Citizens discuss critical issues

Crockett County citizens met May 15 to summarize critical needs of the county. The meeting was part of a state wide effort to involve communities in solving their new problems in cooperation with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

P.L. Childress, III, explained that each task force group-Agriculture, Home Economics, 4-H, and Community Development-had identified and listed in priority their critical issues. Each task force group leader or representative reported on the issues identified.

P.L. Childress discussed the issues identified by agriculture. These included water conservation education, range development and production, livestock production and management, estate planning and succession, wildlife and recreation management, alternate land uses and practices and legislation.

Karen Huffman described the issues identified by Home Economics. These included parenting education, health services and lifestyle habits, alcohol and drug abuse education, consumer skills, and lifetime recreation for all ages.

Gary Vannoy described the various issues identified by 4-H: parental involvement, 4-H membership retention of 14-19 year olds, involving other community members, training and selection of leaders, family oriented 4-H projects, exposing youth to the world around them, and providing community projects and business/recreation ventures for older youth.

Doris Haire described the various issues identified by community development: interstate development, meeting present business needs, resource survey, marketing community assets, diversification of business, industry, and tourism, interdependency of labor force and legislation.

Ten most critical issues for Crockett County were identified by the 26 community members present. These critical issues included parenting, water development, youth involvement-especially 14-19, utilizing own resources, health services, financial managements, parental involvement in 4-H, range and livestock, business needs, and interstate development.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—The first Soviet fallout was recorded as minimal and no health threat in Texas last week, but the falling out between teachers and education reformers heightened.

Reformers who thought teachers would be appeased by their 97 percent success rating on the competency test were wrong.

Instead, the state's largest teacher group, Texas State Teachers Association, sued to have the test thrown out for racial discrimination.

About 18 percent of black and six percent of Hispanic teachers failed. Only one percent of Anglo teachers failed.

State Education Commissioner Bill Kirby predicted the lawsuit would be thrown out of federal court because the state took every legal precaution in giving the test.

Worse news issued last week: nearly half of public school students failed at least one part of the three-part basic skills exam, part of the 1984 school-reform law.

Budget Error Found

Even those who failed probably got off lighter than state employees after an error was found in the Comptroller's state spending report. One was fired; two resigned.

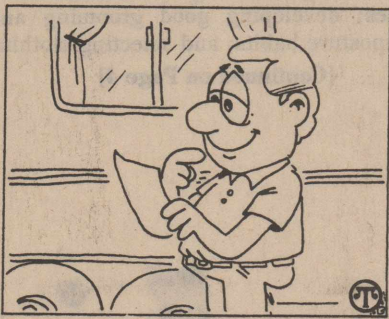

Comptroller Bob Bullock, who tolerates few mistakes, corrected his April report to indicate spending was up only one percent, not 25 percent as he reported two weeks ago.

Like a doctor tending a patient hourly, Bullock has been monitoring the ailing state budget monthly as Texas hurtles toward a projected $1.3 billion deficit.

BUDGET Stretching TRAVEL TIPS

PICK UP AND GO

What to do with a small engine pickup and the urge to travel?

With a little looking, the consumer can find the camper or fifth wheel ideally suited for today's four and small six engines.

With the right camper or trailer, even a lightweight truck can be easily converted into a recreational vehicle, complete with bedroom and kitchen.

Lightweight construction is the key to handling a camper or fifth wheel that has a surprising amount of room and features, according to the manufacturer of one such series.

A "get-up-and-go" person will find that a camper can provide convenience coupled with comfort. Easily attached to the back of a pickup, a seven to nine-and-a-half foot camper, like Sunline's Sportster series, provides a sleeping area and galley-type kitchen.

Those who want a roomier ride might find that a fifth wheel is the RV for use with their pickup. They can sleep up to five people and these lightweight RVs—ranging in length from 18 to 25 feet—offer all the amenities of home, including color coordinated upholstery, drapes and bedspreads.

He has been critical of Gov. Mark White's austerity program for lacking the teeth to trim 13 percent in state agencies. Bullock's monthly scrutiny gives it teeth.

Texas House Summoned

House Speaker Gib Lewis plans to call all 150 state representatives to a one-day briefing on state spending, the budget and major education issues this month to prepare for the regular session in January.

His action underscores the governor's reluctance to call a special session this summer prior to the November elections. The Republicans want White to call one to cut the budget.

Lewis, a Democrat who lives in what has grown into a GOP district, faces a Republican candidate, strength unknown.

Appointed Judges

Texas Supreme Court Chief Justice John Hill wants a new system to appoint state judges instead of electing them.

Reasoning that judicial candidates appeal to voters more by name identification than bench qualifications, Hill suggested that non-partisan committees submit a list of five names for each seat. The governor would choose one for Senate ratification.

Other Highlights

Gov. White and his opponent, former Gov. Bill Clements clashed over the collection of a telephone tax that was repealed last session.

White told telephone companies to quit collecting part of the gross receipts tax which was eliminated when White signed a sales tax on some telephone services.

Clements criticized White and his utility commissioners for allowing the double taxation to take place.

The Texas Democratic Party confirmed that despite its efforts to repel followers of extremist Lyndon LaRouche, some infiltrated via uncontested slots.

