Armadillo races to benefit the United Way of Midland will be held today at Sam's on Loop 250 and Highway 191. For $2, children can rent an Armadillo to race. Winners will get a prize. The races — to be held beginning at 11 a.m. on the hour every hour until 4 p.m. — will be conducted by Sam Lewis, also known as Jalapeno Sam, inventor of the jalapeno lollipop.

Middle East talks

WASHINGTON — President Clinton announced on Friday that Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of Israel and King Hussein of Jordan will meet here on July 25 in a session that is not expected to produce a peace treaty, but could yield accords to improve relations between the Middle East neighbors. Administration officials said the meeting had a secondary goal as well — to encourage Syria to move toward a more flexible course in its own talks with Israel./5A

U.S. tightens vise on Haiti

Psychological war intensifies against army rulers

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — With hundreds of battle-ready Marines looming offshore, U.S. military planes circling above broadcast a speech Friday by Haiti's exiled president, who promised: "The day of my return is not far off."

"I am returning to reinstate security for all Haitians to live in peace," President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, who was ousted in a 1991 military coup, said in the recorded message.

He didn't say how he would return, but Washington has not ruled out an invasion to oust army rulers and restore Aristide, Haiti's first freely elected leader.

Despite a threat of an American invasion, the U.S. Embassy appeared to be the only mission in Port-au-Prince preparing for possible war.

Station retracts O.J. prosecutor videotape story

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A TV station Friday retracted a story asserting a prosecutor was at O.J. Simpson's estate before a search warrant had been issued.

Al Cowlings, top, prosecutor Marcia Clark

The KCBS report earlier this week was based on a videotape the station said was automatically stamped 10:28 on June 13, or 17 minutes before the warrant was issued by a judge.

On Friday, KCBS said it could no longer be certain the tape was made then.

"We want to apologize," reporter Harvey Levin said during a noon newscast. "We now have reason to believe that we made a mistake in one of our reports."

The district attorney's office, which denied the original report, praised the retraction as a "responsible action."

The report had raised questions about the legality of the search at Simpson's estate the day after his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend Ronald Goldman were stabbed to death outside

Comet stirs up astronomers

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff Writer

When Comet Shoemaker-Levy 9 collides with Jupiter beginning today, the average citizen may wonder why astronomers are so excited.

"The thickest, biggest part of the comet Shoemaker-Levy compared to Jupiter is like comparing the width of a dime to the length of a football field," said Mark Hartman, director of the Marian Blakemore Planetarium.

WASHINGTON — Astronomers worldwide, professional and amateur alike, are waiting with poised telescopes for the 21-punch pounding of Jupiter by the comet Shoemaker-Levy 9. It starts this afternoon.

The comet fragments, arrayed in a string like a series of runaway freight cars, are bearing down on Jupiter at about 130,000 miles per hour. The first fragment, appropriately named 'A', splashes into the Jovian cloud tops at about 3 p.m. CDT today. The others will hit at roughly six-hour intervals during the next six days.

What happens when they hit is anybody's guess.

Judge wallops bat-attacker with restitution

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff Writer

Dressed in a black T-shirt and blue jeans, Mark W. Mitchell Jr. was formally sentenced to prison time and ordered to pay restitution to the victim of his baseball-bat assault last year.

Mitchell, 17, was taken away following the formal implementation of his sentence by 238th District Court Judge John Hyde.

Mitchell was convicted Wednesday afternoon of attempted capital murder for the April 2, 1993, attack on Kay Balog while she was working at the Town & Country Food Store, 7100 W. Highway 80.

On Thursday, the jury sentenced Mitchell to six years in prison. Mitchell could have received probation or five to 99 years in prison.

Before the judge handed down the sentence, the prosecution presented evidence of Ms. Balog's medical bills as a result of the beating in an attempt to get the judge to order Mitchell to pay restitution.

Film at 10, but gore no more: More TV news cans violence

By Scott Williams

NEW YORK — The sensational, "if-it-bleeds-it-leads" approach to local TV news is giving way at about a dozen stations around the country to "family-sensitive" coverage that shuns blood and guts.

"We're out of the body count business," said Pahl Shipley, news director of KGBT in Harlingen, Texas, which has been using the new approach since April. "We're as aggressive as we've ever been, just better focused."

The stations offering "family sensitive" or "family friendly" news generally avoid sensational images of violence and gore, eliminating them entirely from the afternoon news and using them sparingly in the late news.

Lieutenant governor candidate Lezar brings his GOP bid to city

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Conservative candidate for reform in state government, Tex Lezar, brought his Republican Party bid for Texas lieutenant governor to Midland Friday.

Lezar, a Dallas attorney and conservative columnist, said there is an upsurge of conservatives wanting reform in Texas government, and he intends to ride this wave into office in November.

The office of lieutenant governor is far more powerful than many people believe, Lezar said. The lieutenant governor has authority on the budget board, has the power to kill almost any bill and can influence legislation in other ways, he said.

The office was created in the 1870s by Texas voters, who, because of an unpopular governor under Reconstruction following the Civil War, stripped much of the governor's power and created the position to wield this power, Lezar said.

"The lieutenant governor is the ultimate inside player," he said.

Lezar hoped to bring the actions of the lieutenant governor out into the light if elected, he said.

Lezar advocates term limitations, not just on one office but in all offices in government, so that position jumping will not be possible. "We have politicians using power over the PACs from one office to extort campaign money for the next office," he said.

Tax reform is another big issue for Lezar. He would like to see legislation that forbids lawmakers from raising taxes more than the gross income of the population increases in any one year.

Colorado already has enacted this kind of sweeping tax reform, he said.

Also, Lezar wants to find ways to decrease the money the state spends on litigation. "I am a litigation attorney — I know exactly what I'm talking about on this," he said.

Joe D. Williams

Tex Lezar

Lezar said taxes, such as the Franchise Tax, must be stopped. He called this "stealth taxation."

State government must be forced to set priorities, removing the ability to increase taxes at will, he said.

The best way to reduce spending is to reduce the number of state employees, he said. In the last three years, Texas has been adding an employee each minute, leading to an extra $850 million in state spending. "You want to know where the lottery money went?" he said.

Prison reform is also an issue. Lezar wants to do away with parole and establish truth in sentencing, he said.

Lezar served as chief of staff for the U.S. Department of Justice and as assistant attorney general for legal policy under former President Reagan and was a leader in the bipartisan team that abolished federal parole.

He was editor in chief of "The Texas Law Review" and assistant to columnist William F. Buckley.

He and his wife, Merrie Speath, have two sons and a daughter and are members of the Presbyterian Church.

COMET: Telescopes await explosions mountain-size pieces could make each explode with the force of about 200,000 megatons of TNT, larger than any nuclear bomb exploded on Earth. By some estimates, each impact could trigger a fireball more than 1,500 miles across and rising 600 miles above the Jovian clouds.

Other experts, such as Paul Weissman of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., are predicting what he calls "a cosmic fizzle," where the comet could hit the clouds shrouding Jupiter and disappear without a trace.

Writing in the journal Nature, Weissman said he expects the powerful gravity of Jupiter will further shatter the comet pieces, turning them into high speed gravel and ice.

"They will likely come in as an elongated shotgun blast of smaller pellets," said Weissman. "Thus, the giant impacts will produce a spectacular meteor shower of bright bodies, but not the massive fireball explosions that have been predicted by some researchers."

Eugene Shoemaker, the U.S. Geological Survey astronomer who is co-discoverer of the comet, said he would "really be astonished if we don't see something."

Just who is right should be clear within a few hours after fragment A hits Jupiter.

Telescopes on every continent, in virtually every observatory and instruments on board an armada of satellites are all trained on Jupiter for the big moment. NASA is sending aloft an airplane-borne telescope and is launching sounding rockets from New Mexico. The Hubble Space Telescope is scheduled to take hundreds of images.

The Galileo spacecraft is just 149 million miles from Jupiter and has the best angle to see the impacts. Due to a crippled antenna, however, it may be days before data from the spacecraft reach Earth.

Even if there are fireballs, it is unlikely they will be visible from Earth except to the keenest of telescopes. Jupiter is some 480 million miles away and all comet impacts will be just over the horizon as viewed from Earth.

Because Jupiter rotates so fast, once every 10 hours, the collision zone will move into direct view from Earth within 10 minutes or so of each impact.

At the impact moment, astronomers are looking for flashes of reflected light bouncing off Jupiter's moons. Giant bubbles of hot gas may rise from each site and the banded clouds that shroud Jupiter may be scarred, with some wearing bright spots of color, some experts believe.

Grand jury re-indicts in connection with Zachery death

Staff Report

A Midland teen re-indicted by a Midland County grand jury this week was arraigned Friday afternoon and remains in custody in connection with the death of James Zachery.

Duann Dewayne Stewart, 17, originally was indicted on murder charges in the Jan. 25 beating death of Zachery, a Midland Community Theatre performer and former professional football player.

The grand jury added to the indictment charges of manslaughter, delivery of cocaine and possession of cocaine.

Stewart remains in the custody of the Midland County Detention Center in lieu of a $50,000 bond.

He will have a pretrial hearing next week. Defense attorneys said the murder trial is still scheduled for Aug. 22, but the pretrial hearing will help determine if more time is needed to prepare a defense for the additional three charges.

Also charged in the incident is Terry Earl Stewart, 25, — no relation. He has not been indicted.

DEATHS

Barbara Kawell

Services for Barbara Kawell of Midland have been set for 11 a.m. Monday at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Kawell died Thursday in Tulsa.

Marie McDonald

Services for Marie McDonald of Midland have been set for 1 p.m. Monday at Ellis Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Bob Porterfield of West Kentucky Baptist Church officiating. Burial will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. McDonald died Friday at the local hospital.

FIRES: Comet's 21 collisions with Jupiter excite astronomers

(From 1A)

So, to the naked eye, the series of 21 collisions "could be very subtle.

"Maybe it won't be the most dramatic visual display for us — it's not going to be like a Fourth of July fireworks, but those 20 particles aren't coming at the Earth," Hartman said.

"It's dramatic by its very nature to have something moving close to 200,000 kilometers an hour that's a mile and a half across run into something else. The energy that's released is by human standards tremendous. There's nothing we have or that we've constructed that can match what's predicted."

The predictions of the energy released on Jupiter by the collision runs the gamut from 100 million megatons to two trillion tons of TNT, Hartman said.

What if it were hitting Earth?

"That would be a different story," Hartman said. "Something a mile and a half across hitting Earth would be a real traumatic event. That sort of thing is the kind of thing that changes an entire ecosystem. Something that big would, at the very least, effect a regional area — a large, large area."

Jupiter — the fifth closest planet to the sun and the largest in the solar system — is 88,846 miles wide at its equator. It would take 11 earths to fit across the middle of Jupiter and 1,000 earths to fill up the volume of the giant planet. Yet, Jupiter, which takes 12 Earth-years to orbit the sun, spins faster than any other planet, rotating once in nine hours and 55 minutes, compared to 24 hours for Earth.

In March 1993, Carolyn Shoemaker discovered the comet on a photo taken by Eugene Shoemaker and David Levy with a telescope at Palomar Observatory in California.

Later, Jim Scotti of the University of Arizona's "Spacewatch" program used a larger telescope at Kitt Peak Observatory near Tucson, Ariz., to view the comet and found it was unusual in shape became it consisted of several individual fragments.

Then, scientists discovered the comet was orbiting Jupiter and not the sun. Brian Marsden of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Boston announced that the comet would impact Jupiter in July 1994.

Hartman encourages those who want to see the event to do so.

"I don't want to discourage people, but at the same time I don't want to over-sensationalize. If a person can get a hold of a telescope and try to see something, that's great. Just seeing Jupiter is worth it. It's a really dramatic and unusual event mainly because we can predict it. We know it's going to happen so we can prepare ourselves, but Jupiter is so far away it's not going to light up the sky."

Jupiter, which will be 475,000 million miles from Earth during the days of impact, is the second brightest star-like object — next to Venus — in the night sky.

"In itself, the view of Jupiter through a telescope is worth the effort. With the added possibility of glimpsing this once-a-millennium event, it is more than worth the effort," Hartman said.

Scientists predict that the comet particles will be striking the backside of Jupiter, Hartman said.

He said the Galileo space probe is in a good position to see what happens.

"That means that at best from Earth, we might be able to see a flash of a few seconds' duration reflected off of Jupiter's larger moons," Hartman. "Detecting that flash would be tricky, and the times are not exact. Some of the times are plus or minus 20 minutes."

Hartman likes to consider possibilities.

"Within a manner of minutes or tens of minutes, the area where the comet fragment hit will rotate into our view so someone who knows what Jupiter looks like could detect disturbances in its upper cloud belts or zones that were resultant from the comet impact.

"You have to have a telescope that can give you a view of some of Jupiter's features and you have to know what Jupiter is supposed to look like.

"Another thing that could be seen might be debris sort of thrown up into the area around the impact. There might possibly be a small area of disruption above Jupiter's atmosphere."

The story would be quite different if the comet hit Earth.

"It's happened to Earth," Hartman said. "I would consider that blast in Siberia in 1909 to be a very significant reminder. That's this century. It hit a remote area. Had it hit a city, we might be further along in our space program. It might have inspired us a little bit."

As recently as Feb. 1, Earth was visited by an object that could have caused great harm had it hit at a different location.

"Something we will call a 'bolide' — which is one flavor of essentially a falling star or a meteor — blew up 20 kilometers above the Pacific Ocean off the Coral Sea. Conservative guesses say it was about 11 kilotons of energy released, which is comparable to the bomb on Hiroshima in 1945.

"But, it blew up high enough over the ocean to where there was no effect. Nobody know about it until it happened. There's a number of asteroids called apollo asteroids that come very close to or pass inside of the Earth's orbit as they go around the sun. And those are ones we know about. Certainly, there are other ones we haven't discovered yet."

All are candidates for a collision with Earth, Hartman said.

"Our solar system is still very dynamic. The collisions may not be as frequent as they were when the moon's face became so scarred and when other moons in our solar system became scarred, but they still happen."

A serious collision between Earth and a space-borne object is not merely a subject for science fiction. In fact, some astronomers are comparing the Shoemaker-Levy 9 crash with Jupiter to the collision of a large asteroid or comet with Earth 65 million years ago — a catastrophe that may have caused the mass extinction of the dinosaurs and many other species.

"A lot of people in the scientific community involved in this kind of research or this kind of discipline would tell you it's only a matter of time," Hartman said.

POLICE REPORTS

Police nab 3 truckers

In three separate incidents Thursday and Friday, the Permian Basin Drug Task Force stopped 18-wheeler trucks for traffic violations and subsequently discovered small amounts of methamphetamines, according to a task force report.

The first stop occurred at 9:30 a.m. Thursday in Ector County and ¼ gram of the drug was found. Steven Wakefield Cupp, 26, and Michael Howard Livesay, 23, both of New Tazewell, Tenn., were arrested, according to the report.

Both posted $7,500 bonds and were released from the Ector County jail, an official said.

Another truck was stopped at 4 p.m. Thursday in Ector County and ½ gram of the drug was seized. John Wayne Roscoe, 44, of Garland was arrested, according to the report.

He remained jailed Friday in lieu of a $7,400 bond.

The third incident occurred at 12:30 a.m. Friday in Ector County. Officials confiscated ½ gram of methamphetamine and arrested John Robert Ward, 32, of Hurst, according to the report.

He remained jailed Friday in lieu of a $5,000 bond.

Oil-tank fire

A burning petroleum storage tank that caught fire Wednesday night was extinguished about 2 p.m. Friday, according to a Chevron representative.

The storage tank, located at the tank farm along Business Interstate 20 East, was ignited by lightning just before midnight Wednesday. The tank contained about 16,00 gallons of sour crude oil.

Thursday

Vandalism: An incident was reported at 3:28 p.m. at 4534 Sinclair Ave. by Peggy Bishop. No other information was available.

Vandalism: A motor vehicle at 3801 Fairhaven Court was scratched by a key, reported Donna Blinka at 3:44 p.m.

Theft: Two 18-packs of Budweiser beer were taken from EZ Mart, 908 W. Indiana Ave., by four men in a white and blue 1984 Ford Bronco. The incident was reported at 7:36 p.m.

Burglary of a residence: Miscellaneous antique furniture, a television set, and an eight-track player were taken from 1217 Cottonwood Ave. The burglary was reported at 8:37 p.m. by Nathaniel Walker.

Vandalism: Damage was done to the roof of a car at 3329 W. Wadley Ave., reported Mike Casey at 8:58 p.m.

Friday

Vandalism: Eggs, flour and green paint were thrown on and inside a vehicle at 712 E. New York Ave., reported Tommie Oldham at 2:15 a.m.

City's back to normal: just hot

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the mid-90s and southeast to south winds at 10 to 20 mph, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Tonight will be fair with a low near 70.

Sunday is expected to be mostly sunny with a high in the upper 90s.

After an overnight low of 68, Friday's high was 89 compared with the record high for that date of 102 set in 1964. The record low for today's date was 63 set in 1975.

STATE

It still felt hot throughout most of Texas on Friday, even though temperatures over the Lone Star State remained under the century mark.

Partly to mostly cloudy skies were the rule during the afternoon as an upper-level low-pressure trough brought continued instability to North Texas.

Mid-afternoon temperatures ranged from 79 degrees in Paris to 89 degrees in Greenville and Sherman and 93 at Dallas and Fort Worth. But the heat index reached 105 at DFW Airport and 103 at Mineral Wells.

South Texas and the Texas coast were generally partly cloudy, with temperatures ranging from 83 at Port Aransas to 95 at San Antonio and 98 at Cotulla.

Temperatures in West Texas were mostly in the upper 80s and lower 90s.

Skies should be partly cloudy on both Saturday and Sunday, with a chance of thunderstorms, some with heavy rain, the National Weather Service said. Highs should be mostly in the 90s and night-time lows in the 70s. The mercury could rise above 100 in the Big Bend.

Rains fell Friday morning in the Edwards Plateau, along and just east of the Rio Grande, triggering a flash flood watch that was in effect until noon. A little over an inch of rain fell in the Del Rio area between 7 a.m. and 1 p.m.

The weather service said Del Rio's 1.26 inches of rain after midnight broke the previous record for July 15 of 0.65 inches set in 1960.

The rest of South Texas was mostly hot and dry on Friday, although some showers and thunderstorms were reported in the vicinity of Houston Beaumont and the lower Texas coast.

Warm moist onshore breezes occasionally gusted near 30 mph along the middle and lower coastal plains.

NATION

Storms with heavy rain, hail and winds up to 70 mph stretched across much of the Midwest and into the Northeast on Friday, while thunderstorms and showers drenched the already soggy Southeast.

Scattered rainstorms also soaked parts of the Mississippi and Tennessee valleys.

A combination of Gulf Coast moisture, heat and an upper level disturbance over southeastern Oklahoma produced rain over much of the Southeast.

In the Midwest, thunderstorms dropped dime-sized hail south of North Platte, Neb., and east of Rockbridge, Ohio. Thunderstorms in Kansas produced 70 mph gusts in Lucas and 60 mph gusts at Salina.

Winds and small hail east of Ogallala, Neb., completely stripped crops.

In Gering, in far western Nebraska, up to 4 inches of rain fell in an hour, turning some streets into seas of mud. Crews used a snow plow to push away as much as a foot of mud in some areas and load it on dump trucks.

Many Gering residents spent the day pumping mud and water from their basements.

Flash flood watches were issued for southeastern Oklahoma and much of Texas. Thousands of residents in Tulsa, Okla., remained without power Friday, a day after storms tore through the region.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

FILM: TV news trend is not without its critics

(From 1A)

orful video that is, on the surface, seemingly good local television," said John Lansing, who as news director of Minneapolis' WCCO is credited with coining the term "family sensitive," if not inventing the form.

He said violent news video was scaring people and distorting their perceptions of their community and others.

The trend is not without its critics.

"Unfortunately, the news is often disturbing by its nature, and to avoid disturbing the audience is ill-serving them," said Dave Bartlett, president of the Radio-Television News Directors Association. "We have to be careful that in our zeal to be family-sensitive, we don't lose sight of the fact that we still have to be doing news."

Eric Braun, manager of consultation and research for Frank N. Magid Associates Inc. of Marion, Iowa, a media consulting company, said he, too, is troubled by the development.

"I'm just real nervous about saying to the viewers that we are going to censor what you're going to see," he said.

In January, WCCO, the top-rated station in the nation's 14th-biggest market, became the first to identify and promote its newscasts as family-friendly. The impetus emerged from about 100 small, WCCO-sponsored "town meetings," with the station's executives, managers and staff.

"The first words out of people's mouths were, 'Television news is too violent,'" Lansing said.

At a later meeting, Lansing said, a participant said that the problem was not TV news violence, but that TV did a bad job at covering crime issues in particular, and, in general, a bad job at putting the world into context.

"That was a defining moment for me," Lansing said.

In addition to eliminating violent video from the 5 p.m. newscast, WCCO created a new beat system to look at more complex issues, and added two full-time staffers to research crime databases for trends and statistics that would put a story in context.

