UNIQUE PUNISHMENT

There is more than one way to accomplish any goal.

A prime example focuses around a fellow who operated a food store for many years. He is one of the most kindly old gents we have ever known — we've never heard an unkind word about him and that's virtually impossible for people who work in the public.

This man has extended credit to hundreds of people over the years and still makes "loans" — most of which are never repaid. He's just that type of caring, unselfish individual.

One Saturday afternoon when the temperature was hovering around 100, the groceryman observed a teenage girl slip an ice cream bar into her blouse and ease out of the store.

Most people would have promptly called the law, but not this gent.

He followed the teenager out of the store and began to carry on a conversation with her on the sidewalk. As the sun bore down and the ice cream began to melt, the girl made repeated attempts to walk away. But each time the groceryman extended the conversation. Ice cream was now dripping down the girl's body and puddling on the sidewalk.

The old fellow never spoke harshly to her, never mentioned the theft and never summoned the law. Perhaps his method was even more effective!

HE'S JUST A LITTLE BOY

He stans at the plate with his heart pounding fast.

The bases are loaded
The die has been cast.
Mom and dad cannot help him
He stands all alone

A base hit right now
Would send the team home.

The ball nears the plate
He swings and he misses;
There's a groan from the crowd
And some hoots and some hisses.

A thoughtless adult cries, "Strike the bum out."

There are others a-ranting and many a loud shout.

Tears fill the bright eyes and he's ready to run.

He thought this Little League was supposed to be fun.

But some moms and dads want to remove all the joy.

They forget to remember, he's just a small boy.

He needs a kind heart
To give him a break
For in moments like this
A good man YOU can make.

So, folks, temper your actions and please don't forget.

He's just a little boy
And not a man yet!

Extent of hail loss unknown

Farmers and businessmen in the Lockney area may not have full knowledge of the extent of the damage done to crops on Monday, June 29, when a hail storm hit the farms south of Lockney and hovered over that area for about one hour.

According to County Extension agent Richie Crowe, "an estimated 25,000 total acres were affected and approximately 5,000 to 6,000 acres of cotton were totally destroyed by the hail."

According to David Foster, co-owner of D & J Gin, Inc., "We estimate losing about 2,000 to 2,500 bales of cotton but that is only a guess. There is no way to know just what the crop would have made if not for the hail."

Delton Stone, manager of the Lockney Cooperative, had much the same statement. "I would guess that at least 2,000 acres of cotton belonging to our customers are gone. There is no way to predict how badly the elevator will be affected by the hail storm. Much of the maize and corn in that area is seed maize and corn and I am not sure how much our customers will lose."

Stone also said that "many of the farmers are not planning on replanting crops. Many have already replanted and its not profitable for them to replant again."

Buddy Graham, manager of Attebury Grain, said that he has no idea how much in the grain crop they have lost. "There is really no way to tell until later on. In 1975 I saw grain crops that did not look like they would make it and farmers harvested them so there is really no way to tell what we can expect of the crops this year."

There is another article on the storm and crop damage in this week's issue of The Hesperian.

LECTURESHIP

The Main Street Church of Christ in Lockney will host a three day lecture series by J.R. Chism and sons Jerry and Jim. Jim Chism of Wilcox, Arizona will bring the morning sermon on Sunday, July 19 at 10:30 a.m. and the evening sermon at 6:00 p.m. Jerry Chism of Abernathy will present the lesson on Monday evening, July 20 and J.R. Chism of Lamesa will present the final lesson on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend all services and join in the fellowship and noon meal on Sunday.

Kids Week July 13-17

Mary True, CEA-H.E.

Floyd County 4-H is sponsoring a "Kid's Week" from Monday, July 13 through Friday, July 17 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. every afternoon. The activities are open to everyone who is a third grader through 13 years of age.

The week's activities include: Monday - ZAP RAP. Participants will learn about the power of electricity. Southwestern Public Service representative Melinda Hollaway will have a number of demonstrations showing the power of electricity plus there will be numerous other activities.

Tuesday - CAKE DECORATING - participants will decorate their own mini cake to take home. They will learn a number of techniques professional decorators use.

