

'WE THE PARENTS' HEAR HOW TO MANAGE

Dating, Driving And Discipline

"The Three D's" -- dating, driving and discipline -- went under the spotlight at the fourth session of "We The Parents" here Monday night.

Speaker was Dr. North E. West, head of the department of psychology at Wayland Baptist College.

The educator said that, in his opinion, formal education is not the most important thing in the rearing of a child.

He cited the "important" things as parents having a genuine understanding of the child, a lot of common sense, patience, help from friends and neighbors, luck and the help of God.

Dr. West went into the subject of dating extensively, saying that dating is grounded in the basic heterosexual needs of the adolescent.

He listed these as being the need for affection, need for discovery, need for desirability and basic biological needs.

"Dating is a good solution to the needs at the onset of puberty," he said.

He added that this age of children is today about two years younger than that of the preceding generation. He set the age of puberty at about 10 for girls and about 12 for boys.

West explained that better diet and more vitamins in the diet today bring boys and girls into puberty earlier.

"We've been improving their diet," he noted, "and at the same time increasing the length of the period of their dependency."

Giving some of the beneficial results of dating, West said that the strong need for opposite sex affection is satisfied.

He explained that this need for affection from members of the opposite sex is satisfied in very young children by the mother or the father. An attachment to a teacher of the opposite sex is frequently the next step.

According to West, the adolescent begins to draw away from the family and tries to fill his needs outside that circle.

The psychologist also said that youngsters are anxious to learn something of the nature of the opposite sex that cannot be learned in their own home.

"This cannot be learned from books, either," he said.

The speaker stressed that a youngster has a need to be considered desirable by the opposite sex. He added that dating provides status for teenagers among their peers.

Another result of dating is that it aids in developing personal heterosexual skills. West explained that boys and girls must learn the correct social behavior that they will need in adulthood.

"Most successful marriages," he noted "are generally made by couples who have done considerable dating. The dating practice provides for intelligent selection of a marriage partner."

He also noted that "whole-some dating reduces sexual tension" in the teenager.

Turning to the dangers of dating, West seemed to feel that most of these are due directly to what he termed "parental mismanagement" and "affectional and training inadequacies."

The poor parent-child relationship was cited as the major reason for undue physical emphasis in heterosexual relationships in teenagers.

He mentioned parents who try to relieve their lives through their children, parents who don't understand their children and children who are starved for love.

Speaking on the second "D" -- driving -- West said that the desire to drive is a basic need of the adolescent.

He cited the desire for mobility, a strong need for possession, desire for mastery and prestige and the desire for maturity.

"The car provides one solution to all these needs," he said, adding that is not the only solution and that it does involve dangers.

Among these danger, he listed:

1. Undisciplined mobility -- the youth who spends too much time in the auto and whose grades start to drop.

2. Unappreciated possession -- an auto handed to a youth may not be appreciated for its worth.

3. Irresponsible use of power -- "Cadillac power with Chevrolet brains."

4. Misinterpreted prestige -- the youth who thinks he is popular, when, in reality, it is the car that is popular.

5. Misjudged maturity -- the auto is the symbol of being "grown-up" in this country, although the driver may not be.

"No teenager, during his own high school years, should own his own car," West said.

On discipline, West said that the child has a need for security and he must have information.

He said that the child must have realistic demands made on him with clear-cut instructions and discipline must be consistent.

Positive rewards and punishment were given as ways for parents to establish proper discipline.

Finally, West said that if parents are going to be successful, they must accept the fact that they aren't perfect, must keep lines of communication open with their children, must share family problems and plans for solving them and must strive to live as consistently as possible.

"Expect your children to turn out all right," he concluded.

"You know, most of them do."

DR. NORTH E. WEST, Wayland psychologist, left, and Elmer McGill discuss points made by Dr. West in his talk to "We The Parents" study group here Monday night.

HONESTY NOT LOST

Who says honesty is a disappearing virtue?

Certainly not Larry Green, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Green.

It seems that Larry lost his hillfold during a trip to the fat stock show at Fort Worth.

What's more, he had no idea where he had lost the wallet and little hope of regaining it.

This week Larry has his wallet, papers and money all intact.

It was mailed to him from the Hatty Cafe in Jacksboro by a waitress who still thinks honesty has some value in our life.

Boy, 8, Killed On Leaving Bus

A Plainview elementary school student was killed Tuesday when he was struck by an auto driven by Robert Tazewell, Speer, 17-year-old Olton youth.

The accident occurred about five miles east of Halfway on U. S. Hwy. 70 about 4:15 p.m.

Killed was Willie Ray Hall, 8-year-old Negro, a few moments after he got off a school bus.

The youngster was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace David Maxey, Olton.

The car driven by Speer was traveling east on the highway. Highway Patrolman R. C. Dunn said Hall and an older brother had left the bus, stopped on an improved shoulder on the north side of the roadway. The bus was heading west.

The brother ran across the highway, Dunn said, and Speer started trying to stop to miss him. The victim was standing in front of the bus and he, too, started running just at the time when the car swerved toward the parked bus.

