TWO KILLED IN PADUCAH ACCIDENT

Wichita Falls Youth Fatal Victim Of Accidental Shooting At Lawton

W. M. KILGORE IS KILLED IN LAWTON, OKLA.

Young Wichita Falls Mechanic Shot When Gun Falls

RITES UNDECIDED

Body May Be Shipped To Kansas City, His Home, For Burial

William Kilgore, 20, mechanic, employed by the Wichita Cycle company, died at Lawton, Okla., Sunday as the result of an accidental pistol wound suffered when his gun fell from its holster. L. A. Myers of Wichita Falls, his employer, went to Lawton Sunday afternoon to take charge of the body. No announcement of funeral arrangements have been received.

Mr. Kilgore came to Wichita Falls a year and half ago from Kansas City, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Kilgore, live. He has been a steady worker and has many friends here. He was unmarried.

The meager details of the accident said he had gone to Lawton to repair a machine there Sunday. His 22 calibre pistol slipped from its holster and was discharged as it hit the ground. He was rushed to the Lawton hospital and every effort was made to save his life. He died in a short time, however.

A musician and a student, as well as a mechanic, Mr. Kilgore found time to play with the Iowa Park band and the Iowa Park orchestra as well as to carry a correspondence school course.

No word had been received from Mr. Myers at a late hour Sunday night, but friends said it was probable the body will be shipped to Kansas City for burial.

New Press Services Added By Wichita Falls Daily Papers

Nine Leased Wires, Including Every Major Wire Service of Nation, Secured for Readers

Every major wire news service in the nation, delivering a total of more than 160,000 words daily by telegraph over a period of 24 hours, has been secured by The Daily Times and Record News as the first step in the papers' general program of giving to residents of Wichita Falls and Northwest Texas and southern Oklahoma the most complete news coverage in either state.

Addition of the new wires is part of the general program of expansion and increased service to the reader which is made possible by the operation of both Wichita Falls newspapers by one organization, and the placing of news gathering and reporting upon a 24-hour basis.

All of 'Em

Four major news associations, with correspondents and employes in every city and area of the globe, now serve The Daily Times and Record News. Four Associated Press leased wires, one Associated Press stock and market wire, two United Press leased wires, one Universal Service leased wire and one International News Service leased wire now serve to bring news and features from every part of the world to readers of the two Wichita Falls daily papers. In this group of press associations, which includes all the major wire services, every field of interest for the reader is covered by not one but many writers, giving news and feature editors of the two papers the widest choice and utmost latitude in selecting the best of the mass of material available.

Two United Press wires and one International News Service wire are new additions for Wichita Falls papers, the three wires being added to insure every service and feature possible for the Wichita Falls territory.

In the increased wire service is reflected not only the growth of the two Wichita Falls papers, but the growth of Wichita Falls and the extension of its influence and service into a much wider area.

Nine Leased Wires

Five years ago the two papers here received less than 40,000 words daily over telegraph, while today the total furnished by four major wire associations are more than 160,000 words daily. The cost of the nine leased wires serving the Wichita Falls papers is more than five times the amount expended five years ago. The number of wires and press associations serving the two papers is believed larger than that used by any newspaper organization in Texas or Oklahoma.

Through quick work by employes of the United Press and International News Service and the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, automatic telegraph printers for the use of the new wire associations were set up Sunday and placed in operation, the highly technical and complicated work of "hooking up" the machines and wires being completed in record time.

LINDBERGH TO TALK BUSINESS

Mystery of West Coast Trip Solved at Dallas

EL PASO, Texas, April 1. (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, on his way to San Diego, arrived at the Fort Bliss flying field at 5:28 this evening.

DALLAS, Texas, April 1. (AP)—Some of the mystery attached to the flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from St. Louis to San Diego apparently was dissipated a few minutes after his plane swooped down on Love field here at 9:48 a. m. today. His traveling associates revealed that the cardinal objective of the California trip was a conference with manufacturers who likely will ask that Colonel Lindbergh head a new airplane manufacturing company to bear his name, with a factory probably in his home town, St. Louis.

The three men traveling with the flying colonel were the backers for his trans-Atlantic flight, Harold M. Bixby, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce; Harry Hall Knight, president of the St. Louis flying club, and Maj. William Robertson, president of the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing company. They are making the trip in a Ryan Brougham, similar to the famed Spirit of St. Louis, plane in which Colonel Lindbergh made his trans-Atlantic voyage, and since has traveled 60,000 miles as a good will ambassador of the United States. The good ship which composed half of the famous "We" combination is being placed in the Smithsonian institution.

The flight from Tulsa, where Colonel Lindbergh and his associates spent the night, took ten hours and thirty minutes and was in the teeth of a strong wind.

Curious lookers-on, two hundred or more in number, were kept back from the plane after the landing here, while the Colonel's three passengers climbed out and sought sandwiches and coffee. The flyer remained at the controls while the motor was serviced with gas and oil, then personally inspected the ship.

Colonel Lindbergh stated finally "I have nothing definite to announce at this time," and neither confirmed nor denied that he is contemplating another trans-oceanic voyage. Neither would he announce definitely where he would make his next stop, but his air map, which lay open in the cabin, was marked for a flight from St. Louis to San Diego, with stops indicated at Dallas and El Paso.

COOLIDGE ON AIR.

WASHINGTON, April 1. (AP)—President Coolidge will broadcast a message in connection with forest week through twenty-five stations Monday night.

GYPSY BANDS OPERATE IN MANY CITIES

Reports of Graft Reach Police Here From Texas Points

NEW CASE IS FOUND

San Angelo Party Finds Nomads Near City; No Arrests

While Wichita Falls officers expressed the belief that the city has been entirely cleared of gypsies and similar traveling bands, tales of their activities in the recent past began to pour in from all quarters following the revelation Sunday that a Wichita Falls woman had been hilked out of $1035 and her diamonds by a member of one of the bands of nomads.

San Angelo police, local police and the constable's office recently trailed a gypsy outfit that had perpetrated an even larger theft to the very doors of Wichita Falls.

Promises Reaches.

For the first time, Constable Frank Morgan revealed Sunday a theft of $1500 by a confidence game worked in San Angelo.

In that city a woman was approached by a gypsy who gained her confidence.

"I see good fortune for you and the rapid doubling of your money," the gypsy said. "Give me $5, and by tomorrow I will be able to return to you with $10.

The next day the gypsy returned with the $10. Give me $20 and I can return $40 to you," the gypsy said. "I see your good fortune continuing."

Again the gypsy departed, and again she returned bringing the promised money which she had "seen" for the intended victim.

"Your good fortune is in its growth," the gypsy told the woman this trip. "Give me $50 and I can return $100 to you, but it will take two days."

Sees "Vision."

At the appointed time, two days later, the gypsy returned with the $100. "You now have the opportunity of gaining $400 which I see awaiting you," the gypsy declared. "Give me $200 and I will return it to you doubled in two days."

These days passed, and the Gypsy returned. She brought the money and the tale of her greatest vision.

"I have seen a vision in which you may reap great rewards," the gypsy said. "I cannot obtain $4000 or quite $3500 for you, but I am sure that I can bring you $3000 if you give me $1500 and do as I say."

At the appointed time, the woman brought back the $1500, which she gave to the gypsy who promised to return it as $3000 in two days.

A few days later, after disillusionment was complete and the gypsy had failed to return, the woman got the idea that the police might help.

Near Iowa Park.

A gypsy band, thought to be the one to which the San Angelo thief belonged, was "spotted" by Wichita Falls police near Iowa Park. As this was out of the jurisdiction of the local police, a peace officer from San Angelo, accompanied by the San Angelo victim, appeared and obtained the assistance of Mr. Morgan. They went to the gypsy camp and looked over the members of the band, but the one who was wanted was not there. Their trail had proved to be a false lead.

Better luck was the lot of the constable in dealing with another band of thieving gypsies which came this way from Decatur.

The sheriff's office at Decatur called Mr. Morgan's office and reported a large band of gypsies, traveling in five cars, headed this way. One of their women was reported to have snatched a sum of money from the cash register of a Decatur filling station where the gypsies were refueling their cars, while other members of the band argued with and jabbered at the station attendant.

Mr. Morgan and his men set out on the highway. By the side of the road near Jolly the gypsy band was found. Looking up the head man and refusing to argue, Mr. Morgan, who already had orders from the Decatur authorities to make arrests if the theft was not made good, demanded the return in full of the money snatched by the gypsy woman. The leader of the band hesitated, and one more command was given. The little old man then hastened to one of the tents, and returned almost immediately with the money which was sent to the Decatur authorities to return to the filling station.

"If you are traveling near Wichita Falls or Wichita county, do not make the mistake of stopping or of trying to steal any money," Mr. Morgan told the leader. Profuse gypsy promises were made, and Mr. Morgan said that was the last he ever saw or heard of that particular gypsy band.

HEROES

Heretics Defended In Chicago Pastor's Sermon

CHICAGO, April 1. (UP)—Heretics of today will be the heroes of tomorrow, the Rev. William Weston Patton declared in the Rogers Park Congregational church today in answering and challenging fundamentalist ministers who have criticised his frank statements from the pulpit.

"I haven't much use for a person who has not been called a heretic," Rev. Patton said, "for by heresy is meant one who dares to think for himself."

The Rev. Patton said he has been called a heretic many times but the word ceased to mean much because anyone who differs with a fundamental group today is accused of heresy.

IRELAND-U.S. RACE RUMORED

Germans and French May Dash Over Atlantic

DUBLIN, April 1. (AP)—An international air race to America between French and German planes from Baldonnel airdrome is in prospect. A report reached Dublin tonight that a French aviator is negotiating with authorities of the Irish free state for use of the field where Baron von Huenefeld's plane, the Bremen, has been weather-bound for a week.

Drouhin Participant

The report is that Maurice Drouhin, who was engaged last year by Charles A. Levine for the Paris-New York hop that never materialized, is the French pilot who desires to make Ireland the jumping off place for a westward flight. The report is that he will fly to Ireland soon, perhaps next Tuesday.

Authorities at Baldonnel Field declined to comment on this report, but it gained credence nevertheless, because of the attitude of secrecy which the airdrome officials have held since before the arrival of the Bremen. That secrecy was so strict that Dublin had no advance word that the Bremen was coming, the appearance of the plane above the city last Monday afternoon being the first knowledge that Ireland had of the project.

Germans Relax

Baron von Huenfeld and his companions, Captain Hermann Koehl and Arthur Spindler, rested at Baldonnel today, giving no information about their plans. There were no indications that they intend to fly tomorrow. The Bremen remained in its hangar, although weather conditions in Ireland are improving.

There was an unconfirmed rumor in circulation tonight that the expedition might become a German-Irish affair by the substitution of Commandant James Fitsmaurice, head of the Irish Free State air force, for Arthur Spindler. In that event Commandant Fitsmaurice would be relief pilot to Captain Koehl.

The Irish ace was a companion of Captain R. H. McIntosh on an unsuccessful attempt to span the Atlantic last summer. They were driven back by adverse weather and landed safely at Ballybunion.

WEATHER HOLDS BREMEN FLIERS

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, April 2.—(Monday)—(AP)—Although the weather reports were more favorable at midnight than for several days, they were not sufficiently promising to enable the German plane Bremen to start its trans-Atlantic flight Monday morning, Captain Hermann Koehl, pilot of the plane, and his companions, Baron von Huenefeld and Arthur Spindler, are getting tired of waiting. They said they will start Thursday if conditions are at all suitable.

No Clue Is Found To Murderer of Woman

CONCORD, Mass., April 1. (AP)—A second day of investigation has failed to produce any tangible clue to the murderer of Miss Marguerite L. Stewart, 27, a supervisor at the Beverly School for Deaf Mutes, whose battered body was found by a roadside here Friday night.

The fact that little blood was found where Miss Stewart's body was discovered, led police to believe the murder had been committed elsewhere and the body brought there in an automobile.

