Eagle suing former FNB officers

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

While U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton is reaching a judgment in the $25 million Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.'s suit against Eagle Properties Ltd. over the 24-story First National Bank building, a related suit is pending in 142nd State District Court in Midland.

Eagle is seeking "at least" $26 million in damages from former FNB President Charles D. Fraser and the failed bank's former directors.

Eagle, a seven-member partnership, on Dec. 31, 1982, had agreed to purchase the FNB building, the 10-story parking garage and drive-in banking facility for $75 million in a sale-leaseback plan which would infuse capital into the bank and help it reflect a profit for 1982.

In the state case, Eagle is seeking to recover $26 million — the difference between the $75 million sale price and a $49 million appraisal of the FNB properties. The Eagle partnership alleges that Fraser and the FNB directors "misrepresented the fair-market value" of the building and "committed fraud" on Eagle Properties Ltd.

"...The fair market value...was materially and substantially less than $75 million," the petition alleges.

IN THE FEDERAL case, the FDIC is seeking payment of $25 million on Eagle notes which the partnership secured from FNB in raising the balance of the $75 million sale price. The down payment on the purchase came from $50 million in loans which Eagle secured through letters of credit from Texas Commerce Bank of Houston and InterFirst Bank of Dallas. Eagle is making payments to RepublicBank on the $50 million in loans which RepublicBank bought after FNB failed on Oct. 14, 1983. At that time, FDIC became the bank's receiver and liquidator and essentially is representing the bank's shareholders.

FDIC, holder of the $25 million in Eagle notes, in February 1984 filed suit in federal court to collect the $25 million after it alleged Eagle defaulted on paying the notes. That case was tried before Bunton in a non-jury trial in late February and early March. A ruling is pending.

Eagle claims the $25 million loan was subordinated to the $50 million loans and is not payable until the $50 million notes are "fully paid and performed." In addition, Eagle claims the $25 million notes are "not due and payable at all because of the fraud involved in their execution."

Plaintiffs in the state case are Eagle's general partners, Thomas C. "Tom" Brown and M.W. "Buddy" Branum, and limited partners J.L. Davis, Clint Hurt, Gene Sledge, Charles Perry and C.F. Lawrence.

DEFENDANTS ARE Fraser, FNB president, chairman of the board and chief executive officer until his resignation in early April 1983; Joel T. Mays and Donald McCall, former FNB executive vice presidents; Jno. P. Butler, former FNB senior chairman of the board, and former "outside directors" William B. Blakemore II, Barry A. Beal, John H. Hendrix, Clarence Scharbauer Jr., Paul L. Davis, Frank Cowden Jr., J. Harvey Herd, W.B. Yarborough, Richard S. Brooks, Joe Mabee, J.T. Baker, Mitchell A. Cappadonna, Marshall S. McCrea Jr. and Douglas Scharbauer.

Americans, Soviets hold 'full-scale' session

By BRENDA WATSON
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland — U.S. and Soviet arms control negotiators met today for more than 2½ hours, their longest meeting dealing with substantive issues since talks on reducing nuclear arms opened a week ago.

Max M. Kampelman, the chief U.S. negotiator, smiled and waved at a handful of waiting reporters as he was driven from the Soviet mission in a grey sedan at 1:45 p.m. with fellow negotiators John G. Tower and Maynard Glitman.

The superpower negotiators decided to hold the next such session at 11 a.m. Thursday at the offices of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, a U.S. spokesman said.

A U.S. spokesman, who asked not to be identified, earlier described today's meeting as a full-scale session involving 21 negotiators from each side. The Soviet team is headed by Victor Karpov. The spokesman said he could not comment on the meeting's agenda because he did not want to break the confidentiality rule agreed by the two sides.

"It is important that the governments are going to continue talking," the spokesman told The Associated Press by telephone. He declined comment on allegations by the Soviet news agency Tass that the United States "is deliberately heading for blocking" the Geneva talks so it can pursue plans for a space-based defense system.

As the U.S. and Soviet negotiators met for their third session, a Soviet newspaper accused the Reagan administration of pursuing an MX missile "trump card" for the talks.

Dutch farmer offers Soviet Union site to deploy retaliatory missiles

By ROLAND DE LIGNY
Associated Press Writer

DRONTEN, Netherlands — A Dutch farmer who authored a political manifesto advocating non-violence has offered the Soviets his land as a site for SS-20 missiles if Holland deploys U.S.-built NATO rockets.

Leender Plaisier says he doesn't belong to any peace movement, but made the offer because he believes in balance. He said it would "even be safer if no missiles were deployed at all."

But he added: "If these 48 rockets are deployed, and I'm sure that will happen, why not counterbalance them with the same number of Soviet missiles? A nuclear equilibrium will make our country a safer place to live in."

Plaisier, 44, said he went to the Soviet Embassy in The Hague recently to offer his 109-acre plot in Dronten, a central Dutch farming community, as a deployment site.

He said he wouldn't mind giving up the crops of beets, wheat and potatoes he now grows on the land.

"Yes, it's my bread and butter now. But I'm not concerned about myself. It's future generations that count," he said.

In an interview Monday, Plaisier said Soviets officials did not make any promises but that "they agreed they did not like the nuclear buildup either."

The Associated Press made a telephone call to the Soviet embassy but was told the press spokesman was not immediately available for comment.

Plaisier said he told Prime Minister Ruud Lubbers and the Dronten town council of his offer to the Soviets by mail earlier this month. He said Lubbers sent him a "noncommittal response," but the council had not replied.

NATO plans to put the new medium-range missiles on the Dutch air force base at Woensdrecht as part of its deployment of 572 cruise and Pershing 2 missiles to counter SS-20s the Soviets already have in place.

Plaisier wrote what was entitled "A Testament" last year after the death of his wife, Elly. The manuscript, which he printed privately, takes the form of a 102-page personal and political manifesto.

In a section entitled "Threat of War," he wrote the most important problems facing the human race were "The Threat of War" and the "Threat of Poverty and Famine."

He said he got involved in non-violent resistance groups through his late wife.

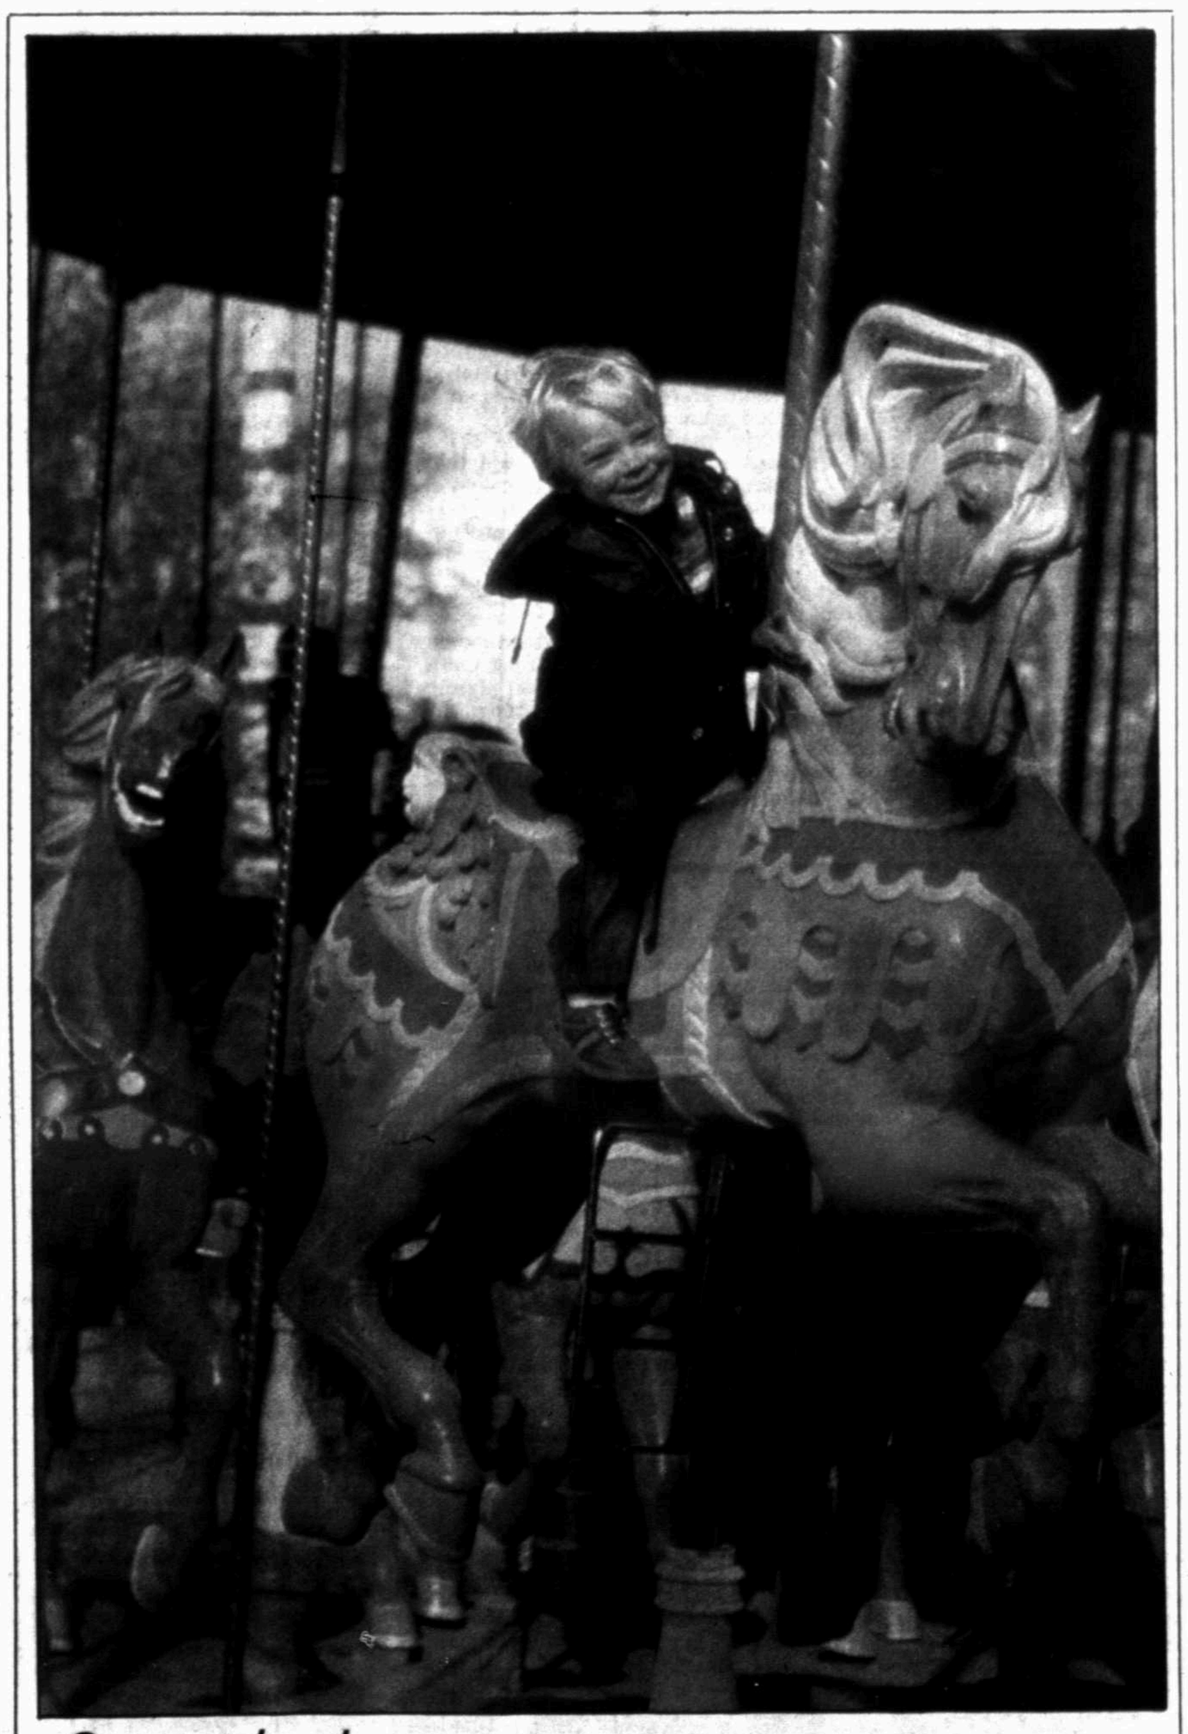

"I didn't like all those weapons at the time," he wrote, referring to nuclear weapons, "but I couldn't think of anything better.

"Non-violent resistance offered a clear and good alternative," he wrote. "Without bullets and without killing people there are other possibilities of making it very difficult for your adversary, in any case, by just not doing what your oppressor does, by trying to contact him and to influence him."

The Dutch government decided last June it would take the 48 cruise missiles if the Soviets had deployed any more SS-20s by next November, but would deploy none if the number of Soviet missiles had not increased.

If a U.S.-Soviet arms reduction agreement is reached in the meantime, Holland will deploy the number of missiles agreed upon, the government said.

There is a strong grassroots sentiment against the deployment of Cruise missiles in the Netherlands. In a recent government-sponsored survey, the majority of Dutch citizens said they were opposed to more nuclear energy-generating plants.

Consolidation bid delays beginning of assault trial

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The start of the sexual assault of a child trial of 47-year-old Donald LeClair, initially set to begin with jury selection at 9 a.m. today, has been delayed until this afternoon.

The reason for the delay was a pre-trial hearing scheduled by 70th District Court Judge Gene Ater to consider motions from LeClair's court-appointed attorney, Bill Alexander.

Alexander requested that all eight charges against LeClair be consolidated and tried simultaneously. Late this morning, Ater granted the request.

Still undecided was a motion submitted by Alexander seeking to suppress the videotape-recorded statements of the children involved in the separate incidents. Ater was expected to render a decision on this motion later today.

LeClair was indicted by the Ector County grand jury Aug. 27, 1984, on eight charges of indecency with a child. Five of the eight grand jury allegations involve sexual assault charges.

According to Ector County sheriff's Capt. Gene Kloss, the children's statements were videotaped to spare them the trauma of testifying in court, since most of those involved range from 6 to 8 years of age.

According to Kloss, about 50 subpoenas have been issued for witnesses expected to be called in the case.

The eight incidents allegedly occurred between early June and September 1984.

Though LeClair was indicted Aug. 27, he was not arrested by sheriff's deputies until Oct. 1, 1984. He has remained in Ector County jail since his arrest in lieu of $7,500 bond on each of the eight charges.

His trial originally was scheduled to be held in January, but LeClair fired his then-court-appointed attorney, John Pratt, and filed a lawsuit against Pratt, alleging he had not been properly represented. Bill Alexander was subsequently appointed by Ater to represent LeClair.

Belgian leader facing parliamentary vote

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The center-right coalition of Prime Minister Wilfried Martens faces a Parliament vote today on the government's decision to deploy U.S. cruise missiles in Belgium.

Martens was expected to survive the vote, but the margin of support was unclear. The toughest challenge to his four-year-old coalition was expected to come from a half-dozen renegade members of his own Dutch-speaking Christian Democratic Party.

Voting was not expected until late today, after Parliament members debated the missiles' deployment and budget issues.

More than 100,000 people marched through Brussels Sunday to protest the missile deployment. Sixteen of the 48 missiles scheduled to be deployed arrived at Florennes air base last Friday. The rest will be deployed in late 1987.

NATO decided in 1979 to deploy 572 medium-range cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in five European nations — Britain, West Germany, Italy, the Netherlands and Belgium. The deployment is meant to offset the installation of Soviet SS-20 missiles mounted with triple warheads. According to NATO figures, the Soviet missiles now number 414.

Only the Netherlands has yet to make a final deployment decision. The Dutch decision is expected on Nov. 1.

Martens heads a four-party coalition of Christian Democrats and Liberals (Conservatives), each split into Dutch- and French-speaking camps. The coalition has a majority of seven in the 212-seat Parliament.

Martens' conservative and French-speaking Christian Democratic partners were expected to back the missile deployment, as were several small conservative parties outside the coalition.

Sources within the ruling bureau of Martens' party, who asked not to be identified, said Monday anti-missile sentiment had waned among Christian Democrats.

But others maintained "many renegades" within Martens' party were undecided on whether to vote along party lines or oppose deployment.

The main supporter of renegade action is floor leader Luc Van den Brande, who has said missile deployment in 1985 was unacceptable.

He is supported by the Christian Democrats' sizable left-wing, known as the Christian Workers Movement. The movement has declined to ask its representatives to vote along party lines today.

The Christian Democrats dropped their support for the missiles last November. Under pressure from its left wing, the party leadership urged Martens to await the results of the new U.S.-Soviet arms negotiations in Geneva, Switzerland, before making a decision.

Martens' coalition faces December elections in which opposition Socialists were expected to gain at the expense of the Christian Democrats.

Pravda charges 'blackmail' in NATO deployment

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist Party daily Pravda today charged that "blackmail and massive pressure" were used to get the Belgian government to deploy new U.S.-built cruise missiles under a North Atlantic Treaty Organization agreement.

The Belgian Parliament today debates the government's decision to accept the first 16 of 48 cruise missiles set aside for deployment on Belgian soil.

"The United States has committed a new act to the detriment of European security, an act of outrage upon the will of the peoples of the world to end the arms race," commentator Vladimir Mikhailov wrote in Pravda.

"All indications are that the Pentagon's thrust into Belgium took place in an atmosphere of blackmail and massive pressure from Washington and the governments of a number of West European countries which have already agreed to have U.S. nuclear missiles on their soil," Pravda said.

The missiles are being deployed in Belgium as part of NATO's 1979 decision to base 572 cruise and Pershing 2 weapons in Britain, West Germany, Italy, Belgium and the Netherlands to counter Soviet SS-20 sitings.

The first 16 missiles arrived at Florennes Air Base on Friday, and Prime Minister Wilfried Martens defended the government's decision in a speech to Parliament on the same day.

More than 100,000 people marched through Brussels Sunday in protest of the missile deployments, and there is also dissent within Martens' center-right coalition government.

MX missile heads for Senate vote with forecasts of Bush tie-breaker

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The nuclear MX missile, survivor of more than a decade of controversy and debate, headed today for a Senate showdown with a key Republican vote-counter saying Vice President George Bush may have to cast the tie-breaking vote.

Sen. Alan K. Simpson, the assistant Republican leader, said also some hold-out senators of both parties are placing such "outrageous" pricetags on their votes that he would like to ask them, "Why don't you get a mask and a gun?"

Even with President Reagan counting on an intense personal lobbying campaign to see him through "a make-or-break vote," the outcome in the Senate remained too close to call as the late afternoon vote approached.

"I think it will be a close vote, but the administration will prevail, Simpson said. "I think it could possibly even take the vice president to break the tie. No fooling."

Simpson, who has been wooing a dwindling band of uncommitted senators, expressed outrage that some "are engaging in the ancient and venerable practice of holding out for something."

"For some of them, the price isn't worth it," he said. "Some people are trying for things that are really outrageous. There have been some demands that are preposterous."

"So you say, if you're in that game, get a mask and a gun," Simpson said.

He said some hold-outs are pondering their votes "cautiously and carefully" but that others are out for what they can get. He declined to name names.

An Associated Press survey of all 100 senators showed 45 ready to vote for the MX or leaning strongly in that direction with 43 opposed and 12 uncommitted.

A respected Senate vote counter, assistant Democratic leader Alan Cranston of California, says the contest is even tighter with 48 probable votes for MX, 47 probable against it and five senators uncommitted.

Bush, whose vote last year broke a Senate tie and staved off an MX defeat, was prepared, if needed, for a repeat performance.

Asked this morning what he thought the outcome would be, Bush said the administration's head count showed a "very, very close" vote, but added, "I believe we can prevail."

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said, "We'll work right down to the wire on it."

As part of that effort, Reagan was meeting today with upwards of 12 members of Congress, Republicans and Democrats, to press his case.

Bush and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger were tapped to make telephone calls to wavering senators, Speakes said.

Reagan called one swing Republican senator by phone Monday as Air Force One flew him home from a visit to Canada and another on Monday night, Speakes said.

On Monday, Bush repeated the theme that has had the most telling effect in the Senate, even among lawmakers who view the MX as a flawed, unneeded, and strategically destabilizing weapon:

"If Congress pulls the rug out from under our negotiators in Geneva, the damage to our hopes for successful arms talks may be irreversible."

Rhode Island Republican John Chafee, counted among the undecided until Monday, said today he would vote for the MX because of the effect the administration says the missile would have in the arms talks.

"I'm saying to the president and his negotiators, 'I don't want any excuses. I want to give you the tools to get the job done. I expect you to come back with an agreement. I don't want anybody saying you would have succeeded but for the lack of the MX.'"

Both Bush and Chafee were interviewed on the NBC-TV "Today" show.

Speakes called today's vote "absolutely ... make-or-break." He said the White House was hoping victory on the first tally will carry the MX past three remaining congressional votes on authorizing and appropriating money for it.

The Senate Armed Services Committee gave MX supporters a boost on Monday, voting 11 to 6 to recommend freeing $1.5 billion to build and install 21 additional MX missiles in underground silos in Wyoming and Nebraska.

Decision affecting retarded due in July

By SANDY JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court is expected to decide by July how closely state and federal courts must scrutinize laws treating the mentally retarded differently after hearing Texas parties argue the issue.

On Monday, the justices were urged not to add to the "historical exclusion of the mentally handicapped from American life" by allowing a Texas city to ban a group home for the retarded from a residential neighborhood.

At stake is a proposal to establish a home for 13 mentally retarded people in Cleburne, Texas, a city of about 19,000. But the court's decision could affect the rights of many others nationwide. Hundreds of such homes have been created in recent years in an effort to get the mentally handicapped out of institutions and back into their communities.

Jan Hannah, who has worked with the retarded for 18 years, asked Cleburne five years ago for a permit to use a house she owns for a group home for mildly or moderately retarded people.

When the city denied the permit, she filed a lawsuit in federal court contending the city's zoning ordinance violated the equal-protection rights of the mentally retarded.

"This is a classical example of the government's justification of the historical exclusion of the mentally handicapped from American life," Mrs. Hannah's lawyer, Renea Hicks, told the justices.

The court decision expected this summer will not flatly answer whether such group homes can be excluded outright from some neighborhoods, however. Rather, it is expected to spell out how far communities must go in justifying such bans.

The city's lawyer, Earl Luna, argued that the zoning ordinance protected the mentally retarded by requiring "the humane treatment of mentally retarded people instead of warehousing ... in this small facility."

He contended that 13 retarded people and two supervisers sharing a four-bedroom, three-bath house does not "constitute normal living conditions."

In denying the permit, the city also noted that the house was located across the street from a junior high school that drew considerable traffic, and situated on a flood plain.

Not mentioned were the objections of neighbors, who said they feared a drop in property values or violence from the retarded residents. Such homes in other communities have been denied needed zoning or permits by elected officials after strong opposition from neighbors.

The Cleburne zoning ordinance, invalidated by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals, required special permits before group homes for the retarded could locate in residential areas where apartment houses, hospitals, public schools and nursing homes needed no permits.

In the Cleburne ruling, the 5th Circuit court became the first to rule that laws treating the mentally retarded differently must be judged the same as those treating the sexes differently.

Mrs. Hannah's house has remained empty pending the high court's decision.

Her lawyer, Hicks, noted that the city classified the home as a "hospital for the feeble-minded" because of the 24-hour care there, and said the city was impeding attempts by mentally retarded people to blend into society.

"They have suffered from a history of mistreatment that is unequaled in this country except for racial minorities," he told the court. "They have been isolated in remote, stigmatizing living arrangements."

At one point, Justice Harry A. Blackmun asked Luna the definition of mentally retarded. When Luna responded that the city council members did not try to define it, Blackman said, "They didn't know what it was, did they?"

In addition to alleging the $75 million purchase price was far above the fair-market value, Eagle claims the defendants "represented" a $75 million appraisal was in existence "when...the defendants knew that no such appraisal existed" at the December 1982 sale.

"The defendants (later) did receive an appraisal on the fair-market value of the property...between $40 million and $49 million," the petition says.

Additionally, Eagle claims Fraser and the directors "misrepresented...the financial condition" of the bank "by representing that the bank was in sound financial condition and would be able to make lease payments to Eagle Properties Ltd. pursuant to the terms of the sale-leaseback transaction...."

EAGLE FURTHER claims the defendants misrepresented that the FNB property could be depreciated.

"The defendants misrepresented the financial condition of the bank and also failed to tell the plaintiffs that the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency had serious concerns about the validity of the original transaction in December (1982) and were, in June 1983, investigating the original December transaction to determine if the substantial monentary gain reported by the bank should be reversed.

"The consequences of such a reversal of the monetary gain from the 'sale' would have, in all probability, caused a run on the bank and its resultant closure prior to October 1983, when the bank was closed," Eagle's petition says.

Eagle also alleges the directors of the former FNB "were negligent in the performance of their duties as directors....

"They failed to properly supervise, investigate, inquire, monitor, exercise independent judgment, vote or remain informed as the bank generally, and specifically, in connection with defendant Fraser's activities....

"...Such ineptitude and negligence was below the standards of care that ought to be exercised by a prudent and reasonable voting member of the Board.

"The...directors...negligently permitted defendant Fraser to dominate the board and the officers and employees of the bank when the defendant directors knew or should have known that each of them should have paid closer attention to defendant fraser's activities in connection with the transaction..."

Defendants in the suit formally have denied the allegations made by Eagle. Eagle's attorney is Seagal V. Wheatley of San Antonio.

Haydon suffering setback

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Artificial heart recipient Murray Haydon is back in the coronary care unit after suffering breathing problems, and a hospital spokesman says it could delay his first interview with reporters.

Haydon, 58, of Louisville, had complained recently of a shortness of breath, Humana Inc. spokesman Bob Irvine said Monday after the problem worsened and doctors ordered the patient returned to the coronary unit.

Haydon's condition remained serious but stable and his Jarvik-7 heart was pumping without any problem, Irvine said.

Dr. William DeVries, who implanted the plastic-and-metal heart, attributed the shortness of breath to the blood transfusions Haydon was given before a March 2 operation to correct bleeding, Irvine said.

It apparently stems from an increase in the blood platelets passing through the lungs during the transfusions, he said. "They're (the lungs) just not able to work as efficiently as they would under normal circumstances."

Mulroney hopes Canada won't be ignored

By CHARLES CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

QUEBEC — Prime Minister Brian Mulroney says he hopes his successful "Shamrock Summit" with President Reagan means Canada won't be ignored any more in Washington.

Reagan flew home Monday after completing a 24-hour visit full of treaty signings, scenic backdrops and St. Patrick's Day showmanship in Quebec City, the historic capital of French Canada.

In his meetings with Mulroney, Reagan made progress on the sticky issues of acid rain and trade barriers, while signing deals on West Coast salmon fishing, legal cooperation and a new radar network in the Canadian arctic.

After seeing Reagan off at the Quebec City airport — and kissing Nancy Reagan on both cheeks — Mulroney said he made a direct appeal to the American president for sustained attention.

