Klan Issue Looms In Oklahoma Election Today

JACK WALTON IN ATTEMPT TO GET SENATE TOGA

Uncertainty Prevails As Voters Go To Polls This Morning.

KLAN VOTE UNCERTAIN

Grand Dragon Orders Members To Hold Political Meeting.

By The Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 4.—With preliminaries virtually out of the way, candidates for nomination for national, state and county offices tonight awaited the verdict tomorrow of Oklahoma voters. Many observers declare that never in the history of the state has any election been approached with the uncertainty that attends the primary tomorrow.

Klan Vote Uncertain

This is particularly true of the democratic senatorial race, no one being confident of the candidate on which the ku klux klan vote will settle or whether it will be given as a whole to any one candidate. Jack Walton, deposed governor, is a candidate for senator.

A telegram sent last night by N. C. Jewett, grand dragon of the Oklahoma realm, to klan locals throughout the state, urged support of E. B. Howard, congressman from the first district. The telegram was a bombshell in the ranks of the prophets inasmuch as an editorial in the Fiery Cross, a klan paper, recently endosed Charles J. Wrightsman. The editorial was accepted as coming from Jewett.

Klans Meet Tonight

Jewett wired all klan locals to hold eleventh hour meetings tonight at which final discussions of the political situation will be held.

All candidates for the senatorial nomination repeated their expectations of victory today.

Observers expected a total vote in the primary of approximately 275,000. The democratic senatorial winner probably will receive about 80,000, it was said.

Expert Strips Away Any Vestige of Soul Held By Slayers of Franks

Boys Could Contemplate Murder As Easily As Choose Kind of Pie, Alienist Says; Certain Testimony Kept Secret

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Another expert witness for the defense took the stand today in the hearing before Judge John R. Caverly to determine the punishment for Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, kidnappers—murderers of Robert Franks. And he stripped from them any vestige of soul, interpreted as consideration of society, left by the first psychiatrist who testified Saturday.

"Leopold told me he could contemplate committing a murder with no conscience than was necessary in selecting the sort of pie for dinner," said the witness, Dr. William Healy of had considered kidnapping and slaying members of their own family, and that he would delight in killing, for instance, Walter Bachrach, of his counsel if he thought he would gain anything by it in the manner of publicity or pleasure of anticipation or expectation of the plan."

Killed Affection Early

"Leopold told me that he reveled in the fact that he had no ground for conscience," testified the mental pathologist. "He said that at an early age h. began trying to kill affection, to break down any feeling for his family, and began to develop his selfish, egotistic super-man idea."

The expert was testifying in furtherance of the "childish phantasy" conclusions as set forth by the defense's first alienist, Dr. William A. White of Washington, D. C., who advanced the idea of a merger of personalities as leading to the Franks murder.

Tells of 'Compact'

Dr. Healy asserted "an incredibly absurd childish compact" bound the boys together from an early age and "had a bearing on the ultimate acts of the youths."

Judge Caverly refused to permit Dr. Healy to testify as to the conditions of the "childish compact" when the witness hesitated at speaking plainly in the presence of the women who predominated a spectators in th court room. The attorneys and judge bent over the court reporters as Dr. Healy, in a low voice, put into the record an outline of the compact between the two youths. "This is unfit for publication," the judge asserted sternly as he motioned away newspaper men who crowded forward.

Crowe Again Defeated.

Robert E. Crowe, state's attorney, who has contended from the first against admissibility of expert testimonies in mitigation of punishment made only one effort today to have the hearing thrown into a trial by jury on an insanity plea. The move was checkmated by the defense and Dr. Healy's assertion that "insanity" was a legal term and had not been considered in his examination and report on the "mental disability" of the youths.

Dr. Healy's testimony, as was that of Dr. White, was clearly contrasting of the emotional and intellectual lives of Leopold and Loeb, with the indicated purpose of swaying the court's judgment toward mitigation in fixing punishment because the undeveloped emotional sides of their personalities had overshadowed their powerful intellects and had rendered them incapable of putting into action the crime as built up in their childish phantasies.

The boys for the most part were solemn today, smiling and whispering to each other only when the witness would make some pointed criticism of them or praise their intellectual attainments. However, in an interview in the jail Leopold said that he would prefer death on the gallows to having to sit and hear alienists analyze his character.

"What's a measley thing like hanging?" he demanded. "What's death for that matter?" Don't you like to go to sleep, that's all death is."

"I'D RATHER HANG THAN HAVE SILLY THINGS TOLD"--BOY

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Nathan Leopold, Jr., who with Richard Loeb is on trial for his life for the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks, was moved today by the testimony of Dr. William Heal concerning a "childish compact" between Leopold and and Loeb, including statements that the court would not allow the reporters to publish. By his own admission he would rather have been hanging than sit and listen to the alienist's testimony about him.

"What's a measly thing like hanging?" he asked. "What's death for that matter? Don't you like to go to sleep? That's all death is."

Dr. Healy testified Leopold would sacrifice life rather than dignity.

"That expresses it exactly," said the prisoner. "I'd absolutely rather have been hanged than hear those undignified things told about me. When I told the alienists all about my thought, I supposed it was in confidence."

From here Judge Robertson will go to Amarillo where he is scheduled to speak Wednesday evening.

TEXAS BALLOTS BREAK RECORD WITH 700,000

Mrs. Ferguson Leads Lynch Davidson By 5,196 Margin.

SOME RETURNS LACK

Only 3,000 Votes Yet Unreported, Election Bureau Reports.

By The Associated Press.

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 4. — The largest vote in the history of Texas was recorded in the recent democratic primary, it was announced here tonight by the Texas election bureau in the last report on incomplete returns that will be made. The tabulation tonight went to 700,020, the first time in Texas history 700,000 has been passed.

Ferguson Still Leads.

Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, the Temple candidate, was still in the lead for second place with a plurality over Lynch Davidson of 5,196.

Live Oak county is the only remaining county that has not sent any report to the bureau, while seven others have made partial returns.

The incomplete counties are: Coke, Crosby, Goliad, Lubbock, Motley, Terry and Upton. Notwithstanding the fact that the complete vote was canvassed in every county Saturday the bureau has been unable to get complete returns from the counties named, according to A. F. Henning, the superintendent of the bureau.

Some Votes Still Out.

The incomplete returns from the seven incomplete counties, already tabulated give Davidson 2,280 and Mrs. Ferguson 1,021. Davidson has led Ferguson in all but one, Coke, where Ferguson received a margin of 22. The bureau estimates that therefore probably not more than 3,000 votes to come from these counties to be divided between the nine candidates for governor. Live Oak county, which has not reported at all, has a voting strength of 1,554.

The largest vote previous to this time was in 1918, when 678,000 votes were cast.

The present totals for governor are: Barton 29,229; Burkett 21,726; Collins 25,149; L. Davidson 140,489; Whit Davidson 124,386; Dixon 17,234; Ferguson 145,685; Pope 17,252; Robertson 191,870.

Efforts Will Be Made To Repair Wrecked Plane In Time.

HOEFN, HONAFJORD, Iceland, Aug. 4.—Lieut. Lowell H. Smith and Lieut. Erik Nelson, the United States army's globe fliers, are ready, if the present favorable weather conditions continue, to jump off within the next 24 hours for their 300 mile jaunt around the southern coast of Iceland and thence northward to the harbor of Reykjavik.

The two planes which are riding at their buoys inside the natural breakwaters here were given a thorough examination today and found to be in prime condition.

Today Lieutenants Smith and Nelson, who were successful in making their way through fog and rain from Orkney islands to Iceland, expressed regret over the mishap to their comrade flier, Lieut. Leigh Wade, who was forced down Sunday by engine trouble as he was endeavoring to negotiate the route across the north Atlantic from Scotland and whose plane was wrecked in an attempt to hoist it on board the cruiser Richmond.

Negro Is Spirited Away From City For Safe Keeping

Black Held In Murder Is Taken Into Custody After Exciting Chase—Flatiron Used On Young Store Clerk

M. T. Williams, a negro suspect released less than a week ago for alleged complicity in the slaying of Wesley Ashmore, is in jail in a nearby city and officers are searching anew for evidence linking him with Ashmore's death as a result of an attack yesterday on another young store clerk. Mike Pearce, 14-year-old worker in the J. R. Morgan grocery, 234 Avenue F, narrowly escaped a fate similar to that of Ashmore when Williams hurled a flat iron at his head, robbed the cash register of the store and fled.

