In Brief

MHMR lawsuit

DALLAS (AP) — Negotiations between the parties involved in Texas' 17-year-old battle for better psychiatric hospital care could continue past a court-imposed deadline, the state's court monitor said today.

David Pharis, the state's monitor overseeing the eight-hospital system, says a seven-page report on the status of negotiations in the class-action suit will be filed in U.S. District Court in Dallas today.

Assets sought

DALLAS (AP) — Trustees liquidating the estates of Nelson Bunker Hunt and William Herbert Hunt have asked a judge for permission to sue for $100 million they think the former billionaires gave to family and friends just before filing bankruptcy.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Harold Abramson is expected to hear testimony on the motion at a hearing in the next few weeks. He presided over the 16-month Hunt bankruptcy that ended in December 1989 and was one of the nation's largest personal bankruptcies.

Polls open 7 a.m. Saturday for city, ISD board elections

Scurry County voters are reminded to cast their ballots Saturday in elections which will determine city council members and school board trustees.

Polls open at 7 a.m. at the three voting locations — Snyder City Hall for local city council and Snyder ISD board of trustees races, Hermleigh School for the Hermleigh ISD school board election and Ira Community Center for the Ira ISD school board election. Polls close at 7 p.m.

The race which has generated the most voter response has been for Place 2 on the Snyder ISD board of trustees, where incumbent Mike Jordan is being challenged by Geraldine Parker and Jan McCathern. Some 181 voters cast ballots in the Place 2 race during the absentee voting period, which ended Tuesday. Ten votes were cast in Place 3, in which incumbent Terry Martin is the only candidate.

Snyder City Council will have at least one new council member after Saturday. J.D. Smith, Jane Neeley and incumbent Mike Thornton are running for two council positions. Some 103 persons voted absentee in the two at-large races for Snyder City Council, and for mayor. Incumbent Troy Williamson is the only candidate for mayor.

Sixty-two voters cast absentee ballots in the race for District 2 on the council, in which Jack Denman is the only contestant.

Ira residents will choose two representatives for the school board there. Place 4 incumbent Bob Barbee is challenged by Gwen Cumbie and incumbent Sidney D. Wall is challenged by R. Douglass White for Place 5.

Thirty-four absentee ballots were cast in the absentee voting period.

In Hermleigh, incumbents Antonio Lambaren and Andres Perez Rodriguez are among five candidates running for three at-large school board seats. Also seeking election are Jimmy R. Hudgins, Julius Roemisch and Jesse H. Rios. Ten votes were cast during the absentee voting period.

Jimmy F. "Chip" Roemisch Jr. is running unopposed for an unexpired term on the board.

1,000 expected here for jr. high festival

Over 1,000 band students representing 25 area bands will march into Snyder Saturday for the 10th Annual Snyder Junior High Band Festival at Snyder High School.

The festival, for first and second year bands, will be a combination of concert/sightreading competition and solo and ensemble contests.

Snyder's seventh grade band is scheduled to perform in concert competition at 1:20 p.m. in Worsham Auditorium. The junior high bands are under the direction of Cathi McFaul.

Band directors from Abilene Christian University, Texas Tech and Abilene High will among those judging for the day-long event.

Sweepstakes trophies and medals will be awarded to bands and solo and ensemble participants as well as a trophy for the outstanding soloist of the day.

County welcomes needed rain

Thursday's thunderstorms were heartily welcomed by Scurry County residents, even if they did cause some anxious moments for some.

The water plant recorded .77 of an inch for the past 24 hour period ending at 7 a.m. today, bringing the city's total rainfall for 1991 to a meager 2.60 inches.

By the same date last year, Snyder had received 10.77 inches.

Despite dark, ominous clouds, Thursday's precipitation was inconsistent, varying from almost mist to short periods of driving rainfall.

At midafternoon Thursday, the National Weather Service advised local law enforcement officials that radar indicated a possible tornado five miles southwest of Hermleigh, moving to the north. However, Department of Public Safety troopers in the area saw no tornado, but did

Auction highlights May Day activities

Handmade quilts, a bronze sculpture, Southwest motif ceramics and afghans of all sizes will be among the items up for auction during Scurry County Senior Center's May Day Auction, set Saturday in the county coliseum. May Day is the center's major fund raising event each year.

Admission to the coliseum is free. Visitors are invited to listen to musical entertainment beginning at 2 p.m. while they shop in the Arts and Crafts Booth, the Country Store and the Sweet Tooth Booth.

The Arts and Crafts Booth will offer wall hangings, pillows, crocheted pot holders and doll dresses, dish towels, denim tote bags, hot casserole carriers, ceramics, aprons, bonnets and other items.

Plates of barbecue beef, potato salad, pinto beans, coleslaw and a relish plate, will be served from 4:30-6 p.m. Tickets are $5 and must be purchased in advance from senior citizens or at the Senior Center, 2603 Ave. M.