"I told him, I know you have a lot of fish to fry when you get back to Washington," Mulroney said. "I just want to make sure we never again get lost in the shuffle."

Mulroney's Progressive Conservative Party ousted the Liberals six months ago in a landslide election victory, largely on the promise to nurture closer ties with the United States. But not all critics have been stifled.

"It might have been called the Shamrock Shuffle," Ed Broadbent, leader of the socialist New Democratic Party, said of the meeting. "We've had President Reagan, regrettably I think, calling the tune."

Mulroney brushed aside all criticism, saying Reagan's visit "marks a new era in relations between Canada and the United States."

Every detail of the friendly encounter between the two leaders, both of Irish descent, was reported widely in Canada, often live on national television and usually favorably.

A commentator on the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. described the summit as "twenty-four hours of mutual praise and admiration."

In three speeches, Reagan even ventured brief comments in French — the majority language in Quebec — getting smoother with practice and winning applause from his audience.

For all the picturesque staging, there was enough substance to rebut criticism that the affair was all show — including a joint declaration pledging reduction in trade barriers and the appointment of high-ranking envoys to handle acid rain, often called the chief irritant in U.S.-Canada relations.

The two leaders also signed a treaty, the product of more than 15 years of negotiations, covering the salmon catch of the Pacific Coast, where many fish are spawned in one country but are caught by fishermen in the other's waters.

At the same ceremony — conducted behind the thick stone walls of a fortress built to defend Quebec from a possible American attack in the 1800s — the two sides signed an agreement to build what Mulroney called a "state-of-the-art" radar system to replace the Distant Early Warning line in northern Canada.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger sparked some concern when he said in a televised interview Monday morning that Canada could be the site of missiles intended to shoot down incoming Soviet cruise missiles detected by the new radar.

But other American officials said Weinberger's comments were hypothetical and Canadian Foreign Secretary Joe Clark said, "I have no reason to believe it might be necessary."

Blast shakes Iraqi capital

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — A pink flash lit the dawn sky in Baghdad today and seconds later a powerful blast shook buildings in the Iraqi capital. Iran reported the explosion was caused by a ground-to-ground missile that hit the industrial district of Dora.

Iraq did not comment on the cause of the blast, but announced its warplanes pounded five Iranian cities — Bushehr, Hamadan, Ardabil, Garang and Khorramabad in raids at 10 a.m., five hours after the Baghdad explosion.

Iran's Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Cyprus, said the missile caused "considerable losses and damage." There were no eyewitness reports from Baghdad on damage or casualties.

Iran and Iraq — at war for 4½ years — both claimed they were attacking cities to force the enemy to halt assaults on civilian targets. The two nations renewed attacks on cities more than two weeks ago. Iran also has launched a ground offensive into southern Iraq.

Starting today at 8 p.m. Baghdad time (noon EST), Iraq has said it will shoot down any aircraft in Iranian airspace. Many airlines canceled service to both Tehran and Baghdad. Iran said it protested to the International Air Transport Association and the International Civil Aviation Organization.

The blast came hours after Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and King Hussein of Jordan departed the Iraqi capital after discussions with President Saddam Hussein of Iraq. The two Arab leaders are Iraq's closest allies.

On his return to Cairo, Mubarak told reporters: "Iraq does not need more military assistance because it is in a better military position" than Iran, Egypt's official Middle East News Agency reported.

Four killed, 38 wounded in fighting at Sidon in southern Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Lebanese army battled today in the southern city of Sidon against Christian militiamen who declared their allegiance to the rebellion against President Amin Gemayel's Syrian-oriented leadership. Police said four people were killed and 38 wounded.

The clash was the first in the area since Christian militia garrisons near the predominantly Moslem city pledged allegiance to the week-old mutiny in Gemayel's Phalange Party militia. It was also the first serious confrontation in Sidon since the Israeli army withdrew from the area Feb. 16.

Prime Minister Rashid Karami warned Monday the rebellion might force the Christian president to step down, rekindling Lebanon's civil war.

The breakaway is led by Samir Geagea, a pro-Israeli commander, in the Christian heartland north of Beirut. It's the first time Moslems and Christians have clashed in the south since the rebels seized most of the Christian heartland in northern Lebanon a week ago.

Hostilities in Sidon first broke out shortly after noon Monday, pitting Shiite and Sunni Moslem militiamen against Christians from the Phalange militia, known as the Lebanese Forces, posted in barracks in the villages of Hlaylie, Qanaya and Qiyaa.

Police said two hours later, the Sidon army garrison sent four tanks and two truckloads of troops to break up the fighting. The battle then tapered off to sporadic sniping but it escalated again until a cease-fire was called at 8:30 p.m.

But at first light today, when the 98th army battalion sent the first armored patrol to the area, Christian militiamen were still entrenched in their positions despite the withdrawal agreement, police said.

In the fighting Monday and today, two soldiers were killed and eight were wounded. Two others killed and 30 wounded were militiamen from both sides, police said.

Gemayel talked to President Hafez Assad of Syria by telephone and reaffirmed his commitment to safeguard Lebanon's unity and territorial integrity, Syria's state radio reported today.

Gemayel also stressed he would continue trying to bring about a Moslem-Christian reconciliation to end Lebanon's almost 10-year civil war, the radio added.

WORLD in brief

Pig's ear successfully used in forming nose

PEKING (AP) — Chinese doctors used cartilage from a pig's ear to fashion a new nose for a peasant whose own nose was bitten off by a rat 25 years ago, the official English-language China Daily reported today.

"A recent checkup shows that the nose has been working properly and he is able to breathe and smell without difficulty," the China Daily said.

The account did not give the peasant's name or age but said surgeons at a military hospital in Jinan, capital of Shandong Province, persormed the operation 10 months ago and used skin from the peasant's left shoulder for the new nose's skin.

Bases won't be issue

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Vietnam has agreed that the issue of foreign military bases in Vietnam and the Philippines need not be be linked to possible talks on the Camodian conflict, Foreign Minister Mochtar Kusumaatmadja said today.

Vietnam previously has insisted on discussing the removal of the U.S. and Australian military presence in the region as part of talks on the Cambodian problem.

Vietnam invaded Cambodia in 1978, ousted the communist Khmer Rouge regime and installed another communist ruler, Heng Samrin. But the United Nations refuses to recognize the Heng Samrin government, and instead views a resistance coalition headed by former Cambodian ruler Prince Norodom Sihanouk as the legitimate government.

South African child dies

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A mob set fire to a house in Port Elizabeth, killing a 3-year-old black child, and at least 11 other blacks died in the latest wave of riots and protests against the policies of the white-minority governsent.

Black workers in Port Elizabeth, an economically depressed Indian Ocean port city, on Monday completed a three-day strike against price increases for fuel, bus fares and consumer goods.Prices for gasoline were raised by 25 to 40 percent last month.

A leader of the protest, Sipo Hashe, said the action effectively showed the ruling white minority of 5 million "that the people are suffering." South Africa's black majority of 22 million cannot vote and is bound by a strict racial segregation system called apartheid.

Ten held for poaching

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Ten people have been arrested in connection with the recovery of 924 elephant tusks taken by poachers in southeastern Kenya, The Kenya Times reported.

The newspaper, organ of Kenya's ruling party, did not identify those arrested but on Monday quoted local officials as saying they would appear in court soon.

The tusks are believed to be worth around $300,000 and represent the slaughter of some 462 elephants in areas of Kenya bordering Somalia, the paper said.

Hunting has been illegal in Kenya since 1977. But poachers, many of whom are believed to come from neighboring Somalia, take a heavy toll of the nation's wildlife.

Fugitive wins reprieve

PEKING (AP) — An escaped convict who turned a new leaf while on the run and became a successful factory manager under an assumed name has won an official reprieve efter his recapture.

The official English-language China Daily reported today that Zhang Jiaxun, 42, who escaped from a Shanghai jail in 1981, was discovered by police late last year in Kunnan, Yunnan province.

'Plum Book' lists jobs filled at president's whim

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a town where information translates into power, owning a book entitled "Policy and Supporting Positions" is a must.

Everybody calls it the "Plum Book."

The book, just off the Government Printing Office presses, is bound to be a bestseller. In 261 oversize paperback pages, it lists thousands of jobs the Reagan administration can fill with political appointments.

Lobbyists, reporters, members of Congress, federal employees and job-seekers, employed and unemployed, all want a copy. A fresh version of the Plum Book comes out every four years.

For $9, one can get detailed data — job description, location, salary and current occupant — on patronage jobs handed out to those with the right connections.

The book begins with George M. White, the architect of the Capitol who earns $71,100 in his presidentially appointed position, and winds up with the director of the Veterans Administration office in the Philippines.

In between, it covers every level of deputy assistant, staff assistant, executive assistant and plain old assistant.

The book is compiled by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee. This year, for the first time, it lists the Senior Executive Service jobs — career positions filled and emptied at the pleasure of the president.

Those jobs pay between $61,296 and $72,300 and up to 10 percent of them can be filled with political appointees.

There are 8,000 senior executive jobs out of the 2.9 million positions in the government, including Postal Service workers.

Sen. William Roth Jr., R-Del., chairman of the Senate committee, said the book is "especially important to those of us in Congress because we can use it to keep a check on the effectiveness of the federal merit systems."

NATION IN BRIEF

Coe's lawyers to appeal

SEATTLE (AP) — Attorneys for Kevin Coe say they will appeal what Coe calls the "trial by media" that led to his being sentenced to 55 years plus life in prison for three rape convictions in the "South Hill rapist" case.

Coe, 38, whose retrial was hung on a fourth count of first-degree rape, was sentenced Monday to consecutive terms of 25 years, 30 years and life. He was charged in four of more than 40 brutal sexual assaults from 1978 to 1981.

He was convicted in 1981 in Spokane on four rape counts and sentenced to 75 years plus life. The convictions were overturned by the state Supreme Court.

Vets' settlement rejected

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge rejected arguments of an attorney who said Vietnam veterans "were not allowed to fight to win" a multimillion-dollar Agent Orange case and refused to set aside a settlement.

Robert Taylor, who represents Vietnam veterans, told U.S. District Judge Jack B. Weinstein that more than 200,000 claims have been filed for the money since May.

Court-appointed special master Kenneth R. Feinberg said Monday that the settlement fund approved May 7 by Weinstein wasn't large enough for all claims and proposed paying $25,000 cash to "the most qualified" 5 percent.

Judge reduces sentence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge reduced by two years the 10-year prison racketeering sentence of City of Industry founder James Marty Stafford, who paid $1.3 million in restitution and a $25,000 fine.

Stafford, who has been in a federal prison hospital in Fort Worth will be eligible for parole in 32 months, said defense attorney James Duff.

Stafford pleaded guilty Oct. 2 to mail fraud, conspiracy, interstate travel in aid of racketeering and obstruction of justice.

Officers: Sergeant driving

NEW YORK (AP) — Two police officers suspended after a fatal hit-and-run accident involving the squad car in which they were riding told authorities a sergeant with them was driving the car, the police union says.

Sgt. Frederick Sherman, 37, was arrested Monday on charges of second-degree manslaughter, criminally negligent homicide and leaving the scene of an accident, said a spokeswoman for Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau.

Officers Edwin Collazo, 26, and Anthony Conte, 25, have been suspended without pay since Saturday as the result of a Friday night accident that killed one man and injured another.

They're contenders

Around junior college basketball circles, the Midland College Chaparrals have been building a reputation in the past few years. They're known as contenders — a term reserved for teams or individual players who, while they may not be destined to win national championships every season, are in the running for the honors year after year.

The Chaps won the National Junior College Athletic Association roundball title in 1982 and this week they're back in Hutchinson, Kan. for a shot at a repeat.

That says a lot about the Midland College team's competitive spirit, but what says even more is the fact that Texas has supplied four out of five of the last NJCAA champions. In other words, simply getting to the national tournament is an accomplishment within itself.

The year of those five when a Texas team didn't take the NJCAA title, Westark of Fort Smith, Ark. walked away with the title. Ironically, going into the national tournament Wednesday at 1:45 p.m. the first team the Chaps will encounter is none other than Westark. It seems that team is a contender, too.

The tournament won't be easy for the Chaparrals. There will be all the drama associated with a major sports championship — a distant gymnasium in another state, all the publicity that typically follows winning sports figures, perhaps not as many hometown fans present as teams like to have. There will be more than enough pressure to go around.

And, of course, at this level of competition, there are no slouches. Teams don't get to the NJCAA playoffs by being merely good. It takes talent, dedication and hard work. But the Chaps have demonstrated time and time again this season that they possess the stuff of which national titles are produced, as they've rolled up their season tally of 29 wins and only four losses.

As the Chaps take the court in Hutchinson Wednesday, they should know they are not alone. The people of Midland will be there in spirit, cheering them on to a win over Westark and another shot at the national title!

Statistics needed

A Washington-based research group called Population Reference Bureau has published an interesting study which creates a picture of the United States as a vast air, sea and rail terminal that has exits as well as entrances.

In the first such survey undertaken in a quarter of a century, figures developed by Robert Warren of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service and Ellen P. Kraly of Colgate University show that more than 100,000 persons leave our shores every year to take up permanent residence in other countries.

The researchers have determined, moreover, that since 1900, the ratio of immigration to emigration has held at 3 to 1. While 30 million legal immigrants have been admitted to the U.S. in the past 85 years, the total is offset by the 10 million emigrants who left to settle under new flags.

The outward flow of Americans has been largely ignored because the nation stopped keeping statistics on emigrants in 1957. Meanwhile, all the attention and controversy have centered on the new hordes seeking entrance to the U.S.

It might be a good idea for this country to revive the practice of keeping count of its emigrants. The net figures could avert the distorted images many Americans hold on immigration and help the country set realistic immigration goals for the future.

Another View:

Rx for treating crime

A sustained, pervasive fear of crime grips many Americans. Such fear generates vigilantism on a New York subway and a regrettable outpouring of public sympathy for a citizen's taking the law into his own hands. Many have reached the sad conclusion that there is little, if anything, the authorities can do to counter crime. Nowhere, perhaps, are these feelings more pronounced than in the nation's distressed, deteriorating, crime-infested inner cities.

Now, the Eisenhower Foundation, a private organization that grew out of President Lyndon Johnson's National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence, commendably offers what it calls "a citizen-based, politically feasible and socially acceptable approach to the reduction of crime in the most deteriorated, inner-city neighborhoods of the nation." Serious attention should be given to the foundation's mainly sensible suggestions and to its thoughtful recognition that an attack on crime requires an assault on ignorance, poverty and unemployment.

The report's authors wisely recognize that the police, courts and prisons cannot really prevent crime. Essentially, those agencies react to crime.

In our view, neighborhood organizations can provide a solid basis for a successful anti-crime effort. And as the foundation sensibly says, crime-prevention programs, laudable for their own sake, can also be a means to promote economic development, housing rehabilitation, minority business enterprises and the employment of minority young people.

The foundation wisely commends the example of such inner-city organizations as the House of Umoja in Philadephia. Umoja strives to create "extended families" that offer young people a needed sense of discipline and self-respect, and that help persuade young people to take part in job-training programs and to enter the legal labor market rather than criminal enterprises.

To many fearful Americans, perhaps, such ideas will seem like the same old do-good approach stemming from the much-disparaged notion that crime springs from "root causes" or "environmental factors." However, as the Eisenhower report suggests, this approach also includes threads of President Reagan's up-by-the-boot-straps philosophy, as well as the more liberal ideas of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy. Accordingly, it should be possible to build a broad political base for a program of neighborhood initiatives in the war on crime.

— The Milwaukee Journal

CHARLEY REESE

Reality shatters dreams

The reason Congress chooses not to deal with the deficit, the Sandinistas, and the Soviet Union is simple.

Charley Reese

Visualize Washington, D.C., evacuated of all people. What then are the Capitol, the Supreme Court, and the White House? Empty buildings, no different from empty barns. You can see now that what government is, is not a system or a place but people.

It follows that if the people are stupid, the government will be stupid. If they are wise, the government will be wise. If they are weak, the government will be weak. If they are strong, the government will be strong. This is what accounts for the fluctuations in the fortunes of a nation which operates under the same system.

The Constitution is only a systems plan. It is a piece of parchment on which is written a plan for deploying people in certain positions, defining their duties, and their powers. The Bill of Rights is an explicit statement of belief in certain principles.

Obviously, however, paper and ink have no power. You could wrap the Bill of Rights around your neck, but a knife would still slice through the paper and your flesh, thus rendering the words meaningless and you dead. The Constitution has no power except the power of human beings who believe it and are willing to act in conformity with it.

To return to the main point, the Congress does not deal with the deficit because it is composed of people, a majority of whom are weak. By weak, I mean afraid. They are afraid of losing their positions. They are afraid of angering the voters. They are afraid of the disapproval of their peers. They are afraid of what some prominent journalists may say about them.

The problem of the deficit is as simple as third grade math. If you have a $200 billion deficit, there are three and only three possible ways to eliminate it: (1) cut spending by $200 billion; (2) raise taxes by $200 billion; or (3) employ a combination of spending cuts and tax increases which equal $200 billion.

The Congress does not fail to act because it lacks the knowledge of how to act. It fails to act because it is afraid to act.

Since the majority of weak men and women place their egos ahead of the welfare of the country, they act logically to preserve their egos. Rather than taking one of the three simple options, they work at confusing and distracting the people. They know that if they exercise one of the three options, their role will be visible and the people in their constituency will hold them accountable. They know that if they do nothing and a few years down the road there is a general economic collapse that most people will not see the direct connection between their present failure and the future disaster.

They are afraid to fund an adequate defense and to take other tough measures to deal with the Soviet Union. They are afraid to overthrow the Marxist government of Nicaragua. When the bad consequences come in the future, they will deny any responsibility.

Thus nations fall because weak men and women occupy positions of power. Thus democratic nations fall when the people are careless in the selection of their leaders and unwilling to make personal sacrifices for the greater good of the nation.

The real world exists in physical actions. To live in a dream world is to choose the role of victim, or, as a Japanese saying puts it, "To be born drunk and to die dreaming."

The dreamer can never escape the sword of the realist. What was real about Nazism was the death camps, not whatever it was East European Jews thought Nazism was. Obviously they did not think it was death camps or they would have fled at any cost.

The reality of steel can shatter American dreams, too.

JACK ANDERSON

War needed on drug pushers

WASHINGTON — The drug lords have declared war on the U.S. government.

They kidnapped and killed an agent of the Drug Enforcement Administration in Mexico; they paid a gunman $500,000 to murder U.S. Ambassador Edwin Corr in Bolivia; they exploded a bomb outside the U.S. Embassy in Colombia; they killed 19 members of a U.S.-sponsored program to eradicate coca bushes in Peru.

Jack Anderson

They put a price on the head of ex-DEA chief Francis Mullen; they threatened to kill five Americans for every drug dealer extradited from Colombia to the United States; they placed a $300,000 bounty on DEA agents, dead or alive; they dispatched hit teams to gun down drug enforcement officers.

This brazen challenge by the underworld, backed by billions in illicit drug profits, must be met before it destroys our country. Already there has been a breakdown of law and order in the United States; this will be followed by chaos unless the drug gangs are smashed.

Cuba's Fidel Castro is betting that the United States will lose the drug war. Intelligence reports say he is secretly encouraging and supporting the drug trade. The depravity of the "Yanquis," he has boasted, will bring down the United States.

I think he's wrong, but emergency action is needed. Here's what I urge Americans who love their country to do:

— Choose whose side you're on. Those who use cocaine and other "trendy" drugs are financing lawlessness in America. All it would take to defeat the drug lords is for their customers to stop using the stuff; then the pernicious crime kings would lose their power overnight.

— Demand that your local police and school authorities crack down on drug traffickers. Give no quarter to the street-corner and schoolyard pushers who are poisoning our children and ruining their lives. Now the drug dealers are cutting prices, my sources say, in order to hook more kids.

— If you know who the drug pushers and peddlers are, send whatever evidence you have to the Drug Enforcement Administration, 1405 I Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20537.

— Boycott movies and records that glamorize drugs. I urge an "X" rating on any movie that depicts drug abuse without showing the dreadful consequences that follow.

Sen. William Roth, R-Del., has sent his investigators to Hollywood to examine how the drug cult, through films and records, has created a climate that encourages drug use. Roth's people found the three television networks, particularly NBC, willing to deglamorize drugs. But some movie makers, and the committee of seven that rates motion pictures, were uncooperative.

— Withdraw your money from banks that launder drug profits. President Reagan has unleashed the desk-bound accountants of the Justice and Treasury departments to crack down on the money-laundries. Roth's investigators are also looking at the money laundering.

"If we dry up their money," a law enforcement official said, "we will put them out of business."

— Call upon the State Department to use its leverage with drug-producing countries to shut down the drug flow at its source. "All (the president's) ships and all (the president's) planes can't stop the drug smugglers," a White House source confessed. So Reagan is bringing pressure on Mexico, Colombia and other nations to adopt drug-eradication programs. But he has been partially obstructed by the foreign service, which is more concerned about diplomatic protocol than the drug menace.

Footnote: Not all the Hollywood crowd goes along with the drug cult. Some crusading actors, directors and producers have formed the Entertainment Industries Council to deglamorize drugs. They have the support, incidentally, of two former movie stars, Ronald and Nancy Reagan. The council has set up headquarters at 6715 Lowell Ave., McLean, Va., 22101.

FDR'S GREAT DECEPTION: The only man to be elected president four times, Franklin D. Roosevelt, was often accused by frustrated Republicans of deceiving the American people. Well, they were right.

FDR was guilty of one deception never exposed by his political opponents: He strove to hide the extent of the paralysis that struck him down in the prime of life.

Now Hugh Gallagher, a former Senate aide who was himself crippled by polio as a young man, has written a fascinating book titled "FDR's Splendid Deception." It gives details on the extraordinary lengths to which FDR went to try to keep the American people from realizing that they had elected a partially paralyzed man. Some episodes:

— FDR indicated to his Secret Service bodyguards with a nod when photographers had snapped him in his wheelchair or as he was being assisted out of a car. The agents then confiscated the film. Out of 40,000 photographs Gallagher examined in a file at Hyde Park, only two showed Roosevelt in a wheelchair.

EVANS & NOVAK

Chiles playing politics with MX

WASHINGTON — Although the battle for the MX missile pivots on its value as a bargaining counter at the Geneva arms talks, its fate this week in the Senate actually may be tied to the continuing struggle by Sen. Lawton Chiles to replace Sen. Robert Byrd as Senate Democratic leader.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

That is an inversion of national priorities that might haunt the Democrats in the future. But in the tight little world of Senate politics, it has transformed Chiles from a badly beaten loser to a perceived man of the future. Following up the anti-MX effort he lost last June on Vice President George Bush's tie-breaking vote, the Florida senator has made himself the kingpin in this week's crucial test on the new weapons system.

Chiles is pressing Byrd, who easily defeated him in the leadership race last December, to cast his first anti-MX vote in refusing to release $1.5 billion in blocked funds. That puts Chiles in a lovely political position: If he gets Byrd's vote and wins, he can claim credit for killing the MX; if Byrd hangs tough, Chiles may lose the vote but winds up leading all but a handful of Democratic senators with Minority Leader Byrd emerging as party spoiler and Reagan protector.

"Oh, yes," a Chiles ally told us, "Lawton definitely sees this as an opportunity to lead the Democrats." It is common knowledge in the Senate Democratic cloakroom that Chiles wants another try against Byrd after the 1986 election. Senate maneuvering on the MX may imperil U.S. strategy in Geneva, but its major interest among Senate Democrats is its impact on the the party leadership rivalry.

Byrd is well aware of his exposure to political danger. Before flying to Geneva to "observe" the start of the talks, he and other members of the Senate delegation had breakfast with the president. Over bacon and eggs, Byrd went out of his way to bring up the MX and casually mention to the president that he might be "reconsidering" his position on it. Reagan did not pursue the matter, but Byrd had deftly laid the predicate for possible conversion from friend to foe.

The ostensible reason for Byrd's reconsideration is a new MX report by the General Accounting Office (GAO) that Chiles leaked to the New York Times March 6 before it was even reviewed by the key Defense Subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee. Chiles discussed the report with Byrd before the White House breakfast, and Byrd used it there as a rationale for possibly ending the valiant support he has given the MX in every crucial vote up to now.

But MX backers claim Chiles distorted that GAO report, using it selectively to raise embarrassing questions about the missile's accuracy and about alleged imperfections in its testing program. The full report still has not been officially released by Sen. Ted Stevens, who as chairman of the Defense Subcommittee is furious at Chiles for both leaking and allegedly distorting the report.

Chiles is clearly concerned over the political effect of a vote that would destroy what Reagan regards as a key bargaining counter for the Geneva talks. So, his strategy in this week's Senate showdown is to portray a vote against unfreezing the $1.5 billion not as a vote to kill the MX but simply to delay. The MX would not be killed, he argues to colleagues, because the "production line" would stay "warm" with money now in the pipeline.

In fact, the "warm production line" theory is ridiculous. Should this week's vote go against the MX, the Pentagon will immediately send Congress a request for an emergency $650 million to prevent the supply-and-production lines for components from drying up overnight.

Chiles seems to be frying fish of a different sort. Shortly before Byrd defeated him 36-to-11 last December, Chiles' aides were expressing their fervent belief that his one-vote loss against the MX in June would help him become Democratic leader. Indeed, that narrow miss might well have encouraged him to run against Byrd.

Events since then have given Chiles added levereage with the MX. Democrats are more emotional over the missile and Reagan has become more committed to it because of the Geneva talks. That may make Chiles his party's leader in the Senate, but at potentially great cost: opening the Democratic Party to a Republican charge of playing fast and loose with the nuclear talks in Geneva.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's highlight in history:

On March 19, 1920, the U.S. Senate for the second time rejected the Treaty of Versailles, setting the stage for a decade of American isolationism.

On this date:

In 1687, the French explorer La Salle was murdered by mutineers in present-day Texas.

In 1859, the opera "Faust" by Charles Gounod premiered in Paris.

In 1918, Congress approved Daylight-Saving Time.

In 1931, Nevada legalized gambling.

NATION

Response to AT&T competitors increasing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's local telephone companies report that many more customers than first believed are signing up for easy-dialing long-distance service from the flood of companies now offering discount call rates.

As part of the court-supervised breakup of American Telephone and Telegraph Co., the former local Bell Telephone companies are required to connect a large percentage of their customers to the long-distance company of the customers' choosing.

Before this so-called equal access plan went into effect, only AT&T customers could pick up their telephones and call long-distance by dialing "1," an area code and a seven-digit number. Those using a competing service had to dial a computer access number and a personal code in addition to the other numbers.

The equal access system allows customers to make immediate connection not only with AT&T long-distance service, but to competitors such as MCI, GTE Sprint and hundreds of others. The customers also can choose one company as their primary long-distance service, and then have access to others by using five-digit access codes for each one.

But despite the prospect of cut-rate long-distance rates from the AT&T competitors, initial customer response to equal access, which began in some areas of the country in July 1984, appeared to be sluggish.

However, Communications Daily, a trade publication, said the low sign-up figures were misleading because they were based solely on customer choices during the 90-day "pre-subscription" periods that preceded equal access hook-up.

