Radio reports say Soviet diplomat slain

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Christian-controlled radio station quoted an anonymous caller as saying kidnappers killed a Soviet diplomat today because a deadline passed to end the militia fighting in the northern port of Tripoli.

The Voice of Lebanon radio said the caller identified the man as the cultural attache of the Soviet Embassy who was one of four Soviet diplomatic personnel kidnapped Monday in Beirut.

There was no independent confirmation of the report.

Anonymous callers who claimed responsibility for the kidnappings have threatened to kill the Soviets unless the Soviet Union uses its influence with Syria to halt fighting in the northern city of Tripoli. Syrian supported militias are battling fundamentalists Molems militias in the port.

According to the radio's account, the caller did not give the Soviet's name. On Monday, police said the embassy cultural attache, Arkady Katakov, was one of the four men abducted.

The Voice of Lebanon radio said the caller claimed the attache was killed at 1 p.m. (6 a.m. EDT). That was the deadline given in an earlier telephone call by a man who demanded that Syria restrain militia allies fighting Tawheed forces in Tripoli.

Earlier, the Voice of the Nation radio, which is controlled by Moslems, said an anonymous caller told the station the Soviets would be killed one every hour starting at midday (5 a.m. EDT).

On Monday, three Soviet diplomats and a doctor were kidnapped from their cars in west Beirut. Two groups claimed responsibility.

A statement from the "Islamic Liberation Organization — Khaled Ibn al-Walid Forces" distributed to Beirut newspapers today threatened the group would kill the Soviets unless fighting in Tripoli ended.

"We shall execute them all. We shall have no mercy," said the statement. "The attack on Moslem Tripoli should stop. The heretic forces should pull back from around this heroic city. The responsibility for the lives of the Soviet captives lies with these forces and Syria."

On Monday anonymous telephone callers who claimed to represent the Islamic Jihad told two Western news agencies that the group had abducted the Soviets.

The callers said Islamic Jihad would kill the Soviets unless Moscow pressured Syria, its main ally in the Middle East, to restrain pro-Syrian militias armed with Soviet-made tanks in Tripoli.

The kidnappers had set the deadline to kill the Soviets one per hour after leftist forces loyal to Syria broke through defenses of Moslem fundamentalists in the northern port of Tripoli.

The battle for control of Lebanon's second largest city began Sept. 15. About 450 people have died in the fighting.

At least 60 held as protest spreads in West Germany

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Protests against a neo-Nazi party meeting spread to seven cities early today and police said at least 60 people were arrested after demonstrators set fires and hurled rocks.

The overnight rampages followed three days of protests against the conference of the National Democratic Party in Frankfurt and the death Saturday of 36-year-old Guenther Sare, who was run over by a police truck carrying a water cannon.

Interior Ministry spokesman Hans-Guenter Kowalski said in Bonn that the party has adopted some of the principles and goals of the Nazi Party that ruled Germany from 1933-1945.

The party, established in 1964, has about 6,100 members and about 6,000 people in various affiliated organizations, the Interior Ministry said. It has called for the expulsion of all foreigners from West Germany and the reunification of West Germany and East Germany.

Authorities today reported disturbances in Frankfurt, Hamburg, Berlin, Hanover, Goettingen, Braunschweig and Uelzen.

The Hesse state Interior Ministry on Monday appointed a special commission to investigate the circumstances of Sare's death. The Frankfurt prosecutor's office said 16 special investigators were questioning witnesses.

Hamburg police said they arrested four people after several dozen marchers set five fires and threw rocks at buildings, shattering windows.

Israeli planes bomb PLO facility

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Six Israeli warplanes bombed the headquarters of the Palestine Liberation Organization today. Isreal radio and the Israeli military command said at least 20 people were killed.

Nabil Amer, a PLO spokesman in Amman, Jordan, said in a telephone interview, "we think there are about 35 wounded or killed." In Cairo, Egypt, a PLO spokesman said one person was killed and "a number" of people were wounded.

There was no explanation for the different casualty figures.

The Israeli military command said the raid in the southern suburb of Borg Cedria, about 20 miles south of Tunis, was in retaliation for the killing of three Israelis in Cyprus last week.

Israel radio said at least 20 people were killed, including a bodyguard of PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat. PLO sources said Arafat was not hurt.

The PLO's Cairo spokesman Osama Sharab said Arafat "is in good health and was not injured. He inspected those who were wounded in the attack." He said he talked with Arafat by telephone after the raid.

Transcripts say 'tornado,' 'spout' seen before Delta crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — A "tornado" or "waterspout" was seen at the end of a Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport in the minutes before Delta Flight 191 crashed while trying to land Aug. 2.

But National Transportation Safety Board documents indicated Monday the pilot of Flight 191 never was warned of the storm's severity. Less than 10 minutes before the crash he was told by air traffic controllers that there was "only a little rain" north of the airport.

A transcript of exchanges in the cockpit just before the crash supported the wind-shear theory because the crew could be heard struggling to increase power amid the backdrop of engines revving to maximum power.

Investigators have speculated that the, which killed 136 people, was caused by wind shear, a severe change of wind direction that literally forced the Lockheed L-1011 jumbo jet into the ground as it was about to land.

"Push it up, push it way up, way up," pilot Edward Connors exhorted his co-pilot, Rudolph Price Jr.

"Way up," Price responded, with the sounds of the engines increasing power and the "whoop, whoop, pull up pull up' warning of the ground proximity alarm in the background.

This was followed by a sound similar to a landing and someone saying, "Oh ..." and what the NTSB called a non-printable word. Almost immediately there was the sound of a second impact and silence.

The flight, from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was bound for Los Angeles with an interim stop at Dallas when it encountered heavy rain, lightning and trecherous winds short of the runway. The plane first touched down in a field, bounded across a highway where it struck a car and crashed into water tanks before bursting into flames.

According to the transcript from the cockpit voice recorder, the crew was concerned during the approach about severe weather in the area. Several times they criticized air traffic controllers for directing them too close to a severe weather cell.

"We're going to get our airplane washed," Price, a 15-year veteran with Delta, remarked. A short time later, about 90 seconds before the crash, he observed lightning "right ahead of us" as the plane continued its descent.

"You get good legs, don't ya," quipped the flight engineer, referring to the co-pilot and pilot switching off flying duties on different legs of the trip. The co-pilot was at the controls.

As they spoke, another Delta crew, its plane taxiing away from the runway after having landed, already had noticed the severe weather along the approach path.

"Is that a waterspout out there on the end (of the runway)?" the pilot of the Boeing 737 remarked.

"I don't know. Sure looks like it, doesn't it? Looks like a tornado or something. I've never seen anything like it," the co-pilot replied.

About 2½ minutes later, the two Delta crew members, neither of whom was identified, saw the fireball beyond the runway where Flight 191 had crashed.

James Fitz-Gerald III sworn as judge of new County Court-at-Law

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

James "Jim" Fitz-Gerald III today was sworn in as judge of Midland County's newly created County Court-at-Law.

"You already are a distinguished judge," said 238th Texas State District Court Judge Vann Culp moments before he swore Fitz-Gerald into office in a courtroom full of county officials and employees, friends, fellow laywers, and relatives.

Fitz-Gerald, 53, former judge of Midland's Municipal Court, was selected to the judgeship on Sept. 9 by the Midland County Commissioners' Court. His 1986 salary is set at $53,232.

He now commands Midland County Court-at-Law No. 2, which was created in 1985 by the Texas Legislature at the behest of the county commissioners, and today was to leave for McAllen to attend a judicial conference.

"I think he'll be a tremendous judge," said Michael Abrams II, a former Municipal Court judge who served on the bench with Fitz-Gerald. "I know that as a fact. He's dedicated to this. There's no doubt he'll be great. He'll be a great asset to Midland County."

Fitz-Gerald's court virtually will parallel that of Judge Willie DuBose, who has been presiding judge of Midland County Court-at-Law No. 1 since February 1978 when the court was activated and he was appointed to the judgeship by the Commissioners' Court at a $22,733 salary. He also is the county's juvenile-court judge. DuBose, who then was in the private practice of law, is a former Midland County attorney. His 1986 salary, pegged at $55,872, includes longevity pay.

In the brief ceremony, Culp presented Fitz-Gerald with a copy of the "Ten Commandments for the New Judge," written by Federal Judge Edward J. Devitt of Minnesota. The commandments suggested the judge:

- Be Kind.
- Be Patient.
- Be Dignfied.
- Don't Take Yourself Too Seriously.
- Remember That A Lazy Judge Is A Poor One.

City welcomes Partners in Education

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

A new mission is unfolding in communities across the nation and, today, the Midland Independent School District and the Midland Chamber of Commerce welcomed it with open arms, saying "howdy partner!"

Or rather, howdy Partners in Education!

Partners in Education is "one of the most important programs you can implement in this community," Dan Bullock, past director of the Governor's Office of Community Leadership and current account executive with the investment firm of Kidder Peabody of Austin, said during the program's unveiling early today.

The program, a voluntary formal arrangement between private sector entities and schools, is designed to match educational needs with available private sector resources to improve the quality of education within a community.

Successful partnerships will serve to facilitate communication and understanding between schools and the private sector in order to strengthen the bonds of the community as a whole, Bullock said.

"You've got a good school system. That's a fact, but there are some inequities in this school system just like every other school system in this state," he said. "We need community support in every way in our public schools."

In Midland, MISD Superintendent Dr. Joseph Baressi said, partners will work with computer science instructors in each of the city's three junior high schools. Their function will be to serve as assistants to the instructors in terms of role-models and business professionals.

Local participants are to include representatives of First City National Bank, Texas American Bank and the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

Baressi said, specific classes involved are newly-required computer literacy courses whereby volunteers will be trained on the specific needs of the students and be familiar with business application of computers.

As the program develops, volunteers may be recruited to assist in other areas, he added.

Successful partnerships exist "all over the state and all over the nation," according to Bullock.

In Houston, the Downtown Rotary Vocational Education Committee has pledged to raise $1 million over the next five years to purchase computers and provide the training manpower for Worthing High School.

In Los Angeles, Calif., the Dodgers baseball team has developed an educational program for sixth-grade students at Solano Avenue Elementary School where students learn about job responsibilities in the Dodger organization including accounting, public relations and ticket marketing. The players also speak to students about nutrition, spiritual values and alcohol and drug abuse.

The Alumni Association of George Washington High School in New York, N.Y. provides assistance to students through a series of anti-dropout, remedial, job placement and scholarship programs.

The Capital Hilton Hotel and the Washington Hotel Association in Washington D.C. sponsor a program in hotel management and culinary arts at Roosevelt High School including ten weeks of paid, on-the-job training.

Debt ceiling vote will invite balancing act

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — When Congress votes this week on raising the debt ceiling to $2 trillion, Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and several co-sponsors from both parties will try to attach their plan to balance the budget by 1990.

"We have no choice except to raise the debt ceiling," said Gramm, "but we do have a choice about the conditions under which the debt ceiling is raised.

Saying they intend to "pay our bills," the senators also said they will "call in the credit cards."

A Gramm spokesman said Monday the senator counts 40 votes for the proposal and hopes to have a majority by the time the debt ceiling bill comes to a vote.

Described by sponsors as an "emergency" measure to be in effect through Oct. 1, 1990, the legislation amends the budget process to set a maximum allowable deficit ceiling, beginning with the $172 billion dollar deficit in the 1986 budget, and reducing the allowable deficit in four equal steps to zero in fiscal 1990.

The plan would be suspended upon a declaration of war.

This is how the proposal would work:

The president would be required to submit budgets with deficits no greater than the maximum allowed in the new law. It would not be in order on the floor of either the House or Senate to consider any budget which violates these deficit ceilings.

Also, it would not be in order for any member of Congress to offer a floor amendment to the budget resolution which is not a "zero sum" amendment.

"We have no choice except to raise the debt ceiling, but we do have a choice about the conditions under which the debt ceiling is raised."

— Sen. Phil Gramm

Gramm, an economics professor before being elected to Congress, said while the legislation is in effect, an "automatic mid-course correction process" would be used to eliminate any projected deficit more than the maximum limit for each fiscal year. Both the Office of Management and Budget — the president's budget office — and the Congressional Budget Office would make deficit projections.

Projected deficits exceeding the limit would be eliminated by holding back (sequestering) on automatic increases and controllable expenditures across the board by a uniform percentage.

Gramm pointed out that when issuing a sequester order, the president may propose to Congress an alternative way of eliminating the deficit overage. The budget committees can report reconciliation measures either in response to the president or at their own initiative to end the deficit overage in ways other than across-the-board sequestering. Such resolutions, however, would not be in order unless they eliminated the deficit overage.

The president would be authorized to delay the sequester order for 30 days in case the projected Gross National Product estimate is negative — indicating a recession — and may propose to Congress alternatives to across-the-board cuts, including suspending provisions of the bill.

Any change in the emergency legislation would have to be approved by both houses of Congress and signed by the president.

Among the co-sponsors are Sens. Warren Rudman, R-N.J., Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C.; David Boren, D-Okla.; William S. Cohen, R-Maine; Charles E. Grassley, R-Iowa; Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah; Jesse Helms, R-N.C.; Mack Mattingly, R-Ga.; James A. McClure, R-Idaho; Mitch McConnell, R-Ky.; Frank H. Murkowski, R-Ky. and Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo.

Boren, in a Monday statement, said he would not vote to raise the debt limit unless this provision, or something similar, is approved "to move us to a balanced federal budget."

Boren also suggested that any increase in the debt limit should be effective for only 30 to 60 days so that pressure to bring down the deficit will force members of Congress to repeatedly vote on the matter.

The current debt ceiling increase is projected for one year.

Monday, the government closed the books on fiscal 1985 with a record yearly deficit of $200.3 billion.

Cape Town school openings boycotted

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Tens of thousands of students boycotted Cape Town's mixed-race schools which reopened today after a nearly month-long closure because of rioting, and police said three more blacks died in anti-apartheid violence.

Police headquarters in Pretoria reported scattered unrest in Cape Town and seven other areas. Two blacks were burned to death by mobs, and police shot and killed a third man in a rock-throwing crowd, police said.

From Lusaka, Zambia, the outlawed African National Congress guerrilla group claimed responsibility for three bombs that went off in department stores in downtown Durban last Friday. It said they were part of a campaign "to take the struggle to the white areas."

No one s hurt in the three explosions, which came just after closing time. ANC spokesman Tom Sebina said in reply to a question from The Associated Press :hat the blasts were part of "the intensification of general struggle throughout the country."

President P.W. Botha won praise from some whites for the conciliatory tone of a speech Monday night in which he pledged some concessions to blacks, including participation in a presidential advisory council. But others dismissed it as lacking specifics on the central black demand for a genuine share in national power.

Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi, leader of millions of Zulus, said of Botha's speech, "If his brand of power-sharing is a fact of life in South Africa, then we will be committed to an upward spiralling of violence and continued unrest."

AP Laserphoto

South African President P.W. Botha addresses a congress of his ruling National Party in Port Elizabeth.

The school boycott took place in defiance of government appeals for students to return to classes today, the first day of the final term. Authorities shut down 464 schools on Sept. 6 after two weeks of rioting that left at least three dozen people dead. The action threw more than 360,000 pupils out of classes.

More than 1,000 primary school and high school students gathered at the campus of the University of the Western Cape in Bellville, east of Cape Town, for a rally to debate whether to return to school later in the week.

Reporters who toured Cape Town's mixed-race schools found most buildings deserted.

Students leaders demanded the right to elect freely their student councils, the withdrawal of soldiers from the townships and the release of detained activists.

Police said rioting against apartheid, the government's segregation policies, broke out late Monday and early today in black and mixed-race townships near Johannesburg, the eastern Transvaal and Cape Town.

The charred body of an unidentified black man was found in Umlazi township near Durban, where fighting between rival black groups over the weekend left at least six others dead. The body of another black man was found in Stutterheim, a small town in the eastern Cape Province. During rioting in Stutterheim, police also shot dead one black man, they said.

In Duncan Village near East London, another black man was badly burned when a crowd set fire to him. A police riot patrol rescued him and brought him to a hospital in critical condition, the police report said.

In the past 13 months of anti-apartheid violence, blacks have frequently attacked other blacks accused of collaborating with the white-minority government. More than 750 blacks have been killed during that time — about two-thirds of them by police, and the rest by other blacks, the government says.

In his speech Monday night to a congress of his National Party, Botha said his party was working to dismantle apartheid. But he emphasized that the rights of the whites and other minorities must be protected, and suggested a kind of federal system with rights for the different races in their own areas.

The address was devoid of the defiant language that has characterized other recent speeches, and the influential Business Day newspaper said his remarks were "undoubtedly the most positive statement of reform he has yet made."

"But words are no substitute for action," the paper added. The proposal to include blacks on the President's Council is unlikely "to put out any fires in Soweto — 'r, for that matter, convince overseas banks to reopen credit lines to South Africa."

BOMBING

A large fire broke out in the suburb and fire trucks and ambulances rushed to the scene, witnesses said, who also reported seeing wounded being put into the ambulances.

A statement by Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel-Meguid denounced the attack as a "heinous criminal action." It said it was suspending talks with Israel over a border dispute.

Tunisian Ambassador to France Hedi Mabrouk called the raid "state terrorism." He said it resulted in "many victims, not only Palestinians."

Amer, the PLO spokesman in Amman, said Arafat had contacted PLO officials in Amman and said there was a meeting taking place in Tunis "for the leadership and the high cadres."

Palestinian sources in Tunis said PLO officials were meeting in the neighborhood at the time of the raid but that Arafat was not present.

Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported from Tunis that planes hit the coastal area of Hammam el-Shatt, where Arafat's residence is located. It said there was "serious loss of life and serious damage to buildings."

Israel Radio said Tunisian hospitals were asking for urgent blood donations. The radio quoted monitor Mickey Gurdus, who was listening to radio stations in Tunis.

Israel Radio said the bombing occurred at 11 a.m. (5 a.m. EDT) and Prime Minister Shimon Peres and Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin were in constant contact during the raid.

Witnesses in Tunisia said the Star of David was visible on the planes.

The raid, 1,500 miles from Israeli soil, comes six days after three Israelis were killed aboard their yacht in the marina at Larnaca, Cyprus.

PLO members claimed responsibility for the killings. However, the PLO has issued repeated denials and condemned the attack.

Israel insists the PLO's Force 17 was responsible but a Cyprus government spokesman said police inquiries have not established a PLO link.

The Israeli military command said its warplanes hit the headquarters of Force 17 as well as a PLO operational base. They refueled in flight and returned safely back to Israel, the command said.

"This area is under total control of the PLO. Those headquarters are responsible for several terrorist acts and crimes against innocent civilians, including the woman and two men in Larnaca," the command announcement said.

The PLO established its headquarters in Tunis after being driven out of Beirut in 1982 by the Israelis.

Military sources said the PLO bases near Tunis existed "under the protection and encouragement of the Tunisian authorities who allocated the camp to the PLO organization."

The bombing attack came as Jordan's King Hussein was in the United States discussing ways to start peace talks between Israel and a joint Palestinian-Jordanian team.

LEBANON

Militiamen of the Moscow-oriented Lebanese Communist Party are fighting alongside militias of the Syrian-backed Arab Democratic Party, the Syrian Social Nationalist Party and the Baath party to control Tripoli.

They accuse their foes, Tawheed Islami or the Islamic Unification Movement, of allowing Yasser Arafat to ship arms to his Palestine Liberation Organization through the port.

Syria is determined to keep Arafat from rebuilding the power base the PLO lost in Israel's 1982 invasion of Lebanon.

Police said today that 179 people have been killed and 341 wounded since Saturday, most of them combatants.

The Islamic Liberation Organization sent photocopies of the Lebanese residence permits of two of the Soviets along with its statement. All Beirut newspapers published the permits of Katakov and Oleg Spirin, a commercial attache.

The other two captives were identified by the embassy and Lebanese police as Second Secretary Valery Kornev and the embassy's doctor, Nikolai Versky.

Islamic Jihad made its claims in telephone calls to Western news agencies. The agencies asked they not be identified.

The Associated Press bureau in Beirut also received a call from a man claiming to represent Islamic Jihad who said in Arabic that the Soviets "will not be freed until the siege of Tripoli is lifted." He hung up without mentioning any death threat.

Leaders of the Shiite Moslem Amal militia said today they hope to persuade the kidnappers of six American and four French hostages to release their victims.

Islamic Jihad has claimed responsibility for the abduction of the Americans and the Frenchmen, and demands the release of 17 men imprisoned in Kuwait for a series of bombings.

The Americans kidnapped in Lebanon since January 1984 are William Buckley, 57, a political officer at the U.S. Embassy in Beirut; Peter Kilburn, 60, a librarian at the American University of Beirut; the Rev. Martin Lawrence Jenco, 50, a Roman Catholic priest; Terry A. Anderson, 37, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press; David Jacobsen, 54, administrator of the American University Hospital, and Thomas Sutherland, 54, acting dean of agriculture at the American University.

"There is much to be said for the view that a kindly and patient man who is not a profound lawyer will make a far better judge ... than an ill-tempered genius,'" elaborated the "Be Patient" Commandment.

John Gunter, president of the Midland County Bar Association, said the Midland County commissioners should be thanked for their "foresight" in creating the court-at-law and naming Fitz-Gerald the court's judge.

"I think their choice is excellent," Gunter said. "He's got the temperament, the intelligence and whatever it takes to be a good judge."

Fitz-Gerald said he was "delighted" in the judgeship and to go to "work with a lot of talented and dedicated people."

County Commissioner Win Brown cited Fitz-Gerald's temperament and talent among his "many assets. I really think he is the one for the job. I think he is the ideal one."

"I think it's a great appointment," said Commissioner C. Wallace "Wally" Craig. "For once, we (commissioners) did great. We did something right."

Midland lawyer Bill Smith said Fitz-Gerald will be "an excellent judge. He was an excellent judge when he was city judge, and he's an excellent lawyer."

Fitz-Gerald had been Midland's Municipal Court judge from January 1979 until November 1984 when he resigned his $45,864-a-year post to protest the re-organization of Municipal Court. The Midland City Council had elected to strip court administrative duties from Fitz-Gerald and to place those duties in direct control of city manager, Jim Brown. Four months later, in March 1985, Fitz-Gerald's companion judge, Abrams, submitted his resignation. He said he had been "unhappy with the way the Council treated" Fitz-Gerald.

"I hope that my values and attitudes are reflective of common sense, fairness and justice," Fitz-Gerald said.

In West Berlin, police said they arrested 55 people after some of the 1,600 protesters at a silent vigil clashed with police, set small fires and hurled stones at police cars.

Four West Berlin police officers were injured, officials said.

In Frankfurt, leftists vowed to rally again today after riot police blocked them from marching through downtown to protest Sare's death, but city hall spokesman Alexander Gauland said riot police were ordered to prevent protesters from marching through the city.

Police spokesman Hans Neitzel said that a pirate radio station broadcasting in southwestern areas called for an "armed demonstration" tonight in Frankfurt.

High school exit tests begin

State school officials estimate that about 24 percent of all those taking the two-hour English language test today will make a failing grade while 25 percent will flunk the math test on Wednesday — a total of about 62,000 students.

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas high school students scheduled to graduate in 1987 began taking special tests today to determine if they know enough to get a diploma.

About 62,000, or one-fourth of the state's 11th graders, will flunk the "exit-level" tests, school officials predict.

Black and Hispanic students could be hit even harder.

Juniors in every high school in Texas faced 72 multiple-choice questions about reading and writing today.

Wednesday, the same students will get 72 math questions.

Texas Education Agency officials say state and local results of the tests will not be available until the middle of November or late November.

"I anticipate the worst," Jon Brumley, chairman of the State Board of Education, said about the mandatory English and math tests ordered by the 1984 major school reform bill.

"You're going to have a lot of unhappy people out there, and I don't know if they will take their wrath out on the local school district or the state," Brumley said.

Attorneys for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Education Fund said they would watch test results closely for any discrimination. The organization already has blocked, at least temporarily, a Texas school test required for college students who want to become teachers.

The "exit-level" examinations will be the first of four chances that students will have to meet academic standard set for the 1984 major school reform legislation.

Those who fail this week's tests, and following exams, will not get a diploma.

State school officials estimate that about 24 percent of all those taking the two-hour English language test today will make a failing grade while 25 percent will flunk the math test on Wednesday — a total of about 62,000 students.

They also have estimated the failing grades among all blacks will be at least 45 percent and 35 percent for all Hispanics.

Those making failing grades will be able to take the exit-level tests again on May 1-2, and two more times during their senior year, said Pat Potter, Texas Education Agency director for special programs.

State Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby has predicted to the Board of Education that the passing average will rise rapidly the next two years as the state's new emphasis on academics in schools becomes effective.

The tougher new curriculum standards, laid down by the Legislature, did not become effective until the 1985-86 school year.

The Legislature's mandate for exit-level tests also requires school districts to provide courses to help those students who do not make passing scores. Special remedial help must be provided each failing student.

The Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills tests initially consisted of four multiple-choice questions on each of 18 objectives in both the mathematics and English language arts tests, making a total of 144 questions.

However, the Board of Education at its July meeting agreed that students should not be penalized for missing any of the questions in areas not adequately taught to them before the reforms took effect. As a result, wrong answers on eight English test questions and 20 math questions won't be counted.

Students must answer 70 percent of the remaining 116 questions correctly.

Although the graduation test is new to Texas, some form of minimum competency test as a graduation requirement is required in 17 other states.

Insurance woes plague 'waste busters'

HOUSTON (AP) — A number of engineering firms may stop seeking government contracts to clean up hazardous waste sites because firms are having a difficult time obtaining liability insurance.

Thirteen Houston area sites are on the federal Superfund list for priority cleanup and another has been nominated, according to the Texas Water Commission.

Jim Williamson, senior vice president of Houston engineering firm Lockwood, Andrew & Newman Inc., said his company lost its insurance coverage for waste-related work on Aug. 1. The firm is working three Superfund projects in Harris and Liberty counties.

"We're contractually obligated unless we can terminate those contracts we're working on now," said Williamson. "But the contracts require insurance. In effect, we're in breach of all three contracts right this minute."

Under the Superfund law, engineering firms that clean up a waste site are just as liable for environmental damage as the polluter.

In the wake of several accidents, such as chemical leaks in Bhopal, India, and West Virginia, insurance companies are raising the rates they charge for cleanup liability.

"Those firms (engineers) are having their premiums double and triple, and their deductibles are going up 500 percent," said Connie Neuman, spokeswoman for the American Counsulting Engineers Council.

Larry Bory, a Washington lobbyist for the council, told The Houston Post the rate increases are likely to deter engineers from seeking Superfund cleanup projects.

"The most experiences and capable firms, without adequate protection...will choose not to participate in this program because the risk is just too large," Bory said.

Bramlette McClelland, president of McClelland Engineers Inc. in Houston, said his company is evaluating what type of cleanup work is too risky to continue.

Carpenter faces jury Wednesday in Catholic priest's shooting death

LIBERTY (AP) — A carpenter accused of shooting a Catholic priest as he knelt in prayer faces the death penalty or life in prison after being convicted of capital murder.

A jury deliberated for three hours Monday before convicting David Wayne DeBlanc, 29, of Ames, of killing the Rev. Henry Bouchie, 68. Bouchie was shot during a robbery Feb. 19, 1983, at the rectory of Our Mother of Mercy Church in Ames, where he lived.

The jury will hear testimony in State District Judge Clarence Cain's court Wednesday in the punishment phase of the trial.

"The evidence showed that DeBlanc is guilty not only beyond a reasonable doubt, but beyond any doubt," assistant prosecutor Jerry Andress told the jury in closing arguments Monday.

But defense attorney Craig Washington countered saying, "If this same stuff (evidence) were being offered to you as a used car, you wouldn't buy it."

He said the prosecution's star witness, Arlington Gary Mark, 32, a laborer from Ames, may have been the actual trigger man.

Mark, also charged with the capital murder of the priest, admitted conspiring with DeBlanc to burglarize the church in Ames, a predominantly black community with a rich French and Catholic heritage.

Mark testified DeBlanc had gone beyond their original plans by entering the rectory. Mark said he was outside when he heard a gunshot. DeBlanc, he said, later bragged about killing Bouchie.

Washington tried to discredit the five other witnesses who testified DeBlanc had bragged to them about killing the priest.

Washington introduced a tape recording into evidence in which he said one of the witnesses told him he thought he was to share in a $50,000 reward for his testimony.

"Throw $50,000 to a band of thieves and see how they kill each other," Washington said. "There's nothing they won't do."

The prosecution has said the amount of the reward has not been determined.

Three of the five corroborating witnesses — including Mark — are Texas Department of Corrections inmates with burglary records, Washington pointed out. He drew a diagram linking the five together in a pentagon shape which he described as "the sign of the devil."

Prosecutor Mike Little said DeBlanc picked "scum bags for buddies."

"We didn't pick his friends. I had to bring them to you, spots and all," he said.

"All those guys who snitched are now going to have to pay dearly for it in prison," he added.

Only two inmates were given deals, Little said. Wade Stewart had a burglary charge dismissed and Bernard Young had a forgery sentence reduced, he said.

He emphasized Mark did not receive any promises in exchange for his testimony: "He knew any testimony he gave in this trial could be used against him in his own trial. He could have pleaded the Fifth Amendment."

TDC investigates prison gangs

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A three-member intelligence task force is being formed to identify prison gangs responsible for deaths within the Texas Department of Corrections, the prison director said.

Director Lane O. McCotter said Monday the task force will concentrate on isolating about 900 gang members operating within the nation's second largest prison system.

"We never had the urgency to do something like this before," McCotter said. "We are talking about a small handful of people who have no qualms about killing anyone who gets in their way."

Gangs members are believed responsible for most of the 27 slayings the prison system has recorded this year. The system set a record last year with 25 homicides.

The task force also will coordinate the gang information with local police departments and the Department of Public Safety, McCotter said.

"We are aware that there has been a large growth in gangs and we need to track the leaders and help local law enforcement once they leave prison," McCotter said.

McCotter ordered a lockdown Sept. 9, which lasted three weeks, after eight prisoners were slain in eight days and amid rumors that inmates were planning a systemwide riot. About 17,000 convicts were confined to their cells and security was increased at 13 prison units.

The measures have cooled gang warfare, which was growing as inmates struggled to recruit new members and gain control of prison rackets, such as drug trafficking and protection, according to prison officials. The trafficking is made possible by some prison employees who help smuggle the drugs into the prisons.

Charles Blanchette, warden of the Ferguson Unit near Madisonville, said dope trafficking had almost disappeared since the arrests last month of 12 employees on allegations they were involved in the use or sale of drugs to inmates.

Blanchette said another way to curb the drug trafficking is to require all employees to take urine tests to detect drug use. McCotter has proposed the tests, along with spot searches of employees, in an effort to deter employee drug smuggling.

McCotter met Monday with state Rep. Dan Morales, D-San Antonio, who has sponsored criminal justice legislation and is a proponent of more prison construction.

STATE IN BRIEF

Twins sought in river

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — City workers and county volunteer firemen searched Monday for 21-year-old twin brothers whose raft capsized in the rain-swollen San Antonio River.

Gerald Joe and Harold John Juarez were reported missing Sunday, officials said.

The two were floating down the river on a homemade raft with another brother, Lincoln Juarez, 18, and a friend when the raft capsized and the twins went under.

Witnesses said one of the brothers was wearing a life jacket when he slipped under the water.

Firefighters found a life jacket about 300 yards downstream from the spot where the raft capsized.

"They don't know how to swim," said the boys' uncle, Tom Starr.

TAB honor broadcaster

DALLAS (AP) — The Texas Association of Broadcasters honored its executive vice president — Bonner McLane of Austin — by naming him Monday as the 1985 TAB pioneer broadcaster.

Since 1959, McLane has been the director of the largest state group of broadcasters.

Under his leadership, the group has grown from about 100 members to nearly 500.

The chairman of the selection committee, Stan McKenzie of Seguin, said: "Bonner is a true pioneer in broadcasting, having been active since his college days in the 1940s as a staff announcer, sports announcer, advertising salesman and producer and is now in the ranks of station ownership."

McLane is a co-owner of KBOP AM & FM, Pleasanton.

Killer knew three victims

ARLINGTON (AP) — The unidentified killer who fatally stabbed three young people probably knew the victims, and didn't originally go to their Arlington duplex for murder, according to an FBI psychological profile.

The bodies of Renee Lemieux, 12, and her sister, Danielle Lemieux, 14, were found in their home near Lake Arlington on June 17. A house guest, John Paul Bradley, 17, was found bound and stabbed to death in the home's utility room.

