

Rambles Over the County

J. W. L. COOK
The Leader's Rambling Editor

West and Southwest

We have been taking in the west and the southwest part of the county this week from Quail west to the line of Donley county. Yes, we even crossed over into Donley county and spent the night of the thirteenth with our old time neighbors and friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bales who live just over the county line near McKnight. We never fail to visit this family when we get near them as we have known them since 1881. When they were very young people before they were married.

Mrs. Bales was Miss Mattie Wilcox and is a twin sister to Mrs. G. Y. Capps of near Bowie. When they were school girls they resembled each other so much, that their classmates and teachers could not tell one from the other. Even their best friends would be fooled some times after they became young ladies. They were the daughters of Wilson Wilcox one of the old time settlers of Montague County.

J. C. Bales was born in Georgia but was raised in Texas. He came to Montague county in the early seventies with his father and they settled about five miles from where the city of Bowie now stands. J. C. was raised on that place until he married then and finally bought out the heirs and lived and raised a large family on that place and moved from there to where he now lives, just half a mile from the west line of this county on the Hedley road.

Mr. Bales owns a fine home of 320 acres of land, a nice six room house and fairly good farm buildings. Mr. Bales says he made a very short crop last year. His land is what is called tight land and the dry weather last year burned his crop. He has good land and has raised on his place over one hundred bales of cotton in a season but it was too dry last year.

T. M. Lamb

T. M. Lamb lives two miles west of Quail on the O. T. Trail. Mr. Lamb needs no introduction to the people of Collingsworth County as he has lived here for many years and has served as a Commissioner of the County. Mr. Lamb has lived in this county for 21 years and on his present home twenty years. He is a native of old Kentucky. He says he came to Texas for his health. That he only weighed 135 pounds when he left Kentucky. Mr. Lamb is one man that found that for which he sought. He now weighs 260 pounds and has tipped the beam at 275 pounds. Mr. Lamb has a pretty home. Owns 120 acres of land, a splendid residence and a good barn and other fine improvements. He has a nice home orchard of different kinds of fruits. Mr. Lamb has a grove of catalpa trees growing on the north side of his residence and orchard that serves as a wind break for his place. The grove contains several acres and is a beautiful sight in the spring and summer when the trees are in full bloom and leaf. Mr. Lamb is a man that believes in diversification. He raises most of his living at home. He raises his own meat, has cows for milk and butter, a large flock of chickens and has an incubator which was filled when we were there. We took a peep into the cellar and found it filled with all kinds of good things to eat, fruits, meats and vegetables. His smoke house is well supplied with bacon and great strings of sausage, put up in the old time way and after we left we found one about a yard long in the back of our car and it had as a companion a half gallon jar of sweet pickles. We felt like we had just left a home where we have some good friends. Mr. Lamb says he made a fair crop last year, about an average of the sandy belt. He has plenty feed and corn to run his place. He was still heading kaffir but said it was down pretty bad. He is an old time subscriber to the Leader and set his date up one more year.

Carroll Blevins

We visited the home of Carroll Blevins who lives out from Quail on the T. about two and a half miles southwest. Mr. Blevins is a young man just starting out in life. He is farming one of his father's farms. He has a nice home it is in the sand belt but is fairly good farm. He has a good house and there was a nice large barn. It was burned up last Friday night the 12th of this month. All his feed, corn, cotton seed and harness were destroyed. One mule was pretty badly burned. Mr. Blevins says he don't know how it was fired but has a suspicion that it was set and perhaps

Meeting Called To Discuss Cotton Contest for County: No Definite Plans are Made

Business Men Will Meet In Court House Tuesday Night, March 23

A meeting of the business men of Wellington has been called to meet at the county court house next Tuesday night March 23 to discuss the matter of holding a cotton contest in Collingsworth county. A group of men of Wellington have asked that a meeting be called to pass upon this matter.

In case a contest is held it will be modeled after the state contest that has been held for the past few years by the Dallas News. It is probable that the prizes will be for staple cotton only as this is the kind of cotton that this county needs to produce. It is desirable to establish Wellington as a long staple market in 1926 and a cotton contest for long staple cotton will do much to bring this about.

Some have suggested in case the contest is held, the contest be limited only to those farmers who have as much planted in feed as in cotton and who are raising their own chickens and hogs and producing enough milk and butter for their family needs. This will penalize no one, but it will be offering a reward to those who practice diversification, which is the great need of Collingsworth County today.

In case the contest is held, C. C. Stinson, county agent will be active in directing the work and seeing that the regulations and specifications are adhered to. F. O. Masten, who is very interested in seeing this contest held has offered to stay out of it in case any farmers feel that he has a head start because of his two years experience in competing for the state prize.

All business men are urged to be present at the meeting which will be held next Tuesday.

PLATFORM FOR UNLOADING CARS BEING BUILT AT DEPOT

A platform is being erected just east of the depot measuring eighty feet long, ten feet wide and four feet high. This platform will be used for unloading freight of all kinds. The agent, Mr. S. G. Henry considers this addition as being one of the most essential improvements that could have been made at the station. He said they had been very badly handicapped for some time as they could unload only one or two cars at a time, while now with the new platform four to five cars can be unloaded at one time.

