Military plot indicated in Aquino report

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines — The chairwoman of an investigatory board accused an air force general and six soldiers today of plotting the assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino, and President Ferdinand E. Marcos ordered their immediate prosecution.

Chairwoman Corazon Agrava's 121-page report did not implicate Marcos or his chief of staff, Gen. Fabian C. Ver, 64, in the alleged conspiracy to kill Aquino. Ver, who commands the 200,000-strong armed forces, is a relative and close ally of the 67-year-old Marcos.

Another report expected to name higher officers and more soldiers was to be released Wednesday by the majority of the five-member panel. The chairwoman said she split with the other board members because they concluded Ver was one of the plotters.

But Marcos, who appointed the board, accepted the chairwoman's report during a televised ceremony as if it were that of the whole panel. He ordered immediate prosecution of Brig. Gen. Luther Custodio, head of the Aviation Security Command assigned to protect Aquino, and six soldiers in a special civilian court on charges of plotting to kill Aquino.

"God knows my men and I are without guilt in this crime," said Custodio. Marcos ordered Custodio and the other six soldiers confined to quarters.

The Aug. 21, 1983, assassination of Aquino, 50, was at first blamed by Marcos and the military on alleged Communist agent Rolando Galman. It has been a rallying point for Aquino's family and opposition groups, who during a 14-month protest campaign have blamed the government and the armed forces.

In a nationwide television address, Marcos said: "Our government makes manifest to all its desire and its determination to push this case through to the final resolution."

Referring to the protests, he urged Aquino's followers to end "the campaign of intimidation and pressure that has heightened tensions, endangered so many lives and besmirched the very reputation of our republic."

Marcos said the case would be prosecuted by an ombudsman in a special court set up for trying graft and corruption charges against government employees and officials. He asked the investigatory board to assist in the prosecution, although it cannot actually bring charges.

Aquino's widow, Corazon, declined comment after listening to a radio news broadcast about the chairwoman's report and Marcos' response.

Sources said the report by the other board members would name Ver as part of the plot and detail an attempt to cover up the alleged conspiracy.

Rain likely to continue in Basin

From Staff and Wire Reports

Rain and cool temperatures are expected to remain through Wednesday, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Forecasters predict tonight will be cloudy with an 80 percent chance of rain and thunderstorms decreasing Wednesday to a 60 percent chance. Temperatures will increase from the low 40s tonight to low 50s Wednesday. Northeasterly winds will be at 10 to 15 mph.

The record high set in 1961 was 40 degrees above Monday's recorded high of 49. The record of low 33 was 11 degrees below the low of 44 set this morning.

Elsewhere in the state, repairs were just finished on damage caused last year by Hurricane Alicia at the Benchmark Apartments when a wave of tornadoes tore through this community just southeast of Houston.

"We had about 10 families that we had to transfer," said Assistant Manager Debbie Gibson. "Other than that, some have the roof leaking or windows out."

Manger Wanda Petty said, "I feel sick. It hit the same buildings that Alicia hit."

But no injuries were reported as a result of Monday's tornadoes, which ripped of roofs at the 496-unit complex, shattered windows and buried cars in rubble.

One resident, Ron Barker, described the storm as "like the bottom of the cloud fell out."

About 15,000 customers of Houston Lighting & Power Co. lost their electrical power, but it was restored by early evening Monday, spokesman Graham Painter said.

"We think they're all on," Painter said of the customers whose power had been cut.

Police agencies in the area said as many as five tornadoes hit, but the Pasadena Civil Defense coordinator said her agency believed the storms were merely tornado-like winds.

"There were four reported sightings," said Elizabeth Gonzalez, deputy civil defense coordinator. "The damage reports indicate a tornado-like action but there's no swath of damage that would go along with that."

Residents of Pasadena, a Houston suburb, are again faced with the task of digging out from under storm-stirred debris.

Besides the wind damage, Ms. Gonzalez said an accompanying hailstorm also broke windows in the community.

"But all in all, it's fairly minor damage," she said.

No one was housed in shelters and all people displaced by the storm had found housing elsewhere, she said.

"The cleanup, of course, is ongoing. The debris is primarily foliage," she said.

Other "severe damage" was reported at the Almeda Mall, a shopping center along Interstate 45 between Houston and Pasadena, authorities said.

Meanwhile, in Brazoria County, some 8 inches of rain were reported by early Monday, closing several roads and leaving some low-lying homes flooded.

The lingering storms earlier had dumped heavy rains on South Texas, forcing some 600 residents from their homes in Odem and Sinton over the weekend.

E.H. Green of Odom said he recorded 18.5 inches of rain in five hours at his home on Friday.

The flooding prompted the Texas National Guard to be called in to assist in the evacuations. Guardsmen, however, were sent back home on Sunday.

Galveston, about 30 miles to the south of Pasadena, reported more than 3 inches of rain in a 2½-hour period Sunday night, causing scattered power outages.

There was not much relief in store today for southeast Texas, which was expected to continue getting much of the pounding rain and thunderstorms that have lingered for days. Flood flash watches were in also effect today for the area, while the rest of the state was also draped under a blanket of rain, drizzle and cloudy skies.

Temperatures tonight were expected to dip to the mid 40s and low 50s, with some 30s expected in the Panhandle. The highs Wednesday were only predicted to climb to the 50s and 60s, with readings near the 70s only in the Big Bend Valleys.

Thunderstorms drenched an already-soggy southern Louisiana today, forcing at least 80 families to flee one town, while travelers' advisories were posted for parts of Colorado and New Mexico because of snow.

Up to 8 inches of snow was expected in Colorado's southern foothills, the National Weather Service said today.

More than 5 inches of rain had fallen in three hours early today in New Iberia Parish, La., and more was forecast. At least 80 families were waiting for National Guard trucks to help with evacuations, said Joseph Valenti, civil defense director.

"Virtually everything in the city is flooded," said New Iberia police Chief Steven L. Davis.

Two National Guard armories and some schools were being used as shelters.

Thunderstorms also drenched Mississippi and the eastern, southern and central sections of Texas overnight. Showers developing along the same stationary front brought locally heavy rain to New England and the mid-Atlantic Coast early today.

Skies were cloudy over the north-central states but skies were fair west of the Rockies early today.

Today's forecast called for rain or thunderstorms from east Texas across the lower Mississippi Valley to Alabama, with heavy rain in Louisiana and Mississippi. Rain was expected in the Atlantic Coast states and from parts of New Mexico across the Ohio and Tennessee valleys. Snow was expected over the mountains of northern New Mexico and southern Colorado and parts of northwest Kansas.

Highs temperatures were forecast in the 30s over much of Colorado; 40s over the remainder of the Rockies, the western Plains and upper Mississippi Valley; and 70s and 80s over much of the Southeast, the mid-Atlantic Coast, southern Texas, the desert Southwest and central and Southern California.

Temperatures around the nation at 3 a.m. EDT ranged from 9 degrees at Yellowstone Park, Wyo., to 80 at Key West, Fla.

County Commissioners choose certificates for financing jail

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Midland County commissioners on Monday opted to issue certificates of obligation rather than use interim financing to fund a new jail.

Jail costs, including architects' and legal fees, could cost the taxpayers up to $9.5 million.

"It won't exceed 10 (million dollars)," Midland architect Walter Pate told the commissioners.

Commissioners initially had considered funding the jail project by interim financing — borrowing money locally as the jail progressed — and then issuing certificates to pay off the indebtedness and to complete the project. But San Antonio financial consultant Bob Davis of Kidder, Peabody & Co. Inc., said interim financing legally cannot be used to fund construction of the jail project in concert with the issuance of certificates of obligations.

Instead, commissioners are seeking to issue certificates of obligations to financial institutions after obtaining Standard & Poor's and Moody's financial ratings on the county's financial strength and stability.

"We'll be as high as we can get for a community of our size," said Commissioner Durward Wright.

Davis said use of interim financing would be "no violation of law" but said it was contrary to guidelines set up for certificates of obligation. "It (certificates of obligation) can only be used to satisfy contractual agreements and not debts."

The commissioners agreed to hire Davis as financial consultant but postponed naming a bond counselor. Davis said the fees for financial consultant and bond attorney would be $32,450 based on the jail cost of $9.5 million. The $9.5 million would represent the more costly jail options the commissioners have considered. The jail's final cost could be less.

Wright had proposed that Jim Newman of Midland's Stubbeman, McRae, Sealy, Laughlin & Browder law firm be retained as bond counselor.

"It's more or less a courtesy situation," noted Wright, who said the law firm had requested to be considered for the job.

Davis, who suggested other firms, said the county needs to retain a "nationally recognized firm. They (the Midland firm) may be; I don't know."

"I feel like you, Durward," Davis said. "If you have someone locally who can handle it, I understand..."

"We like to do business locally," Wright said.

Stubbeman firm lawyer David Copeland, summoned to the court by the commissioners, noted that his firm is on a list of nationally-approved bond counselors.

"Jim Newman, in our Houston office, is our professional bond counselor," Copeland said. "We have the expertise, and I think we'll be accepted" by Standard & Poor's and Moody's.

Commissioner C. DeWayne Davis said he has "advocated" use of "home-town talent" from the outset. "We want to be the good guy and trade at home" when practical.

Commissioners will open bids from general contractors on construction of the jail at 3 p.m. Oct. 31.

Pate recommended that SESCO (South Eastern Specialty Co.) of Montgomery, Ala., "should be the selected detention equipment subcontractor." Of the two bidders — Southern Steel Co. of San Antonio and SESCO — SESCO tendered the lower bids. SESCO's base bid for hardware to lodge 165 inmates was $2.4 million; Southern Steel Co.'s bid was $2.7 million.

SESCO's top bid for detention equipment to house 225 inmates was $3.15 million; Southern Steel Co.'s bid was $3.4 million.

Meanwhile, Midland County Judge Bill Ahders has written SESCO a "letter of intent" to award the company the detention contract if the Commissioners' Court proceeds with jail construction.

Site of the proposed jail is a seven-acre tract just east of the Midland County Exhibit Building. The present jail, which legally houses 85 prisoners, is on the fifth floor of the 1929-30-vintage Midland County Courthouse.

Bidders on the project, representatives of SESCO, jail engineers, jail consultant Ron Daily and the architests were to meet at the site today.

Midland nears Austin with low jobless figure

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business-Oil Editor

Midland moved up the employment ladder in September to edge closer to Austin for first place as the Texas city with the fewest unemployed.

Midland had an unemployment rate of only 3.5 percent, just one-tenth of one percent short of Austin's 3.4 percent. Only 2,700 of Midland's labor force of 76,600 were unemployed, as 73,900 were working.

That means 800 more have found jobs in Midland since August 1984 when 73,100 were working and the unemployment rate was 3.8 percent. While the total labor force has increased this month from 75,800 in August to 76,600, the number unemployed remains the same at 2,700.

The numbers have changed dramatically for the better since September 1983 when the total labor force was listed at 66,200 and 4,300 or 6.5 percent of the labor force in Midland was unemployed.

Odessa did not fare as well in the employment picture, actually losing a little ground as the percent of unemployed rose from 4.2 percent in August to 4.4 percent in September. Perhaps a shrinkage of the total labor force, from 80,200 to 79,600 accounts for some of the percentage increase, because the number unemployed increased by only 100, from 3,400 in August to 3,500 in September.

Still, the Odessa employment picture is far improved over September 1983 when 7,200 were unemployed out of a labor force of 74,200 and the percent of employment stood at 9.7 percent.

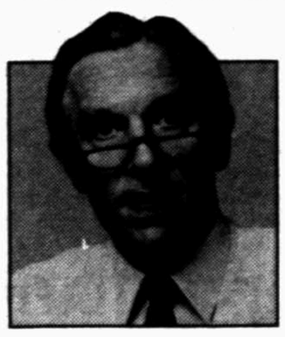

Both Midland and Odessa are better off than the national rate which is 7.1 percent and the Texas average rate which is 5.8 percent.

In other rankings Bryan-College Station remained in third place with 3.6 percent unemployment, while Dallas-Fort Worth dropped to fourth place with 3.8 percent. Abilene had 3.9 percent unemployment, San Angelo 4.3 percent.

Baby's drug overdose, no accident, doctor says at former nurse's trial

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — It was no accident 4-week-old Rolando Santos was getting overdoses of a blood-thinner while he was a patient at Medical Center Hospital, a doctor in the child injury trial of former nurse Genene Jones has testified.

Dr. Kenneth Copeland, an associate professor of pediatrics at the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio, testified Monday that he took steps to avoid overdoses of the patient.

The doctor, who was an attending physician for the baby in 1982, said he ordered the removal of an arterial line from the child Jan. 8.

Heparin, a blood-thinner, was routinely used to keep such arterial lines from scabbing over.

The next day, Copeland testified, the Santos child started bleeding profusely and nearly died. The doctor said he treated the baby with a heparin antidote, and the bleeding stopped.

Ms. Jones, 34, is accused of giving the baby, who was hospitalized for pneumonia, an overdose of heparin.

She already has been convicted of murdering a 15-month-old girl with an injection of a muscle relaxant and is serving a 99-year prison term.

Copeland said he became convinced before the alleged overdose Jan. 9 that the baby was getting too much heparin.

"I became convinced in my mind that he had received more than a small dose and not accidentally," he said.

Copeland said Ms. Jones summoned him to the Santos child's room the evening of Jan. 9.

"The baby was ashen. He was bleeding from multiple sites — out of puncture wounds, his scalp, neck, hands, from his nose, eyes, inside his mouth," the doctor said.

"I felt like he would have a cardiac arrest and die very shortly. His condition was extremely critical," Copeland said.

The doctor said he administered massive doses of protamine sulfate, an antidote to heparin.

After administering more than 200 milligrams of the drug, Copeland said "the baby suddenly, instantly stopped bleeding."

The child was "much better by the next morning," Copeland said, and he eventually recovered fully.

After the incident, the doctor said, "I wanted him out of pediatric ICU. We couldn't believe this was really going on."

Two days later, the baby was moved out of the unit to the general pediatric floor.

"I arranged for special nurses to watch Rolando," Copeland said, adding he ordered a list be made of everyone who went into the child's room.

Judge rules videotape admissable in trial of slain millionaire's son

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge has ruled a controversial videotape is admissable as evidence in the murder trial of Henry Harrison "Ricky" Kyle II, accused of shooting his Texas millionaire father outside their Bel-Air mansion.

Kyle's attorneys had sought to suppress the hour-long tape, in which a carpenter who was staying at the Kyle home describes the sequence of events the night of the murder. But Superior Court Judge Robert Devich denied the defense request when the trial began Monday, said court clerk Judy Pieper.

Jury selection is expected to last "a couple of days," said Deputy District Attorney Lewis Watnick. The trial could take two months, he said.

Kyle, 22, is accused of murdering his father, Henry Harrison Kyle, early on July 22, 1983. Prosecutors allege the younger Kyle, who has been free on $100,000 bail, feared he would be cut out of his father's will.

Kyle's will, filed in Dallas probate court, gave almost the entire Kyle estate to the two sons, with small bequests to two daughters.

The elder Kyle headed a $100 million empire that was based in Dallas and included apartments, restaurants, dairy farms, coal mines and a bank.

Henry Kyle moved to Los Angeles in the spring of 1983 to run Four Star International Inc., the movie and television distribution company of which he was president and chief executive.

Kyle brought with him his sons, Ricky and Scott. They and two others were at the Mediterranean-style home when the elder Kyle was shot to death at point-blank range. Ricky Kyle was shot in the elbow, but the others were uninjured.

Mondale tries to tag confident Reagan

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

Walter F. Mondale, with just 14 days left to catch Ronald Reagan, is depicting him as an uninformed, pass-the-buck president, while Reagan dismisses the challenger as having "no business" in his job and talks confidently of victory.

The Democratic presidential nominee enters the final two weeks leading up to Election Day on Nov. 6 in the position of having to make up perhaps a percentage point a day — or more — in the polls.

National polls in recent days have shown Reagan ahead by as few as 9 and as many as 25 percentage points. Reagan, while insisting he was too "superstitious" to claim his re-election is in the bag, sounded nearly as jubilant as his campaign aides as he began a West Coast campaign swing Monday.

"I believe the election of 1984 will be a victory for us all — for the future over the past, for progress over failure, for hope over despair, and yes for strength over weakness," Reagan said after touring a B-1 bomber plant in California.

"We're entering the home stretch of the campaign, and we've set our sights on victory," he said.

Both Mondale and Reagan were still talking about their debate Sunday night and sounding upbeat — Reagan saying he "felt good" and Mondale saying "I won."

Mondale was hammering at the theme he used in their debate and phrasing it in event stronger terms, calling Reagan "the most detached, most remote, most uninformed president in modern history."

Viewers of the televised debate, he said, "saw a president who cannot discuss any major issue without making a major mistake ... They saw a commander in chief who is not commanding and who isn't a chief."

Reagan was in Portland, Ore., today before heading to Seattle and Columbus, Ohio. He planned to return to Washington on Wednesday and announced plans to visit New York, New Jersey and Connecticut on Friday.

Mondale was in Youngstown, Ohio, beginning three days of campaigning in the Midwest before stopping in Texas and traveling on to California on Friday. He was concentrating on the big states, reflecting his need to win those big electoral prizes if he is to have any chance of winning the presidency.

Their running mates were on the road, too, with Vice President George Bush campaigning today in Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan. Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro was in Arkansas and heading to California.

As they campaigned, debate over their debate continued. Three national polls — by Newsweek, ABC-Washington Post and CBS-New York Times — all showed voters concluding the debate was a statistical draw.

In their foreign-policy debate, Reagan asserted that pages dealing with assassination had been edited out of a CIA manual for Nicaraguan rebels.

However, in a three-hour briefing for the Senate Intelligence Committee by the CIA on Monday, the agency told Congress that all copies of the CIA psychological warfare manual contained advice about the "neutralization" of government officials. Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who attended the briefing, said it wasn't among the deletions made in copies of the book.

Bush stumbled on the same issue, saying in St. Louis that the manual "was given out" by the magazine Counterspy, a publication critical of U.S. intelligence efforts. It wasn't, and he later acknowledged his error.

Regan also was dogged by questions about a statement at a news conference in 1982 that figured in Sunday's debates — with Mondale saying it showed Reagan thought nuclear missiles launched by submarines could be recalled.

Reagan said he meant that the subs could be recalled, not the missiles. "How could anyone think that any reasonable human being could believe that you can turn a missile around and bring it home?" Reagan asked.

Speaking to aerospace workers and standing by a B-1 bomber being built, Reagan blasted Mondale on defense, saying the "made a career out of weakening America's armed forces."

"Those who have no vision of the future have no business leading America," he said. "And those who believe a weaker America is a safer America have no business guiding the destiny of our nation."

Mondale said Reagan has avoided responsibility repeatedly, pointing to the CIA manual in Nicaragua and the repeated terrorist bombings of Americans in Lebanon.

On the bombing of Marines in Beirut, Mondale said, "What did the president say? He said, 'I didn't do it, the local commander did it.'"

On the manual, Mondale said, "He said, 'somebody else in my government did it."

Ms. Ferraro campaigned in New York on Monday, telling ministers in Harlem, "I don't want anyone for one minute to think that we're not going to win this election, because we are."

TCLU joins farm union suing TEC

By SYDNEY RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN, Texas — The Texas Civil Liberties Union and the United Farm Workers, claiming Texas unemployment laws are unconstitutional, have filed a class-action suit against the Texas Employment Commission.

The suit, filed in Austin Monday, asks State District Judge Harley Clark to issue a declaratory judgment. Clark is to consider an injunction againt a disputed provision of the unemployment compensation act at a hearing Wednesday.

Jim Harrington, legal director of the civil liberties union, said a special section of the unemployment compensation law denies agricultural workers the same benefits that most other Texas employees receive.

But he said that the suit is not an attempt to get the small farmer.

"We are not attacking that part of the law that excludes employers who have only a few casual or seasonal employees or have a minimal payroll," Harrington told a news conference in San Juan. "These folks would not have to provide unemployment ... even if our suit is successful."

TEC spokesman William Grossenbacher in Austin said he had not seen a copy of the lawsuit and could not respond.

Sister Maureen Leach of the United Farmworkers Ministry said the suit is aimed at placing farm workers "on an equal footing with other Texas workers."

"Farm workers are traditionally at the bottom of the pay scale and are the last to receive benefits other workers enjoy," she said. "The suit claims (that) exclusion of farm workers from the state unemployment law discriminates against a group of workers which is 90 percent Hispanic and identifiable as such," she told the news conference.

She said that farm workers have been excluded from equal protection under the National Labor Relations Act, the state and federal minimum wage laws, the overtime law, the Social Security Act, child labor laws and occupational safety and health laws.

State Rep. Juan Hinojosa, one of the attorneys representing the farm workers, said the suit is "aimed at forcing large growers and cooperative farms" to pay unemployment benefits for their workers.

Hinojosa said he also will sponsor legislation next January to extend unemployment benefits to farm laborers. State Sen. Hector Uribe of Brownsville will sponsor the bill in the senate.

Four previous attempts to pass similar legislation have failed, Hinojosa said.

Signing a report on the probe into the death of Filipino opposition leader Benigno Aquino is fact-finding board chairwoman Corazon Agrava. Watching is President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

AQUINO

Mrs. Agrava's report concludes there was a criminal plot to assassinate Marcos' most popular rival and that one of Aquino's military escorts at the Manila airport shot him in the back of the head.

But it adds: "To pinpoint the actual assassin might not be provable beyond reasonable doubt with the available evidence."

"It should not be difficult to conclude that the administration, including General Ver, could not be held in any way responsible for the criminal plot," her report says.

Although parts of Ver's testimony to the board "can always be challenged as untrue, ... doubt as to his veracity, if any, will not justify a finding that he was among the plotters," the report said.

