H[illegible] holds no pass-no play

AUSTIN [illegible] controvers[illegible] rule — prohibiting students from taking part in sports or other extracurricular activities if failing any course — was upheld today by the Texas Supreme Court.

The unanimous opinion of the state's highest court overruled a Houston district judge who had said the rule was unconstitutional and could not be enforced.

"The rule provides a strong incentive for students wishing to participate in extracurricular activities to maintain minimum levels of performance in all of [illegible] court's opinion said.

"In view of the rule's objective to promote improved classroom performance by students, we find the rule rationally related to the legitimate state interest in providing a quality education to Texas' public school students, " the court said.

The ruling was expected to have widespread effect in the state's 1,100 school districts, and it immediately was hailed by state education officials.

"Extracurricular activities will remain an important part of a student's school life, but we hope today's ruling will help put those activities in the proper perspective," said Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby.

Numerous unhappy parents and school adminstrators had complained about the rule laid down by the State Board of Education as a result of the 1984 major school reform bill. The lawsuit brought by about 45 students and parents in the Houston area claimed the rule hit hardest at minorities and under achievers.

The no-pass, no-play rule was enacted by the State Board of Education in carrying out policy directives of the major school reform bill passed by the 1984 special legislative session. A student failing to make at least 70 in any course during a six-week period can be banned from extracurricular activities the next six weeks.

The Supreme Court's decision came a day before the state board begins a three-day meeting where a special report on the rule was scheduled. The court said the only issue before it was the constitutionality of the rule.

State District Judge Marsha D. Anthony in Houston this spring had found the rule unconstitutional on the grounds that it violated equal protection and due process guarantees.

But the Supreme Court said the Texas Constitution "leaves to the Legislature alone the determination of which methods, restrictions and regulations are necessary and appropriate to carry out this duty, so long as that determination is not so arbitrary as to violate the constitutional rights of Texas citizens."

The high court judges said a student's right to play school sports isn't on a par with con-

Trustee selected by board

Charlene Light, a former instructor for both Western Texas College and the Hermleigh school district, was appointed to fill the place 1 Snyder school board seat Tuesday by a unanimous vote of the board.

She replaces Lillie Sullivan, who resigned the post June 3. Light was out-of-town Tuesday and could not be officially sworn-in. She is expected to take her oath of office at the next scheduled meeting.

She will serve until the April school board elections, at which time the place 1 seat will be up for re-election.

The wife of Morris Light, she holds a masters degree in guidance counseling and a BA degree in business. In addition, she has completed some 30 hours in graduate work after completing her masters.

She was at WTC as an assistant professor in office occupations from 1976 through 1982. Prior to that, she served as a business teacher at Hermleigh from 1973-75.

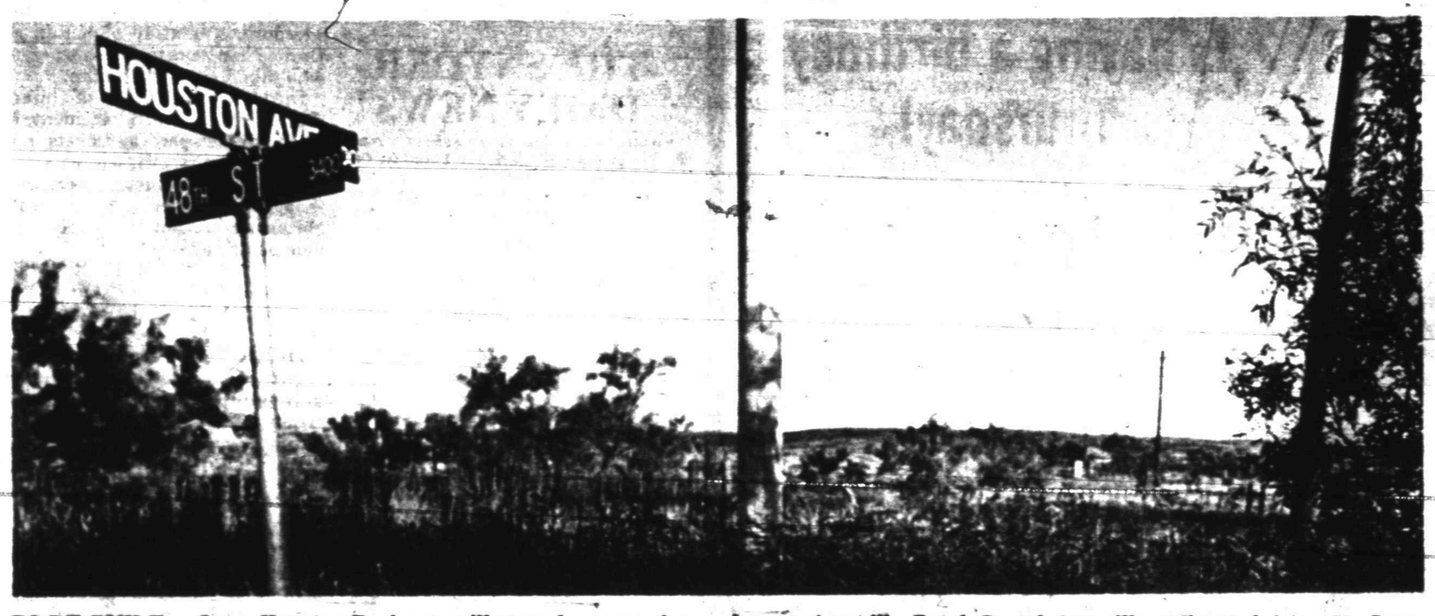

Her husband serves locally as a member of the Scurry County Board of County Development. They have two children, the youngest, Leslie, a junior at Snyder High School next year.

Her appointment came during the regular July meeting of the school board. All board members attended to include Mike Reed, president, and Allen Grimmett, J.A. (Mule) Kayser, G.A. Parks Jr., Mike Jordan and J.D. Hinton.

In other school action, trustees voted to:

—Approve Snyder National Bank as the school depository for another two year period. SNB bid a fixed rate of return of 8.5 percent for all school monies left on deposit for 30 days and beyond. This includes amounts over and under $100,000. In addition, SNB agreed to make loans to the district at a 6 percent rate. Bids from West Texas State Bank and American State Bank tied their interest rates for deposits on the flucuating rate of Treasury Bills. Regarding school loans, ASB bid a 6.3 percent interest charge and

TO BE BUILT — Soon, Houston Parkway will stretch across these fields to link its current deadend at 48th St. with the Big Spring Hwy. Bids for the work came in substantially lower than projected Tuesday as Amarillo Road Co. of Amarillo estimated $639,288. Houston cost comes in under estimate

Bids to create the Houston Parkway link between West 30th St. and the Big Spring Hwy. here came in substantially lower than projected Tuesday.

Amarillo Road Co. of Amarillo was the apparent low bidder as estimates were received in Austin.

Their bid of $639,288 was the lowest of seven submitted. The portion of Houston Parkway bid Tuesday currently has some $723,000 in federal urban funds pledged toward its construction.

As part of a local match, the City of Snyder has secured right-of-way for the project and agreed to provide funds for curb and gutters.

The project entails extending Houston Ave. to the south to the Big Spring Hwy. and to the north for a two-block stretch to West 30th St.

This will create a new traffic route from West 30th to the Big Spring Hwy. and in the process help relieve the flow of vehicles currently using Towle Park Rd.

The Houston extension was the first of two local highway projects due to be bid Tuesday and Wednesday in Austin.

Also to be bid is the widening and "beefing up" of FM 1611 over a six-mile stretch from the Lubbock Highway (U.S. Hwy 84) to the western extension of 37th St. out of Snyder. An estimated cost of $1.8 million has been projected.

The road is to be widened by adding 8 ft. shoulders on both sides, making it a total of 40 ft. wide.

In addition, some 4 inches of base material will be added. By making it suitable for all types of heavy truck traffic, the 1611 project is seen as the first step toward a new truck route looping the city to the west.

Actual construction on both Houston Parkway and FM 1611 is now expected to begin by August.

School seeking new plans...

38 percent insurance hike causes bids

Faced with a proposed 38 percent increase in health insurance rates, Snyder school board members Tuesday directed the staff to seek new bids for such coverage prior to a Sept. 1 deadline tied to the old policy.

Snyder ISD is now insured with Blue Cross-Blue Shield, which indicated to business office personnel that the district's "history of use" last school year would require the 38 percent projected rise.

Assuming no changes were made, the district would face an additional $111,000 in insurance premiums next year, according to Artie Butler, assistant superintendent for business.

Current school policy is the district pays for the employees health insurance coverage, which includes a dental plan and a $5,000 life insurance policy.

The cost to the district currently is some $70 per employee. Employees are given the option of adding family members, but this is at their own expense.

The projected 38 percent increase is for the health insurance portion of the plan only — but this would see the district's cost go from some $64 to $88 per month per employee.

The board specified three basic insurance plans be bid. In addition, each of these plans should be quoted with and without the "psychiatric care" option offered under such plans.

This type care includes all medical treatment diagnosed as stress-related, Butler noted, and covers a growing number of medical insurance claims.

The three plans to be bid include one which is essentially a duplication of the current health plan. This includes a $200 "up-front" deductible to the employee. For medical costs up to $2,500, the employee then pays 20 percent and the insurance company 80 percent — the "co-insurance" portion of the policy. This means the employee could pay a total of $500 in co-insurance, making the maximum out-of-pocket expense to the employee $700.

Beyond the $2,500 range, the insurance company pays all claims.

Of the other two plans to be bid, both feature a $300 upfront deductible. Regarding the co-insurance portion, one would feature a possible $1,000 share for the employee and the third a possible $2,000 share.

The dental plan and the life insurance coverage will remain the same.

Butler said Wednesday morning he will specify that the health insurance bids be returned by mid-August. The board will consider their options at that time.

Final seminar slate Thursday for Mouser

CHARLES A. MOUSER

One full day of seminars remains for Charles A. Mouser, the marketing and management expert whose appearance here is being sponsored by the Snyder Daily News.

