Longworth To Be Buried Saturday In City He Represented Thirty Years

SUCCESS FORECAST FOR 10-STATE OIL PROGRAM

FUNERAL TRAIN TO BEAR BODY 'HOME' TODAY

Southern Town Grieves With Nation At Swift Death

'ALICE' IS BRAVE

Wife Calm as Disease Takes Beloved National Figure

By FULTON LEWIS

AIKEN, S. C., April 9. (US)—Nicholas Longworth, beloved figure in American politics, tonight slept with a peace that heeds no clamorous cries of "Mr. Speaker—," awaiting the start of his last journey back to Cincinnati tomorrow morning.

In the placid white Colonial home of Mrs. James F. Curtis here, the best known leader in current congressional life yielded to the inevitable demand of death this morning at eight minutes before 11 o'clock.

Tonight the body remains at the Curtis home, starting tomorrow morning in a special train for Columbia—60 miles distant—whence it will be borne back to the Ohio city which has sent him to the capitol for nearly 30 years, to represent it in the legislative affairs of the nation.

The special train which will bear the speaker back to Cincinnati will leave here at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow morning, it was announced tonight.

Roosevelts Arrive

It will consist of a "buffer coach" immediately behind the engine tender, the private car of the Longworth party, a dining car, a club car, and a pullman for the press. Only necessary stops will be made.

The party will consist of Mrs. Longworth, Mrs. Curtis, Kermit and Archibald Roosevelt, Col. Campbell B. Hodges, military aide to President Hoover, and the speaker's valet. Colonel Hodges flew here from Washington today.

The two Roosevelt boys arrived late this afternoon by airplane from New York. They flew the scheduled Eastern Air Transport route from that city to Charleston, S. C., and there took a previously chartered special plane to Aiken.

The trip to Cincinnati is scheduled to take about 20 hours, which should bring the train to that city about 7:30 Saturday morning. There is, however, no definite scheduled time of arrival.

Rites Saturday

The funeral train will arrive in Cincinnati at 7 o'clock on Saturday morning, and funeral services will be held at Christ Episcopal church at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. It was at first planned to hold the services at "Rockwood," Longworth family home, but this was changed to accommodate the large gathering of mourners, headed by President and Mrs. Hoover, who will gather to pay their last tribute.

This little dream-town, with its squatty palms and its beating sunshine meanwhile was struggling to regain its control after the shock which came this morning as Dr. Robert H. Wilds announced that the speaker was dead.

For the townfolk here death for "Nick" Longworth seemed a thing that existed only in theory. Five days ago he was strolling the streets, laughing with all comers, radiating that far-famed geniality which brought him in his three decades of public life to the point of being the second most powerful man in the American government.

Paulina Is Yet To Hear News Of Daddy's Death

PAULINA

CINCINNATI, April 9. (UP)—Paulina, only child of Nicholas and "Princess Alice," Longworth played happily today in the sunshine in her own playground at the Longworth home, Rockwood, in an exclusive suburb of the city, unaware that her daddy was dead.

It was left to her mother to tell her the sad news when Mrs. Longworth arrives with the body early Saturday, according to Mrs. Buckner Wallingford, a sister of Longworth.

Paulina, who is 6, only knows that her daddy is ill somewhere "far away," according to Mrs. Wallingford.

"I hope it will not make her too unhappy," Miss Dorothy Waldron, governess and Paulina's "second mother," said today. "I think she will understand somewhat what death means as I have taught her that man lives and dies just as the flowers and plants do. But I also have given her the thought that the spirit of man lives after him."

There was a deep comradeship between the girl and her father. Although she was the child of his old age, they had been real playmates since her infancy.

Friends recalled today how the speaker had left the house of representatives early last St. Valentine's day, Paulina's sixth birthday, to bring her his own present and to spend a half-hour playing and talking with her.

Washington Mourns 'Nick,' The Man, Rather Than Longworth, Speaker

Capital Residents Evidence Genuine Grief at Passing of Veteran House Republican Leader

By FRASER EDWARDS

WASHINGTON, April 9. (US)—Something far deeper and finer than official mourning for the death of Speaker Nicholas Longworth today stirred the hearts of the people of Washington.

It was benuine grief for the passing of "Nick," the man, whose human warmth and genius for friendship made him beloved by presidents and paupers, by bankers and barbers, that gave residents of the nation's capital a sense of personal loss.

By the same token did Washingtonians share with sincerest sympathy the sorrow of Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, the "Princess Alice" of a quarter of a century ago, whose beauty and charm captivated citizens of the capital city.

Rank With "The Monument"

For "Alice" and "Nick" were just as much a part of Washington as "the monument" and "the avenue".

Both "Nick" and "Alice" were born to the purple and were set apart in social and official position from Uncle Sam's army of civilian workers, the shop keepers and others that made up the city. Yet they both possessed the common touch that made them "just folks" to the people.

A striking testimonial of "Nick's" popularity was shown by the incessant telephone calls by people in all walks of life at newspaper offices for the 24 hours prior to his death, inquiring about his condition and always adding a word of hope for his recovery.

Mourning in Hearts

So there was mourning in Washington tonight, not only that betokened by the flags drooping at half mast, but in the hearts of the people. The first news of the speaker's death was flashed to the White House. President Hoover, who has been in constant touch with the development of the fatal illness, promptly dispatched a message to Mrs. Longworth expressing his personal condolences and the official regret of the nation.

In keeping with Mrs. Longworths wishes there will be no state funeral, but the President and Mrs. Hoover will head the official party to pay tribute to the speaker's memory at the funeral Saturday in his home city of Cincinnati.

Party Leaves Tonight

The official party will leave Washington omorrow night by special train, bearing the president, Vice President Curtis, members of the cabinet, the congressional funeral committees, including the 21 members of the Ohio delegation in

DEATH AFFECTS HOUSE LINEUP

Republicans Uncertain Of Holding Reins

WASHINGTON, April 9. (AP)—The powerful Republican forces that have held undisputed sway in the house for the past decade today were confronted by their most difficult problem of this political era as a result of the death of Speaker Longworth.

Still bewildered by the sweeping reduction of their majority of 105 in the 71st to a mere two in the 72nd congress in the November elections, the rank and file of the administration forces were further dazed by the loss of their suave and astute leader from Ohio.

Already the Republican forces have been scanned for a possible successor to Longworth, who, with the aid of Majority Leader Tilson of Connecticut, and Chairman Snell of the rules committee, steered a well defined legislative course in the past six years.

Republican leaders conceded that with the loss of Longworth's leadership, the possibility of administration forces organizing the house that convenes in December appeared more remote.

The Ohioan's death reduced the Republican seats to 216. The Democrats hold 215, and the Farmer-Labor 1. There are two Republican and one Democratic vacancies.

Should a Democrat be chosen in a special election in the first Ohio district as successor to Longworth the lineup would be 217 Republicans; 217 Democrats, with the vote of the Farmer-Labor—Kvale of Minnesota—on organization matters in doubt.

'GO AND GET IT' SPEAKER TELLS TRADESEEKERS

Wichita Can Become Market Center—If It Will, Jobbers Told

150 ATTEND BANQUET

Visitors Tell Industrial Leaders They Must Win Business

"Stay close enough to your trade that it can feel your heart beat," was the advice given by M. J. Norrell to more than 150 representatives of manufacturing and jobbing concerns of Wichita Falls who met Thursday night at the Kemp hotel to discuss ways and means of extending the city's wholesale trade. "If Wichita Falls makes up its mind to build here an outstanding market," he said, "it can do it."

Mr. Norrell is connected in an executive capacity with the Magnolia Petroleum company at Dallas, and with Barnard Bryant of Stamford, general manager of the Bryant-Link stores, was the principal speaker of the meeting, which was sponsored by the manufacturers and jobbers division of the chamber of commerce.

Let 'Em Know It

Mr. Bryant said one reason why West Texas gives Wichita Falls small trade is that Wichita Falls is not thought of as a manufacturing and jobbing center, but as an oil center, made up of capitalists and those who don't have to work. "You can go out and get wholesale trade," he said, "because you have the good will of the people in this territory; but let them know you are out for the business."

In defining the requirements for building a city, Mr. Norrell declared that the men and women composing the population of a town are the only ones that can say what limitations a city may reach in its achievements.

"Cities," he said, "usually are begun by accident. They are built on purpose. They are built with the man power which it possesses.

"There are two kinds of builders, bridge builders and fence builders. The bridge builder throws a bridge across his obstacles and goes on to greater achievements. The fence builder builds a fence of limitations around his possibilities. Wichita Falls was made pos-

Patman wrote Mitchell that Proctor & Gamble has purchased the Portsmouth Cotton Oil and Refining corporation of Portsmouth, Va.

Cermak Turns Out 2200 Hirelings Of Thompson As Big Sweep Starts

Chicago Mayor Stays Pay Roll For Examination

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN

CHICAGO, April 9. (UP)—Mayor Anton J. Cermack, Chicago's "new broom," swept 2,200 employes out of the dingy city hall today in his first move to "restore Chicago's reputation."

The sudden additions to the ranks of the unemployed all were "pay-rollers" appointed by ex-Mayor William Hale Thompson to boost his unsuccessful campaign for reelection.

Cermak then threw further terror into the hearts of the political hangers-on, by announcing that he planned to hold up all city pay rolls until each individual's record could be scanned.

Holds Up Pal Roll

"There'll be no pay until every person on the books can prove that he actually has been working for the city," said the smiling Cermak calmly, despite the hullaballo of a dozen photographers and goodness knows how many local Democrats all milling around the new mayor, trying to make group photographs.

Advent of Cermak into the luxurious offices of Chicago's chief executive, revealed incidentally that Thompson had almost 50 telephones installed in his suite. Cermak ordered all but one ripped out, shooed away the reporters and the cameramen, bowed out his constituents and then went to work, bent on starting immediately his "business administration of Chicago."

He announced appointment of a new health commissioner, a commissioner of public works and a corporation counsel. And then he went into conference about what to do with the police department and the notorious "Scarface Al" Capone, a human thorn in the side of Chicago for the last decade.

Police Shakeup

The police department is going to be reorganized, Cermak said, and a new "hard-boiled and efficient" chief of police is going to be installed. Whereupon the police department will get rid of Chicago's gangsters, Cermak added, or he will know the reason why.

Thompson, the "cowboy mayor" who turned his three terms as chief executive of Chicago into what his enemies called a three ring political circus, dominated a lugubrious jaunt, meanwhile, down the Illinois, Mississippi and Tennessee rivers. By train for Peru, Ill., where they boarded the ancient side-wheel river packet, Caje Girardeau, for a cruise expected to revive their spirits and incidentally give them a view of inland waterways development, one of the many pet projects of "Big Bill the Builder."

Reporters Saddened

Mournful, too, were the city hall newspaper reporters, immortalized in the play "the front page." They feared, and, according to Cermak, feared rightly, that no more sensational world startling "scoops" would be forthcoming from the city hall.

Never again will they get a chance to write about Chicago's mayor being ready to punch King George of England "on the snoot," said Cermak. Neither will there be any bulletins about "$1,000,000 prosperity lottery campaigns," or elephant parades, or super-gigantic patriotic demonstrations.

"The fact is," Cermak assured the scribes, "that as a business man I'm going to run Chicago as a business and not as a street carnival."

Three Kirkland Men Injured in Accident

Three Kirkland, Texas, men received painful cuts and bruises and their automobile was demolished when the machine toppled off a 25-foot embankment two miles west of Henrietta shortly after 8:30 o'clock Thursday night.

The accident occurred, it was said when something became wrong with the steering gear of the automobile.

East Texas Oil Meetings Are Called Again

AUSTIN, April 9. (UP)—A new call for meetings of operators in the East Texas oil fields for next Saturday was issued late today by the state railroad commission.

Similar meetings called for yesterday were not held. On their eve an injunction against oil proration in the East Texas field had been issued. This injunction still is in force.

The new call is distinguished from the former one in making no reference to the railroad commission docket number of the hearing on which oil proration was ordered. The new call is independent of that hearing and unnumbered.

Under the new call a meeting of operators in the Longview and Kilgore areas is to be held at Longview at 10 a. m. A meeting of operators in the Henderson area is to be held at 2 p. m.

No motion to dissolve the injunction which was secured by former Governor Dan Moody as attorney for Carl Estes of Tyler had been made today. Assistant Attorney General Fred Upchurch in whose hands the railroad commission's side of the case has been placed, has not determined if such a motion will be filed. The injunction will be fought but Upchurch may find it best to let the injunction stand until it is

GRAND JURY INDICTS 36

Jesse Furl No-Billed in Pat Davis Death

One of the heaviest reports returned by a district court grand jury in recent years was received by Judge Allan D. Montgomery in the 30th district court Thursday afternon after the inquisitors had spent almost four days in finding 43 felony indictments against 36 defendants.

Twenty-seven of those indicted this week were under arrest or at liberty on bond Thursday, according to District Attorney Sam B. Spence.

In connection with the death of Pat Davis, Iowa Park plumber who died as a result of wounds received in a gunfight on Sunday, March 29, Jesse Furl was no-billed. Furl, a truck-farmer with whom Davis was said to have quarreled, was shot in the abdomen and in the elbow at the same time that Davis received fatal wounds in the chest. Furl was released from a local hospital several days ago. Among those indicted for violation of the liquor laws was King Norris, accused of the sale of liquor to high school students at Iowa Park, according to Assistant District Attorney Mike Anglin. Six of the indictments are in liquor cases.

All defendants against whom indictments have been returned, and who have been apprehended by the state, will be brought to trial in the week of April 20, it was announced Thursday.

The grand jury will reconvene April 27 to complete its work for the term, it was stated.

Wife Sues When Plumber Hubby Won't Fix Pipe

CHICAGO, April 9. (AP)—William Metcalfe is a plumber.

There are many thousands of plumbers in Chicago and the fact Metcalfe is engaged in that line of work wouldn't have excited much interest if it hadn't been for the supplemental bill for divorce his wife filed yesterday.

She charged that when a pipe burst in their home last Sunday, the place was flooded because he refused to fix it.

"On Sunday?" she quoted him as saying. "It's against the union rules."

He formerly published a newspaper in Altus, Okla., and following his second marriage he came here and purchased the Yuma Sentinel. He killed himself Monday, apparently after learning his masquerade was known to some friends.

The Sentinel was being published today under joint instructions from representatives of the women but no decision had been reached on whom would assume final control of the property.

Mrs. Bellah and Mrs. Lee have not met to discuss their problems. Mrs. Lee, in the care of friends, was unable to attend the funeral yesterday and remained in seculsion today. She has indicated she will not return to her Wisconsin home if she can make arrangements to support herself here.

PRESIDENT AND CABINET GIVE PLAN APPROVAL

Four-Point Cooperative Project Endorsed By Government

MEET AGAIN TUESDAY

Cicero Murray Group To Attend A. P. I. Session At St. Louis

WASHINGTON, April 9. (AP)—The administration today approved the efforts at stabilization of the oil industry which are being made by the 10 principal petroleum producing states.

