C. W. POST CAMP GROUNDS TURNED OVER TO SCOUTS

NOTABLES ON HAND WHEN MEMORIAL TO PIONEER IS MADE NEAR POST

BY RICHARD CAVETT
Journal Staff Writer
(Special to the Journal)

POST CITY, June 29.—The program of the day for the scout jubilee at the C. W. Post Memorial Boy Scout camp opened this morning at 10 o'clock, with some 2,000 people present from Lubbock, Post, Southland, Lorenzo, Ralls, Slaton, Crosbyton, Brownfield, Gail, Seagraves, Meadow, Close City, Taheka, Wilson, Lamesa and from other places in Texas. First arrivals on the camp ground were from troop four, Lubbock, who arrived last night and pitched camp.

Other delegations arrived this morning and after thorough inspection of the camp grounds the meeting was called to order under the large arbor, by J. E. Eldridge, president of the South Plains council and chairman of the day.

Bledsoe Speaks

Senator Bledsoe told graphically the history of the ground up to the present time and from the transition from cattle grounds to the scout camp and expressed for the members of the council and for the boys appreciation to Mrs. Montgomery and Mrs. Hutton, heirs of the Post estate, who have made possible this camp. S. B. Bardwell, manager of the estate here responded, in the absence of these people who could not be present.

Dr. Frank and Mrs. Phoebe K. Warner are present and Mrs. Warner made a very stirring talk concerning the value of a permanent scout camp likening it to the value to men of a permanent home and bringing out the value of the sense of ownership to the boy leading to development of the man and his civic pride.

Fitch Is On Program

J. P. Fitch, regional executive, recalled the work of the Scouts through the sixteen years of his experience.

A huge barbecue and stew had been prepared and was enjoyed hugely by the big crowd assembled. In the afternoon the Post band gave a concert following which Dr. Elliott, of the Buffalo Trails council, addressed the large audience. K. N. Clapp, of Lubbock, and his boys gave a scout demonstration and after a council meeting of Scout officials the crowd went into Post to attend the Lubbock-Post baseball game.

Eighteen cars left Lubbock this morning at seven-forty, arriving in Post about nine-thirty, parading the city and coming then to the camp site.

Injured Lobber Boss Scorns Further Care

Sled Allen, veteran catcher and manager of the Lubbock baseball team, who was injured Saturday when he took one of Pitcher 'Zip' Adams' fast balls just over the left ear during a game with the Lamesa Loboes, was able to leave the hospital late yesterday evening and today accompanied his team to Post City, where they engage in a Boy Scout benefit tilt with the Post City tossers this afternoon.

Mr. Allen has not yet fully recovered from his injury and will not don the mask and pads for at least a week or ten days. During his absence from the lineup the receiving will be done by J. B. "Red" Hamilton, shortstop while Frank Lassiter will cavort in the shortfield.

Slimy Trail Of Corruption In Pennsylvania May Lead To North Dakota Slush Fund Probe

WHEN SIGHTLESS EYES CAN SEE

By NEA Service.

BOSTON, June 29.—Mary Staniewicz, 13 and blind, sat in a room of the family's home with her father, August Staniewicz, and one of the parent's friends.

Mary's mother and elder brother had just gone for a walk.

One of the men also left the room. But he returned quickly. Then Mary heard hot words. She heard blows struck. She heard a groan, and the crash of glass.

Mary, each other, the men carefully left the room.

Mary stumbled to a corner, and huddled there.

Her father cried out. "Help! Help!" he cried.

Mary Staniewicz

And Mary wanted to help. But she dared not.

Suddenly all was quiet, save for another low moan.

Mary Staniewicz screamed. A neighbor, Mrs. Blanche Malinaski, heard her and came.

Mary was huddled in the corner, screaming, weeping. The body of her father was sagging in a chair. Blood ebbed from his wounds. Death was at hand.

The "friend" of her father was arrested.

Though she is blind, Mary will testify.

"I saw it all!" she cries.

FLOOD TOLL IN LEON IS 1,000

Exact Number of Dead In Big Mexico Flood Will Never Be Known To World

(By The Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, June 29. — An estimate that the total fatalities in the floods at Leon will exceed 1,000 is given by a correspondent of El Universal, who has just returned from the devasted region.

He says that the exact number of victims will be known because the flood waters carried away bodies from Leon and the densely populated neighboring farming sections. Bodies daily are found in mud left by the receding waters and there are fears in Leon that an epidemic may result. Thirteen hundred homes were destroyed and an equal number have been damaged beyond repair. Six thousand families are lodged in public buildings, while six thousand more are living in the open on the hill sides, refusing to return to the city in fear of a recurrence of the floods.

Only the poor sections of the city suffered badly from the invasion of the waters. The flod only reached two feet in depth in the better residential sections. The houses there were scarcely damaged because they are of stone construction.

The number of bodies recovered thus far aggregate 100, but 1,000 persons or more are missing.

TOM GREEN HOME AGENT ATTACKED

Demonstrator Hurls Rocks To Beat off Advances of Man She Stops To Help

(By The Associated Press)

SAN ANGELO, Texas, June 29.—Officers today continued search for a man who Monday afternoon attacked Miss Anne Clare Wray, of Commerce, Tom Green County, home demonstration agent, near the main Concho River, six miles East of San Angelo, but whose advances she repulsed with rocks. Miss Wray today was suffering from shock but otherwise was uninjured, save for bruises about the arms and head.

She told officers the stranger stopped her while she was motoring home from the Mullen comunity and sought her aid for his sick baby at a river camp nearby. They had gone only a short distance when Miss Wray realized the man had lied and after a struggle ran to the creek channel, where she seized and hurled rocks, one of which felled the would-be assailant.

Change Charleston

NEW YORK—Because the Charleston is too acrobatic, it is to be modified by the American Society of Dancing Teachers. It is so popular, however, that they will retain it in a kickless form under the name of Savannah, Mobile or some other point South. But Henry Ford's square dances, Oh! they will succeed about as well as his peace ship, the teachers think.

They're Practicing

DAMASCUS—Circassian policemen hired by the French wear fur sun-bonnets when it is more than 100 in the shade, to say nothing of carrying long rifles, two belts filled with cartridges and three hand grenades each.

Like Chewing Gum

PHILADELPHIA—For good digestion say grace before meals. This is the advice of Dr. Gilbert Fitzpatrick. It gives a feeling of peace with the world in contrast to the effects of discussion of business problems or family squabbles.

A Brand New Stunt

NEW YORK—However they may have affected anybody's digestion, some investors are certain that pie and sandwich slot machines are bad for the pocketbook. Society women and others are forming a protective committee because of their investment of $200,000 or so in a company with a hope of making two cents on every dime put into a machine.

PROSPERITY IS TEXAS' KEYNOTE

Reserve Bank At Dallas Gives Data On Conditions Which Are Highly Favorable

(By the Associated Press)

DALLAS, June 29.—Brighter agricultural prospects have put a more optimistic face on the entire business situation throughout the eleventh district, the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas said in its monthly review, released today.

Not only are the farmers in better "shape" with the past 30 days of favorable weather, but cattle and sheep are fat and moving to market in large numbers.

Hogs Are On Rise

Hog values early in June rose to the highest level since 1920. Cattle market prices went lower, but stock has been changing hands on the ranges at satisfactory prices.

Responding to improved agriculture and beter weather, both wholesale and retail broadened. Department store sales showed a gain of 8 percent over the previous month and were six percent more than the corresponding period a year ago.

Failures Are Numerous

On the other hand, the largest number of business failures since January were recorded during May, when 91 concerns went insolvent. Their total liabilities, however, was only slightly more than that of the 66 insolvencies of April, and showed a noticeable decline over the amount owed by firms failing in May, 1925.

Building operations in the principal cities reflected a 29 percent increase over the corresponding period last year and a consequent improved demand for lumber, whose production was increased because of better weather.