The station also established a "bill of rights" for victims of crime. Among other things, reporters covering crime stories cannot put microphones in front of people's faces without first asking permission, Lansing said.

In Miami, CBS-owned WCIX has used family sensitive news since May 9 to counter top-rated WSVN, an independent known for its fast-paced, sensational coverage. WCIX's 4 and 6 p.m. newscasts were changed with children in mind.

"There are certain graphic images — not just body bags, but also medical stories, in terms of blood — where children can't interpret visual data as well as adults can, where they can't put it into context," said news director Sue Kawalerski.

"Our aim is not to put gore on TV to begin with, but there are some stories where a picture does tell the story," she added. "They air at 11 o'clock, where you do have a principally adult audience."

Other stations using a family-sensitive approach include KRQE, in Albuquerque, N.M.; WLOS of Asheville, N.C.; WMAR, in Baltimore; WCNC in Charlotte, N.C.; WBIR, in Knoxville, Tenn.; KWTV of Oklahoma City; WTAE of Pittsburgh; KXTV of Sacramento, Calif.; KIRO of Seattle; and KGUN in Tucson, Ariz.

Kawalerski, Lansing and Shipley said that their changes have not significantly affected ratings, but that community reaction has been overwhelming approval.

"It leads us to believe we're hit a hot button in the community, something that's been needed for a long time," Kawalerski said.

WCIX actively promotes its family sensitive approach, offering explanations when the broadcast does not show explicit video.

VISE: U.S. planes broadcast Aristide speech

(From 1A)

Two Marines armed with automatic rifles crouched behind sandbag emplacements on the roof of the embassy, which is ringed by a 10-foot concrete wall topped in places by recently installed razor wire.

Many Haitians said they felt Washington was just saber rattling and not planning an attack, despite the 2,860 Marines aboard warships off Haiti.

"I don't think they're going to invade. It's too quiet here," said a Haitian business executive, reflecting a widely felt sentiment. He asked that his name not be used.

No increase in Haitian forces was visible in the capital. Sandbags were stacked just two feet high on some streets leading to army headquarters and the presidential palace.

Aristide's broadcast was the inauguration of Radio Democracy, coordinated by the U.S. Defense Department. The signal, sent by two EC-130 planes that took off from Eglin Air Force Base in northwest Florida, was received weakly in Port-au-Prince on the AM and FM bands.

No Haitians were seen on the streets openly listening to the broadcast, which could have made them targets of pro-military thugs.

Aristide, who lives in exile in Washington, said in his 50-minute speech in Creole that once he returns he would "toll the bell of reconciliation."

"Soldiers you have nothing to worry about," he said.

He urged Haitians not to flee by boat but instead to remain and help force out the repressive army rulers.

"The harder we pressure the coup leaders, the quicker they will go," Aristide said, without specifying how the pressure should be applied.

The one-hour broadcast, which began at 6:30 p.m., included 10 minutes of Haitian music.

The broadcasts will "make sure the Haitian people know they have not been abandoned by the international community," William H. Gray III, President Clinton's special adviser on Haiti, said in Washington.

U.S. officials will also speak to Haitians on the station, which will broadcast daily, said embassy spokesman Stanley Schrager.

Haiti's military rulers will consider the broadcasts "a threat to their illegitimate (government)," Schrager said.

The U.S. Navy has dispatched 16 ships carrying about 4,700 sailors and the Marines off Haiti. They are in addition to 15 Coast Guard cutters patrolling for refugees escaping on small boats.

In New York, U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali on Friday projected that it would take U.N. 15,600 personnel, including combat troops, to help restore democracy in Haiti once the military government departs.

WANDER: Children roam battlegrounds alone

(From 1A)

army and panicked refugees flee, aid officials estimate as many as 100,000 children roam the country on their own, among the mines, the corpses and the devastation.

The Red Cross calls them "unaccompanied children" — not orphans — because no one knows if their parents are dead, alive, wounded, fled or fighting.

They're survivors of the death squad massacres that have killed an estimated 200,000 to 500,000 Rwandans in the last three months, since the Central African nation's civil war resumed.

Many of the children saw their families hacked to death before their eyes, and they themselves bear the scars of clubs and machetes.

The death squads were formed by Hutu extremists who feared that the once-dominant Tutsi minority would again take power over the Hutu majority.

This wasn't Rwanda's first Tutsi massacre. Thousands had been killed in the early 1960s, and the children of those who fled into exile banded into a formidable guerrilla army.

"The crazy ones couldn't believe the rebels wanted peace," despite signing a treaty with the government in August 1993, said Assan Ildefonse, a Tutsi patient at Butare Hospital who had both his Achilles tendons slashed by a machete. After most of the doctors were killed, the hospital was abandoned and Ildefonse now hobbles around trying to care for about 40 children.

When Hutu President Juvenal Habyarimana died April 6 in a mysterious plane crash, militias across the country descended on the Tutsis and anyone suspected of collaboration.

The rebels launched a new offensive so furious that within three months they had run the death squads and the army from two-thirds of the country.

But not before many children were dead — or left alone.

"The militias called the Tutsi babies future rebels and killed them too," Ildefonse said.

Those who escaped, now terrified of adults and uniforms, often hide and keep to the wilds. When rebels captured Butare and drove off the death squads, they had to recruit women to help coax the children out of their hiding places in back rooms and banana groves.

Among the first to join the rescue effort was Gertrude Kanakuze, who lost her left arm and 30 members of her Tutsi family in one night of Hutu militia hell, including her husband, daughters, sons and parents.

Nursing the stump of her arm in Butare Hospital, Kanakuze, 27, has taken under her wing four foundlings who were discovered hiding in the woods.

"I don't know how I could live if i didn't have someone else to think about," she said, stroking the head of Liliane, whom Gertrude guesses is 4 years old. "Praise God, we are many and we are surviving."

Marc Vatieri has taken in more than 200 of Rwanda's wandering children at an orphanage he set up

The 40-year-old Frenchman, with gentle eyes and long hair and beard, came to Rwanda over a year ago to nurse terminally ill AIDS patients and found himself taking care of their children after they'd died.

Vatieri, a former clothing salesman who said God called on him to work in Rwanda, stuck it out in Kigali throughout the siege. As rebel mortars and militia revenge attacks killed more than one-third of the city's population, he opened his door every day to another solitary child.

"Some chidren came to us from the hospital, sometimes people found them and brought them to us, but many little ones just arrived alone and banged on the door," Vatieri said.

As he struggles to feed and calm the children, he fears his biggest problem is that all those who could help him were among the militias' prime targets.

"They have no families, no teachers — who will help them through this?" Among Vatieri's charges is Eric, 11, who shyly lifted his baseball cap to show the raw red machete scars on the back of his head.

STORY: Judge orders Cowlings back on July 29

(From 1A)

Ms. Simpson's condo.

If the prosecutor, Marcia Clark, was present before the warrant was issued, it could help the defense show that police knowingly seized evidence illegally and that it should be excluded from trial.

A source close to the investigation told The Associated Press that Clark got to the mansion at 12:30 p.m. and stayed about an hour to watch the search, which already had turned up bloodstains and a bloody glove.

Neither the video nor the box that contained it indicated whether the time, 10:28, was a.m. or p.m. KCBS said 10:28 could simply be the time at night that the video was transmitted from a truck to the station.

Prosecutors, meanwhile, were granted two more weeks Friday to decide whether to charge Al "A.C." Cowlings with helping his friend flee during their 60-mile nationally televised freeway chase June 17.

Municipal Judge Jeffrey Wiatt ordered Cowlings to return to court July 29.

During the chase, Cowlings was at the wheel of his white Ford Bronco, and Simpson was in the back, allegedly with a gun to his head. The chase ended with Cowlings pulling into the driveway of Simpson's home and Simpson surrendering.

Cowlings' lawyer, Donald M. Re, said his client talked Simpson out of shooting himself and should be considered a hero.

"A.C. was in the position where he had a choice: He either could let O.J. go off and kill himself, or stay with O.J. and talk him out of it," Re told the AP after a brief hearing. "He did what any good friend should do. He stayed with him and talked him out of it."

Re said Cowlings didn't know about the passport or the $10,000 in cash that investigators reportedly seized from the Bronco. The discovery raised suspicions that Simpson may have intended to leave the country.

Cowlings remains free on $250,000 bail. He has made no public statements since his release.

WALLOPS: Teen is sentenced

(From 1A)

On Ms. Balog's behalf, Midland County Assistant District Attorney Brian Carney presented medical bills totaling $148,071. Ms. Balog's husband testified that Town & Country Food Stores had paid for her medical expenses.

Hyde ordered Mitchell to pay the $148,071 as well as $25,000 in restitution to Ms. Balog after serving his prison sentence.

The judge also stipulated that because Mitchell used a deadly weapon — a baseball bat — during the commission of the crime, he will have to serve at least two years of his sentence before becoming eligible for parole.

Leaders of Jordan, Israel to attend historic peace talks in D.C.

■ King Hussein's decision to forge ties with Israel without waiting for Syria is major Mideast breakthrough, analysts say.

Associated Press

JERUSALEM — In a historic breakthrough that gives impetus to an overall Arab-Israeli settlement, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Jordan's King Hussein agreed Friday to meet at the White House and lay the foundation for a peace treaty.

"This is a turning point in our relations with Jordan and all of the Middle East," said Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres.

In announcing the July 25 summit, President Clinton called it "another step forward toward achievement of comprehensive and lasting peace in the Middle East."

Jordan and Israel have been technically in a state of war since the creation of the Jewish state in 1948.

By agreeing to the meeting, Hussein has signaled his intentions to forge ahead with negotiations without waiting for Syria, his powerful neighbor and the key holdout in reaching a comprehensive accord.

Peres expressed hope Syrian President Hafez Assad would now also come around. "I believe the king is convinced that in the end we will reach a comprehensive peace in the Middle East, and I think he is right. . . . Maybe Syria will now draw the necessary conclusions."

Clinton sent Secretary of State Warren Christopher to the region to help the two countries resolve remaining differences and to seek an opening with Assad.

Christopher will also meet with PLO leader Yasser Arafat, who has set up permament residence in the newly autonomous Gaza Strip and West Bank town of Jericho.

"The Middle East is really entering a new era, and the opportunity to have that happen is one we wanted to grasp as soon as possible," Christopher said in Washington.

However, without Syria, even a Jordan-Israel peace treaty is doubtful. Assad has long played the roll of spoiler in Mideast politics.

Jordan-Israel talks are to open in a tent straddling their desert border south of the Dead Sea on Monday. Jordan television showed pictures of workers setting up the tent and prefabricated buildings.

Christopher, Peres and Jordanian Prime Minister Abdul Salam Majali are to meet in Jordan on Wednesday to prepare for the summit.

"Basically, we are talking about an end to the state of war, and the beginning of a state of peace, about economic development and the ways to reach these objectives," Peres said on Israel army radio.

Israel and Jordan had agreed on an agenda for negotiations Sept. 14, a day after Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization signed their outline accord for Palestinian self-rule.

However, Hussein delayed a final agreement, hoping to move in step with the Syrians. Despite a Clinton summit with Assad in Geneva early this year, the Israeli-Syrian talks stalled.

The key issue is the extent of Israeli withdrawal from the Golan Heights, captured by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war and later annexed.

Rabin has said he was ready for significant territorial compromise, but the Syrians want all of the Golan back. Assad has rejected Israeli requests for a meeting with Rabin or for a secret back channel to get the talks moving.

Colombian rebels kill 24 soldiers who guard oil

BOGOTA, Colombia (NYT) — At least 24 soldiers who were part of a military commando unit protecting oil installations were killed early on Friday in a clash with leftist guerrillas in southwestern Colombia, the army said.

It said the clashes took place as rebels believed to belong to the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia attacked the pumps of an oil pipeline run by the state-owned company Ecopetrol. The commando unit, made up of about 70 soldiers, was attacked by an estimated 400 rebels, the army said.

The attack was carried out at dawn near the town of Orito in the region of Putumayo, about 350 miles southwest of Bogota. A witness said that fighting between the army and the rebels continued for about three hours.

The army said that seven rebels had been killed, but a city official in Orito said he had seen the bodies of 25 rebels being driven away by guerrillas. Rosa Helena Bedoya, a spokesman for the Orito city government, said that 17 soldiers and one guerrilla member had died.

Freddy Barrera, a spokesman at the mayor's office in Orito, said that on Thursday, rebels made an attempt on the life of the city's mayor and several engineers.

Ecopetrol said in a statement that no serious damage had been caused to the pipeline, but added that a tank containing 1,500 barrels of oil was partly destroyed and that this led to a minor spill.

The attack came weeks after the government signed peace agreements with two guerrilla factions.

Last week, a rebel group known as the National Liberation Army announced its willingness to begin peace talks with President-elect Ernesto Samper.

Rebels have often attacked oil pipelines and foreign oil installations. Last year, the country's largest pipeline was attacked 39 times, causing oil spills of more than 100,000 barrels. So far this year, it has been attacked 13 times. A pipeline in Putumayo has been attacked three times this year.

Although most of the strikes have been attributed to rebels, some are believed to be carried out by Indians as a way to press the local authorities to address their needs.

Bosnian fighting spreads amid signs Serbs may reject peace plan

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Fighting spread to a new Bosnian region Friday amid signs that Serb leaders might be leaning toward rejection of an international peace plan for the republic's ethnic division.

U.N. officials reported heavy fighting near Konjic, an area southwest of Sarajevo that controls the main route linking the Adriatic coast with regions held by the Muslim-Croat federation in northern and central Bosnia.

Combat also continued along front lines in the north despite Tuesday's agreement by all parties to extend a truce accord that is being observed less and less.

Serb attacks around Konjic and Serb news reports were seen as indications that the Bosnian Serb assembly might reject the peace plan, which would reduce Serb holdings to 49 percent of Bosnia. They control 70 percent after 27 months of war that began with Bosnia's secession from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia.

The plan's authors — the United States, Russia, Germany, Britain and France — have given the parties until Tuesday to accept the proposal or face tougher sanctions. Leaders of the Muslim-Croat federation have endorsed the plan.

In Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital, the newspaper Borba said Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic failed to persuade Bosnian Serb generals to withdraw from part of the Posavina corridor as the plan demands. The corridor links Serb-held areas with Serbia proper.

The Bosnian Serbs' top general, Ratko Mladic, strongly rejected Milosevic's suggestions that Bosnian Serb troops pull back from hotly contested Mount Ozren and Doboj, a town in the corridor, Borba said.

Meanwhile, the Bosnian Serb news agency Srna reported an appeal from a Serb commander for volunteers to aid in the defense of Ozren, hinting that troops of the Muslim-led government might be gaining ground in the area.

Milosevic is pressuring the Bosnian Serbs to make concessions so the United Nations will ease trade sanctions that have worsened Yugoslavia's struggling economy.

The plan's sponsors have promised financial help for rebuilding the region's economies if the Serbs accept it. They also have warned that rejection could bring an exemption for the Bosnian government army from a U.N. arms embargo imposed on Yugoslavia and its former republics.

The fighting around Konjic was alarming because recent combat has been confined mainly to the north and northwest.

Luxembourg's premier to head European Union

■ Leaders unanimously endorse Christian Democrat Jacques Santer, 57, a compromise candidate.

Associated Press

BRUSSELS, Belgium — European Union leaders ended a stalemate over a new chief executive Friday by tapping little-known Premier Jacques Santer of Luxembourg for the job.

The 12 leaders unanimously endorsed Santer, 57, a compromise candidate, after Britain threw the group into turmoil last month by unexpectedly vetoing a previous candidate, Belgian Prime Minister Jean-Luc Dehaene.

"We are convinced Jacques Santer is the right man at the right time," said German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, who had led a frantic three-week search for a new leader.

Santer succeeds France's Jacques Delors, who steps down in January after 10 years as president of the EU executive agency, the European Commission. The 15,000-strong bureaucracy runs the EU's daily affairs.

As chief executive, Santer will become one of Europe's top political figures, wielding much influence over the pace and direction of integration during the next five years.

The EU will be adding Austria, Finland, Sweden and Norway as new members and striving for more power on the world stage. A new treaty calls for a common foreign policy and a single currency by 1999. The EU also will be debating a joint defense policy and union membership for some east European nations.

In turning to Santer, the leaders opted for a low-profile candidate who during a decade in office has shown no strong vision of Europe's future.

His country, the EU's smallest with 400,000 residents, wields little influence in private, decision-making chambers. It tends to follow the lead of EU heavyweights France and Germany, its neighbors.

Kohl and others sought to fend off charges that Santer would be a lightweight.

"He has what it takes to be a strong president," Kohl insisted.

Santer, who speaks English, French and German fluently, appealed for patience: "Judge me by my acts ... when I'm able to do something."

His nomination must be approved next week by the European Parliament, the EU's 567-seat assembly.

Santer was the only available candidate all 12 nations could agree on — even Britain.

At a summit last month in Greece, British Prime Minister John Major caused disarray by vetoing the nomination of Belgium's Dehaene for the post. The 11 other nations endorsed Dehaene. A unanimous decision was required.

Major complained that Dehaene supported tight links among the nations and was in favor of big government policies. Britain is wary of forging too close ties with

After 49 years, U.S. pulls plug on Berlin radio station

BERLIN (AP) — The U.S. military's American Forces Network broadcast for the last time from Berlin on Friday, closing up after 49 years of infecting Berliners with a steady diet of Americana from Glenn Miller to Run DMC.

"It was the trendmaker," said Wladimir Benz, a German translator-reporter who joined AFN's news department in 1948 and retired 40 years later. "It probably also helped transform the German language."

Since Aug. 5, 1945, when it went on the air playing George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" from an improvised hut on the back of a truck, AFN radio was the best medium in Berlin for getting to know American English and culture.

Now it belongs to the same chapter of history as the Cold War and the Berlin Wall, a chapter that will close when the last American soldiers leave the formerly divided city in October.

For East and West Berliners alike, AFN was much more than music. It was a window on a looser lifestyle. Even its commercials intrigued the Germans.

If people are indeed a product of their media culture, "then AFN Americanized West Berlin," said Rik DeLisle, a former popular disc jockey at AFN Berlin.

Berliners' first contact with Buddy Holly, Elvis Presley, the Beach Boys — with everything from bebop to punk rock — came over the airwaves via AFN.

German stations eventually picked up on the latest sound. But until the early 1980s, AFN was always first. It also provided moral support through the tensest days of the Cold War to people surrounded by communist East Germany.

"This station became a friend and without a doubt one of the best ambassadors our nation ever had," Col. Robert E. Gaylord, director of AFN in Europe, said in closing Friday's three-hour send-off radio broadcast.

After playing "The Star-Spangled Banner," and 30 seconds of dead air, AFN Berlin went off the air. AFN network radio and television feeds will continue until September. Then the transmitters and satellite dishes come down.

The farewell show was heard via the AFN network in 52 countries that reach 375,000 U.S. soldiers and their families, including GIs in western Germany.

The retrospective, emceed by station manager Gregory Foss, also reached some of the audience it had most affected throughout the Cold War.

"This is where I got my English," said Hans-Peter Krueger, an economist who began listening in the late 1960s as a student in East Berlin, thinking at first that this was the enemy but eventually being won over.

Benz remembers getting many song requests from East Berliners in the early 1950s when AFN's "Frolic at Five" was the hottest show in town.

About a decade ago, competition began to grow for Berlin's airwaves and some 24 radio stations now compete for listeners.

"AFN isn't a factor anymore in local radio," said DeLisle.

Doctors wonder why suicide rates soar in Sarajevo despite peace

■ Psychiatrists at city's main hospital see seven times the number of people trying to kill themselves than during Sarajevo's darkest days.

By George Jahn
Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Peace may have come to Sarajevo, but not to many of its residents. Suicide rates are soaring among people who faced war with courage only to find they cannot deal with its aftermath.

Psychiatrists at Kosevo, Sarajevo's main hospital, say they're seeing seven times the number of people trying to kill themselves than during Sarajevo's darkest days, when death from a shell or bullet could come anytime.

Sarajevans today should be far happier than just five months ago, when a cease-fire began. Since then, an illusion of normalcy has returned.

There is running water and electricity. Cafes and restaurants have reopened. People once again crowd the streets and ride in buses and trams without risk to their lives.

But appearances deceive. The elemental need to survive from one day to the next has faded with the end of shelling and sniping that made venturing outside as risky as Russian roulette.

While a blessing, the lull also means time to take stock. Some, grappling with the loss of family and friends in a war that has left more than 200,000 dead or missing, are finding life is not worth living.

Psychiatrist Zeljko Troganovic said five of every 200 patients coming to his department before the war came for therapy after attempted suicide. The number plummeted to less than one in 200 in the first year of the war, then started slowly rising in 1993.

But only after the cease-fire was declared did it blip upward past prewar levels. By March the rate was seven times that of 1992 and climbing.