He has scheduled a full slate of appearances Thursday. Friday, he will be making business visits as requested and as time allows.

Each of Mouser's seminars are being conducted in the Scurry County Museum.

The schedule Thursday includes a 9 a.m. seminar for supermarket and convenience store personnel; a 10 a.m. seminar for furniture and appliance dealers; and a 1:30 p.m. seminar for oilfield service company personnel.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The best way to keep a teen at home is to provide a pleasant family life—and let the air out of the tires."

Most of our public relations seminars have centered in the Scurry County Museum, located on the campus of Western Texas College.

The college is a great host and we appreciate the folks at WTC for letting us use that fine facility.

There's still plenty of time to hear Charles Mouser who is in Snyder this week to conduct the motivational sessions for business folks in Snyder.

At Monday's opening session and again for employees that afternoon, Mouser said "Most employees should pay $20 a day for the privilege of working."

Mouser calls it his "rejuvenation fee." According to the speaker, it happens every day—and especially on Monday.

"Employees come dragging in just seconds before starting time. They can hardly move because of aches and pains from the weekend's activities. They moan and they groan.

"But look at the same employee at 5 p.m. It's quitting time and they're humming and skipping as they dash out the door. Employees ought to pay for being made to feel that good in just one short working day."

Of course, people can be too eager. Joe Griffith, the Dallas dinner-circuit speaker and TV commercial actor who spoke at last spring's chamber of commerce banquet, says he is a bit suspicious of folks who always are quick for volunteer for duties.

"A volunteer," he says, "is someone who grabs for the stool when a piano has to be moved."

"Have a nice day!" That statement, according to scientific research, offends 71 percent of the American public. An even larger majority of Americans cannot easily handle a compliment. It may have something to do with sincerity—or the lack of it.

CORK, Ireland (AP) — Investigators found and recovered today the cockpit voice recorder of Air-India Flight 182, which crashed into the Atlantic off Ireland June 23 killing all 329 people on board, the Indian crash investigation team announced.

The recorder is one of two so-called "black boxes" which investigators hope will shed light on why the Boeing 747 went down without radioing a mayday call.

Fire rockets

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli air force jets fired rockets into a Palestinian refugee camp near Tripoli today, a day after two suicide car-bombing attacks claimed 15 lives in Israel's security zone in south Lebanon.

Western reporters saw the planes release scarlet balloons to deflect heat-seeking missiles fired from the Baddawi camp, which was hit by at least two rockets.

Baddawi is three miles northeast of Tripoli and has a population of more than 8,700.

Fish kill

TYLER, Texas (AP) — An estimated 170,000 fish may have died from oxygen depletion in the Trinity River, but experts are still searching for a cause for the fish kill.

The 50-mile stretch of dead fish may have occurred when a bottom layer of sewage sediment was stirred by heavy flows of water and began using up oxygen in the river, said Victor Palma, a regional chemist for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department in Tyler.

Voting rights...

Reversal of decision sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is arguing that Congress never intended the Voting Rights Act to guarantee blacks would be elected to public office in direct proportion to their percentage of the population.

Instead, the Justice Department says, a 1982 amendment to Section 2 of the Voting Rights Act was designed to ensure "access to the electoral process — not ensure victories for minority candidates."

These arguments are contained in a friend-of-the-court brief filed by Acting Solicitor General Charls Fried with the Supreme Court in a North Carolina case involving challenged state legislative district boundaries.

The high court has agreed to review a 1984 decision by a three-judge federal court panel in North Carolina invalidating nine legislative districts as illegally diluting the voting strength of blacks. The decision invalidated seven house and two senate districts involving 30 seats.

The controversy stems from a 1981 lawsuit filed on behalf of black voters who challenged a provision in the North Carolina constitution prohibiting division of counties into more than one legislative district.

Civil rights activists had contended that electing several representatives from each county, rather than the old single-member practice, made it harder for blacks to be elected.

In its brief, the Justice Department argued that nothing in the Voting Rights Act of 1965 permits federal judges to insist on election district boundaries that guarantee safe seats for blacks.

The brief, which also was signed by Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, head of the civil rights division, said "this is the first case" in which the high court would review a ruling that multi-member election districts violate that 1982 amendment to Section 2.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have great respect for your reasoning, and I especially admire your long answers, but sometimes your short ones don't measure up.

Specifically, when someone wrote to say that whenever she read in the newspaper that someone had died of lung cancer, she wondered if that person had been a smoker. Then she added, "I think that should be included in the report of death, don't you?"

Your reply: "Yes, I'm sure most people would like to know."

Why stop there? I suggest the following:

Died: John Doe, of liver disease after years of drinking like a fish. Survivors include Mary Doe and the Doe children, several of whom are drunks.

Died: Jane Doe, of a heart attack. Grossly overweight, Mrs. Doe never took care of herself. Survivors include her husband, Joe "Fatso" Doe.

Died: Timothy Doe, of a drug overdose, a mixture of heroin and Drano. Survivors include his parents, who take too much Valium.

Died: Richard Roe, of injuries sustained in a traffic accident. Mr. Roe had five speeding tickets in the last three years.

I don't think you gave very much thought to your reply, Abby. Clearly, obituaries are not the place to provide health advice.

CHARLES L. SMITH,
SEATTLE, ATTORNEY AT LAW AND PIPE SMOKER

DEAR MR. SMITH: You are right, of course. I permitted my vehement anti-smoking bias to cloud my better judgment. Mea culpa.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with this fellow for over a year, and we're planning to be married in September. My problem is I'm always getting an ex-lover or girlfriend thrown in my face. He tells me about the affairs he has had, and then wants to introduce us. I keep finding their belongings (intimate apparel) all over his apartment. Yesterday was the last straw when I found some nude pictures of one of his girlfriends—taken at his place!

I really love him and keep forgiving him, but I don't know how much more I can take.

Please give me some helpful advice. I have already spent $800 on our wedding, and nothing can be returned.

HEARTBROKEN AND CONFUSED

DEAR H. AND C.: Call off the wedding and consider the $800 tuition in the school of experience. Marriage to this man would have cost you much more than $800 in anguish, pain, regret, headaches, sleepless nights and acid indigestion.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was recently married in a traditional Protestant church wedding. Her mother and I sat in the front pew on the left, and the groom's parents occupied the front pew on the right.

We arranged to have a friend videotape the entire ceremony from an obscure position behind the minister.

After the honeymoon, the bride and groom and both sets of parents viewed the tape of the ceremony. It was beautiful! We were able to see the faces of the bride and groom as they pledged their vows—not just the backs of their heads, which is the view we (and everyone else) had during the ceremony.

Abby, wouldn't it make more sense—and a more beautiful ceremony—if the bride and groom were to face the congregation during the ceremony? This might not go over so well with some ministers, but I'm sure the congregation would appreciate it. What do you think?

SAN DIEGO PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: I think it's a great idea. But as soon as this hits print, I'll probably hear from someone saying, "That's not an original idea. We did that!"

Nursing graduates fare well on test

Vocational nursing graduates from Western Texas College who took state board examinations in Austin recently made an outstanding showing.

All nine graduates taking the examination for the first time passed, and one student, Martha Treat of Snyder, made a perfect score of 800. Four others scored in the 500-600 range with the average for all WTC graduates 526.

Graduates taking the examinations in addition to Mrs. Treat were Domitila Escobar, Mary Jimm Huckabee, Dixie Jacqueline Long, Velda Scaff and Lethia Sparks, all of Snyder, Deanna Fuqua and Kathleen Ledbetter of Colorado City and Jaye Anne McVay of Post.

WTC will be starting another vocational nursing class on Sept. 1 and persons interested in enrolling must complete pre-entrance requirements by Aug. 1. Pre-entrance examinations are given each Monday. Prospective students are to complete admission forms in the Student Services office prior to taking the test.

Vocational nursing students receive 1,758 hours of training in a 12-month period. Students who successfully complete the program are then eligible to take the state examinations to practice as licensed vocational nurses.

The group will leave Snyder at 10 a.m. on Aug. 9 and stay overnight in the Barrington Motor Inn in Canyon. After breakfast on Aug. 9, the tour group will go to Lubbock for lunch and free time and will return to Snyder about 6 p.m.

Reservations for the trip are due by July 16 and each reservation must be accompanied by a $20 deposit. A minimum of 35 persons must make the trip because of the cost of chartering the bus.

Three lines of play

Theodore Lightner was confronted with today's play problem 33 years ago. Think about how you might play six spades after the opening lead of a diamond.

Lightner thought his best chance lay in playing his high clubs to discard dummy's diamonds. If clubs split 4-4 or 5-3, he could then make the slam provided he had only one trump loser. Of course there was some chance that with a 5-3 club division, the player holding five clubs would also hold the singleton spade ace. If so, when that player won the trump ace, he would lead a fourth club for partner to ruff with the spade queen.

The alternative line, taking the heart finesse, would lose half the time, whenever East held the heart king. The odds favored Lightner's play, but look what happened. On the third high club, West came in with the spade queen and led another diamond, and Teddy Lightner was two down. The deal occurred at a team-of-four match. At the other table, the declarer on Lightner's opposing team took the heart finesse and made the slam.

How should the hand be played? I have to admit that I would have gone down in a different way. After winning the ace of diamonds, I would have played the heart queen. If West covered, I would have made the contract. If West failed to cover, I would have assumed he did not have the king, and I would have risen with the ace and trumped a heart. I would then have proceeded just as unlucky Ted Lightner did 33 years ago, with the same miserable result.

Tart holds chocolate, strawberry

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Strawberry and chocolate lovers will be in seventh heaven when savoring a tart that combines the two so well.

A crust rather than a spongecake or biscuit adds another texture and taste to this treat.