According to the FBI profile, the intruder probably did not go to the duplex with violence in mind. But once inside, he may have learned something that angered or startled him enough to prompt him to kill, the profile says.

The hands of all three victims were tied behind their backs and Bradley was gagged, police said. Danielle Lemieux also had been raped, investigators said.

Police said they have a suspect, but have not made an arrest pending a Tarrant County grand jury investigation scheduled to begin Oct. 7.

Fulltime nurses needed

AUSTIN (AP) — Nurses should be required around the clock at nursing homes, contends the Texas Association of Homes for the Aging.

The group, representing non-profit facilities, also called Monday for state requirements forcing all nursing homes to have a staff physician as medical director.

Under present rules, a nurse's aide can be left in charge during the night shift, said Keith Perry, co-chairman of TAHA's public policy committee.

An aide "can do nothing more than clean the resident, keep them comfortable and give them something to eat," said Perry, administrator of the St. Elizabeth Nursing Home in Waco.

At the Capitol news conference, TAHA officials also criticized the CBS television show "Amos," which aired Sunday night. The show portrayed a nursing home in which residents were murdered.

The Martin Broussard house, built in 1810 near Layfayette, Louisiana, has been moved to Port Neches Park to be restored as a Cajun museum by Les Acadiens du Texas.

Original Cajun-built home to find new life Texas Acadians' museum

PORT NECHES (AP) — One of the few Cajun structures built in Louisiana in the early 1800s has found a new site in Texas where it will become a museum.

The two-story Martin Broussard house, built in 1810 in Lafayette, La., was loaded on a barge and shipped to its current site in a Port Neches park.

"It almost made me cry to see the house loaded on to that barge. As long as it was sitting out there I could always go over there and meditate if I got sad," said Edward Broussard, 62, of Lafayette.

Broussard said he and his six brothers were born in the house and ran the family farm together until World War II.

The house was an abandoned shack and slated to be torn down and replaced by an oil rig until Les Acadiens du Texas found it. The Acadian, as the word is spelled in English, group plans to restore the old house and transform it into a Cajun museum.

The house was built in 1810, but Broussard said his family bought it in 1832. When his grandfather, Martin Broussard, came home from the Civil War, the house was sawed in half and Martin Broussard moved his section to a site near Maurice, La.

Robert Edward Smith, a restoration architect in Breaux Bridge, La., said it was not uncommon for homeowners living in southern Louisiana during the past century to saw their houses in half to make room for more than one family.

He said the Broussard house, which has been empty since 1955, should be easy to restore.

The tin roof will be replace with wood shingles and new porches will be built, he said. The old chimney will be rebuilt using the original bricks and century-old cyprus logs will be used to replace the planking.

The house never had a bathroom and electric wiring was not installed until the 1940s, Broussard said.

The house is one of the few Cajun structures built in Louisiana, Smith said. Most Lousiana homes were built by Creoles, who are descendents of French and Spanish immmigrants, he said.

Cajuns are descendants of Acadians, who now live in Canada. France gave Acadia to England in 1713, and any Acadians who refused to take oaths of allegiance to England were deported.

The Acadians were welcomed in Louisiana, which was then Spanish territory, because "they were tough, experienced settlers and they were Catholic," said Clyde Vincent of Beaumont, head of Les Acadiens.

"Most people don't realized how many Cajuns we have around here," Vincent said.

Vincent said Les Acadiens members will give tours of the restored house so vistors see how Cajuns lived a century ago.

Temple: College entrance exam would catch ill-prepared students

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

LAKEWAY — Too many Texas college freshman aren't prepared for college-level studies, the chairman of the new Select Committee on Higher Education said Monday.

In his first public address since assuming his new role last week, Austin lawyer Larry Temple said the 19-member panel would place admissions requirements at the top of its study list. "I'm not really talking about class standing and scores on the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) test," Temple told a group of visiting southern states lawmakers and budget officers.

"But should there be some minimum requirement in the standard of course load in order to get into college?" As an example, Temple proposed a minimum of four years of English, three of mathematics and two of science.

"We're finding students in college now who aren't prepared for college," he said. "They can't do college work."

In addition, Temple said the study committee would investigate remedial courses "teaching students in college what they should have learned and didn't learn in high school." Remedial English and math courses, he said, cost Texas taxpayers $37 million over the last two years.

The State Board of Education has instituted similar requirements for high-school graduation. They take effect with the Class of 1988.

Laredo State University requires only that its junior college transfers have completed 60 hours of work before admission. A spokeswoman said the LSU admissions office does not consider high school courses.

Temple's panel will also look into college classroom usage. He said classrooms are empty half the time and laboratories 70 percent of the time. On Fridays, he said, that drops to less than 20 percent.

"I didn't like Saturday classes in college either, but I had them," Temple said. "The facts that some students don't want to go to school at particular hours or some professors don't want to teach at particular hours are not valid reasons."

Coupled with utility costs — which have increased from $143 per student in 1975 to $500 per student last year — Temple said that inefficient classroom use is wasting state resources.

Temple said his committee, which will submit its report to the 70th Legislature in January 1987, will hold its first meeting within the next two weeks. He said the study will cost "several hundreds of thousands of dollars," and that he has spoken with various state leaders about supplying that money.

Temple said he may turn to private industry to underwrite a portion of that cost. Although Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot — who chaired a similar committee studying primary and secondary education last year — has offered to contribute, Temple said he has not discussed that with Perot.

Freeze of teacher salaries denied

KOUNTZE (AP) — A temporary restraining order request on behalf of Lumberton school district employees who want their salaries frozen, not slashed by over $250,000 as planned by school board was denied by a Hardin County district judge.

District Judge Earl "Smokey" Stover denied the plea Monday.

District employees last week brought litigation against the district after trustees cut $253,359 from salaries for 68 employees and raised taxes from $1.10 to $1.15 per $100 of valuation, in an attempt to eliminate about $400,000 deficit from a proposed school district budget.

Stover said he wants the issue resolved before the end of the 1985-86 school year. A jury trial will be set for next spring, he said.

Jay Brim of Austin, an attorney for the Texas Elementary and Secondary Principals Association, requested the restraining order to prevent the district from causing "irreparable damage" to employees whose salaries would be cut.

Gladys Byrom, a teacher for six years, testified Monday that as a single mother of three, the proposed salary cut would prevent her from making car or furniture payments.

"And there are a lot of Gladys Byroms out there," Brim said.

But Ken Furlow, attorney for the school district, said the district was not to blame for Ms. Byrom's financial difficulties. He said major changes in her life, such as a recent divorce, contributed to her problems.

Middle school Principal D. Sue Horne, who also testified in the three-hour hearing, said Stover's ruling was fair. But Ms. Horne said if the district retains the reduced salary schedule, the only teacher applications it will receive, "will be those rejected for employment elsewhere."

Brim said the 68 employees affected by the salary cuts would fare better before a jury.

Strake: 'No-tax' governor taxes patience

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — By refusing to call a tax increase a tax increase, Gov. Mark White is taxing the patience of Texas taxpayers, state Republican Party Chairman George Strake charged Monday.

Because of legislation White signed into law in May, telephone customers will begin paying a new tax on their telephone bills today, Strake said. "Candidate Mark White built his 1982 campaign on two major promises to the people of Texas: he would not raise taxes and would keep utility bills low," Strake said.

"The new telecommunications tax, signed into law by Governor White on May 24, 1985, breaks both of those promises. It is a tax increase, and it means higher telephone bills for Texans."

But Strake admitted that the new tax replaces the old state gross receipts tax. Still, he maintained that Texans would see a net increase in the taxes they pay for telephone service.

Under the old law, telephone and telegraph services were exempt from a sales tax. But most utilities, including some telephone companies, did pay a tax on their gross receipts.

Still, some new long-distance companies, such as MCI and GTE Sprint, paid neither tax. The bill closed that loophole.

Bob McPherson, White's deputy assistant for programs, said the bill had the broad support of both chambers of the legislature. "I think you have to put it into perspective," he said.

Chili cooks hot over health regulations

HOUSTON (AP) — Backyard chili cooks are hot over the Houston Health Department's insistence that preparation of their spicy concoction — promoted as the National Food of Texas — comply with city health regulations.

Even a cup of the potent mixture served at a recent City Council meeting failed to sway the city leaders to grant an exemption.

Chili chefs, who participate in weekend competitions, want to be free of regulations governing temporary food services.

"I'm never going to relax health standards," Health Department Director James Haughton says.

"This is a Texas tradition," chili advocate Kasey Kirby responds. "And Texas tradition is to cook under God's roof, not Dr. Haughton's roof."

So incensed is Ms. Kirby that she is circulating a petition to have voters decide the issue.

The regulations require food preparation areas to be enclosed on three sides, have a covered ground and be protected by a roof. They also require operators to purchase a temporary food services permit.

"This is a Texas tradition. And Texas tradition is to cook under God's roof, not Dr. Haughton's roof."
— Chili advocate Kasey Kirby

But Ms. Kirby, who has organized chili cookoffs for charities for the past seven years, says the rules should not apply to cookoff participants because they are not temporary food services vendors.

"We're not there to prepare food for the masses," she says.

In chili cookoffs, which have been held in Houston since 1972, participants make pots of chili for judging. Then spectators can indulge in the usually potent dish.

The regulations on the walls and ground are designed to keep dust out of the chili pot. The roof is to keep bird droppings out.

Ms. Kirby says she never heard of such rules until a health department official told her to get a permit.

But Haughton says his department never had issued a permit for a cookoff until someone came in to get one. And since the dispute began, only one permit has been issued.

For-profit participants are charged $150 for a permit. Non-profit entrants are charged $20 per person.

The non-profit organization sponsoring the event can buy an individual permit to cover all participants for $20. But Haughton says an organization doing that can be held liable for any health problems which may result.

No complaints about cookoffs ever have been filed, he says.

"There's enough heat that no bird will come near it," Ms. Kirby says. And any dust flying around is no more than that in a backyard, she adds.

Haughton, who has never attended a chili cookoff, became a villain to chili lovers when he told the council that suspending the rules could pose health problems.

"I'm being blamed as the Yankee who started this and I had no idea about it," says Haughton.

The council, heeding Haughton's advice, voted 9-5 against exemptions.

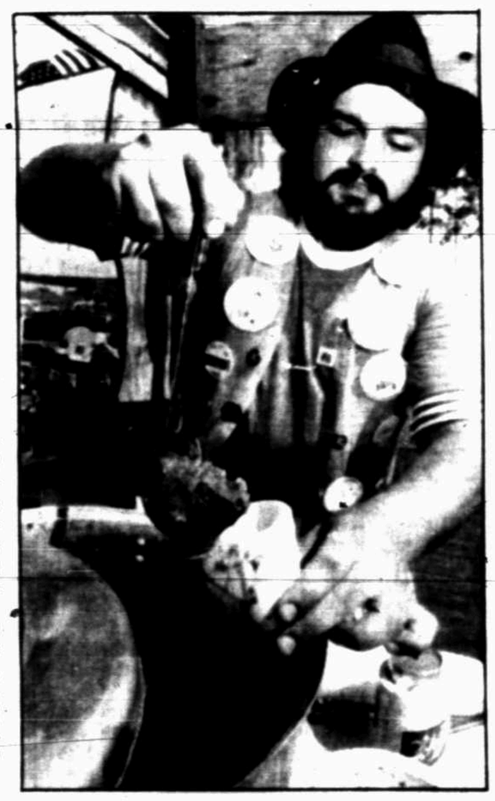

Mayor Kathy Whitmire, a chili lover, sided with her health chief because of the health considerations.

Ms. Kirby, meanwhile, started a petition drive by hiring consultant Bill McGlashen, a political organizer who spearheaded a gay rights referendum that voters rejected last January.

To qualify for the ballot, the petition drive needs 42,189 signatures of Houston registered voters — 15 percent of those who voted during the last city election. If enough signatures are obtained, the city clerk has five days to verify them and then the council has 10 days to vote on the matter again.

If the council agrees with petition signers, chili cookoff participants can waive the city regulations. If not, the issue goes on the Nov. 5 ballot.

Haughton suggests that instead of having an initiative, the city should just give his department $30,000 to purchase umbrellas.

Texan among defendants in cocaine trial

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Jury selection continued today in federal court for the trial of nine people charged in what authorities called the second-largest cocaine bust in South Carolina.

Federal drug agents seized 145 pounds of cocaine in August worth an estimated $50 million on the street. Agents believe the cocaine was smuggled from Colombia to Columbia and intended for out-of-state distribution.

The nine defendants were charged with conspiracy to possess cocaine with intent to distribute.

Three defendants are also charged with possession of 10 kilograms, or 22 pounds, of cocaine. They are Alberto Ramirez, 23, of Novato, Calif.; John Michael Kolesnikow, 33, of Belmont Calif., and his wife, Yvanka Ingrid Kolesnikow, 28, of Belmont.

Six other defendants are also charged with possession of 56 kilograms, or about 123 pounds, of cocaine with intent to distribute.

They are Jose Luis Gomez, 29, of Miami, Fla.; Diego Fernando Velasco, 30, of Miami; Filipe Cortes Santiago, 18, of Miami; Gerardo Hincapie, 31, of Miami; Edgar Jimenez, 24, of Miami Beach; and Delio Edgar Romero, 30, of Garland, Texas.

Acting on a tip, authorities put the defendants under surveillance three days before the bust.

The six men, all Colombian nationals, were arrested Aug. 2 at a motel in Springdale. Federal, state and local law enforcement officers seized the 56 kilograms of cocaine.

The three defendants from California were arrested Aug. 1 at several locations in the Columbia area.

Nation stocks up on 'cheap' liquor

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer

New York City brokers did their holiday liquor shopping early, New England tipplers braved Hurricane Gloria's aftermath to jam package stores and a Phoenix shopper carted away enough booze — 10 cases — to float a canoe on the eve of today's big boost in federal liquor taxes.

"We've broken any record that we have ever had, including our busiest time — the day before Christmas," said Bill Surdyk, owner of one of the largest liquor stores in Minneapolis. "The store is wall-to-wall people."

Surdyk's early Christmas came hours before a change in federal regulations pushed the tax on a gallon of 100-proof liquor to $12.50, up $2. Similar sales were reported from Providence, R.I., to Spokane, Wash.

Brokerage houses in New York City's financial district thought they could save thousands of dollars by putting in early holiday orders, but Wall Street Discount Liquors owner Michael Porrazzo said there was a hitch.

"They wanted us to store the liquor here," he said. "If we hold it they have to pay the extra tax."

Larry Weiner, owner of Kappy's Liquors in Cambridge, Mass., said sales were up 50 percent over last weekend when Hurricane Gloria hit New England.

"It was busier than Christmas," he said.

The increase, expected to raise an additional $1.3 billion over the next three years, applies only to distilled spirits, not beer and wine. And because not all liquor is 100 proof — 50 percent alcohol — the tax varies.

A liter bottle of 86 proof bourbon will cost 45 cents more; a 1.75-liter bottle of 90 proof vodka will go up 83 cents; and a 500-milliliter bottle of 80 proof schnapps will be 21 cents more.

The increase bothers retailers like Ted Gable, owner of an Ontario, Calif., liquor store.

"It's going to slow sales down," he said. "Hard liquor sales have diminished over the years and it's going to hurt them even more."

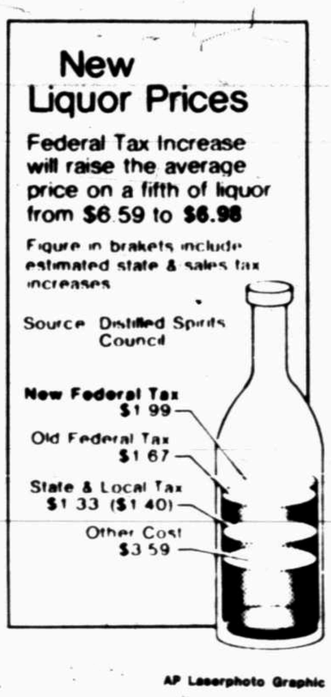

Liquor sellers, hoping to sell inventory and avoid a special one-time tax on their stock, ran ads urging customers to lay in extra supplies. Many customers responded.

"Our regular people are buying more and stocking up," said David Stout at the Granada Liquor Store in Hamilton Township, N.J. "Even doctors are buying by the case."

New Hampshire's Liquor Commission marked the boost with a "Tax Revolution" sale in which the prices of 32 popular brands that account for 60 percent of the commission's revenue will not be hiked for another month.

But the state began collecting the tax on other brands a day early Monday, to coincide with the start of its fiscal month, and some customers left their bottles at the cash register when they learned the increase was in effect.

In suburban Detroit, liquor stor manager Steve Shunia, said, "You won't believe it. It's going like hotcakes." Shunia said his supply of half-gallons of liquor was running low, even though he boosted his customary $3,000 weekly order to $20,000.

Heckler debating ambassadorship

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Margaret M. Heckler, her bid to continue as secretary of health and human services apparently rejected, is weighing a request by President Reagan that she surrender her Cabinet chair and become ambassador to Ireland.

Reagan offered the ambassadorship to Mrs. Heckler in an Oval Office meeting Monday, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said, and Mrs. Heckler "asked for a few days to consider the president's offer."

Mrs. Heckler had asked to meet with Reagan in a last-ditch effort to keep her job after days of rumors that she would be given the ambassadorship to ease her out of the Cabinet. She has described the Ireland posting as "a lovely position — for someone else."

She had no comment following the meeting, brushing by reporters to return to HHS headquarters. There, she met for about half an hour with a few close aides. Mrs. Heckler's press aide, Claire del Real, said the secretary would have no immediate comment.

Speakes told a White House briefing that Mrs. Heckler has "served with distinction as a member of Congress and as a member of the Cabinet" and, as a woman of Irish descent, "she would make a valuable contribution in U.S.-Irish relations and be able to work toward solving problems in the region." Her full maiden name was Margaret Mary O'Shaughnessy.

"Mrs. Heckler has asked for a few days to consider the president's offer and will respond at that time," Speakes said. "Meanwhile, she remains as secretary of health and human services."

Speakes insisted the president was not dissatisfied with her performance and that she was not being fired. But when asked if Mrs. Heckler could choose to remain in her post, he replied: "I do not have an answer to that."

Officials at HHS say privately that Mrs. Heckler's options are limited. She can accept the ambassador's post or she can resign outright. She serves at the pleasure of the president, however, and his request to vacate the HHS office cannot be declined.

Rumors of Mrs. Heckler's impending departure have circulated periodically for months, generally focusing on questions of her ability to manage the mammoth, 145,000-employee department with its $330 billion budget.

The department's activities directly affect tens of millions of Americans, through Medicare, Medicaid, Social Security, the Food and Drug Administration or dozens of other subsidiary agencies.

Besides questions about Mrs. Heckler's management capabilities, however, there also has been questions about her commitment to the Reagan philosophy; she was a moderate-to-liberal Republican congresswoman before losing her seat.

And, there has been a widening schism between her and the senior White House staff that is considered a more direct cause of her immediate dilemma. The shuffle reportedly was orchestrated by White House Chief of Staff Donald T. Regan, who persuaded the president for the first time in his administration to ask a Cabinet officer to step down.

The rift between Mrs. Heckler and the White House has left more than a half dozen top administrative posts in HHS unfilled or in the hands of temporary officials, as Mrs. Heckler and the White House were unable to agree on new appointees.

Her successor must be chose before those vacancies can be filled.

John A. Svahn, a White House domestic policy adviser, is a former HHS undersecretary and considered one of the leading candidates for the post.

But some in Congress say Svahn is too controversial. He has repeatedly been mentioned in print as a likely source of the persistent White House rumors of Mrs. Heckler's troubles.

Cigarette tax extended until Nov. 14

By JIM LUTHER
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has signed a bill extending the 16-cent-a-pack federal tax on cigarettes through Nov. 14, despite his misgivings about any such tax increase.

White House spokesman Rusty Brashear announced early today that Reagan had signed the bill before midnight Monday, when the new fiscal year took effect. Brashear provided no details or explanation regarding Reagan's decision to approve the legislation in the light of earlier reports he might veto the measure.

Extension of the tax is considered a tax increase because it was scheduled under the law to drop to 8 cents at midnight Monday.

The Reagan administration has opposed permanent extension of the tax on grounds that it would make it more difficult for states to raise what traditionally has been a major source of revenue.

If Reagan had allowed the tax to drop to 8 cents, higher state taxes would have gone into effect today in 17 states. Ten of those states would have kept their higher levies, even if Congress later reimposed the 16-cent federal tax.

The House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee have approved bills making the 16-cent tax permanent, but Congress has been unable to pass that legislation because of the crush of other business.

That is why the House and Senate agreed without debate or dissent on Monday to extend the tax 45 days.

The extension bill affected more than the cigarette tax. It also would extend through Nov. 14 a government program of aid to workers and companies damaged by competition from imported products; limitations on the size of federal reimbursements to doctors and hospitals for treating Medicare patients, and the method of calculating benefits for unemployed railroad workers.

The tax was doubled to 16 cents in 1982 as part of a deficit-reduction measure, but tobacco-state lawmakers won a commitment at that time that the increase would be temporary.

A new Congress is backing away from that pledge because of the continuing large budget deficits. The difference between 8 cents and 16 cents a pack is nearly $5 billion over the next three years.

Without regard to the federal action, cigarette taxes rose today in Alaska, Oregon, Maine, Kansas and Iowa. South Dakota, Minnesota, Mississippi and Rhode Island had raised their levies earlier in the year.

If the federal tax had dropped today, that action would have triggered tax increases in 17 states.

Smoking limits considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smoking would be permitted only in special sections of the 387,396 federal buildings across America under a Senate bill that the tobacco industry is fighting as costly and unnecessary.

Tobacco lobbyists say it has yet to be established that people's health can be affected when they breath someone else's smoke.

But Joseph Califano, who was secretary of health, education and welfare in the Carter administration, testified Monday that the real reason tobacco manufacturers oppose the measure is that it could lead to a decline in smoking.

The only objections to segregating smokers and non-smokers in public places comes from the tobacco industry, he said, adding: "If people smoke one less cigarette a day, that's 22 billion cigarettes — and that's big bucks."

Califano, a vocal anti-smoker, said the proposal would ensure "a healthier federal work force and a safer, more pleasant atmosphere for our citizens who visit federal offices."

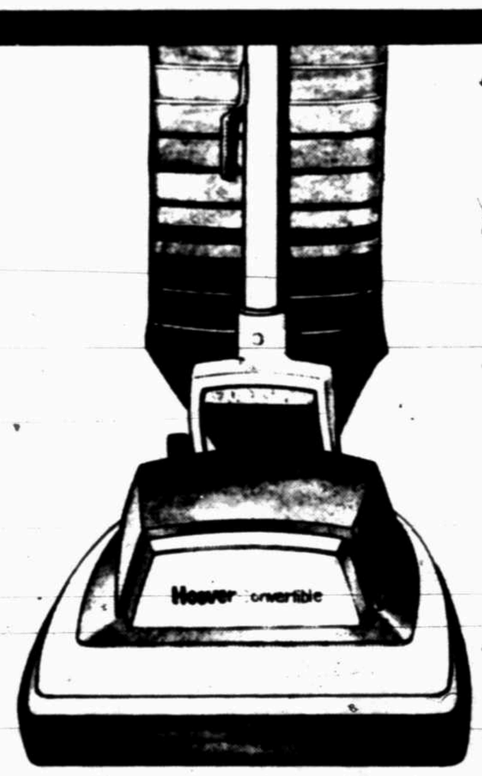

Testimony on the proposal — offered by Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska — was to continue today.

Stop the spending

At the heart of the upcoming battle over the federal government's debt ceiling is an inescapable truth: This nation is living a lie and is telling all future generations that such a falsehood is okay, even honorable.

Of course it isn't honorable. It would be a far stretch of the imagination to even call it realistic. To be honest, one would have to call it the foundation on which the paper empire in this country is shakily constructed. Ironically, the cold winds of winter are beginning to ripple this paper kingdom and send sharp signals to the populace. How long can paper contain the winds?

"It" is the fact Congress is once again getting ready to debate Uncle Sam's debt ceiling, which governs how much the government can spend — or, more realistically, how much Uncle Sam can spend that he doesn't have the cash on hand to cover. And you know who'll get the bill.

The other day, Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III sent a notice to Senate majority leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., that "Unless a debt limit is passed by the Congress and signed into law by the president on or before Oct. 7, 1985, the United States of America could be in the position of defaulting on its obligations."

That warning sounds ominous enough, but it doesn't strike fear into the hearts of Americans any longer. Why? Well, it might have something to do with the fact that this same debate has been carried out two dozen times in the last 10 years. How much fear of economic collapse can the American people bear before the phantom loses its fangs?

Over the span of a decade, Americans have watched as the ominous warnings have been issued, in many cases the clock has been allowed to tick down to the final minutes or hours before the final action, but always — always — the debt limit is reenacted, and typically increased, at the last moment.

It all makes for a lot of drama. Ah, yes; Americans do love their dramatic government. But it also makes for a number of uneasy side effects, too. Like the impression that we don't really care what happens where the federal government's debt — our debt — is concerned (Afters all, when a government is talking about a debt limit of $2 trillion, what's a few more zeros?). Or, giving the impression that we merely pass this unbelievably gigantic bill for the "good life" along to our young people, who will be expected to do what they can before passing it along to their kids.

That doesn't seem to be long on responsibility. But then can a government be long on responsibility when it acquires debts via the appropriations process in the comfortable knowledge that the debt ceiling can always be raised to cover what the appropriators overspend? Annually, even?

Does it matter? Yes, it does. It matters to a people tired of seeing members of Congress spend our tax money recklessly. We need fiscally responsible leaders now, before this process — and nation — collapses under its own weight.

LETTERS

Local help appreciated

The volunteers and staff of the Midland County chapter of the American Red Cross thank the management and staff of our local newspaper, the Midland Reporter-Telegram, for the support of our agency. We depend on dissemination of accurate information to properly perform many of our services.

Greatly appreciated are the numerous public service announcements, the small ads, and specifically notable was the full-page, two-color ad in the Texas Sunday Magazine of Sept. 21.

We Red Crossers also want to thank the community of Midland for its support, both financial and volunteer time (especially the technical and professional expertise).

As the local entity of an international organization, we extend thanks for a most generous community. Acknowledging we may unintentionally overlook some group or individual, let us, in behalf of our sister society, La Cruz Roja de Mexico, express a most sincere thanks for your contributions and services during the catastrophic Mexico earthquakes.

Thanks to the very young, many of whom had obviously "robbed the piggy bank" and personally brought to our office pennies, nickels, dimes and quarters — requesting "help the people in Mexico."

Thanks to the numerous business persons (especially the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce) who understood the concept of businesslike response to a disaster. Property was destroyed, people injured and killed, yet the channels of commerce remained intact.

Thanks to many individuals and groups such as the Midland Amateur Radio Club — they established almost instantaneous contact with Mexico City — providing assurance to local families their relatives in Mexico were alright. Request for specific items were forwarded to our area Red Cross offices for immediate action.

We again thank the numerous individuals who offered clothes, food, and other items which we DO NOT accept. Disaster relief operations have changed over the years (for the better) and we did not accept these items primarily due to high transportation costs and complications of export procedures.

Local channels of commerce in Mexico were never depleted, this being verified by American and International Red Cross officials on the scene in cooperation with Cruz Roja officials.

Specific needs of medical supplies, heavy equipment and other technical items were and are being filled by Red Cross and several governmental agencies, all working swiftly and cooperatively.

Midland's residents most assuredly are good neighbors. Words alone cannot express the gratitude for the caring and sharing! Thanks!

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1800, Spain ceded Louisiana to France in a secret treaty.

In 1908, Henry Ford introduced the Model T to the market. The basic cost of the car: $850.

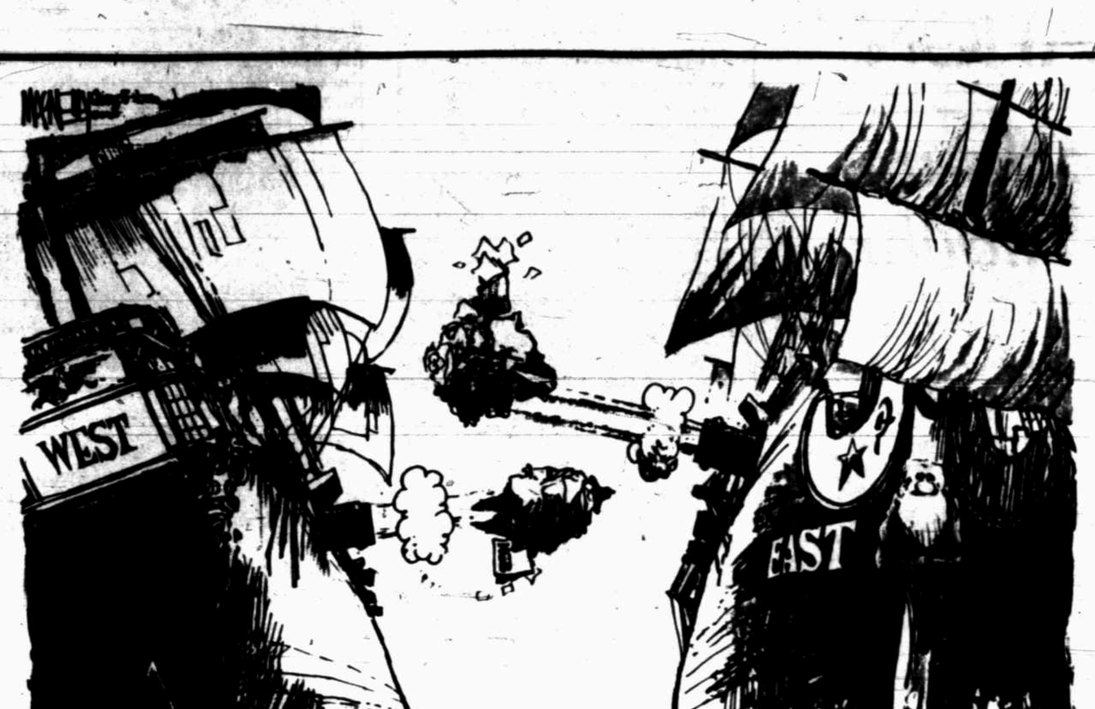

In 1936, Gen. Francisco Franco was proclaimed the head of an insurgent Spanish state.

In 1943, Allied forces captured Naples during World War II.

Ten years ago: Gunmen shot and killed three police officers in Madrid, apparently in revenge for the execution of five terrorists.

Five years ago: Soviet cosmonauts Valery Ryumin and Leonid Popov shattered the world space endurance record as they spent their 176th day aboard an orbiting Salyut space station.

Thought for today: "Education is hanging around until you're caught on." — Robert Frost, American poet (1874-1963).

JACK ANDERSON

U.S. bureaucrats sailing in style

WASHINGTON — Some luxury-loving State Department and U.S. Information Agency employees have been taking advantage of permissive travel regulations to book passage on posh cruise ships when they take their families on home leave between assignments.

Jack Anderson

The taxpayers foot the bill for these vacations, which cost several times what the airfare would be.

Travel records of the two agencies show that in fiscal years 1982 to 1984, a total of 260 employees and dependents elected to travel by sea, as the rules allow. The cost was $556,232 — more than $400,000 higher than airline tickets would have been.

The public first heard about this abuse of federal travel regulations last year, when the General Accounting Office reported to Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, that one USIA employee being transferred to Washington from Uruguay included a $14,440 ride up the Mississippi on the riverboat Delta Queen as part of his family's travel arrangements.

Brooks was so outraged that he asked the auditors to do some more research. They found that the Delta Queen wasn't the only floating royalty favored by Foreign Service and USIA employees. Out of the 260 seafaring travelers, 120 chose to go — first-class all the way — on the pride of the British passenger fleet, the Queen Elizabeth II.

The total cost for the QEII trips was $289,305. Airfare would have been roughly $81,000.

Our associate Tony Capaccio found these examples among the records of the Queen's travelers:

— One State Department employee with six dependents flew from India to Spokane, Wash., for home leave. Then the family completed their circumnavigation of the globe by flying to New York, taking the QEII to Southamptom and continuing on to India by air. The five-day cruise across the Atlantic cost the taxpayers $18,407; airfare from New York to London would have been $4,732.