The auction will begin at 6:30 p.m. with Grady Morris of Colorado City donating his services as auctioneer. Quilts of all sizes highlight the auction. Dr. Robert Taylor of Snyder has donated an eagle head sculpture. A clay on wood sculpture by Marcy, titled Tree Spirit, will also be auctioned. There is an antique tobacco cutter and a cast iron life-size footprint, donated by the late W.C. Sheldon. Some large ceramic pieces made by workers in the center will be included in the auction.

Musical entertainment will be provided by Hoss Clayton and his band, the center's Kitchen Band, the Robert Allen band and the Benny Benitez band. The Deep Creek Cloggers will also be performing. Entertainment will continue until just prior to the auction at 6:30 p.m.

Support banners come down

Banners indicating Scurry County's support of its troops came down as quickly as they went up Thursday.

The fourth banner had just been erected at the downtown square by members of Operation Storm support group and TU Electric employees when officials of the company gave the order to take them down.

"We had to take them down because of the wind," said TU Electric spokesman Jack Smartt. "They are made like a sail and we are concerned that with the wind, the fixtures would shake off the light post."

Kay Abrahams, founder of Operation Storm, and one of the key persons involved in fund raising for the banners and the upcoming May 18 Armed Forces Day parade, said she was disappointed.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Free advice is like a kiss on the forehead — it doesn't hurt, but it does do much for you either."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors: Kim Pease, in the Rotan Advance, told about a wife of a Fisher County rancher who made an appointment for her husband to get his hair trimmed in Snyder.

Pease reported that Britches has sworn never to do that again — sitting for an hour "getting purty" in front of a room full of females.

Rollie Hyde, publisher of the Plainview Daily Herald, is a firm believer that each one of us is generally responsible for our own destiny.

To prove his point, Hyde quoted an old Chinese proverb which can be applied to most any situation.

Jerry Tidwell, publisher of the Hood County News in Granbury, says he has the inside scoop as to why Fort Worth doesn't have a professional football team.

Tidwell says Fort Worth leaders are sensitive to their neighbors in nearby Dallas.

He quoted one Fort Worth civic leader: "It wouldn't be right. Don't you see, if we got a professional football team in Fort Worth, the next thing you know, Dallas will want one, too."

O.G. Nieman, in the Hereford Brand, was reminded of a great quote from a successful professional football coach, the late George Allen.

State, fed officials have run out of funds to fight bees

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Officials fear that Africanized honey bees will get a free ride into the United States, now that state and federal agencies have run out of money to slow the invasion.

Thomas, a member of the Texas Africanized Honey Bee Advisory Committee, said Thursday. "It's exceedingly frustrating."

Since the so-called killer bees were first spotted in Texas last October, officials had been surveying a two-mile radius of each trapping to make sure domestic hives were not Africanized and to destroy any wild swarms.

But funding for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's bee surveying program expired last weekend. Texas A&M University announced Thursday that without emergency money from the state it cannot afford to survey areas where Africanized swarms are found.

Thomas, an entomologist with A&M's Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said the lack of funding will hasten the Africanized bee's permanent establishment in the United States.

Fifteen AHB swarms have been found along the Rio Grande from Brownsville to Laredo since last October, including 14 swarms found in the past three weeks.

Officials have stopped looking for more swarms, "because there is no money" to do so, said Dave Mayes, a spokesman for Texas A&M.

The Texas Apiary Inspection Service has only two inspectors to cover the entire state.

Gov. Ann Richards asked the Legislature in March for emergency funding for the Texas Africanized Honey Bee Management Plan. The House recommended $197,000 to last through August, but the Senate still had not acted on the measure Thursday.

The plan includes the two-mile quarantine zones, traps to monitor the bees' movements and enforcement of the larger quarantine placed on nine South Texas counties. No bees may be moved from the nine-county quarantine zone.

Ten other counties placed under quarantine last week with the discovery of an Africanized swarm in Laredo have been removed from the quarantine. Mayes said because no bees were found in the Laredo area, the quarantine has been lifted from Dimmit, Duval, Frio, Jim Wells, Kleberg, LaSalle, Live Oak, Maverick, McMullen and Zavala counties.

But the quarantine remains in effect for Webb, Brooks, Cameron, Hidalgo, Jim Hogg, Kenedy, Starr, Willacy and Zapata counties.

Thomas for months has expressed frustration with the lack of state funding to slow the bees' invasion into the United States.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My doctor has prescribed Allopurinol for my gout. I'm reluctant to take the medication because of the side effects outlined in the information sheet. Is there a safer drug to use?

DEAR READER: To begin with, gout not only affects the joints (causing acute, painful arthritis), it also causes kidney damage. Therefore, if your doctor recommends treatment for your gout, you should heed his or her advice. The question, then, is which drug would be appropriate.

Hyperuricemia (elevated blood uric acid), the cause of gout, should be treated if there is arthritis, a history of kidney disorder (such as uric acid stones) or a blood level exceeding 12 milligrams per deciliter (regardless of symptoms).

Ordinarily, either of two drugs is used for this purpose. Probenecid (Benemid) increases the excretion of uric acid. It is given two or three times a day and is quite safe, causing stomach irritation and rash in only a small number of patients. Probenecid interferes with the metabolism of many other drugs, such as penicillin, analgesics, Coumadin (an anti-coagulant) and some tranquilizers. Therefore, it must be used cautiously in patients who are medicated for other reasons.

