Abscam Defendants

NEW YORK (AP) — With four congressmen and two other Abscam defendants fined and sentenced to jail terms, the Justice Department plans to retrieve $200,000 in bribes paid by undercover agents, published reports said.

Basing its story on unidentified federal sources, the New York Daily News reported today that the government intends to file civil suits to recover the money.

U.S. District Court George Pratt on Thursday sentenced former Reps. John Murphy, D-N.Y., Michael Myers, D-Pa., and Raymond Lederer, D-Pa., to three-year prison terms and fined them $20,000 each on convictions stemming from the Abscam investigation.

Summit Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — With President Reagan suggesting that they "sit down sometime," a summit meeting with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev is a definite possibility next year, an administration source says.

Reagan told reporters Thursday at his California ranch that he has written Brezhnev suggesting a summit, probably dealing with arms control, to reduce tensions between the two superpowers.

While Reagan gave no hint when or where the summit might be held, a well-informed government source said it would be within a year.

"My impression is that they are talking about next year, maybe a year from now," said the source, who asked not to be identified.

Voyager 2

WASHINGTON (AP) — Man's last chance in the foreseeable future to look closely at Saturn is nearing as the Voyager 2 spaceship rapidly closes in on the famous ringed planet, scientists say.

Voyager 2, heading for an Aug. 25 close encounter, will send back even better pictures and more details of the rings than were produced by the spectacular fly-by of its sister craft nine months ago.

Thursday night's performance of the AJRA National Finals Rodeo was highlighted by boys tiedown calf roping, where contestants dueled some disagreeable stock and fine opponents to keep the crowd cheering.

Arlington, Texas...

Hostage Released After Standoff

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — A 25-year-old Grand Prairie man who barricaded himself with a female hostage inside a warehouse snack room after his firing demanded that police investigate the business in return for releasing his prisoner after a 10-hour standoff Thursday.

Police pulled 25-year-old Cathy Reid of Grand Prairie through an opening in a false ceiling after they and a psychologist persuaded Michael Butler to release her during 10 hours of talks. Police Lt. Ronnie Shade, who aided the negotiations, said Butler insisted she leave the room through the ceiling for unknown reasons. He spoke to police through a door.

Mrs. Reid, who witnesses said was shaken but apparently uninjured, was taken to the Arlington police station. She is a company computer operator. Butler was in police custody today after his surrender at 11:38 p.m. Thursday.

Deputy Police Chief Marion Rettig said an argument between Mrs. Reid and Butler shortly before 7 p.m. caused officers to begin drawing their guns.

Banner Wholesalers Inc. officials said Butler demanded that the company be investigated, that he be reinstated to his job and not harassed, and that he not be prosecuted for his acts. Police say the man was not explicit about the proposed company probe.

But fellow workers said the three-month employee had become irritable and violent before police say he drew a gun inside the snack room at about 1 p.m. Thursday and vowed he would not let himself be captured alive.

Rick Swift, Banner general manager, said Butler had been fired about 30 minutes earlier because he had thrown a glass of water at another employee.

Swift said Butler "was never harassed that I know of." But he said the Army veteran had inexplicably complained of being bitten by dogs in the warehouse where he worked as a stager, preparing orders. There are no dogs in the warehouse, Swift said.

In an incident prior to Thursday, Swift said Butler had dropped a canister of yardsticks on a woman. She was uninjured, he said.

"He's always been a real quiet guy up until about a week ago," a co-worker who asked not to be identified said. "It was a complete turnaround. He started throwing boxes, started dropping boxes on women. He started kicking people, he started hearing things and having hallucinations," he said.

Police Probe Missing Elderly

DETROIT (AP) — Authorities are seeking the operator of a Florida boarding home and checking the bank accounts of five confused elderly women who disappeared from the home and turned up here.

And in Florida, a 66-year-old man who had disappeared from the same home was discovered at a house in Dade County. A woman living at the house said the boarding-home operator who was being sought had placed the man there.

The women told police they arrived in Detroit "for a vacation" Aug. 2 and had lived in a basement apartment somewhere in the city since then, said Gerald Hale, Detroit police chief of detectives.

They came to police attention after they were dropped off by at least two people at Detroit Receiving Hospital early Thursday morning. The five thought they were at an airport and asked for tickets to return to Florida, nurses said.

The elderly women were placed in a Salvation Army mission here, police said. Two of the five have been missing since last week; the rest disappeared Tuesday.

Florida authorities said suspicions were aroused several days ago when investigators spotted several unexplained withdrawals from a bank account of one of the women.

Dade County, Fla. authorities were seeking Cora Miller Galvin, the operator of the Tangelia Home in Miami.

Dade County Assistant State Attorney Thomas Petersen said he is considering whether to file false imprisonment charges in the case, although police in Detroit said the women did not report being locked up.

"The indication is they didn't leave, but there is no indication they couldn't have left if they had wanted to," Hale said.

But he added that kidnapping charges may be filed if authorities determine the women were brought to Detroit against their will.

In addition, police were checking the women's bank accounts for unusually large withdrawals.

"Fraud is what's going on," Lt. James Morrison of the Detroit police department said. "The ladies know what money was taken from them." He did not elaborate.

Mrs. Galvin's three homes in Michigan were closed by the state Department of Social Services for "substandard conditions," said James Quigley, head of the department's adult foster care licensing division.

Clements Says Special Session Will Be Needed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said today he did not believe there would be any more special legislative sessions needed before the 1983 regular session.

"That is my judgment," Clements told a news conference.

Two previous possible needs for special sessions have all but disappeared, he said.

Clements said he has conferred the past week with Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and Speaker Bill Clayton about federal plans to condense the large number of specific federal grants into a smaller number of "block" grants.

Clements said earlier a special session might be needed so legislators could decide how these block grants should be distributed.

"Now, we are reasonably satisfied that a special session will not be necessary for these block grants," he said.

Clements explained that 57 categorical grants had been formed into 9 block grants. However, these 57 grants are only a small part of about 500 categorical grants involving Texas agencies and govenment subdivisions. The rest of these categorical grants will be made as they have in the past.

"The boogie bear which we had anticipated has pretty much disappeared," he told the news conference. "The need for a special session has diminished if not disappeared."

