TIRED OF DODGING LAW OVER ENTIRE WORLD IN FT. WORTH ESCAPED SLAYER SAFELY LODGED IN TEXAS JAIL

By United News
FORT WORTH, June 28.—Milt Good, confined in the Tarrant county jail here Monday, since his capture near Antlers, Okla., last Saturday, declared that he had rather take a chance of being pardoned than to have to dodge the law over the entire world. Good said that he was on his way to give up when captured after traveling more than 20,000 miles since his sensational break from Huntsville last November.

Good and Tom Ross, two plains cattle men, were sentenced to fifty years each for the slaying of two cattle inspectors at Seminole three years ago.

MAIL BANDIT IS CAPTURED

ONE OF TRIO WANTED FOR FATAL MAIL CAR ROBBERY IS CAUGHT

By United News
ATLANTA, Ga., June 28.—A man believed to be one of the notorious D'Autremont twins, who are charged with the robbery and dynamiting of a mail car in which four railroad employees were killed in Oregon in 1923, is under arrest at Douglas, Ga., near here, according to reports to postal inspectors' offices here Monday night.

The postoffice department has been conducting a great man hunt for the D'Autremonts.

Deputy Inspector T. W. Overstreet made the arrest. Although positive identification has not been made, he is thought to be either Ray or Roy D'Autremont.

Both are wanted, as well as a younger brother, Hugh.

Rewards totalling $150,000 have been offered for the capture of the trio, according to postal inspectors here.

The man in custody claims his name is Sintel of Yonkers, N. Y., and says that at the time of the Oregon train robbery in October, 1923, he was serving a term in the penitentiary at Wethersfield, Conn. Authorities are checking this story.

CHARGE MAIL FRAUD TO TEXANS

TWO UNDER BIG BOND AT CORPUS CHRISTI AFTER HEARING
CORPUS CHRISTI, June 28.—Following a hearing Monday morning Deputy United States Marshal W. B. Rachel and M. C. Nelson, local attorney, were allowed bond of $75,000 each on charges of using the mails to defraud in connection with the sale of a 700 acre tract of land near Robstown, which did not belong to them. Both men pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The complaint against the men alleged that they sold 100 acres of land which was the property of William Mulholland of New York. Two Robstown citizens were the victims.

The sale was discovered when Mulholland attempted to pay taxes this year and found that they had already been paid. An investigation was started which ended with the arrest of the two men Sunday.

PAVING WAITS ON ENGINEER

PERKINSON AFTER MAN TO WORK UP DETAILS ON STREETS
A half million dollars worth of paving Lubbock now waits only the employment of a city engineer and the filing of petitions by citizens of the streets to be paved, City Manager Bill Perkinson said last night.

Mr. Perkinson has several engineers in mind for the position, and was expecting a telephone call from one last night, but the call did not come through, and at 10 p. m. he said there was no likelihood of a decision on the new official being made until today or possibly later.

No petitions for paving are now on file, he said.

The city has about $65,000 in paving funds now from bonds sold at the time the last paving contracts were carried out. Figuring the city's share of the expense of paving at ten per cent, this would take care of $650,000 worth of paving. This would at the usual price, pave about 200,000 square yards of streets, or two hundred average city blocks 300 feet in length and 30 feet wide, Mr. Perkinson said.

Four 2,000 gallon stills, two 3,000 gallons and four 500 gallons in capacity were found. The equipment was used to redistill denatured alcohol. More than 5,000 gallons of the "finished" product were taken.

A lively but harmless volley of shots to scare them off greeted the agents. But when they got in the building the occupants were gone. Tricky and elaborate systems of trap doors were found through which the bootleggers had escaped.

A. C. Jackson was last night made finance officer. Homer Pharr, Jud Raley and Charles Whitacre were named on the committee to draw up plans for the Fourth of July celebration.

CHICAGO, June 28.—Martin J. Durkin has attained new glamor in the eyes of the underworld where he was inclined to be regarded as a common sneak thief before he went on trial for the murder of a man in pain. Then Durkin started back into his car. In a flash he was out again and two shots were fired almost simultaneously. Tat-tat like that (illustrating by rapping the rail of the witness stand with a ruler.) "Shanahan disappeared from my vision around behind the office. I heard him cry for help like a man in pain. Then Durkin started backing his car out of the garage and before I knew it he was out of sight down the street."

"WIZARD" CAUGHT BY TEXAN AS HE SHIPS AS SEAMAN

WILL BE BROUGHT TO HOUSTON BY SHERIFF ADMITS IDENTITY

WANTED IN BOSTON, HE WILL NOT FIGHT EXTRADITION

By United News
HOUSTON, June 28.—Charles Ponzi, internationally known financial "wizard" was arrested in New Orleans shortly after 4 p. m. Monday by Deputy Sheriff George Lacy, Sheriff T. A. Binford of Harris county announced late Monday night.

Ponzi, Binford declared, had shipped as a seaman on the steamship Scivosnon Vobis, which left Galveston Saturday afternoon.

Traveling under the name of Luciano Andrea, Ponzi was arrested by Lacy in New Orleans after Houston authorities had picked up the trail of the fugitive here.

In a telephone conversation with Binford, Lacy told the sheriff that his prisoner had admitted he was Ponzi, after finger print measurements of Andrea had tallied with those of Ponzi furnished by Miami, Fla., police over long distance telephone.

Ponzi will not contest extradition to Boston, Mass., where he is wanted as a "common and notorious thief," Binford declared.

Upon his arrest, Ponzi refused to talk in spite of his Bertillon identification, the sheriff declared.

Later, however, the Italian admitted his identity. Lacy reported in a message at 9:15 p. m.

Wanted in Boston to serve a sentence of from 7 to 9 years on four counts of larceny, and in Florida on a year's sentence, Ponzi hoped to avoid the jail terms by leaving this country. Deportation proceedings have already been instituted against him and Ponzi hopes to arrange an agreement which will enable him to leave the country at once, of his own free will, sparing the expense of a deportation trial and actual deportation.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

Fruit Drinks

The most delicious fruit drinks can be made from the juices of canned fruits. In combination with lemonade or iced tea, they can provide you with all the variety you could wish for luncheon or afternoon tea drinks. It is well to keep a can of cherries on the reserve shelf, for the color note of the brilliant red is most effective. A bunch of mint costs little and it gives color and excellent flavor to iced drinks.

A Battle for Flavor

Peaches lead all other canned fruit in popular favor, though each year see pineapple coming closer in volume of sales. Peaches have been canned for fifty years and pineapple only within the last twenty years, thus peaches have many years prestige back of their present standing, although pineapple may surpass somewhat in a few years' time.

Flavoring Vegetables

An excellent flavoring for stringless beans or spinach is a sour sauce made of a tablespoon of butter, two teaspoons of flour, a fourth cup of vinegar, salt and pepper to taste. Simmer five minutes and mix with a beaten egg. Such a sauce will be a welcome change when the routine of the week brings the housekeeper back to the same foods. A sprig of mint, lemon juice, a half cup of gray stock from roast beef, chopped onion or parsley are all sources of flavoring for these two foods.

Preserves from Canned Fruits

Housewives who like to put up their own jams and jellies will find canned fruits convenient, since the dreaded washing, peeling and trimming is all done. Fruits put in No. 10 or gallon cans are suitable as they are less expensive.

Drain the Liquid from the Solid

Content of the can, boil it down, add sugar and the fruit. The fruit has been cooked once and needs little re-cooking. For jam the drained fruit should be run through a meat chopper and should be boiled down until the boiling point indicated on the thermometer reaches 217.5 or 221 degrees Fahrenheit. To make good jelly, fruits which are low in acid and pectin should be mixed with fruits rich in these elements. When jams and jellies are made from canned fruit, there is no waste.

Tomato Rabbit

Tomato Rabbit, or Blushing Bunny, as it is called by college girls, makes an excellent luncheon or late supper dish. It can be made by heating a No. 2 can of tomatoes with a can of American cream cheese. When cheese is melted add three eggs well beaten and stir until thick. If you do not care to use eggs, another good

Containing powder rouge and lipstick

While the shops are featuring pastel colored fox furs such as greenish blue, faint rose and amber, one sees that white fox is the preference among women who still believe in wearing summer furs.

Method combines a can of tomato soup with a pound and a half of melted cheese. Serve on toast.

Canned Beef, Aged Four Score and One

A tin of beef was one of the few traces found in the Arctic regions of Sir John Franklin's expedition lost in 1845 in an effort to find the northwest passage. The tinned meat was found on the fields of ice at Beechy Island among other salvaged articles. When opened, the meat was found to be in as sound a condition as when it left the hands of the packer eighty-one years ago.

Miss Mary Murray, 17, of Tuxedo, N. Y., was selected as the best all-around Camp Fire Girl.

be needed for the fitting. Chiffon requires a little more when it is bordered, because of its softness.

The tucks are all hand-run and are stitched on the wrong side of the material. There is no detail of the mode more fashionable than the inverted tucks this season.

In duplicating the smart designs in sheer fabrics, seams are also of importance. The diagram shows how to imitate a French seam which is frequently used when it is better to stitch the dress together on the seam line than to turn the raw edge to the right as in the case of French seam. To make a seam of this kind, trim one edge away, lay the deep edge over and either stitch or fall it down.