Ver also could not be implicated under the concept of "command responsibility" because Custodio had ultimate responsibility for the troops, the report said.

The report names only Custodio, 49, Sgts. Claro Lat, Arnulfo de Mesa, Filomeno Miranda and Armando Dela Cruz, and Constables 1st Class Rogelio Moreno and Mario Lazaga as part of the plot. No motive is suggested.

Mrs. Agrava, a 69-year-old former appeals court judge, distributed copies of the report at a public meeting where members of an audience of about 200 people booed her for issuing a report separate from fellow panel members.

The government claim that Galman shot Aquino "has to be rejected," her report says, because evidence shows Aquino was shot on the bottom steps of a stairway where Galman could not have reached him. Galman was shot to death by soldiers after Aquino's killing, government officials have said.

"One of the military group on the service stairway was the triggerman," the report says.

Aquino, a former senator, was killed as military police escorted him from the jetliner that brought him back from three years of self-imposed exile in the United States.

Asked how he felt about the Agrava report, Marcos said, "I have no reaction to it. I'm going to transmit it for immediate trial."

First Lady Imelda Marcos told reporters: "Poor nation. I cry for the nation. The nation is beautiful."

The other members of the investigatory panel — which held hearings and took testimony for several months — are educator Amado Dizon, 75, lawyer Luciano Salazar, 65, businessman Dante Santos, 59, and labor leader Ernesto Herrera, 42. It was unclear how Marcos would deal with their report.

Mrs. Agrava told reporters before meeting privately for a few minutes with Marcos that the board was unanimous in "the main body of conclusions," but decided to have two reports because members differed on some points.

South African town sealed off

By TOM BALDWIN
Associated Press Writer

SEBOKENG, South Africa — About 7,000 soldiers and police sealed off the black township of Sebokeng before dawn today and searched thousands of homes, arresting 348 persons in an attempt to defuse a two-month outbreak of anti-government rioting.

Police spokesman Lt. Henry Beck told reporters at the nearby white town of Vereeniging there was no resistance to the raid in the township, about 40 miles south of Johannesburg, and no shots were fired. He said 348 people were arrested by midday in one of the largest domestic security operations since the Soweto anti-apartheid riots of 1976.

Beck said the white-minority government was demonstrating to other black townships that "it is our intention to restore law-and-order."

Law and Order Minister Louis le Grange said in a statement that the prolonged unrest was "not only fanned by revolutionary elements but is also exploited by criminal and intimidatory forces. The government has decided that this lawlessness must be curbed with all available means."

Searchlights flashed across rows of small bungalows as the combing operation began about 2:30 a.m. Convoys of armored troop carriers drove through the streets and police in battle camouflage spread out on foot.

Cillie Ramphi, an auto service station attendant, said, "They were on the streets when we woke up."

Some soldiers, carrying semi-automatic weapons, warmed themselves at fires. Others stationed themselves along main roads but took no part in the searches.

Police carried out searches, waking many residents with a pre-dawn knock on the door. They distributed pamphlets explaining the operation and urging students to return to school. Cars and trucks were checked at roadblocks.

Police placed orange stickers on houses they had cleared. Individuals who were cleared received orange stickers reading, "I am your friend. Trust me."

The pamphlets read in part: "We are here to promote a normal social life, continued education, safe travel, stability, a healthy community and the delivery of food."

Beck said those arrested would appear in courts on charges of illegally possessing drugs, liquor, pornography, stolen goods and weapons. Some were charged with violating laws barring blacks from living in certain areas without passes. No charges were reported under South Africa's wide-ranging security laws.

Black and white groups opposed to the government's system of legalized race-separation condemned the raid. Bishop Manas Buthelezi, president of the South African Council of Churches, said he was shocked by "what amounts to the siege of Sebokeng."

Beck said the raid affected 120,000 of the 162,000 inhabitants of Sebokeng, and part of Evaton township.

MacArthur Foundation funds work of 25 new 'geniuses'

By DEBRA HALE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — A man who studied the economics of medieval cathedral building and the head of an organization seeking to develop leadership in Southern black women were among 25 recipients of "genius" grants awarded to free them to go where their creativity takes them.

The John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation announced the awards of up to $300,000 on Monday. The latest MacArthur Fellows also included a quadriplegic seeking equal rights for the disabled, a country doctor researching high blood pressure and a lawyer promoting entrepreneurial skills in the Third World.

The program, sometimes called the "search for geniuses," provides money for scholars and others to "do nothing but follow their own creative bent," the foundation said. The program has committed $48 million to 141 recipients since it began in 1981.

Bill Irwin, 34, a New York City actor and mime who is the first currently performing artist to be named a MacArthur Fellow, was granted $34,400 a year for five years.

"It's just a wonderful chunk of money to come in every month," he said from the Michael Bennett Studios, where he was rehearsing "Accidental Death of an Anarchist," a satiric comedy opening on Broadway next month.

"I will be developing theater pieces for myself and other people which will involve a lot of movement but...they will not be silent pieces," he said. "You have to be careful. Mime is poison at the box office."

Irwin also trained with the Ringling Brothers Circus and appeared in Robert Altman's movie "Popeye." But he said he received the award primarily because of "The Regard of Flight," a revue with mime that was taped for public television.

The amount of the award is based on a recipient's age and experience. Candidates are not told they are under consideration, and winners may use the money for any purpose, without having to report progress or complete projects.

Because of the secrecy, some recipients said they suspected a joke when they were told of the award.

"I thought it was a friend of mine trying to pull my leg," said Irwin.

"My first reaction was saying, 'Oh, my God,' several times. I asked them twice if it was a joke," said Elliot Sperling, 33, of Hattisburg, Miss., a teacher at the University of Southern Mississippi who is researching the history of Sino-Tibetan relations.

Doggett says he'll halt Gramm criticism if debate held

By Associated Press

U.S. Senate candidate Lloyd Doggett has accepted opponent Phil Gramm's challenge to halt public and on-camera criticism between the two that has escalated the frenzy of their campaigns, providing the two debate by Friday.

Doggett on Monday agreed with Gramm, who had made his appeal at a Houston news conference. Doggett, campaigning across West Texas, issued a statement through his office that he has ordered off the air all ads referring to Gramm.

Yet, spokesmen for both campaigns said late Monday that reportedly critical television advertisements were still being aired against each candidate.

The Democrat, in the prepared statement, said a face-to-face discussion is needed "because I feel my integrity, character and honor have been called into question and, of course, I'm sure Phil feels the same way."

Gramm, who had predicted Doggett would not agree to a moratorium on criticism during campaign appearances and commercials, will consider the debate proposal early today, said spokesman Larry Neal.

Lloyd Doggett

"We plan to have a meeting (this) morning to assess Doggett's response to our proposal," Neal told The Associated Press, claiming that Doggett's promise to remove his ads has not been kept.

"At 10 p.m. I saw Doggett's latest ad on Channel 7, the CBS affiliate (KTBC), in Austin," Neal said. "I would suggest that almost immediately, Mr. Doggett has violated his own proposal.

"If he hasn't pulled them in his own hometown, it is unlikely that he has pulled them anywhere," Neal said. "That casts something of a cloud over his announced intentions."

James Carville, Doggett campaign chairman, countered that a reported anti-Doggett ad aired in Houston late Monday.

"They have the same problem as we do," Carville said. "When we issued our statement at 5 p.m. (Monday), it was too late to make 60 phone calls to stations...It is a logistics problem."

Carville emphasized that the agreement for a moratorium lasts only until 10 p.m. Friday, by which time Gramm must have agreed to a "a factual discussion on statements and campaign ads aired during the course of the general election campaign."

Gramm scheduled a press conference at 9 a.m. today at a San Antonio hotel and a mid-afternoon conference in Austin, Neal said.

Doggett demanded that his Republican opponent agree to have a "real debate", in a joint appearance. His office's statement said he would not, in his own appearances, mention Gramm by name or inference.

The Doggett statement said the appearance should be "at a time and place of his choosing, preferably in a Texas city where the greatest number of voters would have access to the dialogue through direct attendance and media coverage."

It also urged all his committees or individuals campaigning for him to "to refrain from any negative inference to Gramm by public statement, advertising or direct mail."

Phil Gramm

Gramm, "of course...will issue the same call," the Doggett statement said.

The Republican issued his challenge after reporters questioned negative statements and advertisements from both campaigns. Each candidate has exchanged barbs over allegedly unethical and inaccurate television ads.

Doggett said he wanted more than the televised debate the two candidates held in September and last week.

Doggett said a no-holds-barred discussion between the two in the waning weeks before the November election would mean a great deal.

"I really relish the opportunity to go in and discuss some of these things," he added.

He said he had accepted numerous debate invitations from such groups as the League of Women Voters, but said Gramm wouldn't agree to appear.

Doggett, campaigning earlier Monday in Abilene, said, "I'd be certainly willing to contemplate it — a mutual and verifiable halt to any reference to him if he has the courage to come and discuss all these things in a real debate."

Children queried about alleged sexual abuse

No charges have been filed against day care center employees

ARLINGTON (AP) — As state workers interviewed children enrolled at a day-care center about alleged sexual abuse, a number of parents shrugged off the allegations and entrusted their children to the Arlington facility.

Workers with the Department of Human Resources interviewed some 20 children enrolled at the La Petite Academy in this Dallas suburb Monday and said they would talk to another 20 students today.

"I figured they would be watched today better than ever. I wouldn't bring them if I didn't trust the school," said Lisa Riehl of her two sons.

State investigators Monday also interviewed about 10 current and former employees of the facility, where four female employees have been placed on leave of absences following implications of alleged sexual incidents with children.

No charges have been filed and there are no plans to close down the center, where 130 pupils are enrolled, authorities say.

Attendance was down, however, Monday. Parents said at least 30 children attended school Monday but some said they would eventually move their children to another center as soon as they could find one.

"We feel there is something there. We wouldn't be pursuing this unless we felt there was something to it," said Wayne Harigrove, who supervises the Fort Worth office of the state's child protective services unit, which is conducting the investigation.

About six investigators conducted interviews with children, most of which were videotaped and aided by anatomically detailed dolls, Hairgrove said.

City won't run out of water, official says

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — This South Texas coastal community, under mandatory water rationing since August and bypassed during thundershowers last week, has enough water to last through the summer of 1986, says a member of the city's Water Advisory Committee.

"I don't want to be in the position of saying the drought is over. It's not," said Hayden Head said. "But I do want to affirm the fact...that Corpus Christi is not going to run out of water."

Rainfall in the Nueces River basin has brought 10,000 acre feet of water daily into Lake Corpus Christi and Choke Canyon Reservoir, said Hayden Head, a member of the city's Water Advisory Committee.

Between 3 and 5 inches of rain fell in the watershed about two weeks ago, but officials said it was not enough to offset the affects of this year's drought.

Heavy rains that fell in San Patricio County last Friday, forcing 600 people to evacuate homes in low-lying neighborhoods, did not produce any rainfall in the watershed, officials said.

The city will continue to push for the drilling of wells near Lake Corpus Christi despite the blessing of recent showers, Head said.

He said 25 million gallons of well water would be flowing into the lake by Dec. 1.

The wells, combined with continued conservation, will stretch the existing water supply through August 1986 even if there is no additional rain in the watershed.

The drought in South Texas caused the city to impose mandatory water rationing on residents and businesses. Businesses and industrial plants are required to use 25 percent less water than they did during the same period last year.

Woman says she abucted baby after her miscarriage

AUSTIN (AP) — A 19-year-old woman told a state district judge she kidnapped a day-old infant from a hospital after hopes for her own child were shattered following a miscarriage.

Cynthia Leyendecker Dominguez pleaded guilty Monday to kidnapping the baby girl while posing as a nurse in the maternity ward of Brackenridge Hospital.

Mrs. Dominguez quietly told Judge Jon Wisser she kidnapped Genny and Jimmy Sepeda's infant on May 29 shortly after suffering a miscarriage.

A plea bargain reached earlier Monday recommends that Mrs. Dominguez be put on probation for 10 years and be sentenced to 30 days in the Travis County Jail. Sentencing is scheduled Nov. 2.

The Sepedas said they were pleased with the plea bargain, but admitted it was a compromise.

"We wanted her to know what she put us through," said Jimmy Sepeda, whose kidnapped daughter, Lauren Faith, was missing for 36 hours. "We thought she should get more than just probation."

Before the deal was reached, the Sepedas said six months in prison would be a fair sentence for the young woman. "We just don't want this to happen to anybody," said Jimmy Sepeda.

Debate 'winner'

Since picking a "winner" in a political debate truly is a matter of personal perception, both parties can — and are — claiming their candidate walked away with the roses in Sunday night's confrontation.

Don't believe either of them. In reality the only "winner" will be the candidate voters elect as President Nov. 6 and that outcome falls primarily to political organizers who are charged with getting out the vote on election day. It doesn't matter if one candidate or the other said all the "right" things in the debates if his political organization can't get voters to the polls.

There are good points and bad points which can be attributed to both President Reagan and Walter Mondale as a result of Sunday's debate. No, President Reagan did not do as well as his aides probably had hoped. But he did not appear as faltering as he had in the first debate and seemed to be in control of the situation this time. No, Mondale did not overpower the President this time. He needed a good showing and he came through in most regards although he wasn't as strong as in the first debate.

Essentially one could say it's likely neither candidate gained or lost a significant number of supporters as a result of that one particular event.

Of course that wouldn't have been the case had either man significantly altered his political philosophy and revealed the change of heart during the debate. But no surprises were forthcoming and as a result the candidates probably haven't appreciably changed their support levels of a couple of weeks ago.

President Reagan did seem to quell the age issue in lighthearted fashion and with his knowledgeable grasp of facts. In doing so, he surely answered the concerns of any Americans who might have been wavering on their support for him because of his age. And Mondale did hammer home at the leadership issue and appeared at ease throughout the debate. Still, to us, there was no clear-cut "winner" this time around.

For those Americans who simply can't wait until after election day to find out who their new leader will be, here's some mental calculations for amusement. Polls have shown that President Reagan enjoys widespread popularity among Americans, including a number of Democrats and those who class themselves Independents. Give him a plus. But Mondale did gain some support following the first presidential debate, probably more than the President gained. So he deserves a plus.

Still, a large number of those polled following the debates indicated the confrontations will not change the way they vote. So, essentially, Americans are back to square one.

To be sure, there are certain factors that will affect the election's outcome. For example, the weather on election day. Bad weather could keep voters away from the polls; good weather likely would mean a heavy voter turnout. Traditionally, heavy turnouts favor Democrats, but there's always the issue of ticket-splitting, which can heavily affect either party.

So who's ahead in this race? If we had to choose, we'd say President Reagan, but that's our political preference talking. The safest course is to wait until the day after.

Another View:

Soviet genocide

Those Americans who still think that Soviet leaders are sincerely seeking peace and disarmament should take a close look at what the Soviet Union is doing to the hapless people in Afghanistan.

In his latest report from Afghanistan, U.S. News & World Report correspondent Edward Girardet reports that the U.S.S.R. after failing to crush Afghanistan's freedom fighters by military might, is "now carrying out a bloody campaign of terror" against the civilian population.

While increasing its attacks on patriot strongholds, the Soviets are showing "an increasing readiness to turn guns and bombs against both villagers and refugee caravans fleeing for the border of Pakistan."

In one recent attack, writes Girardet, "Soviet fighter jets suddenly swooped down on a band of 500 Afghan civilians at Chamar Pass in the northeastern part of the country. The toll: At least 40 dead and scores injured, among them women and children."

"We have seen a lot of war," a refugee told Girardet, "But nothing as bad as this.... People were screaming and lying all around. Many had lost arms and legs. The tents were burning and there was an awful smell."

Entire valleys and farms have been turned into ghost settlements by this hideous Soviet strategy aimed at destroying the economic and social network which supports the resistance fighters.

On arriving at a town in the north Panjshir region, Girardet found that virtually every house in the village had been destroyed by the Soviets. On his last visit three years ago it had been a thriving village of 3,000. It now is just about half empty, a victim of Soviet genocide. This grisly story is being repeated in town after town.

Can Americans and others living in nations that are still free remain silent and continue to take no effective action to stop this slaughter of the innocents in Afghanistan? Just because these atrocities are taking place in a remote part of the world doesn't mean that they are any less awful than if they took place in a populous region such as Western Europe. President Reagan should rally the forces of the free world to bring pressure on the Soviets to stop this programmed mass killing of the people of Afghanistan.

Let's face it. The Soviet executioners are just as bad as Adolf Hitler. Rather than continually beg for them to withdraw their forces from that helpless nation, the free world had better start facing up to the need for providing much stronger support for the courageous Afghan patriots attempting to resist the blood bath the Soviets are inflicting on the Afghan people.

Khomeini planning 'surprise?'

WASHINGTON — Has the Ayatollah Khomeini given Ronald Reagan the evil eye? According to intelligence sources, the aged leader of Iran's Moslem fanatics believes he was responsible for Jimmy Carter's defeat four years ago. Now he wants to put the same spell on President Reagan.

Jack Anderson

His madness is not without its methods. Iran has trained, bankrolled and directed Shiite terrorists who are reportedly planning one or more bombing attacks on U.S. facilities in the Middle East before Election Day.

U.S. intelligence received what one State Department insider described as a "specific" warning of a pre-election strike just a few days ago.

As a result, several embassies in the region have been placed on full alert. They include those in Kuwait, Oman, Bahrain, Jordan and, of course, Beirut.

The flood of intelligence tips has created a problem, though. There have been so many threats of violence against U.S. embassies in recent weeks that some analysts suspect a deliberate disinformation campaign. The aim would be to cry "wolf!" so often that, when nothing happened, the American embassies would relax security and make a real attack easier.

"There is deliberate misinformation being given out to wear down our analysts," one source told my associate Lucette Lagnado.

The Shiite terrorists' long-range goal is nothing less than driving the United States out of the Middle East. Some administration critics charge that President Reagan has encouraged this dangerous dream by his failure to retaliate against the terrorists — or their sponsors — who were responsible for the two embassy attacks and the Marine massacre in Beirut. The critics say the terrorists have interpreted this as a sign that they can operate against Americans with impunity.

The latest intelligence warnings have been passed along to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which will soon issue its long-awaited report on the September embassy bombing. Partisans on the committee staff have been quarreling over the final wording of the report, but at this writing its main points include these:

— Contrary to some press reports, the decision to move the embassy from West Beirut to East Beirut was a sound one. Morale was poor at the old location because of constant tension; East Beirut seemed less vulnerable to terrorist attack.

— Replacement of the extra Marine security detail with Lebanese guards was a positive step. The Lebanese performed well, and a visible Marine presence outside the embassy building was considered an invitation to attack.

— The toughest criticism the report will make is that some of the most fundamental security measures had not been taken at the embassy. For example, while officials waited for concrete to set so steel gates could be put in position, a single truck parked across the entry road at the right place would have been enough to block the bomber's truck.

The Syrians, who have been drawing praise in recent months in administration circles, were less than helpful: They allowed terrorists groups to operate freely in Syrian-controlled areas of Lebanon. It's also possible that the Syrians let the truckload of explosives pass through their checkpoints.

STRICTLY PERSONAL: As the election looms, my mail has turned increasingly political. Here are some of the questions raised in the letters:

Will the Republicans retain control of the Senate?

Although more GOP seats are up for grabs, the Republicans are running better organized, more efficient, better-funded Senate campaigns. They have gathered an astonishing variety and depth of reliable information, for example, about their Democratic rivals. Because of the fine calibrations behind the GOP campaigns, I predict the Republicans will continue to control the Senate.

Which are the key Senate races?

The battle for control of the Senate will be determined by 13 races. I've seen confidential campaign documents which show that the Republicans are zeroing in on the Senate races in Arkansas, Illinois, Iowa, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Texas and West Virginia.

Which are the key House races?

The documents pinpoint 65 district races, as follows: Alabama, 1st and 6th districts; Arizona, 5th District; Arkansas, 2nd District; Colorado, 3rd District; Connecticut, 3rd, 5th and 6th districts; Delaware, at large; Georgia, 4th District; Illinois, 17th, 19th and 22nd districts; Indiana, 3rd and 8th districts.

Iowa, 5th District; Maryland, 2nd District; Kansas, 3rd District; Massachusetts, 10th District; Michigan, 5th, 6th and 10th districts; Minnesota, 1st and 7th districts; Mississippi, 2nd and 4th districts; Missouri, 2nd and 9th districts; Nevada, 1st District; New Mexico, 1st and 3rd districts; New York, 15th, 30th and 34th districts; North Carolina, 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, 9th and 11th districts.

CHARLEY REESE

Democrats too radical for U.S.

Walter Mondale's campaign aides — those whom Atlanta Mayor Andy Young called "smart ass white boys" — profess to be mystified by President Reagan's support. There's no mystery. The National Democratic Party has lurched so far to the left it has abandoned a majority of Americans.

Charley Reese

The invasion of Grenada is only one example. An overwhelming majority of Americans supported the President. They saw that Americans were in danger and they understood that Cuba and the Soviet Union were establishing another armed communist outpost in our own backyard.

But the Democrats didn't see it that way. Here's a sampling of how Democratic liberals reacted:

Rep. Pete Stark, D-Calif.: "It is essential now that the President has shown his true colors that the Congress take control of the situation ... and bring this insane Reagan foreign policy back into line ..."

Rep. Ted Weiss, D-N.Y.: "There is no way of distinguishing what we are doing in Grenada and what (the Soviets) have done in Afghanistan ... In ordering the invasion of Grenada, Ronald Reagan has adopted the tactic of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor as the new American standard of behavior."

Rep. Don Bonker, D-Wash.: "Committing U.S. troops in Grenada is shocking and it flies in the face of the President's condemnation of Soviet interference in other countries."

Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass.: "Mr. Speaker, gunboat diplomacy has a new king. Move over, Teddy Roosevelt."

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich.: "There is no legitimate reason for the United States to seek to overthrow other governments we don't like."

Rev. Jesse Jackson: "We ought to be outraged ... I call for an immediate cessation of military action against Grenada and reparations to the Grenadian people for the damages caused by this invasion."

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo.: "Can we ignore the international reaction when U.S. intervention invokes in the minds of the world and the region a checkered history of U.S. involvement and gunboat diplomacy in Latin America?"

Andy Young: "What we have is an aging and failing President. We shouldn't risk American lives for saving face."

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif.: "The American invasion is against the law. I have written to the attorney general pointing out that it is his responsibility to enforce the law."

Rep. Peter Kostmayer, D-Pa.: "The internal revolution was not directed against American students and the fact that we are there to restore democracy, as Reagan stated, is ridiculous."

Walter Mondale: "They moved ahead of the facts, and in violation of the most fundamental of all principles: nonintervention of one state in the affairs of another ... it undermines our ability to effectively criticize what the Soviets have done in their brutal intervention in Afghanistan, in Poland, and elsewhere."

Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D-Ind.: "Aside from making the Russians look better in Afghanistan, and making our Constitution look worse in the United States, what is it (the invasion) for?"

Weiss, joined by Democratic Congressmen John Conyers, Julian Dixon, Mervyn Dymally, Henry Gonzalez, Mickey Leland, and Parren Mitchell filed a resolution of impeachment against President Reagan for committing the high crime and misdemeanor of liberating the people of Grenada from a bloody communist dictatorship.

As you can see, the radical Democrats are out of touch, not only with a majority of Americans but with the majority of Grenadians who greeted Americans with pure joy and gratitude.

The majority of Americans are willing to use force to protect American lives and to protect American interests, especially in our own backyard. The majority of Americans care more about American lives and American interests than they do about the opinions of leftwing critics of America in other countries. The majority of Americans understand that regardless of propaganda to the contrary, world leaders respect a nation which will defend its interests and have contempt for a nation which lacks the will to do it.

The national Democratic Party's dominant members are not just out in left field; they are out of the ballpark. Most Americans are fed up with politicians who beat up on America and make apologies for every communist thug who comes down the pike.

Mondale is in political trouble, not so much because Americans love Ronald Reagan, but because they don't like Mondale and the people around him.

Heroin help justifiable

On April 20, 1983, my mother, Joe Francis Thompson Martin, died of cancer. In a sense she was lucky. She was blessed with compassionate, caring doctors and nurses who did everything within their power to make her death as painless and comfortable as possible.

Everything within their ability. I am disgusted and shocked to say that, due to a recent ruling, this ability is now severly limited. Our doctors will have to tell their patients, "You are terminally ill. We'll try to make you comfortable, but the drugs that can ease your pain are illegal and we aren't allowed to give them to you."

Yes, heroin and other controlled substances are dangerous in the wrong hands, but a terminally ill patient has no hope for survival, only hope that death will ease his agony. Addiction is irrelevant to someone who has a short time to live anyway. How can we deny the dying a painkiller simply because some junkie could get hold of it, or because it's illegal on the street?

I would like to count the nights my mother walked the floors and screamed with the pain in her diseased bones; her husband and children were forced to look on and helpless to do anything. Please, write to your representatives and anyone else with the authority to change this law before you are forced to watch a loved one die a slow, ugly, agonizing death. To deny these sufferers release is, in the mildest of terms, torture.

Marijuana has been legalized for glaucoma and chemotherapy patients. What's the difference?

If we cannot promise life, we can at least promise painless peace. I'm sure it's already too late for victims around the country. It's not too late for everybody.

Band supports football team

This is in answer to R.B. Estes's letter that appeared Sunday, Oct. 14, concerning the Lee High Rebel Band supporting the football team.

How does Mr. Estes expect the band to play when the Abilene Cooper Cougar band played constantly, never giving the Rebel band a chance to play? Not only did the Cougar band hog-up all the playing time, they also had all the Rebel band music, and played all the songs that our band would have played given the chance.

The Rebel band is indeed a superior band with a great director and assistant director who devote many long hours to making this band what it is. You cannot have a great band without hard work and discipline. The Rebel band has brought Lee High School many honors including 14 consecutive "Sweepstakes Awards," and being chosen "Outstanding Band" at the Mountain States Music Festival in Tempe, Ariz., this past May.

The band does indeed support the football team and school. They are a very big part of the school spirit. They demonstrated this at the Permian game recently, when after performing in a driving rainstorm these students got off their warm buses to go back to the stands soaking wet and cold to play the entire second half to cheer the team on.

When Mr. Estes speaks of discipline, I believe that if discipline was enforced in the home the teachers would not have a problem in the classroom, giving them more time to do what they are paid to do and that is to teach our children.

Along with the football team, Rebelettes, Drill Team and all other groups, the band also needs community support. This is the only reward these students get.

Let's hear more from Lee band

It was a pleasure to hear the Cooper band play throughout the football game on a recent Friday night.

I am sure it was a humiliation for the Lee band to have to sit and listen to them while not being able to play but just a few selections. Plus it does not add to the band for drum majors to lose their tempers.

Come on, the band is a major part of the football program; let's hear more of them.

With President Reagan standing by, Nancy Reagan gives a hug to Jeff Keith during the president's departure from Kansas City Municipal Airport Monday morning, following Sunday evening's presidential debate with Walter Mondale. Keith, of Fairfield, Conn., was in Kansas City during his one-legged run across the country to raise money for the American Cancer Society.

Ferraro heads to Reagan's home state

NEW YORK (AP) — Geraldine Ferraro is heading into President Reagan's western stronghold two weeks before Election Day in hopes of cracking his grip on the region and spurring the Democratic ticket toward an upset victory.

The Democratic vice presidential nominee was leaving her New York home today for an appearance in Little Rock, Ark., before flying on to California where she will campaign in at least eight cities through Thursday.

"I don't want anyone for one minute to think that we're not going to win this election, because we are," Ms. Ferraro told a meeting of Baptist ministers Monday in the Harlem section of New York.

However, she acknowledged that her running mate, Walter F. Mondale, still trails Reagan and that it will take a big turnout of traditional Democratic voters for the Mondale-Ferraro ticket to be successful.

"If only 50 percent of the working people in this country vote for the Mondale-Ferraro ticket, we lose. It's as simple as that," she told a gathering of about 700 union supporters in the Queens district she has represented in the House for three terms.

"This election is not an election about two personalities. It's not even an election about two parties. It's a referendum on all the things that I've just spoken to you about."

She told her audience, "If you go into that (voting) booth remember that when you pull the lever, if you're voting for the continuation of the covert war in Nicaragua, then you'll vote for Ronald Reagan. But if you want to end that war, you'll vote for Fritz Mondale."

She added that voters who care about the environment, federal budget deficits and the economy will vote for Mondale.

"If you don't care about those things, then vote for Ronald Reagan," Ms. Ferraro said.

In Harlem, Ms. Ferraro said Reagan administration cuts in programs that affect women, children, elderly and the poor "have been an absolute disaster for black Americans."

She added, "Blacks and women and disadvantaged Americans have only themselves to blame if they stay home and let Ronald Reagan be president again."

Campaign strategists said part of Ms. Ferraro's effort in the next two weeks will be aimed at getting out the vote among Democratic constituencies such as labor and minorities.

"Certainly we're going to try to motivate our supporters to go out and vote," said John Sasso, Ms. Ferraro's campaign manager.

Last week, Ms. Ferraro was in Los Angeles and Sacramento and now she is spending all or part of at least three of the remaining 14 days before the election in California.

"We feel we can win California," Sasso said, adding, "If we can win California, Pennsylvania and New York, we can win this election."

Reagan, though, has never lost an election in California, dating back to the time he was governor of the state. And he continues to maintain a lead there, according to a variety of major public opinion polls.

But Democrats feel that they may have a chance if those who supported Colorado Sen. Gary Hart, who defeated Mondale in the California presidential primary, will now back the Mondale-Ferraro ticket. Hart supporters are among the groups Ms. Ferraro is courting.

Meanwhile, Ms. Ferraro continues to be plagued by news accounts about the business dealings of her husband, real estate broker John Zaccaro.

Ferraro's campaign issued a statement Monday saying that a Philadelphia Inquirer story on Sunday and other reports associating Zaccaro with organized crime figures "leave an impression that is wrong, altogether inaccurate and offensive."

Mondale: Reagan detached, remote, uninformed

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Well behind in the polls, Walter F. Mondale is entering the stretch run of his presidential campaign with a harsh refrain designed to last until Election Day — that Ronald Reagan is "the most detached, most remote, most uninformed president in modern history."

"We cannot permit and will not tolerate a president who does not know what he must know to protect and serve this country," the Democratic nominee said Monday on a day that stretched from sun-up in Kansas City, Mo., to nearly midnight in Youngstown, Ohio.

In between, Mondale addressed crowds in Philadelphia and Paramus, N.J., and spoke to a Liberal Party gathering in New York, with a message that varied little.

The millions of Americans who watched Sunday's campaign debate, he said, "saw a president who cannot discuss any major issue without making a major mistake ... they saw a commander-in-chief who is not commanding and who isn't a chief."

Reagan is the "most detached, most remote, most uninformed president in modern history," Mondale said, attacking his opponent in terms harsher than he used during the televised debate itself.

Mondale's aides insisted during the day that the president's lead is not insurmountable. But if Mondale's aides seemed euphoric on the day after the first campaign debate — the Oct. 7 encounter which many polls showed the Democrat won — they were businesslike on Monday.

Mondale himself said the president performed better in some respects than in the first debate. And unlike the day after the first debate, no one in the traveling party suggested that Reagan's age was a continuing issue.

The Democratic nominee, who trails Reagan by between 9 points and 25 points in the public opinion polls, was campaigning today in Ohio, Michigan and Illinois, states in the industrial Midwest where he must do well if he is to defeat Reagan on Nov. 6.

Even Mondale's own polls show him trailing Reagan by 10 to 12 points nationwide, according to aides. They say the strategy for the final two weeks of the campaign is to hammer away at Reagan as a remote leader who has not mastered the facts he needs to know and will not accept responsibility for his own policies.

Gone is the rhetoric of September, in which Mondale flayed Reagan at every turn for causing record budget deficits and trumpeted a deficit-reduction plan that would raise taxes by $85 billion. Aides concede privately that this approach was doing little for Mondale.

Instead, they decided to attack Reagan on leadership, and say the president made enough unguarded statements during Sunday's 90-minute televised debate to give Mondale the ammunition for a two-week barrage leading to Election Day.

Reagan team sets sights on victory

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — An air of barely restrained jubilance buoys President Reagan's campaign as the front-running incumbent moves into the final phase of his carefully paced re-election drive.

Fresh from his final face-to-face confrontation with Democratic challenger Walter Mondale, Reagan said, "We're entering the home stretch of the campaign, and we've set our sights on victory."

That contagious confidence was evident aboard Air Force One, where the president's wife, Nancy Reagan, resurrected a daily ritual of the 1980 campaign, bowling an orange down the aisle of the plane on takeoff.

Then, exhibiting a cheerful openness that had become a rarity in the past four years, she stopped to chat with reporters aboard the presidential aircraft about what she pronounced was her husband's "great" performance in Kansas City.

But when asked if Reagan's showing in his second debate with Mondale had sealed the president's victory in the election still two weeks away, Mrs. Reagan said she, like her husband, is "superstitious" and would not claim a triumph prematurely.

She left the plane at its first stop of the day, Palmdale, Calif., to pursue her own schedule in the state.

But California Gov. George Deukmejian kept up the beat, introducing Reagan to a hangar full of defense contract employees as "the man who struck out the Louisville Slugger last night in Kansas City." Mondale's staff had tagged their champion with the name of the famous baseball bat after the challenger won the first debate in Louisville, Ky.

Reagan, after touring a B-1B bomber plant in Palmdale and attacking Mondale as a candidate of weakness, coasted through campaign stops in San Diego and Medford, Ore., where crowds of supporters cheered his stock lines celebrating the U.S. landing in Grenada one year ago and criticizing Mondale's tax increase proposal.

Sporting a new American flag lapel pin, Reagan continued to hit hard at Mondale, calling his opponent "more ready to be our problem than our president" and predicting a Democratic victory would bring back "torpur, timidity and taxes."

But they were lines dusted off and stitched together from old Reagan speeches, and the campaign tried out no new rhetoric as it coasted through a long but hardly frenetic day.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters the meticulously organized campaign, which has been producing texts of Reagan's speeches well in advance — always with some new rhetorical twist — would dispense with advance copies for now.

Reagan, he said, just wants to toy with his standard stump speech for a while, using the lines he has been polishing for weeks.

In contrast to Mondale's marathon run toward Election Day, Speakes predicted Reagan would be on the road only about half the time between now and Nov. 6.

But the spokesman and other aides denied they were coasting on their lead and insisted Reagan would continue to run, as the president puts it, "one vote behind."

Dentist sentenced in murder case

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A dentist has been sentenced to 15 years to life in prison for convictions of second-degree murder in the deaths of three women who had received massive doses of anesthetics in his clinic.

Dr. Tony Protopappas, 39, was ordered Monday to serve three concurrent sentences of 15 years to life. He was convicted in July in the deaths of Kim Andreassen, 23, of Huntington Beach; Cathryn Jones, 31, of Costa Mesa; and Patricia Craven, 13, of Sacramento.

Defense attorneys argued during the trial that Ms. Andreassen and Ms. Jones died of existing medical conditions, and that Ms. Craven had been released against Protopappas' orders while under the influence of anesthetics.

Mother sues over child's rape

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A $2.5 million lawsuit against the city school system and a former teacher convicted of statutory rape for having a lesbian affair with a teen-ager charges the schools with breach of contract.

Betty Amos claims school officials had received complaints from parents about sexual relationships between Highland Heights Junior High School teacher Marlene Moore and other students, and should have protected her daughter.

The suit filed Friday names Ms. Moore, the city and former principal Harry Brunson as defendants. Ms. Moore is serving a two-year jail term on her June conviction of statutory rape.

Flynt faces jail term or $250 fine

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sex magazine publisher Larry Flynt faces six months in jail or a $250 fine when he is sentenced Dec. 12 on his conviction of wearing a military decoration unlawfully.

Flynt pleaded guilty Monday in exchange for the government dropping charges of desecrating the U.S. flag and assault on a federal officer, stemming from a Nov. 17 incident when an FBI agent arrested him for wearing the flag and a Purple Heart when he appeared to pay a fine for contempt.

Flynt faced contempt charges after he refused to say where he got a tape recording that allegedly contained a threat by a government informant against automaker John De Lorean, who later was acquitted of drug charges.

Former Boy Scout leader sentenced

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — A 25-year-old former Boy Scout leader has been sentenced to 2½ years in jail after pleading guilty to raping a 15-year-old member of his troop and sexually assauting a 12-year-old scout.

Donald Sands also was sentenced Monday to two years probation and given a five- to seven-year suspended prison term.

Sands' 12-year-old victim currently faces charges of sexually assaulting a younger girl, in part because of his earlier involvement with the scoutmaster, said Hampden County District Attorney Matthew J. Ryan Jr.

Reagan's remarks interpreted

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan did not mean to suggest in his debate with Walter Mondale that the only alternative to Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos is a communist regime in that country, the State Department says.

Spokesman John Hughes, departing Monday from department policy of not interpreting Reagan's remarks, said "I don't think the president was narrowing the situation that far. I think there is certainly recognition on everybody's part that there are other forces working for democratic change in the Philippines."

Reagan had said Sunday when asked what could be done to prevent the Philippines from becoming another Nicaragua, "I know there are things that do not look good to us from the standpoint of democratic rights, but what is the alternative? It is a large communist movement to take over the Philippines."

Company presents test findings

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Motors Corp. has presented a federal judge with a movie and statistics it hopes will show the rigors of company durability tests during which brake problems occurred in the automaker's 1980 X-cars.

Charles Brady, a GM vice president, testified in U.S. District Court Monday that the company's year-long, 66,000-mile durability tests on the X-cars were "much more severe" than what even the most demanding drivers require of their cars.

The automaker is defending itself against government charges that it sold the 1980 X-cars even though it allegedly knew their brakes were unsafe. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration claims that rear brake lock-up problems that GM detected on the durability tests should have been a warning that there was a potential safety problem for consumers.

'Losses in Grenada fully reported'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger says American losses in the invasion of Grenada have been fully reported, and claims that more U.S. deaths were concealed are "totally wrong."

The official U.S. casualty total, as announced by the Pentagon, came to 19 deaths, including one man who died in a military hospital months after the Oct. 25, 1983 invasion.

Two former military intelligence officers, Richard A. Gabriel and Paul L. Savage, have written that at least 10 more U.S. servicemen died in the invasion during a secret advance attack, according to newspaper reports.

Asked about this, Weinberger said Monday that "everybody who was killed in that Grenada operation was reported ... The full report has been made and there were no lives lost in that operation that weren't reported."

Official discusses Angolan plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department says a senior department official held "constructive" talks with senior Angolan officials to discuss Angolan proposals for bringing peace to southern Africa.

Frank Wisner, the deputy assistant secretary of state, returned to Washington from a trip to Africa last Thursday, John Hughes, the State Department spokesman, said Monday.

He said Wisner held a series of discussions with senior Angolan government officials, which "focused on Angolan proposals for a regional settlement based on U.N. Security Council resolution 435."

The Reagan administration is trying to arrange a withdrawal of Cuban troops form Angola as part of an overall settlement that includes South Africa's agreement to a U.N. formula for giving independence to Namibia, which South Africa now controls.

'Nicaraguan manual advised neutralization'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The CIA has told Congress that all copies of its manual for Nicaraguan rebels contained advice about "neutralization" of government officials. The admission came one day after President Reagan asserted that pages dealing with assassination were excised.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., who attended a three-hour CIA briefing of the Senate Intelligence Committee on Monday, said that while some deletions were made in the 90-page manual, the "term 'neutralization' was in all the documents."

Nunn said the word "neutralize" is subject to various interpretations, but added that when read in context, "it could lead one to the conclusion that the president's policy (barring assassinations) was being or could possibly be breached."

During the presidential debate Sunday night, Reagan said CIA officials had deleted a number of pages that dealt with assassination of Nicaraguan government officials, although adding that 12 copies of an original with such references "some way ... got out down there."

THE PRESIDENT'S debate statement and the CIA's admission that the section on "neutralization" remained in the book mean that approval of that part of the manual reached as high as CIA headquarters in Langley, Va. One intelligence source, who spoke only on condition he not be identified, said the manual apparently was reviewed by middle-level CIA officials at Langley.

A week ago, The Associated Press reported the existence of the controversial manual, and four days later, Reagan ordered investigations by the CIA and the three-member President's Intelligence Oversight Board, which he appoints. Democrats demanded an independent probe.

Monday evening, Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., intelligence committee vice chairman, complained that "the Central Intelligence Agency has still not told us who ordered this manual, who wrote it and who approved it."

Nunn and Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., the only two committee members who attended the CIA briefing, said the CIA's internal investigation into the production of the manual was continuing and that many questions remained.

Wallop said he saw no indication of "foot-dragging," adding that tracing the decision-making process on the manual involved "a complicated paper trail."

BUT ON the key question of whether the CIA-produced manual encouraged assassinations, Nunn said:

"There were deletions before some printings were made and before some distribution was made, but all of the documents presumably ... had some of what would be called questionable to some and to others offensive language, including language relating to so-called 'neutralization.'"

Nunn's description of the CIA's briefing appeared to support an account from Edgar Chamorro, propaganda chief for the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, who said that deletions were made in the original manual to remove references to hiring professional criminals for "selective jobs" and creating a "martyr" by arranging the death of a rebel supporter.

But Chamorro said the revised manual still contained advice on the "selective use of violence" to "neutralize" Nicaraguan government officials and on coercing Nicaraguans into carrying out assignments against their will.

In an interview with The AP on Saturday, Chamorro said about 200 copies of the original manual were distributed last fall although most were later recalled.

IN THE DEBATE, Reagan said the original manual was the work of a CIA contract employee in Central America, but that when it was turned over to his CIA superior, "a number of pages were excised by that agency head there ... and he sent it on up here to CIA, where more pages were excised before it was printed."

Reagan said the CIA official in charge in Central America had "recognized that what was in that manual was direct contravention of my own executive order in December 1981 that we would have nothing to do with regard to political assassinations."

Wallop also noted that none of the versions specifically used the word "assassination," and he disputed some members of Congress who have claimed that the manual is proof that the Reagan administration is trying to overthrow the Nicaraguan government.

Court grounds airline

HONOLULU (AP) — An appeals court on Monday reinstated a ban on all flights by South Pacific Island Airways, which was accused by the Federal Aviation Administration of flying one of its planes too close to the Soviet Union, an airline attorney said.

In a one-line ruling, an emergency panel of the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco denying the airline's petition to stay the FAA's order while the carrier appealed, said airline attorney John Chanin

The FAA revoked the airline's operating certificate Oct. 13, citing many instances when the carrier broke federal regulations, including a polar charter flight that came within 50 miles of Soviet territory on Sept. 29.

The airline, headquartered in Honolulu, denied the allegation, and convinced a federal judge on Oct. 16 to lift the FAA's order until the emergency panel made a ruling.The airline argued the FAA's order was arbitrary and capricious.

After the appellate court's ruling, the FAA began contacting South Pacific employees to tell them the airline was again grounded, Chanin said.

Firefighter Robert Weis, right, uses an icepack to cool his face before going back to fight a fire at a suburban Baltimore furniture store in which two firemen died Monday and a third firefighter was missing and presumed dead.