After the end of the recent special session, Clememnts said he would immediately call another special session if the state should lose a suit filed by Midwestern University involving the state property tax. Midwestern is asking that the state be forced to collect the 10 cents per $100 valuation in the constitution instead of the .0001 percent set by a 1979 state law.

Polish Leaders Called To USSR

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's Communist Party leader and its premier have been called to the Soviet Union for a "short working visit" with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev and talks that are expected to focus on this nation's mounting unrest.

Warsaw Radio said Thursday that party leader Stanislaw Kania and Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski, a general who also serves as defense minister, will visit Brezhnev soon at his Crimean summer retreat. Their visit had been expected.

Brezhnev has been meeting with leaders of other Warsaw Pact allies, many of them critics of Poland's labor unrest, and some of them involved in military maneuvers in or around Poland.

The Soviet Union, already conducting large-scale maneuvers on its Baltic frontier near Poland, announced another round of exercises next month near the Poland coast, the official news agency Tass reported Thursday.

A Western military source said the exercises Sept. 4-12 probably will involve more than 25,000 troops.

The SDN Column

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Glen Rea of the Azle News and former staffer of the SDN tells this story in his front page column.

A school teacher was trying to impress her students with the importance of being honest in all things.

"Suppose," she asked her class, "that you found a briefcase containing a half million dollars. What would you do?"

Johnny raised his hand immediately.

"If it belonged to a poor family," he said. "I'd return it."

Andrea Cohen of the Big Spring Herald writes:

There is a big difference in being rich and being poor.

Oh, I know the obvious ones. If you're poor, you make enough money to keep yourself a little behind and if your're rich you make enough to keep yourself a little a head.

But there are other differences. For instance...

If your're poor, you own old, worn down furniture. If you're rich you own antiques.

If your're poor and do strange things, you're considered weird. If you're rich, you are considered an eccentric.

If you're poor, you work a job. If you're rich you have a position.

If you're poor and have many children, you don't know what birth control is. If you're rich, you have a large, well-bred family.

If you're poor and love grass soup, fried bananas and chocolate ants, you're considered a glutton. If you're rich, you're considered a gourmet.

If you're poor and buy your clothes from second-hand shops, you're considered an outcast. If you're rich you're considered a trendsetter.

If you're poor, you have a cold. If your're rich you have the flu.

If you're poor, you sign your own Christmas cards. If you're rich, you have your signatures printed. If you're really rich, you have a secretary sign your cards. And if you're very, very rich, you sign your own cards.

If you're poor, you gossip. If you're rich, you keep up on what is going on.

The family had overslept, and the lady of the house awoke with a start to the clanking of cans down the street.

She remembered that the garbage had not been put out, so she raced down to the front door, struggled into her robe, hair in curlers, and looking sleepy-eyed, yelled, "Yoo-hoo. Am I too late for the garbage?"

Replied the accomodating collector, "No, ma'am, jump right in."

Routine Checks For Medflies Has Become New Way Of Life

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — The routine checking of traps for the destructive Mediterranean fruit fly has become serious business in Texas as agriculture officials try to guard against the pest's spread from California.

State and federal workers monitor 2,200 medfly traps in the four-county Rio Grande Valley, home of the state's $70 million citrus industry. Thousands of traps are spread throughout the state.

"As it stands now we have a heavier concentration along the border, the ports of entry, airports and tourist courts," Otis Mullins of the U.S. Agriculture Department office here said Thursday.

"We did increase the number of traps several months ago and there's a move underfoot to put out some more traps," said Mullins, who works in the state-federal cooperative program to prevent medfly infestation here.

California has been battling a medfly outbreak more than a year. It has spread from a residential area around San Jose. Fertile flies recently were found 14 miles from the San Joaquin Valley, a major commercial agricultural area.

The flies lay eggs in over 200 varieties of produce, destroying all commercial value.

Three medflies have been found near Tampa, Fla., although officials are not sure they came from California.

"It's an excellent chance they came from California. They were found just outside a truck terminal where fruit from California comes in all the time," said Mike Wallace, executive vice president of Texas Citrus Mutual, a growers' organization based in McAllen.

Wallace and three other industry officials recently visited California to check eradication methods.

"They in fact, do not know where this fly is," Wallace said of California officials. "It's going to go underground this winter, in the cooler weather," he said.

Texas legislators appropriated $1.5 million Monday to give Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown more authority to protect state produce from the threat.

Traffic entering Texas is being stopped and checked for California produce. Fruit is spot checked at warehouses and markets for maggots.

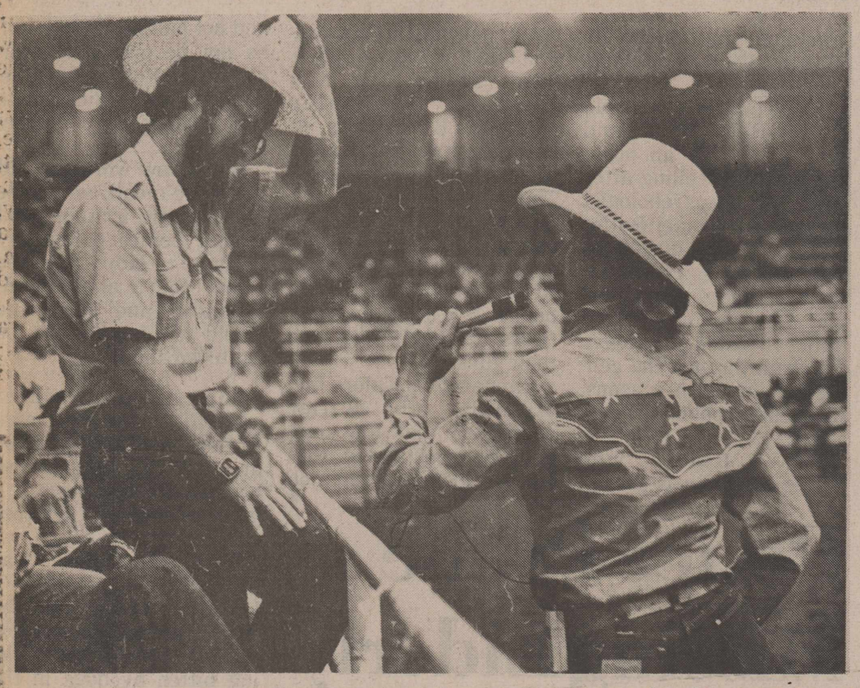

"There's not much more we can do," said Wallace.