It is better, if one has the time to make a dress of this type entirely by hand. Not only will it be distinct, but it will look much better. The Fashion has given her disciples wide latitude in the matter of sleeves this season and very often the shoulder line will be seen lengthened then bound with the exterior omitted. Short sleeves are not only comfortable for warm weather, but there are many new types among advanced fashions.

Sheer Frock with Tuckings

Here is an example of sophisticated simplicity as one will find among the season's offerings—a dark navy chiffon with border of light blue and green flowers.

The smartest frocks this season are simple, simple and many of the most important details happen to be those with a slendering effect. The tucks placed over the hips of the chiffon frock take in the fulness very neatly and obviate the necessity of using a belt.

As the material is 54 inches wide 1 1/2 yards will be sufficient for the dress, with a yard extra for the sleeves and a yard silk for the collar. Two yards of ribbon will

DESOLATION AND HORROR MARK SEARCH OF FLOODED AREA OF LEON, FOR BODIES OF MYRIAD DEAD

LEON, Mexico, June 27.—In scenes of desolation and horror, working through debris-filled quagmires and mud flats where once there was bustling, sunny market place, men and women laborers aided by federal troops are searching for the bodies of loved ones drowned in last week's disastrous flood.

Fear of decomposition and consequent spread of disease, along with the danger that packs of ravenous dogs will mutilate the dead has sped the work of the volunteer crews and their soldier aides. No reliable estimate of the total number of dead is possible yet due to the fact that 40 many bodies have been hidden by the debris, but it may run over 500.

Aside from the feeding of 5,000 homeless persons, most of whom are women and children, the authorities find the problem of sanitation the most difficult. Horses and cows drowned in the flood are buried in the wreckage and the district must be cleaned up quickly.

Despite partial restoration of railway communications a shortage of food and water remains. In sections of the town which receive private water supplies, refugees women are begging for bottles of water. Efforts are being made to restore the city pumping system, but three days probably will be required to do it.

Troops patrol the desolate sections of the town, threatening to shoot any looters on sight. Detachments of police from the neighboring town of Quanaquato are helping guard a thousand partially destroyed houses.

The countryside between Leon and Guanajuato still resembles a lake and agriculture in this section is being heavily damaged.

Paso for a stay of several weeks, after which Miss Clarke will go on to Alpine Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarke will tour New Mexico by car.

A large number of tourists have been passing through Lubbock the past few days according to word from the various service stations of the town. A majority of these tourists are from the east and are sight-seeing over the west. Texas is claiming a number of the tourists also, and a large number of them are passing through the Panhandle.

SAYS VOTES ARE STILL ON FENCE

LYNCH DAVIDSON SEE QUARTER MILLION BALLOTS STILL IN QUESTION

GATESVILLE, Tex., June 28.—Lynch Davidson told the voters of Coryell County here this morning, that in his opinion more than 250,000 voters in Texas are still "on the fence"—waiting to pick the man who can defeat the Fergusonists.

"The proxy Governor is the slickest politician in Texas, and it's no boy's job to beat him," Davidson declared. "Lots of folks got a big kick out of the campaign of hate at start, but now that it has settled down to the same old mud-barrage yesterday, today and forever, they have decided the economic welfare of Texas is more important than any political prize fight ever staged to catch votes.

"People have had time for sober reflection, and the belief is growing that Dan Moody can't defeat the Fergusonists if he should win a place in the final primary against them. Young Moody has rendered good service to his State as Attorney General. What a pity he didn't stay put instead of letting his political ambition run away with his judgment. He is playing with a lot of mighty tough boys and, despite his good intentions, the Booze and Roodle gang is pretty certain to hurt him.

"After Fergusonism has been eliminated—and I am confident it will be—there is one thing more to be considered in this campaign. Will the Ferguson's successor in the governor's office be the peoples man, or will he owe his job to the political gang. Will he have the training and experience necessary to run a $60,000,000 business institution successfully, without fear or favor, or will he let the Standard Oil Company and the liquor interests tell him what to do.

"The voters of Texas are confronted with a serious problem. It won't do to jump out of the frying pan into the fire. This situation, I believe, accounts for the tremendous gains I have made within the last three weeks. Everywhere I go, people express the belief that Moody can't muster enough strength to beat Ferguson. The big silent vote isn't filling up the newspapers with signed argument for or against this or that candidate, but it knows pretty well what is going on, and when the time comes it will make its own decision without any help from the loud voiced politicians.

"Moody made a big 'bust' when he fell into the gambling trap Farmer Jim baited for him. Ferguson stubbed his toe when he suggested that Texans repudiate their just road bond debt. These mistakes cost both of the thousands of votes.

"I am the only candidate in the field who has taken time to discuss the economic needs of the State. I seek the office of governor, not for the salary it pays, neither for the honor alone, but because of the opportunity it affords to apply what talents I possess to giving this State a business administration, and to perform a service to the people of Texas."

JIMMY ALLRED SCORES TRUSTS

ATTORNEY GENERAL CANDIDATE, HITS SCOFFLAWS IN TALK HERE

Disrespect for law and order is the greatest danger facing the state of Texas today," was the keynote of James (Jimmie) V. Allred's speech in behalf of his campaign for attorney general of the state of Texas to over 300 Lubbock citizens at the corner of Broadway and I yesterday afternoon. All through his speech, Allred impressed the situation existing in the governmental affairs of the state and stressed the pledging of every citizen to do his part in keeping the laws of the state. He spoke from a truck.

He stated that the election this year is one of the most serious matters that have ever confronted the people and is being given less attention than ever before. Fewer poll taxes have been paid in the state and less interest is being taken in the elections than is good for the welfare of the nation. He gave the following facts as the cause of this existing condition:

"The people of the state of Texas are losing confidence in the officers of the government. And why is this? Because of the deplorable conditions of the present offices and their holders. The security of the government rests in the confidence placed in the officers and the people should by all means show them this confidence. But only the men who are entitled to this confidence should be placed in office.

Disrespect for Law

Texas is facing one of the greatest dangers from within today than ever before from an outside foe. There is a predominant impulse of the people to show a disrespect for law and order, which is gaining headway in the younger generation and is making the state of Texas a den of criminals. The world war is blamed for a part of this but I as one of the men who fought on the other side resent any statement of this kind. England, France and Italy, had a war also, but is crime increasing in these nations. No, but even in Texas 1000 men are murdered every year, according to statistics. Three men are murdered every day and only seven out of 750 men who face trial in the past year were given the supreme penalty and three were forced to pay.

Calls on People

"What is becoming the predominant situation of the state if conditions like these are left to exist? It is the most appalling situation in the whole world and one that every law abiding citizen should rise up and aid in the suppression of. More men are in the pen now than at this time last year despite the fact that nearly 2000 of them have been pardoned. To those who say that this is an aftermath of the war, I say that is false, for statistics show that 85 per cent of the men charged with crime in Texas today are between the ages of 17 and 22 years. They were not ven in the war and could not have been influenced by it. These youngsters are being taught the wrong aspect of the law, that of ignoring it and resting on the parents to aid them in trouble. And when they are indicted the parents give this assistance. They do not know what the law is but they do know that it does not do all it says it will.

King of Crime

"Texas is a ring of organized crime and all the robberies of the state go to prove this. The large cities are the centers of the activities and the high colored men handle the youth of the state's tools. They have paid bondsmen, hired all-bi witnesses and even lawyers in league with them. It is high time that every officer from the constable to the governor was co-operating or organizing to break down this condition. Their business is to break up the violations of the law, to prosecute the rich as well as the poor.

Fight on Pro Law

In seeking of the liquor question, Allred stated that there is now in Texas an organized effort to break up the prohibition laws of the state. Every man who burlesques the liquor law, especially before the youth of the state, is aiding in this campaign whether he knows it or not. In regard to his stand on this question Allred stated:

"I am opposed absolutely, unequivocally, unalterably to any modification of the prohibition laws of the state."

He also attacked the abuse of the anti-trust laws of the state and gave several open situations where they are being abused.

In closing his speech, Allred stated that no political machine was behind him and that he did not want any behind him. A machine calls for the sacrifice of a man's principles and Allred believes, he said, in observance of the law by the people and honest forcing of the law by the officers.

"If the people of Texas send me to Austin where they are plentiful, I'll make them a hand, I'll admit I'm young," (he is 27 years of age) "but it is not my fault and if the people of Texas will give me time I'll outgrow it."

In seeking of the liquor question, Allred stated that there is now in Texas an organized effort to break up the prohibition laws of the state. Every man who burlesques the liquor law, especially before the youth of the state, is aiding in this campaign whether he knows it or not. In regard to his stand on this question Allred stated:

"I am opposed absolutely, unequivocally, unalterably to any modification of the prohibition laws of the state."

He also attacked the abuse of the anti-trust laws of the state and gave several open situations where they are being abused.

In closing his speech, Allred stated that no political machine was behind him and that he did not want any behind him. A machine calls for the sacrifice of a man's principles and Allred believes, he said, in observance of the law by the people and honest forcing of the law by the officers.

"If the people of Texas send me to Austin where they are plentiful, I'll make them a hand, I'll admit I'm young," (he is 27 years of age) "but it is not my fault and if the people of Texas will give me time I'll outgrow it."

