the leak is in or near a tight cavity between two metal plates that connect the orbiter and external tank. The orbiter and tank will have to be disconnected, a job that can be performed only at the hangar.

Crippen said pipes and valves probably will have to be replaced in that area and another external tank used.

He declined to estimate how much the repairs will cost and how much the delay already has cost.

"We don't know specifically what we've got to go to do to fix the thing," he said. "The problem we're dealing with is unique. We've never seen it before ..."

"Until we pull it apart and do some detailed trouble-shooting on it we'll be unable to say specifically what the problem is," he said. "However, I feel very comfortable proceeding with the next launch."

Crippen said the delay poses no risk to the Astro observatory, which consists of three ultraviolet telescopes and one X-ray telescope capable of examining some of the hottest objects in the universe.

"It just has to sit on the ground for longer than we had desired," he said.

Drive-by shootings plague Dallas area

DALLAS (AP) — Area law enforcement officers say a new menace has blossomed this spring in the Dallas-Fort Worth area — drive-by shootings.

There have been 16 people injured and 2 killed by gunshots from passing vehicles in the past 3 weeks.

In the latest such shooting, an 18-year-old Irving man was wounded in the chest on Wednesday.

Police say many of the shootings have been gang-related, and they don't see many ways to avert them.

"It's sort of like stopping the tide in the ocean," said Arlington police Capt. Dennis Rhoten. "You're not going to stop drive-by shootings any more than you're going to stop robberies."

The man shot Wednesday was identified by police as Eric Scott Parchman, 18. He was wounded as he stood in the park with some friends.

Police said they did not believe the shooting of Parchman was gang-related.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

China should not receive MFN status

The demonstrators' blood staining Tiananmen Square is a year old. But President Bush extended, pending congressional approval, most favored nation trading status to the Beijing regime that murdered the demonstrators. "It is not a favor we are doing," he said. But that's what granting most-favored nation status means.

Bush tried to paint over his troubling decision. He said there were "modest" signs that "that appear intended to show responsiveness to our concern." Martial law was lifted in Tibet; some student prisoners were released; emigration was allowed "at respectable levels."

But these are minor acts. In contrast, the Beijing regime itself admits it still holds "431 lawbreakers involved in the turmoil and rebellion," though no names have been released, and Amnesty International says that thousands may still be detained. Tibet remains an enslaved nation. Last month, the regime arrested a protester in Tiananmen Square who had tried to lay a wreath bearing an inscription to "heroes who died for democracy." And according to Chengsheng Li, who has served as a member of the Chinese Academy of Sciences, in the past year the Chinese military budget has grown by 50 percent.

The Beijing regime had also threatened to use its submarines to torpedo the Goddess of Democracy radio ship. The U.S. State Department, probably feeling more threatened by it than Beijing, opposed the ship and, surprisingly, Taiwan refused to let radio equipment be placed aboard it. These and other problems forced the ship's organizers to cancel the project.

Bush cautioned that failure to grant MFN status would jeopardize the $6 billion a year China imports from the U.S.: "Lose this market and we lose American jobs." But MFN status will probably include U.S. taxpayer subsidized loans to Beijing. How many jobs would be gained if that money were returned to our own people? And, in any case, we could keep low trade barriers with China without locking us into the full deck of measures, such as taxpayer subsidized loans, included in MFN.

The terror visited on dissenters has severely crippled the Chinese economy. Beijing needs the $12 billion it earns in exports and won't jeopardize that. Bush should also realize that the current Communist regime is aging and will soon be gone. Now is the time to send a message to the next generation of leaders that the United States supports civil rights.

For these reasons, the U.S. Congress should reject Bush's request, and revoke China's most favored nation status. Our country should favor, as Chinese freedom poet Bei Dao describes it:

... that wind of freedom
Through those deep, deep bullet wounds
Bleeds the dawn of red blood.

A note about 'Operation Rescue'

WASHINGTON - Free speech is one thing. Trespass is something else entirely. The Supreme Court gave fresh emphasis to that ancient doctrine the other day when it refused to hear a case involving the anti-abortion organization known as Operation Rescue.

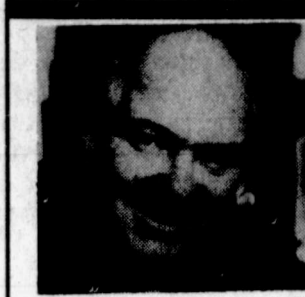

The court's action came in a case from New York. At almost the same time, the court acted in another Operation Rescue case from Atlanta. The New York case was decided rightly; the Atlanta case was decided wrongly. The distinctions are important.

These were the circumstances in New York. In May of 1988, Operation Rescue mounted a series of demonstrations against abortion clinics in Queens, Dobbs Ferry, Long Island, and most notably at an abortion center on East 85th Street in Manhattan.

The demonstrations were not peaceful. They were chaotically violent. Dr. Thomas J. Mullin, director of the Eastern Women's Center, vividly described the harassment of patients as they were prevented from entering the clinic. Thrusting face to face, a demonstrator would shriek, "Abortion is murder!" "Why are you going to kill your baby?"

Scores of demonstrators physically blocked the doors. Nurse Diane Straus was savagely abused as the anti-abortionist shouted at her: "Look at her, see how ugly she is! She has the face of the Devil. See Satan in her eyes! Look at her wickedness and see how evil she is." These taunts "were screamed at me over and over for several hours throughout the day."

After the first of these demonstrations, District Judge Robert J. Ward entered an injunction against Randall Terry, director of Operation Rescue, and his co-leaders.

Ward's order did not throttle legitimate speech. He allowed "sidewalk counseling, consisting of a reasonably quiet conversation of a non-threatening nature by not more than two people." He sought neutrally to balance "the rights of Operation Rescue to express its views, of women to enter the clinics unhindered by an invasion of their rights and of the clinics to provide necessary medical services."

Terry and others ignored the injunction, willfully continued their harassment and treated the court's order with disdain. Judge Ward imposed a fine of $50,000 for civil contempt, plus $19,000 in damages to the city of New York. Terry appealed to the 2nd U.S. Circuit. There Senior Judge Richard Cardamone laid down the law:

"By blocking access the demonstrators became trespassers without right, constitutional or otherwise, to be there. Their rights of free speech ended where those women's rights began. There is no constitutional privilege to assault or harass an individual or to invade another's personal space ... Blocking access to public and private buildings has never been upheld as a proper method of communication in an orderly society."

By declining to review Judge Cardamone's decision, the Supreme Court tacitly affirmed the sound doctrine the circuit court had expounded. Splendid!

But the circumstances were significantly different in Atlanta. There the city sought and obtained an injunction against certain demonstrators before they had even begun to demonstrate. Four of them, Gina Robertson, Bill Haynes, Steve Britt and Pamela Sakulow, sought to engage in silent prayer - non-obstructive, non-intrusive - on a sidewalk outside an abortion clinic.

A roughcut local judge, Issac Jenrette of the Superior Court of Fulton County, cut them off at the knees. He enjoined Operation Rescue and anyone associated with it from picketing, protesting or demonstrating within 50 feet of an abortion facility. He established "bubble zones" to prohibit any person from oral counseling within 5 feet of any second person without express oral content. He limited demonstrators to 20 persons per site. "No sign shall induce a passerby to honk or blow their horn."

