Q. I am a World War II veteran and would like to know if VA will pay my doctor if I go to him for an examination to determine whether I need hospital treatment or domiciliary care?

A. The Government will pay the cost of examinations by a private physician only if Veterans Administration has given the physician prior authority for such examination.

Q. I have purchased my home without a GI loan. May I secure a guaranteed loan to buy furniture?

A. No.

Q. I am enrolling under the GI Bill in a college that collects tuition in advance. There is a chance that I will be forced to drop out before the end of the semester. Must I refund any money to VA?

A. You must refund the tuition that VA paid for the time you did not attend, or lose the training time covered by these payments.

Q. Is it true that I no longer can reinstate my lapsed National Service Life Insurance policy?

A. No. You still can reinstate your policy on a "contestable health basis" within three months from the date of lapse. If your policy has been lapsed for more than three months, you will be required to pass a physical examination to reinstate. No monetary premiums must be paid.

A SMALL HOUSE that seems much larger by virtue of economy in its planning. This design, W-504, by Bertram A. Weber, architect, 221 No. LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill., covers an area of only 875 square feet and calls for 16,000 cubic feet of construction. A basement provides for laundry, heater room and play room. The house can be built first and porch and garage can be added when budget allows.

Texas U. Engineers Discover New Building Material That's Cheaper

AUSTIN, Texas—That new house you're planning to build may be cheaper because of research by University of Texas civil engineers.

Working under a $15,000 U. S. Commerce Department Research grant, J. Nellis Thompson and W. D. Ramey of the Materials Testing Laboratory have worked out a design for floors and roofs, using tile that is cheaper than either wood or concrete.

"Joistile," as the particular type tile is termed, is one of the most revolutionary developments in the structural tile field Thompson believes.

The tile is not the colorful type used in bathrooms and kitchens, but is heavy yellow and red tile in sectioned blocks that fit together like pieces of a jig saw puzzle. The contractor prefabricates a beam by laying tile blocks in a row and pouring concrete mortar in the center, containing reinforcing steel.

The beams are fitted together with spacer tile and then concrete is poured over them in a layer several inches thick. No concrete forms are necessary and the contractor and thus the buyer save time and money.

Ochiltree county veterans are served by county service officer Tom Davis, whose office is in the courthouse annex. The daytime phone number is 36 and at night or in an emergency, the phone number is 487. Veterans who need assistance in any way are urged to make use of the services provided by the county service officer.

Prior notice from the Veterans Administration will be sent to veterans whose National Service Life Insurance term policies will start expiring on or after Oct. 8, 1948.

The notice will be sent two months before the expiration date of the original policies. This will give the veterans time to convert their term insurance to a permanent SSIL plan or renew their term insurance for an additional five-year period. Renewals may be made without a physical examination, but at a higher premium rate based on the veterans' attained age at the time of renewal.

VA stressed the fact that veterans who plan to renew their term insurance should submit their renewal application, plus a premium payment, prior to the expiration date of the original term policy.

More than a million and a half veterans were in training under the provisions of the GI Bill on September 1, 1948. VA reported, over half—$71,000—were studying in schools and colleges, with 267,000 enrolled for institutional on-farm training and 414,000 taking training on-the-job.

"Encouraging progress," especially in the development of new methods of diagnosis, is revealed in first reports from doctors working with the Veterans Administration's radio isotope research program.

VA revealed that leukemia patients are now being treated with radio-phosphorus in most of the VA hospitals having radio-isotope units. Radio-iodine is being employed to treat some thyroid diseases.

The gun had been put out of action by the Royal Engineers when the Japanese fought their way into Singapore in 1942. It had to be removed because it obstructed the new airfield runway. The Japanese had started to cut the gun up. They got 100 tons of scrap from it. Working on it with automatic portable burners, workers recently took a month and salvaged 200 tons more of metal.

WHAT IT MEANS: Showing The U. S. Flag

By JAMES J. STREIBER

WASHINGTON — For the first time in history the United States is "showing the flag" with warplanes instead of warships. Nine B-29 superfortresses are in England, ready to show Europe mass formations they didn't see during the war. Two more have just swung around the globe, making a test of landing facilities which conceivably could be called upon to handle much larger numbers. (Three started the flight but one crashed into the Gulf of Aden.) A squadron of jet fighters also is in England after crossing the Atlantic under its own power, with 75 more being sent by carrier to be based overseas.

America has been sending planes on goodwill missions for many years. One of the most famous was a circuit of South America in 1927. But the recent quick trip of 60 Superfortresses to England was hardly a "goodwill" mission. The Air Force let it be known that the planes flew with loaded guns.

The United States must solve some tough problems if it is to "show the flag" with armed bombers on a large scale. The flight to England was simple. It is a friendly country with ample airfields, largely built at our expense during the war and equipped to handle American planes. But airplanes cannot hope to duplicate the reach of the warship unless based on a carrier.

The reasons are simple: Aircraft must land, refuel and be serviced after a relatively short distance. Accepted international law requires permission of a country before flying into its airspace, particularly with respect to government-owned planes. By contrast, warships can steam almost indefinitely without dependence upon local land facilities. They require permission to enter a foreign harbor, but tradition calls for granting permission even when relations are strained.

Some military observers, noting the continuous use of naval forces in European waters in the past year or two, say that such showing of American might has been an important contribution to political stabilization in western Europe and countries bordering the Mediterranean. Naval men feel that the warship is a more effective display of strength than aircraft, pointing out that the airplane is either a rather small object sitting on the ground, or a distant, swiftly moving object without emphasis on nationality.

But to millions in Europe who saw the slow and relatively small B-17s and B-24s during the war, the slender winged beauty of the B-29, with deep and impressive roar, is certain to be impressive. The small flight around the world is not unlikely to reveal a situation such as that encountered by the fleet of 16 battleships which circled the globe as a power demonstration in 1908. That fleet demonstrated a serious lack of auxiliary vessels and of facilities overseas. Naval officers decided that it showed a lack also of merchant vessels. The American ships had to buy British coal during the cruise.

The Navy has remedied that. Now it is able to cruise for months without touching shore, receiving every type of supply from its "train." The system was thoroughly proved in the war against Japan.

Filipino Vets Try Pioneering

MANILA (AP)—Filipino veterans who served with the American Army are being sent to the almost untouched wilderness of Mindanao island under U. S. Veterans Administration auspices to carve out new lives for themselves in the jungle.

The VA announced that the first group of 24 ex-soldiers left in mid July from Manila to begin on-the-farm training. The VA will provide subsistence allowances. The Philippines is giving the soldiers homesteads. It was a pioneer undertaking.

Brig. Gen. R. B. Lovett, VA local manager said: "It will be necessary for them to build houses and roads and clear land to establish their community. They are taking farm animals, tents, carpenter tools and farm equipment. Many are confidently taking their families."

Another hazard will be provided by the presence in the nearby mountains of a gang of holdout Japanese stragglers who have been reported to have indulged in kidnapping and even some cannibalism.

Babson Discusses the High Cost of Living

ROGER W. BABSON, Editor-in-Chief

BABSON PARK Mass., Oct. 1.—American Public Enemy No. 1 today is inflation; but unfortunately like Enemy No. 2, which is liquor — too many people are temporarily prospering by flitting with these enemies.

People Have More Money
The American people today have more dollars than at any time in our history, nearly $2,000,000,000 — even after taxes have been taken out. That's about two and one half times as much as they had pre-war. There have been tremendous post-war spurts in individual earnings. Per capita income in the United States has increased 130% over 1940 levels. Incidentally, folks in Kansas, the Dakotas, and the great Northwest have had the greatest increases in income.

The trouble is that prices are so much higher, more than twice as high and still going up—that your dollar and mine now buy less than at any time since the post-Revolutionary days of the 1780's. Cheap automobiles and housing, for example, are now out of reach of the average worker. Yet, this bad condition will continue so long as labor leaders and politicians are making money from high prices.

Dollar at New Low

One hundred cents today will buy only forty percent of the food it purchased pre-war. The post-war clothing dollar has declined to approximately fifty percent of its pre-war value. A dollar spent today to keep a roof over your head will buy but eighty-nine cents worth of pre-war rentals, while housing is only about sixty cents worth of pre-war value. The dollar, when you consider its all-around purchasing power, in terms of radios, cars, refrigerators, butter, milk, bread, suits, and shoes, will buy only about half the things it bought in 1940! Inflation is our major national headache today — our Public Enemy No. 1.

The picture today is much the same as it was after the last war when the dollar was worth only fifty cents in terms of the goods and services it would buy. A study of business cycles shows that inflation follows wars. This is usually characterized by cheap money and a business boom. But the business boom usually burns itself out. So prepare yourself. A day of reckoning will as surely follow as does night the day.