Subsequent filings by the seven Bell regional holding companies at the Justice Department show a significant number of customers have been signing up during the grace period that follows the pre-subscription period, the publication said.

Pacific Bell, in the Far West, reported that 22 percent of its lines were subscribed at activation, growing to nearly 28 percent as of Feb. 25. Southwestern Bell said less than 7 percent of its lines were designated when the conversion took place, but the figure grew to more than 22 percent by last month.

The earlier figures had left the impression that many customers were ignoring the new option — thus staying with AT&T by default, since most local companies automatically assign customers to AT&T if they do not make a choice.

The Federal Communications Commission currently is considering whether to force local companies to apportion this so-called "default traffic" among AT&T competitors. A ruling is expected by June 1.

Victim says 'I want to see Bernie Goetz fry'

NEW YORK (AP) — One of Bernhard Goetz's four victims said "I want to see Bernie Goetz fry" after he told a new grand jury that three of the youths were seated when Goetz shot them aboard a Manhattan subway train, the youth's lawyer said.

James Ramseur, 18, testified "in direct contradiction" to the story Goetz provided after the Dec. 22 shootings that he was surrounded by all four, attorney Ronald Kliegerman said Monday.

Ramseur, who received immunity from prosecution, was on the stand for about 50 minutes Monday, the lawyer said, and testified that only Troy Canty was standing when Goetz began shooting.

"I want to see Bernie Goetz fry," Ramseur said in an interview with the New York Daily News after his appearance before the jury.

"I don't know why he shot me," Ramseur said. "He shot me for no reason. I told the grand jury the truth and I hope they believe me because I want to see him indicted for trying to kill me and my friend."

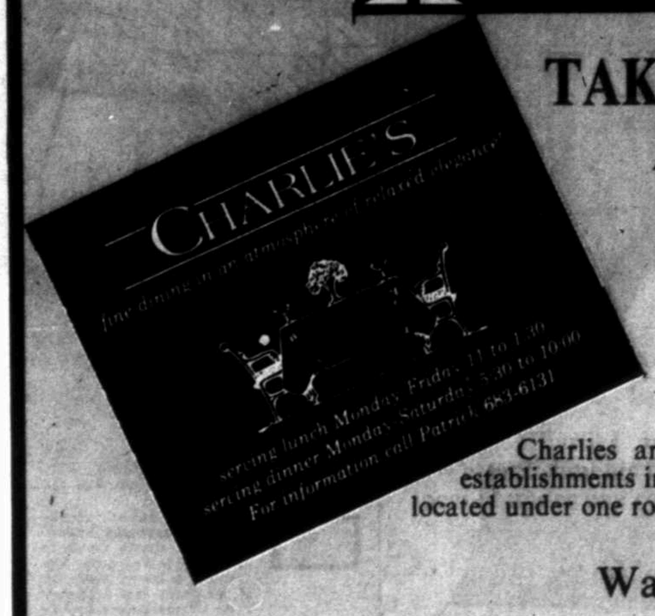

Goetz, 37, has admitted shooting the teen-agers aboard a subway train but has argued that he acted in self-defense after they asked him for $5 in a threatening manner.

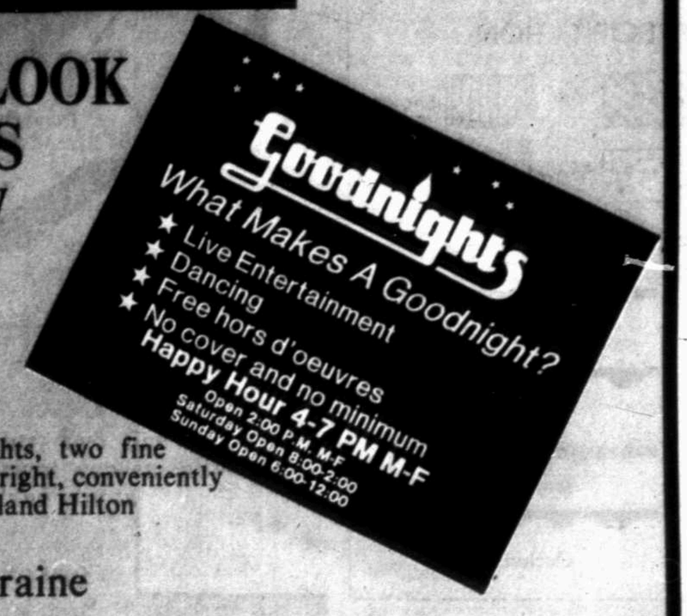

The first grand jury indicted him in January on charges of illegally possessing a weapon. Neither Goetz nor any of the four teen-agers — one of whom remains hospitalized with severe brain damage — testified before that panel.

Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau was scheduled to appear in court today to show why the new jury should be allowed to proceed. He was granted the right to resubmit the case because he said he uncovered evidence that had not been presented to the first panel.

Spring will be here Wednesday

WASHINGTON (AP) — Take heart, Americans, spring will be here on Wednesday.

Astronomers at the U.S. Naval Observatory calculate that the grand event will occur at 11:14 a.m. EST (10:14 CST) — the moment known as the vernal equinox.

The equinox occurs when the sun crosses the equator in its apparent move north, bringing warmth and leading to balmy summer weather. At the same time, it departs from the Southern Hemisphere, marking the start of autumn there.

What do you do if your prayers aren't being answered?

It may be, you're ready for a new concept of prayer. One that's more than earnestly pleading with God. One that opens your eyes to His love and power already present.

Mighty breakthroughs come with this Christly approach. People have found it so in Christian Science. At Wednesday evening meetings, every week, they share in testimonies how their prayers have been answered.

The Main Bank. Wall at Andrews Highway.

Texas American Bank is committed to Midland's economic vitality. That's why we've opened a second banking facility right in the heart of downtown at Texas and Colorado.

It's our new old-time "Banking Parlor." With furnishings and fixtures that hark back to the turn of the century.

It's where you'll find a special kind of service we call "Parlor Banking" Service that combines today's most modern banking skills and resources with the warm hospitality and personal service of an earlier era.

For many of you, Texas American's most convenient location will still be our main bank at Wall and Andrews Highway. There, and at more than 30 locations across Texas, the Texas American name stands for "home town" banking backed by combined assets of more than $6 billion.

But be sure you pay us a visit downtown. You'll enjoy complimentary refreshments in our special coffee room. You can take advantage of our old-time shoeshine stand. And you'll see what it's like to do business in West Texas' most beautiful banking facility.

Texas American.
You deserve a special kind of banker.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Crane, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin and Howard counties: Tonight cloudy with a 50 percent chance of rain. Cool with low in upper 30s. Wind west 15 to 25 mph and gusty with lake wind advisories required. Wednesday decreasing cloudiness with a 20 percent chance of rain early morning. Wind northwest 15 to 25 mph and gusty with lake wind advisories required. Not as warm with high in lower 60s.

Rain chance 50 percent for Basin

From Staff and Wire Reports

Rain will bring cooler temperatures to the Midland area tonight as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport predicts cloudy skies with a 50 percent chance of rain and a low in the upper 30s. Winds will be from the west at 15 to 25 mph and gusty.

Forecasters are calling for decreasing cloudiness Wednesday with a 20 percent chance of early morning rain and a high in the lower 60s. Northwesterly winds will be at 15 to 25 mph.

Monday's high of 65 was 21 degrees below the record set in 1978. This morning's low was 19 degrees above the 1965 record of 21.

STATE

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were forecast for most of Texas tonight, with thunderstorms expected to be more numerous with some locally heavy rain expected in portions of North Texas and South Central Texas.

Lows tonight will be near 30 in the Panhandle and in the 40s and 50s over the rest of the state.

Some light rain was reported early today from Laredo to Corpus Christi as moist air from the Gulf of Mexico continued to move into the state. Low clouds were widespread over the coastal bend and South Central Texas. Elsewhere skies were mostly fair.

Early morning temperatures were in the 40s in West Texas and in the 50s elsewhere. Extremes ranged from 41 at both Midland and Amarillo to 61 at Corpus Christi.

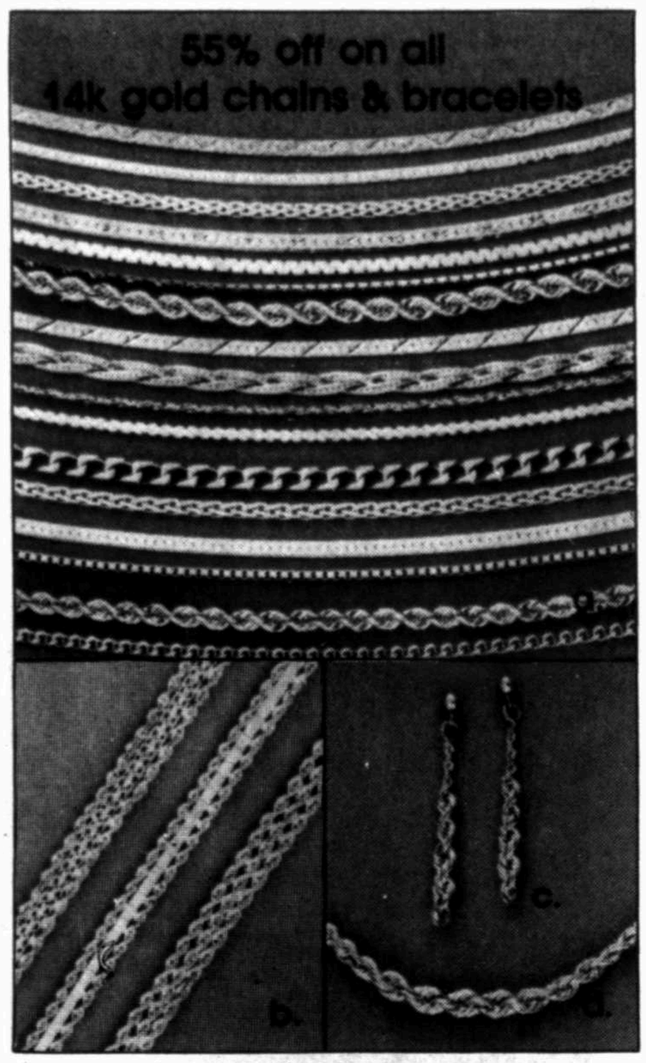

Other early morning temperatures around the state included 46 at Wichita Falls, 53 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 44 at Lufkin, 46 at Waco, 53 at Austin, 56 at San Antonio, 54 at Houston, 59 at Brownsville, 46 at San Angelo, and 42 at Lubbock and El Paso.

NATION

Clear skies and light winds chilled the eastern third of the nation today, chipping away at least one record cold temperature after up to 6 inches of snow fell in New England and a "vigorous" storm battered Southern California.

The temperature dipped into the single digits today across the Northeast, while in northeastern Florida, a 33-degree reading in Jacksonville broke by one degree a 1923 record. It was in the 40s and 50s elsewhere in the state.

Chaps to start title drive in earnest

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

HUTCHINSON, Kan.—A couple of former national champions square off when Midland College and Westark of Fort Smith, Ark., tangle at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in a first round National Junior College Athletic Conference game.

Neither team is nationally ranked, but the survivor could be a strong contender for the title. Westark won it all in 1981 and the next year MC beat Westark and went on to the national title.

"Rankings don't mean all that much," said Westark assistant Wes Kundart. "The year after we won nationals, we returned to the tournament with the previous year's MVP and still weren't ranked."

Kundart added fuel to his argument, "This year we were ranked No. 14 until we got beat by the No. 4 team. Then, in the tournament, we had Mississippi Valley, Ark., down by 20 in the first half and they were ranked No. 2 at the time."

IT'S DIFFICULT to see how a 33-3 team can be overlooked, but head coach Gayle Kundart hopes to rectify that oversight and gain some revenge on MC for that opening round loss in 1982 when Puntus Wilson blocked a last second shot and the Westark bench screamed for goaltending.

Kundart has been at Westark for 11 years. In six of those seasons his team has made it to Hutchinson.

This will be the second trip for Coach Jerry Stone's Chaparrals.

Kundart's teams are home grown. The year he won nationals everybody on the squad was from Arkansas. This year all five of his sophomore starters are from Arkansas.

Marvin Murdock, 6-0, is the point guard who makes things tick. He averages three assists a game, but Kundart points out that WCC is very fussy about awarding assists.

Six-two Charles Baker is the other guard while 6-3 Carl Lott and 6-6 Maurice Jackson team at forwards and Lewis Cook, 6-8, is the center. Lott and Jackson each average 5.5 rebounds a game and 16 points.

ALTHOUGH located in Arkansas, Westark competes in the Bi-State Conference composed primarily of Eastern Oklahoma teams such as Seminole (which went to nationals in 1982) and Independence, Kan.

To reach nationals this year, Westark beat Seward County of Liberal, Kan., in the final playoff game, 86-80.

"We've tried it all ways," says Kundart. "This year we'll spend an extra day in the class room and bus up (five hours) to Hutchinson Tuesday."

Stone and his 29-4 Chaps left Sunday and were scheduled for two workouts before their first tournament game.

MC qualified for their second Hutchinson trip by beating Laredo College, 82-79, in an emotion-wringer at Angelo State University Friday night.

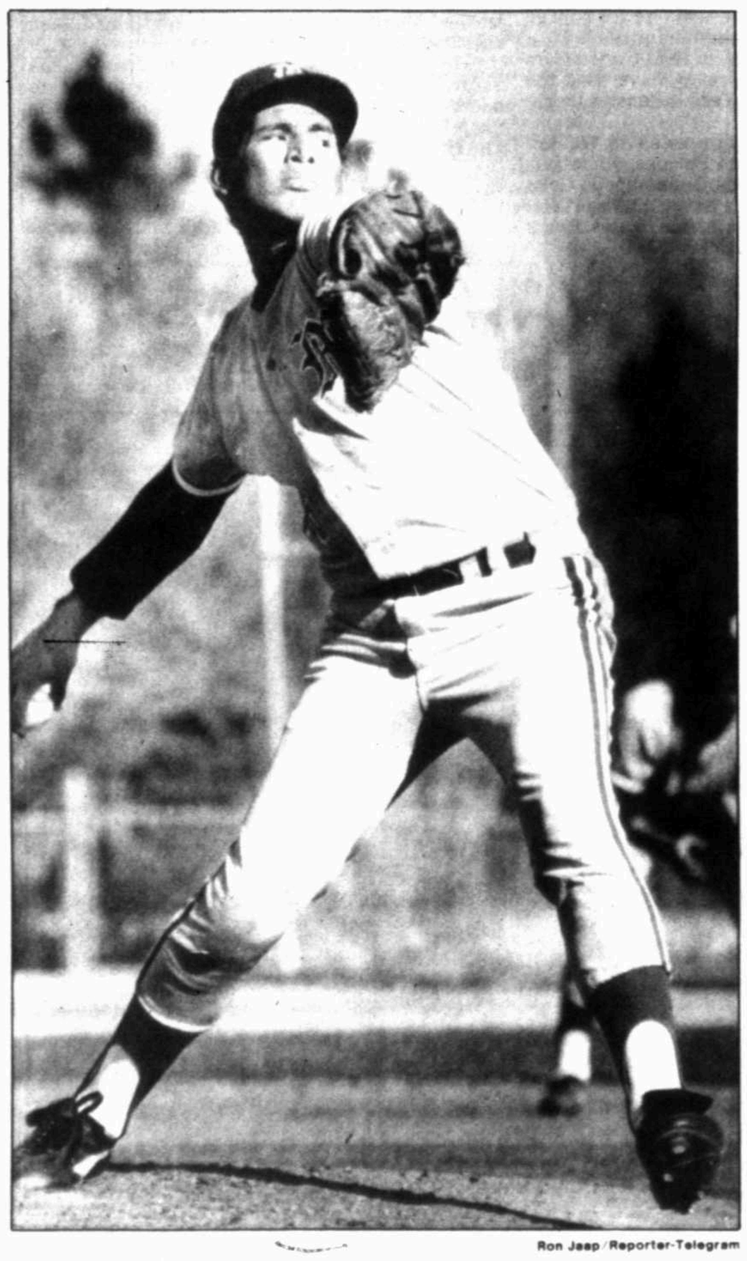

TOURNEY NOTES—Last time MC played here, 5-7 Spud Webb won the Bud Obee award which annually goes to the Most Outstanding Small Player in the tournament...Puntus Wilson won the MVP that year...

Although Laredo suffered a disappointing loss in Friday's playoff with MC, 6-10 David Willard still figured it was a good season, "No one expected us to come this far."....First year coach Chris Orr, served as an assistant last year at Laredo, coming from Franklin, Ind., where he had been a head coach...

Laredo played in a three-team conference. "Everybody else withdrew because they didn't want to play with us and San Jacinto. Now they want back in. They found out it hurt their recruiting and they had to play us in the tournament anyway."...

No announcement yet on Amarillo College's basketball future, but it seems the Badgers will abandon the sport. That's too bad since AC was always competitive...This is the 38th edition of the NJCAA and the tournament has been held in the Hutchinson Sports Arena since 1952...The first NJCAA champ was College of Marin, Calif., in 1948....

If MC wins Wednesdauy, it will play again at 7:45 p.m. Thursday. A loss will send the Chaps into a 3:30 p.m. Thursday consolation bracket game....

Kelly wings Gamblers to 4th straight win

Ex-Houston coach takes beating

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Denver Gold Coach Mouse Davis finally got a chance to look into the teeth of the run-and-shoot monster he created with the Houston Gamblers a year ago.

And it bit him.

The Gamblers, paced by four touchdown passes from quarterback Jim Kelly and three field goals by Toni Fritsch, blasted Davis' Gold 36-17 Monday night in a United States Football League game with the run-and-shoot offense Davis created last season as the Gamblers' offensive coordinator.

"Mouse is just like any other coach we play against but it was sure good to beat him," Kelly said after completing 32 of 61 passes for 433 yards. "After the game he (Davis) said he couldn't believe how much punishment I could take, but he said he knew that I was a hard-nosed player."

The Gamblers fell behind 17-13 in the third quarter before Kelly and the Gamblers rallied to their fourth straight victory of the season. The Gold dropped to 2-2.

"We did what we've been doing all year, keeping our poise and fighting back," Kelly said.

Houston started slowly against the Gold. After taking a 13-7 lead on Kelly's four-yard touchdown pass to Richard Johnson and Fristch's field goals of 27 and 42 yards, Denver rallied to a 17-13 lead in the third quarter.

Gold running back Bill Johnson shoved off four tacklers in a 26-yard touchdown run for Denver's first score and Vince Evans hit Marc Lewis on an eight-yard touchdown pass for a 14-13 halftime lead.

Brian Speelman's 27-yard field goal made it 17-13 before the Gamblers went to work.

Fritch kicked his third field goal, a 40-yarder, and Kelly hit touchdown passes of 40 yards to Gerald McNeil, 10-yards to Vince Courville and nine yards to Clarence Verdin to bowl over the Gold.

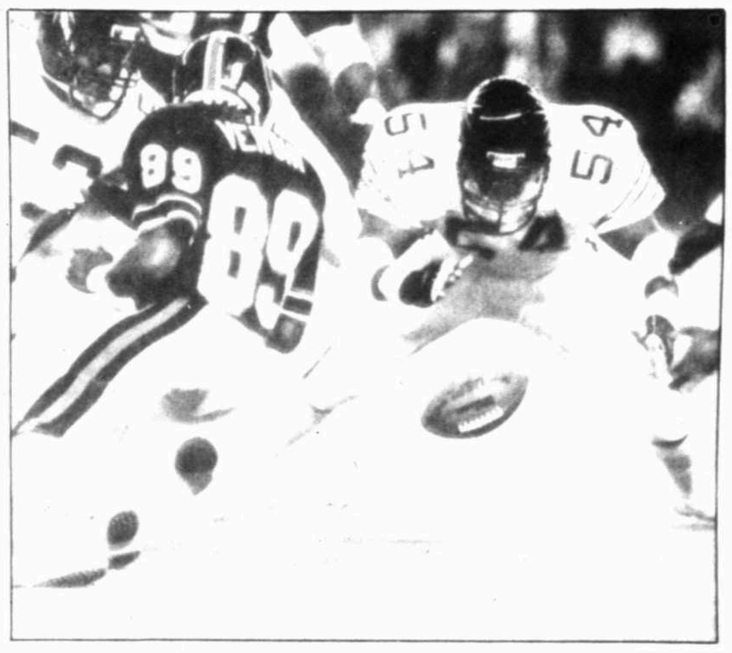

"Our fellows look at it like he (Davis) created a monster," Courville said. "We have a talented group of guys who know how to run the offense. It's a special rivalry, playing for a trophy and bragging rights."

Denver linebacker Jeff Delaney was a thorn in Kelly's side, marring an otherwise outstanding passing performance with three interceptions.

"We had a good game plan and we kept them confused during the first half," Delaney said. 'But in the second half they started to be able to read us better. Our defense had to stay out there so much that we got tired."

Kelly's final touchdown pass was a nine yarder to Clarence Verdin in a drive that included the first official call to be overruled by an instant replay screen in the USFL.

Kelly's 53-yard pass completion to Vince Courville was at first ruled good but an instant replay showed Courville out of bounds and the play was called back.

MHS hosts Odessa; Lee takes to the road

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

Head coach Tim Whalen and the Midland High Bulldogs are looking for that elusive winning streak today as they make their District 4-5A home debut today against Odessa High at 4 p.m. at Zachery Field. Midland Lee travels to Odessa Permian in other district action.

At 1-1, Whalen's Bulldogs are in the middle of the district pack, one game behind first-place Lee. And what a pack it is.

Six teams are jammed at 1-1 heading into the second week of district play, including the Bronchos, MHS' opponent today. Preseason favorite Abilene Cooper, Abilene High, Odessa Permian and Big Spring join MHS and OHS in a tie for second. San Angelo brings up the rear at 0-2.

Ever since compiling a four-game winning streak in pre-district action, MHS has had trouble putting togetherback-to-back wins. After a district-opening loss at Big Spring, the Bulldogs played a fine game in upsetting Abilene, 5-2, on Saturday. Whalen would like nothing better than adding a win over OHS today to keep the pressure on the league-leading Rebels.

"I'm telling you, if we could get some consistency we'll give a lot of people some headaches," Whalen said. "But these kids have got to realize they've got to come out smoking every time. Nobody's going to fall down and let us beat 'em just by getting off the bus."

To try and keep the momentum on the Bulldogs' side, Michael Gonzales will take the hill against the Bronchos. Gonzales is 3-3 with one save, but his 2.91 earned run average is the best on the club.

Timely hitting and tight defense are the keys for MHS. Against the Eagles, the Bulldogs played error-less ball and parlayed just six hits into five runs. Clutch-hitting by Anthony Deande, who knocked in three runs, DH Mark Torres, two doubles, and three runs scored by Paul Castaneda provided all the spark MHS needed.

"We had a lot of timely hits at just the right times," Whalen said. "Each time we got a man on second and third, somebody would dink one in. We might have been a little lucky, but we played very well, we deserved to win."

FOR THE Rebels (10-4), a trip to Permian is a chance to keep the rest of the pack a step behind. Coach Ernie Johnson has both Mike Small (3-1) and George Matta (3-1) rested and ready to throw at the Panthers, if necessary. Small started and got the win in the district opener at San Angelo last week. Matta hasn't started a game since his five-hit, 4-0 gem versus Thomas Jefferson in the Tournament of Champions, but faced one batter in relief in the San Angelo game.

Second baseman Dirk Bergoon (.429) and junior centerfielder Tuey Rankin (.380) lead the Rebels' hitting attack, but the potent Lee lineup has been hurting opponents from the first through ninth spots.

First baseman Donny Rivas, often the No. 9 hitter, leads the club in doubles (4), while others like right-fielder Greg Shaw (.290), third baseman Paul Colwell (.333) and shortstop Keith McDonald (.280) have all contributed to Lee's success. Catcher Jimmy Phillips even showed signs of breaking out of his season long slump with a hit and a walk against Cooper Saturday.

DIAMOND CLIPPINGS: Cooper, despite a 5-4 loss to Lee Saturday, remains the No. 2 team in the Class 5A baseball poll released this week. The Cougars are 11-1 on the season.

Dallas Thomas Jefferson, not even a finalist in the Tournament of Champions here two weeks ago, is the third-ranked team at 9-2. TJ was 2-2 in the two-day tournament at Angel Stadium. Lubbock Monterey, the T of C titlists and 8-2, are ranked eighth in the poll.

The Midland High junior varsity team upped its record to 3-0 with an 11-8 win over Monhans Monday. Craig Crawford went the distance in the darkness shortened game. Crawford struck out seven in five innings of work.

Ueberroth welcomes Mays, Mantle back

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Hall of Famers Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle were welcomed back to baseball Monday when new Commissioner Peter Ueberroth lifted their suspensions from the game for working for gambling casinos.

"I'm pleased to welcome back to baseball Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle effective immediately," Ueberroth said. "They are free as of today to be employed by baseball. Any restrictions heretofore placed on them are now removed.

"I didn't think that was fair to these two gentlemen," Ueberroth said in announcing he was ending the ban imposed by former Commissioner Bowie Kuhn because of their jobs as goodwill ambassadors for Atlantic City casinos. "It's also spring training and I wanted them back in baseball."

MAYS AND Mantle, who had been barred from official baseball functions since 1979 and 1983, respectively, were present for the announcement.

"I'm very pleased to be back in baseball, although I don't think I did anything wrong for baseball," Mays said. "It was just something that wasn't right. I'm on a first name basis with Peter. I never had that before in a commissioner's office."

He said he would like to work as an official ambassador for baseball.

"I can't hit, I can't run, but now I have the options," he said. "I don't have any resentment — I love baseball. This is a happy occasion. We are back in baseball. We can do the things everyone else can do."

Mantle added: "Like Willie, I'm just very happy today. I know Mr. Kuhn did what he thought had to be done. He warned me that if I took the job I would be gone from baseball. I did it with my eyes wide open and being 21 years old. I know it was a hard thing for Mr. Ueberroth to do, but something he thought had to be done.

"I couldn't figure it out. It was a dumbfounded feeling why we were banned. It seemd to me I'm a better guy than I used to be....

"I acted like it didn't bother me, but it did. You don't want to kicked out of your favorite bar or be banned from baseball."

UEBERROTH SAID he had no problem with Kuhn's ruling, but added: "The world changes."

"We are going to look at the situation for very strong broad guidelines to keep baseball and gambling apart," Ueberroth said. "In going through the files, I can find times when baseball teams were owned by people who owned casinos at the same time. We're looking at the whole subject. ...

"The previously established policy (prohibiting dual employment in baseball and casinos) will remain in effect until we can issue a new set of guidelines. The whole world of gaming is changing. We will have new guidelines and stricter guidelines in the future.

"Baseball must remain free from any connection between it and gambling. That is vital. But an exception is being made for these two great players because of what they mean to our game."

Mantle works for Del Webb's Claridge Casino Hotel and Mays for Bally's Park Place, mainly in public relations capacities, rubbing elbows and playing golf with the casinos' biggest customers. Both earn about $100,000 a year. Mays for about 10 appearances each month and Mantle for about five appearances a month.

