20 OPPOSE MEASURE

Other Propositions Carry In District Two Boxes

Although a surprisingly light vote was cast, the contract between water improvement districts No. 1 and No. 2 was ratified with but little opposition in Saturday's irrigation election. Out of a total of 183 votes polled, all but 20 were in the affirmative. The 20 opposing votes were cast in the district 1 ballot box at the court house in Wichita Falls. This box gave 133 favorable votes, however.

Other Propositions.

District 2 voters, in addition to ratifying the contract, also voted on three other propositions relating to irrigation. Not an opposing vote was cast at any of the three district 2 boxes.

At Pleasant Valley school, 20 votes were cast, none of which was opposed to any of the propositions. Seven affirmative votes were cast at both the Denny and Allendale schools.

Five Joy Ride at Top of Niagara Falls As Speeding Boat Races to Rescue

Associated Press Dispatch

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., May 19.—Only a mud bank and luck saved a party of five from Chicago from being carried over Niagara Falls in a motor boat this evening.

The motor boat, the Sunbeam, is owned by the Lasker Iron company of Chicago. It was formerly a sub-chaser and was bought in New York recently, refitted and brought up the barge canal to Tonawanda.

Captain George Murphy of Chicago, was in command.

This evening the captain decided to make another lap to Buffalo and spend the night there. The motorboat was taken into the river and the pilot, being unfamiliar with the channel, proceeded north along the Canadian shore in the direction of the falls.

At Chippewa workmen on the hydroplant piers waved a warning to the crew but they interpreted the signal as a friendly hail and continued their course. Just below the intake for the Queenstown power house channnel, a broad mud bank stretches several hundred feet out into the river.

A motorboat was rushed out from Chippewa and the crew of the Sunbeam taken ashore. A line was attached to the Sunbeam to prevent her drifting away.

"Clean Up And Clear Out On Lord's Day" Say Presbyterians

Associated Press Dispatch

INDIANAPOLIS, May 19.—Presbyterians of the United States of America today received a report from the committee on Sabbath observance demanding that the movies "clean up and clear out of the Lord's Day."

Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, who is attending the assembly as an elder of the church, was absent from the hall attending a committee meeting when Dr. Harry L. Bowlby, president of the Lord's Day Alliance, attacked the Sunday movie shows.

"I have nothing against the movies," said Hays, "and they will clean up and quit work on the Lord's day, and I so told an important representative of the motion picture industry, who is attending this assembly as a commissioner.

"The commercial movie house ought to give the church, the Bible school and the home the right of way on the Christian Sabbath. Without the Christian Sabbath there will be no Christian morality, and without Christian morality the free institutions of this country cannot be preserved."

If the foreign and Chinese governments are unable to satisfy the brigands by Tuesday that their terms for the release of the prisoners will be met, and the robbers' chieftain makes good his threat, two of the Americans and two of the Britishers have but little more than 48 hours to live.

They will be shot as a warning that the marauders mean to force compliance with their demands under their chief's ultimatum sent out Saturday.

Harding Turns To Fresh Pipe When Foes Attack Him

"In your capacity of chief party trouble-maker in the senate," the president said, "you have said some things which have made me lay my newspaper down and turn to a fresh pipe of tobacco for consolation. This very generous and considerate article has antidoted all the things that have gone before."

Old Sol and Record News Awaken Thousands Daily

Reading the complete news at Knox City after The Record News has reached town at 6:45 a. m. In the picture are R. M. Farmer, Dick Shaver, R. H. Smith, agent; R. M. Herring and T. V. Jones.

Another story of speed, of romance of the road, of wind and rain and—above all—performance has been added to the making of your Record News. This is the chapter describing the delivery of the completed product between the hours of 2:30 a. m. and daylight. Trucking papers from Wichita Falls to points on the outskirts of the Wichita Falls trading territory is a daily vocation for a number of men. The drivers begin their work when even the editors and reporters and printers have retired after a short, busy night of hustled effort and energy. They take up the work where the newspaper men left off and their task ends when they have put thousands of these papers into the hands of waiting readers.

In this picture, for instance, taken recently at Knox City, you see M. D. Eyerly's fast mail car greeted at Knox City at 6:45 a. m. by a group of baseball fans. Eyerly, according to reports, literally flies through the country with the wind. Nothing has stopped him yet—be it rain, hail or sandstorm.

"The boys along the road are reading their Record News," Eyerly says. "They are quick to see the difference in a paper carrying complete games with box scores of all leagues over one carrying results up to the fourth inning—not half the game.

"The same thing is true with the news carried in The Record News and these people are realizing it.

"Let a big story break after dark and we certainly put it all over the other papers. That's what these mail car routes will do for a subscriber. We're giving them a paper carrying news 18 and 24 hours earlier than any other newspaper entering these towns."

Now just how many people are getting this service? How many towns are on these mail car routes?

These towns get the complete one-edition of The Record News before their early breakfast every day in the week and on Sunday:

Baptists Brand Marathon Dancing As Disgusting and Label Mob Violence As Trampling "Every Right in Dust"

"Ever-Present, Insolent Evil" Should Be Attacked By Pastors Everywhere.

Associated Press Dispatch

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 19.—The Southern Baptist convention in session here today selected Atlanta, Ga., as the place for the convention next year, endorsed the establishment of a seminary for negroes in Nashville, Tenn., and approved plans for the erection of a $2,000,000 hospital in New Orleans, La.

"Marathon dances" were characterized as disgusting exhibitions; mob violence, whether by persons masked or unmasked, was declared to "trample in the dust every human right," and prohibition laws were endorsed, in a report of the social service commission, adopted tonight by the convention. On the question of dancing, the report said in part:

Dance Attacked

"The ever-present and ever-insolent dance evil continues. The latest form of nauseating excess which this destroyer of the modesty and morals of manhood and womanhood has gone, is the disgusting exhibitions properly known as 'marathon dancing.' Such exhibitions serve to show in a new light the incurable evil of indulgence which in its very nature is fleshly and sinful. Our pastors ought everywhere in the most emphatic terms condemning such evils."

"The recent action of New York in repealing its enforcement code is a disgrace to that state and an insult

HEAVY GALES IN MANY SECTIONS CAUSE BIG LOSS

OIL FIRE IN ARCHER

Sleeping Men Routed From Bunks As Blazing Timbers Fall

At least three men seriously hurt and property damage that, in the aggregate, will reach a tremendous figure was the toll taken early Saturday and late Friday by a storm of widespread proportions, which visited North Texas.

The Freeman-Hampton and Electra oil fields were the heaviest losers, according to information received here last night. Damage was widespread over a large territory, however, Vernon, Electra, Knox City, Stamford and intermediate points feeling the fury of the winds that at times amounted almost to a gale.

Series of Fires.

A series of fires in the Freeman-Hampton pool took a toll of three injured and also resulted in heavy damage to rigs and bunk houses. Derricks were scattered about like straws. At Electra, 15 or 20 rigs went down and in the city of Electra a number of houses were damaged. In the Freeman-Hampton pool 24 derricks were reported to have been destroyed.

Hail fell over Archer and Baylor counties. Injury to crops was feared through this agency. Heavy rains were reported from some sections and threatening clouds were hanging low over a wide section of the country, presaging more troublesome weather.

HEAVY RAIN AT KNOX CITY

KNOX CITY, May 19.—A storm by rain and hail swept this territory last night at 11 o'clock and caused great damage.

The new house of W. H. Gilliland, one mile east of town, was blown 50 feet and turned at an angle of 45 degrees. The family had just gone into the storm house when the storm struck and barely escaped.

The rent house of C. J. Reese, occupied by Ed Manse was leveled to the ground just as the family entered the storm cellar. Zinc water tanks were blown from towers all over the county.

Reports indicate there is a heavy damage to fruit and other crops in a narrow strip three miles northwest of the city.

WINDSTORM HITS FREEMAN-HAMPTON

A windstorm that took on almost the proportions of a tornado swept the Freeman-Hampton oil field early Saturday morning, leaving destruction in its wake. Derricks, buildings and machinery were thrown topsy turvy by the wind and many completely destroyed by the fires that broke out in many places. So wide was the area hit by the storm and so great the loss that it is impossible to make accurate estimates of the property damage.

Fires Break Out.

Driven by a wind that uprooted trees and overturned buildings, fire raged in several parts of the field, unhindered in many instances, by efforts to extinguish it because of the gale that made fire fighting impossible.

When the derrick of a well a few miles from Holliday was blown over, it caused serious injury to several men who were workers on the test. As the derrick fell it struck the bunk house, where ten men were sleeping. Fire broke out immediately and before the dazed men could escape they were caught by the flames. Three are known to have been badly burned, and several others were less badly injured by the flames and by bruises caused by flying wood in the wind.

Three Injured.

The instance where three men were injured was typical of the scene, with hardly a building left in some places. In many instances the shacks were blown for hundreds of yards and in others blown into bits by the first gust of the wind. Derricks toppled over like tenpins in

Vernon Well Abandoned After Water Ruins It; Another To Be Drilled

Associated Press Dispatch

VERNON, May 19.—After fighting water let into the well when it was shot, the Zacagulesta Oil company has finally abandoned Zacagulesta well No. 1, 12 miles south of Vernon, and is pulling casing. Another location has been made near the original well and the rig is being moved onto the location to spud in early next week.

The Zacagulesta well showed oil which, conservative operators said, made 100 barrels when it was first shot, but the shot broke the casing and the water came in so fast that despite every effort of the drillers, it was impossible to save the well.

Three rigs are now preparing to start drilling in the immediate territory of the abandoned Zacagulesta well.

Associated Press Dispatch

AUSTIN, May 19.—Reduction of appropriations made by the legislature of approximately $6,000,000 and enactment of an income tax law was proposed by Lieut. Gov. T. W. Davidson as a means of meeting a prospective state deficiency of $10,000,000 during the next two years, in a statement issued tonight. To enact many more revenue measures would be detrimental to Texas industries the lieutenant governor said.

The following reductions in appropriations were proposed: General educational bill, $2,000,000; rural aid, $1,000,000; emergency school aid, $2,000,000; reclamation and flood control $400,000, and departmental appropriations $800,000. The latter, Davidson said, by the governor trimming down traveling expenses and other miscellaneous appropriations to state departments.

Davidson estimated that an income tax would bring in $3,000,000 annually and other revenue measures already passed $1,000,000. The senate president urged speedy action by the present legislature to prevent an extended session.

TAX EQUALIZERS TO BEGIN WORK

All Ready for Committee To Take Up Study Of City Assessments

The city tax equalization board, nolly completed at last week's council meeting, will probably begin its work this week, accordingz to City Tax Collector and Assessor H. J. Anderson. Everything is in readiness at the tax office for the work of the board.

Considerable delay was experienced in obtaining the three men who are to pass upon and equalize all the city's tax renditions. One board was completed, but later two of the men appointed found they would be unable to serve, and it was necessary to secure two more to fill their places.

J. L. Jackson, J. J. Simmons and J. N. Prothro compose the board as it now stands.

Lions To Tour Irrigation Dam With Their Ladies

The Lions club here is the next civic organization slated for an inspection tour to the irrigation dams, it was reported here last week in connection with rumors that the Lions and Lionesses were anxious to get some first-hand information on the whys and wherefores of the big project. The success of recent inspection trips by other civic organizations has started an uninterrupted trek toward the Baylor county reservoir.

At present the Lions are concerned with a May 30 invitation to an all-day picnic and outing with other Lions clubs in Texas and Oklahoma, scheduled to be held in Medicine Park. A number of the local club members have signified their intention of attending this event, and it is hoped that a large crowd of Wichitans will be on hand for what promises to be a lively day of fun.

Advertise Your Products, Poultry Expert Tells Wichita Chicken Men

By AL OLSTON
Record News Poultry Editor,
Marlele Coal and Feed Co.
Phone 4351

The story told of a lawyer who, being asked how he always managed to get a decision in his favor from a jury, replied: "First, I tell 'em what I'm going to tell 'em, then over and over I tell 'em what I've already told 'em." In the foregoing lies the elements for success in advertising. Don't use the intermittent type of publicity, where an advertiser tells 'em what he is going to tell 'em and then doesn't follow this lead with conscientious, continuous telling. The way to advertise is the method of the lawyer—first tell 'em what you are going to tell 'em, and then keep on telling them what you have told 'em.—Boston Daily Globe.

If the poultry-breeding and egg-producing farms in Wichita county would only do more telling it to 'em, through our local advertising mediums, they would very soon realize that "it pays to advertise."

So many of the peole that I talk to daily seem to think that advertising is only for certain lines of business. I personally believe that the main success after one has gotten started in the poultry game with a good flock of birds lies in letting 'em know about it through good advertising.

A farmer friend said: "Olston, it's all right and good for the fellow in town to advertise, but it wouldn't pay me."

I do not know how true this is of general farming, but I absolutely know it is the wrong idea for any farmer who is also a poultry man. In looking over the arvertisements in our local papers I see very few poultry ads, and those that are there are very small and inadequate.

Do you realize that right here in our own city merchants are importing and paying fancy prices for chickens, fertile eggs for breeding, and infertile eggs for market use to supply our local trade? One of your local breeders was telling me yesterday that he couldn't understand why the folk in Wichita Falls were so hell-bent in buying anything from anybody, just so they were not a native.

"Here I am," he said, "trap-nesting and keeping a daily record of all my laying birds, breeding up all my cockerels, and today I can honestly say that when a purchaser buys a bird from me I am selling him as good a bird as he can get anywhere. My stock is hatched from hens that have averaged from 285 to 200 eggs per hen for the last three years. The only stuff I sell is to outsiders."

After listening for some time to his tale of woe, I asked him how much advertising he had done since going into the poultry game.

"Man, alive!" he answered, "I don't need to advertise. Why, everybody knows me; I've been here for years. I buy lots of feed from all the feed houses; ask any of them about me—they all know me."

I wonder what success Mr. Johnson of Bowie would have had just because the local feed men knew him. How would we folk down here in Texas ever have found out about E. B. Thompson of New York, of the famous Ferris farms? You know as well as I why we are so familiar with these men: their names are in every live poultry journal and magazine of interest to poultry raisers. They advertise, and advertise widely. We will never meet with success here in Wichita Falls until we advertise—everyone of us!

Every day some one is asking me where they can buy so many chickens of this or that breed, and are even willing to pay a commission for the information. My information is free, but it is seldom that I can give any, because the poultry raisers of this section do not advertise. Let's get this poultry game down on a business basis and make the business pay. It is being done so successfully all over the country, and it's high time we got into the swim. Let's advertise our birds, their records, their showings, our infertile eggs, and get out of the rut of the common market, turn to the right, and on to the main street of premium prices for our stock.

Award Case Postponed

The case of the Southern Casualty company vs. Mrs. Jones, Lee Kell & Parker, was brought up for hearing Saturday before Judge Guy Rogers of the county court at law, but was later postponed for consideration at a later date. One of the attorneys interested in the case asked for more time in which to prepare some papers.

FARMERS MAY DEFEAT G.O.P.

Harding Told Men In West Are Growing Dissatisfied

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Dissatisfaction among the farmers threatens to cause the defeat of the republican national ticket next year!

This was the word brought back to Washington this week by a Western republican senator, who is credited with having told his story directly to President Harding.

Here is the way the senator summed it up:

"Farmers out in the country are rebellious. They say that the Harding administration has been legislating exclusively for the manufactorer and the city man. The result is that prosperity has come back to the city and the farm population is in no worse condition that he has ever been before. They threaten to take it out on the G. O. P."

There is little doubt that the senator in question expressed the sentiment of the farmers in his own state. Whether the farmers in other states are thinking the same way is not known, but the possibility is that they are.

Democrats are getting ready with some figures obtained from Secretary of Agriculture Wallace a few weeks ago, showing that in spite of the emergency toriff enacted in 1921, the purchasing power of the farmer's dollar in 1921 was 84c, the lowest since 1889, when it was valued at 83c. In 1890 it was 83c, and in 1896, 81c.

In 1922 the farmer's dollar was worth 89c, and it had not been so low since 1906, when it was 88c.

Point Back to Wilson

The interesting fact to the democrats is that the dollar did more for the farmers during the Wilson administration than before or since.

The first time since that it bought 100 cents worth for the farmer was in 1909. The next two years it was 96c and 97c, respectively. In 1912 it was 101c. The succeeding years it was as follows: 1913, 100c; 1914, 105c; 1915, 103c; 1916, 97c; 1917, 107c; 1918, 112c; 1919, 112c; and 1920, 96c.

Agricultural conditions have not made the recovery that was expected by the republican administration, an dare sure to be a cause of dissatisfaction and deflection in the ranks of the Western republicans, progressives and radicals of the next congress. The tariff on grains, livestock, wool, sugar an dother crops of the West has not proved effective in enlarging the farmer's market or increasing the price of his products, but has operated to magnify his cost of living.

There have been some advances in the prices of agricultural products, notably wool, but these gains to the producers are offset by the rapid rise in commodities which they have to consume. Official statistics from the department of labor show that the average wholesale price of nine groups of commodities—including farm products—were 14 points higher in March this year than in March, 1922, before the Fordney-McCumber bill passed. The advance in agricultural products was 12 points, but the prices of other commodities of which the farmer is a heavy consumer had considerably outrun the rise in what he had to sell.

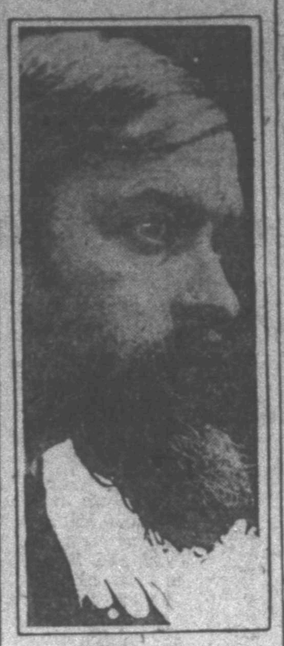

Clothing Cost Up

The cost of clothing moved upward 27 points between March, 1922, and March, 1923, according to the official statistics. Building materials were 45 points higher than last year; and metals—hardware, wire, implements etc.—40 points higher. Moreover, the cost of consumers' commodities is ascending faster than the prices of agricultural products are. In consequence of this disparity between what he pays for all he buys, and what he receives for all he sells, the farmer is finding fault with the tariff. One big agricultural organisation has declared that the tariff has increased the cost of living to farmers by $300,000,000 a year.

The tariff and transportation will be twin troubles for the next congress and for the whole administration, it is forecast. The move to reduce duties and freights will find about the same amount of support, it is believed, and the effort of the reactionaries and spokesmen of the administration to prevent a reduction will provoke a bitter fight.

Republicans fear there will be a new and powerful enemy of the G. O. P. tariff in 1924—the woman. She has seen al she wears and sooks and used growing costlier, and blames the tariff. The campaign now being conducted by women to lower the price of sugar is a symptom of their reaction to economic an dpolitical conditions. They feel certain that sugar fould be cheaper if the tariff were lower. They will carry that conviction with them to the polls next year.

His Name Is Junx To British Artist

William Walcott.

William Walcott, famous British architectural artist, has some wonderful drawings on view at the London galleries but an amusing part of the exhibition is that his name appears on none. Each time he submits a work with his name it is refused admission. When his name if off, the works are accepted. The reason? That's a mystery.

BUENOS AIRES STORAGE.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Oil storage facilities in the port of Buenos Aires include 26 tanks with a total capacity of 210,000 metric tons (approximately 1, 430,000 barrels.) Of this number, the Argentine government has three tanks of 6,000 ton capacity each for the storage of oil from the government workings at Comodoro Rivadavia and the southern and western railways have three tanks of 8,000 tons each, Assistant Trade Commissioner Clarence C. Brooks, Buenos Aires, reports.

ESCANABA FEVER CATCHING.

The Escanaba fever seems to be contagious. Ever since a young woman of Escanaba, Mich. forced up her temperature by artificial means, similar cases have been reported in several parts of the country. A prisoner in a Texas jail held hot water in his mouth long enough to force his fever up. Fever has been faked by the hot water bottle method in Kansas and Illinois.

Marvin Jones Jumps To Third Rank On House Agriculture Committee

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Making one of teh most rapid advances in recent congressional history, Congressman Marvin Jones of Texas now ranks third among democrats on the highly important house committee on agriculture.

Mr. Jones went on the agriculture committee only two years ago. He moves up two notches in the next congress, due to the retirement of Congressman Jacoway of Arkansas aid the death of Congressman John W .Rainey, Illinois. The only two men ahead of Jones on the committee are Aswell of Louisiana and Kincheloe of Kentucky.

Congressman Jones went on the committee on agriculture following the retirement of congressman Young Kaufman.

The rapid advance of Mr. Jones emphasizes the fact that the following Texans will probably be committee chairman or ranking democrats, if the democrats capture the house in 1924:

Jones, agriculture; Box, claims; Briggs, coinage, weights and measures; Blanton, District of Columbia; Hudspeth, elections; Sanders, expenditures in the department of agriculture; Williams, expenditures in the postoffice department; Connally, foreign affairs; Lanham, industrial arts and expositions; Rayburn, interstate an dforeign commerce; Garner, ways and means; Summers, judiciary; Black, labor; Mansfield, rivers and harbors.

Never before have Texas congressmen been in such places of vantage in committee assignments. In addition, Buchanan is near the top on appropriations and Lanham is high on public buildings.

NEW POSTMASTERS

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Postmaster General New announces the following postmaster appointments in Texas: Atlas, Lamar county, John L. Keener, to succeed Harrison Woolridge, resigned; Green, Karnes county, Charles L. Gary, to succeed Daniel G. DeLeon, resigned; Sebastian, Willacy county, Louis D. Austin, to succeed T. J. Alexander, resigned.

Effective May 15, 1923, the postoffices at Erwin, Grimes county, and Hovey, Pecos county, have been ordered discontinued. Mail to Erwin will hereafter go to Anderson, and that for Hovey to Burlington.

Now They're Saying George Gould Also Was Victim of Tut's Curse

International News Dispatch

PARIS, May 18.—George Jay Gould Sr., American financier and railroad magnate who died at his villa on the French Riviera Wednesday after a lengthy illness, may have been another "victim of the curse of the pharaohs" according to a dispatch from Mentone today telling of a superstitious report which has grown up there since the American's death.

Gould and his second wife were traveling in Egypt when Lord Carnarvon was engaged in opening the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen in the valley of the kings where the ancient pharaohs were buried thirty centuries ago.

Gould visited the tomb and joked with Lord Carnarvon about the superstition held by some that a curse of death would descend upon any one who disturbed the sanctity of the aged sanctuary. In a few days both Gould and his nephew, Frank Gould, contracted heavy colds.

Symptoms similar to the strange malady which caused the death of Lord Carnarvon developed in Gould.

When news came that Carnarvon was dead and newspapers began to recall the superstitutious "curse of the pharaohs," Gould was shocked. The American financier is said to have pondered continually over the mystery.

The doctors felt sure that worry aggravated Gould's illness. Without worriment over the "curse of the pharaohs" and the strange death of Lord Carnarvon, Gould might have recovered, the doctors believe.

ROUMANIA BUILDS TANKS.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Since the completion of the 60,000 barrel tank in Rosario at the end of January the Argentine petroleum department has been successfully refilling the oil from the government fields at Comodoro Rivadavia, says Trade Commissioner George S. Brady. The crude oil being sold for fuel in Rosario has a fixed price of 40 pesos per metric ton in bulk or 43 pesos when sold in the drums belonging to the petroleum department (pesos equals $0.375 and metric tons equal 6.8 barrels.)

Deaths from the bubonic plague in Europe from 1345 to 1351 numbered 25,000,000, about one-fourth of the world's population.

A beautiful complexion is born in your blood. It also dies there, if you let it. Blood that is rich in Blood-Cells is pure. It shows its purity through the skin.

When one pimple comes out on your face, you can be almost certain that there are more to follow. It also means that impurities are accumulating in your blood to make your complexion worse instead of better. Face creams will not solve the trouble. There is always one quick and sure way to make your complexion free from all eruptions, pimples, blackheads and muddiness by building up the skin-purifying "machinery" which is in your blood. That is by building up your red-blood-cells. S. S. S. is admitted to be the leader among skin beautifiers. Rich blood, rosy face. Poor blood, "muddy" face. There are thousands of women who wonder why their complexions do not improve in spite of all the face treatments they use. They should not continue to wonder. Increase your blood-cells,—that is the only answer. Use S. S. S.—that is the other answer. S.S.S. contains only pure vegetable medicinal ingredients. It is also a remarkable builder of firm flesh, which is also important to beauty. It will fill out your hollow cheeks, put the "ruby" of health in your cheeks, and the sparkle in your eyes. It is all done by building blood-cells. S. S. S. does it.

Since 1826 S. S. S. has been beautifying complexions, and giving women physical charm,—all through one great secret, the blood-cell. S. S. S. is known and accepted as one of the greatest of all body-cleansers and blood-builders. Try it if you have pimples, blackheads, boils, eczema and skin eruptions. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is the more economical.

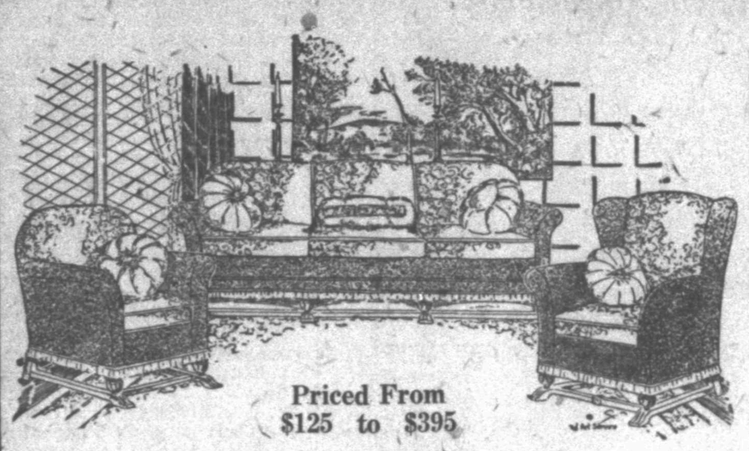

You will be startled how quickly and thoroughly you can stop skin eruptions and beautify your complexion with S.S.S.

Miss Ethel Rose, 422 E. Water St., Painted Post, N. Y., writes: "I followed your advice in regard to S. S. S., and am pleased to state that I have been greatly benefited by it. All that has been said in favor of S. S. S. I have found to be true as applied to my case, as it has certainly purified my system and my complexion is now clear. As you know, my trouble was pimples on the face, neck and chest."

RECLAIMING IDLE LANDS

Texas lawmakers of the Thirty-eighth legislature gave the state the reclamation and conservation act. There are many large projects, irrigation and reclamation, under way in Texas. There is a vast raft in the mouth of the Colorado river in Wharton county. It has cost the people of Wharton and adjoining counties more than $25,000,000 in recent years. When the floods come and the water pours down from the upper sheds, this raft prevents easy access to the Gulf of Mexico and the result is that the lowlands are inundated and vast damage results every year.

There is a great irrigation project now under way in this and adjoining counties and many others are on paper. This reminds The Record News that water storage capacity or irrigation project reservoirs of the department of the interior in western states has now reached 10,000,000 acre-feet or enough to cover the entire state of Connecticut with three feet of water.

This information was obtained recently when the reclamation service of the interior department completed a summation of its work conducted since the reclamation act went into effect 20 years ago. The summation further showed that operations of the department in irrigating arid lands reached great proportions.

The number of projects now under way or completed embrace upward of 3,000,000 acres of land that may ultimately be irrigated, divided into 70,000 farms ranging from 10 to 160 acres. Water is already available, it is pointed out, for more than 2,000,000 acres or more than 44,000 farms.

The construction of reclamation projects representing a storage capacity of 10,000,000 acre-feet of water has included more than 12,500 miles of canals, ditches and drains; tunnels with an aggregate length of more than 27 miles; masonry, earth, rock fill and crib dams with a total volume of 14,000,000 cubic yards more than 8,000 bridges, 560 miles of pipe line, 130 miles of flumes, 1,000 miles of wagon roads, 83 miles of railroad, 3,000 miles of telephone line, 970 miles of transition lines and 1,650 buildings, such as offices, residences, power plants, pumping stations, farms and store houses.

The excavation of rock and earth amounts to about 200,000,000 cubic yards equivalent to an excavation one mile on a side and nearly 200 feet deep. Excavation during 1923 exceeded the million cubic yards per month.

The reclamation service has used more than 3,000,000 barrels of cement and has manufactured more than 1,500,000 barrels of cement and sand cement. It has mined 140,000 tons of coal.

The irrigation works incidentally developed approximately 64,000 horsepower. This is what the federal government is doing to reclaim the waste places to be found in many western states. Reclamation work in Texas has been of slow growth. It required more than a quarter of a century to remove constitutional handicaps for the prosecution of the work.

There are millions of acres of arid and semi-arid land in the state which would require only three or four irrigations a season to make the soil as productive as that of the famed Yazoo valley of Mississippi and the annual rainfall in Texas, in the upper watersheds, is said to be sufficient, if caught and stored, to irrigate every acre of semi-arid land without the use of more than a fourth of the annual fall of flood water.

Now there are to be surveys and maps of the river water sheds and some day millions of acres of idle land in waste places will be made as productive as the famous black lands of North Texas or the valleys of the Brazos and Colorado rivers.

Thus it will be observed that the federal government is not doing all the reclamation and conservation work. Texas is about to come into its own.

There is money in petroleum. Edward J. Frizer says so. He is the president of an oil company. He says he has the figures. Called upon to make a speech the other day, President Frizer quoted statistics to show that the total cost of the crude oil produced in this country last year was $834,276,000 and that the producers sold it for an aggregate of $775,000,000, showing a net loss to the producing branch of the business of $59,273,000. A real hard luck story. Cotton growers are asked to take notice.

Skilled Laborers Needed and Few Are Being Developed To Take Up Work Where Expert Men Leave It

By B. N. TIMMONS
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Labor shortage in various lines of skilled work has drawn attention to the failure of industrial and labor organizations to develop artisans for the future.

The need of apprentices in skilled trades, particularly in building, has been emphasized repeatedly by representatives of the department of commerce and labor, and of the federal board for vocational education.

The revival of public interest in apprenticeship training has been emphasized by the action of Wisconsin in enacting an apprenticeship law providing for the proper training of apprentices, and similar legislative proposals in a number of other states, conspicuously New York.

The concern of the employers to meet the situation is shown in the so-called building trades by the campaign for education carried along by such organizations as the International Master Painters and Decorators' association; the Master Plumbers' association, through its trade extension bureau; the National Builders' exchanges all over the country; the New York Building congress, and many others. Every great industry in nthe country is taking a vital interes tin this problem, and seriously seeking a solution.

In some instances the concerted effort is being made by employers and employes' associations co-operating. A shining example of this is in Cleveland, Ohio, where 150 employed bdickmason apprentices are attending a trade school four hours a week.

