Scores Forced From Homes As Creek's Backwaters Overflow Lowlands Of City

FLOOD WATERS RECEDE FROM RECORD HEIGHT

Holliday Creek Covers Wide Area as Stream Backs Up From River

RAIN AT LAKE KEMP

Rail and Highway Traffic Halted by Damage To Bridges

FLOODS AT A GLANCE
Weather: Slow rain falling at midnight; showers forecast.
Lakes: Wichita, Kemp, and Diversion falling.
River: Dropping at midnight.
Holliday creek: Floods receding except for backwater at mouth.

At midnight Monday the flood waters of Lake Wichita and Holliday creek were concentrated in a rising tide of backwater sweeping over scores of homes in the southeastern edge of town the creek and river junction, cutting off the Henrietta highway. Elsewhere the waters were receding, except where the swift current of the swollen river ate its way into the bank at Seventh and Flood streets, inundating fresh areas.

1930 WEATHER RECORDS
In the 10th month of its span, the year 1930 Monday night had already cracked three records in weather superlatives and was a close second in a fourth, according to records compiled by Wallace C. Taylor, data clerk of the Texas Electric Service company bureau.

Through the courtesy of James W. Lyle, district engineer for the company, it was learned that the record-breaking coldest day of the year came on Jan. 18 when the mercury dropped 3 points below zero, four points lower than the record for Dec. 19, 1924.

October has already brought 8.64 inches of rain against a fall of 7.33 in May, 1929. From June 14 of this year until Oct. 4, only 3.39 inches of rain fell in 14 separate sprinkles. In 1927, the next longest drouth period, only 1.85 inches fell between Oct. 8 and Dec. 27.

July 19 of this year established record heat of 109 degrees, exceeded by two points on June 16, 1924 and July 19, 1925.

Scores were forced from their homes along the Henrietta and Petrolia roads during the afternoon and evening as the waters there continued to rise after the flood had swept past and receded from the upper sections of the city.

As the surging brown water crept toward the windows of perhaps a hundred small homes occupied by both white and negro families, relief crews from the fire and police department, city and county officials and volunteer workers, aided in the exodus. Boats, ladders and trucks were employed. At no time were the residents of the homes in danger of drowning, according to Police Chief Burns, but as night fell and a slow rain added to the discomforts, the situation had serious possibilities.

Meanwhile the waters of Lake Wichita were dropping slowly and the crest of the flood was believed past in the upper sections of the city, leaving hundreds of acres under water, two main highways cut off, the Red river bridge at Byers washed out, and scores of families ousted from their homes in the flooded areas. Some fear was felt for the Petrolia bridge across the river, burdened by the swift current of the overflow.

Lake Wichita was falling Monday night, the river was at a standstill, and the creek overflow was on a decline except where the converging waters swept toward the Wichita. Fear of a new rise was felt however with reports of an additional inch and a half rain over Lake Kemp.

At its height Monday, overflow from Lake Wichita measured more than three feet at the spillway, the flood waters overflowing Holliday creek up to the gateway to the country club, throughout Weeks park, and backing up almost to the edge of Hamilton boulevard in the Country Club Estates. Dozens of families on Holliday street and to the south and east were forced to leave their homes, as the rising

WAURIKAN SHOT IN ARGUMENT

Bricklayer Held After Carpenter Is Wounded

Special to The Record News.

WAURIKA, Okla., Oct. 13.—Fred Hobson, middle-aged bricklayer, was in jail here tonight in connection with the shooting of Frank Reynolds, carpenter, on a downtown street that followed an argument between the two men several hours before.

The shooting occurred in front of the D. & A. cafe here at 9 o'clock tonight. Three shots were fired, only one taking effect. Reynolds sustained a flesh wound in the shoulder and it was not regarded as serious. After treatment at a hospital he reappeared on the streets.

Jim Foster, high school boy, was slightly injured by a flying bullet, the missle barely creasing the skin of his leg.

No charges had been filed late tonight. Police could not explain the shooting. The two men, police said, engaged in an argument about 5 o'clock this afternoon. When they met again tonight in the crowded street, the shooting occurred.

Lack of Wind Halts Race of Fishing Ships

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Oct. 13. (AP)—Lack of wind again today halted the second race between Blue Nose, champion of the Canadian fishing fleet, and Gertrude L. Thebaud, pride of the Gloucester fleet, for the blue ribbon of the Atlantic.

When the wind died out the schooners had covered only eight miles of the scheduled 37½ miles course. They were then on almost even terms. Blue Nose having made up a long lead Thebaud had taken at the start.

ROBSION'S PAL AIDS STATE

SLAYING OF ELMER CARTER IS RECOUNTED

Defense Opens Attempt To Impeach Testimony Of Ernest Jackson

BATTLE ON HIGHWAY

Officer Blinded by Shots Fired in Encounter Takes Stand

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., Oct. 13.—Attorneys defending George H. Robsion, admitted bootlegger charged with the murder of Deputy Sheriff Elmer Carter, in a night session Monday started hammering away in an attempt to impeach the testimony of Ernest Jackson, indicted with Robsion, who Monday afternoon turned state's evidence and became the star witness for the prosecution.

Robsion's brother, Vernon, is a third defendant. Testimony Monday described them all as whisky dealers, engaged in transporting a still at the time Carter was killed, Joe Whitt, Altus policeman, blinded by a shot, and George Robsion injured. The gun battle occurred four and one-half miles from Altus when Carter and Whit attempted to halt the truck bearing the three men and the still.

Jackson Impeached

Defense witnesses during the night session were questioned in an attempt to show that officers fired the first shots and that Jackson, who admitted he fled to a ditch, could not have seen what transpired. The effort at impeachment followed Jackson's assertion that George Robsion fired the first shot.

Defending attorneys also sought to show that Jackson had testified against his former partners in an attempt to obtain immunity for himself.

George Robsion took the stand in his own behalf during the evening. The defendant said he entered the whisky business in an effort to make money to take care of his sick wife. He declared that Jackson had been a leader in their whisky-making plans.

"When the officers came, I was riding on the running board of the car and Jackson, who was driving, pushed me off the car so he could get out himself," Robsion testified. "My gun fell out at the same time. I did not take it out and I did not fire until the officers started shooting."

Jackson, who lives at Vernon, Texas, testified that his business was "selling liquor" and that he obtained his supplies from the Robsion brothers. Both he and Vernon Robsion were in debt to George and the trio had planned a whisky-making venture in which George was to take all the profits until the scores were evened, Jackson asserted.

Supplies Bought Here

"We bought 11 dozen fruit jars, foods, and other supplies in Wichita Falls a few days before the shooting," the witness said. Those we kept in George Robsion's home, where we also dug up the 20-gallon still. Vernon and I were driving the truck, George and his wife took a coupe and drove into Altus for more gasoline. They overtook us later and George rode on the run-

County Refuses Plea For Road Patrol; Haynes Raps Petitioners For Request

Members of the Wichita county commissioners court declined Monday to reconsider an order passed several weeks ago providing that the services of Jesse Leverett and C. L. Bradford, highway officers will be discontinued on Oct. 15.

Representing the Wichita Falls Safety council, which has waged an active campaign during the past three weeks for the retention of the two highway officers, James Lyle appeared before the commissioners Monday and presented a petition bearing the names of about 50 firms and individual citizens of this city, Burkburnett, Iowa Park and Electra, asking that the patrol be maintained in the future. A resolution passed by the local Kiwanis club in favor of retaining the two officers also was presented.

Public Need

Mr. Lyle stated that an exhaustive canvas of public opinion in all parts of the county had convinced members of the Safety council that at least 90 per cent of the voters of the county would vote for the retention of the present officers. He declared that there has been an admitted reduction of accidents since the patrol was established.

The petition read as follows:

"The undersigned respectfully urge that the commissioners court retain two patrolmen who are now patrolling the county highways and with whose services it is proposed to dispense.

"It is believed that the safety of the lives and property of those using the highways requires that the highways be patrolled, and it is respectfully urged that the saving in these respects to the public is very greatly in excess of the cost of such services."

Following Mr. Lyle's presentation of the petition and resolution, and his repeated expression of the Safety council's belief that the matter should be reconsidered, only Commissioner L. L. Kuntz of Iowa Park made any comment.

"There are always a lot of committees coming up here before this court," he declared, "for the purpose of telling us how to spend the money we have to spend. What I should like to see sometime is a committee that could show us how to save money, how to reduce our expenses, rather than create new jobs. Always it's a request that more money be set aside for new jobs for somebody. The people of the county cry aloud every year about the high tax rate, but they never come here to tell us how to reduce expenditures. We cut the road and bridge fund seven cents this year to avoid increasing the county tax rate.

Spending $250,000 Year

The highway patrol as it is operated at present would cost the county between $4,000 and $5,000 a year. A state law provides that county may take from its share of automobile registration receipts a sum not exceeding 5 per cent of the whole for the enforcement of traffic laws. In Wichita county this would provide more than $8,000 for the patrol. Expenditures on county highways this year, not including state-maintained roads, will approximate $250,000.

Commissioner H. H. Haynes presented to the court a petition signed by J. M. Towles and 64 other voters

PROTEST MADE ON TEXTBOOKS

Geographies Call West Texas 'Desert'

AUSTIN, Oct. 13. (AP)—Joining hands with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, all state sectional chambers of commerce appeared before the state board of education today with a protest against alleged misrepresentation of Texas in public school geographies.

The protest was heard favorably by the board and tonight members of the intersectional group were to confer on a revision of those parts of the texts wherein, it was charged Texas was not fairly pictured.

While the committee will ask that revisions be made as soon as possible, the law provides a year's notice to textbook companies before revisions can be required.

Supporting the charges originally brought by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce were Guy Blount and Hubert Harrison of the East Texas chamber and Ray Leeman of the South Texas chamber. They joined the committee from West Texas, consisting of D. A. Bandeen, Max Bentley, and C. E. Coombes, at a meeting of the "all state council" shortly before the board of education meeting.

The board of education not only approved the protests of the joint committee but one member went further and said makers of geography texts used in other states should be consulted so Texas might be accurately pictured to students elsewhere.

The complaint made to the board found the geography text used in the third grade acceptable but found many alleged inaccuracies in the two texts used in higher grades. In these texts, the committee charged, not only were there statements which by implication were inaccurate, but by omission Texas

RAILWAY SEEKS TO HOLD TRADE BY FARE CUT

Texas and Pacific Launches Battle to Slice Rates For Passengers

BUS LINES OPPOSED

Officials Claim Declining Revenue May Force Discontinuance

AUSTIN, Oct. 13. (AP)—Seeking to recoup after years of declining passenger revenue, the Texas and Pacific railroad presented evidence to the state railroad commission today to justify a proposed drastic cut in passenger fares on one of its principal West Texas lines.

Unless the cut to two cents a mile, one and six-tenths cents under the present fare, is allowed by the railroad commission, the railroad may find it necessary to discontinue three trains over this line, from Fort Worth to Big Spring, the commission was told by several witnesses.

Bus Men Oppose

Vigorously opposing the application was a battery of bus attorneys, whose spokesman was Sylvan Lang of the Greyhound lines. Lang claimed the busses were operating at a loss and that to cut the railroad fares below the bus fares would be in violation of both state and federal laws as a discrimination between passengers, territory and carriers.

Frank Jensen and L. B. Sandloski, general passenger agent and assistant of the Texas and Pacific, declared the railroad hoped to increase its passengers by decreasing private automobile operation between the cities, rather than to take passengers from bus lines. In refutation of this testimony, the bus attorneys placed on the stand Gordon Lloyd, an auditor for the state highway department, who said gas tax statistics indicated a decline in the use of private automobiles.

Gas Tax Declines

Lloyd testified that despite an increase in the number of commercial and private vehicles, there was a decrease in the number of gallons of gasoline on which a tax was paid in the fiscal year ending Aug. 30, indicating to him that private car owners were not driving so much. This was taken by the bus attorneys to mean that if the T. & P.

COTTON PARLEY MAPS PROGRAM

Trade Leaders Seek to Restore Confidence

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 13. (AP)—Resolutions to restore confidence in the cotton market in the present low market price were adopted here tonight in a meeting of cotton trade leaders called by American Cotton Shippers association after E. F. Creekmore, general manager of the American Cotton Cooperative association, had announced that the cooperative organization intends to use the cotton futures markets for hedging purposes for the protection of the price and basis of its cotton.

The platform adopted asked the spinners to anticipate their future requirements for this year and next, the bankers to lend money to the producers contingent upon a substantial reduction in acreage, and advised the farmer to harvest his crop, hold for better prices and reduce his acreage.

Acting on the observation of D. E. McCuen, of Greenville, S. C., president of the American Cotton Shippers association, and chairman of the meeting, the delegates decided at this time to withhold discussion of any amendments to the

OIL CARRIERS MUST ANSWER MANY PLAINTS

Railroad Commission Calls For Complete Inquiry Into Charges

CO-OPERATION FAILS

New Proration Rule Fails Because of Purchasers, Accusers Say

Special to The Record News

AUSTIN, Oct. 14.—All Texas pipe line operators have been summoned to appear before the railroad commission Oct. 22 and answer "numerous complaints" of non-compliance with recent orders under the common purchaser law and alleged lack of wholehearted cooperation with the administrative agencies of this law.

Notice of the hearing summoned all common carriers of oil for the purpose of showing cause, if any, for the complaints.

It said numerous complaints have been lodged with the commission that the pipe line companies have failed to make regular connections to new wells; that common purchasers of oil have not given their wholehearted cooperation to the agencies created by the commission; that nominations of the amount of oil to be taken have not been made to the central committee definitely and according to allotments; that pipe line connections have not been released or made to avoid discrimination; and "that little if any effort has been made to exchange oil tendered for market, to bring production in balance with the rules adopted by the commission, and to avoid discrimination."

The hearing was ordered today as an extension of a hearing previously scheduled for the North Texas Oil and Gas association, which had charged irregularities in the Wichita Falls section.

Compliance by pipe line companies with the proration order was considered a premise to successful operation of the curtailment program, inasmuch as oil must be taken ratably from all wells, and in most cases the pipe lines furnish the only outlet.

