'Step toward secret police'

CIA used Gestapo tactics?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Taking "a step toward the dangers of a domestic secret police," the CIA amassed files on thousands of Americans, including information gathered by electronic eavesdropping, mail opening and undercover agents, a Senate staff report said today.

The files were collected as part of Operation CHAOS despite then-CIA Director Richard Helms' written warning to the White House in 1969 that "this is an area not within the charter of this agency," according to the Senate intelligence committee staff report. The CIA charter bars it from internal security functions.

Operation CHAOS began in response to demands from Presidents Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard M. Nixon to uncover any foreign influence behind domestic unrest. It continued despite repeated findings that disturbances at home were not controlled or financed from abroad, the Senate report added.

The 52-page document, which revealed few new details about Operation CHAOS, provided extensive descriptions of three related projects — MERRIMACK, RESISTANCE and Project 2.

MERRIMACK began in 1967 as an effort to infiltrate dissident groups in Washington, D.C., to obtain advance information about demonstrations against CIA facilities. Using construction workers and tradesmen as part-time agents, MERRIMACK was gradually expanded to include "any information about the plans and attitudes" of such groups as the Women's Strike for Peace, the Washington Peace Center, the Congress of Racial Equality, and the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

In some instances, photographs were taken and persons were followed to their homes, the report said. MERRIMACK, which by the CIA's own testimony exceeded the agency's legitimate security interests, lasted until September 1970.

RESISTANCE, which lasted from 1967 to 1973, "compiled information about radical groups around the country, particularly on campuses," the report said.

The project developed an estimated 600 to 700 files consisting mainly of newspaper clippings but also including "information from confidential sources in the local community such as campus officials and police authorities," according to the report.

Project 2 began in 1970 as a separate operation in which agents entered American universities in preparation for undercover assignments abroad.

Information gathered from all three projects went into a computerized index of some 300,000 American names kept by Operation CHAOS.

CHAOS, which kept separate files on an estimated 7,500 Americans, also relied on information supplied by its own agents, CIA field offices in the United States and abroad, the agency's mail opening program, the FBI and the National Security Agency, the report said.

At least a score of CHAOS agents "participated in radical activity here as part of their preparation for assignment overseas," the report said. "In the process, they supplied detailed information on domestic activities of Americans."

D'ESTAING AND FORD — Framed by the American and French flags, President Ford delivers remarks during welcoming ceremonies Monday on the White House grounds for French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, who is standing behind him.

French chief defends concept of detente

WASHINGTON (AP) — French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing today defended the concept of detente with Communist powers as an "open and sincere approach" which serves the interest of peace.

In an address to a joint session of Congress, Giscard d'Estaing noted France's pioneer role in undertaking a policy of detente and cooperation "aimed at developing common interests on both sides and gradually laying the bases for understanding and mutual trust."

"Detente is an open and sincere approach," he said. "It requires perseverance; it means we must keep our eyes open. It must be based on reciprocity."

The French president spoke after meeting for a second day of talks at the White House with President Ford. Without saying so directly, Giscard d'Estaing suggested to Congress that the United States keep up its efforts to establish a cooperative relationship with the Soviet Union.

His speech came at a time when the Ford administration has dropped the word "detente" from its official lexicon in the face of criticism of its Soviet policy from presidential contenders in both the Republican and Democratic parties.

Focalpoint

Action/reaction: Air base to survive?

Q. A rumor appeared today that Kincheloe Air Force Base in Michigan would be taken off the closing list. This is the only base on the list in President Gerald Ford's home state. Is this rumor true?

A. Congressman Omar Burleson said that he contacted Col. Hal W. Howes, heading the planning group at the Pentagon for the Air Force who denied the rumor, stating that at this time, the rumor was not true. Cong. Burleson said, "We would not be very happy about it, if it were true."

Will Ball of Sen. John Tower's staff said that a Col. Skorepa, head of the legislation division for the Secretary of the Air Force, said that there has been no such determination and that he has never heard of it.

Major Melton Trachta, information officer at Kincheloe AFB, said that the wing commander was out of town and that they had not heard this rumor.

However, City Manager Rush Cattell of nearby Sault Ste. Marie said, "I think there will be such an announcement before November. The president of our college, Lake Superior State, has led the drive to prove that the removal of the base in this area would be disastrous. He has taken a lot of surveys and made a lot of noise. President Ford is aware of the noise that has been made here in his home state. In fact, we have heard up here that Big Spring, Texas and Sault Ste. Marie are making the loudest objections to the base closings. We wish you luck."

Sault Ste. Marie is a town of about 15,000 with an airbase with over 3,000 military personnel and residents are caught up in the same type of situation as Big Spring.

Offbeat: Vote, vote, vote . . .

MANCHESTER, Ga. (AP) — Manchester voters went to the polls for the ninth time in four months in an effort to elect two city commissioners to complete a five-man panel. They finally succeeded.

Elected on Wednesday were Hugh "Sonny" Bradshaw and Jack Dorman. Bradshaw received 851 votes and Dorman 841. The third candidate, Willie James "Ted" Anderson, received 536 votes.

The elections, which began Jan. 14, were necessary because of a city law that states a candidate must receive a majority vote to be elected. Bradshaw and Dorman easily surpassed the majority figure of 665 votes.

Search for 'missing' boy ends in city jail

By JOHN EDWARDS

A Saturday night search for a 13-year-old boy involving police, the sheriff's office and volunteers ended when police discovered the youth in the city jail.

The police log shows that a juvenile was arrested for shoplifting at a local store at 2:16 p.m. Saturday, that police were notified the youth was missing at 9:01 p.m. Saturday and that the search was canceled at 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

Police Chief Stanley Bogard said police tried to contact the boy's parents when he was arrested and again two hours later.

A city juvenile officer became ill with the flu and left duty to see Dr. R. B. G. Cowper, Bogard and Lt. Jim McCain of the police juvenile division said.

Although the police log shows the search was ended at 12:30 a.m. Sunday, Bogard and McCain verbally said police learned where the boy was earlier.

Bogard said the boy was discovered in the jail about one and one-half hours after the parents notified police.

McCain said he thought 10:30 p.m. or 11 p.m. was closer to the time police learned of the boy's whereabouts.

The boy was released about midnight Saturday, police said.

"We discovered where the boy was about 12:30," Sheriff A. N. Standard said.

The boy's father said Standard told him about 12:30 a.m. that the boy had been found.

Speaking of the police verbal version of the times, the father said police were "inaccurate again."

About 30 persons — law enforcement officers, CB radio volunteers and members of a motorcycle club — combed the hilly, brushy area behind the Highland South Shopping Center Saturday night, Standard said.

Standard said he asked the Texas Department of Public Safety (DPS) in Midland to send a helicopter to assist in the search. The DPS helicopter was not equipped with lights needed for night searches, Standard was told.

Ed Cherry, county juvenile probation officer, was not notified about the matter Saturday but got a referral on the alleged attempted theft later, Bogard said.

"The boy did not attempt to take the skate board," Cherry said.

Had he intentionally tried to steal the item, the offense is a misdemeanor and the juvenile would not have been prosecuted, Cherry said.

The store manager was asked if company officials would seek prosecution through juvenile court.