The party also told Railroad Commission candidate P. S. Ervin he cannot use the nickname "Sam" on the ballot again since he could not prove it was commonly used the past two years.

Ervin capitalized the nickname to confuse voters' identification with the late North Carolina Sen. Sam Ervin and knock long-time party activist John Poulund out of a runoff with John Sharp.

Andy Briscoe, who finished second in the governor's race, called for party unity but stopped short of endorsing White. Briscoe indicated he will run for some office again.

Convicted serial killer Henry Lee Lucas said Attorney General Jim Mattox was right for criticizing law officers who accepted dozens of fake murder confessions from him.

Last week Mattox's report accused Lucas of playing a hoax on the criminal justice system.

Former Williamson County Attorney Ed Walsh, who prosecuted the Lucas conviction, is in a Republican runoff election seeking to oppose Mattox in November.

Now is time to control pecan nut casebearer

Insecticide application for control of the pecan nut casebearer in Ozona should be made on May 25, plus or minus 3 days.

Control measures should be applied to control the small casebearer larvae just after the larvae hatch and before they begin to tunnel into the nutlets (two days after they hatch).

There will be some difference in the time that casebearer hatch between pecan varieties. To determine the exact time to control casebearer, the nutlet may be inspected daily for eggs and the first casebearer damaged nutlet. When the first damaged nutlet is observed, control measures should be applied.

Homeowners can use Zolone, Malathion, or Carbaryl (Sevin R) for control. Commercial producers may use Guthion R, Carbaryl, Malathion, Phosalone (Zolone R). Follow the directions on the label for mixing and applying the spray treatment.

Zinc should be applied to the foliage for pecan trees when applying an insecticide for casebearer control. Regular zinc applications are needed for good development of pecans and terminal growth.

The May 25 date was predicted by the pecan nut casebearer model. Temperature data was accumulated for the county starting in late March and ending in mid May. From that point historical weather data for May was used to predict the date when larvae begin entering nutlets. This level of accuracy is, in general, close enough to time insecticide application for effective control.

Tips For Gardeners

From the Ozona Garden Club
by Mrs. Bailey Post

The light refreshing rain of last week gave everyone a lift and hope for more to keep our area green. Though rain has been mostly on the minus side, the prolonged dry weather in many parts of our country has made gardeners more conscious of water needs than before. We are very thankful for our good water but should not be wasteful. Especially keep evergreens watered for we have had no deep moisture for some time.

Our night temperatures have been so low it has been a little more difficult to get some seeds to germinate. Due to this, you may have to replant now. Too, your caladium bulbs may be slow coming up after so many cool nights. Those planted in pots may show growth sooner than the ones planted in the ground.

Keep day lilies well watered now that they are coming into bloom. Though the flowers stay open only one day, they are one of my favorites. It seems less care is required, and no insects or diseases have bothered. If you select varieties of early, mid-season, and late blooming, they will be flowering for months. They are available in many lovely colors now, so visit your neighbor or nursery and select by name, the ones you want in your garden. For arrangements, you can remove the closed bud and new buds will open. With green foliage the cluster will last for several days.

One of my favorite evergreens that can be used the year around for arrangements is the tree ivy (Fatshe-dera Lizei). You can get them at the nurseries or maybe a start from a friend. Although not particularly useful as a shrub or ground cover, it is a fine addition to the overall garden if it is used in the proper location. It needs to grow up or down and makes an excellent evergreen espalier or used as a cascading vine. The dark-green glossy leaves resemble English ivy, to which it is related, but they are larger and have a coarser, more leathery texture. Tree ivy prefers a moist, shady location. It performs quite satisfactorily in areas with poor drainage and intolerant of direct sun exposure.

Myrtle Post Garden Club meets at Crockett Co. National Bank

On May 19, the Myrtle Post Garden Club met for their monthly meeting at the Crockett County National Bank Building. Hostesses for the covered dish supper were the executive officers.

Old business reported upon included the plant sale held May 10, which was a definite success and the treasurer's report. A large pot plant was donated by Marge Smith for the Senior Citizen's Center which is preparing for an open house soon.

New business discussed was a change of meeting dates and times. After discussion and proper vote, it was decided that the Club will revert back to meeting during the growing season from February through October each year. Also, the dates were changed to the second Monday in each month. The summer program was planned with the programs as follows: July 14-A basic workshop on flower arrangements to begin at 6 p.m., and August 11-A Pilgrimage in Crockett County by Sarah Hignight. Books on flower arranging will be available through the club at the next meeting.

Sarah Hignight presented the program on the Texas Bluebonnet. She related the tale from Comanche folklore as to the origination of the bluebonnet. Projects done by Junior High students on the Texas Bluebonnet and Texas wildflowers were displayed in conjunction with her program.

Members present were Marge Smith, Ann Clinton, Joycelyn Graves, Grace Williams, Beth Smith, Leta Powell, Clara B. Freeman, Mozelle Houston, Sara Hignight and one guest, Cynthia Hodges.

Hassles To Tassels

Congratulations, graduates! You have moved from "Hassles to Tassels." And what a movement.