Stop the Boom!
The President and our Congress have offered sure-cures to end our present inflationary spiral. I know of no time in our history where a major price rise was ever halted by politics. High prices are the result of a shortage of goods and a surplus of money — and as I recently explained — of various laws which Roosevelt had passed to force higher prices. Since 1940-41 the supply of money has outrun the supply of goods. People have needed or wanted things short on supply and have had the money, for the first time, to buy them. As buyers we have bid against one another for available goods. Hence, prices have soared. There are three fundamental things which we can do to help stop this inflationary spiral. If high prices and inflation are the result of (1) a shortage of goods and (2) a surplus of money and (3) New Deal Legislation, then we should (1) increase our productivity along all fronts, (2) wait awhile for buying what we can now get along without, and (3) have Congress repeal the crazy laws it passed in 1932-34. Increased production has already broken the price rise in some commodities. A supply exceeding demand has already shown up along some manufacturing lines. Shortages still exist along such lines as steel and autos. But given time a greater balance in our economy will result.

Let Us Use Religion
Tinkering with natural economic laws and with politics will cure neither inflation nor deflation. Let's buy those things which are in full supply and encourage our fellow workers to produce to capacity. In other words, let us use some self-control and religion in buying and producing. This could well mean the difference between a "bust" and continued prosperity.

J.A.'s Not So Dumb; He Sees Through Russians

(The Wolf Creek Philosopher may make Russia mad if he keeps up such letters. However, we doubt if any Russian will ever read them.)

Dear editor:

I have been referred to occasionally by people who maybe ought to know as being dumb and ignorant and I don't take the trouble to deny it as arguing takes up a lot of time and effort that could be spent relaxing and besides it might be true, but if I am dumb, I wish to say I am not by myself.

I noticed in a copy of a Sunday newspaper which turned up out here Monday mornin where the Russian spokesman, Vishinsky, come out with a proposal before the United Nations meeting for everybody to reduce their land, sea and air forces by a third, and for the United States to get rid of the atomic bomb.

Of course, in one way, Vishinsky ain't so dumb. If my wife held the only skillet in the house in her hand and was between me and the door and I was wantin' to get in to town, I'd be in favor of bannin the use of skillets, but where Vishinsky fails flat is in believin anybody is gonna take advice, especially his own country.

For example, I guess if every nation reduced its armaments by one-third, everybody would be about as safe as they was before, but it wouldn't be no trouble.

ble at all for the Russians to send out a report on how much she has reduced, but anybody who believed her would be dumber than I am, and that's pretty dumb.

Russia reduce armaments is about like this country reduce taxes. It just ain't likely to happen.

Personally, I don't know what to do about the Russian situation, but suppose we'd handle it like we have all the other situations, which is talk about it and do nothing until we're forced to, which generally a few years too late. Which reminds me of the way I fix my house, which talk about how much it needs fixin and do nothing about it until the roof caves in or the back porch falls off, then I have to do something. Which goes to show that while I may be dumb, dumbness ain't limited to the confines of Wolf Creek.

There is a sort of international dumbness that makes me feel comfortable about my own. You feel all right?

Yours faithfully,

J. A.

Jewelry Making School for Disabled Opened at Bonham

BONHAM, Texas, Oct. 5 (AP)—The Bonham county school of jewelry art and silversmithing for disabled persons here is the first of its kind in the South.

He spent 16 years in mission work among the Indians of Ontario. He taught them gem cutting and jewelry making.

The enrollment in the school is small, but because of the highly specialized nature of the work, large classes are not feasible.

The disabled students are taught how to cut cabochons—gems or stones with smooth, curved surfaces. Jewels such as diamonds are also fashioned. Students work with gold, silver, aluminum, brass and copper and are taught plating, replating and engraving. They also learn to recut stones and set them according to customers design.

INTERCEPTED PASS—A Texas Tech pass by back Ernest Hawkins (17) was intercepted by SMU back Davis Moon (not shown), as Hawkins is rushed fast by SMU guard Jack Halliday (73) and end Carl Wallace (80) in the second quarter of the SMU-Texas Tech game in Dallas. SMU won 41-6.

The State Department of Vocational Rehabilitation pays tuition, board and room for the disabled students. They provide equipment and materials, and at the completion of the course—a minimum of six months—the equipment becomes the property of the graduate.

Acquiring skill in transforming raw materials into attractive and unusual jewelry is giving a new start in life to the students, whose handicaps have barred them from other types of work.

Among Perryton folk at the circus were Mr. and Mrs. Mart Wagner, Marlene and Donnie, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tarbox and Danny and Mr. and Mrs. Philo Butler, Jerry Ann and Tommie.

And from where I sit, once you've got both sides—and faced them truthfully, you realize that these differences of opinion are a precious part of what we call Democracy—the right of the individual to vote as he believes, to speak his mind, to choose his own beverage of moderation, whether beer or cider.

Elect Your Own Candidate!

JACK PORTER

He is a business man, not a politician.

Voting the "split" Ticket is legal in Texas. There is no law or regulation which prevents a qualified voter from voting for any candidate of his choice on November 2. In an automobile, a light pressure of the foot will summon tremendous power. If you push it up to 75 miles an hour and hit a pedestrian his body will look worse than if he had fallen off an 18-story building and smacked a concrete pavement.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It didn't take Jimmy Phelan, new head coach of the Los Angeles Dons of the All-America pro Football Conference, long to decide he had quite a ball player in tail-back Glenn Dobbs. Phelan says "Dobbs is the greatest all-around football player I have ever coached or seen." The loop's most valuable player in 1946 with the Brooklyn Dodgers, Dobbs had a poor '47 season because his triple-threat ability was wasted in the T formation. This season the Dons have returned to the single wing.

An obvious conclusion is that our mass murder could be cut almost in half by ruling such drivers off the roads. But such a drastic step isn't necessary, experts say, because special training could make good drivers out of most of them.

Six words, but they're uttered thankfully by thousands of auto drivers every day as they squeeze through a tight spot, a near accident. With the progress of dry cleaning methods Mr. and Mrs. Lester Baumann decided to try Sue — better known as STEAMING SUE.

For the last several weeks Baumanns have been delighted with the compliments received on the finishing of both men's and womens' suit coats and topcoats. Sue does away with that hard shiny press found in garments when sent to average shops.

GABARDINES are especially beautiful! Worsteds, tweeds, flannels too. Removes shine, restores to a soft newness.

CAMERA NEWS

A COOL PROPOSITION for a hot weather feature picture, an example of a shot any amateur might be able to find in his own neighborhood. This picture tells a story.

By AARON EZICKSON

Newsfeatures

Don't pour your wrath on the editor when the postman hands back the package of feature pictures you mailed out with high hopes a week ago.

The rejection indicated no personal animus or inability to determine what is a good picture for publication. The editor simply turned the pictures down because there was something lacking in their appeal—the subjects were trite, the composition was bad or—a common occurrence—the quality was under par (the lighting poor, the prints either over or underexposed).

Here are some pointers to help guide you as a feature picture free-lancer:

First, acquaint yourself with the type of material a particular syndicate, magazine or newspaper is using.

It may want a good single feature picture with universal appeal. Listed in that category, are the animal, the baby, the pretty girl, the sparkling scene. I may want a series of pictures which tell an interesting story. Or it may want pictures on specialized subjects.

And don't get the mistaken idea that your immediate neighborhood is barren of material. It's all around you, as long as people move and the fields and streams are stirring with life. Everywhere there are characters and types that fit well into pictures. The farmer at his plow, the kid splashing in the brook, the old town barber, grandma making her umpty-umpty quilt, the stray cat sneaking up on the milk bottle or Rover carrying the newspaper.

Of course, we assume you know how to use your camera, which doesn't necessarily have to be a $300 variety.

Having taken the picture, learn how to compose your prints; cut out all non-essentials by careful cropping. Use the right papers for printing to match the density of your negatives. After you have made your print, detach yourself in the creator and put yourself in the position of the reader looking at a reproduction of it in the newspaper or the magazine. Does it interest you—does it give you a spontaneous feeling of satisfaction?

If it does, then caption the picture adequately and accurately (the editor's pet hate is a poorly written caption—and many a time an excellent picture may help clinch the sale), wrap it well, so the prints don't crack, and affix sufficient postage.

Another very important point, send the negative along with your print, with a notation that you would like to have it returned after use. The syndicate dislikes copying a print for the newspapers; many of the details a reload in copying. The editors

Selective Service Forum

1. Q—What does classification of registrants mean?

A—It means that every man between the ages of 19 and 26 who registers will be classified according to his availability for 21 months of military training.

2. Q—What will be the classes in which registrants will be placed?

A—There will be five basic classes instead of the four used in the 1940 operation. The main classes will be:

Class I—will be composed of those who are available for training immediately. Persons whose services in essential civil occupations are of great importance will be placed in Class II and their call to training will be deferred. Those with dependents (wife, children, etc.) may be placed in Class III, and deferred on grounds of dependency. Certain individuals will be placed in Class IV when their services are undesirable on moral, physical, or other grounds or because the law defers them (ministers, etc.). Class V is intended to provide a class for all men who register at the age of 25 and who reach 26 before induction.