The boy was dazed momentarily as the iron grazed his left temple, but he revived sufficiently to run from the store and call for help. He returned to work Monday afternoon, none the worse for his experience.

Holds Crowd At Bay

Williams missed being manhandled by a crowd of men by a margin barely wide enough for safety. Cornered in a yard three blocks from the scene of the attack on Pierce, he held a crowd at bay with a long, keen-edged knife and refused to submit until City Detectives Boone and Hart appeared on the ground. A revolver was leveled at him as he stood backed against the house and the man holding it, openly admitted that if the black had made a threatening move he would have stopped some bullets.

Negro Proves Surly

Chief of Detectives Dave May and Detective John Boone, returning Monday night after locking up M. T. Williams in a jail in another county, declared that the negro had made no statement concerning his alleged complicity in the Wesley Ashmore murder.

The negro was surly on the trip out of the county, the officers reported, and refused to talk. He was not questioned concerning the Ashmore case.

It was intimated, however, that peace officers and possibly some one from the district attorney's office would visit him Tuesday for the purpose of investigation.

Boy Tells of Attack.

According to reports to officers and also to reporters, the attack on Pierce occurred between 11 and 11:30 Monday morning. The boy was alone in the store, J. R. Morgan, the proprietor, having left just a moment or so after the negro entered.

"He came in and asked for a spool of crochet thread," Pierce related, "and I showed him a spool of white thread, which was all we had. He said he didn't want that and then asked me to change a nickel for him. I asked him if he wanted five pennies and he said yes.

"As I turned to the cash drawer to get the pennies, he took off his hat and lifted something from his head. . It was wrapped in a paper sack and I saw at once that he was going to hit me with it. As he threw it I ducked and it just grazed my left temple. I was dazed for a moment, but I ran out of the store and began calling for help. He started back behind the counter as I left and a minute later he came out of the door."

It later developed that the negro had evidently gone into the cash drawer and taken out $4 in small change. After being cornered by the crowd he threw the money on the ground.

Calls For Assistance.

Pierce, after rushing from the store, ran to a nearby house and tried to borrow a gun. He could find none, however, so called to several men passing in an automobile. He explained to them what had happened and they set out after Williams who had run east on Avenue F and turned north on Polk. The car followed him two blocks on Polk to Avenue D where Williams turned east again and ran to the alley between Polk and Monroe. Rushing into a house, he is reported to have knocked over a little girl, threatened her mother, and then to have dashed out of the front door. The place was located in the 1300 block Monroe and a man sitting in an automobile near the scene corralled the black and asked him why all the hurry.

Steps Man With Knife.

Williams refused to answer and moved away again, retracting his steps

DOC COOK BACK IN COUNTY JAIL

Fails To Get Release On Bond Before Judge Killitts.

By The Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 4. — Though Dr. Frederick A. Cook went back to the Tarrant county jail Monday, after his application for habeas corpus had been denied by Judge James C. Wilson in federal district court, attorneys for the former explorer and oil promoter will not abandon their efforts to secure his release on bail bond pending final action on his appeal from the prison sentence of 14 years and nine months passed on Cook more than eight months ago by Federal District Judge John N. Killits.

Will File Appeal.

Immediately on conclusion of the habeas corpus hearing, former Senator Joseph W. Bailey and Herbert C. Wade, both members of Cook's counsel, indicated they will soon file a second application with the fifth circuit court of appeals, seeking to have that tribunal interpret its order relative to the conditions of the $45,000 bond fixed for Cook's appeal by Judge Killits.

Sought to Change Bond.

In certifying the appeal to the higher court last May, Judge Killits specified the bond was to be a supersedeas, securing payment of all court costs in the case as well as the fine of $12,000 assessed against Cook in addition to his prison term. Acting on a motion offered by his counsel, which sought to have the supersedeas feature of the bond set aside and bail bond fixed; the circuit court on July 7, held a special session at Atlanta, and issued an order which led to the habeas corpus proceedings in the local court.

Surgeons Fail to Take Pin From Childs Lung

Paul Thomas Taylor, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Taylor, 1408 Seventeenth street, returned home Sunday after some of the greatest physicians in the south had attempted to remove a brass pin from his lung. The baby swallowed the pin Sunday, July 19, and it became lodged in the left lung. Local physicians made two attempts to remove the pin and then advised the father of the baby to get to an expert in New Orleans as quickly as possible. The father left with his son Sunday, July 27, and on the following Tuesday an operation which proved to be futile was attempted in order to remove the pin. Not disheartened another attempt was made Friday, August 1, and again failure was evident. The pin was sought after through the mouth of the child as an operation around the heart with a knife would have proved too dangerous.

The child was suffering no pain and upon the advice of the physicians in New Orleans Mr. Taylor returned to Wichita Falls. It is now thought that the pin will not give the child any trouble unless an abscess is formed on the lung. Should this happen there would be only one thing left to do—attempt to remove the pin by operating on the baby at the chest.

Nothing can be done now but to wait and watch developments.

MONEY At Work

Brief but important lessons in finance, markets, stocks, bonds and investments.

Most people use checks at some time or another but can you satisfactorily answer the question, "What is a check?" The answer is given below.

A check is a form of a bill of exchange and is governed as far as possible by the same rules which govern ordinary bills of exchange. However, the check has four distinctions from the regular bill of exchange.

A check is always drawn on a bank or banker; a straight bill of exchange may be drawn on private parties or firms.

The check is drawn by one who thereby asserts that he is a depositor and has funds sufficient to cover the check in that bank.

A check is always payable on demand, whereas a regular bill of exchange may not be.

A check is not intended to remain out unpresented for payment except for a brief period. Many lawsuits have hinged on the definition of "brief period."

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 4.—The cotton market was reactionary today and although there were good rallies, one of which carried prices upward to within ten points of Saturday's closing levels, the selling pressure proved too great to be withstood and prices eased off again. The main cause of the downward trend of values were private reports of rains in Texas. Southwestern Texas apparently received fair rains which extended some distance inward towards the center of the state and Austin, Texas, reported a hard rain at noon. October after declining to 27.42 in the first part of the morning on the rains in southwest Texas and on several rather bearish private condition reports, rallied to 27.42 in the second half of the morning on continued lack of rain over the greater portion of the west and on some later advices on condition reports which showed deterioration.

The early dip showed a loss of 57 points from the previous close and the rally a recovery of 47 points from the low. December dropped to 26.92, of 58 points net down and rallied to 27.35, or 43 points up from the low. All active months eased off again during the early afternoon on reports of a good rain at Austin and the close showed net losses for the day of 45 to 49 points.

Rains are urgently needed over the greater part of Texas, parts of Oklahoma and Arkansas, and the whole of Louisiana.

U. S. STEEL AT NEW HIGH MARK

100,000 Shares Change Hands During Day; Oils Stronger.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Establishment of a new high record for the year by U. S. Steel common at 110, featured today's stock market, the beginning of the ninth successive week of rising prices. Sales exceeded the million share mark for the fifteenth consecutive full session.

Heavy profit taking which was urged by several commission houses on the theory that technical condition of the market warranted at least a temporary reaction, gave the general list an irregular appearance most of the day. Bullish sentiment was encouraged, however, by favorable trade reports, Secretary Hughes' prediction of success for the Dawes reparations conference.

Twenty-one stocks established new high records for the year.

Buying of steel common, about 100,000 shares of which changed hands was influenced to some extent by increased sales for pig iron in the local market last week and reports of increased mill activity in various steel centers. General Electric was another outstanding feature, jumping nearly 11 points to 281, a record high for all time, and then slipped back to 277.

Speculative interest in the railroad group was confined largely to the so-called Van Sweringent stocks. Pittsburgh and West Virginia sold as high as 62 1-4 but later reacted two points from its high.

Oils and motors again came in for consideration speculative attention. Motor trucks stocks were strong on the theory that the rivalry in prosperity would increase sales.

Oils showed only fractional changes, in the net result.

1,000 STUDENTS DUE AT COLLEGE

Outlook For Year Is Bright At Clarendon Institution.

Special to the Record News.

CLARENDON, Aug. 4.—Clarendon college will open its 27th session September 9. Examinations of students from unaffiliated schools will start September 5 and extend to the 8th. Football training begins August 29.

