

ST. JOSEPH'S HOSPITAL AUXILIARY—ORGANIZED TO SERVE

An organization through which Wellington women can serve others is St. Joseph's Hospital Auxiliary, whose members give their time regularly to duties that make life more comfortable for patients and their families. As a few of these services, they operate a book cart, and another cart from which the patient may buy toothpaste, candy bars and other small items. Their newest is the help-yourself service of coffee and sandwiches for relatives sitting with patients. Each member, while she is on duty, wears a distinctive rose and white uniform, in a style standard for hospital auxiliary volunteers. Each one has the emblem of the Texas Hospital Auxiliary Association. At upper left, Mrs. J. M. Orr, who was visiting each patient with the book cart, helps Donald Martin choose a book to interest a boy his age. His mother, Mrs. Jim Martin, looks on. At right, Mrs. Bill Hughes, president, and Sister Mary Rupert, hospital administrator, plan Auxiliary work. Each project is one for which a definite need exists. Mrs. Doyle Stallings, lower left, makes a purchase from Mrs. Peck White, one of several rural women who make the Auxiliary one of their activities. At right, Mrs. Russell Yates gets a cup of coffee for W. C. Winchester, Rochester, who was with a patient at the hospital.

Contrast Emphasizes Failure to Ground Our Youth in Ideals

from The Houston Chronicle.

Americans are familiar with the shameful fact that one third of our soldiers who were captured by the enemy during the Korean war succumbed to brainwashing. In the words of Maj. William E. Mayer, Army psychiatrist, "They became something called 'progressive'. By the Communists' own definition, this meant that a man was either a Communist sympathizer or collaborator—or both—during his stay in a prison camp."

As against this unexpected and alarming espousal of enemy ideas and betrayal of American principles, the Turks who were taken prisoner provided a spectacular example of resistance to psychological pressure and torture. We have that on the word of Brig. Gen. Willis A. Perry who was high in the security setup in Korea during the fighting there. And according to the Turkish Digest, not one of the 229 Turks who were taken prisoner "succumbed to brainwashing, not one collaborated with the enemy."

What is responsible for this violent contrast in behavior of Americans and Turks?

Gen. Perry ascribed the Turks' resistance primarily to their superior discipline and organization.

Maj. Mayer, a student of the human mind, thinks it goes deeper than that. He says that for one third of the American prisoners to become, in effect, traitors "appears to raise serious question about American character and about the education of Americans."

Our men obviously had not been sufficiently steeped in American principles, traditions and love of country. Many of the prisoners themselves said as much, after they were released. They either had not been taught the history of their own country or they had not been taught properly; they had not been given the facts and the principles that would have enabled them to counter the Communist lies.

Americans consider their traditions finer and nobler than others', but our youth evidently have no such devotion for the traditions and principles of their native land as the Turks have for theirs.

It is the fault of the older generation which has failed to inculcate political and religious principles into our youth sufficiently. We must do better in the future or the outlook is not reassuring.

The Pace of Learning

from The Lock Haven (Pa.) Express

An educator in Pittsburgh, who is having considerable success with the experiment of teaching regular school classes by way of the TV screen, makes the comment that he thinks many children could learn faster than they do. A similar comment has been made by Dr. Conant, the educator-diplomat who has just finished a comprehensive study of the American high school. He reports, as one of his principal findings, that bright students do not work hard enough in school.

The Pittsburgh teacher believes that children could learn more in a grade than they are now asked to master, and Dr. Conant believes that more should be done to make brainy young people use their brains to full capacity.

Neither parents nor pupils nor teachers are likely to dispute the conclusions of these educators very energetically, because all are aware that a fairly leisurely pace has developed in our processes of education.