SEVERANCE OF SINCLAIR OIL LEASE SOUGHT

Department of Justice In Efforts to Break Contracts

SINCLAIR PROFITS

He Receives Annually 2,000,000 Barrels of Government Oil

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Acting under direct instructions from President Coolidge, the department of justice today is seeking means to break the contract under which Harry F. Sinclair of the Teapot Dome scandals is still getting government oil at the rate of 2,000,000 barrels a year.

An investigation is also being made made by the department of the methods by which the Midwest Refining company, controlled by the Standard Oil company (Indiana) acquired vast rights in the government's great Salt Creek fields, adjacent to Teapot Dome. About 13,000,000 barrels a year are being taken out of the Salt Creek field, mostly by the Midwest.

Company Heads.

The chairman of the Indiana Standard is Robert W. Stewart, who defiantly refused to answer certain questions in the oil scandals and is now under charges of contempt of the senate. The chairman of the Midwest Refining company when the Salt Creek fields were acquired was H. M. Blackmer, who fled to Europe and is still dodging.

Fall made the contract to sell to the Sinclair crude oil purchasing company the government's royalty oil taken out of Salt Creek by the Midwest Refining company six months after he had received $233,000 of liberty bonds from Sinclair. The Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company is controlled jointly by Sinclair and the Standard Oil company (Indiana).

Huge Receipts.

The Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company is estimated to have received about 10,000,000 barrels of the royalty oil since the contract was awarded to him by Fall in December, 1922.

The contract was renewed last month with Sinclair's company by Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work. Dr. Work sent the contract to several lawyers for investigation and they all agreed that it must be renewed under the terms written into it by Sinclair and Fall when originally drawn.

It was Dr. Work who is believed to have called the matter to the attention of President Coolidge. The president ordered that it be sent to Attorney General Sargent for a thorough investigation.

The department is today seeking to ascertain whether it was conceived in fraud between Fall and Sinclair. The United States supreme court revoked the lease of Teapot Dome to Sinclair by Fall on the ground that it was tained with fraud and corruption.

CARDINAL AND IL DUCE CLASH

Breach Widens Between Vatican and Dictator

ROME, April 1. (UP)—An open clash between Premier Mussolini, audacious fascist chief, and Cardinal Gasparri, secretary of state of the Vatican and as such the pope's political lieutenant, was foreseen today as unavoidable unless—as those who realize the seriousness of such an eventuality hope—an early compromise is reached.

Opinion here is divided on which of the alternatives is the more likely.

Forebodings

The Vatican-Italian government situation has become gravely complicated within the last week, following several months of forebodings.

Only a few months ago it was hoped an early solution might be found to the differences which had existed between the Vatican and the government since 1870 when the pope was shorn of his temporal power which for centuries had given him the status of an independent monarch.

Mussolini had given various encouraging hints. But when it seemed actual negotiations might begin, the fascist party announced the pope's temporal power never could be restored, and that the Vatican property must remain under Italian sovereignty.

Breaks Silence

Last Sunday the pope complained bitterly, after months of silence, that the government was monopolizing the moral and spiritual education of youth. Mussolini replied swiftly and unmistakably by ordering disbandment of all Catholic Boy Scout and similar organizations and their incorporation into the fascist youth society, or ballila.

France's Hope For Revival of Wine Commerce With U.S., Says Poincaire

CARCASONNE, France, April 1. (UP)—Eventual repeal of American prohibition laws was seen by Premier Poincare as the main hope of a revival of France's former world-wide commerce in wine.

"We must seek to regain it," he said in a speech here—the second of a series of his famous "Sunday sermons" in the campaign preliminary to a general parliamentary election.

"Unfortunately our great wine industry has suffered from prohibition and customers restrictions abroad.

"Naturally every nation is free to legislate as it desires. But we are not forbidden to hope that some day the United States will recognize that there is some truth in the toast to wine by the Anglo-Saxon poet:

"I am health; I am the heart; I am life."

"If wine were unhealthy we would have known it since the days when Homer pictured the grapevine in Achilles' shield. We would have known ever since Genesis about the vine of the Lord."

Terrifying Phenomena Accompanies Smyrna Earthquake; 60 Believed Dead

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 1. (AP)—Terrifying phenomena accompanied the earthquake which shook Smyrna to its foundations yesterday, according to reports received here. The latest estimates place the number of dead at 60, all Turks.

Witnesses of the disaster say there was a play of celestial electricity shortly before the first shock. The waters of the sea near the shore rose and whirled and receded as if boiling over a hot fire in an open kettle. Terror-stricken inhabitants of the city and suburbs fell to their knees in prayer.

Then came silence. Next a tremendous roaring rumble was heard, greater than thunder. The earth quivered a moment, then shook and fairly rocked. This was the first shock. Eight others followed at short intervals.

Complete reports have not been received from the country districts, but the damage was widespread and heavy. In one village a single family of five was killed when their home collapsed.

M'COY RULES OVER NATION

American Virtually Given Dictatorship

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 1. — An American brigadier general, Frank R. McCoy, has virtually been made dictator of Nicaragua with power seldom if ever vested in a representative of this country abroad, it was learned officially today.

He will hold this high office until sometime after the first Sunday in next October when Nicaragua will have elected and inaugurated a president with his approval.

Decree Issued.

A detail of this dictatorship is revealed in a decree issued by President Diaz, of Nicaragua, who decided to vest General McCoy with powers almost transcending his own when the Nicaraguan congress recently refused to do so and adjourned. The decree has been received by the state department here.

In the first instance it makes General McCoy, who is in Nicaragua at the request of that government, chairman of the election commission. There are two other members, one representing the liberal and one the conservative factions. Each of these commissioners will have a vote on any question touching the arrangements for the election or certifying the successful candidate.

One-Man Meeting.

However, the decree gives General McCoy just twice as many votes. It also prohibits a meeting of the commission unless General McCoy is present. It empowers him to hold a one-man meeting when they are absent and he is to constitute a "quorum." If he so wishes, he is the sole judge of whether to unseat a commissioner and appoint a successor. It means virtually that he will name the next president. The only condition isthat contained in the agreement imposed by the United States after intervention that the person must be constitutionally elected.

$1,156.30 In Profits Realized By Houston Farmer's Poultry Farm

HOUSTON, Texas, April 1. (AP)—A net profit of $1,156.30 from a pen of 310 first year white leghorn hens was made last year by Charles J. Shaffer of this city, C. L. Lochbridge, Harris county agent to whom the records were submitted, announced. The profits figured $3.73 per hen. The owner got 66,080 eggs from the flock and sold them for more than $1900.

"The flock," Mr. Lochridge said, "laid an average of 213 eggs per bird. The expense, including mash, scratch feed, grit, disinfectant and all other feeds, was $751.26 and the eggs sold for a yearly average of 34 2-3 cents a dozen."

Another pen of 200 younger pullets and hens produced 153 eggs per hen and made Mr. Shaffer a net profit of $1.65 per bird. A large part of the eggs, however, were laid in low market months and brought only approximately 30 cents a dozen.

COTTON PRICE MAY INCREASE

Commisioner Predicts Profits in Diversification

AUSTIN, Texas, April 1. (AP)—Texas produced 4,227,750 running bales of the total 1927 crop of 12,777,505 ginned, George B. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture, disclosed in his final report, predicting that the surplus cotton will be practically all consumed by the time the new crop can reach the mills, and that prices will advance.

"Every indication," he said, "points to a price above 20 cents before the close of the year, unless a bumper crop is made. Keeping these facts in mind, the farmers can profit by raising more feed crops and home supplies and avoid a surplus cotton crop, and thereby receive a better price and make more clear money from the cotton crop."

The actual production in Texas for 1927 as shown by ginning reports was only 22,250 bales lower than Commissioner Terrell's estimate. His estimate was 190,000 bales nearer actual production than the federal government estimate of last Oct. 1 and 30,000 bales nearer than the government's final estimate Dec. 1. He made no definite estimate of the total crop except to say that it would not exceed 13,000,000 bales. The government's estimate of the total crop, however, "is so near accurate," Mr. Terrell said, "as to deserve commendation from all unbiased observers."

The total crop of 1927 was 5,199,495 bales less than that of 1926. For Texas, the 1927 crop was 749,967 bales lower than in 1926.

GRANDFIELD, Okla., April 1.—Word was received Monday of the selection of Miss Bernice Briscoe of this city, for the post of attendant to the Agricultural Princess of Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college at Stillwater, Okla.

Seven co-eds from the state school were selected and nominated for the princess race, by students of the agricultural school of the college. Final vote of the school gave the honor position of princess to Miss Nell Martin, Idabel, who won over Miss Briscoe by only a few votes. The two nominees receiving the highest votes were chosen as attendants to the princess. These were Miss Biscoe and Miss Josephine Rogers, Jonesboro, Ark.

A male quartet with C. D. Williams as leader will sing and Rev. J. M. Perry and Dr. E. L. Moore, pastor of the Presbyterian church, will speak. A violin solo by Mrs. F. C. McClung will follow with Miss Mattie Smith as accompanist. Just as the sun comes up the silver tones of trumpets will sound.

Agreement Reached On Damages in Outbreak

SHANGHAI, April 1. (UP.)—Chinese newspapers reported today that American Minister MacMurray and the nationalist government had reached an agreement by which Americans would be compensated for damages suffered in the Nanking outbreak by Chinese soldiers.

LOWDEN NOW IS FIRST CHOICE

Senator's Death Swings Delegates' Support

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Former Governor Frank O. Lowden and his political associate, Vice President Charles G. Dawes, were today thrown into the forefront of the republican presidential campaign by the sudden, untimely death of United States Senator Frank B. Willis of Ohio.

Despite his death, Senator Willis' campaign will be carried on in Ohio by his friends and by the political foes of Herbert Hoover, the only other direct contestant for Ohio's 51 delegates to the republican national convention.

By an interesting provision of the Ohio primary law, Dawes, accordingly, may be taken out of his cherished role as a "dark horse," which he regarded as most advantageous.

The 51 delegates on the Willis slate were pledged to Senator Willis as their first choice, but 31 of them, well over a majority, had pledged themselves to Mr. Lowden as their second preference. The balance are divided among Curtis of Kansas, Watson of Indiana and an Ohioan named Fisher.

Now that the first choice has been taken by unexpected death, political observers in Washington agreed that Lowden and Dawes must openly throw their strength to the support of the 51 delegates or possibly suffer the loss of the entire state to Hoover.

In such a campaign, Lowden and Dawes would receive the active assistance of Watson and other implacable foes of Hoover. The Willis campaign had been based upon opposition to Hoover alone. The strategy of the Hoover foes had been to put in "favorite son" candidates who had little or no chance of winning the nomination but who might tear away delegates that would otherwise be won by Hoover.

Legislative Plans Await Inquiry

WASHINGTON, April 1. (AP)—The federal conservation board, which is conducting an inquiry into the production, distribution and consumption of oil, will not sponsor a definite legislative program until all available information, both national and international, has been obtained.

Secretary Work, chairman of the board, announced today that this position is taken in "the proper interest of the public, the government and the oil industry."

The board is also studying the report and legislative recommendations of the advisory committee of nine, consisting of representatives of the industry, the American bar association and the government.

Shortly after the committee of nine submitted its recommendations, Secretary Work asked the governors of oil producing states for their views on legislation to supervise the industry. Some have replied, but the secretary said that legislative recommendations would be deferred until all the state executives are heard from.

U. S. Regains Air Endurance Record

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN REVIEW

World Notables Answer Last Call

By RICHARD C. BUSH

Another serial record brought to America and announcement that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh plans to make another trans-Atlantic flight featured the week in aviation, and aviation was prominent among all news.

