Bush chooses new Army leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush has tapped the Army's No. 2 general, Gordon Sullivan, to lead the nation's largest service for the next four years, Pentagon sources say.

Pentagon sources have said that the post would have gone to Persian Gulf War Commander H. Norman Schwarzkopf if he had expressed an interest in it. But Schwarzkopf told Army Secretary Michael Stone some time ago he preferred to retire on schedule and enter private life.

Pentagon sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Bush was expected to nominate Sullivan as the Army's chief of staff. The nomination is subject to Senate confirmation.

The 53-year-old general is regarded as the service's chief architect of its plans to adapt in the new post-Cold War era.

The Boston, Mass., native will replace the service's current four-star commander, Gen. Carl Vuono, who is scheduled to retire at the end of June.

During his 31 years in the service, Sullivan has commanded soldiers at every level, from platoon to division. He specialized as an armor officer, saw duty in Vietnam and rose to command the famed "Big Red 1" 1st Infantry Division Mechanized, based in Fort Riley, Kan.

Rail workers strike freight lines

Local employees join strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unions struck major freight carriers today in the first nationwide rail strike in nearly a decade, shutting down cargo traffic and upsetting passenger travel around the country.

Congress and the Bush administration immediately moved toward enacting a 100-day "cooling off" period to end the strike by this weekend and appoint a new emergency board to propose recommendations for a settlement.

Freight carriers and unions scheduled no new talks after last-ditch bargaining talks failed to produce a settlement before the mid-night Tuesday expiration of an initial cooling-off period. About 235,000 rail workers, represented by eight striking unions and three others honoring picket lines, stayed off the job starting at 7 a.m.

The 3-year-old dispute over wages, work rules and health care costs immediately stranded passengers and stopped the flow of U.S. goods nationwide. It could also idle as many as a half-million non-railroad workers.

Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner told a House subcommittee this morning there was "a sense of urgency" to end the strike quickly — hopefully "before tomorrow's rush hour."

The strike forced freight carriers to shut down operations throughout the country this morning.

"Nothing's operating that we know of," said George Whaley, a spokesman for the Association of American Railroads, which represents all the nation's major freight carriers.

Though the striking unions work on freight lines, service on many Amtrak trains and some commuter lines such as those in Maryland and the San Francisco area was disrupted because the passenger trains share tracks with freight carriers.

Amtrak's busiest region, the Northeast corridor from Washington to Boston, was not affected because Amtrak owns that track. But passengers aboard Amtrak trains in other regions had their trips halted well short of their destinations.

"It's a bloody bummer," said Angus McGrudden, a tourist from England who was on a trip from the West Coast to St. Louis when his Amtrak train was halted in Kansas City.

Congress had been bracing for the shutdown, and legislators held both public and private meetings on the dispute this morning. Skinner told a House subcommittee he hoped lawmakers would have legislation to end the strike to Bush by tonight or before Thursday morning's rush hour.

"A national rail strike clearly impairs our national defense and has disastrous consequences for the economy," he told the transportation subcommittee of the House Energy and Commerce

Union Pacific engineer J.L. Sundry takes a drink of water as he and other Big Spring employees walk the picket line in front of the railroad station on First Street this morning. The strike is part of a nationwide strike by the freight carriers.

Local Union Pacific Railroad workers joined the nationwide strike early today, stopping work and marching with signs in front of the company's First Street offices.

The effort is a "friendly strike" designed to call attention to the workers' point of view, said local strike coordinator Gary Cagle, meeting today with officials of most local railroad unions.

"The only way to get their attention is to get them in their pockets," he said, referring to the reported $4 million-per-day loss the company faces.

At Union Pacific regional headquarters in Omaha, Neb., spokesman Mark Davis said the company had "shut down the railroad."

"We feel management and employee-wise we won't be able to handle the operations," Davis said. "We just don't have the numbers."

He said Big Spring has 79 Union Pacific employees, 77 of which are union members. The two local managers, not members of the union, are responsible for reporting to a regional office about the situation as it develops, Davis said.

Cagle, a conductor for 30 years with the company, said local union

Jet Drive-in scheduled for demolition

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Board of Adjustments and Appeals agreed Tuesday to a property owner's plan to demolish the Jet Drive-In by October 15.

The Jet will be demolished in part by city and county workers, and in part by a crew hired by the property owners.

Assistant City Manager Tom Decell said the city, working with Howard County employees, will demolish all structures on the Jet property except the movie screen. The screen, paneled in asbestos siding, will be demolished by a crew hired by Glenn Rogers, a trustee of the estate that owns the theater.

Decell said the plan is fair. "(Rogers) working with us, that's what code enforcement is all about, a cooperative effort," he said, adding that the city does not want to be "harsh and tyrannical" about its abatement projects.

"To get this property marketed and back on the tax rolls is our goal," he said.

An agreement approved by the board sets a schedule for screen demolition by Oct. 15. The screen is paneled in asbestos and will require special handling and permits during demolition.

The plan includes a state inspection and notice to be filed with the Texas Air Control Board.

The asbestos on the screen is reportedly "regulated non-friable," and does not pose as high a risk for human contact as the friable variety.

Decell said no plan has been set

The Big Spring Board of Adjustment and Appeals approved plans for the demolition of the Jet Drive-In, located on Wasson Road. The screen, covered with asbestos siding, will be torn down by workers hired by the owners, while other structures will be demolished by city workers.

for the city-county demolition of other structures at the drive-in. A brick concession stand building, a concrete parking lot and several metal light poles are among the structures to be demolished by those crews.

He said some of the poles and other items on the property might be useful to the city. Light poles, for example, could be used at the city park or other areas, he said.

The 10.3 acre drive-in theater, owned by the Mary Rogers Trust and Lee O. Rogers trust, is reported to have closed permanently in the late 1970s or early 80s.

Midland County seeks to join water district

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — Midland County officials said Tuesday they are working to garner landowner support to join the Martin County Underground Water Conservation District.

The move comes three months after Howard County voters in the northwest area, about 20 percent of the county, voted 60-1 to join the district. Martin County voters agreed to the annexation with a 26-6 vote. The district is in the process of changing their name.

All voters in the present district, which taxes at two cents per $100 property valuation, as well as those in the proposed Midland County area would vote on another annexation. A vote could be held later this year.

"We'd sure like to make a formal request to join you," J.D. Crawford, a board director on the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service in Midland told MCUWCD directors at a meeting Tuesday night.

"We feel like this is the best way to get a district and the fastest way for the protection of groundwater," said Crawford, who with two other members of the Soil Conservation Service in Midland presented a map of proposed boundaries which would include everything south of the city of Midland and Interstate 20, an area covering more than 60 percent of the county.

MCUWCD Manager Mark Hoelscher said annexing Midland County would probably benefit the district.

"It'd make us extremely cost effective," he said. "We're humbled, we're very pleased that someone thinks we're doing an acceptable enough job to want to join it."

Hoelscher recommended that a vote take place after Sept. 1, the day new state laws go into effect. "That gives us a fair amount of lead time," he said.

An election would be scheduled if at least 50 percent of the landowners or 50 signatures on a petition is approved by the MCUWCD board of directors. Public hearings would precede the election.

Crawford said they are working to make sure they have support from people in the proposed area before an election is held.

"We've tried to contact all the landowners of appreciable size, farmers and ranchers, and we haven't had any opposition," he said. "Area-wise, we've got about 85 percent committed."

Midland officials and MCUWCD directors agreed that populated areas should be left out of the district because they would not be as concerned about the quality or quantity of underground water.

"Anything that we thought would grow in the next seven to 10 years, we tried to get out of," Crawford said of the proposed district lines.

Crawford said they have been considering joining the district since last year. One reason, he said, is that if local entities do not take care of underground water concerns then the state will. He said they also want to avoid future pollution problems.

"We want to protect our groundwater before we have any big problems. There's a few minor things (now)," he said. "If you don't have any water, the land's not any good."

Cook behind drug bill

By MARSHA STURDIVANT
Staff Writer

Legislation currently in committees in Austin aimed at creating drug-free zones began with Big Spring Police Chief Joe Cook and his efforts to prosecute drug dealers operating near local public schools.

JOE COOK

Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, said, "Joe called me because he had a problem with the state law not being tough enough, so when he busted someone, he had to go to the federal (laws). He came to me with the concept, and he was asked to testify (before the Criminal Jurisprudence Committee). Joe originated this, he should get the credit. This is going to be real meaningful legislation."

Fraser explained House Bill 234 calls for stiffer penalties for drug dealers who pedal their substances near public places where children gather. If passed, the law would double the jail sentence, currently two to five years in Texas, to four to 10 years. The bill will also prevent a chance of probation or plea bargaining for drug dealers convicted of sales within the zone. When convicted, the inmate may not get out of prison until serving the minimum sentence or five years.

He said, "The state law and federal law do not match each other. The federal law has a drug-free zone, and it doubles the crime penalty. The state laws are much more lenient on drug cases."

Cook said he approached state Rep. Troy Fraser, R-Big Spring, with the idea of drug-free zones in the summer of 1990. Fraser placed the first bill before the House in the summer of 1990, in a special session, but time did not allow for hearing on the House floor. Today there are five House bills, and three Senate bills, all targeting the need for drug-free zones.

Cook said, "We approached Troy Fraser because we were getting less than desired results using our current state laws to get drug dealers out of circulation. We were forced to go to the federal statutes covering narcotics sales, and we were successful using federal laws. So we took the drug-free zone concept to Troy, and pointed out the in-

BN railroad to close freight operations

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Freight operations of the only major rail company based in Texas, Burlington Northern Inc., were expected to be shut down by the strike that began today.

There were few signs of the rail strike in Texas as the mid-night deadline passed. But picketers were expected at train stations and major freight yards around the state shortly after dawn.

At least two of the largest rail unions asked members to start manning picket lines at 7 a.m. local time.

Union Pacific, Santa Fe and Southern Pacific have the most extensive rail systems in Texas.

Burlington Northern will close its freight system, which ships about 840,000 tons of goods daily, said Joseph Hilly, vice president for labor relations.

The company will continue operating its Chicago-area commuter system, which union leaders have balked at striking, Hilly said.

About 30,000 of its 33,000 workers belong to unions involved in the three-year-old dispute over wages and work rules.

Burlington Northern operates the nation's largest track system, with more than 25,000 miles in 25 states and two Canadian provinces.

UT-Permian Basin may be expanded

AUSTIN (AP) — Although some lawmakers had questions about its cost, the state House gave preliminary approval to a bill to expand the University of Texas of the Permian Basin to a four-year school.

"It's good for higher education in the state of Texas," said Rep. Gary Watkins, D-Odessa, bill sponsor.

The university, which is in Odessa, may now teach only junior, senior and graduate level courses. The bill would allow University of Texas regents to make it a four-year undergraduate school.

Tuesday's vote was 102-40. If approved with another House vote, the bill will be sent to the Senate for consideration.

Some lawmakers questioned a cost estimate for the expansion that shows it would not require any additional state money over the next two years.

The state budget shortfall over the next two years is estimated at about $4.6 billion.

Watkins said the original cost estimate for the bill was about $3 million over the next two years. But he said that was inaccurate because it did not take into account initial enrollment limits.

Stone begins JFK movie

DALLAS (AP) — The assassination of President John F. Kennedy has haunted Dallas for almost 30 years, and with a movie crew recreating those unforgettable slow-motion images, the incident is as vivid today as it was then.

Again this week, the doomed motorcade snaked around the corner in front of The Texas School Book Depository before speeding off to take the dying president to the hospital.

Over and over, the cars passed in front of the sniper's perch six stories up.

The images Dallas wants to forget won't go away.

Filming of "JFK," director Oliver Stone's $35 million portrayal of the assassination and the subsequent investigations, began this week with the re-enactment of the presidential motorcade. Various scenes will be shot repeatedly during to achieve different camera angles.

The surreal re-creation has drawn hundreds to Dealey Plaza downtown as the movie crew scurries to prepare for the day's shoot.

It was an opportunity that assassination-buff Peggy Higgins couldn't let get away.

"Nope, I flew in from Maryland to see this because when it is ever going to look like this again?" she said Tuesday, motioning toward the old book depository, redressed to look exactly the way it did Nov. 22, 1963.

"I was here yesterday and I have to fly back tomorrow, but my brother and a friend came down with me and we spent most of the day trying to get closer and closer. The amazing thing is that in the 25 or so years since the assassination, the controversy has never gone away."