He stated that the election this year is one of the most serious matters that have ever confronted the people and is being given less attention than ever before. Fewer poll taxes have been paid in the state and less interest is being taken in the elections than is good for the welfare of the nation. He gave the following facts as the cause of this existing condition:

"The people of the state of Texas are losing confidence in the officers of the government. And why is this? Because of the deplorable conditions of the present offices and their holders. The security of the government rests in the confidence placed in the officers and the people should by all means show them this confidence. But only the men who are entitled to this confidence should be placed in office.

Disrespect for Law

Texas is facing one of the greatest dangers from within today than ever before from an outside foe. There is a predominant impulse of the people to show a disrespect for law and order, which is gaining headway in the younger generation and is making the state of Texas a den of criminals. The world war is blamed for a part of this but I as one of the men who fought on the other side resent any statement of this kind. England, France and Italy, had a war also, but is crime increasing in these nations. No, but even in Texas 1000 men are murdered every year, according to statistics. Three men are murdered every day and only seven out of 750 men who face trial in the past year were given the supreme penalty and three were forced to pay.

"What is becoming the predominant situation of the state if conditions like these are left to exist? It is the most appalling situation in the whole world and one that every law abiding citizen should rise up and aid in the suppression of. More men are in the pen now than at this time last year despite the fact that nearly 2000 of them have been pardoned. To those who say that this is an aftermath of the war, I say that is false, for statistics show that 85 per cent of the men charged with crime in Texas today are between the ages of 17 and 22 years. They were not ven in the war and could not have been influenced by it. These youngsters are being taught the wrong aspect of the law, that of ignoring it and resting on the parents to aid them in trouble. And when they are indicted the parents give this assistance. They do not know what the law is but they do know that it does not do all it says it will.

King of Crime

"Texas is a ring of organized crime and all the robberies of the state go to prove this. The large cities are the centers of the activities and the high colored men handle the youth of the state's tools. They have paid bondsmen, hired all-bi witnesses and even lawyers in league with them. It is high time that every officer from the constable to the governor was co-operating or organizing to break down this condition. Their business is to break up the violations of the law, to prosecute the rich as well as the poor.

LUBBOCK MAY GET AIRLINE

GUARANTEE OF EXPENSES WOULD BE REQUIRED SAYS DAVIS

If Lubbock will guarantee enough revenue from passengers, mail or express to cover the expenses of operation, an airline may be established either directly or indirectly from here to Dallas, Secretary A. B. Davis of the chamber of commerce said last night, after conversation during the day with W. P. Erwin of the International Airways corporation. Captain Erwin was here in the interests of a network of air lines to west Texas points, including Amarillo, El Paso, Abilene and Lubbock, which is contemplated as supplementary to lines now running to Houston, San Antonio and Shreveport from Dallas.

The Lubbock line, as contemplated might either go direct to Dallas or by way of Amarillo or Abilene, Mr. Davis said.

Captain Erwin will write a letter to Mr. Davis submitting a definite proposition after he returns to Dallas and works the matter out.

Instruction in flying for Texas Tech students might be included under the plan outlined. A field would be established at Tech college, and a hangar capable of housing five planes, this to be furnished by Lubbock, Mr. Davis said. Two of the planes would be kept available at all times, not being used in the regular daily service, for emergency flights and for instruction in flying.

THE "WAR FRAUDS"

The retirement of James Cameron, "director of investigations and accounts of the War Department," ends an epoch, and ends it more creditably than most Americans have expected. Mr. Cameron was appointed several years ago to look into the war contracts, with a view to uncovering such crookedness as congressional investigating committees had not been able to find. He went at the job with energy and skill, and according to his reports looked carefully into 200,000 contracts, big and little, amounting to thousands of millions of dollars. In all that mass of war business he has found evidence of deliberate fraud in only a few cases. He now lays down the job because he "has nothing more to do." High prices, unquestionably, were paid for supplies in the stress of the big war, when time was thought to be worth more than money. Many manufacturers and dealers charged all the traffic would bear. Many inspectors and other officials, no doubt, were lax in inspection, in the press of war work. But it is greatly to the credit of both sides, the government forces and the forces of private capital, that in that great enterprise it has been possible to discover so little that can be called stealing or cheating. The war contracts, despite the immense sums of money involved, are said to be cleaner than they were in any previous war. That is something for Americans to remember with pride, in connection with a conflict that has brought few satisfactions.

THE YEAR OF EXPLORATION

More exploration. Chicago sends forth two important expeditions at once, in behalf of the Field Museum. One goes to the Amazon region, in tropical Brazil, with a group of leading American scientists. The other sails for the Arctic in a small sailing ship recently returned to New York laden with thousands of rare specimens of life in the South Atlantic, from the Cleveland Museum of Natural History. The New York Museum of Natural History and the Smithsonian Institution at Washington have exploring parties at work in many quarters of the world. Archeological research in Egypt, North Africa, Palestine, Mesopotamia and eastern Asia are going forward with accelerating pace. In America at the same time a whole new fabric of native archeology is being constructed. Scientists at home are busier than ever in their laboratories, perfecting new discoveries and inventions for human use and delving deeper into the secrets of nature. It is going to be a great year for exploration, making us better acquainted with this present earth and its inhabitants and resources, and with its remote past and possible future. Never before in human history was there any such outburst of activity for the extension of human knowledge. At this rate, man will soon know everything except himself. That field will keep him busy a long time.

FEWER FEDERAL JOB-HOLDERS

The number of government employees has been greatly reduced. The reduction comes near eliminating the big increase made necessary while fighting the war and liquidating it afterward. Executive heads say little or nothing more can be done along this line. The departments are still overmanned, as public departments usually are, compared with private business institutions. But there is the civil service system to check extensive weeding out, and there are politicians in the departments and in Congress, always ready to fight to keep party members on the payroll. An interesting policy, however, is said to have been adopted by the canny and economical Mr. Coolidge. He "lets nature run her course." Federal employees are always dropping out of themselves, by death and resignation. The losses from these natural causes are said to amount to thousands a year. The policy is, in such cases, to replace very few of those lost. Thus the payroll can be steadily reduced without inviting political trouble. It is a good process, if none more drastic can be found. Generally speaking, as efficient administrators have observed more than once at Washington, the fewer people there are paid to do the government's work, the better it can be done.

THE DEBT BUSINESS

"The creation of debt in this country is an industry," observes Henry Ford, "and the interest profit on debt is higher than the manufacturing profit on commodities." Mr. Ford's animus against the banking fraternity is well known, and possibly he exaggerates. If he is right, here is a simple explanation for the prosperity of bankers. And if banking is really more profitable than manufacturing—if the men who merely deal in capital are getting more for it than the men who are producing the goods needed to keep society alive and carry on civilization—why, then, the system can't be working right. The dealer in capital is necessary and important, but he may be reaping an undue reward. That, however, is not what this particular bit of comment was intended to say. Suppose we shift our attention to the consumer, who is the ultimate master of the situation. It does seem sometimes as if he is borrowing too much, deferring payments too much and paying too much for dead horses, as Mr. Ford intimates. Credit is necessary and useful, but it may be carried too far. Money is worth paying for, but a borrower who has made his credit shaky by over-extending it is sure to pay too much for financial accommodation. It would be better for everybody, in the long run if not immediately, to have more people saving their money, putting it into the bank and then using it to pay off their old debts, instead of plunging feverishly into new ones.

RELIGION FROM INDIA

"Probably no country takes religion more seriously than India does," says Bishop Brenton Badley, representing the Methodist Episcopal Church in Bombay. "It is not surprising, therefore, that half the world's great religions were born in India—Hinduism, Buddhism and Jainism. The other three great religions were also born in Asia—Christianity, Mohammedanism and Confucianism. All the great religions of the world have come from Asia. That is something the western world, especially America, is inclined to forget. There is a widespread feeling today, in East and West alike, that a new religious impulse is needed—not necessarily a 'new religion,' but a quickening of the everlasting religious varieties. The West may be, as yet, too materialistic for spiritual leadership. Is Asia doing? Bishop Badley thinks not. 'India is coming to be recognized more and more,' tells Americans, 'as an exponent of the idea that power is based on something else than material forces. Gandhi is considered great because he has sought to use the power of man as against the power of matter. India believes that the time has come in our world for a new civilization. She will find it ultimately in a true Christian civilization. But our western, so-called Christian nations, are not yet exemplifying it in their national life and dealings.' Can India show us a larger Christianity than we have yet realized?"

NEAR-BEER BARS

We have "soda grills"—though what "soda" and "grill" have to do with each other is more than some otherwise intelligent people can understand. And now comes another innovation in the form of "near-beer bars." They are said to be springing up especially in rural towns, and in sections long accustomed to prohibition. So they need not come under the suspicion of being necessarily intended as blinds for dispensing more potent beverages. They may always be the temptation to slip a "stick" into such drinks; but so far, there doesn't seem to be much trouble on that score. The whole idea is said to be the serving of a drink that looks like beer, smells like beer, and tastes like beer, but doesn't act like beer. There is no evident harm in that. "The pious," remarks a Kansas editor, "instead of being excited, should stand by and giggle themselves into good nature." Men are like children, and if they want to drink barren soda, as boys smoke grape leaves, thinking it's real devilish, let them do it. They may get away with it if they have enough imagination. But since imagination in grown-ups is a rare quality, they may soon weary of it. Our Canadian neighbors, when given much nearer beer than this, with 4.4 per cent alcohol by volume, tried it once and then dubbed it "four-disappointed-four."