Captain George Haldeman, who accompanied Miss Ruth Elder in a trans-Atlantic flight, and Eddie Stinson, aircraft manufacturer, broke the world's endurance record when they stayed in the air 53 hours, 37 minues and 10 seconds, ending their flight on the beach of Jacksonville, Fla., early Friday afternoon. Haldemann and Stinson smashed a record that had been held by Johann Ristics and Cornelius Edzard, German aviators, who flew for 52:22:31 hours last summer in a Junkers plane.

The announcement concerning Colonel Lindbergh's contemplated round-the-world flight did not come from the serial hero himself. As a matter of fact, "Lindy" declined to comment on the report, but he issued no flat denial, and the press association which first carried the report followed it up with another similar statement on Saturday.

German aviators, flying in their Junkers plane, "The Bremen," met with a delay of several days in Dublin, whence they had flown from Berlin, and awaited favorable weather for continuance of their flight to America.

Drama of Death

The drama of death was never so touchingly enacted as in the sudden demise Friday night of Senator Frank B. Willis of Ohio, long a man of prominence in republican party counsels and mentioned as a presidential candidate.

Back in his old home town of Delaware, O., where thousands of his friends had assembled to applaud his campaign address, and after a delightful day of mingling once more with neighbors of other days, Senator Willis became ill as he sat on the speakers' platform and, leaving the hall, fainted, to die a few moments later.

The summons to the great beyond removed from the political arena a man who had served his state and nation with ardent enthusiasm. He was known, during his term as chief executive of the Buckeye state, as "the fighting governor." His loss was particularly felt by the prohibition forces, for Willis was one of the foremost champions of the dry cause, and the Anti-Saloon league was his faithful ally in more than one political campaign.

Gustave Adore, former president of Switzerland, and president of the international Red Cross committee, died early Saturday.

Death of Frances Anderson of Los Angeles, at Sapulpa, Okla., revealed a life-long deception, for "she" had more than 30 years posed as the world's champion "woman billiard player." His death was by slashing the wrists with razor blades.

The news of the week has been liberal with killers, both accused and confessed.

Remus Found Sane

George Remus, who charged that his wife was plotting against him while he was residing in the Atlanta penitentiary for bootlegging operations, and who, upon his release from prison, chased Mrs. Remus through a Cincinnati park, and then shot her to death, to be ruled insane by the court and confined to an Ohio institution, has now been pronounced sane. Prosecuting attorneys, however, are appealing from the verdict of sanity, and Remus is yet in the walls of the hospital for the insane.

Justice has not been so kind for two men out in Colorado, where Arthur Osborne and Ray Noakes, known as the "hermit slayers," because they were convicted of killing an old recluse at Grand Lake, were executed early Friday morning.

The death penalty was dealt Marshall Ratliff, convicted of killing Chief of Police G. E. Bedford in the gun battle incident to the Cisco bank holdup last Christmas eve.

Floyd Byrnes, 24, was sentenced to die for the murder of Myrna Juergens, 12, in the San Angelo axe killing.

The question of relocation of Baylor university again came to the fore last week, with another secret meeting of the Baptist educational commission in Dallas, rumors that an option on some Dallas property had been obtained, and announcement that the Waco Chamber of Commerce is going to see that a new stadium, chapel and dormitory are erected, if the institution remains in Waco. President S. P. Brooks issued a statement, in which he paid tribute to the nobility of the commission's intentions, but voiced the opinion that evidence in support of removal from Waco will prove to be insufficient.

Horned Toads.

Arriving in San Antonio, Mrs. John D. Sherman, president of American club women, defended action of the general federation executive committee in relieving Mrs. J. U. Fields, Hassell of her duties as state local biennial chairman. More than 5000 club women are expected to attend the national convention May 28 to June 6 at San Antonio.

Texas horned toaws simply will not stay out of the news. Another of the species was encased in a block of concrete at Wills Point, where it will be removed on March 30, 1929.

Texas socia. welfare workers, meeting at Waco, appealed for a state child welfare commission and selected Fort Worth for their next meeting place. Mrs. Elizabeth Speer of Houston was elected president, Dr. W. R. Gettys of Austin first vice-president, and Miss Gaynell Hawkins of Dallas (re-election) secretary-treasurer.

While federal prohibition enforcement agents were making preparations to see that both democratic and republican national conventions this year will be bone dry, as far as availability of intoxicating beverages for delegates is concerned, an effort was being made to heal the breach between Texas democratic drys and wets, as well as between those drys who are in disagreement relative to instructions for Texas delegates, prior to the convention at Houston.

Following a conference in Dallas between Gov. Dan Moody, a call was issued for another "peace conference," to be held in the same city on Saturday, April 7, to cement democratic forces in the state, particularly in the matter of prohibition. About 100 prominent Texas democrats are expected to attend the meeting. National attention was reported to have been turned upon Governor Moody's efforts to unite the two factions in Texas democracy.

The governor has been receiving numerous assurances of approval and support of his stand, which is that Texas delegates should go to the national convention instructed only as to the principle of prohibition, and not for or against any particular presidential candidacy.

Leaders in the movement for next Saturday's conference are Senator John Davis and M. M. Crane of Dallas, Former Gov. W. P. Hobby of Houston, Frank Culver of Fort Worth, Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman and J. A. Kemp of Wichita Falls.

National politics has gone through another week of argument, although considerably subdued, as to whether Herbert Hoover and Al Smith are the only republican and democratic candidates, respectively, worth consideration of their parties for the nominations.

Secretary Hoover went through the unusual thrill of having his only opponent in the Ohio primaries removed from the test of strength by the sudden and dramatic death of Senator Frank B. Willis. Republicans who had supported Willis, however, in his campaign against a delegation instructed for Hoover, intimated that the fight for an uninstructed delegation will continue. While Maine's delegation to the Kansas City convention will be without instructions, the delegates have assured the cabinet member that they will be voting for him when the republican roll is called in June.

Woman Now Has Everything Man Does Except Right to Pop Question

"The Right to Pop the Question Is The Only Masculine Right Now Denied Women — Only Custom Stands in Way and the Modern Woman Defies All Other Customs—Can You Beat It?" Says Dorothy Dix.

Leap year, the time when tradition gives women the right to take the initiative in love-making and pop the question to any man she fancies, is almost a third gone now, but apparently few, if any, members of the fair sex have taken advantage of the opportunity to obtain the husband they wanted instead of having to put up with the one they could get. Or, if they have, men have turned down their propositions flat.

Anyway, there is mighty little business doing in the wedding ring line. Instead of Leap Year having boomed the matrimonial market, it seems to have depressed it, and everywhere the vital statistics bureaus report that there have been fewer marriages licenses issued than usual.

This gives one to think, as the French say: Can it be that men resent being the chases instead of the chaser? That they prefer being the hound rather than the hare? That they desire to cherish the illusion that they themselves picked out coy and reluctant maidens and by a whirlwind campaign of wooing won them for wives, and not the idea of being run down and captured and dragged to the altar by women leaves them cold?

Do men find it easier to say "no" to a woman who makes a flat-footed proposal of marriage to them than they do to keep from being inveigled into asking her to say "yes" to their offer to assume her board bill and shopping ticket? In short, would it increase a woman's chances of marriage if we should abolish the present procedure of courtship, which condemns a woman to sit on the anxious seat and suck her thumbs while she waits for some man to come along and take a fancy to her, and instead give her the right to do as men do—be a go-getter who hustles out and does his best to persuade the woman he likes that he is IT and that her only chance of happiness lies in marrying him.

Or does the fact that women have made no use of their Leap Year privileges indicate that they lack enterprise? Or that they are too cowardly to risk being rebuffed by some sheik they admire? Or does their womanly intuition tell them that the old method is best, and that the recipe which their mothers and grandmothers and great-grandmothers used in obtaining husbands still works effectively with men?

Or does the subtle feminine temperament find more pleasure in working in a hidden indirect method than it does in a direct, aboveboard manner? And does a woman get more of a thrill and kick out of luring a man into matrimony without his ever knowing how it all happened that he married her than she would out of putting up to him a plain business proposition that he could either take or leave?

So far as one may judge by the Leap Year returns up to the present writing, both sexes seem inclined to leave the courtship question just where it has always been, and this is the more strange, because in it is involved the last shred of woman's inferiority complex.

The right to pop the question is the only right that men have now and women do not possess. They have the same right that men have to vote, to own property, to attend institutions of the higher learning, to follow any business or professional career for which they have the brains and a hankering. The only masculine right that is denied them is the right to choose their mates.

And this is the greatest right of all, for the privilege of helping pick out the town dog-catcher or deciding on who is going to be president for the next four years is a poor thing compared with the privilege of picking out the father of your children and the man with whom you are going to have to live for the next 40 years. Nor is it as important to a woman to have the doors of opportunity opened to her in the commercial and professional world as it is for her to have the matrimonial gates ajar.

If either sex should have a monopoly on picking out whom it married, it should belong to the feminine, because a woman is always so much more married than a man is, and her happiness and well-being are so much more dependent upon her getting just the right mate than a man's are.

If a man is disappointed in his wife and his marriage doesn't come up to all he hoped for he has a thousand consolations on the outside. He has his business or profession, his career, his ambitions. He can get away from the woman who bored him, the home that is uncomfortable. He can find amusements on the outside.

But the woman whose marriage is a failure is nailed to her cross. Her world is bounded by her home and she cannot go beyond it in search of the companionship she craves without creating scandal. She cannot even get away from the dull and tiresome and uncongenial husband or the grouchy and cross one, because he is the meal ticket and she has to keep her home together for her children.

As matters stand now women have only the veto power in deciding whom they marry, and even that is limited, because they can only refuse among undesirables. They cannot openly pick and choose their mates as men do.

If they could, there would be many more happy marriages than there are at present, for the woman who has the man she wants and about whom she is crazy is not only contented herself but she is breaking her neck to please him and that makes a soothing situation of affairs for the man. Half of the nagging, fretful, disgruntled wives you know are women who are taking out upon some poor goat of a husband their chagrin at not getting some man they wanted.

Why women who have fought tooth and nail for their other rights have submitted so tamely to the injustice of not being able to pick out their own husbands is beyond understanding. Nothing but custom has stood in the way of their proposing to the men they wanted for husbands, and the modern woman doesn't give a whoop for customs.

Yet the sex that has defied the age-old custom of long skirts and long hair and sheared off its petticoats to its knees and got a boyish bob can't summon up the nerve to say: "Adolphus, I am a crackerjack cook and can make bread like your mother used to make. Will you be mine?"

Professor Seeks Calendar Reform

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, April 1.—An Illinois professor may give to the world a scientific reformation, the like of which has not been attempted in almost 500 years—a new calendar.

His plan differs considerably from the present system of arrangement of days into months, but, on the other hand, does not follow the usual calendar change proposals, which have not won approval because of their radical division of the year into thirteen, instead of twelve, months.

The Illinoisan, who would reform the calendar as Julius Caesar did 1,46 B. C. and as Pope Gregory XIII did in 1582, is Dr. A. R. Crook, curator of the Illinois state museum at Springfield. His plan, which already has won indorsement of a calendar correction committee appointed by the League of Nations, will be presented officially before the Illinois academy of science at its spring meeting, April 20.

Briefly, Dr. Crook's suggestion is that the year be divided into 12 months, as at present, but with eight of the months possessing 30 days and the rest 31 days. At the end of the year a day to be called "Sylvester," after an early saint, would stand alone—a part of no month, but as a demarcation between the years. And once every four years an extra day—"leap day"—just as in the traditional leap year, would be interpolated next to "Sylvester."

TREE CEREMONY

Club Members' Names Placed at Elm Trees' Roots

IOWA PARK, April 1.—A tree planting ceremony was observed by the '23 Study club at its last meeting. With appropriate exercises two Chinese elms were placed in Knox park. At the roots of one was placed a bottle containing the names of the members of the Study club, at the roots of the other a bottle containing the names of the members of the Travel club of Wichita Falls, which had assisted in the organization of the Study club in 1922.