The hassles of late-night study; term papers overdue; unexpected too-low grades squeezing tears from disappointed eyes, and the hundred-and-one other hassles that have caused stomachs to churn and sleep not come have now turned to tassels, those little stringy wads that hang from mortar board hats (and no one ever remembers which side they go on).

Today, there may be tears—mixed tears; tears of joy and sadness. Old gangs breaking up. Friendships are writing their last lines on chalkboards as Time takes eraser and reduces to white dust chapters that took years to write.

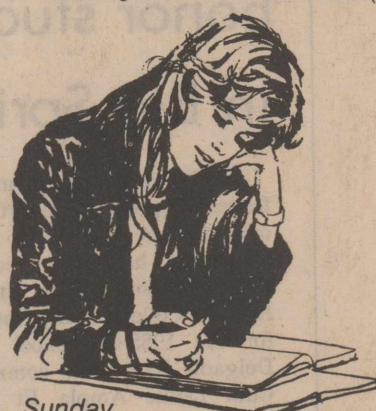

And those bulky academic gowns! So big, so unfamiliar, belonging to another era of human history. Why so big?

Here is one theory.

Your graduate's gown is oversized because many, many people belong in that robe with you. Your parents, family, scores of teachers who have nourished and nurtured you into and through life belong in there with you. You would not be who you are and what you are had they not loved, taught, and sacrificed for you.

Congratulations to you (and everyone inside your robe). (Footnote: Keep the "hassle" going when you lay aside the tassel. That is, "Study to show yourself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not be ashamed." II Timothy 2:15)

Relaxation provided by hobbies can reduce stress

If you think hobbies are only for people with time on their hands, think again. Texas Medical Association says relaxation provided by hobbies can help reduce stress levels created by today's hectic lifestyles.

Getting totally involved in a hobby can help block out the worries of the day and give your mind and body a chance to relax. But even hobbies can be stressful if you compete with yourself or hurry to finish a particular project.

Here are a few tips for selecting a pastime that will rejuvenate you.

Choose a hobby that is different than what you do all day. If your daily activities require much physical activity, choose a quiet hobby, or if you spend your day thinking and analyzing, you might prefer a pastime in which you use your hands.

Find a pastime that is simple enough that you can eventually master it, but not so simple that you get bored.

Choose a hobby that doesn't involve large investments in time, money and energy to get started.

Select a hobby that is so pleasurable that you look forward to doing it at the end of a hard day.

Try regularly setting aside a small amount of time for your hobby or choose a hobby that you can pick up whenever you have a few free moments.

Remember that passively watching television is not a hobby that will always reduce stress levels, because it doesn't require participation.

Among the hobbies that many people enjoy are arts and crafts activities such as model making, painting, photography, ceramics, weaving, woodcarving, chair caning, flower arranging, needlework, playing a musical instrument, or singing. Other pastimes include writing, cooking, learning about computers, magic tricks, collecting and calligraphy.

The officers for the years 1986-1988 are: Kelly Glaze, President; Bill Williams, Vice President; Chesta Stuart, Secretary; Glenn Graham, Tres. and Judy Probst, reporter.

Two representatives will be chosen from each school by their fellow teacher workers.

Mary Magdalena Castro, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felipe Castro, graduated from Angelo State University in San Angelo on Friday, May 16. She received her degree in Associate of Science and Nursing.

Sonora sets business seminar

There will be a business seminar hosted by West Texas Utilities, West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Sonora Chamber of Commerce, Lone Star Gas Co. and the Texas Economic Development Commission in Sonora at the Sutton County Steak House on June 4. The seminar will be held from 5 until 9 p.m.

North Texas sheriff arrested in child pornography investigation

Harry James Walker, age 37, Sheriff Montague County, Texas, was arrested on May 1, 1986, by postal inspectors and agents of the FBI after signing for a certified parcel at the Bowie, Texas, Post Office. The parcel contained child pornography which had been addressed to an alias name used by Walker. Walker had previously mailed polaroid photographs and magazines depicting child pornography to undercover postal inspectors in Houston and Fort Worth, and had mailed photocopies of child pornography to an undercover FBI agent at Tulsa, Ok.

According to D. C. Strader, Postal Inspector in Charge of the Fort Worth Division, a federal search warrant was executed on Walker's residence after his arrest. The search resulted in the seizure of numerous child pornography magazines, photographs, and undercover correspondence. The arrest of Walker and search of his home is the culmination of more than four months of investigation by postal inspectors and FBI agents, said Strader.

Walker had been sheriff of Montague County, which is located on the Red River just east of Wichita Falls, since January, 1985, when he defeated the incumbent sheriff. Walker worked in Montague County for the Bowie, Texas, Police Department prior to his election as sheriff. He had previously worked for the Montague County Sheriff's Office as a deputy, but was fired by the former sheriff. He had also previously worked for the Corpus Christi Police Department.

Assistant United States Attorney Denver McCarty, Dallas, indicated the investigation of Walker's activities began as the result of a mailing list seized during the raid of a pornography warehouse in another part of the United States.

He has been held in Dallas County Jail since his arrest on May 1. After a a.m., Friday, May 9. If it is not posted by the deadline, Walker will be retained in custody until trial. No date for his trial has been set.

