Tax notices in the mail

Some 20,000 property tax statements for each of the county's taxing entities will be mailed from the county tax collector's office on Monday, tax collector Rona Sikes has announced.

The statements will include property taxes assessed by Scurry County, Western Texas College, the City of Snyder, Snyder Independent School district and County Education District 11.

Taxes for city residents will be about $2.42 per $100 valuation. County residents who live outside the city limits and within the Snyder school district will pay $2.03 per $100 property valuation.

The combined tax rate includes 38.29 cents for city taxes, 44.31 cents for county taxes, 23.16 for Western Texas College, 43.3 cents for Snyder ISD, and 92.63 for County Education District 11.

According to Sikes, discounts will be given to those who pay their taxes early. A three-percent discount is offered if taxes are paid during the month of October, two percent in November and one percent in the month of December. If a payment is postmarked the last day of one of these months, the discount percentage for that month will be given.

The discounts do not apply to the 38.29 cent city tax.

Payment of taxes may be made in person on the first floor of the courthouse, or by mailing the payment to Rona Sikes, Tax Collector, Scurry County Courthouse, Snyder, Texas 79549.

'College Night' set at WTC this week

Representatives from more than 20 colleges and universities will participate in "College Night" Wednesday at the Western Texas College student center.

The annual event, set for 6 p.m., is sponsored by WTC and the Snyder High School counselors. It is designed to provide information about the various colleges to area high school students, as well as sophomore students at WTC.

College representatives will answer general questions about their schools and hand out informational brochures.

Among the schools to be represented are Texas Tech University and its related Health Sciences Center, Baylor University, the University of Texas at Austin and Texas A&M University. Other area four-year schools being represented will include McMurry, Lubbock Christian, Abilene Christian, Angelo State, Hardin-Simmons, Howard Payne, Wayland Baptist, Tarleton State and the University of North Texas.

Western Texas will have its own recruitment booth, as will other community colleges such as South Plains College, Texas State Technical College and Austin College, plus other schools such as Schreiner and the Northwood Institute.

Others planning to have booths at "College Night" are the National Guard unit at Big Spring and the U.S. Army.

Students and parents are encouraged to take part.

Lifestyle promises fast-paced food & fun

Just as the lives of many area residents are fast-paced, so will be the Lifestyle show.

The Homemakers School, sponsored by Snyder Daily News, promises to be lively and entertaining — maybe even a little hectic at times, according to home economist Lucinda Kahny.

The festivities begin at 7 p.m. Thursday in Worsham Auditorium.

Using appliances provided by Roe's Furniture and Appliance, Kahny will prepare a dozen dishes on stage from start to finish. At the close of the evening, the foods will be shown, ready for the drawing when some lucky winners will take them home.

Each person attending will receive a gift bag with the 1992 Lifestyle cookbook, coupons, recipes and more.

Clay Jacobs will be the emcee for the evening and will be responsible for drawing winners for over 50 prizes.

Doors open at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $2 each with a portion of ticket sales going to the Snyder FHA.

FHA members will be assisting in stuffing gift bags and selling tickets at the door.

Only 1,000 tickets will be sold, and are on sale now at Snyder Daily News.

Reservations open now for 'Magnolias'

Ritz Community Theatre season ticket holders can reserve tickets for "Steel Magnolias" by calling the box office at the Senior Center.

Ticket reservations should be made from 1 until 4 p.m. at 573-4035.

"Steel Magnolias" performances are scheduled for the evenings of Oct. 16, 17, 23 and 24 and matinees on Oct. 18 and 25. All performances will be in the North Elementary School auditorium.

Memberships in the Ritz include tickets for "Steel Magnolias" as well as two other upcoming shows. Members still need to call the box office to reserve seating for specific performances of "Steel Magnolias."

Tickets for non-members will go on sale Oct. 12.

Season memberships in the Ritz Community Theatre are still available and can be purchased by calling the box office at the Senior Center.

A $30 membership include six tickets, a $60 membership includes 12 tickets and a $100 membership includes 24 tickets. The second show of the season will be a Christmas special and the final performance will be a musical in the spring.

Checks for memberships can be mailed to Ritz Community Theatre, Inc., P.O. Box 943 in Snyder.

Appearing in "Steel Magnolias" will be Donna Fowler, Emily Hataway, Sue Parham, Janeen Patterson, Jana Pool and Jane Womack. Ellie Dryden is directing the show.

"Steel Magnolias," written by Robert Harling, has been hailed as one of the most popular plays of the 90s. A successful blending of comedy and sadness has made it a hit with audiences across the nation.

4 nominated for chamber

Four persons have been nominated for seats on the Snyder Chamber of Commerce board of directors.

Chosen by the nominating committee are Joe Kelley of Nathalie's, Joel Hook of McDonald's, Randy Perkins of The Shack and Paula McWilliams of McWilliams Pharmacy.

Additional names of candidates for the four positions on the chamber board may be nominated by petition bearing the signatures of at least 10 chamber members.

Ricky Fritz, chamber manager, said Oct. 12 is the deadline for additional nominees to be submitted.

County to consider appointments, pact

Scurry County commissioners will appoint members to the child welfare board and discuss the repurchase agreement of a John Deere dozer as the court convenes at 10 a.m. Monday.

The court is to appoint replacements for the Scurry County child welfare board, which lost two of its members due to resignations approved by commissioners Sept. 21.

Resignations were accepted from Elida Garza, who was recently employed by the Texas Department of Human Resources, and Jessie Price, who is being transferred from Snyder.

Commissioners are to send a certified letter to Yellowhouse Machinery Co. concerning the repurchase agreement of a John Deere crawler dozer owned by the county.

Approval of bills and minutes of previous meetings are the only other items on the court's agenda.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Some of today's music is important. It makes you appreciate the old stuff."

A couple of Sunday school stories found their way to our desk. The sixth grade teacher used a technique that might work for the public school teacher and be an alternative to corporal punishment.

The teacher had a boy who was acting up, talking, clowning and being generally disruptive.

She finally walked over to him, put her arm around his shoulder and whispered in his ear. The young man recoiled, looking at his teacher fearfully, then sat up straight and was a model student for the rest of the class.

The assistant teacher later asked what she had said to motivate the unruly boy to such a response.

"If you don't be quiet, I'll kiss you."

The second story came from a Vacation Bible School where the kid's dad obviously was an avid fisherman. Asked what his favorite Bible story was, the little guy didn't hesitate.

"I like the one where everybody loafs and fishes."

A little item in one of the business journals caused us to conclude that the business executive might as well be fishing... or golfing.

According to a survey published in the Wall Street Journal, executives waste almost six weeks a year looking for misplaced items.

Shoot, if you're gonna be looking for something, it might as well be golf balls.

An article in the same publication predicted that a four-day work week is just around the corner.

It caused one boss to grumble: "I think employees will resist a longer work week."

Bush promotes ethanol, petroleum industry angry

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush says his bending federal rules to promote ethanol will boost the farm economy, promote energy security and add just three-tenths of a penny per gallon to the price of gasoline in some of America's smoggiest cities.

But while the Corn Belt cheered Bush's latest re-election favor for farmers, the petroleum industry cried foul Thursday and claimed it would cost $250 million a year, 10 times what the White House figured.

And Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, derided the White House action as "just one more cynical, last-ditch effort to court votes in a rural America that (Bush) and Reagan have shunned for 12 years."

Corn growers struggling under $2-a-bushel prices in such key electoral battlegrounds as Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and Missouri had lobbied to stop the Environmental Protection Agency from imposing restrictions on ethanol's use in the nation's dirtiest big cities.

Production of the renewable fuel made from corn has skyrocketed in the past decade on the strength of federal tax breaks. In Illinois alone a sixth of the corn crop is converted into ethanol.

But the growers feared being shut out of the growing alternative fuel business by EPA concerns that ethanol, despite its clean burning properties, actually could aggravate urban smog because it makes gasoline evaporate faster.

Justice Department and White House lawyers — including C. Boyden Gray, an ethanol zealot who drives an alternative fuel car — decided they could not simply waive the Clean Air Act restrictions, which require the dirtiest cities to reduce summertime smog by 15 percent.

So they found a way around them with what Bush called an "effective" waiver: requiring gasoline makers to produce a slightly cleaner base for the ethanol-blend gasoline.

Bush, in a Rose Garden ceremony, said that was "good for farmers, good for rural American, good for the environment in our cities and good for American consumers and motorists."

It will add "only about three-tenths of a penny" to gasoline prices in Northern cities where ethanol-blended gasoline will be sold in up to 30 percent of the market, he said.

The cities include New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Hartford and Milwaukee. Other cities can opt into the program.

White House officials emphasized that refiners already market the cleaner burning base for summertime sales in the South's hottest cities.

But Charles J. DiBona, president of the American Petroleum Institute, denounced it as a "politically motivated decision (that) further rewards the highly subsidized ethanol industry" at the expense of the ailing oil industry.

"It does absolutely nothing to improve air quality," said DiBona.

Artist suing for profits

HOUSTON (AP) — The creator of the cigarette-smoking Joe Camel character has filed a federal lawsuit claiming R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. is using the camel's likeness without his permission.

English illustrator Nicholas Price, who filed the lawsuit in Houston Thursday, said he agreed to let Reynolds use Joe Camel in a test campaign for Camel cigarettes in the United States in 1988 in exchange for $10,000.

But Reynolds continued featuring the suave dromedary playing the piano, racing cars and wearing tuxedos in advertisements without negotiating further payments to his creator, the lawsuit said.

Price is seeking profits generated by Camel cigarettes since Jan. 1, 1989 — $500 million in 1991 alone.

Houston attorney N. Elton Dry said the lawsuit seeks maximum damages allowed under law, but that Price expects to resolve his dispute with the company for a smaller figure. Dry said Price, a former smoker, is not out to bankrupt Joe Camel's stockholders.

A Bright Spot in our hometown...

Sheriff Keith Collier

Once recognized as Texas' top sheriff, Scurry County citizens believe they've had the best law enforcement officer for 28 years.

Completing his 7th, four-year term at the end of 1992, Sheriff Keith Collier is unopposed on the November General Election ballot for an unprecedented 8th term.

Keith Collier, a quiet and low-key peace officer, is respected not only by local citizens, but by his peers throughout the state.

On July 21, 1987 Sheriff Collier was presented the Tom Tellepsen Award by the Sheriff's Association of Texas. The Award is given each year in honor of the late Tom Tellepsen, a patriotic American known for his strong support of law enforcement. Collier was selected in recognition of his outstanding contributions to the advancement of the criminal justice system.

Collier was first elected Scurry County sheriff in 1965 after having served four years as a deputy sheriff.

A 1950 graduate of Fluvanna High School, Sheriff Collier is also a graduate of Western Texas College with an associate in applied science degree in law enforcement. He is certified with the Texas Commission of Law Enforcement Standards and Education.

During Sheriff Collier's long tenure, Scurry County designed and constructed a modern, 50-bed jail to meet state jail commission standards. The office is equipped with modern communications equipment and data is computerized for efficient operations.

Collier heads a staff of 11 that includes six deputies and five jailers. One of the jailers is also a certified deputy. Collier has long been praised for the spirit of cooperation that his department has maintained with other law enforcement agencies.

It was Keith Collier, after returning from a state criminal justice meeting, who came up with the idea of trying to locate a state prison unit in Snyder as a way of providing additional job opportunities here.

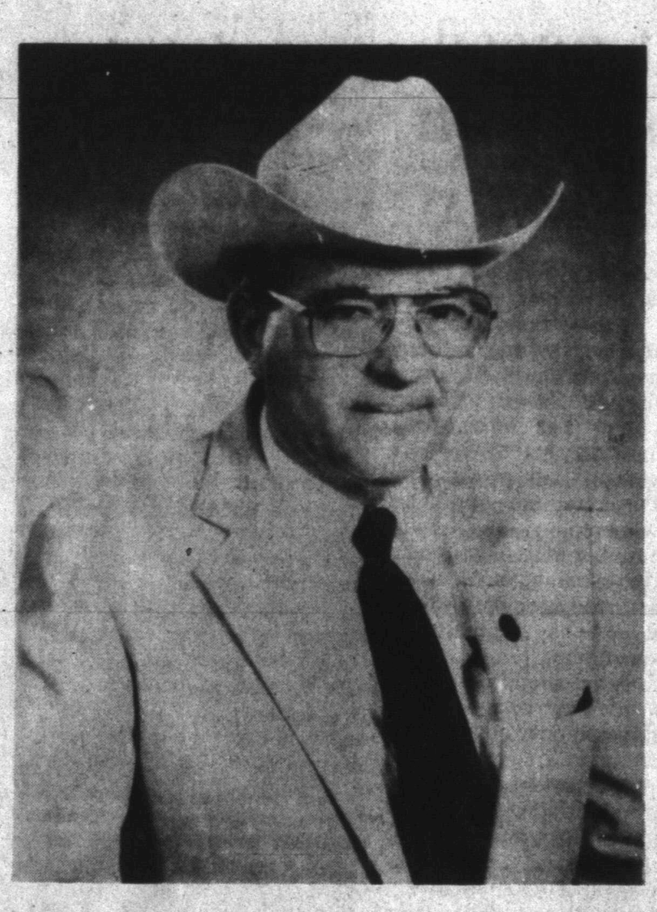
Collier is a member of the chamber's economic development committee which worked successfully to locate the Price Daniel unit in Snyder. It is now his department's responsibility to investigate any criminal offenses occurring inside the prison unit, and that has been accomplished without the addition of any sheriff's department personnel.

In transporting prisoners, Sheriff Keith Collier is normally accompanied by his wife, Janice, saving county taxpayers the salary of another deputy.

Collier has been innovative in earning Scurry County additional revenue by housing out-of-county and out-of-state prisoners for a daily fee in unused space in the county jail.

Collier is a member of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, Goldcoaters, is a director of the Noah Project, a member of the Lions Club and a member of the 37th Street Church of Christ.

He is past-president of the Sheriff's Association of Texas and is a director of the Texas Association of Counties. He is also a past-president of the West Central Texas Law Enforcement Association.



Keith Collier, Scurry County sheriff for the past 28 years, is Snyder National Bank's selection for this month's Community Service Award.

Advocacy groups call for more stringent laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were about 1 million attacks on women by their husbands or lovers last year, a Senate committee said Friday, as 16 women's groups urged more stringent laws to combat domestic violence.

Another 3 million violent domestic crimes — murders, rapes and assaults — went unreported, estimated the Senate Judiciary Committee.

"Women's lives remain controlled by fear, yet Congress has been slow to respond," said Rosemary Dempsey, vice president of the National Organization for Women. "The incidents recorded in this report are a stark reminder of the misogyny behind the statistics."

Ms. Dempsey pointed out a 1988 U.S. surgeon general's report that listed violence as the number one health risk among women. The Senate committee noted a June 1992 report from Surgeon General Antonia Novello, which said violence is the leading cause of injury to women aged 15-44.

The statistics demonstrate the need for the proposed Violence Against Women Act he sponsored, said the committee's chairman, Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del.

The measure awaits action by the full Senate, which is preparing to adjourn.

Biden's legislation calls for allowing women to bring civil cases for attacks committed against them because of their gender; educational programs against domestic violence and stiffer laws against spouse abuse.

He noted the bill could make rape a federal offense, but said that is justifiable if it is proven that the victim was attacked because of gender.

"It is a hate crime. My objective is to give the woman every opportunity under the law to seek redress, not only criminally, but civilly," Biden said. "I want to raise the consciousness of this country that women's civil rights — is in jeopardy."

The committee also looked at 200 cases of assault on women during the first week of last month. Twenty-four of the women either were seeking or already had obtained court orders to protect them from past or potential attackers.

The 200 recent examples were gathered from rape crisis centers, emergency rooms, shelters and police stations.

Among the September cases described were:

—A Texas mother whose husband stabbed her to death and hung himself after she tried to get a protective order and enter a shelter for battered women;

—A 46-year-old woman in New Mexico whose husband beat her and pushed her from a moving car;

—A 28-year-old New Hampshire woman whose husband tried to strangle her and break her leg, then refused to allow her to seek medical attention until the next day.

The report said domestic disputes accounted for 16 percent of all sexual assaults and 20 percent of all aggravated assaults reported in 1991. It counted 1.37 million domestic incidents, and estimated that 83 percent of the victims were women, based on reports that Senate staffers collected from 17 states that tally victims by sex.

There also were two instances where attackers made references to doing damage to their victims' faces, so no one will want them, the report said. One 23-year-old Florida woman was beaten and dragged by her husband, who told her he was "smart enough" not to leave bruises behind as evidence.

Richards appoints Wallace

AUSTIN (AP) — A former Texas Supreme Court justice, James P. Wallace, Friday was sworn in as the newest member of the Texas Railroad Commission.

Wallace replaces Lena Guerrero, who resigned late last month after admitting she falsely claimed a college degree for 12 years.

Wallace, 64, was appointed by Gov. Ann Richards, who said the Austin lawyer would serve out the final three months of the current term. The seat is up for election Nov. 3.

"He has agreed to serve this very brief period at considerable sacrifice to himself and his family for the sake of continuity on the commission," Richards said.

"I assure you I will give it my utmost effort," Wallace said. Asked if he was interested in serving longer, Wallace said quickly: "No. A definite, absolute, unqualified no."

Ms. Guerrero's resignation had left only two people on the three-member panel that regulates oil, gas and transportation in the state.

In joining that panel, Wallace also serves on the Texas High-Speed Rail Authority, which oversees the 200 mph "bullet" train proposed to link Dallas, Houston and San Antonio.