France To Decide On American Debt Plans

PARIS, June 29. (AP)—Parliament will soon be called upon to take the responsibility either of ratifying or rejecting the Washington debt funding agreement, says the declaration of policy of the new Briand cabinet, which was read before both houses this afternoon.

The government declares that settlement of the inter-Allied debts is one of the factors upon which the proposed stabilization of the Franc depends.

Award of Highway Contract Postponed

Bids were to have been opened by the State Highway Commission Tuesday on the Lubbock to Slaton highway project, one of Lubbock county's four projects, but members of the county commissioners court did not attend the session due to the fact that they had been advised by John Cage, member of the state commission, that an award was not to be made today.

County Judge Chas. Nordyke said Tuesday that he received a wire from Mr. Cage late Monday to this effect, and to better inform himself on the plans, talked with Mr. Cage over long distance phone, when he was advised that Hal Moseley, Chairman of the Commission, would not be present, and that the award would not be made before next Tuesday. Members of the Court and Resident Engineer B. K. Garrett plan to attend the meeting when the contract is awarded.

DRY ENFORCEMENT TAKES PLACE IN LIMELIGHT OF INVESTIGATION

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 29.—At a short, swift session today, the Senate campaign funds committee pursued still further the tangled trail of prohibition enforcement in Pennsylvania and received a request that it investigate slush funds charges in North Dakota.

Senator Pepper, defeated for the Republican re-nomination in the Pennsylvania primary, took the stand and made emphatic denial that he had coanived at any arrangement by which the Pittsburgh saloons could open wide just before the primary in the Mellon-Pepper-Fisher stronghold of Western Pennsylvania.

Other Facts Discussed

For a short time the committee also heard testimony about the employment of under cover men, some of them discharged employes of the Federal prohibition unit, in the enforcement of prohibition in the Keystone State under a special fund raised by the Womens Christian Temperance Union. Then adjournment was taken until tonight when George W. Woodruff, the Pennsylvania Attorney General, will be questioned about his connection with the W. C. T. U. fund and prohibition enforcement in general.

Conditions Suspicious

The charges of a slush fund in North Dakota were made to the committee in writing on behalf of Senator Nye, a Republican and a candidate for re-election. The Coolidge administration was declaring to be backing an effort to defeat the Senator and the committee was assured that every suspicious circumstance that may surround tomorrow's North Dakota primary would be reported to it for study.

Committee members made no comment on the New York charges but they indicated that at the proper time consideration would be given to any evidence of excessive or illegal expenditure.

North Dakota Denial Made

FARGO, N. D., June 29. (AP)—Complete and specific denial that any money from sources outside North Dakota had been received or used in his campaign for the Senate was made today by L. B. Hanna, Coolidge Republican candidate for the Republican Senatorial nomination.

PRESIDENT HORN SAYS 4 MILLION DOLLARS NEEDED

EXPANSION AND REGULAR EXPENSES DEMAND BIG SUM, HE SAYS

(By the Associated Press)

AUSTIN, June 29.—More than $4,000,000 was asked for the Texas Technological College, at Lubbock, when the board of trustees and President Paul W. Horn submitted the budget for the next bi-ennium to the State Board of Control today.

For the first year $2,255,290 was asked and $1,832,240 was requested for the second year. For completion of the present administration building $654,000 was asked.

Extensions Planned

The amount to be spent the first year for construction aggregated $1,461,000, and the second year $350,000 including the building of additions to the Textile building, extension of the Home Economics and Agricultural buildings, construction of a men's gymnasium and a library, completion of the power plant, construction of a chemistry and science building and an engineering building.

H. M. Chitwood, secretary of the board and business manager of the school, said the budget has been reduced to the minimum.

Details Are Withheld

The completed budget for Tech, as partially outlined above, was given tentative approval at a meeting of the Board of Regents here recently, but pending submission of the proposals to the State Board of Control, no information as to details of the budget would be divulged by college officials.

Dr. Paul W. Horn, President of the College; Hon. H. T. Kinabro, local member of the Board of Regents, and R. M. Chitwood, Business Manager of the institution attended the meeting of the Regents with the Board of Control from here.

The budget covers the next two years of the life of the college, and according to a statement made by officials before they left here for the Austin meeting, the full amount as called for in the outline must be appropriated by the state if the school is to continue unhampered.

Many Students Expected

It is expected that between 1,500 and 2,000 students will be in attendance at the regular winter term which opens in September, necessitating the addition of 27 more instructors in the various departments. This in turn will call for more room, which of course it is practically impossible to provide this year, but officials hope to have more buildings and accommodations by the opening of the 1927-28 term.

The budget, if approved by the State Board of Control, will then be placed before the Legislature when it convenes next January, and then must pass final approval of the Governor.

Letting Clothes Talk For You

Self-Expression Is Motive of Smart Attire, Says Peggy Hoyt Noted Costumer of New York

BY NEA Service.

NEW YORK, June 29.—Neither vanity nor frivolity is responsible for the importance the modern woman gives to clothes—it is the richness of her personality.

This is the edict of Peggy Hoyt, one of New York's most exclusive costumers, who is also one of the most fastidiously gowned of women herself.

"Human personalities have become more complex along with everything else in life," she explains.

"Primitive woman could express all she had to say and all she was in a few cutteral syllables and a bearskin.

Her present representative finds the entire vocabulary of Babel insufficient. She extends herself in her adornment. She expresses herself through her clothes as a violinist does through his music."

The eternal argument as to whether woman dresses for man or for women ends in a blind alley. She does neither, according to Miss Hoyt.

"She dresses for herself and the world," she goes on. "She dresses as she talks—to enjoy herself through expressing what she is. Her clothes are as much a part of herself as her smile, the intonations of her voice, and her every talent.

"Some women are inarticulate from a clothes standpoint as others are with words. They cover—rathe they conceal—a charm of mind and wealth of soul and remain silent during an exchange of ideas.

"But these are exceptions. The average woman, spurred by the instinct to cultivate her own individuality, automatically extends it through the clothes she dons."

The Woman's Day

Perfume Fads

Light flower scents for the stay-at-home evenings. No perfume for the golf course or the bridle path. Exotic heavy perfumes for the drama. These are some of the latest perfume style notes from the arbitrary world of Fashion. It is in better taste, says the same dogmatic gal, to match perfumes to different gowns than to use one individual perfume for all outfits. I am sure that the sisterhood is much relieved to be set at rest on this weighty subject.

"No Time!"

"How I envy you people who have time to do things!" is a moan that any "writing person" often hears. In my morning mail came a note from Dorothy Walworth Carman, author of that spicy tome "The Pride of the Town," about which I have herein raved before. Mrs. Carman writes me—"I write my books while doing my own work and taking care of my baby, too. I wrote my first one, 'Faith of Our Fathers,' while she was teething, and I wrote whole chapters of my second on top of the kitchen table with one eye on the frying pan. I wanted to write so much that nothing could stop me!"

Not Cool Weather!

I am about to speak of something that is by no means "hot weather stuff!" But the plea of "Serious" cannot be denied. "Serious" writes that for the first time in 10 years she is to have a real vacation—"and I want to make it count. I want to know something about psychology. What are some beginners' books?"

Blessings on you, and a pitcher of iced lemonade beside your hammock! Try Angell's "Introduction to Psychology"; Titchener's "Beginner's Psychology"; Buckham's "Personality and Psychology"; Drever's "Psychology of Everyday Life"; Barrett's "The New Psychology."

"Book-of-the-Month"

A very novel new commercial scheme is a Book-of-the-Month Club which should be a bonanza to busy ladies and clubs that "want to keep up." A selecting committee composed of big names in the world literary, selects each month the book of the month which is mailed to all club members. If the book received is not really desirable it can be returned for another selected from a list of several month's best books prepared by the committee. Now why didn't someone think of this before?

