India rape trial

An all-male council of village elders discusses punishment for four confessed rapists in Firozpur Namak, India Thursday. The council, however, failed to reach a verdict, meaning that for now, the attackers will go unpunished. The 15-year-old rape victim, Baskar, was married last month to a man she had never met, who later reportedly raped her with three friends because her dowry did not include a motorcycle. The incident highlights the position of women in Indian society.

Safety awards

Mike Bowlin, chairman of Atlantic Richfield Co., will present the company's two highest safety awards to ARCO Permian Monday in a ceremony at the Petroleum Museum in Midland. "This is the first time that the two awards have been awarded to the same operating company," said Bowlin, who noted that ARCO Permian had completed all of 1996 and 2 million man hours without a lost time accident. The two awards are for Best Safety Performance and Most Improvement in Safety. They will be presented to ARCO Permian President Tony Best at 11:30 a.m. in a ceremony that is expected to be attended by all ARCO Permian field and headquarters staff.

FBI: New York bomb plot suspects linked to Hamas

By Richard Pyle
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Two Middle Eastern men who were said to be only hours away from pulling off a suicide bombing at a busy subway station have been linked by the FBI to the radical Muslim group Hamas, a federal law enforcement source told The Associated Press on Friday.

Investigators now are trying to determine "whether they were just fanatics acting alone or were part of a broader plan," said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "The timing in relation to the bombings in Israel is very suspicious, or it's an incredible coincidence."

Hamas has come under suspicion in Wednesday's suicide bombings at a crowded Jerusalem market that killed 15 people.

The New York suspects, wounded during a raid on their Brooklyn apartment on Thursday, are from the West Bank. One was linked to Hamas by intelligence sources, the other through an immigration document he had filled out in which he said he had been accused in Israel of having been in a terrorist organization. The organization, the source said, was Hamas.

But James Kallstrom, head of the FBI's New York office, said investigators had not yet linked the suspects to Hamas. "We don't know yet, and therefore, it is totally wrong to say we do know," he said.

Gazi Ibrahim Abu Mezer, 23, and Lafi Khalil, 22, were shot in the raid when one of them lunged and pulled at least one of the switches on an explosive device, authorities said. Five devices resembling pipe bombs were seized.

The FBI found a suicide note in the apartment written by Abu

Students unhappy about downfall of Bible curriculum

By Alice Ashmore
Staff Writer

The defeat of a Bible curriculum by MISD Board members last Tuesday may have placated protesting parents, but it has left students scheduled to take the course unhappy and scrambling for alternatives.

"I was really looking forward to it, said Matt Barnes, 18, a senior at Lee High School. "I heard it was going to be looking at the Bible in a historical way."

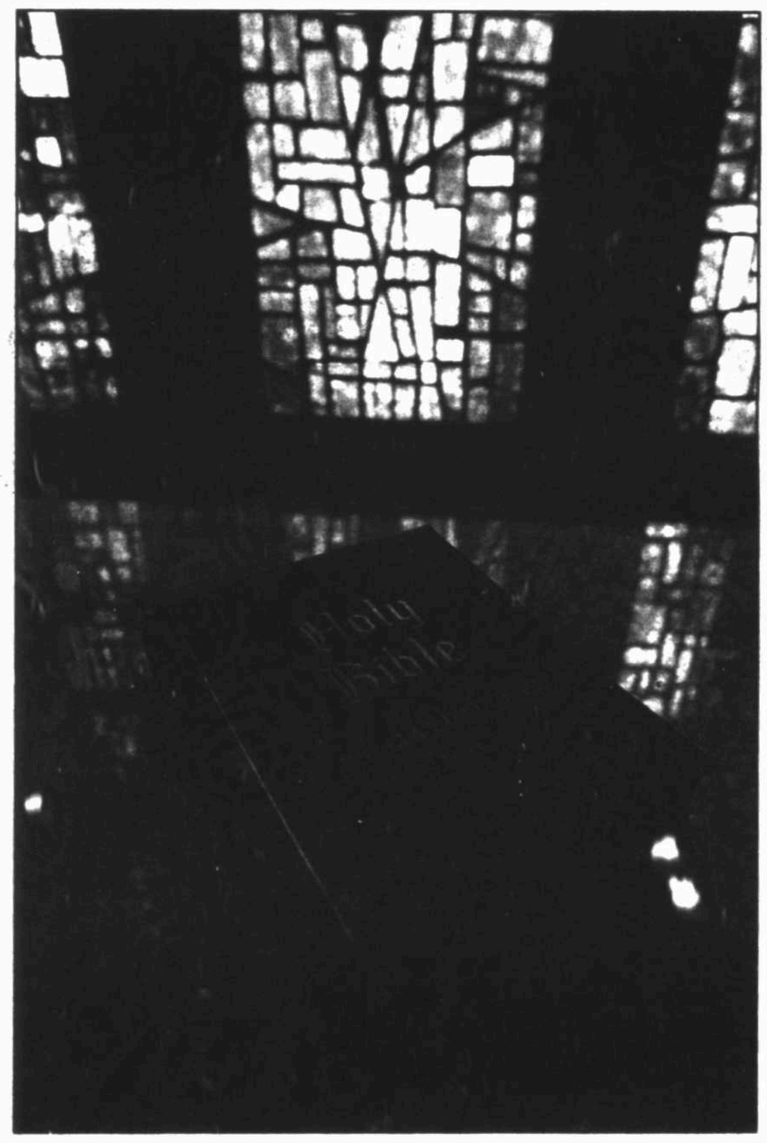

Barnes said he was "kind of upset" when he heard of the MISD board's decision. "I did not know about it until I went to church Wednesday night."

Barnes, who is planning on becoming a minister, said he was excited at the prospect of having Cathy Briggs, the author of the MISD curriculum, as a Bible teacher.

"She was excellent," said Barnes. Ms. Briggs had taught his honors world history class. "She has probably been my best teacher, besides my government teacher," he said.

"This was THE class I was looking forward to taking this year," added Jennifer McConnell, 15, a junior at Lee High School. "I guess I will have to take

Alcohol level of teen in accident over legal limit, officials confirm

By Rick Lopez
Staff Writer

Blood samples taken from 16-year-old Jose DeLaO, who was involved in a fatal motor vehicle accident Sunday that resulted in the death of two teenagers, indicate he was intoxicated when operating his vehicle, officials said.

Teresa Clingman, assistant district attorney, confirmed that the level exceeded the legal limit of .10. DeLaO's level of intoxication will not be relased until the investigation is complete, she added.

Though DeLaO was not charged Friday, his case will be examined by a grand jury in the 238th District Court during the panel's next term, Ms. Clingman said.

Meanwhile, officials also said they were probing the incident to find out the source of alcohol that is believed to be involved in the accident, since none of the people involved in the accident were of legal drinking age.

"The case is still under investigation in regard to the source," Ms. Clingman said. "We know the source was a party. We have narrowed it down to where (DeLaO) was provided with alcohol."

Officials told the Reporter-Telegram that DeLaO was the driver of a 1996 Dodge extended cab pickup that allegedly passed a stop sign and slammed into a three-ton, boulder-size slab of concrete. Officers at the scene said that DeLaO might have been driving up to a speed of 58 mph.

Esteban "Steve" Lara, and Craig Noland, both 18, died from injuries sustained in the accident. Justice of Midland schools faring better in state ranking; all 'acceptable'

From Staff and Wire Reports

AUSTIN — Crediting community involvement and students' hard work, Texas Education Commissioner Mike Moses said Friday a record number of school districts and campuses got top marks from the state this year.

Although no schools in the Midland Independent School District were named to the list of "recognized" or "exemplary" schools, the two highest rankings in the survey, MISD did show improvement overall, local officials said.

Releasing the statewide report card on schools to the public one day after school districts got a look at their own rankings, Moses said fewer districts and campuses also were considered unacceptable based on student test scores, dropout rates and attendance.

"We need to certainly salute the students for their efforts," Moses said. "I'm also pleased about the work that teachers and principals are doing.

"But ... this is a job that's not being done alone by just administrators and teachers," he said. "Parents are participating. Business people are participating. This has become a true partnership between schools, communities and the people who own the schools, the people who pay for the schools — and I'll tell you it's paying off."

A record 64 school districts and 680 campuses received the state's highest rating, exemplary. Last year, 37 districts and 394 campuses rated exemplary.

"All of our schools are 'acceptable,' " said MISD Superintendent Joseph Baressi.

Some schools in Midland were hoping to move to the "recognized" category, but fell just short of the mark. Those schools were Sam Houston Elementary, Quanah Parker Elementary, and Travis Elementary, Baressi said.

Midland High School had been previously classified as "low performing" in the 1996 rankings because of the high school dropout rate, Baressi said.

MOTRAN meets to plan highway priorities

By Jo' n Paul Pitts
Oil Editor

A new four-lane highway connecting State Highway 349, at a point 6-8 miles north of Midland, to Loop 1788, just north of Highway 191 in Odessa, is now listed as a top priority by Texas Department of Transportation officials.

In the final meeting to prioritize highway projects for West Texas which was held Thursday in Lubbock, a four-lane highway from Lamesa to Midland and a by-pass route around Lamesa were listed as lower priorities, as was a proposal to construct a four-lane highway connecting Midland-Odessa to Interstate 10. A proposal to improve the interconnect of Loop 250 and Highway 191 was also given a lower priority because of the heavy traffic already using Loop 250.

Charles Perry, chairman of Midland-Odessa Transportation Alliance (MOTRAN), said the input received at the meeting, at which 12 delegates from Midland-Odessa were present, was merely a recommendation and that ultimate decisions would be finalized in a plan by the transportation commission when it meets in Austin in September.

"The study was for planning purposes only and is not binding," Perry said. "All it means is that if there is extra money in this district, these will be some of the projects on the construction list."

Perry said MOTRAN would continue to lobby the state legislature, through which all federal highway dollars pass, as well as Congress in an effort to secure funding for highway improvements in West Texas. Perry said a delegation from Lubbock attended one of the TxDOT meetings for the first time. "They had previously been neutral on various routes proposed by Big

Streets to become two-way

By Rick Lopez
Staff Writer

After 15 years of serving one-way traffic, part of both Louisiana and Michigan avenues will be converted back to two-way streets by Sunday, city officials said.

City of Midland Traffic Engineering Coordinator Gary Saunders explained Friday that both streets were open to one-way traffic since 1983. Now, he said, Louisiana and Michigan from Andrews Highway to Garfield St. will convert to two-way streets by Sunday.

Cost of the project is estimated at $14,000, which includes labor and equipment, Saunders said.

"It's time consuming, but not as expensive as we thought it would be."

Meanwhile, workers have been taking measures to make the transition as smooth as possible.

"This week, we've been slowly doing things to make it

Rape case sheds light on position of women in India

FIROZPUR NAMAK, India, (AP) — Fifteen-year-old Baskar sat on a string cot inside her home, twisting the end of her veil round and round her finger, waiting for the fate of her life, and dignity, to be decided.

Outside, the field was crowded with thousands of bearded old men, village elders who traveled from all parts of northern India to discuss the young woman and the allegations she has made.

Baskar was married in July to a stranger selected for her by her conservative Muslim family. As is tradition in India, the family provided a dowry, sending a refrigerator, furniture and other household goods. They could not, however, afford one item the groom had demanded — a motorcycle.

On her wedding night, Baskar says, her drunken new husband and his three friends beat her and took turns raping her. They forced her to crouch on all fours while they taunted her.

"They said, 'Let's make her a motorcycle,'" Baskar says in an interview, her face half-hidden by her traditional Islamic veil.

The assault of Baskar, who gave only her first name, represents the social and cultural realities of women throughout India, according to women's rights activists.

More than 5,000 women are killed every year because their in-laws consider their dowries inadequate.

Only a tiny percentage of the killers are ever punished. Hundreds of thousands of cases in which women have been beaten and tortured over dowries await trial in courts across India.

"The position of women is so low that men consider them lower than the shoes they wear," Reena Bannerjee, a women's rights activist who works with dowry-dispute and rape victims, said Friday.

Baskar, beaten and fearful, returned to her parents' home after the rape. In fact, fear may be what is driving the young woman, who's never been to school or strayed far from her home, to seek justice.

A few days after the assault, her village council ruled that she should go back to her husband and let "bygones be bygones."

AP Laserphoto

Sher Mohammed, uncle of 15-year-old rape victim Baskar, discusses crime in Firozpur Namak Thursday, July 31, 1997. An all-male council of village elders failed to reach a verdict on the case, meaning that for the near future the attackers will go unpunished. Baskar was married last month to a man she had never met, who later reportedly raped her with three friends because her dowry did not include a motorcycle.

"I will die but I will not go back there," she said. "Even if they stop giving me bread and water."

Her family has registered a complaint with police. But the case will have to wait its turn: More than 200 dowry-related cases await trial in the local court.

The dowry system is a centuries-old custom that cuts across class and religious lines in India. For some modern, wealthy families, the dowry often is a token gift. For poor families, it can be a great burden — a fact sometimes cited as a reason families prefer sons.

While a son will grow up one day, marry and bring dowry gifts to the family, the birth of a daughter means a family can expect to have to pay up one day.

The women of Firozpur Namak, a village 45 miles west of New Delhi, live by such traditions. They seldom leave their homes except to visit relatives and close friends in the neighborhood. They are discouraged, by men, from talking about issues considered part of the male domain, such as the rape of Baskar.

"The womenfolk talk just about cooking and babies," said Kifayat Khan, a local teacher.

"Rapes happen every day, that's not the issue," he said. "The village has been dishonored because the girl had been married in the traditional way and then this happened."

A few years ago in Firozpur Namak, a young bride was burned to death over her dowry.

The woman's family sought justice from the council of village elders — an ancient system that remains strong in rural India. The government legal system borrowed from British colonialism has less historical weight in tradition-bound villages.

In the case of the woman who was burned, the council ordered the victim's husband to return the dowry and pay her family the money spent on the wedding.

Then life continued as usual for the killers.

'Rapes happen every day, that's not the issue. The village has been dishonored because the girl has been married in the traditional way and then this happened.'
— Kifayat Khan, a local teacher

In the past, victims' families have been reluctant to come forward for fear of having their shame publicized. Baskar is among a growing number of women insisting on justice, either from the traditional councils or in court.

On Thursday, the old men debated the charges against Baskar's husband, who along with his friends reportedly went into hiding.

The assembly of elders overwhelmed this small town, forcing most of them to stand for several hours during their talks. But there were no signs of women in Firozpur Namak that afternoon: The influx of strangers kept them indoors.

Locals waited for the council's ruling. "If the council says tear apart the rapists, we will do so. But if they say accord them a hero's welcome, we will do even that," said Ikramul Hassan, a construction laborer.

Finally, word came. The council was disbanding without reaching a verdict — meaning that for the foreseeable future, the accused will face no punishment.

Says Bannerjee, the rights activist: "We are not surprised by the outcome."

500 arrested in India for protest in support of incarcerated leader

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Police arrested more than 500 people who blocked roads Friday to protest the jailing of a politician in eastern India on embezzlement charges, a news agency reported.

Activists enforcing calls for a one-day protest strike damaged at least 60 buses and cars in Patna, the capital of Bihar state, and several people were injured in clashes between strikers and police, United News of India said.

The general strike shut down most schools and businesses statewide. Railroad services were halted in many places.

Laloo Prasad Yadav, the former chief executive of Bihar, has been in a police compound converted into a luxury jail in Patna since his arrest on Wednesday.

Yadav and 55 others are accused of stealing $138 million earmarked for livestock feed for state-run dairy farms. He resigned as Bihar's top elected official days before his arrest, but named his wife to succeed him and apparently plans to continue exercising power through her.

Meanwhile, the main party in India's governing coalition faced more trouble Friday after a court indicated it was ready to try the leader who replaced Yadav in a bribery case.

The Janata Dal Party split last month when Yadav was ousted because of the corruption case. His replacement, Sharad Yadav, learned Friday that a corruption case against him that has been dormant for months could be revived, local news agencies reported.

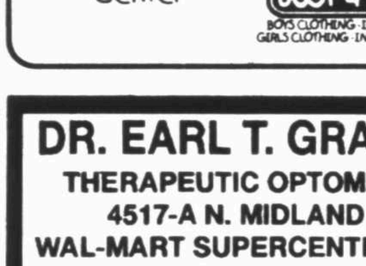

Sharad Yadav and Laloo Yadav are not related, but their shared last name indicates both are members of one of India's lowest castes. They both gained political prominence by portraying themselves as champions of oppressed Indians.

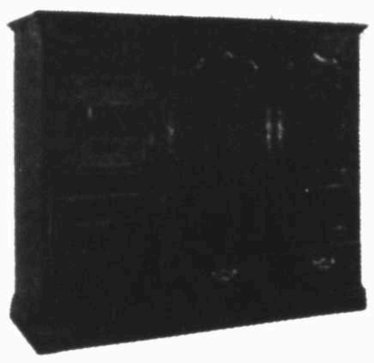

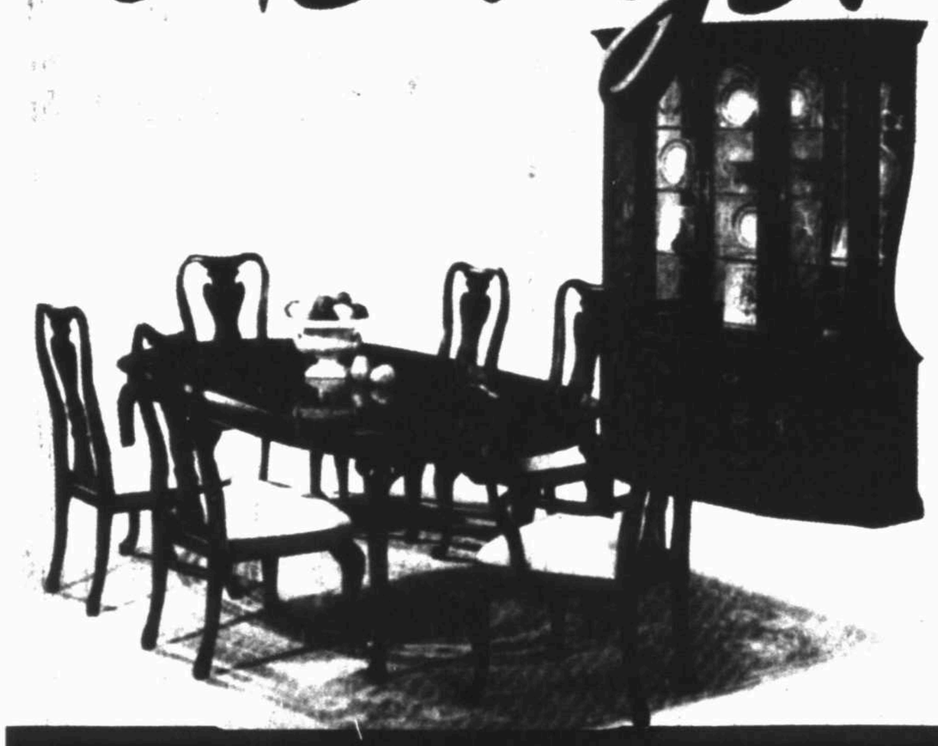

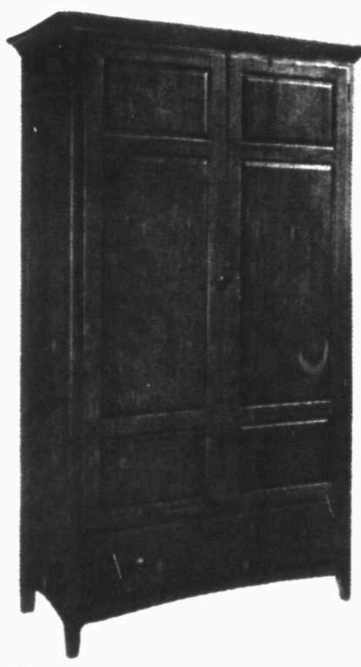

Prime Minister I.K. Gujral is a Janata Dal member, and the turmoil in his party has raised questions about his government's stability. But corruption scandals are so widespread in Indian politics that only the most serious can topple a leader, and only if his direct involvement can be proved.

A missing handgun, juror threats: a U.S. couple on trial in the Caribbean

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent (AP) — A missing handgun, telephone threats to jurors and the seamier side of life for some millionaire yachters in the Caribbean highlight the trial of a white American couple accused of murdering a black boatman.

West Virginians James and Penny Fletcher could hang if they're found guilty. The case has put St. Vincent and the Grenadines in the international spotlight. Not everyone is comfortable with it.

Many locals, known as "Vincys," were enraged by U.S. television reports they felt painted their island as corrupt and incapable of giving the Fletchers a fair trial under a justice system inherited from British colonizers.

Prime Minister James Mitchell — who was urged by President Clinton to ensure the Fletchers got "due process" — recently toured the United States to counter the negative publicity. No one listened, he complained.

"If I were to die tonight I would not make the CNN news," he said late Thursday. "They are not interested in our opinion."

The trial, which began Monday, is the talk of Kingstown. Residents drop what they're doing to hear the latest radio updates and discuss them.

Small crowds gather outside the old stone courthouse, with many offering support to Fletcher's parents, Robert and Kae, as they stoically take seats on the courtroom's wooden benches.

The trial's cast adds to its interest. The prime minister's chief political rival, Ralph Gonsalves, is Jim Fletcher's attorney. Prosecutor Karl Hudson-Phillips was the leading prosecutor in murder trials for the 1983 assassination of Grenada's premier, Maurice Bishop, and his Cabinet.

The victim, Jerome "Jolly" Joseph, was a popular 30-year-old boat taxi driver in Bequia, a northern Grenadine island popular with yachtsmen.

Then there are the accused: James, a 50-year-old former Huntington, W. Va., mining company executive, and his third wife, Penny, 35. The wealthy couple sailed into a storm of controversy in Bequia on their yacht, the Carefree, in August 1996.

In early October, Joseph's body was found floating off Bequia with a .22-caliber bullet through the heart. He had last been seen three days earlier, ferrying the Fletchers to their yacht.

The Fletchers had registered a .22-caliber handgun when they arrived in St. Vincent. The gun has never been found. The couple claimed a deckhand, Benediet Redhead, stole it when he left his job in August.

But two witnesses have testified that Mrs. Fletcher boasted about shooting a gun only four days before Joseph disappeared. Others said the Fletchers tried to escape by sailing away.

"The guilty flee," Hudson-Phillips said.

Defense attorneys suggest the Fletchers were leaving to avoid an angry crowd. Locals had shouted "Murderers!" at their yacht when Joseph's boat was found abandoned, two bullets inside it.

Redhead the deckhand added to the drama Friday. He denied taking the gun and claimed he once caught Mrs. Fletcher hugging Joseph aboard the Carefree.

When he confronted Mrs. Fletcher, he said, she started screaming, accusing him of trying to rape her. Redhead said he left, fearing he would be shot.

Redhead also said he saw Mrs. Fletcher throw a gun at her husband on several occasions.

Jurors haven't been allowed to hear locals' accounts of the Fletchers' hard-drinking ways and public brawls. In a crucial ruling, Eastern Caribbean High Court Judge Dunbar Cenac refused to allow testimony about threats Mrs. Fletcher allegedly made against blacks or a bar fight she instigated.

The trial nearly collapsed Thursday after two of the 12 jurors received telephone threats.

"I know where you're working. I know where you're living. ... If you know what's good for you, you will free the Fletchers," one juror was told by a man with a foreign accent, according to Hudson-Phillips. The second threat came from someone with a local accent.

"Certain external forces are operating on this trial in order to bludgeon" justice, the prosecutor said. He called for a mistrial — which would postpone everything until the next court session in October.

The judge refused, but warned that if there were further attempts to tamper with the jury, he would have "no hesitation" stopping the trial.

Elected Iranian president has public support

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Voters gave him an overwhelming mandate to ease Islamic rule, but Iran's new president faces a tougher audience when he takes office Sunday: the Islamic hardliners who control Parliament.

Mohammad Khatami assumes the presidency with massive public support, having won the May 23 election with 20 million votes, compared to 7 million for the hard-line challenger, Parliament Speaker Ali Akbar Nateq-Nouri.

The vote was seen as an endorsement to relax Islamic strictures and forge ahead with economic reforms to combat high inflation and unemployment.

