TEXAS GAME AND FISH CONTROL.

Within the last year there has been more progress made toward game and fish conservation than in the sixty years of legislation by which Texas has attempted to control hunters and fishermen. There have existed laws which made it criminal and subject to fine any infractions of the laws, but the first real enforcement has come from the act of the 38th Legislature appropriating funds for the employment of wardens and the prosecution of lawbreakers.

Through the employment of some fifty wardens and the enforcement of the laws, much fish and game have been saved and the revenues from all sources greatly increased.

The annual report of Game, Fish and Oyster Commissioner W. W. Boyd shows:

Total receipts for the year are given as follows:

Game collections	$103,493.23
Fish and oysters	42,827.62
Sand, shell and gravel	85,154.64
Total	$231,475.49
Total disbursement for year were	$203,700.26

There were 50,488 resident hunting licenses sold and 281 non-resident or alien.

The report recommends to the Legislature the closing of coastal waters to seining and netting during the months of June, July and August, because the dragging of seines at that time kills young fish through the clogging of nets, and where nets are permitted there is always a temptation to drag them

One thousand fish were tagged during the past summer, including redfish, trout, flounder and drum, for the purpose of studying feeding and migratory habits.

Much constructive work has been done in the distribution of fish from the hatchery, and quail , prairie chicken, turkey, pheasants and deer to depleted sections of the State.

Many suggestions are made for yet further improvement of the laws and manner of enforcement of the present laws.

"The system of game sanctuaries, surrounded by public hunting grounds, so successful in the State of Pennsylvania, is the most practical way of preserving and even increasing our game supply. The leasing of the best hunting grounds by wealthy sportsmen, increasing yearly, means that this system must soon be adopted in this State if the man of average means is to find a place to hunt.

"There was the usual complaint the last summer of the use of dynamite, poison, and illegal nets in the taking of fish, and several hundred of the violators were apprehended.

"While last year marked the end of the time when the hunter could openly violate the law, there is considerable room for improvement," the report says. "A deputy is needed in each county of the State, but the department will not have sufficient funds for this until the Legislature amends the license law, requiring every hunter to possess a license. Such additional funds would permit the establishment of game sanctuaries and public hunting grounds," says the report.

The real purpose of game and fish laws is to preserve the new crop of game until another crop comes on, or save the seed for another planting. They are not intended to prohibit shooting or fishing, or to make it hard on the sportsman. There are so many good reasons why game should not be exterminated in our country that we must all agree protection against slaughter is necessary. Our present laws may not be perfect, but if everybody would obey them, our children would have just as good shooting and fishing as we have today, and at the same time we'll have no serious cause to complain. Our laws are liberal, and permit a man to kill and catch all the game he and his family can consume. Let's make it a matter of ethics between sportsmen to Obey the Game Laws. — Southwestern Sportsman.

According to latest Radio reports received here Wednesday night, the Republican candidates for Pesident and Vice-President, will receive an even larger vote than that given Harding in 1920. Out of the 531 electoral votes, it is conservatively estimated that Coolidge and Dawes will have between 375 and 400. The Republican candidates carried Wisconsin, the home state of Robert M. LaFollette, and received more votes in Kansas than both the Democrats and Independents together.

There seems to be a feeling of general satisfaction troughout this section, normally overwhelmingly Democratic, over the outcome of the National election and business conditions will likely continue uninterrupted.

As far as funds were available, checks were drawn for the premiums won in the recent Fair, and N. H. Skaggs, president of the association says those for whom checks have been made can get their checks by calling at the Junction State Bank.

MRS. MIRIAM A. FERGUSON
of Temple, Texas.
NEXT GOVERNOR OF TEXAS

P.-T. A. MAKES SUCCESS OF KIL KARE KARNIVAL

The town was crowded last Friday night for the Carnival put on by members of the local Parent-Teachers' Association. The streets from the drug stores to the Junction State Bank were roped off and the street was alive with all kinds of side shows, races, stands, etc., and everybody had a good time. Plenty of amusement and lots of good things to eat kept the crowd busy.

The Lone Star Bakery donated the buns and the W. & W. Cafe closed for the evening thru courtesy.

From a financial standpoint, the effort was well worth while, as the Association netted something over $115.00.

Ollie Murr was here Wednesday, coming down with the Murr Precinct election returns.

THE AMERICAN WAY

MRS. FERGUSON WINS 3RD ELECTION VICTORY.

The Democrats of Texas went to the polls Tuesday and did that which they have always done—elected the Democratic nominee for Governor, Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson.

This is the third hotly contested victory that she has won in the last few months. In the first primary she ran second; in the second primary she lead Robertson by nearly 100,000 votes, and according to radio reports received in Junction Wednesday night her lead over the fusion Republican candidate, George C. Butte, was around 50,000.

