"He received his 32 Degree Mason on April 1978 at Lubbock.

SPS Continues To Visit City Officials

Southwestern Public Service Company said that it continues visits with city officials throughout its Texas service area to update them on a rate hearing scheduled to begin Aug. 31 in Austin.

"To date we have not been able to reach an agreement relative to our future retail rates," said SPS President Coyt Webb. "But we feel there is a lot of support to get this divisive and expensive process behind us. SPS remains open to settling this case."

"Even though some parties have claimed that SPS is over-earning," Webb said, "SPS, just like most of the people in the area we serve, has had declining earnings. Last year our earnings were at a five-year low, and we won't do much better this year. Also, we think we have contributed to the well - being of our customers during these tough economic times by continuing to lower our rates and by actively pursuing new markets and operating efficiencies."

SPS filed additional testimony in the rate review this week and overall has prepared more than 20,000 pages of information and data. The rate review was initiated by the Public Utility Commission of Texas in October 1992.

"The company has provided answers to more than 2,100 questions submitted by regulators and interveners," Webb said, "so we are not guessing at costs. SPS has examined every dollar. Based on this most recent cost-of-service study, if all of SPS's true costs to provide electric service were fully recognized, its average retail rate would increase by about one percent. But we did not initiate a filing to increase rates."

"We have acknowledged that some reduction in electric rates may result as a reflection of today's lower interest rates," Webb said. "But we disagree with the level proposed by other parties. First, the return on equity proposed is much less than what has been recommended for other utilities with much higher rates. And second, we believe it just makes good sense to reward outstanding performance, rather than impose a penalty. SPS's electric rates already are the lowest among all investor-owned utilities in the state."

In addition, the remaining amount of the recommended

Wheat Crop Insurance Plan Being Tested Here

The Group Risk Plan (GRP) is based on the premise that when an entire county's crop yield is low, most farmers in the county will also have low yields. GRP, a dramatic departure from traditional approaches, pays only when the yield of the entire county drops below the expected county yield set by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation (FCIC). Payment is based on the percentage of decline below the expected county yield, the yield coverage level selected, and the dollar amount of protection purchased.

GRP is being offered as a pilot test to wheat farmers in selected counties in eight states, based on wheat production and MPCl experience. Bailey County is one of thirty-three counties in Texas selected for this pilot test.

Multi-County Stocker Cattle Conference Set

"With GRP, producers have a choice of MPCl or GRP," said Curtis Preston. "Of course, GRP isn't the best alternative for every wheat farmer. It's most effective if your farm yields are consistent with county yields. For farms with yields different from the county's MPCl may be a better alternative. Producers can't buy both GRP and MPCl coverage in the same county for the same crop year."

The expected county yield used for GRP is calculated by FCIC using the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) data. It includes adjustments for new technology, improvement in farming practices and other yield trends. As a result, this expected county yield value should be much closer to producer projections than a simple average.

"Although GRP should be a good choice for just about any wheat grower, it may be especially effective for low-risk, high-yield growers," said Preston. "That's because GRP allows producers to insure their crops at values exceeding the county average revenues by a maximum of 50 percent. For example, if the expected county yield is 30 bushels and the established price is $2.80, the maximum protection that may be purchased is $126. This is 50 percent more than the county average of $84 per acre.

Producers may choose from six levels of coverage: 60 percent, 70 percent, 75 percent, 80 percent, 85 percent or 90 percent. The trigger yield for payments is the yield where GRP coverage begins. For example, if the expected county yield is 30 bushels and a coverage level of 90 percent is chosen, the trigger yield would be 27 bushels (30X.90=27 bu).

Using this same example, if the county yield drops to 20 bushels, the shortfall would be 25.9 percent (27-20) divided by 27 = .259 shortfall). If the $126 maximum protection described before was selected, the producer would receive an indemnity payment of $32.63 (.259 x $126 = $32.63 per acre)."

When a county has large losses, FCIC may make preliminary payment as early as September. The final payment will be made after NASS releases its final report on actual county yields in May following the fall harvest.