Wallace and others had urged California and the U.S. Agriculture Department to spray the pesticide Malathion aerially last year. However, citizens protested large-scale spraying of the residential area where the outbreak occurred.

California Gov. Jerry Brown ordered aerial spraying this year after faced with a possible national quarantine against all California produce.

Val Garcia of the state agriculture department said medfly traps are checked every other week. The cardboard-and-plastic Jackson traps use a sticky bait to lure the fly.

Texas suffered a medfly infestation in 1967 that was eradicated with Malathion applications.

5 Executed In Alleged Coup Plot In Liberia

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — The government executed five people today, including the former vice head of state, for plotting to kill Liberian head of state Samuel K. Doe and seize power, the Liberian news agency reported.

Maj. Gen. Thomas Weh Syen and four members of the ruling People's Revolutionary Council, were shot at dawn by a firing squad following conviction by a secret military tribunal. The death sentences were announced Thursday by Maj. Gen. Joseph M. Blamue, head of the tribunal.

In addition to the vice head of state, the others executed were Harry Johnson, Nelson P. Toe and Robert Sumo, all lieutenant colonels, and Maj. Henry Zuo.

Two civilians — Mathew Dugbeh and a Nigerian, Olu Ajayi — were given 10-year prison sentences for alleged complicity in the plot. Former Minister of Local Government Oscar Quiah was acquitted for lack of evidence, Blamue said.

Doe first disclosed the alleged plot Sunday night and said three other members of the council had been targeted for assassination.

Doe seized power in the west African nation April 12, 1980, in a revolt that led to the death of President William Tolbert.

With less federal government involvement in social services and medical research, privately endowed charities can take up the slack.

But privately endowed charities are altogether as vulnerable as are federal agencies--to fraud, waste and foolishness.

Why does the National Kidney Foundation enlist Sugar Ray Leonard to solicit contributions from you?

For that matter, why does the American Association of Ophthalmology use Loni Anderson and the American Cancer Society use Farrah Fawcett and the American Heart Association use Gregory Peck.

Or is it the other way around? Are these show business luminaries "using" the charities to promote themselves?

Dr. Lois DeBakey resents and resists the "manipulation of serious national health problems for the promotional benefit of entertainers."

She was particulary indignant when members of Congress set aside such grave and urgent matters as crime, inflation and energy to showcase themselves and sex-symbol actress Brooke Shields during a frivolous televised hearing relating to her anti-smoking ads.

Julie Harris solicits contributions for the American Diabetes Association, Cliff Stone for the American Heart Association, Gregory Peck for the American Hospital Association, Joan Davis for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, Della Reese for Epilepsy, Muhammad Ali for Multiple Sclerosis, Reggie Jackson for Amyotrophic Lateral Sclorosis and so on...

Dr. DeBakey is aware that the "superstars" command attention but says that promoting the notion that they are "health authorities" is demeaning to the medical profession and insulting to the public intelligence.

During the height of Atlanta's recent concern over killings of black boys, an organization was created calling itself the Committee To Stop Children's Murders.

Celebrities invited, converged, contributed.

The committee has been criticized for not registering with the state and for not reporting what it is doing with all of the money it is collecting.

But it continues to collect.

Americans are the most generous people on earth. In 1978 we contributed $39.6 billion to charitable causes. In 1979, $43.3 billion. In 1980, a record $47.7 billion.

It's big business. The stakes are enormous.

In most charities, the overhead is enormous.

And, yes, I have been invited to "front" for some of the professional fund-raisers.

I have declined--not because their objectives are unworthy--but because the very worthiness of the charity should enable it ot stand on its own feet, plead its own case.

Rather than to use--and be used by--persons who are utterly lacking in professional medical expertise.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unless you keep your mind on what you are doing, or possibly what you are saying, at all times today, you could make a lulu of a boner. Be responsible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A shopping trip or an evening on the town could turn out to be more expensive than you anticipated. Be prepared to harness your extravagance.

Raiders Suit Halted After Mistrial Ruled

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A mistrial has been declared in the Oakland Raiders-National Football League antitrust case after a U.S. District Court jury deliberated 13 days and could not reach a verdict.

U.S. District Judge Harry Pregerson declared the trial over Thursday night, after a marathon session in which he personally interviewed every juror, and concluded that the likelihood of the jury arriving at a unanimous verdict was nonexistent. A new trial was scheduled for Sept. 21.

The judge said he believed the jurors have all been conscientious and fully understood the complex issues of the antitrust suit that arose when the Raiders' attempt to move south to Los Angeles was blocked by the NFL.