Richards noted that a key decision must be made by that authority by Dec. 31 — whether to extend the deadline for the train's private builders to raise $170 million.

The governor said that even though the Railroad Commission post would have been vacant only three months, she considered it important to make an appointment. She said there were no problems between the other commissioners, Bob Krueger and Jim Nugent.

"It just seemed to me that for a quarter of the year, that position should not be open," Richards said. "I spent a lot of time finding someone who had some acquaintance with oil and gas, who was judicial in temperament, and who had no ties to any of the industry that would be regulated."

A native of Sidon, Ark., Wallace is a graduate of the University of Arkansas and attended law school there and at the University of Houston.

IRAQ'S 32nd PARALLEL

The United States and its allies established a "no-fly zone" in Iraq, effective Aug. 27 south of the 32nd parallel, to protect the 18-month Shiite Muslim insurgency from Saddam Hussein's air power.

According to U.S. officials, under the U.N. Security Council resolution ending the Gulf War in 1991, the allies have the power to limit the flying of Iraqi military aircraft in any part or all of Iraq to protect Iraqi citizens from government repression. Under this provision, a no-fly zone was established in northern Iraq, above the 36th parallel, to protect Kurdish insurgents. The no-fly zone below the 32nd parallel covers about one-quarter of the country.

Any Iraqi military aircraft flying in a no-fly zone are subject to being shot down.

About 55 percent of Iraq's 17.5 million people are Shiite Muslims compared to 40 percent that are Sunni Muslims. However, only about 15 percent of Sunnis are Sunni Arabs, among them Saddam Hussein and the nation's ruling elite. The remaining Sunnis are Kurds. Although the Shiites are the majority, all power in Iraq is in the hands of the Sunni Arabs.

After the end of the Gulf War, Shiite rebels rose up against Saddam with considerable help from Shiite-dominated Iran. But Saddam responded swiftly with military force, and the insurgents retreated to huge marshes where Iraqi tanks cannot reach them.

The United States and its allies — principally Britain and France — hope, with air attacks eliminated, the insurgents will be able to prevail and Saddam's government will be overthrown. President Bush stated that the allies have no intention of partitioning Iraq into thirds.

Iraq, meanwhile, has called for an independent group of "wise men" made up of representatives of mostly neighboring countries to report on conditions in southern Iraq.

Antibiotics help prevent renal failure

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I suffer from chronic pyelonephritis, and my doctor has indicated that if I have another attack I will be on dialysis. What can I do to prevent this from happening? Is there any way I can keep my disease in check and avoid what appears to be the inevitable?

DEAR READER: Pyelonephritis is a serious, bacterial kidney infection that, if untreated, can lead to renal failure.

The two most important issues in pyelonephritis are the infection and mechanical obstruction, which prevents urine from draining out of the diseased kidney. Before antibiotics can eradicate the infection, any blockages must be removed. Such blockages include scar tissue and kidney stones.

I don't see how you can prevent your pyelonephritis from progressing, providing you follow your doctor's orders. Rather, it's up to HIM to prevent future problems by 1.) making sure, by X-raying your kidneys, that they are free of obstructions and 2.) prescribing appropriate antibiotics to rid your urinary tract of bacteria.

I believe you should be examined by a urologist and, if you haven't already, a nephrologist. Working together, these two specialists (one surgical, the other medical) should be able to pinpoint your problem and offer treatment. In my opinion, your doctor frightened you unnecessarily.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Kidney Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 28-year-old son has seizure-like nightmares that have been going on for four years. He thrashes violently and is impossible to wake up, yet doesn't remember the dreams on awakening. He's been to doctors, counselors and has tried tranquilizers. Nothing works and we are frustrated. Any suggestions?

DEAR READER: This is a tough one. Without sounding too Freudian, I suggest your son see a psychiatrist because these nightmares may represent some sort of major, unresolved conflict. Perhaps through therapy the specialist could help uncover the cause of these dreams.

PETER. GOTT, M.D.

Lopez brings touch medicine to ailing General Motors, Inc.

WARREN, Mich. (AP) — The piercing hazel eyes, frequent hand gestures and earnest voice are just the outward signs of J. Ignacio Lopez de Arriortua's resolve to change the way General Motors Corp. does business.

His mission is to make GM and its hundreds of suppliers competitive. The help isn't always welcomed. But he apparently is on a long leash at GM, itself under a directors' mandate to quickly return to profitability.

One of new GM President Jack Smith's early actions was importing Lopez to head GM's global parts-purchasing operation. Lopez, a 51-year-old engineering PhD. from Spain who headed purchasing for GM-Europe, had made that part of the company one of its most profitable.

But it is a bigger challenge to bring lean methods to the homeland of the behemoth automaker that for decades ignored the competition or outspent it.

A master of metaphor who speaks English with a thick Basque accent, Lopez compares U.S. automakers to rabbits discussing the barking of oncoming dogs. As the rabbits argue over the dogs' breed, the canines devour them.

He calls the battle for the American automobile industry the third industrial revolution, and the losers will become second-class citizens in second-class nations.

"We must act. We must win. We cannot afford to lose," Lopez told a manufacturing forum in Saginaw, Mich., in August.

Lopez has reformed more than 100 supplier plants since coming to the United States in May. He plans to reform 1,160 more through 1993.

Some automotive industry analysts saw Lopez's function as key to GM's turnaround of North American operations, which lost $12 billion in 1990-91. Those operations still are losing hundreds of millions of dollars, but the hemorrhage is slowing.

Strengthening GM's worldwide purchasing muscle represents threat and promise to its U.S. suppliers. Playing along with the automaker opens more contract opportunities. Obstinance can mean lost GM work.

"If there is creativity, they will not lose," Lopez says.

Lopez has created teams of efficiency experts who have descended on suppliers, rearranged equipment, rejiggered material flow and changed worker responsibilities. In many cases, assembly lines are replaced by worker groups that get tasks done faster with fewer people.

For example, General Safety Corp., a seat-belt systems maker, was an early target of a Lopez efficiency team. Today, two of its eight assembly lines sit idle, their functions superfluous.

"The concepts are really founded in common sense," said General Safety President Alfred Fisher III, grandson of GM cofounder Alfred Fisher. "It is a disciplined process that makes you look at your whole business."

Lopez claims double-digit productivity gains from his reforms. If a supplier is more efficient, Lopez reasons, it will charge GM less.

He also advocates a different way of setting prices. Instead of adding the costs of material, overhead, labor and profit to calculate a price, he first sets the price the customer will pay, then adjusts the rest accordingly.

"Here we have only one ruler, the customer," Lopez says.

The changes have been hard for some to take. About 25 percent of GM's contracts have changed hands, Lopez said, refusing to be more specific.

"Who is not happy with us?" Lopez asks. "The losers, the people that are part of the problem and not part of the solution."

Future GM earnings reports will show whether Lopez is achieving his savings goals, reported by the trade journal Automotive News to be $100 million a week.

Lopez's discipline on the job parallels his personal life. He follows a strict diet that prohibits mixing proteins and carbohydrates.

NRC seeks $130,000 in fines against Palo Verde operator

PHOENIX (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has proposed $130,000 in fines against the Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station's operator for allegedly discriminating against two female employees who complained about safety problems at the $9.2 billion triple-reactor.

Arizona Public Service Co., which operates the plant for a consortium of utility companies in states including Texas, has appealed to the secretary of labor.

The NRC's regional office in Walnut Creek, Calif., said the agency has proposed the fines in the cases of Sarah C. Thomas and Linda E. Mitchell, who alleged discrimination in separate complaints to the Labor Department.

In April 1989, an administrative law judge ruled that Ms. Thomas, an engineering technician who complained about valve testing and a computer system, was wrongfully transferred and denied promotion by her supervisor.

Last July, a judge ruled that Ms. Mitchell, who had worked at Palo Verde since 1985 as an electrical engineer, was subjected to harassment and discrimination after raising concerns about emergency lighting.

The NRC announced Friday that it has proposed a $50,000 fine in Ms. Thomas' case and an $80,000 fine in Ms. Mitchell's case.

"It's a little small and a little late," Ms. Thomas said. "I also don't think the fines are nearly enough to get the attention of APS as to the seriousness of this problem. The harassment against me is ongoing. It hasn't stopped."

"I have four more cases to go to court — three more job downgrades and one reprimand," Ms. Mitchell said. "The retaliation is still going on. I think the fines are long overdue."

APS lawyers did not immediately return telephone calls Friday seeking comment on the proposed sanctions.

The NRC said APS doesn't have to pay the proposed fines until 30 days after the labor secretary decides the appeals.

However, the NRC said Palo Verde's management has 30 days from Friday to assess the extent to which employees might harbor reservations about raising safety concerns and take steps to minimize or eliminate the problem.

Last month, NRC inspectors interviewed a cross-section of Palo Verde's 3,000-member workforce to check out reports that plant managers were discouraging safety complaints from workers.

Astro-graphs By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Oct. 4, 1992

Two old endeavors might be rejuvenated in the year ahead, owing to an unusual chain of events that could make them timely and profitable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You should be a more active participant in a venture you're involved in with others. Don't leave the management of this affair entirely up to them. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Libra's Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A situation that has had a restrictive effect upon you should begin to diminish today. This will help elevate something about which you've been worried.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions in general look rather hopeful for you today, provided you deal with matters in a practical and responsible fashion. Be duty-conscious.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A significant but difficult objective can be achieved today — if you make it a priority issue. It pertains to your status and material well-being.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You might make some revisions at this time involving your blueprint for the future. The unworkable will be discarded and replaced by lessons you've learned from experience.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A matter you were once hopeful of should not be relinquished, even though it hasn't given you much to cheer about lately. Changes are in the offing that could make you smile again.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Upon review, a situation you've been studying looks like it can be resolved the way you had always anticipated. It shouldn't be necessary to alter a past decision which you feel strongly about.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) New endeavors you undertake at this time should be successful, provided you rely on your experience for guidance. Combine the old with the new.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A permanent and mutually-beneficial friendship can be established at this time with someone you presently have a casual relationship with. This individual will become more prominent in your life.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A change might be in the offing today that could have a favorable effect, not only on you, but on the entire family. It's the result of an idea you implemented.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You might enter into a partnership that could have far-reaching and beneficial effects. The foundation for the alliance will be established on mutual needs.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It behooves you to take positive measures at this time in regard to things that could provide you with more material security. Ways can be found to gratify your efforts.

Your Birthday

Oct. 5, 1992

Prudent management of your material affairs is essential in the year ahead. If you utilize sensible methods, a slow but sure growth pattern is indicated.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unbecoming conduct on the playing field today could get you labeled as a poor sport. If you find yourself behind, act as graciously as you would if you were ahead. Major changes are ahead for Libra in the coming year. Send for Libra's Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You can accomplish what you set out to do today, provided you aren't contemplating taking any easy outs. Important achievements must be earned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Although you might be tempted to do the opposite, it's best you don't speak about others today unless you have something nice to say.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Beware of a tendency toward being stingy today with your possessions, especially when dealing with individuals who've treated you generously.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You are noted for your objectivity and fairness, but today you might surprise those you're involved with by keeping these qualities subdued.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Unfortunately, you might find it difficult to discuss your feelings today with someone who is sincerely interested in your welfare and could help if only you could express your needs.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's important today that you do not put too much stock in the opinions of negative friends. There's a strong possibility they could convince you that you can't do something you really can.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you make an effort to smile at your own mistakes today, others will laugh with you, not at you. Don't take yourself too seriously.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be selective regarding the topics you choose to discuss with friends today. They might not be interested in hearing views that diametrically oppose theirs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do not attempt to pry information today from someone who is reluctant to discuss matters of a personal nature. In due time, this individual might decide to tell you more.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Instead of focusing on the sunny side of life, as you usually do, you might dwell on the negative aspects of developments today. And this most certainly will make things worse.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone may impose on you today and ask you to help with something you'd rather not do. Be forthright in your refusal rather than resentful in your consent.

Journey to Eternity (23)

GOD'S PLAN FOR MAN TODAY

By Homer Anderson

By placing scriptures side by side, we soon see the beautiful simplicity of when the blood of Christ cleanses us from our sins.

Matthew 26:28
For this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins.

Revelation 1:5
Him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood.

Hebrews 9:14
How much more shall the blood of Christ purge your conscience.

Acts 2:38
Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins.

Acts 22:16
Arise and be baptized, and wash away thy sins.

1 Peter 3:21
Baptism doth also now save us. Not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God.

Here we see that baptism is when we come in contact with the blood of Christ. As the Apostle Paul explained, "Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life" (Romans 6:3-4). Are you washed in the blood of the Lamb?" All who will journey in eternity with Jesus will be!

EPA switch: MERCO need not apply for any federal permit

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency gave MERCO Joint Venture its blessing Friday to spread sludge on a West Texas ranch and said it no longer needs a federal permit.

The announcement angered state Attorney General Dan Morales and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen who have demanded the company go through the federal permitting process, which requires a public hearing.

In a letter Friday to MERCO's attorney Jon Masters, the EPA said there is "no significant possibility that public health or the environment will suffer adverse effects from toxic pollutants" in the sludge.

"We're very pleased and it was a decision that we had anticipated all along," said Marc Sybert, MERCO spokeswoman in El Paso.

The letter, written by EPA Region 6 administrator Buck Wynne, outlined analyses done by the EPA on the sludge. The EPA said its calculations show MERCO could apply sludge for 37.9 years before copper would pose a potential risk to public health and the environment.

It also said zinc would not be a problem for 90.5 years and lead for 496 years. The numbers all were based on the highest reported concentrations of the metals found in sludge taken from MERCO's supplier plants.

The letter did not include an analysis for cadmium, considered the most dangerous pollutant in sludge. The EPA used a New York City Sludge Quality Report from May 1990 to April 1991 for its analysis. During that period copper levels in sludge did not meet New York's own standards.

"The sludge is not toxic," said Roger Meacham, EPA Region 6 spokesman. "It's clean sludge and the state is doing a good job of regulating the project ... therefore we see no reason to have duplicate regulations and permitting."

Morales said the decision means the EPA has "arbitrarily decided not only to destroy our air, water and countryside, but also to destroy the heritage of Texas by failing to protect the state's archaeological sites."

Morales has sued MERCO and the EPA, accusing the environmental agency of not assessing the sludge's environmental risks before allowing it to be spread. The Texas Historical Commission joined the suit alleging the EPA violated the National Historic Preservation Act by not protecting archaeological sites on the ranch.

The lawsuit is scheduled to go to trial Nov. 2 in Pecos.

Bentsen demanded an explanation why West Texans have not had a chance to voice their views.

Taxpayer lawyer loses again

AUSTIN (AP) — A state judge Friday rejected an effort to stop the county education district tax, which the Texas Supreme Court has said is unconstitutional but may be used this school year anyway.

"I have my marching orders ... The Supreme Court is my boss," State District Judge F. Scott McCown said in ruling against the challenge by taxpayer lawyer Jim Keahey.

The Texas Supreme Court in January said the county education district (CED) tax violates the state constitution. But the court gave lawmakers until June 1, 1993, to come up with a new plan, leaving the current tax in place until then.

The CED system was designed to shift millions of dollars in local property tax revenue from wealthier to poorer school districts within the 188 new taxing districts drawn largely along county lines. It was passed in response to a Supreme Court order to equalize school funding.

Keahey indicated he may be ready to give up his battle, in which he has argued that continued collection of the tax violates taxpayers' due process rights.

Families file reorganization plan

DALLAS (AP) — The former chief executive and president of Zale Corp. say their competing bankruptcy reorganization plan for the nation's largest jewelry retailer is better for creditors than the current management plan.

Donald Zale and Bruce Lipshy, the former Zale CEO and president, respectively, on Thursday filed a plan that calls for injecting $110 million in new capital into the company. Zale earlier this month lost exclusive control of its Chapter 11 case.

Zale and Lipshy said their proposal gives creditors in the reorganization proceeding better recovery value than the current plan.

"In addition to injecting $110 million in new capital into the company, an amount which is greater than any other plans filed to date, our plan gives Zale what it badly needs — experienced, hands-on managers who understand jewelry retailing and the U.S. markets," Zale and Lipshy said.

An investor group composed of the Zale-Lipshy families and others would contribute $30 million of the amount, with Swarovski International Holding AG of Switzerland contributing the balance of $80 million.

Earlier this month, creditors for Gordon Jewelry Corp., a Zale subsidiary, said they would drop their proposal to split up the company in favor of the Zale plan, which would give them a 17 percent stake in the reorganized company.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Steven A. Felsenthal terminated Zale's exclusivity period on Sept. 15, allowing the Zale-Lipshy plan to be filed with the court.

"With the company currently performing below last year's levels, the situation at Zale clearly has continued to deteriorate," said Zale and Lipshy in a prepared statement.

Anderson resigns; endorses Clinton

MYSTIC, Conn. (AP) — Former hostage Terry Anderson announced Friday he was resigning from The Associated Press and endorsing Democrat Bill Clinton for president. Running for office himself is "an option," he said.

Anderson was freed last Dec. 4 after almost seven years as a hostage of Muslim extremists in Lebanon.