Miss Woodfill called Doctor Chapman. At the point of a pistol, he ordered Grinder, who recently had been employed at Cook county hospital, Chicago, to leave the room. Grinder refused. He grasped Doctor Chapman's wrists and the gun was discharged, inflicting a wound in his abdomen.

Waco Man Fatally Wounded In Shooting at Hotel Elevator Door

WACO, Oct. 13. (AP)—J. M. Pruitt, shot this morning while he stood at the clerk's desk in Hotel Raleigh, died tonight in the hospital where he was taken immediately after the shooting. H. S. Cunningham, Dallas garage man who surrendered to officers was released on $5,000 bond shortly before Pruitt died.

Immediately after the shooting Cunningham made a detailed statement to the district attorney.

Vivian, 11-year-old daughter of the Cunninghams, witnessed the shooting.

Cunningham left his home in Dallas this morning with his daughter, whom he said he had intended to take to the home of her grandmother, Mrs. A. J. Guthrie of Rockdale.

When they arrived in Waco they drove to the Raleigh hotel. Cunningham walked into the lobby as Mrs. Cunningham and Pruitt were leaving an elevator.

Cunningham left the hotel lobby and walked to his car parked in front of the hotel where he obtained a pistol. As he walked back into the lobby and made his way toward the clerk's desk near where Mrs. Cunningham and Pruitt were standing, the girl followed him.

Three shots were fired. Pruitt fell to the floor. Mrs. Cunningham according to Willie Sams, negro porter, fell across Pruitt's body as if to protect him. Cunningham, surrendered his pistol to a policeman.

Development of Texas Industries First Need of State, Says Talbot

Urging throughout his entire address that the development of Texas industries is the paramount need of this state, and that such development can result only from consistent patronage of local manufactories by residents of Texas, Col. W. E. Talbot of Dallas, Republican nominee for governor, spoke before about 200 persons at the Memorial auditorium, and to a radio audience through station KGKO.

"One of the greatest services that any group of citizens could render to this state would be to make her people conscious of the potential greatness of Texas," declared the speaker, in closing. "If I could, in this campaign, awake the citizens of our state to the posibilities of power which are within their hands, so that Texas should come into her rightful place commercially, I should be the happiest man in this country even though I were at the same time the worst-licked candidate for governor the state has ever seen."

Expressing his conviction that political campaigns in Texas have been too largely "smoke screens behind which all issues and near-issues could be completely hidden," Mr. Talbot said that his campaign for election as governor would be one of constructive policies without any reference whatever to personalities.

Legislation can not relieve the farmer of his present burden, the speaker said, and can not therefore lift the state of Texas above waters crept under doors. Water over the lake road measured four feet at its deepest point, prohibiting all traffic.

FLOOD WATERS RECEDE HERE

Overflow Hits Record Crest Monday

The converging waters gathered force to cut off the Henrietta highway, where the bridge over the creek was covered. Here scores of families, both white and negro, abandoned flooded homes.

Park Flooded

To the north, Wichita river continued its rise, climbing 13 inches during the day. Scotland park was flooded by back wash although the river did not leave its banks at that spot. Water climbed to the very back door of the zoo where attendants were prepared to move the animals at any new increase.

Beyond the Burnett street bridge the river spread beyond its banks, inundating the section for a distance of around 100 yards. A part of the Bungalow Tourist park was under water, although the management announced that it had available 40 cottages, high and dry.

COUNCIL TO RESCUE

Members of the city council adjourned rather abruptly Monday night to assist in rescuing flood victims in the northeast portion of the city.

During the session, an ordinance fixing the tax rate at $1.40 for each $100 of assessed valuation was passed on the third and final reading. The council also went on record that hereafter no special franchise taxes on street carnivals or like shows will be remitted under any circumstances.

D. M. Puckett, division engineer for the state highway department, announced that Archer City was completely cut off, both the main highway and the Mankins detour being impassable. Traffic to Henrietta was possible only by way of a detour around the Denver tank and rising waters were menacing that road late Monday night. High water blocked traffic between Henrietta and Ringgold, Mr. Puckett said, and the roads between Seymour and Olney and between Henrietta and Gainesville were practically impassable.

The engineer reported that the Seymour road was in good condition, as was the highway to Throckmorton. Young county paved roads were uninjured, he was informed, and the Vernon-Crowell highway passable. Traffic was resumed Monday on the Electra-Vernon highway where flood waters Sunday made the road impassable.

Rail Service Suspended

Service over the Wichita Valley to Waurika, Okla., was suspended Monday when a section of the Red river bridge at Byers went out. Several days will be required for repairs, it was announced.

Red river measured a mile from bank to bank late Monday, but the water was at a standstill in the late evening.

At Lake Kemp, John Crawford, deputy warden, reported a one-foot rise since the beginning of the rain. The water stood Monday night at 68 feet, still six feet below the record since the building of the dam and 14 feet below the spillway.

Diversion Lake Drops

The water was falling at Diversion dam, dropping to a 9-foot depth over the spillway after reaching an apex of 1.1 feet during the day.

Lake Wichita dropped three inches after 11 o'clock Monday, according to G. M. Norris, maintenance superintendent. At 8:30 the water was rushing over the spillway at a depth of slightly under three feet. Crews were at work all day and night filling in the dam where high waters were causing the dirt to wash. No alarm for the safety of the dam was felt but the workmen were unremitting it repairing damage as it was incurred.

Clouded skies and scattered showers prevaded throughout the flooded area of Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma throughout the day Monday. A .3 inch rain fell at Electra where the city lake has already overflowed. Buffalo creek at Iowa Park was out of its bank, spreading over an area of three quarters of a mile. Three houses on the C. Birk farm were surrounded by water. The roads to K. M. A. were reported impassable.

Rain fell Monday at Quanah and Vernon, Crowell, Wellington, Altus, Okla., and Floydada. Memphis and Dalhart reported additional showers.

Bus lines operated on regular schedules Monday on all roads except to Oklahoma City. Operators met the problem to Archer City by transferring passengers along a wooden bridge where the detour on the main highway is washed out.

Waters pouring over the spillway at Lake Wichita Monday flooded a larger area and to a greater depth than the spring overflow, rising within a few inches of the railing about the creek bridge across the Weeks park lake road. Ominous bubbles up through several feet of water along the road gave rise to the fear that the swift current might be undermining the pavement.

Golf Courses Flooded

Daredevil drivers Monday afternoon sought to ford the water along sections of the road, only to find their motors drowned at midstream. Stalled cars dotted the road and a disconsolate Ford coupe was abandoned on the edge of Lake Wichita, with water lapping at its running boards.

The clubhouses of the two golf courses peered at each other Monday over a lake of water, between two and three feet deep, flooding the whole region. The overflow backed up as far as the 3100 block on Holliday, absorbing Haven park and flooding dozens of houses to the southeast.

A part of the grounds of the J. J. Perkons home at the edge of Country Club Estates was inundated for a time and as the water receded, spectators stared at the strange vision of a gardener with a hose, spraying mud from the shrubs in a besodden landscape.

Sewer Line Caves

County employes Monday afternoon were engaged in clearing drift wood from under the river bridge on the Burkburnett road, keeping the swift current moving onward. City street crews meanwhile were concentrating their attention on a 90-foot cave-in of a sewer line at Twelfth and Scott where Sunday two victims were immersed. The cave-in was around seven feet deep and the efforts of the entire crew were required to halt the crumbling.

Dairy herds and poultry flocks on the outskirts of the town were sources of anxiety as the water crept into their quarters. A dairyman on the Burkburnett road was forced to swim 50 milk cows across the creek to get them into the barn. A stranded herd of cattle mooed plaintively through the afternoon on the edge of the overflow waters on Holliday street, disconsolate to see their grazing lands suddenly transferred into a small lake.

CITY AND COUNTY ASKED TO PREVENT FLOODS

Construction of one new bridge across Holliday creek near the Country Club Estates, and of a drainage canal across the Country Club Estates park and the Country club golf course was recommended to the county commissioners court and to the city council by Fred Weeks as a means of preventing a recurrence of flood conditions in that area in the future.

Mr. Weeks' suggestion called for a new bridge about 75 yards west of the Holliday creek bridge on the pavement between the Country club and the Country Club Estates, which would serve, he said, to relieve much of the pressure exerted on the present structure following heavy rains.

The proposed drainage canal would lead across the Country Club Estates park and the Country club golf course to empty into Holliday creek near Holliday street. Dredging and straightening of Holliday creek from that point to its junction with the Wichita river was also recommended by Mr. Weeks.

BRADY RIVER ON RAMPAGE AGAIN

DALLAS, Oct. 13. (AP)—Fed by heavy rains which poured off already water-soaked lands, Texas streams went on another rampage today spreading their waters beyond their banks for the second time in a week.

Brady, a town of 5,000 population in McCulloch county, again bore the brunt of the discomfort and damage of the flood waters when the Brady river again overflowed, flooding 15 business houses and coming within two or three feet of last Monday's high water mark, when $350,000 damage to stocks of goods in 60 business house was done and 200 persons were made homeless.

After rising within two feet of the courthouse plaza, which was submerged last Monday, the waters began to recede, but not until scores of persons had been forced to flee from their homes near the river—homes they had so recently cleaned—and again they had to pull out furnishings and personal belongings and carry them to higher ground. Another rise was expected tonight after another big rise at the stream's head.

The South Concho river at Christoval, in Tom Green county, left its banks and four feet of water stood in the Santa Fe railway station. It was the biggest rise recorded there since 1908. Four hundred head of sheep were drowned, trapped in the shipping pens.

The Canadian river in the Panhandle swept away two railroad trestles, one each for the Fort Worth and Denver and the Rock Island, tying up railroad traffic north and northwest of Amarillo.

Berlin's Elite Shopping District Set in Turmoil by Fascist Rioters

Leipzigerplatz, One of World's Finest Department Stores, Stoned During Demonstration

BERLIN, Oct. 13. (AP)—Rioting by left and right wing enemies of the republic kept the central part of Berlin in a turmoil for several hours this afternon and overshadowed the opening of the new reichstag.

The disturbances started near Unter den Linden, within a stone's throw of the parliament building, at the edge of the tiergarten. Here the Communists gave the mounted and foot police a bad time when the hundreds of guards stationed before the Reichstag building attempted to sweep a vast throng away from its entrances.

In mid-town, along the Liepziger Strasse, Berlin's elite shopping district, several hundred Fascists took advantage of the disorders at the reichstag and burst forth into a demonstration of which the chief nature was the smashing of numerous windows in expensive shops owned mostly by Jews and the firing of pistols into the air.

Few Injuries

Only a few injuries were reported in spite of the heavy gunfire and the virtual reign of terror that existed for some in that part of the city.

Early this evening police authorities announced that order had been completely restored in all sections of the city and described the events of the day as a "mere flareup" which would not be allowed to go further. An official communique said 53 persons had been arrested.

The activities of the police obviously were handicapped by the need of concentrating a strong force around the reichstag. It was while almost the entire police force was quelling the Tiergarten riots that the Fascists broke loose in the shopping district. Trouble had been anticipated in view of the open hostility toward the government expressed during court testimony by Adolf Hitler, leader of the Fascist party, recently at Liepsic, and the opposition of the Communists to the Republican fiscal program.

Big Store Stoned

Among the establishments stoned was Wertheims, of Liepzirplatz, one of the the finest department stores in the world. Thirty-six large plate glass windows were smashed there, a sight which attracted thousands of persons after order had been restored. The fact that stones were picked up amid the finery in these displays and others, the police said, proved that the outburst had been planned. Since there was no place within a large radius where the stones might have been found, the police said they must have been brought there in anticipation of some form of violence.

Tonight police lorries patroled the shopping districts ready to put down any renewal of the anti-Jewish demonstrations. This afternoon however, so empty had been the locality that no arrest was made.

Thus the new reichstag, which emerged from the sensational elections of Sept. 14, made its bow to the world today while the shouts of riotous demonstration were raised outside the chamber and the session within was enlivened by taunts and catcalls of the costumed Fascist delegates and their enemies of the extreme left.

Germany's solons presented anything but a dignified picture. The Hitlerites whistled shrilly to drown out their opponents' voices and the Communists greeted the roll call of names like that of Chancellor Bruening with shouts of "the hunger dictator" and similar cries.

Neither of these radical wings showed the usual respect given in the German parliament for the custom by which age is elevated to high place, this time with the placing in the chair of Carl Herold, as president protempore. Herr Herold is an 82-year-old centrist, who made himself heard only with the greatest difficulty.

Shouts of "hail Hitler" from National Socialists and "hail red front" from the disciples of Moscow enlivened the scene frequently and furnished amusement to crowded galleries, in one of which sat the former Prince August Wilhelm Hohenzollern, smilingly puffing at a menthol-cooled cigarette.

COUNTY DENIES ROAD PATROL

Haynes Raps Petitioners For Requests

near Electra asking that a road leading from state highway No. 5 to the Sunshine Hill road across the eastern extremeties of the city of Electra be graveled. The petition also asks that seven blocks of Harrison street, leading from the cross-road in question toward the business section of Electra, be given a gravel surface. The proposed improvements would provide an all-weather short route for residents northeast of the city to the schools, churches, and business houses of Electra. The petition was referred to the county engineer's department.

Labor contracts for the construction of about three miles of concrete roadway on the Charlie road were awarded to Combs & Glade, who received last week a contract for building approximately two miles of highway. The five miles of hard-surface will extend northeastward from the end of the present paving on the Charlie road, it was said. The contractor's bond of $18,000 covering the first contract was approved.

Burk Justice Resigns

The resignation of H. I. Johnson as justice of the peace in precinct No. 2, Burkburnett, was accepted, and W. T. Vance of Burkburnett was appointed to succeed Mr. Johnson. Reports of Mr. Johnson for April, May and June; and of W. H. Coffman, justice of the peace in precinct 4; O. L. Gibbs, and R. V. Gwinn, precinct 1, were received by the commissioners and referred to the county auditor.

Permits were granted to Barnes & Beddow, 1305 Eighth street, and E. O. Reynolds, 1110 Eleventh street, to conduct headlight testing stations.

