Twister's Toll Counted At 25 Dead In Louisiana

China Turning Tide

By JAMES A. MILLS
Associated Press Staff Writer

HANKOW, China, Feb. 18.—China appears to be turning the tide, military observers declared tonight, in the great campaign in Central China on which may depend the outcome of her resistance against Japan.

China's forces seem at last to have found their stride, these sources said. Not only have the Chinese regained their shattered morale, they said, but that also have resorted to aggressive tactics instead of fighting always on the defensive.

Guerilla Units At Large

While Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's regular troops have scored a number of notable successes during the past week, foreign observers reported a new people's volunteer corps and roving guerilla units have become a formidable arm of China's defenses.

China's air force, strengthened by the "foreign legion" which includes many American and other foreign volunteer pilots, has become an important factor in the war.

Shoot Down Jap Planes

Today over this temporary capital of China the Chinese air force scored its most spectacular triumph of the war, shooting down five Japanese planes on the outskirts of the city.

Fast Soviet-made planes, some believed flown by Americans, powerdived to smash the Japanese formations.

Each side had 30 planes.

Chinese army headquarters reported 3,000 out of 10,000 Japanese troops which had crossed to the north bank of the Hwai river in Anhwei province had been annihilated and the rest had retreated to the south shore.

Steady Advances Reported

Steady Chinese advances south along the Tientsin-Pukow railroad, on the eastern side of the 180-mile wide Lunghai corridor, were said to have carried to within 10 miles of Fengpu and to have inflected heavy Japanese casualties.

Chinese planes, some flown by foreign pilots, were reported to have trapped several hundred Japanese by destroying a pontoon bridge behind them and to have harassed the Japanese rearguard near Fengfu.

Cut Off Communications

North of the west side of the corridor, where the crux of the fighting lay in Chinese efforts to keep the Japanese from reaching the south bank of the Yellow river, Chinese mobile units were said to have cut off Japanese communications on the Peiping-Hankow railroad.

Both Generalissimo Chiang and General Baron Alexander von Faul-

Merle Hagerman Is Victim Of Illness

Merle Hagerman, 19, of 2315 Fifteenth street, died at a sanitarium here at 2:45 o'clock Friday afternoon after having been admitted about a week earlier. His condition was serious when admitted, attaches said. Death was attributed to meningitis which developed from a throat infection.

Hagerman was a junior pre-law student at Texas Technological college and had been employed at the Lubbock county tax assessor-collector's office.

Funeral arrangements late Friday night had not been announced and will not be completed until communication with relatives, said Sanders Funeral home. Services and burial, however, will be either here or at Slaton, it was indicated.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Hagerman.

At Tech, he was a member of the Wranglers club, a boy's social organization.

Hockley Well Runs 239 Barrels Into Storage In Ten Hours

After an hour's flow into pits the Richardson-Slaughter well 14 miles southwest of Levelland in Hockley county placed 239 barrels of oil in storage in 10 1-2 hours. The flow was turned into the pits while cleaning out seven feet of cavings.

Estimates were that the well possibly will make 800 barrels daily when tubed, according to oil authorities.

Oil field workers and their families quartered in top floors of the shacks were wiped out almost completely. Those who escaped the tornado's swath—because they happened to be away from their shacks—were pitiful in anguish over loss of their families.

Havoc Almost Unbelievable

The havoc was almost unbelievable. Bits of human bodies were found over the entire disaster area. Sheets of corrugated iron, once roofs, were wrapped around trees like tissue paper. Twisted girders of oil derricks stuck every which

RFC's Lending Is To Be Resumed

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the reconstruction finance corporation, announced today the RFC would resume immediately the making of loans to "all deserving borrowers" whom the agency is authorized to aid.

Except for a few loans to railroads, the RFC has made no new loans since last October.

Jones said railroads, industry, and all other types of business eligible under the RFC could qualify for the loans.

Makes Letter Public

Jones announced the lifting of the ban on lending while making public a letter from President Roosevelt.

The president told Jones it was his wish that credit be made available to all deserving borrowers, especially loans that will "maintain or increase" employment.

Jones said the RFC has available $1,500,000,000, but predicted "we won't have any demand for any considerable part of it."

Not "Any Considerable Part"

He said he did not regard a few hundred millions" as "any considerable part" of the total available.

There had been no change, he said, in collateral requirements since lending was suspended last October except that "we will try all the harder" to qualify every application that is made.

"That does not mean, however, that we will make a loan to every applicant," he said.

Texas Officials To Make Pleas For Maintenance Of CCC Units

AUSTIN, Feb. 18. (AP)—State officials planned to leave Sunday for Washington to protest before Texans in congress a proposed reduced appropriation for the Civilian Conservation corps, mainstay of state park development.

Wendell Mayes, of Brownwood, chairman, and William Lawson, executive secretary of the state parks board, will make the trip.

Lawson said it had been proposed to cut the number of CCC camps from 1,500 to 1,200 and it was feared Texas, which he claimed already had lost more than its proportionate share, would be further handicapped in park development. There are 16 camps in Texas parks, compared with 26 two years ago.

U. S. Army Bombers Hurdle Lofty Andes On Good Will Flight To Buenos Aires

COL. ROBERT OLDS

(By The Associated Press)

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 18.—Six United States air corps bombers today hurdled the lofty, snow-capped Andes and landed here for a warmly-welcomed good will call at the end of a record-breaking 5,200-mile flight from Miami, Fla.

Thousands cheered from rooftops, streets and El Palomar airbase as five of the "flying fortresses" arrived from Lima, Peru, the one stop of the squadron en route from Miami, in the heat of mid-day.

Sixth Makes New Record

But it remained for the bomber commanded by Major J. V. Meloy, which had been delayed in Lima because of propeller trouble, to join its mates with a new record tacked to its tail.

Landing in the midst of a rainstorm approximately six hours after the other five, the "crippled" bomber completed the hop from Lima in 11 hours and 10 minutes, shearing more than an hour from the time of its sister ships.

The six bombers carried 48 men besides the flight commander, Lieut. Col. Robert Olds.

Cuts 500 Miles From Hop

Major Meloy cut approximately 500 miles from the distance covered by the five ships that preceded him by flying in almost a straight line southeast from Lima. The others went by way of Santiago, Chile.

He reached El Palomar airbase at 4:30 p. m. (EST) after battling a rainstorm for the last 100 miles of his trip but was unable to land for an hour because of the rain and poor visibility.

The first five planes flew over the Pacific but close to the Peruvian and Chilean coastline for about 1,700 of today's 2,500-mile flight from Lima.

The squadron came to Buenos Aires in connection with Sunday's inauguration of President-Elect Roberto M. Ortiz.

Among the new aviation records set by the good will squadron was 34 hours and 14 minutes total time between Miami and Buenos Aires and 28 hours and 2 minutes flying time.

Attendance was estimated at more than 250, including students, alumni, faculty members and invited guests. The meal was served by the regular force of the women's residence building. Ned Bradley's orchestra played during the serving.

Quotas Are Set On Two Crops By Wallace

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Secretary Wallace proclaimed marketing quotas today on the 1938 crops of cotton and flue-cured and dark types of tobacco, thus invoking the new farm law's provision for meeting surpluses.

The quota system—a mechanism which officials say is designed to keep surpluses off the market until they are needed—will be voted upon March 12 by affected producers in 20 states. Two-thirds of those voting must approve to put the quotas into effect.

Acreage Limit 26,300,000

Under the quotas, the total supply of cotton which would be permitted to move into market channels free of penalties would be that produced on 26,300,000 acres. If the yield were at the average rate of the last 10 years; the amount would be about 11,230,000 bales, compared with the record crop of 18,747,000 last year.

One objective of this program would be to divert from cotton approximately 8,000,000 acres planted to that crop last year.

Surplus 12,000,000 Bales

Wallace estimated the cotton surplus from previous years would total about 12,000,000 bales on August 1, the date the new crop usually starts to market. Officials said this was almost enough to supply normal domestic and export needs for a whole year.

States in which the cotton referenda will be conducted are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, North and South Carolina, Texas, Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, Missouri, Arizona, Kansas, New Mexico and California.

Officials said they would not determine until August whether marketing quotas would apply to corn. Rice is specifically exempt from them this year and so is wheat, unless congress provides additional funds to make subsidy payments to growers in addition to benefit payments under the soil conservation act.

To Apportion Acreage

The national cotton acreage allotment will be apportioned among individual farmers by local grower committees. If the quota system is approved, each producer would be limited to the sale of cotton grown on his allotted area. If he sold more, he would be subject to a penalty tax of two cents a pound on the excess sales.

The polls, which will be established by local farmer committees, will open not later than 9 a. m., and close at 7 p. m. Each producer who grew cotton, or either type of tobacco in 1937, will be entitled to vote.

Three Former Police Officers At Los Angeles Face Indictments

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18. (AP)—Three former police officers, Earle E. Kynette, Roy J. Allen and F. A. Browne, were indicted late today on charges of conspiracy to murder Harry Raymond, private detective. They were also charged with three other felonies.

The indictments were returned by the county grand jury after studying files of the "spy squad," which was headed by Kynette.

Kynette and other police officials refused to testify before the jury.

Raymond was seriously injured several weeks ago by a bomb which exploded when he stepped on the starter of his automobile.

Moderate Rise In Prices Need, Roosevelt Says

Limited Increase In General Level Without Inflation Or Raising Living Cost Necessary

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. — President Roosevelt said today the first necessity of the present economic situation was a limited increase in prices, achieved without inflation and without a material advance in the cost of living.

All the policies of his administration are now directed toward that goal, he told reporters at a unique press conference, devoted to a clarification of his price views and plans for ending the recession, which some had recently criticized as contradictory and inconsistent.

Not All Must Go Up

Not all prices must go up, however, he emphasized; some, in fact, should come down. The general objective, he said, was a balanced price system. Only when prices reach such a balance, the president asserted, are employment and general business activity at a peak.

As specific measures for bringing about the readjustment he is seeking, Mr. Roosevelt mentioned the crop control bill, intended to raise the price of farm products, the housing bill, intended to cut the price of building materials, an increased relief appropriation and the "easy credit" policy of the treasury and federal reserve board.

Inflation Not Involved

Mr. Roosevelt, asking himself whether his price program involved inflation, or a further devaluation of the dollar, answered with an emphatic no. When that news reached Wall Street, stock market prices slumped, later became steady, then weakened again.

Saying that he had consulted various government agencies on current problems, Mr. Roosevelt added that they had worked out a statement upon which all were agreed.

He read the statement, signed by Secretary Morgenthau, Secretary Perkins, Secretary Wallace and Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve board. The president left no doubt that he was in thorough agreement.

Moderate Rise Desirable

"It is clear," the statement said, "that in the present situation a moderate rise in the general price level is desirable, and that this rise need not and should not extend to all prices. The rise should take place

Mary O'Connor Is Freed Of Murder

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18. (AP)—Mary J. O'Connor, physical education student, was freed today of all charges in the death of Five-Year-Old Nancy Glenn.