But the hard-liners, still reeling from their defeat, may use their majority in the 270-seat Majlis, or parliament, to challenge his choice of ministers and stall his policies.

As the Iran News observed, it will be easy for Khatami to nominate ministers who are competent "but, perhaps for political reasons, (they) would not gain a vote of confidence."

Khatami and his aides are giving very little away about who will be nominated for the 22-seat Cabinet, a process expected to begin sometime after Sunday.

Foreign Ministry officials say Iran's ambassador to the United Nations, Kamal Kharrazi, will be nominated to replace the current foreign minister, Ali Akbar Velayati, who backed Nateq-Nouri during the campaign.

There is also speculation that Khatami will appoint the first woman minister since the 1979 Islamic revolution. Newspapers say she could be Faezeh Hashemi, the daughter of the outgoing president, Hashemi Rafsanjani, a Khatami ally.

Insiders say that Tehran's mayor, Gholamhossein Karbaschi, who ran Khatami's presidential campaign, is being considered as interior minister.

The hard-liners have already launched a campaign to discredit Karbaschi. Newspapers have carried reports that at least three municipal officials have been arrested for alleged "misuse of public property" and that Karbaschi may be charged with corruption.

BOMB: FBI finds suicide note in suspect's home

(From 1A)

Mezer denouncing the persecution of Arabs and expresses support for Hamas, ABC reported Friday. Abu Mezer was arrested in 1990, at the age of 15, during the Palestinian uprising and sent to an Israeli prison camp, where he says he learned how to make bombs from other prisoners, ABC said.

NBC, meanwhile, reported that Abu Mezer was stopped in Washington state in January trying to enter the country, but was let go with the requirement that he leave the United States by the end of this month.

Thursday's early morning raid came after a tip from the men's roommate, who flagged down an officer and told him there were bombs in the tenement on the shabby fringe of Brooklyn's Park Slope section.

Abu Mezer told investigators from his hospital bed that he and his accomplices had planned to use the explosives on the subways and elsewhere in New York, according to court papers.

"I think we were close to a disaster here," Kallstrom said. "Whether it was 12 hours away or 18 hours or 24 or 36 I think is irrelevant. I think we were close to a disaster and it didn't happen, and that's the good news."

Cookbook writer to share her weight-loss secrets

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Lifestyle Editor

LUBBOCK — Sally Mosier ate guacamole, chicken-fried chicken with cream gravy, Reuben sandwiches and peach cobbler and lost 122 pounds.

The trick is that she ate low-fat versions of all of those foods, including mock guacamole made from asparagus instead of avocados. Low-fat recipes she found fooled the taste buds so well that they gained notoriety in Lubbock, where she lived. She spoke on a Lubbock radio station on Saturdays and began handing out recipes to listeners. That evolved into putting those recipes into a cookbook called "Expectations," which sold more than 20,000 copies. (The cookbook has also been sold in Midland grocery stores.)

Now the cookbook is in a new printing and Ms. Mosier will have her weight-loss story published in "Food for the Soul" due out in September by Kensington Press.

Ms. Mosier will speak on "Success Through Excellence" in a motivational talk about weight loss at noon today at the Holiday Inn in Odessa, 3001 E. Highway 80 at Parkway. There is no charge to attend.

"This is not a diet, it's a way of life. I lead a normal life, buy all my foods at the supermarket and eat out all of the time," the former West Texan said. "That is the beautiful part of it. I have freedom in eating because it's not restricted."

It all began when Ms. Mosier weighed 276 pounds and she seldom went out of the house. After living for years in isolation, she decided to change her eating habits, emphasizing complex carbohydrates, fiber and low-fat foods. She lost 100 pound in 10 months and went on to lose an additional 42 pounds.

"Then when I went out people would think that my husband was with a different woman!" Ms. Mosier said, laughing. That was five years ago, and Ms. Mosier has kept the weight off. Ms. Mosier said exercise did not become part of her program until she lost 80 pounds. "We have this mindset that — to lose weight — you have to eat right and exercise, eat right and exercise, that's all you hear. Then if you can't exercise for some reason, you feel like it's hopeless. But there is one woman who is 77 with arthritis who lost 80 pounds without exercising. You can lose weight without exercising but exercising is recommended."

The former West Texan now lives in Kansas and was reached by telephone in Lubbock Friday. "I travel a lot now. I feel like I have this calling to help women who are at least 100 pounds overweight," she said, noting that spirituality has played a part in her weight loss. She offers a "Freedom Home Package" that includes a cookbook and phone calls of support. Her cookbook is peppered with Bible scriptures and her Christian-based business also has a spiritual message for those who desire it.

"One lady asked: 'Are you going to convert me?' I said: 'Yes, I am. I'm going to convert you to a low-fat diet,' " Ms. Mosier said. "A very large part of my personal trek was the spiritual aspect. A lot of godly principles can be used by saint or sinner. People are three-fold beings — mind, body and spirit. Some women want us to pray with them and they really rely on that."

She said she tried to take traditional recipes, "the things you would serve your families and find low-fat versions that still taste as good.

"When I started out I had no recipe book. The ladies I dealt with were working moms on a budget. We would find a good recipe and pass it on. It just took over. Now I have a pasta salad recipe that deli managers have added as a low-fat selection. It sells out. I have a low-fat cake made with Butter Buds that is downright decadent."

Her best fat burning tip: "Eat no more than 10 grams of fat a day to lose weight. Eat no more than 30 grams not to gain, and if you go crazy and eat 65 grams of fat don't immediately let the guilt set in and give up. Start over."

BIBLE: Some students disappointed about Bible course loss economics," she said with a sigh.

More than just the rejection of the curriculum, she indicated she was disappointed "that they didn't care what the kids wanted."

Miss McConnell was also looking forward to having Mrs. Briggs again as a teacher. "I was in Mrs. Briggs' class last year — her class was really challenging."

Melissia Reeves, 16, considered the Bible course "essential" for her education.

"I am going to go into the music ministry," said Ms. Reeves. "This just means I am going to have to find some other way to educate myself."

She is disappointed by the squabbling that took place over the implementation of the Bible curricula. "They should be able to agree on things," said Ms. Reeves.

Judy Green, junior counselor at Lee High School, said 28 students had preregistered last spring for the elective social studies course.

"We don't know how many more would have signed up at Rebel Muster," Ms. Green said. "There were several kids who really wanted to take the course."

Ms. Green said one student she spoke to was very upset by the board's decision. "She came to me in tears."

"She was very upset, this was the course she had always dreamed of taking."

"It is hard for them to understand," said Ms. Green. She added that the students could choose from psychology, social studies and philosophy as other social studies electives.

"If we had known this prior to Rebel Muster (registration) we could have handled this better," said Ms. Green. "It is an imposition on students."

Dennis Stratton, Instructional Services Director for MISD, said that after the vote, "We contacted each one (students) individually, and explained the situation."

Stratton said he felt the Bible class created "too much controversy."

MISD Director of Social Studies Patty Smith said, "I am disappointed for teachers not having the opportunity to teach the course, but I am mostly disappointed for students."

Ms. Smith added, "They are not going to be able to learn about a critical element of history."

But, she said the defeat of the Bible curriculum was an example of the democratic process in action. "There was a real deliberation of the issues by board members — that is at the heart of the democratic process. We've obviously shown we are responsive to public input."

Ms. Smith said the defeat of the curriculum was a disappointment, but that her department was moving forward with new projects.

RANK: Latest school 'report card' not impressive to everyone

(From 1A)

Both Lee High School and Midland High School were considered low performing in 1995, because of the dropout rate.

"Exemplary" is the highest ranking in the survey followed by "recognized," "acceptable" and "low performing."

Despite Moses' upbeat comments, the latest report card was less than impressive to some.

"I applaud parents, teachers and students for their hard work in improving test scores and campus ratings. However, it is hard for me (to) understand how the system can rate a school "acceptable" when almost two out of three of its students are failing," said the Rev. Raymond Bryant of Putting Children First, which supports allowing use of tax money to pay private school tuition for students who opt against public schools.

The acceptable ranking requires at least 35 percent of all students at a district or campus and those in each student group (black, Hispanic, white and economically disadvantaged) to pass each subject tested on the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills. That's up from 30 percent last year.

The dropout rate also must be 6 percent or less, and attendance must be at least 94 percent.

A total of 644 school districts and 3,612 campuses were rated acceptable this year. Last year, 790 districts and 4,127 campuses had that rating.

"If the students made these same grades, they would be held back a year," said Bryant, pastor at St. Paul's African Methodist Episcopal Church in Dallas. "That is why ... a parent should have the right to choose a school, public or private, that lives up to their own standards."

While pleased with improvements thus far, Moses said, officials aren't satisfied and want continued gains. But he cautioned that as accountability standards get more stringent, it's questionable whether improvement can continue at the same pace.

The accountability system's highest rating, exemplary, requires a passing rate of at least 90 percent on the TAAS, a dropout rate of no more than 1 percent and 94 percent attendance.

The next tier is recognized. It requires at least a 75 percent passing rate on the TAAS, a dropout rate of 3.5 percent or less and 94 percent attendance.

A total of 320 school districts were recognized this year, compared with 209 last year. This year, 1,592 campuses were recognized, compared with last year's 1,309.

One component of the accountability system, dropout rates, is being looked at by TEA, Moses said. A state audit last year said an oversight by the agency resulted in a reported dropout rate in 1994 that was less than half the actual rate.

Next year, school districts will be asked to give a more comprehensive report of students who leave school, officials said.

Figures released Friday by Moses show 29,207 dropouts in the 1995-96 school year, compared with 29,918 the previous year.

That means 1.8 percent of students in grades seven through 12 dropped out in one year. It is estimated that 10.1 percent of students who entered seventh grade will drop out before getting a diploma.

The state examined 1,043 school districts and 6,538 campuses. Some rankings have not yet been released, including those for year-round schools. TAAS performance for 1.5 million students was included in the ratings.

STREETS: Preparation for work went on throughout the week

easier for Saturday's work," Saunders said. "We've installed posts where signs will go, put temporary tabs on the street to check out our new dimension, and seal-coated it so we can have new pavement to paint the stripes on."

On Saturday, sign, striping and signal crews will remove all one-way signs, and add crosswalks and signal posts to the area at about 7:30 a.m.

"We've been out there most of the week doing things so that the transition is much easier," Saunders said. "Our intention is that this area will have two-way traffic by Sunday."

Some of the changes include a signal light at the corner of Garfield St. and Louisiana Ave. Saunders added that there are no immediate plans for a change in the speed limits.

The direction change was approved at a July 22 City Council meeting.

"We were asked to investigate the possibilities and see if it was warranted to go back to two-way traffic in that area," Saunders said.

The traffic engineering department conducted a survey among the area's occupants to see how they would favor changing the traffic direction.

"There were no complaints. The (businesses) in the area just asked us to look into it and see if we could convert it and get the benefits of both directions instead of one," Saunders said.

A survey indicated that 80 percent of people polled favored the changes.

"The two-way change makes it easier for people to utilize all directions on both streets," Saunders said. Before, drivers "had to go around the offices and then turn back. This will definitely benefit the businesses around the stretch."

PLAN: Group meets to discuss highway futures

(From 1A)

Spring-San Angelo and Midland-Odessa, but this time expressed a concern for highway improvement throughout West Texas.

Perry noted that it would be nice if the state were able to reclaim some of the $300 million in gasoline tax that had been diverted for uses other than road construction. MOTRAN has estimated that it will cost approximately $81 million to construct a four-lane highway connecting Lamesa to Interstate 10, through Midland-Odessa.

"The Texas DOT will meet in Midland-Odessa next April, and we will have an opportunity once again to make our wish list known," said Perry.

He said MOTRAN would continue to pursue its plan to build a highway system linking the Pacific coast of Mexico and West Texas. The trade corridor, La Entrada al Pacifico (Gateway to the Pacific) will be designated with special signs within the next two months, Perry said, noting that such a route from Presidio to Midland-Odessa would cut almost two days off shipping time which now must go through El Paso. Perry said MOTRAN also would continue to work to obtain four-lane access between Midland and San Angelo and to improve railroad transportation into the Permian Basin, because two major railroads would be "almost essential" to making Midland-Odessa into a major industrial-warehousing area.

TEEN: Blood alcohol level was above legal limit the Peace George Zimmerman pronounced the two dead at the scene at 3:18 a.m.

Two other passengers, Jeremy Cruz, 18, and Ky Lee Edwards, 19, also sustained injuries from the collision. Cruz was the only passenger in the vehicle who was wearing a seat belt, officials said.

The case remained under investigation Friday, authorities stated.

District Attorney Al Schorre said Friday evening that he had not seen the report that indicates DeLaO's alcohol analysis.

"I will eventually see the report after all the evidence is totally gathered," Schorre said.

Department of Public Safety Investigator Don Williams told the Reporter-Telegram in a Tuesday interview that if the test results indicate that DeLaO was drunk at the time of the accident, the teenager could be charged with intoxication manslaughter.

According to the Texas Penal Code, "a person commits an offense if the person operated a motor vehicle in a public place ... and is intoxicated and by reason of intoxication causes the death of another by accident or mistake."

This offense, officials said, is a second-degree felony.

Israel arrests dozens of suspects, searches for bombers' identities

RAMALLAH, West Bank (AP) — Raiding homes and leading suspects away blindfolded and bound, Israeli soldiers arrested scores of Palestinians on Friday, detaining anyone suspected of links to the culprits in the deadly attack on a Jerusalem market.

The search for militants and their backers proceeded Friday after tests showed Israel was mistaken in its initial identification of the two suicide bombers. Wednesday's double blasts killed 15 people, including the two bombers, and wounded more than 150.

After the bombings, Israeli troops detained relatives of two young Palestinian men from the West Bank town of Dahariya who disappeared 15 months ago. But blood and DNA tests of the families and of the bombers' corpses showed the Dahariya men were not the bombers, authorities said Friday.

Soldiers moved in on the West Bank on Friday, searching homes, confiscating material suspected of inciting violence against Israel and taking 51 Palestinians into custody.

Two Israeli soldiers load a blindfolded Palestinian onto an army truck for detention in an undisclosed location in the West Bank early Friday morning.

Videotapes released by the army showed the blindfolded suspects being hustled into trucks, hands tied in front of them, and taken to undisclosed locations.

A total of 79 Palestinians have been arrested since the bombing, which anonymously distributed leaflets claimed was carried out by the militant Islamic group Hamas. Israel closed the West Bank and Gaza Strip, barring tens of thousands of Palestinians from jobs in Israel and preventing travel between autonomous towns in the West Bank. The Israeli-Palestinian peace talks also were suspended, only days after both sides agreed to resume the talks after a four-month impasse.

Palestinian Information Minister Yasser Abed Rabbo denounced Israel's crackdown Friday, saying it was "irresponsible" and would only "drive the situation more and more toward the abyss."

"We have taken measures, in the past months and weeks, to guarantee maximum security," Abed Rabbo said. "We have prevented many incidents from taking place. The Americans know this, and the Israeli government knows this."

The punitive actions will only backfire, Abed Rabbo said. "We can only say this: There will never be peace and security under such collective measures against a whole nation," he said.

But Israel's army chief-of-staff, Lt. Gen. Amnon Shahak, said Friday that Israel plans more arrests.

"Since our working assumption is that Hamas or the Islamic Jihad are behind this attack, we are arresting anyone that can help us solve who sent the bombers and who is behind it," Shahak told reporters Friday.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said he would send troops into autonomous Palestinian areas if necessary to stop such attacks — a threat Palestinians called a "declaration of war."

Israel has also ordered the arrest of Palestinian police chief Brig. Gen. Ghazi Jabali for allegedly ordering attacks against Israeli targets, and asked the United States and other donors to suspend aid to the Palestinian Authority.

"We need to make sure that Arafat has a clear, sharp interest in preventing terrorism," Netanyahu said in an interview published in the Yediot Ahronot newspaper.

Wednesday's bombing was the first major attack since Netanyahu came to power in May 1996. The only previous bombing during his tenure was a March 21 attack on a Tel Aviv cafe in which three Israelis and the bomber were killed.

A new leaflet signed by Hamas and distributed Friday in the West Bank said the attack "was a practical response to the Zionist practices against our masses and our people that have escalated since the terrorist Benjamin Netanyahu took over the government."

The leaflet said posters put up in June by a Jewish settler depicting the Muslim prophet Mohammed as a pig were "over the limits." The incident provoked riots in the West Bank and protests in Islamic countries worldwide.

"The whole world condemned such acts and it is not fair to ask our people just to sit silent against these provocative crimes that harmed the feeling of the Muslims," the leaflet said.

Troops kill 31 Kurdish insurgents in Turkey

DIYARBAKIR, Turkey (AP) — Turkish troops killed 31 Kurdish rebels in the southeast Friday, regional authorities said.

Two village guards also died helping the troops, who were operating in the provinces of Hakkari, Van, Diyarbakir and Siirt, the regional governor's office said.

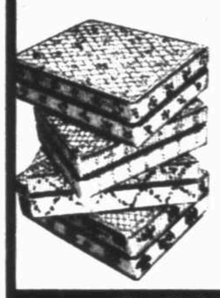

The rebels stepped up their attacks as well, killing a villager in Siirt on Thursday night for refusing them food, the Anatolia news agency said.

The military intensified its operations in the southeast after launching a massive cross-border operation in May to crack down on rebel bases in northern Iraq.

The rebels are fighting for increased autonomy for Kurds in eastern Turkey; more than 28,000 people have been killed since their insurgency began in 1984.

How to "Legally Steal" A New Air Conditioner

For $570 Less (Because of Record Cold Temperatures...)

(Read On... only the first 72 to order can take advantage.)

By: Robert Reece

This is for you if your central air conditioner is over nine years old...or if it need repairs...or if you want to quit overpaying your electric bill by $30 to $100 a month.

Claire's is over-stocked with inventory of premium central air conditioners in the four most popular sizes used here in the Permian Basin. The reason for this situation is the coldest spring temperatures in thirty years!

Tim Claire, the general manager says, " We are almost eighty units behind where we planned if this was a normal spring. We must sell at least 72 air conditioners to free up business capital for the summer season. During this special event each air conditioner will be sold for hundreds below their normal price." Tim said, "If you think you will need to replace your old air conditioner this summer or next, then you should be able to do very well for yourself at these prices."

With credit approval, financing is available from major lending institutions for this event as low as 5.9% for 24 months (with approved credit) with no down payment required.

Calls will be taken in the order they are received to schedule free surveys to measure the most efficient size unit for your home. These are provided as a Free Courtesy and there is no obligation to buy.

Due to the anticipated response to this event, Mr. Claire requests that you understand all sales are on a first-come first-serve basis...if the correct size air conditioners available for your home are all gone, he will not be able to sell you a unit at the event price.

For your convenience the phones are answered 24-Hours a day and you can schedule your free survey during the evening or throughout the weekend.

It is recommended that you call as soon as possible to schedule your free survey.

Swiss celebrate country's anniversary under cloud of criticism

GENEVA (AP) — Swiss celebrated their country's birthday Friday with traditional yodelers, bonfires and fireworks but looming international criticism over Switzerland's wartime past clouded the festive air.

The neutral nation, an enemy toward none, has been short on friends as it battles accusations over its dealings with Nazi Germany: Charges that its strict banking secrecy laws hid Nazi-looted gold and kept the heirs of Holocaust victims from finding assets have prompted national soul-searching on what it means to be Swiss.

"The red passport with the Swiss cross has lost much of its gloss," said Sigi Feigel, a respected Swiss Jewish leader. "Our non-Jewish compatriots are discovering for thefirst time what it means to be singled out as a people."

On the 149th anniversary of Swiss confederation, Friday's rainfall matched the meditative mood at many First of August celebrations.

"I'm celebrating because it's a day off — but not because I'm patriotic," Marianne Kirchhofer, a 44-year-old mother of two from Basel, said as she prepared for festivities at home after the local bonfire was rained out.

"The debate about the Nazi links hasn't affected our celebrations today one bit — although it's always in the background."

A singer in a yodeling group defended his country.

"We Swiss aren't as bad as they make out," he said, wearing a traditional embroidered jacket during an interview on Swiss television.

"We hear nothing but criticism and it makes me sad," his female companion added. Neither was identified.

The days when the Swiss could look down from their Alpine heights at the turmoils of the rest of the world are gone. Now, they sometimes can't seem to get anything right.

Swiss banks last month dropped their curtain of secrecy to publish the names of nearly 2,000 dormant World War II-era accounts, only to have the effort backfire. Jewish groups protested that too few Jews were on the list, and were appalled to see the names of apparent Nazis among the depositors.

Others noted that with such files in their possession, the bankers should have been able to find the depositors' heirs with ease a long time ago.

Switzerland found itself in the embarrassing company of dictatorships on Wednesday when President Clinton granted sanctuary to a fired Swiss bank guard, who fled what he said was persecution and death threats after he rescued Holocaust-era documents from a paper shredder.

And a New York judge is considering allowing Holocaust survivors to file a $20 billion class-action lawsuit against Swiss banks.

Hanns Meier, 69, from central Switzerland, said it has been a painful experience.

"I'm from the wartime generation," he said. "I'm proud of being Swiss. The criticism hurts me to the heart because of my parents."

Nazi hunter Simon Wiesenthal provided some cause for cheer Friday when he urged Jews to moderate their criticism.

"Only if we (Jews) handle the matter with fairness, we can expect fairness," Wiesenthal told The Associated Press. "The whole of Switzerland, all Swiss, must not be held responsible."

On Friday, a small group of neo-Nazi skinheads tried to crash the holiday celebration at Ruetli meadow, near Lucerne in the heart of Switzerland. They gave a Nazi-style salute and were temporarily detained by police.

In Bern, lawmaker Francois Loeb set free 1,997 balloons from the national Parliament and called for more unity and compassion in society.

Swiss President Arnold Koller used his First of August speech to appeal to the Swiss people to pull together "with confidence, solidarity and with an open mind."

"Then little Switzerland will have a great future as well as a great past," he said in a television address.

Even so, Switzerland is in its seventh year of recession with no end in sight. Talks on improving access to European Union markets are in crisis.

The strength of the dollar and British pound against the Swiss franc has helped exports and boosted the beleaguered tourist industry. But wet weather has dashed hopes of a bumper summer for hotels.

Many commentators say the Swiss are to blame for their isolation. By staying out of the United Nations and European Union, as part of their tradition of neutrality, they didn't manage to win friends in the right places.

"Switzerland is unknown to the rest of the world," wrote Frank Meyer, a columnist in the weekly SonntagsBlick. "Only the myth of Switzerland is known — the Matterhorn mountain, chocolate, watches and banking secrecy."

"For decades we used this myth to promote ourselves. And now it's turned against us."

Thousands of refugees flee into Thailand

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian war refugees fled by the thousands into neighboring Thailand on Friday, escaping a rocket barrage by forces of coup leader Hun Sen. Rockets exploded within 300 yards of a refugee camp.

In Phnom Penh, Hun Sen's new government moved to consolidate his power, organizing a mock political convention with the apparent intent of dividing the opposition and warning Asian neighbors to stay out of Cambodia's affairs.

Rockets pummeled two northern bases controlled by forces loyal to the deposed co-premier, Prince Norodom Ranariddh, whom Hun Sen unseated in a violent July 5-6 coup.

The shelling near the border town of Poipet sent about 7,000 people fleeing into Thailand, although about half of them returned later when fighting eased.

Thousands of civilians are clustered along the frontier, with Thailand allowing entry to those in the line of fire. Some of Friday's fell near one camp on the Cambodian side, although no casualties were reported.

Poipet came under the control of Hun Sen's better-equipped forces Wednesday. Ranariddh's loyalists have been driven north to the border since Hun Sen's troops forced them from Phnom Penh.

Cease-fires have been reached in several places, but the attacks Friday indicated Hun Sen had lost patience with holdouts.

The fighting came on the eve of a visit by the foreign ministers of Indonesia, the Philippines and Thailand to present proposals to Hun Sen aimed at restoring stability.

The diplomats represent the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, which indefinitely postponed Cambodia's scheduled July 23 entry as a member to protest Hun Sen's coup. The move broke the regional block's longstanding policy of not interfering in the internal affairs of neighboring states.