3. Q—How will this classification be made?

A—The local boards will classify all registrants on the basis of detailed questionnaires, interviews with registrants, and other information gained through private research.

4. Q—Will all registrants be placed in Class I unless additional facts prove that they should receive a different classification?

A—Yes. If a registrant does not claim a deferment, for example, he will automatically go into Class I. If he fails to fill out his questionnaire, he will be placed in the same class. The only way to get out of Class I is to prove the right to a deferment or to be removed as a result of a physical examination which shows the registrant is not suitable for service.

5. Q—Suppose some citizen of the community is not satisfied with the classification given to a registrant. What can he do?

A—In each local board area a also may want to do their own cropping. An original negative has helped clinch many a sale. But don't sit back and twiddle thumbs. Just keep on shooting. You're bound to hit a bulls eye somewhere and sometime.

Baptists Show Good Report at Close Of Year's Activities

The representatives of the First Baptist church of Perryton took with them another excellent report of the year's activities to the annual meeting of the Canadian Baptist Association, held at the Locust Grove church this year.

The Perryton report reveals that church members contributed $63,300.53 during the fiscal year ending August 31. This was slightly less than the all-time high contribution figure of $69,669.35 last year.

Of this total, $19,387.00 went for mission work, Baptist schools and foreign gifts, and the remainder was used for local church activities.

The church spent $80,000 on the new church building last year and now has church property valued at $175,000.

The present resident membership of the church is now 577, a gain of 76 over last year. There are 92 non-resident members.

Meet the Men Who Guard Uncle Sam's Real Estate

By VERN HAUGLAND

UP Newsfeatures
WASHINGTON — An age-yellowed notation reads:

Night guard, President's house—$20, November 18, 1800."

That was the year the government moved from a Philadelphia to Washington, then a town of 3,210 persons. It was the real beginning of the federal building guards.

The guard unit grew to a World War II peak of 3,357 guards. There are now about 1,900. They form one of the oldest protection corps in the country, although actually records show the federal government employed six men—at salaries up to $300 a year—as early as 1789 "to protect government property and personnel."

The guards—95 percent of them are war veterans—now are a part of the Federal Works Agency. In Washington alone they protect 201 federal buildings in which 192,000 government workers are employed.

Their primary duties are to guard against fire, theft and accidents and to carry out approved safety practices.

Fire loss in the guarded buildings in 1947 was less than $5,000. In 1940 it was only $515. The worst record in recent years was the $12,110 fire loss of 1943-44.

One officer of the organization says "industry's loss, over a similar 60,000,000 square feet of space would run into millions."

In 1947 the detective unit arrested 188 persons and recovered $32,892.50 in government and private property. Cases investigated included: petit larceny 1,170; larceny from the United States, 1,025; grand larceny 514; breaking and entering 24; gambling 37; rifling and tampering with mails 34; indecent actions 30; threats in anonymous letters 14; assault 7; obscene writing (on walls) 8; forgery 6.

In 1924 Congress gave the guards—along with new-style uniforms—authority for the first time to make arrests and to carry firearms. During World War II they took the responsibility of blackout duty and evacuation of air raid shelters in the Military District of Washington.

They also guarded the Office of Scientific Research and Development—responsible for the development of the atomic bomb—the Naval Research Laboratory, Office of Strategic Services, Weather Bureau, British Admiralty, Allied High Command and other offices dealing with plans for guns, tanks, planes and ships.

GUARDS keep fire losses low.

Increase Due in Old Age Assistance

Ochiltree county residents who are receiving aid under the Old Age Assistance and Aid to Dependent Children programs will receive an average increase of about $2.00 per month on October 1, 1948, as a result of recent changes in the Federal Social Security Act.

There is coming into Ochiltree county at present approximately $2,088.00 per month through these two programs. The average old age grant is $33.68 and the average for each child receiving benefits is $12.67.

Starving Squirrels Studied

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—To provide Indiana hunters with more and better squirrels, John M. Allen has been spending nearly all his time for two years studying squirrel ways.

Concentrating on the squirrels in two test areas of southern Indiana he has discovered that hunger is the squirrel's worst enemy. Not only does he starve to death in wholesale lots when his food supply runs low but he delays raising a family. Consequently his brood may starve when he is shot by the hunter. The project is backed by the state and federal governments.

Ted Isn't Perfect—Often

BOSTON (AP)—Ted Williams, probably baseball's foremost hitter, has had only 45 days in which he got as many hits as times at bat—and on only one occasion has he ever collected five hits in a game.

The Boston Red Sox slugger had five perfect days in 1939, his first years in the majors, when he hit .327. In 1940, he hit .344 he had four perfect days. In the 1941 campaign, when he hit .406 he had eight perfect days, but every one was a "one-for-one" session. Because he is walked so often, many of Williams' perfect performances have been of the one-for-one variety.

In 1942, when Ted batted .356 he had five perfect days. After three years in service, Ted came back to hit .342 and had eight perfect days. The same total prevailed last year, when he hit .343.

Rangers Score in Final 50 Seconds to Take Conference Opener from Tulia Hornets, 12-6

The Rangers scored a touchdown in the final 50 seconds of the game to take the Tulia Hornets 12-6 in the opening conference game of district 1-A. The game was tied 6-6 in the opening minutes of the second half, and it looked like a tie game until the Rangers made a last minute surge for the winning touchdown.

This game was a lot like the game a week previous, when the Rangers piling up a lot of yardage, but failing to cross the goal line.

Perryton scored on the second play of the game from scrimmage. Raymond Powell broke thru the Tulia line, and the Rangers scored on the second play, which started by Key. They chalked up three first downs on the drive, and Powell blasted over right guard for the game winning touchdown with less than a minute remaining in the game. Powell's attempt to kick the extra point failed when the ball went wide.

In the statistics department, the Rangers were out front, but their ground gaining efforts stalled when deep in Tulia territory.

For the Rangers, Raymond Powell was the standout on both offense and defense. Jerry Key played what was probably his best game of the season, and on Boatwright recovered. The Hornets then drove to the 5 on six plays, featuring the ball carrying of scabbard Ramsey. Griffith and Ramsey worked the ball to the 2, where Griffith punched it over. Ramsey's attempt to kick the extra point point was blocked.

In the final period, the Rangers started a drive of their own, starting on their 25, and going down to the Tulia 6. This march was stopped when Elliott intercepted a Ranger pass on the 5, and ran it out to the 18. Three plays failed to gain, and Morris kicked.

Powell returned the punt from the 45 to the 25, but a clipping penalty put the Rangers back on the 40.

With time running out, the Rangers unleashed their ground attack, with Powell punching for four and five yard gains, aided by Key. They chalked up three first downs on the drive, and Powell blasted over right guard for the game winning touchdown with less than a minute remaining in the game. Powell's attempt to kick the extra point failed when the ball went wide.

Predictions this week: Perryton over Canadian Tulia over Canyon Hereford over Dumas (Phillips and Dalhart are idle)

We saw the TCU-Arkansas game last Saturday night, and took two Rangers, Don Rogers and Raymond Powell along. They were quite impressed by the jet-propelled play of Arkansas' great back, Clyde Scott.

We meant to mention this last week, but forgot it. Dean Slaughter, who is now playing with the Wentworth Military Academy, ran a punt back 65 yards for a touchdown in their opening game of the season against the Missouri University B team. Punt returning was his specialty on last year's Ranger team, you'll remember. However, we're sorry to relate that Wentworth lost the game, 50-32.

Those who missed the junior high season opener against Canadian missed a treat. Both teams played football with much more finesse and experience than we thought beforehand. Several very good prospects for the Rangers showed up in this Canadian game, among the brighter lights were halfback J. B. Langwell, fullback Don Dietrich, and Laur et Lovett, tackle Frank Dutcher, quarterback Donald Cooper, and the Burkhardt twins at guard.

Tulia's speedy quarterback, Ramsey, turned in the best game for the losers. Boatright and Thomas in the line also starred for the Hornets.

some very sharp broken field running, something the Ranger coaches are sure to notice. Don Dietrich was very cool as a passer, and hit the mark well. His receiver, Lovett, made some very good catches, and knew how to get loose after he caught the ball. None of these boys are peewees, either.

The starting line-up was made up of eighth graders, the ones that will be candidates for the Ranger squad next year. The sixth and seventh graders warmed the bench most of the time, but got to play enough for some good experience, anyway.

Juniors Trounce Canadian 32-6 in Grid Season Opener

The Perryton junior high football team served notice on their opponents this year by sweeping to a 32-6 victory over the highly regarded Canadian juniors at Ranger Field Thursday night. Scoring in every quarter except the third, the local juniors had complete command of the game from the opening whistle.

Their play in the 1948 opener was a far cry from their showing last year, when they fielded the first junior team in recent years. During the 1947 season the juniors failed to win a game. This season is different.

