Police find McDuff

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — A former death row inmate suspected in cases involving nine women was arrested Monday when authorities were tipped to his whereabouts after his story was featured on a TV detective series. Kenneth Allen McDuff, who had been sought since March 9, was taken into custody by Kansas City police at a landfill where he was dumping trash for a private waste hauler. McDuff was not armed and did not offer resistance. He was turned over to the U.S. Marshal's Service and was scheduled to be arraigned on two federal charges today. U.S. Marshal Larry Joiner said in Kansas City that McDuff did not resist officers who were waiting for him at the landfill./6B

Mammogram study

BOSTON — Researchers who conducted one of the largest studies of mammograms said Monday they found preliminary evidence that women under 50 were more likely to die of breast cancer after they receive the tests. But they cautioned that the final results have not been released. The research, still unpublished, has come under attack from radiologists, who say it was flawed and its conclusions wrong. Nonetheless, some believe it may persuade health organizations to withdraw their support of routine mammograms for women under age 50./8A

Van Cliburn tapes

FORT WORTH — Texas Christian University will house the archives of the Van Cliburn International Piano Competition. The Van Cliburn Foundation recently transferred its audio, video and print history of the quadrennial competition to TCU's Mary Couts Burnett Library. TCU will catalog, arrange and preserve records of the internationally famous competition. A search is under way for an archivist for the collection, said Dr. Fred Heath, library director. One of the most urgent needs is to copy the early audition tapes, which were recorded in now extinct European Beta formats. Machines to play these tapes are hard to find in the United States. A firm has been hired to transfer all formats of video to VHS so there will be working copies for the Cliburn staff and researchers, Heath said.

Probe raises questions about county autopsies

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff writer

Scrutiny of the 19 autopsies performed for Midland County by a Lubbock pathologist under investigation may affect a recent murder conviction and may raise questions in the investigation of a missing teen.

Forensic pathologist Ralph Erdmann is under criminal investigation in three West Texas counties and has been indicted in another for alleged wrongdoings in his conducting of autopsies.

Erdmann, who has performed autopsies for 41 West Texas counties for nine years, is not under investigation in Midland.

But one autopsy being questioned concerns that of 27-year-old Theresa Ann Smith, who was fatally shot by her husband last summer.

Controversial contracts brought Perot his fortune

By Steven A. Holmes
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — In the popular folklore that surrounds him, Ross Perot started his company, Electronic Data Systems Corp., in 1962 with a $1,000 check and built it, through grit, determination and good fortune, into the largest data processing company in the world.

While that tale is largely true, it contains another element that Perot and his business associates do not always mention: the spectacular financial success of the would-be presidential candidate, who presents himself as a Washington outsider and a private-sector entrepreneur, began in the

Mayor lifts curfew; tension remains palpable

■ Troops remain on high alert as Los Angeles struggles to emerge from one of the deadliest riots of the century.

By Robert Reinhold
N.Y. Times News Service

LOS ANGELES — The authorities ended four days of curfew in Los Angeles on Monday as the schools, public libraries and banks reopened. But tensions remained palpable, and there was no move to reduce the presence of the police and heavily armed National Guard in the streets.

But despite the appearance of calm, the police and troops, cradling automatic weapons, maintained a high alert for the possibility of more trouble.

"We are remaining on top alert because we are not convinced it's over," said Stanley K. Sheinbaum, president of the Police Commission, which oversees the Police Department. About 6,000 guard, Marine and Army troops were deployed on the streets, with another 3,000 or so standing by in armories.

The five-member commission began to gather facts about why the police responded so slowly when the disorders first broke out last Wednesday evening. Among the questions to be examined, Sheinbaum said, was why Chief Daryl F. Gates left police headquarters for about an hour and a half that evening to attend a political fund-raising event in Brentwood, about 11 miles from where the violence was erupting. The commission does not have the power to remove the chief.

After several days during which many businesses were shut, office workers, shop clerks, lawyers and thousands of other employees filtered back into the city for the new work week. In the surest sign of normality in southern California, the freeways were again clogged on Monday morning under hazy smoggy sky.

"Things are under control," said May-

White House blames failed welfare plans

By Michael Wines
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The White House said Monday that the riots last week in Los Angeles were a result of social welfare programs that Congress enacted in the 1960s and '70s, but it refused to say publicly whether President Bush would offer any detailed alternative to those "failed" policies in coming weeks.

Other senior officials said that Bush favors an extensive lobbying campaign to enact and expand con-

Bar skirts law: Women aren't welcome

ROUND ROCK (AP) — From the "Men Only" sign on the door to the lack of a ladies' room, Charlie Johnson makes it clear that women generally aren't welcome at his watering hole.

Bar legend has it that the men-only policy began in 1947, after a destructive fracas that was attributed to the presence of women. There are few exceptions to the rule.

"We allow a man and his wife to come in here, or a man and his girlfriend if we think they're the right kind of people. What we don't allow is single women looking for pickups," said Johnson, 68.

"The kind of customers I have, I'd have a fight every 30 minutes if I let women in," he said.

Willie Pribble, Austin district supervisor for the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission, said liquor license-holders are allowed to have gender-specific policies as long as they don't constitute illegal discrimination.

"I don't think men-only or women-only is a violation of state or federal discrimination laws," Pribble said. "The only time we can take action is after the civil-rights folks have filed for discrimination."

'None of the above,' other write-in votes don't count

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff writer

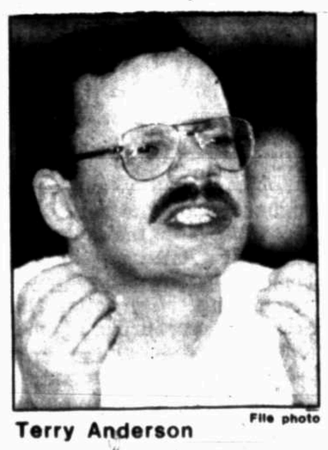

There were a few write-in votes in Midland's city race Saturday, but they weren't counted.

By law, Elections Administrator Bettye Calvert said the office is no longer required to count undeclared write-in candidates in the city, school and college elections. To be counted, those last-minute candidates must have declared their intent to run with the governmental entity in which they want to serve.

Mrs. Calvert said counting write-in names — a time-consuming practice in past elections — was ended by the last session of the Texas Legislature.

"Before, we sometimes had votes for Mickey Mouse, Adolph Hitler — that kind of foolishness," Mrs. Calvert said.

Ex-hostage says faith, not hate got him through

NEW YORK (AP) — Terry Anderson sat in a soaring church nave Monday and recalled life in captivity: being wrapped like a mummy and tied under a truck; almost losing his mind when the sign language partners he'd painstakingly tutored were moved; having to lock his own chains when his guards forgot to.

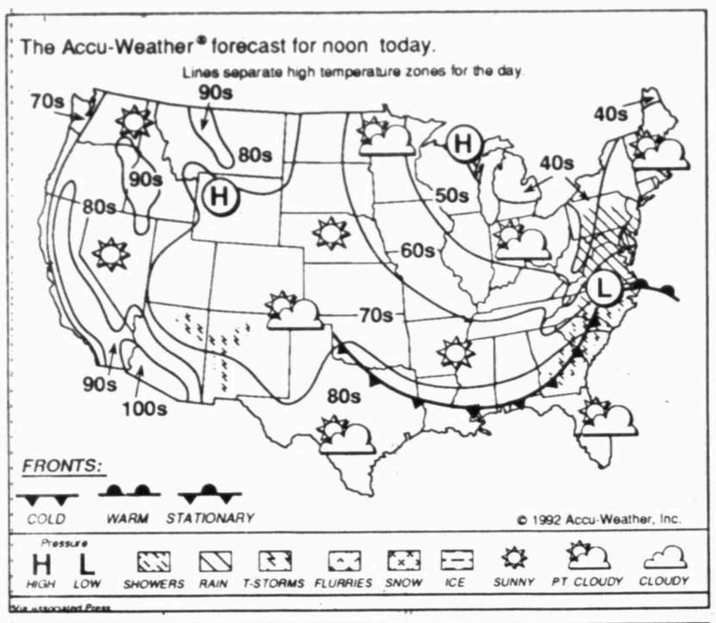

As Associated Press member publishers, editors and others listened in rapt silence, the news agency's chief Middle East correspondent spoke of his almost seven years as a hostage in Lebanon, an ordeal which included the bitter chore of being his own jailer.

WEATHER SUMMARY

NATIONAL SUMMARY:
Low pressure in Virginia will bring rain to an area from Pennsylvania to North Carolina. South of the storm, strong thunderstorms will erupt. Chilly weather will continue in the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley. Sunshine will prevail from the Plains to the West Coast, where it will be quite warm.

Look for cloudy skies, 80

Staff report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with isolated thunderstorms, a high around 80 and east winds at five to 15 mph. Tonight should be partly cloudy with isolated thunderstorms and a low in the mid-50s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Wednesday should be partly cloudy with isolated thunderstorms and a high near 80.

After an overnight low of 55, Monday's high reached 81 compared with the record high for that date of 103 set in 1947. The record low for that date is 39 set in 1933.

STATE

Showers and thunderstorms stretched across South and Southwest Texas on Monday, but the rest of the state was fair to partly cloudy.

Most of the activity extended along a line from Del Rio to south of San Antonio to Beaumont. More than 2 inches of rain was reported in some areas.

Pea-sized hail was reported near McCamey with some highway flooding in the region.

Weather was warm with readings reaching into the 70s and 80s.

Winds were light and north to northeasterly.

NATION

Rain and thunderstorms were scattered Monday in Texas and parts of the Midwest, with sunny and dry weather over much of the nation.

Thunderstorms in the Austin, Texas, area produced nearly an inch of rain at Bastrop in just 20 minutes. Victoria, Texas, also received nearly an inch during a six-hour period ending at 1 p.m. CDT.

Showers ahead of a stationary front were scattered from Kentucky to Iowa. Parts of Louisiana also had rain.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

EDGY: L.A. police, troops maintain high alert or Tom Bradley on the fifth day after the acquittal of four white police officers in the beating of a black motorist, Rodney G. King, set off waves of murder, looting and arson in the nation's second-largest city. "As much as possible we want to return this city to normalcy. We want people to feel free, to feel secure."

(From 1A)

It was a day of fast-moving events in Los Angeles, which got a visit from Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas, the Democratic presidential candidate, and Kim Dae-jung, the leader of the opposition party in South Korea, both of whom toured the Koreatown neighborhood, which was badly damaged by rioters and arsonists.

Gov. Pete Wilson discussed rebuilding plans with executives from several major California companies, including the Bank of America, Wells Fargo, Arco, Pacific Enterprises and Ralph's and Vons, two large supermarket chains. All had outlets burned and looted.

Normal postal deliveries and bus service resumed in the hard-hit South-Central area as clean-up efforts progressed throughout parts of the city and adjoining communities hit hardest by the riots.

Air service to Los Angeles International Airport returned to about normal, with planes again permitted to begin their landing approach over Inglewood, a suburb near the airport where there was considerable gunfire and arson during the riots. The courts reached near the breaking point trying to arraign arrested people.

Some in the affluent movie industry began to organize relief efforts. The actress Lindsay Wagner spent the day outside Gelson's, an upscale grocery store in the exclusive Pacific Palisades area about 15 miles from the worst rioting, asking for donations of food from shoppers.

The tally of dead grew to 58 on Monday, said the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department. Many of the latest deaths were the result of injuries suffured during the worst of the riots on Wednesday and Thursday. In addition, since 6 p.m. on Wednesday there have been 2,383 injuries, 11,656 arrests, 5,808 fire calls and an estimated $717 million in property damage in Los Angeles and other nearby cities.

The pattern of arrests illustrates the changing rhythm of the disorders and the police response. There were about 4,000 arrests in the first frenzied 36 hours after the first outbreak of unrest.

There were 2,000 more arrests from Friday morning to Saturday morning, and then 3,139 from Saturday to Sunday morning as the military presence built, and then the arrests dropped back to 2,340 from Sunday morning to Monday morning as calm returned.

BLAMES: Failed plans at fault, White House says

servative social legislation that Congress has not enacted.

While the White House also may propose some additional programs, they are likely to be small, and the administration does not contemplate "dramatic" new federal expenses should they be put into effect, the officials said.

One official also said Bush now may fly to California on Wednesday evening, a half-day before he had been scheduled to go there, to create time for a "hands-on" tour of areas affected by the Los Angeles riots.

After a morning meeting with several Cabinet secretaries, Bush ordered Deputy Secretary of Education David Kearnes to go to Los Angeles to coordinate federal relief efforts.

In the areas hit hardest by the riots, the authorities Monday ended four days of curfew as the schools, public libraries and banks reopened. But tensions remained palpable, and there was no move to reduce the presence of police and heavily armed National Guard troops in the streets.

The White House said Monday that it would supply $100 million in federal disaster aid to riot victims and another $200 million to rebuild damaged areas and that the Small Business Administration would provide up to $400 million in loans to rebuild businesses that were looted and burned.

Property damage is still being assessed, but Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley has estimated it at $500 million.

Bush told reporters Monday morning that his administration had "some very good proposals out on the table right now, proposals who clearly have come of age," and said that he would consider them in detail later this week.

"I'm very pleased that it has calmed down out there," he said.

But the main thrust of the White House response was political, which is the way it was described by Bush's spokesman.

"We believe that many of the root problems that have resulted in inner-city difficulties were started in the '60s and '70s and that they have failed," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said.

Pressed for examples, he said, "I don't have a list with me."

Bush and other Republicans have often charged that the "Great Society" programs fostered by President Lyndon B. Johnson, a Democrat, in the 1960s, at the time of the last major urban riots, made poverty and other social problems worse instead of better.

Fitzwater contended Monday that "liberal Democrats" in Congress had prevented Bush and his Republican predecessor, President Ronald Reagan, from winning approval of many changes in welfare policies and social programs that might have helped avert last week's disturbances.

The remarks placed the White House response to the Los Angeles disturbances squarely in an election-year political context days after Fitzwater berated Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, the likely Democratic presidential nominee, for criticizing Bush's initial reaction to the riots.

AUTOPSY: Pathologist's work is being questioned

(From 1A)

At the trial of Fountain Smith Jr., defense attorney Glen Aaron argued that there was a connection between Ms. Smith's cocaine use and the murder.

Erdmann testified that the victim tested negative for cocaine.

"One of the things about that was, it attacked our credibility. . . . This lady, on the night in question, we believe used crack and had a very bad addiction," Aaron said.

"The jury shouldn't be burdened with fallible information. Whether it is or not, I don't know," he said.

Because of questionable procedures by Erdmann, a writ of habeas corpus outlining Aaron's concern was filed with the 238th District Court last month.

"In a similar case, as reported in the Feb. 29, 1992, edition of the Houston Chronicle, Dr. Erdmann found no evidence of drugs in the victim's system. However, a second autopsy revealed cocaine in the victim's system," according to the writ submitted by attorney Nancy Hart.

In a response to the court, prosecutor Ralph Petty questioned the connection to Aaron's voluntary manslaughter/insanity defense.

"How evidence of the victim's cocaine use supported these defenses is not clear," Petty wrote.

District Attorney Al Schorre said he believes the writ will not affect the case.

But whether it does will ultimately be decided by a judge who can deny the writ or possibly call for a new trial.

"It may not affect the guilt or innocence, but (perhaps) other aspects of the case like voluntary manslaughter — or it may affect the punishment," Aaron said.

Smith is serving a life sentence for murder.

In addition to the Midland case, Aaron has a similar concern about a murder case pending in Ector County.

"I think we have the same argument and problem in that case," Aaron said. What approach will be taken in that upcoming trial is still under consideration, he added.

In Midland, two other murder convictions and one plea in a murder case involved autopsies by Erdmann on three victims, Schorre said. But there are "no serious questions to the manner or means of death," said Schorre, who added that other evidence supports the convictions.

Three other murder cases — pending trial or still under investigation — involved Erdmann performing autopsies on the victims. Those, too, are backed with other evidence and the cause of death substantiated by others, such as emergency-room doctors, Schorre said.

In a separate case, where Erdmann performed an autopsy, the man on trial for murder was cleared, Schorre said. Although the trial of Jesus Vidana involved what caused the death of the defendant's baby daughter, two other expert pathologists studied the case and testified as to their findings.

One death, not part of a criminal investigation, may raise some questions in the course of a missing-girl investigation, Schorre said.

That involves Sumner Pendleton, who committed suicide by carbon monoxide poisoning less than two weeks after his ex-girlfriend, Elizabeth Henry, then 17, disappeared and was believed abducted.

"I don't have any major suspicions of the Pendleton case but because it's a pending investigation there may be questions about the autopsy," Schorre said.

In addition to the Pendleton autopsy and those involving murders, 10 other autopsies were performed by Erdmann for Midland County.

Autopsies were ordered in those cases because the deaths were unattended or unexplained, Schorre said. Police investigations substantiated Erdmann's findings that no foul play was involved, Schorre said.

The 19 autopsies performed by Erdmann for Midland County occurred in late-1990 and throughout 1991.

Autopsies are ordered by justices of the peace, although the Police Department and the district attorney's office have had some input, Schorre said.

"He (Erdmann) was very accessible not only for the autopsies but for coming to court," he said.

Midland County now uses the Southwest Institute of Forensic Pathology in Dallas for autopsies because the facility has a full crime lab, Schorre said.

Midland County stopped using Erdmann to conduct autopsies before authorities began the investigations into his practice. Those investigations involve theft, perjury and records tampering, records show.

Erdmann has resigned his $140,000 job in Lubbock since his indictment in Hockley County.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

PEROT: Texan began with lucrative contracts

mid-1960s with the help of lucrative contracts to administer the government's medical insurance program for the elderly.

In addition, questions were raised then about these contracts that belie the image Perot likes to promote of himself as a businessman who "plays in the middle of the field, and not along the sidelines."

An investigation by a congressional subcommittee in the early 1970s, for example, explored questions about his conduct in securing the contracts for his fledgling company, which he has since sold to General Motors Corp. The committee's investigation did not find that Perot or his company did anything wrong.

