Oil, Gas Valuations Lower, County Takes Loss of Income

An almost 30 per cent drop in oil and gas values for 1973 tax roll purposes has been reported to Aransas County in preliminary estimates on industrial and mineral valuations.

I.R.S. To Check Prices

Spot checks on retail merchants to see that they comply with President Nixon's recent freeze on prices of goods and services will begin Sunday.

R. S. Rostfeld, Internal Revenue Service director for southern Texas, said retailers also will be required to post frozen prices in much the same way as under Phase 2 regulations.

He said records must be available upon request within two days after merchants receive official notice from the IRS concerning the specific regulations of the current Economic Stabilization Program. The official date of price freeze posting is before noon Sunday.

closer to 25 per cent due to slight gains in utilities.

The preliminary report was prepared by Thomas Y. Pickett & Co. Inc., valuation engineers, and was to be presented to the commissioners court June 28 when it convenes as a board of equalization.

The board was to take up industrial and mineral values on the 28th, then will take a look at real and personal property values on June 29. Tax Assessor - Collector Margaret Weber said that there will be an increase in real estate values, but that she is not prepared to estimate the gain at this time.

"There has been a lot of construction," she commented. According to valuation engineers, Aransas County can expect industrial and mineral values to total an estimated $15,428,205 this year compared to the final figures of $19,925,815 last year.

The figures represent 25 per cent of actual value, the assessment ratio used by the county for tax purposes.

The City of Rockport has received a contribution of $300 from the Rockport Home and Garden Club for equipment in a tiny tots playground at Memorial Park.

Announcement of the gift was made at this week's meeting of the City Council. The Home and Garden Club explained that the funds were allocated for this purpose by the Aransas County-Rockport Centennial Corporation and was left over from the 1970 Centennial celebration.

In other actions the Council concurred with the recommendations of the Planning and Zoning Commission in the following matters:

ART SHOW DETAILS DISCUSSED — Final plans for the fourth annual art festival sponsored by the Rockport Art Association are discussed by key members of committees in charge of the show which is scheduled for Saturday, June 30, and Sunday, July 1, in the park area south of the ski basin from noon until 8 p.m. both days.

Rain, Rain Go Away

In spite of a general impression to the contrary, rainfall in the Rockport area during the past week has not been excessive. A total of 4.88 inches for the week was recorded by Paul C. Sorenson, local weather observer.

There was some rain each day but the heaviest for any 24 hour period was 1.85 inches on June 24. One day only one tenth of an inch was recorded, but some rain fell every day.

No damage as a result of rainfall was reported by either police or the sheriff's office. In a few instances it was necessary to use warning flares on water-covered county roads and some pavements may have been damaged by standing water.

Chief of Police Addresses Rotary

Problems and rewards of police work as a profession were discussed by Rockport's Chief of Police Jim Craigmile at a luncheon meeting of Rotary Club June 20 at Corky's restaurant.

He asserted that cooperation between his department and the Aransas County Sheriff's department was excellent. He pointed out that the effectiveness of both departments was improved because of this relationship. He cited several instances in which officers of the two departments had worked together to solve a crime.

Chief Craigmile declared that the day was gone when a law enforcement officer was appointed merely because he was "a good old boy" and well liked in the community. Today all officers are required by state law to complete a specified number of hours of training in a police school. And this must be accomplished within one year of the time he is appointed or he cannot remain on the force, the chief added.

Craigmile who has had 15 years' experience in law enforcement in Texas and in the middlewest, said he used to come to Rockport on vacation and has been in love with the community ever since.

According to the chief, approximately 65 per cent of a peace officer's time is spent on service duties involving such items as stray dogs and street lights that are out, leaving about 35 per cent of his time for law enforcement. He explained that his department tried to assign reasonable priorities to calls coming into headquarters so as to make sure urgent situations were handled promptly.

Craigmile says the morale and discipline of the Rockport police department is improving (Continued on Page Two)

Proposals for Hwy. 35 Meeting Opposition

Proposals to take a stretch of Texas 35 along a route north and west of the Aransas County Airport have sparked some opposition from residents in the Copano Village Subdivision.

A public hearing on proposed design of improvements to Texas 35 from Gregory to Copano Bay Causeway is scheduled at 10 a.m. today, July 28 at the VFW Hall here. Revised alignment in two locations from a route proposed at a public hearing on March 14, 1972, will also be aired at the Thursday hearing, to be conducted by the Texas Highway Department.

Donald E. Skewis, supervising resident engineer on the proposed multimillion dollar project, said Monday that the highway department has received at least one letter from a Copano Village resident who contends change proposed in the vicinity of the Aransas County airport will bring the highway too close to his home.

Meanwhile, a group of Copano Village residents is circulating a petition in opposition to the revised alignment claiming it would devalue their property. Originally, it was proposed to take Texas 35 along a route south and east of the airport providing for some segments to parallel and use existing portions. (Continued on Page Two)

Candidates Invited To Open Meeting

Candidates for the Board of Navigation and Canal Commissioners of Aransas County Navigation District No. 1 have been invited to an open meeting on Monday, July 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Aransas County Courthouse District Court Room. This event is sponsored by the Rockport Unit, League of Women Voters.

The meeting is planned so that each candidate may present his platform and answer questions from the audience.

Interested voters are urged to attend to take advantage of this opportunity to meet the candidates and to be informed on local issues.

The League of Women Voters is nonpartisan and does not support or oppose any political party or candidate. Its purpose is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government. It also publishes and distributes factual information to help prepare citizens to cast an informed vote.

A Voters Guide is being prepared by the League which will contain verbatim statements by each candidate concerning his platform.

Runaway Barges Captured By Tug

Unscheduled and unguided, four large empty steel barges made a trip south on the Intracoastal Waterway from the Cove Harbor area past Palm Harbor to the vicinity of City by the Sea, a distance of about five miles, early Sunday.

The barges, secured end to end, navigated the relatively narrow channel without once going aground. Speed was approximately two miles an hour. It was believed that wind and tide conditions were ideal to keep the barges in the middle of the channel.

After phone calls to the Coast Guard station at Port Aransas and to the Aransas County sheriff's office, a tug was dispatched to take the runaway barges into custody.

Large Crowds Expected for Fourth Annual Art Festival

The vanguard of some 115 artists from Texas and nearby states who will exhibit at the Rockport Art Association's fourth annual art festival Saturday, June 30, and Sunday, July 1, is expected to start moving their work into display booths which have been set up in the park area south of the ski basin. The show will be open from noon until 8 p.m. both days. The artists will be from 35 different communities and their work will include watercolor and oil painting, sculpture, ceramics, photographs, pottery, jewelry and batik. It is anticipated that a record number of commercial buyers and private collectors will be on hand to create an attractive market for the works of art. More than 300 have been invited to attend.

Site for the show was made available by officers of the Aransas County Navigation district. Steve Russell, art association president, said his members were delighted with the opportunity to use this site which is considered ideal for the festival, especially because it is virtually in the heart of downtown Rockport.

In addition to 100 covered display booths, there will be a large concessions tent where food and beverages will be sold, as well as several tents to provide shade and rest areas. Profits from sale of refreshments will be added to the art association's building fund looking forward to a new art gallery, Russell said.

Registration and assignment of display space will be handled at a hospitality tent with Mrs. Bob Mosier and her committee members in charge. A public address system also will be operated from this tent. Between 30 and 40 association members will participate in festival activities, all wearing distinctive hats imprinted with the name of the association.

Mrs. Ed (Sis) Harper is chairman of the arrangements committee, with Clem Hernandez serving as display booth construction chief. Estelle Stair, manager of the association's gallery on Austin Street, is providing professional guidance for the festival, and Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Jenkins are in charge of the concessions tent. David H. Crooks is in charge of newspaper and broadcast coverage.

Participating actively in the art festival for the first time, the Rockport-Fulton Tourist Association and the Rockport Chamber of Commerce are jointly sponsoring a street dance adjacent to the show grounds starting at 8 p.m. Saturday night. Polish sausage sandwiches, beer and soft drinks will be sold during the dance at which Johnny McBee's band of Bishop will play. A children's activity program is planned for the time the art show is open to permit parents to visit the art exhibits. Jim Fowler heads the tourist association's participation, while Frank Langham represents the Chamber of Commerce.

In addition, the Women's Guild of St. Peter's Episcopal Church has set up a tour of three of Rockport's historic homes, as well as a drawing for a painting contributed by Dr. Eleanor Valentine.

Rockport artists who will exhibit their work include Rozella Hughes, Ed Fickett, Eleanor Valentine, Lil Cox, Dana Taggart, A.E. Wedgeworth, Eleanor Wedgeworth, Kay Howland, Ruth Heasley, Ruth Cline, Steve Russell, Betsy Tuttle, Steve Akin, Gunny Whittle, Estelle Stair, Sierra King and Claudia Nelson. Largest delegation of artist-exhibitors will be from San Antonio which will send 23. There will be 10 from Corpus Christi, 12 from Austin, 8 from Houston, and 6 from Dallas.

Other communities will be represented by one or more artists, including Port Aransas, Beaumont, Amarillo, Arlington, Portland, Casterville, Converse, College Station, Grand Prairie, La Feria, Laredo, Lockhart, McAllen, Midland, Port Lavaca, Raymondville, San (Continued on Page Two)

Every Texas history buff is familiar with the name of Thomas Henry Mathis, his erect stature, his chiseled features, his vigorous stride and his seemingly endless accomplishments in pioneering and developing the Coastal Bend country in a wide swath

Little League Going Strong

The Aransas County Baseball Association has realized their dream baseball park. Although this is the second year the teams have played on the field, the entire ball park area is finally completed just like the association has always hoped.

The Little League field is located on the city park property and is under the direction of the association during the 45-day season. The concession stand is the property of the association, materials and labor being donated and paid for by the members and other interested parties.

Many hours of hard labor have been put in by the members shaping the field, watering the grass, building the concession stand, practicing with the ball teams, buying supplies, hustling donations for signs on the fence, and also finding sponsors of the teams.

There are 200 boys divided among 6 minor league teams and 7 little league teams, participating in the program. Uniforms for each team are bought by a business and their names are displayed on the back of the shirts. Caps and stockings, balls, bats, game helmets, score books, etc., are bought by the association.

Fire Marshal Warns: Don't Store Gasoline

Fire Marshal Elva Mullinax says it is against the law to store more than five gallons of gasoline at your home or ordinary place of business.

And he warns that state fire inspectors will be here soon to investigate various places and make sure the law is being observed.

