CLOUDBURSTS HALT RAIL AND HIGHWAY TRAVEL

Two Hastings, Okla., Bank Robbery Suspects Captured By Waurika Officers

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

Talker acknowledges receipt of an invitation to visit the exhibit of "Wichita Brand" garments of the Western Garment Manufacturing company at the Dallas Fair, Oct. 11 to 26.

Wichita Falls people who visit the fair will be particularly interested in Wichita Falls exhibits included among which will be products of the irrigated valley and the exhibit of the Western Garment Manufacturing company.

The Western Garment Manufacturing company is now entirely divorced from any other company. A letter recently sent out to stockholders of the company said that some months of this year of depression had showed a balance on the wrong side of the sheet but that other months had shown a small profit. If such a showing can be made under the conditions that exist there ought to be reason to expect proiftable operation when business conditions improve. The company has given employment to something like 80 people, most of whom would probably not have had employment but for this business.

Let's give the Western Garment Manufacturing company a hand by buying its products and by saying a good word for it on the outside.

Talker also acknowledges receipt from former Gov. Pat. M. Neff of a copy of "The Battles of Peace," a collection of his speeches, and his official communications as governor of Texas. Contained in the collection are his famous "King Cotton" speech and his rhapsody on "The Texas Cowboy" together with others of a more serious character. The volume is well worth a place in any Texan's library and Talker is appreciative of the gift.

Wichita county is spending on its highways this year (the important state highways not included) approximately $250,000, Talker is told, yet there is talk of discontinuing the patrol of the county highways by two officers on motorcycles because there are no funds for the payment of their salaries and expenses.

The cost of this patrol is between $4,000 and $5,000 annually and while it cannot be said just how many accidents these officers prevent or how many people they prevent from being killed, they do prevent accidents and doubtless their work does save lives and save the county from the expense of taking care of those injured.

Right at this time there may not be money available for the pay of county traffic officers but a state law provides a method for obtaining this money. This law provides that a sum not to exceed 5 per cent of the whole may be taken from the county's share of its automobile registration receipts and used for the purpose of enforcing traffic laws within the county. In Wichita county this would exceed $8,000, much more than is required for the two traffic officers who have been employed. The law also provides that fines resulting from such enforcement may be used to defray the expenses of maintaining traffic officers.

In the past all the receipts from the county's share of automobile registrations and from fines for traffic law violations have been placed in the road and bridge fund, which have then been apportioned among the commissioner's precints of the county. With the huge sums that are being spent for road improvement and maintenance in Wichita county it does seem that a little money might be found for a highway patrol, especially when a state law specifically provides how it can be done.

More improvement than in any recent month is reflected in the October trade survey of "Credit Monthly," publication of the National Association of Credit Men. The improvement applies to both sales and collections of wholesale and manufacturing firms in the 100 cities covered. Seven cities reported sales brisk, 63 reported them fair and 27 slow. Two cities moved from the "fair" column to to "good" during the month, and 12 shifted from the "slow" classification to "fair."

Up in Oklahoma the Republican candidate for United States senator has appropriated the Democratic platform which he says "suits me fine" and hopes to prevent the election of former Senator Gore. Oklahoma is interested in a tariff on crude oil. He found much greater help from Democrats than Republicans in the fight that was made for such a tariff. He knows that Oklahoma is normally Democratic and that he must hold a large number of Democratic votes in order to win over Gore.

Insull Utilities to Make Permanent Improvements

CHICAGO, Oct. 12. (AP)—An estimate that the Insull utilities would spend between $195,000,000 and $200,000,000 for permanent improvements in 1931 was made tonight by Samuel Insull, the utilities magnate in a statement in which he viewed the present business depression as only temporary.

The improvements, he said, would be distributed over 29 or 30 states. Of the total, he added, $124,000,000 would be expended in and around Chicago, much of it incidental to the transportation building program in Chicago.

VERNON YOUTH JAILED AFTER NIGHT'S CHASE

Two Young Men Relate Movements of Four In Oklahoma

$305 RECOVERED

Prisoners Tell Sheriff Daring Raid Netted Only $840

Special to The Record News

WAURIKA, Okla., Oct. 12.—Two men arrested near Red river early today in connection with the robbery of the Oklahoma State bank at Hastings Saturday were held in the Jefferson county jail tonight.

They gave their names as R. L. Parks, 26, of Vernon, Texas, and Roy Anderson, 22, of Hobbs, N. M. Brought here by five Waurika officers who arrested them in a field near the Red Store, the two suspects told officers of their movements before and since the robbery.

Parks, who told officials he has a wife and baby at Vernon, is wanted for questioning by Texas authorities, according to Sheriff Frank Driskill.

"We were out of work, broke and needed money badly," one of the pair told Sheriff Driskill.

Four Men Rob Bank

The bank at Hastings was robbed by four men who fled in a small coupe after taking more than $1,000, according to bank officials. The men arrested today had $305 on them and declared the robbery netted only $840.

The four met in Oklahoma City about two weeks ago and planned to rob a bank at Comanche, Okla., the sheriff was told. Comanche is 18 miles north of Waurika.

An automobile was stolen in Chickasha on Saturday preceding the robbery and a few days later the license plate was taken from another car in Duncan and fixed to the stolen car, the sheriff said.

The quartet drove to Comanche early Saturday but decided not to attempt to robe the bank there because of the large number of people on the streets. They then drove to Hastings.

Travel on Foot

Following the robbery, the men drove west to Cow creek, where they abandoned the automobile and separated in pairs. Anderson and Parks, traveling on foot, turned back east and came through Waurika Saturday night. They continued east to the Wichita Valley rail-

Youth Narrowly Escapes Drowning As Railroad Bridge Collapses

BORGER, Texas, Oct. 12. (AP)—After tossing about in swirling flood waters of the Canadian river for 10 miles today, clinging to wreckage, Thomas L. Gill, 21, of Amarillo, was rescued early today by Borger firemen who lowered a rope from a bridge near here in time to catch Gill's outstretched arms as he floated by.

The flood waters had washed out 400 feet of a Rock Island railway bridge, hurling Gill and two other men into the river. The structure is a combination railway and automobile bridge near Sanford, 15 miles west of here.

Clyde McGee was rescued with difficulty and taken to an Amarillo hospital. H. F. Cottrell, toll gate keeper who narrowly missed Gill's fate, when the leaning bridge piling suddenly collapsed, telephoned Borger police when efforts to rescue Gill failed. Gill was not a good swimmer and kept afloat by clinging to the wreckage in the swirling flood which was a mile wide in places.

Fireman Lee Creek and Policeman W. M. Chapman waited on the bridge at highway 117, three miles north of Borger, and stopped Gill's turbulent voyage with the rope.

The washout was expected to delay traffic several days over the cut-off from Amarillo to Liberal, Kan.

Floggings For Thugs Suggested

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12. (US)—Flogging of bandits and racketeers was suggested tonight by George W. Wickersham, chairman of President Hoover's law enforcement commission.

"Great advantages" are apparent in this punishment, Wickersham declared in an address read for him before the American Prison association. He was unable to leave Washington. He warned against a revival of flogging, however, without further study of its effects.

"A careful inquiry into the results of flogging as a punishment for certain offenses and a prevention of further wrong doing, may well be made to determine the desirability of employing it in the war against banditry and racketeers, Wickersham said.

"As a deterrent to others, flogging would seem to present great advantages, but it would be unsafe to assume that as a fact without inquiring into the subsequent career of the flogged offenders as well as into the general effect upon the volume of crimes of the character thus punished."

He cited the use of the birch rod, or "the cat" in England, Canada and Delaware.

Criminals have the advantage in the conflict with civic authorities, Wickersham declared, saying:

"Nowhere do the police forces appear to have developed methods of defence equal in intelligence and method to those of the agressors."

Attacking prison overcrowding, insanitation, and herding of first offenders with hardened criminals, Wickersham proposed certain reforms as "beyond controversy."

They were "decent sanitary conditions for inmates," protection of individuals "from contamination by direct contact with the depraved," and the providing of work for all, "as idleness is the prolific mother of evil."

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. —The banking firm of Lee, Higginson and company announced today that a group of international bankers had put a credit of $125,000,000 at the disposal of the German government, subject to action by the German reichstag, authorizing the credit and approving a method of repayment.

SUAVE GANG LEADER DYING AT HOSPITAL

Notorious Racketeer Won't Furnish Police With Gunmen's Names

MOTIVE IS UNKNOWN

Shooting Offers Striking Parallel to Murder Of Rothstein

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. (AP)—Five bullets from the pistols of unknown assailants today struck down Jack (Legs) Diamond, suave gangster, racketeer and beer runner who recently gained world-wide notoriety when several European countries refused to permit him in their domains.

The former bodyguard to Arnold Rothstein, slain underworld financier, was taken in a private ambulance from the Hotel Monticello in East Sixty-fourth street, where the shooting occurred, to Polyclinic hospital, where surgeons were unable to perform a planned operation because of his weakened state. Four bullets had struck him in the chest and sides and one in the scalp. His condition was grave.

Wall of Mystery

Detectives assigned to the case met a baffling wall of mystery similar to that surrounding the killing of Rothstein.

Diamond told them he was shot by three or four men who burst into his room and opened fire as he sat partly dressed on the edge of his bed in room 829. He denied he knew the men and when police suggested he knew why he had been shot, he grinned despite his pain and brushed the suggestion aside.

Police shrugged when asked for a motive for the attack, the implication being one guess was as good as another.

Wife Notified

While he lay on the operating table Diamond gasped out a request that his wife, who is at the luxurious Diamond summer home at Acra, N. Y., be notified. Police complied.

The hospital to which he was taken was the one in which Rothstein died after being mortally wounded in November, 1928. Police contended Rothstein was shot during a card game in the Park Cen-

Fireman Killed In Wreck Of Fast Texas Passenger Train; Engineer Injured

DALLAS, Oct. 12. (AP)—One man was killed and three persons injured today when Texas and Pacific No. 10 fast express train, eastbound, was wrecked at Eagle Ford, Dallas county, six miles west of Dallas. R. A. Short, 34, of Big Spring, fireman, was killed instantly.

He leaped just before the engine crashed to the ground and crushed him. The negine piled up on its left side after leaping the track and dragging four of its seven cars from the rails. The cause of the derailment was unknown.

None of the passenger coaches left the rails and so far as learned, none of the passengers was injured.

T. B. Petty, 52, of Fort Worth, engineer, suffered numerous cuts and bruises on his body, legs and arms. He was brought here to a hospital.

Couple Injured

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Crockett of Irving suffered bruises and slight cuts when their automobile was struck by a portion of the railroad engine as it swung sideways from its tracks. They were treated here at a hospital and went to their home.

Witnesses said the accident occurred just as the train was rounding a curve and headed down grade along the several hundred yards of straight trackage leading into Eagle Ford. None of the crew or witnesses was able to offer an explanation of what caused the accident. The possibility was considered that there might have been a slight spread, since workmen had been digging at the side of the roadbed and throwing in additional dirt preparatory to laying heavier rails.

Fireman Jumps

One bystander said the engine ran for a distance with the wheels bumping along on the rails without fitting in the gooves. Then the engine left the rails and ploughed along the ties, cutting them for

Dry crusaders have compiled chart showing location of every speakeasy in Washington.

It is not official as congress is not in session.

This map will have big sale among tourists.

But we're sorry they told us. We like to do our own guessing.

You cannot call it a war map. Both sides are willing to fraternize.

You keep track of your triumphs by sticking pins in the map. After the sixth triumph you stick the pins in yourself.

There's only one way to get into the nicest places these days. Grab an axe and join a raiding party.

The city of Washington was laid out by a French architect.

The residents of the town are being laid out by a Scotch chemist.

The only trouble with these stragetic maps is that you cannot get near them as there are too many generals and admirals bending over them.

NEGRO SLAYER SHOT TO DEATH

Oklahoman Avenges Death Of Brother

ARDMORE, Okla., Oct. 12. (AP)—After his brother, Babe Pruitt, Berwin, Okla., constable, had died in a hospital here this afternoon from bullet wounds inflicted by Semi Robertson, a negro, Claude Pruitt shot and killed the negro after driving him from another part of the hospital.

The negro already was suffering from a bullet wound in his lung inflicted by the constable during a gun fight at a dice game officers had raided last night in the mountains near Berwin. He fled from the negro ward of the hospital as Claude Pruitt entered the door and ran half a mile before his pursuer sent a bullet through his head. Claude Pruitt surrendered voluntarily to officers.

The deaths of Constable Pruitt and the negro were but 10 minutes apart, Claude Pruitt dashing from his brother's death bed straight to the negro ward.

Claude Pruitt refused tonight to make a statement to police. No charges had been filed.

The slain constable was 36 years old and is survived by a widow and three children.

Insurgents Claim Victories In Five Brazilian Provinces

(By The Associated Press)

Insurgent headquarters in Porto Alegre, Rio do Sul, claimed general advance of revolutionary troops along the border of Sao Paulo and Parana, with victories at Jacarezinho, San Jose da Platina, Punto Ribeira, Ourinhos and Singues.

A government statement listed the encounters at Jacarezinho, Punto Ribeira, and another at Itarare, state of Sao Paulo, as federal victories. The government statement, issued at Rio de Janeiro, also said rebels attacking Caravellos, small southern Bahia port, had been repulsed and many of their number taken prisoner. The insurgents claimed to have occupied and to be in control of the city.

Insurgent claims of victory in the state of Alagoas also were disputed by the government, which asserted that the spirit of the revolutionists was beginning to wane, and that there was no question of Rio's being able eventually to control the situation.

Dr. Fetulio Vargas, president of the state of Rio Grande do Sul, and defeated candidate for the national presidency, assumed control of the entire insurgent movement and left Porto Alegre for the Sao Paulo front.

HEAVY RAINS GENERAL OVER GREAT REGION

Wichita Valley and Denver Trains Held Up By Washouts

LAKES, STREAMS RISE

Iowa Park Road and Weeks Park Areas Covered By Overflows

Renewed heavy downpours, in some places approaching the proportions of cloudbursts, Saturday night and Sunday created a serious condition in Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma as already swollen streams filled their banks, railroad tracks washed out, highways flooded, and numerous homes were threatened by rising waters.

The drenching rains, falling on lands and streams already soaked by last week's heavy precipitation, were general throughout the section, diminishing somewhat to the west. The heaviest fall was reported at Burkburnett where approximately six inches fell within an hour Sunday, and at Clarendon, where road bridges went out after a similar downpour Saturday night. At Wichita Falls 2.50 inches fell between the early hours Sunday morning and dusk Sunday evening.

NEAR DROWNINGS

Thousands were inconvenienced by too much rain here Sunday but only one man and a boy had fears of drowning. It happened at the corner of Twelfth and Scott streets where there is an innocent looking puddle of water between the pavement and the sidewalk.

First the man and then the boy carelessly attempted to wade through the puddle. Both disappeared in the water which concealed a deep cave-in. Onlookers saw the man's hair protruding from the muddy water and yanked him out again, soaked and sputtering. A similar fate awaited the youth who followed in his footsteps a few minutes later.

Railroad Washouts

Washouts stopped service on the Fort Worth and Denver between here and Electra and on the Wichita Valley near Dundee and again near Holliday. Repairs were expected to be completed before morning. Reports from Amarillo said the Canadian river bridge at Tascosa had gone out for a distance of between 300 and 400 feet. Trains ran through to Amarillo and passengers for the North were transferred in trucks to awaiting cars on the other side of the bridge.

The Sunday afternoon Wichita Valley to Holliday was forced to back into Wichita Falls when it struck a half mile section of washed out track.

Along the highways, D. M. Puckett, division highway engineer reported that the Archer City detour, just repaired, washed out again Sunday afternoon after dozens of cars had been pulled through the mud. The road will probably be impassable until Tuesday he announced.

Homes Flooded

The highway between Wichita Falls, Iowa Park and Electra was inundated during the afternoon, hundreds of cars were stalled, and bus service halted. Families living along the Iowa Park road were alarmed when flood waters reached their homes. Many of them moved out. Water flooded the kitchen of the J. P. Holcomb home, forcing the family to seek dryer quarters.

