Clapper Finds:

There Is No Pattern For Pacific War

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
War Correspondent

HONOLULU, Jan. 6. — Those who have been handling island campaigns in the Pacific will tell you it is wise to be careful about comparing the various operations, such as Tarawa against New Britain. One is a small reefed-in island, the other a large land mass. That makes all the difference in the world.

At Tarawa, the Japs were huddled on one little strip of sand. There was only one place we could go in and there was no place to which the Japs could fall back. On such small reefed islands the whole fight is the fight to land. When you have got ashore the fight is over. Hence the proportion of landing casualties is very high because the whole fight is a landing fight, and once the landing is over there is little chance for casualties except in minor mopping up.

CLAPPER

But in taking a large land mass such as Guadalcanal, Bougainville, or New Britain, it is often possible to surprise the Japs by landing at a relatively undefended point. Arawe was relatively easy for that reason. On a large island the Japs cannot possibly have every foot of shoreline heavily defended. It is more practical to wait for the landing to occur and then throw the island reserve against that force as it is establishing itself after the landing. The race in such operations is always between the defenders and the attackers to see which side can bring up forces fast enough at the point of contact, which may be a number of miles inland, or around an airfield.

In that kind of operation naturally the proportion of casualties in landing is likely to be smaller, because it may well be that the heavy casualties will come during weeks of fighting inland.. Guadalcanal was an easy landing, but then our men went through six months of hard fighting before they drove the Japs out.

Comparison Is Dangerous

The point some high naval officers have in raising that question is that in the many island operations still to come there will be a tendency to compare one operation favorably, or unfavorably, with a previous one, whereas there are several types.

Not only is there a fundamental difference between the small reef island and the large mass island, but among the reef islands there are differences that become important in judging the difficulty of an attack.

THE LOW islands like the Marshalls are sand-filled coral bars, small and flat. For instance Mille Island, the principal one of the Marshall group, is about two miles long and one mile wide at its largest dimensions, and at no point is it more than 15 feet above sea level. So once ashore you keep on moving.

But the volcanic islands, like the Truk group, are much tougher, because they rise sharply out of the water. The edges are covered with heavy mangrove growth and the sides go steeply up. One of the chief units of the Truk group, Dublon Island, has sheer hills that go up to nearly 1200 feet. The islands in all range from heights of 100 to 1400 feet. Those steep hillsides are perfect for

Germans Asked To Overthrow Leaders

(By The United Press)

A British broadcast recorded by CBS appealed to the German people today to surrender unconditionally, quoting the News Chronicle that Germany is doomed and faces either capitulation or, "as Mr. Goebbels puts it, a fight to the bitter end."

"For Goebbels and his brutal associations, capitulation means personal defeat, and therefore they preach the gospel of fighting to the bitter end and hoping for a miracle to save them," the broadcast said.

"There is no such dilemma for the German people, however. The German people don't face defeat by capitulation. The German people seem apathetic and fatalistic today, but they have a better way out. All the German people have to do is express their will and decide whether they want to overthrow their leaders and cry out 'end with the war'."

Widely Known Texas Pioneer Woman Dies

DALLAS, Jan. 6 (AP)—Mrs. Lou Smith, 83, widow of the late Rev. G. W. Smith who organized many churches in West Texas and was one of the founders of Hardin Simmons university, died tonight at the home of a son here.

A native of Mississippi, Mrs. Smith came to Texas in 1887. Funeral services will be held tomorrow. Burial will be in Abilene.

Survivors included the son, C. W. Bartlett; a brother, J. M. Higginboth, Dallas, and a sister, Mrs. Sue Fry, Dublin.

PIONEER WOMAN DIES

HOUSTON, Jan. 6. (AP) — Mrs. Theresa Annie Weeden, 90, member of a pioneer South Texas family, died here today. She was the widow of John M. Weeden, prominent cattleman who died in 1916.

Reds Drive On In Old Poland

Berlin Fears Dnieper Bend Army Now Fights For Life

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 7.—The Red Army swept 10 miles into old Poland yesterday with the capture of Rakitno, killed 3,000 more of enemy's retreating troops, and also plunged southward to within 39 miles of the Warsaw-Odessa rail lifeline to the German Dnieper bend Army.

Berlin intimated early today that part of Germany's huge Dnieper bend Army, estimated at between 500,000 and 750,000, already was fighting for its life against a Soviet pincers movement by the Red armies of Generals Nikolai F. Vatutin and Ivan S. Konev.

A Moscow communique last night announced the capture of Rakitno in a fanwise sweep by General Vatutin's Army, which Berlin said numbered 750,000 men besides "the reserves that still are moving up."

Said "Marking Time"

But Berlin broadcasts said the Soviet Army pushing toward central Poland mostly was "marking time." Axis commentators were far more concerned, it appeared, with the massive swing southward toward Rumania and southeastward into the Dnieper bend.

Although Moscow dispatches on Monday had announced that Soviet spearheads were across the former frontier in the lower Pripet marshes, this was the first time an communique mentioned a specific locality. Moscow, however, did not mention the frontier, a subject of dispute.

It described Rakitno as a "district center of the Rovno region." Rovno, or Rowne, is one of the principal cities in the western Ukraine in territory acquired by Poland after the first World war and lost to Russian occupation in 1939.

32-Mile Front

The Russians were sweeping toward central Poland on a 32-mile front. At the lower end they captured Gorodnitsa, about a mile from the old frontier, the communique disclosed. Gorodnitsa is on the punctured Sluch river line 20 miles northwest of Novograd-Volynski.

The broadcast communique said the Russians ran through a total of more than 85 villages and hamlets during the day in their steady slashing of German supply or retreat railways, and one Axis military commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorious, said in a broadcast: "The Soviet winter offensive now is in full swing on an ever-enlarging front."

Germany's greatest danger lay in the roll of the Red Army toward the Rumanian frontier. The communique announced the capture of Lipovets, 25 miles east of the immediate rail junction objective of Vinnitsa, and 39 miles from the Warsaw-Odessa railway

Additions Given Board Approval

In the first strictly routine business meeting since its formation in early December, the Lubbock City Planning commission last night approved plats of two projected additions to the City of Lubbock; approved a third dependent upon advice of the city attorney and declined to approve a fourth pending submission of a proper plat.

Subdivisions approved were those presented by E. P. Norwood and located northwest of the city; and by C. M. Dickinson, located on East Broadway immediately south of the main fairgrounds entrance. Pending legal approval was the application of R. A. and R. D. McKinney, owners of Frances Place, on west Nineteenth street. Held up for proper plat was property adjacent to the southeast part of the city, Mill addition, owned by the Leftwich interests.

Technicality Holds Up One

Sole reason for not fully approving the Frances Place application rested on legal technicalities, L. Wesley Read, chairman of the planning commission, said. The Frances plat is fully acceptable and includes dedications of streets and alleys, he said.

Chairman Read appointed a sub-

Germany Admits Wave Of Jitters

Russian Situation Is "Very Critical"

BERN, Switzerland, Jan. 6. (AP)—The Berlin press openly acknowledged today that the situation in Russia was "very critical," as the bomb-smashed German capital was rife with theories that a British-American invasion of the west might be timed to coincide with the peak of the Soviet winter offensive.

The present Russian onslaught has not yet reached full scale because of unfavorable weather, German military commentators conceded, implying to the public that worse news is to follow the German retreats already in progress.

May Lose All Gains

The Berlin correspondent of the Swiss paper Tribune De Geneve wrote that military men already had announced taking all necessary means to "moderate" the Russian advance but that if these failed, the Germans risked "to lose all the territory gained in the bloody fighting" since 1941. While this is one of the most direct statements on the fighting yet permitted to come out of Germany, German papers still contended, even while stressing the crisis, that "the situation is not lost, for all that," saying reserves and courage still were strong throughout the Reich.

OTHER "INVASION" ITEMS ADD TO NAZI FURORE

Other "invasion" items included:

The BBC broadcast in the name of the Allied command asking Belgians to stay at home when military operations began, lest they obstruct Allied air forces attacking German communications. The Belgians were advised to dig slit trenches and shelters for themselves.

A report from German-held Zagreb, Yugoslavia, said strong units of the U. S. Seventh and British First armies were concentrating at Bari, Italy, for an invasion of the Balkans.

Blockade Trap Set For Armed Bandits

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 6. (AP)—South Mississippi highways were blocked late today and the FBI was alerted from Texas to the Atlantic coast to trap three armed bandits who early today held the staff and guests of the Robert E. Lee hotel at gunpoint while they looted the hotel safe and cash drawers of an estimated $5,000 to $10,000.

The bandits escaped in a Chrysler car stolen from a garage, when they tied up the manager and two negro helpers and bound them to bumpers of parked cars on the second floor of the garage before taking $250 from the cash register.

Frank Holloman, agent in charge of the FBI office here, said his office was called in because the trio answered the description of three men who last week robbed a hotel in Houston, Tex., after stealing a car in San Antonio, and later robbed a station and western Union office in Baton Rouge.

Cutback Seen In Production

Civilians Not To See Any Benefits

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.— Cutbacks in the production of small arms, bullets, non-combat planes and anti-aircraft equipment, plus a nearly 40 per cent slash in aluminum production, were predicted by the Office of War information tonight.

The decreases will be more than offset by boosts in warplanes and some other munitions, OWI said, and "no considerable curtailments" for the purpose of resuming civilian goods manufacture can be scheduled for 1944 unless the European war ends by June or July.

"Until then, whatever resumption of civilian production the War

PLANS THROUGH 1947

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP) — The greatest sea-and-sky fleet in the world has plans to go on expanding through 1947, it was disclosed tonight shortly after a top Navy official called for post-war maintenance of the Navy as a guarantor of world peace.

The Office of War information reported that the Navy's construction plans call for the building of more than 500 combat ships in the three years 1945 through 1947, and in the same period, about 600 patrol and mine craft, more than 600 auxiliary vessels, and 70,000 landing crafts.

For reasons of military security, the 1944 program was not detailed, but it was stated that naval ship construction alone will total 8 billion dollars according to present schedules, 1½ billion dollars more than in 1943.

Production board permits must be considered purely as temporary and subject at all times to a return to military production when required," said the OWI report. The document was the first comprehensive account of production curtailment from official sources.

Arms Production

Arms production in 1944 is to be 17 per cent greater than in 1943. This in itself is a cutback, since previous disclosures have estimated a gain of from 20 to 25 per cent.

The Navy alone, OWI disclosed, has made cutbacks amounting to $2,856,000,000 in the last six months. Much of this was merely on paper, representing cancellations of orders on which work had not been started.

Despite this trimming, the Navy's 1944 program will be $16,000,000,000, one-third higher than in 1943, with production maintained at about the rate achieved last month.

Without disclosing details of naval ship construction plans for this year, OWI reported that the Navy in the three years 1945-47 plans to build more than 500 combat vessels, 1,000 patrol and auxiliary vessels and more than 70,000 landing craft.

Naval Ships And Planes

Both naval ships and naval planes will be delivered in greater volume this year than last, with shipbuilding alone reaching the

School Health Problems Cited

AUSTIN, Jan. 6. (AP)—The state health department has conducted a survey showing that 58.7 per cent of 160,000 Anglo-American children examined in Texas elementary schools, have health problems directly affecting their ability to learn.

Texas school executives and teacher trainers in conference here were so informed today by Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer.

The classroom observations and studies were undertaken by the state department in cooperation with various school agencies and extended over a period of several years, Cox said.

Revised Usual Concept

"In making our inventory we revised the usual medical concept of what is a health problem," Cox explained. "Instead of inventorying health problems in terms of whether a child was sick within the concept of the average physician, we made tabulations in terms of whether health difficulties were lowering their educational efficiencies."

The investigations were made at schools selected as experimental centers throughout Texas in what Cox described as a program of positive health promotion.

The survey showed also that 59.9 per cent of the children examined were physiologically below the level of growth required for tasks demanded of them, and 62.2 per cent were psychologically of a mental age below the level of their grade placement.

Some Other Findings

Other findings:

68.8 per cent showed apparent signs of nutritional defects.

30.2 per cent had disturbances of posture severe enough to affect motor activities.

20.9 per cent showed signs of chronic fatigue.

75.2 per cent showed chronic upper respiratory infection.

92 per cent had dental cavities.

53.3 per cent had eye defects affecting or distorting their visual sensation.

Declaring that the larger part of the health problems is preventable, Cox said:

"Most of the children would recover without curative attention if their surroundings in school and home and the demands placed on them were in keeping with the way children should grow and develop."

IF YOU'RE GETTING A COLD—

YOU CAN: —BUT IT'S BETTER TO:

Stay around people who have colds and swap sneezes.

Isolate yourself as much as possible, use paper tissues.

Work late, go on a party, show germs you're boss.

If cold gets out of control go to bed and rest.

Eat heavy, rich foods and smother cold in luxury.

Go on a diet of liquids—fruit juices, water, milk, soup.

Try all the pet cures and drugs of the neighbors.

If you really feel bad, call a doctor, obey his orders.

"Rocket" Plane Capable Of Extreme Speeds Completed By U. S.-British Engineers

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.— Cloaked in high secrecy for years, a new "rocket" plane has emerged from British-American engineering laboratories, capable of extreme speeds at high altitudes without using standard propellers.

The disclosure was made today in a joint statement by the U. S. Army Air forces and the RAF.

The plane is powered with jet propulsion engines. No details were given. Jet propulsion is generally considered in aviation circles to be a series of short, sharp explosions on the rocket principle, hurtling the plane forward. Aviation authorities have said that today's airplanes have just about reached their limits in speed at close to 500 miles an hour by use of propellers and that the jet propulsion or rocket principle is the next logical step to greater achievement.

The luftwaffe has been reported experimenting with rocket devices on planes to give them additional power on take-offs or higher speed in emergencies.

Several hundred flights by the new British-American planes were made without a single mishap and quantity production is just around the corner, the Allied air chiefs declared. Research work on the idea started 10 years ago in Great Britain under Group Captain Frank Whittle of the RAF and his preliminary engine ran successfully in 1937.

The joint statement issued in Washington by Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air forces, disclosed that the British Air ministry placed its first order for a plane using jet propulsion engines with the Gloucester Aircraft company, Ltd., in 1939, the engines to be built by Power Jets, Ltd., in a special factory in England. Captain Whittle was loaned to this company.

First Flight In May, 1941

"The first successful flight of this aircraft was in May, 1941," said the statement. "The pilot was the late Flight Lieut. P. G. Seyers, chief test pilot of Gloucester Air-

Pacific Air Ace Is Missing In Action

OKANOGAN, Wash., Jan. 6 (AP)—The mother of Marine Major Gregory Boyington, whose downing of his 26th Japanese plane in the Southwest Pacific was announced only today, received word from the Navy tonight that he was missing in action.

A dispatch from Guadalacanal today told how the former Flying Tiger had made his 26th kill in a raid over Rabaul, New Britain, three days ago, to tie the current war record of Maj. Joe Foss and the first World war mark of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker.

Boyington's mother, Mrs. E. J. Hallenback, reported the grim news with the assertion "I am confident he is all right and he will show up somehow, somewhere."

The official notification said the details would be slow in arriving.

Cadets Killed Shortly Before Getting Wings

PAMPA, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Two aviation cadets, making one of their last scheduled flights before receiving their treasured silver wings tomorrow, died in the collision of two training planes last night near Canadian, Texas.

With them died their instructor, Lt. Robert H. Rodgers, 23, of Los Angeles. The fliers were based at Pampa Army Air field.

The cadets were Milton M. Coverdale, jr., 26, of Monroe, La., and Carl E. Guio, 22, of Rochell, Ill. A fourth cadet, Jerome M. Hacker, 18, of Ada, Okla., also eligible for his wings tomorrow, parachuted to safety after the planes tangle daloft.

Coverdale's wife and mother had come to Pampa for the graduation. The public relations office at the field said they were returning home to Monroe.

SINKINGS CLAIMED

LONDON, Jan. 6. (AP)—The Berlin radio said today that German speedboats sank five ships in an escort vessel of a British convoy in an action last night off Cornwall, without loss to the Germans.

Resistance At Cape Stiffens

Madang Battered And Dozen Japs Shot Down Over Rabaul

By OLEN CLEMENTS
Associated Press Staff Writer

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Friday, Jan. 7.—Six hundred Japanese have been slain during heavy fighting now in progress in dense jungle country at invaded Cape Gloucester, New Britain, as both sides brought up artillery and strafing American planes supported the attacking Marines.

Bringing total enemy losses to more than 2,000 since the Marines landed Dec. 26, the latest casualties were inflicted during a slow, arduous push against fierce resistance in the eastward direction of Borgen Bay.

A spokesman for General MacArthur, in announcing today the preliminary results of the battle, said the bitterest type of fighting has been going on since the Marines swung to the offensive in that sector.

Had Been On Defensive

Previously the Marines at Borgen Bay had been on the defensive against sharp counterattacks while other landing forces overran Cape Gloucester's two airfields and consolidated their Cape position.

Covering developments through Tuesday, the spokesman said the Marines had made some advances against a strong force of Nipponese but that progress was limited and the battling severe.

In the air, today's reports told of a 243-ton bombardment of invasion-menaced Madang, New Guinea, the damaging of two Japanese destroyers during the third carrier plane strike since Dec. 25 at Kavieng, New Ireland, and the downing of between 10 and 15 enemy planes during the latest American fighter sweep over Rabaul, New Britain.

Jap Positions Breaking

Along the New Guinea shoreline opposite the Cape Gloucester operation, Japanese positions on the coastal approach to Madang were deteriorating.

At Saidor, where U. S. Sixth Army elements landed Jan. 2, contact has been made with the enemy at Cape Iris, 10 miles to the northwest. At that point, the Allies are less than 50 miles from the shipping and supply base of Madang.

Japanese caught between Saidor and the Huon peninsula to the southeast were squeezed into a narrowing trap. On the peninsula,

JAPS VERY UNHAPPY

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP) — Premier Hideki Tojo of Japan has warned his top-ranking administrative officials that a feeling of "unhappiness and cheerlessness" is rising among the people and told them to watch what they say "so that fear will not be created among the people."

The Office of War information reported this statement today in the translation of a speech Tojo made earlier in the week which was broadcast by the Tokyo radio.

New Offensive Opened In Italy

Troops Smash Into Little "Siegfried"

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Jan. 6.— American and British infantry, plunging forward in a new offensive on a 10-mile front in the mountain maze before Cassino, advanced an average of a mile with the first momentum of their assault and are smashing into concrete pillbox defenses guarding the Germans' new Italian "Siegfried line," headquarters announced today.

