Everything you always wanted to know about Texas' districts*

*but had the census not to ask

By T. LEE HUGHES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Which Texas congressional district has the most bathrooms?

Which has the highest fertility rate among women?

In which district do more people walk to work than any other?

If such miscellany is of interest to you, you might want to consider running for office.

For politicians pay an awful lot of attention to the population characteristics of the election districts they run in.

In fact, reference books are published regularly that provide analyses of the nation's congressional districts.

But nothing compares with the reports being released by the U.S. Census Bureau for such districts, based on the 1980 census.

The recently released 107-page report on Texas districts, for example, has statistics on everything from the number of homes with bathrooms in each district to the fertility rate and how many people walk or drive to work.

Of course, not all of this will interest the professional politician, who usually is concerned with more politically significant data — such as on a district's ethnic composition or its earning levels.

There's plenty of that in the census report.

But for the bystander, the report also amounts to a kind of Poor Man's Texas Political Almanac, full of just plain trivia on the state's political makeup, the stuff of cocktail party chatter.

For example, more children under 5 years of age, 52,624, were to be found in the 15th District of South Texas than any other; the fewest, 31,259, were in the Dallas area's 3rd District.

None could vote, making this among the least interesting of statistics to the politician.

Other examples:

—There were 140,511 homes with at least two bathrooms in the Houston area's 7th Congressional District, the most of any Texas district. But there were only 21,374 in the neighboring 18th District, the least of any.

—Fertility was highest in the 15th District of South Texas, with 1,743 children born per 1,000 women during their lifetime, and lowest in the Dallas area's 3rd District, with 991 born.

—More than 21,000 workers walked to work in central Texas' 11th District, most of any district, while only about 4,210 walked to work in the Houston area's 8th District, the fewest.

—There were more divorced men, 16,691, in the Dallas area's 5th District than any other, and more divorced women, 24,316, in the Dallas area's 3rd District. The 15th District of south Texas had both the fewest divorced men, 4,796, and women, 9,099.

—The district with the greatest number of native-born Texans was the 14th in southeast Texas, with 431,387; the district with the fewest was the Houston area's 7th, with 262,555.

—More children, 9,999, attended nursery school in the Houston area's 7th District than any other. The fewest attending, 4,057, were in the 1st District of northeast Texas.

—The 13th District in the Panhandle had the most homes with individual room air conditioning units, 95,050; the Houston area's 7th District had the fewest, 14,685.

—The Dallas area's 3rd District had the most salesmen and others involved in selling, 49,240, while Houston's 18th District had the fewest, 18,230.

But however detailed the report on Texas districts, the Census Bureau will likely find itself having to issue another one soon — titled, perhaps, "Starting Over."

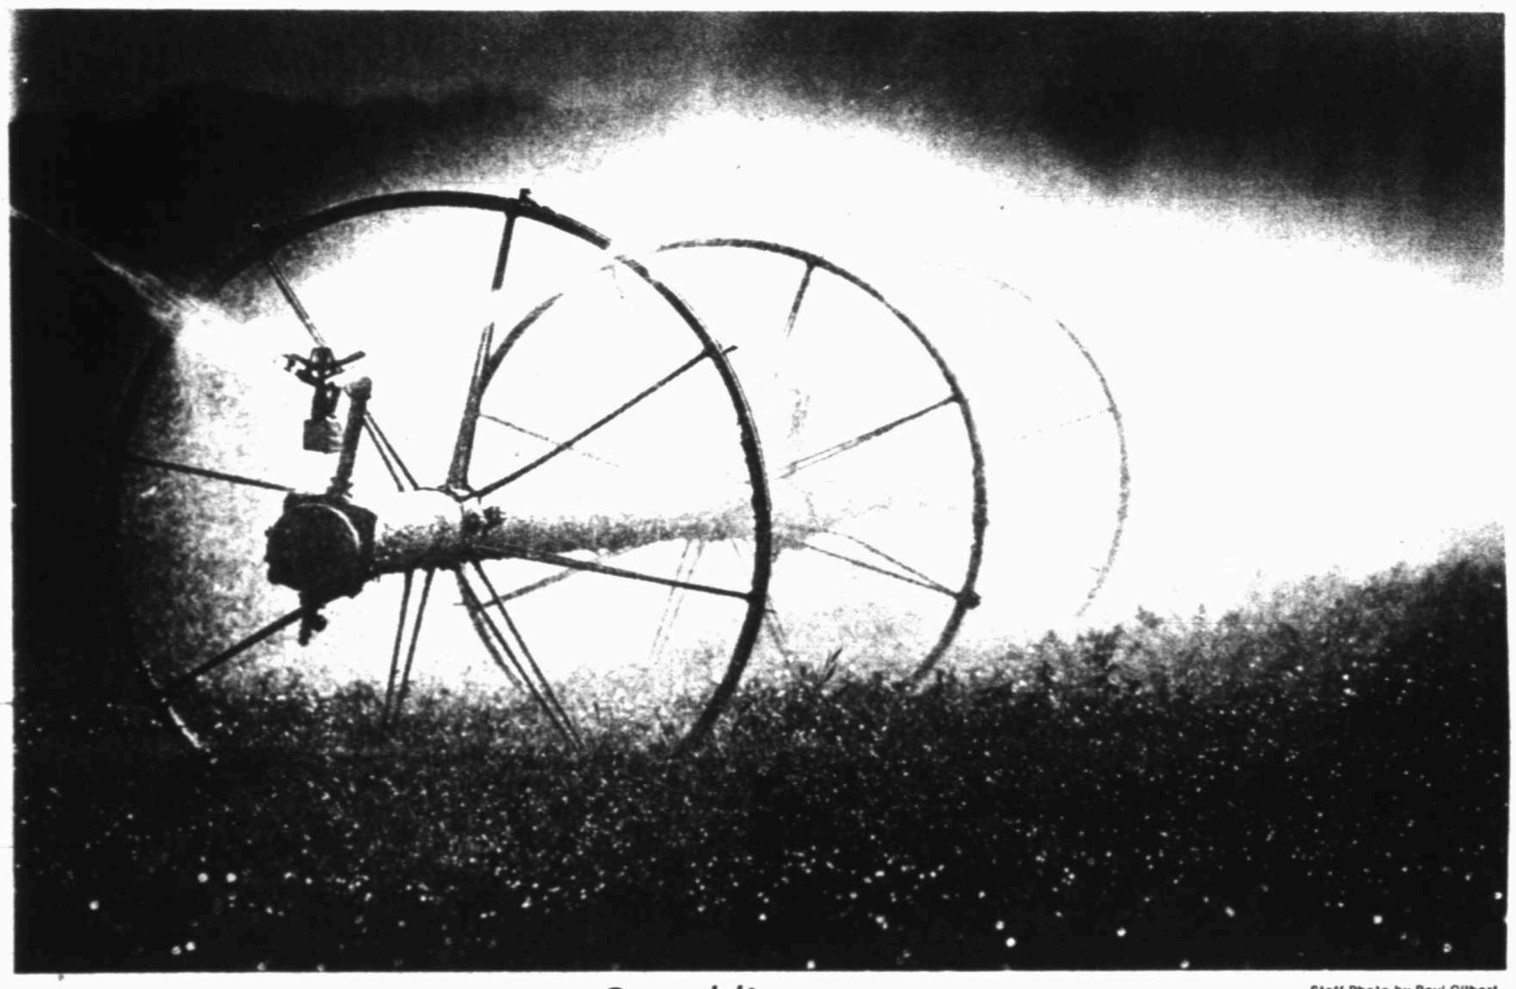

For the Texas Legislature is poised to again redraw, at least partially, the boundaries for the state's congressional districts.

Shultz ignores rocket attack

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz conferred with Israeli officials today about Lebanese proposals for a troop-withdrawal agreement and vowed he would not be intimidated by a rocket attack during his previous shuttle stop in Beirut.

Shultz met alone with Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir to start the day, and then Defense Minister Moshe Arens joined them to negotiate ideas that Shultz brought from Beirut on Sunday.

The Secretary is expected to return to the Lebanese capital Tuesday despite the attack early Sunday, in which two Chinese-made Katyusha rockets were fired over the U.S. Ambassador Robert Dillon's residence in Beirut while Shultz was sleeping there.

He said the attack would not deter him from continuing with the mission that started last Monday in Cairo. He has been shuttling between Jerusalem and Beirut since Wednesday, seeking to complete an agreement to withdraw Isreali troops from Lebanon.

"I'm not intimidated, whatever they are trying to do," Shultz said during a flight Sunday from Beirut to Jerusalem. He said the attack might have been "a message" from someone opposed to U.S. policy in the Middle East but did not elaborate.

A U.S. Marine spokesman in Beirut, Maj. Fred Lash of Terre Haute, Ind., said, "It's possible it (the attack) was aimed at the residence. I can't rule that out but I can't rule it in...It's under investigation."

Asked if he thought the rockets were aimed at the residence, Marine 1st Lt. Alan Burghard said: "Yes, I believe they were since it was directly within the flight path of the rockets.... If they had landed to the left or the right there might have been speculation."

Burghard, 24, of Parsippany, N.J., said Marine guards on duty reported the rockets "sounded like a freight train," going over the house and "barely cleared the top of the building."

He appeared before reporters at the presidential palace in Beirut with cardboard boxes containing the fragments of what he said were Chinese-made Katyusha rockets. He said it was impossible to say who fired the rockets because they are used by most of the various warring militias in Lebanon.

The attack came less than two weeks after a terrorist bomb shattered the U.S. Embassy in Beirut, killing at least 49 persons, including 17 Americans.

Nation marks May Day with demonstrations, rallies

By The Associated Press

Police and demonstrators scuffled at an "unlawful assembly" by the Revolutionary Communist Party in Los Angeles at one of several May Day demonstrations around the nation, while tens of thousands gathered at two rallies in salute to Israel.

Eight women and 14 men were booked for investigation of charges including assault, inciting to riot and carrying tear gas Sunday afternoon at MacArthur Park, said Los Angeles police Sgt. Larry Mazur.

"Their use of the bullhorn and various traffic violations, like walking against the light, prompted us," said police Capt. Terry Dyment. "We decided to do something before the crowd did. We were about to declare an unlawful assembly, but they attacked us first."

There were no reports of injuries, but police wrestled several people to the ground to handcuff them and warned other people away from the scene by brandishing billy clubs.

The rally, attended by about 150 people, was one of three May Day demonstrations in Los Angeles. Earlier, about 200 members of the Progressive Labor Party marched to Pershing Square in the heart of the business district.

In West Los Angeles, about 300 people demonstrated outside the Federal Building to support the Reagan administration's policies toward the Soviet Union and Poland's outlawed Solidarity trade union.

In other activities around the country to mark May Day, designated the holiday of labor movements by the Second Socialist International in 1889, 40 members of a tenants coalition staged a demonstration at the governor's mansion in Annapolis, Md.

No arrests were made as members of the Anne Arundel Coalition went through the house in the protest to demand affordable housing.

In Boston, approximately 75 people turned out for a rally in support of the Solidarity workers movement in Poland.

"Right now, there is, for the most part, passive defense," said Maceij Cltarsewski, a lawyer who was interned in his native Poland before emigrating to this country.

"But in the future, it will be necessary to change that tactic, to fight with guns," he said. "The time for negotiations in Poland is over."

In New York, a shirt-sleeved Mayor Edward Koch marched up Fifth Avenue with Yehuda Blum, Israeli ambassador to the United Nations, and about 50,000 other people in a parade to celebrate Israel's 35th birthday.

David Levy, Israeli deputy prime minister, who was also on hand, said he was "extremely grateful" for U.S. support.

After the parade, there was a birthday party at the Seventh Regiment Armory, featuring a 5-by-8-foot cake weighing 500 pounds decorated to look like the Israeli flag.

Parades on both sides of border honor workers, war dead

Related stories, Page 2A

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Marchers turned out here to observe May Day with a memorial to the war dead, but two politically different groups of demonstrators gathered just south of the border to honor the working man.

In the Ysleta section here, demonstrators marched in the annual "Loyalty Day" parade from the Ysleta Mission to the Veterans of Foreign Wars headquarters.

"This is America, the greatest country in the world," said flag-bearer Karen Davis. "I wish we were all Americans — all over the world."

Two parades were staged less than 10 miles away in Juarez, Mexico. Both parades honored the worker, but their approaches differed greatly.

The first parade, a pro-government demonstration, was sponsored by the city's major labor unions and supported by the ruling Independent Revolutionary Party (PRI).

An hour later, the pro-socialist Committee for Defense of the People staged its own parade.

"The government and the property owner are a single thief," CDP banners proclaimed.

The Ysleta event focused on loyalty to the United States and homage to the war dead, several VFW members said.

"Those of you who have come out today are showing a sense of patriotism, a sense of pride in this country," Col. Gerald Putman, an artillery commander from Fort Bliss, told a crowd of about 500.

The parade also protested the worker-oriented May Day celebration, created 87 years ago by the labor movement.

"Everybody makes a big issue out of May Day. ... May Day is communistic," said Ying Yu Wong Jr., commander of an El Paso Catholic War Veterans post.

But workers in the pro-government parade in Juarez disagreed.

"We represent unionism, nothing more," said Rosalio Altamira, a member of the union for gasoline station workers.

But the CDP showed opposition to governments on both sides of the border.

Slogan-chanting marchers were accompanied by protesters dressed as political caricatures. Oversized posters showed Karl Marx's portrait along with those of Mexican heroes.

Juan Beltran, one of the CDP speakers, told about 5,000 people gathered near the Municipal Plaza that the organization is fighting exploitation, child labor in factories and police brutality.

Beltran also paid homage to the "Chicago martyrs" killed in the May 1886 Haymarket Riot.

"The martyrs of Chicago were socialists," Beltran said from a flatbed truck used as a speakers' platform.

Death penalty sought in woman's rape, death

OZONA, Texas (AP) — Prosecutors succeeded 5½ months ago in getting a prison sentence for a West Texas roughneck in the stabbing death of an 8-year-old Kermit girl.

They began today their efforts to get a death penalty for Michael Eugene Sharp — this time for the rape and slaying of Brenda Kay Broadway, 31, of Kermit, who was killed with her daughter last summer.

State District Judge James H. Clack of Andrews, who granted a change of venue in the trial, is the presiding judge. Jury selection was scheduled for today.

Ozona is about 75 miles southwest of San Angelo.

Sharp, 28, is charged with capital murder in connection with the June 11, 1982 rape and slaying of Mrs. Broadway.

He was convicted of murder in Lubbock on Nov. 17 in connection with the death of Mrs. Broadway's 8-year-old daughter, Christie Elms. The slain girl's sister, Selena Elms, testified against Sharp during that trial, and is expected to testify again here.

Sharp is accused of abducting Ms. Broadway and her daughters from a Kermit car wash shortly after midnight on June 11. The women were taken to a remote area about 200 yards inside the Ector County line, where Ms. Broadway and Christie Elms were stabbed to death, authorities said.

Selena Elms escaped during the stabbings, authorities said. Naked and with her arms bound, she ran five miles before finding help at an oil rig, she testified.

Sharp was arrested five days after the bodies of Ms. Broadway and her daughter were found.

Hijacked jet back in Miami after Cuban stay

MIAMI (AP) — A Capitol Air jet with 212 people aboard hijacked to Cuba returned to Miami today after being grounded overnight in Havana because the crew couldn't free the plane's jammed emergency doors, officials said.

Capitol Air Flight 236, carrying 202 passengers and 10 crew members, had originated from Puerto Rico and was hijacked by a man claiming to have explosives about 70 miles northwest of Grand Turk Island, said Roger Myers, spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration in Atlanta.

The first passenger to clear Customs in Miami today said the hijacker was "a small, old guy, about 65," armed with a "gasoline-type bomb," who passed notes to the flight attendant from the front bathroom.

The DC-8 landed in Havana at 8:27 p.m. Sunday. Although Cuban officials authorized the plane to return to the United States, it couldn't leave Jose Marti International Airport before 5:28 a.m. today because crew members were unable to close the jet's two emergency doors. It finally arrived in Miami today at 6:16 a.m.

FBI spokesman Steve Torres said the man who hijacked the flight bound for Miami and Chicago had a weapon, but he didn't know what kind. The man also claimed to have "some type of explosive, some type of bomb ... ."

U.S. officials know nothing about the hijacker's identity.

WEATHER SUMMARY

AP Laserphoto Map

Bands of rain stretching from Texas through North Carolina, Michigan through Maine and the Dakotas through Wyoming are forecast through Tuesday by the National Weather Service.

Cooler temperatures expected

After leaving some Midlanders raw and reddened by a weekend in the sun, Mother Nature will provide soothing relief today and tonight in the form of cooler temperatures and breezy winds.

According to the National Weather Service forecast, tonight's low should slide into the mid-40s, inviting Midlanders to throw open their windows and crawl under some cool, "sleepable" sheets. Winds tonight are expected to breeze from the northwest at 10-15 mph. Tuesday high should reach the upper 70s with winds again from the northwest at 10-15 mph.

Sunday's high of 88 dropped seven degrees short of the record 95 set in 1936. The overnight low of 62 was easily warmer than the record low 36 in 1967.

May flowers will be facing an uphill battle after a fairly arid April. According to the NWS, Midland received .06 of an inch of rain in April compared with an average April rainfall of .84 of an inch.

A weekend without precipitation leaves the yearly rainfall total at 1.67 inches.

Sunset tonight will come at 8:30 p.m.; sunrise Tuesday comes at 7:01 a.m.

A hit-and-run driver knocked down this utility pole at the corner of Tejas and Shawnee streets in 349 Estates near Midland Country Club about 9:30 p.m. Sunday, disrupting power for a time. Police are looking for a white pickup truck with loud exhaust, which reportedly hit the pole and left the scene.

Polish Solidarity supporters rally

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Tens of thousands of Solidarity supporters staged May Day rallies across Poland, in several cases clashing with riot police who dispersed them. It was the strongest show of opposition to the government in eight months.

In the Baltic port of Gdansk, police used water cannons, tear gas and clubs to beat back workers headed toward the apartment of Solidarity founder Lech Walesa. He flashed protesters "V-for-Victory" signs and watched the demonstrations from his balcony.

Helmeted riot squads backed by armored personnel carriers and officers on horseback dispersed up to 15,000 protesters who gathered around Warsaw's Old Town at midday Sunday.

In the southern industrial suburb of Nowa Huta, state-run television reported that workers battled police and showed footage of protesters smashing windows of police vehicles and trampling red Communist banners.

Warsaw, Gdansk and other cities were quiet by evening but riot police remained on patrol in downtown areas. Protests were reported in a total of 20 cities.

Fugitive Solidarity strategists, after a clandestine April 9-11 meeting with Walesa, called the demonstrations to counter official marches on May Day, a major celebration in the Communist world.

Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, speaking at the official parade in the capital, reportedly involving 200,000 people, said martial law might be fully lifted if no disturbances occurred for several months.

Martial law was officially suspended on Dec. 31, 1982 but other measures have been imposed to prevent fresh challenges to Communist authorities and Solidarity remains outlawed.

"Although there are still attempts to sow chaos," Jaruzelski said, "Today these represent only a marginal fringe with no chance for success."

Walesa said the show of support for the outlawed union he founded in Gdansk in August 1980 exceeded his expectations.

"Great demonstrations took place," Walesa said. "Obviously the police dispersed them. But so many people took part that it surpassed our expectations."

Official reports put the number of those taking part in the protests at 40,000, and those joining official marches at 7 million. Western witnesses gave much higher numbers of the demonstrators, estimating that 40,000 protested in Gdansk alone.

The scope of the unrest surprised many Polish and Western observers. The protests, which followed months of relative calm in Poland, were the first major demonstrations since the martial law suspension and the most widespread since unrest in 54 Polish cities last August.

The crowd in Gdansk was believed to be the largest, although a report on the state-run television indicated that the demonstrations in Nowa Huta were the most violent.

Police used water cannon and tear gas volleys to scatter an estimated 40,000 demonstrators in Gdansk, but the protesters managed to regroup repeatedly and several thousand converged on Walesa's apartment, several miles from downtown and the adjacent shipyard areas.

