Babe To Get $160,000 In Two Years

Home Run Monarch Accepts Yankees' Offer After Previous Refusal

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Mar. 8. (AP)—Babe Ruth will receive the record-smashing sum of $160,000 for playing baseball with the New York Yankees for the next two years.

After turning his back, figuratively, on this staggering offer yesterday, the home run monarch did a right-about face today, hustled to St. Petersburg from his Jungle club retreat and quickly accepted the terms offered him by Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yanks.

Sign Contract Monday.

Monday, with all appropriate ceremonies required by the culmination of so momentous a proceeding, formal contracts will be signed, making the Babe's salary, at $80,000 per year, twice the pay of any other player in baseball, and $10,000 a year in excess of the famous hitter's previous stipend.

The settlement enabled Ruth to jump into the first exhibition game of the season, with the Boston Braves, without the fear of an injury with his contract still in the air. This was a compelling factor in Ruth's reconsideration, overnight, in addition to strong advice from his friends, a conviction that Col. Ruppert had "gone the limit" and, finally, he admitted himself, a command from the "head of the house," Mrs. Ruth.

Instructions From Boss.

(By Associated Press)

SALT LAKE CITY, March 8.—Five men were killed in an explosion in the Peerless Coal company's mine near Castlegate, Utah, late today, officials of the concern were advised here tonight. Eight men escaped alive after the blast.

Five bodies were taken from the mine shortly after the explosion. The dead:

Clement Turner, Wellington, Utah, married, two children.

Daniel Turner, Wellington, married, two children.

Lester Curtis, Helner, Utah, married, four children.

William Curtis, Helner, married.

James Jensen, helper, Utah, married, two children.

Those rescued alive were: A. L. Ross, Tony Canrinker, B. W. Hall, L. S. King, Ole Swenson, Roy Story, Frank Hensley and Vic Bain.

Ross and King were burned about the face and hands and badly gassed. They owe their lives to Bain and Canrinker who carried them toward the mine entrance until they encountered fresh air.

Those who escaped were working nearer the entrance than the five men who lost their lives, giving them a chance to escape before the gas fumes flooded the workings.

Lubbock Seen As Cotton Concentration Point

Members Of Farm Bureau Meet Here To Discuss Plans

Raising More Feed Crops And Reduction In Cotton Acreage Considered At Session In Courthouse

Campaign Is Urged

Membership In Cooperative Aim Of Group; Over Two Hundred Hear Talks By Farm Bureau Officials

DISCUSSION of Lubbock as a probable cotton concentration point under the new Texas Cotton Cooperative association set-up, of raising more feed and food crops, of reducing cotton acreage and of getting behind an immediate campaign for members of the new cooperative organization, occupied attention of the 200 or more members of the Lubbock County Farm Bureau at the courthouse Saturday afternoon.

Speakers included Lynn Stokes, of Ballinger, president of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, and on the advisory committee for the American Cotton Cooperative association; R. E. Overstreet, state director of the Texas Cotton association; Dean A. H. Leidigh, of the Texas Technological college school of agriculture; W. O. Stevens, vice-president of the Citizens National bank, and F. R. Friend, vice-president of the First National bank.

W. M. Ross Presides.

President W. M. Ross, of the Lubbock County Farm Bureau, presided at the meeting. A report from Douglas Pounds, as a delegate to the state convention was had before the program was turned over to H. J. Bower, professor of agronomy at Texas Tech.

As the first speaker, W. O. Stevens declared that the price of cotton this next season will depend entirely upon what the farmers will do here, in other parts of Texas and throughout the South, about reducing acreage. "If you do not reduce," he said, "I still think it will be good business for farmers of the South Plains to raise enough feed." He said it was his opinion there is not enough feed on the Plains now and urged production of enough to last for two years.

A Famous Smile Fades Out

DEATH has exacted its due. William Howard Taft, universally honored and respected—the only man in America's history to reach the pinnacle of both executive and judicial governmental authority—has gone from the land he loved and served so well.

A note of sadness is prevalent in our country today as the people, irrespective of political following and religious belief, mourn the passing of the jovial Ohioan, who walked with kings yet never lost the common touch.

But although it is fitting that we mourn our national loss, let that mourning be tempered with the knowledge that William Howard Taft served as few others have served this republic of ours, that he has 'run a good race, has finished the course.'

He scaled the heights while he was among us, he reached the top. When he answered the final summons yesterday he only began to reap his noblest gain!

Three closeups of the famous Taft smile that endeared him to the American People.

Eight Local Men To Attend Cavern Highway Session

Carlsbad Route Association To Open Quarterly Meet At Matador Monday; Big Delegations Expected

Eight representatives from Lubbock will be present when the opening session of the quarterly meeting of the Carlsbad Cavern highway association gets underway tomorrow morning at Matador, Motley county.

Those who plan to attend the gathering from this city include J. H. Hankins, president of the highway body, J. F. Hankins, R. J. Murray, J. A. Rix, J. H. Goodrich, Tom A. White, A. B. Davis and Chas. C. Watson.

Expect Large Delegations

Indications Saturday, in a check-up of letters and messages received in the city from other towns on the route, were that large delegations are expected from practically all points. Traversing three states, Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico, the highway has created interest through the efforts of officials to get federal designation.

Monday's meeting at Matador, 90 miles northeast of Lubbock, will be occupied chiefly with this subject, though the subject of paving also will come in for consideration.

Program Announced

Program for the meeting, as announced the past week by President Hankins, follows:

10 a. m.—Meeting called to order by J. R. Crews, president, Matador chamber of commerce.

Gas Conservation Bill Is Proposed

Representative Tillotson To Introduce Measure To Provide For Common Purchase Of Natural Gas

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 8.—Representative Leonard Tillotson, of Sealy, announced tonight that next week he would introduce a bill to conserve natural gas in Texas.

The bill, according to Tillotson would be drawn along the lines of the bill to place pipe lines under the railroad commission which has been adopted by both houses. It would provide for common purchase, on a rateable basis, and would contain provisions to compel oil and gas producers to force gas back into the wells. Tillotson said they were being worked out by experts in the oil and gas division of the commission.

He said he did not expect opposition from any of the gas companies, but had, on the other hand, been assured of their cooperation.

He said a meeting to consider the first draft of the bill would be held Monday.

During recent hearings on the proposed gas tax, it was brought out that for every cubic foot of gas used in Texas, two cubic feet were wasted.

Hoover Asks For Hundred Million In Farm Program

Request For Revolving Fund Taken To Indicate Broad Expansion Of Activities Of Federal Farm Board

By FRANK I. WELLER
Associated Press Farm Editor

WASHINGTON, March 8—President Hoover's request today that congress immediately make available to the Farm Board another $100,000,000 of the revolving fund was taken in farm circles possibly to indicate a bold expansion of the boards operations.

The board announced only a few hours after the President made his request, that George S. Milnor of Alton, Illinois, had been named vice-president and general manager of the wheat stabilization corporation.

It was said, unofficially, at the board that Milnor's appointment indicated that the stabilization corporation now would begin the actual marketing of the wheat it had bought—an amount close to 25,000,000 bushels with from 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 bushels being added daily.

In some quarters the President's request for additional funds was viewed as indicating the probability of stabilization activities for cotton being started. Such a move has been suggested a number of times both by congress and cotton cooperatives. A delegation from Tennessee and Arkansas, headed by Charles G. Henry of Little Rock, treasurer and a director of the American Cotton Cooperative association, was before the board last week. Henry said cotton growers were discouraged with the present market.

Former President, Chief Justice Passes From Life Quietly In Capital Home

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 8.—William Howard Taft, 72, former President and former Chief Justice, died at his home here late this afternoon.

He passed peacefully from life, unconscious, after weeks of illness. A stroke from hardening of the arteries preceded death by a half hour.

By his own request, he will rest in Arlington cemetery, the citadel of the nation's heroic dead. The funeral services probably will be held Tuesday at All Souls' Unitarian church which he attended.

Mourning Period Is Announced.

President Hoover was foremost among the many who went sorrowfully tonight to the residence on Wyoming Avenue where the only man in history to hold America's two highest offices slept in death. The President announced a 30-day period of official mourning.

At the point of death for many days, suffering hopelessly from a combination of ailments, Mr. Taft surprised physicians by the vitality of his last hours. But at 4:43 this afternoon a sudden stroke, while he was alone except for his nurse, heralded the end.

Wife At Bedside

Fifteen minutes later, Dr. H. G. Puller reached the bedside, but turned away with a shake of the head. Mrs. Taft, summoned from another room, took up her station near at hand for the last vigil. At 5:15 o'clock death snuffed out at last the flickering flame.

The only daughter, Mrs. Helen Taft Manning, was away for a short automobile ride when death occurred. The two sons, Hobert and Charles, both of Cincinnati, had left Washington after spending several days at their father's bedside.

The official bulletin issued by Mr. Taft's chief physicians said: "The former Chief Justice died at 5:15 p. m. A sudden change in his condition occurred at 4:45 p. m. from which he failed to rally."

White House Offered

Immediately the news was telephoned to the White House, President Hoover tendered to Mrs. Taft the entire facilities of the executive mansion. It was undecided tonight whether the body would lie in state in the East room, at the capitol, or elsewhere.

The President and Mrs. Hoover, like the many others who called at the Wyoming avenue home, remained but a few minutes talking with the little group within. Almost at the moment the White House limousine drew up before the house, Chief Justice Hughes arrived from the opposite direction. Members of the cabinet, diplomats and Mr Taft's associates on the supreme bench were among the many who followed.

Sanford Called By Death

But one who had called there many times during the long illness was absent tonight. Associate Justice Sanford, until today apparently in perfect health, eight years Taft's junior, had suddenly preceded his former chief in death. And another strange turn of fate both Taft and Sanford passed on when another members of the court, Oliver Wendell Holmes, was observing his eighty-ninth birthday.

Final funeral arrangements will not be made until the sons reach Washington, probably tomorrow. Plans had been made tonight for the attendance of all of the ranking officials of the government which Taft had served, in humble and in high place, for four decades.

Three Fliers Are Crashed To Death In Plane Mishaps

Love Field Student Killed Preparatory To Taking Pilot's Examination; Two Die In Illinois Crash

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, March 8. — Clarence Pinchon of Freemont, Ind., was killed late today when the plane he was flying preparatory to taking an examination for a government pilot's license crashed from an altitude of 2,000 feet. Pinchon was a student at a Love Field aviation school.

One wing snapped off in midair before the plane struck the ground. Pinchon had started into a dive and appeared to have lost control of the plane.

Pinchon came here last October to enter the school. He had about 40 hours in the air, and went up today to add time before taking the pilot's examination.

For some unexplained reason the ship, which did not catch fire when it crashed, burned later. Capt. H. B. Pentland, inspector for the Department of Commerce, would not discuss the burning, saying that he did not set it afire. Inspectors arrived shortly after the crash.

C. E. Harman, head of the aviation school tonight said the accident was one for which no reason could be assigned. The plane, he said, was less than a year and a half old.

Pinchon was a former student at Four Lubbock Gold Star Mothers Are Eligible for Pilgrimage to Graves Of Sons in France as Guests of U. S.

BY SUTTON CHRISTIAN
Avalanche-Journal Staff Writer

SHARING the bereavement of those who gave lives of their sons to the United States government in its time of need, at least four Lubbock mothers are eligible for the pilgrimage to graves of their fighting men in France.

They will go, if they so desire and if conditions at home permit, as guests of the government for which their sons gave all during the World war.

Congress has made the appropriations for the visits. It will spend $840 on each of those who have grieved the greatest price paid for freedom. It will be a nation's expression of gratitude to noble motherhood.

One of these mothers, Mrs. C. E. Moore, 1413 Avenue G, wants "so much" to go to her son's resting place, but the responsibilities of motherhood at present require the same measure of intrepidity with which she endured the pungent touch of sorrow during the great conflict. "I must remain at home," she said, "until things are better. My husband is feeble and my 23-year-old son, Willie, is seriously crippled with spinal complications. I fear that something would happen while I am abroad, if I should go to France. I would like to kneel at the grave of my son, John,

Borger, Reformed 'Bad Boy' of Texas Oil Towns, Observes Fourth Birthday With Colorful Celebrations Saturday

(By Associated Press)

BORGER, March 8.—The reformed "bad boy" of Texas oil towns, otherwise called Borger, observed his fourth birthday today with blaring bands and bugles, flying banners and gay bunting attesting a spirit of carnival far removed from the town's one-time unsavory reputation.

The city which became known as the "Sodom of the Southwest" as a result of a string of slayings and other crimes culminating in the assassination of District Attorney John A. Holmes and the resulting weeks of martial law, today was just a fast growing city celebrating its growth and community spirit.

Four years ago a barren spot on the prairies, Borger today boasts a population of 15,000 and many industries besides oil to keep step with the forward moving Panhandle country, not the least being manufacture of carbon black.

A two mile long parade, colorful decorations on nearly every home and business house, and a community banquet attended by five hundred persons were high spots on the day's attractions. More than 20,000 persons, Borgorites and citizens of neighboring cities, lined the streets to watch the parade and the antics of legionnaires who, for the day, were "piece officers" dispensing justice from a wire cage "jail" on main street at one dollar per customer.

Press Photographer Is Much "Sought After" Man, Arthur Brown, Lubbock Photographer, Avers; Served "Time"

"A PRESS photographer is the most sought after man on the staff of any newspaper," declares Arthur Brown, local photographer, who has served "time" in such capacity.

But by "sought-after" Brown explained this popularity does not run along such pleasant lines.

Has "Shot" Many

"I have 'shot' many a man and many a woman," he said, "some of them willingly, others grudgingly and still others because they didn't know it. (If they had I am afraid my health wouldn't have been so good.)"

Brown has made the "beats" on the Indianapolis News, the Souix City Journal and the Des Moines Register-Leader, aside from part time on other metropolitan dailies. "It's an exciting life," he continued, "that is, as long as it lasts."

One of the most humorous incidents the former photo-reporter tells concerns a group of dusky ladies who sought to have their organization of the Red Cross given the "works" with a long story and picture. A call came into the office one afternoon to send a photographer to get a picture and a story of a Red Cross gathering. The incident occurred just following the close of the World war, when the country was swept with a wave of patriotism, Brown got the job.

Found Colored

"I hailed a taxi," he told, "and headed for the address. Arriving, I found a group of some 20 negro women—enough to disconcert any hard-working reporter. But I tackled the job anyhow and started lining them up on the rear porch of the frame building. Just as I stepped from the gallery to set my camera, one whole side of it caved in and directly under it, a distance of about 15 feet, was a cellar. Every one of those belles of darktown was thrown into a heaving, sweating mass in the bottom of the cellar. It looked like the lights for me, one of them had caught her clothes on a nail about half way down in her flight and was hanging suspended in midair.

"After some 30 minutes of sympathetic persuasion on my part, during all of which time I was scared stiff, I finally got them lined up against a brick building for a 'shot.'

"Returning to the city, I was not struck with the humor of the situation until in the center of town and burst out laughing. A young fellow sitting near remarked that I evidently was amused. I had already decided I wouldn't have that story out at all. But I told this innocent appearing young man just what had happened and he laughed with me. A short time later our rival sheet hit the streets with the whole story—you see, unknowingly I had told my experience to an opposition reporter."

But along with the humor, the more serious side of life is also revealed. Photographers are called upon for almost impossible feats at times, Brown stated. In cases of murders, divorces, scandals of every description, even civil suits, pictures are wanted. Sometimes these pictures are forthcoming, at other times they are mor difficult to get.

"I remember one occasion of a civil trial, wherein the greatest importance lay in obtaining a photo of the scene of discussion. Guards and watchmen had been placed about to repulse any one who sought to get a picture. I was put out three or four times.

"As a last resort I dressed in overalls, got a suitcase, put my camera in it and started for the place after I had cut a hole in the cuitcase and placed the lens behind it. Arriving I let the cuitcase fall open, snapped the picture and hurriedly closed it without anyone knowing. Principals in the suit tried for a long time to find out who 'shot' the picture but never succeeded."

Word was received here yesterday of the confirmation of the appointment of Thomas Johnson of McKinney as a member of the board of directors of Texas Technological college. The nomination was approved by the senate.

He will attend the next meeting of the board which will be held here on May 26.

Cotton Center

and Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, Dean A. H. Leidigh stated that there remain only a few minor problems to work out before the Texas Cotton Cooperative association will be ready to operate. He urged that farmers keep their minds principally occupied with the work of securing members to the new organization and not to be concerned too greatly as to where a cotton concentration point might be placed for this section of the state. "Your membership and amount of cotton you deliver to the organization will determine where the concentration point will be, to a large degree," he said. "The Federal Farm Board has made it plain that they are not going to conduct a membership campaign for you. You will have to do your own organizing."

Dean Leidigh said that very likely C. O. Moser, vice-president of the American Cotton Cooperative association, would be in charge of organization work and urged directors from this section to seek Moser's help in starting a membership campaign here immediately.

Price Outlook Given.

F. R. Friend spoke of the price outlook for 1930, for cotton, as not very encouraging, because of general business conditions in the country. "If there is a demand for 14 or 15 million bales of cotton this year and we produce 16 or 17 million bales," he said, "the price will go down out of all proportion."

"Overproduction in 1930," said Lynn Stokes, "will mean a greater calamity than it did in 1926, as that year's crop did find a market, but this year's crop will not." He said the trend throughout all Texas is toward better staple cotton and selling the crop on grade and staple basis, getting away from the "hog-round" system. He urged that the Farm Board be backed in their plan to reduce to 40 million acres in cotton, so far as possible.

"It looks like a bumper crop, even on 40 million acres," he declared. "We had better heed the government's warning and plan our 1930 operations to include raising plenty of feed and food at home." The fact that agriculture never before had any relief on marketing problems, until now, was cited. Millions have been spent by the government on aiding production. "But the county agents and home demonstration agents could not succeed without the cooperation of farmers."

Provide Cotton Grader.

Mr. Stokes explained that when as many as 10,000 bales of cotton are pooled in any section the government will grant establishment of service by a licensed cotton grader. As soon as 50,000 bales are contracted, an advisory board will be made possible in any area, and as soon as 100,000 bales are delivered through the cooperative, an independent regional unit will be made possible.

R. E. Overstreet said:

"As I see it, from a farmer's viewpoint, there is only one way out for the American farmer and that is to heed the warning from the government as to production and to feed himself and livestock at home." He rapped the prevailing methods of all ginners in running plants to turn out as many bales as possible within 24 hours, without regard to condition of the cotton when it comes from the gin. He said there are too many gins in certain localities, especially at Lubbock, where seven gins this season handled only about 10,000 bales, and cited two gins in other counties where each turned out more than 5,000 bales during the season.

"Lubbock is a natural concentration point for the South Plains. We have members enough already to handle 100,000 bales, if they would put every bale produced through their association," Mr. Overstreet declared. He remarked that it looks as if 100 per cent support from the business men of this section is being offered the cotton cooperative movement and urged the determination that Lubbock county will feed itself this year.

FINES GOING UP

Tardy Traffic Violators Are Given Warning

Fines for traffic violations in Lubbock are going up.

Such was the declaration of Chief of Police John Lemond last night in discussing the traffic situation in the city.

"Judge of the city court will double all fines when violators fail to appear with a reasonable length of time in answer to red tags placed on their automobiles," said the chief.

"And another thing I want made clear is that some drivers may think they are getting by with running red lights because they are not stopped in the street by officers. Their numbers are taken by the officers and notices mailed them. These must be answered at once and, unless they are, the violators will be sent for."

Maybe More

Due to rapid increase in population of Lubbock and the county within the last few years, officials of Allen Brothers post, local American legion, believe that there are Gold Star mothers in this county whose names have not been recorded by the local organization of ex-service men.

Each mother whose son died while in the service of the country during the World war is requested to notify Allen Brothers post within the next few days. The legionaires are planning a program for the Gold Star mothers before they sail for France and the name of each is urgently requested.

Mrs. D. D. Feek, 1806 Tenth street, whose son, Sterling, with the ambulance corps of the Fifth division, was killed in action, will accept the government's invitation, she said.

Ill Health Prevents Trip

Mrs. G. R. Scott does not plan on making the trip, due to ill health. The body of her son George, who was a sergeant with company A, 141st infantry, 36th division, has been removed from French soil and buried in the Lubbock cemetery. "I realize great comfort in visiting his grave here," she said. "My heart will be with each mother who visits France, but I do not feel physically able to go."

Mrs. M. H. Brooks, also of this city, is looking forward to the pilgrimage to her son's grave. She has expressed the hope of going abroad this summer.

The grief-worn mother of Phillip Simpson Allen and Roland Terrell Allen, in whose honor the local Allen Brothers post of the American legion was named, died three years ago at her home near Throckmorton. The Allen Brothers, both members of company G, 142 infantry, were killed in action October 8 and 12, respectively, of 1918.

To Place Wreaths

Wreaths will be placed on graves of the Allen brothers by those who represent this city in the pilgrimage.

These gray-haired mothers have been restored apparently to peace of mind. They are living on with a courage which parallels that of those who shouldered arms. Each smiled with heartfelt satisfaction over thought of the nation which remembers the source of life which was shed for protection of Democracy.

A Gold Star Mother who lives in an eastern city recently visited the grave of her son at Romagne, through funds furnished by a prosperous relative. When she found her son sleeping with 14,000 others of his kind the fact was borne in upon her that many other mothers shared her sorrow. There was something in the community of grief that relieved her. When, also, she saw all about her the infinite care that was being given to the graves of the soldier dead, she could but feel grateful for it.

Country Keeps Faith

"My country has kept faith," she said, and the realization mellowed her grief. She returned with a peace of happines which, she is quite sure, she would never have known but for her journey. So she believes it will be with all mothers who are sent by the government on this trip.

The Stars and Stripes float over eight strips of land in Europe. One is in England, one is in Belgium and six are in France. All eight of these cemeteries have been laid out with skill. Gravel and cement walks, which were planned from the standpoint of convenience and art, wind their way through each of them. Marble headstones mark every grave. Trees, flowers and shrubs contribute to the beauty and peaceful atmosphere. At each of the American cemeteries there is a caretaker, a World war veteran, who by reason of his own experience is able to meet with proper understanding those who come to visit the graves. Each cemetery has its chapel and in nearly all the hostess houses have been completed.

30,000 Graves

There are more than 30,000 graves of American soldiers in France, Belgium and England, mostly in France. There are 1,643 graves which cradle bodies of men whose identities were not established.