All along the rugged front from Venafro to Rocca D'Evandro and astraddle the via Casilina to Rome the Nazis fiercely resisted the attack which was launched in a cold, driving rain before yesterday's daybreak.

American doughboys of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army bore the brunt of the assault north of the via Casilina, while British infantry struck south of that main traffic artery to Cassino and the Eternal City, 70 miles beyond.

"The Nazis poured thousands of rounds of artillery and mortar shells into the advancing Allies, and fire blazed from hundreds of enemy machine-gun nests.

An Allied officer said the only way to reduce the Germans' concrete pillboxes—the first encountered by Allied forces in Italy—was to charge into them frontally and peg hand grenades into the gun holes, killing the crew. In some cases a single crew was found operating two or three machine-guns covering approaches to the heights.

From noon yesterday, when the clouds lifted, waves of American A-36 Invader dive-bombers roared low over the front at 300 miles an hour, strafing and bombing the enemy's emplacements and in some instances causing the Germans to scatter wildly.

RAF Roars Out For New Blow

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 7 (AP) — RAF bombers roared toward Europe again early today, crossing the moon-lit channel in a staggered two-hour procession.

Shortly afterward the Berlin radio left the air, indicating that the fliers were heading for Germany.

The new attack came 24 hours after the RAF feinted the Germans out of position with a light force of Mosquito bombers which jabbed at ruined Berlin while the main force of giant Lancaster and Halifaxes attacked the Baltic port of Stettin, 75 miles to the northeast with more than 1,000 tons of bombs.

Germans Fall For Ruse

The air ministry disclosed that the Germans fell for the scheme, rushing their fighter packs to protect what is left of Berlin and leaving the route wide open for the heavy bombers to get through to Stettin. The city is one of the chief supply centers for German armies on the Leningrad and Finnish fronts.

The bombs, falling through a clear, moonlit sky, left broad areas of Stettin aflame. Tail gunners reported that en route home they could see the fires merging in a

Benes' Moscow Visit Sets Off Speculation

LONDON, Jan. 6. (AP)—The return to London from Moscow of Edouard Benes stirred speculation tonight that he might help Poland and Russia arrive at some sort of general understanding.

The Czechoslovak president-in-exile is fresh from signing in Moscow a Czech-Russian treaty which left the way open for Poland to join in. Benes is expected to confer with the Polish premier, Stainslaw Mikolajczyk, shortly before the latter's imminent departure for Washington.

While Russia and the exiled Polish government seemed farther apart than ever in their territorial dispute, it was noted that yesterday's Polish statement avoided direct mention of the boundary disagreement and indicated that resumption of relations would mean Polish underground cooperation with the Red Army.

Robbery Suspect At Abilene Released

LAKE CHARLES, La., Jan. 6 (AP) Sheriff Henry A. Reid said here this morning that he had authorized the release of a former bank robber being held at Abilene, Tex., authorities in connection with the Christmas eve robbery of the Sulphur branch of the Calcasieu Marine National bank.

Reid and deputy Cody Varnado went to Abilene last week to question the ex-convict and said this morning they did not have sufficient evidence to return him to Louisiana.

The release of this man left local authorities without any suspects in custody in connection with the $20,500 robbery of the bank.

High-Toned Titles Ditched And Real Work Plan Set Up

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (AP)—A new boss working in shirt sleeves took the news bureau of the Office of War information apart today and put the pieces back together again to look like a working newspaper office.

Dowsley Clark, veteran midwest newspaper man who became news bureau chief Jan. 1, literally peeled down to his vest to do the reorganizing job.

High-toned titles were junked. One sub-bureau known as the media section was abolished. Writing specialists were told they were just plain reporters, with a simple job of straightaway writing to do.

"The OWI news bureau was set up to get and distribute important news that develops in the war agencies," Clark said. "It's just a common, ordinary job of reporting. It's only horse sense to organize an office doing newspaper work like a newspaper office.

"The chief of the news bureau is simply the editor. The office that was known as the chief of the general news desk is nothing but an ordinary news editor. The writers' pool is just a bunch of reporters. What was called the domestic news desk is nothing but a regular copy desk to edit the news and make it make sense without errors."

Clark said he didn't know himself what the media section meant The program specialists in the media section were transferred to the reporting staff.

To Celebrate "Where Tokyo Was"

Halsey, Bristling For Good Fight, Says Jap Losses 10-1

By REMBERT JAMES
Associated Press Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6. — Admiral William F. Halsey, home on leave from his South Pacific command for the first time in 16 months said today that "when we get to Tokyo—where we're bound to get eventually—we'll have a little celebration where Tokyo was."

"The Japs don't like the way we're fighting and they're going to like it less," the admiral told a press conference while here for a short visit with his wife.

The admiral said he accepts that the European war must be won before huge amounts of material and men can be sent to the Pacific, but added that when that time comes," the Army, Navy and Marines, who are all very anxious and itching to go, will drive on through Japan proper."

He estimated 10 Japs are being killed to every American boy lost and said "the only good Jap is the one who has been dead six months."

When one reporter smilingly inquired whether it wasn't "unkind" for the American forces to kill so many Japs, Admiral Halsey laughed and said:

"I'm a very unkind man! The Japs are like rats when they build pill boxes, and they're verd hard to see.

"The Japs are good fighters, but any belief that they are supermen, possessed of extraordinary bravery and are not afraid to die, is not true.

Destroyed Jap Planes Pave Part Of Long Road To Tokyo

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

AN ADVANCE U. S. BASE IN CHINA, Dec. 22. (By Mail)—Fighting at the end of the war's longest supply line, Maj. Gen. Claire Chennault's bombers and fighters have paved with destroyed Japanese airplanes the first part of the road which will lead to that big moment when they start the bombardment of Tokyo.

Operating with gasoline that costs more than $20 a gallon by the time it is delivered to them, Chennault's fliers have managed to knock down so many more Japanese planes than they have lost that the comparison is one of Tokyo's most painful pieces of reverse lendlease propaganda. Japanese planes shot down by the various units range all the way from two or three to nearly a dozen to one.

Difficulties Overcome

Every advanced American airbase is a picture of difficulties met and overcome or sidestepped. Every piece of equipment must be carried at least part way by air. That means that runways must be prepared without big scale American machinery. Hangars for the most part are unheard of. Spare parts are treasured like rubies. Gasoline, although becoming increasingly plentiful, is nevertheless so precious that pilots and crew members have several times risked their lives to drag out a few tins or drums of gasoline from warehouses set afire by enemy action.

Fighting on this front has its weird aspects. There are no front lines of ground troops between the Japanese and American airbases, except in a few spots. The opposing airbases are within an hour's flight of each other. They are separated not so much by opposing armies as by terrain and the fact that neither side wants to put armies into this no-man's land because of the supply problem.

Yet these forces hammer away at each other, with the Americans steadily piling up advantages.

Gasoline Wastage Raids

As a sample, one American airbase had four alerts in 24 hours. Not a bomb was dropped by the enemy bombers, which came in just close enough so that American fighters in self defense had to take to the air to meet them. The Japanese then flew away. It was all part of their scheme of attempting to waste precious American fuel supplies by compelling the fighter planes to take off repeatedly during the day.

It was tricky strategy, but the Americans had the gas and the Japanese were not able to come in without the certainty of a fight.

Among the high scorers in this summary of several months was Col. D. L. Hill of Victoria, Tex.

Partial Score Sheet

Here is a partial score sheet of enemy planes shot down between June 3 and Dec. 10. The score does not include enemy planes destroyed in bombing operations against airports. It includes only planes shot down in air combat or in some instances in ground strafing operations where the destruction was by gunfire.

Advanced base fighting squadron—

The score for the fighter squadrons at the advanced base totalled: 328 confirmed in the air; 31 confirmed on the ground; 157 probables. Lt. H. K. Stuart of San Antonio, one confirmed in the air, one confirmed on the ground, one probable. (Returned to the U. S.)

Lt. C. D. Griffin of San Antonio, two confirmed in the air, two probables (deceased).

Capt. L. L. Jones of Mercedes, Tex., three confirmed in the air.

Admiral Presents Awards To Marines

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6. (U.P.)—Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander-in-chief of the Pacific fleet, made a surprise visit to the mainland recently and personally presented the Purple Heart to 20 Marines and 12 Navy personnel wounded in the invasion of Tarawa and the sinking of the USS Liscome Bay, the 12th naval district disclosed today.

The presentation ceremony was held at the U. S. Naval hospital in Oakland.

The Liscombe Bay, an escort carrier, was lost during the invasion of the Gilbert islands.

Marines who received the Purple Heart included: Sgt. Herman C. Bruton, Denison; Sgt. Elmer O. Jordan, Arlington; Pvt. Howard T. Davis, Goldthwaite; Pfc. Henry Mamacho Jaramillo, Galveston; Pvt. Bernie Lee Thomas, Dallas; Donald Arelius Cruse, El Paso.

Rites Held Here For Mrs. Floyd Hustead

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon in Calvary Baptist church for Mrs. Floyd Hustead, 47, route 2, Lubbock, with Rev. C. J. McCarty, assisted by Rev. Jeff Welch, officiating. Mrs. Hustead died early Thursday in a local hospital.

Burial was in Lubbock cemetery by Rix Funeral home.

Another Air Ace Arrives At Top

GUADALCANAL, Jan. 6. (U.P.)—Knocking down a Japanese plane during a fighter sweep over Rabaul harbor Jan. 3, Maj. Gregory (Pappy) Boyington, U. S. Marine flier from Okanogan, Wash., equalled the all-time American "ace of aces" record of 26 enemy planes, it was announced officially today.

The victory placed Boyington in a tie with Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, who gained his victories in World war I, and with Maj. Joseph J. Foss, of Sioux Falls, S. D., who shot down 26 Japanese planes in the South Pacific during World war II.

20 Since August

Twenty of Boyington's victories—all over Japanese—were gained in the South Pacific since last August. In one flight over Vella Lavella, Boyington bagged five Japanese and on Dec. 24, boosted his total by shooting down four Zercs over Rabaul, Japanese stronghold on New Britain.

Pervious to his South Pacific action, Boyington, flying with the American Volunteer group of Flying Tigers in China, shot down six enemy planes in 1941.

Boyington, who arrived in the South Pacific theater a year ago, was kept out of action for seven months by a broken leg, but return to action by organizing a "Black Sheep" squadron—composed of pilots nobody else wanted because of their inexperience—and welded it into one of the crack outfits of the battle zone.

Other leading South Pacific aces are Maj. Richard L. Bong, Popular, Wis., 21 planes; 1st Lt. Kenneth Walsh, Brooklyn, N. Y., 20; Maj. John L. Smith, Norfolk, Va., 19; Col. Neel Kearby, San Antonio, 19, and Maj. Marion E. Carl, Hubbard, Ore., 18½ planes.

Kearby brought his total to 19 on Monday when he downed a two-engined Japanese bomber in the morning, returned to his base, refueled and ent back into action to shoot down a Zero fighter.

Buckner Takes Over Leadership Of Club

In the first weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis club for 1944, T. E. Buckner, newly elected president, took charge Thursday noon in Lubbock hotel.

A charter member of the Lubbock Kiwanis club when it was organized 22 years ago, Buckner said the nucleus of today's membership of almost 175 men was formed when Lubbock was not larger than 6,000 population; that subscription to tenets of Kiwanis has progressively justified existence of the organization; that the challenge of 1944 lies ahead, with only one answer to continued success—service as an individual and as a club.

Committees Listed

In announcing a list of 17 committees and their personnel, Buckner asked that the Spiritual Aims and the Boys and Girls committees especially function "in a time when there is patent need for accepting responsibilities occasioned by stress of warfare and reflecting in a growing juvenile problem."

It was announced that a Ladies Night program would be given the night of Jan. 12 in Lubbock hotel; that W. L. Stangel was chairman of a committee to supply hosts and hostesses at the USO Jan. 17 through 23; that Kiwanis directors would meet at noon Friday in the Blue room of Lubbock hotel.

Visitors were Scott Crow of Lubbock, Granville Routh of Amarillo and Wayne Sudderth of Fort Worth.

Arizona passed 96 laws last year, fewer than any other state in the Union.

Guard Conference Is Conducted Here

A monthly conference of officers sergeants of all companies of the 39th battalion of the Texas State guard was held at battalion headquarters Wednesday night.

The conference course was held to furnish officers with new training aids, and to school them on requirements of the State guard to meet the training schedule set out by the War department, and the adjutant general's department of the state.

Officers and non-commissioned officers in attendance were: from Co. A, Lubbock, Capt. Walter F. Smith, 1st. Lt. Jack Thompson, 2nd Lt. Roy McEachern and 1st Sgt. Elmer Pattillo; from Co. B, Crosbyton, 1st Sgt. Loral A. Horne and Sgt. Loyd E. Fowler; from Co. C, Slaton, Capt. Wm. R. Sewell, 1st. Lt. M. G. Martin, 2nd Lt. Sam N. Gentry and 1st Sgt. Mudgett; from Co. D, Levelland, 1st. Lt. O. H. Harris, 2nd. Lt. H. B. Johnson; from Co. E, Plainview, Capt. Harry McCain, 1st. Lt. S. B. McClure, 2nd Lt. Elliott, 1st. Sgt. Bier and the company medical officer, 1st. Lt. W. J. Williams; from Co. F, Tahoka, Capt. Ernest R. Edwards, 1st. Lt. H. O. Hargett, 2nd Lt. H. L. Roddy and 1st. Sgt. Gurley; from Co. G, Floydada, 1st. Lt. Harry Morckel, 1st. Sgt. Fuqua and Sgt. Grady Walker.

Battalion officers attending were Maj. B. C. McCasland, commanding the 39th battalion, Capt. T. Bruce Craig, battalion executive officer, Capt. Helmut Klaus, battalion operations and training officer, 1st. Lt. Wm. Paul Willis, battalion transportation officer, 1st. Lt. Wm. C. Myers, battalion intelligence officer, 1st. Lt. Ed H. Bergman, battalion supply officer, and 1st. Lt. C. M. (Chick) Trout, battalion adjutant and C. O. of headquarters detachment. Members of the headquarters detachment present were 1st. Lt. J. M. Moreau, medical administrative officer, Battalion Sgt. Major J. C. Hughes, 1st Sgt. Lester O. White, T/Sgt. Harold Kendrick and S/Sgt. Walker Moreau.

The program included the showing of an Army training film.

Former LAAF Officer Gets Randolph Post

Lt. Col. Ralph G. Davis, former head of the finance department at Lubbock Army Air field, is now budget and fiscal director of the Central Flying Training command at Randolph field.

One of the original group of officers who came to Lubbock to open the west base, he received his promotion to his present rank at LAAF.

After leaving Lubbock, Lt. Col. Davis was transferred to Washington. In his present assignment he controls the distribution of payrolls and funds for all Army Air forces installations for the central third of the United States.

WAGES INCREASED

NEW YORK, Jan. 6. (AP)—The CIO Electrical Radio and Machine Workers of America announced today that the War Labor board had authorized wage increases for approximately 13,000 white-collar employes of Westinghouse Electrical and Manufacturing company to cover overtime work.

Have a Coca-Cola = Let's be friendly

...a way to win a welcome wherever you go

Where you find democracy, you find the feeling of friendliness, of give-and-take—the spirit of neighborliness. It's made up of little things that mark a way of life: sports, fair play, movies, comics and swing music. A simple phrase like Have a "Coke" turns strangers into friends, the same in both hemispheres. Around the globe, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes,—has become the high-sign of the good-hearted.

It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke".

Several States Set Aside Funds For Post-War Use

(By The Associated Press)

The job prospects of the service man returning after the war brightened tonight as a survey disclosed that a number of states had financial surpluses lined up to help him get a start toward earning a living in civilian life.

Virtually all the states reporting in a cross-section of the country disclosed surpluses already on hand. Some had definite post-war plans for its use. Others were optimistic that they soon would have similar programs.

Wants Fund "Locked Up"

The subject came up when Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York called upon the legislature to "lock up" the state's expected 1944 surplus of $140,000,000 in a special fund for post-war reconstruction and employment.

North Carolina's general assembly has established a $20,000,000 fund for post-war purposes and has provided legislation that the amount may be increased unless some emergency situation should arise.

Gov. Edward Martin of Pennsylvania has predicted that his state's surplus will reach $25,000,000 by the end of the next fiscal period, and while the legislature has not taken official action regarding it, political circles said it was expected the fund would be used for post-war work.

New Jersey's legislature in 1943 took no action on a so-called "rainy day" bill to set aside a surplus for post-war needs, but Sen. Howard Eastwood, who will be president of the 1944 state Senate, said today the majority of the legislators favored such a plan. He said he expected one would be adopted in 1944.

The Connecticut legislature in 1943 authorized the setting aside of surpluses to finance a post-war program and to avoid the necessity of higher taxes.

Illinois, with a general revenue surplus of $73,396,988, has invested $45,000,000 in war bonds, although no definite post-war plan has been adopted. Gov. Dwight Green asked at the last legislative session, however, that the surplus be untouched, and the administration forces defeated all attempts to divert the funds.

Wisconsin Has Fund

The Wisconsin legislature last year set aside proceeds from a 60 per cent income surtax on 1942 incomes to create a veterans' recognition board for aid to returning service men. The legislature froze these proceeds, amounting to about $7,000,000, and voted not to renew the 60 per cent surtax on the grounds that there was a good surplus on hand.

Indiana's general fund has a balance of approximately $32,000,000, as of Dec. 31, but no official action has been taken toward post-war use. Some state officials have suggested investment in war bonds.

Virginia, with an expected surplus of $19,000,000 by June, will have a legislative session starting next week. Gov. Colgate W. Darden has not yet announced his recommendations.

Maryland, which had a surplus of about $10,000,000, spent approximately $8,000,000 for war and emergency funds, bonuses for state employes, post-war construction and reduction of real estate taxes. The governor's office said action similar to that in New York was not planned at present because the surplus was "negligible."

Production Of Meat In Substantial Gain

CHICAGO, Jan. 6. (AP)—Meat production last week was substantially above that of the same week a year ago, the War Meat board reported today.

Pork showed the chief increase, 18 per cent. The slaughter of 199,000,000 pounds last week, however, showed a drop of 2,000,000 pounds from the previous week.

Beef slaughter of 109,000,000 pounds was up 15 per cent over a year ago, but 7,000,000 pounds less than the previous week. Veal production totaled 10,000,000 pounds, up 1,000,000 from the comparative week a year ago and 3,000,000 pounds over the previous week.