Fire kills firefighters, injures seven others

DUNDALK, Md. (AP) — Workers sifting "foot-by-foot" through the rubble of a furniture store today found the body of a third firefighter who died in a raging five-alarm blaze that injured seven others, authorities said.

James Kimbel, 25, had been missing since Monday, when the two-story building collapsed, killing firefighters Henry Rayner Jr., 32, and 38-year-old Walter Bawroski, whose bodies were recovered Monday night.

"It's just a pick-and-go, foot-by-foot process," said Battalion Chief Ralph Nelson.

Police said Monday the firefighters apparently were trapped when the roof of the building collapsed. But Nelson later said investigators were not sure if the roof collapsed or the floor gave way.

The blaze began about 1:30 p.m. at Shiller's Furniture and Appliance Store, apparently sparked by a work crew's cutting torches as they removed a large, metal sign from the roof, authorities said.

Deputy Fire Chief Edward Bartenfelter said the fire was contained about 2¼ hours later.

The most seriously injured of the seven firefighters, Stanley Kuklinski, was admitted in fair condition to the burn unit at Francis Scott Key Medical Center in Baltimore. Three firefighters were treated in the emergency room and three had been treated for minor injuries and released, Kathy Schuerholz, the hospital's night nursing supervisor, said Monday night.

The heat from the blaze, which sent flames as high as 200 feet, melted the vinyl siding on houses 75 feet away, forced the evacuation of neighboring homes and blocked traffic for 12 blocks.

All three victims were paid career firefighters and residents of the Dundalk-North Point Village area.

Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White acknowledges rare fan support Sunday night after he led the Cowboys back from a three-touchdown deficit to beat New Orleans 30-27.

White expected to get QB nod

DALLAS (AP) — The envelope, please. And the starting quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys in the second half of their National Football League season is....

Once again Coach Tom Landry will wait until his weekly press conference today to announce whether young and troubled Gary Hogeboom or veteran Danny White is his No. 1 quarterback.

No less an authority than Tex Schramm, managing general partner of the team, believes Landry will name White to start against the Indianpolis Colts this Sunday.

"I have a hunch it will be White," Schramm said on his weekly radio show Monday night.

The Cowboys have an unsettled quarterback situation despite the biggest comeback in their history Sunday night, defeating New Orleans 30-27 in overtime to move into a tie with Washington and St. Louis for the National Conference Eastern Division leadership.

"I don't make decisions on what happened the night of the game," said Tom Landry. "I have to look at the films and the overall situation."

It was the third straight game that the veteran White had replaced Hogeboom, who was named Dallas' No. 1 quarterback at the start of the season.

White came in with Dallas down 27-6 and threw a 12-yard scoring pass to Mike Renfro to cap an 88-yard march. He also took the team on the game-winning drive in overtime capped by Rafael Septien's 41-yard field goal.

"Danny put the points on the board," said Landry. "He has been a real class act for this team this season and he really deserved what happened."

Never in Dallas' 24-year history had the Cowboys come from so far behind to win in the fourth quarter.

White refused to say anything bad about Hogeboom's performance, which included Saint linebacker Dennis Winston's 43-yard touchdown return of an interception.

"This was a big game for me and it meant a lot to my confidence," said White. "I still wouldn't say I deserved to start. I know what Gary is going through, and it's tough.

"Like I said a long time ago, I didn't deserve to lose the job and I don't think he deserves to lose it because of the way he has played."

Hogeboom has had four miscues returned for a touchdowns this year on a fumble and three interceptions. He has four touchdown passes.

Asked if he felt he still deserved to start, Hogeboom said, "I don't make those decisions; it's up to Coach Landry."

Hogeboom bruised his right hand on the interception return.

"I couldn't have played," he said. "I couldn't even grip the football."

White took Dallas to three NFC title games but his teammates became disgruntled and openly sided with Hogeboom before the season started.

Huskies stay atop AP poll

Associated Press

Washington, Oklahoma and Texas had close calls over the weekend but held on to the top three spots in the Associated Press college football poll while South Carolina cracked the Top Ten for the first time in its history.

Boston College, Southern Methodist and Kentucky all suffered their first setbacks of the season and dropped in today's rankings. BC and SMU, Nos. 4 and 6 last week, slipped to 11th and 14th, respectively, while Kentucky's 36-10 loss to LSU cost the Wildcats a Top Twenty ranking.

Washington, which became the No. 1 team last week, was hard-pressed to beat Oregon 17-10. The Huskies, who managed only 109 yards in offense, received 45 of 60 first-place votes and 1,161 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. Nebraska is the only team to be ranked No. 1 for more than two weeks this season. The Cornhuskers held the top spot for three weeks.

Oklahoma, which trailed Washington 1,135-1,072 a week ago, closed the gap, although the Sooners needed a field goal and touchdown in the final period to turn back Iowa State 12-10. They received 7½ first-place votes compared to 10½ last week but totaled 1,121½ points.

Texas blew most of a 21-point lead and held on to defeat Arkansas 24-18 when time ran out with the losers on the 3-yard line. The Longhorns received 3½ first-place ballots and 1,096½ points.

Nebraska, a 24-7 winner over Colorado, moved up from fifth place to fourth with 980 points while Brigham Young jumped from seventh to fifth with three first-place votes and 926 points after downing Air Force 30-25. Ohio State rose from eighth to sixth with 842 points by defeating Michigan State 23-20.

The other first-place ballot went to LSU, which clobbered Kentucky and vaulted from 10th to seventh with 829 points. Miami climbed from ninth to eighth with 752 points by downing Pitt 27-7.

South Carolina made the Top Ten for the first time by rallying to beat Notre Dame 36-32. The Gamecocks, whose 6-0 start is their best ever and the first time they have ever won six consecutive games in one season, received 719 points. Oklahoma State, 12th last week, rounded out the Top Ten with 613 points after routing Kansas 47-10.

Boston College dropped out of the Top Ten by losing to West Virginia 21-20 and SMU fell following a 29-20 upset at the hands of Houston.

This week's Second Ten consists of Boston College, Auburn, Georgia, SMU, Florida State, Florida, Iowa, West Virginia, Penn State and Southern California.

Last week, it was South Carolina, Oklahoma State, Auburn, Georgia, Florida State, Kentucky, Florida, Iowa, West Virginia, Penn State and West Virginia.

Browns give axe to Rutigliano

CLEVELAND (AP) — This was one of the more polite firings in pro football history.

"I've asked my friend and associate, Sam Rutigliano, to step aside as head coach of the Cleveland Browns," Browns' owner Art Modell said Monday, promoting defensive coordinator Marty Schottenheimer to his first head coaching job in the National Football League.

Despite the Browns' 1-7 record following Sunday's 12-9 loss to the Cincinnati Bengals and Rutigliano's career record of 47-50, Modell said he agonized over the decision to fire Rutigliano at mid-season.

"Sam Rutigliano represents what I consider to be quality, integrity and character. There are very few like him in pro sports today," he said.

Rutigliano, 52, is also a vice president of the team and has a contract that runs through 1988. Modell said Rutigliano was welcome to remain with the Browns' front office, but Rutigliano said he will wait until January to decide about his future.

"I'm a football coach," Rutigliano said. "I've been a football coach all my life and that's what I'd like to do. But I really need some time to reflect.

"I think I was treated fairly," he said. "The only advice I have for Marty is, make sure you can kick field goals."

Schottenheimer, 41, in his fifth year with the Browns, has transformed the Browns' once-weak defense into the top-rated unit in the American Football Conference and the second-rated overall in the NFL. Schottenheimer previously was a defensive coach with the Detroit Lions and New York Giants.

Modell said he considered no other candidates for the job. He gave Schottenheimer a contract running through 1986.

"I have confidence in this man because his record as a defensive coordinator is the best in the AFC and second-best in the NFL," Modell said.

The two-year-plus deal was offered to Schottenheimer because "a coach coming on in midterm requires a term in which he can put his imprint on the team," Modell said.

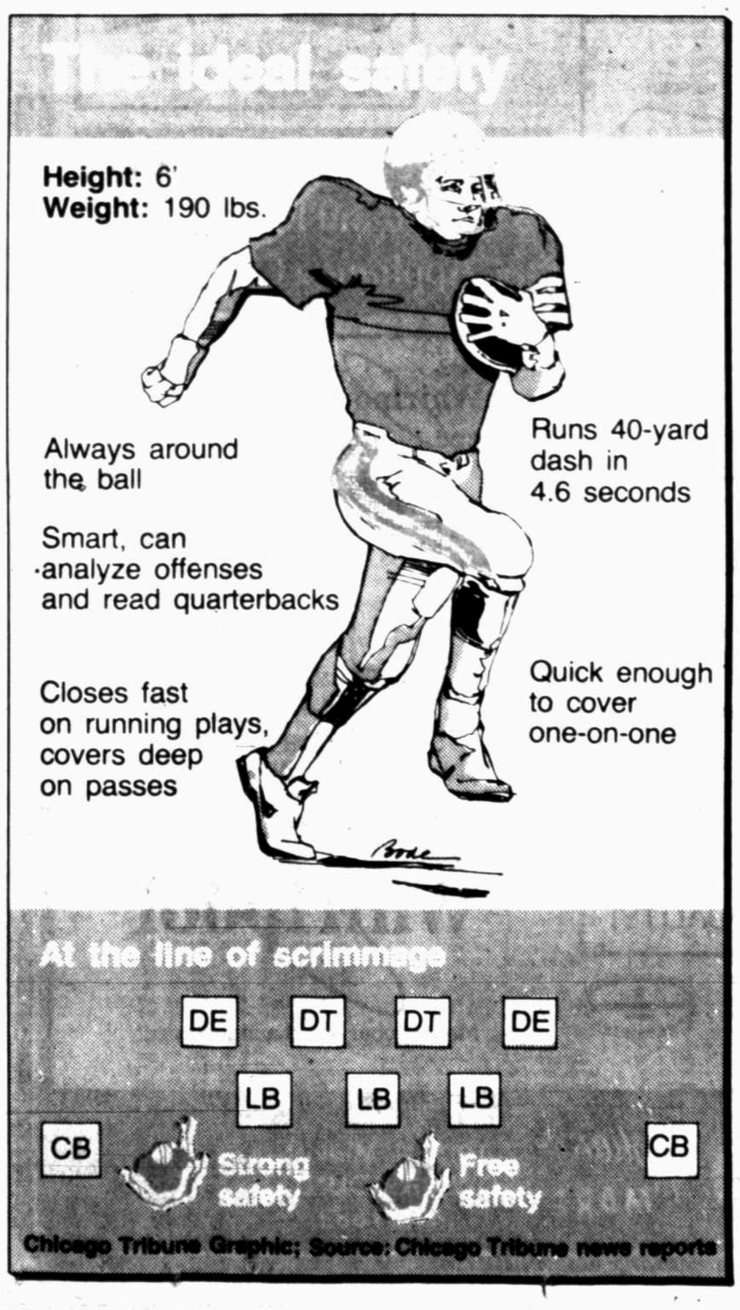

"As I perceive it, this is fresh start. We've got to get this organization back to winning ways," said Schottenheimer. "I wanted to become a head coach in the National Football League, but I'm sorry it had to happen this way."

Schottenheimer said he is a "big fan" of Browns' quarterback Paul McDonald and indicated there would be no major changes made immediately. McDonald became the starter this season because of the departure of Brian Sipe to the United States Football League.

"Anytime you find a situation where the quarterback is in transition ... you have some problems," Schottenheimer said. "But Paul's thrown for over 300 yards a couple of times. There are signs he is coming around."

Schottenheimer said he plans to make no changes in the Browns' highly rated defense, but he will discuss with the team's offensive coaches this week whether adjustments are needed in the offensive unit, which has averaged fewer than 13 points a game.

Dickerson rams Falcons over late hits in 24-10 win

ATLANTA (AP) — Eric Dickerson was fuming.

"They really hacked me off. They have no class," the Los Angeles running back said of the Atlanta Falcons' defenders after helping the Rams to a 24-10 National Football League victory Monday night in a nationally televised contest.

Dickerson, who ran for 142 yards on 25 carries, including a 10-yard touchdown run, charged the Falcons with hitting late on numerous occasions and was particularly incensed at Atlanta defensive back Tom Pridemore, for an alleged tardy hit on only his second carry of the night.

"It was No. 27, I don't know his name. I think he wanted to do a head stand or a hand stand on my back after I had been down what seemed like five minutes," he said. "It was right there on the sideline and a referee was right there and said he didn't see it. I think somebody needs glasses."

He said that wasn't the only cheap shot, but "that's the way they play. I guess that's what the coaches down in Atlanta teach them.

"I'm not saying it's dirty, but I don't think it's real good football. If they want to play that way, they ought to go to Russia," said Dickerson.

The 6-foot-3, 220-pound speedster, however, didn't let it bother him in his performance, scoring the Rams' first touchdown on his 10-yard sweep after only 1:03 of the second quarter before letting Henry Ellard do the rest.

Ellard, the NFL's leading punt returner, who helped set up Dickerson's score with a 29-yard punt return, caught a 9-yard TD pass from quarterback Jeff Kemp only 1:08 later, then closed out the 21-point second period with an explosive 69-yard score on a punt return with 39 seconds left before intermission.

Mike Lansford closed out the Rams' scoring with an 18-yard field goal in the fourth period. The Falcons, who had beaten Los Angeles two weeks ago 30-28, could manage only a 39-yard field goal from Mick Luckhurst in the second quarter and scored in the closing minute on an 18-yard pass from Steve Bartkowski to Stacey Bailey.

Ellard, a second-year player from Fresno State, who suffered a bruised thigh and sat out the second half, said his punt return TD "wasn't the end of the game" for the Falcons "but, it probably was a big letdown."

In addition to the offensive performances by Dickerson and Ellard, Rams' Coach John Robinson said the key difference from the loss two weeks ago was the defense "which just played better."

"That's two weeks in a row that we've basically kept a team from scoring until the game was out of reach," said Robinson. The Rams defeated New Orleans 28-10 a week ago and now have won four of five games for a 5-3 record.

The Falcons, whose offense has been missing the last two games, losing a 19-7 decision to the New York Giants a week ago, managed only 217 yards against the Rams, 73 in the second half, and dropped to 3-5.

"We've got to start thinking about stringing some wins together," said Atlanta quarterback Steve Bartkowski, who hit on 20 of 31 passes for only 144 yards. "We're not going to have many friends until we do."

Most of the crowd of 52,861 left early in the final period after booing the home team on several occasions. The Falcons managed only 11 first downs.

Team owner Rankin Smith had criticized the team after the Giants' game for its performance and Bartkowski alluded to it after the game.

"I saw a lot of effort out there, even though it wasn't reflected in the score. We need to find a way to correct the things that are breaking us down," he said.

"There may be a lack of commitment — a commitment to each other. But I don't want to elaborate on that. I've done put my foot in my mouth, so I'll just leave it at that," said Bartkowski.

UIL plans vote on super conference playoffs

AUSTIN (AP) — Some 250 Class 5A high schools will vote this winter on a proposal for a "super conference" state football playoff starting in 1986 that would include some of Texas' larger schools.

The University Interscholastic League's 20-member Legislative Council voted Monday to place the 32-team "super conference" proposal on the annual referendum ballot, which is subject to approval by the State Board of Education.

The new playoff concept would place most schools with enrollments of 2,000 or more into the "super conference" bracket if they finish first or second in their district football races.

If schools under 2,000 finish first or second, they would go into the regular Class 5A playoff. The third place team, meanwhile, would be the "super conference" playoff entrant, regardless of enrollment.

UIL Athletic Director Bill Farney told the council details of the plan still need to be worked out and is far from perfect. But he said that a special committee extensively studied inequities in the Class 5A enrollment bracket, saying 1,310 is the bottom figure, with no upper limit.

"This is the best the committee could do," Farney said.

Farney declined to speculate on how 5A schools may vote on the proposal. Results will be announced next February.

The council, composed of superintendents and principals from schools across the state, also approved for referendum vote a proposal to liberalize UIL restrictions on expense-paid college recruiting visits by high school athletes.

In the past, football and basketball recruits involved in other sports were allowed only three expense-paid visits before concluding their high school eligibility. Responding to a presentation by Southwest Conference Commissioner Fred Jacoby, the council approved a ballot item proposing to increase the total to five visits.

Also approved for a vote by Class A schools was a proposal that would, in effect, set up a separate state basketball playoff bracket for football-playing schools. In four decades since Class A began playing state basketball championship, only one school — Johnson City in 1947 — has followed its football season with a basketball championship. Snook, which has had no football program since the 1940s, has won six consecutive Class A basketball crowns.

A proposal for amendment of the UIL's 70-year-old policy against practice and competition on Sundays also may go on the ballot.

How does Dallas spell relief? W-H-I-T-E

So, what's wrong with a relief quarterback, someone to come into the game near it's end when the starter "loses his stuff"?

Look at baseball. Where would starters like Rick Sutcliffe, Fernando Valenzuela, Tom Seaver... be without relievers like Goose Gossage, Dan Quisenberry, Lee Smith...? The relievers of baseball are sometimes talked about more than the starters.

Relief is not the role Dallas Cowboy Danny White wants to play, obviously, but until Coach Tom Landry figures out what he's going to do with this year's troubled team, it might be the role he's stuck with.

White showed Sunday night that he's capable of making the come-from-behind plays.

In his first year as starting quarterback — after Ring of Honor star Roger Staubach retired — White led the Cowboys to two fourth quarter touchdowns in the NFC playoffs to defeat Atlanta. Remember last year? Fourth quarter rallies, including one over New Orleans, were almost a weekly ritual.

White seems to play his best football in the fourth quarter when the Cowboys are behind. He doesn't come up with the miracle plays every time — he fumbled the ball away against San Francisco in the NFC championship game two years ago — but his record shows a lot more victories than defeats.

He doesn't have the acclaim for the dramatic come-from-behind that Staubach acquired over the years, but he hasn't thrown a 'Hail Mary,' last-play-of-the-game pass yet either. When the Cowboys are behind, he doesn't wait quite that long to get them back in the ball game.

AS A starter, White showed the same problems last year Gary Hogeboom is having this year: Three quarters of offensive problems before coming to life. On a couple of occasions, it was Hogeboom in relief. The only thing was, Hogeboom didn't win.

Neither did the Cowboys. At least, they didn't win as much as their fans have grown accustomed to. They aren't winning enough this year either.

For a lot of teams in the NFL, a 5-3 record would be cause for intense celebration — Houston Oiler fans, Buffalo Bills, Cincinnati Bengals...would be delirious with that kind of record.

But not Cowboy fans. Though 5-3 is a respectable record, it's only good enough for third place in the NFC Central Division. St. Louis and Washington both have identical marks, but are first and second, respectively, by virtue of wins over Dallas. The Cardinals have beaten both teams.

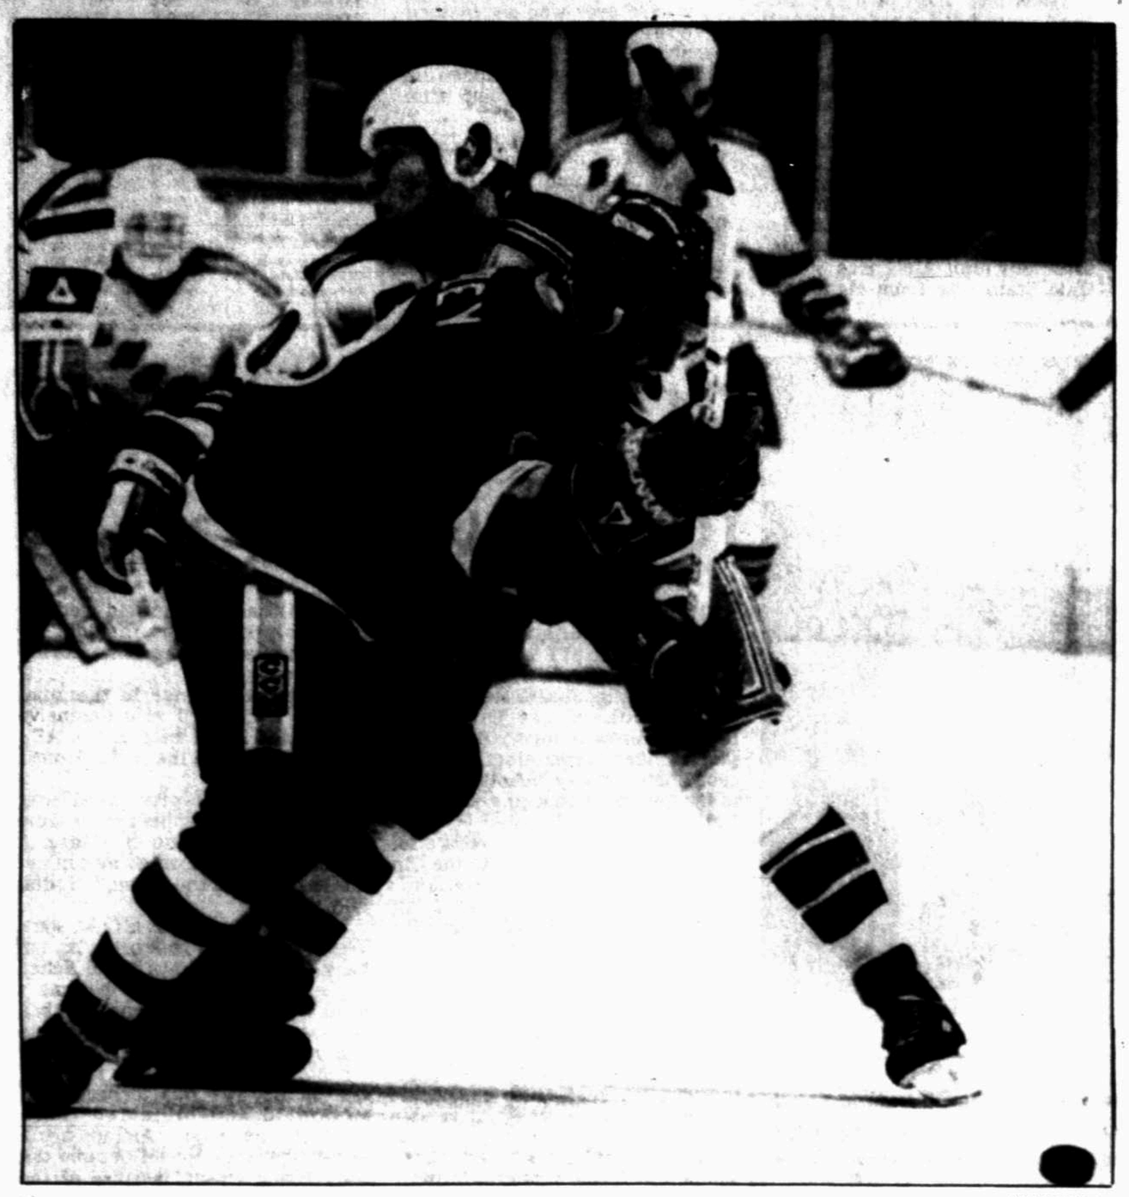

In both of those losses, Landry sent White into the game near the end to try and salvage something, but by the time he got there it was beyond hope. It was beyond hope Sunday, but White came up with the next best thing to 'Hail Mary.'