Helmeted riot police cordonned off Walesa's apartment building, frustrating his efforts to address the crowd from his balcony. The 39-year-old labor chief flashed the victory sign at his supporters, but left his home only to attend Roman Catholic Mass in a neighborhood church at noon, hours before workers headed toward his apartment.

State-run television showed crowds of workers, estimated at 15,000 by some Western observers, battling with police in Nowa Huta, an industrial suburb of Krakow in southern Poland.

Rocks thrown by the workers smashed windows in police vehicles, and authorities responded with tear gas, the television report showed.

About 10,000 Solidarity supporters demonstrated in the southwestern city of Wroclaw, but were dispersed by tear gas, witnesses said.

Demonstrations of up to 5,000 people were reported in Krakow and in Poznan, central Poland. Protests also were reported in Gdynia, Bydgogzcz, Lodz and Szczecin.

In Washington, President Reagan issued a statement denouncing the "continuing wave of suppression" by the Polish government, which he said was carried out "under intense Soviet pressure."

Reagan repeated his pledge that the United States would help Poland solve its economic problems if the government introduced "meaningful liberalization measures."

World's workers make annual May Day laborers' demands

By The Associated Press

Workers around the world observed May Day with demonstrations demanding the right to organize unions and protests against both Communist and right-wing governments.

Violence erupted in Chile, the Philippines and Poland, where police fired tear gas, sprayed water cannons and beat protestors with clubs to disperse thousands who marched in support of the banned independent labor union Solidarity.

"We want free unions, We want free Poland," marchers shouted at a demonstration of 40,000 in Gdansk, the birthplace of Solidarity.

An airplane flew over Vatican City with a red and white Solidarity banner, and Pope John Paul II gave a Sunday blessing praising labor as the source of human dignity.

In Chile, police clubbed demonstrators in Santiago who went to a May Day rally in defiance of the military regime of President Augusto Pinochet. Twenty-five of the 200 marchers were reported injured in the demonstration organized by the National Labor Coordinate, a predominantly Christian Democrat group.

A woman farmworker was shot in the leg by an unidentified gunman in an anti-government march of 800 people in Davao City, the Philippines. Police said the gunman was not an officer or a soldier.

Left-wing labor groups in El Salvador held their first May Day celebrations in two years and called for negotiations to end the war between leftist guerrillas and the U.S.-backed government. About 100 people took part in the indoor ceremony.

The biggest labor organization in the country, the Popular Democratic Unity, boycotted government-sponsored May Day activities, saying the government was denying "the fundamental rights of workers."

In Western Europe and Canada, demonstrations on the international labor holiday Sunday featured anti-nuclear themes. In Ottawa, 3,000 people formed a human chain, linking arms and chanting "Jobs, not bombs."

About 3,000 French workers shouted slogans against the government of Socialist President Francois Mitterrand.

Tens of thousands of leftist trade unionists marched in Paris, carrying banners calling for international labor solidarjty. Across town on the Left Bank, about 3,000 members of independent unions and professional groups staged an anti-government march, shouting "Mitterrand, resign," and carrying banners protesting the Socialist government's economic austerity plan.

In England, about 100 women and children crawled under a fence at the U.S. air force base at Greenham Common during an anti-nuclear protest. They held hands, sang and danced before police escorted them to an exit.

Begin: Beginning or ending in style?

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel — Today's subdued, uninspiring Menachem Begin is hardly recognizable as the combative Israeli prime minister of the Lebanon war.

No one is sure what happened, but the change in him has provoked much speculation.

Some political analysts say the 60-year-old Begin has sharply limited his public appearances because he is despondent over the death of his wife last November. Others point to the complications of the Israeli invasion of Lebanon and the results of the inquiry of the Beirut refugee camp massacre.

Some suggest it is a cyclical phenomenon, possibly worsened by the medication he takes for his weak heart.

Few are willing to draw firm conclusions. Begin went through a similar period in 1980, only to bounce back with redoubled vigor. And all polls show him winning if elections were held now.

But Israel is so heavily dominated by the force of Begin's personality and oratory that when he withdraws, his absence is acutely felt.

The weekly magazine Koteret Rashit published an opinion poll last week indicating the percentage of Israelis who rate him best equipped to be prime minister had fallen from 62 percent in August at the height of the Lebanon war, to 46 percent a month ago.

"For months, the prime minister has not been at his best," the magazine observed. "He is in a cut-off, introverted mood... His public appearances are pallid, anemic."

The change in Begin was underscored during the nation's 35th independence anniversary celebrated last month when he gave none of the customary Independence Day interviews.

His message to the people was a bland litany of standard policy lines. He looked pale and fatigued, his commanding gravelly voice replaced by a hoarse near-whisper, his eyes gazing blankly at the teleprompter.

At a medal ceremony for Lebanon war heroes, Begin sat aside and delivered no speech. "He looked discontented, distant and tight-lipped," wrote Dan Margalit of the daily Haaretz. "He looked as though he didn't belong to the occasion."

Margalit theorized that Begin was suffering "a heavy disappointment" over the Lebanon campaign and its failure to fulfill what he had promised: a complete end to Palestinian terrorism, a peace treaty with Lebanon, the withdrawal of Syrian forces from that country.

The Israelis invaded Lebanon June 6 in an effort to rout the Palestine Liberation Organization. The operation forced the evacuation of PLO guerrillas from Beirut, but an estimated 7,000 PLO fighters remain based with some 38,000 Syrians in northeastern Lebanon.

Begin's aides deny there is anything wrong. They say he is simply too busy for public appearances. Indeed, Begin never misses Cabinet meetings. He does not speak much but maintains full authority over the Lebanon negotiations and is quick to rebut ministers with whom he disagrees.

He also is playing the leading role in talks with U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz, rather than leaving them to Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Defense Minister Moshe Arens.

His heart is holding up despite two coronaries since being elected prime minister in 1977. He broke his hip in 1981 but no longer walks with a stick.

Yoel Marcus of Haaretz wrote this month that Begin lowered his profile because he knew any public utterance on his part could draw him into a clash with President Reagan, and he wanted Reagan's Mideast peace plan to wither away without any polemic from Israel.

Whittaker sees significance of scaling 'personal Everests'

SEATTLE (AP) — Twenty years ago, Jim Whittaker became the first American to scale the world's tallest peak, Mount Everest. Today, the rangy mountaineer says he admires the ordinary people who climb their "personal Everests" every day.

The conquest of 28,028-foot mountain on May 1, 1963, introduced Whittaker to a world of celebrities, public appearances and speeches.

Whittaker's life has taken many turns since he came back from the Himalayas to ride triumphantly through Seattle streets. There have been moments of ecstasy and heartache for the 54-year-old climbing equipment manufacturer.

One of his proudest moments, Whittaker says, was leading 10 handicapped climbers up 14,410-foot Mount Rainier in Washington state two years ago, just a week after 11 climbers died there in the nation's worst climbing disaster.

"For those people, that was Mount Everest," Whittaker says. "You think about it. I spent two years preparing for something that allowed me to stand on top of a mountain for 20 minutes.

"People all over the world are climbing their personal Everests every day, and they don't always have a clear-cut goal like the summit of a mountain."

Scaling Everest forced the 6-foot-5-inch Whittaker to adjust to a universe in which he was expected to lend his name to good causes — school levies, handicapped children, various fund drives, he says.

The once shy speaker had to develop confidence and a ready wit.

His fame also introduced him to the Kennedy clan, and he became at home at parties that included national figures like Robert McNamara, Averell Harriman, Art Buchwald and Andy Williams.

Whittaker said he and Robert F. Kennedy hit if off immediately. They rafted down the Colorado River, and when Canada named 14,000-foot Mount Kennedy in honor of John F. Kennedy, Whittaker and Robert Kennedy scaled the peak together.

Robert Kennedy was "one of the grittiest little guys you've ever seen," Whittaker recalled fondly in a recent interview. "It's not how big you are but how tight you are wound that counts."

In 1968, Whittaker became Washington state chairman of Robert Kennedy's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination. When the candidate was gunned down, Whittaker says, he was devastated.

But things are going well for Whittaker these days. Last month he and his second wife, Dianne Roberts, became the parents of their first child, Charles Roberts Whittaker.

There was a time when Whittaker might have quipped he'd have his son out climbing mountains soon after he could crawl, he says. But not now.

"He will follow his own path," says Whittaker. "Dianne and I will offer him many paths. But he'll choose the forks that suit him."

Sheriff awaits results of autopsy on man found bound, stabbed

EASTLAND (AP) — Eastland County Sheriff Johnnie Morren said he was awaiting the results from an autopsy of a man found gagged and bound in a bedroom of his home Saturday with two pocket knifes sticking from his chest.

The body of Gaily Johnson "G.J." Carter, 64, was found shortly after noon Saturday, authorities said. He was lying on a bed, shirtless and wearing clean pants, Morren said. His hands were tied behind his back, his ankles were bound and he was gagged.

Carter was a native of Eastland, but had lived in McKinney for several years. He retired last October from his job at a Veterans Administration hospital in Dallas and moved back to the family home in Eastland.

Girl in critical condition after crash

EGYPT, Texas (AP) — A teen-age girl remained in extremely critical condition early today suffering from injuries she sustained in a two-car crash that killed five youths near this Southeast Texas town.

A spokeswoman for Gulf Coast Medical Center in Wharton said the condition of Dana Hope, 19, of Eagle Lake had neither improved or deterioriated during the day Sunday.

She was a passenger in a car that was sideswiped late Saturday as it was about to make a left turn off FM 102, said Department of Public Safety spokesman Larry Todd.

Insurance man Austin's new mayor

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Insurance man Ron Mullen has been elected Austin's new mayor, succeeding Carole McClellan, who resigned to accept an appointment to the State Board of Insurance.

Mullen, a member of the Austin City Council, got 33,677 votes to 30,338 for Lowell Lebermann, a private investor and former city councilman, in a runoff election Saturday.

Bush can take it, leave it

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush says he is not worried about whether he will be President Reagan's running mate in 1984 if the president seeks a second term, the Houston Post reported.

The paper's Sunday editions quoted Bush as saying he feels comfortable with party officials' judgment on the next campaign.

"They know I am here. They know what I am doing," he said. "If there is some better formula, they will figure it out."

Bush, who considers Houston his home, told the newspaper during an interview that was conducted Wednesday that he would not be upset if he is left off the ticket.

"I could take it or leave it," he said of the nomination. "Take it or leave it."

The newspaper reported in a copyright story Saturday that Reagan is firmly committed to keeping Bush as a running mate if he seeks a second term.

"You don't break up a combination that is working," the Post quoted the president as saying.

Bush said in the interview he and Reagan have overcome all feelings of rivalry that arose from the campaign.

'Ma Barker' directs bar shootout

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The brother of two men who were critically injured in a weekend shooting in a west San Antonio bar says he thinks someone was trying to dissuade him from testifying next week against a man accused of stabbing him in the heart.

Frank Rodriguez, 36, was shot four times in the stomach and hand, and Richard Rodriguez, 31, was shot in the stomach, police said. They underwent surgery and were in critical condition Sunday.

About 15 people were in the bar at the time of the shooting. Witnesses say a young man, wearing a black patch over one eye, pulled a large-caliber hand gun and began firing as a woman, believed to be about 45, shouted orders.

"It was a set-up. She was like Ma Barker. She was in charge," said Roy Rodriguez, 34, who said he was standing at the bar.

Witnesses said the gunman, two other men, two children and the woman had been in the lounge about an hour before the 5 p.m. shooting.

Then, a witness said she overheard the woman telling the man with the eye patch, "All of them guys are the ones," and gunshots exploded inside the lounge.

Klan marches without clown, 'six topless girls'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — About 50 heavily protected Ku Klux Klan members garbed in robes and fatigues marched chanting through downtown San Antonio, but a march by anti-Klan nudists never came off because of "six topless girls."

The Klansmen, guarded by about 400 police officers and heckled from behind barricades, marched briskly through a three-block stretch of downtown Sunday afternoon.

But the organizer of the nudists march called off his plans Sunday night, saying the city would not allow six topless women to accompany him.

"I wanted to be a clown flanked by six topless girls," an open-shirted Omar Kirk said after arriving on the hood of a battered station wagon. "I can march totally topless, but a girl can't."

Kirk described himself as "pro-nudity and anti-Klan."

Policemen had blanketed downtown San Antonio earlier, barricading the Klan's march route to all but a handful of the news media.

Specially equipped police officers, sweltering in the 92-degree heat, stood watch atop nearby buildings. There were no arrests.

The Klan was bused into town for the 10-minute march and a brief stop on the steps of City Hall, where the march ended.

Klansmen complained no one could hear them and began shouting "Gestapo!" at the policemen equipped with riot gear who were surrounding the group.

The white supremacist group, carrying flags representing the United States, Texas and the Confederacy, tore up a Mexican flag and chanted "White Power" before being whisked off to an undisclosed location.

City officials all week had urged San Antonians to ignore the Klan.

WEATHER SUMMARY

AP Laserphoto Map

Bands of rain stretching from Texas through North Carolina, Michigan through Maine and the Dakotas through Wyoming are forecast through Tuesday by the National Weather Service.

Cooler temperatures expected

After leaving some Midlanders raw and reddened by a weekend in the sun, Mother Nature will provide soothing relief today and tonight in the form of cooler temperatures and breezy winds.

According to the National Weather Service forecast, tonight's low should slide into the mid-40s, inviting Midlanders to throw open their windows and crawl under some cool, "sleepable" sheets. Winds tonight are expected to breeze from the northwest at 10-15 mph. Tuesday high should reach the upper 70s with winds again from the northwest at 10-15 mph.

Sunday's high of 88 dropped seven degrees short of the record 95 set in 1936. The overnight low of 62 was easily warmer than the record low 36 in 1967.

May flowers will be facing an uphill battle after a fairly arid April. According to the NWS, Midland received .06 of an inch of rain in April compared with an average April rainfall of .84 of an inch.

A weekend without precipitation leaves the yearly rainfall total at 1.67 inches.

Sunset tonight will come at 8:30 p.m.; sunrise Tuesday comes at 7:01 a.m.

A hit-and-run driver knocked down this utility pole at the corner of Tejas and Shawnee streets in 349 Estates near Midland Country Club about 9:30 p.m. Sunday, disrupting power for a time. Police are looking for a white pickup truck with loud exhaust, which reportedly hit the pole and left the scene.

Polish Solidarity supporters rally

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Tens of thousands of Solidarity supporters staged May Day rallies across Poland, in several cases clashing with riot police who dispersed them. It was the strongest show of opposition to the government in eight months.

In the Baltic port of Gdansk, police used water cannons, tear gas and clubs to beat back workers headed toward the apartment of Solidarity founder Lech Walesa. He flashed protesters "V-for-Victory" signs and watched the demonstrations from his balcony.

Helmeted riot squads backed by armored personnel carriers and officers on horseback dispersed up to 15,000 protesters who gathered around Warsaw's Old Town at midday Sunday.

In the southern industrial suburb of Nowa Huta, state-run television reported that workers battled police and showed footage of protesters smashing windows of police vehicles and trampling red Communist banners.

Warsaw, Gdansk and other cities were quiet by evening but riot police remained on patrol in downtown areas. Protests were reported in a total of 20 cities.

Fugitive Solidarity strategists, after a clandestine April 9-11 meeting with Walesa, called the demonstrations to counter official marches on May Day, a major celebration in the Communist world.

Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, speaking at the official parade in the capital, reportedly involving 200,000 people, said martial law might be fully lifted if no disturbances occurred for several months.

Martial law was officially suspended on Dec. 31, 1982 but other measures have been imposed to prevent fresh challenges to Communist authorities and Solidarity remains outlawed.

"Although there are still attempts to sow chaos," Jaruzelski said, "Today these represent only a marginal fringe with no chance for success."

Walesa said the show of support for the outlawed union he founded in Gdansk in August 1980 exceeded his expectations.

"Great demonstrations took place," Walesa said. "Obviously the police dispersed them. But so many people took part that it surpassed our expectations."

Official reports put the number of those taking part in the protests at 40,000, and those joining official marches at 7 million. Western witnesses gave much higher numbers of the demonstrators, estimating that 40,000 protested in Gdansk alone.

The scope of the unrest surprised many Polish and Western observers. The protests, which followed months of relative calm in Poland, were the first major demonstrations since the martial law suspension and the most widespread since unrest in 54 Polish cities last August.

The crowd in Gdansk was believed to be the largest, although a report on the state-run television indicated that the demonstrations in Nowa Huta were the most violent.

Police used water cannon and tear gas volleys to scatter an estimated 40,000 demonstrators in Gdansk, but the protesters managed to regroup repeatedly and several thousand converged on Walesa's apartment, several miles from downtown and the adjacent shipyard areas.

Helmeted riot police cordonned off Walesa's apartment building, frustrating his efforts to address the crowd from his balcony. The 39-year-old labor chief flashed the victory sign at his supporters, but left his home only to attend Roman Catholic Mass in a neighborhood church at noon, hours before workers headed toward his apartment.

State-run television showed crowds of workers, estimated at 15,000 by some Western observers, battling with police in Nowa Huta, an industrial suburb of Krakow in southern Poland.

Rocks thrown by the workers smashed windows in police vehicles, and authorities responded with tear gas, the television report showed.

About 10,000 Solidarity supporters demonstrated in the southwestern city of Wroclaw, but were dispersed by tear gas, witnesses said.

Demonstrations of up to 5,000 people were reported in Krakow and in Poznan, central Poland. Protests also were reported in Gdynia, Bydgogzcz, Lodz and Szczecin.

In Washington, President Reagan issued a statement denouncing the "continuing wave of suppression" by the Polish government, which he said was carried out "under intense Soviet pressure."

Reagan repeated his pledge that the United States would help Poland solve its economic problems if the government introduced "meaningful liberalization measures."

World's workers make annual May Day laborers' demands

By The Associated Press

Workers around the world observed May Day with demonstrations demanding the right to organize unions and protests against both Communist and right-wing governments.

Violence erupted in Chile, the Philippines and Poland, where police fired tear gas, sprayed water cannons and beat protestors with clubs to disperse thousands who marched in support of the banned independent labor union Solidarity.

"We want free unions, We want free Poland," marchers shouted at a demonstration of 40,000 in Gdansk, the birthplace of Solidarity.

An airplane flew over Vatican City with a red and white Solidarity banner, and Pope John Paul II gave a Sunday blessing praising labor as the source of human dignity.

In Chile, police clubbed demonstrators in Santiago who went to a May Day rally in defiance of the military regime of President Augusto Pinochet. Twenty-five of the 200 marchers were reported injured in the demonstration organized by the National Labor Coordinate, a predominantly Christian Democrat group.

A woman farmworker was shot in the leg by an unidentified gunman in an anti-government march of 800 people in Davao City, the Philippines. Police said the gunman was not an officer or a soldier.

Left-wing labor groups in El Salvador held their first May Day celebrations in two years and called for negotiations to end the war between leftist guerrillas and the U.S.-backed government. About 100 people took part in the indoor ceremony.

The biggest labor organization in the country, the Popular Democratic Unity, boycotted government-sponsored May Day activities, saying the government was denying "the fundamental rights of workers."

In Western Europe and Canada, demonstrations on the international labor holiday Sunday featured anti-nuclear themes. In Ottawa, 3,000 people formed a human chain, linking arms and chanting "Jobs, not bombs."

About 3,000 French workers shouted slogans against the government of Socialist President Francois Mitterrand.

Tens of thousands of leftist trade unionists marched in Paris, carrying banners calling for international labor solidarity. Across town on the Left Bank, about 3,000 members of independent unions and professional groups staged an anti-government march, shouting "Mitterrand, resign," and carrying banners protesting the Socialist government's economic austerity plan.

In England, about 100 women and children crawled under a fence at the U.S. air force base at Greenham Common during an anti-nuclear protest. They held hands, sang and danced before police escorted them to an exit.

Begin: Beginning or ending in style?

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer

TEL AVIV, Israel — Today's subdued, uninspiring Menachem Begin is hardly recognizable as the combative Israeli prime minister of the Lebanon war.

No one is sure what happened, but the change in him has provoked much speculation.

Some political analysts say the 60-year-old Begin has sharply limited his public appearances because he is despondent over the death of his wife last November. Others point to the complications of the Israeli invasion of Lebanon and the results of the inquiry of the Beirut refugee camp massacre.

