Boneless Meat Safe

WASHINGTON (AP)-An Agriculture Department panel of scientists has concluded after a two-year study that "boneless poultry" is generally safe, but has recommended several changes in handling and labeling the products.

Mechanically deboned poultry, for example, has double the cholesterol level of hand-deboned poultry, the scientists said, and consumers need to know that.

"Boneless poultry" is how federal regulations now describe meat left after machines strip poultry carcasses of tissue, skin and fat, picking up bits of bone in the process.

End In Sight

Striking truckers wheeled their big rigs around New York City's Times Square and drank iced tea in the North Carolina governor's mansion as drivers in other states packed up their blockades and headed back to the highways.

A spokesman for one group of independent drivers predicted the three-week-old shutdown could end soon - but with a flurry of activity.

"I think it will be resolved soon, because I think it's going to escalate," William Hill of the Independent Truckers Unity Coalition told a group of striking drivers in Pittsburgh on Sunday. "The government is going to be in a position where they have to give immediate relief."

Forest Fires Raging

By The Associated Press

Hundreds of firefighters battled timber and brush blazes in Idaho and the Southwest today, keeping anxious eyes on the weather after thousands of acres of brush and timber went up in flames.

Fifteen major blazes Sunday burned more than 20,000 acres of southern Arizona brush parched by high temperatures.

More than 1,700 firefighters were called to put out fires as lightning continued to start new ones.

Idaho officials said fireworks may have set off some of the blazes that claimed more than 1,000 acres of range and timberland, generally in the southwest section of the state.

And California officials worried that a 848-acre fire that killed livestock and threatened expensive homes in the Bedford Canyon area near Corona could lead to mudslides in the rainy season.

Alaskans Dissatisfied

NEW YORK (AP)-Alaskans don't believe they fully share the independence that the United States will celebrate this week, according to full-page advertisements published today.

The ads, headlined "Alaska Wants America to Declare a New Independence Day," charge that the nation's 49th state has been given title to only 21 million of the 104 million acres promised 20 years ago in the 1959 Statehood Act.

In addition, they say only seven million of the 44 million acres awarded to Alaskan natives have been released under the 1971 Native Claims Act.

The advertisements, "paid for by the people of the State of Alaska, from a special appropriation by the State Legislature," appeared in the New York Daily News and the New York Times.

Bus Crash Hurts 19

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)-A Trailways bus carrying 40 passengers slammed into the rear of a moving van west of Shreveport early today, injuring 19 people, state police said.

Eight passengers on the bus and a man and woman in the North American Van Lines truck were treated at a hospital and released. The others did not require hospital treatment.

Officers said neither driver was ticketed.

Gas Deaths Probed

AUSTIN (AP)-The Railroad Commission is investigating a gas pipeline leak that caused the deaths of two teen-age girls near Carthage last Friday.

Janet Blair, 14, and Doris Holman, 16, both of Longview, died as a result of the leak.

"It is my understanding they were walking along a road, and the line was laid near the road in a dry creek bed," said Tom Hill, hearings examiner for the commission's Gas Utilities Division.

Hill said the commission's regional engineer at Kilgore was investigating and would submit a written report to the commission.

May Join Talks

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)-Secretary of State Cyrus Vance says there are "some indications" North Korea may accept the invitation from President Carter and President Park Chung-hee to join in peace talks.

TRADES DAY OBSERVERS--Enjoying the Trades Day event Saturday in their own way were Bronc Collier and Jamie Brown, whose parents are Joe and Renetta Collier and James and Keitha Brown. Their grandparents are Sheriff and Mrs. Keith Collier. Traffic was heavy on the square during the trades day event, which was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Retail Merchants Committee. Merchants reported that traffic was heavy in their stores and it was generally agreed that there were more people on the square Saturday than they had seen in years. (SDN Staff Photo)

BARGAIN HUNTER--Judy Layne, at left, was one of many bargain-hunters Saturday as Snyder merchants staged a Trades Day event. Merchants had items on sidewalks and in their stores marked for special sales, while a number of residents brought in items to offer for sale on the streets and sidewalks. Bill Warner, chamber manager, said merchants appeared to be pleased over the traffic they experienced during the trades day. (SDN Staff Photo)

Saudis To Raise Crude Production

JIDDA, Saudi Arabia (AP)-Saudi Arabia, the world's biggest oil exporter, decided today to raise its crude oil production, the Saudi state radio reported.

Quoting an official source at the royal palace, the radio said the production increase was temporary, but did not specify how large it would be be.

The source was quoted as saying the increase was necessary to meet expenses in Saudi Arabia's $142 billion 1976-81 development plan.

Saudi Arbia's crude oil production ceiling now is 8.5 million barrels a day, and almost 10 percent of U.S. oil comes from the desert kingdom.