Mrs. Carroll Hester, president of the club, had charge of the ceremonies. Mrs. R. E. Brewster read a poem appropriate to the occasion. Mrs. C. C. Hudson gave the history of the elm tree, and songs which had been inspired by the beauty of the trees were sung.

MODISH MITZI — The Plot Thickens — By Jay V. Jay

Mitzi is still at work on her novel and the Goofer, as her collaborator, is suggesting that the heroine receive a package of jewelry—diamonds—anonymously. Fine! "But," says Mitzi, "they musn't be diamonds because that is a modern novel and, of course, they'd be modern jewelry."

The Goofer didn't know what modern jewelry was till Mitzi told him and showed him. A necklace and bracelet with crystal joining square cut redstones. Red being at the moment a most fashionable jewelry note. After all, it's things like these that make fiction fact. More realistic, you know!

There's more than one type of modern jewelry to choose from. My, yes. There's Premet's necklace and bracelet of composition stones in apricot, jade and turquoise. Now which would our heroine prefer? Which, wonders Mitzi, would interest her readers more? It's all so new, it would be hard to tell.

"You simply can't go on with the plot," says Mitzi, "till I decide about the jewelry—and it will take a chapter to describe it." That is, if she is to do it justice she'll have to mention Patou's new rondel chokers, gold metal discs combined with stones. "This is a novel novel," remarks the Goofer. Quite!

LINDA

A Love Mystery of College Life

By VIRGINIA SWAIN

Linda Turns Sleuth.

Linda shook her head in answer to Tom's question. "No. Like most men, Doyle has no memory for clothes. He probably didn't notice that my dress was purple. Besides, I can't believe he could have got into my room without being seen."

Tom shrugged. "Remember, I got into your room without being seen, only last night."

But Linda shook her head again. "No. I don't think this disappearance has anything to do with the murder. One of the maids must have stolen it. I remember Mrs. Morris discharged one for taking some slipper buckles of Dulcy's a few weeks ago."

"Well, if that's so, glory be to sneak-thieves. She's solved your problem for you, Linda. It doesn't seem possible that anyone could have taken it while you slept this afternoon—and the news about the dress only came out this afternoon."

"Well," said Linda, "I guess we might as well stop worrying about it. I'm convinced that maid took it."

He demanded and received the details of her session with the county attorney. "I think," he said when she finished the recital, "that this may end the matter, so far as you are concerned. Without positive identification, they can't make any further move in your direction, so sit tight and hold your tongue, you'll be out of the woods for good, Linda."

She smiled at him so that he felt impelled to kiss her.

* * *

It was nearly midnight when Linda finished repairing the damage done in her frantic search for the violet dress. Dresses and coats had slipped from their hangers to the floor of the closet and even the handboxes on the shelf had been upset.

Partly because she liked dainty clothes, partly to occupy her hands until some of the restlessness engendered by the day's events had worn off, Linda attached her electric iron and set about pressing the crumpled garments which had lain on the floor for hours. It was pleasant work, swinging the shining iron over chiffon and satin crepe and watching the wrinkles vanish.

As the pile of dishevelled negligees and frocks diminished and the row of sleek garments in the closet increased Linda found herself singing over the ironing board and stopped, half embarrassed at her own callousness. But the whole house might be listening, marveling that under the shadow of such calamity as she stood she could sing so blithely. The thought pleased her, made her sing the louder.

At last she picked up the torn muslin sheath of the vanished dress. On her way to put it in the waste basket she stopped suddenly and lifted it to her nose. A strange perfume clung about its folds. She sniffed again. It was not black narcissus or chypre or any of the faint flower odors she knew and had used herself. There was a more subtle suggestion of spice and ambirgris. Whatever was associated wth it in her memory hung just beyond the boundaries of consciousness. She could not remember where she had smelled that scent before.

She did no more singing over the ironing board. The last frock to be pressed was a dull blue tailored crepe. It had been a favorite of the early fall, but she had laid it aside because, as fashions demanded shorter and shorter skirts, it demanded the attentions of a seamstress to make it smart again.

She spread it out on the board and bent curiously when a slight crackling sound came from one of the pockets. She had a way of thrusting classroom notes written on stray envelopes into the pocket of any frock or coat she happened to be wearing.

She pulled out a crumpled slip of paper, expecting to find it covered with an outline of home nursing tactics. It was pale blue and oblong, and it fluttered open in her hands.

Under the heading, "Merchants State Bank," were the printed phrases of a check. It was filled out for eighty dollars, payable to Elsie Lancer, Inc., and signed in a flowing, erratic hand by "Dulcy Ellis."

Linda set the iron down on the white cover of the froning board. It had burned a neat brown hole and filled the room with pungent smoke before she picked it up again and set it on its metal stand.

The scene came back to her—Madame Elsie Lancer's cluttered room in the Tavern, Dulcy dancing in, waving the check aloft, Madame Elsie's blue-black eyes gleaming over Linda's ten-dollar bills and the vivid purple dress spread out on the bed like the airy costume of an invisible ballet dancer.

She could see again the fury in Dulcy's eyes as Madame reached for Linda's money with the suave apology, "So sorry. I've just sold the frock to this lady."

This was the check she had offered to return to Dulcy for Madame. From the moment she had slipped it in the pocket of the frock she was wearing on that afternoon, Linda had not thought of it again.

She ran to the drawer where she had laid the torn muslin. Then she went out into the hall and knocked at Dulcy's door. There was no answer. Dulcy's hours were growing later and later and had occasioned some grumbling from Mrs. Morris and some envious cattiness from the other girls.

Linda pushed the door open and saw that the room was empty. She went in quietly and turned on the light. Two cut-glass perfume bottles with silver tops stood on the warped and stained dresser.

Linda walked straight toward them and lifted the stopper of the first one.

Police Sunday were searching for an automobile belonging to the Lightser Rent a Car system which was stolen late Saturday night, from Doc Allen, bookkeeper at the City National bank, at 1609 Ninth street.

Among The Flockers

"BIRDS OF a feather will flock together," remarked Senator Alfred Robinson of Indiana in a fierce debate in which he assailed three former members of Woodrow Wilson's cabinet and Governor Smith of New York, because Harry F. Sinclair had been at one time a member of the New York Racing Commission.

Yes, "birds of a feather will flock together."

Governor Big Ed Jackson of Indiana, saved from the penitentiary by the statute of limitation is the personal friend and advisor of Robinson.

John Duvall, removed from the office of mayor of Indianapolis, is another friend and backer of Robinson.

D. C. Stephepson, former head of the Ku Klux Klan in Hoosierdom and now serving a life sentence in the penitentiary for the murder of a young girl, is another pal of the Indiana senator.

Indeed, Robinson and his lawpartner defended Stephenson when a jury of 12 gave the man who claimed to be the law in Indiana, imprisonment for life behind the stone bars of the state bastile.

There are others high in the councils of the republican party of Indiana awaiting trial, who are the cronies and backers of this indiana senator who was given an appointment to the senate to fill a vacancy by Big Ed and his lieutenants.

Flood Control Is Coming

FLOOD control of the Mississippi valley is coming. Thirty-one states are interested. Seventy members of the United States senate voted to pass the $325,000,000 control measure. There was not a negative vote cast. It was the quickest legislative act in the history of the American congress.

Now the house will respond as more than four-fifths of the membership is for the senate measure and immediate action. All the republican senate leaders urged the passage of the measure; all the democratic senate leaders urged its passage. It was a unanimous vote. Before final action was taken, President Coolidge was praised to the skies. Indeed it was said by a leading democratic senator that the president called representative senators to his council room and urged quick action.

Well, quick action was the order of the day.

According to the foremost engineers in the employ of the government the flood control plan will cost $500,000,000. It will be money well spent. It will control and then harness the father of waters. It will remove a long standing menace to the valley dwellers. It will let the world know that scientific builders backed by the money of a great people are competent and capable to put an end to the flood disasters which have inflicted property looses running into the billions in the past 50 years.

"COTTON advances on weather talk." Head line over market quotations.

"Wheat advances on crop reports." Headline over grain quotations.

There is going to be the smallest carry over next July for many years. This speaking of cotton. As for wheat, it is announced that the soft winter wheat acreage in Illinois and Indiana and Ohio indicate a short yield when harvesting time comes.

American wheat producers face the competition of the growers of 37 grain producing countries. Home consumption is their one best bet.

Cotton growers engage in a gamble year in and year out. A bumper crop spells poverty; a famine crop spells prosperity for those who staple for salew ETAOINNNNNN produce cotton and have the fleecy staple for sale.

Big Bill and the Bombers

MAYOR BIG BILL THOMPSON and District Attorney Robert E. Crowe head one republican faction in the city of Chicago and United States Senator Charles Deneen and Judge John Swanson head another faction. Big Bill and his crowd control the county and city offices. Deneen and his henchmen are ambitious to smash Big Bill and to obtain the plums for themselves. Diamond Joe, king of the Italian colony, was a Deneen lieutenant. He's gone. They buried him in a silver coffin with gold lining. After the funeral bombs were exploded on the premises of the senator and the judge. No casualties. Big Bill is of the opinion that Deneen and Swanson exploded bombs for political purposes. Next.

An Army of Idle Workmen

JAMES J. DAVIS, a Coolidge cabinet functionary, has let it be known that 1,874,000 persons are out of work in the United States. Secretary Davis addressed his letter to Vice-President Charles G. Dawes. He remarked in the letter, "this situation was serious while not so extensive or grave as the estimates which have been generally circulated."

Davis has a program. That is, he advanced recommendations for the adoption of a program. He favors prompt relief through the inouguration of elaborate public building programs by the federal and state municipal government.

This would provide work for mechanics and all skilled artisans. Would it afford employment for the army of unskilled workers?

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE

NEW YORK, April 1.—Capt. A. J. Ayres, head of the missing persons bureau of the metropolitan police department, knows why girls leave home.

Unpleasant domestic conditions and foolish ideas about the glittering opportunities offered by Broadway are the principal reasons.

"The parents themselves, in most cases, are directly responsible for their daughters leaving home," he says. "They are too stern. Parents should not be so strict about entertainment of boys."

The bureau's help in locating lost sons and daughters, mothers and fathers, is enlisted by persons living in all states of the union and many foreign countries. There are regular requests for information regarding immigrants.'

Nearly twice as many men and boys as women and girls get into the "missing" records of the police here. Last year 3150 females were swallowed by the great city, a greater number than in any previous year.

A young woman who rode from Los Angeles to New York on horseback, had considerable difficulty in locating a public livery stable. But horses are not disappearing from Manhattan's traffic. They are much in evidence in the lower part of the island. Some large stores, dairies and bakeries with extensive and systematized deliveries have found horse-drawn vehicle more economical than autos. A few proud old families cling to carriages. The demand for saddle horses is certainly on the increase, with Central Park's bridle paths thronged at all day-light hours.

Sales of two and three hundred horses are regularly held twice a week in an arena in Twenty-fourth street, at Lexington avenue. There, in the throng on Mondays and Thursdays, one is likely to see Martin Finn, who makes regular trips to the middle west to buy horses for the New York market. He doesn't believe the automobile will end the use of the animals.

"The horse is regaining all its lost popularity. There are more in the United States now than there ever were. A horse is the nearest thing to a human there is, and he won't disappear as long as there are humans."

At the sales arena, in Twenty-fourth street, there is regular trading in second-hand wagons, carriages and harness.

Clarence H. Mackay is Irving Berlin's unwilling father-in-law, but he nevertheless likes music, and guarantees the rather considerable losses of the New York Philharmonic orchestra, which pays Toscanini, the Italian conducter, $10,000 every time he presides over a concert. Toscanini is one of the few conductors who can pack a hall. This circumstance is responsible for a story they are telling about Gigli, the great tenor. Gigli went around to see his friend, Toscanini conduct, but couldn't get anything but standing room. He hurried to Toscanini's dressing-room complaining, "Standing room for me, Gigli? Must I stand?"