Ueberroth said when he succeeded Kuhn as commissioner last October that he would study the cases of the two legendary outfielders. Both had held posts with their former teams. Mantle as a spring training batting instructor with the New York Yankees and Mays as a $50,000-a-year coach with the New York Mets.

BOTH HAVE occasionally appeared at Oldtimers' Games, which was allowed under Kuhn's ruling. They could not be employed by teams, however.

Yankees owner George Steinbrenner said Mantle may have been bitter about being banned, but "Mickey knows that he's welcome with the Yankees. We want him back. We'll reach out for him now.

"Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays are both welcome in Yankee Stadium."

Steinbrenner said Ueberroth's decision "just further proves" that he is a commissioner "in touch with the game."

"This was a tremendous action," Steinbrenner said. "To arbitrarily ban two of the greatest players in the history of the game because of their association with a legalized activity, while we allow fellows who were convicted of using drugs to play, I don't see the balance. I don't think justice was served. I think justice has been served right now."

Ueberroth's decision also was hailed by Yogi Berra, a Hall of Fame teammate of Mantle and now manager of the Yankees.

"It was unfair to begin with," Berra said in Winter Haven, Fla., where the Yankees were playing an exhibition game against the Boston Red Sox. "Owners own race horses. Of course, in the old days it (the suspensions by Kuhn) would have been justified, but not today.

"I'm glad for both of them."

Virginia making best of NIT bid

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press

In their first National Invitation Tournament game, the Virginia Cavaliers "won one for Jimmy." For the rest of the tourney, they're playing for the "New York Gang."

"If we get to New York, I know I'm gonna be about three stories high," said Mel Kennedy, a freshman guard for the Cavaliers who is a native of Long Island. "Maybe there we'll win for the New York gang."

Kennedy and the rest of the "New York gang," — 6-11 sophomore center Olden Polynice of New York City and 6-5 senior guard Tim Mullen of nearby Ridgewood, N.J. — hope to take a step in that direction tonight in a second-round NIT game against visiting St. Joseph's (Pa.).

Quarterfinals will be held this Saturday at sites to be determined with the semifinals and finals on March 27 and March 29 in New York.

In other second-round play tonight, it's Richmond at Indiana; Marquette at Cincinnati, New Mexico at Fresno State and Nebraska at UCLA. On Wednesday night, South Florida plays at Louisville, Southwestern Louisiana meets Tennessee and Tennessee-Chattanooga plays at Lamar.

THE CAVALIERS are still alive in the tourament by virtue of a 56-55 squeaker over West Virginia last week.

"It doesn't have to be pretty, as long as you do what it takes to win," said Jim Miller, a 6-foot-8 Virginia forward who took plenty of abuse from the Mountaineer crowd in the game at Morgantown.

Miller was the West Virginia high school player of the year four years ago as a senior at Princeton, and the crowd did not let him forget that he had left the state to play elsewhere. But the crowd's jeers motivated Miller's teammates, as well as Miller himself.

"We got there (to Morgantown) and saw how arrogant the crowd was," said Kennedy. "That was what really got us pumped up. They were all over Jimmy from the early warmups on. We came back in the locker room, and we were really pumped up. We said, 'All right, let's play some ball for Jimmy.' "

Nuggets pad lead with win over Mavs

NBA Roundup

Home is where the wins are, as far as Denver Coach Doug Moe is concerned.

"I've said all along we need to win at home and get what we can on the road," Moe said Monday night after the Nuggets held on for their 17th consecutive home-court triumph, a 113-111 victory over the Dallas Mavericks. The victory enabled them to open a 3½-game lead over idle Houston and 5½ over Dallas in the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division.

Alex English made one of two free throws to give the Nuggets their two-point lead and Wayne Cooper and Calvin Natt blocked Dallas shots in the final five seconds.

Elston Turner, traded to Denver by Dallas in the offseason, made two critical baskets and came up with a big steal in helping the Nuggets come back from a 111-106 deficit.Turner's rebound basket with 38 seconds left put Denver ahead 112-111 and he made five of seven shots while grabbing six rebounds.

"Elston Turner really played well," Moe said. "He made an unbelievable play on that rebound to put us ahead in the final minute and then (Bill) Hanzlik and Cooper and Natt all made big defensive plays in the final seconds. Hanzlik made Brad Davis give the ball up and then Cooper and Natt each got a really big block."

Natt scored 29 points to lead Denver and English added 28. Mark Aguirre's 30 led Dallas.

Clippers 136, Pistons 116

Rookie Michael Cage, starting in place of the injured Harvey Catchings, scored a season-high 22 points and Norm Nixon added 20 points and handed out a career-high 21 assists as Los Angeles broke the contest open in the third quarter. Derek Smith and Junior Bridgeman scored 20 points each but it marked the the first time in 13 games that Smith did not lead the Clippers in scoring.

Jazz 136, Warriors 125

Adrian Dantley and Darrell Griffith combined for 44 second-half points to lead Utah. Dantley scored 26 in the second half and finished with 35 while Griffith had 31 and Thurl Bailey chipped in with 26.

Purvis Short led the Warriors with 27 points.

Utah led 60-53 at the half and broke the game open with a 42-point third quarter, the Jazz's most productive period of the season.

NFL's Oilers shun Vikings' offer for Kosar

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Houston Oilers have spurned the Minnesota Vikings' attempts to trade for the National Football League draft's second choice and the chance to take University of Miami quarterback Bernie Kosar, says Vikings General Manager Mike Lynn.

Lynn said Monday night that the Oilers rejected Minnesota's offer to exchange draft choices. The Vikings have the draft's third selection, which means they still could wind up with Kosar if the Oilers decide not to trade their pick.

"We met Friday afternoon and gave them our best shot and they passed," Lynn said. "It's as simple as that. On to other things."

Lynn said his offer to Houston included only draft choices, which was not enough to suit Oilers General Manager Ladd Herzeg. Any deal for his team's pick must involve veteran players, Herzeg said last week.

The Oilers would like to draft Texas A&M defensive end Ray Childress. If the Oilers trade their second pick, the Vikings may select Childress. Pittsburgh offensive tackle Bill Fralic and Miami wide receiver Eddie Brown are other players the Vikings are likely to consider choosing.

"We'll pick third and pick who's ever there," Lynn said.

Lynn said the Vikings withdrew their offer to Houston. "There's no coming back and saying, 'We'll take the proposal,' " he said.

The Vikings reportedly were one of seven teams that told the Oilers they were interested in a trade and the chance to select Kosar, who announced Thursday that he will end his college career at Miami to become eligible for the draft.

The Oilers are in a position to field trade offers because the Buffalo Bills already have used the first choice to sign Virginia Tech defensive tackle Bruce Smith.

Other teams reportedly interested in trading with Houston are the Atlanta Falcons, who draft fourth in the first round, the Indianapolis Colts (fifth), the Cleveland Browns (seventh), the Philadelphia Eagles (ninth), the Los Angeles Rams (21st) and the Los Angeles Raiders (23rd).

Kosar, who grew up in Boardman, Ohio, said last week that he would like to play for the Browns, a team he followed "my whole life."

Boston losing runners

BOSTON (AP) — There may be fewer runners in the prestigious Boston Marathon this year than in any year since 1980.

Officials of the Boston Athletic Association learned Monday that only 5,000 entries had been received for the race next month.

"The deadline (for official entries) passed last Saturday night, but we are still hoping to pick up another 1,000 entries that could still be in the mails," Guy Morse, administrator of the race, told The Boston Globe.

Last year, there were 6,500 entries, and the year before, 6,600.

"The numbers of entries in all marathons has been going down," said Morse.

'French Connection' tied atop tight Adams race

Associated Press

NHL Roundup

The torrid race in the National Hockey League's Adams Division has grown even hotter with a first-place French Connection.

The Quebec Nordiques and Montreal Canadiens are tied for the lead after Quebec whipped the Boston Bruins 8-4 Monday night as Michel Goulet scored three goals and Wilf Paiement added a pair.

"It was a very important game," said Quebec's Peter Stastny, who had a goal and four assists, three of them on the goals by Goulet. "If we had lost, Boston could have been close to us, and with 10 games left anything could happen."

The Nordiques and Montreal are one point ahead of Buffalo, with Boston seven in back of the leaders.

QUEBEC LED 3-2 after one period and 6-3 after two against Boston goalie Doug Keans, who had allowed just nine goals in winning his last five games.Goulet scored twice with a man advantage and raised his total for the season to 48 goals, including 14 on power plays.

Paiement and Anton Stastny scored before Steve Kasper's fifth short-handed goal of the season cut Quebec's lead to 2-1 at 8:30 of the opening period. Goulet and Boston's Charlie Simmer, who scored twice, traded power-play goals before Goulet connected on another power play to make it 4-2 at 3:30 of the second period.

Paiement scored on a 20-foot backhander midway through the period and Boston's Ray Bourque retaliated with a power-play goal, but Goulet got it back when he completed his hat trick on a 25-foot wrist shot from the slot.

"We were hungry," said Quebec Coach Michel Bergeron. "We're playing in a tough division, but we're hoping to finish first."

"We didn't move nearly as quickly as we've been moving," said Boston Coach Harry Sinden. "We didn't break out of our end as we should have. We shouldn't have been out of gas. We didn't work out yesterday (Sunday)."

Maple Leafs 4, Blues 3

Toronto's Dan Daoust tied the score with 24 seconds left in regulation time and John Anderson scored his second goal of the game 1:45 into overtime as the Maple Leafs broke a six-game losing streak. Daoust got the Maple Leafs even during a goal-mouth scramble after Toronto pulled goaltender Tim Bernhardt in favor of an extra attacker.

All the other goals were scored in the second period. Anderson gave Toronto a brief lead before Greg Paslawski, Joey Mullen and Doug Gilmour scored in a six-minute splurge for St. Louis. Toronto made it 3-2 at 18:33 of the period when Vaive was given credit for a goal after Rob Ramage's clearing attempt struck teammate Brian Sutter's leg and caromed into the Blues' net.

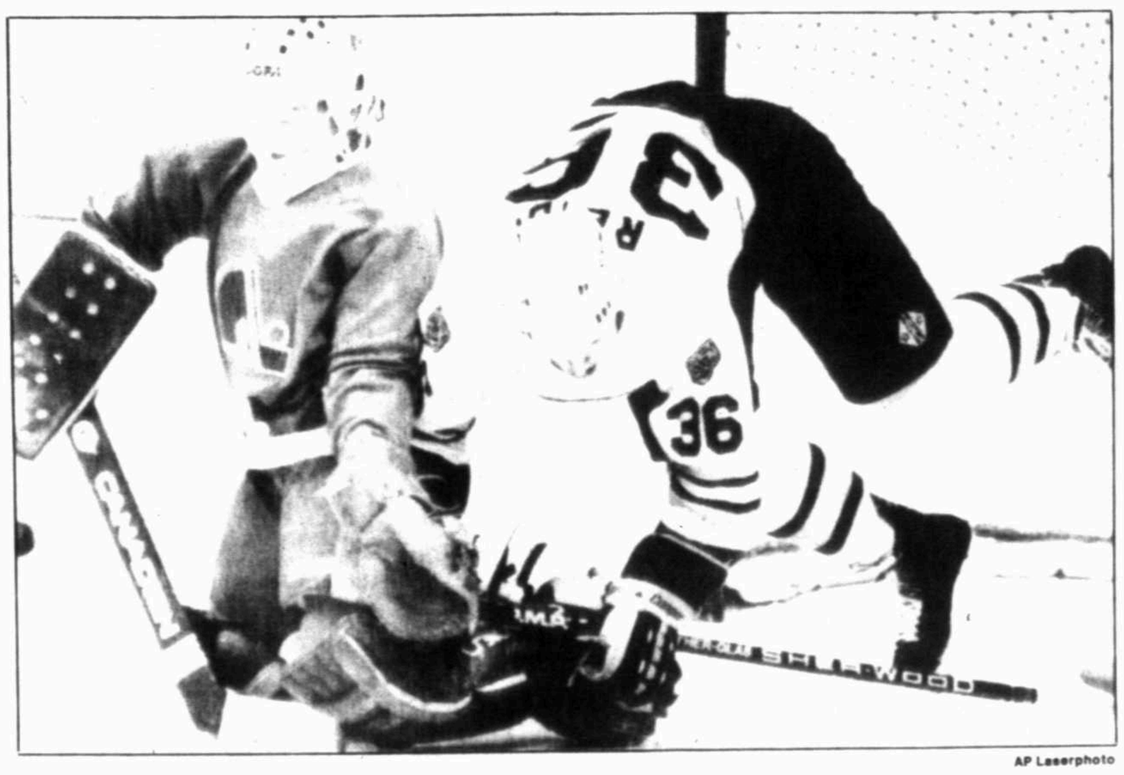

Despite the setback, St. Louis maintained a four-point lead over second-place Chicago in the Norris Division but Coach Jacques Demers said "it hurts when you lose two points like that to a team that's not even going to make the playoffs."

Flames 4, North Stars 4

Third-period power-play goals by Dirk Graham and Gordy Roberts 2:23 apart rallied Minnesota. The North Stars trailed 4-2 entering the third period but Neal Broten fed Graham a backhand pass that he swept past Calgary goalie Reggie Lemelin at 8:19.At 10:42, Roberts took a slapshot from the point.

Lemelin knocked the shot down, but as the puck trickled along the goal line Flames defenseman Paul Reinhart accidentally knocked it in with his skate.

Calgary held a 4-1 lead after the first period.

Larry Holmes exits ring as winner

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

In the absence of some philanthropic promoter — is that a conflict in terms? — pressing $4 or $5 million in Larry Holmes' fist to fight Michael Spinks, we have seen the end of one of boxing's truly remarkable careers.

Larry Holmes is going out on top, the way a great champion should.

There will be no sordid, second-rate promotions like the melancholy one that marked a sad end for a used-up Muhammad Ali a few years ago. Holmes will not wind up flat on his back the way Joe Louis and Roberto Duran did.

When Willie Mays left baseball, he was circling unsteadily under routine fly balls. Joe Namath and Johnny Unitas were sideline caddies for other quarterbacks in their last days in professional football.

That's not the way a legend should end up. It is not the way Larry Holmes will leave.

Instead, he goes with the memory of an impressive victory over David Bey in his 19th defense of boxing's most glamorous title. He wasn't perfect, Friday night, but he was close enough.

HOLMES PROBABLY could stay that way for a while longer and cash in on a few more paydays. But why ask for trouble? Why take the chance? Why not leave with the memory of greatness still intact?

Ironically, he is walking away at a time when boxing really could use his stature. His departure leaves Greg Page and Pinklon Thomas, fine fellows but hardly boxing legends, as the remaining heavyweight champions. They hold the World Boxing Association and World Boxing Council titles that have been rotated among a variety of fighters like Michael Dokes, Tim Witherspoon, Gerrie Coetzee, and Mike Weaver over the last few years.

Throughout that time, the heavyweight division's cornerstone has been Larry Holmes, undefeated champion for almost seven years. He ranks among the great ones.

"I'd put him third," said his trainer Eddie Futch, who has seen them all. "Joe (Louis), Ali and Larry."

THAT IS fast company but Holmes belongs there. He has beaten everyone he's fought and rarely has he looked better that he did against Bey in defense of his International Boxing Federation title. Futch, often hard to please, was more than satisfied.

"The last time he was this sharp was the Cooney fight," he said.

That was three years ago against Gerry Cooney. It was also the last time Holmes had any real incentive. The Cooney bout produced record purses for both fighters and with them, appropriate hype. There also was, sadly in this day and age of supposed racial enlightenment, the black-white issue.

Since then, Holmes often has seemed uninspired against a variety of so-what opponents. He even found himself in a bit of trouble, his title in jeopardy last November against Bonecrusher Smith, who is hardly headed for boxing's Hall of Fame.

That lackluster show may have fired Holmes up, inspired him to reach back into his reservoir of ability one last time. When he did, it provided a boxing lesson for Bey. It was a textbook demonstration of this often brutal business.

HOLMES WAS a craftsman at work, using the best left jab in boxing to beat a steady tattoo on Bey's face.

Over and over, the jab would jump out at Bey, like the tongue of a snake seeking its prey, striking and then retreating, preparing for its next assault.

In Holmes' corner, Eddie Futch glowed at the show.

"I wasn't surprised at how good he looked," Futch said. "His last two weeks of sparring indicated it. He executed well, stayed in the center of the ring, didn't go to the ropes."

Under the circumstances, with Holmes looking so good, would Futch like him to stick around a while longer? The old man smiled.

"He's not done," Futch said, "but I think he's retired."

If he is, it was the best possible way to go out.

Upsets mark 1st round of Slims tournament

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Czechoslovakia's Helena Sukova called it luck that she escaped the upset bug that swept through the opening night of play in the $500,000 Virginia Slims Tennis Championships at Madison Square Garden.

Seeded fifth in the season-ending tournament, Sukova edged her doubles teammate, Claudia Kohde-Kilsch 7-6, 7-6 to advance to the second round of this elite 16-woman field where she will face Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden.

"It was maybe more luck on my side," Sukova said. "You miss a few shots and it's over."

Lindqvist began the upset parade by knocking off fourth-seeded Wendy Turnbull of Australia 3-6, 6-2, 6-2. Then Kathy Rinaldi advanced with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over No. 8 Carling Bassett of Canada.

Tonight, Chris Evert Lloyd, the No. 2 seed, takes on Kathy Jordan and third-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia plays Andrea Temesvari of Hungary.

The defending champion and top seed, Martina Navratilova, will see her first-round action Wednesday when she faces Lisa Bonder. The first round will be completed that night as No. 6 Manuela Maleeva.

American League the next stop for ex-Japanese League pitcher?

Associated Press

Major-league life may be about to begin at 36 for Yutaka Enatsu.

After 18 years pitching for Hanshin, Nankai, Hiroshima, Nippon and Seibu in the Japanese League, the 36-year-old Enatsu is trying to hurl his way onto the Milwaukee Brewers this spring.

On Monday, he became a winner for the first time in the United States in a 4-2 exhibition victory over the Seattle Mariners when the Brewers overcame a 2-1 deficit with a two-run sixth inning. Enatsu gave up one hit in two innings of scoreless relief and is unscored upon in four innings.

"I think he's got a good chance," said Manager George Bamberger. "He's pitched as well as anybody else. What did I say his chances were — 50-50 last week? Well, it's 60-40 now."

Ted Simmons, who did the catching for the Brewers, was impressed with the 5-foot-11, 185-pound lefthander.

"The man is a big-league pitcher, plain and simple," Simmons said. "I don't know what they are going to do, but the guy can pitch in the big leagues and get people out."

Rollie Fingers, who missed the last two months of the 1984 season because of back surgery, pitched the ninth inning in his first exhibition appearance of the season. He gave up an infield hit and struck out one.

Seattle outfielder Donell Nixon fractured two bones in his lower left leg when he crashed into the outfield fence chasing a fly ball.

Another group of Brewers lost to the Chicago Cubs 6-3 as Ryne Sandberg, the National league's Most Valuable Player in 1984, collected three hits, including his first home run of the spring. The victory, coupled with a split-squad 6-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians, improved the Cubs' spring record to 8-3, surpassing their victory total for all of last spring when they finished 7-20.

Sandberg entered Monday's game hitting just .222 with one extra-base hit — a double — and no RBIs.

Exhibition Baseball

"He kept asking for extra batting practice and we kept giving it to him," said Manager Jim Frey.

Thad Bosley hit a two-run homer and an RBI single and Reggie Patterson pitched four scoreless innings in the Cubs' game with Cleveland. Rookie Jon Perlman finished up by pitching three scoreless innings.

THE CALIFORNIA Angels pounded Oakland's Mike Warren for seven runs in the second inning and three in the third en route to a 14-5 victory over the A's. Reggie Jackson hit his first spring homer and drove in three runs for the Angels.

First baseman Daryl Sconiers finally showed up in the Angels' camp and told team officials he had a "substance problem." Sconiers and the Angels agreed he should meet with Dr. Gerald Roznasky of the Life Start Program at Centinela Hospital in Inglewood, Calif., to determine if he needs further help.

"I want all of you to know I've had a substance problem. I feel it's under control now. At this time, I feel that is all I have to say," Sconiers said.

Paul O'Neill's three-run homer highlighted a four-run seventh inning that carried the Cincinnati Reds to a 7-4 victory over the Houston Astros.

Wayne Tolleson squeezed home Tommy Dunbar to cap a two-run ninth-inning rally that gave the Texas Rangers a 4-3 triumph over the Atlanta Braves.

Fernando Valenzuela displayed midseason form, yielding one hit — Dave Hostetler's second-inning single — in five innings and Pedro Guerrero homered as the Los Angeles Dodgers blanked the Montreal Expos 2-0.

"Usually, I'm working on my pitches and control in the spring, but today my screwball was hitting the corners," said Valenzuela. "My arm feels good, better than usual."

The New York Yankees, who lost their first six games, made it four victories in a row against major-league opposition by edging the Boston Red Sox 2-1 on Andre Robertson's eighth-inning homer. Robertson also tripled and scored in the third inning while Dennis Rasmussen, Alfonso Pulido and Rich Bordi scattered eight Boston hits.

Mike Laga belted a two-run homer and Chris Pittaro had four hits to lead the Detroit Tigers over the Philadelphia Phillies 8-6. The Tigers took the lead for good in the second inning when Laga delivered a long blast over the center-field wall off Kevin Gross.

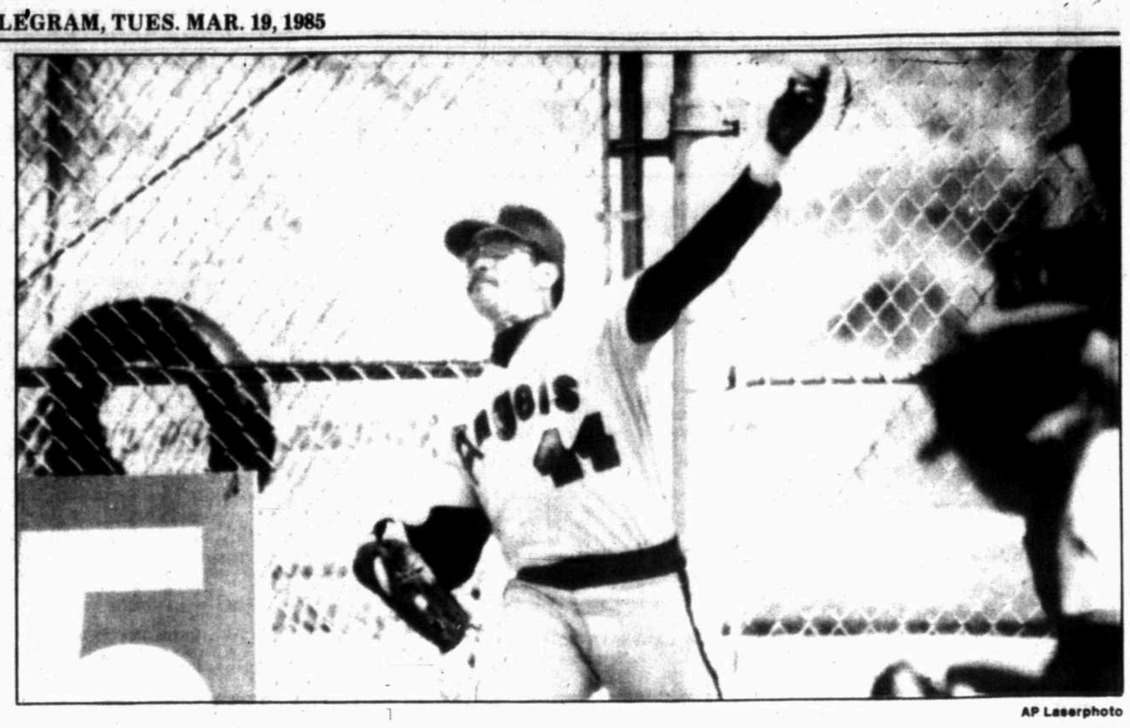

Ron Jackson, a non-roster player, slammed a two-run homer to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-1 victory over Toronto and hand the Blue Jays their first loss in 10 exhibition games.Jackson connected off Dennis Lamp in the sixth inning while Brian Harper homered in the fourth off Jimmy Key.

BUDDY BIANCALANA singled home the tie-breaking run in the 12th inning and scored on a double by Mike Brewer as the Kansas City Royals beat the Baltimore Orioles 8-6.

Home runs by Luis Salazar, Harold Baines and Daryl Boston powered the Chicago White Sox to a 6-2 victory over the New York Mets. Salazar and Baines hit successive homers off Sid Fernandez in the first inning while Boston's homer off Brent Gaff in the fifth was his second in two days.

Dan Gladden and Chili Davis hit solo home runs to lead the San Francisco Giants over the San Diego Padres 4-1. Gladden opened the game with a homer off Mark Thurmond and Davis connected in the eighth off Craig Lefferts.

San Diego outfielder Carmelo Martinez underwent surgery Monday to repair a damaged bone in his left hand and probably will miss the season opener. Martinez injured the hand playing winter ball and apparently aggravated it during spring training.

Myers awarded raise, extension

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech basketball coach Gerald Myers, who guided the Red Raiders to both the Southwest Conference regular season and postseason tournament titles, was awarded a two-year extension of his contract and a "substantial raise," the school announced Monday.

Myers' contract at Tech now runs through the 1992 season, athletic director John Conley said.

"We are very proud of the coaching staff and the team this year," said Conley. "This is the best way I can think of to show our appreciation."

Myers' assistant coaches also received raises, he said.

The Red Raiders finished the year with a 23-8 record after being eliminated by Boston College in the first round of the NCAA tournament.

Hurricanes top collegiate poll

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Miami, Fla., off to a 28-5 start, is the latest team to gain the No. 1 berth in the ESPN-Collegiate Baseball poll.

The Hurricanes, winners of 18 straight, bumped Mississippi State, which fell to fifth with a 14-2 record, from the top spot.

Texas, 31-3, which has won 22 in a row, moved from third to second, followed by Oklahoma, 16-1. The Sooners' only loss this year has been to Texas.

Moving from fifth to fourth was Stanford, 20-5.

In sixth, up from seventh, was Arkansas, 16-4, while Pepperdine, 18-5-1 improved from ninth to seventh; Georgia Tech, 14-2, remained in eighth; Florida, 21-5, climbed from 12th to ninth and Houston, 20-2, stayed No. 10.

Rounding out the top 20 were Wichita State, 25-4; Oklahoma State, 13-6-1; Arizona, 27-9; California, 21-9; Louisiana State, 12-4; Hawaii, 26-9; Missouri, 14-0; Michigan, 1-0; Nebraska, 10-3, and Florida State, 23-10.

Andrews softball tourney scheduled

Andrews will host a Men's Slow Pitch Softball tournament March 29-30. The entry fee is $80 and the field will be limited to 16 teams. Call 523-7464 or 523-9126 for more information.

Fitness program set

From Staff Reports

The grade-schoolers at Bowie Elementary are getting physical and they want all parents and interested parties to join them.