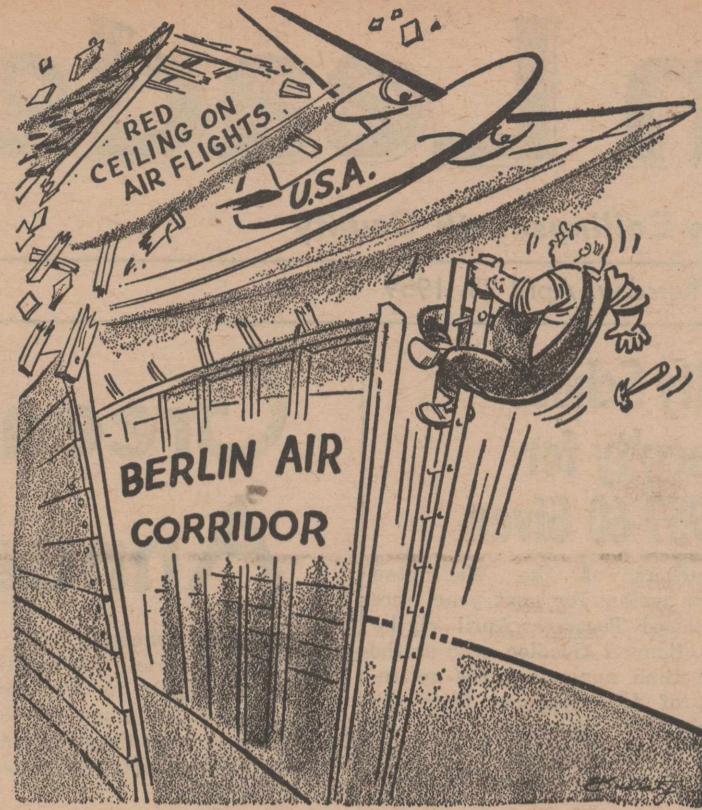

The problem of speeding up education, so children can learn more in the same length of time, or learn just as much in less time, is the next big challenge to our system of public schools. The challenge is aimed chiefly at educators and taxpayers, because most young people are willing to let their elders set the pace of learning for them. Since they do not know how much there is to learn, they are willing to take all the time their elders will allow. Those who know that there is a great deal for every youngster to learn are lax in their responsibilities if they do not create an educational system which makes boys and girls learn what they ought to know, as fast as they can take it in.

REPORT

Dear Editor:

I see where one of the main things that has been dithering Washington here lately is that the country has got more than a year's supply of grain on hand.

So you would have thought they'd feel glad to find half a million bushels of the stuff had disappeared from a place where they had it cached in Illinois.

But my Benson-bored neighbor notes the powers getting nasty with the fellow it was stored with, so he guesses government is ungrateful, just like an old boy whose wife gives him lots of trouble is apt to not appreciate it when somebody takes her off his hands.

I see where the Supreme Court has ruled it's all right for Texas A&M college to run a segregated school which discriminates against women.

There are some writers saying it is not consistent to proclaim that all the races have equal rights to go to tax-supported schools but not the different sexes.

My disarmed neighbor says the high judges are, too, being consistent, on account of they didn't put anything in this ruling either to make the Communists feel bad.

I see where some money experts say Uncle Sam has been going deeper in debt every year for so long this is now the normal way of life.

My unheeled economist neighbor says he reckons that being a deadbeat and never paying up your debts is just one of those things you have to live with, like being bald-headed.

But says now that the deficit habit has been taken off the sin list he can stop worrying about maybe having to help pay off the national debt if people got careless and elected a Congress full of debt-payers.

I see where Postal Pontiff Summerfield promises when people start traveling to the moon, they will practically find their mail waiting for them when they get there.

My impatient neighbor says they must have the route already set up and that's where his last letter got missent to which took 11 days to go 600 miles.

But says maybe the delay could not be helped. Mr. Summerfield may be pretty short-handed these days, on account of having to put a lot of his mail clerks on guard duty to keep from stealing his new ballpoint pens.

I see where the style bosses say us men have got to wear hats with narrows brims this year, even if the fool-killer gets us.

Which my beat-dad neighbor says is just a clever communists plot to undermine father prestige in the U.S.A.

On account of how can kids be expected to look up to a dude-hatted dad when they know from TV that any man worthwhile wears a wide-brimmed hat and solves his problems with a six-shooter.