"What, you complain?" the maestro, unaffected, replied, "What do you think I do for two hours?"

Texas TaleS

By C. D. WAIDE

The Texas cowboy who rode into town in the good old days and shot the lights out of the saloon now tunes in his radio and distens to an orchestra up in Chicago, where the life of a saloon light is still of uncertain duration.

A good example of the average Texas cattle ranch of today is that of Aaron Moss, in Llano county. He owns 22,000 acres of land, of which only two acres are in cultivation. He has a 12-room home on it, which is lighted with his own lighting plant. This plant also operates a refrigerator large enough for a small restaurant.

On the two acres of cultivated ground Moss grows almost every kind of vegetable and fruit that can be grown in Texas, and these are canned or preserved for home consumption. He has several hundred chickens on the place and every year a large number of fryers are canned. He kills several fat calves every year and cans an ample supply of steaks for the ranch use. All the lard, butter, milk, eggs, vegetables, meats and fruits needed to feed the average of 15 people who sit at his table every day of the year is produced on the ranch.

A huge garage stores ten cars, five of which belong to Moss and five to his cowboys. He has a tractor, grading machinery and several gasoline engines for various uses.

A complete system of pens, fences and gates are on the ranch and every gate is numbered. The ranch is cut into several pastures and "traps" by dividing fences. Artificial water holes have been built in reservoirs all over the ranch so that from nowhere do the cattle have to walk more than a mile to water.

In the evenings the cowboys have their choice of sitting around the ranch and listening to radio concerts, of reading the latest magazine, of playing the latest records on the talking machine, or they may get in their cars and drive over good roads to see the movies at Llano, 16 miles away.

Conditions are vastly changed from the old days when George Taylor was the best cow-camp cook in Concho county. George had had no rights until Abraham Lincoln's well and favorably known proclamation created them for him, and he was the only negro in the county—a situation that existed by unanimous preference of all concerned.

Concho County was wild in those days and men were discreet about matters that didn't concern them. However, the grand jury became interested in a complaint that George's employer had been putting brands on calves that were very different from those their mothers wore, and they asked George what he knew about it. His reply to several questions was the same: "I don't know, boss." That was about as much as he could say, incidentally, without stuttering.

"Look here, George," said the foreman in exasperation. "Don't you know anything at all?"

"N-n-no, suh, boss, and d-d-dat's de reason I'as l-l-living now."

There is a lot of difference between a farm and a ranch in Texas, especially in the eyes of a cattleman. A ranch is a place where cattle are produced, and if there is any agriculture on the ranch at all it is limited to feedstuffs for the cattle and not for the markets. A man whose holdings amount to less than 2000 or 3000 acres would be laughed at if he called it a ranch. Less than that is a "pasture." There is also a decided difference in caste and social standing between a ranchman and a farmer.

SMART BUT DON'T KNOW EVERYTHING

The newspaper should be, and frequently is, an expression of the life and thought of the community it serves. It is a public institution, although privately owned, and its character may be moulded by the readers if they will exert themselves to do so. The newspaper editor is always glad to welcome suggestions and to hear the opinions of those who read his paper, and if he is a capable and conscientious editor, he is always anxious to make the paper just what his readers want it to be. The only way he can learn what the readers want is for them to tell him. Editors are smart, but they don't know everything.—Brownwood (Texas) Bulletin.

A BETTER FINANCIER THAN ANDY MELLON

The ability of a dutiful and economical housewife to make a salary of $125 a month feed and clothe a family of five is regarded by a treasury department clerk as exceeding even the fiscal talents of his millaire employer, Secretary Mellon. The clerk said, "Secretary Mellon is a great financial genius, but the laurels go to that real financial genius—the little woman who takes my $125 a month and makes it care for a family of five."—Graham (Texas) Leader.

POLITICAL ISSUES TO THE FRONT

The biannual floudering of candidates for issues is getting well under way, and the old popular themes are being discussed again. Because farmers doubtless are stronger in voting strength than any other particular class, farm issues have always been popular, and candidates make extended efforts to conjure up an issue of some sort when there are none on the surface. Early campaign utterances this year indicate that the usual procedure may be expected.—Vernon (Texas) Daily Record.

Poultry and Pig Clinic Here Monday

There will be a poultry and pig clinic held at 611 Ninth street—the ground floor of the Perkins-Snider building—Monday evening at 8 o'clock, April 2. It will be held by Dr. E. A. McCain of the research and clinic department of the Geo. H. Lee company of Omaha, Neb.

The object of the clinic is to assist farmers and poultry raisers in reducing the tremendous loss among poultry and pigs, that occurs on the farm every year.

There will be no admission charge and nothing offered for sale at the clinic.

READ THIS FIRST:

Jill Justin, ultra-modern at 20, and adorably pretty, is kidnaped by auto bandits, but rescued by Jack Stuart, who takes her home and remains to win her hand in marriage.

Three wonderfully happy years of married life are allotted Jack and Jill. At their expiration the young couple find themselves the proud parents of twin boys and a girl.

Then the Great Event transpires. Stuart and Tony Justin are paid $100,000 for an interest in their tungsten mine by Pat Sweeney, father of Mary, whom he has nicknamed "Mike."

Nita Revelle, a gay divorcee, and Professor Le Tarte, a dancing man, come to town, each with separate identities. They intringe on the domestic tranquility of Jack and Jill. Later reconciliation smooths relations, and for a time all is well.

Nita Ravelle intrigues Jack's presence with her at a notorious roadhouse. Jill hears of his going, and follows with Mike Sweeney and Le Tarte, and sees Jack and Nita together.

Nita and Jack start back to town. They are kidnaped and taken to a house in the mountains, where Jack writes a note to Jill telling her to draw $1000 from the bank and deliver it to bearer as ransom for his release. Nita gives her personal check. The house is then locked and they are left for the night.

As soon as they are alone, Nita begins to play her game—that of stealing the heart of another woman's husband. When morning comes she has not won.

(Now go on with the story)

CHAPTER XLV

But Nita Ravelle made no move toward complying wkith the suggestion he had offered. She just sat staring out through a window at the side of a mountain, the timbered slopes of which reared up on a 45-degree angle only a few rods distant. His glance followed hers around to the window on her left, through which a similar view was revealed.

"We seem to be located in a sort or pocket in th' hills," he observed, laconically. She offered no comment, and after a moment he added, "But the question 'Where is it?'"

A full minute passed, and still she made no response to his tentative question. Then her gaze came slowly around again, and once more met his. Something, either the faint shadow beneath the eyes or the pathetic droop of the white lids sent a little stab of sympathy for her to his heart.

"It's a rotten shame, Nita, and I'm sorry I got you into this!" He spoke impulsively, jerked his chair around close to hers, and laid his hand on her foremarm resting in her lap. The act was bred entirely of sympathy, with no meaning save that inclination on his part to give expression to his feelings.

Whether she understood the motive that impelled him and understanding, resented it, or because she was tired and sleepy and in no mood to pick up the tools of her game, the fact remains that Nita Ravelle deliberately let pass the opening for which she had schemed for days. That person who fully understands women and their whims may explain Nita Ravelle in this instance. She cursed herself later for a fool. At the time she just looked at him and said:

"Yes, Jack, it's a shame. But don't blame yourself. You didn't get me into it. Still it's a rotten shame, as you say. A pitiful senseless, useless shame. And what's it all about? You don't know; I don't know what I want to know; nobody knows. It's just —oh, piffle!"

And that was that.

Noon came. Luncheon was brought them by a lanky, morose negress, the direct antithesis of George Washington. She brought the tray and departed, and she might have been deaf and dumb for all indications to the contrary she gave. The afternoon waned and waned.

Came 6 o'clock. But no Pete came to unlock the door. Then, at 6:30, there came a resounding knock, and a voice outside the door saying:

"Yessuh, Mist' Boss an' Lady!"

It was the old darkey, George Washington, but he carried no tray.

"Boss 'Enry he don' telefomed an' e' tole me foh t'tells youh-uns this away," was the greeting he brought them. And they waited, seemingly both of them, in anxious suspense, while the old fellow "rambled around Robin Hood's barn."

It finally developed that "Boss 'Enry had telephoned him, George Washington, to go tell Mist' Boss and Lady" they would be given their liberty providing they permitted the old darkey to blindfold them as on the night before, and then pilot them down and into a closed car. They would be taken to Elliston and released.

Following a ride of some 30 minutes, during which, had Jack Stuart but known it, their car was driven out into the country and then back to the town's suburbs, George Washington informed them they were at Main and Fortieth streets, and that he would leave them. Then he removed the kerchiefs from their eyes.

"Good-bye, Mist' Boss an' Lady" he said, and held out his ham of a hand. "Ah hopes yuh'uns'll shake da hand of an ol' niggah dat didn't mean no hah-h to yuh'uns on'y Ah jes' hadda do whut Boss 'Enry don' tole me!"

Both Jack and Nita shook hands with George Washington and that was the last time Jack ever saw the garrulous old fellow. He observed immediately that the car they occupied was the one he had rented from the garage the day before.

"I'll drive you to within a block or so of your apartments," he told his champion, without thought of the possible consequences. She offered no comment, either in favor or against the suggestion. All she said before leaving the car was:

"Be careful, Jack, for both our sakes, and don't let any hint slip out that we were together last night. It would ruin me!"

"Don't worry, my dear," he reassured. "I'm going to tell th' truth, but not all th' truth."

After dropping her a block away from her rooms, Jack drove around for 30 minutes, trying to make up his mind on how much of the story to tell Jill. She already knew, he assured himself, from the crazy note dictated by 'Emery, that he had been held for ransom. In all probability she had drawn the money as directed. Otherwise, of course, he would not have been liberated. He would simply recite the facts in the case, with the exception of Nita and her part.

"It's a rotten shame, Nita" said Jack.

Having fixed on his plan of procedure, he drove to the garage, explained briefly that his extended absence had been unavoidable, and started for his home, little dreaming the diabolical mess awaiting him there. To be sure, he was worried, in a measure, because he was forced to keep the whole truth from Jill. But Jill was a sensible girl, and would understand.

Thus cogitating, he let himself into the hall of their apartments. There had been no thought in his mind of slipping in unobserved when he had made use of his latch-key. He just let himself into the hall, where he hung up his overcoat and hat. Apparently, however, his arrival had not manifested itself to any of those in the living room from which came the voices of two or more persons.

The deep tones of Father Ryan rumbled out through the narrow crevice in the door, slightly ajar. Then he heard Pat Sweeney's voice and an instant later Jill's and Mike Sweeney's voices, both talking at once. It was the startling information contained in Mike's words that riveted Jack's attention and chained him, momentarily, to the spot. Her remark seemed to be addressed to everyone present.

"When we left the cabaret to go into the Casino Nita and Jack sat at the table!"

It was the names "Nita and Jack" that brought him up short and sent the blood leaping to his heart. Startled, amazed, he stood there and listened to that which "knocked all his carefully planned story into a cocked hat," as he, himself, expressed it.

"Nita Ravelle saw us, I'm sure of that," he heard the Sweeney girl say, and waited in the sweat of a nervous tension as she continued: "But Jack didn't see us, for he was facing the other way. We stayed in the gambling room for about 20 minutes, and when we came out they were gone. Jill had gone out so as to avoid a scene. During the time we were in there she almost broke the roulette bank, winning something over a thousand dollars.

"Which I want Father Pat to take and distribute among his needy ones," supplemented Jill.

"But you don't know positively that Jack went out with the Ravelle woman," spoke up another voice, that of Peter Justin. He continued: "Just because he happened to be sitting at a table with her doesn't necessarily mean that he went away with her!"

Good old Dad Peter, thought the listening culprit, his heart swelling with gratitude. Peter could always be depended upon to speak a good word for the absent one.

But he, Jack Stuart, was not absent. He was present—or nearly present. But what could he say for himself there in that room in the presence of all those who had just heard the indictment rendered against him by Mike Sweeney's words.