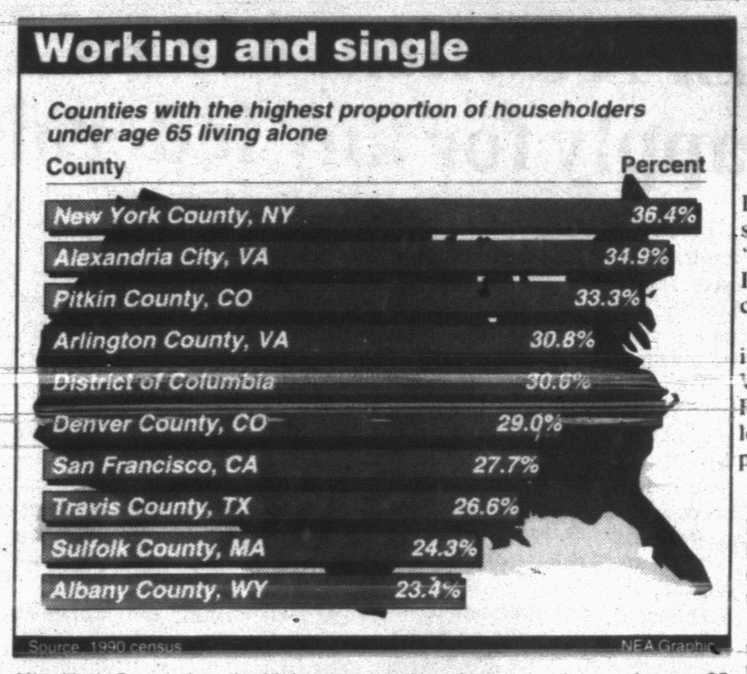
He has been on a leave of absence from the AP, and spoke today before some 200 newspaper executives at a meeting of the New England Newspaper Association.

"I think he has great ideas," he said of Clinton, "and I think it's time for some of these fresh ideas." He did not say whether he would campaign for Clinton.

Anderson, 44, was asked by a meeting participant whether he might enter politics himself.

"It's an option and a possibility, and I've got a year to make up my mind," he replied.

Anderson said he was grateful for the AP's support during and after his captivity.



New York County has the highest proportion of householders under age 65 living alone — over 36 percent. In two counties in Virginia — Alexandria and Arlington — over 30 percent of householders live alone.

Bush: 'wait and see' on Perot; disapproves of family criticism

HOUSTON (AP) — President Bush told a Houston television station Friday that he is taking a "wait and see" attitude about Dallas businessman Ross Perot's campaign.

In one of 15 private, one-on-one interviews Bush permitted at the White House early Friday, he told Fran Fawcett of KRIV-TV that he looks forward to Perot joining the presidential debates.

Asked what affect Perot's campaign would have on Bush's strategy, the president said, "We don't know. So we say, 'The water's fine. Come on in.'

"(I want to) discount the idea that it's purely personal, but we'll have a chance to exchange ideas when we get into the debates," Bush said. "I expect he would join the debates. And then he has to do what everybody else does: talk about his plans for education or anti-crime legislation or North American Free Trade Agreement or world peace."

Bush said he did not know whether Perot would be a spoiler in the race.

"We'll have to wait and see. I think a lot of people haven't made up their mind this year yet. I'm sure of it. I have to accept that," Bush said.

As for the debates, the president reiterated his interest in a four-person panel of moderators rather than a single-moderator-styled forum.

"No matter how somebody tries, most of the people that are talked about for moderators are out giving speeches one side or the other behind the scenes," Bush said. "I just think you have a better shake for fairness with four different people."

Bush told KRIV he planned to be in Houston on election night, saying it has become "kind of a tradition." Bush declares Houston as his hometown and keeps a hotel room at the Houstonian Hotel as his official residence.

Asked what message he would give Houstonians to encourage them to vote him into office for four more years, Bush said simply: "I think I have the best agenda for renewing America.... I believe that we've got the best program for moving this country forward."

Bush said stories critical of his family upset him when family members had not chosen the political limelight.

"I hate it when people go after my family," Bush said, noting a recent article about Barbara Bush that quoted "somebody she carpooled with 20 years — 25 years ago. It was absolutely absurd."

But, he said, "if Barbara gets out pushing one piece of legislation, then I think she's injected herself into the political process and I think it would be fair game" for media scrutiny.

Yeutter meets with ASCS staff

LUBBOCK — Clayton Yeutter, counselor to the president of domestic policy, met with local employees of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service and agriculture leaders from across Texas recently

Yeutter coordinates all domestic policy activities for the president through the operations of a new Policy Coordinating Group (PCG) The PCG is the domestic equivalent of the National Security Council. Prior to coming to the PCG, Yeutter served as Secretary of Agriculture.

While at the Agriculture department he was actively involved in farm legislation and in negotiations to open export markets for American farm products throughout the world.

Secretary Yeutter met with the group at the Texas State Conference of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Lubbock. The conference was designed to train local employees in program administration and to improve the effectiveness of the farmer-elected County Committee System.

Jerry D. Harris, chairman of the Texas State ASC Committee, said that Yeutter has consistently worked to expand the role of U.S. Agriculture in the world.

Domestic policy involves agriculture in every way. "Secretary Yeutter's visit with ASCS committees and employees demonstrates the place farm programs have in our domestic policy," Harris said.

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service is the United States Department of Agriculture agency that administers farm programs passed by Congress. This includes programs that effect many local farmers and ranchers.

Harris said that this meeting brought together local agriculture leaders and administration policy makers for training and evaluation of the effectiveness of current programs. The conference helped find ways to improve the service provided through policy decisions and improve the knowledge of ASCS employees.

STAFF MEETS—Scurry County ASCS employees met with Clayton Yeutter, counselor to the president for domestic policy, in Lubbock recently. Financial Focus

There is no magic formula for selecting winning stocks or stock mutual funds, but if you asked the professionals, the following dos and don'ts would probably be among their recommendations.

DON'T be a trader. Traders attempt to take advantage of the market's ups and downs rather than buying a company's stock for its long-term value and growth potential. In-and-out brokerage commissions can be expensive, particularly when added to the taxes on any profits.

DO have patience. Most professional money managers agree that stocks should be bought with the intention of holding them for at least five years. It takes time for some companies to mature or for the stock market to recognize their value.

DON'T invest only in common stocks. Keep cash available to take advantage of buying opportunities and to generate income during periods of non-growth.

DO buy stocks whose price-to-earnings ratios (PEs) are at a discount to the projected earnings growth of the industries. If the average PE in an industry is 20, and the stock you are considering sells at 15 times its current earnings and has a good possibility for future growth, it could be a good one to own. Research firms like Standard & Poor's, Moody's and Value Line provide this information.

DON'T hold on to the common stock of a company that is not developing as you had anticipated. If the company hits a snag and earnings are adversely affected, sell.

DO discipline yourself to sell stocks when they reach a predetermined price you have set based on that company's earnings and growth. If the price rises to a level at which you would no longer buy the stock, that's probably a good time to sell it.

There are periods when extraordinary times and events create market conditions that may tempt investors to stray from their proven strategies. It is times like these, however, when successful investors hold firm to the important aspects of successful investing.

Michigan's mental health chief became fugitive briefly Friday

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's mental health chief became a fugitive briefly Friday in a dispute with a judge over cuts to the state's main psychiatric research center.

Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Hathaway signed a warrant for James Haveman's arrest when he failed to appear in court and promise to keep open Detroit's Lafayette Clinic.

But late Friday, the Michigan Court of Appeals blocked the warrant, relieving Haveman of the threat of imminent arrest.

Haveman wasn't immediately available for comment. Earlier in the day, his whereabouts were kept secret.

"Think about it. If there was a warrant out for your arrest, would you come in to work?" said Tom DeLoach, spokesman for the Michigan Department of Mental Health.

The showdown focuses on cuts to the 89-bed clinic, which accepts difficult cases from throughout Michigan.

Gov. John Engler cut the clinic's $17.5 million allocation for this fiscal year, which began Thursday. Haveman wants to close three of five wards and transfer its research to nearby Wayne State University.

The clinic remained open Friday on a reduced scale.

Hathaway said he wanted Haveman to assure the clinic would be kept open 60 more days. But there's only enough money to keep it open another month, DeLoach said.

Last week, the Democrat-controlled House restored state aid to the clinic. The Republican-run Senate hasn't acted.

Rusty Hills, spokesman for the Republican governor, said the governor asked Haveman to stay in the state capital of Lansing on Friday to wait for the Court of Appeals to act.

"There's constitutional law and there's Hathaway law," he said. "We have a plan for every patient at Lafayette Clinic. This is not about patients or mental health. This is about union bosses and bureaucrats."

Veep candidate called strong-willed

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Ross Perot's running mate, retired Vice Adm. James Stockdale, is remembered as a strong-willed leader whose vision for The Citadel conflicted with the military school's governing board during his 11 months as college president.

"During the year, he had an agenda for the college which did not necessarily match that of the Board of Visitors," said retired Army Maj. Gen. James Grimsley Jr., who succeeded Stockdale in 1980.

Grimsley said he respects Stockdale, who spent 71/2 years as a prisoner of war in Vietnam. But the determination that saw Stockdale through as a POW may have hurt his ability to govern the military college, Grimsley said.

"He's the least-likely person to be a politician. I think he would consider that a compliment. I think the old saw is that politics is the art of compromise. I think compromise, unless it bends his way, is not in his makeup," Grimsley said.

After Stockdale arrived in the fall of 1979 he commissioned a consulting firm to develop a plan to streamline the administration.

He drafted his own plan based on the report. But the following summer the Board of Visitors rejected the changes. Stockdale then resigned.

Two months earlier, Grimsley himself had resigned as vice president for administration and finance because of differences with Stockdale. Grimsley was later hired as president and served until 1989.

Stockdale also brought changes to the plebe system, making the freshmen year less-strenuous. There was some opposition and the board refused to eliminate the close-cropped haircuts and shorten the plebe year.

William Prioleau of Columbia, board chairman at the time and still a board member, was on a fishing trip Friday and couldn't be reached for comment. But he has said there was no animosity over Stockdale leaving.

The House of Representatives began television broadcasts in 1979 of its day-to-day business.

Congress forwards to Bush package with Texas park

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has forwarded to President Bush's desk a $12 billion interior appropriations package that includes almost $17 million for Texas national parks and refuges.

The money bill contains $5 million to add 6,300 acres to the Lower Rio Grande Valley National Wildlife Refuge. The refuge already has 54,000 acres and provides habitat for a variety of rare birds, animals and plants, including critical nesting grounds for the white-winged dove.

Also included is $4.5 million requested by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, for the Lyndon B. Johnson National Park. The bulk, $3.5 million, is to continue construction of a visitors center near Johnson's boyhood home in Johnson City. Tour buses will be purchased with $1 million.

Lawmakers earmarked $3.2 million to continue building a visitors center for the San Antonio Missions National Historic Park.

Congress provided $2 million to purchase 2,500 acres for the Balcones Canyonlands National Wildlife Refuge, west of Austin. The goal is to create a 41,000-acre refuge, said Bentsen.

Defense holds in second half...

Snyder Tigers outscore Demons, 49-38

DUMAS — With 866 yards of offense and 87 points, Snyder and Dumas set off more fireworks than fans normally see on a 4th of July weekend here Friday.

In the end it was the Tigers who gathered up all the matches to outlast the Demons 49-38.

The contest was the final non-district ballgame for the Tigers and sends them into 2-4A loop play next week with a 4-1 record.

"It was a weird game," said Snyder Coach David Baugh. "I haven't been involved in a game like that since I coached Iowa Park in the playoffs. But we did what we had to do."

Trailing 32-24 at halftime, Snyder fans had to wonder whether the normally solid Tiger defense had been left some 285 miles back down the road. But a couple of third-quarter interceptions dampened Dumas' fireworks, while the Tiger offense never let up.

In fact, Snyder scored its first second-half touchdown without putting the offensive on the field. After stopping Dumas' first possession of the half, Snyder scored when Baretta Collins returned a Demon punt 68 yards. Quarterback Matt Cave then located a wide open Jason Greene in the back of the end zone for a two-point conversion with 8:08 to go in the quarter, tying the game at 32-all.

As they had all first half, however, the Demons came right back, moving from their own 21 to the Snyder 47 in just five plays. From there, Chris Carlile one-handed a Paul Legg pass at the 25, then ran on in for the Demon touchdown.

James Charles' PAT kick was blocked by Ben Wilson, and the Demons held a 38-32 advantage.

The six points were all Dumas would score in the second half, though.

A good runback by Greene on the ensuing kickoff set Snyder up at its own 32 yard line. From there, fullback Gilbert Orosco carried twice for 21 yards and John Clinkinbeard ran once for a 4-yard pickup. Cave then hit Greene on a 15-yard pass. Though Snyder eventually reached the 15, the drive stalled on a couple of incomplete passes.

Parker came in to spike a 33-yard field goal through the uprights with 2:24 left, cutting Dumas' lead to just 38-35.

Three plays later, Snyder took command of the scoreboard. Dumas' first effort from scrimmage was a 1-yard effort by hard-running tailback Paul Smith. On the next play, however, Clinkinbeard intercepted Legg, setting Snyder up at the Demon 26.

From there, it took just one play as Tony Hernandez broke free for the distance. Parker put up the PAT, and Snyder led 42-38.

Snyder's final touchdown was set up by a second interception, this one by Collins just before the end of the third period. Collins' pickoff left Snyder at its own 49-yard line and Orosco bulled inside Demon territory on a 10-yard gain just as the quarter came to a close.

Six plays later, Orosco banged in from the 2. Parker's PAT kick was good for the 49-38 win.

Orosco picked up 40 yards on the drive, part of his 162 yards on 20 carries for the night.

Dumas got the ball back two more times in the contest and moved inside Snyder territory, but never threatened again.

The Demons' offensive output was in sharp contrast to the first half, fueled by a flashy running Smith. The tailback rambled for 236 yards and four touchdowns on 29 carries. He also threw for one other touchdown.

Snyder opened the scoring with 9:24 left in the first quarter on a Cave-to-Collins hookup that went for 76 yards. Parker got the kick-after.

Dumas struck with 4:48 to go in the period on a 2-yard jaunt by Smith. Armando Venzor's PAT try was blocked by Wilson.

Snyder came back on a 29-yard strike from Cave to Wilson. Parker's kick made it Tigers 14, Demons 6.

Dumas closed out the first-quarter scoring on another 2-yard run by Smith. A pass for the conversion was good but a penalty wiped it out and the Demons failed on a second attempt.

Dumas took the lead, though, with 10:58 to play in the half as Smith found Craig Dunham on a 42-yard halfback pass. A conversion toss from Legg to Dunham put Dumas up 20-14.

Snyder went back in front just over a minute later when Orosco broke a couple of tackles and scampered 46 yards to score. Parker again added the PAT.

The Tigers' lead was short-lived, however. Twenty-six seconds after Snyder had scored, Smith was in the end zone again. This time he broke free on a 79-yard sprint to put Dumas up 26-21. A PAT pass for two points failed.

A 1-yard run by Smith with 5:10 left in the half gave Dumas a 32-21 advantage. Snyder was able to narrow the gap with 2:38 left on a 39-yard field goal from Parker. The halftime score stood at Dumas 32, Snyder 24.

Parker was two-of-three on 3-pointers for the night and aced all five PAT kicks. His only miss was on a 54-yard effort which came up short with just one second left in the first half.

Snyder took the win despite some quick adjustments late in the week when wingback-safety-punter Michael Fields unexpectedly moved to Gatesville. Clinkinbeard took over at wingback and safety, while Greene handled the punting.

"The guys that filled in for him did a good job, especially being thrown in at the last minute," said Baugh. "We're real pleased to be heading into district play 4-1."

Snyder opens 2-4A play by entertaining Levelland at Tiger Stadium, 7:30 p.m. Friday.

LOTS OF OFFENSE —Both teams displayed their offensive weapons Friday night, but the Tiger defense adjusted in the second half to allow the host Dumas Demons only six points. Here, Tiger quarterback Matt Cave passes while getting protection from fullback Wayland Harrison (30). Cave completed four of nine attempts for 170 yards and two TDs as the Tigers spoiled Dumas' homecoming, 49-38. (SDN Staff Photo)

Hermleigh Cards run out of time

GRADY — Hermleigh's Cardinals needed a little more time on the clock or better luck in the kicking game. They got neither and fell to the Grady Wildcats here Friday, 26-24.

Trailing 26-12 in the fourth quarter, Hermleigh rallied on two touchdowns to make it close. The Cardinals appeared ready to take the lead, but time ran out as they reached the Grady 25-yard line.

The defeat drops the Cardinals to 2-3 on the season as they prepare to meet Borden County in the District 6A six-man opener for both teams on Oct. 9.

Grady's Tommy Hewtty broke open on a 41-yard scoring jaunt to get things started with 1:14 left in the first quarter. The PAT failed.

Hermleigh answered early in the second quarter when Chris Valasco punched over from a yard out. Hermleigh also missed the PAT, leaving the score knotted 6-6 at halftime.

Coach Mark Minor's Cardinals enjoyed a brief lead in the second half as William Gray scored on a 1-yard run. The PAT was no good.

Grady came back with three straight scores, however. The Wildcats scored on a 36-yard pass from Timmy Garza to J.C. Odom, a 2-yard run by Manuel Aguirre and a 1-yard run by Aguirre.

The big difference was a 2-point conversion kick by Scott Peel following Garza's completion. It was the only conversion of the ballgame, and proved to be the winning margin for Grady.

Hermleigh answered with 5:41 left in the fourth quarter when Valasco grabbed a blocked punt and ran it 35 yards to score. Valasco also knocked in a 1-yard scoring plunge with 2:13 remaining.

Hermleigh out-rushed the Wildcats 208 yards to 199. The Cardinals passed for 58 yards while the hosts managed 74.

Penalties hurt the Cards, who were hit with 60 yards worth. Grady picked up 30 yards in infractions.

Individually, Valasco ran for 80 yards and three touchdowns, and had 15 unassisted and seven assisted tackles.

B.C. Coyotes rip Klondike by 64-18

GAIL — Borden County's Coyotes ran all over Klondike here Friday, marking up a 64-18 homecoming win that ended with the 45-point rule.