Strader said that Walker's arrest is the most recent in a continuing investigation by the Postal Inspection Service of the U.S. Mails being used to transport child pornography. "During the past 18 months, postal inspectors in the Fort Worth Division have arrested approximately 15 individuals for sending child pornography through the mail," he stated. Strader continued, "We have found those individuals involved can come from any profession and socioeconomic class. The victims of these crimes, of course, are the children used to make the films and photographs. Frequently they are runaways, but many times they are neighborhood children who have been enticed into becoming involved by adults whom they trust."

disease in the family, according to William L. Winters, Jr., M.D., president of the Texas Affiliate of the American Heart Association, but adopting a heart-healthy lifestyle may help delay or prevent the triggering of disease.

"We should begin now with our children," Winters said. "The good habits we teach them today will save them from having to 'unlearn' bad habits later on."

Winters defines a heart-healthy lifestyle as reducing cholesterol, fats and excessive salt in the diet; quitting or avoiding smoking; controlling high blood pressure; maintaining ideal body weight through exercise and diet; and keeping diabetes under control.

According to Winters, young people form lifetime eating habits based on what they eat at home, what their peers eat and what appeals to them through advertising. The menu at home may be the only place parents can influence the eating habits of their children. Good eating habits can help control high levels of fats and cholesterol, the fatty substance that is a major part of the plaque buildup in blood vessels that leads to heart disease.

By choosing not to smoke, a person with tendencies towards heart disease can reduce the risk of early death as much as four-fold. In the area of smoking, studies confirm that children are strongly influenced by peers and parents when it comes to deciding whether to smoke.

"We need to influence youngsters and teens in a positive way," said Winters. "There is solid evidence that if a person has not started smoking by age 20, he or she probably never will."

On the positive side, a child who learns to enjoy exercise early has the best chances of living as a fit adult. Regular exercise improves blood circulation and helps develop bone and muscle tissue.

Carbohydrates helpful to cyclists

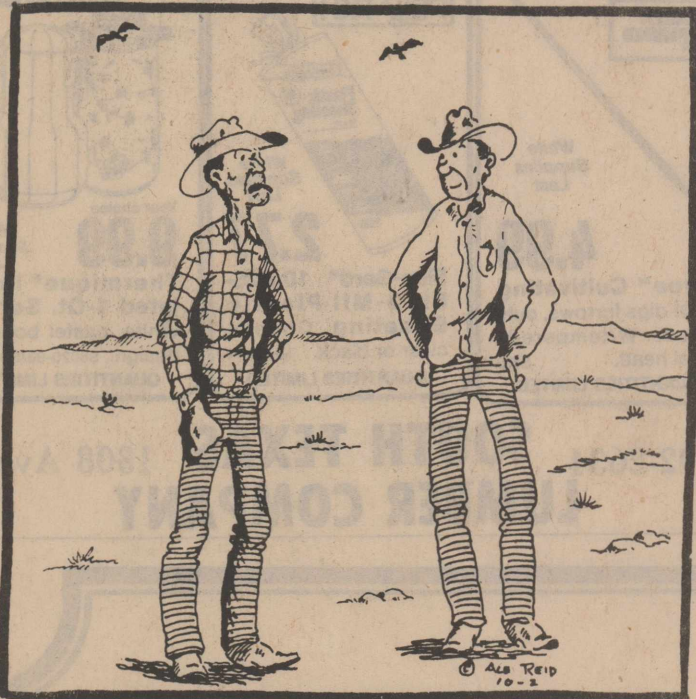

Many factors can affect your endurance when cycling—be it your physical condition, the meal you had that morning, or how much sleep you got the night before. But in a controlled study of 12 world-class cyclists, results show that liquid carbohydrate solutions given during prolonged moderate-intensity exercise is an excellent way to postpone fatigue.

In this type of exercise, fatigue is caused when the muscle's store of glycogen is depleted, according to authors Dr. Ted L. Edwards and David Santeusano, MS, of Austin, Texas and Keith B. Wheeler, PhD, Columbus, Ohio. Glycogen is a carbohydrate formed from the simple sugar glucose and is stored in the liver and muscles. And it is the addition of glucose during prolonged exercise that slows the loss of muscle glycogen and significantly increases endurance, according to their article in the March issue of Texas Medicine.

The authors tested three drinks: plain water; a solution of water and a special glucose; and water, a special glucose, a fructose, a sugar made from fruit. The cyclists performed three 55-mile time-trials performed on a 9.2 mile course. The cyclists were chosen at random to drink a different solution during each of the three 55.2-mile bicycle rides.

Letters to the Editor

May 16, 1986

To Mr. and Mrs. John Held,

Charlie and Carolyn Frazier are very proud of all the things you have done for us. Even though Charlie and Mr. Held could never agree on how to cook food or agree on how much food to put on a plate. And thru all the arguments we ever had, I now realize all the arguments were done out of caring and concern about my future. Thanks for all the corrections you asked me to make in my lifestyles. And for making it possible for my family to have a brighter future and giving us a chance to have a home to work for, because without Mr. and Mrs. Held, none of this would be possible.