So far as the majority of the voters of Texas are concerned, the name of Jim Ferguson and the Ferguson family is vindicated, and the courts have held that the Governor-Elect is in every way qualified to hold the office.

The vote over the State will approximate 600,000, according to conservative estimates.

RADIO CALL LETTERS NOT CRAZY MAN'S WORK.

Where do radio broadcasting stations get their call letters and who originates the combinations? In the United States, of course, the Department of Commerce assigns the call letters, but if you think that Mr. Hoover's staff includes some fantastically-minded person who arranges these letters to suit his own fancy you are all off the trail. These combinations are governed by the International Telegraphic Union of Berne, Switzerland, which keeps all records and formulates regulations governing these call letters. The bureau is the outcome of the International Radiotelegraphic conference which was held in London in 1912 and attended by representatives from forty-six nations.

As a result of this conference on August 1, 1914—just four days before the outbreak of the great war, a series of call letters was allotted to various nations. Under this, all combinations beginning with N and W as well as the call letters from KDA to KZZ were assigned to the United States. The letters from AAA to AZZ or all of the three letter combinations of any key letter, number 676.

In the United States the N is reserved for the navy, and the call letters from WUA to WVZ and WXA to WZZ for the army. This, however, with the addition of a fourth letter in the call series, optional for any government under international agreement, leaves about 30,000 possible call letter combinations which the United States may allot to non-government stations

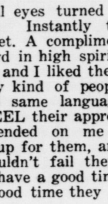

As far as possible the Department of Commerce assigns W call letters to stations in the eastern half of the country and K letters to those on the other side of the Mississippi river. Amateur and experimental stations are given call designations that do not conflict with the international system. In Washington there is a set of charts which, at a glance shows all call letters and to whom they have been assigned.—The Utah Farmer.

Rudolph Becker and Edwin Wahl were in Mason County on the first for a deer hunt.

Mrs. Nellie Ross, wife of the late Governor William Ross, of Wyoming, was elected Governor of that state Tuesday.

Alfred P. C. Peatsch wsa elected Representative from Gillespie, Llano, Blanco and Kendall Counties.

Sallie's Temptations

SALLIE GIVES A TOAST TO THE YOUNGER SET.

"Let's have a lil' game of stripped poker!" Judith continued. "I saw the girls play it in a show on Broadway the other evening. Come on, great sport! I bet you are game, aren't you, Sallie?" she appealed to me, edging over to the table where I stood, regarding Warren Fisher's orchids which I was wearing.

My thoughts were away. Anne and Curtiss * * at church together, when he might have stayed with me that morning * * Sunday night again the two of them together * * I don't know why, but I felt like I would get even with Curtiss Wright if I did something wild and devilish of which he would not approve if he were present.

"Right, O, Judy!" I cheered her on. "I'll help you get them started!"

I leaped to the table.

"Who wants to stay up all night 'til the teeny-weeny hours and play stripped poker?" I challenged.

"I do."

"Count me in."

"Now you're talking!" and similar remearks of approval came from all parts of the room and then a cute little aviator in uniform fairly shouted:

"Suits me, I wanna win Sallie's lil' red heels!" remembering my dancing slippers.

"Shucks, I wanna win Sallie," declared Peter McMillan, "and have been tryin' to ever since I saw her in her cradle."

Peter was a dear and so faithful, as were they all. I took in the room at a glance. It was a jolly crowd. A Victrola was playing a popular jazz song, "What'll I do When You Are Gone Away—What'll I do?" drawled by Elsie Baker.

"Aw, 'can' the singing. We'd rather hear Sallie. Give us a toast." and all eyes turned in my direction. Instantly the room was quiet. A compliment—from a crowd in high spirits. They liked me and I liked them. They were my kind of people. We spoke the same language, and I could FEEL their approval. They depended on me to whoop things up for them, and, by Jove, I wouldn't fail them! I'd help them have a good time. The kind of good time they all wanted.

"A toast, Sallie!" they clamored.

I raised my glass.

"I give you * * * the younger set!"

"We believe the one unpardonable sin is—being bored.

"We forgive anything in each other—except being stupid.

"We promise that whatever happens to-night we will never speak of it, and also promise to forget everything in the morning."

"Bravo, Sallie! Encore!" There was a din of applause and then silence.

"Here's to Life, Love and Laughter," I continued. "Let us hereby dedicate ourselves to pleasure!"