"In the first year of the war, the pure overriding need was to survive," Troganovic said. "People did not have a lot of time to think about suicide, and those with trivial motives realized that amid all the killing you won't be able to draw attention to yourself by killing yourself."

By the second year of war, people's endurance started giving out and suicide rates started inching upward, said Troganovic. Police won't release suicide figures, but the number of attempts reflect the rising rate.

One patient, whose daughter was killed by shelling "would seek out the areas of worst shelling and then go for walks amid the explosions," Troganovic said. "His reaction after being slightly wounded was, 'Why wasn't I lucky enough to be killed?'"

The real crisis came with peace in February, when mourners finally got the chance to dwell on the deaths of loved ones.

The loss of a family member or special friend "is a bigger trauma than the loss of an arm or a leg," Troganovic said. "For such people, it's very often a case of adding up everything worth living for and coming up with a zero."

Ramiz Hodzic, leaning on his shovel near a half-dug grave at one of Sarajevo's dozen cemeteries, says he's buried six suicide victims since the cease-fire began.

Rwandan Hutu refugees wait in lines that stretch for miles to receive ration of rice distributed by Red Cross relief workers outside Goma in eastern Zaire Friday.

Rwandan masses flood into Zaire

GOMA, Zaire (AP) — There was no room but still they came Friday, a barely moving mass of humanity abandoned by the government army and terrified of the rebel forces advancing across western Rwanda.

With crossing gates into Zaire thrown open, it was impossible to count how many Hutu refugees had arrived in two days. But it likely was well over 500,000, making it one of the largest flights in history.

Friday's arrivals found most space already taken. Relief officials have already seen signs of disease in the camps, where food, water and shelter are rare commodities.

"It's even worse than our worst-case scenario," said Panos Moumtzis, a spokesman for the U.N. High Commission on Refugees in Goma. "It's the largest exodus in a short period of time. The needs right now are extreme."

The Red Cross set up two feeding centers north of Goma, and the line quickly grew miles long. Officials said the sites were chosen to keep the refugees moving out of the city to avoid trouble with local residents.

Leaders of the Hutu interim government fled Gisenyi, their stronghold across the border from Goma, as Tutsi-dominated rebels closed on the city, pursuing what remained of the government army in full retreat.

Busloads of Rwandan soldiers scurried into Zaire. About 350 were housed at one military barracks.

The United States cut diplomatic ties Friday with the Hutu government, blamed by President Clinton for supporting "genocidal massacre." The Embassy of Rwanda was ordered closed and its personnel were ordered to leave the United States within five working days.

In Rwanda, the columns of Hutus waiting to pass through the three border crossings into Zaire stretched for miles.

The Hutus fear the rebels want to avenge widespread massacres of minority Tutsis by extremist supporters of Rwanda's Hutu-dominated government. The Hutu militias have been blamed for most of the estimated 200,000 to 500,000 deaths in the past three months in the small, central African nation.

No evidence of reprisals has surfaced. A spokeswoman for Doctors Without Borders in Goma, Samantha N. Bolton, said the arriving refugees were mostly uninjured.

Faustin Twagiramungu, a moderate Hutu picked by the rebels as prime minister of the new government, blamed the refugee crisis on hate propaganda from the Hutu government, broadcast over the radio.

"People are not fleeing from the RPF, they are fleeing from the monsters that the Gisenyi government has created," he said Friday in Kigali.

North Korea delays Kim Il Sung's state funeral

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North Korea today postponed the state funeral of Kim Il Sung by two days, but South Korean officials said there was no indication the action was tied to any instability in the hard-line state.

North Korea said the funeral, originally scheduled for Sunday, would be held Tuesday instead due to an enormous crush of mourners wanting to pay respects to Kim, who died July 8 at age 82.

Speaking on condition of anonymity, Southern officials said the delay did not appear to signal that any problems had arisen regarding the succession of Kim's son and handpicked heir, Kim Jong Il.

The officials said the decision to prolong the mourning period could be aimed at fueling unrest in the South, where Kim Il Sung's death has triggered a growing ideological dispute.

A dispatch by the North's official Korean Central News Agency said the move reflected the "ardent feelings and demand of the people" to pay respects.

"The number of mourners is ever increasing,"

Kim's body has been lying in state at the presidential palace for several days, and North Koreans by the thousands have been streaming past his flower-bedecked casket.

Southern officials were closely monitoring the situation in the secretive North, where changes in the political hierarchy are often signaled by matters involving ceremonial events such as funerals.

Kim Jong Il, 52, has apparently taken power, although there has been no formal succession announcement.

Greek Cypriots mark anniversary of coup

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Greek Cypriots marked Friday's 20th anniversary of the right-wing coup that prompted the Turkish invasion and partition of Cyprus with curses for the failed plotters and calls for reunification.

Air raid sirens wailed at 8:20 a.m. Friday to mark the hour on July 15, 1974, when tanks attacked the presidential palace in Nicosia forcing the president, Archbishop Makarios, to flee abroad.

Greek Cypriots thronged to the main cemetery of the capital for a memorial service for the thousands who died in "the twin tragedies," the coup and the Turkish invasion that came five days later.

Huge banners in the main square of the capital, Nicosia, and in other Greek Cypriot areas denounced the coup, which was mounted by officers of the military junta ruling Greece at the time and by local right-wing supporters of union with Greece.

Passersby stopped to sign an appeal to the United Nations for the implementation of Security Council resolutions ignored by Turkey for 20 years. These demand the withdrawal of the estimated 35,000 Turkish troops and 50,000 settlers from mainland Turkey and the return of Greek Cypriots who fled after the invasion.

Two decades later, the island remains divided. About 575,000 Greek Cypriot Christians live south of the dividing line that runs through the center of Nicosia. They include about 200,000 who fled the north after Turkish troops landed.

About 135,000 Turkish Cypriot Muslims, plus the mainland settlers, live in the north. They include about 40,000 who fled from the south to the north 20 years ago.

"We keep hoping and praying that the United Nations will one day finally force Turkey to withdraw so we can return to our homes in the north," said Andreas Charalambous, a middle-aged Greek Cypriot refugee from the northern town of Kyrenia.

"Curses and damnation on the junta and the traitors among us who staged the coup bringing this tragedy upon us," said Chrystalla Georghiou, a woman dressed in black who said her son was killed in the 1974 fighting.

Top general: U.S. should lose its nukes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States should eliminate all its nuclear weapons, a top Air Force general said Friday in a sharp break from Pentagon orthodoxy.

Gen. Charles A. Horner, head of the U.S. Space Command, said the nation would secure "the high moral ground" worldwide while losing little militarily by eliminating its nuclear arsenal.

"The nuclear weapon is obsolete," Horner said at a breakfast meeting with defense reporters. "I want to get rid of them all."

Horner made clear he was "talking long-term" and said nuclear disarmament should only take place if other nuclear powers, especially Russia, go along.

Still, the comments from one of the military's most senior officers run counter to the Clinton administration view that the nuclear weapons arsenal can be reduced, but not eliminated entirely.

Horner, as head of one of the military's nine "unified commands," reports directly to the secretary of defense. His command covers military satellite operations and ballistic missile defense efforts, among other things.

In addition to heading the U.S. Space Command, Horner also leads the North American Aerospace Defense Command, which is responsible for defending the United States and Canada from a nuclear attack.

Horner first raised the idea of eliminating the nuclear arsenal last year, but only as something the Pentagon should consider in "what if" studies. His comments Friday marked a rare instance of an active-duty officer criticizing one of the fundamental pillars of U.S. defense throughout the Cold War.

"I want to go to zero and I'll tell you why: if we and the Russians can go to zero nuclear weapons, then think what that does for us in our efforts to counter the new war," Horner said.

'It's kind of hard for us to say to North Korea, 'You are terrible people, you're developing a nuclear weapon,' when the United States has thousands of them.'

— Gen. Charles Horner, AF

The new military threat, unlike the superpower tensions of the past, comes from smaller, less stable countries that obtain weapons of mass destruction, Horner said.

"Think of the high moral ground we secure by having none," said Horner, who plans to retire soon. "It's kind of hard for us to say to North Korea, 'You are terrible people, you're developing a nuclear weapon,'" when the United States has thousands of them

Horner is far from a pacifist. He led coalition air forces during the Persian Gulf War and he worries that the nation's conventional forces are being cut too deeply.

Air Force Lieutenant General Charles Horner, head of the U.S. Space Command, said Friday during a breakfast with defense writers that the U.S. should secure 'the high moral ground' by eliminating all of its nuclear weapons which he called 'obsolete.'

Update reveals status of White House controversies

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Here are updates of controversies that have swirled around the White House operations in recent months.

Q. Has the shakeup at the White House changed much?

A. New chief of staff Leon Panetta officially takes over this weekend, moving into his spacious West Wing office suite, complete with a brick patio for el fresco luncheons. He has kept mum about plans to churn up the White House staff, although there are rumors of new recruits coming on board soon.

Q. Has the White House closed the book on the incident in which two aides took a presidential helicopter for a golf outing?

A. Not yet. More than seven weeks after he participated in the golf trip, Alfonso Maldon Jr., head of the White House military office, was still on the job as of Friday. The administration had announced that Maldon would be reassigned.

David Watkins, who was forced to resign as White House administrator in late May for his part in the escapade, has made good on his promise to repay the government, said Clinton spokesman Arthur Jones. He paid the $13,129.66 on May 31, said Jones, "and the check hasn't bounced."

Q. Do all of the White House staffers now have the security clearance required?

A. Amid a flap earlier this year, White House press secretary Dee Dee Myers confirmed that nearly one-third of the White House employees did not have "permanent passes" indicating they had passed background checks. She conceded that she was among them because she had failed to fill out the required forms.

Q. Why is Congress concerned about drug testing of White House employees?

A. The Senate voted 98-0 last month to require the president to certify that the director of drug testing at the White House has no history of drug abuse.

Administration policy requires that all staffers be subject to random drug testing with no advance warning. Moreover, 1 percent, about 10 aides, are subject to more frequent testing because of some potential problem from their background.

Q. The Clinton administration promised that political consultants who were not on the White House staff would disclose the names of their clients. Has this been done?

A. Four outside advisers who have White House passes had a deadline of Friday for providing their financial disclosures. The White House legal office reported that it will not make the documents public until next week.

Q. Has the president smoothed over his relationship with the military since his D-Day trip to Europe to honor the World War II veterans?

A. There are still signs of strain. Just days after Clinton returned from his D-Day journey, his White House staff created a small furor by asking military officers to serve hors d'oeuvres at a Democratic Party event.

Republicans jumped on the incident.

The White House responded with a carefully worded justification that offered no regrets. The reception had been hastily moved indoors because of threatening weather, said Susan Brophy, deputy chief of the congressional liaison office.

"There was a scurry of activity to make this happen — and almost everyone pitched in to help, including senior administration officials," she wrote.

Study: Pregnant women gain little from bed rest

NEW YORK (AP) — Doctors tell nearly one in five pregnant women to stay in bed for a week or more, but a study has found little evidence this prescription does any good.

Bed rest disrupts women's lives and costs more than $1 billion a year in lost wages, lost productivity around the home and hospital costs, the study said. It may also present its own medical risks, such as blood clots, researchers said.

Prescribed for a variety of conditions, bed rest is usually done at home and can last several months.

"In nearly every case when it's been studied, there is no proof of benefit," said Dr. Robert Goldenberg, a professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Alabama at Birmingham.

He and his co-authors conclude in the July issue of the journal Obstetrics and Gynecology that doctors should cut down sharply on ordering bed rest and that further studies should be done to see if it really helps.

The researchers used results of a 1988 national survey to calculate that more than 700,000 women a year, or about 18 percent of pregnant women who deliver after 20 weeks of pregnancy, are advised by their doctors to rest in bed for at least a week during pregnancy.

The researchers also did a computerized search of studies that evaluated bed rest.

They found no evidence that it reduces the rate of first-trimester miscarriage, even though it is sometimes prescribed for women who have slight bleeding called spotting.

Similarly, although obstetrics textbooks generally recommend bed rest for women at risk of premature delivery, researchers found no sign that it lowers that risk in women carrying a single fetus. And there is little evidence that it reduces the risk of premature delivery or improves baby health in women with multiple fetuses, they said.

The findings for high blood pressure were more complex. For a dangerous form called proteinuric hypertension or pre-eclampsia, women should be hospitalized so they can be closely monitored, the researchers said.

For other women, those whose high blood pressure began before they became pregnant, there's little evidence bed rest will lead to a healthier baby, they said.

Dr. John Larsen, a professor of obstetrics and gynecology at George Washington University who was familiar with the study results, said some pregnant women with high blood pressure can benefit from bed rest in which they lie on their sides.

Larsen also said bed rest in a hospital is appropriate for a condition called placenta previa, which carries a risk of severe bleeding.

But he agreed that bed rest isn't needed for first-trimester spotting.

Henry Steinmetz, of Greenville, Ohio, cleans the flues (one of 44 in this engine) in his 1917 Reeves steam engine this week in Plain City, Ohio. Steinmetz's steam engine is one of several on display at the Miami Valley Steam Threshers Association Show being held at Pastime Park July 14-17. It took him over a year to restore this engine that hasn't run since the 1940s.

Anxiety, insomnia plague quake victims 6 months later

By Jane E. Allen
AP science writer

LOS ANGELES — Four-year-old Nicole Guice sleeps with her mattress on the floor so she won't have far to fall if another earthquake shatters her dreams. Laura Ruhland has flashlights stashed all over the house. Leo Kossin breaks down every time he passes his quake-damaged apartment building.

Los Angeles rebuilt most of its broken highways in record time after the earthquake of Jan. 17. Psyches are proving more difficult to repair.

Six months later, mental health professionals are still treating people for anxiety, depression and insomnia attributed to the pre-dawn quake. They also report an increase in attempted suicides.

"This gives us a gauge on how fragile people are right now," said psychologist Patricia Mendoza, director of Project Rebound, which has provided free counseling to more than 513,000 people since the earthquake.

The 6.7-magnitude quake collapsed sections of the Golden State and Santa Monica freeways, cracked the Los Angeles Coliseum and flattened several floors into one at the Northridge Meadows Apartments.

It caused up to $20 billion in damage, injured about 10,000 people and killed 61. That, at least, is the official death toll.

As of early July, the state had contributed more than $430,000 toward the funerals of 117 people; many of those deaths were attributed to quake-related stress. Among them was a man who hanged himself because he had lost his job.

Nicole Guice was asleep when the quake struck at 4:31 a.m. It didn't toss her out of bed, but for months afterward, she had trouble sleeping.

Finally, her parents moved her mattress to the floor "because then I won't fall out so hard," she said. She keeps a tape player nearby to lull her to sleep with songs about dinosaurs.

"It's easier to go to sleep now that we're doing the tapes," she said.

Several aftershocks a week fray the nerves of all but the most stouthearted.

Nicole was out shopping with her mom, whose arms were full, when a 5.3-magnitude aftershock hit on March 20.

"The store lady carried me out because she knew I was afraid," Nicole recalled. "She saw the look on my face."

Sixteen-year-old Laura Ruhland replays that terrifying morning in her head constantly, from being hit by falling bookshelves in the dark to being unable to find her mother right away.

"I have three flashlights just in my bedroom alone, and then six other ones just around the house and a couple tucked under mattresses so they can't fly around," she said.

Indians end walk by demanding Peltier's release

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Indian activist Dennis Banks and 27 others celebrated the end of a five-month "Walk for Justice" across the country at the Lincoln Memorial Friday.

The leaders of 21 tribal nations demanded President Clinton free Leonard Peltier, a former member of the American Indian Movement who they contend is innocent of killing two FBI agents in 1975 at Wounded Knee, S.D.

About 400 activists who joined the 3,800-mile walk along the way participated in a series of traditional sage-burning and pipe ceremonies near the memorial steps.

Twenty-eight completed the entire walk. It began Feb. 11 at Alcatraz Island, Calif., in an effort to draw attention to issues ranging from treaty rights and grave desecration to nuclear waste dumping and sports team mascots.

Several thousand people participated in part of this year's spiritual trek, including walkers from Japan, Denmark, Australia, Germany, France and Great Britain.

"We knew from the beginning that we would have a hard time and that the many nations of people would help us along the way," said Banks, cofounder of the American Indian Movement. "What we were not prepared for was the great amount of support shown to us. Overwhelming."

Several tribal elders wore red T-shirts reading "Free Peltier." Others donned colorful, traditional clothing, beating drums and singing as the temperatures rose into the 90s on Friday. Large black, red and yellow banners read, "Respect Mother Earth" and "The Black Hills Are Not For Sale."

Leaders said they would present a 26-page document to Congress on Monday addressing everything from religious issues and land-use disputes, to fishing rights and the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The position papers lead with a "demand" for executive clemency for Peltier. He has been in prison since April 1977 when a federal jury in Fargo, N.D., convicted him of the shootings of the two FBI agents on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in southwestern South Dakota.

'Lobster Boy' beat, threatened to kill, wife on trial says

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Through tears in her murder-for-hire trial Friday, Mary Stiles described the drunken beatings, the sexual abuse and the terror she suffered at the clawlike hands of her husband, the "Lobster Boy."

The last straw came when the sideshow performer with pincer arms and stub legs woke her with his familiar whiskey breath and a butcher knife to her throat, she testified in Hillsborough Circuit Court.

"'One of these days I'm going to kill you and your family, but the time isn't right,'" she quoted him as saying Thanksgiving weekend 1992. "Then he dropped the knife and crawled away."

"I didn't know if I was going to wake up the next morning — if my family would be there," she said. "Something had to be done."

Two days later, a teen-age neighbor who had been paid $1,500 shot 55-year-old Grady Stiles in the back of the head as he sat in his underwear in the living room of his Gibsonton trailer.

Defense attorney Arnold Levine says Mrs. Stiles arranged the slaying because she was in fear for her life and that she barely remembers the details because of post-traumatic stress syndrome.

Prosecutors contend the murder was planned over a period of weeks and that Mrs. Stiles had many options to stop her husband's abuse short of killing him.

On the stand, the 56-year-old widow testified through sobs about how she married Stiles in 1958 and joined him on the sideshow circuit with acts such as the gorilla lady, human pincushion and man with the iron tongue. It was the only life Stiles had known since age 7.

"He was known as the Lobster Boy," she said. "He would sit on an elevated stage and give lectures of his condition and how it ran in his family."

She said whiskey changed Stiles from a caring family man to a battering brute, who despite his deformities choked her with powerful arms, head-butted her in the mouth and at one point tried to rip a birth control device from her body.

Their first marriage ended in 1973 and she wedded Harry Glenn Newman, known as the "World's Smallest Man" on the carnival circuit. She divorced him in 1987 and married Stiles again in 1988 after he assured her he had stopped drinking.

Group pushes Violence Against Women Act

HOUSTON (AP) — A national group Friday urged passage of the federal Violence Against Women Act with as much funding as possible so the proposal can be enforced across the nation.

The act, now part of the Crime Bill pending in Congress, would provide money to attack the problem on several fronts if approved, said Cassandra Thomas, president of the National Coalition Against Sexual Assault, which held its annual meeting in Houston this week.

"This is the first time in years that we have a major piece of legislation to deal with violence against women. For too long, our country has ignored half of its population, and the hurting and the maiming that's happening to them," Ms. Thomas said at a Friday afternoon press conference.

'For too long, our country has ignored half of its population, and the hurting and the maiming that's happening to them.'

— Cassandra Thomas, NCASA

The proposed act now includes initial funding of $600 million. Ms. Thomas urged supporters to ask their senators and representatives to pass the act at the highest funding level possible.

"Bills mean nothing without the financial peace," she said.

The money would pay for various prevention measures, including making parks safer for women by putting up more lights and taking down barriers that attackers can hide behind.

"It's not about philosophy," she said. "It's about practical things that can be done and practical things require money. Without them, nothing will ever change."

Violence against women has become a nationally debated topic because of the O.J. Simpson case. Simpson is charged with killing his ex-wife, Nicole Brown Simpson, and her friend Ronald Goldman.

But Ms. Thomas said she is concerned that the issue will fade into the background once the case is resolved.

"This is just one," she said. "All of us . . . can give you hundreds of other names of people who have been victimized that don't have this kind of (press) coverage."

Texas to get about 6,000 refugees in '94

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas will become home to about 6,000 international refugees this year as they join some 110,000 others who've already sought sanctuary in the state, the comptroller's office reported Friday.

Comptroller John Sharp said the refugees live in at least 102 of the state's 254 counties.

Vietnamese represent about two-thirds of the total, while Laotians, Cambodians, former Soviets and Ethopians together account for another 22 percent, the comptroller reported.

This year, resettlement groups are reporting greater numbers of Cubans, Haitians and Bosnians arriving in Texas than in the past.

Sharp said the 6,000 refugees assigned to Texas is a 7 percent increase over last year but lower than the numbers in 1991 and 1992.

He noted that concerns over immigration have sparked a national debate. Florida and California are suing the federal government to demand that Washington reimburse states for the costs of U.S. immigration policy. Texas is studying the case and is expected to join shortly.