Mullinax said he discovered one instance this week in which a man had stored seven 55-gallon drums in a shed. Mullinax said he ordered the man to reduce his home supply to a total of five gallons and warned that prosecution would result if such a violation occurred again.

He asked local residents to notify him, Fire Chief Gary Smith or Constable Johnny Ray of any violations.

including Gollad, Rockport, Mathis, the city which was named for him.

But, few have had the privilege of walking through the front doors of the magnificent home he built for his bride, Mary Jane, about 1869 or 1870; of wandering through the rooms, with 12-foot high ceilings, he lived in for approximately 30 years before his death in 1899; of viewing the D. Haviland china, imported from Limoges, on which this giant of history dined, or of standing before his own private walnut dressing mirror.

Now, every person who visits Rockport for the nationally-known annual Rockport Art Festival, next Saturday and Sunday, June 30 and July 1, will be given that privilege, according to Father Lester Hill, Rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church of Rockport.

The Mathis House, on City 35 next door to the Rockport Post Office, will be one of three historic Rockport homes open to the public from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. for a single $1.50 ticket, under the sponsorship of St. Peter's church. The other two will be The Hoopes House, the magnificent three-story mansion at the intersection of Highway 35 and City 35, and The Bruhl House, the charming home between The Hoopes House and Rockport City Hall.

More than 100 nationally-recognized artists will have their works on display, and for sale, from 12 noon until 8 p.m. during the Rockport Art Festival, which will be spread over the spacious grounds of the park area at the south end of the ski-basin in Rockport. There will be no charge for admission to the Art Festival.

Tickets for the Historic Homes Tour may be obtained at a special booth, serving free ice water, on the grounds of the Art Festival. Ticket holders will be able to visit each home in the order they choose and to wander through each home at their own pace. While there will be knowledgeable hostesses to answer all questions and guards to protect the priceless objects of art and pieces of antique furniture, there will be no so-called "conducted tour".

When this reporter was given a personally-conducted tour of The Mathis House by its present owner, Mrs. Willard S. Bain, granddaughter of Thomas Henry Mathis, he found it impossible to distinguish a great house from an even greater man who built it.

While Agnes and I were going through the spacious rooms of this breath-taking home -- pardon me, I tried to address the granddaughter of this great man as Mrs. Bain, but she kept saying, in the warm tradition of this country, "Agnes" -- I could see the elegance, the charm and the warmth of this lovely home but, at the same time, I could feel the dynamic strength, the power, the force, the drive of this man, who, with a handful of others, literally (Continued on Page Two) built Rockport, its wharfs, its refrigerated meat packing facilities and the great cattle country, fanning out from this place.

The Rockport Pilot

Thursday, June 28, 1973

T.H. Mathis built this home of cypress lumber he had shipped across The Gulf of Mexico by The Morgan Line, for whom he was agent, among many other things. Before the lumber arrived, he had local bricklayers form a 7-foot high foundation with arched openings, upon which to build the house.

As the sturdy cypress planks were hauled from the Mathis wharf in Rockport to the location of the brick foundation by ox cart, they were "pegged and joined" by ship's carpenters, plank by plank, board by board, until this sturdy ship of a house has withstood every storm which has buffeted the Gulf Coast in the last century.

Visitors to this home will first pass through a gate in the fence of white-painted original round cypress balusters. They will then go up 12 steps to the pillared portico and through the massive front doors into the entrance hall. All of the furniture in this entrance hall, including the "Hall-tree" and the "settees" were there, right where they are now, when Thomas Henry and Mary Jane Mathis entertained their guests who came through those doors.

To the right of the entry hall is the original "parlor" of this home. The Mathis granddaughter, Mrs. Bain, pardon me, "Agnes" has converted it into a beautiful, old-timey bedroom, with canopied four-poster, marble-top wash-stand, with pitcher, basin and pottle. In this beautiful room an antique amoir and a marble-top commode, are among many other items worth seeing.

We return to the entry-hall, with its large fire-place, and go to the left, where we enter into Mrs. Mathis original bedroom. In this bedroom, to the left of the entry-hall, we are told, is the original bed, bedroom furniture, commode, marble-topped wash-stand in which this bride, this woman, this wife, this mother, was able to spend her quiet hours.

At the far end of the entry hall the visitors will enter a pleasant dining room where can be seen the original D. Haviland china upon which dined this giant in history, who was born in Tennessee in 1834 and was a school teacher in Tennessee and Arkansas before coming to southwest Texas in 1859. One can almost feel the vibrance of his late-supper conversations in this room with James M. Doughty, Joseph F. Smith and Col. John Howland Wood, who, with T.H. Mathis, were the founders of Rockport. It is entirely possible that in this very room, while dining over thick steaks from the Mathis packing plant, he and Tom M. Coleman and Col. George W. Fulton, son-in-law of Governor Henry M. Smith, discussed the formation of the now - famous Coleman - Mathis - Fulton Pasture Company, which acquired and raised cattle upon some of the richest land in Texas.

Off of the dining room, to the right, is what is know as "The Green Bedroom" where, over the fire-place can be seen a Daguerreotype of six of the eight children born to T. H. and Mary Jane Nold Mathis in this house. Also in this room of quiet elegance stands the walnut dressing mirror mentioned earlier.

Off of the dining room, to the left, is "The Yellow Bedroom", and visitors will see why "The Green Bedroom" and "The Yellow Bedroom" were so named. In the latter room can be seen a chest of drawers and built-on mirror which, like so many other pieces, is part of the original furniture of this home.

And, further back, visitors will come to the large, comfortable "Family Room", where on the walls can be seen many plates of Staffordshire China of the "Texian Campaign" pattern made in the 1840s to commemorate the Mexican campaigns. Also, on the wall next to the door leading from the dining room, is a Currier & Ives print of General Zachary Taylor, who, in 1845, camped under what is now known as "The Taylor Oak" about one-half a block from The Mathis House.

Above the giant fire-place in this room is a collection of etchings of ships which will be of interest to all visitors to the Rockport Art Festival. They were done by the famous San Antonio artist, Mary Bonner, who died in 1935.

But, to Texas history buffs, probably the most fascinating and exciting article in this room hangs beside the fire-place. It is the original "Tadpole" cattle brand of T. H. Mathis.

Before leaving this spacious home built by a man who was a teacher, a soldier -- for he served with Duff's Regiment, Company E, in the Confederate Army during the Civil War -- a business man, a cattle man, a leader of men, visitors will pass through the kitchen and breakfast area. This area has been modernized, with beautiful knotty paneling and modern kitchen appliances, but still retains much of the old-fashioned flavor with the original Mathis china and an old Mathis family picture on the wall.

ANOTHER HISTORIC HOME

To the many hundreds of visitors to Rockport who have said, "Oh, how I wish I could see the inside of that house!", as they drove slowly by the three-story yellow and white house at the intersection of Highway 35 and City 35, that dream will come true during the Art Festival.

The Hoopes House was built in 1880 by Captain J.M. Hoopes, a banker who had been Captain in the Confederate Army. It is coincidental that The First National Bank of Rockport, for which Capt. Hoopes was Comptroller for many years, is now building a new home directly across Highway 35 from The Hoopes House.

Somewhere around 1893, according to the memories of Rockport old - timers, Capt. Hoopes converted the home into a plush, luxury resort hotel, visited by persons of wealth and distinction from all over the world. That was when it became known as "The Hoopes House".

Capt. and Mrs. Hoopes had a son and a daughter. Following their deaths, the daughter, June, "went up East" and the son remained in the house as a recluse, letting it deteriorate through the years. After the death of the Hoopes son, the house was purchased in January of 1934 by T. Noah Smith, Sr., founder of Rockport Yacht & Supply Co.

It took Mr. and Mrs. Smith several years, and large sums of money to restore the home and its furnishings to their original elegance, in which state this reporter saw them when he was given a personally conducted tour of the house by Susie (Mrs. Sam) Simpson, daughter of T. Noah Smith, Jr., San Antonio businessman, who, with Mrs. Smith, frequently occupies the house.

Visitors step back nearly a century in time as they enter this graciously furnished home through the massive front doors. They find themselves first in a vestibule, or "mud room" as it was known then, where they can remove their rubbers and golashes before sliding back a heavy door to go into the front hall-way.

To the right they will find an old-fashioned "parlor" containing an antique pump organ and a Regina Music Box which, when cranked, plays large metal "records" with holes punched in them. On the north wall they will see a picture of Miss Junie Hoopes in a flowing party gown. On the back it was inscribed to her "Mother and Daddy" on Christmas of 1895. It would appear that this picture of Miss Junie was taken not long before she "went up East".

Below the picture of Junie is a portrait, in a round frame, of the two Hoopes children when they were very young.

Back through the front hall, from which the staircase leads upstairs, visitors will enter a charming sitting room containing the original fire-place with mirrored mantle. It was here that the Hoopes, and distinguished guests, warmed themselves after coming in from the "mud room".

After going into the large dining room through a door beside the fire-place, visitors will discover that the fire-place is two-sided and also has a hearth in the "sitting" end of dining room. In this room centered by an oval table capable of seating 16 persons, is an exquisite antique buffet and an old-old china cabinet through the glass doors of which can be seen priceless cut glass pieces and antique china.

Between the dining room and kitchen is the "butler's pantry" (now a wet-bar) with the original hand-carved cabinets.

The kitchen, which was the only room in which the recluse Hoopes lived for many years, has been modernized with double-sink, dishwasher, etc., but still retains an old-time flavor with mammoth old meat block in the center.

Among the many fascinating things visitors will see while touring The Hoopes House is the original Hotel Register, which is so brittle now that it cannot be handled or have its pages turned. Also in the home are the minutes of the first meeting of The Rockport Women's Club, which meeting came to order in The Hoopes House in 1898. Many of Hoopes children's childhood books, with dates in the 1880s and 1890s inscribed on the flyleaves, are still there.

Tour visitors will not be permitted above the first floor.

HONORED — The staff and the volunteers of the Aransas County Public Library honored one of their group June 20 with a coffee at the Library. The guest of honor was Mr. Floyd Pollard who has contributed so much of his time at the Library keeping the National Geographic Magazines in good order so that the extra copies are always available for use. Mrs. Pollard also attended and was the recipient of a corsage to help make it a more festive occasion for the couple.

and that better type of men are applying for places on the force. He believes this improvement will continue as more and more people recognize that police work is a profession, not just a job. In passing he said there was no such thing as a "fixed" traffic ticket in Rockport, adding that the more important the violator the more responsibility he has to comply with the law.

