Haitian military placed on alert

SOUTH CAICOS, Turks and Caicos Islands (AP) — Thirty-seven Haitian exiles vowing to overthrow the Haitian government began flying out of here to an undisclosed location Saturday, and the Haitian military was placed on alert, officials said.

U.S. Consul Mike Donovan of the U.S. Embassy in Nassau, Bahamas, said the 6,000-man Haitian army and navy were placed on alert Saturday evening.

Donovan flew to South Caicos and was meeting Saturday night with the self-proclaimed leader of the "invasion," a Florida gas station owner.

Meanwhile, U.S. officials asked the FBI to look into the plans of the would-be invaders, who claimed to have assembled an armed invasion force to topple Haitian President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier.

Two planeloads, each carrying five members of the group, had left by 2 p.m. EST.

South Caicos is part of the Turks and Caicos Islands, a tropical Atlantic colony 90 miles north of ghaiti and governed by the British.

The Haitians, who began arriving here a week ago, are led by Bernard Sansaricq, a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., gas station owner. Sansaricq, 37, openly declared the group was part of a force to oust Duvalier.

Sansaricq said his group represented the leadership of a 700-strong band that would establish a beachhead in Haiti with support from an unidentified army faction and supporters in Haiti.

The takeover, he said, would occur "in a matter of days."

State Department spokesman Rush Taylor said in Washington the FBI had been asked to determine whether the group had violated any U.S. laws.

Political races shape early

By MIKE DOWNEY
Staff Writer

Two contested races are shaping up early in the campaign for political offices in Howard County. With the Feb. 1 deadline for filing as yet three weeks off, the office of county judge and justice of the peace, precinct one, place two have two candidates each intending to seek the positions.

Deputy sheriff Milton Kirby says he expects to make his candidacy for county judge official this week by paying his filing fee to the Democratic chairman of Howard County. Asked why he planned to seek the judicial position, Kirby said, "With my 34 years of law experience I feel I can do it (the judge's work) well. I tried once before and came close so I decided to try again."

Also announcing his intention of seeking the county judge office is John Stanley. Stanley said he is "intrigued" with the position of county judge. "It is a job I think I'd enjoy and I've always had it in the back of my mind," he said.

Stanley brings some experience to the position as well. "I worked with the city in the past and I really like people. My business had prevented me from pursuing the position before, but now, with it disposed of, I can pursue this endeavor."

Stanley said he plans to make his formal filing with the Democratic chairman around the 17th of the month.

Incumbent county judge Bill Tune had not indicated his intentions concerning the race as of Friday.

The other contested race looks to be in the justice of the peace, precinct one, place two, race. Incumbent Lewis Heflin is expected to be challenged by Bob Smith. Although neither man has yet to officially file with his respective party chairman, both have designated campaign treasures through the county clerk's office.

Peace justice Heflin said he plans to file with the Democratic chairman at the end of the month. "I am running for re-election. This is my fourth year as justice of the peace."

Constable Bob Smith said he had been planning to run for justice of the peace for three years. "The county desreves the best qualified people and I feel I'm qualified with four and ½ years with the local police, two years as Stanton chief of police and two terms as constable."

The constable said he planned to pay his filing fee at the latter part of the month.

Until a candidate pays his filing fee to his party chairman, his announcement of office is an informal one.

According to Democratic chairman M.H. "Slick" Boatler, the following have paid their $300 fee: Margaret Ray for county clerk, Bonnie Franklin for county treasurer, Peggy Crittenden for district clerk, and Willie Grant for justice of the peace, precinct two.

Republican chairman Bill Sheppard said no one had filed with him.

Those who have designated their intention to run for office include the following: David Barr for county commissioner, precinct two; Paul Allen for county commissioner precinct four; and Jim Gregg for district judge.

Arctic deep freeze stuns Midwest

By The Associated Press

A blast of "extremely dangerous" Arctic air stunned the Midwest with wind chills reaching 80 degrees below zero Saturday, and foot-deep snows fell on some cities as the deep freeze spread eastward.

"Prepare for the worst," warned Jack May of the National Weather Service in Cleveland where up to 10 inches of new snow had fallen as the mercury plummeted.

On the bright side, forecasters said there would be sinny skies in San Francisco for Sunday's National Football Conference title game between the San Francisco 49ers and the Dallas Cowboys. But in Cincinnati, where the Bengals will meet the San Diego Charges for the American Conference championship, the forecast called for temperatures of 10 to 15 degrees with a wind-chill factor of 30 below.

In the West, road crews were trying to reach the remainder of about 3,000 people who had been stranded a week by a snowfall up to 10 feet deep in the Sierra Nevada south of Lake Tahoe. But authorities abandoned a search for a 23-year-old man believed buried by an avalanche in the area five days earlier.

And in northern California, where 26 people died in last week's storm that loosed devastating mudslides, another man was killed Friday night in Scotts Valley when a tractor he was using to clear logs from his property toppled over.

On the other side of the continent, in western New York state, sheriff's deputies using snowmobiles, a helicopter and trained dogs searched for a hiker who disappeared just before a powerful squall dumped 34 inches of snow on Onondaga County.

Across the Midwest, where temperatures Saturday dropped as low as 46 degrees below zero at Embarrass, Minn., with a wind chill factor of 70 below, the intense cold was the main concern. The wind chill factor is a calculation weather experts use to describe the combined effects of wind and cold temperatures.

Gusts of 41 mph in Fargo, N.D., made the temperature of 19 below feel like 80 below, the Weather Service said.

There were blizzard conditions in eastern North Dakota, western Minnesota and most of South Dakota. North Dakota motorists were warned to carry survival kits if they had to brave the open roads.

In Wisconsin, temperatures Saturday ranged from 12 below at Milwaukee to 27 below at Superior. Authorities in Merton reported that an elderly man froze to death Friday when he lost the key to his home in the snow.

Ex-soldier identifies dad as killer after 36 years

DONCASTER, England (AP) — As a boy of 8, William Phipps watched in terrified silence as his drunken father strangled a young waitress to death in a lumber yard in 1946.

He kept silent about the murder for nearly 36 years — sworn to secrecy by his mother, who washed the victim's blood from her husband's clothes.

"Now that she is dead as well as my father, I have to get it off my conscience," Phipps was quoted by London's Daily Express as saying. "I saw my father murder a woman."

The 44-year-old former British soldier walked into the police station in this northern England town last week and revealed the secret that he said has given him "terrible nightmare."

Doncaster police said Saturday they contacted detectives in Canterbury, in southeastern England, where the long-forgotten and never-solved murder of Lilian Miller occurred on Feb. 16, 1946.

Mrs. Miller was a 30-year-old World War II bride married to a Canadian army private named Bill Miller. After the war, she lived with relatives and worked as a waitress while her husband prepared a new home for her and their 1-year-old son, Victor, in Saskatchewan.

On the night of the murder, Mrs. Miller had gone to a dance with her brother, Frederick Kemp, and was attacked on her way home in the lumber yard where Phipps said he was playing.

Medical evidence at the inquest showed Mrs. Miller struggled with her assailant. She was covered with bruises and the attacker apparently had attempted to assault her sexually before strangling her to death.

Police would not disclose Phipps' account of events, but British press reports said he gave this version of what happened:

"I heard someone coming and I hid in a secret camp some of us had made. I saw my father come through the entrance to the yard with a woman and I saw him kill her. I knew she was dead.

"I went home and did not tell anyone. My father was a drunken, violent man, and I was afraid of him. My mother knew what he had done because he came home with bloodstains on his clothes and she helped to clean them up ...

"She made me promise not to say anything to anyone, and I never did," Phipps was quoted as saying.

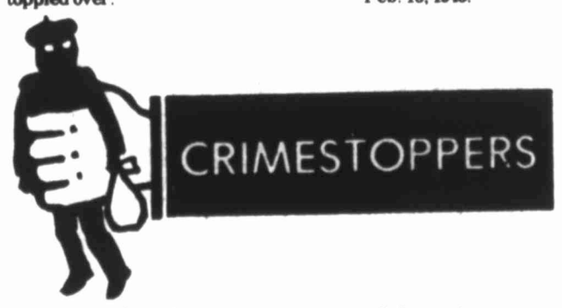

Canterbury police said they were interviewing witnesses in an attempt to corroborate Phipps' story. Detective Chief Superintendent Alan Parker said the department "cannot be certain whether the file will be finally closed or if any other action will be taken."

Phipps' mother, Anne-Laura, lived in Canterbury until her death in 1980. His father, Ernest, a railway porter, died in 1963.

Poll gives Reagan C-plus

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans give President Reagan a C-plus grade for his first year in office, according to a nationwide poll released by the Los Angeles Times and Cable News Network.

The poll, published in Sunday's editions of the Times, said the 1,500 people interviewed by telephone were asked to give Reagan "a report card on his first year as president," using grades from an A-plus to an F.

It was taken last week after Reagan's top advisers informally awarded him a A grade for the first year of his presidency.

In a similar Times poll last April, 100 days after Reagan took office, the respondents, on average, gave him a B. His grade slipped to a C-plus in the latest poll, the newspaper said.

Seventy percent of the people polled last week had a favorable impression of Reagan, 28 percent had an unfavorable impression and 2 percent were unsure.

That compares with an 83 percent favorable rating, 13 percent unfavorable and 4 percent unsure last April, when Reagan was recovering from an assassination attempt.

Roughly half the people interviewed said they have benefited or will benefit from Reagan's economic policies. The newspaper said those respondents tended to be male, whit, executives or owners of businesses and people whose family incomes are more than $30,000 a year.

About one-third of the respondents said they have experienced or expect to experience in the next year financial setbacks because of Reagan's policies.

Two hurt by booby-trap

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (AP) — Two police officers searching a home they thought had been burglarized were slightly injured when a booby-trapped closet exploded as they opened the door.

The explosive device was apparently rigged by the resident, whose home had been broken into before, police said. The 58-year-old man, whose name police would not reveal, was in the hospital at the time, they said.

Officer Robert Costa, 26, was treated for a bruised side and for particles in his hand, and Officer Neil Visone, 29, was treated for particles in his left eye, said nursing supervisor Luis Ramos at Jersey City Medical Center. Both men were released, he said.

Lt. Edward Outwater said the two officers drove to the house Friday after a caller had told police a burglary was in progress. The basement door was open and the basement looked as though it had been ransacked, Outwater said, so the officers entered.

"As they started looking around, one opened the closet door and there was an explosion," Outwater said. "It was a flash-type explosion, it doesn't appear there was too much damage. I'd imagine they were scared more than anything."

The officers did not find an intruder.

YMCA fund drive kicks off Monday

The YMCA has gathered its membership campaign leaders together to reach a goal of $15,000 in total memberships, according to YMCA director Bob Cappel. The sustaining part of the campaign will begin Monday with the participating membership drive beginning Jan. 25.

Cappel said the entire campaign would involve about 52 people. "In our participating membership drive, we will be trying to sign new people up," he said. "In the past we have sought out old members as well as new, but this year we are changing to concentrate on new people who are moving into town."

The director stressed, however, that the YMCA still wanted all members to re-sign their memberships, but they would not be approached in the drive.

Cappel said the sustaining aspect of the campaign was made up of people who supported the facility through donations. "The sustaining drive has a goal of $11,000 this year and will involve 15 people," he said.

The sustaining drive ends Feb. 2. The participating membership drive continues through Feb. 9.

"Any person who is not a member of the Y can get a guest pass and try out the facilities at the center," Cappel said. "You don't have to be contacted by the drive to try things out."

The YMCA 1982 Membership Campaign leaders include general chairman Don Davis, district leaders Raul Marquez, Jim Parks and Sherrie Bordofske, and sustaining director Jane Thomas.

Margaret Ray enters county clerk race

Margaret Ray announced Saturday that she will seek a third term as County Clerk of Howard County. She had extensive experience in the office before she was elected seven years ago upon retirement of Pauline S. Petty.

She announced her candidacy for the Democratic nomination in the May primary.

Mrs. Ray was reared in Borden County, where she received her first taste of public service, initially as an abstractor and then as a deputy in the assessor-collector's office. For the past 31 years she has been a resident of Big Spring where she and her husband, Edgar Ray, to whom she was married in 1951, own their home. They have two daughters, Michele of the home and Deborah Ray, Big Spring, and two grandchildren.

Mrs. Ray literally came up from the ranks in the Clerk's office, performing every phase of the work from recording to filing, handling elections, indexing, vital statistics, probate matters, clerking for the commissioners and county court, make certifications, etc.

During her term she was able to obtain the cooperation of the Court in a project which is resulting in microfilming of every record since the county's beginning in 1882, and this includes all plats, as well as instruments. Backups for these records are kept in the vaults of the depository bank in event fire or other catastrophe should damage the clerk's office.

Also, during the past fiscal year, her office increased revenues by nearly 15 percent, and since she took office, the volume has grown about one-half.

MARGARET RAY
...candidate

"I have enjoyed serving the people of Howard County, and assisting others who have had occasion to use the clerk's office, during my two terms. I believe that my record in office, plus the knowledge which comes only through experience, will equip me to fulfill the duties in an even better manner. My staff and I will do our utmost to continue courteous, competent and prompt service."

Mrs. Ray is a member of The First Baptist Church, Howard County Democratic Club, Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, John A. Kee Rebekah Lodge No. 153, County and District Clerk's Association of Texas and serves as a Board member to said Association. As the duties of office will allow, she said she would attempt to see voters personally, but that she would appreciate it if her announcement may be considered as that personal pleas for support.

Two items added to agenda of Thursday CRMWD meeting

Two items have been added to the agenda of the meeting of Colorado River Municipal Water District directors in Big Spring Thursday.

One is a public hearing for annexing into the district certain lands previously annexed by the City of Big Spring. Under an amendment to the district's act, the geographical boundaries of the district were revised to conform with the corporate limits of the cities as of Jan. 1, 1981. A provision also was made for annexing territories annexed by cities subsequent to that date.

Another item added to the list of business before the directors was the appropriation of $50,000 for development of a well in Ward County to replace one which has failed. Because of left-over funds, this will represent a net increase in requests of only about $20,000.

There are several other appropriations on the agenda, plus consideration of the weather modification program for 1981, the establishment of monthly fixed charges to the cities for water, and an up-dating of the contract between the district and member cities.

Police said an informant's tip led them to the suspects, who were arrested early Friday. A .22-caliber revolver also was confiscated, said homicide Lt. Roger Duncan.

El Paso, New Mexico fight over water rights in court

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The city of El Paso and the state of New Mexico meet in court Monday to decide one of the oldest and hardest fought issues in the American West — water rights.

El Paso is suing New Mexico officials in an attempt to get water that lies just across the Texas-New Mexico border and some say the decision of U.S. District Judge Howard Bratton could alter the body of Western water law.

The lawsuit, which will be tried in narby Las Cruces, N.M., asks the court to declare unconstitutional a 1953 New Mexico statute that forbids the export of groundwater.

In the lawsuit filed Sept. 5, 1980, El Paso's attorneys contend the statute violates that portion of the U.S. Constitution which gives sole control of interstate commerce to Congress.

The water in question is in two aquifers that lie on or just across the New Mexico border. One of the underground deposits, called the Mesilla Bolson, is estimated to contain 60 million acre-feet of water and the other, the Hueco Bolson, contains about 10 million acre-feet of water. Each acre-foot is equivalent to 325,851 gallons.

The Hueco Bolson lies across the Texas-New Mexico border and the Texas portion of it — about 4 million acre-feet — presently is the main water source for El Paso. The city's growing water needs currently are about 100,000 acre-feet per year.

Much of El Paso's case rests on a 1966 lawsuit filed by the city of Altus, Okla., against the state of Texas. In that case, a three-judge federal court ruled Altus could get water from Texas. The U.S. Supreme Court affirmed the federal court ruling without opinion.

"Three district court judges and nine Supreme Court justices have ruled that Texas couldn't (embargo water)," said Pete Schenkkan, head of El Paso's legal team. "The question before the house now is: Can New Mexico do it?"

Simms says he will argue, however, that New Mexico's embargo should stand because New Mexico law puts groundwater under public control.