I see where the administration has about given up the theory that lowering prices on farm products will cut down the output of same.

My pro farmer neighbor says it was a pretty weak theory anyhow, on account of ignoring such facts of life as: The less a man's stuff brings, the more of it he got to raise to keep his banker in a good humor.

Says what ought to be tried now is higher prices, to see if this wouldn't give bankers a shorter whip, so farmers could cultivate more laziness and less corn.

John Quincy Adams was the only president's son ever to serve in the White House.

I Saw . . . by Virginia Robey

Personally, we are for Orville Cunningham and Don Ward 100 per cent in this one: A short time ago a Samnorwood youngster wanted to quit school. The superintendent and principal were trying to persuade him otherwise, pointing out that sometime he'd want to marry, and with the education he had, he couldn't support a family. "Why you couldn't even work at a service station. You can't figure well enough now to make change for a tank of gas," one of them told the boy. He thought a minute. "I could work at a service station, too. That's all figured out on a chart on the pump," he replied.

Roy Horn of The Toggery dropped by to tell the wife of a customer: "Your husband left everything but a six-shooter in his trousers pocket. I don't smoke and I can't write, so here's his cigarettes and fountain pen."

James Glascock, student in the theological seminary at SMU, came home one week end recently to perform two "firsts" that come in the life of every pastor—his first wedding and first funeral. The wedding was that of his father, John Glascock to Mrs. Katie Close of Shamrock, a long-time friend of the family. The funeral was that of the Glascock's closest neighbor, George Jones.

Church Note: When a recent evening service ended at First Baptist Church, there was an extra child in the nursery. She just didn't belong to anyone. Then her mother rushed in—she had parked her child in the church nursery while she attended the picture show a block away.

The wisteria has been especially lovely, and one of the most interesting vines is at the Clyde Drake home. It was planted by Nora's grandmother, the late Mrs. R. H. The vine in the front yard of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Nowlin is a shoot from Mrs. Cocke's.

It Pays to Own a Dodge!

(It could save you hundreds of dollars!)

Okay, it's settled. You've thought about it and talked about it and now you've decided: A new car—and soon. Now for the jackpot question. Which '59 car will it be?

Unless you happen to be a Mr. Gotrocks, you'll probably think pretty carefully before you finally make the move. You'll do more shopping and compare more closely. And you'll ask yourself some basic questions. How much will a new car cost me to buy? How much will it cost me to drive? What do I get for my money?

There is no mystery about new car prices

Until this year, it was hard to compare different makes of cars to find which offered the most value for the money. It was like comparing apples and bananas. But not any more. Not since all new cars are required to carry price labels. Now, for the first time, you can compare various makes and models and see exactly what you're getting for your money. It's like exposing the hole cards in a game of stud poker: You know exactly where you stand.

Why should you buy a Dodge?

No one has to tell you that there are a number of cars on the market that sell for less than a Dodge. No cigar on that count. You know it and we know it. But there are things you get in a Dodge that you simply can't get in these other smaller cars. And this is important. Dodge gives you all of these things—the bigness and roominess, the comfort and ride, the luxury and prestige—for less than other cars in its field.

It's not just a few dollars less, either; in many cases it's literally hundreds of dollars less. Some Dodge models are even priced lower than the so-called "low-priced cars." (We'll be happy to show you the actual suggested retail prices.)

All cars cost money to run—but how much?

It would be nice if you just bought a new car and that was that. It didn't burn gas. Didn't use oil. Never needed service. But that's wishful thinking. Cars do use gas and oil. They do need service occasionally. But that doesn't mean that all cars cost the same to drive and maintain. Not by a jugful. There's a big difference.

Dodge is designed to run for less

Dodge has always had a reputation for economical operation. People who have owned them have found it costs less to run a Dodge, and that a Dodge needs service less often.

Take gasoline economy. The new Dodge 326 cu. in. Red Ram V-8 engine, because of its design and efficiency, will take you miles farther on a gallon of gas than any other V-8 in the Dodge field. You save money every mile you drive.

