Airline suspends flights

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines, which lost $109 million in the first eight months of this year, announced Saturday it is filing for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy law and trimming its domestic routes in an effort to turn itself around.

Frank Lorenzo, chief executive officer and president of the nation's eighth-largest carrier, said domestic flights would be temporarily suspended beginning at 6 p.m. CDT Saturday until 12:01 a.m. Tuesday.

Continental said its international services did not file for reorganization and would not be affected.

The airline, troubled by a lingering mechanics' strike, had asked its 12,000 employees to grant $150 million in wage concessions. About 65 percent of the employees were laid off Saturday, although some eventually will be recalled, Lorenzo said.

Continental became the second major airline to file for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws. Braniff International, also a Texas-based carrier, shut down last year.

Continental will return to the air Tuesday with flights to only 25 U.S. destinations, including New York, Washington, Los Angeles, Denver, Houston, San Francisco and Chicago, Lorenzo said. It had flown to 78 places in the United States. The airline's 28 foreign routes are being cut to 25, with three Mexican destinations being dropped.

"We will implement a strategic plan to make Continental the largest of the low-cost airlines — a carrier that operating from superb facilities and with a long tradition of fine service will be able to achieve a unique niche in the nation's air transporation systems," Lorenzo said.

"We have chosen to go to the courts to restructure," he said. "We have strong positions in cash, equipment and facilities."

Specific marketing plans for the new airline will be unveiled Monday, he said.

The action was needed for the company to "remain alive and healthy in the years to come," he said.

The company has lost $400 million over the last four years and has $650 million in debts.

The decision to file for reorganization was made Saturday at a meeting of the board of directors in Houston.

"We tried very hard," Lorenzo said. "We started in August, trying to convince employees that we couldn't continue the way we were."

Debbie Powell, a negotiator representing the 2,800 unionized flight attendants, said, "At this point, we're still conferring with our attorneys."

The filing "certainly didn't come as a total surprise," she said, adding, "We have a lot of questions and very few answers."

Meanwhile, at Houston's Intercontinental Airport, hundreds of stranded Continental Airlines ticketholders waited in long lines to try to arrange other means to reach their destinations.

"We're telling passengers we'll be back in operation on Tuesday," said M.W. Blackburn, a Continental Airlines supervisor. "We're telling them there are other carriers who will help them."

But finding carriers who would treat the Continental tickets as valid was a matter of luck, Blackburn said.

"Some domestic carriers are honoring them and some aren't. You just have to go and check," he said.

On Wednesday, Stephen M. Wolf resigned as president of Continental, saying his was "a personal decision" and not related to the airline's financial problems or ongoing mechanics' strike.

Lorenzo, then the airline's chairman and chief executive officer, assumed Wolf's duties. Lorenzo's company, Texas Air Corp., won a battle last year for control of Continental, which then merged with Texas International Airlines.

Young Midlander recalls plane crash

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

While Saturday slipped by without much notice for most Midlanders, one 21-year-old man will never forget Sept. 24.

A year ago, the warm September day fell on a Friday. It began as any other day for a young computer technician who worked at Albertsons' supermarket. But by afternoon, Randy Sellars was skirting death.

On Sept. 24, 1982, a cancelled lunch appointment prompted the 20-year-old to return to his apartment at Garfield Street and Whitmire Boulevard.

It was close to 2 p.m. when he ran outside after hearing the blast. It was then Sellars was hit by the wall of fire which swept from the exploding plane.

About 1:45 p.m. a twin-engine Beechcraft Baron took off from Air Park. The light aircraft, transporting two prisoners back to Louisiana, lost power. It clipped the roof of Building Six at the north Midland apartment complex, cartwheeled and came to rest in the parking lot near Sellar's apartment.

While Sellars survived the wall of flaming gasoline which burned 85 percent of his body, a Baton Rouge, La., man died in October from the 70 percent burns he suffered. The 42-year-old Ken Hornsby, who was an unauthorized passenger on the plane when it crashed, was a part-time employee of Lousiana Aircraft.

Three others — 41-year-old pilot Alex Sheets and two prisoners, Bernell Bell Jr. and George Gibbs, both 30, — were transported to Louisiana hospitals shortly after the crash and survived.

Since that day, Sellars underwent four successful skin-grafts and was awarded $2.4 million as an out-of-court settlement for a $6 million damage suit against the state of Louisiana and the Louisiana Department of Corrections.

"It's been a heck of a way to get popular," said Sellars, reflecting on the crash. "I would rather have done it on my own."

Sellars receives emergency aid following last year's plane crash.

Sellars, who sat in his newly-acquired restaurant Saturday, still wears long-sleeved shirts. He's self-conscious about the scarred skin on his chest, arms and hands. But he says physically and mentally he's "doing all right."

Sellars, along with his roommate, Byron Redden, bought into the Rob Scott's Polo Grounds Restaurant about 2½ months ago.

He's purchased a 320 SL Mercedes, but also drives his Buick Regal which required only minimal repairs after the crash.

"I'd give all the money back to be back one year and one day right where I was," he said. "When everything was first happening (at the crash), I thought that was it. I thought I was dead."

Sellars has moved into a townhouse "far from Air Park." While he regards the crash as a "freak accident," he said he couldn't ever "live in that area again."

According to a news release from Warwick Apartment Manager Bonnie Tadlock, the damaged 24-unit buidling has been rebuilt and leasing of the building is going well.

"Many of the persons who have leased with us regard the crash as no more than a topic of coverstation," she said. "They realize it was just a freak accident."

Although he doesn't readily admit it, Sellars said he was "a little superstitious" on the anniversary of the crash.

"I usually leave about noon," he said. "But today (Saturday), I'm staying right here."

However, Sellars has returned to his former apartment since the crash. "I've driven by," he said. "In fact, I've driven in the parking lot and just sat there, picturing where the plane was — it happened so fast.

"I'll always be bitter about the whole accident," he said. "But it's helped me grow up. I can see now that anything can happen and you can be killed anytime."

Sellars will continue his trips to Lubbock General Hospital every three or four months for check-ups. Also, the doctors intend to repair his hands where the skin has webbed his fingers.

While time has healed his body, Sellars said he can't forget the pain.

Sellars received third-degree burns on his hands and the back of his right leg and his forearms received second-degree burns.

He won't forget the daily 2½ to 3-hour physical therapy treatments at Midland Memorial Hospital, or the weekly trips to Lubbock.

"The worst was the whirlpools," Sellars said. "That's where I'd soak and they'd use these brushes to scrub all the dead skin."

A year later, Sellars said people are still curious when they recognize him. "But that's OK. I like people and I owe a lot to Midland."

He's kept the boxes of letters and cards received from old friends and concerned Midlanders. And Sellars said he appreciates "the way Midland has stood behind me and I wish I had a way to repay everybody back."

Weinberger labels Soviets 'corrupt'

TOKYO (AP) — U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger on Sunday branded the Soviet government "totally corrupt" and urged Japan to boost its defense efforts to protect against Soviet aggression.

In a news conference shortly before he left for Peking, Weinberger said the Soviet downing of a South Korean airliner north of Japan "revealed the paranoia of a corrupt governmental system which occupies Japanese territory illegally."

Since the end of World War II the Soviet Union has occupied four Japanese-claimed islands east of Sakhalin, where the Korean Air Lines jumbo jet with 269 people aboard was shot down by Soviet missiles on Sept. 1.

Weinberger said that without U.S.-Japanese security ties, "all of Japanese territory would be subject to Soviet blackmail and indeed the entire Pacific basin would shortly be in that condition."

He said "the economic gravity in the world is rapidly shifting to the Pacific," and has prompted a massive Soviet military buildup in the Far East.

He said Japan and the United States had endorsed a defense policy under which Japan would be responsible for defending its own territory and its sea lanes out to 1,000 miles.

Weinberger said he appreciated efforts by Japan to increase its defense budget despite a government program aimed at reducing huge budgetary deficits. But he warned the increase "still will not enable Japan to achieve its self defense goals as early as may be made necessary by world events."

On Saturday, Weinberger assured the Japanese that Asia would not be sacrificed in any U.S.-Soviet accord reached at the Geneva talks on reducing intermediate-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

He met in Tokyo with Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe and Defense Agency Director General Kazuo Tanikawa, assuring them there was no change in the U.S. principle of seeking a global, balanced and verifiable solution to the missile issue, Foreign Ministry officials said.

U.S. officials in the Weinberger party said he told Tanikawa that many citizens in the United States and elsewhere were willing to reach an agreement "at any cost," but that they failed to acknowledge that the Soviet SS-20 intermediate-range missile is global, and that all SS-20s must be counted no matter which theater they are in.

Japan is deeply worried that the Kremlin will transfer missiles from Europe to Asia in the event of a Geneva accord. Japan said last week it had assurances from Washington that modifications in American bargaining positions in Geneva would not mean acceptance of the 108 SS-20s targeted on Asia.

State Sen. Lloyd Doggett, right of Austin, is sworn in as Texas' governor-for-a-day in a ceremony Saturday on the front steps of the State Capitol. Administering the oath is Dist. Judge Raul Longoria of Edinburg.

Doggett sworn in as governor for a day

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, was sworn in as "governor for a day" Saturday, and as his first official act, proclaimed it "Equal Opportunity Day" in Texas.

Doggett, as president pro tem of the state Senate, is next in line behind Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby to serve as governor in the absence of Gov. Mark White. Traditionally, the governor and lieutenant governor arrange to be out of the state at the same time to set up the governor for a day ceremony.

Doggett, 36, who has served 10 years in the state Senate and is now trying to win the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, took the oath of office from State District Judge Raul Longoria of Edinburg amid the release of hundreds of blue balloons.

A University of Texas band played "Texas, Our Texas," and state officials, including Treasurer Ann Richards and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, made speeches praising Doggett.

"He's the best thing to hit Texas since the twist-off cap," quipped Hightower.

Five found dead

KILGORE, Texas (AP) — Five people abducted during a robbery at a fast-food restaurant were found shot to death Saturday on a rural East Texas road, police said.

The bodies of the three men and two women were discovered about 9:30 a.m. by a Henderson Clay Products employee who was checking an oil well about 15 miles south of Kilgore, police said.

Rusk County sheriff's investigator William Brown said four of the bodies were lying in the middle of an oil lease road off FM 323 between Overton and Henderson. "You couldn't drive on past where they were without driving over them," he said.

A woman was on the side of the road about 30 yards away from the others but "they were all lying face down and shot in the back of the head," he said.

"Why she was separate from the others I have no idea, unless she tried to run," he said.

Authorities had been searching for the five since Friday night, when a woman went to the Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant to find it empty and blood-stained.

Kilgore police spokesman Jerdy Wolverton said the restaurant manager estimated about $2,000 was missing from the restaurant. Howard Bailey, a Kentucky Fried Chicken supervisor in Nacogdoches, said restaurant employees failed to make a scheduled bank deposit earlier in the day.

The bodies, which were sent to Dallas for autopsies and positive identification, tentatively were identified as the restaurant's assistant manager, 37-year-old Mary Tyler, employees Opie Hughes, 39, and Joey Johnson, 20; and David Maxwell, 20, and Monty L. Landers, 20, who were visiting the restaurant.

Woman picks up pieces of puzzling life

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The puzzling obsession of Shelly Shelton Melton, The Puzzle Precedent president, spelled the end of her marriage, overflows at least one room of her spacious condo and costs her, she conservatively estimates, about $100 an hour.

Ms. Melton, 27, is a jigsaw puzzle fanatic — "more so than most," she says.

She works on at least one puzzle a day, often more, and currently is trying to set a world's record by completing a 52,000-piece handcrafted wooden puzzle which cost her about $60,000.

"My family thinks I'm crazy, but they're used to it," she said. "My friends, fortunately, know about my puzzling. I never used to talk about it. I mean, what do you say at a cocktail party: "Wow, I worked four Springboks today'?"

THE ATTRACTIVE BLONDE acquired the Melton from her former husband, a Midland oilman who she says couldn't live with puzzles strewn everywhere and a wife who spent all day putting together jigsaw pieces rather than a nice dinner.

"It was him or them - and I chose the puzzles," she said. "You shouldn't have to choose between the people you love and the things you love."

She had no trouble picking up the pieces after the marriage dissolved, she said, because she and her ex-husband are still friends.

"Every time he would come home from work, I would have a puzzle on the dining room table, one over there, another there and even one in the kitchen," she recalled.

"ALSO, I WAS SPENDING a lot of money on them," she said. "Even when we went on trips, the first thing I would do would be to hit a new place in hopes of finding a puzzle I hadn't worked. We went to Hilton Head, this gorgeous resort, and I spent my time puzzling."

Ms. Melton doesn't jibe with the mental picture conjured up by confessions of a puzzle addict. She's gregarious, outgoing and frank about her obsession. She makes it sound like a lot of fun, too.

For fellow devotees, she publishes The Puzzle Precedent, a bi-monthly newsletter that has some 500 subscribers.

"I called it that because I wanted to be Shelly Shelton Melton, the Puzzle Precedent president," she said. "That has a nice ring to it."

AP Laserphoto

Shelly Shelton Melton stands amidst jigsaw puzzles that occupy one room of her San Antonio condo. Ms. Melton works on at least one puzzle a day, and is trying to set a record by completing a 52,000-piece wooden puzzle.

MS. MELTON STARTED WORKING puzzles at age 3, when her father gave her a brightly colored puzzle of the United States. She was hooked.

"After that, Mother would give me one for Christmas every year. I would look for it first thing," she said. "It isn't hard to find a puzzle when you shake wrapped packages."

Seasoned puzzlers, eager for anything that makes a jigsaw harder, each have their own techniques, but one cardinal rule holds supreme — looking at the picture on the puzzle's box is "cheating," she said.

Ms. Melton assimilates pieces by color, possessing an almost uncanny memory for those of the same hue. And no, she said, she doesn't work the border first. Such a conventional practice would slow her down.

ONE WHOLE ROOM OF Ms. Melton's downtown condominium, which overlooks the San Antonio River, is devoted to her puzzles. Completed jigsaws are plastered floor-to-ceiling, and boxes and boxes of puzzles are stacked ceiling-high in one corner. Some she gives away to hospitals and nursing homes.

One of her more expensive acquisitions is a $1,700 small, silver puzzle of the United States, with many of the states represented by an indigenous animal - a whale for California, an alligator for Florida and an armadillo, naturally, for Texas.

The giant, record-breaking puzzle she's working on now is drawn from the paintings of Coopers-Eden, an illustrator of children's books. Stave Puzzles in Norwich, Vermont, is sending her the puzzle pieces in increments and she's already strung together about 10,000. The completed puzzle will stretch 22-by-8 feet.

HALLMARK, MAKERS OF Springbok puzzles, liked Ms. Melton's personality and record attempt enough to send her out on an eight-city tour that ended in August with the National Jigsaw Puzzle Championships in Athens, Ohio. This year, she placed 17th, down from her sixth-place finish in 1982.

Ms. Melton said she's lucky to have discovered something she likes to do so much.

"How many people my age know what they want to do?" she said. "I think it's great."

She also doesn't want to make the same mistake twice, so she very carefully tests the dates she brings to her condominium, which she calls "the Puzzle Palace."

"I had a date the other night," she said, "and I really liked this guy. He said, 'Is it true that you don't want to give up the puzzling?' He didn't understand.

"Well, I'm not going to date him anymore and it's a shame," she said. "I can't be asked to give my puzzles up. That's what happened with my marriage and I don't want it to happen again."

Occupations added

More than 275 new occupations have been added to the Dictionary of Occupational Titles by the Labor Department to keep up with the job market's changing needs. Included are laserist, solar-energy systems designer, vector control assistant, radiopharmacist, keymodule-assembly-machine tender, ultrasonic tester and software technician.

CRIME STOPPERS

Program helps reduce crime by 3 percent

With over 6,000 criminals arrested and over $45 million recovered in stolen property and narcotics, Crime Stoppers is working for Texas. Through financial support, volunteer work and the use of telephones, the citizens of Texas have made Crime Stoppers an effective means of stopping crime in their neighborhoods.

The crime rate in Texas declined 3 percent over the first half of 1983, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety. Widespread citizen participation in Crime Prevention and Crime Stoppers programs has been cited as a reason for this decrease.

A Crime Stoppers program is a non-profit organization which is supported through private contributions from civic clubs, businesses and concerned citizens. Crime Stoppers requires participation of law enforcement officials, media representatives and citizens to succeed.

Today, Texas can boast of 96 local Crime Stoppers programs — over one-fourth of the programs which exist in the nation.

Governor Mark White, The Crime Stoppers Advisory Council and local Crime Stoppers programs are working hard to ensure that the war on crime is successful. But the fight against crime in Texas needs the help of its citizens.

Citizens with information on felony criminal activity, such as names, addresses, locations of contraband, vehicles and license numbers, are asked to call their local Crime Stoppers program or Texas Crime Stoppers toll-free at 1-800-252-TIPS anytime, day or night.

Cash rewards are available for information leading to the arrest and felony indictment of criminals in Texas. Citizens are not asked their names and will be given a unique code number for reward purposes.

Since the first Crime Stoppers program was established in Albuquerque, N.M., in 1976, Crime Stoppers nationally has been responsible for solving more than 33,000 felony cases, recovering more than $130 million in stolen property and narcotics, and convicting over 10,000 suspects brought to trial.

Crime Stoppers across the nation solves a major crime every 31 minutes of operation and recovers over $7,000 in stolen property and narcotics per hour.

Governor White and the Crime Stoppers Advisory Council is asking communities to ban together to build a Texas which is free from the fear of crime.

Mine may produce radiation

AUSTIN (AP) — A planned lignite strip-mining operation in Fayette County could pollute air and water with radioative metal, opponents of the project say.

The Austin American-Statesman reported in Saturday's editions that the Fayette County Resource Watch plans to issue a report saying at least 61 million pounds of uranium could enter the water and air if the low-quality coal production project goes ahead.

"We think we have discovered something that brings into question the wisdom of doing this mining," said Jim Blackburn, a Houston attorney representing mine opponents.

The Fayette County Resource Watch wants the Texas Railroad Commission to declare parts of the county unsuitable for lignite strip mining.

The mine is part of the Fayette Power Project, scheduled get under way in 1988. The Lower Colorado River Authority plans to mine 3.2 million tons of lignite yearly to fuel the Fayette 3 power plant.

The city of Austin has agreed to participate in 50 percent of the Fayette 3 plant and has scheduled a bond election on Oct. 22.

Ralph Thompson, public relations director for the LCRA, disputed the group's findings and said the mine would be in compliance with environmental regulations.

"We have spent a great deal of money on experts who have concluded that we will not cause any environmental problems," Thompson said. "We are confident those experts are correct."

The dirt and rock over the Fayette County lignite contains uranium in concentrations from 170 to 2,540 parts per million, according to a study by Houston consultant Mark Matson, the American-Statesman said.

Highs ranged from 88 at Wink and Wichita Falls to 78 at Guadalupe Pass.

Earthquake noted in Colorado

DINOSAUR NATIONAL MONUMENT, Utah (AP) — A moderately strong earthquake jolted an area 15 miles northeast of here in northwestern Colorado on Saturday, but no injuries or damage were reported, authorities said.

The quake, which measured 4.2 on the Richter scale, occurred at 10:57 a.m. in the remote, sparsely populated area near the Utah-Colorado border, said Walter Arabasz, assistant director of the University of Utah's seismograph station in Salt Lake City.

"As far as anyone can determine, there's no indication of its being felt by anyone," Arabasz said.

How to 'phase out' loans debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Finance ministers of the world's major industrial nations agreed Saturday that the increased access of developing nations to loan money from the International Monetary Fund will have to be "phased out" in the future, but there was clear disagreement over how the reductions should be made.

Ministers from the rich and poor nations met with reporters after caucusing separately in preparation for this week's annual meeting of the World Bank and the IMF, the world's two largest lending agencies.

The 146-member IMF faces a serious shortfall of funds by the end of the year. Although the developing nations argue they need continued, or increased, access to IMF loans to help them out of their economic morass, the richer members are concerned that the agency retain enough funds to be a viable lending organization.

French Finance Minister Jacques Delors, representing the 10 largest industrial powers, said the group discussed a proposal by Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan to sharply limit the developing nations' access to IMF loans.