He says that when the federal government gave control of groundwater to the states in the late 1800s, it removed water from the umbrella protection of the commerce clause in the Constitution. New Mexico's embargo statute sealed that decision, he said.

The Altus decision was based on Texas water law, which places surface water under the public domain, but leaves the control of groundwater to the owner of the land.

"In the Altus case, private ownership allowed it to become a commodity that can be sold across state lines just like if you sold a car to somebody in another state," Simms said.

The trial is expected to last at least a week and both sides have said they will appeal if they lose. Attorneys for both sides say the case likely will end up before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Simms contends that a ruling in El Paso's favor would throw the body of Western water law into disarray.

"I don't know how it won't set a precedent," he said. "There are statutes not unlike this statute in virtually every other Western state. I can't understand how a decision could be written that would cause our statute to be shot down that would not disrupt the entire system of Western water law. El Paso cannot win the lawsuit."

But Schenkkan says the narrow focus of the lawsuit will not cause widespread changes if El Paso wins.

"The only thing we've asked the court to do is to declare the embargo unconstitutional," he said. "We are not challenging the body of water law of New Mexico or any other state. We've indicated several times that we don't see the argument that this lawsuit threatens Western water law, or as the other side would have you believe, Western civilization."

Historically, Western states developed water embargo statutes to keep states with rapid growth, such as California, from getting water from slower growing states. States with less population and slower growth, such as New Mexico, have passed the laws in an attempt to keep their water until the growth catches up.

"That water is certainly necessary for the state's development," Simms said. "If El Paso were permitted to take what it seeks to take from the Mesilla and Hueco bolsons, they would be taking approximately 14 percent of the water needed for the future growth of New Mexico by the year 2050. That water, even though it's situated locally, is a statewide resource."

El Paso, on the other hand, is a rapidly growing area because of increased industry and because it is a popular retirement spot. The population rose from 359,000 in 1970 to about 450,000 in 1980.

"If we do not develop any supplementary sources, theoretically, we will run out of water by the year 2040 to 2050," said John Hickerson, manager of the city's water utility.

Hickerson said El Paso has been searching for more water since the early 1950s when the city's Public Service Board was formed.

Among the alternatives that have arisen over the years have been getting more water from the irrigation supply of the Rio Grande reserved for farmers, finding water in West Texas to pipe to the city and desalinizing the brackish water that lies under much of the arid land around El Paso.

The city is building a $33 million sewage recycling plant, but Hickerson said the expensive method will not solve the water woes.

"The board had no real biggie decision to make," Hickerson said. "It was a very easy decision. (The New Mexico water) was the cheapest source available and it had less environmental impact than taking water from any of the other sources.

"Here is this water way out in the desert that there is hardly any use for," he added. "We've got to have water and to have it, we've got to take it from somewhere. Our attorneys and our consultants tell us this is the best place."

Opponents say El Paso's drilling and siphoning the bolsons would lead to flow depletions in the Rio Grande, which cuts through the Mesilla Bolson.

El Paso, the New Mexico officials say, would be required to replace the water reserved for irrigation by the Rio Grande Compact. To do that, the city would be forced to buy up irrigation rights from area farmers.

"It could cost as much as 150,000 acres of surface irrigation," Simms predicted. "El Paso's answer to all of this is that they'll return the water to the system and that everybody's going to live happily ever after at least for the next 150 years. What they don't address is that there is eventually going to be a doomsday.

"Their own farmers are fighting against it," he said.

Bill Stahmann, who owns the Mesilla Valley's largest pecan farming operation, said he believes area farmers will never allow the wells to be drilled.

"If they get all they want, it would dry us out," said Stahmann, who joined the lawsuit as a defendant. "The feeling is that if they try to drill out here, there would be so many obstacles in the way that they would never drill."

Plus, there is another procedural obstacle.

If El Paso eventually wins the lawsuit after the lengthy appeals process, the city still would be required to obtain permits from New Mexico for each of the proposed 326 wells. State engineer Steve Reynolds, who issues such permits, has said El Paso will be given a fair shake, but Reynolds is 65 years old and will be retiring soon.

The key question in the application process will be whether the drilling would interfere with the pumping of existing water users, such as the farmers.

El Paso's well proposals already have been challenged by more than 1,000 protests filed by New Mexicans who say the pumping would impair their water rights.

The attorneys have said they expect the federal courtroom in Las Cruces to be packed when the trial begins.

"This lawsuit has generated more notority than any I've ever been involved with," Simms said. "People are really up in arms over the possibility of their water supply being taken to supply the big city of El Paso to the south."

Political Tidbits offered by teachers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Shake voters' hands, send them letters, hand them "push cards," but don't feed them or argue with them.

These are among the political tidbits offered by teachers at $50-a-head, three-day campaign schools run by the Texas Republican Party for its candidates and their staffs.

Looking forward to a year when every statewide office and legislative seat is on the ballot, the GOP got the jump on the Democrats by running campaign schools in October and December at the Driskill Hotel here. Tom Hockaday, state GOP political director, says there will be several more.

The Democrats are planning similar schools, but Joe Gagen, primary director, said no dates have been selected.

The GOP schools are closed to the media. Hockaday said the classes "are not a real appropriate place for (reporters) to be." Gagen said the Democratic schools probably would be open to the press.

Representatives from about 20 campaigns — including some announced and unannounced candidates — have attended, Hockaday said. Most have been from local campaigns.

The classes go into all phases of vote-chasing.

"We even give suggestions on color schemes," Hockaday said. The orange and blue used by Gov. Bill Clements in 1978 and again in his current campaign is very "appealing," according to studies, he noted.

The advice on telephone banks is changing this year.

"When it was a novelty it was very useful and very good," Hockaday "No doubt about it, phone systems elected Bill Clements and re-elected (U.S. Senator) John Tower."

But now that many candidates are using the phones, the effect can be numbing.

"I don't see phoning used that extensively this time. It can be very effective, but it's very time consuming," he said.

A campaign worker who attended the school, but asked not to be identified, said he was taught that a bunch of phone calls to a voter can backfire.

"Lots of people get irritated," he said.

Personal contact with voters is important.

Farm

Soil conservation programs attacked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration's plan for overhauling the nation's soil and water conservation programs is under attack by two farm groups that have substantial clout on Capitol Hill.

A conservation association leader said the proposal "really doesn't offer anything new."

The head of a major farm organization said the plan dodges what Congress intended to achieve when it ordered a review and updating of federal programs.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block last October unveiled what was termed a "preferred" program to guide federal, state and local conservation efforts over the next five years.

It calls for greater reliance on state and local programs, and private groups working in cooperation with the federal government.

One feature specifies block grants which would have to be matched by states that qualify for them. No boost in federal funds would be called for, however, and the money for the block grants would come from existing conservation programs.

The American Farm Bureau Federation said Thursday in its weekly newsletter that Block has been told the plan falls short of what Congress intended.

Robert Delano, federation president, said the Agriculture Department "failed to meet the mandate" of the 1977 Soil and Water Resoures Conservation Act — commonly called RCA — to improve the delivery of the federal conservation programs.

Delano, in a letter to Block, said the proposed program "effectively avoids making any priority selections" on where the government should channel its efforts despite a "dilution of funds available for erosion control."

Farm Bureau, he said, supports increased state and local control of conservation programs; use of tax credits as an additional incentive for conservation activities; targeting of funds to areas with more severe erosion problems; and increased reliance on long-term cooperative agreements between farmers and the government.

Delano said the tentative plan — which is undergoing further public comment and review — "would be a continuation of previous policies and would be ineffective in focusing USDA resources on the identified problem (of) erosion control."

Lyle Bauer, president of the National Association of Conservation Districts, told his fellow members that "the most bothersome issue" in the department's plan "is that it really doesn't offer anything new to address the problems" of farmers or the land they use.

"Born in a climate where public funding of all non-defense programs is certain to drop, the program attempts to convince us that USDA will be able to accomplish more by spending less," Bauer said. "That is fiction, pure and simple."

Day care center closes after death

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — A day care center has been closed indefinitely after a 4-year-old girl died from highly contagious meningitis, health officials said.

City Health Administrator Carl Clark said that although he did not think LaDawn Evans contracted the disease at the day care center, it was closed Friday to reduce the risk to the 78 other children and 12 staff members.

The children and staff members have been given medication against the disease, Clark added.

The girl's mother, Deborah Evans, said her daughter seemed to be in good health Tuesday and "was so full of energy that I had to make her go to bed."

The girl developed a fever during the night and had convulsions Wednesday morning. "I rushed her to the hospital, but there was nothing they could do," Mrs. Evans said.

The child went into shock and developed a purple rash caused by infection-related hemmorages. LaDawn died late Wednesday.

Limiting federal judges not wise

THERE IS growing feeling, at least at the upper echelon of the federal judiciary, that limits must be placed on the "judicial activism" of federal judges.

Chief Justice Warren Burger of the U.S. Supreme Court has urged Congress to consider trimming federal judges' power to set aside state criminal convictions. Burger urged limits on federal "collateral review" of state criminal proceedings. Collateral review involves an independent federal basis for attacking a state judgment.

BURGER'S SUGGESTION echoes the feelings of Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, who, in an article in the William and Mary Law Review, outlined the frustration state appellate court judges feel with the extent of federal court intervention of their decisions.

Justice O'Connor argued that the federal courts should defer to state courts and uphold their judgments on federal constitutional questions "where a full and fair adjudication has been given." This would shift the federal court's inquiry from the details of the state court decision to the question of whether there had been a fair hearing.

Burger, in his year-end review of the judiciary, said that when the state appeals process has been exhausted, federal courts should "confine all subsequent review to claims of miscarriage of justice."

While there is much to be said for Burger's suggestion, there is also room for concern. It is unwise to ask Congress to place limitations on the federal courts. Not only are there constitutional problems with such an approach, but, more importantly, such a move would establish a dangerous precedent.

THIS TOPIC HAS become the subject of heated debate since efforts have begun in Congress to remove federal court jurisdiction over school busing, school prayer, abortion and other controversial topics.

Burger is opening a Pandora's box by seeking Congressional action. It would be wiser for restrictions on collateral review to be handled, as much as possible, by the judges themselves.

It was fascination, and $40 a week

When I was in the second grade, my mother bought me a toy sewing machine for Christmas. I cried so hard my mother took it back the next day and exchanged it for a toy printing press.

It had little rubber pieces of type that could be picked up with tweezers and mounted to a cylinder. By turning a little crank, the type would pick up ink from an ink pad, and postcard-size pieces of paper could be fed through it and come out printed. To me it was magic.

Inspired by Superman comics, my playmates and I set up shop in a former chicken shed in my backyard. I would be Lois Lane, the boy next door would be Clark Kent, and we and other kids in the neighborhood would act out dramas that culminated in the publishing of a little newspaper. It had headlines like "Superman Saves the Day."

THUS WAS BORN my fascination with newspapers. From the second grade I knew that I wanted to be a reporter when I grew up.

When I was 15, I went to the local newspaper office, the Sweetwater Reporter, and volunteered my services. I showed the publisher clippings of articles I had written for the school newspaper. I told him I would work for free if he would let me hang around to learn the business. The publisher was an old man, in his seventies, with white hair and kind eyes.

"I'm sorry, but we can't do that," he said. My heart sank, and I distinctly remember the pause that followed. "But I tell you what," he said finally, "we could pay you $40 a week."

Forty dollars! He could have said a million dollars and my astonishment would have been no less. In the summer of 1965, $40 went a long way.

I wrote my first front-page story the next day. Bones of a mammoth had been unearthed at the site of the new high school building, and I was sent out to cover the excavation.

The next day I interviewed the county judge, who released a report saying Nolan County had enough water to last 80 years.

Then I interviewed a woman who raised skunks. I did a story on a stray dog who faithfully followed a particular postman on his rounds every day. I interviewed a couple, just returned from Alaska, who had completed their goal of visiting every state in the union. I interviewed a soldier whose forehead had been shot off in Vietnam. And then there was the story about the chihuahua breeding farm that burned, sending 200 dogs to a horrible death.

EVERY DAY WAS something different. And that is why I love the newspaper business.

As Tommy Hart said last July when he retired as editor of this newspaper, "It's the only industry that I know about that starts completely over each morning ... you never know what to expect when you come in ... for that reason it's a fascinating business. Truly fascinating. You feel part of most everybody's life in this business."

It has been a great honor to succeed Tommy in this job. The people of Big Spring have made me feel right at home, as Tommy told me they would. I have appreciated your letters and calls of support, and I also appreciate your suggestions and criticisms. Some of your comments have resulted in improvements in the paper, so keep 'em coming.

I NEVER WILL forget the man I met at a local cafe soon after I arrived in Big Spring. The person who introduced me said I was taking Tommy Hart's place at the paper.

The man looked me up and down, scratched his chin, then shook his head. "No sir," he said. "She'll make her own place, and she'll do well, but she'll never take Tommy Hart's place."

Which is as it should be.

Truth in weighing

I got on my scale the day after New Year, and discovered it was off by five pounds. Whereas I should have weighed 185 pounds, the scale, which had been guaranteed for 10 years, was wavering between 190 and 192.

"Someone has been playing around with this scale," I told my wife.

"Maybe one of the children jumped on it too hard," my wife said.

I urged her to try it, just to make sure I wasn't wrong.

"Not on your life," she said. "I never get on a scale after the holidays. It depresses me too much."

I called up Lester Shor. "What are you doing?" I asked him.

"Finishing up some cheesecake left over from the Sugar Bowl."

"Did you go to the Sugar Bowl?"

"No, but we had cheesecake and coffee at halftime because I once knew a kid who played for Georgia."

"Did you weigh yourself this morning?"

"I didn't get on the scale, but I kicked it once or twice."

"How come?"

"For the past few days I've been gettind ridiculous readings. You know I've never gone over 195 pounds in my life. Well, the day after Christmas the pointer showed 201, and two days later 203 and yesterday 207."

"Where was the scale made?" I asked.

"Taiwan."

"That explains it. I heard there have been a lot of Chinese imports that were never properly adjusted."

"Let's go over to the Chevy Chase Racquet Ball Club. They have a digital scale from Switzerland which doesn't gain or lose an ounce in a year," Lester said.

"Okay, I'll meet you there in an hour."

We met in the locker room. I was finishing up a piece of fruit cake and Lester was biting into a chocolate-covered tangerine.

I stepped on the scale first and it lit up at "201.6."

"That's insane," I said.

Lester got on the scale and it showed "209.4."

He demanded to see the manager, "Sir, I pay $35 a month dues and the least I can expect for my money is an accurate weight reading."

The manager stood on the scale and it showed "145.2."

"It seems all right to me," he said. "That's what I weighed last week."

"What else could the man say?" I told Lester later as we stopped to have a pizza. "If he admitted the scale was off, his entire health club operation would be threatened."

Lester nodded his head, "There is no truth in scales any more. Even the ones made in Switzerland lie."

"The worst ones are located in doctors' offices," I said. "All of those are at least three pounds off."

"I tell you the only good scales left in America are the kind you find in drugstores that tell you your weight on one side of the card, and your fortune on the other, for a penny."

"I haven't seen one in a long time."

"That's because the scale cartels are buying them up and replacing them with ones that won't tell your weight unless you put in a nickel."

"You game for a dish of frozen yogurt?" I asked him.

"Why not? If you're not going to get a square deal from a scale there is no sense starving yourself all year long."

Rosenthal came by with a deep dish of cherry pie."

"Trouble at home?" Lester asked him.

"Yeh, I weighed myself this morning, and my wife took the scale's word against mine."

"If she did that to me," Lester said, looking at the cherry pie, "I would have put whipped cream and nuts on top."

Government red tape unbelievable

WASHINGTON — Every private enterprise of any consequence is ensnarled in government red tape — to the extent that each year businesses prepare an estimated 114 million forms, 15,000 different types of them, for the federal government.

A glassy-eyed Chester Vande-Weerd got more than his share of them six months after he had obtained a loan guaranteed by the Small Business Administration. He was confronted with 80-odd pages of forms and instructions from the agency. "I couldn't believe it," he said. "It was beyond a layman to fill them out."

What boggled poor Vande-Weerd's mind was SBA Form 707 and its attachments. To the 52-year-old businessman in Rock Valley, Iowa, it was like a Boeing 707 trying to land on a helicopter pad.