Dunn said the boy was struck as he cut out diagonally across the highway.

Dunn said Speer told him he thought the bus had stopped to let another vehicle pass, and he started attempting to stop when he realized passengers were disembarking.

The boys' grandparents, with whom they made their home, reside about 100 yards from the accident scene.

A highway patrol official said late Wednesday that no charges had been filed in the accident at that time.

Furniture Firm Is Purchased By Doug Jones

Parsons Furniture has been purchased by Doug Jones and will be known as Jones Furniture and Appliance, it was announced this week.

Purchase of the business was effective Tuesday, Jones said. The firm will be moved this weekend to the building formerly occupied by K. Dept. Store.

Former operator of the store, R. C. Parsons, has taken a post as a representative of National Motor Club. He and his family plan to continue residing here.

Jones said he plans a grand opening for the store in its new location about March 1.

"We hope to give Olton a really first-class furniture and appliance store," he said. The new owner added that new stock of nationally known furniture has been ordered and is on the way.

The store will continue to handle all types of Frigidaire appliances, and will offer factory-trained service work.

Well known brand names such as Tell City, Admiral, Bassett, Simmons and Hoover will be retained and others will be added.

Jones and his family moved here from Muleshoe about four years ago. He and his wife, Doris, have three children, Cindy, 12, Kenny, 11, and Me Linda, 6. They attend the First Methodist Church.

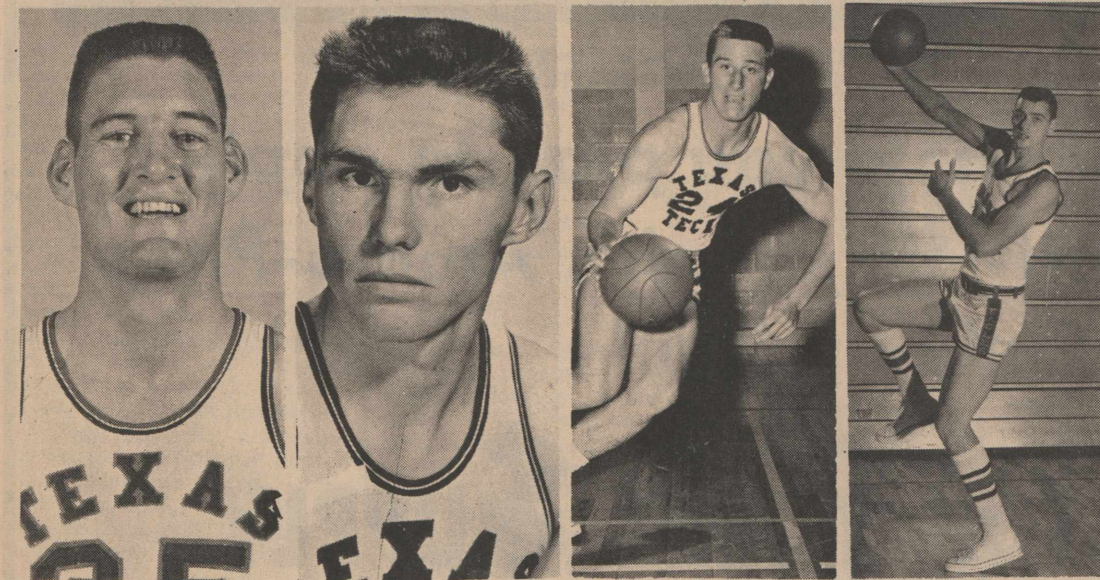

Jones is a member of the city council, president of the Chamber of Commerce, a Mason and a Lions Club member.

Unsolicited Peddlers

About this time of year, and periodically at other times, Olton seems to be suddenly saturated with out-of-town salesmen of a variety of products and services.

The Enterprise has editorialized on this subject in past years, but this week it's time to ask ourselves about these unsolicited peddlers again. Has one knocked at your door recently? Did he leave politely when you indicated you weren't interested? Did he "high-pressure" until you finally had to get him to leave? Or did you swallow his pitch?

Of course, some of these salesmen are surely trying to make an honest living selling a bonafide product or service, but it is a fact that some -- if not involved in an outright racket -- are selling inferior products or in other ways misrepresenting the worth of their merchandise.

By "misrepresentation," we mean that while some of the products or services they sell are legal -- even though some of the various contracts are worded so that the law protects the company and not the customer -- the sales pitches are presented in such a way that they are misleading, and the customer doesn't always get what he THINKS he's paid for.

A popular method following the sale, is for the salesman to rush down to the bank and cash the check the customer has just given him, before the customer has time to change his mind and call the bank to stop payment on the check.

Another popular technique is to insist that they "aren't really selling anything but..." until they get into your house. Then these men have 99 out of 100 of your questions figured out in advance and a ready, "logical sounding" answer on the tips of their tongues.

The Enterprise has no interest in these "out-of-town" salesmen, except to warn our people not to be hornsogged.