In Wichita Falls proper, flood waters from Holliday creek reached new high levels, inundating all of the weeks park section and rendering the Holliday road to the lake impassable. Cars stood in water up to the floor level during the afternoon and dozens of carburetors were flooded out in the attempt to cross.

Lake Overflows

Water was going over the Lake Wichita spillway at a depth of six inches at 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon and rising at the rate of an inch an hour, according to Dr. A. H. Douglass, superintendent of the city water department. Water to a depth of more than two feet was running under the spillway bridge. The new rains Saturday caused a rise of one foot and seven inches during the day.

At Lake Kemp, where a rainfall of 1¾ inches was reported, a rise of .3 feet was reported Sunday afternoon.

John Crawford, game warden, expected another foot increase from the rains that have already fallen. Water was going over the spillway at Diversion lake at a depth of .3 inch, Will Hickman, caretaker reported. An additional slow rise was anticipated.

Mr. Hickman laughed at rumors that the Diversion lake dam had broken, declaring that such reports became current every time heavy rains fell through the section. He declared that the rise is still well before that of the spring and that there is no danger whatever of a break.

Throughout the area Sunday highways were spotted with temporary lakes of water, dirt roads practically impassable bus lines to Waurika, Electra, and Graham were stopped.

Red River Bankfull

Red river was reported practically bankfull Sunday afternoon and fears for an overflow were expressed and the waters continued their slow rise. The stream was unbroken with a very swift current through the channel on the north side. Wichita river, swollen from last week's rain, was also rising close to the banks.

Damage to the crops from the flood waters was not regarded as serious by G. C. McGown, county agricultural agent. Cotton will be injured somewhat in grade from discoloration and some of it will be wasted from being knocked from the burrs, he declared. The rains will delay grain planting but on the other hand will help seed already in the ground, the expert declared.

The following rain reports from Texas and Oklahoma were received by The Record News Sunday:

CLARENDON—A cloudbudst here Saturday night in which approximately six inches of rain fell washed out a bridge on the Amarillo highway near Martin, cutting off bus service and automobile communication.

The heavy downpour backed water up into stores in the business houses and homes in certain sections of the city. Considerable damage was reported. No rain fell Sunday.

OLNEY—A slow, steady rain fell here all day Sunday, continuing through the evening.

QUANAH—An additional inch and a half of rain fell here Sunday. Downpours through the section made highway 51, between Quanah and Crowell, impassable. Buses were forced to detour. Service was discontinued between Quanah and Paducah and Quanah and Altus, Okla.

It was still raining slowly late Sunday.

MANGUM, Okla.—Skies remained cloudy here Sunday night after a one-inch rain fell through the day.

PETROLIA—More than two inches of rain fell in intermittent showers all day Sunday.

BOWIE—A slow rain which began falling here Sunday afternoon continued through the evening.

IOWA PARK—For a time Sunday afternoon Iowa Park was cut off from traffic with Electra or Wichita Falls as waters backed up across the highway following heavy rains Saturday night and Sunday. Rain measured more than four inches.

Residents on the road to Wichita Falls became alarmed as water invaded their homes and several of them abandoned the houses to seek dryer quarters.

Water was so high over the creek just outside Iowa Park on the Electra road that motorists feared the bridge would be carried away. Dozens of automobiles were flooded out and stalled along the highway during the afternoon. A truck was used to aid stalled cars.

SEYMOUR—A hard rain, measuring close to two inches fell at Seymour Sunday afternoon. Reports gave a one and three-fourths fall at Lake Kemp and throughout the section. Roads were almost impassable. It was still raining late Sunday.

WALTERS, Okla.—Showers continued to fall here late Sunday after a two-inch precipitation was measured during the day. Roads were almost impassable and bus service interrupted.

QUITAQUE—Skies were clearing here Sunday after a heavy downpour Saturday night.

SHAMROCK—A hard rain here Saturday night was followed by clearing skies Sunday.

FREDERICK, Okla.—More than two inches of rain fell here Saturday night and Sunday and a slow drizzle continued Sunday night.

VERNON—Rising waters were interfering with automobile traffic here Sunday night after a four-inch rain throughout the immediate section. The underpass near Oklaunion was blocked by high water and the detour itself almost impassable. It was still raining Sunday night.

HENRIETTA—Heavy rains which fell here all day Sunday continued Sunday evening. The Little Wichita was reported almost bank full.

ARCHER CITY—The Wichita Falls highway was again made impassable Sunday when a heavy rain once more flooded the detour. The downpour here measured almost an inch. More than 100 cars were blocked by the impassable road.

FLOYDADA—Skies were clear here Sunday after a heavy rain Saturday night.

CROWELL—It was still cloudy here Sunday after a three-quarter-inch rain Saturday night. Dirt roads were almost impassable.

CHILLICOTHE—Rain continued to fall here late Sunday after a heavy precipitation Saturday night. The downpour measured between two and three inches.

LAWTON, Okla.—Streams throughout the section were swollen and roads made impassable by a several inch rain which fell all day Sunday and continued through the evening.

TIPTON, Okla.—Showers Saturday night and Sunday measured more than two inches and heavy clouds promised further downpours here through the night.

BENJAMIN—Precipitation measuring 2½ inches was recorded here in showers Saturday night and Sunday. It was still cloudy Sunday night, though the rain had ceased.

CHILDRESS—The sun shone out here Sunday after a heavy rain Saturday night. In the late afternoon clouds appeared but no rain fell during the day.

GRAHAM—A light rain fell here Sunday afternoon after a cloudy morning.

ELECTRA—A heavy downpour that lasted all day fell in and around Electra Sunday, overflowing roads and adding to the burden of streams already swollen.

ALTUS, Okla.—Between two and three inches of rain was recorded here Sunday night after a continuous downpour throughout the day.

OLUSTEE, Okla.—Slow rain continued to fall here Sunday night after 2½ inches had been measured through the day.

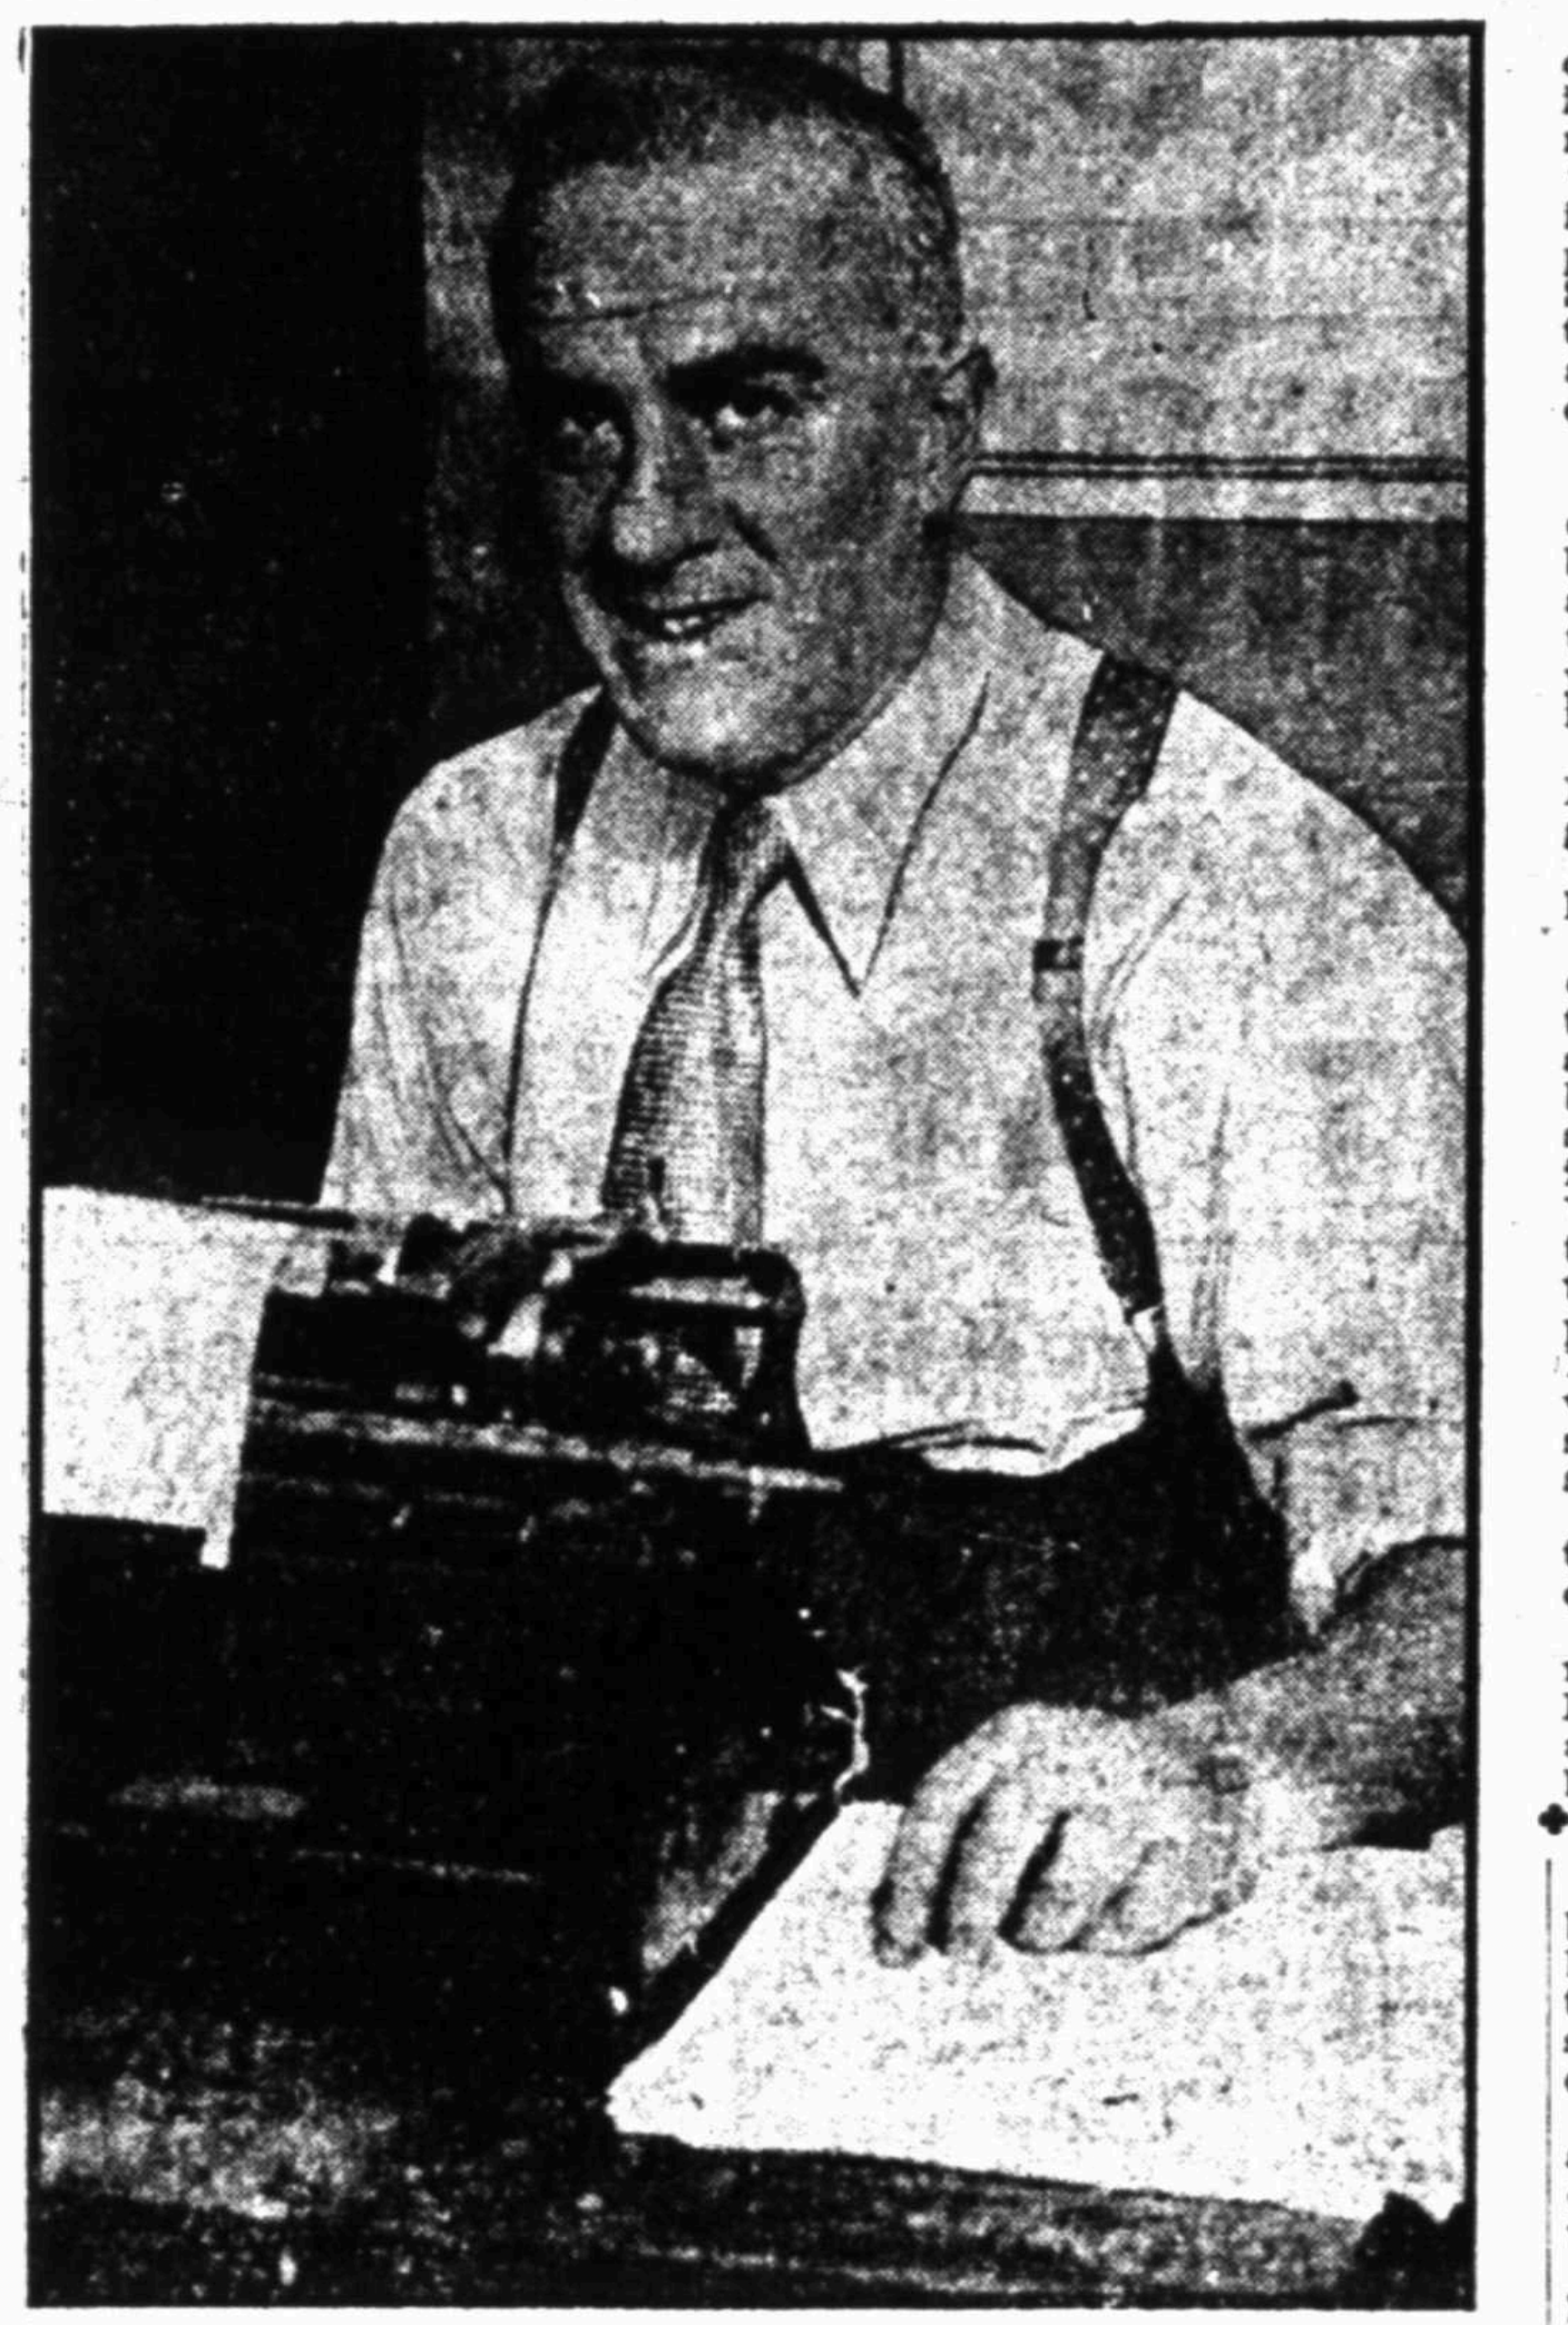
The communion table was given by the Business Girls' circle of the church, of which Mrs. Hall was the teacher, and its sponsor, Mrs. J. E. H. Railey. The two chairs presented with the table were given by Mr. Railey. Presentation was made by Mrs. Railey, and C. McFadyen accepted the gift on behalf of the congregation.