The state had charged the 19-year-old girl with murder, manslaughter and involuntary manslaughter. The state claimed Mary struck little Nancy with her hand and left her for dead face down in a mud puddle last Labor day.

The child was found in a muddy lane near the O'Connor and Glenn homes beneath a crumpled piece of tin. An autopsy showed Nancy died from mud and water in her lungs.

Miss O'Connor testified that Nancy was standing beside here, teasing to be taken for a ride on her bicycle. She said:

"I swung around and hit her with the back of my hand. . . . Nancy just fell."

She told of feeling for the child's pulse and finding it still; of covering the body with the tin and of fleeing in panic.

"If you believe the testimony of the defendant you must acquit her," Judge Joseph C. Sloan charged the jury.

Jean Hersholt Changes Tune On Warning About Filmland

By HUBBARD KEAVY
Associated Press Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18.—Jean Hersholt came to Hollywood 25 years ago. He had $60 and high hopes. The hopes were almost diminished, and so was his fortune, before he got his first movie job six weeks after his arrival.

Since March 7, 1913, the day he started work, Hersholt has failed to receive a weekly pay check only three times.

Hersholt thinks that "that is a h--l of a good record," and one that only Harold Lloyd can equal. Lloyd started to work later the same year.

Time, coupled with the gentility of the roles he has been playing for several years—an actor's roles usually affect his personal life, or he wouldn't be an actor—have followed Hersholt.

When he was playing villains—"Say, wasn't I a dirty rat in 'Greed'?" he used to advise the hundreds of young people who wrote him every year to "stay away from Hollywood."

Lately he has changed his tune.

"I began to think, 'shucks, the next fellow's got as much chance

Nazi Optimism Is Curbed By Concessions

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, Feb. 18. — Nazis who last night triumphantly envisaged the complete, immediate nazification of Austria, had to curb their optimism somewhat tonight when secrecy was lifted from some concessions Reichfuehrer Hitler had had to make.

The concessions were in the realms of religion "Weltanschauung" — "world outlook"—and acquiescence to Austrian Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg's refusal to allow a plebiscite in Austria at this time.

Germans, both Catholic and Protestant, as well as Austrians were beneficiaries.

To Declare Amnesty

A source close to the German chancellery said Hitler would declare an amnesty Sunday in his heralded speech to the reichstag for political offenders against the third reich that would free prisoners of both persuasions.

This source divulged that the Fuehrer would state definitely Sunday that Nazism is a political—not a religious—movement.

To Quash Trials

Now, it is expected, the still-pending trials of Catholic priests and nuns will be quashed almost without exception.

Evidence was presented also that the pressure had been lifted from

Trotsky Hints At Belief His Son Was Poisoned In Paris

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 18. (AP)—Leon Trotsky tonight hinted at a belief that Leon Sedoff, his son who died Wednesday in Paris, was poisoned.

In his first public statement since his son's death, the former Bolshevist leader said the last letter he had received from Sedoff, dated February 4, contained no mention of illness.

He said he reasoned therefore the illness "fully had the character of suddenness."

He added he had no "direct data at my command which would allow me to assert that the death of Sedoff is the handiwork of the G. P. U. (Russian secret police)."

Texas Areas Under Water; Arkansas Fears Big Flood

(By The Associated Press)

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 18 — Rain-soaked Arkansas marshaled state and federal forces today for a fight against a flood described by army engineers as potentially worse than that of 1935.

The Arkansas, White and Ouachita rivers, fed by days of torrential downpours throughout their watersheds, rose swiftly toward predicted record crests.

One Levee Breaks

One levee near Morrilton on the Arkansas broke, sending waters over a 10-square-mile farming area. Lieut. Col. Stanley Scott, chief of U. S. engineers here, predicted all levies between Little Rock and Fort Smith and virtually all levees on the White river would be overtopped if the streams reached crests forecast today.

No loss of life was reported. Hundreds of lowland residents in scattered sections were evacuated to higher ground by truck and motor boat.

Bailey Warns Guard

Gov. Carl E. Bailey ordered the Arkansas National guard to prepare for instant mobilization in event mass evacuation and refugee relief efforts were necessary.

The Works Progress administration declard an "emergency" and rushed men, trucks and sand bags to weakened levees in scattered sections. Fifteen hundred volunteers were sought to maintain levees protecting Little Rock and north Little Rock.

The flood threat followed days of torrential rains extending from Oklahoma to west Tennessee.

Along the eastern border of Arkansas, the Mississippi river started a slow rise, but its stage of 7.8 feet was far short of the 34-foot technical flood level.

Allred Takes Up 'Attacks' Again

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 18.—Governor James V. Allred, returning from a trip out of state, remained tight-lipped today on the subject of his political plans, but cast a few shafts at Attorney General William McCraw in connection with the controversy over public lands.

A candidate for governor although he has not yet announced, the attorney general recently said he thought politics had a great deal to do with the inquiry into leasing policies of W. H. McDonald, commissioner of the general land office, whom the governor has criticized.

"Compliments" McCraw

Governor Allred said he wanted to "compliment" McCraw on how he had changed procedure "with the greatest of ease" in bringing suits to cancel a number of leases on submerged lands along the Gulf coast, cancellations urged by the governor.

He said the attorney general was alleging only part of the grounds for the suits, including questioning the authority of the land commissioner to grant the leases, and he would like for the courts to have "the benefit of all the facts."

The investigation, he said, had resulted in forfeiture of two leases and the attorney general's filing of suits to cancel nine more.

Rear Admiral Land Is Appointed To Kennedy's Commission Post

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN En Route to Hyde Park, N. Y., Feb. 18. (AP)—President Roosevelt late today designated Rear Admiral Emory S. (Jerry) Land, of Laramie, Wyo., regarded by the administration as another "two-fisted, hard-hitting" executive, as the new chairman of the Federal Maritime commission.

One of the original members of the commission, he will move up to the place vacated by Joseph P. Kennedy, who sails soon to take over his new duties as ambassador to London.

It also was announced that Max O'Rell Truitt, of St. Louis, general counsel of the commission, would be nominated to fill out the unexpired term of Kennedy's membership ending in the fall.

Texas Areas Under Water; Arkansas Fears Big Flood

(By The Associated Press)

RAMPAGING rivers caused mounting damage in Texas Friday leaving at least one dead and many families homeless.

A man tentatively identified as Buddy Ramsey, employed on the Boots Leslie ranch near Carrollton, was drowned in a slough. He had been rounding up cattle and was believed to have dismounted from his horse.

Fifty Families Scurried

Surging, muddy water in the east fork of the Trinity river ate through a levee at the Dallas Kaufmann county line, flooding several miles

MOST OF SNOW MELTED

Lubbock's two-inch snow was shortlived as clear skies and slightly higher temperature Friday melted most of it. At Friday midnight skies were clear, but a cold north wind and slowly dropping mercury readings remained of the cold wave. Forecasts, however, were for warmer weather. The midnight temperature was 27 degrees. Lubbock's minimum was expected to drop to that before morning. Friday's minimum at the Lubbock Municipal airport was 15.5 degrees. The state agricultural experiment station's precipitation guage measured slightly more than half an inch for this immediate area.

of lowlands and sending about 50 families scurrying to high ground.

The flood covered U. S. highway 80 to Terrell, Tyler, and Longview in three places, and washed away the road dump at two points at the main river.

C.C.C. workers and highway employes fought the weak spot in the levee all morning with sandbags and ballast but were unable to keep the water back.

Freezing Adds To Suffering

A biting north wind which reached a 34-mile-an-hour velocity brought freezing temperatures to add to suffering in the flood washed areas.

Dallas county officers began clearing the Roosevelt park, negro addition in southeast Dallas, as water began creeping into homes. A temperature drop to 20 degrees was forecast. The weather bureau at Dallas predicted the crest of the flood would arrive within 24 hours, with the river reaching 42 feet, a stage at which it did considerable damage in 1935.

The same fork of the Trinity sent waters flooding over the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railway tracks south of Greenville adding to flood damage on the line which lost 1600 feet of track through earlier washouts at Denison.

The Red river was steadily rising north of Denison, threatening to reach a 25-foot record height within one or two days. The mark would be the highest since a flood of 1908

Allred Declines To Send More Rangers

AUSTIN, Feb. 18. (AP)—Governor James V. Allred today declined to send additional Rangers to San Antonio in connection with a strike of pecan shellers there. Some Rangers are stationed there regularly.

In a telegram to Donald Henderson, union official, who had asked Rangers to stop the arrest of picketers and confiscation of picket signs, the governor said he had no authority to supplant the police with Rangers, although he did not approve of arrests of picketers who were not violating the law.

However, he said he was advised by Everett L. Looney, chairman of the State Industrial commission, which, with a representative of the Federal Labor Relations board, had investigated the strike situation, that Henderson had a right to court injunction to restrain police arrests.

TEST FOR HUSBANDS

RUTH MILLETT, who is a swell columnist, has drawn up a yardstick for a husband who thinks his wife was "doggone lucky" to get him. (You get five for every "No" in the first 10—five for every "Yes" in the second. If YOU get 80—SHE'S lucky.)

1. Do you let her stand by feeling silly while you flirt with the hat-check girl?
2. Do you feel that home is one place where you can exercise a grouch any time you feel in the mood?
3. Do you get jealous when she seems to be having a good time at a party without any help from you?
4. Are you impatient when she feels "low"?
5. Do you feel that being married gives you the right to sit through a meal in silence?
6. Are you always the "life of the party"?
7. Are you in the habit of saying "Just like a woman" whenever any woman shows stupidity?
8. Do you raise a row every time you have to go out, or when you find out that people are coming to dinner?
9. Do you talk in a loud voice in public—or walk with a swagger?
10. Do you expect her to wait on you—serving as a valet as well as a wife?

1. Do you notice when she tries a new way of doing her hair, or wears a new dress?
2. Do you kiss her when you leave in the morning and when you come home at night? (If it's on the cheek it only counts half.)
3. Do you hold her coat for her, light her cigarettes, and pull out her chair at the table?
4. Can she count on you to keep your word in little things?
5. Do you have some system of "money equality" so that she doesn't have to ask you for money every morning—a joint checking account, or a lump sum for household expenses?
6. Do you refrain from making cracks about her black sheep brother or bossy mother?
7. Have you made some provision for her future—in case you step in front of a truck?
8. Can you get along without highlighting your talk with profanity?
9. Can you have a drink with the boys without coming home drunk—or not coming home, drunk?
10. Do you ever bring her a gift at other than the "must" times—anniversary, Christmas and birthday?

It's a picture for the whole family to see, is well portrayed and carries a lesson we need to ponder on—man's ingratitude.

WHOSE NEWSPAPER?

SOME people have the mistaken idea that a newspaper is an individual proposition. They do not realize nor appreciate that the local newspaper is as much a part of the community as the school, churches or any other public enterprise. The newspaper is different from any other business—it is strictly a community affair. It works for the town and community as a whole, and not for any particular individual or group of individuals.

You may not like the editor, and the editor may not love you any too much—but the paper that he is responsible for does just as much for you and your business as he does in services rendered to others. There is nothing personal with it. It is here for a purpose—to do what good it can in every way it can, and the greater the support of those it undertakes to serve, the better service it can render to all.