Unlike other legal immigrants, Sharp said, refugees are recognized as having been persecuted in their native lands or of having a well-founded fear of persecution due to race, religion or political opinion.

Most arrive in Texas directly from overseas, although many Southeast Asians migrated to Texas from other states during the 1980s, Sharp said.

"But no matter what drove them from their homes, the vast majority are forging new lives in Texas' economic mainstream," Sharp said.

"They face severe hurdles in their quests to become productive citizens. The blue-collar jobs that supported earlier waves of immigration are disappearing, replaced by service and information-processing work that requires higher skills and English proficiency," Sharp said.

He said limited funding from the federal government makes it difficult for nonprofit groups and government agencies in Texas to keep up with the demands for training.

In 1993, Texas received $3.4 million to provide refugees with social services such as job placement, vocational training and English classes. Another $5.5 million in federal grants helped provide cash and basic medical services for the neediest arrivals.

Mexicans may return flag captured at Alamo

AUSTIN (AP) — Low-level discussions have begun with an eye toward returning to Texas a flag captured by Mexican forces during the 1836 Battle of the Alamo, officials said.

The idea of a proposed exchange involving the Alamo flag emerged from trade and teacher exchange discussions relating to the North American Free Trade Agreement, state Sen. Carlos Truan said Friday.

The idea was raised by Mexican Consul Armando Beteta of Corpus Christi, said Truan, D-Corpus Christi and chairman of the Senate Committee on International Trade, Commerce and Technology.

"He and I had worked on the teacher exchange program, and then we talked briefly after lunch about the flags. He felt that this was a subject that Mexico would look rather favorably on," Truan said.

However, Mexican presidential election should prevent any exchange from taking place until at least January, Truan said.

The flag, captured at Texas' shrine of independence in 1836, has been displayed since early this century at the Museum of the Interventions at Chapultepec Castle in Mexico City.

Rudy cleared

HOUSTON — Harris County prosecutors Friday threw out a drunken driving charge against Houston Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich because of insufficient evidence.

Tomjanovich was arrested early Wednesday in West University Place, an affluent Houston enclave, after he refused to take a field sobriety test. He also declined a breath test at the police station and was jailed for seven hours before being released on $500 bond.

But the Harris County District Attorney's office dropped the charge Friday.

"We reviewed the videotape of the driving and the tape made at the station and based on that, it's the opinion of all involved that the proper disposition of this is that it be dismissed," prosecutor Lyn McClellan said.

Tomjanovich, who led the Rockets to the NBA championship last month, had maintained he was not drunk.

"This was a very unfortunate incident and I wouldn't wish it on anybody," Tomjanovich said Friday at his attorney's office. He gave a brief statement, declining questions.

"I've always tried to handle myself as an upstanding citizen, not because I'm in the sports field or because I'm a role model for younger people, but because I believe that's how a responsible person should behave," he said.

Keenan quits

TORONTO — One month after coaching the New York Rangers to their first Stanley Cup title in 54 years, Mike Keenan says he is quitting because the team has "breached contractual obligations."

"I want to make it explicitly clear that I did not resign," Keenan told a news conference conducted at the headquarters of The Sports Network Friday. "I contacted some players and told them how disappointed I was.

"This is difficult for me, but I felt I had no choice in order to protect me and my family."

Tom Watson's 65 on Friday gives him a one stroke lead.

Watson makes it look elementary

■ Tom Watson putts fear into field with lead at halfway point of British Open.

By Ron Sirak
AP Sports Writer

TURNBERRY, Scotland — Just like that, Tom Watson is the favorite at the British Open.

All it took were two brilliant rounds over the Ailsa Course at Turnberry to get the adoring galleries, the nervous bookies and even Watson thinking he just might win a record sixth British Open title.

A playful Watson showed poise, passion and most of all a long-lost putting stroke Friday and shot a 65 for a 7-under-par 133 after 36 holes for a one-stroke lead over Brad Faxon and Jesper Parnevik of Sweden.

Not bad for a guy who came into the tournament as a 66-1 shot with the legal bookies here. They now have him as the top choice at 3-1 going into Saturday's third round

"When I came off the eighth after making birdie, I looked at someone and said: 'I bet the bookies are quivering now.' "

What is not quivering, at least for now, is Watson's putting stroke. It has been his failure to make those testy 4- and 5-footers that has kept him winless since 1987.

On Friday, he knocked in putts from all over the treacherous greens at Turnberry. He made seven birdies and two bogeys, holing birdie putts of 50, 20 and 15 feet and twice saving par with putts of 12 and 6 feet.

Falling out has Cowboys 'on same page'

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN — Owner Jerry Jones said Friday his falling out with Jimmy Johnson may have been the best thing that could have happened to the Dallas Cowboys, who will try to win an unprecedented third consecutive Super Bowl.

"Things were brewing that would have diminished our chances to win a third Super Bowl in a row," Jones said.

He said having Barry Switzer aboard will guarantee that the owner and the coach "will be on the same page. It's important to be able to work together.

"Not being on the same page and working behind someone's back is not productive," said Jones. "The Cowboys are not a one-man show. It was time for the change to happen."

Jones made his remarks as the Cowboys opened the Switzer era with the full squad reporting to their St. Edward's University training camp. Two-a-day practices start on Saturday.

Jones paid Johnson $2 million in a contract settlement. Johnson will be a television analyst this fall for Fox Television and has criticized both Jones and Switzer since he has been gone.

Jones asked for fans and critics to give him and Switzer "a shot. That's all I ask for."

Jones added, "I think Barry Switzer is exactly what the Cowboys needed at this time. There is no question that Barry will be successful for a long time for the Cowboys."

Switzer, who coached the Oklahoma Sooners to three national collegiate titles before he left under fire five years ago, said he realized he was on a hot seat.

"I'm excited," Switzer said. "I've always wanted to be a coach in the NFL. I'm gonna bust my rear to do the job.

"What happens is what's going to happen, gang. We're going to have fun and we're going to do it my way. And my way is to get after it."

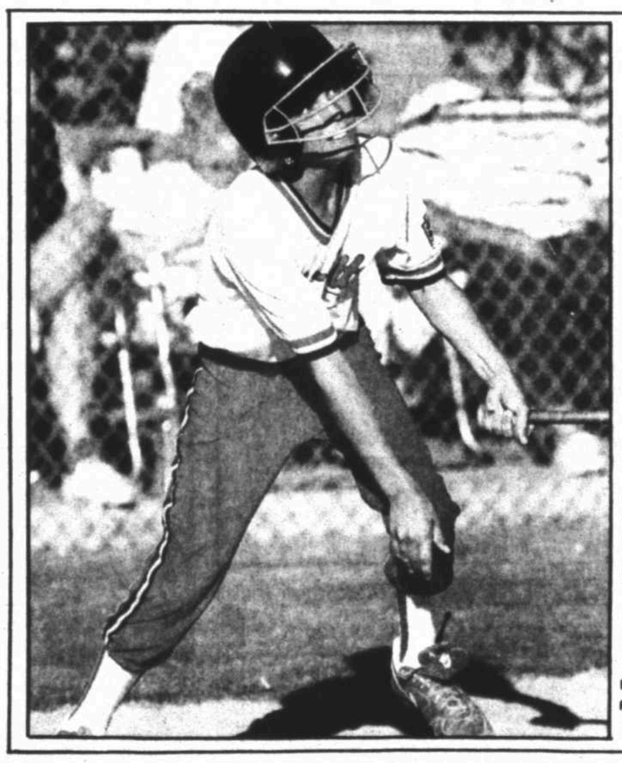

Switzer admitted it would probably be considered a "disappointment" if the Cowboys didn't win another Super Bowl.

Carbajal wins WBO title with decision

PHOENIX (AP) — Michael Carbajal's relentless pursuit of another world title paid off Friday night, when he powered his way to a unanimous, 12-round decision over Josue "Dickie" Camacho of Puerto Rico.

The WBO junior-flyweight title changed hands when two U.S. judges and English judge Roy Francis of London turned in their scorecards.

Carbajal (32-1), who lost his IBF and WBC crowns Feb. 19 in a split decision to Humberto Gonzalez of Mexico, stalked a backpedaling Camacho most of the way.

Camacho (15-3) lost in his second defense and fourth fight since he knocked out Eddie Vallejo, another Puerto Rican, on July 31, 1992, in the sixth round to win the title. It was Camacho's first fight in the U.S., and the loss ended a

Captains finally break Midland loss streak

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

One baseball wag once wrote, "All streaks come to an end unless you die or get released."

Well, a huge streak, covering parts of four seasons, came to end at Christensen Stadium Friday night when clean-up hitter Barry Miller delivered a two-run single in the top of the ninth inning to give the Shreveport Captains a 3-2 win over the Midland Angels in Texas League action.

Shreveport came into the game having lost 13 games in a row at Christensen Stadium, a losing streak that had its roots planted with a loss on July 19, 1991. The Captains lost all five games in Midland in 1992 and five more last year to go with the series opening loss to the Angels Thursday to cover the four-year drought.

When Miller came to the plate with runners Calvin Murray on third and Joel Chimelis on second with no outs in the top of the ninth and trailing 2-1, he had no idea just how much pressure he should feel. But he knew enough to feel some heat around the collar.

"I was here last year and knew we didn't win a game, but I didn't know it went back as far as that (1991)," Miller said. "But there was enough pressure because we didn't win here last year and we just came from El Paso where we had lost four of five games to the Diablos."

Miller also had another problem to deal with at the plate in that Midland relief ace Ron Watson was on the mound. Watson struckout Miller with one man on in the ninth Thursday to end the game in a 5-2 Angels' win.

"He (Watson) got me last night and I got him tonight. I guess that's baseball," Miller said. "It's all fair. I really needed to get him back because we were getting a little frustrated as a team with the losses we had recently. We put together a strong first half and won the division, but we haven't been putting 15 or 16 hits on the boards as of late.

"I never expected this series to go this way. We've had two great games dominated by pitching and you don't see many low scoring games like this very often in this park. This is the kind of game you would expect to see in Shreveport, or in the Eastern Division."

Miller's timely hit spoiled a magnificent seven in-

OPEN: Watson looks for sixth title

(From 1B)

"It's not bad for a 44-year-old has-been, is it?" Watson said. "No, I'm not a has-been. I still feel I can win."

And so do the huge, appreciative galleries who carried him along.

"It was a fun round of golf for me today," Watson said. "I depended on my feel and my feel was right on."

Faxon, who shot 65, had a chance to tie Watson — one of his childhood heroes —' when he went to six-under with a birdie at No. 17, but a 25-foot birdie putt from the fringe at 18 slid by on the low side of the hole.

Strolling up the 18th fairway, Faxon, 33, told his playing partner, Gary Player, that when he was a child, "I had four balls on the putting green: Nicklaus, Watson, Player and myself. I'd spend hours putting at night just hoping to meet those guys and play with those guys. It's unbelievable how you can have a dream come true."

Parnevik, who has won once in seven years on the European Tour, made four birdies, an eagle and two bogeys in his 66.

"Yesterday I struggled with my round of 68, one of those rounds when you are just fighting to hang on," the 29-year-old Swede, who went to Palm Beach Junior College, said. "Today I played much better."

Several others players also fared much better Friday.

The rain held off and the wind shifted to a more merciful crosswind turning Turnberry into a tamer course than it was Thursday when many holes played into the teeth of stiff gusts.

Playing under a solid ceiling of steel-gray clouds and in mild temperature, the golfers found it easier on fairways and greens softened by overnight rain.

In all, 46 players bettered par 70.

Nick Price bogeyed the last hole but shot a 66 and was at 5-under-par 135, two strokes behind Watson going into today's third round.

"Tom's going to be tough," Price said. "It would be a great way for him to make a comeback. At 44, I'm sure that's all he's thinking about."

Three strokes behind Watson at 136 were Gregory Turner and Frank Nobilo, both of New Zealand, David Edwards and England's Jonathan Lomas.

Fuzzy Zoeller shot 66 and was tied at 137 with David Feherty and Ronan Rafferty, both of Northern Ireland, and Loren Roberts.

Defending champion Greg Norman of Australia shot a 67 and was in a group at 2-under par 138, along with U.S. Open champion Ernie Els of South Africa, who shot a 69, his sixth consecutive British Open round under 70.

Also at 138 was Mark Brooks, who had the best round of the day, a 64.

Three-time champion Nick Faldo followed his first-round 75 with a 66 and was eight strokes behind Watson.

Among those missing the cut at 143 were Jack Nicklaus at 145 and Phil Mickelson and Ian Woosnam of Wales, both at 152. Player, in his 40th straight Open, also shot 145.

But this was a day for Watson and for the thousands of Scottish fans who respect him as much for his love and knowledge of golf as they do for his five British Open championships.

"I had a lot of warm receptions coming to the greens today," Watson said. "It warmed me."

Later, a relaxed Watson smiled under his checked Hogan-style hat and beamed with excitement when he talked about the driver he hit off the fairway 240 yards to the seventh green, the 8-iron he cut into the wind off a sidehill lie at No. 8 and the 165-yard 4-iron he hit at 12 ("It was a feel shot.").

"Those were my favorite shots of the day," he said.

Watson started the day with a 20-foot birdie at No. 1 and a 50-footer at No. 3. After a bogey at No. 6, he birdied four of the next five holes, two-putting the par-5 seventh and making an 8-footer at No. 8, a 15-footer at 10 and a 4-footer at No. 11.

If Watson can win, he will tie Harry Vardon with six British Open titles. Vardon won his between 1896 and 1914.

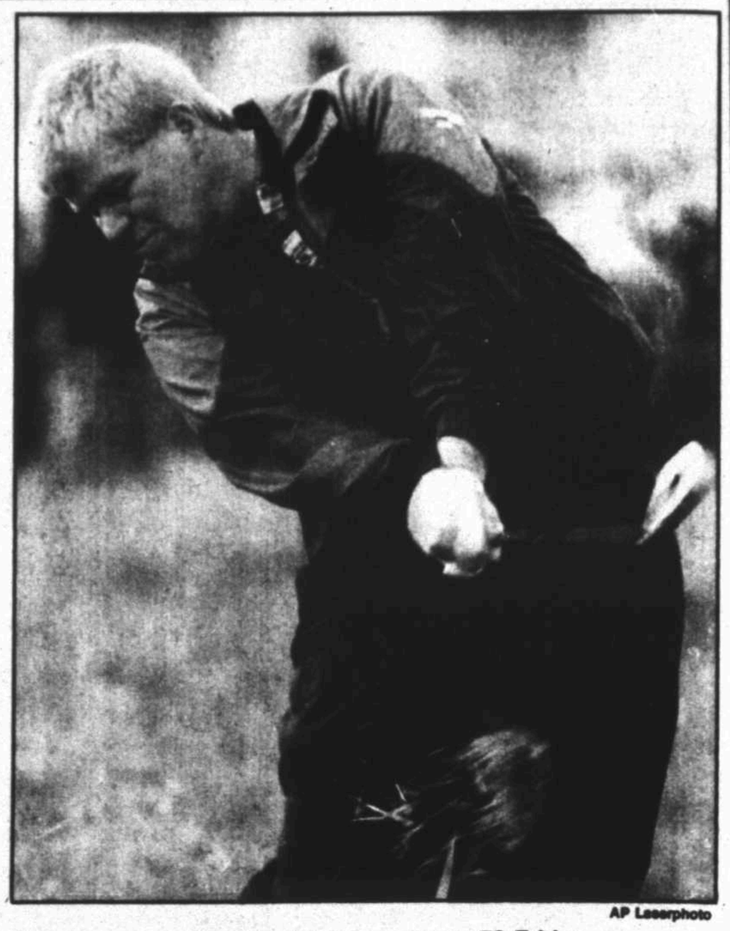

"I'd like to have another Open championship," Watson said. "I've just got to get my nose past the tape before anyone else."

Putting likely will be the key. Will his new-found stroke, reclaimed when he simply moved his hands farther forward at address, hold up?

"I don't deny I'm having trouble with my nerves on short putts," he said. "But I'm feeling good enough about my game to think I can win.

"I just hope I'm there on Sunday, hoisting the cup."

And from the reaction of the galleries in the birthplace of golf, so do they.

Sullivan leads weather-plagued Deposit Guaranty Golf Classic

Associated Press

MADISON, Miss. — Mike Sullivan, who had a share of the first-round lead, shot a 69 on Friday to take over the top spot in the weather-suspended second round of the Deposit Guaranty Golf Classic.

Only 53 players had completed two rounds when a late-afternoon thunderstorm forced the suspension of play with 84 players still on the course.

Sullivan, who birdied the last two holes, was at 9-under-par 135 for a one-stroke lead over four players at 136. Chris DiMarco shot a 66 on Friday and Guy Boros, Scott Hoch and Dave Stockton Jr. each had 67s.

Dickie Pride, who started the day 1-over, shot a course-record 64 on his 25th birthday and was at 137. His round, which began on the back nine, got a quick lift with birdies on the first two holes.

Hoch, who at 15th with $445,389 is the highest-ranked money earner in the tournament, was 5-under on the front nine but couldn't continue that run on the back.

Brandel Chamblee and Curt Byrum, among the five players who opened with 66s, slumped to second-round 72s to fall three strokes behind Sullivan. John Elliott bogeyed five of the last eight eight holes for a 77 for 143.

The start of the second round was delayed almost two hours in order to complete the rain-shortened first round.

LPGA-Big Apple

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. — JoAnne Carner, the LPGA Hall of Famer who hasn't won a tournament in almost a decade, shot a 4-under-par 67 on Friday and took a two-shot lead midway through the $650,000 JAL Big Apple Classic.

Carner, 55, has 42 LPGA titles to her credit, but hasn't won a tournament since 1985 — and on that occasion became the oldest ever to win an LPGA event. She had six birdies and two bogeys in Friday's round over the 6,095-yard Wykagyl Country Club course.

Marion Heck shares the lead with J.C. Snead at the Ameritech Senior Open.

Another Hall of Famer, Pat Bradley, matched Carner's 67 and was at 137. Dale Eggeling was also two strokes back after a 68.

Lisa Kiggens shot a 67 to complete two rounds at 138, joining Amy Benz, who had a 68, and Nanci Bowen, who had a 70.

First-round co-leaders Sally Little and Nancy Ramsbottom fell off the pace Friday. Little shot a 73 and was at 140, one shot ahead of Ramsbottom, who had a 74.

Defending tournament champion Hiromi Kobayashi of Japan shot a 71 but was 10 strokes back of AURORA, Ill. — J.C. Snead, winner of only one senior event in five years, and Marion Heck, a bonafide unknown, blistered par by seven strokes on Friday, turning in 65s to grab a share of the first-round lead in the $750,000 Ameritech Senior Open.

Snead birdied Nos. 5 and 9 on the front, and Nos. 10, 11, 13, 14 and 16 on the back of the par-72, 6,840-yard Stonebridge Country Club course.

Heck, with earnings of just $7,875 in four years on the Senior PGA Tour, and just $20,098 after 18 years on the regular PGA Tour, birdied the first three holes then birdied Nos. 12-15 to get to 7-under.

Snead and Heck had a one-stroke lead over Larry Laoretti, John Paul Cain and Simon Hobday. Two back at 67 was Jim Colbert, last weekend's Kroger Senior Classic winner, and the group at 68 featured Harry Toscano and Bert Yancey.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, Tom Weiskopf, Bobby Nichols, Tom Shaw and Larry Mowry were at 69 and defending tournament champion George Archer was in a logjam at 70.

the championship flight field at the Jamboree's first round with a seven-under-par 64. They lead Robert Carroll and Doyle Massey by three strokes in the championship flight.

"If your playing with someone for the first time you're playing real hard trying to make sure you don't leave your partner in a bind," Dub said. "With us there's never a problem with one getting upset with the other."

The Huckabees first played together in the Andrews fatherson tournament when Dub, now 40, was 10. They won their flight that year and won the tournament two years later.

"I started playing golf when I was four years old and I've played with him (Ron) ever since," Dub said. "It's a comfort zone. It's like anything else you do. If you're nervous you're not going to do as well as you can ... in this game if you can't relax and just play it's a disadvantage."

The Huckabees each shot four birdies Friday.

"We played real solid today," Dub said. "We never got in trouble. We never had to scramble to make par."

Michael Guss and Rick Gasser are four back after shooting a 68. Five teams are tied for fourth at 69.

"We've got a long way to go," Dub said. "In one day the whole thing can flip flop."

Guss and Gasser bogeyed the first hole but went on to birdie four and eagle five.

"It's tough to spot (the leaders) four shots on the first day," Guss said. "It comes down to putting the last two day."

Candiotti helps salvage split

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Knuckleballer Tom Candiotti limited Philadelphia to four hits in six innings Friday night, helping the Los Angeles Dodgers earn a spilt with a 3-2 victory over the Phillies in the second game of a doubleheader.

In the first game, David West allowed three hits in seven innings and Jim Eisenreich drove in two runs as the Phillies snapped a six-game losing streak with a 4-3 win.