These trips may be made at convenient times between now and October of 1933. Many of the mothers will go across this summer.

The trip will be under direction of the war department throughout, and every detail will be handled by army officers. Every Gold Star mother in the nation, however humble, dwelling however obscurely of whatever racial origin, can take this journey. She will have her every need supplied from the moment she leaves her home; she will be provided with first-class accomodations by ship and by train, and she will be returned to her home with never a cent to spend and never a worry or care.

One hundred and thirty-five are eligible to go from Texas. There are 11,630 mothers and widows throughout the nation who are eligible.

France Begins To Press Navy Needs

National Security Demand Made By Aristide Briand In Five-Power Conference At London Saturday

BY FRANK H. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, March 8. (AP)—France today began to press anew at the five power naval conference her demands for national security guarantees by a political arrangement in exchange for any substantial reduction of her naval program.

Prospects of a treaty on a five-power basis appear to depend on the willingness of the United States, Great Britain, Japan and Italy to work out some form of political pledge acceptable to the French.

Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, spokesman for France in the absence of Premier Tardieu, echoed the words of his leader.

Foreign Secretary Henderson drove out with Briand to Secretary Stimson's country retreat. There in the quiet of the Buckinghamshire countryside, the French foreign minister explored the possibilities of obtaining British and American participation in some form of new political insurance for what France believes to be her risks of an attack on the continent.

APPOINTMENT ASKED

New Provisional President Of Haiti Recommended

PORT AU PRINCE, March 8. (AP) The Hoover Haitian investigation commission tonight recommended to President Hoover that a one-man provisional government be appointed to take over the reins of government in Haiti, May 15, when the term of President Louis Borno expires.

It was reported that President Borno would acquiesce in this plan and cooperate with his successor, who will be a neutral man picked by a group of the people's leaders.

The provisional president would remain in office until it was possible to hold popular legislative elections. The assembly then would elect a president to fill a normal term.

The first division of the party will leave the first part of the week and will be joined the latter part by geologists and others interested in the work.

EXHIBIT PLANNED

A textile exhibit has been arranged by the School of Home Economics for March 11 to 13. It will consist of textiles decorated by the applied arts classes of the school. Such things as block prints, tye dyes, stencils and scarfs will be shown. The display will be open to the public during the hours of 9 to 12 o'clock and from 1 to 2 o'clock and will be held in room 107 of the Home Economics Building.

Six weeks will be spent on the Tech Geology field trip this year which will be held during the early part of the summer. Intensive study will be made of the quadrangle section of the San Juan Mountains of Colorado. About 12 students will do the work under the direction of Dr. L. T. Patton, head of the department of geology.

Recently Dr. Patton received a letter from an old friend in New York saying that he had read of the geology trips sponsored by the college last year in a New York paper. The material was sent out through the publicity department of the college, which is under the direction of Cecil Horne.

SUMMER ARTIST COURSE

Three numbers have been secured for the Summer Artist course which is to be one of the new features of the Tech summer school this year. The first one will be "A Light Opera Mirror" by the Redpath Artist Singers, one of the leading dramatic singing organizations in the Lyceum concert field. It features the presentation in costume of selections from light operas. "Grumpy," a play by Horace Hodges and T. Wigney Percyval and enacted by the Bennet-Hall players will be the second feature. The Fisk Jubilee Singers will appear in concert for the third entertainment. Summer session of the college will open June 2 and close August 22.

CAN'T DO IT HERE!

Instructors in Spanish are expressing themselves as being highly pleased with the translucent glass that has been purchased for the door of room 210 where most of the Spanish classes are held. According to Mr. W. A. Whatley, instructor in the department, there can be no more gesticulations, contortions or wagging of head on the part of the students on the inside to those on the outside. Some other form of communication must be devised!

Lubbock Tracksters Capture First Annual Snyder Meet

Denton Wins State Basketball Championship

IN THE REALM OF SPORT
WITH ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche Sports Editor

Just as Amos Alonzo Stagg, the veteran Chicago university mentor, has feared Purdue each successive season through a long period of years, does Coach Henry E. Frnka of Lubbock fear the Pampa Harvesters, the first foes the Westerners will face when the 1930 District One grid campaign opens.

* * *

"Frnka Fears Pampa," is destined to become a byword in Lubbock football circles before the fall football season is underway. The mighty Harvesters, recently admitted to Class A football, will open the season in Lubbock on September 20. One letter man, and one only, is Coach Odus Mitchell losing; the former Slaton mentor is importing additional football talent and the spring training season just closed indicates the North Plains club means to go somewhere in its first year in District One.

* * *

The Westerner commander is aware of these facts and has spent many sleepless nights wondering just how he will manage to get his offense clicking by September 27. It just means the locals must go to camp a little earlier and work just a whole lot harder. The fact that the annual battle with the Wichita Falls Coyotes comes on the weekend following the Pampa fray is additional misery for the Lubbock cause. Coach Barry Holton is due to get his "Rockne" system to hitting on all cylinders next fall and the Coyotes will be plenty dangerous.

* * *

Darwood Martingale, who galloped through all opposition for the Memphis high school eleven last season, is one of the new additions to the Pampa squad. A first halfback of giant proportions, Martingale is a broken field runner of natural ability. He ran 102 yards against Pampa for a touchdown last season and Coach Mitchell immediately started negotiations to get him in a Harvester uniform. Pretty smart trick. Now Martindale will run through the Class A boys instead of through Pampa. His family has moved to Pampa and everything is all set. Salsbury and Lard are the backfield terrors left over from the 1929 Pampa club who must be reckoned with.

* * *

It appears that Superintendent McIntosh and his able assistants at Amarillo have succeeded in shifting the spotlight from the Sandies to Lubbock. Another smart trick, and how! Now the champs can sit back and watch the other clubs in the district wham away at Lubbock, just as the whole crew used to do with Amarillo. Maybe this will hold true next fall, and maybe it won't, but all reports from enemy camps indicate the rival teams are expecting their hardest opposition from the Westerners. What a pity it would be for Amarillo to coast along waiting for a whack at Lubbock, and then wake up to find that either Wichita or Pampa had taken the Sandies for a cleaning.

* * *

Regardless of the smoke screen that has been put out by the Amarillo powers, Lubbock coaches and players still regard the Golden Sandstorm as the club that must be beaten to win the district championship. The Sandies lost a flock of veterans, but the Amarillo superintendent and his "financial advisers" haven't forgotten how to go out in the wheat field of the Texas Panhandle and Kansas to get talented gridders. November 2 remains the high spot in the football season for Lubbock. Next fall the Sandies must play in the Westerners' own back yard and what a battle it will be! We will be sorely disappointed if the Amarillo stores don't lock their doors and invade Lubbock in a body for the skirmish.

* * *

The Westerners have closed their spring training camp and the outlook is far from gloomy. Neither Henry Frnka nor Del Morgan have signed contracts for another season but it's a safe bet that this coaching team will be on the job next August when time comes to start the trek toward Garza county for preliminary training. Swede McMurry will also be on hand and we have the word of his former teammates that the Pioneers are getting a first class coach. This trio of Kangaroos is certain to make things start buzzing in a big way when they get in a huddle.

* * *

Slaton is due a return game from Lubbock next season but the date for the fray is yet to be set. Unless the game can be arranged to be played before the opening game of the conference season with Pampa, the contest is doubtful. Whether or not the Westerners can get ready for a foe as strong as Slaton by September 19 remains a question. The odds are evened both ways, so bring on the Tigers. Coach Paul Wright's Bengals gave Lubbock quite a scare last fall when the locals eked out a one-touchdown victory. On their own field, the Purple gridsters are even tougher. Only once in the history of the relationship between the two cities has a Lubbock eleven defeated Slaton on the latter's field. That was in 1928 when the Westerners won an 18 to 6 decision.

PLAN SPORTS PALACE

NEW YORK, March 9. (AP)—Madison Square Garden is toying with the idea of a sports palace to cost $9,000,000 in the heart of London.

It is known that William F. Carey, president of the Garden looks favorably upon the idea and will submit the idea to his co-workers on his return from Brazil.

Estelline Easily Downed In Finals By 30 To 11 Score

Hall County Team Falls To Register In 1st Period; Reagan High Of Houston Third In Tournament

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 8. —Denton walked off with the state high school basketball championship here tonight, winning easily over Estelline, 30 to 11.

Denton outplayed at every turn the boys from Hall county—way up in the Panhandle—who travelled probably the greatest distance to participate in the two-day tournament, which opened yesterday with 13 teams competing for the supreme honors.

9 To 1 First Period

The score was nine to one at the end of the first period, 19 to 5 at the half and 28 to 8 when the third period ended.

Denton yesterday eliminated the fast Athens five, which carried away state honors last year and then brought to Texas the national scholastic championship.

Reagan high of Houston defeated Breckenridge, 48 to 19, in a contest preliminary to the championship battle and was placed third in the tournament.

Denton came through to the finals by a thrilling 25 to 19 defeat over Athens, last year's national scholastic champions, yesterday and downed John H. Reagan high school of Houston today, 16 to 14.

Won Three Games

Estelline played three games to get to the finals. They defeated Bryan 19 to 18 yesterday morning and trimmed Corsicana last night 24 to 19, continuing on the path to the championship by taking Breckenridge into camp this morning, 29 to 18.

In all of its first games the Estelline five displayed a fast breaking attack, which, coupled with a formidable defense, made it dangerous for any team. In Baccus, Estelline has one of the best forwards that has graced the hardwood courts of Texas in several years.

Denton has a team composed almost entirely of seasoned veterans who have had the benefit of playing with each other for more than one season.

Denton and Estelline were survivors of tournaments in which 1,400 teams participated. They succeeded in winning their way through the county, district, bi-district and the preliminary rounds of the state tournament. Thirteen teams, from all parts of the state, played in the state tournament, said by many to have been the fastest in several years.

STRIBLING AND JOHN L.

While in Miami recently to view what was amusingly called the prize-fight between Jack Sharkey and Phil Scott, it was my privilege to gaze upon the handsome figure of Young Stribling. I don't know why, but I thought at once of John L. Sullivan. It was as though the ponderous figure of the ancient years had stepped right across the road, banged his fist upon the table, ordered drinks for the house and then offered to lick any customer within a 5,000-mile radius.

Why I should think of John L. Sullivan when I was talking to Mr. Stribling, I cannot decipher, unless it was the contrast. Here was a sleek young man, whose manager, "Pop" Stribling, had just refused something like $15,000 to show his son to the ringworms at Miami in a Sharkey-Scott preliminary. The "Pop's" price had been $25,000 and the Garden, deeming this a trifle high for preliminary boys, if you could call Young Strib that, couldn't do any business with the acrobatic and unphilanthropic manager.

There was in my mind, as I talked to Strib, the picture of grizzly old John L. as he traveled about the country, inviting one and all to come and take a sock on the snout and see how it felt. I am told that the Striblings, too, went on tour here and there in the oil and cotton belts, but that the give-and-take of the old Sullivan combats was very much modified. Mr. Stribling fought the man selected for him, and it was a careful selection, wherever he went.

CONTRAST IN MANNERS

Sports writers who saw the Stribling shows say they lacked the element of spontaneity. Frankly, there was the tank atmosphere. Besides the flatic arrangements, a contrast in the modes and manners of the men themselves at once impressed me. John L. and his manager, Mr. Muldoon, were no strangers to the smoking cars of the gay nineties. Mr. Stribling travels in no such vulgarian manner; he drives his own Cord sedan, with "Pop" and perhaps a tank artist or two in the rear seat. Recently the Stribling sold his airplane with which he electrified the natives hither and yon.

HE MIGHT HAVE—BUT DIDN'T

Customs change of course. In and out of the ring. I think back to the last battle of Miami, in which Strib and Sharkey were pitted against one another. If Mr. Stribling had only forgotten that he was a gentleman, and stepped in there and bruised Mr. Sharkey's chin! But it was not to be. The Stribling fought carefully; you can look upon him today, and, beyond a somewhat thick neck there is no mark of the fighter upon him. The ears are normal.

As I looked upon the well-dressed smiling Stribling immaculate, well groomed, I cannot but think of that last gory round at New Orleans when John L. sank quivering into the dust and said:

"I am glad it was an American who won the championship."

Shires Required To Answer Letter

Once Great Ballyhoo Artist Must Do More Than Sign White Sox Contract Says Owner Charles Comiskey

CHICAGO, March 8. (AP)—Charles Arthur (Once Great) Shires may sign his Chicago White Sox contract at the figure stipulated if he wishes—but it will take more than that to cause his reinstatement by Owner Charles A. Comiskey.

Comiskey today said the contract angle of the case is a very secondary one, and that Shires must answer a letter written several weeks ago, before the club will even consider lifting the suspension imposed following his battle with Former Manager Lena Blackburne last summer in Philadelphia.

In the letter were several questions—the substance of which was not revealed—which Comiskey said Shires must answer.

Comiskey also said Shires was not wanted by the Sox as a ballyhoo artist, but just as a capable well-behaved 1st baseman. The aged Sox owner further pointed out that the club had not asked Shires to give up boxing, and said he had told the recalcitrant one "if you can make as much as $50,000 fighting in the ring, it appears to me that it is the game you should stick to. I doubt if you could make that much in a life time of baseball—carrying on as you have."

Westerners Hard Pushed To Take "A" Cup In Stiff Competition With Twenty-Four West Texas High School Teams

Locals Amass 26 1-3 Points For First Place; Colorado Second With 23 And Slaton Comes Up Third With 20; Fluvana Wins "B" Trophy

By ALLAN CARNEY

SNYDER, March 8. — A warm sun beamed out of a clear sky upon more than 300 West Texas athletes here Saturday at Snyder's first annual track and field meet but Old King Sol smiled with favor upon the Gold and Black tracksters of Lubbock High school, who outscored 13 other Class A cinder teams to capture high honors in the spectacular event.

Meet Pickups

Random Ramblings On Snyder Meet

Bob Ripley could have found an apt subject for a prize-winning "Believe It Or Not" cartoon had he been on hand at Snyder yesterday at the first annual track and field meet staged in that city. Yes, believe it or not, the sun was shining and the entire meet was run off without even a semblance of a breeze. The majority of West Texas track meets are held in blinding sandstorms and this may be the reason no exceptional time was made in track events. Being accustomed to devouring large quantities of real estate as they rounded the curves, the lads yesterday must have felt that they were in a strange country—possibly Florida or "Sunny" California.

* * *

But, nevertheless, the 300 or more athletes gathered in the new Tiger stadium gave a good account of themselves, considering the early season of the year. Few teams entered in the meet had been in training longer than three weeks and the contestants showed clearly that they had not reached their top running form.

* * *

Prin. W. N. Corry and his assistants learned several things about handling a large crowd of athletes. Next year the event should prove even more successful than the one just passed. In justice to the sponsors of the event, it should be explained that the original plans called for no more than 10 entries. Thirty invitations were sent out in the hope that at least 10 would accept. Twenty-seven teams sent in their entries and 24 were on hand when the meet started. Thus it was necessary to do considerable altering of arrangements.

* * *

This boy Artie Nowell, of Slaton, showed enough class to stamp himself as a threat in the coming district meet. Nowell takes the high hurdles in a beautiful stride and is certain to give Hooper of Olton a close race. Watkins and Pressley of Lubbock would consider the current season a success if they could improve sufficiently to beat out Nowell in the district. The Tiger flash is also likely to give the rest of the boys trouble in the broad jump. His leap of 20 feet, 4 inches won first yesterday and the year is yet young.

* * *

The finish in the high hurdles was a strain on the judges. We were standing at the finish line and can swear that there wasn't daylight between Nowell and Edwards of Big Spring. A final leap at the tape gave the race to the Slaton hurdler. This decision raised a lengthy howl from Bill Stephens and the Steer backers.

* * *

Simmons breezed through in easy fashion to take the mile run and could have cut several seconds off his time of 5 minutes and 5 seconds if he had been pushed to any degree. And how he steps 'em off—a long swinging stride, with perfect arm and knee motion. Unless a new long distance speedster shows up this season, Simmons has a splendid chance to set a new mark in the mile at the state meet.

* * *

Lubbock is woefully weak in the middle distance events. The Westerners failed to place in either the 440 or 880 and the candidates for these events are due for a period of hard work from Coach Lowrey before the county meet is held at Slaton on the 28th.

* * *

Dalton Blagg was a victim of one of his own spikes yesterday while competing in the broad jump. One of the steel prongs entered Blagg's foot and the blood flowed freely. One foot came down on top of the other and the dirty work was done. "Smilin'" shows promise of becoming a valuable member of the Westerner squad, at least by next season.

TO AWARD PRIZES

LAMESA, March 8. (Special)—Basketball championship teams in the Dawson county Interscholastic league will be presented with loving cups awarded by the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce, it was announced this week by Wm. A. Wilson, manager of the local chamber. Other cups to be awarded by the chamber will go to championship teams during the final matches in the spring track meet here in April.

Glasgow, Scotland, has voted to ban international boxing matches in its municipal hall.

Encountering stiff competition from their Class A rivals, the Westerners were forced to sneak in all possible points to come out on top in the wild scramble for "places." The Lubbock thinclads won the cup on three first places, 2 seconds, one third and four fourths for a total of 26 1-3 points. The Colorado Wolves, featuring their field performers, finished second with 23 points. Four first places, including the mile relay, gave the Slaton Tigers third place and 20 points.

Fluvanna Wins "B" Title

Fluvanna amassed a total of 32 1-2 points to win the Class B loving cup from a field of 10 Class B schools.

Six members of the Lubbock squad took a hand in the scoring for the winners. Yancey Price was the big gun for the Westerners, taking first place in the century, second in the 220 and fourth in the javelin for a total of nine points. Bob Pressley came next with 5 1-3 points, finishing third in the 120-yard high hurdles and winning a tie with two other contestants for the first three places in the pole vault. Ritchie showed the way to all comers in the high jump and donated five points to the Westerner cause. His leap of six feet was not approached by his rivals. Other scorers for Lubbock were: Tipton, 3; Watkins, 3; Kilgrell 1.

Corry In Charge

With W. N. Corry, Snyder High school principal in charge, the 24 teams were sent through the morning preliminaries without a hitch. The 13 events were kept moving so swiftly that the qualifying hostilities were over shortly after 12 o'clock. Lubbock emerged a strong favorite in the A division at the end of the preliminaries, Coach Lowrey placing nine men in the finals.

Slaton's strong bid for honors was centered around two outstanding stars. Artie Nowell, who took high scoring honors in the meet, captured first place in the 120-yard high hurdles, first in the broad jump and was a member of the winning relay team, registering 11 1-4 points in all. Simmons, sensational miler, was the other big shot for the Bengals, winning the mile hands down and taking the anchor in the relay. Nowell was presented a handsome high-point medal at the close of the meet.

Simmons, who was the best miler in Texas last season, was not pushed in his favorite race and as a result the Class B lads turned in better time on the four laps than did Simmons.

No exceptional time was made in any one of the track events in either division. Only in the pole vault and high jump did the high school boys strut their wares. Hicks, of Roscoe, Huestis, of Snyder and Pressley of Lubbock cleared the bar at 10 feet, 10 inches, but all failed when the crossbar was raised to 11 feet. Ritchie of Lubbock had little opposition in the high jump, leaping six feet into the air to take first place.

The Snyder Chamber of Commerce donated the cups, medals and ribbons that were awarded the winners at the close of the day. High School Principal, W. N. Corry; Superintendent C. Wedgeworth; J. M. Claunch and R. S. Sullivan were the members of the Snyder committee that made the meet possible. Coach Fats Cranfil of Simmons university was the official starter in all track events.

Babe Ruth Takes $160,000 Salary

Ruth first demanded to know whether the Babe had his new gold fountain pen with him, and then gave him a parting injunction to "get that over with."

Ruth was so impatient to manifest his conciliatory spirit that he acted fearful lest "Col. Jake" might have reconsidered himself overnight and decided to take back the club's best offer. The Babe after first failing to get the colonel on the telephone, made the seven-mile dash to St. Petersburg, but Ruppert still was missing. Impatiently, Ruth waited in the hotel lobby for more than an hour before the colonel returned from a walk along the shore of the bay. Ruppert wanted to postpone any conference until after lunch, but finally yielded to the Babe's plea, took him up to his room and settled the whole affair in about five minutes.

Statement Given Out.

Puffing away on a briar pipe and with a growl of sincere relief the Babe handed this statement to newspapermen after the colonel announced a settlement:

"Being persuaded it is for the best interests of the Yankees and being eager to step right in and give every possible help to our new manager and my old pal, Bob Shawkey, I have conceded my point and accepted terms for a two-year contract at $80,000 a season.

"I am confident that my play will more than justify this contract."

Asked what he would do with his record salary, Ruth replied:

"I'm going to put most, if not all of it right in the old sock. We've got enough to get along on, anyway, and we will stick the old pay checks in that trust fund to keep the family in bread and butter when I'm old and gray-headed."

Wanted $85,000.

Ruth originally had held out for an $85,000 salary for three years, but sliced a year from this demand when he conferred in the club house yesterday with Colonel Ruppert. The club's original offer was $70,000 for one year, the Babe's old salary, then $75,000 for two years and finally, $85,000 for one year or $80,000 for a two-year term. Ruppert stood pat on this compromise proposal and it did not take Ruth long to realize it.

County Paid Out $7,315.40 During Year On Prisoners

County Attorney Wilson Has Figures On Cost Of Keeping Prisoners; Average Of 27 Men Idle Daily

Lubbock county paid $7,315.40 for food for its felony and misdemeanor prisoners confined in the county jail during 1929, according to a statement issued Saturday by County Attorney Vaughn Wilson, following an investigation of the local prison situation.

"An allowance of 90 cents per day is made for each prisoner so confined and the county pays on that basis," said Mr. Wilson. "This amounts to 8,126 total days time which prisoners have spent in jail without employment or labor, exercise or activity of any kind, and in many instances they have been crowded in their cells to such an extent that each person had less than a spot of five square feet in which to live, exercise and pass away his days of confinement, which in some cases has run for months.

27 Idle Daily.

"These figures give an average of 27 idle men per day which the people of this county are boarding through taxation, and the amount above stated is paid out for food alone, and does not take into consideration the cost of prosecution, medicine, doctors bills, equipment, water, gas, electricity and other maintenance costs, not to mention the time and effort spent by hundreds of jurors each year in attending the court.

