Crime Reports Slack Off Here After Holiday

Reports of new crimes in the city and county have slowed since the Christmas holidays, with one rural home burglary and a couple of thefts listed.

Dan Lockaby of Tahoka reported John Deere planter boxes and a seed opener assembly stolen from a farm 4 1/2 miles south of Tahoka sometime in the last couple of weeks. The stolen items were valued at a total of $2504.

Officers and the victims of a burglary 7 1/2 miles west of New Home on the night of Dec. 28 were still trying to determine all the items stolen. It was known that a Curtis Mathis color TV set and a Whirlpool microwave oven were included. Investigation was continuing this week in the case.

The home burglarized is owned by Kenny Fillingim.

On Dec. 31 Kenneth Turner of Tahoka told city police that two 5-gallon bottles of Hygeia water had been stolen from his garage.

Police picked up two run-away boys from McKinney, on their way to Phoenix. The two boys, white, ages 14 and 15, were picked up by the father of one of them Tuesday.

Police also answered several fire calls, family disturbance calls and one call from a woman who had let her dog out and was afraid to go out in the dark to put the dog back into the yard.

One person was in jail during the last week for public intoxication.

HERE IT IS 1982 and as you drive merrily down the highway, you are now required to carry your insurance agent in the car with you everywhere you go. If you can't do that, you are at least supposed to carry something which shows that you do have insurance, and if you don't have the proof with you, they'll carry you off to the county jail and chain you to a chair where you have to watch a 6-hour film of insurance ads (the fireman's hat, you're in good hands, a piece of the rock, and such).

I think it's a dumb law. People who don't have insurance will still drive without it, and people who do will have to pay fines for not having the proof with them. It's one more piece of paper to carry around with you, and a case of being guilty of something unless you can prove otherwise.

MY LIST-OF-Things To Criticize is getting smaller. I can't say too much about some of the more popular targets of criticism the public uses. The newspaper, for instance. Since I own it, I'm not about to say some of the things others may say ("They don't get nothing right down there..." or "We always call that paper the Weekly Headache... hee, hee, hee...").

Now I have to lay off the postal service, because they pay my wife's salary. One of the things left is the phone company, about which I have shown remarkable restraint since I know some really nice people who work for them (but one of these days I'm going to let it all loose).

Of course, there are the city, county and school officials, and the coaches. But most of those people are within walking distance of my office and they're all bigger than I am.

SEVERAL DAYS AGO we watched a guy on Lubbock TV (a Vietnam veteran) complaining about the effects of Agent Orange. You could just see him behind the smoke of his cigarette as he talked about how Agent Orange could do bad things for a person's body.

Read-A-Long Champions Get Awards

40 participants in four schools in Lynn County who took part in the Lynn County Library Read-A-Long program recently finished were awarded prizes last week, with prizes furnished by the county's three banks.

First National Bank of Tahoka supplied the prize for Cara Etheredge, the Tahoka winner with the most points in the reading event.

Loretta Abbe of Wilson and LaShea Kieth of New Home received prizes from Wilson State Bank.

Matt Bessire, the winner at O'Donnell, had his prize furnished by First National Bank of O'Donnell.

Mrs. Glo Hays, who directed the program, congratulated the four winners in their respective schools, and expressed appreciation to the youngsters who took part and adults who helped. The project sponsored by Phebe K. Warner Study Club raised money for the library, with $947.06 collected, Mrs. Hays said. She indicated the project would be repeated next year.

Judge Melvin Burks Seeks Re-Election

Lynn County Judge Melvin Burks announced this week that he will be a candidate for re-election in the May Democratic Primary. He has completed three years of his first term, finds the job "challenging and rewarding" and said he respectfully solicits the support and vote of all Lynn County people.

Judge Burks stated that "Lynn County business is in better condition than in several years. There was no tax increase in 1981 and on Jan. 1, 1982 the county had $485,000 on time deposit and no new tax money was used during 1981. With all new tax money designated for 1982 operations, plus a small balance at the end of 1981 and some 1982 money budgeted for a contingency fund, the county should be able to absorb a drop of about $130,000 in farm personal property taxes without having to raise taxes in 1982."

A further statement by Judge Burks indicates that Lynn County is free of debt and has solved three of the most pressing problems facing county governments in Texas.

"Lynn County has completed precinct and voting box realignment, a county wide tax appraisal program and the Lynn County jail is certified by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards. These three things were accomplished at a fraction of the cost encountered by many adjoining counties."