— A State Department employee and his wife headed home to Los Angeles from Pakistan by flying to Bangkok and embarking on a 19-day cruise aboard the Queen Elizabeth to Hawaii, where they took a plane the rest of the way home. The cruise aboard the luxury liner alone set the taxpayers back $15,050; the couple could have flown from Pakistan to Los Angeles for less than $3,000.

— A State Department employee going on home leave from Bombay took his three dependents to London by air. They caught the QEII at Southampton, arriving five days later in New York. The Atlantic crossing cost the taxpayers $10,718, instead of the $2,704 it would have cost to fly.

— A group of six USIA employees and dependents being transferred to Washington from posts in Pakistan and India sailed on the Queen Elizabeth for $16,576, or $12,520 more than airfare would have cost.

The official Foreign Affairs Manual encourages employees to take the most direct and economical routes to and from their foreign posts. But the regulations don't prohibit traveling by sea, and many employees evidently assume that a leisurely cruise on a luxury liner is just one of the perquisites of serving abroad. While USIA employees may go by ship only one way, the State Department lets its people travel by sea both homeward and outward bound.

State Department Comptroller Roger Feldman did not return our calls. A USIA spokesman declined comment on grounds that a legal case on the matter is pending.

KREMLIN WATCH: When the German magazine Stern asked Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Perle why he thought the Soviets boycotted the Olympic games in Los Angeles last year, Perle suggested it was because the Kremlin couldn't be sure how many Soviet athletes would defect. SCANDAL OF THE WEEK: Since 1975 it has been illegal to sell turtles under 4 inches long in this country. The reason is that they are prone to carry disease when they're that small. But the Food and Drug Administration can do little to stop the sale of undersize turtles to Japan, the United Kingdom, Yugoslavia, Guam and Puerto Rico. An American Medical Association survey found salmonella in 89 percent of the little turtles shipped to Puerto Rico, and one child was infected with salmonella for every 1,000 turtles sold there. The AMA wants the export of tiny turtles from the United States prohibited.

MINI-EDITORIAL: The French government has made an astounding admission: Its agents were sent to New Zealand with orders to blow up the vessel Rainbow Warrior, which was going to lead a protest flotilla to France's nuclear testing area. One man was killed in this act of state-sponsored terrorism. Where, we wonder, are the expressions of moral indignation from France's allies — especially the United States? The reaction seems to be that the French were merely protecting their interests. But this is an unacceptable position. It sounds disturbingly like the apologists for the Soviet Union when it shot down the Korean airliner two years ago.

Angola battleground tests U.S.

JAMBA, EASTERN ANGOLA — Under the battlefield direction of a Soviet general, Angola's Marxist regime may yet pluck the thorn of Jonas Savimbi from its side after 10 years of trying, a conclusion invited by unprecedented Soviet assistance in major battles near Savimbi's headquarters here in "liberated Angola."

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

Radio intercepts and battlefield experiences described to us last Thursday by anti-Marxist Savimbi in his primitive African bush hideaway suggest that Mikhail Gorbachev is testing U.S. intentions by tightening Soviet control over the war.

The target is Savimbi's headquarters. He puts government fatalities at 1,109 — plus three Russians (the first Soviets killed here) and 21 Cubans. That is six times Savimbi's dead, an unprecedented eight-week casualty rate for the Marxist regime in Luanda.

That shows the impact of Soviet battlefield control. Soviet military officers directing the fighting virtually bar retreat by Luanda's forces. The objective is to overrun a town some 100 miles north of Jamba, called Mavinda, and then, in Savimbi's words, "carry on to my headquarters here."

The strategic Soviet aim is twofold: first, prevent coalition talks between Savimbi and the Luanda government; second, portray Washington's refusal to help Savimbi as evidence that no Southern African state can count on U.S. help against future Soviet pressure tactics.

Washington has never recognized the Luanda regime. With repeal of the Clark Amendment, the U.S. is now free to resume aid to Savimbi, but no one here is holding his breath.

Swiss-educated Dr. Jonas Savimbi has been fighting the civil war ever since Angola won independence from Portugal in 1975 with the Marxists in control of two-thirds of the country. He has never been threatened in his control of the Eastern third despite the fact that 30,000 Cubans, 1,500 Soviets, 2,500 East Germans (who handle intelligence) and a few North Koreans are arrayed against him. But not until this summer has Moscow taken such tight control of the battlefield.

Under the command of a general whose name (heard only on radio intercepts) is Konstantin Chacknovich, the Soviets have not had an easy time in the fierce battles that started July 29.

We interviewed Savimbi in a large, grass-thatched conference hall. He said his forces, 26,000 regulars and 34,000 guerrillas, have knocked out three T-55 tanks, one of 20 MI-24 helicopter gunships, one MIG-21 and one MIG-23. The three Russians were killed in forward fighting when their late-model Soviet armored vehicle, a BTR 60, suffered a direct hit.

Immediately after the hit, Savimbi's monitors intercepted an excited radio message calling for a helicopter to pick up the wounded Russians, who were advising the 8th Angolan Brigade. When Savimbi's mortars made it too hot for the chopper to land, no fewer than 10 sortees of MiG aircraft were sent to silence the mortars. The three Soviet advisors were then evacuated — dead.

But if Savimbi's thesis is correct that the summer-fall offensive reveals a far more determined Soviet effort under Gorbachev then previous stabs into his territory, his prospects are somewhat bleak. He has no aircraft, only primitive air defenses, no tanks, no modern equipment of any kind. Despite unproved charges by the Angolan government, Savimbi insisted that battlefield help from South Africa has been nonexistent.

Savimbi believes that one faction in the Luanda government is ready to open talks with him. That possibility may be discussed soon, probably at a Communist Party conference the Angolan regime has scheduled for December. Moscow bitterly opposes any coalition talks, Savimbi said, because of the high Soviet stake in maintaining control of Angola, a key to eventual settlement of the Namibian question. Angola and Namibia share a long border. A rout of Savimbi before that party conference would end any chance of coalition talks and hand Moscow high cards to play in Namibia.

Reagan administration intentions are unknown here. There has been no "yes" or "no" to emergency arms aid for the charismatic leader who has carried his war almost alone against Soviets, Cubans and Luanda's Marxist rulers.

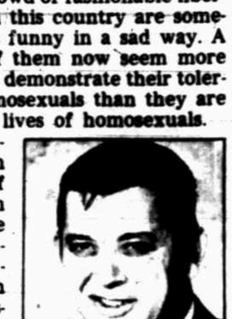

But in truth, more important than the fate of Jonas Savimbi is the American stake here and the warning signal to all Southern Africa if the U.S. fails to meet Gorbachev's test.

AIDS victims need to be isolated

The crowd of fashionable liberals in this country are sometimes funny in a sad way. A lot of them now seem more desperate to demonstrate their tolerance of homosexuals than they are to save the lives of homosexuals.

Charley Reese

Homosexuals, with the help of an African virus, are busily killing themselves with their promiscuous sex habits. They are also killing non-homosexuals by spreading the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome virus outside their own circles via bi-sexuals, drug abusers, and donations of infected blood.

Yet if anyone suggests isolating AIDS victims, or even calling them victims, the fashionable set throws up its hands in horror. Apparently they think to be thought intolerant of homosexuals is a fate worse than catching AIDS. As usual, 99 percent of the American people disagree.

The virus itself, of course, has no sexual preference. It will happily kill anybody. Nevertheless, the virus was probably introduced into the U.S. by a homosexual and it is most definitely centered in and flourishing in the homosexual communities. Seventy-four percent of the AIDS cases are homosexuals; the rest surely got it from homosexuals through an indirect path.

Some militant homosexuals like to boast of homosexuals' contributions to society. Well, in addition to bad economic theory (Lord Keynes), homosexuals have contributed AIDS to the American people.

When Yellow Fever was a killer in the southern states, a city with an outbreak of the disease would be isolated. Armed guards were posted on all the roads to prevent people from leaving the city and thus spreading the infection to other communities.

I recognize that in these less sensible times such common sense approaches are considered unthinkable. The mayors of San Francisco, New York, Los Angeles and Miami — the AIDS hotbeds — would haved 40 fits each if anyone even suggested such a thing.

So I won't, but I will suggest that it is past time to stop worrying about hurting people's feelings and to start worrying about saving people's lives.

The first ugly truth to face is that it's highly improbable that either a cure or a vaccine will be found in the foreseeable future. The process just doesn't work that fast no matter how much money you throw at it.

The second ugly truth to face is how little science knows about AIDS and how spineless most scientists are. A negative statement that there is no evidence that AIDS can be spread by casual contact does not constitute proof. Furthermore other statements the same people make prove that they are lying by hedging. They claim 500,000 to 1 million people now have been exposed to the AIDS virus. As promiscuous as homosexuals are and as bad as the drug abuse problem is, I don't think any sensible person would believe 500,000 to 1 million people have picked up the AIDS virus through sexual contact with homosexuals, bisexuals, and intravenous drug users in this short a time span.

AIDS is too deadly a disease for spineless politicians and liberals with a pathological tolerance for sexual deviants to be allowed to hamper its containment. All AIDS victims should be isolated from the general population immediately upon diagnosis. Reporting an AIDS diagnosis to authorities should be mandatory. Gathering places such as homosexual bath houses should be shut down. It is obvious that at least a large part of the homosexual community lacks the decency and self-control to give up their promiscuous habits. Cities with large homosexual populations should round up all prostitutes and forcibly test them for AIDS.

Convention planners should avoid scheduling conventions in cities with heavy AIDS infections lest their drunken delegates dilly with the wrong people and carry the virus back home.

AIDS has the potential of becoming a modern plague. If homosexuals were not involved, authorities would have taken a tougher stand to contain this disease a long time ago.

With friends like they now have in the media and public positions, homosexuals don't need any enemies. They'll all be dead or dying in another five years.

Hussein may fight for weapons

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — Jordan's King Hussein faces an uphill battle to win congressional approval for a $1.55 billion U.S. weapons deal and for his Mideast peace talks plan, an aide to an influential Senate Republican says.

Congress last June barred new U.S. weapons sales to Jordan unless Hussein committed himself publicly to recognizing Israel and to negotiating "promptly and directly" with the Jewish state.

Hussein, who met with President Reagan on Monday, has proposed peace talks as part of an international conference. He was ready to defend that plan in separate afternoon meetings today with House and Senate members.

But an aide to Sen. Richard Lugar, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said if the vote was held now the arms deal would lose.

And Lugar was quoted last week as saying the peace talks plan Hussein worked out in February with Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, did not meet Congressional "criteria," Mark Helmke, an assistant to the Indiana Republican, said Monday.

Hussein offered his commitment to negotiate following his meeting with Reagan on Monday. The king said the talks would be held on the basis of a 1967 U.N. Security Council resolution that implicitly recognized Israel's right to exist.

AP Laserphoto

At the same time, though, Hussein renewed his call for an international peace conference.

That would involve in the negotiations the Soviet Union and the four other permanent members of the U.N. Security Council: Britain, France, China and the United States. Both Israel and the United States are against giving the Soviets a prominent role in arranging a Mideast settlement.

"I think headway has been made," a senior administration official said. "This is not the moment, this is not the place to get into the details of that headway."

The official, who briefed reporters under rules that granted him anonymity, said the king gave Reagan and other American participants in Monday's 45-minute meeting "a better understanding" of arrangements for the conference.

Another U.S. official, who also spoke only on condition of anonymity, said, "We don't want to get involved in something where Israel is a spectator."

The Soviet Union has no diplomatic relations with Israel and routinely sides with its Arab neighbors in Middle East disputes.

Another roadblock posed by the king has been has been his proposal that Palestinians tied to the PLO participate in prenegotiations talks with the United States.

The senior administration official said Hussein still felt that preliminary talks were "essential." He and Arafat hope they would lead to mutual recognition of the United States and the PLO.

But the official said Reagan and Secretary of State George P. Shultz question "just how useful are these steps in getting to direct negotiations."

The $1.55 billion arms deal would include 40 advanced jet fighter planes and Hawk mobile anti-aircraft missiles. The administration contends the weapons are essential to defend Jordan against Syria, an Arab neighbor supplied with weapons from the Soviet Union.

Soviets tested lasers, Pentagon says

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union, in attempting to develop high-energy laser weapons, has conducted tests over the past few years against U.S. satellites in low Earth orbit, Pentagon sources say.

In some instances, the tests have resulted in the sudden loss of data from orbiting sensors, although the United States has never publicly accused the Soviets of attacking satellites with ground-based lasers, the sources said Monday.

The issue of Soviet laser experiments was raised in a lengthy news analysis by The Washington Post of the relative progress made by both the United States and Russia in designing a "Star Wars" missile-defense system. The Pentagon has long maintained President Reagan's emphasis on developing such a system is in part a response to a long-running Soviet research program.

Last April, in its latest annual analysis entitled "Soviet Military Power," the Pentagon wrote that the Russians had "progressed beyond technology research, in some cases to the development of prototype laser weapons."

They already have ground-based lasers that could be used to interfere with U.S. satellites," the Pentagon said.

The Post, in comparing the efforts of the two countries on Monday, concluded it was unlikely the Soviets enjoyed any lead over the United States in putting together a system that could destroy incoming nuclear warheads.

But the newspaper then quoted unidentified experts as saying "the Soviets have two ground-based lasers at their Saryshagan test range. In the past, those have been used to baffle or blind U.S. satellites as they orbit overhead. But there is no conventional wisdom on how threatening such devices could become."

A Pentagon official familiar with assessments of the Soviet research, asked Monday whether the Russians were merely thought to have the capability to blind satellites or had actually done so, replied he "wouldn't quibble" with the newspaper's statement.

"In some cases, the Soviets have progressed beyond development," said the source, who spoke on the condition of anonymity. "And when you have a satellite that's doing great and all of a sudden it stops, and that is coincidental with some other things, you draw some conclusions."

Asked then why the Pentagon had merely referred to the possibility of Soviet lasers interfering with satellites, the source responded: "That analysis is a compromise between what we know and how we can say it without compromising sources."

"You're not going to find anybody who will discuss this publicly," another source said. "There's no hard evidence. You can't prove it. You can't go to the Soviets and accuse them of breaking a satellite. And you can't risk compromising methods and sources (for acquiring information)."

The sources likened the dilemma of intelligence officials in producing "Soviet Military Power" to the problem that sometimes arises during espionage trials.

"In some spy cases, the prosecution ends up being dropped because there would be more classified information that would come out that we don't want to come out," one explained.

"You either believe us or you don't," the source said.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union have tested anti-satellite weapons that would actually be fired into space against an orbiting satellite. The Soviets have a system they have tested since the early 1970's that the United States considers operational. The U.S. weapon was successfully tested for the first time on Sept. 13, smashing an old scientific satellite into pieces.

Although the U.S. Star Wars program calls for advanced research on a variety of lasers, the work has been described as focusing on the use of such devices against nuclear missiles shortly after their launch from the ground. Less than a month ago, a high-powered laser was successfully used in a ground test to shatter the immobile main stage of a Titan missile.

Rajneesh ritually burns 5,000 books

RAJNEESHPURAM, Ore. (AP) — Rajneeshism was created by a "gang of fascists" and had to be destroyed, Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh said after ritually burning 5,000 copies of his sect's book of beliefs and declaring the movement he founded "far better than a religion."

Rajneesh, 53, said Monday night that Ma Anand Sheela, his former personal secretary who fled two weeks ago with other Rajneeshee leaders, surrounded his teachings with the trappings of organized religion.

Sheela, who abruptly fled the central Oregon commune-city she helped found, was responsible for the "Book of Rajneeshism," a 78-page book that described the movement's beliefs, he said in a news conference.

"That was not my book. I have never read it," said the Indian guru who has a fleet of 90 Rolls-Royces. "It was necessary that it be destroyed."

Later, speaking on ABC-TV's "Nightline," Rajneesh said he did not know what Sheela was doing while she wielded power over the movement.

"I was not informed and I was in isolation ... I was not aware of what was happening," said Rajneesh, who this year ended a 3½-year public silence. "She did not (tell me what was going on). And she exploited the situation."

Rajneesh disciples Monday night burned Sheela's bright red robes, along with 5,000 copies of the "Book of Rajneeshism."

About 2,000 disciples clapped and sang as the books and the robes were burned in the commune's crematorium. "Step into the holy fire, step into the holy flame," they chanted to the music of a 10-piece band.

Rajneesh's new secretary, Ma Prem Hasya, proclaimed Rajneeshism dead, then used a torch to light juniper logs in the crematorium.

On "Nightline," Rajneesh said the changes in his movement mean "there is no religion and there is no master, no disciples. I am only a friend and those who love me are living with me."

Asked if he thought the group would lose its tax-exempt status as a religion, Rajneesh said, "I don't care." When pressed further, he said, "We are not a religion, but our activities are religious."

At the news conference, he said his movement "is far better than a religion."

Since Sheela fled the commune, Rajneesh has accused his former secretary and her "gang of fascists" of a host of crimes, including arson, attempted murder and wholesale telephone tapping.

State and federal authorities investigating the allegations began serving subpoenas Monday on potential witnesses in Rajneeshpuram. Authorities said 70 or more state and federal subpoenas had been issued and more were likely.

Sheela, in Germany last week and still thought to be in Europe, has denied any wrongdoing and has said she left the commune because of, among other things, the guru's demands for more Rolls-Royces and expensive jewelry.

Earlier Monday, representatives of law enforcement agencies, including the Rajneeshpuram Peace Force, met to discuss the investigation.

"For me, it was a tremendous relief," said Ma Deva Barkha, head of the Rajneesh security force. She said the meeting relieved tensions between Rajneesh officials and outside investigators.

Oregon State Police Lt. Dean Renfrow said "an attitude of real trust and cooperation" developed at the meeting.

The sect, which claims about 500,000 followers worldwide, moved its headquarters here in 1981 from Poona, India, leaving behind a morass of tax and legal disputes. The group spent more than $100 million to turn 64,000 acres of overgrazed Oregon ranchland into a thriving farm and to build a city that includes a shopping mall, hotel and airport.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service is investigating Rajneesh, whose application for permanent residence is pending.

Oregon Attorney General Dave Frohnmayer contends in a lawsuit that Rajneeshpuram's incorporation as a city violates constitutional separation of church and state, while a land-use watchdog group maintains in another lawsuit that the city was built illegally on land zoned for agriculture.

Rajneesh's followers retaliated by filing a lawsuit accusing various state and county officials of conspiring to drive them out of Oregon. They also have sued the federal government seeking the release of documents about the sect.

Rajneesh said Monday night that his disciples are "ready to drop all the cases against the state" if Oregon will drop its lawsuit.

Community still questioning teens' shootings

By KEN KUSMER

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP) — On the eve of today's funerals for a popular high school couple found shot to death in a car, classmates and investigators who had worked around the clock all were faced with the same unanswered question.

"Why? That's what we're saying. Why? How could it be?" said Owen Remna, principal of Muncie Northside High School, where Ethan E. Dixon, 16, was junior class president and Kimberly S. Dowell, 15, was a junior varsity cheerleader.

"We can't explain it, that's the problem," Lt. David Nicholson, assistant commander of homicide detectives, said Monday. "We haven't been able to come up with a motive; we haven't been able to find a suspect."

Nicholson said police believe three people may have been involved in the deaths, based on witnesses' statements that a car parked near the Dixon's left the park quickly after the shots were fired.

"We have testimony that there were three people who were seen around the car shortly after the shots were heard," he said. "We have a description of a car that was near the victims' car at the time."

Funeral services were scheduled today for Dixon and Miss Dowell and arrangements have been made to let students attend the services, Remna said.

A patrolman found the bodies near midnight Saturday, an hour after the couple had been shot in Dixon's car, parked facing the White River in West Side Park. The car's engine was still running, the seats were reclined and a tape deck was playing when they were shot, police said.

Dixon died of a single shot that pierced his heart and Miss Dowell from a single shot to the left temple, Delaware County Coroner Glenn Scroggins said.

"It's a bizarre case," Nicholson said. "What we're finding is that if this is an isolated case, we may never solve it."

Nicholson said he would not rule out any possibility, whether it be a grudge shooting or a murder-suicide, but he refused to discuss the possibility of a random killing.

What made the case so baffling, Nicholson said, was that the couple was so clean-cut and popular. No drugs or alcohol were involved and no one knew of any grudges against them.

Both students were fully clothed when their bodies were found, and there was no sign of a robbery. "There apparently wasn't even a struggle," the detective said.

Dixon's family owned guns, but relatives said they didn't recognize a holster found under the boy's body, Nicholson said. The holster could have fit a .38 caliber handgun believed to have been used in the shootings, he said, but the weapon has not been recovered. A knife also was found in the car.

Rob Eidson, who said he had been Dixon's friend since kindergarten, said he, Dixon, and some other friends spent Saturday afternoon together, playing a board game and then driving around town.

"As far as I know, he never had any enemies. Kim definitely had no enemies," Eidson said. "He was president of his class. You know he was well liked."

The scene of the killings, a lightly wooded area visible in daylight from a road along the park's edge, is less than a block from a shopping center and an apartment complex in this city of 80,000.

Plane's owner ignored warnings

JENKINSBURG, Ga. (AP) — The owner disregarded a warning to fix his plane's fuel system three days before the craft, possibly overloaded with 16 skydivers, crashed shortly after takeoff, killing everyone aboard, a federal investigator says.

Real estate developer David Lee Williams, 35, of Atlanta, had been warned Thursday that the fuel in his Cessna 208 Caravan was bypassing the fuel filter and appeared to be contaminated, National Transportation Safety Board Chairman Jim Burnett said Monday.

Mechanics for an air freight company that had wanted to use the aircraft placed a notice on the plane advising that it not be flown and told Williams to purge the fuel system, he said. Williams "looked at the fuel and pronounced it to be all right," and flew the plane out of Fulton County Airport, Burnett said.

NATION IN BRIEF

Many still have no power

Associated Press

As more than a half-million customers remained without power today because of Hurricane Gloria, estimates of property loss, crop damage, food spoilage and repair costs soared toward $100 million from North Carolina to New England.

Police and National Guardsmen manned railroad crossings on Long Island, N.Y., where utility officials said electricity was restored to 54,000 customers Monday and the remaining 261,000 would be restored by the end of the week.

More than 50 school districts, mostly in suburban Suffolk County, were closed because of power outages, and officials said as many as 40,000 New York Bell telephones were still out of service.

The New York Times, quoting analysts and state officials, said in today's editions it would cost LILCO $25 million to $30 million to repair its transmission and distribution systems.

In addition, the newspaper said, LILCO would lose $5 million to $10 million in sales during the weeklong outage.

About 150,000 Connecticut customers had no power and 7,700 had no telephone service early today. Gov. William O'Neill said he would wait for state and federal damage estimates before applying for federal disaster relief.

In Massachusetts, utility officials estimated 92,000 customers remained without power Monday night, and officials said it could be two or three days before service is restored.

More than 50,000 Rhode Islanders were still without power Monday as a team of Federal Emergency Management Agency officials surveyed storm damage estimated by Gov. Edward D. DiPrete's office at more than $8.5 million.

Over the weekend, New Jersey officials estimated Gloria's 90-mph winds had inflicted about $8.5 million damage when the storm hit Friday. By Monday that estimate had climbed to $38.4 million, with two hard-hit counties still unreported.

Farmhand plan favored

WASHINGTON (AP) — Politically powerful western growers indicate they could support an immigration bill that would admit thousands of foreign farmhands, while providing such workers the strongest possible labor protections.

Four representatives of western growers responded favorably Monday when Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., asked at a hearing if they could back such a plan in order to ease passage of an immigration bill.

"I get the feeling that there's a lot of interest in that kind of compromise," Schumer told a reporter following the hearing of the House Judiciary immigration subcommittee.

The growers' demand for foreign workers to pick perishable crops has become the most explosive issue in Congress' latest attempt to pass legislation to slow the flow of illegal aliens.

Milk supports extended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has approved and sent to President Reagan an emergency 45-day extension of the nation's milk price-support system and related programs.

President Reagan was expected to sign the bill today, White House spokesman Rusty Brashear said shortly after midnight Monday. He said the president did not receive the bill in time to sign it before the Monday midnight expiration of the current program.

However, Brashear added: "It is our understanding the bill can be signed and be retroactive to 12:01 a.m. The point is, if you get it back to 12:01 a.m., you follow the same price guidelines."

The action was sought to head off the activation of underlying, so-called "permanent law" otherwise scheduled to go into effect at the end of the 1985 fiscal year.

Shuttle mission veiled

WASHINGTON (LAT) — The Air Force plans Thursday to inaugurate the fourth space shuttle, the Atlantis, with a secret mission that is expected to boost into orbit two satellites designed to relay missile-launching orders from the president to military commanders in the field.

Air Force officials divulged little about the flight and refused Monday to comment on the new spaceship's top-secret cargo.

But statements by Pentagon officials in congressional testimony, data about the satellites and schedules for other shuttle flights dedicated to military uses point to Atlantis' role in launching the military communications satellites. In addition, there have been suggestions that the flight will be used to conduct experiments in connection with the so-called "Star Wars" space missile defense program.

The launch of the Atlantis will bring into service the final orbiter that the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is authorized to build. At 169,680 pounds, it is lighter than the three other spaceships — Columbia, Challenger and Discovery — and, with Discovery, it has been strengthened to withstand the greater heat and stress it would face when launched into polar orbits from Vandenberg Air Force Base.

Thursday's mission is the second dedicated entirely to Pentagon cargo. The first, on Jan. 24, launched a $300 million secret military spy satellite, built to eavesdrop on the Soviet Union.

Radio program to begin

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Radio Free Afghanistan," a new short-wave broadcasting operation financed by the U.S. government, on Tuesday plans to beam its first news and information programs to the people of Afghanistan and the guerrillas battling Soviet troops in the rugged Central Asian country.

The service will start with a modest 15 minutes of original programs twice a week, plus repeats, written and edited by Afghans in Dari, one of two major languages used in Afghanistan, officials said.

This will demonstrate "in a dramatic way the solidarity of the American people with the Afghan freedom fighters' resistance to Soviet tyranny," said James L. Buckley, president of Radio Free Europe-Radio Liberty, which broadcasts to the Soviet Union and its East European allies.

The programs are being prepared and sent out by Buckley's agency over its transmitters in Europe, and financed under the organization's existing budget.

Cars bought as 'gifts'

SEATTLE (AP) — Members of white supremacist group, The Order, paid for getaway cars in cash and kept their names off the vehicles' titles by claiming they were being bought as gifts, according to testimony in a federal racketeering case against the Nazi-like sect.

In other testimony Monday, the all-white U.S. District Court jury heard that five Order members bought $50,000 life insurance policies, including one that named officials of another right-wing group as beneficiaries.

New Japanese 'Super Pill' Insures Rapid Weight-Loss

No Dieting — Eat All You Want, Pill Does All The Work

BEVERLY HILLS, CA — An exciting new "all natural" weight-loss "Super" Pill developed by the JMA (Japanese Medical Association) has just been approved for distribution in the United States. Reportedly, it can guarantee that you will lose more than a pound a day without dieting, from the very first day until you reach your ideal weight and figure. News of this "Super Pill" is literally sweeping the country. It's called Amitol and there has never been anything quite like it before.

"Flushes Calories Right Out Of Your Body"

What makes Amitol so thrilling and unique is its reported ability to flush calories right out of your body. Amitol is completely safe, it contains no drugs whatsoever. Its ingredients are derived solely from the Konjac root which grows primarily in Northern Japan.

Why the Konjac root? It has been used in Japan for over 1600 years to produce rapid and natural weight-loss!

Japanese studies verify that Konjac root actually prevents fat producing calories from being absorbed into your system. They say it does this by surrounding much of the fats, proteins and carbohydrates you have eaten with a protective viscous coating which is then gently flushed out of your system. And according to Japanese research this produces absolutely amazing results.

And who can disagree! Amitol (although brand new to this country) is already being called by many people, "the most exciting weight-loss breakthrough of the century." In fact, everywhere there are reports of easy and fast weight-loss from formerly overweight people (in all walks of life) who are now slim, trim, and attractive again.

Company Offers Extraordinary Guarantee

You now can purchase Amitol direct from the North American distributor, and it comes with an extraordinary guarantee.

If you place your order now and then follow the simple instructions for a period of 30 days, you must be completely satisfied with the dramatic visible results or just return the empty container and Dyna Labs will immediately send back your entire purchase price. This guarantee applies regardless of your age or current weight level. What could be better than that! It's just that simple. If you've tried to lose weight before and failed you no longer have an excuse. Amitol is available, it's easy and it works without dieting!

Best of all, ordering Amitol is simple, fast, and reliable! Simply call Dyna Labs Toll Free: (1-800-453-5600) Ext. 110 and order with your credit card. If you don't have a credit card Dyna Labs will also accept C.O.D. orders right over the phone! All orders are shipped immediately by UPS, which means no delay and no orders lost in the mail!

$19.95—30 day supply, or $35.95—60 day supply. Operators are standing by and will be glad to take your order. You can order 24 hrs. a day, 7 days a week! Please don't wait to call. You really do deserve to be thin!

Cloud cover to continue for Basin

From Staff and Wire Reports

Cloudy skies will hang over Midland for the next two days, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Tonight will be cloudy with possible isolated late evening rain showers. There is a less than 20 percent chance of rain. Winds will be out of the southeast at five to 15 mph and low temperatures are expected to reach the mid-40s.

Cloudy skies will continue Wednesday with isolated showers and less than 20 percent chance of precipitation predicted. High tempertures should be near 70 degrees with southerly winds at 10 to 20 mph.

The highest temperature ever recorded for Monday's date was 104 degrees in 1977. A low of 42 degrees was recorded for today's date in 1966.

STATE

A slow warming trend began across all of Texas today as a dome of high pressure dominated the weather pattern across the entire state.

Mostly cloudy skies were forecast for tonight and Wednedsday across West Texas while skies were to be mostly clear over the rest of the state.

Lows tonight will be in the 40s except in South Texas where readings were to be in the 50s and some readings along the coast will be in the 60s. Highs Wednesday will be mostly in the 70s except in South Texas where readings will climb into the lower 80s.

Skies were clear over the southern half of the state early today and cloudy to partly cloudy over the High Plains, North Central Texas and the Panhandle.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 40s except in South Texas and along the coast where readings were in the 50s. Extremes are ranging from 41 at Amarillo 60 at McAllen.

NATION

Frost whitened most of the Plains early today with heavy snowfall blanketing northern Minnesota and a cold front in the East triggered fierce thunderstorms over Alabama and scattered showers throughout the South.

Frost and freeze warnings were posted across southwest Minnesota, Iowa, eastern Nebraska, and most of Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Grand Marais, in northeast Minnesota, got 5 inches of snow overnight.

Furious finish leaves Mahaffey a winner

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO — John Mahaffey knew it was coming. He just didn't know it would be this week.

"I'd been playing pretty well. I knew I was playing well. I figured if I just kept on playing, I might sneak in and win a golf tournament," he said.

"Like I said earlier, it sometimes comes when you least expect it."

Mahaffey, 37, won one on Monday that he didn't — in fact, couldn't — expect to win.

Mahaffey was four shots down to 25-year-old Jodie Mudd with only four holes to go in regulation play in the day-late windup of the storm-disrupted Texas Open. But Mudd, trying to win his first pro event, bogeyed the 15th hole and Mahaffey birdied three of the last four, catching Mudd with a 5-iron shot into a 15 mph wind that stopped some two feet from the cup on No. 18.

He tapped in the putt for the birdie that finished off a 67 that tied Mudd at 268 and forced a playoff.

"John was playing awfully strong. Birdies on three of the last four holes, unbelievable," said Mudd, who had led through the second and third rounds but could do no better than a 71 over the last 18 holes.

BOTH PARRED the first playoff hole routinely. With Mahaffey safely on the green of the par-3 second, Mudd hit into a bunker. He failed to get it out with his first sand shot, blew the next one well beyond the cup, then missed his putt. That made it easy for Mahaffey to two-putt for the winning par.

"This is just the culmination of three years of hard work. I don't want to go into it too deeply, but I've been working hard, working to change my swing.

"This just proves that with hard work, you get some breaks and good things happen," said Mahaffey, who lost a playoff for the Anheuser-Busch Classic and had two other runnerup finishes this year.

"This is something very special," Mahaffey said. "It's the first time I've won in Texas. And to win here in San Antonio — I grew up just 60 miles up the road and played a lot of junior golf here — this is something very special."

THE EIGHTH victory of his 15-year career was worth $63,000 from the total purse of $350,000 and pushed Mahaffey's season's earnings to a career-high $303,360.

Mudd had to settle for his third runnerup finish of the season instead of his first victory.