Regan has suggested that the lending rules of the agency be changed so that countries would not be able to borrow as much against their contributions, or quotas, which represents the amount of money they have deposited with the IMF. The Americans wanted to reduce the yearly limit from 150 percent of each member's quota to 102 percent, with a three-year limit reduced from 450 percent to 325 percent.

But developing nations, represented by India's IMF executive director Ram Malhotra, attempted to fight such plans, calling them "unrealistic."

"I really think the consequences of such a cut would be serious," he told reporters.

Delors said those who favored the 102 percent position were in a "minority," and that most countries favored a higher figure, but that there was no firm agreement on a new system.

Talking things over prior to a meeting of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund are U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald Regan, left, and Federal Reserve Voard Chairman Paul Volcker.

A communique issued by the industrialized nations said the policy of "enlarged access," to the IMF loans was a "temporary" one that "should be phased out gradually."

A meeting of the IMF's policy-making interim committee was scheduled for Sunday, and representatives of both rich and poor nations will continue to discuss the matter, Delors said.

Such disagreements are crucial to nations like Brazil, leading the debtors with $90 billion in loans. Other major debtors include Mexico, $83 billion in debt, and Argentina, which owes $40 billion. Together, they represent nearly one-third of the developing nations' $750 billion debt.

West German Finance Minister Gerhard Stoltenberg told reporters before the sessions that the industrialized powers have agreed "in principle" to back the U.S. position of cutting back on loan access, but that the precise figures have not yet been worked out.

The main argument at the meetings is about money — how much more members ought to chip in to keep the agencies afloat, and how much nations are able to use to help solve their financial woes.

The IMF, a key actor in helping solve the international debt crisis over the past year, is a lender of last resort to nations with severe balance-of-payments problems that cannot get private loans. The World Bank backs development projects in the world's poorest nations.

The IMF has called a halt to making new loans because of a shortage of funds, and World Bank officials are concerned over the unwillingness of members — such as the United States — to keep up contributions.

An example is the U.S. position on the World Bank's loans through the International Development Association, its arm for providing long-term, interest free loans to the poorest nations.

The United States has cut back on a $1.1 billion Carter administration promise and wants to provide only $750 million yearly. This would bring overall contributions to IDA to only $9 billion, whereas Word Bank officials are asking for $16 billion.

Also of concern is the delay by the U.S. Congress to approve an $8.5 billion increase for the IMF's lending pool, part of a $32 billion increase agreed upon by the members last year.

Because of the agreed-upon increase in the lending pool, developing nations had hoped to get larger slices of the pie, but the United States is balking and actually would like to hold firm, and then gradually cut back, on loan access.

The United States' position on IMF and World Bank contributions is a key one, given that it is the largest supporter and its ante often sets a standard for the industrialized powers.

Representatives of the top 10 economic nations and the leading 24 developing lands met Saturday in separate, closed-door caucus sessions. Finance ministers from the most powerful — the United States, West Germany, Britain, Japan and France — held their traditional private dinner session Friday evening.

They come together as fears have eased somewhat that the $750 billion debt of the developing nations would lead to defaults by major borrowers and a collapse of the international financial system. Instead, IMF and World Bank officials project that the debt crisis has been managed sucessfully over the past year, and if the world economy is able to continue to rebound, most predict the debt problem will ease, but only gradually.

Battleship arrives off Beirut coast

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The U.S. battleship New Jersey ts huge guns capable of hurling a one-ton shell 20 miles, arrived off the coast today as Lebanese troops battled Moslem and Druse militiamen with artillery and machine guns.

The arrival of the 887-foot vessel vastly increased the firepower of the U.S. naval force off Beirut. U.S. Navy officials said the New Jersey will be able to shell anti-government artillery positions that have hammered targets around the U.S. Marine peacekeeping force, based at the international airport, and other parts of the capital.

The battleship, which steamed from the Pacific to join a dozen other U.S. naval vessels already off the coast, carries nine 16-inch guns, 12 five-inch guns and an array of other weaponry. Some of the other ships already have shelled anti-government positions overlooking Beirut with five-inch guns.

The New Jersey served in World War II and the Korean and Vietnam wars, and is the first American battleship to operate in the eastern Mediterranean in nearly a quarter century. Under the command of Capt. Richard D. Milligan of Matawan, N.J., it carries a crew of 72 officers and 1,480 enlisted men.

On shore, the U.S. Marines abandoned two checkpoints Saturday to avoid getting involved in the fighting as Lebanon's civil war spread from the central mountains to Beirut's southern slums.

Marine spokesman Warrant Officer Charles Rowe said a Marine CH-46 helicopter came under ground fire while flying over the slum fighting and responded with .50 caliber machine gun bursts. He said the chopper was not hit.

Police said at least 19 people were killed and 48 wounded in shootouts between Lebanese troops and Shiite Moslems in the slums, in mountain fighting with Syrian-backed Druse warriors and in a Druse shelling of Christian-populated east Beirut.

No Marines were reported hurt, but an Italian member of the multinational force patrolling Beirut was wounded in cross-fire, a spokesman for the Italian contingent said.

Cease-fire talks remained stalled and Syria warned the multinational force against further involvement in the 21-day-old conflict.

Saturday's fighting came one day after Druse militiamen in the mountains and Shiite militiamen in southern Beirut wounded four Marines in an artillery barrage.

The Shiite Moslem militia has long controlled Beirut's southern slums. Though sympathizing with the Druse, the Shiites remained largely neutral in the civil war until Friday, when Amal gunners bombarded Lebanese army and Marine positions in support of Druse militias fighting the army in the mountains.

Residents of Shiite-held neighborhoods said the militia joined the fight after Christian militiamen erected checkpoints in mixed Moslem-Christian areas nearby. Southern Beirut is believed to be a major route for anti-government Druse attempting to slip into the capital.

Government troops responded Saturday by pounding Shiite positions in the southern slums of Hay el-Sellum and Bourj el-Barajneh with hundreds of rounds from 155mm artillery and tank cannon. Shiites retaliated with grenades, mortars and machine guns.

A truce with the Shiites was declared, but collapsed hours later when Shiites claimed Christian militiamen had murdered a group of Moslems in the Mreije neighborhood south of the capital. Reporters in the area could not confirm the claim.

A weeping 12-year-old boy, who identified himself only as Mohammad, told Associated Press correspondent Scheherezade Faramarzi that three men in street clothes had shot his mother and others.

"I did not scream, I only cried," he said. "I had seen my mother dead in front of me."

Western military observers said southern Beirut could rapidly become a second front, tying down the Lebanese army in the mountains and the capital, and could further endanger the 1,200 Marines deployed around the airport.

In Damascus, where cease-fire talks have stalled, the state-run Syrian newspaper Tishrin said that if the multinational force becomes further embroiled in the civil war, its withdrawal "will become a basic condition for any solution in Lebanon."

Referring to U.S. naval bombardment of the mountains and a French air strike on militia positions, Tishrin said the force had become "a tool of killing and destruction, and a party directly involved in the fighting against Lebanon and its people."

"Soon they will find out that Syria means what it says, and will retaliate against American threats," Tishrin said.

The multinational force is comprised of Marines, French paratroopers, British troops and Italian soldiers. It originally was sent at the Lebanese government's request a year ago to keep the peace and help the army reassert control after the Israeli invasion and subsequent evacuation of Palestinian guerrillas from the Lebanese capital.

But the U.S. and French contingents have become increasingly involved in fighting Syrian-backed militias and their Palestinian allies since a civil war broke out Sept. 4 after the Israeli pullback from the mountains adjacent to Beirut. The French claim self-defense; the Marines say they are helping the Lebanese army defend the capital.

In London, officials said Britain, France and Italy had begun their own bid to arrange a truce. British and French officials said the initiative was coordinated with cease-fire efforts involving the United States, Saudi Arabian mediators and Syrian officials in Damascus.

In northern Lebanon, a PLO spokesman said Syrian forces ordered Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas loyal to Yasser Arafat out of Lebanon's Bekaa Valley on Saturday and arrested three of his senior officers.

The spokesman, in Tripoli, said Syrian forces advancing on PLO loyalist positions with tanks and armored vehicles, took into custody Lt. Col. Ziad Al Atrash, supreme commander of the PLO chairman's Fatah forces in the Bekaa, Maj. Marwan Kayali and Maj. Abu Ahmed Ismail. The spokesman asked not to be identified by name.

He quoted senior Syrian officers as saying the "higher (Syrian) military command" had ordered troops loyal to Arafat to leave immediately for northern Lebanon, where the PLO leader has been staying for a week.

No explanations were given by the Syrian authorities, who expelled Arafat from Damascus three months ago.

War Powers debate focuses on Marine presence in Beirut

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the House and Senate near conclusive votes on a war powers resolution, the debate is focusing less on congressional authority over American troops in a war zone and more on whether the Marines now in Beirut should have been sent there in the first place.

It is unlikely that either the House or Senate will vote to withdraw the Marines who have been part of a four-nation peacekeeping force for a year.

But there is growing sentiment in both houses to either shorten the 18-month limit on the Marines' stay, which now is part of a Lebanon war powers compromise, or require the troops to come home in 60 days unless Congress votes approval for them to stay.

"I don't think the American people want the Marines there at all," said Rep. Toby Roth of Wisconsin, a conservative Republican, who also reflects the view of many liberal Democrats in the House and Senate.

"What do we gain by keeping the Marines there?" asked Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., "I think it is crazy what we are doing."

The war powers battle will begin in the Senate on Monday, and finish in the Democratic House at week's end.

In the Senate, nearly all the 45 Democrats including Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd Jr. of West Virginia are united against the compromise resolution. It was worked out among President Reagan, Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, and House Democratic leaders including Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.

And the division on the war powers issue unravels the usual political alliances in the House and Senate.

Conservative Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., for example, is known to have opposed sending troops to Lebanon in the first place, and Senate leadership sources said they are unsure whether he will support the compromise resolution.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., for another, has urged pulling the Marines out but opposes the War Powers Act as an unconstitutional infringement on the president's powers as commander in chief of U.S. military forces.

In an interview, Biden said he will lead an effort to invoke the original 1973 War Powers Act which requires the president to report to Congress on why U.S. troops are in a combat situation and gives the president 60 days to bring them back to the United States unless Congress decides they may stay.

Biden said until a few weeks ago that he believed the Marines were serving a useful role in Lebanon and that the argument was completely over a role for Congress under the Vietnam era War Powers Act.

When Biden came home, he said, his wife asked him, "Why are they there and what are they going to do."

Biden said he could give her no real answer, and while he is not yet ready to support an immediate pullout of the Marines, he can see only a widening involvement for the United States if they stay.

"This is much more analagous to Vietnam than Central America," Biden. said.

In the House, O'Neill is facing a growing rebellion among his Democratic troops. They are increasingly uneasy because of public sentiment reacting to the death of four Marines and injuries to more than 25 others in an increasingly-confused civil war in Lebanon, which also involves troops from Syria, the Palestininian Liberation Organization and Israel.

About 80 Democrats have agreed on an attempt to defeat the compromise agreement.

Marchers demand resignation of Philippines' president

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Thirty-thousand marchers in a southern city on Saturday demanded the resignation of President Ferdinand E. Marcos, and Manila's archbishop pleaded with him to accept a church compromise aimed at averting "a bloody revolution."

The rally in the opposition-governed city of Cagayan de Oro, 500 miles south of Manila, took place one day after riot squads in the capital broke up protests with tear gas, clubs and guns, injuring 14 people and jailing 53. The government said those arrested were charged with sedition and rebellion.

Marcos has come under increasing pressure to resign because of the Aug. 21 assassination of his chief rival Benigno Aquino, a former senator who had just returned from three years of voluntary exile in the United States. A growing number of Filipinos have accused the authoritarian regime of engineering the assassination, but he has denied involvement and refuses to quit.

A spokesman for Manila archbishop, Cardinal Jaime L. Sin, released the text of a proposal he said the religious leader handed Marcos late Friday and urged him to accept.

The spokesman said Sin described his proposal as "the last feasible alternative to avoid the violent confrontation and bloody revolution made possible by the temper of the times."

The proposal calls for a national council of government, church, opposition and private leaders to help Marcos achieve national reconciliation. It also calls for free elections, a free press and an independent judiciary.

There was no immediate reaction from Marcos but a church source who asked not to be identified said religious leaders were "cautiously optimistic" the president, a Roman Catholic, would accept the proposed council as an alternative to resignation.

The president said Thursday he would use force to handle demonstrations, after 11 people were killed and nearly 200 were injured in rioting Wednesday night around the presidential palace.

Despite the president's warnings, 30,000 people in Cagayan de Oro attended an anti-government rally and cheered calls from Aquino's mother, Aurora, for unity to "topple this government which is for graft, corruption, oppression and for killing the people."

She said that by "just actively seeking the truth ... in the murder of my son, we can already topple this government." She spoke as demonstrators shouted "Ninoy! Ninoy!" — the slain opposition leader's nickname.

Mrs. Aquino wept when Cagayan de Oro officials handed her a resolution renaming the city hall "Sen. Benigno S. Aquino Jr. Hall of Justice." The resolution also approved erecting an Aquino monument in front of the building.

Earlier, more than 5,000 of the demonstrators, led by acting Mayor Pablo Magtajas, marched through the city, clanging cans, chanting Aquino's nickname and waving placards demanding Marcos' resignation. The city is one of the few places run by opposition politicians.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Hill wants limit on contributions

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Former Attorney General John Hill is in the process of lining up support for his planned race for chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court.

Hill's hoping for contributions for that effort, but he's also hoping that the contributions won't be extremely large ones.

Hill says he's "still planning" to be a candidate for the chief justice post, although his schedule has been thrown a little behind due to negotiations between the Dallas law firm of Hughes & Hill and the Houston law firm of Fulbright & Jaworski on merger.

That effort has been taking up some of his time, Hill reports, and "I'd like to get that behind me and have a little more time to devote to the preliminary work of the campaign."

One initial effort, he says, will be to get a letter out "to friends in the legal community," seeking their support.

But one decision on the campaign already has been made, a decision not to accept large campaign contributions from any source.

His campaign, Hill reports, will have self-imposed limits, "probably around $5,000," on any single source of funding.

"We've had a lot of attention drawn during the past campaign season to what the public regards as excessive contributions from single sources," Hill says, adding that "I'm not trying to point to any one source."

But, he says, "if you have contributions of a size that is way out of the ordinary, I do think that's harmful...at least in the public perception."

Indeed, there have been some flaps in recent years about large campaign contributions, in judicial and non-judicial races.

One such flap resulted from the contributions by South Texas rancher Clinton Manges to Supreme Court races, with Manges giving $120,000 to Ted Z. Robertson, and $202,000 to Woodrow Wilson Bean (who lost to Charles Barrow).

Considerable controversy resulted, in fact, because lawsuits involving Manges were either before the court or on their way to the court.

Hill argues heavy dependence by any candidate on any one contributor, or group of contributors, can be harmful in the impression given to the public.

While $5,000 "is a lot of money," he says, "I don't think it's considered by the public to be excessive."

Some legislators also see large contributions as a problem — at least in judicial races — and attempts were made in the 1983 Legislature to limit the time during which contributions could be accepted (since the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that limits can't be placed on the size on contributions in campaigns without public financing).

The proposal would have allowed judges to accept contributions 13 months before a general election and three months afterwards, but judges testifying on the measure argued they have to raise funds throughout their terms to finance political efforts.

That argument didn't please some lawmakers and the situation doesn't please some judges.

Former Supreme Court Chief Justice Joe Greenhill once remarked that "We have to run just like the governor, but without the money."

In fact, $1 million for a Supreme Court race is a figure which was surprising a few years ago but which may be inadequate today.

Greenhill argues that the need for campaign funds puts a judge in the position of having to solicit funds or having funds solicited for him.

Over the years, arguments have been made for changing the process of selecting judges on a partisan basis with proposals for non-partisan elections, or for doing away with the election process and having judges appointed.

Texans haven't indicated any great support for having their judges hand-picked for them by a committee of lawyers, but the idea of a non-partisan election has drawn support, particularly in metropolitan areas.

Reagan devotes broadcast to arms control, cause of peace

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, traveling to the Voice of America headquarters to beam his message directly to the Soviet people, devoted his weekly radio broadcast today to arms control and peace.

"The subject is so important I want to share the message with a larger audience than I usually address each Saturday in the United States," Reagan said during the five-minute address.

He noted he will be addressing the United Nations General Assembly on Monday about "a cause people everywhere carry close to their hearts — the cause of peace."

In his radio address, he said, "I am attempting to speak directly to the people of the Soviet Union" as well as other countries around the globe. Our heartfelt wishes for peace."

He added: "We've had serious differences with the Soviet government, but we should remember that our sons and daughters have never fought each other in war. And if we Americans have our way, we never will.

"People don't make wars, governments do, and too many Soviet and American citizens have already shed too much blood because of violence by governments," he said. "The American people want less confrontation, and more communication and cooperation."

The president's words were simultaneously translated into eight languages: Russian, Ukranian, Romanian, Bengali, Lithuanian, Urdu (the official language of Pakistan) and Hausa, used in West Africa. The address was to be carried later in the 42 other languages in which VOA broadcasts.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said the broadcast was reaching Africa, Asia and Europe.

Reagan's plans to travel to the VOA to deliver the broadcast were kept secret until the last minute in an effort to prevent Soviet jamming.

Speakes said former President Dwight D. Eisenhower spoke from the same master control at VOA 25 years ago, using the same equipment. Recently, Reagan has decried the VOA's outmoded equipment and promised to help the government-operated radio station modernize.

'Reagan should be forced to invoke War Powers Act'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., seeking support from liberal Americans for Democratic Action, said Saturday that Congress should go to court if necessary to force President Reagan to invoke the War Powers Act and give it a role in determining how long U.S. Marines will stay in Lebanon.

In an appearance before the national board of the ADA, the candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination said, "The president, in my judgment, is today in violation of the law of the land."

Hart added that "if it requires Congress to go to the courts of the United States to get the president to comply with it, then so be it."

The administration has resisted notifying Congress under the War Powers Act that the Marines are in combat. Such a step, triggering provisions of the Vietnam War-era law, would set a time limit under which the troops would have to be withdrawn unless Congress approved their presence.

Congress is considering a resolution that would bypass the War Powers Act and approve the continued stationing of Marines in Lebanon for 18 months. That compromise has the approval of House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., and Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee.

Hart said he would approve of keeping the Marines in Lebanon as part of an international peacekeeping force "only if that force continues to be international and its membership be expanded beyond the three or four nations presently participating."

Hart called for making women's issues a major part of the presidential campaign debate and announced the appointment of Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., as co-chairman of his campaign.

Another Democratic presidential candidate, former Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota, told the group that one of his first steps as president would be to implement a unilateral nuclear freeze.

The 1972 Democratic presidential nominee, who announced his latest bid for the White House 11 days ago, said, "I would not request one single additional nuclear weapon of any kind."

McGovern said the United States already has sufficient nuclear weapons to destroy the Soviet Union.

He outlined seven other steps he would undertake as president. They were ending U.S. military involvement in Central America; withdrawing U.S. Marines from Lebanon; killing the MX missile; establishing a massive public works jobs program to rebuild the U.S. railway system; stopping payments to farmers not to produce; restoring the World War II G.I. bill to provide low-cost government guaranteed loans for veterans and non-veterans for education and job training, and a full commitment to equal rights.

Speaking to the group by telephone from Maine where he is campaigning for support in a straw poll next Saturday, Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Alan Cranston of California emphasized his commitment to negotiating a nuclear arms reduction.

"Lend me a hand in this campaign," said Cranston. "It could be that together we can transform the world."

Former Vice President Walter F. Mondale was scheduled to address the group Sunday.

The ADA is one of the last bastions of uncompromising liberalism at a time when most politicians are supporting cutbacks in the federal government's domestic role. Even Democratic critics of Reagan administration policies argue for the most part that the president has gone too far in his budget cuts, not that none should have been made.

Poll: Blacks may oppose Reagan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Blacks are more interested in the early stages of next year's presidential race than are whites, a reversal of previous voter attitudes, according to a Los Angeles Times poll released Saturday.

In addition, anger over the Reagan administration's reduction of social welfare programs may cause blacks to turn out on a large scale to vote against the president next year, according to the poll.