STRAWBERRY TRUFFLE TARTS

Filling:

6 ounces semisweet chocolate pieces
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup whipping cream
2 tablespoons sugar

Crust:

1 cup flour
2 teaspoons sugar
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup butter or margarine, cut into 12 chunks
2 to 3 tablespoons cold water

Topping:

2 pint baskets fresh strawberries
Powdered sugar

To make filling: Combine all ingredients in small saucepan. Stir over medium-low heat until chocolate and butter are melted. Mix to blend thoroughly. Cool, then chill just to a firm spreading consistency, 2 to 3 hours.

Meanwhile, prepare crust: In large bowl mix flour, sugar and salt. Cut in butter one chunk at a time until mixture resembles coarse meal. Gradually mix in enough water to make a dough that holds together.

Gather into ball, flatten slightly, wrap and chill 15 minutes. Roll out on floured board to 1/8-inch thickness. Cut 8 circles, 4 inches to 5 inches each, rerolling scraps as needed. Place on baking sheets; prick each circle all over with fork.

Bake in 425-degree oven 14 to 18 minutes until lightly browned and crisp. Remove to racks; cool. To assemble, spoon or pipe about 3 tablespoons chocolate mixture onto center of each pastry circle, leaving 1/2-inch borders.

Stem and halve strawberries, reserving 8 whole strawberries. Arrange halves on tarts, mounding them on the chocolate mixture. Dust with powdered sugar. Top each tart with a whole strawberry.

Tarts may be refrigerated up to 2 hours before serving. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 8 servings.

Baseball is a 'losing industry,' professor of accounting claims

NEW YORK (AP) - Major league baseball teams may not have lost as much money in 1984 as originally claimed, said an accounting professor hired by club owners, but the game "is a losing industry that is becoming increasingly unprofitable."

George Sorter of New York University said Tuesday that, after reviewing audited financial statements from the clubs, teams lost $27 million last year, compared to the $43 million the owners had suggested.

But Don Fehr, acting executive director of the Players Association, expressed skepticism upon hearing the report, and said owners had instead made as much as $10 million in 1984.

"The question is, is this something they just discovered?" Fehr asked after hearing of the reduced losses. "But it's an acknowledgement that some of what they say can be treated at face value."

Owners and players have been without a contract since Dec. 31. The two sides were scheduled to meet today - for a 30th session - to continue negotiations on a new collective bargaining agreement.

Lee MacPhail, head of the owners' Player Relations Committee, originally set the teams' losses at $36 million. Sorter said that amount was based on information provided by 24 teams, excluding the Houston Astros and Minnesota Twins.

Sorter that after reviewing all 26 teams, the loss was $43 million, but said he had concluded that $16 million of the total should be subtracted.

Of the amount to be subtracted, $12 million was in "initial roster depreciation." That depreciation, an amount that arises when a team is sold and a portion of the purchase price that makes up player contracts is paid off over several years, "should not be treated as an operating expense," Sorter said.

"Accounting rules require this treatment, but this is an expense which ... is a function of buying and selling, rather than operating a club."

"I'm sure I disagree with the owners on this," said Sorter, who made his presentation alongside MacPhail and Milwaukee Brewers owner Bud Selig.

He also said the parent company of one team recently bought the stadium and related concession and parking operations from a civic delevelopment corporation, yet continued to treat those entities separately.

Sorter said he used standard accounting procedures and interpretations in making his evaluation and stressed he was "not the owners' professor and not the players' professor."

MacPhail did not comment on Sorter's interpretation, but said, "these are not paper losses, these are real."

Fehr said a union meeting was scheduled for next Monday in Chicago, one day before the All-Star Game in Minneapolis, Minn.

Fehr said a players' boycott of the game, a position once suggested by the union, was still an option being considered, but has seemingly been less of an issue in recent weeks.

In Babe Ruth League action...

Snyder clips Brownfield, 9-5

BROWNFIELD -- Snyder Black rallied from behind with a three-run third inning to defeat Brownfield in Babe Ruth League action here Tuesday evening, 9-5.

The Black squad trailed 5-3 going into the stanza but used four hits and an error to go in front. Chris Fryar led off the third with a double. One out later, Steve Parker singled him in for Snyder's fourth run. Jimmy Velasquez followed with a game-tying double. Brownfield then got another out, but Velasquez came in with the go-ahead run when Mike McWilliams hit into an error.

Snyder added insurance in the fourth inning on Justin Webb's two-run homer. Fryar, who was three-for-four for the night, had lashed a two-out triple before Webb stepped up to the plate. Parker followed Webb with a triple to centerfield and scored on an error on the attempted throw-in, giving the contest its final 9-5 score.

What opened as a slugfest finished as a pitcher's battle. Brownfield had tagged Snyder starter Velasquez for five runs - including a grand slam homer by Danny Garza - before Webb came aboard in the third. Likewise, Snyder cracked Brownfield starter Bobby Perez for its six runs through the third inning. Tony Garcia came on and gave up the three fourth-inning runs, but allowed only two hits over the next three innings.

Webb, the game's winning pitcher, walked three batters but allowed just one hit in five innings of work. He struck out eight batters.

Snyder had opened the first inning with three runs. Webb reached base on a two-out walk. He came in when Parker slapped a fly ball that was dropped by the centerfielder. Parker then scored on an error by the third baseman and Velasquez also reached and scored on consecutive errors.

Brownfield scored one run in the first inning when Heath McVay singled and scored on an error. Two walks and a single set the scene for Garza's two-out, second-inning, grand slam shot.

Snyder got 10 hits over the seven inning contest. Fryar and Parker (two-for-three) led the sticks. Velasquez, McWilliams, Webb, Michael Long and Ricky Hunter all rapped one hit apiece.

Brownfield was credited with only four hits.

Snyder Black, 8-1, completes the regular schedule with a double header in Post this Saturday. The first game is scheduled for 5 p.m.

LL playoffs slated to begin Thursday

The Area 5 Little League playoffs will begin here Thursday at Logan Field.

Hamlin and Rotan will square off in the first game of the tournament, scheduled for 6 p.m.

At 8, Snyder will take on Stonewall-Kent.

The double elimination tournament continues Friday with the losers of Thursday's games vying at 6 and the winners playing at 8.

The tournament will continue with games at 7 p.m. Saturday, Monday and Tuesday.

Snyder's all-star team is managed by Rudy Hinojos and coached by Isrrael Hinojos. Players are Gilbert Hernandez, Shelby Bufkin, Daniel Espinosa, Michael Torres, Jason Taylor, Mark King, Blair Williams, Jody Tavarez, Terry Snyder, Bebo Casias, Ronnie Pruitt, Terry Stephens, Jeremy Ditmore and Lary Gunset.

Teams needs donations

Snyder Black, local Babe Ruth League team, is needing donations to cover expenses for the July 22-27 state tournament, Coach Albert Lewis has noted.

Those interested in contributing should contact Lewis at 573-3813, Don Osborn at 573-9477, Bob Lanier at 573-2548 or Rickey Howell at 573-6786.

Bliss interested in Nets position

DALLAS (AP) - Dave Bliss, head basketball coach at Southern Methodist University, confirmed that he has talked at least twice with the management of the New Jersey Nets about the vacant National Basketball Association.

Bliss, who has an 80-70 record in his five seasons at SMU, said "I love my job here, but I'm intrigued with that job," he told sportswriters from Dallas newspapers Tuesday night.

"It was all pretty much a surprise to me. I talked with them a couple of times last week, over the phone, and I understand they'll be making a decision pretty soon," Bliss said from his home Tuesday night.

Bliss is the only college coach among the four. The others are Dave Wohl, an assistant with the Los Angeles Clippers; Jimmy Rodgers, an assistant with the Boston Celtics; and Bob MacKinnon, general manager of the Nets.

Utah Jazz Coach Frank Layden, who also had been mentioned for the job, said Tueday night he has not been contacted by the Nets and is not interested in the job.

Massimino turned down the Nets job just hours before a news conference was to have been held to announce his hiring. The Nets reportedly offered Massimino $350,000 a year.

Bliss is from New York. He was born in Binghamton, N.Y., attended college at Cornell, was later drafted and became an assistant coach at Army under Bobby Knight. Bliss followed Knight to Indiana University in 1971 before taking the head coaching job at Oklahoma in 1975.

SMU is 48-18 for the past two seasons, advancing to the NCAA tournament both times.

Gooden outguns Reds' Soto; Rangers, Houston both lose

by The Associated Press

As Dwight Gooden goes ... so go the New York Mets. And as Mario Soto goes ... so go the Cincinnati Reds. No informed baseball observer would seriously argue either statement.

The 20-year-old Gooden is in a groove and the Mets are on the move in the National League East, trailing pacesetter St. Louis by 2½ games after winning their eighth straight, the longest positive streak in the league this season.

Soto is out of sync, having lost a career-worst six straight decisions, and the Reds have lost seven of their last 10 games to fall from second place to third in the NL West.

"I had my great stuff," Gooden, 12-3, said after pitching eight strong innings Tuesday night as the Mets buried the Reds and Soto 11-2.

"I'm just going through hell right now," said the 28-year-old Soto, 8-9, who hasn't won since June 4. "It's hard to win games. Hitters have slumps, and pitchers have slumps. Hitters go 0-for-21, 1-for-30 ... this stuff's not going to go on the whole season."

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Chicago 7, San Diego 3; Los Angeles 8, Pittsburgh 3; Montreal 5, Atlanta 1; St. Louis 3, San Francisco 1; and Philadelphia 5, Houston 3.

In the American League it was New York 6, Kansas City 4; Cleveland 7, Texas 2; Detroit 6, Chicago 5; Baltimore 11, Minnesota 6; Boston 6, Oakland 3; California 5, Milwaukee 4 in 10 innings; and Toronto 9, Seattle 4 in 13 innings.

Indians 7, Rangers 2

Bert Blyleven pitched a four-hitter for his major-league-leading 12th complete game and Andre Thornton had a home run, two singles and a bases-loaded walk and knocked in four runs as Cleveland defeated Texas.

Pitching his seventh straight complete game, Blyleven, 8-8, struck out five and walked five. He has 101 strikeouts this season - one behind Detroit's Jack Morris, the league leader.