DRY ROTARIANS

A delegate to the big Rotary convention at Denver, talking to a brother Rotarian in a car going up Pike's Peak, said: "This is the first convention I ever attended that I hadn't had a drink by this time. I used to take it for the sake of sociability, but I used to take it for the sake of Post said, during the convention: 'Mingling incessantly with the through in Denver this week and particular in the various activities and conversations, the observer is impressed by the total absence of the booze element. The booze taint is absent from the breath of the crowds. No matter how dense and close packed the jam of people the nostrils of the most sensitive persons are not offended. Booze is absent from the conversation as it is from the breath. Even the time honored jokes that passed current in the first years of prohibition have disappeared into the discard. Those visitors, the Post remarks, represented a fair cross-section of American life. The Post concludes that John Barleycorn in America is 'not only legally dead and buried but is mentally and spiritually dead and forgotten.' Here is a note that has not been heard much lately in the prohibition controversy. Doubtless it matters a good deal what the local attitude is about liquor, and where a convention is held; but there is evidently more honest dryness in the country than a lot of ardent wets realize or admit."

When Washington was president the nation's defense cost $1,000,000 a year. Since then the population has increased twenty-eight times, but the expenditures for defense has increased 600 times. We've paid many thousands of millions for a mass of junk—and are still liberally contributing

The average human being has been given a marvelously adjusted fighting machine, one that makes its own repairs and stands a tremendous amount of wear and tear—if it is well treated. But as a general rule it is terribly abused.

Events in the Lives of Little Men

So Think We

We think the floating of stock must be about one of the oldest tricks of the human race. Away back in the day of Noah, we read where he floated a lot of stock.

We think that blue sky laws were not needed in days gone by any more than they are now, even though the people of this day and time seem to have more education.

We think the main trouble with the bone dry laws is the bone heads that have been mixed up in it.

We think another thing that is the matter with the prohibition laws is that anti-prohibition men are at the head of the job.

We think some ancestors of some people would in all probability not consider these fellows any credit to them.

We think that even in this day and time many of the people of this country would really enjoy hearing a real statesman speak.

We think the South Plains is going right along at a more steady gait than most any other section of the state. A great deal of real development in agriculture, dairying, hog raising and gardening is going on. We are in the heart of a rich country, and we are going steadily on.

We think that people will make no mistake in putting their money in Lubbock property at this time. She is sure to take a long leap forward this fall, and you will see splendid returns on your investment.

We think every person who is occupying a home in Lubbock should take enough interest in the health of the community to keep the back yard, the front yard, and the alleys about their premises cleaned up.

We think the wadding pool for the kiddies at the county park is worth every dollar that it has cost the people of this county. The children are certainly having the best time of their life.

We think that now would be a mighty fine time to secure the land for the big lake on the canyon. It will be necessary some day, and the land will become more valuable every year.

We think the only danger in riding on a row boat on the county lake is that some big fish is liable to undertake a ride and prove a sinker. Much care should be exercised in boating in this particular lake.

We think Lubbock county park might be the headquarters for a fine zoo. If the people of this city and county will take a greater interest in securing animals and birds for it, if you know where certain animals and

It Is Reported

That one Lubbock man was heard to say that he was going to take a vacation in July. His wife was going visiting, and he did not propose to cut a single weed in the yard or mow the grass.

That another candidate has been to Lubbock and told the dear voters that without him in office the state will certainly be handicapped.

That repudiate and vindicate are two of the most prominent words in the present campaign.

That the reason men do not tip their hats to the women as much as they used to is because a fellow tipped his hat to a man once thinking it was a lady. It is pretty hard to distinguish between the two some times.

That the first month of the postoffice at Bledsoe, proved that not enough boxes had been furnished for the number of customers to the postoffice. This country is developing with a great deal of permanency, and there is no running over of people in a grand rush for possession of lands and lots but many people are looking with favor on the South Plains and are coming this way.

That unless a lot more people get in behind the baseball club in a substantial way financially that there will be a general elimination of the players who are hired to do duty on the team, and as there will not be enough men available, in the local field who are citizens of the city, and willing to contribute their time and unable to keep up their winning record that they have so far established.

That the two graders recently purchased by the city commission for use on the streets have not had much idle time since their arrival in the city, and the streets are showing very favorable results of the constant work of these machines.

That a contract will soon be let for the building of a better road from Slaton to Lubbock, and we hope the city of Lubbock will be able to meet the highway department with an equally good street into the business section of the city.

That much oil leasing activity is going on in the territory to the west of Lubbock, and some real drilling contracts will be in full swing in a short time.

ONE ON THE LAWYER
There are some legal questions that a witness cannot answer by a simple yes or no, and a browbeating lawyer will sometimes take advantage of this fact. One of this class was once demanding that a witness answer a certain question in the negative or affirmative.
"I cannot do it," said the witness.
"There are some questions that can not be answered by a 'yes' or 'no' as anyone knows."
"I don't see how you can give an example to the court," thundered the lawyer.
The rest came in a flash: "Are you still beating your wife?"
A sickly grim spread over the lawyer's face and he sat down.

WORLD TOPICS

"LAME DUCK" GOVERNMENT

At the November election, the people will elect a whole new House and one-third of the entire Senate. The complexion of Congress is likely to be changed radically. If the present order holds, this new Congress will not meet until December, 1927—more than a year after election. In the meantime the present body—perhaps many members in it rejected at the polls—will continue to serve. It will meet next December and will continue in session until March 4, 1927.

This situation offends the democratic idea of government, and the Norris amendment is designed to remedy the evil. Under it Congress would assemble the first Monday in January of each year—that is, within two months after election. Then the country would have no more "lame duck" government. The people thoroughly approve of the proposed change and they wish to have the question submitted to them for action as soon as possible. Last week the Senate approved the amendment by a vote of 67 to 2, but from present indications it will be pigeon-holed in the House.

MINNESOTA PRIMARY

While Minnesota's primary last Monday was only for the nomination of state and congressional officers, national interest was aroused. The cause of the fact that ex-Senator Magnus Johnson was seeking the gubernatorial nomination on the Farmer-Labor ticket. He was opposed by Tom Davis, a Minneapolis attorney. Theodore Christanson, present governor, defeated Mayor Leach of Minneapolis, for the Republican nomination. The only other interest in the primary was in the fourth congressional district where Congressman Oscar E. Kelley was opposed by a wet and dry. Kelley is wet and so is Melvin J. Mass, Fred A. Snyder was endorsed by the Anti-Saloon League, George W. Griffin, the Democratic candidate, is even more dry than Kelley.

The Senators from New Jersey—Edge and Edwards who have made themselves quite conspicuous in their efforts to nullify the Eighteenth Amendment, are worried over the results of the congressional primary contests in which the drys rolled up a tremendous vote. New Jersey is not quite "as wet as the ocean" as the senators would have us believe.

Senator Copeland's bill to regulate the coal business has been put in cold storage for this session of Congress at least. The coal barons have one of the most powerful lobbies ever known at Washington and manage to control enough votes to have their own way. From what has been said by Congressmen this condition seems to offer a field of investigation that should not be ignored.

If each of the 110,000,000 of people in the United States had an equal share of all the money in circulation it would amount to $42.15. Bankers state that 80 per cent of the people never see the inside of a bank. Perhaps that's one reason why most of us lack the $42.15.

CHRISTIANITY

Ethics is a Christian science. Moral principles of life have never attained as high a standard as when they have been most closely linked with Christianity. It is often said that you can not legislate people into moral living, an idea is doubtless true, but you can give people the impetus for moral living by harmonizing him with the philosophy of life that is so near divine as that found in modern Christianity's interpretation of the Bible.

Benevolence is an outgrowth of Christianity. The great heart of Christianity is a spirit of pity for every form of wretchedness and a hand to stretch out for its permanent relief. This finds abundant proof in the splendid system of homes and hospitals, asylums and associations, social settlements and free dispensaries for the care of the friendless, the relief of the suffering, the well-being of the unfortunate and the prevention of disease that abound in Christian lands and that are maintained by Christian organizations and Christian people.

If you were to take out of the community all the churches and all of the organizations maintained by them, if you were to take out all the churches and all the organizations, you would not recognize it as the same community, nor would you continue to make it the place of your abode for another month.

MONEY DOES NOT GROW

From January 1, 1920 to February 1, 1926, the national debt was reduced by about four and a half billion dollars.

During the same time the debts of state and local governments increased about six and three-quarters billions.

From January 1, 1920 to January 1, 1926, national government expenditures were reduced about two billion dollars.

During the same period current expenditures by state and local governments increased more than two billion dollars a year, and are still increasing.

Heavy local taxation increases the cost of the home and the cost of owning it. Likewise taxes increase the price of all the food we eat, the fuel we burn, and the clothes we wear. It means that labor must have higher wages in order to live, and to purchase what producers manufacture. Reduction of local expenditures and taxation is one of the surest methods of reducing the cost of living in any community.

Pennsylvania's primary scandal makes campaign contributors so tight-fisted it is said, that members of Congress are for reelection are discouraged almost to the point where it looks as if we might not have any government at all after next November.