Good Attendance Is Expected For Annual Feeders Day At Texas Tech Today

Experiment Data To Be Provided

Clearing skies late Friday gave rise to a hope for bright weather for the second annual lamb feeders day Saturday at Texas Technological college. For a time it was feared, said W. L. Stangel, head of the animal husbandry department, that bad weather might reduce the attendance.

Reports from over the territory indicate a large number of vocational agriculture students and teachers will attend, as well as club boys. Invitations have been sent to a large number of farmers and lamb feeders and they are likewise expected.

Hale county expects to have a big group, County Agent C. B. Martin reported.

"If it is necessary," he explained, "we can bring the sheep into the livestock pavilion for inspection. The pavilion will be heated and it will not be necessary for any one to be exposed to the cold."

Full Program Ready

A full day's program has been arranged. Several of the outstanding authorities in Texas will speak.

J. M. Jones, College Station, chief of the division of range animal husbandry, Texas agricultural experiment station, is to be the main speaker. Jones is well known among sheep and cattle men and has visited Lubbock frequently. A. K. Mackey, College Station, a member of the Texas A. and M. faculty on the animal husbandry staff, also is to speak.

Sheep men will be interested in W. H. Glimp, Menard sheep feeder, who is feeding some 22,000 head at Levelland in conjunction with Fred Snyder of Lubbock. Glimp will talk on commercial lamb feeding. He has been a commercial feeder for many years.

Others Are To Speak

M. B. Harrison, department of agricultural economics, is another speaker, as is Stangel. Merrill Polson, graduate student, who is in charge of the experiment, is to discuss the results of the work.

Half an hour is to be given for feeders to question Mackey, Jones and Stangel on feeding problems.

Lunch at noon is to be served by the Block and Bridle club of the division of agriculture, with the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce assisting.

Program includes: 9:30 o'clock, welcome address by President Bradford Knapp; "The Lamb Market Situation," Harrison; "Alfalfa as a Roughage for Fattening Lambs," Mackey; "Sorghum Fodder for Fattening Lambs," Jones; "Sorghum Silage as a Roughage for Fattening Lambs," Stangel.

After lunch, a parade of college livestock will be held, with Glimp talking on commercial lamb feeding; a general discussion led by the three college speakers; talk by Polson on the work and an inspection of the experiments and a visit to the sheep barn.

Tentative Approval Given For NYA Shop Project At College

Tentative approval has been given by state National Youth administration authorities for a shop project at Texas Technological college which will employ approximately six boys, said A. V. Bullock, district supervisor.

Purpose of the project is to build equipment for another NYA project at Tech, the resident training project, it was explained. The youths on the shop project will work in the college shops.

Operation of the shop project is expected to be started Friday and the resident training project about March 7, Bullock said.

"Both projects will furnish valuable training for youths," the supervisor pointed out.

Scenes After Twister Had Struck At Mertzon Thursday Morning

This was all that was left standing of M. H. Wagner's Sinclair gasoline and oil storage plant in Mertzon Thursday morning after the southwester had vented its fur. And the tanks showing were emptied of 9,000 gallons of gasoline through bursted pipes. To the left rear is seen some of the shambles of Mexican shack homes.

Wages Of Movie Sin Are Weak Coffee And Thin Toast, Akin Tamiroff Confesses

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 18. (AP)—The wages of movie sin are weak coffee and thin toast. Akin Tamiroff, the peerless, pirate, confessed hungrily today.

It is true that nobody fears a fat man. Scaring people is Tamiroff's stock-in-trade. So he nibbled today on a piece of rye bread, glanced at his interviewer's steak dinner, and wondered how he could lose the 15 pounds he picked up last month.

Neither cold steel nor chilly heroine worries Tamiroff as much as a bulging waistline.

Tamiroff (pronounced Tah-Meer-off, with the accent on the middle syllable) is the pudgy little Russian who put on a false rubber nose and drooping mustache and became a roguish cannoneer last fall in "The Buccaneer."

A month later he dressed up in white tie and tails, hid his incipient baldness with a handsome wig, and ruled as a gang overlord in "Dangerous To Know."

Now he's just returned from a personal appearance tour that began in New Orleans, where the cooking—m-m-mm!—crucified his appetite.

In six years, Tamiroff has been a menace in 60 films, but his villainy is only skin deep.

He wept through war and a revolution in Russia without firing a shot.

Caesarian Baby Delivered But Fatally Burned Mother Dies

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 18. (AP)—Physicians declared today a baby they delivered by a Caesarian operation several hours before it's fatally burned mother died was a "perfectly normal boy." The birth was almost a month premature.

The mother, 25-year-old Mrs. Anna Haus of nearby Coraopolis suffered burns over her entire body last night when wax in a bottle she was heating over a stove exploded and ignited her clothing.

She ran screaming into the street where a neighbor threw a heavy purch rug around her and smothered the flames.

"We felt she might not get well, so we operated to save the baby," said one hospital physician.

U. S. Costs For Ships Too High

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Joseph P. Kennedy retired from his chairmanship of the Maritime commission today after declaring it costs so much to build ships in American yards that there may be "on American merchant marine worthy of the name."

Kennedy, new ambassador to Great Britain, said the gravity of the situation impelled him to make his final maritime report to President Roosevelt "rather bluntly."

He told the president, in a letter, that the most practical solution would be to let contracts abroad whenever American bids are more than double those available in foreign yards.

Yards in Belfast, Ireland, are constructing for $900,000 each, he said, ships which should not cost more that $1,800,000 to $2,000,000 in this country.

President Roosevelt Says Problem Is Headache

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP) — President Roosevelt described the problem of building up the merchant marine as a headache today shortly after Senator Thomas (D-Utah) characterized maritime union opposition to mediation legislation as due to misunderstandings.

Mr. Roosevelt outlined at his press conference three possible courses he said could be followed if the government itself should undertake the job of building merchant ships. These were:

1—Finance existing private shipyards, and have the work done under private management. The president recalled the fixed fee system followed in World war days.

2—Build the ships in government yards and finance them with government funds.

3—Build new ways and equipment in the navy yards.

Hitler Opens Berlin's Annual Auto Show With Prediction On 'Cheapest Car In The World'

BERLIN, Feb. 18. (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler opened Berlin's annual auto show today with the emphatic prediction "we shall soon build the cheapest car in the world."

Diplomats were disappointed if they expected any reference to Austro-German unification.

Somewhat pale, but vigorous in gesture, Hitler spoke with strong voice which showed signs of huskiness only after 15 minutes of the 20-minute address.

The Fuehrer announced creation of a German motor sports medal and boasted that German auto roads were the best in the world.

Aggies Cop Second Straight From Tech; High School Teams Reach Semi-Finals

Farmers Turn On Steam To Bury Red Raiders

By TOM MILLER
Avalanche Sports Staff Writer

The powerhoused scoring machine of the New Mexico Aggies waded through Texas Tech's defense almost at will in a fast moving contest at Tech gymnasium Friday night, defeating the Raiders for the second consecutive night, 59 to 38.

Led by the conference high scoring twins, Kiko Martinez and Pecos Finley, the champions ventured forth to gain a well-earned victory. The Tech offense had its moments, too, but failed miserably toward the waning minutes of play.

Sachse Leads Scorers

Frank "Butch" Sachse kept stride with the Farmer pair bucketing 15 points to lead scoring. Martinez had an even dozen, and Finley finished with two more.

Until the first half was well spent, the Raiders kept abreast of the Farmers. Failure to cash in on crip shots spoiled Tech's chances of making things quite interesting for the invaders from there out.

Martinez started scoring early with a field goal, and before the Raiders could count, Morris Wood, chunky Aggie guard, added another. G. L. Webb then sank one for Tech.

Raiders Take Lead

Finley crammed in a two-pointer, but a charity shot by Rex Williams and a field goal by Sachse narrowed the gap. Tech took a 14-13 lead midway of the first half when John Henderson cashed in on a brace of free throws after Finley had hacked him under the goal.

Again Finley swayed the lead the Aggie way, but just as quickly Henderson let fly a perfect field goal. From there it was the Farmer's ball game. Sachse's free toss was all the Raiders could account, while the visitors were counting 12 times before the recess.

During the second chapter, occasional Tech markers were unavailing in clipping the Aggie lead. Nine visitors took part in scoring during the last session, while confining Tech to six field shots.

Raiders Meet Flagstaff

The game marked the fourteenth consecutive win for the boys from State College, N. M., and left Tech with five wins and seven losses in the loop chase. The Aggies have four remaining games on their schedule. They face New Mexico university at Albuquerque Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

The Raiders complete their card against Flagstaff State Teachers college here Monday and Tuesday nights, and victories over the Pedagogs would almost clinch second place for Coach Berl Huffman's boys.

Net Stars To Compete In Indoors Tourney

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (AP)—Bobby Riggs, No. 2 in the national ranking; Wayne Sabin, Davis cup "spare"; Frank Kovacs, 18-year-old coast giant, and Wilmer Hines are among the stars expected to be in the field when the national indoor tennis championships open at the Seventh Regiment armory Saturday, February 26.

Ranged against them will be such established indoor stars as Gregory Mangin, winner in 1932, 1933, 1935 and 1936; Frank J. Bowden, runner-up last year to Frank Parker; J. Gilbert Hall, Orange, N. J., veteran who teamed with Karl Schroeder of Sweden to win the doubles crown in 1936; Leonard Hartman and Julius Seligson.

There also is a possibility Frank Shields, former champion and one-time Davis cupper, will compete in both singles and doubles.

Parker, now in the middlewest, has shown no sign of intending to defend his title.

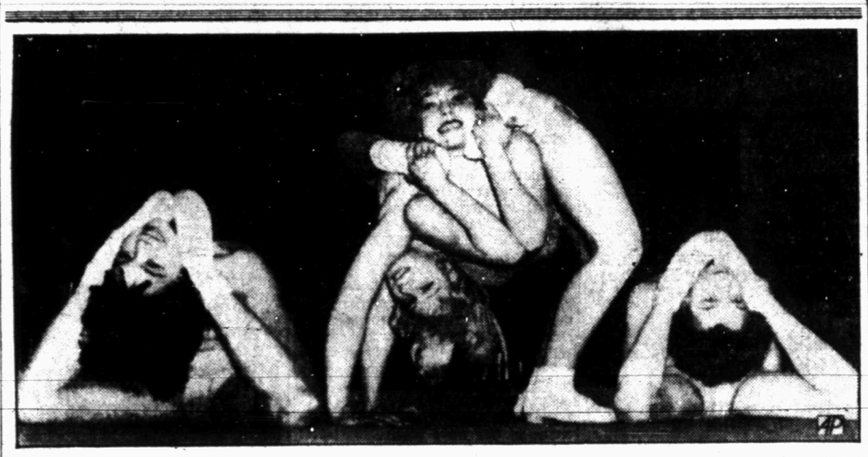

Mme. Sylvia Henrotin of France, victor in women's singles last year, probably will seek to repeat. Mrs. Sarah Palfrey and Katharine Winthrop of Boston are also on the books.