Los Angeles snapped a 1-1 tie with two runs in the sixth off Danny Jackson (11-4), who gave up three runs and 10 hits in seven innings.

West (4-7) struck out five and walked three in the first game. The Dodgers scored both of their runs in the second inning when rookie Rafael Bournigal's double scored Wallach and Cory Snyder.

West retired the next 16 batters before Snyder's two-out single in the seventh. Larry Andersen replaced West in the eighth and gave up pinch-hitter Jeff Treadway's leadoff double. Treadway moved to third on a groundout and scored on Delino DeShields' groundout.

Doug Jones pitched the ninth for his National League-leading 22nd save.

Pirates 11, Astros 8

PITTSBURGH — Carlos Garcia homered and drove in four runs and Pittsburgh staged one of the greatest comebacks in its 107-year history, rallying from eight runs down to beat Houston.

only because Pittsburgh was running out of reserves, hit a game-tying two-run double in the fifth and pitched 1 2-3 scoreless relief innings as the Pirates overcame a seven-run Houston first inning.

Mike Dyer pitched 2 1-3 hitless innings for his second save.

Braves 6, Marlins 4

ATLANTA — Tom Glavine won his 11th game and rookies Javier Lopez and Jose Oliva each hit home runs and drove in two runs apiece as Atlanta beat Florida.

Glavine (11-7) allowed five hits, didn't walk any and struck out three in seven innings as the Braves ended a two-game losing skid in winning for only the third time in eight games.

Atlanta retook first place in the National League East by two percentage points over the Montreal Expos who lost 7-3 to the San Francisco Giants.

Giants 7, Expos 3

MONTREAL — Barry Bonds hit two home runs and Darryl Strawberry homered for the second straight game, leading San Francisco to a victory over Montreal.

Mark Portugal (8-6) scattered eight hits over seven innings in sending San Francisco to a season-high sixth straight victory. The six wins have all come since Strawberry joined the Giants.

Reds 7, Cubs 1

CINCINNATI — Reggie Sanders homered into the upper deck in Riverfront Stadium to highlight a five-run third inning as Cincinnati beat Chicago.

Jose Rijo (9-4) struck out five and scattered eight hits over seven innings. Sammy Sosa's 20th homer in the fourth inning accounted for Chicago's only run.

All six Cincinnati runs were off Willie Banks (8-8).

Sanders' 15th homer capped the Reds' third, when Cincinnati sent 10 batters against Banks.

Rockies 10, Cardinals 6

DENVER — Charlie Hayes had four hits, including a pair of triples, as Colorado battered Bob Tewksbury and St. Louis.

Mike Kingery and Eric Young each drove in two runs for Colorado.

The Rockies bunched together four consecutive two-out singles in the first inning to take a 2-0 lead off Tewksbury (10-8). Hayes and Kingery had the RBI hits.

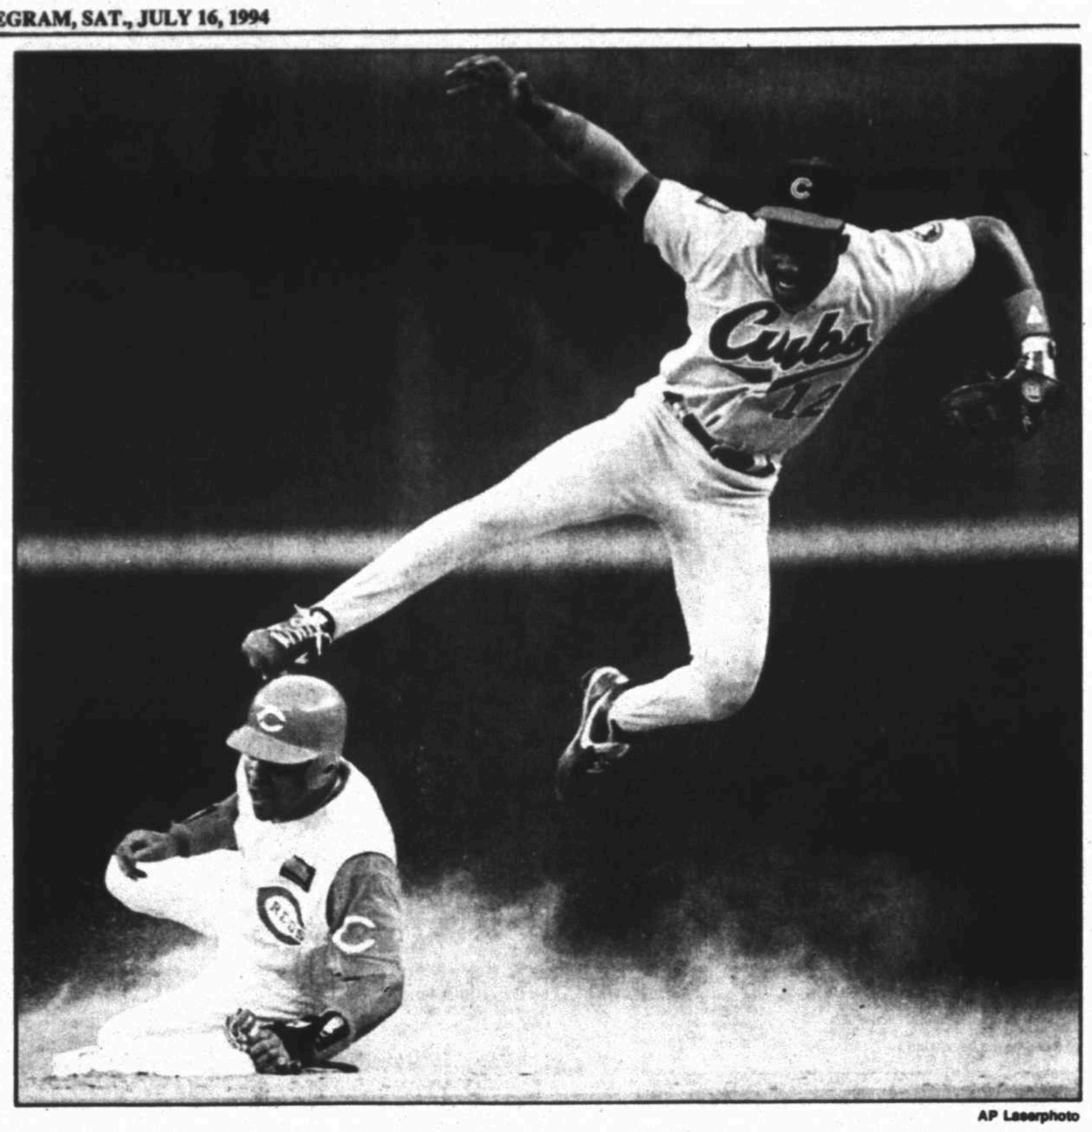

Mets 7, Padres 3

NEW YORK — Tony Gwynn and Phil Plantier hit back-to-back homers in the 14th inning off Mike Maddux, giving San Diego a 2-1 victory over New York and a split of a doubleheader.

The homers ended the four-hour, 10-minute nightcap as the Padres snapped a five-game losing streak.

In the opener, Bobby Bonilla hit a three-run homer to lead the Mets to a 7-3 win.

With one out in the 14th, Gwynn hit his 10th homer over the wall in right off Maddux (1-1), who started the inning.

Rangers hand Blue Jays win on errors

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Juan Guzman survived six walks, three wild pitches and two errors Friday night to get his third straight victory as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the error-prone Texas Rangers 7-5 Friday night.

Toronto scored four runs in the first inning — three unearned — and watched the Rangers commit their league-leading 84th, 85th and 86th errors — all on potential double plays.

Guzman (9-9) allowed five hits and three runs in his six-inning stint with eight strikeouts. Darren Hall pitched the ninth for his eighth save despite allowing Jose Canseco's 25th homer, a solo shot.

Sloppy infield play set up Toronto's big first inning. Devon White drew a leadoff walk and went to third when second baseman Bill Ripken booted a grounder. Paul Molitor's bunt single drove in White and Joe Carter's RBI double pushed the lead to 2-0.

One out later, shortstop Manuel Lee allowed another potential double play to kick off the heel of his glove, allowing Carter to score. Ed Sprague followed with a sacrifice fly.

Texas scored two runs with two out in the fourth on Ivan Rodriguez's RBI single and a fielding error by center fielder Devon White, but Toronto came back with a three-run fifth against John Dettmer (0-4).

Darnell Coles had an RBI single before third baseman Dean Palmer fired Ed Sprague's grounder into right field in a botched attempt to start a double play. Two runs scored on the play.

Chris James hit his fifth homer of the year leading off the sixth to make it 7-3, and Hulse had an RBI groundout one inning later.

Brewers 8, Twins 7

MINNEAPOLIS — Rookie Jeff Cirillo was the star for a second straight night Friday, hitting his first major-league homer and driving in three runs as Milwaukee defeated Minnesota.

Ricky Bones (8-7) was staked to an early 7-1 lead and picked up the victory despite allowing four runs in the fifth. Turner Ward also homered for the last-place Brewers, who moved within 1½ games of the Twins in the AL Central.

Cirillo, whose two-run, pinch-double in the ninth inning gave the Brewers a 6-4 victory over the Twins on Thursday, was inserted into the lineup just before game-time. He singled in two runs in Milwaukee's four-run first inning off Scott Erickson (8-8) and hit a solo homer off Dave Stevens in the fifth.

The 24-year-old third baseman entered the series with just three hits in 28 major-league at-bats (.107).

Orioles 9, Angels 2

ANAHEIM — Brady Anderson had three hits and scored three runs and Chris Sabo hit a two-run homer, leading Baltimore past California.

Sid Fernandez (6-4) allowed only four hits in seven-plus innings, striking out eight as he allowed fewer than three earned runs for the first time in 11 starts.

Rafael Palmeiro and Harold Baines each had two RBIs to help the Orioles get their ninth win in 12 games.

Indians 3, White Sox 2

CHICAGO — Mark Clark and Jeff Russell combined on a six-hitter and helped end Chicago's seven-game winning streak, leading Cleveland back into first place in the AL Central.

Carlos Baerga had four hits for the Indians, who lead the division by percentage points. It was Cleveland's first victory at Comiskey Park after nine straight losses dating back to September, 1992.

Clark (11-3) gave up only one extra-base hit, walked two and struck out five in 8 1-3 innings. He defeated Jack McDowell (7-8), who had won his previous five decisions.

Russell got the final two outs for his 14th save. He ended the game by retiring pinch-hitter Joey Cora on a grounder to second with runners on first and third.

McDowell, losing for the first time since May 29, gave up nine hits, walked three and struck out nine in 8 2-3 innings.

Red Sox 4, Athletics 1

OAKLAND — Tom Brunansky's three-run homer capped a four-run rally in the ninth inning off Dennis Eckersley as Boston beat Oakland.

With a 1-0 lead to protect, Eckersley (2-4) retired the first two batters and was one strike away from ending the game when Mo Vaughn lined a single to center.

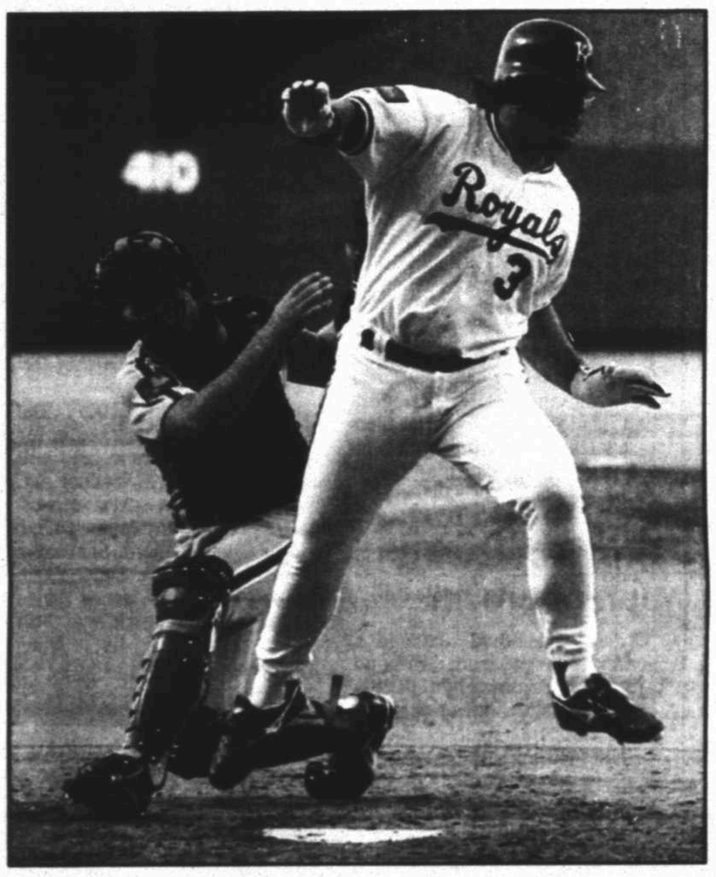

Pinch-runner Scott Fletcher stole second and scored the tying run on Mike Greenwell's pinch-single. After Scott Cooper singled, Brunansky hit the next pitch into the center-field bleachers for his seventh homer.

Royals 5, Tigers 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Rookie Bob Hamelin, ejected from the first game for charging the mound, hit a three-run homer in the second game Friday to lead Kansas City to a 5-3 victory over Detroit and a split of their doubleheader.

The Tigers won the first game 14-2 as Cecil Fielder had a three-run homer and a season-high five RBIs.

At least three fans suffered minor injuries when part of a fireworks display exploded in the right-field bleachers after Hamelin's homer. Two people were taken to local hospitals, where officials characterized their injuries as non-serious. Others were treated in a first-aid room at the stadium.

ning relief effort by Midland's Julian Heredia. John Fritz started the game, but left with a hip injury in the second inning. Heredia allowed the Caps only four hits and one run in the fifth inning until Watson came on in the ninth.

Heredia KOed a season high nine Captains and walked none, but didn't get the win he probably deserved. Watson's downfall probably wasn't so much Miller's single as it was a leadoff walk to Marvin Benard, followed by hitting Joel Chimelis. He threw a wild pitch to set the runners in position for Miller.

Midland never trailed in the game until the ninth after mighty-mite shortstop Brian Grebeck, all 5-foot-7 of him, blasted his first homer of the year in the first inning for a 1-0 Midland lead. Midland led 2-0 in the fourth on J.D. Ramirez' RBI sacrifice fly, scoring Mike Wolff from third base.

The Caps scored a run off Heredia in the fifth on an RBI double by Eric Christopherson.

Midland left 10 runners stranded on base and failed to score with runners at second and third with one out in the sixth and a runner on third with one out in the fifth.

ANGEL DUST: Grebeck homered, tripled and singled in his three at-bats and had a chance to hit for the cycle in the ninth, but flied out to left ... The Angels recorded two big plays in the outfield. In the first inning, left fielder Rob Katzaroff made a diving catch on a liner by Joel Chimelis and Marvin Benard, who was on second base, was off with the pitch and was easily doubled up. In the fifth, Midland center fielder Marquis Riley made a diving catch on a sinking liner by Derek Reid to save a run with Eric Christopherson on second ... Midland's inability to get clutch hits and Shreveport's base running kept the game low scoring. Shreveport had three of four attempts at stealing second gunned down by Midland catcher Jose Monzon ...

WARNING!

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) warns that in-line roller skating -- a popular new sport - can be hazardous if skaters do not wear helmets and other protective equipment or do not learn to skate and stop safely. As use of in-line roller skates has increased, it appears that the number of injuries also has increased.

CPSC recommends these safety tips to help prevent injries with in-line roller skates.

- Wear a helmet, intended for use with skate-boards or roller skates, along with knee pads, elbow pads, and gloves.
- Skate on smooth, paved surfaces without any traffic. Avoid skating on streets, driveways, or surfaces with water, sand, gravel or dirt.
- Learn to stop safely using the brake pads at the heel of most in-line roller skates. With one foot somewhat in front of the other, raise the toes on the front foot and push down on the heel brake.
- Do not skate at night because of your difficulty in being seen and your difficulty seeing obstacles or other skaters.

Falcons re-sign healed receiver Sanders

Associated Press

Ricky Sanders finally became a member of the Atlanta Falcons on Friday, three months later and for a lot less money than originally expected.

On the final day for free agents to sign with new teams, the one-time holder of the Super Bowl record for reception yards signed with the Falcons for the second time this year. This time it reportedly was a one one-year deal for the minimum of $162,500 plus bonuses, instead of the $2 million, two-year deal he signed in April.

The first signing fell through after Sanders, who spent his first eight seasons in the NFL with Washington, flunked a physical because of a shoulder injury. Now doctors says the shoulder seems healthy, but the Falcons' money has already been spent under the salary cap.

Friday was the final day until the regular season starts Sept. 4 that unrestricted free agents could sign with new teams.

San Diego

Two-time Pro Bowl cornerback Gill Byrd, San Diego's career leader with 42 interceptions, confirmed his retirement after 11 seasons, citing a knee injury he sustained in training camp last season as the reason.

"It is time for me to graduate and I am looking forward to the future," Byrd said in a statement released through the team. Last summer, Byrd blew out his left knee during a non-contract drill in training camp.

Oilers

Gary Brown, who gained 1,002 yards after replacing injured Lorenzo White midway through last season, signed a three-year contract with the Oilers.

Brown gained 166 yards against Cincinnati in his first start on Nov. 14 and topped the 100-yard mark on four other occassions, the most for a Houston back since Mike Rozier had five in 1987.

New Orleans

The Saints won exclusive rights to Sam Mills when a 4 p.m. deadline passed without another team making an offer for the four-time Pro Bowl linebacker.

Mills, given a one-year tender offer for a reported $1.052 million by the Saints, is said to be seeking a two-year deal worth $1.2 million annually.

Detroit

Broderick Thomas, a free agent linebacker from Tampa Bay, signed with the Lions. The team also re-signed wide receiver Aubrey Matthews.

Thomas, the sixth pick overall in 1989, played five seasons with the Bucs and was their most valuable player in 1991, when he had 174 tackles. Matthews caught 11 passes for 171 yards last season. His longest was a 40-yarder.

Cincinnati

Tom Scott, who started 12 games for the Bengals at guard last season but ballooned to 414 pounds in the offseason, was cut for being overweight.

A 6-foot-6 offensive lineman from East Carolina, Scott was sent to work with an exercise physiologist in an attempt to get down to around 340 pounds. But his weight dropped to only 381 pounds, prompting the Bengals to cut him.

Cleveland

Guard Houston Hoover, who started all 16 games for the Browns last season, was waived after he failed to pass his physical.

Minnesota

Defensive end Fernando Smith, one of the Vikings' two second-round draft picks, and quarterback Gino Torretta agreed to contract terms, leaving only wide receiver David Palmer, the other second-rounder, without a contract.

Smith is expected to challenge James Harris and Al Noga for the starting right defensive end spot vacated when Chris Doleman was traded to Atlanta.

Buffalo

The Bills signed six more draftees, including wide receiver Bucky Brooks and tight end Lonnie Johnson, both second-round choices, third-rounder Corey Louchiey, an offensive lineman, and fourth-round defensive back Sean Crocker.

DALLAS: Feud clears air

(From 1B)

"I don't think about any Jimmy Johnson shadow until somebody brings it up," Switzer said. "The Super Bowl is our goal and we have the type of team that we would be disappointed if we didn't get into the Super Bowl.

"When you get into the playoffs, there are only two or three plays that separate the teams and you have to make those plays. Sometimes the best team doesn't always win. But we should be there unless we have injuries to key players."

The Cowboys Friday night came to oral agreements with first-round draft pick and defensive end Shante Carver of Arizona State, third-round pick offensive tackle George Hegamin of North Carolina State and fourth-round pick Dewayne Dotson, a linebacker, of Mississippi.

The largest gathering of media since the Cowboys moved from Thousand Oaks, Calif., to Austin attended the Jones-Switzer press conference.

"This is the most we've had," said public relations director Rich Dalrymple. "We haven't counted 'em yet but there's a bunch."

There was a count of 16 minicams on hand for the beginning of camp for the world champions.

All the non-injured veteran players made it to training camp without incident.

Switzer got the biggest laugh when someone asked him how he was going to handle all the Texas Longhorn fans in Austin.

Houston starts camp holdout-free

SAN ANTONIO (NYT) — Jack Pardee acknowledges that his fifth training camp as Houston Oilers coach will have a considerably different feel from the previous four. But to Pardee, it's for more than the obvious reasons.

The Oilers' dearly departed have been well-documented. Quarterback Warren Moon, punter Greg Montgomery and starting defensive ends Sean Jones and William Fuller are gone, and nine-time Pro Bowl offensive guard Mike Munchak is expected to retire before Sunday's check-in. But for the first time, Pardee comes to Trinity University knowing that most of his players will be at camp when practice opens Monday.

The Oilers, notorious for training camp holdouts, are uncharacteristically close to having everyone under contract, or near it, for the start of camp. That, if nothing else, marks a significant change from the past.