Both through the federal oil conservation board, composed of four cabinet members, and in a conference at the White House, the president and his aides commended the program presented by the oil states advisory committee.

This group, headed by Cicero I. Murray, cousin of Governor Murray of Oklahoma, laid before the conservation board this morning a plan by which it will continue to function as an advisor and guide to both the industry and the states while the latter are working toward enactment of a compact which will make it possible to limit the production of oil in all fields proportionately.

Save Small Wells

The aim is to bring supply into relation to demand, reduce steadily the present enormous storage of oil and gasoline above ground, restore prices to a point at which the hundreds of thousands of small wells can continue to exist, and through saving of independent operators from bankruptcy, preserve competitive conditions in the nation's second largest industry.

Prices, however, were not mentioned at the session.

The meeting, attended by representatives of virtually every large oil interest, principally was one between the agents of the states and of the federal government.

Attend A. P. I. Meeting

Murray's committee next will go to St. Louis where April 14 they will meet the oil men gathered for the annual session of the American Petroleum institute.

After the session both Secretary Wilbur, chairman of the conservation board, and Murray expressed confidence the task of bringing voluntary cooperation from so many interests would succeed.

Murray's committee spent 30 minutes in conference with the president during the afternoon. Afterward they said they had assurance of full cooperation from the government. They expressed gratitude to Mr. Hoover for this support and for the way in which the cooperation of oil importers was secured recently.

It took the conservation board but a few minutes to give general approval to the program Murray presented, although more than an hour was spent talking about the oil industry's desperate condition. Without leaving the conference room, Secretary Wilbur was able to express on behalf of the other members, Secretaries Hurley, Adams and Lamont, accord with the plan.

Program Presented

Murray, explaining the authority conferred upon the committee's members by the governors of the 10 producing states, presented their program at the opening of the session. It bore the signatures of himself, and other members of the committee.

Following submission of the program Penn presented a review of the industry's recent history and present condition. There followed a flurry of controversy after Harold Walker, representing the Pan-American Petroleum and Transport company, charged domestic producers were responsible for the plight of the industry but sought to throw the blame on importers. The latter, he said, had voluntarily made enormous curtailments in recent years while the Mid-Continent drillers pushed development of enormous new oil fields.

He was sharply challenged by a number of oil men and Wirt Franklin, president of the Independent Oil Producers association, said the import situation had been misrepresented. Only dwindling supplies caused curtailment of imports, he said, until Secretary Lamont succeeded in obtaining the recent assurance of reductions from the big importers. In between, he asserted, development of the Venezuelan fields had led importers to take up every bit of slack yielded by proration of domestic fields.

Elinor Smith recently fell 25,000 feet in her plane after the motor had failed. She escaped injury.

Jury Fails to Agree in Peonage Trial of Hardeman County Farmer

FORT WORTH, April 9. (AP)—A hung jury resulted in United States district court today in the case of Fred Lindsey, Hardeman county farmer on trial of a charge of peonage. United States District Judge James C. Wilson overruled a defense motion for an instructed verdict before the case was given to the jury.

Five ballots were taken by the jurors, each resulting in a six to six vote and the jury was discharged by Judge Wilson.

No indication was given by the government as to whether a new trial would be sought for Lindsey at this term of the court.

Lindsey was charged by an indictment on the peonage count after five negroes had said they were held on his farm against their will, forced to pick cotton and given no money. Lindsey, on the stand in his own defense Wednesday testified that he paid off his cotton pickers every Saturday night and did not hold the negroes against their will.

GARNER MOURNS FOR HIS FRIEND 'NICK'

TEXAN RECALLS KEEN RIVALRY

Democratic Leader Pays Tribute to Speaker

UVALDE, Texas, April 9, (AP)—Congressman John N. Garner who, as leader of the minority party in the national house of representatives, crossed political swords with Nicholas Longworth, late speaker of the house, today mourned the death of one of his "best friends of a lifetime."

John N. Garner

Garner, who, only a few weeks ago bantered with Longworth over ownership of the speaker's official automobile when general election results made it doubtful whether the Republicans would organize the next house or the Democrats assume control and place Garner, as minority leader, in the presiding officer's position, recalled their long legislative records together and spoke feelingly of the strong personal friendship between them.

Recalls Careers

The veteran Texas congressman remembered that he and Longworth, although uncompromising opponents in party politics, began to travel the same road, as it were, soon after the veteran speaker came to Washington as a young congressman from Ohio. Their political courses from the first were divergent but their personal friendship steadfast from the outset, lasting down the years until switching of party ballots placed Garner in a position of likely succeeding Longworth to the speakership, Garner reminisced.

"I knew him as a man and as a legislator and he was the best type of each," Garner said. "His statesmanship was of the highest type and most patriotic. True, he was a partisan, but he was honest and courageous and loved his country. He was a fair and impartial a speaker as the country has had in the last half century.

"He was a regular Republican, which means that he believed in party organization and party responsibility, which is the opinion of most men who have had experience in legislative efforts.

"I have lost one of the best friends of a lifetime, the country a good citizen and the congress a most valuable legislator."

Wedding in 1906

The Texan, adversary of Longworth in many a warm legislative debate, turned the years back to 1906 when Alice Roosevelt, daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt, was a White House bride and Longworth the bridegroom. Friendship between the two men, one destined to be speaker of the house, and the other his most likely successor as recipient of this high congressional honor, had ripened into warmth that far back, and Garner was one of the first to congratulate the young couple.

Garner's memory then recounted more recent incidents in the speaker's life. He remembered their last meetings—it had been their custom to relive congressional episodes daily after debate had ceased—Garner in his own office. They chatted as "Nick" Longworth and "Jack" Garner, not as Speaker Longworth and Minority Leader Garner, the Texan pointed out.

Garner remembered their recent parting, how they joked about who, next December, would order the speakers' official automobile to and fro—Longworth or Garner. There still existed doubt about whose party would organize the next house, and each reminded the other of little tricks of fate which might add to the uncertainties during the interim, little thinking that death might play such a telling part. Longworth was one of the last persons Garner said goodby to when he left Washington for his Uvalde ranch.

Aristocrat and Plebeian

"Longworth was an aristocrat; I am a plebeian," Garner said quietly, adding: "Perhaps the very fact of our different rearing intensified our interest in each other.

Longworth and I were associated together in congress from the very beginning. We served on the same committee — foreign affairs and ways and means. He went to the speakership; I to the leadership of the Democratic minority. We were closely associated socially. It had been our constant habit for years to meet each evening after congress adjourned and discuss the happenings of the day and the probable happenings of the morrow."

Garner reviewed some of their bitter difference in partisan legislation, and remarked:

"When the fight was over our efforts were celebrated in the usual manner—differences forgotten and good fellowship resumed."

SPEAKER NICHOLAS LONGWORTH

Mocking Birds Sing Requiem For Longworth as His Last Day Dawns

By GLENN RAMSEY

AIKEN, S. C., April 9. (AP)—A full dozen, dull feathered Carolina mocking birds, perched in a tree just outside his sick-room, sang for Nicholas Longworth today at dawn.

And they were still singing—a requiem—as one of the most fascinating figures in American statesmanship passed on.

Like the well-groomed man who overcame prejudices of wealth to become personal friend to his bitterest political enemies, the day was typical of the spring raiment in the South.

Nicholas Longworth came here again this year, for a vacation at the home of Mrs. James F. Curtis, of Washington, to see and enjoy just such days as today.

But, a cold and the pneumonia forced him to his bed a little more than a week after his arrival, and he did not get to enjoy another southern spring with its dogwood, wisteria, bright green foliage and roses.

"Princess Alice" Present

At his bedside when the end came was that marvelous personality "Princess Alice" Roosevelt Longworth, his wife, who remained almost constantly in his sickroom from the time of her arrival. Paulina, their small daughter was not here.

"Princess Alice"

"Princess Alice" a daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt of the wide smile and strong self-control, despite the long hours of vigilance, bore up magnificently under the blow of her loss. She was a Roosevelt, it was expected of her and as always, she was equal to it.

Nicholas knew little that transpired in and out of his room from early last night. He was fighting his last battle, losing, but still fighting with such vitality that his physicians marveled.

He knew how to fight. He learned that when he was elected to the board of education in Cincinnati in 1898 and through subsequent political victories to the speakership of the house, one of the most important of American official posts.

Reporters Grieved

Newspaper men stood with bowed heads in the flowered portico of the Curtis colonial mansion early in the day as Dr. R. H. Wilde, one of Mr. Longworth's physicians told them he would live but a few hours.

The doctor would not give up hope, but Mr. Longworth didn't have a chance, he said.

Back to their typewriters went the men of the press, their hearts heavy with the task, to tell a waiting world what they feared and hoped against.

Both inside and outside of the curtained window of the sickroom the vigil continued. Doctors and nurses and loving hands administering to the losing fighter inside, newspaper men watching the moving figures in white, awaiting the inevitable.

Then the doctor stepped out of the house and told the newspaper men the end had come.

Throughout the world the news of his death flashed. Thousands of words described his career.

The vigil was over.

Our task done.

CREAGER PAYS 'NICK' TRIBUTE

Texas Republican Sorrows At Longworth's Death

HOUSTON, April 9 (AP)—A tribute was paid here this afternoon to the name and character of the late Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house of representatives who died this morning by R. B. Creager, of Brownsville, Republican national committeeman for Texas.

Creager characterized the political situation in the house, brought about by Longworth's death, as "unprecedented in the history of the country."

In speaking of Longworth, Creager, an intimate friend for 12 years, said:

"I received the news of Mr. Longworth's death with very sincere sorrow and deep regret.

"I have been intimate with him for the past 12 years and he and John Garner and myself have always been together when we are in Washington.

"Everybody who knew him loved him.

"His death is a loss to this country. He so conducted himself in his office as speaker that some of his best friends were Democrats—his political opponents. One of his best friends was his arch political opponent, John Garner, who might succeed him.

"He was one of the finest men I ever knew and a great orator. He always conducted himself with the utmost fairness to friend and foe alike while in the speaker's chair. I never heard any complaints against his official acts. And that is difficult in such a bitter partisan body."

Longworth's Last Words to Solons Prove Prophetic

WASHINGTON, April 9. (US)—Speaker Longworth's last utterance in the house over which he had so long presided was strangely prophetic of his death, it was recalled today.

Although referring to the possibility that Democrats might rule that body in the next congress, his words had an ominous ring when he said:

"Perhaps this is the last time I will address you from this rostrum. I do not mean to insinuate that I regard it as a probability, but it must admit it is a possibility."

"The decision lies with none of us here. It is a decision that lies with an all wise providence."

CATTLE SHIPPED

FREDERICK, Okla., April 9.—Two cars of fat cattle were shipped from Hollister Tuesday to the Oklahoma City stockyards. These farmers in that locality furnished the cattle: Frank Amyx, W. O. Smart, Charles Minter and L. L. Kinder.

DECIDE QUICKLY ABOUT KONJOLA

Let All Who Suffer From the Ills Konjola Is Designed to Relieve Read This

Read every word of these happy experiences with this medicine of 29 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices of roots and herbs; the remarkable medicine for stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

Mrs. Lillie Schulze

See what Konjola did for Mrs. Lillie Schulze, 1307 Center street, San Antonio: "For months my system was out of order; blood was in bad condition and stomach weak. Food did not digest properly, and I had a breaking out of the skin that made me very nervous. In two days I began to get results from Konjola. It is the greatest medicine I ever tried, and I took only two bottles."

Mr. Thomas W. Wilson

And consider the case of Thomas W. Wilson, 2117 San Jacinto avenue, Houston, who says: "I suffered terribly with stomach trouble for a year. Gas formed and I bloated, after meals. I was nervous and constipated. But after taking Konjola stomach troubles are over. I heartily commend this medicine to all my friends."

No wonder Mrs. E. L. Beiflower, 824 Euclid avenue, Houston, is enthusiastic about this amazing medicine. She declares: "I am glad that I found Konjola. It is wonderful. For 10 years I had stomach trouble, with gas, bloating, and dizzy spells. Kidneys were weak and neuritis troubled me. Then I began using Konjola and this splendid medicine went right to work. Konjola did all that I hoped it would."

Mrs. E. L. Beiflower

Konjola is a medicine for the aged or the infant; for all the family. That is why Konjola is a household word in tens of thousands of American homes. Get Konjola in any good drug store, and do not accept a substitute.—Adv.

Woman Hurt in Jump From Smoking Car

Special to The Record News.

ASPERMONT, Texas, April 9.—Mrs. Mary Smith Bostock, a C. I. A. student spending the Easter holidays here with her mother, Mrs. Myrtle Smith, suffered slight injuries in a jump from her moving car which suddenly became enveloped in smoke. Mrs. Bostick was returning alone from Stamford where she had spent the day with relatives. She was within four miles of Aspermont when the roadster engine sputtered and volumes of smoke arose from beneath the hood of the car. Fearing an immediate explosion, the occupant jumped from the car, sustaining deep scratches on her face and a gash over one eye. She will be able to return to her school within a short time. It is thought the fire originated from gas that was dropping from a leaking gasoline tank. The car was considerably damaged.

Cleans the scalp "sets" a wave checks DANDRUFF

WHENEVER you wash your hair—and most people do it once a week—douse full strength Listerine on the scalp either before or after the rinse. Then massage the scalp and hair vigorously for several minutes.

You will be simply delighted by the wonderful feeling of cleanness and exhilaration that follows this refreshing treatment.

Moreover, it is unquestionably one of the best treatments for loose dandruff — for preventing it, and for overcoming it once it has started.

Many hundreds of women have told us that since making Listerine a part of the weekly shampoo, their scalp feels better, their hair looks more attractive, and they are never troubled with loose dandruff.

Of course, if dandruff does get a start, it will be necessary to repeat the Listerine treatment systematically for several days, using a little olive oil in conjunction with it if the scalp and hair are excessively dry.

Listerine removes and dissolves the dandruff particles and heals and soothes the scalp. Also, if infection is present—and most dermatologists define dandruff as a germ infection—Listerine immediately combats it.

Incidentally after a shampoo when the hair is unruly there is nothing like Listerine to make it set nicely. The same applies to a finger wave.

Keep Listerine handy at home and carry it with you when you travel. Medical men pronounce it the ideal safe antiseptic. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Missouri.

Do you have to be told?

Before any social engagement rinse the mouth with Listerine. Thus you automatically end Halitosis (unpleasant breath) the one unforgivable social fault.

FREDERICK, Okla., April 9.—Road work in Tillman, Comanche and Kiowa counties is giving work to a number of men. The highway from Chattanooga to Lawton will shorten the distance between those points several miles. This road is being widened and the corners rounded. Four bridges are to be constructed. This road is to be completed Oct. 1, 1931.

G. E. Kadane of Frederick who has the contract for the first four and one-half miles of road north of Frederick on state highway No. 14, is now busy with a force of men and teams grading and erecting bridges. Other contractors are at work on different sections north of this into Kiowa county.