Some suggest it is a cyclical phenomenon, possibly worsened by the medication he takes for his weak heart.

Few are willing to draw firm conclusions. Begin went through a similar period in 1980, only to bounce back with redoubled vigor. And all polls show him winning if elections were held now.

But Israel is so heavily dominated by the force of Begin's personality and oratory that when he withdraws, his absence is acutely felt.

The weekly magazine Koteret Rashit published an opinion poll last week indicating the percentage of Israelis who rate him best equipped to be prime minister had fallen from 62 percent in August at the height of the Lebanon war, to 46 percent a month ago.

"For months, the prime minister has not been at his best," the magazine observed. "He is in a cut-off, introverted mood... His public appearances are pallid, anemic."

The change in Begin was underscored during the nation's 35th independence anniversary celebrated last month when he gave none of the customary Independence Day interviews.

His message to the people was a bland litany of standard policy lines. He looked pale and fatigued, his commanding gravelly voice replaced by a hoarse near-whisper, his eyes gazing blankly at the teleprompter.

At a medal ceremony for Lebanon war heroes, Begin sat aside and delivered no speech. "He looked discontented, distant and tight-lipped," wrote Dan Margalit of the daily Haaretz. "He looked as though he didn't belong to the occasion."

Margalit theorized that Begin was suffering "a heavy disappointment" over the Lebanon campaign and its failure to fulfill what he had promised: a complete end to Palestinian terrorism, a peace treaty with Lebanon, the withdrawal of Syrian forces from that country.

The Israelis invaded Lebanon June 6 in an effort to rout the Palestine Liberation Organization. The operation forced the evacuation of PLO guerrillas from Beirut, but an estimated 7,000 PLO fighters remain based with some 38,000 Syrians in northeastern Lebanon.

Begin's aides deny there is anything wrong. They say he is simply too busy for public appearances. Indeed, Begin never misses Cabinet meetings. He does not speak much but maintains full authority over the Lebanon negotiations and is quick to rebut ministers with whom he disagrees.

He also is playing the leading role in talks with U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz, rather than leaving them to Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Defense Minister Moshe Arens.

His heart is holding up despite two coronaries since being elected prime minister in 1977. He broke his hip in 1981 but no longer walks with a stick.

Yoel Marcus of Haaretz wrote this month that Begin lowered his profile because he knew any public utterance on his part could draw him into a clash with President Reagan, and he wanted Reagan's Mideast peace plan to wither away without any polemic from Israel.

Whittaker sees significance of scaling 'personal Everests'

SEATTLE (AP) — Twenty years ago, Jim Whittaker became the first American to scale the world's tallest peak, Mount Everest. Today, the rangy mountaineer says he admires the ordinary people who climb their "personal Everests" every day.

The conquest of 28,028-foot mountain on May 1, 1963, introduced Whittaker to a world of celebrities, public appearances and speeches.

Whittaker's life has taken many turns since he came back from the Himalayas to ride triumphantly through Seattle streets. There have been moments of ecstasy and heartache for the 54-year-old climbing equipment manufacturer.

One of his proudest moments, Whittaker says, was leading 10 handicapped climbers up 14,410-foot Mount Rainier in Washington state two years ago, just a week after 11 climbers died there in the nation's worst climbing disaster.

"For those people, that was Mount Everest," Whittaker says. "You think about it. I spent two years preparing for something that allowed me to stand on top of a mountain for 20 minutes.

"People all over the world are climbing their personal Everests every day, and they don't always have a clear-cut goal like the summit of a mountain."

Scaling Everest forced the 6-foot-5-inch Whittaker to adjust to a universe in which he was expected to lend his name to good causes — school levies, handicapped children, various fund drives, he says.

The once shy speaker had to develop confidence and a ready wit.

His fame also introduced him to the Kennedy clan, and he became at home at parties that included national figures like Robert McNamara, Averell Harriman, Art Buchwald and Andy Williams.

Whittaker said he and Robert F. Kennedy hit if off immediately. They rafted down the Colorado River, and when Canada named 14,000-foot Mount Kennedy in honor of John F. Kennedy, Whittaker and Robert Kennedy scaled the peak together.

Robert Kennedy was "one of the grittiest little guys you've ever seen," Whittaker recalled fondly in a recent interview. "It's not how big you are but how tight you are wound that counts."

In 1968, Whittaker became Washington state chairman of Robert Kennedy's bid for the Democratic presidential nomination. When the candidate was gunned down, Whittaker says, he was devastated.

But things are going well for Whittaker these days. Last month he and his second wife, Dianne Roberts, became the parents of their first child, Charles Roberts Whittaker.

There was a time when Whittaker might have quipped he'd have his son out climbing mountains soon after he could crawl, he says. But not now.

"He will follow his own path," says Whittaker. "Dianne and I will offer him many paths. But he'll choose the forks that suit him."

Sheriff awaits results of autopsy on man found bound, stabbed

EASTLAND (AP) — Eastland County Sheriff Johnnie Morren said he was awaiting the results from an autopsy of a man found gagged and bound in a bedroom of his home Saturday with two pocket knifes sticking from his chest.

The body of Gaily Johnson "G.J." Carter, 64, was found shortly after noon Saturday, authorities said. He was lying on a bed, shirtless and wearing clean pants, Morren said. His hands were tied behind his back, his ankles were bound and he was gagged.

Carter was a native of Eastland, but had lived in McKinney for several years. He retired last October from his job at a Veterans Administration hospital in Dallas and moved back to the family home in Eastland.

Girl in critical condition after crash

EGYPT, Texas (AP) — A teen-age girl remained in extremely critical condition early today suffering from injuries she sustained in a two-car crash that killed five youths near this Southeast Texas town.

A spokeswoman for Gulf Coast Medical Center in Wharton said the condition of Dana Hope, 19, of Eagle Lake had neither improved or deterioriated during the day Sunday.

She was a passenger in a car that was sideswiped late Saturday as it was about to make a left turn off FM 102, said Department of Public Safety spokesman Larry Todd.

Insurance man Austin's new mayor

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Insurance man Ron Mullen has been elected Austin's new mayor, succeeding Carole McClellan, who resigned to accept an appointment to the State Board of Insurance.

Mullen, a member of the Austin City Council, got 33,677 votes to 30,338 for Lowell Lebermann, a private investor and former city councilman, in a runoff election Saturday.

Bush can take it, leave it

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Bush says he is not worried about whether he will be President Reagan's running mate in 1984 if the president seeks a second term, the Houston Post reported.

The paper's Sunday editions quoted Bush as saying he feels comfortable with party officials' judgment on the next campaign.

"They know I am here. They know what I am doing," he said. "If there is some better formula, they will figure it out."

Bush, who considers Houston his home, told the newspaper during an interview that was conducted Wednesday that he would not be upset if he is left off the ticket.

"I could take it or leave it," he said of the nomination. "Take it or leave it."

The newspaper reported in a copyright story Saturday that Reagan is firmly committed to keeping Bush as a running mate if he seeks a second term.

"You don't break up a combination that is working," the Post quoted the president as saying.

Bush said in the interview he and Reagan have overcome all feelings of rivalry that arose from the campaign.

'Ma Barker' directs bar shootout

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The brother of two men who were critically injured in a weekend shooting in a west San Antonio bar says he thinks someone was trying to dissuade him from testifying next week against a man accused of stabbing him in the heart.

Frank Rodriguez, 36, was shot four times in the stomach and hand, and Richard Rodriguez, 31, was shot in the stomach, police said. They underwent surgery and were in critical condition Sunday.

About 15 people were in the bar at the time of the shooting. Witnesses say a young man, wearing a black patch over one eye, pulled a large-caliber hand gun and began firing as a woman, believed to be about 45, shouted orders.

"It was a set-up. She was like Ma Barker. She was in charge," said Roy Rodriguez, 34, who said he was standing at the bar.

Witnesses said the gunman, two other men, two children and the woman had been in the lounge about an hour before the 5 p.m. shooting.

Then, a witness said she overheard the woman telling the man with the eye patch, "All of them guys are the ones," and gunshots exploded inside the lounge.

Klan marches without clown, 'six topless girls'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — About 50 heavily protected Ku Klux Klan members garbed in robes and fatigues marched chanting through downtown San Antonio, but a march by anti-Klan nudists never came off because of "six topless girls."

The Klansmen, guarded by about 400 police officers and heckled from behind barricades, marched briskly through a three-block stretch of downtown Sunday afternoon.

But the organizer of the nudists march called off his plans Sunday night, saying the city would not allow six topless women to accompany him.

"I wanted to be a clown flanked by six topless girls," an open-shirted Omar Kirk said after arriving on the hood of a battered station wagon. "I can march totally topless, but a girl can't."

Kirk described himself as "pro-nudity and anti-Klan."

Policemen had blanketed downtown San Antonio earlier, barricading the Klan's march route to all but a handful of the news media.

Specially equipped police officers, sweltering in the 92-degree heat, stood watch atop nearby buildings. There were no arrests.

The Klan was bused into town for the 10-minute march and a brief stop on the steps of City Hall, where the march ended.

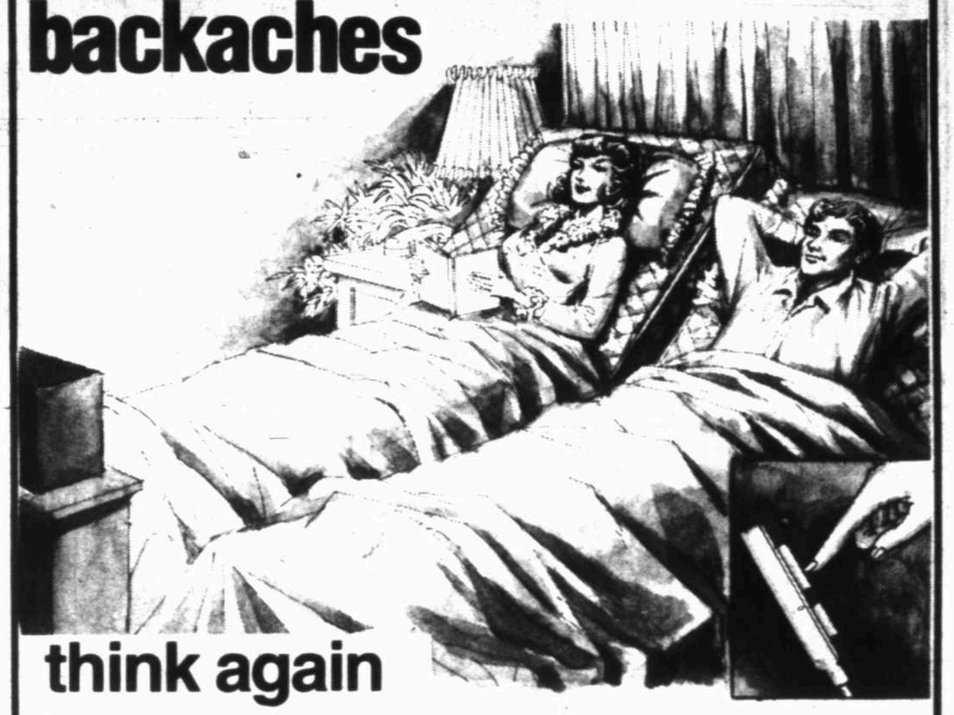

Klansmen complained no one could hear them and began shouting "Gestapo!" at the policemen equipped with riot gear who were surrounding the group.

The white supremacist group, carrying flags representing the United States, Texas and the Confederacy, tore up a Mexican flag and chanted "White Power" before being whisked off to an undisclosed location.

City officials all week had urged San Antonians to ignore the Klan.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A new job opportunity has real potential. You need to take a more practical approach to business problems. Seek advice from experts. Tact helps you cement an important alliance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Let others take the initiative today. Good news arrives concerning friends or relatives living abroad. You meet someone unusually attractive under somewhat odd circumstances.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Count on having some good financial luck. A phone call or letter brings exciting news, but could also cause domestic tension. You welcome an answer to an old question.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Obligations hinder your efforts to follow up your ideas for a work project. Begin a personal shape-up program if overweight. Listen to what a young person has to say.

'Legs' on ABC tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — During tonight's ABC movie, "Legs," the point is made that in Las Vegas, dancers are seen only as sex objects, while at Radio City Music Hall, they're recognized for their legs, too.

The Rockettes, after more than 50 years of kicking up their heels in unison, remain a very popular institution, particulalry as a tourist attraction. ABC's fluffy homage to the ladies in the line certainly won't shatter any fantasies or illusions in America's heartland.

It's not an expose, but a country-pie look behind the scenes, where you'll see that the Rockettes let their hair down in their dressing rooms, like athletes do in their locker rooms. They have water fights, they gossip and they share each other's highs and lows.

What comes across in "Legs" is that the 36 members of the world-famous chorus line are a family, seemingly freer of the rivalries and back-biting that pervade other entertainment forms. One reason is that nobody gets star billing.

They also all share the same grueling schedule of four or five shows a day, rehearsals, dance classes and, sometimes, auditions for other jobs. At times, this line doesn't seem any more glamorous than an assembly line. The movie paints an interesting picture of the grind behind the grins and some of the career-vs.-family sacrifices that have to be made.

This inside look and the strutting of the real long-stemmed Rockettes in some of their customarily garish costumes are the major attractions of "Legs," which was filmed on-location in New York. "That's what New York is to most people," says the typical-sounding city cabbie. "The Statue of Liberty, the Empire State Building and Radio City Music Hall."

The stories and male-female relationships in "Legs," however, are entirely inconsequential.

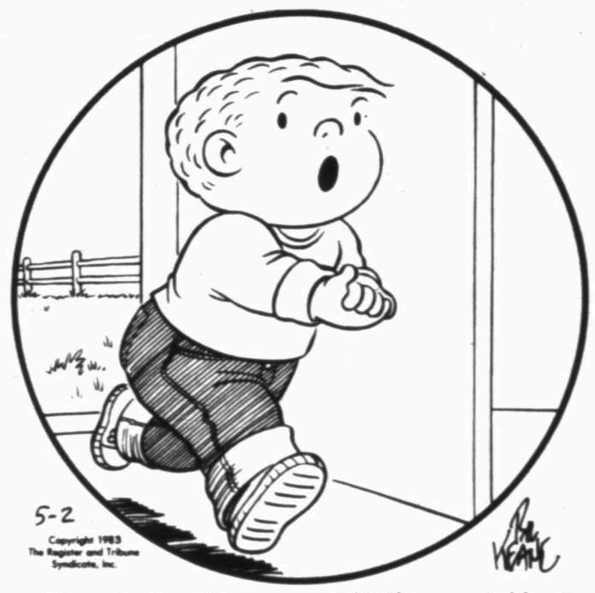

Three summer replacements, relief hoofers so to speak, are vying for one opening in the line. Lisa (Shanna Reed from "Dancin" and "A Chorus Line") is a former Rockette who's returning after the break-up of her marriage. She also falls in love with a journalist (John Heard) doing a story on the Rockettes.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q832 ♡76 ◇KQ4 ♣J1052
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Despite the fact that you could do no better than make a simple raise at your first turn, partner has expressed interest in slam. His jump to four diamonds is a cue-bid. You have an absolute maximum for a single raise, so you should want to cooperate. Since you have no first-round control to show, cue-bid five diamonds to show second-round control of that suit.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ65 ♡83 ◇954 ♣KJ76
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—A similar problem to the first. Again you have a maximum raise to two spades, but this time you have nothing to cue-bid — you can't try five clubs, because that would promise the ace. The solution is to jump to five spades — that shows good trumps and will allay partner's fears about the trump suit.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠7 ♡K983 ◇AK865 ♣Q105
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♡	?

What action do you take?

A.—What would you like to do? To bid two diamonds on a five-card suit of dubious quality courts disaster, and you can't make a takeout double because you don't have enough spades. Pass, and wait to see how the auction develops.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK83 ♡K1092 ◇A852 ♣6
The bidding has proceeded:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	Dble	Pass	1 ♠

What action do you take?

A.—You have a good hand, but don't do anything precipitate. Remember, you have forced partner to bid and he might have little or nothing. Raise to two spades. A free raise by a takeout doubler shows a hand worth 16-18 points, and that describes your hand exactly.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠954 ♡A82 ◇Q7 ♣QJ1063
The bidding has proceeded:

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 NT	Pass	?

What action do you take?

A.—It sounds as if partner has a hand that qualified for a one no trump opening except for the fact that he had a five-card spade suit. With your maximum you want to be in game, but you cannot be quite sure whether three no trump or four spades is your best spot. Find out by bidding three spades and let partner make the choice.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠83 ♡AKQJ7 ◇AJ3 ♣764
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♡	Pass

What action do you take?

A.—You have a seven-loser hand, and it is unreasonable to expect partner, who could do no more than make a single raise, to be able to cover four of those losers. Therefore, you should pass. Don't endanger a plus score by straining for a game that is almost surely beyond your side's resources.

Questions in space

If there is an encore to the giant step for mankind taken on the moon in 1969 perhaps it is the immense reach of the hand extended into space by the Pioneer 10 spacecraft. This 550-pound bundle of instruments launched from Florida in 1972 crossed the orbit of the distant planet Pluto last Monday and is on a trajectory that will take it outside our solar system into the infinity of space.

Never before has an object fashioned by human beings traveled so far. The 9-foot-long spacecraft is now 2.7 billion miles from earth, so far that it takes four hours and 16 minutes for its radio signals to reach us at the speed of light. The craft is expected to continue transmitting its faint radio impulses for another eight years, which will take it to a point five billion miles away.

Pioneer has done its work as a planetary explorer during the last 11 years and is now heading into the unknown as the bearer of a simple message. A 6-by-9-inch aluminum plate affixed to the spacecraft carries the image of a man and a woman and an astronomical map indicating the location of our solar system in relation to familiar stars. Its purpose is to show what kind of creatures sent the spacecraft on its way and where it came from.

Astronomers believe that in our own galaxy, the milky way, there are at least 600 million planets which could be considered capable of supporting some kind of life. This seems to pose favorable odds that Pioneer 10 could encounter an alien intelligence. But at its speed of a mere 25,700 miles per hour, Pioneer 10 would not reach the closest of those potentially life-supporting planets for more than two-trillion years. If a reply comes back, will there be anyone here to receive it?

The more important message of Pioneer 10 should be the one it sends to this generation of Americans. The news every day reminds us of our failures and unsolved problems, the questions that still stump our intelligence and frustrate our ambitions. Yet the faint signal from a spacecraft billions of miles away represents an extraordinary achievement of human ingenuity.

In a cosmos which reckons time in light years, there has been only the flick of an eye since the creature homo sapiens learned to use primitive tools and began the story of civilization. How incredible that today we have pushed the frontier of human intelligence to the limit of the solar system and beyond.

We may never know whether there is anyone out there to respond to our questions about other worlds, but we do know that the questions are being asked by some extraordinary minds.

Another View:

Negotiating grain

President Reagan quietly announced the other day that his administration is now willing to resume negotiations toward a new, long-term grain agreement with the Soviet Union. Although the decision amounts to a retreat by the president from the sanctions imposed against the Soviets after martial law was imposed in Poland, it is the right thing to do.

At the beginning of the 1970s the Soviet Union was a net grain exporter. But the communist bloc's share of world wheat production plunged drastically during the following decade. The Soviets are now heavily dependent on imports of foreign grain.

The U.S. role as the dominant source of grain supplies to the Soviet Union was formalized with the signing of an agreement in 1976 under which Moscow agreed to buy a minimum of 6 million tons of wheat and corn per year. In practice the Soviets usually bought more.

When Soviet forces invaded Afghanistan in December 1979, President Jimmy Carter retaliated by imposing an embargo which, in effect, limited grain sales to 8 million tons a year. President Reagan lifted the embargo shortly after taking office, but suspended talks toward a new, long-term grain agreement when martial law was imposed in Poland. Instead, he offered year-by-year extensions of the old agreement, which expired in the fall of 1981.

As recently as last July, Reagan vowed that the ban on a long-term agreement would continue "until the Soviet Union indicates that it is prepared to permit the process of reconciliation to go forward in Poland ...."

Pressure has grown for a change in U.S. policy as a result of the worldwide glut of grain supplies, and the depressing effect that this had on export markets for American farmers. The administration let it be known that the Soviets could buy up to 23 million tons, but the Russians were not interested, in the absence of a long-term agreement.