But, he must face the issue. He couldn't turn and sneak out like a cur dog. He waited an instant longer. Then he took the plunge!

"Thank you, Dad Peter, for your faith in me!"

He had pulled the door open quietly, and stepped well within the living room before speaking. Every face turned instantly toward him. It was a dramatic situation, tense and nerve trying to Jack. Jill broke the strain.

"Jack!" she cried, springing toward him. "Oh, my dear, my dear, I'm so glad you've come home—anyway!"

It was the qualifying phrase of the woman in her that she could not with-hold. Whatever he had done, she was "glad he had come home—anyway!"

It was the woman in her, too, and the heart-hunger that throbbed through every fibre of her being that impelled her to throw her arms around his neck and show everybody present that he was still her man! As long as there is life, we are so often told, there is hope. Until she knew for a certainty to the contrary she would hope her Jack was still all her own!

And it was this—and more—that she sobbed out, as she clung to him and kissed and hugged and kissed him again, totally unmindful at first of the others present. Then she remembered. Slowly, filled suddenly with a terrible dread, she disengaged herself from his arms and stood back.

She looked around the room at the waiting faces. Then she looked back at him—her man. She tried to speak—to tell him to clear himself. Only a gurgle sounded in her throat.

He saw and understood the struggle she was making—the agony she was enduring. But he was helpless. He could aid neither her nor himself.

Mussolini Widens Gap Between Pope and State

ROME, April 1.—With his single pronunciamento declaring the preparation of youth to be exclusively the mission of the state, Premier Mussolini has swept away months of effort at reconciliation between the Vatican and the Italian government.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy, who can be addressed in care of this paper.

ENERVATION AND BOILS.

Boils are produced from causes both inside the body and from outside infectious influences. When the body reaches a certain stage of acidosis, and the system becomes enervated through any bad habits, the outside flesh of the body offers a suitable soil in which the staphylococcus bacteria grow.

A break in the skin occurs someplace, such as around the collar band, or where the garters pinch, or a tiny scratch with the fingernail, microscopical in size, will break down the epidermis, or skin covering, to such an extent that these microscopical staphylococcus find a place to enter the tissues underneath the skin, burrowing down into the warm flesh which contains material to assist them in multiplying. Millions are produced in a few minutes, and a whole colony is soon created, causing the skin to swell into what is called a "boil." The swelling continues and fever is present, with usually great distress and pain.

Such degeneration of the skin takes place that the boil will usually open and discharge its contents. In some cases, when the boil is located high up on the neck or on the face, it is well to lance it before the surrounding tissue is so permeated with the poison that the brain is affected by it. In most cases, however, it is wise to wait until the boil breaks, perhaps encouraging it to soften by repeated applications of hot towels or a steady compress made of boiled flaxseed meal.

A carbuncle is simply a multiple boil with three or more openings. The openings discharge pus the same as a boil. Each opening usually contains a core of fibrin, which is a yellowish, green lump formed from the fibrin of the blood.

Lowered vitality can probably be cited as the main cause of both boils and carbuncles.

If you have ever suffered from these afflictions, you will recall that each boil started after you had become too tired from overwork, over-excitement, or overindulgence of some kind.

In addition to this trouble being caused by enervation, it is also produced by the use of too much rich food, such as cream, pancakes, sausages, candy and all other material out of which the body builds up a condition of acidosis, which is favorable to the cultivation of boils and the planting of staphylococci, the irritating cause.

If boils continue to occur, it is a good plan to have your urine examined, as you might discover that you are suffering from diabetes, which is caused by continued enervation, and some of those same agencies which produce boils.

In addition to correcting your dietetic habits, it is important that you develop more endurance, strengthening every part of the body by systematic physical culture.

The skin should also be kept healthy, and as many nude sun baths as possible be taken to keep the pores of the skin in good condition.

The bowels should never be allowed to become sluggish, and should be kept open by daily enemas until you learn to correct your diet so that they will move normally.

QUESTION: A. F. writes: "As a reader and also as one who realizes that your practical advice is good, I would like to know your opinion of chiropractic. I am no chiropractor, doctor, or follower of any one health method. I merely ask your unbiased opinion."

ANSWER: The fact that practically every state in the Union has a law regulating the practice of chiropractic is an assurance that there is a great deal of recognized value in this method of treatment. Chiropractic is defined as the science of adjusting the spinal vertebrae with the hands by means of a specific thrust. There is much difference of opinion about whether or not the spinal vertebrae actually get out of position, but there is no question but what the stimulation given to the spinal nerves through chiropractic treatment is helpful in bringing about increased tone to those parts of the body which received the added stimulation.

QUESTION: T. M. B. writes: "Please tell me whether or not soft-boiled eggs are harmful to a person with high blood pressure."

ANSWER: One with high blood pressure can use a reasonable number of eggs in his diet. Perhaps one a day would be about right. A high blood pressure patient should use only a limited amount of proteins, starches and sugars.

QUESTION: Mrs. R. D. asks: "What are the symptoms, cause and effect of pneumonia? Does it leave the health permanently wrecked? Can a person have pneumonia more than once?"

ANSWER: The answer to your question would be too long to print in this column. Upon receipt of your name and address I would be very glad to send you a special article I have prepared on this subject. In partially answering your question I will say that pneumonia is a very serious disorder. It does often permanently injure the lungs and can occur several times.

Hens Aid W. C. T. U. In Pro Campaign

EVANSTON, Ill., April 1.—The hens of Virginia will go to work on Sundays for the cause of prohibition.

An announcement to this effect came today from the headquarters of the national Women's Christian Temperance union here. It was pointed out that the members of the organization in Virginia are mostly farm women. And in order to raise funds for the cause of the drys, they have agreed that all eggs laid by their hens on the Sabbath day will be sold and the profits given to the W. C. T. U.

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to

FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By COLLEEN MOORE.

Did you know that Colleen Moore, recently voted by motion picture exhibitors to be the best box office star in pictures, sat on an extra players' bench for six months and then got a job lasting only three days?

Well, it's an interesting sidelight on the career of this highly popular Grand Exalted Queen of the Flappers.

One day her uncle, Walter Howe a famous newspaper editor, walked into the offices of a motion picture company in Chicago. He was astonished to find his lively little niece there. Inquiry revealed that she had determined on a film career.

When the big editor offered to use his influence in getting her a part, she refused his aid, saying that there would be no use of her getting into the movies at all unless she could "get by" on her own merits.

Six months later her first chance came. The job lasted only three days and netted her the grand total of $10.50. A short time later D. W. Griffith noticed her and immediately saw possibilities in Colleen.

Within a week she was on her joyous way to California, where Griffith directed her in a picture.

A long apprenticeship in small featured roles, then came a smashing success in "Flaming Youth," "Sally," "Irene," etc.

"This favorite story of mine," Miss Moore told me, "is one that I heard some time ago, and I believe it's the funniest one I've ever heard."

A man who stuttered badly went to a specialist for treatment. Finally, after ten difficult lessons, he succeeded in saying the following sentence quite distinctly: 'Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers.'

"Then he called in all of his friends and demonstrated to them the wonderful change in his speech. After reciting the sentence without stuttering even once, his friends began congratulating him on this splendid achievement.

"'Yes,' said the man, doubtfully, 'but it's s-s-such a d-d-ducedly d-d-d-difficult rem-ark to w-w-work into an o-o-o-ordi-n-nary c-c-conversa-sa-sation, y'know.'"

WHITE AND STANTON CLOUT HOMERS BUT WACO COPS CONTEST

CUBS HIT COBB TO WIN, 4 TO 3

Les Bats 2 Circuit Drives; Steengrafe in Form

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

The Spudders and Waco Cubs will continue their feud this year in the Texas league championship with spring honors even. Del Pratt's hirelings and the men of Carl Williams broke even in the two-game exhibition series when the Cubs captured yesterday's pastime out at the lot.

Waco won, 4 to 3, due to some very ineffective chucking by Herb Cobb. It was the first start of the gentleman from Pine Top, N. C., and he is not ready. Hurling the last three innings with the champions leading 3 to 0, Cobb permitted three runs in the seventh and another in the eighth.

Ruthian clouting by Lester White and George Stanton, and excellent pitching by Milt Steengrafe enabled the Spudders to lead until Cobb ambled to the hill. White and George accounted for all the Spudder tallies with home runs, White clouting two and Stanton one.

Homers Off Stein

Buck whacked his circuit drive off Lefty Stein in the first inning, over the right field wall. It was his second four-ply clout in two days.

Lester crashed both his home runs over the left field barrier, the first in the third and hte second in the fifth inning. Both were made off Stein.

Steengrafe turned in a glittering mound performance in the six innings he toiled. Thrice he pitched out of holes in which Loose sunnort had plunged him. In the second inning with the bases filled and one out Milt struck out Stein and caused Adair to lift to Roetz.

Again in the fifth with runners on first and third and two out, Pratt skied to Turgeon and in the sixth he turned back the enemy scoreless, though two runners were on the base lines.

The Californian held the Cubs to four hits, passed only one and fanned four.

Cubs Tie in Seventh

Four knocks, a base on balls and stolen base gave the Cubs three runs in the seventh inning off Cobb. Gallivan, first up, strolled. Adair struck out. Shires singled to right, Gallivan going to third. Brown flied to Jenkins in short left, the runners holding their bases. Pratt hit to left for a base, Gallivan scoring and Shires reaching third. Blackerby's single to center sent Shires home to tie the count, and Pratt to third. Waller hit to left, Blackerby stopping at second. Blackerby stole third. Vigare fanned.

The Cubs won in the eighth. Etie led off with a single to center. Gallivan doubled to left, Etie stopping at third. Etie scored on Adair's fly to Fitzgerald. Shires singled to right, Gallivan going to third. Brown hit into a double play, Swenson to Turgeon to Stanton.

Gallivan Stops Spuds

After pounding Stein for seven hits, which included the three homers, the Spudders were impotent against Gallivan in the last four innings. Only one hit was made off the Cub right hander and he passed but one and was never in danger.

Waco fielded errorlessly and athletes of both clubs exhibited some scintillating defensive plays. Skipper Del Pratt of the foe made a double play unassisted in the first inning when he snatched Danning's harsh liner and touched second to retire Turgeon. Two other two-play killings were made by the Cubs and one by the homelings.

Jenkins, Swenson, Danning and Brown accounted for sensational fielding plays.

Notes of the Game

The Spudders resume routine drill today. Several rookie athletes will be turned over to Les Tullos, manager of the Abilene club of the West Texas league, the Spudder farm.

Tullos' squad will work out in the morning at Athletic park and the regular Spudders will practice in the afternoon.

The House of David bewhiskered team from Benton Harbor, Mich., will play the Spudders here tomorrow.

Tom Jenkins made a pair of corking catches yesterday. He took Vigare's drive off the fence in the fourth inning and came in fast to snatch Brown's short fly in the seventh.

Swenson made a keen stop of Adair's harsh grounder to his left in the fifth but Stanton dropped Wally's accurate peg.

Ike Danning caught a nifty game. His stop of a wild pitch in the fifth with a man on base saved a run and he ran nearly to third base to pull down Pratt's foul in the ninth.

Brown went to the fence in deep center to grab Fitzgerald's drive in the eighth.

Stanton was the day's batting leader with three hits.

Pratt accepted 13 chances without an error.

Four, to three was the jinx for the Spudders yesterday. We lost at home and Amarillo by that score.

West Texas Teachers Win Second Cage Title

CANYON, Texas, April 1. (AP)—Coached by one who does not play the game himself, and trains his teams from the standpoint of a student of the game, the West Texas State Teachers college basketball quintet now holds the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic association title for the second time in two years.

Sam D. Burton has been the coach for the Buffaloes for seven years, and in that time his teams have lost only 22 games out of 146 played. Nearly all of the losses have been the first games of two-game series. Burton never has played the game himself.