"Strawberries on the Hill"

It's berry time. Vary the time-honored shortcake with an occasional berry pudding. One quart berries, 1 cup sugar, ½ cup water, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons melted butter, ½ cup sugar, ½ cup milk, 1 cup sifted flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Put berries, sugar and water into a deep kettle, and when boiling, drop over the fruit batter which is made by beating the egg well, adding the melted butter, sugar, and milk, and the flour and baking powder. All beat well, dropped into the kettle, and cooked for 20 minutes.

Old Men and Cigarets

"Cigarets smoked by young girls are improper; by older women, intolerable." So said General Erich Ludendorff divorcing his old wife. Rumor has it that he is to wed a new wife who is a noted feminist and author of various books on sex subjects. Some might say something about the frying pan and the fire.

"At Court"

Plumes, tiaras, aigrettes waved aloft from the topknots of 15 American maids and matrons presented at court a few days ago. Just a few minutes and the labor of months was over. For behind each court presentation is a story of hours of nervous energy consumed in being trained to kneel and bow gracefully. And the court costume which must be just so in every detail and must cost at least a thousand dollars is too formal for any lesser events in a court presentee's life. But still, she can say forever after, "when I was presented at court!"

Menus for the Family

BREAKFAST—Orange juice, cereal cooked with dates, crisp graham toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Rice croquettes with cheese sauce, lettuce sandwiches, drop nut cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER—Boiled cottage ham, potatoes, spinach, cucumber salad, whole wheat bread, puff white cake, berries, milk, coffee.

A cottage ham usually weighs from two to four pounds and contains no bone. In choosing one of these hams select one that is firm to the touch if fat is not liked. A piece that "gives" when pressed will have streaks of fat through it while one that is firm will have solid meat with little fat.

Rice Croquettes with Cheese Sauce

One-half cup rice, ½ cup boiling water, 1¼ cups milk, 3 tablespoons cream, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons pimentos minced (optional), ¾ teaspoon salt.

Wash and pick over rice. Cover with cold water and let stand over night. In the morning drain and put into double boiler. Add boiling water and cook over hot water until rice has absorbed water. Add milk and cook over hot water until rice has absorbed milk. Add cream, egg slightly beaten, pimento, salt and a few grains of pepper. Spread on a platter to cool. Andrews Launches New Offensive On Alcohol And Beer

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Plans for another big drive against liquor were outlined Monday by Assistant Secretary Andrews.

As soon as the $3,000,000 additional appropriation now pending in Congress is available he said the Treasury will take on about 900 additional men, principally former army and navy men. The attack will be directed against sources of alcohol and beer, and will be centered North of the Potomac and East of the Mississippi rivers, with St. Louis and Kansas City also coming in for attention.

Two entirely new forces will go into operation—alcohol and beer squads, including 85 men each. John A. Foster will direct the alcohol squad and Thomas E. Stone, the beer contingent. Additional men for the border patrol and inspection service, however, will comprise the bulk of the new staff of 1,000.

With these forces general Andrews declared today that he would have men enough "to clean up on alcohol and beer."

MONEY SCANDAL STARTLES ROME

Financial Corruption May Be Fatal for Some of Leading Citizens of Italy

(By the Associated Press)

ROME, June 29.—Italy is in the throes of a widespread financial scandal in which men prominent in politics and financial circles are involved. Twelve men already have been arrested in various cities while warrants have been issued for ten others.

The scandal involves men who were high in the Fascist party councils during the regime of Robert Farinacci, whose office of Secretary-General, was taken over some time ago by Signor Turati.

Corruption Is Charged

When Turati made a report on the recent closing of the Agricultural bank of Parma, which had deposits of $5,000,000 in its twenty flourishing branches, Premier Mussolini told him to go ahead and put down corruption regardless of the consequences.

Among those arrested is Count Luigi Lusignani, at one time president of the bank. It is said by police that he attempted to commit suicide when approached.

Big Men Accused

Giam Battista Biagi, Swiss consul-general at Genoa; Professor Alessandro Groppali, of Parma University, and Professors Ghibellini and Calvi are also under arrest.

The specific charges have not been made public. The Popoli di Roma, a semi-official organ, declares that until Lusignini was arrested, it was believed nobody would dare act against him as the roots of his influence "were so deep that it seemed absurd to try to tear them up."

Crazed Negro Fires On Baltimore Police

BALTIMORE, June 29. (AP)—Riot squads were called out Monday when a crazed negro shot three policemen and probably two other persons before being killed by a wounded patrolman in Northwest Baltimore.

The negro, sitting on the front steps of a house in Argive Avenue, levelled a shotgun and fired pointblank as a police car containing three patrolmen passed along the street. The patrolmen, Webster Schuman, August Benesch, and Thomas Dillon, all were wounded.

As the negro started to run, police reported, a woman and a girl crossed his path and he fired at them. They dropped to the sidewalk.

Mr. McCarty, Of Amarillo, Tells Of His Own Ideas In Regard To Allen And His Hubbers; Read It And Growl

Up in Amarillo there's a young gentleman by the name of McCarty, John L. McCarty, who writes sports for a couple of newspapers in the North Plains city. And, in addition to his sport writing proclivities, this young man, when the spirit moves him, prints under his own picture and the caption "A Line-O-Sport Or Two, By John L. McCarty," articles which, rumor tells us, consist of his own opinions of various and sundry sporting events.

Now Mr. McCarty undoubtedly, is a smart fellow, for, we blushingly admit, there is no room in the newspaper business for dumb bells. But Mr. McCarty like all humans, sometimes makes a mistake, and his latest was made in Sunday's issue of the Amarillo News, when he undertook to fool the public in regard to the Lubbock baseball team, Manager Sled Allen and the mix-up in Amarillo last week when an argument ended the game.

Here's what Mr. McCarty (himself) printed under his picture Sunday, in regard to the argument. Read it and growl:

"About that ball game last Sunday.

"Since eevrything has about cooled down and every one has had a say in the matter this bug wants to chirp.

"Sled Allen and His Hubbers quit the field with an overflow crowd attending the ball game. They quit it cold, after an argument over an umpire's decision.

"That's their business but it's not good business. It doesn't give fans a very good impression of the visitors or of the game in general. It would probably have cost the Hubbers a severe beating had they stayed in the fray for Hudspeth appeared to be gone and Sled had no one else to send to the maund.

"It might have meant the breaking up of the Lubbock baseball club had they lost the series in three full games without any argument.

"Lubbock should have finished the game.

"Now it's up to Amarillo to do just one thing. Bring Sled and his gang here for a two or three-game series later in the summer and wallop them in real fashion. Either that or ignore their existence and that is impossible.

"Outside of a baseball diamond Sled Allen is a wonderful fellow and a good sport but on the field he is a fighter, a driver and a man who will go the limit to win a game.

"Amarillo has fought him and fought for him for years and unless they quit making crutches, monkey glands and other contrivances to keep aged people going this city will be battling him for at least the next generation.

"There is just one thing to do and that is to whip Allen and His Hubbers convincingly in Amarillo with a neutral umpire.

"Can it be done?"

Of course the Journal realizes that it is part of Mr. McCarty's business to boost the good baseball team that represents Amarillo, just as it is ours to boost the Hubbers, who, it will be remembered, pouced it on the Amarillo club at Denver last year until the weather of the north plains grew almost sweltering. Yet when Mr. McCarty prattles about 'walloping the Hubbers in real fashion' we cannot help but grin. And then, when he boastfully babbles about whipping 'Allen and his Hubbers convincingly in Amarillo', (in Amarillo, remember) we can't help but laugh out loud.