The Rockport Police Department considers reduction in traffic accidents of first priority because they cost lives, injuries or money. "Everybody really pays for traffic accidents in higher insurance premiums or taxes," he said.

He asserted that public interest in police work has grown in recent years, in part, he believes, because of widespread riots in certain sections of the country. Equipment also has improved greatly, he said, citing the fact that when he started there were no air-conditioned patrol cars, no power brakes and no automatic transmissions, despite the fact that police officers spend much of their time riding in these cars.

As another example of better equipment, he cited the new radio antenna being installed by the county. This will insure better communications, and because it will provide four channels, will permit the operator to shift from channel to channel thus hampering criminals who listen in on police calls, he said.

In closing, Chief Craigmile asserted that both Rockport and Aransas County really need more manpower to meet the needs of the community. He explained that his officers are working a six-day week with no holidays in an effort to avert crimes and to solve those that are committed.

comprise the majority of the total in this category of taxable property, dropped from $17,386,770 to $12,358,200, a decline of $5,028,570, for 1973.

Wendell said the modest gains reflected in other industrial values, including utilities, put the net loss at $4,497,610.

The sharp decline in oil and gas, Wendell observed, makes a significant dent in total county valuations of $44 million last year.

Because of the continued decline in oil and gas values, the commissioners court, though it approved the property tax exemption of $3,000 for those 65 and older this year, has delayed implementation of the exemption until 1974.

At that time the court is hopeful increased values will result from a countywide re-evaluation program now under way by Davis & Wilson of Seabrook.

The firm, which has been at work on the re-evaluation project since just after the first of this year, is taking a look at between 16,000 and 17,000 tax units.

It is the first re-evaluation in over 10 years.

The county judge said he is already aware of how far off values are in some areas of the county because of studies he conducted. "Values are off 30 per cent in some areas," he said.

The re-evaluation program is costing the county $110,000. Wendell said it is hoped that the City of Rockport and the school district will join in the program and share some of the cost.

League of Women Voters Hold Meeting

The Rockport Unit of the League of Women Voters met June 19, with nine people present.

The League discussed distribution of a Legislative Directory which it has prepared for Rockport citizens. The Directory contains the term of office, address, and date of the next election for the President and United States senators and representatives, for the Texas Governor, and Lieutenant Governor, and our Senator and Representative, for the Aransas County Judge and Commissioners, for the Mayor, and Councilmen of the city of Rockport, and for the Board of Trustees of the Aransas County Independent School District. The directories will be distributed through such agencies as the County Library, First National Bank, the Chamber of Commerce, and other groups.

The League of Women Voters is nonpartisan and is providing these directories as a service to the Rockport community.

The League also made plans for the upcoming election for the Navigation Board. All candidates in this election have been invited to an open meeting on Monday, July 9, at 7:30 p.m. in the Aransas County Courthouse District Court Room. The League is also providing a Voters Guide which will contain verbatim statements by each candidate concerning his platform.

tions of the highway in the Fulton Beach area.

Comments at the 1972 hearing that this route would create additional traffic congestion in the Fulton area led to the revised alignment north and west of the airport.

Another change proposed over the original location is from approximately two miles west of Aransas Pass where the new location of Texas 35 leaves existing Texas 35, to a point on Avenue A.

The approximate 24-mile project, with construction alone estimated to cost $10 million, calls for 16 miles of Texas 35 to be developed at a new location.

The project will be carried out piecemeal, according to state highway officials who said it will be at least five years before any construction is undertaken.

PLASTIC FLOWER BAN

Southwell, England -- The Rt. Rev. John Wakeling, of Southwell, has banned plastic flowers from graveyards of eight village churches. A spokesman for the bishop said the plastic flowers damaged the grass-mower blades.

Umpires for the games are: Tilman Frizzell, Valentin Flores, and Mike Kelly. In charge of announcing the games and playing good music is Ed Setterbo. The concession stand is run by volunteer parents with Loyce and Bobby Landrum overseeing the business. Travis Johnston keeps the ice boxes full of ice for cold drinks and snow cones.

President of the Association is Jim Cruser with John Goff, Joe Hugenberg, Roy Boddie, Johnny Edler and Bob Landrum serving as commissioners.

If you would like an evening of good baseball, come out to the city park and watch these young people in action. You can help support this program by attending, dropping a dollar in the bucket or buying a good hot dog at the concession stand. It will be an evening well spent.

A leaflet explaining how to estimate social security retirement benefits is available at social security offices, according to social security officials here.

Lulac Council Holds Meeting

At their regular meeting the local Lulac Council heard the following reports regarding their Sept. 16 celebration:

Mrs. Isabel Zamora, chairman of the queen committee, said, "The girls are doing a very good job." In reporting on plans for the Sept. 15 dance Juan Romero said he has three bands lined up. The parade chairman, Fernando Martinez, said letters had been mailed to organizations in this area inviting them to enter a float in the parade and sponsor a stand at the beach grounds.

Marce Ramirez, president, said the Rockport-Fulton High School Band will be in the parade. The Navigation District has granted permission for the Lulacs to use Navigation District property for the celebration.

The next item was a report on a fish fry by chairman Frank Covarrubias who said a profit of $100 was realized and this will go to the Little League. Fernando Martinez was given $100 to present to the Little League.

Manuel Betancourt, education committee chairman, reported that he was attempting to get a loan to assist a local girl attend a college of her choice.

Next, it was reported that the Lulacs had raised $113 to help with the hospital expenses of some local people injured in a recent auto accident.

Single copies of the leaflet are free on request at any social security office.

'Mini' Cornerstone For Bank Building

In keeping with modern building practice, there will be no official cornerstone in First National Bank's building now under construction on Austin Street and State Highway 35.

For years -- generations -- cornerstones were built into almost all important buildings. Generally they were hollowed-out stones which provided a safe haven for records, pictures, newspapers of the day and other material which was expected to provide a record of the times and the building.

Usually rather elaborate public ceremonies accompanied placing of the stone in the building's wall. Public officials usually wielded trowels to help set the cornerstone.

Apparently, experience demonstrated that later generations evidenced little interest in the contents of cornerstones when buildings were demolished years later, so the practice has fallen into disuse.

So, no cornerstone was planned for First National Bank's new building.

However, James H. Sorenson, Jr., the bank's president, apparently was enough of a traditionalist -- or sentimentalist -- to feel that at least a small gesture toward the past-- and the future -- was appropriate.

So, he personally collected a few items about the bank and the community, sealed them in a plastic container and placed the container in a reinforced concrete beam in the wet concrete as it was being poured.

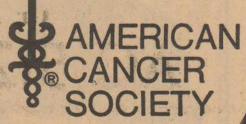

There was no ceremony and no witnesses except the disinterested workmen who were in a hurry to get the job done.

Because the capsule is in a reinforced concrete beam which is under the building's reinforced concrete floor slab, it is unlikely that it will ever be seen again.

However, it's there and Jimmy Sorenson knows it's there.

A favorite pastime in West Berlin is to take a moonlight cruise, including dinner and dancing, along the waterways around the city.

THE BAUHAUS REVOLUTION

The Bauhaus was a "university of design" organized by the architect Walter Gropius at Weimar, Germany, in 1919. Physically, it was created when the old Weimar academy of art was merged with a school of handicrafts, but historically this juncture started a revolution.

The aim of the Bauhaus was to combine the teaching of pure arts with the study of crafts; with insistence on a thorough functional and technical training for each student. The young artist and designers, in every field, were expected to be familiar with the mechanical problems of industrial mass production.

To achieve this, Gropius introduced a laboratory teaching plan, stressing basic inquiry into methods and materials. Workshop practice was substituted for unsubstantiated theory.

The faculty of the Bauhaus included a glittering list of greats: Vasily Kandinsky served as head of the department of mural painting; Paul Klee taught classes in glass painting; Laszlo Moholy-Nagy was a Bauhaus professor of metalwork; Josef Albers was in charge of craft teaching; Lyonel Feininger taught painting.

The curriculum, though probably quite standard today, was extraordinary for its time. It included architecture, painting, interior design, photography, sculpture, design for theatre, ballet and films, metalwork, typography, textile design, pottery, and graphic design. Above all, students were to seek solutions to individual problems in functional principles.

This method, with its emphasis on industrial techniques, was unpopular with traditional academicians and some politicians, but it was remarkably influential abroad and in liberal art circles. Today, Bauhaus methods are employed by the world's most advanced art schools.

Because of local opposition, the Bauhaus moved from Weimar to Dessau in 1925. There, Gropius was able to design special buildings to house the assorted departments of the school. In 1928, however, he resigned as director, and was replaced by another noted architect, Hannes Meyer, who was in turn succeeded by Mies van der Rohe.

In the areas of architecture and general product design, the Bauhaus supported and expounded theories of functional simplicity which have been a standard ever since. Gropius' designs for the Dessau Bauhaus are considered classic examples of modern architecture.

In 1932, the school moved again, this time to Berlin. But these were difficult political times, the clouds of Nazism were gathering over Germany. The Bauhaus professors were slandered, called Communists or degenerates, or both. In 1933, after Hitler came to power, the school was shut down.

By this time, however, the Bauhaus ideas were finding support beyond Germany, particularly in the United States. Most of the masters and professors emigrated, and what had at first seemed like a catastrophic blow to the Bauhaus had in fact the reverse effect by enormously extending the range of its influence.

Ironically, in closing the school and dispersing its faculty, Hitler actually succeeded in turning it into an international power for progressive thought.

Fulton Girl In 'Miss South Texas' Contest July 2-4

A petite and pretty little lady from Fulton will combine her good looks and variety of talents to make a strong bid for the title of "Miss South Texas" at Seguin early in July. "Miss Rockport-Fulton of 1973" is her entry name in the Pageant, but she is best known as Deborah Sue Brown. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Brown of Fulton.

The occasion at Seguin will be that city's "Miss South Texas Pageant," which annually highlights its "Fourth of July Celebration" for all of south Texas. General Chairman of the Pageant is Mrs. John (Juanita) Taylor.

Deborah has excellent chances of capturing honors during this year's Pageant, scheduled for Monday through Wednesday, July 2-4, on the stage of Seguin's Wuppermann Little Theater. Starting times will be 7:30 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday, and 7 p.m. Wednesday.

For one thing, Deborah is as energetic as she is pretty and poised.

And for another, a record number of awards will be presented during this year's Pageant. There'll be plaques presented nightly to the preliminary winners, as well as trophies to the top winners on the final night. There's also a wardrobe and other delights for the winners.