Private schools have been established by the employes' associations in many cities, more in the West than in the East, for painting, plumbing, carpentry, bricklaying, masonry, plastering, etc. For example, the Tile Manufacturers 'association is making a study of teh training of apprentices for teh tile-setting craft. According to latest figures reported by the chamber of commerce of Los Angeles, there are more than 200 enrolled in the plasttrers' classes of the vocational education department of the city schools in Los Angeles. This course was organized under a plan devised by members of the school board, the vocational education director, chamber of commerce of Los Angeles, there are more than 200 enrolled in the plasters' classes of the vocational education department of teh city schools in Los Angeles. This course was organized under a plan devised by members of the school board, the vocational education director, chamber of commerce officials and trade associations. Day an dnight classes in the Los Angeles schools offer courses in bricklaying, painting, plastering, plumbing, house-wiring, carpentery, etc.

Probably no one organization representing any one trade has been more concerned or taken greater pains to meet the already existing shortage of skilled labor than the International Painters' association, because there is hardly anything made which does not have to be painted repeatedly to prolong its life. This association, through its education committee, recently pubished a text book on painting and decorating, particuary for use in schoos where painter apprentices are being trained. This was edited by a Washington man, A M McGhan, for many years secretary of the association, and who more than any one man in this country has been preaching the gospe of industria preparedness through the education of apprentices. He has toured the entire continent, visiting trade associations and schools to set them behind the campaign of trade education.

Another comprehensive program has been undertaken by the national trade extension bureau representing the employing plumbers' association. A book has been published containing a national apprenticeship program, while boutlines courses of training take nfrom courses actually conducted in the David Rankin school, St Louis; Valparaiso University, Indiana; the Trade School of Philadelphia, and the Evening Trade School at Erie, Pa.

This employing plumbers' survey shows some surprising figures regarding the actual existing need for apprentices, in Massachusetts, 800; in Michigan, 900; in New Jersey, 1,383; in Colorado, 232; in New York, 2,849; in Rhode Island, 167; in Connecticut, 329; in Pennsylvania, 2,204; and in the District of Columbia, 102, to give top-and-skip-and-a-jump illustrations.

While the trade associations are trying to work out their own salvation, the federal government has recognized this grave menace to industrial prosperity and the general welfare. With this actual need for apprentices brought into the spotlight by the action of the trade associations, the federal board for vocational training and the United States bureau of education, through co-operation with the states, are promoting trade courses fo remployed young people, not only in the building trades, but in all other industrial and commercial training.

The action by the federal agencies is not to meet the immediate needs, which the trade associations are already working to meet, but to be prepared for the general and orderly growth of trade and industrial activities. Not only is vocational work in the schools being enlarged, but trade teachers are being trained for this school work, as for example in Massachusetts, where teacher training in industrial education is conducted by the state board.

An examination of the enrollment in classes reimbursed from federal trade and industrial funds for the country as a whole during a five-year period reveals the following growth:

During 1918 there were enrolled in trade and industrial classes 117,934 pupils. During 1919 there were enrolled in trade and industrial evening, part-timea and all-day schools 84,765 pupils, while in general continuation schools there were enrolled 50,782, making a total enrollment in all types of classes reimbursed from trade and industrial funds of 135,584. In 1920 there was an enrollment of 86,737 pupils in trade and industrial schools, and 98,082 in the general continuation schools, or a total enrollment of 184,819 pupils. In 1521 trade and industrial schools enrolled 97,843 pupils, while general continuation schools gave training to 1 ,119,657 boys and girls, making the total enrollment in trade and industrial schools total 131,677, and in the general continuation schools 165,911, making a total enrollment in classed administered and reimbursed by the trade and industrial service of 297,788 pupils. These figures indicate continuous growth of the work in all lines during the five-year period, although the effects of the World war are in evidence.

With the Women of Today

By EDITH MORIARTY

Mrs. Zell Hart Deming, publisher of the Warren, Ohio, Tribune has recently been made a member of the advisory board of the Associated Press. She is the first woman ever elected to an office in that organization. She holds another record in that she has never had a strike in all her 20 years as publisher of the Tribune, an organ in the heart of the steel district.

"I run my business as I run my home," explains Mrs. Deming. "I insist in cleanliness and firm discipline. All a woman has to realize to brave the business world is that she inherited as much from her father as from her mother.

"I have a few rules, although I rarely think of them as such. First know so much about your business that no employee can afford to shirk. Treat each so humanly that you can afford to be strict and, most important, preserve an atmosphere of cleanliness and comfort.

"There is no reason why a woman couldn't handle the mechanical problems of a newspaper as well as a man. When new machinery is brought into my plant I study its operation so I can talk with my workmen about their troubles."

Mrs. Deming brought the interview to a close by saying it was not only profitable but human as well. Her new plant provides ideal working conditions for her employes and her workmen seem to like her creed of cleanliness and adopt it as their own.

OUR WOMEN LAWMAKERS.

New Jersey elected three assembly-women at the last election. One democrat and two republicans were seated in the New Jersey state legislature. Mrs. J. R. Schermerhorn was one of the republican women elected. Like so many of the women legislators who are now holding office, Mrs. Schermerhorn has long been identified with women's club work. Only last summer she resigned the second vice-presidency of the General Federation of Women's club to enter the political race. Mrs. Schermerhorn does not believe that women should confine their interest to bills afecting women only.

WOMAN RAISES BEES.

Nine hives of bees netted $305.60 worth of honey in 1921 for Miss Ethel May Bradford. Now she's an acknowleged authority on bee culture.

Miss Bradford taken up bee keeping as a hobby when she lived in eastern Canada. After moving to Saskatchewan and realizing that the shorter seasons there demanded different methods in handling bees, she set to work at investigating to ascertain the best methods to be used in the industry. She has been lecturing and demonstrating on this subject as one o fthestaff on Better

Farming train that has been touring Saskatchewan. Judging from all the letters and inquiries that have come to her from all over the province, the bee operation will soon be in operation on a majority of Saskatchewan farms, either as a sideline or a big factor.

Women are particularly fitted for handling bees, and the farmer's wife who has the time to devote to this work can earn a tidy annual income.

RECORD OF THE YEARS

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

They said it 50 years ago when they made the constitution. They have been saying it ever since but that is all. Fathers of the first constitution said it and they meant it. They did not have much to tax in those far off days but they were making the organic law of the republic and they knew that those who came after them would have plenty to tax for liberal support of the government if they had sufficient sense to make use of the gifts that God had given them—an empire whose latent or undeveloped wealth was sufficient even at that time to stagger the world.

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

Sam Houston and the mighty men of action who surrounded him said it first and then when a new constitution was written almost 50 years ago, many of its makers had known Houston and his co-builders of a constitution and an empire. Houston and his colleagues builded before the coming of the Civil war. They planted the mudsills of a new civilization and a mighty commonwealth yet to come. Not many years thereafter came the war between the States, the secession of those states that formed the planter's republic doomed to die on Appomattox fated field. This was the end of the secession. This was the finish of chattel slavery on the continent of North America. But this was not the finish of the dogma that taxation shall be free and equal whereever the white man builded a civilization under American skies or wherever the flag of freedom floats. Out of the ruins of fratricidal strife, the shedding of the blood of the brave and the wholesale destruction of the property that had been accumulated during a century of life of the republic, out of military rule carpetbagism and black domination emerged the all-conquering sons of the caucasian race who believed this to be a government founded by white men and to be ruled by white men with this old-time demand:

"Taxation shall be equal and uniform."

Richard Coke reinstated a government of the people. He was sent to the American senate to voice the will of the people. Society was in a chaotic condition and building of an empire was slow work. It ran along in the same old ruts until the coming of James Stephen Hogg. He found conditions not to his liking. He found the burden of taxation on the backs of the people. He found a well established and well organized machine with the powerful in charge and the few enjoying the benefits of government. This is what he said at the time. He unfolded a program. He declared that taxation should be equal and uniform. He fought the lawmakers to a finish. Corporations were not controlled when Hogg appeared on the scene. Common carriers had a go-as-you-please policy. Their legal advisors were the political bosses or close to the political bosses of the state. Great landowners, the kings of the range were partial politically speaking, to the machine. Wealth had been accumulated and was consolidated politically speaking. Hogg fought for eight years. Many of the policies which he advocated were crystalized into laws. He fought until he died for the great taxation principle of the fathers but the constitutional provision never was carried into effect by the lawmakers of his day. This is what the constitution said then and it reads the same way today:

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

Many grasped at the mantle of Hogg and many claimed it but it was too large for any of the claimants but they did the best they knew how as they walked along the trail blazed by the man known as the great commoner whose dust rests under a carpet of green in the shade of a pecan grove. He planted the seed and the soil was fallow. Some day a harvester will come. Some day all the lawmakers or a sufficient majority thereof will bow to the injunction:

"Taxation shall be equal and uniform."

AMONG THE SUCKERS

A Texas woman was arrested in New York on a forgery charge with Charles M. Schwab as the complainant. This Texas woman launched a $5,000,000 apartment hotel in Massachusetts and got along swimmingly by exhibiting a letter signed by Schwab agreeing to stand for $1,000,000 if necessary to be used in the constrction of the building. Now the iron master says he never heard of the woman. There is a sucker born every second on Manhattan Island and two born every second in Boston and vicinity, notwithstanding that the Bostonians admit that their city is the American seat of the intellectuals of the new world and the fountain of all knowledge.

A PREDICTION

There are 450,000 union coal miners in the United States. This is their demand: Right of all workers to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing. They insist that collective bargaining and union recognition go hand in hand and that there can be no recognition of the principle of collective bargaining without a corresponding recognition of the right of workers to organize trade unions. This is a hint. The immigration law of today will usher in the new order of industrial civilization demanded by the union mine workers. E.H. Gary of the House of Steel was the first to recognize this fact.

THE GAME OF SIX AND SEVEN

Six senatorial districts of Texas decreased their assessments from the 1920 valuation $30,115,000.

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

Seven senatorial districts of Texas have increased their assessments over that of 1920 approximately $64,525,000.

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

A consulting of the records will show that of the $13 per scholastic apportionment only $1.70 per scholastic is from the permanent school fund and the balance of $11.30 per scholastic comes from taxation plus the appropriation for rural aid.

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

"Lest we forget" the proposed measure to equalize taxes manifestly is not designed to shift the burden from the moneyed interest to the land but if land and all the other taxables thereon, according to the state controller's report of 1922, shows only an assessed value of $1,500,000,000 an when certified statements from assessors say that the assessment of their land is not over 15 to 20 per cent of actual value, then such low percentage assessed is insufficient to meet the demand land makes upon the state by reason of its 800,000 scholastics as a refund of school revenue to be derived from the ad valorem tax.

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

The assessed value of the entire acreage and all the taxable values thereon being only $1,500,000,000 which when made subject to the maximum tax levied of 75 cents on the $100 valuation will yield the net revenue of $9,375,000.

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

Under an apportionment of $13 per scholastic land will receive back on the 800,000 scholastics the sum of $10,400,000 or $1,025,000 over and above the amount paid to the state.

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

Is it when six senatorial districts have decreased their assessments from the 1920 valuation $30,115,000 and when seven senatorial districts have made a total increase over 1920 valuation of $64,525,000? Is it when—

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

It is said undisputable facts are disclosed by the records which show that there are two groups of counties in the state, namely—the low percentage assessed counties and the high percentage assessed counties. And yet—

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

It is said the low percentage assessed counties are composed of a group of 95 which have only increased their assessment 100 per cent over their assessment of 1906 the year prior to the enactment of the so-called full rendition law. And—

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

It is said the high percentage assessed counties, which group consists of 159 counties, have for the same period increased their assessments 232 per cent. And yet—

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

These are the senatorial districts that have increased their assessments over that of 1920: Jefferson $13,400,000, Harris $10,500,000, Dallas $13,000,000, Bexar $8,500,000, Tarrant $8,500,000, Travis $1,000,000, El Paso $625,000. These districts show a total increase over the 1920 valuation of $64,525,000. But all the people of all the districts and all the counties should agree with the constitutional provision that—

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

A well known taxation expert, who is elected by the people of his county every two years to assess their property, would provide for a commission of five members—that is, four with the state tax commissioner as chairman. He would have the northeastern district, the southeastern district, northwestern district and the southwestern district in order to make it possible that—

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

There would be 32 counties having a population of 1,187,169 in the first district; there would be 36 counties having a population of 1,183,202 in the second district; there would be 113 counties having a population of 1,200,800 in the third district; and there would be 73 counties having a population of 1,200,150 in the fourth district. All this to see if it would be possible to provide that—

Taxation shall be equal and uniform.

This is a reminder that the curtain will ring down on the special session of the Thirty-eighth legislature today. According to the executive department of the government the legislative branch has made appropriation for two years which total $44,000,000 with revenues in sight for the two years, incldng ad valorem taxes approximating $37,000,000. There is something like $6,000,000 in delinquent taxes due the state and a new delinquent tax-collecting law said to have teeth in it has been enacted. This is a story of figures from the first to the last to show the reason why—

TAXATION SHALL BE EQUAL AND UNIFORM.

American exports of corn in 1922 reached the highest value ever recorded for that commodity, $155,000,000, although the immense quantity shipped abroad last year, 164,000,000 bushels, fell somewhat short of the exports of 1897 and 1901. Europeans have learned the value of corn as a food product, a substitute for wheat bread.

CLINE ELECTED PRESIDENT OF SHRINE COUNCIL

BUSINESS DISCUSSED

Masonic Club At A. & M. Is Formed By Committee

W. D. Cline, past potentate of Maskat Temple, was elected president of the Texas Shrine council at the annual meeting of that organization here Saturday. Other officers named included Jake Zuhrn, Moslah Temple, Fort Worth, first vice president; P. B. Doty, El Mina Temple, Galveston, second vice president; Fred Righter, Ben Hur Temple, Austin, re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Luncheon Given.

The session was short and closed at noon Saturday with a luncheon at the Wichita club, given by Maskat Temple to the visiting Shriners.

Chief among the business matters taken included the adoption of several reports and the extension of an invitation from El Mina Temple, Galveston, for a big mid-summer Shrine party to be held in Galveston some time in the near future. The jurisdictional lines committee, headed by E. S. Dickinson, of Ben Hur Temple, Austin, reported that existing conditions in Texas as they related to the jurisdiction of the ten Texas temples was highly satisfactory and that everything was working harmoniously. The committee recommended that no changes be made and the report was adopted unanimously.

Masonic Report.

The A. & M. Masonic club committee, of which Mr. Cline is chairman, recommended that the Shrine temples of Texas provide financial backing for the establishment of a Masonic club at the state A. & M. college. Mr. Cline recently visited the school to obtain first hand information regarding conditions there. The council adopted the report and will make recommendations accordingly to the various temples.

El Mina's invitation for the big Shrine party this summer was presented through P. P. Norwood of Galveston and was referred to a committee headed by Al H. Reed, Hella Temple, Dallas, for consideration. A date for the affair will be set and programs outlined by this committee.

It is proposed that the state temples send their uniformed bodies and any of the other nobles caring to attend for an outing at Galveston. The fun, it is expected, may continue for any length of time between three and ten days. Further announcements as to this will be made later.

Various proposed amendments to the imperial constitution and by-laws which will be submitted at the imperial council in Washington next month were discussed in some detail at the meeting also.

INFERTILE EGG BRINGS BONUS

Oates Says Demand Increasing Throughout This Section

The demand for "home grown" eggs in this section of Texas promises to be better this year than ever before, according to M. B. Oates, agricultural agent of the Fort Worth and Denver and Wichita Valley railroads. This prediction is based on the demands already being made for fresh eggs.

Mr. Oates declared that last year he knew of one case where 30 carloads of storage eggs were shipped in here from Nebraska and sold to purchasers along the Denver and Valley lines. This, he said, could be explained by only one fact—consumers did not relish the kind of eggs placed on the market by poultry fanciers in this section.

This year, however, infertile eggs, the kind the public wants, are drawing premiums at produce houses all through North Texas and that with this inducement to poultry men, the supply will probably be vastly increased. Poultry houses here, at Fort Worth, Bowie, Vernon and other points are paying premiums on such products and are having much of their demand filled by farmers in this territory.

Flying Chaplain Hops Out of Plane For Baptist Services Here Today

Chaplain A. Foltz, flying parson, arrives at an early hour this morning to speak at both services at the First Baptist church. Reverend Foltz is connected with the army at Fort Crocket, Galveston, and will make the trip from that place by airplane.

The American Legion will meet at the Overland salesroom, Ninth and Travis at 10:45 and go to the church in a body. A special pew decorated with American flags has been reserved for the legionnaires.

Reverend Foltz, well known to all the army men of Texas, was brought here to have charge of the services at the First Baptist church in the absence of Dr. O. L. Powers, who is in Kansas City attending the Southern Baptist convention.

It is not known where the chaplain will make his landing but reports from the church yesterday afternoon said he would be here in time for the morning service.

MAN SCALDED WHEN HE FALLS INTO VAT OF BOILING WATER

Reports from the hospital last night said the condition of D. B. LaMaver, who was severely scalded about 8:30 Friday night when he fell into a condenser box at the Miller Petroleum company refinery, situated three miles north of the city, was improved and he would probably be removed from the hospital in a few days.

It is said the scalded man was working around the vat of scalding water when he apparently lost his balance and his right leg was submerged in the boiling water. He was immediately rushed to the General hospital for medical treatment.

Electra Boys Pay Fine For Hurling Rocks At Church

Two Electra youths, each 18 years of age, were each fined $25 and costs Saturday, when they appeared before Judge Guy Rogers of the county court at law on charges of disturbing the peace. They were arrested in connection with a row at a negro church in Electra several nights ago.

It was charged that they had hurled rocks at the building while a meeting was going on inside and had so disturbed worship as to necessitate the assistance of the police.

QUIET COUNCIL MEET EXPECTED

Paving Subject Expected To Be Leading Topic Discussed

With the city attorney's position permanently filled, the delinquent tax matters settled, so far as the council is concerned, no matters of major importance are scheduled to come up before the city commissioners at their regular weekly meeting Monday night. The two items mentioned above were disposed of in the past three weeks by the council, thereby relieving some situations that had been hanging fire for some time.

Paving topics will probably occupy the principal role Monday night. A hearing is to be held on the Thirteenth street and Huff avenue project, at which time property owners in that territory may express their preference as to the kind of paving desired.

It is also desirable that the two-block stretch on Austin street, between Eleventh and Thirteenth streets, completed last week by the West Texas Construction company, will be accepted by the city.

Spudders Drop Close Game to Cats, 5 to 4

STAUFFER ALLOWS ONLY SIX HITS IN MAKING BOW BUT IS BESTED IN DUEL BY WACHTEL

New Pitcher Looks Like the Goods in Spite of Fact That He Is Beaten—Calvo's Fielding Cuts Off Spudder Rally in Ninth.

FORT WORTH, May 19.—Stauffer, pitching his first game for the Spudders today, had one bad inning that beat him. Also, he walked Kraft twice as the starter for innings and each time the first baseman scored, the last time with the winning run.

Stauffer looks like an excellent pitcher. He has a good curve ball and though he seemed almost overheated, he stuck with his job. Wachtel, in rare form, almost lost out when Tavener's two errors in the seventh allowed the Spudders to tie the score, but the spit ball artist pitched a fine game.

Bescher Starts It

Bescher led off in the first by beating a bunt. He stole second, and scored on Elliott's single past Hoffman. In the fourth another was added on a double by Cotter, a single by Grigsby and an infield out.

In the Cats' fourth, Kraft walked. Stauffer fielded Hoffman's fizzle on the first base line and hit the runner in the back with the ball when he threw to first. Phelan forced Hoffman at second. Tavener singled, scoring Kraft. Moore doubled, scoring Phelan and putting Tavener on third. Calvo's single to left scored Tavener and Moore. With the score 4 to 2 against 'em the Spudders tied it up in the seventh. After Berger had gone out, Bischoff singled. Stauffer hit a perfect double play ball to Tavener, but the latter kicked it. Bescher forced Stauffer at second, but stole a moment later. White grounded to Tavener, who got his hand on some of Wachtel's suit and threw the ball six feet over Kraft's head, Bischoff and Bescher scoring.

In the eighth Kraft walked, took second on a wild pitch and scored on Phelans' single past Tanner. Calvo's fielding of long hard drives by Berger and Bischoff in the ninth cut off any chance they had and Whiteman, batting for Stauffer, popped to Hoffman.

Propositions from nearby points for a chess match to be conducted through the columns of The Record News against the Wichita Falls Chess club, are now being received and all clubs which wish to enter should communicate immediately with the sporting editor of The Record News.

In order to keep the ball rolling, clubs must agree to make their moves promptly. A systematic plan will be worked out to insure smoothness in conducting the games. The local club desires to know if those who wish to play have ever before entered such a contest by mail, wire or telephone and this fact should be stated in presenting propositions.

Team Wins Seven Out Of Ten; Harris Remains Undefeated

The Wichita Falls Coyotes closed their baseball season at Seymour yesterday afternoon by defeating the Seymour club, 8 to 2. It was a far better game than the one of the preceding day, Stallings, who twirled for Seymour, was one of the best pitchers that the Coyotes have bucked into all season. Yesterday he fanned fourteen men and allowed only seven hits, but suffered the loss.

The pitching of Harris and the batting of Walker were the Coyote features. Harris allowed but five hits and kept them well scattered. He issued no walks. The victory gave him a clean slate for the season, turning in a victory on every occasion which he worked. Walker walloped three hits in five times up.

Excellent Support.

The whole Coyote team gave Harris excellent support throughout the game and turned in some pretty fielding plays. Batteries were Harris and Ross for the Coyotes and Stallings and Lowry for Seymour.

The season just closed was a very successful one for the local machine. Of the ten games played, the club won seven, dropping two to Amarillo and one to Crowell. Only one series was lost when Amarillo took two out of three for the sectional championship.

Much credit is due Coach Brooks Henderson who handled the team throughout its successful run.

Strong Man Of Baseball

"Hack" Miller in action.

"Hack" Miller, the enterprising fly chaser of the Chicago Cubs, holds at least one National league record. He's the strongest man in the league. "Hack's" dad used to be a real strong man so it must run in the family.

Ruth Gets Another

Associated Press Dispatch

ST. Louis, May 19.—Babe Ruth clouted his seventh homer of the season here today in the first inning of the New York-St. Louis game. One man was on base at the time. The pitcher was Pruett, who struck out Ruth 10 of the 14 times he faced him last season. It was Ruth's third homer in three days.

TALKING IT OVER

With "Dink"

Youth must be served as the old saying goes, but in the face of this adage, age and experience is bound to bob up and do a flip and a handspring occasionally. This season seems to be a big one for the man who is close to or past 40 years on this earth.

Last week, Jess Willard, who is on the other side of 40, walloped a youngster half his age in the prize ring. Look up the home run kings of the major leagues and see what you see. Cy Williams, veteran of the Philadelphia Nationals, is away out in front with the circuit stuff and continues to pile them up.

Babe Adams celebrated his forty-first birthday Friday by pitching a splendid game. Babe was once a world's series hero, passed out of the majors to St. Joseph, where he came back and went up again. On the point of pulling out this spring, he was induced to return to the Pirates and he is showing up some of the youngsters. George Dauss of the Tigers is another who is taking no side steps for the young pitchers of the day. Grover Cleveland Alexander is busy making records, and Walter Johnson is winning where the kids fail.

It's the same in the major and minor leagues. The veterans seem to be the fellows who are shouldering the burden of the game. If it continues this way there will be a dearth in the crop of young talent which goes up to the big show next seasor. Some of those who were once discarded will be getting the call.

Pitcher Charlie Stauffer arrived in the Spudder camp and worked his first game yesterday afternoon. He didn't win it, but he let the Cats down with six hits, which is something to speak of. His wildness got him in trouble on the occasions when the Atzmen stored. The fact that he walked 109 men in 39 games with Bridgeport last year would indicate that he was touched with spells of wildness, but, in spite of that fact, he won 17 games and lost as many in a fast league. He was rated very high in effectiveness and his performance yesterday was enough to lead to the belief that he will win some games for Salm. With the club in dire need of tight pitching, Stauffer will find himself in solid if he comes through as he promises.

And, still, the deluge of home runs continues. No less than five were cracked out in the St. Louis-New York game yesterday. Home runs in the Browns' park aren't flukes. The game is getting to such a point that it's almost a disgrace to be a pitcher. And a wonderful honor to be one that can go through a game without getting cracked for a circuit drive or so.

The municipal tennis courts out on the "muny" course will soon be doing a rushing business. A tournament for the gold playing citizens will get under way next Saturday and the next thing in line is a similar tourney for the tennis performers. Somebody will start it before long.

$50,000 Kentucky Derby Stake Won By Zev

SINCLAIR'S THREE-YEAR-OLD BROWN COLT OUTRUNS CLASSY FIELD BEFORE 75,000 PEOPLE

Races Under the Wire a Length And a Half Ahead Of Martingale in the Largest Field That Ever Entered The Famous Derby; Crowd Is Largest That Has Ever Witnessed Horse Race In America.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 19.—Zev, Harry F. Sinclair's brown colt—the horse that came back after finishing next to last in the $50,000 Preakness a week ago, today entered the racing hall of fame when he won the forty-ninth Kentucky Derby before a crowd of 75,000 persons, the greatest throng that ever witnessed a horse race in America. The little brown colt by The Finn-Miss Kearney defeated 20 of the best three-year-olds in the nation, the largest field that ever started in the classic.

Starting from tenth position from the inner rail, Zev shot into the lead a few feet after leaving the barrier and led the field until the fall of the flag, crossing the wire a length and a half ahead of Martingale, owned by J. S. Cosden. Walter J. Salmon's Vigil, winner of the Preakness stakes, finished third, one length behind Martingale.

Lightning Track.

The race, at one and a quarter miles, was run over a track lightning fast, the time being 2:05 2-5, two seconds slower than the record for the event set by Old Rosebud in 1914. Nassau, owned by Frederick Johnson, pulled up in fourth place, by a nose, while Chittagong, owned by Mrs. John E. Hertz of Chicago, was fifth, a length back of Nassau.

In the fighting bunch back of Chittagong came Harry Payne Whitney's Enchantment, who captured sixth place, while Rialto, owned by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, finished seventh.

The race was worth $53,625 net to Mr. Sinclair, who was not present to witness the brilliant victory of his sterling colt. Martingale's owner received $6,000 as second place money, while $3,000 went to Vigil for third place and $1,000 to Nassau for fourth.

A $2 ticket in the pari mutuels paid $40.40 on Zev's victory. The price on Martingale was $25.80 to place and Vigil's show price was $12.30.

Start Cheered Widely.

The field went to the post at 4:47 o'clock and after a delay of six minutes, due to the unmanageable Nassau, Starter Williams S. Hamilton sprung the barrier and a hysterical cheer arose from the crowd as the horses plunged into a stride. Martingale momentarily snatched the lead as the field started its dash past the grandstand, but little Earl Sande, riding Zev, quickly jerked his charge into the commanding position, sending him to the front with all the speed for which he is famous.

Jockey Sande, laying his head close to Zev's steaming neck, kept his horse hugging the rail as he swept past the grandstand two lengths in the lead with Martingale trailing and Nassau fighting back in third place. Vigil was tenth at the quarter, eighth at the half mile, sixth at the three quarter pole, fifth into the stretch, and with Jockey Garner vigorously applying the whip, started a dash for the wire a length behind Martingale with Nassau fourth.

Sande Rides Well.

With a lead of two lengths to his credit Jockey Sande piloted Zev around the back stretch and straightened out for the wire. Martingale continued the fight to retain second place, having the advantage of a length over Vigil, which gaining at every step and making a valiant bid for second place.

Running like mad horses, Zev and Martingale shot under the wire a length and a half separating them. The crowd became hysterical, lifting the winner's name in a mighty shout and surging around the judges stand to get a close glimpse of Zev and his little blonde jockey.

A $2 ticket in the mutuels on Zev paid $40.40 straight, $30.60 place, and $18.40 show. The price of Martingale was $25.80 place, and $16.60 show. Vigil paid $12.30 to show.

to the federal government," the report said in commenting on the 18th amendment.

Hits Court Decision

"Enforcement in New York will be somewhat more difficult but prohibition will go forward, not backward. The question before the American people is not, shall we have prohibition, but shall orderly government prevail?

"The recent decision of the supreme court is in every way good for this cause. It is a surprise that it holds that American ships are exempt from the operation of a law of the United States when on the high seas or in foreign ports. But this easily can be remedied by the next congress through the enactment of a law to apply specifically to American ships everywhere. Meantime, it will not be very feasible for ships to stock and unstock with liquors at the 3-mile limit."

A report of the relief and annuity board adopted today declared that the Southern Baptist convention is aiding 925 aged ministers and dependent members of their families. It declared that the board's resources were $1,490,103.59, which, according to the report, is inadequate. The board has projected a program calling for the raising of a total of $10,000,000 for future work.

"Such a fund will make possible an annual income each year of from $500,00 0to $600,000 and will enable the board to do a worthy part by the aged Baptist ministers," Dr. William Lundsford, corresponding secretary, said in presenting the report.

LIGHT VOTE—

were disappointed at the small total, but expressed gratification at the manner in which those who did vote, rallied to the support of all the propositions. It had been hoped that 500 or 600 votes would be cast throughout the two districts.

Contract Ratified.

Saturday's results mean that both districts have ratified the contract between the two districts, meaning that district No. 1 will be relieved of $1,760,000 of the expense of the system, this to be assumed by district 2. An election will be held in district 2 next Saturday to vote for or against these bonds.

District 2 Saturday favored the establishment of a conservation and reclamation district embracing that territory covered by the irrigation district, voted to levy taxes on a benefit, rather than an ad valorem basis and voted for the uniform assessment of benefits of $35.25 per acre on all irrigated land in the district and the assessment of $1 per acre for non-irrigated land in the district.

STORM—

spite of the heavy bracing that was thought to be proof against winds.

The Hanes discovery well caught fire at 4:30 Saturday morning burning throughout the day before it was finally extinguished, according to workers at the well. Friction caused by the falling of pipe in the derrick when the rig was blown from its place is thought to have been the cause of the fire. This quickly spread to tanks and pools nearby. For several hundred feet surrounding the well oil on the ground burned steadily in the high wind, fighters being unable to reach the rigging.

Placed on Pump.

The well had been placed on the pump Friday afternoon and was pumping when it caught fire. It was shut off and only the derrick, machinery and tanks burned, the well itself being saved.

Simultaneously with the falling of the derrick the bunk house, in which eight men were sleeping, was swept away. Although the shack was blown some distance the men miraculously escaped injury.

Other fires were reported in the field, and the scene showed at least 25 dericks down. Throughout the field the wells were shut down, those not actually blown away being so badly damaged that repairs were necessary.

20 OIL DERRICKS DOWN IN ELECTRA

ELECTRA, May 19.—From 15 to 20 oil derricks were blown to the ground Friday night by high winds, in the Electra fields, according to Hy Newsum, insurance man of this city who has visited the fields.