In connection with these salesmen, the Enterprise presents a list of questions that the salesman calling upon you should answer to YOUR satisfaction:

1. Is he a taxpayer in your community or county?
2. Can he fill your needs on short notice?
3. Can you locate him later, if the product or service you buy is found to be sub-standard quality?
4. Does he pay wages to employees who do business in your community?
5. Does he grant favors that you would ask of your LOCAL dealer or salesman of services and products?
6. Does he represent a company that has a well known name and reliable reputation?
7. Does he help support issues and promotions that bring improvements to this area?
9. Does he support your civic organizations, schools and churches.
10. Does he pay necessities and luxuries from your local business places?

For your "money's worth," we suggest that these questions be considered.

This newspaper does not propose to tell you how or where to spend your money. Our only interest is that we hate to see some "slick talking" salesman, who tomorrow will be gone forever, take advantage of our friends and neighbors, who are so good hearted they "....just hated to turn away that nice looking young man who knocked at my door."

Our reasoning is: "Why take a chance when you could buy the same or better merchandise or service locally, and then it doesn't please you, you'll know where to find the salesman."

As we have said, some of these men are undoubtedly honest men, selling legitimate items. But when all is said and done, it's up to you -- the customer -- to determine which is which.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

Legislative Battle Looms In Teacher Pay Controversy

AUSTIN-- Gov. John Connally's alternate teacher pay proposal has drawn fire from the Texas State Teachers Association. And Connally has reciprocated.

Connally wants less of an immediate pay raise than the $45 a month the teachers ask. He wants to set up a 10-year program for steady and regular increases which in time would amount to greater rewards for more experienced teachers.

House Speaker Ben Barnes and Rep. George Hinson of Minneola, who is sponsor of the TSTA backed "$45 in '65" program, both called for a cooling-off period. Compromise seemed unlikely due to strong feelings on both sides.

Sen. Jack Strong of Longview and Rep. W. S. Healy of Paducah, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, introduced the Governor's 10-year pay plan -- with substantial support. Among sponsors of the two bills are 17 House members who endorsed both measures.

Teachers complain the Connally program offers too little, too late. They charge it would put 70 per cent of raises on local school districts.

Connally produced figures showing cost of the 10-year program at $40,200,000 for the next biennium. He said the state would pick up $32,100,000 of the tab and local districts $8,000,000. His financing plan suggests that local school boards start paying a share of the cost of textbooks and teacher retirement, now paid wholly by the state.

Connally believes his program would maintain the 80-20 cost ratio between state and local districts. Meanwhile, Texas Teachers launched a campaign for their $85,000,000 salary adjustment program (geared to an additional $68,000,000 state outlay for the biennium).

Pressure is intense on legislators, both from the Governor's office and from the teachers back home. Mail is piling high on lawmakers' desks.

Speaker Barnes said it will be three months before the Legislature can even consider a teacher's pay raise, since it has to pass the complicated appropriations bill first.

An all-out war now would injure all educational efforts under consideration, Barnes emphasized.

Ask Amy

Dear Amy:

Did the following thing ever happen to you? Last week we went shopping to get a part for our automobile, and unfortunately for us (as you will see later) we could not get this part anywhere. We finally wound up at a discount store around nine at night. Since it was dark and the parking lot was crowded, we took our flashlight from the glove compartment to light the way to the store. Not finding the right part here either, we bought some cough candies and a few other small things and guess what happened?

The cashier wanted us to pay for our own flashlight and even the batteries and went so far as to take it away from us to check against their stock in the store. This wasn't enough. She still must have had her doubts about it because after we paid for our purchase, she called over a guard. We, of course, hurried to get out before anything else could happen.

Why is it, Amy, that in these self-service stores, everyone is looked upon with suspicion? Shouldn't these check-out girls know the stock well enough to spare people the embarrassment that I suffered?

Almost Pinched

Dear Almost:

Because many part-timers are employed in stores, it is difficult for them to know every item in stock. I understand, however, that self-service discount operations have a customer parcel checking service. In the future, it's a good idea to check your belongings on the way in and pick them up on the way out. No embarrassing incidents this way.

Dear Amy:

In reading your column in the newspaper, I noticed the letter sent in by a boy who had long hair and was debating whether or not to cut it. PLEASE, DON'T! I think boys look great with long hair (but not down to their shoulders). Please print this letter. I want "Beate" to know that some girls like long hair on boys. So, "Beate," for my sake, don't cut it. You'll look better. If it's one thing I can't stand, it's crew cuts.

Beatelemiac

Dear Beatelemiac:

I like long hair, too . . . on girls!

Dear Amy:

I read your column and now I hope one particular person does also. This lady lives in our community, and there is no one brave or brash enough to tell her and obvious truth about herself. In plain words, she smells bad! She is industrious, talented and ambitious, but in any field she enters, she is shunned and soon dropped by her would-be associates.

Is there any way to let her know this sad fact about herself? I hope you have some suggestions.