I hope that you do not mind me making this public because I am not ashamed to have a friend like you. And thank you for teaching me that constructive criticism is the good, the bad, and the ugly. And that the headline of the Stockman means exactly what it says. That out in the West, where the air is pure, the climate agreeable and the people friendly, is the best place on earth to call home. Not only would we like to thank Mr. and Mrs. Held, we would also like to thank the community for also making us feel like home. And most of all, I would like to thank God for giving me a chance to find out what a true friend I really have while we are both alive.

Thank you,
The Frazier Family
P.S. Mr. Held, Mrs. Held said my potato soup is still better than yours.

May 19, 1986

Dear Kitty,

Ana is finally home! We have so much to be thankful to for her many friends that were concerned about her, that words cannot really express our feelings. We wish to somehow express our thanks.

When we first moved here eight years ago, Ana could not stand one day here. Now she can not stand one day away. She calls Ozona her home, and all of her friends part of her "special family". She is a very special person to all of us that know her.

It will take some time for her to recover, but she is a fighter of the first degree, and will be standing before the bell rings.

Ozona, we wish to thank you, and your spirit, Go Gold Lions.

Don & Ana Smith

Ozona Cubs take tourney championship

The Ozona Cubs claimed the first place trophy at their own tournament Sunday, May 18 by defeating the Pecos Roughnecks. The Cubs had to come from behind 3 times to finally nail the victory with 15 to 14 score.

The Cubs gained the outright of being in the championship game by defeating the Ozona Rebels 16 to 3, as Havis Landin was winning pitcher in both games, and also won the best pitcher award of the tournament.

Pecos defeated the Midland Potres to make it to the finals.

The running Rebels came back and defeated Midland for the third place trophy.

Chayo Ramirez and David Tijerina won all tourney trophies for the Rebels, and Jimmy Ortiz and Alfred Enriquez won for the Cubs and Robert Mendez claimed the MVP trophy.

The Cubs would like to thank the following businesses for the donation of trophies-Enriquez Exxon (Alfred Enriquez), La Cocina Restaurant (Pete Maldonado), Lonnie's Contracting (Alonzo Lopez), Jesse's Tire Shop (Jesse Fierro). We would also like to thank the following individuals for their help-Alicia and Chris Martinez, Annette Rodriguez, Christina Gutierrez, and Elpidio Martinez and everybody else who helped.

Short peach crop is due to weather

Much of Texas will have short peach crop this year due to unusual weather conditions, says Billy Reagor, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A & M University System.

Texas boasts about 20,000 acres of peaches.

In most cases, the warm January weather interrupted the normal rest pattern in many parts of the state and caused the trees to drop much of their crop due to lack of chilling, the agent explains.

Chilling (hours between 32 and 45 degrees F.) for most of the state was less than average this year and could be seen in the strange growth and behavior of many peach trees. Low chill varieties that were planted too far north bloomed early and were mostly lost to a late frost while high chill varieties often had a late and prolonged bloom that did not set well. Both of these problems resulted in too few fruit on many trees.

Growers have to go back to 1952 to find a year that was as bad as 1986 for lack of chilling, Reagor points out. This year does provide the opportunity to look at how varieties performed in various areas of the state. It also confirms why high chilling varieties such as Ranger should not be planted too far south and low chilling varieties such as TexStar should not be carried too far north.

With good varieties available in almost all chill hour requirements, growers should try to stay within 100 hours of either side of average to insure consistent cropping.

Crockett County Care Center News

New wheelchair exercises were introduced during Monday mornings exercise class, with a game of basketball following. Residents participating were Edna Wallace, Moriana Perez, Ola Mills, Elzy Bishop, Lucia Rios, Bertha Miller, Pauline Clinton, and Jesus Hernandez.

The care center lobby was filled with music, dance and laughter as residents were entertained by the Bob Bell Band, Monday evening. Band members included Bob Bell, John Babb, George Hester, Terry Racher, Pattie Racher, and Randy Killpatrick. Our own resident, Pauline joined the band to sing several songs. Terry delighted the residents with his tap dancing, and a waltz was demonstrated by Bob and Elaine Bell and Terry and Pattie Racher. Terry and Pattie also demonstrated a fast dance. George thrilled residents and visitors with his impression of a train whistle. Thank you Bob Bell Band and visitors for a fulfilled evening of entertainment.

Tuesday mornings Bingo produced a number of winners. Bertha Miller won the special game played for a lovely scented bath powder, and Emma Taylor won the first prize of an El Chatos gift certificate. Maggie Crawford won the Tropical Sno gift certificate with Theo Burns, Ola Mills, Pauline, and Minnie Karr winning various other prizes. Volunteers assisting were Nancy Forehand, Arron Forehand, Lillian Tambunga, Mattie Cooper and Virginia Bishop.

Tiny Holmsley joined residents in a game of dominoes Tuesday afternoon. Wednesdays ceramic workshop was attended by Theo, Moriana, Juana, Ola, Manuella, and Alice. Volunteers were Marie Pierson, Ruth Hester and Doris Karr. Several ceramic pieces were sold this week.

Wednesday afternoon, the Crockett County Hospital and Care Center Auxiliary hosted an ice cream party for the hospital and care center employees, and the residents. Homemade ice cream and cookies was made and served by Jo Davidson, Nancy Forehand, Marie Pierson, and Muggs Stephens, Dorothy Doll and Mattie Cooper.