The court passed an order instructing the county auditor to withhold payment to P. A. Collier and H. A. Meyers on a road contract pending satisfaction of the claims of J. A. Foster. Mr. Foster presented a petition, through his attorney, R. S. Ragsdale, setting out that compensation for serious injuries suffered by Mr. Foster while working on the contract in question has not yet been provided.

Railroad Seeks To Slice Fares

should increase its passenger revenues it would be done at the expense of the busses. Lloyd scouted the theory that modern automobiles used less gasoline, declaring he believed they used more.

Sandloski testified the reduction would be equivalent to placing "second class" on the three trains between Fort Worth and Big Spring. All trains on which reduced tariffs were sought are carrying chair cars. He said chambers of commerce in practically all towns along the railroad had approved the change.

Final "Experiment"

Sandloski said he did not believe a rate of two and one half cents a mile, slightly under the 2.8 cent rate of busses, would accomplish the purpose. "The railroads are groping in the dark," he said. "This is an experiment and we want to know, once and for all, whether lower rates will bring us back the passenger traffic and justify continued operation of the trains. If two cents won't do it, we're up against it."

Asked whether he would agree to making the rates start at Dallas, rather than Fort Worth, he said the Dallas Chamber of Commerce had had the situation explained to it, and had agreed not to protest the application. He said he did not believe it would impel many persons to go to Fort Worth, rather than El Paso, approximately the same distance, to do their shopping.

Earlier in the day, Jensen had testified the trains were operated at a loss and that the cut was the only method officials of the system could devise to possibly win back people to railroad travel.

To "Point-Up" Appetite Just Stimulate Bowels

Whenever the end of the day finds you out-of-sorts; food doesn't tempt you and won't digest; breath is bad; tongue coated, just chew a candy tablet before bedtime. Tomorrow you'll be a new person!

A candy Cascaret clears up a bilious, sassy, headachy condition every time. Puts appetite on edge. Helps digestion. Activates bowels.

Cascarets are made from cascara, which authorities say actually strengthens bowel muscles. So, take these delightful tablets as often as you please; or give them freely to children. All drug stores sell Cascarets for a dime, and no dollar prescription could do better work. —Adv.

Trade Leaders Seek to Restore Confidence

federal farm act that it might have more mature consideration.

Addressing the assemblage and asking them to have confidence in the administrations of the federal farm board, the department of the agriculture dealing with the problems confronting the farmer, business and industry were Chairman Alexander H. Legge, of the farm board; Carl Williams, cotton member of the board, Secretary of Commerce Lamont and Mr. Creekmore.

Prolonged and sometimes heated discussion featured the executive session of several hours in which criticisms were hurled at the American Cotton Cooperative association, the challenge accepted, apologies made and the remarks expunged from the record.

The program adopted follows:

"Cotton at the present level is below the cost of production.

"This being the case, it is a safe commodity for investment.

"The textile industry is, and has been for some months, in a very unhealthy condition."

Cason J. Calloway, La Grange, Ga., and B. E. Geer, president of the American Textile Manufacturers association were appointed to interpolate a note of optimism here.

"Spinners may now well be urged to anticipate their future requirements not only for the present season but for at least a portion of the season 1931-32. And even periods beyond, in view of the acreage reduction that must follow the severe decline in prices that has taken place.

"There is an abundance of money available through the banking institutions for liberal advances on cotton at the present price, and the banks of the South are urged to so inform the cotton producers, merchants and spinners.

"The above being the case, the farmer would be counselled:

"To go ahead with the harvesting of his crop before the elements damage the quality:

"But to sell as little as possible at the present level, to store the remainder in a dry place and hold for better prices,

"Also to make a very substantial reduction in cotton acreage for next year.

"Also that banks be urged in making advances to producers on this crop and for producing the next crop to do so contingent upon the borrower making a substantial reduction in acreage."

Texans Protest 'Bad Publicity'

had been badly treated. One of the texts mentions Texas only 12 times and those in as many sentences; names a part but not all of the port cities; compares the region from New Orleans to El Paso to the plains sections of the north central states; asks what the small number of "large cities" indicates as to farming and manufacturing; gives only the coastal section of Texas credit for producing oil and mentions oil production only incidentally. The citrus fruit industry is overlooked, and the wheat production and accompanying mills and marketing structure are dismissed in a paragraph. No mention is made of the fact that Texas practically supplies the world with sulphur, according to the complaint.

The other geography places Brownsville in the Great Plains region, the Big Bend country in the "arid intermountain plateau" characterizes the land west of the 100th Meridian as "not dry enough to be a desert" and says a crop can be made in this vicinity after two years of rain.

The text devoted a paragraph to the fact that northern people often visit the South in the winter, yet never mentions Texas except indirectly as included on the "gulf coast." One question found was "Why are there so few large cities in Western Texas and Oklahoma?" Another statement was "the Rio Grande . . . whole course lies through arid country." Speaking of agriculture, one text said "this great industry is carried on chiefly east of the 100th meridian" this meridian runs through Abilene and Ballinger. Another stated that before the Elephant Butte reservoir above El Paso was established, "the plains around El Paso . . . was only a desert."

Commenting, the committee said people from Midland and El Paso might be surprised to know that "icy winds from the frozen North blow over them" in the winter.

In one geography, in a Texas supplement, was found that statement regarding the Texas Plains section:

"On the surface are a few salt lakes, dry most of the year, which serve the cattle ranches."

JURY TOLD OF CARTER DEATH

Accused Man Turns State Evidence

ning board of the truck which I was driving about 4½ miles outside of Altus.

"We noticed a car following and knew we were caught. Vernon and I wanted to give up, but George refused. He said he had lost all he was going to lose from officers. The men in the following car called to us to halt. I pushed George from the truck in order to get out myself. Then I ran to a ditch and hid to get away from the shots. The first shot I heard came from George's direction.

"Joe Whitt was behind the roadster. He fired after George shot. I saw Carter crawl over the fense and heard him yell: 'Murder! Help!' "

Sticks to Story

Jackson stuck to his story under a gruelling cross-examination by Defense Attorney P. Mounts, maintaining that he had been promised nothing for turning state's evidence.

The state opened its case with the testimony of Frank Barbee, Frederick undersheriff, who told of seeing the truck and of warning officers at Altus and Tipton to try to halt it. He said he talked to Carter by long distance, describing the truck and the coupe.

F. S. Tims, undertaker, described Carter's wounds. The shirt and vest worn by the slain man, bloody and shot-torn, were exhibited to the jury. Mrs. Carter, who attended the trial, wept when the garments were displayed.

Luther Bush, Altus deputy sheriff, told of going with Sheriff Sam Banks and Policeman John Harrison to the scene of the shooting. In the yard of the C. L. Clark farmhouse they found the body of Carter, the witness testified. Joe Whitt, unconscious, they discovered in a ditch by the roadside, he declared.

Gun Not Used

On cross-examination, he maintained that he was able to swear that Carter's gun had not been discharged although there were only four shells in the six-shooter. John Harrison corroborated Bush's testimony.

Joe Whitt, led in by officers and fumbling blindly for the witness chair, was the closing witness. He said Carter called by the police station for him after the tip from Frederick.

"George Robison opened fire when the two cars stopped," Whitt declared. He had fired several shots when I shot at him. I don't know which shot struck Carter."

On cross-examination the officer admitted that he had no search warrant and that he knew of none in the possession of Carter.

The Altus courhouse was crowded during both the day and night session Monday, spectators sitting through the hours of recess to hold their places. Jurors selected were L. D. Riddle, R. L. Burnett, Ray Timberlin, L. F. Gurry, J. H. Leonard, H. Hughes, F. A. Davis, T. White, J. E. Alexander and S. Schurer, all farmers; Roy Hopkins, garageman, and D. H. McCormick, Altus business man.

J. M. Sowell, Wichita Cotton Buyer, Dies

J. M. Sowell, 51, Wichita Falls cotton buyer, died at his home, 1812 Lucile street, shortly after 11 o'clock Monday night. Funeral services will be held from the Dalton-Powell Funeral home at 2 p. m. Tuesday and the body then will be forwarded to Durant, Okla., for burial.

Mr. Sowell had been in the cotton business here for the last eight years. He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. Ray Roberts who lives in Oklahoma.

It would take a train 225 miles long to haul the concrete to be used in construction of Hoover dam.

Electra Woman Returns Purse to Owner In Wichita

Diogenes quest was wasted.

The honest person lived in Electra all the time. Last week Mrs. Stanley Raub lost her bill fold containing a $5 bill. It was found by a woman from Electra on the same day it was lost, Friday, Oct. 10, just in front of the Lerner store. Beneath the bill book was a check made by Mrs. Raub to the Woman's Choral club and the signature gave the finder a cue to the owner of the bill book. She tried to get in touch with Mrs. Raub and failed.

Monday she was in Wichita Falls again and called Mr. Raub, telling him she had the lost articles and would gladly give them to him if he would meet her at the Holt hotel. She would receive no reward.

BOULDER DAM SUIT APPROVED

Arizona Granted Right To Seek Injunction

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. (US)—The supreme court today authorized Arizona to file suit to enjoin construction of Boulder dam. At the same time Comptroller General McCarl refused Arizona's request to hold up funds for beginning work on the great project.

The supreme court order gave Arizona the right to test the constitutionality of the Swing Johnson bill, by which congress authorized the project, and to test the validity of the six-state Colorado river compact.

The suit process by Arizona was made returnable to the court on Jan. 5, 1931.

Arizona is expected to file a complaint against Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, under whose supervision the dam is being constructed and against the six states which signed the Colorado river compact.

The state may also ask for a special master to take testimony.

In turning down Arizona's petition to hold up work on the project McCarl said there seemed to be nothing to justify such a procedure on his part. When informed of McCarl's decision, Secretary of the Interior Wilbur said:

"Construction of the 582-foot dam at black canyon will proceed with all possible expedition."

REVIVAL RESUMED

Services at the Ray Community Presbyterian revival were resumed Monday evening with Rev. Harry S. Allen, evangelist of Dallas, in charge. The meeting was closed during the rainy weather. Rev. Mr. Allen received 10 additions to the church at the Sunday morning service.

G. O. P. NOMINEE SPEAKS HERE

10 Dry Agents Can't Catch 6,000,000 Drinkers

her present low ranking on a scale of per capita wealth. Despite 85 years of history as a member of the union, he continued, Texas shows but $3,000,000,000 of personal wealth.

"The largest single reason for our failure to progress commercially is that we have produced enormous amounts of raw materials but have shipped them immediately to the North and East for manufacture into goods for which we must turn around and pay a high price, plus the freight," he said.

"As a concrete example, look at this suit I wear. It is all cotton. The cotton in its is worth 15 cents. Had I purchased it up North, $14.85 of the sale price would have stayed there, 15 cents coming to Texas. I bought it here, and the entire $15 is in circulation in Texas. We have an immense production of hides in this state, yet only a few shoe factories. So far as I can learn, this pair of shoes I am wearing is the only pair of dress shoes ever made in a Texas factory."

Provision of a ready market for what the farmer raises, on which he may sell his produce at a fair profit, is the only solution for the farm problem, Mr. Talbot urged, and added that determination of the people of Texas to buy Texas-made as well as Texas-grown products is the shortest way to such commercial development.

Referring to the raw products from which he said Texas should develop an immense future industry, Mr. Talbot mentioned the potash fields near Midland, in which he said there is a supply sufficient to provide all demands in the United States for 250 years.

"Manifested desire of certain parties at Austin to move the penitentiary system convinces me that there must be something under that land well worth drilling for," he said.

With reference to prohibition, the speaker declared that the greatest optimists in the world are the 10 federal sleuths "who are going about trying to catch the 6,000,000 drinking Texans."

The speaker was introduced by Orville Bullington, vice chairman of the Republican state executive committee. Among those on the platform with the speaker were O. P. Maricle, local postmaster, and Neely Vaught, postmaster at Burkburnett.

COURT HEARS SOONER CASES

Texas and Oklahoma Litigants Present Claims

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. (AP)—The supreme court today refused to review a case which the Graham-Brown Shoe company of Dallas and 16 other creditors filed to challenge the appointment of J. J. Holliday as trustee in bankruptcy of the Leader Mercantile company of Dallas.

The case of Mattie Howard in a controversy over title to land alloted to a Creek Indian in Wagoner county, Oklahoma, also was refused a review. The court of Oklahoma awarded title to Odie O. Owens.

The supreme court refused also to review two suits brought by Leonard D. Ingram, a Creek Indian living at Cleveland, Ohio, to recover from Phillip A. Lewis of Muskogee, Okla., and Carter W. Wesley of Houston, Texas, approximately $500,000 which he alleged had been illegally taken from him.

Other Refusals

Other refusals included:

A case by John Davis, claiming title to an allotment in eastern Oklahoma made to Adeline Grayson, a deceased Creek Indian on the ground he was her surviving spouse.

A case involving whether blood poisoning resulting in death, and caused by the plucking of a hair from the nose of the insured, renders an insurance company liable under an accident insurance policy. The question was raised by the Maryland Casualty company which had issued an insurance policy to John Massey of Memphis, Tenn.

A suit to test the validity of a lease brought by Flora Whitebird and other full blood Quapaw Indians, as owners of land in northern Oklahoma leased by Albert B. Fall as secretary of the interior in 1922 to the Eagle-Picher Lead company.

The claim of M. P. Mathis, to 120 acres of land near Seminole, Okla., valuable for oil. The lower courts held his deed to the land obtained when it was sold for taxes was defective, and that J. A. Ligon had obtained title to it by purchase from its owner, Maceo Raines.

The decision of lower federal courts holding that the executrix of the estate of G. R. Little must pay the receiver of the First National bank of Barnsdall, Okla., approximately $17,900 on a promissory note, secured by a mortgage given by Little on real estate in Barnsdall.

Title Controversy

A controversy over title to an interest in an allotment of 160 acres in Creek county, Oklahoma, made to Susie Crow, an Indian, the land being valuable for oil.

The claim of Mrs. Blanche F. Coughlin of Houston, Texas, against the Southwestern Bell Telephone company for approximately $14,600 which she alleged she paid to an agent of the company at Houston for stock in the company which was never delivered.

