GOVERNMENT MAY PROVE GIANT SWINDLE

By United Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—Losses of $100,000,000 to Insull investors was due to a "simple conspiracy to swindle, cheat and defraud," U. S. Attorney Dwight H. Green charged today in his opening statement at the mail fraud trial of Samuel Insull and 16 other defendants.

The attorney outlined the case against the men who rose to fame as directors of a $2,000,000,000 utility empire and saw it crash under the weight of the depression.

"The government will prove each defendant had some part in the scheme whereby thousands were induced to invest millions in the stock of this company by means of false representation," Green said.

COUNTY RELIEF FUND REDUCED BY COMMISSION

H. E. Driscoll, county administrator or relief, announced today that the $42,327 requested for Eastland county for the relief work in Eastland county for the month of October had been cut to $8,000 by the state relief commission.

In sending out the allotment, which must run Eastland county until Nov. 1, the relief heads at Austin pointed out that many counties had cut their case loads considerably and it was up to all other county administrators to do likewise, and to make the allotment last throughout the month.

Mr. Driscoll announced today that beginning tomorrow a drastic cut in the relief work would be made, and the reduced appropriation would mean cutting down on all direct relief and curtailment, possible cancellation of all work relief projects in the county.

The commission in Austin pointed out that the reduction was through sheer necessity because of lack of funds to provide more relief in the county and stated that all relief allotments to other counties were being cut in proportion.

$1,647,000 TO BE GRANTED TO TEXAS RELIEF

Johnson Says Those Who Wont Work Must Be Taken Off Rolls.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—Texas will receive $2,339,000 from federal funds in October, the FERA announced today.

Of this amount, $1,647,000 will be for drought relief and $500,000 for rural rehabilitation. Transients will be aided to the extent of $135,000 and students, $57,000.

AUSTIN, Oct. 4.—Texas relief rolls were scrutinized today for undeserving persons, while Chairman Claude D. Teer of the State Board of Control said to speed to Washington to confer with Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator.

"We must drop from the rolls every case not clearly entitled to relief before winter comes," Texas Director Adam J. Johnson told county administrators.

Particularly, Johnson would like to know if farmers had difficulty in obtaining cotton pickers. Protests have reached Washington clients will not leave the relief rolls to toil in the cotton patch.

"If that is true we must remedy it," Johnson said.

"Our relief program was not intended for people who have opportunities to make a living and we don't stand for individuals attaching themselves to the rolls and chiseling their way into the funds intended for honest unfortunates."

TRUNK REVEALS A NEW CLUE IN KIDNAP CASE

By United Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—A trunk owned by Bruno Hauptmann today yielded what authorities considered one of the most important pieces of evidence in the Lindbergh case, road maps of the Sourland mountain district from which Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was kidnapped.

District Attorney Samuel Foley announced the discovery and said Hauptmann had a minute knowledge of the area from which the child was kidnapped and was later found slain.

In the prisoner's arrest, efforts to place Hauptmann at the scene of the crime or to link him directly with the kidnapping have been one of the outstanding and most difficult problems.

Foley said Hauptmann was so well acquainted with the district that he could reproduce from memory small roads of certain areas near Hopewell, N. J.

In additional, Foley said, a German American dictionary was found.

This, he contended, tended to support a theory the writer of the ransom notes referred to a dictionary. This was suspected because the small ordinary words were misspelled, while the longer words were almost always correctly spelled.

IT'S OIL RIGHT NOW

The oil products bill has added to the prestige of the Texas railroad commission on the eve of the congressional committee hearing set for Texas, the middle of November.

Before going East on a grain rate hearing, Commissioner Thompson made this comment on the latest oil legislation:

"The important thing about the oil products bill is that it showed clearly the continued and increased confidence of the legislature in the state's ability to control the production of its own oil. With this legislative expression Texas will present a united front when the congressional hearings begin in Dallas in November."

The history of state control of oil records an unbroken effort to uphold the state's right to manage its own business. Session after legislative session has resulted in strengthening the powers for the commission in regard to oil.