Other Dallas residents, however, seem more excited at the prospects of getting a glimpse of Kevin Costner, Hollywood's hottest property after his Academy Awards for "Dances With Wolves." Costner will star as New Orleans prosecutor Jim Garrison, who maintained Kennedy was a victim of a CIA and FBI conspiracy and set up accused assassin Lee Harvey Oswald as the fall guy.

With Academy Award-winning director Stone calling the shots, the production crew is forced to pay particular attention to detail, crew members said Tuesday.

"We're going to be shooting every angle at the same time, which means there's very little space for viewing," Stone said recently. "Everybody's got to be in period clothes. Every car has to be period."

Trees have been pruned, signs have been erected and vintage automobiles, including a turquoise Pontiac four-door with tail fins, and police motorcycles are parked behind barricades on some of the streets around the building.

The crew consults black-and-white and color photographs that include scenes from the motorcade, the assassination and gruesome autopsy prints.

Those roads and the famed nearby triple-underpass — a major entry to downtown — are closed from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. weekdays until April 30, forcing thousands of rush-hour commuters to find alternate routes.

To shape the authenticity of "JFK," Stone was persistent in his pursuit of the sixth floor of the book depository, now the main county government office building.

Blacks at high heart disease risk

DALLAS (AP) — Blacks in the United States are suffering from "alarmingly high" rates of certain heart and blood vessel diseases, the American Heart Association says.

Those include the high incidence of stroke and other disorders that are the direct consequence of uncontrolled high blood pressure, according to a report in two journals of the Dallas-based AHA.

"Coronary heart disease is greater in black females than white females because hypertension, or high blood pressure, is much greater in black women than white women," said Dr. Edward S. Cooper, chairman of the committee that wrote the special report on minorities.

Black women are frequently more overweight, and black women have almost two times the cases of diabetes than white women, said the report appearing in the April issues of Circulation and Stroke.

"All are risk factors for coronary heart disease and no doubt play a role in the higher frequency of heart attacks in black women," Cooper said.

The report, "Cardiovascular Diseases and Stroke in African-Americans and Other Racial Minorities in the United States: A Statement for Health Professionals," was written by experts

"The findings don't surprise me. I work with a lot of hypertension and it is much higher in black females."

Dr. Colman Ryan

who have performed much of the research that has been done on the topic. It is designed to be "a concise summary of scientific and medical information" and to suggest which areas of research will be most productive in the future, Cooper said.

Dr. Colman Ryan, chief of cardiology at the San Francisco Heart Institute at Seton Medical Center, said he had not seen the report, but concurred that high blood pressure in black women could be a significant link.

"The findings don't surprise me," he said. "I work with a lot of hypertension and it is much higher in black females. More than 50 percent of black females have high blood pressure, compared to 28 to 30 percent of white females."

"Black women have a much higher risk factor," said Ryan.

Cooper, who is a professor of medicine at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine in Philadelphia, added that hospital discharge summaries indicate that white men have "slightly but definitely" higher instances of coronary heart disease than black males.

"But black men are catching up fast and it may be because the statistical data is better than in the past," Cooper said.

Elijah Saunders, author of the report's section on high blood pressure in blacks, says "alarmingly high frequencies" of stroke, kidney disease and congestive heart failure, as well as enlargement of the heart's main pumping chamber occur in blacks, mainly because high blood pressure or hypertension is so common among blacks.

Stroke death rates in blacks are almost double those of whites. And in the 35 to 54 age range, blacks' rates are about four times higher, the scientists said.

End-stage kidney failure caused by high blood pressure is about 10 times more common in blacks than in whites nationwide and 17 times higher in some sections of the United States.

The leading cause of death among all populations in the United States is cardiovascular diseases and stroke, which together account for almost 50 percent of all mortality, Cooper said in the report.

DALLAS — A re-enactment of the parade with President Kennedy moves down Elm Street Tuesday afternoon as filming of "JFK" continues in Dallas. The scene shows the presidential limousine after the attack.

Indictments returned in 4-state crackdown

HOUSTON (AP) — Seven people were named in a 12-count indictment by a federal grand jury that alleged violations of pornography laws in connection with the operation of 17 adult bookstores in Texas, Louisiana, Tennessee and Alabama.

Among the charges were racketeering, interstate transportation of obscene materials and conspiracy to defraud the United States and obstruct justice.

The Southern District of Texas issued the sealed indictments April 9 after a lengthy investigation by a Houston-based task force that included the FBI, Internal Revenue Service and Houston Police Department's vice division.

The indictment alleges Mary Jane Jenkins, also known as Lynda Ivey Entratter of Canton, Ga., ran the bookstores in cooperation with Phoenix and Associates Management Ltd., a Nevada-based corporation.

Besides Ms. Jenkins, 57, others named in the indictment include Evan Peter Pigman, 34, of Creve Couer, Mo.; Jo Ann Rochelli, 33, of Roswell, Ga.;

David Carl Stubbs, 56, of Marietta, Ga.; Rickie Herbert Ranney, 37, of Palmyra, N.Y.; and Larry Wayne Malady, 33, of Roswell, Ga.

If convicted, Ms. Jenkins faces 85 years in prison and a $2.75 million fine. Other defendants face from five years to 75 years in prison and between $250,000 and $2.5 million in fines if convicted.

Also named in conspiracy counts are attorneys Robert Eugene Smith, no age available, of San Pedro, Calif., and Charles William Boyle, 38, of Atlanta. The indictment alleges that while representing Ms. Jenkins and others, Boyle and Smith concealed the identities of company owners.

Prosecutors alleged that the defendants used Phoenix, Saxet Management Inc. (Texas), Saxet Inc. (Georgia), and LaGrange Trading (California) to distribute the pornography. In addition, the indictment alleges defendants used United Parcel Service to transport obscene video cassette tapes from Cleveland to Houston and other cities.

U.S. attorneys plan to sink floating casinos

HOUSTON (AP) — Federal attorneys want to sink a string of ships designed to provide Texans with offshore gambling and entertainment.

U.S. Attorneys Ron Woods of Texas' Southern District and Bob Wortham of the Eastern District on Tuesday gave cruise ship operators three months to comply with a 1947 federal law governing gambling. After that, officials said offenders could face stiff fines, jail terms or the loss of their vessels.

"We're giving them a reasonable time ... to look at their operations and bring their operations into compliance," Woods said.

The law, as recently interpreted by Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, requires a ship with a gambling establishment to remain at sea for at least 24 hours or dock at a foreign port on every trip.

The ship also must provide meals and lodging to all passengers unless it docks at a foreign port.

"To come into compliance, the attorney general is very specific. He said you either have to go out in the ocean for 24 hours ... you have to provide meals, you have to provide lodging, or you have to go dock in a foreign port," Wortham said. "Because, otherwise it is simply a gambling ship."

The law could effect cruise ship lines in Galveston, Freeport, Port Isabel and in several other coastal states.

Officials boost reading campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reading — a pastime that has lost some of its popularity in the TV age — is getting a big boost from state and local officials participating in nationwide "read-aloud" activities today.

President Bush launched the "Great American Read-Aloud Day" a day early on Tuesday when he spent about 25 minutes reading to 15 first and second graders from Zachary Taylor elementary school in Arlington, Va., a Washington suburb.

The reading included poems from Robert Louis Stevenson's "Child's Garden of Verses."

Today, governors of Missouri, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Nevada,

New Jersey, Texas, Wyoming and Oklahoma and their families were to read on radio and television programs, at statehouses, in elementary schools and in city parks.

More than 25 first ladies also are scheduled to participate in read-aloud projects, including Gayle Wilson of California, Matilda Cuomo of New York, Ellen Casey of Pennsylvania and Sue Ann Thompson of Wisconsin.

The reading initiative was organized by READAmerica, a non-profit organization in Shepherdstown, W.Va., that is developing a national coalition of family reading advocacy groups.

Bad habits?

QUITO, Ecuador — Four women dressed in nun's habits and holding what police said were 22 pounds of cocaine are lined up for photographers outside police headquarters in Quito, Ecuador, Tuesday. The four women, all Colombian, said they left their religious order a year ago and were recently offered $6,600 per kilo to smuggle the cocaine to Spain. They were arrested at the airport in Quito Sunday.

Court ruling will affect executions

ATLANTA (AP) — A Supreme Court ruling narrowing the rights of death row inmates to make repeated appeals could cut years off the time it takes to carry out an execution, but an immediate wave of executions isn't likely, authorities say.

Tuesday's high court ruling involved Warren McCleskey, who was convicted of killing an Atlanta police officer in 1978.

"I'd estimate that this has the potential to reduce the time in these cases... by a factor of years," said Georgia Attorney General Michael Bowers.

There are more than 2,400 death row inmates nationwide.

The federal appellate path is from U.S. District Court to the Circuit Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court.

"There are a number of inmates on death row who have been through the federal court system once or perhaps even twice," said Florida Assistant Deputy Attorney General Richard Doran. "This decision is going to make it extremely difficult for them to gain further stays of execution."

But Mary Beth Westmoreland, senior assistant attorney general in Georgia, said a flood of executions in the days ahead should not be expected.

Bush receives Nicaraguan leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Violeta Chamorro is the first Nicaraguan head of government to be received on a White House state visit in 52 years.

Mrs. Chamorro's meeting with President Bush today after an arrival ceremony on the White House south lawn followed her appeal to Congress on Tuesday for a sustained U.S. commitment to her country's reconstruction after a decade of warfare.

But a senior administration official said the United States already has committed itself to an aid program of three-quarters of a billion dollars over a 2½-year period and that no new announcements were expected.

Not since President Anastasio Somoza was welcomed here by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1939 has a Nicaraguan head of government been received on a state visit.

Middle East schedule open-ended

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III, heading for the Middle East with an open-ended schedule, was ready today to shift to more forceful diplomacy to get Israel and the Arabs to the negotiating table.

Baker landed first in Luxembourg to consult with European Community officials about Kurdish refugees. He will begin his third Middle East mission in a little more than six weeks with a visit to Israel on Thursday.

On his first two trips to the troubled area, Baker tried gentle persuasion and mostly listened to the hopes and concerns of Arabs and Israelis. But his stance is now hardening.

"I don't think there is going to be movement unless the United States and other governments are willing to press for agreement," he said Tuesday before leaving Washington.

Baker is hoping to get agreement on a format and an agenda for the peace talks Arabs and Israelis have already agreed in principle to hold.

Without a date to return to Washington on his schedule, Baker clearly was making himself available for shuttle diplomacy if remaining in the Middle East can produce positive results.

U.S. trade preferences may be lost

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — A U.S. effort to fight labor abuse could indirectly throw 100,000 people out of work by ending special trade preferences for this Caribbean country.

But the pressure could bring reform: the Dominican government is promising change.

Expected any day is a ruling by the U.S. trade representative on a petition advocating that the Dominican Republic, due to alleged forced labor of Haitian migrants and union busting, be denied trade benefits.

The benefits are extended under the Generalized System of Preferences, which allows 134 developing countries duty-free access to the United States for 4,300 products by establishing so-called "free zones."

Dominican exports to the United States under the program amounted to $222 million last year.

"The free zones would close down and 100,000 workers would be out on the streets" if the Dominican Republic were removed from the preference list, Secretary of Labor Rafael F. Alburquerque said in an interview.

Gorbachev appeals for foreign aid

TOKYO (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev today made his bluntest public appeal yet for foreign aid, telling Parliament that Japan and other advanced countries must prevent the Soviet Union from collapsing and returning to dictatorship.

"Despair and hopelessness are a serious threat to the progress of civilization. Therefore, advanced countries help themselves by helping others," the first Soviet leader to visit Japan said in his address.

Gorbachev urged resource-poor Japan to help mine his country's vast mineral deposits. "Our Far East and Siberia have resources, but they lack the infrastructure to develop them," Gorbachev said. "I appeal to Japanese companies to consider helping develop the region."

Gorbachev had entered the Diet, or Parliament, smiling, his wife, Raisa, at his side.

Bush, Baker seeking peace

The Bush administration wants to use momentum from the gulf war to build a wider Middle East peace agreement between Arabs and Israelis. So far, none of the major players has said no.

Secretary of State James Baker, just back from a tour of Middle East capitals, is ready to return. President Bush is ready to inject himself directly into the process, as President Carter did at Camp David 12 years ago.

Has the war, like graphite, begun to turn the rusted wheels of peace again in the Middle East, or are Arabs and Israelis leading Bush down the garden path, reluctant to spurn the hero of the gulf while he is still glowing?