"What happened down there to him is none of our business," the manager said. "That's all I've got to say about it."

"We did foul up," Bogard said, "and we have taken steps to rectify it."

Police are "taking every step that we possibly can to see that it doesn't happen again," Bogard said.

There would be "no change in policy because we've had the policy all the time," Bogard said.

"There has been disciplinary action," Bogard said.

An officer in the city juvenile division has been given "days off" without pay, Bogard said.

Bogard declined to identify the officer disciplined or say how many days without pay were ordered.

"Part of the reason it's so easy to have a mix up is that the state regulations on juveniles are so strict you have to keep all the names and files separately," McCain said.

McCain said police had three juveniles, and nine adults, illegal aliens excluded, in city jail Saturday night.

For breaking law

'Security' no excuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — The motive of "national security" is no automatic justification for a presidential aide to break the law, a federal appeals court said in upholding the conviction of former White House aide John Ehrlichman.

The U.S. Court of Appeals affirmed

Monday the conviction of Ehrlichman for violating the civil rights of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist by aiding in a break-in at the psychiatrist's office. Ehrlichman's lawyer said he would ask the Supreme Court to hear a further appeal.

Meanwhile, Ehrlichman could begin a 20-month prison term for that conviction. U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard Gesell must decide whether Ehrlichman should go to jail before the Supreme Court acts. His decision can also be appealed to the high court.

The three-judge appeals panel also upheld the conviction of the "silent man" of Watergate, G. Gordon Liddy, currently serving a jail sentence for the Watergate break-in, for his role in the burglary of the psychiatrist's office.

In that case, the appeals court rejected Ehrlichman's claim that he was acting under presidential authority to protect the national security when he authorized White House "plumbers" to burglarize the psychiatrist's office to find personal material about Ellsberg, who has acknowledged leaking the Pentagon papers.

Appeals Court Judge Malcolm Wilkey said the use of national security as a defense is "subject to abuse" unless carefully limited.

Wilkey wrote that such a "risk is substantially magnified when the decision-making group, as here, is an amorphous, ad hoc unit with no tradition of public service and no clear lines of responsibility."

There will be voting devices at a place in each county commissioner's precinct.

In precinct one, it will be the Northside Fire Station; in two, at Washington Elementary School; in three, at the Eighteenth and Main Streets, Fire Station; and in four, at the Fourth and Nolan Streets Fire Station.

Utility panel nixes preferred fuel cost rates

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Public Utilities Commission today adopted a rule that would require electric companies to bill customers at a flat rate for fuel costs, regardless of how much power a customer buys.

In areas regulated by the commission, starting in September, this would wipe out much of the preferential rates now given large commercial users.

Surprisingly there was little protest from the utility company representatives in the commission hearing room.

Robert Webb of Houston Lighting and Power Co. did propose the use of separate fuel adjustment factors for each customer class.

Asst. City Atty. Harriet Hubacker of Houston agreed with Webb — with whom she had differed several times during the hearing — and said that local regulatory bodies should be able to impose rating structures that would best reflect the needs of their citizens.

Primary stakes high

By The Associated Press

President Ford has more to lose than any other candidate as the primary election wheel takes two new spins today, with the Republican stakes highest in his own Michigan territory.

It is a day to watch the losers, in Michigan and in the Maryland Democratic primary. No candidate is going to win enough to settle the competition for presidential nominations.

Democrat Jimmy Carter is running in both states, trying to prove that his foes can't stop him, but saying it won't be serious if he loses.

Michigan's delegates will be shared in proportion to the popular vote, so there is something to be gained even in defeat.

Ford has pronounced victory in Michigan a must. Ronald Reagan said a win over the President in his home state would be something of a miracle.

Nonetheless, Reagan's strategists thought they had an opportunity to make a race of it, and spent more than $50,000 on a television advertising barrage in the days before the balloting.

Scout rescues baby from mountain river

RUIDOSO, N.M. (AP) — Dan Ellis, a 12-year-old Boy Scout, saved the life of a 20-month-old baby by administering cardio pulmonary resuscitation after Ronnie Stallings, 14, rescued the child from the Rio Ruidoso.

Authorities said the little boy, Paul Germany, apparently fell off two logs jutting into the river near his parents' home in Ruidoso.

Paul, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Germany, apparently wandered away from home with his 3-year-old brother Matthew to the small river about 60 feet from the house.

Dan and Ronnie, in a nearby meadow, heard the Matthew's cries and ran to the river, where they saw Paul being swept away by the current. They scrambled after the baby, climbing several fences before catching him.

Ronnie went into the water, which was about 1½ feet deep at that point, and pulled Paul out of the water. He handed him to Dan, who had learned cardio pulmonary resuscitation in the Boy Scouts.

Dan said Monday that the baby wasn't breathing.

"I laid him on his back and he started to choke," he recalled. "Then I turned him on his side."

He said he began administering resuscitation and then, "I saw water gush out of his mouth. I think I had worked on him about 40 seconds. Then he began to cry."

Last year Continental Oil Company celebrated their 100th birthday. And they've also been around Howard County around 50 years.

The first well in the county was drilled by Fred Hyer and later sold to Continental, which is now Conoco.

One of the wells that they plan to mark as a historical attraction is that old Fred Hyer No. 1.

They also have painted some pump jacks along the highway out toward Forsan, red, white and blue. And in between Big Spring and Sterling City is a big Happy Birthday sign put up by the company to mark the country's Bicentennial year.

I think all of this is wonderful and points up the importance of the oil industry in the history of America, the history of Texas and the history of Howard County.

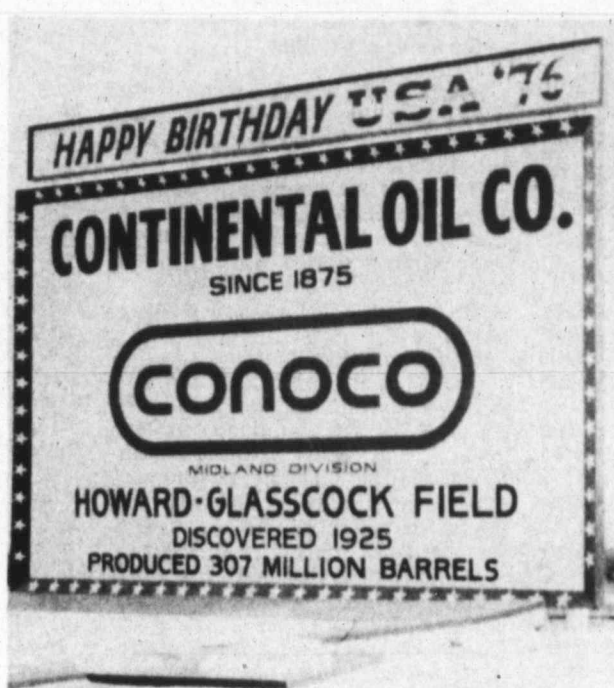

One of my favorite couples in Howard County is connected with the oil industry — although not Conoco. Conoco has some wonderful pioneers here in the county, especially down around Forsan.

But this couple I'm talking about is an independent oil man that's worked hard and played hard all of his life, while his wife has "patience hard." If there's no such word, there should be. I'm talking about Ted and Ether Groehl.