Among the questions raised by the Social Security Administration — and later dropped — were whether Perot might have overcharged the federal government for processing Medicare claims, which were then administered by Social Security, and whether he ignored federal requirements that he provide full access to his books for government examiners who were trying to determine if his charges were reasonable.

The panel also looked into accusations that Perot used federal money to develop the system to process Medicare claims electronically and then refused, despite the objections of Social Security officials, to allow the government to own the system and use it elsewhere.

These questions had been the basis of a sharp dispute between Perot and the Social Security Administration during the final years of the Johnson administration. But after President Richard M. Nixon took office in 1969, the dispute was settled in favor of Perot.

Although congressional investigators and critics of the contracts did not suggest that Perot broke any laws, they did say he was overly secretive, skirted federal rules and engaged in what could be viewed as conflicts of interest.

At the time he won the Medicare contracts, Perot worked part time for Texas Blue Cross/Blue Shield, which administered the Texas Medicare program. Some members of the congressional panel also said that the Nixon administration was not completely forthcoming on providing all the facts.

"The highest level of bureaucracy stonewalled us and defended both Perot and their own actions in this matter," said John Buchanan, a former Republican representative from Alabama.

BAR: Few exceptions allowed

said, "It doesn't sound like the kind of place I would want to go even if they'd let me in."

Ms. Riddering said she isn't opposed to gender-specific admission, the Austin American-Statesman reported Monday. However, she said, "The problem is that women are allowed in there only if they are somebody's property."

At The Tap, customers play games, swap lies and drink $1 beers.

"When your wife don't mind if you go to a bar, that's pretty good," said Tap regular Travis Jones, 39, of Leander. "She likes me going here because there's no women."

Johnson's wife, Faye, brings her husband dinner every day at 5:30 p.m. and stays at the bar for about 30 minutes.

"I've talked about putting up a bar for the women next door, and some of the women around town have talked about raiding it one day," she joked.

Johnson said he would rather close The Tap than be forced to admit women — but there are some for whom he would relax the rules, slightly.

"If Mrs. Bush came in, I'd tell her she could have a beer and hang around as long as she didn't pick on my customers," he said.

WRITE-INS: Law alters count

(From 1A)

"We had to count all of them and even record them. Fortunately, they've cut all that out for us."

In the recent election, the only write-in votes required by law to be counted were those in the hospital district. But in that race, there were no names written in, elections officials said.

The mayor's race, however, may have drawn 100 or more alternative candidates.

"There were people writing, 'None of the above,' that sort of thing," Mrs. Calvert said. Pat Eastup, the staffer designated to handle write-ins, said restaurateur and former City Council member Jose Cuevas got some write-in votes as well.

"I had heard it," said Cuevas, who had considered seeking the mayor's job. "I appreciated the votes, but I didn't pay much attention. I think it was sort of a protest vote."

There was no space allocated on Saturday's ballot for other candidates.

Of the 7,516 people who voted in the election, only 6,938 voted for one of the four mayoral candidates. Of the 578 remaining, 452 live in rural precincts — where the mayor's race was not on the ballot.

So there were 126 eligible voters who may have cast an "other" vote in the mayor's race.

ANDERSON: Ex-hostage recalls life in captivity alone in their tightly guarded cells at night, he said. If and when they discovered the unlocked chains the next day, "they would accuse you, and you would be in for some very bad times," Anderson said.

"So what do you do? It is very, very difficult to sit there and look at that chain lying next to your leg, pick it up, and close the lock yourself."

"You had to do that, didn't you?" he was asked.

"Yeah, we did it," he replied softly.

Looking healthy and relaxed, Anderson gave the most detailed account so far of the captivity that ended Dec. 4. He was the longest held American hostage in Lebanon and his return to the United States saw outpourings of emotion and a hero's welcome.

Now, five months later, he sat in St. Bartholomew's Church with AP President and Chief Executive Officer Louis D. Boccardi and talked about his ordeal in a steady, yet gripping exchange during the AP's annual meeting.

Boccardi introduced Anderson to a standing ovation, and when his discussion ended, he walked down the church's main aisle, hand-in-hand with his fiancee, Madeleine Bassil, to another standing ovation, stopping to shake outstretched hands.

Discussing his captivity, which began on March 16, 1985, Anderson backed away from words like "courage" and "heroism" to describe how he survived his ordeal.

Anderson said he had returned to the Roman Catholic Church, in which he had been raised, six months before his capture by Islamic fundamentalists in Beirut.

"It was what you might call providential," he said. "I really needed that faith."

Faith, Anderson said, also helps explain why he doesn't hate his captors: "I am a Catholic. I am required to forgive."

"I have no room for it. I have no time for it," he said. "My life is very full, very happy. . . . My hating them is not going to hurt them an ounce. It's only going to hurt me."

Faith of another kind dissuaded him from suicide during captivity, he said: "I could not do that to the people whom I love, who love me."

Anderson said he has spent most of the time since his release vacationing on Antigua and visiting his fiancee's family on Cyprus.

Asked if he wished the government had attempted to rescue him and his fellow hostages, he said, "We fantasized a lot about Delta Force storming through the wall and setting us all free, (but) never believed it, never thought it was possible, and most of the time feared it.

"There were . . . drills in which the door would suddenly be thrown open and a (guard) with a grenade in his hand would be standing there, waiting for something to happen. The drill was, if anybody came in the door we were dead."

Rockets storm into central Kabul

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Scores of rockets rained on the capital Monday while troops loyal to the interim government battled rival Muslim guerrillas on the outskirts of the city in the fiercest fighting in days.

At least 30 people were reported killed and 100 wounded by rockets that crashed into central Kabul, wrecking mud-brick houses and darkening the sky with thick clouds of dirt and mortar. Doctors at four hospitals said all the wounded appeared to be civilians.

The missiles fell with a crack and a bang, emptying streets that had just begun to bustle again over the weekend after four days of fighting between rival factions that had driven the Communists from power in a 14-year war.

Troops defending the city fired back with their own rockets as well as tanks and artillery. The boom of explosions and chatter of automatic weapons echoed into the night.

Benon Sevan, a special U.N. enovy, decried the renewed fighting. "These stupid killings of shooting rockets back and forth blindly, I don't know what results they expect," he said after meeting with Sibghatullah Mojaddidi, leader of the interim government.

The rockets were fired by guerrillas led by hardline fundamentalist Gulbuddin Hekmatyar, who were forced from Kabul last week by fighters commanded by his bitter rival, Ahmed Shah Masood.

The week-old interim government formed by six of the seven major rebel factions is considered more moderate then Hekmatyar. But it also considers itself fundamentalist and issued a decree Monday banning the sale of alcohol, which is forbidden by Islam.

A dozen armed guerrillas delivered the order to the state-owned Intercontinental Hotel, where liquor was freely served during the reign of the Communists. Some fighters tried to search individual rooms and tore down all pictures of women without their heads covered in traditional Islamic hoods.

Shopkeepers in the main bazaar said militiamen had warned them not to sell alcohol and were patrolling to enforce the order.

Meanwhile, concerns intensified over the interim government's ability to prevent bloody reprisals against former officials of the deposed regime.

The new government said Sunday that a hated judge under the Communists was murdered over the weekend and that another former official was kidnapped. Diplomats and U.N. officials speaking on condition of anonymity said Monday that gunmen abducted as many as eight former high-ranking officials.

The ruling council favors amnesty for all officials of the former government.

Libya claims sanctions are killing children

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — The Libyan government says shortages of medication and vaccines brought on by U.N. sanctions against Tripoli are causing the deaths of children by measles and other diseases.

The complaint was reiterated over the weekend by doctors at a government-organized news conference at Tripoli's el-Galaa Children's Hospital, but they provided no evidence to back up their claims. U.N. officials insisted the sanctions were no barrier to the shipping of drugs or vaccines.

Air travel, arms sales and diplomatic sanctions were imposed April 15 in hopes of forcing Libya to hand over two alleged Libyan intelligence agents accused of bombing Pan Am Flight 103 over Scotland in 1988, killing 270 people.

Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi and his ministers began claiming last week that hundreds of Libyans were dying because of the sanctions.

Hospital director Mohamed el-Sweihly said the sanctions had caused at least 10 deaths, mostly because of a shortage of vaccines.

"The condition will get worse and lead to epidemics," he said.

"Four babies died of measles in the last two weeks," said Aly Mugady, a British-trained physician and head of el-Galaa's intensive care unit.

"We need 1 million doses of vaccines against measles, and they have to be flown in. If we carry on like this, more and more children will die," Mugady said.

U.N. officials monitoring the sanctions said Monday that there is no reason Libya cannot transport vaccines — anything but arms and military equipment — overland or by sea.

They acknowledged that overland trucking of some perishable vaccines could be problematic. Libya could request an exception to the air embargo for vaccines, but has not done so, said the U.N. officials, speaking on condition of anonymity. Mugady confirmed that no such application had been made.

"The only thing that affects vaccine is to keep it refrigerated. Nothing else than this is a factor," said Dr. Boulos Abdel-Malek, an Egyptian virologist, in Cairo. "It can be carried in iceboxes, even dry ice."

He said the problem with bringing vaccines overland from Egypt or Tunisia is that not all vaccines are available in those countries.

Bosnia appeals for foreign military help

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The republic's leaders pleaded for foreign military help Monday as shells rained on the heart of their mountain-ringed capital, smashing into the television and assembly buildings, a mosque and the 1984 Olympic Village.

European Community monitors sought to arrange a cease-fire but were hampered by disconnected telephone lines and what they characterized as irrational impulses guiding the warring parties.

Muslims and Serbs traded charges on who started the fighting that began Saturday and accelerated Monday night after a brief lull.

The Serb-led federal army ordered its soldiers from Serbia and Montenegro, the two remaining republics within the new, truncated Yugoslavia, to pull out of Bosnia-Herzegovina within 15 days, the Tanjug news agency reported.

The army is under pressure from the United States and Western Europe, which blame it for the violence in newly independent Bosnia.

Bosnian authorities last week ordered the army to withdraw but the military rejected the demand. Monday's order could indicate the army is planning to turn over its local troops and weapons to the Serbs fighting in Bosnia.

Bosnia's presidency, led by Alija Izetbegovic, said it will seek military help from the 52-nation Conference on Security and Cooperation. The group, which includes European nations, the United States and Canada, scheduled an emergency session for Wednesday in Helsinki, Finland.

"We need military help," Izetbegovic, a Muslim, said as explosions shook the presidency building.

The CSCE also has blamed the Serb-led federal army for aiding Bosnia's ethnic Serb minority, whose leaders oppose Bosnia's independence. But it was unlikely the group, or the United States, would endorse military action. The European Community has ruled out armed intervention.

German government plans new offer to striking public workers

BERLIN (AP) — The government said Monday it was willing to sweeten its pay offer to end a bitter public workers' walkout that has left German air traffic crippled, kindergartens closed and garbage piled in city streets.

Talks were to resume Wednesday for the first time since the strikes began April 27, but the public workers' union said it would not stop its strikes, including a walkout set to begin today at Frankfurt international airport, the busiest on the European continent.

Berlin's Tegel airport was closed Monday, while airline traffic was in chaos at a half-dozen other airports in western Germany. Some passengers were put on buses to airports in neighboring countries, ZDF television reported.

Lufthansa airline said the walkouts affected more than 15,000 passengers and appealed for the use of U.S. Air Force fire crews to keep Frankfurt airport operating today if the strike takes regular fire crews out of action.

The immense Frankfurt airport is shared by the U.S. Rhein-Main Air Base. Spokesman Maj. Steve Knechtel said Air Force fire crews would respond to any emergency, whether involving a commercial airline or U.S. military aircraft.

"But we're not crossing picket lines or breaking any strike," Knechtel said in a telephone interview.

German union leaders said the strikes were entering a "hot phase" at the start of their second week, with more than 300,000 people told to stay off the job. No negotiations have been held since the strikes began.

In Bonn, the Interior Ministry said federal, state and local governments were prepared to increase their offer of 4.7 percent increases. Union leaders, who are demanding 9.5 percent increases, had no immediate reaction to the non-specific government offer.

West German public employees make a base wage of about $1,800 per month, although their wages vary greatly. West German workers have some of the best health and vacation benefits in the world.

By now, virtually everyone in western Germany has been affected by the labor stoppages.

Anti-racism protest escalates to riot in Toronto

TORONTO (AP) — An anti-racism protest Monday over the Rodney King verdict and the death of a black Canadian at the hands of police erupted into a clash at City Hall and a window-smashing and looting spree in downtown Toronto.

Police said there were an undetermined number of injuries and arrests in the rioting on Yonge Street, which broke out after counter-protesters taunted a group that had held a peaceful demonstration at the U.S. consulate.

Up to 400 people — black and white, and mainly young — joined the march of destruction down the city's main north-south artery, breaking hundreds of windows and stealing merchandise from stores, including at least one gun shop, police said. At least one vehicle was reportedly set afire.

"Windows started smashing and products started going out the window," said Vince Manganaro, manager of an electronics store. He said televisions, VCRs and stereos were stolen.

The shooting of a number of blacks in Toronto and Montreal in the past few years has angered the black communities of both cities. The latest anger was sparked by the death early Saturday of Raymond Lawrence, 22.

Lawrence was slain by a white undercover officer after a chase through one of Toronto's rougher neighborhoods. Police say Lawrence threatened an officer with a knife and was shot twice in the chest. It was the eighth shooting of a black person by a Toronto policeman in the past four years. Four died.

Justice Minister Kim Campbell said in Ottawa on Monday that the Conservative government would introduce legislation to limit the amount of force police can use to catch a fleeing suspect.

The rally Monday, organized by the Black Action Defense Committee, began with a demonstration at the U.S. consulate, where protesters carried signs reading: "White judge, white jury, white justice, from Toronto to L.A.," and called for the resignation of Toronto Police Chief William McCormack.

"The evil is not limited to the United States," black leader Akua Benjamin told the crowd. "It's right here. The only thing that's missing is we don't have a video."

The crowd then set off through central Toronto. A scuffle broke out at one point when white people appeared carrying two signs, one reading, "L.A. burns, Toronto next?" and "We denounce racist murder of whites."

Two whites were arrested. The demonstrators held a sit-in at rush hour at the intersection of Yonge and Bloor Street, then marched to City Hall, a modern high-rise looming over Nathan Phillips Square.

Police formed a human chain to bar entrance to the main doors of the municipal offices. Officers on horseback were pelted with rocks, eggs and bottles, and windows in the building were smashed.

The rioters moved further down Yonge street, smashing windows and looting some shops.

Canada's 26 million people include about 400,000 blacks, 170,000 of whom live in Toronto.

Black Canadians face obstacles in employment, housing and other areas of day-to-day life that white Canadians do not, but there had seldom been an outspoken or violent reaction in the black community until last summer.

In perhaps the most serious incident, about 150 blacks rioted last July in Halifax over the beating of two blacks by white bouncers at a club.

"My concern is that we have to recognize that racism is a Canadian problem," Ontario Premier Bob Rae said Sunday after a meeting with black leaders. He called the number of black suspects shot in recent years disturbing.

United Way Shining Stars

NAME: Rod Slaton
OCCUPATION: Owner of Temp Time (2500 N. Big Spring)
VOLUNTEER POSITION: "Take your pick"

Rod Slaton is a tireless volunteer.

As a member of the allocations panel he helps determine the financial needs of four United Way agencies - Midland Need-to-Read, Freewill Foster Home, PDAP, and Midland Sr. Citizens Center. Working closely with these agencies Rod and the other members of the allocations panel quantify the needs of these four agencies twice each year. Glamourous the job is not, but it is essential to the ongoing success of these agencies and the many programs they provide for our community.

Rod became involved with the United Way three years ago by helping his mother, Beth Rubin, when she was on the allocations panel. Last year, after she moved to Fort Worth he stepped in and took up the slack.

Rod also serves as a board member for Big Brothers/Big Sisters, a program which matches an adult volunteer with a single-parent child, and is a Big Brother himself. Les Munson of Chevron recently gave Rod a call to ask if, in addition to all his other duties, he would help during this year's fund raising campaign. Rod agreed without even asking what his newest duties would entail. Now that's volunteerism at its finest!

So if you know Rod, or are lucky enough to meet him in the near future, tell him, "Thanks", for making Midland a better place to be.

"The United Way Of Midland serves 36,000 Midlanders through the following agencies and programs: American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Boy Scouts of America, Boys' and Girls" Club of Midland, Camp Fire, Casa de Amigos, Citywide Community services, Community and Senior Services of Midland, Family Services, Permian Basin Child Abuse Prevention Program, Freewill Foster Home, Midland/Lee Youth Centers, Midland Rape Crises Center, Midland Need To Read, Palmer Drug Abuse Program, Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and their Children, Permian Basin Girl Scouts, Salvation Army Corps and Day Care Center, YMCA's

Justices effectively shut off avenue of appeal for state prisoners

By Linda Greenhouse
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Overturning a precedent of the Warren Court era, the Supreme Court effectively shut the door Monday on an important route of federal court appeals for state prison inmates.

By a 5-to-4 vote, the court ruled that federal courts are no longer obliged to grant a hearing on a state prisoner's challenge to his conviction, even if the prisoner can show that his lawyer had not properly presented crucial facts of the case in a state-court appeal.

Until Monday, federal courts handling such challenges through writs of habeas corpus petitions from state inmates were required to hold a hearing to evaluate evidence if facts central to the case had not been presented adequately to the state courts.

Since many state prisoners receive inadequate legal assistance in the state courts, these federal court hearings have been a mainstay of the criminal appeals process.

The inmate in the case decided on Monday, a Cuban who spoke no English, asserted that he did not understand what he was agreeing to when he accepted his lawyer's advice and pleaded no contest to a manslaughter charge.

The decision, written by Justice Byron R. White, was the latest in a series of Supreme Court rulings that have sharply restricted the ability of state prisoners to bring constitutional challenges to their convictions or sentences into federal court through petitions for writs of habeas corpus.

White's opinion provoked a strong dissenting opinion from Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, which was notable because Justice O'Connor has been one of the leaders in the court's move to restrict habeas corpus.