Y. E. MITCHELL WINS PRIZE AT NOWLIN GROCERY STORE

The merchandise guessing contest at Nowlin Grocery Store closed last Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, with a total of 130 guesses, with an estimation of articles in the window, ranging in guess from 100 to 9,000. The exact count in the window was 420 grocery articles. Y. E. Mitchell was awarded first prize for guessing 425. W. M. Thompson was awarded second prize for guessing 415. Richard Glass won third prize with a guess of 414.

J. L. CUMMINGS SAYS BROWN COUNTY IS IN GOOD SHAPE

J. L. Cummins of the Salt Fork community was doing business in Wellington Saturday. Mr. Cummings is just back from a trip to Brown County, Texas. He says things are looking good in that part of the state. Some of the farmers were painting corn. They have had good rains and the land is in fine condition.

robbed before it was fired as he found one of his horse collars some distance from the barn lot. The next day Mr. Blevins says he made a fair crop last year about an average of that country. Mr. Blevins is a native of this country. He was born here 22 years ago and has lived here all his life. He was married to a Miss Guinn a few years ago and has a little tot of a boy. This little fellow was born in the same house in which his father was born. We left well pleased with our visit to this young couple.

M. L. HALL WILL HAVE HUNDRED ACRES IN HIS NURSERY SOON

M. L. Hall who is establishing a fruit farm and nursery some ten miles southwest of Wellington was in town Monday and visited the Leader office. Mr. Hall is from Parker County. He says this 20 acres that he is planting to fruit trees will consist of grapes, plums and peaches. He says this country has been tested and tried for these varieties of fruits and they will grow here as well as in any part of the state. He will add 75 to 80 acres of orchard to this 20 acre in the near future. He has had many years experience along these lines of work. Mr. Hall stated his intentions were to promote the fruit growing industry and in the near future establish a canning factory in Wellington which he said would pay big as this country has a large territory west of here that will grow fruits.

Church of Christ Meeting Now On

The Church of Christ meeting which is being conducted by Minister C. McClung, is progressing in fine fashion. The meeting opened last Thursday with a large crowd in attendance. And since the opening larger crowds have been coming for each service and it is believed the meeting will do much to rejuvenate religious life in Wellington by the time it is over.

B. R. Bassell who is in charge of the singing services has developed a splendid choir which is doing a great work in adding to the success of the meeting.

Old Gray Mare Must Be Kept in Texas A. B. Smith Urges Ex-Service Men to Join Legion

Editor, Leader,

Dear Sir:

We believe that the public now know that they will receive their money's worth at the banquet Friday night, March 26 and the proceeds of same will be a good start for the County Library, but we want the public to learn more about the aims and the ideals of the American Legion, we want them to see why it is absolutely necessary that the present membership be increased at least four fold.

From State Headquarters we receive ultimatums in regard to membership drives. In Austin March 14th the State Commander informed us that the ultimatum he had been sending out were mild: that which he wanted to tell us could not be sent through the mails, consequently after the Chaplain had asked the Lord to have mercy on our souls, the State Commander unloaded on us. It would be unfair to the ex-service men and Legion members if we, who have absorbed all of this, did not pass on at least a part of same to the public in general and ex-service men in particular.

Boiled down to meet newspaper demands; the American Legion of Texas, as received a challenge from the American Legion of Oklahoma. "A membership drive was started in each state and the state that secured the greatest number of new members would have as their mascot an Old Gray Mare. Incidentally the mascot of the American Legion is an Old Gray Mare, and to be

D. C. D. Filling Station Robbed Friday Night

The D. C. D. Filling Station was broken into Friday night or early Saturday morning and approximately $900.00 worth of casings and tubes taken. The thieves pried open the door with a crowbar and entered the station. Fifty-four casings were missing. J. R. Darrow, who is partner of Judge Holton in the station says that some few automobile accessories may have been taken, but that he has not found any of these missing.

Saturday at noon the officers of Collingsworth County had found no clue to the robbery.

Mother of Harvey Duncan Dies in Oklahoma Sat.

Buried at Bowie in Montague County Where She Once Lived

Harvey Duncan, who lives five miles southwest of Wellington was called to Wilson, Oklahoma last Saturday to the bedside of his mother, who died Saturday morning.

Mrs. Duncan was sixty-nine years old. She was an old resident of Montague county, Texas. She had lived in that county for about forty years. Her husband, D. H. Duncan died at Saloma in Montague County about 12 years ago.

She leaves eight children to mourn her death, three boys and five girls. The boys are Dr. John W. Duncan of Jordanine, Texas, Harvey Duncan of Wellington and Lee Duncan of Bowie. The girls are Mrs. Dora Cameron of Wilson, Okla., Mrs. J. W. Robertson of Wichita Falls, Mrs. Alice Sheets of Montague County, Mrs. Sophie Hall of Montague County and Mrs. Moll's Nixon of Oklahoma.

Mrs. Duncan was buried at Bowie, Texas last Monday. All the children were present except Mrs. Dora Cameron of Wilson, Okla., who could not be present on account of sickness in her family. After the funeral Mr. Duncan returned to Wellington. His brother Dr. John accompanied him home to Wellington and left for home Wednesday.

After writing the above we notice in the Fort Worth Star Telegram that Dr. John Duncan and his sister, Mrs. J. W. Robertson with her son, D. D. Robertson were in a car wreck near Electra. The car turned over injuring all three but not seriously. All were in the hospital but will recover.