"That's two weeks in a row we played a near flawless game. We can't ask for any better than that," said Coach Bobby Avery, whose team jumps to 4-1 with the victory.

The Coyotes stay at home again next Friday, Oct. 9, to entertain Hermleigh for the District 6-A six-man opener.

Borden County jumped out to a 24-0 lead on Clint Wills runs of 31, 35 and 1 yard and three conversion kicks by Richard Buchanan.

Klondike got on the scoreboard late in the first quarter when Tanner Etheredge took a kickoff and raced 75 yards for the touchdown. The kick-after failed.

But Wills broke loose on a 56-yard scamper less than a minute later, and with Buchanan's fourth PAT, the Coyotes led 32-6.

The scoring didn't stop in the next two quarters. First, Borden County's Kirk Jones bolted free on a 30-yard run. Then, Chris Riggins found Etheredge on a 25-yard Klondike scoring toss.

In pinball-like fashion, the Coyotes didn't let up. Their scoring was broken only momentarily by a 47-yard run from Klondike's Mike Lee.

Meanwhile, Jones scored on a 41-yard run, Wills ran in from 53 yards away and Buchanan found J.J. Kincheloe on a 12-yard pitch-and-catch.

Buchanan tacked up two more PATs and hit a 23-yard field goal to wrap up the scoring.

The Buchanan-to-Kincheloe pass with 59 seconds left in the third quarter ended the game on the 45-point rule.

Wills had eight carries for 183 yards and five touchdowns while Jones ran seven times for 89 yards and two TDs.

Plans fast tempo...

New Dusters' coach brings winning ways

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

First year Western Texas College women's basketball coach Ron Jones brings a personal winning tradition and plans for an upbeat brand of basketball he hopes will excite local fans.

"Our whole offensive philosophy is to create as fast a tempo as we can," he said. "For several reasons. First of all, I think, if we're going to be successful, we're going to have to find a way to compete with the big people. We have to do something they can't control. So, we're going to try to increase the tempo."

Jones says that he wants about 90 shots a game out of his team.

"We're going to try to get one of two shots most of the time. We'll try to get approximately 30 3-point shots a game and 60 shots a game right inside.

"We'll try to spread the defense to cover the whole floor. A lot of defenses want to cover the paint. Our goal is to make them cover the floor."

Jones' defense figures to be as fast-paced as his offense in the upcoming season.

"Our base defense will be a full-court man-to-man. We'll run several variations off that. Most of them will call for man-to-man coverage, but at times, we'll be in a zone.

"We'll be switching defenses during the possession part of the time," he reported. "That's all designed to confuse the opponents.

"There'll be keys we have that, according to what the offense does, will change our defense. Hopefully, that will give the offense some trouble."

An up-tempo offense and full-court defensive pressure will call for a lot of players.

"That's something I like to do," coach Jones said, referring to using his bench. "We're going to use a lot of people. What we hope to do by picking up the tempo is find three or four minutes in the first half where we get a little bit of a run, then three or four minutes in the second half where we get a little bit of a run, hopefully, to get control of the game."

Jones' Lady Dusters for 1992-93 include just three returning sophomores and 12 freshmen.

Coming back from last season, retired coach Kelly Chadwick's final year at the helm at WTC, are 5-4 point guard Mary Ann Isom, 5-10 guard Allison Garcia and 5-11 post-forward Andrea Kearney.

"Mary Ann will be looked to for leadership and fun," Jones said. "Isom enjoys playing the game and has good skills."

The Midland Lee graduate was a part-time starter last season, averaging 3.9 points, almost two assists and 1.3 steals per game.

Garcia, a Wharton product, served spot duty a year ago, scoring 5.1 ppg while sweeping three boards an outing.

"She has worked diligently over the summer to increase her 3-point range," Jones reported.

Kearney, also from Wharton, averaged 4.8 points, 3.4 rebounds and a steal per game last season.

"She has a good shot," Jones said of Kearney. "she could improve rapidly with hard work."

Kearney figures to play a key role in this seasons' Dusters' plans.

Freshmen joining the Lady Dusters include guards Lynn Goosby, a 5-4 talent from Oklhoma City Star-Spencer High School, 5-5 Karyn Gabriel from Houston Clear Lake, Jennifer Bullard, Hereford's 5-8 standout; Kelli Williams, a 5-10 guard from Leander Liberty Hill, 5-7 Shelly Decker, a player for Jones on last year's Oklahoma state champion Guthrie squad, and Jenny Crowell, a 5-9 freshman from Houston Clear Lake.

Forwards for the 1992-93 edition of the Dusters feature Ayesha Howard, who can also play guard, a 5-11 star from Del City; Peggy Huseman, also a post player at 5-10, from Texas Class A power Nazareth; Lameshia Roland, a 5-8 frosh that plays guard and forward, from Enid, Okla.; and Stacey Hauptman, Paulita Murrell and Anesia Loston, all post-forwards.

Hauptman is a 6-footer from Bacliff Dickinson, Murrell, who checks in at 6-0, as well, comes from Star-Spencer, and the 5-10 Loston is a graduate of Lamarque High.

Jones has some high expectations for his girls as the season nears.

"Well," he said, "This year's expectations will be different from next year's, because I don't have as much information as I will next year. But, we've got to find a way to be competitive right now. If we have to do some different things on offense or on defense to get that accomplished this year, then we'll do that.

"If we're weaker in some areas, say we're smaller, then we've got to play better defense, we've got to get all the loose balls, we've got to have fewer turnovers. We have to give ourselves a chance to win every game we're in."

"The first thing we've got to do," he continued, "is to qualify for the playoffs. We talk about winning the conference, and if we do, that'll be great, but we have to make sure we qualify for the playoffs, improving all year, then be good enough at the and of the year to have a chance to win the regional tournament."

"I know that's going to be tough," he admitted, "but I also know that a lot of times a team will do what's expected of them.

"Based on what I've seen, and I've played in this conference, whether it's the best in the country, or in the top one or two, it really is a tough conference.

"It's good in one respect," Jones said, "because we can gauge our program, we can determine where we are and know what we've got to do to get there.

"I think the goal of any program is to be nationally competitive," he stated. "When we are very competitive in our conference, then we'll know we're there."

Jones feels like their should be very little shake-up at the top of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference standings this year.

"South Plains started five freshmen last year," he said, "and they made it to the finals of the regionals. So, I'd guess they'd be back up there.

"You know Howard and Odessa are going to be good and New Mexico JC finished second in the conference last year.

"I would say," he predicted, "South Plains, Howard and Odessa, one of those three will probably be favored.

Clarendon College has dropped out of the WJCAC, remaining on the schedule, but not playing for a NJCAA Region V playoff berth. The Bulldogs and Lady Bulldogs will compete in NJCAA Division II.

"I think all 10 of our conference game will be tough," Jones surmised. "It'll be a war every time we step on the floor against someone from the conference."

Jones comes to Western Texas following a highly successful tenure at Guthrie High School in Oklahoma.

He took over the reins of the girls' program at GHS for the 1988-89 campaign and, following an 8-16 season, rolled to a composite 69-9 record over the last three seasons, including a state title, three appearances at the state tourney, two area, three regional and three straight conference titles.

His team also battled to a 29-game conference winning streak.

Jones was named Oklahoma High School Coach of the Year and is a three-time Conference Coach of the Year.

He graduated from Central Oklahoma in 1987, after playing for two seasons for WJCAC men's team Midland College.

The Lady Dusters' season begins at Scurry County Coliseum with a Nov. 2 meeting with Weatherford College.

Odessa College hosts juco golf tournament

Coach Milton Ham's Western Texas College golf team will travel west for a few days to compete in the Odessa College Invitational at Mission Dorado Country Club.

Teams will play 36 holes Monday, then will follow with a single 18-hole round on Tuesday.

The Westerners are coming off a sixth-place finish at the Midland-Odessa Invitational in Ruidoso, N.M. a week ago.

Western Texas' team-total 906 in New Mexico was led by Sweetwater sophomore Mike Torres, who shot a 54-hole 222, and freshman Chris Rogers, also of Sweetwater, who wound up with a 227.

Midland College, also an entrant at this week's Odessa Invitational, was an easy winner in Ruidoso, carding an 855, 25 shots better than runner-up Odessa No. 2's 880.

"We're getting better," Ham said of his team. "We've got a lot of freshmen that need to be seasoned a little bit.

"The one thing this fall season is good for, for a golf coach, is to get the spring season lined up so you can make a run at conference, regionals and the national tournament."

The Westerners' fall campaign continues Oct. 14-16 with an appearance at the 36-hole Bossier City Community College Invitational Tournament.

WTC boosters to meet Monday

Western Texas College athletic boosters will meet for a noon Dutch-treat lunch at Golden Corral Monday.

Anyone interested in sports at WTC is invited to attend.

SCC Turkey Shoot is scheduled

Bulldogs win homecoming

IRA — Ira's Bulldogs overcame a first-quarter deficit to ride the Meadow Broncos here Friday night and take a 56-37 homecoming triumph.

"We feel fortunate to be able to win the ballgame. They have big, strong athletes, great speed and an excellent coach," said Ira Coach Mike Cook, speaking of Hermleigh native Randy Roemisch and his Broncos. "But we feel like we really earned the win. We're playing better every week. We feel like we've got a good team."

The win propels the Bulldogs to 3-2 on the season as they travel to Highland on Oct. 9 for their District 6-A six-man opener.

Ira and Meadow traded the lead back and forth in the first two quarters until Bryan Luna scored on a 2-yard run just before halftime. Wyatt Webster's conversion kick gave the 'Dogs a 30-24 advantage at intermission.

Ira's other first-half scoring was built around do-all player Mike Hughes. He scored on a 7-yard run, a 79-yard kickoff return and found Luna on a 41-yard strike through the air. Webster hit two kicks after those TDs.

After recognizing junior Angie Robinson as homecoming queen, Ira got back to work. Cole Sterling slipped into the end zone on a 4-yard scamper, then cradled in a 21-yard pass from Hughes for another score.

Sterling added his third TD on a 3-yard run in the fourth. Hughes closed out the scoring with a 44-yard scamper. Wyatt tacked on the PAT.

Hughes had 191 yards and two touchdowns on 22 carries, hit 11 of 22 passes for 2 scores and 258 yards and added another 154 yards in kickoff returns.

Luna bulled for 56 yards and Sterling had 80. Webster caught four passes for 124 yards.

Ira racked up 456 total yards and allowed just 295.

"It was a great homecoming," said Cook. "We had losts of folks from Snyder. We really appreciate the support all the fans gave us."

WTC 'pokes dominate in bareback ride

ALPINE — Western Texas College cowboys dominated second round bareback action Friday by holding down the first three spots in the Sul Ros State University NIRA Rodeo.

Eric Muton scored a 72 in bareback riding for first place and teammate Travis Whiteside was in second place with a 69. WTC's Fletcher Tigner was third with a 66.

In the saddle bronc riding, Thad Little was tied for third with a score of 72, and Snyder's Leddie Lewis finished with a 64, good for 7th.

In bull riding, Trey Griffin posted a 72 to be tied for third while Fletcher Tigner was in 6th place with a 68. In calf roping, Leddie Lewis was in fourth place with a time of 11.0.

In team roping, WTC's Thad Little teamed up with Justin Washborn of New Mexico for a 5.6 clocking, good for second. Seventh in the standings were WTC's Thad Little and Jason Lahr of Odessa College with a time of 8.5.

In girls action, WTC's Dusti Beaton was timed in 9.4 in goat tying, good for third place. Leslie Greer was sixth in breakaway roping, sixth in the standings.

One more round was planned Saturday night, with rodeo finals set for 1 p.m. Sunday.

Security Council is seizing Iraq's oil money

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council is seizing Iraqi assets to compensate victims of Baghdad's invasion of Kuwait and pay for U.N. weapons inspections and humanitarian aid to Kurds and Shiites.

A resolution passed Friday seizes revenues from Iraqi oil sales held abroad, most in the United States. It is the first time the United Nations has moved to seize a nation's money.

Iraqi Foreign Minister Mohammed Al-Sahaf, who characterized the resolution as illegal and unjustified, had met earlier Friday with Security Council members from Third World countries in an attempt to head off the seizure.

But 14 of the 15 council members supported the resolution. China abstained, as it has in several council measures against Iraq.

Al-Sahaf proposed an alternative source for the compensation of victims and financing U.N. operations: allowing Iraq to break a U.N.-ordered trade embargo and sell $4 billion in oil.

The council earlier had tried to get Iraq to pay for the program through a one-time sale of $1.6 billion in oil, under strict U.N. supervision. But Iraq refused to accept the Security Council's terms for the sale.

Ambassador Edward Perkins of the United States, which led the drive to seize Iraq's assets, said the resolution "is a reasonable and proportionate response to Iraq's intransigence."

China's ambassador, Li Daoyu, said the action was unnecessary and violated Iraq's sovereignty.

The resolution allows the council to confiscate proceeds from oil sales and money owed to Iraq for oil delivered before the Security Council banned trade with Baghdad on Aug. 6, 1990, four days after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

At that time, Iraq's assets abroad — estimated to total $5 billion — were frozen but not seized.

Oil was Iraq's main source of foreign cash.

The United Nations will be able to confiscate up to $200 million from each country holding Iraqi oil revenues, but cannot touch money claimed by Iraq's creditors. The confiscated accounts will be reimbursed when trade sanctions are lifted.

In addition, Saudi Arabia and Turkey will be allowed to sell Iraqi oil that they have stored since the invasion, and turn over the money to the United Nations.

Besides paying for humanitarian programs and U.N. weapons inspections, the money will be used to compensate Asian workers who fled Iraq after the invasion and lost all their possessions.

SISD slates open houses

Open house for Snyder Independent School District elementary campuses will be held during the next two weeks.

Open house is set at Stanfield Elementary on Monday at 7 p.m. Central will hold open house Tuesday while Northeast will invite parents on Thursday.

East Elementary will have open house on Oct. 12 and West will have open house on Oct. 13.

All of the schools will stage open house at 7 p.m. with the exception of West, which will have the event from 4-6 p.m.

Open house at Stanfield will begin with a meeting to introduce faculty and PTA officers. Bob Travis, principal, will review the Positive Action Program being implemented this year. The meeting will be dismissed for classroom visitation. A book fair is being held during the week.

At Central Elementary, an assembly will be held to introduce the faculty and the parent council officers. After a short program, parents may visit their student's classroom. A book fair is also being sponsored by the parent council during this week.

At Northeast Elementary, there will be an opening program in the auditorium presented by the music classes. Introduction of the faculty and classroom visits will follow. An Outreach Library demonstration for parents of first graders will be conducted. Refreshments will be served in the cafeteria. A book fair will be sponsored during the week.

East Elementary will also sponsor a book fair for students. During the open house, parents are invited to visit their student's classroom.

West Elementary will conduct a walk-through schedule with students and parents. Teachers for kindergarten and first grades will be in their classrooms and parents are invited to visit.

With call for 'shared sacrifice'

Perot launches his campaign

DALLAS (AP) — Ross Perot launched his presidential bid Friday by calling for "shared sacrifice" to cut the national deficit but said his appeal would fail "if the American people are too soft to face it."

"There will be pain everywhere. It's like World War II. We had shared sacrifice," Perot said of his program to cut spending and raise taxes.

"We'll all have to do it together, I can't do it for you," Perot said during an interview with Barbara Walters taped for ABC's "20-20."

Perot insisted that voters would support increases in taxes on gasoline, Social Security payments and medical benefits because "we're talking about fair share sacrifice."

Asked if he thought he would be elected president, Perot replied: "That's up to the American people... I am more than willing to go down in flames if the American people are too soft to face it.

"But nobody will ever be able to say I didn't lay it out straight for them," Perot said, according to a partial transcript of remarks released by the network.

Perot traveled to New York to tape the interview with Ms. Walters in advance of the show, and spent more than $1 million or more on network ads to air next week.

Traveling without the Secret Service escorts the other candidates have, he answered a few questions from the front seat of his limousine as he left ABC and reporters crowded around.

Would he debate? "If they invite me."

What were his immediate plans? "Go home. Have supper."

Israeli documents indicate Bush knew Iran-Contra facts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two top-secret Israeli reports show that President Bush, at a 1986 briefing in Jerusalem, was given more information about the arms-for-hostages scheme with Iran than he has admitted until now.

The documents — one written in February 1987, the other a month later — provide a detailed account of the briefing given to Vice President Bush by Israeli counter-terrorism adviser Amiram Nir, said two sources who have studied the documents.

They spoke Friday only on condition they not be identified, and declined to reveal further details.

Bush had initially sought to play down the importance of the July 29, 1986, meeting with Nir, telling investigators it dealt generally with issues of counter-terrorism.

But several months later, a memo of the 25-minute briefing written by his aide Craig Fuller, was made public. Fuller, the only other witness to the Jerusalem meeting, gave a detailed account of Nir's description of the arms-for-hostages deal.

But Nir's report, according to ABC's "Nightline," said Fuller's account contained "many mistakes" resulting from Fuller's lack of familiarity with the Middle East.

Nir, in the report he drafted for the Israeli prime minister, said most of Fuller's mistakes weren't "essential," ABC reported, citing from what it said was one of only four copies of the document.

But one source said that while Fuller's account tracked generally with Nir's, he had omitted some significant detail. The source declined to elaborate.

Bush's account of his involvement in the Iran-Contra affair has surfaced anew in recent weeks as former Reagan administration officials challenged Bush's longstanding assertion that he was "out of the loop."