Burks emphasized that only through the full cooperation of the Commissioners Court has it been possible to do the things mentioned above.

He said he and the Court have made every effort to protect the people's investment by upgrading the courthouse at every opportunity.

The judge feels that through proper, periodic upgrading and maintenance the courthouse should last for many years. In 1981, using local labor the courthouse plumbing was completely renovated and some new electrical wiring, including a more efficient breaker box was installed. During 1980 the county courtroom was converted into office space using local labor and materials. A thermostat was installed to control courthouse temperature and steam lines were insulated to control energy usage. Also in 1980 carpet was installed in the district courtroom. A full effort is made to keep the courthouse, jail and grounds clean, and presentable at all times, he said.

Judge Burks states that "I have no other business interests. I devote full time to the job and will appreciate an opportunity to serve another four years."

Mrs. Bryan Seeks Office Of Treasurer

Cynthia (Cindy) Bryan has announced she is running for Lynn County Treasurer in the Democratic primary in May.

Cynthia was born and reared in Lynn County. She attended Tahoka schools and graduated from Tahoka High School in 1966. She is married to Joe D. Bryan, chief deputy with the Lynn County Sheriff's office. They have two children, Kurt, 11 and Kefri, 4.

Cynthia has had 14 years of bookkeeping experience. She has worked for a CPA's office, the State and Federal government and is presently employed with the county as secretary to the County Judge and Commissioners and also assists the County Treasurer.

In her announcement as a candidate, Mrs. Bryan said: "I am confident in my ability to perform the duties as County Treasurer. If elected I will perform these duties to the best of my ability for the people of Lynn County. All support is greatly appreciated."

Ed Hamilton Seeking New Term As JP

Ed Hamilton, Justice of the Peace, Precinct 1, Lynn County, announced this week he will seek re-election to that post, subject to the Democratic primary in May.

Hamilton, who said he has lived in Tahoka for 56 years, expressed appreciation for any support he receives. "If elected, I will continue to work at the job the best way I know how," he said.

Hamilton is beginning the final year of a four-year term as justice of the peace.

Child Welfare Work Is Told

Many cases of child abuse or neglect are handled in Lynn County annually by the Department of Human Resources and local officials, stated Shirley Hays of Post, child placement worker, in a talk at Rotary last Thursday.

Under this program, abused children may be placed in foster homes, and five children here have been replaced. Neglect of children, intentional or not, is investigated, and counseling given the parents of such children.

She declared 3,000 children a year die in the U.S. from abuse from parents. In Texas, 25,000 cases a year are investigated for either child abuse or neglect. She said 35,000 children under six years of age are left at home while the mother works.

Lynn County has a Child Welfare Board of 15 members who help out with the program. But, people who know or see children being abused may call local officials or her office in Post. Names of such informers will not be revealed and their identities are protected by law.

J. C. Gandy Seeks Votes For Pct. 2 Job

J.C. Gandy, commissioner of Lynn County Precinct 2, this week announced for re-election to that post. "Your vote and support will be appreciated," he said.

"I am grateful to everyone for all your cooperation in the last three years and if I am re-elected, I will do my very best to represent everyone in the precinct fairly and impartially," Gandy said.

Paving Project, Need For Fire Truck Eyed

Tahoka City Council opened bids from six contractors last Monday night, but took no final action on awarding a contract on paving planned in the city as part of a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program authorized by the federal government.

The two lowest bids were very close, but the only reason the council did not go ahead and award the contract was to see if all 15 blocks of paving originally contemplated could be done. When the city first applied for a grant, $164,000 was requested for the paving project, but since the application 18 months ago, costs have risen so much that a couple of blocks may have to be eliminated. The bidders gave alternate figures which fall below the amount specified, but the city plans to check with the federal government to see if all 15 blocks can be paved even if the bids are slightly higher. Lowest bid read out Monday night for the overall project was $179,191.

The contract on the project is expected to be let when the city meets in two weeks. The paving is scheduled for a designated section of south and east Tahoka, with the federal government paying for the work.

City officials also discussed at some length with officers of the Tahoka Volunteer Fire Dept. the need for a new pumper truck to replace a 1964 vehicle which reportedly is about worn out.