It is said that missionaries are having an easier time teaching savages to wear modern clothes.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE BIRTH OF GREATNESS
Who knows what a good life is or where
Lies loss or failure in the plan,
One may, the rags of hardship wear
And be no less a man.
Mary and Joseph did not seem
A couple richly blessed with grace,
Who neighbored with them would not dream
Their lofty place.
Yet Mary brought the Christ to birth
One hero to attain.
And some can tell the name or class
Of all the throng who came to earth
That this might come to pass.
The humblest woman passing by
May still in glory have her share,
Her life, as Jesus' life may lie
In one, child as the other be.
And who can comprehend the span
Or count the links in splendor's chain?
God may take ages for his plan
One hero to attain.

HUBBERS WILL ABANDON OPERATION IF FINANCIAL CAMPAIGN TO BE HELD HERE WEDNESDAY MORNING AT 9 A. M. IS FAILURE

The matter of retaining the Hubbers baseball club now lays in the hands of the fans of Lubbock and the South Plains. One more campaign will be staged, this occurring on Wednesday morning in which the decision will be made whether or not Lubbock retains the ball club. Plans after this have been made for the support of the Lubbock citizens and now the funds are exhausted, and the players are waiting for their month's salaries, at the present time the club is in debt and no funds to pay with what shall your answer be Wednesday morning?

In case nothing is done by this time the association will lose three of the best Hubbers, as they can not exist without finances and if Lubbock can not pay them they will seek places with some other club. Three of them are offered propositions at the present time and have requested that these offers be open until after Wednesday so that they may know what the outcome will be of the drive to be made.

As it has been explained several times in the press that the expenses of the club amounts to approximately $1,000 per month, this includes salaries of only seven players while the remainder of the club are operating the park and draw their money from what they get from the gate. It is estimated that the operation costs of the Hubbers is far below the average small town club. In other words the Denver Champions are operating a club on a financial basis lower than clubs of much smaller cities—yet the Hubbers have not received the support of the fans.

It is requested that the fans of Lubbock who desire to see the Hubbers through the summer months; that want to see the Hubbers enter the Denver Tournament for another season; that want to see Lubbock advertised more extensively; that desire to witness some good baseball; to meet with the officers of the association at nine o'clock Wednesday morning and discuss the critical situation.

The Hubbers are scheduled with two games with Lamesa here the 4th and 6th of July. These games are always real ball games, but would the matter be a failure Wednesday morning will necessarily force the Hubbers to abandon, and the dates already scheduled cancelled.

It is up to you fans of Lubbock to see that the Hubbers go through. What will your answer be?

MACKMEN TRIM AMERICAN LEADERS

The Athletic club continued to pursue the Yankee model after afternoon and Mackmen with Grov in the lead, trimmed the American league leaders, 7 to 1. The left-handed slugger struck out ten Yankees, running his strikeouts for the season to 110. It was the Athletics' 7th victory over Huggins' sluggers in 11 games.

Detroit owed to the Indians after winning seven straight games. The final score was 3 to 4. Cooper and Collins being shelved from the mound in the fifth when Cleveland scored five times.

The League leading Reds made it four straight over the world's champion Pirates by winning easily, 6 to 1. Rixey was effective, but Vic Aldridge, but the Pirate hitting star, was sent to the showers in the 5th.

The Giants won a ball game at Boston's expense, 3 to 2. Greenfield hurled splendid ball while his team mates came through with two runs in the fifth.

Charley Root, effective Cub second baseman, held the Cards in the palm of his hand as his teammates were mauling Vick Keen and Johnson. The final score was 13 to 9. The foreign Phillies rose on their tormentors and walloped the Robins 4 to 4. Four Brooklyn hurlers could not stem the furious Philadelphia attack.

The White Sox hurler allowed only four hits. Wiltz held Washington to three scattered hits while the Red Sox made 15, Boston winning 6 to 2. Flanagan got four hits while Todd and Stoker got two doubles each.

Washington Noses Out On Navy

By United News
POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 28.—The crack crew from the University of Washington won the varsity race in the classic Poughkeepsie regatta, Monday, beating out seven shells over the four miles down stream course on the Hudson river.

The Huskies were barely able to hold off a determined navy crew anxious to repeat last year's victory.

Washington made a great spurt in the last quarter of a mile to beat the navy by a scant margin.

Syracuse was third and the other were closely bunched.

At 7:15 the scheduled time for the varsity race, not a one of the eight shells was in sight.

A south breeze ruffled the water but slightly at twilight came on.

The observation train with its cheering thousands pulled up along the shore. The referee's boat was late in getting to the starting line at Crum Elbow. An airplane hummed over the course. Syracuse was first in line, and then Pennsylvania and Columbia came out to their lanes.

The other crews paddled up slowly. Washington and the Navy were more than half an hour late in arriving at the start and lost more time in jockeying for position.

It was not until 7:55 o'clock that the crews were off.

Washington got away with a scant lead. Columbia was second and Pennsylvania third. The others were bunched.

It was difficult to distinguish the leader at the half mile but as the sweep-winners reached the mile post, Washington was as length in the van. Navy was second, Wisconsin third and Pennsylvania and Cornell tied for fourth. Washington began to gain steadily. Rusty Callow's charges were rowing a beautiful race, responding to every increase in the stroke. At the two-mile mark Washington was leading by two lengths. Navy, striking out eight men and allowing seven hits, Burleson allowed eight well scattered hits and only in the fourth did Lakeview make as many as two hits. Plainview made one error while Lakeview made four which were responsible for a few of Plainview's runs.

PLAINVIEW SHUTS OUT LAKEVIEW
PLAINVIEW, June 28.—Almost perfect fielding behind the steady pitching of Burleson, Plainview shut out Lakeview 5 to 0 in a fast and well played baseball game at Plainview Sunday. The game went scoreless until the 7th when Plainview made two runs followed by three in the eighth. Four double plays by Plainview and an excellent catch by Whitbanks in right field when Lakeview had three men on base in the fourth were features of the game and aided greatly in shutting out the north plains boys. Lewis pitched good ball for Lakeview, striking out eight men and allowing seven hits. Burleson allowed eight well scattered hits and only in the fourth did Lakeview make as many as two hits. Plainview made one error while Lakeview made four which were responsible for a few of Plainview's runs.

At the start of the final mile Washington and the navy were battling it out. Both were rowing a very fast stroke.

MOTOR VEHICLES BOW TO CLOTHIERS IN GOOD GAME

In one of the fastest games played this season in the Major league of the city league loop the boys of the dependable merchandise variety took a hotly contested tilt with the dealers of the motor vehicles by a score of 1 to 0. It was the fastest game played this season in the city league.

Both clubs chalked up three runs each. Stalaker, the strike out ace, whipped down 10 of the motormen and was credited with as many assists. Stalaker is setting a record for strikeouts as he has shown in the last three games pitched.

Wilford, men's furnishing salesman of the Barrier Bros. is credited with the victory of the merchandise peddlers with six single in the fourth that brought in the winning run. The score:

Suzanne Sick; She Can't Play

By United News
WIMBLEDON, England, June 28.—Suzanne Lenglen is now definitely out of the Wimbledon tournament and her illness has been announced as neuritis of the right arm, rather than sun stroke, throat trouble, nasal trouble or a cold.

"Suzanne will not play in any more matches here; that's definite," the French star's mother told the United News. "We will remain throughout the tournament and as spectators if possible, but at present Suzanne's arm is so painful that it hurts even when she is in bed."

Elimination of all speculation regarding Suzanne's possible continuance in the matches here has turned the attention of Englishmen to the fact that Wimbledon is becoming a defeat for British rackets similar to that suffered by her golfers at St. Anne's.

Three Englishmen and one American remain to play the semi-finals and finals of the men's singles. They are Henri Cochet, Jean. Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Howard Kinsey. England went out of it when Cochet beat J. G. Gregory.

May Freeze Out Channel Swim

CAPE GRIS NEZ, France, June 28.—Cold water and late summer weather probably will prevent either Gertrude Ederle, or Lillian Cannon from attempting to swim the English Channel next month.

Tidal conditions would be most favorable in August and it is unlikely that an attempt would be made by the American girls before then. The temperature of the water would make a mid-July effort to achieve the crossing impracticable unless the temperature rose unusually quickly.

$30,000,000 ON DEPOSIT IN SCHOOL SAVINGS BANKS

NEW YORK, June 28.—School boys and girls of the United States now have upward of $30,000,000 on deposit in school savings banks, it was disclosed today by Arthur H. Chamberlain of San Francisco, who tomorrow will preside at the opening of the National Congress for Thrift at Philadelphia.

"In the last decade remarkable progress has been made toward planting in the minds of America's younger generation a repugnance for waste and a respect for thrift," said Chamberlain.

"During the school year just closed approximately 8,000,000 boys and girls received thrift instruction. School savings systems became available to nearly 4,000,000 pupils, and were taken advantage of to the extent that, according to our preliminary estimates, their aggregate balance, including deposits and accrued interest, exceeded the $0 million dollar mark."

WILL EXPLAIN BUILDING LAW

CONTRACTORS TO BE SERVED NOTICE TONIGHT OF STRICT ENFORCEMENT

In determined effort to stave off a possible boom in the Lubbock Fire insurance key rate, the city administration has called the building contractors of the town together for a mass meeting at the city hall tonight to give them notice that hereafter the building ordinance will be strictly enforced.