Reagan, in announcing that he is ending the prohibition on long-term negotiations, said the step is being taken "to reestablish the United States as a reliable supplier."

Aides cautioned that the move should not be construed as a sign of reduced concern over the Soviet role in Poland.

It is nonetheless inevitable that our Western European allies will use the Reagan decision as still another excuse to resist American appeals for joint restraints on sales of high-technology to the Soviet Union.

That is unfortunate. But the president's decision to clear the way for a new long-term grain agreement — if Moscow is interested — is correct. The American government has made its point, first with the grain embargo and later with the ban on negotiations for a new agreement. The Soviets were forced for a time to pay a price in terms of higher costs and the introduction of uncertainty into their planning process.

But grain exports constitute an extremely important plus for the U.S. balance of trade, which is in bad shape. And, American farmers should not indefinitely be expected to sit by and watch the Russians buy their grain from Argentina, Canada and other sources.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Neutron bomb aimed at Korea

WASHINGTON — Most Americans probably got the idea that the neutron bomb — the nuclear weapon that kills people but leaves buildings intact — was shelved years ago after running into a storm of critical outrage.

Jack Anderson

Actually, the Pentagon has been quietly producing neutron warheads since August 1981, when President Reagan gave the go-ahead. This is despite the fact that our European allies have refused to allow neutron bombs on their territory, Soviet threat or not.

But military planners know there's another place the tactical neutron bombs could be used effectively: South Korea. There is talk in the Pentagon of doing just that.

In fact, it was in South Korea that the neutron bomb's inventor, Sam Cohen, first conceived it. On a secret 1951 mission to Seoul as a Defense Department consultant, he noticed a large bridge over the Han River on the outskirts of the capital that had proven impervious to conventional bombing. North Korean troops and tanks had swept across the bridge and captured Seoul.

A small nuclear bomb would have done the job, but it would have devastated Seoul in the process and left deadly radiation in its wake. The city would have been destroyed to prevent its capture — which is almost what happened when it was retaken anyway.

Had neutron bombs been available for the battle to recapture Seoul, Cohen says, "their application would have represented a highly discriminate attack — far more so than was the attack that actually took place using conventional weapons, and which pretty well leveled the city."

Cohen made a case in his recently published book, "The Truth About the Neutron Bomb," that his bomb got a bad rap in the emotional 1977 debate over its possible deployment in Western Europe. Used against Soviet armor on the north German plains, Cohen believes, it could overcome the Russians' crushing advantage over NATO forces. The North Koreans have a similar edge.

There is no effective protection for tank crews against the neutron bomb. Shielding heavy enough to block penetration of the lethal neutrons would render the tanks too unwieldy for battlefield maneuvering.

It's not generally known, but the United States already has tactical nuclear weapons deployed in South Korea. My associates Dale Van Atta and Ron McRae have seen details of the deployment, as well as of the entire neutron bomb program.

A secret Pentagon report lists the non-strategic nuclear weapons available in the Pacific area: 133 bombs deliverable by plane, 63 eight-inch howitzer shells, 31 155-millimeter howitzer rounds and 21 "atomic demolition munitions" (ADMs).

The ADMs are nuclear land mines, buried within a mile of the Demilitarized Zone between North and South Korea (some right next to the fence). They would be detonated by remote control if the North's armored forces headed across the DMZ toward Seoul, 40 kilometers away.

Most of the neutron bomb production consists of some 340 warheads built for the Lance ground-to-ground missile, which is not yet deployed in South Korea. The Pentagon is also producing eight-inch neutron artillery rounds that can be used by South Korean howitzers, and is working on a new 155-millimeter artillery shell with a neutron version.

For now, these weapons are being stockpiled only on U.S. territory. They can be deployed only with the permission of the country involved. Most likely, South Korea will agree to the deployment of neutron bombs.

CAR WARS: Federal Trade Commission Chairman James Miller has decided to ascend from the ridiculous to the sublime in his feud with Commissioner Michael Pertschuk. Some time ago, Miller, in a fit of perquisitorial pique, ordered Pertschuk's car — a green Hornet — towed from its parking spot because Pertschuk had forgotten to put his official ID tag in the windshield.

Cooler heads prevailed, and Miller rescinded his order. Now, sources say, he has decided to battle the liberal Pertschuk on strictly ideological grounds.

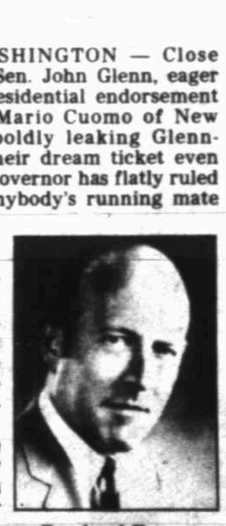

If Miller is now taking the high road, a couple of House subcommittees may not be. They're planning to investigate the FTC — and one thing they want to find out is why the high-flying chairman wings off to Japan, Australia, France and Mexico while cutting back on regional FTC staffs.

INSIDE REPORT:

NY governor may be 'mate'

WASHINGTON — Close advisers of Sen. John Glenn, eager to win a presidential endorsement from Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York, are boldly leaking Glenn-Cuomo as their dream ticket even though the governor has flatly ruled out being anybody's running mate in 1984.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Although Cuomo seems closer ideologically to front-runner Walter F. Mondale than to the more conservative Glenn, he never really has forgiven the former vice president for not supporting him in the 1982 primary for governor. Consequently, Glenn's tacticians are hoping for a New York breakthrough engineered by a Cuomo endorsement.

A footnote: Gov. Richard Celeste of Ohio is boosting a different running mate for Glenn — Sen. Bill Bradley of New Jersey. The combination of the astronaut and basketball star, low on charisma but high on glamour, might devastate Republicans seeking the independent vote.

'NO TROOPS' PLEDGE

Although hard-line Reaganites in Congress praised the president's nononsense speech Wednesday on Central American threat, there was one criticism: His pledge not to send U.S. troops to help the anti-communist forces in El Salvador if needed.

Sen. Steve Symms of Idaho, an ex-Marine and strong supporter of President Reagan's rearmament program, was typical. He praised Reagan's defense of his Central American policy but took sharp exception to the no-troop pledge. "Ron should not have ruled out the use of force," Symms told one Senate insider, adding that it might "come back to haunt him" if conditions worsen.

Conservatives also were critical of the president's last-minute decision not to immediately announce former senator Richard Stone as special emissary to oversee Central American policy. Indecision over whether a Catholic might be preferable to Stone (who is Jewish) caused the delay.

REAGAN'S GRIEF

Presidential grief over the death of Robert Ames, the CIA's top Mideast analyst, in the Beirut embassy bomb blast played a role in Ronald Reagan's decision to send Secretary of State George Shultz to Jerusalem.

Not generally known is the close relationship that had built up since last fall between the president and Ames, the intelligence specialist who last summer became Reagan's personal briefer on the Arab-Israeli struggle. Although naturally devastated by the death of other Americans in the embassy, it was Ames' loss that, in the words of one official, "really got to Reagan."

The president told national security adviser William P. Clark to order Shultz to the Middle East at once to arrange an immediate withdrawal of foreign forces, starting with Israel's, from Lebanon. That suited Clark just fine. He had been suggesting Shultz's first mission to the Middle East for weeks, but the secretary did not want to go.

NEARLY SNUBBING NOFZIGER

Presidential chief of staff James Baker's animosity toward veteran Reaganite Lyn Nofziger was demonstrated when Nofziger very nearly was barred admittance to a recent White House planning session on the 1984 presidential campaign.

When Reagan's 1980 regional political directors were invited to the White House for a briefing, Nofziger asked to sit in. A staff functionary started to routinely arrange it, but to his surprise received orders from Baker subordinates that Nofziger was definitely not welcome. Rebuffed, Nofziger put a "so what" face on it by telling friends there was not much to be learned from David Gergen and the other Baker subalterns in charge of the briefing.

Friends of Nofziger intervened to reverse the decision. Nevertheless, it was made clear he was not to become a fixture at campaign sessions. The lesson: Nofziger, whose service to Reagan goes back to 1966, will not be integrated into 1984 campaign planning so long as Jim Baker is in charge.

SENATE GOP REBOUND

Soaring optimism among Iowa Democrats that liberal Rep. Tom Harkin will spearhead the party's recapture of the Senate next year by unseating conservative Sen. Roger Jepsen has suddenly been transformed to gloomy apprehension.

The Des Moines Register poll showing a virtual Jepsen-Harkin dead heat confirmed deepening fears among Democratic activists that Harkin might be just too liberal for Iowa. Party workers regard Harkin as well to the left of former senator John Culver, who carried the liberal label to defeat in 1980. What's more, no moderate Republican has emerged to threaten Jepsen in the GOP primary.

A footnote: The uphill Republican struggle to maintain Senate control is likely to get another boost with the expected re-election decision of Sen. Mark Hatfield, chairman of the Appropriations Committee. Although he is increasingly off the Reagan administration reservation on key votes, the liberal Hatfield is almost a certainty to keep the Oregon seat Republican. If he had stepped down, as seemed likely a few weeks ago, the Democrats would have been favored to fill the void.

CHARLEY REESE

Propaganda policy of Soviets

Back in 1978, the Central Intelligence Agency released a report on Soviet propaganda that clearly sheds light on the current campaigns being conducted against United States efforts to re-arm, to oppose Communist take-overs in Central America, and to negotiate a valid arms control treaty.

Charley Reese

The CIA report first notes that the Soviets believe that propaganda plays a highly significant role in the execution of foreign policy. Propaganda campaigns are planned and directed at the highest levels of the Soviet regime. (Remember, the late Leonid Breshnev first proposed a nuclear freeze.)

The CIA report says:

"To carry out its propaganda programs, the Soviets have developed a world-wide network of assets second to none, consisting of an extensive shortwave radio system; two news agencies; the pro-Soviet communist parties; the international communist fronts; bilateral friendship societies and other quasi-official instrumentalities; a large corps of foreign correspondents, many of them intelligence officers; the foreign clandestine propaganda assets under the control of the KGB; and the intelligence services and assets of Cuba and Moscow's eastern European allies."

The CIA report, while acknowledging that all countries use propaganda, points out that the Soviets place an unusually major emphasis on it, spending in excess of $2 billion annually, and directing it from the highest levels of Soviet government.

The CIA summarizes the Soviet's continuing objectives as: (1) to influence both world and American public opinion against U.S. military and political programs perceived as threatening to the Soviets; (2) to portray the U.S. as an "aggressive, colonialist, racist, and imperialist" power; (3) to isolate the United States from its allies; (4) to discredit those who cooperate with the U.S.; (5) to portray the policies and goals of the U.S. as incompatible with the ambitions of the underdeveloped world; (6) to discredit and weaken Western intelligence services and expose their personnel; and (7) to confuse world public opinion regarding the aggressive nature of Soviet policies.

This report lists themes employed by Soviet propagandists. You will no doubt recognize them as very familiar. One theme is that the U.S. is devoting excessive funds to its military budget in general and to its weapons development in particular. Another theme is that allies and friends of the U.S. are servants of imperialism and henchmen of the CIA. Still another theme is that the U.S. is the devoted friend of right-wing regimes.

Here is a short summary of Soviet propaganda assets: 2,000 hours per week of radio broadcasts in 84 languages; two major news agencies; extensive publishing houses; foreign communist parties which supply speakers, writers and demonstrators; and the international fronts.

These major fronts are: Afro-Asian People's Solidarity Organization; Afro-Asian Writers Permanent Bureau; International Association of Democratic Lawyers; International Federation of Resistance Fighters; International Organization of Journalists; International Union of Students; Women's International Economic Federation; World Federation of Democratic Youth; World Federation of Scientific Workers; World Federation of Trade Unions; International Radio and Television Organization; the Christian Peace Conference; and the granddaddy of them all, the World Peace Council.

Another important feature of Soviet propaganda is that it has no compunction at all about lying or about engaging in outright fraud, such as forgeries.

There is a counterpart of this Soviet apparatus which works in the United States, some openly, some covertly. Unfortunately, so many Americans have been conditioned by the excesses of the McCarthy era that they over-react by refusing to look honestly at the situation lest they be called red-baiters. To be sure, they would be — by the apparatus.

It explains, however, why every move by the United States which the Soviet Union opposes automatically becomes "controversial" whether it's a new arms control proposal, an increase in defense spending, or support for the government of El Salvador.

nation in brief

Investigation conducted in FAA

GALLOWAY TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — Employees at a Federal Aviation Administration facility have been copying government computer components for sale to private businesses, the FBI says.

Agents raided the FAA Technical Center on Saturday and seized computer software and hardware equipment, said FBI Special Agent George Moresco. "They are running a computer business with the (government) equipment," he said.

No employees have been charged in the alleged scheme, according to technical center spokeswoman Sue Silverman, who said, "If any employee is going to be suspended it obviously will not occur before the FBI investigation is completed."

Driver faces assault charge

NEW YORK (AP) — The driver of a car that smashed through the front of a midtown store — killing a woman and injuring 26 other people — faces manslaughter, drunken driving and assault charges, police say.

Eleven of the injured were still hospitalized Sunday.

Police said James Harrison's car sideswiped a line of parked cars Saturday, jumped a curb and plunged through a crowd of pedestrians on 34th Street before crashing into a women's clothing store near Macy's department store.

Examiner says death suicide

WASHINGTON (AP) — A medical examiner says Waldo H. Dubberstein, a former Pentagon intelligence analyst charged with selling secret information to Libya, died of a shotgun wound "consistent with being self-inflicted," but his wife doubts her husband killed himself.

Dubberstein's body was found Friday in the basement of a building in Arlington, Va., where the retired Middle East specialist apparently lived with his girlfriend, authorities said.

Just hours earlier, Dubberstein, 75, failed to appear in federal court in Alexandria, Va., to enter a plea to charges filed Thursday that he sold secret U.S. information about the Middle East to Edwin P. Wilson and Libyan intelligence agents.

Students want weapons control

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — Ivy League students, urging controls on nuclear arms proliferation, say that if the arms race continues unchecked it will lead to "mutually assured destruction."

The students issued position papers recommending that Congress pass a non-binding resolution urging the United States and the Soviet Union to freeze production and deployment of nuclear weapons, change the way weapons are approved and set up a new agency to give the U.S. public more information on the national defense.

Fixty-six delegates from Yale, Brown, Harvard, Princeton, Cornell, Pennsylvania, Columbia and Dartmouth universities reported on various aspects of nuclear arms to the conference, which ended Sunday.

Man attempts to murder son

WEBSTER, Mass. (AP) — Police thought they were trying to catch a motorist who didn't pay for his gas, but they ended up arresting the man and charging him with attempted murder when they found his son bleeding on the back seat.

Robert R. Rumrill Jr., 24, of Webster, was to be arraigned today in Dudley District Court on a variety of charges, including attempted murder, according to Webster Patrolman Jack Lloyd.

He was arrested early Sunday in Dudley, after his car hit a police cruiser, according to Dudley police officer Lenny Gervy. In the back seat was Rumrill's 3-year-old son, Robert R. Rumrill III, bleeding from a stab wound.

A hunting knife was found in the car, Gervy said.

The child was in satisfactory and stable condition early today in the intensive care ward at Hubbard Regional Hospital in Webster, after surgery for a stab wound in his chest, an emergency room nurse said.

The chase began about 11:30 p.m. Saturday after an attendant at gasoline station in Webster called police, claiming a motorist had left the station without paying his $6 bill.

Publisher receives jail sentence

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Daniel Timerman, son of Argentine human rights activist Jacobo Timerman, has receieved a 35-day jail sentence for refusing to serve with the Israeli army in Lebanon, the military command reported.

The sentence issued Sunday is Timerman's second prison term for refusing to serve in Lebanon for reasons of conscience. Last October, Timerman, 31, spent 28 days in jail. At the time, his father quoted him as saying he didn't want to do to Lebanon "what the Argentine army did to my family."

Jacobo Timerman, a publisher in Argentina before being deported, was jailed in 1977 for 29 months for denouncing the Argentine government. He wrote about his experiences in jail and under torture in the book "Prisoner Without a Name, Cell Without a Number."

The elder Timerman was stripped of his Argentine citizenship. He now is an Israeli citizen.

Jailed newsmen win election

MANILA, Philippines (AP) - Two newspapermen jailed by President Ferdinand E. Marcos for alleged involvement in Communist conspiracies were elected directors of the National Press Club today, sweeping two of the top three places.

Antonio Nieva, former columnist of the daily Bulletin Today, topped the polls with 282 votes and Jose G. Burgos, publisher of the opposition tabloid We Forum which had been shut down by the military, finished third with 265 votes.

The two garnered more votes that club president Ben Rodriguez, editor of Bulletin Today, who won re-election to that post.

The government has accused Nieva and Burgos of involvement in alleged communist-backed conspiracies to overthrow Marcos. Both denied the charges.

Marcos ordered Nieva, an organizer of newspaper trade unions, released under house arrest Friday after 18 days of military detention. Burgos was held for a week last December until Marcos ordered his transfer to house arrest.

French President greeted in Nepal

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — French President Francois Mitterrand was greeted by young girls with flowers, an honor guard and King Birenda as he arrived today for a one-day visit to this mountain nation.

Mitterrand, the first French president to visit this Himalayan kingdomm sandwiched between India and China, is beginning a tour that will include a six-day visit to China.

Crowds of people 10 to 15 deep stood along the main thoroughfare in this city and cheered Mitterrand as he passed. The government declared Monday a public holiday in the Katmandu valley to allow people to greet the French leader.

Woman to serve in Israeli Cabinet

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Liberal Party member Sarah Doron has won Cabinet approval to serve as minister without portfolio — making her the third woman ever to serve in the Israeli Cabinet.

If Sunday's vote is upheld in Parliament, she would join the late Golda Meir, who served as foreign minister, labor minister and prime minister, and Shulamit Aloni, who was minister without portfolio in 1974, as the only women who have served in the Cabinet.

Prime Minister Menachem Begin's coalition is expected to override any opposition to her appointment when it comes up for a vote this week in the 120-member Knesset, Israel's Parliament.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — About 2,000 entertainers in the Seoul area have lost their jobs because of new restrictions affecting discoteques and similar establishments, the Korean Artists' Association said today.

Norway searches for foreign submarine

STAVANGER, Norway (AP) — Norway conducted a scaled-down search today for a possible foreign submarine after its weekend barrage of missiles and depth charges produced no results.

"The decision to scale down the search at present was taken after there was no result of Sunday's actions and no new overnight indications," said Erik Senstad, information officer for the Defense Ministry of this NATO country.

He said the search fleet was reduced this morning to one frigate, two submarines and one Orion surveillance plane.

The other surface vessels, including two frigates, were withdrawn to their bases, Senstad said.

The hunt started Wednesday when two divers who had served in the navy reported they had seen the tower of a submarine on the 1,500-foot-deep Hardanger Fjord, between Bergen and Stavanger on Norway's North Sea coast.

During the hunt, 24 Norwegian-built anti-submarine Tern missiles and four depth charges were fired in vain attempts to force what the navy called "a possible foreign submarine" to the surface for identification.

Pope's attacker 'guilty'

VILA NOVA DE OUREM, Portugal (AP) — A Spanish priest who lunged at Pope John Paul II with a bayonet at a Fatima shrine last year was found guilty of attempted murder and sentenced today to 6½ years in jail.

"Only the mother of God has the right to condemn me," Juan Fernandez Krohn, 33, shouted when a three-judge District Court handed down the verdict and sentence. "I cannot accept this conviction."

After the priest shouted: "puppet, murderer, communist" at the presiding judge, the panel ruled he would be tried in his absence for contempt of court.

Krohn, dressed in a green cassock with a broad red sash from shoulder to waist, raised his arms and turned to the packed 150-seat court room when Presiding Judge Polibio da Silva Flor read the sentence.

The priest, who has been associated with ultra-traditionalist Roman Catholic factions, was sentenced to six years for the attempted assassination last May 13 and six months for illegal possession of the 14-inch bayonet.

After a hearing on the charge of contempt of court, he was sentenced to an additional seven-month prison term and fined $184.

NATO papers found in street

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard detectives and Defense Ministry security officials today were investigating how a sealed white canvas bag containing classified NATO documents was lost in a London street.