Only 11 percent of the black registered voters surveyed said they would support Reagan if he were pitted against either of the two Democratic frontrunners — former Vice President Walter Mondale or Sen. John Glenn of Ohio.

Forty percent of the blacks interviewed said they felt more politically motivated because of Reagan's actions, compared to only 30 percent of whites. In addition, 79 percent of the blacks said they were following the early stages of the presidential race, compared to 62 percent of the whites.

The leading choice of blacks for a Democratic candidate was civil rights leader Jesse Jackson, who has not yet announced whether he is running. The Times sad 30 percent favor Jackson, compared to 19 percent for Mondale and 7 percent for Glenn.

The survey was conducted earlier this month among 1,654 adults nationwide. Of those, 599 were blacks.

Workers vote to buy mill to save town

WEIRTON, W.Va. (AP) — "We Can Do It" was the rallying cry for steelworkers who faced the options of buying an aging steel mill and cutting their own wages — or losing their jobs and watching their Ohio Valley community wither.

"It was either buy or die," said Steve Olenick, a 33-year mill employee, after Weirton Steel's 8,000 workers voted Friday to commit themselves to millions of dollars of debt and create the nation's largest employee-owned company.

Weirton started as a company town, built to serve the mill. Now the townspeople, along with residents of nearby towns in Pennsylvania and Ohio, are reversing the relationship, taking on responsibilities previously left to mill founder Ernest T. Weir and his successors.

Most of those who voted Friday are third- and fourth-generation steelworkers who grew up assuming that lifetime jobs awaited them at the mill, company spokesman Chuck Cronin said.

"At one time, you couldn't get in unless you had a relative already working there," said Tom Paris, a millwright at Weirton Steel for 28 years. "But if you had one you about had a guaranteed job."

Paris' uncles accompanied Weir when he moved his steel operations from Clarksburg in 1909 and founded Weirton, now a town of 27,000 some 40 miles west of Pittsburgh with steel as its only industry.

In 1929 Weir and two partners founded National Steel and made it the parent of Weirton Steel, until recently National's biggest money-maker with $904 million in sales in 1982. The mill once employed 12,000.

But 18 months ago National, now called National Intergroup Inc., announced that the Weirton Division was not profitable enough and told its workers — 2,300 of them laid off — to buy the mill or prepare for its conversion to a finishing plant employing just 1,500. The price was $386 million.

The deal included roughly 19 percent pay and benefit reductions and barred raises until at least 1989. Employees could share in one-third of the company's profits once net worth reached $100 million, which a management-union study committee predicted would occur in 1985.

National asked that the $386 million be paid by 1998, including $74.7 million in cash up front and assumption of $192.3 million in debts.

It was "a good deal," said Independent Steelworkers union President Walter Bish. "Faced with the ultimatum National gave us, it's about the only thing to do."

Approval was announced by Bish's union and the Independent Guards union after 15 hours of voting. More than 85 percent of the eligible workers turned out to vote on contract concessions, a new pension plan and the Employee Stock Ownership Plan.

Weirton's workers had been among the highest paid in the industry, making $21,000 to $50,000 a year.

The stock plan was approved 6,208 to 774. The concessions were approved 6,146 to 872, and the pension plan passed 5,943 to 1,036.

"I couldn't see not voting for it," said Jim Brecht, who has worked at the mill for 35 years. "I have property here, and it wouldn't be worth anything without the mill. Weirton would be a ghost town, like in the West."

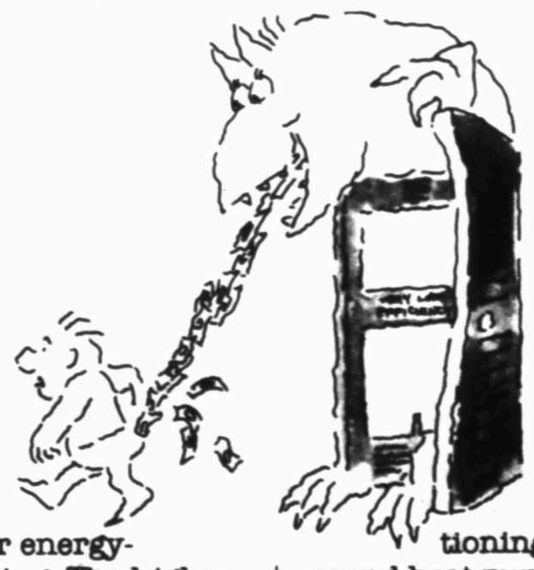
Is your heating/ cooling system gobbling up too much money?



If electric bills are taking too big a bite out of your budget, consider equipment with a higher energy-efficiency rating. The higher the rating, the less electricity it takes to heat and cool your home. And using less electricity will help hold down your bill.

High-efficiency equipment costs more, but when the equipment qualifies, Texas Electric will give you a bonus check to help pay the difference. So if you're planning to install a room unit, or replace central air conditioning or a year-round heat pump, ask your dealer about equipment that qualifies for a bonus check from Texas Electric.

And put money back in your pocket.

Marine recruiter sentenced

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A former U.S. Marine recruiter has been sentenced to six months in prison for trying to sell a stolen anti-tank weapon and ammunition to an undercover policeman.

Harold T. Kozlowski, 31, was sentenced Friday by U.S. District Judge Edward L. Filippine, who said he would recommend the time be served in work-release. Kozlowski's wife, Sandra, 35, was put on three years' probation and fined $250. Each pleaded guilty to possession of the unregistered weapon and could have faced 10-year prison terms.

Authorities said an undercover St. Louis police detective met the couple last October during a narcotics investigation and Kozlowski later offered to sell the detective an anti-tank weapon similar to a bazooka and 20 quarter-pound TNT charges for $500.

Death row inmate spared

ATLANTA (AP) — The case of a Colombian man who got a stay of execution one day before he was to die in the Florida electric chair has been sent back to lower courts by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Carlos Luis Arango, 47, convicted of the drug-related murder of a fellow Colombian in Miami, was spared the chair in May. Since then, his case has been through several courts.

The 11th Circuit ruled Friday that it wants the lower federal court and state courts to resolve Arango's allegation that police withheld evidence — a gun found outside his apartment. He claims the gun could have been dropped by one of three men he claims did the killing.

Ex-school teacher sentenced

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A former school teacher has been sentenced to three years in jail for injuring 15 people in a high-speed automobile rampage down the crowded Bourbon Street pedestrian mall a year ago.

Homer Robinson, 32, a former physical education instructor, pleaded guilty to 15 misdemeanor counts of negligent injury and two counts of battery on a police officer. He was sentenced Friday.

Prosecutors said Robinson drove into the French Quarter at about 70 mph, crashing through police barricades and hitting people for five blocks. Of those injured, one was hurt critically.

Woman receives probation

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — A woman who claims she killed her husband in self-defense has received five years' probation.

Laura Schindler Pohl, 56, said she killed Louis Schindler in 1978 when he told her, "The same thing that happened to June will happen to you." June was Schindler's first wife. In 1967, Schindler was convicted of murdering his first wife and served two years in prison before the conviction was overturned.

Santa Monica Superior Court Judge Charles Woodmansee ruled Friday that "no good purpose would be served" by sending Mrs. Pohl to prison. She testified she became anorexic and was taking Valium after her husband, a millionaire Bel-Air carpet remnant distributor, threatened to shoot her.

Court asked to settle rulings

HONOLULU (AP) — The Hawaii attorney general has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to settle inconsistent rulings between two U.S. Circuit Courts of Appeal over welfare payments to the working poor.

First Deputy Attorney General Michael Lilly said the 9th Circuit ruled that payments were to be based on net income but the 3rd Circuit ruled that payments should be based on gross income.

Failure to resolve the issue could lead to the jailing of a top state official, Department of Social Services and Housing Director Franklin Y.K. Sunn, who has been using the gross income method.

Herpes, AIDS mask virus awareness

NEW YORK (AP) — Three years ago, it was herpes that alarmed the nation. That scare gave way to fear of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, or AIDS, and herpes was seemingly forgotten.

All the while, the public remained largely unaware of a sexually transmitted virus that was spreading to more people than herpes and AIDS combined and is increasingly being pointed to as a contributing cause of cervical and genital cancer.

In 1981, almost a million people went to their doctors for treatment for the virus. In contrast, only 295,000 people sought treatment for herpes that year. And AIDS was seen in only a scattering.

The virus, known as human papilloma virus or HPV, is the cause of a disease that at first seems to be little more than a nuisance — genital warts. But two new studies that were reported last week strongly suggested that at least some genital warts might be precursors of cancerous tumors.

Herpes, too, has been linked with an increased risk of cervical cancer, says Dr. Ward Cates, director of the division of venereal disease control at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta.

But a forthcoming study done at the Mayo Clinic "suggests that papilloma virus has more of a causal role in genital cancer, particularly of the cervix, than herpes," he says.

On Wednesday, the Associated Press reported the findings of a West German researcher that HPV genes had been found in cervical cancer tumors and tumors of the penis and the vagina, along with the discovery by a biologist at the Pasteur Institute in Paris that HPV contained a gene very closely related to a known cancer gene.

This intertwining of the genes of HPV with the genes of cancer tumors strongly supports the contention that the virus is a contributing factor in cervical and genital cancer.

Statistical studies show that women with HPV infections are at least twice as likely to get cervical cancer as are women not exposed to the virus, Cates says.

Cervical cancer is expected to strike 16,000 American women and cause 7,000 deaths this year, according to the American Cancer Society. Other genital cancers are much less common.

Papilloma virus has become prevalent among Americans for the same reason that herpes has. In the past decade, the children of the post-World War II baby boom have reached sexual maturity, says Cates, boosting the number of people at risk for venereal diseases.

In addition, the children of the baby boom are more sexually active than their predecessors and more likely to have multiple sexual partners. "All of these factors would contribute to an increase in sexually transmitted diseases," Cates says.

In women, papilloma virus infections can cause genital warts or condylomas — flat growths on the cervix, says Dr. Richard U. Levine, an obstetrician-gynecologist at Columbia University and Presbyterian Hospital in New York.

Condylomas are frequently misdiagnosed as "severe pre-cancerous lesions," says Levine. Some will indeed develop into cancer tumors, but others will disappear.

Because it is impossible to tell which will progress, Levine recommends their removal by the standard methods — freezing, burning or laser therapy.

Sexual partners of women with the infections should also be evaluated for possible treatment. "We realized early on it was really a couples' disease," he says.

To avoid marital distress, he counsels patients that papilloma virus infections can remain latent for years. They are not evidence of recent sexual contact.

The first papilloma virus was discovered in 1933, according to Peter Howley of the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md. Research on the virus progressed slowly until the mid-1970s, when researchers realized there more than two dozen strains of HPV, each associated with a particular type of wart or growth.

In one of the studies reported last week, Harald zur Hausen, chairman of the German Cancer Center in Heidelberg, West Germany, reported finding genes of three strains of HPV virus in cervical and genital cancer tumors.

His interpretation of that result is cautious. Whether the virus causes cancer "remains to be seen," he says. "At the moment, we are just having this association."

He also has evidence that the virus alone cannot cause cancer, but that it can set the stage, leaving a person predisposed toward cancer. The trigger that results in cancer could then be a carcinogen. Another guess is that herpes virus could interact with papilloma virus to cause genital cancer.

The virus is known to predispose people to a rare skin cancer called epidermodysplasia verruciformis. The virus sets the stage; exposure to sunlight triggers the cancer.

In the other study reported last week, Moshe Yaniv, head of the tumor virus unit at the Pasteur Institute in Paris, found in papilloma virus a gene closely resembling a known cancer gene called mos.

Pressure mounts for Watt's resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) — One Republican senator told James Watt even though he had "hoof-and-mouth disease" he still supports him. But other lawmakers were less forgiving of Watt's latest verbal gaffe as pressure mounted on the controversial interior secretary to quit.

And Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., used the weekly Democratic radio address to attack the "outrageous expression of bigotry" expressed by "a member of President Reagan's cabinet in a public speech before the U.S. Chamber of Congress."

Tsongas urged the American people to "let President Reagan know that James Watt offends the greatness, the moral sensitivity and the togetherness of America. I hope you will join me in making this message heard."

If Watt's troubles in Congress were not enough, President Reagan's daughter, Maureen, and the Republican governor of California both weighed in with the advice that Watt should resign.

Watt's aides, however, contended that their man was sticking to his guns, hoping to ride out the controversy over his description of the makeup of an advisory panel on coal sales as "a black ... a woman, two Jews and a cripple."

Watt spent Friday calling a dwindling number of Republican supporters on Capitol Hill. To each, according to sources, Watt posed the question, "How bad is the damage?"

Most of the answers were not encouraging.

An aide to Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee said Baker told Watt his support in the chamber was "eroding."

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, chairman of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee and one of Watt's strongest supporters in the past, said he told the secretary his position was "serious" but did not advise him further.

Aides to several other Republicans confided that their bosses had offered Watt little encouragement, telling him they feared that he had irreparably damaged himself.

Ms. Reagan, an adviser to the party and her father on women's issues, said Watt would leave if he were "truly loyal to the president."

Although her father accepted Watt's apology on Thursday, she complained that in 2½ years Watt had sent "enough apologies to the president to paper the wall. Why doesn't he just send his resignation?"

At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes said only that Reagan retains confidence in Watt "until I tell you differently." But White House aides, who talked on condition they not be named, said the telephone calls and telegrams were "running against" Watt and one said "the politics of it are clear" as to what the secretary should do.

In Reagan's home state of California, Republican Gov. George Deukmejian said it "would be very helpful to the president" if Watt were to step down.

At the Interior Department, Watt's aides tried to rally the conservative faithful to counter the outcry for Watt's scalp.

Lucas claims more victims in Louisiana

MONROE, La. (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas, the drifter who claims to have killed more than 150 women in at least 16 states, has been charged with the murder and kidnapping of Kathy Whorton, a Northeast Lousiana University student.

She was found shot to death in Ouachita Parish in 1981. Lucas also is a suspect in the killings of two other north Louisiana women killed about the same time in similar fashion, police said.

Jackson scores poorly with gay community

Hearst Feature Service

LOS ANGELES — The Rev. Jesse Jackson has earned himself earned poor marks for his apparent insensitivity to the gay rights movement.

The negative reaction to the civil rights activist was revealed by participants in a meeting with some of Los Angeles' gay community leaders.

One participant said Jackson "made it clear we (gays) have to sit in the back of the liberation bus."

Jackson met with the group on Sept. 7 for "tea" at West Hollywood's chic Trumps restaurant.

David Mixner, a government consultant and one of the most visible gay activists in the political fund-raising community, called Jackson's performance "insulting."

"It was literally that bad. He kept referring to it (homosexuality) as that 'sex thing,'" Mixner said Friday at a breakfast meeting with reporters. "He said, 'Well, these things take time.'

"I told him if people would have said that to you . . . you would have went right down our throats, yelled, kicked and screamed and called us racists."

Neither Jackson nor his spokesman from the Chicago-based Operation PUSH could be reached yesterday for comment.

Meeting participants said Jackson made a pitch for financial support for his potential presidential bid. Jackson has been testing his support among minority and disaffected communities. He has said his strategy if he runs for president will be to put together a "rainbow coalition" of such groups.

Charles Stewart, a member of Black and White Men Together and a member of the Board of Directors of the National Coalition of Black Gays, was among those who left the meeting incensed with Jackson.

"He wants our money and support, but he made it clear we have to sit in the back of the liberation bus," said Stewart.

Last free junior college system in financial fight

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The nation's last tuition-free community college system is caught in a political, fiscal and philosophical fight that could mean fewer students and larger classes in the spring.

The Republican governor wants to end the state's long tradition of tuition-free junior colleges by charging $50 a semester. But the Democratic-controlled state Assembly has battled him for nine months, saying free public education is a proud California tradition.

Without a compromise by January, California's 106 two-year colleges will have to get through the academic year with 7.7 percent less money than a year ago, possibly canceling 15,000 classes, laying off 10,000 employees and turning away 166,000 students, says the state chancellor.

CHANCELLOR GERALD HAYWARD has predicted that five or six districts, including the largest, the 130,000-student Los Angeles Community College District, would run out of money by spring and face bankruptcy.

Los Angeles already has canceled 600 classes this fall and San Diego's three colleges have dropped 400 classes.

To many Californians, having tuition-free community colleges is a dear tradition.

For example, Speaker Willie Brown, a Democrat and foe of tuition, said on the floor of the Assembly this month that he never would have made it through college and law school "if there had been a fee of any sort," and he added: "Public education is the cornerstone of my heritage and it was free and free it shall be forever."

BUT THE STATE, AND NOT the communities, has been picking up a bigger share of the cost of running the schools, and Gov. George Deukmejian says it's only fair that the students "help defray the cost."

As in most states, community colleges in California provide freshman and sophomore courses in liberal arts and sciences and also occupational, adult and community service courses. They grant associate degrees and many occupational certificates.

The 73-year-old system is immense — 300,000 full-time students, nearly 1 million part-time students and 170,000 students taking noncredit courses in 70 districts around the state.

Their budgets this year: about $1.4 billion.

BEFORE 1978, THE SCHOOLS received 55 percent of their revenue from local property taxes, 40 percent from the state and 5 percent from the federal government.

But Proposition 13, approved by voters in 1978, cut property taxes in half and forced the state to step in. The financing today is 25 percent local, 70 percent state and 5 percent federal.

The average community college student is older — average age 29 — and poorer and more likely to be working and married than a student at a four-year state university in California.

California is the only state with a public junior college system that does not charge systemwide fees.

CALIFORNIA LAW PROHIBITS tuition except for out-of-state residents at state colleges and universities, with tuition defined as money paid teachers. However, fees for other services, such as registration and health care, may be charged.

Since being proposed when Ronald Reagan was governor, the fees have increased over the years to $1,300 a year at University of California campuses to $670 at California State University.

The individual community colleges also charge fees — such as $40 a year for parking, $15 a year for health services and materials fees for laboratory courses. Also, noncredit community service courses like cooking and exercising are self-supporting through fees.

For weeks, lawmakers and the governor negotiated until they had what was thought to be a deal: a bill to restore millions of dollars in proposed budget cuts and a separate bill to impose $50 fees in the spring. In addition, Deukmejian promised the fees would not be increased for the final three years of his term.

Poll: Reforms may not lure non-voters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Making it easier for Americans to register and vote could boost turnout somewhat, even though many non-voters are not very interested in politics and probably would not be lured to the ballot box by such rules changes, a new poll says.

And one proposed reform — moving election day to a Sunday — could actually keep more people from voting, according to the survey by ABC News in cooperation with Harvard University.

Other reform ideas — making election day a holiday or extending the voting hours to a full 24-hour period across the country — did draw some support, said the survey done for an ABC-Harvard seminar on voting next weekend.

Former presidents Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter are scheduled to be on hand for the seminar, which will bring together politicians, politicial scientists and other experts to discuss voting and non-voting in the U.S. democracy.

Turnout by America's adults in elections has been on a generally steady decline since the early 1960s. Only about 53.9 percent of the Americans age 18 and over voted in the 1980 presidential election, compared to 62.9 percent in 1960. That meant about 74 million adults did not vote in the 1980 elections.

The ABC poll, based on telephone interviews with 2,530 adults June 29 through July 13, said about one in five people admitted to be unregistered. Although no national registration figures are available — some states don't even require registration — more than one in three adults is not registered to vote.

Among those who admitted to being unregistered, only 49 percent said they were interested in registering. Another 49 percent said it really didn't matter much — or at all — whether they registered. The rest gave no opinion.

And they are just not very interested in politics as well. Asked to name any one of the contenders for the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination, only 18 percent of the unregistered group could come up with a name, versus 44 percent of those who are registered.

Various ideas for reforming the registration and voting rules might help boost turnout a bit, the poll said.

If election day were made a legal holiday, 35 percent of those questioned said they would be more likely to vote. Sixteen percent said it would make them less likely and 48 percent said it would make no difference. Among the unregistered group, 46 percent said they would be more likely to vote and 15 percent said they would be less likely.

Seventy percent of those interviewed said they favored keeping the polls open for a 24-hour period, with voting hours being the same across the country. Twenty-three percent opposed it and 7 percent were not sure.

But the idea of moving election day to Sunday may not be a good idea.