The sweeping change within the oil industry itself in the last 60 days from an inclination toward federal control to outspoken opposition to it indicates that the Ickes plan is nearly dead. However, the Texas viewpoint is that everything to present a solid front must be done prior to January. Then congress meets and the last throw to gain federal control of oil will be made.

If there is a plan to help your city, plan to help that plan. Don't play dead and pass the buck to your neighbor. Do your share!

BEHIND THE SCENES IN

WASHINGTON

WITH RODNEY DUTCHER

During the absence on vacation of Rodney Dutcher, the daily Washington column is being written by Willis Thornton.

BY WILLIS THORNTON

NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—If you got any idea from reading that story in the papers the other day that television radio programs are going to come in on your home radio set day after tomorrow, just settle back in your chair and cool off. Television is right around the corner, that's true, say experts of the Federal Communications Commission. But it's the same corner it's been right around for the past three or four years.

Radio Corporation of America has been at work nearly a year on its New York-to-Philadelphia high-frequency line. These new waves for transmission of facsimiles are partly "visible," and don't transmit farther than the horizon limits of eye visibility. That's why they're sent from a height, and received the same way. Even at that, "repeating stations" have to be built at New Brunswick and Trenton on this line.

When you figure on building a receiving and re-transmitting station every 25 or 30 miles along such a route (which is what's needed today) the cost mounts. That's what's necessary in the present stage of "facsimile transmission," at distances greater than those purely experimental. When you get such "facsimile" transmission pictures fast enough, you get the effect of a movie—that's television.

More than 150 experimental stations are operating among these high-frequency wave bands under experimental license. The broadcasting division of the Communications Commission is keeping an eye on their work.

The past six weeks have been notable for its succession of moves to "crystallize" the conserof drought shortage," the Guhoxa county food and grocery tributors' NRA code authority announced a movement to prevent "unwarranted price raising."

The institute is sponsored by the Civic Federation of Dallas, a philanthropic organization. It is offered at the request of the Texas Relief Administration under the provisions of the training program of the Federal Relief Administration.

Eastland county was fortunate in having two of its relief employees selected as eligible for instruction in the institute, Hunter George, social service director of the county stated Thursday.

Centennial Is Facing Legislative Trouble In Future

By VERNON A. MCGEE
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, Oct. 4.—The Texas centennial commission faces some rough political weather before the state may hang up a "welcome" sign in 1936 and open the gates to its celebration of 100 years of independence.

Centennial commissioners requested a state appropriation for the celebration when legislators were in their third extraordinary session last month to provide winter relief for destitute unemployed.

The house of representatives answered by adopting a resolution calling for a popular referendum Nov. 6 on a $5,000,000 centennial appropriation.

The senate defeated the referendum proposal, thereby saving the centennial commission a severe rebuke, by a margin of only one vote. That vote, changed from "aye" to "no" only after considerable pleading, sufficed to indicate rough weather ahead.

Many legislators believed the referendum would have been fatal to the centennial project; that Texas voters would not approve a $5,000,000 appropriation when the state already faces a $14,000,000 deficit. Relief of hungry, destitute persons already has required all but $3,500,000 of the state-wide $20,000,000 bond issue voted last year.

Refused an immediate appropriation, and threatened with a referendum that might have meant a mandate against any appropriation at all, centennial commissioners retired in good order.

They are expected to renew their request for an immediate appropriation this month, when a fourth special session of the legislature is scheduled. Meanwhile, the centennial is courting popular sentiment to back up the request for state aid.

Oil Development In Trinity Moves At Rapid Rate

By United Press
TRINITY, Tex.—One of the fastest oil developments on record is taking place eight miles north-west of here.

On September 7 Jack and Garrett Boone, brothers, of Houston, brought in a wildcat test on the Trinity State Bank 140-acre tract in Houston county just across the line from Trinity county.

Weeks later more than a dozen wells were drilling and nearly a score were prepared for drilling, the populations of Trinity, Lovelady and Crockett were doubled, and the Texas Long-Leaf Lumber Company's giant mill was running to capacity and building construction was booming.

Acres far from the wildest well sold and continues to sell for fabulous prices. Oil from the discovery well was being moved in tank car lots over a railroad long declared a losing venture but now considered valuable property.