Perryton opened the scoring parade on the opening play. J. B. Langwell, speedy 150-lb. halfback, took the opening kickoff on his 8-yard-line, then swept down the sideline behind good downfield blocking. He got into the clear around the 50, and scampered on across for a 92-yard touchdown. Dietrich attempted a plunge for extra point, but failed to make it.

Again in the first quarter the locals took the ball on their own 38, then powered it down to the Canadian 18, featuring the running of Langwell, Dietrich, and little Gene Devers. After a penalty set them back to the 24, Dietrich rammed through to the 12, then Donald Cooper went thru the center of the line for the second touchdown. A pass, Dietrich to Lovett, racked up the extra point, making the score 13-0.

Perryton's third touchdown came on a pair of passes from Dietrich to Laur Lovett, gangling right end. The first pass carried to the 35 to the Canadian 38. Perryton had gained possession of the ball through a fumble recovery by tackle Frank Dutcher.

Dietrich then fired another pass to Lovett, who took it behind the defending halfback, then eluded several would-be tacklers in his dash across the goal line. Another pass from Dietrich to Lovett for the extra point made the score 19-0 at half-time.

In the second half, Canadian unleashed a passing attack which carried from the Perryton 45 across the goal line. This combination featured the throwing of Hill and the receiving of Estrada, big end. The drive was made in three pass plays, the final one carrying from 20 a cross the goal line. The attempted kick for extra point was low.

Right after this Canadian score, coach Bob Gibson ran his regulars back into the game and they started a march from their own 30. Dietrich, Langwell and Devers racked up three first downs, and with the ball resting on the Canadian 38, Dietrich dropped back and flipped a pass to Lovett which he carried over for another touchdown. Dietrich plunged for the extra point making the score 26-6.

Canadian threatened to score again in the final quarter after Hoover's kick went over the head of safety man Langwell. The kick traveled 58 yards, from the Canadian 34 down to the Perryton 8-yard-line. Perryton lost the ball on the 20 by a fumble, and on the next play Canadian passed down to the 10 for a first down.

The Perryton regulars came back in at this point, and two plays later Langwell intercepted a Canadian pass on the 15, and raced 85 yards for the final Perryton score. Dietrich attempted a plunge for extra point, but failed to make it. This touchdown made the final score 32-6.

Several boys showed up well for Perryton. J. B. Langwell's running was the most spectacular of the night, with the two long touchdowns gallops outstanding. The pass combination of Don Dietrich to Laur Lovett stood out, while the other two backs, Cooper and Devers, performed their chores well. In the line, Frank Dutcher and the Burkhardt twins were outstanding in defense.

Hoover and Hill in the Canadian backfield, and Estrada at end were the stars for their team.

From The SIDELINE

with HAROLD HUDSON

Was another case of marching and down the field, but in scoring territory when the Rangers met Tulia Friday night. We hope the team gets part of their offense worked out soon. And we believe we'll see them in a very comfortable margin, but it is actually as good as assured, as long as they defense leaked on that 30-yard drive which Tulia made in their touchdown, the line the Rangers have been on through the line this week. We hope they don't have any more lapses like that.

Looking from the records, the team should score handily tonight against Canadian. We hope to see the scoring team unimpaired, anyway.

The prediction record last week was four right, two wrong. We missed Phillips over Sham-

To Whom It May Concern:

We are very glad to recommend the Great American Reserve Insurance Company because of their promptness in handling the claims of their policy holders. We have always found this company very cooperative and fair in payment of claims and always ready to close claims as soon as possible even though it be necessary to do so by long distance.

We take the attitude that every family should have a prepaid hospital and surgical plan in a good company making it easier for them to pay their hospital and surgical expenses.

We consider it a privilege to extend services to all Great American policy holders.

Yours very truly,

Fall Months Are Good Time for Catching Colds

AUSTIN, Texas—Sudden seasonal changes in the weather during the fall months often result in chilling, which in turn is usually followed by wide-spread incidence of the common cold. This disease always spreads rapidly because of the fact that very few people can live isolated lives and in any group or crowd of people, coughing, sneezing and spitting will scatter millions of cold germs among susceptible persons.

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, says there are countless ways of spreading a cold other than by coughing, sneezing and spitting. "For instance the Doctor said, 'If a member of your family has a cold and the other members share a common drinking glass with him, you may expect the whole family to pick up the germs he leaves on the glass. Sometimes a person with a cold thoughtlessly touches his mouth or nostrils with his hand, and then shakes hands with another person. That person can, and very likely will, contaminate his own mouth or nostrils with his hand, and the germs are transmitted into his system. A child with a cold may contaminate his toys, and the next child that picks them up and plays with them will certainly obtain the cold germs, along with the toys.'"

Children, as well as adults, who are suffering from a cold should be put to bed, and if complete rest, light food, and plenty of liquids do not improve his condition in a short time, the family physician should be called. Dr. Cox further advised that dressing properly for the weather, sensible eating, plenty of rest, and avoiding persons with colds can be helpful in preventing your own infection. Colds are costly in time, health, and money, the Doctor said, and added, "Prevent them if possible."

Wheat Growers Have Different Choice Nowadays

COLLEGE STATION—Used to be, Texas farmers had this choice—they could grow wheat that gave high yields, or they could grow wheat that had good baking quality. Now they have a different choice. It's a choice between several varieties, all of which have both yields and good baking qualities. E. A. Miller, extension agronomist for the Texas A. & M. College, has pointed out.

The new varieties were developed by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and private plant breeders. Most Texas wheat is used by commercial bakeries, and they demand flour that will make the kind of bread their customers want.

In past years, Texas had a good reputation for growing fine quality wheat that was in demand because it was nearly all of good baking qualities. Then other states began shipping in low quality wheat, and Texas lost its reputation. As a result, northern mills cornered the market on high quality baking wheat and shipped it into Texas. But Texas wheat growers want it the other way around so they can make the money—not the northern mills. And it looks like this is what's going to happen

Temperance Beer Party

LEEDS, Eng. (AP)—J. W. Ford, a director of the local Melbourne brewery, thinks somebody around here "has a kick against beer drinking."

The reason: somebody climbed the brewery's 12-foot wall, topped by a barbed wire, and knocked the bungs from 250 casks of beer. Three thousand gallons, worth $3,600, gurgled down the drain.

Home Ceremony For Miss Chisum, Richard Burke

A pretty ceremony in the home of the bride on Sunday afternoon, September 26, at four o'clock united Miss Marva Jean Chisum, daughter of Mrs. Fred Chisum and the late Mr. Chisum, and Richard Lee Burke of Spearman, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Burke of Spearman.

Ward H. N. Gregg, pastor of the First Christian Church, Guyton, Okla., and a former Perryton pastor, read the double service before a floral setting of pink and white gladioli interspersed with fern and greenery.

Among the nuptial selections played were the traditional wedding marches.

The bride was given in marriage by Gene Replogle, who was radiant in a gown of white slipper satin which featured long sleeves with calla points, long gathered neckline, a girle inlaid which widened at the back to give way to a bustle effect which fell over the full gathered skirt and chapel train. Self covered buttons closed the gown in center back. Her fingertip veil of illusion was scalloped edged and trimmed with seed pearls and the headress from which it fell was of seed pearls.

The bride's only attendant, Miss Clara Louise Davis was the bride's only attendant. She wore a gown of aqua silk marquisette over satin with tiny satin bows trimming both the full skirt and the waist created with low gathered neckline and cap sleeves. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Chas. W. Beard, Pampa, was best man.

Mrs. Chisum, mother of the bride wore black crepe trimmed with black lace, and Mrs. Burke, mother of the bridegroom, was dressed in brown crepe with matching accessories. Both had corsages of white carnations.

At the reception following the ceremony, Mrs. Gene Replogle served the cake and Mrs. Vernon Alexander, Pampa, ladled the punch. The table was lace covered, and the three tiered cake, topped in traditional manner was embellished with dainty pink confection blossoms.

For traveling the bride chose a light grey wool sharkskin suit with black accessories and a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

The couple are at home to their friends at 107 South Cedar, Perryton.

The bride received her education in the Perryton schools. Mr. Burke graduated from Spearman high school and served three years in the army. At present, he is farming near Spearman.

Signing the guest register for the wedding were Mrs. Lottie Tuttle, grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Clyde L. Caruth, aunt of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Beard, Pampa; Vernon T. Alexander, Pampa; Mrs. Mary Hibbs, Miss Louise Davis, and Mrs. A. C. Burke, mother of the bridegroom, Spearman.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton B. Dodson and Wedding Attendants.

Mississippi Girl Wed to Newton B. Dodson

Miss Edwina Montgomery of Clarksdale, Miss., and Newton B. Dodson of Austin were married September 4, in a formal, double ring ceremony in the First Presbyterian Church of Clarksdale.

Dr. C. E. Mount, cousin of the bride, of Cape Girardeau, Mo., read the marriage vows before an altar decorated with sprays of smilax and fern balls interspersed with white tapers in cathedral candelabra.