Although a truck such as would be ideal for the city would cost about $65,000, Fire Chief J.T. Miller said firmen understand that this kind of expenditure is out of the question at this time. He said the department could probably get by very well with a smaller unit which might cost somewhere around $30,000, but would have smaller capacity than the larger truck. "We're definitely going to need some kind of truck in the near future," he told the council.

Councilmen all agreed that a new truck is needed; and asked firmen to draw up specifications so bids may be obtained.

All councilmen were present, as were Mayor Meldon Leslie and City Manager Carl Reynolds. Consulting Engineer A.C. Bowden was on hand for the bid opening, and so were representatives of the contractors bidding on the CDBG job.

I know state government and the legislative process. I have maintained over a 98 percent voting and attendance record and passed 80 percent of the bills I have introduced--a high per cent of effectiveness, and effectiveness is the bottom line in being able to get the job done.

E.L. Short Announces For Senate Re-Election

E.L. Short of Tahoka, this week formally announced for a second term as state senator of the 28th Senatorial District. He said he also would like to thank the people of this area for their active participation and interest in state government. Sen. Short issued the following statement.

"A state senator no longer can serve the public on a part-time basis. I shall continue to work full time. Being senator is like most other jobs--a person must learn the rules of procedure and the people with and for whom he works. The committees of Natural Resources, Education, and Finance I serve on touch the lives of everyone in my district. The subjects referred to these committees encompass all dollars appropriated, all educational matters, and all energy and agriculture bills. These committee assignments were given to me because of my experience and knowledge of the legislative process.

"I've been a part of agriculture all my life--I know the area's problems on land taxes, high cost of production, and the low prices we get for our products. I have also been a businessman and an independent oil producer. There is more oil and gas produced each day and each year in my district than in any other in Texas. As your senator, I have had the opportunity to know firsthand the problems of the industries of this area.

"In asking for a second term, I will continue to put this experience to its best use for the people of West Texas. Beginning next session, my service in the House and Senate will permit me to have served longer than any House or Senate member on

by Linda Allen Schoen

With the first sign of snow...the consensus among ski enthusiasts across the nation is "Let's hit the slopes!" They grab their basic equipment, like skis, boots and bindings, and head for the lifts.

What skiers often forget is basic skin-saving equipment: an emollient-rich cream to rescue skin from winter's triple threat—wind, cold and altitude. All three elements extract moisture from skin, leaving it parched and dry.

To save yourself from "skier's skin," apply an emollient-rich cream to all exposed skin areas before and after your day on the slopes. Use it under gloves too.

When applied to the skin, creams form a barrier between you and the damaging elements. They work to retain moisture so skin can stay soft, supple and smooth.

Your skiing time is precious. It is no time to fool with light creams or lotions. You need the most effective skin cream you can lay your hands on.

An excellent one to try is Neutrogena Norwegian Formula Hand Cream. Just a dab, the size of your little fingernail, can soothe and protect your skin.

While your body is experiencing the exhilaration of whizzing down a snow laden hill, your skin can be enjoying the ride too. By taking special care to pamper and protect your skin, you can look forward to every snow-capped moment.

CHANGES IN STATE'S BRUCellosis PROGRAM

Several changes which will affect Texas in 1982 have been recommended in the Uniform Methods and Rules (UMAR) of the federal brucellosis eradication program.

These changes will be discussed in a multi-county meeting to be held at the O'Donnell Community Center in O'Donnell on Jan. 11, 1982 beginning at 9:30 p.m.

Dr. John McNeill, area beef cattle specialist with Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Dr. Mart Brillhart, DVM, Area Veterinarian, Texas Animal Health Commission, will be present to give the program.

The changes will effect all cattle in the area. We encourage you to attend this meeting to gain first hand information of the changes.

Cotton Harvest Winds Down

The 1981 High Plains cotton harvest wound down as the New Year approached. An estimated 98 percent of the crop is off the stalk, according to Mack Bennett, Area Director for USDA's Marketing Services Office at Lubbock.

Modules of field stored seed cotton remain in all High Plains counties waiting to be ginned. Estimates indicate that 70 to 75 percent of the crop has been ginned. About two-thirds of the crop has been received by the Lubbock office, Bennett said.

Cotton prices moved higher during the week ended Dec. 30. Growers sold mixed lots of mostly grades 42 and 52, staples 31 and 32, mike 35-49 at about 44.75 cents per pound, up 175 points compared with one week earlier.

About 50,000 bales had entered Commodity Credit's cotton loan from High Plains counties by the Christmas weekend. Around 10,000 modules of seed cotton had entered as well.