In A Dilemma

Dear Dilemma:

By now this woman is probably wondering why she is being shunned and dropped. The cause may not be her lack of cleanliness, but a medical problem. I think it would be unkind and a pity if one of her friends or a member of her family didn't put her wise.

If you know some one very close to her, urge them to take the initiative. It's a shame for so much ambition and talent to go to waste.

Dear Amy:

Some time ago you answered a letter about the girl who liked the most popular boy in school. You told her just to ignore him and he would wonder why and then he would pursue her to find out.

Amy, I have a crush on a boy a year older than I, and I followed your advice. It doesn't work! He just thought he had enough followers and didn't need me. I still like him and can't seem to get him to notice me. What do I do now? Please answer this because I really like him and I'm sure many girls have this same problem.

In Need Of Help

Dear In Need:

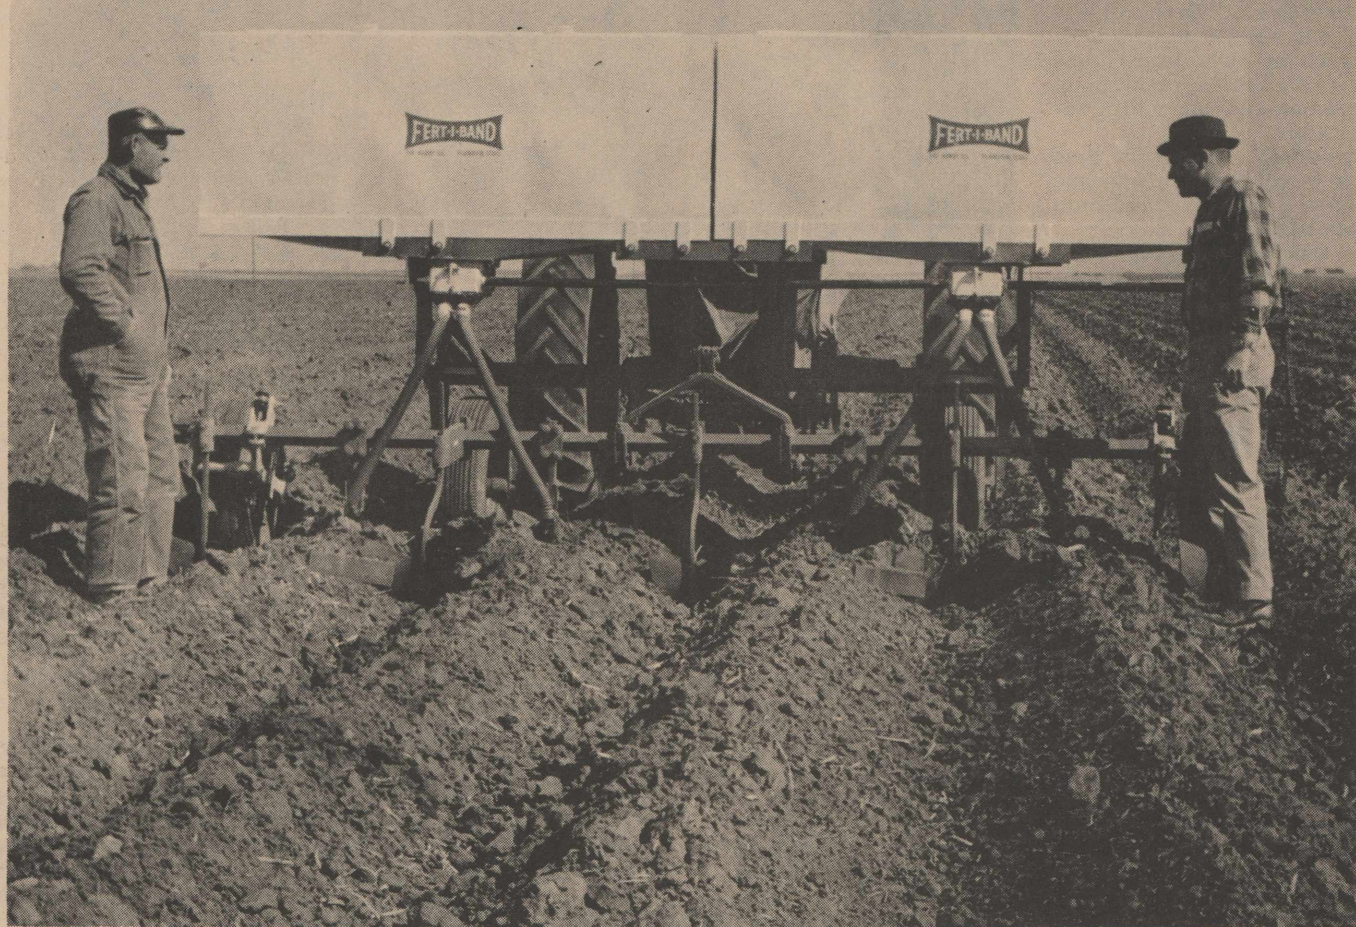

Psychologically speaking, this approach does work. When his 'followers' wear off (and they will), a boy looks around to see 'what's new.' Then, if your timing is right, like being at the right place at the right time, he'll notice YOU. Comprenez vous?