The answer is somewhere in between: Yes, the war has caused changes; no, there is no evidence yet that they are fundamental enough to bridge the differences between Arabs and Israelis.

Bush is right to make this effort. The United States has, for more than 20 years, been embroiled in one conflict after another in the Middle East, including the latest one, and sends billions of dollars in aid annually into the region.

Every president since Lyndon Johnson has been dragged into Middle East turmoil; none has profited from it. Carter, who triumphed at Camp David, was destroyed by OPEC and Iran. The Reagan presidency was deeply scarred by American loss of life in Lebanon and by its Iran-contra deals. The true test of Bush's mettle, and of Baker's, will come when the going gets rough, as it will if they are serious about this.

Baker turned up several favorable signs on his trip last week. If, as Baker believes, the key to peace is to get Arabs and Israelis together, to create momentum toward peace, then progress has been made. All the parties now agree to a conference of some kind, and they are close to agreeing who can participate.

Carter's success at Camp David was a momentum approach: Get the principals together and keep them together until the compromises are made.

But absent a will to compromise, momentum creates motion without forward movement. The risk for Bush and Baker, and for the United States, is that the gulf war has failed to produce a will to compromise, and that a peace conference could turn into a peace fiasco.

The essential compromise has not changed: Is Israel willing to exchange Arab lands occupied since 1967 for peace? That was the essence of Camp David, and it is the essence of a future Israeli accord with Syria, Lebanon, Jordan and the Palestinians. The peace guarantees for Israel will have to be underwritten by the United States.

The gulf war has provided an opening. To build it into a peace breakthrough is a far vaster undertaking. To succeed will take all of Bush and Baker's tenacity and ingenuity.

Court puts business in catch-22 position

James J. Kilpatrick

WASHINGTON — Let us look a little closer, if you please, at the Supreme Court's opinion of March 20 in the lead battery case. The high court may have created a situation in which employers will be damned if they do and damned if they don't.

The opinion set off a jubilation chorus in the ranks of women's liberation. Ecstatic cries arose: This was the most significant judicial opinion in its field since Roe v. Wade 18 years ago. The movement toward sexual equality had taken a quantum leap. Five justices had agreed that women have the same right that men have, to risk harm to their reproductive organs if they choose.

All right, hooray. To the extent that the opinion opens job opportunities for women working in jobs that involve radiation or chemical reaction, bully for the court. For one reason or another, in the name of a bona fide occupational qualification, women historically have been denied access to risky jobs that are open to men. All nine members of the high court agreed that such discrimination is unlawful.

The facts in the lead battery case are not in dispute. Johnson Controls Inc. is a manufacturer of lead batteries. Prolonged exposure to lead creates a serious risk to the reproductive capacity of both men and women. For several years the company formally warned women employees of this risk.

Then, in 1982, the company went beyond a warning. It instituted a policy prohibiting women "who are capable of having children" from working at stations of substantial risk.

In 1984 a group of employees went to court. They contended that the policy amounted to discrimination against women by reason of sex. Women were being denied promotions and higher wages because of the rule. Male employees were not similarly affected. The company policy, said the plaintiffs, violated both the basic Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the newer Pregnancy Discrimination Act of 1978.

In its opinion of March 20, the high court agreed. "The bias in Johnson Controls' policy is obvious," said Justice Harry Blackmun. Despite evidence about the adverse effects of lead exposure on the male reproductive system, the company was concerned "only with the harms that may befall the unborn offspring of its female employees." The law will not tolerate such patent discrimination.

Very well. Blackmun insisted that the court's opinion was "neither remarkable nor unprecedented," but in that assertion he was like the queen who did protest too much. This was indeed a remarkable decision, in part because it engenders civil wrongs in the name of expanding women's rights. The manufacturer in this case was not being paternal. It was not the compassion of the employer but the prudence of his lawyers that generated the offending policy. Johnson wasn't afraid of damaging a fetus; Johnson was afraid of being sued.

That quite reasonable apprehension will be enlarged by the court's opinion. Justice Byron White explained why:

"Common sense tells us that it is part of the normal operation of business concerns to avoid causing injury to third parties, as well as to employees, if for no other reason than to avoid tort liability and its substantial costs. This possibility of tort liability is not hypothetical: every state currently allows children born alive to recover in tort for prenatal injuries caused by third parties."

"Warnings may preclude claims by injured employees, (but) they will not preclude claims by injured children because the general rule is that parents cannot waive causes of action on behalf of their children, and the parents' negligence will not be imputed to the children."

Justice Blackmun denied that the court had placed employers in an untenable position, but his denial lacked conviction. He said that as long as an employer "fully informs" a woman of a given risk, "the basis for holding an employer liable seems remote at best." Given the litigious nature of our society, the risk of liability is likely to strike an employer as very close at hand.

What we have here is catch-22: If a company denies job opportunities on account of sex, it will get sued by an ambitious woman. If it accords equal opportunity, eventually it may be sued by a deformed child. These are not appealing alternatives.

Under these circumstances Congress could help by enacting a carefully fashioned law to protect employers, short of gross negligence, from the consequences of women's liberation. An employer ought not to be punished for doing what the high court commands.

How to exercise gift of prophecy

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

An oceanic explorer of old once wrote on his map, "Beyond this point, there be serpents."

Now I wonder, did this guy actually see any snakes, or did he just do that to be cute?

Some friends and I were watching this show about Nostradamus. The show was narrated by Orson Wells ("War of the Worlds," "Citizen Kane," Ernest and Julio Gallo). In this documentary, the big "O" explained that Nostradamus predicted the year and month in which he would be exhumed.

I thought, "Well that's interesting." But that was just the beginning. My man Orson started raving about the French Revolution, Napoleon, Waterloo, Hitler, the Kennedy brothers, Lincoln and a half-dozen other extinct potentates. I mean, before he was finished, Nostradamus had predicted rock 'n' roll and the splotch-headed son of Momma Gorbachev.

Well, being the skeptical type, I started to wonder about how clairvoyance on this scale could be faked.

Being a behaviorist, (I know, I'm being two things at once. So color me ambiguous.) I decided that to better understand how, first try to understand why.

I'll bet it was pretty boring in the 1500s. Ever wonder why all the fairy tales are illustrated with people dressed in Hamlet costumes? It's because those stories are old! They're really, really old.

These days, normal people don't wear tight pantyhose, which restricts the saliva glands.

At any rate, men spit. There's recreational spitting for men, such as tobacco juice spitting contests and watermelon seed spitting contests.

There's also spitting for effect. Men spit to show their disgust. I once spit out something one of my wives had cooked me for dinner — Spam a la king. I think she called it.

When she wasn't looking I gave what was left on my plate to our dog, who would eat anything, including Spam a la king.

Sports is really where man excels in spitting. Baseball players spit all the time. Reggie Jackson was one of the all-time great spend a great deal of time making up stories to share with the neighbors. But back in the 1500s, there were no movies, no television and very few books — even for people who could read.

So good story tellers were in big demand. No joke, people used to offer food and shelter to the travelers with the best stories. Nostradamus was no fool. He was, in fact, the 16th century equivalent of a yuppie. He was a young physician and, because of his predictions, was in great demand at kingly dinners (at least that's what Orson said).

I figure people picked up his predictions and rumors and passed them around. They probably even thought of ways to make them better. Think about it. If a traveler could raise goosebumps on an old housewife with some tale of the future, well that's got to be more entertaining than say — Rumpelstiltskin. Shoot! Old Nostradamus could probably keep a guy in bread and beans for a week.

So that's why. Now let's talk about how. The Nostradamus technique for amazing the populace long after you're dead is as follows:

(Ahem!)

1. Write about Europe. Europe has had more wars, famine, pestilence, revolutions and general history than just about any other place.

2. Master the style of vague grandiose writing. Never write something like, "There was this king okay, but somebody killed him."

Nostradamian style is: "The young lion will overcome the old one, on the battlefield in single combat. In a cage of gold, his eyes will be put out. Two wounds in one and then to die a cruel death."

See how that works? Could be John Wayne, could be Nixon. 3. Make a lot of predictions. Nostradamus made over 1,000 predictions. Master Wells only covered about 40 in the whole movie. Given enough time, some of them are bound to mean something.

4. Start your own cult before you die. This is very important. If you can fool a few toadies into believing your stuff, when you die you'll be an instant sage.

Funny thing. Whatever is going for good, is so much better than it ever was before. I'll name this phenomenon: The "There's never been another car like the Packard" syndrome.

So, now that you know how it's done, I'll close with a prediction. In doing so, I will illustrate another technique called, "playing the odds."

I predict, in the year of our lord, 19 hundred and 91, in the western part of the state of the single star, some person shall take offense at the words inscribed upon this parchment.

See? I can't lose!

Spitting: One manly activity that fails to attract women

Lewis Grizzard

They'll be discussing some manly subject like the symmetry of a nephew's wife's hindparts; I guarantee you the discussion will include intermittent spits.

The reason men spit so much is we bad.

I'm not certain why women never really have gotten into spitting. In anger, they had rather slap you in the face than spit on it.

Perhaps it has something to do with hormones, or the fact they wear tight pantyhose, which restricts the saliva glands.

At any rate, men spit. There's recreational spitting for men, such as tobacco juice spitting contests and watermelon seed spitting contests.

There's also spitting for effect. Men spit to show their disgust. I once spit out something one of my wives had cooked me for dinner — Spam a la king. I think she called it.

When she wasn't looking I gave what was left on my plate to our dog, who would eat anything, including Spam a la king.

Sports is really where man excels in spitting. Baseball players spit all the time. Reggie Jackson was one of the all-time great spitters.

Each time I saw him come to the plate on television, he would do this rapid fire spit through his two front teeth. He had it down to a science — each spit timed perfectly after the other, the amount of spit the same each time.

In case you haven't heard, there was spitting news recently in basketball. Charles Barkley of the Philadelphia 76ers was trying to spit at a heckler, missed, and hit an 8-year-old girl instead.

Barkley has been fined $10 thousand. He has, however, apologized and for the first time in sports history, I think, even gave us an analytical record of why his spit didn't hit the intended target.

"I was tired," he explained,

"and because of that, the spit in my mouth was foamy. That's why it sprayed all over the place."

Now we know the foamier the spit, the more likely it is to spray and be off target, like putting too much spin on a chip shot.

I guess women eventually will catch up to men in the spitting arena. They're playing more sports and may even soon take up chewing tobacco. Recall the Roseanne Barr spitting incident at a major league baseball game last year.

And she also scratched. Soon, all men may have left to themselves is belching in public. You've come a long way, babies.

Chef competition: A pressure cooker

PARIS (AP) — Pitted against the best of their peers, young French chefs have once again risked heartbreak and humiliation in a national competition that elevates the winners to gastronomic stardom.

Held every three years, the event is widely considered the most prestigious cooking competition in this cuisine-crazy nation.

Last week, 43 finalists — survivors of provincial preliminaries that attracted 369 entries — faced off at a hotel school near Paris. Their task was to prepare the same three dishes: a stuffed sea bass, a veal roast threaded with ham and accompanied by two sauces, and Viennese cream with pears.

After five hours sweating over hot stoves, 13 of the chefs were chosen by a panel of judges — themselves master chefs — to receive little lapel buttons designating them as "Meilleur Ouvrier de France," the Best Worker of France.

The award, known as the MOF, is bestowed in many professions, from watchmakers to plumbers. But no group treasures it more than the chefs.

"This is the absolute top competitive qualification," said Guy Legay, chief chef of the Ritz Hotel. Named an MOF in 1979, Legay was at the awards ceremony at the Jean Drouant Hotel School to cheer on a younger group.

Among the winners was his sous-chef, Michel Roth.

Another winner, Alain Fabregues, came all the way from Mundering, Australia, where he runs a restaurant named The Loose Box.

"It's great news," said Fabregues before dashing off to phone his wife.

The concept of MOFs was dreamed up by Sen. Albert Lebrun in 1925 as a way to encourage excellence.

There is no maximum number of chefs who can hold the distinction.

Charles Barrier, whose three-star restaurant in Tours is known among gourmets worldwide, said the contest rules have changed since he won an MOF in 1958, but the pressure remains intense.

"I had to work very hard for the honor," he said, "but I think I was practically alone that year. In any case, the judges were strict, and I didn't know what I had to cook and present until the day of the contest itself."

"Now the chefs know the test menu a couple of weeks ahead of time. But it's not really easier. The judges are still very fussy."

Those judges are usually former winners.

