County To Voice Protest At State Water Hearing

Battle Lines Drawn On Colorado River Dam

BY RUTH COFFEY
Record News Editor

Colorado City, Loraine, Westbrook and Mitchell County, Texas, have filed formal briefs protesting to Texas Water Commission the building of a dam in Coke County by Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Briefs prepared by attorneys for the Water Steering Committee were mailed Saturday. Attorneys representing Mitchell County are Frank Ginzel, Mitchell County Attorney, and Charles Griggs of Sweetwater.

Water Committee will meet Friday morning here in Baker Hotel for a final briefing from the two lawyers before committee members appear in Austin Monday for the Texas Water Commission hearing. Breakfast conference session is set for 7 a. m.

Headed for the state capital city Monday are the four Mitchell County Commissioners, Marcus Vest, Jake Northcutt, Drue Cowthron and Moody Richardson.

County Judge Elmer Martin will be spokesman for the county's firm position in opposing the building of a Colorado River dam in Coke County rather than in Mitchell County as originally announced and approved.

Hearing, Monday, has been set by TWA to decide the issue of CRMWD's application to nullify a permit to build the river dam in Mitchell County. CRMWD seeks a new permit to build the dam in Coke County instead of on the already approved site in Mitchell County.

Mitchell County and the three towns in her borders propose to fight to keep plans for the dam and the huge lake it would impound in this county.

Representatives of county, towns, Colorado City Chamber of Commerce and Loraine Lions Club expect to speak their pieces at the TWC hearing in Austin. They plan to appear in Austin armed with facts and figures which they believe favor the originally approved site in Mitchell County, Judge Martin said.

Civic and county leaders here hold, Martin said, that CRMWD's moving of the dam site will retard economic growth of this county and her communities. A dam in Coke County would end hopes of a Mitchell County dam on the Colorado River.

Dr. John H. Chinn, mayor of Colorado City, Bob Robinson, Gus D. Chesney, president of the local Chamber, and Ronald Bruce, Loraine Lions Club president, are among spokesmen expected to voice opposition to approval of the new permit and a TWC ruling for the switch in dam sites. Meantime, a number of interests representing the areas on the lower Colorado River have also expressed intent of protesting CRMWD's building the dam in Coke County. The city of Austin and the High Land Tourist Development Association and several other municipalities are on record as saying they will oppose the CRMWD proposal at the hearing Monday.

West Texas Chamber of Commerce got in on the other side of the act Monday. In a called meeting of that body's Water Resources Committee in Abilene, members voted unanimous support and approval for the Coke County dam project which is being contested, by Mitchell County in particular, and by the Lower Colorado River Authority.

J. W. Buchanan of Dumas and R. M. Wagstaff have been named by WTCC to appear with support for the project when the TWA hearing convenes in Austin Monday. West Texas Chamber's resolution gave full support to up-stream development of the Colorado River, including the Coke County proposal. The Coke site is some 19 miles downstream from the approved site in Mitchell County.

E. V. Spence of Big Spring, general manager of CRMWD, met with West Texas Chamber and Arlene Morris.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

Gift Clothing Depot Opens Wednesday

Christmas basket time, annually sponsored by the Mitchell County Ministerial Alliance, finds ministers here ready with plans.

Used clothing, bedding and shoes, with emphasis on the usable and the wearable, will be opened here Wednesday, Dec. 16, in the Earnest Building.

Ministerial Alliance officers have announced that Mrs. Mary Lee Moore, longtime director of the depot, will arrive in Colorado City Sunday and will open the give-away station Wednesday. Mrs. Moore will be on leave of absence from her duties as homemaker in the Jack Simons' residence at Midland.

Remembering the less fortunate at Christmas is earnestly requested by the Ministerial Alliance. Families with outgrown clothing for children, coats, sweaters, shoes are urged to bring their boxes of gifts to the Christmas Basket depot as soon as possible after the clothing station opens.

Also on the welcome and acceptable list are toys, canned foods and checks to help finance the baskets of food to be delivered to the homes in need of assistance. Names of families who can not celebrate Christmas without a helping hand may be turned in to a member of Ministerial Alliance. The organization serves as a clearing house for all names in order to prevent duplication—two baskets for some, no baskets for other families. Money for the purchase of food is managed in part, by the offering taken at the annual all-church Thanksgiving services. Citizens with "The Christmas Spirit" may contribute money for food to go in baskets. Treasurer of Ministerial Alliance is Dr. Ralph Graham, pastor of First Christian Church.

All citizens are requested to gather clothes and bed covers not in use and to give them to the gift-depot so that they may be put to good use.