Wednesday - RECREATION - This day will be for "just having fun." There will be a number of games and activities for the participants.

Thursday - CONCHOS AND LEATHER CRAFTS - The Tandy Leather Company will bring conchos, leather and beads for a belt, key rings or boot decorations. The cost for this workshop is $7.50 to pay for supplies.

Friday - KID'S COOKING SCHOOL - Joy Parnell of Southwestern Public Service will give a cooking school. She will have lots of new recipes and there will be plenty of food and fun.

If you are interested in any day of the week or the entire 5 days, you need to call to register. Call the Extension Office at 983-2806 by 5 p.m. on Friday, July 10 to register.

Refreshments and recreation will be provided each day. You will not want to miss out on this week full of activities, so call 983-2806 today to register.

Fireworks believed cause of fires

Three fireworks-related fires were reported during July 4 celebrations. All three were fought by members of the Lockney Volunteer Fire Department.

Two of the fires turned out to be minor grass fires, one near the J.E.

Huggins home and one near Jessie Garza's softball field. Both of these fires were reported at or about dark on the Fourth.

The third fire was reported about 10:30 p.m. on the Fourth and was located in Lone Star, about one-quarter of a mile west of the Lone Star school building.

The fire, apparently started by a bottle rocket or other fireworks, destroyed about 20 round hay bales belonging to Rusty and Aaron Wilson. It also destroyed an abandoned building near the bales.

"We were afraid it was too late to save anything when we left town," reported fireman Lonny Hooten. "Usually when the fire is that far from town and it can be seen from town, its too late, but we were able to save two of the buildings," said Hooten. Lone Star is 13 miles north of Lockney, and Hooten said the fire was easy to see from just outside of Lockney.

The buildings, including the one that was destroyed are owned by an out-of-town oil company.

Needless fires like this one are one of the best reasons to observe safety on the Fourth of July, authorities note. Fireworks should be set off in open spaces where there is no dry grass, no houses, and no flammable substances. Open dirt areas are best. Fireworks should never be set off in town for the same reason. Someone could lose a home if fireworks are set off carelessly.

Stabbing victim in serious condition

Anita Arevalo remains in Lubbock General Hospital after she received a serious stab wound Sunday, July 5 at about 3:00 a.m. She was first taken to Lockney General Hospital and was then transferred to Lubbock by members of the Lockney Volunteer Fire Department at 3:30 a.m. the same day.

As of 4:00 p.m. Monday afternoon a suspect was in custody and being held on $25,000 bond in the Floyd County Jail.

According to Lockney police officer Jerry Edwards who was on the scene, "Mrs. Arevalo received one serious stab wound in the incident and is in serious condition in Lubbock. We are still investigating the case at the present time, but we do have a suspect in custody."

Edwards also told the Beacon that in addition to the Lockney Police Department, members of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department and Department of Public Safety troopers responded to the call.

VANDALISM

Olan Poteet reported Monday that someone had tried, unsuccessfully, to remove a new battery from a tractor near his home. It is possible that this is the second act of vandalism in the northeastern part of Lockney in the past few days and neighbors are encouraged to watch for any suspicious activity in this part of town. If anything out of the ordinary is seen, report it to the Lockney Police Department.

Rev. Murle Rogers preaches final sermon as pastor of First Baptist

The Rev. Murle Rogers preached his final sermons Sunday as pastor of First Baptist Church in Lockney. He is retiring as a pastor.

The Rev. and Mrs. Rogers plan to move to a house southwest of Lockney.

Wanda Rogers will continue to teach third grade in the local school system.

The retirement was initially scheduled to begin Sunday, August 16 but was moved forward. He announced that his retirement was prompted by "health reasons." Pastor of the local church since January 25, 1982, the Rev. Rogers underwent open heart surgery in 1983.

When making his resignation announcement, the Rev. Rogers told his congregation that he is entering "a different phase of the ministry." This will include supply and interim assignments.

The church has named a pastor search committee comprised of Gary Marr, chairman, Terry Ellison, Kenneth Holt, Jim Bob Martin and Kelton Shaw.