A physical fitness program performed by the students entitled "Let's Be Physical" will be shown tonight at 7:30 in the Bowie cafeteria. Sports from aerobics to football will be covered in an attempt to coax parents into joining the spring fitness craze. The performance is open to the general public and everyone is encouraged to attend.

MARKETS

MONEY

Dollar falls

LONDON (AP) — The dollar tumbled today for a second straight day in the wake of the banking crisis in Ohio. Gold prices surged back over $300 an ounce for the first time in nearly a month.

Dealers said the markets were extremely nervous over the closure last Friday of 70 Ohio savings and loan associations following a run on the institutions by depositors.

Hastening the decline was a general feeling that the dollar, after a nearly month-long record-breaking spree in February, needed to retrench.

A big beneficiary of the dollar's weakness was the British pound, which shot up three cents Monday by the close in New York and was another 1½ cents higher by midmorning today in London. It was quoted at $1.1318, compared with $1.10625 late Monday in London.

Adding to the market bullishness on sterling was speculation about the Conservative government's annual budget, to be unveiled by Chancellor of the Exchequer Nigel Lawson later today. He was expected to keep the ledger trim to avoid undercutting the currency.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar fell to a closing 259.50 yen from Monday's 260.35. In later European trading the dollar was quoted at 258.60 yen.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Monday:

–3.3150 West German marks, down from 3.3505.

–2.8015 Swiss francs, down from 2.8620.

–10.0650 French francs, down from 10.2410.

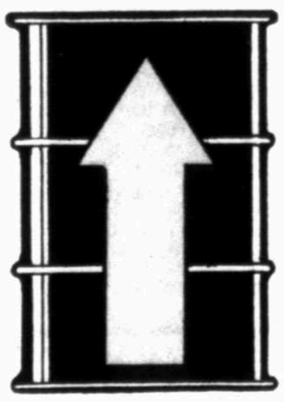

–3.7480 Dutch guilders, down from 3.7920.

–2,101.00 Italian lire, down from 2,120.00.

–1.37800 Canadian dollars, down from 1.38225.

Gold prices, meanwhile, benefited from the dollar's weakness.

Buyback offer prompts Phillips stock to tumble

NEW YORK (AP) — An announcement by Phillips Petroleum Co. that its $4.5 billion stock buyback program had been oversubscribed sent the Bartlesville, Okla., company's stock tumbling in heavy trading.

Phillips, which had offered to exchange 72.58 million shares of its stock for securities worth $62 a share, said approximately 133 million shares were tendered in response.

As a result, only 54 percent of the shares tendered will be accepted and the remaining shares will be returned at a later date.

With no more stock eligible for what was viewed as an attractive offer, the market's assessment of the remaining shares declined, said Sanford Margoshes, an analyst at Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc.

Phillips opened on Monday at $36.75 a share, down $12.37½ from Friday's close. But it later recovered some of the lost ground to finish Monday's session down $4.62½ at $44.50 a share, with almost 1.7 illion shares changing hands on the New York Stock Exchange.

Meanwhile, the shares that were tendered to Phillips that were not eligible for the offer and not yet returned to Phillips' shareholders were trading at $36.75 a share on a when-distributed basis.

The slide was not a surprise. Phillips had advised its shareholders that investors who did not take advantage of the offer were "likely to be immediately disadvantaged" once the deal was concluded.

Phillips launched the stock buyback offer earlier this month in response to a hostile takeover attempt by New York financier Carl Icahn, who then agreed to drop his bid.

Shareholders had until midnight Friday to accept the offer if they wanted to be guaranteed that at least a portion of their shares would be accepted.

As a result of the huge response to the offer, a shareholder who had tendered 1,000 shares of stock to Phillips would be able to exchange 540 shares for securities valued at $62 a share, or $33,480. The shareholder also would still hold 460 shares of Phillips' stock, which at Monday's closing price would be worth $20,470. The blended value of those 1,000 shares would come to nearly $54 a share.

On Friday, when Phillips' stock closed at $49.12½ a share, the package would have been worth slightly more than $56 a share, close to Phillips' own estimates.

But some security industry analysts had put a lower price tag on the deal because of the impact of the heavy debt load on Phillips' future operations.

Phillips said the preliminary count was supplied by its exchange agent, Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York, and that the figures still must be verified. It said it expected to announce a definitive figure on the percentage of stock to be repurchased by March 27 and that it would begin delivering the new securities as soon as practicable after that announcement.

There were 154.6 million shares of Phillips stock outstanding when the offer was made. But Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr., who led an earlier attempt to acquire Phillips, agreed to sell his group's 8.9 million shares back to the company at $53 a share in a cash.

Tradeshow Midland opens today in center

From Staff Reports

In an effort to promote Midland businesses, Tradeshow Midland will open at 5 p.m. today at the Midland Center during the Chamber of Commerce's "Business After Hours."

The show will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday. It is sponsored by the Midland Chamber of Commerce and the Small Business Council.

Visitors will be allowed to test and become familiar with the products and services Midland has to offer without pressure from sales persons. No selling will be allowed on the show floor.

"The show makes a statement to the business community that you should shop Midland first," said Jerry King, show co-chairman.

During the boom, Midland grew so fast that it did not have many businesses that people wanted, he said.

For example, King said Midland did not have enough firms during the boom to keep up with the city's demand for landscaping for its newly-built businesses.

"Now, we are back to normal. We now have many types of businesses," he said.

Last year, 2,000 people attended the show. This year, the chamber expects many more.

Profits from the show will benefit the chamber and the Small Business Council.

Fifty-four businesses will participate in the show. Computer firms, financial institutions, stockbrokers, office machines and furniture, the media, data systems firms are all included in the event.

In addition, a special exhibit on Texas Sesquicentennial commemorative items that have been commissioned by the State. The items are highly valued with some reaching $3,000. The items include bronze, silver and gold sesquicentennial coins, belt buckles, rugs, watches, wall clocks, swords, guns and knives.

Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste seeks suppport from a group of Cincinnati civic leaders Monday afternoon. He is trying to put a bill through the state legislature concerning the 70 savings and loan associations that remain closed in Ohio.

Network merger may not affect ABC programming

NEW YORK (AP) — "Dynasty" will still be "Dynasty" and viewers probably will notice no changes after Capital Cities Communications Inc. acquires the larger American Broadcasting Cos. for $3.5 billion, say analysts who see clear sailing for the proposed deal.

The merger, announced Monday, would represent the first time ownership of a major television network has changed hands. The creation of Capital Cities-ABC Inc. must be approved by shareholders of both companies and includes participation by Warren Buffett, one of the nation's richest men.

ABC, which had been a rumored takeover target for months, had been a strong second in prime-time TV ratings in recent years, but slid into third in the current season. However, its daytime TV operations remain highly profitable, analysts say, and it has 214 affiliated stations nationwide.

"I'd be surprised if the viewer is affected at all," Susan V. Watson, a security analyst for Morgan Stanley & Co., said Monday. "This is really more a corporate question. It never shows with the viewer when the (broadcasting) stock goes up or down, and this should be no different."

ABC has television and radio operations and also is involved in publishing, video enterprises, motion pictures and scenic attractions. Capital Cities owns newspapers, TV and radio stations and cable TV systems.

"We just thought it was a natural fit between the two companies," said Thomas S. Murphy, head of Capital Cities, "and we thought we'd have an opportunity to handle the new possibilities coming up in the electronics field better together."

ABC chief Leonard Goldenson said, "I feel that the company I built from scratch is in good hands and that it will be carried on, and that's important to me." Goldenson, 79, had headed ABC since 1953 and built the network from a weak third to a challenger for the top spot.

Buffett, 54, a resident of Omaha, Neb., made his fortune, estimated at $665 million, by investing in media operations. The chairman of Berkshire Hathaway Inc., he would put up more than $500 million in exchange for an 18 percent stake in Capital Cities and a seat on its board.

Other analysts agreed that the takeover would not affect programming, which last year included heavily watched Olympic coverage.

Officials reject bill helping savings and loans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The state Senate early today rejected a House-approved bill to help 69 savings and loan associations reopen with federal protection, while angry depositers questioned Gov. Richard Celeste over the failure of Home State Savings Bank.

Celeste, who on Friday ordered the savings and loans closed for three days to protect them against a run by depositors, on Monday extended the so-called bank holiday for 48 hours to give lawmakers time to work.

The state House then approved 85-2 a bill that would force the thrifts to become part of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. But the Senate adjourned early today after lawmakers couldn't agree on whether to make FSLIC membership mandatory.

Celeste ordered the state's 70 privately insured thrifts shut down after a run triggered by the Cincinnati-based Home State's March 8 closing in the wake of revelations it could lose millions in the failure of ESM Government Securities Inc. of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The run jeopardized the assets of the Ohio Deposit Guarantee Fund, which provides private deposit insurance to state-chartered S&Ls. About 125 federally insured institutions are not affected and remain open.

One of the 70 closed institutions, Columbia Savings and Loan Co. of Cincinnati, opened Monday as a member of the FSLIC.

The governor took heat for the Home State situation during his monthly statewide radio call-in program Monday night. He tried to reassure depositors of the closed S&Ls he was doing everything he could to get them re-opened.

One caller, identified only as Bob from Youngstown, termed the bank crisis Celeste's "own Watergate" because Home State is owned by Marvin Warner, a political associate of Celeste's.

Celeste told the caller he would support appointment of a special prosecutor to investigate the closing of Home State, which had invested about 60 percent of its $1 billion assets in the collapsed Florida firm.

House debate on the legislation prompted an angry floor speech by Speaker Vern Riffe Jr. after Rep. Thomas P. Gilmartin suggested that only a handful of institutions would benefit from it.

"We do this to people who've been fair and just and honorable and good taxpayers," Riffe said. "It's a proposal to help people to get the institutions reopened," and to give the public confidence, he said.

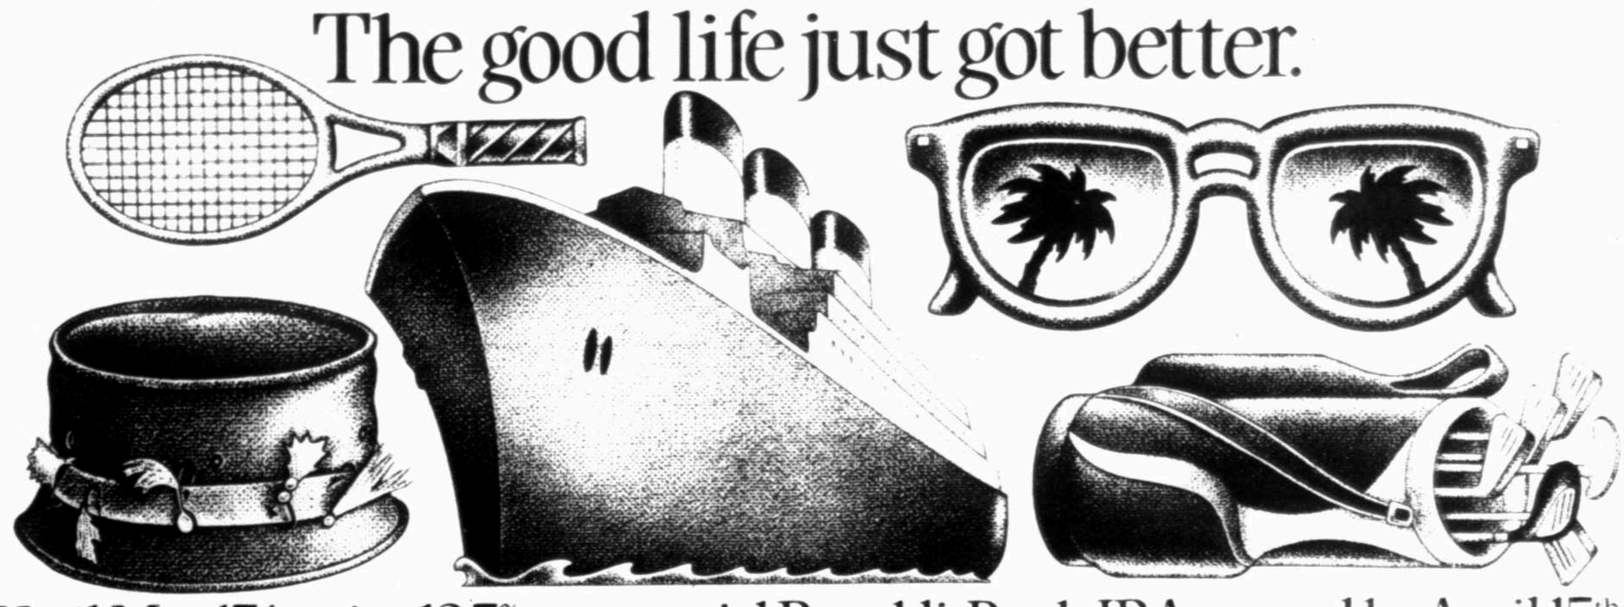

About 2,500 Home State depositors met Monday night in the Sinclair Community College gymnasium in Cincinnati to plan a Wednesday motorcade to show Celeste they will fight for their money.

Organizer Fred Kaufman received deafening applause when he began by saying he didn't know anything about finances "except I put my money in the bank and I'd like to draw it out."

Some callers to Celeste's show were supportive.

Mary Lou Dehler, 54, of Cincinnati — who spent 19 hours in front of Molitor Loan and Building Co. on Thursday and Friday — said Monday she has only $50 left in cash but "everything is going to be OK."

OIL & GAS REPORT

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Howard well flows 368 barrels

From Staff Reports

A Howard County wildcat re-entry has resulted in a prolific completion for HENDON EXPLORATION INC., Midland, and could result in a Canyon Reef oil play.

Hendon completed its No.1 Hopper, in the Three 50 field, to flow 368 bopd of 44.6 API crude with 460 Mcfd gas and no water on a 20/64 in. choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 900 psi and a GOR of 1250:1.

Originally drilled by Henry Petroleum, Midland, as the No.1 Hopper, the well was plugged and abandoned by Henry in March 1984 following a DST of the completed Canyon interval.

Acting on information from industry sources, and utilizing consultants and in-house engineering talent to perform additional calculations on the original DST, Hendon acquired the well bore from Henry and used that firm's logs to re-complete the well.

According to Hendon engineer, Timothy Hartsfield, Henry had done a "fine" job of plugging the well and the rig was on and off the well within a week. Casing was set to 9,127 ft., with a plugged back depth at 9,156. Perforations were shot at 8,760-8,722 ft. and the well flowed naturally.

Formation tops were reported at: Lower Spraberry, 6,180; Dean, 6,852; Wolfcamp, 7,068; Cisco, 8,100; Canyon, 8,562; Strawn, 8,802; Atoka, 9,005; Mississippi, 9,150; Woodford, 9,479; Fusselman, 9,542.

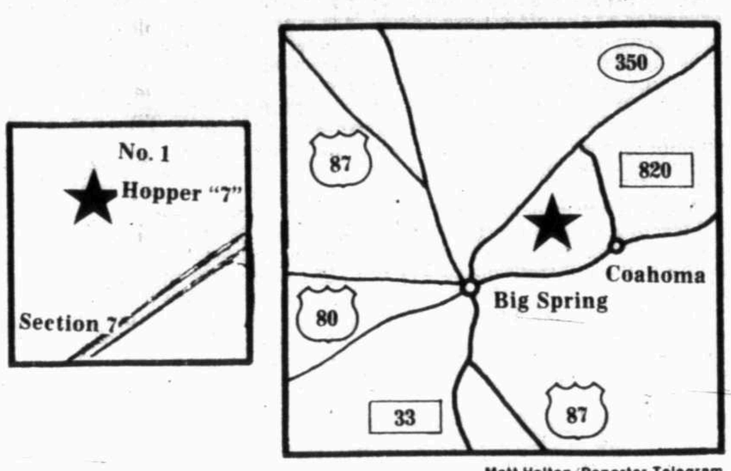

Location for the well is 1,980 ft. from north and east lines of Section 7, Block 31, T-1-N, T&P survey, 8 miles northeast of Big Spring.

While Hendon Exploration was working independently, other operators were also taking a second look at the Canyon in the Three 50 field.

As reported by the Reporter-Telegram last Friday, OGR INC., Midland, re-opened Canyon production in the Three 50 field with its No.1 Christian Big Spring, which was located 1,600 ft. from south and 840 ft. from west lines of Section 48, Block 32, T-2, T&P survey, 8 miles northwest of Big Spring. The well flowed 168 bopd of 40.64 API crude through a 20/64 in. choke with 232 Mcfd gas and 90 bwpd from perforations at 8,614-8,622 ft.

An offset to the Hendon well is also reported to be a Canyon completion.

Conyon production was opened in the Three 50 field, May 1981, by IMC Exploration Inc., Shreveport, La., which finaled the No.1 Davis for 75 bopd on a 22/64 in. choke.

Matt Holten/Reporter-Telegram

Wolfcamp producer flows 12 Mmcf daily

MOBIL PRODUCING TX & NM, Inc., Houston, has completed a prolific Wolfcamp gas well in the Coyanosa field of Pecos County.

The No. 904 Coyanosa Wolfcamp Unit tested for an absolute open flow of 12 Mmcf with a flowing tubing pressure of 3,440 psi. The well is flowing from Wolfcamp interval 10,120 to 10,260 ft., which had been acidized with 8,500 gallons of 15 percent NeFe.

Drilled to 10,400 ft., the plugback depth is 10,374 ft. A 5 1/2 inch liner was hung from 8,942 to 10,400 ft.

Mexico oil production rises, reserves down

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexico's oil production rose and reserves declined, both slightly, in 1984, in a world oil market that "is characterized by its fragility," the director of the government oil monopoly Pemex said Monday in delivering its annual report.

Pemex Director Mario Ramon Beteta spoke at a ceremony marking the 47th anniversary of the expropriation of the foreign oil companies. The report of the company, whose full name is Petroleos Mexicanos, traditionally is released on the anniversary.

Beteta called the Nov. 19 explosions at a Pemex distribution and storage installation in the heavily populated San Juan Ixhuatepec neighborhood in the outskirts of Mexico City "an unpredictable and sudden occurrence."

In a speech, he said the company will avoid allowing human settlements near its installations. At least 490 people were killed and hundreds of others burned in the early morning explosions and fire.

Acknowledging that location of another facility, the huge March 18 refinery, storage and distribution center in Azcapotzalco, in an even more populated part of the capital, "provokes an understandable uneasiness among people who live near it and the authorities of the capital," he said the installations will gradually be dispersed.

By the end of President Miguel de la Madrid's term, in December 1988, processing of crude oil at the plant will be reduced by half and the groundwork will be laid for its conversion to risk-free operations, Beteta said.

The Pemex official said it was becoming more difficult and more costly for Mexico to maintain a level of 72 billion barrels of reserves. Mexico is the world's fourth biggest producer of crude oil.

To maintain the level, Beteta said, "We have to discover and prove each year the equivalent of more than two fields classified as giant, reserves that are discovered in the world only once in a while."

As of Dec. 31, 1984, reserves were estimated at 71.75 billion barrels, down from 72.5 billion a year earlier, he said.

"Although this decline does not represent even 1 percent, it gives us reason to reflect on the future," he said.

Crude oil production averaged 2.7 million barrels a day, .7 percent more than in 1983, he said. Gas production was 3.75 billion cubic feet per day, 7.4 percent less than a year earlier.

Despite a 100,000 barrel a day reduction in exports in cooperation with an OPEC decision last October, Beteta said the company expects to hold its crude oil exports this year at the target level of 1.5 million barrels a day it has maintained since 1982.

Crude oil exports last year were 1.53 million barrels a day, 59 percent in heavy Mayan crude and 41 percent in the light isthmus grade.

The United States was Mexico's largest oil customer, buying 49 percent of its exports, followed by Spain and Japan, he said. The sales were to 45 clients in 22 countries.

Mexico is not a member of Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, but has followed its pricing and production levels. It sells on long-term contracts and has a policy of not disrupting the international market.

Imports of natural gas, petroleum products and petrochemicals totaled $15.7 billion, up .7 percent over 1983.

"I think initially the operaton will be run to stabilize things to keep things running successfully," said J. Kendrick Noble Jr., an analyst with PaineWebber Inc. "I don't think Capital Cities will do much to change progammming at ABC."

Fred Anschel, an analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., said he thought changes would be "evolutionary."

"Remember Capital Cities has four (ABC) affiliates and their prime job is to compete with NBC and CBS," Anschel said.

Both Noble and Anschel said the deal would have little trouble gaining regulatory approval.

"The character and reputation of the parties concerned is a factor in it," said Noble.

The two companies said Goldenson would serve as chairman of the executive committee of the proposed new company.

Murphy, 59, Capital Cities chairman and chief executive officer, would hold the same titles at the new company.

ABC and Capital Cities said shareholders of both companies would consider the deal at their annual meetings in June.

Under the agreement, approved by the boards of directors of both companies, each ABC shareholder would receive, per share, $118 in cash plus a tenth of a warrant allowing the purchase of Capital Cities common stock for $250 a share.

The companies said that including the warrant provision, the deal was worth $121 a share. ABC has 29.1 million shares oustanding.

ABC stock closed Monday at $105.75 on the New York Stock Exchange, up $31.25 from Friday. Capital Cities was up $7.50 at $183.50.

Capital Cities earned $135.2 million on revenue of $939.7 million last year. ABC earned $195 million on revenue of $3.7 billion.

Unocal president blasts 'me-first' raiders

HOUSTON (AP) — The president of Unocal, the target of a stock buy-up plan headed by corporate raider T. Boone Pickens, criticized what he called the "me-first" approach of many "financial takeover artists."

Many corporate raiders say they are working for the good of stockholders, but such claims are often "self-serving and ridiculous," Unocal chairman and President Fred L. Hartley said Monday.

Mesa Partners II, an Amarillo group headed by Pickens, announced last month it acquired 9.7 percent of Unocal's 173.7 million shares. The group has said it intends to spend $1.2 billion acquiring Unocal stock, which is about 15 percent of the company.

Some takeovers and buyouts are justified, Hartley told representatives at a Natural Gas Processors Association Meeting in Houston.

However, he said, "when a strong company making profitable, long-term investments is threatened by financial takeover artists and bankers to make a short-term profit, we all lose."

"These people are me-firsters to the extreme. Junk-financed raiders may pretend they want to exercise control, but they get in, drive money in circles to get richer off transactions and get out," Hartley said. "This approach destroys independence, long-term investment and entrepreneurship.

"We must eliminate the legal frictions and tax code twists that facilitate the destruction of productive companies by raiders and financiers who seek to profit through schemes, deals and fast shuffles rather than any contribution to society and the economy as a whole," he said.

Hartley said the energy industry must have a long-range perspective and "keep working for the future instead of just thinking of today."

Unocal, the parent company of Union Oil Co. of California, has operations in crude oil, natural gas and coal and manufacturer other energy industry-related products.

Judge allows Continental jet purchase

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — A federal bankruptcy judge Monday gave Continental Airlines permission to enter long-term subleases for four aircraft, dismissing the carrier's creditors' requests that they be paid first.

But, the judge temporarily halted Continental's attempt to purchase a majority interest in Air Micronesia, a carrier serving Pacific islands. He planned to meet with the parties involved on Wednesday.

Continental, which is attempting to emerge from a Chapter 11 reorganization, had asked permission to lease 30 Boeing 737-300 jets for 18 years. The leases would have cost $72 million annually.

The airline needs to expand its fleet to keep up with a more modern industry and to lower operating costs, said Continental president Phil Bakes in testimony before Judge Glover Roberts.

The airline owes creditors about $900 million despite a profitable 1984.

During hearings here and in Houston, attorneys for creditors of the bankrupt airline fought the purchase.

They tried to convince Roberts that the purchase was risky and insisted on seeing the airline's plan to repay its debts before a fleet expansion was allowed, court records show.

In issuing an interim order, Roberts said he would prepare an additional order within 90 days that may or may not allow the purchase of more aircraft by Continental.

Continental's financial history was a major factor in his decision to limit the purchase of aircraft, Roberts noted in his opinion.

"With the unique history of Continental Airlines over the past five years," the judge said, "the only meaningful analysis of the financial and operational track record should begin in January 1984, a point where ownership and management is common with today."

However, Roberts wrote he was reluctant to grant Contintental's request for the 30 aircraft.

Because of the "relatively short, albeit somewhat successful, track record" of Continental, the judge said, "a longer period of time must lapse before final consideration of the debtor's request can be made."

The agreement involves Continental and Texas Air Corp., which owns about 63 percent of Continental's stock on a fully diluted basis.

Official explains GM's position

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Why did General Motors Corp. support an end to import restraints against Japanese automobiles — restraints that were volunteered three years ago by the Japanese themselves in order to help the U.S. car industry?

The reasons, some of which were given to the House Ways and Means Committee by Marina Whitman, vice president and chief economist, provide a vivid contrast to the idea a few years ago that industrial America was on the decline.

Since 1980, Mrs. Whitman related, GM has invested $40 billion in new plants and equipment in the United States, erecting new facilities in Oklahoma, Louisiana, Missouri, Michigan and Kentucky.

Eight other plants have been remodeled, and eight more are in the planning stage or under construction. The company has embraced robots and computers in both products and operations.

It has made acquisitions, most notably of Electronic Data Systems, which it assigned the goal of managing the company's data processing operation. And it became involved with several companies pioneering in machine intelligence.

Even more revolutionary, it formed the Saturn Corp. to reinvent the small car using entirely new approaches — new product and process technologies, and new manufacturing and management concepts wherever they might be useful.

MC official doesn't like Bullock proposal

From Staff and Wire Reports

AUSTIN — A local education official and state legislators are not enthusiastic about Comptroller Bob Bullock's suggestion that a $3.4 billion "bowl of gravy" held locally by state colleges and universities can be used to ease the state's financial crisis.

Bob Phillips, vice president of fiscal affairs at Midland College, said in reaction to the proposal, "I don't see that as a solution at all. It's a very drastic stop-gap measure. It wouldn't solve the state's long-term fiscal problems."

Phillips reported Midland College currently holds an estimated $1 million in local reserves. Much of those reserves, however, are represented by non-monetary sources such as inventories, he said.

House Speaker Gib Lewis said of Bullock's remarks, "There's a lot of different factors involved and several scenarios that were not taken into consideration in his comments."

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said his staff was looking into the matter but he felt that colleges and universities should keep at least a part of their local funds.

Bullock told the Texas Daily Newspaper Association Monday that state budget writers should take a close look at the local funds held by the 48 state colleges, universities and institutions before raising college tuition or thinking about new taxes.

"These schools have their noses in a $3 billion bowl of gravy which is in their local bank accounts and which the Legislature never sees," Bullock said. He added: "I was for a tuition increase until I got into this, but I was wrong."

Gov. Mark White, who also talked to the TDNA, told reporters he was "somewhat surprised" at Bullock's remarks.

He said he thought the Legislature had the responsibility "to see to the direction of these funds and that they are well spent on our priorities."

Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, D-Austin, head of the House Higher Education Committee, said she thought Bullock "was mixing apples and oranges."

"He's talking about local funds that are generated for causes for which the state will not pay and mixing them with causes that the state does pay," she told reporters.