The wind raged for two hours and in addition to the derricks destroyed one or two small shacks, blowing them from their foundations.

HAIL AND WIND FELT AT VERNON

VERNON, May 19.—An electrical storm accompanied by some wind, a small amount of hail and a heavy shower passed through this section early last night but, according to reports received here, did no damage to crops. The hail was small and only fell in scattered lots so that it was not sufficient to injure the growing corn, cotton, gardens or fruit on the trees.

HAIL BETWEEN STAMFORD AND HASKELL

STAMFORD, May 19.—Hail, accompanied by high winds fell here last night and today, but no damage of property or injuries to people were reported. Rain fell for several hours. A bad cloud is on the north of the city tonight with a storm threatening, and hail is falling between Stamford and Haskell.

LITTLE LESSONS IN Big Sports

What are the main qualifications of a catcher?

Answered by

RAY SCHALK

Catcher, Chicago White Sox, the greatest catcher in the history of the game, now starting on his 12th season behind the plate in big league baseball.

A catcher is a leader. Like all leaders, he must have a level head and reliable judgment under all conditions. His is the responsibility of sizing up a batter and signaling the pitcher as to what style ball to use to put the batter out. The catcher can be called the mainspring of the team. He stands facing the whole team and they look for him to exhibit pep and energy all the time.

COFFEE BILL SET FOR HEARING

AUSTIN, May 19.—The Baldwin bill proposing an occupation tax on moving picture establishments, theaters and other amusement houses was reported favorably by the house revenue and taxation committee late today. The bill proposes a graduated tax ranging from $5 to $15 annually according to size of town.

Three other measures by Baldwin seeking to tax circuses, traveling shows and carnivals were considered but not acted upon and were set for public hearing next Tuesday as was the Coffee bill proposing a 5 percent tax on gross oil productions.

Representative Baldwin announced Monday he will introduce another bill levying a tax on soft drink dealers.

Neither the house nor senate were in session this afternoon. The house converted for a short time this morning to permit introduction of bills and routine business.

Tommy Cochran Low In Exhibition Match

Playig in his usual brilliant form, Tommy Cochran who was runner-up in the 1923 state golf tournament, turned in a low score of 7 and won the exhibition match which was put on at the "muny" golf course yesterday afternoon.

Cochran shot a pretty stick all the way through, making his last nine houes in 37, one above par. The par of 36 for the course is considered too low by many and in view of this, Cochran's count was an excellent one. He shot the first nine in 38.

Dudley Golding, who was also entered in the state meet, was second with a score of 82, Bobby Burns third with 83 and Bob Alexander fourth with 86.

A gallery of 50 golf enthusiasts followed the match and many of the new "muny" players picked up some helpful hints and pointers on the Scottish game.

Scores by holes were as follows:

RIP WHEELER WILL RETURN TO SPUDDER CAMP NEXT TUESDAY

Ace Hurler Ready To Come Back; Harvey After Another Twirler

Rip Wheeler, penitent and ready to return to the fold, will be back in the Spudder camp next Tuesday morning, according to ward received from him last night by President R. O. Harvey. Wheeler failed to leave with the Spudders on their present trip and went to his home in Kentucky.

No reason was known for his departure and he said nothing in connection with his return. Wheeler was the leading pitcher of the staff in games hurled and had won four and lost one. His absence was felt on the road trip and his return will considerably boost stock in the Spudders if he goes on as he started.

President Harvey also announced that he was engineering a deal with the Philadelphia Nationals for another pitcher. He was unable to announce any names, but hopes to have some news for the fans within a few days.

DEATH—

ready to sacrifice their own lives and those of all their captives in their fight for reinstatement in the Chinese government, immune from punishment, we are surely doomed," is the statement made by Leon Friedman, one of the Americans, speaking for all.

Friedmans' message, sent to his brother in Shanghai, has stirred the foreign communities of China. In Shanghai tomorrow a mass meeting will be held to pass resolutions demanding that the American and British governments guarantee the promises of the Chinese government to the outlaws and win the freedom of their imprisoned nationals.

The shadow of death has descended seven times this week on the bandit prison corrals in the Patozuku hills. Two of the Chinese prisoners were thrown from the cliffs because their promised ransoms had not been paid, and five others were shot down in cold blood for failure to obey orders.

Negotiations Lag

On his way from Shanghai to Peking, American Minister Schurman stopped off at Tsao Chwang long enough to tell the Chinese officials there to get results and get them quickly, or "drastic action" would be taken.

"Get the prisoners out and talk terms afterward" was the keynote of Dr. Schurmans' demand.

Still the negotiations alternately progress and lag.

The Chinese officials at Tsao Chwang, comfortable in their 24 sleeping cars, parked on the railway siding, argue among themselves as to how this or that shall be done to free the 15 who are sleeping on the bare ground in the Shantung mountains, clad in thin rags and tatters, underfed and some of them in urgent need of medical and hospital care.

"Get Over On Your Side" Hilarious Driver Tells Officer—Then Is Nabbed

Three men and one woman were lodged in the county jail Saturday night to await the filing of whiskey charges against them as a result of three different raids by members of the sheriff's department. All four persons were arrested on Austin and Burnett streets.

Deputy Sheriffs Jack Miller, Harley Snyder and W. P. Belcher made the raids.

The woman jailed was declared to be about 50 years of age. A large quantity of intoxicating liquor was found in her home, officers asserted.

Three drunks were also picked up by the officers on the lake road when their machine was passed by another carrying a hilarious party, one of whom politely asked the deputies "git over on your own side."

No liquor was found on the party, but all were booked for drunkenness.

VETERANS LEAD MAJOR LEAGUES

Heilman And Wheat Setting The Pace With War Clubs

CHICAGO, May 19.—Zack Wheat of the Brooklyn Dodgers, a war scarred veteran of hundreds of battles, shook off his younger challengers for batting honors and today is on the top of the heap with an average of .435 as a result of hitting safely nine times in his last five games.

The averages are based on figures including games of Wednesday and includes players participating in 15 or more games.

The Dodger slugger has a comfortable lead over Charley Grimm, the Pirate star, who is his nearest rival. Grimm, up to Wednesday, had played in 25 games and smashed one or more hits each game, giving him a record for consecutive game hitting for the season. As runner-up to Wheat, he is parked in second place with a mark of .416, while Jimmy Bottomley, of the Cardinals, batted himself into the .400 class with an average of .400 for third place.

Cy Williams of the Phillies, another veteran, has made 13 home runs, and is giving no indications of of letting up. Sammy Bohne of the Reds, with his seven stolen bases continues to top the base stealers.

Other leading batters:

Southworth, Boston .400; Hornsby, St. Louis .400; Frisch, New York .387; McInnis, Boston, .365; O'Farrel, Chicago .362; Bagwell, Boston, .360; Myers, St. Louis .357; Neis, Phila. .354; Flack, St. Louis .353.

Veterans, headed by Harry Heilman, Detroit star, are topping the American league, with here and there a youngster striving to hold his own with the more experienced players. Heilman had participated in 21 games up to the time the averages were compiled and had cracked out one or more hits in each game, which boosted his average from .500 to the remarkable performance of .518. Sam Rice, of Washington, another veteran, is runner-up with an average of .377. Jamieson of Cleveland is trailing the fleet-footed Senator with .371.

Veach and Cobb of Detroit, Tris Speaker of Cleveland, Burns of Boston and Eddie Collins of Chicago, are well up among the leaders.

"Babe" Ruth gives promise of getting back into his specialty. The star drove out a brace of circuit drives, running his string up to four, but has covered only one half the distance set by Ken Williams of the Browns, who is topping the home run clouters with eight. Captain Eddie Collins of the White Sox, has competition for the base stealing honors this week, in Jamieson of the Indians, who pilfered five and tied Collins' mark of ten. Collins has been forced to remain idle because of postponements, while the Indian outgardener has been in action.

Jess Says He Is To Be Champion

International News Dispatch

WICHITA, Kan., May 19.—Big Jess Willard, of Leavenworth, Kan., will be heavyweight champion of the world, and that within a few months. He may not even have to fight Jack Dempsey for the crown.

That's the way Willard, brown and hard, spoke here today, when he stopped to meet friends in the oil game here on his way to California, where he plans to spend a few weeks. Willard declared he was ready to fight any and all of them, but explained his crack at Dempsey by saying Tommy Gibbons is a scapper, and it is no cinch Gibbons will not surprise Dempsey when the two meet on July 4.

"But, anyhow, whether it 's Dempsey or Gibbons I fight on Labor day, there'll be a new champion and his name will be Willard," the Kansas giant declared. He spoke quietly, without a bit of boastfulness.

As to Firpo, Willard figures the South American is big and tough, but he added "Firpo is slower even than old man Willard." The latter is confident of his ability to eliminate Firpo in their fight early in July.

MUGGSY M'GRAW NOT TOO CHESTY

Doesn't Think His Giants Have a Walk-Away Race

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sport Editor.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Early sneed being as deceptive as a politician's smile, John McGraw today declined to pick his New York Giants as prospective winners of their third successive National league pennant, in spite of appearance to the contrary.

The Giants are four and a half games in front of the field at this immature moment, but John McGraw seems to feel that you cannot judge a meal by the hors'd ovres.

"If this was September 1 and the Giants were going as they are now, I wouldn't mind chancing a prediction," quoth John, his tones bland and quiet. "As it is at the start and the breaks means too much to forecast anything months in advance. That is why I take issue with men who are bewaving the alleged fact that the Giants have broken up the National league race. That contention is very silly.

"Why the race doesn't actually begin until July 15. If the Giants were in the second division right now I doubt whether it would cause me much concern because I realize as I am sure Pat Moran, Bill McKechnie, Bill Killefer and other managers do, that the clubs are only jockeying at this stage of the proceedings.

"I have been in baseball 35 years and that has been long enough to teach me that the standing of the clubs of May is all too seldom an an indication of their final rating."

McGraw looks upon the Reds, Cubs and Cardinals as dangerous, but he actually fears the Pirates.

"The Pirates did not hit against our pitchers in the recent series, but the punch is there just the same," he declared.

"The Cardinals and Cubs are good baseball clubs. They are in contending positions and may challenge our lead at any time. In fact, the entire league is beginning to perk up."

Interest Turns to New Wildcat Test Across Young County Line

ACREAGE TIED UP ALREADY

Big Companies Rush Into Jack Ahead Of New Wildcat Test

GRAHAM, Tex., May 19.—Entirely new wildcat territory is to be given a through test within the next few months when Wooten and Reed spud in their new well in the Finis community next Monday. The rig is already up and the heavy material will be shipped out and put into place by Monday, when it is planned to start.

The location is a short distance east of Finis and along the east line of Young county, just over the line into Jack county.

Geologists pronounce the structural conditions unusually well defined. The structure covers a much larger area than the usual shallow pay structures have shown. The section has been under discussion for the past few months, but due to the fact that the leases were so badly scattered, the companies have not attempted anything until acreage was blocked.

Many Acquire Leases.

The Gulf Production company, the Empire Fuel and Gas company, the Prairie Oil company, the Rexana company, the Union Oil company, and the Magnolia company, all have acquired leases in this section, while the Sinclair and the Mutual people with others, have recently acquired holdings. A. W. Johnson, an independent operator, owns a large block of acreage west of the location which will be drilled soon.

The location is not so very far from production, being about three and a half miles east of the Shamrock-Bower well, which is east of Herron City and across the Brazos from the town. It is also the same distance from the Sinclair-Moran well, which some time ago was reported to be making 400 barrels.

The first pay sand is expected at 1900 feet, with other sands at 2,300, 2,600 and 3,300 feet. Some spirited lease and royalty trading have been going on for the past few days as the possibilities of the situation have more fully developed. The superintendent of the Ranger Gas company is reported to be mapping out a gas line to be run into the new territory to take care of the fuel requirements.

The Kauri-Seddon No. 1 well which was good for about 40 or 50 barrels, was shot yesterday about noon and looks like a good producer. They have had some trouble with the casing at around 3,340 feet. The well was swabbed twice, then shot with fifteen quarts. Some oil flowed but it will be some time before the full extent of the well will be known. This well was also promoted by Wooten and Reed, and is about a mile west of Graham, on the South Bend road, opening up new wildcat territory.

Structure Looks Good.

Wooten and Reed are also checking up the section around Murray with a view to locating a well. Structural conditions look good and it is probable that the big companies will rush to secure acreage, where they have not already gotten them. The territory is not entirely wildcat. The old Carmack well, a short distance from Murray, which was drilled about 18 years ago, has been gassing continuously ever since, though diminishing in volume. The well is only 335 feet deep and oil men take this as an indication that going deeper will produce results.

In this territory also, to the Northeast of Murray, M. J. Bashara has drilled a well to the depth of 2,800 feet. He struck the shallow sand, but it proved so small that it was not worth while. The oil indications were so good, however, that Mr. Bashara is moving his rig to another location a short distance to the north and will spud in a new well. All these wildcats are in practically well defined territory, though not proven, and when drilled in will put Graham entirely in the center of the oil field, surrounding her on every side.

Quay Co. Showing

TUCUMCARI, May 19.—Showing of oil, believed to be sufficient to make a commercial producer, has been found in the test of W. A. Carson of Oklahoma City, and other, in 13-9n-27e, Quay county, New Mexico, according to announcement of Carson Wednesday.

The showing was found at 682 feet, with the sand just topped. Gravity of the oil is 50, Carson says. The six-inch casing is being set on top of the sand, and a test will be made this week. The well is 21 miles southeast of Tucumcari.

Okfuskee Gets Field

OKMULGEE, Okla, May 19.—Independent Oil and Gas company of Okmulgee has opened a new field in Okfuskee county. Its wildcat in the southeast corner of the northeast of the northeast of 29-12-10, along the main road from Okemah to Okmulgee, drilled eight feet in sand found at 3,141 feet, and it responded with several flows. Practical il men estimate it at 300 barrels in its present condition.

KNOX FINLEY SHALLOW BLOWS IN MAKING OIL AND GAS WITH GOOD PROSPECTS FOR 300 PRODUCTION

The Knox Finley shallow well that has caused considerable excitement during the past two weeks, by establishing a new oil field near Wichita Falls yesterday blew itself in making a large amount of oil and some gas. The well, which has previously been estimated as good for 100 barrels on the pump is now thought to be worth at least 300 barrels, and in the shallow sand, at 1,118 feet is an unusual development.

The well, which is located on the Saner Brothers and Lomax farm nine miles northeast of Wichita Falls, just over the line in Clay county, in the G. C. and S. F. R. R. survey No. 1, was being standardized for pumping when it began bubbling blowing itself in and making lots of oil. It was connected with storage tanks and is thought to be good for 300 barrels.

The Knox-Finley well was a test drilled in territory that had not been developed, and as a wildcat was enough to establish a new shallow field even as a small well, and making the amount of oil the drillers declare is flowing, it is a producer that will cause a drilling campaign throughout the district on a line with the Burkburnett shallow pools which it may connect. Many operators visited the well yesterday and leasing in the vicinity has raised prices to high figures.

Magnolia's Deep Ancel Test At 4,360 Feet, Deepest in Wichita County, Is Finally Abandoned

The Magnolia Petroleum company's deep test on the Ancel tract in the southwest corner of Wichita county, the deepest test ever drilled in the county, has been abandoned. The well was drilled by the Magnolia to a depth of 4,360 feet, by the deepest known in oil history of Wichita county, but failed to find the expected rich sands at any depth.

The abandonment of the well is the end of a project that has been watched with interest by the oil fraternity, not only in Wichita county, but throughout the producing pools, because of the depth of the test and the fact that the well was in a territory which had not produced oil in quantities. Should it have proven successful either at the usual depths or at 4,300 feet it would have opened up new fields.

One interesting fact of the well is that the usual big lime formations of the territory were not encountered. A very small amount of lime was drilled, and that in shallow veins scattered at various depths. The well was plugged two weeks ago, and pine is being pulled by the drillers.

Shamrock Completes South Electra Well

The Shamrock Oil company's well No. 8 on lease C of the Waggoner tract in the South Electra field yesterday was completed and placed on the pump, making better than 75 barrels during the first 24 hours. The well is in the 1,900-foot sand and showing for a steady producer. The tract already has several producers, which have been drilled during the last few weeks.

Hits Sand On Gose

Texhoma Oil and Refining company's No. 42 on the Gose lease, in Archer county, at 1600 feet hit sand yesterday, making 75 barrels. The well looks good for a 75-barrel steady and will be put on the pump.

Casing Being Set In Archer County Well

Casing is being set in the Texhoma Oil and Refining company's No. 3 well in section 2, Kemp and Kempner tract, in Archer county, at 1712 feet. The rich sand was drilled to 1,724 feet, and looks good for a real producer. It will be completed within the next week.

No Osage Sale

OSAGE, May 19.—The department of the interior at Washington announced Wednesday that there will be no June sale of Osage oil leases, in order to conform with the general shutdown movement of the oil industry. The announcement was made following the submitting of evidence before the department by Representative E. B. Howard of the first Okla homa district and others, that the sale should be postponed. It is thought there will be no such until September, at least.

Robinson Plugs One

No. 1 well of Arthur D. Robinson, on the Grady-Roller tract in Wichita county has been plugged and abandoned.

TESTS HALTED AT GRANDFIELD

Rise In River Brings Work To Standstill; Renew Work This Week

GRANDFIELD, May 19.—Due to the recent rains all over the northwestern part of the state, Red river rose steadily this week with the result that oil activities in the riverbed came to a standstill, delaying all of the tests a week or ten days.

Oklahoma-Texas Test.

The Oklahoma-Texas Refining company was making splendid time on well No. 2, when the deluge of water came down the river, having about two-thirds of the piling driven.

It was the intention of the Oklahoma-Texas to standardize well No. 1 while work was going forward on the second well, but the river has also delayed this work as it is impossible to haul tools to the well while the river is on a rampage.

Under favorable conditions well No. 1 would have been drilled in some time this week, but it will be delayed now until about Monday or Tuesday, then the company will know just how good the sand is it picked up about ten days ago.

Other Wells.

Practically all of the work on the new wells which includes the Continental, Revenue and Marshall, has come to a standstill waiting until the river recedes to a point where teamsters can get material on the ground.

Fort Auger.

The Fort Auger well, southwest of town, which is below the 3,000 mark, is still holding the interest of local oil men. It is said that the gas coming from 300 feet of mud is causing the slush pit to seafoam and that in the near future this locality is going to get a real thrill from the development in this test.

Shafer Plugs Well

Silar A. Shafer has plugger his No. 1 on section 7, of the Denton county school lands, on the Chilson tract, Wichita county.

Magnolia Erects Derrick and Will Go 2,000 Feet in Wildcat Test

The Magnolia Petroleum company has erected derrick and is rigging up tools to spud in its wildcat test on section 179, in the northwest corner of Wichita county. The well will be drilled to 2,000 feet as a test of the territory, being more than six miles from the nearest production. It is located that distance from the original Electra pool in a portion of the county that has never been drilled.

The finding of oil in the test would open a vast field to drilling, possibly proving a connection with the old Electra pool which has never been extended in the north. At least, from the fact that the well is a rank wildcat, it will draw unusual interest and will be watched by the oil fraternity. It will be spudded in probably Wednesday.

Freeman Drilling In

Freeman-Hampton is drilling in today for the completion of No. 3 well of the Wilson Drilling company, on the Kemp and Kempner tract in Archer county. The well has struck a goo dsand at 1,722 feet and has the appearance of a producer. It will be completed within a few days.

Rich Sand Struck At 1,800 Feet In South Electra

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company's well No. 2, on lease F of the Waggoner tract in the South Electra pool, at 1,800 feet yesterday struck a rich sand showing for better than 150 barrels daily. The sand has hardly been penetrated and the well will be drilled deeper in an effort to find even larger production with the prospects for a big well promising.

NEWCASTLE TO GET DEEP TEST

Bashara To Drill On Tract Nine Miles Southeast Of Town

NEWCASTLE, May 19.—Arrangements have been made to drill a deep test on the lands owned by M. J. Bashara, nine miles southwest of Newcastle. The location has been made and 15 loads of well material have been hauled to the location. This well will be situated north of the humble well, on the southeast part of survey No. 2920. This well will be drilled by Mr. Bashara himself.

MONROE SPUDS IN WELL TODAY

NEWCASTLE, May 19.—The Monroe Production company will spud in the Johnson No. 1, five miles west of here Sunday. They will use a Star Rig and drill a 900-foot test.

No. 22 Bails Today

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company will bail today well No. 22, on lease A of the Waggoner lands, in the South Electra pool. The well showed yesterday for a good producer, at 1620 feet and will be completed within the next few days.

Hanover Lease Sold

MUSKOGEE, May 19.—The ultimate fate of all oil producing properties—salvage for the pipe and equipment—may be visited upon the famous Hanover Oil and Gas company lease in Muskogee county, which has been sold at sheriff's sale to satisfy a judgment for $20,000 and costs in favor of the Commerce Trust company of Kansas City.

The property brought $12,100 at the sale, while the appraised value of the lease, including pumping equipment and pipe, was slightly more than $18,000. It was bid in for the Commerce Kansas City corporation, and representatives of the Kansas City corporation said afterward that the lease probably would be junked to satisfy the claim, as six wells now are producing less than 10 barrels a day.

Salt Water at 1,790

The Texhoma Oil and Refining company yesterday tested sand in No. 2 well on lease B, Parkey lands in Archer county, getting salt water. The test was made at 1,790 feet and the well will be drilled deeper.

WATCH WILDCAT EAST OF GRAHAM

White-Johnson Reported To Have Struck Sand At 2,950 Feet

GRAHAM, Texas, May 19.—Oil men of the county are directing their attention to the White-Johnson No. 1, being drilled about a mile east of Graham. The well is now around 2,880 feet and the sand is expected to be struck around 2,950 feet.

It was a common report on the streets that the well had struck some oil and gas but oil scouts do not attach much importance to it. The pay at 2,950 feet is expected to be drilled in any time now, very probably Tuesday.

The well, if a good one, will open up an entirely new wildcat territory, and place production still nearer to Graham.

ELECTRA STILL ACTIVE FIELD

Cuts In Crude Seem To Have Little Effect On Drilling

ELECTRA, May 19.—The recent cuts in the price of oil has had little effect, if any, on the drilling operation in and around Electra territory. There have been no wells coming in of much importance lately, but there are many drilling all over the south field. There is plenty of water for drilling purposes, which was a setback to some remote wildcats who had to depend on tanks and ponds for their supply.

The deep test of the Magnolia Petroleum company on the Ancell ranch south of the city, abandoned the hole as dry below 1,000 feet, after having a fishing job on their hands. This is one of the very few deep tests that have been drilled around electra, and it is the opinion of many that oil will be found in the proximity below the 1,900-foot sand.

In the local field the Texhoma Oil and Refining company is showing a brisk drilling program, looking after their offsets on the Waggoner leases that resulted in the completion of No. 19 A, making 75 barrels from the 1,900-foot pay. The same company's No. 20 is drilling in the sand to complete at 1,90 feet, showing up for a 100-barrel producer.

The southwest of Electra, the Texas company finished a nice little 150-barrel pumper in the 1,700-foot pay; No. 273 Waggoner, and No. 269 Waggoner, south of town, is good for 100 barrels from the 1,800-foot pay. This well is in section 32.

Activity on the Magnolia, Texas and Houston Oil company's leases in the Waggoner land is being pushed in a rapid manner and each company is drilling three or more tests in various stages of completion.

Southeast of Electra a few miles the Gulf Production company's No. 2 C lease on the John and Jeff Waggoner land was drilled in Wednesday and is preparing to place on the pump with an estimated production of 100 barrels daily. The location for No. 3 has been made to the north of No. 2, 300 feet.

R. D. T. In Archer

The R. D. J. Drilling company has made location for, No. 1 well to be drilled on section 2,409 of the T. E. and L. survey, the Sorelle lands in Archer county. The well is the first on the tract which was recently acquired by the company, and is the first to be drilled in this district by R. D. J. Drilling company.

Future Of Swastika Field Will Be Determined By Outcome Of Three Wells On Sand; Cementing Favored

OLNEY, Tex., May 19.—With three wells setting on the sand in the Swastika field, nine miles northwest of this city today, the story of that field is soon to be written, and the future of this section as an oil country is to be determined largely by the outcome of these tests. The Swastika Syndicate has its No. 1B and its No. 2A both on the sand, 1B is 600 feet southwest of their discovery and 2A about the same distance southeast, while the American Refining company, northeast is setting on the sand at 1345, the difference in depth being accounted for by elevation.

May Be Necessary to Cement

Ordinarily all of these wells should be completed and on the pump this week, but it seems that every one of them is experiencing trouble in setting casing properly, and many operators are of the opinion that before they can be brought in successfully it will be necessary to cement, as was done in the Swastika discovery test. All are trying to avoid this delay if at all possible.

American Refining company was pulling casing yesterday afternoon to reset, having failed to make it hold at the first attempt. No. 1B has been having like troubles for three or four days and 1A is now going through the same difficulties.

The discovery well was again placed on the pump after a shut down of a week to change power plants, and is doing its 200 barrels a day and better regularly. All three of the wells reported above hove cored into the same sand as found in the discovery, and hopes are high here that some one of them will be a much better well than the discovery, and opinion seems agreed that of the three, No. 2A is the most likely one.

Kemp Increases Flow.

The Kemp well of Poter Oils Incorporated, five miles southwest of Olney, has increased in production and its last 24 hours on the pump produced a little better than 32 barrels. They are pulling the outside casing, rigging a natural gas engine, and getting ready to skid the rig to a new location, 400 feet east. The Kemp is making plenty of gas to furnish its own pumping power, and at the depth of discovery, 1,075, is considered one of the richest finds in this section of the country.

A severe windstorm here last night blew down the derrick being placed on the McClure farm, a mile and a quarter southeast of the Swastika field. It was hoped to spud in on this test late today, but the rig will now have to be rebuilt.

United Royalties are drilling at 550.

Walling & Clark, on the ten acre block bewteen the Swastika A and B leases, are drilling around 600. Their lease is now proven stuff since the finding of the sand in Swastika 1B, and with good luck they should complete a well next week.

Sun company, on Kovar lease, drilling at 1,130 in the hard limerock formation, which has been found in all of the tests so far. They report formations running true to the discovery well so far. Monday or Tuesday should determine the outcome of this test, and if it should make a producer it would stimulate activity quite a bit, as it would give a northwest extension to proven territory of near a quarter of a mile.

C. H. Creighton's Vernon No. 1, a mile north of the city limits, is drilling at 400 feet with an 18-inch hole. This is a cable to test to go 2,700 feet if necessary. Thy passed five feet of dry sand around 300 feet.

Swastika Syndicate's Pitts Neal No. 1 four and a half miles due north of Olney, drilling at 550.

Lee Wilson's Eureka 500 feet west of Swastika 1, drilling at 600.

Eagle Creek Oil company, southeast of 1A and due east of 2A is drilling at 400. Many rock hounds and operators predict that these people will get the biggest producer of the entire field.

Texas company, who has had rig up due north of the discovery well and offsetting American Refining company on the west for some time, have at last spudded in and are now drilling at 200.

The Flowers well, on the Cowan lease, 12 miles northeast, has set casing on a sand at 1,170, but have not completed the test. It is believed here that this will make a commercial producer, and if so it opens up another vast stretch of territory for shallow production, as it is strictly wildcat territory.

Leasing At Standstill.

Lease activities are practically at a standstill and will remain so until some of these wells are completed. City property is changing hands rather freely at steadily increasing prices, and with two new and substantial business houses nearing completion, an diwo more to start construction in a few days; with a dozen or more handsome homes under construction, Olney is substantially and rapidly growing. It is the belief of the correspondent that October 1 will have seen the population of Olney—permanent population, we mean—at least double what it was on January 1 of this year, and if the fields already discovered prove to be of average size, then it is by no means improbable that this will make a city of six to ten thousand people in the next year.

WICHITA WANTS DENVER SHOPS

Chamber Committee To Meet With Clarity On Monday

A movement has been started here again to bring the Childress shops of the Fort Worth and Denver railway to Wichita Falls, it was learned Saturday, when an announcement was made that a chamber of commerce committee will meet with F. E. Clarity, general manager of the Denver, next Monday. Action of similar nature has been urged before but nothing definite ever developed.

It is understood that Mr. Clarity will be in the city Monday and that the industrial committee of the chamber of commerce will discuss the proposition with him.

The fire at Childress last week in which the Denver shops were damaged to the extent of about a quarter of a million dollars necessitates their being completely rebuilt. It is suggested that rather than do this, the Denver should build its plant in Wichita Falls.

WHEAT PRICES GO DOWNWARD

Provisions Nervous; Corn And Oats React To Wheat Trend

Associated Press Dispatch

CHICAGO, May 19. — Wheat tended downward in price today, chiefly as a result of seasonable weather and of stock market weakness. The close was unsettled, with July 1.15⅝ to 1.15 7-8 and September 1.14. Corn lost 3-8 to 5-8@¾ cent and oats 1-8@1-4 to 3-8 cent. In provisions the outcome varied from a shade decline to 5 cents advance.

Corn and oats were easier in sympathy with heat. Some selling of corn resulted from gossip that rural offerings of corn to St. Louis had enlarged a little.

Provisions reflected steadiness of hog values.

FT. WORTH LIVESTOCK

Associated Press Dispatch

FORT WORTH, May 19.—Not enough cattle arrived to make the market quotable Saturday, the count calling for only 200 head. Several cars of steers, holdovers, sold at $6.

Sales of hogs were made at prices that were about steady. Nothing good arrived in car lots, the top in the pigs division being 7.35, but wagon hogs sold up to 7.50. Most of the run cleared at 7.25@7.45. Receipts amounted to only 200 head.

Sheep receipts were estimated at 1,000 head. Most of the run consisted of stockers.

Increased receipts of cattle have arrived this week and market prices have plunged downward.

Steers are 25 to 50 cents lower. Cows, heifers and yearlings show a decline of 50 to 75 cents. Bulls have lost 15 to 25 cents. Calves are 50 cents to $1 down, and on stocker cattle is 50 cents to $1 lower.

Hogs gained considerable strength during the first half, prices soaring to 7.85, but practically all of the advance was later lost, the close being only steady with last Saturday. Pigs are fully steady.

Sheep prices are up 25 cents and on wool lambs the market has gained 50 cents.

WICHITA SENDS DELEGATES TO C. OF C. MEETING AT SAN ANGELO

No picture like this could be taken in San Angelo during the fifth anual convention of the West Texas chamber of commerce, but Chadbourne street is a busy street any day in the year. This street is paved in wooden blocks. It is a hundred feet wide and adjudged one of the finest looking business streets in West Texas.

R. E. Shepherd and Hubert M. Harrison leave today for San Angelo, where they will represent the Wichita Falls chamber of commerce at the annual convention of the West Texas chamber to be held there the first three days of this week. Mr. Shepherd was named a delegate from the local organization when it was found that J. A. Kemp and B. D. Donnell, originally appointed, would be unable to make the trip.