Phillies 5, Astros 3

Philadelphia won for the 13th time in 19 games, but still trails St. Louis by 11½ games.

Houston lost its third straight to fall below .500 at 41-42.

Source says Rangers will trade Bell soon

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - The Texas Rangers probably will trade Buddy Bell within the next week, possibly as early as today, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported.

The newspaper said today that sources close to the club confirmed that Bell had asked to be traded and that the club was trying to accommodate him.

Bell reportedly gave Rangers General Manager Tom Grieve a list of about 10 teams he would agree to go to, the newspaper said. As a player with 10 years in the league and five with the same team, Bell can veto any trade.

Bell denied early reports that he asked to be traded after efforts to renegotiate his contract for the fourth time in five years fell through.

"This has nothing to do with my contract," Bell told the Star-Telegram Tuesday in Cleveland, where the Rangers lost 7-2 Tuesday night to the Indians. "I have never asked to renegotiate. I have renegotiated (in the past) but I've never asked."

Sources close to Bell said the Ranger third baseman was miffed when owner Eddie Chiles allegedly reneged on a promise to renegotiate.

"He feels he was lied to, that's the crux of it," said one source.

"I can't say anything else," Bell said, "but I'm not mad at anybody."

According to insiders, Bell's agent, Ed Keating of Cleveland, proposed a three-year package totaling $5.25 million. The package called for $1.5 million the first year, $1.75 the second year and $2 million the third.

Chiles reportedly was shocked at the proposal and offered Bell an additional $55,000 a year to be added to his current salary of $600,000 a year, the Star-Telegram said in today's editions.

Bell quickly rejected that offer and allegedly accused the Rangers of not being faithful to their promise to renegotiate in good faith.

Bell, 33, is signed through 1987 with an option for 1988. The Rangers reportedly offered to guarantee 1988, along with the extra $55,000 a year, but Bell also turned that offer down.

The Los Angeles Dodgers, who have long had an interest in Bell, are believed to be the leading contender in the Bell sweepstakes. There is also talk of a three-way deal with the Dodgers and Pirates in which the Rangers would acquire hard-luck Pittsburgh pitcher Jose DeLeon.

Sports in summary

BASEBALL

NEW YORK (AP) - Managers Jim Frey of the Chicago Cubs and Bob Lillis of the Houston Astros have been selected as National League coaches for next week's All-Star Game, NL Manager Dick Williams of San Diego said.

NEW YORK (AP) - Baseball owners may have overstated their 1984 losses by $12 million, an accounting professor hired by the clubs said. But the report said the 26 teams still lost $31 million.

The head of the players union said the figures indicate that "some of what they say can be taken at face value," but continued to insist that the owners actually made as much as $10 million in 1984.

FOOTBALL

NEW YORK (AP) - Herschel Walker of the New Jersey Generals, whose 2,411 yards shattered pro football's single-season rushing record, was the unanimous choice of the Pro Football Writers of America as the United States Football League's Most Valuable Player.

Walker broke pro records with 11 consecutive 100-yard games and 14 games of more than 100 yards rushing. His 22 touchdowns - 21 of them rushing - and 132 points in the 1985 season, and his 233 yards rushing in one game, established USFL records.

TENNIS

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) - Second-seeded Andres Gomez withdrew from the $267,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships with an injury and No. 12 Jose Higueras of Spain also made a quick exit - the victim of an opening-round loss to American Jimmy Brown.

Gomez, 25, of Ecuador, had passed up Wimbledon, but re-injured the tear in his right quadriceps muscle that forced him out of the Longwood Cricket Club tournament without playing a match.

Third-seeded Miloslav Mecir of Czechoslovakia led a group of advancing seeded players, downing Michael Pernfors of Sweden, 6-3, 6-4.

Area golfers shoot aces

A couple of holes-in-one highlighted recent play at local golf courses.

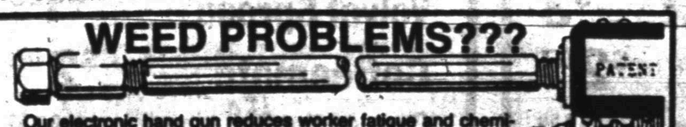

K.T. Williamson of Sweetwater aced the No. 1 hole at Western Texas College Golf Course on Friday of last week. He hit the 160-yard shot with a 5-iron.

Yesterday (Tuesday), E.L. Stagner of Colorado City was playing the college course with Stephen Decovic when he shot a 77, breaking his age. Stagner is 78 years old.

In June, Mel Galloway tallied his second hole-in-one in six months at Snyder Country Club. Galloway, who made his first one last November, aced No. 18 with a 5-wood. Playing with him were S.A. Parker, Jim Simpson, Marshall Erwin and Bill Null.

Also in June, David Hale became the first golfer to card an eagle on the par 4 No. 2 at the country club. He holed out with a pitching wedge.

Car bomb kills heiress, son

NAPLES, Fla. (AP) — The heiress to a $400 million tobacco fortune and her tennis pro son were killed and her daughter injured in a car-bomb blast that sent debris rocketing 200 feet through an exclusive neighborhood, police said.

The explosion Tuesday killed Margaret H. Benson, 63, of Naples, and Scott R. Benson, 21, of Lancaster, Pa., in Mrs. Benson's Chevrolet Suburban outside her Quail Creek home, said Collier County Sheriff's Lt. Eric Daniels.

The blast, which also injured Carol Lynn Benson, 40, of Boston, was caused by a bomb, but authorities have not determined the type of explosives involved, said Sheriff's Capt. Curtis Mills.

"We've never had anything like this around here," Daniels said.

Steven Wayne Benson, 33, of Fort Myers, who was visiting his mother Tuesday, and his wife, Debbie, were in protective custody today in a Naples hotel, said Janet Lee Murphy, the victim's sister in Lancaster.

"It's a shock. We're all distraught about it," Mrs. Murphy said. "We can't believe it happened."

Neighbors reported hearing two explosions and police said debris rocketed 200 feet onto a golf course, where two unidentified people were injured. The golfers were treated at a nearby hospital and released, officials said.

Carol Benson was in serious condition at Naples Community Hospital with second- and third-degree burns on her face and shoulders, Mrs. Murphy said. She was to be flown to Boston's Massachusetts General Hospital burn center today.

Sheriff's Lt. Aaron Keen said authorities had no suspects or motive for the bombing. Mrs. Murphy said, "There are no clues at all."

Bystanders were barred from the scene during the investigation by nearly 30 county, state and federal investigators.

Mrs. Benson was the widow of Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Co. Chairman Edward H. Benson, Mrs. Murphy said. She and her children shared the $400 million estate left by Benson, who also served on the boards of other tobacco companies.

Steven Benson and his mother maintained an office in her house, Mrs. Murphy said. Last year, they founded Meridian Security Network Inc., which installed burglar alarms and security systems in the affluent neighborhood where a private guard checks all incoming cars at a gate.

Hargett, Chapman stress Medicare

TEXARKANA, Texas (AP) — The two opponents for the 1st Congressional seat agreed in a campaign stop here that Medicare is important but differed on how well Reagan is handling the Medicare system.

Democrat Jim Chapman attacked the Reagan administration's decision Friday to cut $225 million from Medicare spending by placing new limits on payments for home health care and medical education.

In Tuesday's airport news conference appearance during campaigning for the Aug. 3 runoff, Chapman criticized Republican opponent Edd Hargett as part of the "team that is cutting Medicare."

But Hargett, a Linden engineer, said he is not familiar enough with Friday's Medicare cut to comment on it. Hargett addressed senior citizens at an apartment complex.

"I haven't really looked at those changes yet," Hargett said.

Man given 75 years for stealing turkeys

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A man convicted of stealing 16 frozen turkeys faces up to 75 years in prison after a state district court jury recommended the stiff sentence.

Harold Mackey, 31, of Lubbock was found guilty of burglarizing $200 worth of turkey from a tractor-trailer rig in November. The minimum sentence was raised by prosecutor Bill Sowder by showing Mackey's two prior burglary convictions.

The seven-man, five-woman jury took only 12 minutes Monday to find Mackey guilty of taking the birds from the refrigerated trailer parked near a South Lubbock restaurant about 1:30 a.m. Nov. 5.

Tuesday's punishment deliberations lasted only 20 minutes.

"I just asked the jury what it would take to show Mackey that we're serious about protecting citizens from crime in Lubbock County," said Sowder.

Defense attorney Brian Murray pointed out during closing arguments that if the jury assessed Mackey 25 years, that would be more than 1½ years per turkey.

Afterward he expressed disappointment in the sentence.

"That might've been a tad high in light of the crime. That's a bit stiff for a vehicle burglary," Murray said.

Edinburg center receives grant

AUSTIN (AP) — A treatment center in Edinburg has received a grant for the first statewide program in the nation for residential inhalant abuse treatment, Gov. Mark White announced Tuesday.

A grant of $324,546 will go to the Tropical Texas Center for Mental Health and Mental Retardation as a pilot facility to treat young people who sniff volatile products containing toxic chemicals to become intoxicated.

The Edinburg center won the grant through a competitive bidding process.

Worried father takes precautions

ALVARADO, Texas (AP) — The father of a 13-year-old girl who was kidnapped by a man now loose from jail said he is taking precautions to protect his family but that life goes on.

Don McNiel, a 9-mm Colt pistol stuck in blue jeans, Tuesday offered a $2,000 reward for the capture of the convicted kidnapper who escaped from Johnson County Jail last week.

McNiel said he would pay the money for information leading to the arrest of James Wesley Foote, 34, who was sentenced in March to life in prison for kidnapping McNiel's daughter, Amy.

The girl was rescued by law enforcement officers 2½ days later.

"I want the man caught," said McNiel. He said he began carrying the gun after Foote escaped July 4.

McNiel told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that at least three sheriff's deputies are posted on his ranch around the clock.

But despite the gun and the guards, he said it's almost business as usual at the McNiel household and at McNiel Enterprises, the company he runs in a red barn about 200 yards from the two-story house.