J. R. Kieth, resident engineer, is in charge of the project. His headquarters are at Snyder. Work on the Snyder-Frederick road began about March 1 and will be completed July 1. It will be a high speed road, said Kieth, there being no grade over 5 per cent, and most of it will be no more than two per cent. The road bed will be 36 feet wide with 30 feet over bridges.

It seems almost unbelievable how fast new Ironized Yeast has added pounds of good firm flesh—on men and women, children and old people. Nervousness, tired feeling changed to new strength and pep; constipation, indigestion vanished.

People ask—what is the wonderful power in Ironized Yeast that has transformed sallow, lifeless, blemished complexions into fresh, smooth, lovely skin. No wonder thousands of women pour in letters praising the marvelous youthifying effects of Ironized Yeast.

Yet the answer is simple. Ironized Yeast is two tonics in one—special weight-building dried brewer's Yeast and blood-enriching, strengthening Iron. The yeast is the same used in making malt and which makes malt so beneficial. It is specially cultured and concentrated to give the utmost in flesh-producing value. Double-tested for strength, purity and potency. Used by doctors and big hospitals.

To this concentrated dried brewer's yeast is added three kinds of easily assimilated Iron to quickly make rich, red blood and tone up nerves and muscles. By this special process Ironized Yeast is made more effective than yeast or iron taken separately. Contains no starches, flours or gas-forming fillers. That's why Ironized Yeast works so quickly. Pleasant little tablets—no nasty taste, no gas or bloating. Never spoil, safe for everybody.

Go to any drug store today, get a full size treatment or Ironized Yeast, and take the little tablets as directed. If after this generous trial you are not delighted with quick results, your money promptly refunded by manufacturer.—Adv.

Mrs. Roy J. Daniel is president of the local branch of the American Association of University Women and splendid programs in the different groups are given following the regular luncheons at the Wichita club.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Driving down Eleventh street I passed a truck parked just at a manhole in the center of the cross-streets with the workmen out of sight in the ground. It made me remember the countless times workmen used to be seen dragging unending lengths of cable from beneath the pavement in Memphis, Tenn.

Odd—the power of suggestion. Just that scene made me think of all that is unnecessarily dragged into publicity. I've been reading some stories that have made me feel how unmorally light-minded a large proportion of modern people have become. A modern mania is to be dryly humorous about sacred things—to be altogether what this generation deems "cerebral."

In the days of my youth—birth and life and death were treated as events and conditions of magnitude. And even though I am highly adaptable I cannot outgrow those days. Death even, is not always now regarded with respect.

I have had very young people startle me. They talk smartly of love as if it were a mere psychological function—and leave me gasping and hoping that age will bring a sense of proportion.

They make even sin such a moron's privilege. There has been recorded on the pages of history, such a thing as gallant sin—even as there is gallant virtue.

One can forgive a human sinner so much more readily than one can bear with a narrow-minded exponent of virtue who knows nothing of what the word means. It takes temptation to prove virtue.

"Gallant" is to me a beautiful word. I have even found myself applying it to towns. There's a little town named Friars Point in the Mississippi delta that was once the county seat. Some political necromancy robbed it of its power and all the glory went to Clarksdale, some 15 miles distant. But Friars Point—with one little railroad, with a dwindling river traffic and with many of her citizens moving to the larger and more prosperous little city, carried on. To this day, her schools rival Clarksdale's; her ball teams would rather defeat Clarksdale's than a big league team. She's never pulled down her flag.

There's another little town not far away from Friars Point that was left like a piece of driftwood when the Mississippi changed its channel and even with good roads, with rich land all around and with moneyed citizens, there's no spirit in the little village. She sits and mourns over a vanished past.

When one makes a trip on the Tennessee river—a trip by the way that artists say is more beautiful than the Hudson river voyage—one of the sights pointed out is high on a hill above the shadowy river where a lone shed and a lone cabin mark the spot that once missed by just a vote or two being the capital of the state. Defeat destroyed all gallantry there.

The one virtue next to tolerance that men and women should cultivate is persistence. A quitter in a game is not to be pitied. Give us the spirit of gallantry.

One of the most extraordinary echoes in the world is to be heard by the side of a small lake in Bavaria. On one side rises a tall cliff and on the other side a dense forest. A pistol fired across the lake creates a faint echo that diminishes almost to nothing. Then it is picked up by the cliff and thrown back like thunder.

Rock Gardens Challenge Best Efforts Of Home Lovers, Mrs. Dobie Declares

Writer Discusses Sites and Plants Native to Texas and Mentions Fort Worth and San Angelo Gardens

By BERTHA M'KEE DOBIE

Reasons for the popularity of rock gardens are not far to seek. The flower that blooms in a crannied wall or shows its fair fragility against some old gray stone has added to its own beauty the charm of contrast. Moreover, a rock garden satisfies the ancient urge persistent in every man and woman to make something with his hands, to fabricate, to build. And a rock garden is a real challenge, as everyone knows who has contemplated the heaps of unrelated rocks that too often pass for a garden. Then some plants feel more at home among rocks than any where else in the world. Plant growers in America have followed at the heels of Europe in offering suitable plants to their customers, so that now in a sizeable catalogue "the rock garden" receives as much attention as "the border," "the rose garden," or foundation planting."

Demand Thought

Upon the intelligence with which rock gardens of today are constructed and planted depends their future: whether they will become a permanent part of many gardens, or will 20 years from now be regarded with the amused and superior eye with which a few remaining stars, circles, diamonds, and crescents breaking an expanse of lawn are now regarded—for these astronomical and geometric curios were in their day plotted with an ardor equal to that the modern gardener feels when he settles his rocks.

The person who desires in the place to decide wisely whether he shall have a rock gardeat all needs to consider many things: the con-

BANKER RAKES FARM BOARD

John Q. McAdams Calls Plan Socialistic

SWEETWATER, Texas, April 9. (AP)—John Q. McAdams of Winters, president of the Texas Bankers' association, told business men at a luncheon today he believed "the federal farm board is pure socialism and wrong in principle."

"The farm board is made up of successful business men," he said, "but they have started operations from the wrong end. The organization is sapping the very life blood from southern agriculture. I do not think any governmental agency should be allowed to use the taxpayers' money to operate in cotton and wheat markets."

McAdams severely criticized the farm board's operations and installment buying as well which he blamed for recent business depression. As a remedy, he prescribed "old-fashioned" living.

Husbands fall for the sunny blushes of this peach bread

PEACH BREAD

1 cup dried peaches (or apricots)
Boiling water
3 tablespoons Crisco
¾ cup sugar
1 egg
1¾ cups thick sour milk or buttermilk
½ teaspoon soda
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon mace
1 cup bran
½ cup chopped nuts

Scald dried peaches in boiling water. Let stand for 10 minutes. Drain and cut into coarse pieces.

Blend sweet-tasting fluffy Crisco with the sugar and egg in one brisk stirring. (You can, because Crisco comes in the can pre-creamed!) Add peaches, then the sour milk beaten with the soda. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and mace—then mix in the bran and nuts. Add these dry ingredients to the liquid mixture. Mix thoroughly. Pour into loaf pan well rubbed with Crisco and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for about 1 hour.

ALL MEASUREMENTS LEVEL—Recipes tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute. Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by the Procter & Gamble Co.

Your husband won't believe you if you tell him that this delicious hot breakfast bread is made with dried peaches. They've had their faces lifted of every wrinkle. They pack this hot crusty bread full of young sunny flavor.

Yes, dried peaches make a wonderful come-back in this bread . . . they taste fresh-picked and juicy and young. Of course, Crisco helps them out. Crisco blends its sweetness and freshness into that crispy loaf to bring out the full fruitiness.

We all know that a cake or a pie is a sum total of the tastes of the various ingredients. One stale egg . . . one tablespoon of shortening that's "off" can taint a food with its flavor.

There's just as much difference in fats as in eggs. Some fats turn rancid quickly—especially during a "hot spell." Others smell tallowy when you pry the lid off the pail. That tallowy flavor will be stronger when it's subjected to stove heat.

I hope you're depending upon Crisco to put its quality flavor in your cooking. Crisco makes everything taste better because it tastes so good itself. Taste a tiny bit sometime. You'll find it's as sweet and fresh as newly-churned, unsalted butter.

Crisco keeps its sweetness and freshness right through summer heat—even without ice-box help!

Then, too, you'll find that fluffy Crisco helps you stir up cakes and breads in a quicker way. Crisco comes to you pre-creamed. It blends with the sugar and eggs in a few brisk stirs. No tedious creaming. No dribbling in the sugar. Crisco can save you ⅓ of your mixing time!

COURT CALLS JULIAN ASSETS

Order Served on Oil Man At Oklahoma City

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 9. (UP)—C. C. Julian, Oklahoma and California oil operator, was ordered to appear in district court here April 16 to show whether he owns any property, real or personal.

The C. C. Julian Oil and Royalty Co., also was ordered to reveal on April 16 its list of assets and property holdings from its books and records.

The orders, signed by District Judge Sam Hooker, were served on Julian by a deputy sheriff when Julian appeared at the courthouse today to confer with County Attorney Lewis Morris in connection with his trouble with L. S. Bolling at Laredo, Texas. Julian was indicted there for alleged attempt to extort and kidnap.

The orders were issued in the attempt of John Salsberry, former associate, to collect two judgments, one for $117,800 and the other for $67,510.18, which Julian had failed to pay.

Records showed that Salsberry, a Los Angeles resident, obtained the judgments in a California superior court April 15, 1930. The suit was filed here last October and Judge G. W. Long ordered Julian to pay. Julian defaulted by not appearing in court.

Salsberry's attorneys said today's action was an attempt to determine if Julian himself owns property which may be attached.

Julian's attorneys said Salsberry is a "joint adventurer" with Julian and two others in establishing the Western Lead Co., in California. Julian's attorneys contended Salsberry claims Julian bought his stock and failed to pay for it.

Julian conferred with Morris relative to a demand that the county attorney file an embezzlement complaint against Bolling, his former associate, who pressed for indictments against Julian and two other associates at Laredo. Julian claimed Bolling embezzled $100,000 from him and that the Laredo charges resulted when Bolling allegedly refused to pay.

More than 220,000 men will be employed on Italy's public works projects.

Old Glory Starts Work on New High School Building

Special to The Record News.

OLD GLORY, Texas, April 9.—Excavations for the foundation and basement of the new rural high school building here, the first actual work of the building program of school district No. 4, are now in progress under the direction of J. L. Hair, contractor, of Wichita Falls. As a means of aiding the unemployment situation in this drouth affected section, workmen will be used in two shifts, which will report on alternating weeks thus giving laborers on each list employment during two weeks of each month.

On Dec. 20, 1930, an election for the issuance of $28,000 in school house bonds was carried in this consolidated district composed of Old Glory, Hooker, Brandenburg and New Hope. Plans for a model eight-room brick and tile structure, drawn by Voelcker & Dickson, architects of Wichita Falls, were later accepted by the trustees. The building, which will front east, will be located in the center of the seven-acre school campus on which the two old school buildings now stand.

SPECIALISTS FIND WAY TO WIPE OUT EPIDEMIC OF "ATHLETE'S FOOT"

You may be a victim of the widespread infection commonly called "Athlete's Foot," and still not know what ails you. That is the way authorities explain the fact that over ten million people in the country today have this disease.

If your toes itch with tiny blisters, if the skin between them turns red or white, becomes thick and moist, or develops a scaly dryness—don't take chances on serious complications. Any of these symptoms indicate the presence of this insidious form of ringworm.

Douse ABSORBINE JR. on your feet twice a day. It not only safeguards against dangerous infection, but actually kills the germs wherever it penetrates.

For after extensive tests, specialists of a famous New York laboratory found that this soothing, yet powerful, antiseptic is especially deadly to the tinea trichophyton germs which cause "Athlete's Foot."

It is wise to use ABSORBINE JR. after every exposure to wet surfaces—in public places and even in your own bathroom. For the tiny parasites breed and lurk simply everywhere, and are always ready to attack. At all drug stores, $1.25. W. F. Young, Inc., Springfield, Mass.

CAMELS are wrapped Only in MOISTURE-PROOF Cellophane

Cigarettes in prime condition have a moisture content of about 10%. It will be seen by the chart that cigarettes in the ordinary wrapped package lose more than half of their total moisture in thirty days and that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition.

THE whole country is talking about the throat-easy mildness and the factory freshness of Camel Cigarettes in the new Humidor Pack.

The above chart prepared by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory tells you why.

Please examine it carefully. It is an unfailing guide to cigarette selection and enjoyment.

As you can quickly see by the three upper curves on this interesting chart, cigarettes that lack the protection of the Humidor Pack lose their moisture rapidly from the day they are manufactured.

And day by day as this moisture disappears, the smoke from these cigarettes becomes harsher, hotter, more unkind to the smoker's throat.

Not so with Camels!

Factory-fresh Camels are air-sealed in the new Sanitary Package which keeps the dust and germs out and keeps the flavor in.

Make these tests yourself

It is so easy to tell the difference between parched dry cigarettes and fresh prime Camels that it is no wonder everybody is reaching for a fresh cigarette today.

Your fingers identify stale, dried-out tobaccos at once. While a Camel is flexible and pliant.

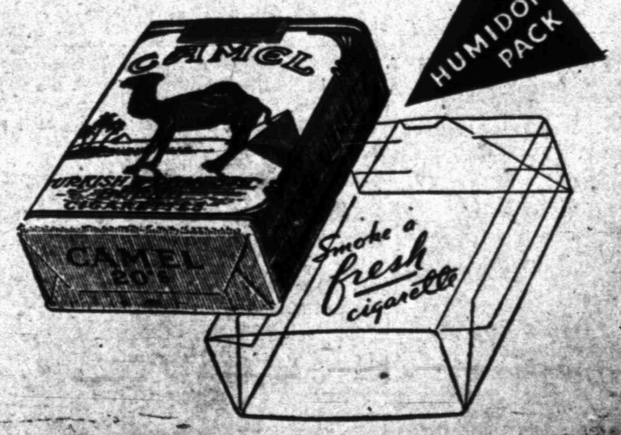

Your ears can tell the difference too. For a dust-dry cigarette crackles under pressure.

But the real test is taste and there is simply no comparison between the rich mildness of a Camel and the hot, brackish smoke from a stale, dry cigarette.

Switch to Camels just for today then leave them tomorrow if you can.

CAMELS

Artificial heat in houses and apartments soon dries the moisture out of cigarettes wrapped the old fashioned way. It is the mark of a considerate hostess, by means of the Humidor Pack, to "Serve a fresh cigarette." Buy Camels by the carton—this cigarette will remain fresh in your home and office.

A Twitch of the Earth What It Did to Managua Taxing the Unmarried The Amazons

By EMILE GAUVREAU

In six seconds a city of 75,000 that teemed with life, industry, ambitions and the pursuit of happiness suffers ruin, death and chaos. One twitch of the earth in Managua, capital of Nicaragua, has undone what generations of her citizens' labors have reared and preserved. In the streets lie 1,100 dead, thousands of others injured, buried, most of them, under buildings that toppled upon them.