Mrs. Charles Wesley Merritt, Mobile, Ala., played a program of nuptial music including an original composition by Mrs. Merritt and Alfred Newman, brother-in-law of the bride, Hollywood, Calif.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Montgomery of Clarksdale. She was graduated from Clarksdale high school where she was a member of the Odd club, and the University of Texas where she was a member of Chi Omega sorority. She is a member of the Delta Debutante club.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Dodson of Austin. He attended the Perryton schools where the family resided during his childhood, and graduated from the Austin high school. He served two years in the armed forces and is now a student of the University of Texas as where he is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory slipper satin trimmed with seed pearls and fashioned with a full skirt which extended into a court train. Her veil of French illusion was caught to a coronet of seed pearls. She carried a white prayer book topped with a shower of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Florence Harris of Memphis, Tenn., served as maid of honor and Mrs. Robert Moss Montgomery, also of Memphis, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Shepard W. Hagga Jr., Mrs. Charles Mitchell Boien, Miss Margaret Rust, all of Clarksdale and Miss Patricia Breech of Victoria, Tex. They wore identical frocks of sea green satin designed with off-shoulder necklines and full skirts. Their headresses were of miniature aqua plumes and their bouquets were of American Beauty roses tied with matching satin ribbon.

Walter Gray Jr. of Oklahoma City was best man and ushers were Harvey Lane of Dallas, Reagan Legg of Kaufman, Tex., Robert Ross Montgomery, brother of the bride, Memphis, Tenn., Edward Stitts, Little Rock, Ark., Paul Liebman, San Antonio and John Koffer, Amarillo.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery entertained with a reception at their home. Carrying out the bridal theme of green and white, the reception suite was decorated with arrangements of white gladioli and asters. The bride's table was overlaid with a cloth of imported lace and centered with white gladioli and asters flanked by white tapers in silver candelabra.

After a wedding trip to Lake Geneva, Wisc., the couple is at home at 1806 West 32nd, Austin. For travel the bride chose a brown garbardine suit with touches of beige and harmonizing accessories.

Wallace Party Trying to Make Things Hot for Democrats and Republicans This Fall

The political battles will be fought this year, with no quarter given to either party which has been on the outside for 16 years as it has ever been in its history. Mr. Truman, who has the obvious aura of pessimism that pervades his party, is honestly convinced that he can win, and is obviously determined to seize upon every opportunity that might put the party in an unfavorable position. Some analysis think that the election has risen substantially since his Western tour, a fact which may also be of service to the Democrats, by cutting the spirit of over-confidence which has made many believe the election is in the hands of the Republicans.

From certain points of view, the Progressive Party convention was the most interesting—and it was the most revealing. It was apparently designed to combine the best features of a crusade and a campaign. When vice-presidential candidate Taylor and his family were before the microphones, they were new in the way of events must have been expected. And, while the Republican and Democratic platforms certainly went out on a limb in an attempt to offer something as possible to every group, the Progressives put them to shame. Their platform, as a world peace, promises socialization of basic industry even if it means "progressive" capitalism, pledges the immediate abolition of any and all injustices to minority groups, and so on. It was the longest and most inclusive of the three platforms. It was, however, pretty vague as to how its objectives are to be attained, and at what cost to the people.

It would be folly to deny the fact that Mr. Wallace has many friends and supporters. The people are amused, and all others are revolted. It is perfectly possible that the party will receive between 5,000,000 and 10,000,000 votes this year. In any case, Mr. Wallace is an aggressive and vocal campaigner, and he is playing a great deal of space both here and abroad.

The problem is this: The Progressive Party is unquestionably a hilt to the American communists and their followers. Correspondent after correspondent, including the respected observers of the least hysterical and respected observers of the affairs, have said that Mr. Thomas, the socialist who, incidentally, did an interesting job in getting all three conventions of the party service—has charged publicly that the Communists have obtained control of the party policy committees, and that Mr. Thomas is a class-reactionary who is lined around every corner. Mr. Thomas is a class-reactionary who believes in civil liberties and democratic processes, and he hates the communists and all their kind. He, like Dorothy Thompson and others, thinks Mr. Wallace does great harm to American prestige by his policy of appeasing Russia.

Mr. Wallace had a simple answer to the Berlin crisis—he simply do what the Kremlin wants and withdraw from it. He said nothing about this might do to the morale of the small states which have aligned themselves with the West—and nothing about what might happen to legions of Germans who have cooperated with us in the administration of our interests in Germany.

Equally important, say those who fear the Progressives may undermine our present bipartisan foreign policy, is the fact that the party's platform did not say a single solitary word in opposition to Soviet aggression. Even a very mildly worded plank, which would have put a little of the blame for current world troubles on Russia, was defeated. By contrast, this country was blamed for practically everything that is going on. If the Progressives are to be believed, we are wild imperialists, while the Russians, it seems, are reasonable men whose only wish is a just peace.

This attitude, naturally, is being given a terrific play in the Russian Press. The Kremlin's objective is to make Europe believe that neither the Republicans nor the Democrats represent true American feeling when it comes to foreign affairs, and that Mr. Wallace's stand has overwhelming public backing. President Truman and Governor Dewey are tarred with the same brush, and Mr. Wallace is always presented as a hero.

It remains to be seen how much capital the Russian leaders can make of that, and how much damage, if any, the Progressive Party will do to American standing. But it is a topic of very real importance today.

On the major party side, nothing new has been added. Mr. Truman's speech to the special session of Congress followed his past statements. It has long been obvious that price control will be his biggest domestic issue, and the speech laid heavy emphasis on that. The Republicans, as was to be expected, threw the blame for inflation back into the White House lap. The whole matter will be hammered around in an infinity of detail when the candidates and their seconds take to the country with their appeals for votes.

Popular Chapman Likely To Return to Baseball

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

PHILADELPHIA—Now that the political conventions are gone but not forgotten, the big question around town is: "Who's going to manage the Phillies?" In other National League cities baseball men wonder, "What's going to happen to Ben Chapman?"

William (Ben) Chapman was well liked by almost everyone in baseball. He even got along with Leo Durocher when Chapman, once a stormy petrel himself, pitched for Brooklyn. As a Yankee, Chapman says he never had trouble with Joe McCarthy, as is the common belief. He once had a run in with Joe Cronin, now Boston Red Sox general manager.

Chapman is a keen student of the game. On the road he would hole up in his hotel room for hours and talk about nothing but baseball. And anyone was welcome.

He'd talk about his team and about the other fellow's team. He was always on the ball.

Early in the season his attention was drawn to the Brooklyn box scores. He noticed that Durocher was shifting his players around, using a left-handed batter to face a right-handed pitcher wherever he could. If the opposition pitched a southpaw, Durocher would use all the right-handed hitting power at his command. Then when the foe tossed a righty, the Brooklyn left-handed swingers would go into action. Nobody was sure of a full game, nobody but maybe Pee Wee Reese.

"What's Leo trying to do?" Chapman would ask. "It's all right to play percentage but Leo plays it to the hilt. I still insist if a player is a big leaguer he should be able to hit both right and left handed pitching."

Chapman, a man who loved his family and his players, was of the McCarthy mold. He was a crack Yankee outfielder for six years, hitting .315 in 1931 and leading the American League in stolen bases with 61.

Like Durocher, Chapman, too sat out a full year's suspension. That was in 1943 after he had assaulted an umpire in the fall of 1942 while managing the Richmond Colts in the Piedmont League. But when Chapman came back he mellowed somewhat.

In 57 games in 1944 he hit .303 for Richmond then Brooklyn signed him. He pitched, played some third base and the outfield for the Dodgers.

On June 15, 1945 he was traded to the Phillies and two weeks later replaced Fred Fitzsimmons as Phillie manager.

When Allen (Dusty) Cooke, his roommate and sidekick of 20 years standing, recently replaced him as temporary Phillie manager, it was the first time since 1925 that Chapman was out of a job. You can't count his 1941 release by the Washington Senators because three days later he was signed to a Chicago White Sox contract.

Following the All-Star game in St. Louis where Chapman was told, in effect, "It's time for a change," even the Cardinals were stunned. Terry Moore said they were stunned. "He sure was a fighter," said Harry Brecheen.

Ron Northey, ex-Phillie outfielder, said: "I never got along with Chapman, but he's a great baseball man." Manager Eddie Dyer then stepped up to console his players with these words:

"Don't worry about Chapman. He'll be back. There are too many owners who know what a fighting smart guy he is."

To William Benjamin Chap-

man all these glowing words may sound like an obituary. But Chapman will just sit back, light his pipe and watch the bowling balls roll down his alleys in Birmingham, Ala. He'll be back. Dyer is only one of the baseball men who say so.

Lumberjack Traps More Than 100 Bears

PLEASANT RIDGE PLANTATION, Me.—Lumberjack Dick Rollins' idea of fun is trapping bears.

The husky woods worker has caught more than 100 of the animals in 35 years. He sets his traps during his spare time and shoots the trapped bear with a .35 calibre rifle.