M. B. Oates Makes Survey Of Resources of this County

SENIOR PLAY WILL BE PRESENTED ON TUESDAY NIGHT

Tuesday evening, March 23 the Senior class of the Wellington High School will favor the public with one of the best comedies of the season, "Much Ado About Betty."

For fear you might mistake Lin Leonard, the hero, for Richard Talmadge, Mr. E. Z. Ostrich for Ben Turpin, Dr. McNutt for Charlie Chaplin or Betty for Gloria Swanson, we will inform you ahead of time that all contracts with California Stars are cancelled and instead we are going to use local stars from our class.

As one onlooker expressed it "You haven't seen anything until you see "Much Ado About Betty." So lets "pack up our troubles" and have one night of fun.

Help your school and at the same time let your school help you.
THE SENIORS

Vaudeville Coming To Rialto Tuesday

The Clark Oldfield Vaudville Co., will be at the Rialto Theatre Wednesday and Thursday for a two day run. Besides Oldfield and Drew, who will appear in a miniature musical comedy there will be dancing selections by native Hawaiian dancing girls who will also give exhibitions of the Charleston.

This performance is a clean show full of many mirth provoking scenes and situations.

PECRAM BOY GETS ANKLE BROKEN IN BASKETBALL GAME

The young son of Jim Pecram of the Pleasant Hill school had the misfortune to get his foot badly broken last Monday while playing basket ball. He was brought to town and the joints put back in place and he was resting easily Wednesday.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

The following marriage licenses were issued at the County Clerk's office since the past ten days:

Oscar Laycock and Miss Ruby Elroad, both of Collingsworth County.

Louis Meredith and Myrdell Jackson, both of Collingsworth County.

Dawson Leonard and Miss Ruth Rhodes, both of Collingsworth County.

Large Increase in Number of Tenants Shown by Figures of Denver Agent

M. B. Oates, agricultural agent for the Fort Worth and Denver railway was in Wellington last Thursday morning making a survey of the resources of this county and getting an estimate of the development of the section during the past five years. From Wellington he went to Shamrock and on to Wheeler where similar estimates will be made and from there he went over to Pampa.

He said his survey was no indication that the Denver would build a road through this territory, but that the Denver was keeping up with the development of this section and that it was constantly securing that information which is necessary before determining whether or not a railroad should be built.

Mr. Oates declared that he was surprised and gratified to see the growth in the business and residential section of Wellington since he was here three years ago. The whole north side has filled up and much other business development has been done. Over $200,000 worth of residence property has been constructed.

While the production has increased in splendid fashion, there was one trend in Collingsworth County that Mr. Oates deplored. In 1910 this county had 806 farms. Of this number 466 were land owners and 340 were tenants. In 1920 there were 561 owners and 564 tenants. And in 1925 there were 572 owners and 1030 tenants. This striking increase in the number of renters as compared with the number of land owners is attributed by Mr. Oates to the extensive production of cotton. Mr. Oates is a firm believer in the dairy cow as the foundation upon which to build a prosperous farming section.

He said there was nothing wrong with tenant farming, but a large class of tenant farmers indicates a lack of permanent development. He did say, however, that Collingsworth County is better off in this respect than many other counties in this section of the state.

IMPROVEMENTS ARE BEING MADE AT THE ELLIS DRY GOODS CO.

J. B. Ellis Dry Goods Store has made improvements to the extent of tearing down the awning on the east and south side of the building and replacing it with new material consisting of wood and rubberoid. Mr. Kilpatrick, the manager, stated that he intended to have the windows made over to look like new. He states that if his plans are carried out, when the building is completed the J. B. Ellis store will be one of the nicest in the town.

Gun Club to Stage Big Trap Shoot

A. V. Cocke, local sportsman says that a large crowd of Wellington gun men plan to attend the gun shoot which will be held at Shamrock Tuesday, March 23.

The shoot will be held at the traps of the Shamrock gun club located one half mile west of Shamrock near the ball park. A free lunch will be served to those taking part.

No entrance fee will be charged, but each shooter will be required to pay for his own birds.

A long list of prizes consisting of valuable articles of merchandise, has been made possible through the courtesy of Shamrock merchants.

There are some strong gun clubs in this section, each of which boasts some good marksmen with the shotgun and the competition is expected to be of the keenest.

A. J. Laycock was in town Saturday on business.

Text of Wilson's Speech Delivered At Cross Roads

One of the foremost problems before the nation today, is not its property or wealth, but its children. It is a question of momentous interest, not only to legislators and statesmen but to you and to me, to ascertain how the children of the present shall be trained and influenced that they will become the men and women of the future, whose examples and powers shall be made a blessing to the world.

Education is a sacred trust, a heritage which grows and multiplies with use. Education is a process intended to fit the individual to become a valuable and useful member of society. Unless it accomplishes this object it has been vain expenditure of time and effort. In many ways we have changed the entire process of education, but the problem we must constantly keep in view is not the school process and system, but the life for which we educate the boys and girls of today.

The ideals of the public school should be ideals of service rather than mere ideals of scholarship. Scholarship is always important, but mere scholastic attainment without personality, character and efficiency is an empty husk. The most caustic criticism that can be made of any public school is that it aims merely to make scholars of its pupils, rather than training them for useful service in the world.

Our public schools should be schools of service, accessible alike to the high and low, the rich and the poor and destined, if properly appreciated and fostered to produce influences which will prove helpful and vivifying to a community.