The earlier rulings, which Justice O'Connor either wrote or strongly supported, dealt primarily with the procedural requirements for filing habeas corpus petitions. On Monday, the court shifted its focus to the question of how federal judges should handle a properly filed petition once it reaches the federal court.

Until Monday state prisoners who cleared the procedural hurdles for taking their cases to federal court in the first place were guaranteed a hearing on the facts central to the case if "the material facts were not adequately developed at the state-court hearing," according to the 1963 decision that the court overruled on Monday.

That decision, Townsend vs. Sain, recognized only one exception to the right it granted prisoners to a hearing before a federal judge.

Poll puts Bush, Clinton even in general election

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush and Bill Clinton would be virtually deadlocked if a two-man general election were held today, according to a national poll released Monday.

Bush would win 46 percent of the vote to 43 percent for Clinton, within the 3 percentage-point margin of error in the poll by the Times Mirror Center for The People & The Press.

With Texas billionaire Ross Perot in the mix, Bush's percentage dropped to 33 percent and Perot and Clinton were tied for second place with 30 percent.

Two weeks ago, in a survey by U.S. News & World Report, Bush had 40 percent to 29 percent for Clinton and 24 percent for Perot, who is considering an independent presidential candidacy.

The poll of 1,301 adults was conducted from April 30 to May 3 and focused on how Americans reacted to political leadership in the violent aftermath of the Rodney King verdict.

While riots erupted in Los Angeles beginning April 30, 31 percent said Clinton was better able than Bush to deal with the country's racial problems. Twenty-five percent said Bush was better able to handle such domestic problems and 13 percent picked Perot.

The survey found that 61 percent said the next president, whoever he is, should give higher priority to the problems of poor people.

Newly elected can make change

Will Rogers, that cowboy wit and philosopher from Claremore, Okla., once remarked that, "Democracy is a form of government you have to keep for four years no matter what it does!"

No doubt there are more than a few Midlanders who've grasped Rogers' meaning previously after the ballots were cast, the choices made for another election.

Fortunately, our system of government incorporates numerous checks and balances that help alleviate the impact of the "mistakes" voters occasionally make. Our government, overall, is surprisingly resilient and despite what some people undoubtedly view as horrendous decisions by the electorate, those choices typically amount to changes of small consequence over a long span of years.

Another election came and passed Saturday for the Midland City Council, Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees, Midland County Hospital District and Midland College Board of Trustees. Voters went to the polls, although their numbers were relatively small, and elected an outstanding group of community-minded individuals to lead the four entities in coming years.

We salute them for their willingness to serve in public office. Their interest, concern, and hard work will be needed because many challenges face all the governing boards. Their actions, directly or indirectly, in one way or another, likely will affect the lives of virtually all the residents of Midland.

Those elected to office Saturday are a special group. They are charged with the public trust at a time when the intense spotlight of scrutiny is focused on officeholders at all levels. They'll undoubtedly feel the hot glare of the attention. And they have in their power the ability to make a change for the better — to restore public confidence in those elevated to elected office.

It won't be easy, but they likely never imagined it would be. They asked for the opportunity to serve the public, and they've been given that chance.

Congratulations to all the winners in Saturday's balloting.

Scandal centers on judgment

The House's bum check scandal has reached into every political corner. Both Democrats and Republicans were involved. Former congressmen now in the Senate wrote some of the multitude of overdrafts. So did present Cabinet members who once served in the House.

The House Ethics Committee named 303 past and present lawmakers with overdrafts.

The release of this information was the final step in the House's own investigation of its now-defunct bank. However, the Justice Department has appointed a special counsel to determine whether any federal laws were broken. There also is a similar situation that has not been fully probed, involving the bouncing of checks at U.S. embassies by congressmen traveling abroad.

The variety of the names on the list proves that members of Congress have spoiled themselves too much and that some have grown so used to their perks that their judgment is impaired. A representative with a few overdrafts may be able to explain to his constituents' satisfaction, but a lawmaker who wrote hundreds of overdrafts is going to have trouble.

House Speaker Tom Foley, who wrote only a couple of overdrafts himself but was the official most responsible for the bank's operations, insists that members on the overdraft list "violated no law and no rule of the House of Representatives." He is right, in a technical sense, but his comment won't cut much ice with the voters. It ignores the questions of judgment this episode has raised.

Congress should approve jet sale

As Operation Desert Storm proved, it pays to have willing allies if you are forced into war in the Middle East. Without the good will — not to mention the small but effective air force — of Saudi Arabia, the United States would have had a much tougher time dealing with Iraqi aggression and the threat to Western access to Persian Gulf oil.

That's one reason why Congress and the Bush administration should quickly agree on the controversial sale of 72 F-15 jets to Saudi Arabia.

Another reason is purely economic — call it national self-interest.

No one would argue that military production must continue simply to provide employment. But even in light of the collapse of the Communist threat, the United States must maintain the capability to produce defense weapons, especially aircraft.

Opposition to the sale comes from the Israeli lobby, which has an understandable interest in any weapons sale in the Middle East. But in this case, the Israeli fears are unrealistic and unjustified. Even if the United States turns down the order, the Saudis will buy modern aircraft from France or Britain or some other supplier. U.S. workers could lose this business and their jobs, but the Saudis would still be able to find the weapons they desire.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

There is no excuse for civil insurrection

IRVINE, Calif. — While live television, just to the north, records the destruction of an American city, the Today show dwells on the pain and frustration of the destroyers.

Murchison

Pain and frustration, my hind foot! The burning of Los Angeles is not street therapy, it is civil war, horrible and deadly to behold: the more so when it's going on in the next county, 20 minutes away.

This is destruction for destruction's sake — murder, arson, looting for the hell of it. It is wicked. It is evil. There is no excuse.

We need to disabuse ourselves promptly of any idle, fashionable notion that the acquittal of the policemen who beat Rodney King explains this horror. As if the jury were the culprit — the murderer, the arsonist, the looter!

"Society cannot tolerate this kind of behavior," President Bush said Thursday morning in a statement. No. It can't.

But "this kind of behavior" goes on as I watch the live coverage in my hotel room. The cameras of Channel 5, aimed from a helicopter, show looting at the rear of a burned-out department store. On the other side of the store, police face a part-curious, part-hostile crowd. Women walk away with new spring wardrobes, plucked right off the rack. A looter rips off a videotape of "The Little Mermaid," hands it to his small daughter. Yes, isn't social protest rewarding?

The end is not yet. Righteous indignation — if we were to call it that — cools in due course. Civil insurrection — the right name for the violence in Los Angeles — continues because it is based on deeper passions: anti-social and, more precisely, anti-white.

What have the owners of these burned-out stores, their livelihoods destroyed, to do with the Rodney King jury? What have the now-jobless store workers to do with it? Or the truck drivers dragged from their vehicles and beaten to death? Or the fireman attacked by an ax-wielding rioter?

Innocent people are getting hurt and killed in the streets of Los Angeles by barbarians out of control. The entire economy of south central Los Angeles is literally going up in flames, a TV newsman observes.

We know from history this is the pattern of rioting — and isolated, if sometimes highly publicized, incident inflames a few who end up inflaming — literally — the place where they live.

The danger is to focus on these isolated grievances: to use them as cover for the rioters. We are peculiarly vulnerable today to such a temptation. Opinion leaders, of the sort who turn up on the Today show, have encouraged blacks and all others who view themselves as downtrodden to blame those who allegedly tread them down.

The "white establishment" comes up for vilification at regular and frequent intervals. So much vilification has the establishment endured at the hands of "progressives" and social liberals that it seldom murmurs a word in its own defense. The white establishment's accusers grow angrier, more hostile, more inclined to fling a rock or pick up an ax.

The validity of the verdict in the King retrial — with white attackers and a black victim — is beside the immediate point, which is that a jury, having heard the relevant evidence, acquitted all but one of the officers. Los Angeles has passed far beyond the point where Rodney King, putative victim, is of the slightest interest.

My fellow Americans, out here in sunny Southern California, the lid is off the abyss, and we are gazing in. It makes you tremble. Oh, my Lord, it makes you tremble.

CHARLEY REESE

Today's youth will learn from our mistakes

A grizzled ex-mercenary-turned-inventor once explained postwar America to me and what he said makes sense.

"Suppose I tell you," he said, "that I will lend you all the money you want on two conditions: one, you have to make firecrackers with it and two, at the end of the year, you have to blow them up. In the meantime, you can pay yourself whatever salary you want."

Reese

"The rub would come," he said, "when one year I showed up and said, 'Pay me back the money you owe me.' You'd look around and you'd have nothing to show for all the money you spent."

He was referring, of course, to defense expenditures as well as all the other money spent in the Cold War. We in fact did borrow nearly $4 trillion. And it is in fact coming due. And we do not, in fact, have much to show for a $4 trillion investment.

You can say, if you like, we have some intangible benefits, chief of which is nobody ever nuked us. Trouble is you can't pay back $4 trillion, which is quite tangible, with an intangible asset.

I would elaborate on that intangible. I would even nominate the American defense industry and its Pentagon partners for the Nobel Peace Prize. Between them, they have made war so expensive that we can't afford to fight one even when we're sure of winning it. Who ever dreamed that one day peace would come because the munitions makers priced war out of everybody's reach. Soldiers of old had to fight for months, even years, to spend half a billion dollars. Today, that's one B-2 plane crash.

What we did was keep rolling over existing debt and adding to it. Before we paid for World War II, we fought Korea on credit; then Vietnam; and now, the Gulf War with a few minor skirmishes in between, though these days you can't even invade Grenada without spending a lot of change.

Money we spend on a bomb will either sit in a bunker and decay or be taken out of the bunker and blown up. The progeny of those dollars will be death and destruction of property or — if it's never used — nothing.

Money we spend on a school, however, will produce educated people who in turn will add to the store of wealth, some perhaps in spectacular ways. It is economically more productive to dress up a young man or woman and send them to school than it is to dress them up in camouflage and sent them off to get their guts shot out.

Death is a genuine subtraction of assets from a nation. A corpse never produced, invented, discovered or created anything except lunch for worms and bacteria. A nation can be impoverished by losing its sons and daughters just as it can be impoverished by losing its factories and farms.

The sorry saga of the 20th century's mismanaged politics, which began with World War I, is ending with the poetic whimper rather than a bang. Residues of blood and fire linger in small places like Sarajevo where the century began.

At century's end, we have a lot of graves and lot of bills falling due. We can say that people tried and finally discarded both communism and fascism. We can say that the last of the empires collapsed, bled by nationalism that wouldn't die. We can say nationalism itself isn't faring too well with more nations in trouble than in good health.

We can say a lot about the 20th century but the main thing is that out of its debris, the future has to be built. It will have to be built by the young because the new century belongs to them.

I believe they will learn from our mistakes and not kill so many people, destroy so many assets, pollute so much of the environment, and waste so much of the fruit of labor.

Charley Reese's column is distributed by King Features Syndicate.

LEWIS GRIZZARD

They tell us to avoid the best things in life

In protest for what I consider to be recent unfair attacks on beef, one of my favorite meats, I went out and had myself a thick, juicy T-bone the other night.

It was great, as usual. I would have eaten two if my stomach would have held another because we beefeaters need to do all we can to tell the wimps and weenies who have put themselves in charge of our lifestyles to go eat a bucket of worms (a.k.a. sushi).

Grizzard

It's cow meat they're after now. One group says we're being cruel by killing cows and chopping them into steaks.

There's a book out about the evils, both social and physical, of eating beef as well. I refuse to name it here and give it any publicity.

And then, I read a story in the papers about a report from the American Chemical Society saying the natural substance that gives beef its meaty taste has been synthesized in the laboratory and may be used to turn tofu into a substitute for beef.

Do what?

I asked a health nut to tell me what tofu is. It sounds to me like a ballet dance step.

"It's soybean-based," she explained.

So let me see if I have this straight.

Some scientist has come up with something in his lab to put in something made out of soybeans, and I'm supposed to eat that instead of beef?

The magic ingredient is BMP. Said the article, "BMP could be used to make imitation beef with little or no saturated fat similar to the way fake crab meat is made."

Fake crab meat? What's going on here?

In the first place, I once ate a soybean burger. Another friend of mine, also a health nut, said, "Try this, you might like it."

Somebody once said the same thing to me about marriage.

The soybean burger was awful, so I went to Wendy's and got myself a double with cheese to get the taste out of my mouth.

In the second place, when are those self-appointed jerks going to stop jacking us around about our food?

Remember when you were growing up how important it was to eat eggs? "Eat the rest of those eggs, young man," my mother would say.

Not anymore. Now they say eggs cause diphtheria, not to mention shortness and weakness, so somebody has come out with a fake egg.

I bet a chicken could tell the difference.

Pork has been put down as unhealthy. Some chickens have tumors in them and fish have mercury, and I never knew there was such a thing as fake crab meat until now.

So what's left to eat? Nothing much. If what we read and hear is true, we'd all be better off if we didn't eat anything at all, never had sex, abstained from drinking, smoking and gambling, and died on the operating table instead of getting a blood transfusion that could give us AIDS.

Life used to be fun. Now, it's just one big Don't.

But I'll tell you what I'm going to do. I'm going to continue to eat beef and everything else I like. I will never walk into any restaurant and say, "I'll have the tofu T-bone, please."

If doing such a thing kills me, it'll just have to kill me.

I think I'd rather go suddenly from a beef overdose than live long enough to get really sick and wind up croaking in a hospital bed where they've been keeping me alive by feeding me through a tube.

There should be the basic right to live free from as much worry as possible. But how can you, when not a day passes that we aren't told what's the latest thing that's bad for us?

Eat, drink and be merry, I say, for tomorrow you may choke on a big piece of broccoli.

Lewis Grizzard's column is distributed by Cowles Syndicate.

House banking records go to a special counsel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Records of House members' checking accounts at their now-defunct private bank were turned over to a special counsel on Monday after a federal judge upheld a subpoena for the 41 rolls of microfilm.

Five House members who challenged the subpoena "do not have a legitimate expectation of privacy in the records," U.S. District Judge John Garrett Penn ruled.

The records were delivered shortly after the ruling. Nonetheless, Clifford Sloan, attorney for Democratic Rep. Sidney Yates of Illinois, quickly notified the U.S. Court of Appeals that he would challenge Penn's decision.

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, another of the challengers, called the ruling "a sad day for the country and the Constitution" and said he was "persisting in efforts to find access to a court that will hear this case on the merits."

Barring any further court rulings, Justice Department special counsel Malcolm R. Wilkey can now move ahead with a criminal investigation of the bank.

The House ethics committee has found the bank permitted 325 past and present members to write 24,000 overdrafts over 39 months.

Wilkey has said he's already uncovered examples of check "kiting," which is an attempt to draw from non-existent funds for fraudulent purposes.

Penn's decision came the same day that the political consequences of the check-writing scandal continued to mount.

Rep. Robert W. Davis, R-Mich., decided he won't seek re-election to an eighth term. He wrote 878 overdrafts, third highest among House bank account holders in the 39 months ended Oct. 3.

Davis said he was ahead in a poll and believed he could win, but chose not to face "an extremely large fund-raising effort, constant campaigning and a great deal of negativism."

NASA moves near launch of Endeavour

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA headed into the countdown Monday for the first launch of the shuttle Endeavour and its satellite-rescue mission with spacewalking astronauts.

"We've been training real hard for the last year or so, and we're not going to get any smarter so now's a good time to go fly," Kathryn Thornton, one of the designated spacewalkers, said after arriving at Kennedy Space Center with the rest of the crew.

"We're going to take good care of Endeavour," she promised.

The countdown clocks were to begin ticking at 11 p.m. Liftoff is scheduled for 7:06 p.m. Thursday.

"The mood of the team is absolutely ecstatic," said test director Mike Leinbach. "The team is just raring to go."

Endeavour replaces the Challenger, destroyed 73 seconds after liftoff six years ago. All seven astronauts died in the fireball.

Leinbach said he doesn't sense any sadness among workers, only pride.

"People are looking to the beauty of Endeavour, how black the black tiles are and how white the white (thermal) blankets are and the nice new American flag painted on the side," he said. "They're not thinking about the past. This is the future."

Endeavour's crew of seven will try to save a communications satellite stranded in a uselessly low orbit for two years. Two spacewalking astronauts are to attach a rocket motor to the satellite that's designed to boost the craft to a working altitude.

Another spacewalk is planned the next day, and another the day after that, so astronauts can practice techniques for building a space station. NASA hopes to start station construction in late 1995.

Shuttle astronauts have never before performed spacewalks on three consecutive days.

Broadway bio of 'Jelly Roll' tops Tony list

NEW YORK (AP) — "Jelly's Last Jam," a song-and-dance biography of jazz pioneer Jelly Roll Morton, led with 11 Tony Award nominations Monday for the best of Broadway's busy 1991-92 theater season.