But competition will be stiff for Deborah, as she will be holding her own amid more than two dozen other representatives from south Texas cities.

Deborah and the other contestants will have a ball, however, as well as a sparkling experience they'll remember a lifetime.

For one thing, the "Miss South Texas Pageant" will be a well-rehearsed stage production combining not only the talents of the contestants themselves, but also those of top professional entertainers.

Deborah and the other queens of talent and beauty are expected to arrive in Seguin early Sunday. The red carpet will be rolled out for them as they begin four days of fun and excitement, briefly interrupted here and there with stage rehearsals.

It'll be Fourth of July time in Seguin, and that means a gigantic festival of parades, picnics and parties, "Nights in Old Seguin", concerts and contests, street dancing and baseball games, even a rodeo and a bicycle races you name it, Seguin will have it.

When it comes to the "Miss South Texas Pageant", Deborah supplies a wealth of qualifications as a contestant.

A tiny little miss, Deborah is 5-foot two-inches tall and weighs a scant 95 pounds. She is very well endowed in the vital statistic department, however, with a 33 1/2-25-35 figure to be considered by the judges. She has light brown hair, brown eyes and olive complexion.

Deborah will demonstrate her musical interests with a musical variety act as her part of the talent show.

A graduate of Rockport-Fulton High School, Deborah was a member of the Pep Squad, secretary of the F.T.A. and president of the F.H.A. She was nominated as Valentine Sweetheart of her Junior Class in 1972 and Homecoming Queen.

Sponsored by the Rockport-Fulton Tourist Association in Rockport, Deborah will draw the good wishes of everyone in the area at Seguin next month.

Gettysburg, 1973

The most fateful battle in the history of the nation might have been Gettysburg. Here, on July 1st, 1863, began a three-day struggle that ended General Robert E. Lee's best chance to force Washington to agree to independence for the South.

General Lee, probably the greatest field strategist to emerge from the war, and greatly admired on both sides (he had freed his slaves before the war and like many distinguished southerners fought the war because he believed in a state's right to secede from the Union), had invaded Union territory once before, in 1862.

But in a bloody battle at Antietam, Maryland, the result of the capture of General Lee's campaign plans by enterprising Union soldiers, Lee had been turned back. Since the U.S. Navy commanded the seas, and its blockade was slowly starving the South, the Confederacy's only chance was to strike hard enough to force Lincoln to agree to independence for the eleven southern states. (Lincoln and others had prevented Maryland from seceding only through the arrest of members of the state legislature.)

Gathering about 73,000 men (President Jefferson Davis refused him two more divisions then stationed in the Carolinas which Lee said would mean success), Lee started north in June of 1863 from the mountains of Virginia, moving west and north of the national capital, which was thrown into near panic. He had just won one of his great victories at Chancellorsville. But there, too, he had lost the brilliant Stonewall Jackson. At first he planned to cross the Susquehanna at Harrisburg, and march on Philadelphia. He changed his plans when he learned the Army of the Potomac was in Maryland.

Lee was disappointed that more families didn't rush to join the Stars and Bars as he moved north, and he met a determined force when he collided with General George Meade's army of about 82,000 defenders, unexpectedly, at Gettysburg. Both sides rushed in reinforcements and for three days the contest continued, at great loss of life. On the third day, Lee ordered the famous charge of Pickett's brigade, decimated by fierce artillery fire and accurate, determined rifle fire, though at high tide the Confederate wave lapped the forward federal position before receding.

When Lee began his retreat on the fourth day, the last chance of the Confederacy to win independence on the field had expired. Meade had proved himself the ablest Union commander in the east. The North rejoiced, rightly so. The South brooded about what might have been--had Stonewall Jackson lived to be at Gettysburg. And two more years of fighting changed nothing.

The battlefield, now a national park, a beautiful one, awaits all who would know America's history, and how the Blue and the Gray struggled, heroically, at Gettysburg, a hundred and ten years ago.

It has often been said, and rightly so, that there are two sides to every question. The subject of conservation of wildlife is no exception. I think that too many people regard the word "conservation" in too broad a sense. They interpret it to mean "preservation".

When wildlife scientists speak of conservation they are thinking in terms of the wise use of a renewable resource so that an annual, harvestable crop can be produced. When he talks about the conservation of forests, he is not advocating the leaving of all forests untouched. Again, he is promoting the cause of wise use. All people who work very long with wildlife know that predators are a necessary part of the balance of nature, but they are also aware that population explosions sometimes occur among predators. They realize that when this does happen some form of controls must be put into effect.

A good example of this is the build-up of coyotes in most of the western states, including Texas. Some sheep ranchers claim that they are losing 80 percent of their lamb crop to coyotes. It's not hard to see that the ranchers can't continue to operate under those conditions, yet no real conservationist would advocate the complete eradication of the coyote. CONTROL is the key word. Reduce the numbers of the coyotes until there are enough rats, mice, and rabbits to feed what is left of the predator population, and your problem is solved. To do away with all the coyotes would cause a tremendous rise in the rodent population and this would probably endanger the range itself.

Self-styled environmentalists would prohibit all activities that would do away with any of the grassy flats along our coastline, but the hard facts of life are that this is impossible if economic progress is to be made. Biologists, after careful study of an area, can usually designate parts of the flats that can be dredged, filled, or otherwise changed without destroying the valuable nursery grounds. These nursery grounds, six to 24 inches of grass-filled water, are an absolute necessity if we are to rear young trout, redbird, shrimp, crabs, and other produce of the sea.

Chaining and root-plowing brushlands can completely destroy the land as wildlife habitat even though it can be made into much better pasture land for livestock in this way. By seeking the help of a trained wildlife biologist, however, the landowner can partially clear his brushland, make it much better pasture, and, at the same time, actually improve his wildlife habitat.

The thing that America must learn is that we must not allow the pursuit of the almighty dollar to destroy either the scenic beauty or the renewable natural resources, including wildlife, of our country. At the same time we must work out some method to do this in order that the economic progress of our nation is not impaired.

Trained personnel furnish the solution to our problem. The forestry experts, the wildlife scientist, and soil and water conservationists have the knowledge that we need. We must not allow the wild-eyed "environmentalists" nor the self-serving representative of industry to stampede us into unwise courses of action or unrealistic legislation.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Bertram S. Brown, M.D., Director
National Institute of Mental Health

ALCOHOL INFORMATION

A Kalamazoo psychiatrist seeks the latest information on diagnosing alcoholism. An Indian alcoholism counselor in Arizona needs to know about new techniques to help his clients. A housewife in Atlanta wants to know how to find local alcoholism services for her husband.

Now, a new information service is available to help meet their needs.

This is the National Clearinghouse for Alcohol Information, recently established by the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, a component of the National Institute of Mental Health of HEW's Health Services and Mental Health Administration.

The mission of the information service is, as an announcement says, "to quench the thirst of professionals and laymen alike for current knowledge about America's No. 1 drug problem."

Does it seem strange, calling alcoholism a drug problem? It may, but it is nevertheless true. Alcohol is a drug; and it is our most widely used—and abused—drug.

In addition to responding to requests for information, the new alcohol clearinghouse will selectively disseminate to professionals and alcoholism programs information gathered from all over the world, using an array of specialized services to do so.

These will include computer-assisted literature searches, indexes of articles on technical subjects, a monthly newsletter, and a magazine for profession-

★★ July 4th ★★

Richard Henry Lee of Virginia offered a resolution in the Continental Congress in 1776, which was to have worldwide repercussions for centuries thereafter, the resolution stating that, "these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent." This resolution was adopted by The Congress on July 2nd, 1776. Interestingly, Congress adopted another resolution on the 4th explaining its reasons for declaring independence, and justifying the action, and this is the resolution which we now celebrate on the 4th. This resolution was drafted by Thomas Jefferson, chairman of the committee, and Benjamin Franklin, John Adams, Roger Sherman and Robert Livingston.

A mass meeting in Philadelphia in Independence Square celebrated the declarations of July 8th, 1776—and heard them read by John Nixon. General George Washington, on the 9th, included the declaration in general orders to the army, stating: "The several brigades are to be drawn up this evening on their respective parades at six o'clock, when the declaration of Congress, showing the grounds and reasons for this measure, is to be read in an audible voice. The general hopes this important event will serve as fresh incentive to every officer and soldier to act with fidelity and courage, as knowing now that the peace and safety of his country depends, under God, solely on the success of our arms..."

The declaration of the 4th is now recognized by scholars as one of the humanitarian documents for all time.

$150 CLOTHING ALLOWANCE FOR SERVICE DISABLED VETERANS

A $150 clothing allowance will automatically go this year to service disabled veterans who have qualified previously for the annual payment, according to A. A. Hunter, Veterans Administration Regional Director. Hunter pointed out these are veterans whose clothing is subject to extra wear and tear from artificial limbs and other prostheses.

About 46,000 service disabled veterans have already received $6.9 million under the law authorizing the $150 allowance which became effective last August 1.

Hunter noted application forms were mailed to 60,000 potentially eligible veterans shortly after Public Law 92-

328 was enacted in June last year.

The allowances are in addition to monthly VA compensation payments to veterans who have service connected disabilities.

Once a permanently disabled veteran is approved, the allowance will be paid automatically each year thereafter.

Where the condition requiring use of the prosthesis is not of a permanent nature, however, subsequent payments are subject to reestablishment of the veteran's eligibility.

Eligible military retirees must apply for the allowance each year also, but they do not have to waive any of their retirement pay to qualify.

Hunter urged eligible veterans who may not have received application forms to contact the nearest VA office if they are interested in receiving the allowance.

Four Boys Attending Salvation Army Camp

Four boys from Rockport-Fulton are being given a free, one week vacation this summer at The Salvation Army's Camp Hoblitzelle near Dallas, according to Rev. John Bradshaw, The Salvation Army Service Unit camp chairman.

Boys chosen to attend the camp this summer are Walter Cowden, Victor Contreras, John Jackson, and Phillip Steward. They left for camp on Sunday, June 24.

"This will be an excellent experience for these boys," Bradshaw said. "At Hoblitzelle they will enjoy boating, hiking, archery, horseback riding, fishing, swimming, handicrafts, movies and baseball as well as worship services and Bible study."

All organized activities are supervised by coaches and counselors. The campers are housed in brick and redwood cabins and receive well-balanced meals in the camp dining hall.

"Each boy's trip was financed by the Rockport Salvation Army Service Unit Committee with donations from private citizens in our community," Bradshaw said.