"It's probably the best shape we've ever been in, as far as knowing that guys are going to be there from the beginning," Pardee said.

"To me, the biggest factor is when you have guys not under contract and holding out, very few of them, once they miss some time, start out the season at the level they need to be at," Pardee added. "Camp is important. It makes a heck of a difference when you're at all the meetings and get the whole development package. I don't care how long guys have played, even All-Pros. They need it."

Houston still must come to terms with several players, including defensive backs Cris Dishman, Darryll Lewis and Mike Dumas, running backs Gary Brown and Lorenzo White, and offensive guard Doug Dawson.

Also, top draft pick Henry Ford remains unsigned, as does fellow rookie Roderick Lewis. But negotiations on both the rookie and veteran fronts have not been marked by the acrimony of past years, and the Oilers are confident the unsigned players will be in relatively soon.

This is a year, more than any other in the Pardee era, when having a full complement of players from the beginning of camp is even more a necessity than usual. It promises to be a season of transition for Houston, which after seven years of playoff pratfalls has made several fundamental changes in both personnel and philosophy.

Gordon earns first Indy-car pole with record time

■ Robby Gordon slows Penske dominance at Toronto's Molson-Indy qualifying.

TORONTO (AP) — Robby Gordon broke the Penske stranglehold on the Indy-car series, at least temporarily, setting a track qualifying record Friday on the way to winning the provisional pole for Sunday's Toronto Molson-Indy.

Gordon, 25, earned his first Indy-car pole of any kind with a lap of 110.191 mph, breaking the year-old mark of 109.998 set by Emerson Fittipaldi.

Nigel Mansell took the other front-row position on the tentative grid, despite hitting a tire barrier early in the 30-minute session. His fast lap, only moments before his incident, was 109.924.

Neither Gordon nor Mansell, who managed to get out again briefly late in the qualifying session, were comfortable with their positions heading into the final round of time trials on Saturday, not with the potent Marlboro Team Penske trio of Al Unser Jr., Fittipaldi and Paul Tracy breathing down their necks.

Unser, the series point leader and winner of five of eight races this season, was third at 109.516, followed by Fittipaldi at 109.136 and defending race winner Tracy at 109.094.

"We're going to see if we can find some more speed because we're going to need it tomorrow," Gordon said. "Second-day qualifying has been faster every race this year, and I'm sure tomorrow will be the same."

Mansell agreed, saying, "We're going to have to find a bit more if we're going to be up here in the front row tomorrow."

If Gordon can hold onto the pole, he would be the fifth driver to start from the front this season.

Gordon, like Mansell, missed part of the session after running out of fuel and stopping on course. That brought out a red flag and Gordon, as stipulated by the rules, was penalized four minutes, the length of the stoppage, in the pits.

Three-time Toronto winner Michael Andretti was sixth in the provisional lineup at 109.027, followed by Stefan Johansson at 108.372, Jimmy Vasser at 108.351, Bobby Rahal at 108.209 and Mario Andretti, making his final run at Toronto as part of his retirement tour, at 108.036.

■ Molson-Indy

The checkered flag for the qualifying session was shown seconds before Mark Smith spun into a tire barrier and wound up with his car upside down on the tires. It took several minutes for rescue workers to get the car back on its wheels, but Smith was not injured.

There were a number of spins and slides during Friday's practice and qualifying,

Bodine stands behind tires

LONG POND, Pa, (AP) — Although he stopped short of predicting a victory in the Miller Genuine Draft 500, Geoff Bodine continued to insist that Hoosier tires are for real.

"I know what you're going to ask me," Bodine said with a laugh Friday after leading a sweep by Hoosier of the top four positions in qualifying for Sunday's $926,933 race. "This tire will go the distance."

■ Miller 500

Should that be the case, the little company from Indiana — which specializes in racing tires — will have its first victory this season over giant Goodyear. But, the enthusiasm of Bodine notwithstanding, the proof will be borne out over 500 miles.

"This is not a gummed up, quick tire," said Bodine, Hoosier's point man among NASCAR Winston Cup drivers. "This is exactly the compound we need."

Driving a Ford Thunderbird, Bodine broke Ken Schrader's year-old qualifying record for the race with a lap of 163.689 mph at the 2.5-mile Pocono International Raceway. Schrader, who will start ninth on Sunday, lapped at 162.934 in 1993.

A surprising second in a Chevrolet was Ward Burton, whose brother, Jeff, was fourth in a Ford. Third, in another Ford, was Greg Sacks.

The best Goodyear qualifier was Ernie Irvan, who will go from the third row. Next to him will be Ricky Rudd, the winner last Sunday at Loudon, N.H., also in a Ford.

The pole is the fifth this year by Hoosier and the second by Bodine, who gave the brand its only victory of the year. But that was in the Winston Select, a non-points race.

The problem has been that Hoosiers have run well for a lap of qualifying, but have lost their effectiveness on race day. Bodine said he has tested the new compound over distances as great as six laps and noticed no decline.

"These tires are the product of a computer, just like you guys use," Bodine said in a spirited give-and-take with some media skeptics. "We believe this tire will go fast in the race, but we'll have to see what happens in a long run tomorrow (during practice)."

But it's Sunday that most concerns Bodine. To win he will have to beat the likes of Irvan, Winston Cup points leader Dale Earnhardt and Rusty Wallace. Among them, they have won 11 of 16 races this season.

Wallace, who won last month at Pocono after setting a track qualifying mark of 164.558, was 10th Friday in a Ford with a fast lap of 162.107.

Earnhardt, who took the final first-day qualifying spot at 20th — the rest of the field will be filled Saturday — agreed with Wallace.

Rookie Jeff Gordon qualified seventh in a Chevrolet, followed by Loy Allen Jr., whose three poles this season accounted for the rest of the No. 1 starts by Hoosier.

Yanks breeze past Dutch in Davis Cup

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (NYT) — While the harbor waters crashed against the pier just outside the stadium, a sea of orange-clad Dutch fans inside tried to turn the tide in their favor against the favored U.S. Davis Cup team Friday.

■ Davis Cup

Orange was everywhere in the 12,000-seat stadium for the first day of the World Group quarterfinal match. Fans showed the home color on hats, T-shirts, bandanas and on their bodies. They filled the sold-out arena with songs, chants, air horns and, yes, even with the wave.

But the commotion barely ruffled the U.S. singles lineup of the world No. 1, Pete Sampras, and a former world No. 1, Jim Courier.

Both won straight-set decisions for a commanding 2-0 lead in the three-of-five match series. Sampras routed Jacco Eltingh, 6-2, 6-2, 6-0, and Courier opened with a 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 thumping of Richard Krajicek.

"My daughter Christy could have coached today," said the U.S. captain, Tom Gullikson, of his 12-year-old. "What you saw today was two great players playing at their very best."

The Americans can wrap up the victory Saturday if the rookie cup team of Richey Reneberg and Jared Palmer beats the 1993 world No. 1 duo of Paul Haarhuis and Eltingh in doubles.

Sampras played as if he had never left Wimbledon, where two weeks ago he beat Goran Ivanisevic to repeat as champion.

"It was almost a perfect performance," Sampras said of his one-hour-21 minute showpiece, one with 13 aces, four love service games and the loss of a mere eight points on serve in the match. "Today's tennis, I really couldn't play any better."

Said Eltingh: "That was close to unbelievable. It was unreal."

Memories had to be a bit longer, though, to recall an equally good performance for Courier as the one he staged in humbling Krajicek, the Dutch No. 1, in just less than two hours.

"This is the Jim Courier I remember of a couple of years ago," said Krajicek. Courier was the world's best in 1992, winning the French and Australian Opens.

Uruguay-Argentina

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay — Marcelo Filippini pulled Uruguay even with Argentina in their Davis Cup America Zone tie Friday by beating Javier Frana after Gabriel Markus won the opening match.

Filippini, ranked 63rd in the world, beat 102nd-ranked Frana 7-5, 6-0, 5-7, 6-4.

Earlier, Markus beat Diego Perez 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

Markus, ranked 78th in the world, got off to a quick start against the 32-year-old Perez, a Davis Cup veteran whose ranking has dropped to 363rd.

In today's doubles, Filippini-Perez will play Frana-Pablo Albano. The reverse singles are scheduled for Sunday.

Britain-Romania

MANCHESTER, England — Romania took a surprising 2-0 lead over Britain Friday in a Davis Cup relegation match.

Razvan Sabau, a 17-year-old player ranked 787th in the world, saved three match points and came back from two sets and 5-1 down to upset Jeremy Bates 0-6, 3-6, 7-6 (7-3), 6-2, 6-2.

Indurain widens gap on Tour field

LUZ ARDIDEN, France (AP) — While other big names kept fading or dropping out, Miguel Indurain rolled steadily towards a fourth straight Tour de France title Friday in the 12th stage.

Indurain finished more than seven minutes behind the stage winner, Richard Virenque of France. But Indurain's main rival, Tony Rominger of Switzerland, was more than three minutes farther back and is 7:56 behind the three-time defending champion.

Since Monday, Rominger has lost more than seven minutes to Indurain in what was once considered a two-man showdown for the championship.

Now Rominger faces a fight for second place. Virenque is tied with him, and another French cyclist, Armand De Las Cuevas, is only six seconds behind them.

Virenque claimed France's third consecutive stage win. Last year, Frenchmen won only one stage.

The stage of 127 miles had two major climbs, the renowned Tourmalet, 6,937 feet, and Luz Ardiden, 5,625 feet.

Virenque pulled far ahead of the pack, and only Marco Pantani of Italy stayed within five minutes of him starting the final climb to Luz Ardiden. Pantani wound up 4:34 back.

Indurain and his Banesto teammates allowed Virenque and Pantani to gain the advantage because each trailed Indurain by more than 15 minutes entering the stage.

Claudio Chiappucci of Italy, who has finished in the top six of the Tour since 1990, dropped out before the start of the stage, plagued by an intestinal virus.

Do you believe?

Disney's 'Angels' remake swings, misses

By Todd Camp
N.Y. Times News Service

Walt Disney Pictures wants you to believe in angels as it releases its remake of the 1951 MGM release, "Angels in the Outfield."

Joseph Gordon-Levitt is Roger, a lonely foster kid who passes the time with his buddy J.P. (Milton Davis Jr.) by attending baseball games for the hopelessly miserable California Angels.

Convinced by his no-good father that if the Angels win the pennant, his separated parents will reunite, Roger prays for a miracle.

A miracle is exactly what team manager George Knox (Danny Glover) needs to make winners out of his major league misfits. Only Roger can see the divine assistance given the team thanks to a friendly angel named Al (Christopher Lloyd), and with a little help from above, the Angels suddenly find themselves out of the dumps and into the playoffs.

■ 'Angels in the Outfield' is playing at the UA Cine 4.

"Angels" is packed with likable players. Tony Danza is a washed-up pitcher just waiting for a chance to play again. Brenda Fricker is the kindly foster mom. Jay O. Sanders is delightful as a sports announcer creep. And cowboy great Ben Johnson is the tough but fair owner of the Angels.

But why are these grownups in "this" movie? Acting greats Glover and Lloyd play second fiddle to the kids, who are both nothing short of awful. Gordon-Levitt, who held up a little better in Disney's "Holy Matrimony," seems completely out of his league. Davis, known mainly for his Pepsi commercials with Shaquille O'Neal, is incapable of uttering anything but, "It could happen."

Everyone tries a little too hard to appeal to kids, yet the whole film still comes off as more than a little morbid.

Even so, baseball flicks always have enormous appeal and parents are continually looking for a suitable big-screen baby sitter. "Angels in the Outfield" should fill that bill adequately, even if it leaves its viewers feeling foul.

Memories from the moonwalk

■ Walter Cronkite experienced numerous landmark events during a storied broadcasting career, but it was a lunar touchdown 25 years ago that remains the most exciting.

By Ray Richmond
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — From the early 1950s through the early '80s, Walter Cronkite was not only the pre-eminent television journalist, but the most trusted man in America.

Cronkite

"Uncle Walter" or "Old Iron Bottom" (as he was sometimes affectionately known) rose to prominence as CBS News' anchorman/host of the documentary program "You Are There" (1953-57) and narrator of "The 20th Century" (1957-70).

But most viewers remember Cronkite as anchor of "The CBS Evening News" from 1962-81.

During his tenure, he presided over nightly coverage of the carnage of the Vietnam War and the joyful return of the POWs.

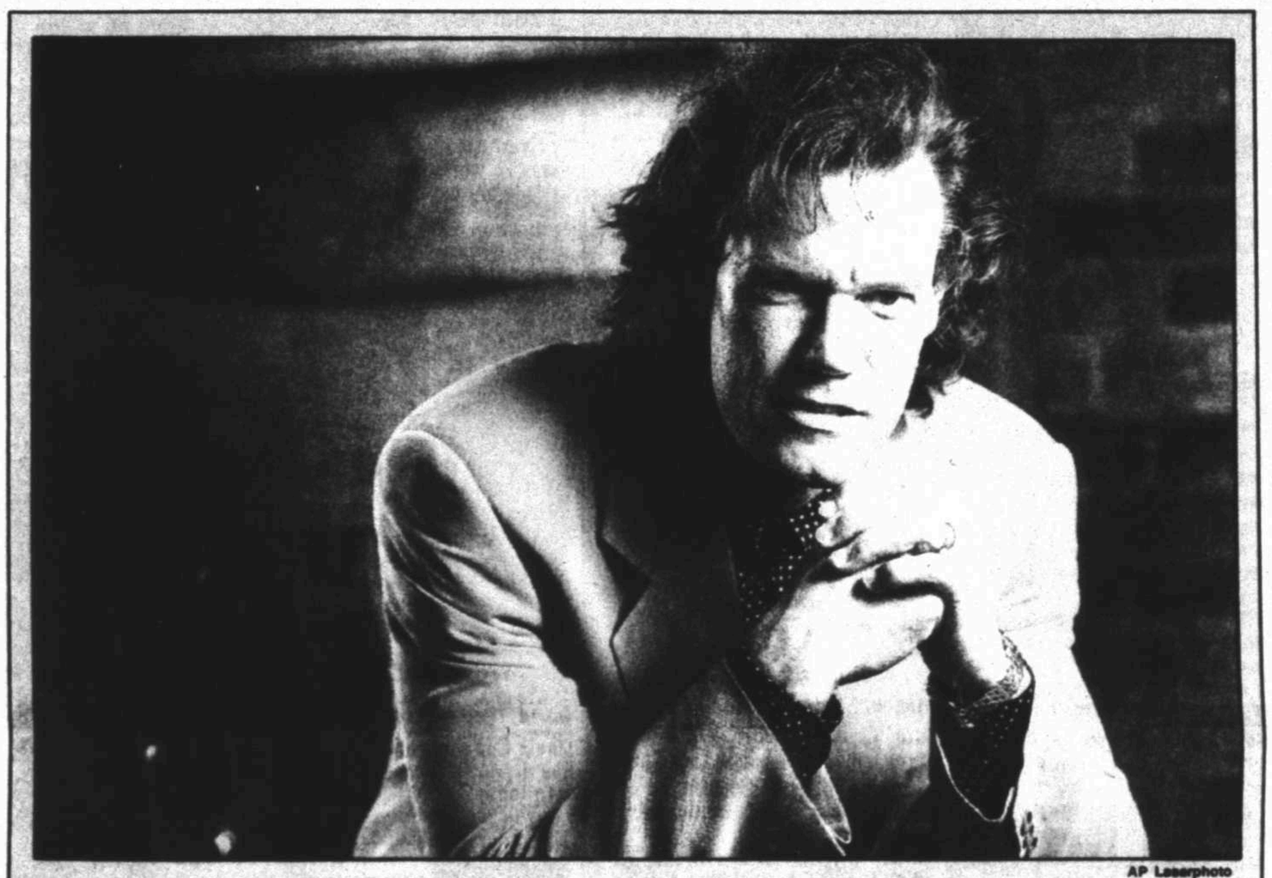

His grandfatherly presence helped soothe the pain felt throughout America following the assassinations of John and Robert Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. He was imperturbable but not cold, dabbing at his eyes upon announcing that President Kennedy had just died in Dallas on that fateful day in November 1963.

But few events better illustrate Cronkite's uncanny ability to sum up the moment without hogging the spotlight than the touchdown of Apollo 11 on the lunar surface on July 20, 1969, and Neil Armstrong's first momentous steps.

More than 2 billion people worldwide are estimated to have watched the landing. Here in the United States, it was Cronkite more than any other newsman who was able to lend the event the immense sense of history that it demanded.

Now 77, Cronkite took a few moments out from his work for cable's Discovery

Veteran Randy Travis has never made superstardom a top priority.

Veteran artist settling down

Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — At age 35, Randy Travis is graying around the temples and his new album offers a flip-side to the trend of lightweight country hits like "Indian Outlaw" and "Wild One."

Revered for single-handedly bringing back country music from pop to its roots, Travis now joins a number of thirty something artists approaching the '90s with a more mature perspective.

Recent songs show country performers sharing their thoughts on alcoholism ("Little Rock" — Collin Raye), death ("How Can I Help You Say Goodbye" — Patty Loveless), and escaping a bad relationship ("Walking Away a Winner" — Kathy Mattea).

It's all in the great tradition of country music, and it saves the genre from succumbing to empty dance fads.

On his new record, "This Is Me," Travis bends slightly to modern tastes with two uncharacteristically propulsive songs, but he mostly sticks to his strength — ballads that probe the intricacies of adult love.

"I don't ever think I'm going to go out and do 4 million copies on an album again," Travis said without a trace of regret.

Interviewed at his Music Row office, Travis was relaxed and open about a career many had begun to think he'd

Social issues hot concern for country

By Jimmy Patterson
Special Projects Editor

When a popular culture latches on to a cause, it normally warrants a few headlines.

Ten years ago, a band of superstars joined together to record "We Are the World," a song and video that benefitted the starving children in Africa.

In 1992, the alternative rock group Soul Asylum recorded "Runaway Train," a song and accompanying video that focused on missing children. The video, which was in heavy rotation on MTV, featured still photographs of missing children and teen-agers.

Now, country music is pulling off a ground-breaking trifecta. Three charting songs deal with social issues. Collin Raye's latest, "Little Rock," deals with broken homes caused by alcoholism; Martina McBride's controversial "Independence Day" tells the story of a battered wife, and Reba McEntire's poignant "She Thinks His Name Was John" talks of a woman dying of AIDS who can remember the names of all her lovers except one.

"I don't think there's ever been this many all at once," KGEE program director Mike Lawrence said of the wave of socially-relevant songs. "But the base of the music and

All they need are a dozen witless ya-hoos

Not that the legal brains out in California will take my advice, but I think maybe I've located the perfect jury for the O.J. Simpson trial. A dozen people who actually would have no knowledge of the crime or have ever heard of O.J. Simpson:

Patterson

Earl T. Junkyard. Buys chewing tobacco by the case. Lives in a remote bayou in Louisiana. Best friend is a hound dog. Last watched television when "Lassie" was topping the Nielsens.

Jim Bob Flagwaver. Runs a business called Mend-a-Dent, a combination body shop and denture repair store. Lives in the Oklahoma Panhandle and gets his kicks by watching the only traffic signal west of Oklahoma City turn red.

Mona Wylie. Runs a senior citizen's center in a remote New Hampshire village. Claims to be the long-lost sister of Marilyn Monroe who once dated Elvis' second uncle once removed.

The former Prince. So out of touch with reality his name is now an unpronounceable symbol. Achieved unprecedented popularity in the 1980s for having a bizarre spiritual fixation with the color purple.

Darla Dearborn. Great-great-great granddaughter of the namesake of this mid-size Michigan town. Moved from Dearborn to Bad Axe because she felt she could better develop her true personality by living in a town named Bad Axe. Has five televisions and watches soaps 18 hours a day while running an ironing business on the side. Was so enraged when her soaps were pre-empted during last week's preliminary hearing that she moved back to Dearborn thinking maybe her programs would be on there.

Michael Jackson. Loves everyone. Thinks he once invited O.J. over to play recently, but can't recall exactly who O.J. is.

CRONKITE: NASA goal hasn't changed much

(From 1C)

Channel to reflect on the 25th anniversary of the moonwalk.

Q: How do you remember the experience of covering man landing on the moon in 1969?

A: "The word 'exciting' is certainly overused these days, but it was such an exciting experience to be a part of that. It excited every one of the emotions. And it was tempered with this enormous feeling of relief that we had succeeded in this difficult and dangerous mission. There was also the exultation of knowing we had beaten the Soviets and gotten there first."

Q: Were you greatly concerned that this could end in disaster?

A: "Oh sure. And that concern lasted the entire mission. The trickiest part was the landing itself. Everything was being tested for the first time with those men aboard. And it was about as tense as you can get."

Q: What sort of preparation as a journalist did you do to cover the landing?

A: "I probably had as long and arduous a preparation as did NASA. I'd covered the space program from the very beginning. My first trip to Cape Canaveral was in 1957, so it had been 12 years of intimately covering the program for CBS News."

Q: And yet when the actual landing happened, weren't you rendered speechless?