HAS ACCIDENT

IN HOSPITAL

Mrs. Earl Hysinger was admitted to the Methodist Hospital last Monday morning.

Reading a current best seller convinced us of one thing. The wages of sin is a big, fat royalty check. -- CHANGING TIMES

Cotton producers who wish to participate in the domestic allotment program for 1965 are given from Feb. 8 through March 26 to make their intentions known to County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Services offices. Lorene Mangum, acting office manager of the Lubbock ASCS, says: "This sign-up is a new development for cotton farmers, and for that reason a special effort is being made to get the word around." She adds that the sign-up this year is being conducted in the hope that it will make farmers more aware of the benefits available under the program. A domestic allotment program was also in effect last year, but no sign up was required, giving farmers the opportunity to gauge yield prospects before deciding whether or not to participate.

Farmers have the choice of planting within their domestic allotment -- thereby qualifying for a payment of 4.35 cents per pound on the farm's established normal yield times the acreage planted for harvest in 1965 in addition to the price support of 29 cents per pound basis middling one-inch at average location -- or planting within their effective allotment. Effective allotment is total acreage allotted after any release and reapportionment, and farmers electing to plant their total effective allotment qualify for the 29 cent price support only, without the necessity for signing up.

Domestic allotment on most High Plains farms is 65 percent of the 1965 effective allotment, but on small farms for which 1965 allotments are not released to the County ASC Committee, domestic allotment is the smaller of 15 acres or the 1965 effective allotment. Farms on which the domestic and effective allotment are the same are not required to sign up for participation in the domestic allotment program, but all others must sign up prior to March 26 in order to participate.

Those who elect to plant within their domestic allotments may grow other cash crops on the remaining part of the effective allotment, but if the effective allotment is over 15 acres they cannot plant feed grains in excess of their feed grain base and still qualify for supplemental payments.

The economic outlook for U.S. cotton and a wide range of production practices affecting yield and quality will be under discussion when the Western Cotton Production Conference gathers in Lubbock March 2 and 3. The two-day conference, keyed specifically to the interests of cotton growers in the western section of the Cotton Belt, is to be held at the Koko Palace, Lubbock, and will open at 9:15 a.m., March 2.

The affair is jointly sponsored by the Southwest Five State Cotton Growers, Inc. and the National Cotton Council, with Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. of Lubbock serving as the local host. Roy Forkner, PCG president, is general chairman of the event and has emphasized that all interested persons are invited to attend. There are no registration fees.

Rural Accidents Are Reported

There were eight rural accidents in Lamb County during the month of January, according to Sergeant D. S. Lawson, Highway Patrol Supervisor of this area.

From these crashes resulted one death, three persons injured and an estimated property damage loss of $3,250.00.

April 15 is the deadline to have your motor vehicle inspected. During the past five and one-half months only 1,800,000 or 40 percent of the 4,500,000 registered vehicles in Texas have been inspected. This leaves 2,700,000 vehicles to be inspected in approximately two months.

If the number of uninspected vehicles were divided evenly among the 5,200 official inspection stations in Texas, each would have approximately 520 vehicles to inspect in about 40 working days, or 13 vehicles per day.

L.H. Carson Home Shows New Ideas For Decorating

BY ROSE SCHENCK
ENTERPRISE SOCIETY EDITOR

Mrs. L. H. Carson used a bit of ingenuity and elbow grease in the re-decoration of her home recently.

She has carried the early American feeling throughout the house with some very original features.

The children's bedroom is decorated in the circus theme.

The variegated light blues that she has used for the walls and shutters on the two windows give the only touch of modern design used in the home.

The bedspreads that cover the large twin beds are made of circus print. She plans to carry some of these designs off the spread to plaques for the walls.

Not forgetting cabinet and storage space for her growing children, Mrs. Carson uses one large dresser with a large cabinet above to decorate almost half of one wall.

The most outstanding feature of this room is a large corner cabinet table made to serve as a headboard for one of the twin beds with the other bed being pushed underneath for more space. This unusual table serves as a linen closet with two large shelves above for the children's bric-a-brac.

In keeping with the early American feeling, the floor is covered with a traditional oval rug in beige and brown.

Ripple wood paneling, done in fruitwood stain, is used in the bath with part of one wall painted in light ecru. Shutters in the fruitwood design decorate the windows. For accent, she used black strap door handles on her linen closets and orange in the scatter rugs. She plans to have this room rugged in the near future.

The dining-kitchen area is large with fruitwood stained cabinets across the complete north wall. The shutters that cover the window above her work area is also of fruitwood.

She has chosen copper-tone appliances and decorated her walls in early American print wallpaper to bring out the beauty of her traditional dining area.

The main room of the home, which is the living room and den combined, is a picture to see.

This room is made very comfortable and cheery by her early American furnishings which include a four cushioned divan in beige tapestry with maple end tables holding amber globe lamps.