"No insurance plan is perfect," said Preston. "In deciding which insurance alternative to choose, be sure to consider two important factors about GRP. Although unlikely, it's possible to receive a

'Wheels For Life' Bike-A-Thon Set

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has announced plans for the Muleshoe "Wheels For Life" Bike-A-Thon. Mark and Eileen Morton will serve as coordinators of the event which will be held on October 9 and they encourage all residents of Muleshoe to support this important community effort.

St. Jude Children's Research

Hospital, founded in 1962 by the late entertainer Danny Thomas, is the largest childhood cancer research center in America in terms of the number of patients treated and treatment success. Funding for the treatment and research programs conducted at St. Jude Hospital comes primarily from public support of events such as the Bike-A-Thon.

This year's Bike-A-Thon poster child, seven - year - old Shauna Richters, represents all of the patients treated at this world-renowned pediatric research and treatment facility. Shauna was diagnosed with Wilms' tumor, a malignant growth on her left kidney, in December 1990. Shauna is in remission from her cancer and completed her chemotherapy (anti-cancer drugs) in June 1991. She is doing well and returns to St. Jude Hospital every six months for checkups. Shauna celebrated her last chemotherapy treatment with a present she had eagerly looked forward to: a new bike.

All residents and businesses are encouraged to lend their support to the hospital by making a contribution or by becoming a rider.

VIPS encourages professional educators to join hands with our community to the greatest degree to benefit the students of Muleshoe.

"We are very pleased with the success of our volunteer programs during the 1992-93 school year. More than 200 volunteers contributed their time to assist MUSD teachers with the important task of educating our children," said Pam Hancock.

"But as successful as last year was, we cannot simply sit back. The need for school volunteers continues to rise. This year

News From Congressman Larry Combest

For the people of the Midwest, the floods are a disaster. For politics-as-usual, the flood of '93 was an unfortunate watershed.

I supported the disaster bill for the long term relief of those people who lost farms, homes and businesses. Unfortunately, some in Congress also saw an opportunity to authorize some extra spending for a totally unrelated program. At a time when taxpayers want Congress to cut ridiculous spending, the managers of the $3 billion flood relief bill wheeled and dealt with a Los Angeles member of Congress who wanted a "teenage jobs" bill extended to 30 year olds so that they could receive $100 a week to keep themselves groomed and presentable for job interviews.

Conservatives successfully insisted that we have the opportunity to remove the haircut money for the 30-year old teenagers. After winning the votes to block that foolish spending, we were ready to approve a "clean" package pertaining only to flood relief funds. However, instead of accepting defeat, the bill's managers forced an adjournment that prevented a timely vote on flood relief. Conservatives voted to stay into the night to provide the disaster funding, but we were outnumbered.

Majority Leader Richard Gephardt (D-Missouri) defended the quick adjournment by promising that checks to flood victims would not be affected by the adjournment. The $3 billion is earmarked for replenishing the federal agency funds that provide help during the months it will take for the Midwest to dry out. Actually, there was a political urgency to portray conservatives as stalling progress, when we were actually stalling plans for $100 makeovers for 30 year old teenagers.

Last week, in a second attempt at flood relief, conservatives in the House of Representatives were outnumbered in attempts to once again offset the $3 billion costs somewhere within the huge trillion-dollar federal budget. Shaving a little from all federal spending would have not have affected federal agencies. However, opponents chose instead to portray offsetting spending cuts as if they would be applied only to the Department of Justice: shutting down the U.S. Customs Service for a month and furloughing FBI and Justice Department prosecutors. This is a familiar tactic. In past spending debates, threats that veterans or seniors would shoulder all the cuts were used to demagogue attempts at modest spending reductions.

After all attempts to prevent adding $3 billion to the deficit, we passed the flood relief package. While the 30-year old Los Angeles teenagers spend their $100 allowance on cleaning up for job interviews, they can thank the sandbaggers along the Mississippi who right now are wishing for a hot shower and a dry place to sleep.

President Clinton received a recommendaton from Defense Secretary Les Aspin to allow homosexuals to serve in the United States military. The President announced an executive order which would discontinue the practice of asking possible recruits of their sexual orientation and allow homosexuals to serve in the military as long as they keep their sexual orientation private.