MISS STICKNEY, HOSTESS

Through Fine Arts Theme For Hesperian Study Club

Through Fine Arts theme for the Friday meeting of the Hesperian Club in the home of Miss Clydine Stickney.

Speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. J. D. White. Mrs. Sam Thompson and Mrs. Arthur Berry.

Subject for Mrs. J. D. White's talk was Winslow Homer and Mrs. Sam Thompson spoke concerning Van Cliburn. Topic for Mrs. Barry's speech was Great Poets and their works.

"Winslow Homer was born in Boston, Mass., Feb. 24, 1836 of middle class parents," said Mrs. White. "He was reared in Cambridge, Mass. where a happy outdoor life gave him a lifelong love of the country. From youth he was strong-willed, independent, terse in speech and with a dry Yankee sense of humor

He was almost entirely self-taught.

When Civil War broke out Homer went to the front as staff artist for Harpers. His war drawings were outstanding for their realism, and he became widely known. After the war he returned to subjects he had always loved best—Country life.

"Homer supported himself until age 40 by illustrations for Harpers Magazine. This was a technique which involved woodcarving part of which process was done by others. These illustrations were among the most carefully designed of all his works, comparable to the best of his mature paintings," said Mrs. White.

"Homer was our greatest pictorial poet of the sea and the wilderness and the pioneer spirit that had explored and settled a continent. In his energy, the freshness of his vision, and his simple sensuous vitality, he embodied the affirmative elements of the American spirit as no preceding artist had. He did for our painting what Walt Whitman did for our poetry—he made it native to our own earth and air," said the speaker.

"Van Cliburn is from Kilgore," said Mrs. Thompson. "He began taking music lessons from his mother when he was three years old.

His ability, nature, intelligence, poise, brilliance and power have been his only agents. He played mostly Russian music.

"Van Cliburn won the First International Competition in Moscow. It was in piano and violin."

"Each man who holds ideals must live his own way. Van Cliburn said in 10 years twice. 'The Russians may not remember the native Van Cliburn but they will remember it was an American who won the Gchaikovky Competition,'" said Mrs. Thompson.

"Mrs. Barry began her talk which you will remember cordage said. 'The great works of the past seem to a young man works of another race, in respect to which his faculties must remain passive and submissive even as to the stars and mountains.

"But the writings of a contemporary, perhaps not many years older than himself, surrounded by the same circumstances and disciplined by the same manners, possess a reality for him and inspire an actual friendship as of a man for a man."

"Edwin Markham," said Mrs. Barry. "Was frequently referred to as the Dean of American poets. He was a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and Honorary President of the Poetry Society of America.

"His best known poems are

Life Of Frank Wright Told Zetagathian Members

Frank Lloyd Wright was the son of Ann Lloyd Jones Wright and William Wright. Wright was told members of the Zetagathian Study Club Thursday. With much walking, little food and no money left Wright finally got his first job with Adler and Sullivan. When they found out that Wright was doing some work on his own, he was fired. Wright married Catherine Toblin in 1894 he designed River Forest Golf club and began his successful career in architecture. In 1902 Wright designed a school near Madison for his aunts. This was built as a school due to lack of financial management. Frank L. Wright was now the arch of the time, second to none, continued the speaker. The Imperial Hotel in Japan was built but there was many up and downs for Wright spoke so little Japanese he couldn't explain why he was doing these unusual things to build a hotel. The hotel was completed in 1922. It was built as a water balancing a tray on his hand. This made it survive the earth quakes, said Mrs. Fee. Wright last design, said Mrs. Fee, "Wasn't completed at his death, but this was the most widely discussed. It was the Solomon R. Guggenheimer Museum on Fifth Avenue, New York City, N. Y. At his death, April 4, 1959, the American Institute of Architecture Journal said, "His place in history is secure. His continuing influence is assured. This century's architecture achievements would be unthinkable without him. He has been the teacher of us all." Members present for the afternoon were Mimes, Warren Anderson, S. J. Craddock, Jr., Jim Edison, R. F. Fee, Jr., S. L. Girvin, J. Larry Kinard, Curtis Latimer, Sam L. Majors, Jr., Ray Noble, W. S. Rhode, Bob Robinson, O. B. Trelock, Jr., George Witten and the hostess, Mrs. Butler. Christmas Story is theme for the next meeting in the home of Mrs. George Witten. Guest speaker for the meeting will be Mrs. Johnny Moore of Sweetwater.

Ruth Coffey's CONVERSATION CORNER

YOU THINK you've got problems? Well, doesn't everybody, everywhere? Best way to really, truly appreciate your own private set of problems is to compare them with problems of other people you encounter—or may be read about.