But that's only part of the story. The way Dodge is engineered and built saves you money on such things as engine wear, brake relining, tune-ups, spark plug replacement. When you add them all up, they represent quite a saving. Another reason why it pays to own a Dodge.

What do you get for what you pay?

According to Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Prices, Dodge generally costs less, model for model, than other cars in its field. Fine and dandy. But while price is important, it isn't the only consideration. The real standard of value—whether you're buying a new car or a can of beans—is what you get for what you pay. It's the "extras" you get at no extra cost that really determine which car is the best buy.

Dodge gives you more for less

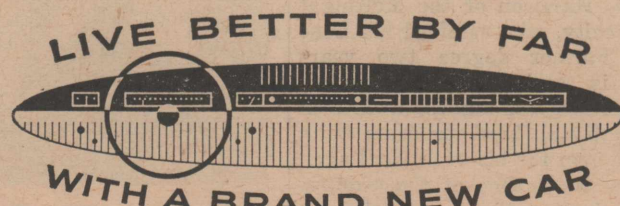

Talk is cheap. Anyone can make claims. So let's be specific about the extras you get in Dodge at no extra cost. Torsion-Aire Ride—conceded the finest suspension in the industry—standard equipment on all Dodge models. Total-Contact Brakes, Safety-Rim Wheels, Electric Windshield Wipers, Independent Parking Brake—all standard on Dodge. Of course, you can also choose from such Dodge options as Push-Button Driving, Full-Time Power Steering and Swing-Out Swivel Seats.

There's a big difference in comfort, too

Goodness knows, we certainly don't want to knock competition. But we feel obligated to point out the comfort and convenience of the '59 Dodge. If you've tried getting into some of the other '59 cars you know just what we mean. To say it is difficult would honestly be an understatement. That's why we hope you'll come in and compare the difference in Dodge. How much easier it is to get in and out of a Dodge. How much more comfortable it is to sit in a Dodge. How much more room you have to stretch out. Really, it pays to own a Dodge.

It doesn't cost a penny to get the facts

We don't expect you to rush in and plunk down your money for a new Dodge just on the basis of what you've read. But if what you've read seems to make sense, we do hope you'll stop in to see, to drive and to price a Dodge. We think it's a waste of a buy, but then maybe we're prejudiced. Why not drop in and judge for yourself. We'll be more than happy to give you all the facts. No obligation, of course.

Rogers Opposes Fee on Underground Water

Editor's Note: State Senator Andy Rogers in the article below sets forth his position on a proposed plan for a charge of a fee for the use of underground and surface water, a plan he has fought for several years

The recent submission by the joint water advisory committee of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers and the Texas Section of the American Society of Civil Engineers to the State Senate Finance committee of a plan for the charge of a State fee which amount to a tax, for the right to use underground and surface water has aroused considerable interest and speculation. I believe it is my duty as your State Senator to make available to you my position on this proposal.

In brief, this plan has my full opposition.

In the first place, the plan tends to place surface and underground water in the same legal position. To this I am vigorously opposed.

Underground water is and should occupy a different status. In 1949, I co-authored a legislative act which declared Underground Water private property of the fee owner of the land.

The law says Surface Water is State property. As this is supported by the Constitution there is little point in discussing the "right or wrong" of this status of surface water.

Nearly 90% of our underground water is used for agricultural purposes. I cannot support the idea of taxing this private property to finance study and development of public (surface) waters for use by the general public. We do not even tax oil companies for the oil and gas they produce until it goes into commercial channels. Oil and gas companies can use all they wish or need of this private property of theirs for their own use without any tax. I can see no justification therefore, for taxing the farmers, ranchers, and cities of our area for the use of their own private water supplies.

Generally, most new water developments in our State will be the utilization of surface waters - state owned property. Nearly all of this water and its future utilization will be outside of West Texas. It will be used primarily for industry and the millions concentrated in our major cities.