Included for Vande-Weerd's edification were 18 pages of "Non-Discrimination Regulations" and a 40-page booket from the Federal Reserve Board on "Equal Credit Opportunity," plus two copies of a "Compliance Report" and a statement for him to sign attesting that he had duly read all the material.

THE ORIGINAL PURPOSE of most of the paperwork is laudable enough — to enforce the civil rights law. But Vande-Weerd's modest firm, which reconditions farm equipment, consists of himself and four employees, all relatives or in-laws.

"They wanted to know about parking lots and drinking fountains," an exasperated Vande-Weerd told my associate Tony Capaccio. "That was the end of it for me."

The gasping businessman got his head above the paperwork long enough to appeal to his congressman, Berkley Bedell, D-Iowa, who fired off an angry letter to SBA Administrator Michael Cardenas.

"Surely the proprietor of a firm that employs five people, all of whom are related by blood or marriage, has more productive ways to spend his time than by reading 80 pages of regulations and forms regarding equal opportunity regulations," Bedell wrote.

Vande-Weerd isn't the only small businessman to be getting the business from the SBA. In 1981, the agency sent out 69,915 of the civil rights forms, and received 31,531 in return. What happened to the other 38,384 is anyone's guess. Maybe the recipients just gave up.

During the Cater administration, the civil rights package that infuriated Vande-Weerd was mailed out to all SBA loan recipients with 15 or more employees. Last year, in response to a Justice Department suggestion, the SBA sent the package to loan recipients with as few as 10 employees.

Footnote: President Reagan is fighting the heroic battle to curb the bureaucratic growth. He has ordered the Small Business Administration, for example, to cut back drastically on the amount of paperwork it sends out to loan recipients. The agency had planned to mail out 64,000 forms this year to firms with 250 or more employees. Now, fewer than 900 businessmen will get the forms, which will consist simply of a single, five-page Compliance Report.

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have decided to study all the major religions of the world, including Christianity. What books would you suggest I read to discover what Christianity is all about? — D.J.A.

DEAR D.J.A.: There are several books which might help you, such as "Basic Christianity" by John Stott or "Mere Christianity" by C.S. Lewis. I have also tried to explain the Gospel in some of the books I have written. A Christian bookstore could help you get these or similar books.

But the most important book for you to study is the Bible, especially the New Testament. The reason is because it is our only source of knowledge about Jesus Christ — who he is, what he taught, and what he says we should believe and do.

I suggest that you begin your reading in the Gospel of John in the New Testament. It was written especially for people who want to know about Jesus Christ. As you read it (as well as the rest of the New Testament) you should remember that you are reading history about an actual person who lived and walked on this earth almost two thousand years ago. The New Testament is not just a collection of teachings (unlike the writings of most other major religions). It is the true story of Jesus Christ.

That is why as you read the Gospels I hope you will always keep one question especially in your mind: who is Jesus Christ? Jesus did not claim just to be another religious teacher. Instead, he claimed to be God, come down from Heaven in human form. Jesus said, "No one has ever gone into heaven except the one who came from heaven — the Son of Man" (John 3:13). He also claimed that he, and he alone, could bring us into a right relationship with God. His resurrection from the dead demonstrated his complete uniqueness.

My prayer is that this study would not just be an intellectual exercise, but that you would realize your own need of God. God loves you and he wants to enter your life. Pray that your heart will be open to him. If you do, I am confident you will join the millions of people who have put their trust in Christ.

Love-hate situation

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Austin and state government have had a long love-hate relationship and a controversy benerated by the city's new electrical rates won't help the feelings of the love side.

Both the city and the state need each other, but neither side likes to admit that.

Without the state government complex and the University of Texas, Austin wouldn't be much more than a pleasant place to fill a gas tank between San Antonio and Dallas.

Without state government, Austin's biggest industry might be selling worms to fishermen headed for nearby Colorado River lakes.

As state government and the UT campus have grown, so has grown the city of Austin.

Thanks to the faculty and students at UT and the young professionals of state government, the city fosters more than its share of cultural and entertainment events, ranging from concerts and plays to orange-and-white spattered football games.

Directly or indirectly, the state offices and the UT campus put money into the pockets of most residents here.

So, you'd think that Austinites would realize which side of the bureaucracy their butter is on and be unquestionably grateful. Not exactly.

If students, state employees, legislators and lobbyists bring in money they also drive up prices. If they make numerous cultural events possibly they also snap up the good tickets.

But, worst of all, the state governmental and educational complexes over huge amounts of black Austin soil without paying one cent in taxes — while enjoying all the city's services.

The capital city's police are, in my personal opinion, among the best around; tough but not mean, professional but flexible and compassionate. The state has its own security forces, but the Austin police patrol in the area and are available for emergencies. (Remember the sniper killings from the UT tower 15 years ago?)

Austin also provides fire protection to state buildings and an excellent emergency medical service to state employees. Some Austinites say the state consumes services without paying its way, and city officials are sensitive to this view.

Thus, the city council has approved a new electric rate structure to replace the bills of average residential users and increase those of big users; such as the state.

Some state officials think the city already is receiving more from state coffers than is proper. They point out that the city uses electricity to pad its general fund, and thus to hold down property taxes.

Last year, the city received $30 million in profit from electricity sales representing about 10 percent of total gross revenues.

During the same period, the state paid about $3 million in electric bills. If the same 10 percent profit figure is applied to that figure, we determine that the state paid about $300,000 extra to the city to offset taxes.

A state study indicated that the new sock-it-to-the-big-users rate structure would add $653,000 to the state's total electric bill.

That news caused House Speaker Bill Clayton to order a House committee to look into the situation and see if the state would buy its electricity elsewhere.

That's not totally a far-fetched idea. The Lower Colorado River Authority which sells electricity in a huge rural area of Central Texas, might be a willing seller.

The LCRA already has sold electricity to several planned rural subdivisions that were denied service by the city because they will be in environmentally sensitive areas.

Some legislators would love to shock Austin by switching to another idea. The problems of such a switch, such as how to get the electricity out of the state through Austin, probably would stop any such plan.

But Austin officials are worried, and that's what state leaders want.

CRMWD sets new record for municipal deliveries

The Colorado River Municipal Water District delivered 17.5 billion gallons of water during 1981 and set a new record for municipal deliveries. The actual figure was 17,485,864,180 gallons, or 4.37 percent more than in 1980.

While deliveries of 14,970,752,300 gallons was a peak for water to cities, the district total was considerably under the all-time record of 20.35 billion gallons in 1974 when oil companies took seven billion gallons. Last year the oil company deliveries amounted to 2.5 billion gallons.

Because the middle of the year was cooler and wetter than usual, municipal deliveries sagged until September, but from that point they were up by about 5 percent and finished the year .33 of one percent over 1980.

On the other hand the 2,515,111,880 gallons to oil companies was 37.20 percent more than the previous year. The reason for this sharp gain was that deliveries of surface water were restored for 1981. SACROC unit in Scurry County took 656 million gallons more surface water for the year.

The increase in municipal deliveries amounted to 50 million gallons, and while most cities showed slight declines, San Angelo took 226 million gallons where it had not taken any in 1980.

The deliveries by cities include: Big Spring 2,810,497,000 billion gallons, down 5.97 percent; Midland 3,936,530,500, down .33 of one percent Odessa 6,819,377,000 gallons, up .83 of one percent; Robert Lee 15,786,300; San Angelo 226,282,500 (no deliveries in 1980) Snyder 1,051,284,000 gallons, down 3.41 percent; Stanton 110,995,000 gallons, down 9.39 percent.

Bill Garland/Washington Watch

Decontrol hot issue

States News Service

WASHINGTON — There was a definite but muffled boom this week that rattled some sabres in the political trenches of Washington.

Major oil companies barely allowed the failing of "Auld Lang Synes" before firing the year's first salvo in what is evolving as one of the important early issues of 1982.

The American Petroleum Institute, representing the majors, believes with the Reagan administration that 1982 is the year for decontrolling natural gas — if they act quickly and decisively, and if the industry can work together.

At a crowded briefing at API this week, an industry representative told reports that natural gas decontrol is "perhaps the single most important legislative initiative in the energy sector." He then proceeded to release a bulky hundred-page report showing why.

Meanwhile, the Reagan administration is drafting the decontrol bill it hopes will ride the momentum of Reagan to final passage in the reluctant House, which always has knocked down such efforts since the beginning of gas controls in 1956.

Toward that end, Reagan will discuss natural gas Monday in the Oval Office with Republican Governors William Clements of Texas and David Treen of Louisiana, undoubtedly making certain that those important oil and gas states will go along with the Reagan plan.

However, the bill that finally emerges from the White House, probably later this month, may go to Congress without a Texan's name on it. Industry onlookers point out that election year strategy may include having a non-oil-state congressman introduce the bill.

That might disappoint Texas Reps. Phil Gramm, D-College Station, and James Collins, R-Dallas, both of whom introduced decontrol bills in 1981, although Gramm denies that he has any so-called pride of authorship in the bill.

Charges dropped in gesture case

HOUSTON (AP) — Charges against a builder who was accused of making an obscene gesture to a low-flying police helicopter have been thrown out by a municipal court prosecutor.

Francis Eric Lindon, 43, was arrested and charged on Nov.15 after he reportedly held up a shovel toward the helicopter which he claimed buzzed his home.

Police had said they were searching for two parachutists who reportedly had gone down in the woods near Lindon's seven-acre estate when they saw the man pointing at them with a rifle.

But Lindon's attorney said the officers were acting like "aerial peeping toms" in making several low passes over Lindon's home as his wife was sunbathing. Attorney Lewis Dickson said witnesses reported the officers had subjected female residents of the neighborhood to similar harrassment.

Chief Muncipal Courts Prosecutor Marion Leach dismissed the charges Wednesday because the incident happened on private and not public property.

"I think what clearly happened is the police made a misguided, hot-headed, off-the-cuff judgement call on the scene," Dickson said.

Angelo State

Four receive scholarships

Application packets are available for currently enrolled students at Angelo State University who wish to apply for initial awards for the 1982-83 Robert G. and Nona K. Carr Academic Scholarship Program.

The materials may be obtained through the President's Office in the Administration Building or by writing to the Carr Academic Scholarship Program, Angelo State University, Box 11007-C, ASU Station, San Angelo, Texas 76909. February 15 is the deadline for these applications.

This distinctive scholarship program for outstanding students provided more than 400 scholarship awards to graduate and undergraduate students for the 1981-82 academic year.

Four Howard County students were among those receiving scholarship awards for entering freshmen this past year. They were Letitia Hernandez, Jonathan Horton, Rebecca Russell and Karen Woolverton.

While the application materials are available for those currently enrolled students who will be applying for their first award, the application forms for renewal awards will not be available for distribution until after the start of the spring semester. Students who are currently attending ASU who will be applying for initial awards must submit with their application a transcript of their college work which is current through the completion of the fall semester of 1981 at ASU.

In reviewing applications for awards, priority will be given to individuals of high academic ability with financial need who have demonstrated special qualities warranting honor, respect and esteem.

Ranging in value from $600 to $3,000, the scholarships will be awarded to students who will be enrolled as full-time undergraduate or graduate students during both semesters of the 1982-83 academic year.

The scholarships are awarded for a period of one academic year with one half of the award to be given for the fall semester and one half for the spring semester provided the student is maintaining at least a B average (3.0 GPA) on all academic work attempted at ASU as a full-time student and maintains high personal standards. The normal course load expected of Carr Scholarship recipients is 15-17 semester credit hours for undergraduate students and 12 semester credit hours for graduate students.

This scholarship program was created by the late Mr. Carr to provide academic scholarships to assist worthy and deserving students to pursue their education at Angelo State. He bequeathed to the Board of Regents, Texas State University System, for the use of Angelo State, all of his interest in oil, gas and other minerals with the provision that these properties be held in trust for the establishment of the Carr Academic Scholarship program.

Internship applications due Feb. 12

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Students and teachers interested in participating in the third summer internship program sponsored by Congressman Charles W. Stenholm can pick up applications at the Congressman's Abilene District Office in the Federal Building.

Applications for the program, which will include two Omar Burleson Congressional Interns and two Lyndon Baines Johnson Congressional Interns, must be postmarked by midnight, Feb. 12, and mailed to the Abilene office.

The interns selected will receive full Congressional Ofice experience at Stenholm's Washington office, with one intern from each program to serve during June or July, 1982.

"We have had an outstanding group of interns to participate in the program for the past two summers," Stenholm said. "The competition for the positions has been keen and I would encourage anyone interested to get their applications in as soon as possible."

Selection for the internships is made by a District-wide selection committee, chaired by former Reg. Omar Burleson. (D-Texas).

Applicants for the four intern slots must be at least 18 years of age when he or she is in Washington, allowing high school seniors who have enrolled in an institute of higher learning to be eligible. Others eligible include any student or graduate student who was enrolled during the preceding academic year at any of the District colleges, universities or technical institutes, or any other school, if the person's home of record is within the 17th Congressional District. Teachers, counselors or administrators are also eligible.

"The program is designed to provide the intern with a full Congressional legislative experience in the Washington office," Stenholm said.

Big Spring Herald — We keep you informed

Nominee list includes two from Big Spring

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congressman Charles W. Stenholm has announced the names of two Big Spring youth included in a slate of nominees to the United States Service Academies.

Gaining nomination to both the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colorado, and the Military Academy in West Point was Patrick Connelly, 2512 Larry Drive. Charles Kip McLaughlin, 803 West 14th Street, received a nomination to the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland.

The Academies will now examine and appraise the nominees and select a Principal for admission, with Qualified Alternates. Alternates may be given further consideration, depending upon available vacancies.

Tax & financial planning

IRA OR NOT . . ?

As of 1982, you will be able to make a tax-deductible contribution of up to $2,000 per year to an individual retirement account (IRA). How beneficial will such a plan be by the time you retire?

The following schedule has been prepared with the assumptions that you contribute a full $2,000 each year, that your IRA earns 12 percent interest to age 65 and continues to earn 12 percent while you draw out your monthly benefits. We are also assuming inflation from now until retirement at 10 percent annually.

The actual purchasing power benefits at your retirement age are going to depend on the difference between the earnings percentage and the inflation percentage. If you start at age 20, contribute $2,000 per year, earn 12 percent and have inflation of 10 percent, your purchasing power at retirement would be $372.98 per month.

Column 4 shows a very impressive monthly retirement benefit for a total of 20 years of retirement. Column 5 shows the equivalent purchasing power if inflation stays at 10 percent.

1 Age	2 Deposited By Age 65	3 Accumulated Value At Age 65	4 Monthly Benefits At Age 65	5 10 Inflation Equivalent Purchasing Power
20	$90,000	$2,716,000	$29,905	$372.98
25	$80,000	$1,534,000	$16,890	$339.26
30	$70,000	$ 863,000	$ 9,502	$307.38
35	$60,000	$ 482,665	$ 5,314	$276.85
40	$50,000	$ 266,667	$ 2,936	$246.35

With a difference of 2 percent between the inflation rate and the earnings rate, it isn't likely that your retirement will be very comfortable at the equivalent purchasing power of $372.98 per month. If inflation averaged only 8 percent, your purchasing power would be $867.46 (not presented in this schedule).

Vietnamese child made famous by photo overcomes handicaps

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Nine years ago, a photograph of tiny Tran Thi Het's half-clothed body inside a C-ration box on a Saigon street brought home one of the grim realities of a distant war.

Today, her halting speech is bringing hope to other children in this central Ohio community.

"Her determination is unreal," says Evelyn Heil, who operates a school for learning-disabled children inspired by her adopted daughter, now called Nhanny. "She gets a hold of something and keeps at it."

For most of her 10 years, Nhanny has been struggling simply to live.

She came to the attention of Ms. Heil and other Americans in 1972 when an Associated Press photographer snapped a picture of the child, who along with an older brother was being used as bait by their Vietnamese mother, a beggar.

After her mother died of tuberculosis and her brother was killed in Danang, Nhanny was put on a plane for the United States. But a congenital heart defect and malnutrition took their toll. The child stopped breathing en route to Honolulu and again, a new weeks later, on the way to a Houston hospital.