In contrast, allopurinol (Zyloprim) actually blocks the formation of uric acid. It is the preferred treatment for hyperuricemia and is given once a day, in increasing doses, until the blood uric acid level falls to normal. Although side effects are uncommon, they can be severe (bone marrow depression, liver failure and kidney malfunction). Other complications include rash, fever, painful joints, angina, nausea, nerve damage, malaise and clotting disorders; most of these side effects are reversible if the drug is stopped.

While your concerns about allopurinol have a sound basis, I urge you to share them with your physician. The risk of NOT taking prescribed medicine for your gout may exceed the risks of taking it. In your case, probenecid may be a suitable alternative. Your doctor can advise you.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Gout." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Tourists photos help the police

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Police credit a busload of camera-toting Japanese tourists with helping them solve an armored car robbery.

Members of the tour group had just arrived in the parking lot of a Hypermart store when two men took $16,900 from an armored car Wednesday morning.

Police said the 23 touring businessmen were snapping photos in the parking lot when they saw a man with a gun running to a car. Four of the tourists happened to be taking pictures of the area near where the robbery occurred, although none of the men photographed the actual robbery.

None of the visitors knew that a robbery had just occurred, they told police. But they said they had a feeling something was wrong, so they just kept taking pictures.

A language barrier prevented police from getting details from the tourists, but their film spoke for them, according to police spokesman Dee Anderson.

One photo showed the license plate of the car, which enabled investigators to get registration information that led them to the suspects. Two teen-agers were in custody Thursday, Anderson said.

"It's like something out of 'Columbo,'" Anderson said. "This kind of stuff only happens in movies."

In 1958, Vice President Richard M. Nixon was shoved, stoned, booed and spat upon by anti-American protesters in Lima, Peru.

Dallas cardiologist awaits launch date

DALLAS (AP) — A Parkland Hospital cardiologist scheduled to fly aboard the space shuttle Columbia later this month isn't holding his breath.

"As we say, the schedule is cast in Jell-O," said Dr. Drew Gaffney. "I've had more launch dates than birthdays."

Disbelief has helped Dr. Gaff-

Not that he's complaining.

"You almost can't complain about anything because there are a million people who want your job," Dr. Gaffney said Thursday at a news conference.

Miers wins

DALLAS (AP) — City council member Harriet Miers has been chosen president-elect of the State Bar of Texas.

Ms. Miers got about 55 percent of the vote in the mail balloting held last month, the State Bar announced Thursday. The loser was William Wilde of Houston.

District judge rules in favor of chile pickers in lawsuit

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Chile pickers were awarded more than $35,000 in damages in a lawsuit they filed against a farm labor contractor, but they may have to go through another court battle to collect.

U.S. District Court Judge Lucius Bunton awarded 82 farm workers $35,406.30 in the class action suit they filed against John W. Gasper, who hired them to pick chile from fields owned by Deming, N.M., farmer Darrell McCauley.

Bunton found Gasper failed to keep adequate payroll records, violated minimum wage laws, and didn't follow federal rules that require posting information on employment, wages and rights.

"This is, indeed, a very sad situation," Bunton said in his decision. "The plaintiffs' misery and their situation in life has been noted by the court, and this lawsuit is a sad commentary on the use of resources in the Southwest."

But Gasper has filed for Chapter 13 bankruptcy protection from creditors.

"He's claiming bankruptcy. We don't think he is (bankrupt). We think he's hiding his assets," said farm workers' attorney Mark Schneider, who added he will contest the filing. "We're not going to rest until we get every penny from this judgement."

Donald Leslie, Gasper's bankruptcy attorney, did not return a telephone message Thursday.

The class action lawsuit was originally filed in 1986 on behalf of 800 workers, but the class was later narrowed to 82. The lawsuit, heard in a two-day March trial, alleged Gasper violated the Fair Labor Standards Act and the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Workers Protection Act.

Schneider, managing attorney for Texas Rural Legal Aid Inc., said Bunton's ruling is probably the first to award farm workers for time they spent waiting for buses that carry them to the fields and for time they spent traveling to the fields.

Research group details the use of herbicides

WASHINGTON (AP) — Individuals and groups concerned about use of herbicides on crops can find how their areas stack up in a new compilation of the type and quantity of chemicals by an environmental research organization.

The information would be particularly useful for any agency or citizens' group that is concerned about the effects of herbicides on groundwater, said Leonard P. Gianessi, a researcher for Resources for the Future, which compiled the data.

"It also will allay certain kinds of concerns," said Gianessi, noting that some pesticides end up in the news because of the environmental damage they cause when used in excess.

If someone is worried about his own community, he can turn to this survey and see if the particular chemical is in use where he lives and whether the quantity could lead to future problems.

The study was financed jointly by Resources for the Future, the federal government and chemical companies.

It estimates use of 96 active ingredients on 84 crops in the 48 contiguous states.