Dottie Shocked At Charge Of Being Production Hazard

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 6. (AP)—"A hazard to war production, she calls me," exclaimed Dorothy Lamour incredulously today, threatening to break from the confines of her sarong. "Well, I like that," only it was plain she didn't.

Miss Lamour had just been informed of unionist Zelam E. Monahana's statement before the Cleveland federation of labor last night that she had been told the actress "was responsible for the loss of thousands of man hours when she went through war plants and stopped work."

Workers Speeded Up?

"The only times I've ever been in defense planes were on bond selling tours, made at the request of the Treasury department," Miss Lamour said. "I never talked to the workers except during their lunch hours and if anybody lost a minute of time because of my visits, I don't know about it."

Dotty has letters from several plant managers declaring that production had been stepped up after she had given the boys and girls the old pep talk treatment.

"Plain Silly"

"War plant workers are serious-minded people," she continued, "and the idea they'd stop work just because an actress happened around is plain silly."

Miss Monahan, a member of the office workers' union made her statement in citing what she called an example of lost production attributable to causes other than strikes.

"It's too bad," Miss Lamour concluded, "but the next time Secretary Morgenthau asks me to go on a bond selling tour I'm going, whether Miss Monahan likes it or not."

Answer Filed In Newton's Appeal

E. A. Bills, attorney of Littlefield and a special prosecutor in the assault to murder cases of Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Newton, said in Lubbock Thursday afternoon the state has filed its argument in connection with the appeal of Dr. Newton from a seven-year sentence, but that "supplementary" filings will be made this week.

Dr. Newton was convicted of having shot Dr. Roy E. Hunt, Littlefield surgeon, the early morning of May 21, 1942, near Littlefield. Mrs. Newton's trial, not set, will be called for setting in the current term of court in Hale county.

Newton's Arguments

Dr. Newton had charged in his appeal argument that the trial court had erred in failing to grant a continuance so that certain witnesses from Houston might testify that Dr. and Mrs. Newton spent the entire night of May 21 in Houston, approximately 700 miles from the Littlefield shooting scene.

Bills said the state contends the defense did not show sufficient dilignce in getting those witnesses; further, that when Dr. and Mrs. Newton successfully moved for severance (they had been jointly charged) and his case was set for trial ahead of hers, that was an indication Dr. Newton was ready for trial; that he should have asked for a contuance before moving for severance, if he wanted a continuance.

Rites Set At Slaton For Mrs. Eva Brown

Final tributes will be paid Mrs. Eva V. Brown of Whiteface Methodist church in Slaton. Mrs. Brown, 76, died early Thursday morning in Mercy hospital at Slaton following a stroke of paralysis.

Mrs. Brown had lived at Canyon and other points in this territory since 1913, coming here from Oklahoma.

She is survived by her husband, Charles R. Brown; a brother, C. C. Schoonover, Sharon, Okla.; two sisters, Mrs. L. M. Roberts, Albuquerque, N. M.; and Mrs. John Newman, Gentry, Mo.; three sons, Curtis E. Brown, Slaton; Orville B. Brown, Whiteface and Cecil Brown, who is in the Army; two daughters, Mrs. Berna Corbett, Supply, Okla.; and Mrs. Helen Brock, Whiteface; and 11 grand children.

ESSENTIAL ACTIVITY

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—Fred Kirschbaum, Brooklyn truck driver who after being classified 1-A said he didn't mind but that his nine children would obey no one but him, was put in 2-A today. The reason given for the reclassification: Essential civilian activity.

Experiments Of Fliers Pay Off

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

AN ADVANCED ALLIED AIR BASE IN ITALY, Jan. 6. (AP)—The invader pilots of the 12th Air Support command wrote two new chapters in the coordination of air and ground attacks today.

First they covered a Fifth Army attack when the ceiling was zero.

Then they laid down a "rolling barrage" ahead of the doughboys.

Flying through the kind of weather that usually cancels all missions, the A-36s caught the Germans flatfooted and bombed and strafed gun positions and troop concentrations on Mount Porchia and La Chiaia in central Italy—just ahead of the infantrymen driving toward Cassino.

Clocklike Precision

Hour after hour with clocklike precision the invaders flew sortie after sortie "on the deck" under the heavy clouds, striking at advancing targets selected by a forward controller on the spot. Every plane and every pilot returned safely.

The decision to take a stab at supporting the doughboys despite the weather was made by Lt. Col. Harold Kofahl of Fellows, Calif., and Lt. Col. Borr E. Newton of San Antonio, the commanding officers of two fighter-bomber groups.

All the pilots could see were occasional scattering troops and several large bursts of orange flame, indicating bomb hits on ammunition dumps, but at sundown Fifth Army officers sent word that the experimental operation had been "very successful."

Mission leaders included Major Justin C. Gunnison of San Anselmo, Calif., and Major John W. Harsh of Eldorado, Texas.

Death Of Advertising Man Is Investigated

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 6. (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker stepped today into an investigation of the death of George D. Wilcox, 48-year-old Detroit advertising executive who left a series of notes saying he intended to kill himself after losing $30,000 to Toledo gamblers.

In a formal statement at Columbus, the governor ordered Lucas county officials to forward him a full report of their investigation and told them to close "all gambling establishments and keep them closed."

Unless that is done at once, the governor said, the attorney general will begin an investigation which will include "failure of officials to enforce the laws."

Bricker's order was directed to prosecutor Joel S. Rhinefort and Sheriff Charles L. Hennessy of Lucas county. They already were going forward with an investigation of the death of Wilcox, who was found in his room in a downtown hotel late yesterday.

Man Wanted Ashes Sent To Germany

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 6. (AP) — The ashes of Emil Weil, paint company owner, must await the end of the war to find their final resting place.

Weil died Dec. 28. His will directed his ashes be sent to a brother, Carl Weil, at 323 Adolf Hitler St., Frieburg, Germany. The will left four-fifths of the estate to the brother and a sister, also in Germany.

The trustee, a Pittsburgh bank, placed the urn containing Weil's ashes in a cemetery vault, then notified the alien property custodian of the terms of the will.

Heavy Increase In Sales Shown

AUSTIN, Jan. 6. (U.P.)—Sales of 889 independent retailers — excluding department stores — in Texas were up 27 per cent in November, 1943, compared with November, 1942, but down two per cent from October, the University of Texas business research bureau reported today.

For the first 11 months of 1943, sales were 23 per cent over those for the comparable period of 1942, the bureau's report, prepared in cooperation with the U. S. census bureau, indicated.

Compared with November, 1942, the highest increase—51 per cent—among non-durable goods lines was reported by men's clothing and furnishings stores, followed by family clothing stores and women's ready-to-wear stores, 43 per cent.

Others Show Big Gains

Florists reported a 41 per cent gain, dry goods and general merchandise stores 27 per cent, filling stations 24 per cent, general stores 23 per cent, drug stores 16 per cent, and food stores and shoe stores 13 per cent each.

In the durable goods trades, sales gains were reported as follows: jewelry stores 58 per cent, motor vehicle dealers 39 per cent, farm implement dealers 38 per cent, lumber-building materials dealers 26 per cent, hardware stores 12 per cent, and furniture stores six per cent.

Dallas independent retailers reported a 50 per cent increase in dollar volume over November, 1942. Houston reported an advance of 41 per cent, Fort Worth 37 per cent, El Paso 26 per cent, San Antonio 24 per cent, and Amarillo eight per cent.

OPA Grants Extension To Shoe Factories

BOSTON, Jan. 6. (AP)—Shoe manufacturers have been given 12 additional days in which to sell their substitute-sole products at current prices, under new OPA regulations, the New England shoe and leather association announced today in a statement that said OPA had "earned the highest commendation of our industry" in allowing the extension.

December 28, OPA ruled that new maximum prices on the substitute-sole shoes would go into effect on Jan. 11 for manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, the new prices to be "somewhat lower" than current sales.

Today's announcement said OPA had agreed to set the manufacturers' date back to Jan. 24 and the date for wholesalers and retailers to March 1.

JUST SCHOOL BOYS

BUT YOU TOO CAN AID THE WAR EFFORT!

Getting a Newspaper Route Is the Best Way for You to Aid the War Effort, Earn Money and Learn Business Methods.

That's sound advice for any ambitious teen age boy who wants to make the best possible use of his spare time. For, by serving a home-delivery route for this newspaper he will have several unique advantages.

As one of our carrier-salesmen, he will gain valuable business experience, earn worthwhile route profits, meet people and make friends, develop manly habits and, above all-render a highly essential wartime news service to his community and county.

If you have or know a boy who wants to get ahead, advise him to inquire of our Circulation Department, about a route.

AVALANCHE-JOURNAL

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

ACCORDING to law, it takes at least three to make a riot.

POST-WAR PLANNING

ASPECTS of the adjustment of military personnel to civilian life are discussed these days by lecturers, statesmen and writers. Their interests lie in civilian economy, in surveying unemployment and job prospectors, in keeping inflation down and long-range study of business.

The Woman's Angle is interested in the economical phase of this reconversion but she also is interested in another problem and that is the matter of families getting acquainted again after the war.

There is a juke box song, "There'll Be Some Changes Made," that fits in with what we are trying to say. War is a time of change and development for everyone and that goes for the ones on the home front as well as those who are fighting the battles.

ALWAYS THE SAME

LETTERS written by officers and men from all over the world to the folks at home have indicated they are longing for the day when peace comes and they may return to their homes and businesses and take up living they interrupted to answer their country's call. While they realize their lives are undergoing great changes, they want to believe that everything is the same at home.

When these men come home they will find that many personal readjustments have taken place, not all of which are unpleasant, by any means. We know many a woman right here in Lubbock who has grown up since her husband went to war. She has accepted responsibility, perhaps taken a job, changed associations and has done thinking that has made her more interesting to her family and her associates and it seems to us that her husband will find her more attractive when he comes home.

Some of these young women had never driven their cars in the garage after nightfall, had never paid a bill, never shopped for week end groceries, never worried about a fuse blowing out or turned a water cutoff in their lives. They had no idea where to pay the taxes or how to keep up with their checks. They knew nothing about gardening, canning or managing a household alone. But necessity has made them learn and they are doing beautifully.

BUT THERE are two sides to this question and of course you know that not every man who comes home will find his wife anxious to understand his "black" moods, his restless nature, his problem of putting on civvies and adopting a civilian's viewpoint once more.

A story Mrs. Roosevelt told when she returned from her visit Down Under illustrates this point. A soldier who had leave to go home felt despondent, rather than elated. "I don't know whether I want to go home," he said. "I don't think I'm fit to go home. For five months I haven't done anything but kill. People back home won't want me. I've changed too much."

Such a soldier needs the love and comfort that comes from an understanding companion. One who would say, "Let's not talk about it unless you want to get it out of your system forever. Killing is war and it's over now. Let's forget it."

ANOTHER SIDE

THE SOCIETIES of human relationships are not the only ones anxious to see how the so-called "war marriages" will work out. Our pages have carried stories of hundreds of marriages of couples who met while the bridegroom was in training or was stationed as an officer at a base near the bride's home town. While many of these unions will be permanent, others will end in the divorce courts, as indeed several already have, because the couples decided there was no use in trying to make a go of marriage. The foundations on which their marriages were built proved temporary.

No marriage expert, no Dorothy Dix in any sense of the word, nevertheless we have made several observances and one of them is this: Not all of the divorces can be laid to the change in feelings of the soldiers but to a "what difference does it make, it's my life" attitude on the part of the young wives. Young women who tossed their wedding rings aside as soon as their husbands left for foreign service and dated until time for their return may have to answer several questions. Their attitudes have puzzled friends and relatives.

Yes, a lot of friends and families will have to get acquainted all over again when this war is done. And while there will be interest in these adjustments, there also will be heartaches.

In Sunday's woman's pages we are presenting a message to soldiers' wives from Roger Babson which should be of much interest to Lubbock women who are seriously thinking of the postwar world. Watch for it.

Lend-Lease Credited With Big Role In Soviet Gains

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (AP) — President Roosevelt today credited lend-lease equipment from the United States with playing a major role in the savage Red Army offensive which is hurling the Germans out of Russia, and in the devastation of German war centers from the skies.

It will be an equally big factor in the Anglo-American plunge into Europe in this year of "decisive actions," the president told Congress in his 13th report on lend-lease since the program was started in March, 1941.

RUSSIAN RECEIPTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (U.S.) — American lend-lease aid to Soviet Russia from December, 1941, through October, 1943, included:

Nearly 7,000 planes.

More than 3,500 tanks and 185,000 trucks, jeeps, motorcycles and other vehicles.

1,790,000 short tons of food and other agricultural products, including 25,500 tons of butter.

5,500,000 pairs of Army boots.

16,600,000 yards of woolen cloth for the Soviet armed forces.

251,000 tons of chemicals.

144,000 tons of explosives.

1,198,000 tons of steel.

342,000 tons of nonferrous metals.

611,000 tons of petroleum products.

In 33 months, to Dec. 1, 1943, lend-lease aid to the Allies has totalled $18,608,000,000, the report shows, reaching its peak last August and tapering off somwhat since.

Munitions To Britain

Almost half of the aid to the British has been in munitions . . . Lend-lease planes and bombs are scorching German-held Europe daily.

The report, reflecting strong optimism about the war, looked into the future. Mr. Roosevelt envisaged an international agreement which would give all nations equal access to the world's oil supply. The U. S., he said, also will take into account in the final lend-lease settlement its investments in airfields abroad, thus replying indirectly to some public comment that America should retain a grip on world-wide air bases for the sake of its own security.

Reply To Criticism

The president also turned the report into a general reply to some criticisms, especially those arising from the battlefront tour made by five senators. In this respect he said:

U. S. lend-lease items are well-marked to show they originated in the U.S.A.—countering a contention that the British distributed some as their own.

Oil and gasoline is allocated to civilians in North Africa only for essential purposes and then at a rate less than the A-card holder gets here.

Benefits Beyond Price

There were no new figures given on the amount of reverse lend-lease. Mr. Roosevelt said however that the principal benefit has been that the equipment itself enabled America's Allies to strike crippling blows at the Axis and that "is a benefit beyond price."

Meantime, the ballooning Allied effort will mean a continued tight belt on the home front, the president indicated. He singled out the gasoline situation by saying that while Britain will bear the burden of supply in the Mediterranean theatre, so much will be needed elsewhere that motorists needn't look for any increase in their rations this year.

Lawson Rites Set At Bosqueville Saturday

Funeral services will be held in Bosqueville, Tex., Saturday for Mrs. W. D. Lawson, 74, who died Thursday morning in Waco. Mrs. Lawson, who with her husband, resided in Lubbock from 1925 to 1935, is the mother of Mrs. Ed Terrell, 1915 Ninth street, whom she was visiting when her husband, W. D. Lawson died in October. She had been in failing health the last six years.

Survivors include, besides the daughter in Lubbock, four sons, H. G. Lawson, W. D. Lawson, jr., and R. N. Lawson, all of Lubbock, and B. W. Lawson, of Hearne, Tex.; and three other daughters, Mrs. J. W. Clark of Waco, Mrs. C. V. Smith of Bosqueville, and Mrs V. L. Lawson of Biloxi, Miss.

SUPER-CITY SOUGHT

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 6 (AP) — Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels has started competition among 150 of Germany's best architects to design "Europe's greatest city for ten million persons" on the site of devastated Berlin, it was learned here today.

When EXHAUSTION leads to Headache

Westerners Win Pair Over Lamesa, 28-27 And 50-32

The Lubbock Westerners added two more wins to the right side of the basketball ledger Thursday night at the local gym, the Westerner B team nosing out the Lamesa Golden Tornado B team 28 to 27 on a sensational rally, then pulling away fast to win the A game on the card, 50 to 32.

The B game was the thriller of the pair, won in the last 13 seconds by a field goal from Johnny Pearson from well out beyond the foul line. It was by the far the most spectacular game of the evening and kept the fans on edge.

The feature attraction of the game provided thrills, but found the Westerners storming away to an early lead and holding it all the way. It was some some sensational shooting by Jerry Crawford that gave the Westerners their comfortable lead early in the ball game, then the steady stream of field goals from the fingers of Marion Manderson that kept the locals out in front.

Manderson Tops Scorers

Manderson was the high point man for the night, dropping in eight field goals from all angles to amass 16 points. Crawford finished second in the scoring race, getting six field goals and a free pitch for 13 points. Four of his field goals, and the free pitch, came in the first period a sthe Westerners rolled to a 18 to 8 lead in the first quarter.

The game started slowly with Lamesa gaining the lead on Tabor's free toss early. Crawford then tied the score at 1 to 1. Cope made it 2 to 1 on another free pitch, then Billingsley again tied the game at 2-2 with a free pitch. Burl Gene Moore then started the Westerners off with a donation goal, Crawford hit three goals in parid order, then after Manderson and Moore had hit field goals, Crawford hit another to give the Westerners a 15 to 2 lead.

It was Manderson and Cope that went on scoring sprees in the second period and at the halftime, the Westerners held a 33 to 14 lead over the visitors.

Hawkins Leads Rally

Hawkins paced a rally by the Lamesa club in the last half, getting five field goals and a free pitch, all in the final half to pace the scoring for the losers with 11 points, two better than Rhodes and four better than Tabor.

The opener was a thriller in the last half, but found the Dawson county lads roaring away to a 17 to 8 lead in the first half, and seemed to be well on the road to a victory.

Coach Dixie White's kids came back with blood in their eye in the last half and during the third period roared into an 18-19 tie with the Lamesa five. Lubbock had eased into a 22 to 21 lead at the end of the third period.

With the timer's watch ticking off the final seconds, Pearson dropped one in from behind the foul line for the winning goal just 13 seconds ahead of the timer's gun.

Lamesa stars took off scoring honors in this game with O. Roberts nosing out his team mate, Horton, for the honors with four field goals and four donation tosses for 12 points while Horton accounted for 11 points with five field goals and a free pitch.

Frogs Open Cage War At Arkansas Tonight

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Jan. 6. (AP)—The University of Arkansas basketball squad, seasoned by an intersectional jaunt, and Texas Christian university, open their Southwest Conference competition here tomorrow night.

The Porkers have the best preconference season record of all the loop's teams. While Arkansas was winning five of seven warmup games, Texas Christian was dropping six out of nine.

The Texas meet in a second game Saturday night.