"About 50 per cent of these prisoners could be put to work. Some additional cost for guards would also follow but that cost would be negligible as compared with what an average of 13 men per day for a year could produce under proper supervision. These men would not be used in work which would compete with other labor, but would be used in work contributing to their own maintenance, and other work which the commissioners' court is not authorized under the law to have done or paid for, other than by prisoner labor.

Is Public Liability.

"A criminal is not an asset to any community when he is at large; he is a public liability whether he is at large or confined. When confined he can be made an asset, however, not only to the public but possibly to himself by utilizing his ability to work.

"Lubbock county owns a farm of approximately 160 acres of land a few miles south of Lubbock on the Tahoka highway and it is called a 'poor farm,' but is not used for that purpose. It also owns a 15-acre tract of land about three miles southeast of Lubbock. Both of these tracts have been owned for years, but have not been used for the purpose for which they were purchased. During the year 1929 the 'poor farm' produced about $1,800 in rental money. And during the same period Lubbock county paid out approximately $6,000 in cash to paupers and which amount does not include other sums donated to charity, nor doctors bills and medicines."

Preparations are being made to care for crowds and seats will be placed in the balcony. The singing is to be in charge of O. F. Watson of this city.

Plan Workers Campaign.

A personal workers campaign is being conducted at the First Christian church in the week preceding Easter Sunday. The religious census of the city will be taken March 23, and it is expected that a number of additions to membership of the church will be shown. A cantata is to be given Easter Sunday evening.

Dr. L. L. Evans, pastor of Austin Avenue Methodist church, Waco, will begin a two-weeks revival at the First Methodist church on Easter Sunday. Rev. Evans is one of the best known ministers in the state and was formerly pastor of the Centenary Methodist church at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Special choirs will sing at the evening services.

The meeting in progress at the First Presbyterian church under the leadership of Dr. T. S. Clyce, president of Austin college, Sherman, will continue through this week. Services have been held each morning and evening during the past week.

To Bring Challenge.

The services announced for today are of special interest. At the morning service the minister will bring a challenge to the work of the Gospel ministry and Christian service. At the evening hour Dr. Clyce will lecture mainly to young people and has announced his subject as "A Man More Precious Than Gold." A special section of the church will be reserved for the young people.

The week day morning services will be resumed at 9 o'clock and the evening hour will remain at 7:30 o'clock for the week. The general public is invited to attend all services.

Program Announced.

The local Lutheran church has announced the following program for Lent and after: March 9, "What Is True Religion?"; March 16, "What Is Christianity?"; March 23, a sermon by Rev. E. Herber of Lockney; March 30, "What Is the Church?"; April 6, "What of Sin?"; April 13, "What Is Meant by Salvation?"; April 18, "The Seven Words From the Cross"; April 20, "If a Man Die Shall He Live Again?"; April 27, "What After Death?"; Every Sunday at 10 p. m. a discussion is given of the history of the Lutheran church and every Sunday at 8 o'clock "The Life of the Saviour" in well illustrated lectures at the pastor's home, 2424 21st street.

No definite arrangements concerning a revival have been made by members of the Nineteenth Street Baptist church, according to Rev. C. J. McCarty, pastor. It is thought that a new church will be built before a revival service is held because the present structure is too small to accommodate the crowds.

Dr. D. B. Doak, pastor of the First Methodist church at Plainview, will probably conduct a revival at the Asbury Methodist church sometime in June, according to Rev. G. P. McCollom, pastor of the church. Definite arrangements have not been made.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE OPENING OF A TOMB BY NATURE

The tomb on which nature has overruled man's presumption is well known to Hannover tourists. It was repeatedly pointed out to me during my sojourn and sightseeing in Hannover several years ago. It consists of a tomb of solid stone blocks, on which is inscribed a statement that the grave shall never be opened. To the contrary a large tree has grown up in the center of the tomb, splitting the grave asunder.

Tech Senior Thinks Acreage Reduction Is Unwise

This Year's Graduate In Agronomy Declares South Plains Can Produce Cotton Cheaper; Others Should Cut

Lubbock County Cost Is 10c Per Pound, Lowest In U. S.; Quotes Department Of Agriculture

By ROBERT BURDETTE
Of Goldthwaite, Texas, Senior In Agronomy, Texas Tech School Of Agriculture

Is acreage reduction the most sensible way for the South Plains farmers to raise the price of cotton? It certainly is, but who is going to reduce their acreage?

If farmers thought that the cotton acreage was going to be reduced they would do as they did in 1926, and every other year that acreage reduction has been talked, go ahead and increase the acreage with the hope that other sections would decrease theirs and cause a high price.

Quotes U. S. Figures

Cotton acreage reduction is all right to talk to farmers in sections where there is no profit in growing it, but on the South Plains it is pure foolishness and shows that little thinking has been done on the subject. The report of the United States Department of Agriculture in 1927, on the cost of producing a pound of cotton, shows that the South Plains produces it cheaper than any other section in the United States. Here are the figures:

State, County	Cost pr. lb.
South Carolina, Darlington	18c
Georgia, Greene	22c
Georgia, Sumter	34c
Alabama, Madison	32c
Alabama, Chilton	25c
Mississippi, Madison	31c
Mississippi, Bolivar	35c
Arkansas, Lee	57c
Arkansas, Faulkner	30c
Oklahoma, McIntosh	25c
Oklahoma, Grady	16c
Texas, Rusk	17c
Texas, Ellis	13c
Texas, Lubbock	10c

If the U. S. Department of Agriculture figures mean anything at all, and they are undoubtedly the most reliable source of information we have on the subject, does it not appear that some other section should reduce their acreage, instead of the South Plains?

Gives His Idea of a Way

Here is the way that South Plains farmers can bring Farm Relief to the entire South:

First: Let the South Plains farmer know that he is producing and can continue to produce cotton cheaper than any other section of America.

Second: That cotton returns on the average $26 per acre, while the sorghums return only around $12, so wouldn't it be very foolish for the farmers to grow a crop that would give them only half the returns that cotton will?

Third: Let the farmers in this section make it plain to the rest of the world that they do not intend to reduce their acreage, as long as cotton is their most profitable crop.

One Will And Others Won't

Fourth: That, if this section, or any other, reports an intention to reduce acreage, the other sections will increase theirs, but if a section reports that they will increase theirs, or at least hold it steady, the tother sections will decrease theirs.

Fifth: Other sections can substitute some crop for cotton easier than this section can, because most of them are producing at a loss and can afford to substitute most any crop in the place of it.

Sixth: If the farmers of this section wish to cut their own throats just let them report an intention to reduce acreage and they will cause every other section in America to increase theirs. The farmers of other sections are gradually turning to other crops so, while they are forming the practice, let the South Plains farmer take a stand that he is not going to reduce his acreage and the farmers of other sections will get still further away from cotton.

Seventh: We can't parsuade other sections to reduce their acreage but we can produce it so cheap that they will abandon it and turn to a more profitable crop and let the farmers here make their living off of growing cotton. We will make more progress when we encourage cotton production instead of discouraging it. This section is the rightful producer of cotton, for they can make money at it and the other sections can't, thus they will eventually drive them out and the sooner it is done the better it will be for all the South.

Cites Factory Comparison

Eight: When a factory finds that they an produce an article cheaper they do not try to persuade the other factories to stop producing it but merely use the common sense method and drive them out. And the sooner the farmers apply this business principle, the better off they will be.

Nine: Every year this same question comes up and every year we get the same response, increased acreage and low prices, so let's stop a lot of this foolishness and get down to business principles, then something will be accomplished. As it is, we are getting nowhere and are having the same old fight every spring.

Ten: Let the farmers of this section declare that they intend to keep producing cotton and enough of the other sections will reduce to the extent that hazardous prices will not often exist. And let them, year after year, take this same stand and they will have easier going than if they reduce their acreage.

Eleven: Don't be fooled, Mr. farmer, no one is going to reduce his acreage, just to cause a higher price for the fellows that refuse to reduce but is going to produce all that he can until he is driven out. [illegible] Plains farmer is going to reduce his acreage in order to merely let some one else remain in the business, and don't let anyone make you believe that they are. But, they are going to stay in as long as is possible, and as long as they are making money. But, as other sections are not making money at cotton growing, and if they learn that this section intends to increase, or keep their acreage steady, they will soon get out, not because they want to, but because they will have to. Competitive production is all that will stop any section from producing cotton, and I believe that the South Plains is in a position to hold their own, or to out-produce any other section, when it comes to cost per pound.

NATIONAL FARM OUTLOOK

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor Farrs Journal, Central Press

Just as electricity has not as yet been able to contribute anything to the actual operations of farming, so the airplane is still looking vainly for a place in the agricultural picture.

This modern marvel has its uses, of course. It flies from one place to another with swiftness and reasonable certainty, skimming high over fields, forests and rivers.

But it is precisely those fields and woods which contain and confine the labor and skill of the farmer. The airplane has found no way as yet to bring its wings down, usefully, to the furrow and windrow.

That is not to say, however, that airplanes have not been tried, and sometimes with promising results, in farm activities.

In the southwest and northwest for example, the last outposts of the big ranch, a few owners of large or widely scattered properties use the air to get from one to another.

In the south airplanes are occasionally used for dusting poison over cotton fields to combat the boll weevil. Orchards and cranberry bogs are similarly dusted, fields have been sown with seed, hillsides with seeds of forest trees.

An occasional prize hog or cow has been conveyed to a show and home again, or delivered by air for advertising purposes.

* * *

Total up and appraise all these instances, and it becomes clear that the airplane has so far failed to find a niche for itself in any of the standard branches of farming. It is inherently what might be called a wholesale tool, where agriculture demands retail methods, exactness and close application.

It may be, too, that a personal element enters into the matter. It is a very exceptional pilot who is willing to fly back and forth across a cotton field, guiding himself closely by markers, and releasing just so many pounds of calcium arsenate at each round. His tastes are much more apt to run to high and distant flights, the freedom of the upper air, or the precision of the air mail or passenger lines.

The technical agricultural airplane pilot is still to be developed. There is certainly no prospect of his early advent, for there is no need for him apparent, as yet on the nation's farms.

Growing Interest In Terry Poultry

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

BROWNFIELD, March 8.—During the recent poultry show held at Brownfield, February 7 and 8, poultry growers of this county organized the Terry County Poultry association for the purpose of stimulating the raising of purebred flocks of high production and to advertise Terry county flocks as being good foundation stock from which to get eggs or baby chicks.

The following records are two that will prove of interest to poultry growers of the South Plains. Both poultry raisers are members of the association.

Profits Are Given

Amos Montgomery's record shows that from Rhode Island pullets he gathered 1,409 eggs during February, making an average of 18.7 eggs per hen.

Mrs. O. K. Tongate reports that she gathered 2,040 eggs from 106 White Leghorns, or an average of 19.2 eggs per hen. The sales receipts from her flock show that she sold 84 dozen eggs to the Brownfield hatchery for $40.32, and 86 dozen eggs to the market for $17.20, making a total of $57.52. This income, less the cost of one sack of laying mash, $3.50, leaves a profit of $54.02, or 50 cents per bird.

Mrs. Tongate feeds all the skim milk that her hens will consume, but emphasizes the fact that she scalds all drinking vessels every morning.

ONE PERMIT ISSUED

March Building Valuations Boosted To $36,900

One permit was issued Saturday to Sarah Holmes for erection of a frame residence at 316 E. 20th street, at a cost of $1,200, J. J. Roszelle contractor.

Valuations for the month of March have been increased to $36,900, for nine permits, while total for the year is $291,810, for 62 permits.

Bankrupt Ranch Becomes Profitable Farm Land In Feminine Hands; Seeks to Establish New Records

ALLIANCE, Neb., March 8.—Charlotte E. Worley, known as the biggest woman farmer in the United States, is going to try and break her own record in 1930. She is going to increase her acreage from 3200 acres to 4000 and hopes to boost her income to $150,000.

Miss Worley has been quietly accumulating land in western Nebraska for the past 10 years. Last year she took in $120,000.

Miss Worley is a lawyer and teacher by profession, a graduate of Nebraska university. But in 1930, when bankers were going to foreclose on her mother's 1800-acre ranch, Miss Worley gave up teaching and law, and made a deal with the bankers for a three-year trial on the ranch.

The first thing Miss Worley did was to convert the ranch into a farm.

"That crazy woman," old ranchers said.

No More Ranching

But her venture was a success the very first year and as a result today very little ranching is done hereabouts, formerly the heart of ranch country. Miss Worley gradually increased her acreage until this year she expects a $150,000 income from a 4000-acre farm.

She intends to introduce flax and fruit trees in her territory—both unheard-of ventures. In fact, Miss Worley sets the styles for farming in western Nebraska and she's been so successful that now her neighbors wait to see what Miss Worley does—then they do likewise.

Around the farm Miss Worley is "the boss." She is an honest-to-goodness dirt farmer. She does the hiring and firing, makes the decisions on when to buy and when to sell, and is her own general manager.

She works from 10 to 18 hours a day.

"Men won't work for a woman," the ranchers said when Miss Worley entered farm life. Now men fight for jobs on the Worley farm.

Her farm is laid out for corn, oats, potatoes, wheat and alfalfa, besides pasture for her 60 cattle, 80 horses and 500 hogs.

The Boss" makes most of her money from potatoes. She got something like $60,000 for this crop last season. She specialized in raising certified seed potatoes and got as high as $2.00 a bushel for this crop.

She is a great advocate of educating the farmer instead of giving him financial relief.

Worley.

"Study your markets," says Miss "Therein lies the secret of farming—the buying and selling. It's the shrewd buyer and seller who succeeds at farming, not the farmer who works from sun-up till sundown and is then too tired to look at the market page."

Claim Is Made By Snyder Man That Hershey Is A Different Crop From The Proso Known By Leidigh Jones

Trial Of Crop Is Urged For West Texas As An Addition To Existing Crops And Not As A Substitute

(EDITOR'S NOTE. The following is from F. I. Townsend, farmer and poultryman of Snyder. We regret that we do not have space enough to quote in full all of his article and comments from the people of Colorado who wrote him in regard to Hershey.)

Editor Lubbock Avalanche:

I have read the article in your issue of March 2, regarding "Hershey," and inasmuch as the statement is made on the authority of Dean A. H. Leidigh of the Texas Tech School of Agriculture that there is no such recognized seed as Hershey, I will first take up that feature of the article.

In Capper's Farmer of January, 1930, the following appeared:

"Want to try Hershey? Here's a new crop. It's possibilities are just being realized in Northeastern Colorado. It is one of the most promising developments in plains agriculture. If it proves adapted to a wide territory it will revolutionize farming in that great empire between the Rockies and the Corn Belt. It is a substitute for corn. It is a roughage crop. It is an emergency crop. It is a safety crop. It can be grown in 60 days. It can be produced with machinery that is used in growing wheat. It removes the objection wheat producers have had to grain sorghums.

Believes a Great Discovery.

"Capper's Farmer believes Hershey is a great discovery for the dry land or plains farmer. It may also prove a helpful crop to some Corn Belt farmers. We do not know how wide its adaptations are. If it is no more particular in its requirements elsewhere than it is in Northeastern Colorado, if its feeding qualities do not deteriorate with a change in growing conditions, it will make a wonderful addition to the crop family. At any rate Hershey is worth a trial. We do not recommend a large acreage until its adaptabilities and feeding qualities have been determined. If any of our readers are interested in giving Hershey a trial, we shall be glad to put them in touch with a source of seed supply. We'd like to see it tried not only in other sections of the plains region but in the Corn Belt as well."

Before giving out anything regarding Hershey I made a thorough investigation of the matter. I corresponded with farmers who are growing Hershey, with livestock men and poultry men who are feeding it, with county agricultural agents and grain elevator men.

(Quotations were given from J. C. Conrad and Sons, Wray, Colo.; W. C. Harris Co., of Sterling, Colo.; Nelson Tribitt, Yuma, Colo.; R. M. Schultz, Belfield, N. D.; E. D. Heath, Otis, Colo.)

Capper's Farmer in the January, 1930 issue carried the following:

Centers In 3 States.

"There are two principal centers of production: Northeastern Colorado and two counties each in North and South Dakota. It has been grown in these regions for several years, perhaps a dozen. But the seed was sold on the market until two or three years ago. Then farmers began to feel their way in feeding it. That's how the value of Hershey was discovered. 'I wouldn't trade a dollar's worth of Hershey for a dollar's worth of corn,' said E. M. Heath, Washington county, Colorado. He was at that time harvesting Hershey with a header. 'I have 48 spring pigs which will go to market within the next three weeks. They'll be made on Hershey, and they'll average 200 pounds at six months old. Last spring my hogs fed on Hershey brough five cents premium above the packer top. I also feed it to my milk cows, one part Hershey to four parts barley. After the grain is threshed I feed the straw to my stock.

"Mr. Heath is farming 1735 acres. Of that 220 acres were in Hershey in 1929 and it averaged about 15 bushels. In 1928 his crop made 11 bushels, and three years ago 27. Mr. Heath uses a tractor-powered grinder in preparing the grain for his livestock. One of the great advantages of Hershey is that it can be grown as an emergency crop, Mr. Heath continued. 'It is the quickest supply of home-grown feed that is available. Last year my crop was in the shock 45 days from the time it was planted. This year I planted June 20. No rain fell until July 3. It came up after that. He was heading the field August 31.

"We formerly sold Hershey as a cash crop," he said. "About two years ago farmers in this vicinity began feeding. The price was about 70 cents a hundred before that. Now it is $1.20. Buyers have learned that they must compete with the farmer's livestock if they get any Hershey.

Grows Hershey 10 Years.

"J. C. Lindgren, Yuma county, has been growing the crop 10 or 12 years. He farms about 1,000 acres and devotes 50 to 100 acres of that to Hershey. About half of his crop is cut for hay. He believes Hershey and tankage are equal to corn or barley and tankage for making pork. The crop last year averaged 15 or 20 bushels on 100 acres.

"It will make in about six weeks," said Ernest Lindgren, his son. "That is why it is such a valuable crop in this section. Much of the wheat and barley was halled out here last year. Farmers went into the field with one-way plows and then seeded Hershey July 1. Some of them harvested 30 to 35 bushels an acre by the middle of August. When they desire to make hay of Hershey they cut when it is heading. In harvesting for grain they use a binder, shock the grain until it is dry enough to thresh and then use a separator. The straw is saved for cattle feed.

"If the space permitted I could give the names of many others who are growing and feeding Hershey and with whom I have corresponded. In a recent communication I stated that when the crop was first introduced in Colorado and the

Swisher County Is A Fine Example Of Diversity Results

Wheat And Grain Sorghums Are Linked With Program Featuring Dairy Cattle; Schools, Banks, As Proof

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

TULIA, March 8.—Tulia, county seat of Swisher county, is located 56 miles southeast of Amarillo on the P. and S. F. railroad in the heart of the shallow water belt of Texas. Tulia has two banks with combined resources of $1,232,693.79, a municipally owned power and water plant, natural gas and a county hospital with a capacity of 15 patients. There are seven churches in Tulia with a total membership of 1,295 people.

The Tulia high school is one of the best in the Panhandle of Texas. It has 34 1-2 units of affiliation accredited with the Southern association of which it is a member. There are 11 departments in the high school as follows: commercial, vocational agriculture, science, history, English, Spanish and Latin, band, dramatics, mathematics, home economics and physical education. The platoon system is used in the grade school, offering auditorium and physical education work. Tulia school is one of the few, if not the only, school offering physical education on daily schedule from the first to the eleventh grades. There are 18 rural schools in Swisher county, and within a year 75 per cent of them will meet requirements for standardization.

One of Panhandle Leaders.

Swisher county is among the leading counties in the Panhandle in agricultural products. There are about 16,000 head of cattle in the county, 18,000 head of sheep, 5,000 head of hogs and 7,250 head of dairy cattle. About 250,000 acres of land are planted in wheat, and the total production last year was five million bushels. About 1,000 bales of cotton are produced yearly in the county, about 4,000 acres of land being planted in cotton. On 150,000 acres of grain sorghum the average production was 40 bushels per acre and on 3,000 acres of alfalfa the average yield was two tons per acre.

Swisher county is the home of pure-bred Jerseys. The average butterfat production in the county is about 2,837,500 lbs. per year. The first bull circle in Texas was organized in Swisher county. The income from dairy products in the county has increased from one-fourth million to over one million dollars a year since the first bull circle was organized. Swisher county Jerseys are noted throughout this section and pure bred sires from Swisher county are sold to many breeders in adjoining counties and states.

Department Of Dairy Manufactures At Texas Tech Being Rehabilitated

Since Destruction By Fire All Equipment Replaced And Spring Term Will See Complete Service

Approximately all equipment destroyed by fire when the Texas Technological college dairy building burned in January, will be replaced and complete class instruction possible in the dairy manufacturers department at the beginning of the spring term, K. M. Renner, head of the department announces.

"All our new equipment has been ordered," Mr. Renner states, "and some of it is here. The milk and cheese departments have been re-equipped and are back in operation. We are expecting the butter making equipment by the middle of March. There are some minor articles which have not yet arrived."

Total Loss Was $2,300

Total loss suffered by the dairy manufactures department, as a result of the destruction of the dairy building, amounted to about $2,300. This included all equipment used for class instruction and for the manufacture of butter, cheese and milk products. Insurance carried amounted to about 50 per cent of the loss.

"We had just put in considerable new equipment before the fire, and it so happened that no insurance had been taken out on it," Mr. Renner said. "We have been greatly handicapped in our teaching work during this present quarter, but have been fortunate in the matter of carrying on instruction of cheese manufacturing by taking our classes to the Abernathy Cheese factory."

When all equipment is installed, the department of dairy manufactures will have a model milk plant, on a par with any dairy products plant and meeting ever city, state or federal law regulating the manufacture of dairy products. The building has been rebuilt as it originally stood.

There are 17 students of the college who are making on an average of $35 per month, sufficient to pay their room and board bills while going to school, by working in the dairy manufactures department. Eleven of these students are in the manufacturing department and six of them are operating the student dairy. They are, thereby, receiving both class instruction and actual experience.

College Gives Assistance

"We have received frequent calls for assistance from various dairy plants of this section," explains Mr. Renner, "and we are, of course, ready and willing at all times to lend any assistance possible to any dairy or dairy program."

The West Texas by Mail Cow Testing work, which is being carried on by Mr. Renner's department at the college, is witnessing a very rapid increase in membership. There are now 45 dairymen of West Texas using this service, which was started in May of last year. Since January 1 there have been 20 members added, and indications are that at least that many more will be added during March.