The apparent introduction of another long-time Texas oil pool interested the Humble Oil Company and more than 70 truck loads of equipment were unloaded. Headquarters for the company were erected in the vicinity and a field camp built.

Hunt Brothers rigged up one and a half miles west of the discovery.

Lacey's Hanner No. 1 derrick three miles west of the wildcat was built and drilling started.

Clearing was made two miles north of the Boone well for East-

Texas Refining Company's Chris-holm No. 1.

East of the discovery well only 660 feet on Texas Long Leaf Lumber Company land, the Boone brothers have sunk another well.

Sandy farms that would have sold for $8 an acre cash three months ago were leased for as high as $500 several miles from the well. Prices of $1000 close to the well were reported.

Royalties were being traded from operator to operator, with the cash that bought them resting in the hands of the citizens.

Lawyers and title-busters were questioning everyone looking for "feeble-minded owners or minor heirs," against whom statutes of limitations fail to run. Others were requesting tax certificates to see if properties were held in proper title under the limitations laws.

Out of all the confusion caused by the new development one thing is certain that prosperity is here—oil prosperity.

And the well that started all the excitement continues to pour out oil daily with undiminished supply and pressure.

Farmers Borrow On Stored Cotton

HOUSTON.—Loans at four per cent interest will be made to farmers by production credit associations on the security of stored cotton, according to Tully C. Garner, president of the Production Credit Corporation of Houston. The loans will be made in accordance with the Commodity Credit Corporation plan, under special authorization just received from Washington.

"While full details have not been developed," said Mr. Garner, "it is evident that this deviation from our standard interest rate reflects the smaller risk involved in loans against a staple product in storage and the same commodity in process of production."

Associations will carry these loans without risk, since they are eligible to be transferred to the Commodity Credit Corporation. "Crop production loans bear a standard interest rate of three per cent above the discount rate of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Houston, which, during recent months, has made it possible for production credit associations to make loans at the rate of five per cent per annum."

There are thirty eight production credit associations in Texas, located in all parts of the state, offering convenient short-term credit for practically all agricultural purposes.

Centennial Brings Out High Points In Texas History

DALLAS, Tex.—Details of how the President of Texas was notified of the decisive victory, gained at San Jacinto, a battle that realized the independence of Texas, constitutes an interesting sidelight in connection with the Centennial, which in 1936 will be commemorated by celebrations at San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Dallas and cities associated with the early history of the State.

David G. Burnett, the first provisional President of Texas, for safety's sake had moved with several members of his Cabinet to Galveston Island, and while the battle took place April 21, 1836, the President did not learn of the victory until six days later.

News of the victory was carried by Robert J. Calder, who commanded Company K in Burleson's regiment in the battle, and Judge B. C. Franklin, accompanied by two soldiers. Their only means of transportation was a leaky skiff, which they rowed and towed sleeping a night with difficulty and having a hard time getting anything to eat.

On the fifth day, they rowed alongside the war schooner "Invincible," the commander of which fired a cannon three times to celebrate the news of victory. The messengers partook liberally of the best liquor on the ship and then were taken to the "Independence," the flagship of Commodore

Hawkins, who fired a cannon thirteen times and wined and dined the messengers. He then advised them to go and tell President Burnett the news, which the executive received in his tent the sixth day after the battle. It is said that the President was "miffed" that everybody on the island knew that the victory had been won before he was informed.

SHARK TOOK EASIEST WAY

By United Press

BRANT ROCK, Mass.—200-pound, seven-foot shark sought the easiest way to get his meals and got a sound paddling. The shark, attacking the fishing nets and boat of Fred Keene, got away, however, with a 50-pound catch before he was beaten off with oars.

Oh, Doctor!

It would be a hard-hearted patient indeed who wouldn't pay a bill to such a pretty doctor. But Bertha Jarvis, of Los Angeles, 24, and blond, above, isn't worrying over that—yet. She's too proud of the license that made her a full-fledged M. D. under strict California laws, one of the youngest in the state so honored.

Quanah Will Seek A Gigantic Lake Project of the U.S.