The Buffaloes have held the association championship three times in the six years they have been members of the organization, and in that time always have finished in the top division. In the season closed recently they have won 19 of 23 games played.

Sports Done Brown

By NORMAN E. BROWN

There has been much discusion of recent years regarding the "ruination" of young ball players through the high powered system of press agenting and rushing them into the major leagues on the crest of the ballyhoo—without the proper training for a big league job.

Many of these highly-touted kid stars—after a brief trial—are sent back to the minors and are accepted as "bloomer" by many fans. No doubt some of them have been "broken" by the system.

But there steps up to defend the present system of handling ball players a well-known player, who worked his way into and through the majors under the old school, and who is watching the present system from the managerial berth of a fast minor league club.

Youth Has Fling

Says he:

"Young ball players are getting greater opportunities now than ever before.

"Not only in breaking into the major leagues, but in intensive training before and after they break in.

"For one thing, the coaching angle of developing a major league club has been systematized. Years ago the manager tried the individual schooling of the youngsters in addition to directing the general organization of the team, its play on the field, and the disposition of the surplus material.

"Now major league clubs carry at least two coaches—one for the pitchers and one for the infielders and general coaching work. The manager is free to devote himself to perfecting the team play and studying the work of the men in the games.

"The coaches have time to work with the youngsters individually, correct their weaknesses, and teach them the fine points of major league ball.

Youngsters Scarce

"Good young baseball players of promise are scarcer these days. Competition among the major league clubs is keener. Once having found a likely prospect, the big league manager is more eager than ever to develop him as rapidly as possible. He is placed, to his advantage, with a minor league club, where he is assured a chance to play regularly—under competent coaching, to improve his game.

"Of course, some fellows are handicapped by being shoved into a big league job before they are ripe, but I figure that if a player has it in him this setback won't ruin him.

"Closer alliances between the big and minor league clubs are helping the young players. The boys now realize that they are in demand in the big show and will be shoved up there the minute they produce."

All of which, coming from a player who might be longing for "the old days," should have some weight.

Mickey Walker Defends Title Against Hudkins

CHICAGO, April 1. (UP)—Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, will be matched to fight Ace Hudkins of Omaha in a title bout at Soldiers' field here July 19, Promoter Jim Mullen announced today.

Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, will be here for a conference this week, Mullen said. Negotiations with Hudkins have progressed to the point where his signature for the bout is almost a certainty, the Chicago promoter said.

DAILY DOPE

By Larry Dailey

MR. TEX RICKARD threatens to start a fistic famine in these United States. The eminent promoter, who went the late P. T. Barnum some better by proving that the ballyhoo will bring the come-ons at the rate of one a second instead of one a minute, is to stage the next heavy title fight in London. Tex announces that Tom Heeney, the "logical contender" and Gene Tunney are to meet some time in July in the British capital.

In the event Rickard does take the next Tunney engagement to London there will be no weeping and wailing on the part of fistic enthusiasts on this side of what is sometimes referred to as the big pond. With the exception of Dempsey there isn't a fighter who deserves to be in the same ring with Tunney. Gene is not a great fighter. But he is a much more formidable battler than is generally credited. He at least can "take" all the Heeneys, Sharkeys, Riskos, and the rest of the so-called challengers, like the Spudders took the New Orleans Pelicans. Tunney and the slow-moving, slow-thinking Heeney, who at best is nothing more than mediocre, would be a joke in a titular war.

RICKARD'S UNCANNY ability in guessing right as to what the public wants and his luck may make a Tunney-Heeney affair successful in London. But that is doubtful. They don't have sports enthusiasts at least not for boxing, over there as here. The National Sporting club, that exclusive organization of peers and millionaires, is one of the oldest and most successful of all such organizations. But that sort of patronage doesn't make the promotion of a titular fight on the Rickard scale a success. It's the man on the street, the thousands of them, who pay the money to keep sports going, not the few of the wealthy. And the man on the street in London doesn't have the interest nor the means to patronize world championship fights as in the United States.

GREAT SUCCESS is attending the membership drive of Weeks Park Golf club. One hundred and seventy-five new members were signed in March, making the total more than 250, with the goal of 300 doubtless to be achieved. Membership in the club is highly desired. For the very nominal sum of $25 a year one has the facilities of a superb 18-hole golf course, excellent tennis courts, a clubhouse complete in appointments and conveniences and the opportunity to mingle with real sportsmen and sportswomen. It's cheap at the price.

BUVID BEATEN IN HILL DUEL

Estell Effective Until 7th; Kallina Smites Triple

Special to The Record News.

AMARILLO, April 1.—Stepping out in mid-season form the Amarillo Broncs and the Spudders here this afternoon staged a ball game which raised a neat Sunday crowd off its feet time and again for the Broncs to win out in the eleventh frame by a count of 4 to 3.

It was a pitchers' battle with Buvid finally the loser, when Swansboro lifted a three-bagger toward the clouds and Wright followed with a single, his fourth to make a perfect day.

Spudders Almost Win.

For a long time the Spudders' total of two hits it seemed would win a ball game with two scores in which one hit did not figure, but the admirable defense of the Spudders, which caused 15 men to die on base, finally gave way to the law of averages and the Broncs got two bingles in a row to win.

Benton who burned up all pitchers Saturday, did not have so good a day getting a double to lead off in the tenth, but otherwise not tasting blood.

Kallina scored the first run with a mighty three-bagger after Jones had walked. Lamb sacrificed him home with a fly to left.

Score Tied in Ninth.

The score was tied in the ninth when it seemed Lyons would surely end the battle then. But Connelly could not pick up Luciano's single until he got to third and Lapan sacrificed him home.

Estell went good until the seventh when three hits in a row which accounted for two runs showed he was weakening and Buvid could not head them in that eleventh.

Wright and Pullins starred in the hitting of the day, the young Pullins at second appearing a find. The game today evened the series.

Now a finer tooth paste—yet 25c the large tube

THERE are many good dentifrices at 50c. But do you need to pay that much in order to have lovely white teeth and a healthy mouth?

For a long time, we felt that 25c was an ample price—even for a first class paste. And so, after more than thirty years of study of mouth conditions as makers of Listerine, we created Listerine Tooth Paste at 25c for the large tube.

Now, thousands, having learned that it cleans teeth as perfectly as more costly dentifrices, use it the year 'round and apply the saving to buying things they need.

Such saving, for instance, permits the purchase of from one to three pairs of woman's hosiery during the year, a good hat for a man, radio tubes, theatre tickets, things for baby, etc.

If you are single the average saving this dentifrice affords is $3.00 a year. Think what the saving is when the family is large!

Buy a tube from your druggist. Compare it with any dentifrice you have ever known. Judge only by results. You will be delighted.

Teapot Committee Casts For New Scandal

WASHINGTON, April 1. (UP)—Harry F. Sinclair is scheduled to go on trial alone Wednesday in the district of Columbia supreme court on charges of conspiring with Albert B. Fall to defraud the government in the Teapot Dome oil lease.

Meanwhile, the senate Teapot Dome investigating committee, continuing its inquiry into the many ramifications of the oil scandals, is scrutinizing other government oil transactions, particularly the recent renewal of a government royalty oil contract with Sinclair.

This contract was originally let by Albert B. Fall, then secretary of interior, in 1923, a few months after he and Sinclair had signed the Teapot Dome lease. This transaction provided fo rthe sale to Sinclair of about 2,000,000 barreis of oil annually which the government acquired as royalty from private drillers in the Salt Creek field, government oil tract adjoining the Teapot Dome naval reserve.

The government received its payment from private drillers in oil and Fall decided to sell this oil to Sinclair. When the contract expired recently, Secretary of Interior Work renewed it.

The renewal was signed February 20, soon after the senate Teapot Dome committee discovered that Sinclair gave Fall $233,000 in liberty bonds and that he also gave part of the Continental Trading company bonds to Will Hays for the republican national committee campaign debt.

Some protests were received by Work against the renewal but Work told the senate committee last week that no charges showing fraud or violation of the law had been filed in connection with them and that "the records indicate the contract was a good one from the standpoint of the government and that the provision for renewal was a binding obligation which could not be disregarded except upon showing of fraud, wrong-doing or violation of the law."

While this matter is being examined by the senators, Sinclair will be on trial alone on criminal conspiracy charges growing out of the Teapot Dome lease which was cancelled by the United States supreme court on the ground of fraud, as a result of the government's civil suit.

This is a retrial growing out of the mistrial last fall because Sinclair hired Burns detectives to shadow the jury. Fall was too ill to return and stand trial this time so the court held that Sinclair should be tried alone.

This trial should be shorter than the original one promised to be because in the meantime Fall's son-in-law, M. T. Everhart, after having been granted immunity by a recent law, testified to a senate committee under oath that Sinclair gave Fall $233,000 in Liberty bonds. In the former trial, the government spent much time in attempting to prove this indirectly by tracing the bonds but they had no direct evidence because Everhart refused to testify then on the ground of self-incrimination.

Last week lawyers on both sides were at El Paso, Texas, taking the depositics of Fall. This may be offered in evidence by the defense. Sinclair probably will contend that the $233,000 which he gave to Fall was given after the Teapot Dome lease was signed was not a bribe but payment for a third interest in Fall's ranch. Sinclair also will endeavor to disprove the government contention that he was favored in the lease. Fall makes the defense that President Harding approved his leasing, that it was in accord with legislation passed under the Wilson administration, and that he made a good bargain for the government.

However, in the previous trial the government produced several oil men who testified that about the time Fall and Sinclair signed their lease they were being told by Fall there was no intention of leasing Teapot Dome.

Since the original trial Sinclair and William J. Burns have been sentenced to jail for shadowing the jury. An appeal is pending.

Negress Accused Of Disturbing Worship

Disturbing a religious meeting was the charge filed on the corporation court docket against a negro woman, following an affray which broke up the meeting at a negro church Sunday night.

The two women started slugging at each other as the final hymn for the evening was being sung, denied the congregation a proper benediction, and started a small riot which was quelled when police were summoned. At least this is the story told by one of the church deacons, who has declared he will appear against the woman charged when the case is called Monday morning.

Rail Merger Plan Up Today

House Final Vote Slated For Tuesday

WASHINGTON, April 1. (AP)—The long discussed Parker plan for the voluntary consolidation of railroads will be presented to the house tomorrow for the first time in bill form.

The measure represents months of work by the house commerce committee which tentatively has agreed upon its provisions after listening for weeks to the testimony of members of the Interstate Commerce Commission, railroad officials and others interested in the transportation industry.

The committee has set Tuesday for a final vote on the bill but this is regarded by members as a mere formality.

The committee chairman, Representative Parker of New York, and sponsor of the measure, said in a statement today that the primary purpose of the measure was to give to the established policy of permitting the voluntary unification of railroads and their properties.

"The bill has two main features," he said. "First, to afford greater and more effective protection to the public in railroad consolidations, so that only consolidations which effectively promote the public interest will be authorized.

"Second, to afford to the carriers more flexible methods for carrying into effect a plan which has been approved."

"You're Another One," Says Col. Estes When Informed Work Denies Setto

ST. LOUIS, April 1. (AP)—The controversy over the treatment accorded Col. Carl L. Estes of Texas by Secretary of the Interior Work grew more heated today when Colonel Estes, on his way back to Texas to report to Governor Dan Moody, stepped from his train to read in a St. Louis newspaper, Secretary Work's denial that he had called Estes a liar.

The controversy revolves around the language used by Secretary Work when Estes, a member of the Texas governor's staff, called to speak to Work about a national park in Arkansas. Estes claims the interior department rendered an adverse report regarding the Ouachita National Park in Arkansas and that he called on Work to correct "several untruths" which Estes claimed were contained in the report. The people of Texas, he said, are interested in the project.

"So the honorable secretary is now calling me a liar in the public press," Estes observed. "I intend to follow his example and pass the lie to him again, as I did after his first use of the term in his office at Washington."