County agents and other extension workers of northwest Texas are boosting this service, which is being sponsored by District Agent Sterling C. Evans, of the Texas A. and M. extension service.

Hardy Home Demo Club Gives Play

Members of Hardy Home Demonstration club of this county rendered a play, "The Prince Comes," as the chief entertainment feature at the regular meeting Friday night of the Hockley county Farm Bureau at Cobleland.

Lynn Stokes, of Ballinger, former president of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton association, urged the farmers to reduce cotton acreage and try to improve staple in the main address of the meeting.

Mrs. J. P. Hudson was director of the play. Members of the cast were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Merrill, H. D. Bentley, Mrs. Emma Middleton, Mrs. J. O. Brown, Mrs. E. A. Evans, Mrs. F. Y. Henderson, Mrs. C. F. Hodges, Mrs. J. R. Carter, Mrs. Clyde Burleson, Miss Elizabeth Hudson, Bob Crump, Glen Blackburn and S. Blackburn.

YOUR VERY BEST OPPORTUNITY

There are people in Lubbock who own their homes clear of debt, and who want to sell them. Maybe they have to leave on account of health or business changes. Or maybe they want to change their investment. Yet they can not sell and perhaps can not for several years. Houses that are worth $5,000 and $6,000 are bringing when sold $3,500 and $4,000; houses that are worth $10,000 to $12,000 or $14,000 are bringing $6,000, or $7,000 or $9,000. Raw lands are selling well, for they are still cheap and in demand, and the folks who are coming now are nearly all farmers. The very best easiest and quickest way for you to turn your property into money is to trade it for our clients' lands in Hockley county. It is worth $30 per acre and with fair crop and decent prices this year will go to $40. It has small debt of $12.78, long terms at 6 per cent. Not leased, no blue weeds, fine school, fine water. Lets talk it over.

ASK POSTPONEMENT

DALLAS, March 8. (AP)—Railway and chamber of commerce officials here today were notified that the Cotton Belt railway had asked the Interstate Commerce commission to postpone hearing its application to build a line from Chandler to Van, in favor of the Texas Short Line railway's application to build a line from Grand Saline to Van, tapping the rich new Van Zandt county oil fields.

Cotton Active; Stocks Trends Narrow

Week-End Session Of Cotton Market Extremely Active

Wide And Frequent Price Fluctuations Feature Of Saturday's Mart After Decline At Opening

NEW ORLEANS, March 8. (AP)—The week-end session of the cotton market was extremely active with wide and frequent price fluctuations. Although Liverpool came in much better than due the market here opened lower and was soon 9 to 11 points below the previous close on the execution of overnight selling orders.

When these offerings were absorbed the market rallied in response to the better cables and shorts covering for over the week-end and regained 9 to 13 points only to break badly because of lack of sustained support and general selling which carried prices down 31 to 33 points from the highs.

The market rallied 15 to 17 points in the final trading on shorts covering, May after dropping 11 points to 13.97 rallied 13 points to 14.10, declined 33 points to 13.77 and closed at 13.94 or 14 points net lower for the day. The general market closed steady at net declines of 12 to 15 points.

Cotton Nervous And Unsettled

NEW YORK, March 8. (AP)—Cotton was nervous and unsettled today with prices making another set of new low records for the season under a continuation of the recent selling movement. Covering and trade buying caused moderate bulges from time to time during the morning but it was not until May declined to 14.04 or 28 points net lower, that it became active enough to make much impression on the market. May closed at 14.20 or 16 points up from the lowest with the general market closing very steady at net declines of 9 to 17 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 6 to 19 points under overnight selling orders which appeared to have been brought in by the break of yesterday. Liverpool cables were relatively steady.

Material Price Upturns On Killing Classes of Cattle Feature of Mart

KANSAS CITY, March 8. (AP) —Livestock trade around the 11 market circuit today was featured by material price upturns on most killing classes of cattle. Demand, however, slowed up at some points on the close with some of the early advance erased on light yearlings and she stock. Fed steers closed 25-50c higher with some markets reporting gains of 75c on the in-between grades. Receipts 172,800, an increase of 4,000 over last week but 21,500 heavier than a year ago.

Higher prices for dressed lamb served to off-set a liberal movement of fed lambs out of western feeding areas. Current values 25-50c higher than a week ago. Mature classes of sheep at some centers also showed a moderate advance. The supply approximated 335,400 against 328,095 last week and 266,334 a year ago.

Hogs steady to 15c higher. St. Louis had a late top of 11.35 on light butchers. Offerings 467,400, a decrease of 138,700 from last week and 45,000 less than the same week a year ago.

Wheat Is Hoisted Above Low Prices

CHICAGO, March 8. (AP)—Aggressive buying operations in new crop deliveries hoisted wheat late today about 2 1-4c a bushel above low prices reached earlier. The buying appeared to be based on indications that an unwieldy interest on the speculative selling side of the market was outstanding, and that values would rise sharply if traders who were short of wheat were forced to change positions. On the upward swing of wheat prices, however, general commission house selling enlarged, and gains failed to hold well. London cabling that 300 vessels had been tied up as a result of lack of demand for overseas grain.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular, ranging from 1-4c net decline to 518c advance compared with yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 to 1 3-8c off, oats 1-8 to 5-8c down and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2c.

JOLIET, Ill., March 8. (AP)—Lieut. Clyde West, United States army and Carl Johnson, licensed pilot of Joliet, were instantly killed late today when the biplane in which they were flying crashed into a plowed field three miles south of here.

Lieutenant West was a cadet flier, en route from Washington, D. C., to San Diego, Cal. He had left his army plane at St. Louis and had come here by train to visit his parents at Lockport, near Joliet. West was piloting the ship and, according to witnesses, apparently was unable to bring the plane out of a side slip. West was 23 and Johnson 27.

Hostess Threatened.

The robbers, according to members of the bridge party, not only kidnaped the host, but threatened to kill the hostess and a guest.

The four were playing bridge at the Boyles home when two men burst through the front door and into the room. The players, Mr. and Mrs. Boyles and Mr. and Mrs. Dan Orr, were forced to lie on the floor while the holdup men collected money and jewels and threatened to kill the players. Mr. Orr lost $150 in cash, Mr. Boyles about $60, Mrs. Orr $18 and the two women lost rings and watches valued at more than $100.

The holdup men then forced Boyles to enter Orr's car and drive them about the city. He was thrown out later unharmed. About an hour later the two men were arrested and some jewelry recovered.

Market Grip Held By Constructive Forces Saturday

Bulls Control Session In Spite Of Considerable Week-End Profit-Taking And Unfavorable Review

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer.

NEW YORK, March 8. (AP)—Despite considerable week-end profit taking and rather less favorable business reviews, constructive forces retained their grip on the stock market today. Price trends were narrow and irregular. Gains fully balanced losses. Bulls lifted several of their favorites in food, amusement and specialty groups further into new high territory for the recovery. The turnover for the two-hour session was 1,690,840 shares.

The unfavorable factors of the weekly business reviews were largely overshadowed by the more optimistic long range view taken in the reports of President Hoover and the secretaries of commerce and labor on trade and employment. The president's expectations of a revival of the building industry were supported by the trend shown in F. W. Dodge's report of building contracts let in the states east of the Rockies during February. Total contracts of $317,053,000 were only 12 per cent lower than the figure for the previous February, as contrasted with a drop of 21 per cent in January from the like month of the previous year.

Bodies Recovered From Plane Wreck

Three Victims Are Found Thirteen Days Following Crash Into Canyon Side In California Mountains

LOS ANGELES, March 8. — A party of Western Air Express officials late today found the bodies of James E. Doles, airplane pilot, and his two companions, who disappeared while flying through a storm in the San Bernardino mountains 13 days ago.

Fred Goodcell, Western Air Express official, telephoned headquarters of the air line from the Ranger station, notifying associates of the verification of the discovery of the plane yesterday by Dudley Steele, an air plane pilot.

Bodies in Cabin

Goodcell said Doles transport apparently had struck the top of a mountain. All of the bodies were in the cabin of the ship. The plane had not burned.

One body, that of John W. Slaton, steward, which was in the crushed cabin, was brought to the ranger station first by horse. The searchers spent more than an hour cutting open the twisted frame of the fuselage to recover the bodies of Doles and A. W. Bieber, co-pilot.

Camped Over Night

The party left Victorville, Cal., on the desert east of the San Bernardino mountains yesterday, following Steele's report, reached the mountain slopes last night and camped out. This morning they climbed the steep mountainsides to reach the canyon, which is 27 miles northeast of Lake Arrowhead.

MOODY'S COUSIN HELD

NEW ORLEANS, March 8. (AP)—Arrested in San Antonio recently for allegedly forging a government check here, L. I. Moody, who professes to be a cousin of Governor Dan Moody, of Texas, was released on bail here today by United States Commissioner Reginald H. Carter, after the accused waived preliminary hearing.

less than three hours.

The distinguished son of Tennessee had left his home after breakfast seemingly in excellent health and cheerful as usual. He was looking forward to joining his Supreme Court colleagues at noon in honoring Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes on his 89th birthday. He never reached the court.

After treatment, the jurist collapsed in the office of a dentist. Medical aid proved of no avail. He was rushed back to his home and Mrs. Sanford in an unconscious condition. Uremic poisoning was given as the cause of death.

He had served on the Supreme Court since 1923.

Mr. Sanford will be buried in his native city, Knoxville, Tennessee. The funeral party plans to leave here tomorrow at 10:35 p. m. The body will be taken from the station to the cemetery on arrival Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Sanford will be accompanied by a committee from the Supreme Court, Chief Justice Hughes, and Justices McReynolds, Butler and Stone. Representative Fisher of Tennessee and Mrs. Fisher, a sister of the late justice, are expected to be in the party.

The chair in the Supreme Court room which Mr. Sanford occupied has been draped in mourning.

Amarillo Lawyer Out For Congress For 18th District

James O. Cade Announces His Candidacy To Post Now Held By Marvin Jones; Opposes Oil Tariff

AMARILLO, March 8.—James O. Cade local attorney, has announced his candidacy here for United States Congress from the 18th district, stating his opposition to the proposed tariff on oil and to class legislation in general, but upholding anti-trust legislation and relief for the farmer and working man.

In connection with his announcement, Mr. Cade issues the following statement in part:

Makes Statement

"In announcing my candidacy for Congress from the eighteenth district, I do so, fully advised of the formidable array of political opposition that naturally confronts any opponent of the choice of the political machines, however, in spite of this political entrenchment it is my fixed purpose in this campaign to illustrate most vividly the infallible rule that political czars may be upset when it became apparent to the voting citizenship that they are being cheated by the class of representation they have had at the hands of such political machine.

"Permit me to state also that I am opposed to any high tariff, such as the oil tariff. The oil tariff as proposed is nothing in the world but a conspiracy of the major companies, and has as its purpose the further enrichment of the oil industries of the country at the hands of the wage earners, laborers and farmers, who would be called upon to pay the bill for high priced gasoline and lubricating oils which would result from such a tariff. That the tariff is a big company proposition can not be doubted, since they own the great majority of the oil producing lands in this country, or else have them tied up on leases.

Attacks Jones Chain Bill

"Of course it may be that our present congressman does not have enough political insight to see this, or it may be that he has been unduly influenced by powerful representatives of the larger companies who have gone out recently to camp on his trail at Washington.

"I am opposed to any such chain store legislation as our congressman has proposed, because such a bill as he sponsored is absurd on its face, since such a bill would be undemocratic and probably unconstitutional, and since any second-rate politician should know that the bill was invented by Mr. Jones for political purposes only.

"The only way to solve either the chain store problem, the big oil company problem, or any other monopolistic problem, is by stringent federal anti-trust legislation, as recently proposed by the Hon. Tom Connally in the United States Senate. The time is at hand when the democracy of this country is to meet the problem of wholesale corporate monopolies in which this democracy will be forced to struggle for its very existence. It will help none to place a high tariff that will further help such monopolies, nor will it help to pass unconstitutional bills for the Supreme Court to overrule, and thus bring ridicule upon the very cause for which we are fighting. The only method by which we may succeed in dethroning the monopoly is by direct attack.

Snyder Man

Dakotas from Russia, it was not a pronounced success, and for several years but little progress was made in getting farmers to grow it. In fact, many who tried it out and failed, abandoned the crop entirely and even some of the agricultural bulletins were decidedly unfavorable to it."

Claims It Is Different.

The Hershey of today is no more like the Proso spoken of by Dean Leidigh and Mr. Tinsley than is day like night. Since 1904 to 1907 when Dean Leidigh's experiments with Proso were made, wonderful improvements have been made, both in the crop itself and in the methods of producing it. New and improved varieties have been originated since then, possessing qualities not possessed by the Proso with which they experimented. It is very evident that these two gentlemen have not kept pace with the developments that have taken place in recent years regarding Hershey, for I have in my possession positive evidence that it is a great drouth resister and a heavy yielder of grain, producing two crops a year and yielding from 30 to 50 bushels per acre each crop, on an annual rainfall of 14 inches.

Would a great agricultural paper like Capper's Farmer make false or misleading statements regarding Hershey? Would all of these men, whose names and addresses I have given, deliberately misrepresent the facts? Would the U. S. Government experiment station at Akron, Colo., issue a false bulletin showing that Hershey won out over corn and barley as a fattening ration for pigs?

Notwithstanding the adverse opinion of Dean Leidigh, Mr. Jones and Mr. Tinsley, I am firmly of the opinion that Hershey is well worth a trial in West Texas, and that it will prove to be a very valuable addition to the crops we are already growing here. It is not our purpose to substitute Hershey for any of the crops now being grown in West Texas, but we believe that it will be a valuable addition to them. We are going to distribute a car of planting seed to the farmers who desire to try it. It is not our purpose to make a profit out of the sale of the seed, but to introduce the crop here by furnishing the seed to farmers at the lowest price possible.

He mentioned especially the modern high school building with the beautiful grass lawn, trees, shrubs and walks; the paving of the square and adjoining blocks, numerous artistic sidewalks and business house, as having been accomplished during the past five years There is no reason why just as great improvement may not be made in the next five years, he said.

Thirty-two members of the P.-T. A. presented a Founders Day pageant in which the accomplishments of the National organization were recited as the thirty-two birthday candles topping the birthday cake were lighted.

Following their pageant the Junior Symphony orchestra made up of twenty-two junior boys and girls, gave several selections.

FATE WITH JURY

No Verdict Reached In Case Of Joe Hobrecht

SAN ANTONIO, March 8. (AP)—A jury slept tonight on the fate of Joe Hobrecht, charged with the murder of Captain Charles Stevens. The jury received the case at 4:50 p. m., ate supper, deliberated for several hours and went to bed, to resume deliberations Sunday.

Arguments were opened Saturday by a state's attorney who was followed by the defense counsel. The state asked the death penalty.

Stevens was shot and killed Sept. 24 when ambushed about nine miles south of San Antonio by a gang of men and women. One of the attackers was killed in an exchange of shots. Stevens died the next day.

When talkies were shown recently in a Chinese theatre in Singapore they were not received with enthusiasm and had to be withdrawn.

Sweden has an air ambulance service.

UVALDE, Mar. 8. (AP)—Making an estimated 80,000,000 cubic feet of gas, the A. W. West well No. 5 blew in today at a depth of 815 feet, on the West ranch 12 miles south of Uvalde. The well is an offset of Pundt No. 4, making nearly 35,000,000 feet. No. 5 was the largest brought in in the field.

STILL SILENT

LOISVILLE, Ky., March 8. (AP)—Former President Calvin Coolidge, on his way to Washington from California, passed through Louisville late Friday without damaging his reputation for taciturnity. He and Mrs. Coolidge posed smilingly for photographs in a short stay here, but in answer to questions, Mr. Coolidge observed affably, "I have no information about anything."

NORMAN, Mar. 8. (Special)—President W. B. Bizzell of the University of Oklahoma will speak at the commencement exercises at the niversity of Kansas June 9 and at the University of Indiana June 10. The commencement program at the University of Oklahoma will be held June 3.

BROWN FOR FALL

There's a vogue for dark brown, chiming in as it does with falling leaves and other autumn activities. And with dark brown nothing is smarter this year than eggshell.

Fashion Plaque

JADE SUEDE and silver kid combine to make a charming new mule with an unusual stand-up ruffle over the instep.

Spring Will Be Season Of Woolen Suits

A chocolate brown coveri cloth suit, with seven eighths length coat, features a cape collar, faced with mimosa yellow flat crepe. Suitable accessories include a little felt turban in the identical brown and a pair of three-eyelet brown kid oxfords, from Delman.

BY HENRI BENDEL
Written for NEA Service

NEW YORK, March 8—The large family of woolens furnishes Paris with the most popular material for out-of-door one-piece frocks and suits for spring. They form a complete community of their own and are fascinating in their variety. Leading the vogue are soft plain jerseys, covert cloth, and the great variety of lightweight crepey materials such as worsted shantung and pique.

The spring of 1930 will be a season of suits. Even the mid-season collection offered them in both silk and wool — the former for southern playgrounds and the latter for colder climates. At the moment the charming woolens are dominating the sports mode, but the warmer days will find the silk prints extensively employed, especially the tie silks which do not soil or crush so quickly as the plain materials.

Variety Marks Suits

The most satisfactory thing about the return of suits is the enormous choice they offer in both cut and fabric. There are the swank little Eton jackets so charming when developed in the amusing silk prints. There are the short box coats of tweed-jersey or jersey-tweed. There are dress suits of broadcloth with long coats and the serviceable full-length and three-quarter length coats found in so many of the suits developed in covert cloth.

In fact, one may go "suited" from morning to night and still be entirely in the mode since there is a suit for every occasion, many of them with blouses which accentuate their charm. Certainly no well-balanced wardrobe is complete without several suits of varying character and materials.

One of the most satisfactory materials for the traveling suit is covert cloth. A charming example is illustrated in chocolate brown featuring a fashionable cape, and illustrating the possibilities of rich color combination. The lapels and cape are faced with mimosa yellow flat silk crepe, the former ending in a graceful scarf in the back. The coat comes almost to the bottom of the skirt, and the blouse is of the same material as the facing of the cape. With it is worn a brown felt turban and brown kid oxfords.

Youth is stressed in the development of the spring jerseys. Many of them imitate the self-patterned crepes. Others present color combinations that gladden the eye. Of the latter, an excellent example is illustrated. The cream-colored jersey is striped with raspberry and pale pink, furnishing a combination which makes one think of spring gardens. The effect is charming. The bands in the sleeveless blouse which circle the hips are repeated in the pleated skirt and in the triangular scarf. The same color scheme is found in the Shetland wool which forms a crocheted cover for the straw hat, while sports oxfords of white buckskin with brown leather trims complete the charming ensemble.

Affinity In Fabrics

Woolens and silks for spring adhere to the same ideas and stress much the same range of colorings. They are quite frank in their imitation of each other in weaves and colors. Myers' tweed family is the most famous and includes the effective tweed-jerseys and jersey-tweeds which the French couturiers are using so extensively in the morning one-piece frocks. Illustrated is a Patou concept for the development of a morning frock of red and beige jersey-tweed for which I have designed a sports hat carrying the same color scheme. Jersey-tweeds are used extensively in combination with leather for spring pumps, and there are scores of lovely bags made of the same material.

Another important member of the wool family is the series of wool georgettes which I find most effective in the creation of daytime duds for the out-of-doors. This branch of the family includes all varities of the crepey woolens and will be found exceptionally serviceable for ocean travel during the early months of spring.

National Week Will Be Celebrated In Various Ways Throughout United States; Local Program Is Planned

More Than One Thousand Public Relations Dinners To Be Held Thursday Evening When Employers And Other Representatives Will Be Guests Here

WOMEN in gainful occupations throughout the United States will be in both the social and the civic limelight during the coming week. March 10-16, inclusive, will be celebrated as national Business and Professional Women's week by 1,100 communities. This will be the third annual observance of the week, which is under the sponsorship of the national Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, largest organization of business women in the world.

Many communities will celebrate with a fashion show, demonstrating the evolution of business women's fashions from the days of the leg o'mutton sleeve to the advanced modes of 1930. Others will give expositions of enterprises under the auspices of their local clubs, and still others will stress the education program of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs. But on one project, the clubs in all communities will cooperate. This is a public relations dinner on the evening of Thursday, March 13, when the subject of discussion in each community will be the same: "What Does Our Community Need Most?"

At Hotel Lubbock

Employers of the local Business and Professional Women's club and a representative from every other club in the city will be special guests at the local public relations dinner, which will be held at the Hotel Lubbock, and a number of civic problems will be discussed.

Dance Is Planned

A Blarney dance in the ballroom of the Hotel Lubbock from 9 to 12 o'clock will feature Monday's entertainment. Miss Louise Baird, chairman of the dance committee, will be assisted in arrangements by Miss Beatrice Padgett and Mrs. Townsend Davis.

To Broadcast Speech

Perhaps not all of the 56,000 business women will be actually able to hear the voice of Miss Marion E. McClench, national president of the Business and Professional Women's clubs, when she broadcasts over station WJR Monday afternoon, but all of them will be able to have a direct message from their national chief.

Public relations chairmen of Business and Professional Women's clubs outside the radius of station WJR have been making arrangements with their local radio stations for broadcasts on that date, and the club presidents will be provided with copies of Miss McClench's address which they will broadcast simultaneously.

Many clubs will hold radio parties and tune in on the broadcasts, and in cases where they cannot do this the Business Women's week message will be read to the members at their regular club meeting. It will probably be one of the most widely broadcast messages since radio was perfected, and it will reach into hundreds of communities from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf.

Articles on "Thrift," "Health," and "Education and Vocational Guidance," written by members of the Lubbock club will be published during the week.

Miss Mattie Randolph, assistant cashier of the First National bank in Lubbock, is an admirably qualified president. Mrs. S. D. Buchanan, vice-president of the club, is one of the pioneer business women of this city and owns and operates the Art Studio. Miss Ruth McCormick who is secretary and treasurer of the club is assistant teller in the collection and exchange department of the First National bank. Miss McCormick is also chairman of the educational committee.

Mrs. G. T. Scales Chosen As Delegate To National P.-T. A. Convention

To Represent This City At Meet In Denver, Colorado

Mrs. Marrs Of Austin Will Preside For Meeting; Is President Of National Congress

Mrs. G. T. Scales has been chosen local delegate of the 1930 convention of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, which will be held in Denver, Colorado, May 17-24. Mrs. Scales is quite well known because of her success in local P.-T. A. work and as publicity manager for the city organization.