Lubbock's Marketing Services Office classified 132,000 samples during the week ended Dec. 30 for a season's total of 1,191,000. This compares with 1,174,000 classified by the same date last year.

About 24 percent was grade 42; 51 percent grade 52 and 12 percent 53. About 78 percent was reduced one grade because of bark.

Staples were 10 percent 30, 39 percent staple 31, 36 percent staple 32 and 11 percent staple 33 for an average of .316 thirty-seconds of an inch.

Micronaire was 29 percent 35-49, 16 percent 33-34, 31 percent 30-32, 18 percent 27-29 and six percent 26 or below for an average of 33 during the week.

Aggie engineers get top salary offers

COLLEGE STATION — Industry salary offers for this year's crop of engineering graduates already exceed $30,000 a year for persons with no experience, reports a placement official at Texas A&M University.

Officials say the astounding demand for engineers last year will be even greater this year as industry, government and universities vie for the limited number of graduates.

Experts who recently began predicting an inevitable downturn in demand for engineers may have a long wait — way past the year 2000, say administrators in the nation's largest engineering school.

"Looking at the demand here, I can't see it ever slackening off," said Ron Winn, associate director of placement. About 80 percent of the 800-plus employers who plan to conduct interviews on campus this year will schedule at least one session of their interviews with engineering graduates, he said.

The "Star Spangled Banner," although written in 1814, did not become the national anthem until 1931.

- 1-1/2 cups diced cooked turkey
- 2 tablespoons sliced pitted black olives (optional)
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine (optional)
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Combine 1-1/2 cups water, the salt, 2 teaspoons butter and the rice in 1-1/2-quart casserole. Cover and bake at 450° for 10 minutes. Meanwhile, heat bouillon cubes and 1/2 cup water in saucepan until cubes are dissolved. Add milk, onions, peas, turkey, olives, and the 1 tablespoon butter. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Cover and simmer about 4 minutes. Move rice to sides of casserole; pour turkey mixture into center and sprinkle with cheese. Place in preheated broiler for 2 or 3 minutes, until lightly browned. Makes 4 cups plus rice or 4 servings.

Avoid Percentage Appraisal Fees

By Dexter D. MacBride, ASA
Executive Vice President
American Society of Appraisers

It is probable that at some time you will need the services of a professional appraiser to value one or more of your properties: your home, your business, your personal effects. An important question to ask the appraiser before employment is, "What do you charge?"

If the appraiser states that his or her fee is based on a percentage of the appraised value, run, do not walk, to the nearest exit.

Never select an appraiser who charges on a "percentage basis." It is easy to see that the appraiser can be considered to have a "vested interest" in the amount of the appraised value on which his or her fee is based.

Professional testing/designating appraisal societies consider it unethical and unprofessional for an appraiser to charge a percentage fee. Their members will quote on an hourly, or daily, or total appraisal fee basis, no matter what kind of property they are appraising: Gems/jewelry, real estate, boats, businesses, etc.

Write for: "Information on the Appraisal Profession," a pamphlet that details what to expect from a professionally qualified appraiser. American Society of Appraisers, P.O. Box 17265, Washington, D.C. 20041.

Help Your Heart

Your Heart Can Protect Itself

Although we all should help our hearts by avoiding high blood pressure and cigarette smoking and by eating low-fat diets, your heart can protect itself in some of the most trying circumstances. One of the heart's natural defense mechanisms is an amazing ability to preserve itself when we are underwater for extended periods of time, unable to breathe. Humans have reportedly survived submersion for up to 40 minutes with no detectable damage to heart and brain tissues, which are both highly susceptible to damage from a lack of oxygen.

Beavers and their diving cousins have a highly developed "diving reflex" similar to that of humans. Thomas A. McKean, Ph.D., an American Heart Association-funded researcher, is studying the beaver and two other aquatic rodents: the muskrat and the nutria. By investigating the diving reflex of these and other animals, scientists may learn new ways to protect the human heart during open heart surgery, heart attacks and other situations where the oxygen supplied to heart tissue is insufficient.

Four years ago, Dr. McKean, associate professor of biological sciences at the University of Idaho, reported a surprising discovery. All the diving mammals and birds studied up until that time had proven to be capable of storing large amounts of oxygen in the lungs and blood. But

Dr. McKean demonstrated that the oxygen storage capacity of the beaver is exceptionally small: only about one-third the storage capacity of a good saltwater diver, the harbor seal. "The beaver is like a scuba diver who goes down with an air tank that's too small," he says.