Nature, which makes life possible, desirable and beautiful, is also ready to make it precarious, hateful and ugly. Simply to live is, for many of us, to arm against her perpetually, to be in a continuous state of preparedness. The moment we cease to be vigilant, that moment we are struck down. You die if you violate the laws of nature and die if you obey them.

Man, through experience, instinct, science, has won not a few good fights against nature, but the chances of victory remain largely unequal. Earthquakes, landslides, typhoons, cloudbursts, tidal waves, epidemics of diseases, the accidents of time and tide, are still like enemies that come upon us from behind. Such an enemy cannot hope for victory always. There must come a time when man will be armed against all contingencies, when the slave will become the master.

Rumania is going to penalize everybody that is unmarried—male or female. All persons between the ages of 30 and 65 who persist in holding on to their state of single blessedness will have to pay the government 20 per cent of their income, in addition to the income tax already levied. Even the widowed and divorced will not be spared.

Rumania would have been no country for such men as Newton and Pitt and Bacon and Kant and Beethoven, all of whom saw no earthly reason (or heavenly either) for getting married. There are persons who are constitutionally or emotionally unfitted for wedlock—the confirmed bachelors and spinsters, the great creators, the frigid, the infirm, abnormal and the crackbrained.

Perhaps if enough countries penalize this group they will be forced to establish their own kingdom, just as the Amazons did in the dimly remembered past. The Amazons recruited husbands only when they needed them for the perpetuation of their race, just as one recruits soldiers for war.

$1,000,000 Legal Fees

THE million-dollar fee in a lawsuit is something that always jabs the attention of the ordinary citizen. It seems rather high. It makes one wonder just how great a man's legal attainments must be to make such a fee proper. It probably leads a number of young men to night law schools.

A few days ago it was announced that fees "of at least $1,000,000" for their services in 14 years of litigation about oil patents were being asked by ex-Senator James A. Reed and Charles W. German of Kansas City, lawyers.

Sometime before that there was another equally large legal fee up for discussion in the newspapers. Farther back in the past there have been other such fees. They are not unheard of, although of course the average lawyer dreams hungrily of them but never gets them.

The man in the street, probably, is moved by such news items to remark, peevishly, "No lawyer on earth is worth that much money." But the interesting point is that that complaint is unjustified. Some lawyers are worth every cent of a million dollars for their work in certain involved cases; and that is one of the most illuminating bits of evidence concerning our legal system that you could ever ask for.

Legal procedure has grown extraordinarily complicated during the last few generations. It isn't anybody's fault, and the remedy—if there is one—isn't on the horizon just at this moment. That cumbersome edifice called The Law gets new accretions from each generation. It is filled with mazes and hidden passageways. It has more subtleties than an oriental system of philosophy.

As a result, the ordinary man, when he bumps his head into it, is lost. What seems a fairly clear problem in everyday life grows devious and baffling when it gets into court; and what is actually complicated to begin with takes on the proportions of an insoluble puzzle, devised by impish gods to plague helpless mortals, when it becomes a legal question.

This is not the fault of the present-day lawyers. They did not invent the system. It existed before they tried their first cases, and sometimes it seems beyond human influence. Most lawyers, probably, would give a good deal to see the system simplified.

Nevertheless, the system is a drag on our economic and social life. The mere fact that our method of settling disputes between man and man has grown so complicated that a lawyer can honestly earn $1,000,000 for his part in such a settlement is ample proof that we need a rather thorough revision of the whole procedure.

About 385 acres have been reported by farmers who have already decided on their acreage. Others will decide and report later. Efforts are being made to get 500 acres planted within reach of the Sunset marketing point. The cantaloupes will be graded and paid for as they are hauled in and accepted. The producers are obligated for nothing more than to produce a sufficient amount of cantaloupes and get them to Sunset where they will be loaded and shipped away.

A Plan for Our Virgin Isles

COMMENTING on the impoverishment in the Virgin islands, which he recently visited, President Hoover declared, "Viewed from every point, except remote naval contingencies, it is unfortunate that we ever acquired these islands."

And perhaps Virgin islanders are just as sorry as the president that the United States ever made the purchase. Since we took possession of this little trio of islands in the Caribbean 14 years ago, their profitable rum business has been ruined by the Volstead act and their commerce hampered by our shipping regulations. As a consequence thousands of natives have left the islands, and they are worse off economically than they were under Danish control.

But it is a mistake to assume that we can do nothing in restoring, in some measure, the prosperity they once enjoyed. The natural charm of the islands, which have been called "The Gardens of Eden of the Caribbean," suggests, for one thing, that we might develop them as a resort.

It would require no superhuman effort on the part of the government to lure some of the thousands of Americans who travel to Bermuda, Cuba and Panama to the tropical playground which really belongs to them. As one writer described them, the islands comprise "the loveliest playground in the world. The tiny islands with their brilliant flowers and fragrant forests, glow like jewels in the blue of the Caribbean, each in a setting of sparkling white beaches and bays shimmering emerald and sapphire by turn. The Virgin islands are fairy isles, homes of romance, basking in the lazy sun of the tropics."

As poor an investment as the $25,000,000 we paid for the islands may now seem, there is no denying they have possibilities as an all-year-round resort. It is a lamentable fact that this paradise must be called the poorhouse of the Caribbean.

Quotations Worth Noting

There are 2124 ways in which children annoy their parents, according to Dr. Mandel Sherman, director of the Child Research Center of Washington. The doctor is too conservative. Any child that can't find more than 2,124 ways to annoy its parents is hopelessly backward.—H. I. Phillips.

JILTED —By Margaret Widdemeyer

Synopsis of Preceding Installments

Helen Heather is not only a typist in the bank, but is social secretary to her cousin, Nina Higginson, a young and wealthy widow. She lives with Nina, in one of the finest houses in Kingsway. Half the eligible young men in Kingsway want to marry Helen, but her choice is Tommy Delamater, for whose father she takes dictation in the bank. Tommy is somewhat of a spoiled child, but Helen finds it thrilling to bring him out of his petulant fits. His latest enthusiasm, besides Helen, is moving pictures. While Helen waits for Tommy at Nina's, Ethan Kingsway appears—one of the Kingsways for whom the town is named. Ethan was jilted by Nina for the rich Mr. Higginson, but he still calls at Nina's home. This time it is to tell her that he must decline a dinner invitation as he is going to Europe. Tommy appears as Kingsway leaves, and frankly says that he hates Ethan. Tommy takes Helen to an amateur production which he is filming. Doris Milliken tells Helen that she and Ronny, Nina's stepson, are engaged. Just before Helen retired Ronny comes home. Nina enters the room as Helen is kissing Ronny goodnight and accuses them of making love. Nina and Ronny have a violent scene and he refuses to go back to college.

The next day Tommy declares his love for Helen.

INSTALLMENT NO. VI

They took hands and went down the short path which led to the space by the brook. She knelt by the basket, pretending to be housewifely with shaking thrilled hands, but he took her around the waist and pulled her away.

"That'll keep, Darling, I have gorgeous news. Listen."

They sat down together against a big tree.

"I'm listening. Here, I can't listen and be kissed both."

"Alternate 'em. Now have sense. Here it is. Dad says I'll never be any good, working under him. Either too indulgent or too much the Spartan parent—you know. Well, he has a pal out in Wisconsin who's another bank president. Helen, the point is—the job is lots better than this one. 'S enough to marry on. Think of us being a Young Married Set and all!"

"Tommy," she said frankly, "it's simply fallen from heaven."

"You bet. Priceless. Promised dad I'd buckle down to business, not so many dances, all that. Told him you'd be a mother to me."

"Tommy—is he all right—about me?"

"Surest thing you know. You know dad—rock-bound ideals and everything. Doesn't see where I got the sense, made me scared of you the way he talked about your noble qualities. I thought you were a priceless thrill! Dad says you're chock-full of virtues."

He kissed her, and went on.

"Mother moaned a little. You know how she is."

Helen winced. But Mrs. Delamater's snobbishness wouldn't bother them, after all, in Wisconsin.

"Paradise for two!" Tommy sang loudly. "Helen, we're going to be married, can you believe it?" He turned a perfect handspring.

"Come back, idiot, and help me fix the picnic. You probably ate a large breakfast at 11, but I was up at 7:30 and at work, worthless creature, before you woke up."

"Tillie the Toiler! Well, you're never going to work after I get you to Wisconsin." He fell on the caviare with appetite. "Got to go at the end of the week. Dad wants you to stay another week or two break him in a new secretary. I say you don't."

Helen suddenly sat up and caught her breath. No, it would have to be longer than that. She shook her head.

"Why not? Don't be stingy."

"You know I have a sister, Jessica, who got married, a couple of years ago, at 17."

"That's no impediment."

"No, listen." It came hard but she had to explain. "Tommy, my father—well, he was the darling of the world, but he never had any sense over money. He was always in debt. Mother was always saying, 'Be just before you're generous,' but he never got it—just laughed and went on spending. But I got it. I have a sort of complex about debt, because of him. And I have to earn another month's salary to be out of debt. Jessica—well she's father over again. She simply hasn't money sense. I just did send her some money she had to have, and the poor little thing was so grateful that she promptly bought me a red coat she couldn't pay for, as a present. So I have to send the money for that!

"But the point is, I have to wait till I've rolled up carfare out, which means a month at least—two months if the coat has fur on it!"

"Good Lord, let Jessica pay for her present, it will teach her a lesson."

"Tommy, I can't. They're way under now, and—she's going to have a baby."

"And you'll pay the hospital bills, I suppose."

Tommy went off suddenly into one of his violent rages. He stormed at her for loving Jessica best, he threatened to have his father discharge her, to break off with her, to go down and have it out with Jessica, to insult Nina—and finally gave in unconditionally, white and limp from his own temper.

"I'll simply die out there," he said reproachfully, "but if you will be a mule I can't stop you. But don't make it long."

"I'll come dashing out the very minute my ticket's saved up," she promised him. "Don't you think I want to?"

"You think it over, Helen. I have lots of money. Carfare available till last possible moment."

"Darling, I can't. I told you, I have a complex!"

"Isn't she the little psychologist!" said Tommy fondly.

They drove back to Nina's, past the outskirts of Kingsway village, past the big stone-walled, mysterious area of the Kingsway estate. It always held a queer fascination for Helen. She had never, it happened, been inside by daylight. Without saying anything much, Nina had, it occurred to Helen, always surrounded and tacitly possessed Ethan Kingsway whenever he had come anywhere near. Helen remembered, idly, something Ethan had said about her always being too busy to—was it accept his invitations? No, something not quite as definite. Nina took no chances, Helen thought, with a smile of amusement over the unnecessary thoroughness of that.

"What's the joke, darling?" Tommy asked, seeing her smile.

"Oh, just thinking about something connected with Nina's Mr. Kingsway," she said.

"I hate that guy," stated Tommy.

"I know. He makes you feel as if you and he could be the most wonderful friends in the world, and suddenly he pops back in and locks the door," said Helen.

"Besides, Kingsway is the worst kind of a snob. The philanthropic kind."

"That doesn't look promising for your relationship with him. Suppose he should get Nina to marry him after all?"

"Oh, rats. No man sticks around 10 years that way."

"Let me out quick, Tommy, there's a lamb, it must be quite dinner time. And I see Nina coming up the street."

Nina, in a very smart black satin marched toward her house with her lizard bag in one hand, and what looked suspiciously like the first prize, a large white tissue paper parcel tied with ribbons, held carelessly in the other. She waved it at them and said an unsurprised "Hello" as they met.

"Nina, in me you see a future cousin," Tommy called joyously, falling violently on her with a hug. "Helen and I are on the verge of matrimony."

Nina kissed him politely and extricated herself.

"It isn't quite the shock it might be," she said. "Of course, you're robbing me of something I can't replace, but I suppose it can't be helped. Congratulations, both of you, children. I'll give you an announcement luncheon next week, Helen."

"Oh, are we telling people?" she protested.

"We're telling the world," interrupted Tommy. He kissed Helen violently, his spirits high again, and was off in his car.

"Now tell me all about it," Nina demanded enjoyably. Helen dropped into the opposite chair, and began to tell her. Nina, of necessity, knew about Jessica—through Jessica herself, indeed, who had poured out to Nina her affectionate gratitude for Helen's periodic help. As a matter of fact, Nina too received Jessica's girlish adoring thank-you letters. Nina was generous to Jessica in a methodical way of her own.

She had long since expressed herself, once and for all, about Helen's help of Jessica. "What Jessica needs is a sharp lesson," she had said. "Let her feel that she hasn't you to fall back on, and she may learn to stand on her own feet." Which was, like most of the opinions Nina expressed, full of hard common sense.

Helen went through the whole day's happenings, down to the suddenly planned, quickly impending marriage and departure to Wisconsin.

"That decides me," Nina said thoughtfully when Helen was done. "I'd half decided anyway, I'll go—" There was a mischevious expression about her mouth—"I'll go to Europe for a good long trip. And if I should chance to run into my fellow townsman, who should blame me?"

"Nina!"

Nina always liked it when she shocked Helen.

"I'll go in about a month. If you stay a little longer or go a little before it won't matter. As for Ronny, if he comes to his senses he can write to me. I'll write him saying so and leaving an address. And you may tell him from me unofficially, Helen, if he should reappear by the way, that the moment he straightens things out with his faculty at college, and with Mr. Powell, Powell has orders to give him a check for back allowance."

Helen sighed a little.

"I am worried about him, Nina."

"I'm not," said Helen negligently. "And if you keep on this way you'll be old before your time."

Helen said no more. She could do nothing about Ronny. As to Ethan Kingsway, Nina was only offering him restitution of what she had taken 10 years ago. She was playing as fair with him as many women would.

To Helen it all seemed very middle-aged and arid. But after all, if it was what Nina wanted and Ethan Kingsway wanted . . . .

FIVE HELD GORDON DEATH

Robbery Given as Motive In Vivian's Death

NEW YORK, April 9, (UP)—Vivian Gordon, flaming-haired vice-racketeer whose jeweled fingers reached into the darkest haunts of New York's underworld and the garish light of Broadway's sporting life, was murdered for the miserable proceeds of a petty robbery, the New York police department announced today.

Stripping the case of its once sensational details—the theory that Vivian paid the price of "Knowing too much," that she was strangled to silence her vindictive tongue, that she was killed to prevent her betrayal of politico-criminal power—the police today booked a common thief and dope peddler as her alleged slayer. And they said the motive was robery—a fur coat, a ring and a wrist watch.

Ex-Convict Held

Harry Stein, 32, an ex-convict, and at one time associated with the vice queen in mysterious ventures beyond the seas—it may have been bank robbery and it may have been bootlegging—is held as the man who knotted a rope around her throat one early morning six weeks ago and left her coatless body lying in a gully at Van Cortland park.

In addition to Stein, four other men are in custody as material witnesses.

David Butterman, 34, calling himself a jobber, Samuel Greenhauer, alias Greenberg, alias Greenhear, 44, of no business; Morris Levine, known simply as "Doc," but claiming to be an electrician, and Jack Holdroft, 29, who claims to be a former member of the Canadian mounted police, are the men upon whom the authorities depend to prove their case. The names of all four men, with significant "business" entries attached to each, were found in Vivian's diaries.