I am glad that a new type of rural schools is involving and that a new conception of the functions of the rural school is growing. I think that I am not very much mistaken in my belief that the rural school in addition to its duty to its pupils will ultimately find one of its greatest fields of useful endeavor among those people of the community who do not attend school and for whom the school funds are not appropriated. It is by its work in the community that the school will find its strongest claim upon popular education and its greatest field for vital service.

But there is also another reason why the school should exert an influence upon the social life of the community. Rural life seems often dull, uninteresting to our country boys and girls, and as a final result many of them and not a few older ones have left the farms and gone to the cities. Therefore just as long as the country fails to provide good educational opportunities the boys and girls will continue to go to the cities in large numbers.

These facts naturally lend importance to the question—What therefore shall be done to make living in the rural districts tolerable to our country youths? The solution devolves upon the school. Upon the teacher rests the immediate responsibility of leadership in all that may be done. They must secure the co-operation of the ministers, of the parents and citizens, in devising means and ways of bringing the young people together often for social enjoyments, mental recreation even if merely for good fellowship. The boys and girls will do their part if only the proper leadership and encouragement are afforded them.

All this implies that the school building is to be used for something else beside the ordinary school day instruction; its doors are to be thrown open to the community. Special classes for farmers, evening lectures, debates, all should be organized; in brief, the building should be made a rural social as well as educational center—the center of all community activities for rural instruction, progress and entertainment. When this transpires we may look for a general improvement in rural conditions and the school and community will be one in spirit and in ideals.

Our free rural public school system is just as much an integral part of our free government, essential to its life and prosperity as the school systems of our larger towns and cities. This fact was recognized by the far seeing statesmen who founded this nation.

William Penn declared that the only way to preserve free government was by education of all of its citizens.

Let us cut down expenditures for luxuries, let us reduce appropriations wherever it can be done with safety, but for the perpetuity of those ideals and principles which are nearest to the hearts of the American people, there can be no backward step in the development of a strong, intelligent, patriotic citizenry, upon whom must depend the preservation of the things for which we have made such sacrifice in blood and treasure. The hope of American democracy is in her free public schools. To elevate their standards and promote their efficiency should be the purpose of every American citizen.

SOPHOMORES ENTERTAIN

Thursday morning the Sophomores gave a delightful program in chapel. This was one of the programs being presented by the classes.

First the student body sang America and then followed the impersonation of the Faculty. Meritt Durfee as Mr. Green came first and he stressed the points of culture and high learning. Then Thelma Masten as Miss Lillie Steelman with her pencil and grade book began to check up on the absentees. Miss Whitely was perfectly imitated by Jane Pedigo and how she created law and order. Irma Clifton was the very image of Miss Colthrop assigning the lesson for the next day. Opal Farrar for Miss Hicks was the same quiet and calm as Miss Hicks, telling someone to go after an excuse for being absent. Miss Harle was well imitated by Allen Barnett, taking magazines away from the boys and chewing gum away from the girls. Richard Glass had the honor of acting Mr. Boston with his commanding voice and telling the students they were falling down in their work. This was enjoyed very much.

A quartette by Richard Glass, Irma Clifton, Wade Mahan and Thelma Masten was next on the program. This was received very well and they were asked to sing again. Last, Richard Glass gave a reading. This has been the best program so far. May the Freshmen beat this.

GOOD DISCUS THROWER

Last week when the boys were at work throwing the discus one of the boys gave a very good sail.

Velman Warrick threw the discus about ninety-six or eight feet. We think this is pretty good for a high school. Fat Powell did good at putting the shot, his farthest was 39 feet.

GLEANERS SUNDAY SCHOOL CLASS HAS A BANQUET

Thursday night the Gleaners Sunday School class entertained friends with a lovely banquet. The guests were first addressed by the toastmistress, Lena Mae Smart. Miss Lillie Steelman, teacher, gave the welcoming address. This was responded to by Rev. Lem Hodges. After the cocktail came a delicious plate of meats and salads and hot rolls. Then Miss Hettie Lou Brantley gave a toast to the visitors and Miss Vera Calthorp responded. Miss Coltharp stressed the meaning of the Gleaners Class. Miss Viola Hudson gave a piano solo which was enjoyed very much. Lera Marie McQueen told the future of the class and that it was to be a very bright future. Miss Oletha Singley gave a reading and it was received well.

The following people were present: Miss Lillie Steelman, Troy Fuller, Letha Kelly, Raymond Powell, Lera Mae McQueen, Roscoe Sasser, Oletha Singley, Orval Couch, Hal Gray, Virgie Langford, Miss Calthorp, Adice Watson, Julius Haralson, Lola Ricketts, Louise Willis, Mayme Lou Fuller, Arthur Wells, Lloyd Powell, Rev. Howell, Velma Harrel, Velma Pritchard, Antney Alford, Lu Vera Tarter, Vernon Stafford and Lena Mae Smart, toastmistress.

Everybody enjoyed themselves immensely and went away with an empty head and a full stomach.

Weeks

Nearly every week in the year has been set aside as some special week. There are weeks for fire prevention, boy scouts, educational, national armament, dental health, clean-up, etc. The only week that has failed to appear is rest week for tired bank clerks. The reason it failed was because the bank clerks thought it might eliminate their holidays and they already get three months off out of every year.