"In sports, somebody has to be first, somebody second. I just hoped John would be second," Mudd said after picking up a check for $37,800.

Mark O'Meara and Mark Hayes shared third at 271. O'Meara, winner of two titles earlier this season, had a closing round of 67 and Hayes shot 69. They were followed by veteran Jim Colbert at 68-272.

Newsome listed 'questionable'

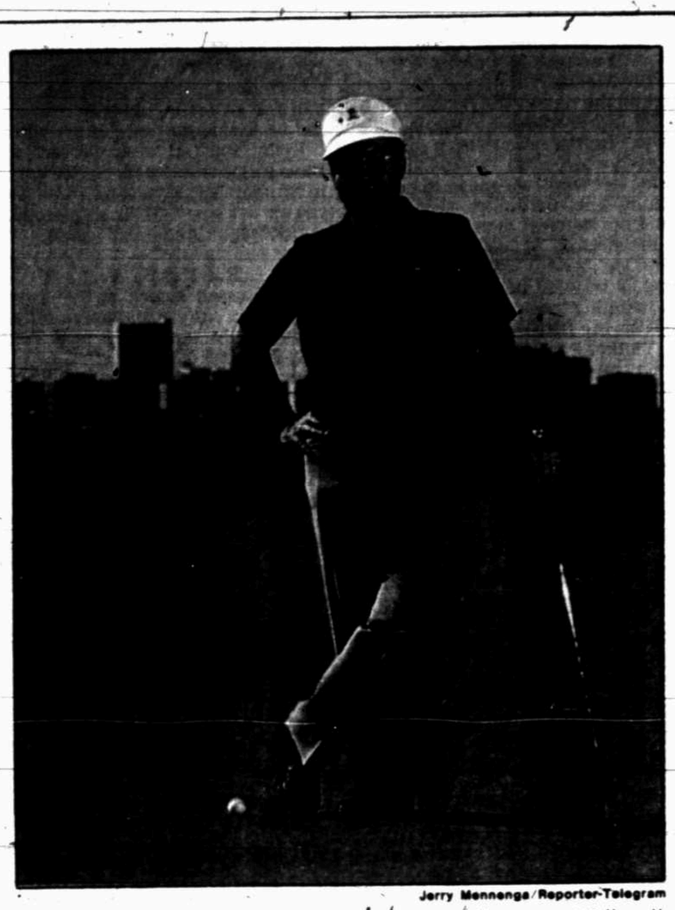

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys fullback Timmy Newsome is listed as "questionable" for Sunday's National Football League game against the New York Giants because of a knee injury, Coach Tom Landry says.

Newsome, who started the last three games of 1984 and the first three games this season at fullback, injured the knee while blocking on a field goal attempt during Sunday's 17-10 victory over the Houston Oilers.

"It wouldn't surprise me if I had a pretty good tear (in the ligament)," Newsome said Monday.

Newsome will be replaced by James Jones, who also has had knee problems, a team spokesman says.

Jones threw a 12-yard touchdown pass to quarterback Danny White in the Cleveland.

Rex Worrell turns over the keys to Hogan Park Golf Course to Price Courter today and then will take a year's vacation.

"I came here Oct. 1, 1975 and leave Oct. 1, 1985. While everybody else had Mondays off, I worked, so I figure I have about 500 Mondays coming to me and I'm taking them all at once," declares Worrell.

His decade at the Midland public course has been witness to some momentous changes...and some name-calling brawls when the City fathers have raised the greens fee rates.

District 2-4A clash highlight of week

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

Area Football

Things are coming a little closer to home this week as one district race opens Friday night and most of the others prepare for a final tune-up before playing for real on Oct. 11.

In District 2-4A, undefeated Lamesa, 3-0, and twice-beaten Andrews, 1-2, both idle last week, are busy loading their guns with live ammunition as they brace for a sectional shootout. The showdown gains even more importance because it is the district opener for both teams in a what looks like a wide-open district race.

Although Sweetwater, 2-1, is considered the runaway favorite even after a 18-0 loss to Abilene High, no one is ready to concede a precious playoff spot to anyone. Both the Mustangs and the Tornadoes, with a week's rest behind them, are expecting to mount challenges with Pecos, 3-0, Monahans, 2-0-1, Fort Stockton, 2-1, and Snyder, 2-1, for the elusive playoff berths.

In Lamesa, where the Tors will host Andrews Friday at 8 p.m., a flying 3-0 start has optimism at a fever pitch for a turnaround in district play. Last season coach Clyde Noonkester's team was also 3-0 going into the Andrews game. A 14-13 win pushed them briefly to 4-0, but the Tors limped home with a 1-5 record the rest of the way and a poor district finish.

"It doesn't make any difference who's done what so far in a game like this one," said Noonkester.

This season, Kenneth Williams has again given Lamesa boosters good reason to cheer. The speedy tailback has already gone over 400 yards rushing in three games behind the sturdy blocking of Ray Earnest, Shawn Holladay, Bobby Guyer, Michael Hernandez and Jade Froman.

But Lamesa has also gotten consistent yardage on the ground from fullback Greg Hogg and quarterback Keith Bryant. With a ground game like that, Noonkester hasn't seen fit to air the ball out much.

The scene is quite different in Andrews, where head coach David Visentine utilizes the passing of quarterback Danny Neighbors for maximum output. Neighbors threw for more than 200 yards in his last outing, a losing cause to Levelland. The senior has thrown more than 60 times with a better than 50 per cent completion rate in three games, good for 427 yards and three touchdowns and just one interception. He has also run for three scores.

"We haven't played anyone with the capability of throwing the ball like Andrews can," Noonkester said. "They're a balanced attack, but they'll throw 20-25 times a game. We haven't had anyone who has tested our pass defense like that."

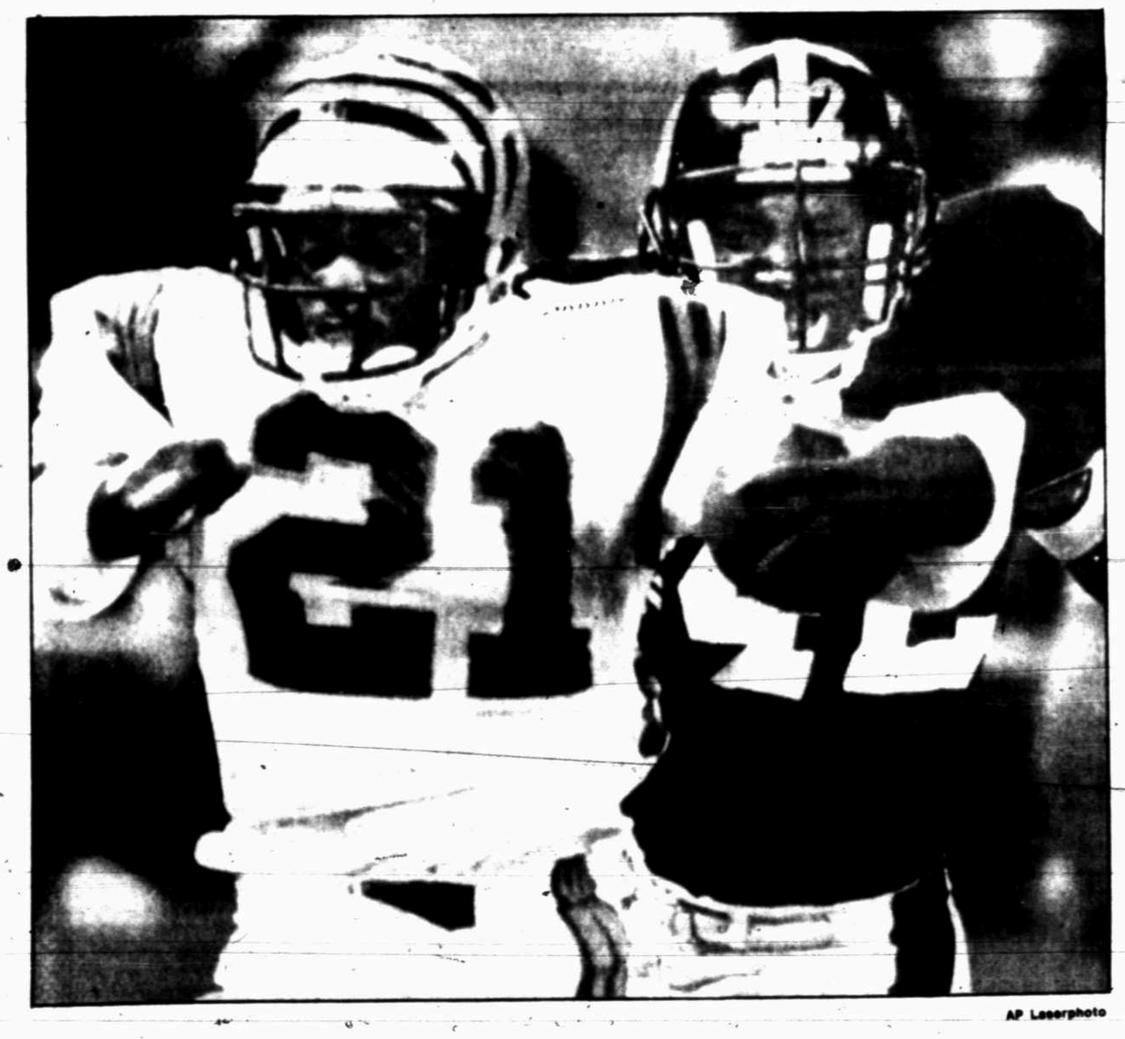

But the Mustangs have been inconsistent moving the ball on the ground, rolling up 254 yards rushing in their opener with Brownfield, but falling off to 217 total in their next two games.

"But we will throw the ball, it's the thing we do best, and it's been good to us," said Visentine. "But we're going to need to run, you have to run to win. We're hoping we can set up the pass with the run. The pressure is on our line to open up the holes and our on our backs to get through them."

AREA RUMBLINGS: Intra-district rivalries will command much of the attention this week as area teams get ready for district openers in both District 8-2A and 7-3A a week from Friday. The Crane-McCamey match-up (8 p.m. in Crane) should produce as much emotion and hollering between fans of both sides as it will heavy-hiting on the field. The Golden Cranes have saved the Badgers as their offering to the homecoming fans this season and will try to avenge an lasy year's embarrassing loss.

Steelers' 'big play guy' gives one to Bengals, 37-24

Cincinnati's James Brooks races past Pittsburgh's Dave Edwards into the end zone in the fourth quarter of the Bengals 37-24 win on Monday Night Football.

PITTSBURGH — Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll likes to call Louis Lipps "our big play guy."

Unfortunately for the Steelers, Noll called on Lipps once too often Monday night, and what resulted was the biggest play of the game — not for the Steelers, but for the Cincinnati Bengals.

And because Lipps finally did something wrong, the 1-3 Bengals finally may have righted themselves after their second dismal start in as many seasons.

The Bengals, stripped of their most effective offensive weapon, turned to short passes by quarterback Boomer Esiason, and James Brooks' slashing runs to defeat the Steelers 37-24 for their first victory in September since the 1983 season.

"When we were down 24-21, it would have been real easy to say 'Here we go again.' But you can't count this ballclub out," said Bengals Coach Sam Wyche. "We're a bunch of fighters. We didn't like it when some of the Steelers said we'd be 0-4 and out of the (American Conference Central) division race if we lost."

WHAT THE Steelers, 2-2, might have done was count too much on Lipps, their second-year receiving star who already has six touchdown receptions this season.

With the Steelers trying to build on their three-point lead, Noll sent in what he calls a "gadget play" — a flea-flicker in which Lipps takes a reverse handoff from Mark Malone, then flips the ball back to the quarterback for a pass to the tight end. But Lipps fumbled as he attempted the throwback to Malone and linebacker Reggie Williams recovered at the Steelers' 33 with 10:48 remaining to play in the game.

Esiason, making just his second start of the season, followed by throwing a 24-yard completion to rookie Eddie Brown. He then found tight end Rodney Holman on a 4-yard scoring pass — Holman's second touchdown catch of the game — to give the Bengals the lead for good at 28-24.

PITTSBURGH'S offense deteriorated after that as the Bengals turned Malone's second interception of the game into a Jim Breech field goal and Brooks' second touchdown run, a 32-yarder with 1:45 to play. Brooks ended with 133 yards on 18 carries.

"We made mistakes," Noll said. "We made a mistake on the gadget; we turned it over and gave our defense bad field position."

Lipps, who caught five passes for 100 yards and a touchdown, said he "didn't have total control of the ball" when he tried the pitchback to Malone.

Monday Night

That was exactly when the Steelers lost control of the game.

"When it doesn't work, it's a bad call," said Steelers running back Rich Erenberg. "When it does work, it's probably a 50-yard completion."

The Steelers' defense, top-ranked in the National Football League after allowing only 20 points in three games, took away the Bengals' top offensive weapon, Esiason's throws to Brown and Cris Collinsworth. The two receivers combined for only four catches after teaming for 16 receptions — 10 by Collinsworth himself — in a 44-41 loss to the San Diego Chargers last week.

BUT THE Steelers didn't take away Brooks' running, or the left-handed Esiason's effective short throws to his running backs and Holman.

"At halftime, the coaches told me to lower my sights and start hitting the short guys," Esiason said. "They said we'd go right down the field and we did. We kept our poise when we were down. We didn't let the crowd take our game away and we didn't let the Pittsburgh defense get momentum."

The Bengals, 1-3, suddenly are back in the AFC Central race, while Pittsburgh now faces consecutive road tests at Miami and Dallas.

The Steelers fell back into their pattern, established last season, of playing well one week and horribly the next. They lost to the Browns 17-7 two weeks ago on Monday night after belting the Indianapolis Colts 45-3; they crushed the Houston Oilers 20-0 before losing to the Bengals.

"Evidently we haven't learned our lesson," said Steelers receiver John Stallworth, who had 11 catches for 151 yards.

MALONE, WHO completed 26 of 44 passes for 374 yards and 3 TDs, was able to do what Esiason couldn't — throw the ball deep. But while Stallworth and Lipps combined for 16 receptions and 251 yards, the Bengals' defense was containing the usually effective Pittsburgh ground game. The Bengals outrushed the Steelers 222-101 in winning for the fourth time in six years in Three Rivers Stadium.

"Our offensive line did a great job and we really attacked their defense," Wyche said.

Cincinnati, which started 0-5 last season, took a 21-10 lead in the third period when Esiason threw 8 yards to Brown to complete a 79-yard scoring drive.

Panthers in unfamiliar No. 5 spot in poll

AP Prep Poll

It was a week of few upsets in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll but Abilene High caused a shuffle on the Class 5A list with its 7-7 tie with season-long Class 5A leader and defending state co-champion Odessa Permian.

Abilene's deadlock allowed Houston Yates, 4-0, to move up from the No. 2 position to the top with 20 first place votes from The Associated Press panel of sports writers and sportscasters. The Panthers, going against San Angelo this week in District 4-5A action, fell to fifth in the poll.

Tomball faced a serious challenge for its 4A lead from No. 2 Denison but held onto the top position by a 234-226 point margin while Hempstead in 3A, Electra in 2A and Munday in A all held onto their No. 1 rankings.

Yates blanked Houston Austin 70-0, to catch the attention of the 25 voters in this week's poll. Permian dropped to fifth with Converse Judson assuming the No. 2 rank, followed by Houston Aldine and San Antonio Clark.

THERE WERE only three ties and two losses among the 50 ranked teams in the five classifications.

Seventh ranked Lubbock Estacado suffered the only blemish among the ranked Class 4A teams in a scoreless tie with Monahans. Estacado remained in the poll at the No. 10 position this week.

Tomball received 17 first place votes to seven for Denison, which trailed the lead by only eight points. Corsicana, Bay City and Huntsville remained 3-4-5 on the 4A list.

Hempstead, led by running back Harvey Williams, blanked Stafford 56-0 to reign over the 3A top 10, which escaped without an upset. Navasota, heading for a district showdown with Hempstead, remained No. 2 with a 19-8 victory over Willis, followed by No.3 three Littlefield, No 4, Daingerfield and No. 5 Columbus.

ELECTRA RECEIVED 21 first place votes and a 245-205 point lead over second place Hamlin in Class 2A while Alto, Universal Randolph and Groveton remained third, fourth and fifth.

Munday easily held onto its A lead with 24 of the 25 first place votes cast and a 249-219 point margin over second place Union Hill.

Fifth ranked Roscoe was a 31-0 loser to 2A No. 2 ranked Hamlin, No. 8 Valley lost to Nazareth 7-0, and No. 6 Godley was tied by Masonic Home, 6-6.

Here is The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll with first place votes in parentheses, season records and points based on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

In September, Mr. October can't come through

By Mark Kreidler
Copley News Service

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Hey, don't blame Reggie Jackson. He's Mr. October, remember?

It was still Sept. 30 when Jackson stepped to the plate with a runner on first and two out in the ninth inning Monday night, his California team down by two runs and a 21-year-old kid pitching for Kansas City who looks like he'd have trouble getting into an R-rated movie.

Three called strikes later, Bret Saberhagen had confirmed what Jackson, Royals Manager Dick Howser and teammate George Brett say they've known for some time: this is not your ordinary 21-year-old kid.

Last night Saberhagen became the fifth-youngest player in major league history to record 20 wins in a season, and his timing couldn't have been better for a Kansas City team locked in its annual fight to the death against the Angels for the American League West championship.

Saberhagen's whiff of Jackson capped a five-hit, nine-strikeout performance that carried the Royals to a 3-1 victory before 34,200 fans who braved a game-time temperature of 49 degrees and predictions that it would be near freezing by the time they got to their cars afterward. Kansas City and California are dead even with six games left in the season, three more against each other this week.

Saberhagen was not touched all night by Jackson, who has risen to some of his most memorable peaks in situations such as these. In four at-bats, Jackson fouled out, grounded out, flied out to deep right field and took the called third strike in the ninth.

"Facing Reggie in that situation made it a little more exciting," said Saberhagen (20-6), who, at 21 years, five months and 19 days old, moved past George Herman Ruth — the Babe — by about two months on the 20-game winners' youth parade. The Bambino won 20 in 1916 with the Boston Red Sox before becoming a full-time home run hitter.

Although it made for good drama, Jackson's strikeout did not decide the game; Saberhagen's excellent control did. He got five batters on called third strikes, and his only mistake was a 2-1 fastball that Doug DeCinces hit over the left field wall in the second inning.

American League

Yankees 5, Orioles 4

Phil Niekro, who spent the early part of the day at the bedside of his ailing father in West Virginia, failed for the fourth time to earn his 300th career victory. The Yankee knuckleballer left with two out in the eighth trailing the Baltimore Orioles 4-2. But Don Mattingly's two-run homer in the bottom of the ninth tied it, and Don Baylor's single drove in Dave Winfield minutes later with the winning run.

It was the fifth straight victory for the Yankees, who moved within five games of American League East-leading Toronto, which was idle. The Blue Jays' magic number for clinching the division title remained at three games.

"That should give Toronto something to think about," said the tired and haggard Niekro.

Niekro, who gave up 12 hits and walked six, won his 299th game on Sept. 8 against Oakland. Since then, he has lost to Toronto and twice to Detroit before the no-decision Monday night. He is tentatively scheduled to get one more start in the season finale against the Blue Jays Sunday in Toronto.

Twins 7, White Sox 1

Bert Blyleven pitched a five-hitter and Kent Hrbek scored the go-ahead run in the third inning when Chicago catcher Carlton Fisk dropped the ball for an error when Hrbek tried for an inside-the-park home run.

Kirby Puckett went 4-for-4 and Dave Engle added a three-run homer in support of Blyleven, 16-16, who struck out seven and completed his major-league high 23rd game.

Rangers 5, A's 3

Jeff Russell struck out a season-high eight batters and scattered six hits in eight innings to lead Texas past Oakland.

But Russell, 3-6, looked like a loser until Bobby Jones hit a two-run, pinch-hit home run in the eighth inning to turn a 3-2 deficit into a 4-3 lead.

Jones' homer came off A's ace reliever Jay Howell, 9-7, with one out in the eighth and Toby Harrah on first. The Rangers added an insurance run on an RBI double by Larry Parrish.

Dwayne Henry came on for the Rangers in the ninth inning to register his third save of the year. He had to pitch out of a bases loaded jam, throwing 33 pitches in the inning.

Teaff praises TCU honesty

WACO (AP) — Prompted by the NCAA investigation at Texas Christian after Coach Jim Wacker suspended seven players for taking cash from alumni, Baylor Coach Grant Teaff Monday released a statement praising TCU for its honesty.

Teaff is chairman of the American Football Coaches Association ethics committee, and was speaking in that role, said Maxey Parrish, Baylor sports information director.

"As a football coach," Teaff said in the statement, "I understand the hurt, the pain and the anguish Coach Jim Wacker, his staff, his team and the TCU family have gone through.

"As chairman of the ethics committee of the American Football Coaches Association, I would call upon the NCAA to act as rapidly as possible and request that they take into full consideration the fact that Coach Wacker took immediate action and disclosed fully the situation to the NCAA," the statement said.

"The ethics committee has for several years urged coaches to take leadership roles in the proper conduct of our football programs," it said. "This type of leadership is an excellent example."

Wacker suspended the players after several admitted accepting cash payments from TCU alumni. Texas Christian reported the problem to NCAA officials.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association recently slapped stiff penalties and a two-year probation on Southern Methodist for recruiting violations.

NCAA investigators have also been notified of allegations that Texas A&M quarterback Kevin Murray accepted cash and use of a car from an A&M alumnus.

Padres postpone inevitable another day

Associated Press

National League

The San Diego Padres know they won't be the National League West champions again, but they don't want to be around when the Los Angeles Dodgers take the title away from them.

The Dodgers, with a chance to clinch a tie with a victory at home against San Diego Monday night, lost 6-4 to keep the magic number at two. Los Angeles still leads the West by 5½ games as second-place Cincinnati lost 4-3 to San Francisco.

"They're going to win it, but I just as soon not watch their celebration," Padres Manager Dick Williams said of the Dodgers. "But I'll be rooting for them when they get there because they're in our division."

"We're the champions and we don't want to see it clinched against us," Padres outfielder Tony Gwynn said. "We're trying to finish third, so we're playing hard. We still have pride in what we're doing out here."

In the only other NL game Monday, Atlanta tripped Houston 6-3 in 11 innings. All the East teams were idle, including first-place St. Louis, which leads New York by three games going into the start of their three-game series tonight at Busch Stadium.

PADRES OUTFIELDER Jerry Davis recorded his first game-winning RBI in the major leagues when he singled home the go-ahead run in the ninth inning against the Dodgers.

"I'm a rookie and I'm hungier than any of the Dodgers," said Davis, who has played in only 42 games for the Padres this season. "I still remember how to play this game. It was good to get a chance to play. We want to win some 'show' money."

The Dodgers, who play host to the Padres again tonight, are impatient to start a pennant-clinching party.

"I think everybody's anxious to get it over with," Manager Tom Lasorda said. "I'd rather see it over as quick as possible."

With the score tied 4-4, Dodgers reliever Ken Howell, 4-7, walked Kevin McReynolds to lead off the ninth. Miguel Dilone, running for McReynolds, stole second and scored on the single by Davis, who scored on a double by Garry Templeton.

RICH GOSSAGE, 4-3, pitched the last two innings for the victory although he failed to protect a 4-3 lead in the bottom of the eighth. Steve Sax and Enos Cabell singled to start the inning and Sax scored the tying run on Mariano Duncan's sacrifice fly.

The Padres went ahead against Dodgers starter Fernando Valenzuela on Gwynn's two-run single in the eighth.

The Dodgers took a 1-0 lead when Mike Marshall led off the second inning with his 26th homer.

Giants 4, Reds 3

Cincinnati wasted an outstanding pitching performance by Mario Soto against San Francisco.

Soto, making his first appearance since Sept. 13 because of injuries, allowed only three hits and struck out 14 in seven innings, but the Reds got just three hits of their own.

Dan Gladden's two-out single in the ninth inning broke a 3-3 tie off reliever Ted Power, 7-6, and made a winner of Scott Garrelts, 9-4.

Braves 6, Astros 3

Dale Murphy's 11th-inning single drove in the go-ahead run and Claudell Washington added a two-run homer to seal Atlanta's victory over Houston.

Pinch-hitter Terry Harper led off the 11th with a double off Frank DiPino, 3-7, and scored on Murphy's blooper to left field. One out later, Washington hit his 15th homer.

Rick Camp, 4-6, was the winner with two innings of scoreless relief.

WORRELL

Hogan was an 18-hole course when he came here from Kermit, and it is now a 27-hole course with ambitions for 36.

When Rex came to Midland, the pro shop was located in a space-limited clubhouse where golfers and Cubs Stadium baseball patrons shared the same parking lot. Now the clubhouse has its own parking lot and spacious interior, complete with snack bar.

In 1975, the sprinkler system was manually operated and someone had to be there to move the sprinkler heads and turn the system on and off. Today, there is an underwater sprinkling system and it's automatically timed.

When Worrell came to Midland, the annual greens fee membership was 70. Now, with the annual memberships being phased out, the number has reached 200.

A golf cart fleet of 34 in 1975 has swelled to 80, "the scope of business has increased tremendously in that period," advises Worrell.

As for the great greens fee storm, the eye of which swirls around the annual memberships, Rex concedes, "There are arguments to be made for both sides, but the main thing that determined its fate was the philosophy of the powers that be had toward the course.

"On the one side, it is nice to have a player buy an annual membership. In effect, he is promising to play 50 times a year. Of course, there are some who play more than that and are regarded as 'abusers' of the rate."

THIS IS an important consideration, since Rex contends the "golf season" runs from April through August. It's in the off season that the greens fee player will be there, almost in defiance of the weather. He's like the freebie at the ball park. He's still actively contributes at the concession stand.

Worrell, only 45, held jobs at Carlsbad and Kermit, three years each, before coming to Midland. After using up his college eligibility at New Mexico State University, he was an assistant pro at the NMSU course while working toward his degree.

"No, I never seriously thought about the pro tour. I was never really that good. You can tell by what you shoot and I won no major college tournaments. Besides I had a family and responsibilities and I didn't really have time to devote to getting my game into the shape it takes to win. You know, some guys, the ones who wind up on the tour, just win from the time they are nine until they are 60. I wasn't one of those."

At Carlsbad, he was there for the installation of a watering system and 13 new greens were added to turn a nine hole course into 18 with nine-lighted holes. A watering system was also installed while was at Kermit.

Although the demand for another nine holes at Hogan isn't as imperative as it was during the boom years, Rex thinks the time, costwise, is opportune for the addition. "They have the land, water irrigation and pump station. Construction costs make this an excellent time to expand, but the question is whether there is the population base to support it."

IN 1975, the course was so crowded that another nine was imperative.

Worrell is only the second pro Hogan has had. Jimmie Gamewell was the first pro. "Gamewell was a city employee in charge of the golf course division. I came in as an independent contractor with the city," explains Worrell. "I was not on the city payroll, but got a percentage of the income from the operation.

Worrell's contract included the pro shop, merchandise and concessions, and the golf cart business. "I had a payroll of 18 people that I hired," he notes, "That's one reason the budget is going up for next year. The City has taken over such things as the carts and concessions and has the responsiblity of hiring the people to run them.

"I've made a living here, but not enough money to keep me here."

Worrell figures he earned his money with the seven days a week dawn to dusk hours. "Barbara (Rex's wife) worked the same hours doing the books.

In his decade here, Worrell showed a profit every year, "except 1982 when the cart barn was broken into and vandalized, destroying 19 carts."

AS FOR the course, it currently is in better shape than at any time since "the early 1960s. Since we got the carts off the course (new cart paths have been installed on all the holes), the course is in as good a shape as I've ever seen it.

"But the good spells go with the weather, over which you really have no control."

Worrell plans to take a year off, but will be back in the job market late next summer or early fall. "I'll be looking for an 18-hole course. Something not quite as big next."

As of today, the course becomes the problem of Price Courter, the former Midlander who is coming back home from Snyder.

Robinson set to break Bear's record in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Eddie Robinson, who can become college football's winningest coach Saturday night in the Cotton Bowl with a victory over Prairie View, said Monday he was inspired by the man whose record he could break.

"You had to love Coach (Paul) Bryant," said Robinson. "To me, he was in football what John Wayne was to the movies. The man had a flair. He inspired me."

Robinson tied Bryant Saturday night as college football's winningest coach with a 23-6 victory over Oregon State, a Pac-10 member. Both men now have 323 wins.

Grambling goes into the game with a 3-0 record while the Panthers are 1-3, including a 14-12 loss to Southern University last week.

"I'M NOT carried away or obsessed by breaking the record," said Robinson. "Whatever I'm wearing I'm just wearing it for somebody else."

Robinson, in his 44th year of coaching at Grambling, will carry a record of 323-107-15 into the Prairie View game. The Tigers have had 25 consecutive winning seasons under Robinson.

Grambling crushed Prairie View 42-0 last year and has won 17 of the last 18 meetings. Prairie View's last victory was 22-14 in 1964.

Asked why he never left Grambling for the National Football League, Robinson said, "I don't think I could make it with the guys in pro ball. My life is more with the young people."

Prairie View Coach Conway Hayman said he knows why Robinson never left Grambling.

"He has 50 kids who weigh over 250 pounds," said Hayman. "That's why he never left Grambling."

HAYMAN SAID the Panthers won't play dead for Grambling.

"I don't want to be the guy who lost number 324 to Eddie," said Hayman. "He has been my idol forever. But I don't need that label."

Robinson said, "It's an exciting time. I just hope Dallas is our town on Saturday night."

Doormat of yore, Iowa steps to top of new poll

Associated Press

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Hayden Fry often jokes that the University of Iowa football team was in the nation's bottom 10 when he became head coach of the Hawkeyes seven years ago.

Now the joke is on the rest of the country. Iowa, which once went almost two decades without a winning record — at the time a major-college record for futility — is ranked No. 1 in this week's Associated Press poll. It's the first time the Hawkeyes have been in that position in 24 years.

"We're very appreciative," said Fry, who coached at Southern Methodist and North Texas State before taking the Iowa job in December 1978 after the Hawkeyes had gone 2-9. "It's a real honor to the players, the university and to the whole state of Iowa. Our players have worked really hard."

THE HAWKEYES jumped from third to first after Auburn, which had been No. 1, lost to Tennessee 38-20. Fry's troops passed Oklahoma, which squeaked by Minnesota 13-7 in its season opener and remained second. The Sooners received 13 first-place votes and 1,046 points. Auburn tumbled all the way to 14th.

"Pat Dye (Auburn's coach) and Johnny Majors (Tennessee's coach) are both good friends of mine," Fry said. "And Johnny is even a better friend now."

Iowa has outscored its first three opponents — Drake, Northern Illinois and Iowa State — 163-23. The Hawkeyes are off to a 3-0 start for only the second time in 21 years and lead the nation in scoring, total defense and rushing defense. Opposing ballcarriers have run 119 times against Iowa and gained only 53 yards.

THE RECORD of 19 straight sub-.500 seasons has since been broken by Rice, which began 1985 with 21 in a row.

Fry said his players were "matter of fact" when he told them they were No. 1. He said he doesn't think it will put any more pressure on his team.

"They'll keep doing what they've been doing," he said. "They know it's a very short distance from the penthouse to the outhouse."

While Iowa jumped to the top, Tennessee, Georgia, Baylor and Texas made the Top Twenty for the first time this season. Dropping out were UCLA, Maryland, Southern California and Virginia.

Behind Iowa and Oklahoma in the Top Ten are Southern Methodist, Florida State, Ohio State, Oklahoma State, Michigan, Louisiana State, Penn State and Arkansas.

Southern Methodist, a 56-21 winner over Texas Christian, jumped from sixth place to third with six first-place votes and 1,001 points. Florida State rallied from a 20-10 fourth-quarter deficit to nip Kansas 24-20 and remained No. 4 with one first-place ballot and 928 points.

Ohio State remained in fifth place with 921 points by whipping Washington State 48-32 and Oklahoma State climbed from seventh to sixth with one first-place vote and 850 points by trouncing Miami of Ohio 45-10.

Michigan shot from 12th to seventh by blanking No. 17 Maryland 20-0 and received the remaining three first-place votes and 842 points.

LSU, Penn State and Arkansas held onto the eighth, ninth and 10th spots. LSU, which was idle, received 670 points while Penn State totaled 640 after downing Rutgers 17-10 and Arkansas received 616 after trimming New Mexico State 45-13.