The Rajah of Razzberry and the Shah of O, Pshaw Confer



Whenever you see Arthur "Bugs" Baer smiling, you know that he has finished his day's output of humor. This picture was taken at an interview during which Baer did a day's work. The joke was on Reporter James Aswell. Baer's daily outbursts of humor appear in The Record News.

Arthur "Bugs" Baer, the Rajah of Razzberry and author of America's most pointed column of comment on current happenings, in his world-wide observation of things in general, moored his magic carpet at the gates of the palace of the Shah of O, Pshaw. He found the potentate playing poker with friends and using sheep and camels for chips.

"Having lots of fun?" he queried.

The Shah looked up with a bored expression. "Naw," he said. "I've been playing this game all my life and my ancestors played it for a thousand years before that. Can't you suggest a name that is popular in your country, Bugs?"

"Surest thing, you know," said Bugs with alacrity. "Try miniature golf."

The Shah threw in his hand and listened eagerly.

"A miniature golf course," Bugs explained, "is a national park in tabloid form. The game is not golf and it's not marbles. It's somewhere between the two major and minor sports of America. People are playing it night and day and back again. You see shadowy silhouettes in the twilight weaving grotesque contortions on the landscape like a stork pecking away at an oyster cracker. Miniature golf, it seems, was invented by a man who had a terrific slice off the tee and was afraid to show it."

"Sold," said the Shah, and ordered the marines out to build a private course.

"Bugs" Baer's column of comment appears daily in The Record News. He laughs at life and places and people and things. You'll enjoy laughing with him.

Olustee Farmer Uses Dairy Herd, Poultry and Hogs to Beat Drouth

OLUSTEE, Okla., Oct. 12.—Frank French, young farmer living six miles southwest of Olustee, has had some farm product to sell, every week the past summer, regardless of the extreme drouth. French has 60 acres of cotton that is making a fair yield. Two crops of hay and one seed crop has already been realized from the 25 acres of alfalfa and another good crop of hay will soon be ready to cut.

During the summer months, 25 pounds of butter per week, was the average amount from five cows. Since October, two more cows have been added to the dairy herd and the average built up to 40 pounds per week. The butter finds a ready sale on the local market at 50c per pound. Mrs. French uses a power churn and the butter is molded and sold in fancy cartons bearing the name of the owner.

The skimmed milk is fed to 10 shoats that will soon be ready for the market and two brood sows. Eighty white leghorn hens are fed all the skimmed milk they want, after it has soured. French has found that the milk increases egg production. A nearby patch of wheat furnishes green feed for the hens.

French seeded 20 acres of alfalfa the middle of August, that lay dormant until the recent rain. Now, he has a fine stand that is growing off rapidly and will be ready to cut along with the old crop, next spring.

Mr. and Mrs. French are both graduates of the Olustee High school, both attended Oklahoma Agriculture and Mechanical college at Stillwater and later taught two terms at Lincoln, near Eldorado. They resigned their positions in school where they were both successful teachers, and moved to the farm owned by his father E. E. French, of Stillwater. The farm plant is operated under the name of E. E. French and son.

'LEGS' DIAMOND SHOT 4 TIMES

Picturesque Gang Leader Near Death

tral hotel but were never able to establish their contention or bring the slayer to justice.

Diamond's career has been a long running battle with the law in which he almost always came off victorious. He has been arrested 23 times, five of them in connection with murder charges, but has served only a short reformatory sentence.

Arsenal Captured

Widespread publicity came to him with the recent capture in a Brooklyn flat of one of the most extensive gangland arsenals ever taken. The seizure was made by detectives who trailed a chauffeur of Diamond's to the apartment.

Four arrests were made and questioning of the prisoners led to the finding of a blood-stained automobile in a Brooklyn garage. The car belonged to Harry Western, owner of a roadhouse in the Catskills, who had disappeared. Later Harry (Skunky) Klein, one of the prisoners, told police he was a $75-a-week beer runner for Diamond and that he had been given $50 by a man named McNamara to drive the Western car to New York and "ditch it" off a dock.

Deported in Belgium

Then it developed that Diamond had gone to Europe for treatment for a mysterious stomach ailment. Police cabled foreign authorities. When his liner reached Britain, Diamond did not go ashore, but continued to Belgium whence he was deported to Germany. There he was detained while authorities sought a berth for him on a liner returning to the United States. All the liners reported they were full, and he finally was shipped home on a freighter. No attempt was made to arrest him here.

During his detention in Germany he expressed great indignation at reports that his trip was due to his gang's being "fed up" with him.

One of the bullets which struck Diamond took a downward course and penertated the abdomen, a wound similar to that which killed Rothstein. Chief Medical Examiner Norris, who is rarely called except in homicide cases, visited the hospital and declared Diamond "a very sick boy."

Room in Order

In the room where the gangster was shot police said they found no sign of disorder and no evidence of gambling or drinking. Nearly every one in the hotel was questioned.

Diamond, growing weaker every minute, was pressed to tell who shot him.

"I was seated on the edge of the bed," he said. "I registered at the hotel last night. I was awake this morning and partly dressed. The door was closed but not locked. Suddenly it opened and there were three or four men in the doorway and they all fired."

"Do you know who shot you?" a police lieutenant asked.

"It came so quick I did not recognize anyone," the gangster replied.

Commissioner Mulrooney said he believed Diamond knew the men. He added that a chambermaid saw two of the gunmen run down the stairs after the shooting and he ordered her held for questioning.

Detectives told a story of the shooting different in some of the details from that related by the wounded racketeer.

Jacob Ginsberg, manager of the hotel, was one of the first to go to Diamond's aid. Ginsberg, the detectives said, lived in rooms 823, 824 and 825 with his family and on Saturday night reserved rooms 828 and 829. This morning, the detectives declared, Diamond left room 831, which was occupied by a show girl, and went to room 829 to take part in a conference with a number of his associates.

He was there a short time when the shots were heard. Diamond was said to have chased his assailants from the room to the elevator, leaving a trail of blood.

The whereabouts of Ginsberg, the hotel manager, was somewhat of a mystery tonight. Police said they had located him "out of town," and he had agreed to return for questioning.

Miss Marion Roberts, believed to be a show girl, tonight was taken in charge by detectives for questioning in regard to the shooting of Diamond.

The detectives said they found her hiding under some clothing in a closet in the apartment of a girl friend in Eighth avenue.

"Why did this have to happen to me?" she said nervously.

Detectives said she occupied room 831 in the hotel where the shooting occurred.

The apartment in which the young woman was found is occupied by Miss Agnes O'Loughlin, actress who recently sued Rudy Vallee for breach of promise. Vallee has denied all her allegations.

The police said Miss Roberts recently told friends she was engaged to Diamond.

DIAMOND'S WIFE RUSHES TO HIM

ACRA, N. Y., Oct. 12. (US)—Mrs. "Legs" Diamond collapsed when the news of her husband's shooting was brought to her and could not leave for New York for a half hour. Then she jumped up excitedly, shouting:

"I must go to him. Quick. He sent for me."

Then she ran out to the garage, back of the house, mounted one of the half dozen automobile and started for New York.

The Diamond home is in this town, 20 miles from Catskill, where both the Diamonds were well known and were often seen in the streets. Outside of a little gossip started last week when Mrs. Diamond dyed her hair from blonde to dark brown, however, their life in the little town, has been an extremely quiet one.

The home itself is ample evidence that Diamond lived in constant fear of invasion. It is a three-story frame building well set back from the road. On the porch of the building is a huge floodlight which is capable of illuminating the road for a quarter of a mile in either direction. Thus, police say, he was enabled to patrol the road and see whether anyone was coming to see him a good while before they got close.

Two large police dogs were also stationed at the entrance, while a half dozen signs warned the public to "keep off."

ALCOHOL BARON DIES OF WOUNDS

NEW YORK, Oct. 12. (US)—Close-lipped to the last, Pasquile Dauria, alias "Patsy Tango" Brooklyn alcohol baron, died today in Trinity hospital with 30 slugs from a sawed-off shotgun in his body.

He and his "muscle man," Marino Sevestino, 41, were shot Saturday night in Brooklyn, by four men who slid alongside of them in a black sedan. Sevestino, with 12 slugs in his body was in critical condition tonight at the hospital.

Police said they learned that Dauria attended a conference in Brooklyn last Friday of the alcohol runners in that section was warned that he must stop cutting his prices. Dauria, police said, was selling it at $4.50 a gallon, and making money, but the others wanted to jump the price to $10.

Dauria, police learned, defied the warning. Less than 24 hours later he was shot. But when detectives sought to learn from him the names of the men who threatened his life, he shook his head and said:

"Leave me alone. I know that I'm going to die and I want to go in peace."

Hoover Returns From Mountain Lodge Sunday

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. (AP)—President Hoover returned to the White House tonight from his mountain lodge in Virginia after an unusually fast run through the heavy Sunday traffic. Capt. Joel T. Boone, the White House physician, who went with the president to the camp, said they found Herbert Hoover Jr., who is ill with a tubercular infection, "doing very nicely."

He is expected to remain at the camp until cold weather forces a change, and then a decision will be made as to where he should be taken.

HASTINGS BANK SUSPECTS HELD

Pair Jailed at Waurika For Robbery

road and spent the night along the railroad.

Pushing on early Sunday, the prisoners told Sheriff Driskill, they came to the Red store and stopped there to ask for a match. Persons in the store called officers in Waurika and the two men fled into a field.

Sheriff Driskill, Undersheriffs D. E. Adams and M. O. Dye, Constable Joe Greer and Bill Fowler, deputized citizen, responded to the call to Waurika and after brief search sighted the two men crawling across the field. They surrounded the field and made the arrests without trouble.

Information given by the two prisoners spurred the search under way for the other two participants in the robbery and Sheriff Driskill expected Sunday night their capture would be effected.

Jefferson county officials said no charges would be filed in connection with the robbery before Monday.

HUNDREDS JOIN IN MAMMOTH HUNT

Special to The Record News

HASTINGS, Okla., Oct. 12.—Two of four men who robbed the Oklahoma State bank here Saturday were captured about midday Sunday near Red river eight miles southwest of Hastings.

The men gave their names as R. L. Parks and Roy Anderson. They made a statement to officers.

Although armed with a .45 Colt revolver and a .45 Colt automatic, Parks and Anderson offered no resistance when surrounded in a field where they were hiding. The hunted men were on foot and had spent the night in the wild country after the four burned their small coupe and separated in pairs.

When captured the men had $305 in currency which officers and bank officials believed was part of the $1,500 loot taken in the robbery. Their statements failed to disclose the whereabouts of additional money.

Officers of the three counties late Sunday continued the search for the other two bandits. A steady downpour of rain which started early Sunday was believed to be a factor in favor of the fugitives and officers held little hope that they would be captured immediately.

The extensive manhunt was organized early Saturday afternoon when rapidly spreading reports of the bank raid brought scores of citizens from this and surrounding counties to Hastings. C. C. Stephens, president of the Oklahoma State bank, who helped organize and direct the posses said the search was one of the most systematic he had ever known and paid especial praise to Mrs. H. W. Camp, operator of the Hastings telephone exchange. Mrs. Camp's efficient work in putting through more than a score of long distance calls helped materially in the ultimate capture of the two suspects, Mr. Stephens said.

Mr. Stephens related Sunday how his 8-year-old son, Stanley, had watched the entire robery from a vantage point under a table, where he had scampered undetected after the bandits entered the bank. The boy remained in his place of safety until the robbers had sped out of town with $1,500 of the bank's money in their car.

"One man stood at the door of the bank while the other three committed the actual robbery," Mr. Stephens said. "N. D. Foster and W. G. Endicott, customers; J. R. Reynolds, cashier, L. O. Miller, assistant cashier, and myself were in the bank at the time.

"The bandits herded the five of us into a corner and two of them scooped up all available cash. We were then locked in the vault and the quartet fled. It was then that Stanley came out from under the table," the bank president recounted.

"In the meantime, E. W. Stephens, Hastings druggist, saw what was going on in the bank and ran to his car to get his gun. When he reached the automobile, the bandit sentry leveled his shotgun on him and Stephens ran to the rear of the bank.

"When the four men entered their car, Stephens raced to his machine and got his pistol. He fired twice at the moving bandit car. One bullet hit Parks in the flesh of his arm and the other grazed his chest just above his heart."

The wounds were not serious, it was determined today when the pair was captured. Parks and Anderson were brought here and identified by the bank officials and customers and later removed to the Jefferson county jail at Waurika.

It was the second time the bank had been robbed in the last three years. On July 30, 1928, it was held up by the Cunningham gang of this section.

The manhunt Saturday and Sunday was conducted much on the order of a rabbit drive. While hundreds of armed men pushed through the river bottoms in the drenching rain, automobiles loaded with citizens and officers drove along the section lines for miles in each direction from the river.

It was believed the large number of men in the posse was responsible for the orderly arrest of the two suspects. They were hopelessly outnumbered and surrounded. An attempt to shoot their way out would have been futile.

The automobile used by the bandits was found early today by citizens of Hastings. It had been burned practically beyond repair but the license number plate salvaged from the wreckage gave rise to the theory it was a stolen machine. The license had been issued for another make of automobile at Duncan.

Hardins Present Four-Acre Tract Uniting Burkburnett School Lands

Special to The Record News

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Oct. 12.—Once more two pioneer citizens have evidenced their faith and interest in Burkburnett. Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hardin have added one more benefaction to an already long list. Realizing the advantage of joining the school properties of Burkburnett and the possibility of developing a beautiful campus on this spot, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hardin have bought and presented to the Burkburnett schools the four acres of ground lying immediately between the present high school and grammar school. Work will begin in the near future toward clearing the ground and getting the spot ready for beautification by next spring.

In recognition of this gift the board of education at its last meeting unanimously passed the following resolution.

Resolution Adopted

Be it resolved: That the Burkburnett Independent school district through its board of trustees, and each trustee for himself, express to Mr. J. G. Hardin and Mrs. Mary C. Hardin their profound gratitude for their noble and generous act in purchasing and giving to the school district the four acres of land lying between the present school properties. That such an act is but a continuance of the noble deeds of the donors in contributing to those influences that build character and good citizenship in the lives of the boys and girls of this community. That we recognize the splendid influence they have contributed to this community in their gifts to the different churches of our town, the number of students that have finished higher institutions of learning through their benefactions, the parks and playgrounds contributed by them, and their noble contribution to an outstanding university of our state. Such acts as these will live throughout the ages and the influence of character building will not stop of eternity.

We express for every citizen of this district and for the boys and girls of this community, and the boys and girls of the future generations, the love and admiration that is due Mr. and Mrs. Hardin for the eternal influence that they have planted in the lives of the people of this community. We hereby designate this as "the John G. Hardin and Mary C. Hardin campus" and a suitable marker will be placed thereon that will permanently record this contribution to the education of this community.