Garage owner Michael Scott found the bag market "Top Secret — NATO" in the Bermondsey district of London's East End on Friday, officials said.

A Defense Ministry spokesman said the documents "were not highly classified and we don't believe them to be sensitive. But we're not happy about this and we're investigating how they came to be lying in the street."

Scotland Yard sources said the bag, addressed to the Defense Ministry, apparently fell from a vehicle.

However, The Daily Telegraph newspaper quoted Scott, 28, as saying he opened the bag and found "what appeared to be a graph with names and details of submarines.

"I saw the word 'nuclear' and there was a table giving details of where the submarines were operating, their firepower, speeds, depths and other information."

He added: "I saw another document with information about tanks. This made me a bit frightened so I fastened up the bag and handed it to the police."

Low prices may hurt nations

KUWAUT (AP) — The 10-nation organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries stand to suffer a $117 billion shortfall in revenues because of a drop in oil prices and a decline in demand, the organization reported.

The bulletin urged the member nations countries to discontinue "consumption patterns alien to the lifestyle of the vast majority of the people of the region."

Milwaukee bucks Celtic tradition, 107-99

San Antonio can sweep Denver tonight

By The Associated Press

The Boston Celtics, on the verge of being swept in a best-of-7 series for the first time in their storied history, are still talking about making up a 3-0 deficit against the Milwaukee Bucks.

The Celtics, who won National Basketball Association titles in 1968 and 1981 after trailing 3-1 in the playoffs and took the 1969 championship after falling behind 2-0 in the finals, face a task that no team in league history has been able to accomplish.

"I've got 11 guys with a new slogan — 'You can count us down, but not out,'" Boston Coach Bill Fitch said after the Bucks beat the Celtics 107-99 Sunday. "If there is any team in sports that can come back from 3-0, I think I might be coaching it."

ELSEWHERE IN the NBA playoffs, Philadelphia beat New York 105-102 for a four-game sweep of the other Eastern Conference semifinal. In the West, Portland cut its series deficit to 3-1 with a 108-95 triumph over Los Angeles, while San Antonio, leading 3-0, is at Denver tonight.

"I think if we can come back and win three in a row to tie, we'll win it," Fitch said.

But Larry Bird, who led Boston with 21 points after having missed Friday night's game with a 104-degree fever, said the Celtics will need more than slogans to come back.

"We're hurting ourselves," Bird said. "We used to be a great basketball team down the stretch, getting big spurts of points. Now we're struggling down the stretch. We'll have to play a lot better."

SIDNEY MONCRIEF scored 26 points for Milwaukee, while Marques Johnson added 22 and ignited a fourth-quarter surge with seven straight Bucks points.

With the score tied 87-87, Milwaukee started going to Johnson inside because he was being guarded by slower-moving forward Scott Wedman. Johnson scored on a three-point play and two jumpers to give Milwaukee a 94-89 lead with 6:46 left, and Boston never caught up.

"Scott is a good defensive player fundamentally, but I have certain advantages on him down low," Johnson said. "I think I can use my quickness and jumping ability to get the shot off."

THE BUCKS admit that behind ahead 3-0 is a surprise development because of Boston's tradition and its regular-season record that was five games better than Milwaukee's.

"I'm sure no one expected us to be up 3-0," Johnson said. "It's a new experience for us because the only series we ever won in my six years here was a mini-series with Phoenix. It's surprising, but we've played good enough that it's not a fluke thing."

"To be quite honest, I didn't think in terms of being anywhere after three games," Bucks Coach Don Nelson said. "We just approached each game as it came and tried to give it our best shot."

NBA Playoffs

76ers 105, Knicks 102

Moses Malone, who outscored New York centers Bill Cartwright and Marvin Webster 125-60 in the four-game series, rallied from a frustrating first half to score 23 of his 29 points after halftime.

Malone's heroics will allow the battered 76ers to rest at least until Sunday before meeting the Bucks-Celtics winner.

"I'm very pleased to win in four games," Philadelphia Coach Billy Cunningham said. "Our concern now is we have several injured players."

Guard Maurice Cheeks sprained his right ankle and Clemon Johnson suffered a slight hamstring pull to join Malone, flu-weakened Bobby Jones and Andrew Toney with health problems for the 76ers. Malone has two gimpy knees and Toney a bruised thigh that kept him out of action for most of the second half after he scored 14 points in the 24 minutes.

"Our depth was a big factor," Cunningham said. "I'm very pleased with what we achieved with having people injured."

Malone, who also had 10 of his 14 rebounds in the second half, said of the final two periods, "I got on the boards more. I looked for my shots more, and I got more aggressive. New York played great, but we won all four."

Malone scored 10 of Philadelphia's final 13 points to help the 76ers take command in the tightly contested game, which had 23 lead changes and 18 ties. His free throw made it 104-96 with 1:24 left, but three-point field goals by Bernard King and Paul Westphal made the final margin closer.

King led all scorers with 35 points in a losing cause.

Blazers 108, Lakers 105

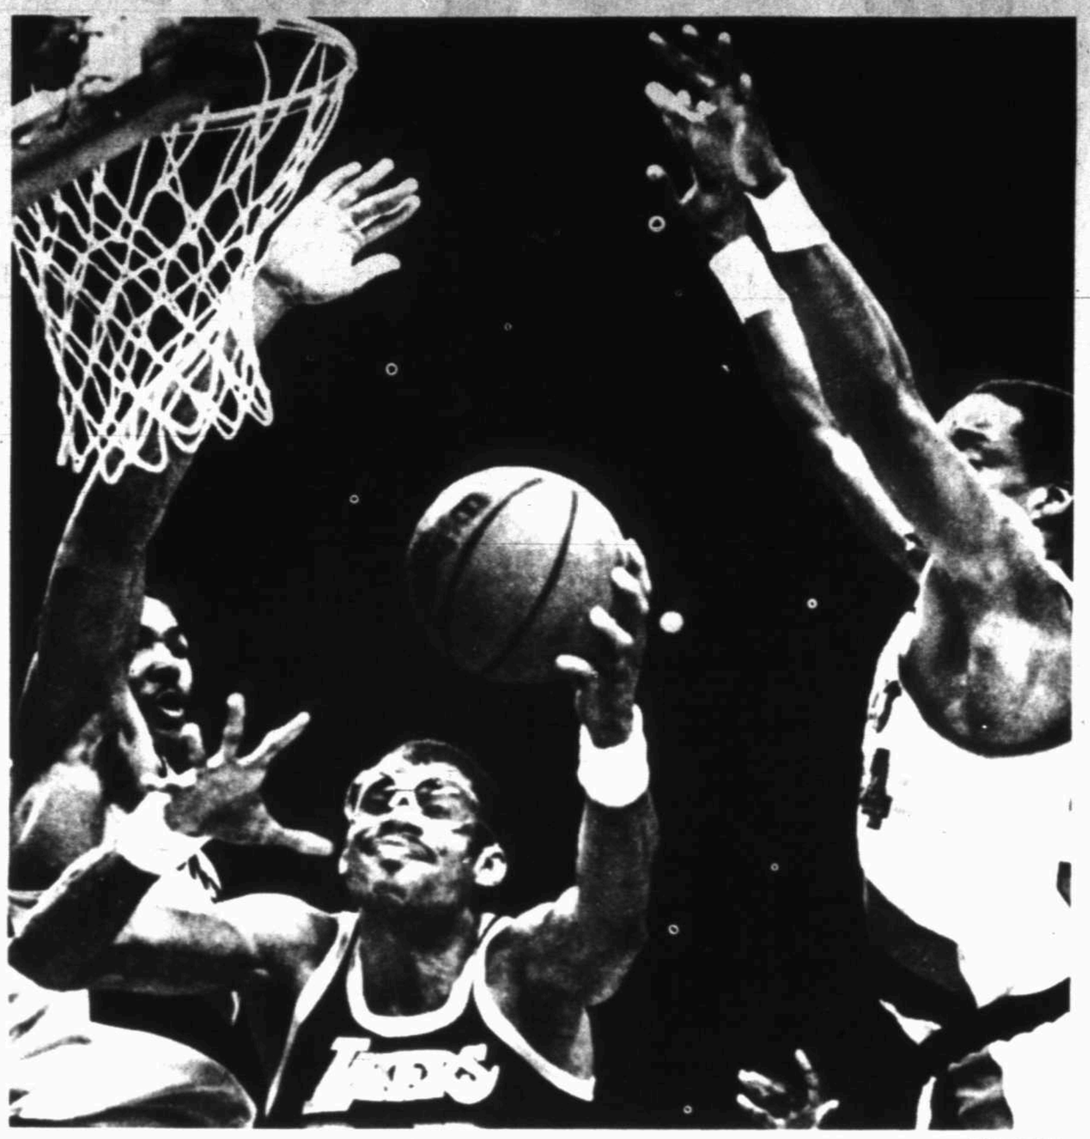

Portland, like Boston, believes it has a chance to catch defending champion Los Angeles.

"This team has never quit during the year," Portland Coach Jack Ramsay said. "Frankly, I'm confident we can beat them."

"As the clock was winding down," added Trail Blazer forward Mychal Thompson, "the thing that came to mind was an air bubble rising to the surface. That's a sign of life. We're still deep under water but we're still alive."

A 17-4 spurt in the first quarter gave Portland a 28-15 lead and the Blazers went on to lead by as many as 22 points in the second quarter. The Lakers didn't get closer than nine points in the second half.

Guards Jim Paxson and Darnell Valentine scored 20 and 18 points, respectively, for Portland, while Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 34 for the Lakers — his fourth straight game over the 30-point mark.

Perez's five RBI clubs Astros; Niekro beats Seaver

By The Associated Press

It's an old story — Tony Perez just keeps on hitting.

"He'll be the first baseman until he cools off; everybody else will have to wait their turn," said Philadelphia Manager Pat Corrales after watching his rejuvenated veteran continue to tear up National League pitching Sunday in an 11-3 rout of Houston.

Perez socked a single, double, sacrifice fly and his first home run of the season, and batted in five runs. The performance raised Perez's average to .391 and extended his hitting streak to 10 games.

"He can hit that ball, and that's why we got him," said Corrales. "At the moment, he is not just a pinch-hitter and utility first baseman."

NL Roundup

Perez, who will celebrate his 41st birthday May 14, was signed by the Phillies this year strictly as a pinch-hitter and backup first baseman. But he was forced into full-time service when Von Hayes was sidelined with an injury and first baseman Pete Rose was shifted to the outfield.

"I'm surprised I'm playing so much," said the former Cincinnati star who also played with Montreal and Boston. "Right now I feel nobody can get me out."

Perez singled home the first run in a five-run first, hit a sacrifice fly in the third, doubled home a run in the fourth and slugged a two-run homer in the sixth.

Dodgers 3, Cubs 2

Pedro Guerrero drove in a run with a sacrifice fly and Greg Brock doubled home another to pace Los Angeles over Chicago. The game was called after a 90-minute downpour in the sixth inning, although Chicago Manager Lee Elia was ejected in the bottom of the fifth for arguing that it should have been halted then.

Braves 2, Mets 1

Phil Niekro won his first game of the season and Bob Horner doubled home the winning run in a two-run sixth, leading Atlanta over New York.

Winning the 258th game of his career, Niekro, 1-2, allowed five hits, including Hubie Brooks' RBI single in the first, and struck out six before he was lifted with none out and two on in the eighth. Reliever Steve Bedrosian squelched the Mets, recording his second save.

Met right-hander Tom Seaver, 1-2, had a shutout going until the sixth. But with one out, Rafael Ramirez singled and stole second. One out later, Dale Murphy's single sent Ramirez home to tie the score and Horner's double gave the Braves their winning run.

Cardinals 10, Giants 9

Willie McGee slugged a three-run homer and George Hendrick and Lonnie Smith drove in two runs apiece to power St. Louis over San Francisco.

St. Louis starter John Stuper, 2-1, weathered seven San Francisco hits and five walks before leaving in the sixth. Relievers Jeff Lahti and Bruce Sutter finished up, with Sutter recording his third save.

Four of the Cardinals' hits, including RBI shots by Ken Oberkfell and Smith in a three-run first inning, were triples. San Francisco starter Fred Breining, 2-3, yielded the Cardinals' first five runs, including the additional run in the first on Hendrick's single.

Expos 5-3, Reds 4-6

Warren Cromartie's sacrifice fly in the sixth inning brought in Tim Wallach with the go-ahead run and Andre Dawson added a two-run, inside-the-park homer in the eighth, leading Montreal over Cincinnati in the first game of their doubleheader.

Ron Oester tripled in two runs with one out in the ninth inning to snap a 3-3 tie and the Reds went on to beat the Expos in the nightcap.

'The Dutchman', dead at age 56

MONROE, Ga. (AP) — Norm Van Brocklin, who led both the Los Angeles Rams and Philadelphia Eagles to National Football League titles and later coached the Minnesota Vikings and Atlanta Falcons, died early today, according to a spokeswoman at Walton County Hospital.

Van Brocklin, 56, showed no signs of life when an ambulance arrived at his home in Social Circle shortly before 1 a.m, said Anne Haymaker, a nursing supervisor at the hospital. She said he was pronounced dead at the hospital at 1:05 a.m. EDT.

Haymaker said she did not know the the cause of death, but "there is no question it's nothing other than natural causes." But she said the Van Brocklin family has requested an autopsy. The Walton County Medical Examiner, Dr. Jeffery Cohenour, was expected make a decision today on that request.

Van Brocklin starred for the Rams from 1949 to 1957 before being traded to Philadelphia where he led the Eagles in 1960 to their last league crown in his final season as a player. They defeated the Green Bay Packers in the late Vince Lombardi's first appearance as a coach in a title game.

A collegiate All-American at Oregon, Van Brocklin is a member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Ironcically, his death comes a little more than a month after that of Bob Waterfield, with whom he shared quarterbacking duties in leading the Rams to the NFL crown in 1951. Waterfield, who retired in 1952, died March 25.

In addition to the NFL title in 1951, Van Brocklin was instrumental in leading the Rams to Western Conference titles in 1949, 1950 and 1955.

Van Brocklin went to the Eagles in 1958, playing for three seasons before assuming command of the expansionist Minnesota Vikings In 1961. He compiled a 29-51-4 record before being fired in 1967.

Norm Van Brocklin

Three games into the 1968 season, he replaced Norb Hecker in the Atlanta coaching slot. Under Van Brocklin, the Falcons were 37-49-3 until he was fired during the 1974 season.

Van Brocklin's last footall job was that of an assistant coach at Georgia Tech in 1979.

Van Brocklin worked with the offense and analyzed films during his year at Tech. But, because of his medical problems, he was away from the team on several occasions.

Van Brocklin underwent brain surgery twice in 1979. The first time was to relieve an oxygen shortage. A week later, he underwent surgery to correct complications caused by the first operation.

Van Brocklin, known as "The Dutchman," also operated a pecan farm in Social Circle.

SAN ANTONIO — The Midland Cubs guaranteed themselves a series win by downing the San Antonio Dodgers 11-3 here Sunday night.

The Cubs took a three run lead in the second inning and led 8-0 at the end fourth in the easy victory. Midland leads the series 3-1 going into tonight's finale.

Second baseman, Trey Brooks, got his second homer of the season for the Cubs and finished the game with three runs-batted-in. Brooks also doubled.

The Cubs pounded out 14 hits including a double, triple and Brooks' home run.

Larry See hit a homer for San Antonio.

Stan Kyles improved his record to 2-2, in going eight innings. The loser was Jody Johnston, 1-2.

'Ole guy' wasn't born yesterday

TED BATTLES
BATTLE SCENE

Bob Brundage can expect to spend his football season raking leaves and covering the Cyclones in Notrees, Texas.

As for Tim Whalen, I don't know what I'm going to do with him. Perhaps I can wangle a job for him as a manager for Clark Griffith, one of his minor league clubs. Players, who are well-paid compared to managers, are the lowest paid in the majors in the Twins' organization. You can image what Minnesota's minor league managers get. Would serve him right...for that below the belt blow.

THAT CRACK the Midland High baseball coach made, and Brundage spread all over town, before the game Saturday about the "ole guy", that's what's got me upset. No wonder the Rebels lost to the Bulldogs Saturday. Ernie Johnson still hasn't recovered. His lower lip still quivers in disbelief.

That's about as dirty as you can get on the eve of the big game.

"Ole guy!" shoot, I still call Ernie "Kid" and I was kinda hoping he could win the District 4-5A baseball title. I mean, it would look good on his resume. You know, how you pull for a guy trying to make a good impression on his first job.

Pull that off, and Midland Schools AD Gil Bartosh might decide to keep him around for a while.

"OLE GUY?" Ernie's hair isn't even gray.

"Ole Guy?" Ernie hasn't even been around Midland as long as I have. Let's see I've been here, must be 10 or 15 years now, so that means Ernie's still learning the ropes out at Lee.

What? You say Ernie became Lee's first coach in 1960. That can't be. Why it was just yesterday that Don Puckett was his star pitcher, went to the Naval Academy and, I understand, is living in Australia. No, it's not true Don beached the U.S.S. North Dakota and couldn't get back.

And doesn't everybody remember the Schreiner kids, Carl and Terry? They could swing a bat. Carl must be hurt, I didn't see his name in the University of Oklahoma lineup.

Certainly, it hasn't been that long since the playoff teams with Bill Newton, Mark McDonald, Jackie Hanks, Dick McFarland, Jim Witt.

Well, I did see Mark at the Cotton Bowl. He's an outdoor writer for the Dallas Times-Herald. I didn't know they were hiring kids just out of their teens. Says he doesn't even play football anymore, not since UTEP gave it up after he graduated.

LATER, there was John Howell, the left-handed pitcher, who won the district title for the Rebels with his bat. Abilene Cooper was trying to give John an intentional walk and he reached out and poked a game-winning single. You say, John's pro baseball playing days are even over? They would never have started, if he had grounded into an out instead of winning the game.

And it was only two or three years ago, wasn't it, that Randy Prince was pitching the Rebels to yet another district pennant. Randy's still at Tech, isn't he?

What do you mean he's graduated? Next thing you'll be telling me that I didn't see Robby Christensen at the Midland Sports Banquet the other night...Hasn't even got himself a college picked out yet....A practicing dentist, you say. Impossible.

See, Brundage, how you've spread you're poison. Next thing you know you'll have me believing it. And if Ernie's an "Ole Guy".... You'll love it in Notrees, Brundage.

Hey, Ernie, we "Ole Guys" have to stick together.

Walker finally breaks loose

Millionaire rambles for 80-yard TD

By The Associated Press

To no one's surprise, Herschel Walker is the first United States Football League player to rush for more than 1,000 yards. What is surprising is that it took him eight games to make a long, tackle-breaking, crowd-pleasing run.

The multi-million dollar running back increased his rushing total to 1,023 yards Sunday, but it took an 80-yard gallop in the fourth quarter to put him over that milestone and give the New Jersey Generals a 34-29 victory over the Denver Gold, before 47,940 fans at Mile High Stadium.

Walker, whose longest run before Sunday was 38 yards, finished with 172 yards on 29 carries.

In other USFL games, Michigan outscored Boston 28-24, Birmingham bombed Washington 35-3 and Chicago beat Los Angeles 38-17. On Saturday, Philadelphia thrashed Tampa Bay 24-10, and Oakland is at Arizona tonight.

New Jersey, which won for only the third time in nine games, held a slim 27-22 lead before Walker ran off left tackle, bowled over a would-be tackler at the line of scrimmage and burst past the Denver secondary en route to his 80-yard run with 6:41 left.

"Once I got past the line of scrimmage, I figured I could outrun the last two guys," Walker said. "If I couldn't, I figured I shouldn't be in this league."

Meanwhile, quarterback Bobby Scott completed 21 of 29 passes for 293 yards, including a string of 13 straight that helped the Generals on three touchdown drives.

USFL Roundup

"Herschel had an outstanding game, Bobby did a real good job passing the ball, and our tight end (Sam Bowers) made some good catches," New Jersey Coach Chuck Fairbanks said. "We had better balance in running and passing."

"Great players make great plays," Denver Coach Red Miller said of Walker's run. "We did not play an exceptionally good defensive game and we let them control the ball on us, which we knew they could do. And I thought Scott threw well. That's the best I've seen him throw."