Building Inspector Merrill will explain the provisions of the law to the contractors.

City Manager Bill Perkinson said last night that while no warning had yet been sent from the state fire insurance commission, the board of fire underwriters had protested many times against the laxness of Lubbock building.

He said that many contractors have not even been getting building permits before they started construction, and that they have been putting up their buildings with no reference to the building code.

COOLIDGE IN BALANCE AGAIN

NORTH DAKOTA PRIMARY WILL HANG ON PRESIDENTS POLICY

By United News
WASHINGTON, June 28.—Another state will pass judgment on the Coolidge policies in the North Dakota primary election Wednesday.

The test of sentiment will be reflected in the outcome of the contest over the senatorship between Senator Gerald P. Nye and L. B. Hanna, manager of the Coolidge campaign in North Dakota in 1924 and an adherent of the white house policies. It is a relative of the late Mark Hanna. Farm relief is the leading issue. Nye stands with the Dawes - Watson - McNary - Haugen group which favors the stabilization of the dollar by Coolidge. He had worked with the republican insurgents in his brief senate career and has been endorsed by them for re-nomination and election.

The North Dakota contest is complicated by ballot technicalities. The voters have been thoroughly advised as to what to issue are and the outcome will be as clear cut a verdict on the Coolidge policies—particularly as were the Iowa results.

Nye is up for the regular six year term nomination and also for election to the short term which will run until March 4 next. He now holds his seat by an appointment made after the death of Senator Ladd. This appointment was to run only until the primary election.

Nye is 33 years old, the youngest man in the senate next to LaFollette. The two vote together on practically all roll calls. Young LaFollette had been more active than Nye due to his greater familiarity with the senate which he gained through service as his father's secretary. Nye was newspaper editor before coming to the senate.

The reception we received from your gentlemen was indeed most gratifying and I want you to know was most sincerely appreciated.

Creager offered Lubbock his services whenever he can be of assistance to this city.

CHICAGO POLICE PARLEY OVER CAUSE OF IMMORALITY AMONG MODERN FLAPPERS AND SHEIKS

By EARL J. JOHNSON (United News Staff Correspondent) CHICAGO, June 28.—The Chicago police department has taken time out in its spectacular crusade against denizens of the under world to engage in a controversy over the morals of the young.

Why girls go wrong so much faster than their grandmothers did has divided the department.

The division is along the ancient line of sex, but oddly enough, the matrons blame the girls for the present orgy of gin ruzzing and petting and the captains blame he boys.

The argument started during a lull in the homicide rate while the Catholic convention was in session here. Now it has become of such department-wide interest that Chief Morgan A. Collins says he may hire a hall some night this week and have the thing settled by formal debate.

First Aid For Fourth Victims

By RICHARD H. STREET, M. D. Member Gorcas Memorial Institute (Written for the United Press) CHICAGO, June 28.—Fourth of July lockjaw and death!

How often the three occur in the same sentence in the newspapers describing a sad aftermath of this early summer celebration. Not only is it sad for a person to die of lockjaw, but it is sad to realize that death could have been prevented had a physician been consulted in time.

Despite the campaign for a sane and safe Fourth, the holiday brings in its train accidental gun shot wounds and wounds caused by the explosions of cannon crackers which someone suppose had gone out.

Why Girls Go Back Home

BY CATHARINE BRODY

"Why Girls Go Back Home" with Patsy Ruth Miller is a Warner production from this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Clifford Dudley, New York's latest pet stage star, used by a chorus girl for breach of promise, starts a "tour of the sticks" until the affair can be smoothed over. Clifford is a Broadway nose-picker, who blooms best on city pavement; rural air remains anathema to him until one night when he spots an exceptionally pretty girl in one of his small town audiences. He brazenly addresses the (impassioned words of love, intended for his stage sweetheart, to the little girl "out front."

CHAPTER I—(Continued)

One frail hand of a beautiful Italian model gently stole around her lover's neck, and there, under the lace collar, her fingers lightly screwed a bit of flesh. She pinched as hard as ever she could. Sally had a sense of humor.

There was a painful suddenness to the withdrawal of her lover. He stared at her. He blazed this time not at Marie:

"Tell me, have you never loved?" Suddenly released, Sally half faced the audience calmly and proceeded to tell her story. Clifford was supposed to gaze intently at her throughout. Instead he nonchalantly transferred his gaze to Marie, smiling at her at the most tragic parts of the recital.

The audience, a little bewildered at first, caught on to so obvious a situation. The enraged face of the model. The lover, when he should be attentive, walking about the stage, and smiling now and then directly into the upturned face of little Marie Downey of Winesville. A snicker went through it.

Williams, observing from the wings, made a motion of one who washes his hands, and walked away.

They walked silently for a space. "Aren't we going back to the show?" ventured Marie timidly. "Say, have you got the nerve to go back?" John turned on her and Marie saw the measure of his fury. "Makes the whole town laugh at me, and at you—and you want to go back?"

"What do you mean? I couldn't help it. I know he looked at me, but I can't help that." A little sultriness crept into Marie's velvety eyes, and a little hauteur too. The New York actor who was so very nice-looking had looked at her most admiringly.

"Lots of people," added Marie, bridling, "look at me."

"They do, huh? Well, I ain't a gonna stand in their way. Go back and let 'em look at you."

"Oh, Johnnie, you know I don't mean that. I won't go back if you don't. But why should you get mad? I guess maybe he looked at me because I was the only girl in the row. Maybe all actors do that. I couldn't do anything anyway, could I? Let's go back—and sit in the last row, if you like."

"He wouldn't have looked at you, if you hadn't gaped at him all through the act."

"I didn't gape at him," cried Marie furiously, "I was watching the show."

"Didn't gape at him! Ha-ha! That's rich. That's the limit! Didn't gape at him! Your eyes were out of your head, almost. Naturally, he thought you were stuck on him so he tried to start something with you. These actors—they think all they got to do is look at a girl—and I guess they're right too, seeing what saps girls are!"

"Did you call me a sap?" Marie's voice was icy, the last word in malicious politeness. They had reached the gate in front of the grounds of the small Downey

He called—to her—in his most dulcet tones.

Sally turned her face a minute from the audience, long enough to mutter to Clifford's benefit:

"Wait till I get you back stage, you big bum."

His super turned a hair. That pretty kid in the audience was mesmerized! The Great Lover. Yes, on stage—and if anybody cared to know, off too. As for this bunch of yokels, he'd teach them to leave chewing gum around back stage.

He was to turn toward Sally now, and extending his arms, utter his last plea, his last line. He turned deliberately toward Marie. He walked down to the footlights and bent over. He called—to her—in his most dulcet tones:

"Dearly the evil tongues of worms! We two will show the world how great is Love."

A unanimous thrill shot through the audience, and a sigh of amazement rose from it, a gasp so intense, that one almost expected to see it rise palpably to the roof.

The curtain fell. An actress immediately threw herself hysterically on the star. A stage manager dived to the rescue.

Out from the audience sat with open mouths, for a minute. Then Marie, thrilled to the bone, began to applaud feverishly for one last sight of her idol. A wag followed her. The audience became a pandemonium of laughter and applause.

"Attaboy, Marie. You got him going!" called a chap in the balcony.

Marie, turning around in a dazed astonishment, was seized rudely by the hands of John. His blazing eyes looked into hers, and his voice on fire with anger said to her:

"You can't make a fool out of me. Come on! Come out!"

"That's right, John. Tell the lady what you think of her," sang the boys up in the gallery.

The whole town knew each other.

It was no time to talk. To the accompaniment of laughter, yoo-hoo, and loud calls of sympathy, Marie was propelled into the square.

hotel, which Marie's father owned and where she lived.

John withdrew a bit.

"Well," he retorted, "girls are saps when it comes to actors."

"Oh, are they, really now, are they? Well, of course, Mr. John Ross, I wouldn't expect you to have anything further to do with a sap like me. So goodnight—and goodbye."

"Goodbye," said John proudly.

They turned, on their heels smartly, and walked away from each other, in their eyes the tears fighting for admittance, and on their lips the curved, insolent, bitter smiles of quarreling lovers.

CHAPTER II

Although it is not fair to intrude upon the privacy of a lady in her bedroom, Marie Downey could have afforded to forgive this act of Peeping Tom. Dressed as the very looked to her, surveyed from her pillow the morning after her quarrel with John, her mournful eyes yet shone with the sun which forced its way through the dingy hotel room curtains, her delicate lips needed no lipstick, nor her cheeks, flushed with sleep, any rouge. Her freshly broken heart manifested itself, however, in her inability to get up. What was the use? Nothing to look forward to. No use passing the Ross Department Store, where John reigned supreme over a couple of male clerks and one female cashier, at this hour of the morning. So Marie lay in bed and thought:

Of what a pig John was principally. And of how the Advice to the Lovelorn column in the Pittsburgh paper to which her father subscribed said that it was a great mistake to marry a jealous man. And of how her best friend, Dora Mann, might be pressed into service toward a reconciliation. And of how good looking that New York actor was. And of how it would feel like to be an actor's wife, and live, she supposed, on Broadway.