By United Press

JUANAH, Tex.—Citizens of Northwest Texas, determined to dam Sandy Pease river and create one of the largest bodies of water in the state, will carry their plans to Washington in an effort to get the project listed under the P. W. A.

Two representatives of the Pease River Development association, formed recently to promote the project, will accompany Rep. W. D. McFarlane of Graham to the nation's capital and appeal directly to federal authorities.

It is estimated that the combined dam and irrigation project, forming a lake 20 miles long and a mile and a half wide, would cost $7,700,000. The concrete dam, more than a mile long itself, would cost $2,000,000.

As a recreation site the lake would be available to large areas of Northwest Texas, the Panhandle, and Southwest Oklahoma. Four counties—Wichita, Wilbarger, Hardeman, and Foard—would benefit by irrigation.

The men who will make the trip to Washington are E. A. Brown of Electra, president of the development association, and J. H. Allison of Wichita Falls.

The dam would be constructed across Pease river south of Quanah. Its construction, supporters of the project say, would greatly relieve unemployment in the counties affected and at the same time provide a permanent asset for territory.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBE

Win Back Pep... Vigor... Vascular

Medical authorities agree that many of the ailments which help to ruin the body are due to a clogged kidney tube.

If you have trouble with too much acid in the blood, indigestion, constipation, backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vigor, a getting up nights, lumbago, swelling and an aching, rheumatic pain and a general feeling of weakness, it is a sign that your kidney tube is clogged.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every 24 hours, your body will take up these poisons and you will have a serious trouble. It may knock you down P-I for you for many months. Doan's is a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 10 years. They give you a belief in the power of DOAN'S to wash out the first 15 miles of kidney tube.

But don't take chances with strong or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to wash out 15 miles of kidney tube in 15 minutes for they may injure the delicate tissues of the kidney. DOAN'S FILLS—the old reliable that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs—will wash out the first 15 miles of kidney tube.

Ask your druggist for DOAN'S FILLS, a doctor's prescription... which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 10 years. They give you a belief in the power of DOAN'S to wash out the first 15 miles of kidney tube.

The man from the car fired four shots at close range, turned, jumped into his car and swung around the corner. Decker . . . was the first to reach the body.

CHAPTER I

TIME sifted into police headquarters and then seeped down into the press room in the basement with the unfeeling regularity of dirty water draining through the waste pipe of a bathtub.

Charles Morden sat at his battered desk and held in his hand a telephone which was directly connected with The Blade.

"I've got another purse snatching for you," he droned. "Elizabeth Givens, 42, 3612 Reeder street, snatched from Thirty-second avenue car line at Waters street. Half a block from the car line two men who had been walking behind her rushed past and snatched her purse. The purse contained $7.42 in cash, some letters, a key ring with keys to her house, and a compact.

"Here's a funny one: A man who gives his name as John Smith, 18, 732 Maple avenue, driving a Chrysler roadster, license number 61012, arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. There was a chicken with him. She gives the name of Mary Briggs, her age 27, and says she has no real desire. She claims she was a hitch hiker that Smith picked up in the automobile a few minutes before his arrest. He had a minor traffic accident with a car driven by George Moffit, 32, 619 Melrose street. The accident took place at the intersection of Webster and Broadway. Traffic Officer Carl Wheaton was on duty at the corner. He started blubbering on Smith's mouth, arrested questioning him. Smith seemed anxious to get away. He had a wallet well filled with money, and tried to bribe the officer. Wheaton got suspicious. There was a report of a couple of service station stick-ups the one I sent in about two hours ago—where a man and a woman drove up to the service station and the woman did the stick-up. The pair had been driving a Chrysler roadster, so Wheaton made an investigation."

An officer appeared in the doorway and beckoned to Morden. Morden nodded his head, said into the transmitter, "Just a second. Something's up."

Morden hung up the telephone and bounded into the corridor, where the officer passed him a written memo.

"This just came in," he said. Morden glanced through the memo and gave a low whistle. He asked one or two questions, jotted down notes, then rushed back to the telephone and picked up the receiver.

"Looks like a murder case," he said. "Private detective killed by gangster. . . . All right, I'll hold the line."