The coffee table of unusual design is oblong with drop leaves. Across the room is a hutch bookcase flanked by the children's early American rocking chairs. There is also a black traditional rocker for the grownups.

All this beauty is accented by wall-to-wall gold carpeting.

The most outstanding feature of the room is the south wall.

This wall is completely covered with early American roofing shakes centered with a window decorated in shutters. The lower shutters are the larger and are of the louvered type while the upper shutters are of the curtain design.

A shelf made the length of this wall stands high above the window to hold her collection of pewter.

The remaining walls are of a very light off-white and appeared to be planks.

The master bedroom is yet to be completed. First step in the re-decoration here is seen in the fruitwood stained shutters.

Upon approaching the front door of this enchanting home, you will see, on the right, a huge cast-iron bell, which incidentally "really works."

News Of Interest To Women

DECORATING FUN—Mrs. L. H. Carson is very proud of her recently decorated home. Her outstanding change is the south wall of their living-den room. The complete wall is covered in early American cedar shakes enhanced by a shuttered window and high shelf to hold her collection of pewter.

$35,000 To Raise A Child To Age 18, Magazine Says

How much to raise a child? Plenty, according to the editors of Changing Times, the Kiplinger magazine. They estimate that raising a child to age 18 costs the average middle-class city family $35,000.

"The price tag for raising a child to age 18 runs around $12,000 for a family with a very modest standard of living and as high as $60,000 or more for a pampered, upper-bracket urbanite. A comfortable-off farm family might spend around $20,000."

Just how much depends on many things, but the magazine points out in its February issue that none of the totals includes "the real crusher that may start at 18 -- the cost of college."

Major expenses come to about $28,000 and include: cost of being born, medical and dental, food, clothing, housing and transportation. A few of the itemized incidentals are diaper service, haircuts, toys, allowance, school fees and supplies, travel, and amusements.

That it can be done for less is admitted. In fact, Changing Times reminds its readers that millions of families are living comfortably and bringing up their children for less. It points out that the Community Council of Greater New York figures that a family with a low to moderate income in New York City -- a fairly expensive place to live -- can enjoy a modest but adequate standard of living while spending about $12,000 on each child. However, the figure doesn't include the child's share of the cost of housing.

Next to housing, food can be considered the family's biggest item for a child: about $7,000 and that's only food at home. It can easily hit $10,000 each, assuming that the neighbors' children are fed now and then and they feed yours. The weekly rate is $4.15 for the first year; $5.55 from 1 to 5, and $7.90 from 6 to 11. At about 12 the girls level off for the next six years at around $9.60 per week, while a boy in this family can be counted on to eat his way through $10 to $13 a week. Although considered a bit frugal, this bill might be $7,000 to $8,000 for 18 years.

The magazine's report concludes by observing that "the best things in life are not getting freer."