The Second Ten consists of Florida, Alabama, Nebraska, Auburn, Brigham Young, Tennessee, Air Force, Georgia, Baylor and Texas.

McCamey coach Buster Leaf plans to rest injured Nandy Zarate another week until the district opener, but sub Rob Adams has filled in and led the Badgers to three straight lopsided wins. Tailback Rodney Terry continues to lead McCamey rushers and has scored six touchdowns...

Crane coach Rickey White is looking forward to a good test for his team before opening district the following week at Sonora. The Cranes rolled to their fourth straight win, a 44-6 whipping of Alpine Friday. Quarterback Abel Sena threw for three TD passes for the second straight week, giving him eight for the season. Sena is 23 of 52 for 476 yards and one interception so far...

Greenwood and Rankin will square off in another intra-district contest this Friday (8 p.m. at Greenwwood) and finds the Rangers on a roll with four straight wins, three of them shutouts. Quarterback Chad Longley returned in top form from a knee injury last week and was given the green light to air it out. The senior heaved the pigskin 31 times in the first half, completing 18 passes for four touchdowns. The Rangers, with Longley sidelined much of the time, had thrown just 13 times in three previous victories...

The Red Devils, 2-2, face perhaps their stiffest test of the season when they line up across from the larger Rangers. A wrenching 21-20 loss to Forsan left coach Dwayne Turner with high hopes, however.

Fullback Randy Fulton is ready to return to full-time duty, and Ronnie Thomas will be in the defensive secondary for the first time all season after suffering a knee injury in a scrimmage. Rankin must wait two weeks before opening District 6-A on Oct. 18...

Stanton, after evening its record at 2-2 with a 12-6 win over Ozona, welcomes back wingback Derek Sorely who was unable to return as planned last week. Also returning after a knee bruise knocked him out of the second half against Ozona, is receiver Mark Gonzales. Sophomore Skip Hopkins filled in for injured Kevin Glaspie and completed three of six passes for 61 yards and a touchdown.

Injuries forced coach Dale Ruth called up four sophomores from the junior varsity last week to give him six on the roster. If they continue to contribute as much as they did Friday, Ruth expects them all to remain on the varsity...

Reagan County improved its mark to 3-1 with an easy win over Coahoma, 2-2, Friday, and stays in District 7-3A for a contest with Sonora, 3-1, this week.

Egypt raises oil prices to 45 cents a barrel

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt said today it has increased the price of the various grades of oil it exports by 25 cents to 45 cents a barrel in a move one official said was related in part to Iraq's attacks on Iran's main oil terminal in the Persian Gulf.

The decline in the dollar's value and a decision by the Soviet Union to temporarily halt exports of crude oil to the West also were cited for the second consecutive monthly price increase by Egypt, which is not a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Hammad Ayoub, the ministry's foreign marketing chief, told The Associated Press that the price for the top-grade Gulf of Suez and Ras El-Bihar crudes will be $26.10 a barrel in October, 45 cents higher than the price that applied in September.

He said the Belayim and Ras Badran blends of oil will sell for $25 a barrel, up from $24.55 in September, and that the price of Ras Ghareb heavy crude oil will be $23.50 a barrel, up 25 cents from the previous month.

Egypt is not a significant supplier of oil to the United States. Its main customers are in Europe, Africa and Asia.

Each $1 rise in the world price of oil, when passed on entirely to consumers, is the equivalent of an increase of about 2½ cents a gallon in the retail price of refined petroleum products, such as gasoline and heating oil.

An authoritative ministry source, who spoke on condition that he not be identified, said the October increases were prompted by "a shortage on the world market for the time being."

One factor, he said, was a drop in Iranian oil exports caused by Iraq's systematic bombardment of Iran's Kharg Island oil terminal. Iraq said today that its warplanes raided Kharg Island for a seventh straight day.

Kharg Island handles 90 percent of Iran's petroleum exports. Oil and shipping sources in the Persian Gulf said damage from the Iraqi raids has severely disrupted Iran's exports, which earlier had been averaging about 1.5 million barrels a day.

The Egyptian official also mentioned the Soviet cutback in oil shipments, that have not been confirmed by Moscow, saying: "The Soviets advised their customers privately about the temporary stoppage but did not announce it for publication."

The recent drop in the value of the U.S. dollar also figured in the Egyptian decision, he said. Oil is sold for dollars, and a decline in the dollar's value would reduce the income from the sale of each barrel of oil by a foreign producer.

Egypt sets its prices on the basis of market conditions, reviewing them monthly.

Of about 870,000 barrels of oil produced daily by Egypt, almost half are exported. Oil export revenues constitute the country's second largest source of hard currency after remittances from Egyptians working abroad.

Iraq says OPEC has right to up oil production

BAGHDAD, Iraq (DPA) — Iraq told the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries Monday that it had "a perfectly legitimate right" to increase its crude oil production from 1.2 million barrels to at least 2 million barrels daily.

The Iraqi position was spelled out by the official newspaper Al-Gomhouria in advance of Thursday's emergency OPEC ministerial meeting in Vienna, Austria, which is widely expected to turn into a tug-of-war over production shares.

The paper underlined Iraq's position that it had accepted its present quota of 1.2 million barrels because of the closure of its gulf outlets due to the war with Iran.

The paper added that the Iraqi export capacity was being boosted as of Oct. 1 by an additional 500,000 barrels daily, made possible by a spur pipeline to the Saudi Red Sea port of Yanbu.

The paper suggested that Iraq's share under OPEC's total daily ceiling of 16 million barrels be reconsidered on the basis of Iraq's 1979 production level of 3.5 million barrels daily or its proven crude reserves, which are among the highest in OPEC.

Iraqi warplanes have caused considerable damage at Iran's main oil export terminal of Kharg Island in recent weeks. No firm word is available however on how that will affect Iran's oil exports, which have averaged about 2 million barrles daily in recent months.

Hanna swaps holdings, buys Midland firm's debt

CLEVELAND (AP) — The M.A. Hanna Co. and W.R. Grace & Co. said Monday they have ended joint ownership of two coal companies in favor of separate ownership.

The arrangement gives Hanna the Terry Eagle Coal Co., Summersville, W.Va., and gives Grace the Rapoca Energy Co., Wise, Va.

In a separate transaction, Hanna agreed to buy the outstanding debt of Midland SouthWest Corp., a Midland, Texas, oil and gas drilling concern. Hanna had owned 50 percent of the company. The debt, owed to two Texas banks, is about $29.7 million, Hanna said. Terms of the deal were withheld.

The arrangement increases Hanna's investment in the company, said Hanna spokesman Dwight Morgan. Hanna also holds debentures that if converted, would increase Hanna's equity to over 90 percent of Midland, Morgan said.

Terry Eagle, which operates underground and surface mines, sold over 800,000 tons of coal in 1984, the Hanna statement said.

Rapoca, which operates underground and surface mines, sold nearly 900,000 tons in 1984, Hanna said.

Liberty Capital Group recently gave up its minority interests in the two coal companies, the Hanna statement said. M.A. Hanna Co., based in Cleveland, was formerly The Hanna Mining Co. W.R. Grace is based in New York.

Hanna chairman Robert Anderson said the mining transaction was accounted for in the second quarter, when the company recorded non-recurring losses related to restructuring.

The losses totaled $133 million, but only $13 million was related to coal restructuring, Morgan said. The current transactions account for less than the $13 million, because the coal restructuring is incomplete, Morgan said.

Texas firm said to owe $5.5 million in unpaid royalties

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Land Office officials say a Texas company owes the state $5.5 million in unpaid royalties, interest and penalties on oil produced in New Mexico.

Officials on Monday said Southern Union Co. of Dallas owes the money because it failed to report all its producing wells to state authorities.

Roy Soto, deputy land commissioner, said an August audit of oil and gas leases on state land revealed the underpayments.

"We found a lot of wells they simply weren't reporting on," he said. Soto said the discrepency surfaced when auditors compared records at the state Oil and Gas Accounting Division of the Taxation and Revenue Department with the company's records of its Hobbs refinery.

Soto said the company was notified of the results last week.

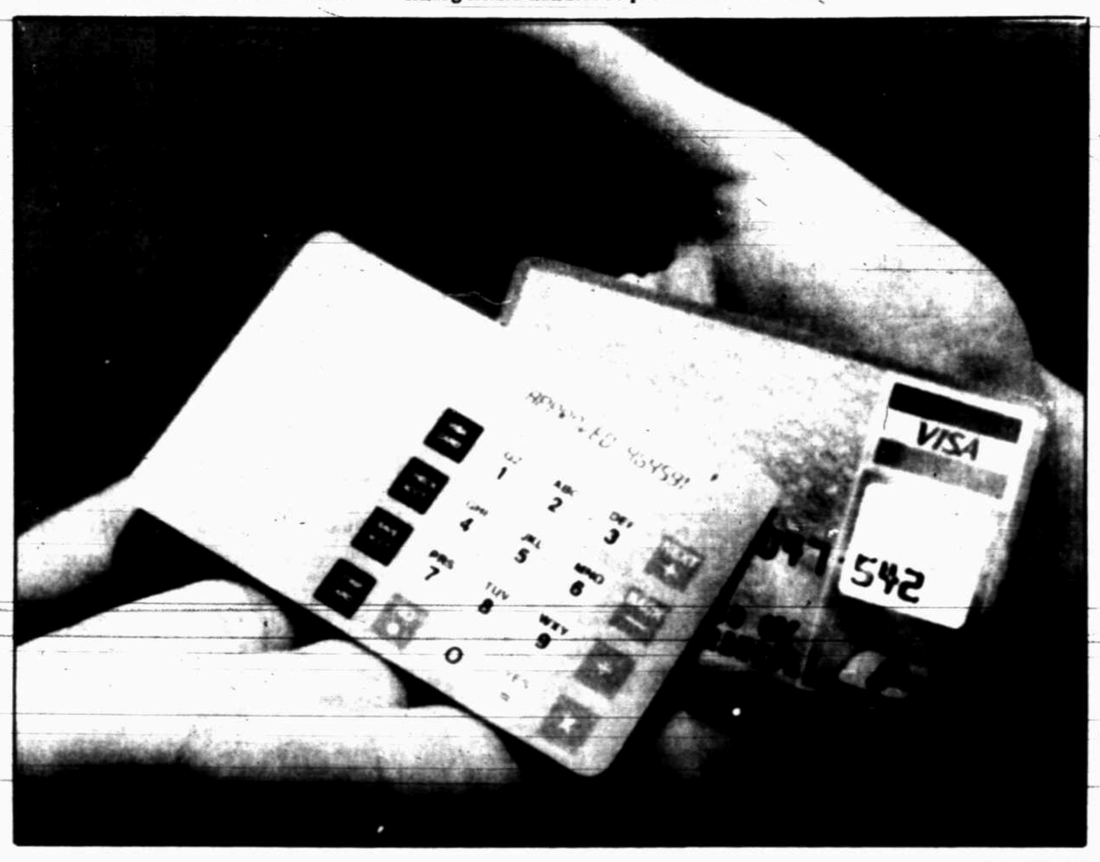

Soto said Southern Union officials were surprised when they heard the size of the underpayment. "They knew they owed us some money, but not this much," he said.

Soto said about $2 million of the unpaid debt is principal. He said the remaining $3.5 million is from interest and penalties the state is allowed to charge for lapsed payments.

The oil was taken from the company's producing areas to its Hobbs refinery, now closed, under a program that allowed the state to receive a bonus in addition to royalties.

Under the program, companies eager for additional oil to refine would pay the state a bonus above the spot market price of the oil in addition to the royalty.

The state contends the underpayment occurred under this type of arrangement.

VISA U.S.A. has developed a card which will combine a microcomputer chip, display and calculator-style keypad to enable cardholders to authorize transactions in their savings, checking and credit accounts without contact to a bank terminal.

French firm orders 'smart' credit cards

CHICAGO (AP) — A French bank card firm has ordered 12.4 million "smart" credit cards from a U.S. company, about a week after MasterCard International launched a test of the cards in three U.S. cities.

Gie Carte Bancaire, an association of French banks and card issuers, plans to distribute about 200,000 "smart" cards this year and more than 12 million over the next three years, a spokesman for Micro Card Technologies, Inc., said here Monday.

"Smart" cards — dubbed that because they contain a built-in microcomputer that stores and processes data — are being promoted in banking to eliminate credit card fraud and counterfeiting, Micro Card officials said in a news release.

The French association purchased the cards and card-reading equipment from Bull Group's CP-8 subsidiary. Micro Card, Bull CP-8's U.S. subsidiary, made the announcement at the National Bank Card Conference.

"The French banks' order, coupled with Mastercard's launch of large-scale testing here, has established smart cards as the preferred technology for electronic payment systems," said Richard Dunham, president of Micro Card.

Dunham said smart cards technology is being developed for use in other industries, such as health care, transportation and computer security.

Last week, MasterCard announced it was beginning experimental use of the cards in Columbia, Md., and Palm Beach, Fla.

Report says housing more affordable than in past six years

Associated Press

Declines in mortgage interest rates and existing single-family home prices have made housing more affordable for the typical family than at any time in the past six years, according to a real estate trade group.

The housing affordability index of the National Association of Realtors climbed 1.8 percentage points in August to 94.8 percent, the group announced Monday.

The index reading meant a family earning the median annual income of $27,438 had 94.8 percent of the income needed to qualify for a mortgage on a house selling for $77,100.

At the same time, the Commerce Department reported a strong 0.7 percent increase in its Index of Leading Economic Indicators for August. It was the fourth consecutive advance for the index, which is designed to predict future changes in the course of the economy.

But while the increase was hailed by the Reagan administration as a sign the economy again was picking up steam, a new survey of business economists showed pessimism over any renewed economic surge.

The 350 private analysts surveyed across the nation by the National Association of Business Economists predicted only 2.2 percent growth this year, compared with the administration's projected 3 percent annual growth rate, largely because of continued massive federal budget deficits.

In addition, the economists predicted both unemployment and the deficit would rise next year because of weak growth, and half of them expected a new recession by the end of 1986.

Meanwhile, price increases of 25 cents to 45 cents per barrel were announced by Egypt for its exported oil. It was the second consecutive month of oil price hikes by Egypt, which is not a significant U.S. supplier and bases its prices on the open market.

Analysts said oil prices overall should hold steady or nudge higher while supply disruptions continued because of Iraqi attacks on the major Iranian oil terminal at Kharg Island and the Soviets' decision to halt oil deliveries to European customers.

On the trade front, a major trade meeting of about 90 nations opened in Geneva and three U.S. semiconducter manufacturers filed a petition charging Japanese firms with dumping computer chips on the American market.

The trade meeting convened under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). It was requested by the Reagan administration in an attempt to gain new commitments to free trade and thereby ease protectionist pressures simmering in Congress.

At the same time, a petition filed with the Commerce Department and the U.S. International Trade Commission by Advanced Micro Devices Inc., Intel Corp. and National Semiconductor Corp. alleged "predatory" tactics by Japanese companies in the export of computer memory chips known as EPROMS.

The companies — which are three of the five largest U.S. semiconductor makers — contended Fujitsu, Mitsubishi Electric Co., Hitachi Ltd. and other Japanese companies were undercutting them in this country while denying Japanese markets to imports of the chips.

Birds, their feathers soaked with oil, sit on a rock on the east bank of the Delaware River in Bridgeport, N.J. on Monday. 400,000 gallons of crude oil spilled from a Panamanian tanker near Claymont, Del., south of Bridgeport, on Saturday night.

Crude endangers wetlands despite cleanup

DELAWARE CITY, Del. (AP) — Despite countermeasures by Coast Guard and private cleanup crews, a 20-mile crude oil slick flowed down the Delaware River today toward sensitive wetlands lining the Delaware and New Jersey shores.

"It appears as if there is nothing to stop (the oil) from getting to the wetlands," said Clarke Jester, head of the Delaware Emergency Planning and Operations Division. The question, he said, is "how much will get there, how much will be absorbed by New Jersey?"

Officials readied a 10,000-foot boom to stretch across the Killcohook National Wildlife Refuge in Salem County, N.J., today, and estimated a three-day cleanup of surface oil before attending to the shoreline.

About 400,000 gallons of crude spilled from the tanker Grand Eagle when it ran aground off Claymont, about 11:30 p.m. Saturday en route to the Sun Oil Co. refinery in Marcus Hook, Pa.

By Monday, the spill extended from Chester, Pa., to just south of Pea Patch Island in Delaware, about 2 miles northeast of Delaware City. Coast Guard brass ordered an aerial assessment of the oil's movement today.

The owners of the 761-foot Grand Eagle hired 21 contractors for the cleanup, using 22 vacuum trucks, 24 boats, 33,600 feet of boom and a large oil skimmer, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Mike Kelly. He had no estimate on how long the cleanup would take or how much it would cost.

The DelBay, a skimmer operated by a cooperative of oil companies, had recovered about 10,000 gallons of the spilled crude by Monday night, Kelly said.

Oil oozed into several marshes and tributaries in New Jersey, where officials said 50 to 60 birds crippled by the black goo had been spotted.

"We had expected this to have a devastating effect on wildlife," but the relatively low number of birds affected was encouraging, said Lynne Frink, director of Tri-State Bird Rescue & Research Inc. in Delaware.

Domestic and mallard ducks, and cormorants — diving, fish-eating birds — were most affected by the spill, she said.

On Monday, the Coast Guard held its first hearing in Philadelphia on the cause of the grounding and questioned the captain and crew of the 761-foot tanker, Kelly said.

"They will release the findings after the investigation is completed. It could take several days or weeks," Kelly said.

Delaware officials complained Monday they were not informed of the accident until two hours after it happened, and not told of its seriousness until about 3:30 a.m. Sunday.

Charles A. Lesser, manager of the state's fisheries section, said the spill could have a devastating effect on the nursery area for striped bass which extends from the Delaware Memorial Bridge to Philadelphia.

Gov. Michael Castle said the ship's owners have taken full responsibility for the spill and face a fine of about $5,000.

The spill poses no danger to public health or drinking water supplies, Castle said, and was not expected to travel far enough south to endanger shellfish beds.

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Ward field well flows 180 barrels

From Staff Reports

JACK N. BLAIR, Midland, continues to develop the Gaddie lease and the WWW field of Ward County, completing the field's eighth Ramsey producer.

The No. 6 Gaddie tested to flow 180 barrels of 36 gravity crude and 185 barrels of water ona 20/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 200 psi. Production is through Ramsey perforations 4,884 to 4,892 ft., with no treatment reported.

The well was drilled to a total depth of 4,990 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing is set, and plugged back to 4,958 ft.

The well topped the Ramsey Sand formation at 4,884 ft. on ground elevation of 2,720 ft. Pay was topped at 4,884 ft.

Location is 973 ft. from northwest and 1,939 ft. from southwest lines of Section 31, Block 1, W&NW survey, 12 miles northeast of Barstow.

The discovery well, the No. 1 Mathews, was potentialed Nov. 26, 1984 to flow 50 barrels of 42 gravity crude and 27 barrels of water on an 18/64 inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 25 psi through perforations 4,865 to 4,875 ft.

Glasscock producer pumps 66 barrels oil

The Saint Lawrence field of Glasscock County gained another Wichita producer with completion of EXXON CORP., Midland, No. 2 Fred J. Hoelscher.

On potential test, the well pumped 66 barrels of 39.2 gravity crude, 122 Mcfd and no water through perforations 7,352 to 7,455 ft. The interval was acidized with 3,000 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Total depth of the well was 7,570 ft., with five inch casing set at 7,569 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,710 ft., include the Dewey Lake at 845 ft., Salado at 1,252, Yates at 1,885, Seven Rivers at 2,002, Queen at 2,510, San Andres at 2,954, Leonard at 5,063, Upper Spraberry at 6,237, Lower Spraberry at 6,760, and the Wichita at 7,334 ft. Pay was topped at 7,352 ft.

Location is 540 ft. from south and 990 ft. from east lines of Section 48, Block 35, T-4-S, T&P survey, 8.5 miles southwest of Garden City.

Fifth field producer completed in Reeves

ORLA OIL & GAS, INC. has added a fifth Lower Cherry Canyon producer to the Matthews field of Reeves County with completion of the No. 1 Long Shot.

The well potentialed to pump 50 barrels of 38 gravity crude, 300 Mcfd and 350 barrels of water through perforations 4,329 to 4,337 ft., which Orla acidized with 500 gallons of 7.5 percent acid and fractured with 3,000 gallons of gel and 6,000 lbs. sand.

Planned as a 4,600 ft. wildcat, the well was drilled to 4,455 ft., with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 4,454 ft.

On ground elevation of 2,859 ft., formation tops include the Base Salt at 2,700 ft., Top Delaware Lime at 2,880, Top Olds at 2,942, and the Top of the Cherry Canyon at 3,790 ft. Pay was topped at 2,859 ft.

Location is 467 ft. from west and south lines of Section 12, Block 57, T&P survey, two miles north of Orla.

Shanley makes deal on convenience stores

DALLAS–(SWN)–Shanley Oil Co. announced that it has signed a definitive letter agreement to acquire Quick Fill North Texas, a company engaged in the marketing of gasoline and convenience store items with annual revenues in excess of $11 million. Quick Fill North Texas will be combined with Shanley's ongoing operations at Quick Fill-Dallas to consolidate overhead and utilize existing Shanley management. This acquisition will allow Shanley to expand outside of the Dallas metropolitan area into the North Texas region. This acquisition will increase total sales at Quick Fill by 48 percent.

Shanley Oil Company's Chairman, Neal G. McCabe, said, "This acquisition will be achieved on a non-dilutive basis to our shareholders. The acquisition will increase our revenues in excess of $11 million a year bringing total revenues to approximately $40 million." McCabe went on to say, "This acquisition will expand our convenience store operation out of the Dallas metropolitan area and into the North Texas region. In addition, it will give our Quick Fill operation a larger operating base."

Shamrock initiates gas sales

DALLAS (SWN) — Diamond Shamrock Offshore Partners Limited Partnership has initiated natural gas sales from two Gulf of Mexico properties, offshore Louisiana.

Sales volumes from Main Pass Blocks 39 and 126 have reached a maximum sustained rate of 13 million cubic feet of gas per day from two, one-well platforms. Both wells were drilled in 1984 to total depths of 8,000 feet and are producing from Miocene sands at about 5,000 feet.

Diamond Shamrock Offshore Partners has 100 percent working interest in both 4,995-acre blocks which are located approximately 75 miles southeast of New Orleans in 65 feet of water. The partnership acquired Block 39 for $563,000 in the October 1981 federal lease sale and purchased Block 126 for $5.8 million in the July 1981 federal lease sale.

Loffland awarded drilling contract in China

TULSA — Loffland Brothers North Sea, Inc., an international subsidiary of Loffland Brothers Co. of Tulsa, Okla., has been awarded a technical services contract for work in the People's Republic of China.

Under the agreement negotiated with the Chinese Ministry of Geology and Mineral Resources, Loffland will operate a rig purchased by the Chinese to drill the Chuan He No. 100 in Sichuan Province to a depth of 18,500 feet. The contract also calls for Loffland to train Chinese personnel participating in the operations of the drilling rig to accomplish efficient drilling operations.

Walter Oil reports strike offshore Louisiana

HOUSTON (SWN) — Walter Oil & Gas Corp. reports a new oil and gas discovery from a dual completion in tha Miocene sands in West Cameron Block 265 offshore Louisiana.

The No. 2 well flowed at a combined rate of 1,631 barrels per day on a 16/64-inch choke through perforations from 7,962-7,980 feet and 7,996-8,000 feet. A dual gas completion through perforations from 8,330-8,352 feet flowed 5,600 MCF per day and 167 barrels of condensate per day on a 24/64-inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 2,256 psi.

Marathon Oil abandons North Sea explorer

HOUSTON — Marathon Oil U.K. Ltd, a unit of U.S. Steel Corp.'s Marathon Oil Co., has announced that well 15/3-1 in the U.K. North Sea has been plugged and abandoned. Situated 35 miles northwest of the Brae "A" production platform, the well, drilled in 500 feet of water, was spudded on Aug. 10.

United Gas, Mississippi Power, settle dispute

HOUSTON — United Energy Resources, Inc., has announced that its largest subsidiary, United Gas Pipeline Co., and Mississippi Power & Light Co., one of United Gas' major electric utility customers, have settled all the disputes between the companies, which arose as a result of United Gas' curtailments of deliveries of natural gas to MP&L during periods of shortages from 1970 through 1982. The settlement also ended the dispute between the companies which arose over United Gas' method of computing the price of gas sold by United Gas to MP&L.

Mitchell celebrates 3000th North Texas well

THE WOODLANDS — Mitchell Energy & Development Corp. is celebrating the start of its 3,000th well in North Texas, an area that has become the company's "breadbasket."

Mitchell Energy's first well in North Texas was spudded 34 years ago this month. Coincidentally, that first producer, Wise County's D.J. Hughes No. 1, is only two miles away from the 3,000 well, the D.J. Hughes No. 22.

American National approves reverse split

HOUSTON — At the annual meeting of the shareholders of American National Petroleum Co., the shareholders approved a one for four reverse stock split of the company's common stock, $.01 par value effective immediately. Each shareholder will be requested by the company to tender his stock certificates, and new stock certificates will be issued.

Sun group spuds exploratory well in Sudan

DALLAS — A group headed by Sun Sudan Oil Co. has begun its first exploratory well in the Democratic Republic of Sudan. The Hurriya No. 1 was spudded in the Kosti Basin, about 160 miles southof Khartoum, and will be drilled to a total depth of 9,000 ft. This is the first in a series of exploratory wells planned by the Sun group in the Sudan.

AGA survey shows natural gas use up in US

WASHINGTON — American consumers continue to prefer natural gas for househeating, according to the American Gas Association.

Results of the Association's 37th annual househeating survey reveal new gas househeating unit additions totaled 713,400 in 1984, and increase of 23 percent over 1983.

Conversions to natural gas in 1984 from other fuels totaled 137,000, up 4.3 percent from the previous year. While more than three-quarters of those conversions were from oil to natural gas, conversions from electricity doubled to 13,570 in 1984.

Of the total 713,400 new additions, more than half a million were from newly constructed dwellings. This reflected an increase in natural gas market share of new single family housing additions to 45 percent from 43 percent in 1983.

Texas gas production drops

Texas gas production dropped by 3.2 percent in the first half of this year when compared to the first six months of last year, according to the Texas Railroad Commission.

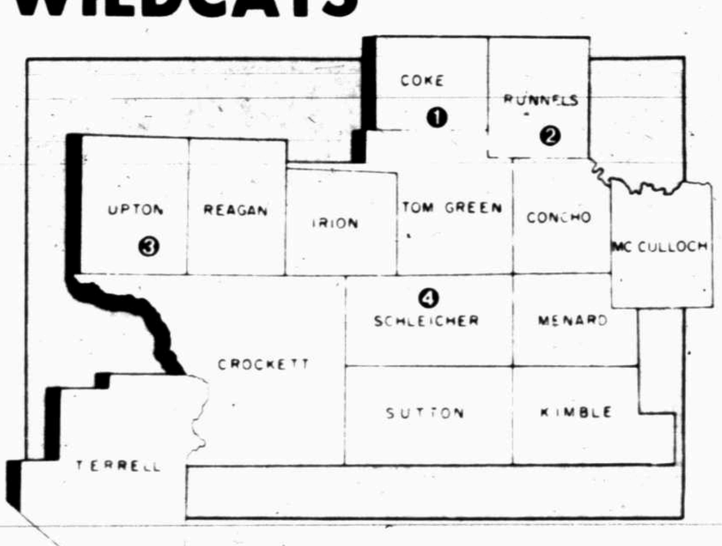

Through June of 1985, Texas wells had produced 2,823,358,487 Mcf of gas. During the same period in 1984, the state produced 2,915,405,912 Mcf of gas.

Marketed gas production was down 2.6 percent during the first half of this year. Through June, the state had produced 2,319,786,507 Mcf. During the same period last year, the total was 2,381,245,489.

Marketed production is the gas left after liquid hydrocarbons have been separated on the lease from the "wet" gas that is usally produced at the wellhead. It also does not include gas that is reinjected into the producing reservoir to maintain gas pressure, gas that is used to fuel production-related equipment on the lease site, or gas that is otherwise not marketed.

Total gas production in June, the latest month for which statistics are available, reached 471,804,774 Mcf, down 2.71 percent from the same month a year earlier. Marketed production in June 1985 totaled 383,924,742 Mcf, up 1.08 percent from the year-earlier month.

Harken Oil extends stock offer

DALLAS (SWN) — Harken Oil & Gas, Inc. announced an extension to the Rights Offering currently in effect. The offer is now set to expire on Tuesday, October 29, 1985, and will not be extended further.

Each Harken shareholder has the right to purchase one new share of Harken common stock for $1.00 per share for each Harken share held as of July 3, 1985.

Assuming the rights offering is fully subscribed by shareholders, preferred and common equity will increase to approximately $24 million, and bank debt will decrease to approximately $1 million.

Cogeneration reliance could cause hardships for Texas residents

AUSTIN — Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent warned that reliance on cogeneration of electricity without requiring alternate fuels to be available in case of gas curtailment could result in Texas residents "freezing with the gas on, or freezing with the electricity off."

Speaking before a meeting of the Electricity Reliability Council, Nugent urged that all gas-fired cogeneration units be required to have alternate fuel available if the utility taking the co-generated energy relies on it for base-load capacity instead of building utility-owned plants.

Nugent said a cogeneration rule proposed by the Texas Public Utility Commission fails to properly address alternate fuel requirements. "This may be the most critical issue which can result in people being cold and in the dark for the sake of trying to save a few dollars," Nugent warned.

The Railroad Commission has existing orders and rules which establish curtailment priorities in case of natural gas shortages. Nugent pointed out there have been gas curtailments each winter since 1979.

"If a utility company relies on gas-fired cogeneration without alternate fuels, and the gas is curtailed at times of high electricity demand, the entire electirc system may have brown-outs or complete power failures," Nugent said.

Industrial cogenerators do not have statutory requirements olbigating them to continue serving the public in times of shortages and curtailment, thereby permitting them to reduce or terminate sale of power at any time.

Every time you invest in a CD, the IRS smiles.

No wonder. As much as half of what you earn could belong to them (depending on what your marginal income tax bracket is).

Howard Weil has an alternative: tax-free* short-term (1-5 years) municipal bonds. Many of these bonds are insured and, in terms of maturity, are comparable to CDs (Certificates of Deposit), but the IRS doesn't tax the interest income. Compare that return with your after tax CD income.

Call a Howard Weil broker today. We'll be happy to help you make a bottom line comparison of CDs and short-term municipal bonds. When you see the difference, you will be doing the smiling.

Be the smartest investor you know.

*Free from federal income taxes, and may be free from state income taxes. Both principal and interest on CDs are insured. The price of municipal bonds will fluctuate with changes in market conditions.

☐ I'd rather be the one smiling, please send me information on short-term muni bonds.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Park your savings in six-month CDs

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My husband and I are selling our home and buying another one. Our new house will not be ready for six months, so we must put $100,000 from the sale of our present home into some form of savings until then. Would six-month certificates of deposit be the best? Do you have another suggestion?

After moving into our new home, we will have approximately $80,000 in savings. We can meet our expenses from our Social Security and my husband's pension. We plan to put our savings into CDs and spend the interest, if needed. Is there a better way to plan for the future?

Doyle

A. Six month CDs at a federally insured bank or savings and loan association are the logical place to "park" the $100,000 you will need to buy your new home. My only other suggestion would be 26-week U.S. Treasury bills.

You certainly should not take any risk with that house money. CDs and T bills are rock-solid safe and provide higher interest than you can get from bank and S&L money market deposit accounts and money market mutual funds.

There's nothing wrong with your plan to keep your future savings in CDs. Again, your money will be safe and you'll get reasonably high interest. Assuming you'll have no trouble living on the Social Security and pension checks, you should put at least part of that money into longer than six-month CDs. The longer the maturity, the higher the interest.

You might do better investing elsewhere. No one can tell you, for sure, what will be the "best" investment for the long term.

You should think about protecting yourselves against inflation. One way to do that is to buy common stocks or mutual fund shares that could grow in value and increase their dividend payments in the years ahead.

That, of course, involves some risk. This column never advises retired folks to put large portions of their nest eggs at risk. But, if you're willing to put, say, $20,000 into stocks or mutual funds with growth prospects, that could pay off with future financial rewards.

Just don't plunge into the market with that amount all at once. If you go the stock and/or mutual fund route, make your investments gradually, such as $500 or $1,000 a month.