I had tried to throw my whole self into the toast I was making and yet, during the entire time, I had a feeling that alien eyes were watching. Following my impulse, I glanced toward the far end of the room and saw a man standing in the doorway. Catching my gaze, he started walking across the room in my direction. I knew that walk—my heart was leaping. I recognized the swing of his arms and shoulders. It was Curtiss Wright. I felt a sense of joy and at the same time a flood of confusion.

He reached my side and offered his hand to assist me from the table.

"Did you like my toast?" I asked.

"Is there some place we could go and talk quietly together?" he ignored my question.

"First tell me how you got here and do you know everybody? Why didn't you tell me you were invited to the party?"

"I was not,"—he replied. "I came for a purpose," he added.

"Wait, Sallie," yelled someone across the room, "you've made us hold our glasses so long the stuff is ageing. How about the signal?"

That meant for me to finish what I started.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Wright—this is the gang," He bowed courteously. "We were just about to partake of a lil' liquid refreshment. Won't you join us?"

He was offered glasses from everywhere, but I notiecd he placed his on the table.

Once more I lifted my glass.

"Here's hoping this prohibition stuff from the Mitchell's cellar won't result in anything worse than headaches in the morning."

With that, I turned and followed Mr. Wright, who was apparently eager for my attention.

Outside on the terrace, I jumped up and sat on the railing. He stood silently beside me for a moment. Then taking both my hands in his, he said in a voice that was grave and tender:

"I've come to take you home, Sallie."

"I don't see why that's necessary. Isn't Anne sufficiently entertaining?"

"Please don't," he pleaded. "She has nothing to do with this."

"Oh, doesn't she?" I laughed scornfully. "Then why did you take her to church, and why did you go to her house Sunday night for supper?" I flung at him, the words that had been burning in my brain all evening.

He looked puzzled. He held my hands closer and his grasp was sure and gentle. I liked the firm pressure of his cool fingers.

"You don't understand, Sallie. This isn't frivolous. It is NECESSARY for you to come home. Don't be alarmed when — tell you———"

RED CREEK "RALLY."

(Too late for last week.)

C. E. Lambert and Jim Gentry went to Junction Tuesday on business.

Guy Cummins has been shearing his sheep this week.

The new Red Creek school truck came in the first of the week and is now in operation daily. It is a very beautiful car, and has a seating capacity of forty pupils.

Henry Summers is picking cotton for Joe Hardesty this week.

Bob Hunter went to London Monday on business.

John Dagin visited Joe Crumbley of Yates Sunday.

London school still grows. The enrollment has reached 125.

CHILD FIRE PREVENTION

If all the people of our country were to learn by heart the rules regarding fire prevention which Fire Commissioner Drennan of New York City has suggested for memorization by the school children of that city, so that what these rules require becomes instinctive, we would see a material decrease in our $500,000,000 annual fire loss.

The rules which the Fire Commissioner suggests do not ask for more than ordinary care. He suggests that matches be kept always in metal containers; he warns against throwing remnants of lighted matches, cigars and cigarettes away without seeing where they fall; he tells one not to try to start fires with kerosene, nor to go into dark closets, bedrooms or cellars with lighted candles or matches and not to use lighted candles on Christmas trees; he further cautions against keeping gasoline, naptha or benzine in the house.

IN THE BEAUTIFUL LAND OF MANANA.

Eighty-five miles from Alpine Texas, with a drop of 2,000 feet, is Terlingua, the largest quicksilver mine in the world, barring the mines of Spain. Hundreds of men work every day in the month except one. Why this one is excepted, no one seems to be able to explain, but from the time the mine opened it has been so.

The Chisos Mining Company, known as Terlingua, is a little town of its own. The quicksilver mines, the store, the hotel, the dwellings—everything—belongs to the company.

The ore is mined, hauled to the surface, crushed, goes into the rotary machine, is burned, and the smoke is carried thru, tunnels to what is termed condensing rooms. It enters at the bottom and escapes at the top, to enter another of the same kind, then on and on, through the same process until it finally comes out of the stack after having traveled some 3,000 feet as a thin white film.

The rooms have gathered soot. Everywhere black soot is clinging to the roof walls and floor. As the work goes on, the soot gets so heavy it drops to the floor. Then the soot is raked to the front. It is worked with a hoe as you would squeeze honey from the comb. Then bright balls appear tumbling in every direction, to gather at the bottom of the floor, where a channel is cut into the concrete, then to go rolling off in a stream like molten silver.

All condensing rooms are made of brick. A new plant just opening up has to run several months before it begins to realize any profit. The brick, an ordinary brick that weighs around six pounds, absorbs something like 25 pounds of quicksilver, so after the mine has been worked out there is still a small fortune in the brick

The famous Pancho Villa's country lies along Brewster County's ragged edge. This mountain is thirty miles long with an average height of 2,000 feet, with only two places that a man can work his way up, and only one where pack animals can pass up Villa's stronghold for ten years, from which he was never routed.