This was a prior restraint upon speech, which the Constitution forbids. The anti-abortionist went to the Supreme Court seeking a stay of Jenrette's injunction, but on May 14 the court voted 5-4 to keep the injunction in effect. Justice John Paul Stevens explained for the majority that Operation Rescue's "persistent and repeated" pattern of unlawful conduct justified the injunction.

Well, this observer dissents. The punishment that was imposed in New York was richly deserved, but something is grossly wrong when the courts tell freeborn Americans that they may not speak before they have spoken.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, June 8, the 159th day of 1990. There are 206 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 8, A.D. 632, the prophet Mohammed died. Mohammed's teachings, recorded in the Koran, forged a new religion, Islam.

On this date:

In 1845, Andrew Jackson, the seventh president of the United States, died in Nashville, Tenn.

In 1861, Tennessee seceded from the Union.

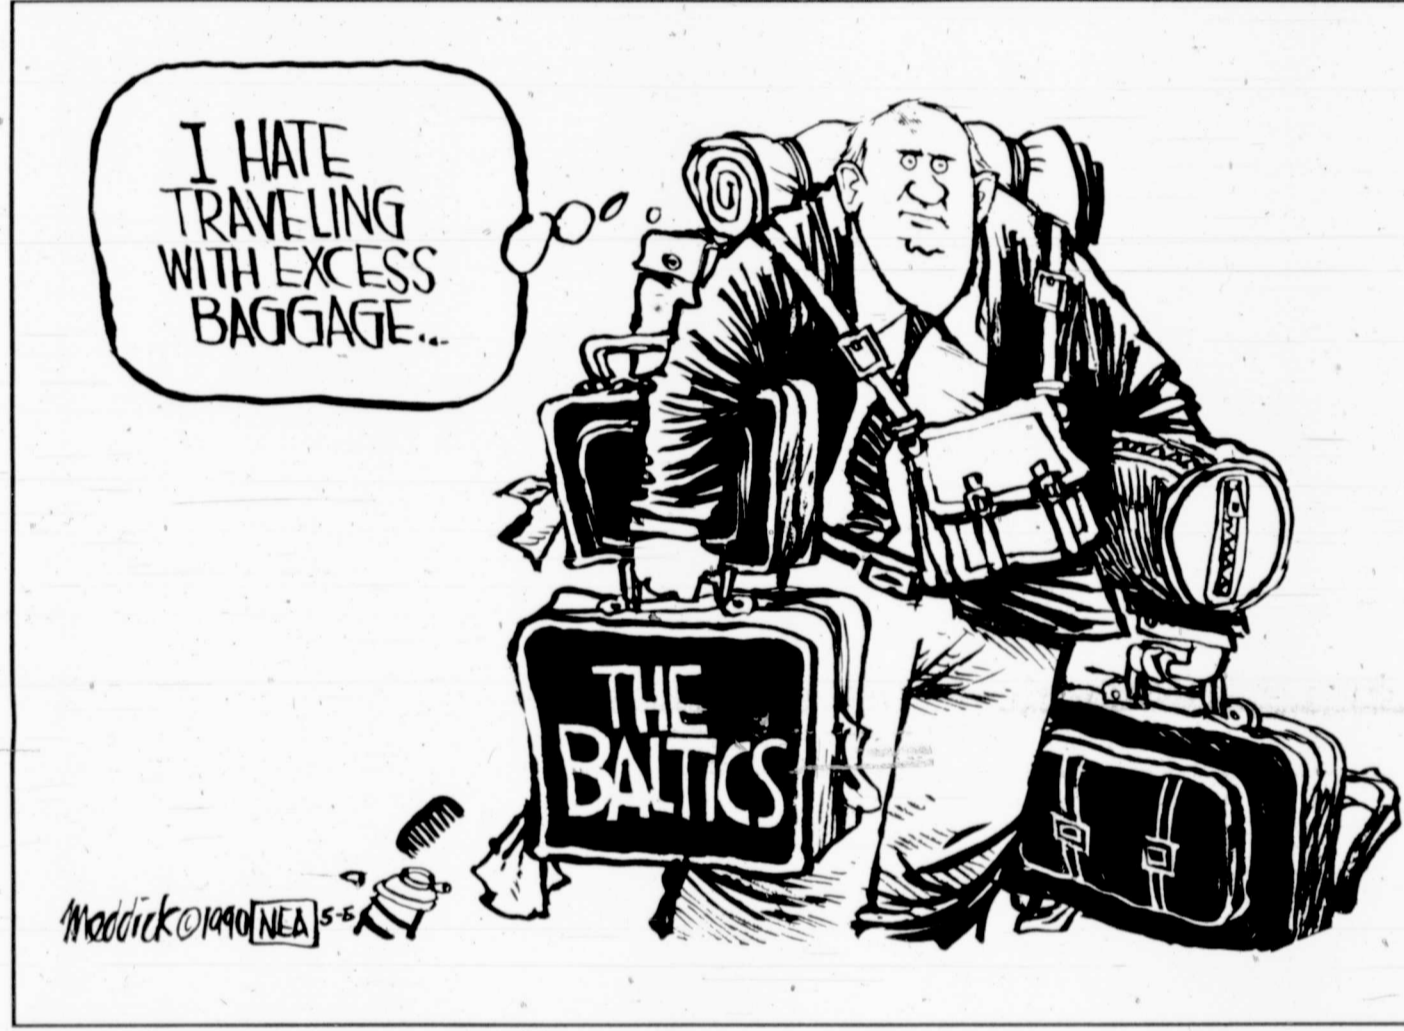

In 1869, Chicago inventor Ives W. McGaffey received a patent for a vacuum cleaner.

In 1876, author George Sand died in Nohant, France.

In 1905, President Theodore Roosevelt offered to act as a mediator in the Russo-Japanese War.

In 1915, Secretary of State William Jennings Bryan resigned in a disagreement over U.S. handling of the sinking of the Lusitania.

In 1953, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that restaurants in the District of Columbia could not refuse to serve blacks.

NASA trying to take up slack

American public education, despite spotty improvement, is flunking its finals.

Exclude spelling and grammar and only 20 percent of today's high school graduates can write a proper letter applying for employment.

Include spelling and grammar and only 5 percent can!

Worldwide, in mathematics, American students are not even in the top 10.

Amar Bose of MIT is frankly anxious. He says that unless we remedy our education system promptly, within 40 years most United States of Americans will be working as cheap labor for foreign-owned corporations.

The situation would be hopeless already were it not for what we inherit from NASA.

American industry, preoccupied with bottom-line quarterly profit, has been neglecting research. The Japanese, with their long-range planning, have out-distanced us in several technologies.

The United States remains in front in most applied sciences only because we are reaping what NASA sows.

Our Air Force, for NASA's shuttles, has developed a computer that's 500 times faster than our present best personal computer - yet no larger than a deck of cards.

Not one or 10 or 100 - but tens of thousands of spin-off products and processes have already enriched our technology bank:

- A de-icer for aircraft with one-tenth the weight and a thousand times the power.
- Anti-reflection material to make safer the use of cathode rays, to eliminate computer glare.
- Sunglasses that really do what sunglasses are supposed to do.
- Improved wind generators that pay their way.
- Better monitoring systems for hospital intensive-care patients (modeled after astronaut-monitoring prototypes).