Now here's a way out of Mr. McCarty's dilemma:

Why not arrange a series of five games—two in Amarillo—two in Lubbock and the place of the fifth to be decided by flipping a coin—to settle this argument? Then when it's settled for 1926 either Mr. McCarty or the Journal will have to fold up a few tents like the well known Arabs, and silently pound out opinions of some other nature on their respective typewriters.

In regard to our Mr. Allen, who has proven himself without a doubt to be West Texas' leading baseball leader, the Journal adds that it hopes Mr. McCarty is right. It hopes that Sled Allen will be directing the play of the Hubbers when he has a long, gray beard and takes his extra base hits on crutches—because the Journal knows that as long as Sled Allen has charge of the Hubbers that Amarillo, like all the rest of West Texas' baseball teams, will continue to be forced to bow to the supremacy of the local diamond delegation.

QUINN AND BUCKY HARRIS FINED BY JOHNSON

CHICAGO, June 29. (AP)—President Ban Johnson of the American League today fined Bucky Harris, manager of the Senators, and pitcher Jack Quinn, of the Athletics, $200 each for stalling in the second game of a doubleheader in Philadelphia last Thursday.

President Johnson said these players purposely delayed the game in the fifth inning so that an impending rainstorm might terminate the contest before it became a game.

There were 22,000 spectators in attendance and the stalling tactics were unfair to them, President Johnson said.

DIAMOND DISPUTES DECIDED

By BILLY EVANS

Catcher in an effort to throw out runner attempting to steal second, hits the umpire working back of the pitcher with the ball. Is the ball dead or in play?

In this play the umpire is a part of the scenery, being regarded as an active part of the game on all thrown balls, whether he is standing in fair or foul territory.

Therefore in the play cited, when the thrown ball struck the umpire, it continued in play and runners advanced at their peril.

The runner had a perfect right to advance as many bases as possible on the throw, and the team in the field should have made every effort to prevent his progress by making an immediate play on him.

It is up to the umpire to avoid being hit by a thrown ball, but when it happens, the ball is always in play.

Billy Evans Says

Is the golf swing a bad thing for a ball player's batting average?

Jimmy Dykes, star third sacker of the Philadelphia Athletics is more than convinced that it is.

A majority of big league ball players are strong for golf. They get the same thrill from a long tee shot as they do from a double, triple or home run.

Dykes learned the rudiments of golf as a caddy. At one stage in his career it was a question with him whether he would try to become a golf pro or a big league ball player. Baseball won.

x x x

During his early years in the big show, Jimmy was inclined to be steaky at the bat. Over that period he kept up his golf play.

Seldom out of the eighties and usually well under that mark, Dykes paid almost as much attention to his golf game as baseball.

Despite the presence of the lively ball, Dykes had a very ordinary batting average in 1923, falling to .252.

That didn't make a hit with Jimmy. Being smart, he set about to determine what had caused his slump.

x x x

After much experimenting Dykes decided that a stiff left arm held close to the body, while very necessary in golf, produced bad results in baseball.

Such a manner of holding the left arm curtailed the smoothness of his baseball swing and had a tendency to make him hit under a lot of balls, pop flies often resulting.

Dykes decided that while golf was no handicap to a batting average when played during the winter months, it certainly caused a shrinkage when indulged in during the baseball season.

He decided to give up golf and become a .300 hitter, a mark he had never reached during his major league career.

x x x

That was at the start of the 1924 campaign. Dykes religiously adhered to his decision to ban golf during the summer. At the close of the season his batting average was .312. He had reached his goal.

Last season, golf was again taboo with Dykes and he jumped his mark to .325. This year he has been in the .300 class since the season opened.

That is why Dykes, one of the best golfers in the majors, is convinced that it is a handicap to a baseball batting average when played during the summer.

There are other star big leaguers, who do mix golf and baseball during the summer and still manage to hold their place in the select circles of the game's best hitters.

Many of hese players use a style very much their own, common to ball players. Rather than conforming to the set ideas of golf, that the left arm should be held stiff and close to the body, they take a cut at he golf ball with a more or less typical baseball style.

I know a certain big league star, one of the best batters in the game, who invariably turns to golf to break the jinx, when he is in a batting slump.

It may be mere superstition, but he is of the firm opinion that relaxation a golf, a change in style, always brings him out of a batting slump.

Regardless of whether the golf swing actually handicaps a batter, due to the radical difference between the two syles, big league managers are convinced that golf is not a good baseball tonic during the summer months.

Their theory is that 9 or 18 holes in the morning take much out of a player for the afternoon's work and incidentally take their minds off their livelihood, baseball.

LEFTY GROVE TURNS THE YANKEES BACK; WILTSE WINS ANOTHER ONE

Jack Hendricks' Cincinnati Reds were perched atop the National League leek with a leeway of three and ahal games on their closest competitors in he pennant race today after repulsing the worlds champion Pirates in our successive conflicts.

The Corsair craft was unable to nake headway against Eppa Rixey esterday, the Reds' hurler yielding ut four safe blows, while his mates arnered 14 off the combined efforts f Aldridge and Oldham for a six to ne triumph.

Cubs Wollop Cards

Meanwhile the Cubs took toll of hree Cardinals pitchers for 16 clouts or an 11 to 3 decision. Eight of the hits were bunched in the fifth inning for eight runs.

The Giants kept abreast of the Chicago club for fifth place honors by overtaking the Braves with a two-un rally in the eighth inning to win by 3 to 2. Ty Tyson was added to the hospital list of the New Yorkers when an X-Ray disclosed he had a broken bone in his right arm sustained when hit by a ball pitched by Jess Barnes of the Robins recently.

Manager McGraw announced that Ned Porter, star twirler of the University of Florida team, had signed a contract. Porter made a good showing against the Giants at Sarasota last Spring.

Phillies Win No. 5

Frank Ulrich, right-handed pitcher from the Waterbury Eastern League club, twirled the Phillies to their fifth straight victory in humbling the Robins, 9 to 4. The Phils bombarded four Brooklyn boxmen for 14 hits and had chased the flatbush starting twirler Bob McGraw to the showers before the second inning was completed.

Connie Mack's Athletics lived upto their reputation of being the stumbling block to the Yankees as the New Yorkers found it hard to solve Lefty Grove and fell, 7 to 1. Babe Ruth's single after Lamar had bungled a fly by Gehrig gave the Yankees their lone talley. Grove struck out 10 batters. Ruth fanned twice.

Tigers Are Ousted

The seven-game winning stretch of the Tigers was stopped by the Indians, who came out on the long end of a 5 to 4 score. Detroit's defeat enabled Philadelphia to tie the Cobb men for third place.

Wiltse exhibited great form in limiting the Senators to three hits and the Boston Red Sox won by 6 to 2. The home made 15 bingles off Ogden and Palmero.

The White Sox took the measure of the Browns, 7 to 9, in the final game of the series, Edwards holding the Sisler outfit to four hits, two of which were made by McManus.

WRONG LOGIC

"We noticed where a Lubbock pastor had announced that he would preach last Sunday night on Church and Politics. We have not heard a report of his sermon, but will gamble a jug full of goose eggs that he undertook to tell Lubbock people how to vote. As Christ whipped the gamblers out of the Temple, so should the people whip our preachers out of politics these latter days. Of all the shameful practices these days is to see a minister whose mission is to save people's souls and to preach Christ and His love, mixing up in politics and dividing the people one against the other. A preacher's place is in the pulpit and not upon political rostrum."

The foregoing article, written by Ben F. Smith, editor of the Slaton Times, undoubtedly refers to a sermon delivered on Sunday night, June 20, by Rev. E. E. White, of the First Methodist church here. The Journal seizes zealously, the opportunity to defend Mr. White and all of the other gentlemen of the cloth who unerringly see that the church, separated from the everyday problems of the world by a curtain of bigotry and narrow-mindedness, would lose much of its needed influence.