Dr. Abdul Hadi Taher, governor of the Saudi state oil concern Petromin, said recently his country might raise the ceiling to 9.5 million barrels a day to help compensate for the shortfall that he said is causing price increases on the world spot market.

The Saudi oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, said at the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries' price-fixing meeting last week in Geneva, Switzerland, that his country would eventually boost its maximum production capacity over several years to 14 million barrels a day. He did not announce any immediate production increase at that time, however.

Because of principles of supply and demand, a substantial increase in Saudi production theoretically could hold down prices worldwide.

The Saudis split with most of the other 12 nations of OPEC at last week's meeting, settling on an $18 per barrel base price for crude oil, up from the official base price of $14.55.

The meeting agreed that individual producing countries could tack surcharges of up to $2 a barrel onto that price, and all but Saudi Arabia, Quatar and the United Arab Emirates are believed to be adding such surcharging.

Kuwait, for one, announced today it has raised its price to $19.49 a barrel.

More than any other OPEC member, Saudi Arabia, with the biggest production and the largest reserves in OPEC, has tried to hold the line on prices. It says it wants to protect the industrialized world against sudden oil-price shocks that might throw it into a deep recession.

Much of Saudi Arabia's oil wealth is tied up in U.S. and Western European investments.

Tough Talk Diluted ...

Oil Cut Off Threat Hedged

KUWAIT (AP)—Libyan strongman Col. Moammar Khadafy appears to be hedging on his reported threat to cut off Libyan oil exports to teach the West a lesson.

Khadafy told a news conference here Sunday that a Libyan embargo would be a "legitimate use of the oil weapon," but said it was premature to fix a date for such a cutoff.

"Further technical studies" would be needed and the plan should be endorsed by the Libyan Parliament, he said.

Libya produces about 2 million barrels of crude oil a day and exports most of it. Libyan exports account for about 10 percent of U.S. imports.

On Friday an Arabic weekly newspaper in Paris quoted Khadafy as saying Libya would keep its oil in the ground to teach the West a lesson.

Libya "shall stop producing oil - except what we need for our own domestic consumption - for two years, perhaps three or four. The more we store the oil in the ground, the better it will be for us," he was quoted as telling the weekly Al-Mustaqbal in an interview June 25.

But Libya's official JANA news agency, in a dispatch released Sunday in Tripoli, offered a slightly different text of Khadafy's purported comments to the newspaper:

"We are seriously contemplating the production of oil to satisfy only our Rules Supreme Court...

Judges May Bar Media From Pre-Trial Hearings

WASHINGTON (AP)—In an important case involving rights of freedom of the press and fair trial, the Supreme Court ruled today that judges have broad discretion to exclude the news media and the public from pretrial hearings.

In a 5-4 decision, the court said, "Closure of pretrial proceedings is often one of the most effective methods that a trial judge can employ to attempt to insure that the fairness of a trial will not be jeopardized" by prejudicial publicity.

The ruling upheld the New York Court of Appeals and a trial judge who excluded reporters and the public from a pretrial hearing in 1976 involving two men accused of killing Wayne Clapp, a former policeman, in the Rochester, N.Y., suburb of Brighton.

Justice Potter Stewart, writing for the majority said, "The Constitution nowhere mentions any right of access to a criminal trial on the part of the public." The right

Tractor Pull Has $4,000 In Prizes

Prize money totaling $4,000 will be given away at the fifth annual July 4th Tractor Pull, beginning Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the rodeo grounds west of the city.

Nine tractor and three four-wheel drive pickup truck classes will be featured in the tractor pull, sponsored by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

Participants will use their vehicles to pull weights across the arena. Weights range from 5,000 pounds for the smallest tractors to 15,000 pounds for the largest. The tractor pull will continue Wednesday at 2 p.m.

Fifteen to 20 entries are expected in each class, with first through fifth place winners for all divisions. Entry fees are $15 for open classes, in which regular field tractors compete, and $25 for stock classes, in which modified or home built tractors compete.

The Southwest Tractor Pullers Association Rules govern all entries, setting minimum tractor sizes for each class in the competition. In previous years entries have come from Snyder, various other Texas towns, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

Tickets will be available at the rodeo grounds Tuesday night from Chamber of Commerce Gold Coaters. Admission is $3 for adults and $1 for children. Ticket stubs will be used in a drawing Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Towle Park for 60 prizes donated by local merchants.

SNYDER TEMPERATURES: High Saturday, 99 degrees; low, 67 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Sunday, 70 degrees. High Sunday, 98 degrees; low, 69 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. today, 71 degrees; precipitation, none; total precipitation for 1979 to date, 10.03.

Council To Get Budget Proposal

The Snyder City Council is scheduled to take a look at a proposed budget for 1979-80 and set a date for a public hearing during its regular meeting tonight.

The meeting is set for 6:30 p.m. in the council room at city hall.