In recent weeks, drilling has fallen off a little bit again with more employees down around the employment office hunting work. This has followed the recent so-called energy bill.

Groehl, in looking through some old papers the other day came across a "Texas Oil Jobber" published in 1962. The article on the left hand side of the page said, in part:

"The oil industry today offers opportunities in a situation that is not without its problems. One major oil company, for example, had a first quarter improvement, which can be attributed to the larger share of the gasoline market, increased chemical profits and benefits from the economy moves that had been initiated earlier. With some improvement in product prices, 1962 could be the best year in the company's history."

For those readers who are not oil people, that's pretty boring, and so might the statement up in the right hand corner of that same periodical be boring to the non-oilers. But to the oil patch, that little quotation used to be like waving a bright red flag in front of a bull.

It said, "Texas oil wells will produce eight days in August, seventh straight month of eight-day limit, the state railroad commission has announced."

Ted, in one of his angry moments had put down in the corner, "For over 25 years, North-Easterners, Mid-Westerners, their representatives and importers were clamoring for more imports of cheap foreign crude oil. The American Producers be damned. I used a deleted expletive — if Nixon could have 'em — so can Ted."

The notation continued, "Keep prices and allowances at a minimum. Stifle the Wildcaters — Discourage development and discovery of more National reserves."

By then, Ted had worked himself up into a real frenzy just thinking about all these things that had been done and which account for so much of the mess the industry is in today.

Across the bottom, he had written in capital letters a true oilman's sentiments, "Put the blame where it belongs — Get the Government out of free enterprise."

That's exactly what all oil-blooded West Texans have been saying for a long time. Oil Patch people are a strange breed. They work hard, cuss hard, play hard, and give hard when people need help.

They call strange looking things names like "Christmas trees," when they're not, and wish for the early days of the real true free enterprise in the oil patch.

They shrug whenever environmentalists claim to smell oil in the air and say

"It smells like money for the community to me."

But they have been real pioneers and backbone in an industry that is becoming increasingly important.

And Ted's just one of many good examples of that kind of person — out where I am ridin' fence.

Utility panel to mull fuel charges

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Public Utilities Commission is expected to take up fuel adjustment charges when hearings resume today on rules to govern utility companies.

The rate of the fuel adjustment charge, which the cost of higher fuel passed on to the consumer, is now different for a residential customer than it is for a commercial or industrial user. Some have proposed a flat rate for all.

The commission Monday retracted its controversial proposal to allow utilities to recover from consumers only half their expenditures for donations and advertising.

But it said it would allow such expenditures as part of a company's rate base only up to three-tenths of 1 per cent of its gross receipts.

The proposal accounted for the most heated argument in the commission's all-day hearing on its 88-page proposed rule book for regulating utility rates and service.

Newspaper trade associations that had opposed the original proposal on advertising were divided in their reaction to the amended rule that the commission finally approved.

"We seem to have lost ground," said John Taylor, president of the Texas Press Association.

"It is going to be a better deal," said John Murphy of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association.

The original proposal would have allowed a utility company to include only half of its charitable contributions and advertising costs in its rate base, up to 1 per cent of its gross receipts. It was attacked by broadcasters, chambers of commerce and the Salvation Army, as well as by the newspaper associations.

Les Daughtry of Galveston, speaking for the TDNA, said advertising by Texas utilities did not exceed $8 million a year and had "very little effect" on rates to consumers.

Later, Tom Stealy of Paris, speaking for the TPA, asked why the commission staff decided on three-tenths of 1 per cent as the allowable proportion of gross receipts for advertising and donations.

"That's about $20 million a year, based on the gross receipts of utilities in this state," said commission chairman Garrett Morris.

Chambers of Commerce and the Salvation Army said utilities have been generous contributors and expressed fear that the rule would dry up donations and other forms of support.

Rush Evans of Austin, president of the Texas Association of Broadcasters, said a limitation on advertising was "an obvious conflict with the First Amendment and the public's right to hear both sides of every issue."

Laura Kever of the League of Women Voters said it was "ludicrous in a time of energy shortages that anyone would want to promote the consumption of energy."

The rules allow the commission to eliminate

Revenues, expenses of CRMWD increase

Revenues were up, but so were expenses, for the Colorado River Municipal Water District during the first four months of this year.

Income amounted to $1,868,004 for the period, up $374,000. Most of the gain, or $227,000, came from cities which aid $1,124,100 for water during the period. Oil companies paid $712,763 for water during the four months, a gain of $11,000 since most contracts are tied in some way to city rates which are higher this year to meet increased debt service requirements.

Water deliveries through April totaled 5,530,781,000 gallons, up 598 million gallons of 16 per cent from a year ago. Expenses for operation amounted to $674,808 up $97,000. Of this, $85,000 came from increased power costs. Another $18,000 increase resulted in greater water purchases in the Ward County well field in order to conserve on pumping costs for the west end of the system.

Through April, $1,175,000 had been transferred to the net revenue fund, from which most will go to debt service.

For the first four months, water purchases by the cities include $538,349 for Odessa, $256,130 for Big Spring, $71,404 for Snyder, $4,788 for Stanton, $24,333 for San Angelo, $202,029 for Midland, $405 for Robert Lee, and $26,748 for rural users. Income from recreational facilities amounted to $24,645 for the period, a gain of $5,000, and miscellaneous income of $6,405 was up by $3,000.

Air winners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1976 winners of the Janus Awards for "Excellence in Financial News Programming" are KMOX, St. Louis; WTMJ-TV, Milwaukee; and ABC, New York.

The awards are presented annually "to recognize broadcasting stations and networks whose financial news programs have made a significant contribution to community understanding of commerce and finance."

HC to receive $3,169 in scholarship funds

Howard College will receive $3,169 in federal funds for use toward scholarships, according to Dr. Charles Hays, college president.

The funds were awarded to the college, a participant in the Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants Program, for the period July 1, 1976 through June 30, 1977.

"Under the program, we receive funds for a 12-month period. These are usually less than what we ask for," said Hays. "At the end of the year, if the program has money left over, colleges are pro-rated and we receive supplemental funds," he added.

Under the grants program, funds range from $200 to $1,500 for each academic year of undergraduate study awarded by participating institutions of postsecondary education to students of exceptional financial need who are eligible for the program.

Each grant requires provision of an equal amount from other sources.

Walter Mittys visit Webb AFB

What would it be like to climb into a military jet and zip through the sky much faster than man could ever dream of traveling?

What would it be like to pilot a cargo plane bigger than a building which could refuel other planes in mid-air putting out more gas in a minute than the average passenger car can use in a year?

A near-sighted, motion-sickness fellow like me will never know.

But on Saturday I came close. The open house at Webb Air Force Base, the climax of observances of Armed Services Week in Big Spring, allowed ordinary people like me to get some sensation of what being a jet pilot would be like.

Airplanes, like ships, hold a fascination for people, and we will turn out in droves for a chance to inspect them close up.

We are all Walter Mittys at heart, imagining the sensation of piloting an Air Force strike aircraft over the earth at unbelievable speeds.

Like children, we love the opportunity to actually climb in the pilot's seat of a jet, or to stick our heads up in the fuselage and see how really complex such an aircraft can be.