The two men will go from here to Chillicothe and join a party of delegates from Vernon, Quanah, Chillicothe and other points. A special train to San Angelo will be run down the Orient from the Texas Panhandle.

Mr. Shepherd and Mr. Harrison Monday will present to the West Texas chamber the resolution drafted by the directors here last week, condemning the proposed state income tax and advocating a less ambitious program of expenditures on the part of the state legislature. The Wichitans will endeavor to have the resolution endorsed by the West Texas body.

RAHL MAY NOT SURVIVE HURTS

Little Change In Condition Of Man Injured In Auto Wreck

Reports from the hospital at a late hour last night said that there was little change in the condition of Carter B. Rahl, who was injured on the Henrietta road in an automobile accident Friday night.

The accident occured at "Dead Man's Curve" on the Henrietta road when Rahl, in company with A. D. Fletcher, and three negro employes were returning to the city in a Hudson roadster. When the car came to the curve it was thrown from the road, across the ditch into a vacant lot, turning over several times, causing a complete wreckage. Rahl was picked up several yards from the car in an unconscious condition and rushed to the General hospital. An x-ray examination showed that Rahl was suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries, some of which are feared to be internal. An operation was performed on the injured man and a clot of blood was removed from his brain, but at a late hour last night, he was still unconscious.

It is feared that Eddie Dotey, negro, is suffering from internal injuries and Walter Thompson, another negro in the car, is also in a critical condition.

Farmers Launch Fight Against Freight Rates

International News Dispatch

WASHINGTON, May 19.—Fifteen million American farmers have now launched a drive through their national farm organizations to force a reduction in railroad freight rates before the next harvest, Senator Harreld, republican of Oklahoma, a "farm bloc" member, declared today.

Although good crops are assured this year, Harreld said, the farmers cannot recuperate their recent losses unless the cost of transporting the crops to the markets is slashed. The drive for lower freight rates will be on obtaining reductions before the next harvest begins.

"A continuation of existing freight rates for one more harvest will completely bankrupt agriculture," Harreld declared.

Baker came here from Hot Springs, Ark., where he directed relief work among flood sufferers. Early yesterday he telegraphed an urgent appeal to William M. Baxter Jr. at St. Louis, manager of the Southwestern division, American Red Cross, for financial assistance.

Within two hours Mr. Baxter had telegraphed instructions to every chapter in Texas to start immediately the work of raising an emergency fund to be rushed here.

Seventy-two farmhomes have been destroyed, a check-up of property damage shows. At least 100 additional tents are expected from Austin today. Thirty tents are being used.

Scores of people slightly injured are being found, adding greatly to the list of injured. Many of these are without a change of clothing, as the cyclone blew out the windows or doors of homes, carrying away practically everything they possessed in the way of clothing and household goods.

STOCKS BREAK STILL LOWER

20 Industrials Touch Bottom Average Of Over 94

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, May 19.—Hammering by speculators for the decline in today's brief session of the stock market resulted in the establishment of new low prices by a score of representative stocks and brought about a new low average of 94.70 in a list of twenty important industrials. The market again was a dull affair, the bulk of the trading being transacted in the first hour.

A sharp rally at the close carried many weak shares a point or more above their low point of the day, but was not sufficient to show gains over the final quotations yesterday. California Petroleum was strong from the start, rising nearly 3 points, due undoubtedly to publication of an impressive quarterly earning statement and this bullish factor is believed responsible for widespread short covering operations in the final hour.

United Staets Steel again sagged to a new low price for the year at 90 5-8, rallying later to 97, where it closed half a point off on the day. Other steels, which dropped to minimum prices for the year included crucible and Great Northern Ore.

Selling pressure again forced recessions of 1 to 5 points in many representative issues.

Allied chemical, forced down yesterday along with the others in the fertilizer-cotton oil group, rebounded today, selling most of the morning about 3 points higher, and closing 1-2 above Friday's quotation.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was the decline of German marks to .0019⅝, a new low record for all time. Other European rates moved upward slightly, demand sterling rising half a point to 4.62 1-8 and French francs quarter point to 6.66 cents.

COTTON SEED OIL.

Associated Press Dispatch

NEW YORK, May 19.—Cotton seed oil was quiet and featureless, total sales being 1,800 barrels, prices averaging a trifle lower under scattered local selling on the poor showing in other markets. EXAMPLE OF FATALISM.

A sledge hammer falling from the roof of a building at Dayton, Ohio, struck Russell Hayner and fractured his skull. He may die. Fatalists believe even before Hayner was born he was foredoomed to meet that falling hammer that certain day, hour, minute, instant; that he got up that morning at the absolutely necessary moment, drove his truck all about the town on schedule, arriving on time to the very fraction of a second to meet the hammer at just the right point in its descene to be injured by it. What do you think. Does the theory seem sensible?

NOT CONSTITUTIONAL.

A Washington policeman arrested a tin pan and horn-blowing wedding party and escorted the principles to the police station where he was reprimanded by the police commissioner who ordered their release, saying it was worse foolishness to arrest them. "Most people only get married once and they ought to be free to celebrate it," said the judge. Most persons will agree with him.

NEW YORK, May 19.—Evening up of committments caused more or less irregularity in the cotton market today, but the undertone was generally steady, and the final price movement was upward owing to unfavorable weather reports from the south and continued talk of a firmer tone in the spot markets. After selling at 25.50, July broke to 25.15, but recovered most of the loss, closing at 25.43. The general market closed steady at net advances of 12 to 16 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 8 to 13 points and sold 11 to 23 points net higher on trade buying of near months and scattered covering in the new crop positions, then became easier under realizing and October to 22.14. The market This advance carried May up to 26.90 for over the week end. There also appeared to be some scattered selling on unfavorable reports from the goods markets and the failure of the demand to broaden perceptibly on the advances. May eased off to 26.68 and October to 22.88, making net declines of about 8 to 12 points, but the selling was not aggressive and the market firmed up again later in the morning on the Texas shower or rain reports.

There were reports of heavy showers or rains in South Texas with a clondburst at Beaumont and, according to private advices received here from Fort Worth, the outlook was for unsettled weather over Sunday.

PART OF A 97-LB. CATCH

The four fish in this picture, with two other large ones and eight small ones—the smallest weighing one and three-fourth pounds—were caught early Sunday morning in Red river, where Little Wichita runs into the Red. The total amount of the catch was 97 pounds.

The week before, the anglers had more luck, as they brought in 139 pounds, and the week before they caught 110 pounds.

The following composed the party which made the three lucky trips: Al Horwitz, manager of Keystone Pipe and Supply company; he is a good fisherman, but afraid of snakes. Marshal Arnold is a good fisherman, and the only one in the party who is not afraid of snakes. Mr. Arnold is head floor man for the Keystone Pipe and Supply company. L. L. Mossman, whose picture does noa appear, is a fine fisherman, but is always afraid of the boat turning over. R. White, the last of the party, is an expert painter and decorator, not saying how good a fisherman he is.

750 NOTARIES TO ACT AFTER MAY 31

Attention is again called to the fact that the county clerks office has received from the secretary of state the approved list of notary publics in Wichita county for the two-year period beginning June 1, 1923 and ending June 1 1925. Announcement to this effect was made in The Record News last Thursday.

It is stressed again that the power of the 750 or more notaries in the county does not begin until June 1. Several calls asking information on the matter have been received by the office during the past few days, it was reported Saturday.

175 REGISTER IN SUMMER SCHOOL

English, History And Math Courses In Fifth, Sixth, Seventh

More than 175 pupils have already registered for the summer session of the school which is to be conducted in the high school, according to A. H. Presson, who is to be principal of the school. This will be by far the largest number of pupils who have ever attained a summer session in Wichita Falls and it is expected this number will increase before the middle of this week.

Several of the pupils who intend to attend the school only need a credit or a fraction of a credit to graduate and they will receive their diplomas at the conclusion of the school, although it is thought that no exercises will be held. Courses in English, history, mathematics and work in the fifth, sixth and seventh grades will be offered according to Mr. Presson. The price of admission will be the same as that last year, which was $15. Only two courses may be taken by one pupil.

The following instructors will teach in the summer school: C. E. Danheim, J. T. Rundell, R. O. Jonas, Paul Morgan, R. C. and A. H. Presson.

The pupils are requested to meet at the high school building at 9. Monday morning in order to register for the work they intend to take. After Monday the school will begin at 8 a. m. and close at 12:30 p. m.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Where Does the Soil Come From?

This question covers too much territory to be answered except in a very brief way in a short article.

Our soils here all come from rocks or clays. This country has beds of limestone, sandstone, shales, and each of which have contributed to making the soils of this section.

Various forces act upon rocks tending to break them down into soil. Where rocks are exposed on the surface, expansion and contraction from heat and cold cause a multitude of small cracks to form. Roots of plants penetrate these cracks forcing the pieces of rock further apart. In the winter water freezes and causes the same action as the root of plants.

Rains fall and the water washes the smaller pieces down into the gullies and on into the bed of the streams where they are turned over and over striking against each other and are gradually ground finer and finer until they become soil particles. The streams carry these fine particles to rock until some point is reached where the flow is very slow and they are there deposited and in time become soil.

Many other forces act on the rocks, clays and shales. The wind is a powerful erosive and transporting force, as can be noted in one of our spring duststorms. Where certain rocks are actually in contact with water they are dissolved. This applies particularly to limestone, clay and shale.

Soil is being formed all the time, and the rivers and streams are constantly carrying soil down from higher levels to lower ones to be deposited in the flats and valleys there to remain for a time until it is again moved toward the sea. The land is being made lower and broader all the time and the seas, except for other forces would become smaller and smaller as time went on.

As we said in the beginning this is too big a question to be answered fully in this column. All we can do is to give you some idea of how soils are made and moved from place to place.

A bad sprain heals slowly if not treated with a remedy that has the power to penetrate the flesh. Ballard's Snow Liniment is especially adapted for such ailments. Three sizes, 30c, 60c and $1.20 per bottle. Sold by all druggists.—Adv.

30-YEAR TERM GIVEN PRYOR

20 and 10 Given Man Convicted Of Robbery With Firearms

In accordance with sentences returned Thursday by juries in the Eighty-ninth district court, Judge P. A. Martin Saturday sentenced Jim Pryor to serve 30 years in the state penitentiary. The defendant was convicted for robbery with firearms, a 20-year sentence being assessed for one offense and 10 years for the second.

When brought before the court for sentence, Pryor requested that his sentences be allowed to run concurrently, which would mean that he would serve only 20 years. Assistant District Attorney James V. Allred, however, refused to recommend that this be allowed, basing his stand on the fact that Pryor was under indictment for two other similar offenses and that he has served a prison sentence in Oklahoma for robbery.

Allred recommended a cumulative sentence and the court ruled accordingly.

Pryor was found guilty of having hi-jacked two men on a country road near Electra the night of December 22, 1922.

PUT UP SCREENS CITY WARNS STORES

With the summer months here in earnest, warning has been issued by the city health department to the effect that screens are due to start their annual period of service. This notice is being called to the special attention of confection stands, soda fountain, drug stores, cafes, groceries and all business houses selling edibles to the public.

Flies will make their appearance steadily from this time on, officials of the department warn, and it is advised that screens be putin place before the full brunt of the summer pests arrives.

CITY TO FILE FIRST TEST SUITS

Papers Drawn in Legal Fight To Collect $150,000

The first of the city's suits in its campaign to collect approximately $150,000 in deliquent taxes antedating 1921 will be filed this week, City Attorney E. M. Mann announced Saturday.

The papers have been drawn, and everything is in readiness. Tuesday of last week was the last day on which delinquent taxes could be paid without the property owners rendering themselves liable to legal prosecution.

It is estimated that $10,000 or more was turned into the city treasury last week by announcement of the contemplated action. Payments were made for years back in order to avoid court proceedings.

Elaborate Reception And Events For Guests Feature Calendar

Large Number Meet Attractive Bride At Party Friday.

Proving a banner day on the week's social calendar, Friday was filled with delightful events from its dawn almost, until midnight. Two affairs probably drawing the largest crowds, was the reception given by Mrs. Frank Kell introducing her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Joe Kell to Wichita Falls maids and matrons, and the entertainment of the Noble's wives from other cities who attended the parade, and the Shrine dance and ceremonial at Call Field Friday evening.

Arriving at the Kemp hotel, the visitors were received by the registrar, Mrs. M. D. Rowe and her committee, Mrs. C. C. Randle and Mrs. R. E. Shepherd.

After the parade, the guests were taken to the Empress theatre where they saw Harold Lloyd in "Safety Last." Mesdames Hubert Harrison, George Keith, C. W. Gilliland, J. B. Hatchitt and C. R. In the midst of the games the announcement of the approaching wedding was made: A number of toy balloons were thrown into the air and some of the boys, demonstrated their skill in shooting them with pins. When they burst, announcements in the shape of kewpies fell out bearing the date of the wedding and the names of the young people.

Senior Department Pageant To Be Elaborate Affair Friday Night

The May festival and pageant to be given by the senior department of the First Methodist Church, Scots, Friday evening promises to be one of the biggest affairs of the season among the young folk. The gaily decorated booths selling candy, peanuts, popcorn, fruit, sandwiches, cake, cool drinks, hoisenanders, confetti, and the peerless that make carnivals the liveliest thing of the year, will line the open adjoining the church on Lamar.

The jubilee will open at 7 o'clock and booth chalmen are vieing with each other as to which booth will be the most attractive.

Quite the loveliest affair of the evening will be the pageant, "The Legend of the Firefly," that leads to the crowning of the May queen.

The pageant and coronation ceremony have been worked out elaborately and the plans for the coronation will be kept secret in view of the fact that the contest for the queen only closes a few hours before the coronation.

The pageant is being directed and staged by a woman of wide experience and remarkable ability along this line, Mrs. R. A. Fayer, recently of Sweetwater, who has moved here to make her home. She is assisted by Miss Cloe Stripling, pianist, and Mrs. H. B. Hanks, costume manager.

"The Legend of the Firefly" centers around little Firelocks, a fairy princess, who by her selfishness, vexes her mother, Queen Arbutus, very much, indeed. Instead of dancing in the wood lands with her fairy companions she wanders away with the brownies and elves and is often led into mischief by Nix, the Brownie captain, and a dear playfellow of Firelocks. One day they wander away the EArth children and discloss to them many fairy secrets. Queen Arbutus in her wrath, banishes her daughter to the earth, where she must remain during the spring season. Because of Firelocks love for the Earth children, she is allowed to take the form of a firefly so that she may light their way at twilight. When she comes down to earth she meets Mistress Spring, who tells her that the whole world is busy preparing for the crowning of the May queen and asks Firefly to help. Firefly goes back to fairyland and enlists the aid of Queen Arbutus, who ascends to earth for the coronation, bringing with her her host of fairy attendants, flowers, rainbow fairies, snowbabees, brownies, sprites and elves.

You wouldn't wash clothes in dirty water—
Why have them dry cleaned in dirty naphtha?

DeLaval Continuous Clarification keeps our cleansing fluid clean at all times.

De Laval Continuous Clarification is generally considered the greatest advance in dry cleaning methods made in the past decade. It keeps our cleansing fluid clean all the time and so immeasurably improves the quality of our work.

Housewives who have the washing done at home can best appreciate the advantage of the new system of dry cleaning now in operation at our plant.

Suppose that all of the time the clothes were being washed a stream of fresh, clean water were fed into the top of the tub or washing machine, while from the bottom was drawn a stream of dirty water containing all of the impurities washed from the clothes. Wouldn't they come out whiter and cleaner?

That is exactly the way we now dry clean your clothes, except that pure, dry naptha takes the place of water as a cleansing fluid.

We have connected our cleaning machines in such a way that the fluid drawn from the bottom of them is delivered to a high-speed centrifugal clarifier, which instantaneously removes the dirt washed from the clothing. From this clarifier, the fluid goes back into the cleansing machine as fresh and sweet as when new. Circulation is continued in this way all of the time that clothes are being cleaned. As compared with wet washing, the effect is the same as though the clothes were alternately washed and rinsed six times.

This process is everywhere hailed as the greatest advance made in the art of dry cleaning during the past 10 years. Let us prove to you what wonderfully satisfactory results it gives.

THEY have been on the go afternoon, evening and night—bridge, 500, hearts, dinners and dances claiming every hour after school. Nothing escapes them. Between parties they spent the past week snatching a bit of sleep and making preparations for the next.

Probably the biggest affair of the week for the chosen ones and one at which peace and calm reigned, (for you probably don't know it Kitty, but we had some class fight), was the open house Wednesday morning kept by Elizabeth Carrigan at her spacious home on Austin. The reception suite was a veritable bower of roses and honeysuckle and the morning was pleasantly spent by almost the entire senior class at the hopitable home in playing games and in dancing.

* * * *

I DON'T believe that I have yet told you about the announcement of the engagement of one of our most beautiful girls, Julie Cummings, who has been a student at the state university this year. Her parents, Judge and Mrs. B. Y. Cummings, gave out the news a few days ago and one of our fairest maidens will no doubt, make her home in another state this fall when she weds Robert L. Toombs Jr., of Springfield, Mo. The wedding will be an important social event as Julie is one of the most popular members of the younger set.

* * * *

ARE you carrying a doll these days, Kitty? I am not surprised if you are, because ladies just as sensible and just as big as you are, have adopted the fad. What an age of faddists this is, ever reaching out for something new; not caring a whit what it is, only wanting to wear and carry it because everybody else is doing it, and between King Tut bags, dolls and kiki knickers, we gasp and say what next?

Since the doll craze continues and even increases, the unique new ribbon doll should be added to every collection. It is the first, really, the first worthy successor to the old-fashioned and dearly-beloved rag doll of grandmother's day. And like the rag doll, it can be made at home. Ribbons folded away can be pulled out of boxes and utilized. You don't have to simply carry them, as your doll, which first served as a cover for your telephone with flounced hoop skirt, can be the handle of your umbrella; it can hide your powder puff, the most beloved article of the present day lady, who very often carries a doll to match the costume she is wearing. Of course, if you are attired in Egyptian costume, Cleopatra nestles in your arms, and needless to say these dolls are going to be quite the thing at all the summer resorts.

GOODNESS knows we need something to counteract the effect of these plain wrappers we are wearing on the street these days, for one can take any little old gingham or percale house dress, run a narrow sash of the self material around the waist and knot it at the side, slink down the street, and you are dressed. Were the styles ever homelier or more unbecoming to the figure?

Another thing—have you a sweater? Time was when the lightweight yarns were considered good only for hot weather, but that time is past. They are now worn all the year around by well dressed women. Under the jacket or top coat the light weight sweater gives extra warmth. This year's yarns are really used only for out-of-doors sport wear when the weather is cold and the lightweight sweater this summer will be in good taste all winter.

It is said that Queen Mary, who is extremely interested in all handcrafts and especially fond of knitting, knit a full set of garments for the layette prepared for the infant son of Princess Mary. The queen grandmother is reported to be an expert knitter and those who saw the layette said the little hand-knit garments were works of extreme beauty.

BUT going back to dolls. From Paris many of these dolls are coming, all prettily arrayed in remarkable frocks and draperies. They sit upon the pillows of a couch, they occupy the easy chairs of one's living room, and the idea is to design their costuming so that it shall harmonize with the fixings of the room as well as with your house clothes and help to carry out the effect of the color scheme that you have chosen to be yours.

Your shopping bag or your vanity bag can be a little doll with all the necessary paraphernalia concealed beneath her skirts. And in this way you can have a thoroughly useful thing that helps your clothes carry out their own artistic effect. So if you haven't a doll already, dress one before you dress yourself.

DID I imply that the graduates, and they alone, occupy the entire stage? Far be it from me to make such an assertion with the June brides and the visitors claiming our interested attention. The past week, members of the Fidelity club have been unusually active, almost like something awakened from a lethargy, for one of their most popular former members, Mrs. L. E. Stewart, who has moved to Dallas to make her home, is again in our midst visiting old friends, and each day has brought some event for her pleasure and also for the members of this club. One of the smaller affairs of the week but none the less enjoyable, was the luncheon and theatre party given for Mrs. Hugh Weaver, and this was followed by a lovely bridge party in the afternoon given by Mrs. Ben Leggett, when all the Fidelity members and others were guests.

And speaking of guests, a trio of visitors who have almost created a social furore the past week were Mrs. Frank Rice of Chattanooga, Tenn., Mrs. D. H. Conner of Arlington, sister-in-law of Mrs. Harry Weeks and Mrs. Robert Campbell of Houston, sister of Mrs. Merrill Blair at Kemp Kort. Mrs. Rice, who was Mabel Simpson, before her marriage and a Wichita Falls girl, has been the guest of Mrs. Lester Burns and her mother, Mrs. W. M. McGregor. With her arrival two weeks ago, the parties begun, and have continued every day—sometimes two and three a day, until the popular visitor declared she would have to either go home or take a rest cure. So she went home Saturday.

ONE of the most elaborate affairs given in honor of Mrs. Rice was the bridge party at the Wichita club when Mrs. Burns and her mother were hostesses. This was followed the next day with breakfast at the home of Mrs. Carter McGregor and bridge in the afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Weeks when Mrs. Conner and Mrs. Campbell were jointly honored with Mrs. Rice. Monday afternoon, Mrs. Harry Baum entertained the trio and Monday night, Mrs. Fay Woodruff was hostess at bridge for them. Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. J. L. McMahan gave an elaborate bridge party at the Wichita club and at night, Mrs. Fred Weeks entertained at bridge. The festivities continued the next day with a luncheon given by Mrs. Harry Davis at her home at Kemp Kort with an afternoon at bridge with Mrs. Strib Moore, and a bridge luncheon Thursday with Mrs. Merrill Blair hostess. Thursday afternoon, Mrs. W. E. Maxon complimented the guests with a dinner party and bridge.

* * * *

A lovely event for a recent bridge, Mrs. Joe Kell, who formerly resided here, and who has returned to make her home as a popular matron, was the reception given by her mother-in-law, Mrs. Frank Kell, at the spacious family home Friday afternoon when the attractive honoree was presented to several hundred Wichita Falls maids and matrons.

A young couple honeymooning in our midst, who are being well received, are Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Hunt of Wheeler, Texas. They are visiting in the homes of the bridegroom's brother, H. L. Hunt and family on Scott street and also Mr. and Mrs. Tim J. F. Clifton. Mr. hunt is a popular merchant of Wheeler and Mrs. Hunt, before her marriage was Miss Artie Lee, assistant to the county clerk of Wheeler county.

I should like, Kitty, to write you forever, about the brides and visitors for you no doubt know by now that, that is one of my favorite subjects. However the lateness of the hour forbids, my dear, and as time waits for no man, this wo-man looks at the clock and stops right here.

Sweet Girl Graduates To Washington And National Training School Next

By MARGARET EPPLER

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 19. The sweet girl graduate just at this time has begun to display statesmen and stateswomen and every one else out of the picture as she "stands with reluctant feet,"—or perhaps, they are not so reluctant, after all.

Yet, be that as it may, this is commencement time and all the world pays homage at the feet of the young woman who is graduating. Gone are the days when girls have to leave Texas for their education, for the Lone Star is dotted with girls schools of the first class.

But the day perhaps will never come when young women will not take advantage of a year or two at a national capital training school, when it means that from time they may see the great and the near-great from all the world, for all the world one day comes to Washington. Then there are here the treasure trove of the nation for her who would improve her coursework at the class room.

Graduating month this year, one realizes just how many Texas girls are studying in Washington. The first school to hold its commencement exercises this year was Chevy Chase. Attending this school was Miss Zaidee Lee Foster, Houston, daughter of M. E. Foster, publisher of the Houston Chronicle; Miss Dorothy Dalby, Temple, and Miss Bozher Venable, San Antonio.

Fairmont school, which held its graduating exercises Thursday night, had two Texas graduates in its class, Miss Margaret Sheppard Skillman, Dallas, and Miss Frances Ruth Cox, Temple. Miss Edelwis Griffith, Forest is a junior at this school. Miss Skillman has already made a reputation as a painter and has already made a reputation as a painter and has had two pictures accepted for display at Corcoran Art gallery. Miss Cox has an excellent voice and intends to pursue its culture.

National Park Seminary, which holds its commencement exercises on May 24, has seven graduates, the largest number of Texas girls to be graduated at any one school in the nation's capital this year. They are: Miss Beulah Eloy Bledsoe, Port Arthur; Miss Elva McDonald, Galveston; Miss Bonnie Merle Martindale, San Marcos; Miss Roxadene Mon Marcos; Miss Margaret Isbel Sanders, Houston; Miss Gwyce D. Shamburger, Wichita Falls and Miss Elizabeth Watson, Waco. There are nine other Texas girls who are students at National Park, and who will return there next year. They are Miss Florence Nadyne Barrow, Houston; Miss Nancy Byrd, Mineral Wells; Miss Alice Eugenia Fleming, Galveston; Miss Marion Frances Lehman, Amarillo; Miss Gertrude Elliott Monsing, Galveston; Miss Ida Nelle Pangburn, Fort Worth; Miss Gloria Pennock, Beaumont; Miss Harriet Anna Sprague, San Antonio and Miss Mary Louise Thompson, Corsicana.

Of the following prominent schools and colleges in Washington, is represented by either one or more girls who are graduates or students at these schools: Trinity College, Miss Elizabeth Buell, Dallas, class of '24; The Holton Arms school, Miss Elizabeth Clem, daughter of Major General John L. Clem, of San Antonio; Immaculata Seminary, Miss Elizabeth Connelly, of Houston; Gunston Hall School for Girls, Miss Eleanor O'Brian, of Beaumont; George Washington university, Miss Warda Gaskle, of Dallas; The Colonial School for Girls, Miss Catherine Alford, daughter of Mr. R. W. Alford of Fort Worth; National Cathedral school, Miss Eloise Noble, daughter of Mr. George L. Noble, of Houston.

Texans are always figuring prominently in the news of the national capital and of the world. Tuesday the Lincoln Memorial University of Tennessee awarded the degree of Doctor of Laws to Mr. John H. Kirby, of Houston, who is one of the biggest business men of the South and a leading spirit in its industrial progress and prosperity.

Mr. Kirby, who is at present in Washington, received the degree from his preeminence as a patriot, philJohn Wesley Hill, in recognition of his preeminence as a patriot, philanthropist, as expressed in his large business connections and management, his civic leadership and devotion to higher education.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Kirby have a large circle of acquaintances in Washington and spend much of their time here.

Mrs. W. F. Skillman, of Dallas, was a visitor to Washington during the week, when she attended the commencement exercises at Fairmont school of which her daughter, Miss Margaret Sheppard Skillman was a graduate.

Mr. Richard Watkins has returned to his home at Wichita Falls, after spending several days in Washington.

Texas visitors to Washington during the week included Charles Cobb, Marshall; William B. Lupe, San Antonio; Jr. and Mrs. W. C. Munn, Houston; Dr. R. C. Lewis, Dallas; T. D. Walton, College Station; John Atkins, Houston.

MRS. DELLIS GIVES DELIGHTFUL PARTY

Mrs. D. Dellis was hostess at a delightful party at her home Thursday afternoon when tables were arranged for "42" with one seating four out-of-town visitors, Mrs. J. O. Blanton of Claude, Texas, Mrs. D. R. Weaver of Fredonia, Kan., Mrs. J. E. Mustaine of Dallas and Mrs. R. E. Rostello of Woodward, Okla.

The house was attractively decorated for the occasion in roses and honeysuckle with the roses further featured in the plate favors and score cards. Mr. James Bradshaw won the high score in the games.

At the close of the afternoon, dainty refreshments were served to Mesdames Bradshaw, J. B. Burt, O. C. Blanton, J. H. Fowler, W. R. Greer, Roy Hagin, R. B. Lewis, George Loughridge, F. W. Ramsey, G. H. Stewart, Dan Culleh and G. N. Walker.

KERCHIEFS PLAY P ART IN FASHION

By ELOISE.

The way in which sleeveless gowns are appearing at afternoon affairs one really gets bewildered. Informal occasions call forth just as many sleeveless gowns as the most formal evening affairs. Here are three sleeveless modes, two for informal wear and the fur-ariumned one at the left for formal occasions. Summer furs are no longer laughed at, or at least the laughs have no effect on the fashion for each year it gains a stronger foothold. The popular kerchief style is shown in the center and the right.

It looks as if one big kerchief made the gown in the center. It is a blue and a grey paisley design in heavy crepe and is bordered in navy blue. It is draped to the figure and a smaller kerchief is tied at the neck and a still smaller one is tied at the wrist, handkerchief style. The gown is a simple model for afternoon wear.

Apricot colored crepe romaine with a broad silver strip makes the dinner gown at the left. It is a straight line chemise model with a sash of self material and the hem edged with platinum fox. A short cape of the material, collared in platinum fox makes a pretty wrap for wear with the frock on cool evenings.

CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

The celebration of the sixth birthday of the Catholic Daughters of America will be featured with the presentation by the Dramatic club of two one-act plays, "The Truth About Jane," and "Too Much Bobbie," followed by a social hour at the church hall Tuesday evening. Mrs. C. V. Milholl is stage manager of the club and a beautiful stage setting for the plays are assured.

The Court of the Catholic Daughters of America was opened here in May, 1917, with Mrs. Wade Walker, a former resident of this city, now living in Long Beach, Cal., as Worthy Grand Regent.

The plays will be given under the direction of Miss Katherine Tierman and Mrs. Mabel Kavanagh, and a cordial invitation is extended to all Catholic Daughters, their husbands and Knights of Columbus and their wives.

MRS. MARICLE HOSTESS TO HARMONY BRIDGE

Members of the Harmony Bridge club enjoyed a delightful meeting at the home of Mrs. O. P. Maricle Thursday afternoon, the affair being one of the prettiest parties of the season. Roses were featured in the decorations and profusions of them were everywhere. The score cards carried out the motif and the plate favors were miniature pots of geraniums, with al arge bowl of roses forming the centerpiece.

In the games, Mrs. Fred L a n e won the high score favor and was presented with a cut glass basket. Mrs. W. W. Shuler was fortunate in the cut and received a framed motto.

Dainty refreshments were served to Mesdames Fred Goss, T. Kelley, W. H. Richardson, C. L. Baum, F. G. Lewis, Fred Lane and W. W. Shuler.

Corpus Sheriff Wins Litigation Over Election

Associated Press Dispatch

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, May 19.—Judgment in favor of George Peters, sheriff of Nueces county, was returned by Judge W. B. Hopkins in the Twenty-eighth judicial district court here in the contest case brought by W. F. Johnston, candidate for sheriff in the general election last fall.

The decision brought to an end two months of litigation in the local court, necessitating a special term for Judge Hopkins' division.