The budget to be presented by City Manager George Patterson shows an increase of $21,339, or about one percent more than that of last year. The total proposed for the coming fiscal year is $2,894,213.

However, due to slight increases in some revenue categories and the fact that the requirements of the interest and sinking fund will decline this year, the city is expected to avoid any rate increase this year.

Also on tonight's agenda is a proposal to declare July as clean-up, paint-up and fix-up month in Snyder, and a request for the utility collection department to be granted authority to collect a security deposit on all sanitation containers placed outside the city.

Under the heading of "old business," there is a request by Wayland G. Holt to close an easement in Towle Place Addition, and a request for water service to property in the east part of the city by Bill Baldwin.

No Newspaper On July 4th

Subscribers are being reminded that the Snyder Daily News will take a holiday Wednesday, July 4. The Independence Day holiday is one of two observed by the newspaper staff each year. Regular publication schedule will be resumed Thursday, July 5.

Early Weevil Treatment Is Scratched

Plans for spraying a small amount of Scurry County cotton acreage for boll weevils early this month have been abandoned, the Scurry County Producers Association reported.

The number of weevils does not justify a spraying at this time, the association decided. Also, it was feared that the kill of benefecial insects at this time would lead to a boll-worm problem later on.

The low count of boll weevils confirms that the diapause program in the past has achieved results, spokesmen for the association said.

feeding inflation

The headline, big and black, read:

"No End Seen To Raging Inflation."

Other newspapers across the land carried similar headlines, and in the broadcast media the same bad tidings receive prime time in the news hour.

It is to be expected by now that one would hear such predictions from the hard-pressed private sector which is struggling for survival, but to hear the word voiced in what one may feel is concealed enthusiasm by government officials and the bureaucrats is enough to ignite the rebellion smoldering deep inside a majority of the American population whose patience has grown thin, to say the least.

The government officials know, if they are not morons, what inflation is and what causes it, and as one they could stop it cold and reverse it.

Trouble is, they don't want to do that. Their viewpoint is illogical, to say nothing or being immoral.

The root of the evil we call inflation is the government's deficit spending and its making available an abundance of cheap (worthless, based-on-nothing) dollars.

A return to a balanced budget, ending wasteful, deficit spending, actually cutting taxes and ending the printing of cheap money would stop inflation in its track and send it into reverse.

All other things in the above "must" list would come easier than one imagines as soon as the government junked its money-printing presses and cut off the supply of cheap dollars.

When the federal government has a deficit it simply finances its debts by borrowing some money from the banks and printing the rest. Sometimes it just prints all it needs at that time. When it borrows from the banks, it cuts into the funds available for private borrowing.

The liberals (they should know better) and many government officials thrive on the theory that inflating the money supply stimulates the economy by making more money available for the people to spend, but they overlook or don't want to see the truth that the additional dollars quickly cause prices to rise, thus cutting the consumers' purchasing power.

As the government continues to operate on mammoth deficits and to print more worthless dollars, the people's savings are eroded, as is the capital of business. Soon the savings - and the capital - are gone, and that is when inflation grows more rampant.

In time credit shrinks, and people spend less. Unemployment rises, as it is beginning to, even under the false "stimulation" of government spending and jobs.

The nation needs real dollars, not the ersatz ones with which the government is now violating the American trust. Our problem, simply stated now, is inflated dollars. The government has inflated them. If they remain inflated, inflation will rage with more fury until the nation is in total economic collapse.

That, in simple terms, is inflation, its cause and its cure.

a shipshapelier navy

Concerned about the tonnage of personnel as well as ships, the Navy is going all out to shape up its crews.

A new weight-control program will assist personnel in shedding excess poundage. It's not so much a matter of getting into fighting trim, according to Navy spokesmen, as eliminating pot bellies that "detract from good military appearance."

Seamen and women are being advised to shape up and slim down or face disciplinary action.

by erma bombeck

My son, the school teacher, has just begun a relationship I have long dreaded.

He has a roommate.

Normally, I would keep silent, but I feel strongly about it and pointed out that this is my house and I have certain rules regarding these things.

He countered with his usual logic, "If it bothers you, just keep the door closed."

I almost wish we were talking about a girl.

"Killer" is a four-foot king snake that he bought for his class to "keep the kids from watching the clock." That's like dating Dracula to get your mind off your low blood pressure problem.

When school ended, he smuggled it into his room thinking it would never be discovered under the clutter. Knowing I was upset about the "arrangement" (I threatened to jump off the sink into the disposer) he made out a list of Killer's redeeming virtues.

Does not use gas.

Does not bark all night.

Does not smell or shed on the sofa.

Discourages door-to-door salesmen.

Does not snore.

Does not get sick and need expensive antibiotics.

Does not need a license to leave the yard.