- Invisible ceramic braces for teeth.
- Smaller batteries with more power and a 10-year shelf life.
- Polyimide substances that can overcoat art treasures to protect them against the most hostile environments.
- A dry film lubricant with 1,000 friction-reducing applications.

And we ain't seen nothing yet!

Coming soon in NASA labs are thrilling adventures in robotics, in artificial intelligence, in teleoperation and telepresence. (Beam, me up, Scotty!)

We're perfecting hypersonic flight and low-cost orbital flight.

Wireless power transmission is on the way.

If American industry is shifting the responsibility for research and development to government, it is turning its back on a competitive philosophy that once made us - United States - the powerhouse of the planet.

NASA is trying to take up the slack. And there is nothing in the President's 1991 budget that promises taxpayers more generous dividends.

Why Iran-Contra inquiry drags on

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Don't be deceived by all the smiles and hand-holding between the White House and Congress these days as the budget negotiations inch forward. Politics ain't bean-bag, as Mr. Dooley long ago pointed out, and the impaling of a new grand jury to continue poking around in the debris of the Iran-Contra controversy means just one thing: The effort to destroy Ronald Reagan's reputation and/or impeach George Bush has just taken a new lease on life.

Like any large, complex sequence of events, the Iran-Contra affair will go on generating unanswered, and probably unanswerable, questions forever.

Never mind that it has already been investigated more thoroughly than any event since Watergate. The Tower Commission was only the first of many probes. Then came the congressional extravaganza, choreographed and presided over by Democrats. Finally, it was the turn of special prosecutor Lawrence Walsh, who enlisted the help of scores of lawyers and investigators, spent millions of the taxpayers' dollars and has yet to put a single person behind bars.

Add to these the voluntary investigative efforts of the Washington media, who would gladly trade their admittedly slender hope of heaven for the honor of being instrumental in bringing about the downfall of either Reagan or Bush, and you get some idea of the sort of grinder the Iran-Contra events have already been through.

Yet not a scintilla of evidence has been found indicating that either Reagan or Bush was aware that some proceeds of the arms sales to Iran were being diverted to help the Nicaraguan Contras.

Why, then, has yet another grand jury been assembled and put to work sifting these cold ashes? Since the impetus comes from special prosecutor Walsh, let us first turn our attention to him.

Walsh, a Canadian-born New Yorker who moved to Oklahoma when he was nearly 70, got his start under New York Governor Thomas Dewey, whom he served as counsel. He became a federal judge in 1954, but resigned that position to become deputy attorney general in 1957, during Eisenhower's second administration. Thereafter he practiced law in New York City for 20 years, then (as aforesaid) moved to Oklahoma.

To Walsh, who is now 78, appointment as a special prosecutor in the Iran-Contra affair must have seemed a priceless opportunity to add some belated luster to a moderately distinguished but not particularly earth-shaking career.

His failure, therefore, to obtain a single jail sentence thus far for any indicted defendant, let alone to implicate Reagan or Bush in some demonstrable wrongdoing, must be thoroughly galling.

Walsh thus has nothing to lose by pressing on. One or two more small fry may be indicted, and he may even persuade the grand jury to hand up some sort of "presentment" that tarnishes Reagan and/or Bush without actually accusing either of violating any law.

Even if he gets absolutely nowhere, however, he's no worse off than before.

To the Democrats, too (and, let's not forget, their loyal allies in the media), this state of affairs has no down-side whatever. If Walsh actually gets anywhere, they will benefit automatically. If he doesn't, it's no skin off their nose.

Meanwhile, the very existence of his probe - watered from time to time by helpful leaks - will cast a shadow on the Reagan record, and, by investigating the possibility that Bush may have lied, subtly damage the president's reputation as an honorable man.

But if a down-side is non-existent for the Democrats and the media, the possibilities of up-side are positively dazzling. Richard Nixon's resignation under threat of impeachment, less than two years after being elected president by 49 states to one, taught them that impeachment is a serious possible remedy for defeat.

They would be coldly delighted to try it on George Bush.

Youth forum set Saturday at local Church of Christ

The Top of Texas Youth Forum is set for Saturday at the Mary Ellen and Harvester Streets Church of Christ.

The forum will begin at 2:30 p.m. and end with a free meal at 5:30 p.m. Speakers for the event will be Jimmy Sties and David Yocham.

A special performance by the singing group Heaven Bound from Borger is also planned.

Following the Youth Forum everyone is invited to stay for the Top of Texas Summer Sing, hosting Heaven Bound from Borger, Gospelaire from Cleburne, Heart to Heart from Canyon and the Harvesters 4 of Pampa.

Yocham is described as a young man with a powerful message. When he was 18, he was diagnosed as having bone cancer. Since that time, he has continued to battle the disease with confidence. He is a graduate of the Sunset School of Preaching in Lubbock and serves as the youth minister at the Broadway and Orman Church of Christ in Pueblo, Colo.

He has spoken at many youth rallies, retreats and church camps. He has devoted his life to helping teens cope with their problems. He and his wife, Johnna, and two sons, Joshua and James, will attend the forum. He will speak on the topic "Jesus is Lord of Touch." He will also make a presentation called "Masks."

Jimmy Sites is one of the most sought after youth speakers, according to organizers of the youth forum. He is one of the ministers at the fast-growing Pleasant Ridge Church of Christ in Arlington. Sites has written several books, produced and co-hosted a video series with Jeff Walling and produced two audio cassette albums — Rock Music: What's It Saying? and A New Approach to Youth Ministry. He has also performed on the Grand Ole Opry and has acted in television commercials.

Sites loves to preach the message of Jesus and has done so to audiences ranging from 85 to 8,500 across America. He and his wife, Amanda, have a baby girl, Cristin. He is working toward his Ph.D in preaching. He will speak Saturday on the topic, "Jesus Is Lord."

United Methodists announce new ministerial appointments

MIDLAND — The naming of two district superintendents highlighted the announcement of ministerial appointments during the 81st session of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church on Monday night.

Bobby J. McMillan is the new superintendent of the Abilene District, replacing Kenneth E. Ford who is retiring.

Charles Whittle was named superintendent of the Big Spring District, the position McMillan held the past two years. Whittle was pastor of First UMC in Abilene 16 years before being appointed to his new job.

A total of 65 new appointments were announced at the conference, held through Wednesday at First United Methodist Church in Midland.

The Northwest Texas Annual Conference, presided over by Bishop

Louis W. Schowengerdt, consists of seven districts — Abilene, Amarillo, Big Spring, Lubbock, Pampa, Plainview and Seymour.

Other highlights of the conference included the Bishop's State of the Church address, and the ordination of five deacons and five elders.

Following is a list of action taken in the Pampa District:

- First United Methodist Church at Pampa — Kenneth T. Metzger replaces Max Browning who served four years. Metzger comes from First UMC in Brownfield, where he served three years. Browning is moving to First UMC in Plainview.
- Darrouzett — Steven Barrett replaces David Pomerinke, who served two years. Barrett comes from Kress, where he served two years.
- Groom — Jimmy Davis replaces Ronald Albright, who served one year. Davis comes from Mobeetie-Kelton, where he served three years. Albright is taking a leave of absence.