There was an interval of silence, then Morden's eyes gleamed with enthusiasm. He slid an appraising palm along the edges of his glossy black hair, making certain that the waves were smoothed into place. The notes took on a tone of bantering invitation.

"Hello, brat, I wondered if you'd give me a tumble. Listen, cutie, I've found a swell new eating place. They put on a good floor show. What do you say we toddle over and . . ."

Abruptly his voice returned to its droning, bored monotone. "Okay, Edward Shillingby, 53, 563 Moradnock building, at Ninth and Central, unmarried, licensed as a private detective, shot at 10:15 by a gangster on Western avenue between Cypress and Hazel. A man driving a Cadillac coupe with the left fender dented, drove slowly along close to the curb. Thomas Decker, 48, 1542 Washington street, unmarried, was walking along the sidewalk. The car pulled in close to the curb. A lone occupant raised a gun, said 'All right, you skunk, here's where you get yours. Decker, in a panic, started to run. The man called after him, 'Beg your pardon, buddy, I got the wrong guy.'"

"The car got into motion, went on past Decker. He had a good look at it, but couldn't get the license number. The tall light had been dented or else was dim. But he could see the dent on the left rear fender. It was a gray Cadillac coupe. The driver wore an overcoat and a black slouch hat. Fifty yards down the street, the car stopped. Shillingby was walking along the sidewalk. The man in the car got out, walked across the sidewalk, said something to Shillingby, stood close to him, and Decker says they seemed to be standing still for two or three seconds. Then the man from the Cadillac fired four shots at close range, turned, jumped into his car and swung around the corner. Decker was the first to reach the body.

"Officer Sam Greenwood heard the shots. He was two blocks away. He arrived about the time Decker stopped a passing motorist. The victim was dead. Two of the shots entered the heart. The other two were within three inches of the heart. Any one of them would have been fatal. Death was instantaneous. . . . And say, don't forget to mention Sam Greenwood. He's a good cop."

THE dead man was Edward Shillingby. Identification made from letters in his pocket and his private detective's license. There was a typewritten statement in his pocket that if he should be found dead, police were to call Fay Bronson, at Lockhaven 2934 and to question Philip Lampton, sometimes known as "Cincinnati Red." Officers called Fay Bronson. She lives at 1924 Argyle, apartment 19B, age 23. She said that Shillingby had been working up a case against Lampton. She didn't know what the case was. Shillingby had said he was going out to shadow Lampton. He thought Lampton might grab him and frisk him as he had his secretary type out this statement. The secretary says the object of the statement was to keep Lampton from bumping Shillingby off. He wanted Lampton to think there was some evidence that was being held by the secretary. She says it was just a bluff. There wasn't any evidence."

"That sounds sort of fishy. Shillingby probably had something up his sleeve. He may have intended to talk with Lampton and flash the statement on Lampton. Now here's another funny angle on the case: Decker is in a panic. He made his statement to the police, gave his name and address, promised that he'd be available as a witness. He skipped out. Just a few minutes ago police received a telephone communication from Sidney Griff, the criminologist, stating that Decker had consulted him. He said Decker was afraid Lampton's gang would kill him to keep him from testifying. Griff says that he'll produce Decker any time it's necessary to have him as a witness that in the meantime Decker is going to be very much under cover. There's something funny about that. Decker's statement to the police doesn't indicate that he could be of very much help in convicting Lampton. The police figure he either knows something he didn't tell them or that he has some other reason for being frightened. It might be a good plan to get in touch with Griff and see if we can get a statement from him."

The receiver made squawking noises. "Sure," Morden said, "I can get a good story out of that John Smith case and make a human interest yarn out of the hitchhiker who was picked up for a ride and found himself under arrest. She isn't hard on the eyes. She made a good picture and is the type that would sit on the edge of a desk and show plenty of leg. For God's sake, we haven't got time to get a photographer down here in time to make the first edition. But we might shoot her for a good follow-up yarn."