Camp Hoblitzelle is built on 360 wooded acres with a 30 acre lake and is fully equipped with modern recreational facilities. The Salvation Army operates Camp Hoblitzelle for children and families who could not otherwise have the opportunity to enjoy camp life. This summer over 4,000 are expected to attend camping sessions.

Motive

"You say you came to the city to look for work. I put it to you there was another, a stronger motive, that brought you all that distance."

"Well," hesitated, the defendant, "there was." "Ah!" cried the young barrister, triumphantly. "And what was that?" "A locomotive."

Shrimp Landings Show Decrease

Shrimp landings at Texas ports amounted to 2.5 million pounds valued at $3.8 million in May 1973. This was a sharp drop from the 3.2 million pounds valued at $4.7 million in May 1972. The current decline was in the Gulf fishery off the south Texas coast. The Brownsville-Port Isabel area accounted for 39 percent of the State's total, followed by Aransas Pass-Rockport, 30 percent and Galveston-Seabrook, 11 percent. The following table represents landings of headless shrimp for specified areas and periods:

Area	May 1973	Jan.-May 1972	Jan.-May 1973
	Pounds	Pounds	Pounds
Port Arthur-Sabine	72,900	473,100	410,400
Galveston-Seabrook	267,400	1,542,100	1,039,200
Freeport	165,900	1,223,000	1,079,000
Matagorda-Palacios	54,100	146,500	171,400
Port Lavaca-Port O'Connor-Seadrift	223,900	496,900	444,900
Aransas Pass-Rockport	760,300	2,471,500	2,602,300
Brownsville-Port Isabel-Port Mansfield	982,000	5,161,200	5,098,000
TOTAL	2,526,500	11,514,300	10,845,200

Vessels working brown shrimp made fair to poor catches of large shrimp in waters beyond 30 fathoms and spotted fair catches of small pink shrimp in 13-19 fathoms. White shrimp were scattered and restricted to areas adjacent to major passes. Pink shrimp catches were fair to poor at 200-275 pounds per night in the Campeche area.

Blue crab landings amounted to 750,000 pounds and slightly below the May 1972 volume. Fishermen received from 8-14 cents per pound for live crabs.

Twenty-two new large vessels were added to the Texas fleet in May. In addition, 11 smaller documented units were being rigged for shrimp trawling. Three vessels were lost at sea and seven were transferred from the Texas coast to other foreign and domestic fisheries.

The 1973 shrimp crop has been plagued with two major adverse factors: cold weather in late spring and record early summer floods. Many Texas and Louisiana bay systems were hard hit with floods throughout May causing considerable concern by the shrimp industry. It is extremely difficult to predict the annual harvest without complete sampling; however, based on the commercial harvest of bait shrimp from the central and south Texas coast, the 1973 total Texas landings should be 18 percent below the 1972 volume. The Galveston Bay system has the smallest crop of juvenile brown shrimp noted in recent years; Sabine Lake has no juveniles; Matagorda Bay, fair to good; San Antonio, good to excellent; Aransas, Corpus Christi, and the Laguna Madre, very good.

The 1973 statutory closed season began at the end of May. The Gulf will be closed to conventional trawlers for 45 days.

Price Freeze Questions Are Answered By IRS

Telephone wires to IRS are humming with questions about the new 60-day price freeze, according to R. S. Rosfeld, Acting District Director of Internal Revenue for southern Texas.

Some of the questions most commonly asked are:

Q -- What prices are covered by the freeze?

A -- All prices of retailers, wholesalers, manufacturers, and service organizations are frozen. Only rents, interest, dividends, and the first sale of raw agricultural products are exempt. Prices subject to the freeze include: telephone and utility rates, advertising rates, car and gasoline sales, and charges for all kinds of professional and other types of service.

Q -- Are some small businesses exempt from the freeze?

A -- No. The ceiling prices apply to all sellers, regardless of size.

Q -- How are ceiling prices computed?

A -- Prices are frozen at levels not exceeding the highest prices charged in at least 10 percent of the transactions of a firm during the first 8 days of June 1973. If no transactions occurred during that period, the nearest preceding 7-day period in which a transaction occurred is used as the freeze base period. A transaction is considered to occur at the time of shipment in the case of commodities and at the time of performance in the case of services.

Q -- May a contract for goods entered into during the freeze base period establish the freeze base price for the goods covered by the contract, even though shipment was not to occur until later?

A -- No.

Q -- May a payment (or partial payment) received during the freeze base period establish the freeze base price, even though shipment was not to occur until later?

A -- No.

Q -- May I increase prices above my ceiling prices if my costs increase?

A -- No.

Q -- How do I compute 10 percent of my transactions to establish my ceiling price?

A -- Your ceiling price is the highest price at or above which 10 percent of a particular commodity sold during the ceiling price base period. For example, a grocery store sold 100 loaves of Brand "X" bread during the first 8 days of June 1973: 5 loaves at 41¢, 8 loaves at 38¢, 77 loaves at 34¢. The ceiling price is 38¢ because over 10 percent of the sales were at or above this price.

Q -- Does the freeze cover just retail or consumer prices?

A -- No. Prices at all levels of production and distribution are covered by the freeze.

Q -- Are public utility rates covered by the freeze?

A -- Yes.

Q -- Will mail rate increase scheduled for implementation during the freeze be permitted to go into effect?

A -- No.

Q -- May rates and charges established by the Interstate Commerce Commission and other government regulatory agencies be increased during the freeze?

A -- No. All rates, fees and charges set by regulatory agencies are considered prices and are subject to the freeze.

Q -- Is the freeze base period the first seven days in June or the first eight days in June?

A -- The freeze base period is the first eight days in June 1973: June 1 through June 8. If no transaction occurred during that period, the nearest preceding seven-day period in which a transaction occurred is used as the freeze base period.

Q -- If a freeze price was below the following prices, may it be increased up to the applicable price without regard to the freeze rules? a) Phase II base price; b) the price "authorized or lawfully in effect" on January 10, 1973; c) the price in effect on May 25, 1970.

A -- a) No. b) No. c) No. The freeze rules, except in the case of red meat sales subject to special meat ceiling rules, take precedence over prior rules with respect to permissible price levels.

Q -- During Phase II, special provision was made for contracts entered into prior to the August 15, 1971 freeze. Will the same be true for the present freeze?

A -- No.

Q -- Do different rules apply to determining the freeze price for new homes as opposed to used homes.

A -- No. The freeze price for the sale of any interest in real property is determined according to the provisions of section 140.11 of the freeze regulations. The freeze price is (a) the sale price specified in a sales contract signed by both parties on or before June 12, 1973; or (b) when there is no such sales contract, the fair market value of the property as of the freeze base period based on sales of like or similar property under similar circumstances.

Q -- Are all sellers, regardless of size, subject to the

New Bridge to Padre Island Will Open June 28

The new $2.5 million bridge joining Corpus Christi to Padre Island opens for traffic Thursday, June 28 following an 11 a.m. public dedication ceremony.

The first of its kind to be built in the United States, the 3,280-foot long, four-lane bridge stands 72 feet out of the water and spans the Gulf Intracoastal Canal, connecting the John F. Kennedy Causeway to the north end of the island.

Under construction since May 1971, and under design and analysis for three years before that, the ambitious project utilizes precast for 50-ton and 32-ton concrete segments or "boxes" fitted end to end. The requirement to maintain lists of freeze prices for the commodities and services that they sell?

A -- Yes. The Executive Order which establishes the freeze states that this requirement applies to "each seller."

Q -- Will there be general relief (that is, other than by individual exception) for loss/low profit firms during the freeze?

A -- No.

Q -- May a contract for goods entered into during the freeze base period establish the freeze base price for the goods covered by the contract, even though shipment was not to occur until later?

A -- No. Freeze base prices are determined in accordance with transactions made during the freeze base period. The freeze regulations state that a transaction "is considered to occur at the time of shipment in the case of commodities, and the time of performance in the case of services." The only exception in the regulations applies to a sales contract of real property signed by both parties on or before June 12, 1973.

Q -- Does the freeze apply to long-term purchase contracts that call for delivery after the freeze?

A -- No. However, lawful prices during the post-freeze period will be determined in accordance with the Phase IV regulations.

Q -- What is the status of volatile pricing orders during the freeze?

A -- Volatile pricing orders remain in effect during the freeze but are subject to the freeze. Prices cannot be increased above freeze prices under authority of a volatile pricing order. Prices which have been increased pursuant to volatile pricing authority must be reduced in accordance with that authorization if advantage of using this method, according to Texas Highway Department District Construction Engineer Roger Welsch, is that it allows long spans to be achieved for the first time using concrete instead of steel, which corrodes. The method has also allowed high quality control for the project since the segments were precast locally in a factory. Other advantages include being able to build without disturbing traffic, since no elaborate supporting framework is needed.

This cantilevered segmental method has been so successful, from the standpoint of cost and utility, says Welsch, that it is likely to be repeated on other Highway Department projects including overcrossings and elevated freeways. The method has been used in Europe for some years and was first used on this continent in Nova Scotia.

The new bridge replaces a small swing bridge and opens a new era of access to Padre Island and the National Seashore area there. The swing bridge, operated by the Highway Department, has been the scene of some monumental traffic jams in past years, which hopefully should no longer mar the enjoyment of the pleasures of Padre and adjoining Mustang Island by visitors and residents.

other similar items subject to the freeze?

A -- There is no exemption for these types of items.

Q -- Does the seasonality rule apply to prices charged for raw agricultural products?

A -- Yes, if the person selling the product can establish that the product has shown a distinct fluctuation at a specified, identifiable point in time during each of the three years prior to the contemplated change. A variation caused exclusively by volatile input costs decline.

Q -- When must sellers have price lists available?

A -- Price lists must be available not later than 11:59 p.m., Sunday, June 24, 1973.

Q -- Does the small firm exemption (60 employees or less) apply during the freeze?

A -- No.

Q -- Are college tuitions and room and board fees covered by the freeze?

A -- Yes.

Q -- Are antiques, rare coins, rare stamps, art items and

Q -- A wholesaler/jobber purchases agricultural produce of the same grade and quality from a different growing region and at a higher price than he did during or before the first 8 days of June. May the wholesaler/jobber charge a price higher than he charged from June 1 through June 8 when he resells the produce?