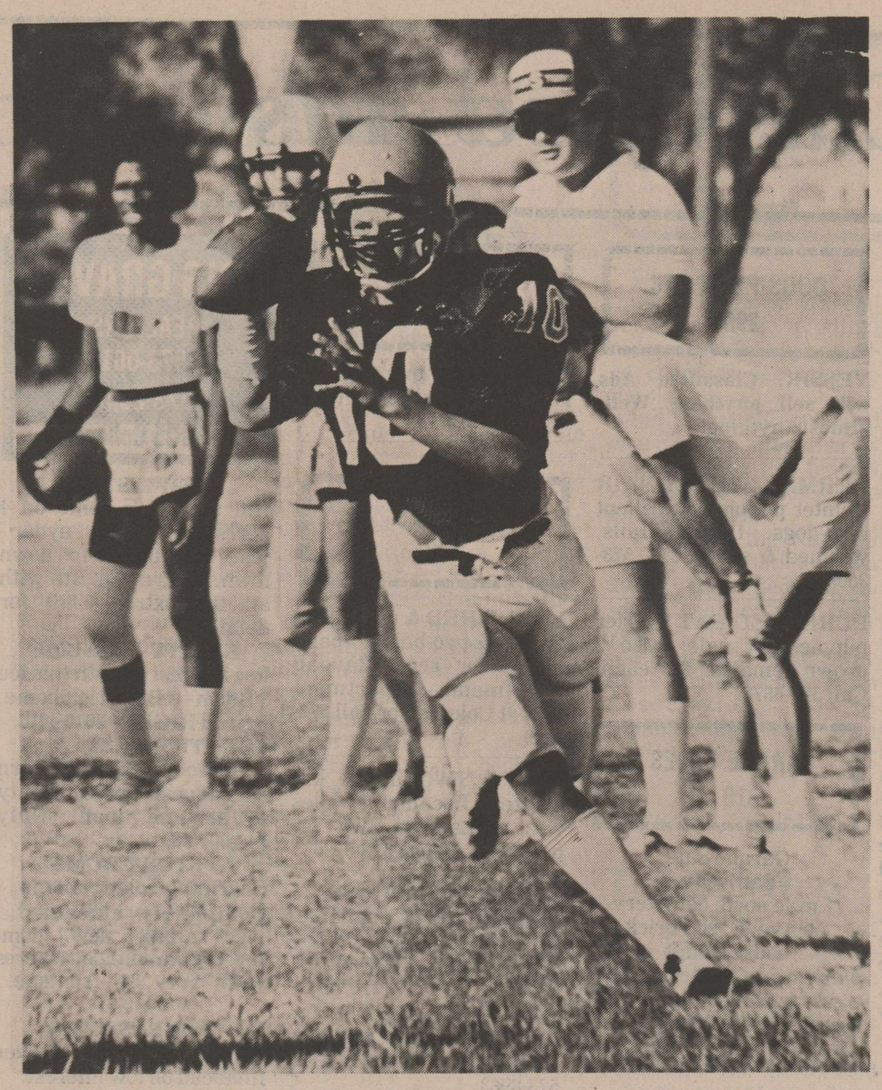

The Raiders' attorney, former San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, said that in the past week he had asked attorneys for the NFL if they would accept an 8-2 or a 9-1 verdict, but they refused.

"Obviously, they (the NFL) were praying for a hung jury," Alioto said.

Late Thursday, the judge received from the jury three notes, which were not made public. Alioto indicated the notes were the reason Pregerson spent several hours interviewing each of the jurors before formally declaring the mistrial.

The mistrial puts the Raiders and the NFL back at ground zero in their effort to settle the dispute with round two scheduled to begin in September. The cost of the nearly 2½-month legal preceding will not be determined until the end of the second trial.

Al Davis, managing general partner of the Raiders, has been attempting to move the team south ever since the Los Angeles Rams moved out of the city to nearby Anaheim, some 35 miles away.

Astros Rapped 9-1; Padres Are Victors

SAN DIEGO (AP) - During spring training San Diego Padres' pitcher Chris Welsh wasn't sure if would see the big leagues this year, and the Houston Astros probably wish that he hadn't.

Welsh, who came to the Padres with three other players from the New York Yankees in a deal for Jerry Mumphrey, ended a three-game San Diego losing streak as the Padres enjoyed a 9-1 rout of the defending National League West champions Thursday.

"When I got to the Padres, it was late in spring training and I only had a chance to work a few innings," said the 26-year-old rookie southpaw. "I honestly didn't think I would make the team. Then (manager Frank) Howard told me I would be the fourth starter."

The slender sinker-baller has surprised everyone with his effectiveness this season. With Thursday's game, his earned run average dropped to 2.75 while he evened his record at 4-4.

It was his first defeat of the Astros in three starts, but the previous losses were by scores of 1-0 and 2-1.

"It's always sweet to win a game, particularly against the Astros, and more particularly against Bob Knepper," commented Welsh, who went seven innings and gave up just six hits.

Knepper, a Padre nemesis, started the game with 10-4 career mark in San Diego, was the winner in the 1-0 encounter and the starter in the 2-1 game.

"I just didn't have good stuff today," said Knepper, 5-2, who last pitched on Sunday in the All-Star Game. "My arm felt fine, but I just didn't have any rhythm."

The Houston left-hander, picked up in a winter deal with the San Francisco Giants, lasted only four innings, giving up four runs, five hits and a pair of walks.

The Padres got all the runs they needed when they scored twice in the third inning. Jose Cruz's error on Jose Moreno's double to left allowed Ruppert Jones to score from first base and Juan Bonilla singled home the second tally.

Exhibition Football...

Dils Gets His Chance

by The Associated Press

Last year, quarterback Steve Dils made his first - and only - National Football League start for Minnesota against the Redskins in Washington. It was an auspicious debut.

He threw two touchdown passes and the Vikings, with a 39-14 victory, turned what might have been a disastrous season into one which ended with a trip to the playoffs (albeit a brief one, compliments of the Philadelphia Eagles).

Dils returns to the scene of his triumph tonight in an NFL exhibition - and he'll be starting again.

Also tonight it's St. Louis at Seattle. On Saturday night it's Houston at New Orleans, Cleveland at Buffalo, Cincinnati at Detroit, New England at Tampa Bay, the New York Jets at Atlanta, Pittsburgh at Philadelphia, Oakland against Green Bay in Milwaukee, Baltimore at the New York Giants, Denver at Miami, Chicago at Kansas City, Dallas at Los Angeles and San Diego at San Francisco.

It'll be an interesting matchup in Washington of an air-oriented team (the Vikings) against a Washington team which led the league in pass defense in 1980.

"The whole team is better this year," No. 1 Vikings quarterback Tommy Kramer said of the Redskins. "We will have to play much better than last year to win."

One thing which makes the Redskins so different, of course, is the backfield, where John Riggins, Terry Metcalf and Joe Washington make up what could be key parts of an explosive attack.

Riggins is back after sitting out 1980 over a contract dispute, this after three previous seasons as a 1,000-yard rusher in the league. Metcalf, who starred in St. Louis, is returning to the NFL after several unsatisfactory seasons in Canada. And Washington has come a few miles down the road from Baltimore, where he lost his job to Curtis Dickey.

The Vikings have dominated their meetings with the 'Skins, winning two of three exhibitions, three of five regular-season games and both playoff meetings.

The Seahawks will be trying to achieve a feat they failed to do at all last year - win at home. The Seahawks went 0-8 in the Kingdome - and the string of misfortune stretched to nine games last week when they fell 27-24 to San Francisco in overtime.

The Houston Oilers, now coached by former assistant Ed Biles, venture into New Orleans, where their former head coach, Bum Phillips, is lying in wait. He's now coaching the Saints and he'd love to show the folks that in George Rogers, his No. 1 draft pick, he's got a new Earl Campbell, around whom he built a winner in Houston.