How does the beaver's heart continue to function with such a small supply of oxygen? Dr. McKean has shown that the beaver and nutria decrease their oxygen consumption about 90 percent while they are underwater by constricting their peripheral blood vessels, thus reducing blood flow to, and oxygen consumption by, non-essential organs. "Because it is pumping only small amounts of blood to most of the body's tissues, the heart's workload decreases and so does its oxygen consumption. During a dive, the beaver's heart rate decreases from about 126 beats per minute to about 26."

Dr. McKean explains that the diving reflex in all species seems to be initiated by nerve endings in the animal's snout, and the response can often be stimulated by dipping only the snout in water. The same is true of the human nose. Some doctors now treat one type of abnormally fast heart rhythm by immersing the patient's face in cold water to induce the diving reflex. The patient's heart often returns to a normal, slower rhythm when the reflex is triggered.

About the House

Clean Easy When Company Comes

Most of us have a kind of love/hate relationship toward company. Entertaining out-of-town guests is exciting and fun but it plays havoc with household cleaning routines.

Just when we want everything to look its best, there's no time to do all those extra jobs. And by the time everyone leaves and the house really needs it, we're usually too exhausted!

The secret to cleaning when company comes to visit is to make it easy on yourself. Keep the little things picked up while you have visitors, and the big jobs won't seem so overwhelming when people are gone.

Don't worry about clutter. Everyone expects things to be a little chaotic when more people than usual are living in the same space.

Have a multi-purpose cleaner on hand that works well on a variety of surfaces. That way, you can do fast touch-ups simply and easily.

It doesn't have to be expensive, either. For example, something you probably already have in your laundry room, Clorox liquid bleach, will also clean tile, woodwork, porcelain, plastic and fiberglass — everything, in fact, from floors to sinks to toilet bowls. A solution of 3/4 cup liquid bleach, a gallon of warm water plus some laundry detergent will clean and remove stains and disinfect all in one wipe-up.

Concentrate your touch-up work on areas that get especially heavy use, like the bathroom. Because of the extra heavy foot traffic, leave major jobs like kitchen floors for after everyone has left.

Most importantly, don't wear yourself out. Don't spend so much time and energy cleaning before guests arrive that you're too tired to enjoy their company when they do get there.

And, when things have quieted down again and you're getting back to your old routines, give yourself a treat. After all the excitement and hustle-and-bustle, cleaning floors — while necessary — may be the last thing you feel like doing.

So make it special. Spend some extra time on your favorite hobby or take yourself out to lunch. If all else fails, just remember — next year, you may be the guest.

Who Is Stealing Your Car?

Approximately one million vehicles disappear every year from parking lots, streets, driveways and their owners' garages.

"These thefts affect everybody through higher insurance costs," said an Allstate Insurance Company spokesperson. "Allstate alone paid out $122.2 million in auto theft claims in 1981 from January through October."

Who is stealing these cars and causing the cost of everyone's auto insurance to rise? Law enforcement agencies believe there are four major groups involved in vehicle theft operations:

Theft Rings

The existence of an increasing number of nearly undetectable forged driver licenses, car registrations, manufacturers' statements of origin, bills of sale and state insurance identification cards has been brought to the attention of vehicle theft investigators. These investigators report that organized crime members print these documents in bulk and sell them to middle men who pass them on to customers with stolen vehicles. New and expensive cars are primary targets in theft ring operations. Theft rings are a growing trend and difficult to detect.

Chop Shops

The fastest growing group

today involved in vehicle thefts is composed of chop shop operators. Chop shops receive stolen vehicles, strip them and cut up the major body parts and illegally introduce them into the used parts market. Also, some unscrupulous repair shops find it more profitable to replace a car door with a stolen one already assembled and painted rather than repair and repaint the original.

Chop shops have drastically reduced the number of stolen vehicles that are eventually recovered. Fifteen years ago, 92 percent of all stolen vehicles were recovered, although they may have been damaged or partially stripped. In 1980, less than 70 percent were recovered.

Insurance Fraud

Another auto theft group that is on the upswing and hard to catch practices insurance fraud. There are various types of insurance fraud including the filing of false claims for non-existent vehicles and the theft of one's own car.