- Gruver — Lewis C. Holland replaces James S. Terry, who served five years. Holland comes from Abilene Wylie, where he served three years. Terry is moving to First UMC in Lamesa.
- McLean-Heald — Jill Wyley, a local pastor, replaces Mark Wilson, who served three years. Wilson is moving to Idalou.
- Memphis — Thomas M. Ewing replaces Henry L. Salley, who served five years. Ewing comes from Friona, where he served two years. Salley is moving to Friona.
- Shamrock — Neely C. Landrum replaces Steven L. Rogers, who served three years. Landrum comes from Crowell-Truscott, where he served three years. Rogers has been appointed to be Conference teaching evangelist.

Analysts: bankers looking for same rules that led to S&Ls' troubles

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Commercial bankers beset with souring real estate loans are seeking the same type of regulatory leniency that analysts say pushed savings and loan institutions deeper in trouble.

Meeting in private at a Washington hotel, chief executives of some of the nation's largest banks sked the Federal Reserve Board to bend capital standards while they work off losses from sour real estate loans, according to minutes of the session obtained by The Associated Press.

The 12-member Federal Advisory Council, created by law to advise the central bank, suggested at the May 3 meeting that regulators permit banks to deduct real estate loan losses from their earnings over a period of years rather than all at once.

It also asked for relaxed capital rules to permit banks to hold and manage repossessed real estate rather than have to sell it into a depressed market.

"It would be constructive to include a more flexible approach to problem real estate assets," the minutes said.

Analysts denounced the suggestion, pointing out that forbearance by S&L regulators allowed those institutions to disguise their true condition and run up their losses.

"It's deja vu all over again," said

Robert Litan of the Brookings Institution, a Washington think tank. "This was the story of the 1980s and the thrift crisis."

"Every time you do it, you're taking a risk with taxpayers' money..."

Bert Ely, a financial institutions consultant in Alexandria, Va., said forbearance toward agricultural lenders during the farm crisis of the early 1980s worked out but was a gamble.

"Every time you do it, you're taking a risk with the taxpayers' money. The problem is if it isn't done well, we end up in another S&L mess," Ely said.

Spreading out losses over a period of years improves the appearance of a bank's balance sheet, Ely said. "But the thing is the losses are there and the earning power of the bank is impaired as a result. ... Ultimately it's a charade."

Litan said extended loss write-offs allow banks to continue to pay dividends to stockholders. But he added, "Personally I don't think that's prudent. When capital weakens, they should husband every dollar of earnings they have and plow it back into the bank."

The Federal Reserve keeps the minutes of the council's sessions secret for three years, but the AP obtained a copy after the discussion was disclosed in Wednesday editions of USA Today. Federal Reserve spokesmen were reported out of their office Wednesday and unavailable to respond to questions.

In a related development Wednesday, federal regulators assured members of Congress that a government crackdown on bank lending is not the cause of a credit squeeze in some regions.

The officials, appearing before the House Small Business Committee, conceded that some banks are making it more difficult for businesses to get loans, particularly for commercial real estate projects.

But they said that is more a response to a sluggish economy than a reaction to intensified scrutiny from government examiners. They said they have cautioned their examiners not to be overzealous in scrutinizing loans.

In general, however, the regulators stood firm in the face of complaints by lawmakers that creditworthy constituents were having trouble getting loans.

"A slowdown in certain markets seems entirely warranted given current economic conditions," said Federal Reserve Board member John P. LaWare.

However, Rep. Richard E. Neal, D-Mass., whose state has been among the hardest hit by a slump in real estate, said, "Regardless of what's been stated today, a perception has been created that a curtain has been dropped over some of the entrepreneurship that we've witnessed in New England over the last decade."

Texas leads nation in release of chemicals linked to birth defects

WASHINGTON (AP) - Industrial plants released more than 1.3 billion pounds of chemicals suspected or known to be linked to birth defects in 1988, with the largest amount coming from the petrochemical belt of Texas, an environmental group said today.

Citizen Action said it analyzed computerized data from the Environmental Protection Agency to determine what regions of the country had the most hazardous chemical pollution.

Industrial facilities emitted more than 4.6 billion pounds of hazardous chemicals into the air, water and onto the ground in 1988, about half of it into the air, according to EPA figures released earlier this year.

The analysis by Citizen Action, based on the same EPA statistics, showed that nearly one-third of the chemicals released - about 1.3 billion pounds - have either been shown to cause birth defects or are strongly suspected to have such a link. Most of these releases were into the air.

The EPA has cautioned against using the raw data to determine health risks because the statistics do not take into account such factors as dosage and actual exposure. The data, which is required to be submitted by industry, reflects the amount released from a factory over a year's period.

A large percentage of the releases cited by Citizen Action involved industrial solvents such as toluene and xylene, which medical experts say could pose health problems if a person is chronically exposed or exposed to large amounts.

According to Citizen Action, about 17 percent of the total releases linked to birth defects come from 10 companies, many of which have factories in various parts of the country.

The 3M Corp., which has been touted by the Bush administration for having innovative pollution-control measures, ranked as the company with the most releases of chemicals linked to birth defects.

Total releases for the company were put at nearly 53 million pounds, with a 3M plant in Hutchinson, Minn., reporting releases of 16 million pounds, mainly industrial solvents.

General Motors Corp. ranked second, releasing nearly 41 million pounds from plants around the country. It was followed by Avtex Fibers Inc., Front Royal, Va., with 34 million pounds. The Avtex plant closed last year after a lengthy dispute over pollution with Virginia state officials.

Rick Renner, a spokesman for 3M in Minneapolis, said the company has a program under way aimed at cutting toxic emissions by 90 percent by the end of the decade and that new emission control equipment is being installed at the Hutchinson plant. "Our emissions will be down substantially this year," he said.

After Texas, the states in 1988 with the most releases of chemicals shown or suspected to cause birth defects were Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Tennessee, California and New York. With the Avtex plant closed, Virginia no longer would be among these states.

Citizen Action is a Washington-based federation of consumer and environmental groups in 27 states and claim more than 2 million members.

Border truck stop shows slice of life on the road

By TOM SANCHEZ
Laredo Morning Times

LAREDO (AP)— Juice, two eggs any style, ribeye steak 8 oz., $6.95. "You want anything, sweetheart?" is part of the breakfast menu and pitch as you step out of Laredo's border culture into an enclave for Road Bosses.

Truck Stop Restaurant, a haven for truck drivers from throughout the United States, caters to a minimum of 600 truckers per week. It is one of several such establishments on the north side of town.

Rosa Mendiola, one of the waitresses and a native of Michigan, says she likes the tips and the people. "You find them all. Some are nice. Some are not that nice," said Mendiola, 44, "but looking good."

You do find them all, including John Stradling, 28, of Mountain Grove, Mo., who owns JJJ Transportation in the Show Me State and rarely gets out. In fact, his most recent stay in Laredo will be his last for the year, one of two trips to which he is limited by business responsibilities.

As an independent trucker, Stradling's pet peeve is the property broker. To hear Stradling tell it, the property broker is somewhere near the lower levels of humanity, what with his license to move freight and farming out the transportation to truckers — for a piece of the action, of course.

"There's too many people taking a bite out of the truck. The property broker has no place in our business. Freight rates are cheaper today than they were 10 years ago," Stradling said.

Juan Gomez, a 33-year-old civil

Military confines anesthesiologist to base pending investigation

SAN ANTONIO (AP)— A military doctor accused of trying to kill his wife has been confined at Lackland Air Force Base while awaiting a decision on a possible court-martial on four charges, authorities said.