"I couldn't stand it after I saw her picture, so I started calling the next day at the hospital," said Ms. Heil.

Although authorities had narrowed the list of eligible adoptive parents to five, she said, "I talked them into making it six."

When Ms. Heil finally brought Nhanny home in October 1974, the girl was 3 years old. She weighed only 12 pounds and was unable to sit up. And her years in the box had left an ugly depression in the left side of her skull — a depression which has since disappeared.

Ms. Heil later learned that Nhanny had holes in her eardrums. And during her early days with the Heils, Nhanny never slept for more than 15 minutes without waking during a violent nightmare.

"She'd make these animal screams ... and sweat would be pouring off her," said the divorced mother of three other children. "I'm sure something terrifying had to have happened to her sometime when she was sleeping."

When Ms. Heil came here in 1977, she took Nhanny to a specialist who replaced her right eardrum. A little more than a year ago, the child began hearing well for the first time in her life.

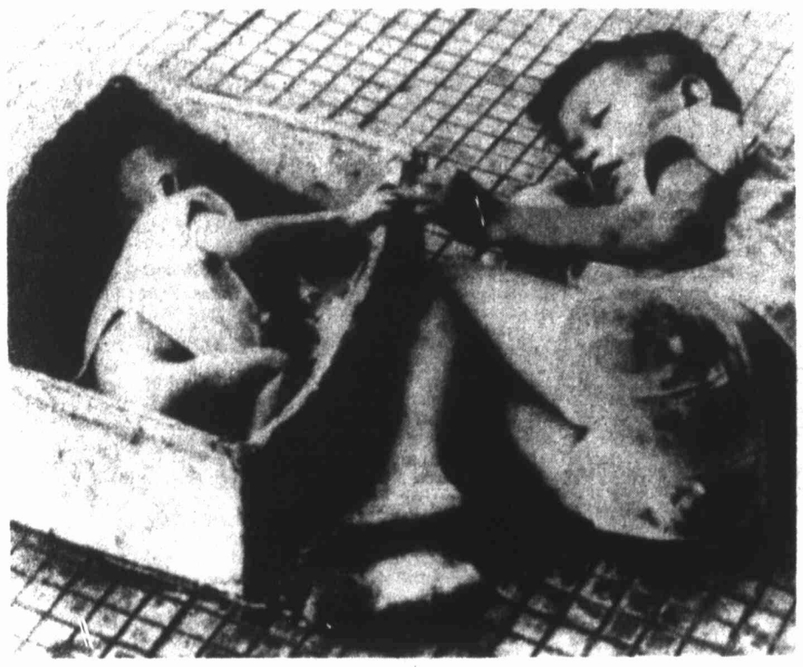

Then, Ms. Heil tried to have Nhanny taken out of classes for educable mentally retarded and placed in a regular classroom. But she met resistance and decided to teach her in her own school.

Nhanny now is one of 13 children at the Warren Center of Learning, a private school for learning-disabled children in an aging frame structure on Springfield's north side. Mothers and aides fill the rooms, but Ms. Heil is its only teacher.

In addition to overcoming her physical problems, Nhanny has had to overcome sometimes violent reactions to her Vietnamese heritage.

In Houston, Ms. Heil helped her overcome being labeled a "gook" by making the term one of endearment.

"We'd rock and sing, 'Momma's little gook baby,'" Ms. Heil said. "I didn't want to hurt her, so I just played the game. It's a hell of a game to play."

FAMILY SCENE — This was the scene nine years ago when Tran Thi Het, in box, and her brother were photographed on a Saigon street in Vietnam. Today she is living in Springfield, Ohio.

FAMOUS CHILD — Tran Thi Het, a Vietnamese child, sits with her mother, Evelyn Heil, in front of a chalkboard at a school for learning-disabled children operated by Ms. Heil. The child came to the attention of Americans in 1973 when an AP photographer snapped her picture as she lay inside a box on a Saigon street.

Fight joined over Clean Air Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House battle over auto emission standards may come to a climax next month as two influential congressmen butt heads over whether the Clean Air Act should be relaxed.

Rep. Henry A. Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health and the environment, says when Congress reconvenes, he will continue his fight against efforts to ease auto pollution standards.

But Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the full committee and one of the auto industry's most outspoken champions, say he will try to get Waxman's subcommittee to act on an industry-backed bill.

Dingell is co-sponsor of the bill, introduced by Rep. Thomas A. Luken, D-Ohio. It would ease auto emission standards.

The relaxation bill was introduced just before Congress recessed for the holidays and a couple of days after auto industry executives met with House leaders to ask them to get moving on the legislation.

Waxman opposes the bill and says he believes Environmental Protection Agency data now being compiled "will show ... that under proposals included in that bill, there are areas of the country that will have no hope of meeting air quality standards."

The bill, supported by the auto industry and the United Auto Workers, would double carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxide emissions that would be permitted from passenger autos.

The industry says reducing pollution control equipment would cut the cost of an automobile from $80 to $300, though it has been vague on whether the savings would be passed on to consumers. The industry says the savings could mean increased sales of 300,000 cars a year.

The Dingell bill brought protests from environmentalists, with the Friends of the Earth calling it "a major weakening of the Clean Air Act."

Judge orders drug trial moved from Brownsville

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has ordered the trial of two McAllen brothers and a third man charged in a multinational drug-trafficking conspiracy moved from Brownsville to Houston.

A clerk for U.S. District Judge James DeAnda said Friday about one-third of the potential jurors who were called for the trial of Meynardo and Manuel Montemayor and Alfonso Arredondo Jr. admitted they had read about charges facing the men and had formed opinions about their innocence or guilt.

The Montemayors and Arredondo were named in a 16-count indictment returned by a Brownsville federal grand jury last November charging conspiracy and violation of federal anti-racketeering statutes.

Two other Montemayor brothers, Reyes and Benito, are fugitives and a fifth brother, Matias, will be tried separately.

Company pressing Austin officials to make up minds

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. is pressing the city officials to make up their minds about plans nor a new commercial airport west of Bergstrom Air Force Base.

Lockheed and the city want the same piece of real estate southwest of the intersection of U.S. 183 and Texas 71.

The City Council has scheduled a Feb. 18 hearing on the California company's plans to develop 670 acres west of Bergstrom. The land is part of the site for a municipal airport being considered by the city.

Lockheed officials agreed last summer to delay its plans until the city received a reaction from the Air Force on the proposal to build an airport that would share Bergstrom's air space.

Lockheed vice president William Flick said the company's options to buy the land are running out.

No-profit mail prediction

Ending subsidy held threat to volunteerism

WASHINGTON (AP) — Religious, charitable and other non-profit oganizations will have a harder time raising money — and some are expected to disappear — because of major increases in their postal rates taking effect today.

Robert Blum, board chairman of the National Society of Fund Raising Executives, predicts the increases will force nearly 10,000 of the 70,000 non-profit organizations that have been financially viable until now to close.

"This is a very wrenching change ... like attacking apple pie and motherhood," he said.

Tthe postal increases, Blum said, "will do exactly the opposite" as what President Reagan advocated last fall when he urged that "volunteerism" make up for cutbacks in federal social programs.

"The government says, 'let's not rely on Uncle Sam. Let's raise it privately.' Then the government makes it much more difficult to raise it privately," he said.

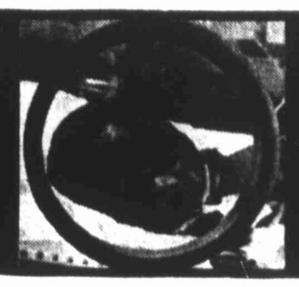

For example, the Disabled American Veterans mails more than 27 million pieces annually. Max Hart, its director of mail marketing, said mailing charges for fundraising solicitations and the DAV magazine will go from $1.4 million to $2.3 million. DAV will survive but will have to mail less, he said.

Because they were presumed to be acting in the public interest, non-profit groups such as the DAV have been allowed a government-subsidized mail rate for decades for their solicitations and publications.

The subsidy was scheduled to be phased out gradually by 1987, but the Reagan administration convinced Congress to end the subsidized rate now with a bill passed last month.

1982 market gets off to a troubling start

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market opened its new year with what appeared to be a broad, tidy advance. Some 900 stocks rose, and the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, an 88.99-point loser in 1981, posted a 7.52-point gain thanks to a last-hour thrust.

But while the Dow was rising Monday, other indicators showed fractional gains and the New York Stock Exchange's composite index barely managed to climb 0.09 point. "It just sat there like a dead fish," said Robert Stovall, senior vice president of Dean Witter Reynolds Inc.

He and other analysts just did not like the look to the market, and the next day they saw why.

From the opening bell Tuesday prices fell broadly and steeply, with dozens of issues — led by the energy-related stocks — dropping a point or more. After two more days of lethargic activity, matters showed some improvement Friday after the Justice Department settled its antitrust suit against American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and dropped its 12-year-old antitrust suit against International Business Machines Corp.

After Tuesday's drop, many analysts cited renewed fears about higher interest rates, especially after economist Henry Kaufman of Salomon Brothers said that by this summer some rates could again hover near their record peaks as the Treasury finances bulging federal deficits.

Kaufman's remarks were unsettling but hardly new, many analysts noted. "He's been saying that for a year and a half," said Alfred E. Goldman of A.G. Edwards & Sons Inc. in St. Louis.

The problem was more than that, Goldman and others said. They believe the market suffers from substantial technical problems that were camouflaged the last few weeks of 1981 with talk of tax-loss selling and other factors said to be keeping most prices from rising.

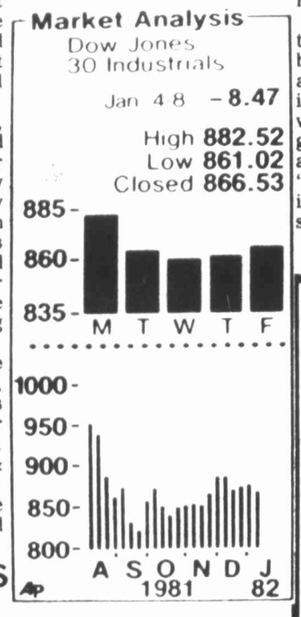

"What greased the slide is that we ended 1981 with the bulls saying, 'Oh boy, as soon as we get past what we think is the end of tax-loss selling, we'll get into 1982 and it's going to be up, up and away,'" Goldman said. "When it didn't happen, and instead we started really sliding, they panicked.

"The one excuse they had for not having a good market since September was tax-loss pressure," he continued. "On Monday, the tax-loss selling was off, the market just wasn't in a position to take it (a rally) up and they had to dump."

Dump they did. The Dow Jones industrial average suffered its worst one-day drop — 17.22 points — in four months on Tuesday. But with Monday's advance and a 4.75 gain Friday, the index surrendered but 8.47 points for the week to end at 866.53.

The NYSE composite index lost 1.75 for the week to 69.36 and, at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index skidded 9.81 to 310.82.

Big Board volume averaged 44.25 million shares in the week compared with an average 36.84 million in the previous, holiday-shortened week.

ANALYSIS — This is the Market Analysis graphic for the week ending Jan. 9. The Dow Jones 30 Industrials closed down 8.47 from last week.

Farmer charged with cruelty to animals

BRISTOL, Conn. (AP) — A dairy farmer was charged with cruelty to animals after authorities found 23 Holstein cows dead of starvation and 87 others in the herd in poor condition.

The animals had been given no water and no food for at least five days "and not much of anything for a long time before that," said Frank Intino, chief of law enforcement for the Connecticut Humane Society in Newington.

Warren S. Roberts, 45, described as the caretaker of his family's farm, was charged Friday with 23 counts of cruelty to animals and released, according to Bristol police Lt. Patrick Coty. Maximum penalty would be a $250 fine and one year in jail for each count.

Dawson Commissioners to discuss pay issue

LAMESA — Members of the Dawson County commissioners court will meet Monday to discuss passing an order to pay county officials' salries monthly or by fees.

The commissioners will also discuss the adoption of amounts budgeted for the officials.

In other business, the group will discuss an ambulance operation, hear a senior citizens bus report, and consider replacing the juvenile officer's automobile.

The group will also consider paying the Permian Basin Regional Commission dues for 1982, and will hear a report from the County Soil Conservation Board.

Consideration of the resignation of Mrs. Jane Cox, absentee voting box judge, is on the agenda, as is the appointment of Mrs. O.H. Sires and Mrs. Sherry Adcock to the Museum Board.

The group will consider granting an application for the Lyntegar Electric Cooperative Corp. to cross the road in Sec. 14, TWP4, North block 36, T&P survey, and block 34, TWP4, section 14, T&P survey.

An approval of accounts payable and reports in on the agenda. Commissioners will also draw the grievance committee for 1982.

Deputies arrest two men on theft charges

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested two men for theft Thursday night and they are currently still in the Howard County Jail on $25,000 bond each. Arrested and charged with theft over $200 and under $10,000 is Curtis Ray Williams, 19, of 1518 B Wood Street.

Charged with theft over $200 is Anthony Wright, 21, of 1002 N. Main. The $25,000 bond was set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin.

Released on bond from county jail following a transfer from city police custody was Richard Lee Reams, 38. Reams, who listed his address as Palmer House, was charged with a Lubbock police warrant of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

Also out on bond is Fred W. Soles, 64. Soles' $2,500 bond was posted by B & M Bail Bond Company. Soles of 1216 E. 17th, is charged with driving while intoxicated. Bond was set by Justice of the Peace Bobby West.

The following were arrested on suspicion of issuance of bad checks and released on $500 personal recognizance bonds: Freddie Puga, 38, of 501 E. 18th; David Martinez, 26, of 2414 Johnson; and Bettye Gossett, 2105 Carl Street.

Q. Today, the amount of cash required to purchase the equity of an older home is upsetting. Are there any options for people who don't have very large amounts in cash?

A. Yes and knowing about possible options is one area a real estate broker can best serve your interests. If you've exhausted all your personal cash resources, your agent might find out if the owner is willing to carry part of the equity. Many times, this sort of "creative financing" has real benefits for both buyer and seller. A second note might be set up, payable to the seller, at a specified interest rate possibly lower than those found at lending institutions. Some lending institutions will make an equity loan for the amount you need. These loans are for much shorter repayment periods than home mortgages and will be at prevailing interest rates.

AT&T, IBM settlements end era of federal efforts to end monopoly

NEW YORK (AP) — The dismissal of an antitrust suit against IBM, coupled with a settlement that will break up AT&T, ends an era that saw the government largely fail in efforts to restructure major industries.

Beginning in the late 1960s, the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission set out to break up dominant firms in industries ranging from oil to breakfast cereals.

"It looked like a very significant challenge," said Harvey Goldschmid, a law professor at Columbia University.

Encouraged by the apparent trend, numerous private suits were filed by small competitors against such dominant companies as International Businss Machines Corp., Xerox Corp. and Eastman Kodak Co.

Now all the government's cases have been settled or dismissed, with the dominant companies winning in every case except American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and generally prevailing in private cases.

"In terms of the bottom line, these cases have produced a very limited return," said Goldschmid after Friday's actions were announced.

At the heart of the cases was the government's attitude toward domination of an industry by one company or a handful of companies, particularly if that domination was acquired legally.

Court decisions starting in the mid-1940s and continuing through the 1960s held that a company with monopoly power could take few actions to protect that position without running afoul of the antitrust laws.

In one case, Alcoa's monopoly in aluminum, which had been obtained through a patented process and sustained through techniques that a lower court said were normal business pactices, was ruled illegal.

The idea was that normal practices, such as price cutting or building new plants to meet anticipated demand, might be reasonable in a competitive industry but could be used to drive competitors out of business or keep them from entering if used by a monopoly.

But beginning in the 1970s, the courts moved away from that position, particularly in a case involving Kodak and Berkey Photo, a small competitor. Berkey lost most major issues on appeal.

Assistant Attorney General William F. Baxter, the head of the antitrust division, cited the Berkey case in dropping the 12-year-old suit against IBM: "You can't bring (the antitrust laws) to bear against a company just because it is large, successful, and captures a very big market share."

"There's far more freedom now for a company, once it obtains a monopoly, to defend that position," said Georgetown University professor Robert Pitofsky, who approved of the move away from the Alcoa decision but feared the administration may have gone too far.