Johnston alleged in his suit that he was elected sheriff of Nueces county by a comfortable majority, but that on account of ballots cast for him being thrown out Peters had been declared the successful candidate. He brought out that his name, written in by the voters, was in some cases mispelled, but that these votes should have been counted for him; that Peters' name had not been scratched, but that his name had been written in, and that these votes were rightfully his; that illegalities in the ballots and ballot boxes had deprived him of the office.

In rendering his decision, Judge Hopkins took occasion to declare that it was clearly evidenced that the ballot boxes had been tampered with, but there was no indication to show by whom.

Johnson announced his candidacy for the office last fall after the withdrawal of Frank G. Robinson, then sheriff, from the race following his indictment in connection with the killing of Fred Roberts here last October. Robinson was lafer acquitted of the charges.

PLAYED FOR LAST STOCKING.

A woman's voice saying, "I'll raise your bet to my last stocking," intrigued a Chicago policeman as he passed a house in the wee small hours. He entered and arrested a "strip poker" party. The men were down to their B. V. D.'s and one of the ladies wore only a bright green skirt. After awhile even ordinary gambling seems to lose its "zip." Instantaneous strip poker is a modern innovation confined to the sporting life of cities.

Mrs. Anne O'Connor and Mrs. Rose Cohen both insisted they were owners of the same dog. It was up to a New York police judge to decide the case. He had each woman take turns calling the dog, and it answered readily to its name. That didn't help much. Then the dog was put in the middle of the court room and the judge said "here!" Commissioners Make Speed As Equalizer.

Progress made during the first week of activity as a board of equalization has led county commissioners to the prediction that their work with tax matters will not stretch out over as long a period as was at first anticipated. It was thought originally that the board would be in session six weeks or more.

Practically all tax renditions in precincts other than No. 1 were completed last week. This later division, which contains Wichita Falls, is of course by far the largest in the county, and entails the greatest amount of work.

Developments Friday and Saturday have not altered the opinion expressed by the commissioners earlier in the week to the effect that taxes were not being boosted for the coming year and that there was a possibility of a lower rate or lower valuation. It will not be possible to determine this finally until all the renditions are passed on, however.

ALL-STAR CAST IN QUICKSANDS

Powerful Love Story Opens At Empress For Four Days

The trend of the time in producing pictures is to give the public an all-star cast rather than provide a single star supported by scores of less undistinguished people.

The wisdom of the new method is exemplified in "Quicksands" which comes to the Empress for four days, beginning Wednesday, with what is truly an amazing galaxy of popular players.

The story was written and produced by Howard Hawks and directed by Jack Conway with a cast including Helene Chadwick, Richard Dix, Alan Hale, Noah Beery, J. Farrell McDonald, George Cooper, Tom Wilson, Dick Sutherland, Hardee Kirkland, Walter Long, Edwin Stevens, Frank Campeau, Lionel Belmore, Jean Hersholt, William Dyer, Jack Curtis, James A. Marcus, Lon King, besides the entire Tenth U. S. cavalry. What is more, each member of the cast plays a role well suited to his ability.

Any one of these names would have been thought sufficient to uphold the acting honors of a picture, but nowadays motion picture production has reached such proportions that the business of casting is looked upon as an essential to success. It is not a unanimous f seeing to it that the leading roles are well played, but the same care extends to the smallest part.

This is as it should be, and the public benefits thereby as well as the entire world of motion pictures. For the satisfaction derived from a picture well acted is reflected in the patronage given to succeeding pictures.

In "Quicksands" there can be no question as to the high order of talent employed in making the story real and the situations gripping. Helene Chadwick and Richard Dix, the latter fresh from his triumph as "The Christian," have never done finer work in any picture. The same can be said of Alan Hale and every other member of the long cast.

The story in itself is one calculated to tax the ability of the actors, experienced as they are, for it is replete with powerful emotional clashes as well as physical action tremendous in its scope and thrill. As, for example, when the troops dash over the southwestern plains in response to a girl's telegram for help from a M , an "cantina," the rendezvous of a band of drug smugglers.

HE WAS WELCOME.

Brown was making a visit to a girl who lived in the country, and they were walking through the fields when they noticed a cow and calf rubbing noses in bovine love. He spoke up: "The sight of that makes me want to do the same thing."

"Go ahead," she replied, "it's father's cow."

Elmer Clifton's super-special production, "Down to the Sea In Ships," which will be the feature attraction at the Strand theater on Wednesday, is designed and intended as a lasting memorial to perpetuate for coming generations, through the medium of the motion picture screen, the romantic thrills and adventures of the whaling days of a century ago. The old whaling days, now gone forever, form one of the most fascinating and significant pages in America's history. The adventures a whaler met on a single voyage would often supply enough exciting material to fill a dozen volumes. Only a few of the men who in their prime frequently heard the cry of "Thar she blows," are still alive, and before they are all gone the idea was conceived by John D. E. Pell of New Bedford, Mass., a descendant of one of New England's foremost whaling families, to utilize the knowledge of these men in the staging for the screen a whaling voyage just as it would be enacted one hundred years ago.

New Bedford, long the recognized center of the whaling industry in the United States, responded financially to the plan, and there was organized little more than a year ago the Whaling Film corporation. To Elmer Clifton, who long has been identified with "big times" in the production line, was entrusted the tremendous task of producing this feature, a production that easily takes rank with the foremost screen presentations of the age, and which, from the viewpoint of thrills, heart interest and photography, should live o nand on, a fitting tribute to the brave men of the sea who risked their lives in pursuit of the greatest of ocean monsters.

The production was complet some months ago, but it was only recently that Mr. Clifton concluded negotiations with the W. W. Hodkinson corporation whereby he could be assured a proper distribution of his super-special.

By means of the gyroscopic camera which was used, Mr. Clifton was enabled to overcome many of the difficulties which are ordinarily evident in sea scenes, and by introducing modern methods, such as a ship's yawl boat equipped with a motive motor, every minute particular of the perilous chase, exactly as it was done a century ago, has been vividly recorded for the screen.

The length of this film is eight reels. When it is considered that more than 150 reels (150,000 feet) of film were used in the making of this picture, some idea of the vastness of the undertaking can be gained. Hhe producers feel well satisfied with their effort, and they may well be, for they have given to the screen a picture which is an epoch in the motion picture industry.

WASHED DISHES 31 HOURS.

Now Susie appeals to her friends to "dig her out" from a flood of marriage proposals, offers of jobs, and "challenges." For one reason, she is to be married next fall. The 1923 freak season is well started, but so far as the marathon dishwashing contest has found no imitators.

New Star, Fresh From College Seen In "What Wife Learned" At Olympic

There is the elemental contrast of a cultured Eastern woman, fresh from college, and her Arizona rancher husband.

There is the contrast of life along Broadway, New York, and in the arid desert regions of Arizona.

There is the contrast of varying constructive ideals which both husband and wife struggle to make realities. The wife seeks to become a successful dramatist. The practical husband plans to reclaim desert wastes. Almost at the altar diverging ambitions threaten to tear them apart.

Moreover, there is contrast between the primitive uncontrolled emotions of the rancher husband and the repressed but equally powerful love which a successful New York dramatist has for the rancher's cultured wife.

On the one hand is a man who is not ashamed of the gusts of primal hate and love which sweep over him and to which he gives free vent. Confronting him is a personality, equally sympathetic, from whom he believes that she can combine both marriage and a career, and of the two men, one of whom believes that a wife's place is in the home at his side, and the other who encourages the woman to seek the fullest expression of her talents.

IF SHE'D LOOK HER BEST.

Richard Barthelmess, film star, "thinks a girl is ever so much more attractive in a frock that has light fluffy chiffon sleeves," and film stars know something about such matters. Barthelmess also hazards the opinion that girls should like summer time best because summer clothes are so much more becoming, so much softer and prettier. However, women don't to please the men and if they did probably no two women would dress alike. However, in that case, one feature would be noticeable, all would be neatly dressed.

To paint the Brooklyn bridge about 117,000 pounds of paint are required.

CROOK PICTURE PLAYS EMPRESS

Alice Brady Stars In Missing Millions Here This Week

Crook stories have a fascination all their own, whether in book, on stage or screen; and when they are well done, they are fairly certain to supply interesting entertainment.

"Missing Millions," a Paramount picture, starring Alice Brady, which comes to the Empress Monday and Tuesday, has been excellently produced and is an excellent example of the crook film.

It is a good cast and good direction, and tells an absorbing story, with the suspense nicely sustained up to a satisfactory ending.

"Missing Millions" is a revenge story. It opens with the spectacular theft of a wealthy woman's diamonds by the heroine crook and her partner's in crime, but on the same night, her father, a crook in his own right, becomes innocently involved in the assault of the wealthy woman's husband, a double-crossing, flint-hearted financier, and the latter railroads the father to prison, after promising to drop the case on the return of the stolen jewels.

The chance for revenge comes when the millionaire, Cantwell, finds himself beseiged by creditors and in order to meet hois obligations has a large consignment of gold sent him from Europe. The girl and her pals decide to steal it, going to Europe to come back with the gold for the purpose. Through vampiring the purser, the girl obtains the keys to the strong room of the ship, and the theft is successfully carried out. Of course, the plot of the winsome crook fails, but Cantkell is ruined just the same, and all turns out happily.

WENT DOWN TOGETHER.

A great storm overwhelmed the British bark, Amy Turner, in the Shinn seas. On the fourth day of the typhoon the ship began o sink, bu Neil Neilson, he master, and his wife, refused to leave it. As the crew pulled away from the sinking vessel they saw the captain and his lady clinging to each other, sink with it beneath a mountainous sea. It is the unwritten law of the sea that the captain must go down with the ship. In this case, literally interpreting the until-death-do-us-part of the marriage service, the wife went down with him, when she might have rowed away with the others and been saved. That is what marriage means to some people.

EYES FAIL FIRST.

The average player in baseball lasts about five years in the big league, not because of weak arms or bad legs, but because his eyes fail—imperceptibly to be sure, but nevertheless sufficiently to take the edge off his skill as a player. More ball players are lost because their eyes weaken than through any other tients that in a lifetime in his age men do much more work, and last longer under it, than any who have come before them, all because the fitting of glasses have become a science and they see better. An immense amount of ernegy is used up by the eyes. Anything that helps vision conserves ernegy.

Has anybody lost a wedding ring? Minnie Yeager, Pennsylvania woman, found one in the heart of a head of lettuce she was washing. A dishpan or a kitchen sink would seem to be a more likely place to look, but that depends.

RUSTLE OF SILK PLAYS OLYMPIC

Conway Tearle And Betty Compson With Anna Nilsson

"The Rustle of Silk" is an adaptation of Cosmo Hamilton's romance of a lady's maid who won the love of a member of parliament. It as a picture of English life that has been made into an elaborate film play. Herbert Brenon's fine direction is noticeable throughout. Ouida Bergere and Sada Cowan have collaborated on the scenario which had it called for a happy ending would be flawless. The acting is excellent, with Anna Q. Nilsson coming close to grabbing the feminine honors through her work as the wife. Miss Compson is convincing as the lady's maid, while Conway Tearle is a satisfying M. P. Cyril Chadwick was an admirable selectnon for the British publisher and opponent of the M. P. in politics.

The reproduction of the houses of parliament, both inside and out, has been well done. The Russian chauve sourls party is an elaborate set, and offers a novel theme for a colorful prologue. The sets showing the Ritz hotel, London, are lavish.

The "dreams" of the heroine, in which oil paintings are shown coming to life and such, supply the "different" quality in the picture. The feature is well supplied with the dramatic, and romance is spread thick throughout.

The cast:

Lois de Breze—Betty Compson.
Arthur Fallaray—Conway Tearle.
Blythe—Frederick Famelton.
Heudy de Breze—Charles Stevenson.
Lady Eso—Anna O. Nilsson.
PaulChalfont—Cyril Chadwick.

WHERE DAD COMES IN.

"Muvver's," replied the youngster.

"Whose best girl are you," was the next question, and "Muvver's" was again the answer.

"Well, where do I come in?" inquired the now anxious father.

"D'back door," was the reply—Emporia Gazette.

Father Vranisck, pastor of the Sacred Heart church in an Illinois village 85 miles from St. Louis, was driving his car in the daytime on a heavily traveled road. He left one town and so far as anyone knows, never reached the next one, 10 miles away. And that was two months ago. Despite a nation-wide search, not the slightest trace of the priest has been found. The Protestants and Catholics of his village turned out to search for him, for the young priest was much liked and had friends among them all. Rewards totaling $13,000 to which citizens of all creeds contributed are offered for news or information disclosing his whereabouts. The young priest had no financial troubles; the theory of a possible love affair is discredited by those who knew him, all of which makes the mystery more of a mystery. But nothing is a mystery who understood. If all the facts were known, the story would be as simple and matter of fact as what you had for breakfast this morning. Use your thinker and get that $13,000. We're to busy to do it ourself.

THE STARING EYE.

Pullman car Glendale, attached to Santa Fe train No. 14 arrived in Wichita as much as usual on a recent morning. It was 8:45 a. m. and quite chilly, until the eye of the porter glancing at a recently emptied berth became transfixed, then perspiration oozed from every pore. From beneath a sheet tossed over the end of the berth stared an eye—a human eye. The contour of the sheet showed clearly that the body was missing. The porter reeled but the glassy stare followed him. It was a deep blue masculine eye. A belated passenger broke the eye's hypnotic spell and released the porter. Now the eye is kept at Pullman headquarters at Chicago with such other intimate articles of lost wearing apparel or false teeth and such. But what a story Edgar Allen Poe or Nathaniel Howthorne could have made out of it—Wichita Eagle.

ROMANCE LIVES IN MORENO FILM

"Look Your Best" Feature At Strand This Week

On the screen Antonio Moreno represents the ideal Latin type. Most foreigners who come to this country soon adapt themselves to their surroundings and become as blase and oblivious of everything in life, except money, as the Americans. Someone said that romance was dead in America. This may be true, and may account for this unprecedented demand for it on the screen.

However, Antonio Moreno has lost none of the old Castilian love of romance. If one is anxious to meet a true Spaniard of typical Latin temperament, he has only to make the acquaintance of Tony, who has that spontaneity that we love to associate with the Latin peoples. Fire, dash and fervor are all embodied in thih thespian of old Spain.

Tony Moreno has longed to be cast in a role in which he would not be some impossible American hero, making silly, melodramatic rescues of ingenues in blonde wigs. A producer once wanted him to enact the role of an Irish lad!

Tony has at last succeeded in fulfilling his wish, with the role of an Italian ballet dancer in Rupert Hughes' latest Goldwyn production, "Look Your Best," which comes to the Strand theater for two days commencing Monday. Colleen Moore is featured with Mr. Moreno.

Following this Marion Beatty entered the room with Miss Marian Lee Teeters, carrying a bride's boquet, and clinging to her arm, and these tiny replicas of grown up bride and groom, passed the guest favors which were white-American beauty roses.

Master Ralph Phelan came next announcing that he could tell it all in a nut shell, and he passed gilded walnut shells, within which the guests found the announcement of the wedding of which will be an event of June 1st.

The hostess served dainty plate refreshments of individual sweetheart cakes, with rose decoration and an ice.

The guest other than the Laffalots were Mesdames Trollinger W. C. Bodenhammer, E. B. Ellis, Fred Pittman, Josephine Carter, W. J. Ballard, Nelle Phelan, W. Hozencamp, O. O. Teeter, and Cham Jones.

Eatons Give Shower

Mesdames M. A. Eaton, F. F. Green and Elmer Eaton gave a shower Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. A. Eaton for Miss Beulah Mae Cook, whose engagement to T. B. Lewis was announced last week.

The house decorations were silver baskets filled with La Franc roses. The shower was arranged behind an immense heart under a canopy of rosebuds and honeysuckle.

The guests were entertained with a flower contest. The two making the highest score were honored by assisting Miss Cook in opening her gifts.

Just preceding the shower, the honor guest was ushered to a seat under a bell filled with rose petals, which were showered upon her just as little Miss Evelyn Taylor, attired as a cupid in pink satin and wings of gold, punctured the heart, and with her arms filled with gifts presented them to Miss Cook.

Misses Mary and Vera Cook and Mrs. Elmer Eaton served punch and macaroons to Mesdames John Gates, Jim Gates, Glen Younger, W. H. Younger, John Firestone, C. O. Taylor, L. C. Kelly, Alvis Fuller, J. GRAHAM HOLDS WOMAN IN RAID

Sheriff Jails Her And Six Men After Residents Tell Of Bootlegging

GRAHAM, Tex., May 19.—Six men and one woman are in the county jail as the result of a raid Sheriff Cambern, County Attorney John B. Rhea and Deputies DeGraftenried, Davis and Haword made in the still-infested section a short distance east of Graham. The usual paraphanalia in the making of moonshine was taken as well as a quantity of the finished fluid. A quantity of mash was ready to be run through.

The raid was made as the result of numerous complaints from residents of the section. All those arrested are said to have been living east of Graham for some time.

Three men have been arrested in connection with the theft of 4,000 feet of oil piping recently. The piping was taken from an Oil City lease at night on trucks. The sheriff's department traced them to Archer City, where they sold the piping to an oil company there. The arrests followed.

Sheriff Cambern has also been successful in recovering stolen cars. Nineteen have been recovered and eight men arrested in this connection. All but one car have been identified and returned. Several other stolen cars have been located but due to the press of work, the department has been unable to go out after them.

RICKENBACHER CAR IS REFINED

Motor Equipped With Air Purifying Device To Reduce Wear

Replete with advanced engineering touches and refinement in comfort and convenience, the second series of the Rickenbacker Vibrationless Six, which made amazing history in its first year of production, is announced.

Following the sensation created throughout the year with the vibrationless motor, equipped with the exclusive Rickenbacker tandem flywheel, comes further advancement for the progressive organization.

An air cleaner, purifying the air taken into the motor, removing all injurious particles of dust and other foreign matter which causes carbon and wear, a hot air stove giving the driver perfect control of the temperature of the air entering the carburetor, the installation of Bosch generators, starters and ignition, improved braking with automatic equalizer, a refined clutch, reduction in weight by replacement of aluminum for cast iron in many parts and members, a refined body design and construction of all body models, an added comfort with special spring arrangement and the addition of such conveniences as heater and rear vision mirror as regular equipment are features in the Series B Rickenbacker.

Additional production facilities including the taking over of a new factory at Detroit, will permit the building of three times as many cars during the coming months as during the past year, according to E. V. Rickenbacker, vice president and director of sales of the company.

With three models, a touring phaeton, sedan and coupe, inclosed cars predominate the Rickenbacker production, and especial attention has been given again this year to the comfort and durability of the Rickenbacker bodies. Additional conveniences are to be noted in the new bodies, although in appearance the original Rickenbacker distinctiveness is retained.

The new air cleaner and hot air stove is a complete innovation of the Rickenbacker engineering corps, and although extremely simple in design has been proven decidedly efficient and effective. It is a progressive step toward longer life and added economy.

CLOSING A TRANSVERSELY SPLIT RIM

This is applicable to the roadside as well as the garage or repair shop, for its simplicity makes it particularly desirable to the motorist, more especially when one is in a hurry and a rim of the split type obstinately refuses to lock. The device consists of a jack and a block of wood of sufficient length to fit between the end of the jack and the rim. These are placed on the inside of the rim at right angles to the lock, and the jack slowly jacked up. When the rim has been sufficiently spread to bring the lock in position, the jack and block may be left there and the rim locked without further difficulty.—Automobile Digest.

REMOVING STUDS

A device to remove studs without marring the threads can be made from a short piece of cold rolled steel. A portion on each side is filed flat to fit a wrench and it is drilled and threated to fit the stud to be removed. The device is screwed onto the projecting end of the stud and a cap screw is threaded into the other end to jam the stud, which permits the removal of the stud when a wrench is applied to the flats of the tool.—Automobile Digest.

GIRL LIFTS BIG TRUCK

NEW YORK, May 20.—(Special)—Public demonstrations have aroused nation-wide interest in the "portable power" invention perfected by Walter S. Josephson. The invention consists of an expansible fluid, confined in a small steel bottle. This fluid, on release, produces a lifting power of 30,000 horsepower on one application, and will lift a smaller load, such as an auto truck, from eight to 20 times without recharging.

According to Josephson, a number of devices to utilize the power have been perfected, including jacks for touring cars and trucks and inflating devices for tires and experiments on other uses are being conducted.

"Our appliances expound no new principle in nature," says Josephson. "They simply take advantage of an old one and adapt it to new uses. While there are containers for the medium that we use, they cannot be readily moved about because of their size and the valves are costly and delicate. Each time we sell our containers we tip the valve with soft, not easily expansive metal composition which fits into the valve seat, making a perfect seal and preventing a leakage. We propose to establish stations where our containers can be them at popular prices. With one of these steel bottles a man could climb to the top of a mountain or carry to any part of the world in his pocket a power capable of lifting 15 tons at one operation. He may, if he desired, hold the power for 10 years before he draws any of it off, and he will find that there has been no change in its efficiency all that time."

NEW OVERLAND FILLS DEMAND

Celebrated Line Is Now Completed With Nifty Model

The enthusiastic reception given the Overland Red Bird, the newest addition to the Overland family, has been remarkable, from the glowing comments on an achievement, acknowledged by a critical public to be one of the most complete models of its kind introduced in motoring circles this year.

Everywhere this latest creation of the engineering and designing departments of the Willys-Overland organization has met with undisguisedly popular favor, and reports from salesrooms spread across the continent indicate that this car singly has attracted greater crowds of interested motorists than any display put on the floors in some time.

According to L. G. Peel, general sales manager of the Willys-Overland motor cars, which is now universally recognized as being complete. This new model is one of the outstanding, finest examples of automobile construction that has yet been shown to the American motorist.

Dealers are clamoring vociferously for large allotments to satisfy the demand already noticeable in every section of the country. This demand typifies the insistent call of the present-day automobile purchaser for a car that leaves the factory sufficiently equipped to eliminate further buying of "extras," and in this respect the Overland Red Bird gratifies in every sense the ideal of the American family that is looking for distinction without undue extravagance.

Willys-Overland company sensed this long-felt want and in bringing out this new offering answered a clear, unmistakable call for just that comprehensive qualification in a car, and the factory, in anticipation of the big demand to follow when this model was placed on the market, is utilizing every available manufacturing resource to supply this demand.

Attractive Lines

The Overland Red Bird is an exceedingly beautiful car to look upon. The body lines are distinctly smooth and harmonious, incorporating a combination of riding comfort and fleetness. Being finished in a pleasing Mandalay maroon, something radically different from any car on the road today, the appearance of this car is doubly enhanced.

This delightfully refreshing color is stimulating without being conspicuously glaring and obtrusive. It is the spirit of refinement in color blending. Glistening nickled radiator, with bar radiator cap, nickled head lamps, windshield stanchions, scuff plates, door handles, and frame in rear curtain light, all add to the discriminative assembly appearance.

Plus these distinguishing characteristics, is a khaki top with red binding and welts, making the whole effect singularly noticeable and calculated to imbue in the possessor of an Overland Red Bird a genuine pride of ownership.

Comfort Considered

In the designing of this new model, comfort for the passengers has been coupled with the general appearance. Nothing has been left undone that would promote a feeling of relaxation when riding. A wheelbase of 106 inches is provided, with a spring base of 136 inches. This alone insures perfect freedom from annoying jolts.

The car is fired with 30x3½ straight side Fisk cords, and a larger and more powerful engine is there to keep the Red Bird well at the head of any procession on any kind of grades, and warrant quick get-away in traffic jams.

The body itself is roomier, and the seats are wider and deeper. Red Spanish grained upholstering sets off the interior of the car to a nicety. Coupled with these features, the equipment includes windshield wiper, nickled bumpers front and rear, handgrips on the doors, spare rim and tire carrier, speedometer, dash light, and other fixtures, all of which enter into the consummation of a noteworthy achievement in economical motoring.

Such is the new revelation in automotive workmanship which reflects creditably on the wide experience and expediency of the Willys-Overland company.

EMERGENCY GEAR TOOTH REPAIR

When flywheel teeth are completely broken off, drill and tap holes half away between the adjacent teeth and parallel to them, spacing holes as near together as possible. Then thread in U. S. standard bolts of a diameter equal to the thickness of the teeth at the root. The U. S. standard thread is used because this is courser than other standards and holds better in cast iron. Screw the bolts in tight, cut them off to the correct length of the teeth and file to the shape of the other teeth of the gear.—Automobile Digest.

A LONG PROCESSION.

If all the automobiles in the United Stacts were lined up in a procession, the string would reach four-fifths of the distance around the world, at the equator, or seven times the distance from New York to San Francisco.—Automobile Digest.

What Becomes Of Old Automobiles? Many Dismantled For Farm Use

What becomes of the old, worn-out automobiles? Even the most rugged machines, built to deliver service year after year, eventually wear out. Unlike the deacon's famous "one-hoss shay," they do not run on and on until they disintegrate. Some of the earliest models that are being scrapped this year and next will be cars still serving their owners more or less satisfactorily, but at a cost far out of proportion to the operating expense of modern cars.

Some Are Orphan Cars

Others will be "orphan" cars; their makers have long since ceased to exist, so that the service problem becomes more difficult and expensive for the owner every year.

It is possible to read the final chapters in the careers of many thousands of cars each year from the records of insurance companies and police reports. Many are destroyed by fire; some are demolished by reckless drivers who try to beat trains to grade crossings. Police in several large cities have found that thousands of cars have been wantonly destroyed by running them into water holes in old stone quarries, into lakes, or even the ocean, in order to collect insurance on them.

Farm Owners Ingenious

More thousands of cars are dismantled slowly by rural owners who find use for the parts about their farms. Great ingenuity is shown by some of them in utilising the still good mechanisms of otherwise useless cars.

In addition to all these, there remain tens of thousands still to be accounted for.

Twelve Million In Use

There are about twelve million cars in use in this country today. The annual output at present is approximately two million. Of course, it does not follow that an equal number of cars are junked, because many cars that are replaced by new ones pass on to other owners and continue to operate for six, eight or 10 years.

In 1921, according to Collier's, the national weekly, 407,641 cars were eliminated from service. Statistical experts of this magazine estimate that over a million cars were eliminated in 1922. This means that the number of cars "passing out" every year is much larger than can be accounted for in any of the ways just discussed.

Motor Undertakers

A majority of worn-out machines go into the hands of motor undertakers, and by them are scrapped so expertly that almost everything but the sound of the horn becomes a source of salvage. The trade knows these men as "parts dealers," specializing in second-hand parts for orphan cars and for models so old that manufacturers' stocks have become depleted.

A visit to one of these motor junk yards discloses some novel sights. In one corner there may be piles of radiators as high as a house; in another perhaps a heap of axles. Scattered around are large piles of springs, motor blocks, frames, wheels and other parts so cumbersome that they are not easily warehoused in any other way.

Special Fittings Profitable

In big bins will be found piles of brass, copper and aluminum fittings. During the war this sort of material was a source of unusual profit—one of the biggest in the business. Scrap copper was being sold for as high as 40c a pound; brass brought 25c, and aluminum was readily salable at 80c a pound.

Cities Are Best Sources

The larger businesses are found in or near the larger cities, as most of the cars thus handled are bought from city owners or used car dealers. This is explained by the fact that so many farm cars are dismantled by their owners, who find uses for the parts in their business of farming.

AMERICAN TIRES

Late figures from the export department of a large tire company show that American-made automobile tires are being exported at the rate of more than a million a year, an estimated worth of $20,250,000.—Automobile Digest.

CLEVELAND SIX PRODUCTION UP

New High Peak Is Established For Month Of April

"The month of April established a new high peak in Cleveland Six production, is the latest advice given out by Sid Black, vice president of the Cleveland Automobile company.

"In March 42 per cent more Cleveland cars were shipped from the factory than were produced during the same month last year. Records of the sales department now indicate that the number shipped during April was 50 per cent greater than the March output.

"At the rate orders for new cars are being received from distributors and the total of orders already booked, production for the month of May should exceed April output by 40 per cent more cars," Mr. Black further states.

"Of the automobiles going through production at the present time, approximately 50 per cent comprise closed models.

"Responsible in a large degree for the number of unfilled orders is the addition of two new closed models to the Cleveland line—a two-door sedan, which lists at $1,295, and a new coupe at $1,195. This last mentioned model has found particular favor among business and professional men.

"Another factor which is exerting a decided influence toward increasing Cleveland production is the betterment in export business. In the first four months of this year there has been an increase of 420 per cent in the number of Cleveland cars sold in foreign countries, as compared to the figures last year.

"It was estimated at the beginning of the year that the Cleveland Automobile company's production schedule would be 20,000 cars for 1923, but it is evident from all indications that this estimate will no doubt prove too conservative."

Closed Car Comforts at Open Car Cost

Prior to the Coach, closed cars on high-grade chassis were too costly for most buyers.

The Coach, for the first time combined closed car comforts and fine chassis quality, at a price for all. It gives every utility you can get in any closed car. And you do not forfeit performance, reliability and mechanical excellence to obtain these advantages at almost open car cost.

The Coach is staunchly built. Doors and windows stay tight and snug. It is built throughout for long hard service.

On either the Hudson Super-Six or the Essex chassis it meets every family and business requirement—a good-looking, easily handled car for comfortable, all weather travel.

In choosing your next car, be sure to see the Coach. It will satisfy your every closed car need at a saving of from $500 to $1200.

MEN ON ROAD USE MORE CARS

Number of Calls Made By Salesmen Increased 25 Per Cent

The day is not far distant when large sales organizations and large service organizations will be as completely motorized with fleets of passenger cars as the great commercial and trucking houses are with fleets of trucks.

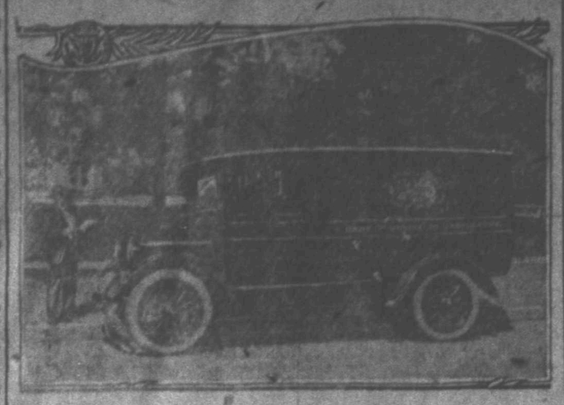

C. J. Nephler, general sales manager of the Oakland Motor Car company, Pontiac, Mich., makes this prediction as the result of letters from such organizations which have purchased Oakland two-passenger coupes and roadsters from their salesmen and service organizations. The sale of two-passenger coupes and roadsters so far this year has been the largest in the history of the Oakland company, Mr. Nephler reports.

"Summing up the reasons given for fleet passenger cars for salesmen," explains Mr. Nephler, "indicate that these cars increase as much as 25 per cent the number of calls made in the city, and as much as 50 per cent in the rural districts and small towns, and consequently the same higher percentage of sales. They are economical because they increase sales.