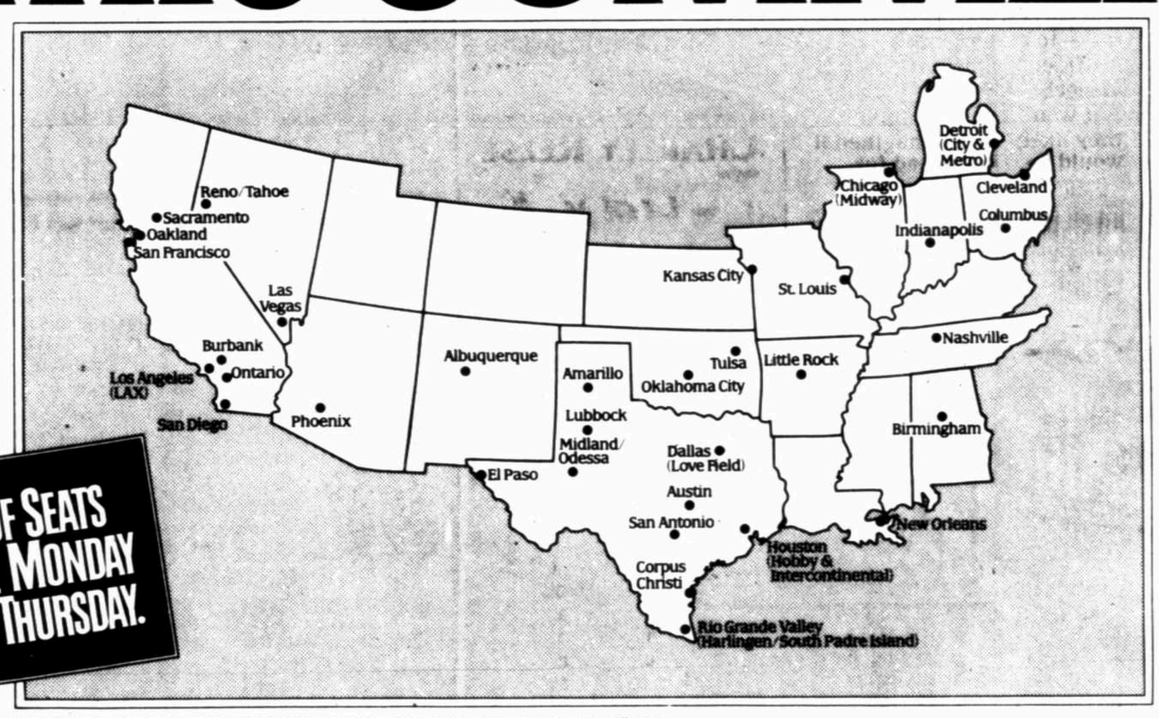

"Crazy for You," which features old Gershwin songs and a new book, received nine nominations. "Dancing at Lughnasa," Brian Friel's Irish memory play about five unmarried sisters, and "Guys and Dolls," a revival of Frank Loesser's classic 1950 musical about Times Square high and low life, received eight.

"Jelly's Last Jam" and "Crazy for You" were nominated as best musical, along with "Falsettos," the story of an American family in the age of AIDS, and "Five Guys Named Moe," a revue showcasing the songs of another jazz legend, Louis Jordan.

Study questions mammogram safety under age 50

BOSTON (AP) — Researchers who conducted one of the largest studies of mammograms said Monday they found preliminary evidence that women under 50 were more likely to die of breast cancer after they receive the tests.

But they cautioned that the final results have not been released.

The research, still unpublished, has come under attack from radiologists, who say it was flawed and its conclusions wrong. Nonetheless, some believe it may persuade health organizations to withdraw their support of routine mammograms for women under age 50.

The researchers, based at University of Toronto, have already publicly stated that their study had shown that women in their 40s do not benefit from regular mammograms.

"At private meetings, I talked about preliminary indications of a higher mortality. I said we had to check, and when completed we would be in a position to discuss it publicly. We will be in that position fairly shortly, but not yet," said the study's director, Dr. Anthony Miller of the University of Toronto.

Miller noted that three earlier studies — two in Sweden and one in the Netherlands — found a similar increased cancer death rate among younger women getting mammograms, although the increases were not statistically meaningful.

"Nobody is going to be surprised about our results, compared to what is already published," Miller said. "Our study is not out of line compared with earlier studies."

A survey in 17 states in 1990 found that three-quarters of all U.S. women over age 40 had gotten at least one mammogram.

The Canadian National Breast Cancer Screening Study was conducted on nearly 90,000 women at 15 hospitals across Canada. Volunteers were randomly assigned to get either annual mammograms or physical exams to check for cancerous lumps. Experts following the work say those in their 40s who got mammograms were more likely to die from breast cancer during the next 10 years.

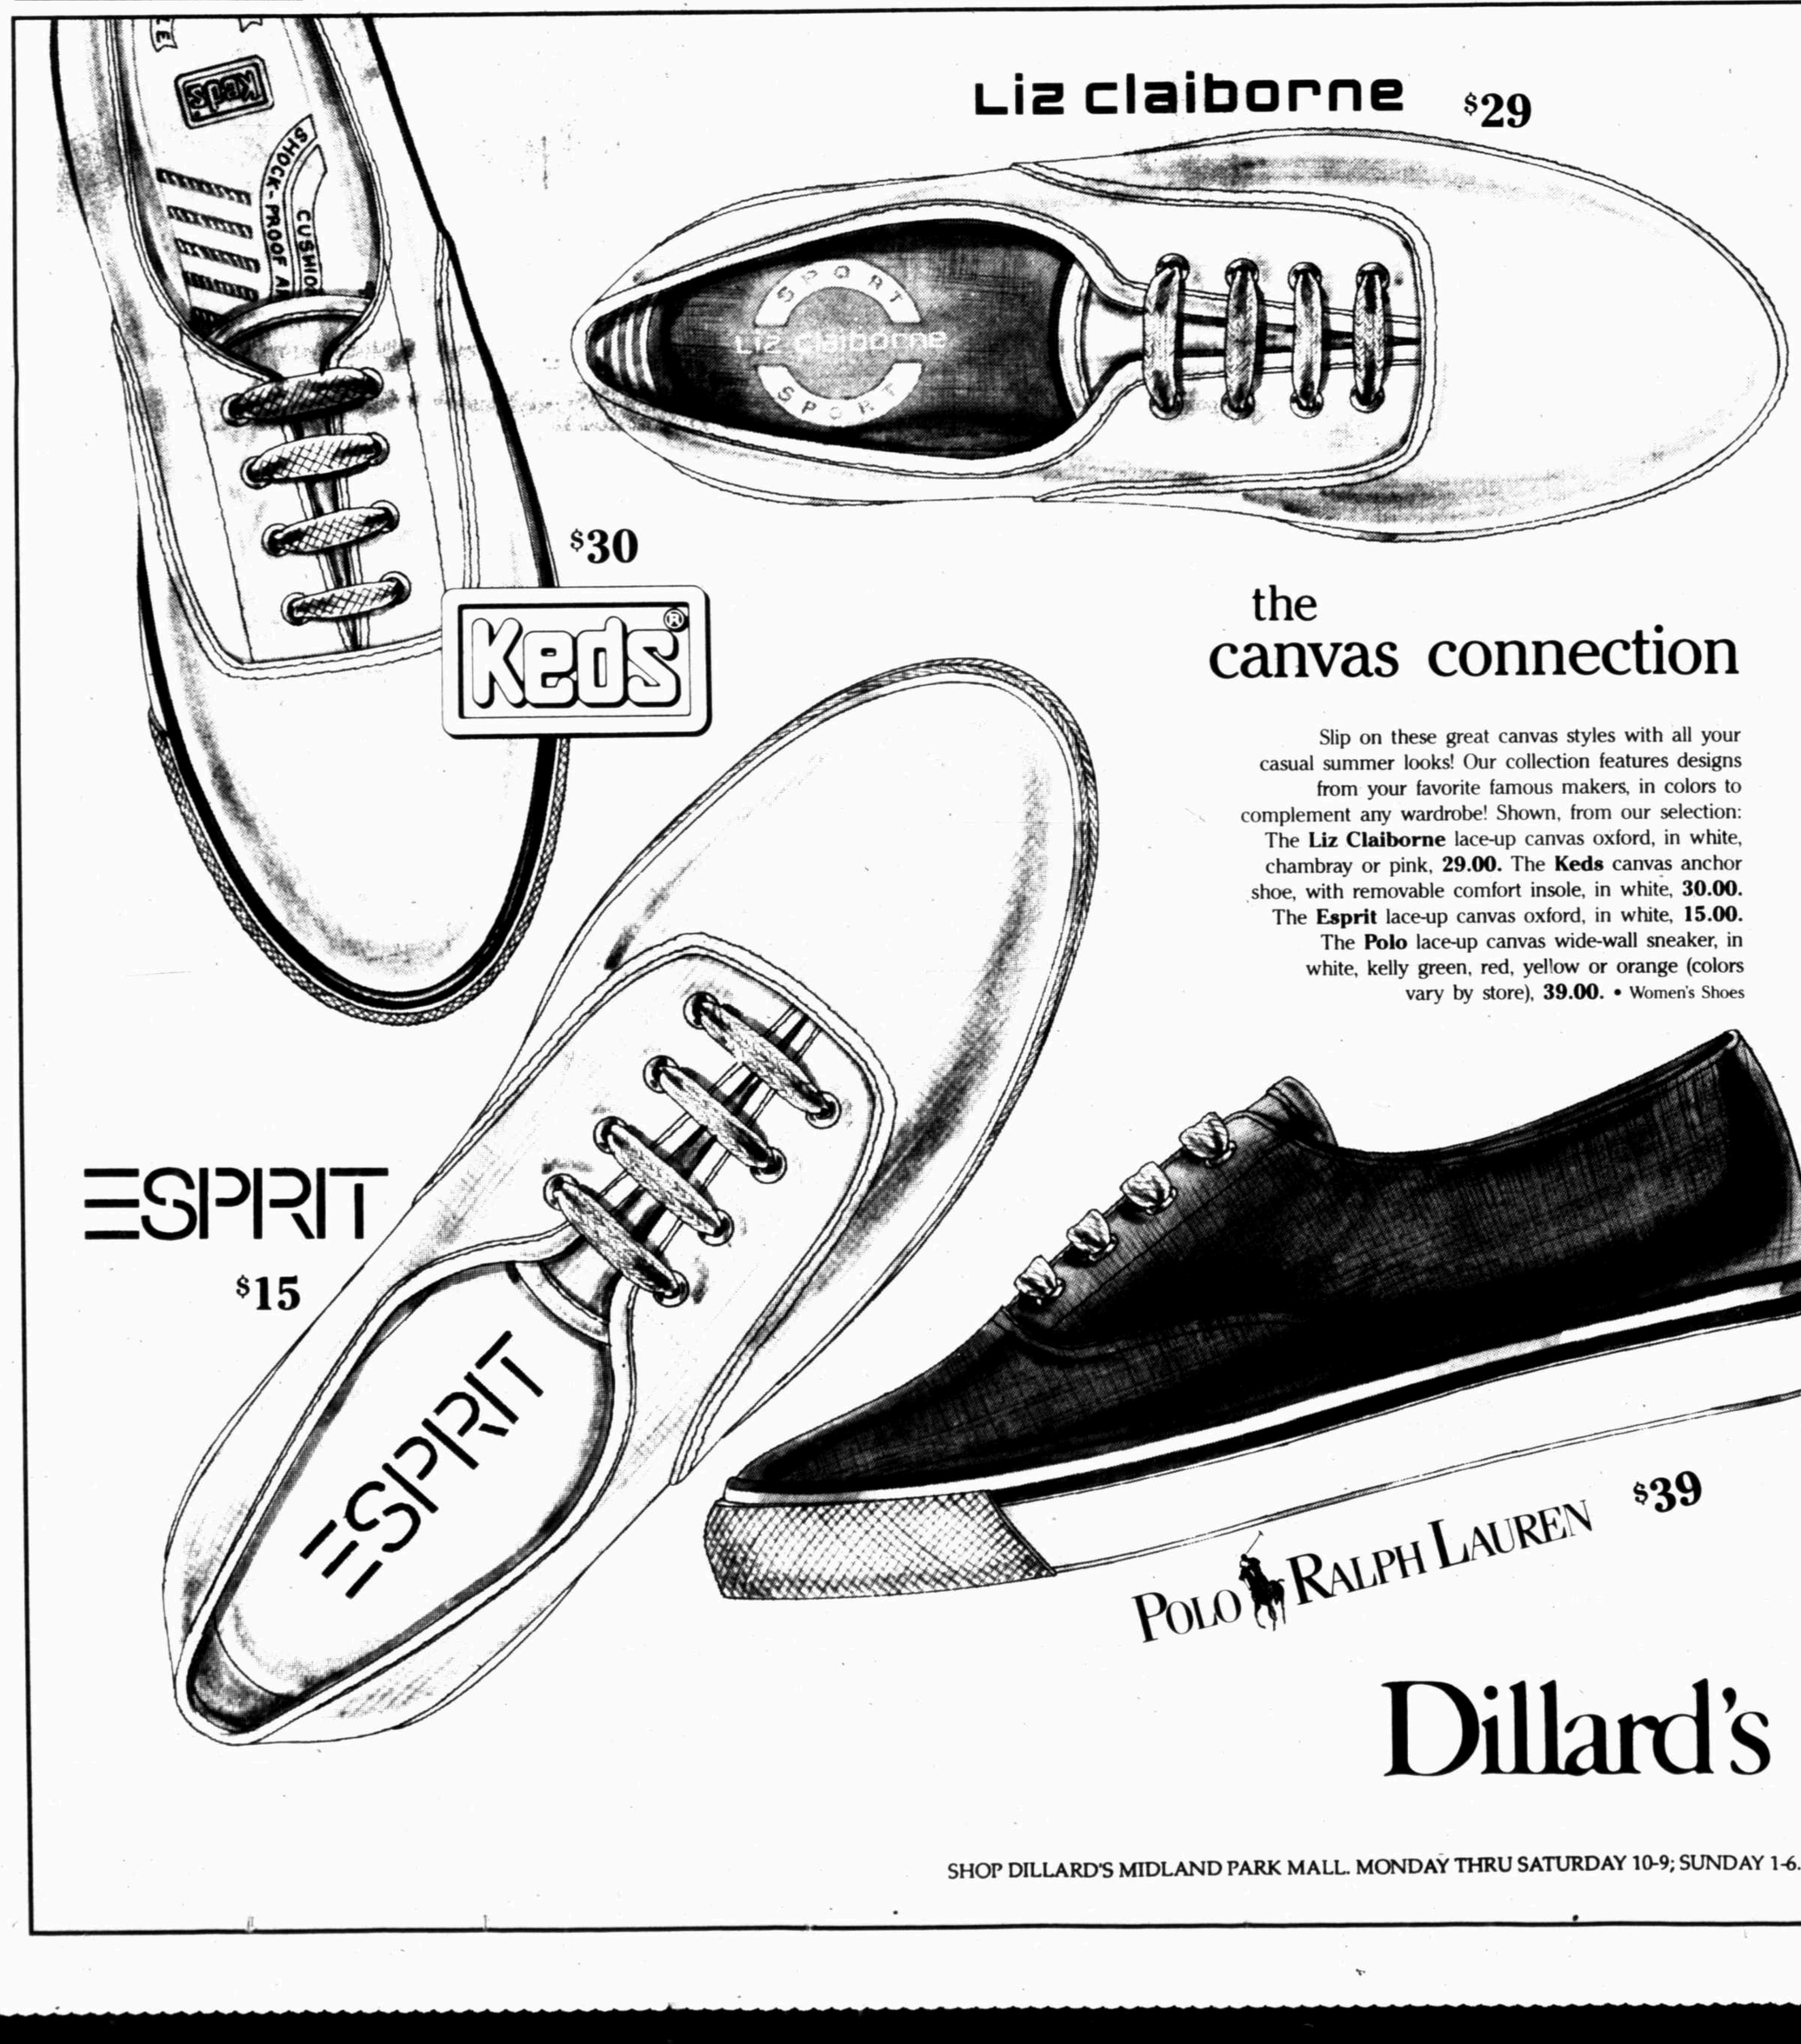

The study, which began in 1980, was a frequent topic of discussion at last week's National Conference on Breast Cancer in Boston, although it was not formally on the program. Some doctors said they fear "Mammograms Kill" headlines will make women afraid to get tests that can save their lives.

The Canadian researchers adamantly defended the quality of their work.

Agencies face detailed process for tax money

■ City revises application system to include more background information from groups seeking funds.

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff writer

The city of Midland will be asking for more information this year from agencies that request tax money for their programs.

A new application process for agencies seeking city money is to serve two main purposes, according to Susan Thorpe, assistant city manager.

Officials hope the process will provide city leaders with more concrete information about the groups, but it should also ensure that agencies know exactly what is required of them in using the money, Ms. Thorpe said.

"We're in tight times," said James Devenport, District 1 council member and a supporter of the new process. "People want to know where their tax money is going."

A variety of non-profit and governmental agencies apply for three main types of city funds each year.

Programs to increase tourism use the revenue from a 7 percent tax on hotel and motel rooms. Last year's users included the Conventions and Visitors Bureau, Midland Center and the Arts Assembly.

Economic development programs can use up to 1 percent of the city's general fund — about $320,000 — each year. Last year that money went to among others, the Midland and Hispanic chambers of commerce, Midland-Odessa Health and Retirement Endeavor and Southeast Economic Development Coalition.

Other city money often goes to human service and community support programs. The Junior League's Teen Court, Keep Midland Beautiful and Crime Stoppers were included in the non-departmental budget last year.

This year's deadline for local agencies to apply for city money is June 1.

Repeat applicants will find the process more detailed than in the past.

"The idea was that the council must be accountable for that money, so the agencies need to be accountable to the city," Ms. Thorpe said.

Among the requirements of the new procedure, organizations must include a copy of their by-laws and articles of incorporation. The proposal must document the agency's status with the Internal Revenue Service, list the board of directors and include a financial statement.

Copies of the full list of requirements are available from Ms. Thorpe's office.

MC plans 19th annual graduation ceremony

Staff report

Midland College's 19th annual Commencement Ceremony begins at 7 p.m. Friday, in the Al G. Langford Chaparral Center. Nearly 200 students are scheduled to receive associate degrees during the program.

Commencement speaker will be Sharon Wilson, a member of the 1992 MC graduating class and one of 20 community college students nationwide selected as first-team Academic All-Americans by the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges in cooperation with USA Today newspaper. Nominees for the honor were made by local chapters of Phi Theta Kappa, the national community college honorary academic society.

Ms. Wilson received her trophy, along with a $2,500 scholarship award, during the 1992 AACJC's annual meeting in Phoenix, Ariz., last month.

David Daniel, president of Midland College, was concluding his service as 1991-'92 chair of AACJC at that convention.

The Midland College Community Band, directed by Walter Osadchuk, will play the processional and recessional music. Adjunct vocal instructor Janice Archer is to sing the national anthem. Trustee Fred Wright will pronounce the invocation.

Following presentation of degrees by Daniel and John Cooper, president of the Midland College Board of Trustees, the graduates and their guests will be recognized at the President's Reception.