College authorities expect a record breaking attendance for the college year of 1924-25. Advance reservations continue to be made daily and hundreds of inquiries flood the registrar's office every morning.

Dormitories Crowded.

The dormitories accomodating 275 students are going to be crowded to the limit and every cooperative home is already filled. Campus cottages will be taxed to the last available room. Such is the present outlook according to S. H. Condron, dean of faculty. "Students are coming from the remote corners of Texas this year" said Dean Condron yesterday. Dallas county southward to Motagorda and from the barren stretches of Brewster county eastward to Sabine students are looking to Clarendon college. Reservations have been made by students from San Jaun county in New Mexico northward to the Taus valley. Hundreds of inquiries have come out of western Oklahoma and students are coming from points more remote than ever in the history of the institution.

C. of C. Gives Boost.

All summer the Clarendon chamber of commerce has conducted a publicity campaign in an effort to enroll a thousand students at the opening of the fall term and many believe that registration day will record that number. Every department of the college has been enlarged to meet the requirements of a great student body, and the school of music, history, and Bible have made great forward steps.

Five new teachers have been chosen in keeping with the enlargement program and prospects are unusually bright for the Panhandle's oldest college.

TEXAS SHOWS BIG PROSPERITY

Deposits In Banks Increase 34 Million Over Last Year.

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Aug. 4.—An increase of over $7,666,000 in bond investment over last year is shown by the statement of state banking conditions issued today by J. L. Chapman, banking commissioner. The report is for the condition at the end of June 30. There is also an increase in cash and exchange of $13,250,000 equal to 22 per cent over last year. In bills of exchange there is an increase of $250,000 or 12 per cent.

There is an increase in deposits of $34,000,000 or 14 per cent. Money borrowed by the banks was $4,500,000 less than one year ago, a decrease of $35 per cent.

"Taken as a whole," said Mr. Chapman, "the statement shows a remarkable improvement over last year."

ATTACK ON BOY

through the yard. His interrogator pursued him, but was stopped when the black made a lounge at him with a knife he had drawn from his pocket.

A second man had by this time joined the first and they followed the negro as he scaled a picket fence at the rear of the yard. As he started up the alley, one of the men picked up a brick and hurled it at him, striking him in the back and sending him sprawling.

By this time the rest of the crowd, which had been attracted by the shouts and commotion, had arrived and Williams backed through another Monroe street yard and to the side of a house. Taking his stand there he swung his knife and menaced the men as they formed in a double circle about him. One of the men who lived near the scene brought out a gun and the negro was covered with this.

Submits to Arrest.

In the meantime officers had been called and City Detectives Luke Hart and John Boone arrived. Williams knew them and volunteered to go with them. He was placed in a car and started for the city hall, attempting on the way down to take Hart's gun from him. Once at the police station he began to cry and threatened to call his lawyer and have the police prosecuted if "they did anything to him." After a hurried consultation he was bundled into another machine and driven from the city. Officers said last night that he would be held there for safe keeping and until such time as an investigation can be made.

With another tragedy fortunately averted, officers are turning their attention again to the Wesley Ashmore murder on July 8 and are seeking to obtain positive evidence that Williams was implicated in this. While admitting that the black may have had nothing whatsoever to do with the Ashmore tragedy, officers say the fact that he was suspected from the first and the manner in which he carried out the attack on Pierce indicate strongly that he was involved.

The Ashmore Case.

Young Ashmore, aged 13, was beaten about the head and fatally injured on the afternoon of July 8 as he was at work in the G. C. Johnson cold drink stand, 1409 Ninth street. A negro youth, wearing glasses and carrying a sawed-off billiard cue was seen in the store a short time before the attack, and although evidence pointed strongly to this negro as the actual slayer, officers so far have never been able to obtain proof that it was Williams. The negro was arrested by City Officers Griffin and Perskey in less than an hour after Ashmore's body was found but an extended grilling failed to bring any information from him.

He was released, but was rearrested later on and was held for three weeks while an investigation of the case continued. Williams feigned deafness from the first and in the end of the affair, officers found it necessary to write their questions or shout into his ears. Other negroes and white men too, who had known him, told officers at the time that he was not deaf but was merely pretending. He persisted in holding to his supposed affliction, however, and so cleverly did he maintain this that some doubt was really raised as to his hearing.

Deafness Disappears.

During his chase and capture Monday, Williams showed no sign of deafness, it is said, and officials are now thoroughly convinced that the deafness was merely a sham.

One other possible link of evidence which may prove valuable was uncovered by the sheriff's department several days ago when a brother of M. T., a negro known as "Slick", was arrested in the flats carrying a sawed-off billiard cue that answered every description of the one seen in the hands of the negro who visited the Johnson store before Ashmore was killed. The cue was taken from him and is now held by officers. One of them expressed the belief yesterday that Williams, finding the cue missing, may have found the flat iron and decided to use it instead of the stick.

Thus far no one has learned where the iron came from.

Would Give Boy Reward.

Mike Pierce, the youth who luckily escaped death at the hands of the black, is a local school boy who has been working at the Morgan grocery during the summer months. He is a son of W. F. Pierce, 1317 Sixteenth street, but has been boarding at 1602 Filmore in order to be closer to work.

It was his prompt alarm after the attack that excited the chase and resulted in the capture of the negro. Several of those participating in the man-hunt declared that Pierce had been in the forefront of the chase at all time and was one of the biggest single factors leading to the arrest. Although only one unofficial reward of $100 has been offered for the arrest of the Ashmore slayer, it has been suggested that if the negro now in custody turns out to be the one responsible for the boy's death, Pierce should be entitled to it.

The city of Paris is in debt to the extent of five million francs, but among its possessions are articles of furniture and art treasures worth 320,000,000 francs.

FILM STAR ASKS $100,000 DAMAGES

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 4.—Depositions naming numerous prominent stage and screen celebrities and involving a net work of charges and counter charges relative to the character and conduct of Anne Luther, motion picture actress, and J. F. White, wealthy mining man and film producer, were expected to figure prominently in the $100,000 damage suit brought by Miss Luther against White on today's docket in superior court here.

The plaintiff, who is the wife of Ed Gallagher of the vaudeville team of Gallagher and Shean, is suing white on the ground that he failed to keep an agreement to star her in four motion pictures. AMARILLO, Texas, Aug. 4.—A charge of conspiracy to murder was filed against E. T. Miller, local attorney, and Mrs. Ruth Hobart, here this morning in connection with the slaying of E. W. Hobart, Plainview traveling man, July 14.

Miller, who was free on bond on a charge of murder in connection with the case, gave himself up to Sheriff Less Whitaker and Ranger Sergeant Wheatley at 11 o'clock this morning, following a two-day search for him prompted by a statement made Saturday morning by R. A. Starnes, former Amarillo policeman.

Mrs. Hobart, widow of the slain man, was returned from Plainview Sunday where she was free on bond on a murder charge in connection with the case. Both were placed in the Pooer county jail this morning.

The arraignment on the conspiracy charge is scheduled for 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Two Speeders Draw Big Fines

The law began to bear down on the speeders Monday morning and several violators of this statute found to their sorrow that warnings of the police that speeding must stop were more than mere threats.

Arraigned in police court, one man drew a fine of $25 for speeding and another pulled down a $35 assessment. Both were said to be aggravated cases, but they served to emphasize the warning issued by officers that speeders were to have a hard time of it from now on.

Possibly a dozen more cases were called for trial during the morning term of court, most of them being for minor violations of the traffic laws, drunks and vags.

COTTON

Texas growers produced forty-seven percent of the American crop last year. Texas growers are expected to produce fifty percent of the crop this year. All Texans who are interested in the cotton industry are reminded that nearly one billion dollars worth of raw cotton was exported from the United States during the twelve months ending with June 1924, representing 5,731,936 bales, which was an increase of thirteen percent in quantity and a thirty-seven percent in value compared with the twelve months ending with June 1923.

Great Britain took almost 287,000 bales more of raw cotton during the fiscal year of 1924 than the previous twelve months. German purchases of raw cotton showed an increase of 403,460 bales over the preceding year. This shows that nearly six million bales of American cotton were imported in the last fiscal year. It also shows that the European countries are scoring a comeback regardless of what foreign politicians or bankers may say.