In 1955 I talked 5 1/2 hours on the floor of our State Senate as my part of a filibuster to defeat a state-wide property tax to be used for the development of the surface waters of our State. I did not think such a program was fair to West Texas. This new proposal by two Societies of professional engineers employs the same unfair principle.

It is important that the people of West Texas make their opposition to this unfair proposal heard. I would advise letting all State

Why Gamble?

Yes, why gamble . . . when there's no chance of winning? That's the kind of gambling you're involved in when you drive your car beyond the recommended period without having the oil changed.

Although you may use the very best motor oil, such as Phillips 66 Trop-Artic*, there comes a time when the accumulation of impurities in the oil reduces its efficiency.

That's why lubrication experts say: the best motor protection is to use the best motor oil, and change it every 1,000 miles under average around-town driving conditions.

Be sure to let your Phillips 66 Dealer change oil for you on schedule.

Officials from the governor on down know just what you think. The Chairman of the Senate Finance committee has already been quoted as favoring this plan. As desperate as your Legislature is for new sources of revenue to meet our present state deficit and future budget, anything could happen. It may be later than you think.

Every year . . . at great expense in time, money and love . . . we turn out another fine crop of young men and women . . . trained and schooled and ready to take their places in the adult world. And every year the big cities get most of them . . . because we haven't enough jobs for them to do.

- It's very generous of us to go to all of this trouble and expense to furnish high grade personnel for city use.

- Of course, we'd like very much to keep them here near us because we love them. And we could use nearly all of them if we should develop a real selfish streak some day and decide to wean the big cities we have been helping to support.

- The money we spend out of town every year, if most of it was spent here, would provide many more job and business opportunities for our young people.

- It would make the grass a good deal greener for most of us older citizens, too.

SWIMMING WISH COMES TRUE FOR BLIND 10-YEAR-OLD

Most little girls delight in make-believe games and wishing-well fancies. Janie Cummings, 10 of Austin, is no exception when it comes to make-believe games but in wishes, she wants only wishes that can be made to come true.

For instance, not long ago, Janie "wishes" that she could ride a bike and become adept at roller-skating. In no time at all, she made both of these "wishes" come true.

Another for instance—last summer, Janie "wished" that she could water ski. Her parents told her that it would be a good idea to first learn to swim. Well, Janie has learned to swim, gaining the knowledge within the past few weeks at the YWCA.

She dives from the highest board and swims "roundtrip" with nary a stop, from one end of the YW's big pool to the other. When summer's weather really arrives, she is going to tackle the remaining half of her "water ski wish."

Time to Order Quail for Stocking Says Commission

AUSTIN — Land owners are being urged to send in their application for quail for stocking purposes, according to the assistant secretary of the Game and Fish Commission.

"Our State game farm at Tyler is in spring operation," said. "We are beginning to receive applications now from land owners who want to stock their land with quail again this year. Before these applications are processed it is necessary that release areas be inspected by game warden. In this manner will be certain there is plenty of food and cover available." Quail are sold to the land owner at 50 cents each, which is about half the cost of production. In some areas clubs buy the birds for the land owners. In this way habitat improvement continues.

Reports from wardens throughout the state indicate there also was a good carry-over of native birds from last season, despite the scourge of rats in some parts of the State. The birds now are able to get new green food to eat and emaciated birds are showing signs of improvement.

Additional releases of coturnix quail also will be made this year, according to the secretary. He said when brood birds were taken from laying pens and placed in holding pens during the winter months they continued to lay.

Social Security Allows Limited Annual Earnings

Many people receiving social security payments believe that they will lose all of their checks for every month if their annual earnings are over $1200.00, Hal Geldon, Manager of the Amarillo, Texas, Social Security Administration Office stated today. This is not true. The Social Security Office in Amarillo, Texas, advises in some cases that persons whose earnings exceed $1200.00 per year will receive some monthly benefits, if they do not perform any services in some months after becoming entitled!