Marie lay in bed and thought:

Texas State Board of Health Weekly News Letter

What People Should Know About Tuberculosis

"What the People Should Know About Tuberculosis," was the subject of an address given recently before the North Texas Medical Association by Dr. C. E. Durham, director of the bureau of vital statistics of the state board of health. Some of the points brought out by him are as follows:

Tuberculosis kills one person every five minutes, or $100,000 annually in the United States. Of this number, Texas furnishes 4,000 to 5,000.

From 1-8 to 1-6 tuberculosis victims are between the ages of 18 to 45, or at the most productive age.

More men die of this disease than women, and more negroes than whites.

From 1904 to 1914, the death rate in the registration area of the United States declined from 200.7 to 146.8 per 100,000.

Estimated financial loss in Texas from tuberculosis is $100,000,000 annually.

Predisposing causes of tuberculosis are weakened physical condition, lack of proper food, colds, influenza, pneumonia, pleurisy, measles, typhoid and bad living conditions.

The commonest early symptoms persistent cold or cough; loss of weight and appetite; run down, tired feeling; persistent pain in the chest; night sweats; blood streaks in sputum; persistent abnormal temperature mornings with slight rise of temperature in the afternoons.

Where any of the above symptoms occur, consult your family physician at once.

To prevent tuberculosis, get plenty of fresh air, outdoor life, sunshine, wholesome food, and avoid overwork, continuous fatigue, and intemperate habits. Have a periodic health examination.

Children are especially susceptible to this disease, and should be kept away from sources of infection.

Abattoirs Are of Advantage to Farmers

Information as to the sanitary and economical advantages of municipal, city owned and controlled abattoirs has been requested of the state board of health by numerous city officials of the state who contemplate the erection of such slaughter houses in the near future.

Sanitary regulations covering the operation and maintenance of abattoirs include inspection of all animals slaughtered; proper disposal of offal; safe method of sewage disposal; adequate water supply; cleanliness of chilling room; storage room for fertilizer; and general sanitary surroundings.

Economical advantages to farmers and others using the abattoir are many, and include service of slaughtering animals at a nominal charge; the use of individual cold storage vats at a cost as low as 10 cents in some instances, which also give the farmer the added advantage of slaughtering his meat supply at any time of the year. Cities in Texas having municipal and county owned abattoirs are Orange, Port Arthur, Brownsville, Paris, Wichita Falls, Beaumont and Laredo.

"Sanitary Squad" to Our State

Under special arrangements with the state board of health, the state "sanitary squad" under the direction of V. M. Ehlers, chief sanitary engineer, will make sanitary surveys of a number of Texas cities that have requested this service.

This squad has just completed a survey of Austin in co-operation with the city commission, and will go from here to Manor and Elgin. The work of the "squad" includes a thorough inspection for health menaces, such as mosquito breeding places and insanitary closets. Equipment is carried for spraying streams and stagnant pools of water with oil, and tools for freeing the edges of streams of grass, weeds, and debris. Gambusia affinis or top minnows will also be supplied for stocking underground cisterns and tanks.

Dairies, food establishments, ice factories, etc., will be given sanitary rating as will also tourist parks and swimming pools. It is confidently expected that the work of these trained sanitarians will result in extended sanitary improvements.

Little Known "Mayor" of Art Colony Dying

NEW YORK—Those to whom Greenwich Village means merely a name for New York mock Bohemia, show place for visitors who get a thrill from synthetic gin in a poorly lighted cellar, provided the place is known as "The Purple Hearse" may not have heard of Dr. Edwin Zimmerman, known as "Mayor of Greenwich Village."

Dr. Zimmerman is dying in New York hospital, bidding farewell to friends of neighbors he has known and helped for nearly half a century since first he moved to the village. Moreover, the doctor, who most frequently told patients that his bill already "had been paid by God", is disposing of all his property, giving it away to the needy, "so that there will be no trouble for others."

The good byes which Dr. Zimmerman says to his friends are written on a pad of paper, for an operation for cancer of the throat which prolonged but could not save his life, has deprived him of speech.

Each day a line of men and women, concealing their sorrow behind cheerful smiles in response to those of Dr. Zimmerman, passes the bed of the dying man. Some receive gifts of his possessions. One relative has been given all the doctor's clothes. Professional friends have received his medical books. Gettysburg college has been given a collection of antiques which includes a walking stick owned and carried by Abraham Lincoln.

ELABORATE PLANS MADE FOR JULY 4TH CELEBRATION AT T. U.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 28.—Elaborate plans are being made for the Fourth of July celebration for the summer school students in the University of Texas Memorial Stadium, according to Dr. M. R. Gitsch, chairman of the summer entertainment committee.

A pyrotechnic display has been arranged which it is expected will be attended by more than 12,000 persons, he said. Within five years there will be more than 50,000 persons in the stadium for this celebration, Dr. Gitsch believes. It is the only thing of its kind in the state, he said. Last year when the first such July Fourth celebration was given some 3,000 persons were expected, but approximately 12,000 actually witnessed the display.

An American company is installing a modern lighting system to aid night driving on the new eight-mile highway between Lima and Callao, Peru.

REVIEW OF BUSINESS CONDITIONS BY THE GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY COMPARES FAVORABLY WITH YEAR AGO

NEW YORK, June 28—As the end of June approaches it becomes increasingly clear that the record of American trade and industry for the half-year will be found to compare favorably with that of any similar period in history, states the current issue of the "Guaranty Survey" published today by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

"In a number of important branches new high records have been established, and in nearly all a considerable degree of stability at high levels has been maintained," the "Survey" continues. "Recent developments have served to emphasize the fact that the recession in business activity since the early part of the year has not only proceeded in an orderly manner, but that it has been distinctly moderate in degree. In most respects the current movement is comparable with that of the spring and summer of last year. Since 1923 these declines in activity, extending from early spring to late summer, have occurred with such regularity that they have come to be regarded as largely seasonal in character.

Business More Active Than Last Year

"The usual indices of general business volumes show that both production and distribution have run considerably above the levels of a year ago.

"The increasing firmness of commodity prices, first apparent in April developed into a definite upturn during May and has continued in recent weeks. The movement of prices suggests a degree of business confidence which, in its bearing on the immediate future, is decidedly encouraging. While it must be recognized that for some weeks seasonal influences will tend to produce further moderate curtailment in a number of important lines, the temper of the business community is by no means such as to warrant the expectation of any drastic or prolonged decline in general activity.

"With inventories low, commodity stocks moderate and money easy there is none of the unsettling factors which usually precede a period of serious business depression in the present situation. The crop factor still remains indeterminate, but with a reasonable realization of its present promise it should be an added constructive influence for the expansion of fall business.

Condition of the Treasury

"For some time it has been apparent that, despite the reduced income tax rates, a large Treasury surplus would be available for retirement of the public debt at the end of the present fiscal year on June 30. With the close of the year approaching, the estimates of the probable amount of the surplus has increased. These optimistic forecasts are based on the fact that the tax receipts in March exceeded the official estimate by some $100,000,000 and that the excess receipts over expenditures during the first eleven months of the fiscal year amounted to $88,900,000, as against $54,000,000 in the corresponding period last year.

"The large Treasury receipts from the reduced tax rates have been mentioned as a possible confirmation of the view that under certain conditions a reduction of rates may produce actual increases in tax receipts. While the lower rates have probably resulted in some re-investment by large tax payers whose funds were formerly placed in tax-exempt securities it is likely that the increased receipts are more largely due to the growing of the country.

"The rapid retirement of the debt thus far is the more remarkable in that it has been accomplished with only a fraction of the financial aid which might have been expected, and which in the future will presumably be derived, from payments on account of the debts of foreign governments to the United States. These payments, whether in cash or in United States Government obligations, are set aside by law for debt retirement. The virtual completion of work of the Debt Funding Commission with the settlement of the last of the large foreign debts marks therefore, a turning point in the process of extinguishing the public indebtedness. If the French agreement is approved there will be available immediately some $200,000,000 a year, and in subsequent years much larger sums, in addition to the amount of the sinking fund, for this purpose.

Factors Affecting Debt Retirement

"Debt retirement in the future will depend upon many factors which can not now be foreseen. In general, however, it may be said that reduction should become easier as time goes on. Each reduction of the principal diminishes the interest charges on the remaining sum. Moreover, the gradual decline in the volume of government securities outstanding tends to raise their price, enabling the Treasury to replace a portion of them with new securities bearing a lower rate of interest. This method has been used very effectively by the Treasury during the period of low money rates in the last two years.

"On the other hand, the recent budgetary surpluses have been due largely to the exceptionally prosperous condition of the country since the recovery from the depression of 1920 and 1921. Such conditions can not be depended upon to continue without interruption. Another factor of uncertainty is the recurring possibility of excessive Congressional appropriations and of insistent demands for further tax reduction. There are already signs of impending agitation for another tax cut in the next session of Congress.

"It is nearly a hundred years since the United States Treasury was ended by the fiscal year 1926. For about twenty-five years immediately preceding the Civil War, however, the obligations never reached any considerable figure. The payment of the Civil War debt was interrupted by the financial distress of the nineties, and this was followed by the financing of the Panama Canal and later the World War.