The National Auto Theft Bureau (NATB), with the assistance of the insurance industry, has developed a fraud profile program to help detect suspicious claims. While the fraud profile program indicates a much higher rate of fraud detection, it includes circumstances that suggest the need for further investigation prior to the settlement of certain vehicle theft claims.

The Joyrider

Most active in urban areas, the amateur thief or joyrider, usually a juvenile, finds streets lined with vehicles a virtual supermarket selection. The vehicle chosen most often has been parked with the key left in the ignition. The thief will drive the vehicle for a few hours, or until it is out of gas.

He will leave the vehicle at any curbside or in an unwatched parking lot. Most of these vehicles are recovered, but frequently damaged. If the amateur thief is caught, the penalty is usually minimal, especially if it is a first offense.

Representatives of law enforcement agencies, legislators, the insurance industry and automobile manufacturers have been instrumental in mounting vigorous anti-theft programs. Time will tell if these programs will reverse the existing auto theft trend.

From the customers' standpoint, vehicle thefts can be reduced significantly if certain simple precautions are taken. Vehicles should be parked in populated, well-lighted areas or in attended parking lots when possible. Doors should be locked, windows secured and the key removed from the ignition and pocketed. Never leave a spare key in the car. Auto theft devices, especially alarms, also discourage thefts, since even professional thieves avoid having attention called to their activities.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Texas Electric Service Company, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of intent to amend its fuel cost factor tariff schedule to establish a procedure for regulatory approval of certain fuel related expenses prior to those expenses being included in the fuel cost factor portion of monthly bills for electric service. This revision will be effective in areas served by the company on the 13th day of January, 1982, or as soon thereafter as permitted by law.

This revision constitutes an administrative change and is not expected to increase or decrease the rates or the revenues of the company.

Inexpensive test can prevent equine "blue baby" deaths

COLLEGE STATION — A $10 blood serum test that could prevent the death of a potential Secretariat or Man o' War due to a "blue baby" syndrome in horses is now available through the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory at Texas A&M University.

Scientists hope the beginning of the 1981-82 foaling season which begins in December will bring more requests for the test, which has only been available since early this year and is still widely unknown, said Dr. Bruce Abbott of the TVMDL, a branch of the Texas A&M University System.

Blue babies in horses, referred to by researchers as NI (neonatal isoerythrolysis), occurs in only 1 percent of all foals.

But NI syndrome — triggered in the first few days of the foal's life by antibodies produced by the pregnant mare in her colostrum (the nutrient-rich fluid that begins to flow just prior to the milk in nursing mothers) — is often fatal, explained Abbott.

The test is designed to detect the presence of the antibodies in the mare before the foal is born, said Abbott, who developed the procedure with technician Leigh Ann Smith.

The foal can then be placed on a substitute source of nutrition, avoiding those mother's antibodies that cause red blood cells in the foal to burst apart.

Renal nerves may control heart function

COLLEGE STATION — Nerves believed to carry messages to the kidneys to control the body's blood volume are being studied by a Texas A&M University scientist in hopes of identifying mechanisms that may contribute to congestive heart failure and hypertension.

Dr. Thomas Peterson, a physiologist with the College of Medicine, said control of the volume of blood in the circulatory system depends to a large extent on the amount of salt and water excreted by the kidneys. When blood volume is altered, he said, renal nerves seem to serve as a relay system to the kidney, resulting in changes in salt excretion by that organ.

A closer understanding of the activities of the kidney in blood volume control may shed light on mechanisms contributing to congestive heart failure — in which the lungs can actually become choked off by an excess of blood and other body fluids — or high blood pressure, the causes of which remain unknown.

INFLATION-FIGHTING FOOD IDEAS

Enlist Rice And Chicken As Budget Allies

It may take a little ingenuity to serve glamorous, tempting meals these days, but many homemakers are winning the budget battle with the assistance of such friendly allies as economical chicken and rice.

Both ingredients are versatile and lend themselves to a variety of delicious dishes. Low-cost rice is a great stretcher of more expensive foods. Its talent for absorbing flavors makes it an excellent extender of meats, fish and dairy products in addition to poultry. Its cost is just pennies a serving and it's easy on the time budget as well since preparation is quick, easy and uncomplicated.

Treat your family or even very special guests to this exotic Glazed Curry Chicken with Rice. It's made in a trice with oven-baked chicken that's sauced with a rich sweet 'n' sour topping tinged with the tang of curry.