Nagurski Comes Out Of His Retirement

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn., Jan. 6. (U.P.)—Bronko Nagurski has decided to come out of athletic retirement after his successful venture back into pro football with the Chicago Bears late in the 1943 season.

He announced last night that he was going back to the wrestling game against Paul Jones of Houston, Tex., in a match at Minneapolis Tuesday night.

Finance, 498th And 84th Win Cage Tilts

Squadron League basketball at Lubbock Army Air Field Thursday night provided thrills galore with the 495th Squadron nosing out the Finance Department five 24 to 22 in the fading minutes of the opening game. In the second game, 498th Squadron roared away in the last half to win 38 to 28 over the 1017 Guard Squadron while 84th Base Headquarters romped off with the third game, beating the Medical Detachment 66 to 37 in the feature game.

The first game was the thriller of the night, but may prove a costly one to the Post team tonight in it's battle with South Plains Army Air Field. Late in the ball game, Lt. Wyllis Reece went out of the game with a broken finger. Reece is a star of the regular post team, and was playing with the Finance Department in the Squadron League.

Scoring honors for the night went to Elrod, 495th, who dropped in three field goals and six free pitches for 12 points. McNeely of the Finance Department paced his team with nine points while Greiser of the winners finished with eight points.

The game was a nip and tuck affair with the lead changing often and kept one of the best cage crowds of the season in a wild uproar all the way.

The second game started off as a duplicate of the first, and the score was tied four times in the first half, but late in the game, the 498th Squadron began to pull away and were never headed off in spite of a wild rally by the Guardsmen in the closing minutes. In a wild first half finish, both sides scored in the last 22 seconds to reach the half in a deadlock.

Scoring honors for the night went to Harris of the winners, getting eight field goals for 16 points to nose out Volz who dropped in six field goals and two free tosses for 14 points.

Fletcher carried off scoring honors for the Guardsmen with 10 points. Bowles and Harrell each played great ball for the losers, accounting for 13 more of the Guards points between them.

Pryor accounted for half of the 84th Base Headquarters five in their runaway race with the Medical Detachment, accounting for 33 points in the final game. Foll paced the Medicos with 14 points, but the outcome of the game was never in doubt after the early minutes.

Grid Officials Get Hearing On Appeals

CHICAGO, Jan. 6. (U.P.)—National Professional Football League Commissioner Elmer Layden said today that George P. Marshall, president of the Washington Redskins, and Ralph Brizzolara, general manager of the Chicago Bears, will appeal their $500 fines for their dispute at the league playoff game.

Layden said he received notice of intention to appeal from both men and said he would grant them separate hearings by appointment.

Marshall and Brizzolara were fined after Brizzolara ordered the removal of Marshal from the Bears' side of the field during the game in which the Chicago Club won the professional title.

Chisox Mound Ace To Marry Chicago Girl

CHICAGO, Jan. 6. (AP)—Orval Grove, who in his first full year, with the Chicago White Sox was the club's leading pitcher, will be married Saturday to Catherine Sloan, 22, of Chicago.

The 24 year old Sox hurling ace, who won 15 games and lost nine last season, was rejected at the induction center last spring and placed in 4-F because of knee injuries.

Notre Dame's 1943 football team played before 504,000 fans.

SPAAF Gridders To Hold Grid Banquet

Seeking their third straight basketball victory of the season against the team that's always toughest for them to beat, South Plains Army Air field's cagers will pair off with the quintet from Lubbock Army Air field at 8 o'clock Friday night at the SPAAF Recreation hall.

The game will immediately follow a banquet at the Officers' mess for the 1943 SPAAF football squad, its coaches and mangers. The squadmen will be guests of officers of the field for the dinner.

Capt. Nathan B. Eubank, athletic officer at SPAAF and head coach of the football team, will present 37 gold bracelets inscribed with individual names to members of the squad. A large number of officers planned to attend the dinner in honor of the grid squad, which received considerable mention for its fighting spirit. One member of the squad, S/Sgt. Marion Rogers, was named to a guard spot on the Associated Press All-American service team.

The basketball game will give LAAF a chance to even its series with SPAAF, which defeated LAAF 54-44 in the first game between the two. SPAAF previously had defeated the Texas Tech Engineer team in one game. SPAAF lost its first game of the season to the Engineers.

The first SPAAF-LAAF game was a thriller all the way, with SPAAF forging ahead on a field goal to win in the last 30 seconds of play. Big John Kline, SPAAF forward who formerly starred at Ohio university, scored 22 points in the game for the highest scoring mark.

SPAAF's starting lineup for Friday night probably will include Kline and All-American Leason "Stormy" McCloud at forwards.

Charles Conley will play center and Ray Cagni and Ed Kalfain will start at the guard posts. Mcloud played collegiate basketball at the University of Colorado, Conley at Springfield, Mass., college, Cagni at West Virginia university and Kalfain at the University of San Francisco.

The game is expected to be touch-and-go, with both teams polishing up their scoring punch in preparation for beginning of the all-Lubbock basketball league between SPAAF, LAAF, Texas Tech and the Tech Engineers, which begins Jan. 12 with a game between the Engineers and LAAF at the Tech gym.

The league play will continue in a round-robin until the latter part of February, when a tournament will pit the teams against each other at Tech gym Feb. 25, 26 and 28.

In a prelude to Friday night's rivalry between SPAAF and LAAF, the SPAAF Medical Detachment basketballers defeated the LAAF Medical Detachment five 49-24 in a game Wednesday night. SPAAF led all the way and turned the last half into a rout of the hapless LAAF Medics.

Aggies Open Tonight Against SMU Cagers

COLLEGE STATION, Tex., Jan. 6. (AP)—With but one six-footer in the starting line-up, Joe Atlas of Houston, Coach Manning Smith's Texas Aggies open their 1944 Southwest Conference cage season here tomorrow night against Southern Methodist University.

Others on the starting team will be Mike Salibo and Max Mohnke, both of Houston, Charles Ekas of Kilgore and Steve King of Denton. Several Aggie football players may see action.

Childress Army Five, New Mexico Scheduled By Tech

Dates for three more basketball games for Texas Tech's Red Raiders were announced Thursday by Athletic Director Morley Jennings, and a possible date for a fourth game was added. Two of the games will be played on the Texas Tech court and two in Albuquerque.

The Red Raiders will go to the New Mexico city for a pair of games with New Mexico university on Feb. 4 and 5. The date for the New Mexico five to play in Lubbock was not settled, but the Lobos will play one game here on either Jan. 22 or 29.

The remaining game on the home schedule will bring to Lubbock the fast Childess Army Air Field Officers five on Jan. 19.

The local warmup games here with Childress and possibly New Mexico will be played before the Red Raiders open the league play with Lubbock Army Air field at the LAAF gym Jan. 25.

The organization of the four team league to comprise the three service units of Lubbock and the Red Raiders was completed Wednesday and will end in time for the staging of a double elimination tournament at the Texas Tech gymnasium for the city championship among the four teams of the local cage league.

Los Angeles Open To Resume Play Friday

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 6. (AP)—The winner of the $12,500 Los Angeles Open golf championship, resuming tomorrow at the Wilshire Country Club, may come from the select ranks of touring topnotch professionals, but there are several real threats among those who have been getting in their winter shots right here.

Ellsworth Vines, for instance, of Olan Dutra. Another is Lloyd Mangrum, Ryder Cup member. And then there's Byron Nelson and Craig Wood. They've all been burning up the links recently.

There was no action today after Wednesday's 36-hole qualifying round. Medalist honors of 72-70—142 were won by Harry Bassler, Fox Hills professional.

After 18-hole rounds tomorrow and Saturday the field will be cut to 60 for Sunday and Monday.

Dallas Boxer To Go Back Into Pro Ring

HOT SPRING, Ark., Jan. 6. (AP)—J. D. Turner, young Dallas, Tex., heavyweight recently discharged from the Army, began conditioning today preparatory to returning to the ring.

The powerful 220-pound youngster, who dropped a decision to Billy Conn shortly before going into the service, said he was beginning heavy training for early bouts in Southwestern cities.

Hunters took 711,801 animal furs in the state of Indiana during 1939.

Coaching School To Use Southwest Coach

BRYAN, Tex., Jan. 6. (AP)—Directors of the Texas High School Coaches Association will meet in Austin Saturday to select instructors and consider the location of this year's coaching school, Association Secretary-Treasurer Bill Carmichael said today.

Carmichael said a poll made of the membership on what coaches members wanted as instructors favored the Southwest and that a selection would be made from that section.

He said the association had decided to go ahead with plans for an All-Star football game as usual, considering it as an "incentive to football," although war conditions made players difficult to obtain.

Evans Denies Rumors Cats Seek SA Berth

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 5. (U.P.)—Southern Association Baseball League President William G. "Billy" Evans, today spiked a rumor that Fort Worth may replace Knoxville in the Southern Association next season.

The rumor had risen with a story in the Sporting News, baseball publication, in which Fort Worth Manager Rogers Hornsby was quoted as "exploring the possibility of Fort Worth taking the place of Knoxville in the Southern Association for the duration."

Evans said today the story was absurd. "The Southern Association is perfectly satisfied with the circuit as it is now constituted. Knoxville playing under the lights at the close of last season did a remarkable business from an attendance standpoint and proved one of the best cities in the circuit.

"I am sure there is nothing to the Fort Worth angle as a possible successor to Knoxville. It's just another of those 'hot stove league' angles that came up during the off season."

Superiority In The Air

USUALLY an easy way to start an argument among military men, as well as among men not so military, is to ask: "Can airpower win the war?"

A minority of highly competent opinion still insists vigorously that, with sufficient opportunity, airpower can win the war. This view holds that, first Germany and then Japan, could be beaten to their knees with the airplane so that they would be forced to receive, without resistance, the landing forces which would occupy those nations.

The majority of conservative opinion, however, is well agreed that the final knockout punches will have to be delivered from land and sea—chiefly land, in the case of Germany, and chiefly sea, in the case of Japan. This opinion prevails in the conduct of the present war.

Even so, there is a wide disagreement on the proposition of whether airpower could, of itself, win the war. But there is one fact on which there is virtually no disagreement. It is the fact that without airpower it is extremely doubtful whether the Allies could win. This is an opinion which admits that there could be little hope of successful landing operations in western Europe without the preliminary aerial assault to soften defenses. This represents virtually the unanimous opinion that to the aerial arm belongs the credit for enabling surface forces to get into position for the knockout. It is an opinion that acknowledges, in a large sense, that hopes for the final crushing victory to which the Allies are dedicated rest basically upon the superiority of their airpower.

Therefore, the report the other day by Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Forces, becomes one that is tremendously encouraging to the Allied hopes. Without revealing exact figures as to the number of planes now actually in fighting service, General Arnold made clear that the air force has attained enormous proportions. Its strength is growing steadily at an accelerating rate. And, as he points out, while the Allied airpower grows stronger, there are "significant trends" to support the belief that the German Luftwaffe is growing weaker. Then he adds the highly significant remark: "What American and Royal Air Force plane bombers can do to the whole German war machine, once the German fighter force is rendered impotent, needs no comment."

True, none of this supplies an answer which would go unchallenged to the question of whether airpower, alone, might win this war. But it gives added support to the fact, already generally acknowledged, that victory would be extremely doubtful without the Allies's overwhelming superiority in the air.

Dr. S. J. Underwood

ANOTHER vacancy in the thinning ranks of the old-fashioned "family doctor" occurred with the death this week of Dr. S. J. Underwood, greatly loved pioneer physcician in Hale Center.

It is difficult to think of any physician on the South Plains who fits more perfectly the picture of "family doctor," with all of its better connotations, than did Doctor Underwood. To thousands of people in and near Hale Center during the past 35 years, Doctor Underwood has symbolized the better attributes of the entire medical profession—and to say that he has represented his profession with honor and distinction is to be guilty of under-statement.

As would be expected, Doctor Underwood has been a leader and a builder in his community as well as a healer. Due in no small degree to his pioneering efforts, his county has become one of the leading dairying areas of Texas. Also standing as a monument to his memory is the annual Octogenarian banquet which he originated several years ago as a means of honoring people of Hale county 80 years of age and older, and at which he has been the official host each year since. This is an event which undoubtedly will be perpetuated, but which never can be quite the same now that Doctor Underwood has gone.

Doctor Underwood truly was one of those of whom it can be said that the world is a better place because he has lived in it.

A New ersey man is suing for divorce because his bride broke a bottle of champagne on his head on their wedding day. It would seem that he objected to being launched upon the matrimonial sea in a formal manner.

The One Minute Sermon

Therefore it shall come to pass, that as all good things are come upon you, which the Lord your God promised you; so shall the Lord bring upon you all evil things, until he have destroyed you from off this good land which the Lord your God hath given you.

When ye have transgressed the covenant of the Lord your God, which he commanded you, and have gone and served other gods, and bowed yourselves to them; then shall the anger of the Lord be kindled against you, and ye shall perish quickly from off the good land which he hath given unto you.—Joshua, XXIII, 15 and 16.

RESCUE ATTEMPT

CHAPTER XXIX

When Captain Carr saw Pat leave the sky train and realized that she was alone in the storm, he went mildly crazy.

"Pat! . . . Pat Friday . . . Plane Number 10 . . . PAT!"

He yelled at his radio which no longer was working.

"She cut loose!" he shrieked at Loraine, over their head phones. "Pat did! . . . She dived right into this storm."

"Jimmy, what are you doing?" Loraine shrieked back.

He didn't answer. But he put over the controls of the towing ship that he piloted, so that the sky train swung out in a long, spectacular arc. In a matter of seconds the nine sailplanes behind him were jerking crazily at the tow line.

Thump-thumpety-t h u m p! The power ship bucked like an Army tank in a forest. Up-and-down waves traveled over the long tow line. Loraine screamed out at Jimmy again, and again he ignored her. He had a terrific fight with the elements here, and only a man of infinite daring could have done what he did. And a man with excellent equipment.

In about six minutes the train was flying smoothly again. Like some fantastic, imaginative dragon it streamed out of the dark bulk of the storm over Superstition Mountain as Jimmy swung back toward its Sky Harbor home.

"Jimmy, where are we going?" Loraine demanded.

"Stop yelping, and look!"

"Look where? For what?"

"Look down! See if you see any trace of Pat."

"But—but what could you do if you did see her again?"

He waited several seconds before answering. "I don't know," he confessed, then.

He was straightening the train out now, heading west. Contrarily, tauntingly, the sun began to filter through and illuminate them. He gunned his great ship with all the power possible, and hopefully once more he jiggled the radio dials.

"Captain Carr! . . . Calling Captain Carr . . . Number Seven plane calling Captain Carr . . . Number Four reporting."

"Hey!" Jimmy s h o u t e d it. "You're through again. I get you now, fellows!"

He was elated that the static and storm had been left behind them. He tried frantically to contact Pat's ship but without success. Then he began issuing crisp orders.

He was at 2100 feet when they neared Sky Harbor. The air was windy but clear here. He told Number Nine to let go. Then, each of the others, in turn. Their landing made a beautiful show and it was an extra attraction for those of the spectators who had remained at the field.

When the entire "tail" of his power plane had left him, Jimmy headed east once more.

"Oh!" Loraine protested. "Aren't you going to land? Jimmy!"

"I'm going back to Superstition Mountain."

"But no . . . No, no!"

"Stop yelping, Loraine! The worst of that storm has blown past there. We saw that much as we left it."

Fury as well as fear gripped her. "If you take me back toward that storm, Jim Carr, I'll hate you the rest of my life! I'll never marry you!"

"Is that a promise?"

"You're going to kill us! You're being a complete fool!"

All at once Jimmy grinned wildly. "What about the engagement? You say you don't wanta marry me?"

"No! I hate you! Take me down. I tell you!"

She shouted insanely, but Jimmy only gunned the ship for more speed. In a few minutes the eerie bulk of Superstition was under them again and the ship began roaring down into every canyon. He flew around a hat-shaped rock, then weaved in and out of more rugged canyons, heading steadily eastward all the while. He spotted Four Peaks, whence the storm had come. Remembering, he swerved a bit to the right, in direct line for Globe.

"Jimmy, this is madness!" Loraine tried again.

Still he paid no attention, but two minutes later he suddenly shouted.

"LOOK! . . . LOOK! . . . LOOK THERE!"

They gazed down. There on a steep slope was a sailplane, the white birdlike shape of it distinct against the reddish hue of the mountain. What's more, when Jimmy zoomed near they saw Pat Friday on the ground frantically waving.

"Pat! . . . Pat! . . . Oh Pat!"

He shrieked it wildly as if he actually expected her to hear. But he also waved, and dipped the plane, and made her know they had seen her. Then, because a rock cliff confronted him, he threw his plane into a straight-up climb as if about to loop.

That cleared the rocks but it also jerked Loraine Stuart roughly around the co-pilot's seat there.

"Jim Carr, you're trying to kill me!"

"She's safe! She's not hurt! She's down there running around and waving. I've got to get her out of there!"

"You can't land on all those rocks. You'll kill us both!"

"It'll soon be night! And she's alone on top of that mountain!"

"Don't you dare try to land! Jimmy!"

"Stop yelping!"

He had roared his plane in a climb and a circle to gain a better position in the wind. Loraine covered her face and tried to brace herself. When they were up 800 feet or so he yelled at her again.

"Take over! Take this thing and fly it!" He was climbing out of his pilot's seat.

"JIMMY! No, no! Are you—?"

"Take over, I said! You know how to fly an airplane!"

She saw his purpose, then. "No! No! I won't do it! No!"

But he was strapping a parachute on, and he was opening a latch.

"You can take over or you can crash!" he shouted. Then he removed his head phones.

He paused just one moment. Fierce in anger, frantic with fear, Loraine took the controls as ordered.

When he saw that, Jimmy Carr leaped.

Underground Marks Actress For Death

LONDON, Jan. 6 (U.P) — The clandestine French newspaper "Bir Hakeim" said today that the underground had passed a death sentence on motion picture actress Danielle Darrieux, on a charge of collaborating with the Nazis.

Sources close to the motion picture industry in the United States said Miss Darrieux left Hollywood for Paris in 1938 after making the picture "Rage of Paris."

She is believed to have remained in France throughout the German occupation.

Fortas Reappointed As Interior Official

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (AP) — Abe Fortas of Memphis, Tenn., was given a recess reappointment by President Roosevelt as undersecretary of the interior, a position which he left last fall to enter the Navy.

Fortas, who is only 33, recently was given a medical discharge from the Navy after serving only a month. The medical board which examined him said he never should have been accepted because of an eye ailment.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

I TOOK a woman to luncheon today.