Has no weird sex habits.

No messy bowls or jars or cans at feeding time.

In retaliation, I made a list of Killer's imperfections:

Discourages breathing by your mother.

Grosses everyone out by eating a live mouse, then crawling into a bowl of water for a couple of days.

Generates hysteria whenever he walks into a room.

Is immodest about taking off skin in public.

"Is that all you can think of?" asked my son.

"No, I've got one more. A snake as a roommate is the fastest way I know to make a boy homeless."

A snake doesn't even have the manners to wave goodbye when he leaves a house.

Thrifty Man Leaves Money

CLEVELAND (AP)—Most of his life John McCalla Harris was the picture of thrift. Friends say he never owned a car, walked daily the 10 miles between his home and office and carried his lunch in a brown paper bag. But in his will, the lawyer, who died Jan. 25, at 93, left $7 million to Case Western Reserve University.

Nathaniel R. Howard, a close friend of Harris, said the lawyer toted his lunch not to save money, but because the City Club where he ate each day, didn't serve his favorites - watercress sandwiches and hardboiled eggs. School president Louis Toepfer said Harris asked that the gift be used to support the humanities.

questions from all

NEW YORK (AP)—With economic certitude gone, maybe for a long time, questioning has become the style of economic commentary. The White House questions, economists question, and so do Wall Street analysts.

Those with answers are, in fact, questioned. How can they be so sure: Where do they obtain their information? Is their data reliable? If you've got a solution, the feeling is, then you must be a crackpot.

The problem for many people involved with the economy is that their jobs or reputations depend on forecasting. And so they forecast, but in effect they ask questions, as Albert T. Sommers has just done.

Sommers is the well regarded economist of the Conference Board, an organization so often confused with government agencies that it must constantly emphasize its private, educational, nonprofit nature.

Today the board announced results of its economic forum, which synthesizes the views of 15 economists and business leaders. The synthesis: "A very mild recession, followed by a mild recovery."

Said Sommers: "...we have found no basis for expecting a prolonged and deep recession even approaching the experience of 1973 - 1975," the deepest setback since the Great Depression of the '30s.

Are the gentlemen sure? No. "We are uneasy with our relatively comfortable consensus," said Sommers. Then he gave the reasons why, reasons that might just as easily be posed as questions.

The uneasiness, he said, it because of:

-"The presence of the uncertain near-term data at our disposal."

"The strained and unfamiliar domestic and international monetary situation that confronts us."

-"The subdued but never-the-less visible evidence of lost resilience and wavering trends in certain important markets."

-"And, perhaps most importantly of all, the enormous uncertanties affecting the future of energy prices."

Uncertainty plagues economists. They wish they knew; they must appear to know; but they do not know.

They gather strength from the consensus of their colleagues, which is that we will indeed be in recession, and probably are in it right now. But then, they ask, will the recession cure the ills?

Nobody can say, and so they ask questions. Will the recession be to no avail? Will we emerge from it still with inflation and high interest rates? Will it be punishment without absolution from sin?

If economists deserve compassion, what emotion do we reserve for the stock analyst? They cannot retreat to the past, as can economists. Stocks are future. That's where money is made.

Uncertainty is devastating to Wall Street.

Any stock forecaster worth a paycheck must therefore take a stand, the more Napoleonic the better. He must now show his chewed fingertips.

Berry's World

"You want to change places? Fine! YOU worry about inflation for a while!"

in washington

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Federal bureaucrats made June a month that World Airways would like to forget.

World's misfortunes reflect the haphazard nature of government regulation. As often happens, the federal actions mixed good intentions with excessive zeal and a lack of common sense.

The result may be a serious blow to a small company struggling to provide a unique service to American consumers.

Edward J. Daly, World's president, gained fame for the Oakland-based company when he flew desperate mercy missions of Vietnamese orphans in 1975 before Saigon fell to North Vietnam. In normal times, its principal services have been commercial charter flights and military transports.

That was until last April when the Civil Aeronautics Board granted World the authority it had sought for 12 years - to offer low fares to all passengers on its daily flights from New York and Baltimore-Washington airports on the East Coast to Los Angeles and San Francisco-Oakland on the West.

World's one-way fare of $108 occasionally has been met by other airlines on those routes buy only for a relatively few seats on a flight. Only on World have all passengers paid the same cheap fare.

Not surprisingly, World did well with its new services. It filled more than 75 percent of the seats on its two daily round trips. This compared favorably with the national average seat occupancy of about 50 percent.

But the May 25 crash of the American Airlines DC 10 leaving Chicago's O'Hare Field suddenly turned World's success into a nightmare.

World's first misfortune was that all its planes providing the new service were DC-10s. When the Federal Aviation Administration ordered the grounding of all DC-10s, World's service was stopped and it had not resumed by late June.