Those scheduled to receive Associate of Arts degrees, with honors are: Stanley Cooley and Rebecca Maxwell, both of Midland and Catherine A. McElwee of Lubbock. Also receiving Associate of Arts degrees are Miguel Hernandez III and Elizabeth Marie McPeek of Midland, and Stephen Ray Williams of Monahans.

Associate of Sciences degrees with honors will go to: Michelle C. Aisner, Kenneth Rayford Bradshaw, Kaye A. Candella, Donna Gayle Jenkins, Susan Annette Larson, Ronald F. Lechwar and Jodi A. McFarden, all of Midland. Also receiving Associate of Science degrees are Augusto G. Albo, Cristal Lynn Garner, Lily Hawkins Houghton, Pamelia Denise Inskeep and Jose Murilo Vasconcelos, all of Midland, Haydee Avena of Andrews, and Bobbi L. Vincent of Brownfield.

Those to receive Associate of Applied Science degrees with high honors are: Robin Brian Campbell, Sue Eiring-Candia, Rick Gilley, Samuel S. Holguin, Michael C. Petronella, Jackie W. Van Cleave and Debra Sue Woolard, all of Midland.

Those receiving Associate of Applied Science degrees with honors are: Clifford H. Balzer, Tracy Barfield, Sally Marie Conaway Barker, Lisa Bean, Robert Bradshaw, Sherri A. Officials to study bridge repair bids

Staff report

Bids for a $200,000 project to repair two Interstate Highway 20 bridges in Midland County will be scrutinized by the transportation department this month, officials said Monday.

Two steel I-beam bridges that have cracked under pressure are slated to be repaired with state funds from the Texas Department of Transportation. The bridges are four miles east of Midland where the highway passes over Business 20 East, also known as U.S. 80.

Bids for the project are to be opened in Austin May 27, said Rick Hopkins, public affairs officer for the Odessa office of the transportation department.

Security guard's lifesaving efforts draw fire

■ Negative community reactions mystify Keller Thornton, who tried to help a shooting victim.

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff writer

Keller Thornton is a soft-spoken guy with a subtle sense of humor, a gentle spirit and a strong heart.

Three weeks after emerging from his apartment to try to revive 45-year-old shooting victim Valentina Stead — seconds after her husband shot her in the back — Thornton says his actions were reflexive, not heroic.

But surprisingly, others thought his actions were appalling.

"People asked me 'how could I do that?' and I said 'how could I not?' It was automatic. I would hope that would be the case with everyone but it's not, and that's sad. It kind of puts people on a level with animals."

Besides the two officers involved in the April 14 shooting at Santa Fe Apartments, Thornton was the first person on the scene. He offered to perform CPR and the officers obliged. The man, who was also shot — by himself, an autopsy later revealed — was already dead, but Thornton thought the woman might have a chance. He immediately started CPR and continued it, with the help of Midland officer Bobby Wellborn, until paramedics arrived.

But the woman died.

And Thornton, a hero in his wife's eyes, has dealt ever since with an unusual amount of negative community reaction for his efforts.

"People have asked me why I didn't save her. Others have told me I probably did more harm than good," he said. "I don't really understand it. I guess there is a misunderstanding of what I did or maybe they are people who don't know CPR and are defensive about it."

According to Thornton, many of the negative comments came from the "upper-to-middle class."

"They told me they would never do such a thing. For their sake, I hope someone doesn't feel that way if they ever need emergency help," he said.

Thornton, a 28-year-old security guard for Clayton Williams, has worked in various areas of law enforcement for eight years, including a two-year stint as a military policeman. Currently he is enrolled in an EMT (emergency medical technician) course at Midland College. Next year, he hopes to take a year-long paramedic course.

Monday night he took the EMT final

Clergy leaders warn Texas could face racial violence

AUSTIN (NYT) — Texas could face violence similar to the Los Angeles race riots if a federal inquiry into the beating of black motorist Rodney King does not bring charges against four California police officers, religous leaders are warning.

Rev. Zan Holmes, minister of the Dallas St. Luke Community United Methodist Church, said Monday the same problems that festered for years in Los Angeles — poverty, unemployment and police brutality — are rampant in virtually every major Texas city.

"Sure it could happen here. The ingredients are right here in this state, and that is why we must all be concerned," Holmes said in a joint appearance with Gov. Ann Richards outside her Capitol office.

Richards called together more than 40 church leaders — most from inner-city, black communities — to discuss how racial issues are dividing Texas communities. The group met for an hour and also discussed a growing concern that Texas cities may not be able to deal with spontaneous outbursts of race-

MEETING: Religious leaders in state warn of violence based violence.

"We think the city of Los Angeles was unprepared for the crisis that took place there, and we think that cities of Texas would be equally unprepared, because we have not built a basis of brotherhood and dialogue with communities that must be built," Richards said.

Richards announced after the meeting that she will order an examination of the Texas criminal justice system, which incarcerates a disproportionate number of black men.

She also touted the idea of a nonviolent resolution program, proposed by several of the ministers. The program would strengthen communication between local and state leaders and offer assistance for problems such as unemployment and education that community leaders identify.

"The only thing I told them I hope they will keep in mind is that the children have to be the primary focus," Richards said.

Richards said that federal policies during the past 10 years are largely to blame for last week's unrest.

"What's happening in America is that we gave people hope for so long from the national level. We told them we believed in them; we were going to educate them ... employ them ... give them opportunity; and we haven't done that," Richards said.

"We've erased hope. Not only have we told them what we did in the past was probably wrong," she added. "We haven't said we are moving forward, and as a consequence we have moved backward, and it is with real despair that I say that."

Holmes praised Richards for opening a dialogue to address those issues.

"What the governor has done to day is practice the politics of inclusion. ... She has indicated that she wants government open to all people of the state, and this meeting today is a historic meeting," he said. "If we leave anybody out, the locked out and the left out create the problems that we are experiencing in our nation today."

The Rev. Chris Steele, an Episcopal priest at Christ Church Cathedral in Houston, said the state has avoided race riots by "the grace of God and a little luck," but she predicted that cannot last forever.

"If they (the officers) are aquitted (by a federal inquiry), we can expect some kind of unrest," Steele said. "We can see the handwriting on the wall, and we have got to head it off now."

AGENCIES: City changes policy for requesting funds

form documentation from those groups so the council is better informed.

"We need more information, not just for ourselves, but for the public that comes in and asks questions about (the) agency," he said. City Secretary Bill Clanton's office will be the central filing point for documents.

Leaders said they hope more complete documentation will make the allocation process more clear-cut.

Last year, a conflict arose when the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs was denied economic development funding.

"Without any sort of guidelines, the information (from agencies) can be one piece of paper, or it can be a stack of documents," Ms. Thorpe said.

The new process mirrors the application required of some local foundations, she said.

Once an agency has been approved to get city funds, a contract must be set.

Under that contract, the agency must give regular reports on how the money is being used. Those records will be kept with the files in the city secretary's office.

"We've got some good agencies; they're a benefit to the community," Devenport said. "They're used to answering these type of questions. I believe they should be accountable."

THORNTON: Man's lifesaving efforts draw negative reactions

exam and, if he passed, will take the state exam on Wednesday.

"It (CPR) is something everyone should know. It's not complicated and it's something I believe should be mandatory," Thornton said. "You learn choking techniques among everything else. A person choking can easily die and all it takes to help them is the Heimlich maneuver, which is very simple.

"Some of the people in my class are taking it so they won't feel helpless if their infant is choking. But a class is needed because emergency procedures for a child and an adult are very different. A class teaches the right amount of breath and proper hand positions."

Thornton and his wife of eight years, Elizabeth, have a 20-month-old son, Keller IV and another son due in August.

Although Thornton was amazed to receive any negative comments at all for his actions that day, he attributes much of the backlash to fear and ignorance about health risks and possible lawsuits.

But he believes those worries are unfounded.

"If you're concerned (about diseases) buy a pocket valve mask for about $12. It's small and it goes over the mouth and you're safe," he said. "And there is such a thing as the Good Samaritan laws. You can't be sued if you are doing what you believe is good for the person.

"One police officer told me 'I know CPR and I know how I would give it.'" Thornton said, before stomping on the ground to mimic the officer.

According to Thornton, many lives can be saved by performing relatively simple measures, such as applying pressure to a bleeding wound and keeping the wound elevated.

"A lot of people can drive by an accident, hear a person died and talk about it over dinner. I couldn't live with knowing I drove on by without at least trying," he said.

Shooting victim remains in hospital

Staff report

A 46-year-old Midland man is in serious condition at Memorial Hospital and Medical Center after being shot several times in the upper body Sunday night, according to police reports.

Tommy Clark was shot in his home at 201 W. Estes St., got in his vehicle and drove to 502 W. Estes St., where he was found by his father, police said.

A 43-year-old female told police that after Clark started a "physical confrontation," she got a handgun and shot him.

Midland police responded to the call at 8:20 p.m.

No charges have been filed against the female, whose name has not been released. She was treated and released from Memorial Hospital and Medical Center.

3,000 attend rally at TSU in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Community leaders at a rally Monday night urged justice and deplored both the verdict in the Rodney King case and the violence that followed it.

As many as 3,000 people attended the meeting at Texas Southern University.

Many speakers said the acquittal of four white police officer's in King's videotaped beating and the subsequent Los Angeles riots should spur Houstonians to invest in communities and work for a more equitable justice system.

"It seems to me that the Rodney King case can have a meaning far beyond itself, that it can be a watershed time for us to look at our society and see what can we do to make life better, what can we do to make life fairer," Mayor Bob Lanier said.

Many speakers urged blacks to vote and engage in social activism to change the legal system.

Al Green, president of Houston's chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, called for the abolition of single-race juries.

"The truth is, even though the verdict in the Rodney King case may have been legal, it was wrong," Green said. "The laws of morality dictate that what was done to Rodney King was wrong."

The mostly black audience at the gymnasium rally was peaceful, except for an incident in which a man was hustled out by security guards when he accused the mayor of condemning violence while Houston police commit acts of brutality.

Pennyrich Bra & Lingerie Shop introduces 'One Day Diet' plan

Pennyrich owner Jo Smith recently introduced an amazing new diet plan to the Midland area. The diet is revolutionary because every other day you can eat anything, anywhere, anytime you choose.

"Anyone can stick to a diet for one day when they know they can eat anything they want the next day," said weight loss Marc Ericson, who spent 10 years perfecting "One Day Diet" breakthrough.

Staying on the One Day Diet is just about as easy as starting it. Every other day, on "food days," you can eat anything you like plus enjoy two delicious glasses of Sun Crystals, which aid in the metabolism of the fat.

On Diet days you'll enjoy delicious, mouth-watering Shapelettes that provide energy and satisfy the need to munch

According to Ericson, One Day Diet is safe and effective. "No longer do you have to buy those gimmick pills," he said. "One Day Diet is the diet of the future. It is the newest and most powerful concept in dieting yet."

If you're overweight and beginning to believe you're doomed to stay that way, don't give up. This is your chance to lose all the weight you want. Whether you have five or 105 pounds to lose, you owe it to yourself to try One Day Diet.

Any questions? Call Jo Smith at 683-1045.

Of course, Pennyrich has long been known as a quality lingerie shop. It's been owned and operated by Jo Smith for the past 18 years. And it's always been at the same delightful Dodson Street location in Old Town Midland.

The shop's specialities are custom fitted bras for any type of figure — small or full breasted — and mastectomy bras.

For mastectomy clients, Pennyrich has numerous bras and prosthesis in stock — there's usually no need to special order.

In the custom-fitted bra area, Pennyrich has over 300 sizes in stock. Ideal for any figure — providing the comfort and support you've always dreamt about. The custom fitted bras, incidentally, are highly recommended for expectant mothers because of their excellent, comfortable fit.

Lovely lingerie also abounds at Pennyrich. Besides a large array of panties, camisoles and robes, the shop carries some lovely, whimsical nightwear. Selection ranges from the whimsical, lacy white bridal peignoir sets to the more risque "nearly nothings."

Swimwear is another Pennyrich specialty. Right now lots of beautiful suits are in — just in time for summer. Including many styles in Ms. Smith's favorite label — Robby Len. She has been ordering Robby Len for 18 years and her customers are pleased. She has more requests for them every year.

"They're excellent fitting suits," she said. "They wear well and comfortably."

Swimsuit cover-ups, patio robes, decorative T-shirt with matching pants ensembles and Southern Image patio dresses can also be found at Pennyrich.

"We try to carry something to please just about anybody," Ms. Smith said.

It would seem the shop has succeeded.

Pennyrich Bra & Lingerie Shop is located at 311 Dodson Street in Midland. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Call 683-1045 for information.

Bookstore, baseball make reading big hit

Warming up for the upcoming Sluggers and Sliders Sign Up Story Hour at Pages & Prints Bookstore are (from left) Lee High catcher Mark Seidenberger; Midland High first baseman Jimmy Stanton, and Midland Angels relief pitcher Marvin Cobb.

The Midland Angels and Pages & Prints Bookstore are teaming up to sponsor Sluggers and Sliders, a summer reading program for third through sixth graders. Sign-up will be at 11 a.m. Saturday, May 9 at the bookstore, 40 Plaza Center in Midland.

Marvin Cobb, Midland Angels relief pitcher; Jimmy Stanton, Midland High first baseman, and Lee High catcher Mark Seidenberger are scheduled to be featured readers during the Sign Up Story Hour.

Bat-shaped bookmarks will be given to each girl and boy to help them keep a list of books they'll read over the summer. Those who read 10 or more books before the end of the season (August 15), will get a Slugger Certificate and be eligible for a pretty exciting drawing. The winner of the drawing will pitch the first ball at the Angels game on Sunday, Aug. 16. (No purchase is necessary to win). Youngsters who read five or more books, but less than 10, will receive Slider Certificates.

The books can be on any subjects, not just sports, and they don't have to be purchased at Pages and Prints.

Fans are invited to bring their baseballs to the Sign Up Story Hour for autographs. For more information, call 687-5172.

Also on Pages & Prints' agenda is the Travel in Style With Kids workshop. Gwynne Spencer, author of "Places to Go with Children in the Southwest," will conduct the hands-on workshop scheduled to begin at 10:30 a.m., Saturday, May 16. Ms. Spencer, owner of Trespassers William, a children's-only bookshop in Albuquerque, holds a B.S. in early childhood and elementary education. She has taught first grade reading and remedial reading in high school and holds classes at the New Mexico Family Educators Conference for parents who want to teach their children to read.

Traveling with her own son, Ms. Spencer developed activities to both entertain and enlighten even the youngest of travelers.

There is no charge for the workshop, but pre-registration is requested and space is limited. Materials for traveling totes will be available from Ms. Spencer at the workshop. An informal come-and-go reception and booksigning will follow the workshop and end at 3 p.m.

Of course, anyone, of any age, is bound to be intrigued and delighted by Pages & Prints. Lots of rooms, nooks and crannies hold a variety of reading materials in a multitude of categories. It's a lot like a fine, comfortable old-fashioned house.

The children's section is quite impressive. The science section books to stimulate curiosity, specimens, environmental projects and inflatable globes. The children's art, music and poetry section is beautifully displayed and sure to intrigue and inspire a child.

Other areas, with books of corresponding interest, include the women's room, poetry corner, art, photography and music, and an inspiration room. The cookbook section is situated in an actual kitchen, complete with sink!

It would seem that Pages & Prints is fulfilling its Mission Statement, which reads, "Pages & Prints is dedicated to bringing together book lovers and books and to encourage the enjoyment of reading by being a forum for book-related activities both in our store and in the community."

For more information on books and reading-related activities call Pages & prints at 687-5172. The store is located at 40 Plaza Center in Midland.

Chaparral Wash & Lube prepares vehicles for summer heat

The days are balmy now, but summer heat is just around the corner. So Midlanders are flocking to Chaparral Wash & Lube to have their vehicles serviced in preparation for the sizzling days ahead. Among them is Kenn Webster. "Every car I have I bring here," he said. "They're fast, thorough and professional. I've been coming here for about six years, now."

Since its opening in 1984 Chaparral Wash & Lube has enjoyed a well-earned reputation for the best car wash and oil change service in Midland. They have made a strong commitment to meticulous attention to detail. And they have a staff of highly-skilled, long-time employees.

Skilled technicians not only perform an oil change and lube, but check the battery, power steering, transmission and windshield-washer fluids. As part of the service, these fluids are replenished, if needed. Technicians also carefully scrutinize hoses, belts, the air conditioning system and anti-freeze and freon levels. For an additional charge, technicians install transmission oil, freon, light bulbs and windshield-wiper refills.

Chaparral carries major brands of oil, including Pennzoil, Quaker State and Havoline. Prices for the oil change and lube range from $18.50 to $23.50. (Synthetic oils, such as Mobil One, are $36.50.) And, a free car wash is included with each oil change. Those who are in a rush or notice threatening clouds overhead receive a car wash rain check for use at a later date.

All vehicles receive personal service from dedicated long-time employees like lube center technician C.C. Banks, car wash detail supervisor Guillermo Portillo and detail specialist Gilbert Guiterrrez. These men have a combination of more than 20 years' experience with Chaparral.

A regular maintenance schedule is good insurance against expensive future car trouble. Chaparral Wash & Lube owner Leon Jeffcoat recommends a minimum maintenance schedule of every 3,000 miles or every three months.

A full-service car wash, which includes a wash by gentle cleansers, chamois brushes and soft water is just $7.95. Add wax for $2. Standard vans and Suburbans are $2 more. Vacuuming, hand-drying and window cleaning are included in the price.

Customers who have their car washed also can have the tank filled with Texaco gas at the same stop. More than 18 gallons means a free wash.

Chaparral also offers professionally administered detail jobs. It includes spraying the engine to remove oil and grime, a thorough cleaning under the hood, hand waxing, carpet and upholstery shampooing, interior dash and door treatment and tire treatment. Prices start at $59.

Chaparral Wash & Lube Center is located at the corner of Big Spring and Scharbauer. Texaco, Visa, MasterCard, American Express and Discover cards are welcome. Hours are 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturdays. Call 682-8013 for information.