RETIREMENT RECEPTION

First Baptist Church is planning a retirement reception on Aug. 16 to honor the Rev. and Mrs. Rogers. It is set for 8 p.m. in the church's Garden Room.

Senior Citizens plan to view 'Texas' on July 21

An outing which will include a meal in Palo Duro Canyon and the production "Texas" is being planned by Lockney Senior Citizens for Tuesday, July 21.

The group expects to leave on a charter bus about 3:30 p.m. that day from the Senior Citizens Center. Participants may either take a sack lunch to be eaten in the picnic area near the "Texas" amphitheatre or they may purchase a barbecue plate at the site from 6 until 7:30 p.m.

Twenty-five $8 seats and the same number of $6.50 seats for "Texas" have been reserved by the organization. Five dollar seats have not been reserved, but W.L. Carthel, vice president of Lockney Senior Citizens, says "Texas" officials report that $5 tickets are available before 7 p.m. for most performances.

Carthel said that 34 reservations had been made by late last week. Deadline for making reservations is 5 p.m. Friday, July 17.

If the bus is not filled with members of Lockney Senior Citizens, other persons may make reservations on a first-come, first-served basis. About 50 persons are needed to fill the bus.

Bus seats cost $10.65 each.

Anyone desiring to make reservations or wishing additional information should phone Carthel at 652-2674 or Myrt Hill at 652-3423. Individuals may pay anytime for the show tickets and bus reservations, although the 17th is deadline for bus reservations. Checks should be made payable to Lockney Senior Citizens.

The performance starts "promptly" at 8:30. The Lockneyites' charter bus will depart for home immediately after seeing "Texas."

NEW CARPET INSTALLED

The new carpet has been installed at the Senior Citizens Center building. "It looks real nice; according to one member. Also the last of the cabinets are being completed.

The building should be ready for the seniors to move all of their activities there soon.

A covered dish meal for the members of the Senior Citizens Center is planned for 12:30 p.m. Thursday, July 9. All members are encouraged to come to the community center and bring a friend.

The organization has 164 members as of Monday afternoon.

The dishwasher for the Senior Citizens Center has been installed, according to Myrt Hill, publicity chairman.

