Hesperian Year Reviewed By President, Mrs. Sadler

'Someone has said, 'Life is a story in volumes three, the past, the present, the yet to be,' said Mrs. J. A. Sadler, president of the Hesperian Study Club, as she reviewed the past year of study. Mrs. Sadler presented her resume at the final meeting of the club year in the home of Mrs. F. N. Thomas. Mrs. J. D. White was co-hostess for the meeting and installation of officers. The retiring president told members that the year's programs built around the theme, 'Pathways to Knowledge, had been very interesting and informative and that planned work had been carried out very well. She also said that all goals of the club had been reached, and all financial obligations met. Project for the year, Mrs. Sadler said, was the club's student loan fund. She said that donations by club members and friends had increased the fund this year. A history of the fund was compiled by Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Bennett Scott, fund custodians. She then gave a brief review of programs presented throughout the study season, an Americanism, fine arts, religion, industry, law, health, community affairs and federation. Six guest speakers and two musicians presented programs and contributed much to the club, she said, adding that a number of books were contributed to the Mitchell County Library, one a memorial to the late Ed Majors. 'Volume two is finished and laid away, we are looking forward to volume three with a great deal of interest and anticipation under the leadership of our new president, Mrs. Watson,' concluded Mrs. Sadler. Officers for 1964-65 study season were installed in a candlelighting ceremony by Mrs. V. V. Shropshire. Theme for the ceremony was that of a wheel, with a large candle forming the hub and small candles attached to it by ribbons forming the spokes. Officers installed were Mrs. J. W. Watson, president; Mrs. Sam Thompson, first vice president; Mrs. Charles C. Thom-

1921 STUDY CLUB MEETS

Mrs. Hickman Tells Of Visit To Gainesville Girls' School

A visit to the Gainesville State School for Girls was the topic of a speech by Mrs. A. O. Hickman at the recent meeting of the 1921 Study Club.

Mrs. Hickman told of the opening of the school on September 6, 1916, with an enrollment of 18 girls. Patrick Henry, former resident of Colorado City, and then a of the 33rd Texas Legislature, was instrumental in the building of the school, the speaker said.

She described the original wooden buildings, three stories high, in which girls were locked in rooms with barred windows at night. She then compared with the modern, one-story brick dormitories which house the girls today.

In the new buildings, each girl has a room of her own, with 40 girls living in each building. Each house is named for a woman of the Bible and is managed by two house mothers, Mrs. Hickman said. A central dining room divides each house into two wings with 20 rooms in each wing.

girls eat morning and evening meals in this dining room of the school, she told club members.

At the time of Mrs. Hickman's visit in November, she said, there were eight dormitories, housing about 320 girls, also a new $150,000 gymnasium-auditorium, house and apartments for the staff, hospital, academic school, work house, poultry house, barns and livestock pens. Recreation facilities on the grounds include a swimming pool, tennis courts, baseball field, basketball and volleyball courts, she said.

"There is nothing here to suggest a reform school or prison. It has the appearance of a small college. There are no high fences, barred windows or locked gates... I was amazed and impressed, not only by the physical features of the school but by the wonderful work of rehabilitation that is being done there. In fact, not once did the thought enter my mind that these were delinquent girls. The ones I talked to were alert, intelligent girls, eager to tell of their work and their plans for the future," Mrs. Hickman said in giving her impressions of the school.

She also told of the vocational courses which are offered to girls—cosmetology, typing and related subjects, photography, ceramics, sewing, cooking, commercial laundry, leather crafts, switchboard operation and receptionist instruction.

Girls are provided with religious counsel from a minister of a particular faith upon request. Protestant girls attend non-denominational services each Sunday in the chapel at the school, built by Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Wood of Wichita Falls, Mrs. Hickman said. She said that Catholic girls are assured of every opportunity to attend Mass, and confession and to see a priest whenever they wish. There is a Catholic and Protestant chaplain at the school, members were told.

Present superintendent of the school is Mrs. Maxine Burlingham, Mrs. Hickman said, adding that she came to Gainesville in March of 1949 and had almost completely revolutionized school policies and program within a year. She did away with the old forms of physical punishment or punishment through humiliation, and instituted special treatment which includes psychiatric care for seriously disturbed girls, the speaker said.

"The Gainesville school endeavors in every way possible to rehabilitate the girls into useful, capable citizens. Mrs. Burlingham says that in spite of the progress made in the last 15 years that they have not reached their goal of developing the social, physical, mental and spiritual maximum capacity of each girl committed to the school. This will be reached in part, when communities are sympathetic to and understanding toward parolees," Mrs. Hickman said in her closing remarks.