JIMMY TAYLOR

With each of the military planes, pilots or ground crewmen were there to explain their workings and capabilities.

Having some vintage aircraft, provided by collectors Bill and Connie Edwards of Big Spring, along side the Air Force jets makes one realize how far aviation has come in only a generation.

It was terrific of Webb AFB to host the open house for all of us dreamers who are fans of looking at airplanes. The event was a good one for the community.

In turn, the community had a chance to do something for Webb later that evening when the Century Club hosted the mini-rodeo and barbecue for enlisted men and their families.

Thanks to the efforts of Jimmy Taylor, president of First National Bank and general chairman of the event, and to the hard work of many others, the rodeo and barbecue were smash hits. The crowd was much larger than anyone expected with 1,500 plates being served inside the Howard County Fair Barn.

It was a great day all around, and even the weather could not have been nicer than it was on Saturday.

Perhaps while I was daydreaming about working around the jets, a sergeant from New York was thinking about roping a calf.

James Thurber, eat your heart out.

Strange but true

Around the rim

Troy Bryant

Man is his own worst enemy, it is safe to say. Computers tell us that auto accidents kill more people than all the wars put together.

THEY EVEN SAY those who smoke, eat red dye no. 2, eat cyclamates, and cross the street are putting their lives on the line.

There is a serious side to this, of course, but I'm going to call upon my vast network of grapevines to bring you a couple of stories. Warning: they may be funny to you, but they certainly were not to the main characters.

Tragi-comic story no. 1: A man who lists his occupation as a dragline operator in Florida was so proud of his new 750 Honda motorcycle that he invited a neighbor over to show off the machine. As the two men were standing on the patio admiring the machine, the new owner pressed the starter button in order to prove how quietly the engine ran.

The motorcycle was in gear, and plunged through a glass door into his living room, dragging him along with it. He was taken to the hospital, where he received treatment for numerous cuts on his arms and face. ("That's bad," you say. But hold on. The story isn't over yet.)

Meanwhile, back at the house, his wife was sipping up gasoline that was seeping from the motorcycle, which was lying on its side in the living room. She flushed some gasoline-soaked paper towels down the toilet. Her husband returned home from the hospital, saw his new motorcycle and the shattered patio door, and took shelter in the bathroom. He lit a cigarette and sat on the john, dropping the match in the bowl. The paper towels had clogged the pipes, and the match detonated the gasoline. (Oh, the many evils of smoking.)

THE EXPLOSION blew the porcelain facility to pieces and propelled the man into the air, inflicting third degree burns on his exposed underside. (Third degree burns aren't funny regardless of where they are.)

His wife called for an ambulance. Because of the nature of his burns, the attendants had to carry him spread-eagle, face-down on the stretcher. ("Poor fellow," you say. But wait, there's more.)

As he was being carried inside the hospital, one of the attendants tripped, and the stretcher crashed to the ground, breaking the man's leg. (You don't have to believe all that, but it's true.)

Tragi-comic story no. 2 (shorter): A man from Texas was admitted to a Veterans' Administration Hospital (a distant cousin to the one in Big Spring) for treatment of a gunshot wound in the foot.

When asked to explain the mishap, he said that he was sitting down when he noticed a spider on his foot. Since he had no newspapers handy to swat it, he said he was forced to shoot it off with a 16 gauge shotgun. (The moral of the story is: always keep newspapers handy.)

Soviets spy on pipeline

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — Soviet reconnaissance planes have been spying on the new Alaskan oil pipeline. "Frequent incursions" into U.S. air space have been reported from Alaska. The most serious incident was a spy flight last winter over U.S. military exercises aimed at protecting the pipeline.

Overflights by both the United States and Soviet Union of each other's outlying territories are nothing new, but it usually has been done by high-flying camera planes or reconnaissance satellites. In this case, MIG-23 or MIG-25 fighter planes buzzed the "supersecret" Army maneuvers.

THE PLANES swept down a valley and zoomed over the pipeline route, then veered west over the Bering Strait toward their bases in Siberia. Significantly, they stayed inside U.S. air space about 12 minutes, which is the time it takes for U.S. interceptors to get off the ground and reach the intruders.

The Soviet flights were discovered by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Outer Continental Shelf Committee which held hearings in Alaska last year.

From his own sources, Murphy learned about the intrusion and reported his findings in a confidential letter to Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld.

"Eyewitness sources in the 172nd Infantry Brigade in Alaska," wrote Murphy, "reported that during Field Training Exercise JACK FROST in November and December 1975, two high-performance Soviet photo-reconnaissance aircraft overflew the Trans-Alaskan pipeline, now under construction."

"THE PAIR OF Soviet aircraft of the MIG-23 or MIG-25 type are reported to have photographed elements of the Army as the troops were occupying defensive positions along the pipeline."

Murphy said about 3,000 troops, involved in the exercise, "were occupying their wartime defensive positions. Consequently, there was much intelligence concerning U.S. military plans to be gained by closely observing and photographing the maneuvers."

As Murphy described the incident, the U.S. troops were divided into two "armies," with a Ranger battalion "attacking" the pipeline and the 172nd brigade making sure the flow of oil was not disrupted.

The New York congressman suggested tersely that "any similar incursions by United States military aircraft over Russian air space would be met with hostile fire, forced landings or hot pursuit."

Footnote: The Air Force told us it had no record of the overflights reported by Murphy. When intruders are detected the Air Force procedure is to send up armed interceptors which hold their fire unless the intruders appear aggressive.

BRASS RING: Today we award the brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, to Aldeino Ruiz.

Our associate Joe Spear, now on a news-gathering trip through the Middle East, discovered Ruiz in the remote, rugged reaches of North Yemen. This is a primitive country barely 14 years out of the Middle Ages.

Al Ruiz, a 52-year-old Puerto Rican, is head of the U.S. AID mission in North Yemen. He has probably been the best bargain in our postwar, $168-billion foreign aid program. With surplus equipment and borrowed tools, he has accomplished more than most missions have been able to buy with billions of dollars.

There were no electrical, welding or machine shops in all North Yemen in 1962. Yet by sheer enterprise, he trained the Yemenis to build and operate a complicated public water system in the city of Taiz.

HE SCROUNGED a surplus generator from the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota. He arranged with the manufacturer to change the cycle. Then it was shipped to Yemen in pieces and put back together again. After the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, the Yemenis named their new water system the "Kennedy Memorial Water System."

Ruiz has a high regard for the resourceful, hard-working Yemeni people. He feels the best way to help them is with a hand up instead of a hand out. He adopted the policy, therefore, that he wouldn't undertake a project unless the Yemenis agreed to pitch in.

Between 1962 and 1967, Ruiz initiated 85 "self-help" projects, bringing portable water and feeder roads to the hinterland. Once he engineered a road through rugged mountains as high as 12,000 feet. As the crewmen were laying the roadbed through one mountain pass, he recalls, they passed beneath a hilltop palace occupied by a local sheikh. Just for sport, the sheikh would take potshots at the road crew with a rifle.

Ruiz had to appeal to the federal authorities who sent a contingent of soldiers to subdue the sheikh. The protesting sheikh was locked in the slammer until the construction was completed. Then he was released, with a strong admonition that he shouldn't use passing vehicles for target practice.