"I've heard reports that we're hiding out, but we're going right on with our lives," McNiel said. "Amy's a calm little girl. She's taking it all in stride. It doesn't appear to have her very upset."

McNiel said he doesn't know whether Foote would try to harm his family.

"He's been crazy enough to do those other things," McNiel said. "If he harbors any hatred against my family ... we just did what he had to do to gain Amy's safe release. But I can't crawl into his head and know what he's thinking."

The FBI, meanwhile, entered the Foote manhunt Tuesday. Bureau officials in Fort Worth said a federal warrant was issued for Foote on a charge of assaulting a federal officer during the gunfight in January in which Miss McNiel was rescued.

Marines may change haircut

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Young U.S. Marines besieged by the threat of guerrilla attack at the U.S. Embassy here welcomed word that they can drop their traditional "shavetail" haircuts for more conventional styles.

"That's good. We'll look just like regular Americans," one Marine sergeant said Tuesday upon hearing of the change. Other members of the Marine guard at the embassy agreed. U.S. Marines guard all U.S. embassies around the world.

But a U.S. military official attached to the embassy said much more needs to be done to protect against a repeat of last month's massacre of American Marines and civilians in San Salvador.

"From a security perspective, the most important things are the usual — making sure that you vary your routes of travel, not sticking to set schedules, no frequenting outdoor restaurants," he said.

The officer spoke with reporters on condition he not be identified, a practice followed by most U.S. officials in this tense Central American nation, where the U.S.-supported government has been fighting leftist guerrillas for 5½ years.

Four Marine embassy guards and nine civilians, including two American businessmen, were slain June 19 by guerrillas who fired automatic weapons at patrons of two outdoor cafes.

Security officials believe that the Marines, easily distinguishable by their extremely short haircuts, had been targeted for the attack.

On Tuesday, the Marine Corps said in Washington that it had notified its embassy units around the world that Marine guards would be allowed to grow their hair to standard civilian-style length.

Since the attack, the guerrilla leadership has warned that all Americans involved in the "war of intervention" would be considered legitimate targets.

About 200 Americans are attached to the U.S. Embassy, including about 100 advisers and other U.S. military personnel. The strength of the Marine guard contingent is not disclosed publicly, but they are believed to number about 20.

Even before the restaurant killings, security at the embassy in central San Salvador was being strengthened.

Early this year, construction began on a new perimeter wall around the already fortress-like four-story embassy.

"The old wall was not really blastproof," a diplomat explained.

The entire cube-shaped building also has been wrapped in a cocoon of fence designed to shield the windows from a direct rocket hit.

A sandbagged "penthouse" bunker sits atop the embassy, and tough Salvadoran security men, armed with Israeli-made Uzi submachine guns and .12-gauge shotguns, patrol outside the still uncompleted outer wall.

Anti-flouride forces gathering signatures

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A citizens group opposing fluoridation of the city's water supply has passed the first hurdle in forcing a referendum on the issue.

The group Tuesday hauled more than 61,000 signatures in a wheelbarrow into City Hall.

"They said it could not be done. In fact, they put unbelievable obstacles in our way. But in fact, it has been done," said C.A. Stubbs, who spearheaded the petition drive.

Stubbs, president of the Homeowner-Taxpayer Association of Bexar County, said a group of citizens gathered 61,384 signatures in support of the referendum.

The organization needs only 40,488 signatures, or 10 percent of the registered voters in the city, to force the City Council to call a referendum on the issue or rescind an ordinance calling for fluoridation.

City Clerk Norma Rodriguez has three weeks to verify the names on the petitions. If there are not enough, the citizens group has 20 more days

Stubbs said his group is pushing for a referendum Nov. 5 to coincide with a statewide election on constitutional amendments.

Stubbs said he and his organization oppose fluoridation because of its cost, which he said will fall on the taxpayers.

The city's health department has estimated fluoridation will cost $573,000 the first year and about $200,000 in subsequent years.

DEAR DR. GOTT — What is the latest information about the effect that working at a video display terminal can have on one's health?

DEAR READER — Video display terminal (VDT) eye complaints are the result of fatigue due to exposure to constant brightness and focusing — in a word, eyestrain.

VDT eye problems can be avoided by repeated rest periods away from the screen. Because VDT strain can aggravate existing eye problems, VDT users should certainly have a thorough eye examination before committing themselves to this line of work. Some authorities urge annual exams for all VDT users under 25 and over 35.

Many VDT workers are helped by trifocal glasses that are lightly tinted and polarized.

There is no conclusive evidence that VDTs cause harmful or long-lasting consequences.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My father and grandfather died of colon cancer. How can I minimize my chances of developing it?

DEAR READER — You are, in a sense, fortunate to be aware of your hereditary patterns, although yours is hardly cause for celebration. Certain diseases do tend to run in families, so I can empathize with your concerns.

To begin with, you can accustom yourself to periodic evaluations. If you are over 30, you will need a barium enema examination. During this X-ray test, material is administered to you in enema form. As the large intestine is filled, X-rays are taken. Repeat films are obtained after you evacuate the barium and air is introduced into the colon. This rather involved examination is a surprisingly efficient way to detect small intestinal growths, whether or not you now have symptoms, it will provide a useful baseline study for later comparison.

If you are over 40, you will probably require a colonoscopic exam, during which a specialist, using a long flexible fiberoptic tube, actually looks at the lining of your intestine. You will also need periodic hemoccult tests — simple and inexpensive determinations of blood in the stool.

My comments are meant as suggestions. You should consult an intestinal specialist, a gastroenterologist, who will know best how to proceed and at what intervals followup tests need to be performed.

I can think of only one other way for you to minimize your chances of developing colo-rectal cancer, and that involves an increase in dietary bran and roughage. At least one world expert has convincingly demonstrated that high-fiber diets exert a protective effect against the problem that affected your forebears.

On the way to your gastoenterologist, stop at the grocery store and stock up on bran cereals. The doctor can offer you more specific recommendations, but roughage will become part of your daily life.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott at P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Powell considers retirement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell reluctantly has been forced to consider the possibility of retirement as he recuperates from two recent surgical operations, sources close to Powell say.

His decision will hinge on how well he recuperates through the summer from last January's surgery for removal of a cancerous prostate and a hernia operation he underwent Monday at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., the sources said.

The sources spoke only on the condition that they not be identified.

Powell, 77, has told people at the court he wants to continue his work as a justice but that the decision will hinge on his health.

His role through most of his 13 years on the nation's highest court has been that of a "majority maker" — a key swing vote in cases that deeply divide the court along ideological lines.

Powell's position at the court's center in its just-completed term led Burt Neuborne, legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union, to call Powell "the most powerful individual in America."

Asked about Powell's latest surgery, Virginia Eggleston, his secretary, said: "The operation was highly successful. His doctors were quite pleased with everything."

Ms. Eggleston said she did not know when Powell would return to Washington. Following his surgery in January, Powell missed two months of the high court's 1984-85 term.

Sources said Powell's wife, Josephine, has urged him to retire now. They said the justice has considered the possibility of serving as a part-time judge on the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., when he does retire.

The Powells maintain a home in Richmond, and the justice has returned there each summer since joining the court in 1972 as an appointee of President Nixon.

Powell has not discussed retirement with any of the court's eight other members. He has told people it is "a very private decision."

Powell's recuperation from the cancer surgery caused him to miss participating in nearly one-third of the 139 signed decisions the 1984-85 term yielded. But he remained a pivotal vote in many cases, dissenting from only six decisions.

Powell was one of the 5-4 majority that ruled it is unconstitutional for publicly paid teachers to conduct classes in parochial schools because of the danger of a "symbolic union" of church and state.

Police, others discount killer's claims

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Contrary to Henry Martinez Porter's claims that he was denied a fair trial because he was Hispanic, authorities went overboard to give him one, according to the judge in the case.

"In regard to Mexican Americans, we tried him in Corpus Christi" the second time on a change of venue to help ensure an impartial jury, Judge Gordon Gray said Tuesday.

"We had Mexican Americans on the jury. So it wasn't that. As I recall, the foreman of the jury was a Mexican-American," said Gray, who twice presided over Porter's trials in the death of a Fort Worth policeman.

Porter, who was executed early Tuesday in the 1975 shooting of Henry Mailloux, said just before he died that he had shot in self-defense and that he had not been afforded a fair trial because he was Hispanic

However, Gray said Porter did not effectively raise a self-defense claim at his trial.

Fort Worth police and the Tarrant County District Attorney's office also disputed Porter's contentions that he returned the officer's fire after a traffic stop and that he was a victim of racial discrimination.

"There was not any self-defense raised in the trial," said Gray. "That was not even an issue that went to the jury.

"There was no question about self-defense," he said. "And under the law, it is questionable whether you could even raise it in the circumstances, because the deceased was a police officer."

President Abraham Lincoln died April 15, 1865, at a Washington boarding house, nine hours after being shot by John Wilkes Booth. Lincoln was 56. Less than three hours after Lincoln died, Andrew Johnson was sworn in as the 17th president of the United States at the Kirkwood House in Washington.

Gun lobby ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fresh from a Senate victory on legislation that would allow interstate sales of handguns, conservative senators and pro-gun lobbyists say they'll now try to keep their bill from burial in a House graveyard.

Gun owners lobbyist John M. Snyder acknowledged Tuesday night that the House leadership is hostile to the bill — which would make the most significant revisions in the federal handgun law in 17 years.

He said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill has been "symbolic of the opposition" to pro-gun owner bills while Majority Leader Jim Wright "has not indicated any strong support," and Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr. "is one of the world's worst anti-gun politicians."

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, chief sponsor of the Senate bill, said "There is wide speculation the Judiciary Committee will not report it" to the House floor. He said House supporters may need a rarely successful discharge petition to dislodge the measure from Rodino's committee and move it before the full House.

After heavy lobbying by the National Rifle Association and allied gun owner and dealer groups, senators voted 79-15 for major revisions to the Gun Control Act of 1968, the nation's major gun control statute.