ASEAN and most countries recognize Ranariddh as co-premier. His party won U.N.-organized elections in 1993, but Hun Sen bullied his way into a coalition by threatening war.

Foreign Minister Ung Huot warned the delegation not to interfere in Cambodia's business.

The mission was welcome "but no country in the world wants others to interfere in its domestic affairs," Ung Huot said. "What is not interfering in our internal affairs can be accepted by us."

In a bid to maintain the appearance of power sharing, Hun Sen has picked Ung Huot, a member of Ranariddh's royalist party, to replace the prince as co-premier.

In a similar move, Sam Rainsy, the exiled president of Cambodia's most critical opposition party, was deposed Thursday in a party congress opponents believe was rigged by Hun Sen.

The new leader, Kong Mony, said he would break an alliance the Khmer Nation Party had with Ranariddh to challenge Hun Sen in 1998 elections. Rainsy's supporters called the move illegal.

Fearing for their lives, Rainsy and other prominent opponents of Hun Sen have fled the country. At least 40 of Ranariddh's loyalists are believed to have been executed after the coup.

Human rights groups said the body of one of Ranariddh's bodyguards, who had apparently been hanged earlier in the week, was unearthed Thursday.

With confession, police still unable to find body

Associated Press

LAKEWOOD CLUB, Mich. (AP) — Murder suspect Dean Metcalfe made a deal with prosecutors: He'd lead them to the body of a missing 11-year-old girl in exchange for at least a chance of parole someday.

But investigators have found no sign of her.

And prosecutors say the deal is off.

"When he made the confession, I thought, finally, the family could get some rest," said Shawn Chester, a volunteer who missed work as a carpet installer to help search for the little girl, Andre Bosse. "Well, what a blow."

Andre was abducted the morning of June 17 from her home in Lakewood Club, a western Michigan village of 700 people about 60 miles northwest of Grand Rapids. The girl — an only child and a tomboy who loved the Chicago Bulls — was alone; her parents were working at a leather tannery nearby.

Witnesses said they saw Metcalfe, a 44-year-old utility worker, leaving his home about the same time Andre disappeared. Metcalfe lived a few miles away from the Bosses, and his daughter was Andre's best friend.

Metcalfe was arrested two days later 160 miles away in eastern Michigan on unrelated sexual-assault charges.

On July 7, he signed a confession saying he sexually assaulted Andre and shot her in the head. He agreed to take police to the body and plead guilty to second-degree murder, which would carry a very slim chance of parole. First-degree murder carries an automatic life sentence with no parole.

Metcalfe was flown back across the state to Lapeer County's Metamora Township, where police concentrated on 20 heavily wooded acres near a Boy Scout camp. They used dogs, helicopters and boats, but found no trace of the girl.

Metcalfe also recalled that immediately after shooting Andre, he drove past a slate-colored house with gables, garages and a circular driveway. But police found no sign of such a place.

By July 11, Metcalfe said he couldn't remember exactly where he put Andre's body.

Clinton lifts ban on advanced weapons sales

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton lifted a 20-year-old ban on the sale of high-performance aircraft and other advanced weapons to Latin America.

The move on Friday to approve arms transfers on a case-by-case basis gives a green light to Chile, which is considering buying as many as two dozen American F-16s to replace its own aging squadron.

"In light of the fact that the hemisphere is now almost exclusively democratic, it makes sense not to have what amounts to a unilateral U.S. embargo," said Jim Dobbins, the National Security Council's top Latin American expert.

White House press secretary Mike McCurry described the president's action as putting U.S. policy in Latin America on par with that toward other regions. It "will be implemented in a way that serves our objective of promoting stability, restraint and cooperation in the region," he said.

But Rep. Nita Lowey, D-N.Y., who introduced a bill this week to make the ban permanent, accused Clinton of bowing to the financial interests of defense contractors seeking to expand their markets. "This administration must not allow McDonnell Douglas and Lockheed Martin to dictate our foreign policy," Lowey said.

Contending that an arms race will result and rob scarce funds from regional social needs, she added: "Our foreign policy should promote democracy and stability .... Arms sales will undermine these goals."

While stipulating that the Chilean purchase would be the first to be considered — and "considered favorably" — under the new policy, Dobbins said the policy would not be applied in Peru and Ecuador, which are engaged in a border dispute.

Clinton weighs whether to use new line-item veto power

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton has his first big chance to run a red pencil through objectionable items in legislation from Congress. He may not want to use it just yet.

Seventy-nine items in the giant tax-cut bill that Clinton will sign Tuesday are open to the line-item veto, provisions that offer special breaks to everyone from selected gas-station owners to New England makers of apple cider. He also could strike out spending items in the companion bill to balance the budget by 2002.

But the tax-and-budget package was the product of arduous negotiations between Clinton and Republicans in Congress, and he might not want to create a bad aftertaste by axing selected items after the fact.

Furthermore, there's a good chance that Clinton's veto would be the subject of a constitutional challenge, so the administration wants to choose its first target carefully.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich said he didn't expect Clinton to use his veto authority on the two bills.

"Since it didn't come up, and we weren't warned about it, I think it would violate the (agreement's) spirit," Gingrich said.

White House spokesman Mike McCurry said Clinton would abide by his agreements with Congress, but that he wouldn't hesitate to use his veto power if warranted.

Still, administration officials showed an inclination toward accommodation.

"This is not 'let's look for something to veto.' This is 'let's look for how to make it work,'" said communications director Ann Lewis.

Presidents have been seeking the line-item veto since the days of Ulysses S. Grant.

Clinton became the first to get it when Congress passed legislation that took effect Jan. 1 allowing him to strike specific spending items or tax breaks that affect 100 or fewer taxpayers. His only other opportunity to use it was on a disaster-relief bill that Congress approved in June.

Under the law, Congress gives Clinton a list of tax provisions that are subject to potential veto, and the president has until five days after signing a bill to cancel tax or spending items that he finds objectionable.

The law is designed to discourage pork-barrel spending on legislators' pet projects, and Clinton has promised to use it "wisely" and "whenever appropriate."

Even GOP leaders in Congress acknowledge that little extras can find their way into tax and spending bills.

"Any time you have a tax bill, someone's going to slide (in) some goodies," said Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio, chairman of the House Budget Committee.

The new tax breaks subject to veto include provisions that would benefit the Big Three carmakers, New England apple-cider manufacturers, real estate investment trusts, Mississippi county clerks, even software giant Microsoft.

Clinton basks as unemployment hits 24-year low

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's jobless rate dropped to 4.8 percent in July, matching a 24-year low. President Clinton claimed credit from the Rose Garden, but Wall Street worried an overheated economy will push inflation higher.

"The strategy of balancing the budget, while investing in our people and selling more American products around the world, has helped to produce sustained prosperity for Americans," Clinton told reporters.

Financial markets didn't share the euphoria. A late-July rally, which had carried the Dow Jones average of industrial stocks to six records in seven sessions, fizzled for a second day Friday.

The Dow average finished down 28.57 points to close at 8,194.04, mostly recovered from a 120-point slide. It rose to a record 8,254.89 on Wednesday, up nearly 30 percent since mid-April and almost 7 percent in July alone.

The bond market didn't recover. As demand weakened, the yield on the benchmark 30-year Treasury bond shot to 6.46 percent, up from a 17-month low of 6.29 percent the day before.

"Probably the summer rally is behind us, at least for now," said economist Sung Won Sohn of Norwest Corp. in Minneapolis. "Financial markets have probably been overly optimistic. ... Today they're waking up. Times are good, but not that good."

The unemployment report showed wage growth stalled in July. Average hourly earnings were unchanged at a seasonally adjusted $12.23. But sooner or later, the scarcity of qualified workers has to put upward pressure on wages, eventually forcing companies to raise prices, Sohn said.

"I don't see any major acceleration (of inflation) but probably the best news is behind us," he said.

With inflation at bay, the Fed has left short-term interest rates unchanged since March. Sohn said policy-makers probably will leave them on hold at their Aug. 19 meeting. But now there's a 50-50 chance they'll raise them at their Sept. 30 gathering, he said.

The July jobless rate marked a decline from 5 percent in June and matched the May rate. It hasn't been lower since November 1973. Businesses added 316,000 jobs, roughly 100,000 more than economists predicted, after a gain of 228,000 in June.

"The job market ... is the tightest it has been in decades. It is by and large a sellers market and I think American workers haven't quite figured that out yet in terms of their wage demands," said economist Allen Sinai of Primark Decision Economics.

Meanwhile, a report from the National Association of Purchasing Management showed manufacturing expanded in July to the healthiest level in nearly three years. The association's index of business activity rose to 58.6 percent from 55.7 percent in June.

Analysts said that's a sign the economy is rebounding after a slowdown that cut growth from a robust 4.9 percent annual rate in the first quarter to a mild 2.2 percent in the second.

Clinton announces FCC nomination

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton has nominated the son of retired Army Gen. Colin Powell to sit on the five-member Federal Communications Commission.

Michael Powell, chief of staff of the Justice Department's Antitrust Division, would succeed FCC Commissioner Rachelle Chong. Her term expired June 30, but she is expected to serve until Powell is confirmed. Both Chong and Powell are Republicans.

Senate Commerce Committee Chairman John McCain, R-Ariz., pushed for Powell to get the post, which is subject to Senate confirmation.

On Friday, the committee, which oversees FCC nominations, received the paperwork, which was dated July 31, the committee's spokeswoman said.

Last week, government sources said FCC General Counsel Bill Kennard, a Democrat, was the likely choice to replace Chairman Reed Hundt, who has said he intends to step down as soon as a successor is confirmed.

Asked whether there was a reason why Kennard's designation hasn't been made, White House spokesman Michael McCurry would only say: "It was not ready to go."

Kennard would be the first black to head the FCC. He has the support of industry and public-interest groups and some minority organizations. Still, his confirmation proceeding could be rocky.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., and the Congressional Black Caucus are pushing their own candidate, Ralph Everett, who also is black. And, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., could try to block Kennard's nomination because of an FCC action that forced an Asheville, N.C., broadcaster off the air.

Of the FCC's five seats, three now are designated to be held by Democrats. One of the two Republican seats is vacant. Except for FCC Commissioner Susan Ness, all the other commissioners will be new once all the nominees are confirmed.

The "new" FCC will continue the difficult job of trying to deregulate the telecommunications industries so that competition evolves, rates go down and consumer choices go up. The FCC's decisions will shape communications policy into the 21st century.

Both Everett and Kennard are generally well regarded on Capitol Hill and have reputations as consensus builders.

Everett was once counsel to the Senate Commerce Committee under Hollings and is now a partner in the Washington law firm of Paul, Hastings, Janofsky & Walker.

Before joining the FCC in 1993, Kennard was a partner at the law firm of Verner, Liipfert, Benhard, McPherson and Hand and was assistant general counsel for the National Association of Broadcasters.

In May, Clinton nominated Harold Furchtgott-Roth, the House Commerce Committee's chief economist, to a Republican seat that has been vacant for more than a year. At the same time, he nominated Kennard to be a FCC commissioner.

Now, the White House is expected to nominate Gloria Tristani, a commissioner of the New Mexico State Corporation Commission, a regulatory body. She would fill one of the Democratic seats.

Hassle-free airport parking still available to members of Congress

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — As members of Congress jet out of Washington to enjoy a month's vacation, there's one thing they don't have to worry about: parking at the airport — or even paying for it.

Thanks to a special "Restricted Parking — Authorized Users Only" parking lot tucked within strolling distance of all terminals at National Airport, senators and representatives get to bypass that frantic ritual of circling drab parking garages as minutes tick away to takeoff.

They don't have to keep tabs on those blue tickets, lug bulky luggage from parking lot hinterlands or set aside a hunk of their travel budget so they can pay whopping parking fees upon return — $28 a day in comparable public lots.

"If we did that, we'd have to hawk our cars," griped J.D. Leverett, a Springfield, Va., man who parked in an hourly lot to pick up a friend. His $4 bought him one hour of up-close parking.

On Friday, the first day of the congressional recess, there sat Sen. Phil Gramm's car in the restricted lot. The Republican's mammoth Chevy Tahoe is easy to identify: Its Texas license plate reads "Senate 1."

> 'They need all the help they can get with their hectic schedules.'
> — Guy Vander Jagt, former congressman

A red Ford Thunderbird sporting Mississippi plates and a "Saxby Chambliss, U.S. Congress" bumper sticker likewise had taken advantage of the prime location. Chambliss is a Republican congressman from Georgia. A few cars with diplomat tags also were scattered about.

"We've just accepted it, we've lived here a long time," said Warren Colbe of Fairfax, Va., holding a blue ticket as he searched for his car.

To Guy Vander Jagt, who served 28 years as a congressman from Michigan, the special access — which is also available at Dulles Airport — is "one of the best investments taxpayers can make."

"They need all the help they can get with their hectic schedules," Vander Jagt said of his former colleagues as he parked his slick forest-green convertible Jaguar before heading to Terminal B. As a former member of Congress, Vander Jagt — like diplomats and Supreme Court justices — also has access.

The privilege started when the federal government ran the two airports. It continued when an airport authority board assumed control in 1987.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., tried to persuade Congress to do away with the perk in 1994. His bill failed, 53-44.

In the meantime, National Airport has undergone a $1 billion renovation, expanding the main terminal into a stunning cathedral of windows and Jefferson domes. But as a consequence, 36 of the 124 reserved spaces were displaced.

Top leaders meet, talk oil

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton met with Azerbaijani President Heidar Aliyev on Friday and underscored U.S. interest in promoting stability in the troubled Caspian Sea region and developing its rich energy resources.

Separately, Vice President Al Gore and Aliyev presided over the signing of contracts between the State Oil Company of Azerbaijan and four U.S. oil giants: Exxon, Mobil, Chevron and Amoco.

"By working with Azerbaijan to tap the Caspian's resources, we not only help Azerbaijan prosper, we also help diversify our energy supply and strengthen our nation's security," White House press secretary Mike McCurry said in a statement.

He said Clinton stressed the importance of early resolution of the conflict in Nagorno-Karabakh, an ethnic Armenian enclave inside Azerbaijan that has declared its independence.

"Only through peace can the states of the Caucasus develop their full potential," McCurry said.

Anti-marijuana efforts failing, NORML asserts

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Efforts to control marijuana are failing despite billions of dollars in government spending, a group that supports legalization says in a new report.

"What most Americans are concerned about is violent crime," Keith Stroup, executive director of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws, said Friday. "They're not worried about whether some adult is sitting down the street smoking a joint in their home."

In a report to be released Saturday — the 60th anniversary of a federal law outlawing marijuana — the organization said nearly 600,000 people were arrested on marijuana charges in 1995, most of them for possession.

The group also is known as NORML.

Stroup said the figures show anti-marijuana efforts are failing despite a federal budget of nearly $16 billion and additional spending by state and local governments in the war against drugs.

More than 65 million people have smoked marijuana in their lifetimes, including nearly 20 million people in the past year, he said.

Stroup described marijuana as the third most popular recreational drug behind alcohol and tobacco — neither of which is banned.

Federal officials disagreed with the report's assertions.

"This is a dangerous message that is replete with omissions of the reality of what marijuana and other drugs do to you," said Bob Weiner, spokesman for the National Office of Drug Control Policy.

Weiner said he hadn't read the report, but added that NORML makes the same argument year after year while ignoring pertinent information about the harmful effects of using marijuana and other controlled substances.

"I would be very leery of taking seriously a report by an organization whose sole agenda and bias is to legalize drugs," Weiner said.

But Stroup contended that punishment for marijuana crimes — including life in prison without parole in some instances — is often more severe than the sentences handed down to convicted murderers and rapists.

Defending champ Jumps out to early lead in Men's City Golf Championship

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

Golfers around Midland are desperately trying to get hold of the name of the medication that Ronnie Jumper is taking these days.

Jumper, the defending champion of the Midland Men's City Golf Championship, kept taking medication until it kicked in Friday at the Hogan Park Golf Course. And it finally did the job.

Jumper fired a four-under par 66 to take a one-stroke lead over Dub Huckabee, who was the third-place finisher a year ago in this extremely talented city field.

He grabbed the lead by stuffing birdies on five of the last six holes he played to finish with a fine 30 on the back side while Huckabee could only manage three birdies in his last five holes.

Jumper is suffering from gout in a wrist and it hampered his play early on.

"The wrist got better as the day went on," Jumper said. "I've got the gout real bad and the medicine

DALLAS COWBOYS TRAINING CAMP

Cornerback report: Smith not hurt; two backups out

Associated Press

AUSTIN — The good news is Kevin Smith, the high-dollar cornerback for the Dallas Cowboys, is OK.

The bad news is the two cornerbacks vying to back up Smith and Deion Sanders are not.

Second-year cornerback Wendell Davis underwent surgery Friday to repair torn cartilage in his left knee.

Team trainers had feared finding damage also to his anterior cruciate ligament, but the surgery turned up no other problems and Davis was given two to three weeks to return. Initially, trainers had feared him being out up to seven weeks.

Kenny Wheaton, a rookie corner who had impressed coaches and was challenging for the third spot with Davis, was expected to miss from four to six weeks with a separated right shoulder.

Wheaton was injured while tackling 235-pound Chad Levitt of Oakland in Thursday night's scrimmage, a 12-6 Raiders' victory.

Cowboys coach Barry Switzer said the injury occurred because Wheaton used bad technique.

"Instead of tackling with his head up and his chest, he put the point of his shoulder into a guy who outweighs him by at least 40 pounds," Switzer said. "When he came off the field, I said, 'Son, that's not the way to do it.'"

Smith also sprained his right ankle in the scrimmage but will be fine, according to team trainers. However, Smith probably won't play in Sunday night's preseason game against Oakland at Texas Stadium.

That leaves rookie Montrell Williams, Artis Houston and safety Charlie Williams to play cornerback for the Cowboys in Sunday's game and in training camp practices. Houston suffered a thigh bruise in Thursday's scrimmage.

Fearless first-year receiver Brooks impresses coaches

By Chip Brown
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — It's hard to miss Dallas rookie receiver Macey Brooks.

He's the one who towers over 6-foot-2 Michael Irvin at 6-foot-5 and 220 pounds.

Also, Dallas fans may have noticed Brooks in the team's two scrimmages, against San Diego last week and against Oakland on Thursday night.

Against the Chargers, Brooks led the team with three catches for 59 yards, including a 43-yarder. In the game versus the Raiders, he tied for the team lead with two receptions for 39 yards, including a 32-yarder.

Coaches like what they've seen of Brooks, especially as a downfield blocker in the running game.

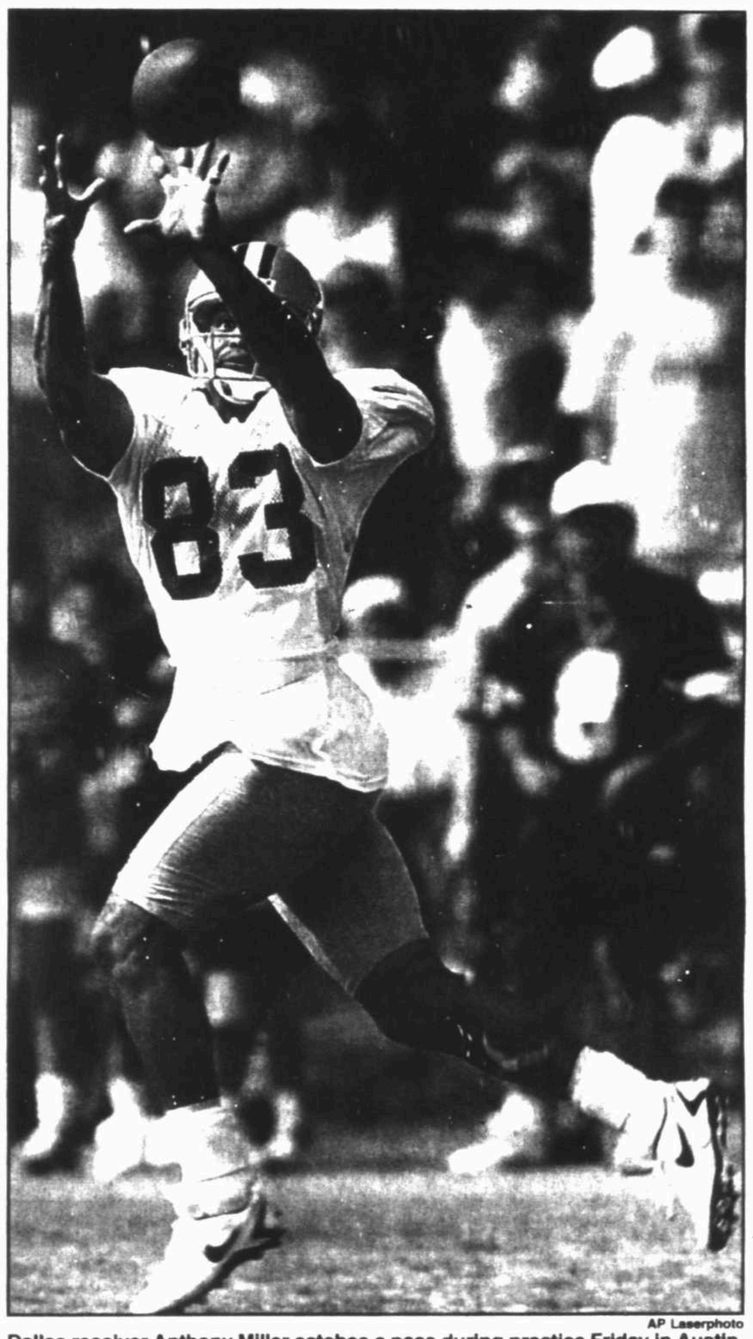

"You never know what a first-year guy is going to do," said Dallas offensive coordinator Ernie Zampese. "Macey is not intimidated at all. He's been very aggressive and done a very good job."

Brooks says he is just fighting to make the team, but he has likely climbed into the race for the third receiver spot behind Irvin and Anthony Miller.

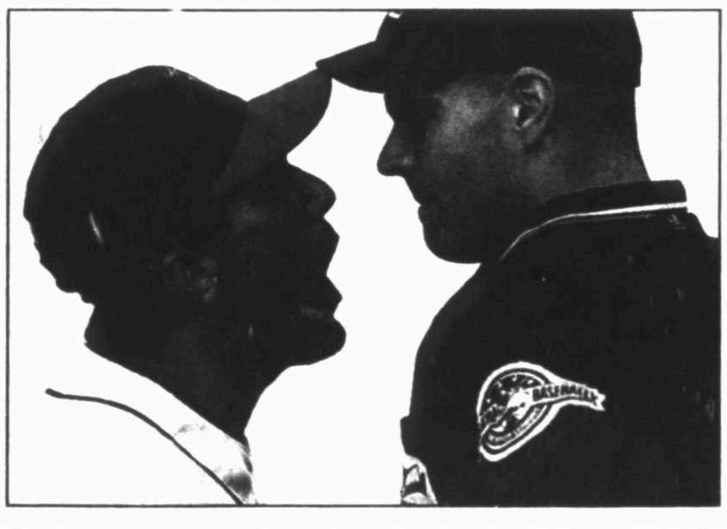

Currently, Billy Davis is the third receiver while Stepfret Williams is out with a strained left hamstring.

"If I make the team by working hard and I happen to be the No. 3 receiver, then that's great," Brooks said. "But if I don't, then I'll keep working hard in practice, sit

Wild night at Christensen includes two ejections as Angels lose, 10-6

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

It was one of those weird nights at Christensen Stadium.

The Midland Angels were on a high coming into the game against the Wichita Wranglers after a 9-1 win Thursday night.

Then you mix in a few questionable calls from behind the plate, two ejections, three wild pitches, nine Wrangler walks, and two errors and what the Angels had was a recipe for a 10-6 loss against the Wranglers.

It started innocently enough with two Angel runs in the top of the first inning thanks to a pair of Wichita infield errors. The second inning was turned completely around as Wichita responded with three runs of its own off Angel starter Scott Schoeneweis, who allowed the trio of runs to come off just two hits and a pair of walks, but struck out three in the inning.

That inconsistent second inning apparently lit a fire as Angel manager Mitch Seoane,

Timlin's trade results from Mariners' pressing need

Former Midland High baseball standout Mike Timlin is now in the eye of the storm.