Audit results are given to grand jury

AUSTIN (AP) — An attorney for the former executive director of the Texas Department of Commerce said he believes Bill Taylor can explain any alleged wrongdoing at the agency while it was under his control.

The agency Thursday was sharply criticized by Gov. Ann Richards and Comptroller John Sharp. They revealed results of a partial audit of the agency by the comptroller's office, which they said turned up waste, possible conflicts of interest and apparent misapplication of funds.

They blamed much of the problem on Taylor, who resigned from the four-year-old agency in February after 30 months at its helm. Several other top agency officials also stepped down.

"I think to draw an implication of dishonesty or immorality or anything like that is unfair. I think everything that he (Taylor) did there was done in the interest of promoting tourism in Texas, and not for his own self-interest or benefit," said Charles Burton, an Austin lawyer hired by Taylor.

"I'm very confident that Bill Taylor can offer a reasonable explanation for any of the apparent improprieties, and hopefully he will not have bent any rules or gone beyond what is the accepted way of doing things," Burton said.

What would you have done as South opposite the one-diamond opening? "Pass" is the textbook choice, but the two Souths from a team game hoped their partners would rebid in no-trump, allowing them to show their hearts.

North's bidding shows about 15 or 16 points and 3-1-5-4 distribution. With fewer points, he would raise immediately to two spades.

Both Wests led the heart two, so the Easts knew that declarer had five hearts. That meant South must have 5-5-2-1 or 5-5-3-0 distribution. Things were looking grim.

The first East won the initial trick with the heart king and switched to the spade king. With at least 10 points marked in the East hand (the A-K of hearts and the spade king), declarer decided to play West for the A-Q of diamonds. He won trick two with dummy's spade ace, cashed the club ace, ruffed a club in hand and led a diamond to the jack. West ducking. Another club ruff and a second diamond left West with no answer. He won with the ace, cashed the Q-J of spades and led a heart to his partner's ace, but that was only five tricks for the defenders.

The second East won the first trick with a deceptive heart ace and returned the spade king. Now declarer decided not to play for diamond miracles. He won the spade in dummy, cashed the A-K of clubs, discarding a diamond, ruffed a club and led the heart queen. He was surprised when West played low, but what could he do? He ran the queen, but East produced the king and led a second trump. West cashed the Q-J of spades, the heart jack and the diamond ace for one down and a swing of four IMPs.

Alaska House rejects Exxon proposal

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The Alaska House rejected a deal that would let Irving-based Exxon Corp. pay $900 million over 11 years to settle the nation's worst oil spill, proposing instead that the company pay $1.2 billion up front.

Gov. Walter J. Hickel isn't bound by the vote, but he has said he would terminate the settlement if the Legislature didn't approve it.

The action late Thursday came one week after a federal judge tossed out the settlement's criminal plea bargain. He said its $100 million fine for Exxon was inadequate punishment for the Exxon Valdez spill.

After more than five hours of debate, the House voted 27-13 to reject the pact agreed to by Exxon, the federal government and other state officials. All 23 Democrats and four of 17 Republicans voted to kill the settlement.

The Senate is to take up the settlement at a future date. But the House appeared unlikely to reverse itself even if the Senate votes in favor.

The House proposed that Exxon pay $700 million within one year — rather than $900 million over 11 years — plus a $500 million criminal fine.

"This spill was waiting to happen," said Rep. Gene Kubina, a Democrat who represents the spill-affected town of Valdez. "He should be ashamed of himself. He should be replaced and sent to jail."

Lawmakers also complained the settlement would give too much authority to the federal government and wouldn't protect the fishermen who depend on the region's natural resources.

Many objected that Exxon and government studies of the spill's effects have been kept secret, and said the agreement could violate the state constitution by dedicating future revenues.

The parties now may try to renegotiate the settlement or go to trial.

Rep. Max Gruenberg, an Anchorage Democrat, said he was confident Exxon would renegotiate. The company does not want to face an Alaska jury and a potentially huge judgment, he said.

Under the criminal portion of the settlement, Exxon pleaded guilty to four misdemeanor pollution charges and several felonies were dismissed. The record $100 million environmental fine would have been split between the state and federal governments.

U.S. District Judge H. Russel Holland in Anchorage threw out the criminal fine April 24, saying it did not provide enough deterrence. It suggested that "spills are a cost of business that can be absorbed," he said.

Koch is hired

NEW YORK (AP) — The irrepressible Ed Koch may be out of City Hall and off the air at CBS, but he's found another way to get into New Yorkers' living rooms as a regular commentator for Fox television affiliate WNYW.

The former mayor left his job as a commentator on WBS-TV's weekly "Sunday Edition" news show in February. He said the station wanted him to tone down his combative style.

But WNYW apparently likes Koch as is. The station called him "bright, brash, controversial, feisty and fun" in announcing Thursday he was coming aboard.

He'll appear once a week on "Good Day New York" and the "The 10 O'Clock News."

Koch, who was mayor for 12 years, was beaten by David Dinkins in the Democratic primary in 1989. Dinkins went on

Utah eliminates Suns, 101-93

by The Associated Press
The Utah Jazz got back at the Phoenix Suns and got back into the second round of the NBA playoffs.