Senator Sam Nunn, the Democratic chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, announced his plans to introduce legislation codifying the current ban into law.

U.S. Representative Larry Combest (R-Texas) made the following statement:

"This don't ask, don't tell policy for homosexuals further extends unwarranted social experimentation into the military. An overwhelming majority of those from the 19th district have expressed their opposition to this change. Therefore,

I am an original co-sponsor of H.R. 667, which would make the current ban law, and would overturn the President's decision. At a time when our military is experiencing crushing budget reductions, further traumas to the brave men and women in uniform like this unwise policy change can only damage morale and unit cohesion."

Texas Legislature Smooths Road To Economic Recovery

by Lieutenant Governor Bob Bullock

By almost any measure, Texas' economy is on the road to recovery. There are, of course, the occasional pot holes and twists. But the road is marked with unmistakable signs of better times ahead: increasing employment and housing starts, rising investor confidence and higher personal income and a business community showing signs of greater optimism. I believe Texas government has helped expedite this recovery--vital to every segment of our society--by keeping regulation reined in and measuring the impact on business of all new laws.

The 73rd Session of the Texas Legislature held to these notions and has received kudos from the business community for significantly contributing to an improved business climate. Among the session's achievements applauded by business were:

*A products liability measure reforming tort law by clarifying responsibility and damages for injuries or deaths caused by allegedly defective products. The reform has been a top priority with Texas business for nearly two decades, but this session we sat down in a businesslike way to negotiate a solution. Then, in the first weeks of the session, the Senate passed the measure unanimously, reflecting the cooperative, bipartisan spirit that prevailed throughout the session.

*A small business health insurance measure to help independent businesses find affordable medical coverage for their employees by banding together to buy insurance. The bill allows employees to transfer coverage when they change jobs.

*A measure overturning the Alfaro rule--a legal provision that gave foreign plaintiffs an absolute right to sue companies with Texas connections in Texas courts for injuries received overseas.

*A trucking reform measure rewriting intrastate trucking regulations to streamline red tape, lowering shipping rates and making it easier for women and minorities to get into the trucking business. Business groups have complained for years that Texas law make it more expensive to ship goods within the state than to transport them across state lines.

There were a great many other bills that received less attention but also should serve business interests and needs. These include creation of a Smart Job fund to help employers customize work force training, expansion of Department of Commerce programs to extend the guaranteed loan program for rural economic development, creation of an ad valorem tax exemption for pollution abatement equipment, establishment of a requirement that state General Services Commission report any contracts over $25,000 awarded to non-Texas bidders to encourage the state to do business with Texans and much, much more.

The Texas Association of Business called the session "one of the best legislative sessions business has known in recent years." The appraisal was not only because of the substantive work, but also because of the businesslike approach lawmakers took to managing the business of government.

Business hailed passage of a state budget based on available revenue and without new taxes, a process begun long before the session got underway when the Legislative Budget Board under my chairmanship set the Constitutional Spending Limit and came in $425 million below the limit. Meanwhile, the state's cash balance in the General Revenue Fund improved significantly during the first half of this year, exceeding the original forecast for 1993. The ending cash balance for the General Revenue fund for fiscal 1993 is projected at over $1 billion and this money was used to help balance the 1994-1995 state budget.

The state's strong cash flow position is primarily based on robust performance of state sales tax, motor vehicle tax and the state-run lottery. It has been helped by our generally improved economic health, which although modest is the envy of many parts of our nation. The State Comptroller and others predict that Texas' economy should continue to grow at a rate slightly higher than the rest of the country.

Consider the signs:

*The Texas index of leading economic indicators--a good predictor of economic growth in the near future--is 2.6 percent higher than one year ago. The index is based on 10 economic measures including consumer confidence, unemployment claims, new housing permits, business incorporation, oil prices and retail sales. The level of consumer confidence has experienced significant gyrations and remains one of the most volatile factors in our recovery. But experts predict the state economy will grow in the next six months at a rate of 2-3 percent.

Comparing figures between April 1992 and April 1993, consumer confidence rose 15.9 percent; retail sales rose 4 percent; new housing permits increased 7.7 percent despite higher material costs; unemployment claims declined 15.8 percent; unemployment dropped 4 percent while the help-wanted index jumped 7.7 percent.