• • •

Q. I am 88 and have $20,000 in a 7.5 percent certificate of deposit, due to mature in two years. If I die, will my family have to pay a penalty if they want this money before the CD matures?

A. No. Federally insured banks and savings and loan associations are prohibited from charging early withdrawal penalties on CDs redeemed before maturity if the owner has died. The CD proceeds should be paid to the authorized representative of your estate, without penalty.

The same prohibition against early withdrawal penalties applies to a jointly owned CD, when one of the owners dies. The surviving owner can cash the CD without penalty.

• • •

Q. I bought five Bank of England one-pound notes several years ago. There is a number on each one and each number is different.

Do these notes have any value? If so, how do I redeem them?

A. Bank of England notes are United Kingdom currency. You have five British pounds. In the foreign exchange market, the British pound is now worth about $1.33 in U.S. money. But foreign exchange quotations are for transactions of $1 million or more. Smaller amounts fetch less.

You can swap your British pounds or other foreign currency for U.S. money at currency exchange dealers and at many commercial banks. You'll probably get about $1.25 for each pound note.

It's a cinch you paid more than that for them. The U.S. dollar has strengthened against foreign currencies over the past several years, meaning the dollar is worth more and other currencies are worth less.

You made a mistake buying those British pounds, unless you were planning a trip to Britain.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE℠

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

1. Call the StockQuote Hotline number listed below. A computer voice will answer and ask you for the Account Code.
2. Enter the Account Code, then depress the star key (*) on your telephone. The computer will then ask you to enter your Stock Code.
3. Enter the Stock Code for the stock you wish quoted, the computer will quote the Ticker Symbol, Current Price and Net Change from the previous day's close.
4. After the stock is quoted, the computer will ask you to enter another Stock Code. You have two options:

A. You may request the quote for another stock simply by repeating Step 3, or...
B. You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more depressing the star key (*), in which case the computer will respond with the Price, Net Change, Volume, High and Low. The computer will then ask you to enter another Stock Code (repeat Step 3).

You may enter up to 10 requests per call.

STOCK CODES

All Stock Codes are based on industry standard Ticker Symbols provided by your broker or available from any Standard & Poor's Stock Ticker Guide. Codes are made up of a series of two-digit numbers, each representing one of the letters in the Ticker Symbol.

To determine the two-digit code for any letter of a Ticker Symbol, remember: The first key to be depressed is always the one on which the letter appears. The second key is always a "1," "2" or "3" indicating that letter's position on its own key (first, second or third position). EXAMPLE: "IBM" = "43 22 61"; "BX" = "22 92." Remember to depress the star key (*) after entering each code.

ADDITIONAL ASSISTANCE

Call the StockQuote customer service number (915) 682-5311 (Monday thru Friday 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.) for additional information or to report any problem with the service.

Texas financier offers to buy Pacific Lumber for $780 million

Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

A company controlled by Texas financier Charles E. Hurwitz said Monday that it will offer to buy all the stock of San Francisco-based Pacific Lumber, a major California land owner and producer of redwood lumber, for $36 per share, or nearly $780 million.

Investors greeted the news enthusiastically, bidding up the price of Pacific Lumber shares on the New York Stock Exchange to $39, an increase of $6 from Friday. The closing price, $3 above Hurwitz's bid, indicates that Wall Street is anticipating more offers, analysts said. About 655,000 shares were traded.

The Hurwitz announcement said the tender offer is contingent on his receiving a majority of the company's 21.7 million shares outstanding and on successful arrangement of financing for the deal. The financier did not say when the offer will be launched.

Pacific Lumber pesident Gene G. Elam said in a telephone interview that he would not comment on the tender offer because "we have received nothing in writing" as yet from Maxxam Group, the Hurwitz-controlled company that formally announced the bid.

Elam said Hurwitz called him Monday morning to say that the offer would be announced. Until Maxxam's public statement, Elam said, Pacific Lumber's management was unaware that the Hurwitz firm had previously amassed nearly 5 percent of its stock. Until then, Pacific Lumber had no stockholders with as much as 5 percent, a condition which could make the company more vulnerable to a hostile takeover because it has no major "friendly" shareholders to call on for support.

Hurwitz, who is known for takeovers starting in 1978 with his successful acquisition of Los Angeles-based McCullough Oil (since renamed MCO Holdings), made no further statements Monday after the stock market outstripped the price he proposed to pay.

In his announcement, Hurwitz said Maxxam "felt obliged" to announce its decision to begin a tender offer at the same time as it was advising Pacific Lumber of it because of "unusual movement" in the lumber firm's stock late last week.

Pacific Lumber's stock had risen $3 to close at $33 as 46,600 shares traded last Thursday. Because the stock exchanges were closed Friday due to Hurricane Gloria, that was the last day of trading last week. Elam said Monday's trading volume of 650,000 shares was "very heavy for us."

Hurwitz's statement said the offer "will be eminently fair to all the shareholders of Pacific Lumber and would serve the long-term interests of Pacific Lumber and its employees, customers and the communities of which it is a part."

But analyst Chad Brown at Kidder Peabody, a New York brokerage house, characterized the $36 price as "a kind of a low-ball bid." Noting the surge in Pacific Lumber's stock price, Brown said: "The widespread view seems to be that if something happens, it will be at a higher level."

Although he noted that Pacific Lumber's holdings of more than 170,000 acres of timberland in Northern California includes the largest single redwood acreage in existence, Brown said that because such timberland rarely changes hands, "it is hard to get a good fix on the values."

Pacific Lumber reported a net profit of $44.6 million for 1984 on sales of $281 million. But its earnings were down 34 percent in the first six months of 1985 from the same period last year, in part due to the slump in lumber sales.

Maxxam, listed on the New York Stock Exchange and headed by Hurwitz as chairman and chief executive, is a New York-based real estate management and development firm. MCO Holdings, of which Hurwitz is also chairman, owns about 42 percent of Maxxam's stock.

Texas Air says takeover would help Frontier

DENVER (AP) — Texas Air Corp.'s proposed acquisition of Frontier Airlines would help the financially troubled carrier grow and make it more competitive, Texas Air told the federal government in seeking approval of the deal.

Clark Onstad, a Texas Air vice president, said Monday his company filed documents with the Department of Transportation in which it "answered every concern raised to date" about antitrust objections and speculation that Texas Air would liquidate the Denver-based airline if the deal were completed.

Texas Air also owns Continental Airlines, Frontier's chief competitor in Denver.

Texas Air announced an offer last week to buy 60 percent of Frontier's stock at $20 a share. That is $3 a share more than a Frontier employee coalition has offered for the airline.

Last Friday, Texas Air said it would broaden the $20 a share offer to all of the 12.5 million outstanding Frontier stock, making the total price about $250 million.

"Are we going to liquidate the company? Absolutely not," Onstad said. "Texas Air is committed to stabilize and (strengthen) the company."

The Frontier labor coalition filed a federal suit for a permanent injunction against Texas Air's takeover bid last week, claiming it was a "blatant attempt by (Teaxs Air President) Frank Lorenzo to reduce substantially competition" in the Denver market.

Onstad said Texas Air would bring "substantial amounts" of feeder traffic to Frontier and offer employee incentives including profit sharing and stock investment plans.

"We intend to stabilize the work force. We know without it, a lot of people will be laid off next year," Onstad said.

Asked if Frontier would be merged into Continental or Texas Air, Onstad replied, "No. Our intent is to maintain an absolute identity" for Frontier, "a name with a good reputation ... we intend to grow Frontier in Denver."

Motorola Semiconductor workers to take pay cuts

AUSTIN (AP) — About 20,000 employees of the semiconductor products department at Motorola will be taking home 5 to 10 percent less pay starting today, a company spokesman says.

About 5,100 of the 20,000 employees work in the Motorola plant at Austin.

And Austin's second-largest private employer will drop an additional 150 to 200 workers from the Austin payroll by mid-October, according to spokesman Dan Rogers.

The pay cut will extend through March, 1986, he said. It is the most recent in a series of austerity measures in the face of a worldwide slump among microchip manufacturers.

Rogers told the Austin American-Statesman the pay cuts will vary depending on salary, and that executives and others at the high end of the scale will be hit harder. Most of the cuts will fall in the range of 5 to 10 percent, although some will not, he said.

Motorola renewed an offer of incentives to workers who wish to leave voluntarily. It also offered transfers wherever job openings are available in the company, like in government electronics.

But if 150 to 200 workers do not resign by midmonth, the work force in Austin will be reduced 3 to 4 percent, he said.

Layoffs would come in support areas like maintenance, engineering, and marketing, and not in production or research and development, Rogers said.

Hartford businessman gets three-year sentence for bribe

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Hartford businessman Alfred T. Stanger, convicted in July of bribing an Air Force employee for help in securing government contracts, was sentenced Monday to three years in federal prison, suspended after six months.

Stanger, former president of Electro Methods Inc. of South Windsor, also was fined $36,000 — $1,000 for each of the bribery charges. He also was sentenced to three years' probation and eight hours a week of community service over those three years.

The sentence, handed down in U.S. District Court by Judge Peter C. Dorsey, was deferred while Stanger appeals his conviction.

Stanger will spend no more time in jail than his principal accuser, former Air Force employee Ramiro Chavarria, who pleaded guilty to conspiracy and testified to receiving money from Stanger. Chavarria was sentenced in August to two years in jail, suspended after six months, and fined $5,000.

During the trial, Chavarria testified that Stanger paid him $400 to $600 a month for three years to help Electro Methods win contracts at Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas, where parts for the Pratt & Whitney-built F-100 jet engines are bought.

Gulf states seek utility rate increase

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Gulf States Utilities Co. will ask the Public Utility Commission today to approve a 5.5 percent increase in residential electric rates for next year, a company official said.

But Linn Draper, the utility's vice chairman and executive vice president, said the average residential bill of $105 for 1,000 kilowatt-hours of use for Texas customers would remain about the same.

He said Gulf States wants the utility commission to drop the current winter-summer differential in rates, which will help keep next summer's electric bills comparable to this summer's.

Under the Texas rate request, Gulf States will ask for a 14 percent overall increase that includes commercial users for 1986, followed by a 9.6 percent increase in 1987 to reflect the opening of River Bend.

Under the request, Texas residential customers would pay about $115 per 1,000 kilowatt-hours in 1987, Draper said.

The company filed a 30 percent increase rate request Monday with the Louisiana Public Utility Commission to reflect the new $3 billion-plus River Bend nuclear plant.

Dow Jones sues Oklahoma's liquor board

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Dow Jones & Co. Inc. filed a lawsuit Monday to prevent Oklahoma from interfering with construction of a planned satellite production plant for The Wall Street Journal by enforcing the state's ban on liquor advertisements.

The petition, filed in Oklahoma County district court, names as defendants Ron Willis, director of the Oklahoma Alcoholic Beverage Laws Enforcement Commission and the state of Oklahoma.

Dow Jones contends in its petition that Oklahoma's ban on liquor ads "does not and cannot apply to circulation of the Journal in Oklahoma." The Wall Street Journal, which carries liquor advertisements, is a daily newspaper with a national circulation.

Attorney General Mike Turpen ruled on Sept. 19 that an Oklahoma printing company may print and bind a national publisher's publication which carries liquor advertising and is distributed in all 50 states.

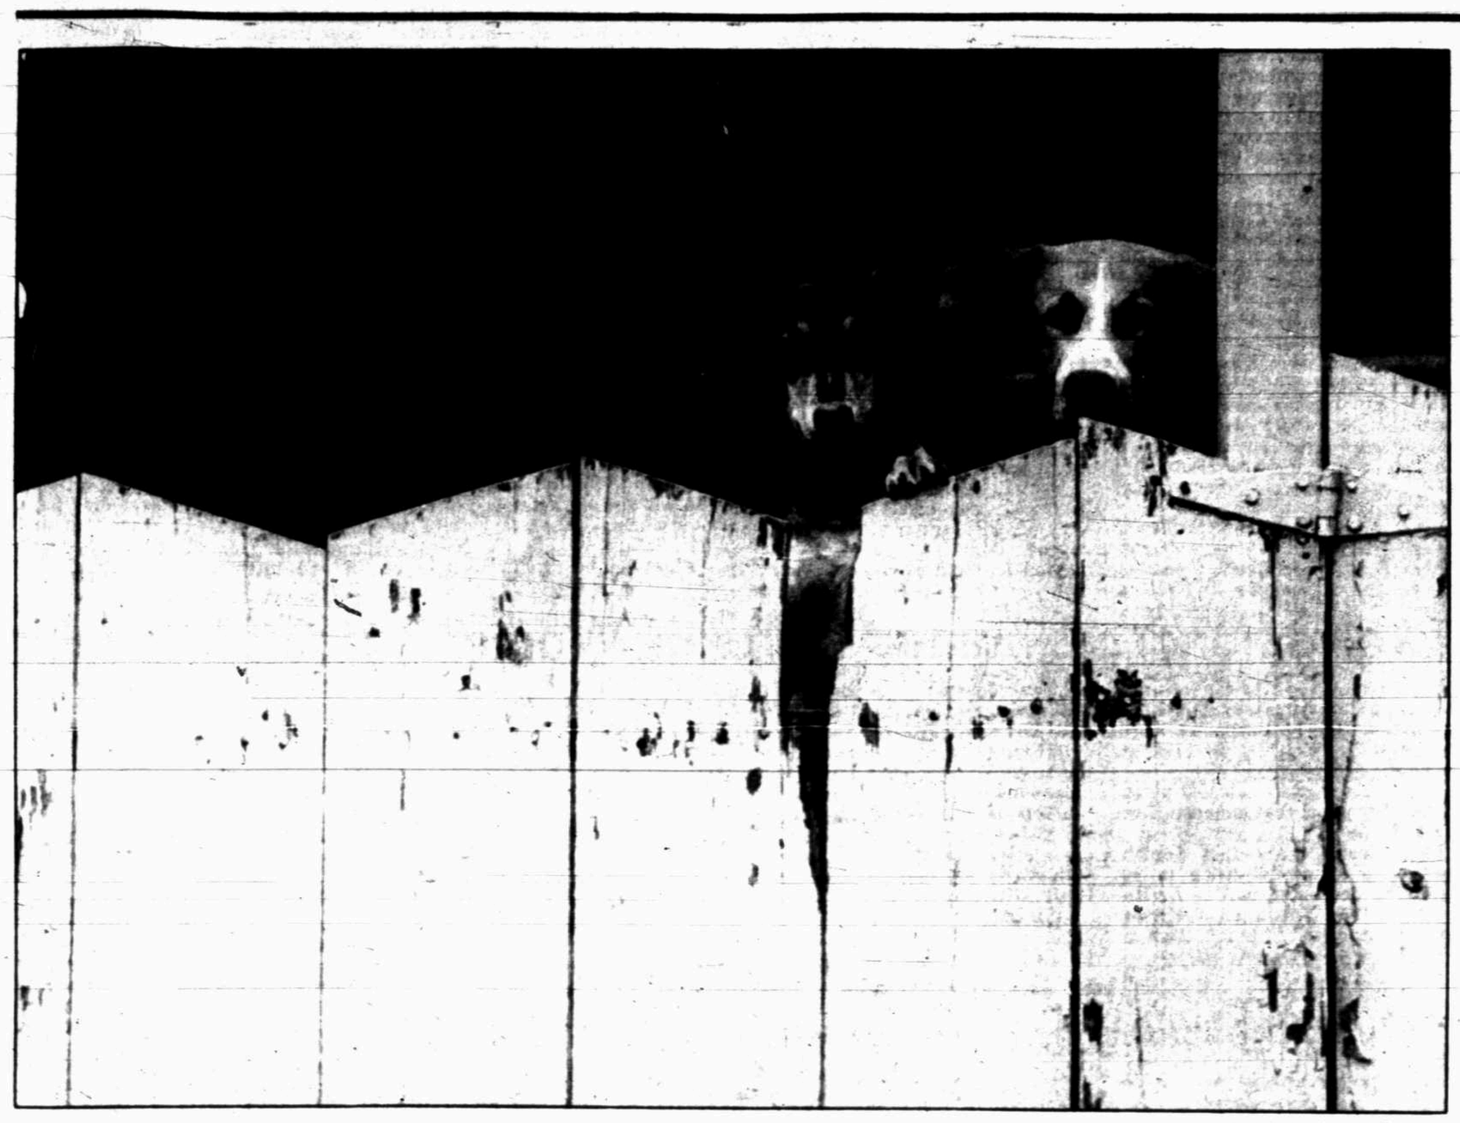

Robert D. Nelon, an Oklahoma City attorney whose firm filed the lawsuit, referred questions to the corporate office in New York. However, he said, Dow Jones filed the suit in an attempt to get a definitive ruling on the issue.

Army awards $527 million for new vision equipment contract

GARLAND (SWN) — The U.S. Army today awarded a $527 million, multi-year contract for night vision equipment to a joint venture comprised of ITT Corporation's Electro-Optical Products Division (Roanoke, VA) and Varo, Inc. (Garland, TX).

The five-year contract is the largest ever awarded by the Army for night vision equipment. It calls for the purchase of night vision goggles for ground troops and pilots and night vision sights for crew served weapons. The contract also covers training, repair and installation.

ITT and Varo, A Joint Venture, was formed this year to collectively bid for the Army contract.

Hero's drowning ruled accidental

From Staff Reports

The body of a 49-year-old Midland man was recovered from the Concho River near Veribest Monday morning, and Tom Green County Justice of the Peace Charlie Long ruled that accidental drowning was the cause of death, according to the Tom Green County Sheriff's Office.

Arthur Ledford, County Road 1130 North, had disappeared in the rain-swollen river about 9:30 a.m. Sunday after rescuing his grandson, who had been swept over a dam, reports said. The family had been camping nearby.

In other reports from law-enforcement agencies, a fire in a house on County Road 120 East near the Rankin Highway was apparently caused by overheated grease on a stove, according to the Fire Department. The fire, reported at 6:25 p.m. Monday, caused moderate damage to the kitchen of the house belonging to Roy Greer, and heat and smoke damage to the rest of the house, reports said.

Almost $2,400 in property was reported stolen by Mary Milliken from her home on County Road 150. Among the items taken in the Thursday burglary were $1,250 in stereo equipment, a $500 videotape recorder, a $450 television, and a $150 television, reports said.

Two $600 drill bits were reported stolen by Midland Drilling Co., Route 6, Box 832A. The bits were taken Aug. 15 from the company yard on County Road 150 West by someone who cut a hole in the fence, reports said.

Jimmie L. Wilson, 1801 N. Midland Drive, reported the Friday theft of his $25,000 1982 Lincoln. The car was taken from the street near 3108 W. Cuthbert sometime between 10:30 a.m. and 11:45 a.m., reports said.

A California woman reported the theft of a $1,200 gold watch to Midland police. Cathy Wetherell said the watch was taken Thursday from apartment 204, 2600 N. Loop 250, reports said.

State workers consider endorsements for '86

By DAVID ELLIOTT
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — State employees, preparing to flex their political muscle, will endorse candidates in the 1986 local and statewide races, the leader of the largest employees' group announced Monday.

Gary Hughes, executive director of the Texas Public Employees Association, said employees are angered by state leaders' failure to enact a pay raise which exceeds the cost of living.

When employees picked up their pay checks Monday, they received an average salary increase of about $1, Hughes said. "In the brightness of booming Sunbelt growth, that amount of money is a throwback to the dark days of our great depression," he said.

State workers will compare their 3-percent pay hike against a 3.7-percent increase in the cost of living and a 5.5- to 7-percent average increase in private-sector wages, Hughes said.

While declining to predict which gubernatorial candidate will win the group's endorsement, Hughes said the three Republicans expected to challenge White have solid records on state employees' issues. While in office, former Gov. Bill Clements helped win passage of the largest emergency pay raise state employees ever received, Hughes said.

"And when Congressman (Kent) Hance was a state senator from Lubbock he never failed to support pay raises for state employees 100 percent," he said.

Clements and U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, have already declared their candidacies for governor. Hance has yet to make a formal announcement.

Hughes said he has met with Loeffler's staff and said "they're certainly interested in state employees' issues and public employees' positions."

He said he has not met with White recently to discuss what employees can expect from the 1987 Legislature, but said he is "very disappointed that state employees and state government were not a number one priority" during the 1985 session.

But a White spokesman said employees may not have received any pay raise had it not been for the governor.

"I think in large part Governor White was responsible for getting that 3-percent pay raise for state employees at a time when it looked like there might not be any pay raise," said Mark McKinnon, assistant press secretary. "He secured that pay raise during one of the most fiscally difficult times in state history."

George Strake, chairman of the Republican Party of Texas, said White failed to deliver. "The governor, when he was campaigning against Clements, implied that state employees were going to be his No. 1 priority," Strake said.

Democrat Briscoe takes on 'Goliath'

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

While Tom Loeffler, Kent Hance and Bill Clements jostle each other for position in the race for the GOP gubernatorial nomination, so far only one Democrat has announced his intention to run, and it's not Gov. Mark White.

Until White makes it official, the only announced Democratic candidate is Andrew C. Briscoe III, a 33-year-old Dallas real-estate developer whose second cousin is the former governor, Dolph Briscoe. The younger Briscoe, who was in Midland Monday night to address a meeting of the Young Democrats, said Cousin Dolph isn't endorsing his candidacy.

"I'm going into this on my own without his support," Briscoe said.

The former newspaper publisher, advertising executive and marketing specialist has been planning his campaign for two years, and while he compared his race against White to David taking on Goliath, he insists the governor is vulnerable.

"I want to offer a conservative choice," Briscoe told the eight Young Democrats who came to hear him. According to Briscoe, White is perceived by the electorate as moderate or liberal, and a conservative candidate is needed to bring disaffected, conservative Democrats back into the party fold.

But Briscoe pledged to run a "positive" campaign, leaving direct attacks on White to the Republicans. Asked how an unknown candidate with few political credentials could successfully challenge an incumbent governor with such tactics, Briscoe implied he was running to position himself for future races.

The Democratic Party needs a contested primary "if for no other reason than to offer competition and a choice to those who want a choice," he said.

Briscoe was hard-pressed to name issues on which he and White had major disagreements, but claimed White makes too many promises he can't keep. A candidate with a more conservative, business-like image would win back the independent-minded voters from the Republicans, according to Briscoe.

"For the Democratic Party to gain strength, we've got an uphill battle," he said. "The other party is ahead" in organization.

Briscoe would concentrate on diversifying the Texas economy, furthering efforts to reform education and develop a water plan, coming up with Texas' own plan for dealing with illegal immigration, fighting crime and government corruption, and reforming prisons, he said. But discrimination against women and minorities was less important, he said, because Texas has a good record of offering opportunity to all. "And I think we can be proud of that."

Some conservative Democrats have defected to the GOP, but "I'm committed to the Democratic Party," Briscoe said. "This is a critical point. I think the refinement of our vision is very important."

Briscoe urged the Young Democrats to get involved in the election.

"I look forward to the development of the leadership of the Democratic Party in the years ahead," he said.

Tourists to Midland let county ring up $111.9 million in '86

By GARY RASP
Reporter-Telegram
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — More people are coming to Texas — if even to just look around — and it's starting to pay off.

Texas' tourism industry, now the second-largest business in the state, brought in $324 million in tax revenue last year, according to statistics the Texas Tourist Development Agency released Monday.

In Midland County, travelers spent $119.07 million last year, contributing $1.9 million to local tax receipts. Hotels, motels and other businesses employed 2,660 people in 1984 with a payroll of $26.6 million.

Tourism contributed $210 million to local counties' tax rolls, the agency reported.

"This shows that Texas is a strong contender for the vacation and business travel market," said agency spokesman Larry Todd. "We are pleased with this growth and we have the promise of a very bright future for Texas tourism."

More than 3.4 million foreign travelers visited Texas last year, the agency reported. The total number of out-of-state visitors increased from 34 million in 1983 to 37.6 million in 1984. That represents an 8.1 percent increase.

Total visitor nights increased about 3.6 percent from 1983 to 1984. "Obviously, tourist expenditures are directly related to the visitors' length of stay, and the increase is beneficial to our overall economy," Todd said.

The agency has set $16 billion in total revenues by the end of 1986. "The Sesquicentennial, the mystique of Texas and the anticipated increase in business and pleasure travel should help us achieve that goal," Todd added.

Approval of water amendents depends on educating past proposals' naysayers

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Educating voters who have voted against previous water proposals is the key to approval of the two constitutional amendments on water financing on the Nov. 5 ballot, Texas Municipal League officials believe.

Lubbock Mayor Alan Henry, chairman of a TML task force, announced Monday TML is activating a "grassroots coalition" of city officials, who will work locally to win approval of Propositions 1 and 2, which would provide over $1 billion in water development, conservation, quality and flood control financing.

Forty cities were represented at a meeting earlier Monday in Austin to discuss the campaign.

Henry stressed that the proposals are intended to benefit all of Texas, saying, "There is not a town or city in our state that does not have a need for water-related projects, or will not have in the future."

The two amendments won't "cure all the ills we have," but will send a message "throughout the nation" that Texas is coming to grips with its water problems, he said.

The effort will be carried out locally, with radio and public service announcements by local officials, and editorial edorsements and resolutions, Henry reported.

He said he knows of no organized opposition to the amendments, but that "we have to educate those who have historically voted 'no.'"

If the amendments are approved, it will be easier for the Legislature to provide additional bonds and more specific projects in the future, Henry said — noting that additional funding will be required to meet future needs.

Corpus Christi Mayor Luther Jones said he doesn't feel concern over bays and estuaries will result in the rejection of the plan in the coastal areas.

Plainview Mayor E.V. Ridlehuber and Victoria Mayor Ted B. Reed also endorsed the amendments at the press conference.

Livingston finds her calling with phone service for the deaf

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

"Hi. This is Cindy Livingston. May I help U? GA," read the message typed out on the electronic device.

"They use abbreviations and codes," said Ms. Livingston as she received a message from a deaf woman who needed to talk with a veterinarian about bringing her cat in to be examined. "GA means, 'go ahead,' — that they can type their message."

Working as a relay person or "service provider" for Midland and Odessa's deaf community, in the two weeks she has been in operation, Ms. Livingston has already built up a following of customers who depend on her service.

"We're the only service provider in the Midland-Odessa area," she said. "The only other one in the area is in Big Spring."

Ms. Livingston, wife of Midland businessman Cary Livingston and mother of an infant, spends 20 hours per week answering calls from deaf people on a telecommunications device for the deaf (TDD). The TDD, which resembles an electronic typewriter and is hooked up to the telephone by simply placing the earpieces on top, allows deaf people to type messages to Ms. Livingston, who relays the message to whomever the customer is trying to contact.

"About three years ago, we had a fire at the house and I tried to call the fire department. But it was faster to just go and put the fire out myself."

— Charles Archer, deaf since childhood

For most deaf people the simple act of trying to make an appointment by phone is difficult if not impossible without such services.

"I used to have to get in my car and drive around all day," said Charles Archer, Region VII director for Telecommunications for the Deaf Inc. Archer, a long-time Midlander, is editor of GA-SK, the TDI newsletter. He has been deaf since age seven.

"About three years ago, we had a fire at the house and I tried to call the fire department," he said. "But it was faster to just go and put the fire out myself. By the time they finally got there, I had it out."

Archer, who lives a few blocks from Ms. Livingston, is helping to train her in the use of the TDD and how to better relate to the deaf community.

Ms. Livingston has long had an interest in working with the handicapped.

"I studied Braille when I was young and later in college I studied sign language," she said. She received her certificate in child development, working summers with the mentally handicapped. Ms. Livingston came to Midland from Palatine, Ill., four years ago.

"I had wanted to get involved with the Highland Council for the Deaf in Big Spring, but with my husband's business (Livingston Dirt Contractors) and the baby, it was just not possible," she explained. "But then I saw an ad in the newspaper for the service provider job and I jumped at it."

Ms. Livingston receives $1 per call. The service, which is provided by Highland, is free to deaf customers. Highland is funded by the Texas Communications for the Deaf.

She is available for the service on Mondays from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m., Tuesdays, 9 a.m. to noon and 5 p.m. to 8 p.m., Thursdays from 9 a.m. to noon and 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. and on Fridays and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon. She is, however, not held strictly to those hours.

"If there's an emergency they can call at any time," she said, noting however, that she works an extra job on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings.

"But if someone needs a doctor in the middle of the night they can call," she said.

Ms. Livingston has to be ready to deal with any situation as a service provider.

"I had one lady call me who told me that her insurance on some Austin property had been cancelled," she said. "The woman was so upset that I just took the receiver off the TDD and listened to her cry."

Ms. Livingston answers all calls by voice but is quickly signaled that a deaf person wants to type her a message when a beeping noise is emitted from the TDD. She then places the receiver on top of the machine, pushes a switch and then receives the message.

"You really have to watch it closely sometimes, because some of them can type really fast," she said.

Ms. Livingston may be reached at 697-1412.

An orphaned pet chimpanzee found a home at Primarily Primates, a sanctuary for outcast animals near San Antonio, founded by Gregg Miller, shown, and partner Wally Swett.

Animal lovers go 'ape' over primate sanctuary

LEON SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — Wally Swett and Gregg Miller run a haven for chimps, baboons and monkeys that never have lived in the wild but have grown up instead among humans as pets, zoo specimens and laboratory animals.

"These animals are disadvantaged from the word 'go,'" Swett said.

Abandoned or facing euthanasia, the animals were sent to a 10-acre tract, called Primarily Primates, after outliving their usefulness as lab and zoo specimens or proving unsuitable as pets.

Some former pets were castrated or had their teeth removed to make them easier to handle, Swett said.

"Dealers sell monkeys to people representing them as tame pets," Swett said. "But there is no possibility of an adult chimp ever making a suitable house pet. Sooner or later a wild animal is going to bite somebody and then they are destroyed."

Many of the animals had never seen the outdoors or another member of their species, and the transition isn't easy, Swett said.

"Primates suffer because they are more like humans. They become psychotic," Swett said. "We find all kinds of aberrant behavior."

Some monkeys will just sit and rock. Others will become self-destructive, picking and tearing at their own flesh.

"These animals must be taught to relate to their own kind — sexually as well as socially," he said.

Miller, a former veterinary student, and Swett have experimented with ways to resocialize the animals.

In one case, Miller said he taught two former lab baboons to interact by separating them in cages, then helping them learn to groom a companion. "I sat between them and let them groom me," he said.

Primarily Primates, which has has been at this town just north of San Antonio for four years, was started by Swett when he worked in a zoo in Hanover, Mass.

"I had taken in three squirrel monkeys that had been pets that were going to be destroyed," Swett said. By the time he had taken in 18 animals, he had learned that there were no other havens for outcast primates. A year later, he moved Primarily Primates to the San Antonio area, mainly for the climate.

He and Miller have built most of the concrete-based, cone-shaped cages the primates live in. Some of the enclosures have jagged rock bottoms so the monkeys' food can be hidden and they will have to forage for it.

Swett and Miller get help from some local volunteers, but they said they do most of the labor themselves.

"Some days it would be nice to leave at 5 o'clock and not worry about what's going to happen," Swett said.

"But it's rewarding to see an animal who's rocking and biting himself become a normal animal — to see it relate to others, swing and act happy," he said.

The ultimate goal is to set up a release program in Brazil or some other appropriate habitat with a "halfway house," where the monkeys could be introduced to native foods. Once the animals become accustomed to the local foods, their diet could be supplemented until they find food on their own, Swett said.

UT astronomers to use space telescope

AUSTIN (AP) — Eight University of Texas scientists will be among the first users of a $1.2 billion space telescope that, among other things, will try to determine whether planets are orbiting neighboring stars.

The space telescope, said to be powerful enough to see the light of a firefly 10,000 miles away, will be carried aloft in August by the space shuttle and put into orbit 310 miles above the Earth.

The UT scientists are astronomers Bill Jefferys, Peter Shelus, Fritz Benedict, Paul Hemenway, Lawrence Trafton, David Lambert, and Edward Robinson. Paul Duncombe, an aerospace engineer, will join them.

"We are what are called 'guaranteed time' observers because we've been working on the telescope for almost eight years now," Jefferys said. "I expect we'll be very busy for a good year after launch and have enough data to keep us reasonably busy for quite a few years after that."

Guaranteed time observers participated with manufacturer, Perkins-Elmer Corp. of Danbury, Conn., in the design, manufacture, and testing of the telescope and six specialized instruments that enhance its capabilities.