First-round losers the last two years, the Jazz moved into the next Western Conference round with a clinching 101-93 victory over the Suns on Thursday night.

That gave the Jazz a 3-1 victory in the best-of-5 series and vindication for last year's knockout by the Suns.

"Our guys wanted this really bad," Utah coach Jerry Sloan said. "Our guys have taken a lot of heat in recent years for not competing well enough to get to the next level. (But) we hung in there and got the job done."

In other playoff action, Atlanta beat Detroit 123-111 to tie their Eastern Conference series at 2-2 and Seattle beat Portland 101-89 to tie their Western Conference series at 2-2.

Two games were on tap tonight — Boston at Indiana in the East and San Antonio at Golden State in the West. Boston and Golden State lead 2-1.

Karl Malone scored 11 of his 38 points in the fourth quarter as Utah pulled away from Phoenix.

Jeff Malone had 19 points and John Stockton added 14 points and 13 assists for the Jazz. Jeff Hornacek led the Suns with 30 points while Tom Chambers had 22 and Kevin Johnson 17.

An 8-0 run, keyed by a pair of 20-footers by Jeff Malone, gave the Jazz a 99-85 lead with 3:02 left to play.

Hornacek's jumper and a layup closed the gap to 99-89 at 1:14, but the Suns could only get two points closer — on Cedric Ceballos' dunk with one second on the clock.

"(In the second half) they really shut us down and made us play their game," Hornacek said. "We weren't able to get any easy baskets and that hurt us."

MacLeod to take job at Notre Dame

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — John MacLeod brings an Indiana pedigree back to a state that never apologizes for its basketball hysteria.

MacLeod, a native of New Albany, holds a master's degree from Indiana State and coached high school basketball in Indiana during the 1960s.

He learned early to thrive on pressure.

"There's pressure everywhere," he said Thursday in New York after tendering his resignation as coach of the New York Knicks. "There's pressure here, at Notre Dame and Chicago. But the biggest pressure is what I put on myself. I prefer it that way."

MacLeod said he will sign a five-year deal to head the Notre Dame program. The Irish made no formal announcement, but planned a Saturday news conference to introduce MacLeod.

"It's no secret. He's going to be our coach," said sports information director John Heisler.

MacLeod replaces Digger Phelps, who resigned on April 15 after 20 seasons with the Fighting Irish.

Cowboys sign Miami OL Sullivan

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys will add offensive lineman Mike Sullivan to the roster after all.

Sullivan, a sixth round draft choice from the University of Miami, failed a Cowboys physical April 26 because of back problems.

However, a review by a back specialist and additional evaluation by team medical staff led to Sullivan's being offered a contract, team officials said Thursday.

"We're really happy that Mike will have an opportunity to be with the Cowboys," said head coach Jimmy Johnson. "He's a talented player who has a lot of intangibles that we are looking for."

Fly So Free to take rail at Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Fly So Free is the early Kentucky Derby favorite and last year's 2-year-old champion, but his bad luck doesn't end there.

On Thursday, Fly So Free, the 5-2 early choice, drew the No. 1 post position in a field of 16 for Saturday's Derby.

Not since 1979 has a favorite or 2-year-old champion won the Derby. That was Spectacular Bid's year, and he was both the favorite and a 2-year-old champion.

"Maybe they shouldn't have been the favorites," trainer Scotty Schulhofer offered, and then he was slapped with yet another jinx.

His horse drew the rail, and only one horse, Ferdinand in 1986, has won from the far inside in the past 28 years.

The 117th Derby, at 1 1/4 miles, will be worth $905,800 if all 16 start, with the winner earning $655,800. Both would be Derby records.

The field, from the rail out, is Fly So Free, Alydavid, Wilder Than Ever, Sea Cadet, Strike the Gold, Hansel, Forty Something, Green Alligator, Lost Mountain, Mane Minister, Paulrus, Corporate Report, Another Review, Happy Jazz Band, Best Pal and Quintana. All will carry 126 pounds.

Of the pitchers who won 300 games or more, Lefty Grove had the highest won-lost percentage, .680.

Ryan's hometown celebrates

ALVIN, Texas (AP) — Who's the best baseball player in history? Hank Aaron? Willie Mays? Babe Ruth? Nope.

When you're in Alvin, the best ever to play the game is Nolan Ryan. Don't even try to argue the point.

Residents in Ryan's hometown were less than surprised by the 44-year-old's latest wonder, a record-setting seventh no-hitter. The Texas Rangers ace struck out 16 Toronto Blue Jays in the 3-0 victory Thursday in Arlington.

A sign in front of a downtown gas station summed up Alvin's attitude about Ryan: "Ho Hum. Another no-hitter — 7."

"He's just one of the guys," said Alvin High baseball coach Joe Kalmus. "It's great to see what he has accomplished, but when he gets back here, you won't see him beating his chest or talking about himself."

"He's the best pitcher to ever play the game. But sometimes, around here, you have to remind yourself of that, because most of the time he's just Nolan Ryan."