Remember these basic facts when you prepare rice: Regular white rice triples when it is cooked—one cup uncooked yields three or more cups of cooked rice. One cup uncooked parboiled rice or brown rice yields four cups cooked. One cup of dry, pre-cooked rice yields one to two cups cooked rice. Since cooked rice stays fresh, if covered, in the refrigerator for several days, make an extra amount to serve later to save time and fuel.

Glaze baked chicken with a rich curry-tinged sauce and serve on a bed of fluffy rice for an exotic, penny-wise meal.

GLAZED CURRY CHICKEN WITH RICE
2 broiler-fryer chickens, quartered
Salt and ground black pepper
3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
1 cup chopped onions
5 slices bacon, finely diced
3 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon curry powder
2 cups chicken broth
1/4 cup orange marmalade
2 tablespoons lemon juice
6 cups hot cooked rice
Pat chicken dry. Season with salt and pepper. Dip chicken pieces into butter, coating well on all sides. Place in baking pan, skin side up. Bake, uncovered, at 400 degrees for 30 minutes. Cook onions and bacon over low heat—until onions are tender. Blend in flour and curry powder. Stir in broth and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Blend in marmalade, catsup, and lemon juice. Spoon sauce over chicken and continue baking 20 minutes longer, or until chicken is tender and richly glazed. Serve over beds of fluffy rice. Makes 8 servings.

Nutrition may deter alcoholism

AUSTIN, Texas (Spl.) — Eating right may keep you from becoming an alcoholic, says Dr. Roger J. Williams, a noted University of Texas biochemist.

In his new book, "The Prevention of Alcoholism Through Nutrition," he says proper foods build a strong internal cellular environment that helps prevent alcoholism. Because alcohol deranges the appetite mechanism in the brain, Dr. Williams says it is "virtually impossible for a person to be well nourished while he or she drinks heavily."

He also advocates taking vitamin and mineral supplements, glutamine (an amino acid) as a food supplement and regular exercise (to improve circulation of nutrients throughout the body).

Thank You
To our friends and neighbors in Lynn, Borden and Dawson Counties:
With deep gratitude and a sense of indebtedness that we can never repay, we convey our appreciation and give thanks to each person who gave unselfishly of their time, labor, machinery and fuel to harvest Clarence's and James' crops while we were in Athens, Greece for Clarence's health. Our gratitude to Paymaster Gin of Draw for furnishing lunch to the workers, to Gus and Mary V. Sherrill for serving the food, and to the gin office crew who have been so concerned. To our friends who saw to the decorating of our home for Christmas in preparation of our return. For all the letters, and phone calls while in Greece which meant so much to us. For all the food, flowers and most important for all the prayers offered in Clarence's behalf. We will be forever grateful. Our hope and prayer is that this New Year will return to you in abundance that which you have so generously given us and may God's richest blessings be with you.

Public employees forfeit vacation time
COLLEGE STATION — The director of a state agency says he has heard enough complaints about lazy public employees — more than half his professional staff lost a total of 16 weeks of annual leave because they were too busy to take it.

Dr. Konrad Eugster, executive director of the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory at Texas A&M University, said 17 of his workers lost a total of 650 hours of paid leave because they were unable to take off from their jobs before Aug. 31.

Under state policy, employees are allowed to carry only a limited number of accrued vacation hours over from one fiscal year to the next. Any amount over that limit is simply lost, or as Eugster prefers to put it, "donated" to the people of Texas.

These staff members were advised by written memoranda and numerous oral communications that they would lose some of their leave time if they did not take it before Aug. 31, said Eugster. "They decided instead to place the state's interest ahead of their personal convenience."

TUSCAN VEGETABLE MEDLEY
4 c. diced eggplant
1 medium clove garlic, minced
1/2 tsp. basil leaves, crushed
1 can (19 oz.) Campbell's Chunky Vegetable Soup
1 c. diced cooked pork
1 1/2 c. cooked shell macaroni
In saucepan, cook eggplant with garlic and basil in butter until tender. Add remaining ingredients. Heat, stir occasionally. Makes about 4 cups, 3 servings.

Few people will ever experience the love and friendship shown to us after the loss of our home. Because of all your donations and gifts the task of starting over has been much easier.

One of the greatest comforts we have is knowing we are part of such a caring community. We hope someday we can show each one of you the same kindness shown us in the past weeks.

Sincere Thanks,