Mid-West Door & Window puts out hot, summer skylight fire

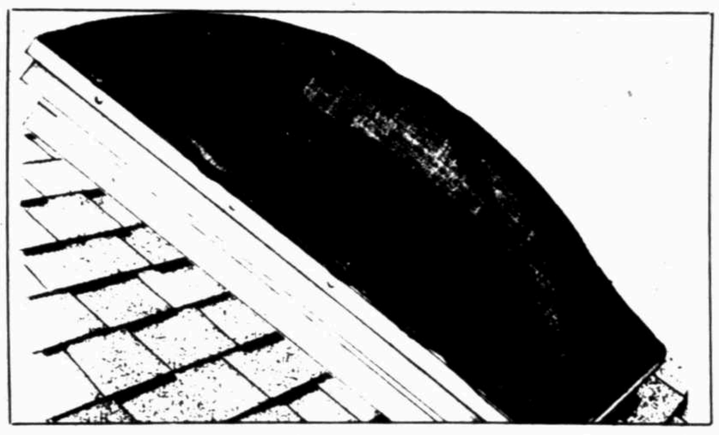

Hot weather has arrived, so it's the perfect time to explore the many options available to make your home more comfortable and energy efficient. Mid-West Door & Window now offers a solution to "put out the fire of hot skylights."

Whether your skylights are clear, tinted, insulated or white translucent — if they transmit light, they transmit heat. Skylight sunscreens made to fit on the outside of your skylights are a perfect way to block out up to 70 percent of the sun's heat while still letting light enter.

These screens are made of a special anti-tear, vinyl-coated polyester. It's woven so the yarn is interlocking and then heat treated to bond the materials for strength and durability.

The cover has a double-folded, sewn hem pocket that houses an architectural rubber shock cord for fastening. They are easy to install and are available in brown, white or gray.

In the winter, the close weave of skylight sunscreens does an excellent job of reducing the wind-chill factor on the skylight's surface. This will maintain a warmer, more consistent surface temperature while reducing frost buildup on the exterior. If free solar heat is your goal, you can simply remove the cover in the winter and put it back in the spring.

Custom-made skylight sunscreens block up to 70 percent of the sun's heat and still let the light through.

Sun screen is available for your windows, too. It also cuts as much as 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare before it strikes your window's surface. This protects your home's interior from fading and sun rot as well as providing daytime privacy.

The savings on energy costs alone will normally pay for the installation of sun screen in two summers or less.

Replacing old, outdated windows and doors can also boost your home's energy efficiency. Mid-West offers a wide variety of doors and replacement windows in both wood and aluminum frames with clear or tinted insulated glass.

So whether you're interested in skylights, windows, patio or entry doors, siding, gutter, sunscreens or plain screens, Mid-West has a complete line of quality products to choose from. They will enhance the beauty of your home and increase its value and energy efficiency.

Call 682-4632 or come by the showroom at 2400 W. Front St. See all of the displays and visit with Mike Smith and his staff. Mid-West has been in business since 1976 and assures quality products with service after the sale.

Classical Greenery helps greet moms — wherever they are Greet mom with specially created floral designs from Classical Greenery & Floral Design.

Whether your mom is halfway around the world, or halfway around the corner, Classical Greenery & Floral Design can help you reach her with a beautiful bouquet of fresh, colorful flowers, plants, gifts or more.

If she's far away for her special day, you can count on FTD and Classical Greenery & Floral Design. FTD designed two lovely floral arrangements — which can be delivered anywhere from Rankin to Rome. One is called "She's Tops, Mother's Love Bouquet," the other is the "Just for Her, Spring Garden Bouquet.

One is arranged in a delightfully whimsical ceramic vase, the other in subtly colored decorative basket. The bright assortment of flowers include daisies, mums, carnations, alstromaria and status. If you prefer to send her another type of bouquet, FTD has a vast number to choose from. Just come by Classical Greenery & Floral design and pick one from the large selection.

Or, if blooming or green plants are more her style, they're readily available from FTD too.

For all those who can't be with their moms, their grandmothers, aunts and other special ladies on Mother's Day, it's nice to know that FTD and Classical Greenery & Floral Design can help you send a beautiful floral arrangement to express your love.

Those who have moms in town will be glad to know that Classical Greenery & Floral Design has created a delightful bouquet — for mothers and grandmothers — which is available for local delivery.

It includes an array of cut spring flowers, arranged in a lovely basket — along with a "mom" or "grandmother" mug, a delightful spoon rest and decorative recipe cards. Or, if you wish, you can order this arrangement in an exquisite Mayfair vase.

For those wanting to handpick their own flowers, all kinds of custom arrangements can be created by the talented designers at Classical Greenery & Floral Design. These can also be filled with green and blooming plants. All manner of gift items, including candies, potpourris, candles can be artfully included.

Classical Greenery & Floral design's gift selection includes: a vast array of stuffed animals, innumerable candles by Root, candle holders in brass, glass, crystal and sandstone styles. Also, wonderful potpourris, gourmet candies from Fudge Love, Yuppie Gourmet and Gourmet Delight and a tremendous choice of colorful coffee mugs.

Classical Greenery & Floral Design has long been bringing all things green and beautiful to Midland homes. And this is the time of year you'll want to call on Classical Greenery & Floral Design to help with your wedding arrangements. Anything from a small, intimate affair to a large wedding is sure to be exquisitely decorated by these fine designers.

Summer parties are also around the corner. Pool-side, inside, anywhere — call on Classical Greenery & Floral Design to help you with the decorating — and you'll be known as an entertaining genius.

And, Classical Greenery & Floral Design is introducing a new service called "Forget-Me-Not," to help you remember special people on their important days. Call 699-6410 for more information.

Richards says there's no reason to call school-finance session now

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards said Monday she is keeping her options open, but there's no reason to call lawmakers into special session on school finance now because there is no agreement on a reform plan.

A federal judge on Friday relieved pressure on the governor to call an immediate session by refusing to halt collection of education property taxes under the current system.

U.S. District Judge James Nowlin declined to issue an injunction requested by taxpayers. They filed the federal lawsuit after the Texas Supreme Court said the current education finance system violates the state constitution, but allowed its use for 1991 and 1992.

The lawsuit said collection of an unconstitutional tax, without opportunity for a refund, violated their due process rights under the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

But Nowlin said an injunction against future collection of the education taxes could have a "disastrous" effect on school children.

Richards has been meeting with legislative leaders and has proposed her own school finance plan. In her proposal, business property would be removed from local school districts' property tax base. That property instead would be taxed at the state level, with revenue divided among all school districts.

"We have not found a consensus of support for any education finance plan, so there is no reason for the state to spend a million dollars on a special session at this time. We are keeping all our options open," Richards said Monday.

She said that the Legislature would have to meet before the January regular session, probably after the November general election.

Police arrest man sought in possible serial killings

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A former death row inmate suspected in cases involving nine women was arrested Monday when authorities were tipped to his whereabouts after his story was featured on a TV detective series.

Kenneth Allen McDuff, who had been sought since March. 9, was taken into custody by Kansas City police at a landfill where he was dumping trash for a private waste hauler. McDuff was not armed and did not offer resistance.

"He was not just dangerous," said U.S. Marshal's supervisor Mike Earp of Washington, D.C., during a news conference in Waco. "He was basically an animal out there committing heinous crimes.

"He was somebody who had to be taken off the streets."

McDuff was turned over to the U.S. Marshal's Service, charged with one count of murder and scheduled to be arraigned on two federal charges Tuesday.

"Kansas City police arrested him based on a tip received in connection with the broadcast of America's Most Wanted last Friday night," said William Dempsey, public affairs officer for the U.S. Marshal's Service in Washington, D.C. "That (tip) was pursued and he was arrested."

U.S. Marshal Larry Joiner said he had no idea how long McDuff had been in Kansas City or why he had gone to Kansas City. Police discovered while booking him Monday that he had been arrested two weeks ago in Kansas City for soliciting a prostitute, but he gave an alias at the time.

The McLennan County Sheriff's Department in Texas charged McDuff on Monday with killing Valencia K. Joshua, 22.

Ms. Joshua's body was found March 15 buried behind the Texas State Technical Institute campus where McDuff lived, said deputy Richard Stroup.

Tom Hammon of the U.S. Marshal Service in Waco said McDuff is wanted for questioning in the cases of a total of nine missing women.

But Hammon refused to disclose more information about the cases. He did say that McDuff was going to be questioned about the murders of four women killed in a robbery incident at an Austin yogurt store Dec. 6.

"It's not over, believe me. We've developed a lot of information. Now that we've got him off the streets it's time to sit down and put this altogether," Earp said.

McDuff had been sentenced to death in 1968 for the 1966 murders of three teen-agers in Tarrant County. But his sentence was commuted to life when the U.S. Supreme Court found in 1972 that the death penalty, as then applied, unconstitutional. He was paroled in 1989.

Pay-per-view

NEW YORK (AP) — College football fans will get additional opportunities to watch their favorite teams next season, at a small cost.

ABC Sports announced Monday that in addition to the games be available on a regional basis via the ABC Television network, others can be seen on a pay-per-view system.

The project is being undertaken on an experimental basis for the 1992 season in cooperation with the College Football Association and the Big Ten Conference. The CFA includes the Atlantic Coast, Souutheastern, Southwest, Big Eight and Western Athletic conferences, plus independents, such as Notre Dame.

ABC is in final discussions with the Pac-10 Conference regarding its involvement in the plan.

"We don't expect a large number of viewers," Stephen Solomon; senior vice president, ABC Sports, said. "This is only a supplement to the regular game."

He estimated the audience would be between 20,000-40,000 on each of the 11 weekends for pay-per-view showing, beginning Sept. 5.

He said the cost per game would be between $5-$10.

Chaparrals sign

Two Chaparral basketball players signed letters of intent Monday afternoon, following their sophomore seasons at MC.

Chris McKinney, the team's leading scorer, will complete his collegiate career at Oral Roberts University, where the father of MC head basketball coach Steve Green serves as an assistant.

Fabian Mina, who paced MC in rebounds, signed on with West Texas State University in Canyon.

McKinney led the Chaps with 20 points and was named second-team All-Western Junior College Athletic Conference.

Mina averaged 6.7 points per game, and 6.5 rebounds.

One year for Teaff

WACO, Texas (AP) — Grant Teaff, Baylor's football coach for 20 years, was named athletic director on Monday and will step down as coach after the 1992 season, ending the second-longest run at the same school among active coaches.

Teaff takes over the athletic director duties on May 31, when Bill Menefee officially retires.

Teaff

Teaff is the nation's second-ranked coach for tenure at his present school, trailing only Penn State's Joe Paterno. Teaff ranks fourth in SWC history in total victories with 79.

"Grant Teaff has been an outstanding football coach and an exceptionally effective representative for the university," Baylor president Herbert H. Reynolds said.

"I am delighted that he has accepted the challenge now to take the entire Baylor athletic program to higher levels of excellence. He has the vision, experience, integrity, motivation and communication skills to succeed in this important position."

Teaff, the dean of Southwest Conference coaches, said: "I based this decision on a number of factors that are extremely important to me.

"In fact, every decision I've made at Baylor the last 20 years involves the same factors: my staff, the team, the football program, the athletic department, Baylor University and Baylor people.

"I've always tried to do what I believed was best for all those important entities, and I've done so in making this decision. I will be in a position ... to see to it the program we've built and the philosophy we've employed will go forward."

Reynolds said Baylor is planning to launch a national search for a football coach by Dec. 1.

Teaff is 121-100-6 at Baylor. He has a record of 163-146-8 in 30 years of college coaching. Last year, the Bears finished 8-4.

Extra innings, but Midland wins one

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant sports editor

The only thing wrong with the Midland Angels on Monday night was a little bad timing. Now that Bert "Pops" Blyleven, the Phillie Phanatic and the Famous Chicken have exited Midland, and with about 800 fewer fans in the stands than Sunday night, the Angels finally decided to put an end to the slump they've been fighting of late.

Tony Brown, hitting .093 entering the game and batting a season-long slump, drove in the winning run in the bottom of the 11th to give the Angels a 5-4 win over El Paso.

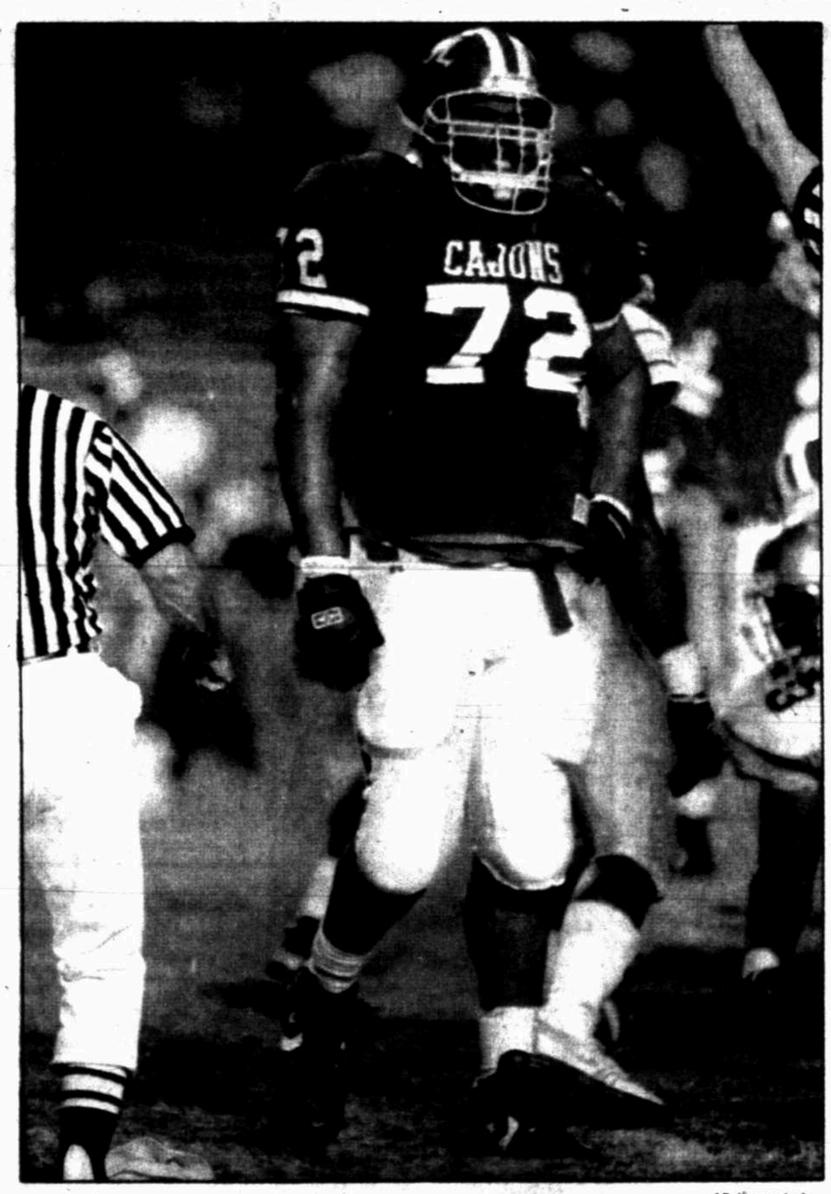

The win was the second for the Angels in their five-game series against the Diablos. Midland (9-16) will enjoy a rare day off today before opening a five-game homestand Wednesday against the Wichita Wranglers.

"I've been hitting the ball really hard, it just hasn't been falling," Brown said of his hitting rut. "Hopefully now things will change."

Brown, called on two nights earlier to pinch hit in a potential game-winning situation, finally got things going his way Monday.

After Bobby Jones led off the 11th with a single, El Paso reliever Jim Czajkowski (1-2) struck out Ray Martinez and Southwest Louisiana's Louis Age gives the Chicago Bears another 340-pound Fridge from the 11th round of the draft.

Coming of Age through NFL's draft process

■ Louis Age, at 6-foot-7 and 340 pounds, will try to become a Chicago Bear after being picked 304th in the draft.

By Mario Fox
Associated Press Writer

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Louis Age is a big man with a sad tale.

The 6-foot-7, 340-pound rookie tackle of the Chicago Bears was 12 when his mother was slain in New Orleans.

"I knew the guy. He was an employee of my parents" at their restaurant, said Age, now 22, during the Bears' minicamp last week at Halas Hall.

"My mother was leaving the restaurant. She was stopping by a friend's. And it happened at the friend's," Age said.

Afterward, Age and his younger sister were raised by their father, also Louis — a New York Jets offensive guard in the mid 1970s. They have a stepmother now.

Eventually, the rookie lineman hopes to turn his personal tragedy into a life of helping city youths stay out of trouble.

But, first, Age will strive to make the Bears' roster for the 1992 season — a big task for a late-round pick from a small school that ran the option. He wasn't even invited to the NFL tryouts.

"Maybe if I came from a bigger school and had been seen on TV, I would have been drafted a little higher," said Age, picked in the 11th round, the 304th player of 336 selected.

The shooting led Age into choosing criminal justice as a major when he went to Southwestern Louisiana in Lafayette, the same college his father attended.

He said he would like to work at a youth center.

"I was thinking about going into work with juveniles. I like kids and I'd like to help kids," he said.

He says New Orleans, like all U.S. cities, has a serious crime problem.

"There are a lot of kids doing wrong. There's always kids on the streets all the time at night. If they only had more youth centers, more athletic events," said the big lineman. "If they had somebody to help with school, it would really help out."

Age had his own problems in school.

"He is no dummy, but because of his personal tragedy and the fact he was a big, pleasant guy who played football, he always got promoted along in school. He might have been better off being held back," said Bill Tobin, the Bears' personnel director.

His college entrance exam score was low and he had to sit out his freshman year of football eligibility in 1988.

"I was a little immature when I went to college. I don't think I was ready," he said.

Age did well in the classroom, however, and now lacks only 25 credit hours for his degree. If he makes the Bears, he plans to finish at Chicago's DePaul University.

Despite his size, Age wasn't a regular starter until his senior year at Southwestern Louisiana. Then he really blossomed.

Boston's Parish, McHale derail Cleveland, 104-98

Associated Press

RICHFIELD, Ohio — Once again, the reports of Robert Parish's demise were premature.