To the thinking people, those who realize that the church should be just as important a factor in everyday life as it is on Sunday, Mr. White, who is surely one of the outstanding ministers of West Texas, needs no defense. It is to those who accept the things they see in print without stopping to thing them over that The Journal appeals in this article.

Mr. Smith has left so many loopholes in his poorly chosen attack that it is scarcely necessary to point them out. His admission that "we have not heard a report of his sermon" is enough to bar the acceptance of his criticism, which, as the facts bear out, has no foundation upon which to stand.

This subject of politics, as touchy as it is, is the people's business—Mr. White's business as well as Mr. Smith's business — and, if, in his profession, Mr. White is barred from taking a public stand in politics The Journal sees no right for Mr. Smith to take any public political stand which he, like all editors, frequently does.

In choosing his subject of politics Mr. White, as The Journal sees it, was trying to do what the church of today needs most—that is make it a vital force in the life of the average citizen every hour in every day and every day in every week. A church or a religion which will not stand in everyday life surely cannot be one which will fill its niche in the hearts and lives of its followers.

After dwelling on the Biblical story of the gambers being driven from the Temple, Mr. Smith, oddly enough, offers to "gamble a jug full of goose eggs that he (Mr. White) undertook to tell the people how to vote." Here Mr. Smith is wrong again—caught in an error which he would not have committeed had he waited for a report of Mr. White's sermon.

In The Journal's opinion Lubbock county and the entire nation is in need of someone to tell the bulk of its citizenry "how to vote" and when Mr. White took the pulpit and advised with his congregation in this regard The Journal contends that he rendered this community a service. If anyone is going to tell anyone else "how to vote" The Journal does not believe that a better individual could be chosen for the "telling" than a wide-awake, consciencious, high principled man like Mr. White has proven himself to be. Were the public officials of this country elected by a preponderance of citizens of this type these United States of America would closely approach Utopia.

Mr. Smith's contention that "A preacher's place is in the pulpit and not upon the political rostrum," like the thought behind his entire article, will not hold water. A preacher's place is where his people need him most, whether it be on the firing line of war, religious theory or politics.

IN NEW YORK SEE-SAWING up and down BROADWAY

NEW YORK, June 29.—History pops up romantically from the most unexpected places in New York.

Landmarks are most numerous in the waterfront belt where the early Dutch settlers and the revolution figures foregathered. As time passed, the Greenwitch Village zone took on gradual historic interest, becoming the residential center of the celegrated ones.

For a leisurely ramble, one can reach the Battery by elevated or subway. Walking to the Aequarium and turning due east, Pearl street is reached. On this corner stood the first Dutch church. Captain Kidd, of pirate fame lived No. 119.

A few blocks away, at Pearl and Broad street, is the historic Fraunce's Tavern. From the second floor Washington delivered his memorable farewell to his officers. Many are the tales associated with this place. Originally it was the residence of one Delancey. Sold to the picturesque "Black Sam" Fraunce, a West Indian. He called it "The Queen's Head." Here gathered the "old boys" of revolutionary days and drank long and merrily of their grog. Many were the bibulous parties staged in celebration of a victory. Now it is a cafe where one can absorb much fine old atmosphere. And for a modest price.

Still on Pearl street. No. 73 was the first New York city hall. A wee bit above is the India House, famous old club.

Many relics associated with shipping here. Turn on Broad street, you come in eyeshot of the Bowling Green, Manhattan's oldest park. It fronts the Custom's House on the site of Ft. Amsterdam. Used by the Dutch as a parade ground. Later scene of demonstrations in revolutionary times. Still later a playground.

Follow the waterfront to Broadway Site of the old Washington Hotel at No. 1. Robert Fulton passed his last days there. A few doors away lived Daniel Webster.

Suddenly the new clashes contrastfully with the old. On one hand the Standard Oil Building towering to the sky. And the Equitable building. And the Chase National bank. On the other old Trinity Church and St. Paul's. At No. 50, the Tower Building, often pointed out as the first steel skyscraper. Wall street, heart of the nation's trading. The Morgan firm at No. 23. The Stock Exchange at Broad. It started in Tontine's coffee house where a handful of merchants gathered. Where the Sub-Treasury stands once met the first Congress. The vestibule enshrines a slab of Washington taking the oath of office. Once, too, the space where steel giants rise was occupied by pillories and stocks.

Back to Broadway and on to City Hall Square. Newspaper row is all about. Let's sit down and rest.

A nice morning's walk. What?

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

DAWES HOLDS A RURAL LIGHTNING ROD WHILE WHITE HOUSE IS COLDLY ALOOF

By CHARES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—Observe Vice President Charles G. Dawes, coming out of his office in the Capitol building in the midst of a group of farm relief agitators.

These times Dawes is everlastingly to be seen going into or coming out of his office in the midst of a group of farm relief agitators or else he isn't to be seen at all, because he's inside his office in conference with a group of them.

Farm relief is in the atmosphere and Charles G. Dawes breathes atmosphere. He doesn't quarrel with it. He inhales it deeply.

This would be all very well but — Farm relief atmosphere is poison gas to Calvin Coolidge. He's on record as opposed to farm relief legislation. He says the farmers must work out their own salvation.

Since the Iowa senatorial primaries he may wish he hadn't said it quite so emphatically. If so, that's all the more reason for him to wish his own vice president wouldn't associate so constantly and ostentatiously with them in their plans and advising them to go ahead with same.

What the president may wish, however, doesn't seem to concern the vice president.

Dawes is well aware that farm relief atmosphere is surcharged with presidential lightning.

It will be noticed that he has a lightning rod up.

Dawes' conduct is all the more noticeable in that vice presidents aren't supposed to have anything to do with legislation, farm relief or otherwise, and Dawes obviously is doing his best to promote farm relief legislation.

The theory is that an idea vice president effaces himself all he can, in order not to embarrass the administration.

Dawes is doing just the opposite and the administration is embarrassed all right.

But what does Charles G. Dawes care for precedent!

That the White House is sore at Dawes is no secret to anybody in Washington.

Of course the "presidential spokesman" doesn't say anything about it for publication, but, in the first place, the White House can't possibly help being sore, and, in the second place, the evident coolness between the chief magistrate and his understudy proves that it is.

President Coolidge and Dawes never did hit it off very well together, from the time of the Cleveland convention, when Coolidge didn't want Dawes for a running mate, but for awhile they gave a pretty fair imitation of being reasonably friendly.

Now they meet only on the most formal occasions, when they can't help it.

Even on such occasions they have precious little to say to one another. Dawes wears a Cheshire cat grin. Undoubtedly he's getting a lot of fun out of the situation. Coolidge maintains an air of cold hauteur.

He is an unfortunate man who seeks to live by his wits, and yet has not even wit enough to be honest which is the foundation of success in any line of activity.

Self-control in some men, is limited to complete control of the conscience.

Helpful Health Hints

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Director General U. S. Public Health Furvey

THE DUTY OF HEALTH

The meaning of public health work to the individual as a member of the state is a complex question which may be approached from many different angles.

The living human body is the most complicated mass of matter in the known world, and when the significance of this statement is grasped it will be found that it is a remarkable truth. It is almost equally true that the average individual knows very little about his body or the way in which it reacts to the causative agents of disease.

The popular demand for articles such as these is but a manifestation of the hunger of the intelligent adult mind for information of which he has only vaguely heard, and about which his ideas must necessarily be extremely hazy.

This state of things is no doubt due to the fact that the great bulk of our progress in the conservation of health and the combating of disease is of recent development.

It may be recalled that as late as 1628 Harvey had great difficulty in inducing the scientists of that day to accept his demonstration of the circulation of the blood.

Until the discovery of vaccination by Jenner about the close of the 18th century, approximately 90 per cent of the inhabitants of the earth suffered at some period of their lives from an attack of smallpox, and, on an average, about one out of every 10 deaths was due to this disease.