American millers are growling. They say that the planters of the south should raise a bumper crop of cotton in order that the staple may be cheap and American manufacturers be given cheap cotton to compete with the foreign manufacturers. According to a trade journal, ninety percent of the cotton goods manufacturers in the north and south are operating their mills without profit.

They say that trade authorities are of one opinion on the need of a large yield, which will automatically bring about a readjustment in the cotton goods industry. That only a crop of not less than thirteen million bales can accomplish this and that it is difficult for the manufacturers to believe that the largest acreage ever planted to cotton in the United States will not produce a crop larger than 11,984,000 bales, which is the latest estimate of the government.

For a hundred years the south produced cheap cotton for the manufacturers of Old England and New England. First slave labor was utilized. After the abolition of chattel slavery the labor of women and children in the cotton growing states of the south was utilized and the producers of cheap cotton were ever in debt and most of the time on the verge of abject poverty.

Now the southern farmer is diversifying. He is producing food staples as well as cotton. He is filling his own smokehouse, his own grannery and supplying his own table with the necessaries of life. He is doing more than this. He has been fascinated by the co-operative movement and cotton co-operatives are very numerous and their associations growing rapidly in the states where the cotton plant grows.

Europe is coming back and the figures show it. Russia is coming back and is a large buyer of American cotton. Japan is coming back and Japan looks to America for its fleecy staple. Texas is the greatest of all cotton growing states. Texas could produce a crop of thirteen million bales and not half try but the cotton grower has been taught the lesson that the American wheat grower will be aught that over-production means poverty for the American farmer.

However the southern cotton grower is more fortunate than the northern wheat grower. There are thirty-seven wheat producing nations. There are only a few spots under the shining sun where the cotton plant blooms. King cotton came back to his throne last year. He will not be dethroned this year.

Iowa is a republican Gibraltar. There are no surface signs that the state will break away from its republican moorings in November.

WHAT COULD BE MORE LONSOME LOOKING THAN COUNTRY SCHOOLHOUSE IN VACATION TIME.

Their Name Was Legion

"They haven't finished counting the ballots in here yet. The other four precincts gave a majority of about 100 to Tom Jordan."

"Did they, honestly?" Bart Rogers believed he caught a tone of hope in Her voice.

"Then—then Father's beaten?"

"It looks that way."

"I'm so sorry." Bart Rogers looked at her quickly, wondering if what she said were the truth.

"If you're sorry, I'm sorry too, Miss Frannison." He moved closer to her. "But to tell the truth, I voted the other way."

"I—I understand." She hesitated and turned away, as though to hide the expression which a bitter memory had brought to her features.

Then, the dog-like Old Jim once more followed her, she went on. But Bart Rogers watched after her. To him she represented more than a pretty, likeable girl; she was all and nothing—an unattainable ideal.

To him she represented the gap, the near-hatred which stood between him and "Bull" Frannison, her father, a gap which dated back to the night before Bart had left for France. He had been walking along the road toward town, when suddenly he had stopped at the sound of a girlish scream, followed by the hoarse, anger-burdened voice of a man. He had turned, and running back the road, had leaped toward a man and a girl—the girl cringing and frightened, the man bellowing over her, fist clinched for another blow. Then Bart Rogers had fought, fought with all the strength in him, fought against superior odds. And he had won, while in the background, the frightened girl had crouched in the arms of a whimpering, premuturely aged man; only to learn when once victory had been his, that he had fought a father to prevent him from beating his own daughter.

More than once had Bart Rogers wondered if "Bull" Frannison still strove to beat his daughter, and if Old Jim shrunk, whimpering and helpless, in the background. More than once too, had he dreamed of the time when the load of debt which now was his could be lifted that he might think of other things than work—of a girl, perhaps, a girl for whom he might strive, that the frightened, wistful glance might depart from her eyes forever, and glowing happiness beam there instead. But the dream had not come true.

So now, as in the past, he was a watcher, looking after them as they made their way down the street.

The crowd at the curbing moved forward, the workers surging about the red-faced somewhat docile appearing Tom Jordan as he went forward to receive the verdict. The election judge grinned and put forth a hand.

"Guess it's all right for me to congratulate the new mayor," he announced.

"So I'm mayor, eh?" Genial, easy-going old Tom Jordan, ex-cattleman, merely stood and grinned. "Gosh!" Then the workers surged about him, while at the very edge Bart Rogers stood smiling and satisfied.

He had wanted Tom Jordan to win. Not that Jordan would make a wonderful mayor, but Rogers knew one thing—that Tom Jordan would try to do the right thing whether he accomplished the feat or not.

At last the group about the newly-elected mayor parted, and Bart Rogers, true to small western town form, went forward to proffer his congratulations. The big cattleman boomed with happiness, just as he had done with the others who had shaken his hand. Then suddenly he sobered.

"Bart," he said quietly as he drew him aside, "I've had my eye on you for a long time. Now, I want to ask you a personal question: Are you as friendly with Bull Frannison as you are with his daughter?"

"I didn't vote for him. I'm not a Frannison man, Mr. Jordan."

"Good enough, Bart! I had a hunch you weren't, but I just wanted to be sure. You see, Bart, I'm easy goin', I'm the sort of fellow who lets his friends play with him and do him up brown, rather'n say 'no' to 'em. So I'm lookin' for a young fellow with a good strong chin, that I can say to: 'Here, there's only one job in this town that has to do with the keeping of the peace, and that's the marshal. I'm going to give you that job. I want him the kind of a fellow that'll pinch my best friend if he's done wrong, and tell me to go to hell if I come along and try to get him out. Understand?"

"Exactly."

"All right, Bart Rogers," and a big friendly hand found a place on the younger man's shoulder, "I've been looking over the herd considerable, and I've just about come to the conclusion that you're the critter I want. What say?"

CHAPTER IV

For a moment, Bart Rogers could only stand and stare into the big, genial eyes of Tom Jordan. Then at last, he laughed.

"But I don't know anything about the job."

"Didn't know anything about war until you went into it, did you?"

"No; that's true."

"All right; the same thing goes here. What say?"

"Can I have a little time to think it over?"

"Sure—a week if you want it."

"I guess I ought to know by that time." Then Bart thanked Jordan and started to run home.

A half-mile and he dropped into a walk again, to ease the pull on his lungs—for the mark of a bullet still remained there, unnoticed most of the time, but ready to protest at the first heavy strain. Five hundred yards, he gained his breath again, and once more increased his speed, only to turn suddenly from the road, to stop and watch with something of amused interest as a car lurched over a hill, bore down upon him, then, in a swirl of dust, passed him on the way to town.

"'Bull' Frannison," mused Rogers as he eyed the dust-hazed form of the man at the wheel. "Sure is hurrying. Guess he must be beating it into town to find out how bad he got whipped in the election."

Soon, however, three more machines roared past, and he once more resumed his journey, wondering slightly the cause of four racing machines each loaded to its limit. But only for a moment; then the throbbing of other engines from the rear caused him again to stand aside.

In straight succession three blustered by, nor did the occupants seem to heed his waving signals as he strove to flag them. At last, however, in obedience to his frantic appeals, an overloaded vehicle came to a skidding stop, ad Rogers laughing, ran toward it.

"Just had to flag you," he apologized. "So many blamed machines passing, I can't keep to the road."

"Well hurry up—!" The driver was playing with the hand throttle. "This thing's too big to miss."

"Thing?" Rogers stared. "What thing? What's happened—?"

"What's happened?" The man at the wheel stared blankly at him, as Rogers caught the windshield and clung precariously to a footing on the running board as the machine started again. "Don't you know? Oil! That's what's happened!"

"Oil? You mean over there where they've been drilling?"

"Where else do you suppose?"

"I—I—don't know." And sudden excitement had swept cool thoughts from the brain of Bart Rogers. "Do you really mean it? They've struck oil over there—you mean the derrick over by my place?"

"You're Rogers, aren't you?" the driver looked at him with a new interest. "How much land have you got?"

"A hundred and sixty."

"What do you want for it?"

"I—I don't know. Tell me about the oil. There isn't any joke about the oil. There isn't any joke about this, is there?"

"Joke? Of course not. 'Bull' Frannison brought the word. The well came in about an hour ago—it's a gusher. From what he said, it'll run 10,000 barrels a day."