BECAUSE OF White's successful performances the past three weeks, the Cowboys will probably be losing one of the best relievers in the game of football to a starting role. Hogeboom had his chance.

The one real problem is it's doubtful if the Cowboys can play four strong quarters of football. It'll probably still come down to fourth quarter heroics. Maybe Hogeboom off the bench.

Winslow injury may end career

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Kellen Winslow, the San Diego Chargers' All-Pro tight end, may have played his last football game.

"The chances are difficult to predict, but it's a very, very severe injury," Dr. Gary Losse said Monday of Winslow's torn up right knee, the result of a hard hit he took after a pass reception against the Los Angeles Raiders. "We won't know for six months. My job ended last night ... the rest is up to Kellen's rehabilitation."

Winslow, the NFL's leading receiver over the past six seasons, will be in bed for several days, in casts for several weeks and in rehabilitation for half a year before he tests his mobility on the knee.

Losse operated on Winslow for 2½ hours Sunday night after the tight end went down following a catch in the fourth quarter of the Chargers' 44-37 loss to the Raiders.

The ligaments in Winslow's right knee looked like "spaghetti ... like a couple of mop ends" before surgery, the physician said. "The ligaments had almost an explosion-like appearance."

Winslow was hit by Raiders linebacker Jeff Barnes after he made a twisting catch of a pass by Dan Fouts.

As he exited on a golf cart, Winslow waved to cheering fans and acknowledged members of the Raiders who stepped forward to speak to him. Losse said that was a fairly typical reaction to such an injury, which initially sparks a surge of adrenaline through the body.

Winslow declined to talk to reporters after the game, and a spokeswoman at Sharp Memorial Hospital forwarded his calls Monday night to the Chargers' publicity office, where they were not answered.

Losse said his patient's response was "very appropriate. If he hadn't been upset after being informed of this nature of injury, I'd have been worried."

Winslow was not wearing a knee brace. He broke his right leg during the 1979 season, but Losse, who designs braces for use by football players, said that did not affect the severity of the ligament damage.

Losse said Winslow will never regain 100 percent use of the knee — "we would hope for it to return to 95 percent" — and will be sidelined for nine months to a year even if his recovery is perfect.

The doctor said in six months, the 6-5, 240-pound Winslow may be allowed to try running and pivoting on the knee to determine if he can ever rejoin the Chargers.

Winslow severed the posterior cruciate ligament in his right knee, as well as the medial collateral ligament. The posterior cruciate runs up the back side of the knee, and to injure it in a football game is extremely rare, Losse said.

Unbeaten Saratoga Six suffers training injury

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — The career of undefeated Saratoga Six, considered a solid contender in next year's thoroughbred Triple Crown events, might be over after just four races.

Saratoga Six, regarded as the best 2-year-old thoroughbred racing on the West Coast this year, has a "50-50" chance of being saved after suffering an injury Monday, according to trainer D. Wayne Lukas.

Lukas, who is a part-owner as well as the trainer of the $2.2-million colt, said the injury occurred near the end of a training run. There was no apparent cause for the injury.

"He was working six furlongs, and at the 16th pole, I heard it crack like a limb," Lukas said, adding that the injury to the small bones in the ankle of the left front leg appeared to have "shattered both sesamoids."

Lukas said a specialist was being flown in to operate on the ankle and it is hoped the broken bones could be fused with a plate.

"I've never had a horse training as strong as this," Lukas said.

Baseball free agent list grows

Associated Press

The St. Louis Cardinals are trying to avoid a situation that now faces the Cleveland Indians vis-a-vis free agents.

The Cardinals understand that reliever Bruce Sutter will file for free agency later this week, but they continue to negotiate with the highly prized pitcher. Andre Thornton of Cleveland, who already has filed for free agency, says the Indians haven't been quite as enthusiastic about retaining his rights.

Both players would be Type A free agents if they go through the Nov. 8 re-entry draft.

"While differences remain, our primary goal is the same today as it was when we entered into negotiations — to reach an agreement (with Sutter) for the 1985 baseball season and beyond," says Louis B. Susman, who represents Cardinals owner August Busch.

Thornton, a designated hitter, denied reports that he would re-sign with the Indians before going through the draft. "Not only have I not reached an agreement in principle," he said, "we have not discussed any figures with the Indians."

Players eligible for free agency have until Oct. 29, next Monday, to file for the re-entry draft in New York. Clubs may continue to negotiate with their free-agents through Nov. 5.

On Monday, seven more players filed for free agency, bringing the total number to 37, the Major League Players Association said. Two of them were Chicago Cubs pitchers — Dennis Eckersley and Tim Stoddard — raising the possibility that the National League East Division winners could lose four pitchers in the draft. The other two who already filed were Rick Sutcliffe and Rick Reuschel.

Also filing Monday were pitcher Craig Swan and infielder-outfielder Derrel Thomas of the California Angels, pinch-hitter Benny Ayala of the Baltimore Orioles, pitcher Rudy May of the New York Yankees and outfielder Gene Richards of the San Francisco Giants.

If he files, Sutter would be a Type A free agent, like Thornton and Sutcliffe. If a Type A free agent is signed by another club, the player's former team may chose compensation from a special pool of professional players created for that purpose.

"It is our understanding that Bruce plans to file for free agency sometime this week," said Susman, a member of the Cardinals executive committee. "That development was anticipated, representing a procedural step which Bruce must take to protect his rights."

Sutter set a National League record and tied the major league mark of Dan Quisenberry of Kansas City with 45 saves in 1984. He had a 5-7 record and 1.54 ERA.

At least two teams, Baltimore and Kansas City, reportedly are interested in Thornton, who hit .271 with 33 homers and 99 RBI in '84. Baltimore's longtime DH, Ken Singleton, has become a free agent, and K.C. General Manager John Schuerholz says his club is looking for a new cleanup hitter.

Brown wins ping-pong

From Staff Reports

The Midland Youth Center and Parks and Recreation Department co-sponsored a week-long ping-pong tournament during lunch at the Youth Center Oct. 15-19.

Eleven Midland High students participated and the top four winners were: 1. Kari Brown; 2. Jeff Nichalos; 3. Richard Hodge; 4. John St. Germain.

The YC/P&RD wish to thank the community sponsors that donated prizes. A similar tournament will be held at Midland Lee Youth Center in December.

Healthy UT awaits SMU

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas will match what Coach Fred Akers calls his "route runners" against Southern Methodist's "quick-striking" receivers on Saturday.

Texas, 4-0-1 this season and ranked No. 3, has won 16 straight Southwest Conference football games since SMU defeated the Longhorns 30-17 in 1982.

That game turned on a deflected pass that went for an SMU touchdown, and Akers recalls that two years earlier Texas had seven starters on the sidelines when SMU won 20-6.

"We just weren't a good football team that day, because we had several of our best football players sitting over there with us on the bench," Akers told his weekly news conference Monday.

In 1982, he said, "That day they had physically a better football team and they were fortunate because of the circumstances."

Texas has had more success passing than running the last two weeks in tying Oklahoma 15-15 and defeating Arkansas 24-18, and Akers compared Longhorn receivers with those of SMU.

SMU receivers, he said, "have speed and quick-striking ability. They're awfully dangerous. Ours are not speed players. Ours are route runners, good hands, good competitors. They find a way to get open. Every now and then we even get behind somebody."

The game between Texas and SMU, which was ranked No. 6 before losing to Houston 29-20 on Saturday, will be regionally televised. Kickoff is at 2:50 p.m., CDT, with a sellout crowd of 78,000 expected.

Texas under Akers since 1977 is 38-4 at Memorial Stadium, including the two losses to SMU.

"It's been a pretty tough matchup regardless of where we've played, and I expect it to be that way wherever we play," Akers said.

"Their defense is very active," Akers said. "You talk about skill positions, their defensive ends you could list as skilled positions — they can fly.

OPEC will cut crude production

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Key OPEC oil ministers said today they have agreed to cut production to shore up their $29-per-barrel benchmark price in the face of price cuts by three countries.

The proposed reductions still require approval at next week's meeting in Geneva of all 13 OPEC members. Sources at today's meeting, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the cuts would require unanimous approval to take effect.

Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani of Saudi Arabia, the 13-member cartel's biggest producer at 4 million to 5 million barrels a day, said the reductions would be "just enough to bring the oil price up to the official price." He refused to elaborate, saying only that all members of the Organization of Patroleum Exporting Countries would be involved.

"It will be substantial, it is an economical thing," he said when asked what the Saudi role would be.

Kuwaiti Oil Minister Sheik Ali Khalifa al-Sabah said as the two-day meeting of six OPEC oil ministers and Mexico and Egypt closed that the proposed production cuts would be presented at next week's emergency meeting of the cartel's 13 members.

Sheik Ali declined to identify the range of the proposed production cuts, but other ministers said Monday that Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Libya may need to cut output by 20 percent each to counter price cuts by non-OPEC countries Norway and Britain and OPEC member Nigeria last week.

An unidentified high-ranking official was quoted by the Emirates news agency in Bahrain as saying the ministers were considering a 3 million barrel "temporary" cut in daily OPEC output through the rest of October and November, with Saudi Arabia bearing the "lion's share."

The agency said the move would "absorb the quantities industralized states and international companies expected to dump on the market as part of their diehard attempts to bring about collapse of the petroleum prices."

The oil ministers of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, United Arab Emirates, Algeria, Libya and Venezuela were thought to represent the nations most able to handle the production cutbacks, oil industry analysts said.

Of the remaining OPEC members, Nigeria is thought to want increased production to help pay its debts, while Indonesia and Qatar are reportedly already exceeding their quotas, Ecuador and Gabon are minor producers and Iran and Iraq need all their production to finance their war.

Yamani told reporters Monday "there will be no price change" from the $29 benchmark set 19 months ago, when OPEC cut prices for the first time in its 24-year history and fixed the current 17.5 million barrel output level.

OPEC had hiked prices from $2.75 to $34 a barrel during the 10 years preceding the March 1983 price cut, but has faced growing pressure from the non-OPEC producers such as Britain and Norway, as well as conservation efforts that have cut relative oil consumption.

Yamani and Mexican Oil Minister Labastida Ochoa were to visit Lagos this week to try and persuade the Nigerians to rescind their $2 a barrel price cuts, sources at the Geneva meeting said. At the same time, the Oslo daily Aftenposten reported that Yamani would visit Oslo this week to meet Norwegian Oil Minister Kaare Kristiansen.

Two non-OPEC producers, Mexico and Egypt, attended the preparatory talks in Geneva. Industry sources said it appeared OPEC wanted to ensure that those two countries respect its price guidelines.

The Geneva meeting also marked the first time that Egypt had been invited to an OPEC meeting since its expulsion from the Organization of Arab Oil Exporting Countries for signing the peace treaty with Israel. Egyptian Oil Minister Abdul Hady Kandil left the meeting without commenting.

Mack strike continues

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — No talks were planned as a strike by 9,200 United Auto Workers at Mack Trucks Inc. plants in three states entered its third day today, but union and company officials said they were optimistic bargaining would resume.

UAW members walked out Sunday at four plants in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland after negotiations that began Aug. 13 failed to produce a master contract to replace a two-year pact that expired.

Eugene McCafferty, president of UAW Local 677 in Allentown, where the No. 2 U.S. manufacturer of heavy trucks has its headquarters, said Monday he was "very optimistic" talks would resume by the end of the week.

McCafferty said he planned to meet today in New Jersey with UAW local leaders from Hagerstown, Md., Macungie, Pa., and Bridgewater, N.J., and hoped he would be able to tell them the company was willing to negotiate.

The local "is willing and able to go back to the master negotiating table, resolve the outstanding issues and bring the strike to an end," he said.

Western Bank ponders public stock offering

Staff Reports

Continuing growth has prompted Western Bank, Midland, to consider a public offering of common stock to assure a strong capital base and flexibility to respond effeciently to new growth.

Western Bank has reported a year-to-date net income of $1,133,042 or $1.76 per share for the nine months ended September 30.

The earnings represent annualized returns on average assets and average equity of 1.66 percent and 28.63 percent respectively.

The bank also reported a 21 percent increase in deposits, up from $71.6 million reported in at year's end 1983 to $86.9 million at last report.

Loans for the period totaled $72.7 million, up 26.9 percent over 1983, while shareholder equity outpaced the growth rate in assets, increasing 36 percent from $3.2 million to $4.3 million. Total capital was $5.8 million.

Bank President, Bill Parker, said the bank intends to continues the game plan which has resulted in the bank's continued growth.

"Several of our customers have expressed an interest in Western Bank stock," said Parker, "and we are contemplating an offering within the next few months."

If the bank board approves the offering, the stock will be sold to Midlanders, according to Parker.

Canada strike prompts plant shut downs in U.S.

New York Times News Service

DETROIT — The General Motors Corp. began Monday shutting down automobile assembly plants in the United States on Monday as a result of the strike at its Canadian operations, according to an offical. The action will idle nearly 11,000 American workers initially, with the number likely rise next week as the closings spread.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Canadian United Automobile Workers in Toronto said bargainers for both sides did not appear to have narrowed their differences, although talks were to continue through the weekend.

Top negotiators for the union and General Motors of Canada met late Friday morning for what Robert White, the union leader, said was "a sharp exchange of views." He said there were still "fundamental disagreements" over what would constitute an acceptable agreement after the two-hour meeting at the main negotiating table.

In Detroit, John Mueller, a GM official, said all the workers at the company's plants in Orion, Mich., and Moraine, Ohio, had been told not to report to work on Monday because of a shortage of parts produced in Canada. In addition, he said, assembly workers at the two Cadillac plants in Detroit and those on the second shift at the facility in Willow Run, Mich., had also been told not to report for work Monday.

The 36,000 Canadian auto workers have been officially on strike since noon Wednesday, although wildcat walkouts closed some plants the night before. Because Canadian plants are the sole source of some components used in vehicles assembled in the United States, GM officials had said the effects of the Canadian walkout would be felt "quickly" on this side of the border.

Harvey Heinbach, an auto industry analyst with the brokerage firm of Merrill Lynch Pierce Fenner & Smith, estimated the strike in Canada alone was costing GM about $30 million in lost profits a week. With an additional four plants closed, he said the loss would mount to more than $60 million a week. If all nine U.S. plants dependent on Canadian production are closed, he said, the losses would exceed $100 million a week.

The Canadian section of the union, which is about one-tenth the size of the American part, has been resisting accepting an offer patterened after the contract recently ratified by GM in this country and signed Friday in Detroit.

White had said the Canadians were not interested in the job security and profit sharing contained in the contracts negotiated in the United States. Instead, he said, Canadian workers are seeking a return to the 3 percent annual pay increase that was once customary in both countries, higher pension payments and a shorter work week.

The Canadian strike was authorized by Owen F. Bieber, the president of the UAW, and the strikers in that country will be paid benefits from the strike fund of more than $500 million accumulated by the union. However, Bieber expressed the hope that the Canadian dispute might be settled quickly.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Daisy-wheel computer printer announced

TORRANCE, Calif. — C. Itoh Digital Products, Inc. have introduced a 29 characters-per-second (cps) version of its StarWriter series Model A10 daisy-wheel computer output printer.

The StarWriter A10-30TM, designed to enable business and professional microcomputer users to print out letter-quality finished manuscripts and formal documents at 29 cps, is an enhanced version of the cps StarWriter A10-20 daisy wheel printer formerly marketed by CIDP.

Tandy Corp. to market cellular telelphones

Tandy Corp. has reached agreements with Southwestern Bell Mobile Systems and Metroplex Telephone Co. for the referral of customers for cellular radio mobile telephone service.

Tandy will refer purchases of their equipment to these two carriers for cellular telephone service in predetermined areas. These agreements, plus previously announced agreements with subsidiaries of NYNEX, Pacific Telesis, U.S. West, Continental Telecom, Bell Atlantic Corp. and Communications Industries, enable Tandy to offer their customers convenient one-stop-shopping for cellular telephone equipment and the assignment of cellular telephone service on a nearly nationwide basis. Cellular telephone installation and maintenance will be provided through Tandy's own facilities.

The agreement with Metroplex Telephone Co., a joint venture of Lin Broadcasting of New York, N.Y., and DFW Signal Corp. of Dallas, covers the Dallas/Fort Worth area.

TI reveals enhancement of business system

AUSTIN — Texas Instruments has announced it is enhancing the TI Business System 352/352A with a new, higher performance formatter board.

In early October, TI will begin incorporating the new formatter boards, which are responsible for transferring data to and from the WD600A Winchester disk. A more sophisticated microcompressor will allow retrieving information from the Winchester disk at a faster rate than was possible with the previous formatter board.

Air Midwest has 17.2 percent increase

Air Midwest carried 38,834 passengers during the month of September 1984 — a 17.2 percent increase over the 33,123 passengers carried in September 1983.

Revenue passenger miles increased 17.7 percent to 7,556,719 and available seat miles climbed 17.4 percent to 18,116,796 in September 1984 versus the same period of a year ago. The load factor for September 1984 and September 1983 was 41.7 percent.

For the first nine months of 1984 Air Midwest has carried 350,643 passengers for a 24.3 percent increase over the 282,163 passengers carried during the same period in 1983. Revenue passenger miles were up 19 percent and available seat miles increased 13.3 percent to 66,360,674 and 158,004,321 respectively during this same period over 1983. The year-to-date load factor for 1984 was 42 percent. 1983's year-to-date load factor was 40 percent.

Muse Air September traffic up 47 percent

DALLAS — Muse Air Corp. announced recently that its September traffic increased 47 percent to 71.7 million revenue passenger miles from 48.8 million a year ago. Load factor for the month of 42.7 percent was practically unchanged from the 43.1 percent level recorded in September 1983.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, 1984, traffic was up 56 percent over 1983's levels, with the company's 47.8 percent load factor for that period down slightly from the 48.9 percent level experienced during the first nine months of 1983.

Universal sells 1.3 million shares

Universal Resources Corp. and Madison Resources, Inc. has announced that they, together with certain Madison affiliates, have entered into an agreement whereby Madison is purchasing from Universal 1.3 million shares of its common stock for an aggregate purchase price of $16,900,000 or $13 per share.

Prior to this transaction, Madison owned 2,183,193 shares of Universal common stock (24.7 percent of the previously outstanding shares) which were purchased in open market and private transactions. Madison will own a 34.4 percent interest in Universal.

Charles B. Ponder, president and chief executive officer of Universal, said "We are pleased to have Madison as our partner and welcome its commitment to our company. The new equity capital represented by Madison's investment will allow Universal to reduce its outstanding debt resulting in a substantial improvement to its financial position and an improved earnings outlook."

Under the terms of the agreement executed by Madison and Universal, Madison will be entitled to a representative on Universal's Board of Directors. It is expected that Stanley R. Rawn, Jr., president and chief operating officer of Madison, will be nominated to Universal's board.

The agreement also provides that Madison and various of its affiliates are prohibited through June 30, 1987, except in limited circumstances, from owning more than 37.5 percent of Universal's stock. Thereafter, through Dec. 31, 1989, the Madison group, except in limited circumstances, is prohibited from acquiring shares of Universal about the 37.5 percent limitation except pursuant to an offer which is made on the same terms to all shareholders, is for cash or marketable securities and either is approved by the "continuing directors" (persons who were directors of Universal on or prior to the last shareholders' meeting held prior to July 1, 1987) or is found by an investment banker chosen jointly by Madison group and the continuing directors to be fair from a financial point of view to the Universal shareholders.

The agreement contains various restrictions on the activities of the Madison group prior to June 30, 1987.

Comanche Peak declared 'troubled' plant

Local TESCO official says nuclear plant 'one of safest'

From Staff and Wire Reports

WASHINGTON — The Comanche Peak nuclear power plant has become the most troubled nuclear facility facing the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, eclipsing Diablo Canyon and Shoreham in Long Island, an agency official said.

A Midland official with Texas Electric Service Co. denied those charges this morning and called Comanche Peak "one of the safest plants in the country."

"I'd single this plant out as the one I'm least certain about whether it's going to come out" in the licensing process, said Harold Denton, the NRC's director of nuclear reactor regulation, in an interview with the Dallas Morning News.

His remarks came in a meeting Monday of the five NRC commissioners to review the status of 15 nuclear power plants that were expected to receive licenses this year.