Timlin, 31, was traded Thursday from the Toronto Blue Jays to the Seattle Mariners. Timlin, along with Toronto reliever Paul Spoljaric, go to the Mariners for one Jose Cruz Jr. It could be the most controversial trade of what was a busy trading deadline schedule Thursday.

Williamson

Many consider Cruz to be a future star in the major leagues. Some say he will end up in the Hall of Fame. Many Seattle fans bristle at the thought of giving up this popular young face.

Before the trade, Cruz, a switch-hitter, was hitting .269 with 12 home runs and 34 RBIs in only 48 games. He has produced and looks headed for stardom. Seattle fans don't like this trade.

But the reasons for the trade are quite simple. Seattle is in a race for the playoffs, but Mariner relievers have blown 15 save chances this season and own a 6.40 ERA, the highest in the majors. On the other side, Toronto is 16 1/2 games behind Baltimore in the AL East and the Blue Jays are the lowest scoring team in the league with just 399 runs. Milwaukee is the second worst with 452 runs. The trade really helps both teams.

However, Seattle fans are saying that the price is just too high. Giving up the team's top young prospect is just too much to pay.

This trade might not be so controversial if Timlin had put up the numbers he obtained last season with Toronto. Timlin had 31 saves last year. He hasn't been bad this year, but his save number is down. Timlin is 3-2 with nine saves and a 2.87 ERA. Still, he had trouble as a closer this season and lost his job to rookie Kelvim Escobar.

Even though Timlin wasn't the top closer for the Blue Jays this season, apparently, several teams were interested in the Midlander during the trading deadline period. Seattle, obviously, had the greatest need for bullpen help and were willing to pay the heaviest price.

So, how will this trade be weighed as the years pass into twilight? First, you have to ask yourself a question. How much is a World Championship worth? That seems to be the key here. Obviously, Seattle is thinking about its playoff possibilities here. They won't win the World Series without a good bullpen. They are saying that a championship is worth more than any one player.

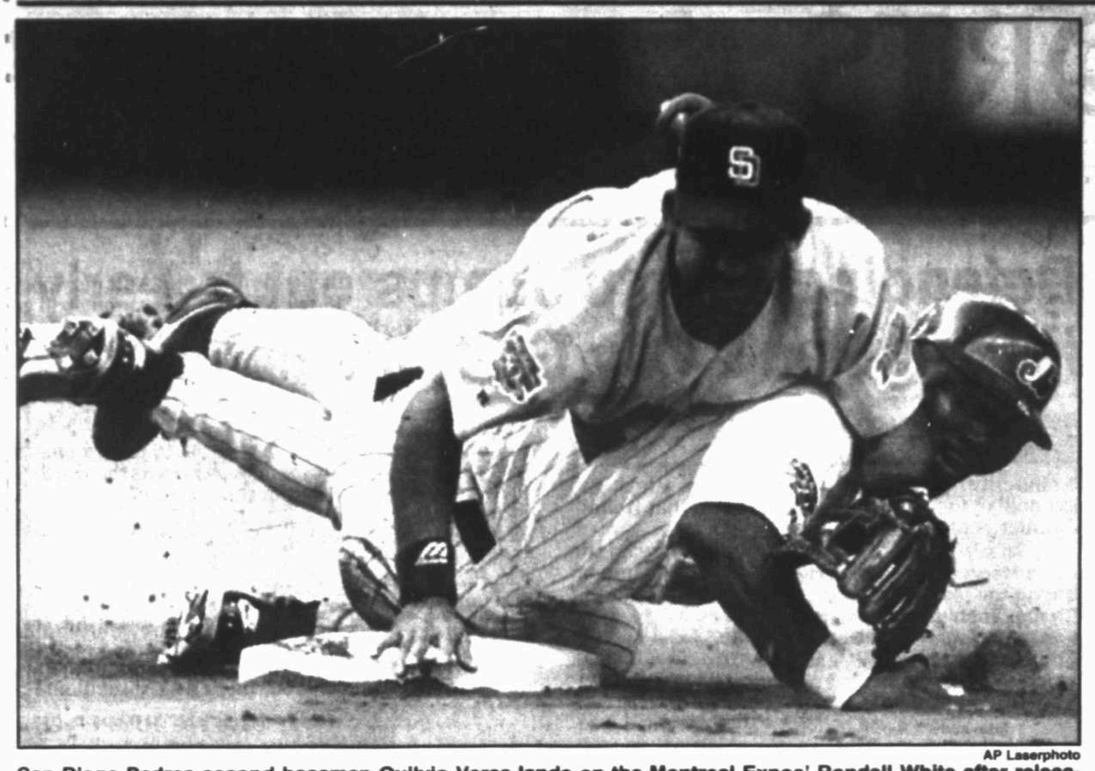

It might be said then that if a World Series title comes to Seattle, it will be a good trade. Anything less will be viewed as a bust, unless Cruz turns out to be the bust, which isn't likely.

That puts Timlin in the eye of the storm. He now has a heavy burden to carry. Still, Timlin has a couple of things going for him during the current stretch run for Seattle. First, he has been there before. He has been to the World Series. He has pitched in a pennant race. He could be a valuable tool, both on and off the field, as Seattle heads down the stretch run. These are major items that Cruz can't bring to the Mariner table now.

And there is that one other factor in the favor of Timlin. Just by being traded to Seattle, Timlin gets a major pay raise. He is now out from under the heavy taxes of Canada. You've got to look at the whole story.

San Diego Padres second baseman Quilvio Veras lands on the Montreal Expos' Rondell White after releasing the double play throw during the Padres' 8-2 victory Friday in Montreal.

Indians overpower Rangers with 5 homers, 2 by Williams

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Matt Williams hit two of Cleveland's five home runs and the Indians stopped a four-game losing streak, defeating the Texas Rangers 8-5 Friday night.

Manny Ramirez, Jim Thome and Tony Fernandez also homered as the Indians sent Texas to its fourth straight loss.

Trailing 5-4 entering the eighth, the Indians tied it on Williams' 25th homer. Thome followed with a single off Eric Gunderson (2-1) and continued to second when center fielder Tom Goodwin bobbled the ball for an error.

Thome, who went 3-for-4, advanced to third on Sandy Alomar's single and scored on Omar Vizquel's single off Xavier Hernandez.

Jose Mesa (2-4) pitched two innings for the victory. He escaped a bases-loaded jam in the eighth, getting Goodwin to ground out.

Paul Assenmacher pitched the ninth for his second save.

The Indians took a 4-3 lead in the sixth, scoring an unearned run with the help of an error by second baseman Mark McLemore.

Thome singled with two outs and went to third on Alomar's double. Vizquel hit a sharp grounder up the middle and Oliver got his glove on the ball, and it caromed to McLemore.

McLemore had time to make the play, but he dropped the ball to break a 30-game errorless streak and allow Thome to score.

Texas moved in front 5-4 with two runs in the sixth. Jim Leyritz and Lee Stevens hit doubles that made it 4-all and Benji Gil had a sacrifice fly.

Leyritz, acquired from Anaheim in a trade on Tuesday, made his Rangers debut and started at catcher in place of Ivan Rodriguez.

Rodriguez, out with a bruised left hand and listed as day-to-day, signed a five-year contract extension worth $42 million on Thursday.

Cleveland took a 1-0 lead in the first against Darren Oliver on Fernandez's homer. Thome hit his 28th homer in the second.

Texas rallied in the third against Jaret Wright on McLemore's RBI single and Rusty Greer's 17th homer, a two-run shot. Cleveland tied it at 3 in the fourth on Williams' home run.

Yankees 8, Twins 3

NEW YORK — Bernie Williams, playing his first game since July 14, hit an RBI double and a single that led Andy Pettitte and the New York Yankees over the Twins.

Williams, activated from the disabled list after being sidelined by a strained left hamstring, doubled to ignite a five-run fourth inning. He left for a pinch-runner after singling in the seventh.

Pettitte (13-6) allowed a career-high 13 hits, including home runs by Terry Steinbach and Chuck Knoblauch.

Blue Jays 7, Tigers 5

DETROIT — Jose Cruz Jr., traded a day earlier by Seattle, hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning of his Toronto debut to lead the Blue Jays over Detroit.

Otis Nixon hit just his ninth career homer and Joe Carter also homered for the Blue Jays, who ended a six-game losing streak. Toronto avoided its first seven-game losing streak since Sept. 1995.

Cruz, a highly-regarded rookie, was obtained from the Mariners Wednesday for relievers Mike Timlin and Paul Spoljaric.

Pat Hentgen (11-7) survived home runs from Tony Clark and Raul Casanova to win for only the third time in his last eight starts. Hentgen allowed five runs and three hits in 7 1-3 innings. Dan Miceli (2-2) took the loss.

Brewers 8, Mariners 3

MILWAUKEE — Cal Eldred gave up two hits in seven innings and the surging Milwaukee Brewers won their ninth straight with a victory over slumping Seattle.

The Brewers' winning streak is their longest since they won 10 in a row from April 30-May 9, 1988, and it is the club's longest in Phil Garner's six years as manager. The Mariners have lost four straight.

Paul Spoljaric and Mike Timlin, acquired Thursday by Seattle from Toronto for prized left fielder Jose Cruz Jr., each pitched a scoreless inning in their debuts for the Mariners.

Eldred (11-10), who had Tommy John-style reconstructive elbow surgery in 1995, had a no-hitter through 5 2-3 innings until Joey Cora looped a soft liner several feet over shortstop Jose Valentin's glove in shallow center field.

Red Sox 10, Royals 3

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Mo Vaughn, Mike Stanley and Nomar Garciaparra hit home runs as the Boston Red Sox beat Kansas City for their first victory of the season over the Royals.

Left-hander Steve Avery (5-2) went five innings for Boston, which had lost five straight to the Royals this year and 11 of 13 dating back to last season. Now 3-1 since he ended a two-month stint on the disabled list on July 5, Avery gave up five hits and three runs, walked three and struck out one.

New York cools off Houston in rally-filled 10-inning game

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Edgardo Alfonzo, whose throwing error with two outs in the ninth inning allowed Houston to tie it, hit a two-run double in the 10th and the New York Mets beat the Astros 8-5 Friday night.

Both teams took turns blowing leads until the Mets scored four times in the 10th. Bill Spiers hit an RBI single in the 10th for Houston, but Brad Ausmus flied out with two runners on base to end the game.

The Mets took a 2-1 lead in the top of the eighth, but Craig Biggio's two-run homer in the bottom half put Houston ahead 3-2.

Carl Everett hit a two-run single with one out in the ninth, giving the Mets a 4-3 edge.

Again, the Astros rallied in the bottom half. With two outs, Ricky Gutierrez hit a grounder to third base, but Alfonzo's throw to first baseman Butch Huskey was in the dirt, and Jeff Bagwell scored from second to tie it at 4.

In the Mets 10th, Jose Lima (1-7) walked Lance Johnson and Bernard Gilkey and Alex Ochoa followed with a bunt single that loaded the bases.

Todd Hundley met reliever Jose Cabrera with an RBI single and Alfonzo doubled home two runs for a 7-4 lead. Jason Hardtke's sacrifice fly capped the burst.

John Franco (3-1) was the winner. The unearned run he allowed in the ninth gave him his fourth blown save in 32 chances.

Hardtke hit his first career homer, and later scored in the eighth to give New York a 2-1 lead.

He gave the Mets a 1-0 lead when he homered in the third against Ramon Garcia.

Hardtke led off the eighth with a single and was sacrificed to second by Rey Ordonez. After pinch-hitter Luis Lopez struck out, Billy Wagner relieved and gave up an RBI single to Johnson.

■ NL Roundup

Dodgers 13, Cubs 9

CHICAGO — Hideo Nomo got his first win in three weeks and Todd Zeile drove in four runs with a homer and single as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Chicago Cubs for their seventh straight victory.

Nomo (10-8) gave up seven runs and 11 hits, including homers to Brian McRae, Ryne Sandberg and Sammy Sosa, and struck out 10 in 6 2-3 innings to gain his first victory since July 11.

The Dodgers had 20 hits and moved into first place in the NL West, one-half game ahead of the Giants, who played Friday night at Cincinnati. Wilton Guerrero also homered for Los Angeles and Todd Hollandsworth drove in three runs.

Phillies 4, Cardinals 1

PHILADELPHIA — Mark McGwire had no impact in his St. Louis debut, and the struggling Cardinals lost their fourth straight.

McGwire, traded from Oakland to St. Louis on Thursday for three pitchers, went 0-for-3 with a walk in his first NL game. The cleanup hitter, who arrived at Veterans Stadium just two hours before the game, struck out in his first at-bat and grounded out twice.

Padres 8, Expos 2

MONTREAL — Joey Hamilton pitched a four-hitter to win his fifth straight decision and Wally Joyner had three RBIs.

Rickey Henderson and Chris Gomez drove in two runs each as the Padres snapped a three-game losing streak and won for the eighth time in 12 games. Gomez tied a career-high with four hits.

Marlins 3, Braves 2, 12 innings

MIAMI — Reliever Dennis Cook, called on to pinch-hit when Florida ran out of position players, delivered a one-out, game-winning single in the 12th.

Cook improved to 4-for-4 this season — and 28-for-100 lifetime — when he singled to right-center off Mike Cather (0-2) and drove in pinch-runner Gregg Zaun from third base.

Rockies 7, Pirates 6

PITTSBURGH — Larry Walker's second homer of the game and third in two days broke a ninth-inning tie.

The Rockies had been outscored 47-25 while going 0-5 against the Pirates, including three games in Three Rivers Stadium in which they led in the late innings.

Giants 8, Reds 7

CINCINNATI — Wilson Alvarez, involved in a surprising trade a day earlier, won his debut with San Francisco.

Alvarez, dealt on Thursday along with Roberto Hernandez and Danny Darwin by the Chicago White Sox for six minor leaguers, got his second win at Cinergy Field this season.

Texas turns attention to rest of roster

By Chris Newton
Associated Press Writer

ARLINGTON — Now that the Texas Rangers have promised All-Star catcher Ivan Rodriguez $42 million for the next five years, the team can focus on planning the rest of its future.

But with next year's payroll already at $35 million for just nine players, general manager Doug Melvin said Friday the team may be finished signing big-name superstars.

"We can't afford a $10 million pitcher at this point," Melvin said. "Our strategy is going to be trying to find five solid pitchers instead of one or two superstars. That's how great pitching staffs are made."

Melvin has already begun working on his next move, re-signing right-hander Bobby Witt.

Witt, who makes $2 million this season, can be a free agent after this season but wants to remain a Ranger. The team considered trading him, but pulled him off the market last week and instead began talking about a multi-year deal. Melvin will be meeting with Witt's agents next week.

"I think that we should be able to get that done," Melvin said. "I'm very optimistic about keeping him out of free agency."

After that, the Rangers will be very careful about how they spend their dollars.

"It's nice to be able to keep well-liked players in town and Rodriguez is really a key player, but we still have a lot to do," team president Tom Schieffer said. "We still have to put a team out there that can win."

That means it'll be up to Melvin to try pinching pennies. He did a good job of it last season, signing Darryl Hamilton and Kevin Elster to bargain deals then seeing them have career years while helping the Rangers win the AL West.

"Obviously, we're still going to have to manage our payroll," Melvin said. "We have to get the right players for the right dollars."

Also essential to the Rangers future is how they decide to use catcher Jim Leyritz, acquired Tuesday from Anaheim for free agent-to-be Ken Hill.

At the time, Leyritz was brought on as a likely replacement for Rodriguez, who was thought to be headed out of town via trade or free agency until he brokered a deal himself Thursday morning.

Schieffer said Leyritz will still fit in.

"You have to think longterm," Schieffer said. "Part of building a team is taking care of what you buy. Leyritz is very versatile and will give us the freedom to give Pudge a break every once and awhile, maybe at the DH spot.

"That's going to keep Pudge fresh for longer."

Schieffer said Leyritz was happy to hear that Rodriguez was re-signed.

"Jim knows what kind of player Pudge is and he wanted to keep him here," Schieffer said. "We all want to be on a winning team ... now we have to continue to make that team."

Tennis teams find mixed results

DALLAS — The men's team from the Midland-Odessa area won its first-round match, but both area women's teams fell on the opening day of the USTA Adult League Sectional Championships Friday.

The 3.5 rated men's team from Midland-Odessa defeated Waco 4-1 in a match early Friday morning. However, the 3.5 ladies team representing Midland Country Club lost its first-round match to Fort Worth 4-1 and the 3.0 Midland-Odessa ladies team lost to Abilene 3-2. The tournament will continue through the weekend.

The Midland team will face the Barons of Topeka, Kan. today at 10 a.m. If Rebel Select wins, it will face either the Dallas Dodgers or Houston Wildcats late this afternoon.

ANGELS: Midland loses 11th of last 14

unhappy with umpire Al Guarnieri's calls behind the plate, got tossed from the game for arguing. That was casualty No. 1 for the Angels.

The next Angel to be sent to the showers came in the fourth inning when catcher Derek Ryder got the boot for arguing with Guarnieri. The Angels led at that point 5-4.

Add three wild pitches by reliever Bill Bene (0-4), and two errors by Aaron Guiel, who was switched to third base from right field after Ryder's ejection, plus three scoreless innings by Wrangler relief pitching, and the Angels had their 11th loss in the last 14 games at home.

While the Angels can't seem to get a winning streak going in their own ballpark, the Wranglers broke out of a two-game losing streak of its own.

"I was very pleased with that win because I thought we were very stagnant early and I thought we had a lot of scoring opportunities early in the ballgame because we could never really come through with a hit that could really boost us up," said Wichita manager Ron Johnson.

A key in this Wichita victory could have been the ability to get to Shoeneweis.

"I know that he was scuffling with his command," Johnson said of Shoeneweis. "I have seen this young man pitch before and I know that he has better command than that and I know he's got good stuff. So when you see a guy like that who is scuffling with his command, you hope you can take advantage of that. We knew that if Shoeneweis settled down, it was going to be a tough night here."

A lot of credit has to be given to the Wrangler's relief pitching, which has been the strength of the team according to Johnson. Tim Grieve, Jose Santiago, and Allen McDill combined to allow just one hit and stop any threat of a Midland rally.

"Grieve's the guy you really have to credit because he came into the ball game and didn't allow them to score in the sixth and seventh innings after both teams had battled and scratched," Johnson said. "He puts a couple of zeroes up on the board and gave us a chance to win the ball game."

The third game of this five-game series has Midland's Fausto Macey (4-4, 8.89 ERA) against Wichita's Javier Gamboa (0-3, 8.57). First pitch is at 7 p.m. today.

JUMPER: 1996 champ opens with 66

helped. I kept taking it all day. I've got a whole bag full of medicine. But then again, I don't even know if I'll be able to play Saturday. When I got up this morning, I would have been happy with a round of even par. I thought a 65 would be leading, so I'm happy with where I am right now."

Huckabee figured to be a major challenger after his third-place finish of a year ago. Huckabee had a 65 in the first round last year, but then "couldn't find the course with headlights" the last two rounds.

"I had a chance today to be better and a chance to be not that good," Huckabee said. "I'm happy with the round because it gets me in shape where I'm in the game. My philosophy is to stay in the hunt and give yourself a chance to win in the last nine holes. I hope that's what I do this year.

"I will say this. The course is in great shape. As much traffic as this course bears during the week, it is in excellent condition and the grounds keeper should be commended."

Midland College golfer Charlie Prince looked to have a four-under par round in the hip pocket until he had a double-bogey on No. 17. He finished with a two-under 68, just two strokes off Jumper's lead.

"I sliced a drive (on No. 17) and I'd like to have that one back," Prince said. "I took a double on the hole. I did everything else all right. I had an eagle on No. 2."

David Starks set the early standard with a 68 and is tied with Prince for third place with two more rounds to play.

The threesome of Derek Edmonds, Trey Womack and Mike Kingery are all setting at one-under 69.

Kingery, like many of the first round leaders, had a big back nine with four birdies. Womack is a threat since he is playing well this summer. He was a Top 5 finisher in the Men's West Texas Amateur.

Edmonds is an unlikely entry at the top. The Australian lefty was a Midland College tennis player in 1977 and is a tennis pro at Midland Country Club.

"I started hitting golf balls in 1980 when I was the tennis pro at Green Tree Country Club," Edmonds said. "I just never really quit. I only had one bogey and I'm usually good for a few of those."

Despite Jumper's gout problem, Edmonds isn't fooled.

"I've played with Jumper before. When he's injured, he's like a tiger stalking his prey. What we really need to do is get him healthy, then we have him."

There are another six golfers at even par and 20 players within five strokes of the lead. You can safely say that the event was not won Friday.

Kelly McClatchy took the first round lead in the President's Flight with an even par 70, two strokes ahead of Craig Kuiper. Those were the only two flights to compete Friday. Flights one through four begin competition with the first of two rounds today.

The city championship appears to be on solid ground. There are 49 entries in the championship flight alone, making it a solid test for Midland supremacy.

And you will find all sorts of ages competing for this title, including Omar Sanchez, who is only 14-years-old and will be a freshman this fall at Lee Freshman and will probably play on the Lee varsity golf team. Sanchez shot a 74, but had a triple-bogey on No. 10. Otherwise, he would be right in the hunt.

Friday's results from the opening round of the Midland Men's City Golf Championship being held at Hogan Park Golf Course.

Sanders shows stuff as Lions nip Falcons

By Harry Atkins
AP Sports Writer

PONTIAC, Mich. — He played only the first two series, touched the ball just six times, and stole the show as usual. Barry Sanders appeared in midseason form.

Still, it took a late Jason Hanson field goal and a botched Atlanta attempt on the final play of the game for the Detroit Lions to beat the Falcons 20-17 in the exhibition opener for both teams Friday night.

A 40-yard touchdown toss from Billy Joe Tolliver to Roell Preston tied the game 17-17 with 8:07 left in the fourth quarter, capping a 55-yard, 11-play drive. From a 3rd-and-27 situation, Preston grabbed the ball away from cornerback Raphael Ball, a rookie out of Ball State.

Hanson kicked a 36-yarder with 2:18 remaining for the final margin. But the Falcons made it close.

Tolliver, who completed 13-of-26 passes for 228 yards after replacing starter Chris Chandler, drove the Falcons to the Lions' 24-yard line. Kicker David Lauder lined up for a 42-yard field goal but holder Tommy Maddox fumbled the snap and was smothered by Detroit defenders with 23 seconds remaining.

It was Atlanta's second botched field-goal attempt. Holder Dan Stryzinski, the Falcons' regular punter, was unable to handle a snap on a 27-yard attempt by Morten Andersen in the second quarter.

The Lions, playing their first game under coach Bobby Ross, scored on their second possession, driving 72 yards in eight plays. Johnnie Morton had three receptions for 36 yards in the drive and the elusive Sanders also caught a 5-yard pass.

Sanders, who rushed five times for 32 yards during his brief playing time, scored on a sweep right, easily outrunning the Falcons defense to the right corner of the end zone, and bringing a loud roar from the Silverdome crowd announced at 40,425.

But that was all for the NFL's most exciting runner. The touchdown came with 6:38 left in the first quarter and Sanders, who held out the first three days of training camp in a contract dispute, spent the rest of the night on the sideline.

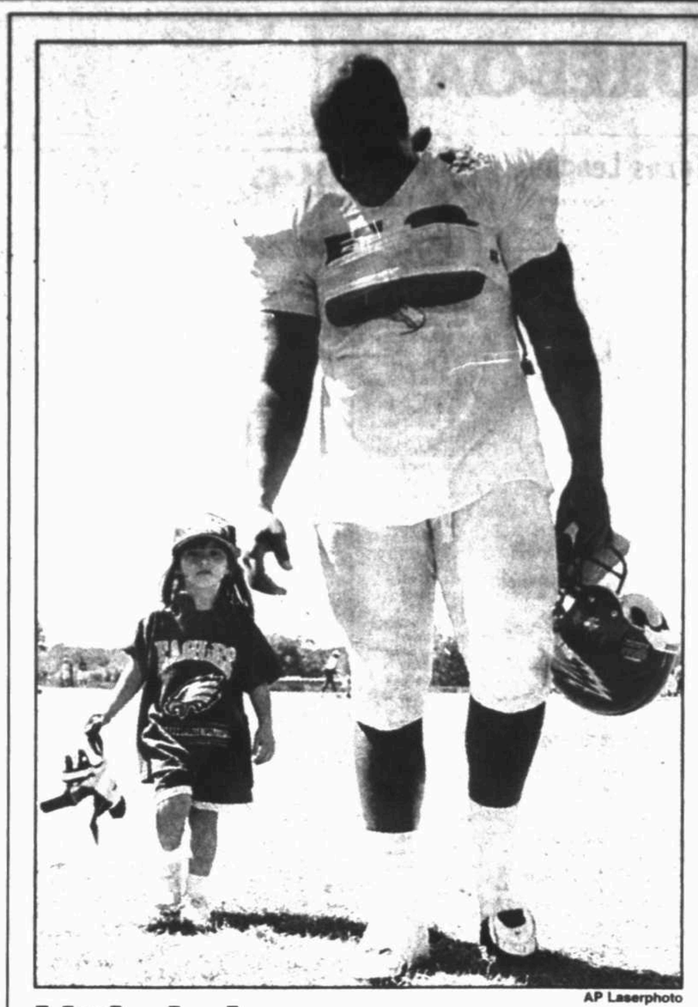

After that, it was a battle of the reserves and backups.