Bart Rogers could only repeat the shouted announcement of the driver. Ten thousand barrels a day—and the well was less than a half mile from his division fence! That meant—

What didn't it mean? What couldn't it mean? Oil pools are not selective things; they extend for miles, and this Bart Rogers knew. As the chugging motorcar whizzed away the last mile, the shouting driver told him of the possible wealth which lay for him in the future. Then the car turned the last bend in the road—

And there before him Bart Rogers saw a dream come true. The sun was just setting, and silhouetted against it was the oil derrick, a black, skeleton-like thing, spraying toward the sky a spouting stream of ebony which, disintegrating and drifting with the wind, caught the sheen of the dying sun and burst into myriad rainbows. A floating mass of colors—such was that spray which flew high seemed to wipe out for Bart Rogers his colorless past, and commingle into a painting of happiness for the future. Nearer and nearer they came, to the derrick and the thronging persons about it; then Bart Rogers, unable to hold himself longer, leaped from the running board of the car as the machine wallowed in a mudhole and raced toward the derrick.

"Will it last?" It seemed to be the only question he could think of as he forced his way toward the drillers. "Will it—"

"Last?" They looked at him with scornful eyes. "Of course it'll last. It's just the beginning! This country's going to be a madhouse of money inside of three months. That's oil and it's high grade!"

Bart Rogers sought to frame another question—then hesitated. It would only be some foolish, maundering thing. Besides, everything was self-evident. There was the gusher, there was the oil, rushing forth in booming, thunderous volume, spraying and settling into streams and pools of liquid riches, while excited townspeople, laughing and shouting and scrambling about, waded in it, splashed about in it, and literally splattered themselves in "

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE

LEO

The planetary aspects until about noon, although favorable for ordinary routine pursuits, do not counsel the initiation of establishment of any new undertaking. Great care should be exercised in all matters relating to correspondence or agreements: every effort along these lines should be made to make your meaning precise and clear: if not, delay—irritating and costly—will be entailed. During the afternoon and evening, conditions improve, but not to such an extent as to warrant any radical action or undetermined movement.

A child born today will be vigorous and physically strong: it will also possess great determination of character, whilst, at the same time, having an attractive and vivacious disposition. These qualities, if steered in the right channels, will prove of inestimable value: if allowed, however, to develop without proper guidance, they will prove heavy liabilities and handicap what otherwise would be a very successful manhood or womanhood.

If today is your birthday, you are not worldly wise: you may not be prosperous or famous: your file, however, is a full one, and a cherished one, as it is founded on love—manhoods crown and woman's diadem.

Your instincts—prompted by love—are forgiveness, unselfishness, humility and moral progression.

One of your strongest characteristics is resident in the power of your example. A character, such as yours, consistently and symetrically illuminated by love possesses a glory all its own, and all those who come into perpetual or occasion contact with you, are encouraged and inspired with the loftiest aspirations known to the human heart.

A life lived within the boundaries of the land of love is a city set on a hill which cannot be hid.

Your character readily gains access to the hearts of men and you become the trusted recipient of their confidences, heart secrets and heretofore unspoken words.

Because true love understands individual relationship, and is impartial and poised, you know no such thing as jealousy, envy, avarice or selfishness.

Love is the common aspect of all human experiences and is the universal language of character.

Successful people born on this date are:

John Trowbridge, physicist, Rumford professor at Harvard since 1888. Charles F. Holder, author, a popular writer on natural history. Jacob Ruppert, baseball magnate. James M. Taylor, president of Vassar college.

HOW IT STARTED

THE "FRANCHISE."

Nowhere better than in the word "franchise" for the right to vote is illustrated the history that is written in words.

Although the French "franc" and its feminine "franche" meaning "free" the word "franchise" has its ultimate origin in the name of the Franks, the conquering Germanic tribes which drove the Romans from Gaul.

Although the word is used today usually in its political sense of a statutory privilege or the right to vote, its real meaning is immunity from burden or restriction — general freedom and independence, which were the main characteristics claimed by the Franks, the people from whose name it comes to us.

THROUGH A WOMAN'S EYES

By JEAN NEWTON

SAUCE FOR A LIFETIME.

If you had only a year to live how would you spend it—what would you do?

A woman writes that with only another year to live she would spend it in usefulness and service to others. A man says the same thing—indeed the majority of letters mention bringing joy into other lives as the way to get the most happiness out of a precious year.

There is one letter from a woman who says she would want the year to herself. But let us read on. She would want the year for herself, to do the things she had always wanted to do but had "never had time for"—"to pay that long promised visit to Great-Aunt Shelby in a lonely little town, to give a birthday party for ten-year-old Jamie whose mother is too busy." Not a selfish thought, after all!

A famous prima donna says she would give a last year unstintingly to "my boys"—the disabled soldiers. She would sing to them and try to cheer them and would ask nothing of a last year except that it make them a little less lonesome, a little less downhearted. "I say this sincerely and from my heart," says Madame Schumann-Heink, "At the age of sixty-three one does not joke about death."

Actions speak louder than words, they say. We had an example not long ago of a famous and widely beloved man who learned that he had but a year to live. He was the editor of a magazine. And he spent the year in work. He kept his regular hours and produced as much if not more work in that year than in any other of his life.

Charity, usefulness, service, work! With slight variation in detail, such is the practically unanimous choice!

You would think they were all old fogies giving us a lecture instead of active people looking into their hearts for the answer to the most searching question that has ever been put to them. They would work and serve.

The strange thing is that among the scores who tell what they would do with that last year, not one mentions a "good time" which in the regular thoughtless acceptance of life seems to be the chief aim of so many.

Is it because in the face of the unknown their views change as to what is most worthwhile? Or is it that what is sauce for a year is not sauce for a lifetime?

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

AN ESSAY ON FRIENDSHIP

On learning that a bug may be imported,
That eats the bugs that prey up my trees,
I muttered: "Now I've got these rascals thwarted,
And soon I'll have them beaten to their knees."
Forthwith I sent my order for ten thousand
Of these extremely useful little bugs,
And put them in my apple trees to browse and
Feed fat upon the beetles, moths and slugs.

I found them to their duty most devoted;
With busy jaws they went their savage way,
And watching as they worked, I stood and gloated
To see the pests grow fewer every day.
They never slept, they never paused nor rested,
But labored conscientiously and hard,
Until of the marauders they'd divested
The last remaining fruit tree in my yard.

But when there were no insects to devour,
No borer, grub of aphis anywhere,
They fell to work on twig and leaf and flower,
Until my trees were stripped and brown and bare.
And though my insect enemies were thwarted,
No more by me from any foreign shore,
Will insect-eating insects be imported;
I haven't any orchard any more.

'Twas ever thus; in times of need and danger
Our judgment very often goes astray,
And we appeal for succor to some stranger,
Who promptly drives our enemies away.
But having stood between us and aggression,
Our rescuer asks calmly how much pelf
We had, when we were saved, in our possession,
And then serenely takes it all himself!

Dr. Frank Crane's Daily Editorial

Laboring Men

There are two distinct classes of laboring men; one saves up money and the other dies not.

One exercises his emotion in hating other classes; the other thinks his class is as good as any, hence the class feeling does not bother him.

In a recent address to the Association of Conservative clubs, at the Cannon Street Hotel in London, Mr. Stanley Baldwin, M. P., said that the gifts and powers which public life in England demanded today were not the peculiar prerogative of any class and might be found throughout all ranks in the country.

"The standard of life in this country," he said, "as in any other country can only be improved by the most perfect cooperation of those who work with their hands and those who direct that labor, and those who supply capital.

"Where the attempt has been made to set up a working socialism, the small heap they had for division before the war has dwindled now to nothing, with the result that in that country they have had starvation."

The prosperity of a country can only be increased by the prosperity of the people in it. It cannot be increased by taking away from one class and giving to another.

By the increase of cooperative societies, and with trade unions, by the development of habits of thrift among all people, the capital in a country is increased and made more accessible.

It is by working together and by understanding each other that we come to a general prosperity. There is no prosperity in working against each other or considering those who are not in our class as enemies to society.

It is as necessary to understand every class and their motives of labor as it is to understand foreigners.

Only those who keep their minds and hearts open are in a position to get along with their neighbors.

The curse of any number of people, or any group of people, is isolation and provincialism.

What makes a class dangerous to a country is what makes one country dangerous to another, that is to say, the two convictions; one that we are superior to others and the other that we should be afraid of others.