McEnroe Upset In 3rd Round

MONTREAL (AP) - Tenth-seeded Vijay Amritraj of India upset No. 1 seed John McEnroe, 5-7, 7-6, 6-1, in the third round of the Canadian Men's Open tennis tournament.

Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, seeded No.4, advanced to the quarter-finals by defeating Vijay's brother, Anand, 6-0, 6-3.

In other matches, India's Ramesh Krishnan beat Tom Gullickson 6-1, 6-3; Brian Teacher of the U.S., beat Brad Drewett of Australia 3-6, 6-3, 6-3; Heinz Gunthardt of Switzerland beat Christophe Roger-Vasselin of France, 6-3, 6-2; Shlomo Glickstein of Israel topped Pater McNamara of Australia 6-4, 3-6, 6-3, and Steve Denton of the U.S. beat Bernie Mitton of South Africa, 4-6, 7-5, 7-6.

Coach Walt Michaels of the New York Jets played linebacker for the Cleveland Browns for nine years and was on two National Football League championship teams.

Chi-Sox Would Lose To Gain Playoff Berth

CHICAGO (AP) - A majority of players on the Chicago White Sox say they would throw a four-game series in Oakland next month if it meant the team could get into the American League West playoffs, the Chicago Tribune reported in a copyright story today.

The story related the results of a Tribune survey in which seven members of the White Sox' starting lineup were questioned, along with three starting pitchers and several utility players. All of those questioned were promised anonymity.

But White Sox Manager Tony LaRussa, speaking for the record, said he would probably instruct his players to lose the series if it was the only way to get into the playoffs.

"It's clear to me that nobody is going to take care of us except ourselves," LaRussa said. "The league and the commissioner have not proven to me they are concerned with the White Sox franchise to any great extent."

The decision by major league club owners to split the season after settlement of the players' strike and to insist on a playoff even if the same team wins both halves created the situation that led to the Tribune survey.

The owners decided that if the same team won both halves of the season, then the team with the next-best record for the overall season would get into the playoffs.

Since the White Sox finished the first half of the season with a 9½-game lead over the defending American League champion Kansas City Royals, the Royals and the Oakland A's could wind up fighting for a second-half championship while the White Sox still held a comfortable, overall lead over the Royals.

As a result, the Tribune said, if the White Sox played to win the series with Oakland that begins Sept. 25, they could conceivably be helping the Royals win the second-half championship, thereby knocking themselves out of a playoff berth.

But if they intentionally lost the games, the White Sox would be helping the A's win the second-half championship. Since the A's already have the first-half title, the second-half championship would then go to the team with the best overall standing. Chicago presently has the third-best overall record in the division, a half game behind the Texas Rangers.

According to the Tribune survey, only two of the Sox players questioned said they would not play to lose under those circumstances.

However, the majority expressed little doubt that they would be willing to throw the games to Oakland if it would lead to the World Series.

"I'd lose, no doubt in my mind," said one player. "My heart wouldn't be in it to go for it (a victory). Shoot no, I wouldn't be swinging the bat as hard as ever."

Nielsen Stuns Hartford Field

WETHERSFIELD, Conn.. (AP) - When the power went off in Lonnie Nielsen's motel room on the eve of the first round of the $300,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Great Hartford Open, he was afraid he might miss his early morning start.

The only alarm clock he had was electric and his telephone was out of service, eliminating the possibility of a wake-up call.

Nielsen didn't miss his Thursday morning start, but he left the rest of the 156-man field undoubtedly wishing he had.

The 28-year-old Ceder Rapids, Iowa, resident shot the best round of his five-year career, an 8-under-par 63 that was just one stroke short of the tournament's opening-round record.

His round of six birdies, one eagle and no bogies gave him a three-shot lead in the tourney being played at the par-71, 6,534-yard Wethersfield Country Club course.

"I played extremely well," said Nielson. "The whole round revolved around my putting, as most 63s do."

After finishing, Nielsen then watched to see whether someone would overtake him, but only four golfers were able to come close.

Shooting 65s were Bill Kratzert, the 1977 GHO champion, Phil Hancock, Jay Haas and Roger Maltbie.

Nine golfers were at 66. They were Dave Stockton, the 1974 GHO champion, Dana Quigley, Tim Simpson, Mike Morley, John Amazza, Rex Caldwell, Bill Britton, Mark Lye and Scott Simpson. Sixteen golfers shot 67s.

Defending champion Howard Twitty shot a 3-under-par 68. Jim Simons, who Twitty beat in a six-hole playoff, shot a 72.

The chase for the tournament's $54,000 first prize was to continue in today's second round.

Nielsen said after his power went off, he opened his room curtains in hopes that the morning sun would wake him. Nielsen also "kept one eye open all night so I didn't oversleep."

When he finally woke up, he had a feeling that "something was going to happen," but it wasn't until he sank a putt for a par on the first hole that he realized it would be something good.

Meagher Resets World Record

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Sixteen-year-old Mary T. Meagher continued her dominance of the women's butterfly Thursday, bettering her own world record in the 200-meter event during the first day of the U.S. Long-Course Swimming Championships.

Meagher, of Louisville, Ky., covered the distance in 2 minutes, 5.96 seconds, cutting about four-tenths of a second off her world record. She set the previous mark of 2:06.37 last year and has had the six fastest times in history of the event.

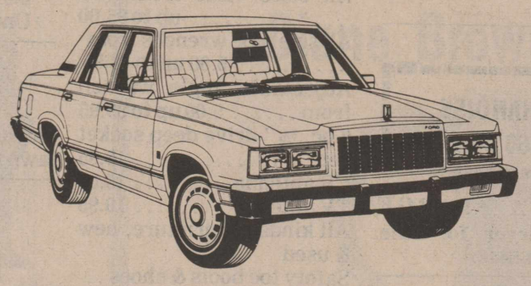

She also holds the world record in the 100-meter butterfly, scheduled later in the four-day meet.

Meagher finished more than six seconds ahead of runnerup Mayumi Yokoyama of Covina, Calif., but she said the big lead made it easier to concentrate.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South won the club lead in his own hand and looked at dummy for some time. Then he played three rounds of trumps. Two to pull them and the third just in case there might be an overlooked lurker somewhere.

Then he cashed his last two clubs and made the sneaky lead of the deuce of diamonds. If West had ducked South would have been in dummy to cash that ace of clubs for the tenth trick. Unfortunately for South, West clattered right up with his ace of diamonds and led a second diamond.