If this rate prevailed at this time throughout our country, it would mean that we should have approximately 129,000 deaths from smallpox in the United States every year.

QUEER QUIRKS of NATURE

THE BATTLE OF PARASITES AND PESTS

By ARTHUR N. PACK
President, The American Nature Association.

Aphids or plan lice are among the most common and by no means the least injurious of our insect pests.

To understand why they so suddnly appear by myriads it is necessary to learn something of their life history.

Scientists who have studied the group tell us that many of them hatch in spring from eggs that have lain over all winter in some protected place. The individuals hatching from these winter eggs are all females and possess the power to bring forth living young without fecundation, and these can continue the process.

So naturally, with new generations coming into being every few days, the tribe soon overcrowds the nearby plants. So far the insects have been wingless but soon winged females are produced, and these are able to travel to other food plants.

After a time both males and females are found among the broods, and these produce eggs which are deposited in crevices in bark and other situations, there to winter and provide for the continuation of the process. With such methods of reproduction, one would think that the aphids would soon possess the earth, and so they would if it were not for their natural enemies.

Of special interest are the relations between ants and aphids. The latter secretes a sweet liquid called honeydew, of which the ants are very fond. Certain ants, in order to insure a supply of this substance, maintain herds of aphids, just as we keep cows.

Send a stamped addressed envelope, and questions of fact having to do with nature will be answered by the consulting staff of Nature Magazine of Washington through arrangements made with this paper.

A CITY OF CIVIC PRIDE

Cities have personalities. They are distinctive and different. There are no two alike. When you think of Fort Worth you think of stock yards. When you think of San Antonio you think of things Spanish and of lovely parks and beautiful drives. When you think of New York you think of gaiety. New Orleans has her own quaint personality.

Plainview is known far and wide — not as far and not as widely as either of the cities named above—for its beautiful trees and attractive homes. If there's one outstanding thing in Plainview it is civic pride.

There are few towns which have a many beautiful homes as Plainview. There are many with more fine homes. That spirit of pride in home ownership and love of beautiful yards and tidy homes is universal in Plainview. If home is a two-room house, invariably some effort is made to beautify the grounds. This is manifest in all parts of the city.

The City of Plainview itself is setting a good example to the citizens. An effort is being made to keep the city clean, even to the alleys and the places not commonly exposed to view.

Orderly, systematic work on the part of the city is reflected in every home. —Plainview Herald.

A BIG FIGHT

The Plains railroad fight has been dragged into the gubernatorial race at last, as was to have been expected when the Denver road, the Santa Fe, the Frisco, one independent road and possibly the Rock Island, are all trying to invade that territory. Extensions have lately been granted to nearly all these roads in various parts of the country, but the Texas Plains have been barred to them by each other.—Quanah Tribune-Chief.

BROWNFIELD

While there is nothing resembling a boom in Brownfield, the sound of the saw and hammer and the trowel never cease. Brownfield has never built ahead of itself, but its buildings are always in demand, and the buildings are of a substantial nature. — Terry County Herald.

CALLING ABILENE NAMES

Mr. Ferguson in his Ferguson Forum says Abilene "is noted for Evolution Baptists and crazy Ku Klux," which are certainly milder terms than the former governor used in his speech here last week.

The former governor, after detailing some of the reasons Dan Moody is popular here, winds up by stating, "Dan Moody will not get over five hundred majority in Taylor county." He added that the governor will carry every county adjoining Taylor county—which will be surprising news to many people in Runnels, Jones, Nolan and other counties in this section. He claims Callahan county with a majority over all opponents.

It is possible the governor may carry Callahan, but hardly by a majority. But with the single exception of Callahan it is doubtful if Dan Moody will lose a single county in West Texas, carrying many of them by clear majorities over all opponents. — Abilene Reporter.

CARELESSNESS

Just a little bit of carelessness sometimes results in disaster. Recently a cigar stub, carelessly thrown by a roadside in the Sequoia National Forest in California, started a forest fire that devastated hundreds of acres of valuable timber. Two hundred men fought the blaze for a whole day. There are likely to be many other such reports during the next six months. Careless motorists or campers or hikers will throw away burning matches, cigret and cigars, or they will leave burning camp fires. As a result of such carelessness, much property will be destroyed and perhaps human lives lost. This is the time of year when every citizen should resolve most earnestly to be a fire preventer instead of a fire starter. — Gainesville Register.

A THOUGHT

Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good.—Rom. 12:9.

NEIGHBORS' WIVES

By ERNEST LYNN Copyright NEA

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN and FAY MILBURN buy a home when their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract. Among their acquaintances are—

NOEL and VERA BOYD, whose marriage is strictly "modern."

PAT and MARIAN FORBES, who have three children and whose marriage is unhappy because of Pat's roving tendencies. Previous chapters told how:

John, in love with his wife but a romantic individual, was fascinated on meeting NELL ORME, of whom Pat Forbes hints that she is having trouble with her husband.

When Fay took JUDITH, the baby to Houston to visit her parents, John "ran around" a good deal, mostly with Pat Forbes.

Fay is always fearful that John will get into some kind of trouble, and it is rather difficult for him to tell her of some of his escapades during her absence. It is left to MRS. BLODGETT and MRS. BIXBY, both malicious gossips, to tell her of some of the incidents, and a bitter quarrel follows between Fay and John when she learns he had been going out with other women.

Still smarting under her criticism, John goes on a party with PAUL DAVIDSON, a lawyer, amateur actor and roue, and two married women who are friends of Paul's.

Some time later the Boyds are guests of the Milburns and Vera inadvertently lets slip that she had seen John joy riding with some women. When the Boyds leave, John, knowing that a crisis is impending, goes into the living room to face Fay.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVIII

"John" was silent. What could he say?

"Well?" Fay repeated.

"Fay," he cried, in an agony of spirit, "for heaven's sake don't stand looking at me as if I had committed murder. You drove me to it.

"Drove you to what?"

"That night I went out with Paul Davidson. You wouldn't speak to me; you made me feel like a criminal. I went out with Paul, and there were a couple of friends of his along."

"How convenient!"

"Not convient at all. Don't be sarcastic."

"Who were they? Of course, I realize I am just your wife, but I should like to know some of the details."

How long was this to go on? he thought. Was he to be forever tormented like this? He lit a cigaret, taking his time about it and waving the match deliberately several times before he threw it in the fireplace.

"I have nothing to conceal from you," he said firmly. "I haven't done anything I have any reason to be ashamed of. To tell you the truth, I don't know what their last names were. One of them Paul called Mollie, and the other was—let me see—Joyce. We had dinner in Paul's apartment and then we drove to a roadhouse and danced."

"And you had something to drink, of course."

John would not lie. He might be guilty at times of holding back the truth, but he would not cheapen himself to save himself. Abou him was an unswerving and often stupid honesty that was part of his English heritage. so he said, without hesitating, "Yes, here was something to drink. Paul Davidson isn't exactly a dry."

"Why did you think it was necessary to go out with those women?"

"It wasn't necessary. I accepted Paul's invitation without knowing who else was going to be there."

"You're not trying to tell me that you didn't know there was going to be any women."

"No—I suspected that. I didn't care much one way or the other. Your indifference was responsible for that."

"That's right. Try to blame me, John," and Fay's face had suddenly gone deathly white, "this is the last time. Do you hear me? The last time."

"Now, Fay, dont get hysterical! What do you mean?"

"I'm not hysterical," she cried sharply. "I mean just this. The next time you decide that some other woman's company is preferable to mine I'm going to leave."

"Fay! You don't mean what you're saying. Why don't you look at it sensibly?"

"Sensibly!" She laughed scornfully. "Do you expect to see me sit idly by while you gallivant around whenever and whomever you please? It's no use reasoning with you; it doesn't do any good. There's only one thing left to do. I'm through the next time it happens."