"Bigness is an opportunity for abuse," he said, "and the same practice used by a small company can be an abuse in the hands of an IBM."

A major reason for the trend away from the harsh attitude toward monopolies was a feeling that antitrust action was making American business less competitive in international markets.

"It's part of a realization that we can't afford to hurt our companies anymore," said George C. Thompson, a business professor at Columbia and co-author of a text on antitrust law. "If IBM were severely handicapped, they'd lose out very rapidly to the Japanese, who are already threatening the computer industry."

Some think the opposite might be true, and point to studies indicating that most innovations come not from big companies but from smaller entrepreneurs.

"It's perfectly possible that over the long run four or five IBMs would be more efficient than one," said Goldschmid.

Neither the AT&T nor the IBM actions set a precedent that will be binding on future administrations, since there was no judicial decision.

Goldschmid said he thinks the IBM case probably should have been allowed to go to a decision, since the trial had been completed and a decison by the trial judge was expected within a few months. But Baxter said the appeals would have taken years, and that the government was all but sure to lose.

In the AT&T case, the lack of a precedent may be less important. "This case will never be matched," said Gary Wilson, who teaches antitrust law at Stanford. "You have a half-regulated, half-unregulated company whose sheer size makes it unique."

The long-range effects of the AT&T case, in which the company agreed to divest itself of 22 local Bell companies in order to settle the 7-year-old battle, remain to be seen. Some Wall Street analysts think the company is giving up its least attractive parts and that the resulting AT&T will be a stronger company.

IBM, in fact, may find the net result of Friday's actions is to give it more competition because AT&T is being freed of restrictions placed on it in 1956 as the result of an earlier antitrust suit.

While the IBM dismissal marks the end of an era of trying to break up companies with dominant market positions, it coincides with an indication that the courts are getting tougher in the area of mergers between competitors, one way for a company to get such a dominant position.

The Supreme Court earlier in the week refused to block appeals court orders stopping Mobil Corp. from going after Maratathon Oil Co. while allowing U.S. Steel to acquire Marathon.

Thus while mergers of competitors seem likely to be blocked in the future, even if neither company holds a dominant position in the industry, conglomerate mergers that create huge companies, such as the earlier acquisition of Conoco Inc. by Du Pont Co., seem to have clear sailing.

"There is less fear of mere size," but we still have the fear of decreasing competition," said Thompson. "The government is taking a hands-off attitude on bigness."

Who's in charge in Ghana?

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — More than a week after Ghana's civilian government was overthrown, it is still unclear who is running the West African nation and how its staggering economic problems will solved.

Former air force Lt. Jerry Rawlings, the apparent head of 5,5 ndent when Britain relinquished its rule 25 years ago. Political parties have now been banned, the constitution suspended and the Parliament dismissed.

The PNDC has announced that people's tribunals would try former officials accused of corruption, and that people's defense councils would be organized to defend the revolution. Similar "people's" institutions appeared in Cuba, Nicaragua and Iran after revolutions in those countries.

Rawlings' political rhetoric is a mixture of Third World nationalism, Marxist-based analysis and Christian morality.

In his first public appearance since the coup, Rawlings told a large, union-organized rally Friday that "no one in society has a right to have more than his basic needs when other productive workers can hardly get theirs," according to Accra radio.

Inflation has been running at over 120 percent and the cedi, the national currency, is nearly worthless. As of last June, Ghana had only $80 million in foreign reserves and an outstanding oil import bill of $350 million.

At one time, Ghana was the world's leading cocoa producer. Production has fallen 50 percent in the past 10 years because of aging stock, falling prices and poor marketing facilities. Much of what is produced is smuggled to neighboring countries where it fetches higher prices.

According to estimates, Ghana could be the world's third-largest gold producer after South Africa and the Soviet Union.

AT COSDEN, EMPLOYEES HAVE A WORK-SAFE ATTITUDE.

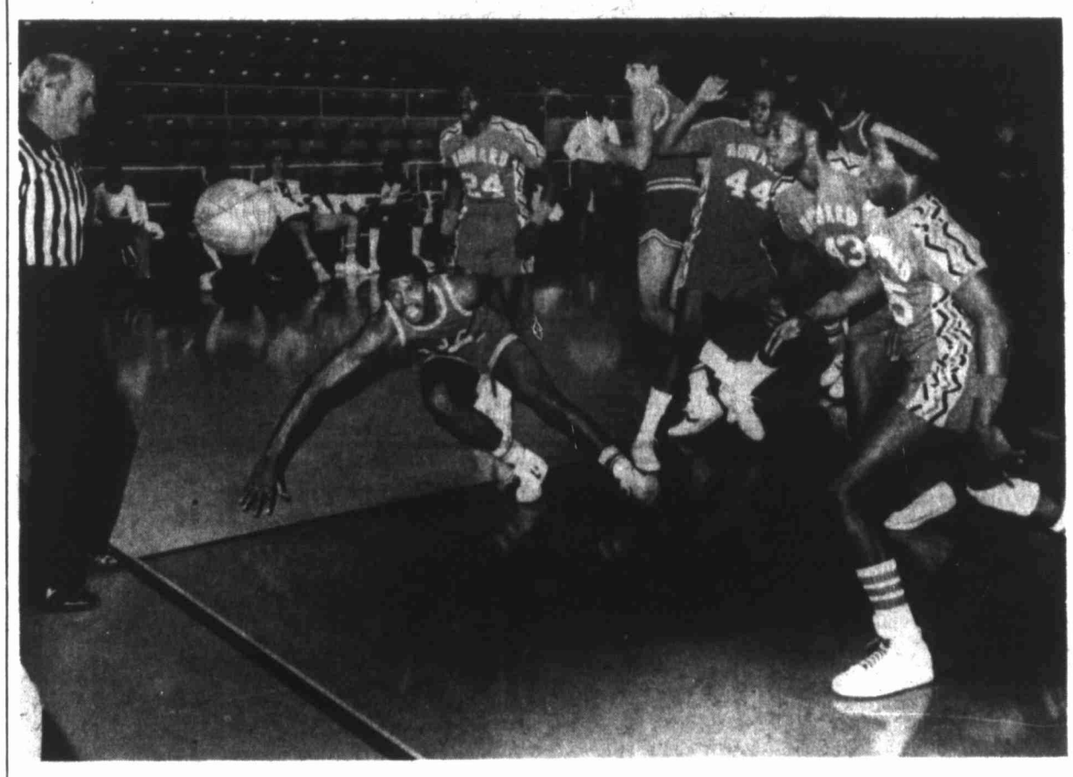

The record of 2,351,141 manhours without a lost time accident, or 593 days, was ended by an accident on April 13, 1981. The Cosden people started counting again. And on Thursday, January 7, 1982, employees at the Big Spring plant once again achieved one million safe manhours. Everyone is proud of this million manhour achievement for a second time and is set on beating the old record. So the goal is "Two in '82".

As before, Cosden, in recognition of their achievement, has awarded a $50 gift certificate to almost 700 employees. This is Cosden's way of communicating to the people of Big Spring their belief that what is good for the employee is good for the company.

Safe working conditions don't just happen. It's recognition that safety is equal to quality, morale, cost and production.

Keep up the safe work.

Isaac leads offensive charge

Hawks fly by Ranger

The Howard College Hawks, after a tough battle, managed to drop a hard fighting Ranger Junior College team 67-62 in the final game of the ABC Classic Friday night.

The Hawks won both of their games in the tournament as did Midland College. Midland College won the tourney because it scored the most points in its two games — 180. The Hawks came in second with 166 points.

The ABC Classic was a warm-up for both Midland and Howard as the two teams face each other here Monday night in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The game started quickly and wildly as both teams struggled to get an offensive foothold.

Ranger played an aggressive zone defense that was designed to collapse on the Hawk's leading scorer, Nathan Givens. The Hawks seemed at bit confused until Leon Isaac and James Barnett started hitting jumpers from the outskirts of Ranger's failing defense.

With five minutes gone in the first half Howard began to get rolling as Isaac and Barnett hit two shots apiece. Isaac finished the same with 19 points followed by Givens with 14.

With the score at 6-5 both teams began trading baskets and they ran the tally up to 17-16 with Ranger pulling to a one point lead; however, the teams cooled off somewhat. Shots were missed adn neither teams was able to rebound well throughout most of the first half.

The last seven minutes of the first half Ranger kept a slim lead relying on center Mike Bell's ability to penetrate the Hawk's front line defense.

At the half the score stood at 28-26 with Ranger on top.

Hawk Coach Harold Wilder later said of the first half, "We really played pretty good, but our field goal percentage was poor and that made us look worse than we really were."

Both teams came out at a blistering offensive pace in the second half as four Ranger baskets were met by four Hawk baskets.

Then the Hawk's Isaac helped by a basket by Nathan Givens, hit two free throws and a jumper from the corner to put the Hawks up 38-36 with five minutes gone in the second half.

A bit later Ranger grabbed the lead back with a Clyde Davis shot that put his team up 46-44.

Baskets by Jerome Johnson and Givens pushed the Hawks up by two with seven minutes left; however, Ranger's Davis had other ideas as he arched in a jumper from the corner and moments later stole the ball for a uncontested layup and Ranger led 58-54.

The Hawk defense then went to work. And with 5:22 left Barnett scored to put the Hawks up for good at 59-58.

Ranger wouldn't die and came back within one point on two occasions, but the Hawks were just too strong down the stretch with their pushing, relentless offense.

When the buzzer sound the Hawks were winners at 67-62, but they knew they had been in a whale of a game.

"We perked up in the second half and looked much better. Ranger played a defense designed to keep the ball away from Givens and they did a good job. We just made the key plays when we need to."

"Midland looks tough tonight. They blew Sul Ross away and they have two exciting players in Anthony Webb and Puntas Wilson. I think our guys are just a little tired and sore, but hopefully we'll be well rested and have the spark we need in Monday's game," Coach Wilder said.

Named to the 1982 ABC Classic team were Ranger's Clyde Davis and Maurice Dorsey; Howard's Nathan Givens and Leon Isaac; Sul Ross' Mike Jones and David Tandy and Midland's Anthony Webb and Puntas Wilson.

HOWARD (67) — James Barnett 6-0-12; Nathan Givens 1-2-14; Wimberly Hardwick 4-2-6; Leon Isaac 8-3-19; Jerome Johnso 4-1-9; Uylen Coleman 1-1-3. TOTALS 24-9-67.

RANGER (62) — Dorsey 0-0-0; Davis 7-0-14; Leorch 4-0-8; Holman 0-1-1; Bell 6-4-16; Phillips 6-0-12; Lacey 3-2-8; Hunt 2-1-5. TOTALS 28-8-62.

Hawk Queens win all three games in Odessa tournament

The Howard College Hawk Queens took advantage of some red hot shooting this weekend winning two games this Friday and Saturday at the Odessa Women's Tournament.

The Hawks Queens tromped San Jacinto College 79-54 on Friday due to an excellent second half in which the girl outscored San Jacinto 48-15.

Coach Don Stevens said the Queens played "terrible" in the first half and San Jacinto held a 43-31 first half lead.

However, the Hawk Queens came out roaring in the second half and reeled off 19 unanswered points outscoring San Jacinto 29-2 in the third period.

"We were helped immensely by great defense. Susan Cordell played great, it was the first time she had really played up to her potential. Nell Haskins also contributed, she scored 17 points."

"The first and second half were two completely different ball games. Actually our shooting percentage wasn't that great, but we pulled down 67 rebounds which allowed us to shoot often," Coach Stevens said.

Hardin Simmons was also felled by the Hawk Queens deft shooting touch 102-78. Nell Haskins gunned in 31 points followed by Kathy Mull with 18.

Saturday Hardin Simmons and the Hawk Queens dueled each other in a shooting contest in which Howard shot 60 percent in the first half followed closely by Hardin Simmons with 59 percent from the field.

In the second half the Queens buckled down on defense and cooled Hardin Simmons shooting. Hardin Simmons managed on 21 percent from the field in the second half, while the Queens maintained a 50 percent margin.

"This was another real good game for us. Overall I'm very pleased with the way the team performed after such a long layoff," Coach Stevens said.

Making all-tournament in the Odessa games were Nell Haskins and Kelly Mull.

The Hawk Queens are off Monday and will travel to Odessa Thursday to battle Odessa College in a conference game.

Landry old hand at playoffs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Super Bowl XVI will be either an exciting new experience for the young San Francisco 49ers or trip No. VI for Tom Landry's Dalls Cowboys.

Landry, the only head coach in the 22-year history of the Cowboys, brings the team into Candlestick Park to face the 49ers in today's National Football Conference championship game. Dallas has reached the title game nine times in 12 years.

The 49ers finished regular season play with the National Football Leage's best record, 13-3, and their most impressive victory was the 45-14 demolition of the Cowboys three months ago on Candlestick's notoriously soft turf.

But the 49ers, Bill Walsh, NFL Coach of the Year, says flatly, "Dallas is the team to beat in the NFL."

A San Francisco victory would give the 49ers their first conference championship and send them into the Jan. 24 Super Bowl game at the Pontiac, Mich., Silverdome. The Cincinnati Bengals or San Diego Charges, two other teams with no Super Bowl experience, will represent the American Conference.

"I don't think there are any dominant teams in the NFL. We don't have to reach the Super Bowl to validate our 13-3 record," says Walsh, the third-year coach who had 2-14 and 6-10 records his first two seasons with the 49ers. "If we lose, we'll just say the best team won, wish them luck and start getting ready for next season."

Dallas has a pair of five-time Super Bowl performers, linebacker D.D. Lewis and safety Charlie Waters, on defense. The Cowboys' pass rush, led by linemen Ed "Too Tall" Jones and All-Pro Randy White, is one of the most experienced and feared in

Steers throw scare into Midland

MIDLAND — The Midland High Bulldogs waltzed into Chaparral Center Friday night expecting to coast by the Big Spring Steers, but the Steers came ready to play as the Bulldogs barely edged the Bovines, 60-52.

Midland, the league's defending champion, had to fight hard to keep its lead over the Steers who played with determination throughout the game.

The Bulldogs aimed their defense at the Steer's Bobby Earl Williams and succeeded in holding him to only 12 points all night. Williams only managed three points in the second half.

The Steers enjoyed a good shooting first half making 13 of 20 shots and they led twice in the first period, before a three point play put Midland in the lead for good at 16-13.

Williams was helped in the scoring department by Jerald Wrightsil with 10. Robert Rubio and Blake Rosson each had eight.

Even though the Steers were outmanned they still played with heart and never game up until the final buzzer which had them on the losing end 60-52.

The Steers fell to 0-2 in District 5-AAAAA play and will face Odessa Permian in Big Spring Tuesday.

Leading scorer for the Steers was Bobby Earl Williams with 12, while Midland was led by Jim Gunnels with 19.

Midland also won the junior varsity contest 80-60.

BIG SPRING (52) — Bobby Earl Williams 5-2-12; Jerald Wrightsil 5-0-10; Robert Rubio 2-4-8; Blake Resson 4-0-8; Tony Randle 1-0-2; Kevin Watson 2-0-4; Jinx Valenzuela 0-0-0; Gary Harris 2-0-4; John Green 2-0-4. TOTALS 23-6-52.

West beats East in Hula Bowl, 26-23

HONOLULU (AP) — Brigham Young's Jim McMahon teamed with Walter Abercrombie of Baylor for three touchdown pass plays as the West All-Stars came from behind to defeat the East 26-23 in the Hula Bowl Saturday.

MaMahon, the All-American quarterback, passed for 330 yards, a Hula Bowl record, after getting off to a slow start in the first half of the 36th annual college football game.

Abercrombie's three TD receptions, another Hula Bowl record, earned him the game's Most Valu ble Player title.

Behind 23-13, the West was pinned back on its own three-yard line in the final quarter when McMahon began his first bombing attack, passing 12 times in a 97-yard drive that ended with a touchdown pass to Abercrombie.

Because of a Hula Bowl rule that gives the trailing team the option of receiving the kickoff, McMahon was able to go right back to work from the 20-yard line. After six plays, he hit Abercrombie again for the final score.

The East jumped out to an early lead as Ohio State quarterback Art Schlichter moved the team 58 yards in 10 plays bfore settling for a 22-yard field goal by Ohio State's Bob Atha.