Half of those questioned said they would be less likely to vote on a Sunday than on the current schedule.

'Hotline' still used 20 years later

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once every hour, a bell goes off near a teleprinter in one of the Pentagon's most heavily guarded room, a signal that one of the world's best-known telephone lines is about to be used again.

But it's only a test of the "hotline" linking the United States and the Kremlin.

Installed 20 years ago last month, the "hotline" was set up after the 1962 Cuban missile crisis and is intended to permit leaders of the two superpowers to quickly communicate in times of tension.

Although there have been some minor changes over two decades, the system is basically the same as it was when it began service Aug. 30, 1963.

Despite a widespread belief, the "hotline" is not a red telephone. Actually, it's not a telephone at all, but is a teleprinter, clicking out its messages at 66 words per minute.

The printer is in the Pentagon's National Military Command Center, popularly known as the "war room," and is watched 24 hours a day.

It is tested hourly, when the United States sends in English the old teleprinter test, "the quick brown fox jumped over the lazy dog's back." The Soviets, who transmit in their language, commonly send excepts from Russian novels.

The Reagan administration has proposed a series of four steps to improve the "hotline" system.

Among the U.S. suggestions are the addition of a high-speed facsimile transmission link to the "hotline," a military communications link between Moscow and Washington and consultations in case of terrorism involving nuclear material.

The two sides held two days of talks in August on the proposals, and later issued a statement saying "the atmosphere was good and we anticipate future discussions."

Although the "hotline" printer ends in the Pentagon, it can be easily patched into the White House communications system to permit the president to read it wherever he is.

Europeans concerned over Lebanese situation

LONDON (AP) — Public concern is mounting in Britain, France and Italy over deepening involvement of the multinational peacekeeping force in Lebanon, but not on the same scale as in the United States where the issue of how long the Marines will stay has been raised repeatedly in Congress.

France, with 2,000 soldiers in Lebanon, has had 17 killed and 52 wounded. The United States, with 1,200 Marines, has had four killed and 36 wounded. Italy has had one killed and 27 wounded among its 2,100 soldiers. Britain, with only 97 troops in the Beirut area, has not had any casualties.

Britain recently put ground-support aircraft on Cyprus, 125 miles from Lebanon, to protect its troops, and Italy is negotiating to put jet fighters on Cyprus too. France sent jet fighters into combat for the first time Thursday, attacking Druse artillery batteries that wounded six French soldiers.

A British Foreign Office spokesman said Saturday that Britain, France and Italy have launched their own bid for a cease-fire in Lebanon, but said the effort was being made in concert with the United States and Saudi Arabia.

The Times of London said the European effort followed a meeting of British, French and Italian officials in Rome Monday.

"It is understood that the three European countries were becoming increasingly concerned by the United States' action, which they believe falls outside the mission of the multinational force," the newspaper said.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, speaking to reporters Friday before her departure for Canada and the United States on Sunday, said Lebanon would be at the top of the agenda for her talks with President Reagan.

"I think one would have to be very, very wary of deeper involvement," she said. Mrs. Thatcher described Britain's participation as "a symbolic gesture" and said, "We could not possibly increase our numbers in Lebanon."

The British involvement has been criticized by both the left and right as ill-advised.

Israel learning painful lesson in Lebanon

An Analysis

By MARCUS ELIASON

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The new civil war in Lebanon is causing deep dismay in Israel, but it also seems to be teaching the Jewish state something about the limits of its power.

The explosion of Druse-Christian fighting is the latest in a series of setbacks Israel has suffered in Lebanon in the past year. If the fighting prevents the return of the Palestine Liberation Organization to Lebanon in force, Israel still will be able to say its invasion was worthwhile.

But if the nightmare scenario circulating here comes true and Yasser Arafat returns in triumph to Beirut, the Israelis may feel obliged to join the fight. The fact that they have not stepped in so far is indicative of the profound reluctance to do any more battle in Lebanon.

The dream of a Lebanon at peace with Israel and free of the Syrian-PLO presence went sour months ago.

The Lebanese civil war has triggered an acrimonious debate in the Cabinet, caused rumbles of displeasure in Israel's own large Druse and Christian minorities and may even have hastened Prime Minister Menachem Begin's political demise.

Begin's devoted secretary, Yona Klimovitzky, says Begin feels "brokenhearted and betrayed" over the war.

She was quoted by the daily Yedioth Ahronoth as saying in an interview: "He thought we would go into Lebanon and be out in the blink of an eye. Apparently he was disappointed at being betrayed by people he trusted."

Israel is a much quieter place nowadays than last summer, when Begin and his defense minister, Ariel Sharon, were promising a throng of supporters in a Tel Aviv square that the PLO would be destroyed and Lebanon would make peace with Israel.

That kind of fist-waving rhetoric has evaporated. With Begin and Sharon pushed offstage, the crisis is in the hands of Defense Minister Moshe Arens and Prime Minister-designate Yitzhak Shamir, low-key businesslike men who share one goal: to cut Israel's losses in Lebanon and end what has been the most divisive, unpopular war it has fought.

Sharon masterminded the war with the grand design of driving the PLO and the Syrians out of Lebanon and establishing a stable Christian government which would sign a peace with Israel. He spoke of Israel, Lebanon and Egypt shortly becoming "a triangle of peace" in the Middle East.

The design went awry with the assassination of Lebanese President-elect Bashir Gemayel, which knocked the underpinnings out of the Israeli-Lebanese alliance. The subsequent Sabra and Chatilla camp massacres of Palestinians, which blackened Israel's image, forced Sharon's ouster as defense minister and brought home to the Israeli public what an ugly war it was involved in.

Gemayel's successor, his brother Amin, had little inclination to sign a peace with Israel. He felt too threatened by Syria. Some Israeli officials call him weak and indecisive. "We kept pressing him to make a move, and he wouldn't," claims a knowledgeable Israeli official.

Arens sought an even-handed policy in Lebanon, and opened lines of communication to Gemayel's Druse foes. His critics say he thus bet on both horses and lost everything.

Grenades kill two in Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Two men threw grenades at a police station in a residential neighborhood, killing a policeman and a passerby and wounding five people, a police spokesman said Saturday.

Police Sgt. Bernardino Leonel Palacios said the unidentified attackers were believed to be leftist guerrillas. He said the injured were two policemen and three civilians, including a 4-year-old boy.

Palacios said that, just before the late Friday attack, he spotted "two suspicious men, who, when they were surprised, threw two objects. I immediately opened fire."

Soviet press: Nixon almost took Flight 007

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press said Saturday that former President Nixon canceled a reservation on Korean Air Lines flight 007 because the CIA "did not dare send a former president to his death" and alerted him at the last minute.

The official Tass news agency and Radio Moscow said such a report in the mass-circulation West German magazine Quick was "evidence" of a CIA plot to send the Boeing 747 over the Soviet Far East on Sept. 1.

The Kremlin has claimed the plane, which carried 269 people to their deaths, was on a spy mission for the United States. The Soviets also say the fighter pilot who shot it down thought it was a U.S. RC-135 spy plane.

In its Sept. 8 edition, Quick said Nixon was booked on the South Korean jet out of New York and was to have been seated next to Rep. Larry MacDonald, D-Ga., chairman of the John Birch Society.

"But at the last minute, Mr. Nixon did not take the flight," Tass said. "Evidently the American intelligence establishment did not dare send a former president to his death. Quite probably he was in the know from the outset."

Neither Tass nor Quick cited any source for the report.

A Nixon aide at his New York City office said he could not answer any questions and would pass the query on to Nixon's chief spokesman Nicolas Ruwe, who could not immediately be reached for comment.

"But at the last minute, Mr. Nixon did not take the flight. Evidently the American intelligence establishment did not dare send a former president to his death. Quite probably he was in the know from the outset."

— Tass

On Sept. 3 The New York Post said Nixon would have been on the plane that was shot down "if he hadn't turned down an invitation to Seoul, South Korea."

Nixon, said the paper declined an invitation "to go along with Rep. Larry McDonald...to the conference commemorating the 30th anniversary of the U.S.-South Korea mutual defense treaty."

According to the Post, Nixon's former White House aide, Franklin R. Gannon, told the newspaper, "I was with President Nixon yesterday and he reminded me that he had had this offer. He considered it seriously for several months and decided against it."

The invitation came from Sen. Jesse Helms, according to Gannon.

German tabloid claims Korean jet tipped wings

HAMBURG, West Germany (AP) — A West German tabloid Saturday claimed it acquired transcripts of secret tapes showing that the Soviets shot down the South Korean jumbo jet after the airliner signaled its willingness to follow orders by tipping its wings.

The mass-circulation Bild am Sonntag quoted from what it claimed was the tape of radio traffic between ground control and the Soviet fighter pilot who downed the passenger jet carrying 269 people Sept. 1:

Ground control: "Try to identify the foreign plane by flying around it."

Fighter: "I can't do that anymore. I've already started the firing system."

Fighter (excitedly): "What should I do? It has its lights on and is tipping its wings."

Japanese, Soviets scale down search

By TERRIL JONES
Associated Press Writer

WAKKANAI, Japan (AP) — Japan's navy said Saturday it is substantially reducing the number of ships hunting for the downed South Korean airliner and that the Soviets appear to be doing the same.

The U.S. searchers hunting for the plane's flight recorders were hindered by vast undersea mountains, American military officials said.

"(The Soviets) may be reducing their search efforts because they are not finding much," Maritime Safety Agency Rear Adm. Masayoshi Sato said. "I can't speak for the Soviet side, but the Japanese in recent days have found very little."

Kato said only one piece of metal from the plane was found Saturday. Five bodies were found earlier in the search, but there have been no bodies recovered in the past 10 days. In all, 269 people, including 61 Americans, died when the Soviets shot the plane down.

Kato said 18 Japanese ships will be reduced Sunday to six looking for debris and four monitoring U.S. and Soviet activities off Moneron, a Soviet island off Sakhalin. The Korean Air Lines jet is believed to have crashed near the island when a Soviet interceptor blasted it out of the sky Sept. 1.

The Soviet fleet of 17 ships seen Saturday morning near Moneron had shrunk to 11 by the afternoon, Kato said. The rescue ship Georgi Kozumin and the surveyer Gidronaut, two Soviet ships that carried out undersea operations with mini-submarines, had both left the immediate search area, Kato said.

IN TOKYO, the news media liaison chief for U.S. forces in Japan, Master Gunnery Sgt. Ed Evans, said the American search effort "continues to be hampered by the undersea terrain and the sheer size of the search area."

He said seven U.S. vessels were searching a 1,600-square-mile area off southwest Sakhalin and were confronted by 300- to 3,000-foot undersea mountains.

On Friday, Maritime Safety Agency vessels observed the U.S. Navy ocean tug Narragansett using a derrick to lower a remote-controlled ocean floor search vessel into the sea northwest of Moneron, but no U.S. undersea operations were spotted Saturday.

The Soviets and Americans are looking for the flight data and cockpit voice recorders — the so-called "black boxes" — which could provide information on the jumbo jet's last moments.

The shooting down of KAL Flight 007 was a main topic when Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger arrived in Japan Saturday for a one-day visit on his way to China.

U.S. officials said Weinberger, in a meeting with Defense Agency Director General Kazuo Tanikawa, called the missile attack on the unarmed commercial jetliner a "horrifying event" and said the "one positive thing" that arose from the disaster was that it showed the strength of U.S.-Japanese cooperation in a humanitarian effort.

WEINBERGER SAID that effort had managed to dispel Soviet "propaganda and lies" that the plane was on a U.S. spy mission, and thanked the Japanese for releasing tapes of Soviet air-to-ground transmissions as the Soviet fighters pursued and shot down the Korean aircraft.

Tanikawa said his government did not want to release the tapes — which revealed the extent of Japanese electronic intelligence capabilities in the area — but found it necessary to do so because of Soviet reluctance to disclose details about the incident.

Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe also told Weinberger that U.S.-Japanese cooperation was "very meaningful," adding that "Soviet attempts to shift the blame to the United States and Japan are unpardonable," Foreign Ministry officials said.

In Hamburg, the West German tabloid Bild Am Sonntag claimed it had transcripts of secret tapes that showed the Soviets shot down the South Korean plane after the airliner signaled its willingness to follow orders by tipping its wings. It did not say how it got the transcripts.

The Soviets claim the airline pilot ignored all efforts to contact him and lead the plane to a landing in Soviet territory. In Washington, State Department duty officer Sue Pittman said of the Bild Am Sonntag story, "I don't have anything on that. We have released everything we have...I don't know of anything we haven't made available, in communications."

Syrian forces make PLO loyalists leave

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A PLO spokesman said Syrian forces ordered Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas loyal to Yasser Arafat out of Lebanon's Bekaa Valley on Saturday and arrested three of his senior officers.

The spokesman, reached by telephone in the northern Lebanon city of Tripoli, said Syrian forces advancing on loyalist positions with tanks and armored vehicles, took into custody Lt. Col. Ziad Al Atrash, supreme commander of the PLO chairman's Fatah forces in the Bekaa, Maj. Marwan Kayali and Maj. Abu Ahmed Ismail. The spokesman asked not to be identified by name.

He quoted senior Syrian officers as saying the "higher (Syrian) military command" had ordered troops loyal to Arafat to leave immediately for northern Lebanon, where the PLO leader has been staying for a week.

The spokesman said the guerrillas were allowed to take only their personal weapons as they evacuated their positions "at gunpoint and with tanks and armored vehicles besieging their positions."

There were no explanations given by the Syrian authorities, who have jailed several Fatah officers, including Arafat's office director Maj. Mohammad El-Ameri, since they expelled Arafat from Damascus three months ago.

Syria declared Arafat unwelcome after he openly accused the government of instigating a rebellion.

The reported expulsion from the Bekaa would put the Arafat loyalists 60 miles from the front line with Israel in eastern Lebanon. The spokesman said the Syrian move would "have serious repercussions in the struggle against Israel."

The reported expulsion of Arafat loyalists would give Syria exclusive control of east Lebanon and a strong bargaining position in any negotiations with the Lebanese government for the withdrawal of an estimated 50,000 Syrian troops from the country.

Park's leafy glades lead Dr. Jekyll/Mr. Hyde life

PARIS (AP) — By day the leafy glades of the Bois de Boulogne are a haven for joggers and picnicking families. By night, the famous Parisian park turns into a kind of sexual carnival, drawing thousands of transvestites, prostitutes, exhibitionists — and hordes of gawking tourists.

Paris police call it the "world's largest outdoor brothel." And they're worried.

The nighttime denizens include some very tough types armed with switch-blades, and the large numbers of tourists who tour the darkened trails of the 2,000-acre park are inviting prey for thugs and pickpockets.

Police say 3,000 people a night were coming to the Bois to participate or just sightsee.

Since mid-August, police have been making a concerted effort to clean up the park, logging 1,102 arrests over the last four weeks. But despite some brave talk, Commander Raymond Dematteis recently conceded that the area has become a "permanent criminal milieu."

Until recently, the authorities tolerated the nocturnal activities, contenting themselves with periodic harassment and spot arrests. Female prostitutes, after all, have worked the Bois since the late 1940s, and prostitution is not illegal in France.

The laws against solicitation and indecent exposure are relied upon to keep the professionals reasonably discreet and limited to traditionally defined red-light districts.

But the tolerance began to evaporate as the notoriety of the Bois expanded and turned into a public relations nightmare for this tourist-conscious city.

Blast damages Bolivian newspaper

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — A dynamite explosion heavily damaged the printing and typesetting offices of the daily newspaper Hoy and the editor blamed right-wing paramilitary extremists.

No one was reported injured.

"We were attacked because we have consistently opposed dictators, whether from the right or left," said Carlos Serrate Reich, editor of Hoy. He said Friday's bombing caused $100,000 in damage.

He said the attackers were "presumably right-wing paramilitary trying to destabilize the democratic process in Bolivia."

Somalia sheds links to Soviets

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Once one of Moscow's closest allies in Africa, Somalia is quietly shedding its Marxist rhetoric, opening its economy to free enterprise and seeking a close military relationship with the United States.

"I've never been in a country where things are changing so rapidly," remarked one senior envoy with long experience in black Africa.

But other diplomats described the shift from East to West as a slow, labored process because of bureaucratic procedures and attitudes instilled during eight years in the 1970s when the Soviets virtually ran this Horn of Africa nation.

"We are experiencing a lot of difficulties in changing from one system to another, but we have chosen that path," the director-general of the Foreign Affairs Ministry, Hashi Abdallah Farah, said in an interview.

"The two cultures are trying to understand how the other works," an American diplomat said privately of Somalia's rapprochement with the West. "In the two years I've been here, relations have improved significantly. There's much more trust on both sides."

President Mohamed Siad Barre, stridently espousing Marxism, steered Somalia into the Soviet camp shortly after seizing power in a 1969 military coup. In 1974, his impoverished desert country, about the size of Texas, became the first in black Africa to sign a treaty of friendship and cooperation with the Soviet Union.

BUT IN NOVEMBER 1977, in one of the most extraordinary flip-flops in modern African history, Siad Barre expelled thousands of Soviet advisers after the Kremlin switched sides in Somalia's military bid to capture the disputed Ogaden region of southeastern Ethiopia.

About a billion dollars' worth of Soviet arms and some 15,000 Cuban troops helped Ethiopia win the Ogaden war in 1978. Somalia was left in the lurch as Moscow cemented ties with the Ethiopian military regime that toppled Emperor Haile Selassie in 1974.

Despite Ethiopia's poverty, the Soviets apparently considered it a bigger prize than Somalia in the geopolitical sweepstakes. Ethiopia is black Africa's second most-populous country with some 40 million people, compared with Somalia's 4 million. It has a long coastline on the Red Sea and its military government was already leaning toward Moscow.

The 1974 coup in Ethiopia had been a major setback for U.S. strategic interests in the area because of America's close ties with Haile Selassie.

"Two days after the Russians left, the Somali combat capabilities went right down to the floor," remarked a Western military analyst explaining why Somalia is seeking U.S. arms.

SOME OFFICIALS tend to play down their country's former links with the Soviets. They maintain that the Soviet Union was the only nation in the 1970s willing to provide the military hardware Somalia needed to counter the perceived threat from Ethiopia, Somalia's arch-enemy for a millenium.

"The reason Somalia became associated with the Soviet Union was defense matters. Our president had no choice but to go to Russia and ask for arms," said Farah.

"The whole idea behind the socialist revolution," Farah went on, "was that it was the quick way to development. But the only thing the Soviet Union supplies is arms. Africans are fed up with arms. What we need is economic development. But they (the Soviets) were failures on the economic development side."

Siad Barre told The Associated Press in an interview that he still considers Somalia's economy socialist. But he added that his government "encourages free enterprise" and that "investors from the U.S. and Western Europe are invited wholeheartedly."

He said he was confident that U.S.-Somali ties "will grow stronger with the passage of time, reflecting the common interests of the two nations." This apparently was a reference to U.S. efforts to counter the big Soviet presence in Ethiopia.

SOMALIA'S SHIFT in alignment is reflected in the decrease in the members of the Soviet diplomatic mission from more than 500 in the 1970s to about 10 now.

The United States, which had a low of seven diplomats here during the Soviet period, now has 72 diplomatic and aid posts. There are an additional 60-78 aid workers on contract and 40-50 military men on temporary duty, such as a training team here for six months to help the Somalis make the best use of their military hardware.

Italian court convicts five in 1976 dioxin explosions

MONZA, Italy (AP) — A local court on Saturday convicted five executives of a Swiss chemical company on charges of negligence in the 1976 dioxin explosions in Seveso. The Monza Tribunal sentenced them to prison terms of up to two years.

Seveso, an industrial town north of Milan, was sprayed with highly toxic chemicals following a blast in the plants of Icmesa, a Swiss-owned firm.

The severe pollution killed hundreds of animals, caused skin diseases to many residents and forced evacuation of about 800 inhabitants. Several women underwent voluntary abortions soon after the dioxin leakage fearing they might give birth to malformed babies.

Dioxin is also a suspected cancer-causing agent.

Prosecutors said the defendants failed to report risks in the plant and failed to take safety measures. The five were also convicted of causing bodily injuries and an enviromental disaster.

Defense lawyers said they will appeal the sentences. The defendants are free pending appeal.