ADAMICK COPS DECISION

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (AP)—Jimmy Adamick, youthful Detroit heavyweight, carried off the decision tonight over Harry Thomas, the pugilistic "trial horse" from Eagle Bend, Minn., but nearly came to grief in the tenth and last round of his New York fistic debut.

Adamick's big margin on points offset the veterans furious closing rally in the main bout at Madison Square garden.

It's A Hard Life But They Like It

All is physical chaos when "beam's breezy babes" decide to chin themselves with their toes, even if it's only a rehearsal for a London, England, show. "Mere youngsters," they say contorting is a hard life but they like it.

Three Lubbock Boxers Stay In Golden Gloves Tourney

WILL ROGERS MEMORIAL COLISEUM, Fort Worth, Feb. 18.—The Avalanche-Journal Golden Gloves district sent three well equipped representatives into the final session of the state tournament here tonight, and they'll compete in semi-final and possibly final—rounds Monday night in the classiest field of amateur scrappers ever assembled in Texas.

The Lubbock semi-finalists include the defending state heavyweight champion, Babe Ritchie, who won two fights tonight for the right to box John Bray, Texas Wesleyan gridder, champion from the Fort Worth district and a former try-outee at Texas Tech, in a semi-final match Monday night.

Buck Wins Two

John Buck, Crosbyton, also fought and won two battles tonight and enters the middleweight semi-finals Monday night against Andy Eagleton of Fort Worth. Buck, a slow starter, put up an almost impregnable defense to win decisions tonight from J. C. Glass of Austin and Raymond Oest, a pre-tournament favorite from Galveston.

Bob Ritchie, light-heavy weight brother of Champion Babe, drew a first round bye, came on in the second round of tonights 40-fight card.

Bob swapped punch for punch with Cecil Gamon of Dallas who also drew a first round bye, and was given the unanimous decision of the judges.

Babe Kayoes Thompson

Big Babe had to go three rounds before winning from Dewey Vaughn an advertised favorite from Dallas, but the decision was unanimous. He came back later to knock out Roy Thompson, Wichita Falls district winner. He boxed Thompson in the first round, knocked him down for the count of eight again for 9, then for 9 again, then Referee Sully Montgomery called it off just as the bell rang ending the second round.

Babe's semi-final opponent, won a close decision from R. L. Estes of Brownwood.

Lads from the Panhandle-Plains section provided plenty of excitement in the first round of welterweight fighting, Lubbock's first delegate, Buck Gregory of Texas Tech, contributing to the first knock-out of the evening.

Luck of the draw placed Gregory against one of the most publicized favorites, Elby Pettaway of Houston. Gregory made a courageous stand, but the fast swinging infighting Pettaway had too much science for Gregory's fortitude. He tagged Buck on the schnozola early and drew blood, landed three blows to Gregory's one. Buck never went down, but agreed with Referee John Galliano late in the second round that the wisest thing would be a technical kayo for Pettaway. The crowd applauded Gregory for his fine stand.

Amarillo Boy Wins

The Gregory-Pettaway match was last on the welter first round. Earlier Rex Daniels of Amarillo outpointed A. C. Burleson of Pampa in a stinging "grudge fight." They slugged it out, toe-to-toe, with Daniels showing better in the second and third rounds.

First four fights went to decisions, and another West Texan Alton Bostick of Big Spring, won by default from Francis Smith of Wichita Falls.

Lennie Burney of Fort Clark decisioned George Slining of Austin; Dewey McMullin of Fort Russell beat Charles Marshall of Brownwood; Max Waller, Tyler, won from Harvey Torsey of Galveston, and Arnold Edwards of Fort Worth decisioned Charley Pond of Abilene in other first round bouts.

Bob Ritchie Draws Bye

Starting the middle-weight eliminations, Frank Thomas of Brownfield decisioned Calvin Benefield of Houston in a bout featured by two knockdowns.

The bell saved Maurice Hutchinson of Pampa from a first round knockout in the second middleweight fight. He came back to give Ernest (Rosy) McMillan of Abilene a nice exchange in the second round, stayed up in the third, but the decision went to McMillian.

Then came the defending state champion of middleweights, Carl Hilger of Dallas. He knocked Buian Dail of Fort Clark down for 9 in the first round, and went on to win the decision. First clean kayo of the evening gave Andy Eagle of Fort Worth victory over J. C. Wallace of Big Spring, in the first round. Selvin Walton of Tyler decisioned Kenneth Smith of Texas A. & M. Raymond Oest of Galveston, an A. A. U. battler decisioned Bill Mays of Wichita Falls.

John Buck Triumphs

It was John Buck's time next. Final bout of the early elimination round in the middleweight division. He gave J. C. Glass a low battle in the first round, but piled up the most points. Buck tagged Glass with a couple of good rights late in the second round, kept it up slowly but consistently in the third to become Lubbock's first winner tonight and second of the tournament. Jack Lovin having won his first round featherweight battle before being eliminated in the second round by technical kayo Thursday night.

Starting the light heavyweight division, after Bob Ritchie had drawn a bye, Joe Kopp of Galveston decisioned Clyde Jones of Abilene in a fast fight. Billy Colbert, 16-year-old from Houston battered out a nice decision over Walter B. Stone of Brownwood.

Big Spring Boy Kayoed

Second clean knock-out came when Fuller Rogers of Ft. Worth tagged E. P. Lawson of Big Spring in the first round. Jim Foust of Amarillo started slowly, then mixed it freely with Aubrey Turnipseed of Ft. Clark for two rounds.

Turnipseed won on points. Another quick knockout followed. Warren Smith of Austin slipping it to Joe Allen of Tyler in the first round. Winding up the light heavy weight first round. Beaney Garland of Wichita Falls swarmed on Martin Cluck of Pampa, landed an uppercut to the chin. Cluck was floored for the count in 20 seconds.

Babe Ritchie, starting defense of his State Golden Gloves title opened the heavyweight division with Dewey Vaughn of Dallas. Vaughn, weighing 184 pounds, stayed with Ritchie well in the first round, delivering body punches that had Babe wondering. In-fighting in the clinches, Vaughn worked on Babe's tummy. Babe floored him for two counts early in the second round but the game Dallas champ came up and worked on the Ritchie stomach to floor Babe for five counts. Babe fell down to one knee actually was not knocked down, and rested for five seconds. Babe found Vaughn's head an elusive target all the way, but kept hammering at it in the third. The crowd was with the smaller boy because of his gameness.

Decision Is Booed

The decision given unanimously by the judges and referee was roundly booed by the large crowd. Babe never rushed his foe in his accustomed style and the little fellow's pluck was admired.

John Bray, Texas Wesleyan gridder, winner of the Fort Worth district, and R. L. Estes of Brownwood drew byes in the heavy-weight first round. In the second fight, considerably more sensational than the first, Roy Thomson of Wichita Falls, at 187 outclassed Jimmie Perez, 180 of Austin, in a slugfest, winning the unanimous decision. Roy Young, the touted 210-pounder from Texas A. and M. outweighing Frank Tromas of Houston by 35 pounds, took a right-hand uppercut to the button and then took the count. Until then, Young had been leading, but the plucky Houstonian, knocked down in the first round, kept going, watched for an opening, and took it. It was the major upset of the evening.

Curry Cunningham of Tyler, 194, knocked down Buel Alford, 174, late in the first round, the bell saving him after the 7-count. A long right to the jaw early in the second laid Alford low. Two West Texans, Leroy Davis of the Pampa district and Red Cunningham of Big Spring provided amusement in a wild bout. Cunningham rallying in the third round. Davis, twice beaten by Lubbock's Babe Ritchie, was easy winner of the decision.

Second round results:

Light heavyweight—Bob Ritchie, Lubbock, outpointed Cecil Gammon, favorite from Dallas. Both drew first round byes.

Middleweight division—Amarillo's Earl Brown decisioned Frank Thomas of Brownwood; Carl Hilger Dallas, outpointed Ernest McMillin, Abilene; Andy Eagleton, Ft. Worth, decisioned Selvin Walton, Tyler, and John Buck, Lubbock, decisioned Raymond Oest, Galveston.

Welterweights—Arthur Dorrell of Dallas knocked out Lennie Burney of Fort Clark, second round; Dewey McMillian, Ft. Russell, knocked out Max Walliter, Tyler, second round; Rex Daniels, Amarillo, won by technical kayo from Alton Bostick, Big Spring, in first and Elby Pettaway, Houston, kayoed Arnold Edwards, Ft. Worth, first round.

Billy Colbert, Houston, decisioned Joe Kopp, Galveston; Fuller "Little Bull" Rogers, Ft. Worth, kayoed Aubrey Turnipseed, Ft. Clark, first, and Beaner Garland, Wichita Falls, outpointed Warren Smith, Austin.

Capital Fandom Wants Leeman

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. (AP)—The capital's professional football fans—who've lost the apple of their eye, Cliff Battles—cast longing glances today at a home town boy, Tuffy Leemans.

Battles, who has signed a contract with Columbia university to assist Coach Lou Little, has said good-bye to pro ball, and this leaves the Washington Redskins minus a running mate for Slingin' Sammy Baugh.

Fans set up a roar for Leemans. Leemans belongs to the New York Giants.

Newsmen asked George Marshall, Redskins owner, about the fans' demand just before he left for the national Professional football league meeting in Philadelphia.

"With Baugh throwing the ball," he sighed, "and Leemans running, we'd be every bit as strong as we were with the Baugh-Battles combination."

One big obstacle that may prevent a dream coming true is the New York Giants. They like Leemans, too. He has played two seasons with the Giants since leaving George Washington university.

Marshall knows he'd have a great drawing card in Tuffy. When he played for George Washington, people went to see Leemans, not the team.

Appearing here early last season, Leemans got a bigger hand than Battles and even Sammy Baugh. Adding to the home-town appeal, Tuffy married a Washington girl and works here when not playing professional football.

Beau Brummel, although of low birth, gained fame and position through his astonishing personality and exquisite taste. He changed the fashions of the early 19th century to suit himself, and others followed in his wake.

Rice Owls Fall Before Ponies In 50-35 Go

DALLAS, Feb. 18. (AP)—Southern Methodist, defending Southwest conference cage champion, moved temporarily into undisputed possession of second place in the season's standings by a 50 to 35 victory over Rice institute here tonight.

The win enabled the Methodists to break a tie with the Baylor Bears, who were kept idle by floods that delayed Arkansas en route to Waco for the opening tonight of its series with the Bruins.

J. D. (Sniper) Horton, stellar junior forward, and the Mustangs' chief contender for individual scoring honors in the conference, led his teammates to their sixth consecutive victory by tossing in 16 points. Mike Seale of Rice was second with 10.

The play at times was rough and three Methodists, Billy Dewell, Herb Cannefax, and Pete Acker, and one Owl, Craddock, a guard, were sent out of the game with four personal fouls each.

The lead changed four times in the first ten minutes of play before the Mustangs got going and pulled comfortably ahead 27 to 19 at the half.