Dr. William Collier, an anesthesiologist at Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center, has been in pre-trial confinement two weeks with no bail provisions, Lackland spokeswoman Dolores Schroeder said Wednesday.

Collier, an Air Force major, is charged under military code with attempted murder of his wife, exhibiting false identification to obtain explosive material, adultery and signing false prescriptions for his wife on several occasions.

Explosives were found in Collier's home, Ms. Schroeder said. A hearing was held Monday to determine if enough evidence exists for a court-martial. A ruling could come next week, and no court-martial date has been set, Ms. Schroeder said.

Collier's wife contacted authorities in March after she became ill from food her husband had prepared that she suspected was poisoned, the base spokeswoman said.

An investigation was delayed because of jurisdiction questions, Ms. Schroeder said, explaining that the alleged incidents occurred off base.

The Air Force Office of Special Investigations began an investigation, then handed the probe over to the San Antonio Police Department. The case subsequently was returned to the Air Force.

If convicted, Collier would face a maximum sentence of 63 years in prison, a dishonorable discharge, total forfeiture of pay and benefits, a reprimand and a fine.

engineer from Colombia who has owned Truck Stop Restaurant for three years, says that you can count on at least 200 truckers per day visiting his place.

Gomez says he owns a construction company with Cesario Porras and that about three years ago he and his associate noticed that the trucking industry in Laredo was on the verge of a massive boom so they "rented a truck stop, decided to go ahead and buy it."

"We've been remodeling since we bought it and changed to a computerized system in the pumps. And we're in the process of building a 36-room hotel," he said.

Amid the bustle of hundreds of truckers entering and leaving, checking in and out, eating, watching TV in a makeshift dayroom, even praying in a small chapel furnished by Truck Stop, Gomez speaks well of his clients.

"Truck drivers are very nice people. A lot of people have the wrong concept of truck drivers. They come to get good service and they pay for that service."

"Life on the road is real tough. So the normal environment for a truck driver is toughness," Gomez said. "But they are real nice, and if you serve them well, you get the feedback 110 percent," he added.

Yet there are those, who although longtime veterans of the trucking circuit from coast to coast, exude a subdued air, relaxed, content, sipping coffee in preparation for their next runs.

So, too, are Roger Carl, 59, and Ronald Bowen, 56, members of a truck drivers' corps who seem to take things in stride, part of the demeanor, perhaps, of trucking conglomerates whose lives are not hampered by the issues more thorny for small independents.

Carl and Bowen haul edible products, mostly orange juice, for Oakley out of Lakewells, Fla., from Mexico back to their state headquarters.

"I've always had the contention you have to have a bit of the gypsy in you" to be a truck driver, says Carl, who hails from Mount Vernon, Va., and has been a truck driver for more than 26 years.

"I think the world of my company. It's quite different (from Stradling's situation). I think we make a very good living. I enjoy what I do. I'm divorced after 36 years of marriage. I put five children through college. I have a condo in Orchid Springs, Fla., in Winter Haven," Carl said.

Bowen, a native of Binghamton, N.Y., has been trucking for 35 years. He began as a driver of dump trucks and went on the road when a neighbor, who owned two automobile carriers, asked him to substitute for a sick employee.

"I've been driving trucks ever since. I like it or I wouldn't be out here. You get to see a lot of country," Bowen said.

"You could say I'm a professional tourist," Carl said.

"I get to see a lot of the most beautiful country in Mexico and Canada and get paid for it. Last night I had a wonderful meal at a Chinese restaurant. I've been coming here for years to Mexico."

"I love Mexico. I love the people. If I didn't have children to visit, I would easily live in Mexico," he said.

Besides serving a good cup of coffee, Rosa Mendiola, 44, also provides interesting conversation at the Laredo Truck Stop Restaurant. The diner serves 600 truckers a week.

FOR HIS FUTURE

A birthday party really thrills the children, and probably the climax comes when they blow out the candles, and make a wish. His wish would probably be for a bright shiny new toy, but you as a parent would wish for him the things that really count, such as good health, happiness, friends and along with these deeper and more serious things should be a prayer for him to have the right interest and relationship to God. You can help these things by taking him to church

Thompson Musician sets concert

Tim Thompson of Denison will appear in concert at 7:30 p.m. today at The Carpenter's House. Thompson is a young, contemporary Christian music artist. He is a 1989 honors graduate of Glad Tidings Christian Academy in Sherman and is now attending college. In 1988, he was listed in Who's Who in Music. The young man is an excellent ministry to youth, according to Pastor Fred Palmer. Thompson is also scheduled to minister in the Sunday morning worship service at The Carpenter's House, 639 S. Barnes. Palmer invites the public to hear the ministry of Thompson.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: But if anyone obeys his word, God's love is truly made complete in him. This is how we know we are in him: Whoever claims to live in him must walk as Jesus did. (1 John 2:5-6 NIV)

When my children were young, a family moved in next door. The two girls in the new family were the exact ages as my two youngest daughters, and by the end of moving day, the four little girls were best friends.

As time passed, the girls became inseparable. Every time my family went anywhere, even if we were gone as temporarily as to the grocery store, my kids would start clamoring to go next door before I could get pulled into the driveway.

Even if they had seen each other that morning, when the girls saw each other, they could not contain their excitement; they squealed and ran to hug each other. They liked to dress alike and act alike and play alike. They mimicked each other's voices inflections and facial and verbal expressions. They truly loved each other.

In the meantime, my oldest daughter had hit early teenage-age when peer pressure is especially acute. Wanting to be acceptable to her peers, she took up permanent residency in a pair of denim overalls.

Not only were the overalls well-worn, they hung off her six inches. The extra length on a short little girl was perfectly logical. She reasoned she would eventually have a growth spurt, and she lived in dread that the new growth would leave her with unacceptably short overalls. The growth spurt never came and she literally walked the bottoms off the legs of her favorite fashion statement. But that was OK because tattered leg edges were acceptable attire in her circle of friends.

Aren't children funny? We adults would never do anything so immature as carrying conformity to such extremes. We'd never go into debt to keep up with fashions. We'd never wear a long-sleeved dress shirt to a business meeting on a hot summer day just because it's the acceptable thing to do.

While giving our daughter a formal wedding, we'd never have a nervous breakdown over all the details a book says are "must do's" We'd never go hungry for months so we could lose all our peanut butter sandwiches before our class reunion. We'd never huff and puff and sweat and hurt because jogging is "in." We wouldn't do any of those things; or would we?

Let's face it! Human beings are notoriously social creatures. We care what our friends and peers, even strangers, think. Friendship and conformity come naturally to us.

So, Christians, where's our innate desire to please when we consider our friend, Jesus? Why isn't his opinion of us of paramount importance to us? Why do we so seldom get excited about time spent with him? Why don't we clamor to embrace him? Why aren't we willing and eager to do anything and everything he wants us to do? Why don't we crave to be just like him - to act like him and think like him, to use his expressions?

Could it be we let "jeer" pressure interfere?

Missionary to speak on Sunday

The Rev. Jerry Gibson, newly appointed Assemblies of God missionary to Mexico, will be guest speaker at Briarwood Full Gospel Church, 1800 W. Harvester at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, according to the Rev. Gene Allen, pastor.