There is nothing wrong with these special weeks. They are all devoted to worthy causes, and they have advanced these causes in material fashion; but there is a danger of so many weeks being set aside for one purpose and another that the force of the special week will be lost.

If there is one week left that could be set aside for something, it should be designated as "Nothing Week." During this week no special drives would be conducted. It would be used to commemorate no worthy achievements, and it would have no special significance except that it would enjoy a tremendous distinction of a week in which the public could loaf and invite its soul.

Clean-Up Week

And having delivered the above contribution, it is time to consider one of the oldest and most valuable special weeks on the calendar. That is clean-up week. The week from March 28 to April 3 has been designated for this purpose. It is a week that should be observed.

It starts out with a tentative program of health sermons for the first day. That conforms to the teachings of the Master who emphasized the importance of health in any life. Monday of that week will be health examination day. Health examinations are now regarded as one of the most important weapons that can be employed against such fatal disorders as high blood pressure, heart diseases, cancer and nephritis.

Tuesday is the general clean-up day in which all rubbish and refuse will be cleared away and paint, varnish and white wash will be applied in liberal quantities.

Wednesday is safe milk and water day. Thursday child health and birth registration day and Friday, is pure food day. Saturday has been set aside for one of the most important matters. That is rural sanitation. Rural sections were once considered more healthful than the cities, but it is not so now. It is suggested that each school district have a community meeting where methods of prevention against diseases should be discussed.

The Real Beginning

It is so hard to write anything about Spring without becoming trite, for about it many beautiful and worthy poems and prose descriptions have been written. Still there is something in the budding grass, the blooming trees and the awakening earth that demands expression. The reviving life rejuvenates the spirits of man.

Although new resolutions are made with the mind at the beginning of the calendar year, they are made in the heart in the spring. The body and soul receive a new stimulus at this time. The spring is the beginning of the new year, even if the calendar makers do say it starts on the first day of January.

Writing

It's great to be a writer,
And sit up late at night,
And pull your wool, and throw the bull,
And write and write and write.

That verse which was handed to us by a good friend no doubt expresses the opinion of many persons concerning the conductor of a column like this, but it does not necessarily mean that the writer thinks so. The man who wrote that was hinting at the same truth expressed by the man who said "It is a great life—if you don't weaken." The great unwashed may wonder what part of the poem corresponds to the latter part of this statement. Well, the catch comes in the last sentence in the poem. It IS great to be a writer if you CAN write and write and write.

Two great obstacles that confront all writers except those of genuine genius are expressed in that triple repetition of two words. The hardship of composing words, phrases and sentences in such fashion that they will interest other people is one that brings worry to many a would-be writer. That is suggested in the third line of the poem, but the pain from the self-inflicted hair pulling is forgotten if the aspirant finally sets black marks on white paper that have the semblance of literature.

But after this art has been mastered there is yet another difficulty. It is vulgarly called "running out of soap." And it is aesthetically called "lack of inspiration." Now the cause of this valuable exposition is that a certain party ran out of soap about the middle of this column, and it is against the rules of this newspaper to run any clippings in this particular space. No chagrin is experienced over this lack of inspiration, however, for there is little danger that anyone will read this far and there is little need to worry about what they will read below this sentence for Scott says this is enough to fill up.

Our State Tree

BY MRS. PHEBE K. WARNER

A few days ago is was decided to have a nut salad for dinner at our house. Accordingly I rang the phone and asked the buyer for the family to please go to the grocery store and get some nuts.

"What kind of nuts do you want?" came back over the phone.

"Oh, just anything so they are nuts." Please note that answer. Did you ever say that.

In a few minutes the buyer of the house came home and said, "Got something extra fine for you. Bet you can't guess where these nuts come from."

And sure enough I couldn't. Nobby but a NUT merchant would ever have guessed.

No, they didn't come from Texas. Nor California nor anywhere in the whole U. S. A. They came from the Island of Madagascar, ten thousand miles away, over in the Indian Ocean, down below the equator off the coast of Southern Africa. Think of it, folks! Nuts for sale in a grocery store in a little town in Texas from Madagascar.

Now you are wondering what kind of nuts they were. Well, they were, as nearly as I can describe them, oversize Madagascar English Walnuts, raised in Africa. They were much larger than our American English Walnuts. This gave you the advantage of having a much larger pile of shells with which to build the morning fire where you don't have gas. We got enough shells out of that pond to almost make the fire for the next morning, and thus saved splitting kindling for one day and all for forty cents.

As for the interior of these Madagascar nuts—well just imagine how you would look and feel after a voyage like that and you will have a vision of the interior of a Madagascar English walnut after ten thousand miles trip. Rather gaunt and shriveled and in many cases entirely dried up. In fact, many of them reminded you of the departed "colonel." Then came the too late question. "Why didn't you get English walnuts?" "Because there wasn't any." "Then why didn't you get TEXAS PECANS." "Wasn't any."

And here is the thought we would have you to get in this little homemade story: WHY were those Madagascar walnuts on the market in the little town of Claude, Texas instead of TEXAS PECANS? During the Christmas holidays we had purchased the most wonderful pecans ever on the market, grown in Texas. They were almost as large as English walnuts with a much thinner shell and a lot more meat and a far better flavor. They were rich and fresh and life-giving and raised in Texas.