Rice scored first on Craddock's free pitch, and led the Methodists until the end of five minutes of play, when the Mustangs knotted the count at five-all.

When Arvill Jones, sophomore, substituted for Dewell at the end of eight minutes, the Mustangs led 10 to 9, but Rice took the lead again on a field goal by Campbell. Then the Methodists hit their winning stride and were never headed.

Dewell, star Methodist center, was yanked from the fray after eight minutes of play when he had three personals against him, but returned in the final period and counted seven points before he was retired.

Seale, Campbell, and Steen were outstanding for Rice, hustling for the ball both on offense and defense. Jones, the Mustang substitute for Dewell, ringed in four field goals in the first period, but was unable to score in the second half.

Crouch, Acker, and Norton were mainstays of the Methodists defense.

Porker-Bear Game Postponed; Teams Will Meet Tonight

WACO, Feb. 18. (AP)—The Arkansas-Baylor crucial Southwest conference basketball game, scheduled here for tonight, was cancelled today when the Arkansas team was unable to arrive because of flood waters.

The game scheduled for tomorrow night will be played, and the game that was to have been played tonight has been tentatively re-set for Monday.

Coach Glen Rose informed authorities he and his squad were in Muskogee, Okla., and would be unable to get to Waco in time for the game tonight, but would probably arrive in time to play a game scheduled tomorrow night.

The United States refused an offer of a naval base from Haiti in 1882.

Connie Mack Is Eager For Southern Training Trek

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18. (AP)—With the eagerness of a schoolboy anticipating a holiday, Connie Mack, 75-year-old boss of the Philadelphia Athletics, assembled the first contingent of players tonight for his annual trip southward for spring training.

Mack will head a squad of pitchers and catchers leaving for Lake Charles, La., Saturday afternoon.

"I'm anxious to get started," said the veteran who a few months ago was seriously ill with a stomach ailment. "I feel much better. I'm stronger and I have put on some weight."

May Hold Him Back

"Father has been so enthusiastic this week about the trip south that I'm afraid we'll have to hold him back when he gets down there," said Roy Mack vice president and secretary of the club.

Coaches Russell (Lena) Blackburne and Charley Berry will accompany Mack. Players will be Pitchers Ed Smith, Chubby Dean, Randy Gumpert and Bill Kalfass, and Catchers Frank Hayes and Horald Wagner.

Lee (Buck) Ross and Luther Thomas, holdovers from last year's pitching staff, will join the group en route.

Pitching Staff Improved

Although refusing to predict a pennant for his Athletics, Mack said the "pitching looks good to me. I think it will be much better than last year."

Harry Kelley holds the key to the Athletics' pitching success, Mack believes. "If he can pitch in 1936 style it will not only bolster our position but it will encourage the younger fellows and give extra confidence to the rest of the team," he explained.

"I'm still quite concerned about the infield. We have quite a few second baseman and if one of them can make good we'll be in good shape. Our outfield is not much of a problem."

Lamesa, Southland, Ralls Abernathy Clubs Survive District 3 Eliminations

Lamesa, Southland, Ralls and Abernathy High school quintets moved into the semi-finals of the district 3 tournament Friday at Texas Tech gymnasium and will fight in out today and tonight for right to go to Canyon next week for the regional meet.

Southland meets Abernathy at 9 o'clock this morning and Ralls and Lamesa play in other semi-final engagement at 10 o'clock. Finals will be unreeled tonight at 8 o'clock.

Lamesa advanced with a 22 to 20 victory over Floydada after trailing the Floyd county entry until late minutes of the contest.

Ralls had little trouble in disposing of Pettit. The Jackrabbits, paced by Beans Reed with 18 points, won, 38 to 26.

Abernathy encountered trouble with Coach Goober Keyes' Lubbock Westerners. The Antelopes, flashing a surprising display of strength, reminded cage followers of the 1936 district champions. They beat the Westerners, 28-26.

Southland required an extra session to beat Slaton, 26 to 25.

Crescent City's Open Is Rained Out On Friday

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18.—Rain, flirting with New Orleans the past three days, broke loose in a downpour today that caused a one-day postponement of the $5,000 Crescent City open golf tournament.

Twenty-three threesomes were wading through the driving rain when tournament officials announced the postponement.

Revised Schedule Given

James E. Leddy, general tournament chairman, said 18 holes would be played tomorrow, 18 more Sunday and the final 36 holes, with the 60 qualifying players, Monday. The revised schedule would allow the touring band to reach Thomasville, Ga., in ample time for the start of the $3,000 open there Friday.

Squat little Abe Espinosa of Shreveport, La., poked long shots through the downpour that limited visibility to the length of a 400-yard hole to card two birdies and three pars on the first five holes before he was called off the course.

Thoren Has Even Par

Through 16 holes John Thoren, little known Auburndale, Mass., professional was even par. Long Don Murphy of Texarkana, Ark., water streaming down his hands, had finished 15 holes with a two over par score.

Slammin' Sam Snead, long hitting White Sulphur Spring, W. Va., sensation who had lightly remarked last night that one more drop of rain would drive him home, appeared ready for action and said he would stay through the tournament.

Ready to tee off was Ellsworth Vines, former American amateur tennis king and now a salaried star.

Roosevelt And Slaton Juniors Win In Tourney At Frenship

In the first round of play in the Lubbock county junior boys and girls' basketball tournament at Frenship Rural High school Roosevelt girls forfeited to Idalou.

In the boys' division Roosevelt's quintet defeated the New Deal representatives 16 to 8 and Idalou took Slaton 31 to 14.

Second round of play will begin at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon and finals will be tonight. This afternoon Idalou and Frenship girls will meet as will Frenship and Roosevelt boys. Winner of that game will play Idalou at 8 o'clock tonight to determine boys' champions.

Pennsylvania Suggests Federal Government Aid In Highway

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 18. (AP)—Pennsylvania suggested today that the federal government share the $50,000,000 cost of its mountain-piercing highway—the first link in what eventually may become a trans-continental speedway.

Governor George H. Earle forwarded to Washington an outline of his plan that relief labor be used to build the state's all-weather low grade highway between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh.

The road will utilize nine tunnels bored through the ridges of the Alleghenies half a century ago for a railway that was abandoned before completion. The tunnels already have been drained of water.

Another 'Mystery' For Courthouse At Eastland Predicted

AUSTIN, Feb. 18. (AP)—A new Eastland courthouse "mystery," 40 or 50 years hence, was predicted today, the 10th anniversary of Old Rip's emergence from the cornerstone of the old edifice.

Rip, you may recall, was a horned frog which supposedly remained sealed in the old cornerstone without water and food for 31 years.

Boyce House, Texas newspaperman, who "covered" the story which startled the nation a decade ago, said officials will be puzzled to find in the present cornerstone a newspaper printed a day after the stone was sealed.

His explanation: "after the cornerstone was sealed, a petition asked the commissioners' court to reopen it and remove another frog which had been placed there. I learned, the next afternoon, that this was going to happen. The press had just started so I grabbed a copy of the paper, ran to the building and, when the stone was opened and the frog freed, I had the paper placed in it."

New Deal In Distribution Of Rose Bowl Ducats Promised

PASADENA, Calif., Feb. 18. (AP)—A new deal in distribution of Rose Bowl football tickets to insure a supply for public sale was promised today with the election of three new directors by the Tournament of Roses association.

George S. Campbell, president of the association, referred in his annual report to criticism over allotment of tickets for last New Year's Day game.

Investigation Of Crash Is Delayed

TRINIDAD, Colo., Feb. 18. (AP)—Formal investigation by Colorado & Southern Railway officials of the head-on crash that killed four veteran trainmen late Wednesday near Folsom, N. M. probably will not be completed before tomorrow night or later, A. J. Horton, division superintendent here, said today.

Horton pointed out the testimony of two trainmen still in a hospital here today will be needed before a complete report of the wreck can be turned over to an Interstate Commerce commission representative for transmission to Washington.

Doctors at the Trinidad hospital where the injured passengers were brought on a special train said today all were sufficiently recovered to be returned to their homes.

"The freight cars were piled high and twisted into junk," said J. T. Poirier, freight conductor.

Poirier said the freight was ordered to meet the passenger at Folsom at 11:55 p. m., Wednesday, and the passenger was ordered to meet the freight at Tiowanda, N. M., several miles north of the crash scene, at the same time. The crash occurred between the two communities at 11:42 p. m.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Commission Is Enjoined Friday

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, Feb. 18. — Attempts of the Texas Railroad commission to exercise original jurisdiction in investigation and reduction of gas rates in 200 Texas towns and cities were temporarily ended today when Judge Jack Thornton in forty-fourth district court granted an injunction against the railroad commission and eight of its employees.

The injunction restrained the commission from asserting and exercising jurisdiction and power over the books, records, rates and businesses of the plaintiffs, the Community Natural Gas company and the Texas Cities Gas company, in the 200 towns in which those companies operate.

The plaintiffs contended the commission had attempted to exercise original jurisdiction in rate regulation in all cities where the plaintiffs operate, and that orginal jurisdiction in rate inquiries was vested solely in the incorporated cities and towns involved.

The restraining order will be in effect pending a show cause hearing set by Judge Thornton for March 14.

Bizarre Prohibition Sleuth In New York, Izzy Einstein, Dies

NEW YORK, Feb. 17. (AP)—Izzy Einstein, whose bizarre prohibition sleuthing contributed a droll note to the cacaphony of the speakeasy era has passed on.

The genial master of dizzy disguises, who for five years convulsed New York with his whimsical law enforcement, succumbed yesterday to an operation for a leg infection.

Izzy was half of the celebrated team of Einstein and Moe Smith, comical, 250-pound arms of the federal law and nemesis of 5,000 speakeasies between 1920 and 1925.

As thirsty New Yorkers secretly sipped illicit drinks, Izzy and Moe, posing with gay abandon as coal heavers, fishermen, garbage men or millionaires, would pop out of the woodwork or up the dumbwaiter shaft to flash their badges and inform the proprietor sympathetically that "dere's sad news here."

'Entirely New Type Of Aerial Attack' To Necessitate Great Alteration In Prosposed Naval Expansion Program, Inventor Says

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—A military inventor told the house naval committee today an "entirely new type of aerial attack" to be announced in the immediate future would necessitate great alteration of the proposed $1,000,000,000 naval expansion program.

Lester P. Barlow, Stamford, Conn., who said he was the first man to use bombs in aerial warfare, told the committee the new form of air warfare would permit effective attack on all types of naval ships from altitudes above 15,000 feet.

Designs Now Available

He declared designs now are available for "aerial mines—not aerial bombs as now understood by our military organizations, but aerial mines which have a similar relation to the air above the water as marine mines have below the surface of the water."

In support of his contention that battleships would have no value for defense of this country in face of the new air weapons, Barlow said with planes equipped for launching aerial mines and operating at 15,000 to 20,000 feet, "only a superior air force could prevent America's air forces from sweeping the seas 500 miles from our coast lines, and on short notice."

Earlier, Dr. Thomas Healey of Georgetown university, told the committee the premises upon which the need for the new naval program is based are "unsupportable and confused."