How would you like to be the bride whose reluctant groom waited three minutes after the old question "Do you take this woman . . . etc." and then blurted out "No," and ran?

Of the Justice of Peace who test his fee for the completely disrupted wedding? For the minister, how would you like to be the defaulting groom who for all you know, may still be in hiding?

How would you like to be the minister in England who flat out his church because he got tired marrying—and burying—people who never entered the church for any other occasion?

Would you trade places with the store detective who caught his own mother-in-law swiping six jeweled compacts and eight bottles of perfume?

Then, there is that man with the red-haired wife. He talked himself into his problem.

He wanted a red-haired wife so much he spent years and years begging his wife to dye her hair red. So she did. (Wives, you may or may not know, will go almost any length to keep the peace.)

So? So it turns out the poor man is violently allergic to the red dye on his wife's hair. His dilemma is that now he can't even live at home. He has to board with neighbors until the dye he demanded grows off. He had a choice of moving out—or staying to scratch his rash from now on.

PROBLEMS of other people are not always that funny. Some of them can be sad. Everybody in the world has heard, at one time or another the old quote that goes something like "I felt sorry for myself because I had no shoes . . . until I met a man who had no feet."

Even feel sorry for yourself? It is a disease which can be your heart's un-doing unless you take care.

Best rule is to compare before you despair.

PROBLEMS of the pocket-book always more evident during the holiday season, are so very, very small, compared to problems concerning the health, the very life, of some much-loved one.

Wouldn't it be a better world, a more appreciative place, if all parents of all healthy children were glad every single day for legs that run and eyes that see and little voices calling out?

Counting blessings instead of dollars is not only smarter—it's fore fun.

LAST FEW days, to be more specific, have talked with parents of a child who has a disease considered incurable, as of now.

Met a friend whose mother is very ill. Critical illness does not declare a moratorium for any holiday season. Accidents, actually, favor holidays when they're hunting a time and place to happen.

There are a million ways a heart can break without indulging in self-pity for things in the inevitable have-not category.

IT IS NOT always easy when the problem you know best is for real. But you can cherish the subject for a dissatisfied heart.

All you have to do is be realistic. Make a check list if you need to.

Mink and diamonds you have not?

What about other wonders you've got?

Good health . . . and songs the children sing.

Would you trade them off for some richer thing?

No heart can accent a loss, strain or stress.

If it cares to remember . . . small things that bless.

SHOPPING SCENE faces were those of Mrs. E. S. Miles of Longfellow community saying she expects family company for Christmas.

Mrs. Satu Thompson and Mrs. Ross Hargrove together. Nell Smith (Mrs. Charlie) at a gift-wrapping counter.

Saw, too, pleasant Mrs. H. H. Gaaney hunting gifts for small granddaughters . . . and met for the first time Mrs. W. C. Hutchins, former Westbrook citizen and present Record reader. The Hutchins live now West of Lake Colorado City.

OTHER FACTS . . . other places, were those of Joe Martin of Uncle Sam's Post Office . . . The Pat McKinneys Jr. at a refreshment break . . . Harold Maniss . . . Petite Evelyn Rose . . . Mrs. Swenson Boyd in a becoming shade of blue . . . Gwen Wistrand (Mrs. Dick) full of Christmas enthusiasm.

Office visitors have been Pete Warren . . . Luke Nichols, master-minding the Lions chili feast for Saturday. "Y'all come!"

Also Eddie Braswell, proxy of the Jaycoos . . . Little Lou Landeros, wife of Joe back in Farm Bureau office after a sick leave.

SAW Betty Worrell, wife of John M. Worrell Sr., in a solo coffee break. Asked about the Worrell sons and daughter to find that son John M. Jr. (M.D. and Ph.D.) is doing research for Sandia Corporation in Albuquerque, N. M.

Bill Worrell now lives in Sweetwater where he's a district Boy Scout executive. Bill and his wife are parents. Their little sister, Betty Jean lives in Odessa with her husband Dick Richardson, son of Doug and 'Hatchie' Pritchett Richardson.

Betty and John Worrell expect visits from all three of their "children" during the Christmas holidays. of a daughter Sandra Michele, aged 3, and a little boy named William Walter nearly 2. Both John M. and Bill are graduates cum-laude of MCK (Mrs. Coffey's Kindergarten.)

Why is Borden's the milk for children?

Because children like its creaminess.

There are almost two cups of cream in every half-gallon of Borden's Milk. Government regulations don't require that much cream. But our biggest customers do. Children prefer the creamy goodness of Borden's Milk. And you'll like the extra glassfuls they drink when you give them the milk they want.