*Texas has created more than 100,000 new jobs since May 1992, making us one of the nation's leaders in new job growth. The state is expected to gain more than twice this number in the next two years with the service producing sectors expected to account for about 87 percent of all new jobs.

*The jobless rate has fallen almost a full point in the past year, from 7.9 percent in June 1992 to 7 percent last month. Still, many of our people need jobs and there are significant disparities across the state. Unemployment in McAllen-Edinburg-Mission is running 13.3 percent while Bryan-College Station has a 3.8 percent unemployment rate.

*The workers' compensation reforms that went into effect in 1991 have continued to reduce the costs of workers compensation and these savings could begin to be reflected soon in insurance rates.

*The Comptroller's spring 1993 economic forecast projects total personal income to rise about 6.7 percent annually during 1993 and 1994 and real gross state product to grow about 3.2 percent annually, the best performance since 1985.

*Investors are bullish on Texas. The Texas Stock Index--a measure of investor confidence in Texas companies--rose 39 points over where it stood in May 1992 to close at 165.4 points in May. This is a 30 percent annual rise--3.7 percent in May alone--shooting the index to its highest level since September 1987. The index, published by the State Comptroller, measures performance in nearly all segments of the state economy including energy, finance, technology and general business. Texas continues to provide a favorable business climate as seen by the 24.7 percent increase in new business incorporations over the past year.

The future North American Free Trade Agreement and lack of good investment opportunities elsewhere have created a tremendous amount of interest in Texas and the Southwest from investors outside the state. They know Texas is a good place to work and live and we have tried to make it even better.

Texas is not immune from the drag of a national or global slowdown. The oil and gas industry remains lackluster and Texas manufacturers struggle with the same problems facing the manufacturing sector nationwide. There remain pockets of high unemployment and poor economic performance.

But I'm confident that the partnership of business, labor and state government will prevail and Texas will do what it has always done when confronted by hard times--emerge smarter, stronger and better prepared to meet the challenges of the future.

Field Day To Showcase Local Agricultural Research

Survival of agriculture in the 21st century is a challenge being met through the continued efforts of scientists at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Their efforts to improve and strengthen the nation's food and fiber supply will be put on display here Sept. 14 at the 84th annual field day of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Wagons will transport visitors to research sites at the Experiment Station's High Plains Research Facility here. It is 14 mile west of Plainview on U.S. Hwy. 70. Tours will be conducted from 1 to 4 p.m.

This year's tour will have four featured stops: a walking tour, a youth tour, an open house at the computer training center and several exhibits, said Jerry Jones, research associate and chair of the event. The featured stops will be insect management, cropping systems and weed control, cotton breeding, and irrigation scheduling with PET.

A walking tour will be conducted at the grape vineyard and a youth tour will be conducted for fourth grade students from Lamb county schools. The Computer Education Center will display its facilities and provide examples of individual instruction in several programs.

The latest research equipment and experiments, such as a high speed chemigation pivot, advanced strains of glandless cotton and peanut research will be on exhibit. Home economists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will also have displays.

"Creative Living" airs on public broadcasting station KENW-TV from Eastern New Mexico University in Portales, NM.

Steven Sanders, Citibank MasterCard and Visa, has several suggestions for parents to use to teach children to use money more wisely. He advocates that the learning should also be fun.

Carolyn Curtis is the founder and president of Kids Can Sew in St. George, Utah. Curtis has created a unique sewing program that is being implemented across the country. She will show some of her patterns as well as some of the finished garments that have been made by her students.

"Creative Living" will not be seen on Tuesday, August 21st at 9:30 p.m. due to The Civil War program, but will return to its regularly scheduled time on September 14th. On Thursday, September 2nd at 12:00 "Creative Living" will demonstrate heirloom sewing by machine, present suggestions for serving fish and preparing shortcut desserts.

Healthy Eating

By Harold Ligon, M.D.

A few years ago many so-called experts were advising against eating too many carbohydrates.

Today health experts say a balanced diet is the answer, that carbohydrates are a good low-fat source of energy.