TRAIN CRASH KILLS FIREMAN

Relative of Wichitans Hurt In Derailment

several hundred feet. Just before the engine got to the freight depot, the front of the locomotive turned to the right and crumpled over. The fireman jumped just before it struck the ground but witnesses said there was so much of dust and splinters flying after the crash that they couldn't see what happened thereafter.

Fireman Short was found lying a few feet from the front baggage car, near the freight depot.

Engineer Petty, in a hospital here tonight, said he had no idea what might have caused the wreck.

"It all happened in the twinkling of an eye," he said. "The train was running between 35 and 38 miles an hour when we rounded the curve in the tracks and started into Eagle Ford.

"There was a sudden derailment, accompanied by the scream of grinding wheels. Then a terrific crash came.

Petty to Recover

"I was thrown between the cab and the boiler and over the boiler. I must have been stunned, for I don't remember very clearly what happened after that. I do remember crawling on hands and knees when I heard the roar of the steam as it escaped from the boiler. The engine turned over on the side where the fireman sat. I didn't see him after the engine was wrecked."

Physicians believed Petty would recover. Until the extent of his injuries was learned, Petty was not told of his fellow worker's death.

Short is survived by his widow, a son, Ben Elroy Short, both of Big Spring; his father, E. A. Short, Weatherford; two brothers, Ben and Wilmer Short, both of California; and a sister, Mrs. M. R. McKenzie, Dallas.

ENGINEER HAS RELATIVES HERE

Petty of Fort Worth, had been seriously injured in a train wreck near Eagle Ford, Texas. Mrs. Decker was advised Mr. Petty's condition was not as grave as had been at first reported.

Mrs. M. Finkler, 1610 Monroe street, is Mr. Petty's mother-in-law, according to Mrs. Decker.

Mr. Petty, an engineer on the Texas and Pacific for 30 years, had visited relatives here a number of times, having been here a few months ago.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

In a recent "Gentleman at the Keyhole," in Collier's magazine, (and by the way it is hard to conceive of a gentleman at a keyhole), several weeks ago, we were interested and amused over the dissertation on "ghosts writers" in Washington.

He spoke of the Republican who had been criticising a Democratic newspaper man whose eyes had noted the foibles of several Republicans and with his vivid "ghost writings" had foisted on the public, under the names of prominent Democrats, things that made the party ridiculous.

The only thing, however, the senator complaining proved, was that the Democrats did not approve of Hoover's administration. Who could blame them?

We do not. We have not liked all that has happened since he became president and have brought wrath down upon our head in our home by wishing for another Teddy Roosevelt—even though we have never voted any but the Democratic ticket.

At any rate, the "Gentleman at the Keyhole" hopes "ghost writing" will not be done away with, as it adds to the piquancy of Washington life. The articles in the papers do at times make the public think.

We have been a "ghost writer" ourself. The first time was long ago when the city editor on the Memphis Commercial Appeal gave us a commission to write a graduation essay for a Mississippi girl on the theme "The Value of High Ideals."

We were false to the subject. We made it full of idealistic phrases that might make dads and mothers use their handkerchiefs and feel sure the sweet girl graduate was starting life headed straight toward heaven.

And all the while, the ghost in the Commercial Appeal office was mocking at the high ideals of a person who hired them written.

We bought shoes—a pair of them—with the price of the theme. Shoes did not cost so much then as now or we would only have bought one shoe.

Her ideals may have been just as high as ours. It may be she only lacked words. Since we heard a story of two old men in a Quanah store recently, we have decided to be more careful in condemnation. One remarked solemnly to the other, "Better give honest weight than to lose your immortal soul over two or three grains of coffee."

Vernon Home Damaged By Fire Late Friday

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, Oct. 12.—Fire of undetermined origin damaged the 12-room frame house located at 2119 Marshall street here, owned by C. Reed Smith, to the extent of approximately $2,000 Friday night. The house was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Ferguson. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

The blaze gutted five of the seven rooms on the second floor of the house. The remaining two rooms were damaged by smoke. The roof was almost totally destroyed, but the outside walls were scarcely burned.

Qualities Needed For Procuring Job Explained by Dix

Dear Miss Dix—What does a girl need to get a position these days? Does it take what we call "It" to get a job as well as to be popular with boys? Do business men prefer personality to intelligence? Is charm more essential than accuracy? Are good looks more important than speed on the typewriter? It surely seems that way.

I am a high school graduate with several years' experience in business, but am out of work and finding it very hard to get anything to do. Perhaps you can tell me what is lacking in me.

—LOUISE.

Answer—What's lacking just now in the present state of business depression is work, and so your not being able to get employment is no indication that you do not possess all of the qualities that business men look for in their assistants. Let us hope that times will soon be better and jobs plentiful, and that you will find that ideal situation of which every business girl dreams.

But you raise an interesting question when you ask what qualities a man looks for in the girls he employs, and I passed on your query to a man who does the hiring and firing of labor for a large firm, and this is what he says:

"Of course, most of our head women have worked up from the ranks, and when we employ a new one it is somebody whom we have known of for a long time and who has proved her ability in her particular line. In selecting the rank and file we have to be guided more or less by our hunches, and every man plays his own system.

"There are men, for instance, who will hire none but young and pretty girls. These are the gentlemen who prefer blondes whom they can take out to dinner and who are such good-lookers that they repay what is spent on them, but this office is a business office and not a place for flirtations and so no flapper or living picture need apply. Still we want fairly young girls because they are adaptable, and not only learn more quickly but adjust themselves more easily to our routine. We have found that older women never get over the stamp that the office they were trained in put upon them and they are always telling us how they did things at Blank & Blank or Jones & Co.

"Also, we like girls who are easy on the eyes, just as we like mahogany desks, or any other piece of decorative office furniture. A very homely girl has just about as little chance of getting a job as a raving beauty has. Experience has shown us that men look at the one too much, and won't look at the other at all, both of which slows down the work. Then a girl must be absolutely neat and clean and well groomed.

"I would never hire a girl whose hair was frowsy, or whose heels were run over, or whose frock needed cleaning and pressing, because I would know that if she wasn't particular about her clothes she was sloppy-minded and wouldn't pay any attention to the details of her work. Neither would I hire a girl who was overdressed and who looked as if she was starting to a party instead of coming out to hunt for a job. I'd know that she lacked judgment and was frivolous-minded and besides she wouldn't inspire confidence. I'd want a girl who looked like a sensible business girl who meant to work instead of one who was camouflaged as a society girl.

"Then, of course, I'd be largely guided by the girl's expression. If she looked wide awake and alert and intelligent, if she looked eager and enthusiastic, I'd choose her above a girl who looked bored and uninterested and sort of peevish and fretful and as if she was furious because she had to look for a job and hoped to heaven she wouldn't find it, for I would know that that sort of girl is never interested in her work and never learns to do it well and is a clock-watcher who does as little as she can get by with.

"I never hire a girl who begins by telling me what an aristocratic family she comes from, nor how rich her father used to be, nor that the reason she has gone to work is because she is bored with parties and thinks it must be so exciting to be a real business girl. I want a girl who needs the money and who is interested in her work and filled with a desire to learn all about it so she can make herself more valuable to the firm and earn a higher place for herself and get more in her pay envelope.

"And I don't hire thin, nervous, high-strung girls because about the time you get them broken in and of some use they collapse, and because they are so temperamental that they have to be handled with gloves and you have to gumshoe around their feelings which are spread all over the place, and because when you correct them they burst into tears and make a personal matter of any fault that is found with their work. A sick stenograph can disrupt the work of a whole office and so I select girls who look well fed and strong and healthy in preference to those who have starved themselves down to the fashionable living-skeleton figure.

"Of course, personality counts as much in business as it does in society and in employing girls who have to be brought in contact with strangers, as a private secretary does, I select young women who have charm and who 'sell' themselves, as the phrase goes, to me when they apply for the job by the way they approach me, by their tact in what they say to me and by their having that indefinable quality that attracts us to a woman without our knowing why.

"To sum it all up, I should say that when a girl goes to apply for a job she should look neat and well dressed and intelligent and dignified and ladylike. She shouldn't be too much dolled up or have on too much paint and lipstick. She shouldn't giggle, nor roll her eyes, nor try out her sex attraction on the man who is hiring her. She should try to give the impression of being a competent business woman, for that is what he is after. A girl who can hold down a job, not a playmate."

Scientist Church Sermon on 'Reality'

The lesson-sermon subject in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Oct. 12, was "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?"

The golden text was from Psalms 37:27. "Depart from evil, and do good; and dwell forevermore."

The following passage from the Bible was included in the service (James 5:15): "The prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him."

The following citations from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mark Baker Eddy, were also read: "'The prayer of faith shall save the sick,' says the Scripture. What is this healing prayer? . . . The highest prayer is not one of faith merely; it is demonstration. Such prayer heals sickness, and must destroy sin and death . . . Only as we rise above all material sensuousness and sin, can we reach the heaven-born aspiration and spiritual consciousness, which is indicated in the Lord's Prayer and which instantaneously heals the sick . . . Sickness, sin, and death, being inharmonious, do not originate in God nor belong to His government."

Wichitans' Names Will Appear Upon Memorial Tablet

Mesdames Ben G. Oneal of Wichita Falls and St. Andrew Myers of Henrietta, president and secretary of the first district Texas Federation of Women's clubs, and Mesdames W. B. Hamilton and J. Truman Stevens of Wichita Falls are the first local women to become founders in the headquarters-permanent for the Texas Federation of Women's clubs to be built in Austin. They are four of many in the first district, the names of whom will be made public when the founders list is complete. There will be only 1,000 founders and to become one a woman must make a donation of $100 to be paid in sums of $25 each for four years.

Men, women and federated clubs can become patrons by giving a donation of more than $100, to be paid in four years. The names of founders and patrons will be inscribed on a memorial tablet to be placed in the memorial room.

Travel Club First Patron

The Travel club is the first club in the first district to become a patron. This club voted to give their pledge at the meeting Friday morning at the Woman's Forum clubhouse. Many other clubs in the district are expected to take the same pledge.

The new headquarters-permanent will be of pure colonial design and will be of hollow tile and finished with old colonial red brick in varied tapestry shades with stone entrance and trim and slate roof.

Through the portico of columns, one enters into a vestibule in the floor of which a design of the lone star of Texas and the shield for the Texas Federation of Women's clubs will be worked in mosaic tile. Typical of the colonial plan, the reception suite is in the center of the building flanked on each side by lounge and library. They, in turn, connect through arcades with the art gallery in one wing, designed according to the latest methods of proper and indirect lighting facilities and with clerestory ventilation and a tea room with kitchen and service facilities on the other wing. The tea room is of such elastic nature that it can be also used as a private dining room or banquet hall on such occasions as may be necessary.

In direct connection with the library is the reading and writing room, dedicated to the veterans of the world war. Here in an oriole window, under a skylight, will be housed the three bronze memorial tablets, the larger and most important of the three bearing to posterity the names of the first 1,000 women who become founders.

Floor Plan Perfectly Balanced

Each wing bears an exact symmetry with its opposite member. In the back of the reception suite, between the public room and the main building and auditorium will be located the office which has complete control of the entire group building. In direct connection with this office, there will be spaces provided for the Federated News, also a stairway to an adequate basement which will house archives, permanent records, vaults and business pertaining to the seven districts of the federated clubs.

The auditorium will house such stage facilities as will make it practicable for rental purposes to Little Theaters, concerts, lectures, etc. On the second floor a number of guest suites have been incorporated for the convenience of club women who are stopping for visits or overnight stops in Austin or who are connected with the University of Texas.

In every detail, the building is not just a public building but a home with a charm that will be an eternal welcome to the Texas club-women from all over the state.

GRAHAM DEEDS FEDERAL SITE

Postoffice Lot Presented To Inspector

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Oct. 12.—A committee composed of County Judge W. F. Parsley, R. V. Tidwell and C. W. Johnson, representing the citizens committee appointed by the chamber of commerce, presented a deed to a lot in the northwest corner of the courthouse park to A. S. Page, postoffice inspector who spent Thursday and Friday in Graham completing a survey for the new federal building in Graham.

The building has been authorized by congress, and as soon as the money is allocated work is expected to commence.

The location is the most central possible location, being only two blocks from the union depot and reached by paved streets from all directions. It is believed that the inter-departmental committee will make the allocation in a few months since the policy of the administration is to start a building a year or two in advance of the program in order to help the unemployment situation, and in view of the fact that the records of the Graham postoffice show a marked increase for the year 1930 over the year 1929.

Receipts for the month of September, 1930 were 52 per cent greater than the receipts for September, 1929, the receipts for August 1930 were 14 per cent greater than August, 1929 and the receipts so far for the year 1930 are 20 per cent greater than for the year 1929.

Mr. Page also announced that bids would be asked to lease quarters to the government, and advertisement made at once, the lease being subject to cancellation by the government when the new building is completed.

Rubio's Sons To Start Work Today

ATCHISON, Kan., Oct. 12. (AP)—Two boys from Mexico must buckle down to work Monday, even if they are the sons of a president.

There's to be study aplenty for Guillermo and Fernando Ortiz Rubio, the Rev. Richards Burns, dean of residence at St. Benedict's college, said today. The sons of Mexico's president must catch up with other students in the school, for they were longer en route from Mexico City than Father Burns had expected. Some of this time was spent in Hollywood, where the youths, 18 and 19, made a two-reel talkie of themselves and a bevy of girls for exclusive showing at Chapultepec castle.

Guillermo and Fernando have been installed as boarders in the private home of Mrs. S. E. Elder, there also lives their cousin, Salvador Cortez Rubio, a senior in the college.

Alberto Guillen, son of a wealthy Mexico City man, is another student at St. Benedict's from the southern republic.

Regarded as one of the highest honors given in the local high school, the football queen annually presides at local football games, and is attended by the remaining nominees for the position as maids-of-honor. The manager of the winning candidate acts as her escort to all games.

The contest will close Oct. 16 and the successful candidate will be crowned and will preside at the game here next Friday when the Bulldogs meet Mangum.

Deer Hunter Lost In Idaho Wilds

YELLOW PINE, Idaho, Oct. 12. (AP)—Jimmy Mills, 21, of Emmett, was reported tonight to have "found himself" after being lost in the woods several days but R. H. Robertson of Boise still was missing nearly a week after he disappeared on a deer hunt 17 miles northeast of here.

The Cascade officers of the forest service was advised that Mills walked into the hunting camp near Warrens sometime yesterday after being lost since Tuesday. This information was communicated by the forest officers to his family in Emmett but they had received no other word.

No details were given to officers other than that he was suffering no ill effects from his stay in the rugged and forest covered mountains which surround this place.

The return of Mills gave searchers here new hope that Robertson would be found soon.

QUANAH WATER LINES STARTED

Ceremonies Mark Opening Of Construction

Special to The Record News

QUANAH, Texas, Oct. 12.—Mayor T. D. Frizzell broke a bottle of water from the new wells of Quanah's water supply, poured the cement and christened the cementing of the first two joints of the 10-inch pipe line being laid to these new wells about 11 miles west of town. The ceremony took place at the outskirts of Quanah near where the new Acme extension of the Quanah, Acme and Pacific railroad crosses the road to the country club.

"Hick's Joint" was the official title given the union by Dr. Frizzell, in honor of H. R. Hicks, engineer of the Southern Union Gas company, who is in charge of the construction.

"The beginning of this work means a new day for Quanah is dawning, and is an event worthy of the thought and attention of every citizen," the mayor stated. "For many years it has been my hope and ambition that some day we would reach the state of affairs where we would be amply supplied with good usable water for the people of this fine town, and from all prospects at this time, we soon will have realized that ambition."

The new wells will furnish a million and a half gallons of exceptionally good water daily, according to engineers, and with the present water system means an ample supply for Quanah's growth for years to come.

Engineer Hicks is of the opinion the slightly more than 10 miles of line will be laid within a period of 40 to 45 days of favorable weather. The pipe will be laid at the rate of 2,000 feet per day.

Work is rapidly progressing on the pumphouse at the wells, and other construction work.