Study: Americans' cholesterol levels lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The message, some experts say, is getting through: The cholesterol levels of Americans keep declining.

The levels of people studied in Minneapolis-St. Paul dropped significantly in the early 1980s, according to a study published in the New England Journal of Medicine earlier this month.

"We've seen changes in dietary intake of total fat, saturated fats and cholesterol, which suggests that people are eating better," said Dr. Gregory L. Burke, a researcher at Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem, N.C., and director of the study.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has reported from surveys that in 1988, 30 percent of people said they had tried to change their diets to lower their cholesterol levels, up from 14 percent in 1983.

"Certainly, people are more conscious of cholesterol, and labeling has improved, although there is still some mislabeling. Products still say they have no cholesterol when they contain saturated fat," said Albert Oberman, chairman of the American Heart Association Council on Epidemiology and director of the division of general and preventative medicine at the University of Alabama.

Cholesterol is a waxy substance found only in animal products, but the body can turn saturated fats into body cholesterol, which is linked to coronary heart disease.

While cholesterol levels appear to be dropping across the population, people apparently are not eating less, because average weights are on the rise, Oberman said.

Burke also noted that some food companies are changing recipes. For example, many cracker makers stopped using tropical oils, which are highly saturated.

Burke and his colleagues found that during the first half of the 1980s, men's blood cholesterol levels fell an average of 5 points to 200, and women's dropped 6 points to 195.

"On an individual basis, that may not seem like a lot, but when you talk about a population, it's big stuff," Burke said.

That's a 2.5 percent decline for men, which translates into a 5 percent decline in heart disease, Burke said. For every 1 percent decline in cholesterol levels in a population, there's a 2 percent decline in heart disease, he said.

The study was based on surveys of random samples in Minneapolis-

St. Paul of 3,365 people from 1980 through 1982 and 4,545 people from 1985-87. The people were 25 to 74 years old.

Burke said similar results would be expected around the country, because patterns and trends over time have been the same.

The study also found that the prevalence of people with dangerously high cholesterol levels (over 240) declined over the five years among men from 18 percent to 15 percent and among women from 17 percent to 14 percent.

The ratio of total cholesterol to high-density lipoprotein cholesterol, the "good" cholesterol that helps protect against heart attacks, did not change over the five years, Burke said.

One important reason for the decline is an increase in physician intervention, by ordering weight loss or low-fat diets, exercise, and in fewer cases, drugs, Burke said.

But there is plenty of work left to do, he said, noting that two-thirds of the people who have high levels of cholesterol were unaware of that fact.

Two of Burke's suggestions: Replace high-fat snack foods with fruit, and give up a half-hour of television to take a walk.

Despite the good news in Burke's study, a national survey released

April 9 by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute found that Americans know more about cholesterol but are not changing their eating habits. However, even the researchers who directed it said they believed people are doing more than that study showed.

It said 65 percent of adults reported having their cholesterol levels checked, but that only 24 percent said they were making changes in their diets. Beth Schucker, the study's director, noted that other studies show more Americans making changes.

Man wants ex-wife's lover to know pain

DEAR ABBY: After 20 years of what started out as a perfect marriage, my wife and I were divorced several years ago. The reason: My wife's rather open adulterous relationships — there were five of them that I know about. The final blow was our teen-age daughter walking in on her mother and lover in our bed.

My ex has remarried and lives a thousand miles away. While the divorce was painful for me, fortunately my own life is about back to normal. However, the men involved are walking around unbattered from their part in the destruction of our marriage.

Although my religion teaches to forgive trespasses against us, I'm still torn up over it all and feel that in order to achieve complete recovery, I should write all five men a letter (signed, of course) and let them know what their part in the affairs did to me and my children. What do you think, Abby? Sign me — SEETHING

DEAR SEETHING: I wholeheartedly agree that expressing your feelings of anger and hostility is necessary to achieve complete recovery. And while you're in a letter-writing mood, it wouldn't hurt to write a similar letter to your ex-wife.

But now that your life is "about back to normal," the wisest way to achieve complete recovery might be to destroy the letters — unless you can also say "I forgive you," in which case you may qualify for sainthood.

DEAR ABBY: I retired at the age of 62, and at that time, I budgeted my pensions and Social Security. After taking a little out for miscellaneous expenses, I divided what was left between me and my wife right down the middle. Five years later, when my wife of 55 years applied for her Social Security, she decided that it was all hers.

I don't want to go into details because it would make this letter too long, but to my way of thinking, my wife's Social Security should have been thrown into the common pot.

I think my wife is being selfish. What do you think? It will probably not make any difference to my wife

Dear Abby

if you agree with me, but I would like to know for my own satisfaction because I have always respected your advice. — BROWBEATEN IN POMPANO BEACH

DEAR BROWBEATEN: After 55 years of togetherness, I think you are being more than fair to your wife. And yes, I agree with you — your wife is selfish. (I hope this letter doesn't start World War III at your house.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO SALLY McC. IN DETROIT: The best advice I can give you is in my booklet titled "How to Have a Lovely Wedding".

"See your doctor (preferably a gynecologist) for a physical checkup and authoritative answers to all your questions before marriage."

"If birth control is desired, it should be planned BEFORE the wedding. This includes Catholic girls, too, as the rhythm method should be clearly understood to be successfully practiced. (Too many young wives, who had planned on working for a few years, discover to their horror that they got pregnant on their honeymoon.)"

"Many couples experience shock and grief on learning that they are unable to consummate the marriage due to some slight physical abnormality that could have been easily corrected by minor surgery."

"Motherly advice from Aunt Liz or 'tips' from one of the girls is fine, but before a bride keeps her date with the preacher, she should keep one with her doctor."

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054.

Travel guide for disabled

There are more than 43 million disabled people in the United States alone. Many travel, or would like to travel, but do not know that there are travel agents who specialize in arranging travel for people with disabilities.

The third edition of a one-of-a-kind guide, "Directory of Travel Agencies for the Disabled," has just been published. The author, Helen Hecker, who has written other travel books for the disabled, says there is no other book in the marketplace that lists travel agencies which help the disabled arrange travel.

The directory can be purchased for $19.95, plus $2 for shipping. Order form the Disability Bookshop, P.O. Box 129, Vancouver, WA 98666, or order toll-free 1-800-637-2256. For information call 1-206-694-2462.

That perfect pout

NEW YORK (AP) — The key to the perfect pouty mouth fashionable women want today is how the lipstick is applied.

Bobbi Brown, makeup artist for some real beauties as well as ordinary folk, uses a pointed lip brush to apply lipstick evenly and to the full extent of the lips. Then, she outlines lips — top and bottom — with a lip pencil in the same color as the lipstick.

She says lining the bottom lip really makes the lips look pouty.

Brown, who gives makeup lessons at Bergdorf Goodman on Fifth Avenue on Saturdays, says to be sure to use the lip liner after the lipstick to get a clean finish and correct the shape if you have to.

To line, start in the corner and do the top lip, then the bottom lip. Open mouth wide to get into the corners. For a flawless finish, blot lipstick on tissue to absorb excess moisture.

For full, luscious lips, choose a lighter rather than darker lipstick. Dark colors naturally recede, Brown says, making lips look smaller. Light colors emphasize the lips.

To get longer-lasting color, she says add a second coat and then blot with loose powder.

For the new "stain" look, apply lipstick with your fingers instead of a brush. This, Brown says, is a very natural way to wear lipstick and works especially well with deep colors.

Brown, the woman, says brown, the color, should be the basis for all lip colors. Indeed, she has developed a line of 10 colors which she claims are complimentary to most complexions.

Crime of date rape hard to prove

WASHINGTON (AP) — The crime of "date rape" presents special problems for police and the courts, experts say, with prosecutions often hinging on credibility battles between a defendant and his alleged victim.

"Police and prosecutors often respond to acquaintance rape by doing a lot of victim blaming," said Denise Snyder, director of a rape crisis center in the nation's capital.

But Rikki Klieman, a Boston defense lawyer, said the accused man faces conviction on the woman's word alone.

"To think the system today is tilted against alleged victims is nonsense," she said.

Both women and other experts agree that a much-publicized report of rape at the Kennedy mansion in Palm Beach, Fla., illustrates how difficult discovering the truth can be in such cases.

William Kennedy Smith, nephew of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, was named in a criminal complaint filed by a woman who told police she met Smith at a nightclub. She said she accompanied him to his family's home, where he attacked her.

No charges have been filed, but police say their investigation is continuing. Police Chief Joseph Terlizese told reporters he was "99 percent sure" a sexual assault occurred.

"In Palm Beach, these allegations are being taken seriously," said Leslie Wolfe, executive director of the Center for Women Policy Studies here. "That would not have been the case 20 years ago, and even today women are less likely to be believed in acquaintance-rape cases."

A report compiled by the Senate Judiciary Committee staff and issued last month says the number of reported rapes nationwide in one year exceeded 100,000 for the first time in 1990.

The committee's chairman, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., has proposed legislation calling for tougher criminal punishment for sex crimes and allowing rape victims to sue their assailants.

No one knows how many rapes go unreported, but Ms. Snyder said she believes law enforcement officials only are told about one in 10.

"Our society still does a lot of victim blaming in the crime of rape. A lot of women don't want to deal with that," Ms. Snyder said. "This is much more prevalent in acquaintance rapes than in 'stranger rapes' but in both there is a tendency to put the blame on the victim's shoulders."

Nationally, at least 60 percent of all such reported sex crimes are classified as acquaintance or date rapes.

"Many rapes go unreported because of women's fear that the police will treat them poorly," said Ms. Klieman, who prosecuted rape cases as a member of the district attorney's staff in Middlesex County, Mass., from 1977 to 1981. "But these women are wrong. Today, that belief is a fallacy."

Of the reported cases, a tiny percentage — some estimate fewer than 5 percent — result in criminal trials.

How many rape reports are false?

Ms. Snyder, whose crisis center's hotline received an average of 382 calls a month last year, said FBI statistics show no higher percentages of false reports for rape than any other crime.

But Ms. Klieman questions how such statistics are compiled.

"I know that in my state a rape defendant is allowed to show prior false accusations by the alleged victim. That's not the case with any other crime."

She said acquaintance-rape complaints often end up a credibility contest between the accused and accuser.

"The most frightening case, from the defense point of view, is what I call the 'You should have sent her flowers case' in which a respectable man meets a woman, sleeps with her and then doesn't pursue her. Next thing he knows, he's being accused of rape," Ms. Klieman said.

Ms. Wolfe called the image of a scorned woman falsely accusing someone of rape for revenge or attention "an ancient, dangerous stereotype — a medieval view of woman as madonna or whore."

Napoleon's clock

GENEVA — This small travelling clock, used by Napoleon during his Egyptian campaign, fetched a world record 720,000 Swiss francs ($509,000) at an auction in Geneva Sunday. Napoleon had bought the gilt bronze clock 25 days before he embarked to Egypt in 1798, but he exchanged it for another on his return.

Message causes sensation

BEIJING (AP) — Eight lines of poetry in China's leading newspaper have caused a political sensation because of a hidden message — a call for Premier Li Peng to step down.

The premier tried to brush the matter aside.

"It comes as no surprise that some individuals oppose the current policies of the Communist Party and the government," he said. "I don't think that the people who wrote the poem could represent the will of the general public."

He said he expected to finish serving his five-year term, which ends in 1993.

But China's State Security Ministry has taken the poem very seriously. Sources said the ministry sent a team to the People's Daily, the Communist Party newspaper, which published the poem March 20 in its overseas edition.

The team has failed to track down the author, but has decided that People's Daily editors were merely negligent in publishing the poem and did not know about its hidden message, the sources said.

The poem, written in a florid style, ostensibly is about the coming of spring.

But readers noticed that the words "Li Peng, step down, assuage the people's anger" ran diagonally through the poem from top right to bottom left.

The poem's final line also is regarded as having political significance: "Wait, sacred land, spring is everywhere." Many Chinese refer to the crushed 1989 democracy movement as the "Beijing spring."

Li, formerly education minister, is widely disliked by students and scholars, who regard him as inept.

Steve's
stuffGood athletes
win district crownBy STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

It's teams like the Big Spring Lady Steers that make track and field worth covering.

Friday night at Bobcat Stadium was a prime example. Just like a half-mile sprinting the first 150 meters to take early control, the Lady Steers started fast and put the pressure on their opponents.

Big Spring flexed its muscles in the field events, and forced district favorites Monahans and Fort Stockton to play catch me if you can. When it was all over, both Monahans and Fort Stockton made gallant bids to overtake the Lady Steers, but the Big Spring lead was already too big.