Police make three arrests

Snyder police made three arrests Friday and early Saturday, and worked a pair of traffic accidents.

Police arrested a 22-year-old man at 2:09 a.m. Saturday in the 1800 block of Avenue R on Nolan County DPS warrants for speeding and failure to appear.

At 7:40 p.m. Friday, police arrested a 21-year-old man for public intoxication in the 2700 block of Avenue K.

Officers also arrested an 18-year-old woman in the 4500 block of College Avenue for Class B theft at 12:50 p.m. Friday.

At 10:32 p.m. Friday, a woman told police that her husband had caught a male juvenile trying to break into the couple's vehicle in the 2800 block of Avenue W. The juvenile was transported to the police department and later released to his father.

Police worked the first of two traffic accidents Friday at 2:50 p.m. in the 700 block of 13th Street. Involved were a 1982 Chevrolet driven by Gloria Castillo of 314 25th St. and a parked, unoccupied 1978 Buick owned by Ann Tate of 302 23rd St.

At 5:09 p.m., officers investigated a mishap in the 3700 block of College Avenue. Involved were a 1981 Chevrolet driven by Lewis Gene Rankin of 3701 Ave. V and a 1987 Ford driven by Kathryn Elaine Billington of Coahoma.

Births

Doug and Tamala Wilkinson of San Angelo announce the birth of their seven-pound, 10-ounce son, Rowdy Tyler, born on Sept. 24 at 6:01 p.m. at Shannon Medical Center. He was welcomed home by two sisters, Shae and Hailey.

Grandparents are Roland and Sharon Bruns and Billy and Judy Wilkinson, all of Snyder.

River journey documentary to premiere Oct. 8

AUSTIN (AP) — Their tale is one of Prudence and perseverance, the river and the human spirit.

A year after the Abilene Boys canoed the Colorado, capturing the curiosity of thousands of would-be adventurers, they'll once again have their day in the Texas sun.

The 1991 reunion of the men and the river is captured in a film entitled "Run Unto the River, The Adventures of the Abilene Boys," to premiere in Austin on Oct. 8, then be shown on the Public Broadcasting System in upcoming months.

The film tells the story of Harry Caldwell, Winfield James and Jim Pickard, all in their 70s, who set off in their canoe dubbed Prudence and retraced the route they took 54 years earlier as teen-agers.

While Caldwell dropped out for health reasons after a few days, James and Pickard completed the 28-day, 660-mile trek from Ballinger to Matagorda Bay.

"We thought we'd just have more or less a leisurely, obscure paddle down the river," Pickard said last week. "It got more notoriety than we ever expected."

To their surprise, they found fans and fanfare as they were adopted by small towns, civic clubs and residents all along the river.

The group got some publicity in 1937 when an Associated Press correspondent nicknamed them the Abilene Boys and wrote of their adventure. But last year their fame spread from the Wharton Journal-Spectator to the Washington Post.

"One of the things that caught people's fancy was that we were not young and were repeating the trip," said James, former publisher of the New York Daily News.

In the last year, James, now 73, has continued his adventures by going on a safari in Kenya and moving from Larchmont, N.Y., to the shore of Rhode Island Sound.

Pickard, 73, a former atomic energy consultant, said he's been somewhat less adventurous, dealing with real estate and business interests from his home in Chevy Chase, Md. He spends weekends canoeing or sailing in Chesapeake Bay.

Their Colorado River experience has brought the two closer together after years of more distant friendship.

"I think this trip really renewed the bond and we've been in almost constant contact," James said. The two went fishing in the Bahamas earlier this year.

Both said they keep in touch with about a half-dozen people they met on their Texas journey. Each wrote about 40 thank-you notes to various people for their generosity during the trip.

Caldwell, 74, has Alzheimer's disease and lives with a daughter in Abilene. The trip "was kind of his last fling, his last hurrah," said Jan Oates, a daughter from Waco.

Prudence, which received its moniker from doctors' advice to the trio to be prudent on their trip, is in an Lower Colorado River Authority storage facility and will be displayed during the film at the Paramount Theatre.

"This documentary is significant not only because it tells the story of three strong-willed men with real pioneer spirit, it chronicles through their eyes an important piece of the river's history," said LCRA general manager Mark Rose.

Pickard said their next adventure will likely be a lower-key fishing trip rather than another canoe voyage.

But neither he nor James would trade the experience of the Colorado.

Movie tickets are free and may be obtained by calling 1-800-776-5272, ext. 6735 or (512) 397-6735.

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

Forty-two years ago last month, Jimmie Cornett came to Snyder carrying all his worldly possessions in a brown, tin suitcase. It was 1950 and Snyder was bustling with people because the oil boom was just getting underway.

Only 18, the Waverly native had just graduated from a business college in Houston and had come to Snyder to begin his first job in the oil patch.

Jimmie had never traveled so far away from home before. He arrived by bus and ate his first breakfast in Snyder at Johnny's Cafe. At that time, the cafe was located where Ace Transportation Co. is today.

He had been hired by Houston Oil Field Material Company, Inc. which had two locations in Snyder. The fishing tool department was located two blocks from the bus station, but the supply store where he was to work was located on the Clairemont Highway. The company specialized in helping to retrieve things from oil wells and doing repair jobs.

In the late 1960s, the name of the company changed to Homco International, Inc. In 1975, W.R. Grace and Company, one of the largest chemical companies in the world, bought Homco.

That first year, Jimmie lived in the back of the fishing tool shop, along with a man from Arkansas. After only one day on the job, something happened which later proved to be a good thing. It was anyting but at the time.

He suffered a broken foot while helping the operator to load tools. That might have been the end of his fledgling career, except for the generosity of his employer, Jimmie said.

After limping around for a time, he went to the doctor who confirmed a broken foot. Surgery was performed by the Battenfield-Jones Hospital, which ceased operations years ago.

While recuperating, Jimmie continued to live behind the shop. "Everyone took care of me," he explained. "My meals were either brought to me or else someone came to take me out. My pay was never docked either."

Being confined to the office, though, proved a blessing in disguise. He learned the office protocol which later helped him to move up within the ranks of the company.

After his foot healed, Jimmie went back to work. In 1951, he was made district clerk, a position he held until he served in the Korean War. He filled in for Junior Nolan who had previously been sent to Korea. Nolan returned, but he and another man were assigned to open another store, so Jimmie resumed the district clerk's job in 1955, after he had served two years in Korea and Japan.

Jimmie was promoted to district clerk the following year and to district manager in 1962, a position he held until retiring.

Before leaving for Korea, Jimmie and his wife, Patsy, got married as soon as he completed Army basic training.

"We were married eight days before I was shipped out," he said. "We spent our first two Christmases and wedding anniversaries apart."

Jimmie and Patsy Lloyd, who was reared in Snyder, first "met" on the telephone as she was a telephone operator. During the oil boom, Snyder just had two telephones on the square and people sometimes drove out of town to make calls, she said.

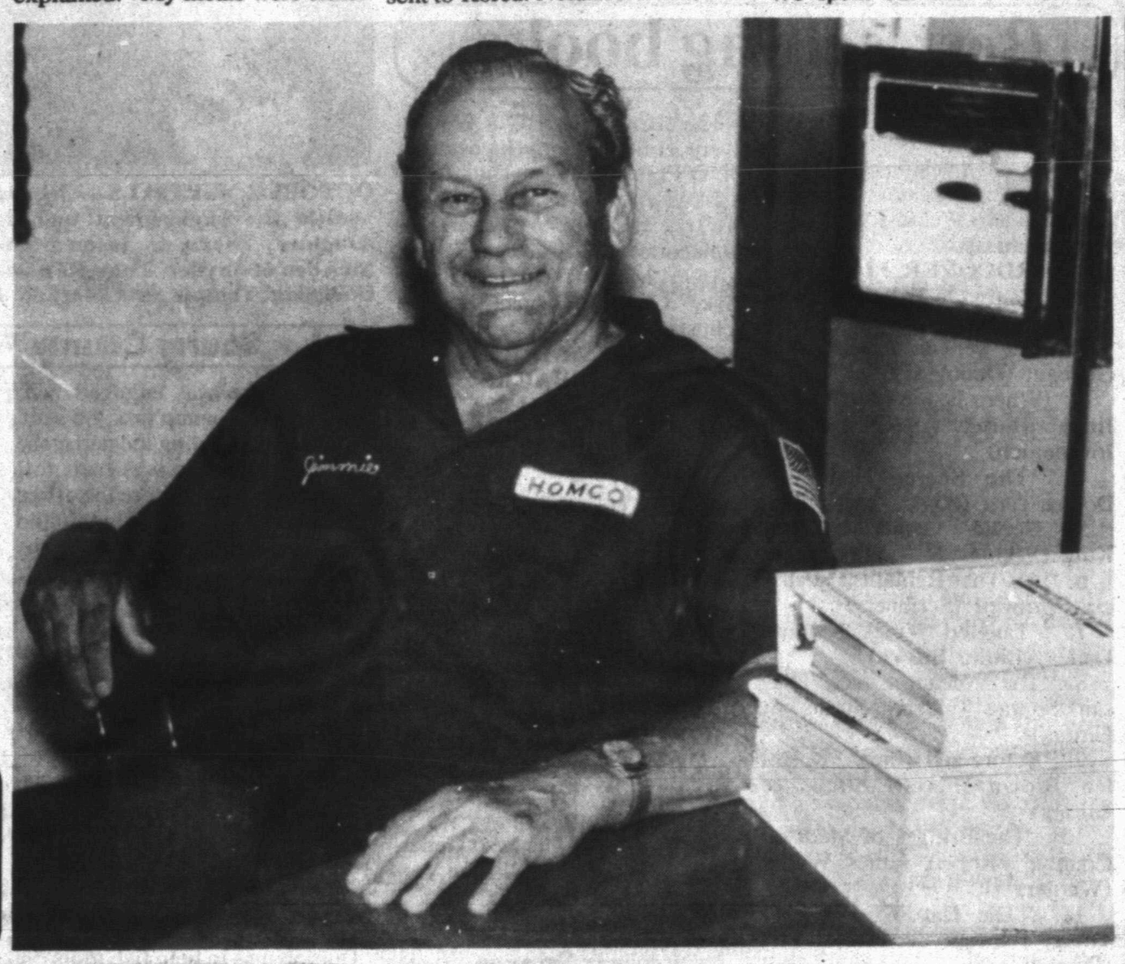
They talked on the phone for a year before they met at a party. They later learned to their surprise that Jimmie's boss — Bill Redmon — had been trying to get them together.

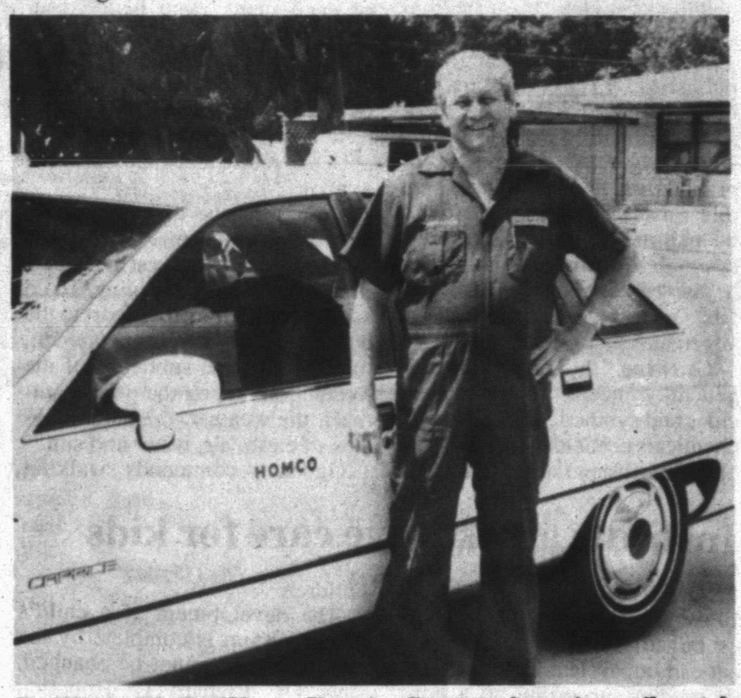
Jimmie didn't have a car, so he borrowed one for their first date. They usually went to the movies; drive-ins were very popular then and Snyder had three. Or they ate out.

While Jimmie was in Korea, Pat bought a mobile home which they later parked in Homco's lot. She lived on her grandfather, Carl Gray's, place in Hermleigh while Jimmie was away.

The flood of 1972 completely demolished the Homco office

(See FOLKS On Page 2B)





TAKING IT EASY — Jimmie Cornett, long-time oil patch worker, is taking it easy these days. Since he has retired he has not had to wake up to alarm clocks or answer emergency phone calls. Named district supervisor of Homco in 1962, he held that position until he retired last month. Jimmie is looking forward to relaxing and spending time with his family. He moved to Snyder during the oil boom and has worked for Homco and its predecessors ever since. Previously, the company was known as Houston Oil Field Material Company, Inc. and Homco International, Inc. (SDN Staff Photo)

Caution needed in feeding plants

By GEORGE BRIA
For AP Special Features

"First, remember to feed the soil, not the plants," says Shepherd Ogden, a master of organic gardening. "If you take care of the soil and constantly enrich it, the plants will thrive."

A nationally known market gardener, nurseryman and author, Ogden offers this cardinal principle in what he calls a "green thumb manifesto" for raising vegetables:

Sure, you can give the plants an occasional shot of fish emulsion, Ogden says, but in the long term "do whatever you can to enrich the soil by concentrating nutrient, whether by composting, growing green manures and cover crops or simply mulching and then turning under the mulch."

In a book, "Step-by-Step Organic Vegetable Gardening," just published by Harper Collins, Ogden revises and updates the theories and practices expounded in a work originally written by his grandfather, Samuel. The new author runs "The Cook's Garden," a mail-order seed and supply house in Londonderry, Vt., where he has become known especially for gourmet and foreign vegetables.

Growing things organically generally means avoiding pesticides and synthetic fertilizers. The chemicals needed by the plants are obtained instead from unrefined "natural" source such as manure, rotted vegetable matter and other compost.

After enriching the soil, a second important step in Ogden's manifesto is to "take only what you need." He explains that after harvesting the part of the plant that you eat, you should compost the rest, returning "as much as possible of the biological yield from the earth to the earth just as is done in nature."

Another piece of advice Ogden offers is to "embrace diversity." He notes that one of the greatest farming and gardening problems arises from the fact that large groups of identical plants become prone to massive outbreaks of pests and diseases. By growing a wide range of crops and varieties of each plant "you hedge your bets," he says.

Ogden also says you should "work with the natural, seasonal cycles in your garden," a know-how usually learned through experience rather than plucked out of a book.

"Plant to miss the peaks of insect reproduction," he says. "Schedule your harvest at the best time for flavor and ripening. To do so takes attention on our part to the daily details of life in the garden, to observing the subtleties of the interaction among the plants, animals, the weather, the natural cycles of earth, air, water and sun."

Ogden recommends walking around in your garden early in the morning and at twilight to try to spot any problems.

"Often it is just a matter of pulling a stray weed or crushing a cluster of recently laid eggs."

If you've grown robust plants, they are less subject to insect and disease problems and thus require less control, Ogden says.

The 10-chapter, 299-page book, priced at $23, ranges widely not only over the organic scene but on the art of gardening in general, from design to tools and equipment. There are recommendations for the growing of 40 different vegetables, including 10 pages on tomatoes alone.

A sense of the soil and its fascinating creatures is ever present in this book.

In a lively section on earthworms, Ogden tells us, "The total mass of their bodies is equal to the weight of all the power tools in the average gardener's garage combined, including the roto-tiller, lawn mower, chainsaw, snowblower, even a garden tractor.

"But the earthworm is much more powerful for its size than any of these — able to move stone up to 50 times its own weight as it burrows through the soil, sometimes to a depth of 12 feet or more.

"The 'castings' left behind by earthworms are more than five times as rich in nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium than the surrounding soil, and their tunnels represent a significant source of drainage and aeration for the soil in which they live."

Institute advises eye care for kids

ROSSLYN, Va. (AP) — A child can pass a standard eye chart test but still have vision disorders that can impair learning and hamper reading, according to a non-profit public education organization.

The Better Vision Institute says eye charts test the ability to see objects clearly at 20 feet, and may miss problems with such visual skills as focusing, gauging distance, or tracking of eyes.

Such disorders may go undetected until the fourth- or fifth-grade, when textbook print becomes smaller. The non-profit group recommends an annual professional eye examination for children.

The development of a child's visual system is complete by the age of 9 and cannot be changed, says Dr. Richard L. Hopping, president of the Southern California College of Optometry and past president of the American Optometric Association. "That's why it's extremely important for children's vision problems to be caught in their earliest stages," Hopping says.

For a free brochure, "ABC's of Eyecare," send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to: Better Vision Institute, Box 77097, Washington, D.C. 20013.

and everyone was engaged with the massive cleanup task, he said. The present building located close to the original site was built following the flood. Before the office was constructed, Jimmie and Patsy had had their mobile home on the Homco lot.

They built their first home on 41st Street in 1957.

Jimmie said they remained in Snyder all these years because they liked the community and thought it was the best place for them to raise their children.

They think he may have the distinction of being the only oil patch employee who worked his entire career for the same company in the same town.

"I always liked the challenge my job represented," Jimmie said. "Our job was to help fish tools out of wells and people didn't call unless they were in trouble. We had to help them."

He always applied his knowledge and Homco tools to get the job done. Each job was similar but different. But the goal was always the same — to get the client "fixed up and running again."

The Cornetts said they have spent their entire married life in the oil patch.