"All right." He turned abruptly from her and walked out of the room. On the way upstairs it suddenly came to him with a cold nip at his heart that Fay actually was beginning to dislike him. God! Could she really mean what she had said about leaving him? Didn't she understand that he had meant no harm, that he was still as much in love with her as ever, that he adored Judith, tried to be a good husband—that it was just thoughtlessness, a—a weakness on his part that caused him to do the things that displeased her? Couldn't she understand that?

What should he do, what could he do to convince Fay of his sincerity? Should he go to her on his knees and ask her forgiveness? Something in him rebelled at the thought. If she preferred to think the worst of him and threaten him, he would just refuse to humble himself. He could meet pride with a pride of his own. Hang it all, why did marriage make enemies of men and women? Paul Davidson was right; marriage was foolish. Was it his fault that he found the conversation and company of other women stimulating? Couldn't he retain his appreciation for a pretty face or a beautiful form? Weren't women made to admire? Did Fay expect him to go around with a label on his arm—"Sold?"

Perhaps Noel Boyd was right after all. Perhaps it was the part of wisdom to have an understanding with your wife before you married her that a certain amount of independence would be permitted both parties.

But there was little comfort in thinking of Noel Boyd—Noel always enraged him. There was something revolting in the Boyds' compact. They—they went the limit—or so at least, Noel had informed him . . . .

x x x

It was not pleasant around the house at all. He reached the stage where he began to compare Fay with other women he knew and speculate on what kind of wives they might have made. Somehow his mind skipped over Eleanor Mason and others like her and seemed to anchor at the thought of Nell Orme. It occurred to him as rather an ironic circumstance that none of these flirtations that Fay kept throwing up to him meant a thing to him as far as an actual regrad for the women was concerned; whereas the woman who interested him above all others—leaving Fay out of it, of course—was one whom Fay greatly admired, and that was Nell.

He had not seen her, he reflected, in a long time; yet he could see her in his mind's eye as clearly as though it had been yesterday, and she was poised—a figure of surpassing grace—for one of those beautiful dives of hers, and her voice came to his ears like low-pitched, languorous music.

These were dangerous thoughts, he knew—he was married and Nell was married, and the whole thing was—well, just silly. Nevertheless, they persisted. In Nell Orme, he couldn't help feeling, there was something deep and worthy of him. He wondered, during these unhappy days with Fay, just what the trouble was between Nell and Howard. Was it something like the thing that was growing up in his own home? No, he told himself, it couldn't be. More and more his waking thoughts became occupied with her, and she began to take shape in his fitful and dissatisfied dreams.

x x x

Business and the social round and family finance gradually began to claim more of his attention—especially the last named. There was a new budget that had been worked out by Fay, a budget that was based on his new larger income.

Fay felt that they could afford a maid until Judith was old enough not to require watching. It had been hired for some time, but Fay had been slow in accepting it. He had traded in the old Ford coupe on a new one and for some time had been arguing for a larger car, but Fay was against it, with the contention that they should economize until they had reduced the mortgage on the house, and, as usual, prevailed.

The uncomfortable feeling began to grow on John that Fay was not the only one who adopted an attitude of distrust and suspicion. He became aware, without knowing just how, that people were saying unpleasant and even malicious things about him. He sensed a growing hostility on

Committee Named

A committee composed of Chas Whitacre, Homer L. Phart, and J. A. Raley was named from the local Post to arrange for the program here, with instructions that it be held in one of the more centrally located churches, either the Methodist, Baptist, First Presbyterian, or Church of Christ. The program will begin about 2:30 with patriotic songs, both vocal and instrumental, a short patriotic address, and the finale will be the outlined program as sent out from national headquarters, which will require only about ten minutes. Arrangements will be made to have this latter part of the program start at 3 o'clock sharp in confirmity with plans in other parts of the country. The church at which the service will be held will be announced just as soon as arrangements can be completed.

In pursuance of the celebration of July 4, the Ladies Auxiliary of the Post will entertain the Legion on the afternoon and evening of July 5 with a picnic at the ranch of Bud Johnston southwest of the city. The delegation will gather in the driveways at the Lubbock county court house at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, July 5, from where they will go in cars to the picnic grounds. Supper will be spread under supervision of the ladies.

Thirteen Men and One Snake!

The new anaconda of the Philadelphia zoo being taken from a packing box. Thirteen men are helping move it, but before it reached its ew home 16 were required. The snake measures 22 feet, three inches, and is called the largest in captivity. Here the men are giving a "heave ho" as if hauling on a mighty cable.

"Neighbors' Wives"

the part of his partner, Nat Graham, and Nat was falling into the regular habit of making decisions without consulting him.

The new advertising outfit, Kelly and Jones, had long since established in Dallas and was known to be hot after several of Graham & Milburn's accounts. This at first had seemed to worry Graham, but lately he had said nothing about it. John had never met Kelly or Jones, but he had had both of them pointed out to him one day at lunch and he discovered both of them to be clean-cut looking young men, obviously "go-getters."

There was luncheon downtown one day with Dick Menefee. The young doctor called John up, saying he had something he wanted to tell him, and Dick, his face a fiery red and a tremendous embarrassment in his manner, got bluntly to the point.

"Look here, John, they're talking about you. Now what's it all about? I'm your friend—used to be your best friend, didn't I?"

"You still are, Dick, or I wouldn't sit here and listen to you."

"All right, then. I am not inquisitive, I'm concerned about you. By George, I've had several fights on my hands, almost, telling people these things about you were exaggerated. Rumor has it that you're drinking heavily and running around with gay women. I don't believe it, John."

Milburn said, a little wearily, "I don't care whether you believe it or not Dick," and turned his head away from Menefee.

"See here, John, you don't mean that."

"Don't I?"

"You know blamed well you don't. Why don't you go off somewhere on a vacation—take a fishing trip up north or something?"

John shook his head. "Finish your story, Dick. You had more to say than this, or you wouldn't have come all the way down here for lunch."

"Well, John, for your own good can't I ask you to watch your step a little more carefully? I know you're not going to hell the way these people say you are, but—"

"But what?" John asked, an amused little smile, prompted by Dick's red-faced confusion, playing on his lips.

"Well," Dick blurted out, "it's not what you do, you know; it's what they say you do. They're hurting you, John, and—and Fay ought to be protected."

"See here, Dick, is that necessary?"

"To drag Fay in, you mean? Well, yes, I think it is. I'm not going to sit on the sidelines without saying a word and see you get in trouble. I'm to fond of you and Fay. I love both of you."

"I'm sorry, Dick."

"And the story is going the rounds, John, that you are neglecting your wife. They're even saying that you have to get drunk in order to produce some of that inspired copy of yours."

"That's a lie, Dick. A damn lie! Who's spreading that sort of stuff around?"

Grain Markets

KANSAS CITY REPORT

KANSAS CITY, June 29. (AP)—Wheat number 2 hard $1.23@1.28; number 2 red $1.25@1.26.

Corn: number 2 white 71½; number 2 yellow 74½@75.

Oats: number 2 white 38½@39; number 3 white 38@39.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, June 29. (AP)—Owing largely to adverse crop reports concerning the domestic spring wheat outlook, wheat values quickly turned upward today after initial declines. Lower quotations at Liverpool had much to do with depressing prices at the start. Opening unchanged to ¾c off, wheat underwent a material set back all around, but then scored sharp rallies.

Corn and oats followed wheat, corn starting ¼c to ½c off and receding further before a reaction.

Provisions were weak.

Cotton Markets

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 29. (AP)—The cotton market opened easy as far as active new crops were concerned. July opened seven points up at 17.52c on covering by belated shorts in that option, October one point down and December five points down. All months eased off after the start on favorable weather conditions in the belt, July trading down to 17.36c, October to 16.12c and December to 46.03c.