A: "Absolutely. Totally. It was the first time in my life I had found myself unable to put what I was watching into words. All I could manage to say as the lunar module was touching down was, 'Wow!'"

Q: What exactly was it that tied your tongue?

A: "It was all just so unreal. This was sciencefiction coming true. To see (Neil) Armstrong and (Buzz) Aldrin bouncing around on the surface of the moon defied the most abundant imagination. And the sheer technology of being able to watch and experience this back on Earth, even through simulations, was an overwhelming notion.

"I mean, it was something that had to grip you. It was as if you could have stood at the dock and waved goodbye to Columbus."

Q: How do you recall the atmosphere in America at the time of the moon landing a quarter century ago? Was it a case of everyone supporting it and the nation pulling together as one?

A: "Not really at all. There was great ambivalence then, too, though the dissenters weren't as prominent in the argument. On the day of the landing, (authors) Kurt Vonnegut and Gloria Steinem were on our CBS broadcast ridiculing the whole idea of spending this kind of money when so many things needed to be done here on Earth."

Q: So it would be safe to say that you are not one of those revisionists who think the entire landing was a hoax?

A: "I imagine it would have taken as much effort to stage it and keep it under wraps as it wound up getting to the actual moon. But you would be surprised at how many people believe, to this day, that it didn't really happen. That just boggles the mind, but it also tells you something about the unbelievable nature of the event itself."

Q: Growing up as you did in the 1920s and '30s, wasn't outer space thought of as little more than a pipe dream?

A: "To some degree. I read all of the science-fiction books, and I devoured Amazing Stories magazine every month. Going to the moon had always been a complete part of fiction. By the '40s and '50s, we had begun to talk about the possibility of getting to the moon, of course. A high-capacity rocket had been invented and perfected. After the war was over, the excitement clearly started to build."

Q: Where do you see the first moonwalk qualifying in the context of historical events?

A: "It is the most significant event of the 20th century, without a doubt. This is the century of incredible scientific breakthroughs. For this to compete with the discovery of the nucleus of the atom and the victory over polio, the disasters of the atomic bomb and of world wars I and II, with political revolutions all over the globe, it has to be unbelievably momentous. And it was that.

"I mean, think back to the 15th century. A lot of things of great importance happened then. But what is the one thing every schoolboy knows? Columbus discovering America. So this escape from our earthly environment has to be the biggest story of this century — that is, unless the Koreans blow us all to hell before the year 2000."

Q: Does it give you a particular sense of pride to have been a part of such a historical moment?

A: "I'd take it even further. It humbles me with satisfaction as a human being, and as a reporter, that I could have been in the position to help bring such a moment to the world. It will always be special to me."

SOCIAL: Songs embracing issues of concern

(From 1C)

the listenership has expanded so much recently it doesn't surprise me. There are so many songs now that touch on different matters of society."

Dick Baze, operations manager at KCRS radio, says that country no longer dwells merely on broken hearts.

"This new age of country singers today is trying to be more relevant," Baze said. " 'Little Rock' is not only a good song, but it has something to say. It's not necessarily a new trend, it's just that instead of country music talking about broken hearts, it's now talking about why hearts are broken."

Country music has largely steered clear of social concerns in the past with an occasional exception. But to have three songs chart at the same time that each deal with real, disturbing topics is a sign just how far Nashville has progressed.

In the '90s, two or three songs have walked the edge of controversy: It is widely accepted that the Pirates of the Mississippi song "Feed Jake" dealt with homosexuality, as did Garth Brooks' "We Shall Be Free." Brooks' song not only encouraged a heightened level of acceptance of homosexuals, but of all people. Brooks also handled the spousal abuse issue in "The Thunder Rolls," a video banned by the Nashville Network because of its violent content.

Mary-Chapin Carpenter has made a career of late of being a spokesperson for women's concerns.

Collin Raye has always had a knack for singing tender ballads. Songs like "Love, Me," his first hit, gingerly tug at the heart strings but don't address any impact issues.

"Little Rock," though, thrusts Raye into the limelight because of its handling of the subject of alcoholism. As touching as the song is, the video paints a clearer picture of just what drinking can do to a family. The song concerns a recovering alcoholic who relocates to Arkansas, gets a new job and tries to start a new life. The pain in Raye's voice is clearly evident as he sings the lyric "I haven't had a drink in 19 days/My eyes are clear and bright without that haze."

"While I'm not a problem drinker," Raye said, "I've spent plenty of years in honky tonks, showrooms and bars, and I've seen the effect alcohol can have.

"When I first heard 'Little Rock,' I was immediately drawn to it because of the cutting edge of the lyrics, and a melody that carried you away. Country music has always been about drinking songs, but this was a song that dug beyond the surface to deal with what happens when the drinking destroys everything in someone's life.

"But it wasn't just a song about the wreckage, it was a song about rebirth. To me, the greatest thing a singer can do is offer hope ... and that's what 'Little Rock' stood for to me: the belief that this man could overcome his demon and get his life back on track."

The video to "Little Rock" goes further, telling the story of a little boy who accidentally sees his drunken father trying to make advances toward the boy's mother, who is crying because the father is drunk again. The father turns around, sees the boy and runs after him. The little boy grows up and becomes the same troubled man his father was. During an alcohol-related argument with his wife, the man turns and sees his boy watching. The man flashes back to when the same thing happened to him as a child and, we are led to believe, that is the point when the man realizes he needs to change his life. It is a painfully touching four minutes, but it is a video that very well could help others who find themselves in similar situations.

Raye has become a spokesman for Al-Anon and Alateen thanks to the success of the song and its statement, and "Little Rock" has been adopted by the recovery groups as a new anthem.

"Independence Day" deals with spousal abuse. The tragic video finale depicts a murder-suicide when the abused wife burns down her house while she and her husband are inside.

As for "She Thinks His Name Was John," KGEE's Lawrence said the song has received very large amounts of feedback in a short period of time.

"Reba's song has touched a lot of people," Lawrence said. "When you get down to the brass tacks and the nitty gritty, " 'Little Rock' doesn't touch all of us, this (the AIDS issue), on the other hand, does.

"Any of these songs, if they manage to touch somebody we're all for it. If we think it's going to have a positive impact we'll play it."

TRAVIS: Singer finds himself comfortable with style abandoned the past three years for a vacation home in Hawaii.

(From 1C)

"I'm not a person who is just driven totally for success, so I wasn't worried about it," he said of his hiatus, during which he produced an album of cowboy songs and acted in Westerns for cable television.

"There're a lot of songs right now in the top 50 on the charts that won't be remembered a year from now," Travis said, "and I like songs that people are going to remember for a long time.

"I'm not a singer that can sing anything," Travis said. "Vince Gill, for instance, or Reba McEntire, they can do any kind of music.

"But I'm limited in vocal range. I have a voice that sounds like a country singer, so what I have to do is find songs that fit me."

How to Sponsor Education and Enjoy Your Vacation...
WHEN YOU CALL IN YOUR VACATION STOP, OFFER TO DONATE YOUR OFFICE-PAID SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE PERIOD YOU'LL BE AWAY TO A SCHOOL IN YOUR AREA.
Many thousands of area students benefit each school year through exposure to newspapers in education. Whether used as a library resource, as a "living textbook" to support classroom skills, or as a special project, the newspaper adds a powerful and exciting dimension to learning. Unfortunately, in these difficult economic times, teachers and school boards are finding it increasingly hard to fund the purchase of newspapers. As a Spectator subscriber, you can help by donating your vacation credit to sponsor newspapers for classroom use.
The daily newspaper is one of the most practical and versatile teaching resources available. It's real-world relevance promotes practical literacy and offers young minds the opportunity to develop a lasting sense of social and civic responsibility.
Best of all, newspapers are fun! Students enjoy newspaper based activities while they build curriculum skills and develop good reading habits.
Help support education while you're on vacation, and help give young people a good reason to read.

ON SCREEN

(Condensed movie reviews by Los Angeles Daily News film critics. The rating system for the film list is: ★★★★ — Don't miss it; ★★★ — worth your while; ★★ — Has it moments; ★ — If you must)

N.Y. Times News Service

ANGELS IN THE OUTFIELD: Schmaltzy, dysfunctional family film remake of the zestier '50s comedy about major league losers and heavenly help. Danny Glover is the short-fused manager of the cellar-dwelling California Angels. Joseph Gordon-Levitt is the foster home kid who has pennant-winning visions. Christopher Lloyd leads the celestial, computer-assisted cleanup crew. PG. Rating: ★★

BABY'S DAY OUT: Writer-producer John Hughes' latest step on the road to infantilism is a "Ransom of Red Chief" rip-off, in which bumbling kidnappers chase a gleefully oblivious 9-month-old around Chicago. A sick idea — baby is constantly crawling into life-threatening situations — is played out with comic gusto, if not exactly sophistication. PG-13. Rating: ★★½

BLOWN AWAY: "Speed" without the bus. As it turns out, the bus was really important. Overdramatized but underimagined, this thriller about a mad bomber's (Tommy Lee Jones) vendetta against a Boston bomb squad ace (Jeff Bridges) is slowed down by specious character development and looney, symbolic stretches of "meaning." All of this nonkinetic drivel just provides down time for one to think about how preposterous the whole thing is. R. Rating: ★★

CITY SLICKERS II: Billy Crystal is back in the saddle, but the herd of laughs has disappointingly thinned out in this urbanites-on-the-range sequel. This time, our favorite New York cowboys are searching for hidden gold instead of male-bonded smiles, and it's neither as sweet nor as fun. Jack Palance rustles the show from everyone else, again, as the late Curly's even nastier twin brother, Duke. PG-13. Rating: ★★

THE COWBOY WAY: "Coogan's Bluff," "McCloud," "Crocodile Dundee," "Midnight Cowboy" — throw them all in a blender, scrape up whatever flies out, and you've got this senseless, cowboys-in-New-York comedy thriller. Woody Harrelson and Kiefer Sutherland are the rustics who bust up an illegal alien enslavement ring. Harrelson supplies the film's only charm, and that's dependent on your tolerance of male narcissism. PG-13. Rating: ★★

THE FLINTSTONES: The live-action version of the Hanna-Barbera cartoon looks super, delivers dozens of Stone Age sight gags and paleolithic puns, and boasts the incomparable John Goodman as bumbling Fred Flinstone. But with only the flimsiest of stories to tie it all together, the film gradually becomes a yabba-dabba-yawner. PG. Rating: ★★

FORREST GUMP: A superb blend of satire and sentimentality powers this look at 30 years of tumultuous history through the eyes of a lovable fool. Low IQ'd Forrest (Tom Hanks) becomes a football star, a Vietnam War hero, a business success and a pop culture guru, all through pretty much dumb luck. Director Robert Zemeckis ("Back to the Future") goes for some impressive computer effects and some baldly feelgood manipulations. Yet the film's underpinnings remain as dark and complex as those events of the past four decades that have made us all feel kind of like idiots. PG-13. Rating: ★★★★

GETTING EVEN WITH DAD: Macaulay Culkin is paired with Ted Danson in this clunky comedy about a widowed ex-con whose plans for one last heist run into unexpected interference from his lonely, precocious son. Saul Rubinek and Gailard Sartain play Danson's cartoonish henchmen, and Glenne Headly plays an undercover cop who winds up making nice with Dad. Danson's street accent is painfully bogus; Culkin is still cute but he can't do much with this picturesque goo. PG. Rating: ★

I LOVE TROUBLE: Dreadfully inept action-comedy-romance about rival Chicago newspaper reporters uncovering an agrichemical scam. Speaking of chemistry, there is none between stars Nick Nolte and Julia Roberts — mainly because he can act and she can't. The catch-phrase dialogue and witless plot supplied by Nancy Meyers and director Charles Shyer is no help, either. PG. Rating: ★½

THE LION KING: Disney's latest animated spectacular isn't quite as seamlessly perfect as the last three features. But it's nevertheless a gorgeous, enjoyable lesson in the eternal cycles of nature and the development of (some very humanlike) behavior. Set in Africa, it's about future King of the Beasts Simba's coming of age. Elton John and Tim Rice wrote the songs, voices include Oscar-winners Jeremy Irons' and Whoopi Goldberg's, and the artwork, though often dazzling, is built upon a becoming naturalism. G. Rating: ★★★

LITTLE BIG LEAGUE: A 12-year-old boy (Luke Edwards) inherits the Minnesota Twins from his grandfather (Jason Roberds) and decides to become major league baseball's first owner-manager since Connie Mack. An amiable fantasy; it helps to know baseball but the scenario should appeal to anybody who thinks they could handle a glamour job better than the big shots. PG. Rating: ★★½

MAVERICK: Lightweight fun in the Wild West. Mel Gibson pours on the charm as the conniving gambler, Jodie Foster is almost as slick as the woman who loves and robs him, and original TV Maverick James Garner lends his solid presence to the role of a questionable lawman. "Lethal Weapon" purveyor Richard Donner emphasizes thrills and laughs; William Goldman's script is his cleverest since "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid." PG. Rating: ★★★

RENAISSANCE MAN: This soggy, plastic hybrid of "Dead Poets Society" and "Private Benjamin" has Danny DeVito as an out-of-work ad man assigned by his unemployment office to teach "Hamlet" to disadvantaged Army recruits. The young performers who play the soldiers are the film's biggest strength. Director Penny Marshall has a way with warm-hearted comedies, but even she can't make this Hollywood boilerplate work. PG-13. Rating: ★

THE SHADOW: Gorgeous, art-deco designs are not enough to make this pokey action-adventure compelling. The 60-year-old radio and pulp hero who has the (still vaguely defined) power to cloud men's minds is played for conflicting menace and whimsy by Alec Baldwin. "The Last Emperor's" John Lone is his arch nemesis, a descendant of Genghis Khan out to threathen '30s New York with the first atomic bomb. PG-13. Rating: ★★

SPEED: An LAPD SWAT team officer (Keanu Reeves) tangles with a psychopathic bomber (Dennis Hopper) who wants to get rich the old fashioned way — by extorting it. Deservedly touted as the sleeper of the summer season, the film delivers nonstop thrills, a solid action performance by Reeves and an appealing supporting turn by Sandra Bullock as a perky and plucky passenger. A real crowd-pleaser. R. Rating: ★★★½

TRUE LIES: The "Terminator" team of Arnold Schwarzenegger and writer-director James Cameron go for a $100 million, James Bond-style action comedy, with a screwball marriage awkwardly tossed in. Schwarzenegger is such a top-secret, anti-nuclear terrorism agent, even his wife of 17 years (Jamie Lee Curtis) thinks he's just a boring computer salesman. Spectacular stunts and big explosions contribute to the perception that the movie is an overpumped mess. Tom Arnold, as Big Arnold's spy partner, is the best thing in it. Can you believe that? R. Rating: ★★½

WOLF: Jack Nicholson is in top form as a New York book editor who finds that his gradual transformation into a werewolf has unexpected benefits, including a romance with the rebellious daughter (Michelle Pfeiffer) of his crass new corporate boss (Christopher Plummer). Mike Nichols' ambitious attempt to meld supernatural thriller with contemporary urban drama/satire/love story isn't entirely successful, especially in the stretch, and it gets a bit gruesome here and there. But for the most part, it's literate, escapist fun. R. Rating: ★★★

WYATT EARP: A big, juicy western with all the trimmings, this epic co-produced by director-writer Lawrence Kasdan and leading man Kevin Costner is too much of a good thing. The production looks great, and Costner's somber portrait of the famed lawman-adventurer is solid, but at more than three hours it's way too long and bogged down in boring detail. PG-13. Rating: ★★½

— Ratings for children are by the Motion Picture Association of America: (G) general audiences; (PG) parental guidance suggested as some material may not be suitable for children; (PG-13) special guidance for children under age 13 as some material may be inappropriate for youngsters; (R) restricted, under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian; (NC-17) no children under 17 admitted; (NR) not rated by the MPAA.

Too many gimmicks, too few surprises

By Michael H. Price
N.Y. Times News Service

■ "True Lies" is playing at the UA Cine 4.

James Cameron and Arnold Schwarzenegger aim impossibly high with the odd combination of screwball romantic farce and shoot-'em-up thriller called "True Lies," but a scattergun approach assures that they hit about as often as they miss.

Even at its most thrilling, "True Lies" is only good enough to make one long for the superior mayhem the big Austrian dished out before his passage into the Hollywood elite.

Director/screenwriter Cameron, too, has made better films, including the modestly budgeted Schwarzenegger breakthrough ("The Terminator" in 1984). Both artists were more fun back when they were hungry. Now, responsible for big budgets and increasing power within the filmmaking establishment, they rely on repetitive crowd-pleaser gimmicks to the near-exclusion of cinematic surprises.

As an action film, "True Lies" is scarcely more than a retread of "Commando," the best of the Schwarzenegger vehicles of his ballistic prior decade. The familiar elements of relentless terrorism, isolated strongholds, endangered family and ultra-violent rescues are all transferred as if by rubber-stamp into "True Lies," except that the villains are neither as formidable nor as intriguing, and their violent ends are played more for cheap laughs than suspense.

The subtler comedy works fine, especially when Jamie Lee Curtis and Fort Worth's Bill Paxton commandeer the screen. Neither of these far abler actors plays down to Schwarzenegger's still-rudimentary thespic skills, and he in turn rises agreeably to the occasion.

Paxton plays an ordinary schmo who poses as a secret-agent man in order to impress women. Schwarzenegger is a secret-agent man who poses as an ordinary schmo. Curtis is Schwarzenegger's unsuspecting wife, who finds him frankly a bore and is readily fooled by Paxton's glamorous masquerade.

There is enough of this domestic-farce business to make a dandy movie in its own right, especially when one considers that the 141-minute running time is largely stunt-action padding.

Curtis makes much of one sexy-silly showcase, in which she performs an uptight middle-class-housewife version of a seductive dance for a spy whose identity is a mystery to her. Curtis also upstages Schwarzenegger on the battlefront by topping his confident moves with a royal case of dumb luck and, later, taking on "femme fatale" Tia Carrere in a serious slugfest.

Apart from Carrere, the bad guys are generic bearded-Mideasterner stereotypes, whose caliber of menace wavers between dead-earnest and Yosemite Sam. The truer villain of the piece is Tom Arnold.

Sales clerks enjoy cross-country tour

By Dexter Waugh
N.Y. Times News Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Right this moment they are probably the two most famous and beloved tourists in America, and as they stood on a bluff above Fort Point with the Golden Gate Bridge in the background, waiting to do their turn on the "Late Show With David Letterman," it was easy to see why.

Mujibur Rahman and Sirajul Islam, the two shop clerks from Manhattan whom Letterman plucked from obscurity and sent on a trip around the country, with nightly on-site reports on his show, are humility and warmth personified.

For two hours they signed autographs, posed for pictures and willingly gabbed with the couple hundred fans who turned out Friday afternoon to watch the taping for Letterman's show.

Called familiarly by their first names, the two natives of Bangladesh obliged the local CBS affiliate, KPIX, by taping a promo, reading from cue cards but managing in their now-famous fashion to mangle the words.

"Anna Chavez. Dave McElhatton. Very, very nice," said Sirajul, struggling with the names on the cue cards. "Dan Fouts. Wonderful."

"Thank you for your watching. Goodbye," said Mujibur.

During all this, and unbeknownst to almost everyone in the crowd, a tragedy unfolded behind them as a woman apparently jumped to her death from the bridge.

The Coast Guard recovered the body of the 21-year-old woman about 2:30 p.m. Her identity was not released.

Rob Genolio, a public relations assistant for KPIX, said he happened to see the woman's body hit the water. "It was a huge splash. My first instinct was to think it was a really big fish. But I was wrong."

Genolio told a Golden Gate National Recreation Area ranger, who said if it was a person, a flare would be put into the water. "Sure enough, a minute later, the flare was out there," Genolio said.

Mujibur and Sirajul were not told what had happened, and the KPIX camera was not running when the woman jumped, said Lance Lew, KPIX public relations manager who was on the scene.

The crowd also was unaware. Carol O'Friel, of San Bruno, and her four children happily displayed a long banner that read, "We Love You Mujibur and Sirajul."

"They are like cult figures now, but their warmth comes across somehow," O'Friel said.

O'Friel said she'd been following the nightly reports as the twosome traveled from city to city across the country, their last stop being San Francisco. They were to fly back to New York on Saturday.

"They are just everyday people," O'Friel said, explaining their appeal. "When Dave moved into the Ed Sullivan Center, he went through the neighborhood and came up with these two guys. They endeared themselves. They're perfect straight men for him."

She said Mujibur and Sirajul had signed her banner.

"They even took a picture of it," she said.

Buzz Brown, who happened by on his bicycle and stopped to watch, said the tour "is good publicity for Dave, for them and for our country. It brings fame and notoriety to people who came here to live the American dream."

Someone in the crowd asked Sirajul to explain his sudden popularity. "Both of us are working together," he said. "People love Dave Letterman and the Dave Letterman show. So when people like the show, I thought that's why they like us also. Now I am very famous, I think that.