As an example, John Green, let's say, has total earnings of $1680.00 during the year in which he became age 65 in January. John would be entitled to checks for six months of that year even though he had earned over $1200.00. Another example is the case of Bill Brown. Bill is self-employed operating a swimming pool. The business is seasonal and is open only in June, July and August each year.

Bill's annual earnings are $2200.00 but he does not work in any of the other months of the year. He is entitled to all but three of his checks for that year. Questions concerning social security should be directed to the Amarillo, Texas, Social Security Office, located at 324 New Street contest.

Boys Warned on Changing Draft Cards

AUSTIN — Young men who change birth dates or Selective Service numbers on draft registration certificates are now subject to immediate induction into the Army as delinquents.

President Eisenhower has authorized this by executive order revising the Selective Service regulations, Colonel Morris S. Schwartz, state Selective Service director, said Tuesday.

Young men in numerous instances have been changing birth dates and draft numbers on the card certificates they carry on their persons so as to indicate an age of 21 or more.

"They have done this," Colonel Schwartz said, "for the purpose of falsely representing that they are eligible to purchase beer or liquor, or to be admitted to places forbidden by law to persons under 21."

"The amendment of Section 1617.1 of the draft regulations," the state director commented, "will permit local boards, if they desire, under the provisions of Section 1642.4, to declare men delinquent when they fail to possess certificates which have not been changed or altered.

"Men so declared delinquent are ordered for induction ahead of other men by reason of the delinquency," the state director concluded.

All Oklahoma senators and representatives have pledged their support to the Oklahoma Salt Fork association in its efforts to develop the $17 million irrigation project west of Mangum, James P. Garrett, executive director, reported Monday.

The group includes Sens. Robert Kerr and Mike Monroney, Reps. Toby Morris, John Jarman, Carl Albert, Page Belcher, Ed Edmondson and Tom Steed, according to the Greer County News April 13.

Mangum people should write their senators and representatives urging them to continue support of the Mangum project, Garrett stressed.

"It helps to send a delegation to Washington to promote a project but our congressmen also are impressed by letters from the people," Garrett observed. "In every instance they rate a project by the amount of local interest shown."

Fred Aandahl, assistant secretary of the interior, has assured Garrett that house resolution 4405 providing a Salt Fork water resources survey in Texas would be "a valuable supplement to the Mangum project."

Rep. Toby Morris of Lawton first asked congress to delay consideration of the bill in order to study its effect on the Mangum project. Then he withdrew his objection when no conflict was evident and the house passed to bill April 8.

Aandahl's letter to Garrett is as follows:

"Your letter concerning the Mangum project and the water resources of the Salt Fork of Red River has been referred to the bureau of reclamation for consideration in connection with its current activity in that vicinity.

"We are pleased to note the intense interest shown locally in the Mangum project. The studies proposed by house resolution 4405 would be a valuable supplement to the Mangum project investigation and would provide certain information which is essential to any

Use of Mud Flaps Required

AUSTIN — Colonel Homer Garrison, Jr., Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said today that under a new State law it is now illegal to operate dual-wheeled vehicles on the highways without mud-flaps on the rear to protect drivers in back of them.

The law, which formerly applied only when the pavement was wet, now requires mud flaps in all kinds of weather for certain vehicles. It became effective April 2, 1959.

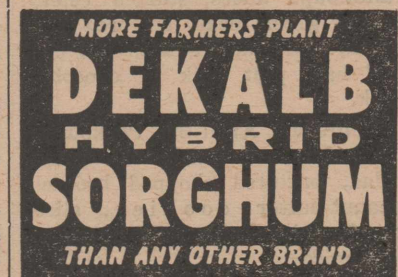

Under regulations issued by the Department, Garrison said, the flaps may be made of metal, rubber, rubberized material or other substantial material rigid enough to prevent mud, slush, gravel or other matter from being thrown from the rear of a dual-wheeled vehicle into the windshield of a vehicle following.

Pole trailers, truck tractors operated alone and without being in combination with a semi-trailer, and all trucks operated on private property do not come under the provisions of the new law.

finding of feasibility for the Mangum project.