Along the banks of the beautiful river lie many thousands of acres of fertile land that can be bought for a song, where with a little work, water can be turned out to water it with, where you see small patches of cotton that will make a couple of bales of cotton to the acre, where labor is 75 cents a day, and picking never reaches 75 cents a hundred.

But it's the land of manana—tomorrow.—Farm and Ranch.

WATSON DIVIDE NEWS.

Going into the winter with all stock on the mend. Range in fine condition, especially for sheep and goats. Fairly good crops in silos and barns.

Our school is getting away again with finest prospects. Our teacher, Miss Whitwood, is a woman of wide experience, having taught in New York, California and three other states.

S. S. Bundy has completed his new ranch home. Native rock, ground side out for lower story, sides and entire ends; second story front and rear, concrete; all modern improvements; walls and ceilings plastered throughout; hard wood floors, cobblestone fire-place; rustic mantel.

Polo Saturday, October 18th. The secret came out that C. M. Wolf instead of being a beginner, was a seasoned expert player. He had forgotten the old polo instructions, not to eat during a game, however.

Uvalde mohair brought 68 and 80 cents.

Watson Divide ranchmen are thinking these days on sheep watering problems. Probably not one ranch in twenty is correctly watered for sheep. Edwin Dismuke, sucessful ranchman of Edwards County, put some of us to thinking, with his six water troughs at one mill, four rock troughs, two half-circle sheet steel troughs, five inches deep, 16 inches wide, about ten inches from the ground, one and one-half inch feed pipe. Steel troughs had been installed two weeks, sheep had been raised at rock troughs; twenty-seven thirsty sheep were turned into the pen; four sheep stopped at rock troughs, twenty-three raced on to the new shallow troughs. All pens were wire; sheep hate plank gates and cedar pens. Shallow troughs up off of ground allows dust to blow under; should run a little north-west and sounth-east; a sheep will not drink water with dust on it. Cattle were fenced away from Dismukes sheep troughs.

HOW DOCTORS TREAT COLDS AND THE FLU

To break up a cold over night or to cut short an attack of grippe, influenza or sore throat, physicians and druggists are now recommending Calotabs, the nauseless Calomel tablet, that is purified from dangerous and sickening effects. Those who have tried it say that it acts like magic, by far more effective and certain than the old style calomel, heretofore recommended by physicians.

One or two Calotabs at bed time with a swallow of water,—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with eating, work or pleasures. Next morning your cold has vanished and your system feels refreshed and purified. Calotabs are sold only in original sealed packages, price ten cents for the vest-pocket size; thirty-five cents for the large family package. Recommended and guaranteed by druggists. MEMBER TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

J. C. Ray and family are in Dallas this week.

Mrs. Bill Hamer is visiting her parents at Goliad this wee.

Mrs. Fritz and Clara and Leonard Hensley spent the week-end in Bronte visting friends.

We dislike to heap any more coals on the head of our contemporary, Fire Cracker Johnnie, of the Brady Sentinel, at this time, as he is no doubt suffering a severe breakdown over the overwhelming defeat of the candidate for whom the paper furnished him by his "friends" has been giving space so liberally since his other candidate fell so hard in the second primary, and in which he has been furnishing the dear public with so many long-winded editorials. The two defeats, and his most serious complication of the diarhea of the mouth and a constipated brain, must certainly give him a feeling of the morning after the night before.

Fire Cracker Johnnie is a name well adapted to him and those who gave him that cognomen certainly knew that it was applicable to a person who is always exploding, but there is very little before they explode and nothing afterward. If he has not already been elected head of the Annanias Club of his home town, there must be some mighty well qualified mem ber holding that honor, for F.C. J. can tell more lies in the same amount of newspaper space than any other one it has been our lot to take notice of.

Besides his many other traits (those that must have been responsible for the numerous moves he has had to make in the past couple of years), he has developed a wonderful ability as a personal investigator. He admits it himself, and he says we are a jackass for arguing with him. We were never very strong on brute force fighting, and we would usually walk a block or two to avoid a vicious canine, but have always thought that if the occasion ever came when a dog jumped on us, we would make an effort to fight him off even though we were not "picking" a fight with him.