Other airlines in addition to World were affected. Only World had the misfortune to fly the DC-10 on all its scheduled flights.

But all six World DC-10s were from the "Series 30," a newer model of the plane. World officials said the FAA should not have included this series in its grounding order because all eight reported incidents in which the jumbo jet suffered a crack on the support pylon holding the wing involved the "Series 10."

FAA officials, perhaps embarrassed by their initial slow reaction to the DC-10 mishap, declined to reverse their action. They kept both the new and old planes on the ground even after they had been cleared for flight by European safety agencies.

The ultimate misfortune was to come. After the settlement of its three-month mechanics strike in late May, United Airlines introduced several gimmicks to attract customers. One of them was a $108 fare from New York to Los Angeles, less than half the normal price of $235. American and Trans World Airlines, which serve the same route, followed suit.

In each case, however, the airlines did not provide the low fare for all passengers. Though the splashy advertising indicated otherwise, each airline could designate how many seats it wanted to sell at each price.

The purpose, said World Airways, was to drive it out of the transcontinental market by using deceptive ads to attract customers but offering such a small number of low-cost seats that most would pay the higher price.

On June 25, for example, United, American and TWA had no low-fare seats available until at least July 1.

Meanwhile, World could not do a thing about its problem until the FAA let its DC-10s fly. By the time it is back in the air, it will have lost many of its passengers to its three better-established competitors.

If World no longer can afford to provide its service, the ultimate loser will be the public. Why? Just wait to see how quickly the "big three" boost their $108 fare.

Always Chubby?

You needn't stay that way.

Cindy Hogan went from size 15 to size 7 at Pat Walker's. Even if you have a lifelong history of being overweight, you can acquire the slender figure you've always wanted at Pat Walker's—easily, safely and pleasantly. Read how effectively the program worked for Cindy Hogan, the attractive young woman shown here.

"I've always been chubby. My uncle has told me that I've never been little. The last time I weighed what I weigh now was in the sixth grade. From then on I started an upgrade with my weight. I'd go on a diet and lose, but the day I'd stop starving the weight would start piling back on.

"I really found it hard to believe when the counselor at Pat Walker's told me I should be wearing a size 7 or 5, because at that time I was in a 15. As you can see by my latest picture, I'm in size 7 shorts. Now I'm even getting hand-me-downs from my little sister.

"The counselors at Pat Walker's really encouraged and cheered me on. They taught me how to eat the foods I like and still not become the 'old chubby me.'"

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Persons you hold in high esteem will be caring about you and wanting to fulfill your needs today. If you need a favor, ask.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Spreading sunshine and cheery thoughts makes you a popular guy or gal today. People need a smile almost more than they need food.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Someone who does things in a quiet manner is on your side today. This person knows how to make you happy in his or her own gentle fashion.

Butter, Cheese Output Increases

WASHINGTON (AP)- Production of butter and total cheese output both increased 7 percent between April and May to slightly exceed May 1978 levels, but production of canned milks, cottage cheese and frozen desserts were all off, the Agriculture Department says.

The Crop Reporting Board also said Friday prices for manufacturing-grade milk generally held steady at levels $1.39 to $1.53 a hundredweight higher than a year earlier.

Oswald: "The R in the code word ARCH stands for Review the bidding. Perhaps the most important part of that review is to remember the significance of failure to open the bidding."

Alan: "All you have to bear in mind is that when a player passes originally, he will not have more than a certain number of high cards."

Oswald: "Without bothering with the way South reached three notrump or the rationale of the early play, we find that West's opening lead was a diamond. Dummy's jack held the trick and a club was led. East ducked and South's jack held the trick. A heart was led to dummy and a second club led. East rose with his king this time while West discarded a heart. Back came a diamond to West's king. Now West led the five of spades."

Alan: "The moment of truth had arrived. South paused to think. Eventually, he played a low spade from dummy. East took his queen, cashed the club ace and led a spade to his partner to set the contract."

Oswald: "I see you said that South passed to think. Real logic would have told him that East would have opened the bidding if he held the spade ace, in addition to his clubs."

Ask the Experts

A New Mexico reader asks if we approve of opening a two-card club suit.

No, we don't. We do open three-card club suits when no better bid is available, but with only two clubs we can always find a better bid.

Avoid 10-3 Sun...

Caution Advised While Tanning

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Health Department had advised sunbathers they should try to get their tans before 10 a.m. or after 3 p.m., when ultraviolet rays are the weakest.

"If you can't avoid these hours, try limiting your exposure to a maximum of 15 minutes during the danger hours," the department said in a release.

The department said almost all of the 300,000 cases of skin cancer developed by Americans each year are considered to be sun-related, and there is proportionately more skin cancer in the southern and southwestern states than elsewhere.