Plans for the convention are of interest to Texans at large, not only because 60,000 Texans are members of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers associations, but because individual Texans, women well known and admired for their real worth and accomplishments have important parts on the program. First in importance is Mrs. S. M. N. Marrs of Austin, president of the National congress and past president of the Texas Congress who will preside at the Denver convention. Mrs. Marrs announces the theme for the convention as "A New World Challenge to Parents and Teachers" and states that this topic will be discussed from the standpoint of the teacher, parent, statesman and divine. She further states that every phase of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers will be presented, from organization to projects.

Mrs Noyes Darling Smith, state president of the Texas Congress will preside at the conference of state presidents. Mrs. Ella Caruthers Porter, organizer of the Texas branch and national chairman of thrift, will have an important part in the thrift conference and dinner, while Mrs. Edward Kneeland, state life membership chairman of the Texas branch has been asked to discuss her plans and methods of building up a life membership department of unusual dimensions at the life membership dinner on Monday evening of convention week.

To Have Chorus

And, of course, Texans are interested in the announcement that Miss Helen McBride, national chairman of music, is going to round up all mother singers who attend the convention and form a huge mothers' singers chorus. They will be directed in a program of selected choruses on the last evening of the convention.

Advance notices about the convention contain much more of interest to everybody, among which may be noted:

Denver workers are in charge of the Vesper Service on Sunday afternoon and have arranged for Rev. Martin E. Anderson, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church of Denver, to speak. Sunday evening will find a beautiful evensong in progress.

Child Welfare Magazine will be featured at the Gold Star dinner which is being planned for Tuesday evening.

Pageants will play an important role in the convention plans. Denver people are already working on a pageant to honor the founders and an interlude depicting the international phase of the work An elaborate presentation of the rural life work is being planned by Miss Florence Ward, manager of the rural life bureau.

Informal Reception

An informal reception Monday afternoon in the hall in which the exhibits are on display will introduce to the delegates their national officers, the bureau managers, and the national committee chairman.

Industrious and studious delegates will gladly receive the news that classes will be given throughout the week in program making, organization methods, and publicity; while state chairmen and bulletin editors will be given time in which to confer with national chairmen and other leaders.

Miniature Tomb Stones Add To Chosen Theme Friday Evening At Dance Given By Pre-Med Club

Lights covered with purple crepe paper aided in creating a gruesome spectacle at the first annual dance given by the Pre-Med club of Texas Technological college at the Hilton hotel Friday evening from 9 until 12 o'clock. Placed at intervals along the Matador court were minature tomb stones hung with wreaths of flowers and inscribed with epitaphs of several students and faculty members.

Further accentuating the chosen motif were the skull and cross bones banners, symbol of the club, which hung behind the orchestra stand in the ballroom and were placed along the court. Basket of flowers added a note of loveliness.

During the evening refreshments of punch and cakes embossed with tiny skulls and cross bones were served.

Approximately 400 students and townspeople were present at the dance to which doctors of the city were invited as special guests.

Story Of Mallard Sisters Reads Like Fiction; They Pioneered For Lubbock

Early Days In Store Business Recalled By Local Women

MISS MARGARET MALLARD

MRS. J. W. BAZE

BACK in the days when the roads leading into Lubbock were mere cow trails, and Lubbock itself was a small trading post, came the Mallard family from the east to make its home and to build the first resident house on the townsite of Lubbock. From this family came two of Lubbock's pioneer business women, Misses Margaret and Ann Mallard.

The Misses Mallard started their career in the dress-making business in their home. But not being satisfied with this, they decided to enter business down town, and without any money of their own, they borrowed five hundred dollars, on a plain note, and bought out Mrs. Van Sander's Ladies Ready-to-Wear shop the only one in town, and assumed an indebtedness of forty-five hundred dollars. The shop was known as the Hy Style Dress shop and located on the northwest corner of what is now Broadway and Texas avenue.

Business Grows

During the first year under the management of the Misses Mallard the business grew and customers of this shop were principally ranch people and came from the west as far as Roswell, New Mexico, south as far as Colorado City, east as far as Roaring Springs and Amarillo on the north. And at the end of the successful year all indebtedness had been paid and they had made their first trip to the Eastern markets to purchase new stock for the shop.

Many amusing incidents occurred during the early days of their business. Once a ranch woman, who had not been to town in two years and was preparing to make a trip east, came into the shop to buy a complete wardrobe, and knowing nothing of the current modes of dress, gave Miss Margaret a one hundred dollar bill and left the matter of selection entirely up to her. After having selected everything for the complete wardrobe except shoes, which the shop did not handle, Miss Mallard sent out in town for several pairs of shoes from which to make a selection. Imagine a woman of today walking into a shop and buying a complete wardrobe for a like amount and having the clerk decide on everything for her!

Men Purchase, Too

Miss Mallard said very frequently men came in and purchased clothes for the entire family, often times not knowing the correct sizes to buy, would pick out some one in the shop about the size of the person they were buying for, the clerk not knowing whether the garment was for a brunette or blonde would sell him a delicate green for a dusky brunette or maybe a bright red for a pale blonde.

In one instance a ranchman made a large purchase and being unable to sign his name to the check, except by mark, had Miss Mallard sign his name to the check and it was paid by his bank without a question.

Location Is Changed

During this time the Hy Style shop was moved from its first location to the building now occupied by Sherrod Brothers Hardware store and remained there until 1919 when they sold out to Barrier Brothers, for whom they both worked for fourteen months.

Having higher ambitions than to work for someone else, they again entered business for themselves, and opened a shop known as the Mallard Sisters Dress shop, where the Bowen Drug is now located. They successfully conducted this business for four years then on account of the delicate health of their mother they sold out their business so that Miss Margaret could remain at home with her.

Miss Ann Mallard then opened a millinery shop in the W. O. Stevens store and engaged in this work until she became Mrs. J. W. Baze.

Miss Margaret Mallard a few years later opened a dressmaking shop in the city, which she still owns and operates.

WICHITA FALLS, Mar. 8. (AP) — Tom Shook former police chief of Electra, in jail here awaiting the outcome of appeals from sentences totalling 35 years for convictions on murder and robbery charges, today was ordered transferred to the Dallas county jail for safe keeping. The order was issued by District Judge P A. Martin.

Shook escaped from the Wichita county jail about a year and a half ago shortly after arrest in connection with the killing of W. O. "Yellow" Daugherty at Electra. After many months of liberty, he was recaptured in the southeast and returned to this county to face charges.

B. And P. W. Week Is Originated By New York Woman

Mrs. Emma Dot Partridge, Executive Secretary Of National Federation Is First To Suggest Plan

The idea of National Business Women's week was conceived by Miss Emma Dot Partridge of New York City, executive secretary of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs from 1924 to 1927. At the 1927 convention of the Federation in Oakland, California, Miss Partridge presented a recommendation that a week be set aside annually to call attention to the achievements of women in the businesses and professions and to give the community at large an opportunity to become acquainted with the program of the Business and Professional Women's club.

Acting upon Miss Partridge's suggestion the Federation sponsored the first annual observance of National Business Women's Week, April 15 to 22, 1928.

In 1929 a similar program, but one indicative of the increasing breadth of vision of business women was adopted, for this time greater emphasis was laid upon what the business woman could do to promote community welfare.

Seventeen governors endorsed Business Women's Week observance last year; 68 mayors issued proclamations urging it; 1,087 community organizations were represented at public relations dinners and 150 special Business Women's Week editions of newspapers were issued.

Who Makes Party A Success? People All Over World May Have Their Part

Who made the party a success?

The hostess had her part. The guests had their part. The cook had her part. But how seldom we stop to think that scores of others throughout the United States and abroad also contributed to the function, and if the cooperation should suddenly be brought to a close there would be little left for the refreshment plate.

"Even the simplest plate", said Roy Furr, local wholesale groceryman, "may be a mixture of products from all parts of the world. Take for example, a sandwich plate. Everyone knows what a long process is necessary before a loaf of bread reaches the hostess, but other ingredients also have quite a history. Tuna fish, for instance, is caught off the coast of California, particularly San Diego, is packed there, and shipped to the wholesale merchants, who, in turn, sell it to the retail merchants, and they transfer it to the women of the city. Nuts for the sandwiches likewise come from California.

"Then, mayonnaise ordinarily used for sandwiches. This is made from an oil manufactured chiefly in New Orleans, eggs, which go directly from the farmers to the manufacturers, spices, which come from foreign countries, and vinegar, which is made largely from apples grown in New Mexico and the northwestern part of the United States.

"There are usually olives on a sandwich plate. These are grown abroad, received in barrels of brine in this country, and bottled in the factories here. Pickles, which are always appropriate, are grown and packed in different sections of the country, one of the largest packing houses being in Blue Island, Ill.

For Salad Plate

"For the salad, there is still another story. Canned pears and other canned fruits are especially popular for the party salad. Pears are grown chiefly in northern California, where they are peeled, prepared for canning, and, after they are placed in the cans, are coked for ten or fifteen minutes. Then they are shipped to the wholesale houses. Lettuce, without, which few salads are complete, also is grown in California.

"The cup of coffee, one of the most popular beverages, has had quite an adventure. Coffee is grown in Brazil and shipped raw to this country, where it is roasted and sent through wholesale and retail trade to the housewife. Sugar, which is served wherever coffee is served, is grown in Cuba, shipped raw to the United States, refined in the factories here, and sent to the wholesale houses."

Use of Candy

It is through the use of attractive candy that color schemes are usually emphasized. If the function is a club party, the club colors are usually reflected in the candy, if it is Christmas time, red and green mints are favored, and in the present season, that of St. Patrick, green is the most popular color. Candy, Mr. Furr explained, being a manufactured product, may come from most anywhere. A great deal of that used here, he said, comes from Fort Worth, Dallas, and St. Louis, while some of it is made here in Lubbock.

NEW SHOES

The two and three eyelet tie is having a tremendous vogue in new shoes shown for fall. Many of them are in purple and green.

Shirts with attached collars which are extended so that the ends may be tied in a bow are to be introduced into London.

Ostrich feathers, so long a drug on the market, are becoming popular in Europe for trimming boudoir slippers and shoes and for making feather dusters.

Mrs. Jackson Is Honoree At Party

St. Patrick Theme Favored At Lovely Even Given By Mesdames V. D. Shell and Newma Roberts Friday

One of the loveliest social functions of the past week was an attractive bridge party given by Mesdames V. D. Shell and Newma Roberts in the Shell home, 2409 19th street, Friday afternoon.

The party was given in honor of Mrs. Gilbert Jackson, who, with her husband and her small daughter, Mallie Lou, is moving to Ardmore, Okla., to make her home.

The St. Patrick theme was emphasized in the motif and colors of green and white were used at tables arranged for bridge. Prizes for high and low cut at each table were given and the honor guest was presented a lovely piece of lingerie by the hostesses. At the close of the afternoon a salad plate was served.

Guests were Mesdames Jackson W. D. Benson, jr., Henry Pyka, Del Morgan, Grady Higginbotham, J. A. Phipps, jr., Leo Edwards, Ray Dickey, O. A. Terry, Fred Childress, Martin R. Smith, jr., Clayton Gamhill, Frank Kent, Bean Harrell, Alec Hensley, Joe Nislar, R. G. Porter, J. D. Hassell, Louis A. Kittrell, and Miss Geraldine Smith.

Slogan And Aims Of B. And P. W. Groups Explained

Women Of Today May Enter Any Vocation, Says Miss Mattie Randolph, Head Of Local Group

"Better Business Women for a Better Business World" is the slogan of the Business and Professional Woman's clubs of the country, according to Miss Mattie Randolph, president of the local group.

"The clubs have as their object," she said, "to elevate the standards of women in business and the profession, to promote the interest of business and professional women and bring about a spirit of cooperation among them, to stimulate local and state organizations, and to extend opportunities to business and professional women through education along lines of industrial, scientific, and vocational activities. Its policy in non-partisan, non-sectarian, self-supporting and self-governing.

"No one will deny that this is already a better business world for the business women, when present conditions under which women are working are compared with those of a few years ago. The improvement of these conditions only makes us more ambitious for still better conditions and creates in us a desire to become more and more competent to do better and bigger things.

Value of Club

"The club offers a splendid opportunity for the business woman to enlarge and enrich her experiences in life by coming in contact with other women in the world who are doing what she is doing, and by meeting those of her own community who are workers in her own line or in other lines and keeping in touch with women of other communities through the National or State Federations she soon begins to feel that she is having a part in the work of the outside world as well as in her own small shop or office. She can keep in touch with what women are doing beyond the borders of her own country through our good will tours and international conventions. This constant interchange of ideas and plans in connection with the things that occupy their attention serves as a stimulate us mentally to the business and professional woman. It is a broadening influence in the lives of members especially those whose lives are necessarily limited for many reasons.

Many Occupations

"These are the days when a woman may work at anything, and does. It is interesting to note that there are only thirty-five occupations of the five hundred seventy-two listed by the last census in which no woman ventured to claim the right to earn a living. However, with the publication of the next census, we anticipate that this narrow margin will have vanished and that we will find women taking their place beside men in all the occupations. We feel certain that the most successful combination of the future will be managed by trained men and women each sex contributing its full share to a result that will be demonstrably better than will be obtained by one sex alone. Through the study of current economic forces women should gain a clear conception of the industrial recolution through which we are now passing. If in the light of this knowledge women will prepare themselves for the important new positions opening in this new business world, they will find a geen demand for their services. In the rapidly expanding area of business activity which we see today—and which shows no sign of slackened growth—there will be plenty of jobs for both men and women.

Aim of Club

"The aim of the Lubbock Business and Professional Women's club is to help its members by giving programs planned along such broad and comprehensive lines that at the end of each year each member may say that she has progressed in the business world, that she is a better business women. We want the activities of our club to be such that it might be said that Lubbock is a better place to live in because of this club. We want our membership to be so inclusive as to number on our roster the name of every worth while business woman in Lubbock.

Symbols of Emblem

"The smybols of our emblem stand for harmony, progress, truth and knowledge, with the figure of Nike the winged victor of Samothrace representing the success that must be ours if we faithfully avail ourselves of the privileges and responsibilities that belong to membership in this club. We know that we cannot fail to attain the goal of 'Better Business Women for a Better Busines World', if we forget not the ideals of the symbol, the beauty of art, the need of knowledge, our responsibility to the business world, the opportunity to uplift, and the ever increasing need to be kind."

Retired Minister Gives Statement

"In A Short Time Orgatone (Orgotane) Has Built Me Up, I've Suffered Twenty Years Says Wichita Man

I've suffered twenty years and Orgatone (Orgotane) built me up in a short time," said R. E. Helm of 300 Polk St., Wichita Falls, Texas, while talking with an Orgatone (Orgotane) representatives.

I had a severe case of stomach trouble and everything I ate would sour on my stomach and bother my heart, which beat so fast at times, I thought it would run away with me. I had to take soda all the time, and never had any appetite for I was afraid to eat. I was bilious and was dizzy all the time, and was very nervous. I never got very much sleep for I just couldnt seem to rest, I was in a very run-down condition and kept going down hill every day. My system was worse every day and I realized that something must be done, but everything I ate didn't seem to do me any good.

I was reading the paper one day and noticed a stomach preparation, Orgatone (Orgotane). I got a bottle and have commenced to get better ever since. I simply feel better and stronger than I have in twenty years. I am glad to endorse Orgatone (Orgotane), for it is the best stomach medicine I ever heard of or have ever taken. Anyone who will give it a trial will soon learn of its value."

Genuine Argotane may be bought in Lubbock at Bowen Drug Store. (adv.)

The WOMAN'S DAY

A gentle, flattering, but keen criticism, or I should say observation of the American woman is made by an Irishwoman, Dorothea Donn-Byrne, in Vogue.

"The American woman," she states, "is just the least bit too perfect . . . .

"Pretty, dainty American women! All over Europe we se them coming towards us in the fine frosty, or dull murky summer weather—sitting in swagger hotel lounges, looking at cathedrals and picture galleries. And they are always the same—suit touching at all the right spots, shoes matching, bag matching, comfortable hat, immaculate blouse.

"How on earth do they know before they come just what to bring? Why do they never look a bit disheveled? Why is one so sure their feet aren't hurting? The American woman's uniform perfection and her complete satisfaction with herself are incredible in my country. I have here only one wee mean question to ask: is it much fun being a lovely creature among so many lovely creatures?"

PRAISE FOR FLAWS

There is nothing duller than absolute perfection, and nothing more diverting than a few well-chosen flaws. Certainly contrast is the spice of life.

Who wants to go through life looking as correct as a mannequin, ironing out her personality as she goes? It occurs to me that it is much more effective to rise to superlative heights at times, and drop to drabness at others—a bull and a bear market.

The most startlingly beautiful women I know are not beautiful all the time. They can look utterly spent, and old at times, then suddenly snap out of it and sparkle and gleam. And the contrast is intriguing.

There are other women I know, who can be badly dressed nine-tenths of the time, then suddenly knock your eye right out by looking like a million dollars. Their high spots are so good they could never be maintained, but of course their low is low.

• • •

BEAUTY BY CONTRAST

The other evening I saw a woman, whom I have seen dozens of times before in day dresses and tweed suits, for which she has a weakness, in an evening gown. It was the only time I have ever seen her look right, but she was a knock-out.

Close-fitting black satin—she is no sylph—and a bit of white chiffon and some brilliants, and a judicious exposure of shoulders and arms, completely transformed her.

I shall see her again in those boardy tweeds with the badly fitting blouses she affects, or in some badly cut afternoon dress—of which she has a goodly number—and wonder why she does not look honestly at herself in the mirror. But, I shall also look forward to seeing her again in a blaze of glory.

Always I wonder whether she is going to be the atrocious Mrs. Jekyl or the beautiful Mrs. Hyde. But the point is, I shall be interested.

Anything that becomes routine loses its interest, even if it happens to be flawless perfection.

So why not declare a holiday occasionally, and look as careless and dowdy as we might feel like? And with the universal irony it may eventuate that when we are making the least effort about looks or clothes, we may be furnishing the contrast that will put the next new dress over with a bang.

Your Feet will be both Grateful ... and Gracefully Shod

Put your feet in shoes that your friends will admire—but put them in shoes that are CORRECTLY BUILT. In short, put them in Foot Savers.

Foot Savers are style shoes with a special, patented, inbuilt construction. This feature is invisible—but its results aren't. For it brings a complete comfort and freedom from strain that will manifest itself at once in an increased beauty of ankle and arch.

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

IRRITABILITY MAY RESULT FROM ILLNESS BY VIRGINIA LEE

"I see by the papers" that a woman has been convicted in court for being "a common scold". A good many people — men especially — will cheer. The verdict carries a prison sentence.

Women are usually credited with being the world's worst naggers. They may be more guilty than men. The many petty details of housekeeping, the constant worrying care of little children and loss of sleep when members of the family are ill, all tend to wear down a woman's nerve resistance.

Women by no means monopolize the fault, however. There are many men scolds who make their families miserable whenever they are at home.

• • •

Sometimes an irritable disposition is caused by physical illness and vanishes when the person is well again. Sometimes it is the defence mechanism unconsciously set up to cover a feeling of inferiority—or a desire to seem important and to attract attention.

• • •

For the person who realizes that others are made unhappy by unkind remarks and who wants earnestly to change, there is hope. Only by constant watchfulness of one's tongue and discipline can one overcome such a trait, striving to think always of the other person and not of oneself and one's ego will accomplish it.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: My husband and I are living with my mother and father. My husband has not a secure job and I have been in poor health lately, and we have a little baby eight months old.

"I adore my mother and simply could not get along without her. She is very good to me in many ways and thinks a lot of our baby, but she has a terribly sharp tongue and doesn't care how much what she says hurts anyone's feelings. I have a quick temper. I sometimes reply heatedly to her unkind remarks, then she becomes offended and won't speak to me for several days.

"When I think over our quarrel regardless of what she has said, I feel I would like to tell her I am sorry for what I said, and did not mean it, but her manner discourages me and I cannot do it. Besides I know she would only make some sarcastic remark.

"I wish we could get a place to ourselves, but we can't for perhaps a year. Can you suggest anything I could do?

"DISCOURAGED SALLY."

I, too, wish you could move into your own quarters, no matter how small they might be. As that's impossible, you will just have to stand it. I think if I were you I would tell mother how sorry you are when you let go and "talk back." I know just how you feel and how hard it is to keep back the angry words, but of course it never helps, and if you just say, "I'm sorry I said what I did, mother," it will make you feel better, no matter what she says in reply.

I wish she would see this letter so that she could realize how badly her sharp tongue makes you feel. She would undoubtedly make an effort to curb it, unless she is one of those hopeless people who take pride in a reputation for saying "just what she thinks."

THE LIONS PARK COMES TO LIFE

ANNOUNCEMENT that 200 or more trees are to be planted in Lions park, which is that portion of city property located between the Plainview highway and Tumbe N swimming pool in the canyon at the northeast edge of Lubbock, marks the beginning of what is hoped will be one of the most attractive spots on the South Plains.

Before another week or ten days are chalked from the calendar these 200 Chinese elms will be swaying in the breeze, their roots reaching into the soil for energy that their topmost branches may reach skyward. As sentinels of attractive scenery, they will become eloquent appeals to citizens of the plains to plant more trees in yards, on sidewalks or boulevards, in other park sites of towns and cities, or in school grounds.

If the Lubbock Lions park becomes what similar parks, sponsored in other cities by other Lions clubs have become, recreation for many thousands of children and grown-ups will be provided for years to come.

It is to be expected that other civic clubs, women's clubs and other organizations will accentuate this good work by assisting in further beautifying this and our other city parks.

OUT OF WORK

Empty stomachs make radicals and revolutionaries.

This truth has been demonstrated so often that it should be unnecessary to remind the public that disorders such as those now prevalent in several of the larger cities are incited, not by dissatisfaction with the existing form of government, but by widespread and prolonged unemployment with its consequent sufferings and fears.

While there is general dissatisfaction with Republican rule there are among the rioters but a handful of political theorists who see the only hope for better things in the overthrowing of our representative form of government and the setting up of a communistic system in its place.

Department of justice announcements that the riots are being organized and financed by Moscow are thin subterfuges fabricated to save the face of the Hoover administration. It is an old trick not likely to fool many people.