Thursday was a busy day. The morning started with the OHS cosmetology class. Clara Byrd and JoAnn Williamson styled the residents hair.

Next Clara and Inez Biggs played the piano while some of the cosmetology class danced a few steps. Later that afternoon, the midweek Bible Study was presented by Jim Gray of the First Baptist Church of Ozona. Glenda Henderson played the piano while hymns were sung. Following the Bible Study, a group of 4-H girls accompanied by Rachel Hall presented a style show. The 4-H girls participating in the show were Leesa Haire, Terri Harms, Martha Mayfield, Tanya Ramos, Gina Snyder, Stefny Sutton, JoLynn Vannoy, Whitney Vannoy, Myra Wilson, and Tess Worthington. We were very impressed with the girls outfits and with their modeling abilities. Thank you girls.

The Spanish Hour of Praise was next with a large group of visitors attending.

Open House was Thursday evening. This event was hosted by the Crockett County Hospital and Care Center Auxiliary. The turn out for this event was very small, much smaller than we had anticipated. We would like to thank those who did come by and the auxiliary for their time, refreshments, and decorations.

Emma Taylor was a three time winner in Fridays Bingo. Virginia Hoover won the first prize of a Watsons gift certificate. Other winners included Grace Cotter, Maggie Crawford, Edna Wallace, Theo Burns, Lucia Rios, Alice Ross, Ola Mills and Charles Watson. Volunteers were Marie Pierson, Mattie Cooper, Dorothy Doll and Lillian Tambungs. Friday afternoon presented the perfect time for a game of dominoes and some of the residents took advantage of it by playing a game or two.

Residents enjoyed a piano recital Sunday afternoon given by the students of Marlys Thurmond. Students showing their musical talents were Mary Turnley, Matt Wilman, Cassie Montgomery, Shelby Stuart, Kellye Robinson and Terri Harms. Thank you Marlys and students for brightening our afternoon with music. Following the recital the First Baptist Church of Ozona held Sundays Worship Services with Jim Gray preaching the sermon and Marlys Thurmond playing the piano.

BRAVE MEN quavered and women swooned when Ben Thompson, lawman and outlaw, decided it was time to defend himself. [Special Collection Journey Through Texas--

Ben Thompson, noted gunslinger, marshall and hero, dies in ambush

Here in Austin, in March, 1884, most folks agree that Ben Thompson epitomizes the frontier gunman. His detractors call him a cold-blooded murderer. His friends say he shoots in self-defense. The truth probably lies somewhere between--Thompson is a man fighting his way through life on the Texas frontier.

Thompson shot his first person at age 13, a playmate who laughed and said Thompson couldn't hit him with a shotgun blast. Thompson made him a believer then and many more men since.

Thompson had tired of working in a print shop when he traveled to New Orleans a few years back. There he got in a struggle with a Frenchman, knifing him while defending the honor of a woman on the bus. The Frenchman challenged Thompson to a duel, but refused to fight with pistols at ten paces as Thompson suggested. They ended up fighting with short knives in a locked, darkened ice house, and the Frenchman ended up dead.

Thompson escaped back here to Austin and later fought in the Civil War, then with Emperor Maximilian in Mexico. He returned to Austin and served two years for killing another man. Then he went to Abilene to open the Bull's Head Saloon and Gambling Hall, where he made a good deal of money because the saloon was a first and last stop where thirsty cowhands went to wet their whistles.

Thompson has been running a succession of gambling halls in the Southwest, including one under the composing room of Austin's Daily Statesman newspaper. It has become known as "the best ventilated newspaper office in America." Thompson, in his jolly moments, empties his pistols against his casino ceiling just to watch the newspaper's employees scramble to safety on the veranda upstairs.

He was elected marshall of Austin the second time he ran for office. During his term, crime dropped to an all-time low, with not a murder,

assault with intent to kill or burglary inside the city limits.

Thompson always stands up for friends and underdogs. A sobbing immigrant boy who worked in a local bakery told Thompson the abusive cook had just hit him with a heavy iron pot. Thompson made the fat cook bend over and drop his pants. He then handed his gunbelt to the lad and said, "Lay it on him," encouraging the boy to hit the cook as hard as he wanted.

He also stands up for himself: "I always make it a rule to let the other fellow fire first. If a man wants a fight, I argue the question with him and try to show him that it is foolish; if he can't be dissuaded (sic), why, the fun begins. But I let him have first crack; then, when I fire, you see, I have the verdict of self-defense on my side. And he is pretty certain, in his hurry, to miss, and I never do."

Two years ago, Thompson shot and killed San Antonio gambler-politician Jack Harris over a disagreement at Harris' Vaudeville Theater. Although Thompson was acquitted, he resigned as Austin's marshall over the ruckus.

But word has come that he visited the theater again, and Harris' men picked a fight with him, the battle ending in a hail of gunfire from the balcony. Thompson was hit nine times total, four shots in the head.

The Austin Daily Statesman, which Ben routinely ventilated, has bitterly denounced San Antonio for liquidating one of Austin's most publicized citizens: "He was as brave as a lion, and has never been known to take unfair advantage of an adversary. Throughout his every act of lawlessness there was a tinge of gallantry." And little Ben Glaser, the immigrant boy Thompson put even with the fat cook, says, "Thompson may have been a gambler, a desperado, a killer to others, but to me he is a hero."