Evidence Linked

Upon the fact that Stein is said to have been seen in a taxicab with Vivian the night she went to her death, and upon additional testimony that he was known to be in possession of a fur coat and wrist watch directly after the murder, the police built up their theory and, in one dramatic gesture, rounded up the suspect and his associates.

It was 24 hours after the arrest, however, before the cautious police made their announcement of what they declare is a solution to the crime that startled New York, that had repercussions throughout the state, and that ended with the pathetic suicide of Benita Bischoff, Vivian's young daughter, in Audubon, N. J.

One entry in Vivian's diary was significant, sufficiently so to bring Stein under suspicion from the first. It referred to her "financing" of a trip to Norway by three men, named in the woman's personal records as "Rubin, Greenberg and Levine." It was, in Vivian's words, "a bank job." Today, it was intimated by the prisoners that it was merely an international bootlegging job, for which Vivian advanced $1,500 or $2,000.

Charge Denied

Stein, the police said, admitted the visit to Oslo in July, 1929, but denied any association with Vivian. In fact, he said, he never knew the Gordon woman. Greenhauer and Levine also admitted making the trip, but likewise denied that Vivian had "managed" the plot.

When the Vivian Gordon murder mystery "broke," six weeks ago, and the identity of the victim became known, a wave of indignation swept over the city, then as now engaged in an investigation of the New York underworld's hold on the lower magistracy, courts and police.

FUNERAL SET FOR SPEAKER

Longworth to be Buried Saturday

powerful forces behind his rise, was not at the bedside of the speaker at the actual time of his death.

Arriving yesterday afternoon after a rush trip from Washington when she learned of his condition, she maintained a vigil at his bedside throughout the night, and then, shortly after 9 o'clock this morning retired from her sentinel's post in exhaustion under absolute mandate of Dr. Wilds.

At 11 o'clock Dr. Wilds broke her sleep with the final news, and she went quietly with him into the chamber. She held up heroically, the "Princess Alice," as a true Roosevelt would hold up.

Sought Rest

It was a colorful treck of sympathizers that wandered through the white brick gate of Curtis cottage this afternoon: Women in trim natural-wood gigs, with bob-tailed horses; stylishly gowned girls in riding clothes; booted and silk-hatted gentlemen with crops under their arms. This is a world of horses, and the speaker loved horses.

There were others, though, close to "Nick" in national affairs; Representative Hare, veteran Democrat of the house of representatives, and Senator-elect James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, who served with Longworth in the house for a dozen years.

Speaker Longworth came here a few weeks ago as the guest of Mrs. Curtis for a rest after the long gruel of the last congress, to find diversion in the warm spring sun of South Carolina, where winter makes its retreat while the days of Washington and Cincinnati are still blustery with March.

Ignored Cold

He had visited the Curtis home here for several past seasons, and was as well known and genuinely loved by the drawling, easy-going natives here, as by his colleagues of the house of representatives who sent him back and back for repeated terms.

A week ago he contracted a slight cold, which Mrs. Curtis and others of his friends considered only a slight and passing ailment. For several days he disregarded it. Then, Easter day, his condition became more severe, and as the hours passed word leaked out that his malady was really critical.

Even this, however, was denied by Mrs. Curtis until yesterday when Mrs. Longworth, bringing with her a family trained nurse from Washington on an emergency call, arrived yesterday afternoon. After a brief survey of the situation Mrs. Longworth instructed physicians to tell the truth to the group of newspaper men who had hastened to the town. Dr. Wilds at once announced that the speaker was in "a very critical condition."

Falls in Coma

Throughout yesterday, the speaker was semi-delirious, but he recognized Mrs. Longworth when she arrived. She sat at his bedside for a considerable period. Then apparently desperately fatigued, he lapsed into a coma from which he never revived.

Mrs. Longworth maintained her vigil throughout the night, and this morning about 9 o'clock when she left her post, the physicians announced they had not given up hope, but that apparently death was a matter of a few hours.

How few, they hardly had guessed. It was less than two hours.

Little Paulina, their 6-year-old daughter, is now in Cincinnati under the care of relatives of her father.

End Is Swift

Details for the funeral have been left in the hands of Joseph G. Rodgers, sergeant-at-arms of the house of representatives, and other government officials at Washington.

While Mr. Longworth was suffering from a cold for some time, the gravity of his illness developed so swiftly that his condition became critical before attending physicians had time to arrest the progress of the disease.

On Monday his cold suddenly developed into something more serious. He was ordered to bed and Mrs. Longworth was notified at once of his condition. She arrived early yesterday and remained at his bedside almost without interruption until the end came.

Strain Tells

The speaker lost strength rapidly, evidently shorn of the power of recuperation and resistance by the strenuous session of congress through which he labored this past winter. Late last night it was evident that his recovery was beyond hope.

A corps of physicians under Doctors R. H. Wilds and Thomas G. Brooks, applied heroic remedies, including the use of oxygen to stimulate breathing, but to no avail. Four nurses were in constant attendance.

Drs. Wilds and Brooks were with Mr. Longworth when he died. With a wave of his hand, Dr. Brooks signaled to the newspaper correspondents gathered in a little group outside that the fight was over. Then the shade was pulled and the hush of death settled over the house.

Belied His Age

Nicholas Longworth was a popular and colorful figure in national politics for more than a quarter of a century. His youthful tastes and demeanor belied his age—everybody believed he was younger than he was.

Born of wealthy parents in Cincinnati in 1869, he did not have to fight his way upward as so many other politicians have done. After graduating from Harvard in 1891, he spent several years studying law and at the age of 29 he was elected to the Cincinnati school board. The next year he was elected to the Ohio house of representatives. After one term in the state legislature he was elected to congress.

The courtship of Nicholas Longworth and Alice Roosevelt was one of the romances of American history. They were married on Feb. 17, 1906, just three years after Nick had come to Washington. That marriage probably attained more publicity than any other in American society.

Their home in Washington became the center of society and politics. Probably every man prominent in politics of the last 25 years passed through the Longworth drawing rooms, irrespective of party, Nick's popularity and Alice's wit combining to form an irresistable magnet.

Defeated in 1912

Longworth was defeated in 1912, the year his father-in-law bolted the Republican party. But two years later, 1914, he returned jauntily to his seat and remained there until the time of his death.

In the 68th congress he was chosen Republican floor leader. After one term as leader he was chosen speaker—a position to which he had long aspired and one he regarded as the most important in the American political system, next to the presidency.

He had a real flare for politics and a striking capacity for government. William Tyler Page, veteran clerk of the house, said Longworth's ability to get many things done with a minimum of effort kept him from getting his just recognition as an executive.

Capital Mourns 'Nick' Longworth

the house, and the oldest in point of service in the delegations from the other 47 states of the union. Many of "Nick's" personal friends in Washington will attend the funeral.

Shortly after news of the speaker's death were circulated, a steady stream of spontaneous expressions of regret began to pour into his office at the capital from all parts of the country.

Miss Mildred Reeves, secretary to the speaker for 15 years, and Mrs. Lucille McArthur, a member of his staff, were kept constantly answering telephone inquiries and receiving messages of condolence in the huge office of the southeast wing of the capitol. Mrs. McArthur said Mrs. Longworth bore the blow bravely.

"She was just wonderful," said Mrs. McArthur, in repeating her telephone conversations with Mrs. Longworth in Aiken.

Immediately upon learning of the speaker's death, the president ordered Col. Campbell B. Hodges, his military aide, to take off by airplane for Aiken to assist Mrs. Longworth in any way possible.

Credit Men Entertain Employers at Dinner

Members of the Wichita Falls Retail Credit Grantors association entertained their employers at a dinner-meeting at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening at the Kemp hotel. Approximately 75 were in attendance, according to Floyd Randel, president of the organization.

Delinquent accounts of the letter M were given the Retail Merchants association. Returned checks, repossessions and forgeries were discussed.

A credit skit "Character, Capacity and Capital" was given with Jack Jeffus and Jacob Price in the role of credit executives, investigating a proposed loan. Music for the occasion was furnished by artists from radio station KGKO.

"Let 'Em Know You're In Business," Says Speaker

sible by bridge builders and an increased wholesale trade will depend upon that same force."

Constant Change

The speaker described a changed trend of business that came into being in the summer of 1924, when, he said, there were heavy price cuts on materials, causing a 40 per cent loss in every stock of merchandise in the nation. The result, he explained, is seen in the carrying of smaller stocks and new merchandising systems. "Today," it was said, "a business man must meet the succeeding issues of each day if he would stay in the picture. In merchandising, change is the only certain thing."

Mr. Norrell asserted that industry can never be stabilized. "If it becomes stable," he declared, "it becomes stagnant. It is a challenge to keep it space of changing conditions. Business today takes cooperation, assistance and pulling together to make a success."

Mr. Norrell in speaking of the power the public wields in the production of merchandise said, "Today the manufacturer and jobber is not the dictator in styles of merchandise as he was formerly. The dictator is His Majesty, the customer. If he can't get what he wants at one place, he will buy elsewhere."

"A city," he said, "is a mirror that reflects the condition of its trade territory. Any city today that expects to have a place in the sun must attain that place itself; no one else is going to do the job for it. If Wichita Falls makes up its mind to build here an outstanding market, it can be done.

"Intensify and coordinate your association of manufacturers and jobbers. Work together. You can't get anywhere without working together. Know personally the merchants in your territory who buy your products. Make big plans. You can't make too big plans if you keep your feet on the ground. Dream big dreams and then go out and make them a fact. Markets and cities are man made. With its natural abilities Wichita Falls can be an outstanding market, but there is but one people that can accomplish that goal."

A "Substantial Order"

Mr. Bryant, in addition to declaring that Wichita Falls should make itself known as a manufacturing and jobbing center, said that if wholesalers would go out and for the time being be satisfied with small orders that Wichita Falls can increase enormously its sales volume in better times. "A substantial order now," he said, is 'one-twelfth of a dozen, assorted.'"

He suggested that when Wichita Falls wholesalers send their representatives into the field, that they not be sent just to nearby cities, but over all West Texas and Southern Oklahoma.

"There is no better time than now for an intensive merchandising campaign. When you are driving up a hill in your automobile you don't let up on your accelerator, do you? Look straight ahead and push down on the accelerator in times of depression more than at any other.

"Merchants of this trade territory will be glad to place orders with Wichita Falls firms on a competitive basis."

The speaker urged the necessity for distributors to know intimately their customers and to aid merchants in increasing their business.

Value of Advertising

He described John Wannamaker as the initial pioneer of a new type and era of business which succeeded what he termed the "public be damned" policy of former merchandisers. "John Wannamaker," Mr. Bryant said, "established the 'one price to all,' and took as his motto 'the customer is right.' He advertised and he advertised extensively. If Wichita Falls manufacturers and jobbers have advertised extensively it hasn't come to my attention. When Wannamaker advertised an article to be 100 per cent wool, it was 100 per cent wool. If it wasn't 100 per cent wool, he advertised that it was not 100 per cent wool.

"It is time we should go out with the intent to serve and make a living, instead of with the first thought of making a large profit."

He expressed his belief that Wichita Falls can build a distributing center that will be known not only in West Texas but over the entire Southwest.

J. L. Jackson Jr., president of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, and E. H. Eddleman, of the American Refining properties, spoke briefly. J. W. Chatham, chairman of the manufacturers and jobbers division presided over the meeting, and introduced members of the division's executive committee.

The invocation preceding the meeting was pronounced by Dr. C. C. Selecman, president of Southern Methodist university at Dallas.

Announcements were made of the business council meeting Friday, the opening of the baseball season here April 15, and of the first chamber of commerce good will tour of the season to be made April 21.

The 'Zero' Hour on Fifth Avenue

The shabby top hats of "Mr. Zero's" elderly delegation of unemployed again bobbed along in the famous Easter parade of New York's Fifth avenue. Here you see the troop of plug-hatters, walking-sticks in hand, as they traipsed behind their smiling, bare-headed benefactor, whose real name is Urbain Ledoux. The aged hoboes found competition this year, however, from another faction of the unemployed—125 pickets of the conference for progressive labor who bombarded church-goers with placards and orations denouncing the display of Easter luxury.

sion was the awarding of the birthday cakes to the organizations having the two best programs. First prize went to Austin school while second was awarded to Rocky Point. The awards were made by Mrs. St. Andrew Myers of Henrietta.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. S. J. Marcell of Crowell, first vice president of the district. Mrs. Marcell introduced Mrs. E. S. Carter who gave an interesting address on "The Dean of High School Girls." Mrs. Carter stressed the universal need for a dean of girls in every school and gave several illustrations of the value of such an executive.

"The dean is thought of only as a disciplinary official, but her job is not altogether negative," the speaker said. "She represents the girls of the schools, in that she is their general officer. She can make her job as big as she wants it, but to me the greatest opportunity for her is in vocational guidance."

Following the stories of activities which were given by representatives from Electra, Crowell, Benjamin Franklin, Austin, Fowlkes Station, Huff, Mankins, Harrold, Geraldine, Henrietta, Newcastle, Haskell, Linville community, Barwise, Valley View, Quanah, Thornberry, Vernon, Bowie, Five In One, Red Springs and Olney schools, Franke Creighton, local Boy Scout executive, led the group in several recreational games.

An entertaining number on the program was two selections by the Zundelowitz Junior High school orchestra, directed by Miss Minnie Baker.

Mrs. A. F. Wood, first vice president of the state association, conducted a short workers' conference and question box after which Mrs. O. H. Karr extended a plea to members for their endowment fund pledge. The session closed at 4:30 o'clock for sectional meetings.

Morning Session

The morning session was opened at 7:30 o'clock Thursday morning with classes in high and grade school program and publicity after which special musical numbers were given by Mrs. Stanley M. Raub. Following the routine business, the guests were entertained with a luncheon in the basement of the church by the chamber of commerce. A special table was arranged for members of the P.-T. A. graduating class who received their diplomas at this time. Special entertainment for the luncheon included pep songs by the high school trio and a toast in the form of original poetry by Mrs. John M. Fox, to the graduates.

The feature of the luncheon was the presentation of a lovely wrist watch to Mrs. Frank Creighton, retiring president, in appreciation of the splendid work she has done while president of the organization.

Advocating the teaching and practicing of such a reverence for individuality that young people will learn that personality will not only set for them a high goal but will teach the individual that personality will overcome almost any of life's obstacles, Dr. Charles C. Selecman, president of the Southern Methodist university of Dallas, addressed members of the convention Thursday evening.

Selecman Speaks

"The average youngster thinks too little of himself rather than too much of himself," Dr. Selecman said.

"We are living in an age when people are so busy and engrossed in other things that we are about to cheapen personality and in my opinion there is nothing more pitiful than a man or woman with a lot of knowledge and no personality."

Dr. Selecman further said that "personality is something we are born with and something we develop under friendly conditions and destroy under unfriendly conditions."