The claim of Joseph Reynolds and others as heir to an allotment made in Oklahoma made to Lemuel McCoi, a Creek Indian. They contended they had been defrauded of an interest in the land, valuable for oil.

The decision of lower federal courts holding that Fred E. Suits and Wilbur J. Holleman must account to the Magnolia Petroleum company of Dallas, Texas, for oil taken by them from land in Pottawatomie county, Oklahoma under a lease from the Union Missionary Baptist church, which had been granted the right to use the land exclusively for church purposes.

Tax Dispute

A case by the board of commissioners of Rogers county, Okla., seeking to compel the Bristow Battery company and other protesting property owners in Drumright, Okla., to pay taxes levied to provide interest on a sinking fund for bonds issued in 1922. The property owners contended the bond was void because issued in excess of the debt limit fixed by the state constitution.

The contention of the Black Hardware company of Galveston, Texas, that in making its federal tax returns for 1920 it was entitled to deduct from gross earnings approximately $16,000 it had expended in remodeling its building to conform to changes made by the city in the grade of streets.

A case involving the right of way in a narrow channel between a steamship and a tug with a tow, as presented in a case from Texas following a collision in 1927 in the Houston ship channel. The ships were the steamship "Southseas" owned by Lykes Bros., Steamship company, and the tug "Luther Brown" owned by the Higman Towing company.

A controversy over title to land in Stephens county, Okla., allotted to Peter Foster Thomas, a Choctaw Indian. The Oklahoma courts awarded it to Sid Jones and others, the decision being contested in behalf of Annie Thomas, a minor.

Ann Christy Files Suit Against Ditching Concern

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13. (AP)—Ann Christy, film actress, demanded $100,000 for a broken nose in a suit filed today against the Herbert M. Baruch corporation, owners of a ditching machine which her automobile struck on a Hollywood street the night of Aug. 12.

Besides the broken nose, the actress asserted she suffered a cut lip and bruised knee. Miss Christy charged the concern with negligent parking of the ditcher.

Altus Building Spree Recalls Town's Great Boom 21 Years Ago

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., Oct. 13.—Although over $200,000 in building work has been done in Altus during the first eight months of 1930, more than that amount was completed during the year of 1909, a survey of records kept in those days reveals.

Four hundred and six residents and business buildings were erected in Altus in that year, according to a record of business activities at that time.

Of this number 14 were downtown business buildings many of which are still in constant use.

At the end of March in 1910 approximately 100 residences and business buildings were under construction, and Altus was being advertised in all portions of the United States as the boom town of the new Southwest.

Real estate firms with offices in out-of-state cities ran weekly immigrant trains to Jackson county, and their first stop was almost invariably at Altus stations.

Building forecasts for the year 1910 estimated that at least two more railroads in addition to the three then in existence would be built through the city, and that from 10 to 15 large factories would be established.

Plans were also under way for a mammoth opera house to be constructed on lots now occupied by a local motor company.

"Over 50 large brick structures are to be built as soon as contractors can be secured to do the work," a real estate advertisement of the time stated.

Real estate transfers were quick and profitable. A summary of real estate purchases in Jackson county listed over 50 transfers of property during the year all of which had been purchased at rock bottom prices and sold at more than four or five times the purchase amount.

From the first the town was laid out with corporate limits for that of a city. The city was advertised as being able to expand "seven miles to the south, three miles to the west, eight miles to the east, and four to the north without changing the grade of its streets."

Marine Corps Suspends New Enlistments in Economy Plan

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. (AP)—The marine corps, like the navy, has instituted a personnel retrenchment program in line with President Hoover's request to effect economies in government departments. It may result in a decrease in the enlisted personnel of approximately 18,000 men.

New enlistments have been suspended. Re-enlistments are to be continued provided the men enroll within three months.

The marine corps has closed its recruiting stations at St. Paul, Denver, Seattle and Dallas as well as all substations connected with them.

OKLAHOMA GOP PLANS TOLD

ENID, Okla., Oct. 13. (UP)—Simultaneous with the beginning of Secretary of War Patrick Hurley's speaking tour in Oklahoma, Congressman M. C. Garber announced here today, the administration program for Oklahoma.

The program was represented as being based on unimpeachable official authority.

The approaching completion by army engineers, under direction of Hurley, of a comprehensive survey of water resources of Oklahoma as part of the administration program for flood control and water conservation at the sources.

These projects all are under Hurley's administration. Congressman Garber is chairman of the Mid-continent Flood Control association, an organization of western congressmen backing the Oklahoma plan of control and conservation, and leader in securing the survey.

Garber said the war department, with its farflung administrative interest, is highly important to the West with its inland waterway flood control, water conservation, harbor construction and bridge buildings and control authority.

"The program will mean the expenditure in Oklahoma of many millions, furnishing employment for state labor, business for state industries and conservation of water where most needed," Garber said.

Gasoline Patent Suit Set Jan. 12

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. (AP)—The Standard Oil company of Indiana and a number of other oil companies, convicted of violating the Sherman anti-trust law through agreements for the use of patents for producing cracked gasoline, today had their appeal advanced by the supreme court for hearing on Jan. 12.

Together with the Texas company, the Gasoline Products company, Inc., the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, and the Standard Development company, Standard Oil of Indiana owned or controlled patents for producing by the application of heat and pressure, what is known as cracked gasoline. Each granted licenses to refiners to use the patents, the total being more than 60.

The government brought suit at Chicago charging the agreements were in restraint of trade, and for the purpose of attempting to monopolize trade in cracked gasoline in violation of the Sherman anti-truct act.

Thirty Forest Fires Rage in New Jersey

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 13. (AP)—Thirty forest fires are buring in New Jersey, State Fire Warden Coyle said today.

PENSION RAISE MOVE STARTS

Proposed Boost Calls for $50,000,000 Gain

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. (INS)—A campaign has been inaugurated to boost the rates in the new world war veterans pension act more than $50,000,000 a year with backers preparing to demand a show down in the forthcoming session of congress, it was disclosed today.

Having upset the original administration veterans relief plan in the last congress despite pleas that the treasury surplus would be endangered, leaders in the movement are confident of obtaining quick and decisive action.

Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, who successfully led the fight in the last session which knocked the administration's well laid plans into a cocked hat, will head the drive in the house.

Adoption of the amendment originally sponsored by Senators Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts and Connally, Democrat, of Texas, to put the pension, or disability allowance, rates on a par with those of Spanish-American war veterans, will be sought.

Returning from the American Legion convention in Boston, where he obtained backing of the veterans for the new proposal, Rankin said:

"I am going to continue the fight until disabled veterans of the world war are given the same treatment as veterans of other wars and widows and orphans are properly taken care of."

The increase proposed is from rates ranging from $12 to $40 to $20 to $72 for veterans, and special rates for widows and orphans.

The proposal is expected to be vigorously fought by President Hoover and other administration leaders on the ground that it would invite a deficit.

Some officials believe the act of the last congress, estimated to cost $50,000,000 the first year and $113,000,000 the second year, will actually cost far more.

Thus far more than 206,000 applications for disability allowance have been filed, and over 13,000 claims allowed. The applications are coming in at such a rapid rate—with approximately 50 per cent being allowed—that the original estimate of 200,000 veterans being benefited may be exceeded.

Back Seat Drivers' Failure to Warn Of Danger Basis for Court Appeals

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. (AP)—Three cases in which defendants claimed back seat drivers had been injured because they had not warned automobile drivers were refused review today by the supreme court.

Cecile S. Cole was accused by the Spokane, Portland & Seattle railroad of Washington of contributory negligence because she did not warn a driver of an approaching train. A $22,000 judgment was returned against the railroad in lower courts.

The Erie railroad contended that Charles Stewart had been negligent in not warning a truck driver with whom he was riding before a train struck the vehicle in Cleveland. Stewart also was awarded damages against the railroad in lower courts.

The third case was brought by the United Can company from St. Louis with the claim that Mrs. Theodore Ryan was injured through her own negligence when she failed to tell the driver of a machine from the back seat that a truck was approaching.

Supreme Court to Hear War Insurance Case

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. (AP)—The supreme court today consented to review a case involving whether the war risk insurance of a world war veteran is subject to his debts after his death. Jacob E. Halibom of Kandiyohi county, Minnesota, carried $10,000 insurance with the veterans bureau at the time of his death. The administrator of his estate contended the money received from the policy should be applied to the payment of his debts, but the lower courts held it should be paid to his mother and was not subject to his debts.

FLOYD COUNTY VALUES GAIN

$217,000 Increase Shown in Assessments

Special to The Record News

FLOYDADA, Texas, Oct. 13.—Floyd county's tax bill for the current year for all purposes will amount to $267,000. The tax assessments as taken from the rolls of Tax Assessor C. M. Meredith, which were completed last week show that the tax bill for the county will be slightly more than it was last year.

Total valuations for the county this year are $13,336,574, an increase in values over last year of $217,306. This increase is made by reason of the fact that more than $300,000 has been added to the railroad tax bill, more than $100,000 in the non-resident rolls, and $12,000 in the bank rolls. The unrendered rolls at this time is the lowest it has been in several years, 342 acres of land appear on this roll. With a state tax rate of 69 cents this year against 68 cents last year, a county tax rate of 65 cents, the same as last year, the tax bill varies only slightly from last year.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

There used to be a small newsboy on the streets of Memphis, Tenn., who, for awhile sold more evening papers than anyone with his plaintive "Please (long drawn out) lady buy a paper." One fancied a mother at home dying of starvation.

But the time came when his cry was worse than the fabled "Wolf, wolf," and those who were familiar with him laughed at him.

We think of him when we see or hear of children in need and realize that those in constant contact with such cases become hardened to them to a certain extent or they could not sleep at night.

The medical student who sickens at his first practise on a cadaver comes finally to be a surgeon who has no twinge in cutting into living flesh.

Nurses must grow used to sickness and suffering and the grim reality of death signify, save in exceptional cases, only that final adventure that comes to all men.

Which brings to our memory what we thought the bravest of deathbed sayings recently printed in the Golden Book. O. Henry, the world probably dimming in his eyes, said, "Don't turn out the light," adding with a faint smile, the words of a current song, "I'm afraid to go home in the dark."

Now we have gotten entirely away from our subject—the needs of children. Their tragedies are such final things—to them.

And when we heard that the New Century club members had ruled this year to have no refreshments but to give the sum that would have been so used toward the school lunch fund for needy children, we thought it a generous move.

A hot lunch in the school cafeteria helps a youngster in his studies; particularly when breakfast may not have been a very hearty meal.

Two mocking birds flew down from the climbing rose on our high division fence Monday morning and stepped lightly round the yard hunting food. We watched fearing the cat that was raising her second family of kittens beneath the servant house might also hunt for bird food.

We'd like them all fed; but birds that will sing when everything looks gray and there doesn't seem anything in particular to sing about, deserve to have their lives preserved.

First Presbyterian W.M.S. Sees Dramatic Mission Act

Members of the four circles of the First Presbyterian W. M. S. met in joint session in the church parlors Monday afternoon when Mrs. E. T. Duff, president, opened the meeting and conducted a brief business session. Mrs. J. M. Cameron, accompanied by Mrs. Lucille Brooks Huff, sang "Take Your Burdens to the Lord," Mrs. Roy B. King led an inspirational devotional, reading the lovely verses from Philliplans 2, followed with a prayer.

Mrs. W. W. Fraser introduced the visitors for the afternoon, Mesdames C. A. Spragins, E. F. Bohmfalk and Wayne Somerville of the First Methodist W. M. S., who presented the first two chapters of the new mission text book "Trailing the Conquistadores," in the form of an attractive drama.

Cradle of America

The church parlors were beautifully decorated, an improvised altar being arranged with tall vases of red roses and candelabra with white candles. The scene was supposed to represent "The Cradle of America," acted in the oldest cathedral in San Domingo. Mrs. Spragins was the abbess; Mrs. Somerville, Spain, who brought North and South America and all the gifts of the conquistadores and laid them at the feet of the abbess.

Mrs. E. F. Bohmfalk, dressed as an Indian girl, gave the thrilling climax to a scene reminiscent of the days when ruling Spaniards were cruel to those whom they conquered. The beautiful flowers, lighted candles, and colorful costumes with the splendid acting of the three in the play, impressed the theme of the first chapter of the mission text book more powerfully than by study.

Between the first and second acts the groups sang "From Greenland's Icy Mountains," with Mrs. O. E. Maer, accompanying.

The second chapter was presented by Mesdames Spragins and Somerville who met on the stage as two modern women in their own living room who were interested in the second chapter of the text book. Every point was aptly brought out and their easy conversation made the little act doubly interesting.

Decorations Unusual

The church parlors were never more prettily decorated, the hall being quite as lovely with the flowers. Mrs. Ross Robertson, chairman, Mesdames H. J. Strief and Luke McCrory, members of the decorating committee, did effective work. The table in the hall was covered with a handsome filet cloth and held bowls of roses, and after the lesson, delightful refreshments were served by Mesdames O. T. Alles, R. H. Schultz, J. H. Roberts and W. W. Fraser to Mesdames Ed Howard, J. C. Hunt, G. D. Anderson, C. C. Hagmann, O. T. Alles, W. H. Appel, R. H. Schultz, O. Slopansky, C. W. Beavers, C. Burk, E. T. Duff, Newton Maer, W. "Gave Me Great Relief"

"FOR a long time, I was troubled with constipation," writes Mrs. C. W. Robertson, of Claremore, Okla. "I used to have gas pains frequently, and a heavy feeling in my chest.

"Sometimes I had bilious, sick headache, and was so dizzy I could hardly see. I had a dull, dragging feeling which made my work an effort. I began taking Thedford's Black-Draught and found it gave me great relief.

"My grandfather had used it in his home and given it to all the members of his family. He was a great believer in it. It has come to be a household word with us. I can recommend Black-Draught because I have never failed to get relief from constipation after taking it. A few doses of it will relieve sour stomach and sick headache."