A MUTUAL RESPECT has built up, meanwhile, between Al Ruiz and the Yemeni people. Admiring colleagues refer to him as "Mr. Yemen." Ask the average Yemeni, meanwhile, what Russia gives his country, and he will reply: "Guns." Ask him what the United States gives and the reply is: "Water."

Footnote: Talking to Spear about his work, Ruiz said: "We are helping the poorest of the poor here. I could use more money, sure. But not too much more. I don't want to bring in the bulldozers and rape the country. We can't break the membrane. We have to consider the human factor. We have the agriculture know-how to help these people. The Yemeni farmer is good. He knows the land; he works hard. With a little help, Yemen could become the breadbasket of the Arabian peninsula."

What others say

Sheriff Harold Bray of Jefferson County in Colorado has been advertising for deputies in a publication of the American Philosophical Association. In it he states a preference for "Ph.D.s with specialization in classical or early modern philosophy."

The sheriff's idea is not entirely theoretical with him, either. He already has a deputy who did a dissertation on Spinoza.

Plato once described Utopia as a place where philosophers are kings. Jefferson County is at least on the way, with them as deputy sheriffs.

Atlanta (Ga.) Journal

Lots of smoke

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — The original idea for the political conventions was that the Democrats were supposed to choose their candidate in a smoke-filled room in New York City after a deadlock amongst all the candidates who ran in the primaries.

The Republicans, on the other hand, were going to go through the motions of nominating Gerald Ford unanimously after three days of filling in TV time at Kansas City.

WELL, A FUNNY thing happened on the way to the conventions. It looks as if Jimmy Carter will be the Democratic candidate without too much of a struggle, while a real brouhaha will take place in Kansas City.

The first inkling of this was when the national Democratic Party tried to cancel the smoke-filled room it ordered at the Statler Hotel across from Madison Square Garden.

A high functionary of the party called the manager of the hotel and said, "We won't be needing a smoke-filled room in July for the convention."

"Does this mean Mayor Daley, Leonard Woodcock, George Meany, George Wallace, Mo Udall, Sen. Jackson and Gov. Carey will not be coming to the convention?" the manager asked.

"No, they'll probably be there along with all the other power brokers, but it doesn't look as if there will be any horse trading at the convention as was originally planned. Carter should have the whole thing sewed up by then."

"DO YOU WANT ME to cancel Sen. Humphrey's room?"

"No, I think he's still hoping lightning will strike, and if we canceled his room at this stage he might feel unwanted."

"You know," the manager said, "there will be a charge for this cancellation. We had special air conditioning put in the room because you insisted that you would be needing it."

"I understand that," the Democratic official said, "but at the time we were certain it would be necessary to have it. How did we know Carter would walk away with all the marbles? The power brokers in the party aren't any happier about this than we are. They were hoping to call the shots when they came to New York. Now they have to sit there with egg on their faces instead of cigars, pretending they were for Carter all the time."

IN THE MEANTIME, over at the Republican National Headquarters an official was calling the Radisson Muehlebach Hotel manager in Kansas City.

"Listen," the official said, "we're going to need a smoke-filled room for our convention."

The manager became very huffy. "It was my understanding that the Republicans would not have any smoke-filled rooms. If you recall it one of the conditions of your being permitted to hold the convention in our city."

"WELL, THINGS have changed, and if Reagan keeps winning, we may have to settle the whole thing in a smoke-filled room."

Stay off sinus 'merry-go-round'

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had surgery a year ago to unblock and drain my sinuses. I have used nose drops and have taken medication since, but the infection keeps coming back. My head gets stopped up and hurts. My eyes tend to face puff up.

I feel discouraged because this seems like an endless problem. Is this to be expected? — F.O.B.

You may be on the old sinus merry-go-round.

Your doctor has undoubtedly checked for common problems, such as nasal polyps or bent septum (the wall separating the nostrils). Both conditions can cause the blockage, and blockage is an invitation to sinus infection. That's what I mean by merry-go-round.

The blockage infection cycle can be vicious. Smoking or excessive use of nose drops and sprays only worsens matters. Either can tip the scales in favor of infection because they tend to make the membranes swell.

But you shouldn't discount a possible allergy. The swelling, watery eyes and puffiness suggest this. Sensitivity to house dust, pets, pillow stuffing or other items you are continually exposed to should be investigated.

Nasal passages and the sinuses are made to perform their cleansing and lubrication work efficiently. It is when one of the factors mentioned above enters the scene that trouble occurs.

You won't find a lasting solution until you find the exact cause.

Then you will need some continuous attention from a physician skilled in these matters to help you off the merry-go-round. You can help by quitting cigarettes if you smoke, and by cutting down on the drops and sprays. You may find the booklet, "How to Stop Sinus Trouble," helpful. (For a copy, send 35 cents to me in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you please give me some information about inflammation of the pancreas — the cause, etc. Could it keep a person thin? — M.C.

The pancreas (PAN-cree-us) is a very important gland located in the upper mid-portion of the abdomen, just behind the stomach. It is about six inches long and an inch thick in adults.

It produces digestive juices, which flow directly into the small bowel, and also, of course, insulin and glucagon, which go directly into the bloodstream.

Inflammation (pancreatitis) causes severe pain, which can be chronic. The cause in about two-thirds of the cases is either too much alcohol intake or a gall bladder infection. Distress comes about 24 hours after a drinking bout.

The pancreas and the gall bladder ducts enter the small bowel quite close to each other. Thus, infection in one can readily enter the duct of the other.

Drinking alcoholic beverages must be stopped if that is a factor. The gall bladder is taken out if that is the source of the infection. Stones in the pancreas, plugged ducts or cysts can also be involved in pancreas disease. If untreated, loss of insulin production can cause diabetes. Insulin is the essential material for "burning" of sugar in the body.

Since a pancreas disorder will interfere with digestion, it could keep a person thin, as you suggest.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For what reason is a high-fiber diet given in arthritis? — J.C.

Diet plays no particular role in treatment of arthritis. One reason for advising a high-fiber intake would be to avoid constipation, which could be a problem with people severely limited in activity by arthritis.

The fiber helps keep the bowels active.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have heard it said that we must surrender completely to the Lord Jesus Christ and make Him first in our lives. What does this mean? — P.E.

DEAR P.E.: I believe Jesus dealt with this when He said "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me" (Luke 9:23).

By nature we are concerned only about ourselves. This does not mean that we are always outwardly selfish, but our motive is to live for the self rather than for God.

When we accept Christ as our Lord and Savior, all of this begins to change. "And he died for all that those who live should no longer live for themselves, but for him who died for them and was raised again" (2 Corinthians 5:15, New Int'l. Version). Christ tells us that we should renounce our plans and our ambitions and seek to follow Him above all else.

Christ wants our whole lives. Nothing is omitted. He wants to rule our possessions, our relationships, our habits, our thoughts, our goals — every area of our lives.

We only serve Christ imperfectly in this life, and we should always seek His forgiveness for our sins and failures. However, we are still called upon to yield everything to Him daily and let Him rule every area of our lives. Only then can we know the blessings of God's presence every day.