It marked the first time in school history that a Lady Steer track team had ever won district. Big Spring has had some superb female track athletes through the years, such as Shell Rutledge and Carla Jackson. Big Spring had competitive track teams during that time because Rutledge and Jackson were extraordinary athletes. But there was no district championship.

This year's Big Spring squad doesn't have any extraordinary athletes, but they've got a bunch of young ladies who will compete to the best of their abilities. Having a lot of athletes out for the sport hasn't been one of the Lady Steers' strong suits in the past. That's where the fourth, fifth and sixth places come in.

That's where Jay Kennedy comes in. In the past two years he has completely changed what girls track meant at BSHS. Instead of coming out and socializing with their friends, the Lady Steers have become accustomed to hard work. Running three 500s and 12 sprints is not easy. Then you go work on your specialty. Doesn't sound like your typical Sunday walk in the park, does it?

Kennedy says the district track champions take pride in what they're doing. "Sometimes they might grumble, but they're proud of themselves," said Kennedy. "They see their friends out there riding around, and they're here working their tails off."

He added that it's not total misery around the oval raceway. "We have a good time out there also; we have fun. That's the only way you can do it. The girls know when it's time to work, though." Kennedy refuses to take all the credit. Other coaches having a part in this district championship are George Martin, Peggy Calhoun, Ricky Long, Randy Britton and Dan Burk. "We all care and we all push it," said Kennedy.

Let's look at how this success began. Two years ago Kennedy took over the head girls track coaching duties. He inherited a squad that was coming off an eighth place finish in district, scoring 37 points. Last year the Lady Steers improved to seventh place, scoring 57 points. A jump from next-to-last to first is a great achievement.

All season long Kennedy has been saying his team could win district, and, I'll admit, I was one of his biggest doubters. But Kennedy knew what he had to do to win — put the limit of three competitors in each event. Sometimes teams win championships with a few great athletes; Kennedy won this championship with a lot of good athletes.

What was supposed to be a two-team race turned into a three-team race with the favorites doing the chasing. Kennedy knew his team would do well in the field events, but he knew Monahans and Fort Stockton were very strong in the running events, especially the distance races.

The Lady Steers grabbed a 46-point lead going into the running events, then dipped into Monahans and Fort Stockton's distance event points, and it was all over. It was all very methodical.

Steers alone at the top in 3-4A

MONAHANS — Shannon Coots and Freddy Rodriguez combined to pitch a three-hitter, and Sammy Gonzales started off all the scoring as the Steers beat the Monahans Lobos 4-2 Tuesday night in district baseball action.

The win keeps Big Spring atop the 3-4A race with a 5-2 record. The Steers move to 14-5 overall. Monahans drops to 2-5 and 7-13.

Coots was the starter and got the win for the Steers. Aside from having a few control problems, Coots pitched five strong innings, striking out one and walking six. Rodriguez went the final two innings got the save, but had to work his way out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the seventh inning to end the game.

Gonzales started things off for the Steers in the second inning. With two outs he walked. With Gerald Cobos facing a 3-2 count, Gonzales was running. Cobos responded with a base hit down the right field line, scoring Gonzales all the way from first.

Big Spring added its second run of the game in the fourth inning. Gonzales led off with a single, and promptly stole second. He scored on Jason Mills' single, giving Big Spring a 2-0 lead.

Big Spring scored its winning runs in the sixth. Gonzales led off with a walk, followed by a walk by Mills. Monahans failed on an attempted pickoff attempt on Gonzales at second, and both Gonzales and Mills advanced a base. Gonzales scored on Cobos' sacrifice fly to center field. Mills scored on a wild pitch.

Monahans scored its first run of game in the bottom of the sixth via a triple and single.

The Lobos made things interesting in the seventh, thanks to a wild streak by Rodriguez.

Rodriguez walked four Lobos, bringing in a run. The Steers turned a shortstop-to-second base-to-first double play to end the game however.

"We played real good defense, not too good offensively and we didn't run the bases well but we hung in there," said Steers coach John Velasquez. "Shannon and Freddy pitched well, they just walked too many."

The Steers will be at home Friday afternoon when they host the Pecos Eagles at 5 p.m. at Steer Field.

Miracle Man?

Foreman says it's destiny that he regain crown

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — As a 10-year-old boy, Evander Holyfield dreamed of becoming a champion as he watched George Foreman beat Joe Frazier for the heavyweight title.

It would have been beyond Holyfield's wildest dreams, however, to picture himself fighting Foreman.

Friday night at the Convention Center, Holyfield will make his first heavyweight championship defense against Foreman, who at age 42 has defied time while not denying himself the pleasures of the table.

"What is a miracle?" the 250-pound Foreman asked Tuesday at a news conference. "A miracle is someone who eats too much" — and comes out of a 10-year retirement to get a shot at regaining boxing's most important title.

A careful selection of opponents by Foreman during his comeback from a 10-year retirement has to figure in Foreman's success.

The punching preacher, who became an evangelist after retiring in 1977, sees it as his destiny to regain the title.

"Evander Holyfield was born so I could get my chance to become heavyweight champion of the world," Foreman said.

The 28-year-old Holyfield is a 5-2 favorite.

Foreman predicts it will take him no longer to regain the championship than it did to win it the first time when he stopped Frazier in the second round in 1973 at Kingston, Jamaica.

It will be Foreman's first pro championship fight in the United States.

After a first-round knockout of Joe "King" Roman in Tokyo and a second-round knockout of Ken Norton at Caracas, Venezuela, Foreman lost the title on an eighth-round knockout by Muhammad Ali in 1974 at Kinshasa, Zaire.

Foreman scored six knockdowns, in beating Frazier, whose style was to attack and who had been unbeaten.

"My knees were shaking when I fought Joe Frazier," Foreman said. "Holyfield is not the kind of guy who makes your knees shake."

"Joe Frazier's style was just cut out for George Foreman," Holyfield said. "It was like a man running into a wall."

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — Heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield mixes it up with a sparring partner during a session last Saturday. Holyfield makes his first title defense Friday night against George Foreman.

This is a different Foreman, too, Holyfield said.

"When Foreman fought Frazier, Foreman was a lot stronger and threw a lot more punches," he said. "Today, he doesn't throw a lot of punches."

Foreman still punches hard, with 23 of his 24 comeback victories coming by knockout.

"I didn't come here to get the money," Foreman said in emphasizing his goal is the championship. He will, however, get at least $12.5 million.

Co-promoter Bob Arum thinks the match will be the richest fight in history, grossing $100 million, that Foreman could add $3 million to his guaranteed purse and that Holyfield could add $5 million to his guarantee of $20 million.

Arum predicts the pay-per-view telecast will reach $2 million at an average fee of $40. There also will be a $10 million live gate, plus revenues from closed-circuit and foreign television.

The highest fight gross was $77 million for the Sugar Ray Leonard-Marvelous Marvin Hager middleweight title match, according to Arum.

Co-promoter Dan Duva was a bit more conservative, but did predict the gross "will be at least $90 million."

"It will definitely be the richest fight ever," said Shelly Finkel, Holyfield's manager, who is handling pay-per-view television for the promotion.

Streaking Blazers rout Rockets, 115-96

SAN ANTONIO — San Antonio Spurs Willie Anderson charges through the crowd against the Los Angeles Clippers Olden Polynice in NBA action at the Hemisfair.

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS

Everything's falling into place for the Portland Trail Blazers.

They've already clinched the best record in the NBA and they are the hottest team in the league with a 15-game winning streak. Now, the schedule is working in their favor.

The Blazers caught streaking Houston on the second of consecutive games on the road and took advantage of the Rockets' lackluster play to beat them 115-96 Tuesday night.

"They played a lot harder than that down in Houston, and I've seen some games on television on the road where they've played a lot harder," the Blazers' Jerome Kersey said. "I think they might be falling out a little bit of their flow."

"We were very sluggish physically and mentally," Rockets coach Don Chaney said. "We just didn't react very well."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was Charlotte 92, Miami 87; Detroit 118, Boston 90; Indiana 132, New Jersey 126; Orlando 113, Atlanta 106; Washington 112, Milwaukee 106 in overtime; New York 108, Philadelphia 99 in overtime; San Antonio 128, the Los Angeles Clippers 98; Phoenix 153, Denver 118; and Utah 111, Sacramento 101.

Cliff Robinson scored 12 of his 14 points while Portland outscored Houston 38-22 in the third quarter, giving the Blazers an 88-61 lead.

The Rockets, who hit 24 percent of their shots in the second and third periods, fell into third place in the Midwest Division, two games behind first-place San Antonio with three games to go.

"This was a very big game for us, but you wouldn't have known that by our play," Chaney said. "It was one of those nights where we just didn't have it. We could have put a lot of pressure on San Antonio, but it was one of our worst outings."

The Blazers, who have clinched homecourt advantage throughout the playoffs, are just one victory short of the Los Angeles Lakers' 16-game string that was the longest in the NBA this season.

"Everything's kind of over for us, but the guys want to keep that streak going," he said. "The longest streak this season is 16, and these guys want to get that."

Clyde Drexler and Walter Davis scored 16 points apiece for the Blazers. Drexler and the rest of the Portland starters left the game in the third quarter and didn't play again.

Kenny Smith led the Rockets with 13 points.

Spurs 128, Clippers 98
David Robinson had 24 points, 13 rebounds and seven blocked shots as San Antonio won at home against Los Angeles and stayed a game ahead of second-place Utah in the Midwest.

Robinson had 13 points in the game's first 10 minutes — matching the Clippers' team total to that point.

The victory also kept alive San Antonio's chance of matching its franchise mark of 56 victories. San Antonio (53-26) visits Houston on Thursday and Denver on Friday and closes out the season against Dallas at home on Sunday.

Loy Vaught paced Los Angeles with 17 points, 15 in the final quarter.

Jazz 111, Kings 101
Karl Malone scored 28 points and Jeff Malone 26 as Utah extended Sacramento's NBA-record road losing streak to 36.

John Stockton had 21 points and 16 assists and Thurl Bailey scored 18 points for the Jazz. Antoine Carr scored 35 points, but the next-highest total was Bill Wennington's 14 for the Kings, whose loss at Minnesota on Monday night set the NBA record for road futility.

At this point, the Chicago White Sox might not care if they ever see the new Comiskey Park.

The White Sox remained the only undefeated team in baseball Tuesday night, beating New York 4-3 in 10 innings for their sixth straight

Brown (1-1) gave up three hits in seven-plus innings for his first victory in eight starts. He slumped late last season with elbow problems and was hit hard in spring training. Jeff Russell finished for his first save. Gary Pettis scored twice against Eric King (1-1), once on a single by Downing.

At San Diego, Hal Morris' bases-loaded single with two outs in the ninth provided the only run, ending a four-game Cincinnati losing streak.

Braves 10, Astros 4
Atlanta's losing ways at home ended before a long slide could begin, thanks to a seven-run eighth inning. Terry Pendleton's three-run double keyed the rally after the Braves lost their first three home games.

Trailing 4-3 entering the eighth, the Braves tied it on Jeff Blauser's infield single. Pendleton's hit scored Greg Olson, who had singled, Blauser and Deion Sanders, who had walked. Ron Gant, in a 2-for-20 slump to open the season, then doubled home Pendleton. David Justice was walked intentionally and Sid Bream doubled home both runners.

Reliever Xavier Hernandez (0-1) was the loser, facing three hitters in the inning and failing to retire any. Doug Sisk got his first win since June 7, 1988, with Baltimore.

Expos 4, Cardinals 1

At Montreal, 37-year-old Rick Mahler, who made the Expos as a non-roster invitee in spring training, allowed four hits on the way to his first victory since last Sept. 1 with the Reds. Pistons 118, Celtics 90
Detroit won easily at home against Atlantic Division champion Boston as Isiah Thomas scored 22 of his 25 points in the first half.

The Pistons led 15-2 after just 3:23 and 37-24 at the end of the first quarter, a margin the Celtics never threatened.

Joe Dumars scored 22 points and Dennis Rodman grabbed 18 rebounds for the Pistons, who lead Milwaukee by two games in the race for third place in the Eastern Conference.

Kevin McHale scored 26 points for the Celtics.

Knicks 108, 76ers 99, OT
Philadelphia set a record for most overtime games in a season, but couldn't establish the mark for most overtime victories as Patrick Ewing scored 38 points for New York at Madison Square Garden.