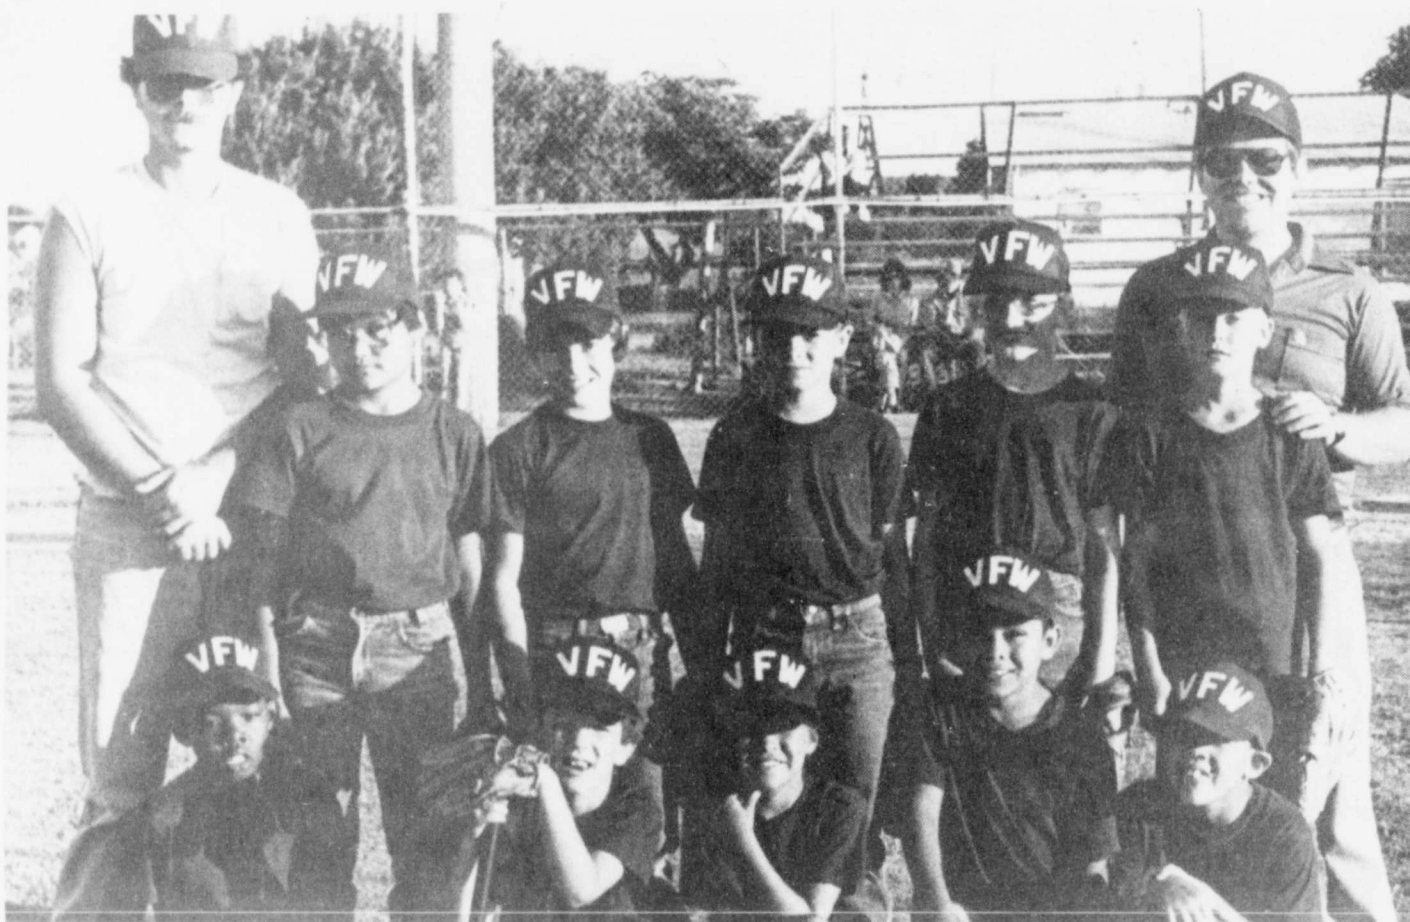

Senior Citizens extend their apologies to any donor [except those who desire to remain anonymous] who was overlooked and not listed in the list which appeared in last week's Beacon.

Tips offered to help cut air conditioning costs

Look Who's New!

The pleasant warming sunlight that streamed in your windows last winter can easily become a costly overload on your air conditioner this summer, said an energy specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The best way to reduce unwanted solar heat gains is to block the sun before it enters your home," said Weedon Echols, energy specialist. Shading windows with remote, external or internal devices offers a variety of solutions.

Echols noted, remote shading uses objects that are not part of the building to provide shade. Trees, shrubs, vines, and walls can be used to block the low morning and evening sun from east and west surfaces. She said deciduous trees are particularly good for shading south-facing windows because they provide shade in the summer and shed their leaves to admit sunlight in the winter.

When building a house, orientation is critical to minimize summer heat gain, maximize summer ventilation potential, and maximize winter solar gain, Echols warned. A building elongated along the east-west axis will have less surface area to the east and west to minimize solar gain. East and west walls should have no windows. She noted, a light colored roof will reflect solar radiation that would be absorbed by a darker roof.

Exterior and interior shading devices also provide a good way to block the summer sun. Exterior shading devices can prevent up to 95 percent of the sun's heat from reaching the interior of the home, said Echols. Overhangs, porches, carports, awnings, trellises, shutters, solar screens, and roll shades are examples of effective exterior shades that are attached to buildings, she said.

Modest fixed overhangs are effective in blocking direct solar radiation from entering south-facing windows. However, diffuse and reflected solar radiation may still account for a significant portion of the unwanted heat reaching the window. She noted, additional forms of shading, such as blinds or shades, are required.

Very wide overhangs, such as carports, porches or awnings, are effective in reducing solar heat gains through windows of any orientation. Echols warned that awnings and similar devices should be ventilated near the top to prevent a buildup of excessively hot air that may add to the heat load.