Mrs. A. F. Wood, first vice president of the state association in her talk on "Parent Education" pointed out the fact that parental education is anything that makes for better parents. Mrs. Wood advocated the organization of study groups and the intense study of child development.

The session was presided over by Mrs. Frank Creighton, retiring president. The invocation was said by Rabbi S. J. Schwab, after which the mother singers from the Benjamin Franklin school, under the direction of Mrs. A. F. Parker, gave several musical selections. An additional number on the entertainment was three selections by the orchestra from the Reagan Junior High school, directed by Miss Rachel Davis.

One of the most entertaining and unique features of thet whole convention was the cowboy chorus from Henrietta which presented a number of cowboy songs. They were accompanied at the piano by their director, E. N. Smith, principal of the high school there.

Approximately 250 persons were in attendance at the night session. Total enrollment Thursday afternoon reached the 400 mark.

FAIR ARRESTED

A man and a woman were arrested and 20 half-gallons of liquor seized Thursday night in a raid conducted by city police on a residence here. Arresting officers said they would file federal charges against the two Friday.

reached regularly on the court docket in May.

It would require several days to answer each of the allegations in the 62 page injunction petition, Upchurch said. It would then be necessary to give Estes and Moody 10 days' notice.

"It is possible the case may be reached quicker without any motion," said Upchurch.

In the meantime the state will act only under the pipe line law of the last legislature under which it has authority to enforce ratable takings within a field by pipe lines that are common purchasers. The law also authorizes the commission to order ratable takings as between fields. It does not give any control over the takings of companies that are not common purchasers but use only oil from their own supplies.

Some operators contend the commission can regulate the takings by railroads as well as pipe lines. Much of the East Texas production now is handled by rail shipments.

New Air Company Takes Line Here

The Oklahoma City-Wichita Falls branch of the Braniff Airways has been taken over by the Oklahoma-Texas Airlines, a newly organized air transport line, according to Associated Press and United Press dispatches Thursday to The Record News.

The Wichita Falls branch of the line, it was said, had been discontinued by the Braniff company in order to accommodate increased service to the north and east. The new company will operate one round trip daily between Wichita Falls and Oklahoma City.

Service of the new line will become effective Monday, according to officials of the line here.

Getting the Most Out of Life

Recently I read an article by a very brilliant medical writer in which he stated that every one is born with a certain inheritance of vitality and age to which not over a month of additional life could be added by the best of living habits. This man is undoubtedly a wonderful stylist of the English language, but it seems to me that his words, similes, and metaphors were chosen with more care than his facts and logic.

Think of the incalculable harm that would result if people believed that they could live just as long with bad habits as with good ones. It is that kind of belief which makes so many patients for doctors.

The idea is inherently wrong. For example we can take the grains from an ear of corn, shake them well and divide the grains into two piles. Theoretically both groups of these corn seeds will have the same inherent vatility and length of life, but you plant one half of these seed in good soil, water it properly, keep down weeds and parasites, and take the other seeds and plant them in poor soil, where there is not enough water, where the weeds are allowed to flourish. What happens? In the first field will be beautiful green stalks 10 or 12 feet tall, with well filled ears of corn; in the second field will be short, stunted, yellowish stalks, many of which will die when young, and in the remainder the ears will be small and only partly filled with grain.

The same thing is true with human beings. The food we eat is the soil for the body's growth. If we take a school room of children and feed one-half on a diet that is deficient in fruits, vegetables or milk, these children will be neither as tall, well formed, or as healthy as the children who are properly fed. The idea of teaching people that their habits of eating, sleeping, breathing and thinking, have little or no influence upon their health or length of life is one of the greatest of follies.

It is true that many doctors have such a fatalistic view. They have seen people apparently in the best of health suddenly die of an acute disease, and they see others with scarcely any vitality eke out a miserable existence for two or three score years. Many such observations may incline the physician as well as the untrained layman into the belief that there is no way to tell when one will live or die.

The ways of providence may seem mysterious to those who rely upon theory or chance observation, but to those who study carefully will come the belief which was so forcibly impressed upon Humbolt that "The universe is governed by law." The small immutable laws of nature govern all living inanimate things. The more we study, understand and follow the laws of nature, the more successful, happy and healthful will our lives be. some are fortunate in living according to the most important of these laws without knowing them, others may know some of these laws and yet be unfortunate in not observing some important one. We cannot judge by exceptional or isolated cases, for there may be factors beyond our knowledge. We must judge by the average results among many cases, and if we do this we will come to the conclusion that those who have formed the habit early in life of living in harmony with natural laws will be the happiest, healthiest and the longest lived.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Shingles

Question—Mrs. B. V. asks: "Will you kindly explain the cause of shingles, also the symptoms, and state whether or not there is a cure?"

Answer—The name "Shingles" is given to a disorder caused by the deposit of toxic substances along certain nerve trunks. It always occurs on one side of the body at a time, and is more frequently found on the upper back or around the ribs on one side. The nerves are inflamed by the toxins, and the skin breaks out in a rash wherever the most irritation exists. The cure is through diet, and no local treatments are very effective. A fast taken at the onset of the disorder will hasten the cure, but even under this treatment it often takes a week or 10 days for eruption to disappear.

Calories Per Day

Question—H. J. writes:, "Please state how many calories a day one should get in his food. I am underweight and am trying to improve by eating. Is it injurious to take salts every night? Also, what causes fever blisters when one does not seem to have fever or cause for it?"

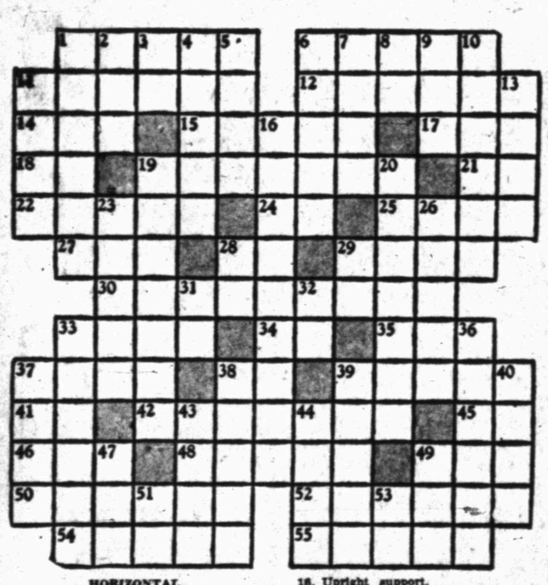

Answer—Dietitians who try to balance patients' diets through the caloric system might say that you require between 2,500 and 3,500 calories a day, but the truth is you may get more nourishment and live better on 1,000 calories daily, providing your food is of the right quality. It is a bad habit to take salts every night. The so-called fever blisters are really caused by hyperacidity of the stomach which is usually present when one has a fever, but, of course, these blisters may occur at any time from the overacidity, even though fevers are not present.

COLD RAIN OFFERS NO OBSTACLE TO CLOUTING SPUDDER CREW

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

Yesterday was just a gloomy, sloppy day down at Athletic park. But a year ago yesterday!

A year ago yesterday the Spudders opened the Texas league season of 1930 by pummeling, mauling, cuffing, brow-beating, shelling, stomping, scalping, and utterly obliterating the Shreveport Sports, 12 to 4.

Hal Wiltse pitched, bless his heart. He allowed only one hit the first eight innings, Krauss' single in the second. Now that's pitching baseball! It was only in the final go-round that they got to him for five hits and four runs, but by that time the mighty men of Bettencourt & Co. had ruined the fences with 16 hits, including home runs by Crouch and Fitzgerald. Both homers found a man on base.

Some uncomfortable news has been filtering in from Dallas. It's about Ernie Holman, shifty little third baseman who this year replaces Happ Morse. Holman has been smacking out home runs with disastrous regularity, and what is worse, his team mates are falling in line right behind him in this hitting business. Holman hit a home run here when the Steers played the Spudders last week.

The impression we got at that time was that the Steers are a hustling bunch, an aggregation as different from the Steers at this stage in 1930 as daylight is from dark. When the Herd came here the first of last season they certainly didn't set any of us a-quake. But it's different this year. The Steers look good not only offensively, but defensively, and it's our guess that they'll be hard to beat.

Manager Happ Morse would not say that, but he didn't have to. Morse is in his first managerial position, and he's going slow. He is of the same temperament as Skipper Carl Williams. He says very little. "We can't tell what kind of club we have until after the bell rings," he told questioners. But the questioners didn't have to be told. All they had to do was open their eyes.

The Steers have a good deal more batting punch than the Spudders, but don't start weeping, mates—we don't know how long this condition will last. Remember that the Steers got off to a better start than we did. They opened training fully two weeks before Wichita Falls had a ball player in town, an in addition, bad weather has interfered with relatively few of their exhibition games. Give the Spudders a little more time, and they may blossom forth with as many home runs and base hits as the best of them can furnish.

As for the defensive side of it, the Rambler, after hours of solemn meditation and prayer, has concluded that the Spudder fielding is fully as good as the Steers'. If you don't agree with me on this I'll meet you at dawn tomorrow at Scott and Eighth, and bring your sword along!

A good many of our bank clerks, merchants, and business men are working up a state of perspiration at the state bowling tournament, which is now in full blast at Jim Galloway's Spudder alleys. There is a lot of interest in the tournament among the bowling fans of the city, and it is receiving publicity all over the state. Out of town bowlers will flock to the city tomorrow, and participate in events Saturday night and Sunday.

The tournament will help the city in more ways than one, and too much credit cannot be given John J. Laughlin, president of the state bowling association, and his operatives for making bowling the success it is in this and other towns in the state.

To be perfectly frank, bowling leaves me frigid. John Laughlin wasted the best part of two weeks last season trying to teach me the heaving art, but I couldn't make the grade. I got my outright release at the end of that time. They didn't even farm me out to a class D bowling league. John gave up in disgust on the thirteenth night. I had tried my level best to hold the big ball in the proper manner and had failed, and finally I just picked the derned thing up with both hands and hoisted it over on the other side of the building. I almost killed one of the pin boys at the end of the alley.

That ended my bowling career. The old Rambler just ain't made for that game, much as he admires bowling skill in others.

Now it is quite different with our esteemed rival in this business, Al Parker, sports czar of the Daily Times. He is quite a bowler. In fact he won the Art bowling trophy only last Sunday, and is respected and feared wherever there is a bowling alley.

The Rambler believes that Mr. Parker's ability in bowling deserves additional comment. At any rate it will be a relief for me to write about it. To take an afternoon off and write about my rival is a relief not only to me but, perhaps, to the ball players and divers others who come in for comment in this department.

The point we wish to make is that Mr. Parker, in attaining his bowling skill, has had to overcome a certain weighty obstacle, an obstacle that perhaps would have been too much for a man of lesser grit and determination. The weighty obstacle referred to is, specifically, his weight.

Mr. Parker, as you perhaps know, is a ponderous physical specimen; not tall, but delightfully chunky. His form—or rather his curve—is not one that is frequently seen in a group of expert bowlers. They are usually tall, rangy fellows, well built and muscular, but not with a No. 46 waist line. But Parker, waist line and all, has crashed the gates of bowling fame and joined the ranks of the best, for which three cheers.

BROWNS STILL 'HOLDING OUT'

Game Each Day Planned If Weather Improves

By FRED THOMPSON

Every day counts now, and despite a drizzling rain that fell most of the afternoon, Skipper Carl Williams had his gang of Spudders pounding at the ball in batting practice Thursday. Another intra-camp game had been planned, but the acute change in the weather canceled it. Trying to figure the weather is quite as difficult as naming the Texas league clubs in the order in which they will finish the season. But since it was hot Wednesday and cold Thursday, the skipper figured the rotation would continue and hot weather set in Friday; in which case he will resume the camp games. The skipper plans a contest each day from now on until the season opens, weather permitting.

OPENING DAY TICKETS ON SALE MONDAY

Tickets for the opening game of the Texas league season here next Wednesday, with the Spudders matched against Fort Worth, will go on sale Monday at Renfro's Drug store No. 1, Secretary Guy Airey announced Thursday.

Fans wishing to hold boxes they reserved last year were urged to make their reservations immediately by calling the Spudder office in order to avoid a last minute rush.

Those last two words have a vast significance. Inclement weather has played havoc with the Spudder cause this spring. The team has received anything but a fair deal from the elements and pretty soon the Spudders, individually and collectively, will be shouting unkind words at the skies if, indeed, they have not addressed a few terse sentences in that direction already.

Meanwhile the skipper was hoping that the anger of the weather man would calm at least long enough to permit the Spudders to play the House of David team here Sunday. That is the last exhibition game on the Spudders' schedule, and the team would profit immensely if it goes off as planned. Intra-camp games are good enough, but games with outsiders make the players hustle more.

The batting practice Thursday was not exactly a joyous affair—try running around in the rain in a soggy uniform and see how you like it—nevertheless, the rain did not utterly dampen the spirit of the players. A cold wind playfully accompanied the rain, blowing gusts of the spring shower into the eyes of fly shaggers, but they managed to get along. At least the ball was easy to see—it was black enough with mud.

Waco Games Refused

Secretary Airey announced the club had refused an offer to play a fast semi-pro Waco team Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoon. The scheduled game here Sunday with the whisker-growers was the reason. Had the Spudders not been booked for a Sunday game here it is likely the offer would have been accepted, but as matters stood, it was unlikely the club could have made expenses at week-day games in Waco. The Waco semi-pro outfit has been playing several Texas league clubs, and the other night licked the Galveston Buccaneers.

The parent Browns continued to ignore their fretting Spudder offspring Thursday, no word emanating from St. Louis as to what players, if any, are to be sent here and when, if ever.

Prexy Huff has recovered from the shock—if it may be termed that—of losing Pitcher Lefty Hebert. Indeed, his recovery was so phenomenal that it was easy to see he is not worried at all about his pitching staff.

"We've got the pitching," said the club president, "possibly better pitching than we had last year; but we need batting power and lots of it. We need hefty, long-distance hitters and so far it appears we do not have a one in camp. In this respect we are dependent on the Browns, or their subsidiary, the Milwaukee club."

The failure of the Browns to turn back Buck Stanton at the stated time has caused a certain amount of speculation, in view of the fact that Jack Burns and the other former Spudders with the Browns have been reported as being called "on the carpet" by Manager Bill Killefer. Anxious fans, who have been trying to figure out what the Browns will do—a task equal to predicting the fate of Russia—even went so far as to hint that maybe, after all, one or two of "our boys" might not make the grade in the big show.

Prexy Huff, however, is not shedding any tears over that. "I wish Killefer would get mad and fire the whole bunch and send them back here," he growled.

The Spudders, as they stand now, could certainly use them.

What About Art?

Other callers at Prexy Huff's office Thursday wondered if the Browns might not send Art Shires, loud mouth and all, down here. But this possibility was as remote as the San Antonio club's chances at the pennant in 1931, because Milwaukee, Prexy Huff pointed out, paid several sacks of good American gold for The Great Orator and wants to start collecting dividends on its investment.