"We did nothing under those Washington and London naval treaties," he said, "except sacrifice the supremacy of the American navy and destroy $300,000,000 worth of warships to satisfy Britain who now wants us to build twice as many because she believes they will be used in 1938 to protect her interests."

Refreshing Attitude

OPPOSITION of the Canadian Legion to a movement seeking World war bonuses for Canadian veterans will be incomprehensible to most tax-burdened Americans.

The American's recollection is all too fresh of the successful agitation in our own country which not only won bonuses but caused them to be paid early. That agitation, together with the fact that most of us are on the lookout for a little easy money when and where possible, makes us wonder how any group as closely akin to us as Canadians would shun a feast at the public trough.

Nonetheless, the Canadian veterans' attitude is refreshing to most of those in our own country who must pay rather than collect a bonus. Likewise, it is a different slant on the veteran's point of view.

Even More Colossal

HOW many of us have any comprehension of the Carlsbad caverns?

The answer is few, if any. The human imagination simply is incapable of grasping the stupendousness of size, the stunning magnificence of the beauty even of those caverns which have been explored to the public. It is one of the few natural wonders where the visitor expects to see much; where he finds his most vivid expectation surpassed by reality.

Therefore, it is not to be expected that we can visualize the real meaning of the newly discovered cave, described as being even more colossal and even more magnificent than the cavern which is one of the world's most breath-taking scenic spots. Those who have visited the caverns can hardly believe the new discovery possible.

Yet the discovery may mean that, after ages, the world's greatest natural wonder has been found. The caverns already are listed among the world's natural wonders along with Victoria Falls of Africa, the Grand Canyon of Arizona, Mt. Everest of Asia and Niagara Falls. But none of those will represent such gigantic handiwork of nature as the caverns should the newly discovered areas prove to be—as likely will be the case—merely a part of the vast underground etherea of beauty already explored.

Those who have had opportunity to visit the "old" caverns will for the most part, wait impatiently for the time when they also may inspect the "new".

With Our Contemporaries

"James Harley Dallas, James Farley's boss here in Brownfield is not altogether pleased with what one Chas. A. Guy, ramrod of the Lubbock Rambulance Shurnal had to report on him, when interviewed in the "Hub" recently, and calls on us to take the matter up with Charley's seconds," reports one, Andrew Jackson Stricklin, a taker-upper of the Terry County Herald. "Personally, if it was us, we'd just play mum and pass it up. Fact is, Chas. accused James H. of being a native son, when as a matter of fact, Harley had the bad luck of being born in Landon's state, somewhere around Garden City we believe. However, Jas. H. said he had very little to do with where he was born, not being consulted about the matter, but would have much preferred to have been born in Brownfield, Terry county, Texas. We comforted Jas. H. with the suggestion, however, that Chas. A's story was just about as near accurate as he ever gets them."

EXPLANATION OF CARTOON

PRICE OF A SINGLE WORD

Ismail I. Khedive of Egypt (1830-1895), came to the throne in 1863 and four years later paid $300,000 for a single word. He paid Fuad Pasha, Grand Vizier of Turkey, this sum as a bribe, so that Fuad might influence the Sultan to permit Ismail to assume the title of Khedive, a Persian word meaning Prince or Ruler. In the 16 years that Ismail ruled Egypt, he squandered $35,000,000 a year on entertainment, a total of more than 1-2 billion dollars, before he was finally deposed and forced to leave the country in 1879.

Empire For A Lady

By Alan LeMay
C. By The Associated Press

SYNOPSIS: A revolt of savage Dyak tribes against the Malays makes it impossible for my uncle, James Clyde, to run guns to his besieged client, Rajah Mantusen. Anchored beside our ship, the Linkang, in tropical Balingong bay, is the Forresters' yawl, the Avon. Unable to persuade the young English girl, Christine, to leave the danger spot, Clyde and myself (Paul Thorne) take a desperate chance in reaching the rajah. On seeing Mantusen the mystery of the Forresters is explained. They are supplying the Dyak guns, and WE are held responsible.

Chapter 11

A Hopeless Council

I remember reaching out through all that, exactly as a man overboard might reach for a floating spar to cling to; and what I found, without any shock of surprise, was the clear-cut image of Christine Forrester.

It was as if she had always been there—a dark-eyed girl waiting to steady a man so that he could meet without dishonor just such an hour as this. Curiously, I could not hold it against her that she was the cause of all this; I could only be afraid of what would happen to her now. She could not make me forget my own danger, or Clyde's, or the fate of the Linkang, but she could add something more. That was because something seemed to go out of me, trying to reach down the sultry darkness of the Siderong, and speak to her aboard the yawl—speak to her so insistently that she would have to understand me through the hammering of agongs and the whisper of the reef . . . Go away, Christine, go away. Catch the ebb tide through Balingong pass. Get your helpless little yawl into the open sea, somehow, before it's too late. In God's name get gone, Christine. . . .

Clyde was finishing his speech now, bearing down with set face at every turn of the Malay phrases. Whatever he was saying, Mantusen seemed to diregard it.

"You have made me very happy, Tuan," the Rajah said. "When I learned you had filled the jungle with these guns, I knew that this is the place and time that I will die. I do not mind that. But I was sorry to think that my kris would never taste your flesh. Now you have changed that. It is like a miracle. I feel that God is good."

My uncle turned his eyes toward me, and we exchanged a long glance. He spoke to me softly. "I have been a fool."

"Yes," said Mantusen:

"I suppose there is no hurry about this," Clyde said at last. "I see no reason why we should not sit down and talk this over in full."

"Now that we understand each other," the Rajah Mantusen replied, "I am sure I would enjoy it very much."

So we sat down. It was only a delay, which we could string out as long as the rajah felt social, and not any longer. I did not know anything about what kind of ceremony Malay rajahs go through when they put away an enemy of great distinction who is helpless in their their hands. But we had no reason to think that there would be much postponement attached to the matter, other than for entertainment purposes. And the one thing I had never heard of was a Malay rajah who could be talked out of anything in any such circumstances as this. With the threat of superior power eliminated, you have surprisingly few points of contact with a Malay.

And there we were. Nothing is more difficult for a white man in dealing with Malays than the interminable slowness which impedes any conversation of any weight. Here we had to do with what represented the nobility of the breed — the proudest and most regal blood the archipelagos had developed; and this multiplied the deliberation surrounding the pronouncement of any statement of any real account. Mantusen, in at once showing the rifle and the head, had exposed our position with what amounted to a savage abruptness. This in itself, coming from a chief who would have taken four days to discuss a hunting trip up a river, showed what an extreme pinch we had got ourselves into.

'Too Much Gunpowder'

In the end we could, of course, get ourselves killed trying to escape. But the attempt meant, to begin with, the out and out abandonment of our boat. All Clyde could do, and what he now went ahead with, was to attempt the impossible job of talking our way out. And this meant that we had to sit stonily cross-legged on the mats for hour after hour, without any motion, not even fatigue permitted to show in our faces.

An awkward, trival thing enters into a conference of that kind, between a white man and an Oriental on the Oriental's ground, and this thing has distorted the entire history of the East. It is that when a white man sits cross-legged on a mat for a long time he gets a terrible backache. Heaven knows how many wars have been started because an envoy developed such a backache that he concluded in his report that the quickest way out would be to shoot the rajah.

Early in the first hour, my back began to ache. Later I computed that we sat there between four and five hours; but by this time I did not understand why daylight did not come before we were through. It seemed to me that we sat there for weeks.

Yet, considering all this, the exact facts behind Mantusen's displeasure came out surprisingly clear and soon.

"I did not start this war," Clyde said. I knew that he stated this less in hope of convincing Mantusen than of finding out what was in Mantusen's mind. "I did not plan any war."

"I believe you," Mantusen said.

"Then just what do you think I have done?"

"You have distrusted me too much," said Mantusen. "You have tried to be too safe. You have played with too much gunpowder."

At the moment I did not understand this, but as they talked on it became very plain.

Clyde had undertaken to run guns to Mantusen in return for certain trade monopolies. Naturally, Clyde had considerable reason to fear that Mantusen, once armed, would repudiate his agreements. What the typical white trader liked to do, in such a case, was to provide a military threat of his own, to sustain his rights in the matter.

Mantusen conceived that this was exactly what Clyde had done. He thought that it was Clyde who had caused the Dyaks to gather. The excellent guns with which the Dyaks were now armed gave very strong evidence in support of this theory. In fact, if one threw out the possibility—as Mantusen did—that the two white ships were working against each other, the theory that Clyde had armed the Dyaks became inevitable.

"I still would have been a fool to attack Balingong," Clyde maintained. "You and I were in perect understanding. No disagreement had come up. Why should I attack you?"

"I do not think you meant to attack me—yet." Mantusen said. "You should have known that you could not keep your Dyaks in hand. I only say you caused this. I do not say yiu control it now."

Mantusen's Logic

So the nature of the trap we had walked into was clearly defined. Mantusen thought Clyde had gathered the Dyaks as a threat, an ace-in-the-hole. The guns the Dyaks had were proof of it. He assumed that the Dyaks had then got out of hand while Clyde was away.

It was so simple and inevitable, I saw now, that there was no other view Mantusen could have taken. We should have foreseen it ourselves; we had guessed the Avon rifles. But Dyaks have so little to trade that it never occurred to us that the rifles were not for the Malays — and we walked in like sheep.

The hopeless council went on. Clyde was feeling his way over all the possibilities of the situation as it existed in Mantusen's mind, just as he had felt his way up the Siderong river. It was not the fault of his diplomacy if everything he found out was unfavorable. He was covering the ground, and in five hours he probably covered more of it than anyone ever had gone over with Mantusen in as many days, before.

But, his fault or not, it was true that every card he turned seemed to lie against us. Mantusen's view of the situation was so logical, in all ways so probable, that it left no opening for attack. The only flaw in Mantusen's whole conception was that it was not true. In many ways we would have been better off if it been true, for then at least we could have looked to the Dyaks as our allies.

The whole trouble was that there appeared to be no possible way of showing Mantusen how the two white ships could be working at cross purposes. For years white men had been teaching the island peoples that white men always work together. To a great number of the archipelago peoples, Europe means everything beyond Singapore, and different breeds of white men are not distinguishable on from another. Mantusen was well beyond this limited type of theory; but he had it definitely fixed in his mind that only one rajah laut was in control of gun-running in this part of the islands, and that no other could have intruded except by James Clyde's will.

You see, he knew Anthony Forrester. He had known Forrester for years, probably as a harmless, mildly insane Englishman, very tenacious about repeated hunting expeditions upon Sumantang, and given to collecting Dyak trinkets of no value. It was impossible for Mantusen to conceive of Forrester as a man of war. If Forrester's boat was gun-running to Sumantang, it was because Clyde had chartered it, or perhaps seized it. That much was unshakably fixed in the mind of the Rajah Mantusen.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

DECADE: President Roosevelt can inaugurate his proclaimed system of planned production in industry simply by giving the nod to a memo now in his desk drawer. It was prepared by an S. E. C. economist, and it is the most comprehensive program for a controlled economic state ever framed in the U. S. A.