Interior shades provide an easily controlled last line of defense against unwanted solar heat, said Echols. Blinds, shades and drapes will reflect 20 to 50 percent of the sun's radiant energy back through the glass. Performance improves with opaque materials, lighter color reflective backings, and shades that fit close to glass.

She warned that interior shading is not as effective as exterior shading because some of the heat escapes into the house instead of being reflected back to the outside. Echols noted, for best results use interior shading as well as exterior shading.

In times like these... By Mary Jo Fielding

One Friday afternoon last fall, a Defense Department courier embarked on a sensitive mission, carrying envelopes full of classified military secrets to two U.S. Senate offices. The courier duly deposited the first package, but the material was so sensitive that a staffer telephoned a warning to colleagues at the second stop. Remember to stow the envelope in a secure vault. Yet the material, plainly stamped "Top Secret," sat unprotected in a reception area until a shocked aide discovered it there three days later.

No one professes to know whether any secrets were actually exposed over that week-end. But even if they were not, the episode demonstrates in one small way America's increasingly dangerous vulnerability to espionage in the so-called Decade of the Spy. Amazingly the Capitol Hill slip-up occurred after a long series of major spy cases was supposed to have jolted an embarrassed — and compromised — Washington into a rapid tightening of security, top to bottom.

Lockney Care Center

By Lanita Cantwell

Many of the residents at Lockney Care Center most likely spent the holiday week-end resting and sleeping. Last week was filled with "partying." We began the month of July by celebrating the birthdays of Tressa Lewis and Milton Robbs. Mrs. Lewis will be 91 years old on the 23rd and Mr. Robbs will be 87 on the 15th. We are thankful to Myrl Wofford and Dorothy Bradley for hosting our birthday party. Dorothy Smith also provided cake for the occasion.

We wrapped up our Bingo tournament and declared Bessie Jackson the first-place winner. Mary Jo Fielding was second and Eva Cresswell was third. They all received a prize. A small participation prize was awarded to each person who played Bingo during the month of June.

On Thursday evening the Athena Study Club brought delicious pies to serve our residents and the Lockney 4-H Club members presented a program. We appreciate everyone who came, including the parents. The 4-H members who performed were: Jerod Glasen, Mandy Hunter, Max Green, Michelle Delgado, Robert Delgado, Mark Todd Terrell, Allen Martin, Cynthia Martin, Sarah Martin and Timothy Mitchell.

On Friday morning dark clouds hung about and threatened to put a damper on our picnic, but by afternoon the sun was shining brightly and it was quite hot. Residents gathered in the front yard with staff members, friends and families to enjoy a picnic supper. After stuffing ourselves with sandwiches, pickles, chips, salads, and lemonade, we enjoyed cool slices of watermelon. The Country Sounds (plus a few) provided entertainment for us. We thank them very much for giving their valuable time to be with us. The musicians were: John Francis, Bennie Brown, Jimmie Burson, Wayne Hunter, Bill Roys, Carolyn Ewing, Anna Beth Clay and Kathy Shorter.

Maebelle Francis joined the ladies for a few hospital spiritual songs and our own Bonnie Julian closed out the entertainment by singing so beautifully "Shine on Harvest Moon" accompanied by the band.

Our guests for the picnic included: Janis Julian, Janie and John Wayne Lopez, Elva Robbs, Alice Wilson, Stephanie, Jason and Jeremy, Kenzie Burson, Elton and Mary Chris Cantwell, Frances Ashton, Clarence Ashton, Bill Pitchford, Teresa and Brandy, Eva and Lorena Daniel, Blanca Blanco, Dianne and Anthony Galvan, Kristina Graham, Pat and Eric Reyes, Maria-Carmen-Rosario Moreno, Abigail Blanco, Curt Thomas and Curran Thomas.

Many thanks to all the staff members who worked extra hard to make this picnic possible.

CHAMPION TUMBLER — Ashley Bixler, pictured here with her coach Dawn Fortner, competed in the 1987 Tri-State [Texas, New Mexico, and Oklahoma] Acroymnastics meet in Andrews, Texas on June 6. She won first place overall in her flight and also won overall champion of the two and three-year-old class 1-A girls by achieving the highest overall score. Three-year-old Ashley is the daughter of Rick and Melanie Bixler and the granddaughter of Pat and Susie Frizzell. Ashley is coached by Dawn Fortner of the Top of Texas Tumblers in Lubbock.