Nile runs brown — with alcohol

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Thousands of gallons of liquor, beer and wine were poured into the Nile in a ceremony attended by President Gaafar Nimeiri, who ordered the move as part of his campaign to implement Islamic law in the Sudan.

The alcohol was brought to the destruction sites aboard army trucks Friday, the official Sudan News Agency reported. It was then poured into the Nile. Bulldozers were used to crush thousands of beer cans.

The destruction operation was carried out by army, police, and Khartoum province authorities, and took place at three sites on the banks of the river Nile.

Man plunges into caustic soda

CHELTENHAM, England (AP) — A repairman plunged from a factory roof into a vat of caustic soda but was pulled out by a supervisor and rushed to a hospital where he was recovering Saturday.

Ronald Vick, who was repairing the plant roof at Cheltenham in southwest England, slipped and fell Friday into the large tank of sodium hydroxide, which is used to strip dirt and grease off machine parts.

Ambulance men stripped Vick and sprayed water over him before rushing him to Cheltenham Hospital where his condition was described as "fairly comfortable."

Women peace protesters fined

SALISBURY, England (AP) — Seven women peace protesters were fined $52 each and ordered to pay $60 legal costs for breaking into a top secret chemical warfare research base at Porton Down in southwest England.

The women, between 17 and 39 years old, pleaded innocent to illegally entering military property last month. Three other women charged with the same offense failed to attend the hearing Friday.

Suzanne Woods, 26, declared: "We may be legally guilty, but not morally guilty.

"We entered the land to save life and bring people's attention to what goes on in this place. Our protest was against chemical and nuclear weapons."

China denies coercive measures

PEKING (AP) — China's family planning chief has denied charges that the government used coercion to enforce its one-child policy, or that the policy was to blame for the killing of baby girls.

The official Xinhua news agency said Qian Xinzhong, minister of the state family planning commission, also explained Friday that the present policy of only allowing one child per family might be readjusted if China met its goal of keeping the population from exceeding 1.2 billion at the end of the century.

Qian leaves Monday for New York to receive the U.N. population award. He also will give lectures in the United States on China's population control work.

Teams rescue stranded Indians

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Army and civilian teams evacuated more than 6,500 marooned people from flood-swept areas of northern and northeastern India, authorities said Saturday.

In Assam, in northeastern India, air force helicopters dropped food packets to thousands of marooned residents, many of them perched on trees and housetops, federal authorities reported.

More than 1,000 people have perished in floods since the annual monsoon began last July.

Police won't prosecute healers

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — Police in the Indian Ocean town of Lindi have decided not to prosecute traditional healers who medical officials claimed were responsible for the deaths of 164 children.

A medical inspection team had determined that the children, most under the age of 5, died in recent weeks following crudely performed operations to remove the uvula, the bit of tissue above the back of the tongue. Folk belief is that its removal prevents fever.

Part of the wreckage from a Gulf Air Boeing 737, which crashed Friday killing all 111 passengers, lies in a rugged mountain area northwest of the Abu Dhabi airport.

Was Gulf Air jet sabotaged?

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — An official of Gulf Air said Saturday that sabotage cannot be ruled out in the fiery crash of a jetliner that killed all 111 people aboard, including an American.

He said it was the first crash in Gulf Air's 35-year history.

The official, who requested anonymity, said a team of investigators led by Gulf Air security personnel had been dispatched to Karachi, Pakistan, where the plane originated Friday.

It crashed in flames near Abu Dhabi.

In Manama, Bahrain, where Gulf Air is headquartered, the English-language Gulf Daily News quoted an unidentified "informed source" as saying that sabotage was likely.

"Karachi is often considered a high risk airport," the paper quoted the source as saying. It said the source worked at Bahrain airport but that he refused to elaborate.

The Boeing 737 was on a regular flight from Karachi to Bahrain, via Qatar and Abu Dhabi, when it crashed in mountains near the Abu Dhabi airport.

Investigators who examined the black box reported that the pilot issued three distress calls before losing contact with the control tower.

A Bedouin who witnessed the crash said, "A huge cloud of smoke came out of the nose (of the plane) which rotated very fast before tongues of fire came out of it."

"The plane then nosed downwards and plunged into the sand dunes causing a deafening sound and disintegrating," said the witness, who spoke to the official Emirates news agency on condition he not be named.

The United Arab Emirates is a 12-year-old federation of seven sheikdoms on the Persian Gulf.

The victims, according to Gulf Air, were 97 Pakistanis, seven Britons of Pakistani origin, one American of Pakistani origin — identified only as J. Lakho — one Iranian and the five crew members.

Officials originally reported 112 killed, but later revised the figure.

Most of the victims were workers returning to the Persian Gulf after celebrating a Moslem holiday with their families in Pakistan.

Tensions delay easing of sanctions

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Heightened East-West tension over the Soviet destruction of a South Korean jetliner has delayed the easing of U.S. economic sanctions against Poland, Polish and Western sources say.

"We received signals that there would be a relaxation by the end of September, and now we are told that it will be October or even November," said one Polish Communist Party official, who spoke on condition he not be identified by name.

President Reagan imposed the sanctions after the communist government decreed martial law Dec. 13, 1981 and outlawed the independent Solidarity union. The government lifted martial law July 22, partly because of U.S. indications that the sanctions would be rescinded as a result.

U.S. Embassy spokesmen declined comment on the reported delay. But knowledgeable Western diplomats said the Americans leaked word in Washington and Warsaw in mid-September that plans to ease the sanctions were delayed due to tension over the Sept. 1 Soviet attack on the South Korean jetliner with 269 people aboard.

The diplomats asked not to be identified.

Poland's state-run press has persistently blamed the nation's severe consumer shortages and slumping industrial output on Western sanctions.

The freeze on credits, the declining tourist trade, the ban on Polish fishing in U.S. waters, and other sanctions cost Poland $13.3 billion in 1982 and will cost an additional $7.5 billion this year.

No player safe from NFL's cut

Sports Special

By Robert Brundage

Football, like other professional sports, doesn't guarantee a steady job. You could work for one practice, one game one year or 10. You could decide to call it quits at any time or have that decision thrust upon you because some young stud has been drafted from college.

No player is safe. From all-pro veterans to rookies, imposed retirement can come at a moment's notice. One minute you're there and the next "the cut." You're washed from the team's roster and sent packing. Your only salvation is another team, if they need you.

In 1982, the St. Louis Cardinals cut nine-year veteran center Tom Brahaney, a 1969 graduate from Midland High. They had two other centers on the roster and no longer needed his services.

"It really didn't come as a surprise," said Brahaney after playing in Monday's Pro-Am golf tournament at Green Tree Country Club. "I got hurt in the practice in camp and only played in two quarters of the last two exhibition games. The Cardinals moved in Dan Dierdorf and he's going to be in the Hall of Fame some day. They also had Randy Clark, a young kid, and he's going to be a real good player for them. I wish I'd known before camp that they'd made those moves.

"I didn't miss football a bit after the season started but I was going to try again after

Midland's Tom Brahaney ...When still a Cardinal

Sunday. I don't miss camp the strike," continued Brahaney. "This year I miss it on and I don't miss St. Louis with the situation they're in now. They've lost three in a row and I've been in that situation before not too long ago."

Now Brahaney gets his dosage of football by going to games or watching them on TV. He goes to Midland High and Midland Lee games when he's in town and has no qualms about taking a trip to see his college alma mater play. At least he didn't last week before Oklahoma was upset by Ohio State.

"I might not go back there again," said Brahaney.

IN HIS nine years in the NFL, Brahaney has seen a lot of changes. The players are getting bigger, tougher and stronger on both sides of the ball and everything is more complex, down to specialty players, depending on a team's position on the field.

"The game has changed dramatically," said Brahaney. "Everything is more specialized. The defensive backs are faster and so are the linemen. You have to learn to pick them up when they blitz. Running backs sometimes have to get them.

"And, the guys are so much bigger," said Brahaney. "The defenses used to be all the same, even-man lines. You had to be quick. Really, it was a lot easier. Now they have the nickle defenses, the flex and it's so much tougher."

Brahaney, who played behind an All-Pro center most of his career, was a specialty player of his own. "I didn't start most of the time," he said. "Most of the time I was in on extra points, field goals and punts to snap the ball. I wasn't a great player, I just kept fooling them."

He claims the guards on either side of him were a big help to his career — Bob Young and Conrad Dobler. "They were so strong and tough it made my job easier. They'd stand up the rusher and usually all I had to do was give a push to finish him off."

WITH HIS football career behind him, Brahaney has entered the family business, the Brahaney Drilling Company here. He does a lot of traveling in his job in search of "new production," he said. "We'd like to get the drilling rigs going again. We're interested in putting deals together with companies and individuals."

In 1974, he graduated from Oklahoma with a Petroleum Land Management degree. It took him an extra two years to finish up his studies because of the NFL. When his college playing days were over, he was still short of graduation so he would go back to school in the off-season — one semester a year — which isn't uncommon among athletes.

Brahaney, who is 6-foot-2 and weighed in at 250 in his playing days, has trimmed his weight to 225. He looks like he's still in good enough shape to put on the pads.

Ponies rally past Frogs, win 21-17

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — An 80-yard Lance McIlhenney scoring pass and a fourth-quarter goal line stand carried Southern Methodist to a 21-17 Southwest Conference victory over Texas Christian Saturday night and extended the 18th-ranked Mustangs' unbeaten string to 19.

Trailing the underdog, winless Horned Frogs by 17-14, McIlhenny winged a sideline pass to Ron Morris at the SMU 40 and the fleet flanker sped the remaining 60 yards to score the winning touchdown with 6:05 left.

But TCU's Blanford Paul took the kickoff back 45 yards to the Mustang 47 and quarterback Anthony Sciaraffa guided the Frogs to the lip of the goal with time running out.

On fourth down at the two, a pair of SMU defenders tossed Sciaraffa for a yard loss and the Mustangs then proceeded to run out the clock.

It was a bitter loss for the Frogs, 0-2-1, who seized a 17-14 lead with 6:16 remaining on Ken Ozee's 47-yard field goal after a poor Pony punt had given them new life at the SMU 35.

The Mustangs, 3-0 and nursing the nation's longest major college unbeaten streak, got their earlier touchdowns on a one-yard run by Reggie Dupard and a five-yard, fourth-quarter romp by freshman Jeff Atkins.

Defensive end Chris Williams staked the Horned Frogs to a quick 7-0 lead when he blocked an SMU punt, scooped up the ball and raced untouched to the end zone.

Officially a 50-yard return, Williams dribbled the ball twice at the 37 before securing possession and outrunning everyone to the goal.

McIlhenny took the dazed Mustangs 63 yards in five plays in the final minutes of the first half and sent Dupard in from the one to tie the count at 7-7.

McILHENNY, WHOSE 47-yard pass to Marquis Pleasant was the big gainer in that drive, also figured in the most bizarre play of the game, one that torpedoed a SMU scoring opportunity.

Facing a fourth-and-two at the TCU 10, McIlhenny fired a pass that was deflected by Byron Linwood. The Pony quarterback caught his own pass, then winged another complete to Dupard for an apparent first down. But the officials ruled it illegal and TCU took over on downs.

Sciaraffa then marchedd the Frogs to the Mustang 25, where Ozee's 42-yard field goal attempt was off target.

Sciaraffa earlier uncorked a 53-yard shot to flanker James Maness to put the Frogs in scoring position but Russell Carter's interception at the 15 killed that threat.

OSU romps to 34-15 win over Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Shawn Jones made up for three first-period fumbles by rushing for 203 yards on 37 carries, including an 80-yard dash that triggered a barrage of three second-quarter touchdowns, and unbeaten Oklahoma State rolled to a 34-15 college football victory Saturday over Texas A&M.

Rusty Hilger threw touchdown passes of 17 and 43 yards to Jamie Harris to give the Cowboys a 23-6 halftime lead enroute to their third consecutive triumph.

Oklahoma State is off to a 3-0 start for the first time in eight years, while Texas A&M lost for the second time in three outings.

For the second straight game Jones starred as the replacement for injured Ernest Anderson, the nation's leading rusher a year ago.

All three second-period touchdowns followed Texas A&M turnovers, starting with an end zone interception by free safety Adam Hinds when the Aggies were threatening to increase an early 6-0 lead.

Red Raiders open SWC with victory over Bears

WACO, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech Coach Jerry Moore's first victory against his alma mater Saturday also brought to end a long string of Red Raider futility in Southwest Conference openers.

The solid 26-11 victory over the Baylor Bears, fashioned by an alert defense, was Tech's first since 1977 in a league opener.

"This is a good feeling," Moore said. "I'm going to enjoy it awhile."

Defensive tackle Brad White's safety sack of Baylor quarterback Cody Carlson set in motion a Red Raider comeback that included three Ricky Gann field goals and two Jim Hart touchdown runs.

"This is the first time any of our seniors have beaten them and it really fells good," said Hart, Tech's quarterback. "This is the first time we've won that first conference game in a long time."

White said of the crucial safety, "It was a big play for us. It gave us the turnaround momentum we needed."

BAYLOR FUMBLED five times and lost everyone of them.

"You can't make that many errors and beat a good team like Tech," said Baylor Coach Grant Teaff. "They outplayed us, outcoached us and deserved the victory."

Baylor, now 2-1, seized a 3-0 first period lead on Marty Jimmerson's 33-yard field goal then Tech, 1-1, took command of this SWC opener for both teams.

The Red Raiders charged 53 yards for a touchdown on the kickoff after White's big second quarter play with Hart rolling the final 5 yards into the end zone. Tim Smith ran for two points and Tech led 10-3.

Baylor mistakes also led to the other Red Raider points in Tech's first triumph over Baylor in five seasons.

Brad Hastings' recovery of a Tommy Muecke fumble setup Gann's 28-yard field goal and White's recovery of Alfred Anderson's bobble gave Tech a chance for Gann's 52-yarder, longest of his career.

Tech led 16-3 at halftime then stretched the lead on more Baylor miscues much to the dismay of a Parent's Day crowd of 38,000. The game was regionally televised.

Carlson fumbled the ball away at the Bear 49 to position Tech for Gann's 26-yard field goal and Stan David returned an interception 41 yards, giving Hart the opportunity for a fourth priod 10-yard scoring run.

Baylor scored a late touchdown on a 10-yard pass from Muecke to Ralph Stockemeyer.

Oregon upsets Houston, 15-14

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Kevin McCall bulled over from 1 yard out with just over six minutes left in the game Saturday to give the Oregon Ducks a 15-14 college football upset victory over Houston.

The winning score was set up by a wild play that included a 21-yard gain on an Oregon fumble.

Oregon quarterback Mike Jorgensen hit Lew Barnes with a 20-yard pass at the Houston 23-yard line.

Barnes fumbled and the ball bounded all the way to the Houston 2 yard line where Oregon's Doug Herman recovered. A penalty on the Cougars moved the ball to the 1, and McCall scored on the next play.

The winning touchdown came at the end of an 82-yard drive that included a 17-yard run by Ladaria Johnson on a fake punt.

The drive came after the Duck's defense stopped Houston's swift Donald Jordan for a loss on a fourth down and 1 play at the Oregon 17 yard line. Jordan ended the day with 135 yards gained on 27 carries.

Houston, 2-2, had the lead until the final minutes after driving 90 yards in 15 plays to score after the opening kickoff. Quarterback Lionel Wilson scored on a 3-yard run.

Texas fights back, 26-6

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Rob Moerschell hit two third-and-long yardage passes to tight end Mike Chapman as No.-2 ranked Texas rallied for a 26-6 intersectional victory Saturday night over North Texas State.

North Texas stunned Texas and a largely partisan crowd of more than 71,000 by grabbing a 6-2 halftime lead, but Texas overpowered the Eagles on third quarter touchdown drives of 80 and 66 yards.

Texas had only 81-yards total offense at halftime as Coach Fred Akers used Moerschell and back-up quarterback Rick McIvor, who each had only one pass completion.

Moerschell took over in the third quarter and completed a 39-yard pass to Chapman on third-and-15 play that carried to the North Texas 7. Mike Luck scored on third down from the 2 with 9:52 left in the third quarter.

On Texas' next possession, Moerschell overcame third-and-13 with a 14-yard pass to Chapman at the North Texas 1. Moerschell followed 270-pound center Mike Ruether into the end zone for the touchdown with 2:48 to go in the third period.

Texas clinched the victory in the fourth quarter with a 27-yard field goal by freshman Jeff Ward and John Walker's 1-yard run that capped a 49-yard drive.

Texas' defense sacked North Texas quarterback Greg Carter nine times for 65 yards in losses and a first quarter safety when 238-pound defensive end Ed Williams threw Carter for a 7-yard loss in the end zone.

Officials threw flags 45 times for infractions, although not all of the penalties were accepted. North Texas set a record for a Texas opponent at Memorial Stadium as it was penalized 17 time for 145 yards.

IN ADDITION to North Texas' record-breaking number of penalties and penalty yardage, Texas had 13 penalties for 111 yards.

The old record for penalties by a Texas opponent at Memorial Stadium was 16 by Texas Tech in 1954.

Texas scored first on the safety, but North Texas came back in the second quarter on a 48-yard scoring drive. The big plays were a 15-yard personal foul penalty against Texas, a 12-yard run on a fake pass by Nathan Williams and Carter's 11-yard touchdown throw to wide receiver Bradey Davis who had broken away from cornerback Fred Acorn in the end zone with 12:42 left in that period.

North Texas made its lead stand even though freshman Edwin Simmons took the Eagle kickoff and sped 72 yards before stepping out of bounds at the North Texas 28.

Texas had a first-and-goal at the three, but two runs lost three yards and McIvor's third-down pass to Bill Boy Bryant in the end zone was incomplete. Ward's 23-yard field goal attempt sailed wide to the left.

Coach Akers put his son, third-team quarterback Danny Akers, in the game in the fourth quarter and he completed two passes that carried to the North Texas 15, where Texas ran out the clock rather than throwing to the end zone.

Rice puts end to 15-game losing streak with 22-21 win

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice quarterback Phillip Money completed a two-point conversion pass to Kevin Trigg with a 3:02 to play to lift the Owls to a 22-21 victory over Southwestern Louisiana and end a frustrating 15-game losing streak Saturday night.

Seconds earlier, Money hit tight end Greg Heiskel with an 11-yard touchdown pass to rally Rice within one point.

The victory ended a drought that extended back to the final game of the 1981 season. The Owls went 0-11 last season and had lost their first three games this year.

A Rice defeat would have tied the Owls with Kent State for the nation's longest losing streak at 16 games.

USL quarterback Don Wallace scored one touchdown on a fake field goal and through a 86-yard bomb to Clarence Verdin to give the Cajuns a 21-14 lead with 10:32 left in the game.

USL, 0-3, scored on the final play of the first half on Donnie Schexnider's 44-yard bomb to Pierre Perkins for a 7-7 halftime deadlock.

Rice scored on the first drive of the game on Phillip Money's 26-yard touchdown pass to Melvin Robinson and the Owls appeared headed for a 7-0 halftime lead after squandering several scoring opportunities.

But the Ragin' Cajuns got a final chance with 22 seconds left in the half and reached the Rice 44 in two plays. Schexnider hit wide receiver Pierre Perkins on the next play with a 44-yard touchdown pass.

RICE HAD to survive one more scare with five seconds remaining, when USL's Oscar Steer missed on a 47-yard field goal try on the last play of the game.

Rice fans, realizing the long victory drought had ended, charged onto the field and tore down the goal posts.

Perkin's touchdown catch on the final play of the first half was tipped by Rice cornerback Eddie Johnson before Perkins grabbed it in the end zone.

USL lined up to try a field goal in the third quarter, but Wallace tucked the ball and ran 10 yards for a touchdown that gave the Cajuns a 14-7 lead.

Rice tied it on the first play of the fourth quarter on a 5-yard run by Kevin Trigg.

Verdin returned the opening kick off 95-yards for a touchdown in USL's 21-14 victory over Rice a year ago. His 86-yard touchdown sprint gave the Cajuns their final lead with 10:32 to play.

Rice missed three chances to score from inside the USL 20 in the first half. Two drives ended on missed field goals of 30 and 29 years by Mark Shupak, and USL's Fred DeJean knocked Trigg for no gain on fourth down from the one-yard line.