In Alvin, Ryan never really amazes. He only continues to make the town of about 16,000 residents proud.

"There's been a lot of media

Watson leads Byron Nelson

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Nolan Ryan's no-hit heroics generated some me-too activity from his fellow over-40 athletes on the PGA Tour.

"I was yelling and screaming and waking up the whole house. It was great," said Lanny Wadkins, who saw the last two innings of Ryan's epic on television at his north Dallas home.

"I'm thinking, 'Hey, maybe this is going to be a good week for the over-40 guys,'" Wadkins said.

So Wadkins, Tom Watson and Ray Floyd, all on the shady side of 40, followed Ryan's Wednesday night no-hitter with some exploits that put them among the first-round leaders Thursday in the Byron Nelson Classic.

"It was inspirational," said Watson, a dedicated baseball fan who, like Wadkins, saw the last two innings of Ryan's masterpiece on television.

"That's what sports is all about. It just shows that in sports anything is possible."

"I drew inspiration from it," Watson said after he'd performed some unlikely activities of his own in a 5-under-par 65 that staked him to the first-round lead.

Navy to station 25 ships at homeport

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy plans to station a fleet of mine-hunters at Naval Station Ingleside, Sen. Phil Gramm announced today. The decision will bring up to 2,500 active duty military personnel to the Corpus Christi area and ends speculation about the fate of the nearly completed homeport.

Gramm said 14 mine counter-measure ships, a coastal mine hunter, seven reserve mine hunters and three reserve training frigates would be located at the homeport on the Texas Gulf Coast.

"We can estimate that the yearly economic impact of bringing these ships and crews to Texas will be $125 million," said Gramm, R-Texas. "This virtually guarantees the viability of our homeport and gives us a base on which we can build for the future."

The fate of the homeport has been up in the air for months. One of the homeport's two principal vessels, the aircraft carrier USS Lexington, is being decommissioned and Defense Secretary Dick Cheney wants to mothball the second, the battleship USS Wisconsin, later this year.

The Navy has already spent $120 million to build the homeport, but another $22 million in work is needed to finish the Gulf Coast facility. State and local governments have also poured millions of dollars into the naval station in anticipation of the 4,700 sailors and the battle group that had been expected to arrive at Ingleside.

Gramm said today's decision would bring 2,250 to 2,500 active duty military personnel to the homeport.

"The homeport is alive and well," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas. "The extra 25 ships will bring an extra 2,250 military personnel to the Corpus Christi area. While this is only half the number promised originally for the homeport, it still amounts to a significant economic boost to the region."

Gramm said most of the vessels the Navy plans to station at the homeport are primarily units of the Naval Mine Warfare Command headquartered in Charleston, S.C.

The coastal mine hunters, 188 feet long with a crew of 45, are all under construction now in Savannah, Ga., and Gulfport, Miss., Gramm said. The ocean-going mine counter-measure ships are 224 feet long and carry a crew of 73. They are being constructed in Sturgeon Bay, Wis.

"Basing minesweeping operations and training the Navy's reservists at our brand-new, $150 million homeport makes sense for the Navy and for Texas, both of which have invested heavily in the creation of this facility," Gramm said.

anyone placed on us, including TU Electric. We had already been given permission to place the banners along the square," she said.

"We had sat down at TU Electric and even drew pictures of the banners. They do catch some wind, but anything is going to catch a certain amount of wind. I remember the old-time, heavy canvas rodeo banners. These certainly aren't anything like that," she said.

Abrahams said she and Operation Storm members had also met requirements and received permission from the Texas Department of Public Safety and the City of Snyder before ordering the banners, which are to show support for Scurry County servicemen and women. The banners were to have remained up through July 4.

"We met the requirements that they had to be at least 20 feet off the ground, that they be no longer than 15 feet, that they be anchored with four ropes and that they have air holes to allow the wind to pass through," she said. "We had special slits put in the center section. I'll admit that on a day like today (Thursday), they do look like sails, but that's going to happen on windy days."

TU Electric officials said the possibility of a fixture falling out and hitting someone was a liability the company could not afford to take.

"I can understand their position as far as liability but I feel like they are blowing that out of proportion," Abrahams said. "Those streetlights shake anyway in the heavy winds we have here."

Smartt said he has talked with City Manager John Gayle and some arrangement to hang the banners will try to be worked out. "We're working with the city trying to make something happen," said Smartt. "We certainly support the parade and the efforts of Operation Storm."

Abrahams said she hopes some other poles can be erected on the edge of the courthouse square to accommodate the banners.

"It seems like the only alternative. I think the poles would get a lot of use. We have a lot of events in Snyder, including rodeos, that it would be good to use to welcome visitors to the city."

Weather sparks house fire calls

Thunderstorms which produced hail are being blamed for three fire calls answered by firefighters Thursday afternoon.

Steam rising from the roofs of local residences sparked calls of house fires to Snyder Fire Department following Thursday afternoon's thunderstorms which produced up to golf ball size hail in some areas of the city.