Bullock said the $3.4 billion the schools got from the assorted programs, business enterprises and gifts almost equals the $3.8 billion the Legislature gave higher education over the past two years.

"In other words, the Legislature's appropriations to higher education are only half the picture," Bullock said.

He said the local funds cannot be included in the comptroller's revenue estimate.

"It is money that never goes through the state treasury. It is money that isn't accountable to the Legislature. How it is raised and how it is spent rests solely in the hands of college officials," Bullock said.

He said income from these outside enterprises is growing by as much as 17 percent a year. Despite the schools' spending from the funds, there is now a balance of $2 billion remaining from the 1983-84 period, Bullock said.

Bullock stressed he was not saying there was anything wrong with the way schools maintain the local funds or how they spend it.

"But it would make good business sense for the Legislature to get an accounting of this money and take it into consideration in setting priorities for the limited state tax dollars they have available," he said.

County gets 40 more HUD units

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

The calls come in at three to four a week. All are elderly persons seeking a place to live that they can afford on their Social Security income.

But all Jerrie Westmoreland can do as director of Midland County's Section 8 Existing Housing assistance program is put their name on a list.

With 62 units allotted for Midland County, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development recently decided to add 40 to the list of housing units on which the federal government will subsidize the rent. Ms. Westmoreland has 100 persons on a waiting list, and she is looking at these people first for qualifying before asking for more applicants.

"They've been waiting a year," she said of the people on the list wanting to get a "certificate" for a subsidized unit.

Adding the additional 40 units was an unusual move by HUD during a time when the agency is cutting back, said Ms. Westmoreland. "According to our population, we were so low in the number of units. Most towns our size have 250 or more units. Big Spring has 240. It (the program) got started late here and it's taken time to build it."

Judging from the calls and waiting list, Ms. Westmoreland said Midland still has a need for low-cost housing, but primarily for elderly and handicapped persons. When she rewrites her Administrative Plan, it will call for redirecting the program's focus to elderly and handicapped persons.

Jerrie Westmoreland

The elderly who qualify usually don't have a retirement pension from a firm. They are living only from Social Security and supplemental income plus some food stamps, according to the housing director.

"These are people who worked all their lives, but their Social Security isn't that much. Now they're on Social Security, and they're paying rent, utilities and buying food from it. Some do get food stamps. And they do have some medical benefits. But they have to pay the remaining that Medicare/Medicaid won't pay.

"This (rental assistance) program enables them to rent a place and be independent. It allows them to live in a safe, sanitary, decent place because they can't afford much rent. Often we find them living in substandard housing," she said.

HUD determines the fair market limit, and in Midland it is $268 for a one-bedroom unit and utilities.

Two apartment complexes have been working with the county and HUD, she said. A tenant under the HUD program pays 30 percent of their adjusted income and HUD pays the remainder.

For $250-a-month rent, an elderly woman with a minimum Social Security income would pay $63 for the rent.

Ms. Westmoreland cited the case of one woman who had been paying $150 a month in rent out of her $250 income. She also received $80 a month in food stamps. With the $100 left over after paying the $150 rent, the woman had to pay utilities and medical bills and buy other necessities.

"Eyeglasses are the hardest for elderly people to come by. Those are at least $100, and most of them wear glasses," she said.

HUD decides the break-down on the 102 units; it is: 24 one-bedroom; 48 two-bedroom; 18 three-bedroom; 12 four-bedroom.

The program also applies to families, explaining the need for three- and four-bedroom housing, she said. The families that qualify usually are facing situations where the head of the household no longer can work.

Ms. Westmoreland said in one case the man had been a construction worker. Cancer was discovered in his leg, and the limb was amputated. "He was having to readjust his whole life. The family endured a lot of hardships before they got on the program."

And it also assists women who find themselves the breadwinner for their children. But once these women become trained for better jobs and their income rises, they no longer qualify for HUD's assistance, she said.

"One every two months goes off the program. The woman has been able to get better skills and earn more money. Several are working part time and going to college to learn skills. These are the success stories," she said.

With the number of certificates limited to 102, Ms. Westmoreland said the program doesn't go to benefit transients.

"We get stable people, people who have been here for many years. It's not a transient service nor an emergency service."

Midland man files lawsuit against doctors, Midland hospital district

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

A Midland man who lost a kidney during surgery for the removal of a kidney stone has filed a lawsuit against two local physicians and Midland County Hospital District in Midland's 142nd District Court.

B. Jack Reed, an employee with Sharp Drilling Co., alleges in the lawsuit that defendants Dr. Kirby B. Tarry and Dr. Richard L. Fremaux were negligent in using a new surgical procedure, called the "percutaneous technique."

The suit states that Reed "suffered bodily injuries consisting of the unnecessary loss of his right kidney as well as the opening of his chest cavity."

"The scarring from these injuries are permanent in nature and the injuries have a serious effect on the plaintiff's health and well-being," said the suit. "The plaintiff has suffered physical trauma, nervousness, nausea and tiredness. Some of these ill effects are permanent and will abide with the plaintiff for a long time into the future, if not for the balance of his natural life," states the suit.

The surgery was performed in August 1984.

Although specific damages to be awarded were not included in the lawsuit, Reed's attorney, Darrell F. Smith, stated "it will be up to a jury to decide the worth of a kidney."

All parties involved, including Reed, who has returned to his $3,750-a-month job, had no comment on the lawsuit.

Grand jury indicts ex-loan officer

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Elmer Louis Sweet, a former installment loan officer for Home Savings Association in Midland, on Monday afternoon was indicted by a federal grand jury here for embezzlement and making false entries.

He reportedly embezzled more than $25,000 from the savings institution at 1100 Andrews Highway.

Sweet, 37, who voluntarily surrendered to Federal Bureau of Investigation agents, appeared before U.S. Magistrate Darrell F. Smith shortly after the 23-member grand jury indicted him. Smith released Sweet under an unsecured $10,000 bond.

He was indicted following a probe by the FBI.

Sweet was charged with two counts of embezzlement on July 18, 1984, and on Sept. 10, 1984, and with making the false entries on those dates in the Home Savings Association's records.

He is to be arraigned before U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton to enter his plea. Smith appointed Midland lawyer James Alsup to represent Sweet.

Court records reflect that Sweet, 73 Mary Circle in Greenwood, was earning $2,600 a month and that he is married and has two children.

If he is convicted, Sweet could be sentenced to up to 20 years — five years on each count — in prison and could be fined up to $1 million. He could also be assessed $200 — $50 on each count — for a special federal fund to aid crime victims.

The federal government's Comprehensive Crime Control Act of 1984 has increased the monentary penalty for embezzlement from $5,000 to $250,000.

Gas leak blamed in fire

From Staff Reports

Ten firefighters responded at 8 p.m. Monday to a fire at 117½ W. Dengar, which apparently began after a match was struck in a kitchen with a gas leak.

According to reports, the house, occupied by Raul DeRosa, was blazing on arrival.

According to reports, there was fire and smoke damage to two rooms and heavy smoke damage throughout the house, owned by Don Harvey Realtors, 702 Andrews Highway.

About 250 gallons of water was used to extinguish the flames.

A lint buildup in a clothes dryer apparently began a fire Monday morning in the laundry room of the Lexington Inn, 1003 S. Midkiff. Eleven firefighters responded to the fire at 8:25 a.m., which was out an arrival.

Geraldine Rowe, no age or address available, was transported to Midland Memorial Hospital by ambulance for treatment for smoke inhalation, according to fire department reports. Only moderate smoke damage to the dryer was reported.

'Honeymooners' cultural relic worth preserving

I got some junk mail from something called the American Library the other day. According to the enclosed letter, this noble institution wanted me to help preserve for future generations the best of America's cultural past, by shelling out big bucks for a series of handsomely bound volumes containing important works by Melville, Faulkner, Hemingway and other such literary heavyweights.

I tossed it.

Then I picked up the newspaper and read that some enterprising pop-cultural archeologist had excavated a musty old film vault in Miami and unearthed more than 100 long-lost tapes of "The Honeymooners."

I was thrilled.

Nothing against Tom Sawyer, Jay Gatsby or Captain Ahab, but Ralph Kramden is my idea of a cultural relic worth preserving. I sat right down to call the local TV stations so they could commence bidding on the syndication rights, then was checked in mid-dial by a horrible thought.

They might not be interested.

This is, after all, the 1980s, supposedly the age of elegance and upward mobility. If not in real life, then at least on television, where everybody on "Dynasty" and "Dallas" is thin, rich and beautiful. They're also nasty and depraved, but that's all part of the fun for their millions of viewers, who don't care whom Alexis and J.R. stab in the back, so long as they do it with style.

Remember Ralph Kramden? Ralph drove a bus for a living. He was a fat, evil-tempered slob who lived in a crummy 2½-room, linoleum-lined dump of an apartment with his long-suffering wife, Alice.

Like most American heroes, Ralph dreamed of better things, and as with most real-life Americans, his reach far exceeded his grasp. But boy, did he reach. Every show, Ralph would scheme to better his lot, and every show would end with his utter humiliation and failure, as Alice stood there with arms crossed, shaking her head at his foolishness.

Ralph really was a fool, though he considered himself a sharp operator temporarily down on his luck. But he was a noble fool, despite his faults — as played by Jackie Gleason, he was one of Shakespeare's tragically flawed heroes updated for a '50s sitcom: Othello, the Bus Driver of Brooklyn. The fates had it in for Ralph, and he knew it, but he kept trying anyway.

That was all right for the '50s, I guess. Over the years, the median-income level of TV wage-earners has risen steadily to the point where only doctors, lawyers, corporate executives and other fast-trackers need apply. The gentrification of TV is almost complete; the lower classes now make only an occasional guest appearance, as when "Dynasty's" writers jazz up a faltering script by throwing in a plumber for Alexis to seduce.

What would today's TV audience think of Ralph and his friend Ed Norton, who worked in the sewer? They had no style, no money, no power even over their own lives, let alone those of others. They went bowling. They shot pool. They endured.

That's not good enough to win a time slot nowadays; the modern TV protagonist must not merely endure, but prevail. In this, the Age of Reagan, "The Honeymooners" could go up against "Dallas" or "Falcon Crest" and win even fewer ratings points than Walter Mondale won electoral votes. Ralph Kramden was a loser, and today's self-confident, thumbs-up society isn't very interested in losers, especially the blue-collar variety.

But maybe PBS will pick up the newly discovered "Honeymooners" tapes and run them as a public service. Then they could send out junk mailings urging people to help them preserve for future generations this valuable part of America's cultural past.

I'd send them a check.

Services will be at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at Nalley-Pickle and Welch Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. Delmer Loy and the Rev. Royce Clay officiating. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial Park.

Young was born Sept. 9, 1910, in Jones, Tenn., and was reared in Fannin County. He married Lois Bullard June 5, 1929, in Fannin County, where he farmed. He moved to Big Spring in 1953. He was employed by Dunkin Drilling Company for several years. He later owned Carl Young's Garage where he worked until his retirement in 1978. He was a Protestant.

He was preceded in death in 1980 by a daughter, Jan Statham.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Carl B. Young Jr. of Abilene; four daughters, Doris McPeak of Midland; Helen Eggleston, Wanda Johnson and June Tucker, all of Big Spring; two brothers, Clarence Young of Fort Worth and Hobert Young of Denton; a sister, Edna Falls of Fort Worth; 13 grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be his grandsons.

Juan A. Carrasco

BIG SPRING — Juan A. Carrasco, 97, of Big Spring, died Monday at a Big Spring hospital.

Rosary will be recited at 7 p.m. today in Nalley-Pickle and Welch Rosewood Chapel. Services will be at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday at Sacred Heart Catholic Church with burial in Mount Olive Memorial Park.

Carrasco was a member of Sacred Heart Catholic Church and had been a Big Spring resident since 1928.

Odessan in ICU after being struck by car

From Staff Reports

A 19-year-old Odessa man was listed in critical condition in the intensive care unit at Odessa's Medical Center Hospital this morning after he was struck by a car at 8:30 p.m. Monday about 5.2 miles west of Odessa.

Gerardo Paredes suffered head and internal injuries after he was struck by an eastbound 1981 Buick driven by Ruben Gonzales of Odessa on the north service road of Interstate 20, according to Department of Public Safety reports.

Paredes was attempting to cross from the north to the south of the service road when he was hit, reports said. Gonzales was not injured.

The accident was investigated by DPS Troopers Andres Cedillos and Vincent Ford, both of Odessa.

A 42-year-old Shreveport, La., man remained in critical condition at Medical Center Hospital today with chest injuries suffered early Sunday morning in a one-vehicle rollover.

Harold J. Addie was eastbound on I-20 at 6:30 a.m. when his 1981 Kenworth tractor-trailer left the road, struck two telephone poles, traveled down an embankment and collided with two culverts, according to DPS reports. Addie was hauling about 40,000 pounds of produce at the time of the accident, which occurred about five miles west of Stanton, reports indicated.

A 10-year-old Midland boy was treated and released at Midland Memorial Hospital after he was struck by a car Monday afternoon while delivering newspapers on his bicycle.

Dwight Lee Maskew, 500 N. Terrell, pedaled out of a private drive in the 500 block of North Marienfeld at 4:45 p.m. and pulled in front of a 1982 Datsun pickup driven by Kelly Jean Peverill, Route 2 Box 208, No. 27, according to police traffic division reports.

Ms. Peverill had pulled out of the same driveway and started forward on the wrong side of the street when the collision occurred, reports said.

The boy was treated for bruises and abrasions.

A four-vehicle accident at 4 p.m. Monday resulted in minor injuries to one person, who was transported to MMH for treatment in the emergency room before being discharged.

According to police reports, Stanley Eugene Vines, 28, of 3100 Caldera, Apt. 2026, was northbound on Midkiff Road in a 1981 International truck when he braked and tried to turn right in an attempt to avoid a 1980 Midland Independent School District bus that had started east across the intersection of the south sevice road of Interstate 20.

The bus, driven by Betty Jo Lann, 56, of Route 3, Box 455, had stopped at a stop sign before proceeding into the intersection.

Vines missed the school bus but struck a 1985 Honda Civic driven by Jo Gant DuFault, 30, of Box 11085, and a 1981 Cadillac, driven by 64-year-old Helen Yung Maier of 3700 Tanner.

Ms. DuFault had stopped her westbound car at the sign on the service road and Ms. Maier was traveling behind her when the accident occurred, police reports said.

Ms. DuFault and a passenger in her car, Doris Blakely, 23, of Arlington, refused treatment at the scene but Ms. Maier was taken to MMH by ambulance, where she was treated and released.

A 50-year-old Midland man was still listed in fair condition at MMH with injuries suffered March 11 after he lost control of his car on A Street and hit three cars, pushing one into a fourth vehicle.

Cecil Hodge, 409-C Humble, was southbound on A Street at the time of the accident, according to reports.

Carlos Jose Chavez, 26, of Odessa, was released from MMH after he was injured March 10 in a one vehicle accident on Front Steet. According to reports, Chavez lost control of his pickup and struck an electric pole near the intersection of J Street.

An 8-year-old Big Lake girl hospitalized after a four-vehicle accident March 10 in which two were killed was released from MMH, but a relative still remains hospitalized, according to an MMH spokeswoman.

Sarah Calzada was released after being injured in the accident on I-20; Pedro Calzada, 40, of Big Lake remains in fair condition.

Killed were Betty May Loper, 50, of Snyder, and Roberto Rubio, 20, of Pecos.

Man remains in jail on weapons, drug charges

From Staff Reports

A 25-year-old construction worker remained in Midland County Jail this morning on charges of unlawful carrying of a weapon and possession of marijuana.

According to sheriff's office reports, the man was arrested about 3:30 a.m. today after a deputy saw his 1977 two-door Chevrolet blocking the northbound lane of Farm-to-Market 1788 at Spur 217. Reports indicate the stalled car was in "drive" and the ignition was on.

The driver "appeared to be asleep" at the steering wheel, reports said. When the deputy saw a Smith & Wesson revolver on the floorboard of the driver's side, he called for backup before awakening the man.

The man, expected to be arraigned today, was arrested on charges of unlawfully carrying a weapon. Three bags of what is believed to be marijuana were found on the floorboard of the passenger's side during inventory of the car.

Sheriff's deputies this morning also are investigating the theft of $800 in cash, reported Monday morning. According to complaints, Ruby Cliffton, Route 9 Box 9659, said a man she knew took the money from her purse late Sunday night or early Monday morning while he was at her mobile home.

In complaints filed with city police Monday, Doug Pownall, 5107 San Antonio, reported the burglary of a vacant residence between March 9 and Wednesday. Taken were a $450 dishwasher and $450 electric stove. Entry was gained by breaking a window, valued at $62.

Douglas Benton, 4616 Pleasant, told police his 1983 Chevrolet Chevette was burglarized while parked at his residence between 9 p.m. Sunday and 7:50 a.m. Monday. Taken were a telephone, generator, tools and tool pouch. Total loss was placed at $945.

A $350 diamond ring and checkbooks were reported stolen this morning in a burglary of the George Garnett residence, 1920 English Drive. According to reports, entry was gained by breaking a bedroom window between 6:30 p.m. Monday and 2 a.m. today.

SBOE adopts training program rule

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — The State Board of Education has adopted on an emergency basis a proposed rule outlining the general provisions, program topics, qualifications of workshop sponsors, times, record maintenance requirements and approval procedure for advanced academic training programs for education personnel.

The rule, which also was approved on first reading, affects the advanced academic training as it applies to career ladder advancement. The purpose of advanced training is to improve classroom instruction. It is to be geared toward strengthening deficiencies identified during the appraisal process.

Advanced training workshops, including those developed by private firms, must be sponsored by the school district, a college or university, an education service center, a professional organization, or the Central Education Agency. Programs must be at least six hours in length and be approved by the Central Education Agency.

Museum's restoration work honored

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate on Monday commended the conservation center at Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum for restoring three paintings damaged in the Capitol fire to their "former glory."

The paintings — "Dawn at the Alamo," "Battle of San Jacinto," and a portrait of Mirabeau B. Lamar — took nine months to restore.

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 44-year-old Odessa woman was electrocuted in her bathroom Monday, apparently while massaging her shoulder with a body vibrator, according to police.

Dorothy Bishop, 6162 Ivy Lane, was found lying face down on her bathroom floor at 3:04 p.m. by her mother and a friend. She was pronounced dead in Medical Center Hospital at 4:30 p.m. by Justice of the Peace Manuel Valles.

According to police reports, she had apparently been using a body-massage vibrator before the accident occurred.

TEA to apply for funds

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — The State Board of Education has authorized the Texas Education Agency to file an application requesting $4.2 million in federal funds to establish a program that would help teachers improve skills in mathematics, science, computer learning and foreign language and would make classes in those subjects more accessible to students.

This is the first time funds for the Math and Science Teacher Excellence Renewal program will be available under the Education for Economic Security Act of 1984. It is expected that the Texas Coordinating Board, College and University System, also will receive $1.8 million for the program and that state teacher centers and colleges and universities will be involved in the project.

The funds would be available from May through September, 1986. If the grant is awarded, 70 percent would go to local education agencies on a formula basis; 20 percent would be used by TEA for demonstration and teacher training exemplary programs from retraining and inservice upgrading of teachers' skills in the identified subject areas; and 10 percent can be used to assess needs, to evaluate programs and for technical assistance and administration.

Authorization also was granted for TEA to apply for $60 million to continue operation of supplementary educational programs for migrant children during the 1985-86 school year and for a $1.1 million continuation grant to be applied toward defraying costs for educating refugee children.

The $60-million grant for migrant funds would be used to implement and improve migrant education in the areas of bilingual education, mathematics, reading and composition. Local school districts, service centers and the Education Commission of the States, Interstate Migrant Education Council will be involved in migrant education programs funded by the grant.

The transition program for refugee children provides payment to school districts for costs they have in providing basic and supplemental education services for students in this category.

An estimated 6,000 students classified as alien refugees will participate in the transition program for refugee children in 56 districts.

LAWSUIT—

"It is not within ethical constraints to let the case be tried in the media," said Smith, when asked for a comment. "We'll let the courts decide."

The lawsuit alleges that neither Tarry or Fremaux were qualified to undertake the percutaneous surgical technique.

"Tarry was negligent in undertaking the technique without first developing the requisite minimum skills necessary to execute the technique without unduly endangering Reed," states the suit.

The suit also alleges that Tarry was negligent in consulting and retaining the services of Fremaux, whom "Tarry should have known lacked the requisite skills and/or training to execute the percutaneous technique."

Also included in the suit were allegations that Midland County Hospital District "should have known that Fremaux and Tarry lacked sufficient skills, training and judgment to perform the procedures."

The suit states the defendants failed to provide adequate and safe facilities for the care and treatment of Reed and failed to properly instruct hospital personnel in the care and treatment of injured persons.

SBOE names six to commission

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — Four individuals have been appointed by the State Board of Education to three-year terms and two others reappointed to three-year terms on the Commission on Standards for the Teaching Profession.

The commission identifies and recommends to the board needed improvement and new directions for teacher education and certification. Currently, the commission is working to develop recommendations for special service certificate programs.

New members appointed to the commission were Dr. Allan J. Matosow, dean of humanities at Rice University in Houston; Dr. Victor Rodriguez, superintendent of the San Antonio Independent School District; Dr. Dane Atkinson, human resource analyst with the Austin Independent School District; and Dr. Richard Ishler, dean of the College of Education at Texas Tech University in Lubbock.

Reappointments to the commission include Ginger Mayo, biology instruction with the Richardson Independent School District; and Dora Scott, elementary teacher with the Houston Independent School District.

Copy Craft adds new product lines, continues high quality service

Not really. How do you think the copier and computer paper, diskettes, toner, ribbons and other supplies get to the stock room after the delivery boy scurries off to the next delivery. Someone in the office has to do the heavy work. Unless you call Copy Craft!

Ken and Letty Craft, Chuck Sonnenberg, Gene Rogers, Karen Neatherlin, Pam Mercer of Copy Craft understand that you don't have time to stop what you're doing to put up new supplies. That's why Copy Craft, a division of Ken Craft, Inc., is a FULL SERVICE company which offers a wide selection at discount prices.

Leaving things at the front door just isn't their style. In fact, Ken Craft explains that they will even be glad to keep an inventory list of your supplies. Depending on your needs, Copy Craft can set up weekly, biweekly, or monthly inventory service. So, whether you need diskettes, copy paper, printer ribbons, toner and developer, or computer stock forms and labels this company is ready to serve you in Midland and Odessa. All it takes is a phone call!

Kathi Lentz of Fox and Company checks new supplies delivered by Gene Rogers (left) and Chuck Sonnenberg, the experts at Copy Craft. Kathi points out that Copy Craft will even keep an inventory record for customers.

Located on Highway 80, Copy Craft is equipped with a 7500 square foot warehouse. This enables them to offer the widest selection in the Permian Basin at discount prices. Some of the most popular brands which Copy Craft keeps in stock are Nashua Corporation products, Avery, Ko-rec-type, Star forms, and 3M products. Here's a check list of just a few of the things you can get with Copy Craft's outstanding service:

Nashua Corporation products:
Xerographic copy paper
diskettes 5¼" and 8" (with 5 year guarantee)
toners/developers for Xerox, IBM, Royal, Savin, Minolta, and Mita copiers

Avery Labels including a full line of computer stock tab labels (all sizes)

Ko-Rec-Type
full line of typewriter and computer printerribbons for IBM, Xerox, Deckwriter, TI, Anadex, Lanier, Wang, NEC, and more

Star Forms
full line of computer stock forms
(45 different sizes in inventory)

3M Products
magnetic tapes, diskettes, head cleaning kits, static mats, and mag cards

Custom Forms
Custom stock forms, letter heads, invoices, and checks

Well log paper

Stenocraft Products
clasp envelopes, hanging file folders, file folders, index cards, letter and legal pads, steno pads, envelopes, world bond paper, oriolelinen bond, envelopes, tyvek envelopes, adding machine tape

Now that's selection and it's only the beginning. Because the selection is so wide, Copy Craft can boast of customers such as accounting firms, banks, schools, and large industrial firms. Their customers have discovered the benefits of working with a local firm. For instance, on the occasion when a customer gets a defective diskette, Copy Craft's customer doesn't face shipping charges and a long delay in getting a replacement. All it takes is a quick call to Copy Craft at 561-9118 and a replacement will be delivered.

One of the most incredible things about Copy Craft is their discount pricing. In most businesses you have to make a choice between service and discount prices. At Copy Craft SERVICE AND DISCOUNT PRICES go hand in hand. Copy Craft says "no" to freight charges, "no" to the quota game and "yes" to customer needs.

"Wanted: Customers who appreciate COMPLETE SERVICE, WIDE SELECTION, and DISCOUNT PRICES on computer, copier, and typewriter supplies. Just call Copy Craft at 561-9118, we'll come to you!" Now, doesn't that sound better?

Chuck Sonnenberg and Gene Rogers understand that Copy Craft's customers are busy, so they put the new supplies in their proper place. Sally Davis (left) and Pat Bowlin (far right) of Fox and Company check over the order of diskettes, ribbon, and paper. Call 561-9118 for complete service, wide selection and discount prices.

Get two items cleaned for the price of one at The Iron Press Professionals at The Iron Press are offering an incredible bargian- two like items cleaned for the price of one. Conveniently located at Midkiff and Loop 250 and on the corner of Midland Drive and Wadley, The Iron Press is the difference between being dressed and well dressed.

Owners guarantee superb work

This is your lucky day! The Iron Press, Midland's newest dry cleaners, is offering two for the price of one dry cleaning. That's right, two dresses immaculately cleaned for the price of one cleaning. Take in two suits, two coats, two sweaters, two sport coats, two comforters, or two pair of drapes and both will come back looking great, but you'll only be charged for one of them.

The owners of The Iron Press are expecting such an overwhelming response to this tremendous sale that their normal one day service will be given only when you request it. They want to do a great job and have it ready when you need it.

That's why they use only the latest equipment both for dry cleaning and laundering. You don't have to worry about lost buttons when you have your shirts laundered at The Iron Press for just 89¢ each. And jeans come out looking sharp for just $2.

Check out the finest, The Iron Press, during this incredible sale. They are conveniently located on the corner of Wadley and Midland Drive behind Albertsons and at Midkiff and Loop 250 next to Skaggs.

Both convenient locations are open from 7 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., Monday through Friday and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday. The Iron Press- the difference in being dressed and well dressed.

Permian Sign Company uses high tech equipment to produce quality signs

The Permian Sign Company, which is well known for quality electric, neon, and plastic signs, has gone one step further to offer high quality commercial signs. They have added a computerized sign maker to their shop. Jack Brady, owner of Permian Sign, purchased this high-tech sign maker to renew his company's commitment to top quality work and customer satisfaction.

Permian Sign's new SIGNMAKER III gives them the versatility to draw, cut, and perforate sign patterns, pre-spaced letters and company logos on adhesive-backed vinyl. This means that any kind of art or lettering can be enlarged or condensed, centered or adjusted at the touch of a button. Jack explains that the machine saves prep time, is accurate which reduces waste and makeovers, is reliable, and cuts production costs. This means a definite savings and guaranteed satisfaction for Permian Sign customers.