Divided into teams according to projects or the instruments they will use, guaranteed observers will dominate the first 30 months of the planned 15-year mission of the telescope.

The telescope will be run by remote control from ground stations in Maryland. Some scientists have stored projects on computer for relay by radio to the telescope. Others will work directly from ground stations.

Jefferys heads the astrometry team, which will study the positions of stars and their motions. One of the projects of the team will be to search for planets beyond the solar system.

"That's certainly the most exciting project we have because of the implications of life elsewhere," Jefferys said. "We'll have several shots at it. We may discover something very quickly, within a few years or maybe never."

Even if other planets are found, they would still be too far away to be seen in photographs, except as tiny points of light, he said.

Other UT members of the Jefferys team are Shelus, Benedict, Hemenway, and Duncombe. Three more members are from Yale University, the University of Virginia, and the independent Lowell Observatory in Flagstaff, Ariz.

The telescope will produce images from optical light. But its special instruments also will sense ultraviolet light and analyze the mix of wavelengths in light from distant sources, yielding clues on chemical makeup, temperature, density, and velocity.

Robinson — a member of the high-speed photometer team, which will use the instrument to measure brightness — also will study distant stars and galaxies.

Trafton is on the high-resolution spectrograph team. The instrument breaks light into its component parts.

Trafton is the only team member who will use the telescope to study outer planets of the solar system: Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, and Neptune.

"Pluto will be too dim to study at first, so I'll be spending most of my time on the brighter planets," he said.

One of Trafton's projects will be to seek images of Jupiter to determine whether it has an aurora — a luminous electrical discharge — around the polar regions, similar to the auroras of Earth.

"The pictures of the planets will look very similar to the flyby pictures taken of Jupiter by the Voyager spacecraft but, this time, from a telescope above the Earth," Trafton said.

Lambert is the only scientist at UT who is a guaranteed time observer not on a specific team. He was one of four scientists who advised the telescope manufacturer on overall design.

"I prefer to think of it as an observatory rather than a telescope because it's going to be a very versatile instrument," Lambert said.

One of Lambert's projects will be to study Betelgeuse, a dying red-star giant, and will probe exploding stars and binary stars in ways that are impossible from the ground because of the interfering atmosphere of Earth.

Twelve honorees named to Texas Women's Hall of Fame

AUSTIN (AP) — Twelve women, including state Treasurer Ann Richards and author Liz Carpenter, were named to the Texas Women's Hall of Fame today.

The honorees were selected by an 11-member panel that included Gov. Mark White.

Ms. Richards is the first woman elected to statewide office in 50 years, Ms. Carpenter, now an Austin resident, held appointed positions under Presidents Lyndon Johnson, Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter.

Also to be honored at the Nov. 14 induction ceremony here are:

— Grace Woodruff Cartwright of Weatherford, a former member of the Texas Water Quality Board who helped build the rural community of Tin Top and has been in agriculture for 56 years.

— Jenny Lind Porter of Austin, author and professor of history at Huston-Tillotson College.

— Lydia Mendoza of Houston, a musician credited with developing a style combining German and Mexican music.

— Edna Gardner Whyte of Roanoke, owner and chief pilot of the Aero Valley Flight School. She got her license in 1928 and has trained more than 5,000 student pilots.

— Willie Lee Glass of Tyler, who served 24 years as a home economics consultant for the Texas Education Agency.

— Maria Elena Flood of El Paso.

Big Spring representative honored for radioactive-waste management

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, has been awarded the "Environmental Health" Legislative Service Award of the Lone Star Chapter, Sierra Club, for his work on management of low-level radioactive wastes.

Sierra Club officials announced the biennial awards Monday.

Shaw was cited as "the most active and dedicated legislator on the issue of proper management of low-level radioactive wastes," sponsoring "the strongest legislative proposal on this topic during the 69th Legislature."

Several concepts in his bill eventually were incorporated into the legislation which was enacted, the Sierra Club noted.

"Rep. Shaw was also a strong supporter of many other legislative proposals for the protection of citizens from improper hazardous waste disposal and other threats to public health and the environment," the club said.

Overtime ruling hard on cities

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram
Austin Bureau

LAKEWAY — A court ruling forcing cities and states to pay their employees for overtime could cost those governments $1.5 billion per year, a state personnel expert said Monday.

Jim Thomas, president of the National Association of State Personnel Executives, said the Feb. 19 U.S. Supreme Court decision will boost payroll costs for cities and states by about 1 percent. Those governments might find it cheaper to hire additional employees in some areas than to pay time-and-one-half for overtime.

"The primary impact is with police, correctional employees, clerical workers and firefighters," Thomas told a group of southern states lawmakers and budget officers. He said two bills pending in the U.S. Senate could override the high court's decision, but he added that the political makeup of the House committee that would consider those bills could prevent them from becoming law.

Steve Collins, an attorney with the Texas Legislative Council, said the wording of the court's ruling threatens states' rights by forcing states to turn to Congress for relief. "Congress can do just about anything it wants to on this," Collins said.

ENDORSE

Clements, Strake said, was more honest in his dealings with employees. "He at least came in, told them the truth, and ended up getting them more money than White," Strake said.

The Republican leader said he is confident that the 1986 Republican nominee for governor would win the employee group's endorsement. "I'm delighted to hear that Mr. Hughes intends to endorse candidates, and whoever the Republican nominee is stands a very good chance of getting that endorsement," he said.

But Eliseo Medina, executive director of the rival Texas State Employees Union, called Clements "a disaster" for state employees.

"It's too early for us to say who we're going to endorse," he said. "But I can tell you for sure that we're not going to endorse Bill Clements."

Clements, Medina said, tried to cut 25,000 employees from the state's payroll, and supported a much lower pay raise than one the Legislature eventually approved. "When the actual 5.1-percent raise passed, it was because the union was pushing, fighting and shoving," Medina said.

"Clements, and the Texas Public Employees' Association, endorsed the 3.1-percent proposal. I think Mr. Strake's representation is very wrong."

Both Hughes and Medina have called for a tax increase to finance an employees' pay raise. A Hance spokesman declined comment on whether the former congressman would support increased taxes.

"Kent Hance will be announcing for governor next week and throughout the campaign will be discussing issues that affect the state as well as state employees," said the spokesman, who asked not to be identified.

Clements was traveling around the state and could not be reached for comment.

Loeffler declined comment on whether he would support a tax increase. "I think state employees should be adequately compensated," he said. "The only way you have good public service is if you pay them well. I'll always make sure that is the case."

Loeffler spokeswomen Andrian Urrutia said she thought the candidate would be reluctant to raise taxes. "If you recall his campaign announcement, he said he wouldn't raise taxes until all state programs were reviewed," she said. "I would say in general he would be against raising taxes."

Proposed TUEC turbines would handle greater electrical needs

From Staff Reports

The Texas Utilities Electric Company (TUEC) has filed an application with the Public Utility Commission to construct combustion turbines at three of the company's existing gas- and oil-fueled plants.

The units, which are part of TUEC's 10-year resource plan for meeting growth, will provide an additional 960 megawatts of generating capacity.

On Sept. 12, the PUC voted to allow TUEC to apply for a certificate to add the combustion turbines at the Permian Basin Steam Electric Station near Monahans, at the Morgan Creek Steam Electric Station near Colorado City and at the DeCordova Steam Electric Station near Granbury.

The estimated cost for the total project is $488.6 million.

To gain certification for the projects, TUEC next must obtain approval of the PUC through the hearing process.

If the PUC grants approval, TUEC plans to install 190 megawatts for commerical operation in 1988 and 110 megawatts in 1990 at the Permian Basin plant; 400 megawatts for commercial operation in 1990 at the Morgan Creek plant; and 260 megawatts for 1990 at the DeCordova plant.

Combustion turbines are well suited for peak load duty. They can be started in a few minutes, increasing operational flexibility and reliability by allowing quick response to peak demand for electricity. TUEC intends to use the units only for short periods of time, as needed, during peak load periods throughout the year.

Midland native takes pride in quality home construction

Being a lifetime Midlander, Bill takes pride in building exceptionally high quality homes which match the exclusive tastes of Midlanders.

Bill explains that he feels the most satisfaction in his work when he and the new homeowner do the final walk through of the home. What was at once just a plot of land has become a home where a family can gather around the fireplace and talk or sit down in a nicely furnished kitchen and enjoy dinner. Bill's construction expertise in conjunction with the family's input makes this whole process possible.

Though Bill Woodruff Construction, Inc. will build homes in other areas of town, their office and current projects are in Crestgate IX. In a Crestgate home, though you are not in a main traffic area, "you're close to the mall, have accessibility downtown..., you have a lot of new shopping centers that are being built nearby and it's close to Greentree Country Club... The homes out here are holding their values very well. Homes that have been built and resold have sold within a reasonable period of time," Bill says.

The schools in the quiet Crestgate area attract many young families, according to Bill. A neighborhood park is being planned.

Their are amenities within the area which enhance each portion of property available. Some of these features include underground utilities, paved alleys and several cul-de-sac lots.

The homes in this area which have been built by Bill Woodruff Construction are equally special. Each home is personalized for the new owner. Though a home may already be under construction, Bill explains that once a family decides to purchase it, they can give special input concerning coloring and styling during the remainder of the construction process. This company is proud to offer something other than "track housing" which leaves a row of nearly identical houses.

Some special features that Bill does offer include living areas with an 11 foot ceiling, large laundry rooms, closets designed to efficiently utilize space, pan ceilings, master baths with two dressing areas.

In addition, raised panel ash cabinets and built-in appliances are standard in the kitchens.

Once construction starts, Bill says, "We always have someone working on our jobs." So there are no unneccessary delays.

Bill encourages those who want a new home to consider Crestgate IX, a young, growing area which is not overbuilt. Even if you want to build in some other area call Bill at 699-4204 (office) or 699-1707 (home). You can count on this native Midlander to do quality work.

Bill Woodruff Construction's office is located at 4811 Timber Lane. To see some of Bill's work, turn West off of Midkiff onto Caldera (right across from Skaggs Alpha Beta), then turn right on Timber Lane. Follow the road around to 4811 where the office is located. At 4813 is a home that Bill recently completed and sold, and at 4815 Bill has a home under construction. Or to see homes already underconstruction by Bill Woodruff Construction, you can call Century 21 Midtex, 689-0021.

This month Fast Photo Service is offering a tremendous value on enlargements. Buy two color enlargements and you will get a third ENLARGEMENT FREE! That's right, September 30-October 30 you can take advantage of this offer on enlargements from 8x10 to 16x24.

Moreover, when you buy an enlargement at this fine shop you get 20 percent off an appropriate frame. Less expensive Crylic frames and metal or wood Nielson frames with glass and mat represent the wide variety available to enhance your enlargement.

Whether you are having enlargements made, slides or prints developed or disc film processed, Fast Photo Service, Inc. is the place to go.

In every industry companies compare themselves to the leader. That leader represents the best quality, the best servcie, the strongest tradition. When it comes to film processing in Midland, Midland's original fast photo processor, Fast Photo Service stands out as the standard of comparison.

Every lab wants to be as fast, or as efficient, or as freindly as Fast Photo Service, Inc. The fact is, however, there is only one original, only one standard of comparison, Fast Photo Service in the Town and Country Shopping Center.

"A lot of people think that if you wait longer you get better prints, but it's not true," says manager Aaron Salton. Fast Photo Service uses Kodak paper to assure the kind of quality you deserve.

When it comes to speed. It's just no contest. Color prints take just one hour and the ever popular disk film and E6 slides can be ready in a day.

When you take your film to Fast Photo Service, you get personal attention. The friendly experts will be glad to answer any questions you may have.

You can also be sure that your negatives will receive personal attention when they are developed. Salton explains that they have the best one hour developing equipment which is available.

In keeping with their tradition of quality service, Fast Photo Service gives you personal attention when you pick up your film. If you feel that a print is a bit too dark or maybe the wrong reprint was made, Fast Photo will take care of that. In many cases, they can make a new print while you wait!

So, take advantage of the tremendous savings on enlargements at Fast Photo Service, Inc.- Midland's fast film processing leader!

Have fun and learn to scuba dive this winter at Stovall's Dive Shop

Richard Stovall (left) models a Henderson wet suit in Texas Aggie colors with plush lined nylon, while Winn Stovall sports one of the popular Dive Skins. Rick Hamilton wears an Australian-made farmer John style wet suit by Morey. All of these and much other fine diving equipment can be found at Stovall's Dive Shop, 1308 S. Midkiff.

Why not?

Stovall's Dive Shop and Scuba School, touted as the finest training school between the Gulf and Pacific coasts, has wonderful covered and heated facilities for winter training.

In fact, owner Richard Stovall says you have to see the pool facility to appreciate it. The facility is reportedly unequaled by any other West Texas pool in size, depth, convenience, comfort and fun.

And, if you train now, you'll be ready for those fun spring and summer trips.

Richard Stovall, a YMCA gold instructor and PADI master diving instructor, has just completed an instructor crossover, qualifying him as a MAUI instructor.

The school also has two master diver trainers, Bob and Sara Porter who quailify under SSI, PADI and MAUI requirements. Two more Stovall dive masters are currently attending instructor college, so there will be five instructors at this top quality school very soon.

These professional instructors are ready to provide instruction on all levels, including advanced courses in 12 specialized areas such as underwater photography, rescue diving, deep diving, wreck diving, equipment specialties, research, underwater hunting, altitude diving,dive master, assistant instructor and night diving. Richard says now is the perfect time for divers to continue their education with these advanced courses. You can check the schedule for these specialty courses at the shop, located at 1308 S. Midkiff.

If you want to learn to scuba dive-start with the professionals at Stovall's. Those who learn at Stovall's Dive School can qualify for the PADI gold card, which offers many benefits.

Classes begin daily with courses offered on an individual basis designed to fit your schedule. The self-paced classroom portion is offered at the store Monday-Friday 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The audio/visual portion is designed to be fun and exciting for each participant.

People like Dr. and Mrs. O.C. Collins, who recently retired, can tell you how much fun it is to dive. This couple just started diving in March, and now they are advanced divers with 23 dives to their credit.

For divers like these, Stovall's Dive Shop always stocked with the finest diving equipment available. Winn Stovall says they recently received a shipment of the popular Dive Skins. These comfortable, reasonably priced suits are perfect for protection against corral in warm water diving. They also offer extra warmth under a wet suit.

Stovall's Dive Shop has an ample stock of wet suits, including brands such as Imperial, Henderson, and Morey. Richards said now is the time to by a wet suit. During the "off season" you can often get a better price.

DACOR, one of the top diving equipment lines, is the major line of diving equipment carried at Stovall's Dive Shop.

Stovall's keeps a good variety of books on various islands and courses. Another very special item for divers is Stovall's Christmas gift list. It's the perfect way to drop a hint.

Moreover, Stovall's arranges diving trips for groups and individuals. Divers can actually save money by allowing Stovall's to book these vacations because this competent staff knows where the best diving spots are located in the area their customers would like to see. And, a package deal often come with discounts.

When you get ready to learn to scuba dive go to Stovall's. "Remember we're professional. We do it right. We make it fun and we keep it safe at Stovall's Dive Shop and Scuba School, the ultimate in scuba instruction," says Richard.

Lewellen's storm windows can slash heating bill

For many people, the first chill of autumn stirs fond memories of brilliantly colored leaves, football games and hot chocolate. However, it may also be a grim reminder of upcoming heating bills.

If you've been hit hard by the high cost of keeping your home warm, Lewellen Construction and Home Improvement Center asks you to consider winterizing with Diamond storm windows. Storm windows are an ideal way to increase the comfort of your home or mobile home. And, what better place is there to make an investment than in your home?

Storm windows reduce cold drafts from outside, keep warm air from escaping through cracks and reduce heat transfer through the panes far better than a single layer of glass.

A little known advantage is that the pocket of air trapped between the original windows and storm windows acts as an effective insulator. This invisible layer of insulation works double duty by keeping out the cold and street noise.

The U.S. government is so convinced of the energy-saving value of storm windows that it will give you a tax credit. To qualify for the credit of 15 percent up to $300 (15 percent of $2000) your home must have been substantially completed by April 20, 1977 and the windows must be installed by the end of 1985.

Joan Lewellen points out that this credit applies not only to storm windows, but also to insulated replacement windows and replacement windows with attached storm windows, as well.

It's worth noting that a $300 credit means even more tax savings than a $300 deduction, because a credit comes off the tax amount not just off the total income.

To help you take advantage of this tax savings opportunity, Lewellen Construction is offering a 10 PERCENT DISCOUNT on storm windows if you call during October.

Lewellen Construction is a local company which is commited to quality workmanship and products, that's why they offer Diamond windows. Diamond storm windows come with a 15 year warranty on the unit and screening and a 10 year warranty on the painted finish.

Besides, storm windows are available in bronze, white, tan, black and mill (aluminum color), making them an attractive addition to your home.

For mobile home owners, Lewellen Construction can mount the quality Diamond storm windows on the inside or outside.

All homeowners should remember that it is important not only to get quality windows, but to have those storm windows installed by a qualified company like Lewellen Construction. If the windows are installed incorrectly they won't be as effective.

The professionals at Lewellen Construction do quality work at a fair price.

In addition to storm windows, they offer replacement windows, steel siding, trim, fascia and soffit, along with replacement and storm doors. Lewellen's also installs patio covers and carports.

Call 686-8007 today, waiting till the last minute to install storm windows could cost you $300!

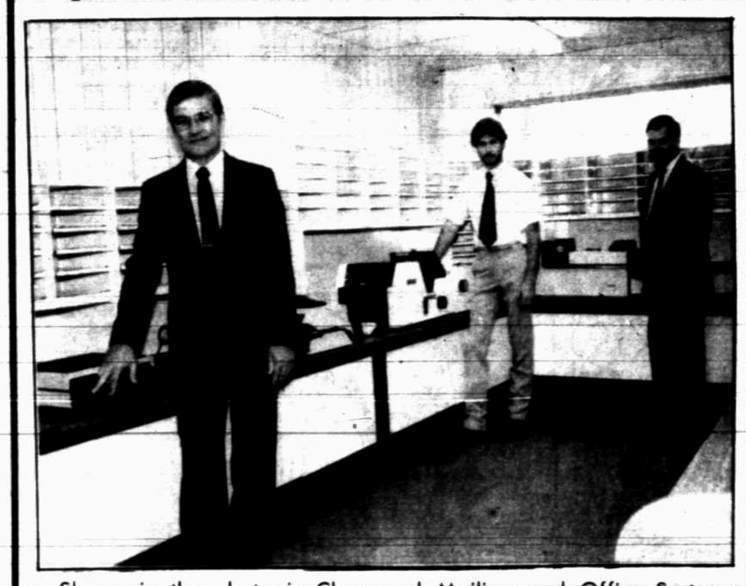

Bill Lewellen of Lewellen Construction and Home Improvement Center reminds you that those cold winter months are just around the corner. Now is the time to take advantage of the energy tax credit (good only through the end of 1985) and Bill's 10 PERCENT October discount on storm windows like he installed at this home.

Chaparral Mailing and Office Systems has a seal of approval

Shown in the photo is Chaparral Mailing and Office Systems demonstrator room in the Midland office are Boyd Bowen, Service Manager, Rex Bloodworth, Service Technician and Bob Graham, President. Displayed in this picture are a variety of sorting bins and tables designed to give a mailroom more efficiency for both the incoming and outgoing mail. Also pictured are some of the Friden electronic mailing machines and scales.

Does your mailing machine have an appetite causing it to chew up your envelopes?

Do you have to play a guessing game with your mechanical scale to determine the postage?

Do you have new mailroom employees that need help in knowing when to put certified, registered, insurance, library rate, book rate on letters and packages.

There are problems that the sales and service staff at Chaparral Mailing & Office Systems face each day as they talk to companies in the Permian Basin about how to make their mailrooms more productive and control cost at the same time.

Chaparral Mailing and Office Systems is one of 75 offices in the United States and Canada that markets Friden Alcatel products: the company who brought the mailing equipment industry the first electronic meter, electronic postage scale and electronic mailing machine.

Friden Alcatel products are not new to the Permian Basin. There are hundreds of satisfied customers who have been using Friden mailing machines for over 15 years.

Chaparral Mailing and Office Systems has a trained staff of sales and service representatives, headquartered in Midland, that can assist your company with solving any problem that can cause your mailing system to be non-productive.

Besides marketing the least expensive, "most intelligent" postage meter on the market today, Chaparral Mailing and Office Systems provides a free service, whereby we come to you and physically survey your mailroom facility. We answer questions such as these: how the incoming and outgoing mail is processed; develop flow charts of recommended ways to improve your mailroom's productivity.

How can we do this? We have over 20 years of successful experience with Friden Alcatel, having seen hundreds of productive mailrooms, and gained workable ideas from these examples.

Chaparral Mailing and Office Systems believes in mailroom efficiency. Call us today for a free survey.

If you are getting ready to renew your present msiling machine lease, why not call Chaparral Mailing and Office Systems for a second opinion. You will find that a Friden Alcatel electronic mailing machine gives you more benefits for less money. Several Permian Basin companies have already found this out.

Call Chaparral Mailing and Office Systems for a free mailroom survey and second opinion on renewing your postage machine lease.

We are in the Yellow Pages under Mailing Machines or call us at 683-1351.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, October 2, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Those born on this date are generous, helpful and able to get along with all types of people. Be more skeptical when dealing with strangers. If offered an unusual land deal, check it out with responsible realtors. Put your whole heart into everything you do. A parent's advice proves correct again and again. Choose a mate who shares your outgoing personality and strong interest in helping humanity. A special promise will be kept. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Indian leader Mahatma Gandhi, the Montreal Expos' Vance Law, actor Moses Gunn, baseball great Maury Wills, publisher Clay Felker, New York Post movie critic Rex Reed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Do not fret if a close friend fails to keep a promise. There could be a very good explanation! Someone in the arts gets a vote of confidence. Romance moves into high gear.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Save money by practicing small economies. Perform more services for yourself. A candid talk with mate could improve your relationship. Emphasize all the things you like and admire about loved one.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Getting better organized at work will boost productivity. Teamwork is the key to bigger profits. Make the most of an opportunity to showcase your talents. Self-improvement projects enjoy highly favorable influences.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A friend helps out in an emergency. Return the favor as soon as possible. Your talents begin to get greater recognition. Refrain from bragging. A new hat or haircut boosts your spirits.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An excellent day to finalize business deals. A member of the younger generation could disagree with your views. Listen carefully before passing judgment. You may have overlooked something.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do everything you can to promote office harmony. Pool resources with your associates. The social scene is busy. Look for an opportunity to gain new knowledge or skills.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): An excellent job merits a small family celebration. Paying more attention to details will save both time and money. Make sure your home is secure before leaving on a trip.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be the first to comfort someone whose feelings have been hurt. Your past experiences serve you well in an emergency. You know exactly what to do. A phone call brings wonderful news.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Romance looks both exciting and stormy for singles. Seek a better understanding of loved one's needs and hopes. Keep your promises to a young person and you gain his or her trust.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Do not deviate from the path that is taking you where you want to go. Others could try to erect roadblocks. Stock up on grocery and office supplies when they are on sale.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Business profits continue to grow. A compromise will help you solve an agonizing personal or professional problem. Someone you thought was an enemy turns out to be a friend.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Someone you have been trying to reach wants to see you now. Good timing is the key to success. You need to gain the cooperation of key officials. Be forceful but diplomatic.

One of the bright young players on the East Coast is Tom Snow, business manager of New York's prestigious Cavendish Club. Here is example of his prowess from the recent Summer North American Championships held in Las Vegas.

East's two diamond overcall promised spades and another suit. Snow, South, doubled to show diamonds, then cue-bid spades in an attempt to force his partner to choose the final contract. West's double relieved North of the obligation to bid, so he passed just in case his partner might want to play in three no trump. Since South had no such inclination, he jumped to five clubs to offer his partner a choice of minor-suit contracts. That ended the auction.

West led a low spade, and when dummy appeared it was obvious that East had a major two-suiter. Declarer won the ace of spades in hand and immediately led the jack of clubs. West followed low in tempo but, since East was likely to be short in the suit, declarer let the jack ride. When that won, it was easy to draw trumps, stuff dummy's remaining two spades on the diamonds and ruff a spade on the table to come home with an overtrick.

West could have presented declarer with a problem had he covered the jack of clubs. When East follows with the ten, declarer would have to decide whether to play East for 10-9 in the suit or whether to return to hand to finesse for the nine of clubs. However, West cannot take time to consider what to do at trick two without giving the game away. Since he would not have a problem with a doubleton queen of trumps, the only holding that could leave him in a quandary would be if the lady were guarded at least twice.

WATCHES

Mr. Sears and Mr. Roebuck got together because of a classified ad!

In the late 1800's, Richard W. Sears had a pretty good business going selling watches and needed someone to handle his watch repairs. He placed a classified ad in the newspaper and Alvah C. Roebuck got the job. That's how the nation's biggest retailer got started... through a classified ad!

Prince Andrew says family has photo phobia

LONDON (AP) — Prince Andrew, Britain's most famous amateur photographer, says members of his family "tend to cringe" when they hear shutters clicking en masse, despite years of exposure.

Andrew, the second of Queen Elizabeth II's three sons, was explaining the absence of formal photos of the royal family in his first book, called "Photographs." Its profits are to be given to charity.

Andrew said that when his nephew, Prince William, started nursery school last week, 200 press photographers were present and their cameras made "a lot of noise."

NEW YORK (AP) — Ben Vereen, Gene Kelly, Agnes De Mille and a host of other hoofers and choreographers will be advisers to a new program for dancers who reach the end of their performing careers and must find new ones.

Career Transition for Dancers would offer vocational testing, job listings, retraining, and internships, as well as emotional and financial support, said Actors' Fund of American president Nedda Harrington Logan.

Many dancers are eligible for pensions, but cannot draw benefits until they are in their 60s, possibly 30 years after they retire, officials said.

"A dancer's life is precarious," Miss De Mille said at a news conference Monday, adding, "There is no sight so sorry as an old chorus boy."

Members of the advisory committee include Gwen Verdon, Mikhail Baryshnikov, Michael Bennett, Bob Fosse, Peter Gennaro and Jerome Robbins.

• • •

BOSTON (AP) — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., will host a fund-raising dinner Friday for the John F. Kennedy Library Foundation.

John Cullinane, chairman of the foundation board, said Monday the dinner would honor the 25th anniversary of Kennedy's presidential election and raise money toward an $8 million endowment for the library.

• • •

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Actor Stacy Keach says he's tired of talking about his problems with cocaine and the law, but "ironically, it opened doors for me."

Keach, who arrived Monday for his first dramatic role since his release from a British prison on a drug conviction, will star in "Intimate Strangers," a CBS made-for-TV move with Terri Garr and Kathy Lee Crosby.

Keach said he felt he was being made an example with his prison sentence in England on the drug conviction.

"I'm working on a book: 'Christmas with Her Majesty,'" Keach said of his nine-month term in Reading Gaol.

Keach said he will begin filmimg a "Mike Hammer" movie three days after he finishes this movie. "I love the Mike Hammer character."

As for the return of his "Mike Hammer" television series that was discontinued while he was in prison, Keach said it may be named a "designated hitter" if some of the new shows fail.

NEW YORK (AP) — Pianist Vladimir Horowitz, 82 today, says he now has "maturity, more control, more quiet, no hurricane."

Horowitz spoke to reporters at a recording session Monday for his first studio album since 1973. The maestro couldn't say how many hours a day he practices, which usually is in his Manhattan living room.

"I never used to practice. You practice at home too long and then you practice on the stage. The stage is to perform, not to practice."

A film about Horowitz will make its debut at Carnegie Hall in November, he said. "There's a lot of walking, talking, not only piano playing. I'll tell you in three days if it's any good; I didn't see it yet."

• • •

BOSTON (AP) — A bouncing baby girl has been born to Mary Cunningham, the former Bendix Corp. executive who quit her job in 1980 amid rumors of a romance with her boss, Bill Agee, whom she later married.

Mary Alana Agee weighed in Monday at 9 pounds, 4 ounces, said Susan O'Brien, a spokeswoman at St. Margaret's Hospital for Women in Boston.

"She's the cutest baby in the nursery, don't you think?" she said Agee asked the hospital staff.

Helen MacInnes

NEW YORK (AP) — Helen MacInnes, whose 21 novels established her as the queen of international espionage fiction, died Monday following a stroke she suffered three weeks ago. She was 77.

Miss MacInnes' books sold more than 23 million copies in the United States alone, and have been translated into 22 languages, said Julian P. Muller, a vice president at Harcourt Brace Jovanovich.

Her latest novel, "Ride a Pale Horse," appeared on The New York Times paperback best-seller list for the first time on Sunday.

Four of her novels were made into movies, including her early work "Above Suspicion," which became a 1943 motion picture starring Joan Crawford and Fred MacMurray.

"She is recognized as the creator of acute, exciting novels set against backgrounds of meaningful present-day events," said Muller, who was Miss MacInnes' editor for about 25 years.

Miss MacInnes, a native of Glasgow, Scotland, was the wife of Gilbert Highet, who held the Anthon Professorship of the Latin Language and Literature at Columbia University before his death in 1978.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Charles F. Richter, who developed a pioneering scale for measuring earthquakes and had a "continuing and profound effect" on the study of seismology, has died of heart failure at the age of 85.

Richter died Monday after suffering several years from congestive heart disease, said his spokeswoman Jerene Hewitt. He was hospitalized after a heart seizure July 30, 1984, and eight days later was transferred to Park Marino Convalescent Center in Pasadena.

"Dr. Charles F. Richter will be remembered by the public for his Richter scale of earthquake magnitude," said Dallas Peck, head of the U.S. Geological Survey in Reston, Va. "This pioneering advance permitted the accurate measurement of the size of earthquakes."

Richter, who retired as a professor emeritus of seismology at the California Institute of Technology in 1970, became a household name because of the Richter scale, which he developed with Beno Gutenberg in 1935 after K. Wadati originated the idea in Japan in 1931.

Earlier scales measured quake intensity, based on ground shaking and the damage done to structures, which varied depending on whether the quake was felt in a populated or uninhabited area.

The open-ended Richter scale, which showed the total energy released by quakes, allowed a fairly precise measure of temblors no matter where they were. Every increase of one on the scale, say from 4.2 to 5.2, represents a tenfold increase in magnitude.

'Fashion Encyclopedia' tells all

By NANETTE WISER
Copley News Service

Evan who?

Chenille and Donegal tweed don't ring instant bells of recognition?

Fall fashion aficionados and smart clothes wearers (both male and female) cannot live without Catherine Houck's "The Fashion Encyclopedia," an interesting and practical reference book.

Published by St. Martin's Press in New York, Houck's bible of clothing care, designers' biographies, fabrics etiologies, history of fashion classics and terms provides an "Ooh" among the yawns usually associated with pedantic tomes of fashion history or commentary. You can drop her bon mots like cocktail peanuts at your next party.

WITH CREDITS such as Cosmopolitan, Ladies' Home Journal and Redbook behind her, Houck culls tidbits from Roman history and Dorothy Lamour movies with equal grace, spicing up her A to Z wardrobe tips and tattles with gossip.

Designers, shows and advertisements summed up in succinct paragraphs rear their lovely heads. We discover that Giorgio Armani, called the world's master tailor, was responsible for the "ever so slightly rumpled look" worn by Richard Gere in "American Gigolo" that "changed the look of men's haberdashery in the 1970s."

Diane Keaton wore his man-tailored blazer and pantsuit to collect her Oscar for "Annie Hall" in 1978. At $800 a blazer, that's no small change in the fashion world.

Richard Assatly of Brooklyn pops up as a cocktail and dinner dress designer to watch. He also designs for Simplicity patterns.

Laura Ashley, a name "synonymous with romantic, Victorian-look cottons strewn with fields of tiny daisies" is revealed to be a Welsh designer with no formal training who once worked as a Telex operator. She now has more than 80 boutiques around the world.

EQUALLY INFORMATIVE is the hubba-hubba on fabrics and styles. Khaki derives its name from an ancient Hindu word meaning dusty, a term that later was applied to the light-brown cotton used for Indian army uniforms. When the British troops of the 1850s found that their white uniforms turned brown in the dust, they opted for the native look, and fashion history has not been quite the same since.

Ann Taylor always includes some true-blue British khaki clothes in her collections. And did you know that kidskin, used for fine gloves and elegant shoes, must come from a goat about 2½ years old? Not a baa-d history.

Brand names that become interchangeable with the item, such as Fruit of the Loom T-shirts and Frye boots, are finally deciphered.