Sure, John Smith is a phoney, but the officers are going to find out who he is before they turn him loose. They haven't got anything against him. He doesn't check with the description of the service station stick-up—not when they got a good look at him. They're going to hold him until one of the men comes in from the service station, to see if he can identify the girl, but they haven't got anything against Smith. He's had a couple of drinks, but he's not intoxicated. Okay, I'll hush in and get you some stuff for a human interest article. . . . Yeah, I know. I can get it in 10 minutes. If you want a picture you'd better send a photographer down right away. Okay, I'll call you back in seven minutes—19 at the latest."

Morden slid the receiver back into place, lit a cigarette and sauntered out of the press room, down a corridor filled with stale, lifeless air, and pushed open a door marked "Detective Bureau."

The Clew of the Forgotten Murder

CHAPTER I-A

JIM CARSONS, of the detective bureau, was killing time until men from the service station would arrive to make the identification. He looked up as Morden entered the room and nodded. Then he turned back to the tall, somewhat portly individual who sat on a wooden bench, his shoulders slightly stooped, his eyes nervously flickering about the room. On a chair nearby sat a girl with eyes that were dark, wary and watchful.

Morden swept the girl with an appreciative eye, waited until her glance rested upon his face, and smiled.

After a moment she returned the smile.

Tom Carson looked over at the man and said in a weary voice "You're talking just the way they all of them talk. If I had a nickel for every guy who claimed he was going to break me for holding him, I wouldn't have to work. You say your address is 732 Maple avenue. Then, when we prove you don't live there, you say you're John Smith, of Riverview, and that you gave us a fake name and address because you didn't want to be involved in a lot of scandal. The girl claims she's a hitch hiker and hasn't any home; that you picked her up and . . ."

"That's right," said the man. "Shut up," Carson said. "I'll ask you questions when I want you to talk."

The man wet his lips nervously with the tip of his tongue, and shifted his eyes to the girl. The girl fidgeted in her chair, suddenly looked over to Carson and correctly interpreted the cool humor of his gaze.

"Honest to God!" she said. "I know anything about him I'd tell you. I'm telling you the God's own truth. I was just walking and wasn't even giving the driver's tumble when this fellow pulled a roadster in alongside the curb and asked me if I didn't want a ride. I told him I didn't, and he let the car in low gear and crashed along . . ."

"The telephone rang. Carson held the receiver to his ear, nodded his head and looked across at the man on the bench.

"Now," he said, "we're going somewhere."

He spoke into the transmitter "That's all the dope you've got. He nodded, slipped the receiver back into place, wrote rapidly a sheet of paper, then looked at the man.

"All right, Mr. Frank R. Cathey, suppose you tell us the truth?" The man on the bench did nothing. His eyes slitted slightly, a thought concentrating in swift thought.

"You got that name from the place where I rented the car, didn't you?" he said.

Carson's manner was the manner of a cat torturing a mouse. "Why?" he asked with smirking innocence. "Was that the name you gave when you rented the car?" The man on the bench nodded. "All right," he said, "there's a use keeping up the pretense any more. I'm Frank R. Cathey of Riverview."

He got to his feet, took a card from his hip pocket, opened the card case, showed driving license, lodge card memberships, golf club cards.

The telephone rang again. Carson pressed the receiver against his left ear, propped his left elbow on the desk, so that the receiver was held over an angle and his head was tilted over to one side, pushed against the receiver. His eyes

Morden swept the girl with an appreciative eye and after a moment returned the smile.

er left Cathay's face as he said. "What do you do?" asked Carson.

"I supervise my investments," the man said with dignity.

Charles Morden sauntered from the room. At the doorway he paused with the door open just a crack.

"Do me a favor, Tom, will you?" he said.

Tom Carson turned his head and raised his eyebrows.

"Hold him for 15 minutes," Morden said, and slammed the door before Carson could say anything.

He raced down the corridor to the press room, thrust his head in the door and saw that Whipple of The Planet was seated at his desk, kept on going down the corridor until he came to a telephone booth. He entered the booth, and as he pulled the door shut, the light clicked on. Morden reached up and extinguished the light by unscrewing the globe a half turn. There remained enough light which filtered in through the glass which partitioned the top of the door to enable him to drop the coin and dial the number of The Blade.