"We've always been just like a family. We've had hard times, bad times and good times, and the best of times and we have no regrets."

For more than 40 years, Jimmie worked countless hours, never really finishing but "finding a quitting place." He said his daughter was seven years old before he had any real time off.

Throughout his long career, Jimmie has seen a lot of changes come to the oil patch. One of the best was the introduction of klustrite, a hard metal which is used to dress tools. Hydraulic air equipment has also improved working conditions. All the equipment was hand operated at one time, but now a lever is pulled.

"The people I have worked with have always made my job easier," Jimmie said "Homco has been good to us. They have been good to me and my family. The people who hired us are also good people to work for."

At his retirement party, the employees gave him a set of golf clubs.

Occasionally, the Cornetts travel and have visited such sites as the Holy Land in recent years and Alaska in June. Jimmie has always worked with youth, especially the company sponsored swim team. He also took many youth mission trips. He farms and takes care of cattle in his spare time. He remained active and returned to work following open heart surgery in 1984.

During the boom he said Snyder probably had as many as 200 rigs operating. Oil rigs passing through town had to cross the square because no bi-bass road had been built then.

People were lined up everywhere looking for jobs, and restaurants stayed full day and night.

Now that Jimmie has retired, he said the one thing he won't do is "set an alarm."

"I may even sell my watch," he joked.

With the Homco phone now disconncted, he said he intends to relax around the house. He intends to take it easy and work at his own pace.

He and Patsy will have more time to spend with grandchildren. He will continue to build churches for one week a year which he has done since 1983.

He also likes to play "42."

Patsy retired from the telephone company in 1984. She later opened Cornett Realtors but is semi-retired now since merging with Jack & Jack. She has also taught real estate courses at Western Texas College since 1987.

A son, Richard, nicknamed "Doodle," was born in 1956. He graduated from Snyder High School and Baylor University and is now a registered nurse. He works for the veterans hospital in Mansfield. He and his wife have two children, Jimmie II and Alison.

Doodle was Jimmie's dad's nickname as well.

Donna Cornett Liner, a daughter, was born the following year. She also graduated from SHS and she and her husband are both graduates of the University of Texas at El Paso. They have two daughters, Amanda and Tamara. Donna teaches business and her husband is the principal and basketball coach at Fort Hancock.

The Cornetts also helped raise two foster daughters, Debbie Roemisch and Dana Chesser. They are twins and their surname in those days was Myers.

Jimmie grew up in Waverly and graduated from Willis High School. He lived in the country at a place called the Center Hill Community. His parents and his brother are deceased. His father had been employed in forest product work. His sister still lives in Willis.

New drama presentation

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) — Taking the long way home after the Trojan war, the Greek hero Odysseus sailed to many strange shores. He's landed on another one.

The hero of Homer's epic poem "The Odyssey" is getting suitably classic lodgings: the J. Paul Getty Museum, a replica of an ancient Roman villa.

The Getty, noted for its collection of Greek and Roman antiquities, is co-producing a new dramatic presentation of "The Wanderings of Odysseus." Four-hour performances, which include a box supper, are scheduled Sept. 25-27 and Oct. 2-4, in an inner courtyard.

Director Rush Rhem, assistant professor in Stanford University department of drama, noted that "The Odyssey" was handed down by oral tradition: so, in a sense, it is more authentic to watch the work than to read it. A musician will play various ancient instruments, he said, including a rainstick "that sounds like falling water."

Although the setting is designed to be viewed in the round, spectators won't have to do any wandering themselves. "The audience is stationary except for going off to get more wine," Rehm said.

The Academy Awards ceremony was telecast in 1953 for the first time. Best picture was "The Greatest Show on Earth."

MR. AND MRS. CHRISTOPHER DONALD STEELY

Sellers, Steely united in afternoon ceremony

COSBY, Tenn. — Elizabeth Dawn Sellers became the bride of Christopher Donald Steely on Saturday, Sept. 5, at 2 p.m. in the Shultz Grove United Methodist Church in Cosby, Tenn. Vernon Holstad, minister of Cedar Springs Presbyterian Church in Knoxville, Tenn., officiated the double ring ceremony.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Day of Fort Worth and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Thompson of Knoxville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross L. Gillum of Lubbock. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. S.H. Gillum of Hermleigh, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hensley of Houston and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Steely of Daingerfield.

The bride wore a formal length Edwardian style, candlelight satin gown featuring long lace sleeves and a high neckline with a lace inset. Her chapel length train was accented with lace insets. The gown was adorned with pearls and sequins.

She carried a pink rose cascade of baby's breath with Wedgewood blue ribbon streamers.

Matron on honor was Beatrice Dyer. Bridesmaids were Anna Long and sister of the bride, Anna Sellers. All are from Knoxville.

The attendance wore tea-length taffeta gowns featuring an off-the-shoulder neckline and a scalloped collar. Beatrice and Ann wore gowns in Wedgewood blue and Anna's gown was rose colored.

Gregg Dyer of Knoxville was best man and groomsmen were Marc Sellers of Charlotte, N.C., cousin of the bride, and Chuck Lankford of Knoxville.

Ring bearer was Clint David Gillum of Lubbock, brother of the groom. Ushers were Brian and Darren Sellers of Knoxville, brothers of the bride.

Candlelighter was Brian Sellers.

The bride and groom lighted the unity candle after repeating their vows.

A reception was held at The Grand Hotel in Pigeon Forge, Tenn., following the ceremony.

Serving at the bride's table was Kate Ashner of Fort Worth. Barbara Phelps of Knoxville served at the groom's table.

The bride is a graduate of Western Hills High School in Fort Worth and attended Texas Tech University and Tarrant County Junior College in Fort Worth. She plans to attend the University of Central Florida in Orlando in January. She is employed at Methodist Medical Center in Oakridge, Tenn.

The groom, a graduate of Monterey High School in Lubbock, also attended Texas Tech University and Tarrant County Junior College. He is employed by Bank of East Tennessee in Knoxville. He will be inducted into the U.S. Navy on Nov. 18 to attend officer training at Nuclear Power School in Orlando, Fla.

Follow their honeymoon to the Gingerbread House Chalet in Gatlinburg, Tenn., Mr. and Mrs. Steely are residing in Knoxville, Tenn., before moving to Orlando in November.

According to Gen. William Westmoreland: "The military don't start wars. Politicians start wars."

Walking the balance beam

By Phillip Alder

If you ask someone to walk along a narrow piece of wood that is lying on the ground, normally he will manage it without trouble. But suspend the plank between two 20-story buildings and it is a different story, if you will excuse the homophones.

Some bridge hands are easy to play: the piece of wood is on the ground. Others, like today's, require very careful stepping from trick to trick.

Despite his 20 high-card points, South had a lot of losers. So he gave North a chance to stop short of game. However, with four-card support and a doubleton, North pushed on to four spades.

West started with three rounds of hearts. To South, things looked impossible. He had three top losers, and surely one minor-suit finesse was wrong. Yet he was used to adopting a never-say-die attitude. Mentally placing both minor-suit kings in East's hand, declarer ruffed the third heart with the spade seven. He continued with the spade king; West led a fourth heart. Declarer ruffed high, cashed the spade queen and crossed to dummy by overtaking the carefully preserved spade two.

South still wasn't safe, but he avoiding slipping into oblivion by calling for the club queen. When East didn't cover, South unblocked his jack. Now came the club 10. If East had covered, South would have won with the ace, played a club to dummy's nine and taken the diamond finesse. When East didn't cover, South immediately took the diamond finesse.

It won and South jumped onto the roof of the second building.

Couple pledges vows

Sue Ann Smylie and Michael Thomas Daywalt, both of Lubbock, were united in marriage on Aug. 22 at 4 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in Snyder. Dr. Steven Smith, pastor, officiated.

Parents of the bride are James and Jo Nell Smylie of Snyder and the groom is the son of Mrs. Jean Daywalt of Carrollton and the late Bill Daywalt.

Double ring vows were exchanged before an altar adorned with arrangements of candles, two heart-shaped wreaths and double bouquets of silk burgundy flowers in brass containers, all were backed by a cross and candelabras.

Steven and Mark Smylie of Plano and Will Smylie of Orange, nephews of the bride, were candlelighters.

Lael Portwood of Lubbock presented "Beethoven Sonatas." The groom and his attendants walked down the aisle to "Bagpipe and Drum" recording by the 48th Highlanders. The bride's and her attendants' walk to the altar was to the recording of "Maid Marion's Theme." The bridal party descended the altar area to "Bagpipe and Drum." The guests left to "Beethoven Sonatas," played by Lael Portwood.

The bride was given in marriage by her father as she wore a gown of all-over Chantilly lace. The Alicyn exclusive sheath style gown featured a back cut-out, open neckline trimmed with handsewn pearls and sequins which appeared on the sleeves, dress back and hemline. Her detachable chapel length train was caressed with a bow of white matching lace adorned with sequins and pearls from the groom's mother's veil.

Her lace veil with pearl accents attached a floral wreath headpiece with pearl sprays. She carried a bouquet of long stemmed teal eucalyptus and burgundy gladiolas surrounding silk navy flowers with a core of pink roses with small flower accents. It was tied with white lace, falling into long streamers.

Matron of honor was Lael Portwood of Lubbock. Other attendants were Wendy Forrester of Lubbock and Elaine Smylie Gomez of Austin, sister of the bride. They wore long floral jackets over solid top and skorts of navy, burgundy and teal, made by the mother of the bride. They carried long stemmed bouquets of corresponding colors.

Elizabeth Smylie of Plano, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Ring bearer was Christopher Daywalt of Carrollton, nephew of the groom.

Best man was Thom Rolston of Temple and groomsmen were Sean Forrester and Ron Portwood, both of Lubbock. The groom wore his dress blue U.S. Marine Corps uniform and his attendants wore classic black tuxedos with cummerbunds and ties of navy, burgundy and teal.

A reception followed the ceremony in the church's fellowship hall. The bride's table was covered with a white damask cloth with a white lace overlay. The bride's bouquet centered the table holding the wedding cake, punch service, and fluted toasting glasses of silver and gold engraved with the bride's and groom's names and wedding date.

The three tiered white cake was a double layer, dark chocolate confection with almond sliver and chocolate roses surrounded by ivy. Gardetto mix and mints were also served.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL THOMAS DAYWALT

Serving at the groom's table was Rachel Young of Meadow.

The bride, reared in Snyder, attended University of Texas at Arlington and South Plains College Surgical Tech Program and is currently employed by University Medical Center of Lubbock.

The bridegroom was reared in Carrollton, attended Texas Tech University, and is currently in the United States Marine Corps attending MCT and MP schools before his first duty station.

attached to two side cakes by burgundy, navy and teal ribbons. The cake displayed pink accents and pink and white flowers cascading from each tier, resting on the two side cakes. The cake was topped with silver wedding rings. It was decorated by Elaine Smilie Gomez.

Serving at the bride's table were Julie Smylie of Orange and Mary Smylie of Plano, sisters-in-law of the bride.

On the groom's table was an ecru lace over green cloth. A small bouquet centered the table holding

Out-of-town guests were from Houston, Orange, Yoakum, Austin and Carrollton.

Scurry County Library News and Views

The Scurry County Library has recently received new book series entitled, "America the Beautiful," which features a book on each state, Puerto Rico and Washington, D.C.

Among the information found in each book are state mottos, birds, trees, flowers and others. The history of each state is covered, and brought up to date. The different regions and attractions are also included.

BOOK FEATURE

"Story Quilts: Telling Your Tale in Fabric," by Mary Mashuta.

The common thread connecting story quilts is that they are all narrative quilts — fabric, design and color — work together to tell a story. A gallery of 32 quilts is showcased in this collection, each with an accompanying story. They will tug at your heartstrings and provide inspiration and instructions for those wishing to make their own quilts.

Polly's Pointers by Polly Fisher

Mist houseplants

DEAR POLLY — I've tried to grow several houseplants, but they never do well. I guess I just don't have a green thumb! Could there be some condition in my house that is causing all these plants to fail? — BARB

DEAR BARB — Many popular houseplants need a lot of moisture in the surrounding air, and American homes — especially in the winter — tend to have very dry air. That is why misting is so often recommended for houseplants. Keep a small spray bottle handy and squirt a misty spray at the plant every day or so.

While their leaves often like extra moisture, most plants' roots don't like to be drowning in water. Overwatering is a common cause for houseplant failure. For most plants, water often enough to keep the soil evenly moist, but not wet. However, some plants need to be watered only when the soil feels dry, so a good plant-care guide will be helpful to you for determining the water requirements of your specific plants.

You might want to try a plant that requires little care and can tolerate a wide variety of conditions. Sansevieria, also known as snake plant, is nearly indestructible; it can be neglected and does well in less-than-ideal conditions. Overwatering and very cold temperatures can kill the plant, though, so water only when the top layer of soil feels dry. Try not to let the soil dry out completely. Sansevieria tolerates artificial light well and can stand some shade. Avoid bright direct sunshine for the best-looking plant.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter, "Hints for Healthy Houseplants," which offers descriptions and care instructions for 20 of the most popular houseplants, including others that do well under a variety of conditions. This issue also includes directions for making your own potting soil and a nitrogen-rich gelatin plant food. Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 93863, Cleveland, OH 44101-5863. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I have recipes that call for "pine nuts." I have looked unsuccessfully in all the local supermarkets. Could you please tell me (1) where I might find them and (2) is there a substitute? — FLORENCE

DEAR FLORENCE — Pine nuts (pignoli in Italian) are the small, pointed, cylindrical seeds of certain varieties of pine trees. They are usually sold shelled and can be found in many health food stores, as well as shops that specialize in Italian or Middle Eastern foods. I have seen small bottles of them in the Italian foods sections of many supermarkets.

Pine nuts are very expensive, as much as $15 to $16 a pound, and in my opinion, absolutely delicious! Fortunately, most recipes call for only small quantities. A suitable substitute depends on the individual recipe. They are usually called for in the tasty pasta sauce, pesto. I've found that walnuts make a good substitute for pine nuts in pesto and other recipes. Hulled sunflower seeds might be another choice. Remember that these and other seeds and nuts will give a somewhat different flavor and effect in various dishes that call for pine nuts, but will nonetheless be pleasing in their own right. — POLLY

Dear Abby

Bad Experience With 'Good Samaritan' Is Lesson for All

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1992 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My sister was driving alone on the interstate during the afternoon on her way to a meeting in the company business car. A lone man in a truck pulled alongside her and motioned to the front of her car. He kept following her and pointing to her tires, so after a couple of miles, my sister pulled over, thinking there must be a problem.

The man also pulled over and came up to her side of the car. She cracked the window a few inches, and the man said her front right tire was low — he'd take a look at it for her. She said "OK," and he went to the front of the car, returned, saying it was low — why didn't she come look and see. She declined, saying she was in a hurry. Then he made a lewd gesture and an obscene remark, so she put her foot on the gas and sped off. When she got to her destination, she found nothing wrong with her tires.

This man could have had a gun and forced her out of the car. Or had she opened her door, he could have forced himself inside.

Abby, please tell your female readers that they should never pull over no matter how "nice" the vehicle or driver appears to be. Always keep the doors locked and carry a "Call Police" banner in case of car trouble.

My sister was lucky, but so many women travel alone during the day that they could be victims of someone insisting that he is there only to help them.

DIANE'S SISTER IN HOUSTON

DEAR SISTER: Thank you for a crucial reminder. Your letter may avert more than one tragedy.

Perot's return could hurt Bush at home

AUSTIN (AP) — The on-again, off-again candidacy of Ross Perot is on, again.

While that news may generate a "so what?" in some states, in Texas it's a semi-big deal:

Semi, because his in-out-in dance turned off some early backers. And with only a month to campaign, he faces a climb just to reach his old level of support.

Semi, because Perot's announcement Thursday left key questions unanswered: How hard will he run? How much of his $3 billion fortune will he spend? What about his running mate, retired Navy admiral James Stockdale, who initially was chosen just to qualify Perot for ballots?

Big because, well ... it's Texas.

— Texas is home to both Perot and President Bush. Previous polls indicated that Perot was as strong here as anywhere.

— Texas has 32 electoral votes. That's the third-biggest Election Day prize behind California and New York.

— Texas, even Bush forces agree, is critical to the president's re-election hopes.

— Texas, historically, has been a must-win for Democrats. No Democrat has gone to the White House in modern times without carrying the Lone Star State.

When Perot quit the race last July, he left the president as the only Texan running.

Although not a native, Bush calls Houston home and has counted Texas as a cornerstone of his political base. Now, Texarkana native Perot is poised to chip away at that foundation.

"I think Perot will get more votes here than he does anywhere. He could have a greater impact here than anywhere," said George Christian, former press secretary to President Lyndon Johnson.

With its 32 electoral votes, Texas is a prize worth winning. Both Bush and Clinton know it. Both have campaigned hard here and will be back before Nov. 3.

Mark Sanders, spokesman for the Texas GOP's Victory '92 Committee, acknowledges that the state is a key battleground.

"There's no way you can put the numbers together for the votes we need in the Electoral College without taking this state. Period," he said.

That customary tool of political fortunetelling, polls, aren't much help at this moment.

The last major survey published in Texas was on Sept. 6, when Perot was in his non-candidate mode.

That Dallas Morning News Poll showed Bush and Clinton in a near dead heat — with 42 percent favoring the Democrat and 40 percent preferring the president. Perot ranked down there among "other."

But the survey also offered an interesting hint as to his possible impact.

In a separate question that asked voters' preferences if Perot were a candidate, it was a three-way tie. Bush got 30 percent, Perot got 30 percent and Clinton 29 percent.