It was the first major gun control debate in the Senate in some 13 years, and the House has not fought over an omnibus gun law since the 1968 act was approved.

The current law bans sale of handguns by a dealer in one state to a purchaser from another, but the Senate-passed measure would allow the interstate sales in face-to-face transactions.

Senators voted 69-26 to kill a motion by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that would have retained the prohibition on cross-state sales.

By an equally impressive 71-23 vote, the Senate killed a motion by Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, that would have installed a 14-day waiting period before a purchaser could take posession of his handgun.

In addition to those provisions, conservative senators and the gun lobby pushed through a large number of changes designed to eliminate red tape for licensed gun dealers and owners — and prevent their prosecution for unwitting record-keeping errors.

Many of those changes were not opposed by gun control advocates. But overall, they said, the bill would make it easier for criminals to obtain handguns and harder for law enforcement officers to trace them.

Insulin was made available in 1923 for general use by diabetics.

Preisident Franklin D. Roosevelt was buried April 15, 1945, at the Roosevelt family home in Hyde Park, N.Y.

Opposing forces clashing at clinic

DALLAS (AP) — On the eve of a debate on restricting protests at abortion clinics, demonstrators on both sides of the issue turned out in a boisterous display after an anti-abortion group met to dedicate a sign atop an abortion clinic.

About 200 people, some carrying signs depicting aborted fetuses and shouting slogans, demonstrated at the Routh Street Women's Clinic Tuesday, with one group protesting the clinic's existence and the other supporting its right to be there.

The debate on whether women should have the right to choose abortion spilled over into Dallas City Hall today for a discussion on putting curbs on demonstrations at area clinics.

Owners and supporters of clinics offering counseling and abortion services contend recent pro-life demonstrations at their facilities mean marchers who "scream obscenities" at clinics and their clients and pose a danger to the patients.

"I don't know where it's going to go. It's a question of harrassment (of women) versus First Amendment rights" to picket, said Victoria Hellman, personnel director of the Routh Street clinic.

In response, a group of people who support free choice for women also gathered at the clinic to stage a "silent vigil" for their viewpoint.

Although Dallas police officers kept a distance between the two factions, a bomb threat telephoned to the clinic temporarily forced the groups away from the building as a safety precaution although no bomb was found, police said.

And the faceoff, while not the first between the two groups, mirrored the increasing debate over abortion in Dallas that has brought regular picketing of area clinics, repeated bomb threats and heated public speechmaking, spokesmen said.

"Our posture now is to just monitor the clinic. It's a volatile issue," said Sgt. Larry Lewis, with the police tactical section which watched Tuesday's demonstration.

ID of skeleton solves mystery

WAKE VILLAGE, Texas (AP) — A skeleton found in this small community and unidentified for several weeks belongs to a drifter from Michigan who was last seen by his family almost 10 years ago, officials said.

The body of Terrence Lee Nehring, 34, of Cedar Springs, Mich., was identified Tuesday. And although his relatives were notified of his death, the whereabouts of the Vietnam vet since he left the Michigan area 10 years ago are still a mystery, officials said.

The skeleton was found June 20 by tree-trimmers. A backpack, small tent and rusted .22-caliber revolver were found nearby, Wake Village police said.

The man's skull had a small diameter hole in the middle of the forehead, and police had been trying to identify the remains. They learned his name through military dental records, Police Chief Dell Hampton said.

Hampton said he has no reason to believe Nehring was murdered.

"My personal opinion is that he committed suicide," he told the Texarkana Gazette.

Papers in Nehring's wallet first led police in the small town on the Texas-Arkansas border to dead-ends in California and Michigan. Another scrap of paper showed the address of a motel in Lufkin, Texas, Hampton said.

The hotel has since been demolished, but Hampton said he located people who said they knew Nehring when he lived there and that he left in September 1983 with a backpack and small tent.

Still, Hampton said, he has been unable to find anyone one who had seen Nehring since or knew where he came from.

"I don't know how the guy was making it, really," Hampton said of the drifter.

Nehring's one-time fiancee, who was named as the beneficiary on his military life insurance policy, provided the clue that finally led to the deceased's far-flung family.

Stockman heads for Wall Street

WASHINGTON (AP) — David A. Stockman, President Reagan's earnest field marshal in the budget wars with Congress, is leaving the battlefield for the relative calm of Wall Street.

No successor for Stockman was immediately named, but a congressional source who spoke on condition that he not be quoted by name said the White House will announce that Joe Wright, deputy budget director, would serve as acting director until a successor is in place.

Stockman, 38, will remain as budget director until Aug. 1, allowing him to keep a hand in trying to resolve the current budget deadlock on Capitol Hill before Congress takes its annual August recess.

"David Stockman has served with dedication and distinction," Reagan said Tuesday the director of the Office of Management and Budget was leaving.

"His tireless effort to bring fiscal discipline to the federal government and ensure economic stability for the country are deeply appreciated," the president added.

Stockman's departure sometime this year had been widely assumed.

It is "something that's been in the works for a long time," said Edwin L. Dale Jr., Stockman's spokesman. "He had told them all over there (at the White House) that he would see (it) through one more budget cycle."

With the current congressional budget talks apparently heading for a compromise and the administration needing to begin preparations for the budget it will submit to Congress early next year, this appeared to be the easiest time for Stockman to announce his departure.

Salomon Bros., a New York investment banking firm, said that Stockman will become a managing director Nov. 1 with responsibilities for corporate and governmental finance.

Stockman's salary as budget director was $75,100 a year. Craig Lewis of Salomon Brothers' public relations firm, Adams and Rinehart, said Stockman's new salary would not be disclosed.

Those mentioned as possible replacements for Stockman include Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, John A. Svahn, the president's top domestic policy adviser and former head of the Social Security Administration, and former transportation secretary Drew Lewis.

When Stockman was sworn in in 1981, at the age of 34, he was the youngest man to hold Cabinet rank in 150 years. From 1977 until 1981 he had served as the Republican congressman from Michigan's Fourth District.

All year, Stockman appeared to become increasingly weary of the seemingly endless squabbles within the administration and with Congress over trying to rein in government spending, and those feelings began seeping into his public remarks.

Like all of his actions in office, Stockman's resignation brought sharply contrasting reactions from Congress.

"He may be the most brilliant man in government," said Rep. Trent Lott of Mississippi, the assistant Republican leader in the House.

"Stockman will go down in history as creating the largest budget deficit in the history of the world," said Rep. Bill Alexander of Arkansas, chief deputy Democratic whip in the House. "No one ever before has managed such an enormous accumulation of debt."

Stacy Dam big bash planned

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — State leaders including Gov. Mark White are expected to be on hand tonight for a celebration for lawmakers who helped fight for the Stacy Dam and Reservoir.

Owen Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District in Big Spring, told the Odessa American that Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and legislators also plan to attend the "lighthearted get-together" at the Big Spring Country Club.

The party will "celebrate a hard-fought victory to get the reservoir approved," said state Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock. "I think it obviously has political overtones."

Among the almost 200 invited guests are state Reps. Kelly Godwin, R-Odessa, and Tom Craddick, R-Midland; state Sens. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, and Grant Jones, D-Abilene; and members of city councils that are water district customers, Ivie told the Odessa American.

Montford and legislators had tied approval of the dam's water rights permit to their support for a sweeping, statewide water bill passed earlier this year.

"West Texas in general is going to be unwilling to sign on to a water package if they don't get this lake (Stacy Reservoir) built," Montford has said.

In April, after a seven-year fight by the Big Spring water district, the Texas Water Commission approved the permit for Colorado River water rights necessary to fill the reservoir.

Another water district, the Austin-based Lower Colorado River Authority, had opposed the reservoir and filed suit to stop construction after the permit won initial approval in 1978.

Powell considers retirement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell reluctantly has been forced to consider the possibility of retirement as he recuperates from two recent surgical operations, sources close to Powell say.

His decision will hinge on how well he recuperates through the summer from last January's surgery for removal of a cancerous prostate and a hernia operation he underwent Monday at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., the sources said.

The sources spoke only on the condition that they not be identified.

Powell, 77, has told people at the court he wants to continue his work as a justice but that the decision will hinge on his health.

His role through most of his 13 years on the nation's highest court has been that of a "majority maker" — a key swing vote in cases that deeply divide the court along ideological lines.

Powell's position at the court's center in its just-completed term led Burt Neuborne, legal director of the American Civil Liberties Union, to call Powell "the most powerful individual in America."

Asked about Powell's latest surgery, Virginia Eggleston, his secretary, said: "The operation was highly successful. His doctors were quite pleased with everything."

Ms. Eggleston said she did not know when Powell would return to Washington. Following his surgery in January, Powell missed two months of the high court's 1984-85 term.

Sources said Powell's wife, Josephine, has urged him to retire now. They said the justice has considered the possibility of serving as a part-time judge on the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., when he does retire.

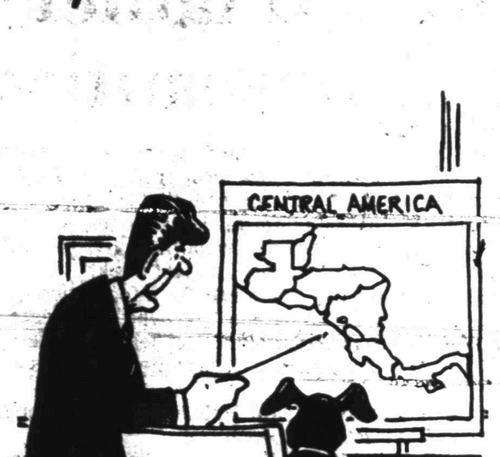

The Powells maintain a home in Richmond, and the justice has returned there each summer since joining the court in 1972 as an appointee of President Nixon.

Powell has not discussed retirement with any of the court's eight other members. He has told people it is "a very private decision."

Powell's recuperation from the cancer surgery caused him to miss participating in nearly one-third of the 139 signed decisions the 1984-85 term yielded. But he remained a pivotal vote in many cases, dissenting from only six decisions.