Gerald Gotcher, with the Midland office of TESCO, said he believes "there has been a lot of misunderstanding on these meetings. The NRC has requested several items from us that they want to review. We met with them last Thursday in Bethesda, Md., and we're meeting with them again today. They've said they have to review all these items and we should have an approval by the end of November."

Construction of the first of Comanche Peak's two nuclear units, near Glen Rose, about 70 miles southwest of Fort Worth, is expected to be completed by the end of this month.

Texas Utilities Co. had tried to win NRC approval to load radioactive fuel into the plant this month, but on Oct. 8, it moved the target date to January, citing the amount of work still before the NRC.

"I don't think a licensing decision by January is likely at all," Guy Cunningham, the NRC's executive legal director, warned the commissioners Monday.

The longer the delay, the more money it's costing the utility system, according to Gotcher. Each month, $23 million is being paid on the interest on the money borrowed to construct the nuclear plant.

"We tried to get that put into the base rate but it was disallowed in the last rate hearing," Gotcher said. Once the plant is in operation the interest payments will be figured into the charge and ratepayers will wind up paying for it, he said.

The delays also may reduce the utility system's ability to provide electricity to all its customers during the peak load next summer. By then, Texas Utilities is expecting to have another 90,000 customers in the system, according to Gotcher.

"Every day this continues on it hurts us and our generating capacity," he said.

NRC officials accepted blame Monday for some of the delays at Comanche Peak.

"We found we were unable to identify the problems at this plant up front," said William Dircks, the NRC's executive director. "The regional office was overburdened. Each time we looked, there were more issues. We just didn't know what the problems were."

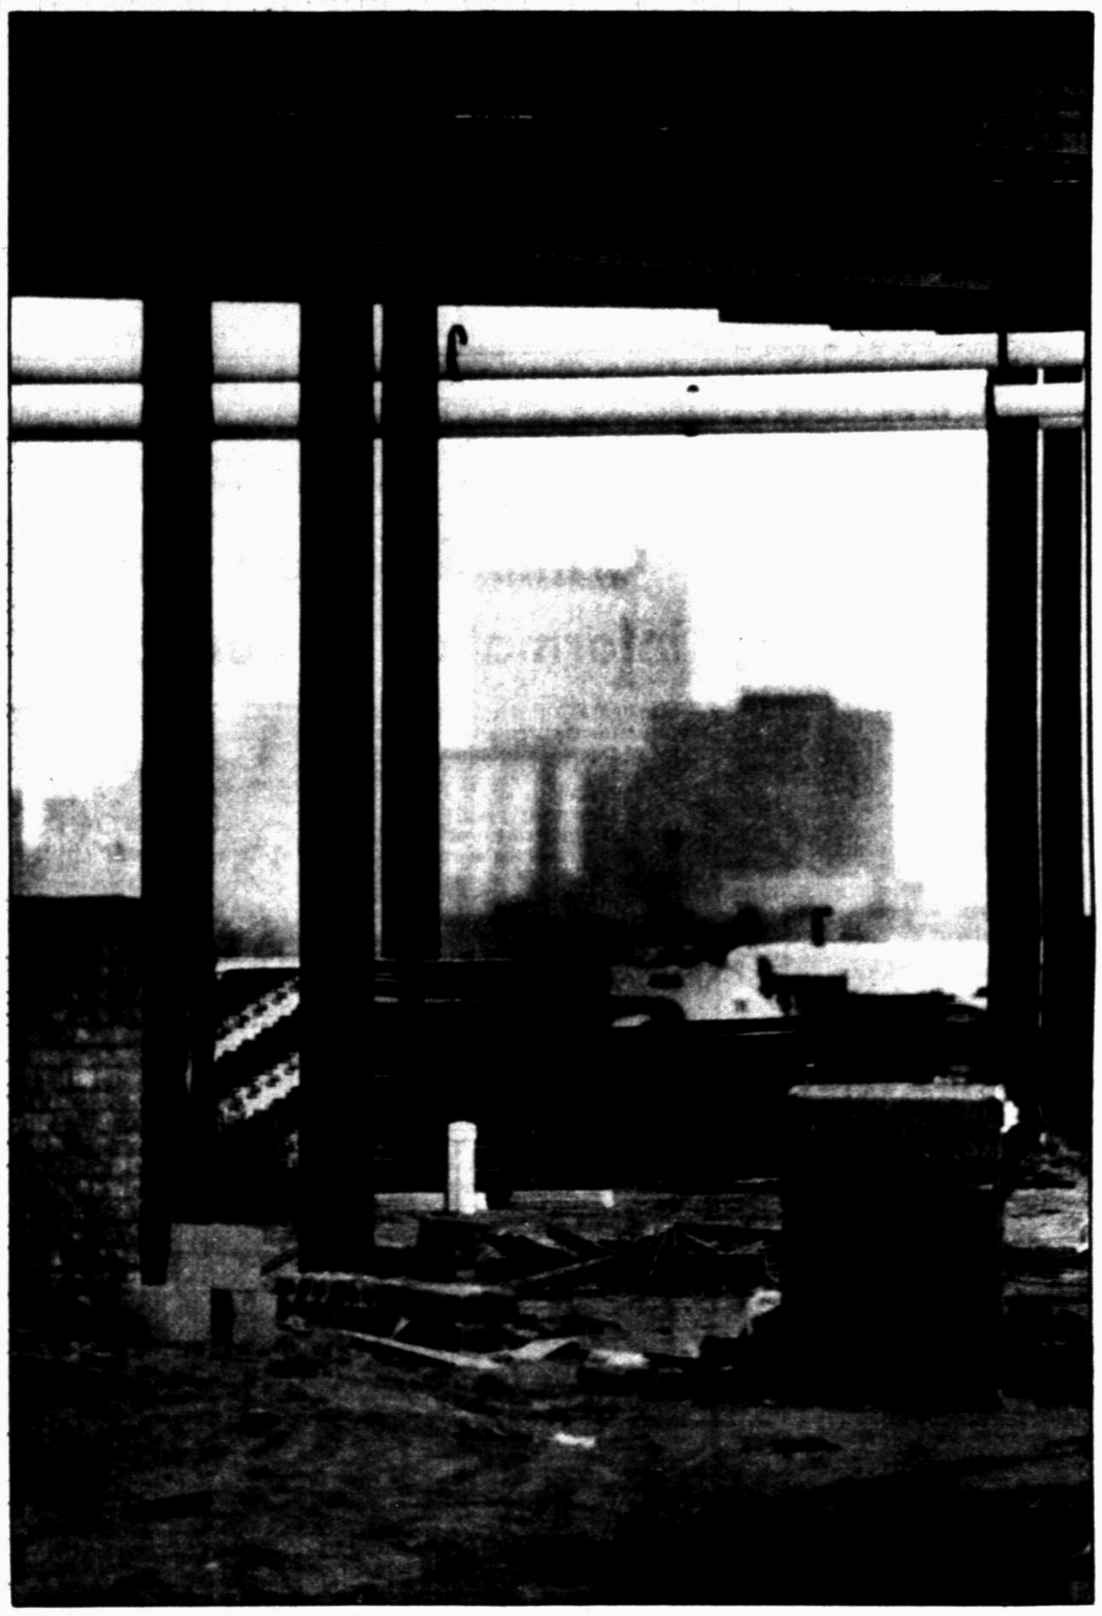

The NRC is trying to unravel some 528 allegations at Comanche Peak by former and current employees concerning construction mistakes, inadequate training and design.

The agency is checking into charges of wrongdoing by Texas Utilities and Brown & Root, Inc., the builder of the plant.

The Diablo Canyon in California became the nation's first nuclear station in the country to have its license revoked in 1981 by the NRC. After a three-year effort to rectify design errors related to earthquake protection, the agency granted a full-power operating license on Aug. 10.

A legal challenge, however, has prevented the plant from opening.

The Shoreham project was stymied because local governments refused to cooperate in emergency evacuation planning. Congress passed a law enabling the Federal Emergency Management Agency to draft an evacuation plan for the area, and NRC officials said Monday they expect the plant will receive a low-power operating license in November.

Local groups will try to make Halloween safe

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Local businesses and organizations are banding together to make sure Halloween night is a safe one for trick-or-treaters.

"Halloween has not been a great problem in Midland, but efforts by individuals, parents, businesses and various companies are being made," said Midland County Sheriff Dallas Smith.

The most concerted effort, complete with television ads titled "Safe Halloween," is a program organized by the Permian Basin Easter Seal Society. The group enlisted the help of 10 area businesses in producing a coupon booklet containing tickets good for products at those businesses. The program, sponsored by the Midland Reporter-Telegram and Odessa American, is new this year to Midland-Odessa.

"It was started in 10 communities in Texas last year and was very successful," said Carolyn Quillen, chairman of the project. "We hope it will stimulate an interest in trick or treating again and also help business."

Individual coupons in the booklet will allow the bearer to purchase the following from participating businesses: a personal pan pizza from Pizza Hut; a hamburger from Burger King; french fries at McDonalds; a slurpee at 7-Eleven; one meal from Long John Silver; a soft drink at Arby's; popcorn from The Corn Popper; an apple from Everybody's grocery store; one goldfish from Jerry's Perfect Pets and a corn dog at Kent Qwik convenience stores.

The booklets may be purchased at any of those businesses and sell for one dollar for 10 tickets. Coupons may also be purchased at the Permian Basin Rehabilitation Center.

Another local business is also involved in a Halloween safety program. Taco Villa is selling bags of tokens that entitle the bearer to one free soft drink or 25 cents discount off a food purchase.

"We already had one person asking for 20 bags at one store," said Karen Hopkins, Taco Villa manager.

Each store will have 250 bags of the wooden tokens, which are good through Dec. 15.

While many groups are helping to maintain the tradition of trick-or-treating, at least one is offing a way for children (and adults) to have fun without being out on the streets. The Jaycees are sponsoring its annual haunted house, to be held at Midland Park Mall this year.

"It's just a better location," said Glenn Jennings, president of the Jaycees. The spectacle will be on the J.C. Penny's side of the mall, starting Saturday and running through Halloween night. Hours are noon to midnight on Saturday, 3 p.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday, 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday and Tuesday and 7 p.m. to midnight Halloween night. Admission is $2.

"It's being really well done this year," said Jennings. "A script with a progressive theme is being used."

Although the effort for halloween safety is more active than ever, police insist that Midland and Odessa have been spared the rash of candy tampering that is common in larger cities.

"There haven't been any problems — none reported that is," said Ron Benton, crime prevention officer for the Midland police force. "Most of the kids participate in Halloween carnivals at school."

Others disagree.

"I can remember some time ago when a girl I knew got a hold of something. I think there is definitely a problem," said Ms. Quillen of Easter Seals.

"We have already found a needle in a candy bar that came from a school carnival," said Rick Fleetwood, department director of radiology at Odessa Women and Children's Hospital. "In the past we have found razor blades in apples and bottles of shampoo in kid's bags," said Fleetwood.

Women and Childrens Hospital is one of two area medical facilities providing free X-Ray services Halloween night. Children may bring their bags to the hospital and its contents will be inspected for any tampering.

"We go all out," said Fleetwood. "Last year we decorated the office all up and gave punch and cookies to the kids. We had over 2,000 children come for inspection. At one point they were lined up down the street with their bags of treats."

Hours at the hospital for inspection are 6:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. Halloween night.

Just five months old, the North Midland Minor Emergency Center is also giving the free services.

"We will X-ray the bag of treats and then seal it and give the children a paper saying the bag was OK," said Dr. Patel, medical director of North Midland.

"We are decorating the office and are keeping five people on staff just for Halloween." Hours for inspection at North Midland are 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. Halloween night. "But we'll keep it open if they come later," said Patel.

Both facilities are requiring that a release form be signed, freeing them from any liability, if the X-ray should fail to reveal tampering.

Liability is the reason that Midland Memorial Hospital and Odessa Medical Center no longer offer the X-rays.

"If we X-rayed the candy and then for some reason it was not good, then we were liable," said a spokesperson for radiology at Midland Memorial. "We haven't done it for a number of years.

Jury selection almost complete in capital murder case

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — More than two weeks of selection should end Wednesday as attorneys settle on the final members of the jury expected to decide the fate of 19-year-old Pablo Madrid Galindo.

After nine days of "special venire," the painstaking process used to select jurors in a case with a possible capital sentence, 11 of 14 (12 jurors, plus two alternates) had been picked through Monday.

About 70 people had been quizzed individually by prosecutors and the two attorneys appointed to defend Galindo against the prospect of being put to death.

The process should be accelerated since both sides have used most of their preemptory challenges, disqualifying the prospective jurors from joining the 12 left to decide whether Galindo is guilty.

Defense attorney Tony Chavez said Monday he and co-counsel Michael McLeaish had used 13 of their 15 challenges and that prosecutors had one "strike" from the jury list remaining. He said both sides expected to start bringing evidence Thursday.

Galindo could face death by lethal injection if found guilty of capital murder in the case. He is alleged to have entered the south Ector County home of Mark Defee on March 24, 1984, shot Defee to death and attempted to rape Defee's wife before she escaped to a neighbor's house in the Pleasant Farms development.

If they find Galindo guilty, jurors will answer questions in the charge deciding whether the 19-year-old Hispanic should be put to death or sentenced to life in prison.

Apparently, an intervening circumstance the defense will attempt to use to get Galindo a lesser sentence will be his mental condition at the time of the offense.

During the individual questioning, McLeaish and Chavez have questioned the prospective jurors on their feelings about finding that Galindo should not be put to death because he was intoxicated during the alleged incident.

According to sheriff's department reports, the Defees awoke March 24 about 3:30 a.m. to find a man in bed with them. During the struggle that followed, Defee was shot to death and the woman was attacked by the man before escaping and calling the sheriff's department.

Galindo was arrested about one mile from the scene, after deputies responded to another call of a bloodied man knocking at a residence door. He has remained in jail since his arrest, with bond set at $100,000.

Galindo was originally arrested for unlawfully carrying a gun, but later charged with murder and attempted sexual assault after the bullets in the gun matched those that killed Defee, according to reports. District Attorney Mike Holmes, who is facing a challenge in the upcoming election, will prosecute the case with his first assistant, Dennis Cadra.

District Judge R.L. McKim, presiding over the case in the 161st district court, estimated the actual trial would take about 3½ days after the jury selection.

Man to be retried on charges of intending to rape woman

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Prosecutors are hoping the third time will be a charm as a 20-year-old Odessan goes to trial again this week on charges he entered the home of an Odessa housewife intending to sexually assault her in November 1983.

Tommie Coleman, 20, will stand trial this week for the third time, with the state attempting to prove he and another man entered the 19-year-old woman's home Nov. 11, 1983 and assaulted her. The previous two proceedings ended with District Judge Joe Connally declaring a mistrials because jurors were unable to reach a verdict.

Anthony Crawford, 21, was sentenced to life in prison after being found guilty of entering the home with the intent to rape the woman. During Coleman's first trial in April, the victim testified she was struck in the face and threatened with scissors by two black men before they raped her.

Attorney Jimmy Edwards, court appointed to defend Coleman, managed to instill enough doubt in jurors in both the previous trials so that they could not come to a unanimous verdict of guilt or innocence.

Virtually his entire defense was based on the victim having misidentified Coleman, using acclaimed cases such as Lenell Geter's as an example of problems with eyewitness identification.

The first trial ended with the jury split 8 to 4 in favor of acquitting Coleman. The second panel was divided by the same margin, but in favor of Coleman being found guilty.

Crawford's first trial also ended in a mistrial, as a police officer testified that Crawford was a suspect in other trials. This is not allowed under Texas law because of the possibility that jurors would be prejudiced against the defendant after knowing of offenses not related to the trial.

The victim identified Coleman in a line-up soon after the alleged incident and pointed him out for jurors during the first trial, in which the state proceeded on the indictment for aggravated sexual assault.

But Edwards successfully convinced enough jurors that the line-up had not been fair. The officer who arranged the line-up testified he had never set one up before.

Coleman testified he had been home asleep when the rape was to have taken place. He faces a maximum life sentence and $10,000 fine if found guilty.

Crawford confessed to the assault, but Coleman has maintained his innocence. Tests of seminal fluids taken from the scene showed two different types were present.

Texan preserves exotic animals

BEAUMONT (AP)— The llama walked up to the golf cart, stared at the visitor and put its nose almost against the camera lens. The visitor's camera seemed as curious to the llama as the animal was to him.

The beautiful creature is one of many at home in a 40-acre, private preserve on the northern edge of Beaumont, near Pine Island Bayou.

Not all the exotic animals are friendly.

"Boss Bird," an African ostrich that stands eight feet tall when holding his head up, can be dangerous if provoked, warns owner Elmo Mouton.

Some of the animals could hurt a visitor, so Mouton's preserve must remain private, he says.

Since 1978, Mouton has built a collection of animals that include the ostrich, several emus and rheas, herds of deer and antelope, swans, ducks and turkeys.

Mouton started his collection with sika and axis deer from the YO Ranch at Mountain Home. The herd of axis deer grew from two does and a buck to 34 head.

"West Texas is too far to go to see a deer, so I brought some of them here," he says.

"The fun is watching nature. I like to see the animals grow, see the changes that take place. I've always liked animals."

Mouton's wife, Lucille, also enjoys having the animals around. The Mouton home is located in the preserve.

Mouton bought the land in 1968 from Dale C. Hager and moved a plastics business there. He sold his interest but works as a buyer for the new owner.

Mouton expanded his collection of animals by attending auctions twice a year in Kerrville and Cape Girardeau, Mo.

As the animals multiply, Mouton sells them to other animal fanciers. A female llama is worth 10 times as much as a male, he says. A female will bring $5,000 to $6,000, a male only $500.

Emus look like small ostriches and are natives of Australia. They stand 5 to 6 feet tall. The rhea is a South American bird, roughly the same size as an emu. None of the three birds can fly, however, the ostrich can run as fast as 40 mph.

One worker found out quickly how Boss Bird got his name.

When the ostrich decided to see what the worker was doing one day, the man tried to shoo him away. Instead of leaving, the ostrich charged the man, who took refuge in his pickup truck until Boss Bird decided to leave.

Boss Bird lacks a mate, but has a friend.

"George," a Canadian goose, walks beside the ostrich wherever he goes. He's there when the ostrich gets an evening meal from caretaker Marvin Bryant Jr.

Maybe he figures if he eats the same food he'll grow just as big and strong.

Man reports theft of items worth $6,300

From Staff Reports

More than $6,300 worth of items were reported stolen Monday from the Ralph Mandson residence, 113 W. Dormard.

According to reports, Mandson's wife left the house at 2:30 p.m. and returned an hour later to find someone had removed the air conditioner vent from the kitchen window to gain entry.

Items taken included a $700 video cassette recorder, a $270 rifle, a $375 pistol, a $280 cassette tape player and $1,280 in cash.

A purse containing items worth $1,825 was reported stolen from the home of Renee Fox, 4418 Gulf. Ms. Fox said she last saw the purse Sunday in the hallway of the front entrance.

The $50 purse contained credit cards, $525 in cash and three rings valued at a total of $1,250, she said.

Charlie Vestal, 4307 Bedford, reported a $600 typewriter was missing from his home. The typewriter was last used Oct. 10, he said.

Nothing else was disturbed or missing from the house, according to reports.

A stereo cassette player, receiver and equalizer of undetermined value were reported missing from the home of Chong Iam Tang, 607-B Watson. The burglary occurred sometime between 7:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday. Entry was gained by prying open the front door.

Kevin McBride, manager of Furr's, 1116 N. Midkiff, reported the theft of $248 worth of cigarettes Monday. A white male was seen at about 3 p.m. taking the 30 cartons of assorted cigarettes, McBride told police.

Police Roundup

Two automobile burglaries and one attempt were reported Monday to police. Cherie Now Par Var, 4700 Boulder, said her unlocked 1980 Renault was burglarized sometime during the weekend while it was parked in the northwest parking lot of the apartment complex. A gold bracelet, valued at $800, was taken.

Mario Eugenia Palacio, 2439 Whitmire, said two tires and two wire hubcaps were taken during the weekend from her 1982 Chevrolet. The car was found sitting on blocks Monday morning. Total loss was placed at $290.

Thomas J. Madonna, 2900 Neely, said someone tried to steal his 1979 Chevrolet early Monday as it was parked in his driveway. According to reports, Madonna's wife heard a noise about 1 a.m. Monday in the driveway and opened the backdoor of the house, but didn't see anyone. Damage to the steering column, ignition wires and turning signal lever was placed at $220.

The exterior siding of a vacant house at 512 S. Dallas sustained minor damage during a Monday afternoon fire. Ten firemen responded about 5:30 p.m. to the call. Cause of the fire, which originated in the bathroom, was undetermined, according to fire department reports. The owner of the house had not been identified by early this morning.

Seminar to explain agency's job opportunities

A seminar explaining job opportunities with the State Comptroller's Office will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday at RepublicBank-First National Midland, 303 W. Wall.

Guest speaker will be Georgia Thompson, minority recruiter for the State Comproller of Public Accounts office in Austin. The seminar is sponsored by Midland's Human Relations Council.

DEATHS

Mrs. Ted O. Groble

BIG SPRING — Memorial services for Mrs. Ted O. Groble, 74, of Big Spring will be held at 2 p.m. Wednesday at First Baptist Church in Big Spring. Dr. Kenneth Patrick, pastor, will officiate. Burial will be at Trinity Memorial Park in Big Spring.

Mrs. Groble died Sunday at Granville C. Morton Hospital in Dallas.

She was born on July 1, 1910 in Priddy and married Ted O. Grobel on Sept. 8, 1927 in Midland. She moved to Big Spring in 1935 where she resided until her death. Mrs. Groble was a member of the First Baptist Church, a past matron of the O.E.S. No. 176 in Rankin, first president of Park Hill P.T.A. in Big Spring. She attended Sul Ross University in Alpine.