Our courteous ad taker will receive your Classified Ad and help you to word it, then our collector will call the following day. These accounts are "accommodation accounts" for the convenience of our patrons in transacting business over the telephone.

Classified Ad patrons desiring to have ads charged must have a telephone listed in their own name. No book record is made by the publishers on account of the great number of transactions, hence the necessity of collecting promptly.

Correction of errors in Classified Ads must be made before the second insertion. No allowance will be made for more than one incorrect insertion.

Cancellations and adjustments regarding errors should be telephoned to the Classified Ad Department between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.

5 REBELS DEAD AFTER ATTACK

Marines Encounter Largest Band

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 1. (AP)—Scattering what is believed to have been the largest band of Sandinistas encountered in more than a month, patrols of U. S. marines fought two sharp skirmishes today in the region about 50 miles north of Jinotepe. There were no marine casualties.

Five rebels were killed and two wounded. One of the dead is known to have been one of the chief lieutenants of Augustino Sandino, although the name of this leader was not given out. For military reasons marine headquarters also are concealing the exact locations of the two contacts.

The patrols captured 21 horses and mules, 16 saddles, two rifles, several machetes and a number of bombs.

Three patrols were searching for the band which had been reported in southern Nueva Segovia. The first patrol, under Lieut. Harold C. Roberts of New York, apparently surprised the rebels in a mountainous region and routed them with several casualties.

According to the meager advices received here, the band then divided and an hour later the second patrol under Lieut. Paul A. Putnam of Michigan, met part of the band. Lieut. Putnam's men used machine guns effectively.

After each encounter the marines pursued the rebels vigorously but apparently they scattered in several directions.

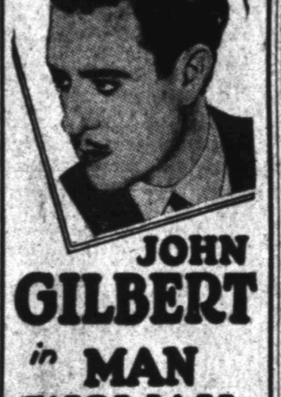

Parents, Jailed As Drunk, Lose Children

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 1. (UP) State-wide search was instituted tonight by police in an effort to find Betty Jane Forcey, 9, and her sister, Mary Eleanor Forcey, 4, who are believed to have been kidnaped by automobile thieves.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Forcey, parents of the children, were arrested when they reported they left their children in their parked automobile in the downtown district while they visited a club. They said they returned in an hour to find both the car and children gone.

Both were said to have been intoxicated.

Today { At the Theaters

STRAND: Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" on the Vitaphone. Talking motion pictures.

MAJESTIC: "The Last Command" with Evelyn Brent and Emil Jannings. Paramount News. Fables. Topic of the Day.

OLYMPIC: Jeanne Eagels and John Gilbert in "Man, Woman and Sin." Our Gang comedy. Pathe News.

MISSION: Fred Thompson in "Jesse James." Century comedy. Fox News. On the stage, The Laffin' Thru' Company.

Wichita Falls audiences took kindly to the Vitaphone which T. B. Noble, Jr., has installed in the Strand theater.

Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" has sung his way into the popular thoughts of the city, and the imagination of all has been stirred by the idea that motion pictures which present the artists singing and speaking are now realities here.

The realism is increased because all the sound comes from two gigantic horns placed directly behind the transvox screen in which the pictures are thrown.

Over at the Olympic theater Jeanne Eagles, the famous star of "Rain" is seen in another great show, "Man, Woman and Sin."

Ten years ago this week, April 5, to be exact, Mary Pickford, David Wark Griffith, Charlie Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks formed what has come to be known as one of the world's greatest motion picture organizations in the United Artists corporation. In the years that followed, Gloria Swanson, Norma Talmadge, Sam Goldwyn and Joseph M. Schenck became additional owner members.

A total of 75 pictures has been released by the organization so that the quality has always been held to the present high standard.

New Possibilities For French Pact

PARIS, April 1. (AP)—French opinion, recently skeptical of the possibility of a treaty among the big world powers outlawing war, has changed markedly with the most recent note of the government to Secretary of State Kellogg.

Now it is believed here that there is a strong chance for a pact, such as the United States government has suggested, being signed, with the United States, France, Great Britain, Italy and Japan signatories.

France desires, however, to reserve three points—and these reservations may be unsatisfactory to the United States.

1. The pact must be extended to include other nations which some day might declare war.

2. If one signatory state breaks the treaty, all other signatories must be released from their obligations under it.

3. Outlawry of war must exclude legitimate wars of national defense.

Forest Reserve Fire Serious

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., April 1. (AP) The most serious of six forest fires raging in the Ouachita national forest reserve tonight was sweeping over Fodderstack mountain beyond control of service men and volunteers. Six counties have been invaded by the flames which destroyed approximately 1000 acres of timber on the reserve.

They were entertained at an informal dinner at the Montgomery country club by officers of Maxwell field tonight. The flight from Brownsville, Texas, today was uneventful.

POLICE BATTLE IN CHICAGO

'John Doe' Warrant Issued For Dry Officer

CHICAGO, April 1. (UP.)—The battle between city police and a special squad of federal prohibition agents from Washington sent to "clean up Chicago," was on in earnest here today.

A squad of detectives under Chief Michael Grady were seeking Myron Caffey, one of the special dry agents, on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder in the shooting of William Beatty, a court bailiff, in a saloon raid last week.

George E. Golding, in charge of the special agents, was reported by police to have refused them admittance to the hospital where the wounded bailiff was taken.

Police Commissioner Michael Hughes entered the controversy today with an order to all police to be on the lookout for Beatty. A "John Doe" warrant has been issued.

Will Surrender.

Federal officials have announced that Beatty would be surrendered at the federal building when police submit the warrant but that a written habeas corpus immediately would be served restoring the accused agent to federal status.

City and state authorities are insistent that they have the right by virtue of a supreme court decision to proceed with the prosecution of a "criminal case."

Mayor William Hale Thompson denounced the activities of the special dry squad declaring "if these agents came here to shoot down our citizens they should be treated the same as any other criminals."

Golding, who has won the name of "hard boiled" in his raiding activities, is said to be planning another series of raids this week. City police and detectives were said to have instructions to see that the raids are carried out in the proper manner.

George E. Q. Johnson, U. S. district attorney, has requested the suspension of Capt. T. J. Callaghan, head of the government secret service in Chicago, for publicly resenting the reported action of Golding's men in representing themselves as secret service agents.

War Officials at Alabama Field

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 1. (AP)—Assistant Secretary of War Trubee Davidson and Major General James E. Fechet, chief of air corps, landed at Maxwell field late today en route to Washington from the canal zone. They will resume their flight early Monmorning.

Local Deaths

B. B. RICE.

Funeral services for B. B. Rice, of Springfield, Mo., salesman for a New York manufacturing concern, who died at his room in the Holt hotel Saturday morning, probably will be held Tuesday afternoon in Jackson, Tenn., where the body is being forwarded Monday morning by the Hines mortuary.

Mr. Rice, in his room at the Holt hotel, was talking to a friend early Saturday. When the friend left the room, returning a few minutes later, Mr. Rice was dead. A coroner's inquest returned a verdict of death by apoplexy. He is survived by his widow, his mother and three children.

MRS. W. B. GOODLET.

News of the death of Mrs. W. B. Goodlet, pioneer resident of Whitney, Texas, and mother of W. D. Goodlet of Wichita Falls was received here Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Goodlet died shortly after noon Sunday, and her son left here Sunday night.

Mrs. Goodlet had been a resident of Whitney for more than 50 years. She was 72 at the time of her death. She is survived by her husband, one son, W. D. Goodlet of Wichita Falls, member of the advertising staff of The Daily Times and Record News, and five daughters. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at Whitney, with burial in the Goodlet family cemetery.

JOE B. CANTERBURY

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, April 1.—Joe B. Canterbury, 47, 2031 Eagle street, died at 7:30 o'clock Friday night following a tonsil operation.

Funeral services will be held here Monday afternoon.

Mr. Canterbury came here from Dallas two years ago and has been in the plumbing business since that time. He is survived by his widow and one son, Ira; his mother; two brothers, Jim of Longview, and Sebe of Kansas; and two sisters, Mrs. Annie Coleman of Shreveport, and Mrs. Grace Weatherford of Longview.

"Soaring and Leaping" Is Pastor's Sermon

"Soaring and Leaping" was discussed Sunday night by Rev. H. B. Hobbs, who is conducting a series of meetings for the First Evangelical church at 1503 Broad street, at one of the largest meetings yet held in the church.

Rev. Hobbs will speak at 7:45 o'clock every night at the church, except Saturday, according to announcements made Sunday night by Rev. F. Doege, pastor of the church. Rev. Hobbs comes from the Kansas conference of the church.

Storm Along Northwest Coast Plays Havoc; Ships In Distress

Airplane and Occupants Crash Into Sea In Weather Disturbance; Flood Waters Cover Area

PORTLAND, Ore., April 1. (AP)—With two ships off the Washington and Oregon coast in distress, an airplane and its occupants reported having crashed into the sea, and residents of Coquille, Ore., reporting twenty miles of territory under water, a storm which played havoc for the past 48 hours, continued with lingering fury today.

Coast guardsmen from Hoquiem, Wash., were out today attempting to locate an airplane which was reported in the surf last night at Grayland, 20 miles south of here.

Plane Disappears

The plane, flying north, disappeared as soon as it struck the surface, witnesses reported.

At Marshfield, located in the timber belt of southwestern Oregon, reports were received saying that flood waters in the Coquille valley had reached their crest as a result of the run-off from the Coquille river. That stream jumped four feet overnight, making it seven feet above the normal flood stage.

The flood waters over-ran the railroad tracks between Coquille and Myrtle Point, placing that area under four feet of water.

Trains Halted

Train service south of Marshfield was suspended because of the flood conditions, which caused slides near Mapleton. Farther south, the Sixes river, driven to high marks by storm waters, was cutting a new channel near the Roosevelt highway in northern Curry county.

At Portland reports were received from the coast guard cutter Haida saying that craft had reached the distressed schooner Helen B. Sterling, a six masted vessel. A line was thrown aboard and the schooner was reported in tow bound for the Columbia river.

The Sterling, caught in the full fury of the storm, has been riding at anchor off Hecets Head, lashed by the winds.

Radio messages intercepted here indicated that the coast guard cutter Snohomish is searching for the schooner H. V. Kruse which was last reported riding out the storm on the southern Washington coast.

Strike In Soft Coal Fields Of Middle West "Officially" In Effect

CHICAGO, Ill., April 1. (UP)—The strike of the Illinois soft coal fields was in effect officially today.

Practically all bituminous mines in the state were to continue closed, all indications showed, and the strike reached over into surrounding states—Indiana, Ohio, Iowa, Kansas and Missouri—where many mines were to close down.

More than 100,000 men were thrown out of work as a result of the coal operators' refusal to continue the Jacksonville wage scale of $7.50 per day which was in effect until last midnight pending settlement of the wage controversy in the bituminous fields.

Approximately 57,000 miners in Illinois laid down their tools today adding to 30,000 others who had been idle because of lack of work. A few mines may continue operations in Illinois where owners have a demand for fuel supplies.

In Iowa, however, most of the mines will continue to operate according to President J. D. Morris of the state miners' union, although a partial shutdown is expected.

Approximately 20,000 miners were affected in Kansas and Missouri and a similar number in Indiana. Operations in Ohio also were to continue on a partial basis.

Union officials in Illinois expressed no great disappointment at the shutdown, saying the seasonal inactivity would have caused some cessation regardless of the failure of wage negotiations last Feb. 8, when they emphatically stood for no recession from the Jacksonville agreement.

The operators have insisted on a cut of $1.50 per day. The executive committee of the Illinois Coal Operators association will meet in Chicago next Thursday, April 5. President W. J. Jenkins said he hoped to hear some satisfactory word from the union by that time that would present a basis for arbitration.