Fighting fierce

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Moslem and Christian armies fought another dusk-to-dawn duel with rockets and artillery, police said today, leaving at least 207 persons killed and 346 wounded. By police estimates, nearly 500 persons have been killed in the past three days, marking it as one of the bloodiest periods in Lebanon's 13½-month-old civil war that has taken nearly 20,000 lives.

West bank curfews set

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli security forces clamped curfews today on two more West Bank towns near the Palestinian refugee camp where an Arab youth was slain by soldiers during a rock-throwing riot. The government radio reported curfews were ordered at Ramallah and El Bira. Curfews imposed Monday on three other West Bank towns were continued. Abdullah Mustafa Hawas, 20, was killed Monday when Israeli soldiers in a truck fired after rioters attacked the vehicle.

Thailand rejects U.S.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Thailand will not permit U.S. aircraft to use the strategic Utapao air base past the July 20 deadline for American military withdrawal from this country, Foreign Minister Pichai Rattakul said today. He told reporters that the U.S. Embassy had given him a memorandum proposing the U.S. retention of an electronics intelligence center at Ramusen, the Koh Kha radar site and several other installations.

Quake aid to Uzbek

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government was moving emergency equipment today into the Soviet republic of Uzbek, struck by two powerful earthquakes within six weeks. Official Soviet news media made practically no mention of the Monday quake except to repeat the same brief story that appeared after it occurred. It said there was "damage in a number of places" but no casualties. In northeastern Italy, another sharp tremor on Monday shook the Friuli area that was devastated by a quake May 6. There were no reports of casualties or serious damage. The earlier quake claimed 923 lives.

List might endanger governor

Open records act linked to security

AUSTIN (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill said Monday that a list of persons entering and leaving the governor's mansion cannot be made public because it might endanger the governor.

The legal opinion, asked by Col. Wilson Speir, head of the Department of Public Safety, was one of eight interpretations made by Hill's department of the Texas Open Records Act.

Speir, whose officers are assigned to provide security at the mansion 24 hours a day, said he had been asked for copies of the daily list of those entering and leaving the governor's residence.

Hill said that in a previous Open Records Act opinion the attorney general said that information which could assist an individual in violating the law or avoiding detection should not be made public.

"We believe that requiring disclosure of the listing and report involved here would disclose the security practices of the Department of Public Safety and could assist a person in simultaneously violating the law and avoiding detection," the new opinion said.

Other interpretations in the new opinion included:

—That requests for the names and addresses of burglary victims should be made public because they are included on the first page of police offense reports, which are public. Asked by Dallas City Atty. Alex Bickley and Arlington Police Chief

First latin on Welfare Board

AUSTIN (AP) — Raul Jimenez, who turned bottled hot sauce and canned tamales into a multi-million dollar business, is the first Mexican-American to serve on the state welfare board.

Jimenez was sworn in Monday by Chief Justice Joe Greenhill of the Texas Supreme Court, whose mother was the first director of child welfare in Texas.

Jimenez demonstrated his bilingual ability by making his acceptance speech in English and Spanish.

"I didn't know I had so many friends," said Jimenez, looking over the court chamber, which was filled with well-wishers from San Antonio, his home, and Fort Worth, where he has business offices.

Jimenez is president and chairman of the board of Jimenez Food Products, Inc.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe appointed him to the board last month to succeed George Butler, 76, of Houston, who resigned because of poor health.

Crafts boom

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The do-it-yourself crafts boom accounted for $400 million in retail sales last year for store-bought materials and kits. In addition, used items such as juice cans, milk cartons, hosiery "eggs" and other types of packaging were popular.

January, and Jimenez will serve only until then unless the governor reappoints him. He resigned as a member of the Texas Board of Health Resources to take the welfare post.

Briscoe was not at the swearing-in, but he was represented by special assistant Rodolfo Flores, who described Jimenez as a "self-made man."

Jimenez was born in Dallas and sold trinkets

Criminal docket growing

County Judge Bill Tune held jury trials for two appealed traffic citations and disposed of 51 criminal cases altogether during April.

But the criminal docket still grew by 52 cases to a total of 596 pending.

There were 55 appeals from lower courts, and County Attorney W. H. (Bill) Eysen Jr. filed 55 new cases. Eysen won both jury trials.

Pleading guilty or no contest were defendants in 33 cases. Judge Tune dismissed 15 cases and remanded another to lower court.

In civil action, three new suits were added, and none were disposed of.

International delegates head for Tulsa oil show

TULSA — International delegates who are involved in oil and gas activities and all other forms of energy business are beginning to converge on Tulsa, Okla., as the International Petroleum Exposition & Congress opened Monday. The "World Energy Show" will run through Friday, and is expected to attract delegates from 90 foreign countries and every state in the U.S.A.

The U.S. Department of Commerce in Washington notified IPE officials this week that a delegation of foreign buyers from Oil India, Ltd., of Dullajan, Assam, will be among those international guests who will attend the IPE. The Department of Commerce has been promoting the IPE through 87 U.S. Embassies as one of the "V.I.P." trade shows worthy of attendance during America's Bicentennial year.

The Indian dignitaries include: C. R. Jagannathan, resident chief executive for Oil India, Ltd.; H. R. Gupta, production superintendent, and B. D. Datta, senior development geologist. Oil India, Ltd. is a joint venture of the Burmah Oil Company and the Government of India, for exploration and drilling of crude petroleum in northeast India. The company is one of the major potential buyers of U.S. oil drilling equipment.

The IPE has set up an "International Delegate Center" at the Exposition. The Department of Commerce's Foreign Buyer Program will have space within the center to get buyers and sellers together.

Jacobsens's plea won't affect government case

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — A special federal prosecutor pursuing the case of Austin lawyer Jake Jacobsen says Jacobsen's no contest plea in state court and subsequent seven-year probation sentence will have no effect on the government's efforts to prosecute him.

Jacobsen pleaded no contest Monday before District Court Judge Carl Steib to a state theft charge involving an $825,000 loan.

He was indicted by a court grand jury after the Justice Department dropped similar charges against him.

The only evidence admitted into the state court proceeding was an agreement in which Jacobsen "judicially confessed" to a fraudulent taking of more than $10,000 in connection with the loan.

Steib followed the recommendation of Dist. Atty. Royal Hart in sentencing the former aide of the late President Lyndon B.

Johnson. Jacobsen pleaded nolo contendere to one count of a four-count indictment. A nolo contendere plea means Jacobsen neither admitted nor denied guilt on the charges he faced. He could have drawn two to 10 years in prison.

Jacobsen's lawyers gave notice of appeal after he was sentenced.

Hart refused comment on Jacobsen's plea, saying the state's acceptance of the plea was related to the defense appeal on the ground of a claim of double jeopardy.

The state court indictment accused Jacobsen of misapplying the $825,000 loan made in 1970 while he was majority stockholder and an officer of First Savings & Loan Co. in San Angelo to Abilene developer Roy Herring. That firm is now under new management.

Steib made no restitution order. A federal grand jury in February 1974 indicted Jacobsen on charges stemming from the same $825,000 loan.

Jacobsen was the Justice Department's key witness against former Texas Gov. John Connally, who had been indicted on a federal bribery charge. Federal prosecutors claimed Jacobsen, who once was a lobbyist for Associated Milk Producers, Inc., gave Connally money to influence Nixon administration milk price policy.