Young, attractive, charming, well dressed and very bright. But she bored me. Terribly.

We were sitting at the Ritz (yes, she was that kind of a person), and before she ordered her food she made sure that she was in a spot where she could be seen to best advantage.

The headwaiter stood at her side, poised with pad and pencil, to take her order.

Help is scarce these days, you know, and business is heavy.

Did that faze her? Not in the least.

A bit of lipstick, a dab at her coiffure, a cigarette had to be lighted.

Then, nonchalantly: "Oh, I don't know what to order, I'm not a bit hungry."

She compromised on some guinea hen, a pot of tea, and unless she changed her mind, a strawberry parfait for dessert.

Then we settled down to a nice long talk (She is known for a brilliant conversaitonalist.)

I listenend. I listened patiently.

Finally I yawned.

"What's the matter?" she asked, and seemed somewhat annoyed, "Are you bored?"

"Franky I am," I said.

"Why?"

"You haven't been talking about anything but yourself," I replied, "and with so many important things going on in this world, to be perfectly truthful I'm not particularly interested in your housekeeper's wrongdoings and your kid's smart sayings. I'm not even terribly worried about you going all over town and not being able to find a radio."

TO make a long story short — we ate in comparative silence after that, and when we parted, we knew that we'd not have another luncheon together again.

I never have that experience with men, and women tell me they usually have a good time with other women.

Is it really true that men and women can't be friends? Is it true that when you take away sex there isn't much that men and women have to interest each other?

I really don't know. Maybe you do.

But I do know that whenever I go out with women they are so darned personal — they always talk about people (including themselves) never about things.

Men DO talk about things — often nice things, such as women

If you don't agree with me, ladies why don't you give me a ring for luncheon the next time you're in the neighborhood?

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

MILLIONS of flush citizens who expect to satisfy their long-deferred wants as soon as the war ends are destined to disappointment. Private surveys indicate that there will be a lag of six months to two years before markets will be ready for buyers.

The desire for new dwellings and for repairs to the old will probably exceed all other demands. But it usually takes four to eight months for the average person to select a site, choose an architect and a builder, O. K. blueprints and get under way.

Moreover, it may be a year or more before labor and materials for private or public construction will be available. For a while prices will remain high and smart folks will be inclined to wait for the inevitable postwar decline.

FLIVVERS: Autos come next on the list of wants. Here again a period of six months to a year may elapse before the leading companies can manufacture in quantity.

They will have to reconvert their factories, retrain labor and obtain materials. They will need new machine tools. Until they ascertain what the government's future policies will be, they will be slightly bearish in their operations.

And, warn hardheaded planners, early-bird purchasers should not look for the dream homes and motors that are pictured in futuristic advertisements—structures of pressed glass, chrome finishing and Alice-in-Wonderland gadgets, and streamlined flivvers of magnesium costing only $400 and running 50 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

During the first few years after the armistice, most light and heavy consumer goods will be built on the lines of 1941-1942 models—virtually pre-Pearl Harbor stuff.

GIBRALTAR: The fearful losses sustained by United States Marines in taking the tiny atoll of Tarawa furnish only a faint idea of the casualties that may result from a cross-Channel invasion. (note: The Leathernecks' force of 14,000 suffered 1,000 killed and 2,500 wounded.)

In an apparent attempt to steel us for what could be the cruelest battle news of all history, military experts state that the dangers and difficulties of the two operations are not comparable. The Japs, for instance, occupied the strip of coral for less than two years. They had scant room on it for huge emplacements, big guns, airfields. The island lies thousands of miles from their main bases. They had to transport labor and materials over vast distances. Even the number of defenders which could be accommodated was limited. Yet they transformed it into a minor Malta.

By contrast, the Germans will have held thier coast almost four years by the time the full offensive is mounted. Railroads and truck routes run directly from Continental munitions factories into the area. Forced labor near-by has been plentiful.

The terrain, in depth and width, is ideal for fortification. The territory from Norway to southern France is studded with the world's heaviest artillery, airports on the surface and underground, mines, machine gun nests for crossfiring against beachheads, fixed walls, trenches, etc. Last, Tarawa was only a Japanese outpost, whereas Pas de Calais is the Nazis' inner defense, meaning that the foe will fight with extreme desperation.

As a high staff officer puts it, "Tarawa was only a Bunker Hill. What we hit next will be a Gibraltar!"

CRISIS: Heavier demands on the railroads may compel the War Production board and the armed forces to allocate more cars and repair equipment early this year. Management and labor spokesmen attribute recent wrecks in large part to the combination of a speed-up of service and shortages of materials and manpower.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

WHEN General Eisenhower's doughboys consolidate their European beachheads, three separate streams of supplies must simultaneously be sent ashore: Material for the U. S. Army, food for the destitute populations and equipment to rearm soldiers among the liberated peoples.

The problem will be exceedingly complicated as the Germans, with characteristic thoroughness, will destroy port facilities and warehouses in order to throw our quartermaster organization into choas.

In all likelihood old freighters which have outlived their usefulness as cargo vessels will be utilized as combination docks and storerooms until more permanent buildings are erected. The War Shipping administration and Allied governments now possess many damaged boats out of commission by reason of the unwarranted expense and waste of precious metals to recondition them.

These may be sailed aboard with skeleton crews and set up as temporary wharves. Then more valuable craft alongside could unload quickly and speed away on return voyages. Crates and boxes landed on the ancient hulks could be transferred to lighters for final removal or stowed below hatches until space is found on the coast.

HATRED: Army officers are not primarily interested in the humanitarian end of relief. But they insist that immediate aid is essential to prevent hunger and pestilence which breed serious dangers to military operations.

To prevent calamities, General Eisenhower's deputies in the first 90 days of our occupation of Sicily distributed the contents of 300 freight cars with a capacity of 40 tons each. It is estimated that the Netherlands for a single month will require 168,000 tons of coal, besides other items.

As we are eager to accept the services of every Belgian, Danish and Norwegian ex-soldier who will join our fighters, we must provide patriots with guns, daggers, grenades and uniforms at once. It is not generally known that 10 per cent of our 1944 Army procurement program has been earmarked for this purpose.

We have already outfitted 11 combat divisions for General Giraud. The poilus and their supporting troops constitute a force of around 400,000 veterans eager to rescue their families from the hated Boche invaders.

MORGAN: President Roosevelt, in his recent summary of New Deal achievements, hinted that there is an undercover drive to abolish the Securities and Exchange commission so that Mr. Skin—as he expressed it—can skin the public again.

If his scouts should check up on the more substantial members of Wall Street they would find that the nation's leading bankers do not wish to abolish the SEC. They object chiefly to its befuddled administration, not to its basic principles.

In the old days the elder J. P. Morgan set the standard for the financial district and all the reputable mentor. Abuses crept in which financiers themselves should have cured—but didn't.

When SEC was formed, many fiscal authorities hoped that in a measure it would take J. P.'s place and that junior executives, well-versed in monetary matters, would manage it. But these were given the cold shoulder. Instead a few Wall Streets "failure" and a stream of young lawyers took charge, most with little business experience. Where quick decisions are vital, their delays and long-winded, unworkable regulations cause all sorts of trouble.

GALLONS: Insiders in the trade warn that the gasoline situation will grow tighter between now and late spring as the great invasion reaches a climax. Even now 65 per cent of the total tonnage shipped overseas consists of petroleum products, much of it 100-octane.

As the tempo of war accelerates in the Pacific, stocks on the West coast will be seriously curtailed. For example, the industrial regions of the northwest depend almost entirely on tankers which may be diverted to the battlefront at the same time that transcontinental railroads are taxed with enormous supplies.

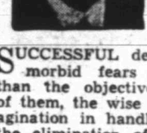

Aviators back from the recent assaults on Rabaul disclose that our air supremacy in the New Guinea sector is now in the ratio of eight to one and is steadily increasing. This is a limited zone; a great many millions of gallons of fuel will be required when we enlarge the scope of our attacks.

On Being A REAL PERSON

BY DR. HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK

Self-Pitiers React to Difficulties Not With Courage, but Alibis

SUCCESSFUL dealing with our morbid fears involves more than the objective confrontation of them, the wise use of our imagination in handling them, and the elimination of guilty furtiveness as one major cause of them; it involves the positive substitution of courage for them, and in ordinary daily life courage springs from two main sources, unselfishness and faith.

The egocentric self-pitier is naturally a coward. His hypersensitive concern about himself incapacitates him for either brave endurance or daring venturesomeness. When the call for valor or intrepidity comes, his spine turns out to be made, as Mark Twain said, "of boiled macaroni," and this inherent weakness it is not within his power by force of will to overcome. Being still at a childish stage of personal develop mennt, self-concerned, self-centered, self-pitying, he inevitably reacts to difficulty and danger not with courage but with alibis and escapes.

Courage is a concomitant of loyalty, devotion, self-commitment. We are naturally brave on behalf of those persons or causes to which we have given ourselves. In this sense the New Testament is psychologically right: "Perfect love casteth out fear." To be sure, love also produces fear.

Because a mother loves her children, or a patriot his country, or an artist his work, anxiety arises on behalf of the loved object. That, however, is not half the story. A mother's bravery on behalf of her children is notorious, and in every realm when courage rises to great heights, love, loyalty, devotion, self-commitment are at the root of it. It requires an emotion to drive out an emotion, and fear is too powerful a feeling to be dealt with by the emotional forces of self-centeredness and self-pity. Even the motive of self-preservation, while it can sustain a fierce fight to the death, is never at its strongest and most enduring until the "self" we are trying to preserve is identified with persons, causes, and values to which we are indissolubly joined.

AWARENESS of social need, absorbed interest in meeting it, selfforgetfulness in the face of it—all great courage is of this outgoing quality.

Only so are those characters produced who when they are afraid feel that it makes no difference whether they are afraid or not. Values are at stake so much more important than their fear, that that is a secondary matter. Of course they are afraid!

According to one of Lincoln's stories, two men were charging side by side in a battle of the Civil War. Said one, "Why, you're pale as a sheet; you look like a ghost; I believe you're afraid." Said the other, "Yes, I am, and if you were half as much afraid as I am you'd have run long ago."

IN this sense Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane was afraid—his horror at the physical brutality and public shame of crucifixion are part and parcel of the scene's reality—but what difference did that make? By love, loyalty, and self-commitment he was incorporated with a cause that did not indeed eliminate fear but submerged it, made of it a secondary matter, present but not dominant.

Brave spirits often set a fear to catch a fear. From soldiers to whom the times comes, as Coningsby Dawson said, when one's only fear is a supreme fear lest one may fail to do one's duty, to men like the early Calvinists of whom it was said that they feared God so much that they never feared anything else at all, this supersession of fear by fear has been notably illustrated. Obviously, however, this higher fear is not negative but positive; it is an integral part of one's loyalty and devotion; at its best it is love for family, vocation, nation, cause, world, God, that enables one to say, Granted that I am afraid, what difference does that make?

No one lives deeply to whom this experience is not familiar. Fears come and go. They spring out of all sorts of situations, real and imaginary. The curse of fear is that it gets itself taken too seriously. The emotions associated with it are so powerful that they naturally seize the stellar role. But fear deserves no such ascendancy.

If one has anything positively to live for, from a child, or a worth-while day's work, to a world delivered from the scourage of war, that is what matters. Fear is finally put in its proper place only in those persons who, even when they are afraid, feel that whether they are afraid or not is a minor matter.

TOMORROW: Some persons who dread to live, not die.

Strikes Almost Double Average In Past Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (AP) — The number of strikes in 1943 was almost double the average for the 15-year period preceding Pearl Harbor, a study of records of the bureau of labor statistics showed today.

The 1943 total (with December roughly calculated on the basis of the preceding 11 months) was 3,737, compared with a 1927-41 average of 1,945 and a 1942 total of 2,968.

Russian Advances

running through Zhmerinka.

There still was no indication, however, that the German Dnieper bend forces, estimated at between 500,000 and 750,000 men, had begun to withdraw from their precarious positions.

On the southeastern side of the 250-mile bulge created in Field Marshal Gen. Fritz von Manstein's shattered lines, the Red Army announced the capture of the rail stations of Tomilovka and Sukholesy, 10 and 15 miles, respectively, southeast of Belaya Tserkov.

This Russian thrust was already boring into one flank of the German Dnieper bend forces in the Kanev sector. The other enemy flank is anchored far to the east on the lower Dnieper, and three other Red armies besides General Vatutin's are waiting to spring at the first sign of a German crackup.

But the prize objective on the Russian timetable is the Warsaw-Odessa line in the Zhmerinka area. Its seizure would knock out the last major German supply line north of the Charpathian mountains, leaving the enemy dependent upon less useful roads running westward into Rumania from Odessa.

Some military men here believe the Germans must reach a decision quickly if they have not already done so. The alternatives are to find thousands of reserves and throw them into a great counter-attack immediately or began a retreat from the entire southern Ukraine.

In the Nevel sector Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's First Baltic Army still was moving ahead, converging on Novosokoliniki, a real junction 15 miles above Nevel and 10 miles west of Velikie Luki. The communique said that this drive, aimed eventually at Latvia, had resulted in the capture of additional localties.

Steady Russian pressure on almost encircled Vitebsk, upper White Russian stronghold, also was reported.

A Berlin broadcast said General Vatutin was employing 50 infantry divisions and at least nine tank corps, in addition to the oncoming Red Army reserves.

More Seafood For The Dinner Table

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (AP) — More canned tuna and mackerel are en route to American dinner tables.

Coordinator of Fisheries Harold L. Ickes said today that through November, 1943, more tuna and mackerel had been canned than in the entire year 1942.

The figures through November: Tuna, 2,550,000 cases, compared with 2,336,000 in the same period of 1942; mackerel, 718,000 cases, compared with 498,000 in the same period of 1942.

MARKET RELAPSES SLIGHTLY

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—Stocks generally suffered a slight profit taking relapse in today's market although scattered rails and specialties were exceptions.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off .1 of a point at 80.5. Volume aggregated 843,670 shares compared with 1,157,120 yesterday when prices were climbing.

An isolated strong spot was Armour preferred which jumped 15 points to 105 on sales of 220 shares. The common was up ⅛ at 5⅞.

Among losers of fractions to a point or so were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Kennecott, Boeing, Du Pont, Westinghouse, Southern Pacific, Standard Oil (NJ) and Consolidated Edison.

Gainers included Schenley, Texas Co., Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Great Northern, Nickel Plate preferred (up 3⅞), Woolworth and Douglas Aircraft.

Slipping in the curb were N. J. Zinc, Brown-Forman Distillers, Cities Service, Electric Bond and Share and Aluminum of America. Turnover here was 196,735 shares versus 247,630 Wednesday.

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—Cotton futures closed from 85 cents to $1 a bale higher today under the influence of widespread commission house buying and scarcity of offerings.

Some trade circles feel that there has been outright mill buying in the way of protective purchases anticipating a possible tightness of supplies later in the season.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 6 (AP)—The average price of middling 15-16ths-inch cotton today at ten designated southern spot markets was 95 cents a bale higher at 20.09 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 19.67; middling ⅞ths-inch average 19.01.

Strike Halts Work At Navy Shipyard

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6 (AP)—A strike by thousands of employes closed the great Cramp Shipbuilding company yards tonight, halting production of war craft for the Navy, and the strikers voted to remain away from their jobs until "all grievances" against the company are settled or the Navy takes over.

Jammed into a meeting hall, members of local 42, industrial union of marines and shipbuilding workers (CIO), roared approval of a statement that "it is high time for the Navy to seize the plant."

Herbert Moyer, local secretary, sid the 17,000 idle employes would return at once if the Navy assumed control and "if anyone refuses we will drive him back with a club if necessary."

The union's action was the outgrowth of a dispute involving 42 painters.

3,000 City Workers Go On Wage Strike

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6. (AP) — More than 3,000 unionized employes of Philadelphia's department of public works went on strike today in an effort to enforce their demand for a 10-cents-an-hour wage increase.

Workers involved are members of the street cleaning, highways and water bureau locals of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes (AFL).

The strike voted at a meeting in Turners' hall last night presented Mayor Bernard Samuel with an unexpected problem just two days after his inauguration.

Successful Italian Revolt Is Reported

BARCELONA, Jan. 6. (AP) — Travelers recently arrived from northeastern Italy today confirmed reports that 2,000 Italian soldiers who had been incorporated into the German Army in the Fiume sector had staged a successful revolt on Dec. 30.

The travelers said the Italians, all wearing newly-issued German uniforms and bearing German arms, rebelled as they were about to be loaded into railroad cars to join German forces fighting Yugoslav partisans in southern Bosnia.

Production Cutback

record total of $8,000,000,000 in 1944.

"The consensus of the officials of the Army and civilian war agencies is that any return to civilian manufacture during the year (1944) beyond the two million electric irons and 50,000 bath tubs recently authorized by WPB will probably be in goods necessary to maintain the civilian economy," OWI said, explaining that this meant railway and motor transport and heavy industries would have first call on replacements and equipment as they become available.

"Indications also are that some electric refrigerators and stoves for war housing may be scheduled for 1944 provided the situation in metals continues to ease and further cutbacks in war items provide facilities for manufacture."

Tentative Schedules

Tentative production schedules for 1944 call for cutbacks in these principal categories; small arms and ammunition, trainers and other non-fighting airplanes, artillery fire-control equipment, certain types of anti-aircraft equipment and tanks.

"More than offsetting this will be an almost doubled production of combat aircraft, with greatly increased emphasis on bombers, a tripled requirement for high-octane gasoline, and other expansions in merchant shipping, trucks (about 50 per cent), electronic equipment, heavy guns, heavy artillery shells, ground ordnance and signal items," OWI said.

A 40 per cent slash in production of dauxite—aluminum ore—will have been accomplished by the end of January, it was noted.

Situation In Other Metals

The situation in other metals:

"1. Alloy steels are now plentiful, however facilities for rolling steel are still short and finished plate will be on the critical list for sometime to come.

"2. Copper, magnesium, zinc, and molybdenum, desperately short just six months ago, are now fairly plentiful.

"3. Practically all other metals including tin, are expected to come off the critical list, baring unforseen developments, during 1944."

In citing over production of materials and weapons as a cause of cutback, OWI explained that this resulted largely from the fact that at the start of the war "our production goals had to be scaled high enough to provide for any contingency—the seeming possibility of the fall of Russia, an invasion of this continent, or almost total destruction from the air of Britain's and Russia's war industries."