It is most significant that the demonstrations in the industrial East followed a period of unseasonably warm weather that brought the idle millions out to the street corners. As long as they were kept indoors by cold weather they did not realize the extent of the unemployment, and consequently the seriousness of their position. You cannot bring together a large number of idle men for any length of time without bringing the well known mob psychology to a boil.

AN UNNEIGHBORLY PROGRAM

Chairman Johnson, of the house committee on immigration, has introduced a bill proposing to apply a quota to immigration from New World countries. The bill provides two distinct bases for quotas, differing from both the old and the new systems which have been applied to non-American immigration.

Immigration from Canada and Mexico is restricted to a number four times the total of citizens of the United States who departed from this country for permanent residence in those countries in the fiscal year 1929. Newfoundland and Cuban quotas are on the same basis.

Quotas for other American countries equal in each case the number of immigration visa issued to nationals of those countries in the fiscal year 1929.

The two systems combined allow a total immigration of a little over 76,000, of which Canada gets a little over 67,500 and Mexico a little less than 3,000. The largest quota under the second system is that of Venezuella amounting to 586.

In considering these proposals Congress faces a serious question of policy. As to Canada it is sought to break with the practice of unrestricted welcome to Dominion citizens which is as old as the country, and has for it the sanction of unusually relation of neighborliness, comity and common ideals on both sides of the border. As for Mexico it threatens to deprive American agriculture of what cultivators in some lines regard as indispensable labor. There is recognition of this need in the provision for the immigration in excess of the quota in the next two fiscal years.

As to all countries in the New World, the bill wars with the spirit of Washington policy to our neighbor states, especially in Latin America.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

SENATOR INDIFFERENT OVER HIS PLAN TO MAKE LIQUOR BUYERS PUNISHABLE

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, March .—Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas, is not bestirring himself very vigorously in behalf of his proposition to make liquor buyers as punishable as bootleggers.

The proposal is before congress and the senator says he considers the idea which it embodies a logical one, but he is not hustling for votes to put it in effect. Having launched it, apparently he feels that he has done enough, at least for the present.

Somewhat curiously, the wets rather than the drys are disappointed at the Lone Star stateman's air of indifference.

The wets are belatedly sold on the theory that prohibition can best be made unpopular, if at all, by adjusting the law so as to catch victims in shoals. If they had their way, the Sheppard plan undoubtedly would go through a-kiting.

The drys are the folk who regard it askance.

There are politicians who frankly hint that Senator Sheppard himself would not have suggested penalizing liquor buying if he had not thought it would take better among drys generally.

Of course this is guesswork. Naturally the senator does not admit it.

Still, it is a fact that the drys disagree on a couple of important questions in a fashion that must be extremely embarrassing to a law-maker whose stock in trade consists so largely of the prohibition issue as the author of the Eighteenth amendments.

For one thing: What really is the status of prohibition enforcement?

Several of the most strenuous drys in public life take the position that it has broken down utterly, and clamor for an investigation.

Notable among them is Senator William J. Harris of Georgia.

In certain respects Senators Harris and Sheppard find themselves similarly situated. Both come up this year for renomination—election, on the Democratic ticket, being a mere formality in Georgia and Texas alike. Both must recall, perhaps with a trace of uneasiness, that they supported the humid Mr. Smith in 1928 in a couple of ultra-arid states. It ma ybe only a coincidence that both felt the urge to do something a trifle dryer than usual with the 1930 primaries just coming on.

Senator Harris' method was to deliver a smashing attack on enforcement—and keep it up.

Senator Sheppard's was to propose the prosecution of liquor buyers, as well as sellers—and then lie low.

The Sheppard policy of doing just eough, and no more, did not appeal to Senator Harris, who is a pugnacious man. The Harris policy, of tearing things wide open, did not appeal to Senator Sheppard, who is a cautious one.

Unfortunately (for Senator Sheppard) the Harris offensive proved popular.

Pretted by it (for it conflicted with his program) the Texan tried to pooh-pooh the whole thing, saying prohibition has worked very well and needs no investigating.

Senator Harris refused to be hushed.

Senators Borah of Idaho, Brookhart of Iowa, Norris of Nebraska, and Wheeler of Montana liked the sound of the uproar he was creating and joined in.

The rumpus is highly distasteful to Senator Sheppard, who, in the meantime, is having trouble with his own plan.

The Anti-Saloon League does not approve of it a bit.

As is well known, the league always has opposed making liquor buyers subject to the penalties of the dry law, on the ground that their testimony is needed to convict vendors.

The Texas senator has, indeed, the backing of drys like Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and Dr. Clarence True Wilson, who have other affiliations closer than their relationship to the Anti-Saloon League, but it is preeminently undesirable for a dry senator to have the league against him, for all that.

Not that anyone expects Senator Sheppard to have serious difficulty in his home state.

Yet the mix-up goes to show how the aftermath of the Houston convention still gums the political cards.

COOK POTATO IN SKIN, PRESERVE ALL MINERAL AND PROTEIN ELEMENTS

Cooking Potatoes

"Dear Doctor: 1. My family think that eating potatoes cooked with the skins on, or fried a day or two after they were cooked, are too heavy to digest. Which way are potatoes the most easily digested?

"2. My arms and legs go to sleep. Is it due to poor circulation or insufficient exercise?

"3. Should a girl of 15 who hasnt menstruated ye. be taken to a doctor? MRS. N."

1. Abaked potato is considered the most easily digested. Mashed potatoes are next. Fried potatoes take the longest to digest because of the fat, fat being a food principle that stays longest in the stomach; which is all right, too, if there is no irritation of the stomach.

The potato peel is good roughage, but the old idea that there were vitamins and mineral elements in the peel itself, has been proved erroneous. It is true that the best part of the protein and mineral elements are right under the skins of the potatoes, where the germinating "eyes" are, and if the potatoes are peeled before cooking, some of this is lost, depending upon the depth of peeling. When potatoes are boiled and then peeled so that the thin skin itself comes off, nothing is lost. If you have to peel potatoes in a hurry, scrub them well and boil up the peelings to use the broth in a soup, or put them directly into the soup, if you are going to strain it.

Don't let potatoes soak in cold water after peeling, for a goodly proportion of the protein and salts are drawn off in the water. This is all right only if you are going to use the water in soups.

Potatoes are good anti-scurvy food, as is shown by the fact that they protect Ireland from scurvy. They have a high grade of protein and they leave an alkaline ash. Remember we all get too much of the acid ash foods: cereals and flesh foods. Those who are suffering from acidosis, gout, kidney and blood vessel involvement, can benefit by substituting potatoes.

2. Arms and legs "going to sleep" may be caused by poor circulation from many reasons, perhaps the position you use in sitting and sleeping. Have a physical check-up to see if there is any other reason.

3. No, it isn't necessary to take the girl to a physician. (Of course, it is wise for all of us to have a check-up at least once a year.) The time of the onset of menstruation varies so markedly, from 11 to 17. We have a pamphlet on the Hygiene of Women which goes into this subject.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Almost from the time he arrives at Hillcrest, home of the millionaire BERKELEYS, for a week-end, DETECTIVE DUNDEE feels premonitions of disaster. In the household are: Mr. and Mrs. Berkeley; DICK, tipsy profligate; CLORINDA, engaged to Crosby; GIGI, 15-year-old sub-deb; MRS. LAMBERT, social secretary and a friend of Crosby's; WICKETT, butler; DORIS MATTHEWS, lady's maid, and EUGENE ARNOLD, chauffeur, to whom Doris is engaged.

Dundee puzzles over several questions: Why is Clorinda marrying Crosby, when she is still in love with JOHN MAXWELL? Why did Clorinda steal out of the house after 11 o'clock? Why did Gigi snatch the crystal flask of French perfume, presented to her mother by Crosby and sprinkle all the guests with it? Did Doris Matthews, the maid, meet Dick Berkeley as he had forced her to agree to do? If not, where was Dick? And lastly, why were Mr. and Mrs. Berkeley quarreling so violently in the library after 11? Did Berkeley suspect all that Dundee suspected, concerning Crosby and his wife's death?

The next morning Gigi commands Dundee to join a sunrise swimming party. The odor of perfume is strong about the lake. Gigi dives in first, rises with horror on her face. Dundee dives after her, then commands Clorinda to take Gigi to the house. He commands Crosby to stay.

* * *

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

"Murder!" Bonnie Dundee replied curtly to Seymour Crosby's question, but he spoke in a low voice so that the dreadful word should not reach the ears of the two girls who were on their way to the house.

Gigi had held back at first, hysterically asserting her right to stay since she had already seen "it," but Clorinda had jerked her small sister roughly to her feet and had dragged her away. Oddly, Clorinda had not asked a single question. Now Gigi had broken into a blind, zigzag run, one hand pressed against her eyes which had seen a sight they would never forget.

"Murder?" Crosby repeated incredulously. "Who?"

"Please go to the summerhouse, Crosby, and wait for me there, but I warn you not to touch anything," Dundee instructed sternly, ignoring the older man's question, rather as if he thought Seymour Crosby already knew the answer, and there was no need to waste time on words.

An angry flush replaced the dead pallor of Crosby's cheeks, and he parted his lips to speak, then thought better of it, and turned away, running toward the summerhouse in a jog trot.

Dundee stared after the running man with narrowed eyes, then, taking a deep breath, he plunged into the lake again. Once more he came to the surface many feet short of the spot where his dreadful work was to be done. Treading water, he glanced toward the little summerhouse. Seymour Crosby stood on the first of the three narrow steps leading down into the water a trembling hand shading his eyes from the sun.

"A rather terrible form of third degree for him, if—" Dundee said to himself, as he executed a surface dive that carried him to the spot directly in front of the summerhouse, where Gigi had discovered her "mermaid."

After nearly a minute of frantic work under water, the young detective rose again, his agonized lungs demanding great, deep draughts of air. As his chest heaved hurtingly, Dundee glanced upward toward Crosby again. He apparently had not moved a muscle, except in that trembling hand that still shaded his eyes.

"Just a few seconds more down there, thank God!" Dundee called to Crosby, and dived again.

When he rose once more he was towing a burden by the hair—an inert burden which could offer no hampering resistance, except that of weight, and now that he had done his gruesome work below water, the weight Dundee towed was pitifully light . . .

"Lend a hand, Crosby!" he panted.

But for a moment Seymour Crosby seemed too frozen with horror to obey. The hand which had been shielding his somber dark eyes from the sun now pressed frantically against them, to shut out the dreadful sight.

"I'd rather not try to manage alone, Crosby!" Dundee called sternly. "I don't want to bruise—her. Kneel down on the bottom step and lift her by the shoulders, please."

Seymour Crosby came out of his trance of horror sufficiently to kneel as commanded, and his white lips began to babble.

"Why, it's—Doris! Doris! I thought at first it was Letitia—Mrs. Lambert—"

"Did you?" Dundee grunted noncommittally. But he told himself that if Crosby's horrified astonishment was assumed, he was doing it rather well. . . . "That's right! Not very heavy, is she, poor girl? . . . Careful! Don't knock her head against the bench. . . . Now!"

And between them they laid the body of Doris Matthews, the lady's maid, upon the wide bench that encircled the round floor of the summerhouse. The pale-gold hair, which Dundee had admired the night before when he had seen it curling about the flushed, beautiful little face and knotted in a shining bun on the nape of the white neck, hung below the hard bench now in long, dripping strands, the color of wet sand. The slender body was clad in the plain black silk uniform she had been wearing when Dick Berkeley had forced her to dance, importuning her tipsily to meet him. But her little white apron of lace and lawn was missing, and the full skirt of her dress was bound about her knees with a clumsily tied silk scarf of many colors.

"Could it be—suicide?" Crosby stammered, his teeth chattering.

"If you had seen me untying that scarf to take out the rocks with which the body was weighted down, you wouldn't ask that," Dundee retorted. "I left them piled together on the floor of the lake, to be retrieved and examined by the police—"

"The police?" Crosby repeated, and Dundee saw his face grow even more bleak and gray. And Dundee knew that this new horror was reminiscent. "But of course—" he conceded jerkily.

* * *

"Of course!" Dundee agreed harshly. "Didn't I tell you it's murder? Look at that gash across the top of her head! . . . No, don't touch her! We've done all we can do until the police arrive. Please step outside and wait till thy-come. I'm going to telephone myself." He glanced toward the house, saw a man emerging from the back door. "Wickett—and heading this way. Coming to see what's up, I suppose. I'll wait for him," he added to Crosby, who had staggered blindly out of the summerhouse.

Dundee remained inside. One of his senses had been telegraphing an insistent message to his brain and now he had time to take it in. Fleur d'Amour! The little openside, circular arbor was reeking with the perfume which Seymour Crosby had presented to Mrs. Berkeley the night before and which Gigi had madly splashed upon every person in the room.

Kneeling so that his nose almost touched the floor, the detective confirmed his instinctive suspicion. Undoubtedly the crystal flask had been broken here, for in one of the broad cracks of the flooring he found a sliver of glass, as bright as a diamond in the sun.

Still crouching, he let his eyes rove over the floor, and across that part of the circular bench not oc-

On the Fence with The Seer

Well sir, we are all proud of our heavies because they carry a wallop that can rock an opponent to sleep and all that, but you know we don't have nothin' to be hopped-up over at that. Look back to them olden times when men was men and women were housewives, they didn't have any time-keepers in those days, the irritated ones just fought on and on until one of the boys forfeited his Poll-Tax receipt, that's all.

* * *

It was about that period when Xerxes and his dough-boys was perforating the earth with their hob-nails doin' field practice. Accordin' to what I can read this bird Xerxes was a whizz in them olden times. Besides being head-man over in Persia, he was a ferocious warrior with several notches on his favorite club and when he hollered scat all those Johnnies headed for the timber. Well anyway, he assembled a great army includin' chiefly all the butcher-boys, and axe-men in his province, judging from their batting averages.

* * *

One day Xerxes gathered all his army together and looked them over from the top of a sand hill and his chest was about to burst from pride when all at once he started to bawlin' in a loud baritone. One of his Corporals or somethin' tapped him on his Iron-Cross and wanted to know the origin of his grief and Xerxes said, 'cause it had dawned on him kinda vivid like that in a hundred years all of his army would be gone. Well sir, that was mighty considerate of old Xerxes and it does us good to know that the milk of human kindness was evident in them olden times but we got to thinkin' of that the other day when we passed a street-corner and looked some of the battle-axe boys over and decided that if Xerxes had seen them in his line-up that day he wouldn't have squalled. No sir, he would have sent them on a charge that would have made the Valley of Death and the Immortal Six Hundred look like a manouver in a Boy Scout patrol.

Spanish Official Studying Methods

DALLAS, March 8. (AP)—Fernando Sanchez Corona, Spanish envoy has been in Dallas to acquire first hand information on the cotton marketing methods here.

Corona is a member of the National Cotton commission of Spain. He was detailed to study the methods of producing and marketing cotton in this country.

The Spanish agent said that a program of increased cotton production was planned for Southern Spain where the soil was similar to that of North Texas.

"In order to improve the cotton situation, Spain has created a minimum guarantee," Corona said. "At the beginning of each planting season the state guarantees the grower a minimum price per pound. The higher the grade the higher will be the price. This induces the grower to raise the best grades."

Corona said Spain consumes between 330,000 and 350,000 bales of American cotton each year, mainly from Texas, and produced 3,500 bales. Spinners hold a high regard for the Texas products he asserted.

VALLS IS HONORED

LAREDO, March 8. (AP)—"The John A. Valls March," latest musical composition by Professor Carlos A. Ayala of San Antonio, is dedicated to District Attorney John A. Valls of Laredo. The cover page of the composition carries a striking photographic likeness of Mr. Valls. It is a snappy march.

While a workman was demolishing a wall in Smithfield, England, recently, two skeletons believed to have been placed there hundreds of years ago, fell on him.

cupied by the body. Yes, the blow that had killed or stunned Doris Matthews had been struck here, for the murder's hand had hastily, clumsily swabbed a section of the floor of the bench. Very near the bench, to the left of the steps leading into the water, there was a faintly brownish stain, which the hasty swabbing had not been able entirely to obliterate. Blood!

He was about to rise when his eyes caught sight of something several feet away, on the floor against the three-foot wall which formed a back for the circular bench. He was about to pick it up when he remembered the necessity for preserving fingerprints. He let it lie.

"Has there been an—accident, sir?" Wickett called, his voice quavering like an old man's.

"No, Wickett! Not an accident. Murder!" Dundee answered with brutal directness, for there was no time now for sparing feelings. "I am going to telephone to the police, and I think you and Mr. Crosby had better remain where you are. By no means go into the summerhouse, and let no one else enter it until the police arrive. Have you spread the word that there's been an 'accident'?" he added, ignoring the butler's horrified quaverings.

"No, s-sir. I s-saw Miss Gigi and Miss Clorinda returning. They seemed upset, but Miss Clorinda would not let Miss Gigi explain it—I thought one of you gentlemen had been hurt, sir."

But before the butler had finished his explanation Dundee was sprinting for his dressing gown, discarded at the springboard. Struggling into it, he cut across to the cement walk which led directly from the summerhouse diagonally across the lawn to the driveway that curved about the back of the house.

His trained mind automatically made note of the fact that the murderer's feet, if the murderer had come from the Berkeley house, need not have left the hard, unbetraying surface of cement, whether the exit from the house had been made by front door or rear. For the broad driveway completely encircled the house. But the shortest route to the summerhouse was, of course, from the rear door.

To his own knowledge, Clorinda Berkeley had stolen out last night by the back door. And it was her modernistically patterned Batik scarf with which the stone-weighted skirts of the maid had been tied!

But Dick Berkeley had also stolen out of the house, to keep a rendezvous with the girl who was now dead. And Dick Berkeley was missing, or had been missing as late as half an hour ago. Two suspects already.

The back door was not latched. The detective entered and strode swiftly but quietly toward the butler's pantry, which had a telephone, he knew. As he passed an open door on the opposite side of the hall he heard a flat, indignant female voice declaring:

"No, ma'am, she ain't in her room! Her bed ain't been slept in I tell you, Mrs. Ryan! A fine howdy-de-do. I must say, even if she is engaged! Staying out all night—I never did trust that uppity little English snip—"

The servants' sitting room. Probably the cook and a chambermaid mulling, with relish, what they thought was a nasty bit of backstairs scandal.

Reaching the butler's pantry unheard, Dundee found the telephone and gave the number of police headquarters.

"The Love Parade" Headlines Lubbock's Theater Program

French Idol Will Show At Lindsey In Feature Film

Maurice Chevalier Starts 4-Day Run Today

THE TEN hit songs featured in "The Love Parade" can be said to come "out of the night." Victor Schertzinger, who wrote the ten songs for "The Love Parade" does his composing in his home high above Hollywood—at night.

It is his method to work on his music at night, laboring through the dark hours and sometimes past dawn. All his musical compositions have their inception while he is at his desk, working only with pen and paper. Later he develops his melodies on his violin, fills in the harmonies at his piano and works out his orchestrations at the pipe organ.

It was just such a procedure that was followed in composing of such numbers from "The Love Parade" as "Dream Lover," "My Love Parade," "Nobody's Using it Now," and seven other popular hits.

Maurice Chevalier, Jeanette MacDonald, Lupino Lane and Lillian Roth head the stellar cast of principals in "The Love Parade," the feature attraction at the Lindsey theatre, starting today.

"The Love Parade" is the story of the affaires d'amour of a queen of a mythical kingdom played by Jeanette MacDonald, who falls in love and marries a prince, Maurice Chevalier. Their comical marital life, the troubles of a prince consort and general life in the palace form the background for this rollicking musical romance.

"Street Girl" Is Featured Here At Palace This Week

Betty Compson Is Star Of Human Interest Tale

A spirited and tuneful drama that clearly shows the possibilities of the new-form musical film entertainment is the Radio Picture "Street Girl," which opens Tuesday at the Palace theatre. The picture is distinctive in that the movement of the story and the musical sequences are naturally dependent and correlated.

Betty Compson, who has reached new weights through the medium of talking pictures, heads the cast of well-known players. This talented star possesses a rich, sweet voice and a wealth of dramatic power. Her role in "Street Girl" is regarded as the greatest characterization of her career.

Miss Compson is seen as a girl of the streets who obtains employment as a violin player and entertainer in a small Hungarian cafe in New York's East Side. The ability of the little group of musicians with whom she works is finally recognized after an unpromising start. Success obtains for them a night club of their own after a scires of disheartening experiences. Miss Compson is well qualified to play this particular part, for she started her professional career as a violinist on a western vaudeville circuit.

Colorful Background

"Street Girl" was adapted from W. Carey Wonderly's story, "The Viennese Charmer," a dramatic and realistic tale of that little known, but intensely human district, New York's "Little Hungary." Jane Murfin wrote the dialogue, and through it brought a poignant and authentic transcription of life in that section.

Featured in support of Miss Compson is John Harron, whose performance marks him as one of the most accomplished of those stars of the silent screen who have successfully made the change to dialog pictures. Coupled with the tense drama of "Street Girl" is sparkling comedy furnished by Jack Oakie, Ned Sparks and Joseph Cawthorn, three of the screen's best comics.

Four Song Hits

Seldom can a picture claim four distinct song hits, but Sidney Clare and Oscar Levant, well-known Broadway song-writer team, have composed a quartet of popular numbers for "Street Girl" that promise to gain national recognition. "My Dream Memory," "Broken Up Tune," a "hot" stepping number which has originated the new "Broken Up" dance, "Lovable and Sweet," and "Prince of Good Fellows" contain all the elements that go to make up popular hits.

"Burning Up" To Start At Palace Here Next Friday

Richard Arlen And Mary Brian Star Of Picture

Real moving picture action, combined with clever dialog, is the treat in store for patrons of the Palace theatre when "Burning Up" Richard Arlen's first starring picture, comes here next Friday and Saturday. "Burning Up" is a romantic drama with lovely Mary Brian as Arlen's sweetheart, and four of the most popular character men of the screen in important supporting roles.

A. Edward Sutherland, whose recent successes, "Fast Company," "The Saturday Night Kid," and "Pointed Heels," were received here enthusiastically, made this picture. Sutherland is the wizard of the new methood in motion picture entertainment. His stories move quickly from situation to situation, from climax to climax, and the dialog is worked naturally into the action. Sutherland believes that motion pictures should first depict a story in action and that dialog is the crowning touch that makes the people more real.