Poor Artists Barred
The Academy's Mistake
Blaming Mr. Hoover
Power From the Sea

By ÉMILE GAUVREAU

Sentimentality does not provoke this criticism of the decision of the National Academy of Design to bar non-member artists from hanging their pictures in its fall art exhibit in New York. For 105 years struggling painters who were unable to get their pictures hung elsewhere without the payment of tribute-money, could avail themselves of the exhibits of the academy for a free presentation of their work, provided, of course, that such work reached a standard of quality.

Now, by a new ruling, this century-old privilege is dead. Members only will be permitted to display their work. Many artists who subsequently attained fame had their first work hung in the academy. These artists were not members because they couldn't afford to be. It smacks, therefore, of partisanship and retrenchment of the American spirit of opportunity to put up the bars at this time.

America, the most prosperous country in the world and the proverbial "land of opportunity," should be the last to discriminate against an artist by reason of his poverty and obscurity.

Millions in silence hear President Hoover's address to the bankers. Those at work will say he has a soul-trying job in the White House and is doing the best he can. Foolish people who speculated and lost fortunes in Wall street will ask: "Why didn't Hoover tell us the crash was coming?" The man on the street, out of work and worrying about his family, will say the president is to blame for the miseries of the country.

Depressions come in cycles. In this country over-production at periodical intervals brings it about. We are prosperous, we have great man power and the most efficient machinery in the world, but we work too fast. Engineer Hoover, who wants us to maintain high standards of living, would be the last man in the world to tell us to slow up.

The spectacle of George Claude extracting power from the sea, and producing 10 kilowatts in the first test of his plant at the ocean bed near Matanzas, Cuba, is one to which the whole world has virtually gathered as a witness. A more dramatic episode in the annals of science it would be difficult to recall, unless one goes back to Robert Fulton and his experiments on the Hudson.

Professor Claude had to put up with a series of disappointments, objections and jeers. His theory of obtaining steam motive power without fuel by utilizing the difference in temperature of tropical ocean water at the surface and at the bottom was looked upon as fanciful. When his first tube, lowered to the bottom of Matanzas bay, broke, the "I Told You So's" were vindicated and jubilant.

The deep-sea tube cost $2,000,000. But, as in the case of Fulton, the many who came to jeer remained to cheer. Professor Claude has demonstrated the workability of his theory and has been publicly acclaimed by the French Academy of Sciences. His perseverance in the face of discouragement and obstacles has earned for him the applause that attests every achievement which the world is last to sponsor and the first to brag about.

FLYING CLASSROOM

CHICAGO.—A "flying classroom" has been built by the National Air Transport to school its pilots in the latest developments of instrumental flying. The rear cockpit is enclosed in glass and painted black so that light cannot enter. The pupil sits in this cockpit, and the instructor in the regulation cockpit in front to bring the pupil out of trouble should he get into difficulties flying "blind."

The Uses of Adversity

IF THE business depression that has been riding us for the last few months has done nothing else, it at least has provided a stopper for a lot of the bunk and hot air that had been infesting the land in brighter days.

The easy optimism of the old days of prosperity is gone, and in its place there is emerging an attitude of self-criticism and skepticism that is a great deal more wholesome.

Up to the stock market disaster of October, 1929, the sky was the limit. People who were old enough to know better went around assuring everybody that we had entered into a new era, in which depression, panic and disaster would be no more. All tears were to be wiped away, all account books would balance eternally, and prices, wages, production schedules and the spirits of mankind were to keep on rising forever. There was almost an apocalyptical character to these prophecies and revelations.

We are a little bit wiser now, apparently. This kind of talk is not heard quite so freely; and in that fact lies the one great benefit which this extremely unpleasant depression is bringing.

It is impossible to make much progress when you discount all obstacles in advance. Success of any kind is only to be had by hard work and deep thought. Providence, in its inscrutable wisdom, has not yet reached the point where it is going to hand the sons of men all the riches of earth on a silver platter—not even in the United States.

But hard work and deep thinking, oddly enough, were not very popular in the period that ended with the great Wall Street crash. Instead, we gave our attention to the glib talker, to the bluffer, to the man who could see nothing ahead of us but a clear track and green signal lights. Right now we are paying for it.

Of course, if we simply sit back now and wail about the cruelty of fate, the depression is not going to do us any good. But if we realize that the bluffer and the high pressure artist have outlived their usefulness, we shall be able to buckle down and pave the way for a real return to prosperity.

The field of economics is one of the most complicated fields there is. It holds out tantalizing possibilities, now and then; the last half-dozen years, for instance, come fairly close to fulfilling all of the gaudy promises that the boosters were making. To find out just what the margin may be between the promise and the reality, and to learn how this margin may be wiped out—these are tasks calling for the best brains the country has.

Our present attitude is favorable to the impartial study that such tasks will require. The old attitude wasn't. In the long run the hard times of 1930 will probably be recognized as a salutary experience—even though they are pretty hard to put up with right now.

Mental Crop Rotation

THERE is a well known, extremely active business man in Wichita Falls whose selection of entertainment for his evenings at home would rejoice the soul of the well-remembered Rev. Fred Datson, rector of the Episcopal church here for many years prior to his death.

Those who were privileged to enjoy the friendship of Rev. Datson will recall how well he had learned the fact that "a thing of beauty is a joy forever," and with what devotion he espoused that philosophy of life. He exemplified fulfillment of the scriptural admonition to think on "whatsoever things are good, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are beautiful."

This busy man in question finds complete relief from the hurried grind of daily business in the music to which he surrenders his thought and fancy in the evening hour. His selections are such as to divorce him from the pull and haul of the "jazz" age which has captured not only a large field of musical endeavor but commercial activity as well.

Instead of whining saxophones, wailing tenors, and monotonous tom-tom basses of the too prevalent radio orchestra, his mental and sentimental diet consists of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra in such masterpieces as Strauss' "Blue Danube" and "Tales of Vienna Woods"; the Metropolitan's best voices in favorite operatic or folk-song selections; the best European symphonies in compositions of universal acclaim; or the bands of Sousa and Pryor.

There is no fallacy in believing that this man knows how to retain the freshness of spirit, soundness of judgment, and satisfaction with life for which his associates know him.

The Season's Young

WHILE Wichita Falls football fans would have preferred that Coach Holton's eleven annex the game with Lubbock, there is no cause for Coyote supporters to feel downcast. If anything, it looks like Wichita Falls is to have cause for real rejoicing in its high school team this year.

In the worst possible kind of football weather, the Lubbock team, heavier and more experienced, outscored the Coyotes and accumulated a heavy advantage in first downs. But the Coyotes demonstrated that they have been exceedingly well coached, that they know their football and that they are an up and coming bunch of youngsters. They played a smart game Saturday in a sea of mud. On a fast dry gridiron, we have a hunch those same Coyotes will furnish Wichita Falls fans some real thrills against any kind of opposition the district can offer.

The Real Objection to Gas

THE use of poison gas is generally listed as one of the supreme horrors of modern warfare. It is interesting, therefore, to note that the surgeon general of the U. S. army points out that poison gas killed not more than 200 American soldiers during the World War, in comparison with the 38,147 who were killed by projectiles.

Of soldiers sent to hospitals, some 70,000 had been gassed as compared with more than 147,000 who had been wounded. Obviously, poison gas has not come close to replacing bullets and shells on the battlefield.

What causes the agitation against gas, of course, is the way it can be used against civilian non-combatants. A sustained gas bombardment from the air might easily destroy half the population of a big city in half an hour. It is for this reason that gas looms as the deadliest weapon in the modern arsenal—despite these figures from the last war.

WALTER WINCHELL

On Broadway

(Copyright, 1930, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Broadwaycasting

Good evening, ladies and gentlemen, and those who used to like me, but are not so sure any more. This evening's guest star is Mayo Methot, of Arthur Hopkins' "Torch Song" play at the Plymouth. She was affectionately received by all critics, and because she cannot repeat a scene from that hit here, she will warble "Ten Cents a Dance," her favorite "torch" . . . Mary Pickford and Doug Fairbanks will sail for France the latter part of next month, thus stifling the recent talk that they were weary of each other . . . Ethel Barrymore is in a new show, appearing in blackface. Well, Ethel can appear in all the blackface she likes, but she'll never be as good as Bert Williams.

Schmeling is the only important fighter whose picture is not included in the official Madison Square garden program . . . The Oscar Hammersteins (she was Dorothy Blanchard Jacobson) are anticipating a blessed advent-ure . . . As are the Messmore Kendalls (she was Kitty Flynn), who are thrilled because their child will have someone to tease . . .

Sunday night, via Collier's hour Helen Hayes, the star, went gay, and gave the dramatic critics a piece of her pretty mind . . . Preceding her was Commissioner-General of Immigration Hull, who remarked that he was trying to solve the unemployment sitch-ee-ay-shun, and thought that a good idea would be to bar from the country-hod-carriers, actors, and bricklayers.

Miss Hayes said that she was glad Mr. Hull had placed actors between dramatic critics.

Some of us would like to wager you anything that Helen was toying with her husband's pet hobby. He is Charlie MacArthur, who is always teasing critics. At any rate, maybe Helen really was angry because her current starring show (which is partly owned by her mother) was received in the lukewarm manner by the reviewers. As one of them I want to warn Helen that no matter how far away they exile me, I shall continue to adore her acting. And I hope that all her children become dramatic critics—so that they can live in style.

Here is a miniature story. In the middle of the St. Lawrence river, opposite Alexandria bay, is a monument to America's "greatest heartache." A New York man, who owned what once was the most famous hotel in the world, built a $7,000,000 castle there for his young bride. He imported distinguished painters, artists and others to decorate the place, which wasn't finished.

She ran away with his chauffeur.

It appears that my clown crack of last week concerning Al Jolson was taken to heart . . . I wondered if Jolson would work on Yom Kippur at the Capitol theater, considering that "The Jazz Singer" film revealed him as an orthodox Hebrew boy who quit the show in that flicker to observe the holy day. The picture was said to be based on his life, you know . . . Well, Al, they tell me, told the Capitol audience that day he had been up all night wondering what to do about it, and that he decided to work and make people happy, instead of roaming the avenues like a hypocrite.

'Im sorry. I take it back. My error. I didn't know that Al worked at the Capitol to make people happy. I was under the impression he worked to get that $20,000 salary, so I apologize . . . Now that I know Al likes to make people happy, I wonder if he will appear for Heywood Broun and myself at the Broadhurst theater this Sabbath night, where a grand program is being arranged . . . Most of the proceeds will go to charity, and the Catholic Actors' guild, the Jewish Theatrical guild, the Episcopal guild, the N. V. A., and the Actors' Fund of America . . . Not only will Jolson make the Broadhurst crowd happy with a song or two, but I feel sure he will make the recipients of the money happier . . . And if he sings for us, he can have the pleasure of slapping my face right before the audience, which, anyone'll tell you, certainly will make a lotta people happy.

Among other safe predictions to make is that within 18 months there will be but two moving picture companies in America . . . Lillian "Luana" Bond was divorced from H. Schulman in Chicago several months ago . . . The Nathan Aschs (his last book was "Pay Day") had the handcuffs melted in Paris . . . Heywood Broun and Don Seitz, formerly of the N. Y. World, clashed at the Newspaper Men's club the other night . . . Seitz rapped the tabloids, and Broun championed them . . . Broun also defended the columnists, who were under the Seitz fire.

I am sorry that Heywood disgraced the craft with a defense . . . Getting indignant gets you nowhere . . . I prefer getting laughs . . . I certainly wouldn't want to swap my luck with Don Seitz . . . Not by a don seitz!

Edna Ferber, the novelist, feels wretched because Corey Ford said things about her in a rag recently . . . She considered a suit, they say, but I prefer to believe that Edna was merely terribly, terribly hurt . . . I just received a telegram from an admirer . . . No, it's from my wife . . . She writes: "How the mighty have fallen. Yesterday you were a Broadway wise guy. Now you're only a Wise Shoe guy."

Sunday night I published that Alice Kenny married a Britisher in England the day before . . . Every paper today confirmed the sealing. This, of course, makes my job exciting . . . The Associated Press reported that they were "quietly married" . . . It was so quiet that the A. P. man in England heard it 48 hours after some of us knew it in N. Y.

Harry Hershfield, the creator of "Able Kabbible," and one of the local favorites, will be toasted Saturday evening at the Commodore by thousands of well-wishers. They are giving Harry a big dinner.

Have you noticed that they never give a guy a dinner until he can afford to buy one?

HEARTBREAK GIRL

By ROB EDEN . . .

Gail Stuart, hiking from Kansas to Hollywood, spurred by film ambitions, is picked up on the road by Nick Walther, wealthy young real estate man, who does not discover she is a girl until he has taken her home for dinner. He laughs at her ambitions, and then impressed by her earnestness, sends for Tod Janson, high-powered press agent friend.

Janson says for $500 he will be able to outfit Gail and get her a screen test. He puts her up at the Hotel Roosevelt for show. The girl only has $50 of her own. He takes her out and buys a good looking suit, a hat and shoes for her. She is terrified when she learns her hotel costs $10 a day, but hopes she'll soon get a job.

Slipping out for dinner at a cheap cafe, her string of imitation pearls breaks. A handsome young man helps her retrieve them. He insists on her sharing dinner with him.

CHAPTER FIVE

"There!" The youth remarked, pulling two dollar bills from his pocket. "That's the extent of my wealth, so I thought I'd warn you. That's all we can eat."

"But I have some money," Gail said quickly.

The boy shook his head. "This is my treat." He said it with such finality that Gail was silent.

"What will you do tomorrow?" She asked when the waiter had taken their order and she had been careful to choose the least expensive items she could.

"Pawn my watch again. It's used to it. I pawn it regularly once a week. That is I have since I've been in Hollywood." He pulled out his watch and put it on the table. A plain, thin green gold time piece. Snapping it open, he showed her a name engraved on the back of the case. Ross Hardy.

"That's mine. What's yours?"

Gail told him. She liked his frankness. She had never met it before in a man. Never such complete frankness anyway. When their dinner came, he started to eat ravenously, finishing long before she did.

"My first meal today," he said, sipping his coffee.

"Then why did you ask me to dinner?"

"Because I wanted company. Besides I have my watch—and I may get a job tomorrow."

Hopes Almost Dashed.

"Where?"

"I do extra work in the movies when I can get work. Mostly I can't, and then I starve or pawn my watch."

Gail laughed. "You're an actor?"

"I thought so when I came here, two months ago. Now I'm sure I'm merely an automaton, waiting in one extra line after another, getting turned down mostly. Some day I'll make the grade, perhaps. My hopes are about finished, though."

"You mean you've been here for two months, and you haven't had much work?" Gail thought of what Tod Janson and Mr. Walther had said. Perhaps they were right after all—about extra work. Probably Hollywood was different than it had been when Carla Cross had started on her way to fame.

"I mean—just that. I've had five days in two months, at five dollars a day. My shoes need resoling, and half the time I go hungry. Not so good. But I'm going to keep at it, Gail—you don't mind if I call you Gail? There's fascination about the movies that holds you. In two months it's got me—and it'll keep me. Some day I'll make good, and laugh at these days. At least I hope I will. I haven't got a break yet, but I'll get one. In Hollywood everything depends on the breaks you get.

"Someone sees you some place. You get a chance to make a test. If it's good, you're in clover. If it's not, you're out of luck and still doing extra work. Good breaks and bad ones. I've had bad ones so far. Just any kind of a chance is worth while. Anything. You never know what will come of it."

"I thought it would be easy," Gail said hesitantly.

"So did I. At first. So does everybody at first. Until they get some sense. And I've got plenty since I landed here."

Because it was a gorgeous evening and they were young, they walked for hours.

When she told him about the test Tod Janson was to arrange for her at one of the studios, he smiled. "That's what I mean by getting a break. I might storm the studios for months and years, and not get a test. You're getting one right away. It ought to be clear sailing after a test. You don't know how lucky you are."

Come in Droves

Gail thought of the five hundred dollars she owed Mr. Walther and the ten dollars a day she was paying at the Roosevelt. She might be lucky, but nevertheless she had gotten horribly in debt.

"Tod Janson is the best publicity man in Hollywood. He'll do his best for you," Ross Hardy went on. "You had a break that not one out of five thousand girls who come to Hollywood get. And they come here in droves."