MORE THAN 100 YEARS ago, an American manufacturer by the name of Knigh founded a company in Rhode Island. He had an artistic daughter who liked to draw fruit on bolts of muslin, and the painted bolts sold better than the other bolts. Registered as trademark No. 418 (in the trillions today), the harvest sign adorned the outside of clothing forevermore.

As for Frye boots, "To the East what Nocona and Tony Lama are to Texas," the true Frye boot descends not from the buffalo-chasing cowboys, but from an 1863 boot made for Union soldiers after the Civil War.

Fashion signatures such as Frye and Fruit of the Loom or, in the haute couture world, Mary McFadden's braided belts and Pauline Trigere's scarfed coats are not the only trademarks. Houck reminds us in one of her many astute fashion observations, that if clothes make the woman, then the woman often makes the clothes famous. Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis' dark glasses, Gloria Steinem's aviator glasses and Bianca Jagger's walking stick are as much fashion signatures as the rest.

HER CHARTS ON leathers and furs, as well as everything you always wanted to know about the wash-and-wear labels, direct from the American Apparel Manufacturers Association, sit hand in hand with the fluffy information and take the guesswork out of spot removal.

Put aside the aspirin; take Houcks' "Fashion Encyclopedia" to bed tonight.

Baby layettes can be practical

By ANITA LEWIS
Hearst News Service

Pregnant or not, when you enter a store's infants' wear department your spending gland starts salivating. Frilly white christening dresses, tiny sweaters in sherbert pastels, miniature jogging outfits, lace-trimmed party dresses and cuddly footed sleepers all reach out to tug at your heart strings. If you're not expecting, you start thinking of who is, so you can buy a gift. If you are, your resolve not to overspend dissolves.

But overspending is the biggest mistake parents-to-be usually make, says Houston-based consumer expert Darcie Bundy, author of "The Affordable Baby: A Complete Consumer Guide to Cost Comparisons for Parents-to-Be." Her guide tackles such baby-related economic issues as medical costs, maternity clothing, preparing the nursery, and clothing, feeding and diapering baby.

ALTHOUGH BUNDY warns never to cut back where it would result in lower quality, safety or durability, she says that prospective parents needn't buy top-of-the-line merchandise if they know what to look for.

"Designer clothes are a total waste of money — really kind of pretentious. Dressing gowns, christening gowns with scratchy lace, little suits and dresses restrict a baby's movements and are terribly expensive. I've literally seen baby dresses for $100. I can't imagine them wearing them!"

Don't buy layette items until after baby showers and keep purchases down until after you get home from the hospital, she advises; many friends will come bearing gifts on their first visit. When you do buy, keep the emphasis on the functional, not decorative.

Because newborns spend most of their time sleeping, they don't need a huge wardrobe — except for diapers! A basic layette is a modest investment.

SIZES ARE A MAJOR source of confusion. The size-age designates the upper limit. Clothing marked "newborn" or "3 months" will fit an average size baby up to that age. So, unless you have a "preemie" or otherwise tiny baby, never buy newborn. Your baby already is newborn and will be out of this size in no time.

In determining what size to buy, the most important measurement is height, not weight. According to Commerce Department guidelines, a 6-month size fits babies up to 26½ inches long and weights 14 to 18 pounds.

"Measure the baby top-of-head to the heel. If height falls into one category and weight into another, height prevails."

In selecting infant clothing, you'll want to look for several practical features and insist on handling and examining clothing before buying.

• Open sealed packages or have a salesperson open it. Feel for softness and pliancy. Examine thickness and give. Check seams and stitching. Garments shouldn't bind at the neck, wrists, ankles or waist. Knit fabrics are most comfortable.

• Choose easy-to-care-for, machine-washable and dryable garments that require little or no ironing. Phrases to watch for include: stain-soil release, wrinkle-release, treated for greater absorbency, no fade, shrinkage control. A 50/50 blend of cotton and polyester provides the best features of both.

• Garments should be easy to put on and take off, with snap crotches, lap shoulders, full-length covered zipers, shoulder straps and padded, elasticized back waists.

• BUILT-IN GROWTH features help stretch dollars. Choose two-way stretch fabrics, wrap around or snap T-shirts with adjustable tapes, extra long sleeves and legs with turn-back cuffs, drawstring gowns and adjustable shoulder straps on overalls.

• Choose items that aren't too bulky; such clothing restricts arm and leg movements and may be too warm.

• If you plan on a second baby, select clothes that will last. Buy all-season clothes and unisex garments in colors, prints and styles that work for boys and girls.

• Baby T-shirts come in three styles. The wraparound type offers comfortable room for growth. With over-the-head shirts, look for lap shoulders or shoulder snaps for roominess. In side-snap styles, you'll want adjustable tapes to allow for growth.

• Drawstring nightgowns are warm and accommodate growth, and you can always remove the drawstring as baby gets longer. Kimonos allow the fastest access for frequent diaper changes. Footed sleepers or stretchies are best made of heavy stretch-knit terry and should snap from neck to toe. Some have cuffs that convert to protective mitts.

• NIGHTWEAR MUST meet fire-resistance standards, but that doesn't mean it's fireproof — only that it will burn more slowly and extinguish once the source of flame is removed. Certain all-cotton blends and some synthetics are "naturally" or "inherently" flame-resistant. Others are treated with chemicals. If you prefer not to put your baby in chemical-treated sleepwear, look for items marked "inherently flame-resistant." For cool-weather arrivals, you may want a hooded, zip-up bag with arms — a bunting — or a zip-up pram suit.

THE FINAL AND perhaps most pressing clothing choice to face is "the diaper dilemma." Experts estimate that by the time you have successfully toilet-trained your little one, you can expect to change some 6,600 diapers. Thus, the decision on whether to opt for cloth diapers, disposables or a diaper service is no small matter. All have advantages and disadvantages.

Some three-quarters of the diapers changed each day in the U.S. are disposables, constituting a $1.7 billion annual business.

Some critics, however, point out that cotton diapers are softer and reduce the chance of diaper rash and that the elastic on disposable diapers leave marks around legs (without elastic, they leak). In addition to being expensive, disposables are not biodegradable.

A diaper service may be the answer, especially during the first few months, when parents are frazzled enough and baby is going through 100 diapers every week. If you opt for a service, remember to arrange for it before your baby is born.

DEAR ABBY

Smokey winter eased by deluge of hints

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You published a letter from "Dreading Winter," whose problem was her next-door neighbors. It seems that these neighbors decided to heat their house with wood, and the smell of wood burning 24 hours a day, all winter long, made "Dreading's" eyes burn, her nose stuffy and her sinuses hurt. She said she even offered her neighbor $500 a winter not to burn wood, but she was turned down. "Dreading" says she's lived in her house for 25 years and can't afford to move.

You asked your readers for suggestions, so here's mine: I don't know the law in the state where "Dreading" resides, but the state of Georgia provides for an action against maintaining a private nuisance.

If "Dreading" can afford to offer her neighbor $500 a winter to heat her house, I'll bet she could find a hungry young lawyer who would handle the case. — ROSWELL, GA., ATTORNEY

DEAR ATTORNEY: Why discriminate against well-fed old lawyers? Read on for other suggestions from contributing readers:

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to bring "Dreading Winter" into the 21st century of wood burning: Buy your neighbor a catalytic add-on, which would reduce the smoke by 80 percent. Or better yet, convince your neighbor to install a wood chip gasifier on an existing oil furnace. I heat an 11-room, 100-year-old home to 74 degrees on 15 tons of green 35 percent MC chips costing $360 per year, which produces no smoke or creosote. — N.W. HUDSON, MONTPELIER, VT.

DEAR ABBY: Tell "Dreading Winter" to soak a towel in water, swish it around the room, and watch how quickly the smoke disappears! One can also dispel smoke and other disagreeable odors by leaving a saucer of vinegar in each room. It works for me and is worth a try. — CHRISTINE D. IN TORRANCE, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: "Dreading Winter" (Seattle Times) has a common problem. I know people whose smoke alarm goes off because of their neighbor's stove!

The state of Oregon passed some stringent laws regarding stoves. Stove manufacturers are working overtime to comply, and clean-burning stoves will soon be standard everywhere.

I agree with you that good neighbors should respond to your correspondent's complaint. If not, perhaps the local department of environmental quality, or Environmental Protection Agency, might be of help.

Also, chimney sweeping is necessary! — CHIMNEY SWEEPER

DEAR ABBY: Those neighbors who burn wood and stink up their neighbor's house should raise their chimney. The higher it is, the less it will smell up the neighborhood. — OLD-TIMER

DEAR ABBY: If "Dreading Winter" can offer her neighbor $500 to quit burning wood, surely she can afford to buy some caulk and seal her windows properly. — B.J.D., WEST ST. PAUL, MINN.

DEAR ABBY: I may be only 12 years old, but I want to put in my 2 cents about the person who complained because her neighbor's smoke got into her house. If "Dreading Winter" had her house securely shut, the smoke wouldn't get in to bother her. We have neighbors all around us who burn wood to heat their houses, and it doesn't bother us.

If somebody's smoke gets into your house, it's your problem, not theirs. Thanks for listening. — WITH IT IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR ABBY: It would be a lot cheaper to install an air purifier than to move or pay her neighbor $500.

We have one in our home, and when Mount St. Helens blew, we didn't even have to dust our furniture, though we had to turn the lights on in our home at noon. — FLOYD J. SULT

DEAR ABBY: "Dreading Winter" should start a compost pile on her lot, one foot from the boundary line. — HELP FROM SAVANNAH, GA.

DEAR ABBY: Why doesn't "Dreading Winter" plant large hedges between her house and her neighbor's? Or grow aromatic houseplants during the winter? ST. PAUL, MINN.

DEAR ABBY: I suspect that "Dreading Winter" has some kind of allergy. If she hasn't seen an allergist, that's the first thing to do. I am not a doctor, but I am allergic to any and all kinds of smoke. — ITCHING TO HELP

DEAR ABBY: I have two suggestions for "Dreading Winter." Try wearing a surgical mask in the house to filter some of the smoke. Also, try dumping snow down the neighbor's chimney. — VANESSA M., AGE 10

Room additions popular projects

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Americans spend more money annually on room additions than on any other home remodeling projects, according to Payless Cashways.

The firm, a building materials retailer headquartered here, says, "A room addition is a major investment, costing from $20,000 to $40,000 on the average, but it can pay for itself in increased value when the home is eventually sold."

Simplicity with flair styles collection

By ANNE-MARIE SCHIRO
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — There's no doubt about it. Simplicity is the way to go in fashion these days. Even James Galanos, who has been known for piling jewels upon jewels, has given his imprimatur to the pared-down look this fall. Wearing a striped seersucker jacket and white pants, the California-based designer showed his 150-piece collection informally at the Plaza Hotel.

"What I've tried to do," he explained, "is simplify — straight lines, easy, just cut, mostly cut."

He does cut some intricate figures in slim dresses that hug the hips, accentuating them sometimes with draping, sometimes with a seam below the derri'ere. The slimness is balanced with broad shoulders and deep armholes. Skirts are knee length.

But spareness of cut doesn't necessarily mean lack of detail. Long sleeves have gathers at the wrist that give them the casual effect of pushed-up sleeves. Slender woolen chemises have bands of tucking or shirring, often in satin.

Gorbachev visit to France seen as 'charm offensive'

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

PARIS — The four-day visit of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev that begins here Wednesday is being viewed as part of the new Kremlin chief's "charm offensive," as French officials put it, prior to the U.S.-Soviet summit meeting in Geneva in seven weeks.

French officials expect Gorbachev to use his official visit to France to try to turn governments and public opinion in Western Europe against President Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative.

"What the Soviets want most of all is to get us to agree to a statement deploring the militarization of space," remarked an adviser to French President Francois Mitterrand.

French officials said Mitterrand would resist attempts by Gorbachev to drive a wedge between Western Europe and the United States by making a point of France's differences with the Soviet Union on nuclear weapons. Although France is opposed to the deployment of space-based defenses by either superpower, it has supported U.S. research into SDI on the grounds that the Soviets are already developing anti-missile systems of their own.

In an interview with a French newspaper, President Reagan described Gorbachev's visit as a very useful prelude to the Geneva summit. He told the conservative newspaper Le Figaro that it was important that Gorbachev understood that the western alliance remained strong in the face of Soviet attempts to divide it.

Mitterrand is expected to raise the subject of human rights violations in the Soviet Union with Gorbachev even if, by doing so, he runs the risk of an embarrassing counter-accusation about the sinking of a Greenpeace ship by the French secret services.

"Even if the Greenpeace affair had never occurred, Gorbachev would find some pretext to reply to criticism on human rights. That's a risk we have to take," a senior French official said.

According to both Soviet and French officials, Paris was a natural choice for Gorbachev's international debut. The Kremlin has traditionally viewed France as the "most independent" U.S. ally in Western Europe.

By scheduling the Paris visit before the Geneva summit, according to French officials, Gorbachev is seeking to show that Soviet relations with Western Europe do not have to be subordinated to the resumption of a dialogue with the United States. There is some debate here, however, over whether the new "Europeanist" accent in Soviet foreign policy marks a significant change of strategy after years of giving prominence to the U.S.-Soviet relationship.

"All we know is that they are trying hard to give the impression that they have an alternative partner to the United States. But this could just be tactics. It's too early to tell," said a French diplomat.

For Mitterrand, Gorbachev's visit

represents a welcome diversion from the "Greenpeace affair," which has virtually monopolized political debate in France over the last two months. It also gives him a chance to demonstrate that the tough line he took toward the Soviet Union in the first half of his seven-year presidency has paid off.

After his election as president in May 1981, Mitterrrand abandoned what he considered to be the over-conciliatory policy toward the Soviet Union pursued by his right-wing predecessor, Valery Giscard d'Estaing. He suspended the practice of annual Franco-Soviet summits and was an outspoken supporter of the deployment of U.S. cruise and Pershing II missiles in Western Europe to counterbalance the buildup of Soviet SS-20s.

Mitterrand's studied coolness toward the Soviet Union coincided with an upsurge of revulsion in French public opinion against the Kremlin's treatment of dissidents, the invasion of Afghanistan, and the suppression of the independent Solidarity union in Poland. It was also a convenient political counterweight to the presence of four Communist ministers in his Socialist-led coalition government.

According to French officials, the first phase in Mitterrand's policy toward Moscow ended in late 1983 after the West German parliament voted to accept the U.S. missiles. Satisfied that an East-West balance had been restored as a result of this political victory for the West, the French president then started putting out feelers for an improvement in relations with the Soviet Union.

Mitterrand paid his first presidential visit to the Soviet Union in June 1984. Aware of public opinion pressures back home, he startled Soviet leaders by lecturing them on the subject of the dissident Soviet physicist, Andrei Sakharov, at a glittering Kremlin banquet.

"The president wants to show that you can talk to the Soviets calmly but firmly without the sky falling in on your head. When you are firm, you can also have a dialogue that is interesting," a Mitterrand aide commented.

Homes being made for orphans

By RICHARD BEENE
Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

MEXICO CITY — Leticia speaks with the soft innocence of a 6-year-old, but her eyes have seen death in its ugliest form.

When she talks, perched on the lap of a social worker at the Casa Hogar para Ninas (Home for Girls) in southern Mexico City, she plays with the ears of a fluffy stuffed rabbit and stares toward the floor.

"Do you remember what happened to your mother?" she is asked.

"She is dead. I saw her dead," Leticia answers.

"And your father, what happened to him?"

"He left the house."

Leticia is just one of a growing number of child victims of the two devastating earthquakes that hit Mexico City 12 days ago. Although government officials list only 25 orphaned or displaced children from the quakes, they fear there may be many more still hospitalized or staying with relatives.

Part of the problem in determining the number of orphaned children is the vast network of family so important to the Mexican people. Many children whose parents were killed, officials said, probably were quickly taken in by relatives and will never be known to authorities.

AP Laserphoto

Alajendra Pachecko Hernandez, 5, holds a doll — the only thing she managed to save when the earthquake demolished her home more than a week ago.

At Casa Hogar, a complex of 12 buildings that normally houses orphaned or mistreated children, there are now 20 children over age 5 who are separated from their families because of the quakes.

Five younger children, including one who was believed to have been born Sept. 19, the day of the first earthquake, have been placed at other government institutions.

There is hope that some, such as 12-year-old Fidelia, will soon be reunited with their families.

Fidelia, clothed in a bright green and gold native Indian dress and nervously fingering a small wooden crucifix, remembers only that she was at the downtown market with her aunt and uncle when the ground shook and buildings began to fall.

She was taken to a hospital by her uncle, who has not been seen since. But she is lucky. Her parents, she said, had stayed behind at their small town in Michoacan and were not in Mexico City when the quakes hit.

They are believed to be alive, and social workers hope to reunite Fidelia with her parents soon.

The situation of pigtailed Leticia, who remembers only that she lived in the center of town in a "big building, on a lower level" and was rescued by a police officer, is not as clear. In the confusion after the killer quakes, it is not certain if her father, brother or sister are alive.

"We don't know if her father was injured or is recuperating somewhere," Graciela Zubiral, the home's director, said. "The whole situation has been so catastrophic, traumatic that we are just beginning to realize the scope of the problem. The children are very disoriented."

Leticia arrived at the orphanage Monday after being released from a hospital for treatment of minor injuries. Dried blood was clotted on her left ear, and one arm was scratched and bruised as if the youngster fell off a bicycle.

Otherwise she appeared in perfect health. The home has provided her with new red and white overalls, a red T-shirt, shoes and the stuffed rabbit.

After word of Leticia and the other homeless children appeared in the Mexican press, the government was flooded with calls from people wanting to adopt the youngsters.

"We have had about 100 inquiries here, either people calling or coming here asking about adoption," Zubiral said. "I think this is motivated by this situation we are all living in: this solidarity we feel."

Mexicans come to countrymen's aid

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A fashion model, a student and a "street kid" organize shelter for hundreds of homeless people. A taxi driver gives a free ride to a family that has lost everything, and a woman offers to share her limited water supply.

A powerful sense of unity has emerged from the tragedy of Mexico's killer earthquakes. Mexicans have extend their hands to help each other recover.

"We are a generous people. We like to come together and help each other in difficult times," said presidential spokesman Manuel Alonso.

Mexican "fraternidad," or brotherhood, has been praised extensively by politicians since the Sept. 19-20 earthquakes shook this metropolis of 18 million people, killing more than 4,500.

A walk in the streets of the capital reveals scores of examples.

In one neighborhood dotted with piles of twisted metal and broken bricks, a grey-haired woman with a dazed expression walks with her hand extended as if in a trance.

A vendor cries "Mamacita" — 'Little mother' — and hands her a sandwich, perhaps the first food she has had in days.

Nearby, a taxi driver pulls up in a cloud of dust alongside a forlorn-looking family and tells them he will give them a free ride. "The duty now is to the living," he says softly to a reporter.

A woman with some running water sees a neighbor standing in line with a plastic bucket. Without hesitation, she motions to the needy woman to come to her home and share whatever there is.

Another woman, told that rescue workers had been given only sandwiches and soft drinks for days, organizes a volunteer brigade that whisks hot hotel-prepared meals to more than 300 workers.

Claudio, a fashion model, Julio, a student and Ricardo, who calls himself a "street kid," organize a makeshift camp in a park near the devastated Roma neighborhood, stretching plastic tarps to shelter scores of homeless.

Residents less affected by the quakes come by daily to watch children and distribute food and medicine.

Ricardo, while criticizing the lack of government help, boasts, "The people provide everything."

Mexican pride flared in the adversity.

"None of you foreigners have ever seen the kind of humanity and unity that we have here," says Jorge Lopez Covarrubias, a vendor who has spent the past two weeks traveling through the city dispensing soft drinks for free. "We Mexicans can survive anything."

Perhaps the most dramatic examples of generosity were found at dozens of collapsed buildings, where volunteers slid gingerly through narrow tunnels, risking their lives to find survivors.

Even after foreign rescue teams withdrew, Mexican volunteers continued the search at some sites, ignoring the tiny odds of finding survivors.

"We know there are people still alive in there," said Aida Briseno, who came to the rubble of the 12-story Juarez Hospital to search for her entrapped brother.

The spirit of help has come home to most earthquake survivors in the simplest way — a hug. In this normally bustling city of overcrowded slums, crime and bustle, people have taken time for one another again, much as they used to do in the country villages many came from.

The most frequent form of earthquake relief is simply one person consoling another who has seen too much, felt too much and can no longer cope with the reality of battered buildings and crushed bodies.

Names of Americans killed in quakes released

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The U.S. Embassy released this list Monday of nine Americans known to have died in the two earthquakes that struck Mexico City on Sept. 19 and 20:

- Mary Elizabeth Vallejo, a longtime resident of Mexico from Cozad, Neb., and her children, Ilse Anne and Alonso.
- Georgina M. Yunez of San Antonio, Texas. Embassy spokesman said her 10-month-old son also was killed, but had not been registered at the embassy as a U.S. citizen.
- Bruce Sloan of Newmarket, N.H.
- Ivan and Iraida Ducus of Puerto Rico.
- Joyce Albertha Moguel of New York, N.Y.
- Emery Takacs of Huntington Beach, Calif.

Spokesman Vince Hovanec said the embassy had a list of Americans presumed to have been in one of six Mexico City hotels that collapsed in the quakes, but their names were being withheld until their status was confirmed.

He said the embassy had no reports of hospitalized American citizens.

The names of the 24 missing people come from relatives in the United States or Mexico, or from survivors who were in the hotels, Hovanec said.

He said embassy and consular personnel had checked with hospitals, morgues and shelters within a 100-mile radius of Mexico City.

Negotiations stall with alleged kidnappers of Duarte's daughter

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Negotiations with the kidnappers of President Jose Napoleon Duarte's daughter have not progressed since a radio contact last week, a government spokesman said Monday.

"They are stalled. There have been no conversations, or rather there has been no interchange with them. A message was sent to them Friday but there has been no answer," Julio Adolfo Rey Prendes told reporters. He is minister of culture and information, and Duarte's closest adviser.

Gunmen seized Ines Guadalupe Duarte Duran, 35, and a friend, Ana Cecilia Villeda Sosa, 23, as they arrived for classes Sept. 10 at a private college. One bodyguard was killed and another was wounded.

Sources within the government say a group calling itself the Pedro Pablo Castillo Front has claimed responsibility, demanding the release of 34 leftist rebels from prison.

Official sources claim the government does not have custody of all those on the list.

The alleged kidnappers are communicating via two walkie-talkie radios delivered at their request through the International Red Cross. The last radio contact was Wednesday.

The umbrella group for El Salvador's five armies of leftist guerrillas, the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, has acknowledged via its clandestine Radio Venceremos that the Castillo group is a member. The front, known as the FMLN, has not said whether the kidnappers were acting under its orders.

Rey Prendes said: "The silence of the FMLN indicates that they are the kidnappers. We are certain of FMLN responsibility."

Duarte has appointed a three-member commission, including Rey Prendes, to handle negotiations for Mrs. Duarte Duran's release.

Midland Reporter-Telegram

PERMIAN BASIN PETROLEUM INDUSTRY:

Pioneers of the Permian Basin will be honored this Centennial year on the weekend of October 26th through 28th.

Friday, October 25th, the Midland Reporter-Telegram will publish a special edition to recognize these Centennial Pioneers.

Oil pioneers from throughout the industry will attend this meeting, and each year the Reporter-Telegram's special edition is an informative part of this "meeting of the giants".

You and your business can be a part of the celebration honoring these pioneers with an appropriate advertising message in this edition.

We will offer our daily earned rate for this special edition. The advertising department will be happy to work with you or your agency in any way necessary to prepare a layout and copy.

Thank you in advance for your consideration and support of this special Petroleum Pioneer Edition.

China's foreign minister calls for halt to arms race

New York Times News Service

UNITED NATIONS — In a rebuke to both the Soviet Union and the United States, China's foreign minister called on Monday for both countries to halt the arms race in outer space immediately.

An international treaty on the "complete prohibition and destruction of outer-space weaponry should be concluded as soon as possible," he said.

The foreign minister, Wu Xueqian, told the 40th General Assembly that "outer space belongs to all mankind and ought to be used for peaceful purposes for the benefit of all."

He expressed the hope that arms-control talks between the United States and the Soviet Union will reach a practical and effective agreement without prejudice to third countries.

"Of course," he said, "it would be unrealistic to pin our hope for peace only on their talks."

Wu also made these points.

• He called on all nuclear powers to pledge not to be the first to use nuclear weapons. He said they should then conclude an international treaty banning the use of nuclear weapons.

• He said NATO and the Warsaw Pact nations should reach an agreement as soon as possible on drastically reducing their conventional armaments.

• He called on the 40-nation conference on disarmament in Geneva to complete negotiations speedily on a treaty to ban production, deployment and use of chemical weapons.

In other speeches before the General Assembly on Monday, President Jaime Lusinchi of Venezuela welcomed the recent meeting of top economic officials of the United States and four other countries as signaling a possible shift in the perception of large economic powers toward the global economic situation.

In a speech largely concerned with the Latin debt crisis, Lusinchi acknowledged that a meeting of finance minsters and Central Bank heads from the United States, Britain, Japan, France, and West Germany on Sept. 22 yielded nothing concrete, but said the meeting was part of the much-needed move to coordinate economic policies.

"The mere timid acknowledgement of the need to resist protectionist pressures," he said, "the possibility of opening markets to our exports and a certain understanding in matters concerning reasonable interest rates and the granting of financing in suitable quantity and conditions could signify that we are witnessing a change in the perception of the great powers. The developing world has been waiting for a long time for the materialization of the necessary dialogue."

In a declaration after their secret meeting, the finance officials said they were prepared to work in concert to bring the dollar down and vowed to fight protectionism.

U.N. budget panel looks at finances

UNITED NATIONS (NYT) — The General Assembly budget committee began looking at financial assessments on Monday for U.N. members amid uncertainty about a possible U.S. cut in contributions.

The committee recommends that for 1986-88, the United States continue as the largest contributor, paying 25 percent of the total budget. The 78 poorest countries would pay the minimum of one-hundreth of 1 percent.

Congress has enacted a bill stipulating that unless voting weighted according to contributions was introduced on U.N. budget matters next year, the United States would pay no more than 20 percent. Weighted voting would give the three largest Western contributors, the United States, West Germany, and France, together with Japan, slightly more than 50 percent of the vote, instead of the current one nation, one vote.

Lusinchi, echoing earlier remarks by other Latin American leaders last week, warned that growth in protectionism would cripple efforts to repay Latin America's $370 billion regional debt.

Sudan's foreign minister, Ibrahim Taha Ayoub, also focused on the debt problem on his continent.

Referring to the African debt, Ayoub said: "We will, of course, honor our obligations to repay these debts, but it is becoming glaringly evident that we cannot continue to service and repay these debts and succeeed at the same time in providing our people with the minimum requirements of survival."

Underlining what previous speakers from the developing world have said so far in the general debate, he called for a "creative and new solution," including rescheduling over longer perods, longer grace periods, and restructuring of debts with easier terms.

Thiland's premier, Gen. Prem Tinsulanonda, said in his address that General Assembly resolutions condemning Vietnam for its continued occupation of Cambodia "is proof that the plight of the Kampuchean people speaks more loudly than any cunning maneuver or confusing tactic on the part of the aggressor."

He added, however, that ultimately "the root cause of the problem, namely the illegal Vietnamese occupation of Kampuchea, must be resolved, so as to enable the Kampuchean people to exercise their basic right of self-determination."

WORLD IN BRIEF

Afghan rebels say American reporter killed in jeep accident

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Afghan rebels said Monday that a U.S. journalist, Charles Thornton, was killed in Afghanistan when the jeep in which he was riding was destroyed by a land mine on Sept. 25.

The Arizona Republic said Monday night that Thornton, 50, of Phoenix, was a medical reporter for the paper, on assignment in Pakistan, with photographer Peter Schlueter, 29, also of Phoenix.

The rebel sources said three other foreigners were wounded in the explosion. They idenfified them as another American journalist, Peter Schlachter, and two doctors, John Maugnum and Judd Jensen. They said they did not know the doctors' nationalities or have any further information about the victims.

U.S. State Department spokesman Bruce Ammerman said in Washington, D.C. that he had no information about such an incident.

He is survived by his wife, Shelby, and two sons, Mark, 14, and Charles, Jr., 19.

Bleacher collapse investigated

Copley News Service

TECATE, Mexico — Mexican officials here believe the Tecate bullring grandstands collapsed Sunday, injuring more than 200, because some spectators entering the stadium removed key supports so they could take a shortcut underneath the steel and wood seats.

"We think some people came through the main entrance and instead of walking around to the main stairway like they should have done, went below, and pushed against the support bars to get through," Tecate Fire Chief Luis Villavicencio Cordova said yesterday.

The grandstands slowly tumbled under the weight of at least 1,500 spectators watching a bullfight, the final event of this border town's two-day celebration called the Pamplonada.

While an investigation continued Monday, Mexican officials said they based their preliminary conclusion of the cause on eyewitness accounts and on physical evidence found at the scene.

There were reports of youths being spotted underneath the stadium Sunday before the collapse, but officials have not identified them.

Prof wants station prosecuted

LONDON, Ontario (AP) — Charging that CJBK-AM London has been making fun of Latin Americans and Mexicans in its Manuel Cruz for Mayor campaign, a local law professor wants the radio station prosecuted in the same manner as Jim Keegstra.

Offended by the station's advertisements of a man who presents himself as a "comic opera Mexican speaking in a Speedy Gonzales-type of accent," Rob Martin, a member of the University of Western Ontario's law faculty, said Monday that he has filed complaints with the Ontario Attorney General's office and the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission.

He has asked the Attorney General's office to explore the possibility of prosecuting under the same section of the Criminal Code that was used in the Keegstra trial. Keegstra, an Alberta school teacher, was found guilty of wilfully promoting hatred against an identifiable group — in Keegstra's case, the Jews.

The image the station presents through Cruz is that Mexicans "are congenital idiots," said Martin.

BUYERS GUIDE

IMPORTANT: Spoken promises are difficult to enforce. Ask the dealer to put all promises in writing. Keep this form.

WARRANTIES FOR THIS VEHICLE:

☐ AS IS—NO WARRANTY

YOU WILL PAY ALL COSTS FOR ANY REPAIRS. The dealer assumes no responsibility for any repairs regardless of any oral statements about the vehicle.

☒ WARRANTY

☐ FULL ☒ LIMITED WARRANTY: The dealer will pay 100 % of the labor and 100 % of the parts for the covered systems that fail during the warranty period. Ask the dealer for a copy of the warranty document for a full explanation of warranty coverage, exclusions, and the dealer's repair obligations. Under state law, "implied warranties" may give you even more rights.

SYSTEMS COVERED: Engine, Cylinder Block and All Internal Parts, Cylinder Head, Intake Manifold, Valve Cover, Water Pump, Transmission Case and All Internal Parts, Water Pump, Transmission Case and All Internal Parts, Torque Converter, Drive Plate, Fuel Pump, Fuel Pump Drive Gear, Flywheel, Rear Main Seal, Front Wheel Drive Unit (Transaxle), Transfer Case (4 Wheel Drive), Front Drive Axle (4 Wheel Drive), Rear Axle Assembly, Universal Joints, Drive Shaft, Wheel Bearings, Steering Gear, Power Steering Pump, Steering Column, Steering Linkage, Power Brake Booster, Master Cylinder, Brake Calipers, Wheel Cylinders, Hydraulic Lines, Electronic Control Unit, Vacuum Control Unit, Vacuum Pump, Vacuum Lines, Electronic Speed Control Unit, Speed Control Servo, Speed Control Switch.

DURATION: All listed components are covered for 3 Months from the original date of sale or lease, from the vehicle's odometer reading at the time of vehicle sale, whichever occurs first. Ask the dealer for a copy of the warranty document for a full explanation of warranty coverage, exclusions, and the dealer's repair obligations. Under state law, "implied warranties" may give you even more rights.

SERVICE CONTRACT: A service contract is available at an extra charge on this vehicle. Ask for details as to coverage, deductible, price, and exclusions. If you buy a service contract within 90 days of the time of sale, state law "implied warranties" may give you additional rights.

PRE-PURCHASE INSPECTION: ASK THE DEALER IF YOU MAY HAVE THIS VEHICLE INSPECTED BY YOUR MECHANIC EITHER ON OR OFF THE LOT.

SEE THE BACK OF THIS FORM for important additional information, including a list of some major defects that may occur in used motor vehicles.