The steam was a result of hail stones hitting the warm roofs of houses creating the illusion of smoke, said fire officials.

Calls were answered at 4:02 p.m. at 2312 30th St., the residence of Charity Wilson; 4:08 p.m. at 1507 20th St., the residence of Jerry Wayne Smith; and 4:16 p.m. at 127 20th Pl., the residence of John Loyola.

Firefighters also responded to a vehicle fire at 3:44 p.m. in the parking lot of Everybody's Thriftway, 1905 35th St. The fire was already out on the arrival of emergency personnel.

Discovery's crew snatches Star Wars research satellite

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Discovery astronauts snatched an orbiting "Star Wars" research satellite and packed it back in the shuttle's cargo bay after it studied exhaust plumes and rocket fuel sprayed into space.

The 4,200-pound satellite spent 38 hours in space collecting data on a series of tests designed to help scientists build a defense system that could track and destroy incoming enemy missiles.

Discovery closed in on the $94 million satellite Thursday after the elaborate experiments were completed, and the crew snared it with the shuttle's robot arm.

Another propellant test was scheduled today with the satellite perched atop the 50-foot mechanical arm, which would be extended into space again. The craft also was to observe the Earth and the shuttle.

The experiment was scheduled for this morning, but was delayed until later while controllers tracked the paths of the two spent canisters already in orbit. NASA wanted to make sure the canisters would not come too close to the shuttle. A new test time had not been set.

Scientists were pleased with Thursday's results.

"They were hoping for a great database, but they're getting more data than they ever expected," said Maj. Carolyn Chanave, a spokeswoman for the Strategic Defense Initiative, better known as Star Wars.

"They're very impressed." In two rocket propellant observations completed Thursday, the shuttle, satellite and fuel canisters whirled around the world in formation. While the canister spewed fuel, the satellite captured the events with infrared sensors and television cameras.

Earlier, the satellite watched the orbiter's exhaust plumes as the astronauts guided Discovery through a series of fancy flip-flops never performed before by a shuttle.

Two cartwheels were executed Thursday when the two craft were just 1½ miles apart, while tests were conducted Wednesday at a distance of 6.2 miles. The first flip was delayed nine hours, because the satellite got stuck in the wrong position.

Pentagon scientists need infrared readings of exhaust plumes and gases and chemicals in space to develop sensors that could track and detect missiles. The types of gases used in the tests are potential camouflage for warheads.

Sometimes a Minister's Reward Should Be Given Here on Earth

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a minister who has performed many weddings over the years. Some couples have been generous. Others have not. Other than the few times he has received absolutely no compensation, the following incident is the worst slap in the face I can remember:

The couple were in their 40s and it was a second marriage for both of them. Both were well-paid professionals. My husband met with them for counseling and he helped them plan their wedding. The bride did not like the traditional marital vows, so she asked my husband to rewrite them. He did, and she seemed very pleased.

The wedding was beautiful. They paid the organist, vocalist, florist and caterer. Immediately following the ceremony, they presented my husband with a check for $10 — made out to the church! (At least my husband has never received a stuffed owl as one of his colleagues did!)

Even after many disappointments, my husband still refuses to "set a price" for performing a marriage ceremony.

Your opinion, please.

PREACHER'S WIFE
IN GEORGIA

DEAR WIFE: I think a clergyman, on being asked to officiate at any kind of ceremony, should state his or her fee. This would eliminate the awkwardness of asking, "How much do you charge?" Some well-paid ministers of prosperous churches do not accept fees for services — but most are overworked and underpaid and would welcome a generous check.

DEAR ABBY: Forty years ago, when I married my wife, she had a 22-inch waist. Now it's about 39 inches. She's 30 pounds overweight, smokes like a diesel truck and wears sloppy, ugly sweats. I have absolutely no desire to make love to her. I roam the malls, lusting after the slender maidens in tight jeans. I haven't fallen yet, but fear it's only a matter of time and opportunity.

What's a slim, attractive, successful, moral, virile, sensuous grandpa to do?

A LUSTING GUY IN INDY

DEAR LUSTING: Obviously, your wife has let herself go, but if you were a quality man and truly loved her, you would have made every effort to try to rehabilitate her instead of using her sloppiness and bad habits as excuses for lusting after more attractive women.

You may be a slim, attractive, successful, virile and sensuous grandfather — but no moral man "roams the mall lusting after slender maidens in tight jeans."

DEAR ABBY: Re the mother who wanted to know what to say to people who can't resist touching the baby: Your answer was appropriate. I'd like to pass on another idea from the pediatrician for a friend's baby. Buy or make lightweight drawstring mitts for baby when you take him/her out or have company. The first thing a baby does when you extend a finger is grasp it. The second thing the baby does is put a finger into his/her mouth. More germs are passed from hand to hand than from any other form of transmission.

Since hearing this advice, I pass it on to every new mother I know, and I hope you will want to pass it along to your readers.

TV's prime time soap limps into the sunset

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The series that made television history will be history as of tonight.

After 13 seasons, "Dallas" limps into the sunset on CBS with a two-hour finale and a fraction of the popularity that transformed a Texas soap opera into the world's most talked about television show.