South was back in his hand and could do nothing better than to lead a low spade. East was careful to overtake his partner's eight with the 10 and to lead a second spade so South lost four tricks, game, rubber and his temper.

"Couldn't you let me play three no trump?" he asked his partner. "You had no singleton that I can see."

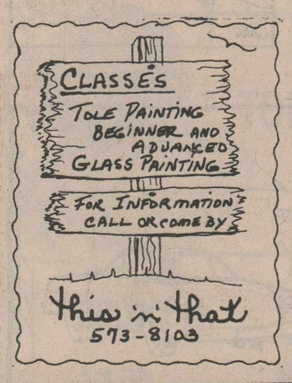

"Maybe I should have done just that," replied North. "Even an idiot like you would have made three no trump. But a bridge player would have made four spades."

North was right. All South had to do was to lead his king of diamonds; not the deuce. If West played his ace he would have had to let dummy's queen be an entry. If West ducked, a second diamond would have end-played him.

Wheat Germ Medley Is Tasty And Nutritious

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

I'm happy to report I've found a dish, great for snacktime fare or a light supper, that is both good for you and tastes unusually good. It's a filling for tostada or taco shells that blends ground beef, spinach and tomatoes with that important source of nutrients — wheat germ. After the filling goes into the shells, enchilada sauce, cheese and avocado top it off and, if you like, you can pass sour cream as an extra fillip.

About wheat germ. The "Nutrition Almanac" (McGrawHill), a guide I find reliable and useful, sums up wheat germ's virtues this way: "Wheat germ is the heart of the kernel of wheat. It is an excellent source of protein (24 grams per one-half cup), B-complex vitamins, vitamin E and iron. It also contains copper, magnesium, manganese, calcium and phosphorus ... Wheat germ contains a vegetable oil and therefore should be tightly covered and refrigerated."

WHEAT GERM MEDLEY FOR TOSTADAS OR TACOS

¼ cup butter
¾ cup wheat germ, see Note
10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach, thawed and well-drained
2 medium tomatoes, chopped medium-fine
½ teaspoon crumbled dried basil
½ teaspoon crumbled dried oregano
¼ teaspoon ground pepper
10-ounce can enchilada sauce
Packaged tostada or taco shells
1½ cups grated Monterey Jack cheese
1 avocado, peeled and sliced
Commercial sour cream, if desired

In a 10-inch skillet over moderate heat melt the butter; add the beef and cook, crumbling with a fork, just until it loses its red color. Stir in the wheat germ, spinach, tomatoes, basil, oregano and pepper and heat. Heat enchilada sauce. Heat tostada or taco shells according to package directions. Fill the tostadas or tacos with the beef mixture and top with the enchilada sauce, cheese and avocado. Pass the sour cream. Usually enough filling for 4 tostada shells or 8 tacos.

Note: We tested this recipe with regular, vacuum-packed lightly toasted wheat germ. Some experiments have shown that toasting increases the nutritive value of wheat germ.

Weight makes heart work

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 71-year-old female, overweight and taking medication for high blood pressure. Two weeks ago I was hospitalized four days with coronary insufficiency. My EKG tracing is now near normal and my medications are nitroglycerin, Inderal and Lanoxin.

I've always been active in spite of my enlarged heart that I've had most of my life. Having to be inactive depresses me. As soon as I do a little work in my home I have angina pain. My doctor has told me I must rest. Will you please tell me how long this will take? Will I be an invalid the rest of my life? And why do I get pain when I do such little work?

DEAR READER — Coronary insufficiency is a term that is sometimes used to describe heart pain that is in between the short pain of angina pectoris and the longer pain of a heart attack (myocardial infarction). In your case it is an indication that you have blockage of the coronary arteries to your heart.

When you do any work your heart has to work harder, too. If one or more arteries to your heart have enough blockage in them so that you can't increase the blood flow to your heart, when it needs it from increased work, you will have pain. It is nature's way of telling you that you must not overwork your heart.

Increased blood pressure increases the work of your heart, as explained in The Health Letter number 17-10, What You Need to Know About Heart Attacks, that I am sending you.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

It is too early to say how well you will recover. It will take time for your heart to open small arteries and improve circulation as discussed in The Health Letter. Meanwhile, the best thing in the world you can do is start losing weight. The less you weigh, the less work your heart will have to do when you do little things around the house. It may also lower your blood pressure and help decrease your heart work and pain in that way.

Whether or not you will be an invalid the rest of your life depends a lot on how successful you are in getting that weight down and keeping it down for the reasons I have mentioned.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a uterine fibroid. The fibroid, one ovary and tube were removed. Could I get pregnant with the one ovary and tube and the uterus I have left?

DEAR READER — That depends entirely on the state of your remaining organs. If your ovary is functioning normally, your one tube is open and you have enough uterus left you certainly could.

Each ovary contains all the cells it will use to form mature ova at the time a female is born. And each ovary contains about 500,000 such potential ova cells. A woman will release fewer than 500 of these for her entire period of reproduction. It follows that just one ovary has about 10 times as many ova as will ever ripen.

Men are different in that they produce new sperm cells regularly rather than being born with a basic supply.

Pope John Paul II Leaves Hospital

ROME (AP) — Pope John Paul II left the hospital today, pale and walking slowly, blessing hundreds of patients, doctors, nurses and nuns who burst into song as he returned to the Vatican three months and a day after he was shot in St. Peter's Square.

The 61-year-old pontiff shook hands with doctors and nurses in the Gemelli Hospital then stepped into his black Mercedes for the 15-minute trip home. After a few days' rest at his apartment overlooking St. Peter's Square, the pope will go to his summer retreat in Castel Gandolfo in the Alban Hills south of Rome.

The pope was discharged a day after his doctors said in a medical bulletin he was completely healed and could leave the hospital any time he wished. They prescribed six weeks of convalescence.

"He has to act like a man who is waiting to return to the man he was before," Dr. Francesco Crucitti, who performed the two operations on the pope, told reporters.

About 300 people — doctors, nurses, nuns and other patients — pressed against barricades in the lobby of the modern hospital to get a glimpse of the pope. They broke into applause and sang the hymn "Christ Reigns As King."

Flanked by Crucitti and the Vatican secretary of state, Italian Cardinal Agostino Casaroli, the pope walked slowly down the line, shaking hands. He then gave his apostolic blessing, broadcast over loudspeakers throughout the hospital.