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Jan. 6 (AP)—The May wheat future clung to the ceiling of $1.71 ⅝ today and all deferred contracts advanced under aggressive mill buying. The jury delivery was at its highest price since 1928 and September at its best level since 1917. Gains of about a cent were recorded at time, but these were shaved in the late trading by profit-taking.

At the close wheat was unchanged to ⅝ higher, May $1.71 ⅝, oats were up ⅛-¼, May 79 ⅝, rye was unchanged to ⅛ higher, May $1.30 ⅝-¾, and barley was ⅛ lower to a cent higher, May $1.23 ⅛.

defense batteries. Taking an island of that type will be quite different from, and far more difficult than, taking a flat sandbar such as Tarawa. And both types are surrounded by heavy reefs which must be penetrated.

These islands are not all equally defended. Tarawa was very heavily protected, but Makin, nearby, was weakly held.

There's Reason For Assaults

And it is clear also from all this that we are not taking islands just because we want some more territory. These islands are useless economically. They can be only an expense. When we go after islands at great cost we do so because we need to get rid of Jap airfields, or ship anchorages, or we need the locations for our own air forces, or for ship anchorages or as supply points for pushing operations further on toward Japan.

What I have been saying is elementary to military people, but to us who know nothing about these things even the most obvious matters need to be pointed out. That's what they are patiently doing with me around here, and I'll try to pass it on in the hope that it may help you to read between the lines of the news dispatches as the Pacific campaign begins to unfold.

Working Bureau

cies—or information specialists as they are called—have been told that better reporting is necessary.

Clark said he has already called their attention to errors and omissions in stories which have been transmitted to OWI for distribution since he took charge.

Clark said no discharges had been necessary in effecting the news bureau reorganization.

"We are going to concentrate on getting out spot news while it's still fresh," he added. "News value is the only test a story has to pass. If a story is tripe, it'll go on the spike just as it does in any newspaper office."

Clark's reorganization of the news bureau was worked out with the approval of his immediate superior, also a working newspaperman, George Healy, jr. Healy left the managing editor's job on the New Orleans Times-Picayune to take over as domestic director of the OWI this week.

Darnand Is Called France's Himmler

NEW YORK, Jan. 6. (AP)—The German Transocean agency today quoted the Nazi party newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter as saying that Joseph Darnand, newly-appointed Vichy "secretary general for the maintenance of order," would "break force by force."

Meanwhile the Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet declared that Darnand's appointment gave France "its own Himmler" who would "in reality become as much an interior minister under German control as Himmler is in Germany."

craft company, and greatest credit should be given to Group Captain Whittle for the fine performance and for the genius and energy that made it possible.

"Full information about this jet propulsion engine was disclosed in July, 1941, to the United States Army Air forces who, like the British RAF and ministry of aircraft production, had the foresight to appreciate the tremendous possibilities of this new form of aircraft power unit. The USAAF at once asked for an engine to be sent to USA, and the engine which had made the first flight was sent to the General Electric company in September, 1941.

"As the result of close cooperabetween the USAAF, the RAF, and the AAF materiel command, the ministry of aircraft production and the General Electric company, a number of these engines were built.

Ordered For Training

"The first of these engines was ready for tests in less than six months. At the same time the Bell Aircraft company was given an order to build an aircraft suitable to operate with two of these engines and the first flight in the United States was made in less than 12 months. Several hundred successful flights have been carried out since then by American pilots in the United States and by British pilots with the British aircraft in England, many of them at high altitudes and extreme speed and all without a single mishap."

Arnold and the British "have directed that plans be made for the production of a sufficient quantity for training purposes both in the United States and in Great Britain," and the Army Air forces is allotting a number of the planes to the Navy for additional trials and experiments.

Maiden Flight In 1942

The maiden flight of the first experimental model in the United States occurred Oct. 1, 1942, with Robert M. Stanley, chief test pilot of the Bell company, at the controls.

The next day Col. Laurence C. Craigie, since promoted to brigadier general, became the first Army officer to fly the new type. Others who have flown it are Brig. Gen. B. W. Chidlaw, chief of the materiel division in the air staff, and Maj. Gen. William E. Kepner, a veteran fighter pilot who formerly commanded the 4th Air force.

Drive In Italy

was in progress through the ruins of the village of San Vittore, six miles from Cassino, headquarters said, with American troops in possession of approximately half the place. Clark's men first probed into this nest of German resistance a week ago after having flattened it with artillery fire.

The renewed drive toward Rome began after a night of torrential rain which bogged the front and multiplied the difficulties of the foot soldiers. The many mountain streams again were at flood level.

The British centered their attack at a point just west of Rocca D'Evandro.

Canadian forces on the Adriatic coast consolidated their positions on "Point 59," an elevated strongpoint about three miles north of Ortona, from which they evicted the Germans Tuesday night in a stiff fight. Rain, driven by a wind of gale force, limited the Canadians to patrol activity yesterday.

Lt. Gen. Oliver William Leese, newly-appointed commander of the British Eighth Army, told his first press conference that "we are up against the enemy's winter line now, and he is fighting like hell."

He asked the correspondents to "see that they realize at home that we are up against a hell of a problem in fighting now."

In addition to supporting the Fifth Army's new offensive, Allied planes attacked a chemical plant at Torre Di Passeri and pounded enemy gun positions near the town of Cervaro, four miles east of Cassino.

(The British admiralty announced that British submarines had sunk eight German or German-controlled ships, including a large tanker, in recent operations in the Mediterranean.)

Allies Said Poised For Balkan Thrust

LONDON, Jan. 6. (AP) — Strong units of the British First and American Seventh armies are concentrating at Bari on the Italian east coast for an invasion of the Balkans, according to reports received in Switzerland from Zagreb, Croatia, a Reuters dispatch from Zurich said today.

The British First Army, under the command of Lt. Gen. Sir K. A. N. Anderson, played a prominent part in the campaign in northern Tunisia. The American Seventh Army, under the command of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., took part in the conquest of Sicily.

Australian jungle fighters have moved four miles above Cape King William to within 67 airline miles of the Americans at Saidor. The Saidor invaders had helped cut down the distance by pushing eight miles southeastward.

Madang Battered

The Madang area, now receiving almost daily aerial blows, was battered in the 243-ton attack Wednesday afternoon. Alexishafen, an air base, was one target. Supplies and bivouacs were fired and shattered as far south as Bogadjim, Madang's southern outpost defense point.

The Kavieng raid Tuesday by planes taking off an aircraft carried of Adm. William F. Halsey's South Pacific Navy added to an apparently growing shortage of enemy destroyers in the Kavieng-Rabaul area.

The carrier moved within close flying range and the planes scored several hits with torpedoes and bombs on the two destroyers. The Japanese destroyed shortage is indicated by the fact that in the Rabaul area they have been using subchasers as escort vessels.

10 Jap Planes Downed

The day of the Kavieng raid, Solomon fighters, probably from Torokina field at Empress Augusta bay on Bougainville, swung over Rabaul and fought it out with 30 Japanese fighters. At a cost of one raider, the attackers downed 10 enemy planes for certain and probably bagged an additional five. These almost daily Rabaul raids have cost Japan more than 180 planes since late December.

On the northern end of Bougainville, Brig. Gen. William S. Matheny, of Spokane, bomber commander in the Solomons, sent his Liberators against Buka, an enemy air base, spreading large fires. The raids occurred Tuesday.

On the same day, Australian beaufighters strafed a Japanese schooner, loaded with troops, in the vicinity of Koepang, Timor, northwest of Australia. Tuesday night in the Madang, New Guinea, area, a United States Catalina sank a 1,500-ton cargo ship at Sarang harbor.

bravery at various times that makes them act like they do. They're just as afraid to die as we are.

"The Jap planes also are good, but their pilot calibre is going down hill. And as for their naval gunnery, the only time we see it is at night. They like to play at night because they're strong at torpedo work. But we'll meet them, day or night."

Admiral Halsey appraised Gen. Douglas MacArthur as "a splendid soldier," declared the American forces in the Pacific are more interested in fighting Japs than voting in a presidential election b[ack] home—"only one in 500 is interested in voting"—and when as[ked] if the Pacific offensive w[ould] reach its peak this year, repl[ied] "I hope so."

"We've got the finest repres[en]tatives of American manhood ev[er] assembled out there fighting [as] one team," he concluded. "Their morale is splendid. We don't recognize Army, Navy or Marines. They're all one team."

Attending the conference with Admiral Halsey were Vice Admiral J. S. McCain of Washington, D. C., deputy chief of naval operations for air, and Gen. Thomas Holcomb, former commandant of the Marine corps.

committee to work with the State Highway department in the matter of diagonal traffic arteries leading into a proposed highway beltline, planned for the immediate post-war period. On the subcommittee were named City Manager Marlin R. Smith, City Engineer Arch King and W. L. Bradshaw. A second subcommittee, to study with Fire Chief Ed Twitty prospective sites, for additional fire stations, was formed in the personages of Smith, J. H. Murdough and Chas. A. Guy.

Nineteenth Street Discussed

Commission Secretary King was directed to advise abstractors, lawyers, real estate men and "other directly interested persons" regarding a new state law which permits a Texas municipality of more than 25,000 population to control subdivisions and additions for residential and business purposes lying within a five mile radius of a community's corporate limits. A lengthy discussion covering Nineteenth street from Avenue Q east to Texas avenue, and the possibilities of opening that thoroughfare through to Avenue H, thence Eastward to Avenue A, was held at request of the City commission. The planning board, however, voted to make no definite recommendations until further study of the problem.

Present at the meeting, held in the City commission chambers at City Hall were Dr. J. T. Krueger, Smith, Read, King, Bradshaw, Murdough and Guy. Absent were K. N. Clapp, J. D. Hassell, jr., and City Attorney D. H. Bradley.

Bomber Forays

red glow visible a half-hour's flight away.

The air ministry said the Germans seemed hopelessly confused by the Mosquito stab at the capital since the route taken by the main force was such that at almost any point it could have been directed at Berlin.

"When we turned we could see a long line of fighter flares stretching 50 miles ahead, toward Berlin," one pilot reported. "There were no flares on our course to Stettin."

The German fighters came racing to Stettin just as the last bombs were dropped.

British Losses Low

Success of the subterfuge was credited with holding the British losses down to fifteen in both attacks and in other light Mosquito raids on western German and northern France.

Stettin last was raided April 20. The big night fleet took off early in the evening and did not return until dawn from the 1,300-mile round trip.

The blow at such a port as Stettin was calculated to do much to aid the Soviet winter offensive.

During daylight today the aerial offensive was continued against northern France by RAF light bombers escorted by RAF and Allied fighters. Three enemy planes were shot down and two of the Allies' failed to return. The targets were designated merely as "military objectives."

The Vichy radio went off the air tonight, indicating another possible night bombing raid.

Logistics Split In German Forces Poses New Disaster

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

The gloomy admission in Berlin that the Nazi front in Russia has been hopelessly split apart by the Red Army's victories in the Kiev bulge may be a prelude to a new general German retreat in the east. But it does not tell all the story.

The split is not an actual gap carved in German lines to divide the front into two almost equal sectors, one north of the Pinsk marshes to the Baltic and the other southward of the great swamp lands to the Black Sea. It is a matter of battle logistics. The Nazis have lost the close-up lateral communication lines which tied the segments into one.

SIMPSON

There remain in German control now only two such laterals—the direct Riga-Wilno-Sarney-Shepetokva route through the great swamps, already virtually lost; and the round-about route through Brest-Litovsk that runs west of the marshes.

Prime First Objective

There is no such logistical split involved for the Russians. A prime first tactical objective of the Kiev bulge offensive was to gain control and use of the long central stretch of the Leningrad-Odessa main truck line west of the Dnieper. Supplementing the parallel lines east of the river, it provides the holder with quick inter-communication between the northern and southern battle theaters.

Once it has been cleared of the foe all the way to Nevel, it will permit swift Russian concentration of massed striking power at any selected attack point in either the north or the south. That should almost double the effectiveness of the already huge Russian preponderance in manpower.

Southern End Cleared

Capture of Berdichev cleared up the southern end of the road from that point to the vicinity of Moyzer 150 miles north on the eastern edge of the Pinsk marshes. The Nazis were last reported still astride a portion of the line in that area.

Berlin reports a New Russian offensive stroke east of the Dnieper at Propoisk. Coupled with the Russian drives at Vitebsk and above Nevel, it looks like a beginning on liquidation of the last Nazi foothold on or beyond the Dnieper. Success would clear the great north-south communications laterals completely in preparation for future major offensive operations in the north synchronized with final phases of the entrapment campaign approaching its climax in the south.

Sergeant Thinks Fast, Gets In On Sicily Fight

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (U.P.) — Sgt. John W. Palmer of Flat, Tex., just wasn't going to be left behind in a north African hospital when his buddies in the 36th division were alerted for combat duty.

He was hospitalized with a fractured arm, the War department revealed today in disclosing Sgt. Palmer's story.

Palmer asked for another examination of his fracture, so next day after x-rays were taken the developed plates revealed the broken bone had healed perfectly.

After the miraculous "recovery," the Texan was discharged and joined his mates in the invasion of Sicily.

Palmer says his "miracle" was no miracle at all. He merely transferred the bandage from his fractured arm to the good one and busy hospital attendants passed the x-ray—while Palmer held his breath.

Navy Disclaims Report That Lieutenant Saved

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (AP)—The Navy reported today that Lieutenant (jg) A. B. Hansen of the destroyer Leary which was sunk Christmas eve was still missing despite a conflicting telephoned message last night which floored his bride-to-be in a faint.

"I have a message for you from the Navy," a telephone caller told Miss Ruth Bender Hall, daughter of the director of the bureau of engraving and Mrs. Alvin W. Hall. "Lieutenant Hansen has been saved."

The speaker identified herself as "Mrs. Wainwright, a secretary to a Navy official."

The Navy said it was unable to locate any secretary by that name and that Lieutenant Hansen still is missing.

ZOO ANIMALS FREED

LONDON, Jan. 6. (AP)—The German-controlled Vichy radio said today that all the animals remaining in the once-famous Berlin zoo had been removed after the last heavy raid on the German capital the night of Jan. 2. Most of the animals were sent to Barcelona, said the broadcast.

Contract Renegotiated Provisions Criticized

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (AP) —A "new crop of war millionaires" would be sown under contract renegotiation provisions of the pending tax bill, says a Senate finance committee minority report criticizing amendments to the pending $2,275,000,000 added revenues measure.

The report, signed by Senators Walsh (D-Mass), Connally (D-Tex), Lucas (D-Ill), and LaFollette (Prog-Wis), scores amendments which would liberalize existing renegotiation status so as to exempt certain contracts and to make other changes.

"Under the revised bill," the report asserts, "many will enjoy free license to make exorbitant profits out of war business, and millions of dollars of public money will be paid back to a specially favored group which has already made and kept generous war profits."

Funeral Is Scheduled For Texas Inventor

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 6. (AP) — Funeral services for Edgar U. G. Reagan, sr., 78, native Texan and inventor of the first round bale cotton press, will be held here Saturday with the Rev. C. L. Skinner officiating. Interment will be in Mission Burial park here. He died in Mount Clements, Mich., Jan. 2.

The first press was built by the Alamo Iron works of San Antonio. Mr. Reagan also built one of the first crude oil burners.

Survivors include six sons and three daughters.

Naval Officers' Casualties High

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (U.P.)—Commissioned officers comprise more than nine per cent of all casualties in the Navy, Marine corps and Coast Guard, survey showed today.

The Navy has suffered more officer casualties than the other two services under the Navy department, with better than 10 per cent of its 24,855 casualties being officers. The figures for the Marine corps and Coast Guard officer figures are just above eight per cent.

Meanwhile, Capt. Leland P. Lovette, Navy information chief, said the Navy department was eager to speed the release of casualty information to the public, but tha it was frequently forged to delay publication until all data was properly checked to avoid mistakes.

Casualties In Gilberts

Lovette said he was now confident that Overall American casualties in the entire Gilberts invasion would prove some what fewer than the original estimates of 1,092 dead and 2,680 wounded.

He said there were still some unreported casualties in the Gilberts and that until they had been received, a final figure would not be available.

The Navy, which rarely reveals the number of survivors from lost ships, disclosed that 268 men were saved from the escort aircraft carrier Liscome Bay, sunk by a Japanese submarine in the Gilberts last Nov. 24. But no figure on casualties was released because it would disclose the total complement of this new type of craft.

Breakdown of all naval casualties since the war made it clear that rank is no insurance against injury or death. Generally speaking, the naval services have a ratio of one officer to every 10 enlisted men. The casualty figures showed approximately the same ratio of casualties between officers and enlisted men.

Manpower Board Has Manpower Worry

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (AP) — The War Manpower commission has a manpower problem of its own.

It announced it had sought without success to employ about a dozen manpower utilization consultants at salaries of $3,800 to $5,600 for work here and in Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.

The civil service commission will accept applications.

Greeks Called Out For "Speech" Slain

CAIRO, Jan. 6. (AP)—Mass machine-gun slaughter of more than 1,000 Greek townspeople by the Germans was charged today by the exiled Greek government in a statement that also told of new guerrilla successes against the Nazis, including one battle that cost the enemy 600 casualties.

The Greek announcement said that in the town of Kalavrita on the Peloponesus the Germans assembled all males over 12 years of age "to listen to a speech" and then cut them down with machine guns. Women and children of the town were concentrated in a school which was burned, it said.

In the northern Peoloponnesus, guerrillas were declared to have derailed a German supply train and blown up a bridge between Katerini and Ayios Demetrios. One guerrilla band in that area was said to have raised its string of successes to date to 1,735 Germans killed, 27 trains wrecked, two bridges destroyed and two bauxite (alminum ore) mines dynamited.

In revenge the Germans then burned four Macedonian villages, shot 60 villagers and hanged 61.

Consultations Set On Status Of Bolivia

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (AP) — Secretary of State Hull announced today that the United States and 18 other American nations would begin immediate consultations on whether to recognize the new revolutionary government of Bolivia.

The main question to be decided, Hull said, is whether external influences unfriendly to the Allied cause were chiefly responsible for the overthrown of the former Bolivian government and the rise to power of the present regime.

The implication was clear that if unfriendly influences were found to be behind the new regime, set up Dec. 20 under the presidency of Major Gualberto Villarroel, recognition would be withheld.

"Big Inch" Pipeline Again Ready For Oil

LINDEN, N. J., Jan. 6. (AP) — Pipeline workers expected to restore oil movement today through the "Big Inch" line.