The best chemical "cover-up" that still allows tanning is any one of the popular brand sunscreens that contains PABA, or para-aminobenzoic acid, the department said. The sunscreen should be applied about 45 minutes before exposure and reapplied after swimming or perspiring.

A well-known sun block that allows no tanning is zinc oxide, an opaque white ointment often used by lifeguards, the department noted.

Here are some other tips by the department about sunning:

-Avoid sun reflectors.

-Bicycling or playing golf in the sun is better than lying immobile.

-Ultraviolet rays are only partially deflected by beach umbrellas.

-Don't figure on being safe on a cloudy day or even under water.

-A wet T-shirt can also deceive you. Water droplets funnel at least half the ultraviolet power to your skin.

-Altitude plays a role as there is less atmosphere on mountain tops to filter ultraviolet rays.

-Snow can reflect as much as 85 percent of the sun's rays.

"Neither true sunscreens nor 'suntan lotions' promote tanning," the department said. "Sunscreens protect against sunburn, while mineral oils and baby oils lubricate and even change the optical properties of the skin, but don't protect from sunburn or promote suntan."

White fish - such as cod, haddock and flounder - is low in calories, with about 80 calories in a 3½-ounce piece when cooked without oil or butter.

Dangerous pressure

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I wish to write about a point in therapy that has been a lifesaver to me. I've read many times about people who suffer from tachycardias and so little seems to be known about relief. I've had attacks of fast heartbeats for 65 years. After many years I've found the way to relieve this terrible fast beat.

As soon as possible after an attack starts, I take one hand and press tightly on the pulse in the neck, close to the chin or other places in the neck. Pinch hard when one feels the racing pulse and hold tight until the heart goes back to regular beating. I find this an infallible cure for each attack. If it seems slow to respond, keep working on it and it definitely will stop the racing that frightens one and makes breathing difficult.

Many prescriptions have been given to me by doctors but I've never had any relief that way. I'm writing this because I hope other people will be able to get some relief using the same method.

DEAR READER — And I'm not at all sure you should be doing this and I'm not going to recommend that people do it on their own. I will tell you what you're doing, though. You're stimulating the carotid sinus and you might as well learn the right place to do it. The branch of the carotid artery that you're interested in comes up on each side of the windpipe in the throat. The area of interest is right next to the large voice box cartillage. If you lay your fingers right against the windpipe, you can feel the carotid artery pulsing in that area.

When you gently rub or massage this area, it triggers an important reflex that tends to slow the heart. It's a reflex, through the vagus nerve. It's been well known to medical specialists for years. I've used it many times in the clinical setting.

In some forms of rapid heart action, which we call atrial tachycardia, this reflex will suddenly slow a rapid heartbeat of perhaps 200 per minute to a normal rate below 100. These are the people who have a sudden onset of heart action and it usually stops suddenly, too.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-12, Heart Irregularities, Skipped Beats And Tachycardias, to give you more information on all of these problems. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 155, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Now why is it bad for you to do this? When people get older, pressure on that carotid artery has been known to cause a stroke. Then some people have what we call a hypersensitive carotid sinus reflex. This can induce sudden fainting which might not be too desirable. But I think the biggest risk of all is the occlusion of normal circulation to your brain. I think you better talk to your doctor about this and be sure about your overall medical status. At least if you're going to do it, learn to do it properly, instead of as you describe. I'm afraid the constant hard pressure that you describe for long periods of time could indeed be dangerous.

Wrestler Dies At Twenty-Nine

STORY CITY, Iowa (AP)—Chris Taylor, a two-time National Collegiate Athletic Association wrestling champion who won a bronze medal at the 1972 Olympics, died Saturday. He was 29.

Mall Church Operated Like Good Business

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The Franciscan fathers who run the St. Francis Chapel in a shopping center approach their business like merchants - they know when to expect peak crowds, advertise holiday "specials," worry about rising rent and close their doors on Sunday.

"We're open 11 hours a day," said the Rev. Fabian Joyce, the chapel's supervisor. "How many churches can open that kind of hours today? In the first place, churches have to be locked today to protect them against vandalism. And since the energy crisis, who can afford to keep them open"

But in what he has dubbed the "chapel of convenience," Joyce said people, young and old, find it easy to stroll in for a moment of quiet thought or a chat with one of the five priests and a brother who work in shifts at the 150-seat chapel.

Joyce says the chapel is the most unusual and among the most successful of the Franciscan's outreach endeavors in the nation. It's the only one of its kind in a shopping mall although other chapels are in office buildings in New York and Peabody, Mass., he said.

Higher Prices For Oil Raises Recession Risk

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, stepping up criticism of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, says higher oil prices have increased the risk of recession and may cost the nation 800,000 jobs by the end of next year.

"I think the OPEC decisions will make a recession much more likely than it was before," Carter told a group of reporters aboard Air Force One as he flew home Sunday from a nine-day visit to Japan and South Korea.