"Incidentally, too, we are told that the use of passenger cars by salesmen strengthens the morale of the sales organization, and the self-respect of the salesman makes them like their positions better, and often gains for them a greater respect from their customers.

"The general opinion seems to be to standardize on one make of car, noted for performance, endurance and economy, and keep these cars at the same station, with repair men always on hand to keep the cars tuned up. This has been found more profitable than to encourage salesmen to purchase motor cars and allow them so much per mile, as it enables the company to keep close tabs on the cars at all times. This system also allows the more economical purchasing of insurance, tire, tubes gasoline, oil etc., through one central organization."

HOW REO SERVES BANK OF "UNSELFISH USEFULNESS"

Stories about auto bandits used to get scare positions on the first pages of newspapers. But now, with the constant repetition of these daring holdups all over the country, there is hardly at thrill left in them for the reading public. Realizing that something must be done to defeat the plans of daring outlaws, the Reo Motor Car company brought out an armored car on its famous Speed Wagon chassis.

The First Trust and Savings Bank of Canton, Ohio, recently added one of these creations to its very complete banking equipment. In so doing, their vice president, Mr. Collins, hit upon the thoughtful idea of proffering the services of the car to the city for such emergencies as might arise.

We are quoting here from his letter addressed to the mayor of Canton:

"In behalf of our prisedent, H. H. Timken, and the board of directors of the First Trust and Savings bank of Canton, I present for your inspection an armored truck.

"This splendid piece of work has been purchased for a two-fold purpose:

"(a) For the transportation or transfer of money from place to place in Stark county—for the use of any banking institution requiring its use for such purpose.

"(b) For the use of your department of police, where an armored truck, capable of a speed of 60 miles an hour, may be used to advantage in suppressing civic commotion of whatever nature arising.

"We will require exclusive parking space in the street before our bank, that the armored truck may be available to your police department from 8 o'clock a. m. to 6 o'clock p. m. every day, except Sunday. Arrangements may be made for the use of this truck on Sundays.

"We trust that you, as mayor of Canton, will accept this additional service from us, in the name of the people of Canton. Sincerely,

"Vice President and Treasurer."

This armored Speed Wagon, in its ordinary capacity serves the five branch banks in the surrounding towns. It is also at the disposal of local institutions for the trainsportation of pay roll funds, etc.

The car is lighted by two dome lights and the usual headlights and dimmer. The ordinary runningboard is eliminated, and instead a folding step is provided opposite the outside door on the right hand side of the car. There are three folding seats in the interior of the car, one on each side of the car at the rear, and one on the left side near the front of the body.

The windshields surrounding the driver's compartment are of bullet-proff glass 7-8 of an inch in thickness. The glass is of special composition which has stood the test of a .45-caliber naval gun. Gun racks for three guns are furnished for the inside of th car for anchoring a portable safe, and the floor of the car is covered with battleship linoleum.

INACCESSIBLE NUTS.

Nuts set into inaccessible places can be tightened or removed by the use of two wrenches and a monkey or pipe wrench. The end wrenches are jointed: one is fitted to the nut and the monkey wrench is then clamped to the end of the second end wrench. Then by carefully twisting the nut can be tightened or loosened. —Automobile Digest.

Blowouts On Auto Row

Arthur Huff, accompanied by L. C. Packer of the Arthur Huff Motor Co., made a trip to Oklahoma Monday, returning Thursday, driving an Oakland back.

John Finch, well known Wichita Falls salesman, has accepted position in the sales department of the Lockhart Chevrolet Co. Mr. Finch was formerly interested in the insurance business here.

Frank Keim, of the Keim Motor Co., returned Thursday from a business trip to Austin.

Fritz Motor Co. report an exceptional month for Marmon and Reonales. Four new Marmons were delivered so far this month and several Reo passenger and speed wagon models.

Parmenter Motor Co., is another firm which reports big sales for May. "May will undoubtedly prove the biggest month since the opening of our agency here," said E. S. Parmenter Friday. "In both the Star and Durant lines, deliveries have been good and now we are promised regular shipments from the factory. We are looking for a big summer season."

Captain W. S. Langford of the Langford Motor Supply Co., received a new Lincoln this week—a specially built model, which he intends presenting to Mrs. Langford. The new car is one of the most attractive closed models shown here, built on the Lincoln chassis, with many special, convenient appointments.

Frank Queisser of the Overland Motors Co., reports he will be able to show one of the Overland "Red Bird" models in a few days. Frank says he is having numerous inquiries regarding the new car and is bending every effort to get one here to show awaiting purchasers. Mr. Queisser says he saw the car in Dallas and it is his idea of a neat attractive job, with many features found only in cars much higher in price.

Chandler Rear Axle Worthy Rival To Pikes Peak Motor Endurance

The Pikes Peak Motor, which has become famous for performance since it was introduced by the Chandler company last January, has a worthy rival for fame in the Chandler rear axle.

The engine has had country-wide publicity from the beginning of the year. Motorists gauged its ability almost instantly, so that it seemed to lead into fame over night.

Yet but little has been said about the unit that transfers the tremendous flow of power from the engine into the rriving effort at the rear wheels—the unit that makes the car go. Actually, the rear axle is as deserving of fame as is the engine. The tPikes Peak power plant would be valueless without a driving unit of an equal sturdiness.

Picture what happens in the rear axle when the Chandler pushes its way up a grade so steep that few other cars can make the climb.

The Pokes Peak motor settles down to its task and supplies a flood of power. The car is in direct drive—so that ally the power is transmitted directly to the rear axle. Inside the rear housing, the drive pinion transfers the power to the ring gear. The gear deruction is 4.45 to 1. The speed of the drive shaft is thus transformed into a much lower speed for the rear axle drive shafts, while the strain on the latter is correspondingly increased. The effort of the motor is multiplied by 4.45!

To carry this load is a terrific task on the rear axle gears, pinions, bearings, and axle shafts. This alone is a big thing to ask of the unit.

Yet the axle has other work.

It must withstand terrific breaking strains on precipitious descents.

It must staid up under twisting and jolting suffered on rough roads.

It must take tremendous side swerves around sharp curves.

It, unfortunately, must stand abuses, for there are drivers who bump over rough ronds and swing the rear wheels against curbs.

One would not wonder at instances of failure under these conditions.

Yet, here is the noteworthy fact: In one entire year's production, the rear axle built by Chandler for the Chandler was 100 per cent perfect. Out of the entire output of 1922, records show there was not one case of rear axle failure.

Amid the same rear axle is used in the new Chandler with the Pikes Peak motor. This unit of the previous Chandler, with its perfect record, was retained as a worthy companion of the Pikes Peak motor, but only after it had undergone even more severe tests.

It was tried out in every test-chassis with the new engine throughout the trying period through which the Pikes Peak motor had to pass before it was approved.

The rear axle stood up to the standards of the Pikes Peak motor, and again and again made the ascent of Pokes Peak, the highest motor climb in the world, with never a break against it.

REMOVING HEADLIGHT RIM.

When a headlight rim cannot be taken off by hand an easy way to remove it is by the use of a strap or belt. Place the strap around the rim and pass the end through the buckle. When the strap is drawn tight a sudden pull will loosen the rim without damaging the lens.—Automobile Digest.

A HANDY SCREWDRIVER.

A handy screwdriver can be made from a shoe button hook by cutting off the hook end, then flattening this and shaping it to fit the heads of small screws, finally tempering to keep the small end from breaking or twisting. This tool will be found very handy for work around ignition, carburetor and electrical units.

Dallas Plant of Ford Motor Co. Covers 300 Acres Of Ground

Covering a total of nearly 300 acres of which 123 are under roof, the Highland Park plant of the Ford Motor company is the largest individual motor plant in the world.

Here the Ford car is built, the castings being received from the River Rouge plant and bodies from plants.

The unit of Highland Park includes the main offices, the Highland Park power plant, the Detroit sales branch, the boys' industrial school and the manufacturing unit.

Under the latter head are included the motor assembly, car assembly, motor test, top and upholstery departments stock rooms, drop forge plant, glass factory and others.

Today these plants present the scene of the greatest activity in the history of the Ford Motor company, as every energy is being directed to reaching the 6,000 cars a day schedule set by the manufacturing department.

The manufacture of 6,000 separate Ford units daily presents staggering production figures and calls for the highest degree of accuracy in each manufacturing operation. It means that the motor assembly department handles 6,000 motor blocks, 24,000 connecting rods, 48,000 valves and necessary mechanical materials, the installation of 18,000 main motor bearings with other production figures in the same ratio and to a uniformly high standard of quality.

Each of these parts is subjected to exacting balance and micrometer tests and as production at the Highland Park plant increases it is necessarily accompanied with an increase in the accuracy with which each individual part is made in order that the various assembly operations may progress smoothly and without interruption.

Production at the plant has not been increased by more work but by increasing man power to the utmost of the mechanical equipment capacity and at the present time, 60,000 men are employed at the plant, working in eight-hour shifts six days a week on a twenty-four hour day basis.

In the huge drop forge plant where 6,000 front axles, 6,000 crank shafts and other drop forge parts are made, there has been added equipment and greater man power is being used to produce the necessary parts and at the same time there has been an increased quality marking each phase of Ford construction.

To guard against the possibility of outside manufacturers failing in this huge production schedule the glass plant, the fabric plant and allied plants at the Highland Park group are all working on a 24-hour schedule.

In the glass factory there is a from the furnace mouth at which it is rolled out and slipped along in a 465-foot ribbon, the cutting end where it is cut into lengths and sent to the polishing machines.

In the plant the work on top material goes on unceasingly and tops and upholsters are cut and sewed by hand into proper parts.

Ford motors undergo the most exacting tests. No human agency is permitted to pass upon the final fitness of the individual motor. Each is operated in test by electricity and under the supervision of an expert, while in a room separate and apart from this, the delicate dynamometer records the test to the utmost fineness, and it is upon the verdict of this instrument that each motor receives its final stamp of approval.

From all departments the various finished parts emerge upon endless conveyors and are carried to the assembly lines and the movement is so synchronized that each unit arrives at the proper point in exact ratio to the manufacturing need.

These parts are assembled by expert workmen each performing his specific operation as the motors are carried along in a constantly moving conveyor until they come out completed at the end and in the same manner the motors come to the final assembly line where cars and trucks are completed. There they are mounted on the chassis and started by their own power that experts may pass upon the [illegible] action and other mechanical [illegible]

How Garage Owner in Town Inhabited By Only 19 People Puts His Place On Map and In Eyes Of Motoring World

Too small?

We'll let you think so for a moment while we tell you about a little town called Salome, Ariz.

Never heard of it?

It is getting more and more famous every day. A fellow who runs a garage is making a name for it. His name is Dick Wick Hall, and he signs himself "editor and garage owner." Probably you've read some of his stuff in the Saturday Evening Post.

Now, read the current issue of Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent, just how Dick Wick Hall, "editor and garage owner," put his town, Salome, Ariz., on the map:

Salome was on the map—the dry, dazzling map of Arizona—long before it danced its way into the spotlight of our knowledge. But it was static. It lay lazily on its back, day-dreaming, content to be classed with such phenomena as amoebae, small boys on their way to school in marble time, and father income-tax-ward.

Water was scarce with Salome, and her tongue was parched and cracked. And in the course of time she came to thirst for more than the physical. She needed that inexpressible something which only a psychoanalyst can prescribe for the satisfaction of an important urge. She was a pancake on a griddle of surroundingdesert, but—she was a pancake minus the yeast!

Salome's Cone, or her Mr. Fleischmann, depending on your choice of Cause, proved to be one of her own inhabitants. His name is Dick Wick Hall. O. Henry could have immortalized him within the compass of a few words—and would have done so! For he combines within himself the practical and the stuff of dreams—an O. Henry-like combination reflected in Hall's self-bestowed title of "Editor and Garage Owner," an appellation conjuring up visions of an American calinb in an American Bagdad, drawn so vividly by the lamented Porter. But the phrase reminds you of only two of his many talents; it omits mention of him as miner, prospector, desert's enthusiast, philosopher and humorist. Truly his career has been more than checkered; it has been kaleidoscopic.

The rise of Dick Wick Hall—his real name by the way—sounds like fiction. Some students of his life assert that he has achieved success in literary success, they mean—by accident. Even He'l himself, with characteristic modesty, admits that although the golden thread of good fortune runs through the warp and woof of his life, it catches your eye because it contrasts sharply with the rather somber background of effort.

You will find Dick Wick Hall a mining man primarily, his letterhead bearing the legend "Investments—Mines—Lands," and showing in dim relief a view of part of his mining properties. His migration into Writing Valley came about unexpectedly. Several years ago the mining business languishing in the doldrums of depression, Hall cast about for a way in which to make the trade winds blow again. Realizing that scores of tourists motored daily through Salome en route to and from California, he opened a service station, from which he supplied them "laughing gas" and from the tank of which he piped into their tires "that soft Salome air—it rides easier.

Hall's aggressiveness led him to seek more business, which demanded more tourists who, in turn, demanded better roads. Roads—the basic reason for the decreasing or increasing of his volume of trade! The county board of supervisors controlled the condition of the highways which he tells us resembled the rabbit tracks that crossed them. He would galvanize those supervisors into action or know the reason why!

Thus he resorted to his mimeograph and got out the next issue of a miniature newspaper, which he called the Salome Sun. His main idea was to poke fun at the supervisors; before he had finished he was shooting them with shafts of wit dipped in the acid of satire.

Salome's new newspaper, "made with a laugh on a mimeograph," met instant success. Small of body, it nevereshtless emitted a long bark. The supervisors even imagined they detected the bared teeth of a snarl. And they surmised correctly!

Hall gave copies of the Sun to his neighbors, mailed some to the supervisors, and passed others to tourists at the service station. This sheet, mixture of sense and nonsense, of fun and raillery, of wit and barbed sarcasm, of laughter and propaganda, appealed to everyone—except the objects of Hall's darts. Encouraged by its initial success, the editor and garage owner turned again to his mimeograph and ground out additional issues at intervals of a week or so until a dozen had appeared.

Meanwhile tourists had carried the Sun to the four corners of the country. A copy fell into the hands of Don Marquis, famed "colyumist" then on the New York Sun, who printed excerpts—several of them—in his column, "The Sun Dial." Thereafter the paper whose mission is "to make you smile for half a mile" came under the eye of Thomas L. Masson, then about to leave the editorial chair of Life to conduct "Short Turns and Encores," the new department of humor soon thereafter to be established in the Saturday Evening Post. Mr. Masson, being an expert humor-smith, procured from Hall a complete file of the Sun and offered him a munificent sum per word for what he could use. He used virtually all of their contents and begged for more.

Glancing over a typical issue of the Sun, we read the following extract with its curious capitals: "Salome is famous not only as the place Where She Danced—the Home of my Seven Year Old Frog That Can't Swim Yet—the Only Known Place in all Alizona where Wm. Jennings Bryan ever took a Bath—and some Other Things I can't mention—but it is the Wildest Spot on the Main Traveled Road between Phoenix & Los Angeles. (I don't mean that Wm. Jennings Bryan took anything else here besides a Bath; I mean there are other things here). The Buckeye-Quartzite-Blythe Route is the Best & Shortest to Los Angeles and the Coast—the Only Natural Highway in all western Arizona—just as Natural as it was born because the Super Visors realize that they are incimpetent to inaprove any on Nature, so they don't try to. Our—I should say Theie—County Seat, Yumaresque, is over 100 miles from here. The way a Crow would fly if he had the nerve to go there—and the County Officials are so Short-sighted they can't see this far—except at election time when they are after Our Votes—and then the way they beat it out of there in droves and come up here would make you think there was a smallpox epidemic at Yuma."

And the next paragraph runs along in the same genial way: "This is supposed to be a County Highway—a 'Yumaresque Highway'—that you are trying to follow, mut Tourists sometimes get lost on account of the jackrobbit tracks crossing the road and confusing them, as it is hard to tell which is rabbit tracks and which is the County Road. We are trying to get a Bill passed at the next Legislature to make the rabbits all follow one trail and go in the same direction. If we can do this and get the rabbits trained to obey the law, we will soon have a much better road than any of the Supervisors ever built up this way. It will be easier to train the rabbits than it will the Supervisors. They won't improve Our Best & Shortest Route by way of the Buckeye-Salome-Blythe just because they want to make all the Tourists come around through the sandhills by way of Yuma. If Yuma belonged to us, we wouldn't want anyone to see it until it either grew up or got some good clothes on. Yuma always looked to us like Some Thing the River left there during the flood. I think it is a good place to keep away from—for me, anyhow."

Concerning Salome's salubrious climate, he has this to say: "Salome—Where She Danced"—is the healthiest and fastest growing place in the United States. Eighteen years ago there was no one here but me and Tom Finnegan and some jackrabbits and jackasses—and now there's 19 people, not counting some I don't like—an average gain of over 100 per cent a year, pretty good, considering the dry weather, don't you think? Old Larry Ryan cut his 3rd set of Teeth and got his eyesight and hearing back before he went to Prescott and died, and Joe Bingham is just cutting his No. 3 Set now—and prouder than a new baby. I think Joe must have found some of these wild Mountain Goat Glanos, the way he acts, and I would not be a bit surprised next year to see him quit work, get some short pants and start to school again—if they get a good-looking teacher up at Buzzard's Roost."

Rickenbacker Proposes Doughnut Tire As Rubber Problem Solution

DETROIT, Mich., May 19.—That American ingenuity will prove quite equal to British strategy and by superior engineering ability solve the rubber situation is the conviction of Captain E. V. Rickenbacker, vice president and director of sales of the automobile concern of that name.

"It is no secret in industrial, banking or diplomatic circles that England means to make America repay the war debt that her statesmen so graciously agreed recently to settle, howbeit on long terms.

"No sooner had we accepted the British terms than we were reminded that our tremendous automobile industry, which by the way, is now the world's largest industry, was at the mercy of British controlled crude rubber.

"This reminder came in typical European diplomatic terms—an export tax on rubber that instantly advanced prices 150 per cent.

"That tax will, if this industry continues to grow and expand in spite of it, more than reimburse our former associates for all it will pay us on that war loan, and the British government and rubber interests are liable to collect that money faster than they will have to pay it on the terms of the latest extension we gave them.

"It is a lesson for our government to ponder well.

"But I am confident that we have already found a way out, and will soon counter," in kind.

"The doughnut tire is the answer. The type of tire to which I refer will unquestionably supersede the present type in the near future, and its construction now only calls for less rubber, but solves other problems for the automobile engineer.

"I may be over-sanguine, but I suspect that, for example, it will ultimately eliminate the necessity for springs.

A car that now runs on 30 x 3 inch tires will have 32 x 5 inch doughnut tires. Because of its greater cross-sectional area, this type of tire will require only 15 pounds of air per square inch as against the 80 pounds now specified. This lesser strain per square inch means that it will have only four plies of fabric instead of 8. In such a tire the rubber acts mainly as a cell and to furnish traction.

"Inasmuch as there is a much larger surface in contact with the ground, the strain on the rubber is distributed over a greater area, so is much less and therefore less rubber is required.

"Some sage has said "No abuse is ever corrected until it becomes intollerable and then it finds its own solution."

"Here is a case where the rubber problem, which for a time seemed acute, has with the aid of American ingenuity and engineering talent, solved itself most satisfactorily. Not only that, but we are a nation of pioneers. I am confident that our rubber specialists will find other fields in which to grow rubber where American capital, and not European diplomacy, will dictate terms."

DEALER TELLS OF DURANT TRIP

Visit Through Factory Is Explained By Local Man

After a recent visit to the various plants of Durant Motors, Inc., Bill Robertson, sales manager for the Parmenter Motor company, local Durant dealers, says:

"It takes more than materials and machinery to make a superior motor car.

"In addition, there must be the personal touch of the master workman; that indefinable something which comes from love of his work, a wholesome pride in the product he is helping to manufacture and enthusiasm for an ideal. For, after all, it is the men themselves who make the cars and impart their personalities to them. And where you find the spirit of loyal, interested workmanship, you will findw superior cars being manufactured.

"Pride of accomplishment, love of their work ard a pronounced enthusiasm and interest in Durant ideals and success is found in high degree in those employed at the many Durant plants throughout the country. In the Durant plants it is more than the daily mechanical turning out of automobiles. You see an intense interest evinced in each operation, a thoughtful carefulness in handling each piece of material and a quiet, unhurrying efficiency which makes every moment count. The visitor can not help but notice that these workmen are giving the very best that is in them to every operation throughout the entire working day.

"And this great spirit of loyalty to Durant ideals, together with an enthusiasm fora turning out a product that is up to Durant standards in every way, is found reflected in all the products these men are producing.

"The explanation of this splendid organization is obvious. It was natural that when W. C. Durant first started his latest enterprise hundreds of his old associates and employs, from high executives ti skilled mechanics and laborers, should wish to join him. These men had all been identified with Durant interests for years. Many of them had never worked for any other employer. Their every interest was wrapped up in Durant success. They had been trained to Durant methods of doing things."

Burk Personals

Mrs. G. C. Thompson of San Antonio, Texas, and two little daughters, Adaline and Joan, are guests in the home of her sister, Mrs. C. R. Sabatoni, on Avenue D, South Burkburnett.

Among the recent school notes of interest to the friends of the Burkburnett graduates was the award of the Texas Woman's college medal, which fell to Miss Zebie Gray, a member of the Burkburnett class, who was a guest at the college banquet in Wichita Falls at the Kemp hotel a few days ago.

Reports from out-of-town students are most favorable this week. The first comes from the State university, stating that Miss Lucy Cawlfield, formerly of Burkburnett, but now of Electra, bears the distinction of being listed on the official honor roll. The second report comes from Kidd-Key college at Sherman, giving Miss Florence Urban first place among the expression pupils of this department of the school.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Trometer and adopted son, Bobbie Trometer, returned from Wichita Falls Tuesday, accompanied by another handsome youngster about two and a half years old, who will also find a son's place in this happy home. The children have both been secured through Miss Henrickle of the Children's Aid and Home society. The newly adopted boy is named Richard Paul, and will be called Paul Trometer by his foster parents. This is the third adoption in this family. The oldest son will be remembered as Wilfred Ermett, a graduate of the Burkburnett high school two years ago, who is now in college in California.

W. W. Gilbert received a message Thursday from his son, C. C. Gilbert, who is living in El Dorado, Ark., stating that his wife, who has recently undergone a very serious operation, is now out of danger and on the road to recovery.

Mrs. B. Montee and her six young children left Thursday morning for their former home in Pittsburg, Kan. The family has had many misfortunes since coming to this oil section, and it was by the kind generosity of the Burkburnett citizens that she and her little ones were able to return to her old home, for which she has asked the editors to extend her deepest heart-felt gratitude.

The big closing out sale will be over in one more week. Everything must sell regardless of prices.—Walkut Grant Sales Co., McClurkan old stand, Seventh and Ohio St.—Adv.

LEGION DRIVES FOR MORE MEN

Pat Carrigan Post Seeks Membership Of 250 Veterans

With 105 paid-up members at present and applications being received in considerable numbers daily, Pat Carrigan post, American Legion, is conducting a vigorous drive for a membership of 250 within the next 30 days. Post officials are confident that this goal can be obtained easily, and at the rate new members have been recruited lately, their mark is not considered beyond reach.

Sam Beatty, post commander, declared Saturday that interest in the affairs of the American Legion here was growing at an amazing rate. Since the first of the year the membership has increased greatly, the activities of the post have been broadened, its financial standing has improved, and its general complexion cleared for the better. Even more elaborate programs of expansion are contemplated for the future, it was indicated by Mr. Beatty.

The post here at one time boasted a paid-up membership of over 400, but this was just after the war and during the boom days, when many of the members were transients. With the floating population out of the way, those on the membership lists now form a stable and permanent group that is capable of constructive activity. It is estimated that there are 1,000 or more ex-service men in this immediate vicinity eligible for membership in the legion.

Active posts at Burkburnett, Electra, Vernon, Henrietta and other nearby communities cut into the membership rolls here considerably, it was pointed out, but there are still enough left for a vastly increased legion post in Wichita Falls.

WORRIES THE MEN.

Most everybody will be glad when these new fangled drapes on dresses go out of style. They look as though the women were losing something.

EXACTNESS NEEDED IN PEERLESS CAR

Manufacturers of all high-grade automobiles take great pride in the precision of workmanship that they insist must be a part of every car they produce. There are hundreds of operators on these cars, where the dimensions are not allowed to vary more than a thousandth of an inch, and still more hundreds where not more than three one-thousandths of an inch of tolerance is allowed.

The quality of workmanship demanded of Peerless craftsmen is cited as an instance of the fineness of precision to which these operations must be carried.

No company building automobiles demands greater precision of workmanship than does Peerless. There are, it is pointed out, nearly 1,800 operations where dimensions are not allowed to vary more than five ten-thousandths part of an inch; thousands more whose limits are one-thousandah of an inch; and all parts with decimal dimensions without limits shown are held to limits of three thousandths of an inch.

Nothing Unusual For Commissioners Meeting

No matters of importance are to come up before the county commissioners' court session Monday, it was indicated yesterday by County Judge B. D. Sartin. Members of the court are now concerned mainly with equalizing taxes of the county.

Routine business matters and the allowing of the usual bills will probably be the only matters up for attention.

NO CLUE TO $1,000 ROBBERY

Diamonds Taken From Home Of Leslie Humphrey Friday

No clue has been obtained to the identity of the thieves who some time Friday night entered the home of Leslie Humphrey, local attorney, at 1808 Hose avenue, and escaped with jewelry and other articles valued at about $1,000. Members of the sheriff's and city police departments have been at work on the case since it was reported.

Included in the loot taken was a valuable gold watch, a diamond bar pin, several small diamond rings and Mr. Humphrey's wallet, containing cash and some papers.

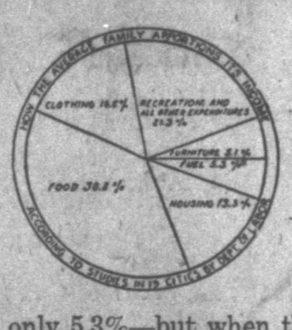

The thief gained entrance to the second story room by opening a groundfloor door at the rear of the building and going up a back stairway, officers reported. The articles stolen were in a room adjoining that in which Mr. Humphrey was asleep.

What Does It Amount To?

From figures gathered in investigations made by the Federal Department of Labor, the Straus Magazine has prepared this chart showing how the American family spends its money.

It shows what little part the fuel bill plays in domestic expenses—only 5.3%—but when these figures are applied to the communities having natural gas the amount spent for fuel shrinks into insignificance.

Less Than 2%

For figures compiled by natural gas companies and by municipalities where natural gas is used show that less than 2% of the average family's income is spent for natural gas. If the diagram was made for natural gas territory the fuel expenditure would be only above one-third of the already small fuel segment—possibly only a thickening of the line.

Doesn't that show that, in addition to being the best and most convenient fuel, natural gas is also far the most economical and gas rates most reasonable when compared with any other necessity?

Once In A Blue Moon

BY HAROLD MAC GRATH

INSTALLMENT VI.

The priests of the idol capture them and torture Arthur, but he does not reveal the hiding place of the jewels and finally is rescued by a naturalists' expedition. He spends some time with the expedition and then at Singapore goes to a pawn shop. His entrance interrupts a violent quarrel between the keeper and a woman.

"It depends."

The huge Dutchman and his visitor stepped under the lamp, and Cathew dug into his watch-pocket.

"What will you give me for these?"

"Ethel, hant me der glass."

The woman obeyed, but she looked with new interest at this young man who had doubtless saved her a beating.

"Where did you get dese?"

Vaal turned them over and over.

"I vill giff you fife-hunert rupees for dem, or I will call in der police."

"Give them back. We can't do business. Those stones are mine. I've come through hell for them."

"Yes, yes, dey all say that. Fife-hunert und no questions asked."

Wild with fury, Cathew struck the man on the mouth. The gems went tinkling to the floor. Excruciating pain ran up and down Cathew's arm. The Dutchman roared and closed in. The fight was short and decisive. Cathew was borne to the floor and there he might have died, but for unexpected aid from the young woman. She seized the deskstool and swung down with full strength. An ordinary man's skull would have cracked like an eggshell. Vaal rolled over and lay still, while Cathew crawled about on his hands and knees in search of his possessions. He found one ruby and the emerald. During this time the young woman had foraged about and found some ropes.

"Help me tie him."

"He may be dead."

"If there is any God he is dead. But he has a head like a gorilla. Come!"

She blew out the light, locked the door and flung the key into the gutter. She seized Cathew by the hand and he followed her dumbly. After a while he found his tongue.

"What was that brute to you?"

"My husband. I have a right to the things I took. For more than a year he has beaten and kicked me."

"Here are two rickshaws. Get in."

He obeyed. He would have done anything she asked, absurd or tragic. The rickshaws ran side by side. He never looked at her but straight ahead.

"Have you got any money?" she called across to him.

He shook his head, meaning that he hadn't enough to take him to Europe. A moment later she passed a roll of notes toward him. He accepted them, and they were held tightly in his poor scarred hands till they reached the Lloyd dock. Five minutes after they went on board, the steamer slipped her cables.

"You go to the purser right away and buy your ticket to Naples. I'll buy mine later for Colombo. I have an uncle there. Are the stones safe?"

"Good lord!" he clapped his hand to the little patch-pocket. The stones were there. And for hours he had forgotten!

"Where did you get them?"

He told her the story, rather incoherently, concluding: "Do you know anyone in Colombo who would be likely to buy the stones?"

"My uncle. If he can't buy them, he'll know someone who will."

The voyage to Colombo was uneventful and when, eight hours later, he stepped again aboard the steamer, in his pocket there was an order on a New York bank for $14,000. Besides this he had in rupee-notes 1,000 more.

It was a fortune, and he had earned every dollar of it by struggle, privation, in the face of overwhelming odds.

And so the involuntary Odysseus went back to his Ithaca, home to his mother, his father, and the girl, a clear-eyed, brown-skinned vigorous prodigal; and his Odyssey had a touch of the Homeric.

Life is also full of anti-climaxes; if you doubt it, wait a little.

Two months after Cathew's return, his father received from San Francisco (at his personal request) a fine photograph of the most recent addition to his new fleet of Oriental freighters.

Of the 12 ships, 11 had Oriental names. This one, the twelfth, retained the name by which she had been launched. It was distinctly Irish.

The first, for $5,000, was made out to Captain Bannerman of the Limerick; the second for a smaller sum, was made payable to James Fall, ostensibly an employment agent, but in reality a crimp of the first water.

And there you are!

Married Life of Helen and Warren

By MABEL HERBERT URNER

Creator of "Helen and Warren" Characters

The Midnight Intrusion of Warren's Cousin Reacts to Helen's Advantage

"Quarter of twelve," grumbled Warren, thrusting his watch under his pillow. "And I've got to hustle in the morning."

"It seems we just can't get to bed early," Helen was turning down the covers, "I don't know where the evenings go. Have you a hard day tomorrow?"