In a 10-minute message he read to patients, John Paul thanked all who had prayed for his health and eexpressed hope that his fellow patients would also be able to leave the hospital soon.

Before leaving the hospital, the pope gave a warm hug to Crucitti. The pontiff, wearing white robes and skull cap, climbed into his limousine convertible and stood up in the back to wave. The convertible top was then closed for the trip.

Doctors said the pope was already up and dressed when they arrived to give him a last-minute checkup this morning. He then thanked the staff members and celebrated Mass in his 11th floor suite.

The pope looked drawn, but his voice was strong and firm. Crucitti said John Paul was in fine health and had gained back all but seven of the 22 pounds he lost since he was shot May 13.

PerfumesFarm

WORCESTER, England (AP) — John Bennett's farm has a different air about it these days.

After complaints about the aromatic qualities of manure from his 200 cows and the silage on his 300-acre dairy farm, Bennett did something sweet for the nostrils of Worcester.

He installed 18 perfume sprays that give out the delicate fragrances of almond blossoms, wallflowers and roses.

Atom Bomb Ban Sought

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States will seek an agreement to ban nuclear arms in the Middle East, the director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency says.

"We've started preliminary diplomatic talks," Eugene V. Rostow said in an interview published in The New York Times Friday.

He said the agreement with Middle Eastern countries and powers outside the area would be based on the 1967 Treaty of Tlatelolco, which prohibited nuclear weapons in Latin America. But he said the Reagan administration has no treaty draft yet.

"I think it has very high potential," said Rostow. "It is a natural response to the risks of proliferation which have become much worse in recent years."

The initiative comes in response to the Israeli bombing of an Iraqi nuclear reactor June 7, with President Reagan saying prevention of the spread of nuclear weapons had become critical.

Dear Abby

Daughter's Gay Lifestyle Saddens Guilty Mother

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago you made the statement in your column that lesbians are born, not made.

Abby, I have a beautiful, talented 30-year-old daughter who is a lesbian, and I have always blamed myself for that. When she was a little girl, she hated dresses, so I let her wear blue jeans and T-shirts just like her brothers wore. I didn't think a thing of it at the time, but now I realize I helped to make a tomboy out of her. I blame myself for not insisting that she dress and act like a girl instead of putting her in boys' clothes and encouraging her to play boys' games with her brothers and their friends.

So, my question is, if I didn't contribute to the way she turned out, how in the world did it happen?

PUZZLED IN HOPE, ARK.

DEAR PUZZLED: Don't blame yourself. Millions of little girls are tomboys and prefer jeans to dresses, yet the vast majority of them do not become lesbians. The causes of lesbianism, like those of male homosexuality, are complex and not fully understood as yet, but there is growing evidence that many lesbians are born with a predisposition in that direction.

The important thing to remember is that sexual preference is not a matter of choice; it is determined at a very early age. Children who grow up to be homosexuals need their parents' love and understanding no less than other children do. In fact, they need it more.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I'm always impressed with items about rewards, so let me tell you about an incident that recently happened.

As a professional organist, I was entertaining the family Easter brunch crowd at a local dining club. After several hours of working, a boy of about 7 came up to me and said, "Please play raindrops, mister."

I responded by playing, "Raindrops Are Falling on My Head." The lad was obviously pleased to hear his favorite song.

Later as he and his family were leaving the club, he ran back and handed me three coins — a dime, a nickel and a penny — still warm from being clutched in his hand. Then he ran from the club.

I still have the coins, framed with the caption, "Please play raindrops, mister." They probably represented the boy's entire fortune, given willingly as a reward for a favor.

FRANK FROM FLORIDA

DEAR FRANK: I predict that lad will go far. He's not afraid to ask for what he wants, and he's prepared to pay for a favor.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: To get right to the point, I do not care for dogs in my house. This goes for big dogs, little dogs, and even the hairless kind that are not supposed to smell, but do. They are all dogs to me. We reared our children and had dogs for them, but they were never allowed in the house. They slept in doghouses or out in the garage.

My problem: We have relatives who are dog-crazy. They love their dogs more than some people love their children. These relatives have visited us and brought their dogs along — knowing how I feel about them. They even took them into their beds! Abby, we have just redecorated our rooms, installed new carpet and re-covered our furniture, and I do not want dogs in my house!

These relatives are coming again. How can I let them know that they are welcome but not their dogs, without having them think I am an old crab?

NO DOG LOVER

DEAR NO DOG LOVER: You can tell them before they arrive that they are welcome, but their dogs are not. But don't be surprised if you get the "love me, love my dog" bit. They will think you are an old crab, but you'll have kept the dogs out of your home, and that's the object, isn't it?

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 10 years and have been in love with my husband for longer than that. We were childhood sweethearts and married young.

I know that since our marriage he has had affairs. Some have lasted longer than others, but even while he's seeing another woman, he continues to be very loving to me.

I have never given him a hard time about it because I love him with all my heart, and I will never let him go, or drive him away by nagging and complaining. Besides, we have a family.

He is a warm, gentle person with a lot of love to give. He is having another affair now. I can tell by the mileage on his car and the number of calls that hang up when I answer the phone.

Am I a prideless woman or a fool?

NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: Neither. You have wisely answered the question: "Would I be better off with him — or without him?"

Haig Speech Signals Change Toward Moscow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Until this week, there was little indication the Reagan administration felt that a constructive relationship with the Soviet Union was possible or even desirable.

Some observers, among them former Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, said the long months of strident anti-Soviet invective by the administration suggested it had a "posture" toward Moscow but no policy.

But Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. took his first tentative steps toward changing that perception in a speech Tuesday in New Orleans. Haig said the administration is, after all, interested in establishing a "more stable and beneficial relationship" with Moscow.

Haig even suggested that conditions are ripe for attaining such a relationship and that he has a coherent strategy for achieving it.

He avoided use of the word detente in describing administration goals, but some of his remarks clearly were reminiscent of the detente era.

"We must compete with the Soviet Union to protect freedom," Haig said, "but we must also search for cooperation to protect mankind."

During its early weeks in office, the administration's message was decidedly different. In late January, for example, President Reagan said the only morality recognized by the Soviet leaders "is what will further their cause, meaning they reserve unto themselves the right to commit any crime, to lie, to cheat."