Lake Amistad visitors asked to use caution

Despite the dramatic drop in Lake Amistad's level, visitors have been coming to the recreation area in record numbers in 1986, and reports are that anglers have been having excellent luck.

The water has continued to drop, the National Park Service reports, so it is essential for all visitors to exercise special caution to avoid hazards that are appearing due to the new conditions.

Launch ramps that are in service are Diablo East, the low water ramp at Rough Canyon, and the ramp at Air Force Marina. Each is able to accommodate boats of any size. The concession-operated marinas at Diablo East and Rough Canyon are open for business, and the Air Force Marina continues to serve active duty and retired military people.

The Rough Canyon high water ramp and Blackbrush Point are closed. The Pecos ramp is closed, but the Comstock community and the National Park Service are working together to repair it. They do not yet know how soon it will be usable. There are two cave-like openings in the slope above the Pecos ramp. These are dangerous and should not be entered. Ceiling rocks could fall at any time.

Visitors are urged to be observant of hazards and to use caution. They should be specially aware of the following:

Old highway 277 has emerged, but the bridges are unsafe and are closed. Do not drive beyond the barriers.

Navigation aids do not necessarily mark channels, rocks, etc. As the water falls, their fixed-length cables cause them to drift off point, and Park Service personnel cannot keep up with them.

Do not drive or jump from the cliffs. Dangerous rocks and ledges are below the water surface.

Watch for Trolines. As the level drops, once submerged trolines are exposed and may be difficult to spot. Watch for them while boating or walking. Also watch for hooks and lures on newly emerging grounds.

NPS personnel cannot move road warning signs as fast as stretches of old road are emerging. Watch for the new water's edge and be prepared to stop, especially on Spurs 406 and 454 (old highway 90).

WHO'S WHO HONOREE--Jana Lynn Harris of Ozona was among the 60 Southwest Texas State University students selected for inclusion in the 1986 edition of "Who's Who Among Students at American Universities and

Texans enjoy beautiful native plants

As warmer weather approaches, we can all enjoy the beauty of springtime. The wild flowers are in bloom, trees are budding and lawns are becoming green again. Texas has long been famous for its beautiful Bluebonnets, Indian paint brushes and other wildflowers. The Lone Star state should, however, be especially proud of its native plants such as Autumn sage, Coral honeysuckle, Mountain laurel and Yucca.

Native plants are especially important where water conservation in landscaping is concerned. Water conservative plants offer a key to conservation in this region. "These plants require less water and maintenance, they are functional, and besides those very good reasons, they are beautiful," says Texas Agricultural Commissioner Jim Hightower.

Native plants are those which can be found growing naturally in our area. These plants mostly survive by developing long deep roots that are often thick and can store a lot of water and food reserves. They are accustomed to a long summer drought and can survive with limited maintenance once they are established.

Texas Native plants are hearty, they tend to survive the variable weather of West Texas from the freeze of winter to the long hot summer drought. Most of these plants do not need pruning or fertilizing. They are also relatively free from insects and disease. All these factors add tremendously to these plants selling points.

Our native plants are astonishingly beautiful, and full of variety and color. Purple sage, Blazing star, Golden wave, and Pink primrose are examples of some colorful native flowering plants. The idea is that native plants have evolved to survive the long, hot, dry Texas summers without help from your garden hose.

Look for native plants in your local nurseries and ask for the xeriscape tag (from the Greek word meaning dry) to assure these plants are true low water users.

Much of the sales growth can be attributed to the new market-based rate which was effective November 1, 1982. The current rate in effect (November 1985 thru April 1986) for Bonds held five years or longer is 8.36%. The average rate since November 1, 1982 is 9.69 percent. Bonds held at least five years earn 85 percent of the average rate on five-year Treasury marketable securities during the holding period or 7.5 percent whichever is more. Bonds held less than five years earn interest on a fixed, graduated scale.

Savings bonds sales reported up in Texas

Sales of U.S. Savings Bonds for the first two months of 1986 in Texas amounted to $16,167,991, an increase of $8,922,042 for 14.6% over the January-February 1985 period. T.J. Morrow, District Director for U.S. Savings Bonds Divisions in Dallas, announced today. These sales represent 16.5 % of the state's 1986 assigned dollar goal of $370 million. February sales of Series EE Bonds were $33,072,650, an increase of 11.4% above February 1985.

Sales of Series EE Bonds amounted to $5,097 during February 1986 in Crockett County, Lowell Littleton, Volunteer County Chairman, said. The January-February 1986 total for the County was $7,267, which represents 19.6% of the County's 1986 assigned dollar goal.

Nationally, February 1986 sales of Series EE Bonds totaled $520 million, an increase of 32% over February 1985 sales and marks the first time February sales exceeded $500 millions since 1979. Sales of U.S. Savings Bonds for the first five months of Fiscal 1986 increased 40 percent and redemptions decreased 12 percent compared to the same period for 1985. Savings Bonds held by the American public reached an all-time high of $80.83 billion during February.

MAY IS BETTER HEARING & SPEECH MONTH

Can You Pass This Hearing Test?