Ole Miss surprises, survives Arkansas, 13-10

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Quarterback Kent Austin passed for 212 yards, setting up one touchdown and freshman Bill Smith's two field goals, as the Mississippi Rebels surprised the Arkansas Razorbacks 13-10 in a Saturday night football game.

Mississippi survived a late scare when Arkansas had the ball on the Rebel 23 but a penalty and a 12-yard sack of Razorback quarterback Brad Taylor killed the threat with a minute left.

The victory was the Rebels' first after three losses under new Coach Billy Brewer. The Razorbacks fell to 2-1.

Austin hit 19 of 34 passes, turning in big plays in each of the Rebels' scoring drives. His effort overshadowed Taylor's 242 yards on 13 of 28 passes.

Tailback Buford McGee scored on a 3-yard run and Smith kicked a 28-yard field goal, both in the second quarter, before Smith's 37-yard field goal in the third period gave the Rebels a 13-0 lead.

Then, the Razorbacks, capitalizing on Taylor's passes of 29 yards to Mark Mistler and 26 yards to Keith Kidd, scored on Taylor's 2-yard keeper late in the third quarter.

The Razorbacks drove to the Mississippi five in the fourth quarter, but came away only with Greg Horne's 27-yard field goal after an illegal motion penalty wiped out Taylor's pass to Mistler in the end zone.

The Razorbacks' last chance came when cornerback Charles Washington shook a fumble from McGee, and tackle Bobby King recovered for Arkansas on the Mississippi 34.

But after the Razorbacks advanced to the 23, they suffered a 10-yard penalty for holding, another play lost two and Taylor was sacked to the 46 by tackle Bob Blakemore and end Freddy Young.

Orangemen win 500th

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Syracuse's "Four Wheel Drive" defense, spearheaded by the charge of lineman Tim Green, stopped Rutgers twice on fourth down and short yardage in the final period Saturday as the Orangemen preserved a 17-13 triumph which gave the school its 500th victory in 94 college football seasons.

Syracuse's record as the 17th major college team to reach the mark is 500-347-45.

The victory was the third in a row for the Orange, 3-1, and marked the first time since 1979 that Syracuse has started that quickly. Rutgers fell to 1-2.

The Orange scored all their points during a second quarter outburst which saw Don McAulay kick a 35-yard field goal and Harold Gayden plow for touchdowns of 1 and 3 yards.

The Scarlet Knights, stunned by the ferocity of the Syracuse defense in the second quarter, rallied behind sophomore quarterback Eric Hochberg and the running of Dwayne Hooper in the second half.

Hochberg drove Rutgers within range of a 49-yard field goal by Tom Angstadt early in the third quarter, and Hooper lugged the ball 26 yards on three carries later in the period to set up his own 6-yard scoring scamper. Angstadt added a 33-yarder in the fourth quarter.

However, Syracuse preserved the win by stopping Vernon Williams of Rutgers for no gain on fourth-and-one at its own 12-yard line on the first play of the quarter and again with 1:53 remaining when Orange defensive back Vic Bellamy knocked a Hochberg fourth down pass away from tight end Alan Andrews on the 30-yard line. Rutgers needed 3 yards for a first down on a play which began at the Syracuse 37.

Gators win big, 35-12

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Quarterback Wayne Peace dismantled the Mississippi State defense with deadly passing Saturday and the Florida Gators romped through the fourth quarter wreckage to a 35-12 Southeastern Conference football victory.

Peace, showing uncanny ability to hit on third down passes, threw for two touchdowns and set up a third as the 15th ranked Gators worked their lead to 14-12 and then 21-12 before tailback John L. Williams scored the last two touchdowns through Mississippi State's broken defense.

The Gator passing star, who had been battling Bulldog quarterback John Bond for No. 6 spot in the SEC career offensive records, won the matchup easily.

Peace hit on 21 of 34 passes for 260 yards. He went into the game with 5,308 yards total offense. Bond, only one yard behind at the start of the game, completed 8 to 23 passes for 118 yards and gained 32 yards on 14 rushes. He also scored both Mississippi State touchdowns on 1-yard runs.

Bond gave the Bulldogs their only lead of the game when he moved them 81 yards in 11 plays in the second quarter and scored the first tally of the game. He picked up 23 yards on four runs and hit George Wonsley on a 17-yard pass.

But Florida countered with an 88-yard drive, with Peace hitting wide receiver Dwayne Dixon on a 34-yard pass for the payoff. Four Peace passes ate up 73 yards during the march.

Barber builds four-stroke lead in World Seniors Invite CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Miller Barber shook off poor fairway play for a 2-under par 70 and a four-stroke lead after three rounds of the World Seniors Invitational golf championship.

Barber at one point was 10-under par, but lost three strokes before finishing at seven under. He is ahead of Doug Sanders, who struggled to a 1-over par 73 en route to a 213 total.

"It was one of the dumbest rounds of golf I've played in a long time," Barber said of a round in which it looked as though he was going to pull away when he eagled the 10th hole to go to 10-under par.

"I mis-clubbed around four times," he said. "Usually you wouldn't be in the lead after a round like this, but nobody else did anything."

Barber started his move with a birdie on the second hole, a par three 145-yarder, by sinking a 12-foot putt.

No. 1 Nebraska rips UCLA, 42-10

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Top-ranked Nebraska, aided by two Mike Rozier touchdowns, overcame a 10-point deficit and six first-half fumbles to defeat stubborn UCLA 42-10 in a non-conference college football Saturday.

The victory was Coach Tom Osborne's 100th in his 11-year career. His first also came against UCLA in 1973. Nebraska, 4-0, also extended the nation's current longest winning streak to 14.

UCLA, 0-2-1, struck in the first quarter after Nebraska quarterback Turner Gill had his second fumble of the day on the Bruin 34. Ten plays later fullback Frank Cephous dove from the 1-yard line and a partisan crowd of 76,510 was stunned.

The Bruins struck again after Husker Mark Schellen fumbled at the UCLA 40, and John Lee's 37-yard field goal made it 10-0.

The Huskers managed to score on the next series with 7:27 left in the half on an 11-yard run by Schellen. Nebraska held again on UCLA's next drive and three plays later Rozier's 5-yard run made it 14-0.

Later in the second quarter the Huskers drove to their own 1, but Rozier fumbled out of the end zone for a touchback.

After Lupe Sanchez fumbled a Nebraska punt at the Husker 18, Rozier, who carried 26 times for 159 yards, scored on a 2-yard run on Nebraska's second possession of the third quarter.

UCLA, undergoing its worst start since 1974, was shut down by a stingy Husker defense, which held the Bruins to 97 yard rushing and 195 passing.

Gill's 9-yard pass to fullback Tom Rathman made it 28-10 and the Bruins did not threaten again.

The Huskers, who rolled up 600 yards total offense and 477 rushing yards, added TDs on an 8-yard run by I-back Jeff Smith and a 31-yard interception by Dave Burke in the final quarter.

Gill, who was sidelined Thursday with a back injury, directed the Husker comeback and became the first NU quarterback ever to surpass 1,000 yards rushing in a career. He had 79 yards on 14 carries Saturday.

Auburn rips Tennessee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Trey Gainous returned a punt 81 yards for a fourth-quarter touchdown and Al Del Greco kicked three field goals as Auburn overwhelmed Southeastern rival Tennessee 37-14 in a college football game Saturday.

A sellout crowd of 95,185 at Neyland Stadium saw the Tigers better their record to 2-1. Tennessee fell to 1-2 for the season.

Gainous caught Jimmy Colquitt's 50-yard punt at the Auburn 19 and weaved through the Volunteer defense before running open into the end zone with 13:17 left in the game. Tommie Agee ran in the conversion.

Hurricanes blitz Irish

MIAMI (AP) — Freshman quarterback Bernie Kosar passed for 216 yards and one touchdown Saturday night as Miami of Florida, also playing inspired defense, stunned 13th-ranked Notre Dame 20-0 in a nationally televised college football game.

Kosar, red-shirted a year ago when the Hurricanes lost Jim Kelly to injury early in a 7-4 campaign, completed 22 of 33 passes in his fourth collegiate start.

Miami, which won its third straight after a season-opening loss to Florida, dominated the contest from the outset and boosted its record in the Orange Bowl to 21-2 during Howard Schnellenberger's five-year reign as coach.

The shutout was second straight for the Miami defense which extended its scoreless streak to 11 quarters since allowing a first-period touchdown in a 29-7 victory over Houston. The Hurricanes whipped Purdue 35-0 last week.

Notre Dame, losing for the second straight week and twice in three years to Miami, dropped to 1-2 under third-year Coach Gerry Faust.

Wolves bite Badgers

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Kerry Smith ran for 107 yards and Rick Rogers added 59 yards and two touchdowns, as 17th-ranked Michigan built a 32-7 lead and held on for a 38-21 victory over Wisconsin in a Big Ten football opener Saturday.

Michigan (2-1) spotted the Badgers a 7-0 lead, as tailback Gary Ellerson dashed 42 yards on the Badgers' first play from scrimmage and then scored two plays later on a 9-yard run only 3:19 into the first quarter.

But Michigan dominated from there, as Wisconsin (2-1) was not able to get the ball into Wolverine territory again until late in the third quarter.

Sooners survive sloppy fourth quarter to beat Tulsa

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Redshirt freshman Earl Johnson ran for 143 yards and a touchdown in less than three quarters of play Saturday as eighth-ranked Oklahoma survived sloppy fourth-period play to beat Tulsa, 28-18.

It was Sooner head coach Barry Switzer's 100th college football coaching victory.

Oklahoma built a 28-0 halftime lead, then surrendered three touchdowns in five minutes of the final stanza before running down the clock. The Sooners held on to improve their season record to 2-1. Tulsa fell to 2-2.

Johnson, filling in for injured tailback Marcus Dupree, cut through the Hurricane defense for 120 yards in the first quarter alone, including a 44-yard touchdown burst that gave Oklahoma a 7-0 lead with 8:35 left in that period.

The Sooner offensive line, which outweighed Tulsa's defensive front by an average of 37 pounds a man, pushed the Hurricane around the field for the rest of the half, producing 1-yard touchdown runs by quarterback Danny Bradley and fullback Spencer Tillman.

Bradley added a fourth first-half score when he teamed with wide receiver George "Buster" Rhymes for a 71-yard touchdown pass shortly before intermission.

Tulsa closed the gap with a flurry of fourth-quarter scoring. The Hurricane rallied behind an interception by Kenny Gibbs for their first touchdown, a 1-yard run by Eddie Hamilton with 10:51 left in the game.

Dupree, who bruised a nerve in his knee in a 24-14 loss to Ohio State a week ago, suited up for the Tulsa game but did not play.

Switzer, in his 11th season as Oklahoma's head coach, improved his career record to 100-18-3.

Tide bombs Vandy

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Alabama quarterback Walter Lewis rushed for two touchdowns and gained 274 yards in total offense as the sixth-ranked Crimson Tide defeated Vanderbilt 44-24 in a Southeastern Conference football game Saturday night.

Alabama, which found itself down 17-0 after the first quarter, upped its overall record to 3-0 and its SEC mark to 2-0.

Vanderbilt's Commodores fell to 1-2 by dropping their league opener.

Lewis rallied Alabama to a 17-17 halftime tie with scoring runs of 1 and 11 yards.

Linebacker Venson Elder set up the Tide's go-ahead score when he intercepted a pass by Vanderbilt quarterback Kurt Page at the Commodores' 30.

Bulldogs win 31-13

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Quarterback John Lastinger replaced an injured Todd Williams in the second half and threw for one touchdown and scored another to power the 14th-ranked Georgia Bulldogs to a 31-13 college football victory over South Carolina Saturday.

Georgia broke a 10-10 halftime deadlock when Lastinger tossed a 2-yard touchdown pass to Clarence Kay early in the period before sparking the Bulldogs on an 18-play, 82-yard fourth quarter scoring drive. Keith Montgomery capped the drive with a 1-yard touchdwon run as Georgia improved its record to 2-0-1.

Lastinger then closed out the Bulldogs' scoring when he scampered around left end on a 37-yard touchdown run with 6:28 remaining to play.

WVU stop BC, 27-17

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — West Virginia struck for two touchdowns in the first 4½ minutes on Jeff Hostetler's pass to Tom Gray and Ron Wolfley's 67-yard run on a fake kick as the 12th-ranked Mountaineers stopped Boston College Saturday in a 27-17 football victory over the 19th-ranked Eagles.

West Virginia built a 17-0 lead in the first period and then withstood BC quarterback Doug Flutie's aerial blitz, stopping the Eagles three times inside their five-yard line, for its fourth consecutive victory. The host Eagles were knocked from the unbeaten ranks after winning the first three games.

BC won the toss and lost its top runner, Troy Stradford with a knee injury, on the opening kickoff. Stradford fumbled as he was hit hard, and Cam Zopp recovered for West Virginia at the 16.

Gray carried for 6 yards to the 10, and then took Hostetler's pass over the middle for a 10-yard scoring effort.

Terps upset Pitt, 13-7

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Doug Cox, a junior walk-on linebacker, scored after blocking a second quarter punt to put Maryland ahead and the Terps held on to upset 16th-ranked Pittsburgh 13-7 Saturday.

Maryland, 2-1, thwarted two scoring bids by the Panthers after Jess Atkinson's 24-yard field goal, his second, produced the only points of the second half on the first play of the fourth quarter.

Defensive back Bob Gunderman blocked a 28-yard field goal attempt by Pittsburgh's Eric Schubert, and then linebacker Chuck Faucette recovered a fumble with 1:14 left after the Panthers had moved to the Maryland seven.

John Congemi, a sophomore starting his second game at quarterback for Pitt, was hit by Brian Baker as he tried a pitchout to Darnell Stone, and Faucette recovered for the Terps to stop the threat.

Cox blocked a punt by Tony Becchia, scooped up the ball on the Pitt 32 and ran into the end zone to complete a 49-yard scoring play which put the Terps ahead 10-7. It was the only TD allowed by the Panthers, 2-1, this season.

LSU topples No. 9 Washington, 40-14

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Jeff Wickersham ran for three touchdowns and passed for 259 yards and another touchdown to lead Louisiana State University to a 40-14 victory over ninth-ranked Washington Saturday night.

Wickersham's passing yardage came on 16 completions in 27 attempts. His yardage was fourth-highest in any game in LSU history.

Washington quarterback Steve Pelluer led his team offensively through the air. He scored one of Washington's touchdowns on a 1-yard sneak and handed off to Jacque Robinson for a 2-yard scoring run.

Both teams are now 2-1.

Tailback Dalton Hilliard carried 21 times for 122 yards, including a 3-yard touchdown burst and Juan Betanzos kicked field goals of 32 and 37 yards.

Hilliard's biggest run of the night was a 51-yard sprint that set up one of Wickersham's touchdown sneaks.

Garry James carried the ball 14 times for 89 yards for the Tigers.

SDSU 41, UTEP 33

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Senior quarterback Mark McKay passed for 331 yards and three touchdowns as San Diego State defeated Texas-El Paso 41-33 in a Western Athletic Conference game Saturday night.

The Aztecs improved their conference record to 1-1. It was the Miners' league opener. San Diego State raised its season record to 2-2 and UTEP fell to 1-3.

McKay threw touchdown passes of 38 and 78 yards to Vince Warren. He also hit Casey Brown with a 7-yard touchdown pass.

Derrick Harvey ran seven yards for a touchdown to give the Aztecs an early 7-0 lead. Warren's 38-yard touchdown catch and a pair of field goals by Marco Morales padded San Diego State's lead to 20-10 at halftime.

Substitue quarterback Kevin Ward entered the game for Texas-El Paso in the second half and gained 113 yards to lead all rushers. His six-yard touchdown run with 8:35 left in the third period cut San Diego State's lead to 20-17.

McKay responded with a pair of touchdown passes in a two-minute span to increase the Aztec lead to 34-17. Warren caught his 78-yarder with 7:44 left in the third quarter and Brown grabbed his seven-yarder at the 5:44 mark.

McMurry 20, Sul Ross St. 17

ABILENE, Texas — Clyde McKenzie tossed a 36-yard pass to set up his own four-yard touchdown that gave McMurry a 20-17 Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association win over Sul Ross.

Sul Ross, which dropped to 0-2 in the conference and 1-2 for the season, opened the scoring with a 69-yard touchdown pass from Gilbert Moroles to Mike Hawley and a 30-yard field goal by David Creek.

McMurry, which is 2-0 in the TIAA and 2-1 for the season, got first-half field goals of 32 and 27 yards by Tony Quitta and a third quarter two-yard touchdown run by Jerry Lindsey.

Joe Caceras ran four yards to give Sul Ross its final score.

Sam Houston 52, SW Oklahoma 15

HUNTSVILLE, Texas — Jon Meyers threw two long touchdown passes and ran five yards for another score as Sam Houston State crushed Southwestern Oklahoma in a non-conference college football game.

Meyers threw scoring passes of 41 yards to Kenny Allen and 54 yards to Sam Moore. Raymond Young scored on runs of one and three yards, Willie Lane got a touchdown on a six-yard run and Vernon Fulbright ran two yards for another. Pat Delaney also kicked a 28-yard field goal.

Sam Houston, which led 24-7 at the half, raised its season record to 2-1.

Southwestern Oklahoma, which dropped to 1-2 for the season, scored first on a fumble recovery in the end Tony Shelton, and got a consolation touchdown on a three-yard run by John Lewis late in the game.

SE Louisiana 31, ETSU 23

HAMMOND, La. (AP) — Jerry Butler ran for two touchdowns and nearly half of Southeastern Louisiana's 300 yards rushing Saturday night in leading the Lions to a 31-23 college football victory over East Texas State.

A 50-yard gainer by Butler set up his first touchdown, from two yards out, in the second quarter and his eight-yard touchdown run in the third quarter helped stop a furious ETSU second half rally.

Butler carried 25 times for 140 yards, nearly half of Southeastern's 300 yards on the ground. His second quarter touchdown came on a drive in which Butler gained 73 of Southeastern's 79 yards.

The victory improved Southeastern to 2-2 for the season and handed East Texas State, 2-1, its first loss.

New Mexico 31, New Mexico St. 10

LAS CRUCES (AP) — Junior quarterback Buddy Funck ran for three first quarter touchdowns and New Mexico capitalized on a series of New Mexico State mistakes as the Lobos took a 31-10 interstate football victory Saturday night.

Funck scored on runs of 3, 5, and 8 yards as the Lobos parlayed a pair of New Mexico State fumbles and an interception into three touchdowns and a 47-yard field goal by Joe Bibbo in the opening quarter.

Funck also connected with his favorite target, wide receiver Derwin Williams, for a 58-yard scoring pass in the third quarter that ended any hopes of a New Mexico State comeback. Williams finished with five catches for 145 yards.

New Mexico State, playing with its third string quarterback because of injuries to Mark Haugo and Bill Ramsey, did all its scoring in the second quarter on a 6-yard run by Kim Locklin and a 31-yard field goal by Andy Weiler. But the Aggies could not overcome the first quarter offensive explosion by New Mexico.

Iowa upsets Ohio State, 20-14

Victory snaps 16-game losing streak to OSU

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Chuck Long threw two touchdown passes, including a 73-yard bomb to Dave Moritz late in the game, and Tom Nichol kicked a pair of field goals to give No. 7 Iowa a 20-14 victory over third-ranked Ohio State in Big Ten Conference football Saturday.

A record Kinnick Stadium crowd of 66,175 and a regional television audience saw Iowa break a 16-game losing streak to Ohio State and send its record to 3-0. Ohio State, which had not lost to Iowa since 1962, fell to 2-1.

The game lacked the offensive fireworks that had been expected from the two teams, both among the nation's most productive, until Long connected with Moritz for the clinching touchdown with four minutes, 25 seconds remaining.

With Iowa facing a third down and six situation at its own 27, Moritz sped by Ohio State defender Shaun Gayle, hauled in a perfect pass from Long at the Buckeye 37 and zigzagged his way to the end zone.

Quarterback Mike Tomczak then drove Ohio State 66 yards, capping the march with a 4-yard touchdown pass to fullback Vaughn Broadnax with 2:21 left in the game.

Ohio State got the ball one more time but Iowa's Devon Mitchell intercepted a Tomczak pass with 22 seconds remaining to seal the victory.