I do not know what you will think about this story. But I believe we women who make the salads in Texas and bake the cakes and prepare the food three times a day for 5,000,000 people are very much to blame for this condition. Too many of us have said "Oh just anything, so they're nuts." When our husbands and our grocers asked us what kind of nuts we wanted. And consequently we get just what we ask for. "Just anything, so they're nuts." What do you suppose it would mean to pecan culture and the pecan business if every one of the million housewives in Texas asked for "Nuts raised in Texas" when they phone for nuts to cook with? It may seem like a little thing but it would be a mighty loyal and patriotic thing to do.

Here's another lesson I learned from those Madagascar nuts: "What did you pay for these primeval fruits of the African forest?" Answer: "Forty cents a pound, the same as Texas pecans." Now will somebody explain to the million Texas cooks how this happens? Why does a pound of Texas raised pecans cost just the same in Texas as a pound of walnuts raised in Madagascar? Of course, they are worth more. But I am wondering what Texas pecans should sell in Madagascar. Or do you suppose the Madagascar "Eat it Raised in Madagascar?"

But there is another reason why the million women of Texas should be more loyal to the PECAN. The pecan tree is our state tree. Did you know that? Have you one planted in your yard or on your farm in honor of Texas?

Did you know that Texas is the only state in the Union whose legislators had named a NUT tree as their State Tree? Now, don't get cute and say "That's because there are so many nuts in the State Legislature." But it is because the pecan tree is one of the most beautiful, one of the most useful, one of the oldest and one of the most widely distributed trees in the State. The pecan trees of Texas were planted long, long years ago by God Himself and they are today one of the crowning glories of His handiwork on the earth.

Mr. A. W. Woodruff of San Saba is one of the biggest pecan boosters in Texas. If every county had even one pecan enthusiast the world would soon find out about of Texas pecans. Here is a native food that dates back for centuries. Texas is rich in this natural wealth. Every school boy should know more about the pecan industry in Texas. And every citizen, of whatever creed or color should take a vital interest in our Texas Tree.

Lets prove we do know our Texas Tree by planting at least one for every home in Texas this year. That will be doing something for the birds and the children and the people a hundred years from now. How long do you suppose God spent raising these grand little pecan trees for us? Should we cut them down or let one die without replacing it? There will be fifty million people here a hundred years from now to enjoy these trees. And the ones God planted were intended for these future citizens the same as for you. These trees are just loaned to us for our day and generation. What right has anybody to destroy one of God's food trees? Lets wake up to our natural blessings in Texas and create a demand for Texas-raised nuts in the markets not only of Texas but of the world as other nations have done in Texas. Here is a job for the forestry chairman in every club. The consumption of Texas pecans will be controlled by our Texas women who prepare the meals for our people. And we are the people who can build up the pecan business in Texas if we will all work together and always ask first for "Nuts raised in Texas."

Whiskey Always Wins.

A man and his wife were found in their San Antonio home with their throats slashed—both dead. A jug partly filled with whiskey told the tale. They became intoxicated and fought, hacking each other to death. Stories somewhat like this may be found in the papers almost every day. It is impossible to drink whiskey and come out ahead or with any credit to yourself. Nearly always it brings disgrace to you or to others. It impoverishes its victims, financially, physically, morally and mentally, often leaving them bankrupts in all these qualities. Most people know this and yet there are some so foolish as to persist in the use of something they know may be the cause of their ruin. If the people would only let the dangerous stuff alone, they would be far happier, and the bootleggers would have to quit business. There are enough who haven't the sense to do this to make bootlegging, with all its risks, profitable.

Law Enforcement Comes High.

The people are paying enormous sums in taxes of all kinds and, despite the cuts in income taxes, taxation is getting higher. It is costing the country entirely too much to make the laws and to enforce them. Our courts of all kinds, our penitentiaries, our policing and sleuthing are out of all proportion to what they should be. The courts are expensive largely because of the technicalities they have built up around the application of the laws; our penitentiaries are models of mismanagement and inefficiency; our policing is about as ineffective as it could possibly be. The laws are not enforced; they are not treated with respect. Criminals no longer fear the law, and think that their chances for escaping punishment for law violations are so small as not to be worth considering. Few of them dread jails or penitentiaries and some of them enjoy the change from outside activities to inside peace. Then, the hope of pardon outweighs the fear of punishment. The safety of a people depends upon a fear of the law.

Texas District Bonds Voided.

In refusing to reopen the Archer County road district bond case, the United States Supreme Court has finally settled the validity of road bonds of that kind, not only in Texas, but possibly in numerous other states, where statutes similar to those in Texas have been passed. It is hoped that Texans will make good on their bonds that are outstanding in road districts by some kind of a county reissue and refunding. In some counties, though, any steps to protect the bondholders will find opposition according to some indications that have been seen. Some corporations have already claimed that their corporate interests require that they should refuse to pay the district road taxes. Perhaps so, but if so, some way should be found to make payment imperative. There can be no moral justification for the repudiation of a debt made in good faith, either on the part of an individual or by a community or state. Common honesty demands that holders of Texas' bonds be protected.

Former Minnesota Treasurer Indicted.

Minnesota grand juries believe in protecting the state treasury. A former treasurer is charged with unlawfully reaching his hands into the treasury and getting away with $2,000 belonging to the people of the state. When the people become so interested in government that they demand that a public office shall be regarded as a sacred trust and refuse to tolerate any kind of pilfering of public funds, there is some hope held out that the state's officials may remain uncorrupted. The only way to show disapproval of official dishonesty is to prosecute all offenders, as Minnesota is doing in the case cited.