"Hard?" ripping off his collar. "This month's been the limit. Ought to see my desk. That flapper stenographer's no good! I'd fire her if I'd time to break in another."

"Dear, don't forget you're going with me tomorrow to get that overcoat for Uncle Fred."

"The devil. I am! Got enough to do without fooling 'round the shops!"

"But you're such a wonderful judge of cloth—and I do want to get him a good one. You know how long he wears an overcoat. He wrote he was still wearing that gray suit we got him."

"Well, your family have their nerve! Always wanting you to buy something. What'd they think you are? A professional shopper?"

"They can't get anything way out there in that little country town. It's all they ever ask of us," ruefully examining a run in her stocking. "And they're so particular about paying—even the postage."

"Let 'em send to a mail order house. That's what they're for."

"You know they couldn't do as well—and I love to do it for them. I never bother you except when it's something for Uncle Fred."

"Well, I'm not going! That settles it! Darn it, that suspender button's off! I am fed up with this everlasting shopping for your family."

"Warren, that's most unjust! That's all we ever do for my family. They never come on here—we don't have to entertain them nor—"

It was all so unfair. They were constantly having to entertain his family. Hardly a week but some of them were in town and stayed over night. Yet Warren complained of the little shopping she did for her people!

In bed, Helen gazed broodingly at the wind billowed curtains fluttering their dim whiteness in the dark. It was so little to ask him—just once a year to help select a suit or overcoat. She spent days catering to his family.

Warren was asleep and she was dozing off, when a summons from the telephone vibrated the somnolent darkness.

Before she could find her slippers he was out of bed with an explosive, "That fool operator! If that's another wrong number I'll report her!"

"Who was it? What's happened" anxious Helen.

"At THIS hour" indignantly. "Can't she go to a hotel?"

"Said she didn't like to alone. Guess it's awkward for a young girl."

"Young girl?" resented Helen. "Why Agnes is almost 30. She went to California alone—I should think she could stay one night in a hotel."

"Oh, well, don't start beefing. She's taking the first train in the morning. Come on back to bed. It'll be a half hour before she is here."

"Who'll get the room ready?" throwing on her kimona. "You never seem to think anything has to be done. Of all the impositions! Just to save a hotel bill!"

With only one extra room which must serve as dressing, sewing and guest room, unexpected company always meant a hectic scramble to put it in order.

Would she have to change the bed linen? It was hardly rumpled from last week when his sister had stayed overnight. Yes, Agnes, both critical and gossipy, might say she had been put in a bed with soiled sheets. She was dragging off the covers when Warren slippered to the door.

"I couldn't put her in a bed with mussed sheets. If you know how she talks. Dear, if you want to help, take out that 'Jenny'. Put her in the hall closet."

"Where'll I chuck her? In the pantry?"

"No, no. I said the hall closet. You never listen. And put some fresh towels in the bathroom."

"Where d'you keep your towels?"

"The third shelf of the hall closet," patiently. "You ought to, know by this time. I've never kept them anywhere else."

"No towels here!" from the hall a moment later. "Nothin' but pillow cases."

"The THIRD shelf—not the second! And put a note under Nora's door. Say breakfast for three— a good tablecloth, and plenty of bacon with the eggs."

The bed re-made with "company" linen and the pink silk comforter, Helen laid her Paris negligee over a chair. Her lacy crepe-de-chine night gown and pink satin mules, kept for traveling, she also contributed to the stage-setting.

"What'll I write that note on? Never can find any paper at that blamed desk," Warren came shuffling back.

"Oh, never mind I'll do it! It's much easier to do things myself. I don't know why I ever ask you to do anything."

"Oh, nothing, nothing. Get your sight! Put on your silk robe."

"Huh, you can doll up the place—but she takes me as I am! I'll not do any dressin' up at midnight."

"There she is now! Dear, put on your other robe—PLEASE! I'll let her in."

Forcing a welcoming smile, Helen opened the door to Warren's Pittsburgh cousin, and her three bulging bags.

"Oh, I hope this isn't troubling you," was her affusive greeting. "I just couldn't go to a hotel all alone at this hour."

"Of course not," Helen strained for a cordial note. "We're glad to have you. Yes, Ben," to the night elevator boy with the bags, "bring them right in."

Ignoring the lateness of the hour, Cousin Agnes insisted on giving a detailed account of her exhausting trip.

"We were stalled for four hours—something wrong with the engine. And there wasn't any dining car! I intended to get something at the station—but it was so late I took a taxi right up here."

"Oh, I hate to trouble you. Just a glass of milk will do."

Out in the kitchen, Helen explored the ice box. Some old roast beef thinly sliced, celery, bread, butter and a glass of milk made a presentable tray.

Unperturbed by the lateness of the hour, Cousin Agnes ate with exasperating deliberateness while she further dilated on the hardships of her trip.

"I hope you'll sleep well. There's a comforter if it's cool towards toward morning. We breakfast at 8 o'clock."

"Do you mind if I don't get up? I'm too tired to take that first train. And I never eat breakfast—just fruit, coffee and toast, and perhaps an egg."

"Very well then, we'll not call you. Goodnight."

"Oh, I'm so sorry to trouble you—but could I have just a little salt?"

"Salt?" Again dragged out of bed, Helen opened the door.

"I've such a sensitive throat, I'm afraid I'll get laryngitis after that awful trip. If I could have just a little salt to gargle—"

With an effort Helen restrained a caustic remark as she turned on the lights and started out to the pantry.

"Now is there anything else?" with irrepressible sarcasm, when she brought back a cup of salt.

"No, that's all. I'm SO sorry to have bothered you again."

Helen's face burned hot against the pillow when once more she crept back to bed. She could have cried from sheer weariness and indignation.

Warren was not asleep—she could tell by his breathing. But his persistent ignoring of his cousin's inconsiderate demands added to her rebellion.

Then, suddenly, she felt his arm about her.

"See here, Kitten, about that overcoat—where you goin' to get it? Where'll I meet you tomorrow?"

"Oh, you're going with me?" eagerly. "You think you'll have time?"

"I'll make time," grimly. "You were mighty decent about Agnes horning in here tonight. Enough to make anybody sore! Next time she'll go to a hotel! How much did your Uncle Fred send for that coat?"

"Thirty-five dollars. Can't we get a good one for that."

"If we can't, I'll blow you to another 10. You were dead right about your family. Thank Heaven, they're not the visiting kind! Long as they stay put in Wisconsin, and don't park themselves on us—we'll do their shopping. Buy 'em any darn thing they want!"

Mr. Dooley on Making a Will

By FINLEY PETER DUNNE

"I niver made a will," said Mr. Dooley. "I didn't want to give niesilf a headache thinkin' iv something to put into it. A will iv mine wud be a puny little thing annyhow an' if anny wan thried to file it he'd be liable to be locked up f'r contimpt iv th' Probate Coort.

"Besides, I've always thought that if there's goin' to be ayether cheers of teams at me obsekees thew shud spring f'rm th' heart, not fr'm mercinary motives. If anny fellow feels lige cillybratin' me departure, let him do it out iv his own pocket. Thin I'll know he's sincere. 'Twud grieve me if some wan broke into song at th' news an' a sthranger was to ask: 'Is that wan iv his inimies?' an' th' reply was, 'No, it's wan iv his heirs.'

"So f'r wan reason or another I've niver made a will, but I'll not deny it must be considhrable spoort f'r thim that has th' manes an' th' imagination to injye it.

"I'm pretty sure I'd bust into tears whin th' lawyers wrote down th' directions f'r somebody else to set in me rockin' chair, an' I can't think iv annything that wud brighten th' wurruld with me out iv it. But that wud be because I wuddn't go at it th' right way.

"To be injyeable a will must be at wan an' th' same time a practical joke on th' heirs an' advertisemint iv the man the man that made it. Manny a man niver has his own way till he has it through his will.

"Afther he's dead an' gone, he shoves his hat on th' back iv his head an' stalks up an' down through th' house, saying, 'I'll show ye who th' boss is here. F'r th' first time in melife, now that I'm dead I'm going to be obeyed.' No wondher that manny meek millyonaires comforts their declinin' years with this amusemint. It is as Hogan says, th' last infirmary f'r their noble minds. It's a chance f'r thim to tache th' fam'ly their proper place, an' blow their own horns without havin' anny wan interrupt th' solo.

A Vain Will.

"I was readin' a fine will th' other day. I niver see th' lad that made it, but I think iv him, walkin' up an' down th' lawyers office as he dictated it, whackin' himsilf on th' chest an' sayin' 'bedad' afther ivry paragrph. It was somethin' like this: 'I, Ephraim Snivvy, bein' iv a sound mind no matther what may come out in coort later, but realizin' th' repytation iv me unparalleled succiss in business has so far that I sm lible to be called elsewhere, do make this me last will and testymint.'

"'All me money I lave to my faithful frind, th' Confidintyal Chattel Morgedge comp'ny, which I command to disburse as follows: to me devoted wife, Belinda Ann Spivvy, shall be paid th' sum iv $2,000, per annum undher th' follwin' conditions: That she shall niver marry again; that she will wear a black veil f'r th' rest iv her life in me honor; that she will go to me grave wanst a week an' dew it with her tears; that she shall be sorry that she often spoke to me th' way she did; that she shall keep tu' lle paintin' iv me in th' parlor in good repair; that she shall not attind annyq dance, bankit, theatyre, wake or other frivolous intertainmint.

"'If she fails to comply with anny iv these conditions or if anny man undher th' age iv 80 is discovered in her neighborhood, or if she is iver seen to laugh in public, I direct me exicutors to cut her off fr'm me bounty an' turn her out on th' wurruld f'r th' heartless flirt she is.

"'Me son Elias, 'havin' offinded me by goin' to a baseball game, I desire that he shall get nawthin' fr'm me estate.

At that time if she sees fit to bestow her hand on a worthy young man who shall be acciptible to th' loan comity iv me bank, I direct that she shall be paid $10 a week out iv her mother's allowance, th' said fund to be known as "Th' Gin'rous Eph Snivvy Foundation f'r indygint Daughters."

When a Dead Man Tells Tales

"Yes, sir; it must be fun makin' a will. Think iv th' throuble ye can cause an' th' insults ye can hurl at ye're inimies. I often thought 'twud be a fine way iv gettin' aven with a man I didn't like. Supposin' Hogan an' me had a quarrul an' I didn't have time ti write a frindly biography about him, or was afraid I might go first. Nawthin' wud be nater thin to put him in me will. his will. Th' Dock says he always thries this prescription on aged millyonaires afther th' oxygen fails.

"Wan mornin' Dochney come in lookin' as cheerful as an advertisemint fr a breakfast food an' jinglin' his key ring in his pocket. I'r he niver carrid annything else to jingle, but made a practice iv extractin' car fare out iv th' gran-childern's bank with a penknife ivry mornin'.

"'Ye're lookin' well, me ol' buccaneer,' said I. 'It's feelin' well I am,' says he. 'I've been with me lawyer all mornin' revisin' me will. I find I've left out a good many ol' frinds. Ye haven't a middle initya! to ye're name, have ye?' 'Give me a glass iv sas-prilly,' he says.

"Well, sir: Though I knew th' crafty ol' pirate, th' thought suddenly lept into me head that maybe his heart or his brain had softened an' he'd put me in th' will. In that fatal siconf I bought two autymobiles, a yacht, an' a goold watch an' chain an' shook me ol' frinds, an' whin I come to me sinses he'd gone an' hadn't settled f'r th' sas-prilly.

"Well, th' fun he had afther that. All day long he wint around makin' delicate inquiries about people's circumstances. He hadn't been a popylar man. He had chased in th' affections iv his neighbors arly in life. An' prejudices ar-re hard to overcome.

"But grajaly—that is to say, within a week or ten days— people began to see that a gr-reat injustice had been done to him. He didn't say annythin' about a will. But he had a way iv askin' people did they spell their name with an aitch or a zee an' puttin' it down in a notebook that was very consoling. New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

How Ghosts Are Now Made by Electricity

THERE may or may not be such things as spirits. While on each side of this question are found millions who believe they are right, there is no disputing the fact that a satisfactory ghost, at least in so far as looks and the thrills resulting therefrom are concerned, can be produced by electricity at a "seance" filled with all that is spectacular and spooky. Clyde J. Fiten is one individual who witnessed one of these electrical seances and this is how he describes his experience in Practical Electrics:

Entering a large, darkened room, the audience seated themselves around a small table in its centre. A black cloth covered the table, hanging nearly to the floor. On the walls were a few niches, which contained funeral urns. Black velvet draperies covered the doorways and windows.

The medium entered. She appeared very energetic. She proceeded to remove one of the urns from a niche, in the wall, unscrewed the cover, and then placed the urn on the table. I peered into the urn, but could see nothing in its dark depths. I glanced at the medium, who had already seated herself in a chair. She appeared motionless and as rigid as a statue. I felt uneasy in the silence, with the pale faces of the medium and the sitters shining in the dark.

I glanced back at the urn, and behold, from the mouth of the urn a misty white form slowly arose. I watched this apparition as it gradually grew into the form of a man's head, with plainly distinguishable features. The face appeared as pale as death itself, and seemed to emit a mysterious phosphorescent glow. Suddenly the death-like silence was interrupted with a BANG! The ghost disappeared in a white cloud. We sprang from our chairs and rushed for the door, and in my haste I bumped the table and tipped over the urn, out of which ran a stream of steaming water. I realized then that the ghost was a fake and produced by scientific means, and all my fear and creepy sensations departed.

The medium picked up the urn and rushed out of the room. Turning on the light and raising the black cloth which covered the table, one glance underneath was sufficient to reveal the secret of the haunted urn. The illustrations show what I observed.

A large magnet, about 18 inches long, was securely bolted to the under side of the table. The core of the magnet was about three inches square in cross-section and was made up of transformer steel laminations tightly clamped together. The wire on the core appeared very large, about No. 6, and was wound in three layers. Evidently the magnet was designed for use on a 110-volt circuit.

Just what was in the urn I never discovered, but the illustrations show the method probably used. The urn was of bronze, its interior divided by a diaphragm across it just above the base; the bottom compartment was soldered and held water. A tube connected the two compartments, in the upper one of which was fixed a thin rubber tube terminating in a rubber balloon. Normally the balloon and tube are rolled up, but when the urn is placed over the magnet through which an alternating current is passing, the heavy currents induced into the bottom of the metal urn generate enough heat to boil the water and inflate the rubber tube and balloon with steam, which unroll and expand and are forced out of the urn. The medium probably used a special balloon, as the features of the face, such as the nose, appeared to extend out like reality and were not painted on the rubber. However, a plain balloon with a painted face, tinted with radium luminous paint, might have been used.

Unfortunately for the medium, she either forgot to open the switch in time, or the balloon was old and worn with use, for the pressure of the steam was too great for it, and the balloon burst. If the switch had been opened in time, the steam would have condensed and the balloon would have collapsed, allowing the "ghost" to go back to his haunts.

But the effect of the seance, had it not been interrupted, would have been marvellous. With nerves already unstrung by the mysterious and ghost-like actions of the medium, the onlookers would have been ready to believe in almost everything that was supposed to happen. Plaster casts of the "spirits" could have been made, as some psychical investigators like to do.

Why You Can Find Your Your Way Around in the Dark

THE patient householder who bumps his shins against the chair-rocker while wandering around the house in the dark is the unfortunate butt of many jokes. But, all joking aside, the wonder is that he can find his way around as remarkably as he does. What enables him to do this without any aid from his eyes is a little suspected nervous arrangement.

The old picture of the kittens that was supposed to portray the "five senses" is all wrong. There are nearer fifteen than five. Four senses that have been discovered within fairly recent times are not included in the old list of smell, taste, touch, see and hear.

Each muscle of the body is supplied with many nerve endings. Some of these nerve endings are the ones that cause the muscles to contract at will. These are the motor nerves since they act as sort of a motor. The other set of nerves in the muscles are sensitive, just as the eye or the ear, and are the sensory nerves. Every time a motor nerve stimulates a muscle to contract, the movement of the muscle in turn stimulates the sensory nerves. These are not a part of the skin senses, but distinct and form the muscle sense. With a healthy muscle sense a person can tell approximately what position his arm has been placed in although his eyes are closed. The muscle sense remembers, too. That is what makes it possible for the typist to just turn her fingers loose while they hunt the proper keys. It is the memory of the muscle sense that makes it possible for the automobilist to shift gears just by the feel of the thing. This "feel" is given by the muscle sense—and two closely related senses.

These two other senses are located in the tendons and joints. The joint, or articular, sense is stimulated by the bones which meet at a joint being rubbed together when a limb is moved. The tendon sense is the one that is stimulated by a heavy load or a steady pull, when there is a minimum of motion.

These three senses together form a precious triumvirate that guide men more than they usually realize in the use of their bodies and in the formation of skills. Man can be much more dependent upon them than he usually is by letting them do their work without bothering to interfere with them. They are faithful servitors, accurate and speedy.

Their fourth companion-in-arms is located in the semi-circular canals of the inner ear. It is here that the balance of the body is controlled. In these three pair of semi-circular canals accurate check is kept upon the position of the body. Just a little leaning this way or that and the canals respond immediately by conveying to their master information of the disturbance in equilibrium.

HOW to EAT Without FEARS and ABOLISH All DIETING

FEAR, as science has conclusively shown, is one of man's deadliest enemies. It often shortens his life by a score and more of years—especially when this emotion is linked with food. If you would live to a hale and hearty old age it would be well for you to eat without fear by following the example of Methuselah:

"Methuselah ate what he found on his plate
And never as people do now,
Did he note the amount of the calorie count—
He ate it because it was chow.
He wasn't disturbed, as at dinner he sat
Destroying a roast or a pie
To think it was lacking in granular fat
Or a couple of vitamines shy.
He carefully chewed every species of food
Untroubled by worries or fears
Lest his health might be hurt by some fancy dessert,
And he lived over nine hundred years!"

Methuselah not only must have had a cook who knew his business, but he was not troubled by the popular conception of today that to diet means to give up everything you like to eat. This is not at all necessary, as G. F. Scotson-Clark points out in a book entitled, "Eating Without Fear," published by Nicholas L. Brown, New York City. But what is of vital importance is that each one take an intelligent interest in the provender with which one intends to stoke the human furnace. You cannot start an engine on sawdust or rubbish, any more than you can preserve your health on badly cooked food, which is neither palatable nor nutritious.

"So few people," says Mr. Scotson-Clark, "draw the line of distinction between gourmet and gourmand. Good living, careful living and study of gastronomy will keep one's youthful sveltness; fat comes from carelessness, ignorance or gluttony.

"Daily I am amused by people who eschew the harmless potato, who take saccharine in their tea and coffee, who even take exercises to reduce, and then eat quantities of butter, drink pints of cream and buckets of water. Zola had a scheme for reducing fat which worked absolute wonders on himself. He gave up drinking and taking liquids in any form—no gravies even. In six months he brought his weight down from 220 pounds to 160 pounds.

"Abstinence from water has a dual advantage. Not only does it help to preserve one's figure, but it eliminates one of the great causes of indigestion, which is the national complaint of the United States, just as rheumatism is the national complaint of the British Isles. To drink water without harm, it is necessary to take quantities of violent exercise to overcome the ill-effects of such over-indulgence.

"You have breakfasted at 7:30 or 8 A. M., because you're a commuter or a commuter's wife. There is nothing more to worry about till lunch, which happens between 12:30 and 1:30. During this time you must absolutely refrain from drinking anything, and above all from ice-water. It will come hard at first, but if you feel so thirsty that you are parched, and as they used to say in Arizona, 'chewing cotton,' wash your mouth out with water, but do not swallow any. You will find that this quenches what you thought was a thirst. The main thing is not to drink too much.

"If you must drink water, take it as hot as you can swallow it. After a short time of abstinence from water you will find that your chronic thirst disappears, and with me you will pity the poor fellows who are always rushing to the ice-water tank, and you will also notice that those men are the least efficient in your employ. They are positively sweating away their vitality. To perspire in moderation is healthy, the poisons in the body are excreted, but to perspire in excess is debilitating, and no man's brain can be in perfect condition when his body is a sort of steam boiler.

"A perfect digestion can only be acquired and maintained by a natural way of living. After all, the main item in living is food, food that will keep the digestive organs in good condition, enable them to do their work and thus nourish the entire system. The best engine in the best automobile is useless without good gasoline. Play tricks with your gasoline and your engine will be out of business in no time. Then you go to the garage man, who finds that you have been mixing kerosene or water with your gas. And what does he say? This is an exact parallel of a case where a man goes to a doctor, saying he is a martyr to indigestion. He has ruined his internal engine with all sorts of imitation food; the only thing about it is that one's interior is so much more wonderful than an automobile engine that it takes much longer to get out of order. But when it has succumbed, so much longer does it take to get into condition again, if it ever does.

"Careful living does not mean plain or ugly living. The best cooking is the tastiest, the most delicious. The varied menu is not only the most pleasant, but the most healthy. It is as natural for human beings to eat meat as for a horse to chew hay. A certain proportion of vegetables is necessary to us, besides which they are very nice and there is no reason why one should not indulge one's desires; but to confine oneself to a vegetarian diet is not only unpleasant, but an evidence of lack of self-control and playing tricks with nature. I do think that all children should be trained to eat a little fat with their meat, for not only is fat good for them, but to me it is positively disgusting to see a person trim off every little bit of fat and decorate the edge of the plate with it. It is bad manners, to say the least. Some people think it is fattening; it is not, but it is nature's way of providing heat for the body. In very cold climates it is absolutely necessary to eat fats and we know how, during the Great War, some of the nations suffered from lack of fats.

"Where dumb animals are wiser than human beings is in the way they eat. They eat their food first and then drink their water. They do not imperil their lives by drinking water before they eat. Nature tells them that such a proceeding dilutes the gastric juices, rendering them too weak to perform the necessary process of digestion.

"In days gone by pepsin was obtained in a remarkably cruel way. A pig was kept in a pen without food of any kind for several days. Then the food trough outside the bars of the pen was filled with steaming hot potatoes. Poor piggy rushed at them; could not get at them because of the bars and, in his hunger and desire, the gastric juices would flow into his empty stomach. Then he was immediately killed and the gastric juice—or pepsin—was collected from his poor little stomach.

"It is much the same with us. When our stomachs are empty, even the thought of food, let alone the sight or smell of it, will cause the gastric juices to trickle therein, causing hunger. The stomach is then in a condition to receive food and commence the work of digestion. Does it not stand to reason that if these juices are diluted with water they are not sufficiently strong to do their allotted work. Hence indigestion."

Why DISTEMPER in DOGS Is Like MEASLES in MAN

DISTEMPER in dogs is an acute highly contagious disease, presenting symptoms somewhat analogous to measles in man. While some have regarded it as specific for the dog, others consider that it occurs in cats, young foxes, wolves, jackals, hyenas, and even monkeys. From its contagiosity it is certain that the cause is a microbe of some kind, which, however, has hitherto remained unmasked. Indeed, there is very little real scientific knowledge extant on the disease. This is in part, at any rate, due to the fact that what veterinary surgeons and the laity call distemper is almost certainly not one, but several different diseases, according to a writer in Nature. That one of these is the specific disease distemper is, however, very probable.

At present the concept of "distemper" is entirely clinical. Thus, one finds descriptions in the literature of catarrhal, gastric, nervous, and exanthematic types of the disease. There is a great body of evidence to show that one attack of the malady confers a durable immunity on the survivor. The disease occurs in all countries and was apparently known in antiquity. On the other hand, there is a tradition—it is little more—that distemper was introduced into Europe from South America in the seventeenth century. There have been many researches on the probable cause, and from the time of Semmer (1875) down to the present, every known type of microbe has been incriminated, many authors with great assertiveness having maintained that they had found the specific micro-organism.

Many have believed that Carre came nearest the truth with the idea that the cause is an invisible microbe which can traverse bacterial filters. With filtrates obtained from nasal secretions he obtained lethal effects which were claimed to be identical with true distemper, and he regarded the visible bacteria found by others as of the nature of secondary invaders, which obtained a hold on the tissues as a result of the depressing effect of the real filter-passing virus. This view is largely accepted without criticism.

Filter-passers have been suggested or proved for a number of pathological conditions, notably the mosaic disease of tobacco plants, foot-and-mouth disease, Cape horse sickness, fowl plague, etc. These filter-passers have much in common. They are highly infectious, invisible, filterable, and non-cultivable. The causes probably constitute a new group of living things, which, if discovered in the case of distemper, may throw a flood of light on many unknown causes of disease in man.

How UNCONSCIOUS THOUGHT Can Be Easily TRANSFORMED Into ACTION

UNCONSCIOUS thought can be transformed into action by the following experiment which is described in Popular Science Monthly. Tie an eight-inch string to the end of a pencil and to the other end of the string attach a heavy metal button.

Transforming Unconscious Thought Into Action by an Experiment with a Pencil, String and Button.

Next hold the pencil firmly in both hands, as shown, but without pressing your arms tensely to your side, and suspend the button over the intersection of two diameters crossing at right angles in a circle, 10 inches across, previously on a piece of paper.

Now let your eyes follow the line of one of the diameters. Soon the button will begin to swing along that line. Next, concentrate for a time on the other diameter; later, let your eyes follow the line of the circle. Each time, the movement of the button will change to follow the line you are thinking of, despite the efforts of your will to hold the pencil motionless.

How an ILLUSION Makes the MOVIES

By Donald A. Laird

HERE is something for one to ponder over while enjoying a good movie. The wonderfulness of the movie is usually attributed to the highly developed machines and workmanship back of the making of the projectors and the films. But that is wrong. All the projectors and films in the land would not make motion pictures possible were it not for a peculiarity in the way we see. It is Nature, and not Man, that makes possible the modern movie. And the more men study Nature in this respect the better the illusion of the motion picture will be made.

In the romantic novel you read how the villain fixes his gaze steadily upon the advancing automobile. If there are any villains in real life it may be possible for them to fix their gaze steadily, but—and this offers the secret of the movies—they do not see steadily. Villains are no exception to the rule of Nature, all folks do not see steadily; normal vision is intermittent.

When the glowing stem of a match is swung around at arm's length in a circle you see a circle of reddish fire, not just a point of fire moving around and around. If it were not for this there could be no movies. After you have looked at a lighted match for a second or two and then close your eyes you see the reddish color persist, even behind closed eyelids. The color waxes and wanes, comes and goes in a mysterious fashion. But it is not mysterious. It is a law of Nature, without which there would be no movies. Scientists make the following explanation of this law:

When movies are being shown a foot of film is drawn past the lens of the projector every second. On this foot of film there are sixteen separate pictures. This means that in every second there are sixteen separate pictures flashed onto the screen. But who ever saw these sixteen pictures?

While one picture is being jerked down the light is cut off by a shutter so that in addition to there being sixteen pictures on the screen a second there are also sixteen periods of darkness. But who ever saw these dark intervals?

These dark intervals and the sixteen pictures blend into one living picture because normal vision is intermittent. Just as one continues to see the match burn after his eyes are closed, so does one picture persist in the eye after it has been jerked away and there is really darkness on the screen.

This is not imagination that causes this apparent continuity; it is Nature. When an image persists, such as these do, even after what has really been seen is taken away, it is called an after-image. It is after-images that make the movies possible.

After-images are not imagination. They are due to the peculiar way in which the eye works. That they are really located in the eye, and not farther back in the head, may be demonstrated by looking for a few seconds at a lighted electric bulb and then turning the glance onto the wall of the room. Then an after-image of the lighted bulb will be seen. As one's eyes are moved so does the after-image move, which plainly shows that the after-image is located in the eye and not in the imagination.

After-images cause some automobile accidents. When riding at night and a car is passed it sometimes appears as if another car is approaching, when in reality there is none. The after-image of the lights of car first passed persist and give the appearance of another car approaching.

What Happens When the Body Starves to Death

WHAT happens when persons starve to death? Startling new information on the subject has been supplied by Dr. George B. Hassin, a nerve specialist of Chicago, who recently returned to the United States from Russia with the brain of a man who died of starvation.

Investigations by scientists indicate that the starving body first feeds on surplus fat and waste matter. Proportional losses at death are given as follows by Popular Science Monthly:

Fat, 97 per cent.; muscle, 30 per cent.; liver, 56 per cent.; spleen, 63 per cent.; blood, 17 per cent.; nerve centres, 1 per cent.

The Safest Place During a Thunder Storm

WHEN a thunderstorm is raging, you are just about as safe in one part of your home as another," Charles P. Steinmetz, the famous electrical wizard is quoted as saying. "People who try to 'insulate' themselves by lying down in the folds of a feather bed are taking senseless and ineffectual precaution. Yet there are a few danger spots. If you are in direct line between two good-sized metal objects, such as a steam radiator and an iron sink, or between either and a rainspout running by the side of the house, you may be struck by direct or induced flashes of lightning. In seeking an outlet to the ground, lightning has a tendency to jump between two such metallic bodies, rather than to take a direct course through non-conducting mediums.

"A place of special danger is directly beneath a hanging lamp or globe suspended from the ceiling by a chain. Lightning may follow the chain to its end and then jump off. The place where a wire clothesline enters a house may also be a danger spot, although I think this has been over-emphasized."

POTASH & PERLMUTTER DISCUSS DANCING FOR A RECORD

ABE

By MONTAGUE GLASS.

"I see where last week a couple of young people won the world's championship for dancing, Mawruss," Abe Potash remarked to his partner Morris Perlmutter. "They danced steadily for 37 hours and 20 minutes right here in New York City."

"That's another thing New York has got to be proud of besides Mayor Hylan and the rush hour crowds in the subway," Morris Perlmutter observed.

"But they didn't hold the record long at that," Abe continued, "because another couple in Texas took the cup or belt or maybe it was only a dancing diploma away from them by dancing steadily for 42 hours 10 seconds and a few days later, in a town in northern New York, still another couple nearly grabbed the record from Texas. It seems that they had been one-stepping for 39 hours 15 minutes when the chief of police stopped them."

"I suppose he thought it was his duty to do so on account they was enjoying themselves," Morris suggested, "or maybe somebody from the S. P. C. A. called his attention to the exhausted condition of the saxophone player."

"As a matter of fact it wasn't neither of them things," Abe said. "The better element of the town consisting of people whose 17-year-old children who dance in moderation only from 8 o'clock Saturday night until 4 o'clock Sunday morning, thought that this here unmoderate record-breaking dancing was immoral and complained about it."

"Well, I think they was wrong, Abe," Morris declared. "It's about time that champeenship records should be hung up for other things besides six-day bycycle races and these here Marathons, and while dancing records ain't exactly what you call a step in the right direction, maybe it's a symptom that someday soon you would bane reading in the paper how Mrs. Annie Rosanzweig was awarded the diamond studded belt for a record of 21 hours and 30 seconds standing over the wash tubs while doing the regular laundry work for a family of 10 children, her husband and two boarders."

McKeever, Champion Vest Cutter.

"Sure I know," Abe agreed "but championship records are given for sporting events, Mawruss, like bicycle riding or dancing, and laundry don't come under the head of sport, any more than ditch digging."