A -- No. Tomatoes, watermelons, potatoes, and other perishable raw agricultural products which are destined for human consumption in their original physical form are exempt only to the point of the first sale by the producer or grower of those agricultural products. Wholesaler/jobbers are subject to the freeze price rules and, except for seasonal patterns, are limited to the freeze price for items of the same grade and quality as defined by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Geographic origin does not necessarily determine grade and quality.

Q -- Are prices charged by federal, state, local, or municipal governments frozen?

A -- Yes.

SYNODICAL TRAINING

The following women attended the Synodical Training School Conference at Mo Ranch (near Hunt, Texas): Mrs. Mildred Hatley, Mrs. Mildred le Maire, Mrs. Peggy Holmgren, Mrs. Kathryn Cavitt, Mrs. Margaret Hight and Mrs. Dorothy Leslie. John Leslie drove his car and took some of the women and stayed in Kerrville visiting friends during this past week. The women report many inspiring programs and said the Hill Country was indeed beautiful at this time. Mrs. Peggy Holmgren stopped by San Antonio on the way back from Mo Ranch on Friday to bring her mother home with her for a few days visit from a nursing home in San Antonio.

The Kinsey Report

Keeping up with two grandsons, one 4 years old and the other 2, keeps a 64-year-old grandfather young mentally but it ages him physically.

My wife and I are enjoying the visit of our daughter, Mrs. Pam Herbert of Kerrville, and her sons, Mike, 4, and Jay, 2. And I guarantee you that by the end of the week I will have invented a lot of new games to keep two active boys happy and occupied, and hopefully, I will have lost some weight trying to keep up with them.

Since we have a pool table in our recreation room, this has been the main attraction for Mike. He isn't big enough to use a cue but that doesn't stop us from playing a kind of pool game.

Mike actually invented it. He simply takes the cue ball and sort of pushes it in the direction of the other balls. It works out pretty well. In fact, when I get tired, Mike keeps right on playing by himself. I swear he could play all day if he didn't have to take time out to eat, or go to the bathroom.

And Jay, bless his heart, demonstrates his love now and then by climbing onto my lap. He doesn't go much for cuddling; in fact the first time he climbed up, he socked me in the stomach with both fists, and I mean that little guy has a good punch. Mrs. K and I are having a great time, but our cat and dog are rather unhappy about all the attention we focus on our grandchildren and daughter.

The cat even prefers to stay outdoors during the rain, and she glares at us through the glass doors.

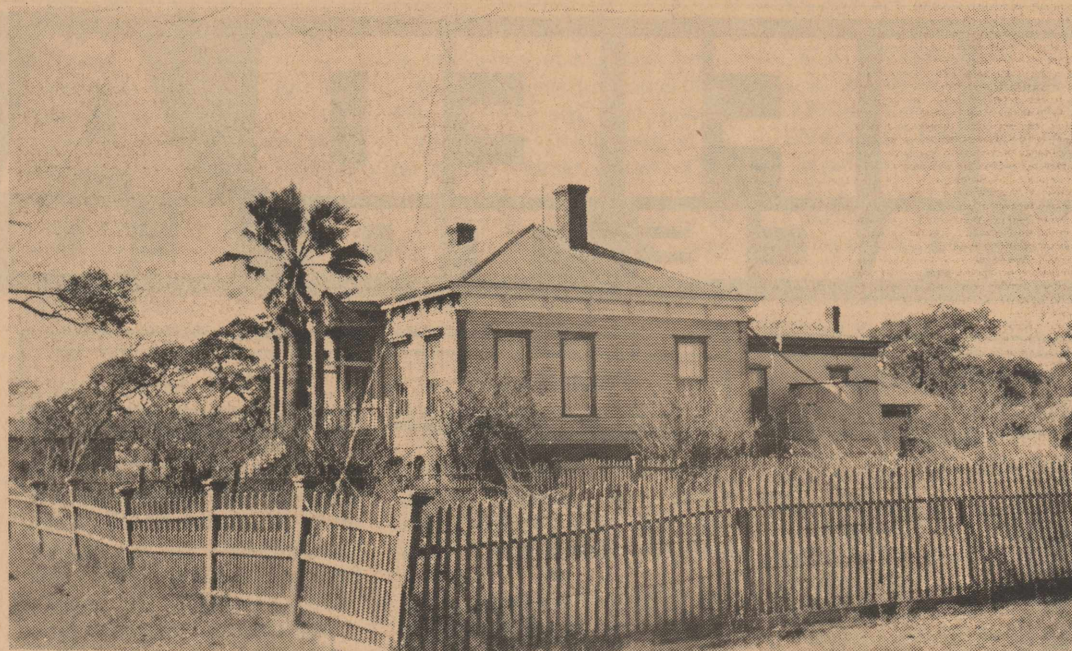

Library News

Contributions made during the past week in the way of books and magazines were made by R.D. Torres, Billy Bullman, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Batten, Jonathan Teague, and Col. and Mrs. James Harrison. The Library gratefully acknowledges these donations. The Librarian also extends a special thanks to Ed Goode for his kindness in supplying some lumber and carpentry work to aid in holding books on the shelf in the browse section.

Miss Barbra Rasco will conduct the story hour Thursday, July 5 at the Library at 10:30. Remember -- Library hours are 12 Noon to 6 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Tuesday Bridge

Mrs. Jimmy Hunt entertained the Tuesday Bridge Club at her home last week. Members attending were Mrs. Arlo Hansen, Mrs. R. E. House, Mrs. Chester Johnson, Mrs. Harry Mills, Mrs. Roy Woods, Mrs. L. G. Wood and one guest Mrs. R. L. Gum. Mrs. Johnson won high score and the hostess, Mrs. Hunt, was second high.

These two photos of the Old Mathis Home on Church Street (next to the Post Office) were published in the Pilot last week. The caption pointed out that the top photo showed the appearance of the home when it was purchased in 1941 by Mrs. W. A. Henshaw. The bottom photo showed how the home looked after it was restored. What the caption failed to state was that Mrs. W. S. Bain, granddaughter of the original owner, now owns the beautiful home and has owned it for over 12 years. She has kept it in magnificent condition and even now is having some remodeling work done preparatory to permitting people to tour the home during the Art Festival this weekend.

LESSON IN COURTESY

HOUSTON--When the winner of a $100 door prize was announced, Don Welch said, "Doggone it! I missed by one digit." His wife, Barbara, answered: "If you had been a gentleman and let me go ahead of you, you would have had the winning ticket."

ON ACUPUNCTURE

LAS VEGAS, NEV.--Dr. Russell B. Roth, president of the American Medical Association, has warned that legalization of acupuncture would unleash "professionals upon the public with no more apparent qualifications than oriental names and a set of needles."

Ash is Best

Baseball bats are made from the northern white ash because its wood has the right hardness, resilience and weight. The best bats are made from second-growth trees with a diameter of 12 to 15 inches because their wood is more resilient than that from larger, older trees.

Mrs. McGlathery Is Honored

Some of the people who have worked with Mary Lou McGlathery in the many activities she has been involved with during the past several years joined with her at an "Appreciation Luncheon" June 22 in the Road Runner Room at Corky's. Some banners had been prepared carrying the word "appreciation" and Blas Ramirez of Emma's Flower Shop presented her with a corsage.

Jim Fowler was master of ceremonies and briefed the group on the accomplishments she had with the Aransas County Unit of the American Cancer Society -- this included a "Gold Seal Award" from that Society for the showing made by the unit under her leadership during the recent campaign. He especially wanted the group to know that with her as a volunteer worker, Aransas County reached its highest goal ever. Mrs. Helen Foster, District 6 N. representative of the American Cancer Society presented "Mary Lou" with a pin, a symbol of that organization.

Two special "fun" presentations were made as a "business operator". Mary Lou runs the "Natural Food Store" in Rockport, with emphasis on the fact that the Chamber of Commerce always appreciates the help and support of the business people.

The master of ceremonies then called on specific people for an acknowledgment: Bill Janacek representing the Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. A. C. Hamon, Librarian of the Aransas County Public Library, Mrs. W.E. Stubbs, past president of the Home and Garden Club, Mrs. Virginia Chernoski representing school activities, and Rev. Tom McClung of her church, all gave short talks about her ability, her enthusiasm and her boundless energy in seeing that projects were successfully accomplished.

Mrs. Stubbs, past president of the Home and Garden Club, gave special praise for her work done in connection with the recent flower show and tea which Mary Lou chaired and which was termed such a success.

It was very apparent that all who have worked with Mary Lou in the civic areas realize what a talent she has for organizing and getting others to get behind projects and push them through to a good conclusion.

Of course, Mary Lou in acknowledging their plaudits was unwilling to take credit for accomplishments but wanted to give the credit to those who worked with her. The luncheon was certainly a deserved gesture -- and Aransas County has been fortunate in having Mary Lou McGlathery a resident of our community.

Fire Warnings

Fire Marshall Elva Mullinax warns all local people who have fire extinguishers to check them and make sure they are in good working order. He says state inspectors will soon arrive to check fire extinguishers. Mullinax also urges all service station operators to make sure that no smoking is permitted on the driveways because of the danger of fire.

Calvary WMU Meets

The Calvary Baptist Church Women's Missionary Union met at the church June 19 at 2 p.m. Hazel Molmen directed the meeting which correlated parts of Mark, Chapters 11 and 12, with the lesson from the WMU Royal Service.

Vacations and bad weather took its toll on the attendance. Chocolate cake and coffee were served to those present; Bertha Hinson, Betty Ince, Bertha Sanders and Hazel Molmen.

With Insurance Firm Seventeen Years

She and her husband, E. G. Brooks, who is a science teacher in Rockport - Fulton High School, have three sons, Michael, 24; Mark, 22; and Robert, 21.

LOUISA'S LETTERS

Dear Louisa,
We have one daughter and she is engaged to be married the last part of June. Weddings are so expensive these days and it takes so much to have a florist decorate the church and house that I doubt if we could afford it.

Now what do you think of having the wedding at home? We have a large house and garden which were my parents before they died. The furnishings are old but we have lovely flowers in my garden and I have friends who have many lovely flowers and shrubs. The draperies could be cleaned and silver polished.

The only problem is how could we get all of the people in the house whom we would like to invite?
Puzzled--Va.

Answer:

There is no reason why you shouldn't have a lovely wedding at home and cut down your expenses. The first thing you should do is to invite only the relatives and very intimate friends to the actual ceremony and the remainder of your guests to the reception which follows. The latter group will meet the wedding party and mingle

I think that children learn more by examples set for them by parents and by the people they love than by hundreds of words. I haven't the statistics at hand, but I have read that the children of church going families have a far better chance of being good citizens and staying out of trouble than those who are not interested in the church.