A member of the Texas board of control, who has visited the school, reports that the Texas Technological College at Lubbock will need $6,000,000 to complete its present building and equipment program. He does not think that the next legislature will be asked for all this sum, but that $1,000,000 will be sought to complete the administration building. Texas schools are asking for large sums, but every dollar spent in educating the youth of the state will mean that ultimately much less will be needed for law enforcement and prison support.

With nearly $1,500,000 with which to build and maintain an astronomical observatory, left the University of Texas in the will of W. J. McDonald of Paris, Texas, the university will doubtless have the greatest observatory in the world, or at least the equal of any. A telescope is being built at Paris, France, twice as large as any now in existence, and no doubt Texas' University will see if it can not eclipse anything now being undertaken. It is stated that the "and soon to be available will be" to build the strongest instrument human ingenuity can construct.

The TALE of KIDDIE KATYDD

By Arthur Scott Bailey

SPREADING THE NEWS

WHEN Freddie Firefly reached the swamp he found that the Frog family's singing party had already broken up. But luckily, Mr. Frog the tailor was the last one to leave. He was still poised on the bank of the sluggish stream, ready to plunge into the water and swim away, when Freddie Firefly dropped down upon a cat-tail and called him by name, flashing his light frantically so that Mr. Frog would be sure to notice him. "Wait a moment!" cried Freddie. "I've something to say to you!" "Out with it, then!" said Mr. Frog. "My time is valuable, you know. I ought to be back in my shop this moment; for I promised Paddy Muskrat I'd make him a policeman's uniform by tomorrow morning. And I haven't begun it yet." "Why not?" asked Freddie, forgetting—for the moment—his own errand. "He wants brass buttons," explained the tailor. "And I couldn't get any until tonight." "But couldn't you go ahead with-

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THERE'S nothing like a good old stove. Buy what you will, say what you will. The more I live, the more I rove, The more I find, when days are chill, The only thing to warm you through Is something you can get up to.

A furnace, yes, it's mighty nice; But it's down cellar hid away. When you come in all snow and ice You want to see the firelight play, The heat that's right, the heat that's real, You have to see as well as feel.

There's something cordial in the light That glitters through the isinglass. It lends a comfort to the night. And redder makes the ruddy lass And fairer makes the fairest home To any man who has to roam.

There's nothing like a good old friend. They're much like stoves, it seems to me. Whatever wisdom books may lend, You want a friend that you can see, Some hand to touch, a faith to feel, The kind of friendship that is real.

However wise the wisest men, However great they may appear, When you're in difficulty, then You want a friend you needn't fear, When cold and weary, weak and blue, A friend that you can get up to. (© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

out them?" Freddie Firefly inquired. "Certainly not!" replied Mr. Frog. "I see you don't know much about making a policeman's suit. You start by laying the buttons in a row on the ground; and then you sew the cloth onto them. . . . That's my own invention—that method," he added with an air of pride. "And now, what was it you wanted to say to me?"

"I don't believe there's any use of my telling you, after all," Freddie Firefly replied. "You're going to be so busy that you won't have time to do an errand for me. I wanted you to give Mr. Crow a message."

"Yes—I'll be altogether too rushed to bother with it," said Mr. Frog. "I expect to be on the jump all night—and most of tomorrow, too."

"This message," Freddie Firefly went on, "was something about Kiddie Katydid. I found out his secret tonight. And I thought Mr. Crow ought to know about it."

Now, Mr. Frog was all ready to leap into the water. But when Freddie said that, the tailor promptly changed his mind.

"Kiddie Katydid's secret!" he repeated in a tone of amazement. "You don't mean to say you've discovered what it was that Katy did?"

"Never mind!" said Freddie. "I don't want to trouble you, Mr. Frog. I know you're too busy to bother your head with such things."

"Tut, tut, young man!" Mr. Frog cried. "I see you have something important to tell me. And since that is the case, I'll manage somehow to deliver your message to Mr. Crow, even if I have to disappoint a customer. Always oblige a friend! That's my motto!" said Mr. Frog.

"Very well, then!" Freddie Firefly replied. "I'll say what I was going to; but it doesn't concern that Katy person you just mentioned."

"Oh, it doesn't," the tailor echoed. "Then I don't know that I care to listen to you, after all. I thought you were going to explain about that mysterious lady that Kiddie's always singing about." He was sadly disappointed. And once more he turned toward the creek.

The Hotel Stenographer

By Roe Fulkerson

THE Hotel Stenographer asked. "What's eating you?" sighed the House Detective, grinning.

"The fact that I am a woman," answered the girl. "I am going to a swell dance, Kelly, given by the Amalgamated Association of Radio Expert Salesmen at Harmony hall. There will be dress suits and punch and everything."

"These radio people are hot sketches, Kelly. I am apt to meet my fate and get married. I was thinking that if I met some sleek-haired boy who wants me to share his radio set and I married him I would have to decide whether we would put our aerial in a bungalow in the suburb or live in a flat."

"I have had so much of living in self-contained apartments where the ice box is under the bed and the bathtub turns around and is a phonograph on the other side, that I am sick unto death of 'em."

"Living in the country will be all right, Kelly, when we get good roads everywhere, but it's a lot of trouble to get to and from a suburban bungalow, in the mud. Sometimes it rains before they get 'em paved and they wash down, and even after they are built you are likely to have trouble."