"Say!" Morris exclaimed, "After the first five hours of continuously doing it, Abe, there ain't much to choose between dancing and laundry work. I bet yer that when them championship dancers got through with their 30 odd hours of dancing, understand, they didn't feel no different than if they would have been doing 30 odd hours of garment pressing or paper box manufacturing or something useful like that, which it comes to me, Abe, that it's about time that the idea of championship was taken out of prize fighting and bicycle riding and put into such ways of making a living like bread baking or pants salesmanship. I would like to see some day a lot of little boys following a man down the street and when I ask what the excitement is about, I would like to have it explained to me: 'Why don't you know? That's Samuel Meltelson, the heavyweight world's champion vest cutter.'"

"Well, I don't think you are going to live to see that day, Mawruss," Abe said. "There's a feeling going around among people that some things has got glory in them and other things ain't.

"For instance, Mawruss, there ain't a whole lot of difference between a loafer beating up somebody so as he could get a diamond studded belt out of it, and a loafer beating up somebody so that he could get a diamond studded scarf pin out of it, y'understand, but there's a whole lot more glory to be got out of doing the first than the second, y'understand. A feller takes a piece of wood with an iron head to it and hits at a ball and he's considered a champion, and gets a silver cup for it. Another feller taks a piece of wood with an iron head to it and hits at a shingle nail, and he's considered a roofer and gets four dollars a day for it. And yet, Mawruss, I put it up to you: which is more important to the country, roofers or golfers? So therefore Mawruss, you will find in every case, that people is only given championship belts, cups and medals for doing something useless, longer, faster or harder than somebody else has ever done it before."

"I suppose he thought it was his duty to do so on account they was enjoying themselves"

"Then something should ought to be done then to make things like button hole making or foundation digging attractive as a sport, Abe, the same as dancing and golfing because to keep a couple of foundation diggers busy digging foundations for 36 hours and 20 seconds in order to get the foundation digging record would go a long ways towards making the housing problem already a thing of the past," Morris observed.

Remove the Tinge of Professionalism.

"But the chief thing about sport is that it is something that a business man does in his off minutes as a relief from his regular work," Abe said, "and what kind of relief would Mawruss, if you and me was to devote our Saturday afternoons and Sundays to structial iron work for instance."

"Well if there was fancy clothes made to order for structial iron work by them robbers of merchant tailors which does business appropriately on the second stories of upper Fifth Avenue, Abe, maybe a lot of business men which now plays golf for the sake of the knickerbockers and tasseled stockings, y'understand would be induced to take up structial iron work as a game instead of leafing it to be tinged with professionalism byy the members of the housesmiths' union, Abe," Morris continued.

"But all joking to one side, Abe, it's only what you might call prejudice which makes one kind of hard work a sport and another kind a job. If you don't believe me, Abe, go home some Saturday afternoon and with you a nice wide brush and a pot of white enamel, and then start in to paint a couple of the kitchen chairs and the outside of the medicine chest in the bathroom, y'understand and I bet you if your Rosie has got on her hat and coat all ready to go out to a bridge game, y'understand, she would take them right off and stay home.

"Nobody can resist wanting a grab at the brush out of the hands of somebody who is doing a job of amateur painting. It's got such a fascination to it, that once you get started on it, even though in other respects you couldn't deny your wife nothing in the world, you're just as hard hearted about doing that painting yourself and not letting her do it, as you would be already be paying her all money and council fee.

"Furthermore, Abe," Morris went on to say, "I have stood outside the window of them chain lunchrooms where a man in a white suit is cooking griddle cakes as part of the lunchroom's publicity, y'understand, and it's all I can do to stop myself from going inside and offering the man a dollar bill to let me make them griddle cakes for an hour or so. As a steady job, I suppose it would get to be pretty monotonous, but for a rainy Saturday afternoon or Sunday, I don't know of anything that would occupy my time more agreeably, except maybe duction pinochle at five cents for 50 settling 50 cents on the dollar."

How A Banker Could Draw a Gallery

"But you've also got to consider, Mawruss, that one of the pleasures of sports is the people enjoy seeing other people do athletic exercises and will even pay an addmission to do so, whereas who is going to pay money to see some one doing structial iron work?" Abe asked.

"Oh, I don't know," Morris said. "When the conditions are right, Abe you could always get an audience. For instance if Sam Feder, president of the Kosciusko bank, would take up structial iron work ipstead of golluf as an exercise, in particular since he called that loan of ours last week, I for one would be willing to pay good money to see him balanced on an iron beam 20 stories above the sidewalk, especially if there was a stiff wind blowing and a chance of his making a mis-step or something.

"But seriously speaking, Abe, you could always get a bigger gallery for a man blowing up a tire on Broadway and Forty-odd street than you could get for a close match between Angus MacFishbein, professional of the Swamn Ridge country club, and Siegfried MacKinstry, professional of the Wehistmere Golf club. In fact, one of the reasons why they've got to put board fences around building operations in New York City is that next to Chaliapin in Boris Godunoff, the man who can draw the biggest audience in New York City is a three dollar a day Italian laborer operating a rock drill in an excavation for a new apartment house."

"Then you think that the reason why these here long distance dance contests has become all of a sudden so popular is that people are willing to pay an admission price to see them poor dancers nebich work so hard. Is that the idea?" Abe inquired

"Well, I think they are given to attract paid admissions, Abe, but the admissions nin't paid to see them dancers working hard," Morris said. "I think that people who pay to see such crazy contests has got the same feeling towards them dancers as Spanish audiences has to toreadors. They don't wish them no harm but they figure that there is always a chance that one of them dancers would drop from heart disease or something."

"And if they did," Abe concluded, "they couldn't get no sympathy out of me."

Ring Writes Of William The Jap Chambermaid

By RING LARDNER

To the editor:

At this time of yr. the average newspaper is beseeched with queries in regards to where to spend your summer vacation. The 1st. thing the editor thinks of is find a man that knows all about vacations and ask him to write a article in regards to same.

So they called on me on the theory that I am personaly acquainted with a whole lot of people that always have vacations though I don't get none myself but the other boys tells me where I should ought to go if I go anywheres, which they know better.

Well the place which I have heard the most about it and which most of the real people seems to be going this yr. is the Nimrod inn at Hot Dog Iowa. This attractive little city is 2 way between Jersey City and Yellowstone park and about 50 miles from either. It is not a specially attractive town as towns go but the most of them don't go.

The feature that draws so many intelligent characters to Hot Dog is the facilities for so many different kinds of sports. Within a radius of 4 or 5 thousan miles of this little Hamlet there is sports to wet the appetite of the most hot-blooded nimrod.

The inn itself is unique in Iowa annuals. Every rm. is without a bed but supplied with a up-to-date radio equipment and as a result nobody retires there but spends their evenings setting vs. a tree in the public park wishing they was somewheres else.

In the morning, however, they half to get up for the bee fishing which is at its higth between 5:07 and 5:08 a. m. Some of the most expert nimrods have been known to rope as many as a 100 between these hrs.

Pear Hunting In Oak Trees.

When the bees have satisfied their morning appetite and moved on to the next town why your fair vacationers turns to the next number on the program which is buffalo spearing.

Nobody knows how many buffaloes has failed to be speared between 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning at Hot Dog, Iowa. The total must be a eye-opener to people that never speared anffaloes.

After the buffaloe spearing episode has became exstinct, why the nimrods usually turn in for a few hrs. slumber at the inn on acct. of the radio being silent at that hr. of the morning. 2 hrs. of rest on the floor and everybody is ready for the mixed tennis doubles which starts promptly at different hrs.

In most towns mixed tennis doubles means 4 people playing tennis of different sexes, but in Hot Dog it means that tennis is mixed up with a variety of other sports. Like for inst. one morning I got into a mixed tennis doubles and the next thing you knew they were all engrossed in the knack of manicuring with a view to having their finger nails ship shape

This event is run off back of the day clerk's desk in the hotel and the conditions is that the people who is trying to scratch each other's face must be legally married.

The afternoon naturally starts with a pear grabbing contest which I will exclaim for the benefit of the neophytes that each contestant has to climb a tree and get a pair off of it. In Hot Dog this is specially difficult on acct. of all the trees being giant oaks. The man that finds a pear probably brought it along himself but you half to prove that. This pastime always ends up in a lively discussion.

Now then at 2 o'clock in the p. m. a bell sounds summoning all hands to lunch, but the idear of the entire lay out is to make all hands reduce so the lunch that they lay out for you why you take one look at it and you don't eat nothing. You never leave the lunch table of the Nimrod inn at Hot Dog feeling logey. You just feel sick.

8 Mile Track For Tired Business Man

The rest of the afternoon is genally always spent in the button sewing courts. Four legally married husbands and wifes takes their stance on a given line and at the outburst of a gun they all begin sewing buttons. The winner is given a membership in the button sewing section of the Rotary club.

Besides these sports which I have mentioned in a causual way they's a 8-mile running track for the tired business man, a bathtub where the soap has been hid somewheres and the man that finds it cleans up, a bear raffle where the winning number gets a bear, and last but not lease a weasel chase which the man that catches the weasel is awarded same and is genally always shoots a big party with weasel meat as the entree.

All and all I would recommend to all business men looking for a vacation and a specially the Isaac Newtons amongst my readers none other than the Nimrod inn at Hot Dog, Iowa, than I know no better place for a simple minded man to spend their vacation.

Nobody knows how many buffaloes has failed to be speared between 6 and 7 o'clock in the morning at Hot Dog, Iowa.

...ana Jassaline was all hooked up with the human mastodon who went by the name of Henry and looked the part.

Now it happened that Ilen and Jess lived in a nice little town where there were a great many lovely old families and a great deal of wealth, but it was pervaded at all hours by a cemetery calm.

The social gaieties of the place revolved slowly around a missionary society. Any one desiring to mix a cocktail had to pull down all the blinds and disconnect the telephone, and also it was advisable to wear masks at a poker party.

Jassaline would often become restless and champ at the bit. She had attended a select school for girls, at which she had learned how to turn handsprings and other parlor didces. No wonder that she hated to play dominoes all evening and turn out the lights at 9:30 p. m., which, in keen society, is the mere edge of the night.

Now it chanced that Jassaline had a chum. They had eaten olives out of the same bottle while attending the select school for girls. Chum had gone against the matrimonial game, the Same as Jess, only, instead of landing in Sleepy Hollow, she was up in the city, taking in the big show.

She wrote to Jassaline, urging her to come up and put in a busy week. After working on the handwriting for several days, Jassaline succeeded in reading the whole letter, and she began to tease Henery to knock off for a week and take her to the hoopla Metropolis and let her burn a few holes in the track.

She told henry that he had been sticking to his desk too closely and that he needed a good rest and a change of background.

Large bodies move slowly, and several days elapsed before Henry came to her way of thinking, although it was a pipe from the beginning that she would halter him and lead him thence.

Jassaline got busy and put six women to work building a new evening gown for her. It was a pale-blue cerise, with battenberg insertion, yoked with mayonnaise and valenciennes, the flounces being gathered in with pessementerie and the bodice hand-painted.

When Henry got a flash at the bill he allowed that, instead of taking a vacation, it would be better for him to stay at home and work about twice as hard. But winsome wifey had everything packed, so she took him in tow and they boarded the Flyer.

"Ain't this grand," asked Jassaline, as they sat in the palatal parlor-car and watched the scenery as it sped by. "We have a whole week in which to rest up and nobody to keep tab on what we do and then report us to the Methodist minister."

"I'm sure that you will like Clara," she continued. She is a holy terror. She was engaged 19 times before she finally hooked up, and since she got married people came for miles to get her to act as chaperon. She is a robins egg, if ever there was one."

"What is the programme?" asked Henry, who was a mite leery.

Van Bort.

They went back to the apartment and ate stuff out of a chafing-dish until 3 a. m.

When they turned in, Henry was was on the point of passing away, but Jassaline was just beginning to warm up and be kittenish.

"We shall have oodles of fun tomorrow," she said. "First we have a breakfast at the French restaurant, then a swell luncheon at the club, then ae musicale, then a dinner at the biggest hotel on earth, and then a show, and then we are all going out slumming."

"I drop out," said Henry. "One day has put me on the ropes."

"Don't be a quitter," said Jassaline. "Stick to me and I will make something out of you yet."

Next day she took him over the jumps, and he followed with his tongue hanging out. He did not like to admit that he could not keep up with a 90 pound canary who was somewhat of an invalid.

But when she and watched her eat-and she had to pull out, she found Henry in a comatose condition leaning against the hat-rack. She aroused him and slipped him the glad news that they were to get an early start and go out to the nice roadhouse and have something to eat. Whereupon Henry fell in a heap and asked to be placed in an ambulance.

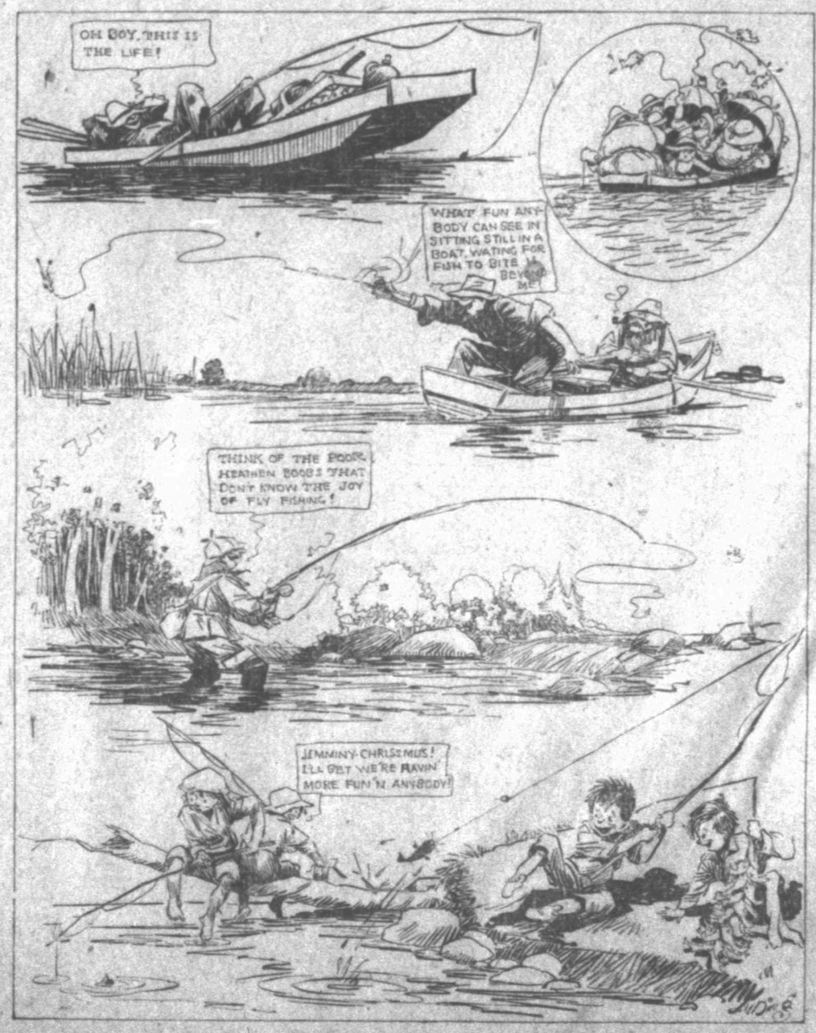

All the way home in the carriage she toasted him and chatted him with a lack of appreciation.

"What an awful rummy you turned out to be!" said the indignant Jassaline. "Why don't you cut loose and have a good time, the same as I do? I don't want people to think that I married an egg!"

"I can lift 1200 pounds in harness and I can play 72 holes of golf without turning a hair," said the fallen giant, "but when it comes to eating little birds and taking a new kind of salad every 20 minutes and holding animated conversation with perfect strangers, I am not in your class. Send for a trained nurse. In a week or so, I shall be able to travel and get back to hard work and rest up. In the meantime, go it alone."

So Jassaline put the weakling on

And Then to Some Folks the Opening of the Fishing Season Means Nothing At All

...ible an original bid when holding a two-suit hand. Such tactics are unsound, because the modern defense to the informatory double is frequently a pre-emptive or shut-out bid by the partner of the player whose bid has been doubled. For example, Y dealth and bid one heart and B with the following hand:

Hearts, 4; clubs, k, j, 10, 7, 6; diamonds, k, q; spades, a, 9, 4, 3 2, doubled one heart.

Z, the dealer's partner, with the following hand: Hearts, q, j, 9, 7, 5, 2; clubs, 8, 3; diamonds, 4; spades, q, j, 10, 8—bid four hearts.

This is a perfect bid, and the proper defense to the informatory double by B. A had a good club suit, but not strong enough to warrant a bid of five clubs. As a result, Y made four hearts, game and rubber, purely because of B's bad double. With a two-suit hand of this type, B should first have bid one spade over Y's heart, and then if overbi dshould have shown the club suit. It was a hand taht could have made five clubs, if properly bid, and yet the chance for game was lost by B's bad double. Be on the lookout for such hands, and don't double if holding a two-suiter. Bid both suits and thus force your partner to decide upon the best bid of the combined hands.

In the following hand, Z dealt and bid one no-trump, and A doubled. What should Y, the dealer's partner, do if he held the following hand?—

Hearts, a; clubs, k, 10, 9, 7, 2; diamonds, j, 7, 6, 2; spades, k, 10, 8.

This hand is a perfect example of re-double. It is a hand strong enough for an original bid of one no-trump, an dtherefore satisfies the resquirement for a re-double. Y and Z have A, the doubler, in between two strong hands, and from now on should play for a heavy penalty.

If Z dealt and bid one spade and A doubled, what should Y, the dealer's partner, bid with the following hand?

Hearts, a, k, 7, 6, 2; clubs, j, 10, 3; diamonds, 9, 7, 5; spades, 7, 4.

With such a hand, Y should bid two hearts over the double. His heart suit is as good as an original bid, and he has less than normal help for the spade suit.

Also, when your partner bids no-trump and is doubled, and you hold as good as an original bid in any suit, bid it at once. Such a bid gives valuable information to your partner and enables him to determine what is the best course to follow then on.

The "Inflammatory Doubler"

But with a hand of the following type—hearts, j, 8, 2; clubs, 10, 4; diamonds, q, j, 10, 7, 4, 2; spades, 7, 2—it is unsound to bid over a double, either of partner's suit or no-trump bid. The hand is too weak in top honors. If bid o nthe subsequent round, however, partner knows at once that it is not as good as an original bid and will therefore not place too much dependence on it.

With the following hand—hearts, 7, 4, 3; clubs, a, k, q, 7, 4, 2; diamonds, 10, 2; spades, 9, 7—if partner bid one no-trump and second-hand doubles, you should bid two no-trump at once. Such a bid shows a set-up minor suit, and a desire to play the hand at no-trump.

Belle Bart, a Calm-Eyed, Low-Voiced Girl, Who Says That Astrology Is Merely a Branch of Higher Mathematics.

That Amazes the [illegible] Astrologers

"How Did Evangeline Adams Dare Marry When the Heavens Were Against Her?" Cry the Fellow Workers of the Famous Star Gazer—

BUT SHE DID!

© U.P.C.

Evangeline S. Adams, Famous Astrologer, Who Disagrees with Other Star Gazers and Says Her Marriage Was Made in the Heavens.

By Winifred Van Duzer

THE stars incline—but cannot control, say the star-gazers. Accordingly when one of those same Daughters of the Stars, carefully consulting the heavens, finds that the planets incline her to matrimony, but finds at the same time that they show no disposition to incline the indicated union toward happiness, and she knows of her own experience that they will not and cannot control the ill-fortune which threatens it—what is the logical thing for her to do?

Whatever it may be, it appears that the woman in question, being daughter of woman as well as devotee of the most ancient of sciences, feels herself justified in disregarding the reading that other astrologers say must have been imparted to her by her celestial cicerones and following along the way that lies before any mere woman who doesn't know the difference between Venus and Uranus and doesn't care anyway!

For this is exactly what Evangeline Smith Adams, acknowledged by many as America's most famous astrologist, has done. On the afternoon of a day not long past, Miss Adams visited the Little Church Around the Corner in company with a former pupil, George Edwin Jordan, Jr., and the two were married, leaving almost immediately for a trip abroad. And that's that, say other astrologers, an event written among the stars and so inclined to come to pass. But what's to follow is to follow, good or ill. And some of the former Miss Adams's co-astrologers remark, "knowing what she can't help but know, how DID she have the nerve!"

Now, it must be understood that Miss Adams is no young thing inclined to be swayed this way and that by every emotional breeze. At the marriage license bureau her age is registered as fifty, the bridegroom's forty-two. She claims direct descent from John Quincy Adams; Isaac Smith, whose inventions made possible the perfection of the locomotive, was her grandfather. She studied astrology under J. Heber Smith, professor of Materia Medica at Boston University, and she has spent many years in the Orient investigating the mysteries of the East.

Through her researches she has predicted many world events, among them the death of King Edward of England and the Great War. She gained fame in New York City by foretelling upon the very day of her arrival from Boston the fire which destroyed the Hotel Windsor and took sixty lives. Indeed it was at the very moment when she was reading the horoscope of Warren Leland, proprietor of the hotel, that the halls were filling with smoke!

And to the studio of this remarkable woman the great of the world have worn a trail. Many famous financiers have her daily report of the stock market sent to their Wall Street offices, and will conduct no operation in opposition to its indications.

J. Pierpont Morgan is said to have been a regular patron of Miss Adams. The Duchess of Manchester, Lady Paget, Chief Justice Pallas of Ireland, John Burroughs, the naturalist; Daniel Frohman, Eleanor Robson, now Mrs. August Belmont, and David Warfield, all are claimed by her as clients at [illegible] or another time.

Nevertheless, her standing in the world of occult science has not prevented her arrest on several occasions upon charges of fortune-telling. The most recent of these occurred in January and at the time of her wedding was still pending in the Seventh District Court of New York City.

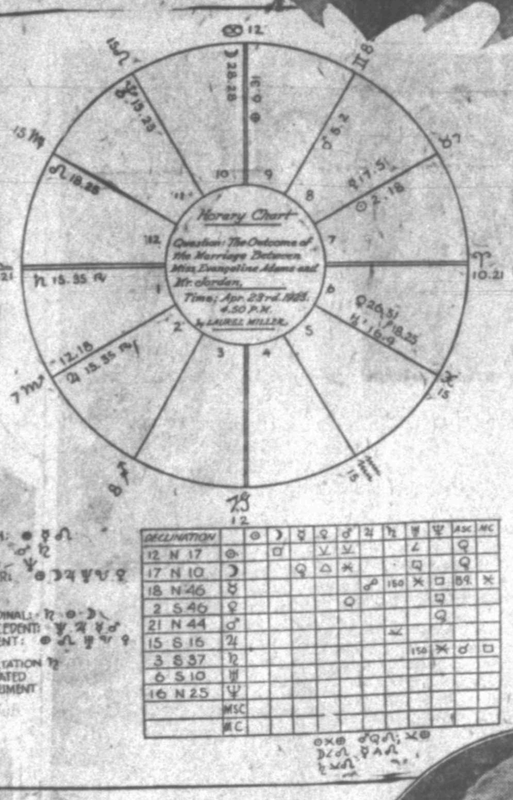

Jordan, whose studio has been in the same famous building that shelters Miss Adams, visited her first as a pupil. Their acquaintance extended over a considerable period before their friends realized that it was to end in matrimony.

According to the Jordans the stars first told Mr. Jordan that he should give up his business and devote himself to the study of astrology. Later the stars became even busier and suggested that marriage between the two would be advisable. In fact, the stars and the little god Cupid afforded an instance of perfect teamwork during the astrologic courtship.

"We will lead an astrologically determined life," said Evangeline Adams Jordan, just before she and her husband sailed for Europe. "Mr. Jordan was born under Aquarius, the water-carrier; I, under Cancer, the crab. Our horoscopes both said that we should marry late in life. The stars foretell great happiness for us."

And almost at the time of the Adams-Jordan nuptials, those interested in metaphysics were busily discussing another pair of astrological marriages, one of them in accordance with the dictates of the stars and the other in defiance of the heavenly influences.

The first was that of Dr. George W. Smallwood of Somerville and Back Bay, Massachusetts, a physician-astrologer, who claims that his union with Caroline Bain of Brookline, cousin of Beverly Bayne, the film actress, cannot but be happy, although he is sixty-one and his bride less than half his age. They chose a Friday the Thirteenth for their wedding day, just to prove that no ill-luck attaches to what the position of the stars indicates is right and blessed. The other pair is Caroline A. Meese and Gordon Dana Peck, both of New York City, who staked their love against the age-old belief in the mysterious power of the celestial bodies and were married in the face of disaster predicted through the reading of the horoscope of each.

Dr. George W. Smallwood, Physician and Astrologer of Somerville, Mass., Who Declares the Stars Brought Him Romance in the Person of Pretty Caroline Bain.

High above the Hudson, with windows looking toward the southward and ten million stars, there is a sandalwood-scented studio where a girl, still in her early twenties, pursues the mysteries of astrology.

She is Belle Bart, who, for the past three years, has been solving domestic, business and professional problems for men and women who are willing to be guided by the stars. Miss Bart is a calm-eyed, low-voiced girl, who denies most of the mystic quality of astrology and explains it as merely a branch of higher mathematics.

"There is no scientific law," said Miss Bart, "to answer the question of why we are here, whence we came or whither we go. We have very little knowledge of ourselves. But such knowledge as we have may be broadened by astrology which tells us of our natural abilities, characteristics of others most agreeable to us and—most important of all—sets up danger signals along our life ways.

"It is not generally known that each of us repels or attracts, even at a distance. This law is governed by the vibrations of the heavenly bodies at the time of birth. The sun rules the individuality, causing various characteristics, according to the month in which one was born. Saturn is the cause of obstacles—intrigue—such difficulties of life.

"The attraction which will draw a man and woman together 'all the whole wide world apart' of course is actual. But unfortunately it is not confined to one man for one woman or one woman for one man. Instead it is likely to exist when the planets are in a certain position and if it means marriage at that time, it may change when the position of the planets changes. And that may mean unhappiness or divorce.

"The planets may rule that a single quality in half a dozen men may attract a woman or that a man may be attracted by one quality in many women. And this condition, too, causes unrest. Attractions in various lives come in and fade out like pictures on a movie reel."

Which brings us again to the lives of Evangeline Smith Adams Jordan and George Edwin Jordan, Jr., and the gossip concerning their marriage among their co-workers. Horoscopes of the date

Gowns of Youth Adorn Both Mrs. John C. Ellsworth and Her Daughter, Helen, as They Leave for London.

THERE is no twilight of middle-age in America. The country's women are youngsters one day, slender-bodied, tinted-cheeked, laughing, dancing, playing their eager game with life. And the next day—quite overnight it happens!—they become grandmothers.

This is the existence of the American woman; babyhood to girlhood to flapperhood to—grandmotherhood. Or so it is rumored in London, where Uncle Sam's daughter still ranks as one of the wonders of the world, and is speculated upon and analyzed. And the final word that has gone out to startle and amaze the United Kingdom is the one which declares that American mothers look like their own daughters! There is no more definite mark of years, or experience, in the face of the mother than in the face of her daughter; their lines are of equal straightness, their weight about the same; their gowns and wraps are constructed on the same general models and of identical coloring.

These are the Women Who Never Grow Old, from the Land of Twilight-that-never-comes. When they consider their own phenomenon of youth, they explain it quite simply by saying that they keep young by refusing middle-age!

But English "authorities" on American women believe the holding to youth a much more intricate process. One of them is quoted:

"There is one thing the American woman cannot face—and that is middle-age. There are no middle-aged women in New York. They leap from thirty-five to old age overnight, when every known art has failed, but to keep that appearance of thirty-five they sacrifice almost every natural inclination.

And the "authority" goes on to point out interesting examples of American mammas who may be distinguished from their daughters only by the closest of scrutiny—and not then excepting under a bright light! Perhaps the most spectacular example of all of these is Mrs. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte and her daughter, Blanche Strebeigh. From the distance of twenty feet across the shining sands of Newport it is quite impossible to tell which is mother and which daughter. Apparently there is not more than a year's difference in their ages.

And one hears that Blanche Strebeigh, as well as her sister Barbara, are kept in the background somewhat, because the constant appearance of a grown daughter would—well, of course, it might sometime too closely challenge comparison and harm the "young as her daughter" achievement of the "best dressed woman in America."

Then there is the youthful Mrs. Charles de L. Oelrichs and her daughter Marjorie; the American Lady Hawkins, wife of the famous British novelist, Anthony Hope Hawkins, and her daughter Betty, and the deceivingly young Mrs. A. E. Austin and her daughter, Miss Claire Boothe.

A formidable show of evidence, to be sure! Conspicuously shining proof of a theory not lightly to be denied! Perhaps it is only tender care and rest and happiness that cause these women to appear so youthful that they are taken for their own daughters.

However, there is a new and almost incredible process, through which a woman may find eternal youth if she so chooses. Great secrecy surrounds it and almost superstitious awe. Ten years ago it would have been waved from the list of possibilities with the wireless telephone; a hundred years ago its advocates undoubtedly would have been jailed for something or other and dealt with as criminals.

Today the world is learning of the method through the facile pen of Gertrude Atherton, whose novel, "Black Oxen," is probably the first piece of fiction to trace physical and psychic actions and reactions to the surgical feat known as "gland transference."

Mrs. Atherton's novel tells the story of a woman of old and illustrious New York family, a belle of the eighties, who clutched at youth through the "Steinach" operation and, although she had attained the late fifties, became to all appearances, thirty-five. As a woman of that age the fictitious Mary Ogden married a diplomat of Austria-Hungary and out of her marriage evolved a new psychology—that of youth and age in the same skull.

The revolutionary novel, read by women from New York to San Francisco, caused a storm of discussion from physicians and surgeons of this country and England. The story made clear that the operation of itself would have done little for Mary Ogden, had it not been followed by radio-active treatment, which stimulated the glands. And about this, Dr. Everett Field of the American Radium Institute, who declares that radio-active treatment to restore youth and prolong life has passed the experimental stage, has this to say:

"There are in the U. S. A. nearly five thousand persons over one hundred years of age. Investigation of the life stories of these men and women show that each of them somehow discovered the proper method of caring for the body chemicals. This is what radio-active treatment does—stimulates the glandular secretions, the chemical composition of the body, eliminates the danger of accumulation of poisons and carries us on in health and vigor over many more years than are now considered the normal span of life."

Dr Field mentioned that seven or eight physicians in America now are using radio-active treatment. It is not given till a woman is over fifty, and a year or so passes before the renewed activity of the glands, the tightening of the muscles, the freshness of the skin and other signs of youth begin to appear.

Miss Atherton asserts that among her acquaintances are two women, one in her forties and the other in her fifties, who have taken the Steinach and radio-active treatment. Both look about thirty, she said.