McMahon came right back, leading a 78-yard, 12-play drive that culminated with Abercrombie's first score with 6:55 left in the first quarter.

Mississippi's John Fourcade then took over for the East and launched a 65-yard drive in five plays. Fourcade finished the drive by sneaking over from the one-yard line for a 10-7 East lead.

With Fourcade passing and Butch Woolfolk of Michigan handling much of the ground game, the East then marched 66 yards in 14 plays for another score as Navy's Eddie Meyers pushed over for the touchdown. That put the East up 17-7.

Early in the second half, the East broadened its grip to 20-7 after Atha booted a 33-yard field goal.

The West started its comeback effort with Nevada-Las Vegas quarterback Sam King at the reins. He guided an 80-yard drive in 15 plays before sneaking over from the one.

Heisman trophy winner Marcus Allen of Southern California, who became college football's first player to rush more than 2,000 yards in a single season, was held to just 38 yards. Allen shared the game's rushing honors with the East's Woolfolk as both teams went to the air.

Ambercrombie pulled in five passes for 98 yards, while Hawaii's Gary Allen caught seven for 92 yards.

Tar Heels still tops

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — James Worthy hit a turnaround jumper that gave North Carolina its first lead in the second half, with less than four minutes to play, and the top-ranked Tar Heels clawed their way to a 65-60 basketball victory Saturday over No.2 Virginia.

Worthy's short jump shot fom the left baseline put the Tar Heels ahead 55-54 with 3:47 to play and capped a comeback that saw undefeated North Carolina erase a nine-point deficit. The teams traded advantages in the closing minutes until two foul shots by Sam Perkins with 1:48 to play gave North Carolina the lead for good, 59-58, and the Tar Heels held on for their 11th victory this season by going into their famed four corners offense.

Ralph Sampson, Virginia's 7-foot-4 center, led all scorers with 30 points, but its was his North Carolina counterpart, 6-9 Sam Perkins, who put the finishing touches on the victory. Afrer reserve guard Jim Braddock sank four free throws to put North Carolina ahead 63-58, Jeff Jones pulled the Cavaliers within three points, 63-60, with a jump shot with seven seconds to play.

On the ensuing inbounds play, Perkins got behind the Virginia defense, took a long pass, and hit a layup that helped hand Virginia its first loss in 13 games this season.

Worthy led the Tar Heels woth 17 points, freshman Michael Jordan had 16 and Perkins, who played much of the game in foul trouble, had 12.

Virginia forged a 32-28 halftime lead with Sampson providing much of the firepower, and the Cavaliers stretched that lead to seven, 39-32, 3:24 after intermission when Sampson sent home a finger roll shot from about six feet.

The Cavaliers then led 47-38, grabbing their largest lead of the game, when Sampson took a rebound with one hand and slammed it home.

Chargers, Bengals different in many ways

CINCINNATI (AP) — The contrasts between the San Diego Chargers and the Cincinnati Bengals, the opponents in Sunday's American Football Conference championship game, are striking.

The Chargers' coach is Don Coryell. He runs a loose ship. He's been known to show up late for his own meetings.

The Bengals' coach is Forrest Gregg. He runs a tight ship, almost military like. Jackets and ties are mandatory on road trips.

The Chargers' quarterback is Dan Fouts. His passes are bombs, a "more-is-better" passer. If he doesn't set a record for his number of throws or their distance, he's had an off-day, or an off-year.

The Bengals' quarterback is Ken Anderson. He is precision personified, a three-time passing champion in the National Football League (including the 1981 season), who also owns the record for the best passing percentage in a game.

The Chargers' receivers specialize not so much in yardage as is mileage. Ten AFC receivers gained more than 1,000 yards during the 1981 season. San Diego had three of them (Charlie Joiner, 1,188 yards; Wes Chandler, 1,142, and Kellen Winslow, 1,085).

The Bengals had one — rookie Cris Collinsworth, who sneaked in with 1,009 yards.

The Chargers, for all their vaunted air superiority, also gained 2,005 yards rushing this season (eighth in the conference) led by Chuck Muncie's 1,144 yards (second in the AFC) and rookie James Brooks' 525 yards.

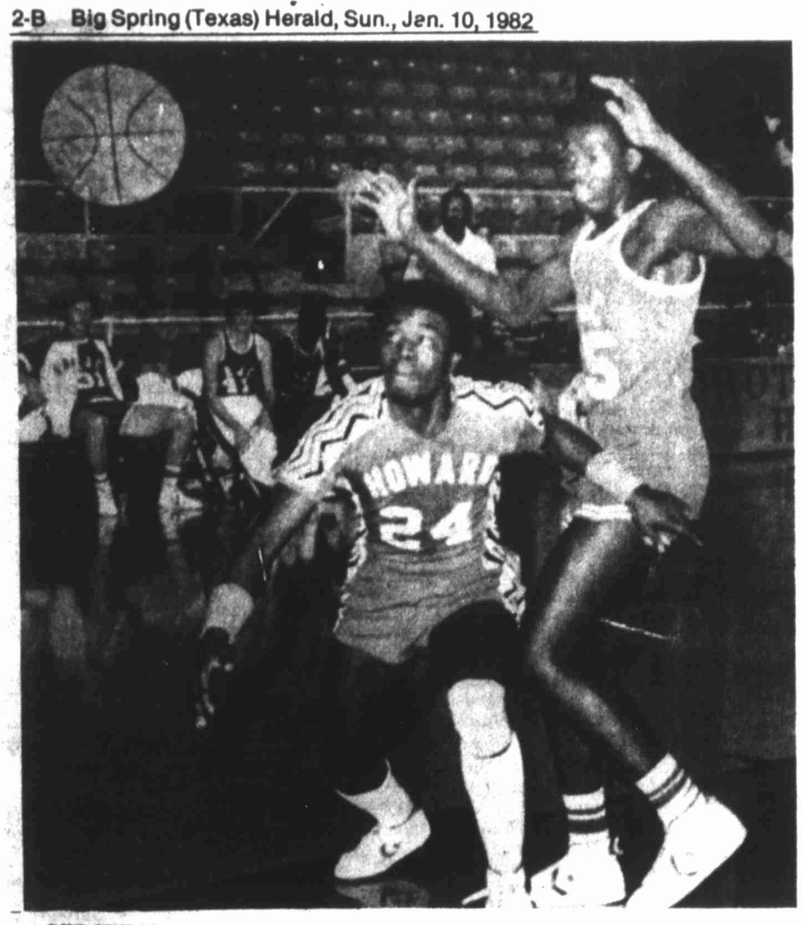

The Bengals were ninth in the AFC in rushing with 1,973 yards. Pete Johnson was their leader with 1,077 yards.

Defensively, the Chargers were survivors — barely. They were next-to-last in the conference in defense, ahead of only Baltimore. Their league-high 478 points overcame the 390 they allowed and helped them finish with a 10-6 record and win the AFC Western Division title.

The Bengals' defense was fourth overall in the conference, but only ninth against the pass. It allowed 304 points. But Cincinnati scored 421, enough to give the team a 12-4 record, the best in the AFC.

The teams met once during the 1981 season and played a game of role-reversal. The Bengals were the explosive entity as Anderson passed for 444 yards in a 40-17 romp.

Gregg said the rout at San Diego was relatively meaningless. "This is what happened: we jumped on them early, got the turnovers and an interception (a 103-yard runback by Louis Breeden) that turned the tide. Otherwise, that game was a lot closer than the score indicated. I never relaxed during the whole game and the players didn't, either," he said.

Kofler lifts West to win in Shrine game

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — San Diego State's Matt Kofler threw two touchdown passes to Brigham Young's Dan Plater, who totaled nine receptions, to lead the West to a 20-13 victory Saturday in the 57th Shrine East-West Game.

Texas kicker John Goodson contributed two field goals for the West, from 47 and 48 yards, and averaged 44 yards on eight punts.

Goodson's 47-yard field goal, late in the second period, broke a 7-7 tie and sent the West ahead to stay in the college football all-star game played before 75,000 fans at Stanford Stadium.

Kofler hit Plater on a 19-yard touchdown pass in the first period and connected with the BYU star on a 20-yard scoring toss in the third quarter. Plater, named the game's outstanding offensive player, was one short of the East-West record with his nine receptions. He totaled 120 yards.

Michigan running back Stanley Edwards scored two touchdowns for the East, which drew even at 7-7 after he plunged 2 yards to score in the second quarter. Edwards' second touchdown came in the final period when he caught a 4-yard pass from Georgia's Buck Belue.

The East trailed 17-13 after the touchdown pass, but Goodson's second field goal made the margin seven points. An East drive late in the game ended at the West 34, where Florida State quarterback Rick Stockstill threw an incomplete pass on fourth down.

In the final minute of the first half, the East blew a scoring opportunity set up on a 45-yard interception return by Alabama's Jim Bob Harris to the West 11.

Stockstill was sacked for a loss of 15 yards by Texas linebacker Bruce Scholtz, and a fumble by Edwards was recovered by Kansas linebacker Kyle McNorton.

Miami's Larry Brodsky gained 110 yards on pass receptions for the East. His five catches included one for 48 yards that set up his team's second touchdown.

Craig Stadler grabs Tucson Open lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Craig Stadler fired a 4-under-par 66 and took a stranglehold 7-stroke lead Saturday after the third round of the $300,000 Joe Garagiola-Tucson Open, the kickoff event on the 10-month pro golf tour.

His leading margin was the largest third-round lead since Tom Watson had an 8-shot edge 2½ years ago in the Heritage Classic. Stadler's 54-hole total of 195, 15 under par on the Randolph Park Municipal course, was the lowest since Curtis Strange had the same total in the 1980 Houston Open.

There's another 18 holes to go, but Stadler's spectacular scoring in the Arizona sunshine had his opponents all but conceding the title and the $54,000 first prize to the stocky man who, quietly and without fanfare, has established himself as one of the tour's most accomplished players in the last two seasons.

"Unless he does something crazy, like break his putter on the first hole tomorrow, we're in trouble," said Jay Haas, the man in second place.

"You have to be realistic about it," Haas said. "He could shoot 70 or 71 withou playing very well, and I'd have to shoot something like 63 or 64 to catch him."

"It's pretty much a one-horse race," acknowledged Greg Powers, one of the closest pursuers. "Craig is just so far in front. And he has a tendency when he gets in front, he just goes further in front.

"I'm looking for another good round tomorrow. But unless something unforseen happens to Craig, we're all playing for second place."

Stadler, who has won three tournaments and $425,000 in the last two seasons, has led all the way. He had a 1-stroke lead after the first round, expanded it to four at the end of the second and then ran away from the field in the third round.

"That's some kind of playing," said Johnny Miller, the defending champion and a four-time winner of this event.

Coahoma team play captures consolation

JAYTON — An improving Coahoma team won consolation this weekend at the Jayton tournament beating Snyder JV 49-43 for the honor.

The Bulldogs got off to a slow start Thursday night by falling to a touch Motley County team 53-39.

Coahoma was led in that game by Bruce Walker and Ricky Martin with 10 points. Brad Fryar and Bobby Joe Tucker added eight each in the game. Martin also bagged 8 rebounds to lead the team.

According to Coach Doug Harriman the Bulldogs played their best game of the year against Guthrie Friday night by running away with a 79-35 win.

Nine people scored in the winning cause led by Bobby Joe Tucker with 20 followed closely by Bruce Walker with 16 and Brad Fryar and Mike McKinley chipped in with 10 apiece.

Also scoring in the contest were Tony Uranga with 6, Robbie Phernutton, Jim Rinard and Dee Cagle with 4 points each.

In the consolation game against Snyder Tucker once again made his presence know with a 16 point output. Bruce Walker contributed 12 along with Fryar's 9 to lead the team to victory. Tucker also grabbed 9 rebounds.

"We played real well, even in the loss to Motley County we played well. It was a good start for us and we needed to win a couple of games like that to get started for district," Coach Harriman said.

Coahoma will begin district play in Coahoma next Tuesday night against Seminole. The games will include boy's and girl's JV and varsity teams.

Cowboys will try to press Montana

the NFL.

But the 49ers, defense, featuring three extraordinary rookies in the secondary and All-Pro Fred Dean on the line, was much more consistent this season than the Dallas unit.

San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana, the 25-year-old Notre Dame product in his first season as a full-time starter, led the NFC in passing this season, with the Cowboys' Danny White ranking second.

"It all boils down to putting pressure on Montana. He has to know we're in the game. And he will," says Jones.

In the regular season meeting of the teams, Montana was sacked just once and threw for 279 yards. The game's most startling statistic was the mere 21 yards rushing by Tony Dorsett, who set a Dallas season record with a total of 1,646 yards.

"I was counting on Dallas playing Dallas football, but that's not what we saw," says 49ers linebacker Jack Reynolds. "I know we'll see Dallas football this time."

The Cowboys, perhaps shaken by the Oct. 11 embarrassment in San Francisco, righted themselves and won the NFC East title with a 12-4 record.

Dallas wiped out Tampa Bay 38-0 last weekend, giving Landry his 18th postseason coaching victory. The 49ers, in their first playoff game in nine years, outscored the New York Giants 38-24.

"We'll be coming into the game with some momentum," said Landry.

"The 49ers have some momentum, too."

Walsh's team carries a six-game winning streak into the NFC title match and has won 13 of its last 14 games. The 49ers began the season where they hope to end it, at the Silverdome, where they lost to the Detroit Lions 24-17.

After three weeks of regular season play, the 49ers were 1-2. They were 4-2 after ambushing the Cowboys.

CLEARING A PATH — Cincinnati Bengals stadium worker Joe Evans sweeps the steps in the seating area as the team practices on the sidelines of the covered field Saturday in Cincinnati. A heavy overnight snowfall and snow flurries during the day caused stadium personnel to keep the field covered as the Bengals and the San Diego Chargers completed practice for today's AFC title game.

Arctic front chills playoffs

By DAVID L. LANGFORD
Associated Press Writer

A blast of "extremely dangerous" Arctic air stunned the Midwest with wind chills reaching 70 degrees below zero Saturday, and foot-deep snows fell on some cities as the deep freeze spread eastward.

"Prepare for the worst," warned Jack May of the National Weather Service in Cleveland where up to 10 inches of new snow had fallen as the mercury plummeted.

On the bright side, forecasters said there would be sunny skies in San Francisco for Sunday's National Football Conference title game between the San Francisco 49ers and the Dallas Cowboys. But in Cincinnati, where the Bengals will meet the San Diego Chargers for the American Conference championship, the forecast called for temperatures of 10 to 15 degrees with a wind-chill factor of 30 below.

Former outfielder hospitalized

BOSTON (AP) — Former Boston Red Sox slugger Tony Conigliaro was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital Saturday morning after suffering a heart attack, a hospital spokesman said.

Conigliaro, 37, was reportedly being driven to Logan Airport when he became ill. He was admitted to the hospital at 9:30 a.m., according to Martin Bander, hospital spokesman.

"The doctor has talked to members of his family several times," Bander said. However, he said he did not have permission to release details of Conigliaro's condition, other than to say the former outfielder had suffered a heart attack.

Conigliaro, whose birthday was Jan. 7, played eight years in the major leagues. He was with Boston from 1964 through 1967, and again in 1969-70. After he had dropped out of baseball because of an eye injury, he tried a comeback with the Red Sox in 1975, but eventually retired.

When he was 20, in his second year in professional baseball, he led the American League in home runs with 32. His lifetime batting average in the majors was .264.

After quitting baseball for good, Conigiliaro worked for a year as a sportscaster with WJAR-TV in Providence, R.I., and also owned a restaurant in the city. He lives in Novato, Calif.

Forsan girls hang Ropes, 42-26

The Forsan girls' basketball team tromped Ropes here Friday by the score of 42-26.

The girls were led in scoring by Vicki Baggett with eight points.

The victory raised the team's season record to 15-3 and their district record is unblemished at 3-0.

Coach Ronnie Taylor said his team played great defense but they shot poorly from the field.

"We only shot about 26 percent so we were lucky to come out so good by playing so bad," Coach Taylor said.