Every war has sprung from these two things, whether it be a war of classes or a war between countries. The sense of superiority and the sense of fear have been the two moving motives of war. The more we understand each other and the less we fear each other the less occasion there is for conflict and the more occasion there is for cooperation.

The motto, "Blessed are the peacemakers," is not confined to the church, but to members of all classes and of all countries who understand others. It is their business to make all those others friends and co-workers instead of enemies and competitors.

SOILS AND SOIL PHYSICS.

Why It Is Necessary To Use a Paraffin Pot In Making Soil Tests.

Those who have read the two preceding articles on the paraffin pot method of testing for soil fertility have no doubt wondered why other pots would not do as well.

At first glance it would seem there would be but little need of going to all the trouble of first packing the soil in a wire mesh pot and then dipping it into melted paraffin. Why not use an ordinary flower pot or, for that matter, a tin can? They will hold soil just as well or better.

It all comes back to the fact that soil fertility is largely controlled by the toxins or poisonous substances thrown off by the roots of plants.

Whenever the air has a chance to get into the soil these plant poisons are changed and rendered harmless. The soil in an ordinary pot or can will often shrink away from the sides as it becomes drier. The roots will also come to the side of the vessel and will follow around the inner circle, sometimes even coming up along the surface until they reach the top of the soil.

This renders such a test useless, for, what is really desired, is to get the action of the fertilizer on the plant toxins in the absence of air as it occurs in the soil in the field.

The paraffin pot method has been found to prevent this action of the roots and to give results as accurate as actual field tests.

The paraffin pot method is easily made. Any farmer can do it. The results are accurate. The results are extremely valuable. No farmer need be in the dark as to whether or not fertilizers are needed and what kind.

The Spudders are back today following a very tough road jaunt which sank them from the first division to seventh place, but one game's margin from the cellar.

Tanner and gang will play 25 games before jumping off again, a home stay which will bring every club in the loop to Spud park, Dallas and Fort Worth coming twice.

The Dallas Steers will be herded into the corral this afternoon for the first of three.

Colonel Harvey, commandant of the Spudder forces, is in Denver at present on vacation. But, according to J. Will Gray, aide de camp, Harvey intends to make a change soon in the club rooster.

No credit has been given N. H. "Doc" Coleman, Witchita Falls golfer and newest addition to the hole-in-one club as yet. Coleman Saturday accomplished the enviable feat of making a par three hole with but one stroke, number four hole on the course of the Wichita Falls Golf and Country club.

Feminine netsters are still talking about pulling that long-sought Wichita Falls women's tournament. And there's a possibility yet of the staging of such a meet, although but a mere handful, a peppy crew at that, have signified desire for the tourney. Competition of some sort will be held on the Municipal club courts either next week or the week after, it has been decided.

Nick Gundy, Oklahoma midget, who battles Frankie Fink Thursday in the legion final ten-round bout, arrived and went through his paces Monday at the legion hall.

Gundy is a peculiar looking little cuss, copper skinned, a bit pigeon-toed, and appearing a great deal like a son of old Italy. But Nick's not an Italian, we are given to understand; he's another one of those fighting Irishmen.

Beauty doesn't make a fighter; neither does ugliness, but if hard looks mean boxing prowess Gundy already has Fink whipped to a frazzle. Gundy doesn't belie his looks in one respect; he's admittedly a tough one.

Fink and the Oklahoman have have fought each other before. Press reports gave Fink an edge in two bang-up battles. Gundy's out this time to erase those decisions.

In yesterdays' workout Nick produced plenty of speed for the hangers-on watching him. But for that matter, so did Fink. They're both fast with Fink the more clever, and Gundy with probably the stiffest punch—when he gets it over.

KNOCK 'EM DEAD DUKEY ON LEGION CARD THURSDAY

He used to didn't know what his left mitt was for, but now that south-paw fist is nearly as dangerous, and lays 'em low as nicely as his right.

Harry Ryan, the Dallas Wop, his number for a long time, but one night not so long ago down in Waco, village on the Brazos river, Dukey flattened Ryan in two rounds.

DUKE TRAMMEL

Duke Trammel, Fort Worth youth, and a slugger who long ruled the favorite with Wichita Falls cauliflowerdom again will be seen in action Thursday night at the legion arena.

Trammel for awhile was king of them all as far as the fistic game locally was concerned. Knockout after knockout was strung up by the Cowtown ringster, and then he slumped. Dago Ryan of Dallas and Ray Maywood of Wichita Falls balked Dukey in the midst of his sensational climb.

But Duke's back now. He slapped Ryan for a row of Dallas jobbing houses, and just last week had Maywood on the verge of a knockout when Ray fouled him.

Trammel will step ten rounds with Euell Paul of Lawton Thursday, and Trammel and his followers expect a knockout. Paul, however, is not rated as an easy mark. The Lawton boy, a clever boxer, has mixed it with several very tough customers. Probably from a press agent standpoint Paul's most notable feat was the whipping of Leonard Fox, one of Oklahoma's meanest welters.

Griswold Beats Lions, 8 to 3

ELECTRA, Aug. 4.—Todays Twilight league game was called in the fourth inning account of darkness with the Griswold team having eight runs and Lions club three. Blakly pitched for the oil men and wouldn't let the Lions hit the ball. His mates landed on Bordeaux for seven hits. Scott, initial sacker, relieved him and held the sluggers down. Charlie Gore, Griswold captain, got a home run off the second ball pitched in the game.

LET US HAVE MORE FEMININE ATHLETICS

Give us more feminine athletics and we'll have more Dorothy Knapps in this fair country of ours.

Miss Knapp, 18-year-old New York damsel, and an ardent sportswoman, is Flo Ziegfield's choice supreme this year as the outstanding number in feminine pulchritude. And Miss Knapp, according to recent measurement, is nearly an exact counterpart of the well known Venus de Milo—all except in facial contrast and the 1924 American girl has the ancient Grecian maid backed to the wall there.

"Sports did it; the pursuit of an athletic life," confides Dorothy.

CUMMINGS LOW MEDALIST IN WEST GOLF TOURNAMENT

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Slopping through pools of water and playing much of the time in a driving rain, Edith Cummings of Chicago, national women's golf champion, today won medal honors in the qualifying rounds of the women's western golf championship at Onwentsia by scoring 42 on each nine for an 84, three under par.

The nearest any of the other 151 starters could come to this figure was 88, with which Bernice Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., Mrs. Lee Mida and Mrs. P. C. Letts of Chicago tied for second place.

Grace Loses, 8 to 4, But Outhits Victorious Team

The First Methodists made eight runs on four hits, five bases on balls, and four errors, and won the first game of championship Sunday school league series Monday, 8 to 4, from Grace Methodists. Andree was wild at the beginning, but found himself and pitched good ball after the second. McDuffey and Harris allowed seven hits but were well supported in the pinches. Both teams made several startling plays in the field which gave the fans a thrill.

"Gabe" Harris who relieved McDuffey in the fourth gave the best exhibition of mound work when he struck out four consecutive batters, and finally added another.

A snappy double play by "Rabbit" Gordon and Harris prevented a Grace Methodists rally in the third. Gordon made a nice stop of a hot grounder, tagged the runner on the line and then whipped the ball to first to complete a double play. B. Neal's steal of home in the fourth while Harris was walking to the box to relieve McDuffey also was a feature.

The second game of the series is scheduled for Wednesday afternoon.

Billy Whiskers

By FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY.

The two girls were trying every way they could think of to get Button and Bella out of the tree.

"I know what we can do. We'll go to the orchard and get the long ladder they are using to pick the cherries, and we'll put it up against the tree and then climb up after them."

"All right. Let's do!" again agreed Nellie.

Away ran the girls to the orchard and in about 10 minutes the cats saw them tugging away at a long ladder. At last they reached the tree and after many mishaps succeeded in standing it up against the trunk. But what was their disappointment to find that it only reached half way up the tall tree and came nowhere near the limb on which the cats sat.

"I have it!" cried Nellie. "Let's get the hose and turn it on them. That will bring them down in a jiffy!"

Off ran the girls once again, the hose was brought and adjusted and the water turned on. But another disappointment awaited them. The force was not sufficient to throw the water far enough to reach the cats.

"Drat those cats!" exclaimed Kittie. "I am getting so mad I just must lay hands on them or explode!"

"I guess you will have to blow up then, or fly up to reach them," said Nellie. "The saucy things! Just see how they sit there and purr with contentment! Yes, I know they are laughing at us all the time!"