Chandler, who was acquired in a February trade with the Houston Oilers, completed 6-of-13 passes for 78 yards. After playing all of the first quarter, Chandler gave way to Tolliver.

When the Falcons got the ball with 1:47 left in the first half, new coach Dan Reeves sent Chandler back in to run the two-minute offense. But he completed just one pass for 8 yards, the Falcons went three-and-out, and Chandler was through for the night.

Scott Mitchell, who played only the first quarter for Detroit, completed 9-of-13 for 87 yards. Frank Reich, who will be Mitchell's backup, tossed a 4-yard touchdown pass to Toledo rookie Tommie Boyd for a 14-0 second-quarter lead.

Andersen kicked a 23-yard field goal for Atlanta late in the second quarter and Hanson kicked a 44-yarder for Detroit early in the third quarter.

The Philadelphia Eagles' 6-foot-4, 309-pound lineman Barrett Brooks walks off the practice field with four-year-old Gianna Surlio following a workout Thursday at the Eagles training camp in Bethlehem, Pa. The Eagles offered to let children come over the fence line and help them carry their helmets as they left the field. Surlio was not able to lift the helmet, so Brooks gave her the lighter gloves to carry.

Jury decides Barkley wasn't at fault in fight

By John Affleck
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND — Charles Barkley didn't instigate a brawl at a Cleveland nightclub and won't have to pay any money to the man who sued him for $550,000, a jury ruled Friday.

An eight-member jury rejected the claim of a man who said the NBA star bloodied his face with a flurry of punches. The panel deliberated about five hours over two days.

"It's been a long week but I am so proud that all eight of those people know that I did not do anything wrong," Barkley said moments after the verdict was read in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court. The civil trial began Monday.

"The damage is already done to my reputation," he said. "People are going to think I go around punching people and that's not fair."

Jeb Tyler, 24, a business equipment salesman from Spencerport, N.Y., said he was trying to be a peacemaker in an altercation between his friend and Barkley when the Houston Rockets forward slugged him.

"I have no personal vendetta against him," Tyler said.

But Tyler said that if the jury had heard testimony about Barkley's previous altercations in bars, the outcome would have been different.

Barkley and NBA player Jayson Williams were accused of being in a bar fight in Chicago in 1992. Charges were dropped. Barkley was acquitted the same year on misdemeanor battery charges brought by a man who said Barkley broke his nose outside a Milwaukee bar.

"This is the third time I have been through something like this. It is the third time I have been acquitted," Barkley said. "I don't ever want to fight anybody, I don't ever want hurt anybody, I don't ever want to get hurt."

The fight happened on July 7, 1996, at a dance club called The Basement while both Barkley and Tyler were visiting Cleveland.

Barkley was on the U.S. Olympic basketball team and had gone to the bar with Olympic teammate Reggie Miller of the Indiana Pacers. Tyler was partying with some buddies from upstate New York.

The trouble began when Tyler's friend, 27-year-old David DiGiacco, asked a woman accompanying Miller, Teri Beitel, if she was sleeping with the Pacers guard.

Barkley testified that he told DiGiacco to leave the bar and Tyler then confronted him in a threatening manner, so he pushed Tyler. Barkley called Tyler a "drunk redneck."

"If I had known what Dave had said, I probably would have done something different," Tyler said Friday.

Tyler also noted Barkley's legal team turned down a $12,000 settlement offer last week.

"Why should I give him $12,000?" Barkley responded. "He doesn't get a rebound. He doesn't get it on the head by (Utah Jazz forward) Karl Malone."

Jurors said they were initially split, with three panelists for Barkley, two for Tyler and three undecided. After concluding that everyone involved was probably drunk, they ultimately decided Barkley acted in self-defense.

"Here you have a crowded nightclub with a celebrity, intoxicated people and someone who's in a position where they feel threatened," jury foreman Michael Norris said. "Jeb challenged Charles."

Barkley, who maintained the same loose attitude Friday that he had all week, clenched his left fist and bowed his head on the defense table as the verdict was read.

Moments before the jury was brought into the courtroom, Barkley turned to reporters and pointed to his attorneys. "If we lose," he said. "I'm going to fire them."

Colts take advantage of Bengals' miscue

By Steve Herman
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — Veteran punter Lee Johnson made a rookie mistake, and an Indianapolis rookie made him pay for it.

A bobbled snap by Johnson gave Indianapolis the ball at the Cincinnati 5 and two plays later, Malcolm Thomas scored from the 2 as the Colts beat the Bengals 20-16 Friday night.

Thomas, a free agent out of Syracuse, played only in the third quarter, rushing five times for a team-high 17 yards and catching two passes for nine yards. Both teams substituted freely throughout their exhibition opener.

The touchdown by Thomas put Indianapolis ahead 17-14 early in the third period and Cary Blanchard added his second field goal, a 35-yarder, in the final quarter. The Bengals, with rookie quarterback Eric Kresser in the game, reached the Indianapolis 10 before giving the ball up on downs in the closing minutes.

The final score for Cincinnati came on a safety, when Indianapolis punter Chris Gardocki intentionally ran out of the end zone with eight seconds to go.

The game marked the return to the Bengals of Boomer Esiason, who was traded to the New York Jets in 1993 after nine years with Cincinnati. Esiason, who went to Arizona last year and returned to Cincinnati this season with a two-year contract as a free agent, relieved starter Jeff Blake late in the first quarter as the Bengals held a 7-3 lead.

Paul Justin, who relieved Jim Harbaugh the series before Esiason entered the game, put the Colts ahead 10-7 with a 17-yard touchdown pass to Marcus Pollard in the second quarter.

Houston extends Rudy T.'s deal at $4.5 million per year

■ Rockets' coach gets signed up through 2001.

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich signed a contract extension Friday through the year 2001 that will pay him an average of $4.5 million per season.

Tomjanovich, who has coached the Rockets since February 1992, just finished the second season of a five-year deal that paid him about $1.3 million per season.

Coaching salaries have been spiraling upward this summer. Rick Pitino got a 10-year, $60 million contract from the Boston Celtics, Larry Brown signed a five-year contract with the 76ers last month worth $5 million per season and Larry Bird's deal with the Pacers will pay him in excess of $4 million per season.

"People should be adequately rewarded commensurate with their peers," Rockets owner Leslie Alexander said. "Through the restructuring of Rudy's contract, I have made sure that Rudy is adequately compensated."

The Rockets, who won NBA titles in 1994 and 1995, came close to getting another chance at the NBA Finals last season, but a devastating last-second shot by Utah's John Stockton eliminated them from the Western Conference finals.

During Tomjanovich's time as coach, the Rockets are 281-159 in the regular season and 48-33 in the playoffs. He has won and coached more games than any other Rockets coach.

"Les has always show commitment and been very supportive of everything we've done," Tomjanovich said. "In this case, he didn't have to do anything because I'm already under contract. Les is always in our corner when it comes to doing what's best for the team. He truly wants to bring a winner to the city again."

Tomjanovich will enter his 28th season with the Rockets this year. He played 11 years and served as an assistant coach and scout before taking over the top coaching job.

CORNERS: Injured backups worry coaches

camp," said scouting director Larry Lacewell. "Cornerbacks are hard to find. We're calling players who are now working at banks and things like that."

In the longterm, the Cowboys should be fine, considering Smith and Sanders will be healthy for the season opener against Pittsburgh on Aug. 31.

But the injuries will cripple severely the team's ability to have effective training camp workouts.

"It hurts the defense in terms of building familiarity and experience," said Dallas defensive back coach Mike Zimmer. "The few guys we have can't go for 80 plays straight, and then if the receivers don't have quality guys to go up against, it starts to hurt the offense's ability to evaluate talent and game plans."

Everyone is expecting Oakland to load up its vertical passing game Sunday night.

"I'm sure they'll take a few shots deep," said Dallas defensive coordinator Dave Campo.

Cornerback Alundis Brice is rehabbing from offseason knee surgery and isn't expected to begin practicing in drills with the team until after next week, Zimmer said.

Rookie linebacker Pat Fitzgerald, who had his right hand X-rayed after the scrimmage, said Friday he was fine and would be ready to go Sunday night.

ROOKIE MAKES AN IMPRESSION: Coaches were down about the injuries to the secondary after Thursday night's scrimmage against the Raiders, but they were high on rookie linebacker Dexter Coakley.

"He's a little short, but he'll hit you pretty good for a small guy," Dallas defensive coordinator Dave Campo said.

Coakley, a 5-foot-10, 215-pound rookie out of Appalachian State, led the team with four tackles and, more importantly, made the right reads in pass coverage.

"He was making plays out there and because of his speed, he can chase people down from sideline to sideline," Campo said.

Coakley is clearly the coaches favorite to start at the weakside linebacker position, even though Alan Campos has played well and is fighting for the starting spot.

MILLER TIME: Dallas receiver Anthony Miller, rehabbing from offseason knee surgery, put on pads and ran offense-only drills Friday for the first time.

Miller caught about 20 passes, many of them from Troy Aikman. He then ran sprints with team trainers in which they attached an elastic band to Miller and forced him to run with resistance.

"There's a little soreness, but that's about it. No swelling," Miller said. "I am past the mental thing. I'm just trying to run the routes and get the timing with the quarterback."

Miller said he's "somewhere around 85 to 90 percent" and hoped to play his first preseason game at New England on Aug. 8.

BROOKS: Dallas rookie has much to learn

(From 1B)

on the sidelines and cheer and gain as much knowledge as possible watching."

Troy Aikman is cautiously optimistic about Brooks.

"He's shown some good stuff out there, but he has a lot to learn, like any rookie receiver does," Aikman said. "But he has good size. He's a nice, big target."

Dallas coach Barry Switzer said Brooks has to master the finer details of getting off the line with a burst and fighting through bump-and-run coverage.

"He's a step slow, and he's in the learning process right now," Switzer said. "He's got a chance to lose some weight to improve his speed. He's certainly got to learn to come off against the press."

Brooks hasn't dropped a ball thrown to him in a scrimmage yet, although he did fumble after a catch against San Diego. His receptions, though, have come against second- and third-team defenses.

"I have to show the coaches I can make plays against anybody, no matter who's lined up across from me," Brooks said.

When he arrived at camp, the fourth-round draft pick from James Madison was greeted by a fellow alum, Charles Haley.

"There are few James Madison guys who've played in the NFL," Brooks said. "There's Charles Haley, Gary Clark and Scott Norwood, but I don't want to say that last name too loud."

Norwood was the kicker for the Buffalo Bills who barely missed a field goal in the 1991 that would have beaten the New York Giants.

"Charles took good care of me when we were in Dallas," Brooks said. "He told me to keep working hard, know my assignments. He kind of took me under his wing, like a little brother. I didn't mind."

At James Madison, Brooks set the school record for career touchdowns (25) and became just the third receiver — along with Clark and David McLeod — to top 2,000 receiving yards with 2,014.

Brooks also was an outfielder on the baseball team, twice getting selected in the Major League Baseball amateur draft.

NASCAR stars shine on 2nd qualifying day for Brickyard 400 race

By Dick Brinster
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — The second round of qualifying for any Winston Cup race is generally an unimportant session that decides where drivers with no hope for victory will start.

But that wasn't the case Friday, when such NASCAR stars as Rusty Wallace, Mark Martin and defending series champion Terry Labonte made the field for the Brickyard 400. All told, 12 drivers with a composite 90 career victories and three championships earned starting spots in the $4,965,000 race Saturday at Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Wallace, with 47 career victories, continued to struggle with qualifying. For the second straight race, he couldn't find enough speed and got in the field as a provisional starter. This came as a result of his 1989 Winston Cup championship — expanding the starting grid to 43 cars.

"It's been a real rough week for us, but we're still working on it," Wallace said. "We've got a long way to go tomorrow."

Despite riding shotgun on the field, Wallace will concede nothing. He realizes a 400-mile race gives him time to move if things come together for him.

"You've got be real patient," Wallace said. "We're trying to get our chassis straightened out. We're working real hard trying to find the answers."

He didn't sound like man who found enough of them in the final practice session. Still, he maintained a champion's profile, answering questions in the blazing sun outside his garage while signing autographs.

"We worked on the handling of the car, hoping to get it better," Wallace said of the Miller Ford. "We got it a little better, but I'm not happy like I usually am."

Among those failing to qualify were such fixtures as 1986 Daytona 500 winner Geoff Bodine and Dave Marcis, at 56 the oldest driver on the circuit.

The biggest surprises among the first-day failures were Martin, with 20 career victories for Roush Racing, and teammate Jeff Burton, a major player with two victories in what has been a breakthrough season.

Despite speeds nearly 2 mph slower than Ernie Irvan's pole-winning 177.736, both stood on their times of Thursday. Martin's Ford will start 31st, Burton's 33rd.

Positions 26-38 were filled Friday, but some familiar names were not among those to make the field on speed. Also added as provisional starters were Jimmy Spencer, Kyle Petty, Ricky Craven and Brett Bodine.

The failure to make the field is just the latest problem to hit 18-time winner Geoff Bodine, whose stock has fallen dramatically in the last three seasons. His planned announcement of the new financing and the pending sale of a portion of his ailing team has been postponed indefinitely.

Injury-plagued Johnson comes ready for World

By Bert Rosenthal
AP Track Writer

ATHENS, Greece — A year ago in Atlanta, Michael Johnson was unstoppable as he streaked to Olympic gold in the 200 and 400 meters. Now he comes into the World Championships through the back door, chasing only one title after an injury-plagued season.

The IAAF, the sport's world governing body, gave Johnson a free pass into the World Championships after he failed to qualify for the U.S. team. The nine-day championships begin Saturday.

Johnson, the 1995 world champion and 1996 Olympic gold medalist at 200 and 400 meters, was not the only beneficiary — but certainly was the most prominent — of the IAAF's wild card invitations to defending world champions who did not make their national teams.

"I'm very pleased they allowed wild cards," said Johnson, who injured his left quadriceps during his 150-meter match race against Bailey on June 1. "It's important to have the best athletes for various reasons.

"It's very good to have people like me here."

Ato Boldon of Trinidad and Tobago, owner of the year's best times in the 100 and 200 meters, agrees that Johnson is a major asset.

"If it wasn't for Michael, I don't think the wild cards would have happened," Boldon said. "He's the best."

Johnson, who had his 58-meet winning streak in the 400 broken last month in Paris when he finished a surprising fifth, will defend only that title at the championships.

Jonathan Edwards, Britain's sensational triple jumper who set the world record at the 1995 championships; Kenya's Ismael Kirui, the 1991 and 1995 5,000-meter champion, and John Godina, the 1995 champion in the men's shot put, are the only other wild card entries competing at the meet in individual events.

Godina would have been at the championships anyhow because he made the U.S. team in the discus.

Three others — Americans Dan O'Brien, Gwen Torrence and Gail Devers — all have withdrawn from their specialities because of injuries, although Devers plans to anchor the U.S. women's 400-meter relay team.

O'Brien, the world record-holder and Olympic gold medalist in the decathlon, was the three-time defending champion. Torrence, the 1992 Olympic winner in the women's 200, was the 1995 world champion in the 100.

Irwin steals spotlight from pole-winner Irvan

By Mike Harris
AP Motorsports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS — The spotlight that should have been on pole-sitter Ernie Irvan at the Brickyard 400 shifted Friday to a driver yet to start his first Winston Cup race.

Kenny Irwin Jr., a USAC short-track star and the top rookie in the NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series, was officially named the 1998 replacement for Irvan on the elite Robert Yates Racing team.

That ended nearly a month of speculation and rumor about Irvan's replacement following the announcement that team owner Yates had decided not to renew his contract to drive one of the best cars in the Winston Cup circuit.

"People see the (No.) 28 running out front and winning races and they are going to expect that," Irwin said.

Asked if moving to Winston Cup without any stock car experience was causing him trepidation, the 27-year-old driver said, "We run 70 to 80 times a year, sometimes in two different cars a night. That makes you very versatile. When I got into something new, I try to stay open-minded and just see how it feels."

Irwin said he expects to run up to five races in a third Yates car before the end of this season. He will run for Rookie of the Year in 1998.

Yates, who has declined to give any specific reason for his split with Irvan, was asked what it would take to consider Irwin's first year a success.

"Well, success for next year would be being able to walk through the garage area after a race and be able to smile and grin deep down," said the team owner, who also fields cars for Dale Jarrett.

"It's about opportunities," Yates continued. "I don't have another 100 years to go through all the drivers I would love to, but this is our pick. This is what we are going to make work."

The timing of the Irwin announcement was probably not what Yates would have hoped for, considering it came a day after Irvan won his first pole of the season and forcefully made himself the favorite to win Saturday's $4.8 million race at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

"We've still got some things to prove," Irvan said. "This doesn't change anything. Everybody knew Robert was going to put somebody in the 28 next year."

Irvan, who has made an astounding comeback from nearly fatal injuries suffered in a crash in August of 1994 at Michigan Speedway, added, "I'm trying to look for a job. I'm kind of in the unemployment line, and winning the Brickyard 400 would be real good for my resume."

Besides the pressure of being a lame duck driver and looking for a new job, Irvan is burdened this week with the knowledge that his mother is lying in a coma in a North Carolina hospital after a respiratory failure earlier this week.

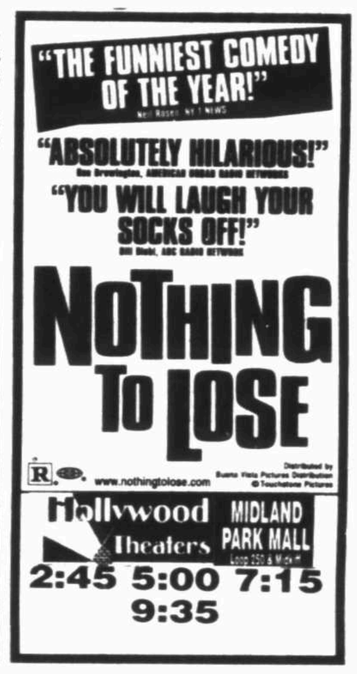

"There are a lot of people that have a lot of problems and other things that happen all during their lives," he said. "But there are some times that you just do your job and do it to the best of your capabilities and try not to think about the other things."

The 38-year-old driver, with 15 wins and 18 poles to his credit, has come close twice before at the Brickyard. He cut down a tire with five laps to go while battling eventual winner Jeff Gordon for the lead in the 1994 inaugural at Indy, and finished second to Jarrett last August in a Yates sweep.

Jarrett, who won from 24th last year and is starting third Saturday, figures to be Irvan's strongest competition again.

"I've got a good car for the race and the prospects of us winning two in a row are really good," said Jarrett, who will continue to drive Yates' No. 88 Fords next year.

SATURDAY, AUG. 2, 1997

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Aug. 2, 1997:
The status quo will change considerably in the coming year. You will be energized by events that conspire to put you on a new path. Relationships become deep, serious and important. You accomplish many things as part of a group, and find support from among your friends. Creativity, romantic appeal and expressiveness are at a peak. If you are single, you might find "the one"! If attached, you learn more about your mate than ever, and feel closer. Children bring great happiness, and a new baby could become part of the scenario. LEO is your soul mate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★★★ The fog lifts, especially in romantic matters. Someone you care about boosts your spirits. Unexpected events signal the end of a long-term problem. Don't push yourself or feel you need to act quickly. Things fall into place. Tonight: Do something different.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Home-based matters are highlighted. Rearrange furniture, remodel or add on a room. If you research thoroughly, you might find what you need at a reasonable price. Others are willing to pitch in. The spirit of teamwork reigns. Tonight: Have an informal dinner party.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★★ Writers, artists and social butterflies find this a superb day to entertain. Others are interested in what you have to say and clamor for your attention. You feel bombarded with requests for information, but you have it all at your disposal. Tonight: Chat until late.
CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★ Take a moderate approach. If nothing pressing occupies your attention, take advantage of the opportunity to lose yourself in thought. There are many loose ends inside you that you need to tie up. Tonight: You are out like a light.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★★ This is your time to shine; popularity soars. Relish the accolades that come from others. A new project can begin, and you wouldn't be wrong to enlist a few buddies as consultants. Two heads are better than one; 10 heads is a lot of brain power! Tonight: Go to the movies.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Take a back seat, rather than charging in. You are notorious for putting others' needs ahead of your own; don't neglect your boundaries. Follow your own drumbeats. The world can wait. Be brilliant another day! Tonight: Turn on the answering machine.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★★ You are charming on this lovely day. Go wherever you want, and do whatever you want, but don't stay home! A neighborhood get-together wouldn't be a party if you stayed home; join in. Tonight: Come on in; the water's fine!
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★ This day finds you at your desk, on the phone or using your computer to research a job-related project. Weekend or not, you have work to do. What you uncover now has a great bearing on career success in the coming month. Tonight: Head to the bookstore.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★★ You are the life of the pool party, the darling of the barbecue and the apple of someone's eye. This could not be a more perfect time; everyone enjoys himself. Be especially attentive to a loved one; you can fan the flames of romance. Tonight: Be amorous.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★ Work occupies your attention. Take a short break, to swim or nap; otherwise, further personal ambitions or a home project. Energy is high, and you are driven to set something right. Don't expect anyone else to chip in, but you are capable enough by yourself. Tonight: Sleep tight.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★★ Someone you put on a pedestal makes a proposal, which throws you for a loop! Don't feel you have to immediately respond; decisions like this need time. Ultimately, this could be a great thing, regardless of what you choose. Tonight: Take the pressure off!
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ A new financial plan begins, and not a minute too soon. You are relieved, and can now free up energy to spend with a loved one. You are still in a precarious monetary position, so until you are sure of the implications, focus on security. Tonight: Enjoy good cheap fun!

'Lapsed pilot' John F. Kennedy Jr. surprises visitors at aircraft show

OSHKOSH, Wis. — People at an aircraft convention were flying high after John F. Kennedy Jr. dropped in.

Kennedy, a self-described "lapsed pilot," toured the Experimental Aircraft Association Fly-In Convention on Thursday, drawing more attention than the antique planes and daredevil acrobats in flight.

"It's like a dream come true," said a gasping Jean Jovaag, 69, who met Kennedy's father 37 years ago.

George, Kennedy's political affairs magazine, has the same publisher as Flying Magazine.

John F. Kennedy Jr. surprised crowds at an aircraft convention.

Kennedy, 36, said he once flew solo but got sidetracked with law school. His fascination with flying goes back to childhood.

"Must have been all those helicopters landing on the front lawn," he said of his boyhood in the White House.

LOS ANGELES — One of America's most outspoken foes of gangsta rap says Tupac Shakur's crude lyrics about her have wrecked her sex life.

C. DeLores Tucker sued Shakur's estate for $10 million this week in federal court in Philadelphia, saying the slain rapper's 1996 double CD "All Eyez on Me" caused her "great humiliation, mental pain and suffering."

A gangsta rap foe says Tupac Shakur's lyrics about her wrecked her sex life.

She said the anguish caused by the sexual references to her undermined her sex life with her husband.

Richard Fischbein, co-administrator of Shakur's estate, said, "It's hard for me to conceive how these lyrics could destroy her sex life."

In 1994, Mrs. Tucker formed an anti-rap campaign with former U.S. drug czar William Bennett.