In a recent issue of the Sentinel, he states that he had some previous business relations with us that demonstrated to him that we were a crook or a crank, and he at once began to make inquiry and found that we had some enemies that were willing to tell him all about us. We will take up his informants first, then his dealings with us. One of them was a former employee of this paper who was discharged by us for inefficiency and dishonesty, and today still owes the bills he made during the few months in the town. Of course a man like this would sure tell the truth under questioning from F.C.J. Another of the three informants was one of those who were so persevering in their efforts to defeat me in order to derive a monetary benefit. This particular informant gave me three months to stay here after the election, but in about three month he had to move away, and 'yours truly' is still here, and we believe we have made a good many friends among those who voted against us, on only a six months' acquaintance. Another of his informants was a minister who undertook to run this paper, but we do not care to involve a minister in this controversy.

rect in one statement, viz: that his dealings with us have been unpleasant. They have been a great deal more unsatisfactory to us than to him.

When he first moved to a nearby town and placed his name under the masthead in large letter as the "Business Manager," we were glad of our first opportunity to accommodate him, which came when he was unable to get out his paper without getting newsprint and he came to us. We were glad to accommodate him. At the same time we let him have a quantity of rules and cut-offs, and only charged him for the metal that was in them. His predecessor had purchased a press from us and when F.C.J. took over the shop we made an effort to either collect from him or his predecessor. He would not pay us, nor would he allow us possession of the press; yet he knew that he was liable under the bulk sale law, even though he claimed to have received a bill of sale to the press and was an innocent purchaser. Of course we had recourse to the law, but to go to another town and employ a lawyer to take a case through court was expensive, and as we were informed that he had gone broke in another town and was insolvent, we did not care to spend $100 to gain $50, for we would have had to pay the costs. On another occasion he sent us several columns of copy clipped from other newspapers and asked that we set it for him and return the set matter the following morning. We were rushed, but in order to accommodate him, we told our operator that he could have the use of the machine if he wanted to work that night and could have what the composition was worth He worked until 11:30, when the light plant shut down, only lacking about half of one article finishing the job. We had this same article on the hook and as we could not set it the following morning and get it to him, we kept it and used it as we were going to use the same article from a daily paper. When he saw the article in our paper that week he wrote us and accused us of stealing his copy. He had in reality, stolen it himself. But this is not all of this copy episode; although the operator worked hard for several hours, so far as we know or have been able to learn, he has never received one penny as payment from F.C.J.

A few weeks later, we noticed a number of clippings from our paper appearing in his, without credit, in an effort to make his readers think he had a correspondent here. We asked him to either give this paper credit for clipped articles or quit copying them.

These are just a few of our dealings with this person, who is willing to become the tool of designing fanatics if they are willing to furnish the money. He is one of that class, who, because they are the horn, think they are the engine. Why, he speaks of honesty and decency, and fraternal ethics! Those words are as "sounding brass and tinkling cymbals" to him for a man that will admit he is the hired tool of the most radical element ever existing in this great State, cannot know and cannot afford to practice the simplest rules of common decency.

A vision is before us—we see a person, not a man, before us claiming to run a newspaper—on his desk is a mass of instructions and demands from higher up, which he must publish, and on one side is a tar bucket and on the other side a bag of feathers, and in his heart is intolerance and deception, and he is waiting for night to come, when he will gather those of his kind together and hie away in the darkness, with robes on their bodies and masks on their faces, to pass judgment on those who do not agree with them.

"Verily they avoid the light, for their ways are evil."

The Eagle plant went over the top in October, as far as business done is concerned. While the volume done is small compared with city or even large town shops, but it is a bit out of the ordinary for a country newspaper plant in a town of the size of Junction to do over a thousand dollar business in one month. We cannot but feel a little pride in this accomplishment and further feel that we have been able to give value received and more, for the money, to our customers, to whom credit is due for the nice business we have enjoyed throughout the year, and during the last month especially.

N. H. Skaggs asks us to state that he recently received letters from Margaret Oliver and Bernice Chenault, and both are doing well in their college work. Margaret is at San Marcos and Bernice at Belton.

JUNCTION AND SONORA PLAY SCORELESS GAME.

The game that drew the largest crowd and that created the most interest this season was played on the local field last Saturday between Juncton and Sonora high schools.

Although the game was hard fought on each side the end of the last quarter found each team without a score.

As this game determined the semi-District championship, it was necessary to have one side or the other concede the game. A coin was pitched and Junction was lucky; as a result Junction is now pitted against Lampasas for the District championship, and the boys will go to that city this week end to play harder than they have ever played before. An effort was made to get the Lampasas team here, but it was decided Wednesday that the local team would go there.

SAVING THE HUMAN VOICE

Probably the greatest service rendered the American people by the universal introduction and use of the radio is the conservation of the human voice.

The decline of public oratory and the tendency to increase the nasal twang ordinary conversation had almost deprived Our Country of the nobler uses of the speaking organs in public and private life

The universal demand for clear-voiced speaking into the transmitter of the radio is restoring the carrying efficiency of the vocal organs.