Powell was one of the 5-4 majority that ruled it is unconstitutional for publicly paid teachers to conduct classes in parochial schools because of the danger of a "symbolic union" of church and state.

Police, others discount killer's claims

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Contrary to Henry Martinez Porter's claims that he was denied a fair trial because he was Hispanic, authorities went overboard to give him one, according to the judge in the case.

"In regard to Mexican Americans, we tried him in Corpus Christi" the second time on a change of venue to help ensure an impartial jury, Judge Gordon Gray said Tuesday.

"We had Mexican Americans on the jury. So it wasn't that. As I recall, the foreman of the jury was a Mexican-American," said Gray, who twice presided over Porter's trials in the death of a Fort Worth policeman.

Porter, who was executed early Tuesday in the 1975 shooting of Henry Mailloux, said just before he died that he had shot in self-defense and that he had not been afforded a fair trial because he was Hispanic

However, Gray said Porter did not effectively raise a self-defense claim at his trial.

Fort Worth police and the Tarrant County District Attorney's office also disputed Porter's contentions that he returned the officer's fire after a traffic stop and that he was a victim of racial discrimination.

"There was not any self-defense raised in the trial," said Gray. "That was not even an issue that went to the jury.

"There was no question about self-defense," he said. "And under the law, it is questionable whether you could even raise it in the circumstances, because the deceased was a police officer."

Gun lobby ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fresh from a Senate victory on legislation that would allow interstate sales of handguns, conservative senators and pro-gun lobbyists say they'll now try to keep their bill from burial in a House graveyard.

Gun owners lobbyist John M. Snyder acknowledged Tuesday night that the House leadership is hostile to the bill — which would make the most significant revisions in the federal handgun law in 17 years.

He said House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill has been "symbolic of the opposition" to pro-gun owner bills while Majority Leader Jim Wright "has not indicated any strong support," and Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr. "is one of the world's worst anti-gun politicians."

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, chief sponsor of the Senate bill, said "There is wide speculation the Judiciary Committee will not report it" to the House floor. He said House supporters may need a rarely successful discharge petition to dislodge the measure from Rodino's committee and move it before the full House.

After heavy lobbying by the National Rifle Association and allied gun owner and dealer groups, senators voted 79-15 for major revisions to the Gun Control Act of 1968, the nation's major gun control statute.

It was the first major gun control debate in the Senate in some 13 years, and the House has not fought over an omnibus gun law since the 1968 act was approved.

The current law bans sale of handguns by a dealer in one state to a purchaser from another, but the Senate-passed measure would allow the interstate sales in face-to-face transactions.

Senators voted 69-26 to kill a motion by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., that would have retained the prohibition on cross-state sales.

By an equally impressive 71-23 vote, the Senate killed a motion by Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, that would have installed a 14-day waiting period before a purchaser could take posession of his handgun.

In addition to those provisions, conservative senators and the gun lobby pushed through a large number of changes designed to eliminate red tape for licensed gun dealers and owners — and prevent their prosecution for unwitting record-keeping errors.

Many of those changes were not opposed by gun control advocates. But overall, they said, the bill would make it easier for criminals to obtain handguns and harder for law enforcement officers to trace them.

Insulin was made available in 1923 for general use by diabetics.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt was buried April 15, 1945, at the Roosevelt family home in Hyde Park, N.Y.

President Abraham Lincoln died April 15, 1865, at a Washington boarding house, nine hours after being shot by John Wilkes Booth. Lincoln was 56. Less than three hours after Lincoln died, Andrew Johnson was sworn in as the 17th president of the United States at the Kirkwood House in Washington.

Opposing forces clashing at clinic

DALLAS (AP) — On the eve of a debate on restricting protests at abortion clinics, demonstrators on both sides of the issue turned out in a boisterous display after an anti-abortion group met to dedicate a sign atop an abortion clinic.

About 200 people, some carrying signs depicting aborted fetuses and shouting slogans, demonstrated at the Routh Street Women's Clinic Tuesday, with one group protesting the clinic's existence and the other supporting its right to be there.

The debate on whether women should have the right to choose abortion spilled over into Dallas City Hall today for a discussion on putting curbs on demonstrations at area clinics.

Owners and supporters of clinics offering counseling and abortion services contend recent pro-life demonstrations at their facilities mean marchers who "scream obscenities" at clinics and their clients and pose a danger to the patients.

"I don't know where it's going to go. It's a question of harrassment (of women) versus First Amendment rights" to picket, said Victoria Hellman, personnel director of the Routh Street clinic.

In response, a group of people who support free choice for women also gathered at the clinic to stage a "silent vigil" for their viewpoint.

Although Dallas police officers kept a distance between the two factions, a bomb threat telephoned to the clinic temporarily forced the groups away from the building as a safety precaution although no bomb was found, police said.

And the faceoff, while not the first between the two groups, mirrored the increasing debate over abortion in Dallas that has brought regular picketing of area clinics, repeated bomb threats and heated public speechmaking, spokesmen said.

"Our posture now is to just monitor the clinic. It's a volatile issue," said Sgt. Larry Lewis, with the police tactical section which watched Tuesday's demonstration.

ID of skeleton solves mystery

WAKE VILLAGE, Texas (AP) — A skeleton found in this small community and unidentified for several weeks belongs to a drifter from Michigan who was last seen by his family almost 10 years ago, officials said.

The body of Terrence Lee Nehring, 34, of Cedar Springs, Mich., was identified Tuesday. And although his relatives were notified of his death, the whereabouts of the Vietnam vet since he left the Michigan area 10 years ago are still a mystery, officials said.

The skeleton was found June 20 by tree-trimmers. A backpack, small tent and rusted .22-caliber revolver were found nearby, Wake Village police said.

The man's skull had a small diameter hole in the middle of the forehead, and police had been trying to identify the remains. They learned his name through military dental records, Police Chief Dell Hampton said.

Hampton said he has no reason to believe Nehring was murdered.

"My personal opinion is that he committed suicide," he told the Texarkana Gazette.

Papers in Nehring's wallet first led police in the small town on the Texas-Arkansas border to dead-ends in California and Michigan. Another scrap of paper showed the address of a motel in Lufkin, Texas, Hampton said.

The hotel has since been demolished, but Hampton said he located people who said they knew Nehring when he lived there and that he left in September 1983 with a backpack and small tent.

Still, Hampton said, he has been unable to find anyone one who had seen Nehring since or knew where he came from.

"I don't know how the guy was making it, really," Hampton said of the drifter.

Nehring's one-time fiancee, who was named as the beneficiary on his military life insurance policy, provided the clue that finally led to the deceased's far-flung family.

Stockman heads for Wall Street

WASHINGTON (AP) — David A. Stockman, President Reagan's earnest field marshal in the budget wars with Congress, is leaving the battlefield for the relative calm of Wall Street.

No successor for Stockman was immediately named, but a congressional source who spoke on condition that he not be quoted by name said the White House will announce that Joe Wright, deputy budget director, would serve as acting director until a successor is in place.

Stockman, 38, will remain as budget director until Aug. 1, allowing him to keep a hand in trying to resolve the current budget deadlock on Capitol Hill before Congress takes its annual August recess.

"David Stockman has served with dedication and distinction," Reagan said Tuesday the director of the Office of Management and Budget was leaving.

"His tireless effort to bring fiscal discipline to the federal government and ensure economic stability for the country are deeply appreciated," the president added.

Stockman's departure sometime this year had been widely assumed.

It is "something that's been in the works for a long time," said Edwin L. Dale Jr., Stockman's spokesman. "He had told them all over there (at the White House) that he would see (it) through one more budget cycle."

With the current congressional budget talks apparently heading for a compromise and the administration needing to begin preparations for the budget it will submit to Congress early next year, this appeared to be the easiest time for Stockman to announce his departure.

Salomon Bros., a New York investment banking firm, said that Stockman will become a managing director Nov. 1 with responsibilities for corporate and governmental finance.

Stockman's salary as budget director was $75,100 a year. Craig Lewis of Salomon Brothers' public relations firm, Adams and Rinehart, said Stockman's new salary would not be disclosed.

Those mentioned as possible replacements for Stockman include Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige, John A. Svahn, the president's top domestic policy adviser and former head of the Social Security Administration, and former transportation secretary Drew Lewis.

When Stockman was sworn in in 1981, at the age of 34, he was the youngest man to hold Cabinet rank in 150 years. From 1977 until 1981 he had served as the Republican congressman from Michigan's Fourth District.

Suicide bombers kill selves, others

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Two suicide bombers drove explosives-laden cars into checkpoints manned by the Israeli-backed militia in south Lebanon, killing themselves and 15 other people and wounding six, the Israeli military command and other sources said.

Two of the injured were Israeli soldiers.

The Syrian Social Nationalist Party, a pro-Syrian secular Lebanese group, said Thursday in Beirut, Lebanon, that the bombings were carried out by its members.

The attacks came a day after Lebanese Moslem leaders met in the Syrian capital of Damascus and vowed continued resistance to the Israeli presence in southern Lebanon.

The same group has claimed responsibility for other suicide attacks on Israeli troops before the withdrawal June 10 of the bulk of Israeli forces from southern Lebanon. There have been no attacks since June 10.

Israeli military officials say no more than 100 Israeli soldiers remain in Lebanon as liaison and training officers for the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army militia following last month's pullout. They sometimes can be seen manning checkpoints with the militia.

The car bombs exploded within 15 minutes of one another at opposite ends of the security zone Israel maintains north of its border, Timor Goksel, a spokesman for the U.N. interim force in Lebanon said.

Israeli military sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said 16 Lebanese, including one of the bombers, perished in the first attack — at Hasbaiya, 10 miles northeast of the Israeli border town of Metulla. Four Lebanese were wounded.

In the second attack, only the bomber was killed, and the two Israeli soldiers were wounded.

In the two attacks, Israeli sources said 13 of the dead were Lebanese civilians and two were members of the South Lebanon Army militia. They said four Lebanese were wounded. It was not known whether the wounded were militiamen or civilians.