Shakur was shot to death in Las Vegas last September.

CLEVELAND — Charles Barkley was not to blame for a bar fight and won't have to pay damages to the other guy, a jury ruled Friday.

"I said from the beginning I didn't do anything wrong," the basketball star said.

Jeb Tyler, 24, a business equipment salesman from Spencerport, N.Y., had sued Barkley for $550,000.

Barkley had gone to the bar last summer while in Cleveland with the Olympic basketball team. He testified he pushed Tyler because he was a "drunk redneck" who was threatening him. Tyler was not hurt.

Tyler had offered to settle last week for $12,000, but Barkley's side turned it down.

"Why should I give him $12,000?" Barkley said. "He doesn't get a rebound. He doesn't get hit on the head by Karl Malone."

LOS ANGELES — Wanted: a top comedy actor who can pummel bad guys with martial arts moves while wearing religious garb.

After watching the success of "Air Force One," Roger Corman, the king of the low-budget horror-action pic, has decided to create his own twist on the story of a president battling terrorists about the White House plane.

Corman announced plans Thursday for "Vatican Air Two," an action-adventure comedy that features the pope as a martial artist who battles bad guys on his private jet with well-placed kicks and punches.

Corman said he's searching for a top comedy star to play the lead in the $8 million project.

Corman has produced more than 500 movies and directed more than 50 others. His directing credits include "The Intruder," "The Day the World Ended" and the 1960 version of "The Little Shop of Horrors," with Jack Nicholson.

FRANKLIN, Tenn. — Jennifer O'Neill hugged her family and friends and proclaimed "Justice is done" after a jury acquitted her of drunken driving.

The jury deliberated for three hours before returning the verdict Thursday.

"I've waited a year and a half for this for this," the "Summer of '42" star said. "I want to thank the jury and my Lord God."

O'Neill, 48, was stopped for speeding on Interstate 65 in 1996. O'Neill admitted driving over the speed limit, smelled of alcohol and failed two field sobriety tests, police said. She refused to take a blood-alcohol test.

O'Neill testified that she drank little more than a glass of wine and that some had spilled on her.

She acknowledged speeding but said she had been lost and wanted to get home to her children.

Robbins shows putting touch in setting pace at du Maurier

OAKVILLE, Ontario (AP) — Statistics say Kelly Robbins is a long-hitter, one of the longest on the LPGA tour.

The numbers also show uncanny accuracy off the tee and a deft touch on the greens.

It was the latter strength that helped Robbins shoot an 8-under-par 65 on Friday for a two-shot lead midway through the du Maurier Classic, the last of the LPGA's four major tournaments.

Robbins enjoyed a two-stroke lead over Sweden's Liselotte Neumann, who shot 67 in the second tour of Jack Nicklaus-designed Glen Abbey Golf Club's 6,367-yard course.

Juli Inkster shot a 69 and was alone at 139, three off the pace.

"I usually don't like hard, short courses because my advantage is my length," Robbins said. "But what has helped me is that the greens are really holding. I've really worked on my consistency in my putting — and here the putting is the key."

Among the statistical categories, Robbins leads the LPGA in greens hit in regulation — a testament to accuracy rather than length off the tee — birdies (243) and eagles (8).

"It's growing, it's the maturity," Robbins, 27, said. "I decided to spend a lot more time putting and getting a good routine."

The two-time All-American at Tulsa joined the LPGA in 1991 and has won a tournament each year since 1993.

Robbins found herself in the lead despite starting the first round with bogeys on the first three holes. She is 13-under for the last 33 holes she has played.

"I had seven birdies, an eagle and everything in between" on Thursday, Robbins said.

On Friday, Robbins hit 16 greens in regulation, birdied all five of the par-5s and made only one bogey.

Robbins has won twice already this season and has 10 top-10 finishes to her credit. She ranks second in the player of the year standings to Sorenstam, who shot 77 on Friday and, at 150, missed the cut.

Rosie Jones, four shots off the lead despite being one of the shorter drivers on the tour, realized why Robbins was on top.

"It plays to a player who has good course management," Jones said. "We play a lot of long courses so it's about time we play one like this.

"They're (the big hitters) are just crybabies anyway," she added, laughing. "Let them complain."

"If I were in a position to complain I probably would," Robbins said. "The greens have been really good for me and I've made some long putts.

"But I haven't been doing anything different."

Mickelson forges lead in soggy International

CASTLE ROCK, Colo. (AP) — Phil Mickelson, battling for a Ryder Cup berth, set a tournament record Friday to seize the early second-round lead in the weather-delayed Sprint International.

Mickelson, who scored 14 points in the first round under the modified Stableford scoring system used in this event, added 13 on Friday for a 36-hole total of 27 points.

It was an International record since the tournament went to cumulative scores in 1989; Dan Pohl had the old mark of 24 points in 1992.

Mickelson had a four-point lead over first-round co-leader Larry Mize, who had 23 points.

The scoring system awards 5 points for an eagle, 2 for birdie, zero for par, minus-1 for bogey and minus-3 for double bogey or worse.

Play was suspended by darkness with 45 golfers still on the course. Those players were scheduled to complete their second rounds Saturday morning. Because the field will be cut to exactly 72 players, a playoff might also be required. The field will be cut again to 24 for Sunday's final round.

The schedule was disrupted by rain and lightning on Thursday, which prevented half of the field from finishing. Those players completed the first round Friday morning, then began second-round play. Some golfers played as many as 33 holes on Friday, when the weather was perfect.

Zarley takes two-stroke lead in senior tourney

CONCORD, Mass. (AP) — After hitting some practice shots in mid-morning, aching Kermit Zarley felt he should have gone home instead of starting in the $1 million BankBoston Senior PGA Golf Classic on Friday.

A few hours later, he was happy he stuck around. Despite a painful left knee, he held a two-stroke lead with a 6-under-par 66, his best scoring round of the year.

"Not bad, not bau at all for a bad wheel and just 13 clubs in the bag," Zarley said after a bogey-free round at Nashawtuc Country Club. He said he played without a 3-wood because it had been damaged by his daughter as she got ready to caddy for him.

"The knee is in bad shape and I'll do whatever I can," Zarley said. "But I still need to do something about my club."

At 68 were Dana Quigley, Rick Acton, Frank Conner, Jerry McGee, John Jacobs and 65-year-old Gay Brewer, who won the Masters 30 years ago.

Hale Irwin, Dan Wood, Larry Mowry, Tony Jacklin, Walt Morgan, Tom Wargo and Jay Sigel were tied at 69.

Irwin, a three-time U.S. Open champion seeking his sixth senior title this year, went out in 33 but had to settle for par 36 on the back nine.

Defending champion Jim Dent had trouble on the 6,797-yard course despite ideal conditions, shooting 77.

Zarley, 55, said everything fell into place once he went to the first tee.

His drive was "a perfect shot, way out there" and he went on to birdie the hole with a 12-foot putt. He added five more birdies in a strong opening bid for his second victory since joining the tour in 1991.

Wind blows Woodruff, Chang into semifinals

Associated Press

MONTREAL — Michael Chang, the top seed, and unseeded Chris Woodruff took advantage of windy conditions on Friday to advance into the semifinals of the du Maurier Open tennis tournament.

Chang beat eighth-seeded Richard Krajicek 7-6 (7-5), 6-4 Friday night to advance into the semifinals against French Open champion Gustavo Kuerten, the sixth seed. He eliminated Fabrice Santoro of France 6-3, 7-6 (8-6).

Woodruff, ranked 57th in the world, beat seventh-seeded Mark Philippoussis 6-4, 6-4 to draw an assignment against fourth-seeded Yevgeny Kafelnikov of Russia, who wore down Sweden's Thomas Enqvist, the fifth seed, 7-5, 6-7 (7-9), 6-1.

"The wind works both ways," said Chang, who had lost five of seven previous matches against Krajicek, the 1996 Wimbledon champion. "It was swirling a bit today, so Richard was trying to get to the net as much as he could.

"He's a big boy (6-foot-5) and when he comes to the net, there's not much margin for error. If you don't hit the ball clean, the wind can take it."

The 5-foot-9 Chang led each set 5-2, only to drop a service game and help Krajicek keep the match close.

"You have to keep Richard guessing when he's coming to the net," Chang said. "You know you're going to get aced by him. The idea is to try to make the most of every other point."

The big hitters came away frustrated.

"It's difficult to serve in the wind and that's an important part of my game," Krajicek said. "He used the wind well. His lobs were carrying a little farther. He played a little smarter."

Philippoussis, the world's 13th-ranked player and holder of the ATP service record at 142 mph, said, "You can't expect to serve big when it's windy. I just hit into his range all the time.

"I hardly made him move at all. But I take nothing away from him. He played great."

Woodruff, 23, a former NCAA champion at Tennessee, has knocked off three seeded players on his way to the first semifinal of his career.

He fought off match point in the second round against Jan Siemerink, the 16th seed, when the Dutchman volleyed a passing shot into the net.

"I was lucky there," Woodruff said. "I shouldn't be here."

In the round of 16, Woodruff knocked out listless second-seeded Goran Ivanisevic of Croatia.

Then he beat Philippousis to advance against Kafelnikov in a match of two players who excel at service returns.

Philippoussis had not lost a service game in two previous matches, but double-faulted on break point four times against Woodruff.

"The wind was pretty swirly," Woodruff said. "I felt going in it would be an equalizer for me. It affected his ball-toss."

Hingis wins tight match over Martinez

CARLSBAD, Calif. — Martina Hingis struggled before she overcame Spain's Conchita Martinez 6-4, 6-4 in the quarterfinals of the $450,000 Toshiba Classic on Friday.

Hingis, the world's top-ranked women's tennis player, squandered a big second-set lead, letting seven match points slip away, before beating the seventh-seeded Martinez to reach the semifinals.

Hingis, the top seed from Switzerland, will play the winner of Friday night's Mary Pierce-Sandrine Testud match in Saturday's semifinals.

Martinez saved four match points in the 10th game of the second set, but hitt a backhander into the net to end the match.

"You don't really think about the match points," Hingis said. "You just really want to close the match. She was really hard to finish up. When you're up 6-4, 5-2 you think it's over."

Connors edges Noah

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — Jimmy Connors overcame 17 aces by Yannick Noah to post a 6-7 (2-7), 7-5, 6-1 victory Friday night at The Challenge over-35 tournament.

Connors, whose victory followed a two-hour rain delay, advanced to Sunday's final against the winner of Saturday's match between John McEnroe and Bjorn Borg at The Broadmoor.

Ask the Doctor

Dear Dr. Bombay: Is there a comprehensive dictionary for all this Nerdspeak? I was asked for my "POP3 server" and "SMTP server," and I don't have a clue. — Say what?

Dear What: Don't blame the geeks. They can't help it. Imagine what it must be like for them. Socially sequestered on an archipelago of their own making, they stare listlessly into their unblinking monitors, speaking only amongst themselves if they speak at all. Like a feral tribe of isolated backwoods denizens, their language devolves into a quasicoherent patois littered with shorthand expressions, incomprehensible terminology and words that only geeks think would make them sound cool if they said them.

And chief among their linguistic tools are the TLA (three-letter acronym) and the XTLA (extended three-letter acronym, anything longer than a standard TLA). Unfortunately, it's the geeks who write the programs and documentation the rest of us use to have fun with our computers, and their unintelligible alphabet soup has a tendency to slosh over into their work.

That's why your E-mail setup program asks you for something as arcane as POP3 and SMTP servers instead of "incoming" and "outgoing" mail servers. POP3 (Post Office Protocol 3) is just a method that Internet servers use to receive and hold your mail until you download it into your own computer. SMTP (Simple Mail Transfer Protocol) is the way your computer transmits a mail message out over the Net. If you don't know the name of your mail server — it'll be one of those something-dot-something-dot-something deals — call your Internet provider and ask for a nongeek.

And the next time you run across another TLA, just check out this URL: whatis.com

Dear Dr. Bombay: While at a home page, I downloaded an audio program .MDNM/titled "Beatnik" so my children could hear the sounds from the page. After I downloaded it I had lots of trouble with other programs. I deleted it, but I get messages that say "Beatnik cannot be accessed." — Beaten

Dear Beaten: What most people don't realize is that any time you install any new program — especially something like a browser add-on — it's like inviting your neighbor and his incontinent cocker spaniel Binky to come by for a visit. If you're really lucky, the carpet will survive unscathed. In this case, though, you'd better go straight out and rent a steam cleaner.

There's no way programmers can predict how their stuff will interact with your stuff. They do their best, but there are a lot of things that can go wrong, and, though.MDNM/ it would be extremely satisfying to rub their noses in it and swat them really hard with a rolled-up newspaper, that's not the real answer. Maybe a nice electric shock. ...

Of course, you need to take precautions, too. Any time you get your computer working the way you want it to, back up everything on tape immediately. If you don't have a tape drive, it'll only set you back around $200.

And if you've installed something you know is causing problems, don't just delete it. Look for an uninstall option (or check Add/Remove Programs in Windows 95's control panel) so it can be removed properly. If it's too late for that, you'll probably need to bite the bullet and remove and reinstall your browser. And this time put some newspaper down. May I suggest the one you're reading?

Internet industry 'not even close to peaking'

By Jon Swartz
N.Y. Times News Service

■ Summer Internet World

CHICAGO — The Internet's meteoric rise is far from over. The party is just beginning.

Those were the unfettered observations of revelers at the Summer Internet World 97 show here this week. They say the 2-year-old industry is not even close to peaking in popularity — in fact, it's on the cusp of another boom period.

"We see no end in sight," said Alan Taffel, vice president of marketing and business development at Uunet Technologies Inc., a Fairfax, Va., Internet service provider. "This is just the start of a long-term phenomenon."

The biggest opportunity, industry observers said, is in big business, where many corporations still rely on leased lines and public data services for communications. Many are just now turning to the Internet, after balking because of concerns over online security and quality of service.

Others said the integration of "killer apps," — software programs that improve video, sound and fax services on the Net — will fuel even greater growth in the corporate and consumer markets.

In a keynote speech on Wednesday, Novell Inc. chief executive Eric Schmidt said the Web will provide companies with a "service model" for "information utilities."

All told, the momentum of the Net appears to be unstoppable, said show goers at Internet World.

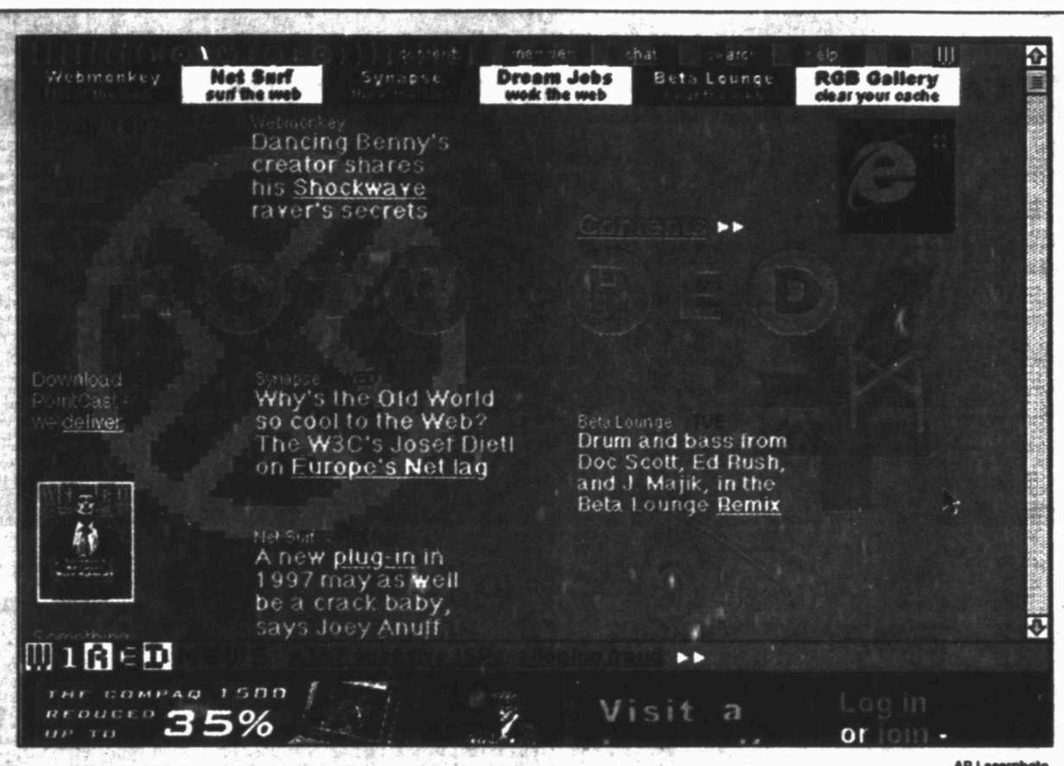

"The rate of change on the Internet is like dog years. For every year in the PC market, it's like seven on the Internet," said Brewster Kahle, chief executive of San Francisco-based Alexa Internet, one of 300 exhibitors at the show. "It is a blistering pace."

Uunet has come up with its own phrase to describe the widespread acceptance of the Net: "Internet Law."

Based on "Moore's Law," which states that the performance of a personal computer will double every 18 months at the same price, "Internet Law" claims that the data-transmission capacity demands of consumers doubles every three to four months.

"Our network has to grow by a fac-

Rewired HotWired clever, clunky

By Michael Saunders
N.Y. Times News Service

Wandering through the new HotWired site is alternately annoying and enlightening, like living with someone who likes to rearrange the furniture "just because."

Expect several severe shin whacks until you realize that the new place for the coffee table gives the room a better flow, to say nothing of the added feng shui. Similar hazards crop up at www.hotwired. com, the on-line companion to Wired magazine, which debuted its makeover on July 1. It is a wonderfully designed site that seeks to be both informative and intuitive. It really wants you to know immediately where everything is, but really should supply knee pads.

First the lowlights: The strip of words in a frame below the site's Synapse section is an ad for a new Oldsmobile, but it's deceptively similar to the text excerpts that open the editorial content of the print magazine. This is likely more than just an oversight or a design glitch and earns the site a tongue cluck and shame-shame finger waggle. Site readers are likely to click on the highlighted words and expect more than just a slick wallet tug, so the frame should be clearly marked as an ad link. (Oldsmobile's new logo won't pass muster either; the company is trying a Stealth marketing approach, a la Infiniti and is hiding behind an intriguing name.)

Taking Clinton to task on CDA, Court's decision

President changes his position on how we should patrol the Internet

By Hiawatha Bray

■ Opinion

The nice thing about having a Rhodes scholar for president is that it usually takes just one whack upside the head for him to figure things out.

Last month, the US Supreme Court took a 2-by-4 to Bill Clinton for backing the Communications Decency Act, a flagrantly unconstitutional law to protect children against "indecent" material on the Internet. Last week at the White House, Clinton proved he'd gotten the message. Surrounded by computer industry executives, the president vowed to push voluntary measures to protect kids from online sex and violence.

As the president belatedly discovered, parents and employers can control Internet access without help from federal cops. Smut-blockers, such as Microsystems Software Inc.'s Cyber Patrol, let computer users set their own rules. And new filtering products keep popping up.

A California firm called Log-On Data Corp. offers an impressive entrant called XStop. As with many such programs, XStop includes a built-in list of smutty sites that are automatically blocked when you try to visit them. But XStop claims to be far more thorough than its competitors. The company's secret weapon is quaintly named Mudcrawler, a program that constantly trolls the Internet in search of pornography, violence, and all-around bad

Microsoft unveils details for '98 OS

N.Y. Times News Service

SEATTLE — Microsoft Corp. unveiled some of the changes slated for the update to its Windows 95 operating system, which brings some of the attributes of World Wide Web navigation to the computer desktop.

At a half-day briefing for analysts and the media, executives of the No. 1 personal computer software maker said the update will officially be named Windows 98 and will be shipped in the first quarter of 1998. The product had originally been scheduled for release late this summer, although analysts expected it to be delayed until the December or early

Check out 'One True Cringley' on the Web

By Dwight Silverman
N.Y. Times News Service

In his original incarnation as a writer for the trade magazine InfoWorld, writer Robert X. Cringely delivered scoops in his weekly computer-industry gossip column that ended up the next day in the New York Times. Cringely's Notes from the Field was a must-read.

"Today, when I have a scoop, I have to call the New York Times and tell them about it," Cringely says.

That's because Cringely — whose real name is Mark Stevens — is no longer doing the column for InfoWorld. Instead, he's starring on his own Web site hosted by PBS with the whimsical title "I, Cringely." He's discovering both the joys and limitations of the Web as a mass medium.

"When I was writing for InfoWorld, I had half a million readers every week," he said. "The audience on PBS.org is much broader and much shallower."

SURF THE NET. SEE THE WORLD

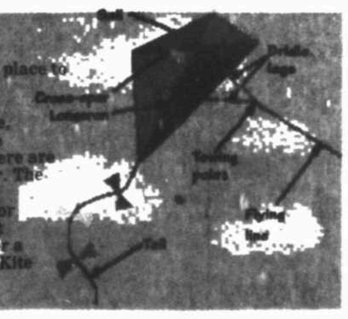

So your family is not going on a great vacation this year? That's OK, because you can take off on your own to visit countries all over the world through the World Surfari at http://www.supersurf.com/ This cool site was invented by a kid so other kids can learn about people, their history and culture from around the globe. And it's one you'll want to visit again and again because it features a different country every month. While "traveling" through the site, be sure to check out "Fun From Afar" to see photos and learn the recipes and languages of each featured country. And don't just settle for the tourist's view: Get to know kids through the international message center. Pack that cyber suitcase and take off!

GRAB A COMET BY THE TAIL

If you're a stargazer or a space cadet, chances are you saw Comet Hale-Bopp fly through the sky on a clear night. After all, Hale-Bopp's spectacular passage across the solar system caught the attention of scientists and hobbyists alike. The Scientific American "Trail of Hale-Bopp" home page gives you a variety of perspectives on this show in the heavens. Just point your virtual satellite to http://www.sciam.com/exhibit/033197hale-bopp/033197bopp.html There are comet animations, images and detailed reports to keep you up-to-date on Hale-Bopp's progress. If you're a real star snoop, you can read yearlong observations on the comet from the Hubble Space Telescope. Want more? "Trail of Hale-Bopp" has links to lots of other comet sites across the Internet, including the NASA Comet Watch, the Comet Fact Sheet, and information for photographers. It'll be worth your while to become an expert. After all, the next comet flying through space could be named after you!

Dear Amy: I haven't found a way to find interesting sites. Do you recommend any sites or ways to get them? —Andrea, Campton, KY

Dear Andrea: Here's what I do to find interesting things on the Web. To start, I go to Yahooligans at http://www.yahooligans.com/ or I go to one of my old favorites like Kids Corner at http://www.jumppoint.com/kids/kids.html and see if they've added anything new. Don't forget to bookmark any interesting Web sites you find and write down URLs you hear about or see in your local newspaper. If you want to search for something, ask your parents to help you before you use search engine.

Dear Amy: Why do we need plug-ins? Are the plug-ins for the Internet free, and how much memory do they take up?—Jessica, Camirillo, CA

Dear Jessica: There are lots of sound files and things like interactive games that need plug-ins to run. When you click on one of these files, your browser checks to see if it has the right plug-in. If not, you'll get a message telling you where to get what you need. If the message doesn't tell you, check out http://home.netscape.com/comprod/mirror/navcomponents_download.html to learn where to download, how to install it and how much memory it may take. They're usually free.

WIRED: UnfURLed, Mungopark, Smarty Pants offer hip content

dy that, after spending 10 minutes tinkering with it, makes you think about all the other work you could be doing.

Highlights: The new site wisely incorporates the best features from the previous versions, including funny tutorials from the Webmonkey, cogent social commentary from Jon Katz, and a list of Dream Jobs. The trippy electronica in the Beta Lounge has been fortified with Java applets and dynamic HTML, as have many of the new sections.

Synapse, once readers rescue themselves from the ad trap, is a must-read section that combines the best elements of Packet and The Net-izen. David Shenk looks at the proliferation of Web come-ons for "free" stuff that are rarely ever free, while Janelle Brown comments on how the facelessness of the 'Net has heightened ugly behavior between genders.