He was credited with six bears in 1947, ten in 1946, and nine in 1945. His largest bear was a 400-pounder, caught last year.

Maine pays a $15 bounty for each bear tagged by a game warden.

In rare cases, hens turn into roosters when they grow old.

THEY'LL REST LATER—Johnny Sain, left, and Warren Spahn will get some rest after the World's Series is over, but right now they're too busy to think about it. They've been pitching out of turn since August 21 and have been the largest single factor in the surprising Boston Braves' winning the National League pennant.

Atomic Vaults Are Small

NEW YORK (AP)—The stuff that makes atomic bombs is, or was, kept in not-very-large vaults writes Daniel Lang in a new book, "Early Tales of the Atomic Age." One such vault was seen in 1946 by Hergert S. Marks, Washington attorney while on a trip to Los Alamos, New Mexico.

"Many people," Lang writes, "would regard as the most important spot in the world a vault used to store the stuff out of which the bomb is made. It is, Marks told me, one of the most carefully guarded and least frequented vaults ever built."

The book also has a section on the search for suitable caves for wartime industry. Another section deals with rocket tests in New Mexico. Many of the Atomic Energy Commissions big problems and human sidelights are told at length.

Berlin Has Become a Testing Ground Between Two Opposed Theories of Life and Government

The importance of Berlin to the Western allies cannot be judged purely on material grounds. We, and England, could administer our part of Germany from within our zone. It is possible that we had never established headquarters in Berlin at all. It is certainly clear that we should have initially insisted on a supply corridor of our own, rather than trusting to generalized verbal agreements with Stalin. But all that is water over the dam, and the unfortunate fact is that American prestige is inextricably tied in with the Berlin controversy. It is now a question of what the Chinese call "face."

On top of that, there is a vital question of moral obligation involved. Should Russia take over Berlin, thousands of prominent anti-Nazi and anti-communist Germans who have sided courageously with the Western world might be liquidated. At best, they would suffer severe privations. And that would certainly weaken the democratic spirit in the other European nations which are on our side.

So Berlin has become a symbol—a testing ground of the strength of two opposed theories of life and government. And that is why we have held firm, and are running the greatest risks in an attempt to hold our ground, and to induce Russia to live up to what we consider clear agreements made during and immediately after the war.

It is all a gamble on both sides. We are gambling that the Russians do not want war and will decide to cooperate. Our diplomatic notes, though couched in strong terms, have been designed to give Russia a chance to pull back without sacrificing her own prestige. The Russians are also gambling that the United States will not let matters reach the point where war is the only solution, and will either withdraw from Berlin, or, more likely, will agree to a new conference on the disposition of Germany on Soviet terms.

The high American authorities both in Berlin and Washington, have acted with calmness and restraint. General Clay has given no ground, but neither has he rattled the saber. Secretary Marshall has said again and again that U. S. policy is based on avoiding "the tragedy of war" with Russia. However, there is always the danger of some "incident" that will stir up great popular anger, lead to a further succession of incidents, and so make the chance of open hostilities imminent.

In that connection, there is one school of people who seem to feel that eventual war with Russia is inevitable, and that we should start it now while we have the A-bomb, and the Communists, presumably have not. Anyone who believes in this theory of so-called "preventive war" would do well to read an article in the July Harper's by Hanson W. Baldwin. Mr. Baldwin is military editor of the New York Times, and has written many books and innumerable brief pieces on military affairs. According to him, the major Russian industrial targets are beyond the range of present-day bombers, unless we go to the extreme of one-way, suicide missions—which would certainly be alien to the American mentality. On top of that, the Russians are known to be heavy producers of modern fighters. And even if we were to overcome these obstacles, he goes on, we could not destroy the Russian army. It would spread throughout Europe. It has been developed to live off the land to a remarkable extent, thus largely eliminating the need for vulnerable supply trains. We could only achieve ultimate victory, he thinks, by an actual invasion of Europe.

What would be the cost of this? In Mr. Baldwin's opinion the money cost would be so great as to imperil our economic system and force repudiation of the national debt. In manpower, the casualties would be tremendous—and we have no reason to expect that our own civilian population would be safe from Russian attack with planes and missiles. Further, the very Europe we are trying to save would be lost. In Mr. Baldwin's words, "the ideals and cultures of Western Civilization probably would be forever destroyed if war came before recovery from past illness was accomplished. Preventive war would, therefore, defeat our own purpose; we could conquer Russia, but you do not defeat ideologies by the sword."

Even if we were victorious, in sum, we would lose, and so would all the rest of the world. Each modern war has brought destruction on a scale for greater than its predecessors. No responsible authority believes that World War III would be any exception to this grim rule.

Mr. Baldwin's conclusion is that we must maintain our strength, face the dangers squarely, and do all that we can to at least delay war. As he puts it, "We face a time of troubles." But we shall not ease our way by inviting war. That, generally speaking is the attitude of most reasoning people in the West. Under the best of conditions, a great many years will go by before the world can recover from the last war. Another, and greater war in the near future would produce consequences beyond the capacity of the human mind to anticipate.

Patronage is Vital to Texas Republican Party Chieftans

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Patronage will be the pay-off when the final showdown comes in the current row between two factions of the Republican Party in Texas.

When and if Thomas E. Dewey becomes Republican President, there will be between 2,000 and 3,000 federal jobs to be passed out in Texas.

If national committeeman R. B. Creager of Brownsville gets Dewey's nod as the man to say who gets these jobs, Creager wins.

If former state executive committee chairman George Hopkins of Dallas becomes the man Dewey will consult, Hopkins wins.

Right now, the odds are with Creager, 71-year-old Republican boss who has survived many a challenge in his 24-year reign. During some of those lean Republican years in Texas and nationally, he has been in effect "The Party" down here.

Hopkins and his friends started the latest fight against Creager because the national committeeman backed Robert A. Taft for the Republican presidential nomination. Hopkins, Hobart K. McDowell of San Angelo and some others were the "original" Dewey men in Texas. Because they were, they felt the time had come for political curtains for Creager. They wanted to have the last word on who runs the Dewey campaign here and on who gets the jobs. They have no doubt that Dewey will win in November.

The most recent round in the fight was Creager's all the way. He controlled the state Republican convention at Waco by four to one majority. It was as neat a job of political operating as this correspondent has seen in a long time. It made some Democratic efforts appear amateurish.

G. O. P. SENATE CANDIDATE—Jack Porter (above), Houston oilman, is the Republican candidate for U. S. Senator from Texas in the General Election, Nov. 2.

Creager's lieutenants took charge of the pre-convention executive committee meeting—presided over by Hopkins—and saw to it that delegations favorable to the national committeeman would be seated at the convention. There were contests from several big counties that were especially important to the Creager faction, and they came out on top. In some of the smaller counties, Hopkins men were favored.

"We don't care what happens in those one-vote jackrabbits counties," one Creager leader decided the question, but Creager towered over the microphone to make a short speech. He said he thought there ought to be a roll call to make the issue clear. It was good politics.

Creager's man won, four to one.

Hopkins packed his papers and speeches into his brief case, snapped it shut and walked glumly from the platform.

Hopkins is not through fighting. He says wait until after Jan. 20, the day the new president is inaugurated. That indicates his belief that Tom Dewey will remember George Hopkins as the man who fought for him and took some beatings for him in Texas.

But professional politicians have their money on Creager. They figure it this way:

Creager has the Republican organization in Texas well under his thumb. The convention was his and the new state executive committee is his. He has already set up a statewide Dewey-Warren campaign organization.

Creager's friends believe that Dewey also is a political realist and that his campaign managers know who can ring the party cash register in Texas. Creager himself recently said he believed the regular republican organization in Texas could contribute as much as $300,000 and he doubted whether "the other bunch" could raise as much as $20,000.

There may be some intervening episodes, but the last chapter in this story will have to wait until a Republican becomes President and somebody begins harvesting a bumper crop of political plums.

One difficulty is that illiteracy apparently hasn't been accurately defined. Most authorities agree that the 10,000,000 estimate may be wide of the true mark, one way or the other. Until 1940 the U. S. Census Bureau counted illiterates merely by asking people if they could read and write in any language. If they couldn't they were classified as illiterate. In 1940 the census of education—number of years they attended school. This is the origin of the estimate that there are 10,000,000 people without the equivalent of a fourth grade education.

During the war the Army used the fourth grade as the dividing line between literary and illiteracy. This was based on the wartime experience of the Army. It found that as a general rule people with less than a fourth grade education couldn't read or obey the simplest sort of orders.

Army officials say 350,000 soldiers between 21 and 45 had to "make their mark" with an X because they couldn't write their own names.

WHAT IT MEANS

The High Cost of Illiteracy

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
Washington—Would you like to do if you saw a sign that said "Explosives—Keep Away"? Or "Poison—For Use Only"?
Barney M. Kilgore (D-W.) says the census reveals that slightly over 10,000,000 Americans—one out of every seven adults—wouldn't know what to do if they saw a sign that said "Explosives—Keep Away"? Or "Poison—For Use Only"?