Lebanon's state-run television showed what it said were videotapes made by the bombers before the attacks.

Khaled Azrak, described as the driver of a Volkswagen that blew up at a checkpoint maintained by Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army militiamen, said in one tape:

"I believe Israel's hand in this country should be chopped off."

Israeli sources said militiamen stopped the driver of the Volkswagen to examine his papers. The sources said that when it appeared the papers were forged and the militiamen began examining the vehicle, the driver jumped back into the car and detonated what they estimated to be 300 pounds of explosives.

Israel's military command said two Israeli soldiers were slightly wounded when the other suicide bomber, Ibtissam Harb, detonated her explosives-laden Peugeot at a checkpoint at Ras al-Biyada overlooking the Mediterranean four miles northeast of the Israeli border. She died in the attack.

In another vision, a woman described as the 28-year-old Miss Harb, a psychology student, said she hoped "to kill as many jews and their agents as possible."

The military command said the car exploded when militiamen asked the driver for her papers.

The two wounded Israeli soldiers were attached to the Israeli army liaison unit in southern Lebanon, the sources said.

The South Lebanon Army militia closed all five official crossing points from the security zone immediately after the attacks, Israeli sources said.

Parked auto struck here

A single minor traffic accident was reported in Snyder Tuesday afternoon.

Involved in the 4:53 p.m. accident in the 1700 Block of 25th St. was a 1979 Ford driven by James Edward Courtney Jr. of 2405 Gilmore Ave. It was in collision with a parked 1985 Chevrolet owned by Kenneth Gard of 2211 27th St.

Snyder youth place at show

Shanna Hays, competing in the 12-14 age division, placed fifth in showmanship, fourth in western pleasure and fifth in western horsemanship.

Shawn Hays, Shanna's younger brother, competed in the 11 and under division. He placed first in showmanship, first in western pleasure, first in horsemanship, second in reining and sixth in barrels. He won the all-around of the 11 and under age division. He was also runnerup for all three youth divisions at the show.

No-pass ruling means 'no-play' stitutionally guaranteed rights of free expression.

"A student's 'right' to participate in extracurricular activities does not rise to the same level as the right to free speech or free exercise of religion, both of which have long been recognized under our state and federal constitutions," the court said.

"We adopt the majority rule and hold that a student's right to participate in extracurricular activities per se does not rise to the level of a fundamental right under our constitution," the court said.

Kirby, the education commissioner, said it was "unfortunate" that sports and other extracurricular activities "were mired in uncertainty and controversy during the last months of the school year" by lawsuits over the no-pass, no-play rule.

"But now that the highest court in Texas has determined that the rule is constitutional, we believe both parents and will be able to accept the idea that the state of Texas wants its school children to concentrate first on academics," Kirby said.

The Supreme Court heard oral arguments in the case June 19 after it had blocked temporarily the Houston court order.

The attorney general asked the Supreme Court to take over the issue after State District Judge David Dunn of Orange upheld the rule and Ms. Anthony had overturned it.

The conflicting opinions briefly halted the state high school baseball playoffs, but the Supreme Court allowed them to proceed while considering the case.

"This rule resulted from the Legislature attempting to put the emphasis on the curriculum in our school, not the frills," David Richards, first assistant attorney general, had told the Supreme Court.

"This rule says the business of Texas schools is education. If a student passes his work he can enjoy the frills, if he does not pass, he cannot," Richards had said. "We do not see it as a form of punishment."

Attorney Anthony Sheppard, representing 45 unhappy students and parents in the Houston area, had said the "rule impinges on the fundamental rights of students. It affects more than sports. We do not think regulation of extracurricular activities is a compelling state interest."

Sheppard said the rule also violated freedom of speech guarantees, because a failing student would not be able to take part in student government, work on the school newspaper or take part in debate competition.

Out-of-stater crashes here

A South Carolina man escaped injury in a one-vehicle traffic mishap northwest of Snyder Tuesday afternoon.

According to Department of Public Safety accident reports, Ricky Chapman of Columbia was driving a 1985 Ford north bound on U.S. Highway 84 around 5 p.m. when he lost control of the vehicle. It swerved across the median and back across the highway before coming to rest against a fence on the north side of the highway.

Highway patrolman investigating the mishap say Chapman was apparently trying to avoid hitting a large dog or coyote when he lost control of the car.

Two West 30th St. thefts reported to SO deputies

Scurry County sheriff's officers are investigating two misdemeanor theft reports filed Tuesday, both occurring on West 30th St.

Ricky Starnes of 3003 41st St. filed a report involving a missing garden roto-tiller at 8:08 a.m.

He told investigators the tiller had been taken sometime over the past weekend from a garden lot he owns on West 30th St. Its value is set at $700.

Don Franklin, who lives on West 30th St., filed the second report at 9 a.m.

He told investigators he and his family had returned home Monday evening to discover that his son's BMX-brand bicycle had been stolen from the car port at the residence.

This theft is also thought to have taken place over the past weekend.

Muleshoe Center is foster home

MULESHOE, Texas (AP) — Thousands of mustangs that have overpopulated western range lands in recent years are now making Muleshoe, Texas, their foster home while they wait for adoptive owners.

Randall and Paula Carr, two Tennesseans who handle surplus horses and burros for the U.S. Bureau of Land Management, have opened a holding pen for 2,000 mustangs here.

The horses will later will be sold to new owners nationwide from three adoption centers.

"The ranchers in several western states have been asking the government to take the overpopulated horses off the land because there just isn't enough grass to go around," Mrs. Carr said.

Anti-nuke movement divided against itself

TOKYO (AP) — Forty years after the atomic bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Japan's two largest anti-nuclear groups continue their battle against the bomb and against each other.

On one side is the Japan Conference Against Atomic and Hydrogen Bombs, known as Gensuikin, which is supported by the Japan Socialist Party and representing about 50 anti-nuclear groups. Its similarly named rival is the Japan Council Against Atomic and Hydrogen Bombs, or Gensuikyo, backed by the Japan Communist Party and encompassing 60 member groups.

Although the two groups share the basic goal of abolishing nuclear weapons, they disagree on almost everything else.

"What started out as a signature campaign somewhere along the line became a movement centered around political parties and large organizations," laments Manami Suzuki, who handles international liaison for Gensuikin.

The original Gensuikyo was established in 1955, when a group of Tokyo housewives initiated an anti-nuclear signature campaign following the death of a Japanese fishing boat crewman whose ship was contaminated by fallout from a 1954 American nuclear test on Bikini Island in the Pacific. That year the first annual Atomic Disaster Anniversary World Conference was held in Hiroshima.

In the early 1960s, ideological disputes split Gensuikyo into several camps. The largest faction, formed by Japan Socialist Party members, withdrew and formed Gensuikin.

The socialist group opposed atomic experiments by all nations while the communists contended that nuclear testing by socialist nations was for defense purposes.

More recently, disagreements have ranged from policies toward nuclear power to the wording on banners at demonstrations.

For the 40th anniversary of history's only atomic attacks, Gensuikyo is launching a large signature campaign to support an "Appeal from Hiroshima and Nagasaki for a Total Ban and Elimination of Nuclear Weapons." According to Gensuikyo General Secretary Koichi Akamatsu, nine million Japanese have already signed the appeal.

Gensuikin wants nothing to do with the campaign. "What do they think they can accomplish with such a statement at this stage?" argued Ms. Suzuki, who said the appeal is worded so loosely that even conservatives can support it.

Gensuikin, which claims 2 million members, is instead preparing an international forum for A-bomb victims at this year's world conference. Its definition of victims includes nuclear power plant workers and native Americans living near uranium mines. Last year the conference drew 20,000 people from around the world to Hiroshima.

Ms. Suzuki said the politicizing of the anti-nuclear movement has dulled the passion which gave rise to the original signature campaign.

The Peace Memorial Museum had 115,000 visitors in 1955, the year it opened, 931,000 by 1970 and almost 1.5 million in 1984. In the latter two years about 5 percent were foreigners.

Seek juror's ouster

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Defense attorneys for three men being investigated by a Jefferson County grand jury have asked a state district judge to remove a grand juror, but the judge refused.

Attorneys for state Sen. Carl Parker, Daniel Jacob Lee and David Earl requested that Judge Jack King disqualify Isaac Henry Jr. as a juror because he works as a jailer for Jefferson County Sheriff R.E. Culbertson.

The attorneys contend Culbertson told an October 1984 holdover grand jury that "probable cause" existed to bring indictments against the trio.

King said Tuesday he wouldn't remove Henry from the 12-member jury he selected to continue an 18-month investigation on drug trafficking and promotion of pornography in Jefferson County. The judge, however, did ask Henry to relinquish his position as foreman, the Beaumont Enterprise reported.

Pat Black, Johnson's attorney, said he wanted Henry on the witness stand to question him about events leading to an early-morning July 4 hearing involving a prison inmate who had written letters to the sheriff's department about Johnson and Parker. King, at the request of two attorneys, went to the county jail late July 3 seeking the inmate, Robert Earl Wilkey, who has since returned to prison.

Man tries to corral critters

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — A cunning trapper is ridding an Odessa park of too many prairie dogs, making a little money on the side and perpetuating his reputation as a man who can catch anything.

In fact, Chester Antilley catches prairie dogs barehanded.

"I put water in the holes and, hopefully, get them up near the top," Antilley said. "I try to scare them to get them up. They're pretty difficult to catch."

His way, Antilley explained, is the most humane.

And although he makes money by selling the animals to zoos and interested pet lovers, parks department adminstrators say Antilley is doing them a favor, too.

Sherwood Park has as many as 1,000 prairie dogs, and park officials say that more than half of them need to be removed. Although a two-acre fenced area is alloted for the prairie dogs, athletic leagues have complained that baseball and soccer fields and jogging paths are littered with holes dug by escaped dogs.

"They've been there probably since the park was conceived. We don't want to get rid of all of them, but we do have to control them," park superintendent Doug Kupper told the Odessa American.