And so speculation went on, world without end, among fans and club officials. The only man in the official circle who is retaining his serenity through it all is Skipper Williams. He is working hard with what material he has—material incidentally, that is not to be snickered at—and is doing his best to assure Wichita Falls a ball club that will take the field next Wednesday against Fort Worth with at least one quality that cannot be obtained anywhere except within the players themselves—fighting spirit.

E. Paul Young, New York golfer, made the "hole-in-one club" for a second time while playing on a Fort Worth, Texas, course.

Uncle Robbie Gloating Over Club's Lethal Sock

Strange growls are heard from Wilbur "Uncle Robbie" Robinson, pictured here golf knickers and all, as he watches his mad flock of Brooklyn Robins mop up on hurlers in spring games. Added this season to the already potent lineup are: Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, one time National league batting champ; Fresco Thompson, flashy second baseman formerly with O'Doul in Philadelphia, and Ernest Lombardi, big slugging catcher from the coast.

SAINTS STOP STEERS, 7 TO 2

DALLAS, April 9. (AP)—The St. Paul Saints of the American association went one up on the Dallas Steers in their six-game series here today with a 7 to 2 decision. The final game of the series will be played tomorrow. Dallas batters found the offerings of Huck Betts and Slim Harris, St. Paul veterans, too much, securing only six hits.

INDIANS TAKE ON BATTING DRILL

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 9. (AP)—Batting practice engaged the attention of the San Antonio Indians today as they prepared for their next two games to be played at Del Rio Saturday and Sunday, last on the exhibition schedule before the Texas league opening next Wednesday when the Tribe plays at Galveston.

The Indians do not stack up as a heavy hitting outfit, although Manager Claude Robertson finds solace in the belief that the boys have not yet hit their stride and that by the time the league race gets under way they will be in there pounding out their share of base hits.

CATS PREPARE FOR FINAL EXHIBITIONS

FORT WORTH, April 9. (AP)—The Fort Worth Panthers started preparations today for their final exhibition games before the start of the season. They meet the Dallas Steers Saturday and Sunday. The former game will be played in Fort Worth and the latter in Dallas.

Phelan has announced that McCabe, Chagnon and Hanson would be worked in the series opener against the Steers.

PONIES PLAY BEARS TODAY

Frogs Due for Battle At College Station

DALLAS, April 9. (AP)—With Southern Methodist of Dallas and Texas A. & M., of College Station leading the pennant march, another round of Southwest conference baseball games are scheduled tomorrow. Southern Methodist plans to invade Waco for a test against the Baylor Bears, while Texas Christian of Fort Worth is booked for a contest with the Aggies at College Station.

Coach Jimmy St. Clair of Southern Methodist saw his Mustangs get away to a flying start last Tuesday with a 4 to 3 decision over Texas Christian, and his cohorts are in excellent condition for their invasion of Waco. When the Mustangs defeated Texas Christian, it marked their first victory in 19 Southwest conference baseball starts. The Baylor Bears opened their season by losing to Texas A. & M., 4 to 3, but had enough to come back and trim the Rice Owls of Houston, 6 to 4, giving the Bears a .500 percentage.

The Texas Aggies are favorites over the inexperienced Texas Christian nine. Joe Williams, veteran catcher who has been out of Texas Christian's lineup with an injured hip, is expected to play against the Aggies. It is probable he will replace Dennis at the backstop position.

CHAMP LOSES AT PINEHURST

Dunlap Maintains Stride In North-South Meet

PINEHURST, N. C., April 9. (AP)—George T. Dunlap Jr., New York golfer and intercollegiate champion, continued his winning stride in the 31st annual North and South amateur tournament here today, but the defending champion, Eugene Homans, fell by the wayside.

Dunlap, the medalist, won his quarter-finals match on the 13th hole, eliminating Howard Tyron, Elmira, N. Y., 7 and 5.

Homan's who won the 1930 tournament, was one down to S Suffern Tailer, Newport, R. I., at the turn, but the Rhode Islander showed a more consistent brand of golf on the back nine to wine five and four. The Newport entry had a medal of 72, one over par, for the round. Homans' medal score was 76.

J. B. Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., defeated Richard S. Tufts, Pinehurst, 3 and 1.

Forbes K. Wilson, York Harbor, Maine, lost to S. M. Parks, Pittsburgh, 3 down on the 16th hole.

ROEHAMPTON GOLF TOURNEY OPENS

LONDON, April 9. (AP)—Upsets and surprises were plentiful at the first spring showing of British golfing styles in tournament play at Roehampton today where 74 invited professionals scrmabled to squeeze through a narrow qualifying gate that permitted only 16 to enter match play stages tomorrow and Saturday.

Ordinarily, the invitation event at Roehampton, a suburban course, isn't such an important affair, but with all the British Ryder cup possibilities there, along with young Henry Cotton, who won't join the team except on his own conditions, interest has increased. Some of the attraction died, however, when Cotton, with 144 for the 36-hole test, failed by a stroke to qualify for the match play.

Another youngster, Arthur Perry of the Leatherhead club led the field with a pair of 68's for a total of 136. C. H. Gadd, of the Branoepeth Castle club, and Abe Mitchell were second with 137's. Gadd carded a 67 for the afternoon round to set a course record.

The freshman basket ball team of Baylor university, scored 896 points last season, averaging almost 80 to the game.

Basanta Singh, Hindu wrestler, claims to eat a bit of pure gold now and then to give him added strength.

Transfer of San Antonio Baseball Franchise Likely, Says Hammond

SAN ANTONIO, April 9. (AP)—Homer H. Hammond, president of the San Antonio Texas league baseball club, startled sports editors here tonight with the question: "What would you say about the transfer of the San Antonio franchise to Waco, or Tulsa or Oklahoma City?"

Hammond stated that he has offers from the three cities named for the transfer of the San Antonio franchise to any one of these cities and that negotiations for the transfer now are pending.

"The deal may be closed any time," he said, but he would not give the names of the parties with whom he is dealing, neither the price that is offered nor what he asks.

"Lack of cooperation," he replied when asked the reason for his desire to sell, adding: "The people of San Antonio don't seem to appreciate a club in the Texas league and probably would be just as satisfied with amateur baseball."

Last year Hammond was on a deal to sell the club, but it never materialized.

Browns Through

WICHITA, Kan., April 9. (AP)—The Browns spring training schedule was closed with a washout today, when rain prevented the final game here with Wichita. Fourteen victories in 20 games is the record of Manager Bill Killefer's club, the line up of which even the manager says he doesn't know.

Killefer has used virtually two teams in recent contests and a lot of the athletes are uncertain as to whether they are regulars or bench warmers.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, April 9. (AP)—Recent declines were followed by rather sharp rallies in cotton in the early trading today, with July contracts selling up to 10.58 on trade buying and covering promoted by the firmer showing of Liverpool and talk of an improved technical position. This made a net advance of 20 points which seemed to attract rather freer offerings and prices later reacted partially under realizing or liquidation. March closed at 10.46 with the genera lmarket closing barely steady at net advances of 6 to 10 points.

The early feature was the buying here by houses with Liverpool connections, following the advance in the Liverpool market. May liquidation continued with considerable selling of that position against sales of later months and switching from old to new crop deliveries. Spot houses were credited with buying May against sales of July or October.

A private report was published regarding acreage intentions which pointed to a decrease of 9.8 per cent, which was slightly above the report of last week, forecasting a reduction of 8.4 per cent.

Liverpool cables reported continental liquidation absorbed by Bombay buying in that market with a cessation of selling pressure.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, April 9. (AP)—After advancing nearly three quarters of a dollar a bale in the first half of the morning with active trading the cotton market here quieted down later and lost practically all the early gain. Cables at the opening were much better than due and after opening 3 to 4 points up hardly a full response to the strength of the foreign markets, prices here advanced on prospects for unfavorable weather and on reports that there had been a private settlement in the liquidation of the May option. The advance carried prices up to levels 13 to 14 points above the previous close. This advance attracted some realizing and prices eased off, 4 to 5 points in the early afternoon. In the late trading prices weakened further on re-selling by early buyers and dropped to levels 12 to 13 points under the highs finally closing easier with net gains for the day in the general market of only 1 to 2 points.

Selling Pressure Against Rails Ends Moderate Market Gains

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, April 9. (US)—Renewed selling of the railroad group during the late trading on the stock exchange today resulted in closing the market lower for the day.

Prior to this selling wave in the rails, quotations had advanced moderately above the Wednesday quotations. Volume again was limited, falling below 2,000,000 shares, but the railroad stocks were under persistent pressure, causing the leading members of the group on the average to fall back to a small fraction above the December, 1930 lows. The latter represented the lowest average level for several years; as a matter of fact, it is necessary to go back seven years or more to find quotations for many of the most prominent railway issues equivalent to their lows of today. Their performance seemingly emphasized that the comparative firmness of the group during the more recent sessions was primarily a reflection of short covering.

Industrials and utilities were only partially disturbed by the rails' weakness, but it was illogical to expect them entirely to ignore the selling of rails. Industrials on the average closed less than a point under the preceding day's closing prices, and utilities lost about half as much as the industrials.

Rails at new lows for 1931 included most of the leading members of the group: New York Central, Pennsylpania, Norfolk & Western, Union Pacific, Atchison, Southern Pacific, Frisco, Erie, Canadian Pacific, and others.

The 20 leading rail stocks closed just .38 of a point above their December bottom. Although short-selling undoubtedly contributed to the sharp decline, ranging close to three points average for the day, the pressure, as repeatedly proclaimed here, has been so persistent as to indicate more important liquidation notwithstanding the huge decline from the high prices of 1929.

Public liquidation has had only a minor role in this selling, since the Rails for years have enjoyed only small popularity among the public. Fears over dividends, induced by the poor earnings reports, and the growth in outside competition, have been responsible for the persistent selling.

Until the outbreak of selling in the railroad department disturbed the entire market, various stocks had extended their previous rally. In large part, this was in response to the somewhat overcrowded short positions existing in numerous stocks, especially among the speculative grade issues. It was also noticeable that on the late setback, stocks with large short accounts yielded more stubbornly than others.

Stocks with largest short accounts at present include steel common, General Motors, Allied Chemical, Vanadium, Case Threshing, Westinghouse, and Fox Film.

Importance of the short interest in the market is fully appreciated by the best informed stock operators, who recognize that internal conditions dominate price fluctuations sometimes for lengthy periods. In the development of an overcrowded bear interest lies the chief hope for even moderate rallies.

Motion picture stocks, especially Warner Bros., were helped by reports that Paramount and Warner are negotiating resumption of cross-bookings. Oil stocks held within narrow range, while investors and speculators were interpreting developments at Washington in connection with the conference on over production, which seemingly has won governmental sanction.

Steel shares fluctuated with the general list, although there were reports of a large western rail order pending. The principal development tomorrow will be the U. S. Steel corporation unfilled tonnage report due at noon, with general expectation that the change from a month ago will be dependend on whether the corporation includes the radio city business recently obtained.

Brokerage loan decrease of $53,-000,000 about corresponded with the declining tendency of prices the past week.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, April 9. (US)—Northern Elevator company of Winnipeg says that of 130 stations reporting in northern Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, 52 report enough moisture, 60 need moisture and 18 are in bad need. Some work has been done on the land and some grain seeded, but general seeding will not occur until the middle of the month.

In its first crop report of the season Van Dusen-Harrington says the entire Northwest has had sufficient rain or sonw within the past two weeks with seasonal weather for the germination of seed. There is however, an alarming lack of sub-soil moisture and ample precipitation during the growing season will be of tremendous importance throughout the territory, particularly western North Dakota, Montana and parts of South Dakota.

Iowa's weather report says that December, January and February were the driest and second mildest winter on record. March also was drier than normal in the Northwest but there were heavy snows in the southern, eastern and central counties. If a repetition of the drouth and heat occurs this year the results will be calamitous, the report says, adding however, that bounteous crops in 1895 followed the drouth of 1894 though precipitation during 1895 was below normal in every month but August.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, April 9. (AP)—Big export buying of North American wheat, upwards of 2,000,000 bushels, lifted grain prices today, but active profit taking sales wiped out the advance. Moisture scarcity northwest and dust storms both north and south of the Canadian boundary had a noticeable bullish influence. An opposite factor was a correct surmise in various quarters that the government crop report due after the close would prove bearish.

Compared with the average of latest private estimates, the government report on domestic winter wheat condition indicated a yield 25,000,000 bushels larger than expected.

Wheat closed firm, unchanged to ¼ cent higher, corn unchanged to ⅜@½c up, oats ⅛@⅜c advanced, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents off.

Helping to strengthen the wheat market was notice taken of an official statement that stocks of wheat in all United States markets were diminishing, and that the question of grain storage was not a serious one. Dry conditions prevailing in the spring wheat belt tended strongly at times to stimulate buying, especially as a forecast of overnight rains had failed. Numerous indications that insect pests would be a factor to be reckoned with this season continued also to attract attention.

Corn and oats averaged higher with wheat, and were bullishly affected also by scantiness of corn receipts. Corn primary arrivals were only about one-third as large as a year ago.

Closing indemnities: Wheat July 60½@⅝c, 62⅝c; Sept. 59¼c, 61c; Dec. 62¼c, 64c. Corn, May 59⅝c, 61⅝c; July 61⅞c, 63½c; Sept. 59½@⅝c, 61⅝c; Dec. 52⅝c, 54c.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, April 9. (AP)—(U.S.D.A.)—There was a fair demand around the eleven market circuit for killing steers at generally steady prices with some strength developing on the lower grades at Chicago. Light yearlings and fat she stock continued to find a narrow outlet with values steady to easier at the week's previous uneven decline. At Kansas City an eight-car string of 1,181-pound clipped horned Texas steers brought $7.25. Plain quality Texas steers at St. Joseph sold at $6.25@6.50. Stocker and feeder trade was slow with limited supplies selling on a steady to weak price basis. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 20,300 as compared with 18,173 a week ago.

Hog trade at most points was slow at prices unevenly steady to 15c higher with several of the river markets showing slight upturns on strong weight butchers. Total offerings numbering around 58,500 were 7,000 short of last Thursday.

The supply of sheep approximated 66,000 against 76,902 a week ago. Old crop lambs were unevenly steady to 25c lower while springers at some points slumped fully $1.00. Aged stock ruled steady to unevenly lower. At Kansas City eight cars of Arizoga springers landed at $10.00.

ROCK GARDENS DEMAND STUDY

Mrs. Dobie Gives Advice For Texas Growers

tour of his land, the presence or absence of stone in the country around, architecture, his own willingness to undo and do again, needs of the plants he wishes to grow, and perhaps something of the genesis and history of the type.

Rock garden plants are often called "alpines." Gardeners looked on the Alps. They saw how beautiful were the flowers that blossomed upon some rocky ledge or stained the snow. They brought these plants down to human gardens, and as nearly as possible reproduced the conditions of their growth. They found that many plants originating above the timber line—the definition of true alpine—accommodated themselves readily to much lower levels provided they were given stony soil. The rocks had meaning. The rock garden idea crossed the water, and with characteristic enthusiasm Americans hurled themselves into the production of a new sort of garden. Sometimes they have lost sight of the truth that, although beauty may seem "its own excuse for being," it is in reality deeply dependent upon function.