"I have it!" called out Kittie. "Give me the hose. I'll carry it up the ladder as far as it will reach and then I know it will be long enough for the stream to hit them. Then, my dear cats, we will see who laughs last! Nellie, turn the water off until I climb up and when I give the word turn it on again."

Up the ladder climbed Kittie, and sure enough when Nellie turned the water on it sent a shower that hit Button and nearly knocked him off the limb, while it also drenched Bella to the skin. She ran along the limb and tried to climb higher, but when Kittie saw what she was going to do, she turned the stream full on her and made her climb down the tree instead of going up. Then she aroused Button from the tip of his nose to the end of his tail, and chased him down the same way. But when he got half way down, he jumped and ran for home, while Bella ran toward the barn and hid under it. Thus ended Buttons adventure, as he related it to Stubby and Billy.

(Tomorrow Stubby tells us his adventure.

Dorothy Dix' Advice

Should a Man Disclose His Salary Before Marriage?—Shall She Wait For the Man She Loves or Marry a Good "Catch"?—Is It Ever Right to Marry Under an Assumed Name?

Dear Miss Dix—I am engaged to a girl who thinks that I make more money than I do, and that I have better prospects than I have. Should a man tell a woman about his business, and just exactly what his income is, before he marries her?

ROBERT J.

Answer:

He certainly should, Robert. It is only common justice and honesty for a man to tell a girl exactly what he earns and make her thoroughly understand just what his means in terms of daily living. Then she can either take him or leave him.

At any rate, she will understand just what she is doing, and she can decide whether she loves him well enough to be a poor man's wife or not. Certainly the man who marries a girl letting her think that she is to live on Easy street, and then lands her on Poverty Flat, isn't playing the game squarely. He is taking a most unfair advantage of her.

Yet many men do this. In fact, very few men ever make a clean breast of their financial affairs to the girl to whom they are engaged. Their vanity will not permit them to come down to brass tacks, and tell the girl just exactly the size of their pay envelopes. So they speak in large and glittering terms of always being able to take care of her, and the girl puts a generous interpretation upon what this means. Also, without intending it, perhaps, many men lead a girl to believe that they are far better off than they are by the lavish way in which they spend money in their courting days. The man always has money for presents, for little dinners and taxies and flowers and candy. He never seems to count the cost of things, and the girl jumps to the conclusion that he will always be able to give her these luxuries.

So she gets a sad jolt, as she often does, when she finds out after marriage that the man was making a splurge just to dazzle her; that they cannot afford the movies, still less grand opera, and that she has to sweat out of the market money to pay for the presents he gave her, and for which he is still in debt.

Considering that it is the wife who has to handle the family finances, and who has to pinch and economize to make a small income cover the high cost of living, you would think that every girl before marriage would demand to know just exactly how much money a man made, and what sort of a business partnership she was going into. But most girls are not practical-minded enough for this. They have not had enough experience with money to know the importance of it. And besides, they have a delicate shrinking from the subject. They fear that a man will think them mercenary, or that he will feel that such a question is a reflection on his ability to support a family.

So the man should volunteer the information. It starts the couple out with a clean slate, and it saves many future recriminations and quarrels.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am nineteen, very popular, and happy as a girl could be. But here is my problem: Two men want to marry me. One is twenty-six, a good catch, and my mother tries all the time to persuade me into marrying him, although I do not love him.

The other young man is not financially able to get married right now, but I love him. He is studying a profession, and will not be ready to marry for three years or more, and he wants me to wait for him. I am still young, and I think I am right to wait for the man I love. But my mother thinks differently, and we are at war over this. She says I will waste my time with this young man, and that by the time he is ready to get married he will fall in love with some one else and leave me flat.

What do you think?

UNDECIDED.

Answer:

I think your mother is entirely wrong, and that she is doing a cruel and a wicked thing in trying to persuade you to marry one man when you love another.

No man is a good "chance" for a girl, no matter what else he has, if he does not possess that mysterious something that inspires love in her. He may be able to give her pearls and limousines and a fine house and all that money can buy, but he cannot give her happiness. He cannot buy contentment for her.

The idea that marriage puts some sort of a conjure on a woman that makes her fall out of love with the man she cares for, and transfer her affections to another man just as soon as he becomes her husband, is perfect folly. It never happens. On the other hand, it is quite the other way about. Blessings brighten as they fade. The thing that we can't have is always the thing we crave the most, and the man you don't marry is always the ideal husband, with virtues and charms that the one you posses never has.

Of course, mothers all think that they could make a better choice of husbands for their daughters than the daughters could themselves, but this is not true. Love is a matter of individual taste, and the whole happiness of a woman depends on her getting the man she fancies rather than the one that mother likes.

Those who have to live with husbands and wives have a right to pick them out.

DOROTHY DIX.

Mrs. Jim Ferguson-For-Governor Club Organizes For Campaign

FELIX ROBERTSON HOTLY ATTACKED

Candidate For Governor Charged With Alliance With Brewers

Characterizing the campaign as "a fight of the democratic party against the ku klux klan party," local supporters of Mrs. Miriam E. Ferguson put into action Monday night plans for an organization designed to further her candidacy for governor. The meeting was held in the 78th district court room and was attended by several hundred local admirers of the Bell county woman.

Committee Named

The organization plans in detail will be worked out by an organization committee composed of A. H. Britain, chairman, George F. Hill of Iowa Park, R. L. Baines of Clara and W. N. Bonner, F. W. Fisher, B. Y. Cummings and Edgar Scurry of Wichita Falls. Judge Britain was named chairman of the "Mrs. Ferguson for Governor club" of this senatorial district and by virtue of this will assume the chairmanship of the organization committee.

Suggestions made last night indicate that a finance committee, a canvassing committee, speaking committee and such others as may be deemed necessary will be appointed. An appeal was made in behalf of Mrs. Ferguson who was declared to be unable to finance any extended campaign herself, and in this connection it was intimated that a number of local attorneys who are expected to take the stump in her behalf will have their expenses paid out of funds subscribed here.

Robertson Criticized

Judge Felix Robertson of Dallas, who is to be Mrs. Ferguson's opponent in the run-off, came in for a liberal share of criticism and condemnation. Judge Brittain, B. Y. Cummings, Mrs. E. R. McClure, Edgar Scurry, W. N. Bonner, J. H. Aynesworth, F. G. Swanson and others bitterly assailed him as a "reprehensible hypocrite" who was running at the behest of the ku klux klan and "who would do all in his power to further the interest of the klan if he were sent to the governor's chair."

He was declared to be "a secret representative of the liquor interests" despite his claims that he was a strict prohibitionist. One speaker asserted that the liquor issue which Robertson was playing up so prominently was not an issue at all in the coming race because prohibition was here to stay.

Women Makes Talk

One of the features of the meeting and on which brought rounds of cheers was a short talk by Mrs. B. McClure, who stated that she had known Judge Robertson for 12 years, had been a neighbor for eight years and that she "was going to leave the state if he went to the governor's chair."

Mrs. McClure read a chapter from a pamphlet she said Judge Robertson had given her several years ago and which she called the "klan Bible." It dealt with vocational klanishness, and purported to be the rules of the secret organization as they pertained to patronage of klansmen at klan stores to the exclusion of all others.

Klan Strength Recognized

That the strength of the klan here is recognized was apparent from several remarks made during the meeting and which urged a concentrated, consistent fight against Robertson and in behalf of Mrs. Ferguson. The unlimited resources of the klan, financially, were touched on.

A distinct appeal to the woman vote was made by several speakers, who stated that this fight was one in which women were destined to play an important part.

It was announced that a meeting of the Ferguson club will be held in the American Legion arena next Friday night and that another business session will be held in the 78th district court room Tuesday, Aug. 12. Mrs. Ferguson herself will be brought here to speak before the second primary August 23 if plans of her supporters here materialize.

Campaign Over District

The local Ferguson supporters are to extend their activities through the counties of this senatorial district and undertook to swing them into the Ferguson column in the run-off primary. Separate county clubs may be organized, it was indicated. Particular attention will be paid to bringing out those voters who are taking no interest in the election on way or the other.

A total of 189 persons signed their names to the club roster at the opening of the meeting and these will be made the nucleus for the organization. Other members will be solicited in the days to come.