The market was quiet during the morning and prices fluctuated narrowly with the trend downward. July ruled steady and rallied to 17.44c owing to covering, October making a new low at 16.11c. December duplicated the earlier low while January made a new low at 15.99c. The easier tone in new crop months was attributed to improved weather.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 29. (AP)—The cotton market opened steady at decline of 5 to 10 points under liquidation local and Southern selling which appeared to be based on relatively easy Liverpool cables and a favorable interpretation of the early weather and crops news.

July sold off to 18.10c and December to 16.38c before the end of the first hour, active months generally showing net declines of ten to seventeen points.

Brokers with Wall street connections were considerable sellers but offerings tapered off, after the decline of 12 to 17 points, and the market was less active, with prices steadier on covering. At mid-day July was selling around 18.10c, and December 16.43c, or about six to nine points net lower. Mkts— Second Add New York Cotton

Early afternoon trading remained comparatively quiet and the price movement was correspondingly narrow. At 2 o'clock July was holding around 18.05c and December 16.39c, or about 13 to 15 points net lower.

Stocks And Money

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, June 29. (AP)—Stock prices headed upward as trading was resumed today but initial changes were only fractional. Steel, Baldwin and General Motors were slightly higher but Hudson, Packard and Union Oil of California were again under pressure.

The early trading failed to develop any striking features although steady bidding for representative industrials held the market firm. FT. WORTH LAUDS CITY'S GREETING

Several letters have been received from members of the Fort Worth booster delegation, which stopped here on Thursday, by the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce praising Lubbock highly for the entertainment accorded the visitors. The letters indicate the Fort Worth boosters, who had virtually marched over West Texas before reaching here, appreciated more than anything else the cars offered by Lubbock citizens to carry the caravan over the city and to the Texas Technological College.

"We wish that you would express, through your organization to those many people who furnished transportation to the Fort Worth delegation, our appreciation," C. F. Leffler, convention secretary of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce stated in his letter. "It was a real privilege to mingle with your good citizens and certainly one to visit the Texas Technological College."

Lubbock has again done herself proud in entertaining visitors within her gates as shown by the letters received and the favorable publicity this section will gain by this hospitality can be found in each of the letters received.

"You have a wonderful country out there, and Lubbock in my estimation has a great future and I am certainly glad that I visited your city," J. L. Walders, manager of the Southwestern Engraving company wrote.

Lubbock has established a record for entertaining her guests and when the Fort Worth bunch piled off the special train Thursday on their trip back home, Lubbock citizens were right on the job and entertained them in true fashion.

PONCA CITY, Okla., June 29. (AP)—Three men held up the State Bank of Kildare, eight miles Northeast of here today, and escaped with a sum estimated by D. E. Jones, cashier, to be less than $1,000.

Parking a small automobile in front of the bank, two of the men, who were masked, entered, while the third kept the engine of the car running. E. H. Switak, farmer, patron of the bank, was the first approached by the bandits.

With a brass railing between himself and the bandits, Switak did not heed an order to hold up his hands, but ran from the bank to summon aid.

The bandits then help up Jones, the only other person in the bank, scooped up all of the money in sight except a few nickels and were gone before Switak could return with help.

DAVIDSON AIDE IS VICTORIOUS

He made five addresses to a total of more than 3,000 people, and was traveling and speaking constantly for 26 hours.

The climax of the trip came with the final meeting at Comanche last night, when Thomas stood in the midst of a dense crowd that surrounded him on all sides in the district court room and engaged in a battle of wits with a dozen Ferguson speakers. The Dallas man's repartee brought storms of laughter and cheers.

Previously he had addressed crowds that overflowed the district court rooms at Hamilton and Gatesville, and had made short speeches to a crowd of a few hundred that assembled to meet him at Ogleaby, and to the Lion's club at Comanche.

RAIL SHOPMEN IN SESSION DISCUSS NEW FED. LAW

CHICAGO, June 29. (AP)—Railroad shopmen, members of the Railway Employe's Department of the American Federation of Labor, whose strike in 1922 spread throughout the country, in a meeting here Monday took stock of their situation under the new Watson-Parker bill which abolished the railroad labor board. The act, which the shopmen endorsed along with the transportation brotherhoods, provides for arbitration when collective bargaining fails, but places responsibility for adjustment of disputes largely upon the interested parties.

The shopmen said that the law guaranteed the right to organize in their craft organizations "without molestation or intimidation by the employer."

This feature, they believed, would enable the shop crafts to regain members lost when some of the roads organized shopmen into associations.

Moody at Mineral Wells, Ferguson At Linden And Davidson Silent In Houston As State Races Continue

MINERAL WELLS, June 29. (AP)—The State Highway Commission was the particular object of Attorney General Moody's fire when he spoke here Monday in behalf of his candidacy. Frank Lanham, formerly a member of the commission, was in the audience as Mr. Moody criticized actions of the body while Lanham served on that board.

Moody charged that the commission, "controlled and influenced by James E. Ferguson," showed "Inexcusable waste of public money." The speaker added that the commission employed legal counsel to "defend unconstitutional contracts under which the State paid about five times the actual cost of the work which the court held to be unreasonable and excessive." Moody predicted that the primary vote of July 24 will send Ferguson "back to his ranch."

Moody was to speak Tuesday at Paducah in the afternoon and at Wellington in the evening.

Ferguson Scores Moody

LINDEN, Texas, June 29. (AP)—James E. Ferguson charged that Dan Moody had falsely accused Governor Miriam A. Ferguson with vetoing a $2,000,000 appropriation for rural schools in an address here Monday.

Ferguson added that Mrs. Ferguson had approved the measure and he declared that Moody's alleged false accusation had been suppressed by a sympathetic press. Mrs. Ferguson, he said, is due credit for $3,000,000 in rural school appropriations.

The speaker declared that the administration has carried out all its campaign pledges, accomplishing more than had been promised. Schools, prisons and highways have been the beneficiaries of "Fergusonism," he asserted.

Talks About Roads

He spoke at length on the road bond validation issue, insisting that the only way the bonds can be validated is by vote of the people of the districts by which they originally were issued.

An afternoon address at Bonham in Fannin County, and one in the evening at Cooper was on Ferguson's schedule for Tuesday.

Davidson At Houston

GATESVILLE, Texas, June 29. (AP)—Lynch Davidson was detained in Houston Monday by business which prevented a personal appearance here, but it failed to prevent the meeting which had been planned for the occasion.

R. B. Cross, a local attorney, and W. A. Thomas, a Dallas business man, effected the roll of pinch hitter for the absent candidate, each addressing a capacity audience in the District court room. Cross' introductory talk dealt with Davidson's humanitarian side. He told of incidents which he said had come under his observation of Davidson's contact with boys. One incident related to a small youth who stood outside the Senate Chamber crying in disappointment in having been left off a list of eligibles for Senate pages. Davidson heard the boy, Cross related, left the Senate Chamber, ascertained the cause of his grief, gave him $10 and helped him find another job.

Thomas spoke of Davidson's business qualifications, declaring that if he is not elected it will be because "the people have allowed passion and prejudice rather than sober judgment to rule them."

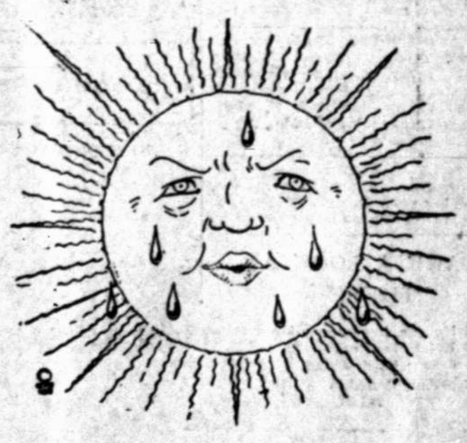

Davidson planned to resume his personal tour Tuesday with an afternoon address at Brownwood and an evening address at Coleman.