Down 7-3 at halftime, Iowa took the lead on its first possession of the third quarter when Long fired a 16-yard touchdown pass to tight end Mike Hufford to cap a 50-yard drive with 12:09 left in the period.

Later in the quarter, Iowa's Mike Stoops intercepted a pass to set up a 47-yard field goal by Nichol.

Nichol booted a 25-yard field goal to give Iowa a 3-0 lead with 8:12 left in the first quarter. Ohio State came right back to go ahead 7-3 on Keith Byars' one-yard tourchdown run with 2:43 left in the quarter.

Byars, who set up his TD with a 46-yard run to the Iowa 4, hurt his knee late in the first half and did not return to the game. He had gained 98 yards in nine carries to that point.

Young passes BYU to easy victory, 46-28

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Steve Young passed for 496 yards and three touchdowns, completing 18 passes in a row during one stretch, to spark Brigham Young to a 46-28 Western Athletic Conference football victory over Air Force on Saturday.

Young, who hit on 39 of 49 throws, set an NCAA record for most consecutive completions in a game with his string of 18, breaking the mark of 15 held by four players. Young already holds the record for most consecutive completions extending over more than one game (22).

BYU scored on four straight possessions in the second half, breaking open a closely contested game that saw the Cougars leading 12-7 at intermission.

The Cougars needed just two plays to go 62 yards for their first TD of the second half. Running back Casey Tiumalu turned a swing pass into a 46-yard gain, and Waymon Hamilton ran the final 16 yards on a draw play.

Less than two minutes later, Air Force countered with a touchdown as fullback Ted Sundquist bolted 49 yards on a trap play up the middle, drawing the Falcons within 19-14 with 12 minutes left in the third period.

BYU then put together an 80-yard march, halfback Eddie Stinnett covering the final 36 yards on a sweep around the right side.

After another AFA score, a 10-yard run by halfback Mike Brown, BYU went ahead to stay, 33-21, when Young hit tight end Gordon Hudson on a 4-yard TD strike late in the third quarter.

Navy blanks Lehigh

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Quarterback Rick Williamson passed for two touchdowns and tailback Napoleon McCallum ran 1 yard for another TD to give Navy its first victory of the season Saturday, a 30-0 triumph over Lehigh.

The Midshipmen broke open what had been a tight defensive struggle with two touchdowns during a six-minute span late in the third period and added a final score with three minutes left in the game on a 2-yard plunge by tailback Rich Clouse.

The only score before that was a 27-yard field goal by Todd Solomon the first time Navy got the ball in the first period.

Navy's defense completely shut down the Lehigh offense, allowing the Engineers to penetrate Navy territory only twice, both in the final quarter.

One penetration came when safety Mike Lippincott intercepted a Williamson pass and returned it 59 yards to the Navy 20. The second was on a kickoff return by tailback Peter Schreck to the Navy 28.

The shutout was the first in 68 games for Lehigh since a 20-0 loss to Rutgers in 1977. It left the Engineers with a 1-2 season record.

Army defends Michey

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Army's defense sacked Dartmouth quarterback Fran Tolsinello nine times, seven in the second half, as the Cadets rallied for a 13-12 college football victory at Michey Stadium Saturday.

Sophomore Craig Stopa kicked two field goals and reserve quarterback Billy Turner fired a 7-yard touchdown pass to Art Zarone in the third quarter for Army, which won its first game under new head Coach Jim Young.

The Cadets now are 1-2. Dartmouth dropped to 1-1 and has not won a game against a non-Ivy League opponent in the six years that Joe Yukica has been head coach. In those games, the Big Green is 0-13-1.

Turner replaced starter Rob Healey to open the second half and sparked the Amry offense, which managed just 65 yards in the first half. Turner's scoring pass, which came with 3:44 left in the third quarter, was the first thrown by an Army quarterback this season. It followed a fumble recovery by defensive tackle Brian Gibbon at the Dartmouth 13 and a 6-yard run by Kevin McKelvy.

Stopa put the Cadets in front for the first time with his 35-yard field goal at 11:33 left to play. He also booted a 45-yarder on the last play of the first half.

Dartmouth place-kicker Craig Saltzgaber accounted for all of the Big Green scoring with a school record four field goals of 27, 32, 32 and 37 yards.

Midland ninth graders suffer rough week in M-O Conference

Midland's ninth grade football teams had a rough week as the third week of the season came to a close, but Midland Purple did manage a 20-12 victory over Odessa Bonham Thursday in the Midland-Odessa Conference.

Midland Gold lost a 27-12 verdict to Odessa Nimitz with a late burst by Nimitz and Lee Maroon dropped a 19-2 decision to Odessa Crockett while the Lee White dropped a 7-2 tussle with Odessa Hood, who picked up their first victory. Those were the first losses of the year for the Lee Freshmen teams. No score was available for the Ector-Bowie game.

In the eighth grade Midland-Odessa Conference, Goddard trimmed Alamo, 15-12, in a city battle while San Jacinto rolled over Odessa Bowie 32-8. In games involving Odessa teams, Bonham escaped Nimitz 6-0 and Crockett blasted Ector 41-21.

Orioles need one to clinch East

By The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — Robin Yount and Jim Gantner keyed a 14-hit attack with three hits apiece to lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 5-2 victory Saturday night over Baltimore, halting the Orioles' bid to clinch the American League East title.

Baltimore clinched at least a tie for the division title earlier in the day when second-place Detroit lost to Boston 5-3.

But Milwaukee's Jaime Cocanower, 1-0, making his second start of the season, held Baltimore to six hits over eight innings and Pete Ladd pitched the ninth for his 23rd save.

The victory was only the Brewers' second in 12 tries against the Orioles this season.

Milwaukee scored twice in the first inning off loser Dennis Martinez, 7-16. Paul Molitor led off with a walk and scored on Yount's double down the third base line. Yount scored on consecutive groundouts by Cecil Cooper and Ted Simmons.

The Brewers added two more runs in the third to chase Martinez. Cooper opened the inning with a double and scored on Simmons' double. One out later, Mark Brouhard singled in Simmons, which brought Jim Palmer from the Orioles' bullpen.

Palmer, replaced by Bill Swaggerty in the seventh inning, gave up one run on six hits and struck out one.

Royals 12, Twins 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Butch Davis hit two of Kansas City' four triples and the Royals batted around in the second inning before taking a 12-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins in a game called after 5½ innings because of rain.

The victory went to Bud Black, 10-6, while loser Frank Viola fell to 7-14.

The Royals had 13 hits in only five turns at bat, six of those hits for extra-bases — four triples, Brett's homer and McRae's double.

Mariners 2, Rangers 0

ARLINGTON, Texas — Mike Moore pitched eight shutout innings and Orlando Mercado's eighth-inning single broke a scoreless tie to give the Seattle Mariners a 2-0 victory over the Texas Rangers.

Moore, 6-8, gave up six hits and struck out seven. He left after issuing his only walk of the game to start the ninth and reliever Bill Caudill got the final three outs for his 24th save. Frank Tanana, 7-9, was the loser.

Dave Henderson led off the eighth with a single and was safe at second when Tanana threw late on Darnell Coles' sacrifice bunt. Henderson was thrown out at third on pinch hitter Domingo Ramos' sacrifice attempt, but Mercado followed with a single to center to give Seattle a 1-0 lead.

Seattle added an insurance run in the ninth when Phil Bradley opened with a single, and two outs later scored on Henderson's single.

White Sox 2, Angels 0

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Left-hander Britt Burns fired a two-hitter as the Chicago White Sox blanked the California Angels 2-0.

Burns, who one-hit the Angels two weeks ago in Chicago, surrendered hits to the first two batters and faced only two men over the minimum as he evened his record at 10-10. It was his seventh complete game and fourth shutout.

Gary Pettis opened the first with a bunt single and was thrown out trying to steal second before Steve Lubratich followed with a single to right. Burns permitted only two other base runners, Dick Schofield, hit by a pitch in the third, and Lubratich, who walked in the seventh.

The White Sox scored in the first when Rudy Law led off with a single, stole second for his 74th theft, took third on Scott Fletcher's sacrifice and scored on Harold Baines' sacrifice fly. The other run came in the ninth on Marc Hill's RBI double.

Rookie Steve Brown, 1-3, was the loser.

A's 2, Blue Jays 1

OAKLAND, Calif. — Rickey Henderson lined a one-out single to score Darryl Cias with the winning run in the bottom of the 10th as the Oakland A's edged the Toronto Blue Jays 2-1.

Cias opened the 10th with a single off Toronto starter Jim Clancy, 14-10. Tony Phillips' sacrifice bunt advanced Cias to second and Henderson followed with his soft liner into right-center field.

Mike Warren, 4-3, pitched all 10 innings and allowed seven hits to pick up the victory. He walked two batters and struck out six.

Yankees 9, Indians 1

NEW YORK — Ron Guidry gained his 20th victory with a five-hitter and Dave Winfield drove in four runs, including a two-run home run that capped New York's six-run fourth inning, as the Yankees routed the Cleveland Indians 9-0.

Guidry, 20-9, joined LaMarr Hoyt and Rich Dotson of the Chicago White Sox as American League 20-game winners. Guidry won 20 once before, when he was 25-3 in 1978.

The 33-year-old left-hander, who retired 16 in a row at one point, struck out eight and walked three. It was his 20th complete game, taking the league lead over Detroit's Jack Morris.

Winfield smashed his 31st homer to chase loser Rick Sutcliffe, 16-11. Run-scoring singles by Roy Smalley and Omar Moreno, Ken Griffey's RBI double and Carmen Castillo's fielding error provided the other fourth-inning runs.

Red Sox 5, Tigers 3

DETROIT — Tony Armas drove in four runs with a pair of home runs, including an inside-the-park shot, to back the five-hit pitching of John Tudor and Bob Stanley and lead the Boston Red Sox to a 5-3 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The Tiger loss guaranteed the Baltimore Orioles no worse than a tie for the American League East title.

Tudor, 13-11 surrendered four singles, walked three and struck out three to raise his career record against Detroit to 6-1. All the Tiger runs came in the ninth on a two-out error by Wade Boggs and Lemon's two-run single.

Stanley relieved after the error, allowed Lemon's single, then got the final out to record his 32nd save.

LaJet Classic

Trevino grabs two-stroke lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Lee Trevino, bubbling with the old confidence and possessed of a sound back, will take a two-stroke lead into Sunday's final round of the $350,000 LaJet Coors Classic.

"I think my chances are excellent. I think my chances are outstanding going into tomorrow," Trevino said Saturday after he hit 17 greens in howling west Texas winds that swept away the chances of many would-be contenders.

"I don't putt as well as I used to," Trevino said, "but that doesn't matter that much because I can still play. I can still maneuver the ball.

"My chances tomorrow are excellent. My confidence is good. I'm hitting it well enough. The back is fine.

"Now," he said, "If I can just keep the wheels from falling off one more day . . ."

Trevino, a non-winner on the American tour for more than two years, coaxed a 4-under-par 68 from the 30-35 mile per hour gusts and completed three rounds over the wind-scoured Fairway Oaks Golf Club course in 210, six under par.

The 43-year-old Hall of Famer was afflicted by a painful back problem most of the last two years and that, he said, is the reason he has not won since taking his 26th American tour triumph in the 1981 Tournament of Champions.

"It's not that I haven't won because I lost my game. That's not it," Trevino said. "I haven't won because I wasn't physically able to win."

That chronic back problem was corrected by surgery last year and, Trevino said, "that's the gratifying thing. I can come out to the golf course and hit a driver without pain. Last year I couldn't even put on my underwear."

ANDY BEAN birdied the 18th hole for a 71 that lifted him into sole possession of second at 212, four under par.

Ben Crenshaw and Bill Rogers, native Texans not unfamiliar with these playing conditions, shared third at 213.

"I don't mind playing in the wind, but it was a tough day, a very tough day to play," said Crenshaw who had an erratic effort that included six birdies, four bogeys and eight pars, one of which was saved when he chipped in for the fourth time this week. It added up to a 70. Rogers shot a 71.

National League Braves rally in ninth to defeat Dodgers, 3-2

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Rafael Ramirez singled in the tie-breaking run with one out in the ninth inning to give the Atlanta Braves a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday.

The victory cut the Dodgers' National League West lead to 4½ games over the Braves and left their magic number at five. The Dodgers have eight games remaining, Atlanta nine.

Dale Murphy started the winning rally when he drew a walk and then stole second. It was his 30th stolen base, making him the sixth player in major-league history to have at least 30 steals and 30 home runs in a season. He has 35 homers this year.

After Murphy stole second, Chris Chambliss was walked intentionally by Tom Niedenfuer, 8-3, and Ramirez followed with his liner over short-stop.

The victory went to Pascual Perez, 14-8, who allowed six hits and ended a personal five-game losing streak. It was his ninth attempt at his 14th victory.

National League

Pirates 1, Expos 0

MONTREAL — John Candelaria allowed only three hits in five innings and doubled in the only run to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 1-0 victory over the Montreal Expos to keep the Pirates in the race for the National League East pennant.

Candelaria, 15-8, walked two and struck out six before giving way to reliever Cecilio Guante when his left elbow tightened. Guante pitched the final four innings to record his eighth save.

Candelaria and Bryn Smith, 5-11 were locked in a ptichers duel for four innings. But with two out in the top of the fifth, successive doubles by Dale Berra and Candelaria produced the Pirates run.

Phillies 9, Cardinals 5

ST. LOUIS — Mike Schmidt's 39th homer of the year, a two-run blast, capped a five-run ninth inning as the Philadelphia Phillies topped the St. Louis Cardinals 9-5 Saturday afternoon to extend their winning streak to nine games — their longest streak since 1969.

The victory kept them three games ahead of the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League East.

With the Phils trailing 5-4, pinch hitter Von Hayes opened with a single off Bruce Sutter, 9-10, and pinch hitter Len Matuszek belted an RBI double to tie the game.

Then Cardinals second baseman Jeff Doyle made a wild throw after fielding Greg Gross' routine grounder enabling pinch-runner Bob Dernier to score the go-ahead run. Pete Rose scored Gross with a bunt single and Schmidt followed with his two-run shot to left.

Reds 3, Padres 2

CINCINNATI — Johnny Bench's pinch-hit single scored Paul Householder in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Cincinnati Reds a 3-2 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Dan Driessen led off the ninth with a walk of Sid Monge, 8-3. Householder reached on a fielder's choice and Skeeter Barnes drew a walk.

One out later, Bench grounded a single off Floyd Chiffer to give Reds starter Bruce Berenyi, 9-14, the victory.

Mets 7, Cubs 6

CHICAGO — Brian Giles drove in a four runs with four hits, including a home run, to lead Tom Seaver and the New York Mets to a 7-6 victory ovre the Chicago Cubs.

Giles capped a four-run third inning with his second homer of the season, a two-run shot over the left field wall. It followed singles by Danny Heep, George Foster and Gary Rajsich, the last driving in two runs.

Seaver ran his record to 9-14, striking out five and allowing one run and seven hits in eight innings.

Astros 6, Giants 5

HOUSTON — Terry Puhl drove in two runs to pace the Houston Astros over the San Francisco Giants 6-5.

Winning pitcher Mike Scott, 10-5, led off the second with a single and went to third on Bill Doran's double. Puhl's two-run single finished Mike Krukow, 11-10.

Top-rated Judson posts easy win over SA Lee

By The Associated Press

Running back Chip Lambert scored two touchdowns to spark a Converse Judson running attack that gave the Rockets a 30-6 win over San Antonio Lee in schoolboy football action Friday night.

Judson, top-ranked in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll, racked up 247 yards on the ground in a 17-point third-quarter outburst.

In other Class 5A play, second-ranked Highland Park numbed Mesquite 35-28, No. 3 Odessa Permian whipped Midland 34-12 and fourth-rated Beaumont West Brook blasted West Orange-Stark 21-12.

John Tamasai booted a 30-yard field goal, his first of the season, to begin third-quarter scoring for Judson.

Chris Pryor then scored on a 16-yard run, Lambert ran up the middle for an eight-yarder and Tamasai's two extra points boosted Judson's lead to 30-0.

The Rockets, now 4-0, scored once in each of the first two quarters. Judson's defensive unit broke the scoring ice when Melvin Echard burst through to block Gary Long's punt attempt, catching the ball in the air in the end zone.

Tamasai converted to 7-0 with 8:24 left in the quarter. Lambert dashed 39 yards to a score with 4:03 left in the half, capping a quick six-play, 73-yard march, for a 13-0 lead.

A bad center-snap on a Judson punt attempt enabled Lee to snap a streak of 14 consecutive scoreless quarters with a 4-yard touchdown by Eric Smith.

Highland Park quarterback John Stollenwerck rallied the Scots from a 21-7 halftime deficit, connecting with Lee Blaylock for two fourth-quarter touchdowns. He completed 14 of 16 passes for 312 yards.

Mesquite shocked Highland Park, now 4-0, by leaping to a 14-7 first-quarter lead on two scoring passes by quarterback Jeff Rushing. Danny Frances sprinted 70 yards in the second quarter to put Mesquite on top 21-7 at the half.

The Scots returned to quickly tie the score with short runs by Eric Mays and James Knoll.

But Mesquite again led with a 70-yard scoring drive climaxed by Derrick MacDonald's 1-yard touchdown run. The Scots tied it on a fourth-down, 29-yard touchdown pass from Stollenwerck to Lee Blaylock.

The winning touchdown came with two minutes remaining, as Stollenwerck hit Blaylock again for 38 yards and the score.

Two-way starter Britt Hager rushed for 111 yards and two touchdowns on 18 carriers for Odessa Permian.

The victory was the 10th straight for the Panthers over MHS.

Top Midland passer James Welborn hit Todd Shiplet on a 27-yard bomb to open scoring with 5:30 remaining in the first half. But Permian responded with a drive, capped by the 6-foot, 195-pound Hager, who dashed for 27 yards for a TD. The score followed an eight-play, 74-yard drive.

Next, Mojo's Rex Lamberti hit Kirk Strahan in the end zone for the go-ahead score. Alfred Clark's PAT kick sent the teams into the locker room at the half with the Panthers owning a 13-6 lead.

A one-yard run by Hager and four-yard scramble by Lamberti capped Permian's first two possessions of the second half.

In his final score of the evening, Lamberti fired a bullet to Jerry Burleson in the back of the end zone for a 3-yard scoring pass and Clark booted his fourth PAT of the night to put PHS on top 34-6 early in the fourth quarter.

Just who is Rick Honeycutt, anyway?

By The Associated Press

Just who is Rick Honeycutt, anyway?

Is he the guy who was suspended for taping a tack to his hand to help scuff up baseballs, or he is a sinkerball artist collecting groundouts by the bucket?

Is he someone who wanted to gouge more money from the Texas Rangers, or is he someone who would rather have skipped free agency and remained with the team?

Is he the pitcher who went 5-17 for the Rangers last season, or is he the hurler who might win this year's earned run average title in the American League while also helping the Los Angeles Dodgers to the National League West crown?

"I'm the mild-mannered guy," he says with a laugh, perhaps realizing that he is a baseball enigma.

The Tennessee native is soft-spoken. He also has proven himself at times to be a fairly accomplished pitcher.

But it's those other times, and that tack incident, that continue to haunt him.

Honeycutt, like other sinkerballer pitchers, often has been accused of altering baseballs to make them do tricks. During a game late in 1980, when Honeycutt was with the Seattle Mariners, umpire Bill Kunkel went to the mound and found that the left-hander had taped a tack to his glove hand.

Kunkel ejected Honeycutt, and the pitcher was suspended for the final five days of that season and the first five days of 1981.

"It was a completely insane act," Honeycutt says now. "Everybody plays the game to win. I'll do anything to win, almost. But that was over the limit.

"You have to understand, I had lost 14 of 15 games and I was ready to stick the tack in my head if that would've helped ... It's something that will follow me for the rest of my life."

In three full seasons with Seattle, he compiled records of 5-11, 11-12 and 10-17. Following the 1980 season, he was traded to Texas in a multi-player deal, and he went 11-6 in strike-shortened 1981 campaign before last season's disaster — a 5-17 record and a 5.27 ERA.