Attention Poets!!!

The National Library of Poetry has announced that $12,000 in prizes will be awarded this year to over 250 poets in the North American Open Poetry Contest. The deadline for the contest is September 30, 1993. The contest is open to everyone, but seniors are particularly welcome, and entry is FREE.

"Many of our previous winners have come from the ranks of senior citizens," said Howard Ely, contest director. "Maybe it's because they have had the opportunity to experience the many things in life which provide the 'raw material' for artistic creation."

Any poet, whether previously published or not, can be a winner. Every poem entered also has a chance to be published in a deluxe, hardbound anthology.

To enter, send ONE original poem, any subject and any style, to the National Library of Poetry, 11419 Cronridge Dr., P.O. Box 704-ZI, Owings - Mills, MD 21117. The poem should be no more than 20 lines, and the poet's name and address should appear on the top of the page. Entries must be postmarked by September 30, 1993. A new contest opens October 1, 1993.

Teaching Children How To Use Money Wisely

Make learning about money fun. Give your child a bank and along with them, drop a few coins in it regularly. Periodically, empty the container and count the money with them. Show them how the piles of coins have grown. This is an excellent exercise as well as for learning to count. A new bank on the market is one called a Data Bank, which makes saving money even more fun for kids--and parents, too!

Be honest with your children about money. Let them know that money does not grow on trees, but is earned through hard, honest work.

Demonstrate to them the purposes and uses of money. Explain to them that money is used to help you provide for the family's needs and wants.

Open a savings account and/or mutual fund with your child. Have their names appear on all statements along with yours. Review account balances regularly with your child. Set a goal to have a certain amount saved and invested by a set date. Make regular deposits to the account until you reach your goal. Start with a small amount and a short period of time.

Get your child involved in the family budget. Let them help put together grocery lists. Put them in charge of monitoring the cost of items they enjoy purchasing (and consuming! i.e. cereal, cookies, juices.)

Teach your children the value of:

- * Deferred gratification
- * The difference between needs and wants
- * Financial discipline

Let your children take on chores or work for which they will be compensated. Don't just give them an allowance; let them earn it.

Allow them to observe meetings with you and your financial advisors, i.e. accountant, financial planner, insurance agent, banker, investment broker.

Give your children financial gifts in addition to toys and clothing for birthdays and holidays. Remember, it costs over $200,000 on the average to raise a child to age 21. The more you and your children understand about money and how to use it wisely, the easier it will be to navigate through this expensive period and beyond.

Cultural Events Presents The International Film Series

The true story of a German Jew fighting to hide his true identity in the Hitler Youth academy...a 19 year old Chinese girl who becomes entangled in the power struggle of becoming the favorite of her "master's" four wives... a documentary of Stephen Hawking's thoughts on how the universe originated and the remarkable progression of his life. Sound intriguing? You're in luck! Texas Tech University Cultural Events brings you a new facet in its 1993-94 arts programming-a film series.

Foreign and independent films are rarely seen in the Lubbock area, and in response to the requests for this kind of programming, we're unveiling what we hope will be the first of an annual series of international films. Join us!

• Taxi Blues (September 14) (Russian with English subtitles) Ivan, a frustrated, on the edge taxi driver gets involved with a flaky jazz musician named Lyosha. Lyosha represents everything Ivan (a hard working, good comrade) despises and secretly desires. This is a character study that is linked to a larger and amazingly unsanitized picture of contemporary Russia. 110 minutes.

• Tilai (October 12) (In Moore with English subtitles) Winner of the Special Jury Prize at Cannes in 1990, this is a moving tale of honor and family ties on the plains of Burkina Faso. Saga returns home after two years to be told that his fiancée, Nogma, has been married off to his father. Secretly, he resumes his relationship with his new stepmother despite the fact that this liaison is punishable by death. 81 minutes.

• A Brief History of Time (November 9) (British) Errol Morris has probably done more than any recent director to expand our ideas of what is possible in a documentary film. Here he tackles the bestselling book by Stephen Hawking, the British physicist/cosmologist who has become a worldwide cult figure as well as a seminal scientific thinker. The film interweaves the development of Hawking's thought, which centers on the origins of the universe, with the no less remarkable progression of his life. 84 minutes.