Ewing scored eight of the 13 points scored in overtime by the Knicks, who managed only 12 points in the final period when they were 3-for-18 from the field.

Hersey Hawkins, who had 30 points, scored three of the four points in the extra session for Philadelphia, which set an NBA record by playing its 14th overtime game. The 76ers remain tied with the 1978 Milwaukee Bucks for most overtime victories, eight.

Suns 153, Nuggets 118
Kevin Johnson made four

Cedric Ceballos led Phoenix with 34 points, including 12 in the second quarter as the Suns romped to a 77-61 halftime lead.

The Suns hit 65 percent of their shots but took 19 fewer shots than the Nuggets, who shot 39.5 percent and got 23 points from Michael Adams.

The Suns remained in fourth place in the Western Conference, a spot that would give them a homecourt advantage for the first round of the playoffs. The Nuggets have lost nine in a row and 16 of their last 17.

Hornets 92, Heat 87
Dell Curry led four reserves in double figures with 19 points as Charlotte won at home against Miami. Reserves scored all of the Hornets' 27 points in the final period and outscored the Heat's backups 52-13 for the game.

Curry hit five of his first six shots in the final quarter and his layup with 4:36 left put Charlotte ahead 84-81. His 20-foot jumper made it 90-85 with 49.6 seconds remaining.

Sherman Douglas had 23 points for Miami.

Magic 113, Hawks 106
At Orlando, Scott Skiles and Otis Smith each scored 25 points as Atlanta missed a chance to catch Philadelphia for fifth place in the Eastern Conference.

the lead for good.

Pacers 132, Nets 126
Chuck Person scored 18 of his 24 points in Indiana's 78-point first half at New Jersey.

Arkansas players punishment altered by systems president

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The decision by a University of Arkansas judicial board to discipline four basketball players has been altered by the system president, and the players are satisfied, an attorney for one of the players said today.

B. Alan Sugg, system president, was to conduct a news conference at 11 a.m. today to discuss the appeals. Marshall Carlisle, the attorney for Roosevelt Wallace, said the players have given Sugg permission to discuss details of his decision. Federal law prohibits school officials from discussing student discipline without permission from the students.

"We met with the associate counsel of the university, with the players. We read a letter that Dr. Sugg has written to each of the players. Each of the players executed a release authorizing Dr. Sugg to release his decision to the public," Carlisle said in a telephone interview. He wouldn't discuss specifics of Sugg's decision.

Asked if the players signed the release because Sugg's decision means the players won't be suspended from the team, Carlisle said: "You have a very calculating mind and draw proper conclusions."

He then was asked if Sugg's decision on punishment was less severe than the yearlong team suspension that sources say was imposed by the All University Judicial Board.

"I'll just say it's different in a number of respects," Carlisle said.

The players' attorneys and school officials have refused to discuss the judicial board ruling, the minimum effects of which were revealed by sources last week. Carlisle said Sugg has agreed not to talk about the judicial board decision in light of his revisions of that ruling.

Attorneys for the other players couldn't be reached for comment today.

Wallace and teammates Todd Day, Darrell Hawkins and Elmer Martin were implicated by a 34-year-old Springdale woman who told police she was sexually assaulted Feb. 27 at the UA athletic dormitory. She did not press charges and Prosecutor Andrew Ziser said evidence wasn't sufficient to file charges.

At the very least, Day, a second-team All-American, and his three teammates were suspended from the basketball team for a year by the judicial board, highly placed university sources said last week.

Sugg said Tuesday he would conduct the news conference, but he declined to say any more. School officials have said federal law bars them from discussing student records, including disciplinary actions, without permission from the students.

"I just think this is an issue that's been discussed regularly in the press and by many people in Arkansas. I just think I want to have a news conference to personally talk about the issues," Sugg said in a telephone interview from his Little Rock office.

Hawkins was suspended for the first three games of next season by Coach Nolan Richardson because the incident took place in Hawkins' dorm room.

Richardson hasn't said whether he took any action against Day, Martin or Wallace. UA Chancellor Dan Ferriarso said he urged athletic department officials to take stronger and more immediate action against the players than was taken.

The players said the woman consented to having sex. Police said she was drunk.

The woman's attorney, Doug Norwood of Springdale, has said his client didn't press charges because it was apparent that Ziser wasn't interested in prosecuting anybody.

Lee suing Walt Disney

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Walt Disney Co. says it will appeal a judge's decision to give Peggy Lee $2.3 million of $3.8 million awarded her by a jury in a dispute over videocassette profits from 1955 film "Lady and the Tramp."

Superior Court Judge Stephen M. Lachs put an end Tuesday to confusion over whether Miss Lee was entitled to all five awards from the jury or just the highest. He said both sides had agreed beforehand she would get the highest.

Miss Lee, 70, co-wrote six songs and provided the voice for four characters in the animated classic.

PETER USTINOV

Ustinov celebrates

PARIS (AP) — Actors Tony Curtis, Richard Harris and Jean Stapleton turned out to entertain Sir Peter Ustinov on his 70th birthday.

More than 100 actors, singers, dancers and political leaders gathered Tuesday at UNESCO headquarters in Paris to honor Ustinov for his humanitarian work, including a literacy campaign for Third World children.

The British-born actor, director and writer has been in Paris promoting his latest novel, "Le Desinformateur," or "The Disinformant."

Also on hand for the soiree were singer-actress Petula Clark, Marcel Marceau and actress Leslie Caron.

She said she was paid $3,500 for her work and deserved as much as $10 million of the $72 million in video profits.

On March 20, the jury awarded her $2.3 million for breach of contract.

Council candidates share concerns

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — The three candidates running for two at-large city council seats all share some of the same concerns: building a new landfill, economic development and beautifying the parks and community.

In addition, newcomer Woody Crow, 37, said he would like to look into what can be done about water quality.

Newcomer James Johnson, 34, said he would work to sustain businesses already here and said some attention needs to be given to city organizational planning.

Incumbent Gene Wheeler, 42, said the council needs to continue seeking more grants for street paving on the south side and to pump water out of a lake that sometimes floods streets there.

Councilman Lester Baker, whose seat is up for election, is running unopposed for mayor in the May 4 election. Absentee voting continues through April 30.

Wheeler, who owns Wheeler Drilling Co., says his business experience was one reason why he decided to run for office in 1989. Some spending by the city has been reduced since then, he said.

"I feel in the last couple years we have not streamlined, but have implemented a few things to cut spending," said Wheeler, who was raised in Martin County and is a 1967 graduate of Stanton High School.

Projects he wants to see completed include pumping water out of Lake Pauline. "We've been looking at some grant money," he said. "Not as much as we need to because we got involved in this landfill."

City and county officials have been working the past year to open a new landfill that will conform to proposed stricter federal regulations. "I want to finish this landfill project," Wheeler said.

He said he also wants to consider any business expansion that is "viable" to the community, continue seeking grants for street paving and said he is happy that something is being done to beautify city parks. The city is in the process of applying for a park improvement grant from the Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife.

Johnson, employed with a consulting firm in Midland and a minister at Stanton Church of Christ, commended the city for the park renovation efforts and said he wants to further identify problems in the community and seek grants to correct them.

"I particularly want to enhance our aesthetics in the downtown area, creating some enticements for Interstate 20 tourism," said Johnson, who holds a doctorate degree from Texas Tech University.

He said he would work to recruit new businesses to the city and would put "extra effort" into sustaining businesses already here.

One of the more pressing issues facing the city is the landfill, Johnson said. He recommended adopting its own standards in anticipation of future state additions to federal regulations.

"It will not do any good if we only strive to meet the current standards put forth by the state," he said. "If we do, then we will have to keep going through major renovations every three to five years."

Another issue is organization planning, Johnson said. "I think that some attention needs to be given to updating and clarifying current work descriptions and the city's organizational policy statements," he said.

Crow, an employee of Tamarack Petroleum in Midland, said water quality is something he is concerned about. "I'd like to check into that to see how we can improve the water," said the 1971 graduate of Odessa High School who has lived in Martin County 19 years.

He said he would be interested in attracting businesses to Stanton if they benefit the community. "If it benefits the people here then I'm all for it," he said. "It takes a lot of searching on things to make sure it will benefit."

He also said he would like to see park improvements and would research the best ways to build a new landfill. "I'd like to see them have another park," he said.

U.S. completes force withdrawal

SAFWAN, Iraq (AP) — U.S. forces have withdrawn from all of southern Iraq except a narrow border zone, but the remaining 18,000 troops will protect and feed anti-government refugees until effective alternatives are found, a field commander said today.

"We're not going to pull the plug until people can take care of themselves or until there's somebody else here to take care of them," said Lt. Col. John Kalb, in charge of a sector that includes the U.S.-run refugee camp in Safwan.

An estimated 40,000 Iraqis have sought refuge along the border, including 11,000 receiving food and medical care at Safwan. Many fear the American withdrawal will leave them vulnerable to reprisals from President Saddam Hussein's security forces.

Kalb said it was possible that U.S. troops might stay on to run humanitarian programs in the buffer zone even after deployment of a 1,440-member United Nations observer force. An advance U.N. team is in Kuwait, but no timetable for deployment has been announced.

"The U.S. isn't going to pull out until there's a good, solid handoff to the U.N.," Kalb said.

The demilitarized zone created under terms of the U.N. Security Council's cease-fire plan stretches six miles into Iraq and three miles into Kuwait.

The soldiers remaining in the area are from the 3rd Armored Division — the last U.S. troops in Iraq out of a peak total of about 200,000 after the allied victory in late February.

Officers said the other major U.S. contingent in Iraq — the 1st Infantry Division — had completed its pullout by early today.

Officers said there was no indication as yet that any new Iraqi forces were moving into areas vacated by the Americans. Kalb said armored units under his command were continuing reconnaissance patrols within the buffer zone.

Under the U.N. plan, the Iraqi part of the buffer zone is to return to the civil control of the Iraqi government once the U.N. peacekeeping force is deployed.

Midland County may join district

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

STANTON — Midland County officials said Tuesday they are working to get landowner support to join the Martin County Underground Water Conservation District.

The move comes three months after Howard County voters in the northwest area, about 20 percent of the county, voted 60-1 to join the district. Martin County voters agreed to the annexation with a 26-6 vote. The district is in the process of changing their name.

All voters in the present district, which taxes at 2 cents per $100 property valuation, as well as those in the proposed Midland County area would vote on another annexation. A vote could be held later this year.

"We'd sure like to make a formal request to join you," J.D. Crawford, a board director on the U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service in Midland told MCUCWD directors at a meeting Tuesday night.

"We feel like this is the best way to get a district and the fastest way for the protection of groundwater," said Crawford, who with two other members of the Soil Conservation Service in Midland presented a map of proposed boundaries that would include everything south of the city of Midland and Interstate 20, an area covering more than 60 percent of the county.

MCUCWD Manager Mark Hoelscher said annexing Midland County would probably benefit the district. "It'd make us extremely cost effective," he said. "We're humbled, we're very pleased that someone thinks we're doing an acceptable enough job to want to join it."

Hoelscher recommended that a vote take place after Sept. 1, the day new state laws go into effect. "That gives us a fair amount of lead time," he said.

An election would be scheduled if at least 50 percent of the landowners or 50 signatures on a petition is approved by the MCUCWD board of directors. Public hearings would precede the election.

Crawford said the board is working to make sure it has support from people in the proposed area

Lawmaker willing to let waste move East

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Opponents of a West Texas nuclear dump are negotiating in the Legislature to move the waste site further east and may have struck a deal with a lawmaker trying to keep it in far west Texas.

The House Environment Committee Tuesday considered a bill drafted by Rep. Dan Shelly, R-Crosby. The bill would declare the Fort Hancock site the official site for the nuclear dump, circumventing a state district court judge's ruling in January that site is unsuitable for storing nuclear waste. El Paso and Hudspeth Counties successfully argued in their lawsuit against the Texas Low-Level Radioactive Waste Authority that the Fort Hancock site is prone to earthquakes and flooding.

The state is facing a Jan. 1, 1992, federal deadline to apply for a license to operate the nuclear dump. Missing the deadline could cost the state $8 million a year in penalties.

El Paso County Assistant Attorney Gayle Garner told the committee Shelly's bill was unconstitutional and cited a 1934 Texas Supreme Court ruling that the Legislature cannot interfere with relief granted to a plaintiff in a specific lawsuit or interfere with the appeals process.

"This bill is designed to nullify our win and interfere with the appellate process," Garner said in a phone interview from Austin Wednesday.