Because it was a gorgeous evening, and they were young, they walked for hours. It was nearly 11 when Ross brought her back to the hotel, and left her in the lobby, promising to call her soon.

All the loneliness she had felt all day was gone. She had one friend anyway, in the city that already frightened her. Ross was trying to do the same thing she was trying to do. He had been here longer, and knew more about it than she did.

As she went up to the desk, his handsome face was before her, and the smile she liked so well. No one could help liking Ross. Already she liked him too well.

She asked for her key at the desk, and noticed when the clerk reached for it that there was a note in her box. The clerk laid it down with the key, and told her a gentleman had left it.

In the elevator she glanced at the envelope, and her heart gave a queer leap. Her name was sprawled on the face, and in the upper left hand corner was the printed name, Tod Janson. Mr. Janson had come to see her while she was gone. She should have stayed in the hotel all evening. Shouldn't have gone out at all. She might have known he would call.

There were tears in her eyes, that even the thought of Ross Hardy couldn't dispel when she reached her room, and opened the note.

"Miss Stuart," she read through her blurred eyes. "I called and you were out. Please come to my office at 11 sharp tomorrow. I have arranged a test for you at the Werber Studios. Wear the new outfit, and look your best. Tod Janson. P. S. I had hoped to coach you a little tonight, but that will have to wait until morning now."

How she got to sleep that night she didn't know. For hours she lay awake, afraid of the test that was to come, thankful for it. When she awakened next morning, there were faint dark rings around her eyes from her restless, sleepless night.

Shaking Hands

With fingers that shook, she got into her dress, the new one, as Mr. Janson had told her in his note. She was ready hours before 11 o'clock.

The thought struck her when 10 o'clock came, and she had looked up the office address of Tod Janson for the third time, to be sure to have it right, that another $10 of her money had gone. She only had in reality $29 left of her little hoard. Today would bring some good news, though. It had to. She couldn't do what Ross Hardy did. Live from day to day.

She walked into Janson's office at 10:30, feeling she must be a little early.

"Your appointment was for 11," the girl at the desk told her when she had given her name. "Mr. Janson won't be here until then."

"I'll wait." Sitting down in a chair, she picked up a movie magazine which was on the table. The cover was a colored sketch of Carla Cross, her blond hair a halo on her head, her blue eyes expressive, beautiful. Gail looked at it for a long time. The familiar features fascinated her. Carla was so lovely. Carla was like a blond goddess. Some day in Hollywood, she would see her in person.

Idly she turned the leaves of the magazine, seeing nothing on any of the pages. Her mind was on the clock on the desk. Quarter of 11, Mr. Janson was not in yet.

The girl at the desk was pretty. Very pretty. Gail vaguely wondered why she didn't try for the movies herself. Surely Mr. Janson could do something for her.

"You're the girl who is to have the screen test today at Werber's?"

Gail started, and nodded happily.

"Hope you make good."

"Thanks. What time is the test?"

"Eleven-thirty."

Eleven and Janson was not in his office. Gail fidgeted.

"Is Mr. Janson usually late for appointments?" she asked at 11:15.

"He isn't on time very often. But he'll be here before 11:30. And it's not far to Werber's."

Too Late for Coaching

Werber's was the studio which had Carla Cross under contract.

The girl tried to wait patiently, but couldn't. Suppose Mr. Janson were late? Too late for the test . . . suppose they wouldn't make it today, and she would have to wait until tomorrow. Another day, and her funds getting lower and lower. Tomorrow she would only have $19 left, and she would have to leave the hotel. She couldn't risk her capital getting down further than that.

At 11:20 Janson breezed in, smiled at Gail absent-mindedly, and picked up some letters on his stenographer's desk.

"Ready?" he asked Gail, turning toward her, but not lifting his eyes from the letter he was reading.

Gail wanted to tell him she had been ready for hours; instead of saying anything she rose shakily to her feet.

It was 11:30 exactly when they left the office. Five minutes later when Tod Janson drove his car from the parking station where it stood.

"You were going to coach me—" Gail said.

"No time now. We'll just make it. Just do as they ask you, that's all."

This is a special department devoted to the handling of inquiries. You have at your disposal an extensive organization in Washington to serve you in any capacity that relates to information. Write your question, your name, and your address clearly, and enclose 2 cents in coin or stamps for reply. Send to The Record News Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, director, Washington, D. C.

Q.—Please give some facts about the new Lindbergh beacon.—D. R.

A.—The beacon is the gift of the late Elmer Sperry who devised it as a memorial to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's flight in 1927. Supported by a structural steel tower encased in aluminum, it rises 65 feet above the penthouse of the Palmolive building in Chicago. This gives the light a total elevation of 600 feet. The beacon consists of two lights, one mounted above the other. The upper one is the beacon proper and has an output of 2,000,000,000 candle-power brought into a beam five feet in diameter and revolving at the rate of two revolutions per minute. The lower light has an output of 1,100,000,000 candle power brought by a parabolic reflector into a beam 36 inches in diameter fixed to direct visiting airmen to the Municipal airport. It is computed that at a distance of 55½ miles the Lindbergh beacon becomes equivalent in brightness to the full moon. The expenses of installation and maintenance will be borne by the owners of the building.

Q.—Do many people forget their personal belongings now that hotels have placards warning them not to do so?—A. M.

A.—According to statistics compiled by the New Yorker Hotel, more than 10,000 articles have been left in its rooms by the 475,000 guests who have been accommodated there since it opened nine months ago.

Q.—Will a tank in which a vacuum has been created, float as well as one containing compressed air?—F. G.

A.—Air has weight, therefore a tank filled with air weighs more than one which contains a vacuum. Both will float but the one containing the vacuum will float higher than the one containing compressed air.

Q.—Why are men called bachelors?—T. E.

A.—Bachelor is a word of uncertain origin. It is believed to be connected with the Latin baccalarius, meaning a holder of a small farm. The word seems to have been used at first as a technical law term and is sometimes explained as a translation of the equivalent old high German hagustalt, meaning the holder of a small farm, an unmarried man.

Q.—Does the Congressional Record have an exchange list of foreign publications—J. M. J.

A.—The daily issue of the Congressional Record is now exchanged with 101 foreign establishments.

Q.—Please name the hills upon which San Francisco is built.—C.

A.—Ten entire city is built on hills, the principal ones being Telegraph, Russian, Nob, Rincon, Bernal Heights, Potrero, Larsen, Peak, Twin Peaks, Mount Davidson, Mount Olympus, Buena Vista, Lone Mountain, and Lincoln Park.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

(Copyright 1930, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Why Dispeptics Are Cranky

Often great financiers have indigestion or dyspepsia due to their concern over the ups and downs of the market, and even their office boys know they had better see how the boss is digesting his lunch before they ask for a raise.

By dyspepsia is meant the indigestion caused by the loss of the normal ability to digest food in comfort. On account of the nervous disturbance which indigestion often causes, the patient becomes easily irritated, depressed and sleepless. A confirmed dyspeptic is a confirmed crank because his digestive juices make him one.

Patients with digestive disorders often learn to dwell too much upon the state of their health until they become what are known as "hypochondriacs" which means that they pay too much attention to passing symptoms. But let the same patient change his habits of eating and living so that his food agrees with him and he becomes cheerful and has that well-fed, vital look, all as the result of getting his digestion adjusted.

There are many causes of indigestion, but you can readily see that the wrong habits of eating are responsible in most cases. Some common causes are: Eating bad food combinations, eating when tired or worried, eating too large a quantity of food, eating foods which are tainted or those hard to digest, such as greasy pastries or fried foods, irregular hours of eating, eating too rapidly, not chewing the food sufficiently, drinking concentrated alcoholic beverages or drinking excessively with meals.

In acute attacks of indigestion, known as upset stomach or sour stomach, there may be considerable colicy pain, fever, and even vomiting or diarrhea, but once the attack passes the patient fully recovers within a short time.

In chronic cases there may be headache, dizziness, blurring of the vision, a tired feeling, heartburn, gas in the stomach and pain or just a general tired feeling of distress and heaviness. Temporary relief for those with chronic indigestion may be gained by drinking large quantities of water between meals. The water dilutes the digestive juice and so relieves unpleasant symptoms which will otherwise arise.

The patient suffering from indigestion should try to lead a tranquil, even life. Many doctors know that family troubles are often a cause of indigestion, and some of the most stubborn cases of dyspepsia occur with women who long to leave their husbands but are tied to them by children. Nervous tension is always productive of indigestion. Newspaper men, editors, surgeons and others leading an exacting life find that they must reform their habits of indiscriminate eating if they would keep their good digestions.

If after proper foods are eaten gastric distress continues, the patient may relieve it by taking a teaspoonful of soda in water one hour after a meal, but this should not be used regularly but only on occasion if too much pain exists. In some cases, a milk diet should be used if the stomach is chronically inflamed.

It is to be noticed that those who are weight-lifters and wrestlers with a good abdominal development practically never suffer from indigestion. This is due to the abdominal muscles being kept in good tone. When these muscles are in good shape digestion more easily takes place.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Eczema

Question: Reader asks—"Would eating too much albuminous food, such as eggs, cause one to have eczema? What foods are to be avoided by one suffering from this trouble?"

Answer—The use of an excess amount of any kind of food, such as proteins or starches, may be a contributing cause in the development of eczema or any other skin disorder. The trouble comes mostly, however, from using wrong combinations of all kinds of food. Study my weekly menus, and you will have a weekly lesson in food combinations. Also send me a large, self-address, stamped envelope for the article on eczema.

Cottage Cheese

Question: H. G. asks—"When cottage cheese is used in place of meat, which is the ample portion per person?"

Answer—It is all right for most people to use about one-quarter of a pound of cottage cheese in place of the same amount of meat. This is approximately an ordinary saucedish full.

Always Sleepy

Question: R. K. asks—"What would you advise for a person who wants to sleep all the time? I go to high school."

Answer—If eight hours of sleep do not refresh you, it is because your system is burdened with poisons from bad habits of eating and from the effects of too much study and not enough physical exercise. If a physician's examination has failed to disclose any definite disease, you may rest assured that you need a thorough bodily housecleaning which will eliminate the morbid material from your bloodstream, with which you are now burdened.

Hoover Encourages Helium Gas Exports

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. (AP)—President Hoover said today the government was encouraging the exportation of helium gas for lighter than aircraft rather than hampering it.

Holding that there had been a misunderstanding generally as to the attitude of the government toward exportation of helium, Mr. Hoover said the law provides licenses may be issued for exporting at any time by the government.

Chinese Diplomat's Wife Sentenced for Smuggling

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. (US)—Mrs. Ying Kao, wife of the former Chinese vice consul in San Francisco, has been sentenced by Chinese courts to four years in prison and to pay a $4,000 fine for smuggling opium into this country through diplomatic channels, the state department was advised today.

The fate of Ying Kao, husband of the woman, is still to be made known, as he appealed to the high provincial court at Soochow.

UNDEFEATED SANDIES SWEEP NEARER SECOND CHAMPIONSHIP

PAMPANS GET SEVERE JOLT

Tigers Join Ranks of Teams In First Division

Amarillo's fans were whooping it up in the Panhandle metropolis today as they pointed with pride to their Sandies, undefeated as yet after three starts, and maintaining an inside track to the second successive district championship.

The latest victim was Pampa, the Harvesters losing a heart-breaking decision, 2 to 0, in a downpour of rain. The Sandies scored on a safety in the second quarter to get their two points, but that proved all that was necessary. The victory removed some of the glamour from the Pampans, who recently conquered Lubbock.

Lubbock, also, was quite merry over the Westerners wild ride over the Childress Bobcats, 21 to 0.

And Electra was simply uncontrollable over the Tigers' slashing 6 to 0 victory over the Wichita Falls Coyotes.

Vernon was recovering from its orgy of cheer, the Lions' 38 to 13 victory over Plainview having been registered Friday, but the hangover was still refreshing to the multitude of Vernon fans.

Electra Provides Upset

All of the scores of last week's district No. 1 clashes turned out to be more or less as was expected, with the glaring exception of the Tiger-Coyote score. The Electrans provided the sensational upset of the week in fighting the Holton-coached Coyotes to a standstill, as far as the pinches were concerned, and it was fighting in the pinches that gave the Tigers the victory. The Coyotes, apparently, were not themselves at all when within reach of victory. Soda pop fountain orators were inclined to mutter something about "not enough guts," on the part of the Coyotes. Whatever the reason, the Coyotes lost, and they lost to a team that roundly outplayed them when fightin' mad football was necessary to push over the winning points.

Said points, moreover, were scored in the first quarter, after a strong wind had given them much valuable assistance. A fumble on the four-yard line gave the ball to the Coyotes, but Holden's kick into the strong wind went for only 19 yards, and 19 yards didn't look like much to the Tigers, who smashed through to score the only touchdown of the game.

Pack Leads in Yardage

But if the strong wind gave the Tigers the "breaks" that quarter, the Coyotes had two quarters in which to profit by the same gale. The Coyotes had the upper hand on the Tigers in yardage gained, putting over eight first downs to the Tigers' five, but charging through the line at the right times gave the Lions the victory. The game dedicated Electra's new stadium.

A fumble gave Amarillo its victory over Pampa. Trying to run the ball out while on their five-yard line, the Harvesters fumbled, Saulsbury recovering behind his own goal line to give the Sandies the two points. It was a thrilling battle witnessed by all of 10,000 fans who braved dismal weather to see the game.

Also playing in a sea of mud, the Childress Bobcats couldn't stop the invading Lubbock Westerners.

Vernon Friday met a relatively easy foe in Plainview, overpowering the invaders in almost every department to win, 38 to 13.

Next week-end will find the Amarillo eleven taking a rest against the Plainview team, while Lubbock invades Electra. Wichita Falls will be given its third opportunity to win a game when it clashes with Quanah at Quanah. These will be the only conference games. Vernon will tackle the Grandfield, Okla., team at Vernon in a practice game, and Childress and Pampa do not have games scheduled.

The district standings:

Cougars Show Up Strong on Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12. (AP)—Echoes of another thrill-filled week-end of football boomed back over the far West today as fans pieced together the details of a great struggle that stamped Washington State's Cougars as one of the most formidable elevens assembled in many seasons. Yesterday the Cougars converted the skeptics with a spectacular 7 to 5 win over Southern Califronia Trojans.

At Berkeley, California partially revived hopes of followers with a 7 to 6 win over St. Mary's college. Seventy-five thousand persons saw the Bears come from behind in the fourth period to nose out their traditional gridiron foe.

Washington's Huskies earned the plaudits of the crowd with a last half rally that swept Idaho to a 27 to 0 defeat. It was the second conference victory for the Huskies.

The University of California at Los Angeles Bruins defeated Pomona 21 to 0 in a non-conference game. Friday night Oregon State shut out California's Aggies 20 to 0 in a non-conference game.

Rain Delays City Golf Title Match

Sunday's flood washed out the scheduled golf match between I. R. Sheldon and Tommy Cochran, contenders for the city crown. Likewise it rendered impossible the scheduled 18-hole qualifying round of the women's all city championship, scheduled for today, according to Bill Strachan, professional of the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club.

Dates for the matches will be set early this week, Strachan said.

Dr. Harry Hunt of Newark, Ohio, joined the hole-in-one club with an ace on a par three hole.

Cornhuskers Must Shuck Kansas to Take Another Grid Championship

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 12. (AP)—The Cornhuskers of Nebraska and the Jayhawkers of Kansas are the teams to watch in the Big Six conference this year.

A few fans and football authorities make bold to wager that this is the year the much down-trodden University of Kansas eleven is to smash the dominance of Nebraska over football in the conference.

Kansas gave some color to these hopes, when big Jim Bausch, a one man football team, and several of his 200-pound buddies, in their first game of the year, punched through Creighton college for a 26-0 victory. Bausch scored two touchdowns, registered two extra-points, and is being hailed as of "All American" caliber.

Nebraska, however, never fares badly in football. The school has captured the Big Six title the two years the conference has been in existence, and in addition holds an edge in play in the old 10-team Missouri Valley conference.

The team has the crafty Dana X. Bible directing. In the first game, Red Young, who understudied Clair Sloan, scored a touchdown against Texas A. & M. in the Cornhuskers' 13-0 triumph, as indication that he anticipates another good season. Last year he led the conference scorers.