• Daughters of the Dust (January 20) (USA) A hauntingly beautiful tale set at the turn of the century on one of the sea islands off the Georgia coast. This film portrays the unique culture of the Gullah people by focusing on the extended Peasant family as its members struggle with the decision to leave the island and move north. Memories of their Gullah history and its African roots come rising to the surface as time passes for the first African-American culture. 113 minutes.

All showings will be in the University Center Allen Theatre at 7:30 p.m. Tickets for each film will go on sale approximately one week prior to the showing at the University Center Ticket Booth or can be purchased at the door. If you would like to see all six films, and save money as well, you can purchase a Film Series Ticket at a discounted rate. Feel free to call us at 742-3610 if you have any questions.

These things kill human beings; hurry, worry and grease.

The Best Buy

Some people shop for churches like they shop for shoes. They look for just the right size, just the right fit, the sort that would never rub them wrong. With shoes that approach makes good sense, but with churches?

Focus On Faith

Curtis Shelburne

Obviously, if we have a choice, some things should be considered: size, style of worship, etc., and, certainly, doctrinal emphases. But we must be careful lest we adopt the same "me-centered" approach in shopping for churches that we might use in shopping for a suit or a pair of shoes or a pizza!

Duane W.H. Arnold and C. George Fry, reprinted in Christianity Today's "Reflections" section, hit the nail on the head. They write, "Worship ... fits right into the consumerism that so characterizes American religious life. Church-shopping has become common. A believer will compare First Presbyterian, St. Andrew's Lutheran, Epiphany Episcopal, West Hills Church of Christ, Brookwood Methodist, and Bethany Baptist for the "best buy."

The church plant, programs, and personnel are carefully scrutinized, but the bottom line is, "How did it feel?" Worship must be sensational. "Start with an earthquake and work up from that," advised one professor of homiletics. "Be sure you have the four prerequisites of a successful church," urged another: "up-beat music, adequate parking, a warm welcome, and a dynamic sermon." The slogan is "Try it, you'll like it."

I enjoy "upbeat" music and convenient parking. I always appreciate a warm welcome, and I'm all for dynamic sermons. But if for these things alone we get up on Sunday and go to worship, we are centering far too much on ourselves and far too little on God. If there were only one church in town with old, wooden pews and poor singing, a muddy parking lot and a stuttering preacher, would we still take the trouble to go to worship?

If not, maybe we need to ask if we're really interested in worshiping God as much as we're interested in worshipping us. We worship God because of who he is, because he is worthy to be worshiped, because he deserves our praise and our thanks, because bowing before the creator is the right thing for creatures to do.

Now, about that pair of shoes....

Curtis Shelburne is the minister of the 16th & D Church of Christ in Muleshoe.

The Panhandle's Most Exciting Labor Day Event

The Texas Panhandle's most exciting Labor Day weekend event is still the annual Cal Farley's Boys Ranch Rodeo.

The proof of this claim is visible in the large number of spectators who return each year to cheer about 200 youngsters riding broncs, bulls, and calves, competing for trophies and the titles of Jr. and Sr. All Around Cowboys. About 10,000 people attending the two day rodeo, September 5 and 6, also applaud young cowgirls challenged in barrel racing and pole bending events. It is a rodeo for all the Ranch's youths, even the smallest cowpokes riding stickhorses.

From around the nation, the rodeo fans travel to Cal Farley's Boys Ranch, 36 miles northwest of Amarillo, for various reasons. Some have cared about helping the Ranch's youths for many years. Others look forward to wholesome family entertainment and excellent Ranch-cooked barbecue. Among the crowd are more than two dozen riding clubs from the tri-state area that participate in the rodeo Grand Entry.

Also attending the Labor Day extravaganza will be members of the Boys Ranch Alumni Association who return for fellowship during their annual reunion. Former Ranch students, most leading productive lives with families of their own, share old memories while lending a hand to help children living at the Ranch today. Returning alumni are expected to travel from as far away as Germany this year.