HotWired members (membership is free, although you provide registration info) can craft their own pages at www.hotwired.com/members. Hotshot HTML coders can try to emulate the same sort of dynamic HTML built into the site's front door. The whirling, flashing images are better than any doorbell.

Match made in heaven or unholy alliance?

Last week, MTV and Yahoo! launched unfURLed, a site billed as "the ultimate guide to music on the Web." It's a statement that rings true only for anyone who thinks MTV is the ultimate guide to music on TV.

Like its videodrone sibling, www.unfurled.com limits its focus to the corporate alternative rock that has potential as an aid to advertising. Neither is very innovative. The site is updated several times a day with info culled from wire services and MTV News. It's arranged into five main categories that have varying degrees of usefulness:

Smarty Rants, a compilation of Web-based music journalism; Encyclomedia, a compendium of content-rich music sites; Gossip, Gossip, Gossip, which as the name suggests is news about performers; Totally Wack, a selection of quirky music sites; and Riffs Online, sites featuring real-time music and cybercasts.

With MTV providing content and a brand name, and Yahoo! the Web-based distribution, unfURLed seems a savvy marketing decision by both companies. These kinds of hybrids have proliferated over the past six months, but more time will tell if this cross-promotional deal will result in the sort of advertising numbers needed to stay afloat.

The Hemingway pilgrimage is a well-trod route traveled by countless writers and even more Papa pretenders. It's the hoariest men's magazine chestnut — still likely to turn up in Esquire or GQ when submissions are slow — but the online travel mag Mungo Park gives that literary martini a different twist.

The latest issue, www.mungopark.com, follows actress Mariel Hemingway as she journeys to Cuba for the first time and explores some of her grandfather's haunts. Her impressions have been logged during the trip with daily reports from the field that prove to be more interesting than enlightening. We learn little about either Hemingway by reading the dispatches, but Cuba, a country in a state of quiet transition, always seems good fodder for exploration.

Perhaps Mariel Hemingway will have more to share during a live 'Net chat, Wednesday at 9 p.m. on the Mungo Park site.

A consultant friend at Digital reports that the Amazing Dancing Baby animation has achieved full-fledged cult hit status. It's one of the funniest uses of technology since the fishtank cam. There are several dancing baby pages, but the best is the Unofficial Amazing Dancing Baby page at www.nwlink.com/~xott/baby.htm

INDUSTRY: Evolution begets 'Net revolution

(From 1C)

tor of 10 every year," Taffel said. "What other industry is even close to that rate?"

The Internet's rapid growth has forced industry heavyweights such as IBM Corp., Microsoft Corp. and Hewlett-Packard Co. to scramble to weave the Web into their sprawling business operations.

"The Internet evolution is creating a business revolution," said Dave Hinman, Internet business development manager at Palo Alto-based HP.

To harness the runaway growth, HP is in the process of Web-ifying its business model so that its printer, PC and server divisions are working in sync with its Net activities. The company is also stepping up efforts to market Internet products and services, Hinman said, although he declined to say how.

Another indication of the growth of the Net is that spending on Web ads more than doubled in the first half of this year, to $217.3 million, according to the newsletter Electronic Advertising & Marketplace Report.

Even the Internet trade-show industry seems to be thriving. Mecklermedia, the Westport, Conn., organizer of this week's show, announced plans to launch a Web conference for consumers next January in Boston.

It now runs four Internet shows a year — twice as many annually as Comdex and Macworld Expo.

MICROSOFT: 'Continuous reinvention' helps meet changing needs

The new operating system, codenamed Memphis, is designed to help computer users be more productive, by adding new features to make basic tasks easier and allowing them to integrate graphics, text and information from the Internet into their programs.

"Software isn't always as resilient as we'd like," said Jim Allchin, senior vice president of the personal and business systems group at Microsoft. "We're going to continue to expand in terms of making the (Windows) system simpler, more information rich and more resilient."

Microsoft outlined a Windows strategy called "continuous reinvention," which is designed to help meet businesses and individuals' changing needs by developing improvements and features that simplify basic tasks, allow workgroups to share documents more efficiently and integrate new features with existing applications.

"We are confident Windows 98 will be a better experience than Windows 95," said Paul Maritz, group vice president of the platform and applications group.

Microsoft is very bullish on the personal computer industry, he said. More than 100 million units of its 32-bit Windows operating system are currently in use. The company expects those numbers to increase as more businesses replace computer terminals and look to improve their "digital nervous system," or computer network systems.

The Redmond, Washington-based software company demonstrated how its browser, Internet Explorer, will be integrated into the operating system. Computer users can reach their favorite Web sites by clicking on icons or typing in the Web address on their toolbar. They will be able to pull information automatically from Web sites, or channels, that they specified.

Integration of the browser with the operating system is targeted at gaining market share from Netscape Communications Corp., the Internet software leader in the browser market with 65 percent to 70 percent market share, analysts have said. All the shortcuts to the Internet are designed to be routed through Microsoft's Internet Explorer, even if the user ordinarily uses Netscape products.

The company also demonstrated improvements that allow users to monitor activities. When users click on an icon, another screen pops up to show them the contents of the folder so they can view Internet pages, documents and files at the same time.

Windows 98 will include Direct X, multimedia improvements that give users more realistic graphics and sharper images when playing video games or running video clips.

Microsoft's theme of simplicity extends to its Office product, which is a suite of word processing, spreadsheet and database applications. Users will be able to share comments on common documents that a workgroup is revising. They'll be able to include comments in the document itself or view them as a whole in a separate document. The company also offers ways to sort e-mail so that the most urgent letters or those from specified users rise to the top of the list.

Maritz took swipes at competitors Sun Microsystems Inc. and Oracle Corp., downplaying the importance of Sun's Java programming language and Oracle's network computer concept.

He called Java "largely a joke," saying it doesn't work well on all platforms and isn't as significant a phenomenon as people would like it to be. He also said network computers, stripped-down terminals with no storage space, are unlikely to replace personal computers because they are either expensive terminals running Windows applications or incompatible with Windows.

The company will hold its annual meeting with financial analysts tomorrow, offering its strategy and projections for growth over the next year.

CRINGELY: Writer's column is high point of web site

(From 1C)

Those who haven't found "I, Cringely" yet at http://www.pbs.org/cringely don't know what they're missing. It's easily the best-written, most insightful look at the business on the Web. It's also pretty darned funny.

Stevens has turned Cringely into a small dynasty. In 1993, he wrote a successful and critically acclaimed history of the personal computer industry called "Accidental Empires: How the Boys of Silicon Valley Make Their Millions, Battle Foreign Competition, and Still Can't Get a Date," which was updated last year. The book was turned into a hit PBS documentary called "Triumph of the Nerds" that aired last year and featured Stevens-as-Cringely narrating.

"They (PBS) liked me, and I liked them," he said. "So when they came to me and proposed that we do this Web site deal, I agreed. I liked the idea."

"I, Cringely" has several parts, all built around a weekly column that he writes exclusively for the site. Also featured are a reader feedback page; a list of Web sites related to each week's topic; a brief bio; a Frequently Asked Questions document; and an intriguing feature called Lunch, in which "Bob dines with the bigwigs."

It is the column that is the most compelling component of the site.

Cringely writes in a simple, clear style loaded with self-deprecating humor. He tackles subjects as diverse as the growing programming community in India to the fall of Gil Amelio at Apple. He has challenged Intel's claims about the power of its Pentium MMX chips and revealed the ugly truth about 56-kilobit modems.

CDA: Clinton still wants FBI to have access to your email taste.

Log-On Data chief executive Michael Bradshaw told me Mudcrawler scans the Internet daily, looking for 47 types of material from sexual content to drug use. Under each category, the program runs a series of tests. For instance, if a site contains the word "X-rated," Mudcrawler will count the Xs, because hardcore porn sites often describe themselves as "XXXXX-rated." If a site flunks a few tests, Mudcrawler pays no mind. But if it flunks a number of them, the site is reviewed by an actual person, who can put it on the blocking list. This list is updated daily, not weekly or monthly as with some other products.

But XStop can do more than filter sleaze. It also boasts a search engine monitor that kicks in if you try to look up certain words. Visit Yahoo or Lycos and try to run a search on the word "sex," and you're busted. The program also detects attempts to type certain offensive words in any program. Say you're writing a memo in Microsoft Word, and you include an off-color remark. XStop will flash a message on your screen, ordering you to cut it out. If you don't, the program locks up your computer, and you're forced to reboot.

Boston-based Inso Corp. has developed a similar technology but has yet to put it into a consumer product. XStop is available now for Windows and Macintosh computers. It sells for $39.95 — with an additional fee of $29.95 a year to download the blocking list — and can be ordered at http://www.xstop.com. A version for computer networks is also available.

Spooky as XStop seems, a Medford, Mass. company called NetSnitch may be even more insidious: It forces you to do your own Web filtering. The program, available only for Windows 95 and NT machines, costs $39.95 and can be downloaded at http://www.netsnitch.com.

NetSnitch doesn't restrict the words you can type. It doesn't even block Web sites. It just keeps a list of every site the computer visits. A wary parent can keep an eye on the kids by running an eye down the list, which is password-protected so the young 'uns can't alter it. If you see Junior's been visiting a site with "X-rated" in the title, you'll know it's time to have that chat about birds and bees.

In a way, NetSnitch is less intrusive than the typical filtering product. There's no group of strangers deciding what you ought not to see. With NetSnitch you can surf as you like, but remember that your boss — or your mother — can check up on you. It's called deterrence. Don't laugh. It won the Cold War.

There'll be plenty more sleaze filters now that the Supremes have declared that the First Amendment applies to the Internet. But the education of Clinton remains incomplete. He still wants to limit your use of encryption software that could guarantee your privacy. The president says the FBI should retain the right to read your e-mail. I say the high court should reach for another 2-by-4.

Introduction to the Internet

Friday, August 8th
8:30 am - 5:00 pm

This class will introduce you to the ins and outs of the Internet, and will focus specifically on the often vague answer to a very straight-forward question:

"How do I get on the Internet, and what do I do once I am there?"

This class will show you how to get on the Internet.

And, it covers the topics: What you need to connect; hardware and software considerations; SLIP and PPP connections; what is TCP/IP; finding a service provider; using software tools to locate information on the 'Net; using FTP, Archie, Gopher, Telnet; accessing Newsgroups; e-mail and mailing lists; how to access the World Wide Web; using Netscape, the most popular WWW browser; understanding URL's and Hypertext; and anti-virus protection.

Estimates indicate up to 75,000 possible cancer cases from bomb tests

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Fallout from 1950s nuclear bomb tests exposed millions of children across the country to radioactive iodine, raising the possibility that 10,000 to 75,000 of them might develop thyroid cancer, the National Cancer Institute said Friday.

But government doctors emphasized they have no proof this radioactive substance causes thyroid cancer, so their estimate is a worst-case scenario. Nobody was tested in the NCI study.

"We do not feel that we have the data to support the idea that there was a large risk. On the other hand, we cannot rule it out," said Dr. Richard Klausner, NCI's director.

Independent thyroid experts immediately urged caution, noting that even if a link is proved, thyroid cancer grows very slowly and is highly curable.

"What we don't want to have happen is mass hysteria about this," said Dr. Stanley Feld, past president of the American Association of Clinical Endocrinologists.

If the estimate is accurate, 30 percent of the radiation-related cancers already would have been diagnosed in the 40 years since the blasts, the NCI said.

Anyone worried about fallout exposure during childhood should get a thyroid exam, the NCI advised.

'We do not feel that we have the data to support the idea that there was a large risk. On the other hand, we cannot rule it out.'

—Dr. Richard Klausner, Director National Cancer Institute

The government asked the prestigious Institute of Medicine to determine within six months the health risks raised by the radiation study and recommend whether people need routine thyroid testing.

Everyone living in the 48 contiguous states between 1951 and 1958 received some fallout from 90 nuclear bomb tests in Nevada, the NCI study found.

People who lived directly downwind of the tests already were known to have been heavily exposed, especially in southwest Utah, where some people have been compensated by the government. But wind and rain can carry radiation far afield, so NCI spent 14 years studying county-by-county fallout.

Average national exposure was 2 rads, about five times the radiation delivered by a modern mammogram.

But 25 counties — in Montana, Utah, Idaho, Colorado and South Dakota — were exposed to an average of 9 to 16 rads, enough to be called hot spots. Dozens of other counties throughout the Farm Belt and Northwest received above-average fallout as well.

Children living in the most-exposed areas received five to seven times the average fallout, the NCI said.

Adults at the time have little risk, because the radioactive iodine-131 concentrates most in the thyroids of children and is spread mostly by drinking contaminated milk. Particularly risky was goats' milk or fresh milk from backyard cows. Processed milk allowed more time for the iodine to dissipate; it was gone within two months of each Nevada blast.

The NCI study did not actually test any person. But the government already recommends precautionary medical monitoring for people exposed to more than 10 rads of iodine-131.

And NCI doctors separately concluded that if the radiation proves cancer-causing, then 10,000 to 75,000 thyroid cancers might develop from the fallout. That number would be in addition to the almost half a million cases of thyroid cancer that would normally occur among the 95 million Americans who were children during the 1950s blasts.

"The increase ... from these very rough calculations, would be a maximum 10 (percent) to 15 percent increase," Klausner added. "That is significant, that's a lot of thyroid cancer," but it's only a rough estimate, he stressed.

Iodine-131's effect is still unclear. External radiation, from such sources as strong X-rays, is known to cause thyroid cancer. But the evidence that ingesting radioactive iodine is harmful is "suggestive but not conclusive," the NCI said.

Children downwind of the 1986 Chernobyl nuclear explosion in the former Soviet Union do have increased thyroid cancer, but the iodine exposures there ranged up to 10 times higher than U.S. exposures — so Klausner emphasized that no one knows what a risky dose is. It will be three to five years before Chernobyl studies answer that question.

"The experts tell us if you grew up east of the Nevada test site and drank fresh milk, get your thyroid checked," said Bob Schaeffer of the watchdog Military Production Network, which criticized the NCI for not releasing the information more quickly.

The NCI has had much of the fallout data since 1994, but did not release estimates of average county exposures until Friday. It will release the full, 100,000-page study by Oct. 1.

To check fallout county by county, Internet users can log onto the NCI's Web site at http://rex.nci.nih.gov

Union of churches beneficial to community

Staff Report

It's been over 30 years since the Spruce St. and Terrell St. congregations joined together to form what is now known as Westway Church of Christ, 1701Hughes St. Since that union, the church has grown to a congregation of 75 members and offers several activities for families, parents, teens and singles.

An active member of the Midland church community for over 50 years, Westway offers members the chance to participate through leading the singing, prayers and even teaching during worship services conducted at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sundays and 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays. Members also conduct Biblically-based home study groups for parents, teens, young couples and adults. Many are also involved in caring for the sick and in helping Midland's senior citizenry.

Evangelist Duane Permenter and his family celebrated their first year at the church this summer, and it is with their help and direction that Westway continues to grow and thrive.

Many are involved in caring for the sick and in helping Midland's senior citizens at Westway Church of Christ.

During the last 18 months, elders Alfred Baze and Art Oestmann have been overseeing an intensive training of parents to "raise positive children in a negative world." The work started with the education of several families about their responsibilities toward home and children. The elders soon realized that training in other areas of life was very important and the help of the then California-based Permenter was solicited. Permenter, his wife, Laurie, and their two children, Philip and Hannah, moved to Midland in June of last year.

Bible Talk, a 24-hour recorded message, is available to anyone by calling 520-0381. The weekly topic can be found in the Midland Reporter-Telegram's daily classified section. Each Sunday a new question and sermon is introduced. The sermon lasts from 5-8 minutes and the line has logged about 1,000 callers since the service began. Recently, someone asked about the doctrine of the Trinity, and Bible Talk will respond with a sermon on that topic on Aug. 24.

In February of this year, the church realized more of its goals when the ordination of deacons John Brickey and Oestmann was conducted. Both men had worked in earnest to qualify and the church selected them to serve. Their appointment was assisted by Pastor Permenter.

Along with the elders and deacons, there are many individuals working to serve in whatever capacity possible. Young, middle age and senior citizens alike have become involved in the growth and work of Westway Church of Christ. The oversight of the eldership has proven positive in numerous ways, but the most obvious sight is the fact that the church has grown by eight new members within the last year.

If you have any questions, please call Westway Church of Christ, at 520-6508.

RELIGION IN BRIEF

Appreciation services

Goodwill Missionary Baptist Church, 1508 S. Main St., is hosting two appreciation services for its pastor and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. Leroy Lengyon, this month.

The services are set for 7:30 p.m. Friday and 3 p.m. Aug. 10. The theme comes from 2 Timothy 4:2. The public is invited to attend.

Speaker scheduled

F. Marvin Myers will speak on "Improving Administrative Effectiveness" at noon Friday at a meeting of the Permian Basin Chapter of the National Association of Church Business Administration at First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas Ave.

Myers is executive director of the NACBA.

A beef and fajita lunch will be available for $4. The public is invited to attend. Reservations for lunch must be made by noon Wednesday by calling Drew Anderson or Donna Cannon at First Presbyterian, 684-7821.

The NACBA is an interdenominational Christian organization which exists to professionally train, certify, and provide resources for those serving in the field of church business administration. NACBA is represented locally by the Permian Basin Chapter which meets monthly in various churches in the area. For more information about the NACBA or the Permian Basin Chapter call Lynda Johnson at First Methodist Church, 682-3701.

Myers has been executive director for 16 years and has been instrumental in the association's growth and development. Before coming to this position, Myers served as management consultant for five years at the Baptist Sunday School Board, Nashville, Tenn.

Previously, he had been a minister of youth, music and education with churches in Mississippi and Texas. He also served as minister of education and administration for the North Richland Hills Baptist Church, Fort Worth.

Myers received the bachelor of arts degree from Mississippi College and a Master of religious education and administration from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary. He has done additional studies in management with the American Management Association and the Christian Management Association.

He has written for various church management publications and developed training materials for Southern Baptist churches. He has led management conference across the country during the last 20 years, and is a regular seminar leader in the NACBA certification programs.

Myers is the author and compiler of a book, "Managing the Business Affairs of the Church," published by Convention Press of the Baptist Sunday School Board.

He also serves as an adult Bible teacher, on various committees at his church, and as a resource person for church staffs.

Missionary fair

The Missionary Fair at the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, 1412 W. Illinois Ave., begins at 10 a.m. Aug. 17 in the Parish Hall.

This time is set aside to register for classes this fall. Sunday School classes for 3 through high school begin Aug. 17.

For more information call 683-4207.

Additionally, the church will be offering the Alpha Program beginning Sept. 7 from 6 to 8 p.m. for 10 weeks. The Alpha Program began 20 years ago when a clergyman, the Rev. Charles Marnham, began looking for a means of presenting the basic principles of the Christian faith in a relaxed and informal setting.

He devised the idea of the Alpha Course, which is for all those interested in finding out more about the Christian faith and is designed for non-churchgoers as well as new Christians. Dinner is included and sitters are provided.

For more information on the Alpha Program call the Rev. Stockton Williams or the Rev. Jeff Fouts, 683-4207.

Feng Shui workshop

The Discovery of Life Church, 2311 Elizabeth Ave., is hosting a Beginners Feng Shui workshop from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Aug. 9.

Teaching the workshop will be Feng Shui Master Steve Tomblyn of Albuquerque, N.M. The workshop is open to the public.

For more information call 684-4230. The church is located across from the red Cross building.

Building dedication

The Samaritan Counseling Center of West Texas, Inc., at Midland International Airport is dedicating a new building Aug. 17.

This fall the center will offer a seminar on Adult ADD on Sept. 13, a free depression screening at satellite locations Oct. 9, and its third annual Family of the Year banquet Oct. 23 at 7:30 p.m. at green tree Country Club. The banquet will feature gardening expert Neil Sperry speaking on "Gardening for the Heart."

Guest speaker

Dennis Clayton is the guest speaker at 10:30 a.m. Sunday at the Unitarian Universalist Church, 3301 Neely at Midkiff Road.

He will speak on the renovation of the Midland downtown area. A Midland architect, Clayton is working with Rhotenberry Wellen on this project.

Child care will be provided. The public is invited to attend.

Missionaries return

Midlanders T.C. and Iris Tubb have recently returned from a year-long service mission in Salt Lake City, at Temple Square, for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Theirs was not a proselyting mission. They served the more than five million annual visitors to Temple Square, location of the landmark Mormon Tabernacle and Temple.

Mr. and Mrs. Tubb were released from their mission July 2, and are scheduled to give a report and to be welcomed home at Midland Second Ward's sacrament meeting set for 1 p.m. Aug. 10 at 4805 Gateway St. Visitors and friends are welcome.

Group honored

ODESSA — First Presbyterian Church here is honoring the 25th anniversary of the creation of Youth Inc. today and Sunday.

The church's Christian youth fellowship group for junior and senior high school students was renamed Youth Inc. in 1972.

Plans include a 3 p.m. cookout in the church's courtyard today and an 8 p.m. vespers service and communion with the Rev. Peggy Brown, the Rev. Ray Hickman and the Rev. Bill Clark.

On Sunday, Youth Inc. Sunday School class for all members past and present is at 9:30 a.m. During the 11 a.m. worship service special seating will be provided for Youth Inc. members.

For more information call the church office, 1-915-337-3526.

Alpha course

Exploring the meaning of life, what happens at death, dealing with guilt, and looking at the relevance of Jesus Christ will be covered in a 10-week Alpha course starting Sept. 8 at St. Nicholas' Episcopal Church, 2900 Princeton Ave.

Each session will start with a catered dinner in the Parish Hall at 6 p.m. the sessions close at 9 p.m.

"This course is open to anyone interesting in finding out more about the Christian faith," said Bob Bledsoe, administrator for the program. "Adults of all ages and backgrounds are welcome."

Weekly topics include "Who is Jesus?" "Why Did He Die?" "How to read the Bible," "Pray and Overcome evil," "Hearing the Holy Spirit" and "Does God heal today?"

"People can ask anything in this class," Bledsoe said. "Alpha is a place where no question is seen as too simple or too hostile."

For more information about Alpha or to register call the church, 694-8856.

Duo to perform

The husband and wife singing duo of Steve and Annie Chapman will be in concert at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 7 at First Baptist Church, 2104 W. Louisiana Ave.

In addition, the couple, who have been called "musical ambassadors to the family" by author and psychologist Dr. James Dobson, will conduct a marriage seminar from 2 to 5 p.m. Sept. 6 entitled "Married Lovers, Married Friends," and perform at First Baptist Church's 8:20, 9:40 and 11 a.m. services Sept. 7.

All events are free. Child care will be provided. The community is invited to attend.

Gene E. Hilburn is serving as the local coordinator. For more information call 683-0645 or 683-0600.

Revival services

Dellwood Baptist Church, corner of Ohio Avenue and Midkiff Road, is hosting revival services Aug. 3-6.

Special speaker will be evangelist Mark Cole. Services Aug. 3 will be at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday School is at 9:30 a.m. Services Aug. 4-6 will be at 7 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

New minister

ODESSA — The Rev. John F. Dickerson begins his ministry at Crescent Park Baptist Church, 3002 E. University Boulevard, Sunday. He will be preaching in all services — 8 and 11 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Dickerson graduated from Georgia State University in 1987. He received his Master of Arts from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1990 and completed his doctor of ministry at Trinity Theological Seminary in 1996.

He served as a minister of youth and education at the Indian Hills Baptist Church, Grand Prairie, and associate pastor at First Baptist Church, Round Rock. For the last four years, he has served as pastor of First Baptist Church-Hebron, Carrollton.

He is married to the former Jeanette Tidmore, and they have three children, Joshua, Jessica and Jacob.

The public is invited to hear him speak.

Bible Study

St. Mark's United Methodist Church, 1701 N. Main St., plans a 34-week disciple Bible study which will begin with the start of the school year around Aug. 17.

The study will be led by church member Jamie Jackopin who attended a three-day session in Dallas for the instructor's course. The study is group based and covers around 70 percent f the Bible.

A 2 and a half hour group meeting will be held weekly, and 30 minutes of daily reading will be necessary. A class meeting is planned after Sunday's service at the church to discuss details of time and date for the first class.