The advantages of the SIGNMAKER III are endless. There are over 35 different colors to choose from in vinyl, the machine produces any type of lettering imagineable in sizes ranging from one-fourth to 48 inches, and the lettering can be set in a straight line or an arch format. The main advantage of the vinyl characters is that they can be used for surface application on company trucks and window displays or they can serve as sub-surface graphics which greatly improve the art of hand sign painting and engraving. Now that's technology at its best.

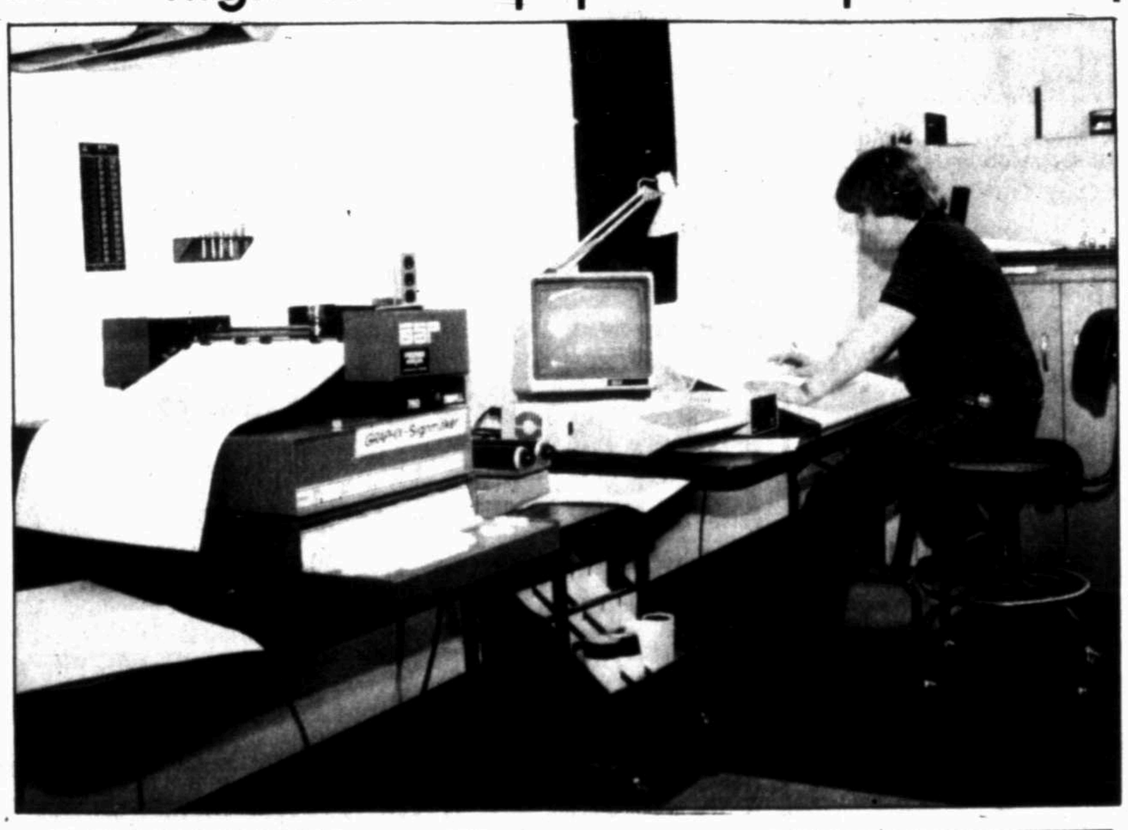

Whether a billboard, a wooden logo, a magnetic sign, window lettering, or a menu board is in the making there are two signs of a good company at work. One is the production of a high quality product. The second is timely completion. Without question, Permian Sign Company fits the bill.

From the time that Permian Sign Company gives their free estimate to the delivery of the finished product, quality is the emphasis. They will carefully survey the place that the sign will be placed, get the proper permits, and go to work on a first rate job.

The SIGNMAKER III helps these professionals produce a high quality product on a timely schedule.

Permian Signs, located at 1400 Cotton Flat Road, is open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A high quality product in next to no time - that's the sign of Permian Sign Company.

Scott Brady uses Permian Sign's new SIGNMAKER III to produce high quality signs in next to no time. Call Permian Sign at 682-7203 to find out more about the capabilities of their high tech equipment and commited professionals.

Payne pays off with FREE $50 bond at Jerry's Sheet Metal

Payne pays off at Jerry's Sheet Metal, Midland's Payne Air Management Specialist. That's right, owner Jerry Riel announces that Payne is offering a FREE $50 bond. Just let Jerry give you a written bid on a deluxe central air conditioner or heat pump by Payne (includes models 567, 568, 569 air conditioners and models 544, 545 heat pumps).

Then, whether you buy a Payne or an equivalent model of a different brand, Payne will send you a free $50 U.S. Savings Bond. All you have to do is show them proof that your new air conditioner was purchased before August 15, 1985.

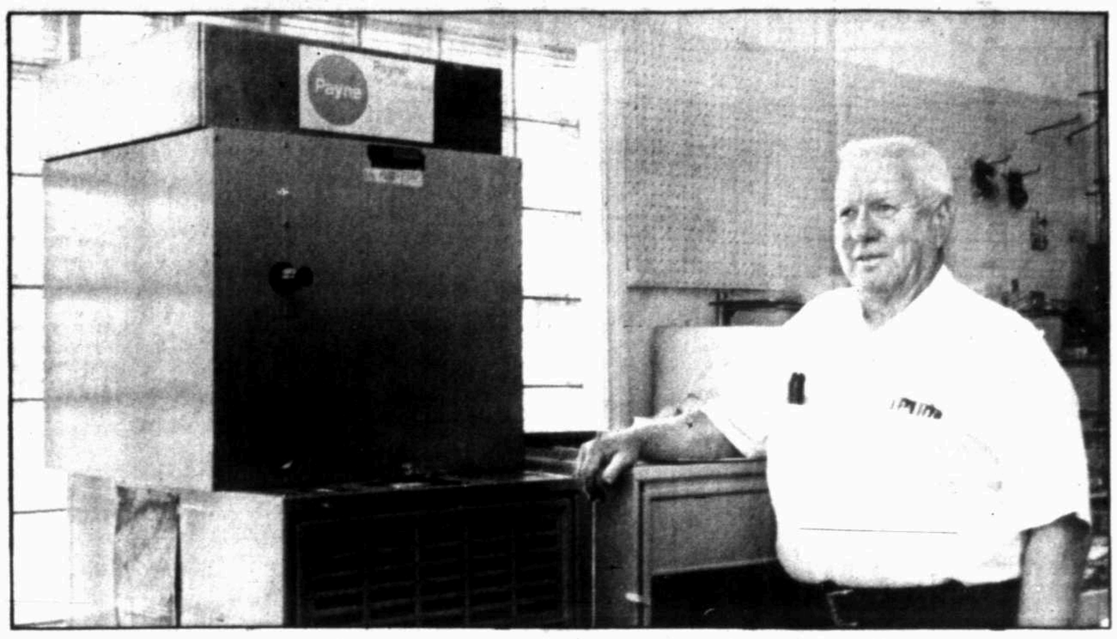

Payne and their local dealer is so confident that you'll buy a Payne, they're willing to offer this much. And more.

PLUS you can get free electricity. When you do buy a Payne unit from Jerry's Sheet Metal, you'll still get the free $50 U.S. Savings Bond. Plus, Payne will pay half your highest monthly electric bill after your Payne unit's been installed.

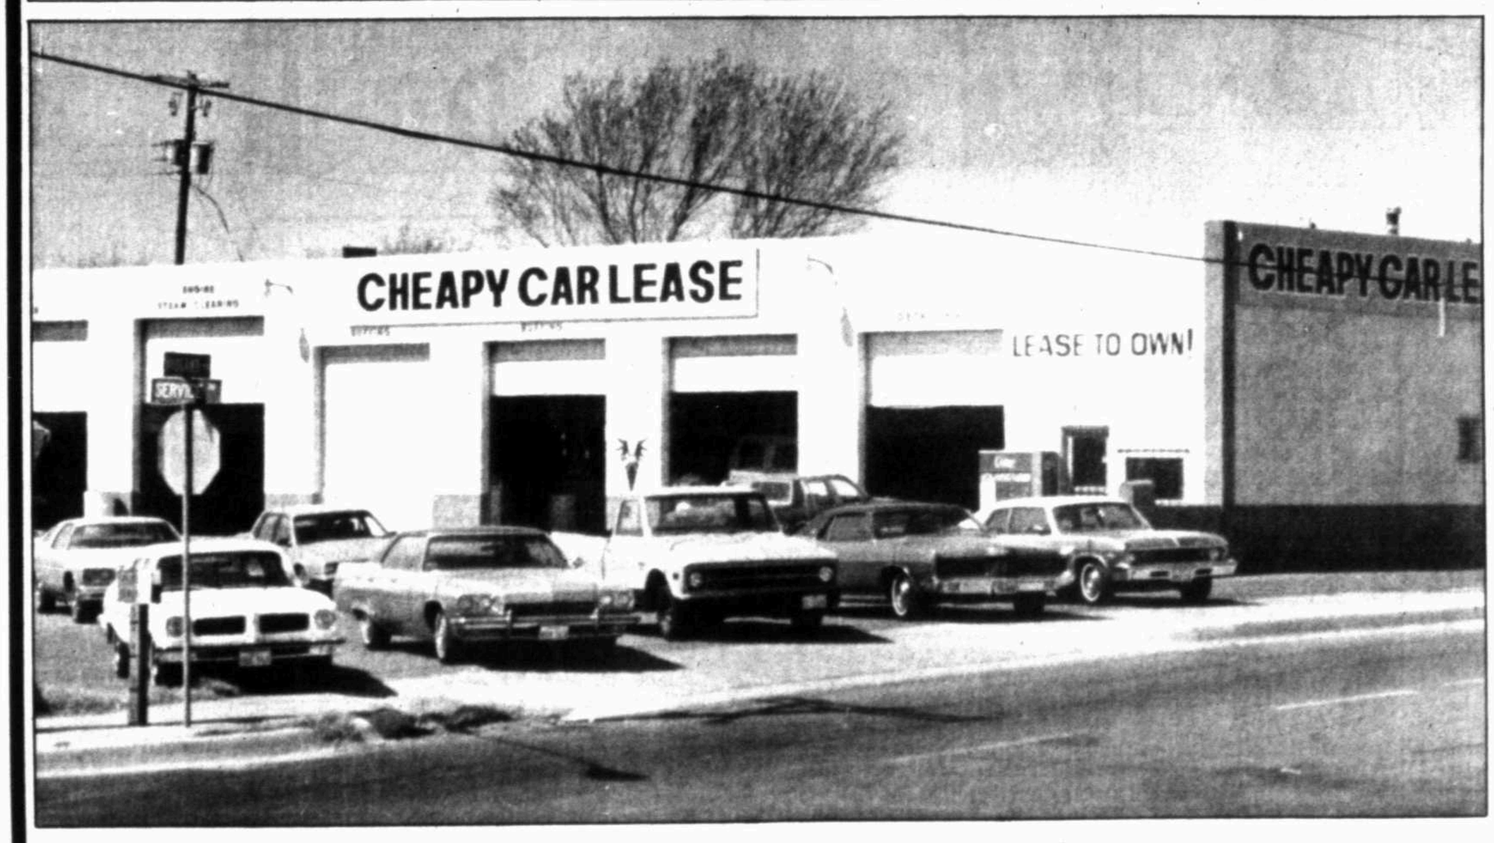

Call 684-4495 now. This tremendous offer ends August 15, 1985, and you will have until December 31, 1985 to redeem your bill.

You'll enjoy the bargain this year and the outstanding Payne quality for years to come. After all, Payne has been manufacturing quality products since 1914.

Payne units are engineered to maximize efficiency and minimize energy. That's why Jerry's Sheet Metal, located at 700 N. Ft. Worth, is proud to offer Midland the Payne line. Jerry's is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Call today and request a bid before the hot summer catches you off guard.

Jerry Riel, owner of Jerry's Sheet Metal, is ready to write you a bid for one of the high quality Payne air conditioners or heaters which will qualify you for a free $50 U.S. Savings Bond. Call Jerry at 684-4495 or go by 700 N. Ft. Worth for details.

Lease to own

An idea becomes reality

Nowadays most people can not afford two cars at $500 a car for four or five years, so Bill and General Manager David Lewis came up with the lease-to-own idea. For a small down payment and weekly or bi-weekly payments, you can drive off in a CHEAPY car.

To further service you, Bill and David have recently drawn up a reimbursement plan that allows the customer to purchase insurance with a local insurance agency and Cheapy Car Lease will make the payments for you and add it to your weekly bill.

Cheapy Car Lease, at the corner of Midland Drive and Highway 80, doesn't want you to be without transporation. It is their objective to provide you with the car of your choice and to be of service to you.

In Cheapy Car Lease an idea of Bill Buttry's became a reality. After working in the new car, truck and equipment leasing business for 25 years he realized that it was time for a change.

"I just got tired of owing the banks and financial institutions a bunch of money and felt the time was right for the type of service Cheapy offers," says owner Bill Buttry.

CHEAPY Car Lease can operate at an affordable price to the public because their strategy of rent-to-own is the same used by manufacturers who sell televisins, furniture, appliances, etc... Cheapy Car Lease opened in March of 1983 and is now running well over 100 units.

Leasing your car to own is the best way to have transportation at a price that will not burn a hole in your pocket book.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, March 20, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Your frugality will pay off handsomely later this year. Try to spruce up the clothes and furniture you own instead of replacing them right away. The search for romantic happiness continues; eventually, you find what you want and need. A financial commitment cannot be ignored. Use your natural talents to climb to the top at work. Hard workers will always do better than fast talkers. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, singer Frankie Laine, actor Hal Linden, hockey's Bobby Orr, the Baltimore Orioles' Mike Young, Oakland pitchers Steve McCatty and Rick Langford.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Others look to your for leadership now. Do not let them down. Travel enjoys highly favorable influences. The pieces of a romantic puzzle fall into place.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A chance encounter could lead to new business or romance. Do not try to rush things. Answer letters and return phone calls promptly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The morning can be highly productive. Buckle down to work. Your excellent memory impresses a stranger or new acquaintance. Look at a job offer from all angles before making a final decision.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A lazy individual tries to make you jump through hoops. Stand your ground! Someone approaches you with a sorry tale. Check it out before agreeing to lend a helping hand.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Take things nice and easy in business negotiations. An overly aggressive approach will turn off member of opposite sex. A phone call brings welcome news from overseas. The financial picture looks rosy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Bottled-up emotions could explode. Do not let someone influential get the wrong impression. Curb your temper. Be firm but fair with offspring and they will come to appreciate your ground rules.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Another Libra asks important questions. You may not be ready to make a commitment. A brother or sister alerts you to a golden business opportunity.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Things go well this morning but not as quickly as you might like. Be sure to stay on schedule this afternoon. Examine store merchandise very carefully and avoid buying things on credit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A great time to travel for either business or pleasure. Financial matters are best left to the experts. Plan a quiet evening at home. You enjoy the opportunity to talk with mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Changes at place of employment work to your advantage. Seize this opportunity to promote your cause without feeling guilty. Your social plans progress smoothly. New acquaintances broaden your horizons.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Real estate ventures require expert advice. Be willing to pay for a professional opinion. Your best relationship now is with a work associate. Regular exercise improves both your figure and your spirits.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Travel helps you achieve your career or financial goals. Stay off crowded highways if you can. A Gemini you meet socially gives you new insights.

Opening lead: Six of ◇.

For more than 60 years, New York's Cavendish Club has been the premier rubber bridge club in the U.S. On this hand from a recent game, the club's business manager, Tom Snow, succeeded in hoodwinking two of the country's foremost players.

After his partner had passed, the last thing that Snow, sitting South, wanted was a competitive auction on a hand where it was more than likely that the spade suit belonged to the vulnerable opponents who already had a partscore toward completing the rubber. Therefore, he elected to open one no trump even though he had a five-card heart suit and only 14 points.

This tactic proved successful in the auction. Note that, as the cards lie, East-West can make three spades, yet neither of them could venture into the auction with any degree of safety.

To compound the indignity, clever play by Snow resulted in his making the contract rather than going down one. West was reluctant to lead away from any of his honors, so he chose the six of diamonds as his opening salvo. Instead of making the routine play of dummy's jack, and without a moment's hesitation, declarer won the ace as East echoed with the eight!

Now declarer ran the jack of hearts to West's king. West reverted to a diamond, and declarer was home with three diamond tricks and four hearts.

To appreciate the beauty of declarer's play at trick one, you must realize that, if the heart finesse had succeeded, declarer needed only two diamond tricks. And if the heart finesse lost, declarer wanted to offer West every inducement to continue diamonds rather than shift to a club which, as the cards lie, could lead to the contract's defeat.

Uninvited, unscrupulous,unhappy — all face Jerry Moon

By RICHARD DE ATLEY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The annual Academy Awards ceremony, shown to millions worldwide, can be a security man's toughest job.

Oscar has attracted bomb threats, political demonstrators, impostors, publicity seekers, star-struck fans and a streaker. This year, Alan Abel, who recently masterminded a faked mass fainting on a live "Phil Donahue Show," says he has a trick for the show.

Not if Jerry Moon can help it.

Moon, 57, former professional wrestler, former Los Angeles cop, current security head for Walt Disney Productions, is on the Oscar beat for his 14th year, and he's ready for anything, even hoax master Abel.

The 57th annual Academy Awards will be broadcast March 25 starting at 9 p.m. EST on ABC-TV. Abel, who claims to head a group called Fight Against Idiotic Neurotic Televison, or FAINT, said he likes to do put-ons on live television to protest prime-time programming.

"We do have a program of action planned," said Abel, 48, of New York City. "What we have going is kind of an infiltration and subliminal activity. I don't want to go into too much detail."

Abel admitted organizing seven people, including himself, to keel over in fake faints during "Donahue" on Jan. 21. The NBC studio was cleared in the belief the people had fainted after standing in line in bitterly cold temperatures then entering the warm studio.

Other Abel hoaxes were tricking The New York Times into printing his obituary in 1980, convincing some reporters there would be a 1971 Sex Olympics, and giving a phony editorial reply on WCBS in New York City in 1982.

A real major leaguer, Moon conceded in an interview.

If Abel plans anything, he will have to reach deeper into his bag of tricks than ever before. Many have tried to pass illicitly through the portals of the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion at the Music Center, but only a few have succeeded, among them Robert Opel, the infamous on-camera streaker of 1974.

"There was collusion on that, at what level it's difficult to say," Moon said. He said Opel, since deceased, was able to obtain credentials that permitted him backstage. That security hole has since been plugged, Moon said.

Free-lancers with no inside help have been unsuccesful.

There was the time a handsome, toothy young man resembling actor Erik Estrada arrived at the pavilion in a California Highway Patrol uniform.

Double confusion. The CHP is one of several agencies which patrols the area on awards night. The man could be a legitimate cop. Or perhaps Estrada somehow chose to attend the awards in his "CHiPs" television show uniform.

The Estrada look-alike made it by several lines of security before he was identified as an impostor and stopped at the front door, Moon recalled.

And there was the camper of 1982. Security forces flushed him from a stall in one of the Music Center's men's restrooms the day before the awards. He had with him camping supplies and a tuxedo, ready for the big night.

Scrabble game inventor impressed with factory

FAIRFAX, Vt. (AP) — Alfred Butts says he was impressed with the plant where 250 million maple Scrabble tiles are cut and painted each year. When he invented the game 50 years ago, he made them all by hand.

"It's wonderful. I had no idea it was such a big operation," Butts, 85, said Monday. It was his first tour of the only factory where the wood parts of Scrabble are produced.

Butts was a New York City architect with nothing to build during the Great Depression when he came up with the idea for a word game.

"There were very few word games at the time. Anagrams were about the only ones around," he recalled. "I thought I could improve on them."

His first effort, called "Criss-cross," did not sell. But several years later he and a friend, James Brunot, gave the game its current name, and production began in Brunot's Newton, Conn., living room.

The latest version, scheduled for sale later this year, is designed for just one person. Its name: Alfred's Other Game.

NEW YORK (AP) — For Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle, two famous sluggers of days past, it was like hitting a home run.

Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth on Monday reversed a ruling by his predecessor, Bowie Kuhn, that had banished them from baseball because they took public relations jobs for Atlantic City casinos.

"I feel great," Mantle said. "This is one of my happiest days. ... You don't want to get kicked out of your favorite bar and you don't want to be banned from baseball."

Mays said he hoped he could work as an ambassador for baseball. "I can't hit, I can't run, but now I have the options," he said. "I could go to spring training. I could represent baseball in different countries."

LONDON (AP) — The audience in the royal box outshone the stars in the movie at a benefit screening of David Lean's Oscar-nominated "A Passage To India."

Queen Mother Elizabeth, 84, headed the royal party, which included her grandson, Prince Charles, his wife, Princess Diana, and Countess Mountbatten, whose late father, Earl Mountbattan, was the last viceroy of India.

The performance Monday at the Odeon Theater in Leicester Square raised $110,000 for the Cinema and Television Benevolent Fund.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It would have made late acting great John Wayne proud to have his second and third great-grandchildren — twin boys — born on St. Patrick's Day, said Wayne's oldest son, Michael.

Matthew and Luke Swift were born at Tarzana Medical Center to Anita Maria Swift, 26 — the oldest of Wayne's 23 grandchildren — and attorney Tim Swift, 32, family publicist David Garrie said Monday.

"'The Quiet Man' would have been smiling to see his twin great grandsons born on St. Patrick's Day," said Michael Wayne, the actor's oldest son and the babies' great-uncle.

Wayne, who died in 1979, played an Irishman in the movie "The Quiet Man."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The group Alabama was nominated in five categories at the 20th annual Academy of Country Music Awards, scheduled to be presented May 6 at Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park, Calif.

Alabama was nominated Monday for top entertainer, vocal group and single record and for song of the year for "When We Make Love" and album of the year for the LP "Roll On."

Ricky Skaggs was nominated for entertainer of the year, top male vocalist, and for album of the year for "Don't Cheat In Our Hometown." The Oak Ridge Boys were nominated for entertainer of the year and top vocal group.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — It's a typical scenario in your basic booming metropolis. Big buildings go up, people move in and the fire department stops making house calls.

For cats, that is.

It's a sign of the times that the Fire Department in this burgeoning Music City is no longer taking calls to rescue hapless felines stuck in trees.The department also says it will no longer pump out flooded basements or other such odd jobs it did in simpler times.

"That was the typical prototype of a fireman in the good old days — get cats out of trees," said fire Chief Fred Davis. "But we've gone from small-town tradition to a big-city operation, and those things change."

Davis said that the department will respond to such requests in "an extreme emergency," but he said "getting cats from trees is a low priority."

And anyway, he adds, rescuing cats is not always as easy as it looks. One firefighter had to be treated at a hospital after a frightened feline jumped at his face and badly scratched him.

Mackie: Drama makes entrance, not shock value

By BARBARA HUSTON
Hearst News Service

Bob Mackie has won five Emmy awards for costume designs and counts Carol Burnett, Cher, Diana Ross, Barbra Streisand and Ann-Margret among his clients.

Now, however, he designs ready-to-wear collections that women can buy if they have a big clothes budget and love dramatic, powerful gowns. He's also introducing an affordable new perfume, a powerful floral fragrance called "Bob Mackie."

The designer, 45, has had a lot of firsts in his life since he turned away from Hollywood because it was a "bit of a dead end" and brought out his first ready-to-wear collection two years ago.

"Now I'm asked to design furs, linens, lingerie, jewelry," he said. "It's a different rhythm from Hollywood. I love it."

Created for the woman who wears Bob Mackie clothes, his perfume joins an impressive list of new fragrances in recent months, including Yves Ste. Laurent's Paris, Chanel's Coco, Anne Klein, Gianfranco Ferre, Givenchy's Ysatis and Ungaro's Diva.

Asked if he thought his own fragrance was somewhat like the aggressive floral perfume, Giorgio, Mackie laughed. Giorgio is not a favorite with Mackie, but he counts its creators, Fred and Gale Hayman, owners of the Giorgio boutique on Rodeo Drive in Beverly Hills, among his friends.

Mackie designed a jade-black spherical bottle that fits the dramatic mood of the scent and of Mackie's clothes. They are called entrance-makers in the fashion world.

One memorable entrance-maker in his ready-to-wear collection for this winter was made entirely of ropes of African beads on the naked body of New York's top model, Iman. Mackie lined the dress after the show and saw it worn at San Francisco's Valentine Ball, where it was just one among many dramatic gowns.

"You can't make an entrance just with a dress," Mackie said. "It takes security, grooming, charisma. You can't have the dress wearing the woman. It must make heads turn, but not look out of place. A dress that stands out like a sore thumb all evening is the height of poor dressing. You can't say it must be beaded, either. If you have a roomful of beaded dresses and you do white crepe, that looks wonderful. You have to know what other dresses will be there. The important thing is looking good. Shock value doesn't work."