Christian said he expects Perot to take votes from both Bush and Clinton, but not to be the deciding factor.

"To be a real factor in the race, he's got to come back a long way," Christian said. "But this year is so odd, you never know. He could catch on. The support for the other two is so shallow, he could do a pretty good job on them with the kind of money he could spend."

Perot, Stockdale are united by prisoner of war issue

DALLAS (AP) — The lives of Ross Perot and retired Vice Adm. James Bond Stockdale first intersected while Stockdale was being held prisoner in Vietnam. Decades later, Stockdale is running for vice president with Perot at the top of the ticket.

"I have a personal reputation for being independent in outlook and manner, so this role gives me added satisfaction," Stockdale said Thursday as the two independent candidates formally entered the White House contest.

Their bond goes back to Stockdale's eight years of captivity, sometimes in leg irons and sometimes in solitary confinement. Perot, at the behest of Stockdale's wife, Sybil, was working to improve conditions for the Vietnam prisoners of war.

"He's been a close friend of mine ever since," Stockdale told a news conference in March when fellow Annapolis graduate Perot first asked him to stand in as a vice presidential candidate.

Then, Perot needed his services only as an "interim" running mate because some states require that the names of both candidates be listed to gain ballot access.

This time, with Perot formally in the race, Stockdale's back, too — as the real vice presidential candidate, not a standby.

"I'd trust him with my life," Stockdale, 68, said in March. "He's not a sleazeball begging for favors."

Stockdale said Thursday that he made it through his prisoner-of-war experience by heeding a philosopher's words that "a life not put to the test is not worth living." He added, "I thank providence for this life with all its trials and for this opportunity."

Perot described Stockdale this way Thursday: "He is a man of steel. He has been hammered on the forge of brutality."

When Stockdale was being held, his wife persuaded Perot to try to get North Vietnam to conform to Geneva Convention rules of humane treatment of prisoners.

During his imprisonment, Stockdale organized resistance among fellow prisoners and spent four years in solitary confinement. He had led the first bombing attack against North Vietnam in 1964 and was shot down and captured a year later. He became the highest ranking naval prisoner of war.

Stockdale, who graduated from the Naval Academy in 1946, served in the Navy until 1979 and rose to vice admiral. He was awarded the Medal of Honor and 26 combat decorations.

In 1979, Stockdale became president of the Citadel, a military school in South Carolina, but left in 1981 to become a senior research fellow at the Hoover Institution of War, Peace and Revolution.

Tips From Expert Hair Design by Gina Pierce

DE-TANGLE WET HAIR CAREFULLY

Are you in a hurry and yank a comb through your wet hair and let the broken ends fall where they may? Worse yet, do you brush wet hair, stretching its natural elasticity until it breaks? Either way, to save a little time de-tangling after a shampoo, you end up sacrificing your hair. Follow these directions for smooth de-tangling. Always use a wide-tooth comb. (Check the teeth to make sure they are smooth and snag free.) Divide your hair into sections and begin de-tangling by combing downward, about two inches from the ends. When the ends are tangle free, move up a few inches and comb down again. Continue working in sections until you can slide the comb easily from your scalp to the tips of your hair. Using a conditioner or creme rinse will also help to keep hair tangle free.

Tort claims: everybody takes a hit

By JOSEPH PERKINS

A California woman sued her veterinarian for $1 million in damages for the emotional distress he caused her by breaking the back of her pet iguana.

A jury in Philadelphia awarded $1 million to a fortune teller who claimed that a CAT scan robbed her of her psychic powers.

Monsanto Co. was ordered to pay $16 million in punitive damages because it spilled one teaspoon of the chemical dioxin (which is now known to be harmless) in a small Missouri town.

These are but a few examples of the tort claims that have swamped courts throughout the country. The explosion of such suits illustrates why this nation so desperately needs civil justice reform.

Whether imeptus for reform will come from the White House depends on which man is elected in November. George Bush has declared war on the plaintiffs' bar. His vice president even went into the belly of the beast — the annual conference of the American Bar Association — and told them what they didn't want to hear.

Bill Clinton, on the other hand, enjoys a cozy relationship with the the trial lawyers who have given us iguana and psychic tort claims. The president of Arkansas' Trial Lawyers Association has even circulated a fund-raising letter on the governor's behalf.

"I can never remember an occasion when (Clinton) failed to do the right thing where we trial lawyers were concerned," wrote Little Rock lawyer David Williams. "Dig down deep and give to Bill Clinton."

One thing is for sure, and that is that lawmakers need to do a little less right by the trail lawyers. We have by far the most litigious society in the world. Some 18 million new civil cases are added to federal and state court dockets every year, which works out to roughly one lawsuit for every 10 adults.

Our natively American "sue you" mentality might not be such a horrible thing if it made us a more economically competitive nation. But not even the plaintiffs' bar would make this argument. Not when the national legal bill siphons off as much as $300 billion from the gross domestic product.

The tort system has become little more than a wheel of fortune. Trial lawyers inundate the courts with personal injury and product liability claims — no matter how frivolous — hoping to eventually hit the jackpot.

The lure of big payouts explains why the number of medical malpractice suits has increased 300-fold and product liability suits a mind-boggling 1,200-fold over the last two decades.

State courts awarded an average $1.5 million last year for successful product liability suits. Malpractice awards averaged nearly $250,000.

The American public thinks, so what? It's just the guys with deep pockets who are taking the hit. The automakers, the tobacco companies, the asbestos manufacturers, the pharmaceutical firms, the health-care providers.

Wrong. Everyone takes a hit. The costs of the tort crisis are shared by all Americans, just as surely as service on the federal debt is borne by all taxpayers. The increasingly exorbitant tort awards to the few are becoming increasingly costly to the many.

Doctors have to pay higher medical premiums (up to $250,000 for some specialties), which not only contributes to skyrocketing health-care costs, but also reduces access to care for certain patient populations.

For instance, obstetricians have become increasingly selective about the pregnant women and small children they choose to treat. That is because seven of 10 obstetricians have been sued for malpractice at some point or another.

Similarly, the threat of product liability suits means that manufacturers have to pay five times as much for insurance as they did 10 years ago. The ultimate losers are consumers, who are offered a smaller range of product choices at higher prices.

Until Americans begin to appreciate just how much the tort system is really costing them, they will not raise a big enough fuss to get the politicians in Washington and the state capitals to take on the trial lawyers and enact civil justice reforms.

In the meantime, the national economy will continue to be drained of $300 billion a year that surely could go to more productive purposes.

Four Scurry County women had enough and went to the police.

Good for them.

They were upset and outraged — and yes, scared — by a man making obscene telephone calls. In at least one instance, he left an obscene note on one of the women's cars.

The man has been arrested and the case forwarded to the county attorney. Police suspect that there may be other women who for whatever reason, didn't come forward.

Some people aren't aware that if they are being harassed over the telephone, they can take steps to stop it.

If you receive a threat of immediate harm, it's probably best to call the police, says Snyder Police Lt. Kevin Fritz.

If the calls are obscene or obnoxious, you can call the telephone company directly through a toll free number: 1-951-2345. Phone company personnel can help you with the steps to take. They'll probably advise you to contact the police or sheriff's office.

Working in conjunction, and with your approval, the police and telephone company can put out a phone trace. It's been a very effective tool in catching obscene callers.

The man arrested last week was an example of the system at work. He was caught through a phone trace, and nailed when four women agreed to file charges.

These women knew that he wouldn't stop unless they stopped him.

Good for them.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

Recently, on a morning talk show, I heard Kirk Douglas say that he had raised his children with an awful handicap — they weren't born in poverty. Considering the fact that I've heard Bill Cosby and Arnold Schwarzenegger say the same thing, I find it a very interesting observation, because it flies in the face of traditional parental logic.

The first thing most every parent wants for his child is to make a better life for him or her than the parent had. And "better" generally means "easier." They don't want their kids to have to struggle to survive, or even, as in the case of the middle class and the present economy, struggle just to get by. It was the hallmark of the boomers' parents, many of whom grew up in the Depression and were determined that their kids would never have to know that kind of hardship.

And what happened was, they raised a spoiled "Me" generation who never quite figured out that you just can't start at the top.

I was very fortunate. Our family was broke all the time. We certainly never lived in poverty, but nothing ever came easy. I never had an allowance — there wasn't enough money for that. I babysat until I was old enough to lie about my age, and then I worked after school, weekends, and summers. When it came time for college, I borrowed money, saved, applied for scholarships, and worked on campus to get through.

When I married my "educated cowboy," (as his family calls him), things went along in pretty much the same vein. We did without and made do and put off luxuries and bought used. The kids do get a modest allowance, but if they don't do the required chores, they don't get paid, and if they want extra money, they work for it. they've learned to save up for things they want and wait — sometimes a long time — for big-ticket items.

It hasn't been easy. There have been plenty of times that we all felt sort of collectively sorry for ourselves, especially when our more affluent friends traded for new cars and bought new homes and took luxury vacations while we just drove out to visit Grandma in the old clunker. As parents, many times my husband and I agonized that maybe things were a little too tough, that there was more we should be doing to make things better, that maybe I should just forget this writing folly and go get a "real job." Certainly our own Depression-era parents felt that way, and sometimes they were pretty vocal in voicing their criticisms of our life choices.

I can still remember how I felt when the kids were very small and we'd been saving up for months to buy then this really nice swing set, but my husband's family didn't realize that. They all chipped in together and bought us one we really didn't want; but we felt we had to accept it as a gift given in good faith. I have to tell you; that stung. It made us feel like the "poor relations," a family charity case. We always hated that swing set.

Recently, we received a really nice check from my publisher as an advance on my next book. This was a turning point in our lives; an affirmation that all those hard choices had been the right ones, that it had all been worth it, that nothing great ever comes easy, and that sacrifice is a word that still has a great deal of merit.

The first thing we did was buy a brand-new Suburban. My husband insisted that I be a "big girl" and do all the business myself, even putting the car in my own name. The kids and I went together to sign all the papers and exchange keys for our worn-out old '83 model with its 127,000 miles. As we drove away, our noses filled with the new-car smell and the stereo filling the car with song, I said, "Guys, I never want you to forget this day." And they soberly said, "We won't."

I didn't want them to forget that it's okay to delay gratification, to make do and do without and work toward a common goal. That it's okay to struggle a little, that the rewards do eventually come. And that sometimes, it's not the things you acquire that matter, but the work itself.

And I thought about Kirk Douglas and what he'd said. I knew that my own ambition and drive — and my husband's — had come from that very same struggle. That it's the struggle, sometimes that actually makes life worth the challenge.

As long as they learn that lesson, then I don't think we'll ever have to really worry about them. No matter what life tosses into their path, I know that they're going to be all right.

Former presidential adviser says he is not keen on Bush

By Barry Schweid
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward L. Rowny, outspoken arms negotiator under five presidents, finds the world around him still a potentially dangerous place. And he's not convinced George Bush or Bill Clinton are up to the task of dealing with it.

AP analysis

Rowny made his mark as an arms control negotiator, always insisting on tough U.S. terms and Soviet concessions, but also refusing to work for Ronald Reagan until Reagan assured him he genuinely was interested in a deal with Moscow to curb nuclear weapons.

In an interview marking the publication of his book, "It Takes One To Tango," Rowny listed Reagan first among the presidents he had served. "I was never in doubt where Ronald Reagan stood on any issue," Rowny wrote.

He lists Bush fourth, with only Jimmy Carter ranked lower. Bush "seemed devoid of the powerful sense of purpose that so characterized Ronald Reagan. When it came to specifics, Bush was hard to pin down. He was vague to the point of being vacuous, lofty to the point of being unreachable."

Rowny at 75 can look back on nearly 50 years of government service. He has degrees from Johns Hopkins, West Point, Yale and The American University, helped plan the Inchon invasion in the Korean war, and spent more than 1,000 hours negotiating the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty with the Soviets. The Senate approved the treaty on Thursday.

Now speaking his mind, his positive outlook is in sharp contrast with his deep concerns — about the presidency and about the post-Cold War world.

"The Cold War is over," he told a reporter who has known him for 20 years. "But the problems aren't over. The end of the Cold War has spawned two things — a lot of little wars, ethnic and religious, and economic war."

Rowny quit the Carter administration's negotiating team in 1979, disapproving of the way the SALT II treaty was being put together, and returned under Reagan in 1981 as his special arms control adviser.

Subsequent agreements with Moscow have cut deeply into nuclear arsenals. But Rowny says enormous problems remain: How to get rid of fissionable material, how to keep Third World powers from acquiring nuclear weapons and how not to mess up the environment with nuclear waste.

Rowny had some nice things to say in the book and in the interview about Bush; his thoughtfulness especially. Within hours of the death of Rowny's wife a note of sympathy arrived by messenger from the president.

But Bush's two favorite words, Rowny said, are "cautious and prudent," and he resorts to fence-sitting when in doubt.

As for Clinton, "so far my feelings are negative," Rowny said. "His off-the-cuff statements that he's going to gut the defense budget, I don't like that. His drive against the Strategic Defense Initiative I don't like."

Besides, Rowny was disappointed that Clinton had little to say about foreign policy in his acceptance speech at the Democratic convention.

But Rowny will be watching the debates. "He's going to have a lot more words; I hope they are the right ones."

The median age of people seeing psychiatrists from '82-'83 was 36, and their median income was $20,000. Over 65 percent of these patients were women. Over 60 percent of psychiatric patients were given drugs as part of their treatment.

Polite society: beware of brash Britons

LONDON (AP) — Once it was, bump into a Briton and he'd apologize. Now he may just push past, the Polite Society says.

The group is marking the fifth national Day of Courtesy today. The founder, the Rev. Ian Gregory, is glum.

" ... People are becoming so aggressive and so rude," he says.

Anxiety about bad manners is rising in Britain. There is a new television quiz show about etiquette and manners, and several new books.

"Whether we like it or not, manners still underpin everyday life in this country," said Rachel Purnell, producer of the British Broadcasting Corp.'s "P's and Q's."

Led by comedian Tony Slattery, contestants try to identify teas in a blind tasting, or correctly introduce the Duke of Buccleuch.

Drusilla Beyfus, whose "Modern Manners" was recently published, calls manners "a means by which we achieve our goals while affording other people the respect they deserve."

Gregory, a Congregational Church minister, agrees that etiquette is not the point — it's all a matter of being nice.

The late publishing magnate Robert Maxwell was "a very polite chap" at social gatherings, but raided a pension fund leaving longtime employees penniless, Gregory said. Adolf Hitler could have been a charm school graduate, he said.

Neither would have been members in good standing in the Polite Society, Gregory said.

For the Day of Courtesy, the Polite Society will promote adherence to its Code of Courteous Conduct. The code calls for members to be courteous and kind to everyone, "exercise the maximum self-control" in trying circumstances, and abstain from offensive language. Men must be chivalrous.

A return to good manners offers many economic and social benefits, Gregory said.

"There would be fewer accidents on the road and at home. People who feel rejected and neglected would not land up in hospital so much with psychosomatic symptoms. Relationships in the home would improve, and if only a small percentage of marriages was saved, think of the great reduction there would be in misery and expense," he said.

The Polite Society has 800 members in 10 countries, 450 businesses that have agreed to abide by the courtesy code, and 45 schools which are teaching students good manners.

Senior Center activities listed

State Rep. David Counts will be speaking in the Senior Citizens Center on Monday in a program planned by the Retired Teachers Association. He will have lunch in the center at noon and will speak about 12:30 p.m. and all senior citizens are invited to hear him.

Persons who have purchased season memberships in the Ritz Community Theatre may make reservations for the first show of the season, "Steel Magnolias," Monday through Friday by calling the Senior Center at 573-4035 between 1-4 p.m.

Seaon tickets are included in the membership but members are to call and designate the performance they wish to attend.

"Steel Magnolias" will be performed Oct. 15-17 and again on Oct. 22-24 in the North Elementary School auditorium. Season memberships are still available. Tickets for non-members will go on sale on Oct. 12.

Monday is game day in the center and bingo will be the featured game. Play will begin at 10 a.m. A pool tournament is also scheduled on Monday.

Senior citizens who enjoy golf are now using the indoor practice facility installed by the Snyder High School golf program in the gym adjacent to the Senior Center. Jerry Biard is giving instruction to the Senior Citizens from 10-11 a.m. on Monday and Wednesday and they may use the practice area from 8:30-11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday.

A beginning clogging class for senior citizens is meeting at 2 p.m. on Wednesdays. Because of this class, the women's aerobics class is now meeting at 2 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays. The modified exercise class in the center meets at 11 each morning and the senior citizens swimnastics class meets from 9:15-10:45 a.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays in the Western Texas College indoor pool. Members of that group are reminded that they are not to enter the pool before 9:15 a.m. and to leave the pool at 10:45 a.m. because of other activities scheduled there.

Hoss Clayton and his band will be performing in the center at 11 a.m. Tuesday. The new group singing called "Olio" is scheduled for 11:15 a.m. Thursday. Songs for this singing include a variety of numbers while the Friday Sing Along usually features hymns.

The Kitchen Band will go to Snyder Oaks Care center for a program at 10 a.m. Wednesday. The Sunshine Choir will rehearse in the center at 10 a.m. Friday.

Senior citizens will be electing a new representative to the Senior Center Advisory Council in voting Oct. 13-15. Men and women interested in seeking the post may contact the office for more information.

H. Ross Perot says 'I am mainly a myth'

DALLAS (AP) — He's worth about $3.5 billion. He owns a copy of the Magna Carta. He donated horses to the New York City police. He put together a commando team to rescue Americans trapped in a foreign land. Now he wants to be president.