Barney M. Kilgore (D-W.) says the census reveals

What is an illiterate? Where do these 10,000,000 illiterates live? Kilgore says the answers to these questions are so amazing the situation can only be described as a national disgrace.

First, he describes illiterates as persons without the equivalent of a fourth grade education. They can't read or, if they can, they can't understand what they read sufficiently well to function as citizens.

Second, he says many of these people—probably the majority of them—don't live far out in the sticks, where an education is hard to come by. And the majority are not foreign born, but native Americans.

He gives these figures: 4,200,000 are white people, born in this country, 3,200,000 are foreign born whites, 2,700,000 are Negroes. He says one-tenth of the 10,000,000 live in New York, 462,000 in Illinois and 385,000 in California. Louisiana has a higher percentage of illiterates among its total population than any other state. Kilgore estimates the number at 36 percent. Iowa has the lowest, 4.1 percent.

There are three times as many illiterates in the country as college graduates, Kilgore adds. He says this weakens democracy because many of these people cannot read the words "freedom" or "peace." Communists are aware of this situation and take full advantage of it by using the simplest types of propaganda or by making personal contacts, the senator says.

He proposed that $5,000,000 be given the states in 1949 to teach people to read, write, speak and understand the English language, to perform elementary arithmetical computations and to understand the basic features of U. S. government. He would appropriate $10,000,000 for the teaching program in 1950, and then $15,000,000 a year until 1957, decreasing to $5,000,000 in 1958-59. By that time, he believes, illiteracy would be eliminated in the Luckman grips the ball with his fingers across the lacing (1) and shows that fingers must be well spread and must grip the ball smoothly, not clutch it. When delivering the ball (3) the nose should be kept parallel to the ground, says Luckman, and the ball delivered with a wrist snap. Legs should be spread comfortably with the weight balanced on the balls of the feet. Luckman, who this year figures to have one of the finest of his 10 seasons with the Bears, recently turned author and the pictures and advice are from his book, "Passing for Touchdowns."

WHAT IT MEANS: The Price Support Program

By Robert E. Gaiger

WASHINGTON — How much does the government price program cost you, or save you, as taxpayer and consumer? This has become one of the controversial questions of the presidential campaign. Political economists are attempting to state the program to the price of a can of beans or a sack of quads.

Nobody has an accurate answer. Here's why:

The Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), which handles the price support program, shows a "profit" of $135,343,751 since 1933 excluding "consumer subsidies" (which rise later.)

But the corporation handles other commodities besides those it acquires in price support programs, and until recently accounts weren't separated. Billions of dollars worth of commodities have been handled since 1933, when CCC was set up. One top executive says it's his best estimate that if all the transactions that were definitely price support operations could be separated out the government would just about break even on them.

As the price support program now operates it guarantees the farmer, before his crop is planted, a price estimated to net him a reasonable return. If the market price at the time the farmer sells is below what the government guaranteed, he may get a loan from the government or sell to government agencies at the guaranteed price.

Thus the government has acquired large quantities of commodities. It disposes of these commodities at the most favorable price it can. It may take a loss or it may make a profit.

Here's what the books of the Commodity Credit Corporation show:

Between 1933 and June 30, 1948, the corporation had a net loss of $1,968,848,550. But included in this was a loss of $2,104,192,301 that was paid out in consumer subsidies.

These consumer subsidy losses occurred during the war. At that time there were price ceilings on many articles. Some of these articles couldn't be sold at the ceiling price if the producer was to make a reasonable return. So the government held the ceiling price at which goods were sold to the public, but the producer received a higher price than the retail ceiling justified. The government suffered the loss. Government officials say this cannot be considered a farm price support transaction.

Subtracting the consumer subsidy losses, the corporation comes out with a $135,343,751 profit on its other transactions, including price support items.

CCC officials say it is difficult to get an exact figure on total government price support operations. The corporation bought and sold commodities for lend-lease and performed other transactions. But the officials say their breakdown of transactions is as accurate and fair as it is possible to make.

These officials acknowledge they have lost some substantial sums while supporting the prices of some commodities, notably potatoes. On the other hand, they have made substantial profits on some articles, notably cotton.

The government balance sheet showing a profit of $135,343,751 for the CCC includes all the costs of administering the program. It also includes a deduction of $36, 458,054 as a reserve to pay losses on inventories on hand June 30, 1948.

There is another item of $35,768,386 included in the profit. This is due from the secretary of the treasury on the Economic Cooperation Administration (Marshall Plan) program. Corporation officials say these ECA operations should not be considered as part of the price support program but as a function of ECA.

If this $35,768,386 item is written off as price support it still leaves the corporation with a profit of $79,575,365.

Midwest People Live Longer

NEW YORK (AP)—The chances for long life in the United States are best in the Midwest, a study of death rates shows. The best record for longevity in our country is found in the West North Central States—Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, the Dakotas, Nebraska, and Kansas," says the Statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. There the average length of life (expectation of life at birth) in 1939-41 was 65.23 years for white males, and 69.22 years for white females.

These life expectancies are three to four years longer than the Mountain States, which have the least favorable record. The Mountain States include Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, and Utah. The high death rate among the Spanish-speaking population of Arizona and New Mexico is mainly responsible for this difference between the two geographical areas.

At the age of 45, men and women of the West North Central States still can look forward to the longest life. The expectation then is 27.56 more years of life for men, and 30.23 for women. At 45, the lowest expectation of life is in the highly industrial northeast, the Bulletin finds. In the Middle Atlantic States of Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey, men of 45 can expect, on the average, only 24.74 more years and women 27.56. Men of 45 in New England can expect 25.37 more years, and women 28.32 years.

The best record in preventing infant mortality was shown on the Pacific Coast. In the Mountain States area, the infant mortality rate was fully 50 per cent higher.

The variation in mortality and longevity from one area to another undoubtedly arises out of a variety of factors—differences in the general standard of living, degree of industrialization, density of population, adequacy and availability of medical and hospital facilities, climate, et cetera. An intensified effort to reduce the toll of premature death in the less favored areas would tend to equalize the mortality throughout the country at the level of the best areas.

Siam's Prices Down

BANGKOK (AP)—Food prices in Bangkok have dropped 30 per cent and other necessities including clothing are down 18 per cent from the levels a year ago, the Siamese Ministry of Commerce reported.

Blind Phone Girl Works by Touch

BALTIMORE (AP)—You'd think a telephone operator would need a fairly sharp eyes to keep up with the little flashing lights on the switchboard. But Miss Audrey Berch, who has been blind since infancy, has been a telephone operator at the Church Home and Hospital in Baltimore for the last 25 years.

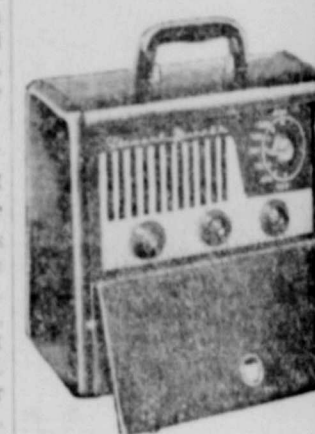

A "braille gadget" is the secret. This device—about a foot square—is attached to the side of the switchboard. It has rows of small metal discs, each one about the size of a dime. Each metal disc corresponds to a socket on the switchboard, and above each disc is a braille sign, with its duplicate over the socket that goes with it.

When a call comes in, a buzzer sounds and a small peg shoots up from the center of one of the discs. Miss Berch slides her finger over the discs, finds the one with the protruding peg, feels the braille sign above it, and puts a switch in the socket which has the same braille sign. It takes her three seconds or less. To Miss Berch's knowledge, there are very few of these Braille aids in the country. The only two others in Baltimore are at the Maryland School for the Blind and the Maryland Workshop for the Blind.

Mighty Boy Learns Trotting Tricks by Pacing

By Newfeatures
SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y.—As a two-year-old, Mighty Boy looked more like a candidate for a milk route than a potential horse of distinction which he may well become this year. He is staked in such classics as the Hambletonian Trot and the Little Brown Jug pace.

Owner Octave Blake, like most veteran horsemen, hoped it would be a trotter, and he was his early training as such. But Mighty Boy could scarcely trot above a fast walk. He was anything but light in performance.

Only once did Trainer Del Cameron send him to the races as a two-year-old. That was in a two-hat trotting event at the Middletown, N. Y. County fair. In a field of six, Mighty Boy finished fifth and then sixth.

Cameron gave up in disgust. The horse could trot well enough—but not fast enough.

Last winter Cameron switched him to the pacing gait. Mighty Boy looked better. This spring he showed up at the Grand Circuit opening at Santa Anita, Calif., with hoppers and his new gait.

In five trips to the post, Mighty Boy won three races and once finished second, all in good time. He registered a 2:06 3/5 clip in his best win.

After that auspicious showing it would seem that Blake and Cameron had themselves a neatly good young pacer—and to heck with trying to get him to trot. But Owner Blake wasn't satisfied.