Electrical Badge Meeting Is Held For Boy Scouts

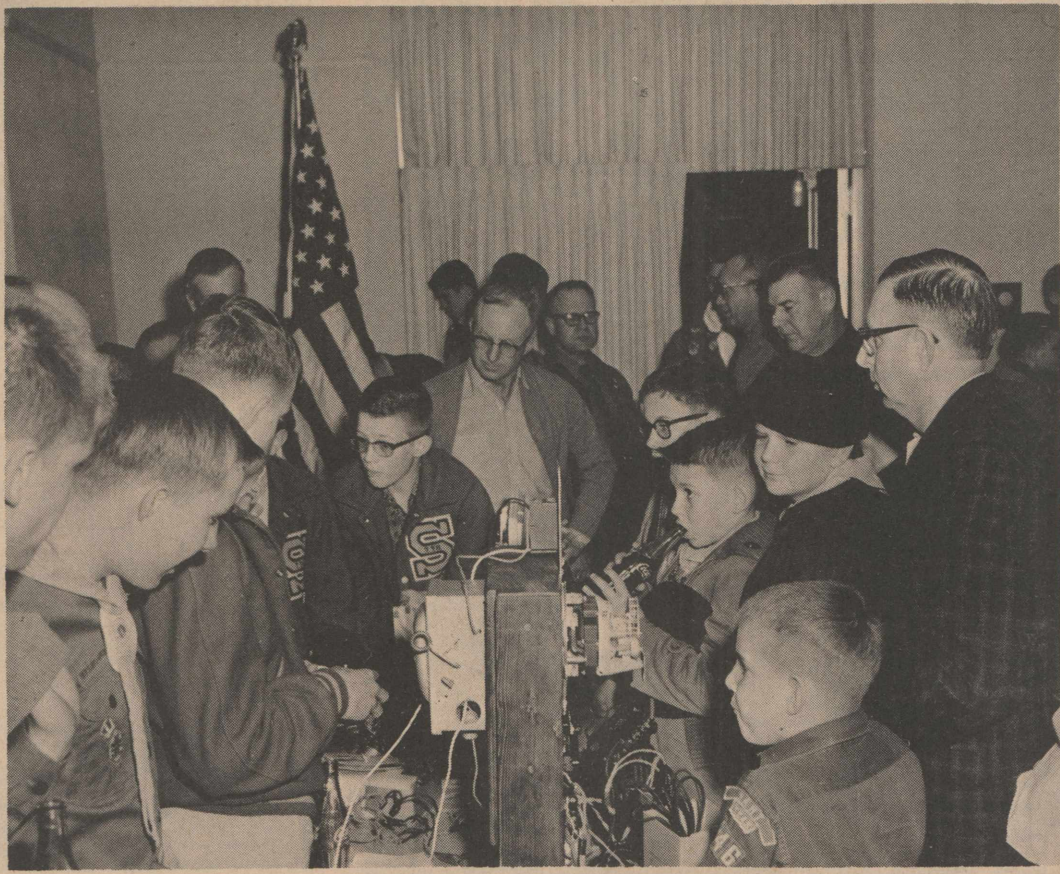

One of many various special events being observed by the Boy Scouts of America in celebration of National Scout Week was an electrical merit badge meeting which was held in the Reddy Room of Southwestern Public Service Company, Plainview, Thursday Feb. 11 at 7:30 p.m. Southwestern Public Service Company being the host for the meeting.

The evening's activities began with a Scout opening and was followed by an explanation of the merit badge book by Cleo Meharg, district manager, of Southwestern Public Service Company. Meharg also brought to the Scouts numerous exhibits, live and pictorial that were available to them for their extended information. The exhibits were placed in different parts of the meeting room.

Jack Brock, advancement chairman, then spoke to the boys on their advancement in connection with the electrical merit badge. The requirements and other vital information was given to the scouts along with electric merit badge books enabling the boys to have a definite guide in achieving this badge.

The next events were guest speakers who were presented to the group by Meharg. These speakers gave the boys additional information in specific form to aid them in the seven requirements for obtaining the badge.

First speaker of the evening was Tom Field, utilization representative. Field's topic was "Common Electrical Terms".

SCOUT ELECTRICAL MEETING -- Scouts are shown above at an electrical merit badge meeting held in the Reddy Room of Southwestern Public Service Company, Thursday Feb. 11 in Plainview.

He explained terms such as volts, amperes, watts, kilowatts, etc. on a level which the boys could easily understand, giving them an opportunity to become familiar enough with such terms as to better comprehend the material which was to be presented throughout the remainder of the meeting.

Bill Cunningham, operating engineer, then presented a film from General Electric Company of Dallas entitled, "Principles of Electricity". This film dealt with electricity from the point of generation, its principal of flow through transmission and distribution lines to the service entrance of a residence.

One of the most captivating parts of the program was presented by Leroy Durbin, journeyman meterman. Durbin gave a demonstration on correct fusing and proper procedure for checking our circuits when a fuse has been blown or when a breaker operates. Durbin also demonstrated transformers and transformer ratios and discussed how to read a watt hour meter register. Proper procedures on splicing of wire was also shown the boys. Durbin then instructed the boys on how to figure their electric bill.

Charles Stimson, safety and personnel engineer, gave the scouts some pointers on "Safety and First Aid in Regard to Electricity". Stimson told the group of the most likely places around the home and businesses that an electrical accident could happen. He also discussed its prevention and enumerated the ways in which precaution against such occurrences could be taken. Stimson said, "Around the home or business, any electrical appliance that is properly installed and maintained is safe". With the assistance of a local scout, Larry Shea and Resi-Ann, he gave a demonstration on mouth-to-mouth respiration. Resi-Ann is a specially designed manikin for teaching this type of respiration. This tied into the portion of his subject of rescue methods for a person who had received an electrical injury.

Following Stimson's speech, Glenn Bickel, power sales engineer, talked with the boys on "Career Opportunities in the Electrical Industry". Bickel gave the group some facts and figures on the demand for electricity in our modern world and the estimated use in the future. He then gave them a resume on Southwestern Public Service Company, the area it serves and the many type of professional skills that it requires to function. He also explained its requirements for employment and its opportunities to young men and women.

Towns represented at the meeting were Dimmitt, Hart, Tulia, Earth, Springlake, Olton, Matador, Petersburg, Floydada and Plainview, with a total of 132 scouts in attendance.

FAMILY RECREATION OFFERED AT OLTON BOWLING CENTER

Bowling means fun for the whole family and at Olton Bowling Center, operated by H.C. and Marlene Stewart, that theme is stressed.

Shown above are members of a high school physical education class, taught by Sandra Meadows. All these girls--Charlotte Wells, Paulette Bley, Bennie Long, Sharon Limbocker, and Gayle Truelock--are finding that bowling is fun for teens.

Children in the lower grades also are having their fling at the game through the TABY League on Friday evenings. Its participants include youngsters from the third grade through the eighth grade.

And the adults have fun in their leagues, too--seven of them are scheduled from Monday through Thursday nights.

Open bowling is offered all day each week day and all day Saturday and Saturday night.

The bowling center is open six days a week from 10 a.m. til . . . and the snack bar, operated by Vera Young, offers all kinds of good food, everything from sandwiches to steaks.