Survivors include her husband Ted O. Groble of Big Spring; one son, Ted O. Groble Jr. of Midland; two sisters, Leatha Jane Johnson of Brenham and Zelda Magnolia Rea of Big Spring; one brother, Byron B. Smith of Brady and six grandchildren.

Mrs. Groble was preceded in death by one daughter, Mozelle Irons on Sept. 30, 1984.

The family requests memorials be made to Wadley Institute in Dallas, 9000 Harry Hines Blvd.

Gloria Harris

Gloria Harris, 49, of rural Midland died Sunday at her home.

Services will be at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Cotton Flat Baptist Church with the Rev. Ross Payne, pastor, officiating. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park,directed by Ellis Funeral Home.

Odessa woman injured in wreck

From Staff Reports

A 33-year-old Odessa woman was listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Odessa Medical Center Hospital with injuries suffered in a one-vehicle accident at 4:15 p.m. Monday on State Highway 191.

Joann Seefeldt suffered a broken back in the accident.

According to the Department of Public Safety, Ms. Seefeldt was driving a 1982 Chevrolet station wagon west on State Highway 191 when she fell asleep and left the roadway. The station wagon came to a stop but didn't overturn when it hit the median about a mile east of Farm-to-Market 1788, a DPS spokesman said.

Large size women in the 80s have stressed the importance of being well-dressed. They have become more fashion conscious, career oriented and self-confident. The key to this season's wardrobe is successful layering with longer, looser-fitting styles so she can wear a variety of silhouettes and styles. A winter style with such fashions will be shown at 7 p.m. Nov. 8 at Woman's World in the Midland Park Mall.

DEAR ABBY

Usher surprised by price of wedding

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please print this so parents will think twice before planning a "sky's the limit" wedding for their son or daughter.

Our son was recently "honored" when a college fraternity brother asked him to be an usher at his wedding.

Although this meant a long trip either by plane or automobile, as well as time off from work, our son agreed. What he did not realize (nor was there any mention of this until the day before the wedding), he was expected to pick up a tab of $70 for his tux rental! We were floored when we were informed at the tux rental shop that the wedding had become too expensive for the groom's family, so everybody had to pay for his own.

Since our son is not financially well-off, we are paying for his tux rental.

Weddings with the attendants all dressed alike make a pretty picture, but in my opinion, unless the bride and groom or their parents are prepared to foot the bill, the wedding should be kept on a more conservative scale. — DISILLUSIONED BY FANCY WEDDINGS

DEAR DISILLUSIONED: When the bride and groom select their attendants, they should state whether they will pick up the tab for tux rental 'and attendants' gowns. Unless the bride and groom are extraordinarily well-to-do, the attendants are expected to provide for their own gowns and tuxes, but this should be clearly understood when the attendants are invited to serve.

DEAR ABBY: While shopping in a card shop recently, I remarked to an elderly lady standing near me that it was difficult to find just the right "get well" card.

She replied, "Yes, especially when you know that the person is not going to get well."

The lady was right. As I looked at card after card in the "get well" section, they all bore the same message: "Please, get well soon!"

Abby, the reality of life is that many sick people do not get well, so to send such a card to a terminally ill person who is aware of his condition is to deny reality.

I am not suggesting that we send a card saying, "I know you're dying and I hope it will be as easy as possible," but, Abby, surely there must be some way to say, "I hope you're comfortable."

Thanks for listening. — THE REV. DOROTHY LAIRMORE, PRESCOTT, ARIZ.

DEAR MS. LAIRMORE: Your point is well-taken. Next time, look in the "friendship" section. You will find cards that say, "Thinking of you," or, "I value your friendship." And if you can't find an appropriate message, write one.

(Is your social life in a slump? Lonely? Get Abby's updated, revised and expanded booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

AT WIT'S END

Protect 'territories'

By ERMA BOMBECK

I watch a lot of animal documentaries on television.

I don't relate to them at all. I can watch a turtle lay her eggs with tears streaming down her face and feel nothing. I can watch a snake devour something furry and not even wince. When a lion has sex every ten minutes, I don't even stop eating my nacho chips.

But I am intrigued by the animals who "stake out territories." The cats who do it by scent, the birds by song, and the seals by pure force.

That I can relate to. Man is probably the most territorial animal who ever walked the face of this earth. We all do it. It's a habit we set early in our life. We sit on the same seat on the school bus every day, eat lunch at the same table and have the same seat each week in the bleachers. We park in the same spot every day at work, use the same stall in the restroom, take the same route to and from work every day, and stake out our pew in church.

I've written before about the territorial ritual of an aerobics class. I entered a class for the first time a few years ago and was told I was standing in someone's "spot." I moved. I was standing in another woman's "spot." I moved. After five different spots, I finally ended up where no one wanted ... in the front row next to the mirror. It was three years before I could work my way to the back row.

My husband also suffers from the Archie Bunker disease. His living room chair, through years of use, has his anatomy set in cement. No one has gotten beyond the position of hovering over and saying, "Is this your chair?" He'll tell you.

All of these territorial conquests pale to the one we built our house on a few years ago. Unknown to us, we infringed on the permanent homes of scorpions, spiders, crickets, lizards, snakes and foxes.

They get our attention in a million little ways. They appear on our patio uninvited, crawl up our walls, hide out in our shower and shoes and when we open the mailbox yell, "Gotcha!"

The way it is explained to us, they were there first — about a billion years ago — and old habits die hard. That's why they bite you and try to get rid of you.

A woman tried to take my aerobics "spot" last week. It works.

Wool garments deserve care

NEW YORK (AP) — Fall and winter's wearable new designs are in exaggerated but simple silhouettes, many in luxurious pure wool fabrics like jersey, gabardine, covert, flannel and twill, the fashion industry reports.

With proper care, these new additions to the clothes closet, as well as wool suits and separates that serve as the basics for a classic wardrobe, can last for years and always look good, experts at the Wool Bureau point out.

"Before you decide which of this year's great fashion buys to add, you'll want to take your wool clothing out of storage and review what you already own," says Carl Freeman of the bureau's Technical Center.

If the garments were properly cleaned before storing they should need no special treatment before wearing, he points out. But if clothes were stored with moth balls all summer, he advises that the garments be hung up properly to air out, rather than cleaned just to remove the smell.

"The biggest mistake people make caring for their wool clothing is drycleaning it too frequently," says Freeman, who explains that unnecessary cleanings break down the wool fibers and shorten the life of a garment.

"Since wool is a naturally wrinkle- and soil-resistant fabric, all that's usually needed to refresh a garment is proper hanging and a soft clothes brush," he adds.

Freeman offers these suggestions for keeping wool clothing in good condition:

— Hang your clothes where they can breathe. Wool needs air to help it spring back into shape, so leave plenty of space between wool garments in the closet. Jackets should be hung on wooden or plastic-contoured hangers, skirts by the waistband on skirt hangers.

— Give your clothing a rest. A 24-hour rest period between wearings will help clothes last longer.

— Steam away wrinkles. After wearing or unpacking, hang wool garments on a shower rod over a tub of hot water, to steam away wrinkles and refresh the fabric.

— Brush after every wearing. A soft, firm-bristled brush removes dirt that may be lodged in the fiber. Shake out wool knits, however — don't brush them or hang them. Instead, fold gently and store in a dresser drawer so garment will maintain its shape.

— Follow care label instructions.

— Hand-washed sweaters should be gently rolled in a towel to squeeze out excess water. Dry them flat.

Amy Carter may be next child of political family at Brown

Amy Carter

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — It's not every prospective college freshman who tours campus with a Secret Service guard. But then, not everyone looking for a college is Amy Carter, daughter of former President Jimmy Carter.

"I really like it here," the 17-year-old Miss Carter said Monday after touring Brown University with Carter and his wife, Rosalynn.

"I have a friend who's a freshman here and that really helps," she said, a smile showing her braces. "And they seem to care about what you're thinking."

Amy said her interests tend toward the sciences, including physics — her father's specialty — and astronomy, "but I also love English and ceramics."

If Amy and Brown choose each other — it's one of four schools she's considering for her freshman year next fall — she would be the fifth child of a prominent political family to come here in recent years.

William Mondale and Laura Zaccaro, children of the Democratic presidential and vice presidential candidates, also are students. Ms. Zaccaro's sister Donna graduated in 1983 with John F. Kennedy Jr., son of the late president.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Singer Carole King, known for writing such hit songs as "The Locomotion" and "You've got a Friend," has won a round in her legal battle against Custer County, Idaho, officials who declared an old road through her ranch to be public property.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Monday returned the case to U.S. District Judge Marion Callister in Pocatello, Idaho, to decide whether Ms. King, 42, should have been given notice and a hearing before the county acted.

Callister had ruled Ms. King's rights weren't violated in 1981 when county commissioners declared the road — which had been abandoned in 1939 — to be public property.

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Professional tennis star Ivan Lendl was ticketed for "unsafe movement on a highway" and faces up to a $40 fine after his 1983 Porsche skidded on wet leaves and struck a tree, police said.

The 24-year-old Czechoslovakian suffered minor cuts to his face in the crash Monday afternoon, said Sgt. Douglas Fischer.

Lendl was taken by private car to Greenwich Hospital where he was treated and released, according to emergency room nurse Dolores Nelson.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Dan Haggerty faces arraignment Nov. 6 on two cocaine selling charges, the first filed against an actor "of import" arrested by a year-old entertainment unit of the police department.

Haggerty, television's "Grizzly Adams," was ordered bound over Monday for Superior Court trial on charges he sold 18 grams of cocaine, worth $2,160, to undercover narcotics officers. He is free on $5,000 bond.

Haggerty, 41, starred in the NBC television series "The Life and Times of Grizzly Adams," based on the life of James "Grizzly" Adams, who fled to the wilderness in the late 1800s after being accused of a crime he did not commit.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mother Teresa, who won the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize for her work among "the poorest of the poor" in Calcutta, told a well-dressed crowd at a $12-a-plate breakfast that hunger hits the body and spirit.

"Hunger is not just for a piece of bread," the 74-year-old nun said Monday. "Hunger is for love, deep down in the heart. There is a longing to love and to be loved."

Mother Teresa, the main speaker at the annual Mayor's Prayer Breakfast, was given the city's International Order of Merit.

Events take peculiar turn on networks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — What happens when you run into a notorious British spy and defector in a Moscow theater?

In the case of actress Coral Browne, who was traveling in the Soviet Union on a British cultural exchange program, and Guy Burgess, a principal player in one of the Cold War's most disturbing scandals, events took a peculiar turn.

As recounted in "An Englishman Abroad," Burgess stumbled into Miss Browne's dressing room in 1958. He was drunk, and he threw up in her lavatory. Nevertheless, he was charming and later sent a note asking her to come to his apartment and bring a tape measure.

The clothes Burgess had brought with him when he defected were threadbare, and the proper Englishman wasn't about to buy any baggy Russian suits. He wanted Miss Browne to take his measurements back to his Savile Row tailor.

Miss Browne, now married to Vincent Price, plays herself and Alan Bates plays Burgess. The program will be seen first on the Arts & Entertainment network Tuesday, Oct. 30, and on public television Friday, Nov. 2.

The play resulted from a brief chat Miss Browne had with playwright Alan Bennett. John Schlesinger directed the drama, which won nine BAFTA's, the English equivalent of the Emmy.

"I didn't wish to stick my neck out because it was dangerous," said Miss Browne. "It wouldn't do to be buying clothes for a spy. That's why I kept quiet about it for so many years.

"The clothes were paid for by the Royal Bank of Canada. Mr. Burgess was very well off. He was allowed to buy magazines, books, food and the like on the outside."

Miss Browne bought almost a complete wardrobe for Burgess, and nary an eyebrow was raised by the clerks. Except at the pajama shop, where the clerk refused outright to let a defector and spy sleep in his store's silk pajamas.

She said Burgess "sent me a check for six pounds to take my then-husband to dinner. I had no intention of trying to cash a check from Guy Burgess, even for six pounds."

"An Englishman Abroad" is a charming little play and offers an interesting insight into Burgess' vagabond existence. It's probably the kind of thing, however, that will be more appreciated by the English than Americans —if you have to ask who Guy Burgess was, the drama loses something. Still, it's a witty and diverting show, somewhat like strolling down the street and peeking into windows and overhearing snatches of conversation.

"You think of spies getting a reward," Miss Browne said. "But Guy Burgess lived in a tenement. He had been a man who lived grandly. The steps up to his apartment were crumbling. It was very poor inside his apartment.

"I think part of his deal was to have a man to live with. He was an electrician from the theater. I couldn't wait to leave. Guy Burgess' teeth didn't fit. He couldn't eat his lunch. And he couldn't leave his apartment until he got a telephone call."

Miss Browne said she found it difficult playing herself. "You know who you are," she said. "You read the words — is this really me? Do I sound like that? It was very difficult to play myself."

She said she finally stopped corresponding with Burgess. "I could see myself ordering clothes for the rest of my life," said the Australian-born actress. "I only did it because I felt sorry for him."

Miss Browne will also be seen playing Alice in Wonderland at the age of 80 in the movie "Dream Child." Muppets creator Jim Henson provides the animals and at the end of her life Alice relives the Mad Hatter's tea party.

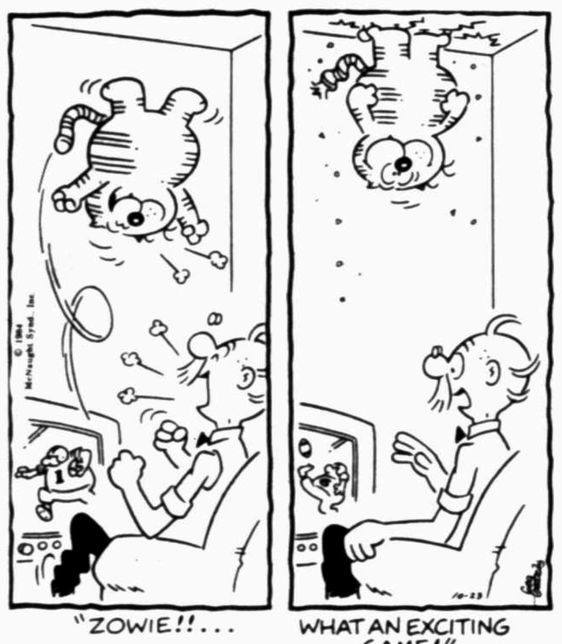

Shucks, it wasn't contest.

LEONARDTOWN, Md. (AP) — The shells flew in the battle between Dave "Diz" Schimke and Ola Mae Carter, but shucks, it was no contest. Schimke claimed the title of the nation's fastest oyster shucker.

The 24-year-old lefthander from Bow, Wash., shucked two dozen of the tasty bivalves in 2 minutes and 41.31 seconds Sunday to win a $500 prize and the right to represent the United States in international competition next September in Galway, Ireland.

Ms. Carter, of St. Mary's County, Md., shucked her batch in 3:38.01.

Actor playing real-life spies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's ironic that actor Alan Bates is in town during a major spy scandal, the arrest of an FBI agent on allegations of providing information to the Soviet Union.

Bates, whose movie roles have ranged from the sympathetic boyfriend in "An Unmarried Woman" to the manipulative manager in "The Rose," is currently playing two real-life spies, one on stage and one in a film for television.

In John Osborne's "A Patriot for Me," at the Ahmanson Theater of the Los Angeles Music Center, he portrays Alfred Redl, a homosexual Austrian soldier who was blackmailed into becoming a double agent for the Russians.

And in "An Englishman Abroad" for PBS, he plays the notorious English spy Guy Burgess, who defected to Russia.

"One (Burgess) is a very extroverted sort of man who went to Russia for idealistic reasons, and the other is a very suppressed man who is blackmailed into being a spy," said Bates.

The choice of roles was coincidental, and Bates prepared for each part separately. "You can't compare them. They're just great roles."

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — What can you give a Minnesotan who has everything?

The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources is putting two 100-foot fire watch towers up for bid. They come fully assembled, ready to be hauled away.

The steel structures and their 131 wooden steps are in fine shape, although the 72 windows in the crow's nests are broken.

And what can the lucky recipient do with the towers?

Stephen Simmer, a forest supervisor, says similar towers sold elsewhere have been used for wind generators, and one was bought by a nature park as a tourist attraction.

Sealed bids on the towers will be opened in St. Paul on Oct. 26.

How would you like to receive bridge lessons from 24 of the world's great players for a matter of pennies? Or, better still, for free?

In 1974-76 the International Bridge Press Association, in association with the Dutch liqueur company Bols, invited 24 experts to each submit a bridge "tip." These were later collected, edited and amplified by Terence Reese in a book "Bridge Tips from the Masters." It was published in 1980 at $10, but the book is now available at $5 (plus 75 cents postage) from The Bridge World, 39 West 94th St., New York, N.Y. 10025. Or, if you order two annual subscriptions from the magazine (each $22), the book is yours free.

This hand was submitted by the great Australian player, Tim Seres. Against three no trump, West elected to lead a short suit in the hope of hitting length in his partner's hand. It would seem that South has an easy path to nine tricks – four spades, one heart, two diamonds and two clubs. But something happened along the way.

Declarer won the king of diamonds and tested the spades by cashing the ace-king. On these East dropped the jack-10, plays that cost nothing but, as it turned out, stood to gain a lot. Not unnaturally, declarer supposed that spades were breaking 4-2, so he continued with a spade to his nine.

Now declarer led his king of hearts in an attempt to create an entry to the table. East held up the ace, and declarer continued with a heart to the 10 and East's jack. Declarer could come to no more than eight tricks.

Seres's advice: "When you can see that declarer is bound to succeed by normal play, look for a chance to give him a losing option." Nothing mystifying about that, is there?

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Actor Kevin Kline, New York Yankee outfielder Omar Moreno, St. Louis Cardinals bullpen coach Jamie Quirk, Junior Ortiz and Ron Gardenshire of the Mets, the late Broadway producer Moss Hart and football's Y.A. Tittle were born on this date. Widen your circle of friends and business contacts and you will have lots of new options. Your career takes a giant leap forward early in 1985. April is the best time for a wedding. Teachers receive excellent news regarding tenure or travel. Put some money aside for a special trip. A shared spiritual experience brings you and romantic partner closer together.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Romance, creative endeavors and distant events prompt excitement today. Cultivate the good will you need to achieve your goals. New backers appear at the critical moment. A change in lifestyle brings greater happiness.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Employment activities enjoy helpful influences. Look into investment opportunities that could increase your personal and joint holdings. Charm and genuine effort help you mend some fences. Be attentive to loved ones.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Follow a business hunch and you make new financial gains. A problem connected with shared funds should be brought out in the open. An anonymous gift arrives. The sender's identity will soon be revealed.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A great day for signing contracts and business agreements. Avoid completing major business deals, however. Be direct in romance. Partner is delighted when you wear your heart on your sleeve.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Something you have enjoyed may be coming to an end. Seek alternatives. Be prepared to settle for a bit less if job or apartment hunting. Romance is best postponed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Seize an opportunity to put some money where it will be safe and earn interest. Someone is considering you for an interesting and lucrative new position. Do your very best at work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): So-called bargains may not be all that they seem. Someone who is usually reliable, may be misinformed. Give a token of your esteem to that special friend or loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Romance grows. Singles give further thought to marriage. Your professional and personal lives mesh nicely now. A raise or promotion is possible. Family member provides helpful information. Show your appreciation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Authority figure could seem to be blocking your progress. Be careful what you do and say. Profits will rise once you get rid of outdated techniques. The evening is made for romance!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keep any promises you made to loved one. Teamwork will get you much farther than going it alone. Use your artistic talents to beautify your home. A Taurus asks for advice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A lost document or family treasure reappears. An excellent day for signing contracts. You could decide to change career fields. A neighbor wants you to get involved in a dispute.