Tickets for both performances of the rodeo are still available in Amarillo. Reserve bleacher seats are $3.50, general admission $2.50, and children 6 to 12 years old are admitted for $1.00. Rodeo performances begin at 2:30 Sunday and Monday afternoons. Barbecue lunches prepared by the youths are available for $3.50. Tickets and information may be obtained by calling (806) 372-2341 in Amarillo.

Since its founding in 1939 more than 4000 children from across the nation have been given a "Shirtillo Hang Onto" at Cal Farley's Boys Ranch. Today, the Ranch is a modern community of more than 400 youths who have found a second-chance for success, and an opportunity to become well-rounded citizens.

In 1987, Girlstown, U.S.A. became affiliated with Cal Farley's Boys Ranch. The Board of Directors felt that Mr. Farley's philosophy of raising boys could be used successfully to raise needy girls. The campus at Whiteface, Texas offers 75 girls a home and an opportunity for success.

In Borger, Texas, Cal Farley's Family Program provides short-term care to elementary age boys and girls whose families are facing difficult circumstances.

At the Ranch, each youngster is given a job, a small salary and banking responsibilities, whereby boys and girls learn to handle money wisely. Occupations are available for almost every age and interest with the Ranch's daily operations. Along with the production of eggs, milk, pork, beef, a youngster may choose to learn building trades, auto mechanics, heavy equipment operation or vocational agriculture.

Many children are far behind in their school work before coming to Boys Ranch, and the 12-grade accredited school system is designed to fit the needs of the students. Classes are small so teachers are able to give individual attention to their kids. The girls at Girlstown and their children at the Borger campus attend local public schools. The goal of each student at Boys Ranch and Girlstown is to graduate from high school. Ranch graduates receive diplomas and vocational certificates. Those who qualify may attend college or vocational school assisted by a Boys Ranch scholarship or loan. Each year about 40 graduate from Boys Ranch High School.

Along with academic, and non-denominational religious training, boys and girls receive quality health care, participate in year-round athletics and enjoy a meaningful home life that includes seasonal activities and celebrations.

Many former Boys Ranchers now lead successful lives in the fields of business, industry, education, religion, and government. Many of them, proud of their accomplishments return to visit Boys Ranch with their families whenever they can. The Boys Ranch Alumni Association hosts the Alumni Reunion during the annual Boys Ranch Rodeo.

Cal Farley's Boys Ranch and Girlstown, U.S.A. are supported by voluntary contributions from people who share whatever they can. Faithful giving from friends continues to provide the everyday costs of food, housing, education and salaries, while gifts from wills and estates ensure future operations. You may be sure that your gift of financial support is carefully and wisely managed. This year our receipts are apportioned about 51% for boys' and girls' home life, health, religious training, academic and vocational education, maintenance, and utilities. Capital outlay is 16%, administration, 8%, fundraising 6%, leaving about 19% from wills and trusts for continued investment to cover rising costs, expansion and future security. Complete financial reports are available upon request. Visitors are always welcome.

In Fashion

The last weeks of August through Labor Day are usually referred to as the last chance for summer vacations at the beach. Take a sleeveless madras plaid jacket to brighten pastel shorts, T's and skirts. Include long sleeve shirts and a cotton sweater for cool evenings.

Western designed fashions continue to gain attention, especially in fall ranch and mountain vacations spots.

payment even if the farm doesn't experience a loss. GRP is designed for all farmers who have a policy to receive a payment when the county yield (not the individual yield) falls below the chosen trigger yield. This is an essential component of GRP.

On the other hand, it's possible for producers to experience a loss and not receive a payment. Remember, GRP's effectiveness depends on how well the farm's yield moves with the county's yield. So if a farm is different from the rest of the farms in the county GRP may not be the best insurance plan."

The MPC program requires annual production records. During the GRP pilot test, it is crucial that producers maintain production records in the same way that they now do for MPC. If producers decide to switch back to MPC from GRP, they will need to furnish reports for the missing years. The sign-up date for GRP is September 30, 1993. For additional information on GRP for individual farms, contact your local county Extension office 306 West Second Street Muleshoe, TX 79347 PH. (806) 272-4583, or your crop insurance representative.