The same influences are at work among singers, and clear, beautiful tones of the vocal organs are in the highest demand.

For enunciators to large crowds and for the cheapest radio in the poorest home there is universal appreciation of clear speaking and understandable vocal music.

TWO TEXANS PLEAD GUILTY OF RONDOUT.

Chicago, Nov. 1.—Wylie (Willie) Newton and his brother, Willis, of Del Rio, Texas, who Saturday pleaded guilty to the robbery of approximately $2,000,000 in the holdup of a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Louis train near Rondout, Ill., last June, were rushed to Waukegan Saturday by United States Marshal Levy. Rumors that the men had confessed, involving several others held under indictment here on the holdup charge, caused Marshall Levy to transfer the prisoners to Waukegan, as he feared they might be harmed by those involved in their confession.

Judge Adam Cliffe suspended sentence in the case of the Newtons for the present.

CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.

The amount of crime and the general disregard for laws, both human and divine, which are at this moment afflicting the world like a pestilence, have caused certain people to pause and exclaim: "What is wrong with our religion?"

There is nothing wrong with any religion that is ethical, is sincerely believed in and sincerely practiced. It is in the neglect of religion that the trouble arises.

Quite recently an eminent ecclesiastic declared from the pulpit that if he happened to be wandering in a Central African jungle and suddenly came upon one of the aborigines engaged in the worship of a stuffed toad he would take off his hat to him, for here at least were the elements of faith and sincerity. It is the want of these virtues which is at the bottom of the lack of religion today.

How can anything be good if it is neglected and cast aside? How can a judgment be formed upon any theory which is not put into practice? How can nourishment be derived from food that is not eaten and digested?

There is nothing wrong with religion; it is the want of it that causes trouble. Better have some ideal and practice it earnestly than to have no ideal at all.—Dearborn Independent.

MONEY.

Most men work for money, yet few ever have any great amount of it at one time, even though reputed to be rich. It's like the old stage gag of a generation ago: "If money is the root of all evil, then please send me a stump puller."

Henry Ford is a very wealthy man, yet Henry says that he can wear only one suit of clothes sleep in one bed, and drive one automobile at a time; that he can eat only a limited amount of simple food and still live and do well.

Andrew Carnigie was a wealthy man, yet he frequently hit a friend for the loan of ten or twenty dollars, in order to have cash for food, tickets and other emergencies. He was worth many millions, yet had but little pocket change.

Great capitalists, old boys now on the evening slope of life, make long time loans to foreign governments at a very low rate of interest. They can't possibly live long enough to collect the principal, and the interest they collect will be but a fraction of the total sum loaned.

A great business man keeps putting his money back into his business, installing new machinery, building new buildings, hiring more people to work for him, even borrowing money to make extensions in his business and of his business facilities. He keeps this up to the end, and then leaves the business—the result of a lifetime of work and accumulation—to others. All he takes with him is the money spent for his funeral equipment.

The more money a man makes, the more he spends. He never keeps it. A very wealthy man does no more than give employment to a large number of men and women—men and women who in turn spend money for living expenses, thus making prosperity for all.

Money is a medium of exchange, a friend in need. It speaks a universal language, and performs miracles. It makes crooks out of some men, and saints out of others. You are out of luck if you haven't got it, and a fool if you don't control it when you get it. Money is a wonderful servant, but a tyrant as a master.

Money burns holes in the pockets of some, and freezes to the palms of others, in each instance proves itself the master. The miser is no worse than the spendthrift and the spendthrift is no worse than the miser. The good citizen is the man who uses his money for constructive work, reserving a definite percentage of it for charity, for entertainment, for self-improvement.

Money is an empire builder, only when controlled by an empire builder.—South Western Machinery.

HOW AN EDITOR PROVED THAT PEOPLE READ ADS.

So many customers were out of town on vacation that a merchant in a nearby town concluded that it wasn't worth while to continue his advertisement in the home paper. He knew the editor well and called him up and ordered the ad. out. "I don't believe the people see it, anyhow," the pharmacist informed his friend, the editor. The latter suggested that it might be well to change the copy, but the pharmacist had made up his mind.

The paper came out as usual, but following the editor's instruction, the illustration in the pharmacist's ad was upside-down. That evening the editor strolled into the drug store and was immediately hailed by his friend.

"What's the idea of having he inquired. "I told you to that cut upside down in my ad?" take out the whole ad."

"Well, you're probably the only one that noticed it," replied the editor.