"Marle Murphy married a dancing instructor at the Odeon and they bought a big police dog and a bungalow. While they were in the back yard figuring on a garden, they tied the dog to the bungalow steps. A cat came along and the dog ran after her, and they lost the house and the dog both. But I suppose those are the kind of things you have to expect when you own a home of your own. These troubles have taken most of the pleasure out of tonight's dance. If I meet that sleek-haired radio confidence man who is to make me happy, I wonder if I will be."

Corn Yield Problem Is

One of Soil Fertility

Corn growers face a problem of raising general soil fertility if they are to redeem production from the decline which depletion of organic matter in the soil has brought about, according to Prof. R. I. Throckmorton, head of the department of agronomy at the Kansas State Agricultural college.

General fertility, Professor Throckmorton pointed out, can be increased by growing corn in rotation with such crops as alfalfa, clover, and soy beans; by returning all manure and crop residue to the soil; and by good tillage methods.

LUTIE

Mrs. John Woodhouse died at ten o'clock Friday morning, March 12 at the Baptist Hospital in Wellington, following an illness of only a few days.

Funeral services were held the following day at 3 o'clock at the Baptist Church. Interment was made in the Wellington cemetery.

Mrs. Woodhouse was formerly Miss Ola Davis. She, with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Davis lived in this community for some time. They moved from this place several years ago to their home in Wellington. She had many friends here who mourn her untimely death. We wish to join with the host of friends in extending our deepest sympathy to her loved ones.

Lewis Meredith and Miss Myrtle Jackson were united in marriage on Friday afternoon, March 12 by Justice of Peace H. K. Willingham at the home of the brides parents, near Lutie. The writer wishes for this couple a long and prosperous journey through life.

The baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Pound has been critically ill with pneumonia. It is thought her condition is improving.

Raney Harkins and family left last week for Ardmore where they will visit relatives and friends for a few days.

Austin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Deger is suffering from a severe attack of appendicitis. He has been removed from the home here to the Wellington Hospital where it is thought an operation will be necessary.

Post Commander Says Texas Must Win Legion Contest

Everyone Is Wanted at the Big Banquet Friday
Night, March 26th

ed by love, loyalty and pride in their state and their desire to wish off on Texas one of their donkeys. Donkeys, that's a decent word we have been trying to think about ever since we started this article.

Now, to the public: If you have been sold on the American Legion idea, if you want to see us win the contest and keep the Old Gray Mare in Texas, if you want to see grow up in your midst a membership of ex-service men who will have the interests of the city and county next to their hearts, then do not do like the people of Oklahoma are doing, not now at least, do not look daggers at a man who is not a paid up member. We have many ex-service men in this county who will join, but in the past they did not know who to see to take their applications. Also we have some ex members who have just been waiting to hand in their checks and perhaps some who do not have the money to pay the State and National Dues.

We will see that this is paid when we find a member in hard shape financially. Above all, buy that ticket to the banquet so that your name will be in the pot. Remember, prizes will be given out to some tickets out of the first one hundred sold.

FRANK KING POST, American Legion, A. B. Smith, Commander.
C. B. Anderson, Adjutant.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN IS COMING TO RIALTO FIRST OF THIS WEEK

Charles Chaplin's greatest ambition in life is to follow and satisfy his own whims in makin pictures.

He made this declaration following the completion of "The Idle Class" a hundred horse power comedy, which will be shown at the Rialto Theatre for a run of two days, starting Monday.

After finishing "The Idle Class," Chaplin started work on a new production, but suddenly one of those ideas possessed him. Immediately he dropped the work and started the next day for Europe. The main reason was probably the was that he wanted to visit the scenes of his birth in where he spent his boyhood. In New York a friend questioned him regarding I'm not concerned about the future he exclaimed, "I drift along. Tomorrow I may take a trip to Egypt. Or I may make two pictures. Riffit now Europe is calling me."

I know when a thing should not be too perfect; when you must love it for it's perfections. You get sick of htrogh the picture; saccharin lighting; halo effect. It's ilke a steady diet of caviar. I don't care about consistency. What I want is feeling motion."

Mrs. Clarie Lawrence and sister, Mrs. Jake Lawrence of the Arlie community were in town Tuesday shopping.

TO THE PUBLIC

It has been brought to our attention that there are instances where persons thought they were patronizing us only to learn later they did not. We have advertised in both local papers, have written hundreds of letters and talked with the people concerning our business whenever an opportunity offered. After all this it seems that there are yet some who have not availed themselves of our services. We are, therefore taking this means to further introduce ourselves.

The firm is composed of J. Price Dukeminier and W. H. Stuart under the name of the D. S. Radie Electric Co. The D Stands for Dukeminier and the S for Stuart. Both together stand for Dependable Service, which is what we try hard to give. Its the only kind upon which we can hope to build a successful business. We are located in the City National Bank building. Call on us. Our telephone number is 90. Call us if at any time you wish to avail yourself of our "Dependable Service" policy. We appreciate all patronage, be the jobs large or small.

We have recently done satisfactorily some of the largest and most exacting pieces of work in town. If this does not convince you we are making good, then patronize us and learn for yourself.

Beware of imitations, accept only

"Dependable Service."

Yours most gratefully,
D-S RADIO ELECTRIC CO.