The Forsan boys were not so lucky. Ropes edged the Buffaloes by three points 50-47. Ricky Bedwell had 18 points in the losing cause. The boys dropped to 0-3 in district competition.

Both girls and boys play Stanton at home Tuesday night.

Iowa Hawkeyes blast Illinois

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Iowa's Mark Gannon scored 15 points, and paced a second-half Illinois surge that gave the seventh-ranked Hawkeyes a 56-50 victory in Big Ten college basketball Saturday.

Iowa, 10-1 overall and 2-0 in the league, took advantage of the Illini's foul trouble and forged an 18-10 lead with nine minutes, 17 seconds left in the first half. The score was 28-20 at intermission.

The Hawkeyes stretched their lead to 13 points before they went cold with about 13 minutes to play.

Illinois' James Griffin scored on a three-point play, Craig Tucker added a basket and Derek Harper had two to bring Illinois to within four points at 44-40 with 7:59 remaining.

That's when Gannon began hitting. Iowa used four clutch free throws by Steve Carfino to seal the victory.

Illinois, which fell to 8-3 and 1-1, was led by Tucker with 17 points, and Griffin had 13 points and eight rebounds. Michael Payne also had 15 points and was the only other Hawkeye in double figures.

Vols upset Kentucky, 70-66

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Kentucky missed two crucial free throws in the final minute Saturday night, and Tennessee's Tyrone Beaman scored five consecutive points to lead the Volunteers to a 70-66 upset of the No. 3 Wildcats in Southeastern Conference basketball.

With eight minutes remaining, a basket by Tennessee's Dale Ellis had tied the game at 54-54. The lead then changed hands five times with only a one-point difference before senior Steve Ray hit a 10-footer with 5:05 remaining to put the Vols ahead 61-60.

After a Tennessee time out with 4:40 to play, Kentucky's Jim Master missed an inside shot while Charles Hurt fouled Tennessee's Michael Brooks on a layup. Brooks then hit both ends of a one-and-one from the free-throw line.

Ellis led Tennessee scoring with 23 points followed by Brooks with 19 points and Beaman with 10. For the Wildcats, Melvin Turpin, a 6-11 sophomore center, had a game-high 28 points, while Derrick Hord contributed 18 and Master 14.

The victory boosts Tennessee to 9-3 overall and 4-0 in the SEC. Kentucky fell to 9-2 and 2-1 in the league.

Minnesota wins

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Trent Tucker scored 17 points and joined three teammates in double figures as Minnesota captured a 64-58 Big Ten basketball victory over Michigan State Saturday night.

The sixth-ranked Gophers took an 11-point lead early in the game and never trailed. Minnesota, 1-1 in the league an 9-2 overall, vaulted to a 21-10 lead with 7:13 to go in the first half and settled for a 27-19 lead at intermission. The Gophers increased their lead to 40-23 with 13 minutes left before a Spartans' rally.

Led by guards Kevin Smith and Sam Vincent, the Spartans cut the Minnesota advantage to two points, 54-52, with 2:01 remaining.

Goliad takes Stanton

The Goliad Black girls' basketball team blasted Stanton 20-4 in a game Thursday night.

Goliad was impressive in the defensive department and cited for good hustle were Kelli Preston, Tessa Underwood and Joanne Hamilton.

Goliad had improved considerably since its first meeting with Stanton when the Bulldogs won by six points.

Paula Jolley captured scoring honors with six points followed by Connie Sweeney and Sherri Myrick, both with three points.

Goliad was scheduled to appear in the Big Spring tournament held over the weekend.

Missouri clobbers Colorado

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Ricky Frazier and Steve Stipanovich scored 13 points each Saturday as fourth-ranked Missouri defeated Colorado 72-50 in Big Eight college basketball and ran its season record to 11-0.

It was the Big Eight season opener for both schools.

Colorado, 8-2, jumped out to an 8-4 lead in the opening minutes of the game but the Tigers forged to a 10-9 lead by the 13:36 mark on a shot from Prince Bridges.

The lead switched back to the Buffs again as they ran off six straight points to take an 18-17 lead.

But Missouri went ahead to stay on a layup by Marvin McRay and pushed on to a 34-28 halftime advantage.

During the first 20 minutes of the game Missouri lost the services of Stipanovich, Frazier and Mark Dressler who were benched with three personal fouls each.

Vince Kelley was the only Buff to reach double digit scoring with 12 points.

Houston holds off Red Raiders

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Rob Williams scored 25 points as the 14th-ranked Houston Cougars held off upset-minded Texas Tech for a 78-68 Southwest Conference basketball win Saturday night.

Tech made a determined comeback attempt during the second half, tying the score on four occasions, but Williams hit a 15-foot jump shot to put Houston ahead to stay, 59-57, and Houston outscored Tech 27-11 in the final 7½ minutes.

Clarence Swannegan led all scorers with 30 points for Tech, his career high, while Charles Johnson added 16 and Jeff Taylor tallied 11.

Akeem Olajuwon, the 7-foot center from Kenya, was the only other Houston player in double figures.

Houston, 11-1 overall and 2-0 in SWC play, led by as much as 12 points during the first half and went to the locker room with a 41-35 lead at intermission.

The Raiders fell to 9-4 and 1-2.

Longhorns whip SMU

DALLAS (AP) — Virdell Howland scored 24 points, 16 of them in a tempo-setting first half, and the Texas Longhorns beat back a second-period rally to overcome Southern Methodist 60-51 in Southwest Conference basketball Saturday.

Texas center LaSalle Thompson, the nation's fifth-leading rebounder going into the regionally televised contest, dominated play at both ends of the floor, grabbing 21 rebounds and blocking two shots.

The unbeaten and unranked Longhorns, 10-0 overall and 2-0 in SWC play, established their winning margin in the final nine minutes of the first half, outscoring the Mustangs 16-2 and taking a 34-18 lead into the locker room.

SMU, 5-7 and 0-2, came out shooting in the second half, with freshman Larry Davis ringing up two field goals and four rebounds to lead the charge as the Mustangs scored 12 unavenged points and pulled within four, 34-30.

At that point the 6-10, 250-pound Thompson resumed his ownership of the backboards and the Longhorns pulled steadily away, going into their spread offense with 2½ minutes remaining.

Texas guard Ray Harper's free-throw shooting kept the Mustangs at bay as the game wound to a close. Texas outscored the Mustangs 14-1 from the foul line.

Addison led SMU with 18 points and Dave Piehler added 10. Mike Wacker was the only other Longhorn in double figures with 12 points.

TIPS FOR ENERGY SAVERS

How to Save Electricity Before It Comes To You

During late afternoon and early evening hours, the load on the nation's electrical systems usually reaches its peak. To meet the heavy demand, electric utilities often must use back-up generating equipment that is not energy efficient.

Try to use energy-intensive appliances such as dishwashers, clothes washers and dryers, and electric ovens in the early morning or late evening hours to help reduce that peak load.

This energy-saving tip is brought to you by the classified advertising department in the interest of energy conservation

Unreturned books prove costly

By JUDITH GRAY
County Librarian

Remember! The Howard County Library is closed to the public through Jan. 18. We are taking inventory of the collection. The last one was three years ago.

As an earlier article in December described it, inventory-taking is a time-consuming, slow task. Each book must be matched up with its shelf list record card. Everything must match. If not, corrections are made. We also watch for books that need repairs, to be bound, changes in classification, and books that need to be replaced because they are missing or are wearing out. Also watched for are subject areas that need to be strengthened with new titles.

During the past week, I have spoken on the telephone to many people. I have appreciated their understanding (and sympathy) for the need to take this inventory. Please continue to be patient and understanding. We will reopen on our regular schedule, Tuesday, Jan. 19 at 9 a.m.

Thank you to those people who answered the plea to return overdue books. The article and picture which appeared in the Dec. 31 paper got good results. Approximately 50-60 books were returned. Some were overdue as long as a couple of years. But, there are approximately 500 still out overdue.

There is really no reason why books should be kept overdue. Books are loaned for three week periods (except for reserves used for heavy school assignments, science projects, ect.) and records for one week. Everything checked out on a personal card may be renewed in person at the library or by telephone up to two renewals. Please have the books with you. The only items which cannot be renewed are reserved and requested items. If renewed on the due date, no fine will be owed. If renewed after the due date, fines are owed only on the time considered overdue. If you do not want to renew books, but it is not possible to come to the library during open hours, you can return the books in the book drop which is near the back parking lot entrance. The book drop is always open. It is for books only. Never return records, films, tapes, art prints, sculptures in the drop. Any damage caused by books landing on them is charged to you. Your best bet is to renew those items, return them on time or as soon as possible after the due date. The fine would probably be less than having to pay for a damaged record, painting, or sculpture.

The books and materials in the County Library belong to all county residents. Every resident is eligible for a free library card. Registered borrowers are responsible for returning library materials on time and in good condition. That is the only requirement to use the Library.

The books and materials are purchased with tax funds made available and budgeted by Commissioners Court. Your County Librarian and staff are committed and try to use budgeted funds as efficiently as possible. However, the job is difficult when funds are wasted by people taking books or records without checking them out properly and when people keep books out overdue or never return them.

What if the costs were estimated for labor, materials, postage, and telephone bills for one book that is overdue for one month or longer. The approximate total cost would range from $7 to $10.

For that one book, we telephone the person one to three times and — or send notices. On the third notice, we prepare and send a letter written by the County Attorney. In the meantime, the shelves and circulation file are checked and double-checked.

If we decide to replace the book and determine the costs for the time, labor, and materials used, approximately $10 to $17 is added to the overdue costs.

To replace a book, we check sources to see if the book is still available or if there are newer editions or titles that would be better, prepare the order, get a requisition approved and a purchase order, mail the order, file our copy, wait ..., receive the order, unpack, check the book, pull our order copy, accession the book, catalog and classify and prepare the catalog cards if necessary, file the cards, process the book (prepare book pocket, card, label; glue the pocket; put on plastic book jacket and tape) and finally place on the shelf.

The only costs not included are the current book price and the shipping and handling charges. Book prices continue to increase at an average of 10-20 percent each year. Shipping and handling charges depend upon the company and their methods.

So that one overdue book if replaced could cost $17 to $27 (not including book price and shipping, etc.). If we replaced each of those 500 overdue books and records and multiply by $17; it equals $8,500. 500 times $27 equals $13,500. That means we would have less of those amounts in our budget to spend on new materials. It also means time and labor that could have been used more productively in service to our borrowers and library users.

Besides being a waste of tax money and our budgeted funds, overdue and missing books create inconvenience to those library users who need or want them. Haven't you wanted or urgently needed a book for information or because you want to read it? How do you feel when you discover that you can't have it because it is out overdue or missing? Remember the Golden Rule: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you." It works for libraries too. Return your books and never take one without checking it out because one day YOU might urgently need or want a book.

Help us to do our job which is to supply your reading, informational, listening and viewing needs by returning library materials on time and in good condition. We want to give you the best possible library service. Please help us.

Agency says leprosy to increase

ATLANTA (AP) — The national Centers for Disease Control today predicted that leprosy will increase worldwide because the skin disease is growing resistant to the drug commonly used to treat it.

"These discouraging findings call attention to the urgent need for development of new anti-leprosy drugs and an effective anti-leprosy vaccine," the CDC said in its Morbidity and Mortality Weekly Report.

Studies throughout the 1970s have shown that between 3 percent and 40 percent of patients treated with dapsone, the leading anti-leprosy drug, developed a resistance to it, the CDC said.

Many leprosy patients who developed a resistance did not immediately notice their relapse and transmitted the resistant form of the disease to people who never had been treated for leprosy, the CDC said.

"Until the problem of drug'resistant (leprosy) is controlled, the incidence of leprosy can be expected to increase worldwide, and the disease will be more difficult to treat," the federal health agency said.

Dr. Charles Shepard, who heads the CDC's leprosy laboratory, estimated the incidence of leprosy at about 11 million cases worldwide, with new cases reported at a rate of several hundred thousand per year.

Leprosy is a communicable disease of the skin and peripheral nerves characterized by disfiguring skin sores, a weakening of muscles, occasional paralysis and a loss of sensation in the areas where the sores erupt.

The disease occurs primarily in tropical climates, with 60 percent of the cases reported in South Asia, Shepard said. The researcher said that immigrants, including Southeast Asians, played a role in the increasing number of U.S. cases.

In 1960, only 60 existed in the country. In 1981, about 240 cases of leprosy were reported in the United States, up from about 220 in 1980, Shepard said.

Currently, among the states with the highest numbers of leprosy cases are California, Texas, New York and Hawaii, he said.

A vaccine developed to combat the disfiguring disease has been used successfully with experimental animals, he said. Researchers plan to test the vaccine on humans this year, but it will be at least 10 years before they know whether the vaccine can safely and effectively control the disease, Shepard said.

Two drugs, rifampin and clofazimine, also have been used to treat leprosy, but both have severe, sometimes fatal side-effects and are expensive, the CDC said.

The federal agency said it is now necessary to use a combination of the anti-leprosy drugs to treat leprosy patients.

Radical arrested

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The one-time leader of a black radical group in Miami has been arrested on outstanding Florida warrants after entering the United States from Mexico.

Al Featherston, former head of the Black Afro Militant Movement in Miami, is being held without bond today in the Cameron County Jail on charges of assaulting a police officer, use of a firearm during commission of a felony and unlawful possession of a firearm by a felon, said Chief Andy Vega of the Brownsville Police Department.

Vega said Featherston was stopped Thursday afternoon by U.S. Customs agents at the Gateway International Bridge spanning the Rio Grande to Matamoros, Mexico.

The chief said federal agents stopped the man, who identified himself as Alfred D. Featherston, after running a routine check of his vehicle's Florida license plates. The check showed bail jumping warrants against Featherston from Dade County, Fla., he said.

He was alone in the car, Vega said.

Vega said Featherston will be taken before a county court-at-law judge for extradition. An extradition hearing has not yet been set.

The Tot Sullivan Scrapbook

THE BEGINNING — Pyrle Bradshaw, left, and Tot Sullivan are photographed with their studio camera in 1925. Mrs. Sullivan says she and her sister Lena Maye (who sold her part of the business to Pyrle) purchased the studio for $1,200. Most of their early equipment was homemade, she said.

By TINA MILLER
Lifestyle Editor

Tot Sullivan has pictures on her walls, pictures on tables, pictures in albums and pictures in boxes. Pictures of sandstorms, beauty queens, artists and children. Pictures of grandparents, mayors, congressmen and buildings.

The countless pictures are the result of Mrs. Sullivan's 53 years as co-owner of Bradshaw Photography studio.

"Oh, we've got pictures, I'm telling you. Last night (Monday) and night before too, I got involved in some pictures and, listen, I could stay up all night and just have the best time."

The former Tot Bradshaw came to Big Spring from Marlin (in East Texas) with her family in 1907. Her parents, two brothers and six sisters lived in Big Spring for five years. "Most all the population (of Big Spring) was on the north side," she said, "because it was a railroad town. And there was a lot of lovely two-story homes over there and all that kind of thing, you know."

The Bradshaws moved to Coahoma in 1912, where her father was a carpenter. The elder Bradshaw was among those who helped build the Texas and Pacific Railroad Station. The family then moved to Midland in 1917.

Mrs. Sullivan remembers enjoying Big Spring's rolling terrain and thought Midland was "terrible — not a hill or anything anywhere, just level."

Women photographers were not a common sight in the early 1900's. "It was kind of unusual for them (women) to be anything except secretaries or something like that," Mrs. Sullivan said. "But this man (who owned a studio) tried some girls in Midland and wanted them to work were unreliable. They just wouldn't work and weren't interested."

Mrs. Sullivan went with her sister, Lena Maye, to the owner of the studio to have their pictures made. "We didn't have money floating around very much in our family with all the kids. And (when) dad saw those pictures he said, "Well, I guess if y'all had $10 you'd spend it all for pictures.' And we'd spent $12, but we didn't let him know it."