It proposes the formation of a committee within ten key industries that shall represent the following groups: Capital, management, government, labor, the consumer. These central agencies would continuously chart every process which throws light on the nation's capacity to produce and to consume. They would have at all times a complete statistical portrait of the American economic plant. Though too technical for extended discussion here, it appears to furnish a method for steady and stable production and consumption.

Underlying theory is that severe fluctuations in total national income and prices should be prevented. Proponents of the scheme contend that it makes little difference whether prices are high or low, so long as they parallel the total amount of money which buyers can afford to pay for the sum total of goods. The memo does destroy one airy formula promulgated by the White House—namely, that any system of planned production can be set up overnight. It is a ten year job at least. For that reason it may be suppressed.

SYMPATHY: The terrific opposition which the Roosevelt administration—in fact, any administration—faces in an honest and sweeping enforcement of the anti-trust laws is strikingly illustrated in the unwritten history of the prosecution of the oil defendants at Madison, Wis.

When faint rumors of possible government action leaked out, C. I. O.-er John L. Lewis intervened because he feared it might cost the jobs of some of his refinery workers. Then Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania, an old oil man himself, escorted seven Senators into Trust Buster Robert H. Jackson's office, and urged an out-of-court compromise. A week later they returned for final answer, but Attorney General Cummings informed them that it was too late to stop the proceedings, even though the defendants had contributed about $100,000 to the party chest in 1932.

Standard Oilman James P. Moffett, a presidential favorite, also entered the protesting picture, but without any luck. So did "Mike" Benedum, a Pittsburgher who gave $50,000 to the '32 campaign. Not a political stone was left unturned by the big moguls. The A. G. was sympathetic, wished he could help the boys out, but newspaper publicity, he explained had placed the trust busters on "a spot."

SUSPICION: In summoning the "big three" of the House Ways and Means Committee to the White House, President Roosevelt was not seeking to influence their votes on the pending tax measure. He was striving to prevent the breakup of the most important committee on Capitol Hill.

Mr. Roosevelt begged Chairman Doughton of North Carolina to reconsider his decision to retire at the end of the present session. F. D. R. pointed out that if Mr. D. quit, the chairmanship would fall to Tammanyite Cullen of Brooklyn, and that right behind Mr. Cullen stood "Christy" Sullivan, Tammany leader, who rarely shows up at the Capital. The President doesn't want a committee dealing with such vital problems as tariffs and taxes to fall into the New Yorkers' clutches. For the same reason he begged Rep. Disney of Oklahoma to forego his ambition to run against Elmer Thomas for a Senate seat. Mr. Disney is one of the most able members of the committee.

The President, of course, hasn't publicized his fears of Tammany control of this important agency or his desire that dominant power remain in the hands of North Carolinians and Oklahomans rather than in New Yorkers. But his suspicion of the Cullen-Sullivan contacts with Big Business, lie behind his move to euchre them out of the chairmanship.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

RISING: The federal government is making every effort to keep its money-raising activities as inconspicuous as possible. Additional funds are required to take care of increased relief expenditures and other special outlays necessitated by the recession. It might create a bad impression on the public mind if the Treasury were to float a large bond issue for the purpose after so much talk about balancing the budget and keeping the debt in bounds. So quieter channels are being used.

The growing demand for baby bonds is a help in this connection. $133,000,000 of these were sold in January, a record to date. At the same time, the Treasury has doubled its weekly issues of short-term bills (bought only by banks) from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000. Half of this is for refunding, but the other half is new borrowing. These items together mean that the national debt is rising by more than $20,000,000 a month without attracting public attention. The inflow of funds from these sources will probably enable the Treasury to keep its regular March financing down to an encouragingly small figure.

But camouflage will not be possible much longer. A terrific drop in March income tax receipts is in prospect. The loss of anticipated revenue plus mounting expenditures make it almost certain that the government will have to resume large-scale long-term borrowing within a few months.

DIVERTED: The steady increase in baby bond sales has another significant angle—especially when coupled with a simultaneous rise in insurance annuities. The latter are selling like hot cakes.

The answer is that thousands of people are frightened by the uncertainties surrounding the regular investment markets—including the market for high-grade bonds—and are salting away their spare cash in the safest forms of guaranteed future income they can find. The actual safety of such income investments of course depends upon whether inflationary tendencies can be held under control.

Much of this money would normally have gone into the stock and bond markets. The fact that it has been diverted makes these markets thinner and far more vulnerable even to slight pressure than they would ordinarily be.

INFLATED: The New York Stock Exchange has at last appointed a committee to investigate the question of reducing the number of memberships. This is in line with the thought expressed by S. E. C. chairman William O. Douglas several months ago when he suggested that perhaps the Exchange was trying to feed too many mouths.

Financial realists heartily agree that it is high time to deflate a set-up which still tries to operate on a scale established in the carefree '20s. It is foolish to expect an organization adjusted to 2,000,000 share days to function profitably on a 500,000 share average.

For 50 years, from 1879 to 1929, the Stock Exchange membership remained static at 1100. In the last year of the boom it was inflated to 1375—the current figure. Of these only about 700 are active, but even so there isn't enough business to go around at present shrunken volume.

UNSCRAMBLE: Practically everyone agrees that deflation is in order, but how to finance it is the big headache. One suggestion is that the Exchange mortgage its real estate and use the proceeds to buy in and retire surplus seats. That would be painless for the members, but Exchange officials are not too keen about going in hock for the purpose.

Another idea is to reduce each existing membership arbitrarily to three-fourths of a membership. Then anyone who wished to remain a member would have to shell out about $20,000 to buy one-fourth of a membership from someone who was willing to quit. This alternative would raise loud howls of protest from the members but it wouldn't cost the Exchange itself anything.

Unscrambling eggs is a simple feat compared to this necessary and realistic adjustment.

Side Glances---By George Clark

"Keep an eye on this new client of mine. Frankly, I don't trust him."

The Plainsman Says:

HOUSTON, Feb. 18.—Without doubt, the average reader who perused this column yesterday wondered what in the heck The Plainsman was doing in Austin. And although he originally aimed to keep this jaunt out of the public prints, he has decided to break down and tell the truth. He is down here in connection with Senator G. H. Nelson's campaign for lieutenant-governor and he is going to be a lot more places before he gets through.

* * *

To be perfectly honest about it, when The Plainsman left Lubbock last Sunday on a tour of Texas' important newspaper offices he didn't think our home town candidate had a Chinaman's chance of being elected.

He didn't think our Hobart was going to make much of a splash over the big state of Texas.

But he changed his mind in a big way at Fort Worth—the first town where we stopped. And every experience since then has bolstered the idea.

IN Fort Worth, in Dallas, in Waco, in Austin, in San Antonio and here in Houston The Plainsman has found that our old West Texas Senator has built up a lot of support. The editors and the lawyers and the business men we have talked to have all known about Senator Nelson and his fight for the one-house legislature and they are for him almost to a man. Only Editor George Cottingham, of the Chronicle here, is opposed to the unicameral plan and we're just about to convince him!

Give us a little time and we'll get the job done!

A week ago The Plainsman said to Drury Bondurant, to Jack Parsons, to Parker Prouty, to Charlie Read, to Alaric Davis and to Walter Posey that Hobart Nelson's campaign for lieutenant-governor was just another case of love's labor lost. He said that Hobart was expecting more than he was going to get.

But the way he is being met and the way he is being received—and the number of people he knows—has made your humble servant change his mind in a great big way.

OUR home town boy—our ex-chamber of commerce secretary of Ralls and Tahoka—our former 106th district attorney is already in the run-off in his lieutenant-governor's race and in that runoff he's going to beat the pants off Coke R. Stevenson.

You paste this prediction in your hat and compare it with the figures on the morning of July 24.

This much is just as true as Gospel.

If the people of Lubbock and the South Plains knew the extent of Senator Nelson's support the state over, they would be tickled to death over their opportunity to send a No. 1 state official to Austin.

And that's no foolin'!

THE Plainsman started to write about O. O. McIntyre for last Tuesday's paper but just couldn't bring himself to do it.

The death of the famous New York writer hit him fully as hard as would the death of a personal friend.

But Time, the healer, has eliminated the wound and we're ready to tell what we know about the Gallipolis, Ohio, boy who made good in the city.

Here goes—and we believe Mr. McIntyre would be pleased to read this bit about him.

SOMETHING like 25 years ago Mr. McIntyre found himself out of a job in New York City. According to a story told The Plainsman by Max Bentley, former managing editor of the Houston Chronicle and the Abilene Reporter-News, Mr. McIntyre hit upon the idea of paying his board and room in a New York hotel by writing pieces about New York and frequently inserting the name of the hotel in his copy.

He picked out 50 papers and wrote the editors telling them the truth about his predicament. He simply told them his column would be free to them as long as they let the mention of his hotel go through.

The New York column immediately caught on with editors and readers alike and a few months later Mr. McIntyre wrote the editors using his column in this sort of a vein:

"When I first started my column it was only to enable me to pay my room and board. However, you must like it, since you are running it. I am going to quit publicizing my hotel and there will be no more commercial tie-ups. Therefore, will you start sending me some change for my column?"

His 50 papers started to kick in.

A FEW months later, editors got another letter from Odd McIntyre. It read something like this:

"Something like three months ago, I wrote about my column, explaining that the commercials were to be eliminated and asking you to pay something for it. I have now syndicated the column and the cost to you will be so much. (In the case of the Houston Chronicle, ex-Managing Editor Bentley recalls it was $5 or $7.50 per week. Today, the Chronicle would be willing to pay ten times that sum—which it has been paying for years—if Mr. McIntyre were available to continue his writings.)

The Plainsman was brought up—from a grade school kid on—on the column of Odd McIntyre. He used to read it religiously in the Tulsa World and, more recently, in Col. Amon Carter's Star-Telegram, of Fort Worth.

Not many years ago, something the famous columnist said happened to hit The Plainsman in the eye and he wrote him a letter. He explained that it was his first "letter to the editor" and that he hoped it would be his last. Post-haste from McIntyre came an answer saying that while Mr. McIntyre didn't try to answer all his 3,000 letters a week, he did answer letters from newspapermen. And he wanted to know why, since The Plainsman thought he was so hot, that we didn't use him in either the Avalanche or the Journal.

WE wrote Mr. McIntyre substantially as follows:

Dear Mr. McIntyre: We will be very delighted to carry your New York column in either (or both) the Avalanche or Journal, but our mutual friend, Colonel Amon Carter, of Fort Worth, has it signed up exclusive. You see, Colonel Carter can't compete with us on spot news, so he has to have your column, and a lot of other features exclusive to take care of himself."

Mr. McIntyre very graciously wrote back that he had forgotten about the Star-Telegram's trick contract and that he would be very happy to let us have his daily stint if he had his way about it.

The boasted glory of the old days . . . was usually fourth and fifth-rate companies playing in slipshod productions. It was the glory of grandiose plays and mediocrity. — Helen Hayes, noted actress.