After Maurice Carthon scored from 2 yards out for New Jersey to tie the score 7-7, Scott completed nine passes on the Generals' next drive, climaxed by a 2-yard scoring pass to Tom McConnaughey.

The Generals went ahead 21-15 in the third quarter on a 1-yard run by Carthon after Scott hit Bowers on a 49-yard pass play. Later in the period, New Jersey made it 27-15 on safety Eric Johnson's 43-yard fumble return.

Greg Landry threw three touchdown passes as Chicago made Coach George Allen's homecoming a triumphant one before 21,123 fans at Los Angeles Coliseum.

Allen had coached the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

Two of Landry's TD passes went for 18 yard and 1 yard to Paul Ricker to help the Blitz take a 24-3 lead at halftime. In the second half, Landry passed 9 yards to Doug Dennison.

Bob Lane passed for two touchdowns and ran for another as Birmingham walloped Washington.

Replacing injured regular Reggie Collier, Lane connected on 13 of 29 passes for 192 yards as the Stallions, 4-5, tagged the Federals, 1-8, with their fifth straight loss.

One of Lane's TDs came with four seconds left in the first half as he threw a 44-yard pass into the end zone. The ball bounced off Johnny Dirden's helmet into the hands of Ron Frederick.

John Williams put Michigan ahead on a 1-yard touchdown plunge with just 83 seconds left to play and then the Panthers held off a final Boston thrust three yards short of the end zone to beat the Breakers. Boston's Johnnie Walton completed 37 of 49 passes for 422 yards.

The Panthers, taking advantage of a 17-yard punt by Boston's Daripo Casarino, drove 43 yards for Williams' go-ahead TD. Then Walton, who had thrown a pair of fourth-quarter TD passes to Anthony Steels, fired 10 consecutive passes, hitting six and driving to the Michigan 3 as time ran out.

In the Saturday night game, Philadelphia defeated Tampa Bay as Kelvin Bryant, who has been dueling for the league rushing lead with Walker, ran for 106 yards, raising his total for the season to 929.

Sox rally past Angels, 6-5

By The Associated Press

The Boston Red Sox, who know a little something about blowing leads, turned the tables on the California Angels over the weekend.

Friday night, they scored three runs in the ninth inning, the last two on Tony Armas' two-out double, to nip the Angels 6-5.

Saturday night, they tied the score with two out in the ninth, but dropped a 4-1 decision in 11 innings.

And Sunday, they wiped out 6-0 and 9-4 deficits and edged California 10-9 on a two-out single ninth-inning single by Jerry Remy, who had doubled home the tying run two innings earlier.

"We've been like that the last three or four years," said Remy. "We never give up. We never feel like we're out of the game. It's a good feeling to have on a club because it means we're going to have a good season."

The Red Sox, who kicked away five unearned runs in the first inning, got close on Rick Miller's three-run homer in the sixth and tied the score with two runs in the seventh on an error and Remy's double.

In the ninth, Dave Stapleton and pinch hitter Jeff Newman delivered one-out singles off Andy Hassler. Luis Sanchez retired Glenn Hoffman for the second out before Remy, who began the game without an RBI this season, singled to score Stapleton.

"I like to hit with men on base," said Remy. "I just tried to stay on the sinker and hit it up the middle."

Armas led off the Boston fourth with a homer and, after two walks, Rich Gedman homered.

A's 8-2, Tigers 3-0

Bob Kearney hit his first major league home run and Dan Meyer had a run-scoring single for two of Oakland's four hits off Detroit's Milt Wilcox, giving Mike Norris and the A's the doubleheader sweep.Norris allowed six hits in 7 1-3 innings. In the opener, rookie Chris Codiroli pitched a three-hitter to settle a score with the Tigers, who released him two years ago when he was trying to come back from arm problems.

AL Roundup

The A's won the opener by scoring six runs in the fifth inning. Rickey Henderson drove in the last three with a bases-loaded double after Wayne Gross singled home a run and Tiger reliever Juan Berenguer walked two batters with the bases loaded.

Brewers 8, Twins 4

Paul Molitor's tie-breaking single and Robin Yount's three-run homer highlighted a six-run ninth inning as Milwaukee ended the Twins' three-game winning streak. Don Sutton, 4-1, recorded his fourth straight victory by holding the Twins to five hits before needing help in the ninth.

The Brewers erupted after Roy Howell walked with one out in the ninth. Howell was thrown out trying for third on Charlie Moore's single, but Moore took second and Jim Gantner was intentionally walked by loser Al Williams.

The strategy backfired when Molitor singled on an 0-2 pitch to score Moore with the go-ahead run and Yount followed with his fourth homer of the year and 100th of his career. A two-run double by Gorman Thomas closed out the Brewers' scoring.

Orioles 8, Mariners 2

Ken Singleton's three-run homer, John Lowenstein's solo shot and a pair of two-run singles by Eddie Murray accounted for the Baltimore runs. Singleton's home run capped a five-run first inning off 44-year-old Gaylord Perry and Lowenstein homered in the third, also off Perry, who has been tagged for 10 homers in 34 innings this season. Baltimore's Storm Davis, a late replacement for Jim Palmer, worked 5 1-3 innings and gave up both Seattle runs and four hits. Palmer missed the start because of a sore lower back.

Yankees 8, Rangers 4

Jerry Mumphrey drove in two runs, one with a homer off Mike Smithson on the game's first pitch, and Roy Smalley's two-run double capped a five-run seventh inning for New York. Winner Dave Righetti scattered seven hits before leaving with two on and none out in the seventh as the Yankees, who have never lost an entire series to Texas, salvaged one victory in the three-game set.

Indians 2, Royals 1

Mike Fischlin doubled home the tying run in the eighth inning against Larry Gura and scored on a single by Pat Tabler, while reliever Dan Spillner pitched out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam in the bottom of the inning. After the Royals loaded the bases against Spillner in the bottom of the eighth on two singles and a walk, he struck out Hal McRae and got Willie Aikens to hit into a double play.

Blue Jays 8, White Sox 0

Dave Stieb pitched a three-hitter and Barry Bonnell capped an eight-run uprising in the seventh inning with a grand-slam homer.

McEnroe wins on second chance

DALLAS (AP) — John McEnroe missed one chance to end his marathon WCT Finals championship match with Ivan Lendl when he let a fourth-set tie-breaker slip away.

However, in the fifth-set tie-breaker Sunday, McEnroe exploded for seven straight points to take a 6-2, 4-6, 6-3, 6-7, 7-6 victory and a record third World Championship of Tennis Finals title.

"I learned something in the fourth-set tie-breaker," said McEnroe, who earned a $150,000 first prize. "I got tentative, I missed a couple of shots, I double-faulted. So I said 'Let's avoid that.'"

McEnroe avoided that by running off seven straight points, including a pair of service aces, to end the longest finals match in tournament history after four hours, 16 minutes.

"Mentally, I feel fabulous. Physically I don't feel so good," said McEnroe, who avenged last year's four-set loss to Lendl in the championship match and won the first-ever five-set match between the two.

McEnroe said he entered the final tie-breaker against the world's top-ranked player with a positive attitude.

"I was a little bit tired but, I said to myself that it was the last tie-breaker. You've got to let it all hang out there," said McEnroe, the world's second ranked player.

Lendl of Czechoslovakia was not disappointed with his play despite losing a 3-0 lead in the third set.

But he was displeased with the officials' handling of McEnroe's behavior.

"I try not to pay attention," said Lendl. "But when he starts throwing rackets he should get a warning. I think the umpires get intimidated by him complaining on every call."

Oilers beat Hawks

NHL Playoffs

CHICAGO (AP) — It wasn't as easy as it had been, and for a moment the Edmonton Oilers were in danger of losing a game despite holding a lead going into the third period.

They saw a 2-0 lead disintegrate in the final 20 minutes, but pulled out a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks on Sunday night to take a commanding 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven Campbell Conference championship series.

Kieth McKelvy, standing, helps his partner, Raymond Eaves, line up a putt during the Midland Country Club Partnership Golf Tournament.

The San Angelo duo of John Sheppenson and Jim Mundell won Midland Country Club's annual Partnership golf tournament Sunday with what turned out to be a wire-to-wire victory.

The long hitting twosome was tied for the first day lead Friday with a 68 as Jobe Moss (Lubbock) and Chad Williams (Plainview) also produced a 68, but Sheppenson and Mundell had a one stroke lead with a two-day 135 after Saturday's play.

They ended up with a final day 69 to run away from the field with a 204, four strokes ahead of the field. The key to the victory was three straight days of play under 70, a feat none of the other teams in the championship division could match.

The Midland team and former Partnership champions Randy Geisleman and Steve Whiteside came in with a three-day 208 with the Odessa duo of Larry Hensley and Mickey Jones. Both of those teams were one stroke behind the leaders after the second round of play, but neither team was able to make a move on the Concho City golfers on Sunday.

Midland's Kelly Cox and Oklahoma City's Robin Brunner tied the Odessa duo of Ed Brooks and Ron Jumper for fourth while the Midland twosome of Dr. Dean Strack, a former winner in this tournament, and Craig Campbell posted a 211.

Moss and Williams, who were strong at the start of the tournament, ended with a 212.

Sub shares legendary win

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — While Argentina's Roberto De Vicenzo was trying to convert his $50,000 Liberty Mutual Legends of Golf windfall into pesos today, Calfornian Rod Funseth was counting his blessings.

Funseth was supposed to be playing Sunday in the Al Guisti Memorial Tournament in Portland, first place prize: $6,000.

Instead, he won $50,000 as De Vicenzo's last-minute, substitute partner because Bob Goalby injured his back lifting his golf bag at the airport.

"Maybe Bob and Roberto wouldn't have won, who knows," said the thankful Funseth. "He (Goalby) makes enough on TV (as an NBC commentator). I'm unemployed."

De Vicenzo quipped, "Bob had a bad back at a bad time."

Funseth chipped in for an eagle three on the first hole and sank a 20-footer on the final green to help the 60-year-old De Vicenzo, who had six birdies.

Their 9-under par 61 over Onion Creek Club gave them a 22-under par 258 and a 2-shot victory over Jackie Burke and Paul Harney.

Burke and Harney had a final round 7-under par 63 for a 260 total, earning them $27,500 each.

Miller Barber and Julius Boros, who had a disastrous bogey on the back nine, finished third with a 5-under par 65 for a 261 total, making $16,000 each.

Crenshaw ends slump with 'Classic' victory

IRVING, Texas (AP) — It was just about a year ago, on a Friday afternoon in a muddy parking in north Dallas, that Ben Crenshaw was loading his clubs in the trunk of his car, a victim of the cut in the Byron Nelson Classic.

He pulled a wedge out of his bag and peered at it with a puzzled expression.

"I don't know," he said with a pained expression. "I'm just so confused. I don't know where to turn. One person tells me one thing, another tells me something else. I don't know what to do."

He was, at that time, in the midst of a dismal, puzzling, exasperating slump, the worst of his life.

It ended Sunday when Crenshaw, cheered on by thousands of howling, yelling and stampeding fellow Texans, rode an eagle-birdie-birdie burst to a 5-under-par 66 and a one-stroke victory in the Nelson Classic that moved from its long-time home at Preston Trail to the new Las Colinas Sports Club course between Dallas and Fort Worth.

"I can't tell you what it is to win this tournament," Crenshaw said, his voice husky with emotion. "With Byron's name attached to it; winning in Dallas; anywhere in Texas ...It is a very, very sweet victory for me."

It came on a 273 total, 11 shots under par, and one better than Brad Bryant and Hal Sutton, who lipped out a potential tying putt on the 18th hole.

The victory, Crenshaw's ninth as a touring pro, was worth $72,000 from the total purse of $400,000 and pushed his earnings for the year to $206,135, more than he'd won in the two previous years combined.

Perhaps more importantly, it proved to Crenshaw that he can, indeed, win again.

"It means much to me," he said. "I played so poorly throughout last year. And I've played so well this year.

"I'm playing better golf than I have in so long, the kind of golf I know can win those tournaments."

He had played well most of this year, with a runner-up finish in the Masters, and two others third-place spots. At no time in 1982 did he finish that high.

Diablos, Gators score 56

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Hardly anything was surprising in the wild Texas League baseball game, finally won by the El Paso Diablos 35-21 over the Beaumont Golden Gators.

"Honest, I came into the dugout one time to get a chew and saw sparks flying," said El Paso Manager Tony Muser, who called the ballpark "just absolutely electric."

El Paso and Beaumont combined for 56 runs, 56 hits, 53 RBIs and 38 singles Saturday night to break records that had stood for 81 years — since June 15, 1902. But it didn't end there. Beaumont gained a measure of revenge Sunday by winning another slugfest, 20-13.

That gave El Paso 48 runs for the two games while Beaumont scored 41.

Saturday's game bettered the 54 runs, 53 hits and 45 RBIs in Corsicana's 51-3 victory over Texarkana in the 1902 game. There was no outfield fence and Texarkana had only two pitchers, Texas League officials said.

El Paso's Mike Felder had only two hits but drove in nine runs. He had a grand slam homer, a 3-run homer, a sacrifice fly and an RBI sacrifice bunt.

Jim Paciorek, whose brother, Tom, is first baseman for the Chicago White Sox, went 6-for-7, getting all of his hits on singles.

"I've never seen anything like this, let alone play in anything like it," said El Paso right fielder Stan Levi, who went 5-for-7 and drove in seven runs. "Sometimes it was hard to keep the concentration up high, but you just kept telling yourself that anything could happen."

Only one player on either team failed to drive in a run during the game.

Sizzlean, at bottom, did not shrink as much a the regular bacon strip (top).

SIZZLEAN PRODUCES MORE MEAT, LESS FAT

Tasty though it is, bacon can be disappointing when it shrinks to a thin strip in the frying pan.

But Swift & Co. says that its Sizzlean puts satisfaction back on the plate and in the sandwich.

In a television commercial for the product, one woman says, "Move over, bacon. Now there's something meatier in Sizzlean."

The actress playing her mother says: "Fake bacon?"

"Mom," answers the daughter. "Sizzlean is real meat."

Mom asks: "No soy? No fillers?"

While the video shows a piece of Sizzlean and a substantially smaller piece of bacon frying, daughter responds: "Sizzlean is real meat. A lot more meat to eat in every package, because it's 50 percent leaner than bacon."

A Swift spokeswoman explained that both pork and beef Sizzlean are made from meat that is cured, chopped and formed into strips. "It's made from less fatty meat than bacon," she said, "and therefore doesn't shrink as much as the average bacon." A piece of Sizzlean will yield more cooked meat and less fat than an average piece of cooked bacon, she added.

To test the ad's claim that Sizzlean is leaner than bacon, the spokeswoman suggested that we cook both Sizzlean and bacon according to package instructions and compare the results.

Following those directions, we cooked four pieces of pork Sizzlean and four pieces of a brand-name bacon according to the instructions on their packages.

The strips started out about the same width but the bacon strips were longer than the Sizzlean pieces. After cooking the bacon and the Sizzlean for the same amount of time, both had shrunk. While the cooked bacon did not end up as small as that shown in the ad, it had shrunk down to almost the same length as the cooked Sizzlean and about half the width. The bacon produced more than twice as much rendered fat as the Sizzlean.

So in our test, a piece of Sizzlean did produce more meat than bacon and was at least 50 percent less fatty, as the ad claims.

Generally, we found Sizzlean to be a tasty product and a good buy. A 12-ounce package of Sizzlean cost $1.69, or 14.08 cents per ounce; a 16-ounce package brand-name bacon cost $2.28 or 14.25 cents per ounce.

How long can a bull survive on Wall Street?

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

NEW YORK — With the Dow Jones index of 30 industrials above 1,200, there is no shortage of optimists on Wall Street. Make no mistake: Wall Street is in the grip of a bull market. The only question is how long it will last?

"Prices always go higher than you dare forecast in a bull market," says William Pike, a portfolio manager at Boston-based Fidelity Management & Research Co. "They go lower than you dare forecast in a bear market."

Since the bull market began last Aug. 12, in fact, the stock market has witnessed one of the most rapid rises in its history, with the Dow 30 climbing more than 55 percent to 1,226.20, where it closed Friday.

Previous rallies have lasted a lot longer, so this one may still have plenty of wind in it, observers maintain. It took nearly three years, from Aug. 31, 1953, when the Dow Jones industrials stood at 261.22, to April 6, 1956, when it peaked at 521.05, for the market to climb a staggering 111 percent in this country's most vigorous bull market. And the most sustained rally saw a climb of 70 percent from 535.76 to 994.20 in a 42-month period ending Jan. 18, 1966.

It is not just the Dow Jones industrials index that is at an all-time high. Just about every indicator closed at a record Friday.

Pike, author of a recently published book, "Why Stocks Go Up and Down," believes that almost every day there is a tug of war between investors who have done very well in the market and those who hesitated too long and thought the upswing had passed them by.

"We are seeing the interplay between people who have enormous profits and want to nail them down. They sell early in the day and the market goes down," Pike says. "Then the people who have missed the rally and have cash on the sidelines come in."

The mutual funds and banks rushing into the market for fear of missing the rally aren't alone. The small investor and the margin buyer are rushing back in.

"It is awful hard to resist the front-page news of the market making a new high day after day," says Lee H. Idleman, director of research of Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. "They (the small investors) get sucked in and they get carried away with it."

There's very little argument on Wall Street, however, against the proposition that the market is due for a correction. Everybody has been predicting a temporary downturn of possibly 10 percent, but it never seems to take place.

Stan Weinstein, who publishes the Professional Tape Reader, one of the most widely followed stock market newsletters, predicts that the technical correction will come fairly soon. "If we are talking strictly about the next eight weeks or so, we are in a high-risk zone," he says. "May and June have historically been tough."

Technical correction aside, Weinstein is still very bullish. "I would buy aggressively on all dips," he says. "We are in a powerful bull market, and I think this market is going to continue through all of 1983. Correction aside, I think this market will go above 1,300 in the months ahead." He adds, however, that while six months ago one could have chosen stocks by "throwing darts," today one must be much more selective. He says that he is bearish on glamour and technology stocks but is very high on stocks of building-related companies, real estate investment trusts, furniture makers, banks and insurance companies.

The upturn in the economy, the decline in inflation and the drop in interest rates are all seen as contributing to the euphoria on Wall Street.

"What is causing the bull market environment?" asks Lloyd McAdams, president of Security Pacific Investment Managers, Los Angeles. "It is the perception that there is stable economic growth in the future, and I put the emphasis on stable. This is a very bullish environment, and we don't see anything that can happen structurally through 1984 that is going to change that bull market environment. We are quite fully invested. Before this economic recovery is over, which may be 1986, the market will go through 1,500."

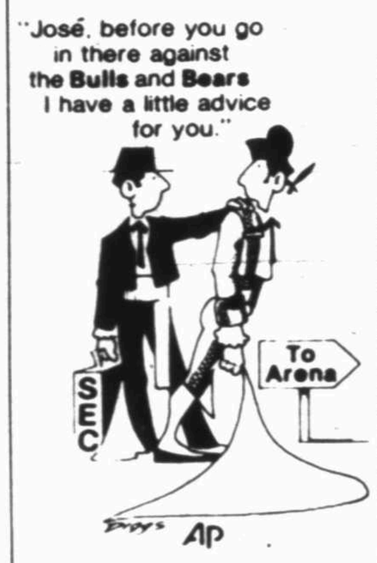

The stock market surge, as one might expect, is causing a rise in new underwritings. And surprisingly, the market is able to absorb this new money without a downturn.

"I find it amazing that the market is absorbing the substantial new financing that is taking place and yet maintaining this momentum," says Paul Elliot, vice president of research of Cowen & Co., a brokerage house. "I don't see an abrupt change in this underlying momentum."

However, there are those who caution that there are, indeed, risks to such a spiraling stock market.

"You know, there are a lot of things that could happen that could make this market turn on a dime," says Edward J. Mathias, president of the New Horizon Fund and on the investment policy committee of T. Rowe Price & Co., a Baltimore-based mutual fund company. "The problems have not all gone away. The biggest is a perceived change in Fed policy. If people see that the (Federal Reserve Board) is going to drive interest rates up, it would have a very negative effect on the stock market. Also, the economic recovery could abort. The problems with the federal budget are very worrisome. And there is also in the back of everybody's mind that we are going to rekindle inflation. Also, if for one reason or another the earnings improvement doesn't materialize, the market will slide."