"Is that so?" replied the pharmacist. "Why, I'll bet that fifty people have already called my attention to the change—asked me if I had seen it. A dozen customers brought their own papers to show me. Two women went to the trouble to call me on the phone about it. I didn't realize that so many people noticed my ad. You had better let it run and I will get up some new copy right away. —Exchange.

We are going to save you money on any thing you buy during the next two months.

MINERAL RIGHTS IN MASON CO. CAN BE SOLD.

Elsewhere in the News will be found an ad. of R. E. Lee, wanting to contract for mineral rights on all the land in Mason County, that has iron ore on same. Mr. Lee states that the Company he represents proposes to build a railroad to Mason if they can get a sufficient acreage of iron ore to justify them to do so. It is a well known fact that Mason County has an abundance of iron and that the same has been, in some instances, mined, but development was hindered and eventually stopped because transportation was too expensive, and not because the ore was not to be found. This company is going to considerable expense to get these mineral rights, and the contract is so written that in event the railroad is not started to Mason, and the mining business actually operated within two years from the time the owner of the land enters into the contract, then the mineral rights revert back to the owner of the land, so if it takes the mineral prospects of our county to get us a railroad, hurrah for the Mason County mineral. —Mason County News.

THE HOME OWNER.

A family that owns its own home takes pride in it, maintains it better, gets more pleasure out of it, and has a more wholesome, more healthful and happier atmosphere in which to bring up children.

The home owner has a constructive aim in life. He works harder outside his home, he spends his leisure hours more profitably, and he and his family live a finer life.

A husband and wife who own their own home are more apt to save. They have an interest in the advancement of a social system that permits the individual to store up the fruits of his labor. As direct taxpayers they take a more active part in local government.—Herbert Hoover.

Now my Bob likes my bob

"You remember how wild he was for me to bob my hair. And how pleased he was that first night when I came home with it beautifully curled? Naturally, that first curl came out and my hair was straight as a string. I'd have given anything to have had it long again, for I knew that with Bob buying into the business and paying for this house, and all, I couldn't afford to have it curled every day or every week for that matter. And while I knew Bob still loved me, it was plain that he didn't love my bob, when it wasn't curled.

"Mrs. Adkins next door showed me the way out. She told me about Sunset Coffee and the Advertising Coupons they pack in every can. I knew how particular Bob has always been about his coffee and I was just a little afraid to change brands for fear that the breach the uncurled bob had made, would be widened if his coffee wasn't just exactly right. For Bob's human, only more so.

"It came out all right tho. Bob liked the coffee fine and was surprised to know that it didn't cost any more than the kind we had been using. In a few weeks I had enough coupons, and the dollar it took, to get this electric curling iron. It only takes a few minutes two or three times a week to keep my hair all 'pretied up' and 'now my Bob likes my bob', and me.

"We are having better coffee than ever before, paying no more for it, and I'm saving the coupons now for an electric percolator."

The electric curling iron referred to in the story told in the next column is only one of a group of valuable standard articles that may be secured at much less than retail cost by the use of the advertising Coupons to be found in every can of Sunset Coffee.

The curling iron will be sent for two coupons and $1.00 in cash. A dozen similar offers and full particulars will be found in every can.

THE CATTLE MARKET.

The Patterson-Rieck steers yearlings recently grossed in Kansas City $45.56. Deducting $4.00 for last winter's cake and work, $4.00 for freight and $5. gross, leaves a net of$42.56. S. S. Bundy's yearling steers bro't $27.50, net, early in the spring.

It will be remembered that one crop of steers raised by O. W. Cardwell netted $43.49 at 30 months of age. All these cattle are high class Herefords.

There is a difference of $7 to $21 per head on each two and a half year-old steer in favor of the Hereford over any other class. The two men last named above are preparing to ship their fat dry cows that will bring practically a hundred per cent calf crop in the spring. Would it not be good business to ship a string of your brindles browns, reds, even your cull Herefords with mottled faces, red feet, red necks, and sloping rumps, and then buy the tops of these fat, high class cows that are being sacrificed because of shortage of grass? Get your banker to study this ad and see what he says about lending you the difference in price.

And in years to come, can you, by using registered males and common cows, ever reach the high standard of the discriminating breeder who starts with top cows? But buy a crop of heifer calves from some such breeder and the breaks are even

This seems a bad time to ship cattle, but if you are changing from common to high class, there never was, nor will be, a better time than now; nor will you ever do a keener bit of financing.

Five pounds of cake per day to all cattle to be sold, for 30 to 60 days till heavy, fall runs are over, then ship to Fort Worth, San Antonio, or perhaps New Orleans, is the best marketing plan of one Watson Divide man.