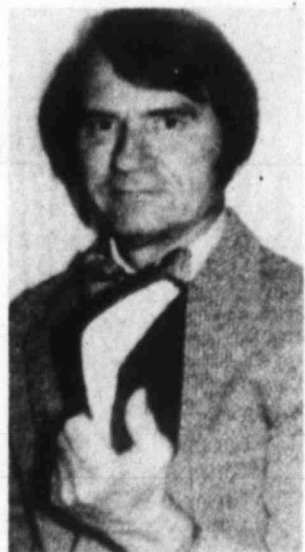

Even though Connally eventually was acquitted of the charge by a Washington, D.C., jury, the Justice Department said it would honor a plea bargain with Jacobsen and declined to prosecute him.

U.S. Dist. Court Judge Robert Hill of Dallas refused, however, to go along with the request for dismissal and appointed three special prosecutors to proceed against Jacobsen.

In Dallas, Wayne Woodruff, one of the special prosecutors, said Monday the state court action against Jacobsen would have no effect on the federal case, which is now before the U.S. Supreme Court.

A federal appeals court has ruled that Hill overstepped his discretion in pursuing the Jacobsen case by appointing special prosecutors.

About 114 persons had been empaneled for selection of a jury Monday before Jacobsen's unexpected plea, which followed a lunch recess.

City awaits sale taxes from state

Within the next few days Big Spring will receive a check for $19,248.18 as a share of May city sales tax rebates, according to Tom Ferguson, director of finance for the city.

Although the check has not yet been received, it is already included in the city budget through the general fund, explained Ferguson.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock's staff has mailed checks totaling $9.1 million to Texas cities and towns as their shares of tax rebates.

Bullock also announced that this department had collected nearly $1 million in tax judgments in the 16 months after he took office. The amount, he noted, is more than the $763,000 collected in the previous eight years.

"They (the judgments) used to be considered uncollectable," said Bullock. "Now, we're starting to cash them in."

Sales taxes rebated to West Texas cities and towns for the period through April 30 include:

Abilene, $87,087.08; Anson, $1,028.70; Aspermont, $1,337.27; Baird, $3,333.43; and Ballinger, $1,894.05.

Also, Brady, $6,012.46; Bronte, $790.77; Brownwood, $8,750.54; and Cisco, $1,457.77.

Also, Coleman, $6,585.49; Cross Plains, $1,027.76; De Leon, $795.02; Dublin, $970.11; and Eastland, $2,864.44.

Also, Eden, $636.58; Gorman, $524.68; Hamlin, $2,148.74; Haskell, $2,578.31; Impact, $3,482.56; Knox City, $1,085.26; and Merkel, $1,090.52.

Also, Munday, $1,397.65; Ranger, $1,572.49; Robert Lee, $1,086.75; Roby, $719.70; Rotan, $1,624.14; and Santa Anna, $816.31.

Also, Seymour, $3,285.92; Snyder, $11,269.39; Stamford, $2,136.10; Stephenville, $11,600.59; Sweetwater, $9,155.05; Throckmorton, $538.35; Tye, $797.61; and Winters, $5,170.24.

Several West Texas towns had not accumulated $500 or more in their refund account, so they did not receive any refunds.

Included were Bangs, Clyde, Loraine, O'Brien, Rising Star, Rochester, Roscoe, Rule, Strawn and Trent.

Moore Show, Roosevelt special win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" was the big winner on the air but it was "Eleanor and Franklin," a two-part drama about the Roosevelt marriage, that emerged as the most honored program of the 1975-76 television season at the 28th annual Emmy Awards.

While "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" was named best comedy series for the second year in a row and captured four other Emmys besides, "Eleanor and Franklin" won four Monday night to add to the seven it had received last weekend.

The four-hour ABC drama grabbed Emmys in four prestigious categories during ABC's national telecast from the Shubert Theater — best comedy or dramatic special, best original screenplay for a special (James Costigan), best direction of a special (Daniel Petrie) and best supporting actress in a special (Rosemary Murphy).

In addition, "Eleanor and Franklin" had picked up seven Emmys in ceremonies held in Los Angeles last Saturday to honor the craft categories — for art direction and scenic design, costume design, makeup, cinematography, film editing, film sound mixing and an individual achievement award for hairstyling.

The other big winner Monday was "NBC's Saturday Night," a brash, satirical comedy show which won four awards, including best comedy-variety series.

Other top honors went to Peter Falk of "Columbo" as best actor in a dramatic series, Michael Learned of "The Waltons" as best actress in a dramatic series, and Jack Albertson of "Chico and the Man" as best actor in a comedy series.

"Police Story" was chosen as best dramatic series and "Upstairs, Downstairs," the English import shown on the Public Broadcasting Service, won its third Emmy in as many years as best limited series.

In addition to being named best comedy series, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" also topped honors for three of its stars, including Miss Moore as best actress in a comedy series — her third such Emmy on this show and her fifth over-all.

Honored in supporting categories were Ted Knight, the show's egocentric newscaster, and Betty White, the devilish host of a homemaking program. It was the second Emmy for each. Writer David Lloyd also got an Emmy for an episode of the CBS series.

Edward Asner didn't win as Mary's gruff newsroom boss, as he has in previous years, but he did win an Emmy as outstanding lead

'Congestive Heart Failure' panel discussion scheduled

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS — Health professionals from Big Spring State Hospital will complete the 1975-76 series of therapeutics seminars Thursday with "Congestive Heart Failure," a panel discussion originating from The University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio.

The series of 16 one-hour programs on commonly encountered illnesses is presented annually by the continuing education department of the San Antonio health science center and is designed to bring professionals in five states up to date on current concepts in diagnosis and treatment.

The event will see approximately 80 hospitals participating, all tied together on one two-way system, whereby any interested member of the staff can ask questions to the lecturers after the talk is completed.

Dr. Timothy N. Caris of the Big Spring State Hospital will be the moderator for the local connection. Hospitals in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas and New Mexico will participate in the seminar.

The May 20 program will begin at 12:30 p.m. and will be the last one of the series. It will be received locally by means of a teleconference hookup with San Antonio.

"Congestive heart failure is the final stage of heart disease no matter what the initial cause," explained Dr. Caris, professor of medicine and panel moderator for the seminar.

Discussions will center around treatment to keep the patient as comfortable and productive as possible and out of the hospital for as long as possible.

Additional panelists will be Dr. Henry Lobstein, clinical instructor of medicine at the San Antonio health science center and Dr. Robert Schnitzler, assistant professor of medicine at the center.

Participants in the year's series of programs are eligible to receive 16 prescribed hours of continuing education credit from the American Academy of Family Physicians and 16 hours in Category 1 toward the Association Medical Recognition Award.

The first seminar for the 1976-77 series will be "Biofeedback" on Sept. 23.

'Mailbox Improvement Week' observed here

"Mailbox Improvement Week," a traditional spring observance which contributes to improved security and appearance of the nation's nearly 24 million mailboxes, will be held May 17-22 this year, Postmaster Frank Hardesty said today.

Held annually, this event has long served as the starting signal for community efforts to repair, repaint and make other improvements to the nation's approximately 24 million rural, curb-line and star route mailboxes, 3,786 of which are served by the Big Spring post office.