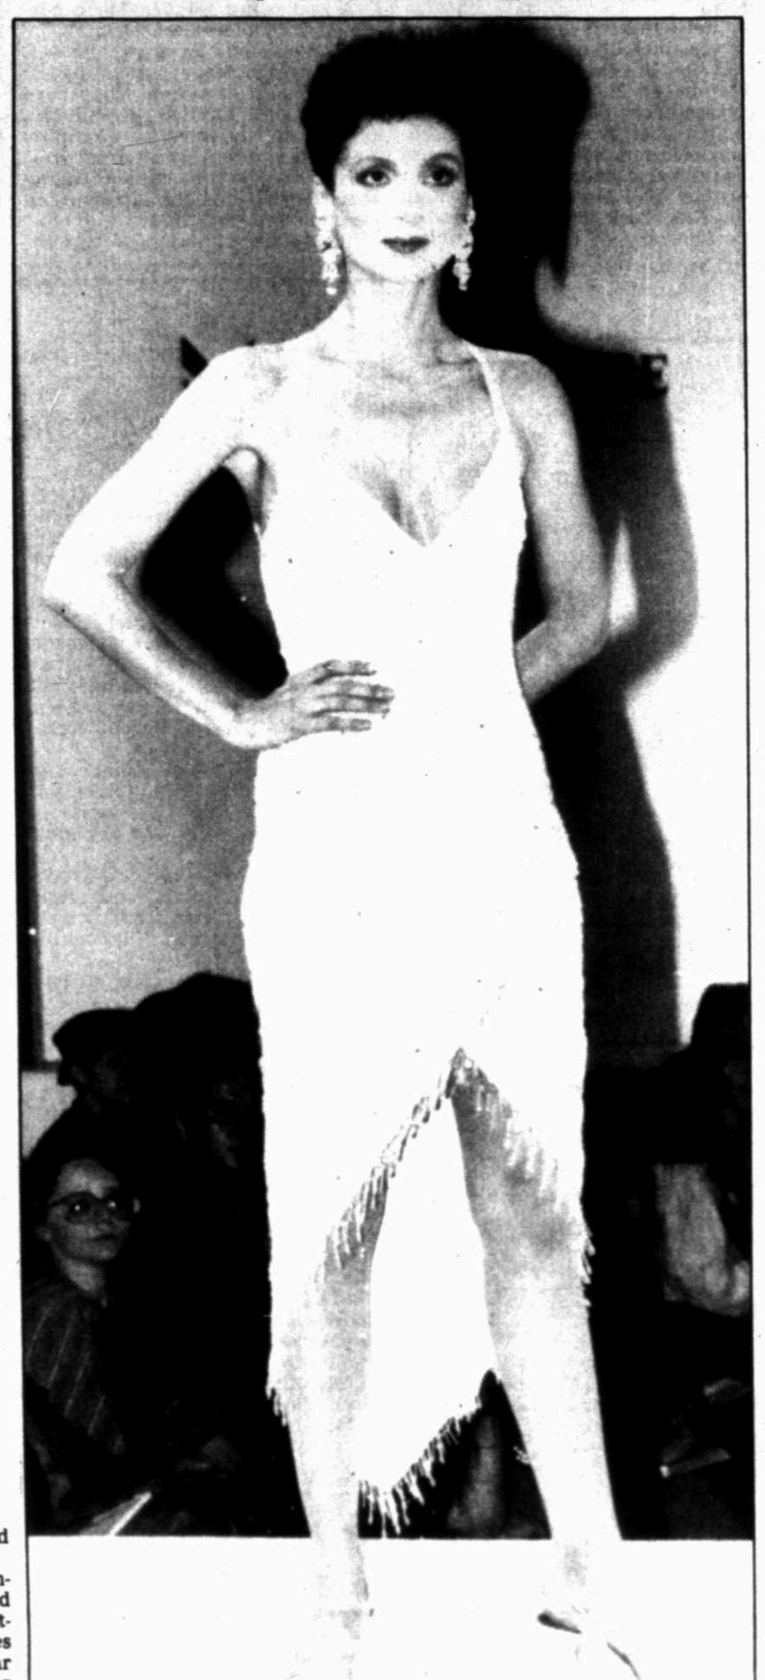

The woman Mackie designs for, he said, goes to big parties. She's a mover with an active social life. She goes places. She spends time in many different cities. She's not a young girl.

"She's lived with herself long enough to be a grown-up and know what looks good on herself. She doesn't buy a whole wardrobe each season. She just adds a little each season."

Mackie said his collections range through suits and jackets, sweaters, coats and cocktail and evening clothes.

"They're not humdrum, everyday clothes," he said. "They are something to get dressed up in. More women are dressing up for cocktails, for dinner parties and for gala evenings in the 1980s. Nancy and Ronald Reagan have had a lot to do with that. It's a fun way to live."

Mackie likes to design his collections around a theme and already has used Matisse, the circus, Africa and, this winter, the Southern woman. Resort collections are his favorites because "you can have more fun, use bright colors and lots of white."

The heat is on for tropical clothes

By GWEN JONES
Hearst News Service

Most of the nation is still shivering, but the heat is on for tropical-inspired clothes. You'll find bold, colorful prints in almost every department store window, in everything from bikinis and cocktail dresses to shoes and men's sport shirts.

It may seem as if all those big flowers bloomed overnight, but the trend — which started with the Hawaiian shirt revival — is a natural follow-up to the bright, solid colors that have dominated the market for the past few years. And the splashy styles are selling fast.

The Hawaiian look is the most popular of the prints. The aloha shirts haven't been this popular since their heyday in the 1940s, when styles, which depicted scenes from Hawaiian life, were first mass-manufactured.

Back then, the trend was fueled by such Hollywood pinups as Betty Grable, who wore a gown made of Hawaiian fabric for her 1942 movie "Song of the Islands," as well as the most famous sarong-wearer of all time, Dorothy Lamour, in the "Road to" series. In "From Here to Eternity" in 1954, Montgomery Clift, Burt Lancaster, Ernest Borgnine and Frank Sinatra all sported Hawaiian shirts. Past presidents Harry Truman and Dwight Eisenhower sported aloha shirts on the cover of Life, and articles were devoted to their "tropical wardrobes."

In recent years, the Hawaiian shirt has been given impetus by TV idol Tom Selleck, who lives in them on "Magnum, P.I." The tropical shirt is also seen regularly on "Miami Vice," a show that's been singled out for the stylish clothing worn by the actors.

Typically, when a style reaches fad proportions — as is the case with the current tropical craze — it fades just as fast. But for the next six months at least, tropical prints will be the hottest look around.

Fad tricks that won't fade

Hearst News Service

Tropical prints may be in this spring and summer, but what about a year from now? Here's how to avoid buying clothes you'll wear for only one season:

— Don't splurge on a wardrobe full of flowery fashions, no matter how irresistible the urge. You can't get away with wearing them as often as more understated styles.

— If you're faced with choosing between a large or small pattern, the latter is preferable because you'll get more mileage from it.

— When buying bold patterns, stick to separates. That way you can mix and match tropical tops, bottoms and skirts with solid-colored pieces.

— In terms of fabrics, cotton is the most comfortable. Rayon takes vibrant colors better. Remember that rayon requires more care and holds up best with dry cleaning.

— Accessorizing with tropical-inspired jewelry is another way to achieve the tropical look. It can, however, be more expensive than buying clothes — prices of crystal fruit and flower jewelry, for example, can start at $50, but rayon shirts rarely top $45. Authentic Hawaiian shirts, which are hard to come by, can run more than $100.

Yesteryear's shoes are this spring's foot-look

By KATHLEEN O'CONNELL
Hearst News Service

Remember those pretty little Maryjanes you used to wear on Sundays, or the pink ballet slippers for dance class? Or, think back to mom's ankle-tied platforms in tropical prints or Grandma's ankle-high lace-up boots in soft leather.

Whatever you remember about the shoes of yesteryear, that's what you'll be seeing in the stores this spring.

Just as in ready-to-wear this spring, footwear is taking on a more feminine style. Heels are higher and uppers are softened with shirring — a takeoff from Bill Blass' silk taffeta cocktail dresses. Traditional pumps and slings, as well as oxfords and slip-ons, are opened up for hot summer days. The sandal is back in a strappier, sexier mode.

The biggest changes in spring and summer shoes are in color and pattern. White takes the spotlight as the most popular of the neutrals. But color is strong in all its variations: pastels, mid-brights and brights, along with prints, from Hawaiian to graphics. The primaries — red, blue, yellow and lightened, whitened pink — look fresh and new.

Feminized pumps, slings and sandals with higher, slimmer heels and lots of details such as pleating, buttons, buckles and bow, appliques and flowers are the shoes to wear with sportswear and the shorter hem lengths. Shoes are opened up — with cutouts, mesh, netting, multiple straps and rounded straps. Color in casual shoes runs the full range of spring shades — white, pastels and brights.

Flats complement the new big shirts and shorts of all lengths and varieties of pants. Shoe designers are reviving loafers, ballerinas and skimmers, huaraches and slingbacks, all available in a multitude of spring colors.

Even though short skirts and sexy silhouettes are supposed to be the hottest new looks for spring, many styles will be romantic and nostalgic, as in longer lengths and shapes, watercolor prints and Newport navy and white. Footwear for these styles features low heels.

The romantic influence is seen in medallion-toe Maryjanes in sueded pastels, lace and eyelet ballerina slippers, soft nappa sandals, floral patterns and fabric bows.

Italian fashion sales up 20 percent over last year

By BERNADINE MORRIS
New York Times News Service

MILAN, Italy — The reason fashion designers and their work have seemed so exuberant this week is probably related to the fact that sales of Italian fashion were up 20 percent in 1984 over the previous year. There is nothing like success to create confidence.

Clothes for next fall and winter are opulent in the casual way that marks Italian ready-to-wear. They are also wildly diversified, probably another reflection of the spirit of the times.

The only rule everyone seems to have adopted is the need for wide, padded shoulders. After that, it's every designer for himself. Even within individual collections, there is an eclectic range of moods and styles. Everyone viewing the collections here has his own favorites: a ruby red coat, a slinky black dress, a sable jacket. Some like them short, others long. Few of the major retailers viewing the collections are willing to commit themselves as to which length will prevail next winter. At this point, most believe coexistence is possible.

The Italian showings are only the first of the openings in various influential fashion centers. London openings began Thursday. Paris starts Wednesday, then there is Tokyo and, at the end of April, New York.

Cruisewear shown tonight

A fashion show to benefit Palmer Drug Abuse Program will be presented today at 7:30 p.m. at Clay-Desta atrium.

"The World of Cruising" will feature spring and summer cruisewear from Goldings, The Islands, Janee's Evening Wear, Intimate Apparel and San Jacinto Jewelers. The "Dynasty Collection" will also be shown.

Sponsor tables are $1000 and $500; individual tickets are $35. Tickets may be obtained by calling 685-3645.

Hairstyles presented

Aladdin Beauty College will present hairstyles in a spring fashion show from 2-4 p.m., Thursday, 900 S. Midkiff. Reservations should be made by calling 694-6616.

Gem biggest ever

NEW YORK (AP) — The largest diamond ever found was uncovered Jan. 25, 1905. The "Cullinan" was found that day and named after the mine's founder, Sir Thomas Cullinan, according to the American Diamond Industry Association. The stone weighed 3,106 carats, or 1.3 pounds.

Two years later, the giant diamond was presented to Britain's King Edward VII by the Transvaal government and in 1908 it was cut into nine major gems and 96 small brilliants.

UT professor: U.S.S.R. far behind in 'star wars'

AUSTIN (AP) — It will take the Soviet Union years to catch up on technology for the "star wars" nuclear defense, says the University of Texas professor honored for work that includes a key building block for the proposed system.

"It's the part of star wars that no one else has — including the Russians," said H. Grady Rylander, who won the 1985 Leonardo da Vinci award from the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

"By the time they figure out how to copy it, we'll still be 10 years ahead of them. We know where the blind alleys are. The possibility that they could make it work right away is remote," Rylander said.

The award represents design work Rylander has done throughout his career. But the engineering society expressed particular interest in the generator, for which he holds major patents, by displaying a model of it at a meeting last week.

"It's one of the major keys to making President Reagan's program work," Rylander said of the generator he and other UT engineers developed with funds from the U.S. Defense Department.

"As far as I know, it's the only generator in the world with the power to run these star wars countermeasures. It stores energy and zaps it real quick," Rylander said.

Star wars is the popular term for the strategic defense initiative, a research effort to find a non-nuclear defense against Soviet missiles.

Rylander, 63, is a Pearsall native who helped design the dams at Marble Falls. For nine years, he has been chairman of the mechanical engineering department at UT and head of the center for electromechanics in the department.

The generator technically is called a homopolar generator. The device took five years to develop. It is used to produce hundreds of millions of watts in brief pulses of power lasting a second or less.

"It can be used to run electric guns, laser weapons and so forth," Rylander explained.

Rylander said the defense department wants the generator to fire supercharged electric guns mounted on unmanned satellites orbiting the Earth.

The orbiting guns could defend U.S. intelligence satellites against attack as well as shoot down nuclear missiles, he said.

Rylander said the generator also has numerous industrial uses — such as rapid welding of oil pipeline — and was partially funded by private industry.

Government involvement "undoubtedly is slowing down some of our peaceful purposes for the generator. But they are funding more breakthroughs with even greater civilian applications," Rylander said.

Study: Alcohol major factor in traffic deaths

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Alcohol consumption figured in more than half of the traffic deaths in 10 Texas counties, a Texas A&M researcher says.

While accident reports from the counties studied show drunken driving played a part in 21 percent of the fatal accidents, autopsies indicated 51 percent of the drivers were legally drunk, said researcher Olga Pendleton.

Ms. Pendleton said her study for the university's Transportation Institute was the first to compare blood alcohol concentrations from autopsies with the corresponding accident reports. She looked at autopsies for 558 fatally injured drivers.

"There is apparently more drinking and driving going on out there than accident reports would lead us to believe," she said.

"We found that 66 percent of the accident reports on DWI drivers did not show alcohol as a contributing factor," she said. "We also found that the average blood alcohol concentration of all 558 fatalities was 0.11, exceeding the legal limit of 0.10."

The researcher said Texas does not require blood alcohol concentration tests for fatally injured drivers, as do 35 other states, and officers filing accident reports make only subjective judgments concerning alcohol as a factor in accidents.

Included in the studies, she said, were accident records in Bexar, Harris, Dallas, El Paso, Tarrant, Travis, Nueces, Johnson and Wichita counties because blood alcohol concentration tests are conducted in autopsies there.

She said, "the proportion of legally intoxicated driver fatalities ranged from the highest of 55.4 percent in Travis County to 39.4 percent in Tarrant County."

Ms. Pendleton said her studies showed that the average blood alcohol concentration for fatally injured drivers was highest in October.

Ex-Marine, held hostage in Iran, to re-enlist if he passes physical

BALCH SPRINGS (AP) — Former Marine Corps Sgt. John D. McKeel Jr., one of the Americans held hostage in Iran for more than a year following the takeover the U.S. Embassy at Tehran, plans to re-enlist if U.S. Navy doctors determine he is medically fit to serve, Navy officials say.

McKeel, 31, was honorably discharged from the Marines about a year ago after serving six years. He has served in the Marine Reserves at Dallas Naval Air Station after his discharge.

McKeel was undergoing a two-week medical evaluation at the U.S. Navy Regional Hospital in Corpus Christi, said Navy Lt. Commander Rob Bubb, director of patient admitting at the hospital.

The decision on whether to allow McKeel to re-enlist will be made by officials at Marine Headquarters in Washington after they have considered the recommendation of the Navy physicians, Bubb said.

McKeel was honored by a huge parade in this Dallas suburb after he and the other hostages were freed.

Port's lawyer says first trial wasn't fair

HOUSTON (AP) — The attorney for an 18-year-old man found guilty in the murder of a female mail carrier says he will seek a new trial for his client because the first court proceeding was not fair.

Houston lawyer Jack Zimmerman said Monday if the new trial is refused, he will then appeal David Port's conviction if his client's family agrees.

Port was convicted of fatally shooting Debra Sue Schatz, 23, as she delivered mail on June 7 in the fashionable west Houston neighborhood where the teen-ager lived with his parents.

The case drew national attention because the father and stepmother were jailed in Houston for refusing to testify against David Port before a grand jury. The parents were jailed for contempt of court while their son was free on a $2,000 bond. Both parents were later released.

The trial was moved to New Braunfels on a change of venue after state District Judge I.D. McMaster ruled the extensive publicity surrounding the case made it impossible to seat an impartial jury in Houston.

In a pretrial hearing, McMaster decided to allow into evidence a police officer's report of an oral confession young Port allegedly made.

But Zimmermann said the police report "was false, unreliable and illegally obtained."

The lawyer said that, surprised by the judge's ruling, he prepared his young client for a guilty verdict and a long sentence.

Zimmermann said Harris County prosecutor Mary Milloy also committed a reversible error in comments she made to the jury. He said she asked the jurors to compare the Timex watch worn by Debora Schatz to the Rolex worn by David Port.

This comment, said Zimmermann, "appealed to class prejudices."

The defense objected to the remark and McMaster sustained the objection, but refused to declare a mistrial.

Zimmermann said he believes there is a good chance Port's conviction will be overturned on appeal.

"We do not think he received a fair trial. He was not convicted according to the law," said the lawyer.

Jury selection to resume in Dallas murder trial

DALLAS (AP) — Jury selection is expected to resume today in the murder trial of a Dallas County man accused of killing two people and wounding four others in a shooting at a Dallas bar.

State District Judge John Ovard denied a change of venue request Monday, rejecting defense attorney arguments that the trial should be moved out of Dallas because of extensive publicity about the incident.

Jury selection began Monday afternoon and is expected to resume this morning. The trial is expected to last at least a week.

Charles "Doc" Morrison, 61, is charged with two counts of murder and four counts of attempted murder. He is being held in Lew Sterrett Justice Center in lieu of $300,000 bond.

Police said Morrison entered the Webb Lounge on Harry Hines Boulevard about 5 p.m. Nov. 19. Morrison, a regular customer at the bar, later left and got a rifle from his car, then returned and began firing indiscriminately inside the lounge, police said.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, at an Austin news conference Monday, says he is convinced his trial and acquittal have pumped up his political muscle.

Mattox says acquittal on bribery charges left him politically stronger

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox, insisting his acquittal on a commercial bribery charge left him stronger politically, says he has nothing to fear from the public.

"The trial was something I did because I was not guilty of anything. I did not violate the law and I would not...I think the people out there understand that," Mattox said Monday.

Although stopping short of announcing that he will seek re-election, Mattox said he was ready for anyone the Republican Party might run against him next year.

"The political campaign trail has been strewn with the bodies of Republicans that thought they could unseat me. I suspect I'll have opposition. Tell them to put up their money," he said.

Mattox also ridiculed a pledge from state Republican Party chairman George Strake of Houston, who said the GOP will have a solid candidate to challenge Mattox.

Noting that Strake lost a bid for lieutenant governor in 1982, Mattox said, "The people of Texas have already spoken what they think of Mr. Strake and his capabilities toward state government. I'm not at all concerned about it."

In the trial, Mattox was accused of threatening to withhold his approval of public bonds prepared by the Fulbright & Jaworski law firm unless one of its lawyers, who represented Mobil Oil Corp. in an oil rights case, stopped trying to question his sister.

Mattox said Monday he is convinced his legal troubles were due to the efforts of Mobil and their Fulbright & Jaworski lawyer to win that oil rights suit. The case was settled last year, with Mobil returning nearly 15,000 acres of land to the state, a settlement Mattox valued at $100 million.

"The main lesson (from his trial) is that a big oil company and a big law firm will be even more treacherous than what some of us expected when we got into the fight," Mattox said.

"I never anticipated they would go to the lengths they did. But of course, they did. I think we have taught them a lesson they will not quickly forget."

However, Mattox said, he has written both Mobil and Fulbright & Jaworski to assure them that his office holds no grudge.

Senators OK plan to modernize 100-year-old state court system

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators have approved a plan to modernize a state court system that has changed little in over 100 years, and House members have tentatively voted to put state prison construction under scrutiny of state officials in Austin.

The Senate on Monday approved a proposed constitutional amendment that would, according to its sponsor, inject greater flexibility into a court system that remains essentially the same as it was in 1876.

Printed background material on Sen. Ray Farabee's proposal notes that nine types of Texas courts have more than 3,000 judges; 3,140 overlapping boundaries; and over 1,200 separate jurisdictional provisions.

The proposal, which was sent to the House on a 28-0 vote, would name the Texas Supreme Court as the administrative head of the judicial branch, and would give legislators power to provide for additional qualifications for judges and additional court personnel, such as masters and magistrates.

If approved by the Legislature, the proposal would be voted on at Nov. 5 at a statewide election.

The House tentatively approved a bill that would strip the Texas Department of Corrections of its power to build facilities and put the State Purchasing and General Services Commission in charge of construction.

Duncanville Rep. Ray Keller, bill sponsor, has complained that prison officials have wasted construction money in recent years.

The House also tentatively approved a measure authorizing county officials to accept credit card payment of fines and fees. A 5 percent fee could be added to the fine or fee to cover processing costs.

Senators sent to the House a bill that would prohibit a "public servant" from voting on matters in which he or she had a "financial interest."

"Financial interest," which is specifically defined, would replace "personal and private interest," which is the current law.

Violators could be sentenced to jail for up to one year.

White: Government could boost anti-drug efforts

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White says the federal government is not doing all it can to protect the Gulf states from drug trafficking.

"If we cannot stop a DC3 coming across the Mexican border (with drugs) how can we stop an ICBM from another country?" the governor told the Texas Daily Newspaper Association.

"Our federal government is not doing all it can to protect us. I cannot understand how we can spend as much as we do and get so little protection," said White who has taken part in recent anti-drug conferences with other governors in New Orleans and Miami.

White told the daily newspaper editors and publishers that the current Legislature has problems "because our revenues have not grown as much as expected and we have a very significant shortage."

He said the continued decline in the growth of oil and gas revenue has convinced him and legislative leaders of one thing.

"The most important purpose we have in government is to build a broader base of revenues," White said "and I predict we will be able to do this."

He stressed the fast-growing cooperation between the state's established industries and the new high-tech electronics.

"We have to move faster than we ever have in the past," he said.

GRAND PRIZE

Mississippi River Steamboat Cruise For Two

Includes Round Trip Air Travel To New Orleans For Two.

GAME RULES:

1) The Midland Reporter-Telegram A.M. 1510 KMND Trivia game is based on skill in answering 10 Trivia questions each week. There will be 14 weekly Trivia Games beginning Monday March 18th and ending Saturday June 22nd 1985. A total of $2,800.00 will be awarded to first place winners over the 14 weeks Additionally, 2nd and 3rd prizes will be awarded weekly.

2) Questions for each weekly Trivia Game will be broadcast over AM 1510 KMND Radio at least 4 times per day on the half-hour Monday through Friday, between the hours of 6:00 AM and 6:00 P.M. Each question will be read at least two times during the week. The entire set of ten (10) questions each week will have been broadcast over AM 1510 KMND Radio by 6:00 PM Thursday.

3) Questions for each week's game will be numbered from 1 (one) to 10 (ten). The answer to each numbered question must be PRINTED or TYPED on the correspondingly numbered answer line in the official Midland Reporter-Telegram AM 1510 KMND Radio Trivia Game entry form for that week. Each weeks official entry form will be published Monday, Tuesday and Thursday in the Midland Reporter-Telegram. Hand drawn facsimilies of the entire official entry form also will be acceptable, but machine duplicated copies are prohibited.

4) Contestants may submit multiple entry forms each week. However, each entry form must be mailed postage paid to the designated address in a separate envelope with the number of the weekly game marked in the lower left hand corner of the envelope on the address side. Envelopes must be postmarked by midnight Friday of each week, and be received at the contest address by 2:00 PM of the following Tuesday to be eligible for the weekly drawing.

5) The $200.00 first prize will be awarded to the entrant with all 10 questions answered correctly each week. In the case of more than one entry with all 10 answers correct, a drawing will be held. 2nd and 3rd prizes will be awarded to the next 2 entrants with the most correct answers respectively. Again, in the case of more than one entry form with all 10 correct answers, drawings will be held to determine the 2nd and 3rd prize winners. In the case of no entrants with all 10 correct answers, the prizes will be awarded to those with the most correct answers respectively.

6) Correct answers to each weeks Trivia Game Questions will be broadcast twice on AM 1510 KMND Radio Saturday morning between 6:00 AM and Noon. Trivia Game questions and answers will also be published in the Midland Reporter-Telegram each Sunday. Weekly winners will be announced by both AM 1510 KMND Radio and the Midland Reporter-Telegram each Wednesday.

7) It is not necessary to purchase the Midland Reporter-Telegram to play the Trivia Game. Copies of the MRT are available for free examination at the Midland Reporter-Telegram 201 East Illinois and the Midland County Public Library.

8) All winners must sign a release form acknowledging that both the Midland Reporter-Telegram and AM 1510 KMND shall have the right to publish, publicize, and broadcast his/her name, picture, voice and the fact that he/she won the cash or prize. If a winner is a minor, a parent or guardian must sign a minor's release form prior to the prize being awarded. Winners are responsible for all taxes incurred on prize.

9) NO POSTAGE MACHINE CANCELLED ENVELOPES WILL BE ACCEPTED. Only entries bearing the correct postage and cancelled by the U.S. Postal service or entries hand delivered to the contest address by 6 a.m. Saturday will be accepted.

10) Judges decisions will be final in any interpretation of the rules of his game. Employees of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, Backcor broadcasting and members of their immediate families are ineligible.

11) The Grand prize, a 4 night cruise on the Mississippi River on the Delta Queen or Mississippi Queen departing and returning to New orleans including round trip air travel to New Orleans. The winner will be chosen in a drawing at the conclusion of the 14 week trivia game. All weekly 1st, 2nd and 3rd prize winners will be entered in the grand prize drawing.

thereof proposed to be assessed against abutting property and the real and true owners thereof, and as to the lien and charge of personal liability to secure payment of said assessment, the special benefits to accure to each such abutting property and the owner or owners thereby virtue of said improvements, if any, or concerning any error, invalidity, irregularity or deficiency in any proceedings or contract in reference to said improvements and said proposed amendments, and concerning any other matters or thing as to which a hearing is constitutional prerequisite to the validity of said assessment, proceedings and improvements and on which the owner or owners are entitled to a hearing under the constitution and laws of the State of Texas and the proceedings of said City Council.

Following such hearing, such assessments will be levied against each and every parcel of property abutting upon said streets, avenues, and/or alleys within the limits above defined, and the real and true owners thereof, for that portion of the cost of said improvements determined by said City Council to be assessed against such abutting properties, and the real and true owners thereof, and against railways occupying any portion of said units, and said assessments shall be and constitute first and prior liens upon said abutting properties, from the date said improvements were ordered by said City Council and a personal liability and charge against the real and true owners thereof, as of said date, whether such property be described or correctly described, or such real and true owners be named, or correctly named, in such proceedings, or not and no error or mistake or discrepancy in the names of such owner or owners, or in describing said property in any of said proceedings with each portion of said streets, avenues, and/or alleys as designated by unit number constitutes a separate and independent unit of said improvements ans shall be improved, and the improvements constructed therein, separately and independent from each and every other improvement unit and assessments to be levied for said improvements in each unit shall be altogether separate, distinct and independent of and from the assessments to be levied in every other improvement unit; and, in making and levying assessments against property abutting upon one of said unit, no matter or circumstance in connection with any other of said units shall be considered, or have any effect upon the other, all as fully, and to the same extent, as if separate proceedings and contracts had been had and executed with reference to the improvements to be made in each of said units.

A hearing will be given and held by and before the City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, in the Council Chamber of the City Hall in the City of Midland, Texas, on the 26th day of March, 1985, at 11 o'clock, a. m., to the real and true owners, whether named or correctly named in the assessment proceedings or not, of all property abutting upon said streets, avenues, and/or alley within the limits to be improved, and to all lien holders or other persons owning or claiming any such abutting property, or any interest therein, and to al lrailways occupying any portion of said streets, avenues, and/or alleys within any improvement unit as above defined, and to all others interested in any of the proceedings, contracts, or matters and things herein mentioned, or incident or relating thereto or the contract for the construction of improvements herein referred to.

At said time and place, all such persons, firms corporations railways, and estates, and their agent sand attorneys, shall have the right to appear and to be heard and offer testimony as to the said assessments, and as to the amount reference to said improvements, shall invalidate any assessment or certificate issued in evidence thereof; but, nevertheless, each parcel of property abutting upon said streets, avenues, and/or alleys and the real and true owner or owners thereof and each railroad, shall be charged with and be liable for said assessment, which shall be valid whether or not such owner or owners be named or correctly named, or such property be described or correctly described, and as provided for under Article 1105-b of the Revised Civil Statues of Texas, as amended, heretofore adopted by said City Council as the law under which such improvements, proceedings and assessments are being constructed, performed and levied.

DONE by order of the City Council of the City of Midland, Texas, this 26th day of February, 1985.