"There are many reasons for desiring the ultimate extinction, or at least the virtual extinction, of the public debt. While a large internal debt does not reflect national poverty, it does represent an obligation of the great body of taxpayers to a relatively small body of bondholders who are exempt from taxation on the Government obligations—a situation that is socially undesirable. Moreover, the existence of an enormous volume of tax-exempt securities has been found to present serious obstacles to the adoption of an equitable system of tax distribution. A minor consideration is the remote, but nevertheless real, possibility of some upheaval preventing the prompt payment of interest or principle and thus impairing the credit of the Government.

Possibility of Final Extinction

"Secretary Mellon stated in his annual report for 1925 that, at the rate of reduction which has been thus far maintained, that portion of the debt not incurred for the purpose of making loans to the Allies would be completely paid off by 1944. If

SELLS CREAM TO KEEP FARM GOING

Special to The Avalanche

HEREFORD, June 28—S. D. Blackwell, living northeast of Hereford, is making diversified farming pay, and is setting an example for his neighbors to follow. He is selling $50 worth of cream each month and carries a large basket of eggs to town each week. Mr. Blackwell says that this is not his only profit, because he lets each cow raise him a fine calf, and keeps at least one pig for each cow that is milked. The calves, pigs and chickens thrive on skim milk, and require little feed for their development.

Mr. Blackwell started out seven years ago with five heifers, and now has a herd of sixty head, and is milking fifteen at this time. He keeps all the females, and either sells the males as yearlings or trades them for cows or heifers. He also keeps a number of good brood mares on the place.

farm and raises several fine colts each season.

The livestock on this farm are used just as a side line, and Mr. Blackwell is farming 250 acres of land. He has 50 acres of fine wheat, the same amount of oats and has 150 acres of row crops that is looking good. He is planning to exhibit some of his livestock and field crops at the Deaf Smith County Fair September 16-17-18.

The birds you see are called Scissor-tailed Flycatchers. In perching they close their tails, occasionally giving a bee-bird like note. Then they suddenly dart into the air after a fly.

Scissor-tailed Flycatcher

One of their favorite acts is flying up and down in a see-saw fashion opening and shutting their tails while doing so.

They will attack white-necked ravens and other large birds, fighting on their back, screaming and giving vicious assaults.

ASKS WOMEN VOTERS TO SIT STEADY

WASHINGTON, June 28.—An appeal to women voters not to be stampeded into opposing the direct primary because of the Pennsylvania disclosures has been issued by Miss Belle Shewin, president of the National League of Women Voters.

Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania and others have blamed the direct primary for the huge expense here in the recent contest now being investigated by the committee headed by Senator Reed of Missouri.

Although they produce 25,000,000 pairs of shoes a year its people most of whom buy footwear every two years wear out only 20,000,000 a year, and manufacturers are facing a problem.

DAILY MARKETS

New York Finance

By E. WALTER MOCKLER

Written for United News. NEW YORK, June 28.—An advance in the rate for call funds to five percent had some restraining influence upon speculative activities on the stock exchange today, total transactions falling below the 1,000,000 share mark. The rise in the money rate, however, had little important effect upon the course of prices. There is an abundance of money available for credit purposes to alleviate the probability of any eminent hardening in interest charges at the present time.

Price movements were conflicting, particularly among the industrial shares which had recently been in the speculative limelight. Considerable profit taking was encountered during the course of the session, but offerings were absorbed without any important effect upon values. Net changes were rather balanced, although advances were probably more numerous. United States Steel maintained the firm uptone throughout the day, closing at a fractional advance, and General Motors scored a gain of slightly more than 2 points in response to short covering and renewal of speculative buying shortly before the close.

Railroad shares made a further response to the excellent character of earnings reports. A number of statements made public today showing operating revenues during May fully came up to recent predictions and made a favorable comparison with last year's figures even though earnings during May, 1925 were exceptionally good.

There was little of special interest in the foreign exchange market. Sterling bills ruled unchanged despite the continuance of the coal strike. French francs yielded slightly on the report that Premier Cal-laux has brought about the resignation of the governor of the Bank of France. This led to the belief that that country will indirectly use its gold reserve to bolster up the franc.

Commodities were generally quiet and a shade easier. Wheat broke sharply in the late trading, losing nearly 3 cents a bushel.

NATION TODAY BEGINS CELEBRATION OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE WEEK

By S. P. HOLLINGSWORTH (United Press Staff Correspondent) WASHINGTON, June 28.—The nation began today the celebration of American Independence Week, ushering in the 150th birthday of the United States in the family of nations.

The Liberty Bell at Philadelphia was to sound again the notes which a century and a half ago proclaimed the freedom of the Colonists from the crown of England.

At 11:31 a. m. the "echo of the Liberty Bell" made a national observance of the opening ceremony by the pealing of bells in every city town and hamlet across the country.

Patriotic societies joined hands in universal celebration of the occasion which marks the rise of America from 13 struggling and independent states in a new land to become the most powerful nation in the world.

Delegates of the American Revolution here and in other cities met at their headquarters to conduct brief services in honor of the occasion, which signifies as the 100th anniversary of the death of two Revolutionary patriots—Thomas Jefferson and John Adams.

Hon. James M. Beck, former solicitor general of the United States, delivered a patriotic address at the exercises here, while members of Congress were busy in their home districts giving patriotic atmosphere to the event.

Radio broadcasting stations were at a premium to handle the numerous programs arranged to carry out the patriotic program.

TICK OF WATCH LOOT ECHOES FAR

NINE COUNTIES NOW INTERESTED IN TWO MEN HELD FOR BURGLARY

Nine counties besides Lubbock county have announced their interest in J. T. Pickett and Albert Gallimore of Lubbock, held since last Thursday on charges of burglary at Crosbyton.

Dallas is sending an officer here to sift through the bucketful of watches and the two boxes of jewelry found in a house said to have been occupied by the two youths, in an attempt to connect the pair up with a series of nearly forty robberies in the North Texas metropolis.

Three burglary charges were filed yesterday in Lamb county against the two men, Deputy Sheriff Verne Ford says.

Hale, Dickens, Scurry and Bexar are all making investigations which may lead to charges.

Callahan county claims Pickett broke jail here three years ago, and has been a fugitive from justice ever since. Eastland county says he broke jail there.

In the meantime, claimants for the alleged loot recovered by the officers are still appearing. J. C. Bardwell of Plainview yesterday claimed a watch.

RADIO

By WILLIAM J. FAGAN (United Press Radio News Editor) NEW YORK, June 28.—The recent incorporation of Station WEAF as Broadcasting Company of America, Inc., must have sat rather heavily and gloomily upon the advocates of "radio-casting" and "radio-ate."

Many years ago when the trick of throwing around music and speech for all—or as many as had receivers—to pick up, the word broadcast was considered rightly proper. That's just what a transmitter did, according to the radio experts. Then radio became popular and commenced to interest those who had a little more than a degree from the International Correspondence School of a diploma from P. S. 76.

Those operating radio transmitting stations who wanted to be a bit different, publicly men who wanted to hang a story, or something, picked up the "radio-cast" submitted by the purists with avidity. Someone else came along with "radio-ate" and this was adopted by another group. The supporters of "broadcast" were merrily high-tailed all over the map.

Then along came the growth of WEAF from a mere department of the A. T. & T. to a real big boy. "Broadcasting" forms the first word of the corporate title and there is undoubtedly the usual gnashing of molars in the camp of the opposition.

Big buttonholes are vogue in Paris. A railroad in Rio de Janeiro is electrifying forty-five miles of its lines.

CHICAGO, June 27.—"Big Tim" Murphy, the big tube and casing man who hit the top recently in the business, will have to fight if he expects to hold his position as president of the Chicago Tire Dealers' Association.

The picturesque labor leader and three of his cohorts are named in an injunction petition which would restrain them from collecting funds from members or exercising the functions of their offices.

The petition charges that "Big Tim" and his friends had themselves elected after a "rough house" meeting of the members which was not authorized by Charles J. Richmond, the former president.

Tim is trying to make enough money to pay the government a $20,000 fine for robbing the mails and says he has employed "extensive" counsel to fight the injunction suit.

NO!
You can't have your money back!

HE came to the door of the busy housewife to show her an array of silken hosiery. Did she need any? No, she was well supplied. Then an adroit suggestion—wasn't there some one to whom a handsome Gift of this kind would appeal?

To be sure—Cousin Kate's birthday was coming. She'd appreciate a box of hosiery and this was the opportunity to save shopping time. The deposit—(the agent's commission)—was paid.

A long wait followed. Finally, the package arrived—C. O. D. for the balance due. The housewife paid. It had to be paid before she could get the parcel. BUT, to her utter surprise, she discovered the out of 6 pair of hose ordered, 3 were incorrect in size and only 1 of the ordered colors was sent. The other 2 colors substituted were unacceptable. What a fix to be in—the day before Cousin Kate's birthday!

That necessitated a last minute rush to a local dealer where the exact size and the desired colors were obtained in a hose of even quality at a LOWER PRICE! Cousin Kate was not forgotten.

The original hose was returned with a statement of the facts and a request for refund. Back came the answer—"No, you can't have your money back. Make another selection if you wish but, with us, a sale is a sale. Our agent has been paid his commission on your order and you can't expect us to return your money, etc., etc."

Contrast this with the treatment received at the local dealer's where she went to save the day. "Yes, Ma'am," said the dealer, "take this hosiery and if Cousin Kate doesn't like them we'll either change them or gladly give you your money back."