"We are very lucky. Thank God and Dave Letterman."

RELIGION IN BRIEF

■ Pastor gets graduate degree

FORT WORTH — Walter Ray McCall of Bowie received a graduate diploma in theology from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary.

McCall, the son of Mr. and Mrs. H.A. McCall Jr. of Pyote, is married to the former Cheryl Ann Mayo of Midland.

McCall serves as pastor at Southside Baptist Church in Bowie.

■ Churches offer Bible schools

Several Midland churches have scheduled vacation Bible schools:

■ Macedonia Baptist Church, 201 S. Carver St., is holding its Vacation Bible School Monday through Friday from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Theme for this year is "Of all the creatures great and small, Jesus loves you most of all."

For a ride or for more information call 682-9538 or 697-1295.

■ Calvary Baptist Church, 1001 S. Main St., is holding its Vacation Bible School from 6:45 to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A parade at 5:30 p.m. and a rally for youth at 7 p.m. are planned for today. All attending the rally will receive a free snow cone.

The school covers ages 2 and 3 if accompanied by an adult, and ages 4 through 18. For more information call 682-8757.

■ "Son Country Farm" is the theme of the Memorial Christian Church, Disciples of Christ, Bible School Monday through Friday.

The school, being held at the church, 1001 Andrews Highway, will begin at 9 a.m. and end at 11:45 a.m. The format of each day's activities will rotate the church in age gorups through a series of centers including crafts, snacks, games, Bible verses, Bible stories and planting.

Organizers welcome children from age 4 through students who completed the sixth grade this spring.

No pre-registration is necessary. For more information, call 682-2966 or 697-7727.

■ Methodists plan arts camp

The annual Music, Art and Drama Camp sponsored by the Music Ministry of First United Methodist Church is set for Aug. 1-5.

Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Aug. 1-4 and 9:30 a.m. to noon Aug. 5. The camp, being held at the church, Main Street at Ohio Avenue, is open to all children who will be in grades one through six this fall.

Enrollment is $10 per child.

Activities planned during the week include singing, playing handbells, drama, creative movement, watercolor instruction, stained-glass instruction, music games, videos and recreation. In addition, during lunch daily live performances by local artists will be presented.

For enrollment forms or more information, call the church, 682-3701.

■ Center to hold camp meeting

Victory Family Christian Center, 5200 W. Illinois Ave., is holding its Camp Meeting '94 Sunday through Friday.

The "Return to Jesus" themed meeting will feature speakers from Texas and Oklahoma. Sessions are set for 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and 7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Also, a Children's Crusade is planned during each session with features puppets, games and Bible stories.

Teaching will be held daily at 10 a.m. Also, Anita Maxwell of Fort Worth will speak to women at 10 a.m. Thursday.

The church's pastor, the Rev. Bob Miller, invites all to attend.

■ SMILE to meet at Radisson

ODESSA — Singles Moving in Love and Evangelism — SMILE — is to meet at the Radisson, formerly the Odessa Hilton, 5200 E. University Blvd., at 7 p.m. Aug. 13.

The July meeting was cancelled.

SMILE is a missionary outreach of Life Unlimited Church, Odessa, and is under the covering leadership of Donald C. Palmer, pastor there.

For more information, call Jon and Cindy Harrington, 550-0005 at work or 1-367-9344 at home.

■ Hope offers Bible study

Hope Lutheran Church, 2003 North A St., is offering a weekly Bible study Wednesdays through July.

The study begins at 7 p.m. at the church. Mary Beth Anton, ministry assistant, will lead the study.

All are invited to attend. For more information, call the church, 683-1936.

■ Sermon to focus on poor

Today's efforts to help the Third World destitute poor will be among the subjects featured in a July 24 guest sermon planned for St. Nicholas Episcipal Church, 2900 W. Princeton Ave.

The guest speaker will be the Rev. Richard L. Southworth of "Food for the Poor," an international, interdenominational ministry currently serving in the Caribbean.

Southworth will be speaking during the 8 and 10:30 a.m. services. For more information about the organization, write Food for the Poor, 550 S.W. 12th Ave., Building 4, dept. 3198, Deerfield Beach, Fla., 33442.

■ Cuthbert Baptist plans banquet

Cuthbert Avenue Baptist Church is hosting a Sunday School Banquet Friday at the church.

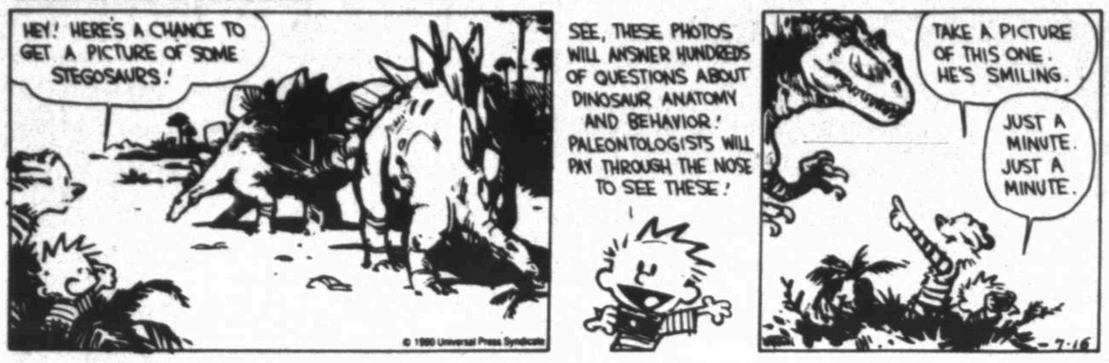

Those looking for a church-sponsored ride to church services may call 694-6075 or 684-7802.

Also, the church is offering a Bible study conducted by its pastor, the Rev. Don Knight, Wednesdays. A question-and-answer session is being held each week.

For more information call 694-6075 or 694-1645.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, JULY 16, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Build on your strong points and your career will advance by leaps and bounds. Although rattling your saber all the time would be a mistake, there are some things you should not keep quiet about. Perform your duties in such a way that competitors will find it tough to match your high standards. 1995 could be the best year ever for business gains. Seek new outlets for your managerial talents.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: dancer Ginger Rogers, tennis great Margaret Court, football player Barry Sanders, singer Ruben Blades.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A phone call brings great news today. Good friends and a large cash payment will leave you floating on Cloud Nine. Lend a youngster a helping hand. Put away your credit cards tonight.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Although you would prefer to lie low for a while, it is important that you get out and woo decision-makers. Inspiration comes from an unexpected source!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Protect your valuables when you are moving around. A protest is meaningless unless you can present a better alternative. Talk with your partner or mate about what is really going on in your life.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Something you have coveted could become available at an affordable price. Overdue money is on the way. You do not have to sell out to find love. Vent your feelings in a diary.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You can have it all if you postpone making a major decision. Even a small person can speak with a big voice when right is on her side. A romantic interlude leaves you wanting more.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A decisive personal victory is possible today. Be a gracious winner and share the glory. Someone who suggests a certain financial investment may have a hidden motive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Start a new adventure with an open mind. One opportunity stands out above all others. Improved communication skills pave the way to success for a student or rising business star.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Certain tactics work better for some people than for others. Do not agree to be the person in the middle or you could be left holding the bag.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Maneuvers taking place behind the scenes could affect your future. Be a part of it. Arguing with skeptics is a waste of time. Use facts and artful persuasion to win them over.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Although a family member's advice is not gospel, there will be some gems that could help you. Be zealous in your pursuit of love and prosperity. Looking inward will tell you a lot about yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Procrastination will only make a difficult situation worse. Creditors will be reasonable if you lay your cards on the table. Be candid about your expectations.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Bringing together people who share your interests will set the mood for a great party. Keep the conversation light and friendly. A visit to the beach or lake will leave you feeling refreshed.

TODAY'S CHILDREN have a lively sense of humor and a deep appreciation for family life. As youngsters, they will rely heavily on their parents for guidance. However, as they approach adulthood, they will insist on steering their own course. Count on them to excel in languages, communications and the fine arts. Typically, these highly motivated Cancerians will find greater fulfillment being self-employed than in working for others.

NEW YORK — Jamie Lee Curtis wants to be a sister — not a sexpot.

The actress told W magazine that has she left behind her dishy days and hopes women now find her approachable.

Jamie Lee Curtis wants to be a sister, not a sexpot.

"The last thing I want is for women to feel threatened by me, or think that I'm this alleged sexpot — that's such a dumb word," Curtis said in the August issue. "And that's not who I am. I want women to recognize that I'm a sister in the struggle of life. I feel as yucky at times as everybody else."

There's lots in Hollywood that the daughter of Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh doesn't like.

"I just hate when you walk into a party in this town and you get the idea that there's not one real thing on any of these women," Curtis said. "That not only scares me, it makes me sad. That's why I think at a certain point it's good to get out of this business.

"I see these faded stars who just become caricatures of themselves. If they had red hair before, now they have really red hair. Their lips are lined to heeeere and their eyes! It's scary!"

DES MOINES, Iowa — The bridge starring with Clint Eastwood in "The Bridges of Madison County" is an impostor.

To save money, filmmakers selected an uncovered bridge for the movie version of Robert Waller's best-selling novel, a modern-day bodice-ripper set amid the Iowa county's six covered bridges.

Wood panels will be used to cover the bridge and still leave enough light to film.

"They would have had to remove some siding to get some light in there," said Brian Morrissey, Madison County engineer.

Two of the county's covered bridges may be used for filming short scenes.

Shooting is expected to begin this fall.

Eastwood will play Robert Kincaid, a National Geographic photographer who has a torrid affair with a farm wife while on assignment taking pictures of the bridges. His leading lady hasn't been named.

LOS ANGELES — When you've had a brush with greatness, it's hard to start over. But Brenda Holloway is trying.

She has fond memories of pillow fights with Ringo Starr and luxuries such as a private chef when she opened for the Beatles on their first U.S. tour three decades ago.

Despite her hits "Every Little Bit Hurts" and "When I'm Gone," she dropped out of show business in 1969, when she felt she wasn't as popular as she wanted to be and was frightened by an addiction to prescription drugs.

Now, Holloway is preparing for an oldies show Sunday at Steven's Steak House in Commerce.

"I know I'm on a totally different level now," Holloway, 48, said in a recent interview. "I may be crazy, but I've got to try it."

She said she intends to do more oldies appearances, work on a gospel album with Bobby Womack and try for a record deal.

It's a far cry from opening for the Fab Four.

"Once you've done all that, it never gets out of your system," she said.

DOWNERS GROVE, Ill. — One week after emergency quadruple bypass surgery, Gov. Jim Edgar left the hospital and headed for the capital to recuperate at the governor's mansion.

Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar has quadruple bypass surgery.

The 47-year-old Edgar traveled to Springfield by helicopter from Good Samaritan Hospital in this Chicago suburb.

He was expected to spend several weeks recuperating at home.

The Republican is up re-election in November.

WEST UNIVERSITY PLACE, Texas — A drunken driving charge against Houston Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich was dropped Friday for lack of evidence, but he could still lose his license.

Tomjanovich refused a sobriety test after being pulled over in this Houston suburb Wednesday. Police said he was speeding and weaving across the center line.

"We reviewed the videotape of the driving and the tape made at the station and based on that, it's the opinion of all involved that the proper disposition of this is that it be dismissed," prosecutor Lynn McClellan said.

Texas drivers can have their licenses suspended for not taking a breath-alcohol test. That issue will be decided later, said Tomjanovich's lawyer, Rusty Hardin.

Shop caters to young urban bourgeois bohemians

By Dan Shaw
N.Y. Times News Service

PHILADELPHIA — The corporate culture at Urban Outfitters is really a corporate counterculture. "We're not set up like some huge pyramid," said Richard A. Hayne, 47, the president of the company, a Philadelphia-based apparel and home furnishings chain that seeks customers among aggressively hip 18- to 30-year-olds.

"We've inverted the pyramid," said Glen T. Senk, 38, the president of Urban Outfitters' fledgling chain of Anthropologie stores, which are aimed at over-30 suburban shoppers. "Dick's set things up so he's the least important person in the company."

Hayne is not, in fact, that modest about his role in running the company, whose sales grew 43 percent last year, from $59.1 million to $84.5 million. But he insists on sharing credit. "We employ 600 people, and 400 of them are our customers," he said. "We LISTEN to them. They are our antennae. If we send the wrong merchandise, they tell us."

A funky cross between Banana Republic and Pottery Barn, Urban Outfitters is the apotheosis of the bourgeois-bohemian esthetic. The stores have become a popular source for Generation X'ers who find Gap clothes too clean-cut or common. They stock up on wardrobe basics like work boots, baggy shorts, baby-doll dresses and beaded necklaces. They also find eco-friendly linens, batik bedspreads and cobalt blue goblets just right for a dorm room or first apartment.

The chain's 16 stores around the country are in places where there are plenty of free-spirited college students, like Greenwich Village in New York; Seattle; Cambridge, Mass.; Ann Arbor, Mich.; Madison, Wis., and Santa Monica, Calif. Three more are scheduled to open this year. The company's wholesale division, for which Hayne's wife, Meg, 36, is the design director, supplies the stores and sells to 1,000 other retailers.

Just as Ralph Lauren appropriated old-money New England culture and sold it right back to real preppies and those with preppy aspirations, Urban Outfitters has managed to co-opt anti-establishment consumers in their teens and 20's by giving them a shopping experience that embraces them.

While Lauren uses antiques and bibelots to set the right mood in his Polo stores, Urban Outfitters decorates with real junk and scavenged objects. "We don't want to come across as phony," said Sue Otto, 36, the company's creative director, who has worked at Urban for 15 years.

Urban Outfitters becomes popular source for Generation X'ers who find Gap clothes too clean-cut or common. UO features wardrobe basics like work boots, baggy shorts, baby-doll dresses, beaded necklaces.

"We use found couches and spool tables because every college kid has done that at some point."

Although pop music is integral to current youth fashion (Ms. Otto said that baby-size T-shirts are big in California because "all the girls there have Janet Jackson stomachs"), Urban stores don't show music videos because they're too, well, commercial.

"Kids put down MTV, even though they watch it," she said. "They want to rebel against the corporate establishment."

So Urban Outfitters stores play alternative music by bands that haven't hit the Top 40. Howard Brown, 26, the company's art director, devised a program with independent record labels so that they send him their newest CDs, and in exchange, Urban promotes the CDs in a "Now Playing" display by the cash registers.

Employees, all of whom are eligible for profit sharing and stock options after working 1,000 hours if they're over age 18, help define each store's atmosphere so that customers won't feel as if they're shopping at a monolithic chain.

They take turns producing "Urban Word," a quarterly, color-photocopied in-house newsletter that resembles an avant-garde poetry journal. It includes reports from various branches so that the staffs in Washington and New York will know what's cool in Minneapolis and Seattle.

(Snapple, Dr. Scholl's sandals, Converse One Stars and tarot cards are "in"; Coke, clogs, Adidas and therapy aren't.)

The most recent issue profiles employees like Nina Berkson of Santa Monica, Calif., ("who volunteers for AIDS and cancer research and rape crisis counseling") and Matt Fontana of Berkeley, Calif. (a tattooed poet who "turned the shoe room debacle into a showcase").

There are also customer profiles that, while fun to read, also provide management with up-to-the-minute market research. Most Berkeley customers, for example, are said to "think that bell-bottoms are too wild," "wear raggedy T-shirts and sweats to their part-time coffeehouse jobs" and "recycle all their pizza boxes."

The typical Santa Monica customer, the newsletter said, "gives spare change to street performers but not the homeless," "still likes 'chokers' " and "will buy a complete outfit off a mannequin."

Like a capitalist commune, the company has a Shared Fate program, whereby employees elect "team leaders" to represent their concerns to management. "They can even vote out a department manager if they don't like working for him, but that's only happened once so far," Ms. Otto said.

"It sounds so cliched," Hayne said, "but this really is a team effort."

Swarm of killer bees attacks 6 people in Phoenix

PHOENIX (AP) — A swarm of so-called killer bees drove Eric Wasson down the stairs outside his apartment, over a locked fence gate and into a swimming pool, then circled while he was under water and stung him when he came up for air.

"They kept coming at me. It felt like the whole right side of my face was on fire," Wasson said.

Six people were attacked recently at two apartment complexes about four blocks apart.

Wasson found that even the pool wasn't safe.

"I'd stay under as long as I could, but every time I'd come up for air, they'd start divebombing me again," he said. "They were so aggressive. I had a bunch of them coming after me. I thought, 'Jeez, this is something I've read about.' I just never expected to run into them. It was very scary."

Wasson was stung nearly 20 times by the bees, which have built a hive into a wall in the complex. His wife, Julie, 22, was stung once.

Two firefighters and two other people were stung.

"I think they got too close before they realized where the swarm was," Fire Capt. Dan Davis said.

Firefighters are advised to stay 150 feet away from swarms. They wear protective gear and suffocate the bees with foam.

The first colony of Africanized bees in the metropolitan area was found in the western suburb of Peoria in October.

"They're here to stay," Glen Thaxton, a pest expert for the Arizona Department of Agriculture, said. He added the bees will travel up to half a mile to protect their turf.

The Africanized bees closely resemble domestic honeybees but are more aggressive.

The venom of the Africanized bees is no more potent than that of European honeybees, but Africanized bees are more protective of their hives. They are aggravated by motion, such as flailing arms, which they perceive as a threat.

Africanized bees began moving north from Brazil in 1957 after escaping from an experimental breeding program.

Since the bees first appeared in Arizona in May 1993, more than 70 swarms or colonies have been discovered.

Overweight
It's not your fault

Research sites chemical or metabolism disorders as the leading cause of weight problems. The fact is most overweight people eat less and more healthy than most people who are able to maintain their weight.

The abuse of fat and calories did not create the problem and restrictive calorie dieting offers only temporary success. Low calorie/fat dieting can further deteriorate our Metabolism and Sugar System, therefore we often gain back more weight than we lose.

The M Balance weight management system is a one-on-one diagnostic diet program designed to analyze the rate our body uses energies and all those things that may influence weight control.

No pills, formulas or pre-packaged foods. Losing weight is not the same as solving a weight problem.

CITY OF MIDLAND, TEXAS
FIRE FIGHTER ENTRANCE EXAM

The City of Midland will be administering an ENTRANCE EXAMINATION for prospective Fire Fighters on Wednesday, September 7, 1994.

All interested persons should:

1. BE AGE 21 to 35 (not reached 36th Birthday)
2. HAVE A HIGH SCHOOL DIPLOMA OR G.E.D.
3. HAVE AN APPLICATION ON FILE
4. CALL TO SCHEDULE AN APPOINTMENT FOR TESTING BY AUGUST 19,1994

You may schedule an appointment by contacting BETH MOSELY, LUZ BILL, OR VERONICA SAUCEDO, ADMINISTRATIVE SERVICES DEPARTMENT, CITY HALL, 300 N. LORAINE, ROOM 410, (915) 685-7247 or (915) 685-7248.

The City of Midland is an Equal Opportunity Employer and shall not discriminate against any employee because of age, sex, marital status, national origin, religion, race, or disability.

Drug Screening through urinalysis is mandatory for employment with the City of Midland. A negative result is a prerequisite for being considered for employment.

The successful completion of a functional capacity screening will be required to determine that the applicant is able to perform the essential functions of this job with or without reasonable accommodation.

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has an opening on one of its few "Special Allowance" routes. This larger route receives a $50 check each Friday in addition to the regular monthly route profits. The route is in the Midland Freshman area.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for yourself) and it is early morning work.

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for anyone willing to work early morning hours. These routes require a small deposit.

Distributorships Now Available

PART-TIME INCOME OPPORTUNITY

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has early morning routes which need to be filled with dependable individuals with reliable transportation. Often asked questions:

➥ Is it worthwhile for adults also?

YES! 95% of our Distributors ARE adults! Morning Routes are attractive for:

★ ADULTS who have fulltime jobs, yet want to supplement their income with a steady part-time job!
★ MOTHERS who can't justify a small job AND daycare, because as a Distributor, you don not need daycare!
★ COLLEGE STUDENTS needing a part-time job which will work with classes!
★ SENIOR CITIZENS wanting regular exercise, added retirement income, or just want to work with people, neighbors, and friends!

➥ How much money can I make as a Distributor?
Depending on the size of the route(s), from $350 to $800 monthly, in some cases...even more!

➥ OK...but how long does it take?
The actual delivery takes 1-2 hours Monday-Saturday, and 2-3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route(s). Also some time is needed each month to collect from subscribers. Many Distributors choose to handle some of this by putting envelopes in the subscribers' papers and having payments mailed to them. Some collecting in person will be necessary though, particularly on some routes more than others.

➥ When do the papers have to be delivered by?
Papers must be on the yards by 6 am Monday-Friday, and 7 am on weekend mornings.

➥ Do I ever get a day off?
The job requires a 7-day a week commitment. However, most Distributors do take days off by finding a friend, family member, or another Distributor to substitute for them!

➥ What else?
A small deposit is required.