The Cornhuskers also have in the backfield Marvin Paul who had been on the injured list. In the Texas game, Paul carried the ball for five first downs in four minutes.

A. N. "Bo" McMillan's Kansas Aggies, who finished third last season and were title contenders until a late season defeat by Nebraska, are capably supplied with veteran material, and under the expert coaching of the former Centre star, may spill the dope. Alex Nigro, captain and a good ball toter, is the backbone of the Aggie eleven.

Oklahoma, under Adrian Lindsay, has few veterans but looked impressive in a 48-0 opening game victory over New Mexico.

The line is built around Robert Fields, center and captain. Iowa State, which went through the 1929 season without a conference victory, appears to have a much stronger lineup this year, though the team dropped a 7-0 game to Illinois.

Missouri, dealt a hard blow by graduation and ineligibility, is not expected to do much. Colorado took the Tigers 9-0 to open the season.

Kansas university's football team, with big Jim Bausch running wild in the backfield, is Nebraska's greatest rival for the Big Six conference title. The Cornhuskers are relying strongly on Red Young, high scoring conference back last year. The chief strength of Oklahoma university is a line built around Capt. Robert Fields, center.

'MIGHTY ATOM' NOT SO GOOD

Georgia Wins Over Yale Again, 18-14

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 12. (AP)—Little Albie Booth, Yale's mighty atom, was unable except on one occasion to shake loose for any twisting broken field runs Saturday as Georgia marched to its second successive victory over the Blue, 18 to 14. Albie's 40-yard heave to Beane in the second period and his 35-yard return of the final kick-off were his main gestures.

Even though a great Carnegie team overwhelmed Georgia Tech in the other major conflict of the East, Dixie teams won four of their seven intersectional combats.

Sensational play by Glover, who broke through for a 61-yard touchdown run, and Dalyrimple, featured Tulane's 19 to 9 triumph over the Texas Aggies, while Centenary converted fumbles into touchdowns to beat Iowa, 19 to 12.

Friday night, Oglethorpe trounced Manhattan, 19 to 0. Virginia and Hampden-Sydney fell before Pennsylvania and Cornell, 40 to 6 and 47 to 6 respectively. Auburn furnished a surprise by holding a reputedly stronger Florida team for three periods, weakened only in the final quarter to allow the Alligators a 7 to 0 win.

Sewanee crumbled before Alabama, 25 to 0. North Carolina won a single touchdown victory over Maryland, 28 to 21. Vanderbilt scored three of its six touchdowns against Virginia Polytechnic on fumbles and another on a blocked punt.

Maxey Welch, Clemson quarterback, personally conquered North Carolina State, 27 to 0.

South Carolina blocked a Virginia Military attempted placement and won by 7 to 6, the same margin Centre had over Chattanooga.

Tennessee downed Mississippi, 27 to 0. A last offensive netted Duke a 12 to 0 verdict over Davidson. Kentucky downed Maryville, 57 to 0, while Washington and Lee bowed to West Virginia, 33 to 13. On Friday "Red" Cagle's Mississippi Aggies took their third successive lacing falling before Millsaps, 19 to 13.

Texan Wins Race At Cotton Palace

WACO, Oct. 12. (AP)—Rex Edmonds of Houston, driving Lee Bammell's racing car from Taylor, won the half-mile track championship from Gus Schrader, famous Iowa driver, here today.

Arch Powell of Indianapolis, whose carefree driving and winning of the one-lap time trials had made him a favorite, was bested by Edmonds in this race and Schrader ran third. Schrader came back, however, on the Southwestern Motor Derby, to win the final event of the day in fast time of two minutes, 11 2-5 seconds. Edmonds' three-lap time of 1.31 in the mile and a half title dash, was record time for the course.

Powell stepped out to win the finals of the International Motor Derby, after taking the first heat of the race. Edmonds was out of this contest on account of motor trouble.

Powell was leading the motor derby until he encountered mechanical trouble and coasted into the pits, and Schrader moved into the winning position.

Edmonds will defend his newly-earned honors Tuesday at the second day of the Cotton Palace races and will compete again next Sunday, when a state championship stock car race also is to be run.

Curley Young of Denton further upheld Texas honors by taking the Kelley company dash, a five-lap special race. Gene Duray, French driver, was a close competitor today, taking three second places.

'Football Saturday' Leaves Hopes Of Dozen Big Teams by Wayside

By HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct 12.—Another football Saturday has passed into the record books and left the sectional or national title hopes of a dozen outstanding college teams scattered by the wayside.

Oct. 11 may yet go down in football history as the "day of the big upsets" for not in the memory of the oldest inhabitant has there been such a series of smashing form reversals as thrilled the spectators and jolted the experts yesterday.

The Big Surprises

Yale, Southern California, Georgia Tech, Missouri, Nebraska and Purdue all were beaten and Stanford was tied in the games carrying the greatest element of surprise.

In the East, a fighting, aggressive Georgia eleven came from behind in the last two minutes of play to pound Yale's line to pieces and push over the touchdown that meant an 18-14 victory. Meanwhile at Pittsburgh, Wally Steffen's veteran Carnegie Tech Tartans served notice on Knute Rockne in particular and the world in general that they must be reckoned with by rolling up a 31-0 count on Georgia Tech, making 26 first downs to three, and gaining 461 yards to 49. Brown upset Princeton, 7-0, for the second successive year; Penn scored five touchdowns in the last half to swamp Virginia, 40-6; West Virginia upset Washington and Lee, 33-13; Cornell jolted Hampden-Sidney, 47-6, and Colgate, another powerful eleven, crushed Lafayette, 41-0.

Purdue Is Defeated

Some of the hardest fighting of the day took place in the Middle West. As far as Big Ten competition is concerned, Michigan's magnificent 14-13 triumph over Purdue, champions a year ago, was the biggest surprise, but Fritz Crisler's Minnesota outfit, badly trounced by Vanderbilt a week ago, took some of the glory by holding Stanford to a scoreless draw, turning back seven distinct Cardinal scoring threats with a stubborn defense that refused to yield. Notre Dame played up to expectations in beating Navy, 26-2, as Joe Savoldi cracked the Midshipmens' line for three touchdowns, and Northwestern, despite the loss of Hank Bruder who is suffering from smallpox, brushed aside Ohio State, 19-2. Pug Rentner's passes accounted for two Northwestern touchdowns and he scored the other himself after intercepting an Ohio State aerial. Wisconsin exhibited a powerful offensive to beat Chicago, 34-0; Iowa fumbles paved the way for a Centenary triumph, 19-12, and Indiana got no better than a 7-7 tie with Oklahoma A. & M., of the Missouri Valley conference.

Sooners Upset Dope

In the Big Six, Oklahoma's Sooners upset the dope by turning back the husky Nebraska Cornhuskers, 20-7, while Missouri was beaten for the second time by a non-conference foe, St. Louis, 20-0.

Washington State's mighty eleven nosed out Southern California, 7-6, in a bitter battle that established the Cougars as favorites for the Pacific Coast conference title. California, beaten by Washington State a week ago, showed a reversal of form in beating the strong St. Mary's college of Oakland, an undefeated team last year, 7-6.

In the Southern conference, the most spectacular game saw Johnny Branch run 94 yards in the last period with the touchdown that enabled North Carolina to beat Maryland, 28-21.

Olustee Defeats Victory Team, 19-0

Special to The Record News

OLUSTEE, Okla., Oct. 12.—Olustee and Victory clashed on the Olustee field Friday in a hard fought football game that ended with a score of 19 for Olustee and Victory 0.

Victory's inexperienced team was over-matched in size with Olustee's light team. A large number of fans were present to witness the game.

MOUNTAINEERS LOOM STRONG

Conference Games Follow Trend Toward Upsets

DENVER, Oct. 12. (AP)—Rocky Mountain conference football followed in the trend toward upsets that gripped the country last week and some of the scores have given rise to the belief none of the contenders in the region will be able to go through the season undefeated.

The scoreless tie to which the University of Colorado was held by Utah Aggies was a distinct shock to the eastern division of the conference, but on the western slope the Aggies were being held in higher esteem.

The 7 to 7 tie which Brigham Young university's Cougars were held by Colorado Teachers surprised Utah but was not so much a shock in Colorado, since the Bears have a strong line and one of the best backs in the Rockies in Pete Butler.

Denver university's 15 to 7 defeat at the hands of Colorado Aggies was a crushing blow to the hopes of Coach Jeff Cravath's Pioneers, but it ran true to the expectations of Coach Harry Hughes.

Utah Aggies, Colorado Teachers and the Colorado Aggies were in exactly the right "spot" for an upset. Their opponents were not keyed up for the games at hand. Colorado had ridden too many hundreds of miles on trains after their 9 to 0 defeat of Missouri at Columbia, which doesn't look so imposing now, following Missouri's 20 to 0 beating by St. Louis university.

Colorado college ran wild against Western State, beating back the Mountaineers, 45 to 7. Wyoming's Cowboys took their third consecutive lacing, this time from Montana State, 20 to 13.

Northwestern Squad Guards Against Smallpox

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 12. (AP)—Coach Dick Hanley led 100 members of the Northwestern university varsity and freshman football squads through a wholesale vaccination treatment today in an effort to preclude the spread of the smallpox attack that sent Capt. Hank Bruder to a hospital.

The entire athletic department personnel from Athletic Director Kenneth L. "Tug" Wilson, down through the coaching staff, players and trainers, to the humble water boys, passed through the hands of two physicians in Dyche stadium, where yesterday the Bruderless Wildcats ripped through Ohio State to a 19-2 triumph.

SOONERS LEAD BIG SIX RACE

Champion Cornhuskers Lose First Since 1928

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 12. (AP)—Oklahoma leads the Big Six football race today by virtue of administering the champion Nebraska Cornhuskers their first conference defeat since the new circuit began to function with the 1928 gridiron season.

Regarded by many as a likely upsetter of Nebraska in this opening titular clash of 1930, the 20 to 7 margin by which the Sooners accomplished the feat was a surprise.

Nebraska had not pointed for Oklahoma as the Sooners apparently had prepared for the Huskers and the champions lacked the spark to fire an attack, but there were no Husker alibis today. As Coach Dan X. Bible expressed it, "we took it on the chin and will wait for another year."

Missouri, several times champions of the old Missouri Valley circuit and first division members for two seasons of the Big Six went through its second non-conference game without scoring a point, St. Louis university winning, 20 to 0.

Kansas showed the expected power in defeating Haskell Indians Friday night, 33 to 7. The Kansas Aggies and Iowa State each had open dates.

OKLAHOMA AGGIES THREATEN COMEBACK

DES MOINES, Oct. 12. (AP)—Oklahoma A. & M, who since they won the championship of the old Missouri Valley conference of 10 schools in 1926, has scarcely been a serious threat for football laurels in the circuit, today appeared the most likely contender for the crown worn the last two years by Drake.

A 6-0 victory over Iowa and a 7-7 tie with Indiana, both Big Ten conference teams, have stamped the Sooner Aggies as the leading rival of Drake and Grinnell in the annual valley race.

Drake last Friday lost a 12-0 decision to Marquette. Grinnell last Friday night took a severe beating at the hands of Detroit, 47-6.

Washington university of St. Louis, the only other valley team to see action last week, played a scoreless tie with William Jewell, and Creighton was idle.

Michigan Shows Rare Form in Downing Purdue

CHICAGO, Oct. 12. (AP)—Michigan, showing an astonishing reversal of form, ranks tonight as the real giant killer of the Western conference football race.

The Wolverines, regarded as just another pushover, because of an indifferent start this season, bristled and fought until they had vanquished Purdue, 14-13, in the initial game of the championship race yesterday, and all but ruined the Boilermakers' chances of winning its second Big Ten title. That game furnished the fireworks as it was an astounding upset.

All the other teams came through as expected, with Northwestern conquering Ohio State's promising sophomores, 19-2, and Wisconsin downtrodden Maroons, 34-0. Northwestern demonstrated it is a real championship threat by bowling over Ohio without the services of its backfield stars, Hank Bruder, the offensive dynamo, and Reb Russell, the defensive punch.

SPEEDY BACKS SURPRISE FANS

Porkers Show Up Weak In Reserves

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Oct. 12.—Texas Christian university's Horned Frogs tossed their challenge to the Southwest conference when they overwhelmed the University of Arkansas Razorbacks, 40-0, in the opening game of the championship race, Saturday at Fort Worth.

The Christians had been expected to beat the boys from the Ozarks, but their most sanguine supporters had not anticipated such a dazzling display of offensive football as the Schmidtmen uncovered in their new stadium. After the opening period, largely a punting duel, the speedy, hard driving Frog backs made hash of the Razorbacks' weary line, scoring almost at will.

Porkers Lack Reserves

As the game revealed that the Fort Worth eleven is very little if any, less powerful than last year, when it tore through an undefeated season, it also disclosed that the Porkers are in for a dismal season. Coach Thomsen's starting eleven was a fair unit, capable of tussling any of them, but there was no reserve strength. Every time one of the starters came out the Razorbacks weakened.

Joining the Arkansans in defeat and stamping themselves among the weaker conference units were the Texas Aggies, who were submerged by Tulane's Green Wave, 19 to 9, in the new State Fair bowl here. The game only verified the more or less common knowledge that the Farmers don't have it this year. Tulane, on the other hand, brought a real football team to Texas.

Although the Aggies scored first on a safety, there was never much doubt of the eventual outcome once the Greenies applied the power. The Farmers' veteran line, supposedly the team's bulwark, was ripped to pieces by Whatley, Phelps and Glover, a trio of zipping Green backs. A passing attack finally gave the Texans a touchdown late in the closing period.

Owls Repulse Arizona

The Rice Owls continued to cloud up the conference horizon, using a smashing running attack to repulse the Arizona university Wildcats, 2-0, in their intersectional fray. It had been prophesied the Owls would be troublesome next fall, but their rapid improvement in recent games indicates they might not put it off that long. Jamerson, Wallace and Jones continued to carry the ball brilliantly against the Wildcats, and the Rice line smothered the Arizona offensive. On the strength of Saturday's showing, the Owls will be favorites over Arkansas in their opening conference bout Saturday at Houston.

Baylor uncovered power to burn in smashing Trinity university, 54-0 on Carroll field. It was something of a revelation to Ray Morrison, whose Southern Methodist Mustangs are scheduled to meet the Bruins this week at Waco. McElreath and "Red" Harris, an end, each scored three touchdowns as the Baptists paraded up and down the field.

Longhorns Win

Playing in the rain for more than a half, the University of Texas Longhorns brought their stock up considerably by downing Howard Payne, 26-0. Koy and Shelley drove through for one of the Steers' touchdowns, while they turned to the air to make the other three possible.

Three conference bouts and another intersectional attraction at the State Fair here promise a world of action for the coming week-end. Southern Methodist and Baylor clash at Waco in what looms as the conference headliner, both racing as top contenders for the 1930 title. Texas Christian will be favored to chalk up its second conference victory over the Aggies at College Station, and Rice rates a popular choice over Arkansas at Houston.

University of Texas and University of Oklahoma will supply the intersectional note in their conflict here, the 26th between the two schools since 1900. The Sooner served warning that they are loaded this year by defeating Nebraska, 20-7, Saturday.

Drops Lazy Ways

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12. (AP)—Ed Baecht, big right-handed pitcher, suddenly saw the serious side of life this season, and the Pacific Coast club here doesn't regret the price of the telegram and railroad ticket that he cost.

The big six-foot two-inch giant this year started smoking his fast ball in there and became the outstanding performer of the league. He is slated to wear the uniform of the Chicago Cubs next season.

However, Baecht, even at his practically non-existent price, seemed none too good an investment. In 1928 he was released from three clubs for lack of purpose. They were the Philadelphia Nationals, Buffalo in the International league and Portland in the Pacific Coast league.

Last year Baecht started with Toledo in the American association, and again his job slipped away. That was when Marty Krug, then manager of the Angles, gave him railroad fare and another chance. Baecht perceived the easy going days were over and started to pitch.

Women Golfers Open Meet Today

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12. (AP)—Eager for the start of the women's national amateur championship competition tomorrow, 100 feminine golfers spent today resting and making final preparations for the six-day gruelling grind.