Gibson and his wife, Gwen, have been involved with youth ministry for more than 10 years, and they are primarily targeting young people from their missions outreach.

"There are more kids living in Mexico City than there are people living in Los Angeles County," Gibson said.

This ministry will primarily take the form of an on-campus outreach to the students of the University of Mexico in Mexico City.

"Through conversational English classes and open air meetings we hope to bring the light of Christ to this dark place."

Perhaps to some, a missionary who targets the young before reaching out to adults is not a "real" missionary. After all, the leaders of any country, those people whose influence can be used to further a missionary's work on foreign soil, are generally not teen-agers. Gibson said that this view fails to realize that the youth of today are going to be the leaders of tomorrow.

While this is the Gibsons' first missionary term, the Rev. Gibson has already gained a variety of missions experiences through his involvement in four AIM (Ambassadors in Mission) short-term foreign outreaches to Jamaica, Belize, Canada, and Mexico. It was while he was ministering in Jamaica that he felt God calling him to a lifetime commitment to the youth of America and the world.

"The thrust of my services," Gibson said, "is to present the need of a young world, and that it will take the commitment of this generation to reach it."

The public is invited to hear the Gibsons at Briarwood Church on Sunday.

Religious art part of daily life for couple

By EMILY BATTLE
Tyler Courier-Times-Telegraph

TYLER (AP) — When Harrold and Joy Wright sat down for dinner Easter Sunday, they were accompanied by Jesus and each one of His disciples. Even Judas was there, looking ever so sneaky.

Actually, the Wrights always share their dining room with the biblical figures, thanks to a longtime artist friend, Guillermo Wagner Granizo of San Francisco, Calif., who created the large artwork of 50 handpainted tiles on the Wright's dining room wall.

"I like religious pictures being in the room when I sit down to eat," Mrs. Wright said. "It makes me feel very comfortable to have such pictures around. They're very comfortable to live with, very peaceful."

However, the Wrights, who moved to Tyler from Dallas four years ago, never dine on the antique linen tablecloth which has the nativity, the Last Supper, the Carrying of the Cross and other scenes of Jesus' life intricately woven into the material, white on white. They would like to use it, but they don't want to take chances of soiling it.

The tablecloth was made by a family member more than 100 years ago in Germany. "She made the entire tablecloth herself," Mrs. Wright said. "She grew the flax, spun the thread and wove the cloth."

The Wrights have been told by members of a weaver's guild that it had to have been made by an expert weaver. They also told them it probably took a year and a half just to set up the loom.

Having religious art in the home is a tradition the retired public relations woman plans to keep.

"It (religious art) doesn't seem to be as popular in the homes these days.

"Religious art was a more open part of family life," she said. "If nothing else, people had pictures of Last Supper on their kitchen walls," Mrs. Wright said.

Her home is filled with religious objects she and her husband, a semi-retired businessman, have collected throughout the years.

Many of the walls at the Wright residence are lined with large religious paintings, most of which were done by Granizo, who calls himself a geometric abstractionist. Paintings Granizo has done for the Wrights are Spanish-style, colorful images on glazed ceramic tile, depicting religious scenes such as the Crucifixion, which he titled "The Eyes of Heaven Weep Over Man's Inhumanity to Man," and the birth of Christ, "Madonna of the Rainbows."

In the Crucifixion painting, eyes fall from the clouds and turn to blood as they touch the body of Jesus. The nativity scene shows Mary holding Baby Jesus and includes three symbols of nature — fish for the seas, sheep for the earth and birds for the heavens.

The Wrights have a Spanish mural, done by another artist, which says "Gracious Te Damos, Senior, Por La Nida Y El Sustento," meaning "Thank you, Lord, for life and sustenance."

Granizo's creations make the Wrights' back yard look like an ecumenical prayer garden.

Tile paintings of Moses and the Ten Commandments, Jesus and Mary are embedded in niches of a brick wall that surrounds the home.

The artist included Buddha and Mohammed in the back yard grouping, but Mrs. Wright said she relates better to the paintings of Moses, Jesus and Mary, since she is a Christian.

Mrs. Wright likes the backyard paintings because they "represent the foundation of order in the universe. They speak of morality, charity and other good things," she said. "Can you imagine what the world would be like without religions?"

"I think art pieces in your home — whether they're prints from a dime store or a museum quality — should reflect things that are important to the family.

"Religion has been very important in my life, and religious pictures make me feel very comfortable."

Mrs. Wright said religious art adds a special "sense of warmth" to her home, especially around Christmas, when she displays her collection of 125 nativity scenes throughout the house.

She fondly recalls the Christmas her son's 4-year-old daughter, Emily, spent a long time by herself in a room filled with nativity scenes. Emily's mother was afraid that she would harm the fragile items, Mrs. Wright said.

"Her mother said, 'Emily, what are you doing in there?'"

"Nothing," my granddaughter said.

"Well, you're awfully quiet in there," her mother said.

"My granddaughter replied, 'Well, I'm in here talking to the heaven people.'"

Central Baptist plans vacation Bible school

"Share Hope Through Vacation Bible School" at Central Baptist Church, corner of Starkweather and Browning, next week from 9 a.m. to noon daily.

Ages this year for children at Bible school are four year olds (must have been 4 by Sept. 1, 1989) through sixth grade. The Bible school will be Monday through Friday.

Special days planned for the children include picture day and penny day. Parents' night will be Wednesday.

School officials said many people recall attending VBS as a child and possibly remember Bible verses, Biblical characters, a favorite teacher or even a new friend made during that time.

Central Baptist wants the children attending its vacation Bible school to have some of the same experiences.

Mary Guinn, preschool division director, Sherry Seabourn, children's division director, Rick Parnell, minister of education, Norman Rushing, pastor, and the VBS faculty invite children to attend the first day and learn about the week being planned.

Audio teleconference set for June 15 on genetics of MS

The Panhandle Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society is presenting an audio teleconference on the genetics of multiple sclerosis on Friday, June 15, from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. in room 100 at the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center, 1400 Wallace Blvd. in Amarillo.

Speaker will be Dr. Stephen Hauser, nationally known researcher in the genetic aspects of the disease, who is studying a large sampling of siblings who have MS. He is an associate professor of neurology at Harvard Medical School in Boston and is director of the neu-roimmunology unit at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Participants all over the country will listen to a presentation by Dr. Hauser over a speaker phone and will then be able to listen to questions from every participating MS chapter.

The program is open to physicians, allied health personnel and to people with MS or interested in the genetic aspects of MS.

There is no charge for the program but registration is necessary as seating is limited. A light lunch will be served. To register call Fredricka Gens, 372-4429.

Son goes to the bowwows with cruel remark to Mom

DEAR ABBY: I just moved to Palm Springs. My son called to say that he and his wife and daughter were coming to visit me for Mother's Day. I was thrilled. Later, I realized that no dogs were allowed. (I live in a country club, and my front door is adjacent to the 16th green.) I called him back immediately and told him he wouldn't be able to bring his dog, a huge pit bull.

He said, "Well, Mom, I don't go anywhere without my dog, so I'll see you when you get a house."

I was so unnerved, I couldn't think of anything to say, so I hung up!

I feel bad about hanging up on him, but enlightened to know where my son's priorities are — and I'm behind his dog. I'm truly crushed, for I had anticipated seeing him and his family. Abby, what are your thoughts about this?