ROCKPORT THE SPIRIT OF THIS COMMUNITY

By FREDERICK O. BECK (retired)

INTRODUCTION

After more than one half of a century of tending herds of sheep, mixed with some goats for the Lord on his various ranges (parishes), I decided to lay aside the shepherd's staff and substitute for it the 'staff' of the Isaac Walton League, namely, the fishing rod. The place where I intended to exercise my membership in the Isaac Walton League had been selected more than forty years ago, which is Rockport, Texas.

PIONEERING

It was during the month of June 1930 that the late Dr. C. L. Kopecky M. D., of Yoakum, and the author of these remarks, who was then Pastor of the Catholic Church there, decided to go 'scouting' for 'greener Pastures' along the Coast to do our saltwater angling. We decided that Port Lavaca and Port O'Connor were for 'the birds.' Our experience there was anything but pleasant, what with needlegear, catfish and stingrays, being the main catch, and then not being able to keep on a live bait longer than two minutes. This made not only for unattractive, but 'disgusting' fishing.

A fairly strong rumor had come our way about Aransas Pass and Aransas Bay offering some very attractive fishing of our type, and hence the decision to head that way.

As we left the paved road that led to Refugio, turning left and heading for Port O'Connor, we again turned right and followed the unpaved gravel road that led to Aransas Pass or at least went in that direction.

To call that road a 'graveled road' was a sad misnomer. Some of the gravel on it was the size of a baseball, and as the new tires on Doc's model A picked up pebbles and slung them full force up against the new fenders; this brought a few 'expletives' into the conversation which were not exactly 'scriptural'.....

OUR FIRST STOP

Doc's final remark about the d...d gravel was: "I hope that this punishment will have its reward."

As we came near the old causeway with its 'wooden-floor' our attention was drawn to a sign which read: "MILLS WHARF STOP IN!" We accepted the invitation and who met us there but the late Mr. Harry Mills. When we informed him of our mission, he proved to be a very courteous gentleman and gave us a brief rundown on the pros and cons of fishing in this vicinity.

As we left to proceed on our pioneering trip, we agreed that his courtesy, his friendliness and hospitality were definitely a complete 'payoff' for the punishment we took in coming this way.

OUR SECOND STOP

Our next chore was to look for 'lodging'. We called at the 'Fulton Family Cottages' as they were advertised, and it was there that we met the late Mr. Cecil Harris, the proprietor. It was very shortly after our settling down that Mr. Harris called at our cottage and explained to us the pros and cons of fishing off his pier. His advice was to use live bait, which he stated, was a bit more expensive but paid off in the results achieved. The baitstand he recommended to us was Mr. Charley Silberstein's.

THE "ODORS OF THE AGES"

Our first visit to Mr. Charley's baitstand was an event never to be forgotten. As you entered the building you were met by a character who, to me, in appearance, was a perfect picture of the old time 'Pirates' who roamed the 'Seven Seas' and practiced 'holdups' and robberies there. The odors of this 'institution' were completely in a class of their own. For, literally speaking, it not only 'stank to high-heaven' but took possession of several blocks in the vicinity. The leader among the stench was stale Cressets, next in rank were 'dead shrimp' of ancient 'vintage', shrimphead, and several wooden boxes with an odor that no polite language can describe.

A PERFECT GENTLEMEN

I was soon to learn more about our friend Charley. By the way, over the front door there hung a sign in letters at least one foot in height which read -- "LIVE BAIT".

It was in the very early hours of one morning when I called at Mr. Charley's for live bait, only to find him in the foulest of moods, and out of live bait. To make conversation I remarked:-- Did you have a bad night Mr. Charley? No, he replied, "Father Beck, I had a G---D--- female dog, a woman here a few moments ago who wanted live bait and when I told her I was out, she said in a snotty way: "Did you realize that the sign over that door made a liar of you?" "Well," he continued, "I had a hard time to be a gentleman and keep my mouth shut. Look, what in the h--- does she expect me to do-- take that sign down every time I am out of live bait?" Said I in return: "Is there anything, Mr. Charley, that I can do for you?" "Yes, there is," he replied, "and it is this -- Would you mind driving me to Aransas Pass and let me pick up some live bait there? I'll take the smallest live baitbox I have, and we'll ride it in the trunk of your car; how about it?" "Ok," said I, "I'm ready, let's go!"

A TYPICAL CITIZEN OF ROCKPORT

It was on this short jaunt with Mr. Charley that I learned that this facsimile of an old time Pirate had in him a heart filled with kindness and a spirit of hospitality. "Father," he mumbled to me, "I want to be kind to everybody, but sometimes it's almost impossible as it was with that d---d woman this morning.... "Mr. Charley," said I, "you are a perfect example of the spirit that makes Rockport the great little community it is. In my opinion, 'friendliness and hospitality' of the citizens here is what makes this community so attractive to tourists."

CAN'T HARDLY BELIEVE IT!

Some ten days ago I had some friends visit me who had been with us a year previous at this same time. As part of the reason for their brief visit, they came to take note of the progress, if any, that Rockport had to show since their last visit. Accordingly then, we made a tour and pointed out some of the latest in the line of building etc. such as, the 'village of condominiums' erected at the Yacht Club, the Nursery, Fruit stand, and the Super D Market and Wynns at the crossroads, then in touring Key Allegro we saw over ten new homes under construction in addition to a new condominium. At the end of our tour both visitors agreed when they stated: "We can't hardly believe what we have seen!"

FINALE: Just Here and There

As a visitor for over forty years and a permanent resident for six years I have learned to absorb the 'spirit' of Rockport to the point where I by force of habit make it my practice to observe stangers, and, if possible, get acquainted with them. An observation worthy of mention was made one Saturday evening as I was approaching Sacred Heart Catholic Church to conduct the anticipated "Sunday morning" service. We drove rather slowly and made an observation which was certainly revealing. It so happened that I took notice of the license numbers on the cars parked in front of the church building. It was then that I counted thirteen out-of-state licenses in that particular section of cars.

Then, we have the habit of eating breakfast frequently at the nook in the Super D Market and it was here that I made the acquaintance of an assortment of tourists as follows: one couple from Alaska, one from Maine, another from California, another from Montana, and one from Minnesota etc. etc. For the couple from Minnesota this was the twelfth winter they spent in Rockport. When I inquired what the attraction might be for their coming to this community frequently or for the first time their reply might be summarized in these words: "It is the climate which shows how 'friendly' Mother Nature can be during the winter months, and that combined with the friendliness and hospitality of the people you meet that makes it an all round pleasure to be here!"

Wild asses were tamed as beasts of burden about 3,000 years B. C. but horses eventually replaced them.

Class of 1963 Holds Reunion

On June 23, members of the graduating class of 1963 gathered at the High School Gymnasium for a picnic lunch. Those present brought their children with them to get acquainted and see what the last ten years had brought for everyone.

At 7:30 p.m. couples, sponsors and room mothers moved to the Key Allegro Restaurant for a dinner. Following the dinner, film was shown of the senior trip to Prade Ranch. Everyone enjoyed the memories and laughter of what they had done on their trip 10 years ago.

Those attending these activities were Mr. and Mrs. J.D. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. A.B. LeFevre of Richardson, E.G. Brooks, teacher and class sponsor, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Ericson (Glyndolyn Ericson was a class sponsor and English teacher), Mrs. Nora Highfill, Mrs. Buddy McLeister and Mrs. Chester Johnson, all room mothers.

Of the classmates attending with their families were the following: Ann Cassel Robbins and husband Brooks Robbins and daughter Dawn; Peggy Chambers Friebele and husband James and children and Cynthia Highfill, all of Rockport;

Caroline Clark Halley and husband, Don and their son of Dallas, George Corbett and wife, Mary Kathryn Gray Corbett and daughter, of Aransas Pass; Milton Court and wife Kay and children of Denton, Texas; Pat Elder Olle from Austin, Jack Jeffers and wife, Barbara Jean and children, stationed in Japan;

Sue Johnson Blair and husband Don Blair and daughter from San Marcos; DeRema LeFevre Dunn and husband Richard and children from Richardson; Jimmy Lukehart and wife, Francine and children of Aransas Pass; Dennis McCabe of Dallas; Ray Ormand of Corpus Christi; Linda Roberts Riggs of Austin; Linda Shipp Hicks and daughter of Ingleside; Leon Skoruppa of Aransas Pass; Eddie Steele and wife, June and children of Chicago, Ill.; Gary Thomas of Houston; and Gloria Weber Lipe and husband James and children of Killeen, Texas were all able to be present for the occasion.

Jerry Lynn Harrell Ayers and husband Buddy and children of Luling, Louisiana; Willie Ann Iles and Joy and husband Joey and children of Texas City and Janine Torres Stacy and husband Elmer of Aransas Pass also attended the reunion with their classmates.

Those attending enjoyed a day and night of reunion with their classmates and families and wished that those who did not get to attend could have been with them. It was decided by all members present before the evening was over that they would have another reunion in 5 years and hope that more will be able to attend at that time.

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

In regards to the controversy over tax evaluation for the Aransas County School District, as a property owner, I wish to voice an opinion in contrast to what has been said or heard.

It is my firm belief that many people are making too much noise over the small amount a raise in tax will cost them. (This small amount of money can benefit greatly the children of this community). These people seem to have a very narrow and selfish outlook on life with little regards for the future of our community and country in educating our children.

The small amount of money this raise in tax represents would possibly be the price of a couple of steaks or some other small luxury that I am sure they could live without, but the children of this community can sit in their school room and sweater and not be able to learn because of the heat and insects.

In my opinion, school taxes should be increased even more and all school buildings should be upgraded and above all air-conditioned.

It is a disgrace to the community that we do not have a decent auditorium in which to hold school functions. This was especially brought home to me during the graduation exercises, sitting outside where no one could hear or see anything and having to endure the wind and dirt.

Our taxes are extremely low in comparison to other states of equal or like population. According to the World Atlas, Texas ranks 13th from the bottom on its total expenditures per pupil. It also shows that states of comparable population pay far more per pupil for education. Think seriously about this 'fellow tax payers' and see if you can conscientiously fight a raise in school taxes.

HUNTERS SHOOT AT CATTLE

O.F. Poling of the Oak Grove settlement informed the Aransas County Sheriff's Department that rabbit hunters had been passing his house, riding on the fenders of their cars and shooting from the cars into herds of his cattle and at the house.

One night, he said, they shot into a herd of his cattle which were between his house and the road, with the bullets coming directly toward the house.