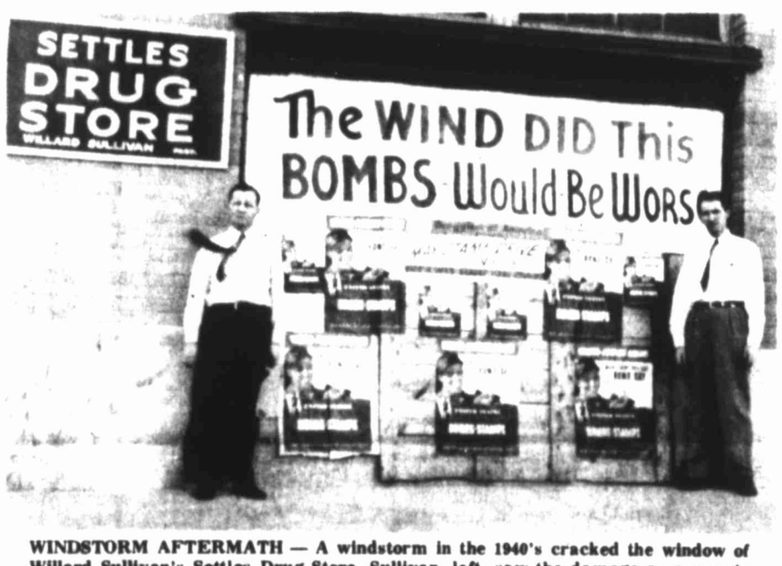

The owner of the Midland studio asked the girls if one of them wanted to work. Lena Maye accepted the jobs and started working. The next year, another of the Bradshaw sisters, Pyrle, became an apprentice photographer and worked in several studios.

The owner of the studio also owned a Big Spring

See Scrapbook p. C-2

FIFTY YEARS LATER — The two sisters are pictured in 1975, just as the picture in 1925. The location of the studio changed three times during its 53 year history and Mrs. Sullivan antiqued the studio camera. She notes that the fashions worn in both photographs are quite similar despite the half-century time span.

WINDSTORM AFTERMATH — A windstorm in the 1940's cracked the window of Willard Sullivan's Settles Drug Store. Sullivan, left, saw the damage as a way to promote defense stamps. The sign on the boarded up window reads, "Wind did this. Bombs would be worse." Standing right is Pete Kling.

YOUNG STARLETS — Bradshaw studio photographed Eddie Ray Lees, left, and Mary Nell Edwards in conjunction with a 1934 dance recital. Both youngsters eventually married, and Miss Lees became Mrs. Clark, while Miss Edwards became the wife of Toots Mansfield.

WINNING BABY — This youngster, identified only as "Riggan Baby," was winner in the Sears-Roebuck National Baby Contest during the 1930's.

BEAUTY QUEEN — Zilah Mae Ford was named Miss West Texas during the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Convention in Big Spring in 1933.

LOOKING BACK — Today, Tot Sullivan looks back on her 53 years in studio photography with pleasure. Her home is filled with an almost countless number of pictures in every room. Though she is retired from the business world, Mrs. Sullivan remains active in four local clubs and organizations.

TRICK PHOTOGRAPHY — Many photographers use trick photography to produce a startling effect. Here, K.N. Baxley has been given the body of a baby. The picture was taken in 1940.

TRIPLETS — Sept. 30, 1936 was a busy day for Mr. and Mrs. Summer Shaw, Knott. Mrs. Shaw delivered three sons, Franklin, Delano and Rosevelt, in her home that day. Assisting Mrs. Shaw in the delivery were Dr. George S. True, left, and a nurse identified only as Mrs. Bell.

studio, known as Miller Photography. He was pleased with the work done by the sisters and one day said to Tot, "Now, lady, you know you have to be a photographer." She agreed and in June, 1921, moved to Big Spring to work "on the job training" in the Miller studio, where Lena Maye was manager.

How old was she at that time? "That would just be too hard to say out loud. Oh, Lordy, I feel like the guy that had a big fish mounted ... Someone came in (and saw the fish) and said, 'Whoever did that was a liar.' That's what folks say about their ages. We used to say, 'A woman's just as old as she looks, and a man's not old till he quits looking.' And we used to say too, 'The devil sends the dashing winds and blows the skirts knee high, but God is just and sends the dust to blind the wicked eye.' "

In 1922, the owner of the studio decided to sell the business, so the two sisters purchased the studio in September of that year. Also in 1922, Elmo Wasson introduced Tot to Willard Sullivan who became her husband in 1923.

When Lena Maye married and moved to San Antonio, Pyrle purchased her part of the business. Tot and Pyrle owned the studio until 1975.

The Bradshaw studio was located at three different places during its 53 year history. The first location was 219½ Main (an upstairs), then the old First National Bank Building, and finally their own building at 508½ Main.

Though Mrs. Sullivan is retired from business, she is still actively involved in the community. She is a member of Business and Professional Women's Club, Order of the Eastern Star, Social Order of the Beauceants and a charter member of Altrusa Club.

Willard Sullivan was the owner of Settles Drug Store in the Settles Hotel from 1940 till his death in 1979. The couple had no children. "I figured that I couldn't have a family and a career. And I think that a lot of mothers have made an error by not staying with their babies while they're little because that's a very formative age."

Extension Homemakers

CENTER POINT

Center Point Extension Homemakers held their Christmas party and December meeting in the home of Neva Griffith, 1619 E. 17th. Gay Birrell co-hosted the meeting and Jen Davidson presided.

Roll was called with each member giving a favorite scripture pertaining to the holiday season. Zula Rhodes of Elbow Extension Homemakers Club and Council chairman of Extension Homemakers of Howard County was special guest at the meeting.

Members enjoyed a gift exchange of bake, make and grow. A letter was read from Big Spring State Hospital expressing thanks for cakes and gift items given to patients at Christmas and for volunteer work during 1981.

Members were urged to turn in their grocery tapes at the next meeting. They will be reimbursed for purchasing gifts for door prizes. Glass items, bottles, foil and cans are being collected and recycled for the Boys Club at Cleburn and the 4-H scholarship finals.

The club's next meeting will be at Kentwood Older Adult Center Tuesday 11 a.m.-2 p.m. Plans for 1982 will be discussed. A pot-luck dinner will be served and members will work on the year book.

Causes of hospital costs

Ever wonder why your family's hospital bills are so high? Why the cost of a hospital stay — which has declined by an average of one day in the past 10 years — has doubled in the past five years?

Among the major reasons, says the Health Insurance Association of America, are:

General inflation. The cost of products, goods and services used in providing medical care has risen steeply;

More sophisticated equipment is expensive;

Americans expect good service and modern amenities — which cost money.

Dr. Donohue

Rate formulas are just guides

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: The tables say that a maximum pulse-rate for aerobic exercise is 220 beats per minute minus the persons's age, and that the optimum rate is 85 percent of that. I am 57 years old and when I finish a workout or a race my pulse is between 150 and 160. Yet, according to the formula, my optimum rate should be 163. My rate five minutes after running is below 100 and my resting rate is between 50 and 55. I run 20 kilometers and marathons. Never have trouble. Isn't it logical that if I want to improve I would have to get to my maximum? What are the likely consequences of exceeding or maintaining the optimum rate too long? — F.C.F.

You are doing fine. Your resting pulse (heart) rate is superb. You are becoming too engrossed by numbers.

1) Heart rate is not the only measure of the beneficial effects of exercise on the heart and lungs. It happens to be a convenient way to set targets within prudent limits. For we are not interested only in how fast the heart beats, but in how much blood is pumped with each beat. That is the stroke volume, and you cannot measure that outside a laboratory.

2) As to pulse rates themselves, the formula you quote is correct. But target rates can range from 60 to 85 percent of the maximums given, depending on the person's state of conditioning. Maximum rates should never become targets without physician approval. The rates you quote for yourself are within the ballpark.

3) Even if your pulse stays below the maximum for you, you can still be improving your stroke volume. The formula is merely a guide. If you were to go beyond your maximum rate, you would stress your heart too much and you would fatigue quickly. That would be the chief sign. You don't want that. Don't change a thing.

In summary: You are undoubtedly improving your stroke volume, even though your pulse rates are not getting up to your maximum in the tables. You don't appreciate that because you cannot measure it.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Explain, please, just what a "butterfly suture" is. My son said a fellow football player cut his lip and the coach decided he needed a butterfly suture. — M.T.

It's an adhesive strip applied to the wound to bridge the cut and join the edges. There is no actual stitching involved. It is frequently used as a temporary measure or for less serious cuts.

In response to reader requests, Dr. Donohue's publisher now has a complete listing of all the booklets on various medical problems. Readers wishing this list can write him care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for return mailing.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Slide show viewed

The 1953 Hyperion Club met recently in the home of Mrs. R.L. Heith, Mrs. Harry Middleton and Mrs. Repps Guitar co-hosted the meeting.

A travel program with a slide presentation was given by Edna Young of Places and Pleasures.

Members were reminded of next month's style show at the Big Spring Country Club. Members were asked to bring two guests to the show and to notify the telephone committee of the number of guests they intend to bring.

Refreshments were served following the meeting.

Dear Abby

Enjoy fruits of life together

DEAR ABBY: Remember this?

"Dear Abby: I work for a travel agency and love it. But the one aspect of my job that saddens me is seeing so many widows booking tours, hoping to meet others in the same circumstances.

"The most common remark I hear is, 'How I wish my dear departed husband could have lived to take this trip with me! He worked so hard all his life, and just when he could have relaxed and enjoyed life, he dies.'

"So, Abby, tell your readers not to put off those vacation trips too long. Take a trip, and make some memories — together."

MEMORY-MAKER IN MILWAUKEE

"DEAR MEMORY-MAKER: Thanks for a timely reminder that it's always later than we think. Women, urge your men to enjoy the fruits of their labor now! And if they resist, tell 'em it's no time for a widow to see the world alone on her husband's insurance money."

Abby, your readers might appreciate a follow-up story on the above article that appeared in our Philadelphia Bulletin several years ago. Hazel, my wife of 42 years, cut it out and showed it to me. Because it made sense to us, we took a long-dreamed-of Caribbean cruise — something we always wanted to do, but never found the time.

Abby, we had the time of our lives! And I'm glad we went, because Hazel's health began to fail last year, and after a long and painful illness, a merciful Lord took my beloved wife home to her eternal rest. I found this clipping in her Bible. Thanks for the memories, Abby!

HAZEL'S MAC

DEAR ABBY: My fiance has been working in another state for the last three months. He's 31 and stands 6-foot-1. He came home a few days ago, and when we hugged hello I noticed that he seemed to have "shrunk." He told me that he thought I had grown taller. I'm 25, and have been 5-foot-4 since the age of 14. After a lot of kidding around about it, we decided to measure each other to find out whether he had shrunk or I had grown, and we were surprised to find that I am now 5-foot-5 and he is still 6-foot-1.

Abby, I thought people stopped growing after they reached the age of 21. Is it possible that I could have grown at my age? My clothes still fit and I don't feel any taller. I am on the pill. Would that have anything to do with my growing taller? My whole family has called me "Shorty" for years, so please sign this . . .

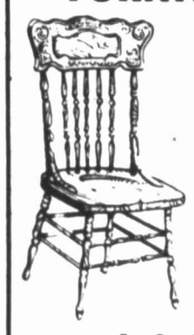

SHORTY NO MORE

DEAR SHORTY: It is indeed possible to continue growing after age 21. And the pill has nothing to do with it.

JANET RODGERS

Do you have to have a cup of coffee or a cola the first thing in the morning? Are you irritable if you miss your coffee break? Do you find a cup of coffee satisfying either during or after a meal?

If you answered "yes" to these questions, you are one of millions of Americans who consume 160 billion cups of coffee each year. You are also part of the caffeine consumping group if you drink tea, cola beverages, or eat chocolate.

Caffeine is a stimulant to the central nervous sytem. Tolerance to caffeine varies widely among individuals. One gram, the equivalent of 10 cups of coffee, can produce what is commonly known as caffeine nerves, which is insomnia, restlessness and excitement. Chronic high doses of caffeine are capable of producing mild delirium. Anxiety is a frequent complaint of those consuming more than 10-12 cups of coffee per day.

Caffine is addicting. People who want to reduce their caffine intake have a harder job than they can imagine. Withdrawal symptoms include irritability, restlessness or lethargy, nervousness and headaches.

If you want to cut down, experts suggest that we should:

- begin slowly
- reduce the number of cups of coffee or colas you drink each day
- drink half as much as you were
- switch to weak tea brewed with a tea bag
- once you are drinking only a few cups of weak tea per day, switch to a beverage that is caffeine-free.

For additional information, attend the leader training session Jan. 18 at the Reddy Room at 2 p.m., or request that it be presented for one of your club programs.

Book review

'So Short a Time' not a history

'So Short A Time,' Barbara Gelb, $2.95 in paperback, Berkley Books, 236 pages with illustrations.

Why would anyone want to read, 'So Short a Time," the life story of a couple who were avid supporters of Communism during the late 1900's, who went on trial for espionage, and whose love affair spanned three continents?

The reason, of course, is people want to read about the lives of John Reed and Louise Bryant because of the popularity of the Warren Beatty and Diane Keaton movie "Reds," which is based on the Reeds' lives. But the Barbara Gelb biography, is interesting to read not just because of its ties to the movie, but because of its portryal of the fascinating lives of John Reed and Louise Bryant.

John Reed was a journalist who became famous in 1914 for his on-the-spot coverage of the exploits of the Mexican bandit, Pancho Villa. Reed's dynamic style of placing the reader in the thick of the action, allowing him to feel the human element in every situation, won him overnight national fame.

Louise Bryant was Louise Bryant Trullinger when she met Reed in 1915. She left her husband to travel to New York and live with Reed in the growing literary and social culture of Greenwich Village. There, surrounded by the free thinkers of the time, Reed pursued his writing career while Louise pursued then-unknown playwright Eugene O'Neill.

Gelb records that Reed never knew anything of the liaison between his friend and his wife-to-be. During the crowded four years of the Reeds' marriage, the many separations the couple suffered only seemed to increase their love for each other even though Bryant and O'Neill were romantically involved until 1918.

By far the most interesting aspect of Reed's life in the Gelb biography is the intensity of his support for the budding Communist — called Bolshevik — movement in Russia. Gelb, by ignoring the technicalities of the Communist thought, presents the basic human tenets which drew the idealistic Reed into the movement.

Reed's best-known work today is "Ten Days that Shook the World," an account of the 1917 Russian Revolution.

The positive points of the Gelb book are found in the writing style of the author and the many excerpts of Reed's writing. Gelb is obviously not trying to write a history of the Reeds. She infuses too many of her opinions of how the characters might have thought and reacted for the book to be considered historically accurate.

But this very inaccuracy allows Gelb to bring life to the characters and the vents around them. While at times the text reads like a trashy novel and drops names like a Hollywood gossip column, it nevertheless is a very informative — and readable — work on two figures of American history.

Connie Fuller is pageant finalist

Connier Fuller, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Conlan, Sterling City Rt., has been selected as a finalist in the 1982 Miss West Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant.

CONNIE FULLER
...pageant finalist

The pageant will be held at the El Paso High School Auditorium, El Paso, April 16-18. The Miss West Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant is the official regional finals to the Miss Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held in June.

Each contestant will be asked to participate in the Volunteer Community Service Program of the National Teen-Ager Pageant. This program teaches teenagers to share and to participate in school and civic affairs. A mini-modeling charm course will be given during the weekend of the pageant.

The winner of the Miss West Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant will receive a scholarship, prizes and will be sponsored to compete in the Miss Texas National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held at Texas Christian University in Fort Worth.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic achievement--leadership, poise--personality and appearance.

Each contestant will have a choice of either reciting a 100-word essay on the subject "What's Right About America" or give a two minute talent presentation providing her own music and-or props.

Miss Fuller is sponsored by D.L. Dorland Oil Company. Her hobbies include tennis, reading and dancing.

Mrs. Robert Wheeler, the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Alton Wheeler, Pasadena, her aunt, and four attendants attended the luncheon.

The couple was married that evening in First Baptist Church.

TO WED — Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Halfmann, St. Lawrence, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Frances Nadine, to Steve Havlak, son of Joe F. Havlak, Olfen, and the late Yvonne Havlak. The wedding will take place in St. Lawrence Catholic Church Feb. 6. Father Russel Schultz will officiate.

The couple plans to marry Jan. 24 at the prospective bridegroom's home in Odessa. Judge Virgil Lumpee will officiate.