Haig joined in the tough talk by accusing Moscow of "training, funding and equipping international terrorism."

The new chill was symbolized by the administration's early decision to strip Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin of his privilege — granted by the three previous administrations — to enter the State Department through its underground garage. Now he has to enter by the front door like all other envoys.

At the substantive level, the changed atmosphere was reflected in such actions as higher defense spending, the offer of weapons to China, the promise of increased weapons sales abroad and a suggestion by Reagan that aid might be provided to anti-communist rebels in Afghanistan.

To some, it seemed the administration strategy was all stick and no carrot.

Haig's speech Tuesday disspelled that notion, at least somewhat. It made clear that the administration does hold out the eventual hope that a more congenial relationship with the Soviets is possible.

The first phase of the administration's approach was to try to persuade the Soviets that the costs of what Haig describes as Moscow's "aggressive course" far outweigh the benefits.

Haig's New Orleans speech represents the second phase of administration policy. It is no less opposed to interventionism by the Soviets, but it also offers the promise of rewards to Moscow in exchange for Soviet restraint.

Haig said the United States is offering "a reduction in the tensions that are so costly to our societies ... diplomatic alternatives to the pursuit of violent change ... fair and balanced agreements on arms control ... and the possibility of Western trade and technology."

Haig hopes the Soviets will be tempted to take him up on his offer, especially when they consider the alternative he outlined:

"The Soviet Union must understand that it cannot succeed in dominating the world through aggression. A serious and sustained international reaction will be the inevitable result, with greater dangers for everyone — including Moscow."

The question now is whether the administration's attempt at accommodation will be any more successful than previous efforts. Haig seemed confident it will be.

He said he believes the previous efforts at detente failed because the West did not keep pace with Soviet military expenditures, thus undermining the balance of power.

Phony Priests Plaguing Area

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Roman Catholic officials say a growing number of men are impersonating priests and accepting money from unsuspecting Catholics, but there is little authorities can do about it.

Msgr. William Cooney, director of clergy personnel of the San Diego Diocese, says there are at least 100 bogus priests in the diocese encompassing San Diego and Imperial counties, compared to 275 legitimate Catholic clergy.

"Anyone can go to any clergy store and buy a collar," Cooney said. "A collar would pay for itself over and over again."

Cooney says tougher economic conditions and Southern California's favorable weather are prime reasons so many fake clergy thrive in San Diego.

"We get all the con artists in the world here," Cooney said. "Most are not priests and never have been. Others are ex-priests and don't care. They're dzfrocked and excommunicated anyway."

The situation has become so acute, the diocese recently issued warnings about imposters who accept donations for conducting weddings, administering baptism and passing out Communion, Cooney said.

Such priestly functions, if performed by an illegitimate clerhyman, are invalid in the eyes of the church, Cooney said, and must be repeated by a bona fide priest.

Officer Larry Wilkins, of the San Diego Police Licensing Division, says his office has received few complaints about fake priests. Furthermore, he said, laws protecting freedom of religion limit law enforcement efforts.

"Those cases are very difficult to prosecute," Wilkins said. "Almost anyone can call himself "father." They can be the pastor of the Church of Bingo, for all we know."

Anyone can conduct marriage ceremonies if they hold a license from the county recorder's office, Wilkins said. However, he added, "If they don't have that license, they may be fostering a lot of illegitimate children out there."

Msgr. John Rawden, chancellor of the Archdiocese of Los Angeles, says phony priests are not as common farther north, and those who are known impersonators are hard to stop.

"We do find cases where people don't come out and say they are Roman Catholic priests," Rawden said. "They have a collar and let you assume that they are one. They deceive by appearance."

Hispanics and older people are the most frequent victims of clerical frauds, Cooney says, although by no means the only ones.

"Spanish-speaking people are the easiest to fall," Cooney says, "but most people are gullible when confronted by a man who says he's a priest. No one questions them.

"We get a lot of calls from confused older people after someone has either promised them a novena (a series of prayers) and never done them, or begged money from them."

Often impersonators set up parishes and run them for years before churchgoers catch on, Cooney said.

"It's the easiest thing in the world to start a church," Cooney said.

He tells of two brothers who ran a parish in Mexico City for several years before they were discovered. The two then moved north and now work along the U.S-Mexican border.

He's received reports of priests begging money from young sailors in downtown San Diego. Other offended people have called the office, telling of unpriestly conduct by men wearing collars.

"One priest was seen in a Mission Valley bar every night for a week with women who called him "father." He gave one of the women $400 one night," Cooney said.

Clergy identification cards are not the answer, Cooney says. He is part of a committee of priests, ministers and rabbis who organized four years ago and began issuing clergy cards to permit visiting with inmates at county jail.

About 300 clergy now have the cards and the panel meets monthly to authorize new applications. Meanwhile, the group has found false clergy cards can be obtained elsewhere with ease.

"We heard of a layman who sent away to a firm in San Francisco advertising it could provide clergy cards. He not only got one for himself, he got one for his 8-year-old son," Cooney said.

"There are so many of them around San Diego, it's not funny," Cooney said. "I've been in this diocese for 32 years, and I've been aware of this going on the whole time. But there's not much we can do about it."

Depletion Of Ozone Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — Measurements taken by the space agency from weather satellites confirm that fluorocarbons, once widely used as propellants in aerosol sprays, deplete the Earth's ozone shield.

"This is the first evidence that a change appears to be taking place," Donald Heath, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration researcher, said Thursday.

"It represents a partial validation of the theory that fluorcarbons will destroy ozone," he said.

Scientists have predicted for years that the substance, also used in refrigerators and air conditioners, would have that effect, but measurements had not been available, NASA said.

Heath, analyzing data from two satellites, said there has been about a 4 percent decrease in ozone at an altitude of about 24 miles.

"It's small, but we feel it's significant," he said.

Heath has not published his results in a scientific journal so they have not undergone scientific review.

The ozone layer, centered at an altitude of 15 miles, absorbs the sun's harmful ultraviolet radiation and keeps it from reaching Earth. Loss of ozone allows more ultraviolet radiation through and will cause an increase in skin cancer, researchers say.

It also can change temperatures in the atmosphere, altering wind patterns, according to Shelby Tilford, chief of atmospheric sciences at NASA headquarters in Washington.