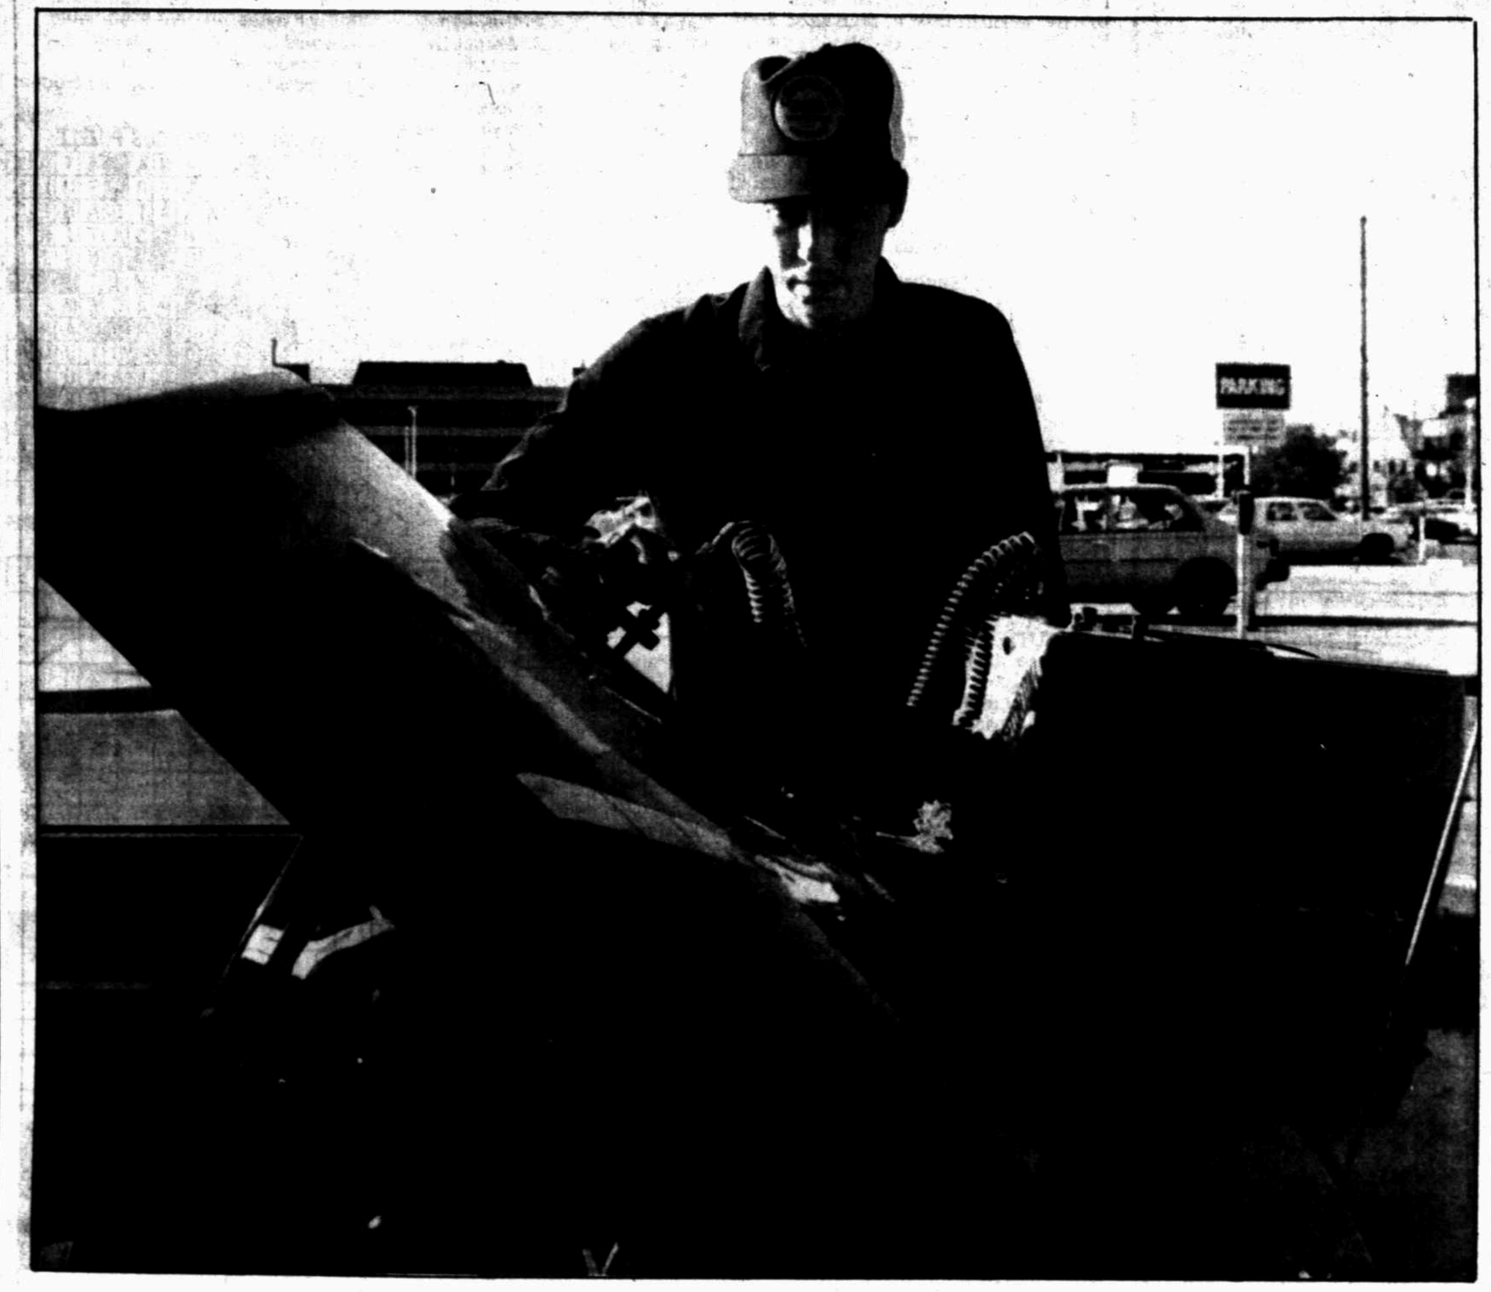

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A great period for those involved in community affairs. Be sure you fulfill all of your family obligations, especially those connected with young children. A new romance could be short-lived.

Unique Windshield Repair beats the alternative - replacement

Unique Windshield Repair puts an end to annoying chips and cracks in your windshield and to the outrageous expense of replacing the glass. Bill Conner, owner of Unique Windshield Repair, uses extreme pressure to inject resin into the crack. The resin then serves as a glue to weld the two layers back together. For more information, call Bill at 685-1967.

Annoying cracks and chips can be repaired in just 15 minutes

Road construction and reconstruction seem to be continuous projects in Midland. That makes the possibility of chips and cracks in your windshield a constant threat. In fact, just when you figure out how to avoid the construction zones, another construction zone pops up on your new route, making it almost impossible to avoid having your windshield struck by gravel which is so easily slung up by passing cars.

Chips and cracks may not be very big but they can certainly be irritating when you're trying to drive. Besides, they really distract from the beauty of the car which you are so proud of. If, however, you've checked into the price of replacing your windshield you probably chalked the nicks up as the price you have to pay for progress.

Unique Windshield Repair puts an end to that. There's no need to just grin and bare it when you can have your windshield looking like new for just a small investment. Unique Windshield Repair can repair any crack up to six inches and the starting price is just $20.

Bill Conner, owner of Unique Windshields Repair, explains that windshields are made of two layers. The outer layer of glass in bonded to a plastic-like inner layer. When the glass begins to pull away from the inner layer, a crack occurs. Regardless of how the crack got there, to get rid of it Bill uses extreme pressure to inject resin into the crack. The resin then acts like a glue and bonds the two layers back together.

This entire process takes only about 15 minutes, but you won't even have to wait around a shop for a single minute. Bill works from a mobile unit. This way he can save you the worry and hassle of getting your car to the repair shop and then yourself on to work. Instead, all you have to do is give Bill a call at 685-1967. He'll come to you.

Furthermore, Bill guarantees his work not to run. He takes care of the windshields for entire fleets of oil company cars. Be assured, he can make yours look great.

Guatemalan refugees fill water containers with water pumped from a tank that gathers rain water at a camp in China, Mexico. In the background is a warehouse, the temporary home for more than 700 Guatemalan refugees while more permanent dwellings are being constructed.

A woman lays next to her child in a makeshift clinic in a refugee camp for Guatemalans in China, Mexico. Refugees are being relocated from areas along the Mexico-Guatemala border to the state of Campeche in the Yucatan Peninsula.

Refugees' resettlement

Text and photos by Associated Press

CHINA, Mexico (AP) — The Mexican government is moving 46,000 Guatemalan refugees, most of them Indian peasants accustomed to living in the highlands, to a resettlement area in a steaming Yucatan Peninsula jungle.

Many of the refugees are protesting the move, aimed at getting them away from refugee camps in Mexico along the Guatemalan border.

The relocation program was announced after armed men, allegedly from Guatemala, attacked one of the camps in April, killing six people.

The Mexican government says better security can be provided for the refugees away from the border and that supplies, health and education can be brought to the Yucatan more easily than to the existing camps where transportation is primitive.

But many of the refugees still in the Chiapas border area do not want to leave. They say the hot, lowland climate of the Yucatan could be unhealthy for people accustomed to living in the highlands. They also contend that living conditions will be equally bad and it will be harder for them to be reunited with their families still in Guatemala.

ROMAN Catholic Church officials in Mexico and Guatemala have expressed concern about the move.

The first to be transferred in the relocation program already have arrived in China, a town near Campeche on the Gulf of Mexico. It is a way station en route to their eventual destination on an isolated federal preserve about 60 miles away.

More than 700 refugees in the relocation program are housed in what was a giant grain warehouse in this Yucatan Peninsula town. Another group of 500 refugees arrived in the Yucatan at the end of June.

The men travel each day to work on what the Mexican Commission for Aid to Refugees calls "habitational modules" for housing at the village of Carrillo Puerto, on a federal jungle reserve known as Canazayab. Each module of wood and corrugated metal is about 24 by 60 feet and is intended to hold five people.

The government said Yucatan was chosen because there is available land in the area.

THE CAMPS now are strung along the border, where the Guatemalan government charges they offer leftist guerrillas a safe haven and recruitment centers.

A Guatemalan woman, suffering from malnutrition, lies on a cot in a makeshift clinic at the refugee camp near China, Mexico.

In the border incident April 30, armed men in civilian clothes attacked a refugee camp, but there were allegations that the armed men were Guatemalan government troops. The Mexican government sent a protest note to Guatemala, which denied the charges that its forces were involved. Guatemala has issued appeals for the refugees to return to their homes.

The Mexican plan to move the refugees away from the border was announced May 10. The first refugees were moved June 1.

Many of the refugees suffer from malnutrition, gastrointestinal diseases or skin diseases because of hygiene problems.

Their home at the warehouse here is primitive. The refugees sleep on the floor, close to their few possessions. There is no privacy and there is continual vigilance from police.

WOMEN COOK and do laundry, spreading clothes to dry in the sun. Children play in the mud or crawl on stacks of firewood or sacks of rice, beans, condensed milk and sardines that have been sent by the Office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Aid to Refugees.

The climate of this region is steaming, with the temperature normally rising to 95 degrees each day.

The jungle vegetation is dense and mosquitos abundant at the site that eventually will hold the new refugee camp, reached now only by paths.

"But, we can get accustomed to it. We believe that we will be OK and that soon other brothers will come here," Andres Juan, who serves as a representative for the refugees, said in an interview.

Most of the Guatemalans are Indians, and only about 30 percent speak Spanish. They speak their own Indian dialects, such as Chuj and Kanjobal.

The language difficulty prevents much mixing with the local people, who for the most part have greeted the refugees' arrival with indifference.

"IF THE government sends them...there's little we can do," Mexican Juan Gonzalez said.

There had been some fears that the refugees would compete with local residents for jobs, although the plan calls for them to work on now-untilled lands.

The refugees started coming to Mexico in large numbers in 1980, when leftist guerrillas intensified their activities in the northwestern highlands of Guatemala and the Guatemalan government responded with counterinsurgency campaigns.

Mexico has been anxious to show that its traditional status as a haven for political exiles will not be affected by the large influx from its southern neighbors, but the government has made it plain that the "most desirable option" would be the voluntary repatriation of the refugees with guarantees for their security.

Britain's top women believe their achievements still novelty

By EDITH M. LEDERER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON — Despite having a queen and a woman prime minister, Britain's female pacesetters say there's a long way to go before women at the top are no longer a novelty.

The subject was "How to be First" when 500 leading British women — minus Queen Elizabeth II and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher — gathered Monday for the 29th annual "Women of the Year" luncheon at the Savoy Hotel.

But there was loud applause when the country's first woman union leader said she looked forward to the day when there were so many women in top jobs that there wasn't any need for a luncheon.

"The fact that we're having lunch today proves that it is still regarded as special for women to be successful," said Brenda Dean, president and general secretary-elect of the Society of Graphical and Allied Trades, Britain's largest print union.

The guest list included the first female Lord Mayor of London, Dame Mary Donaldson; eminent historian Lady Antonia Fraser; Olympic javelin gold medalist Tessa Sanderson; as well as women chief executives, scientists, stock brokers, artists and politicians.

Recounting some of the pitfalls of being a pioneer at the top, Dame Mary recalled how an elderly bishop insisted on the "ladies first" rule entering a church pew — even though the Lord Mayor always entered last. The result was a standoff.

"There have been problems, the biggest one being that whatever I did was setting a precedent for any woman who might follow me," said the first woman in more than 800 years elected to the largely ceremonial post of running the City of London financial district.

"My biggest failure has been not to persuade any (other woman) to do so."

Said Lady Antonia Fraser: "I grew up thinking that if there is a second sex — which I don't for a minute admit — it isn't women.... I think it's optimism and determination that got me where I am."

Soviet cosmonaut Valentina Tereshkova, the first woman in space and a special international guest, said: "What is important is that many women in my country might have been in my place."

Recalling her 1963 flight in Vostok-6, Miss Tereshkova said: "I was lucky to be the first woman who saw our planet from space.... It is imperative for all living beings on this beautiful planet to treat it kindly, not to permit the flames of war to engulf our planet."

Miss Dean, who started as a typist in the printing industry, said: "Women have got to become much more involved in decision-making in numbers. Although we're there, we don't have our roots bedded-in."

She said British girls are not told "to challenge the levels of their abilities" and that this is reflected in the job market where the average adult woman in a non-manual job earns 124.30 pounds ($147.92) against 209 pounds ($249) for the average man.

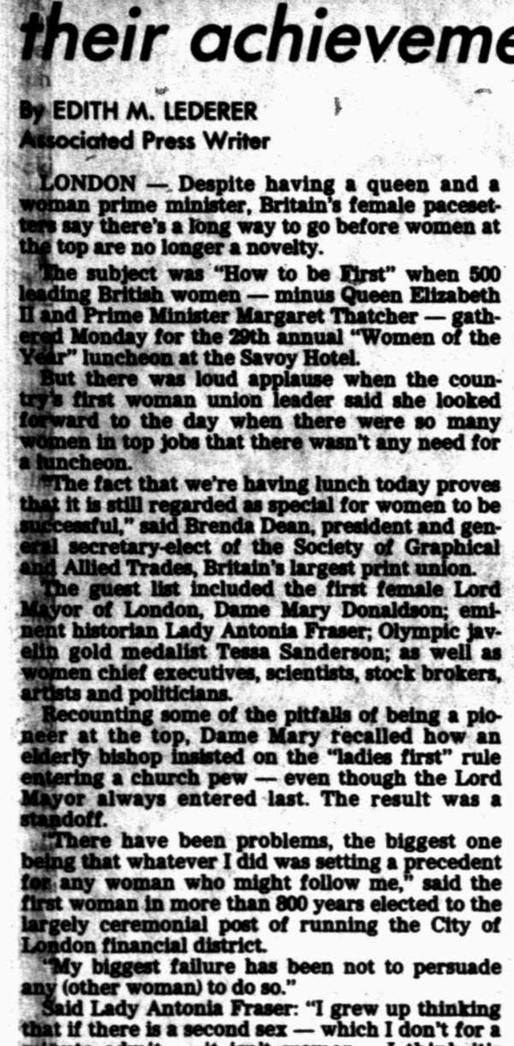

Miss Dean was strongly applauded when she suggested that every woman in the audience help promote a young woman with potential.

Among the nobility in the audience were the queen's lady-in-waiting, Lady Susan Hussey, and the Duchess of Kent, who is married to the queen's cousin.

Tennis star Virginia Wade, the only woman on the committee that runs the Wimbledon championships, said: "I think women in Britain are more liberated than in the United States, but I don't think the average woman has great expectations. I don't think they expect great success.

"I don't think there's such a strong 'macho' feeling here. I think if you're a strong, successful woman, men value your views and accept you. I think English men still have that chivalrous attitude," she said.

The annual luncheons were initiated by author and broadcaster Lady Lothian. This year's luncheon raised $27,370 for the Greater London Fund for the Blind.

Ortega says elections will be held as planned

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The coordinator of Nicaragua's Sandinista junta says the government will hold elections Nov. 4 even if all opposition parties boycott the voting.

"We will go to the elections with one, two, five or seven parties and in the end, if all abstain, the Sandinista Front will go alone to the elections, but they will be held Nov. 4," said Daniel Ortega, the Sandinistas' presidential candidate, in an interview Monday with the leftist government's Voice of Nicaragua radio station.

Elsewhere in Central America, leftist rebels attacked El Salvador's power lines for a second day Monday, shutting off electricity in the capital and most of the north, and the U.S. Embassy expressed "outrage" over the slaying of a peasant leader's 14-year-old son by a rightist death squad.

Ortega was commenting on the Independent Liberal Party's announcement that it is joining the Nicaraguan Democratic Coordinate, the nation's largest opposition group, in boycotting the vote for president, vice president and a national assembly.

The decision of the Independent Liberals, a small but influential party, to withdraw from the election was announced Sunday after a 94-20 vote on the issue at a party convention. It leaves the Sandinista National Liberation Front and five small parties in the campaign.

The Nicaraguan Democratic Coordinate, composed of four parties, a businessmen's association and two labor federations, did not register for the elections. It demanded a postponement to allow more time to campaign, an end to what it said was harassment of its rallies, and complete press freedom.

Orlando Quinonez, secretary of the Independent Liberals, said Monday the elections should be postponed until next February. He called for the governing junta to be ousted and replaced by a government including all Nicaraguan political parties.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Lebanese, Druse exchange fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese army troops and Druse militiamen clashed with artillery, tank cannons and rocket launchers today at the embattled government stronghold of Souk el-Gharb in the hills above Beirut.

There were no casualty reports from the fighting, which took place on the first anniversary of the suicide bombing of the U.S. Marine and French headquarters of the multi-national peacekeeping force, which ended its mission earlier this year.

A memorial service for the U.S. and French servicemen was planned in Christian east Beirut, and mention of the anniversary of the bomb attacks was made by the Christian-controlled "Voice Of Lebanon" radio station.

Police said a cease-fire agreement stopped the hour-long clash between the army and the Druse. It broke out a few hours after Prime Minister Rashid Karami announced he would revive negotiations next month on a security plan to defuse civil war tensions in the central Lebanese mountains.

Priest's kidnapping questioned

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Leading figures in the outlawed Solidarity labor movement say the kidnapping of a pro-Solidarity priest, the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, may be linked to an anti-union "terrorist group" operating in northern Poland.

Janusz Onyszkiewicz, former national spokesman for the union, said the underground press had documented similar abductions in the Torun area, about 125 miles northwest of Warsaw.

Popieluszko, 37, is one of the Polish clergy's most outspoken advocates of the now-outlawed Solidarity labor union and had been the target of frequent government criticism for his pro-Solidarity sermons.

He was kidnapped Friday night on a highway near Torun by a group of men, one of whom was wearing a police uniform. His disappearance has brought expressions of concern from the Roman Catholic Church, which said the kidnapping appeared to be political.

Tourists captured in Ethiopia

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Rebels fighting for self-rule in Ethiopia's Tigray province captured 10 foreigners, including two American tourists, in an assault on a town, the Red Cross and a rebel spokesman report.

They listed the detained foreigners as an International Red Cross representative, three West German medical personnel and six tourists — two Americans, two Britons, an Australian and a Finn.

Yemane Kidane, a spokesman for the Tigray People's Liberation Front, told reporters in Khartoum, the Sudanese capital, that the foreigners were seized when the front's guerrillas captured the town of Lalibela on Friday. He said he did not have the names of the tourists but said all 10 were safe.

Kidane said the foreigners were not hostages but added, "they are under our custody by virtue of controlling Lalibela."

Parachutist questions firing

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — A Chicago man says he was ordered to leave a U.S. research base after making what he believes was the first civilian parachute jump in the Antarctic, a New Zealand news agency reports.

Tom Curran, 32, said Monday night he was ordered to leave the U.S. research facility at McMurdo base within minutes of a smooth parachute landing Saturday near the Antarctic station, according to the New Zealand Press Association.

Curran said he had arrived at McMurdo five days earlier on a six-month contract as part of an American research program run by the National Science Foundation.

No. 16,493
IN THE MATTER OF THE MARRIAGE OF LISA K. ANDERSON AND WAYLAND DON ANDERSON IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF MIDLAND COUNTY, TEXAS 318TH JUDICIAL DISTRICT ORIGINAL PETITION
This suit is brought by LISA K. ANDERSON, petitioner, who is 22 years of age and who resides in Midland, Midland County, Texas. WAYLAND DON ANDERSON, Respondent, is 21 years of age and resided in Ector County, Texas.
I.
Petitioner has been a domiciliary of this state for the preceding six-month period and a resident of this county for a preceding 90-day period.
II.
Citation by publication or other substituted service is necessary for the reasons set forth in the affidavit filed with this petition.
III.
The parties were married on or about October 7, 1982 and ceased to live together as husband and wife on or about October 14, 1982.
The marriage has become insupportable because of discord or conflict of personalities between Petitioner and Respondent that destroys the legitimate ends of the marriage relationship and prevents any reasonable expectations of reconciliation.
IV.
No child has been born or adopted to this marriage and none is expected.
V.
Petitioner believes Petitioner and Respondent will enter into an agreement for the division of their estate. If such agreement is not made, Petitioner requests the court to order a division of their estate in a manner that the court deems just and right, as provided by law.
VI.
Petitioner request a change of name to LISA K. OWENS.
PRAYER
Petitioner prays that citation and notice issue as required by law and that the Court grant a divorce and decree such other relief requested in this petition.
Petitioner prays that her name be changed as requested above.
Petitioner prays for general relief.
Respectfully submitted,
TORRES, TORRES & CARR

"Some people only live this way two weeks a year."

Welcome to vacation living all year long. Welcome to Saddle Club Apartments. Saddle Club isn't a resort-we just look like one. We offer you 2 sparkling swimming pools, 2 lighted tennis courts, 2 indoor racquetball courts, a universal gym, indoor and outdoor jacuzzis, and wet and dry saunas.

There's privacy here, but if you want activities, we have planned resident get-togethers.

Rent beginning at $309. We're located only minutes from major businesses, recreation, fine restaurants and entertainment. We're probably only a few minutes away from where you work.

Once inside a Saddle Club apartment home you can cozy up to a warm fireplace, relax on your own patio or balcony and enjoy the feeling of luxury living.

So if you feel like taking a vacation that never has to end, take a drive over to Saddle Club and let us show you how.