"Listen, cutie," he said, "put me on with Roy . . . yeah, I know. Never mind that stuff."

"Sure the trivium is good, but forget it. This is business. I'm using a nickel of my own money just to get mixed into this. I can't afford to get any notoriety."

Carson nodded. "You should have come clean in the first place," he said. "You were only picked up on suspicion. Let's just check your identity. What's your address in Riverview?"

The man spoke without hesitation. "My address is at 256 Walnut avenue. My telephone number is Main 6531. My office is in the First National Bank building. I have suite 908—a suite of five rooms occupying the entire front of the ninth floor."

man isn't John Smith at all. I shot a big shot in Riverview, a man by the name of Cathay—Cathay's name—that's right. . . . Frank of Cathay of Riverview. He lives at 286 Walnut avenue, has an office at the First National Bank building, and is a banker and candidate for study council. There's probably a standard political fight up there, and junior his munition for one of the Riverview newspapers, depending on which high one is fighting him. Yes, he thin it's picked up with a chicken. He standard mits he doesn't know her ship equ never saw her before. Her car of her is that she's Mary Briggs, a hand teacher.

"TOM CARSONS is handling investigation, and Tom Carson is a big banking business. Tom Carson is the man's got political connections here he can work if he wants. Cathay is going to pay about a dred bucks to get eased out back door and have the thing dropped. Carson can't because no charge was made. Guy was just picked up on suspicion, mostly suspicion of mixed up in the service stick-ups. . . . sure, I'm certain my facts. I heard him when he kicked through and came out. He's got his card case with him with his membership cards, driving license and all of that. And Carson will have him on the signature that's on his cards and operator's license, in order to make certain he's got right man. . . . you can put call for Mrs. Cathay at Riverview and get a statement out of . . . How do I know he's got buy his way out? Hell! He knows this call is costing a nickel? If you want him to be enough to get a photographer here you've got to bring some sure to bear on Carson and right now."

Morden slipped the receiver into place, left the telephone and started down the corridor, passing the room where Carson was holding Frank R. Cathay. He taken less than half a dozen from the telephone booth. Whipple of The Planet emerged from the press room and staring at him suspiciously.

"Where you been, guy?" he asked. "Just fooling around, strutting my legs," Morden told him.

Whipple's gaze became more pious. He walked past Morden directly to the telephone booth, jerked the door shut. The light clicked, but the light did not on. Morden had neglected to the bulb back into position. He reached up, twisted the globe and the light came on.

Whipple jerked open the door and ran down the corridor to the press room. He picked up the telephone and shouted into it. "Hold everything! Morden of The Blade has picked up something hot. I don't know what it is, but I know it's hot."

Morden, standing in the doorway of the press room, lit a cigarette, grinned mockingly.

"You're sure a suspicious he said. 'My city editor can me for that.'"

"For what?" asked Whipple. "Holding up the paper on a steer," Morden said.

"I'm not so certain it's a one," Whipple told him. He the desk sergeant, called the broadcaster, even called the precinct houses, without any results.

Morden, afraid to leave the dropped into his chair, put his feet up on the battered desk and simply.

other disease causing an equal amount of suffering of which parents show such an unaccountable disregard, not only for the safety of their own little ones, but for the lives of the neighbor's children," said Dr. John W.
Brown, State Health Officer.
"There is no natural immunity against this disease during the first six months of life as there is against measles. It is at this age that whooping cough strikes its hardest blow and over 50 per cent of deaths occurring in children are under one year of age. The disease is usually transmitted by direct contact with the secretions of the mouth or nose, and only a very short exposure is required to contract the infection. Handkerchiefs, drinking cups and toys also may transmit the infection.

"The infection is communicable from the appearance of the first symptoms and is most contagious at this early period when the nature of the affection can only be suspected. The incubation period is commonly seven days. A slight fever, running of the nose and a cough make their appearance so-gradually and insidiously that a diagnosis is practically impossible unless a history of exposure is obtained. When the "whoop" appears there is no mistaking the disease. If there is whooping cough in your community keep other children away from your little children and keep your children at home. Call your physician early.
Isolation of all cases for at least two weeks from the development of the characteristic cough should be rigidly enforced."