Also, the church's Mother's Day Out program is registering children of the fall semester which begins Aug. 19. Children ages 6 weeks through 5 years old are welcome. Gymnastics by Midland Trampoline and Tumbling is available. Classes are limited. Hours are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Preschool for the 1997-98 school year is available from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and will feature the Letter People. Stay-n-Play after preschool is included until 3 p.m. For more information call Karin Sanford, director, 683-3339 or 697-2649.

Congregation to vote

Hope Lutheran Church, 2003 N. A St., will hold a Congregational Meeting following the morning worship service.

The purpose of the meeting is to consider the recommendation of the Church Council and the Church Call Committee, then a vote will be taken on the recommendation to extend a call to the Rev. Ekhart Grimm.

All members are encouraged to attend. Sunday School is at 9:20 a.m. and the church service at 10:30 a.m.

Exercise classes

Exercise classes for older adults are being held from 11 to 11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday at First United Methodist Church, downtown at Main Street and Ohio Avenue.

The exercises are being led by Evelyn Glover of Nurses Unlimited in the Fellowship Hall. Classes are open to the public at no charge.

Fall Bazaar

The Holy Cross Lutheran Church Women's Guild is preparing for its Fifth Annual Fall Bazaar set for 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sept. 20 at the Midland County Exhibit Building.

Booths are available for the bazaar. For more information call 520-3194.

Industry touts new research, but cholesterol doubts remain

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national ad campaign this summer seems to claim the last word on eggs and cholesterol: "More studies say eggs are OK," it declares, over a picture of a pepper-and-mushroom omelette.

The advertisement continues: "The conclusion: If you're healthy, go right ahead and enjoy your eggs. Your cholesterol will probably stay about the same."

Nutritionists caution, however, that people with cholesterol problems — and certainly people with heart disease — should still be careful about how many eggs they eat.

Sweeping generalizations are unwise, because cholesterol in the diet affects people of all ages and health statuses differently, cautions Wahida Karmally, director of nutrition at Columbia University's Irving Center for Clinical Research.

"Some people's blood cholesterol will go up, and some people's won't go up," Karmally said. "It is definitely less potent in raising blood cholesterol than saturated fat. But we cannot just bypass cholesterol altogether, because it does have an impact on some people."

Adds Bonnie Liebman of the consumer group Center for Science in the Public Interest, who's critical of the industry ads: "Less impact does not mean trivial impact."

Since the mid-1960s, when studies first detailed the damage that cholesterol can do to arteries, the egg has been the most familiar symbol of the substance.

It has suffered accordingly.

The average person ate 320 eggs a year in 1967; today that's down to roughly 237 a year. The American Heart Association recommends that people limit consumption to four egg yolks a week, and says some people at risk of heart disease shouldn't eat them at all.

Take Leon Rothenberg, a 78-year-old retiree who lives in Chevy Chase, Md. He's heard of the new research but said he's sticking to his doctor's recommendation that he eat no more than two eggs a week.

The ad campaign, which has run widely on television and in print, is based on a University of Arizona analysis of 224 studies conducted since 1966 involving more than 8,000 people.

The analysis found that for most people, high-cholesterol foods such as eggs have less impact on dangerous cholesterol in the bloodstream than foods high in saturated fats.

Other studies have reported similar results, but none involved so many people over so long a time.

"It dispels long-held myths about what foods will and won't increase their risk for coronary heart disease," said Wanda Howell, the University of Arizona nutrition professor who published the study this year.

In scientific terms, the study concluded that one egg with 215 milligrams of cholesterol will increase cholesterol in the blood by about 4.5 milligrams per deciliter of blood.

Because the average American, each day, eats about 205 milligrams of cholesterol per deciliter of blood, eating an egg would increase that level by about 2 percent.

"It is basically unmeasurable," said Donald McNamara, executive director of the industry's Egg Nutrition Center.

Some critics allege that McNamara has a conflict of interest in promoting the study because he helped put it together.

McNamara, a colleague of Howell's at the University of Arizona, is listed as co-author. He left to take the Egg Nutrition Center job in April 1995, after the study was completed but not yet published.

In addition, the Egg Board provided $36,000 for the study, about 40 percent of its total money.

In answer to such criticisms, McNamara noted the findings are consistent with other studies and that most of the work examined by the analysis was not financed by the egg industry.

"We went through a rigorous review," he said.

But the ad campaign still makes some claims that trouble other nutrition experts, as do letters McNamara has circulated to hundreds of doctors contending the study "raises important questions regarding the appropriateness of an across-the-board ceiling on cholesterol for the entire population."

Democrats upset at Gramm's blocking judicial appointment

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Firing a shot across the bow, all 17 Texas Democrats in the House are warning Sen. Phil Gramm that his decision to block the appointment of a Fort Worth lawyer to the federal bench could harm the delegation's cooperative spirit.

"Your opposition on political grounds to this otherwise qualified jurist is unacceptable and has troubling implications for the ability of our delegation to work together on a broad range of issues during the remainder of this Congress," the 17 wrote Friday in a letter to Gramm.

The Texas Republican is blocking the appointment of Mike Schattman as a district judge, contending the White House nominee, who was a classmate of Bill Clinton's at Georgetown University, has a history of "intense political activism."

Schattman, who was elected five times on the Democratic ticket as a county and state district judge, will not have his nomination considered by the Senate Judiciary Committee without approval of his home state senators.

Both Gramm and Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison cleared Schattman with the committee last year after the White House tendered his name in late 1995. Schattman's confirmation hearing wasn't held during the last Congress.

Gramm's aides say he is fighting the nomination because of Schattman's political past, which dates to the 1970s and includes a stint as a delegate to the 1992 Democratic National Convention. Mrs. Hutchison's office won't discuss her reasons for now opposing Schattman, who said he gave up politics when he was nominated.

The Democratic lawmakers urged Gramm "in the strongest possible terms" to reconsider his opposition. "Under your criteria, no one who has ever been active in a political party could serve as a federal judge," they wrote.

'I would hope that Sen. Gramm over a period of time would realize that this is a very narrow, partisan position.'

— Rep. Martin Frost

They questioned Gramm's opposition in light of a statement he made on the Senate floor in 1987 during the hubbub over President Bush's nomination of Robert Bork to the Supreme Court.

Then, Gramm said: "I believe then, as I believe now ... that presidential elections set a road map in terms of political philosophy and that we ought to expect the president to appoint someone who agrees with his philosophy."

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, who circulated the letter, said Gramm supported the nominations of two judges on the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals who had close ties to the Republican Party. Senators don't have the same input in appellate court nominations that they have in district judgeships.

"I would hope that Sen. Gramm over a period of time would realize that this is a very narrow, partisan position that is unreasonable," he said.

Frost, who has discussed the nomination with President Clinton, said the White House has no intention of withdrawing Schattman's name.

Gramm's office had little comment Friday.

"While we appreciate the delicious irony of 17 Democratic congressmen writing to complain en masse about partisanship, Sen. Gramm has nothing to add to what was said last month about the nomination," said spokesman Larry Neal.

One prominent Republican, House Majority Leader Dick Armey of Irving, supports Gramm.

"The right to advise and consent rests with the Senate, not the American Bar Association," said Armey, pronouncing himself more "impressed" with Gramm's judgment than that of the ABA, which rates judicial nominees.

Schattman, for his part, also had little to say.

"I just think it's important that presidential nominees get a hearing so that the Senate can do its job," he said in an interview.

Proceedings underway in Houston city hall bribery case

Associated Press

HOUSTON (AP) — City councilman Michael Yarbrough entered an innocent plea Friday as he became the first of six past or present city officials to be arraigned on bribery charges following indictments this week.

U.S. Magistrate Calvin Botley said during the five-minute court appearance that he did not consider Yarbrough a flight risk and allowed the second-term councilman to remain free on $10,000 personal recognizance bond.

"We'll find out in the end that we'll be exonerated," Yarbrough told reporters outside the Houston federal courthouse.

"We're going to try this case in court, where it belongs, and we're not going to comment outside the courthouse," federal prosecutor Michael Attanasio said, brushing aside questions.

Besides Yarbrough, federal authorities have filed charges against current councilman John Castillo; former councilmen Ben Reyes and John Peavy Jr.; former Houston port commissioner Elizabeth "Betti" Maldonado; and lobbyist Ross C. Allyn.

All are accused of accepting bribes to push through a $155 million downtown hotel project to be built near the George R. Brown Convention Center.

Arraignments for the five others named in the 11-count indictment are set for next week.

All have disavowed the charges. Defense attorneys have criticized the federal probe, contending the officials were victims of entrapment and were targeted because of their race. All except Allyn are black or Hispanic. The FBI has denied race played any part in the investigation.

Wednesday's indictment was the result of a 10-month FBI undercover sting operation in which an FBI agent and another person, both working undercover, posed as representatives of a fictitious company that hired Reyes for $50,000, his aide Allyn, and Ms. Maldonado, to help secure council votes for the hotel project.

The FBI team said they represented minority businessmen who were interested in the project because it offered minority investors ownership interest. The indictment says Reyes, Allyn and Ms. Maldonado immediately went to work to get the votes of Peavy, Castillo and Yarbrough. The hotel contract was approved in January.

All six are charged with conspiracy in the first count. Reyes faces four bribery counts, while Allyn faces three and Castillo and Ms. Maldonado two each. Yarbrough and Peavy each face one count of bribery.

Convictions on all counts carry punishments and fines ranging from 15 years and $500,000 for Yarbrough and Peavy to 50 years and $1.5 million for Reyes.

Bishop denies Alzheimer's reports

DALLAS (AP) — A bishop who didn't testify recently in a priest's sexual abuse trial because he reportedly had Alzheimer's disease is on a full schedule, saying Mass about 10 times a week, The Dallas Morning News reported Friday.

Bishop Thomas Tschoepe, 81, headed the Dallas diocese for most of the years that the Rev. Rudolph "Rudy" Kos sexually abused boys.

Although he's now retired, he is active as an assistant pastor at St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Waxahachie, 35 miles south of Dallas, according to the pastoral administrator and some parishioners, the newspaper reported.

The diocese and Kos were found liable by a civil jury last week and ordered to pay about $120 million to Kos' victims. The lawsuit was brought by 10 victims and the parents of another boy whose suicide was blamed on the abuse.

Tschoepe, who headed the diocese in 1981-90 and ordained Kos as a priest, told the newspaper he takes medication for anemia, but did not mention having Alzheimer's.

"My memory's not good," he said Thursday. "That's going way back. I don't have anything to say. I stayed out of it (the trial). I told them I wasn't going to (testify).

"Whatever you heard (during the trial), half of it isn't true."

Kaylene Mongeau, a nurse who attends St. Joseph's, said after Mass on Thursday that the former bishop appears to be in good health.

"He's very active," she said. "There's nothing wrong with his mind. He's never exhibited any behavior that would indicate he had any neurological disorder at all.

'I thought our story was fair and balanced. This story quotes both individuals who believe that the bishop is in good health and those that believe he is too ill to testify.'

— Stu Wilk, Dallas Morning News

"He says he has anemia, but I don't see any evidence of it. I've had him over to eat at my home. He eats like a horse."

Earlier this year, Tschoepe presided over the confirmation Mass at St. Bernard of Clairvaux in Dallas, said St. Bernard parishioner Mike Daniel. Tschoepe's also expected to return for the parish's 50th anniversary celebration.

Saying Tschoepe is too ill to be in court "is a pretty blatant misrepresentation of the man's capabilities," Daniel said.

Attorney Sylvia Demarest, who represented some of the plaintiffs, said diocesan attorney Randal Mathis told plaintiffs' lawyers that Tschoepe was too sick to testify and even gave them a medical statement.

"We had to accept that," she said.

Mathis did not return requests for comment by The Associated Press.

Church spokesman Bronson Havard, who edits the diocesan newspaper Texas Catholic, called The Morning News' statements "unprofessional."

"This is The Dallas Morning News going off on its own to report something they have no medical evidence to back up," Havard said. "It is very irresponsible and shows a clear bias."

Morning News managing editor Stu Wilk defended the paper's coverage of the subject.

"I thought that our story was fair and balanced," Wilk said. "This story quotes both individuals who believe that the bishop is in good health and those that believe he was too ill to testify."

Tschoepe said he was unaware of any sexual abuse by Kos during his time as bishop. He was succeeded by Bishop Charles V. Grahmann, who removed Kos after the first boy complained of abuse and has apologized to Kos' victims.

Ms. Demarest said Tschoepe "didn't act appropriately" when suspicions were first raised about Kos.

Cotton famers hope for a better season

LYFORD (AP) — After coping with drought and pests the past several years, Rio Grande Valley cotton growers were counting on this year's crop to make up for the pains of years past.

But as harvesting got under way this week, the situation already looked grim: Ginners are starting later this year, growers face mediocre yields and prices are lower than average.

The Lyford Co-op Gin started operations this week, ginning about 500 bales so far, manager Steve Marshall said. The gin averages 24,000 bales a season and ginned 20,000 bales last year, as growers continued to recover from drought and pest infestations.

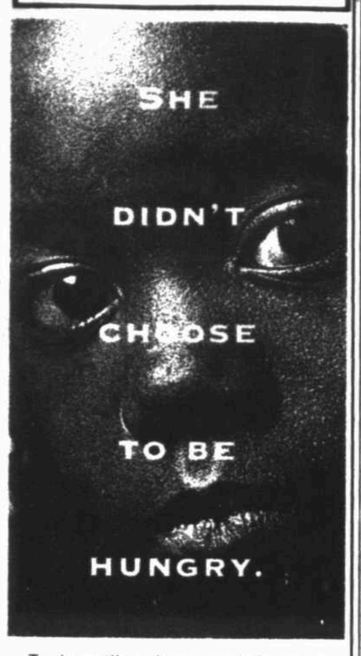

This year's figure may not be much higher, Marshall said.

"I think we'll gin as much or more than last year, but you can't tell about this cotton until it's all in," he told the Valley Morning Star for Friday editions. "If we had received a good rain in June we could have had a 25 percent better yield on the late cotton, but it just didn't happen."

Heavy spring rains forced growers to plant later than usual. Then the skies dried up, leaving dryland farmers who depend solely on the weather with dwindling yields.

Gimmie Shelter

Part Two

We covered some of the basics in last month's column on preparing for an emergency. This month we'll cover the rest of what we think you'll need to get you through an emergency situation.

Food & Water

Food can be a problem because of limited storage areas in some RVs. Package meals such as pasta dishes, macaroni and cheese, canned soups etc. may not be gracious dining, but they do fill the void. More important they don't take up lots of room, they're easy to prepare and they'll keep for long periods of time. An important thing to remember is you will have a limited supply of water so you'll want to do everything possible to conserve it. Disposable flatware, cups, bowls and plates will reduce your need for dish washing. Canned or bottled beverages and juices are handy to have too. Along with food you will need personal items such as toothpaste and brushes, soap, deodorant and analgesics. Don't forget prescription medicines. Some people may be concerned about keeping water in the fresh water tank too long. In the years we've been RVing I can't ever recall having water go bad or develop any flavors while sitting in the tank, even for a month or more at a time. If the water came from a strange campground it may develop flavors due to dissolved minerals so if you've just returned from a camping trip we'd suggest draining the water tank and refilling it with the water you're used to. One thing I do every spring is sanitize my water tank. After I've flushed the antifreeze out of the water system I add chlorine bleach to my water tank and fill it with fresh water. Then I take the rig for a drive to slosh the water around inside. After that I park the rig and let it set for two to three hours. I also run the chlorinated water through the entire system, including the water heater. Finally I drain and refill the water tank until the water tastes sweet. By doing that I make sure my water tank is clean.

Outfitting Your RV

Along with food and water an emergency shelter should have dishes, utensils, linens, blankets and clothing for its occupants. If you've outfitted your RV with separate linens, blankets, utensils and dishes you're one step ahead of the game. We mentioned earlier that disposable dishes are best for an emergency situation. Again you will probably have enough warning in the event of a disaster to grab enough clothes to last a few days. It doesn't hurt to have a pail, laundry detergent, some clothes line and clothes pins stuck away in the corner of the RV. There's always a use for those, even on normal camping trips. And in an emergency situation they can be invaluable.

Amusements

Entertainment is the final aspect of your RV/emergency shelter. Most travel trailers, campers and RVs have a television or radio at the very least. They'll keep you informed and entertained. If you don't have a radio in your rig, you should buy a small portable radio and several spare batteries. If you have children or grandchildren that are going to be sharing the rig with you it's a good idea to stock up on some simple games. Smaller kids can be kept amused with crayons, coloring books and sheets of paper. Checkers, Monopoly and other game boards are old reliable amusements that seem to have been forgotten in this age of electronic games and computers. A deck or two of regular, bridge or pinochle playing cards will help pass the time too.

Furry Friends

Pets can be a problem, especially if they're not used to being in the RV. You can familiarize them with the RV by taking them in it several times for short periods. Most dogs and cats take a day or two to become accustomed to new surroundings. If they've been exposed to the RV before they'll be accustomed to its sights and smells faster. And don't forget to have a reasonable supply of animal food on hand.

Planning for Disaster

No one wants to plan for a disaster, it's human nature to ignore that sort of thing. But those of us who own RVs can be one step ahead of the game when it comes to disaster planning. We've got what is essentially a perfect emergency shelter standing by at all times. With a little foresight and planning a disaster or emergency that would devastate other families will become an inconvenience that can be survived by the prepared RVer.

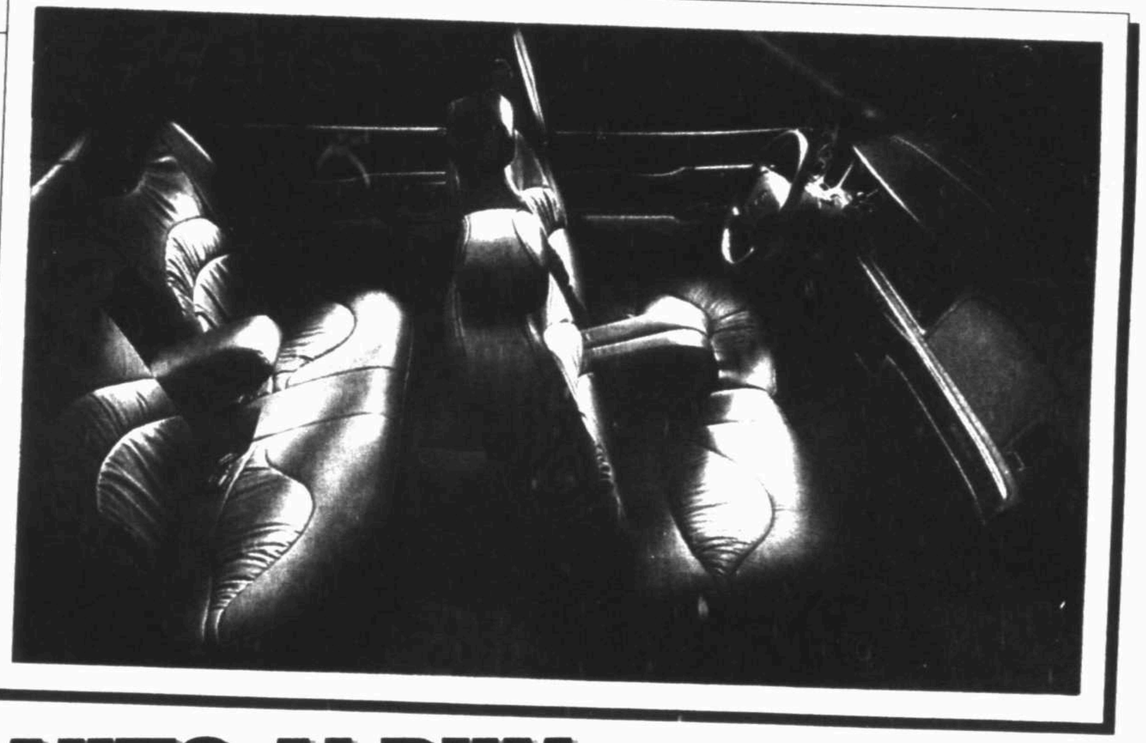

King of the Road: 97 Mercury Grand Marquis

Wheelin'&Dealin'

By Kenneth Chester, Jr.

Twenty years ago, roomy, powerful and fast described the large or "family sized" American four door sedan. With a large V-8 engine, rear wheel drive and body on frame construction, there was no mistaking its country of origin or the attitude of the American that drove it. Interstate cruising was considered an inalienable American right for which Detroit built hundreds of thousands of these road warriors. The 1990's saw the end of excessive consumption while economy and conservation became "politically correct". By the 1994 model year, large rear drive sedans and wagons only represented about five percent of domestic production. Despite waning popularity, product and safety upgrades coupled with price restraint have made the very definition of "Detroit Iron" a hidden value in today's marketplace. The recent demise of the large, rear drive models from General Motors; Bucik Roadmaster, Chevrolet Caprice Classic, and Cadillac Brougham; has made the large rear drive Ford/Lincoln/Mercury offerings the only choice left in town.

A Current Affair

The automaker first introduced the current rear drive platform at the beginning of the 1979 model year. Built in Ford's St. Thomas, Ontario, Canada plant alongside its mechanical twin, the Ford Crown Victoria, the automaker last overhauled the Grand Marquis back in 1992. Interior ergonomics and exterior sheetmetal were updated during 1995. If you believe this Mercury is anything like your grandparent's LTD, think again! Available in GS and LS trim levels, this car is vastly superior in almost every way! The 4.6L V-8 engine bolted to an electrically controlled four speed automatic transmission is smooth, immediate, and flawless! It reminds me what the love affair with our cars is all about. The automaker has hidden some neat technology in this car like variable speed sensitive power steering, distributorless ignition, and multi-point fuel injection, and four wheel disc brakes just to name a few. The displays, knobs, and switches are the best that I have ever seen — easy to read and use. Even the AM/FM/cassette controls are a great improvement over most of the previous Ford radios. Despite its size, the driver's front and side view is very good. The interior was whisper quiet and roomy. The Grand Marquis is a car that comes with a very long list of standard creature comforts as well. A few gripes: the trunk has a high liftover height, the dipstick for the transmission is hidden next to the firewall in the engine compartment, anti-lock brakes/ traction control are a $695 option instead of standard equipment, and the large transmission hump in the front seat only makes this car a roomy five passenger sedan. Properly equipped, the Grand Marquis can tow a trailer weighing upto 2,000 pounds. EPA fuel economy for the Grand Marquis is 17 city/ 25 highway. Retail sticker prices range from $22,495 for the GS model to $23,930 for the top of the line LS. The destination charge adds $605. At press time, the automaker was offering customer cash of $1,000 that was set to expire on July 7th. Local supplies are good.

AUTO ALBUM

1927 FORD MODEL T

BY TAD BURNESS

Starting July 1925, Ford Motor Company made great improvements in the famous Model T for 1926. By that time, the competition from GM's Chevrolet was growing. Changes were necessary if the Model T were to continue.

For the first time since 1914 closed-car body colors other than black were offered (green or maroon). And even nickel-plated radiator shells appeared on some models!

In 1926, either wooden-spoke or wire wheels could be selected. In '27, Ford standardized on wire wheels (which would continue, in diminishing sizes, on Fords through 1935). In 1926-1927 brakes were still two wheel, but greatly improved. Other mechanical changes were made, with coupes and Tudor sedans getting a simple one-piece windshield.

Gunmetal Blue or Phoenix Brown were new '27 body colors for open Fords. Closed 1927 Ford bodies came in Highland Green, Royal Maroon, Fawn Gray, Drake Green or the unglamorous-sounding Moleskin."

Here's a list of the number of Ford Model T's produced, month by month for 1927:

January—4,247
February—139,442
March—88,499
April—76,049
May—72,504

Ford T production had sharply declined late in '26, reaching its lowest point in January '27. As of June 1927, Ford production ceased for the summer while major retooling was under way for the vastly improved Model A. Henry Ford's executives practically had to wrestle him to the floor to get him to give up on his dear old Model T! But the great success of the Model A soon recovered the over-$30 million loss in '27 that had been created by retooling costs and lack of sales while assembly lines were shut down.

Interestingly, long after the Model T was discontinued, Ford Motor Company built additional Model T replacement engines (from 12,000 a month in late '27, down to 100 a month in 1931). The final Model T engine was built on August 4, 1941! By that time, Model T's were seldom seen on the road. But the early brass-radiator models (up to 1916) were beginning to interest early-day car collectors.