People who bowl are finding that it's good exercise and also good fun--from the top bowlers, like John Montgomery who has the record game of 288 here, to the beginners. And it's a pretty fair spectator sport, too, as you'll see this weekend and next when Olton's men bowlers get together in their annual city tournament.

The men's tournament is all set for Feb. 20-21 and Feb. 27-28 and the competition will be keen, so why not go out and see for yourself. You'll enjoy the action.

Each Week The Name Of One Of Our Readers Will Appear In One Of The Ads. Check Each Ad For Your Name. You May Win $5.00.

School Federal Aid Fight Is Question Of How Much

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- With-out predicting what this Congress will do, Changing Times foresees that there will be federal aid to education. The big question before the 89th Congress seems to be one of how much there will be.

Reporting on "The Fight Over Federal Aid to Schools" in its February issue, the Kiplinger magazine suggests, "the arguments won't be as fiery as in the past." Many forms of federal aid are already on the books and more will probably come in this and future Congresses.

The question now being dealt with is whether more money would help and, if so, where the money comes from and who hands it out and to whom.

Arguments about federal control have just about had their day and aren't expected to influence debate much from now on. According to the Changing Times report to its readers, "there is already too much legislation on the books, too much local eagerness to get whatever federal aid is available and too much experience with it for the bugaboo of control to have much bite."

The segregation issue, too, has had its day. With the Civil Rights Act of 1964, segregation no longer has to be debated specifically in connection with federal aid to education.

Whether federal money could or should be used to help church related schools continues to be one of the tough problems to solve. With arguments on either side of this constitutional issue, positions have been firm. Powerful advocates of general aid have stood ready to block any bill that included help to church schools. Catholic groups have been just as determined to stop any bill that left them out. "That's where the church issue -- and for that matter the entire general aid to education issue -- stood as the 89th Congress convened."

No New Filers In Elections

A check at the city hall Wednesday revealed no candidates have filed for the three posts in the city election here April 6.

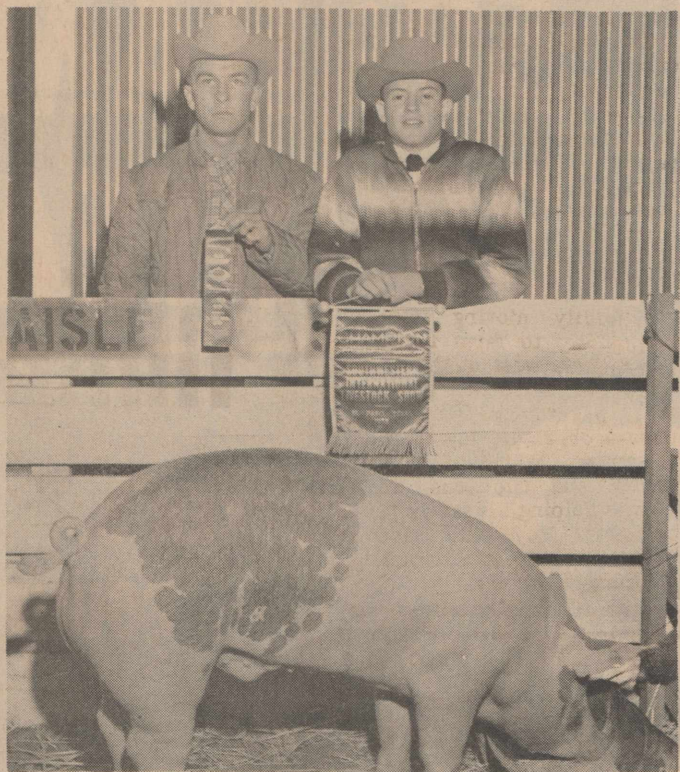

Russell Rucker, city councilman, told the Enterprise this week that he will not seek re-election. Mayor Bill Thomas and Councilman Bill Kemp previously had said they will not run for re-election.

No new candidates had filed in the April 3 school trustee election as of Wednesday. Three persons -- Elmer McGill, Joe Hall and John Norfleet -- have announced for the two posts to be voted upon.

Deadline for filing is March 3 in the trustee election and March 6 in the city vote.

BILLS TO GOVERNOR -- The Legislature acted fast on two emergency budget requests by Governor Connally. One called for $702,785 in emergency appropriations to run some dollar-short agencies and programs. Included were $250,000 for carrying on the state's share of the screwworm eradication program for three months after April 1 and $290,000 for speeding up the Texas Water Commission's planning program. Other bill set up procedures and a library plan by which cities can take advantage of a $2,500,000 library building appropriation voted by Congress for Texas.

"walks" right over bumps and trouble

Independent front suspension takes the "truck" out of truck ride. It smooths rough roads, protects truck, driver and cargo from excessive jolting. And on Chevrolet pickups it's a proved system with millions of miles of user experience behind it. Try it out on one of Chevrolet's great Fleetside or Stepside pickups. It's one of the big reasons that Chevrolet is first choice with pickup users from coast to coast.