Wellington Banks In Good Condition

Special to The Record News

WELLINGTON, Texas, Oct. 13.—That Wellington banks are in sound condition is indicated by condensed statements of their financial conditions, compiled at the close of business Sept. 24 and issued for publication this week. Although deposits are by no means as great as has been the case at many intervals when statements have been issued, they are nevertheless shown to total over a million dollars at this time, and it must be remembered that at this particular time, when most of the money crops are yet to be harvested, the deposits are consequently lower than any other time of the year.

According to figures issued by E. M. Hunter, cashier of the First National bank; L. A. Manzer, cashier of the Wellington State bank, and M. V. Morris, assistant cashier of the City National bank, the total deposits of the three Wellington banks at this time amount to $1,009,876.60.

Only one oil is good enough for household equipment, says chemist

Chemists, mechanics and lubrication experts say only one kind of oil is good enough for your expensive mechanical devices—the best. To get best results from your sewing machine, vacuum cleaner, lawn mower, washer, electric fan, refrigerator and other household appliances, you should use an oil that not only lubricates, but also cleans and protects.

3-in-One Oil is different from all others, because it is a scientific blend of animal, mineral and vegetable oils. It gives you the best properties of each. It dissolves and works out dirt, protects against rust and wear and gives the most efficient lubrication, thus eliminating unnecessary repairs and replacements.

Naturally such oil costs more to make, but it really costs less to use. Play safe: Insist on 3-in-One Oil. At good stores everywhere. 15c and 30c sizes. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.—Adv.

YOU DON'T BOIL A BABY

AND you shouldn't wash fine silks and woolens in hot water, either. Their delicate fabrics are just as susceptible to scalding as the tender skin of an infant.

Perhaps you've been unable to get things clean without hot water. White King Granulated Soap offers the solution. It's made from fine vegetable and nut oils. No coarse animal fats or mineral oils are present. The result is that White King will form rich, creamy, cleansing suds in lukewarm water. It will spare the lives of sensitive colored fabrics, wash white clothes whiter, and will save your hands from irritation.

Pistol-Toting Swain Given Term in Jail

Thirty days in jail was chosen by a young man before Judge Irvin J. Vogel in the county court at law Monday morning as his penalty for having carried a pistol Sunday when calling upon his erstwhile sweetheart.

Recent estrangement which the young man declared resulted when lack of employment depleted his funds occasioned the armed expedition to the home of the young woman in question Sunday, according to the county attorney's office. Constable Frank Morgan was summoned by members of the girl's family and placed the young man under arrest.

KIWANIS HEARS SUCCESS TALK

New Interests Essential To Progress, Says Kerr

Satisfaction with conditions as they are is the beginning of serious deterioration in an individual or in a business firm, according to an address given Monday before members of the Kiwanis club by J. E. Homer Kerr, representative of the United Commercial Travelers.

Mr. Kerr's talk featured a "Jobbers' and Manufacturers' Day" program which was arranged by Linton H. Estes, chairman of the jobbers and manufacturers' division of the chamber of commerce.

"New interests are indispensable to the successful progress of an individual or a business," the speaker said. "Lack of interest produces mental fatigue and resentment against routine. New ideas are the secret of success."

Col. W. E. Talbott, Republican nominee for governor, was presented by Orville Bullington, vice-chairman of the state Republican executive committee, and made a brief talk.

Piano duets were given by Misses Betty Terrell, Edna Marie Stout, Ruth Payne, and Lois Corbin. Walter Caldwell introduced the guests, and Dudley B. Foy presided during the meeting.

EATING A SWEET IN MID-AFTERNOON RESTORES VIGOR

Fatigue Quickly Overcome by Sugar Content of Candy, Cake or Beverage

"Fagged out" at four o'clock is an experience that nearly every business man and woman faces daily. As a matter of fact this condition has become so apparent that it has been studied by medical men and food scientists.

One of the best "remedies" discovered for this mid-afternoon fatigue was "something to eat." Experiments showed that when a few pieces of candy, ice cream or cookies were eaten, vitality was quickly restored. The same was true when a flavored beverage was drunk—such as water sweetened with sugar.

The refined sugar content of these foods is responsible for the renewed vigor. For when refined sugar is eaten it almost immediately supplies nourishment to the body. And when the system is nourished fatigue disappears.

American business people are fortunate in being near places where candy, ice cream and beverages are sold. With practically no loss of time and very little expense, a mid-afternoon snack can be enjoyed. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Knox City Man Acquitted Here On Homicide Charge in Larkin Death

O. D. Reid of Knox City was acquitted by Judge Irvin J. Vogel in the county court at law Monday afternoon on a charge of negligent homicide which grew out of the accidental death of Henry Larkin early in September.

Testimony offered at the trial included the defendant's statement given to County Attorney Wayne Somerville following the accident, in which he attributed the crash to a momentary turning of his eyes from the street ahead of him to glance at an object which had fallen upon the floor of his car. Mr. Larkin was injured when caught between the defendant's car and the rear of a truck from which the deceased was making deliveries of bottled water, and died within a few hours. The accident occurred on Indiana avenue near Tenth street on Sept. 8.

Evidence taken in the trial was limited to establishment of material facts concerning the accident, and testimony relative to the defendant's character and reputation.

ROW THROUGH AIR

WASHINGTON.—One of the oddest contrivances intended to fly through the air is that of Lehman Weil. Weil is a pioneer in aviation, having experimented since 1893, and his idea is to construct a plane which can be rowed through the air. I. O. BOOSTERS HOLD MEETING

Changes in Traffic Rules Sought for Area

Definite plans for the improvement of traffic conditions on Ohio and Indiana avenues north of Sixth street were adopted by members of the I. O. Boosters' gang, which held a business meeting Monday noon at the Holt hotel, according to Sam Hord, president.

Not only the condition of the streets in that district, but parking practices will be the object of efforts at amendment, it was stated. A committee consisting of L. L. Taylor, chairman; John Wilson, F. S. McMullen, J. A. Patton, and Will Hopkins was appointed to direct the program on traffic improvement.

Those present at Monday's meeting were Dr. Fred Gross, who presided in the absence of Mr. Hord; B. J. Bean, J. A. Patton, Mr. McMullen, R. A. Koonce, Mr. Hopkins, W. G. Callum, W. R. Gay, Lee Cooper, and Loren L. Taylor.

After Hours

The eagle eye of the floor-walker came to rest on a young man in earnest conversation with one of the girl clerks. After he had gone the floor-walker went over to the girl's counter,

"I noticed he didn't buy anything," he said, "but he seemed very pleased. What did he want to see?"

"Me, at eight o'clock," the girl replied.—Moustique, Charlerol.

A Timid Governor
Lesson of the R-101
Fashionable Religion
Mr. Fosdick's Sermon

By EMILE GAUVREAU

The reported decision of Governor Roosevelt to limit the extraordinary grand jury investigating bench sales to the Ewald case will not tend to make the governor more popular. Not with the thinking people, anyway. A decision of this sort is not merely illadvised. It arouses suspicion. Governor Roosevelt should realize that, seeking Tammany votes in New York, if he insists on a policy of concealment, then Tammany has something to conceal, and he will be blamed for it.

Whatever excuse may be offered for banning further inquiry into city graft sounds hollow and indefensible in the face of the evidence of official corruption everywhere visible. Now that some really big game has been bagged, it would be criminal to let the animals escape.

But perhaps Mr. Roosevelt seeing that the whole administration is involved, realizes the futility of investigation and trial. "Judge not, lest ye be judged." That is a good maxim for the cravens as well as for the righteous.

Structural defects, lack of buoyancy, high winds, error in altitude, are several of the alleged causes of the R-101 crash in France with a toll of 50 dead.

It is doubtful whether the true cause will ever be ascertained. The disaster may have come as the result of a combination of causes. Or it may have been occasioned by a factor which science has not yet accounted for. The conquest of the air is the most hazardous that man has ever undertaken, and we must be prepared for a thousand sacrifices before this new golden fleece is achieved.

The opening of the new Riverside church in New York drew to its doors a crowd estimated at more than 6,000. Persons of all creeds and faiths strained to push their way into the great interior, so as to be among the first to get a glimpse of the $4,000,000 sanctuary of the Rockefellers.

Of this crowd, how many were religionists and how many mere curiosity seekers? The Rev. Harry E. Fosdick sermonized eloquently on Christianity as "beginning in a carpenter shop," but the eyes of his congregation were more alert than its ears. A carpenter's shop would not have found them present. Einstein's carved figure on the facade may have concerned some of them more than Mr. Fosdick's sermon.

Most people want spectacles, not religion. St. Peter's in Rome, St. Paul's in London, the cathedral in Milan, St. John the Divine in New York, are patronized by the sinful world not because of the divine truths offered there, but, unfortunately, it is fashionable to attend services in those edifices. When they seek the truth these same people look for it in the counting houses and the boulevard. Others seek it in the laboratory.

Face lifting, once the last resort of a declining society matron, is now offered to the pops vox, gratis. Those, also, who have been blessed neither with fortune nor beauty, and have gone through life heretofore with objectionable noses, cleft palates, hare-lips, moles and bunns will be received for free treatment at the city hospitals, in the division of plastic surgery. Millions have been spent on beautifying the city. Why not its residents?

Dr. J. G. W. Grattan, director of the division, declares this service is unique. "It's the first time in the history of medicine that a municipality has attempted to give plastic surgery to the poor through its own hospitals."

Nearly $83,000,000 has been spent for public works in Cuba in the past five years.

As the expert writing his views on the world series told his scrivening aid, "Wither thou ghost I will go."

Spoiling the Scenery

THE automobile touring season of 1930 is just about over; and if you asked the average tourist for his chief impression of the scenery along his vacation drive the chances are that he would mention the great national eczema of advertising signs along the highways.

Looking back over a summer spent largely on the highways, one recalls these signboards in a dizzy, ever-multiplying panorama. They make the approaches to our cities hideous and they mar one's enjoyment of quiet country roads; they intrude upon pleasant vistas of inland lakes, they dot the white-fringed seashore and they plant themselves at the feet of lofty, snow-tipped mountains; and the long-suffering American continues to endure them without a protest.

A recent issue of the Roadside Bulletin, a little magazine published by the American Nature association, contains a series of pictures of roadside advertising signs, and the series is enough to make the reader doubt the collective sanity of the American public.

With a magnificent continent criss-crossed by excellent roads, and with the entire population on wheels ready to go out and enjoy these roads, we permit commercial interests to mar the scenery, desecrate the open country and inflict monotonous ugliness on us from one seacoast to the other.

A number of states have tried to remedy matters by law; but the law, in this case, is rather ineffective. You can prohibit the erection of signs on the highway itself, and you can keep them from being placed in the vicinity of railroad grade crossings—but that is about all. You cannot keep a needy farmer from renting a vacant lot to some over-zealous advertiser. You cannot keep a man from smearing an ugly sign across the side of his barn. You cannot keep the owner of some dilapidated eye-sore of an abandoned grain elevator or run-down factory from plastering it with screaming posters.

Why do we put up with it, anyway? Is there something radically wrong with our aesthetic sense, that we permit these signboards to litter our countryside in such profusion? No county on earth offers its motorists such a lovely variety of tours to choose from; and no country permits its tours to be spoiled as we permit the billboard, the hot-dog stand and the filling station to spoil ours.

The remedy, of course, lies not in law but in an aroused public opinion. The problem really could be disposed of quite easily. If Americans generally would vow not to buy of advertisers who deface the landscape with billboards, the nuisance would die overnight. At any rate, it might be worth a try. You can start it for yourself.

A Mayor's Wife Is Robbed

IT HAS BEEN a long time since there has been anything quite as amusing as Mayor William Hale Thompson's recent thunderous declaration that Chicago's police must get the upper hand in their war with gangland.

Such a declaration, in itself, is not especially funny, of course. But you have to look at it in connection with its background.

Through several years gangland has had Chicago more or less at its mercy, and during all of that time the mayor has never seemed perturbed by the situation. His public remarks have been chiefly assertions that the city's troubles have been greatly magnified by designing political schemers and sensational newspapers.

But the other night gangsters held up the mayor's wife and relieved her of some valuable jewels. And the next day the mayor sounded off.

Will you pardon us while we send a brief laugh up our sleeve?

Where Depression Hurts

THE failure of prosperity may be worrying the government of this country, but the problem at Washington is as nothing compared with the problem faced in certain governments south of the Isthmus of Panama. In the United States, a business depression is apt to bring an unfavorable result at the polls, but in South America it is apt to bring on a revolution.

It is hardly too much to say that practically all of the current South American revolts originated in trade depressions. Citizens of any country get restive when business is bad, but in Latin America they get downright violent.

It is foolish, of course, for any country to blame hard times on the government in power. But at least the situation here isn't as bad as it might be. Just suppose that our disillusioned voters were rushing to the armories instead of to the ballot box!

Jobs Instead of Charity

THE city of Cleveland recently took an admirably sensible measure to ease the unemployment situation. Instead of voting money for charity, the city council voted a $200,000 bond issue for the immediate commencement of certain public works, and 2,000 men will be given jobs as a result.

That is the sort of unemployment relief that really means something. When you give a hungry man a bowl of soup and a cup of coffee you are relieving an immediate need, but you are not solving the underlying problem. What the man needs more than a meal is a job. No matter how much charity you dispense, you haven't helped him very much unless you have made his chances of getting work brighter. That is why this Cleveland plan deserves copying widely.

Sharing Our Helium

ADMIRAL MOFFETT'S suggestion that the United States share its helium gas with other nations, so that dirigibles overseas can have the safety features which previously have been exclusively American, sounds like a very good idea.

Helium can be produced in quantity only in the United States, and the law now forbids its export. However, the supply here seems to be great enough so that we could spare all that is needed overseas, and except in war time it is hard to see how there could be any objection to such a step.

Here would be a humanitarian act; it would also be valuable as a "good-will" gesture. It is to be hoped that the government will give the admiral's suggestion full consideration.

Martyr

It's harder than I thought to stay
(Although you've said that it is only right).
I always dread the close of every day.
And fear the torture chamber that is Night.

For you are in my arms again, it seems.
I hold the fragrant youngness that is you.
And wage a futile fight against the dreams
That have a way of never coming true.

I get a bigger kick from staying sad! —Melancholy Baby.