"Now that he's got his speed, maybe he can keep it on the trot," reasoned Blake. So Trainer Cameron started all over again, trying Mighty Boy on the trot.

He went to the races twice as a trotter at Long Island's Roosevelt Raceway. Once his head pole broke and hit him in the side, throwing him off gait after he had taken the lead. The second time another horse bumped him on the turn. Both times he finished back in the pack.

Trainer-Driver Del Cameron wonders whether Mighty Boy will do better as a trotter or a pacer. The Volomite-Arion Girl boy colt, owned by Octave Blake's Newport Stock Farm of South Plainfield, N. J., is entered in both the Hambletonian trot and the Little Brown Jug pace, first time that has ever happened.

"Maybe we'd better give up and let him go back to pacing," Owner Blake suggested to Cameron after these two disappointments.

"No sir, Mr. Blake," Cameron insisted. "Mighty Boy's a trotter."

However, he had been staked almost exclusively in paces for '48—with the exception of the Hambletonian—and two of the important pacing events were soon to come up at the Historic Track meeting at Goshen.

Mighty Boy won for the first time as a trotter at the local meeting here, going the mile in 2:10 1/5. Cameron now thinks he can do 2:04 or better on a mile track.

"Better cancel him out of those two paces. I want to keep him trotting so we can have him ready for the Hambletonian," Cameron recommended. Blake obliged, and so the horse that couldn't trot until he learned to pace, is slated to go in the top trotting classic of them all at Goshen, N. Y., on Aug. 11.

But he apparently is in for a slightly mixed-up career. After the Hambletonian, Blake and Cameron plan to do a quick change and get him pacing again in time to go in the Little Brown Jug classic for three-year-old pacers at Delaware, O., in September.

If he gets to the post in each of the two events, Mighty Boy will have the distinction of being the first horse ever to go in both the blue ribbon classics for three-year-old trotters and pacers. And it looks like he'll make it.

ROADS UP—A Texas Aggie and a University of Oklahoma Sooners' fancy ballet routine on this incomplete Aggie pass in the game Texas, Oklahoma. Lost Texas opportunities like this gave Oklahoma a 42-14 win over the Cadets of Texas A. & M. Here, Aggie Duke Wright (86) leaps for quarterback Jim Cashion's pass in Oklahoma 12-yard line, only to have Sooners halfback Ed Lisak come in to spoil it. (UPI Wirephoto)

Miss America Turns Out to Be a Real American Girl

(P) Newsfeatures

FAME in becoming Miss America has not changed Bebe Shopp of Hopkins, Minn. This 18-year-old beauty formerly known as Beatrice Bella Shopp, is as handy around her parents' four-acre place near Minneapolis as she is in beauty contests. With her music studies and the fame of being Miss America, Bebe will be too busy to carry out the many tasks she undertook before going to Atlantic City. One of these was a job as baby sitter for neighbors. Gayle Wolff, 18, an ace high school basketball player, who escorted Bebe to the senior prom last May says "after all, she's Miss America now, but I might ask her for a date when some of the excitement has died down."

MISS AMERICA 1948 likes to bake cakes in her mother's Minnesota kitchen.

OVEN HEAT brings a flush to her face, but she is quite used to it by now.

GASOLINE-POWERED garden tractor is no bug-aboo to Bebe Shopp. She likes to help her dad around their place.

CHICK-CHICK! The flock comes on the run when Miss America scatters the corn in her Minnesota barnyard.

HER BEST FAN is Charles "Chips" Irey, a neighbor baby who gave Bebe a job.

THE GIRL from the land 10,000 lakes knows how to and enjoy it.

FIRST-GRADER . . . Charming school dress with a Victorian note in its tied shawl collar, puff sleeves and full skirt. Shown in rich raspberry cotton with frosty satin stripes, typical of the muted dark colors that well-dressed little girls are wearing this fall.

MOST OUTSTANDING YOUNG TEXAN—John Ben Shepherd, East Texas attorney and past president of the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce, has been voted Texas' most outstanding young man by the Young Democratic Clubs of Texas. Shepherd will be honored at a dinner in Fort Worth, September 13, preceding the State Democratic Convention. Governor Beauford Jester and other state officials and party officers will be honor guests of Texas Young Democrats.

GLITTER SPECS . . . If you're dead set on it, you can spend up to $15,000 now (they say) on eight-jeweled glasses with solid gold frames.

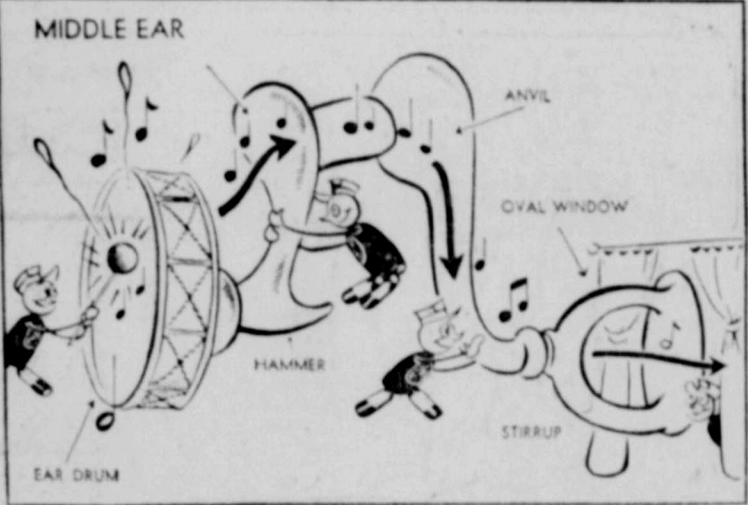

EVERYTHING'S ROSY . . . Her grey fall outfit is complemented by pink heather lipstick and rouge.

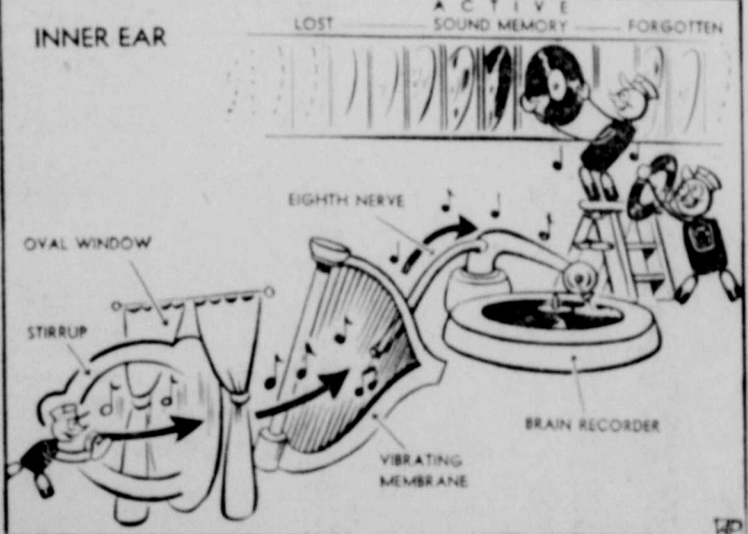

HOW WE HEAR

PICK-UP: Sound vibrations in the air are picked up by the auricle, the visible part of the Outer Ear, and carried through the canal to the eardrum. This membrane quivers with the sound waves, like the head of a drum when struck.

PASSAGE: Here eardrum vibrations are carried along the ossicles, three smallest bones in the body. Called the hammer, the anvil and the stirrup, they transmit impulses by moving the "oval window" between Middle and Inner Ears.

PLAYING: Movements of the membrane at the "oval window" set in motion fluid of the inner ear. This motion mysteriously "tickles" some of the 24,000 harp-like nerve endings within the cochlea. These messages reach the brain through the auditory nerve and are recorded as sound impressions.

BRAND NEW INVENTION—You put a record on the spinning tone arm into position, and presto—you have in your home the same talking motion pictures you'd see at your favorite movie. It's not television, but phonovision, a radically new and interesting home movie projector. The film is in the record disk. As the record revolves, the 7 millimeter film inside the disk passes in front of a tiny beam of light. By mirrors and prisms, this light is reflected and out of the machine and projected onto the screen in front of the cabinet pictured above. The invention, Ralph M. Like, believes might revolutionize the movie industry. Who knows?

PRE-TEEN . . . Smart school dress in dusty blue satin-striped cotton with apron front chambray. A new size range for girls not ready for teen styles.

SUB-DEB . . . Butterscotch dress in smooth school dress.

JUDY SHEDS HER PIGTAILS—AND LIKES IT!—Two snips and it's off! Judy Lewis gleefully exhibits her pigtail which only a few seconds before had hung below her waist. Victor Vito, New York hairstylist, wields the scissors in his own sub-sub-sub deb glamor salon; from chandeliers hang stuffed animals and other toys, the wallpaper is circus design, and the operators can switch into a story telling mood at a moment's notice. At right, Judy has already started feeling her growing pains as Victor shows her how to train a natural curl into her locks.