Postmasters in many communities around the country have led civic groups, the press and municipal governments in the spring campaigns to "spruce up" the mail receptacles often damaged by severe winter weather.

"Because more Americans received their mail today on rural routes than ever before, 'Mailbox Improvement Week' is more important than when first observed generations ago in rural areas and small communities," Postmaster Hardesty said.

Postal Service rural carriers serve approximately 13.5 million families along some 32,480 rural routes.

Rural mail service began in 1896. In those days many make-shift receptacles were used as mailboxes. One favorite was a tin can nailed to a tree. Today, manufacturers provide a variety of modern mailbox designs for use with decorative posts in cooperation with the Postal Service.

"Customers who prefer other designs than the traditional mailbox may check with me for a list of manufacturers making approved optional designs," Postmaster Hardesty said. The Postmaster is authorized to approved custom-made mailboxes when they comply with postal regulations.

Bentsen backer joins Carter fund raising

DALLAS (AP) — Jess Hay, one of the strongest supporters of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's favorite son presidential bid, says he will soon help raise money for his new presidential choice — former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter.

The Dallas businessman said Monday he has agreed to serve on a fund-raising committee for Carter.

Hay told the Dallas Times Herald he had talked with Carter and accepted a post on the committee "although I don't know what the title will be."

Hay is a Democratic national committeeman and chairman of the board of one of the nation's largest mortgage investment houses.

His wife was an unsuccessful Bentsen delegate candidate in the May 1 Texas presidential primary.

Malone-Hogan volunteers celebrate anniversary

Volunteers from Malone-Hogan Hospital celebrated their first anniversary Thursday as the hospital played host for their first annual award luncheon.

Joe Pickle, board member, handed out 100-hour pins to 27 volunteers who had worked 100 hours or more. Eight volunteers received bars for working 200 hours or more, and two volunteers were honored with bars denoting over 300 hours, with one having worked 569 hours in service to the hospital.

The volunteers carried as their goal "to be a friend in the house" to all who enter through the hospital doors. A grand total of 9,120 hours were given the past year by the membership.

Mrs. Jack Irons was presented with a past-president's pin. The volunteers surprised Mrs. Emily Ward, the hospital's director of volunteers, with an engraved plaque.

K. H. McGibbon, chairman

Students perform Sunday

Piano students of Mrs. Jim Baum and student teachers Margaret McGee and Cindy Carlile were presented in the second in a series of spring musicals Sunday in Mrs. Baum's home.

Appearing in the recital were Tamara Hart, Elizabeth Ruiz, Pam Samuels, Debbie Samuels, Michele Ray, Randy Samuels, Jimmy Renssenhouse and Paul Ruiz.

Homemakers study CPR

The Creative Homemakers Home Demonstration Club met May 11 in the home of Mrs. Peggy Guiliams.

Mrs. Pat Johnston introduced Mrs. Marianne Simpson, a registered nurse from the Veterans' Administration Hospital, and Mrs. Nadine Lambright, C.O.R.T., from Malone and Hogan Hospital. They gave a program on cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR).

Mrs. Simpson talked about common accidents occurring in the home which would be fatal to the victim if someone present did not know the technique of CPR.

The women brought "Annie," a dummy designed to teach the CPR method. "Annie" was designed by a medical technician whose daughter had suffered a fall but could not be revived since no one around her knew how to practice cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Each person present at the meeting practiced the technique.

Members went over the steps in the technique. After opening the airway, begin mouth-to-mouth breathing and heart massage on the victim. Place the heel of the hand on the center of the lower breastbone with fingers off chest, and other hand atop. Force blood out of heart by exerting pressure.

Alternate two breaths to 15 heart massages, if working by yourself. If two people are working on a victim, alternate one breath to every five heart massages.

Mrs. Simpson said that 25 per cent of bodily functions start to take place when CPR is administered immediately.

Mrs. Lambright told the group how to aid a person who is choking. The person should be laid on his side, and a sharp rap with the fist should be given in the middle of his back. This should dislodge foreign material.

After the program, Mrs. Johnston called the business meeting to order. Mrs. Peggy Soldan was elected to fill the position of secretary which Mrs. Guiliams, who is moving, now holds.

Mrs. Johnston was chosen as delegate to the state meeting in September, to be held at College Station.

Officers for the group are Mrs. Johnston, president; Mrs. Johnnie Beasley, vice president; Mrs. Soldan, secretary; and Mrs. Pam Thompson, treasurer.

Next meeting of the Creative Homemakers will be June 8 in the Reddy Room. Ms. Sandra Killough, TESCO home economist, will be the guest speaker.

of the board, welcomed the volunteers to the event. Norman Knox, administrator, acted as master of ceremonies. The Rev. Steve Birdwell gave the invocation.

Dr. James Cowan, chief of medical staff at the hospital, gave the physicians' response to the volunteers in the hospital.

Mrs. Irons gave the president's report during the luncheon, emphasizing the fact that the group had organized in May 1975. She moved through the various stages of organizing the volunteers.

The volunteer group established the information desk at the hospital, and one month later opened their gift shop. Four months later, the group started a blood donor service in the emergency room of the hospital.

When the charter membership closed October 1, the membership had grown from 25 people to 101 members.

Mrs. Irons closed her address by announcing that Candy Strippers will be working in the hospital during the summer.

Knox installed new officers for the volunteers. Officers are Mrs. Wade Choate, president; Mrs. Ken Perry, president-elect; Mrs.

L. B. Paul Sr., vice president; Mrs. Jack Lipscombe, secretary; and Mrs. Charles Tompkins, treasurer.

Volunteers honored and hours worked were Mildred Anderson—103, Alta Betle—127, Louise Boykin—186, Jo Broadrick—192, Annette Campbell—121, Margaret Cape—221, Toni Choate—260, Aurora Etheridge—147, Laverne Gary—103 and P. D. Heith—131.

Unwed father has right to know

DEAR ABBY: GRANNY-TO-BE is thrilled at the prospect of becoming a grandmother even though her unmarried daughter, who is on welfare, has no plans to marry the baby's father and chooses not to disclose his identity!

You say, "That's her business and her secret." Abby, don't you think a child has the right to know who his real father is? And don't you think that when the child grows up, he should have the right to get in touch with his real father if he chooses to do so?

Also, maybe the father wants to support his child. Women talk about WOMEN'S rights. How about MEN'S rights?

MEN'S LIBBER

DEAR LIBBER: Fortunately (or possibly unfortunately), since women literally carry the load alone and deliver it, it is their prerogative as to whether or not to inform the father. And not all fathers are willing to own up to it. But read on for another enlightened viewpoint:

DEAR ABBY: Concerning the unmarried mother-to-be who is on welfare and prefers to keep the identity of her baby's father a secret: According to you, it may be her business and her secret, but that baby becomes the taxpayers' burden, and we taxpayers are sick and tired of supporting illegitimate children.

With all the resources available to prevent pregnancies, there is no excuse for any sexually active female to bear a child! And why should the father be excused from the responsibility of supporting his child? Yet, you would let taxpayers assume this responsibility because some 21-year-old female decides she wants to be a mother.