Referring to generally muted criticism of the world oil ceartel, the president said: "It is obvious that there has been an excessive amount of timidity on the part of the consuming nations ... It is very difficult for a single nation ... to let their lonely voice be mounted against the OPEC countries because they can single that country out with punitive withholding of oil or some other action."

Carter cited the declaration adopted at last week's seven-nation economic summit in Tokyo deploring the latest price increases and declared that the statement "might have some special significance in the future."

Asked what the United States could do about OPEC besides make strong statements, he said: "I would rather not go into that ... I will let the press speculate on what can be done."

The president said the 60 percent increase in oil prices so far this year will add 2 to 2½ percentage points to the U.S. inflation rate and trim 2½ percentage points from projected economic growth.

The administration had hoped to keep inflation to 7.4 percent, but government figures show the annual rate is now 13.4 percent. It had forecast economic growth for 1979 of 2.2 percent, down from 4 percent last year.

A Carter adviser, who asked not to be identified, said Sunday in the president's presence, "Our country this year ought to have roughly a zero growth rate."

A recession is said to occur when the economy shows negative growth for a period of two consecutive quarters.

In other economy-related developments Sunday:

-A survey by Manpower Inc., one of the nation's largest employment agencies, showed business hiring plans for July through September are the lowest for the quarter since the recession of 1975.

-Leaders of three major U.S. corporations - General Motors, U.S. Steel and Du Pont - said on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" that the country is headed for an economic slowdown but not a recession.

These messages about America spotlight some of the problems that face us in this great country, as well as what we, as citizens, can do to make things better.

Free enterprise is the magnificent foundation for the good life we enjoy today, and the hope that we all share for an even better tomorrow.

Remember also that First Federal Savings pays you the highest interest rates allowed by law. America has prospered and moved forward because the majority of Americans set aside some of their money in savings to take advantage of future opportunities. IT STILL WORKS!

Large Fruit Crop Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP)—Consumer supplies of fresh summer fruit, not counting dried prunes or tart cherries, will be large this year if forecasts of an 11 percent increase in noncitrus production hold up, the Agriculture Department says.

But transportation problems and a small citrus crop are keeping over all fresh fruit prices climbing and 1979 averages will be much the same as 1978, it said.

Record crops of plums and nectarines are expected, along with a substantial increase in sweet cherries.

The 1978-79 citrus crop is 6 percent smaller than last season, however, at 13.3 million tons. Oranges and grapefruits are much fewer than a year ago, and high prices at the farm and store have reflected that all year.

But, in a change of pace for recent years, the supply of frozen orange-juice concentrate is high. Prices are holding at levels almost 10 percent above 1978, however.

A lack of transportation has already hurt both farmers and consumers, officials said.

The hike from last year's small noncitrus crops will raise supplies to slightly above 1977 levels, the outlook board said. The economists said the peach crop should be up 7 percent and apricots and West Coast Bartlett pears up 15 percent.

Early prices of such fruit for the fresh market have been substantially lower. But shipping interruptions, depleted stocks of most canned fruits, consumer demand, higher canning plant wages and processor contracts are expected to boost them, the board said.

Women's Rights Boosted By Coin

AUSTIN (AP)-The Susan B. Anthony silver dollar is a boost to the women's rights movement, Texas first lady Rita Clements said today in accepting the first Anthony dollar sent to Texas.

She received the framed coin from officials of Texans for the Equal Rights Amendment, a coalition of 40 organizations.

Stewart said the trial judge can exclude the press and public even when there might be other means to prevent prejudice.

"Because of the Constitution's pervasive concern for these two process rights of the accused, a trial judge may surely take protective measures even when they are not strictly and inescapably necessary," he said.

Vandalism, Two Mishaps Reported Here

During a quiet weekend, city police investigated one report of a case of criminal mischief and two minor traffic accidents.

The criminal mischief was reported by Bill Boles who told officers the nets on the west tennis courts in Towle Park had been cut. That report was filed Saturday night.

The two traffic accidents were reported Sunday.

The first occurred at the Towle Park swimming pool at 4:45 p.m. There, a 1977 Pontiac driven by Mary McCraw Burkett and a 1977 Chevrolet driven by Jose Manuel Chaidez collided.

The second collision was in the 1900 block of 31st St. and took place about 5 p.m. Involved in it were a 1974 Ford driven by Vona Webster Fisher and a parked 1979 Subaru owned by Charles Leslie McCartney.

Horseshoe Tournament Set July 4

The Golden K Kiwanis Club of the Senior Center will sponsor a horseshoe tournament July 4.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Wednesday at the new courts located between the croquet courts and tennis courts on the north side of Towle Memorial Park.

The tournament is open to all ages and sexes. Entry fee for those under 14 years old is 50 cents and for all others it is $1. Proceeds will be used for the benefit of the Senior Center.