During a break after Garner's testimony, Shelly and Garner met in a hallway to discuss a possible compromise.

HOME ECONOMISTS PREDICT

21st CENTURY FOOD TRENDS

SOMEWHERE in the not-too-distant 21st century, you may not have to leave the comfort of your own easy chair to do your grocery shopping. Simply place your computer order and the food will be delivered to your doorstep. Once there, you'll be able to assemble meals and snacks in any room of your home because each room will have its own microwave oven. Imagine pampering yourself with breakfast in bed...without ever leaving your bedroom!

Such are the predictions of two leading Home Economists in Business (HEIBs). And they should know. For theirs is a profession charged with anticipating wants and needs of consumers, then communicating those wants and needs to the business world.

Says Annie Watts, current Chairman of HEIB and Director of Borden Kitchens and Product Publicity, "Home Economists bring the consumer's perspective to the marketplace." She has been doing just that for more than 20 years in consumer-oriented positions first with Stokely-Van Camp, then with Campbell Soup Company, and finally with her current company, Borden, Inc.

"HEIBs are unique in that they combine a specialization in a certain area (such as food) with a concern for the total well being of the consumer and the ability to articulate those concerns to business," Watts says.

The need for that variety of skills attracted Watts to the Home Economics profession and her current position at Borden, Inc. Since Borden has lots of ingredient products, she initiated use of a magazine publisher to print recipes using those products and distribute them to consumers at little or no cost to the company. She suggested an idea that benefited both consumers (with creative new ideas) and the business (with increased sales potential).

In addition to representing consumers to business, HEIBs also help educate consumers about the new products and services that businesses provide. "HEIBs are specialists in all aspects of everyday living," says Dee Munson, 1990 Business Home Economist of the Year and President of Evans Food Group. "We help people understand how to live life to the fullest."

Munson feels the service that business home economists provide will become even more important in the future. For example, in the next century homes will have a single computer console to control heating, cooling, lighting, air quality, cooking, etc. Not only will home economists work closely with engineers to help design a product that will be most useful to consumers, but they will also be the vital trainers who will teach people how to use these computers in their homes.

Munson herself has been helping educate consumers in matters of daily living for more than 30 years with an impressive line of career positions beginning with editorial work at Better Homes and Gardens and Institutions magazines. "My first job was the greatest learning experience of my career," says Munson. "I learned the value of serving the reader (consumer) and being the link between industry and the consumer." From there, she held management positions with the Wheat Flour Institute, the American Egg Board, and Cole and Weber Advertising, as well as founding her own company, The Food Professional, prior to her current position at Evans.

When these two seasoned professionals put their heads together to create a menu for the consumer of the future, they came up with the following great-tasting, low-fat, good-for-you, quick, and easy-to-fix recipes.

21st CENTURY

FOOD TRENDS

"Food is one of the pleasures of life. We may make it more convenient, but it will never be replaced by a pill." —Dee Munson

QUICK AND CONVENIENT—Dual-income households are here to stay. And that means time will continue to be a precious commodity. No matter what other concerns may surface, people will place top priority on convenience.

TASTE, QUALITY, AND VALUE—Even if a product is convenient, it will need to taste good to win out with consumers. Foods will have to be worth their cost.

HAND-HELD, SINGLE-HANDED FOODS—With the advent of bedroom and auto microwave ovens, heat-and-eat foods will need to be compact and easily handled. Dress or drive with one hand—eat with the other!

SAFETY AND ENVIRONMENT—Consumers increasingly want wholesome products that are environmentally sound. Business and consumers together will shoulder the responsibility of these concerns.

MEAL TIME TRENDS

"Cooking won't go away. But, it will be more of a leisure-time activity than an everyday necessity." —Annie Watts

TOTAL FAMILY ACTIVITY—No longer just Mom, but everyone will be involved in planning, shopping, preparing, and cleaning up.

ASSEMBLY-LINE MEALS—Meal preparation time will average 15 minutes—just about as much as eating time. During the week, meal preparation will become more a process of gathering rather than cooking. That could mean salad from a salad bar, meat from the deli, and a heat-up microwave vegetable. Meals will be simpler—not 3 to 5 course affairs.

DIAL-A-MEAL—As homes become more like castles and retreats, there will be more dine-at-home catering.

GROCERY SHOPPING TRENDS

HIGH-TECH MARKETING—Computers will play an increasingly important role in grocery stores. That means there will be more information available on nutrition, packaging, storage, pricing, etc. to help shoppers make purchasing decisions.

SCANNER FEEDBACK—As a grocery checker (or the shopper her/himself) runs a shopper's purchases over the register scanner, the purchases will be tabulated and made available to the various manufacturers whose products are bought. They will be able to send shoppers specific coupons and recipes for that product immediately.

SHOPPING CART SPECIALS—Imagine rolling a computerized cart down the aisle and having it flash specials on a screen as a shopper passes by a certain product!

NUTRITION/HEALTH TRENDS

CONTINUED, BUT SENSIBLE CONCERN—Concern for well being and total health will remain strong. However, people will become less faddish and more take-charge about nutrition issues. A "tell me the facts and let me decide for myself" attitude will prevail.

EVERYTHING IN MODERATION—Consumers will settle down to a realization that variety in the diet is ultimately important. Indulgent premium foods will become more occasional. Demand for healthier, low-fat, low-calorie versions of existing products will remain high.

Saving our planet around the home

This year when you begin spring cleaning, think how you can save our planet around your home. We've all heard that our planet is in trouble — from acid rain, the greenhouse effect, the destruction of our forests and the thinning ozone layer. Here are some facts you should know:

- There are more chemicals in the average American home than there were in the average chemical lab a century ago.

- Each year, America produces the equivalent of 10 pounds of plastic for every person on earth.

- Toxic waste is produced in this country at a rate of one ton per person annually. If all that waste was stored in 55-gallon drums and laid end to end, it would circle the globe over 19 times.

- The average American generates 3.5 pounds of garbage each day. People will generate 600 times their weight in garbage in their lifetime.

- One third of all solid waste is packing.

We all make choices in our daily lives which affect our planet's environment. Everything from how we wash our clothes, use electricity, heat and cool our homes, to the products we buy and use and the companies we invest in, all directly affect the environment.

Start in your home

The best place to start making a difference is in your home. The American home is a major contributor to the deterioration of the environment. The average American home uses approximately 25 gallons of hazardous chemicals a year. Major sources of hazardous chemicals are automotive products, household cleaners, grease and rust solvents, paint and related home improvement products, lawn and garden products and miscellaneous products such as craft supplies and shoe polish.

The makers of EarthRite®, a new line of environmentally-safe household cleaning products, offer the following tips for you to begin saving our planet around the home.

- Start a compost pile in your backyard. Composting turns organic garbage and material into rich fertilizer. You can purchase a compost kit or make your own.

- Conserve water. There are inexpensive aerators you can buy for your faucets and shower heads. Don't waste water by leaving it on while you brush your teeth. Take showers instead of baths.

- Stop using toxic cleaners and replace them with ecologically safe cleaners like EarthRite products, which are non-toxic and 100 percent biodegradable. The EarthRite line includes Tub & Tile Cleaner, Toilet Bowl Cleaner, All Purpose Cleaner, Floor Cleaner, Glass Cleaner, Laundry Liquid, Dish Liquid, Wood & Paneling Furniture Polish and Countertop Cleaner. These are products that work as well as chemical-based cleaners, but are gentle to you and the environment.

EarthRite also uses only shipping cartons and displays from recycled paper and will donate one percent of its profits to non-profit environmental organizations.

- Don't waste paper. Take your own supply of paper bags to the grocery store or reuse plastic bags. Use envelopes and junk mail to make shopping lists, and for the children's projects. Purchase recycled stationery and envelopes for your correspondence.

- Look before you buy. Purchase products that have a limited amount of packaging. Read labels carefully. Don't buy products that have styrofoam cartons. Buy products in bulk to save on packaging and price. Purchase products which are recyclable or made from recycled products.

- Read, read and read some more. Pick up one of the many magazines devoted to preserving our environment to learn more ways you can help.

- Research the various non-profit organizations working to restore and preserve our national environment and become a member of one.

- Take the time to plant a tree. Not only is this great for the environment, but it is fun for the family to watch the tree thrive and grow.

Be an activist and write letters to your government representatives urging action on environmental issues. Start a letter campaign in your neighborhood.

What a garden can do

Plant your own garden. Not only does it supply you with fresh vegetables, but it enriches the soil and can be a family activity. Make sure you avoid using chemical pesticides and fertilizers.

Garage door maintenance tips, new non-contact sensor

Since the garage door is often the heaviest and largest piece of moving equipment in a home, testing and properly maintaining the garage door are particularly important safety precautions for the homeowner.

According to Stanley Home Automation, the following inspection and maintenance steps can help ensure safe operation of your garage door opening system.

It is important to review your owner's manual for both the door and door opener. Request a copy from the manufacturer if the opener was present when you moved in and the manual is missing.

Visually inspect the garage door springs, cables, rollers and other door hardware for signs of wear, and call a qualified door technician to make repairs if you suspect any problems. Ask about a restraining cable, which is installed on the extension spring, and can help to contain the spring should it break.

Inspect and test your garage door opening system at least once a month. As a test, Stanley suggests placing a 2x4 block of wood flat on the floor in the door's path before activating the door. If the door fails to immediately stop and reverse when it strikes the wood, disconnect the opener and use the door manually until it can be repaired or replaced.

Parents are reminded that garage doors and door openers are not toys. Place remote controls or push button openers out of children's reach. Caution children that running under a closing door can be dangerous.

Stanley recently introduced a Safe-T-Close™ non-contact sensor that stops and reverses a closing garage door if the system's infra-red beam is broken, and prevents a door from closing if an object blocks the path of the beam. The innovative product is quick and easy to install, with the industry's first one-piece receiver/transmitter and built-in beam alignment indicator.

For further information on this product and a free garage door opener maintenance chart, write to Stanley Home Automation, Division of The Stanley Works, 41700 Gardenbrook, Novi, MI 48393-1965. SH916487

The beauty of Celtic home design

Thirty of the most beautiful homes of Scotland, Ireland and Wales — grand eighteenth-century castles, humble country cottages, and sophisticated urban townhouses — are featured in Celtic: Design and Style in Homes of Scotland, Ireland, and Wales, a sumptuous new design book by Viking Studio Books ($35.00). Celtic is the first book to explore in one volume the style and design of homes in these three Celtic countries.

British photographer Ken Kirkwood takes the reader on an exotic journey through the lochs and glens, cities and small towns of the "Celtic Fringe" to view magnificent homes that reflect the rich, varied traditions of the Celts.

According to Ms. Krasner, Celtic is larger in scope than most design books. It not only provides hundreds of breathtaking photographs of beautiful interiors and lush landscapes, but also explains why these houses look the way they do. SH916796

February facts

•Do you know the story of George Washington and the cherry tree? When George Washington was six years old, he chopped down his father's cherry tree. When his father saw what had happened, he asked young George if it was he who had cut down the tree. Because George was honest, he answered, "I cannot tell a lie. I did cut it with my little hatchet."

Because George did the right thing, we like to think this story is true, but it is not. It was first told in a book about George Washington that was written after he died. The book had a very long title: Life of George Washington: With Curious Anecdotes, Equally Honorable to Himself and Exemplary to His Young Countrymen. It contained many other stories about Washington that were not true but which quickly became legends.

Washington was actually born on February 22, but his birthday (and Abraham Lincoln's) is always celebrated on the third Monday in February, so everyone can have a long weekend to relax. Abraham Lincoln was actually born on February 12.

•Abraham Lincoln was assassinated on April 14th, Good Friday, in Washington D.C. It took two weeks for the train carrying his coffin to travel to Illinois, where Lincoln lived before becoming president. There is a legend that says that every year on April 27th at midnight, the train appears again, gliding slowly along the tracks.

•Valentine's Day cards often feature pictures of Cupid. But who is Cupid? Cupid was one of the gods of ancient Rome. He was usually described as a chubby, mischievous little boy with wings, who liked to shoot his magic arrows into people's hearts, causing them to fall in love.

•Groundhog day is not exactly a holiday, but it gets a lot of attention. Supposedly, February 2nd is the day when the hibernating groundhog leaves his burrow, and if he sees his shadow when he comes out, there will be six more weeks of winter. Is the groundhog usually right? Not according to the National Geographic Service, which says the groundhog's prediction comes true only 28 percent of the time! Anyway, spring doesn't officially start until March 20.