TARZAN THE MAGNIFICENT No. 30 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan awoke suddenly and found himself encircled by spears. He looked up into those fierce, unfriendly faces, but he did not speak. He saw that he was outnumbered and a captive. Under the circumstances nothing he could say would serve any purpose.

His captors were taken aback by his silence and composure. They had expected him to show fear and excitement. But the ape-man merely appraised them through steady, gray eyes. "Well, Kaji," Lord said at last, "we've got you. What have you got to say?"

"Nothing," said Tarzan calmly; "but what makes you think I'm a Kaji?" "For the same reason that you know we are Zuli," Lord answered; "because there are no other people in these mountains." He turned to his fellows. "Take his weapons and tie his hands."

As darkness descended, they led Tarzan down the other side of the divide. "Woora will be pleased with us," Lord grinned to his companions. "What do you think Woora will do with him?" another asked. Lord chuckled ominously. "There is only one end for a Kaji!"

19—Livestock For Sale

Auction Sale
TUESDAY AND FRIDAY

Due to bad weather this week, we could not supply the demand for cattle. Plenty of buyers from Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, and we did not have cattle for them. If you have cattle for sale get them in for Tuesday's sale. We are sure that you will be pleased with the sale we can make for you.

The outlook for cattle looks better, with slight advance on all grades.

We have standing orders for stocker cattle, steers, heifer, and cows, and the demand for car load lots is great.

Coast Defense Gun Develops Mighty Power When Fired

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP)—A single coast defense gun develops as much power in firing one shell as do all of the engines propelling the navy's battle-fleet, a navy scientist said today.

In a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Dr. L. Thompson of the naval proving grounds at Dahlgren said recent experiments have shown the gun puts a 10,000,000 horsepower push behind the projectile.

Such shells, weighing more than a ton, can be dropped with accuracy in a target 20 miles at sea, Thompson added.

STOCKS BLOOM AND WILT

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (AP)—Stocks bloomed and wilted in today's market.

The list forged ahead at the opening, settled down to a slow side-wise drift, then suffered a brisk relapse following the president's comments on price levels which were interpreted by some as spiking the guns of inflationists.

On the sell-off initial gains of fractions to more than a point were replaced by losses running to 2 or so. There was a subsequent come-back and another dip, but volume dwindled appreciably after the mid-day break and the majority of leaders closed above their lows of the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off .5 of a point at 44.2. Despite the occasional fast periods volume was relatively small. Transfers totaled 768,970 shares compared with 856,790 yesterday.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18 (AP)—Further advances met heavy selling in cotton here today and the market receded during the last half of the session, closing steady at net losses of 9 to 12 points.

Trading reached its peak about mid-session when selling was heaviest. The extreme range of fluctuations was 20 to 21 points.

Considerable trade and investment purchasing entered the market at the start on favorable foreign cables and expectations of bullish developments at the president's press conference.

Before the demand was supplied prices made new highs for the present movement and traded into the highest ground since last September. At the top active positions were 8 to 13 points above the previous close.

In the last hour March contracts broke below the 9-cent line to 8.98 and all months made new lows for the day. There was some desultory buying of near months in late trading but final prices were at or near the bottom.

March contracts closed at 9.01, May at 9.09, July at 9.16, Oct. at 9.26, Dec. at 9.27 and Jan at 9.28. Middling spot lost 10 points, selling off to 919 on sales of 2,258 bales.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. (AP)—Cotton eased sharply from early advances today under active realizing and liquidation. May sold off from 9.18@8.95 and closed at 8.98, with final prices 6 to 13 points net lower.

Opening advances were run up to net gains of 11 to 14 points, aided by recent inflationary sentiment and proclamation of a national cotton acreage for 1938 of 26,384,417 acres against 34,383,000 last year. Following the president's press conference in which he asserted his views on price levels were not inflationary, prices broke about $1.00 a bale. The market ruled about steady in the afternoon but renewed liquidation developed toward the close.

AVERAGE PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18. (AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at ten southern spot markets was 9.01 cents a pound; average for the past thirty market days 8.68 cents a pound.

as I had.'" Hersholt said today. "Stay away from Hollyood unless you have money enough to live for half a year. And then, if you don't get a job, be prepared to go back home.'"

When Hersholt started to work—a handsome 27-year-old Dane who had come to this country to give "recitations," he played cowboy and Indian in the morning and was the hero in the afternoons.

"My salary was $15 a week and when I was raised to $18. I was sure I was in the money." Hersholt says. "Then I got married."

He has been in 439 pictures. His role in "Alexander's Ragtime Band" will bring the number to an even figure.

Hersholt's studio, 20th Century, will stage a big celebration for him next month, with speeches and all.

Jean has only one regret.

He can't play villains any more.

"It just wouldn't do to have the Dionne quintuplets' movie doctor making faces and scaring children," he says.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Feb. 18. (AP)—Rapid downward plunges of 2½ cents in wheat prices attended today the conclusion of a statement by President Roosevelt outlining his policy about commodity values.

The president's statement emphasized the policy did not mean inflation, and this was seized upon by many traders as indicating that yesterday's sharp advance of the wheat market had been effected on a mistaken basis. It was also contended the president's remarks today shed little light on what definite future steps as to commodity prices were to be taken by the administration.

An immediate result was to bring out increased selling of wheat futures and also a curtailment of buying support for the market. Brokers said much of the selling, however, was in the nature of efforts to realize profits.

With only fractional rallies from the day's bottom, Chicago wheat futures at the close were 1 cent to 1⅝ cents under yesterday's finish, May 92½@92⅝, July 88⅛@88⅜, corn ¼ to ⅜ down, May 59⅞, July 61⅛@61¼, oats unchanged to ¼ off, rye ⅝ to 1 cent drop, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to 12 cents advance.

in and must be mainly confined to classes of commodities whose prices are too low.

"These include most of those raw materials and finished products which are produced and sold under highly competitive conditions. Such rise must not be so sharp, or continue so long, as to lead to a repetition of the unhealthy speculative conditions of a year ago . . .

Seeks Balanced System

"Our program seeks a balance system of prices such as will promote a balanced expansion in production. Our goal is a constantly increasing national income through increasing production and employment. This is the way to increase the real income of consumers.

"This is not a policy of restriction; it is a policy of abundance. Our agricultural, industrial, housing and monetary programs have been and will be directed toward this end."

The statement also said that a determining factor in the attainment of full employment and a high level of income was the "behavior of prices; the relationship of prices of groups of commodities to each other and to costs and debt burdens and the direction and rate of change of the general price level.

"Some prices and some costs are still too high to promote that balanced relationship between prices that is necessary for sustained recovery Continued high prices of many commodities not subject to highly competitive market forces intensified the downward pressure on all other prices. Those industries that have maintained prices and curtailed output should seek the restoration of profits through increased, rather than through restricted, output."

the Home economics club and employes of the division of agriculture.

Dr. Knapp Is Heard

President Bradford Knapp, speaking informally, said "there is no organization on the campus that does any better work than does the Aggie club." He pointed out the large number of division graduates now on ranches a farms of the state.

Dean A. H. Leidigh gave interesting figures on the vocations of graduates of the division and also on enrollment. The third graduate of the division to receive his doctor's degree in agriculture was announced as Ogden King. Loyalty of the students of the division the past year was highly praised, as well as cooperation of parents. Long a personal friend of the speaker of the evening, he introduced Director Williamson.

Dr. Knapp, Williamson said, was his "first boss," having signed his commission when he entered the extension service after graduation from Texas A. & M. in 1911.

"I think it important that we endeavor to be as near as possible, a conservative optimist," he said. The present agricultural situation has more said and printed about it than any other subject.

Foreign Market "Shot"

The present situation "looks bad at all angles," he pointed out. We are at present "confused in a wilderness of economics." The foreign market, described as "shot to pieces," the disasters from soil erosion and the loss of agricultural income were all briefly outlined.

Comparison was given of the farmer's income with that of industrial workers. One-third of the American workers are engaged in agricultural pursuits, two-thirds in non-agricultural; yet, agricultural workers receive but 10 per cent of the national income, non-agricultural workers 90 per cent.

Is Greatest Challenge

This situation, he declared, "is the greatest challenge in America today." It is a problem that the coming generation of leaders must, and will solve.

His experiences and observations on a recent European trip, including a visit in Denmark, where he observed the agricultural situation, were interestingly told. Williamson contrasted the attitude of people of the two nations towards the objectives in life.

Charge Is Filed Against Negro

A charge of assault with intent to murder was filed Friday against Frank Undray, 22-year-old Henderson negro, in connection with the shooting late Wednesday of R. M. O'Neal, Wolfforth farmer.

The complaint was filed with Walter Davies, justice of peace, after preparation by Victor H. Lindsey, assistant district attorney. Grady Harrist, deputy sheriff, swore to it. Undray had not been arraigned late Friday night.

Became Frightened

In a statement to District Attorney Burton S. Burks, Undray said he had broken into a one-room house in which O'Neal had been sleeping and when O'Neal arrived he became frightened. He took O'Neal's double-barreled shotgun and fired through an open window, he said.

Investigations into the case included questioning of approximately 15 witnesses, most of whom were negroes. Other officers working on the case were Sheriff Tom Abel, Chief Deputy Jas. P. Posey, and Bill Mabray, police identifications officer. Approximately 40 Wolfforth farmers assisted in the search for the hidden gun and shells.

Despite removal of his right eye, condition of O'Neal late Friday was considered satisfactory by attaches of Plains hospital where he is receiving treatment for the gunshot wounds in the right side of his face and head.

Tariff Policy Of U. S. Is Attacked

(By The Associated Press)

DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 18.—Harris Kempner, president of the Galveston, Tex., cotton exchange, told the National Farm institute today that the Smoot-Hawley tariff is driving the South into peonage and the rest of the country into ruin.

The tariff policy of this country, he said, must be changed and our only salvation must come from increasing the buying power of our foreign customers.

"This means lower tariffs," he asserted, "and it means lowering them faster and more sweepingly than the reciprocal trade agreements.

Double Edged Reason

"Without exports Southern agriculture cannot survive, and, unless Southern agriculture can export its surpluses, the agriculture of the nation cannot survive, for the double edged reason that, first, without exports, southern agriculture will be forced to become competitive with the agriculture of the rest of the nation, and it will be a disastrous competition, and second, without exports, the buying power of the South would drop to a level which is almost unimaginable."

"Let us defend and encourage the reciprocal trade agreements which have been so skillfully handled by Secretary Hull."

Trade Pacts Attacked

On the other hand Charles W. Olman, Washington, D. C., secretary of the Cooperative Milk Producers federation, charged that the reciprocal trade agreements policy is "highly bureaucratic, highly undemocratic and non-cooperative as far as American citizens are concerned.

"Under the trade agreements act," he said, "the president is given powers that a Hitler or a Mussolini would exercise. The citizen is denied the right to recourse to determine if the law is unconstitutional or his personal rights are being infringed."

Holman said the trade agreements policy would mean a permanent return to lower prices for farm products while at the same time the proposed wages and hours bill would increase the cost of manufactured products which the farmer buys.

"The administration," he said, "cannot successfully ride two horses going in different directions at the same time."