The flow was shut off yesterday at Phoenixville, Pa., after a gate valve cracked near the terminal pumping station at Linden, resulting in the loss of several thousand barrels of oil.

Prison Officials' Meeting Is Set

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 6. (U.P.)—State penitentiary officials of 19 states will meet here Jan. 17 and 18 with federal War Produetion board representatives for a conference designed to step up output of war goods and agricultural products from prison industries and farms.

The conference was one of three regional meetings called by the WPB to "bring about increased participationu by prison industries in the war program and at the same time to expand food production."

Maj. W. H. Burke, chief of the prison industries branch of the WPB will be in charge of the St. Louis meeting called by former Texas Congressman Maury Maverick, now with WPB.

Discuss Farm Problems

In a letter to prison officials, Maverick said the conference would discuss soil conservation, feed and food processing, livestock and dairy problems, and "additional requirements of canning equipment, farm machinery, seeds and fertilizer."

Governors of the 19 states will selecte representatives to attend the meeting.

States invited to participate include Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Iowa, Texas, Michigan, Louisiana, Mississippi, Oklahoma, Kentucky, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Minnesota, Arkansas, Tennessee, Alabama and Wisconsin and Missouri.

British Report Sinking Of Eight Enemy Ships

LONDON, Jan. 6. (AP)—British submarines have sunk eight German or German-controlled ships, including a large tanker, and have damaged two others in recent operations in the Mediterranean, the Admiralty announced today.

The tanker, the announcement said, was attacked and sunk in convoy in the Gulf of Genoa. The other vessels listed as sunk included a small naval auxiliary and three small cargo ships—including two ammunition carriers—destroyed off the French Riviera a medium-sized supply ship in the Aegean and two smaller merchant ships in the same general area.

LACK JURISDICTION

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6. (AP)—Three federal judges ruled today that the so-called "Jim Crow union" controversy between negro shipyard workers and the international boilermakers' union could not be settled in federal court because it lacked jurisdiction.

Post-War Crude Oil Division Is Hinted

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (AP)—A post-war international agreement to accord all nations "equal access" to the world oil supply, based on the needs of each, was foreseen in the 13th lend-lease report forwarded to Congress today by President Roosevelt.

The report held out little hope for more liberal gasoline rations for American civilians. While asserting a "much larger part" of Mediterranean war theater oil needs in 1944 will come from British-controlled sources, it said the increased over-all needs for greater offensives "will not therefore result in reducing the demands on our own petroleum resources."

"All available supplies of petroleum products," it added, "will be required for a speedy and complete victory of the United Nations over the enemy.

"In the future, as in the past, the petroleum resources of each of the United Nations will be utilized in its own direct war effort and the combined war effort, in proportion to the maximum ability of each to produce and efficiently deliver the petroleum products needed in the prosecution of the war."

The report foresaw new oil field discoveries and technological improvements to increase post-war oil production, but pointed out that some countries will have a surplus and others will have insufficient supplies to maintain their industrialized economies.

Pair Charged With Menacing Children

NEW YORK, Jan. 6. (AP)—Accused of leaving their two babies alone in a heatless tenement while they went to the motion pictures, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jiro were arrested today on a charge of endangering the lives of the children.

INTERCHANGE OF PEOPLE

MELBOURNE, Jan. 6. (AP) — Urging "a free interchange of people" to enable Australia and the United States to become better acquainted, Sir Keith Murdoch, of the Australian-American cooperation movement, today described as "a great tragedy Australia's failure to interest Wendell Willkie in a visit there."

Foreign Dishes Give Meals Zest

ACCORDING to Crosby Gaige, noted gourmet, rationing and curtailed supplies are teaching Americans to look for new dishes. These are southern and Near East dishes.

CHEESE CHILI FONDU
(Serves 4)

Two cups enriched bread, cubed; 2 tablespoons fortified margarine, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 pint tomatoes, ½ cup water, 1 teaspoon chili powder, ¼ pound snappy cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, separated.

Toast the cubes of bread and set aside until needed. Melt margarine in saucepan. Add flour and mix to smooth paste. Add tomatoes (canned or fresh) and water. Cook, stirring constantly to prevent lumping, until creamy. Add salt, curry powder and cheese cut into bits. Stir until cheese is melted.

Add the egg yolks, stirring as you add. Remove from over heat. Beat egg whites until light and fluffy. Fold into cheese sauce. Pour over the toasted bread cubes. Again fold together lightly. Turn into a well-greased baking dish. Set dish into pan of hot water. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) about ¾ hour until set. Serve hot.

CURRIED LAMB PIE
(Serves 6)

Two pounds lean breast of lamb, shoulder or neck, 2 tablespoons fortified margarine or drippings, 3 cups boiling water, salt and pepper, bay leaf, paprika, 2 small onions, 2 stalks celery, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, ¼ cup flour, 1 teaspoon curry powder (or to taste), cold water, 2 cups cooked hominy grits.

Have meat cut into serving size pieces. Brown in hot fat. Add boiling water, salt, bay leaf, onions and celery thinly sliced. Simmer togteher, covered, about 2 hours (until meat is quite tender). Mix flour and curry powder. Add cold water slowly, just enough to make a smooth paste. Stir into the meat gravy. Cook, stirrring constantly until gravy is rich and creamy. Pour into casserole or baking dish. Arrange cooked hominy grits around the edge (like a pie crust). Reheat in oven if necessary. Dust edge with paprika, garnish with parsley.

LENTIL CHOWDER

Take 1 lb. lentils, soak for 2 or 3 hours, put on to boil with plenty of water since it is to be soup, and sailt. When nearly soft, put in with the lentils about 3 cupfuls of raw peeled potatoes diced into small pieces. In frying pan place 2 or 3 strips of bacon cut in thin strips, and one onion cut fine, and fry until slightly brown. Pour into the cooked lentils and stir well. The bacon fat should be the consistency of thick soup. Serve vinegar with this soup, for those who like to add a little zest.

Here's another economical foreign dish, contributed by Angela M. Carlozzi.

PASTA E FAGIOLI

Soak one cup of navy beans overnight: start to cook in plenty of water. Add celery tops while cooking. Cook until beans are soft but not disintegrated. In a separate pot, start to boil about 1½ quarts water. When boiling, add ¾ lb. elbow macaroni and cook until well done. Strain and add to cooked beans, to which a little more water has been added.

In a frying pan, put about 2 tablespoons olive oil (or mixed oil) and brown in it one clove of garlic, cut into quarters. Remove garlic. Add ½ can tomato sauce and cook slowly for 20 minutes. Add salt and pepper to taste and ½ teaspoon chopped parsley, ½ tablespoon of oregano (Italian thyme). Add this sauce to macaroni and serve bean mixture. Cook together for about 10 minutes. This will serve 4 people.

Here's a Polish recipe form Mrs. Janina Donimirski.

GOLARKI

One pound half-cooked meat (pork, veal or beef), ¾ cup of cooked rice, ½ onion, fried and chopped, ½ pound half-cooked mushrooms (cooked in stock or water, the residue of which is kept for use in latter part of this recipe), 3 tablespoons shortening (butter or vegetables), salt and pepper to taste.

Mix all ingredients together, then add stock of mushrooms. Carefully loosen leaves of half-cooked cabbage, and stuff these leaves with mixture, and fasten with tooth pick. Fry in vegetable shortening, or place in a pot, pour stock over them, and cook in a moderate oven until tender.

CHICKEN CHANGES: Chicken a la king shortcake on biscuits, chicken soup with dumplings, cold salad plate.

Bank On Chicken And Save! One Of Best Buys For Flavor

FOR A FAMILY of four, a large stewing chicken is one of the best buys for flavor, nutrition and ration point saving. And it makes meat money go farther.

This chicken can be extended for four meals, at least when combined with other foods. In addition, chicken stock and fat from the stewer are good in a number of appetizing food combinations.

Select a plump stewer. Clean it and cut up or cook whole. Place in a kettle and cover by three inches with cold water—this allows for plenty of chicken stock. Add a teaspoon salt, five or six celery leaves and several sprigs of parsley. Cover tightly, slowly bring to a boiling point, lower heat and simmer until the chicken is tender. About two hours is enough to give good flavor and texture.

When the chicken is tender, remove it from the stock and it is ready for a variety of chicken dishes. Cool and chill the stock. Fat will come to the top, skim this off into a jar, cover, store in refrigerator, and use as any other fat in cooking.

STEWED CHICKEN and gravy make a grand first meal for the stewer. Make up a thick, creamy gravy, well seasoned, put in part of the stock for liquid and all chicken fat for the fat called for. Add part of the chicken, reheat for 10 minutes in covered double boiler. Serve as is, or poured over creamy hot mashed potatoes or broiled rice.

CHICKEN POT PIE is delicious. Pour the chicken and gravy into shallow, greased baking dish, cover with biscuits or thin layer of cornbread and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven. Put chicken fat in biscuits or cornbread in place of any other shortening.

for CHICKEN CREOLE, add diced cooked chicken to a pungent tomato, green pepper, celery, onion sauce. Serve on boiled rice or browned noodles. Chicken leftovers can be made into timbales or loaf. Bake and when unmolded cover with any desired savory sauce.

Chicken stock seasoned with diced celery or chopped celery leaves, parsley and a faint hint of herbs and beef extract or beef bouillon cube for extra nutrition, has several culinary uses. It makes good soup, when served plain. For a chowder, thicken a little and add some cubed cooked potatoes and carrots and a few chopped onions slightly browned in diced salt pork.

FEATHER DUMPLINGS
(For Soup)

1 cup sifted cake flour
1¼ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons milk
2 teaspoons melted fat

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Add milk and fat. Then stir quickly and lightly until a very soft dough is formed. Drop by small spoonfuls on simmering soup. Cover kettle tightly and cook gently 14 minutes. Do not remove cover while dumplings cook. Makes 6 to 8 dumplings.

CHICKEN A LA KING

2 cups chicken, cut in pieces
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1½ cups milk
3 tablespoons butter
3½ tablespoons flour

Heat chicken, salt, pepper, and milk in double boiler 15 minutes. Blend butter and flour and add to chicken, stirring until thickened. Cook 15 minutes longer, stirring occasionally. Serve on buttered split hot biscuits.

"Rinse" out the catsup, chili sauce or other relish bottle with 4 tablespoons or so of French dressing. This prevents any waste of the catsup. Add the dressing and use as desired.

Let 'Em Eat Cake, Says Dakota Champ

VOLGA, S .D., Jan. 6. (AP) — "Let 'em eat cake" may be just a famous quotation to most people but to Mrs. J. M. Johnson, Volga farm wife, it's a motto that has paid out in big dividends.

She lets 'em . . . and from coast to coast, pastry lovers have smacked many a lip over Mrs. Johnson's export specials. She's taken cake making from the kitchen and transformed it into a one-woman, transcontinental industry.

The South Dakota cake maker's hobby—she insists it's only that and nothing more — began with wedding cakes for her own family. Enthusiastic guests nibbled politely at first and then dug in with both hands.

Mrs. Johnson's fame grew, jumped community limits and spread out on a big scale. Her cakes began to excite admiration and envy throughout the middle west and in no time orders were coming in from other states. Big league cake baking followed.

Three-and-four-layer products are mere child's play to this farm woman whose record was firmly nailed up in baking's hall of fame with a 13-layer behemoth which took two days to decorate and went by request to Flint, Mich.

One architectural masterpiece — a replica of the steamship Olympia—crossed the Atlantic to London.

Fruits, Vegetables Vitamin C Source

VITAMIN C is always important—every day of the year. Now that oranges and grapefruit, two of the very best sources of vitamin C are plentiful, try these relishes combining fruit and vegetables. They are crisp, colorful and add zest of to any meal.

FLORIDA VITAMIN RELISH

Four oranges, 2 carrots, 1 green pepper, 1 onion (if desired), ½ cup sugar, few grains salt.

Quarter oranges; remove any seeds. Remove peel from 2 oranges. Scrape carrots; quarter lengthwise. Quarter green pepper; remove seeds and stem. Peel onion. Put oranges (2 with peel and 2 without peel), carrots, green pepper and onion through food chopper, using medium blade. Add sugar and salt; mix well. Chill, covered, in refrigerator several hours before using. (Relish will keep well in refrigerator a week or two.)

PICKLED ORANGE QUARTERS.
Florida Style

Three oranges, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons corn syrup, ¼ cup water, ½ cup vinegar, 6 whole cloves, ¼ stick cinnamon.

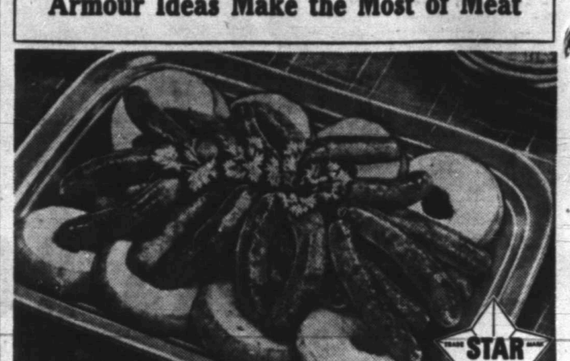

Place oranges in boiling water to cover; add salt. Boil 20 minutes; drain. Cover again with boiling water; boil 20 minutes longer; drain. Cut oranges in lengthwise quarters. Combine sugar, corn syrup, water and vinegar; cook until sugar is dissolved. Add cloves and cinnamon; boil 10 minutes. Arrange orange quarters in casserole; pour syrup over oranges. Cover; bake in moderate oven (325 degrees F.) about 1 hour, or until oranges are transparent. (Will keep well in refrigerator for several weeks.)

HONEY-ORANGE RELISH
(Serves 4)

Four cups raw cranberries, 2 large oranges, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup honey.

Quarter oranges; remove any seeds. Put cranberries and oranges through food chopper, using medium blade. Add suger and honey; mix well. Chill, covered, in refrigerator several hours before using. (Relish will keep well in refrigerator for several weeks.)

What do you like about coffee . . .

—GRIND?—

PERK KUT—Intended only for percolators, this is the coarsest of our grinds. Admiration's special process grinds the coffee to uniform-size particles, free from coffee dust. Perk Kut produces a perfect brew—in percolators

DRIPKUT—This grind is ideal for all the various types of drip pots. It has the consistency of a fine meal, and like all Admiration grinds is free from coffee dust. Hot water has but to saturate it to extract all the flavor.

GLASSDRIP—Vacuum coffee makers brew on an entirely different principle from percolators or drip pots. A vacuum literally "pulls" the flavor from the coffee. Such coffee-makers require a very fine, almost flour-like grind—and that's exactly what Glassdrip is.

Grind is very important in coffee-making. It has a direct bearing on the strength of your brew and the quality of its flavor. Too fine a grind for your pot produces a sediment in the brew. This often makes coffee bitter. Too coarse a grind brews improperly and results in weak, flavorless coffee. The exact grind recommended for your coffee-maker is what you should use. It will be one of three standard grinds: for the percolator . . for the drip pot . . or for the vacuum bottle. Admiration Coffee is scientifically ground for all three. When you buy and brew the right grind, the final strength and flavor of Admiration will be exactly as its roasters intended it. And you, like countless thousands, will love it. Try a pound today

Texas Gulf Coast Area Hits All Time High In Industry

By BRACK CURRY
Associated Press Staff

The Texas Gulf coast industrial area registered manufacturing at an all-time high and no slackening of activity in sight as the year 1944 began.

In 1943 the area clinched its position as the most intensely developed manufacturing region in the south. Now many plants producing war materials are receiving contract extensions and additional orders.

The number of plants engaged in manufacturing, their volume of production both in output and dollar value and the number of employees will increase this year.

New Industrial Order

Basic industries coming into operation and founding a new industrial order include steel, magnesium, tin, chemicals and synthetic rubber, most of which look toward ready markets in a huge post-war southwest economy.

In value of commodities produced and manpower employed, shipbuilding in 1944 as in 1943 will head the list. In the two principal shipyards at Houston labor employs 40,000 persons. Other thousands work in the ship cradling area around Orange.

Among the new industries swinging into full output this year will be two great buna-S rubber plants with their supporting industries for production of butadiene. Their combined capacity is 90,000 long tons a year.

A third synthetic rubber plant now under construction will produce 35,000 long tons a year of the butyl variety.

Blast Furnace To Start

Scheduled for completion this year is a blast furnace unit to manufacture pig iron from East Texas iron ore at Sheffield Steel company's Houston plant. The unit will hike the available supply of steel produced at Houston to about 500,000 tons a year.

Destroyers, small vessels and cargo ships will continue to come from Houston and Orange shipyards at rates equal to or possibly surpassing 1943 production.

From other plants in the area will pour toluol, ingredient of TNT; butadiene, a synthetic rubber base; machine gun parts, bomber struts, tank parts. High-test aviation gasoline and other petroleum products will slosh from refineries at unprecedented rates.

From Freeport and New Gulf will come sulphur, from Texas City tin from the nation's only completed tin smelter, from Freeport magnesium.

Labor Problem To Ease

Among the nation's worst labor shortage and congestion areas last year, the Texas coastal region will find its labor problems eased in 1944.

"On paper, the Beaumont-Port Arthur-Orange area is still the worst labor section of the state," says Claude E. Belk, state director of the War Manpower commission. "However, that situation is rapidly improving and within a few weeks it will be well in hand."

With an eye on this lush area of largely unorganized labor, the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations planned unionization drives.

At a December meeting in Houston AFL officials from the Orange to Corpus Christi area named a general organizing committee with instructions to "carry the organizing work into every industrial plant and shop."

CONVICTS CLEAN STREETS

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—Convicts are helping clean New York City streets of snow. A part of Mayor F. H. YaGuardia's plan to dip into city prisons for needed manpower, 138 inmates of Rikers island penitentiary were put to work in the Bronx yesterday and were ordered back on the job today.

Ghee is a clarified butter used in India.

Relief At Last For Your Cough

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

Eases the Pain — Soothes the Nerves

Crisis In Teacher Shortage Over Nation Believed Past

(By The United Press)

The nation's elementary and high schools have passed the crisis of the teacher shortage, a survey disclosed today, but they still face critical manpower problems in the sciences, mathematics and the trades.

Thousands of high school students have left classrooms for high paying jobs in war industry, the survey showed. As a result, fewer teachers are needed.

But as the schools approached their second term of the third war year, educators in many areas feared that educational standards might deteriorate. Qualified instructors inducted into the service have been replaced by substitutes, and thousands of schools have been closed.

Salaries And Standards

As a means of plugging gaps in the teaching ranks, educational authorities throughout the country have raised teacher salaries, lowered teaching standards, consolidated and discontinued rural schools and merged classes.