Not New, but Clean

From Lester Allen comes the one about the newly sealed couple who were honeymooning on the Atlantic City boardwalk. The bridegroom who was a poet at heart, stopped and turned to the Atlantic. Raising his arms, he cried: "Roll on, thou deep and dark blue ocean, roll!"

"Oh, Gerald!" ejaculated his bride, "how wonderful you are. It's going it!"

Take it from Bugs Baer, the brokers are whistling happy days, but they're using a fountain pen full of red ink for a flute.

The Crack Cute

When "Hamlet" closed some seasons ago, John Barrymore gave each of the 10 extra girls and the wardrobe mistress a check for $100. With the check to the latter, Barrymore enclosed this note: "Dear Jenny: This is not the price of our shame, for that is priceless!"

Just for the Records

The recent controversy here over the stylist who coined the expression "the blues" is flaming again. Handy claims it and others would have you believe that Handy didn't.

Now, however, it appears that in 1837 a gent tagged Ingoldsby wrote a tome christened "The Ingoldsby Legends," and in it he makes mention of a "fit of the blues."

"Dear Mr. Winchell," writes Louis DeArmand, of Davenport, Iowa, "You recently wrote you wish you could visit the towns where your stuff appears. I'm afraid you would be disappointed. Or Was It Helen Hayes?

George Jean Nathan, said in a recent Vanity Fair that, occasionally, he has overestimated a play. He confessed to having been tricked by the suavity of the general production, together with the persuasiveness of a scene or two, into seeing virtues in the play as a whole that were not there. "Coquette" frixample.

Nathan, along with the rest of us, wrote of it in terms much more commendatory than he should have, and for weeks received abusive letters from admirers who were "amazed," and who deplored his "lack of acuteness."

And then, to top matters, the producer of the show, Jed Harris, finally encountered George. "Your review disgusted me," groaned Jed. "You certainly were fooled. It's a bad play and I've lost a lot of respect for you!"

"Coquette" was one of the better theater "smashes" New York ever enjoyed.

The Retort Proper

A certain theatrical producer, noted for his bad checks, was buttoned-holed by Russ Brown of "Flying High," yesterday. Russ wanted to know when the phoney was going to pay a debt long overdue.

"Come to my office now," said the two-timer, "and I'll give you a check."

"Not me!" snapped Brown. "I know you too well. You're Check and Rubber Check!"

George Martin, of the Chrysler Building, wonders if you've heard the one about the two bums who asked the farmwife for something to eat and she said yes, she'd give them something to eat if they'd beat some rugs and carpets for her, and they said awright, so she equipped them with a couple of bludgeons and she left them whanging and banging at the Wiltons, and after a while she looked out the window and saw one of the bums standing on the sidelines while the other bum was doing fancy cartwheels, handsprings, backflips and other vaudeville stuff, so she went out and said to the other bum, why I didn't know your friend was an acrobat, and the first bum said, no, neither did I 'till I hit 'im in the puss.

HEARTBREAK GIRL

By ROB EDEN

Gail Stuart, hiking from Kansas to Hollywood, is picked up by Nick Walther, wealthy young real estate man, who mistakes her for a boy until he takes her to his apartment. She tells him her movie ambitions. He laughs, but sends for his friend, Tod Janson, high-powered press agent, who, for $500, says he can get the girl a test.

Staying at the Roosevelt, she finds her small capital of $50 rapidly dwindling. She accidentally meets Ross Hardy, handsome young movie extra, who tells her some of the disappointments of Heartbreak Town. Janson calls and tells her she'll get her test at 11 the next day. Janson takes her to the studio, and she faces the camera and microphone.

CHAPTER VI

Gail sat staring at the walls in her bedroom. She couldn't believe her screen test was over. It seemed impossible. Three o'clock, and she was too excited, too nervous to remember that she had missed her lunch.

The studio had bewildered her. The casual glances of everyone she passed. Following Tod Janson, who nodded here and there. Never taking her eyes from him, lest she miss him, and become lost in the labyrinth of offices.

She closed her eyes when she thought of the test. She had never been so frightened in her life. There was the night in Fairview when she had stepped on the high school stage for the first time, and faced an audience. The sudden panic of it, beating against the walls of her stomach, throbbing in her head, choking the words she wanted to say. But it had passed in a few seconds and she was herself again, forgetting everything but the part she was playing and living.

This was different. There was the camera in front of her, swaddled in a heavy blanket. Recording ruthlessly everything she did, her face, her figure, her voice . . .

She hadn't gotten over the fear of it even now. She still was in front of it, frightened, terribly frightened. And she hadn't worried about the camera at all in her dreams. It had never entered her mind until she had seen it, and had the quick realization of what it could do.

Her hands went to her face to shut out the image of the muffled thing. Cold hands, ice to her hot, burning face.

Tod Janson had stayed all the time, but he was no comfort. She felt his eyes staring at her, while his hands nervously jerked in one pocket and out the other. Nervous, of course, because in the room was a large sign warning against smoking.

The other men. The camera man, focusing his instrument on her carefully, a sound man, running in and out of a box at the rear, adjusting a microphone above her head. A man who thrust the paper at her, and told her to read it.

Read it?

"Your lines," Tod had said dryly.

Her lines. Dumbly, she looked them over. Lines. Of course, lines of a play. They expected her to read them, act them out.

Utter Confusion

The lights hurt her eyes. Made them ache with their brightness. She couldn't keep from blinking, and she knew she mustn't do that.

The bare room. Only a table and chair in front of the camera. Should she sit down? She did, and some one yelled at her to stand up. So she stood up, still holding the paper bound in blue manuscript cover.

"Ready!"

She nodded, but no one paid any attention to her. They were looking now at a man standing near the camera.

"Ready, Miss Stuart," he called. Then names, broken by an almost inaudible hum of the camera.

Somehow she got through the lines without making a mistake, without stumbling, but the camera was always in her mind, there before her, recording everything she did. The lights, too, continued to bother her. They grew brighter and brighter. She couldn't help blinking.

Finally when she was through with the lines, the man beside the camera said that was enough. They would take a few stills now.

She knew what stills were. Pictures without action. That would be easy. It was easy, too. The man told her to take off her hat and sit down. To look into the camera—another camera this time.

The thick make-up which the make-up man had smeared on her face felt uncomfortable. Maskiike. She didn't like it. The taste of the paint on her lips was creamy, gummy. She was conscious all the time of the thick powder, the worry for fear it would crack, and the camera penetrate the cracks.

A thousand fears raced through her mind, one more formidable than the last.

The relief when someone said, "That will be all, Miss Stuart." She saw Tod conferring with the camera man, his nod, then his impatient gesture to her to hurry.

In the tiny dressing room she had washed off the grease paint as well as she could. A bad job, but Mr. Janson was in a hurry, and she didn't wish to make him angry.

When she joined him, he was smoking very fast. They hurried out to his car.

Thousand Fears

"Did you hear?" she asked him eagerly.

"Hear what?"

"Anything about the—test?"

"No—they'll let me know in the morning."

Another day! Gail's heart sank. Another day at the Roosevelt. But the news might be good—perhaps she needn't worry so.

"Was—I—was I all right?" Hesitantly, for fear Mr. Janson would ridicule her. He was so frank.

"Can't tell until the test goes through. You were nervous—and that was bad. Should have controlled your nerves."

"I couldn't help it. Did any—of the men say anything about me? Whether I was good or bad?"

"No, they can't tell. The sound man said your voice seemed O. K., but he couldn't be sure. Won't have time to drop you at your hotel, as I've an appointment."

So the girl alighted, and walked to the hotel, glad of the chance to be alone again.

The grease paint was all off her face now. She had seen to that as soon as she had reached her room.

Young Enthusiasm

Tomorrow. She had to wait until then. Would Tod Janson let her know? If he didn't call her by noon tomorrow she would phone him. No, go to his office, and talk to him. Hours until then. Hours that would slide by slowly, too slowly.

Her new dress and coat reposed on a hanger behind the glass door of the closet. She was glad now, that she had them. Tod Janson knew his Hollywood.

Her mind turned idly to Nick Walther. Why had he done this thing for her?

Should she call him up and thank him? Tell him she had taken a screen test? She decided she would wait until the next day when she knew for sure about the result. Then she would call him.

He had made out the check for five hundred dollars so impersonally, as if it meant nothing at all to him. He had said, too, that he probably wouldn't see her again . . . that he expected nothing in return for his money. Indeed, he had acted as if he never expected to get it back. Gail vowed that as soon as she knew—tomorrow—she would phone him and make some arrangements for returning the money.

The phone rang and she leaped to answer it. It might be Mr. Janson, calling her to tell her the studio liked her test—wanted her—

It wasn't Tod Janson; it was Ross Hardy.

"Make the test?" he asked.

After her first disappointment—for she had been so sure Mr. Janson was calling—she was glad it was Ross after all.

"Scared?" Gail admitted she had been.

"How about dinner tonight?"

"Let me—"

"Don't be silly, Gail. I pawned my watch, and I've ten dollars, which seems like a fortune to me now. Be in the lobby at six, and I'll get you."

Happy to See Ross

Gail hung up the phone slowly. Good to hear from Ross. She hated to take dinner from him when he was so poor, but he insisted. Perhaps some day she could repay him. She was strangely elated as she dressed. Her worries were gone. They could wait until she came in from dinner with Ross. All night to think about the test . . .

She smiled at him happily when she stepped out of the elevator and saw him standing in the lobby. Taking her arm, he piloted her down the street, to the same place where they had eaten the night before.

"Gosh," he said enthusiastically, while they were waiting for the dinner to be served, "I hope you make good. You don't know how much I hope it! You're so darned sweet—and pretty, Gail—"

He paused and looked deeply into her eyes. "I like you awfully well—"

"I like you, too—"

"Funny if we'd get a break together—"

"Yes—" Gail's eyes shone.

"Tell you. Let's make a pact. You do all you can for me, if you get the chance; and if I get the chance, I'll do all I can for you. You've got the jump on me, though, with a test. Maybe it isn't fair to you—"

"Yes, it is fair. If I have a chance—let's shake hands on it, Ross. Please!"

So across the little table they shook hands, and Gail's fingers lingered longer in the boy's than she meant to let them. They looked at each other solemnly.

"You're a sweet thing, Gail—" Ross' voice was husky. Tears filmed the girl's eyes, and she drew her fingers away, and picked up her fork.

The pact was sacred to Gail after that . . .

Tomorrow—Gail gets the result of her test!

So across the little table they shook hands and Gail's fingers lingered longer in the boy's than she meant to let them.

DEFICIENCY DISEASES

Rickets

The name "rickets" is taken from the old English word "wrickken," meaning to twist, because this disease twists the bones of the growing child out of shape. The legs become curved, the head too large, the chest is narrowed, and the bones do not harden properly.

Rickets is marked by the malnutrition of the whole body as well as deformity of the bone, and a pot belly is usually present.

Rickets is a disease most noticed in the very young, and attacks children who are shut away from the sunlight and who are fed food deficient in vitamin A. More babies develop it during winter than in summer. There may be a soreness of the entire body, with a loose skin, weak muscles and an enlarged liver.

A child suffering from this disorder should be given sunbaths daily and the food must be guarded carefully. Starchy foods are not needed but raw milk with the cream alternating with periods of raw egg yolk mixed with orange juice is very good, also about a level tablespoon of the juice of grated raw carrots daily.

Short frequent sunbaths are the best way to keep your baby from developing this trouble.

Scurvy

Sailors on long voyages, prospectors in the far north, and armies on the march may suffer from scurvy, a disease in which there may be great weakness. The gums become spongy and soften, and the teeth fall out.

While this disease has been known from the earliest times, a knowledge of the cure of it is fairly recent. The use of plenty of foods containing vitamin C is the most efficient remedy and preventive.

This disease has fortunately almost disappeared from adults who live in civilized communities where food is abundant, but it is unfortunately too often found in babies.

A form of infantile scurvy may be found in infants who are taking condensed or malted milk, or boiled milk without the addition of other substances containing vitamin C.

This disease causes severe pains in the baby's limbs which appear semi-paralyzed, and the child does not wish to be touched or moved.

It is a good plan to change the diet to raw certified milk with alternating feedings of orange, lime or tomato juice.

Such disorders will never develop when the proper diet is used and it is the doctor's duty to see that the baby is properly fed so that these diseases do not recur.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Dry Skin

Question—E. J. writes: "I am a young person, but my skin is so dry I am ageing terribly. I use a great deal of cold cream, but I know it must be inward trouble. When I wash my skin it hurts and burns for some time after. I know of others you have helped, so please tell me what to do."

Answer—Use plenty of olive oil with your meals, and increase the amount of butter and cream you are using. A temporary treatment which will help is to rub the entire body each day with cocoa-butter, using only a small amount, but rubbing it well into the pores.

Stale Bread

Question—A. M. asks: "Is stale bread more easily digested than fresh? If so why?"

Answer—The reason stale bread is digested more readily than fresh is because it requires thorough mastication and insalivation due to its dryness. There is no less starch in stale bread, however, and if one is attempting to avoid too much starchy food it is best to toast the bread completely through in order to dextrinize every particle.

Blind Boil

Question—R. C. writes: "I have a blind boil that has bothered me for about four months and will not heal. Have consulted physicians, but with no good results. Would be greatly obliged for your advice, as I am beginning to be much worried."

Answer—Your blood is no doubt in a very toxic condition or the boil would have healed before this time. Correct your diet and keep your intestines free from any accumulated poisons, and I am sure you will find that this blind boil will soon heal naturally without any local treatment.

Preacher-Farmer Must Serve Time

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 13. (UP)—P. C. Hesser, Oklahoma preacher-farmer convicted of perjury in connection with the Osage murder trials of 1926, must serve two years in prison. His appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals, opening the October term here today, was dismissed by stipulation of both parties.

Hesser, according to United States District Attorney Roy St. Lewis, testified that John Ramsey did not sign his confession properly. It was later proved the instrument was properly signed, St. Lewis said.