SEC offers rule book for amateur risk takers

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The prospect of economic recovery makes it tempting to try to take advantage of the growth by investing in stocks or other securities, but you have to learn the rules of the marketplace before you risk your money.

The Securities and Exchange Commission is trying to help with a 44-page handbook, "What Every Investor Should Know," which includes information on picking an investment — and a broker — and explains the basics of trading stocks and bonds. The guide costs $4.50. It is available from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 234L, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

There are two main categories of securities: equity securities, which represent ownership of some part of a company, and debt securities, which represent a loan from the investor to a company or government body.

Stocks are equity securities. When you buy a stock, you buy a share in a company's assets. Bonds, including those issued by corporations, state and local governments and the federal government, are debt securities. You become a lender rather than an owner.

Other common securities include stock options, which are rights to buy or sell corporate stock in the future. There are two types: "puts," which give you the right to sell 100 shares of a specific stock at a fixed price within a specified time period, and "calls," which give you the right to buy.

There also are investment contracts, where people pool their money and put it into a common enterprise which is managed by a third party; the enterprise can be anything from a cattle ranch to a movie production.

With certain exceptions, any company which wants to offer its securities for sale to the general public must first file a registration statement called a prospectus with the SEC. The statement must give information on the nature of the company's business, its management, the type of security being offered and its relationship to other securities the company has on the market, if any. The prospectus also must include the company's financial statements as certified by independent public accounts.

The SEC reviews the reports for completeness and accuracy, but it does not check every fact or statement. The securities laws, however, provide for fines or prison terms for anyone making a deliberately false or misleading statement in a prospectus.

Most people who invest in securities generally do so through a firm of brokers or dealers. As an investor, you'll deal with someone known as a registered representive who is the link between you and the traders who actually buy or sell the securities and who is registered with the National Association of Securities Dealers.

For many years, brokers throughout the country usually stuck to a fixed schedule of commissions, it didn't matter which firm you went to, the commission would be the same. The SEC abolished the practice of fixing commission in 1975 and rates today vary from broker to broker.

Your broker's earnings depend on the level of activity in your account — on how frequently you buy or sell — not on whether the value of your investment goes up or down. The SEC rules, however, prohibit brokers from pressuring customers into trading securities simply to generate commissions, regardless of the benefits to the investors.

There are two main ways to pay for the securities your broker buys for you — with a cash account or a margin account.

If you have a cash account, you must pay the purchase price, in cash, no later than the settlement date which is usually within five business days after the trade.

AP survey finds food costs higher

By The Associated Press

Higher prices for pork chops and chopped chuck in a half dozen cities helped boost grocery prices a little last month, according to an Associated Press marketbasket survey.

However, for the first third of 1983, prices have risen less than 1 percent and were less than 3 percent higher than they were one year ago.

The marketbasket bill rose at the checklist store in seven cities during April, declined in five cities and was unchanged in one city. The average increase was 2.7 percent, the average decrease was 3.2 percent. Overall, the marketbasket bills rose an average of three-tenths of 1 percent in April.

Pork chops and chopped chuck were higher in six of the 13 cities surveyed, while sugar climbed in four cities. Eggs were down in eight cities.

According to the Agriculture Department, the increase in food prices this year will be relatively small.

Last month, Assistant Secretary William Lesher predicted a 2 percent to 4 percent increase in food prices for the year, which, he said, "could be the smallest food price increase in more than 15 years."

Comparing prices today with those at the start of the year, the AP found that the marketbasket bill rose at the checklist store in five cities, up an average of 5.5 percent, and decreased in eight cities, down an average of 2.3 percent. Overall, the marketbasket bill rose by about seven-tenths of 1 percent during the first third of 1983.

During the year that ended April 30, the marketbasket bill rose at the checklist store in 11 cities and went down in two cities, for an overall average increase of 2.8 percent in 12 months.

A look at the overall number of items in the AP survey showed more increases during April than during March. Here are the percentages of increases and decreases:

	Mar.	Apr.
Up	21.4	23.1
Down	24.2	21.4
Unchanged	51.1	52.2
Unavailable	3.3	3.3

The AP survey is based on a list of 14 food and non-food items, priced at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and rechecked on or about the start of each month thereafter. A 15th item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped after the manufacturer discontinued the package size used for the survey.

The items were selected at random, and no attempt was made to weight the list according to what percentage of a family's actual grocery outlay each produce represents. Figures are not adjusted for seasonal variations.

The AP did not try to compare actual prices from city to city — to say, for example, that eggs cost more in one area than another. The only comparisons were made in terms of percentages of increase or decrease — saying a particular item went up 10 percent in one city and 6 percent in another.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Here is a city-by-city breakdown of what happened during April:

ALBUQUERQUE: The marketbasket bill slipped 2.4 percent from $21.57 to $21.05. Only pork chops climbed in price, while chopped chuck, coffee and eggs declined. All other items remained unchanged.

ATLANTA: The total jumped 6.3 percent from $19.92 to $21.18 with frankfurters and coffee posting the largest increases. Pork chops, butter, eggs, peanut butter, detergent, milk and sugar also rose. Only orange juice and paper towels declined, while chopped chuck, fabric softener and tomato sauce were stable.

BOSTON: The bill dropped 3 percent, from $20.42 to $19.80 as seven items — pork chops, butter, eggs, peanut butter, tomato sauce, frankfurters and sugar — declined. Coffee, towels and fabric softener went up. The other items remained unchanged.

CHICAGO: The marketbasket bill inched higher, climbing 0.7 percent, from $16.33 to $16.45 for 12 available items. Chopped chuck, eggs and sugar rose, while only frankfurters fell. The survey-sized packages of fabric softener and coffee were unavailable at the checklist store; the remaining eight items were unchanged.

DALLAS: The total fell 3.9 percent, from $20.73 to $19.91, for 13 available items. There were no increases. Pork chops, coffee, eggs, peanut butter, detergent and frankfurters declined. Paper towels were unavailable at the checklist store, and the remaining seven items were unchanged.

DETROIT: The marketbasket remained the same, climbing only a penny from $21.20 to $21.21. The cost of chopped chuck and detergent rose, while pork chops, coffee, milk, frankfurters and sugar went down. The remaining seven items were unchanged.

LOS ANGELES: The bill declined from $20.70 to $19.45 for a 6 percent decrease. Pork chops, coffee, eggs and detergent fell, while chopped chuck, tomato sauce, frankfurters and sugar rose. The remaining six items were unchanged.

MIAMI: Increases in the price of seven items — pork chops, orange juice, coffee, butter, tomato sauce, frankfurters and sugar — pushed the marketbasket up 2.4 percent, from $19.59 to $20.06. Only eggs and detergent dropped, and five items remained unchanged.

NEW YORK: The total for 12 available items jumped from $22.80 to $23.46 with pork chops, orange juice, paper towels and eggs posting the increases. Only chopped chuck declined. The survey-size packages of frankfurters and fabric softener were not available at the checklist store; the remaining seven items were unchanged.

PHILADELPHIA: Chopped chuck, pork chops and eggs climbed, boosting the marketbasket bill from $20.11 to $20.55, or 2.2 percent. There were no decreases. The remaining 11 items were unchanged.

PROVIDENCE: The total went from $19.62 to $20.33 for a 3.6 percent increase, as the price of chopped chuck and butter rose. Eggs, tomato sauce and frankfurters slipped, while the remaining nine items were unchanged.

SALT LAKE CITY: The marketbasket dropped from $19.66 to $19.56 for 13 available items, down .5 percent. Only pork chops went up, while chopped chuck, eggs and tomato sauce went down. The survey-size package of paper towels was unavailable at the checklist store. Everything else stayed the same.

SEATTLE: The bill for 13 available items rose from $19.41 to $19.60 for a 1 percent increase. The price of chopped chuck, orange juice and detergent increased, while eggs fell. Paper towels, which were temporarily unavailable last month at the checklist store, also declined when compared with the price of two months ago. The remaining items were unchanged.

Many jobs could be lost

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tens of thousands of textile and apparel manufacturing workers could lose their jobs by the end of the decade as their industry modernizes to cope with international competition, according to a just-concluded study.

The 84-page report by a panel of the National Science Foundation, which was being released today, said total employment in textile and apparel manufacturing plants could plunge from 2 million to 800,000 by the end of decade.

The bleak labor outlook for one of America's oldest and largest industries came as a result of a two-year study assessing the ability of the U.S. industry to cope with international competition.

"While the future for many firms and segments of the American textile complex is far from rosy, the complex as a whole is in a position to increase its international competitiveness," said the report.

The study was done for the science foundation by the National Academy of Engineering, which was established in 1964 to help the foundation examine science and technology issues for the federal government. More than a dozen industry and labor representatives and educators took part in the project.

While "a more consistent" government policy on trade and other issues affecting the textile industry would be helpful, the report said, "... almost no matter what government policy may be in the future, not all firms will survive, nor will all jobs be maintained. Such is the nature of competition."

"The expected employment reduction in the textile complex and the rising levels of immigration into the United States have the potential for substantially increasing U.S. unemployment levels, particularly among minorities, women and lesser-skilled people," it said.

The loss of jobs already is under way.

Figures from the Bureau of Labor Statistics show that total employment in apparels and related industries, which stood at 1,186,000 in March 1982, had declined by 55,000 as of last month. Total employment in textile plants fell from 760,000 to 724,000 over the same period.

The Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union, responding to mounting layoffs and plant closings, recently set up a program to help the jobless. The general executive board of the 385,000-member New York-based union passed a resolution calling for establishment of "comprehensive local programs for unemployed members."

The foundation report urged companies to step up worker retraining and to assist employees whose jobs have been eliminated because of automation.

The panel noted that even in the face of heightened international competition, the textile and apparel industries remain one of the nation's largest employers — with one of out every eight manufacturing workers and some 27,000 companies with a combined output of $114 billion in 1980.

Alaskans are richest; Mississippians poorest; Texans haven't got anything to brag about

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alaska is still the richest state and Mississippi the poorest in average income per person, according to new government estimates.

Residents of the nation's largest state averaged $15,200 income in 1982 compared to $7,792 for people in Mississippi, the Commerce Department reported Sunday. Americans in general had income in 1982 of $11,056 per person, it said.

Per capita income in the nation rose 5.3 percent overall in 1982 compared with 1981, while inflation during that time crept up at an annual rate of 5.6 percent.

By comparison, income rose 10.7 percent in 1981 while prices rose 8.5 percent as measured by a personal consumption-based Commerce inflation gauge.

Connecticut was second to Alaska in the survey, with the two states keeping their top rankings of 1981. In a report 10 years ago, Alaska still was No. 1 and Mississippi No. 50 in per capita income.

Big gainers in 1982 were Alaska, Vermont, New York, South Dakota and New Jersey. The states with the smallest percentage gains were Iowa, Nebraska, Nevada, Wyoming and Michigan.

The report said that, in genral, the rapidly rising states had increases or relatively small declines in payrolls for durable-goods industries and large payroll increases for service industries and state and local governments.

The states with small overall income gains tended to have large declines in payrolls for durables manufacturing, for mining and for construction and only small increases for service industries.

Commerce released the 1982 figures by region:

NEW ENGLAND: Connecticut $13,687 per capita, up 6.9 percent from 1981; Massachusetts $11,921, up 7.1 percent; Rhode Island $10,730, up 5.7 percent; New Hampshire $10,710, up 7 percent; Vermont $9,446, up 8.3 percent; Maine $9,033, up 5.9 percent.

OTHERS: Alaska $15,200, up 10.6 percent; Hawaii $11,602, up 5.2 percent.

In addition, the report said, per capita income in the District of Columbia rose 6.2 percent to $14,347.

Striker on trial

HOUSTON (AP) — A former local president of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization faced trial today on charges of leading an illegal strike in 1981 that resulted in the firings of thousands of air controllers by President Reagan.

Richard M. Hoover, 50, of Magnolia, was president of PATCO Local 422, which represented 65 controllers at Houston Intercontinental Airport.

If convicted, Hoover faces a maximum penalty of a year and a day in federal prison and a $1,000 fine.

Mike Brady, a Tucson lawyer representing Hoover, said he plans to attack "Reagan's anti-labor, anti-working man" philosophy.

Hoover's trial, along with those of other prosecuted union leaders, could have a long-range affect on the U.S. labor movement, Brady said.

"The outcome of the fired air controllers' legal conflict could define what the labor movement will be in the next 20 years," Brady said.

Muddy Waters traced his beginnings to river delta

CHICAGO (AP) — The waters of Deer Creek, a tributary of the Mississippi River, often washed the back porch of the sharecropper's house in which Muddy Waters was born.

And while the blues carried the man around the globe several times, he never forgot that his roots lay in the fertile delta nurtured by the mightiest of American rivers.

Waters, the man who plugged an electric guitar into an amplifier, forever changing the course of the blues and charting the beginnings of rock 'n' roll as well, died Saturday of a heart attack. He was 68.

The second son of sharecropper Ollie Morganfield, Waters was born McKinley Morganfield on April 4, 1915, in Rolling Fork, Miss., near Deer Creek. His nickname came from his early days, playing at fish fries and other social gatherings along the creek.

NEW YORK (AP) — Friends and admirers of George Balanchine, the Russian-born ballet dancer who became known as the leading choreographer of the 20th century, mourned the artist at a memorial Mass.

Balanchine, who headed the New York City Ballet for 35 years, died of pneumonia Saturday at age 79.

At a memorial service Sunday night, Balanchine's body reposed in the center of a small sanctuary at Our Lady of the Sign, a Russian Orthodox church on Manhattan's Upper East Side.

Several hundred mourners, holding small candles, stood in a semicircle around the casket as a priest conducted the liturgy in Russian, accompanied by a choir.

A second memorial Mass was scheduled for 2 p.m. today, with the main funeral service to take place at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Former secretaries of state Henry Kissinger and Cyrus Vance have united in a new mission of high diplomacy — bringing the 1986 soccer World Cup to the United States.

The sport's international governing body has chosen Mexico as the country to host the cup competition, but Kissinger says he's hopeful that the United States can get another hearing on the question May 20 in Stockholm. He recently convinced Vance to join the lobbying effort.

The World Cup offers the potential for millions of dollars of ticket and tourist revenue. Television experts estimate that 1.3 billion people, or more than one-fourth of the world's population, watched the 1982 World Cup matches on television.

NEW YORK (AP) — Some students at Cambridge University's Jesus College are upset about the admittance of Prince Edward after he received only a C in English and Ds in history, economics and political studies on his entrance exams.

Dr. Gavin MacKenzie, director of studies at the college, received a protest petition from 150 students. But he denied the prince is receiving preferential treatment.

"He's a very well-informed and able bloke," MacKenzie said in this week's People magazine, adding the college would not take "anybody who could possibly fail. We will teach the prince to think."

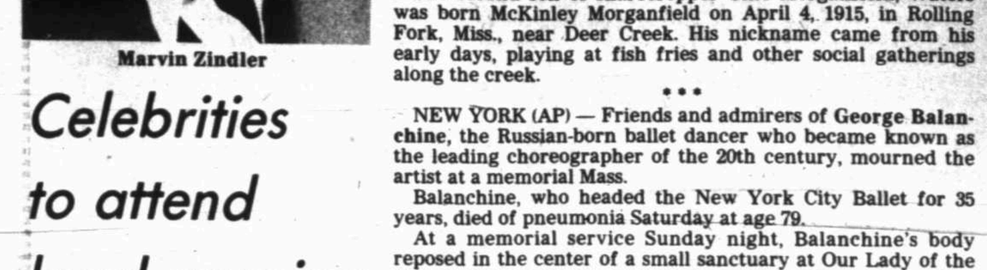

Graduated last year from Gordonstoun, a Scottish prep school, Edward has been teaching English at Wanganui Collegiate, a 524-student prep school in New Zealand. More bookish than his siblings, Edward was dubbed "Educated Edward" at Gordonstoun.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dancer-actor Gene Kelly and first lady Nancy Reagan twirled across a crowded floor at a $500-a-person dinner-dance to honor the Joffrey Ballet's premiere as the first resident dance company at the Los Angeles Music Center.

Kelly, 70, introduced Robert Joffrey, the company's founder and artistic director, who told the celebrity audience Saturday night that the star of the film "Singin' in the Rain" had influenced his career choice.

The first lady, who was the guest of honor at the gala, chatted with old acquaintances from Hollywood and Los Angeles society, including longtime friend Betsy Bloomingdale.

Pianist Wladimir Kochanski will perform at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave., at 8 p.m. Friday. A graduate of Julliard School of Music, where he studied with Rosina Lhevinne and Eduard Steurman, Kochanski's concerts run the musical gamut from baroque to modern and include classical, popular and folk music. Admission is $9.50 for adults and $5 for children. For more information call 682-5042.

Reagan's wardrobe wins honor

NEW YORK (AP) — President Reagan, known for his natty dress both in the White House and on the ranch, has been chosen best-dressed statesman by the Fashion Foundation of America.

The president was bested last year by West Germany's Helmut Schmidt.

Dustin Hoffman was named best dressed in the "screen" category on Sunday, but for his skirts rather than his sportscoats. Hoffman plays an actor who poses as a woman in the film "Tootsie."

The foundation, a garment industry trade group, annually chooses the best-dressed men in 10 categories, according to John Tudor, chairman of the foundation's men's division.

Others on the list were:

—Sports: Herschel Walker.

—International Society: Prince Philip of Great Britain.

—Business: New York real estate baron Harry Helmsley.

—Stage: Actor David Cassidy, now starring on Broadway in "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat."

MONDAY, MAY 2, 1983

Cruising with a clipboard, Taylor averages almost 40 miles a day.

Counseling enables Taylor to point out the advantages of attending school and receiving an education.

Checking addresses can be confusing — especially when families move without notifying the school or if students give false addresses.

Taylor tries to avoid courtrooms but when conferences with parents of truant students are ineffective, it can open the door to legal action.

Counselor and constable

The tall man pulled up in the station wagon. Checking his clipboard, he glanced over at the faded numbers on the mailbox.

Satisfied with the correct address, he climbed out — all 6 feet 2 inches of him — grabbed his can of Mace and strode purposefully through the weed-filled yard onto the dilapidated porch.

A knock and no one answered. This time there was no tell-tale movement of someone peeking behind the curtains.

He knocked again — just to be sure.

A survey of the mailbox indicated the resident still was receiving mail. Whether he and his family were living there was another question.

On the screen door, he carefully placed a notice stating a complaint has been filed with the County of Midland and got back in his car.

Glancing at the next address, he pulled away from the curb.

SAMUEL TAYLOR IS the attendance officer for the Midland Independent School District. Despite his imposing stature and the threatening can of tear gas, he's more of a counselor than a constable.

"Some of these people get really scared," Taylor said, chuckling mischievously. "Especially in the winter when I wear my Stetson."

He giggled. "They think I'm the sheriff or somethin.' "

Truth is, Taylor carries the Mace to ward off unfriendly dogs and the two-way radio to call juvenile authorities to pick up a truant child.

He can't.

Taylor's job is to notify parents of truant students that their children have had excessive absences at school.

"I'm an attendance officer — not a truant officer," Taylor said. "I don't have any authority to force the kids to do anything.

"I don't have handcuffs or a pistol."

Taylor contacts parents in person, when possible. If they aren't home, he phones or leaves notices. If so many warnings and statements of the Texas Education Code attendance law are unheeded, he files against the parents.

MANY OF HIS DAYS are spent doing paperwork. Many are spent meeting with parents and students. Many are spent in court. Many are spent driving around video game parlors and shopping centers.

Some are even spent trying to help unfortunate students obtain necessary shoes and clothing.

"A lot of people look at the attendance officer as being cruel," he said. "I try to wear two hats.

"When I go to a home, I'm not trying to upset them. My main goal is to investigate why the child is not in school."

Sometimes students can't go to school for economic reasons, he said. If there is a need for financial assistance — whether to buy shoes or pay for medical attention — Taylor contacts child welfare associations.

"I just try to work friendly with these people and then I get rough," he said. "But they want me to be the bad guy. I guess I've been a principal too long."