Superintendent L. A. Thomas of the Kimberly, Ida., schools faced a critical situation. His full-time job as superintendent now includes teaching a complete schedule of high school classes and driving the school bus. The latest draft call also placed him temporarily at the head of the music department.

Extreme situations were noted in reports from Pennsylvania and Wisconsin. Pittsburgh superintendent of schools, Dr. Henry Hill, said a surplus of teachers exists because of declined enrollment. While 3,000 instructors entered service, approximately 5,000 substitutes armed with wartime certificates are available.

Wisconsin, however, closed eight high and 850 grade schools, and discontinued many mathematic, physical, education, music and art classes the last two years. Emergency teaching permits were issued to 2,400 new and retired teachers this year as relief measures.

East Coast States

Eastern states, including New York, Massachusetts and Connecticut, reported "the crisis had passed" wtih decreased enrollment as students entered war work.

Florida, Georgia and Alabama reported some rural schools were closed, mainly due to tire shortages and gasoline rationing. Salary increases ranged from 10 to 25 per cent.

In Kansas salaries were hiked about 20 per cent. Officials said educational standards had not dropped.

Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Missouri acted to decrease the number of gaps in teaching ranks by increasing salaries, rehiring retired teachers and issuing emergency certificates. Few rural schools were closed.

Legion Head Supports War Strike Charges

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 6 (AP) — The right to strike should be suspended for the duration of the war, Warren H. Atherton, national commander of the American Legion, telegraphed Gen. George C. Marshall today.

Atherton, whose home is Stockton, Calif., advised the army chief of staff that the Legion supports the statement, attributed by some to General Marshall, that labor troubles in this country have prolonged the war by lending encouragement to Germany.

"We know as you do that if the enemy could cut our supply lines, our armies would be doomed," Aherton's telegram said. "We can not afford to help the enemy by cutting our own supply lines for him by strikes here at home."

GAMBLERS PAY OFF

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (U.P.) — Eighteen men accused of playing the horses agreed to Magistrate Nicholas H. Pinto's suggestion pledged a pint of blood each to the Red Cross. "The bookmakers take our money and the judge takes our blood," said one as charges of disorderly conduct were dismissed.

Award To Mark Graduation Fete

At graduation ceremonies to be held in the Post Theater of Lubbock Army Air field Friday morning Mrs. Beulah Hulsey of Olton will be presented with the Distinguished Flying Cross awarded to her son, T/Sgt. Dale G. Hulsey who is missing in action.

The coveted DFC was won by Hulsey's son during the famous Ploesti oil field raid and was awarded for the bravery and the skill shown by T/Sgt. Hulsey in completing his mission in the face of terrific ground and air attacks by the enemy.

In addition to presenting the award to Mrs. Hulsey on behalf of the War department, Col. Ralph E. Holmes, commanding officer of the field, will also launch this, the first class of the new year. It is hoped that Col. George W. Cutting of the General Staff corps, Washington, who has signified his intention of being here to see his son, Cadet John P. Cutting, graduate will also address the class.

The honor student of the class, Robert N. Cyzmoure from Milwaukee, Wis., will also come in for recognition at the exercises. His academic average for the advanced course of training of 98.66 is the highest attained at LAAF. This almost perfect score in ground studies was also made by Lt. Ernest V. Yingling, jr., Wichita, Kans., who graduated with class 42-J. Maj. Gordon J. Mott will present the honor student's wings.

The presentation of wings to the other members of Class 44-A will be made by Capt. Thomas O. Marshall, commander of the 3rd Provisional Training squadron and Capt. John C. Palmer, operations officer of the 1st Provisional Training squadron. The invocation will be given by Lt. Randall T. Miller, post chaplain, and the oath of office will be administered to the new flying officers by Maj. Russell Shively, post secretary.

Admission will be by invitation only and a great many parents and relatives of class members will be here from all parts of the U. S. for the occasion. Wisconsin leads all states in number of graduates with 43 from the Badger state. Illinois is second and Michigan third with in Texas the top four, as usual. The northwestern part of the country not only led all sections, but also furnished the largest college group with 21 former students from University of Wisconsin. In the Wisconsin U. group is the honor student, Cadet Cyzmoure, and a former Badger football captain, Cadet M. D. Hoskins.

This class is also distinguished by the number of members with artistic talents. Eight of the class either studied art or were successful artists before entering service. A large number of 44-A cadets came into the flying training program direct from jobs in aircraft, munitions, tank and ship building plants. Cadet John E. Roberts, of Pilot Point, is a licensed minister and Cadet Roy J. Ferguson of Sweetwater is also a member of the ministerial alliance in his home town. Cadet Eric E. Muller has already seen plenty of action as a crew member of a Flying Fortress with the famous 19th Bombardment group in the early days of the war on Java and later from a base in Australia.

Young B. C. Newsom, petroleum engineering graduate of Texas Technological college in 1943 and former draftsman for City Manager Arch King is a member of the class. Newsom was employed a as surveyor during construction of South Plains Army Air field here. His wife, the former Miss Frances V. Graham, of 2308 Tenth street, Lubbock, will accompany him when he leaves here. Newsom's mother, Mrs. Carson C. West, lives at Sonora.

Letters To The Editor From Readers

BLAMES PARENTS

Editor, The Avalanche: The 'teen age class seem to be much in the limelight. There seem to be many writers who put most of the blame on the war.

I blame the parents for the conditions. When parents of 'teen age girls and boys turn them footloose, it makes it hard on the entire town. Some parents are so weak, they just can't control their children. Men and women of that class should be jailed. It is a pitiful sight to see young school girls out strolling at night, or hanging out at all night cafes and rooming houses. What kind of mother or father do such girls have? What can be expected of the son and daughter if the parents do not control them?

What is going on here and in every town and city in the state? Evidently the greater per cent of crimes are now committed by 'teen age boys and girls. Who is to blame for such conditions? I say blame the parents. In thousands of cases, mothers and dads have actually thrown their young daughters at boys in uniform. Dad and mother, on the other had, have almost quit their homes to work in factories, etc. They leave Susie and Bill to make their own way at home as best they can. Everyone knows that a motherless home is bad for a 'teen age girl or boy. The parents are out for the folding money, the fat checks they get every week. But with all their money they cannot buy back Susie's virtue.

A man who will not control Billy, or Junior, is not worthy of the name, father. It is time something was done to save the virtue and honor of the younger generation. I believe a good plan would be to start on the parents. Uncontrolled boys and girls are a menace to a town or community in which decent people reside. The 'teen age problem seems to be growing greater day by day. When little Susie goes down the primrose path, it's too late to do anything about the matter. When Junior is picked up for car theft or house breaking, it's too late. A broken-hearted mother and dad can do nothing, and they alone are to blame. They should suffer for their failure to control their offsprings.

Don't blame the deplorable conditions on the war and the men in uniform. Place the blame where it rightly belongs. Wake up, you parents!

Without full cooperation by parents, juvenile delinquency will never be halted in this country. Mothers, think it over. Stay home with your 'teen age children and let dad bring in the bacon.

J. L. Lane,
Lubbock, Texas.

Liberty Ships Said Feared By Sailors

SEATTLE, Jan. 6. (AP)—Asserting that merchant sailors on Liberty ships "have been ready to jump overboard at the drop of a hat," James N. Greathouse, patrolman for the marine firemen's union, told interviewers today that the men had continued to sail the ships lest they be accused of sabotaging the war effort.

Greathouse made the statement after conferring with Rep. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash) of the House naval affairs committee, who has been investigating the cracking up of vessels of this type.

"We've kept out mouths shut about war information," Greathouse said. "If we had complained about the liberties, there would have been a wave of indignation about our sabotaging the war effort. So we kept on sailing them.

"Now Magnuson is bringing out the facts, and that's a good thing. Our men are getting sick and tired of it. The government shouldn't compel any man to go out on those ships. They ought to be junked."

The death rate from respiratory cancer is higher among males than females.

Partisans Say Island In Adriatic Retaken

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP) — The Partisan Army of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) asserted today it had recaptured the 35-mile long island of Pag in the northeastern Adriatic and scored fresh successes elsewhere on the irregular Yugoslav battlefronts.

The Partisan communique countered reports issued from King Peter's headquarters that Tito's armies of liberation were badly mauled and on the verge of disaster.

Savage fighting was reported on a dozen or more sectors and the communique said the Partisans were battering the Nazis into retreat in the coastal region southeast of the Italian port of Fiume, crushing a German offensive in eastern Bosnia and seizing the initiative in western Bosnia.

Sanguinary street fighting continued in the five-day battle for Banja Luka, Croatian headquarters of the Second German Army.

Vlasenica, 30 miles northeast of Sarajevo, was captured along with a huge store of war gear, the Partisan communique said. Some 300 Germans were reported killed in Slavonia and Slovenia near Dvor and another 100 were slain at besieged Novo Mesto.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP)—An inconspicuous building whose entrance is guarded for the moment by a lone American sentry has become Allied invasion headquarters in London. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is not expected for a few days although members of his staff already are at work in the new quarters.

Texas Family Will Remember January 5

HOUSTON, Jan. 6 (U.P.)—January 5 is a date the Jack Donelson family will remember.

Two years ago today, Joe Donelson, oldest son of the family, joined the Navy.

One year ago today, John Donelson, second son of the family, joined the Navy.

Today, Miss Dorothy Donelson, last of the Donelson children, left for Fort Ogelthorpe, Ga., to join the Air-WAC.

POLICE CAR STOLEN

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Jan. 6 (U.P.)—Police found their sleek, two-tone green prowl car in a ditch. The car, once the police department's prized possession, was a heap of twisted wreckage. It had been stolen while parked in front of the police station.

Writer Resolves He Won't Call Censors 'Real Names'

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE AEF IN ITALY, Jan. 1. (Delayed)—My New Year's resolution is never again to get mad at the censors.

After all, they're just another bunch of good guys who have a nasty job. It isn't their fault the boys have to be censored. You can't blame them because the rules they followed often are silly. It just isn't fair to get mad at them, so I hereby resolve not to do it any more.

It's a difficult resolution to make and it's going to take a lot of mental discipline to keep it, especially if they pull some of the tricks they used on my copy back in Africa.

That Airways Story

There was that airways communications story which didn't involve any military security, but the censors thought that inadvertently it might bring up some international political problems which should be left alone until after the war. There was no rule which would justify stopping it, so they mailed it to Washington for a higher decision. That fixed it.

Then there was the photo reconnaissance outfit whose officers invited me to write a story about their work and showed the war department letter permitting publicity. In addition to that authority I showed the censors in Algiers that the parts to which they objected already had been printed in two magazines.

"Certainly," replied one censor, "but just because we've made two mistakes that doesn't mean we should make a third."

Now in all fairness it stands to reason that I shouldn't have called that censor all those names just because they fitted. Maybe he couldn't help it. Maybe he didn't have any better sense than that. Hereafter I resolve not to tell censors what they really are. But they're going to have to cooperate, too. If they think I'm going to make all these concessions myself they're crazy. It's a poor resolution that won't work both ways.

Take this last trip up front for instance. I was proud of all the Copy I had written—about two stories a day. Then I got back to headquarters and found almost half of them had been stopped. Some of the others had been slashed beyond recognition.

General And Colonel

They killed one story about a general and a colonel who spent Christmas eve together on the lines in World war I and did a repeat performance near the Volturno this year. It seems that the general's name isn't on the record yet, although everybody in Italy—including the Germans — know who he is.

But that isn't the censors' fault. They can't help it because the only generals permitted to get publicity didn't happen to be celebrating their war anniversary that night. It makes me ashamed of myself to think how I flew into a rage.

And the things practiced on that tank battle story were terrible. All they did was emasculate the story. You still could tell there'd been a battle involving an undesignated number of tanks attacking an unnam l city between two unlisted hills, and they left in the pretty description of the scene, I figured the editors would love that.

There was no excuse for me getting sore at them for cutting out the number of casualties I saw, but leaving in phraseology which left the impression that the losses were lighter than they really were. After all, it wasn't their job to worry about the fact that the deletions reversed the original meaning of the paragraph.

So I'm resolved not to get sore at the censors any more. That's my resolution, even if they appear to cut copy for propoganda purposes, even if their deletions imply that Goums and other French colonial troops are soldiers from France.

It's true that they don't make the censorship rules and even if they are inconsistent in their enforcement of them, even if they do have a knack for stopping the stories you stick your neck out the fartherest to get, still that's my resolution. I'll never get mad at the censors again.

And I aim to keep it just like I keep every New Year's resolution.

WFA Approves Food Stamp Plan In Lieu Of Subsidies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6. (U.P.) — The War Food administration has approved proposals for a food stamp plan to help low-income groups meet the increased wartime cost of living, it was announced today.

One of the sponsors of the plan, Sen. George D. Aiken, R., Vt., made public a letter from deputy WFA Administrator Grover Hill saying it would be "desirable" to have a stamp program similar to that used to distribute surplus commodities to the needy during the depression.

Aiken and other members of the farm bloc proposed the plan as an alternative to the controversial consumer rollback subsidy program.

18 Million Eligible

Hill said a WFA survey made in connection with the proposal indicated that approximately 18,000,000 persons would be eligible for benefits, and the cost would be no more than $3,000,000,000 annually.

The program, introduced in both the House and Senate, would authorize the WFA to distribute stamps to supplement food budgets of low-income groups.

In the basic diet would be milk by its by-products, potatoes, dry beans, peas and nuts, tomatoes and citrus fruits, leafy, green or yellow vegetables, other vegetables and fruits, eggs, meat, poultry and fish, flour and cereals, fats and oils and sugars, syrups and preserves.

$646 Current Average

From this diet, the WFA survey showed that "the current average cost of the basic food allotment is approximately $646 a year for a family of four persons."

Statistics were cited to show that to spend $646 for food, a four-member family must have an income of $2,350 a year. Thus, families getting less would be eligible for enough foor stamps to make up the difference between their present food outlay and $646.

Aiken said that the cost of the program could be reduced by establishing quotas on an area basis, to give more credit to those living in high-cost areas, and less to those in low-cost and rural areas.

Hill said the program would be of "substantial assistance" to school teachers, government workers, dependents of servicemen, the aged and physically handicapped and all others on fixed incomes.

Referring to the anti-subsidy section of the bill—which Aiken said would prohibit the subsidies on meat, butter and milk—Hill said the budget bureau "advises that it would not be in accord with the program of the president."

Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, meanwhile, said his efforts to work out an administration-farm bloc compromise on subsidies were at a standstill, and probably would remain so until President Roosevelt made his state of union address to Congress next week.

Anti-Nazi Pastor In Denmark Is Slain

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 6 (AP)—Kaj Munk, famed Danish poet and pastor who had openly fought the Nazis, has been found slain in a woods near the German military headquarters at Silkeborg, Denmark, dispatches from Copenhagen disclosed today, the victim of what the Free Danish press service terms a Nazi-inspired political assassination.

The slaying of Munk, who had written many anti-Nazi books, articles and plays, stirred up among Danes an indignation unmatched since the mass arrests of Jews early last October.

The pastor-poet's body was found Tuesday, dispatches to the Swedish telegraphic agency said, after four men believed to have been gestapo agents went to Munk's home at nearby Vedersoe and drove away with him.

Amnesia Victim Gives Blessing To Marriage Of Wife

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 6. (AP)—Allen E. Miller, who insists that he can't remember a thing prior to 1937 because of loss of memory gave his wife and her new husband his blessing today.

Police had brought the couple together after Miller reported he recently discovered papers indicating he had a wife and child in 1936. The wife, believing Miller dead, had remarried.

The couple conferred privately.

The woman, now Mrs. M. E. Atkinson, obviously was upset, but Miller told reporters, "I'll withdraw. After all, she's happily married now."

Police said the Millers would arrange a divorce, and the Atkinsons would re-marry. Miller stipulated only that he wanted to contribute to the support of the child, they said.

Miller told Police Capt. James M. Fleming he apparently became an amnesia victim in October, 1936, a month before his child was born, and wandered for six months. Memory of his actions dates from 1937 when he was in Texas, he said.

Mrs. Atkinson said she married again after being informed that Miller was killed in an automobile accident in Texas. Miller said he recalled being injured seriously.

Poles Told To Avoid Conflict With Reds

LONDON, Jan. 6 (AP)—The Polish government in exile implied today that its underground would continue to resist German invaders and avoid all conflict with Soviet armies entering what it regards as Polish territory, but indicated there would be little cooperation with the Russians.

In a statement issued to all the United Nations the Polish government said that on Oct. 27 it had instructed its underground to cooperate with Red Army commanders in the event of a resumption of Polish-Soviet relations. It added that if an agreement had been reached between the two countries before the frontier had been crossed, the Poles would have coordinated their action against Germany with that of the Soviet.

China's Armies Said Ready For Comeback

CHUNGKING, Jan. 6 (AP) — China's armies stand ready, even with available equipment, to spring a general counter-offensive this year, but such a campaign would be contingent upon Allied activities in other war theaters, minister of information Liang Han-Chao said today.

He declared that increased air power in China would be especially helpful to a Chinese offensive.

A communique meanwhile announced capture of all villages around Owchihkow on the Yantze river above Tungting lake, and said the Chinese were pushing on into the suburbs of the city.

Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said U. S. 14th Air force bombers with fighter escorts had pounded the Japanese base at Lampang in Thailand Monday with 10 tons of bombs, and fighter-bombers struck Pingka in western Yunnan province starting many fires. All planes returned safely.

Denver Dissatisfied With Highway Plans

DENVER, Jan. 6 (AP)—A proposed system of inter-regional highways now being studied by the United States Public Road administration would make Denver "a cowtrail," State Highway Engineer Charles D. Vail asserted today.

Vail said tentative plans created a big void in the Plains region for north-south and east-west highways.

Vail recommended a north-south highway through Denver, starting at Laredo, Texas, and using present highways through Eden, Texas, Raton, N. M., Denver, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Great Falls, Mont., thence to Lethbridge, Calgary, and Edmonton, Canada.

Sinatra To Aid In "March Of Dimes"

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (U.P.)—Frank Sinatra, the swoon crooner, has been appointed chairman of the American youth division of the 1944 "march of dimes", Basil O'Connor, president of the national foundation for infantile paralysis, announced today, and will be the only person other than President Roosevelt who will make a national appeal for the campaign.

Sinatra has made six five-minute recordings of popular tunes, the announcement said, concluding with a soliciting plea, which will be heard on more than 900 radio stations.