BUSINESS REVIEW

Edited by Linda Choate

If you thirst for quality — We Deliver!
Third Coast Water Company

"Our delivery service is free to our customers, they pay only for the water," says Maury Smith, owner of Third Coast Water company.

Smith has been in the water business for many years. He started Third Coast by buying bulk water on the premise of bringing the product to the customer.

"I stress that our responsibility is that our customers never run out of water."

Third Coast offers regular home and business water delivery (in five gallon plastic bottles, and 3 gallons to come soon) from its reverse osmosis plant.

"Water delivery is our primary business. With all the errands people have to run today — to the grocery store, dry cleaners, etc., there's no need to have to add water store to that list," the Big Spring native said. "I live here, I want to provide my customers with a quality product and superior service that I would expect from a local business."

The firm is especially proud of its delivery service to senior citizens (62 and over). "We deliver five gallons to their homes for only $3.00."

Third Coast also owns and operate reverse osmosis systems at Don's Fiesta in Big Spring and Lamesa, Dominguez #1, Wes-T-Go Stop (Greenwood), Kay's Fina Mart, Vier Convenience Store in Garden City and a system at Canterbury with others in the works. Water samples are regularly taken at these locations.

Bulk hauling is available for spa systems and also for oil field uses up to 7,000 gallons.

In addition to Smith, the staff includes Teresa Thompson, bookkeeper; James Balios, plant manager; and Alan White, route sales manager.

Your diamond solitaire: The shape of things to come

For centuries man has attempted to access personality through tea leaves, astrological charts, and even bumps on the head. Now here's a new twist. In order to reveal whether a person is creative, aggressive, sensitive, earthbound or dreamy, look at his or her favorite diamond shape: round, oval, pear, marquise or emerald cut.

Over the years, veteran jewelry appraiser Saul Spero has developed a "personality profile" of individuals selecting diamond engagement rings by observing a direct correlation between the shape of the diamond desired and the person's character.

The credibility of Mr. Spero's observations is based on psychological precepts, confirms Dr. Frederick Koenig, professor of sociology at Tulane University. "There is a solid rationale behind Spero's observations. When a person selects a particular geometric shape, that person gives expression to an inner impulse...it is a revelation of the inner self."

How does it work?

If you like the round shape best, husband, children and home life are terribly important to you. You're content, dependable, and relate easily to others. You eagerly anticipate all the comforts and joys of marriage and motherhood. Even if you work, a career is not your uppermost concern.

The security of home and family (suggested by the round portion) is also very meaningful to someone who selects the pear shape. But you're eager to meet new people and embark on new experiences (indicated by the tapered end). You're ambitious, want to keep up with your peers and urge your mate to do likewise.

Does the oval shape diamond appeal to you? Chances are you love to innovate and are fully in your element when you're being creative. You're organized, but not inflexible, and have a unique sense of your own style. You dare to be different, but are not "far out." The oval personality is a blend of the round, square/emerald and marquise.

Someone who prefers the marquise shape is outgoing, impulsive, sometimes temperamental, sexy and known to be "a charmer" (depicted by two tapered ends). You thrive on new challenges and your partner must do the same to keep up with you. Your energies need the outlet of a career and you're compelled to achieve your potential. You savor excitement and don't like to be "cooped up" at home.

A bit conservative, disciplined and organized, describes someone who favors the orderly, angular square or emerald shape. Often your mind wins out over your heart. You think things over clearly before making decisions. You also have good executive and leadership capabilities.

Diamond shape, or "cut," is just one of the all-important "Four C's" that should be considered when buying a diamond, advises Jewelers of America (JA), the national organization dedicated to consumer information and education about fine jewelry. Diamond values are also based on carat weight (there are 142 carats to an ounce, and 100 points to a carat); color (the amount by which a diamond deviates from the whitest possible, or truly colorless); and clarity (determined by taking into account the number, size, placement, color and nature of any internal "inclusions" or external surface irregularities).

How much should you plan to spend? Jewelers of America recommends a two months' salary guideline that will not adversely affect your budget but reflects a reasonable allowance for a better quality diamond solitaire. After all, unlike cars, stereos, furs and VCRs, this is a one-time purchase that lasts a lifetime and becomes a family heirloom!

It is important, therefore, to make your diamond purchase based on cut, clarity, carat weight and color. Because every diamond has its own characteristics, and no two stones are exactly alike, JA recommends that you consult with a local diamond expert, your neighborhood jeweler whom you know and trust. He or she will be able to guide you, based on your likes and dislikes, to the best value for your money.

A diamond engagement ring is symbolic of your love and lifelong commitment to one another. For free information about buying a diamond and other fine jewelry, write to: JA, Dept. M90B, 1271 Sixth Ave., New York, NY 10020.

ATTENTION BRIDES-TO-BE! Your personality is reflected in the shape of the diamond you select for your engagement ring. Photo courtesy of Jewelers of America. BR915336

Great photos on your honeymoon and happily ever after

Every bride and groom wants tangible memories of their honeymoon. Whether you sail to the Caribbean, take a trip to Europe, or spend a cozy week at a country inn, the best way to have memories to keep is to take photos of this very special time in your married life.

As you plan for your honeymoon, here are some photo tips from Ricoh, one of the leading camera manufacturers in the world, to help make your honeymoon pictures better, easier and more fun to take.

• Take along a minimum of equipment. The ideal camera is one that packs neatly into the corner of a suitcase. Since you won't want to be bogged down with a lot of extra equipment, you'll want a camera that doesn't weigh a lot, or require a lot of accessories. The ideal choice is one of today's lightweight 35mm compact zoom cameras, like the easy-to-use Ricoh Shotmaster Zoom. It's particularly handy because it has a built-in flash, and can take wide angle or telephoto pictures...and everything in between.

• An auto-everything camera is faster, easier and a lot more fun. With many of today's advanced compacts, you can just drop in the film, and the camera loads itself, advances the film and rewinds at the end of the roll. Autofocus ability gives you crystal-clear, sharp images every time.

• Shoot in a wide angle position for panoramic pictures. A wide angle setting is the best when you want to take stunning sunsets or group photos. At the touch of a button, the Shotmaster Zoom's lens moves into 35mm wide angle to capture the whole scene.

• Telephoto settings bring the subjects closer. The camera's telephoto button zooms the lens to bring distant subjects closer...the best way to take portrait-type snapshots, or for bringing the scene closer to you.

• Use the fill-in flash for backlit photos. If the subject you are photographing is illuminated from behind, many cameras may mistakenly register that there's enough light to take a properly exposed picture. But under these circumstances you will most likely end up with a silhouette. The auto fill-in flash/auto back-

• Two heads are better than one. It's more fun on a honeymoon if you have pictures of the two of you together. If you have a point-and-shoot camera, you may want to ask someone to take your picture. But you can't always rely on the kindness of strangers. That's where the Ricoh Shotmaster Zoom's self-timer comes in handy. And if you use it in conjunction with the "continuous shooting" mode, you can take two photos in succession without having to reset the camera.

• Take along a mini tripod or a small beanbag. Either will secure your compact camera on a flat surface when you're using the self-timer or the night-time mode. You can get a mini tripod from your photo specialty dealer.

• Take along plenty of film. If you have to buy film when you're in a foreign country, on board a ship or at a resort, you're going to pay a premium — often several dollars a roll more than if you'd bought it before your trip. In some cases, film might not be so easy to find. Take at least five rolls of film or more if your honeymoon includes touring or visiting special attractions.

• Don't park your camera in the sun! Don't leave it in a hot car, either — it can spoil the film. Another tip...keep camera and film in a coldpack bag.

• Don't put your camera through X-ray checkpoints. Ask the attendant to hand-inspect it, because X-rays can ruin your film.

Most of all, have fun while taking your photos. A handy compact zoom camera like the Ricoh Shotmaster Zoom is an ideal way to make your honeymoon photos a snap. BR915256

Bed linens become essential part of registry programs

The old-fashioned wedding trousseau is being updated with a new bed linen registry program to make every couple's dream bedroom a reality. These bed linen registry programs allow couples to select color schemes, patterns, sizes and items needed to create a total room environment.

"As coordinated bed ensembles grow more popular and include more items than ever before, linens and accessories have become an important part of registry programs," says

Deirdre McGovern, public relations manager for Wamsutta/Pacific. "Our research shows that 70 percent of new brides now register for bed linens."

To make it easier for couples to select the perfect pattern and colors, many bridal directors and consultants have an album of room setting photos showing the Wamsutta patterns available in that particular store. This way, the bridal consultant can show the bride the many different looks she can select from. The albums also show how solids can be coordinated with patterns to create more than one ensemble.

TRADITIONS DO CHANGE

It's traditional in the United States for the parents of the bride to cover the entire cost of a couple's wedding. But according to Bride's magazine, this situation is changing.

For the first time, there's a definite trend toward the sharing of wedding expenses, says Bride's. The groom's family, as well as the bride and groom themselves, are taking on a chunk of the financial responsibility. One reason for this may be changing attitudes toward the nature of marriage. In this era of liberation, a bride's parents are no longer considered to be "marrying off" their daughter. Rather, the wedding is seen as the joining of two people, and two families, with everyone contributing to the festivities.

The actual dividing up of the costs can be done in several ways. An easy, tactful method that Bride's recommends is to settle on specific expenses in advance, rather than to just split the cost of the whole wedding down the middle. For instance, the groom's family might agree to cover the flowers, the music, and the liquor. They would then discuss the general budget for these items with the couple and have the bills sent directly to themselves. This eliminates the need for money changing hands or for further talking about costs between families. For more wedding information, see the current issue of Bride's, at your newsstand. BR915816

Fight rising energy costs

While economists predicted a sharp increase in the cost of oil in the 1990s, recent world events have made their predictions come true a lot sooner than anyone had anticipated.

These spiraling costs have hit Americans where it hurts most — in the pocketbook. At the gas line and in rising fuel bills, Americans have been feeling the squeeze in their already tight household budgets.

Until alternate, viable sources of energy are found, the only solution to this problem is simply to use less fuel. Energy conservation — once the battle cry of the mid-'70s following the Arab oil embargo — is again a key issue in the 1990s.

Making a difference

One way homeowners can make a real difference is to stop home energy loss through its primary means of escape — the windows. Government statistics show that nearly 70 percent of the heat we pay so dearly for is lost through the walls, doors and mostly old, drafty windows built before energy conservation was a consideration. In the summer, these same windows become the route through which most heat enters the house.

Chances are, if your home was built more than 15 years ago, its windows are in need of replacing. Old wooden windows tend to shrink and expand with the temperature, letting heat out and cold air in — or vice versa — at the wrong times.

Early aluminum windows are also poor insulators, as are steel windows (once very common), which are likely to lose a substantial amount of energy in extreme weather.

Old windows = wasted energy

When deciding on the best type of replacement window, homeowners can choose among wood, aluminum, vinyl or a combination of frame materials, such as vinyl-clad aluminum. While each type has its advantages, the window with the most benefits is the quality solid vinyl window.

Industry studies have shown that vinyl windows are by far the most popular type of replacement window with the American consumer.

According to a spokesperson for Wolverine Technologies, a leading national manufacturer of vinyl replacement windows, here are some indications that windows may be wasting energy:

- A draft felt around the perimeter of the window. Even a seemingly insignificant crack can mean a huge loss of home heat or air conditioning.

- A heating or air conditioning system that seems to run for an inordinate amount of time.

- Single-paned windows. This is most common in older windows and is practically useless in preventing energy loss.

- Windows that rattle when the wind blows. This means only one thing: loose-fitting glass that provides another excellent escape route for heat or cool air.

- Cold window frames. This is very common with aluminum windows and is a sign that valuable heat is traveling quickly outdoors through conduction.

If your windows meet one or more of those criteria, one of the best ways to take a chunk out of your energy bill is to replace those "dinosaurs" with state-of-the-art vinyl windows.

Designers with Wolverine Technologies, for example, engineered the vinyl windows to minimize the movement of cold air in and heated air out — or the opposite in warm weather. The more that windows guard against air transfer, the less the homeowner pays to heat or cool the house.

Things to look for when choosing a quality replacement window are extra-thick walls that are fusion welded at the frame and sash corners to minimize heat loss, and a multi-chambered design within the frame sash that traps dead air and serves as added insulation.

Also be sure that the windows have double-pane insulating glass and triple weather stripping to keep the home more comfortable, and interlocking sashes to close off a serious source of energy loss.