Initial LGH/TTUHSC perinatal symposium conducted in Lockney

Don Willis, M.D., has delivered one of the newest fields in obstetrics and gynecology to West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

Perinatology... The practice of caring for the high risk maternal/fetal patients.

And he is making the practice of sharing his expertise and knowledge in one of the most specialized areas of medicine with not only residents in training but physicians and medical support personnel to this area.

The Perinatal Outreach Education program is designed to be a regional service for physicians, hospitals and health professionals throughout West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

The first perinatal seminar was held in Lockney, for the professional staff of Lockney General Hospital (Dr. W.J. Mangold, Dr. Gary Mangold and staff) and was "quite well received."

Under direction of Dr. Willis, the Perinatal Center provides continuing education about maternal care and serves as a resource center for the staff of area hospitals.

Topics such as how to handle maternal transports, managing a fetus in distress, and recognizing and treating pre-term labor are only a few of the many that Dr. Willis and his perinatal outreach team covers.

The perinatal outreach team staff includes a maternal/fetal ICU nurse, Bonnie Schraner, RN, and a neonatal outreach coordinator, Holly Freeman, as well as Dr. Willis and guest speakers from the Health Sciences Center.

Dr. Willis presented an informative slide show dealing with areas of preterm labor and treating the premature newborn. "Put in perspective, only about eight percent of pregnancies end in preterm death," Dr. Willis told the group.

"We have come a long way in treating newborns. For babies delivered at 27 weeks or less, the survival rate is almost 50 percent. These small babies do survive and we want them to be as healthy as possible. We now do everything possible to keep a baby alive at 25 weeks or more," said Dr. Willis.

"However, the ideal intensive care unit is the pregnant uterus. I would rather prevent preterm birth than send a preterm baby to the neonatal intensive care unit."

Statistics are optimistic, indicating that the survival rate of infant born at 31 weeks is 95 percent, and 25 weeks is viable.

"If the baby is going to live, we want it to be as healthy as possible," said Dr. Willis, "and the ideal intensive care unit is the pregnant uterus. I would rather the baby be there than in the neonatal ICU transport."

"I am so pleased that Dr. Willis has been enthusiastic about the perinatal outreach program. He is an excellent speaker and delightful to listen to," said Holly Freeman, RN, Neonatal Outreach coordinator.

Soon after the visit, Dr. W.J. Mangold was asked to comment on the seminar.

"We thought it was excellent. Dr. Willis presented it well and it was a real help," said Dr. Mangold. "We have already used a lot of the information that was presented. Dr. Willis provided much of information that was presented. Dr. Willis provided much of information in a short period of time. We sure appreciate Lubbock General Hospital providing this outreach program for us."

Dr. Willis' personality was revealed when he peppered his presentation with slides of his "hometown" including beautiful slides of Hawaiian scenery (the misty rainbow valley and the ever-more popular Tom Selleck, Magnum PI, in person) and oftentimes humorous anecdotes of Hawaiian practices, customs and legends.

Don Willis, M.D., is an associate professor with the Obstetrics/Gynecology department of the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center.

Dr. Willis was born in Hawaii, raised in Florida, then Mississippi, where he graduated from high school in 1969.

He obtained his undergraduate and medical degrees from the University of Mississippi in 1976. He then served his internship at the Jacksonville Florida University Hospital.

After a three-year private practice in Naples, Florida, Dr. Willis was lured to the new field of perinatology. At that time, there were only about 200 perinatologists in the United States.

In 1985, he completed his fellowship at the University of Florida and began practicing at the University of Hawaii as assistant professor of Obstetrics/Gynecology, where he practiced for two years before joining the staff of Texas Tech Medical School.

Dr. Willis' current research projects include eating disorders in pregnancy, long-term tocolytic therapy with premature rupture of the membranes and external version for abnormal presentation.

A runner for 10 years now, Dr. Willis ran in one of the Honolulu marathons. He enjoys windsurfing and travel, also.