Discrimination Needed

There are situations in Texas that cry out for a rock garden, and there are others in which a rock garden would be as much an anomly as a bog in a desert. Many situations are in between, allowing the owner who likes very much the conjunction of bleak stone and delicate flower a modified form, rather strictly subordinated to the uses of walks, steps, flower border lines, and walls. A flagstone walk may with propriety have its edges concealed by low and modest plants, with now and then a tuft between the stones in a place where it will not likely be tramped. Steps leading to a lower level, natural or artificial, may have against the risers pockets of soil in which grow well-tended plants. Flower borders need some defining mark, and no material is better for this purpose than rock softened here and there by overgrowing plants. Free walls may be constructed with irregularity and slope enough to permit the growth of rock plants in crevices; this type of modified rock garden is, however, as much trouble to care for as the oldfashioned "stand." A retaining wall, free of the earth on only one side, can be made beautiful by such trailers as Lantana sellowiana (lavender); scarlet clematis; purple clematis, plumbago; verbena; the scarlet-flowered honeysuckle called woodbine, native to East Texas; and coleus.

In general, all the way rock gardens are best suited to hillsides, ravines, high banks of creeks and rivers, and other uneven ground. The rocks may be at hand or they may be brought in and carefully placed. The one requisite is that their arrangement accord with the landscape and suit the planting.

Let the man or woman who contemplates making a rock garden spend days observing how nature does the thing. Let him see how native red and yellow columbine springs shallow-rooted from honeycomb rocks in the ravine that leads to West Cave; how maiden-hair fern clings to the ledges that bank the Colorado, the Blanco, the Gaudalupe, and many other central Texas stream; how lovely a single bluebonnet can be posed against a limestone bank or pushing up through a rounded hole in a flat rock; how the gentian known as mountain pink clings to bare limestone hills; how cactus blooms amidst the rocks; how sotol and ocotillo rise tall from the mountain tops of Brewster county, how bright the Indian paint brush paints the hills from central Texas clear across the western line; how the stubby lechuguilla belongs to barren slopes and not to soil-enriched valleys; how the banks of the Concho are a rock garden ready-made.

Let him observe not only what grows among the rocks, but also how the rocks are placed. Then let him select. It may be, as some modern artists contend, that there is nothing ugly in nature, but certainly there is a great deal that has no part with the ordered beauty of a garden, and many a jumble of rocks on a hilltop gives no pleasure to the eye. He will learn most, perhaps, from limestone ledges along streams. He will carry to his garden the principle that the lines of sedimentary rock are horizontal lines and will place ledge or wall rock in layers. The rocks may be thicker or thiner, but they will not be laid sidewise, endwise, and every which way. He will note that solitary rocks please most when they very much in size, occur at irregular intervals, and are deeply sunk into the ground, as if they came to rest long ago; that unevenness in the land they lie on is a merit; and that cubical rocks please less than rocks of any other shape.

Study Nature

Having got what he can from nature, the gardener will not hesitate to make his garden more architectural than anything he has seen in her exhibitions. Perhaps he gardens on a hillside; then in order to keep soil from washing away, he constructs a succession of terraces, the walls of which may be straight or may slope enough to afford anchorage for many a plant. On the terraces he may place rank on rank of plants. A hillside rose garden in San Angelo consists of terraces each wide enough to accommodate two rows of bushes, with a wall at the back. The effect when in full bloom is of an embankment of roses.

But this is a use of rocks in a garden rather than a rock garden in the fullest sense of the term—a garden wherein innumerable plants nestle against rocks, and clamber over and half conceal them. The promary principle of such a garden, enunciated by the noted horticulturist, Dr. Liberty H. Bailey, has been often quoted but is so good it must be quoted once again: "A rock garden is a place to grow plants. The rocks are secondary. If one is making a collection of rocks, his pursuit is geology rather than gardening." Rocks provide a natural habitat for certain plants; they give within small space shaded and sunny situations for plants of different requirements; their arrangements allows maintenance of soil differences within a restricted area, so that one plant may be rooted in a gravelly soil, another in acid, and still another in the "good garden loam" about which books on gardening speak so lightly, and to the beginner so unintelligibly. Rocks equalize temperature, as dwellers in stone houses know. Yet the rocks in a garden may have their subordinated interest. A fine cactus garden at Fort Worth has the beds bordered with Texas petrified wood.

A good general rock soil consists of two parts sand, one part leaf soil, and one part completely decayed manure. But most native rock plants need soil of a very different character, a gravelly soil containing much lime. A very acid soil, indispensable for some plants but ruinous to most, may be made by mixing with fine sand rotted pine needles, rotted wood from hollow trees or old stumps, or rotted oak leaves. Plants that grow naturally in close woods are likely to prefer this very acid soil.

Kind of Plants

What kinds of plants belong in a rock garden and what do not belong? Much rests with the gardener's preferences, for the appeal of a rock garden is its call to originality. But it is better to leave out tall shrubs, unless for background, and also flowers that have been long associated with other forms of gardening, such as zinnias, phlox drummondii, larkspur, stock and pansies. In general, species are better than hybrid varieties for the rock garden. Mrs. Louise Beebe Wilder, well known American amateur, restricts her choice to plants of dwarf stature, but other rock gardeners include taller plants for accent. It needs to be remembered that winter comes as well as summer. Cotoneaster horizontalis, prostrate junipers, evergreen vines, Euonymus radicans and certain perennials that in our far South remain green all winter—high among them the fern-leaved columbine—will help insure against winter's bareness. Lists of "alpines" abound and many of these, if given partial shade, grow with us. Most people start with evergreen candytuft (Iberis sempervimens), yellow alyssum (the new variety saxatile citrinum is softer than compactum), and rock cress, both single and double.

The genuinely Texas rock garden is made up chiefly of Texas plants, those from the limestone hills requiring limey and perhaps gravelly soil, those from the piney woods requiring acid soil. Western plants having long, thick, spine-tipped leaves, planted in conjunction with various cacti, need rocks to grow among and look best when so displayed. This is a type of rock garden belonging peculiarly to the Southwest.

Texas Plants

But if the gardener wants other sorts of good Texas plants to grow among his rocks, they are at hand in great number. A few choice ones are mentioned here: Amsonia Texana, one of the several "Texas stars," a foot or more tall and having tubular blue flowers the shade of plumbago; a longer-flowered white amsonia; the pavonis lasiopetala, a low shrub with pink mallow flowers; shooting star, which resembles the florists' cyclamen; the lovely pink gentian we call mountain pink, to be collected only by seed, as wanton destroyers have made it very scarce; pink and yellow evening primroses; blazing star, which Mrs. Wilder would consider too tall; the lovely wild iris, or celestial, which does not look like the garden iris; blue-eyed grass in several species; a sheep sorrel called ionoxalis drummondii, having moon-shaped leaves and large rose-colored flowers; white milkwort, with its tiny winged flowers arranged in spikes; Indian paint brush, which does not take very kindly to cultivation; bird's-foot violet; dog's-tooth violet, which is not a violet at all but a lily; many-petalled buttercup; a beautiful chickweed, stellaria nuttallii, with white star flowers, growing in standy regions; the native columbine which surpasses cultivated forms in grace, though not in size of blossom; wine-cups of lower growth; and for prostrate mats, the delicate pearlwort.

It goes without saying that the amateur should raise the rarer sorts from seed, and that commercial growers should raise any of them only from seed. Let us bring our beautiful things to gardens if our fancy runs that way, but let us also have them on hillside and in woodland.

Auction Bridge

Lesson No. 58

DECLARER'S PLAY TO A BID TRUMP (c't'd.)

IN Auction Bridge, if senior leads low in a suit he has previously bid, the rule of eleven should be applied to gauge junior's holding, and thus accurately place all of the high suit cards. Frequently the dummy will be short in the opponent's suit, then, when a declarer gets the lead, he should lead that suit, using dummy's trumps for ruffing before pulling the trumps, unless dummy's trumps are needed for finessing purposes.

Officials of 11 Counties to Discuss Oil Valuations at Meeting Today

Discussion of oil property valuations for taxation is scheduled to open Friday morning at 10 o'clock in the county commissioners courtroom here with representatives of oil producing counties in this part of the state present, according to County Judge John P. Marrs.

Members of the commissioners court and county judges of Wilbarger, Foard, Archer, Young, Jack Clay, Montague, Cooke, Stephens and Throckmorton counties have been invited to participate in the conference here, it was announced. While replies have been received from only part of these groups, Judge Marrs said, a considerable number of representatives already has been assured.

The conference will take the form of a round table discussion in order to adopt some tentative plan for fixing taxable valuations of oil producing properties, it was said, before equalization boards begin their deliberations. It was said that a committee of oil men probably will be heard by the meeting during the day.

A brief business session of the Wichita county commissioners court will be held promptly at 10 o'clock, it was said.

OKLAHOMA CITY, April 9. (UP)—Officials and employes of the University of Oklahoma were exonerated of charges of misusing state funds in the compromise report of the senate committee that investigated the university.

The findings are results of an eight-day hearing in which testimony of more than 100 witnesses including President W. B. Bizzell was taken.

University officials were commended and actions of witnesses were praised. Reference was made to Gov. W. H. Murray's allegations of "flagrant immorality and widespread graft" as being the result of misinformation.

The governor's charges were made after Alva McDonald, former federal marshal, had conducted a six-week investigation of the university.

It was understood that Chairman Cecil Chamberlain, seeking to protect the administration's viewpoint in the investigation, and Senator Hardin Ballard, who attacked the administration for ordering the investigation, had compromised and that only one report was forthcoming.

DALLAS SEEKS NEW AIR MAIL

Extension of Proposed Pueblo Line Urged

An extension of the Pueblo-Fort Worth air mail line to Dallas will be insisted upon by officials of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce at the air mail conference to be held here Saturday, according to information received here by chamber of commerce officials.

The Dallas Chamber of Commerce, it was said, will be satisfied with nothing less than a resolution to postal authorities asking that air mail service be continued to Dallas.

Called to secure prompt inauguration of air mail service between Pueblo and Fort Worth by way of Wichita Falls, the conference will be opened at noon Saturday by Judge William N. Bonner, chairman of the local aviation committee, after which a temporary chairman will be selected and a committee on resolutions appointed.

Appropriations for the Pueblo-Fort Worth line recently were made by congress. At the time, however, postoffice officials stated that the department did not propose to award contracts immediately. It is the opinion of chambers of commerce along the route that the Mid-Continent Air Express has sufficiently demonstrated its ability to carry air mail, in that the line has sufficiently operated for a consistent period a passenger service over practically the same route.

All cities along the route, with the exception of Denver, Colo., have accepted invitations to the meeting it was announced here Wednesday. Among those to be here for the meeting are Mike Fewell, director of aviation affairs of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce; Jack H. Hott, general manager of the Fort Worth Chamber of commerce; O. V. Vernon, manager of the Amarillo Chamber of commerce; A. A. Jackson, manager of the Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce; R. R. Gilliland, chairman of the aviation committee of the Quanah Chamber of Commerce; and unnamed officials of the Pueblo, Colo., Clayton, N. M.; Memphis, Vernon and Childress, Texas, chambers of commerce.

At the request of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, O. P. Maricle, postmaster here, has forwarded invitations to the conference to all postmasters along the line.

The luncheon which opens the conference will be held at 12:40 noon. Both the luncheon and the ensuing session will be held at the Wichita club.

Visitors Make Talks At Rotary Luncheon

Out of town speakers and local musicians presented the program heard by members of the Rotary club at the Kemp hotel Thursday noon.

M. J. Sorrell of Dallas, introduced by John Boswell, reminded those present of their responsibility as "trustees of traditions of history, reverence of culture, commerce, courage, devotion, confidence, unselfishness, tolerance and cooperation" which "make this a great nation."

Not a low road of surrender, nor a middle road of compromise, but a high road of the most perfect accomplishment possible was prescribed as the course of highest citizenship.

Bernard Bryant of Stamford, past district governor, also made a short talk. G. W. McReynolds Jr. and Wayne McReynolds, played cornet and baritone solos, accompanied by Miss Mary Marie Bollard. Joe Farabee was in charge of the program.

More than $6,000,000 will be spent by Italy for government employes housing.

STRAND: Will Rogers in "A Connecticut Yankee." Short subjects and sound news.

MAJESTIC: "Not Exactly Gentlemen" with Victor McLaglen, Jerry McRae and her Texas Rangerettes. Comedy and sound news.

GEM: Tom Tyler in "West of Cheyenne." Talkartoon comedy and chapter 8 of "Finger Prints."

Sorry to relate, I did not stay long enough on my first shot at "Not Exactly Gentlemen" to discover that the out-of-the-nowhere-into-the-here orchestra was even to be found in the wilds of the South Dakota "bad lands." It's too bad such an event went unrecorded.

It is, of course, a rather strange paradox that the same people who deliberately choose a musical play on the stage will resent it if the music is brought into a picture in any but the most logical way. Probably it is because the movies have produced so many hoaxes, like double exposures and ghost singers and double roles for the same person that Mr. Public doesn't want to be fooled unless there is plenty of reason for being fooled.

However, in spite of the desert orchestra and the Fifth avenue marcel in the midst of the wild country as displayed by the heroine, "Not Exactly Gentlemen" had its good comedy spots. Persons who had expected it to be nothing out of the ordinary began to wonder if they were low-brow or if it were really as funny as it seemed. It won't be one of 1931's best, you understand, but there were plenty of laughs.

And those who thought that "Lightnin'" was the ideal part for Will Rogers had forgotten Mark Twain's "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," the movie version of which opens at the Strand Friday. Will never had a better chance to get off his wisecracks on prohibition, Henry Ford, aviation, and all the pet subjects he loves so well. There is no American citizens who could so well afford to land back in the sixth century and trust to his own initiative to pull himself out of it.

C-C at Frederick Moves to Improve Farming Market

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., April 9.—A better market for farm products was stressed at two meetings of directors of the Frederick Chamber of Commerce held Tuesday. It was decided this would render a greater service to the farmers than the continuation of a trade day. The following committee was appointed to investigate market conditions in this city and report on ways of improving them: Joe Bryan, R. L. Case, J. A. Tyler, Byron Smith, C. J. Hubbard and A. L. Harmison.

Plenty to eat—yet...?

DELICIOUS FOOD. Well prepared. Plenty of variety. Yet, far too often the best of meals is sadly lacking in certain elements that are necessary to real health.

At breakfast especially we are apt not to get the minerals and vitamins we need for building vigor, energy and resistance to illness. It's why many children are underweight and susceptible to colds—why many adults lack the brimming energy that means health.

Mothers can now serve a certified cereal that contains 10 important mineral salts. Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuit. Delicious double-toasted biscuit. Made of crisp wheat shreds. With a wonderful flavor—and the wonderful food value of whole wheat.

Two Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits and milk or cream will furnish more than a third of your daily mineral requirement — including calcium, phosphorus, chlorine, iron, copper — and 6 different vitamins. Look for the certified analysis on every red-and-green package. At your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