"I keep having to remind people I am mainly a myth," says Ross Perot, who journeyed from middle class to billionaire tycoon.

On Thursday, Perot's equally extraordinary political path took another twist as he formally entered the presidential race.

He cast himself as a reluctant political warrior, forced to oblige the die-hard volunteers who put him on 50 ballots. Yet he bankrolled their efforts for 21/2 months after dropping his undeclared candidacy.

The wiry, wisecracking Perot grew up in Texarkana, which straddles the Texas-Arkansas border 160 miles east of Dallas. The son of a cotton broker and homemaker, Perot calls his parents "heroes."

After graduating from Texarkana Junior College, Perot entered the Naval Academy, serving on a destroyer and aircraft carrier from 1953 to 1957.

In 1955, angered by a senior officer and confused by the terms of his service obligation, Perot sought help from Texans in Congress to get out of the Navy. But he couldn't and was reassigned to another ship.

Still, the Navy instilled in Perot a passion for the military that crops up in his everyday action and language.

The same year he left the Navy, Perot married Margot Birmingham, a one-time schoolteacher, now an active participant in Dallas civic organizations. They have five children.

In 1962, at a time when few understood computers, Perot founded Electronic Data Systems Corp. It grew into a giant by landing contracts for big data processing jobs and new system designs — much of it government work.

His contracts with the government left a two-decade trail of congressional investigations into allegations of favored treatment, unfair bidding practices, excessive charges and costly errors. But his business thrived.

He instilled a military-like, round-the-clock dedication in EDS employees and, for a time, urged a conservative dress code that some likened to a uniform.

Employees were required to sign forms giving Perot the right to investigate them. More recently, reports this summer indicated Perot hired private investigators to probe the business dealings of President Bush's family and, this year, the backgrounds of his own campaign supporters.

As philanthropist extraordinaire, Perot spent $4 million to charter jets with supplies for U.S. prisoners in Vietnam in 1969. The goods were never delivered but Perot raised the profile of POWs and has championed their causes since.

The POW effort quickly won him notice inside the White House. Former Nixon administration aides recalled him as the "ultimate insider" who parlayed offers to spend up to $60 million to polish Nixon's image into access to the president and favors for his company and family.

In early 1979, he organized a private commando team to help two EDS employees flee from Iran. Perot later supervised a book on the flight that was written by British author Ken Follett. "On Wings of Eagles" became a TV miniseries in 1983.

Perot's speech is peppered with military references and jargon. He likened reporters' questioning during his campaign build-up to "saturation bombing" and, in 1989, suggested that the rules of war should be applied against drug criminals.

But Perot turned dove when it came to the Persian Gulf War. In the weeks before the war began, Perot said, "Don't send 437,000 wonderful American fighting men and women to die to cover our 10 years of stupid errors."

In the early 1980s, he headed statewide commissions on drug crimes and education reform at the behest of Texas governors.

Other times, he put himself in the middle of the day's hot issues such as trying to save a dying Wall Street brokerage in 1972 and offering Oliver North a job after the Iran-Contra affair broke in 1986.

Perot not only owns a copy of the Magna Carta but several well-known original impressionist and American paintings, helicopters, speed boats and big homes. He has given away well over $100 million, ranging from horses for the New York Police Department to the downpayment on Dallas' elegant symphony hall.

He shrugs off the importance of his fortune.

"Having lived completely across the economic spectrum, and never having had any interest in money ... it's kind of interesting to wind up with all this stuff."

In 1964, President Lyndon B. Johnson opened the New York World's Fair at Flushing Meadow-Corona Park.

Forced re-enactment angers woman

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — A women's organization has called for a probe into a self-awareness group that uses simulated assaults to prevent women from being raped, calling the method "perverse."

However, an official for Austin, Texas-based Global Relationship Center said the simulations are not harmful. They teach women to be stronger and prevent future attacks, the official said.

A Morgantown woman who said she was sexually assaulted 20 years ago charged Thursday she was forced by workshop leaders to take part in a rape simulation in July as 20 people looked on.

"We don't ever want this to happen again, and it's disturbing that they're saying this isn't a one-time thing," said Barbara Evans Fleischauer, president of the state chapter of the National Organization for Women.

"I think it's all the more important that this be investigated and people know that if you pay $550, this might happen," Fleischauer said.

The state chapter of the National Organization for Women made the woman available to The Associated Press.

Leaders of the seminar told the 37-year-old freelance writer she acted like a rape victim and would inevitably be assaulted again unless she learned "personal power," said the woman, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Leslie Gower, vice president in charge of instructor training for the company, the center is devoted to "global oneness and world peace" and uses the seminars to promote inner peace and rid people of hatred. She said more than 250 seminars have been held this year.

She said the group endorses simulations where men hold women down while the women struggle to be freed, but "it's not a sexual thing."

The exercises will likely prevent a woman from being raped in the future, she said.

"It's not that you want to be raped, but you're putting out an image that you're a victim and (saying), 'It wouldn't be difficult to overpower me,'" Gower said.

Gower said she knew of the incident in Morgantown that occurred during the $550 weekend session but doubted the woman was forced to participate.

The leader of the session was "the best in the country," Gower said.

"That is not anything that we would support at all," Gower said. "This whole thing is about free will."

Gower said the director of the session in Morgantown was on a three-month tour of the country and could not be reached for comment. Jan Nash, who Gower identified as the owner of the Global Relationship Center's franchise in Morgantown, did not return telephone calls Thursday.

"I would have concern that somebody is feeling so distressed about the course that they're trying to raise a lot of ruckus about it," Gower said. "I'm not concerned about the quality. (The instructor) would not have done something that hurt her."

The woman said she told one of the assistants at the seminar she was once raped.

Later that day, group leaders were attempting a simulated assault on an 18-year-old in a motel conference room when the woman tried to stop them, she said. She was then wrestled to the floor by three male workshop leaders, the woman said.

As two men held her down, she said, one climbed on top of her and simulated intercourse as seminar participants looked on. The participants wore clothing.

She said no one attempted to intervene even though she struggled with the men for 15 minutes.

"I fought really, really hard, but with three people holding you down there's not much you can do," she said. "To me there was no distinction between what happened in the real rape."

The woman said she attended the seminar out of curiosity and her interest as a writer.

"Nothing in their literature prepares a person for what they're getting into," she said. "I had no idea they were going to attack that girl and I had no idea they were going to attack me. There's absolutely no way that can be deemed consensual."

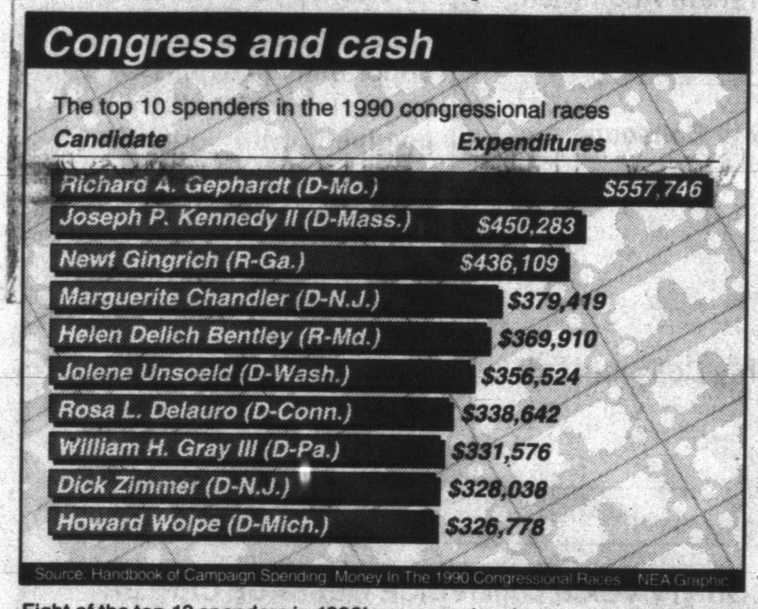
She said she filed no charges with police, but would consider a lawsuit if other women come forward.

"I'm not willing to put myself through it again," she said.

At its annual convention in Morgantown last week, NOW's state chapter condemned the re-enactment and encouraged other women to come forward for a possible class-action lawsuit.

"I find the notion that women are going to be raped again unless they are saved by the personal power taught in a weekend seminar to be repugnant and insulting," Fleischauer said. "It is unbelievable to me that anyone today still would be suggesting that women are responsible when they become the victims of violence and abuse."

But Gower said the method has been successful and is not harmful.



Eight of the top 10 spenders in 1990's congressional races were Democrats. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., is the only one to have spent over a half-million dollars. Newt Gingrich spent the most among GOP candidates.

THE GOLAN HEIGHTS

The new Israeli government of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin is attempting to rejuvenate Middle East peace talks by proposing negotiations with Syria over the possibility of returning some or all of the Golan Heights in exchange for a guaranteed peace. This marks the first time in more than 15 years that an Israeli government has been willing to discuss the exchange of land for peace.

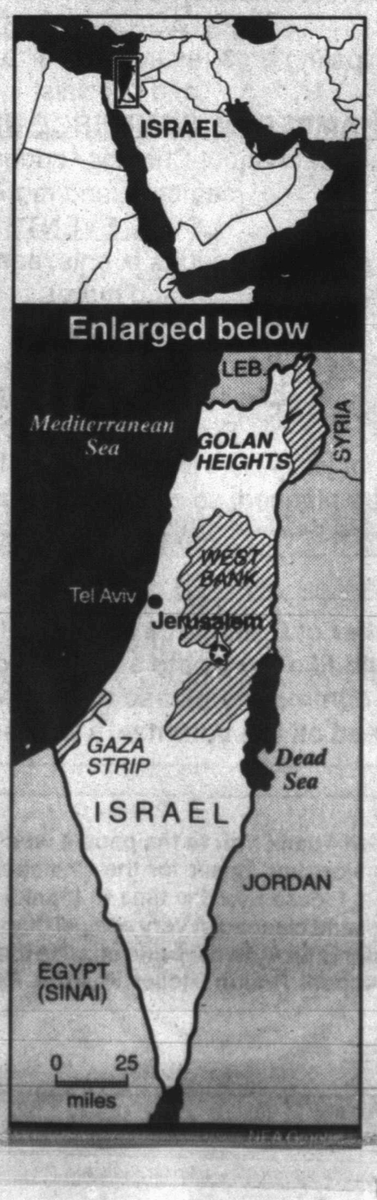
The Golan Heights is a series of hills and small mountains — ranging from about 3,500 feet to 9,200 feet — that form the border between Syria and Northern Israel. Under Syrian control, the terrain provided a tremendous military advantage for artillery perched on the high ground to easily shell Israeli positions below.

Israel captured the Golan Heights from Syria in fierce fighting during the Six Day War in 1967. Israel also captured the West Bank from Jordan and the Sinai Peninsula from Egypt in that war. By controlling the Golan Heights, Israel removed for the first time many heavily populated Jewish areas from direct Arab artillery range.

In 1974 a few settlements on the eastern edge of the Golan Heights were returned to Syrian control as part of an agreement to disengage Israeli and Syrian forces and to establish a demilitarized buffer zone between the two countries. In 1981 most of the rest of the area was formally annexed to Israel and today has many Israeli settlements, including several large population centers.

Negotiations will not be easy. In exchange for any return of land, Israel must get internationally guaranteed peace with Syria. In addition, Israel will probably demand that some of its settlements remain and that it can maintain a military presence in the area as an early warning indicator of any attack.

So far Syria has responded cautiously to the Israeli overture. In Israel, the proposal has also brought a somewhat subdued reaction, in great measure because Rabin was the military commander in 1967 who captured the Golan Heights and he carries a high degree of trust within his country on security questions.



N. LaRoux to address support meet

Nancy LaRoux, director of the Snyder Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, will be the guest speaker at the monthly family support program at 7 p.m. Tuesday at East Side Church of Christ, 201 31st St. The meeting is being sponsored by the Scurry County Mental Health Center. There is no admission charge.

LaRoux's topic will be, "Substance Abuse and the Caregiver." She will discuss the enormity of the substance abuse problem in the U.S. and then will share ways in which those who are caring for a substance abuser may meet the challenges of such a task.

According to Stan Paregien, SCMHC director, anyone may attend this lecture.

He said, "LaRoux deals with substance abusers and their families on a daily basis, so she will have some good, practical information to share. The fact is that a good many people who are mentally ill also have a substance abuse problem. So this topic should be of great interest to those who have family members who are mentally ill."

For more information on the Family Support Program, contact Paregien at 573-4947.

Lubbock parking control officers hear tall tales

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Somehow, it's a sixth sense — one hour's up.

As he scampers to the office door, the motorist spots her from across a crowded street.

He bolts out the door and sprints to his parked car, where he watches the parking control officer scribble out a ticket.

He frantically bounces off every excuse that comes to mind. He schmoozes. Sweet talks. Smiles.

But it's too late. He ungraciously grabs the parking ticket.

He screams. He rants. He raves. He cuttingly remarks, "Get a real job!" Betty Middleton has scene the gamut of reactions during her nine months as a parking control officer for the city of Lubbock.

Chances are, the rude and irate motorist will be the butt of a joke at 5 p.m. These civilian officers — once referred to as meter maids — don't forget, and they try hard not to let all the unendearing criticism hurt their feelings.

"There are days that I can blow it off. But there are days — when you get five or six or seven or eight people who tell you things — that you just want to hang it up and go home," parking control officer Ophelia Leos said of the abuse she takes from some drivers.

"I had one, when I first started ... who told me he was going to whip my butt," Leos said.

She laughs now about that confrontation — one of many in almost eight years on the job. At the time, however, she had been frightened.

"I had to call an officer," Leos said. "He got so ugly and said to me, 'You Mexicans don't even know how to speak English.' 'This Mexican wrote you the ticket somehow,' I thought. Then he spit on my face and left."

Alicia Naranjo has been driving her scooter down the streets of Lubbock for 14 years — the longest of any of the six city parking control officers.

She, too, has heard some inventive excuses and knows all the schemes. But, nonetheless, Naranjo rarely backs down on writing a ticket.

"Oh, some people roll their cars to get the mark off after we mark them," Naranjo said.

Others, she said, use excuses such as the car ran out of gas — even though it was maneuvered perfectly into the parking space.

"We get that one a lot," Naranjo said. "Or, 'My car broke down,' or 'I locked my keys in the car.' And you wait for two hours, three hours, and the car's still sitting there."

Recently, Naranjo heard one of the most original excuses. A woman approached her and asked if she could return two parking tickets. She claimed the cars parked by her house belonged to two kidnapped Tech students.

"I said, 'Excuse me?' And she said, 'Yeah, they've been kidnapped. I think they've been taken out of the city by a fraternity.' And she said they left their cars parked by her house and asked if I could please take them (the tickets) back," Naranjo said. "I said, 'I'm sorry, you're just going to have to take it to the judge and explain.'"

She recalled one of her softer moments. "This man was parked in a handicapped place, and I told him he was parked illegally in a handicapped space with no card or sticker for it," Naranjo said. "He goes, 'Well m'am, I am handicapped.' And he took his legs — he didn't have any legs — and put them up by the window.

"I didn't give him a ticket. I just told him how to go about getting a handicapped tag," she said.

Parking control officers use different techniques for handling irate parking violators.

Virginia Rowden, an officer for two years, tries to make sassy motorists feel guilty by being overly nice.

"I got one the other day, wrote the ticket and drove up three cars. The man (who had just received a ticket) drives up beside me and says, 'M'am, can you take this ticket back? I was just fixin' to leave.' And I said, 'No sir, I can't. You'll have to take it to municipal court.' And he says, 'M'am, do you like your job?' I said, 'Yes sir, I do.' He said, 'You like making people unhappy?' I try to be just as nice as I can be. It's like, 'You have a nice day,' or 'Thank you.'"

But sometimes congeniality is difficult when motorists get downright hateful and tacky. Obscenities and derogatory names are typically directed at parking control officers.

"We get cussed a lot," Leos acknowledged, and sometimes parking control officers snap back.

Leos remembers one man who called her a derogatory name for a woman that rhymes with witch.

"And I just said, 'That's my name, you want my address?'"

President-elect George Washington and his wife moved in 1789 into the first executive mansion, the Franklin House in New York.

THANK YOU

We would like to take this opportunity to express our appreciation to all those involved with our first combined celebration of the Scurry County Fair and White Buffalo Days. It was a very successful event, and could not have been so without the help of our many volunteers. Thank you!!

As we near the end of another year, we realize that some of our Chamber Board members will soon be at the completion of their terms. Many people do not realize the time and personal sacrifices involved with holding these positions. We would like to take this opportunity to say "Thank You" to our board members who have actively worked with the office staff for the growth and promotion of Snyder.

The Chamber of Commerce is always looking for volunteers. If you would like to donate some of your time and energy to help your community please contact or come by the Chamber. We need all the volunteers we can get. Thank You!!!

The Scurry County Museum is having a volunteer workshop on Tuesday, October 6, 1992 at the museum. This workshop is to plan for the fiesta event that will take place in December. If you wold like to be a volunteer, go by the Scurry County Museum.

We will be doing the Snyder Script as a Christmas promotion again this year. Any Snyder Merchant who is a Chamber member and is interested in doing the Snyder Script, please call the Chamber at 573-3558.

A very heartfelt Thank You to the people who attended the Pasture Party. This is the major fund raiser for the Chamber so we do appreciate your consideration. Please take the time to thank all the volunteers who decorated, cooked, and cleaned. A very special thank you goes to Jack and Betty Greene. Snyder is lucky to have citizens like the Greenes. Work is underway for the 3rd Annual Roarin' Holler Pasture Party. Free advice would be appreciated.