In its boom days, the saga of lust and treachery amid oil rigs and sprawling cattle ranches was America's No. 1 prime-time show.

Viewers in 85 countries considered "Dallas" a more valued American export than blue jeans. In 1980, Turkey recessed Parliament.

Safety first if Pantex expansion is approved

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen says thousands of new jobs in the Panhandle created by expansion of the Pantex nuclear weapons assembly plant would be an economic coup for Texas, but not at the expense of the environment.

"If they decide to bring in these additional facilities, what you are going to see is a state-of-the-art facility with the utmost protection for the environment and safety," said Bentsen, who cautiously pledged his support for the Pantex expansion. "(Safety) is going to be a criteria that has to be there."

Pantex, the nation's only final assembly plant for nuclear bombs and missile warheads, is one of five sites under consideration to take over the plutonium-processing duties of the Department of Energy's Rocky Flats plant near Denver.

If DOE moves Rocky Flats' operations to Pantex as part of its reorganization of the nation's atomic weapons plants, the Amarillo area could gain between 2,500 and 10,000 new jobs.

Bentsen, who held a brief press conference at Pantex before being given a tour of the highly-classified plant Thursday, said he would meet with other Texas congressional members to muster support for expansion if safety can be assured.

The General Accounting Office said Monday that the plant has one of the worst occupational safety records in the Department of Energy's weapons complex.

GAO cited the plant for deficiencies in its radiation protection program and said two accidents resulting in workers being exposed to tritium and depleted uranium raise questions about the adequacy of Pantex's attention to safety and health.

"I want to get answers to the General Accounting Office's survey as to what has happened here at Pantex," Bentsen said. "I have already been talking to some of the management about some of the steps they are taking. I have been advised that 85 percent of those concerns set forth by the GAO have already been addressed."

Also Thursday, Texas Attorney General Dan Morales said he was urging the chairman of a House Armed Services subcommittee to put Pantex under the oversight of the independent Defense Nuclear Facilities Safety Board.

ment so representatives could find out who shot J.R.

Over the years ratings plummeted; cast members quit; story lines grew old and just plain preposterous — the infamous 1986 shower scene in which Bobby rose from the dead created an outcry from critics and viewers that it ranked as a new low in lame plot developments.

But all those rich Ewings down on the Southfork range left an indelible mark on TV history with all their fussin' and feudin' and lyin' and dyin' and sleeping with half the population of the Lone Star state.

Viewers around the globe were obsessed with patriarch Jock Ewing (played by Jim Davis, who died in 1981) and matriarch Miss Ellie (played by Barbara Bel Geddes except during the 1984-85 season when Donna Reed filled the role).

Each week, evil son and oil magnate J.R. (Larry Hagman) and handsome and scrupulous younger brother Bobby (Patrick Duffy) sat down to dinner with cousins, wives and siblings at Southfork.

TV audiences found it comforting that even the rich had problems, and big ones at that.

The series took cliffhanger endings to new heights, created one spinoff (the still-running "Knots Landing") and spawned nighttime imitators including "Dynasty," "Flamingo Road" and "Secrets of Midland Heights."

The "Who shot J.R.?" episode created so much speculation that the Nevada Gaming Control Board halted Las Vegas betting. It also ranked as the second-most popular show in TV history (behind the last episode of "M-A-S-H").

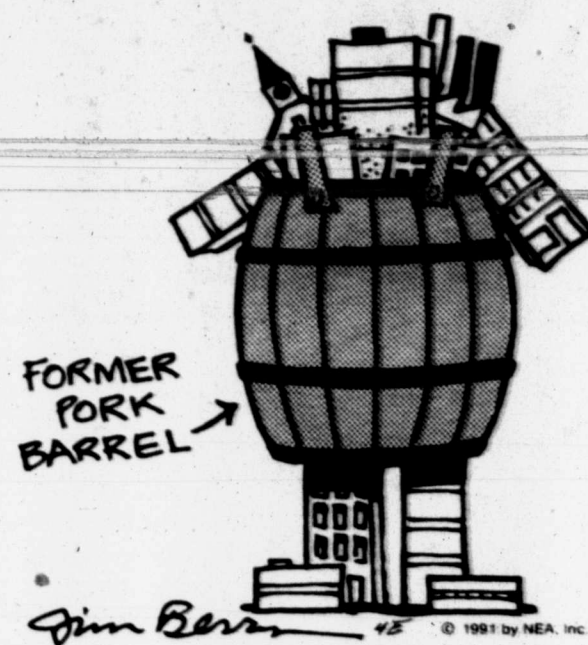

Tonight, fans will see current and former series stars head off for the great TV roundup with a fantasy episode spun from "It's a Wonderful Life."

Joel Grey plays a visiting angel who gives a despairing J.R. a view of what life would be like had he never been born.

That was not the case when Katzman returned to "Dallas" (with Duffy) in 1986 after a one-year absence. Duffy's Bobby Ewing had been run over by a maniacal driver the previous season (because Duffy emphatically said he was leaving the show and never coming back).