Boston's 38-year-old center bounced back from two miserable performances by scoring 27 points and grabbing eight rebounds Monday night as the Celtics beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 104-98, tying their Eastern Conference semifinal series 1-1.

Parish made only two of 12 shots and totaled six points in the Celtics' previous two playoffs games. At his age, every slump is perceived as a crisis — by everyone but his teammates.

"He answered every question after he played bad," Kevin McHale said. "He answered questions about being too old. He answered questions about Brad Daugherty being too good for him. Today, he played well and he'll let others do the talking."

NBA Playoffs

Despite aggravating his sore left ankle in the third quarter of Saturday's loss to the Cavs, Parish sank 13 of 18 shots while helping limit Daugherty to 22 points on 7-for-15 shooting. Daugherty scored only two points in the fourth quarter.

"Robert Parish is a vintage player, and he played like fine wine tonight," Cleveland's John Battle said. "He's a veteran, but he's young at heart. They shot the ball extremely well, and our intensity went up and down because of it."

Reggie Lewis scored 26 points and McHale finished with 18 for the Celtics, winners of 12 of their last 13 games. Larry Bird has missed all 13 games because of his sore back.

Boston, which plays host to the Cavs in the next two games Friday night and Sunday, trailed 76-75 entering the fourth quarter. But a 16-6 run, capped by Parish's two inside baskets, gave the Celtics a 91-82 lead.

Cleveland closed to 91-87 on a 3-pointer and two foul shots by Mark Price before McHale sank a jumper that quieted the sellout crowd of 20,273 with 4:44 left. The Cavs got no closer than six after that.

Price scored 20 points and Larry Nance and Battle each had 14 for Cleveland, which lost for the seventh time in its 22 home playoff games.

The Celtics, who made 43 percent of their shots in the 101-76 series-opening loss, improved to 59 percent in winning Game 2. The Cavaliers lost despite shooting 52 percent.

"I thought we played good defense," Price said. "McHale, Parish and Lewis came up big. They just made their shots."

Bucs have 11-run inning

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Pirates, 1-0 losers the night before, tied a club record with an 11-run sixth inning keyed by Jose Lind's three RBIs and two hits apiece by three players in a 12-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds Monday night.

The Pirates, who have had a succession of big innings this season en route to their 17-7 start, sent 16 batters to the plate and produced nine hits in the sixth off four pitchers.

Lind, Cecil Espy and Jeff King had two hits each and Andy Van Slyke, who went 4 for 4, had a go-ahead two-run single as Pittsburgh turned a 5-1 deficit entering the inning into a 12-5 lead.

The big inning came on a night when the Pirates promised two free tickets to every fan in attendance if they won.

NL Roundup

Mets 5, Astros 1

HOUSTON — Bret Saberhagen allowed his first run in 26 innings, which was all Houston got as he beat the Astros for the second straight start.

Saberhagen (2-2) shut out Houston 1-0 on Wednesday and he held the Astros scoreless again until Craig Biggio singled in the sixth inning and scored on Eric Anthony's double.

Saberhagen gave up six hits, struck out nine and did not walk a batter in eight innings. He had not allowed a run since Montreal scored five in the third inning on April 18.

It was the second straight matchup between Saberhagen and Darryl Kile (2-3) and the second complete game for Saberhagen against the Astros. Saberhagen struck out nine and allowed three hits against Houston the last time.

Braves 6, Cubs 1

CHICAGO — Chicago finally scored against Atlanta.

Not that it mattered, because the Braves won their fourth straight against the Cubs as John Smoltz, Mike Stanton and Juan Berenguer combined on a five-hitter.

The Cubs had been shut out three times by the Braves last week and went 34 innings since last July 28 in Chicago without scoring a run against Atlanta.

Smoltz (3-2) had blanked the Cubs 8-0 on seven hits last Wednesday. He yielded three hits, walked five and struck out eight in seven innings to improve to 8-2 lifetime against Chicago.

Fernandez flirts with fame

Associated Press

CHICAGO — Alex Fernandez pitched a one-hitter for his first career shutout, allowing a second-inning double to Dante Bichette on Monday night as the Chicago White Sox beat the Milwaukee Brewers 7-0.

Fernandez (2-2) struck out seven and walked one. After Bichette's hit, he retired 21 consecutive batters before walking Paul Molitor with one out in the ninth. Milwaukee's only other runner was Robin Yount, who reached in the first on a throwing error by shortstop Esteban Beltre.

Ricky Bones (1-1) gave up four runs and five hits in two-plus innings.

Chicago sent 10 batters to the plate in the third and scored four runs. Tim Raines walked, Steve Sax singled and Robin Ventura walked, loading the bases. Frank Thomas followed with an RBI single on sinking liner just off the glove of Bichette in right.

George Bell hit a two-run single, Dan Pasqua sacrificed off Bruce Ruffin, Ron Karkovice loaded the bases with a walk and Lance Johnson drove in a run with a fielder's choice grounder.

Sax doubled in the fourth and scored on Ventura's single, Karkovice hit his second home run of the season in the sixth, and Sax walked in the seventh and scored on Ventura's double off Edwin Nunez.

Orioles 8, Rangers 5

BALTIMORE — Chris Hoiles hit a grand slam to cap a five-run seventh inning as Baltimore beat Texas Rangers for its sixth straight victory.

Baltimore has won nine straight and 10 of 11 in Camden Yards, its best home start ever. The Orioles' 17-8 start overall is their best since 1970.

Mike Devereaux had two hits, drove in two runs and stole home for the first-place Orioles, who have won 14 of 17.

With the score tied at 3-all, Terry Mathews (1-3) walked Devereaux and hit Cal Ripken with a pitch, and Tim Hulett hit a go-ahead single off Floyd Bannister.

Todd Burns walked Randy Milligan and Hoiles hit his seventh home run, a drive to left that popped out the glove of a leaping Kevin Reimer and appeared to touch a fan before bouncing back onto the field.

Alan Mills (2-0) pitched five scoreless innings of relief of Bob Milacki and Mike Flanagan pitched the ninth, giving up an RBI groundout to Ruben Sierra and a run-scoring single to Juan Gonzalez.

The game drew 36,511, the first time the Orioles failed to draw at least 40,000 to Camden Yards.

Twins 6, Red Sox 1

BOSTON — John Smiley pitched seven shutout innings against Boston's Roger Clemens to gain his first victory for Minnesota.

Smiley (1-2), winless in his first five starts for the Twins, allowed three hits, walked five and struck out one before Bob Kipper and Carl Willis finished with one-hit relief.

Smiley was traded from Pittsburgh to Minnesota during spring training while Kipper, a teammate on the Pirates last season, signed with the Twins in December as a free agent.

American League

Clemens (3-3) lost despite his fourth complete game in six starts, allowing 12 hits, striking out six and walking three — two of them intentional. He had given up only eight runs previously this season.

Minnesota took the lead in the first when Shane Mack and Chuck Knoblauch singled and Kirby Puckett grounded into a run-scoring double play.

The Twins made it 2-0 in the second when Gene Larkin singled, stole second, took third on a groundout and scored on Donnie Hill's infield single that Clemens couldn't field cleanly 10 feet from home plate. It was Hill's first RBI this season.

Tigers 6, Angels 2

DETROIT — Bill Gullickson won his fourth straight start, allowing seven hits in 8⅓ innings as Detroit beat California.

Gullickson (4-2) struck out four and walked one as Detroit won its third straight game, matching a season high. Mark Leiter finished.

Jim Abbott (1-4) allowed a three-run homer to Dan Gladden in the fifth and a two-run homer to Travis Fryman in the sixth. Abbott, winless in four starts, gave up five runs and five hits in six innings.

Royals 11, Indians 6

CLEVELAND — Mike Macfarlane and Keith Miller hit two-run homers as Kansas City beat Cleveland and won for only the fifth time in 24 games this season.

Kansas City, which began the night with just a .214 average and 70 runs, banged out a season-high 15 hits and broke double digits in runs for the first time since last year. The Royals have won consecutive games for only the second time this season.

Royals reliever Neal Heaton was ejected by home plate umpire Terry Cooney in the eighth after consecutive inside pitches to Albert Belle. Belle charged the mound several seconds after the ejection, both dugouts and bullpens emptied and several players exchanged punches.

Rusty Meacham (1-0) got the win by retiring one batter in the sixth. Rod Nichols (0-2) gave up four runs and three hits in 2⅓ innings.

Yankees 7, Mariners 5

SEATTLE — Jim Leyritz tied a career high by driving in four runs with a homer and a double as New York sent Seattle to its sixth straight loss.

Tim Leary (3-1) allowed five runs and six hits in seven innings, struck out four and walked one. John Habyan pitched a perfect eighth and Steve Howe pitched a perfect ninth for his third save.

Russ Swan (2-4) gave up seven runs and six hits in five innings, but four runs were unearned because of errors by the pitcher and shortstop Jeff Schaefer.

The Yankees, who stopped a two-game losing streak, have won seven of their last 10 road games.

ANGELS: Stark, Kapano draw release

(From 1C)

Fausto Tejero in succession. Brown then hit a 3-2 pitch to right field that went through El Paso second baseman John Finn and was bobbled again by right fielder Vince Castaldo. The official ruling was a hit and the short-handed Angels poured onto the field to congratulate Brown after driving in the game-winning run in Jones.

"When you're losing it's hard when everybody wants you to do everything right all at once," Brown said. "As a team we've got to pull together.

"Hopefully this is a step in the right direction. The guys showed a lot of intensity. It looked like we wanted to win."

Midland manager Don Long had limited resources from which to choose in the event he had any thoughts of using a pinch hitter. Earlier in the day Monday, the California club gave both Matt Stark and Corey Kapano their unconditional releases. With only 11 everyday players on the roster for Monday's game, only infielder Terry Taylor, outfielder Jim Edmonds, and, ironically enough Brown, the designated hitter, manned the dugout while Midland was in the field.

The Angels held a 4-2 lead entering the top of the eighth when El Paso catcher Craig Faulkner knocked a pitch over the left-center field wall to tie it at 4-4.

HBP—O'Leary (by Peck). T—3:57. A—3,058.

Midland, hitless since the seventh inning, got a meaningless single in the 10th before its game-winning inning in the 11th.

Jeff Kipila hit his sixth homer of the year, a two-run blast in the first that scored Walt McConnell to put the Angels ahead 2-0. Kipila later picked up his sixth double of the season, and later in the sixth inning scored the Angels' third run of the night.

Midland pitching again looked top notch as Steve Peck had his best outing of the year. Peck, although void of a decision, threw eight innings, allowing four runs on eight hits. He also equaled his season strikeout total in Monday's game with eight. Peck was particularly impressive through the first seven frames when the Diablos were held to two runs on six hits.

Brett Merriman picked up the win in relief for Midland. The hard-throwing right-hander worked two innings and allowed just two hits.

Pittsburgh gives Gibson release

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Kirk Gibson, acquired by the Pittsburgh Pirates during spring training to help fill the void created by Bobby Bonilla's departure, was placed on waivers Monday and said he probably will retire.

Gibson, 34, who starred in the 1984 and 1988 World Series, said he wasn't surprised and doesn't expect another team to pick him up by Thursday's deadline.

Rutherford gets Indy ride

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Johnny Rutherford, a three-time Indianapolis 500 winner who has not driven a race in two years, has received sponsorship to drive the rest of the season for Walker Motorsports.

Rutherford, 54, was bumped from the Indy lineup in the closing minutes of qualifications in 1989 and 1990 and did not make an attempt last year. He was 10th at Michigan and 13th at Pocono in his last Indy car starts in 1989.

"Being with Derrick Walker is a great thrill as well. I've been with a couple of the good teams in racing over the years, with McLaren Racing and with Jim Hall and the Chaparral team. Derrick Walker fits that mold."

AGE: Bears' Perry can look up

(From 1C)

"I've never seen a player improve so much in one year," said Bear scout Jim Palmer.

Age has a simple explanation for the turnaround.

"I just wanted to play and got better," he said.

The large lineman had a 5.2 clocking in the 40-yard dash.

Age works with a weight trainer in New Orleans, hoping to shed several pounds and play at 335 pounds. The Bears may want him to lose even more.

"That will be determined by our medical staff, trainer Fred Caito and our coaching staff," said Tobin.

Age has always been the biggest man on his teams in high school and college, but in Chicago he has a fellow 300-plus-pounder in William Perry.

"I've had his poster in my room since he joined the Bears," Age revealed. "I've always looked up to him."

Now, the 6-2 Perry can look up to the 6-7 Age.

TUESDAY, MAY 5, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: When an old love re-enters your life, you could feel a surge of emotion you thought gone forever. Follow your heart! Fall brings financial gains. Loving support makes you feel more secure in your role as a spouse or parent. In December, begin setting aside money for travel and a dream vacation. A promising relationship will intensify early in 1993. Be careful not to promise more than you can deliver next spring.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Alice Faye, actor Tyrone Power, chef James Beard, philosopher Karl Marx.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take your time when making major career and financial decisions. Rely on the advice of experts. A family member needs special attention now. Take a cautious approach to events beyond your control.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good timing is the key to business success. Discard outmoded methods and latch onto valuable new ideas. Someone who has been evading your phone calls may not have the information you need.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Avoid conducting business in secret. A home-vs.-career problem disappears when you seek your partner's cooperation. Romance looks very promising for singles. Follow your heart.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Foreign places and contacts attract your attention. A family relationship improves when you show greater understanding. Take special pains not to disturb the harmony at work.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Business trends take a definite upswing, enabling you to plan far ahead. Lean on a trusted friend when in doubt. Your energy quotient soars; avoid acting recklessly or giving in to temptation.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Maintaining your usual good nature and poise around home or the office will avert a showdown. An atmosphere of secrecy may be misunderstood. Learn more about computers, science and astrology.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Eschew any financial gambles unless you can afford to lose. Money left unspent is as good as earning it now. At home, avoid fuzzy thinking and emotional confrontations. Show your considerate side.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You are slated to benefit financially from a new enterprise and your own resourcefulness. Get a friend on your side tonight. Becoming a better communicator aids your career.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Inner fears or a lack of self-assurance are the only impediment to great success now! Let your mate or someone else close to you make the financial and social decisions today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Express your views with assurance and enthusiasm when you wish others to be impressed and influenced. Your personal charm helps you overcome almost any obstacle this week.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Sustained and enthusiastic effort adds to your creative accomplishments. Your personal labors provide a steady income. Avoid disagreements with those who issue the orders.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Involvement in a community project will show you at your best. Try to be a bit more outgoing. Share your specialized knowledge with neighbors and friends and be generous to the needy.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are honest, forthright and tenacious, almost singleminded in pursuit of their goals. A shy streak means these youngsters will keep newcomers at arm's length until they feel at ease. Wise parents will gently encourage these Taureans to open up a bit more. Self-assurance will come with maturity.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♠	Dbl	2 ♠
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Eight of ♡

If Shakespeare had been alive to witness this hand being played, he might have written a play about it. An appropriate title would have been A Comedy of Errors.

We are not enthralled with North's takeout double of one spade. Suppose South had bid three diamonds rather than three hearts—what then? We would have preferred a pass, followed by a balancing double when two spades was passed back; or even an immediate overcall of two hearts. As for South's three hearts, no medals are awarded for bravery at bridge.

Afraid to lead from any tenace, West selected the singleton trump for the opening salvo. There is probably no worse lead in bridge, and here it almost surely cost a trick. Declarer won, but failed to make the most of this stroke of luck. After drawing two more rounds of trump, ending in hand, declarer continued with a diamond to the jack and king.

East's spade return was taken in dummy and a diamond to the nine lost to the ten. West cashed the king of spades and continued the suit, forcing South to ruff. In hand for the last time, declarer successfully finessed the queen of clubs, but still had to lose a club trick for down one.

Having been blessed with a trick and a tempo on the opening lead, declarer could have exploited the combined assets more effectively by immediately leading a diamond to the jack and king. Declarer ducks the spade shift and wins the continuation. A diamond to the nine loses to the ten, the spade return is ruffed and a diamond is ruffed on the board, fetching West's ace. All that remains is for declarer to cash the ace of hearts and return to hand with a trump to discard a club on the queen of diamonds and take the club finesse for the contract.

Marsalis has no trouble leaving life on road for 'Tonight' show

NEW YORK — Jazz saxophonist Branford Marsalis said it was easy to give up life on the road for the "Tonight" show.

"I think this is a chance to introduce quality music to a lot of people," he said in an interview published Sunday in The New York Times Magazine.

"But more important, I'll be stationary. I'll wake up in the same bed, day after day, something that I haven't done since college."

Marsalis, 31, said he looks forward to growing as a musician while living in California.

"I'll be able to practice for the first time in years," he said. "There's a great classical saxophone teacher at the University of Southern California that I want to study with."

On May 25, Marsalis takes over for Doc Severinsen as band leader and Jay Leno takes over permanently for Johnny Carson as host of the late-night NBC show.

Marsalis said he and Leno "don't really know each other. We're going to find out about each other on the show. It's going to be interesting to see a relationship develop on air."

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — It wasn't the welcome Joan Collins expected. A man called the actress a "silicone sex symbol" and another said she was a nice, but empty, package.

Collins

Miss Collins, visiting South Africa to raise funds for charity, was invited to a television station where she taped an interview before a studio audience and watched a recorded segment about her career.

The recorded segment included interviews with South African male celebrities who were asked about the sex appeal of Miss Collins, known for her role as the wealthy, manipulative Alexis on "Dynasty."

Actor Clive Scott called her a "58-year-old silicone sex symbol." Frank Opperman, another actor, said she was "a nice package which is empty inside."

Ms. Collins was nonplussed.

"I'm a bit shocked," she said. "I wish I were in France."

John Badenhorst, spokesman for the M-Net station, said the "tasteless inserts will certainly not be screened" when the show is broadcast Thursday.

MANCHESTER, N.H. — U.S. Supreme Court Justice David Souter had kind words for Concord Hospital, where he was once a trustee.

Souter was among 600 people at a retirement party Sunday night for hospital President Richard Warner.