"The interdependence of these two studies was discussed in the recent hearing on house resolution 4405 before the irrigation and reclamation sub-committee of the house committee on interior and insular affairs and will almost certainly be brought out in any future hearing on the bill!"

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

Senator Andy Rogers has taken a position strongly opposing the proposed tax on the use of water for irrigation purposes. There is a story in this issue explaining his position in detail and it makes interesting reading. However farmers here need little explanation. All they want to know is that the Senator is working against such a levy as hard as he can and this applies to those who have no irrigation at this time for many of these plan to try for irrigation in the future.

Orville Vaughan is one who believes that some day the Wellington area will have three times as much irrigation from wells as there is now. He thinks that in time we will learn a lot more about where to find the water and how to bring them in. And of course there is always the possibility of more irrigation from surface water.

The pictures of Fidel Castro in Washington, bearded and flushed with victory, were not pleasing; but far more disquieting are the stories of Castro's Communist associates. There is nothing to indicate that Castro is a Communist, but it is known that he hates the United States. He has named his brother Raul to be his successor in case of his death. Raul has attended Communist youth congress in and has visited behind the Iron Curtain as a guest of the Communists. Other of the dictators key people are acknowledged Communists. In fact the Communists have entrenched themselves in the schools, the press, labor and the Army in this land that is our next door neighbor. We will probably wind up by sending him a big chunk of American tax dollars.

It looks like our fruit crop has gotten by for one more week in spite of the dire predictions that were on the radio Tuesday morning, and the date for a killing frost has just about passed. Fruit is not too important here except to a few growers, but it is mighty nice for the housewives to know that there will be all the peaches they want.

Lunch in Snow

Cub Scouts in Denver Educational Tour

Six Wellington Cub Scouts packed into a week-end educational tour a view of the new Air Force Academy, breakfast in Denver's tallest building, and lunch during a snowfall at 9,000 feet.

The boys, with their sponsors, were part of the group of 400 who participated in the tour, sponsored each year by the Fort Worth and Denver Railway. Going were Dan Hatch, Jimmy Campbell, Lewis Watkins, Gary Killian, James Roy Fulcher and Henry Wells, along with Mrs. Billy Hatch and Mrs. Deskins Wells.

The group left Friday evening from Childress and returned Sunday at noon and their trip started in top form when they learned one of the conductors. Ewing Talley, formerly lived in Wellington and knew their fathers.

The train reached Colorado after daylight, and the boys saw the Air Force Academy and Pike's Peak.

Buses took them from Denver to Estes Park, through an irrigated section where sugar beets are the principal crop, with a stop at the Lake Estes Power Plant.

They drove up Hidden Valley through deep snow to a ski lodge for lunch.

On the return trip to Denver, the boys were taken to the bureau of Standards at Boulder for a scientific demonstration and lecture.

Their last stop before boarding the train for home was a visit to the Denver Zoo.

The train was delayed nearly three hours between Amarillo and Childress, due to damaged track near Claude, caused when a freight car lost a wheel.

Farm Bureau Gives Wheat Surplus Plan

Three members of the Collingsworth County Farm Bureau, Monty Mitchell of Quail; H. P. Scott of Dodson and County Agent Bob Lynch, attended a meeting in Wheeler Tuesday, April 14, to hear an explanation of the organization's proposed wheat program.

In an effort to get rid of the nation's 1,800,000,000 bushel wheat surplus, the Farm Bureau has proposed (1) the elimination of the farm program provision that would allow farmers without wheat allotments to plant up to 15 acres of wheat, and (2) set up a "soil bank" in which farmers would put their wheat acreage, buy back from the Commodity Credit Corporation wheat at 85c per bushel and sell it on the open market, feed it, or do what they wished with it.

Mitchell explained that 85c per bushel is figured as the cost of producing a bushel of wheat. The amount a farmer could buy would be determined by his three year average production.

Three wheat prices are recommended by the Farm Bureau, one for flour wheat, one for expert wheat, and the third for wheat dumped on the feed grain market.