U. S. Judge John C. Pollock substituted for Judge John H. Cotteral, Guthrie, in the Osage appeal.

Grain Dealers Chief Assails Farm Board

CHICAGO, Oct. 13. (AP)—Charles Quinn of Toledo, secretary of the Grain and Feed Dealers' National association, today described the agricultural marketing act as wholly unsound and inadequate and denounced President Hoover's plan of farm relief in an address to 1,000 members at the 34th annual convention.

"Making allowance for President Hoover's post election position. The fact remains his solution is no solution at all but a most dangerous advance toward the destruction of private business and his plan strikes at its very heart," Quinn said.

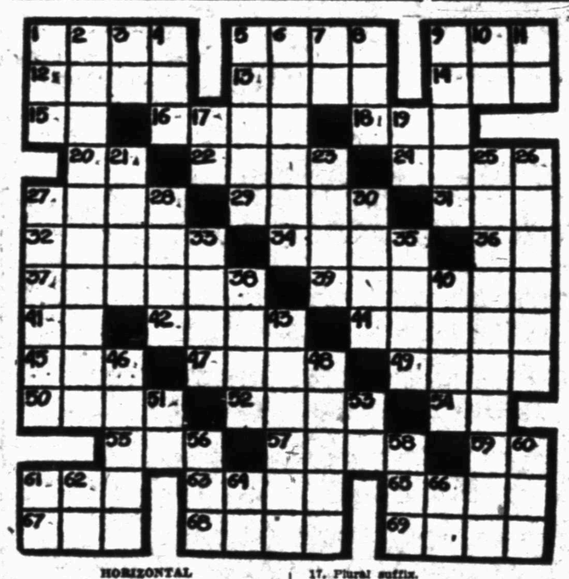

Former Film Actress Held for Shooting Mate

MARYSVILLE, Calif., Oct. 13. (UP)—L. R. Shaffer, 31, was in a critical condition in a hospital here today from a bullet wound in his shoulder, while his wife, formerly Dolores Duncan, film actress, continued to tell investigators she was "only sorry I didn't hit him in the heart."

Sheriff N. J. McCoy admitted there was little likelihood of an arrest as Shaffer in a bedside statement refused to issue a complaint against his wife.

Bluegrass seed grown in Kentucky this year will bring a higher price than in 1929, reports indicate.

AILMENTS AND INELIGIBILITIES AGAIN BESET COYOTES

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

Thought for Today

Why I think I deserve immedate transportation to the hall of fame:

Because I haven't witnessed the Marathon dance, nor do I intend to do same.

That Reminds Me

That speaking of jazz, did you know that the boop-oop-a-doop, or Helen Kanish rhythm that is still being gurgled was used by Chopin in Opus 25, No. 11?

I would tell you the name of the piece, but of course you are not interested.

When Chopin used it, however, it had meaning—and a meaning other than is imagined by the dupe-dupe-the-dupes.

Now for the Coyotes

Yes, alas, I must go back to writing sports. It wouldn't be so bad if the Coyotes had done what they could have done last Saturday, but didn't.

The Coyotes have the edge on the Electra Tigers in every respect but one, apparently—but that one exception is the fighting spirit that makes the team play in unison, as one man. A football team must play as a unit, or go down miserably in defeat. The Coyotes, we are informed by experts who saw the game, did not play as a unit Saturday. A close observer told me that if the whole team had played with the punch that Bennett Withrow and Harlan Ray exhibited, the score would have been quite different.

Withrow and Ray are backfield men. All are excellent players. But backfield men can't run unless they are given interference. The line must do its share. The best backfield in the world would stand helpless in its tracks behind a poor bunch of line fighters.

If we have been informed correctly, then, the defeat with the Coyotes is that it is overbalanced. It has a tearing backfield, but a line that can't do its stuff.

Or maybe we had better change that—a line that could do its stuff, if it wanted to.

And that defeat is something that can't be blamed on the coach. A coach can give a team everything else, but he can only cultivate what will-power each man has—he can't give them that will-power—or, as the word is, "guts."

We had all looked forward to next Saturday's game with Quanah with a yawn, believing the Quanah boys were to be merely pushovers. But in view of Electra's victory, we're all a-tremble over the coming battle.

Great credit is due the Tigers. If Wichita Falls is not to be in the district running, then we hope the Electrans will deal Amarillo and Pampa such misery as they will never forget.

News From the Brazos

Hal Wiltse says from now on we've got to include a little baseball stuff in this col. or he won't read it. It is easy to understand that Hal doesn't get so warm over football. The boy's game is baseball, and he's already planning on doing his share for the Phils next year—because the Phils, you know, are going to win the National league pennant, with Hal's aid.

Alright then, here's some hot baseball chatter, stuff that brings back the great days of spring training down at the foot of Seventh street, in fact, a letter relating the fate, the sorrows, the wails, the lamentations, and the hopes of Austin Thomas, the "Brazos Kid," or, as we lovingly dubbed him, "the Big Breeze from the Brazos."

The letter is from L. J. Reynolds of Navasota, Texas, whom, we judge, is in one the manager, sole owner, coach and trainer, of said galloping gale.

It was addressed to the Wichita Falls Baseball club, a carbon being sent me with the earnest request that it be printed in full as it herewith is, as follows:

"Wichita Falls Baseball Club,
"Wichita Falls, Texas.
"Dear Sirs:

"No doubt you have not forgotten our young ball player, Austin Thomas, known as the "Brazos Kid" or the "Big Breeze from Brazos" who came to your club this past spring for a tryout as an outfielder, but was finally released by your club.

"During the season some few weeks ago I sent you a short note giving you a little information regarding his playing up until that time this season. I wish to state that the youngster has been doing some mighty good playing all the season, in fact he has showed up better all season as a steady player and could depend in his playing in fielding and at the bat better than the season before he came to you for tryout. I am rather anxious to see him given another trial, and I sincerely believe if he is taken and trained for part of a season he will deal any player in the Texas league the greatest opposition he ever had. I have carefully watched his performances all season and coached him along, and too, I wish to state that he has played on the best semi-pro clubs in this section of the state and his performances equalled the same throughout the season. I am giving you the information of his playing for this season, and too, if possible and should you be interested in him I will appreciate you mailing him a contract for another tryout next spring. If you should not be interested I will do my utmost to get him on another good club. He wishes to return to your club because he states he was never with as good bunch of fellows as he was with the management of the Spudder club, and was given a fair trial to display his ability as a player. Too, from the way the public took him while he was there in spring training he would make the best drawing card in the Texas league if given the right kind of ballyhoo along with his playing. Lloyd Gregory sport editor of the Houston Post regretted seeing Thomas released—said he would make the best drawing card in the Texas league, or any other league for that matters. His playing average was; played in 54 games; 253 times at bat; 108 hits including singles and doubles.

"Yours respectfully,

MAULDIN OUT OF NEXT TILT

First Two Games Leave Team in Bad Shape

Virtually out of the running in district No. 1 as the result of two straight conference defeats, the last at the hands of the Electra Tigers Saturday, the Coyotes idly sat about Monday nursing a heavy array of ailments, and in addition a bad temper.

The main cause of idleness in the Coyote camp was, of course, the fact that the high school training field was very wet, too wet after the recent deluge for scrimmage.

But even had the field been dry it is doubtful if the squad would have accomplished much, as the team in general, and three players in particular, has come out of its first conference games very much on the blink.

The strain of the Lubbock game, played in a whirling pool of mud and water, was terrific on the players, according to Coach Holton, and put them in the worst kind of physical condition for the Electra game Saturday. Greenwood had to be relieved shortly after the kickoff on account of various ailments, and Lupe King, who fought off illness and played the whole game through was taken violently sick after the game and was placed in the care of a physician.

All of which means that the team possibly will not be up to par next Saturday, when it meets the Quanah eleven at Quanah.

Mauldin Ineligible

To list another setback and the Coyotes seem to have had plenty of 'em this season—Malcolm Mauldin, regular right end, will not be eligible to play against Quanah next Saturday. His failure to escape failure in a couple of courses was given as the reason.

And so, with these pleasant thoughts milling through their minds, the crippled Pack Monday took life miserably.

The workout indulged in was a skull session, with Coach Holton going over the team's defects of last Saturday, and reviewing the subject of how the Tigers did it.

Today, however, the team will take the field, Coach Holton said. A light session is planned, to give the boys a chance to recuperate. Wednesday and Thursday, however, will be devoted to hard scrimmage sessions in preparation for the Quanah game.

B. Game Postponed

Coach Holton announced Monday the scheduled game between the Coyote B squad team and the Nocona high school eleven at Nocona had been delayed two weeks on account of bad roads between here and Nocona.

Reagans at Work

Things are getting lively around the Reagan Junior high school. Next Friday the Reaganites open their conference schedule with the Denton high school at Denton.

And Coach A. D. Beck is determined his team will win. Bearing down on his men, he announced last week he would follow Coach Holton's policy of permanently disqualifying any player scholastically ineligible for the first conference game.

And Monday he announced every member of his team is eligible for next Friday's fray.

He also is strict on training rules. One player, Andrew Smith, was ejected from the squad last week, Coach Beck said, for smoking.

Smith's loss no doubt will be keenly felt. He is a big, strapping 166-pound tackle, and was a regular on the team.

Plans are under way for a large group of Wichitans to attend the Denton game, and the school is becoming enthused over the prospect of being for the first time in actual conference competition. It is planned to take a band and pep squad to Denton in two large busses, the pep squad meeting half the expense incurred in transportation.

Pep Rally Thursday

A big pep rally is scheduled at the school next Thursday night. The team will leave here about 7 o'clock Friday morning, and a delegation to bid them luck will be on hand when the busses roll out.

Coach Beck had his squad hard at work Monday on Wilson field, the school training grounds. A. G. Fletcher is showing up well in the backfield, and Walter Ruby, former fullback, is feeling at home in his tackle position, in which he lettered last year.

The practice session will continue daily through Thursday, Coach Beck announced.

403 TEAMS ARE IN STATE LEAGUE

AUSTIN, Oct. 13. (UP)—A total of 403 interscholastic football teams is competing in the state league, it was announced today by Roy Henderson, director. There are 71 schools in conference A and the remainder are in class B.

Victories Reflect Dodd's Great Generalship

By PAUL SANDERS
Associated Press Staff Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 13.—A cool, grinning youngster built on beanpole lines is the standout among the young Southern gentlemen who run around with footballs on autumn afternoons.

He is Bobby Dodd of Kingsport, Tenn., who strings 172 pounds over 6 feet 1½ inches and quarterbacks for Tennessee's Volunteers. The Vols haven't been beaten since 1926 and Bobby, playing his last year of college football, is one of the big reasons.

Although he seldom runs with the ball, Dixie coaches agree that he's one of the most valuable backs developed below the Mason and Dixon line in recent years.

They give him much of the credit for the exploits of the "touchdown twins," Hack and Mack.

His generalship, both of the attack and defense, is the biggest cause for that opinion. His punting, place-kicking and blocking are the others.

In 1929 returns of his punts averaged less than a yard. Distance and an uncanny ability to put them out of bounds in the corners have made his kicking one of the chief weapons of the Volunteers offense. He has the unique record of never having had a kick blocked.

His accurate passing has pulled the Vols out of many holes and enabled them to escape a defeat at the hands of Kentucky last year. It was a flip from Dodd to Hackman that enable the Tennesseans to get out of it with a 6-6 tie in the last two minutes of play.

Dodd's biggest day came in a New Year's all-star contest between teams representing northern and Southern divisions of the Dixie conference last winter. He out-generaled the southern team, threw two touchdown passes to Hackman, had an end blocked fat on his back when Hackman got loose for a long touchdown run, kicked three points after touchdown, booted three consecutive kickoffs over the goal line and crossed up the opposition with a pass from behind his own goal line that took his team, backed up close to its own goal line, out of danger.

This fall, with Eugene McEver, who led the country in scoring in 1929, out of early games with injuries, Dodd has added considerable running to his repertoire.

YALE ELEVEN VIOLATES RULE

Runner Scored With Ball That Had Been Fumbled

NEW YORK, Oct. 13. (AP)—Not that it makes any particular difference now, but in the old, gray, dawn of the morning after, it has been discovered that one of the Yale touchdowns against Georgia Saturday was not in accord with the football statutes, made and provided in such cases.

The miscarriage of justice came at the beginning of the second half when Yale was leading Georgia 7-6 and then increased the count to 14-6.

Fumbled Ball Recovered

Yale kicked off. The ball struck in the arms of Kelly, Georgia back, who ran a few steps to his own 20-yard line where he was hit hard by Captain Vincent of Yale. With the impact of the Yale tackle's body the ball bounded from the arms of Kelly straight into the hands of Barres, Yale end.

Barres caught the ball in his stride and dashed straight ahead over the goal line.

The officials evidently overlooked rule 6, governing the kick-off, for without a question the touchdown was allowed and the ball placed in position for the try for extra point, which was quickly added by Sullivan's toe.

Rule 6 says:

"If the ball is recovered by a player of the receiving team before it is declared dead, he may run with it, pass it backward or kick it; if the ball is recovered by a player of the kicking team the ball is dead at the point of recovery."

Official Gives Opinion

Walter R. Okeson, commissioner of the Eastern association for selection of football officials was asked by the Associated Press for an opinion on the play. Commissioner Okeson replied:

"Rule six says that if kicking team recovers the ball on a kick-off it is dead at the point of recovery and in a supplementary note it is stated that after the kickoff the ball is to be considered a kicked ball until it is declared dead; therefore, the kicking team may not run with the ball if recovered on a kick-off."

Captain Maffett of Georgia made no protest to Referee W. T. Halloran so far as could be observed from the stands, so perhaps he, too, had forgotten the rule against running with a fumbled ball. Or he might have been more confident than his team's supporters that the Georgians would score two touchdowns later in the afternoon the last and deciding one in the last two minutes of play.

8 BIG GAMES ON NEXT CARD

Intersectional Battles Again In Fore

NEW YORK, Oct. 13. (UP)—Eight intersectional contests, five of them holding general national interest, will enliven the program of college football Saturday.

Several of the games involve giants of their respective areas and the outcomes will have much to do with making and breaking of these teams' season records.