"It is still a hospital in which the care of the patient is personal, where a patient is treated as a human being and not a statistic. And it is a place where no one has ever been turned away for lack of money," Souter said.

Souter was a trustee for the hospital in the 1970s.

BUFFALO, N.Y. — Two firefighters are burned about Ron Howard's "Backdraft," saying the movie included parts of scripts they wrote in 1988 and 1989.

John C. Zoll and Terrence Burns filed a federal lawsuit against Howard's company, Imagine Films Entertainment, contending the movie about the life of a rookie firefighter included funeral scenes identical to what they had written.

The lawsuit cites other similarities, including a firehouse dog of a breed different than the traditional Dalmatian and scenes in which a firefighter and a woman are found in a compromising position in a firehouse loft.

"There are startling similarities between the plot of the film and two scripts that were written and copyrighted by my clients," said Daniel C. Oliverio, an attorney for Zoll and Burns, who is a former firefighter.

The movie, directed by Howard and starring Kurt Russell and Billy Baldwin, was released last year and grossed $147 million. The lawsuit, filed last week in Buffalo, seeks unspecified damages.

"It sounds like the typical 'after the success' lawsuit," said Michael Rosenberg, a senior vice president for Imagine Films. "This industry is plagued with people who, months or years after something has become a success, try to claim credit."

PRINCETON, N.J. — Helen Suzman, one of South Africa's best known white campaigners against apartheid, will speak at Princeton University on May 18 in the first in a series of lectures established in memory of a Princeton undergraduate who died last year.

Priscilla Glickman was 21 and about to enter her senior year at Princeton when she was struck and killed by a truck while bicyling last summer on Martha's Vineyard.

She was in the first contingent of women elected to the Ivy Club, the oldest eating club at the school.

Jacob Elkins, a close friend and also a member of the Ivy Club, said, "A group of us and her parents decided that a lecture series, to be held annually, would be the best and most fitting way to commemorate her." Alumni and the Glickman family are donating funds to support the lecture, but the club will sponsor it.

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

WHAT IS STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE?

Stockquote Hotline gives you the latest stock prices direct from the wires of the Associated Press. Over 9,000 stocks are listed from NYSE, AmEx, and OTC sources; all available 24 hours a day. You can receive up to 10 quotes with one easy phone call.

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE:

1) Call the Stockquote Hotline at 560-2400; enter the category number which is 9988.

2) You will be asked to enter your stock ticker symbol. These are based on industry-standard symbols, which can be found in a Standard & Poor's Ticker guide, or by calling your local stock broker.

3) Once you've entered the numerical code for the ticker symbol, press the Star Key (*) and you will hear the current price and net change from the last Associated Press update; which is a few minutes behind market activity.

4) After the stock is quoted, you will be asked to enter another ticker symbol. You now have 2 options:
- You may request a quote for another stock by repeating steps 2 & 3.
- You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more pressing the Star Key (*).

Now the volume, high and low will be given, and then you will be asked to enter another ticker code.
- You may enter up to 10 ticker symbols per call.

5) To exit Stockquote Hotline, simply hang up the phone.

Prices soar

NEW YORK — Oil prices soared Monday to new highs for 1992, driven up by a buying spree in the gasoline pit.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in June settled at $21.12 per barrel, up 27 cents as it extended gains of last week on the New York Mercantile Exchange. Oil for next-month delivery had not closed that high since Nov. 29, when the final price was $21.48 a barrel.

Local crude purchasers also raised their prices. Scurlock Permian, Navajo Refining and Texaco Trading and Transportation raised their prices 25 cents to $19.75. Phillips raised its price 25 cents to $20.35.

Traders said strong demand for the gasoline futures was pulling the rest of the market higher.

Natural gas prices were also higher, with contracts for delivery in June settling at $1.458 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 2.7 cents.

Lower-grade sour crude oil for delivery in June settled at $18.47 per barrel, up 27 cents.

Tbills slip

WASHINGTON — Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities fell in Monday's auction to the lowest level in three weeks.

The Treasury Department sold $11.4 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 3.65 percent, down from 3.71 percent last week. Another $11.5 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 3.78 percent, down from 3.85 percent last week.

The three-month bill rate was the lowest since they sold for 3.60 percent on April 13. The six-month bill rate was the lowest since they averaged 3.73 percent, also on April 13.

Dollar rises

NEW YORK — The dollar rose Monday in dealings quieted by holidays at two key foreign markets.

In New York the dollar settled at 133.20 yen, up from 132.65 on Friday.

In New York it cost $1.7790 to buy one pound, less expensive than Friday's $1.7865.

Record Dow

NEW YORK — Stock prices rose broadly Monday, propelling the Dow Jones industrial average to a new high, as the market resumed a rally interrupted by the Los Angeles riots.

The Dow average of 30 big-company stocks climbed 42.04 points to 3,378.13, surpassing the previous record of 3,366.50 on April 16.

Advancing issues outnumbered declining ones by about 2 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

U.S. forces exodus, oil officials say

■ Global Marine Inc. chief: If things don't improve, continued job losses can be expected in industry.

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Oil industry executives complained Monday that stiff environmental regulations and a lack of government cooperation are forcing American companies to do business overseas where they are welcomed with open arms.

"The overriding fact is that the U.S. government is actively driving our industry out of the country," Russ Luigs, chairman of Houston-based Global Marine Inc., a major international offshore drilling contractor, said as the weeklong annual Offshore Technology Conference got under way.

"I'm pleading that we get some cooperation from government and from Congress as well," said Bill O'Malley, chairman of the National Ocean Industries Association. "We're getting precious little."

Energy companies have been shifting their exploration and production budgets to foreign markets as the costs of drilling in the United States increase and opportunities to drill shrink.

The House is considering a bill that would put off-limits to drilling nearly all U.S. shoreline areas, an area of 500 million acres. Only the central and western Gulf of Mexico and a portion of the Alaska coastline would remain eligible.

"This country thinks it doesn't need us," said Ray Galvin, president of Chevron U.S.A. Production Co.

Even the presence of former oilman George Bush in the White House has not helped, said Bob Stewart, National Ocean Industries Association president.

"He is a reflection of the public, and the public doesn't perceive a problem," Stewart said.

"He hasn't helped us," O'Malley said.

Galvin said there is less political risk for energy companies to deal with Russia and the other remnants of the former Soviet Union than to work in this country.

"We're making progress (there)," he said. "We can't even converse with some people here."

Luigs noted that in the first quarter of the year alone, 100 percent of his company's cash flow came from overseas work, up from 83 percent a year ago. Ninety-four percent of Global Marine's revenues is generated from foreign countries, up from 79 percent a year ago.

"It's impossible to run our offshore equipment in the Gulf of Mexico at break-even any more," he said.

Luigs noted, as an example, environmental regulations governing spills fail to recognize that natural gas is not a liquid.

"It's a little difficult to clean up natural gas from a beach," he said. "A lot of it has to do with who gets believed in this country. Industry in general does not get believed. The fact is that from J.D. Rockefeller to J.R. Ewing, the oil industry has succeeded in creating an image that is unacceptable to the public."

He acknowledged, however, that the industry had done a "miserable p.r. job" and said one solution to the problem is public education.

"Other than the landlocked countries of the world, the U.S. is unique in not having a welcome mat out for offshore development," Luigs said.

Galvin characterized the United States as "the only nation in the world with shoreline and not interested in have the industry going in."

He said if things don't improve, continued job losses can be expected.

U.S. firms ask for 'safety net' on Russia risk

N.Y. Times News Service

Many American companies, convinced that it is too risky to invest in the former Soviet Union, have appealed to the Bush administration for greatly enlarged federal investment guarantees to protect them from losses.

Without such guarantees, Corporate America appears to have decided that it will not go forward now with extensive ventures in the Commonwealth of Independent States — despite the potential for big profits in the future.

"The risks in Russia are greater than in any other part of the world," said Dexter Baker, chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers and also of Air Products and Chemicals Inc., a multinational company based in Allentown, Pa. "So if American industry is to do business there, it needs special government protection, and that can be done by expanding investment insurance and export guarantees."

Texas' Compaq expands division

HOUSTON (AP) — Compaq Computer Corp. said Monday it is expanding its North American division in an effort to increase business at the struggling personal computer maker.

The Houston-based company, which is trying to adapt to a more competitive and price-sensitive PC market, said the expansion includes the appointment of several key executives who will report to Ross Cooley, senior vice president of North America.

"We have put together a highly focused team of seasoned individuals who will expand our marketing, sales and customer support activities and ensure the success of our products in the North American marketplace," Cooley said.

Cooley said the new management team will deliver a range of programs that "target pricing, new (sales) channel development, customer satisfaction and support and advertising and public relations."

Last week, Compaq said its first-quarter earnings fell 60 percent to $45 million, compared with $114 million for the 1991 first quarter. The company said lower prices for its products helped drive down profits.

Collider's impact comes slowly to Waxahachie

By Evan Ramstad
Associated Press writer

WAXAHACHIE — In 1988, politicians and scientists sold the residents of Ellis County on the superconducting super collider with rosy economic promises.

But until recently, most of those promises had been filled in Dallas County, a few miles to the north.

After the project received funds in 1989, the Department of Energy and state of Texas set up offices on the south edge of Dallas and in suburban DeSoto, where there was abundant vacant space.

But the recent abandonment of a drug store chain distribution center finally brought scientists to Waxahachie, which will be encircled by their machine.

Collider officials have remodeled the warehouse, putting in false ceilings, skylights and state-of-the-art computers for more than 1,000 scientists who will eventually work there.

"Before this, we got our name in the papers but all the warm bodies were in Dallas and DeSoto," said Waxahachie City Manager Bob Sokoll.

"That thing is growing in employment every day," said Bob Jordan, executive director of the local chamber of commerce. "There you are with people eating in your restaurants, shopping in your stores. The housing upstart is looking good."

Indeed, there is virtually no rental housing left in the town of 18,000.

Along with the 40 companies and manufacturing facilities that form its industrial base, the collider development kept Waxahachie from feeling much pain in the recent recession, city leaders said.

"We've been somewhat blessed all along," Jordan said. "This is just adding icing to the cake. That icing is going to grow much larger as the project grows."

A big boost is expected this year, when construction gets into full swing.

President Bush has asked for $650 million for the collider in the 1993 federal budget, enough to begin tunneling and mass production of the machine's chief component, the superconducting magnets.

The first step of the funding process is expected next week with action by a House appropriations panel.

The project is expected to create 9,400 direct and secondary jobs during peak construction through the mid-1990s. About 5,700 permanent jobs are forecast when the machine is in use by 1999, according to estimates by the North Texas Commission, a regional development group.

There are now about 2,000 people on the collider payroll, with an estimated direct effect of over $500 million on the north Texas economy.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Treasury securities fit long-term investors

By Bill Doyle

Q: Please comment on all the negative things I hear about 30-year U.S. Treasury bonds.

Doyle

I can see why brokers don't like long-term Treasuries, since there are no big commissions on them. However, my wife and I are 70 years old and an 8 percent rock-solid interest rate is appealing for current income. We are not overly concerned whether our heirs will receive a little more or less.

A: You have a sensible attitude. When you own Treasury securities, you receive the stated interest rate through thick and thin. The most recent issue of 30-year Treasury bonds pays annual interest at 8 percent of the bonds' face value. Future issues might have slightly lower interest rates.

One rap on them is you might get less than face value if you sell the bonds before their maturity dates – and if interest rates in general have gone up. But just the opposite has happened lately. As interest rates have dropped, the market prices of "long Treasuries" have risen above their face values.

Another possible negative factor is that 30 years is an awfully long time frame for most folks. You're reconciled to both these potential negatives.

You can duck all commissions and other charges by purchasing new issues of Treasury securities from your district Federal Reserve Bank or branch through the "Treasury Direct" system. Your local bank can provide the address of the Fed bank or branch serving your area.

Q: I own and have in my possession certificates for a number of Treasury bonds and notes issued before the Treasury Direct system debuted a few years ago. Some of these securities are in registered form, with my name and address on them, so that I receive interest checks through the mail. Others are in bearer form and I clip coupons as they come due.

More recently, I have purchased Treasury bonds, notes and bills in book-entry form through Treasury Direct. All payments of interest and discounts go by wire to my local bank account.

The second method is so much more convenient and less costly that I wanted to put my old bonds and notes into my Treasury Direct account. I was informed that is impossible. Why?

A: Along with fancy, engraved certificates for Treasury securities, the information you received is outdated. Just last month, the Treasury Department's Bureau of the Public Debt announced a new program for people such as you.

That arrangement, called "Smart Exchange," provides a simple method for turning in certificates for Treasury securities and having them held in a Treasury Direct book-entry account.

To accomplish what you have in mind, telephone (800) 366-3144. You can order a Smart Exchange kit containing all the information and instructions you need.

Q: I am surprised at you. A small inaccuracy in your column makes for a riot of confusion. The 52-week Treasury bills are not auctioned "once a month, usually on the fourth Thursday," as you wrote. They are auctioned every fourth Thursday, around the calendar -- 13 times a year.

I know. I have 13 of those 52-week T bills, laddered so that I get one refund (discount) every four weeks.

Shouldn't you clarify this?

A: Yes, indeed! I stand properly chastised.

Your method is excellent, by the way. Assuming you have a Treasury Direct account and roll over each T bill as it matures to buy another one, the discount payments hit your personal bank account on a scheduled four-week cycle.

Celebrities shower Altrusa style show

By Elizabeth Edwin
Lifestyle editor

Spring was in the air as the Altrusa Club of Midland Inc. presented its annual "Celebrity Showers of Fashion for Men and Women" Saturday at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

More than 100 people attended the annual style show to help the local Altrusans raise money for their local service projects. According to Altrusa president Beverly Dyer, approximately $1,875 was raised.

After expenses, "We hope to have made about $1,000," Ms. Dyer said.

Women's fashion were provided by Lou's Ladies Fashions, with owner Lou Peters commentating. Fashions ranged from spring flower print dresses to casual summer pant suits and jump suits, and even a few formal dresses for those special occasions.

Cal's Man Shop provided the men's fashions, with owner Craig Gauthier commentating. Business suits, sportswear and even swimsuits were modeled. But as men are a little shy about modeling, they were helped through the motions by Donna Morrison, Yamilet Foster and Tammy Brown, who also donned some of the latest styles for men.

The purpose of Altrusa International Inc. is to promote community service by an international network of executives and professionals in diversified career classifications. The Midland club has 45 members. Membership is by invitation, once classification has been determined.

The proceeds from the style show and other fund-raising efforts of Altrusa support a variety of local service projects. Among these projects are Ada Phillips Vocational Services Award Scholarship; Big Spring State Hospital, Christmas in April; Christmas Cheer; Annual Recognition and Awards Dinner for Foreign Exchange Students; Literacy Awards to four freshman school girls for literacy improvements; 200 Books to Public School Libraries for recognition of the most improved readers in grades K-6 in MISD; Monday Night Banana Bingo Nursing Home Project; Operation "Cool" (collects and arranges repairs to fans and air conditioners for low-income families in Midland); and the Texas Native Plant Garden at Windlands Park, established and maintained by Altrusa.

Celebrity models included Katheryn Lee of Quad K; Mary Frances Olivas of BTA Oil; Gloria McGavran of the Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale; Sandra Wegner head of the Midland County Library; Mary Vroman, retired from MISD; Yolanda Belozi, a Graves Station window supervisor; and Cheryl Howard, member of Altrusa and a community service volunteer.

Other models included Tiffany Thornton, Miss 1993 Midland/Odessa and cashier at La Bodega; Elizabeth Edwin, Lifestyle editor for the Reporter-Telegram; Jay Jean Foster, director of Optifast Weight Control; Robin Sams, assistant district attorney; Albert Morrison and George Morrison of Cal's Man Shop; Ed Todd, reporter for the Reporter-Telegram; J.D. Faircloth, newly elected Midland mayor, former city councilman and agent for New York Life; Malcom Outlaw, of Sunwest Mud; and Terry Harris, sales and marketing manager for Dimension Cable.

Door prizes were donated by Albertson's on Andrews Hwy., Lou's Ladies Fashions, SonSilks, M Magazine, Joanne's Fine Gifts, Sloan Bagwell, Silver's Framery, Expressions, Murray's, Annie's Gingerbread House, and Cotton Patch.

DEAR ABBY

Clever verse can't be stretched into a limerick

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: "Ollie in Orlando" sent you an amusing verse that he described as a limerick. I quote:

"Heartbeats
stay at a normal
rate
When one beds
down with a legal mate
But roosting in another's nest
May lead to cardiac arrest."

Van Buren

Abby, it is amusing, but it is not a limerick. For your information, a limerick is a five-line humorous verse in which the first, second and fifth lines rhyme with each other — and the third and fourth lines also rhyme with each other. The third and fourth lines are always shorter, as they contain fewer metric feet than the other lines.

Any verse that does not follow that pattern, however clever it may be, is simply not a limerick; it is a verse. — FRANK IN OREGON

DEAR FRANK: Frankly, even though I have appreciated limericks for a very long time, I paid little attention to their construction. However, after a little research, I gathered a few interesting facts about limericks.

The limerick was named for the city of Limerick in Ireland, which is the third-largest city in the Republic of Ireland. (Only Dublin and Cork are larger.) No one knows who originated the limerick, but in 1846, Edward Lear (no relation to Norman) popularized limericks in the book he published titled "A Book of Nonsense." The following is a typical limerick by Edward Lear:

There was a lady of Wilts,
Who walked up to Scotland on stilts;
When they said it is shocking
To show so much stocking
She answered, "Then what about kilts?"

DEAR ABBY: So you appreciate limericks? I do, too. Here's one that my best friend sent to me back in 1922:

There was a young man from Amazon
Who put nighties of his gramazon
The reason was that
He was too fat
To get his own pajamazon.

Before signing a contract or sending money to an "Advance Fee Loan Broker" we recommend that you check with the Better Business Bureau of the Permian Basin. Be wary of any broker claiming the easy availability of thousands of dollars for loans at reasonable rates or the availability of "foreign" money.