The 14 INCH RULE

"a measure of safety for your child's eyes!"

IMPROPER lighting frequently causes a child to bring her book much closer to her eyes than the normal reading distance—which is 14 inches.

If this is allowed to continue it may lead to defective vision, and so we suggest that you observe the kind of light your child is reading under. Only the very best is good enough, because about three-fourths of all the knowledge she will acquire through life will come through her eyes.

You can help your child make progress in her studies and reduce the possibility of future eye trouble by paying attention to proper home lighting NOW. We will be only too glad to consult with you.

Realignment Of Democratic Party Moving Swiftly

By LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—President Roosevelt appears today to be wavering conservative democrats toward the nearest exit to make room for independent voters and liberals of both parties who have been invited under the New Deal tent.

Republicans complain he is trying to scuttle the democratic party. Second readings of Mr. Roosevelt's fireside chat caused politicians to study his claim to the allegiance of "all forward-looking men and women." In view of his language the party realignment movement appears to be proceeding briskly.

Discussing gains in trade and industry and development of administration policy, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"There are assurances that hearten all forward looking men and women with the confidence that we are definitely re-building our political and economic systems on the lines laid down by the new deal."

The statement coming six weeks before a general election emphasizes the existing scrambling of party lines. The republican senatorial-congressional committee has issued an anthology of democratic criticism of the New Deal and charged that Mr. Roosevelt was scuttling the democratic party.

The republican campaign pamphlet said the president had banned the word "democrat" from his speeches and that Chairman James A. Farley of the democratic national committee congratulates primary winners as new deal supporters rather than democrats.

Quoted by the republicans in bitter protest against various Roosevelt policies were Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia; former Gov. Alfred E. Smith; John W. Davis, the democratic presidential nominee in 1924; former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, and several other nationally prominent.

Party lines are visibly sagging. Upton Sinclair, former socialist, is democratic choice for governor in California. New York republicans picked an Al Smith protégé for gubernatorial honors. A progressive party has pushed New Deal support in Wisconsin.

Democrats—including Smith and Davis—are top liners in the American Liberty league formed to defend the constitution and property rights against the New Deal. Maryland republicans seek election support with the promise that their candidates will co-operate more closely with the New Deal than has the state under the direction of democratic Gov. Albert C. Ritchie. Maryland democrats also endorse the New Deal.

The Pageant of Cerelia, will present young women from all towns of Texas that are selected under the auspices of the Federated women's clubs, in conjunction with the Texas Consolidated Theatres, on October 17, in Dallas at the Texas State Fair.

Eastland's Princess and Maid in Waiting will be balloted on at the Lyric Theatre, beginning with this Friday and closing the following Friday, so stated Manager John Burke, who called a committee meeting of president and other officers of the Eastland Federated clubs at the Lyric, Wednesday morning.

Clubs represented were the Thursday Afternoon, Civic League, Music Study, Alpha Delphian chapter and Junior Thursday club, whose representatives, Mmes. J. M. Perkins, F. M. Kenny, W. K. Jackson, H. O. Satterwhite, Poe Lovett, J. R. McLaughlin, James Horton and N. N. Rosenquest, were resolved into a committee, with Mr. Burke elected chairman.

Some ten or a dozen young women were chosen to be balloted upon by Lyric Theatre patrons. These ballots will be attached to Lyric tickets, and the name of their choice for Princess of Eastland and Maid in Waiting is to be inscribed thereon by the holder.

The young woman receiving the largest number of votes will be Princess of Eastland. The one receiving the second highest number of votes will be Maid in Waiting.

Princess Eastland and her Maid in Waiting will leave for Dallas on the 16th, for the Pageant on the 17th, and will return on the 18th of October.

The fortunate young woman who will represent the Eastland clubs, will have transportation to and from Dallas, and all hotel expenses paid at a Dallas hotel.

Registration at the hotel, dinner afterwards, and attendance at "Show of the Century," a star State Fair attraction will feature the first day.

The parade on Wednesday morning, luncheon at Dallas Country club, and the Pageant of Cerelia, that night, will climax with a dance at Baker hotel.