Arlen is fortunate in his first starring picture. His role calls for the same, clean-cut characterization which has endeared this youthful actor to American picture audiences. As the story opens, Arlen is unwittingly mixed up with a gang of crooked promoters. He falls in love with Mary Brian whose father is to be the victim of the promoters' scheme. Arlen discovers the frame-up and, in a thrilling climax, which introduces some exciting automobile race track sequences, he defeats their purpose and wins the girl.

Francis McDonald, Sam Hardy, Tully Marshall and Charles Sellon, four well-known and well-liked character actors, are in the cast. McDonald was recently seen as Arlen's rival in Nancy Carroll's "Dangerous Paradise" and he repeats his brilliant acting of that role for his part in "Burning Up."

Middle West Is Rather Changed

"NATIVE SOIL," by Allan Updegraff, is a tale of singular charm; the tale of a globe-trotter who returns, after many years, to his home town of Springfield, Mo., to find that Springfield is moving a great deal faster than he ever dreamed.

For the American-small-city Mr. Updegraff describes has no more in common with Sinclair Lewis' Zenith than Calcutta. The returning native, fresh from Paris, is fairly swept off his feet by the unshackled, modern-minded sons and daughters of the middle west. He visits in the home of friends; his hostess flings herself gaily at his head and his host, instead of flying into a middle-western passion, amiably offers to divorce her and let the guest have her. Then a 24-year-old school teacher coolly asks him if she can be his mistress for a year or so when he goes back to Paris.

So, in a short time, the globe-trotter flees back to Paris again. Sprinfield has so thoroughly lost its provincialism that it is too much for him. Paris is more sedate.

This may be giving you a wrong impression of this book. It isn't flippant and airy in tone. Mr. Updegraff writes with fine insight and sympathy, and his boog is no cheap shocker. It is well written and thoughtful.

"Native Soil," is printed by the John Day Company.

Vivid And Controversial History Of Southwest Given In "Conquering Our Great American Plains" By S. Henry

STUART HENRY has thrown into the heart of the far-reaching Mid-West an interesting bombshell. It is an innocent looking bomb—a book called "Conquering Our Great American Plains," and in it Mr. Henry tells, from the standpoint of an eye-witness, the thrilling story of Abilene, Kansas, in days when it was known as "the worst town in the United States"; of the oncoming there of the first cattle drive by Texan cowboys, along the Chisholm Trail; of the sudden rush to Abilene by gamblers, prostitutes, and other undesirables bent on getting hold of the money spent so freely by the Texans. And of wild, picturesque events in that era, with shooting affrays, murders, and other incidents accompanying frontier life as he personally saw it.

Mr. Henry describes them in chapters which form a series of graphic pictures. His elder brother, T. C. Henry, was chosen the first Mayor of Abilene, when its citizens in desperation, decided that every effort must be made to do away with lawlessness and install a reign of order and safety for human life. The selection of Abilene's first Town Marshal, Tom Smith, is adequately described, and the skillful way he disarmed sojourning Texans without having to shoot one of them. Tom Smith, by the way, already had received training as a member of the New York police force—a point known to few.

"Wild Bill" Enters

Equally interesting and far more controversial, are chapters dealing with a successor of Smith, who was none other than "Wild Bill" Hickok, whom young Henry personally knew and daily saw. Today "Wild Bill's" memory is enveloped with a glamour which has little basis in Abilene if one may accept as accurate Mr. Henry's first-hand evaluation of him, his deeds, and his mode of life there. Here certainly is subject matter for an outburst of controversy. And the same thing may be said of the way in which the author's brother, Mayor Henry, foresaw the certain tragedy of the Great Plains unless they could be used as something else than cattle lands—and secretly proved to himself, and later to the world, that upon them could be grown successfully, enormous winter crops.

The book is filled with material never before assembled and all of it concerned with a supremely important phase of American civilization. The life of pioneers in the 1860's in dugouts, their religious and educational aspirations, their customs and habits at work or at play, are all told by a man on the ground then and told with restraint. Unusual characters flit through the pages, many of which are filled with anecdote concerning them.

"CONQUERING OUR GREAT AMERICAN PLAINS," by Stuart Henry. Price $5.00. (E. P. Dutton Co.)

Movie Material Given By Writer

"BACKWATER," the newest novel from T. S. Stribling's talented pen, is not another "Teeftallow". Instead of being a slow, painstaking study of a little-understood section of American life, as "Teeftallow" was, it is frankly a melodrama. But what a melodrama it is! The story moves at a gallop from start to finish. It ought to make a magnificent movie.

The son of an Arkansas bootlegger comes home from college blindly in love with the daughter of a neighboring planter—an aristocrat, to whom the lad's bootlegger-father is quite outside the pale. The girl returns his love, but pride of place is too much for her and she can't see her way clear to marry him.

Then her own father, compendium of all the virtues, slides from grace and makes a fortune through an unusually shady banking deal. The girl thereupon comes to her senses and the course of true love gets a break. Meanwhile, there is a fight with a mob and a devastating flood—in which the bootlegger furnishing free booze to the tried negroes working on the levee, becomes the hero of the hour.

That's the story. It is very well done. Doubleday, Doran are publishing it.

For the first time a French film has received recognition in Germany, "Les Nouveaux Messieurs" being selected as the best film of the past year in a list compiled annually by a German trade organ.

The Guildhall School of Music of London, which celebrates its jubilee this year, has received a gift of $5,000 from a former American pupil, Mrs. Francis Nunns, now a pianist and composer.

Book News Notes For This Week

Real Work

WHEN a novel springs from the pen of some one associated with a publishing house, it does not create much surprise. Book sellers and their staffs are not so often authors at the same time. But authors associated with publishing houses had better look to their laurels, for the competition has begun with a novel called This Man and This Woman by Donald Stauffer of the Phoenix Book Shop in New York City. It is published by Horace Liveright.

In Quest of Beauty

Ludwig Beethoven's story is given an increasingly popular treatment by Samuel Chotzinoff, New York music critic, in "Eroica," a novel based on the composer's life. Four influences on Beethoven's life are traced by the author—the cultural effect of association with the Breuning family, his passion for the mysterious Immortal Beloved, his affection for the worthless nephew Carl Holz and his deafness. Chotzinoff, leads Beethoven through infatuations for a half dozen women, generally unrequited, until he found refuge from his moody spells in religion.

Exquisite Art

The method of Gamaliel Bradgraduated from the "cub" stage. It that of Strachey and H. L. Mencken has made the statement that "Bradford is the man who invented the formula of Lytton Strachey's 'Queen Victoria'." The dedication of Bradford's new "Daughters of Eve" is, therefore, of unusual interest. It reads: "To Lytton Strachey who makes biography not only a curious science but an exquisite art."

Book Form

Donn Byrne's American publishers, The Century Company, are rapidly working toward the publication of his complete works in book form. One of his short novels, "A party of Baccarat," which was serialized here several years ago, will appear between boards in April.

According to the publishers, "A Party of Baccarat" presents not the lyric Byrne of the Irish hunting fields, nor the historic Byrne who sang of Soul of Tarzus, but rather a hard, dazzling observer of modern life among the moneyed sophisticates of the gaming tables of the Riviera."

The publishers also state that "A Party of Baccarat" is being issued in answer to a continuous call from Donn Byrne readers for this story in book form.

"Cub" Stage

James S. Hart and Garrett D. Byrnes, the authors of "Scoop," may be grizzled old veterans in the newspaper business; but the book they have written sounds as if it were the work of two men who have just graduated from the "cub"stage. It is pervaded by a note of immaturity—a sophomoric cynicism that spoils what might have ben a very good story.

The book tells of the experiences of a newspaper reported in an eastern city. It is filled with exciting incidents, and it is also filled with incidents—the too-detailed account of the rewrite man's job, for instance—that are not exciting at all, and that fail to justify their inclusion in the book. There is, too, a recurrent "Ah, but we newspaper men are dreadfully cynical—we see too much of life"; is not the way real veteran newspapermen talk or think. That sort of stuff is the hallmark of the youngster. It does "Scoop" irreparable injury.

Suspends Sentence

Judge Is Lenient With Employe

HOUSTON, Mar. 8. (AP)—Before Federal Judge J. C. Hutcheson, Jr., he half dragged himself to a standing position—a man past middle age, whipped of life and seeing the bars of a phantom prison.

Whatever his plea, it was in a halting murmur, lost to those a few feet away.

The lines of kindness came into the judge's face.

"I am going," he said slowly, "to suspend sentence because I know personally, that this man has been a faithful employe and servant of so fine a man—my father. This I know to be a fact, regardless of the charges he now faces."

"But," he went on, "if you start back in the whiskey business again, either some other judge or myself will be forced to sentence you. That is all."

The old man, who once drove a cab used by the judge's late father, Captain J. C. Hutcheson, walked away. In his eyes there were tears and a shadowy obeisance to old memory.

Paris now has a 'two-price store,' it being known as the "Cinq et Dix Francs" (five and ten francs) and goods are offered at the equivalent of 25 and 50 cents.

GOVERNMENT WARNING
TO ALL COTTON FARMERS

While the combined statements of all Banks of the South Plains shows this section to be in better financial condition than any other agricultural area of the United States.—Unless we heed the warning issued by the Federal Government, pertaining to cotton acreage reduction and the growing of a better staple and a tenderable cotton, in case of an over-production this season, with cotton selling below the cost of production, the cotton farmer will be in a condition difficult to cope with.

We sincerely believe that farmers of the South Plains can and will heed this warning. We believe they will raise enough food and feed crops, keep enough dairy cattle, enough poultry, and otherwise diversify to such extent that cotton will not become a burden crop.

Carl Williams Asks Co-Operation of South

In radio talk on Friday, Feb. 14, 1930, Carl Williams, cotton member, Federal Farm Board, had the following to say in regard to the desirability of cotton acreage reduction:

"The recent weakness in cotton prices should be taken as a sharp warning to cotton growers. That weakness rests on two things—a low current rate of cotton consumption and trade anticipation of a larger crop in 1930. Cotton growers can not do anything about this year's cotton consumption, but they can do a great deal now about the crop of 1930. If they want a better price in 1930, it is not too late to get it. They can get it by cutting down the acreage.

"On 48,730,000 acres in 1926 were produced 18,000,000 bales of cotton that brought the growers less than $1,000,000,000. The following year a crop of 13,000,000 bales was produced on 41,905,000 acres and was sold for $1,300,000,000, that is, the acreage of 1927 was reduced 6,825,000 acres below that of 1926, but the crop raised sold for $300,000,000 more. This is not ancient history; it is a story only two or three years old.

"In 1928 and again in 1929 cotton growers increased their plantings substantially above those of 1927. The crops were larger and prices have been lower. Last year's crop of 14,900,000 bales is bringing less money than the 1927 crop of 13,000,000 bales, although world stocks are lower. This policy does not pay. A cotton acreage of 40,000,000 acres, whatever the yield per acre, can be counted on to bring considerably more income than an acreage of 47,000,000 or 49,000,000 acres.

"World consumption of American cotton in 1926-27 was 15,800,000 bales—a very high figure. Why? American cotton growers produced 18,000,000 bales and had to sell it for much less than it cost to produce it. Low prices always increase consumption. World consumption in 1927-28 was still high, 15,400,000 bales, because the textile industry had heavy stocks of low-priced cotton to draw on. World consumption declined still further in 1928-29, and has been less thus far this year than it was in the same period last year, and may be still declining. World stocks of cotton are not excessive. Domestic and foreign demand are likely to be somewhat stronger next year than this year. If the United States produces in 1930 a crop of 13,000,000 bales or less, growers may expect considerably better prices and larger incomes next year than they got last year.

"The Federal Farm Board can not fix the world price of cotton. It can not protect farmers from the consequences of overplanting, neither can the cotton co-operatives nor the new American Cotton Co-operative Association. The board wants to help farmers to help themselves. If growers reduce their cotton acreage they will thereby help themselves to better incomes. The interests of the entire nation are involved in this problem. The earnest co-operation of every farmer, merchant, banker, newspaper, educational institution, and every public-spirited citizen of the South is invited to make effective this plain lesson of recent years."

Alvord Urges Team Work of All Groups

Extracts from address by Charles H. Alvord, special representative of Federal Farm Board, Washington, D. C., at meeting of noonday luncheon clubs, Dallas, Texas, Feb. 17, 1930:

During the recent flurry in the stock market a man had invested quite heavily and when the slump came he was required to cash in everything he had in order to meet margin calls. Several days later he met a friend who asked him how he felt and he replied: "All right now as I am on my feet, they took my automobile away from me yesterday."

Farmers have had their feet on the ground a long time.

During the last week I have been attending bankers' meetings in Dallas, Waco and San Antonio and other parts of the country. The story in one section is the same as in another. The question of financing agricultural operations concerns the farmer as much as the banker, because the farmer realizes that it is not only a legal but a moral obligation that he must meet when it becomes due.

With the authority of Congress back of the Federal Farm Board it has seen fit to call attention of Southern farmers and business interests to the fact that at the present time we are faced with a probable surplus of cotton. The board has been advised that at the present time the downward price of cotton is caused by a surplus on the markets of this country and the world, and that foreign production is increasing from year to year and that foreign cotton is assuming a more desirable spinning character due to the efforts of those in charge of foreign production to improve the quality of their products. As a result, the present downward trend will continue unless some steps are taken to cut the acreage in 1930 to a point that will produce a quantity commensurate with the domestic and world needs. Forty million acres will produce all the cotton we need and 6,000,000 acres should be devoted to other crops. A small crop produced at a low cost will bring to the farmers of this country most profit. The experience of the farmers throughout the belt indicates that excessive production of cotton year after year on the same land will result in a loss because of a condition which develops in the soil.

We must get together, looking at every phase of it. The year 1930 will be a good year for cotton farmers and business interests if the message of the State colleges, the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Federal Farm Board is heeded before the crop is planted.

Texas Is Doing Its Part

With a mass meeting of noonday luncheon clubs on Feb. 17 at Dallas, at which 300 agricultural leaders, bankers, business men, members of the Dallas Agricultural Club, the Dallas Electrical Club, the Rotary, Kiwanis, Civitan and Lions Clubs and representatives of farm organizations assembled, the Texas campaign for a substantial reduction in cotton acreage in 1930 was launched.

The meeting was broadcast from Station WFAA. The Dallas News-Journal and Baker Hotels. Similar meetings have been held in Paris, Waco, Wichita Falls, Corsicana, Robstown and other centers of the State and many such meetings have been called for other parts of the Texas Cotton Belt.

Texas farmers and land-owners intend to cut the acreage.

Resolutions Adopted at Called Meeting of South Plains Ginners Association, Lubbock, Texas, February 24th, 1930.

WHEREAS, it has become apparent that the economic welfare of the cotton growing states of the south depends upon the judgment they exercise in planting the coming cotton crop;

AND WHEREAS, it is clearly evident that of the two major and imperative needs is for an improved quality of staple in the coming crop, if the south is to win back her cotton supremacy of the world, which she has long held but is now rapidly losing;

AND WHEREAS, it is likewise evident that a drastic and material reduction in cotton acreage is the second imperative need vital to the best interests of the cotton south, as is conclusively proven in the following statement issued by the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas on February 17th, 1930:

"It is a well known fact, known as well to the cotton growers themselves, as to the business men and the banker that a small crop of cotton brings in more actual dollars than a large one, and that the surplus of any commodity determines the price of the entire production. For example; in 1926 the record cotton crop in the United States of 18,000,000 bales sold for $982,000,000, while the ten million bale crop of 1923 brought the producers $1,600,000,000. This means that the cotton farmers in 1926 picked 8,000,000 bales of cotton and not only gave them to the world free of charge, but in effect, paid $600,000,000 for the gracious privilege of doing so."

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, by a joint meeting of the South Plains Ginners Association, Bankers, and Cotton Buyers of the South Plains, meeting in called session on this the 24th day of February, 1930, at Lubbock, Texas, that we strongly recommend and urge upon the farmers of the entire South Plains the planting of better stapled seed, capable of producing at least 7-8 to 1 inch staple, such cotton as may be recommended by the State Agricultural Experiment Station at Lubbock, and which is adaptable to this particular area and climate and short growing season; and that we as strongly urge the complete abandonment of all seed varieties that produce untenderable staple lengths, or anything shorter than 7-8 inch staple; and that we likewise warn against the planting of any extra long staple which is not adapted to our short season;

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that whereas the practice of buying cotton on a hog-round basis is doing more to encourage and to prolong the planting of short staple cotton, we recommend that every ginner on the South Plains who buys cotton, beginning this coming season, will buy all grade and staple entirely;

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that it is the sense of this meeting that a reduction in cotton acreage for this year's crop of not less than 15 per cent is absolutely essential to the economic interests of the South Plains territory, and we hereby urge it unqualifiedly.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, by the bankers present at this meeting that they collectively determine not to grant credit to farmers the ultimate payment for which is dependent upon the production of a cotton crop alone; that it is apparent to the bankers present that the 1930 cotton crop will sell below the cost of production unless acreage is materially reduced by at least 15 per cent over the entire cotton belt.

AND BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that all service clubs, such as ROTARY, Kiwanis, Lions, etc., as well as County Agents, Home Demonstration Agents, Chambers of Commerce, and Farm organizations be urged to assist in carrying out the above program.

Respectfully submitted

Southern States fall in line to Reduce 1930 Cotton Acreage

The response to the admonition of the Federal Farm Board to cut the 1930 cotton acreage at least 6,000,000 acres has been splendid.

There is sufficient time to do the job right, if all organizations and individuals interested in the welfare of the South's greatest industry will do their part NOW.

California assures the American Cotton Co-operative Association that the big cotton-growing and financial institutions will work for a 20 per cent reduction in cotton acreage.

Arizona reports that on account of current low prices the cotton acreage is being substantially reduced in that State.

Arkansas states that all organizations are solidly behind the Arkansas State committee for cotton reduction. Sixty-eight outlook meetings have been arranged to date in fifty counties. Arkansas farmers will do their part. Radio talks by experts, newspaper publicity in dailies and country weeklies have been arranged for by the Arkansas committee.

In North Carolina the Governor has started a campaign for acreage reduction and living at home. A State committee will function shortly in that State.

Alabama's State Committee, under direction of Dr. Bradford Knapp, president of Alabama Polytechnic Institute, is actively at work furthering the Federal Farm Board's program for cotton acreage reduction and a safe farming system.

Louisiana began its efforts to reduce the cotton acreage on Feb. 17 at a meeting in Baton Rouge, at which representatives were present from the Louisiana Cotton Association, the Farm Bureau, Chambers of Commerce, press associations, Police-Jury Association, railroad agricultural agents, the State Commissioner of Agriculture, the College of Agriculture and the Extension Service and vocational agricultural teachers. Every community in the State will be reached.

Mississippi took action Feb. 13 by assembling its State committee under direction of Director R. S. Wilson, extension director, followed by wide distribution of literature.

Oklahoma, under leadership of Director D. P. Trent of Oklahoma is actively at work. On Feb. 15 definite plans were laid for putting on an intensive campaign for two weeks, which will start Feb. 24 in every school district.

Federal Reserve Bank Backs Farm Board

Extracts from address delivered by Col. C. C. Walsh, chairman of the board, Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas, at joint meeting of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce and Noonday Luncheon Clubs on Monday noon, Feb. 17, 1930:

It is a well-known fact, known as well to the cotton growers themselves, as to the business man and the banker, that a small crop of cotton brings in more actual dollars than a large one, and that the surplus of any commodity determines the price of the entire production. For example: In 1926 the record cotton crop in the United States of 18,000,000 bales sold for $982,000,000 while the 10,000,000-bale crop of 1923 brought the producers $1,600,000,000. This means that the cotton farmers in 1926 picked 8,000,000 bales of cotton and not only gave them to the world free of charge, but, in effect, paid $600,000,000 for the gracious privilege of doing so.

AFFECTS EVERYBODY

It is a simple business problem coupled with plain common sense, for any one to understand, that if our cotton crop is produced without profit, as it was in 1926, or in other words, if it is produced at a loss, it must necessarily affect the prosperity and general welfare of every citizen in our section.

It affects most directly:

1. The farmer himself, who must curtail his standard of living on account of his inability to purchase the commodities which he and his family desire and need for their ordinary comfort.

2. In like manner it affects his merchant and banker, his doctor and his preacher, whom he is unable to pay as promised, and hence they are quite as directly interested in a good crop to be sold at a profit as the farmer himself.

It is needless for me to point out to an intelligent, thinking audience that the only safe basis upon which loans can be made for the production of a cotton crop is, that the banker should loan no money to any farmer for the purpose of buying any article for his own personal use, or which may be necessary in the process of production, which the farmer can grow and produce on his own farm such as provender for his live stock, meat for his family, butter, eggs, milk and vegetables.

DUTY OF BANKERS TO CO-OPERATE

It is wholly unnecessary at this time to urge upon the average banker the need for exercising the greatest caution and prudence in making unsound loans to farmers whose farming habits and practices are more hazardous than is consistent with a well regulated program of safe and sane farming.

Quite naturally the bankers should urge the farmers in their respective communities to discontinue the growing of cotton on land which, during the last five years, has not yielded profitable returns. During this period the price of cotton has averaged approximately 17.9c per pound at New Orleans.

During the last three years, financial and industrial leaders tell us, this country has enjoyed the greatest prosperity in its history, and the statistics from reliable sources confirm this statement.

Consumption of raw cotton during 1927, 1928, 1929, has exceeded all previous records, so that there has been a fairly even balance of supply and demand. However, in the face of this balance, and the resulting prices referred to, our cotton growers have not prospered, and business conditions in the South have not flourished as they have in other sections of the country.

How important is it, therefore, for us to awaken to the realization that, under these conditions, lands have not been profitable when planted to cotton, that we have little reason to expect that they will be more profitable should we increase our production, and reduce our consumption, with a resultant price decline which must inevitably follow as the night follows the day.

UNITED EFFORT NECESSARY

The indications for the present year clearly point to the farmers' inability to liquidate more than their minimum loans should we produce a crop greater than what may reasonably be expected on 40,000,000 acres in the United States.

There is no other means provided by our Federal Government for dealing with this problem than that which has been set up in the Federal Farm Board. Through this agency our Government has called upon the organized business interests, and the farmers themselves, to stand together in the working out of the farm problem to a final and successful conclusion.