HEARTSICK IN CALIFORNIA
DEAR HEARTSICK: Don't feel guilty. Your son showed an appalling lack of sensitivity. He belongs precisely where he put himself — in the doghouse!

DEAR ABBY: I am one of three sisters who are all over 40 now. Our mother, nearing 80, had a big box filled with family pictures that all of us girls enjoyed looking at. She said that one day she would divide them so we would each have some. Many were priceless pictures of older family members — great-great grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins,

Dear Abby

taken in the old country.

When I visited my oldest sister recently, I discovered that she had many of our mother's pictures! The next time I saw our mother, I asked her if she had given any of her family pictures away. She said she had not, so I think it's fairly obvious that my sister stole them.

My mother doesn't want to accuse her, nor do I, but how else can we get them back? All of us sisters want those priceless pictures. Can you suggest a way of solving this dilemma? — MISSING PICTURES

DEAR MISSING: Pictures can be duplicated. Without making any accusations, ask your oldest sister if you may "borrow" the priceless pictures. Then take them to a photographer who will make as many duplicates as you wish from the originals.

P.S. Don't rule out the possibility that your mother may have given those pictures to her eldest daughter but did not want to admit it.

DEAR ABBY: My cousin and his wife were driving from Kentucky to Texas when they stopped at a rest stop so he could use the restroom. There was only one car there, and not one person was in sight.

My cousin's wife went back to their car and waited for her husband to come out of the restroom; then she noticed two young guys come out of the restroom, get into their car and drive off.

After waiting for 10 or maybe 15 minutes, my cousin's wife went back to the restroom to see why her husband was taking so long. She found him in the men's room — his hands were tied together with one of his socks, his pants were off, his mouth was stuffed with his other sock and his feet were bound together with a rope. Those two young men had ambushed him in the restroom and taken all his cash — $800!

Abby, please warn your readers to be careful when they see only one empty car — and no people.

RUTH HEFLIN, KENTUCKY

Area cowboys win rough stock events

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Writer

DUMAS — Canadian and Wheeler cowboys turned in winning performances in Thursday's opening go-round of the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association Finals.

Year-end leader Dwayne Evans of Canadian edged out Wellington's Kenny Turnstall by three points to win the bareback riding. Evans, who rode a horse named Corky, was the defending champion.

Jim Boy Hash of Canadian was expected to win the saddle bronc riding after leading the event throughout the regular season. He didn't disappoint the crowd as he totaled 48 points to claim a four-point margin of victory over Gruver's Stacy Nolen. Evans captured third with 43 points.

Hash, however, came up short in the steer wrestling, another event he was leading at year's end. Nash broke the barrier and drew a 10-second penalty, but his 14.269 was still good enough for seventh place. Had Nash not drawn a penalty, he would have won the steer wrestling with a 4.269 time.

Tascosa's Spencer Albracht topped the steer wrestlers with a 5.056.

Wheeler's Charley Russell was a surprise winner in the calf roping. He entered the Finals ranked ninth, but he won going away with a 9.489. Happy's Newt Hendricks was a distant second at 12.814.

Russell almost pulled off a win in the ribbon roping, finishing second to Spearman's Mark Eakin. Russell was ranked sixth in the event at the end of the regular season.

Wheeler's Shane Goad teamed with River Road's Twister Cain to claim the team roping title. The pair had chalked up 107 points each to win the regular-season crown and reeled off a 6.669 time to win easily last night.

Ten of the 15 contestants in the bull riding bit the dust, but Don Ray Howard stayed aboard White Hump long enough to score 76 points and win the crown. Justin Price, also of Canadian, placed fifth with 60 points.

Pampa's Michel Reeves and Tamra Johnson both placed in two categories in the girls' division. Reeves, a freshman, was fourth in poles and eighth in goat tying while Johnson, a junior, was fifth in poles and eighth in barrels.

The top eight individuals in each event receive points with the winner receiving eight points.

Pampa junior Marty McFall placed seventh in bareback riding.

The second go-round is scheduled to start at 7 tonight at the Dumas Rodeo Arena. Saturday's final go-around gets underway an hour earlier due to the Tri-State Queen coronation ceremonies.

Following Saturday's performance, awards will be presented to the individual and all-around winners for the entire season in addition to the top three finishers in each event at the Finals.

Pampa's Marty McFall placed seventh in bareback riding in Thursday's first go-round at the Tri-State High School Rodeo Finals in Dumas.

Gomez makes finals; Agassi's match rain delayed

PARIS — Andres Gomez of Ecuador moved into the finals of the French Open today, and to within one victory of achieving his career dream, by beating error-prone Thomas Muster.

Gomez, the fourth seed who says he wants to win this clay-court Grand Slam tournament above all others, beat the seventh-seeded Austrian 7-5, 6-1, 7-5.

The match, on an autumn-like day, lacked much spark. The best shot might have been a soccer-style kick by Gomez after he dropped his racket on a serve.

Third-seeded Andre Agassi of the United States played for a spot in his first Grand Slam final against Jonas Svensson of Sweden. Their match was delayed by rain earlier today. The men's championship is scheduled for Sunday.

The women's title will be decided Saturday, with top-ranked Steffi Graf against second-seeded Monica Seles.

The Gomez-Muster match promised to be a clay-court classic. They are among the best players in the world on the surface, with big groundstrokes and the ability to stay out there forever until an opponent falters.

Gomez didn't have to wait long for that to happen, and the match never lived up to expectations, despite a third-set comeback by Muster.

Gomez won the first three games, saving two break points in the opener, before a passing shower stopped play for about five minutes. The break was so quick that the players did not even have to warm up again when they returned from the locker rooms.

Muster, like Gomez in his first Grand Slam semi, picked up the challenge after the interruption, holding the fourth game and breaking on a double fault for 3-2. He fought off four break points before Gomez broke for 4-2, but broke back in a game that featured a soccer-kick on break point. Gomez dropped his racket on a serve and kicked the return.

At the World Cup, it would have been a winner, but not at Roland Garros.

Both players were making mistakes, but Muster's came at bigger moments and Gomez made some important shots. Muster had break point for 4-4 but couldn't convert, Gomez saving the game with a volley, an ace and a service winner. Gomez broke for the set on a Muster forehand that went long.

Muster's problems continued at the start of the second set. Gomez won 24 of 28 points at one stretch and took a 5-0 lead. Muster stopped the seven-game slide for 5-1 but Gomez held on a forehand winner for the set, with Muster managing just 11 points in the seven games.

Muster looked much steadier as the third set rolled on. Gomez broke for a 2-1 lead but Muster broke back for 4-4, and took a 5-4 lead on his second straight love service game.

Top Optimist Fund Raisers

Three Pampa youths tied for top honors in a recent Optimist Club fund raiser by selling 43 coupon books apiece. Brett Manning (back right), 12-year-old son of Ernie and Jana Manning, Bill Campbell (right), eight-year-old son of Bob and Martha Campbell, and Tanner Hucks (front center), seven-year-old son of Tim and Debra Hucks, are joined by Optimist Club fund raising chairman Mike Warner. The three youngsters have each won a trip to either Dallas, Houston or San Antonio, depending on the outcome of a tie-breaker to be held over the next four days. Each boy will be allowed to continue selling the booklets through Tuesday, June 12, and the one with the most sales at that time will get his choice of the three trips. The winner will be declared at 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Blazers come from behind in overtime win

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Imagine how the pressure-proof Portland Trail Blazers will do when they get to THEIR home.