Slideshow of campus scenes, buildings, class rooms, girls, teachers and staff members were shown during the program.

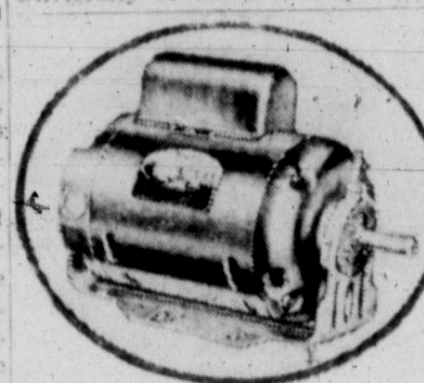

Meeting was in the home of the hostess, Mrs. Doyle Hester of Loraine. Guests were Mrs. Rush Barnett and Mrs. W. J. Chapman of Gatesville. Members attending were Meses. Pete Ainsworth, H. B. Broadbuck, Glenn Coon, J. S. Craddock, M. J. Dawson, Hester, Hickman, W. C. Hooks, Ed Jones, Lee Lavendra, P. K. Mackey, Sam L. Majors, Sr., Doris Martin, J. T. Pritchett, J. E. Quinney, W. W. CONVERSATION CORNER

DESK in the Kiker office has under its glass-top a little printed bit of paper headed "Short Sermons". First paragraph goes, like this: "It shows a fine command of language to say nothing."

How true! On the other hand, it shows an even finer command of language to say something when you speak, or have something to say on an issue... in defense of principle... or even by way of being amusing... just for the heck of it.

WHAT has long been a puzzlement is this: If everybody suddenly decided to follow all that "Be a good listener" advice, simultaneously, what would happen?

How can even a good listener listen if nobody's saying anything? People have long been advised that the way to "win friends and influence people" is just to keep quiet and listen all the time, all the time. Which is a very large order for certain temperaments.

SUPPOSE, just for fun, that everybody set out the same day to influence people by saying absolutely nothing. The thing works both ways. A good listener requires first a good talker to listen to, by cracky. Take a room full of good listeners and what have you got? Silence.

YOUNG MAIDENS, everywhere, are solemnly cautioned to listen, listen, listen, if they want some guy to hang around permanently.

What a fearful waste of talent that would be! And what a shock to the man, once captured, when she suddenly feels free to talk him into the corner or clear out of the house.

THE ART of good conversation is declining fast enough as it is. Time was, when genteel people talked to each other about books, art, music, current events and personages... not the same thing as persons, mind you.

Who was it who first said something like "The lowdown talks about people, the average person talks about events and the superior talk ideas?"

WELL, ANYHOW, that little gem brings us to the "and little, short sermon on the Kiker office desk."

It goes: "There's not much to see in a little town... but what you can hear makes up for that." Yes, sure.

Some of the finest stories ever heard
Begin and end: "Don't breathe a word!"
But how dreary this world, how silent Spring
If nobody, ever, said anything!

RARELY, if ever, speechless we did sit silent for a minute when Baylor's Coach Bridges said right out loud in public the words "10 years ago" in reference to a fellow first met on Baylor campus. How, now?

At that AA Sports banquet saw the Handsome Ben Sparkes... Jane Merrill... The Joe Emersons, the K. C. McAdams, parents of Corky... Jene Steakleys, parents of Rusty and Topper and Dan... Sat by two charming gentlemen named Dwayne Nix, son of Truman Nix, and David Matthews, son of Caddo.

Saw the Warren Costins, whose pretty daughter, Sue, was date of Terry Redwine, who did himself proud as master of ceremonies... The Jimmie Harrisons, Bill Carters, Warren Andersons, A. M. Holmans... Craig Bell and Allen Ramage.

SEEN Lately were Clem Myers and Jeff Taylor having coffee at the Villa... Pretty dark-haired Mrs. Jeff Taylor, another time, another place.

Saw Mrs. R. Y. Hammond... Temple Dickson and diminutive wife Kathy over from Sweetwater... Bill Matthews, too... also Johnnie Moore, attorney formerly of C. City.

Mary Ruth Rudd (Mrs. Laurence H.) was around, looking lovely in a summer shade of blue... Saw Irene Robertson... Leonard Simon and his wife, here from Dallas... The Vance Phenixes were here from Houston, too.

FAVORITE fan letter of the week... and furthermore of the year... came from Barbara Givins (Mrs. L. S. Jr. Bunky), who is corresponding secretary for Zetagathian Club.

Barbara's missive was done in verse, four verses in fact, and clever as it was original. And unexpected. How 'bout that?

Barbara Givins a poet—
Didn't even know it!