During practice rounds but one of the contestants made the 18 holes under par. During her play yesterday, Marion Hollins, Santa Cruz, Calif., and 1921 national champion, turned in a card of 38-42—80, one under women's par. She came to the 16th hole with three fours for a 74 and a new course record, but took an 8 on the 16th when her ball found an unplayable lie.

Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., who has been shooting consistently in the low 80's, equalled par with an 81. Both are considered threats to the championship crown won four times by Glenna Collett of New York City.

Wallace F. Johnson has been re-engaged for three years as tennis coach at the University of Pennsylvania.

Randlett Election Case Reaches Higher Court

Special to The Record News

WALTERS, Okla., Oct. 12.—John Martin, of Randlett, county commissioner of Cotton county from the third district, was granted a recount of votes cast in the run-off primary Aug. 12, when he was defeated by H. J. Griffin, also of Randlett, by a majority of six votes.

Immediately following the election Martin appealed to the Cotton county election board for a recount, which was granted. Griffin, however, appealed to the district court for an order restraining the election board from proceeding with the recount. The restraining order was granted by the district judge and the hearing set for this week in district court.

Although the court cleared the way for the recount, Griffin has appealed the case to the state supreme court and it is doubtful whether the case will be heard in time to effect the printing on the county ballot in time for the November election, according to attorneys in the case.

MARTIN LAUDS WOMAN'S WORK

Bible Class Told of Mothers' Influence

Motherhood and the influence of a mother upon a home were eulogized by Judge P. A. Martin in his talk before members of the Men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday morning.

Judge Martin took his subject from lessons in which Elisabeth, mother of John the Baptist, and Mary, mother of Christ, were the principal figures, and cited the fact that more girls have been given those names than any other in Christendom.

Judge Martin's address in part was as follows:

"Last Sunday's lesson, which we did not have on account of the "rally day" service, concerned Elisabeth, the mother of John the Baptist; today's lesson concerns Mary, the mother of Jesus, the Christ. These two women of the New Testament were honored as no other women have ever been honored before or since. They were said to be cousins. Both were made holy by the divine touch of God and both were instrumental in the unfolding of His purposes.

Woman Chosen

"Jehovah could have sent Michael or Gabriel, or a massed choir of angels to the earth to preach the gospel of repentance and baptism to the people and prepare them for the coming of the Son; but He chose a woman, a sorrowing, disappointed woman; a woman anxious for the touch of the small arms of a child around her neck; a womanly woman to whom motherhood was a sacred thing; and to her He gave John the Baptist. He grew up in the home, dedicated to God from the hour of his conception, a Nazarite unto God; and humanity has honored Elisabeth by naming more of the daughters of men by that name than any other except that of Mary, the subject of today's lesson.

"Then God could have sent His only begotten Son into the world on the curve of the rainbow, in a chariot of fire, or by the fast-falling meteor. He 'so loved the world' that He sent Him. His power was supreme and so was His love. He did not need any human assistance in the great work. But He chose that His Son should be born as other men were born, so that He could be human as well as divine and so the Blessed Virgin Mary was chosen, from among all the fair daughters of Judea, to become the Mother of Christ and the simple name of Mary has become not only the most popular name among men but a large per cent of the Christian world worship at shrines where her image is venerated and songs of praises are sung to her name and her memory. And because of these two women of the New Testament, so graciously blessed by Omnipotence, motherhood became a holy thing and womanhood itself has been lifted up and placed upon a pedestal of glory by good men everywhere.

"And both of these Bible women were just the makers of humble Judean homes; just mothers and wives, raising their royal sons to do the will of God, watching them grow up pure and spotless and preparing them for what they had to do.

"Probably neither of them knew or thought, as they rocked the rude cradles of these two infants and pondered in their hearts the strange things that had occurred to them, that the destinies of the human race were in their chubby baby fingers or that the words of eternal life should ever fall from their lips, but they knew that these babies were holy and they determined that they should remain so and they did remain so.

Chivalry in Heart

"And thus, both womanhood and childhood were made holy by the will of the Almighty at one and the same time. And say what you will about women's rights and the equality of the sexes, there is something in the heart of a man that makes him want to take off his hat and do homage to a good woman, wherever he meets her and especially so if she be a mother with her child. That same something in his heart prompts him to look with pity on the woman who is not good, or one who has so far forgotten her sex and her proud position in the hearts of men as to look and act like a man; one who thinks it the wise thing to be militant in the assertion of her so-called 'rights.' These are far from being Madonnas.

"This brings me to the practical application of these two lessons. Are the mothers of men, are the queens of the home, today fulfilling their divine mission in the world? And are we men in danger of losing our concept of true womanhood in our effort to recognize in the fullest measure, her claims of civil and social equality? Why so many 'broken homes' in the land? Why so many unhappy marriages and early divorces?

"Let me read you from a copy of the report of our juvenile officer; a splendid man and Christian gentleman and one of the best and most faithful public servants I have ever met—in his report for his two-year term expiring last week he says: 'I have handled 451 cases through the jail and of this number 323 have come from broken homes.'

"Oh, father and mothers of our Israel; let these poor pitiful figures, with their vital lesson, sink deeper into your hearts! Three hundred twenty-three, nearly 75 per cent of these poor children—for they were all children—were the children of broken homes! Fathers and mothers gone astray and children gone to jail; not across the ocean somewhere in heathen lands, not in Chicago's 'gangland' or New York's lower 'East Side,' but right here in Wichita county, Texas.

"Broken homes. And the American home is the basic unit of our civilization as well as our religion. Is it breaking down? There is no surer way to anarchy than to break down the home. There has grown up around the home such a sentiment of its sacredness that men considered that the invader and despoiler of another man's home should forfeit his life as a just penalty for his misdeed and thus, there has grown up what is called the unwritten law for the home. The sweetest words of poetry and sweetest strains of song have been composed in praise of the home; at the home, by the family fireside, most of us got our first impressions of truth and right and our first faint vision of God; and when danger threatens our country by the invasion of an enemy the fires of patriotism are always kindled by the recollection of the home and every man of us is ready to take up arms and fight to the death, if necessary for the protection of the home.

Breakdown From Within

"But it seems to me that we are allowing the sinister influences of modern life to creep in with insidious stealth and destroy what a public enemy could not begin to do by force of arms. The breakdown of the home is from within and not from without. The figures of divorce per annum follow closely the number of marriages. Prosecutions for deseration are becoming more and more frequent. There is a growing sentiment in the land to regard the marriage relation as nothing more than a civil contract which may be rescinded at the will of the contracting parties and companionate marriage in fact, if not in name is practiced by quite a per cent of our people.

"The inevitable report of all this is a loss of prestige and dignity to womanhood. We have recognized her rights, as an equal of man; we have given her the ballot and the right to hold office, in fact to do anything a man can do, but in the doing of this act of simple justice, have we not, in a measure dethroned her from her rightful realm, as the queen of the home and the Mother of Men, where her grace and beauty, as well as the Divine Purpose placed her? In other words, have we not lowered rather than raised her in our effort to establish her absolute freedom of action?"

Camera Proves Ripley Right Again!

'Changing Times Necessitate New Biblical Interpretations'—Barron

Pastor Tells Bible Class There Is Reason Enough in Re-Interpreting Holy Writings

Difficulties which persons of the present day have in resolving their religious experiences into definite beliefs were discussed by Rev. John Daniel Barron before members of the Kay Bible class at the First Methodist church Sunday morning.

Declaring that the interpretations placed by each generation upon its own experiences prove inadequate for succeeding generations whose wealth of knowledge has been increased, the speaker said.

"We are not irreverent, irreligious when we seek to change the interpretations which even the authors of Scripture made upon their experiences. If St. Paul were living today he would be saying the same things he said 2,000 years ago, but he would be giving them new interpretations. We can be true to his message in the highest sense only when we change our interpretation to fit the latest knowledge."

The address in full follows:

"Our subject this morning is 'The Interpretation of Experiences.' I shall endeavor to develop these three propositions: one, an experience is one thing, the interpretation of that experience is quite another thing. Two, a false interpretation does not prove an experience to be unreal. Three, the abiding experiences of the race are in constant demand of re-interpretation by each succeeding generation. These statements are chockful of truth, the understanding of which will enrich the lives of us all.

Experience and Interpretation

"Proposition number one is that an experience is one thing and the interpretation of that experience is quite another thing. That is so obvious and simple that one half hesitates to dwell further on it. I do so simply because I know that, though we see a vast difference between an experience and its interpretation, we often get woefully confused in the heat of life and fail to apply its implications in our thinking. We can see it as a cloud in the sky, but when it descends upon us it obscures our vision and we whip out our swords and cut right and left the very things we saw so clearly in the sky. I suggest that we use the microscope instead of the telescope on this proposition.

"A little boy looks at a manikin pumping and the windmill turning, and says: 'Daddy, that man is turning the windmill.' The manikin was pumping and the mindmill was turning. That was a fact. The little boy's interpretation was something else separate from the fact. I once read of a Chinese doctor wrapping tape tightly over a running sore in order to keep the evil spirit out or in, as the case might be. The sore was a fact, the 'doctors' ' interpretation of it was something else. Babies have been crying for, lo, these many centuries and poor daddies have been walking the floor convinced that junior had the colic. That junior cries is one thing, and his daddy's interpretation of his cries is still another thing. It seems that once a man had a streak of good fortune. When he got home that night he happened to notice that he had been carrying a horse shoe in his pocket that day; so he concluded that the shoe brought the good fortune. His fortune was one thing; his interpretation was another. A man had a bad misfortune one day and that night he was thinking about it and remembered that a black cat ran across his path in the morning; so he concluded that the cat crossing his path caused the misfortune. A man makes a failure in life and concludes that luck is against him, that the world has it in for him. His experience is one thing and his interpretation is quite another.

"Now let us carry that thing over into the religious realm. The men of the centuries have been having what we call religious experiences. That is a fact. They have interpreted those experiences. That is something altogether different. For instance, our forefathers had dreams and vivid impressions. That was an experience. They interpreted it in terms of angels. They saw evil and felt evil in human lives. That was an experience. They interpreted it in terms of evil spirits. They saw a man mentally deranged. That was an experience. They interpreted it in terms of demons. Once they came into contact with the Son of Man. That was a great fact, a great experience. They interpreted it in terms of a Virgin Birth, of physical kinship with God. They saw and experienced unusual things and interpreted them in terms of miracles.

"So it has been from the beginning of time till today, and will be forever.

False Interpretation

"And now we come to the proposition number two which is that a false interpretation does not prove an experience to be unreal. This, too, is an obvious and simple proposition which needs to be unfolded and applied in our thinking.

"A fact is a fact, an experience is an experience, regardless of what the interpretation of each might be. A false interpretation of a fact does not render the fact less true. It may hide and render powerless the truth but it does not invalidate it. The windmill turns, the sore runs, the baby cries, there are days of good and bad fortune, and men fail in life. These are great facts and our misinterpretations of them does not render them invalid.

"Likewise in the realm of religion. Men have experienced many things and those things are real regardless of the erroneous interpretations that might have been placed upon them by men of old. We still have vivid impressions, feel good and evil, see mentally deranged, and walk with the Son of Man. We give new interpretations but we experience the same old facts as did our forefathers.

"This is a point of view that men need so much today. Many are having a hard time religiously because they have not learned to separate old interpretations from every day experiences. The old interpretations are sometimes gross, repulsive, and inadequate. The man who thinks of them as being inseparable will throw both the interpretation and the thing interpretated overboard. We must come to see that the religious experiences of the race are real and valid in spite of the fact that they have often been misinterpreted. Though we cannot accept the interpretation, we can accept that which is interpreted, that is, the experience.

Need of Change

"That brings us to our third proposition: the abiding experiences of the race are in constant demand of re-interpretation by each succeeding generation. The truth of this proposition has been implied all along in the discussion to this point. But here again we run upon an evident truth which we are reluctant to apply in actual life, and especially as it relates itself to the religious life.

"We are not able to interpret with infallibility our experiences today. How much less prepared were those in other years to give an infallible interpretation of theirs. The men who will come after us will be better able to interpret their experiences than are we. That is to say, the interpretations which the men of the past have placed upon life and religion are not adequate for us today and ought to be changed to suit the new knowledge we possess, as those who come after us will change our to suit the new knowledge which they possess.

"We are not irreverent, irreligious, when we seek to change the interpretations which even the authors of Scripture made upon their experiences. I cannot imagine that if St. Paul lived today he would be saying the same things in the same way he did 2,000 years ago. He would be interpreting the same truths, to be sure, but he would be giving those truths a new interpretation. I venture to say that if Jesus lived in the flesh today He would express His life-giving message in new forms which would be more intelligible to us. His message would be the same but in order to be intelligible to us he would change His interpretation. In fact we can be true to them in the highest sense only when we do change our interpretation to fit the latest knowledge. You will recall that Jesus and Paul gave new interpretations of truth themselves, and I recall no place where they commanded us to superannuate our minds and hearts. The same is true of all other great religious leaders. They were ahead of their times. There is only way I can be true to John Wesley and Adam Clarke. I would be untrue to them in the highest sense if I believed everything they did, for it is unthinkable that if they lived today they would not change their positions. Imagine John Wesley giving the same interpretation of religion in the 20th century that he gave in the 18th. No, if I am true to John Wesley and the early scholars and leaders of Methodism I must imitate their spirit of inquiry, their seeking after the truth from every quarter. They pulled away from the orthodox of their day and I cannot think of them occupying any other position with reference to the orthodox of this day.

"When a girl gives up her dolls she does not thereby give up her maternal instinct. The great instinct remains, only its expression changes. A basic experience in the Bible, as elsewhere, is reparable from its temporary forms of expression. And we must distinguish between abiding experiences and their temporary expressions. We must sift the truth from the ancient and often confusing forms in which is comes to us, and clothe it in modern garb so we and our fellowmen can recognize and use it. The Bible is truly the Word of God but this generation must re-interpret that Word, or better said, interpret that Word in terms of our own thought and knowledge. When we do that the Bible will become food for our souls instead of a mere decoration for the library table."

Negligent Homicide Trials Today in County Court

Trials of R. E. Morton and O. D. Reid, each charged with negligent homicide, will be held Monday before Judge Irvin Vogel in the county court at law, it was stated Sunday.

The charge against Reid resulted when Henry Larkin, driver for a local drinking water concern, was fatally injured when caught between his truck and another vehicle near the corner of Tenth street and Indiana avenue on Sept. 8. That against Morton was filed in connection with the death of a young woman in a local hospital.

The state will be represented in these two cases by County Attorney Wayne Somerville and his assistant, Louis V. Abernathy.

At least a thousand children swarmed the Strand theater Saturday afternoon to see two artists of their own age as the two most interesting characters in "The Santa Fe Trail." Saturday afternoon, incidentally, is a good time to see a good western, if there are any good seats left. The cheering and applause helps shed a few years for anybody.

"The Santa Fe Trail" is about as near the old, hair-raising type of western story as has been produced in the movies, and yet avoids the melodramatic in the most delicate manner. There are Indians to bite the dust and cowboys and Spanish senoritas and a hero who gives himself up to save the girl and a last-minute rescue, but the fellow who hasn't read a western since he was a boy forgot his sophistication and clapped as wildly as his own son when Emily and Ol' Timer jumped the fence on their way home.

Eugene Pallette ought to have a story written for him and step into stardom soon. Endowed with one of the best speaking voices yet discovered by the talkies and a face and figure built for comedy, he could be the central personality in a good movie. His chagrin when he discovers that the Spanish girl talks English is one of the funniest sequences yet—one of those in which half his words are drowned out by the laughter of the audience.

The best shot, however, is that of the Indian brave and little Emily. The Indian pokes his nightmarish visage almost into the little girl's face and grunts . . . enough to send cold chills down a grown person's spine. Emily beams on him, bestowing a dazzling smile and a friendly "H'lo!" If there is any doubt about the audience's favorite before that shot, it vanishes when she speaks.

Junior Durkin, an import from legitimate drama, shows experience in his well-trained voice and perfect mannerisms. He is the third of the trio—Eugene Pallette and Mitzi Green are the other two—which makes the picture the best western since "The Virginian."