The Sheriff's Department is investigating.

FLORATAM GETS ITS NAME FROM THE FACT IT WAS DEVELOPED JOINTLY BY THE FLORIDA AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION AND THE TEXAS AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENT STATION.

New Grass For Greener Lawns

COLLEGE STATION -- The greening of Texas lawns will soon get a boost with the debut of Floratam, a new Saint Augustine that can side-step ailments which have plagued the grass for many years.

Not only is it vigorous and broad-leaved, but the variety resists Saint Augustine Decline (SAD) and chinch bugs. It also is tolerant to downy mildew and gray leaf spot, although brown patch and rust can still pose a problem. Winter hardness is little less than that of common Saint Augustine.

Floratam gets its name from the fact it was developed jointly by the Florida Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Texas leaders on the SAD project have been Dr. Robert Toler of the Agricultural Experiment Station and the A&M University Plant Sciences Department, and Dr. Walter Walla, plant pathologist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Dr. Richard Dumble of the Experiment Station and the A&M Soil and Crop Sciences Department has led the work on chinch bug resistance.

Toler said SAD, a virus disease, was first noted in Texas in the southern part of the state in 1969. It has since been identified in 51 counties of Texas, in Mexico and in two Louisiana locations. The virus has caused extensive damage to common Saint Augustine. Floratam has resisted SAD in greenhouse and field tests for the past three years.

As for chinch bugs, Dumble said the pests apparently are unable to feed on the improved grass and cannot survive.

Foundation sod of Floratam has been made available to certified producers, and lists of these producers can be obtained by homeowners from their local county Extension Service agents. Supplies may be short this year, but should be plentiful next spring.

Toler urged homeowners to buy the sod only from reputable nurseries.

July, 1973

The linden, in the fervors of July,
Hums with a louder concert.
—Bryant.

July always ushers in the second half of the calendar year. It's the first month of the fiscal year and has more than ordinary importance in the business world.

July is named for Julius Caesar, a change from its former name of Quintilis, changed on the order of Mark Antony, and was the month in which Caesar was born.

For Americans July is an especially historic month. Our independence is celebrated on the Fourth, of course, and the Battle of Gettysburg was fought during the first three days of July in 1863.

Two of our Presidents were born in July, John Quincy Adams and Calvin Coolidge. The first admiral in the U.S. Navy, David G. Farragut, was born on July 5, 1801. The Republican Party was founded July 6, 1854, at Jackson, Michigan.

One largely forgotten, though relatively recent day, is July 10th. On that day in 1943 the Allies invaded Europe for the first time in World War II. General Dwight Eisenhower led an amphibious invasion of Sicily.

July, the first month of full-bloom summer, is the month of vacations, holidays, swimming, boating and outdoor pleasures.

B.J. Crowley's
HOROSCOPE

Week of July 1
GEMINI--Those born under this sign love everyone. They are usually very well liked by their peers, although conformity is not an important word in their vocabulary. Lucky day for Gemini is Friday, lucky number is 2 and best color is blue.

GEMINI--May 21 to June 20--Join with a friend to plan a successful venture. Your present success may depend upon the meeting of two minds.

CANCER--June 21 to July 22--Stop wondering and ask for facts. The truth will ease your mind. Your work can then improve.

LEO--July 23 to Aug. 22

--Expect a very pleasant week. Routine chores will not seem tiresome, social contacts will be pleasurable, if you are both generous and complimentary.

VIRGO--Aug. 23 to Sept. 22--Let others lose their tempers, but you keep your cool and you win the battle. Conquer your restlessness and discontent.

LIBRA--Sept. 23 to Oct. 22--Forget self and concentrate this week on the welfare and happiness of others. These concessions pay off in self respect and a great deal of happiness.

SCORPIO--Oct. 23 to Nov. 22--You will unwittingly make a wise decision. Be honest in your dealings with others. Plan your week around community interests.

SAGITTARIUS--Nov. 23 to Dec. 21--Revision is needed now in your over-all short term planning. Situations have changed. Change your plans accordingly.

CAPRICORN--Dec. 22 to Jan. 19--Sign nothing without carefully studying the issues involved. Overlooking the meaning of fine print could mean regrets at a later date.

AQUARIUS--Jan. 20 to Feb. 20--Calculated risks in minor investments could pay off. However, keep the risk to the limit where you would not suffer if a loss developed.

PISCES--Feb. 19 to March 20--There is unlimited knowledge to be gained in your chosen field. Continue to keep up with the latest developments.

ARIES--March 21 to April 20--A radical change boosting your current pursuit to the heights of success can be expected. Join with those who can make this success possible, but let them know the demands on your time and talents must be reasonable.

TAURUS--April 21 to May 20--Relax when you are with others. Stop worrying about saying the wrong thing. No one else is perfect either.

Summer Homemaking Activities Announced

The homemaking department has taken on a new and fresh look recently. Summer homemaking students spent time during their group project re-finishing the large cutting tables and various book cases in the sewing lab. Their work included preparing the surface for re-finishing, applying the finish, and finally varnishing the surface. The girls used antique kits which when completed produced a wood-grained effect.

High school girls participating in the summer homemaking activities are Carol Bauman, Nora Bowers, Debra Cross, Nora Gonzales, Alice Green, Mary Ellen Hernandez, Lynn Mood, Ophelia Morales, Rhonda Nixon, Lillian Perez,

Thursday, June 28, 1973

Linda Rush, Diane Valenzuela, Kimberly Wood, Connie Perez, Nancy Nesloney, Gail Keller, Christine Galvan and Corina Dominguez.

These industrious students also reupholstered the seats of the dining room chairs in a moss green damask fabric, which matches the drapes in the living room.

While some girls worked on the decorating project, others were busy utilizing their skills on the sewing machine, making colorful hand puppets for use in the playschool. They also made decorative and educational banners using scraps of fabric which they trimmed with yarn and fringe. These were also used in the playschool.

In addition to all of these activities, some students constructed garments such as floor length dresses, formal gowns, pants suits, swim wear and men's wear.

An eighth grade student who will be in ninth grade homemaking this fall joined the group and received advance instruction in the handling and care of the sewing machine, and construction techniques. This student was Maria Hernandez. Maria constructed a pair of shorts for casual summer wear. Miss Frances Mutscher, homemaking teacher, supervised the students.

Local Couple Gets Unexpected Honors

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Utterback of Rockport recently won some unexpected honors and prizes in Amarillo.

It happened when they entered Pioneer Amphitheatre to attend the eighth annual presentation of "Texas," a musical romance of Panhandle history.

Quoting the Amarillo Daily News, "Perhaps the most surprised two people in the audience were Mr. and Mrs. Utterback. Their entrance into the amphitheatre brought the total audience attendance during the past eight years to half a million."

"The visiting couple was asked to step aside from the crowd surging into the amphitheatre behind them. When she had recovered from the shock Mrs. Utterback said she couldn't imagine why she and her husband had been asked to step aside."

"Then it was explained to them that they had brought the attendance to half a million and that as prizes they were to receive a Texas flag and free steak dinners at the Big Texas Steak House in Amarillo."

"We're camped here in the canyon," said Utterback, "and tomorrow we'll be on our way to Minnesota. But first we'll have those big Texas steaks."

Mrs. Utterback said they had heard of the Canyon production of "Texas" and had timed their visit to coincide with opening night. They had not heard of the honor that awaited the 500,000th ticket holder.

The United Methodist Women of the First United Methodist Church met in the Fellowship Hall on June 19 to begin making items for their fall bazaar. Candleholders, stuffed toys, purses, Christmas tree ornaments, and wastebaskets were among the items begun in the workshop. Other workshops will be held this summer to prepare for the November Christmas Bazaar.

Fix-It Tip

A house perfectly safe for adults is suddenly filled with hazards for children. While all paints are washable, some are more washable than others, so pick paints that are reasonably impervious to fingerprints, crayons and watercolors.

Where there are small children crawling around and chewing on any handy object, make certain the paints you use are nontoxic. Avoid paints that contain lead or lead chromate.

Keep lamp cords out of the way as much as possible. Replace immediately any that might be frayed or broken. Check plug ends for cracks or for exposed wires.

Ancient Light
Ancient light is a phrase in English law describing the uninterrupted use of windows or opening for 20 years and barring the owner of adjoining land from obstructing the light received through these openings.

Questions and Answers

Q. My doctor told me that I have pernicious anemia and need vitamin B₁₂ injections on a continuing basis. Will Medicare help pay for these injections?

A. Yes, if you have Medicare coverage. When vitamin B₁₂ is given to treat an illness, such as pernicious anemia, your medical insurance under Medicare will help pay for it. When vitamin B₁₂ is given as preventive medicine, however, Medicare does not help pay for it.

When you apply for payment, you should attach a statement from your doctor describing your condition.

Q. My wife died last month. I'm 60 and can't work. Since I was completely supported by my wife, why must I wait until I'm 62 to get social security payments on her earnings record?

A. You don't have to wait. The law has been changed. A dependent widower now can receive reduced social security payments at 60 or full benefits at 65.

Q. My husband and I have both worked for many years, and we're nearing retirement age. My sister recently told me I won't be able to get social security checks on my own record because I'm living with my husband. She can't be right, can she?

A. No, your sister is wrong. A wife who has worked under social security has the same right to monthly benefits as any other worker. However, a wife can't get full benefits on her own work record and on her husband's at the same time. If a wife is eligible for benefits on more than one record, she will always get the larger of the two payments.

Q. My wife is 66 and a high school teacher. Last summer when she wasn't teaching she got monthly social security checks. We'll report her total wages on our income tax return. My wife thinks that's all she has to do. Is she right?

A. No, she must also file an annual report of her earnings with the Social Security Administration by April 16, 1973. This report is entirely different from an income tax return. The people at your social security office will be glad to help her complete the annual report.

Q. I've been farming for the past 3 years, and I had a net profit each year of about $2,000, but I've never paid any social security contributions. Can I go back 3 years and get social security credit for these earnings?

A. Yes, you can get social security credit if you file tax returns reporting these earnings. Get in touch with any office of the Internal Revenue Service to file the returns and pay the social security contributions. The Internal Revenue Service will forward the information to the Social Security Administration.

Q. I'm a student, and since my mother died I've been getting monthly social security checks. Now, the payments are mailed to my father. However, I am planning to transfer to an out-of-state school shortly. Can I have my checks mailed directly to me?

A. Yes, a student beneficiary can have his benefits paid directly to him. Contact any social security office to make the change.