CITY PROVES TOO MUCH FOR HONEST COUNTRY YOUTH

Lee Haney, of the First National bank, who is spending his vacation in Colorado can testify that the great city of Denver is no place for a hard working boy to spend his vacation. Mr. Haney recently left Wichita Falls for Denver to enjoy a brief vacation. He had hardly arrived in the city until his pockets were picked, his watch stolen and some prowler had entered his room.

Mr. Haney is still in Denver but somehow his vacation does not hold as much in store for him as it did upon the day he arrived in the capital of Colorado.

MUST HAVE PERMIT TO BUILD HOUSE

Building inspectors have been bothered the last few days by owners and contractors building houses without first securing a permit at the city clerk's office. By law before any house can be built in the city a building permit must first be obtained and should the owner or contractor neglect this he is subject to an arrest. No instructions for how imposed fine some property owners will be necessary in the future unless all adhere to the law, according to reports from the city clerk's office.

Mrs. R. L. Simmons and her grandson, Billie Bob Click, both of Dallas, are in the city visiting Mrs. Simmons 'daughter, Mrs. Hubert L. Hunt.

Superintendent J. W. Cantell, of the local public schools, returned to Wichita Falls Friday after spending several weeks in Colorado.

City Engineer F. M. Rugely returned Monday from a two weeks' vacation sent at Matagorda, Texas.

L. O. Landon, of Landon Hill, leaves Wichita Falls this afternoon for Colorado where he will spend two weeks.

R. O. Kenley and family left Saturday by motor for Colorado where they will spend two weeks.

City's Youth Will Dance And Pay The Piper; Milk And Ice Fund Will Benefit

Mrs. Mirian Wilton, of the Haven Tea Room, reports that arrangements are going forward rapidly for a successful lawn party at the Haven Tea Room at 702 Scott street Saturday night. The money derived from the lawn party and dance will be contributed to the Record News milk and ice fund. This fund is given to the Salvation Army to buy milk and ice for the hungry and sick people of Wichita Falls.

Mrs. Wilton has further arranged to serve tea and give a dance Saturday afternoon for those who wish to help contribute to the fund. No collection will be taken, a small amount being charged for the dance and the food served. The Original Arkansasers orchestra will supply the music both during the afternoon and evening.

Mrs. Wilton said Monday that officials in several organizations had conferred with her and that a group of Scouts had been promised by Executive Creighton to handle the cars in the front during the party Saturday night. It is hoped that enough money will be raised from the party to buy the milk and ice for the remainder of the hot summer months.

PAVING WORK CONFRONTS DADS

Dads Hear Complaint Over Eighth Street Concrete Base.

The city council held its weekly meeting last night at which time a mass of routine business was transacted. Due to a postponed meeting from last week many matters were brought before the council, the majority of which dealt with paving work in the city.

Protest Avenue G Work.

The council approved the paving on Filmore street between Avenues I and K. No protests were entered against the paving of the two blocks. Due to the large number of protests entered against the paving of Avenue G between Monroe and Giddings streets action was passed until the next meeting. Several of the property owners in one of the blocks appeared owners of 350 feet of property on the paving of the streets. Although before the council and objected to Taylor street between Avenues H and K objected to the paving of that street the majority of the owners desired the pavement due to the muddy condition of the road after a rain. The council approved the paving of these blocks. The council further approved the placing of sidewalks on Adams street between Eighth and Seventh.

Object to Pavement.

Property owners in the 1900 block on Eighth street appeared before the council and objected to the grade of pavement placed before their houses. They contended that the contract called for a four-inch base while the construction company was only laying a 3 1-2-inch base. The council instructed the city engineer to inspect the pavement.

The name of East Seventeenth street, which begins at Lamar and runs east, was changed to Henrietta street upon request of residents on that street.

Fred Smith, building inspector, appeared before the council and reported that J. J. Caruthers, a local contractor, had been violating city ordinances in building houses and that when warned by the inspectors he ignored them. Mr. Smith cited several cases where the contractor had refused to adhere to the rules. The council instructed the city attorney to file charges against the contractor.

Approximately 1,300 feet of six-inch pipe and 700 feet of two-inch pipe will be placed in North Wichita with a total expenditure of $2,250 after a decision of the city council last night. The Katy shops were suffering from a shortage of water as well as several residents in that part of the city. The pipes will be placed within the next few days.

Mexico May Ban Hunting Of Big Game By Aliens

TUCSON, Ariz., Aug.—The American big game hunter may find himself barred from Mexico, it was stated by Ben Tinker, who guards Mexico's game by appointment of the Mexican government and is back at his home here.

Tinker said there was a growing sentiment in Mexico against foreign hunters. He attributed this to the alleged ruthlessness of some of them in slaughtering deer and other game. He described Mexican officials as determined to prevent Americans from enjoying the big game hunting afforded in the mountains and plains of the northwestern states. Tinker predicted that with the opening of the fall hunting season no hunters would be allowed to cross the border.

Big game has been diminishing rapidly in Mexico, Tinker said, and President Obregon has determined to put a stop to wanton and useless destruction. A ten-year closed season on big horn and sheep was started more than a year ago. At the next session of the Mexican congress it is expected that a measure will be passed limiting the killing of all classes of game to a few months each year, with bag limits on deer, turkey and javall hogs.

Now is the time for greatest fire caution in forests and persons guilty of negligence with fire in forests should be dealt with severely.

ATKINSON IN KIWANIS TALK

Urges Character Building Among Young People Of the City.

"Kiwanis build," Rev. Milo Atkinson, pastor of the First Christian church here, told the Kiwanis at their regular weekly luncheon at the Kemp hotel yesterday, "and there can be no better building than the building of character in the unprivileged child.

"The ideal of building a business, of building a professional structure is only secondary when placed alongside of this purpose. Build a character in the younger generation and you build a structure that will perpetuate itself and be an everlasting monument to your efforts, while your business, your buildings and your reputations must eventually decay and crumble.

"Be a dreamer and see the man of the woman it is possible for you to make from the raw material that is at your hand. And then when you have conjured a vision and seen in your dreams the possibilities of such building take some action and do something."

Program Educational.

The program for the meeting was in charge of the educational committee of the club and editorials in various Denver papers were read by Boyd Dooley and M. A. Ellis. The editorials were the expressions of the Denver papers in the first days of the recent international convention held there.

R. E. Shephard told the Kiwanis something of the coming Texas-Oklahoma fair, and stated that every department would be a hundred per cent or more better than last year. He told of various expenses that were being incurred by the association to make the fair better than last year and promised that the saxophone players of last year would not perform at this year's entertainments. He stated that the fair was to be built this year on three main features—agricultural, stock raising and education.

A quartet composed of E. C. Huckabee, Grover Bullington, J. L. Jackson and J. L. Pond sang the Kiwanis convention song, "Onward with Kiwanis," accompanied at the piano by M. A. Ellis.

PROMINENT CLUBWOMAN GIVES KARNAK PRAISE

"In all my fourteen years of searching for a medicine to relieve me of my suffering I have never found anything to equal Karnak," declares Mrs. G. R. Martin, prominent clubwoman and civic worker, of 4016 Frank avenue, Dallas, in a statement made public today indorsing the celebrated new medicine.

"As I said, my troubles started fourteen years ago with a digestive trouble. This kept gradually growing worse until last February I suffered a general and complete breakdown. My nerves went all to pieces, everything I ate disagreed with me and I suffered tortures from sleeplessness and sick stomach. I lost seventeen pounds in weight.

"Nothing seemed to reach my case until by husband brought me a bottle of Karnak, and that medicine has proved more than a blessing. I am now eating, sleeping, and feeling like my old time self, and am gaining back my lost weight. I shall be glad to tell anyone who will 'phone or write me about my experience. I think Karnak is wonderful."

Karnak is sold in Wichita Falls by Ben F. Smith Drug Co., and in Burkburnett by the Burkburnett Pharmacy.—Adv.

Mothers
AND THEIR CHILDREN

Buttons and Patches.

One Mother Says:

I never cut the buttons off my children's outgrown clothes before giving them away, but try to replace any which happen to be missing. Poor people have fewer buttons and less time to sew them on than I. If there is a snag in the garment I try to mend it before it leaves the house and if I have scraps of material which matches the garment I pin them to it so that there will be no excuse for somebody else's child going about in holes for the lack of material suitable for a patch.