HONOR MRS. CLAY SECREST

Mrs. Clay Secrest was very delightfully entertained with a Hallowe'en bridge party last Thursday afternoon by her sisters, Miss Dorothy Hodges and Mesdames H. O. Patterson L. H. Livingston.

The reception and living rooms were elaborately decorated in streamers of witches and black cats and pumpkin jack o' lanterns were placed in various places.

Mrs. Secrest was presented with tally table No. 1, couple No. 1, and proved to be a successful player thoughout the afternoon. At the close of the game she was given a dainty crepe de chine night gown, the honoree prize; Mrs. H. O. Denman having high score, received a lovely orange colored bud vase. Mrs. J. R. Martin being the lucky one in cuttng high card, was presented with a pretty lace dresser scarf. Table prizes which were decorated candles of orange and black, were awarded to Misses Emmarine Ray, Elizabeth Patterson and Mesdames O. D. Nance, C. T. Holekamp, and C. W. Atchison.

Delicious refreshments of chicken salad, saltines, pumpkin pie and orange and black mints in pretty orange mint baskets, were served to Mesdames C. T. Holekamp, C. W. Atchison, O. D. Nance, Frank Baker, Jim Moore, V. O. Westervelt, Irvin Jarvis, Weaver Baker, H. O. Denman, P. Joseph, W. P. Riley, Lee J. Corkill, Clay Secrest, A. J. Hamer, J. R. ENTERTAIN LAF-A-LOTS.

Miss Tyler Wilkinson entertained the Laf-a-Lot Club last Monday night at her home, with a beautiful autumn party. The tallies were decorated with autumn leaves and vases of beautiful flowers were placed thru'out the rooms.

Bridge was the feature of the evening, and at the beginning of the game, miniature baskets filled with salted nuts were placed for each guest. These were tied with red ribbon, which also carried out the autumn idea.

At the close of the evening, Miss Dorothy Mudge was awarded a pair of beautiful book-ends for high score, and Mrs. Lee J. Corkill received a cunning flower bowl for second high score. A little wooden dog, bearing the name of King Tut's Pup, was given Miss Mattie Wright for having the lowest score.

Delicious refreshments of chicken salad topped with salad dressing and olives, bread and butter sandwiches, saltines, cheese balls, and banana tarts garnished with whipped cream and cherries, nut cookies and hot tea were served to twenty guests.

RED CREEK "RALLY."

Rev. Kelly preached to a large crowd at Ivy school house Saturday night, and Sunday at 11 o'clock.

Several people met at the London school grounds last Saturday for the purpose of cleaning up the play grounds and erecting the play-ground slide. The appearance of the yard was greatly improved and the slide was almost completed.

Miss Lola Cummins, who is teaching school at Hext, spent Saturday and Sunday with her home folks.

Mrs. Josie Summers and children went to Bronte Saturday, where they will visit relatives for a few days.

Jessie Otte of the Little Saline community, and Miss Alexander of that place surprised their many friends by motoring to Eden on last Saturday and getting married.

Mr and Mrs. D. M. Stewart attended church services at Ivy school house Sunday morning.

The hunters were all "on the job" early the first day of November and the wild game is in great danger. Everyone who goes to the woods now had better try "safety first" plans.

J. M. Sherrill and family will leave this week for San Antonio where they will reside.

Raleigh Kothmann who is attending school at Abilene, is visiting home folks for a few days this week.

Guy Cummins made a trip to Hext last Saturday.

"Covered Wagon," at London, Texas, November 13, 14 and 15.

V. A. Cottle and family were in town Wednesday shopping. Mr. Cottle brought the election returns from Noxville. He expects to move back near Harper between now and the first of the year. He recently purchased a section of land in the west end of Gillespie County.

Great picture of American history, "Covered Wagon," London, Texas, Nov. 13, 14 and 15.

UNOFFICIAL GENERAL ELECTION RETURNS FOR KIMBLE COUNTY TUESDAY.

The tabulation below shows a vote of 922 cast Tuesday in this county. The two lower lines show the vote given the nominee for Governor, Mrs. Miriam A Ferguson, at the second primary, and the total vote by boxes at this time. From the above it is shown that about three-fourths of the vote registered in the second primary was case in this general election, while a little better than half that cast in the first primary. Segovia is the only box voting more in this general election than in the primary, while the Murr box was only two less. London is the box giving Mrs. Ferguson more votes in the general election than in the primary.

--Idle Dollars--

Are dollars gathered but not working; they are dollars which are removed from circulation by being withheld from deposit in the bank.

The only logical way that money can be kept at work; that the welfare of the community may be preserved, and that financial air may be extended to farmers and other business, is through the bank.

Good business and good citizenship demand that idle dollars be deposited in the banks.