Taylor, the first MISD attendance officer, took over three years ago. Previously, he had spent 25 of his 32 years in Midland serving as a principal.

That's where he gained experience working cooperatively with parents and encouraging students to attend and get involved in school.

"I try to be as sympathetic as long as I can," he continued. "I'm not angry — this is just standard procedure. But sometimes I just want to say, 'Lady, you're the one that did it. It's your responsibility 'cause you're the mother.'

"I'M NOT PLAYING dictator — I'm just enforcing the law."

He pulled up at a mid-town apartment complex.

"I've been here before," he mused, glancing around the numbers on the second floor.

In the window on the left was an empty baby bottle. A blanket crookedly hung in the other window, serving as a makeshift curtain.

Taylor rapped on the door twice.

No answer.

He paused and knocked again.

The door was opened by a disheveled woman who apparently had been sleeping.

"I work nights," she said, smiling apologetically.

Taylor sympathized and introduced himself.

Her eyes immediately clouded over with suspicion, followed by disappointment.

"Don't tell me he didn't come to school today," she said, interrupting Taylor's opening statements.

"No, ma'am, he's in school today. But he wasn't there yesterday."

"Well, I talked to the principal yesterday. He called me at work. And I sent him out the door this morning with lunch money."

"Do you send him sometimes and he fails to go?"

"Yes."

"CAN HE GET back in the house?"

"No — I asked him where he goes and he said, 'Just walking around.' I have no idea where he goes."

"Maybe it'd be good for us to have a conference. If you'd like me to come and talk to your son and explain to him about the state law..."

"I sure would."

"Good, but let's give him another chance to prove himself."

She took the offered literature detailing the compulsory attendance law and closed the door.

Downstairs, an apartment maintenance man was repainting a vacant unit. Taylor, stopping to chat, introduced himself.

"Man, we need you around here," the young man said with a wide grin.

Taylor asked him why and was told children hung around the complex all day.

Pointing to one door across the courtyard, Taylor asked if any of the loitering children live there.

"I've had trouble with them before," he said, explaining the parents wouldn't return his calls or letters. He handed the maintenance worker his business card.

"Can you slip it on their door so they won't know it was you who put it there?" Taylor asked.

"I don't care," the man replied, smiling as he slipped the card in his pocket. "Hell, I served my 12 years — they can, too."

Border Patrol agent blames firms for aliens

DEL RIO (AP) — Some U.S. companies finance recruiting operations enticing illegal aliens to enter the United States in dramatically higher numbers, a U.S. Border Patrol spokesman told the San Angelo Standard-Times.

Jack Richardson, chief agent of the U.S. Border Patrol sector here, blames smugglers and American companies for the influx of undocumented workers that allowed his agents to make 78 percent more arrests in the first 28 days of April than in the same period of 1982.

"You have to understand that at the root of every immigration problem is avarice and greed," said Richardson, a 30-year veteran with the Border Patrol. "It's at the bottom of the new problem here and it's responsible for every immigration problem. The Yankee dollar is what these people are after, and to say the wets that are crossing are poor, scared and hungry just is not true."

He told the newspaper the aliens tell agents they pay from $300 to $1,000 to be smuggled into the United States and some say they paid as much as $2,500.

"Recruiters set up along the other side of the border and soak these wets of large amounts of money," said Richardson.

"Where do they get that kind of cash? We know most of it comes from American companies. They finance the recruiting operations."

The companies benefit by paying lower wages to the illegal aliens, while the aliens earn much more money than they could at home, he said.

Richardson pointed to several aliens being held in a common cell and others being processed by agents in a squad room.

"Look at these guys," he said pointing to aliens in a cell and others in a squad room. "They aren't skinny, they're not hungry. And look at those faces. There's no fear in them."

Woman in fair condition

A 34-year-old woman was listed in fair condition today at Midland Memorial Hospital following a two-car accident Saturday night at Front Avenue and Fort Worth Street.

It was mistakenly reported Sunday that Teresa Madrid was driving the station wagon which struck a telephone pole at the accident scene.

Police said today Mrs. Madrid's husband, Rudy Madrid, was driving the station wagon. Apparently a pickup heading west on Front Street behind the Madrid car was "allegedly driving at an unsafe speed and struck the station wagon," pushing the car into the utility pole, police stated.

The driver of the pickup truck was arrested for driving while intoxicated, according to police.

Mrs. Madrid, who was pinned in the car, is reported to have a broken right leg and a broken left ankle. Rudy Madrid and the Madrid children — Stephen 11; Mike, 7; Nathan, 3 and Amanda, 1 — were treated and released from MMH Saturday.

Odessan shot for $40 debt

ODESSA — An Odessa man was in stable condition at Medical Center Hospital today after being shot when he said he didn't have the money to pay a $40 debt.

Jesus Gardia, 24, of 1306 S. Alleghany, told police six Cubans approached him in the parking lot of Flores Cafe at 700 Magnolia Street about 8 p.m. Sunday and demanded $40 he apparently owed one of the men.

When Gardia told them he didn't have the money, one of the men opened Gardia's car door and shot him with a shotgun. Gardia ran from the scene and was found by police a short time later lying face down behind a trailer house at the rear of 709 Gulf Street.

Gardia, who suffered wounds to the leg, hand and groin, told police the men took his 1969-model automobile and his wallet containing $40 to $50.

Police catch man burglarizing shop

ODESSA — A 17-year-old Odessa man remained in custody today after police said they caught him in the act of burglarizing Maudie's Flower Shop shortly after 6 a.m. Sunday.

Officers Richard Mayo and C.L. Blackstock said they were on routine patrol when they spotted a broken window in a storage building at the establishment and found the suspect crouched inside.

He was arrested without incident and formal charges were to be filed sometime today. Owner of the store said nothing appeared to have been taken.

80s: A time to know yourself

Copley News Service

The 1980s are a wonderful time for fashion because just about every look you can think of is "in." From the high chic of designers like Halston and de La Renta to the funky chic of Norma Kamali, no matter what your fashion tastes are, they can be easily satisfied.

With this freedom of choice, however, comes one very important responsibility ... and that is to know yourself and your figure type well enough to find the styles that suit you best.

For the glamorous and exciting MORGAN FAIRCHILD (who practically made "bitchy" a household word with her brilliant portrayal of Constance on "Flamingo Road"), paying strict attention to the kinds of clothes she chooses is a golden rule.

"Because I am so petite," says Morgan "I really have to be careful about the clothes I choose because there are many styles that just completely overpower me.

"If you are a large woman I know that you can view someone who is petite as having no fashion problems, but this isn't so. Being little can oftentimes be as frustrating as being big in terms of the kinds of limitations you have on your clothing selection."

To keep her size 4 figure stylishly clad Morgan finds that avoiding jewelry is a must.

"I tend to avoid any heavy, chunky pieces of jewelry, or even just pieces that are 'fussy,' like bracelets. They make me nervous," she confesses, "and they clutter up the look of my outfit.

"The best look for a small figure are the classic styles," says Morgan "with smooth lines and clean tailoring. I don't think you should jazz up the look with a lot of accessories.

"A tall girl can carry those great big belts and lots of scarves or bows, but a small figure gets lost if the look is too ornate."

Morgan also suggests that the small figure stay away from flamboyant prints and loud designs if you are going to make your size really work for you and not against you.

"I stick to small dainty prints mostly," she says, "and I do find solid colors work the best. Other than yellow, which brings out the yellow in my skin, I wear all the colors blondes are not supposed to be able to carry, like pastels as well as the vivid colors. In that regard, I have always ignored the prescribed do's and don'ts, and concentrated on what I felt good in."

Strangely enough Morgan's advice for petite figures holds equally true for larger sizes as well. Too much of anything (jewelry, scarves, belts, bold prints, etc.) will overwhelm you, whether small or large in size. If you're small you get lost, and if you're large these items will emphasize your weight.

"I think it's important, regardless of your size, to look for the clothes that suit you best not only in terms of your figure but in terms of your personality and your lifestyle," says Morgan. "Finding things that you feel comfortable in is as important as finding things you look good in.

"And, you can't choose your wardrobe based on what looks good on someone else," she continues, "because no two figures are exactly alike even if they are the same size.

"I guess the key to looking your best," she concludes "is to dominate the image you create with your clothes and not the other way around. You are wearing the clothes, they aren't wearing you. I never want to be the kind of woman who walks into a room and is noticed for her dress and not for herself."

Whether you are tall or short, fat or skinny, there's one thing anyone can do to improve their looks ... and that is to stay on a program of sensible eating and sensible exercise.

DEAR ABBY

Mom's note cheers other mom

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Because of a letter you ran two years ago signed "Mother of Two Plus One," my prayers were answered. I am enclosing a copy of it with the hope that you will run it again.

Thirteen years ago I, too, gave up a baby girl born out of wedlock. Last year, the day before Mother's Day, I received a beautiful letter from the woman who adopted my daughter when she was five days old. She not only told me a great deal about my birth child's personality and character and interests, she enclosed some pictures of her. (I had to pinch myself to make sure I wasn't dreaming!) I don't know this woman's name or where she lives and I will not try to locate her. (Her letter was forwarded to me from the adoption agency that placed my baby with her.)

Abby, never in my life did I expect to receive a gift so precious! Please run that letter every year before Mother's Day. It may inspire other mothers of adopted children to do what this generous, understanding woman did.

The letter that followed it, signed "Blessed in New Jersey," also deserves a rerun. I'm sure it would gladden the hearts of all women who bore children they could not keep. Sign me ... MOTHER OF THREE PLUS ONE.

DEAR MOTHER: With pleasure. Here they are:

DEAR ABBY: Ten years ago I gave birth to a daughter out of wedlock. I was very young and decided that my child was entitled to a better life than I could give her, so I gave her up for adoption.

Even though I subsequently married and have been blessed with two more daughters to love and raise, Mother's Day is the hardest day in the year for me. Not only was I unable to keep my firstborn, I know nothing about what kind of person she is; indeed I don't even know if she is alive.

Abby, you could do a tremendously important service if you would print this request to all mothers of adopted children:

Once a year, on Mother's Day (or on your child's birthday, Thanksgiving, New Year's or any day at all) write to the agency that placed your child with you and provide updated information about your child's development, interests, activities, and a little about your family life if you are willing. Request that your letter be forwarded to the child's natural mother. No identities need be revealed.

Believe me, Abby, for a mother who has had no word of her child for 10 years (or five or 15), there could be no greater Mother's Day gift. – MOTHER OF TWO PLUS ONE

DEAR MOTHER: Thank you for a wonderful suggestion. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am a new mother whose heart is overflowing with gratitude to a 15-year-old girl I have never seen. I understand that she is a beautiful, intelligent person who became pregnant accidentally and decided on her own that her baby should have a better life than she was able to provide, so she put it up for adoption.

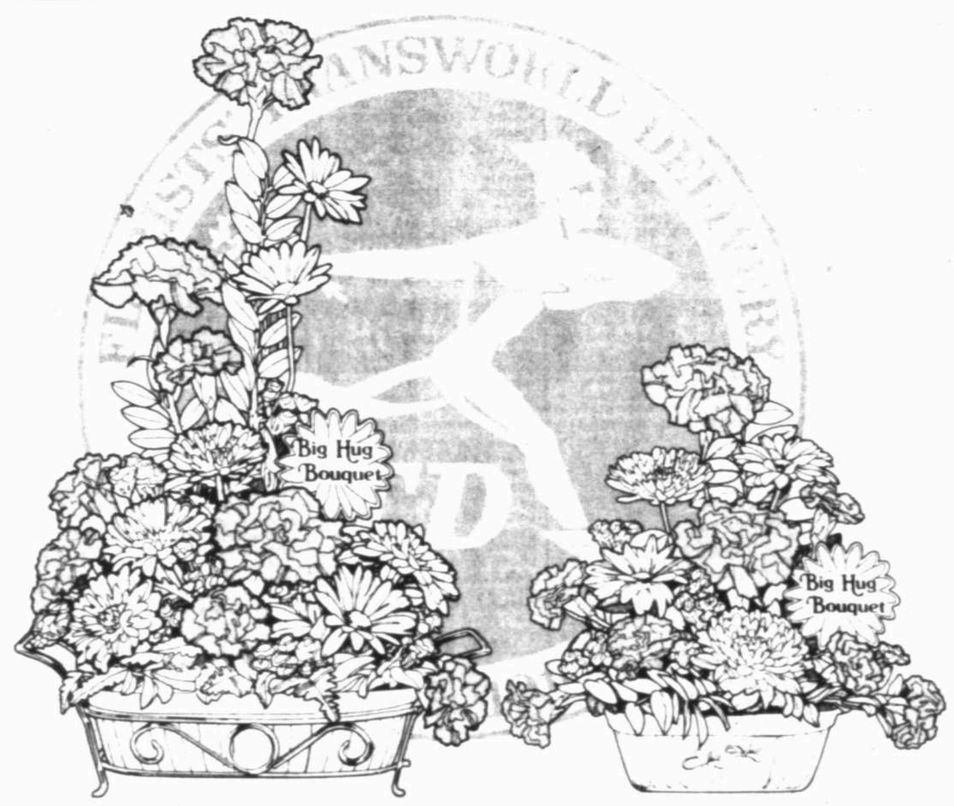

As soon as our son is able to understand, I shall tell him about his "real" mother and what a courageous person she is.

In the meantime, I pray daily for her well-being and good fortune. Sign me ... BLESSED IN NEW JERSEY

DEAR BLESSED: I agree that giving up a child for its own good is the ultimate in unselfishness. God bless those mothers who did.

I hope that you, and all other adoptive mothers who share your view, will act on the above suggestion.

(If you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

County's talk mostly turkey

By MERLE ELLIS

"Monroe, Union county, North Carolina, is the Turkey Capital of the World," proclaimed M.C. Howell, Jr., Union county Agricultural Extension chairman. "We raise more turkeys in North Carolina than any other state in the nation, and you're standing right in the heart of North Carolina turkey production right here in Union county."

Now M.C. is not the kind of guy one would want to argue with. When he says something it kind of has a way of putting an end to the discussion, if you know what I mean. But I had heard otherwise about who's who in turkey production.

"When I was a kid," I said, "I lived for a time in Worthington, Minnesota, and folks up there claimed that . . ."

"Not anymore," M.C. interrupted. "They may still say that it's the 'Turkey Capital of the World' and they may still have their 'Turkey Day Celebrations' and their 'Turkey Trot' or whatever, but we're Number One and that's a fact!" The discussion was over.

I didn't want to get into the middle of any controversy, but I did want to learn all that I could about turkey production, and I was in a great place to do it.

I was there was part of "Ag. Appreciation Week," a week set aside to celebrate the contribution of the agricultural community to the economy of this country. Some of us tend to forget or pay little attention to the great job American farmers do when it comes to feeding a hungry world. And being basically a country boy at heart, I found it good to get back to kicking clods and talking turkey with the likes of M.C. Howell, Jr. as we toured the farms, barns, and processing facilities of Union county.

They raise a little bit of almost everything in Union county, but turkeys were the county's number one farm income producer again in 1982, so that's what we talked most. According to M.C., turkey production has changed tremendously since it first started back in the early '40s with a few backyard flocks produced on a seasonal basis for the Thanksgiving market.

Turkeys now are produced in total confinement 12 months a year, with processing plants operating all the time. There have been many changes that have made this possible. One is that turkeys are now marketed in what they call "further-processed products." You can get anything from turkey bologna, to pastrami to turkey sausage.

Louis Rich, one of the country's largest turkey processors, produces between 80 and 90 different products from turkey. Rich processed over 16 million 27- to 29-pound dressed-out tom turkeys last year in three plants, one of which is just across the border in South Carolina.

Over 50 turkey producers in Union county grow turkeys for further processing by Louis Rich. Of these, 35 are contract farmers, who receive the poults when they are a day old and are furnished with feed and medication by Rich. The farmers furnish the labor and management to raise the turkeys until they are ready for market.

Others are independent growers who specially raise all or part of their flocks to sell to Rich. Starnes Oren raises, for example, 500,000 turkeys a year in 12 "grow-out houses" that are 50 feet wide by 500 feet long. I was particularly surprised at the cleanliness of the operation. "We've got to be careful," Starnes said. "Each one of these houses has 8000 to 12,000 turkeys on feed. If we got an outbreak of some sort of disease it could be downright costly."

Thanks to these growers, turkey today is inexpensive. The consumer has benefited greatly from the production efficiencies achieved by the turkey industry.

Witness that the anticipated average market price received by turkey growers in 1982 – 39 cents to 42 cents a pound – differs very little from prices received in the early 1940s. The resulting retail price to the consumer puts turkey and turkey products at the top of the list of meat values in today's supermarket. It also is awfully good eating!

At the end of the tour, M.C. barbecued boneless turkey breast for a couple of hundred people with the same ease and authority that he displayed talking turkey. I talked him out of his recipe.

M.C. HOWELL JR.'S TURKEY MARINADE
2 cups sauterne wine
1 cup soy sauce
1 cup vegetable oil
Juice of 1 lemon
2 or 3 cloves garlic, crushed

Mix all ingredients together, and use to marinade boneless turkey breasts, legs or thighs. Marinate at least 2 hours at room temperature or overnight in the refrigerator before barbecuing.

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices tumbled from last week's record highs today in selling encouraged by a prominent Wall Street firm's recommendation to take profits.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 101 points in the last three weeks of April, fell back 15.58 to 1,210.62 by noontime today.

Declines outnumbered advances by more than 2 to 1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Answer to today's Crossword Puzzle

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Investment always involves some risk

By BILL DOYLE

Doyle

Q. We are nine years away from retirement. Because we are in a high income tax bracket, we have already purchased municipal bonds, a deferred annuity and shares of a tax-managed mutual fund.

Our broker is now trying to talk us into investing in a real estate limited partnership. Would this be a wise move, or would it be too risky?

A. It could be either. There's no way in the world to make a blanket statement covering the investment wisdom and risk of any general type of investment. Some stocks have been great investments; some have been disasters. The same thing applies to real estate limited partnerships and all other types of investments.

Over the years, real estate has been a good investment. A limited partnership provides a way for investors to participate, without putting in all the time, effort and trouble of managing real estate.

In a typical real estate limited partnership, a general partner puts up a little money, manages the property and takes most of the profits. Particpations are sold to investors, who put up most of the money and get their share of the profits.

A well-run real estate limited partnership can be a good thing for its investors. They get a high yield — part of which is tax-free, because it's depreciation on the property. Also, they may be able to sell out at a profit.

• • •

Q. I read an article touting real estate limited partnerships. It expressed the thought that anyone who doesn't invest in them is dumb.

I say some of these limited partnership might be run by shysters and investing in them, even through brokers, is no guarantee of profits. Am I right?

A. Sure, on both counts. But, you are going overboard.

When money is involved, some less-than-upright characters are bound to get into the act. And, if every item a broker offers is a sure winner, no broker would have to sell anything. All brokers could retire rich, at early ages.

This column keeps stressing that there is risk in all investments. There's nothing wrong with risk, as long as you're willing and financially able to take it. Just make sure you know what you are getting into.

You can do that, where real estate limited partnerships are concerned, by studying the prospectus or offering circular for the particular partnership offering.

Subsidence panel gets close look

MACARTHUR, W.Va. (AP) — Workers at the Department of Natural Resources Reclamation Division office here have a sort of sinking feeling these days, and it's not because of state government layoffs.

Joe Parker, an assistant at the office, says the building is sinking into the ground because of subsidence in an abandoned mine below the structure.

The reclamation division is charged with the responsibility of monitoring mine subsidence in the state. Now the agency is getting a first-hand look at the problem.

Parker said the division knew the mine was under the site when construction started about six years ago. Steps were taken to shore up the earth, but cracks are starting to appear in the cinder-block foundation anyway, he said.

"We're sinking, slowly but surely," Parker said. "We tried to put piers down in the mine, and to make the footers a little more flexible."

Tax freedom occurs today

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you are the average American, today's the day Uncle Sam and other taxers take their hands out of your pocket.

According to the Tax Foundation, the average eight-hour-a-day worker has made just enough this year to pay all federal, state and local taxes.

Tax Freedom Day comes one day earlier than in 1982 and five days earlier than in 1981. On the other hand, in 1929 the average worker was done with all taxes on Feb. 9.