"We spend two million dollars a day on charities. There is no reason not to tell the public about Masons, we have no secrets. Our families are good moral families.

"We should tell everyone we are Masons and proud of it. Tell them about the lodge and invite them over.

Successful business people go out of their way to build positive images and it's the same with the Masons.

People are prone to attack something they don't understand and that is what they do to Masonry.

"We need to sell Masonry the way it is, clean and simple. Wear your pins, help your neighbors, you don't need to make a fuss, little things cut right down to the heart," Stewart continued.

Water District Receives Education-Public Service Award

The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 is the 1993 recipient of the Universities Council on Water Resources (UCOWR) Education and Public Service Award.

The UCOWR is an international organization devoted to facilitating water-related education at all levels; promoting meaningful research and technology transfer on water resources issue; compiling and disseminating information on water problems and solutions; and informing the public about water issues.

The award recognizes the High Plains Water District's efforts to increase public understanding of water resources through education, research, public service, international activities, and information support.

The award nomination was made by Dr. Lloyd Urban of the Texas Tech University Water Resources Center and Dr. Wayne Jordan of the Texas A&M University Water Resources Institute at College Station.

"As evidenced by the ambitious program of research, education, and public service summarized in the District's anniversary publications, one can see that the District has had a profound impact on our region and the State since its creation in 1951," Urban said.

Some of the educational programs developed and implemented by the Water District in recent years include:

*Hydrologic atlases depicting the saturated thickness of the Ogallala Formation within each county in the District's 15 county service area are updated and printed every five years. These maps give landowners information on the amount of ground water in storage under their tract of land.

*The District has educated irrigators about the use of soil moisture monitoring devices such as gypsum blocks and resistance

TWC Proposes Deadline Extensions For Landfill Rules

The Texas Water Commission is proposing the extension of the effective dates of new requirements for the management of municipal solid waste landfills. The proposals coincide with similar plans by the U.S. Environmental Protection Administration.

The proposed extensions would apply to recently adopted TWC rules that impose more stringent landfill management standards required by the EPA and known collectively as Subtitle D of the Resource Recovery and Conservation Act. The rules involve location restrictions, facility design and operations, groundwater monitoring, financial assurance, corrective action measures, and conditions for closure and post-closure care.

The original EPA regulations were issued on October 9, 1991, with an effective date of October 9, 1993. However, during the interim two major developments have prompted the EPA and TWC to propose certain time extensions.

First, the original EPA standards included an exemption for small landfills in arid and remote locations. However, a federal court has ordered the EPA to eliminate that exemption.

Second, the EPA and the TWC have received numerous reports from small communities about the problems they face in meeting the original timetable.

As a result, the TWC supports the EPA proposals for the following extensions:

*April 9, 1994-Owners and operators of landfills that accept 100 tons of waste per day or less and not on the Superfund National priorities List would have an additional six months to meet Subtitle D requirements.

*Oct. 9, 1994-All owners and operators of landfills would have an additional year to complete closure of landfills that stop receiving waste before the effective date of the regulations.

*April 9, 1995-All owners and operators of landfills would have an additional 18 months to meet new financial requirements. These include surety bonds, letters of credit, insurance, or other guarantees that assure the ability to cover landfill-related expenses.

*Oct. 9, 1995-Owners and operators of landfills receiving fewer than 20 tons of waste per day and fewer than 25 inches of annual rainfall would have an additional two years to implement all of the new regulations.

The proposed changes to TWC

The Door of God's House

This old door, cracked and paint peeled, might well be the door of any small church throughout our vast land. The people that worship here perhaps are not able at this time to apply a costly coat of paint or do an extensive repair job. However, they are not ashamed of its weatherbeaten or well-worn appearance. Far from it, they are proud that it has stood always unlocked and sometimes open through a rainy day or stormy night ready to let all enter who seek refuge and comfort. Its hinges are loose; not from oversight but from overwork. Its old knob is shiny by the continual turning of humble hands. Wherever your church affiliation may be...from the smallest of wooden buildings to the loftiest cathedral, the door of God's house is always open to you. Go this Sunday! Remember, the church needs you; but more importantly... you need your church.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.