Ramblers Meet Carnegie

No game of Saturday will have more at stake in the way of prestige than the Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech contest at South Bend. Here we have two fine elevens, each boasting a fine early success.

Of the two, Notre Dame has the better record, for the Rockne men downed Southern Methodist and the Navy, while Carnegie Tech has but one major victory, the one scored Saturday over Georgia Tech. From this distance, the game looks like a toss-up, although there are plenty of critics ready to suggest that Notre Dame, "slated" to lose two games this season, will drop its first one Saturday.

Wisconsin and Pennsylvania are on the boards at Madison. This is another East vs. Midwest game. Wisconsin's record is the brighter of the two. The Badgers' 34-0 victory over Chicago appears more impressive than the 40-0 triumph Pennsy holds against Virginia. Wisconsin may be a favorite in this game, but Penn well might win.

Michigan State vs. Colgate, a third East-Midwest contest, is, to this observer, a definitely interesting game. Michigan State looked powerful in holding Michigan to a 0-0 tie, and today seems even more husky now that Michigan in turn beat the mighty Purdue eleven. Colgate, one of the heaviest teams in the country, has scored more points in three games than any other teams save one. The exception is Louisiana State with 232 points for three games.

Chicago vs. Florida

Chicago and Florida will have a fourth intersectional in the Midwest. Chicago didn't look so good in losing to Wisconsin Saturday and Florida has a fair record. It includes a 7-0 victory over Auburn which is no feat in itself.

Right here in New York we have the makings of a dramatic game. Missouri comes East to play N. Y. U. Missouri is "unvictorious" in starts against Colorado and St. Louis. Besides, Missouri is classed with Cooper Union, Connecticut Aggies and some other lesser lights as a team which has scored no points thus far.

N. Y. U. has appeared formidable. Its 20-6 victory over Villanova is a bright spot in the Violet record. But Missouri surely has brighter days ahead and Saturday may be one of them. N. Y. U., however, will be the vastly favored contestant.

Other games include Mexico university vs. Union university, Tennessee, at Mexico City.

'JOE' EXPECTED TO SIGN TODAY

McCarthy Certain to Be New Skipper of Yanks

NEW YORK, Oct. 13. (AP)—One day this week, possibly tomorrow, Joseph V. McCarthy is expected to visit the offices of the New York American league baseball club and sign a contract to manage the Yankees.

The Yankee offices today observed the Columbus day holiday, but they will be open tomorrow and the rest of the week. So the former manager of the Cubs may send his card and soon thereafter take a pen in hand to sign a contract.

Neither Jacob Ruppert, president, nor E. G. Barrow, secretary, has admitted McCarthy will transfer his allegiance from the National to the American league, but everyone else in baseball seems to have taken it for granted.

Singer Favorite In Bout Tonight

CHICAGO, Oct. 13. (UP)—Al Singer's impressive showing in training camp workouts has made the lightweight champion a 7 to 5 favorite to defeat Eddie Mack of Denver, in the feature 10-round bout at Chicago stadium tomorrow night. Mack has agreed to enter the ring above the lightweight limit and Singer's title will not be at stake.

Notre Dame's Ramblers May Play Mustangs in Dallas Next Year

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Soprts Writer

DALLAS, Oct. 13.—How many of the Southwest's football fans would like to see Notre Dame's famous Ramblers play Southern Methodist next year at, say $5 a throw?

Officials of the local school wish they knew. It could be arranged, they believe, if a sufficient number of customers would stand for the jolt. They are doubtful the Irish would consent to play in the new state fair bowl here at the customary $3 top.

Jordan Ownby, prominent alumnus and patron of the Mustang school, doesn't know whether it will be possible to bring Notre Dame to Texas next year, but of one thing he is certain: the Ramblers will not open their 1931 campaign against the Methodists.

"Rockne told me he didn't want to see anything of the Ponies until well up in October or November after this," Ownby said.

No matter what befalls them further along the football byways, the Rice Owls are entitled to three cheers and a tiger at mid-October. By winning their first four starts, the Instituters have outdone six conference rivals in the preliminaries.

Texas Christian, with four wins and a tie, has set the next best mark, and the University of Texas Longhorns, with two victories and a tie, are third. The other four have suffered defeat, the Aggies and Arkansas going down twice.

Of six intersectional games played, Southwest conference teams have lost five and tied one, the latter representing Texas' scoreless deadlock with Centenary. Not so good.

Although he played less than a half of the Arkansas game and had no part in running up his team's 40 points, Cy Leland of the Frogs continues to head the individual scorers. The flying Frog has 36 points, representing six touchdowns. "Red" Harris, Baylor end, holds second place with five touchdowns and 30 points. Other leaders are: Jamerson, Rice, 28; Lewter, Baylor, 26; Hinton, T. C. U., 25; Hopper, S. M. U., 24; McElreath, Baylor, 20; Dennis, T. C. U., 16; Wallace, Rice, 18, and Shelley, Texas, 18.

By scoring 160 points in five games to their opponents' seven the Horned Frogs have piled up by far the best team scoring mark.

'Arkansas' overwhelming loss to Texas Christian Saturday at Fort Worth must have been sweet music to the Centenary college Gentlemen. It provided another fine argument for the Gents in their effort to gain admittance to the Southwest conference.

Since memory of man runneth not to the contrary, the Shreveport eleven has wanted in, pointing out that it was more handy to the conference geographically and had stronger teams than the Razorbacks. In point of fact, the Gentlemen haven't been far from right in either contention, but the conference fathers so far have turned their nether ear.

On successive week ends Centenary has played the University of Texas to a scoreless tie and beaten the University of Iowa. Arkansas meantime, was being drubbed by Tulsa university and the Horned Frogs.

Rice freshmen against Edinburg Junior college at Edinburg.

KANSAN WINS MEDAL HONORS

Mrs. O. S. Hill Leads Women's Amateur

LOS ANGELES COUNTRY Club, Los Angeles, Oct. 13. (AP)—While the galleries followed the defending title holder and other stars, Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, not spectacular but decidedly steady, slipped in today to post a fine 79, two under par, and capture medal honors in the qualifying round of the 1930 women's national amateur golf championship.

The Missouri golfer, who took up the game in the last decade, gave a practical demonstration that average length shots straight down the middle surpass hard wallops that wander into the rough and the old axiom "never up, never in," is current in activities on the greens. She went out in 40, one over par, but lopped three strokes off standard figures with a 39 for the inward stretch.

That bit of sub-par golf was good enough to show the way to Miss Glenna Collett, New York City, seeking her third successive title and fifth all-time crown, and others whose names are considerably better known.

One stroke behind the leader came Helen Hicks, the 19-year-old miss from Inwood, Long Island, N. Y., with an 80. Tied for third place with par 81's were Miss Collett, Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicage, and Miss Maureen Orcutt, of Hawarth, N. J.

An 82 placed Mrs. Leona Pressler, San Gabriel, runner-up in this event last year, well up among the leaders. Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia, real veteran of the field, qualified easily with an 85.

Sutter Defeats Wilmer Allison

HOUSTON, Oct. 13. (AP)—Clifford Sutter of Tulane, national intercollegiate champion, defeated Wilmer Allison, Davis cup ace, 9-7, 6-0, in an exhibition tennis match here today.

Sutter then teamed with Bruce Barnes of the University of Texas to defeat Lewis White, of Austin, and Allison, in doubles, 9-7, 3-6, 6-3.

Miss Virginia Cuniff recently sank a hole-in-one with a 125-yard mashie rap at the Oakhurst Country club at Tulsa, Okla.

Cubs Purchase Philly Pitcher

CHICAGO, Oct. 13. (AP)—The Cubs today purchased Lester Sweetland, left-handed pitcher, from the Philadelphia Nationals, their first move to strengthen the pitching staff that sagged at the close of the recent campaign.

President William L. Veeck said the deal was strictly cash, but did not reveal the amount involved. Sweetland was with the Phillies three seasons, coming up from Spartanburg of the Sally league. He won six games and lost 15 with a last place club during the recent season, and won 13 and lost 11 in 1929 when the Phillies finished fifth. He was credited with three victories and 15 defeats in 1928.

MOORE COUNTY GETS OIL LINE

Bartex Extends Unit to Morton Pool

Special to The Record News

AMARILLO, Texas, Oct. 13.—The Moore county area of the Panhandle field of Northwest Texas, which has been highly regarded since late in 1926, when the first oil was found in that sector, with later discoveries in 1927, 1928 and 1929, is promised a chance.

The Bartex Pipe Line company, the transportation unit of Phillips Petroleum company, has extended its lines to the Morton pool and has conected to the Operators Oil company-Sunray Oil company No. 1 Jones, which opened a new pool early this year. It ran an average of 228 barrels a day the week just ended.

Expiring leases in 1931 and 1932 has made lease owners nervous, knowing that even if they get an oil well, the matter of getting the production out was yet to be worked out. Therefore the news of the Bartex extension makes Moore county loom big for the Panhandle.

Hutchinson County

Smith & McDonald at No. 2-A Pitcher, in the southwest of section 19, block M21, was completed for 290 barrels after a 250 quart shot in pay from 3040 to 3135 feet. Total depth is 3155 feet. It was shut down after testing because no pipe line connection was available. It is in the north line of producers in the Skellytown area and is the largest well to date in that locality.

Timms and others No. 2 Moore, in the southwest of section 21, block M21, and a mile north of Skellytown, was estimated as a 400 to 500 barrel well after two small shots in pay from 3053 to 3120 feet. It was cleaning out 100 feet of cavings after the shot.

Gray County

British American Oil Producing company No. 3 Smith, in the northwest of section 138, block 3, of I. & G. N. survey, was completed for 600 barrels after a 150 quart shot in pay from 3175 to 3228 feet. It is the largest well to date in the dolomite area west of Pampa.

Bob Dunlop at No. 6-B Morse, in the northwest of section 2, block 26, H. & G. N. survey, was completed for 380 barrels after a 400 quart shot in pay from 2602 to 2700 feet. It is producing from the narrow dolomitic strip along the north side of the granite ridge in east central Gray county.

H. H. Sanders will operate the east 160 acres of the south 264 acres of the north half of section 136, block 3, of I. & G. N. survey, which he obtained from the Shell for 7-16th of all oil to be produced from the first four producers and 7-32 from all wells thereafter. The Shell retains the gas rights. It is east of the sensational Graham well now making about 3600 barrels a day, most of which is being sold locally at 25 cents a barrel under the posted market price.

How the Panhandle counties produced follows:

	Last week wells	Last week barrels	Previous week wells	Previous week barrels
Carson	227	7,137	225	6,951
Gray	675	35,247	675	34,759
Hutchinson	938	16,680	938	16,136
Moore	21	559	20	320

Confessed Slayer Hangs Himself

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13. (AP)—Shortly after Tony Colletto, 21, confessed killer of his young bride, was found dead early today, hanging by his belt in county jail here, his attorneys charged that both of the killings were committed by gangsters connected with the corn sugar racket in Cleveland.

Judge Samuel H. Silbert ordered a grand jury investigation.

Colletto was to have gone on trial today charged with first degree murder of his 18-year-old wife, Christina.

Attorneys Sarah Hedrick and William F. Marsteller said Tony and Christina were killed because they "knew too much." Colletto allegedly was a witness to the gang slayings of Joe Porello and Sam Tilocco, former Cleveland corn sugar dealers.

Daugherty, former president of the Ohio State bank and one against Virgil Vincent, local grain dealer and a heavy borrower from the banks.

Daugherty, brother of former Attorney General Harry M. YOUNG CANNON BLAMES 'DAD'

Bishop's Son Must Face Check Charges

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13. (INS)—Richard M. Cannon, son of Bishop James Cannon Jr., of the M. E. church, South, for whom warrants have been issued in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties, Calif., in connection with some allegedly worthless checks, in effect today blamed his father for his troubles.

He came here to "consult" with his father on "some exceedingly important matters," a statement he issued, said.

He said that for two years he had "been the target of frequent attacks not because I am R. M. Cannon, but because I am one of the sons of Bishop James Cannon Jr."

He declared it significant that his Los Angeles office had been burned and important and valuable papers destroyed four days before he left there. He said the bad check charges would be "answered satisfactorily at the proper place and time."

STATE: "The Forward Pass" with Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Loretta Young. Short subjects and sound news.
STRAND: Mitzi Green, Eugene Pallette and Junior Durkin in "The Santa Fe Trail." Charley Chase comedy, talkartoon and sound news. Reginald Denny. Short subjects and news.
MAJESTIC: "Those Three French Girls" with Fifi Dorsay and Comedy.
GEM: Bebe Daniels an Ben Lyons in "Alias French Gertie."

People don't like to see reality anyhow. "The Forward Pass" will fill the bill, because it is entertaining and it shows the dear old collitch daze as most people would like to believe they are.

Only college students will detect those spots through which one can only be dragged by a firm belief in fairies, Santa Claus and farm relief. There is, for instance, the sorority president, beautiful 18-year-old girl, who has never been kissed! (and the college isn't a convent).

She sits in her lavishly decorated room, dressed in a filmy, glistening thing that would make Polly Moran beautiful, and talks over the telephone, beside which is a huge basket of roses. Fond parents will say, "I suppose that's what Helen is doing right now!" And only collegians themselves will realize that Helen is probably sitting in an old smock in a tiny bare room, wondering if the telephone downstairs will ring. Maybe there are gorgeous-looking sorority presidents who have never been kissed and maybe there are colleges where telephones are in every room and maybe business is getting better.

Even to hard-boiled collegians, however, the picture is enjoyable. The male glee club, the freshman quartet, the spindle-legged soprano and the remarkable football shots make it a decidedly above-par college picture. There really isn't any more hokum than in all football movies.

There is even a new twist to the last-minute winning of the game by the dear old Alma Mater. Reinspired by his lady-love's devotion, the hero goes in and makes two touchdowns in the last five minutes instead of just one.

The picture is really delightfully entertaining, much more so than a picture of real college life would be, and comes nearer being worth the admission price than some pictures which have had much more ballyhoo.

Douglas Fairbanks Jr., has the famous grin of his daddy and ought to get some real parts in the next few years. He is outgrowing the juvenile stage and seems to be ready for promotion, but he needs a different part.