Neither a hooting, hostile crowd, nor Bill Laimbeer's 3-point binge could shake them Thursday night. They tied the NBA Finals 1-1 with a 106-105 comeback win in overtime on Detroit's court.

Now they head back to Portland, where the Pistons have lost 20 consecutive games. The next three games are there, starting Sunday, and the Blazers, 9-0 at home in the playoffs, can dethrone Detroit as champions without leaving again.

"It's the ultimate challenge to go in a place where we haven't won and try to win a basketball game," Detroit's Isiah Thomas said.

"All I know," Portland coach Rick Adelman said, "is that we'll have Portland fans screaming for us."

That will be a change. As Buck Williams went to the foul line with the score 102-102 with 9.6 seconds left shortly after midnight today, shrieking, sign-waving fans tried to distract him. Calmly, he sank both shots.

Clyde Drexler got the same greeting after being fouled by Dennis Rodman with 2.1 seconds remaining and Portland trailing 105-104. The result also was the same.

His shots produced the third and final lead change in the final 9.6 seconds and ended Detroit's home playoff winning streak at 14 games, including 10 this year. "They held their poise," Laimbeer said.

The Blazers lost it in a 105-99 opening loss when they squandered a 10-point lead in the last seven minutes Tuesday night.

"We learned a lot from the first game," Adelman said. "We were more aggressive in taking (the ball) to the basket."

NBA Finals

It was away from the basket — Detroit's basket — where they had trouble. Laimbeer kept firing and hitting critical 3-pointers. He made six of nine. Five either tied the game or gave Detroit the lead, and five came in the last 8:38.

Laimbeer and James Edwards had 26 points each and Thomas 23. Portland was led by Drexler with 33 and Terry Porter with 21, including 15-of-15 free throws. Porter broke Magic Johnson's finals record of 14 without a miss.

The Pistons are 0-5 in this year's playoffs when allowing more than 100 points. They are 12-0 when they gave up less than that. And they were in good shape to make it 13-0 with a 94-91 lead and 49 seconds left in regulation.

But Drexler hit a free throw with 44 seconds remaining and Porter added two with 10.2 left to force the first finals overtime since 1984.

Laimbeer's second 3-pointer in 61 seconds put Detroit ahead 102-98 with 1:30 left, but Porter's two foul shots and Drexler's 18-footer tied the game.

Porter missed a shot with 10.9 seconds to go, but Joe Dumars fouled Williams one second later.

"During the summer, I have a ritual of shooting free throws," said Williams, in his first year with Portland after eight frustrating seasons with New Jersey. "I make believe I have two free throws with the game on the line in the finals."

"I've done it the last eight summers and finally get placed in a real-life situation and had a chance to come through."

But Laimbeer wasn't done. He buried another 3-pointer with Drexler jumping out at him with 4.1 seconds remaining.

Rodman, slowed by an injured ankle, fouled Drexler as the Blazer began driving down the lane with 2.1 seconds to go.

"I just wanted to make it. Total concentration," he said of his winning shots.

Italians expect little from Americans at World Cup

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

FLORENCE, Italy — When you ask most Italians how the United States will do in the World Cup, you get a giggle for an answer.

Everyone except the team seems to be expecting a flop.

"We've been listening to the same song and dance for the last couple of months, especially since we qualified," goalkeeper Tony Meola said Thursday. "It's something that a year ago, when I first came on the team, really upset me."

The U.S. team is camped in Tirrenia, a seaside town about 50 miles from the Tuscan capital, but it finally came to town Thursday for the players to get their credentials. Afterward, the U.S. team sneaked into Stadio Comunale, site of Sunday's game against Czechoslovakia, and walked around the field for five minutes.

The players weren't supposed to go to the ballpark until Saturday and the team was admonished by an official from FIFA, soccer's governing body.

The odds against the United States winning the World Cup have as many zeros as prices in lira. This lack of respect is beginning to annoy American players.

"In Italy, I think some of the fans said if they don't beat the U.S. 4-0, it's a disgrace," U.S. captain Michael Windischmann said.

The London Telegraph wrote the United States is a 2,000-1 underdog to win the cup and would be "lucky to go home with their pride intact."

The players know they are longshots. They just don't like hearing about it all the time.

"It adds fuel to the fire, and we have this burning desire," said Paul Caligiuri, whose goal against Trinidad and Tobago last Nov. 19 put the United States in the World Cup.

Czechoslovakia is a 11/2-goal favorite for Sunday's game. The Americans, according to Las Vegas bookmakers, are 20-1 to win any first-round game and 7-1 to tie.

"I liked the odds I saw today," Meola said. "They were down to 600-1 or something. That's a pretty good bet. Someone want to put something down for me?"

Although the soccer community expects the United States to get routed, it's not clear what U.S. opponents think.

"We respect the U.S. and will have to take the field with a maximum of concentration against them," Czechoslovakia coach Josef Venglos said Wednesday. "They are good athletes and very well-trained. I admire what the U.S. coach has done with his players."

But did Venglos really mean it? Or did he say it for show?

U.S. coach Bob Gansler said trying to figure that out is "just guesswork," and that it doesn't matter.

"I think the team deserves a lot of respect because the other countries have been playing for hundreds of years," forward Chris Sullivan said. "Italians should be the best. If the Russian baseball team came over, we wouldn't knock them by saying they couldn't play baseball. We'd say they were up-and-coming."

In Italy, every move of the U.S. team is being analyzed. When Gansler decided to close practice on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, one European reporter asked if the U.S. team was good enough to have anything to hide.

"It's not a matter of hiding," Gansler said. "It's a matter of going about your business in the way you're most comfortable. Some people like to shower with the curtains open and some like to shower with them closed."

PAMPA Masonic Lodge #966, highway pick up detail, 9 a.m. Saturday, June 9, 1990, at 7:00 p.m. The hearing will be held in the Heritage Room of the M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium, 1000 N. Sumner, Pampa, Texas. The hearing is being held to afford the public the opportunity to discuss the proposed improvements for State Highway 70 in Pampa. The proposed project will run from State Highway 152 north to 21st Avenue.

The proposed project consists of widening the existing four lane roadway to four lanes with a continuous turn lane, curb and gutter and parallel parking lanes. It is anticipated that a small amount of additional right of way will be required at the major intersections along the route in order to accommodate new traffic signals.

Information about the tentative schedules for acquisition of right of way, maps and other drawings showing the proposed location and design, the environmental assessment and the tentative construction schedule for the proposed project are on file and available for inspection and copying at the Resident Engineers office, located at 2611 East Frederic, Pampa, Texas. Maps and drawings showing the project location and geometric design have been placed on file with the City of Pampa.

Information about the State's Relocation Assistance Program and the benefits and services for displaces can be obtained at the Department's Right of Way office which is located at 421 S. Bowie, Amarillo, Texas.

All interested citizens are invited to attend this public hearing. Verbal and written comments from the public regarding the project are requested. Comments may be presented either at the hearing or within ten days after the hearing. Written statements and other exhibits may be submitted to the District Office at 5715 Canyon Drive (P.O. Box 2708) Amarillo, Texas 79105.