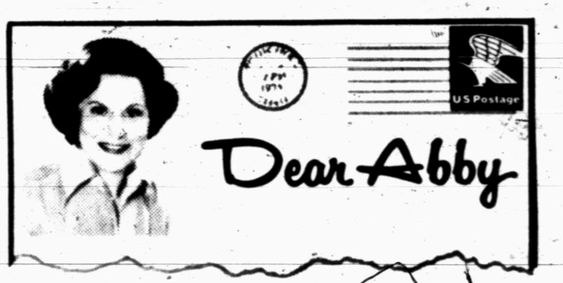

Prizes will be awarded for first and second place winners.

Horseshoes are available free for practice from the park barn. They may be checked out from the person in charge. Further information on the horseshoe tournament may be obtained by calling 573-8131.

An Irate Reader High-Rates Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: In another advice column, I recently read, "I have written to Dear Abby a couple of times, but she never answers my letters."

I am a 30-year-old wife and mother who has read your column in the New York Post ever since I was a teenager. I've written to you nine times, and received a prompt, helpful reply every time. (I still have the letters.) Maybe people don't know that unless they enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope there is no way you can answer them.

Please print this, Abby. After all the help you have given me and many of my friends, it hurts me when people say you don't answer their letters. I want to add that I have written to several other advice columns, and the ONLY other advice columnist who answered my letters was Ann Landers. When I sent stamped, self-addressed envelopes to the others, I got a form letter saying, "Sorry, unless your letter is chosen for publication I can't help you."

B.B.K. in N.Y.

DEAR B.B.K.: Thanks, I needed that!

DEAR ABBY: My daughter-in-law smokes one cigarette after another. It's OK if she wants to ruin her own health, but she has children 9, 8 and 4 who are constantly exposed to her smoke. I know it's a hazard.

Last Easter they drove to see us (they live 90 miles away) and when I kissed the youngsters, their clothes and hair reeked of smoke. It made me sick! My son doesn't smoke. I don't know how he stands it.

Besides that, the children are always in need of haircuts, their clothes are soiled, and she never sees to it that they wash up before meals or going to bed.

In the last five years she has become a careless, lazy slob. When she married my son 11 years ago she was a neat person.

My son has an excellent job, and money is no problem.

How does a mother-in-law tactfully let it be known that her heart is broken when she sees her grandchildren raised this way?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Any suggestions you make to your son's wife will earn you a meddling mother-in-law medal. If you're truly concerned over the apparent neglect of your grandchildren, talk to your son about it. The responsibility is half his.

DEAR ABBY: Is there any reason for an 80-year-old woman with a living husband to be constantly talking about sex? It is very embarrassing for her family.

She complains that her husband is "too old" for her, and she hopes he dies before she does so she can get herself a peppier husband.

Is it normal—or even possible—for a woman her age to want sex? We are shocked. She was always such a proper person.

No names or location, please. Our family would have to leave town if this got out.

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANON: It is both normal and possible for a woman of 80 to want sex. However, if she has suddenly begun to talk about it constantly, it might indicate that some physiological changes may have occurred in her brain. Try a little tenderness.

DEAR ABBY: For years I've been telling my daughters (now 56, 59 and 61 years old), "Please, don't buy me any Mother's Day presents. I have everything I need!"

Well, they paid absolutely no attention to me, and every year I would get these expensive Mother's Day gifts over my protests.

This year I said, "All right girls, if you insist on buying me something, make sure you pick out something you like because it's going to be yours after I croak."

Oakland's Victory But Rangers Lead Division

ARLINGTON (AP)—Through nine innings, Mike Heath was hardly a hero.

The Oakland catcher was 0-5, all grounders, and one of them even resulted in a double play by the Texas Rangers.

Yet when all the shouting was over after Oakland's 13-12 win in 15 innings Sunday night, in a marathon that lasted five hours nine minutes, most of the bear hugs had gone to Heath.

He doubled in the 10th, singled in the 11th, singled in the 14th and then singled in ex-Ranger Dave Chalk with the winning run in the 15th, all off Doc Medich, who threw the last 8 1-3 innings for Texas.

Oakland trailed 9-4, but scored five times in the seventh to tie it. They trailed again 12-9, but fought back with three runs in the ninth to send the game into extra innings.

"This is one we absolutely had to win," said Jim Essian, who had five of Oakland's team record 29 hits in the slugfest. Heath, Mike Edwards and Rickey Henderson, all had four hits.

Texas also set a team record with 21 hits.

"I've been in 11-or 12-inning games before, but never any with that many hits or that intense," Heath said.

The Rangers' lead over California in the American League Western Division dwindled to one percentage point.

Morgan, a 33-year-old optometrist from Wewoka, Okla., collected $54,000 for his first-place finish.