The proposition before us at this time is a simple undertaking in which all of our people are vitally interested, an undertaking which challenges our highest intelligence and our best efforts at whole-hearted co-operation. Let us, therefore, in a united phalanx, join hand and heart and brain, and follow the lead of the Federal Farm Board by using our personal influence, and our safe and sane advice with the farmer customers of the various banks toward inducing them to follow the proper practice in cotton acreage reduction for this year, which will prove profitable to them and a boon to the country.

South Must Meet 1930 Challenge

BY C. O. MOSER,
Vice President of American Cotton Co-operative Association, Dallas Texas

What are we trying to do? Nothing more or less than do the same thing in the agricultural plant of this country that all well-organized industries are doing today. There is nothing immoral about it—nothing but good, sound horse sense. A year ago the steel industry was operating on a 97 per cent maximum capacity basis. Today they are operating on a basis of 62 per cent capacity. In other words, they have reduced their "acreage" from 97 per cent to 62 per cent—a third. They did this for only one reason—because they could not maintain a profitable price for steel if they produced as much steel in 1930 as they did in 1929. Likewise we cannot maintain the price of cotton if we produce as much cotton in 1930 as we did in 1929.

FORTY MILLION ACRES

To keep the quantity of the cotton supply in line with the needs, the Government is urging that we plant no more than 40,000,000 acres—or 15 per cent reduction.

The Government of this country has set up machinery for the purpose of helping agriculture. It is a new national policy. They have drafted men out of industry and agriculture who were not subject to being employed under ordinary conditions, but who accepted these positions as a patriotic duty, and these men have been supplied by Congress with almost unlimited power and money to assist in this great problem. They are farmer-minded and want to help. They tell us that they can do little if we produce greatly in excess of the world's needs that we can not avoid the penalty of loss for violating economic laws; and that just as certain as we produce an unwieldy surplus, the penalties must be paid and the producer cannot escape the loss. The most helpful thing, under such circumstances, that the Farm Board can do, once a surplus is produced, is to distribute the burden of that loss over a period of years. The board knows that the only practical and sensible way to deal with the problem of surplus is to avoid excess production. They are attacking the problems at its most vulnerable point—at the point of production. This is as much the city man's problem as it is the problem of the farmer himself.

PREVENT A SURPLUS

For purpose of emphasis, I want to repeat that the only way the Farm Board can deal with the problem of surplus effectively is to deal with it before the surplus is created. In other words we now have the choice of curtailing production or of re-enacting the experience of 1926 when hundreds of banks in the Cotton Belt failed, thousands of merchants bankrupted, tens of thousands of farm mortgages were foreclosed, and there was general and widespread distress among cotton growers. It was horrible!

In 1924 we had a supply of 19,700,000 bales—in 1925 we harvested 46,000,000 acres of cotton—in 1929 we harvested 46,000,000 acres and had approximately 19,700,000 bales supply. Prices now are already much lower than they were in the spring of 1926, due to the existing depressed business conditions and increased production of cotton in foreign countries. In spite of the fact that we had comparatively high prices at planting time in 1926, the farm price of cotton when harvested collapsed to less than 10c a pound. Certainly, there is no one in the south who wants to see a repetition of these conditions, but it is only fair to remind all concerned that if we continue our 1929 rate of production in 1930 we will certainly be in grave danger of having a repetition of those conditions.

THE TIME IS NOW!

It occurs to me that if ever there was a time when we ought to organize and mobilize the intelligence of the south in avoiding a calamity, that time is now!

It should not be necessary to do more than make just a simple statement of these facts. If these statements are facts and the Farm Board, the Department of Agriculture and the Federal Reserve Bank say they are, and those of us who are studying the problem from the marketing standpoint likewise know they are, then it behooves every one of us to support the Farm Board in its effort to avert a serious loss to the south.

Prohibitionists Marshal Forces

DALLAS, March 8. (AP)—Prohibitionists and religious organizations of Texas today prepared to marshal their interests after the Rev. Aticus Webb, superintendent of the Texas Anti-Saloon league, issued a call yesterday for dry forces of the state to meet at the First Christian church in Fort Worth on March 19 and 20.

Two national dry leaders, W. D. Upshaw of Atlanta, Ga., and Dr George W. Morrow of Detroit, Mich., will address the meeting.

"Enemies of prohibition are mobilizing their money and political strength to destroy our dry laws," Dr. Webb declared. "This is the time for every real friend of temperance to get his war paint on."

He denied that the meeting would have any political significance.

Judge W. Erskine Williams of Fort Worth was named general chairman of arrangements.

One Stop Service

Saves Car Owners Time And Money

"The greatest service development since the automobile was invented" was the way Mr. Harold Gelin, of Beacon Master Service, characterized the One-Stop Service Station. Then he went on to say, "It is based on the excellent business principle, greater convenience and economy for your customers.

"As everybody knows, the automobile business is new compared with almost anything else that could be mentioned. It started slowly, then all at once began to sweep along and at the same time was faced with the problem of getting itself organized. A double effort of this kind is difficult.

"In the older lines of business the father frequently trained his sons or his neighbor's sons. In the automobile business the people in it had to learn their own lessons and develop with the industry. Small service stations sprang up everywhere, usually operated at first by but one man.

"For the automobile owner it was of course better to be able to reach a number of stations rather than be limited to a few, but at the same time it was often very annoying and costly. If he wanted several things done to his car it was often necessary for him to go to three or four places. This meant inconvenience and delay.

"The natural step is to bring these services under one roof and give every maintenance service except repairs.

"Such a plan necessarily means heavy investment, but it pays," says Mr. Gelin. "It requires a substantial building, the building must be attractive, always neat and clean. It must be designed for the purpose—planned for high speed operation, with equipment of the latest design and each service in charge of an expert.

"The service should include:

Air, water, de-rust rims, passenger car tires, pneumatic truck tires, solid truck tires, tubes, tire mounting, tire repairs, tire accessories, tire recommendations, weighting wheel load, wheel alignment, brake testing, brake relining, batteries, battery charging, battery repairs, oil, gasoline, road service, car washing, car greasing and crankcase service.

"When you drive up to a modern station such as I have described, you usually obtain in a few minutes the service you wish and you are on your way. If you desire attention that takes a little extra time, you simply leave your car and it is ready for you when you return.

"This service is what people want—it is what they should have—and we have it!" (Adv.)

BY MRS. FRANK HILL

MRS. CALLAWAY HOSTESS

Mid-afternoon hours were pleasantly spent Thursday playing bridge in the Dr. E. E. Callaway home, when Mrs. Callaway was hostess to members and several guests of the San Souci bridge club at 3 o'clock.

The affair was one of the prettiest spring parties ever given in Tahoka, and Mrs. Callaway proved to be a very charming hostess.

The Washington theme was stressed in all details of table appointments and Washington favors were given. The entertaining rooms were beautifully decorated with bowls of pink carnations, and also vases of pink carnations were used as the centerpieces of the tables.

Mrs. W. B. Slaton was announced high score winner for the club.

The dining room table was covered with a beautiful piece of Normandy lace over pink satin, and laid with silverware. Pink tapers and silver candle sticks adorned the table.

The hostess served two courses, which carried out the color scheme, in buffet style to the following guests: Mesdames W. O. Thomas, Chas. F. Shook, J. H. Powell, W. B. Slaton, L. E. Turrentine, Robt. King, A. D. Sanders, jr., C. C. Williams, L. F. Craft, Hanford Tunnell, W. W. Nicklaus, Jack Alley, W. R. Fenton, jr., Cline Thomas and Walker. Miss Eva Massengale.

BRIDGE PLAYED

Informal games of contract bridge were played at the home of Mrs. W. B. Slaton Tuesday afternoon, when she entertained a small party of friends. Two tables were in place and high score went to Mrs. E. E. Callaway.

The hostess served a salad course. The guest list included Mesdames E. E. Callaway, Otho Thomas, L. E. Turrentine, J. H. Powell, Elbert Boullion, Chas. F. Shook, Stephens and Robt. H. King.

MRS. SHOOK ENTERTAINED

Elder L. J. McCarty, pastor of the Primitive Baptist church here, of which Mrs. Tredway was a devoted member, conducted the services.

He spoke feelingly of the life and character of the good woman who had been so faithful to her church and her God. Dr. W. K. Johnston, pastor of the Presbyterian church also made some brief but appropriate remarks.

Automobile Dealers Prepare For Annual Show Here

Two-Day Exhibit Is Arranged For March 20 And 21

Nine Dealers Co-Operating In Annual Exposition At Uptown Dance Palace; To Show Many Models

A COLORFUL cross section of the modern-day automobile industry will be thrown open for the inspection of Lubbock and South Plains motorists when the second annual Lubbock Automobile Show gets under way at the Uptown Dance Palace March 20 and 21.

A two-day exposition, featuring the improvements and new designs of the 1930 models, the annual show will prove a revelation to the thousands of motorists and prospective motorists who flock to the dance pavilion to see what the dealers here are offering.

All Types Shown

Standard models and special jobs—roadsters, coupes, sedans, coaches, cabriolets, sports, broughams and country clubs—all designs known to the automobile world—will be on display when the doors are first opened Thursday afternoon, March 20. New cars in every price class to fit the pocketbook of all classes will be included in the nine booths, representing the leading automobile dealers in Lubbock.

At least twenty-seven or probably thirty or more cars will be on the floor, from which prospective car owners can select their mode of conveyance. The tenth dealer has yet to enter but indications are that the extra concern will be with the fold before another week has passed. Each dealer will be allowed space for at least three machines.

Co-Operative Venture

This years exposition, staged by the Lubbock Automobile Dealers association, is an absolute co-operative venture. The spirit of competition will be left out entirely as the dealers assemble their new models under one roof to show the public at once glance what can be had in the motor car line.

Entertainment for afternoon and night of both days will be furnished by a local orchestra and additional skits are likely to be staged as highlights.

To Stay Open Late

Last year approximately 10,000 persons filed through the doors at the Uptown Dance Palace to attend the first annual automobile show here and an even greater attendance is predicted for the coming exposition. The doors of the dance pavilion will be held open until a late hour on both Thursday and Friday nights to give out-of-town visitors an opportunity to drive to Lubbock after nightfall and see the display.

The concerns who are to be represented in the show are as follows: Kent Buick company, Buick; Kuykendall Chevrolet company, Chevrolet; Hub Jones Motor company, Hudson and Essex; Lubbock Auto company, Ford and Lincoln; Davis Oldsmobile company, Oldsmobile and Viking; Scoggin-Dickey Motor company, Oakland and Pontiac; Royalty Motor company, Dodge; Joe Hilton company, Chrysler and Plymouth; Caprock Motor company, De Soto.

ON AUTO ROW

As preliminary steps to the annual automobile show here on March 20 and 21, a number of Lubbock dealers have placed their orders with the manufacturers for the special jobs they will have on display when the exposition opens its doors to the public. DeLuxe, sport and country club jobs will feature the show with all the latest colors known to the motor car industry.

PLAN ENTERTAINMENT

All details for the event are yet to be worked out, but the event is assured with nine agents already lined up for space in the dance pavilion. Entertainment will likely be furnished by a local orchestra.

Pertinent Facts About Automobiles By Israel Klein, Science Editor For NEA Service

By ISRAEL KLEIN

When the engine becomes so worn as to permit the crankcase oil up into the cumbustion chambers, it is time to have the whole motor overhauled. For oil pumping is only a step from total breakdown.

If this condition is permitted to continue, any day the motorist will find himself limping along the road on two or three cylinders and suddenly developing a serious main bearing knock, due to considerable loss of proper lubricating oil.

It costs less to check this condition than it does to correct it.

Oil pumping may be noticed by the action of the oil gauge on the dash, or by the smoky appearance of the exhaust gas. When, every time you run into a gasoline station, you are told your engine needs more oil, you may suspect oil pumping or oil leakage. If, on inspection of the spark plugs, you see they are fouled with carbon deposit you will have further assurance that your engin eis pumping oil. Oil pumping begins ordinarily in the rear cylinders and at the rear bearings of the engine.

In order to be sure that it isn't oil pumping, but oil leakage that is causing the excessive loss of oil, run the motor while the car is standing still at a speed equal to about 45 miles an hour. If oil drips from the engine, there is an oil leak somewhere—in the oil pan, through the gaskets, loose screws or flooded crankcase.

If it is a matter of oil pumping, however, several serious causes may be located for it. The most serious are loose main bearings and worn pistons and cylinder walls. Sometimes, the cylinders have become out of round from the constant slap of the piston against the walls and the unevenness of the crankshaft.

If the connecting rods are warped or bent, if the piston rings are loose, or if there is too much clearance behind the compression ring and too little behind the oil ring, oil will find its way easily into the combustion chamber and cause trouble.

Sometimes the oil pressure is too great and an excessive amount of oil is pumped through the oil slots into the engine. Another cause for oil pumping may be uneven heat distribution so that only part of the engine cools quickly while the rest remains overheated. This thins out the oil considerably, and enables it to work its way more easily into the upper part of the motor.

* * *

There are times when watching the oil gauge does not help the motorist discover the loss of oil by pumping or leakage. At such times the oil in the crankcase is being diluted by an oversupply of gasoline that seeps through the piston clearances. Then only the quality of the oil becomes a sign of its loss through leakage or pumping.

The oil, therefore should be watched constantly not only for quantity but for quality, especially in old motors.

* * *

Worn engine bearings may be suspected when oil has to be replenished often and a slight knock, like a heavy thud, is heard as the engine pulls up hill or in starting. Often no knock may be heard in the ordinary course of driving, because the bearings may not be loose enough for this.

But if the bearings are worn enough to cause excessive clearance an extra amount of oil will be thrown up into the cylinders. The piston rings will not be able to take care of this excessive oil and so will permit some of it to pump through into the combustion chambers.

* * *

Substituting heavier oil will not help the situation. It may retard the ultimate breakdown of the motor only for a short time.

TWIN-IGNITION MEANS—

Greater Power, Greater Smoothness, Extraordinary Economy

BECAUSE two different motor cars are alike in price, it does not follow that they are also alike in quality, value or performance. ¶ There is always a best, and if you are looking for it, drive a Nash Twin-Ignition Eight or Six. They are the only cars in their price field which offer the superiority of Twin-Ignition performance. ¶ Twin-Ignition (two spark plugs, two simultaneous sparks, per cylinder, instead of one) produces smoother, more thorough combustion and consequently a smoother, more vigorous flow of power. You can feel the difference. You will know immediately what you have been missing, driving a car with single ignition. ¶ Other "400" features of superior performance and value are Bijur centralized chassis lubrication; lifetime-lubricated springs, encased in steel spring covers; built-in, automatic radiator shutters; and Duplate non-shatterable plate glass in all windows, doors and windshields (no extra cost in the Twin-Ignition Eight—optional at slight extra cost in the Twin-Ignition Six and Single Six).

Lubbock 'Comes Into Its Own' As Capital Of Plains

'Hub Of Plains' Draws Heavy Trade From Over Large Territory; Retail Merchants Explain Business Angles

Mail Order Business Wanes But 'Motor Age' Is Help To Shoppers Who Buy For Family In Lubbock

BY MARGARET TURNER,
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"THE Hub of the Plains" in fact as well as in plan and fancy, Lubbock, the busy mart of a vast new territory, has come into its own commercially.

Strategically located, amply served by highway routings, rail, bus and truck lines, the South Plains capital stocks its retail stores not only for the city and county trade, but for an area which extents for a radius of more than 100 miles.

Merchants Here Testify

As proof may be offered the testimony of local merchants, who, although they admit mail order business is like 'the old gray mare' and 'not what she usta be', see more and better buyers in person over the counters daily—buyers who travel many miles to stop and shop in Lubbock.

When pa needs a new overcoat and mother a spring hat—when little Willie needs red flannels and sister Agnes yearns for a graduation grown—they come to Lubbock with the silver jingling in pa's jeans, or better still, supported by a good bank account back home, and here they do their buying. From Clovis and Portales, from Hobbs, Carlsbad and Lovington, in New Mexico; Seminole, Seagraves, Brownfield, Lamesa, Tahoka, Wilson, Slaton, Post and Snyder; from Plainview, Hale Center, Abernathy, Lockney, Matador, Petersburg, Spur and Dickens City, Idalou, Lorenzo, Ralls and Crosbyton—in fact from every city, village and hamlet in this whole area—Lubbock draws its trade.

They Come Here Often.

Mail orders, once the medium between customer and clerk, have fast disappeared according to managers of the stores in Lubbock and over-the counter purchases have taken their place. Thousands of dollars worth of business is realized in this city monthly because of this influx of buyers which increases yearly.

Autos Big Help

"Before automobiles were so prevalent people would watch for bargains and make a trip to Lubbock once a month," said Spencer Wells, manager of the Hemphill-Wells department store. However, now with improved conditions for trading first hand, people run in and shop once a week or oftener. I would estimate that thirty per cent of our orders are from out-of-town customers."

A woman from Tatum, New Mexico, was chosen as a typical non-resident customer. When asked whether she bought many articles by mail orders she replied that for standard products such as sheets, towels, and linens she had found it to her liking, but that sending for clothes did not prove so satisfactory.

City Is Clothes Market.

"Sometimes I see a dress or a coat that I admire but do not buy at the time," she said, "and upon returning to my home decide that I want it and send an order for it." Staple goods may be bought quite readily at home but I purchase much of my wardrobe in Lubbock stores."

Miss Lela Kendall, manager of Jackman's ladies ready-to-wear and millinery store, declares that fully fifty per cent of their sales are made to out-of-town customers.

"We keep many blank checks from out-of-town banks for these special customers," she said. "Many times the women are such consistent buyers that I think they are Lubbock citizens unless their purchases are to be mailed out."

Miss Kendall also stated that mail orders are not what they used to be.

Buying Is Consistent

The J. C. Penney store covers a large territory in its trade.

"We have some mail orders," said Ellsworth J. Parsons, manager, "but the greater part of foreign sales made over the counter. I would estimate that thirty per cent of our sales are made by customers over the South Plains territory. These people come consistently too, week in and week out throughout the year."

The mail order business of Montgomery Ward company has not decreased even with stores placed conveniently over areas according to E. H. McKinney, manager.

Long List Named

"I have not been in charge here long enough to estimate how great a percentage of our customers are from Lubbock," he said. "But I do know that many come and order directly or bring a list and have us ship their articles to them. I would include Littlefield, Levelland, Sudan, Anton, Shallowater, Abernathy, Petersburg, Crosbyton, Ralls, Lorenzo, Idalou, Slaton, Wilson, Southland, O'Donnell, Lamesa, Seagraves, Seminole, Brownfield, Hobbs, New Mexico, Plains, Tatum, N. M., Ropesville, Meadow, Hereford in the towns from which we draw trade.

A few years ago when first Monday or "Trades Day" was established in Lubbock there was a notable influx on that day and the usual Saturday rush prevalent in many towns, was noticed here. Now, however, according to many store managers the people wait for no special incentive to shop but are here constantly.

Mail Orders Wane.

"I would say that the day of mail orders for dresses and lingerie and other feminine apparel is past," remarked Mrs. Clara Abney of the Abney Dress shop for women. "It is true though, that I enjoy a large out-of-town clientele since some women have been buying my stock for years and I keep checks on banks in their towns."

Grollman's store also has an extensive out-of-Lubbock trade and in addition sends out mail orders every day according to Sidney Hoffman, manager.

"Seventy-five per cent of all of the cash business in Minter-Gamel store is done by checks," said J. M. Gamel, manager. "A review of the day's work as a whole shows that fully thirty per cent of the cash volume is from nearby towns. This conclusion is derived from deposit of checks."

"Hardly a day passes without a few mail orders being sent out to someone in the territory."

Diversions Are Sought.

"We are making a special effort at Carter-Houston's to divert the mail orders that have been going to cities in the east and north to this trade centers," said Guy R. Hughes, advertising and sales promotion manager of the store. "These mail orders are solicited in our advertisements."

Approximately fifteen per cent of the sales are made to people living in nearby towns according to Mr. Hughes.

"It is difficult to estimate how great a percent of our trade is from out of Lubbock," said Ross Edwards of the Ross Edwards' store. "We have sold many orders to teachers in towns over the South Plains and mail orders are filled regularly."

W. M. Levine, manager of Levine's Department store believes that fully fifty per cent of their customers are drawn from towns over the South Plains. These persons as has been stated previously are here daily and become regular customers; mail orders are often filled to people as far northwest as Clovis, New Mexico, according to Mr. Levine.

Battery To Get Permanent Home

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

PLAINVIEW, March 8.—Contract for a $11,000 building that will serve as a permanent home of the Battery A, 131st Field Artillery of the Texas National Guard unit at Plainview as well as furnish a splendid exhibit building for the Texas Panhandle-Plains Dairy Show was let recently by Davis Bates and Glenn A. Smith, composing a Chamber of Commerce committee. When completed the building will be the property of the local Chamber of Commerce and will be the medium of a nice revenue each year for the organization.

For the Third Annual Dairy show held here on April 7, 8, 9 and 10, the building will serve as a place for the farm machinery show that will be held in connection with the dairy show. Local distributors of farm machinery have already begun preparations for the exhibit and the large building will likely be filled to capacity. It will be sixty feet wide and 100 feet long, with a concrete floor, brick outside walls and facing, supported by steel girders with no columns inside and plastered walls.

Reorganization of the local unit of the Texas National Guard was completed recently when Colonel C. A. Davis was in Plainview and placed Captain Thomas A. Bay in charge as commanding officer. Mr. Bates will also be one of the Commissioned officers of the battery. The lease on the building was secured by Major Underwood of the National Guard.

The construction of the Battery building will raise the standing of the local unit from Class D to Class C, as well as making it likely that an additional unit will be added later.

Many German high seas fishing steamers have been equipped with radio telephones over which they report the extent of their catches and receive orders, communication having been established as far as 750 miles from land.

Oxford University, in England, has just announced that no undergraduates will be allowed to fly during term from any aerodrome within 20 miles of the city unless they are bona fide members of the University Air Squadron.

GIVE THE WORLD A SMILE

Regardless of how well founded or how efficiently it is rendered, a service is not complete unless given cheerfully.

While American Business is not founded upon smiles entirely, once the service of any firm is recognized as complete, once its function in the economic organization is proved to be of value, that firm to reach its zenith must generate cheerfulness—both within the firm, and when it contacts the outside world. Such a business, regardless of kind, is soon recognized as "just a little better" than usual and remembered pleasantly. Render service as efficiently and economically as possible, but give the world a smile.