Do you have trouble hearing on the telephone?
Do you have to ask people to repeat themselves?
Do you hear but not always understand what is said?
Do people seem to mumble when they talk?
Do you hear ringing or buzzing in your ears?
Does your family tell you that you play the radio and television too loud?

If you answered "yes" to three or more of these questions, you may have a hearing loss. The good news is most hearing losses can be helped.

EXTENSION OFFICE NEWS

Several 4-H clothing members modeled their recent clothing creations, Thursday, May 15 at the Care Center. 4-H members included Leesa Haire, Terri Harms, Martha Mayfield, Tanya Ramos, Gina Snyder, Stefny Sutton, JoLynn Vannoy, Whitney Vannoy, Myra Wilson and Tess Worthington.

As an ever changing and challenging art, there is an exception to almost every sewing rule. Many rules for home sewing have become obsolete, while some rules work for some home sewers but frustrate others. Some sewing facts are listed to help home sewers.

Before you sew

The yardage requirements listed on most pattern envelopes are more than you need.

False. This is an old wives' tale. The layouts are determined by a computer and reflect the "simplest" layout for the size, view and fabric width. Fabric requirements are for the next, not the nearest eighth yard. If the layout requires exactly 2 yards and 1/8 inch, the pattern company must recommend 2 1/8 yards.

Designer patterns fit like designer garments, and the pattern guides include the designer's sewing techniques.

False. Unfortunately. Generally, designer patterns are sized according to the pattern company's master slopers. A notable exception is the Calvin Klein jeans' pattern introduced several years ago. Construction techniques for designer garments reflect the "tried-and-true" methods used by the pattern company instead of the innovative ideas of the designer.

You won't need to fit as you sew if you use a well-fitted basic to alter your patterns.

False. The importance of developing your personal basic cannot over-emphasized, but some fine-tuning during the assembly process is usually required. When fitting a basic, you must study your figure's irregularities before you can solve your fitting problems. The information you learn from this process is just as important as the basic itself.

Using a master pattern, you can make all your own patterns.

True, but do you really want to make all your own patterns? Pattern-making requires time, and once the pattern is made you frequently have to test it in muslin. More importantly, although most home-sewers can easily master pattern-making principles and even become proficient pattern-makers, few have the talent to be good designers. To increase success, apply your pattern-making knowledge to commercial patterns with the desired silhouettes instead of to your master pattern.

You should never alter the pattern at the center front and back.

True, except for some figures with broad backs. When garments have diagonal wrinkles from the neckpoint to the armhole, the garment back is frequently too tight between the shoulders (Figure 1). Add the required amount at the center back and alter the collar as needed.

MRS. WILLIAM ROBERT GALBREATH
...nee Miss Selina Jean Thorsgard

Thorsgard-Galbreath married in double-ring ceremony Sat.

Wedding vows were exchanged between Selina Jean Thorsgard and William Robert (Billy Bob) Galbreath, both of San Angelo, in a formal ceremony on Saturday, May 17, at seven o'clock in the evening at First Baptist Church, Sonora, Texas. Reverend and Bob Johnson of West Baptist Church in San Angelo officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Billie Sue Davis of Denver, Colorado; the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.H. Goodin of Englewood, Colorado. The groom is the son of Mrs. Margaret Galbreath of Ozona.

Guests were greeted and registered by Shana Granger of Jourdan, and Diane Robinson of Carrollton. Ushers were Joey Giletman and Devoe Smith both of San Angelo. Miss Valerie Tedford and Colleen Miller of Sonora played the music for the wedding before a brass candelabra holding white candles, entwined with English ivy and accented with mauve colored satin bows. The altar was centered with a unity candle and greenery. The front of the church was decorated with two brass plant stands holding Boston ferns and accented with mauve satin bows. The pews were also marked with mauve bows.

At seven o'clock the candles were lighted by Travis Cooper of Denver, Colorado.

The Love Theme from "St. Elmos Fire" was played as the mother's of the couple approached the unity candle arrangement to light the candles representing their children.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by her grandfather and given in marriage by her family.

Mrs. Joy Galbreath of Sonora sang "The Lord's Prayer" while the couple knelt in prayer. After a message was given to the couple by Rev. Bob Johnson, Mrs. Galbreath sang "There is Love". After the vows and exchanging of rings, the "Theme from Romeo and Juliet" was played while the couple lit the unity candle. The ceremony was ended with a prayer.

The bride's gown was made of crystal organza featuring a high sheer neckline with dropped shoulders and wired crystal organza ruffles. The dropped waist Princess bodice was lavishly embellished in schiffli lace and pearls. The Cathedral length train was encircled with tiers of wired crystal organza ruffles and schiffli lace motifs.

To complete her bridal ensemble, Selina chose a fingertip veil accented with a spray of pearls and attached to a headwreath of white roses entwined with ribbons and strands of pearls. Her jewelry was a pair of diamond earrings and pearls. She carried a trailing cascade of fresh white roses and ivy.

Serving as matron of honor was sister of the bride Mrs. Peggy Cooper of Denver, Colorado. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sheri Wells of Midland; Tammy Howard of Denton, and Mrs. Cathy Wright of Stephenville.