Most puzzling was the way his seasons went. He came out of the bullpen to win seven of his first 10 starts in 1979, then got off to a 7-1 start with the Mariners the following season. In 1981, he won eight of his first nine decisions.

A first-half pitcher, he was labeled. The 29-year-old has an explanation.

"Most of the teams I've played for were 20 or 25 games behind in August and September," he says. "You still want to win, but it becomes just a job. It seems like you just go through the motions."

Pitching can be as much mental as physical, and he uses last year as an example.

"I had my tonsils taken out right before the season began, and when the season started I wasn't ready," he says. "I got off to a horrible start and lost my first seven decisions."

In late July, Manager Don Zimmer was fired. That added to Honeycutt's aggravations.

"I was already having a tough time," Honeycutt says. "It was like a circus down there. You felt like you were in a whirlwind and had no control over it.

"I had no feeling for the game and kinda gave up on the year. I had no confidence. I took the mound looking not to lose. I wanted a no-decision.

"I started wondering if my career was over. It made me realize how much the game meant to me."

Honeycutt worked during the winter in the Instructional League with coach Dick Such, a former major league pitcher.

He began this year strong, and by mid-August had a 14-8 record and a 2.42 ERA in 174⅓ innings. He was also in the last year of a contract that was paying $350,000 per season and says he wanted to stay with the Rangers.

So he had a talk with general manager Joe Klein, who indicated that third baseman Buddy Bell, making $575,000 a year, would remain the team's highest-paid player. Texas, however, did not want to lose Honeycutt through free agency.

On August 18, Honeycutt's agent called.

"I thought we'd work out a deal to stay in Texas," Honeycutt says. "But Texas was not going to reach what we were looking for. My agent put it to me this way: 'Texas is not going to sign you. You've been traded to LA. What do you want me to do?' "

Honeycutt liked the idea.

In a waiver deal, Honeycutt went to the Dodgers and Texas received pitcher Dave Stewart and a player to be named later. A week later, Honeycutt signed a five-year pact worth about $3.8 million with Los Angeles.

"I feel like a little kid again," he says. "We're in a pennant race, and that makes coming to the ballpark meaningful."

In his first start in the National League, he held the Philadelphia Phillies to one run in seven innings and got the victory. In his next start, he shut out the Phillies, recording 20 groundouts in the process. Since then, he's lost two games and gotten a no-decision.

Honeycutt's move to the National League could result in an ironic twist.

While he was pitched enough innings to qualify for the American League ERA title, which he is almost certain to win, baseball's official statistics will not add his Texas victories to his National League wins.

That means that, although he could wind up with a combined 20 victories, he won't be listed as a 20-game winner.

Central State wins 31-12 over Howard Payne

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — Bruce Vann rushed for 179 yards and scored on a 67-yard run as Central State of Oklahoma whipped Howard Payne 31-12 in an intersectional college football game Saturday night.

Vann's second-quarter run gave the Bronchos a 17-0 at halftime.

Backup quarterback Alan Wartes threw two scoring strikes to freshman Wade Goddard for all of Howard Payne's points.

Central State, the defending NAIA national champion, is 4-0 on the season. Howard Payne dropped to 1-2.

Cowboys lose rookie McSwain

DALLAS (AP) — Rookie running back Chuck McSwain will be out for the National Football League season, Dallas Cowboys officials announced Saturday.

The Clemson graduate underwent surgery Saturday morning to reattach a tendon on the ring finger of his right hand, said Cowboys spokesman Doug Todd.

Todd also said that wide receiver Tony Hill will not play against the New Orleans Saints Sunday, but that running back Tony Dorsett would start in the game.

Nittany Lions end losing skid, beat Owls, 23-18

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Doug Strang threw two touchdown passes and Nick Gancitano kicked three field goals as Penn State beat the Temple Owls 23-18 Saturday and ended its longest losing streak in seven years at three games.

But Temple threw a scare into Penn State.

Trailing 23-3, the Owls rallied for 15 points in the final quarter on a pair of touchdown passes by freshman Lee Saltz. He threw 44 yards to wide receiver Gene Feingold for one touchdown and a flat pass to Jim Brown which the running back converted into a 52-yard score.

Saltz ran for a two-point conversion after the first touchdown and Temple kicked the conversion on the second.

Strang, who suffered bruised ribs and left the game late in the second quarter, threw 23 yards to Kenny Jackson and 21 to Dean DiMidio to give State a 14-3 first period lead.

Gancitano kicked a 36-yard field goal in the second quarter to give State a 17-3 halftime advantage en route to its first victory of the season after three losses.

The last time Penn State lost three consecutive games was in 1976 to Ohio State, Iowa and Kentucky.

Virginia defeats NC State

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Kenny Stadlin kicked four field goals, including a 49-yarder with 2:58 remaining, to lead Virginia to a 26-14 Atlantic Coast Conference football victory over North Carolina State Saturday.

Stadlin's kicks tied a Cavalier record set by Russ Henderson against Wake Forest in 1977. It also raised Virginia's record to 4-0, its best start since 1952. The Cavaliers are 2-0 to lead the ACC.

While the kicking game was the key to Virginia's victory, it proved to be N.C. State's downfall. Punter Marty Martinussen was droped for a big loss attempting to punt and had another punt partially blocked. That deflection opened the way for Stadlin's second field goal, a 27-yard boot with 11:16 left in the third period to give the Cavaliers a 13-7 advantage.

Alborn proud of 'guys who've come through here'

HOUSTON (AP) — The losing streak is the longest among major colleges, 14 games. The string of non-winning seasons stands at 19, broken only by records of 5-5 in 1970 and 5-5-1 in 1972.

Such is football life at Rice University, where Ray Alborn's first five seasons as head coach produced a record of 12-43. That includes a 2-9 mark in 1978, 1-10 in 1979 and 0-11 last year, when 15 players missed the season with injuries that required major surgery. By contrast, Darrell Royal lost 47 games in 20 years at Texas.

So why does Alborn have a plaque on his desk reading, "You Can Win 'Em All?"

"I'm not proud of my record," says Alborn, whose Owls played Louisiana State Saturday night. "I'm no threat to Bear Bryant. But I'm proud of the guys who've come through here and gone on to be successful. If something happened to me tomorrow, I could die feeling secure that we've helped some kids attain some things.

"In my mind, as long as you feel good about what you're accomplishing, then you can go out with your head held high. I have no regrets about the last five years and I have none about 1983."

A losing record alone does not make a man a loser. Alborn is a winner in life.

"We had just lost a game a couple of years ago and one of our big alumni called me and said, 'Well, you played hard, but you can't win 'em all,'" Alborn recalls.

"I said, 'When you go to a staff meeting do you tell your sales people they can't make all the sales?' He called back the next day and said that bothered him so much he couldn't sleep, so he had the plaque made up."

SINCE JESS Neely left following the 1966 season with a 27-year mark of 144-124-10, which included four Southwest Conference championships, Rice has been coached by Bo Hagan, Bill Peterson, Al Conover, Homer Rice and Alborn. None of them ever had so much as one winning campaign.

Alborn, who played under Neely in the days when Rice was a winner, has spent his entire playing and college coaching career at the school. He returned to Rice in 1972 as an assistant after coaching at the high school level, and he found that things had changed.

"It's not the only game in town like it was when I was a player," he said. "The Oilers weren't here then, the University of Houston was just getting started (as a football power), there was much less competition. And there were no black athletes (in the Southwest Conference) then. The black athlete has made a difference."

With just 2,600 undergraduates, Rice is one of the smallest major football-playing institutions. Being a private school doesn't help, either, when it comes to football. But the school does have some impressive statistics in the classroom.

IN A poll conducted last May by a Houston television station, Rice led the eight Texas members of the Southwest Conference in the number of athletes who enrolled on scholarship, completed their eligibility and earned a degree. Some 51 percent of Rice's four-year scholarship athletes earned degrees, compared with the national average of 43 percent and the national non-athlete average of 42 percent.

And athletes who reached their senior years at Rice had a 95 percent rate of graduation. The average for the eight Texas teams in the SWC is 73 percent. Among the members of the College Football Association, which includes every major football school except the Big Ten and Pacific-10 conferences, Rice trails only Virginia and Duke in graduating its athletes.

"I'm real proud of what we've done with our teams in terms of people graduating and going into the community and being productive people," Alborn says. "We're in the business of educating young people, so there's some validity in what we've done here.

"Graduating that many people doesn't happen by chance. I've got to make concessions, and I do, because I understand the school. We don't have an athletic dormitory; I don't think we need one. We don't have a curfew every night of the week. I think it's unfair to say, 'We want to give you an education,' and then have a nightly curfew. We don't have any night meetings with the team. We can't take them away from night classes. We've got to allow them flexibility to pursue their degree.

"Last year, our starting center had a class and couldn't get to practice on Tuesdays until 5:15; we started at 3:45. During two-a-days this fall, a lot of our freshmen missed three out of four workouts because of freshman orientation.

"I understand what makes this place tick. I understand the university, why it was built. I understand the philosophy here — they want to bring guys in and give them an opportunity to play major-college football and be a true student-athlete. The won-loss record has probably been diluted as a result. I don't think we want a win-at-all-costs program here. But we want to win within the framework of the way it should be done. I think it can be done."

ALBORN HAS one more season on a four-year contract to get it done. After 1984...?

"I'd have been fired with an 0-11 record at a lot of places, but I plan on being here a long time," he says. "The magazine and newspaper people have pretty much cast us as being terrible. But I don't think we're as bad as we're made out to be and I don't think we're that far away from being pretty darn good.

"But you can't have a circus without the animals. The key to the whole thing is the recruiting. Obviously, there are some guys we don't recruit coming out of high school because we can't predict success for them. On the other hand, there are so many guys who can come out and do the job academically and give us immediate help. But we can't take a guy on a shot; we've got to have some indication that he has a chance.

"Expanding our recruiting out of Texas may be an outlet. I love Texas football, but every recruiter in America loves it. With the reputation our school has nationwide, we ought to be able to get 30 good football players a year who can read and write and make a sentence.

"I still believe we can win, but it's not a place for weak sisters, no place for the faint-hearted."

So as much as losing and more losing tears him up inside, Alborn smiles on the outside and rarely loses his sense of humor. But stay back if you're going to make a joke about Rice football.

"Whether I'm on top, on the bottom or in the middle, I resent people poking fun at college football players," he says. "If they want to poke fun at me, that's something else. I'm supposed to have a tough enough hide to withstand it. The pros get paid, but these kids are going to class, lifting weights — and getting ripped. People don't understand what kind of pressure these kids are under. Whether you're No. 1 or No. 1,000, you want the kids to have a pleasant experience.

"I told the kids at our first meeting that I'm gonna stand up and say 'You're the best that ever played this game,' whether I think so or not. I resent somebody taking cheap shots."

oug Hyde's 5-ton limestone sculpture "The Naming" arrives at the useum of the Southwest.

The Museum of the uthwest, 1705 W. Mis-uri Ave., has recently quired Doug Hyde's ve-ton, limestone ulpture "The Naming."

"The Naming" represents Hyde's conceptualization of a Hopi christen-g ceremony. This ceremony involves the child, mother and the child's ints. In Hyde's "The Naming," the mother holds the child and the oldest of e three aunts holds an ear of corn, which represents Mother Earth parti-pating in the ceremony. All are holding one another. It is the aunts who ve the child its name.

Hyde, a Native American of Nez Perce, Chippewa and Assiniboine scent, was born in 1946 in Hermiston, Oregon. Growing up in Idaho, e became attuned to the world of nature, and from his grandfather eard the myths and legends of his ancestors. Memories from this period in s life often find form in his stone sculptures.

In 1963, he enrolled in the Institute of American Indian Arts in Santa Fe, M., where he graduated in 1966. After a year at the San Francisco Art stitute, Hyde enlisted in the U.S. Army.

He was honorably discharged following a grenade wound during his cond tour of duty in Vietnam. It was at that time that he returned to aho and trained as a monument maker under the GI Bill. As a result this training, Hyde mastered the use of power tools which he realized uld facilitate the sculpting of stone.

He returned to the Institute of American Indian Arts in 1971 as a st-graduate student. He established his own studio in Santa Fe in 1974. nce that time he has achieved recognition as a major Native American ulptor.

Hyde does not conceptualize his work by making an initial model. He orks directly in stone using sophisticated power tools which enable im to sculpt quickly, thus releasing an idea while it is fresh.

The primary stones he uses are limestone, alabaster and marble. Because very stone is different and cannot be duplicated, each sculpture is unique. he color, shape and physical compostition of each stone determine the nal creation.

"The stone itself is the exciting part — it suggests the sculpture," lyde says. "There is life in the stone, color and strength."

"The Naming" was a gift from Fred and Novadeen Hogan. It may e viewed in the Thomas Gallery.

Pianist, actor portrays Chopin in midst of crisis

Frederic Chopin's short life during the first half of the 19th century spanned a period when revolutionary fervor spread throughout Europe from Chopin's beloved homeland Poland to his adopted home, France.

Chopin felt a passionate surge of patriotism for Poland's fight to free itself from Russia. Although he desired to be a part of that fight, he was caught in his own struggle to be an artist of consequence.

In his recital-monologue "Chopin Lives," pianist and actor Robert Guralnik, who will be performing with the Midland-Odessa Symphony Oct. 3 and 4, portrays Chopin in the midst of his crises and confusions. Taking the audience back to the 19th century, costumed as Chopin at a soiree, Guralnik recreates the era in which Chopin lived.

"Chopin Lives" will be presented at 8 p.m. Oct. 3 at Odessa's Permian High School Auditorium and at 8 p.m. Oct. 4 at Midland's Lee High School Auditorium. The first half of the concert features the symphony, directed by Dr. Thomas Hohstadt, in a performance of Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Scheherazade."

For ticket information or information on the season call 563-0921. Season memberships, priced at $60 reserved seating, $40 general admission, $20 students and senior citizens, will be available at the box offices the evenings of the concerts. Single admission tickets for symphony performances are also available.

MCT stages 'Taming of the Shrew'

William Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew" opens Friday for nine performances in Theatre Two at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave.

Borrowing heavily from the Italian "Commedia dell' Arte," Shakespeare fills "The Taming of the Shrew" with funny stock characters, such as, the ancient, lecherous wooer, the inept pantaloon, the domineering but ineffectual father and several wily, crafty servants.

Midland Community Theatre's production will be presented in the "Commedia" style, complete with acrobats, jugglers, clowns and a singing dog. The cast of 17 features newcomer Tony Condit as Petruchio, and Marguerite Keane, last seen in "The Good Doctor," as Kate.

Darrell Ward, John Phillips, Jess Kozman, Carl Yowell and Jerry Green, all MCT veterans, appear as fathers, lechers and servants. David Hidinger, Dianne Brown, Toni Botary, Clint Galloway and Scott Inness play pantaloons, lovers and clowns. Newcomers Ben Fly, Stan Williams, Andy Prokopeak, Neal Allen and Josh Jones portray suitors, retainers, pedants and jesters.

The production is directed by Ted Strickland, assistant director at MCT. Set design is by Brett Batterson. Stage mangers are Marilyn Allen and Sally Mogford.

Performance dates are Friday, Saturday, Oct. 1, Oct. 6-9 and 13-15. Reservations may be made by calling Theatre Midland's box office, 682-4111.

Peking Opera to perform Oct. 3

The Peking Opera's Oct. 3 performance at Theatre Midland marks the company's first stop following its U.S. debut in Houston Tuesday.

Members of the company include China's leading performers of classical Chinese opera, the 5,000-year-old art form that combines music, dance, theater, martial arts and acrobatics.

The U.S. tour repertoire includes "The Magic Herb" and "The Broken Bridge" from the fairy tale "Romance of the White Snake;" "Finding the Jade Bracelet" from the traditional play "Famen Temple;" "The Conqueror Bids Farewell to his Concubine" from the classical play "Records of the Historian;" "The Crossroads Inn" from the folk legend "Generals of the Yang Family;" and "Autumn River" from the traditional play "Story of the Jade Hairpin."

This U.S. tour has been arranged by the China Cultural Society of Texas and Louisiana, Inc., in cooperation with the consulate general of the People's Republic of China in Houston and the Beijing-based Chinese People's Association for Friendship with Foreign Countries.

Tickets, priced at $25, may be purchased by writing Midland College Opera, c/o Nancy Anguish, P.O. Box 4763, Midland, Texas, 79704. Tickets for the 8 p.m. performance go on sale at Theatre Midland's box office Monday. There are only about 150 seats left.

Rare metals placed in inks

U.S. ink manufacturers now put trace amounts of rare-earth metal in their products to facilitate the later dating of documents, and they change the trace elements annually. Paper manufacturers put a date code in the watermark and move it every year for the same reason.

Currently working toward a doctorate of musical arts at Louisiana State University, Wiley has a bachelor and master of music degree from North Texas State University. He received a certificate from the Ecole d'Art Americaine, Fountainebleau, France, where he studied with Jean Casadesus, Annette Dieudonne and Nadia Boulanger.

The Thouvenel String Quartet will begin its 1983-84 Chamber Music Series Oct. 15 at 8 p.m. in the Allison Fine Arts Auditorium at Midland College.

The quartet has recently returned from New York City where it performed at the 92nd Street YMHA Concert Hall. This concert was presented by the Argentine Embassy in honor of the composer Alberto Ginastera.

Other recent activities of the quartet include an appearance last April on the NBC Today Show, two concerts at the San Antonio Festival last May and a performance at Carnegie Recital Hall in New York.

Over the summer, the quartet was featured in the June issue of Texas Monthly and recorded two works in Los Angeles for release in 1984.

Members of the Thouvenel are Eugene Purdue and Edmund Stein, violin; Sally Chisholm, viola; and Jeffrey Levenson, cello.

Season tickets are available by calling the Midland-Odessa Symphony, 563-0921, or they may be purchased at the door. Season ticket prices are $20 for adults and $10 for students and senior citizens. Single admission tickets are available at the door.

'Lone Star/Laundry and Bourbon' close Saturday

James McLure's comedies "Lone Star/Laundry and Bourbon" close Saturday at Theatre Midland, 2000 W. Wadley Ave. The production is being staged in Theatre One.

This matched set of plays deals with some of the livelier inhabitants of Maynard, Texas, on a day not too long ago. Both are adult comedies.

"Lone Star" finds brothers Roy and Ray behind Angel's Bar on a Friday night. Roy is doing what he usually does at this time — consume Lone Star, Mars Bars, popcorn, Slim Jims and Beef Jerky. When Ray joins him, they talk of the past, from Roy's 1959 pink Thunderbird convertible to Vietnam. Some startling revelations later in the evening mean both characters must make difficult adjustments. The two are joined by a man they both dislike, Cletis Fullernoy.

"Laundry and Bourbon" takes place in the backyard of Roy's house. His wife, Elizabeth, is worried about him. She is joined by her best friend, Hattie, who has come to escape her high-spirited children and to have a few glasses of bourbon. Both are joined by Hattie's nemesis, Amy Lee Fullernoy, Cletis' wife.

Emergency medicine: A special world

Quick decisions and actions are made in hospital emergency rooms.

Every day presents apprehension and adrenalin, disappointment and diversity, strife and success.

For some, it is a long, continuing shift full of scanners, needles and lights.

For all, it is seeing to elderly people clutching at their chests and youngsters with scraped knees.

There is blood and death — trauma and therapy. There is life and love — births and bandages.

It is emergency medicine, a service provided by those who say there are advantages as well as disadvantages to the practice.

"All aspects of the emergency room are quite interesting, quite rewarding," Dr. J.J. Waller, Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room physician, said during Emergency Medicine Week, which ends Saturday. "But there are certain drawbacks. You lose that relationship that develops with patients over the years, that relationship where you become not only their physician, but their friend."

"It is a challenge," agreed Dr. Larry Birdwell, physician at Midland Minor Emergency Center. "But sometimes you may have only about 20 minutes to see each patient. And sometimes you don't ever get to see them again."

With an increasing use of emergency facilities, eight physicians banded together to make emergency medicine a specialty. In 1968, they organized the American College of Emergency Physicians (ACEP).

In 1979, the American Board of Medical Specialties recognized emergency medicine as a specialty.

More than 83 million Americans visited emergency rooms in 1981, according to the Texas Chapter of ACEP.

While there are 63 residency programs in emergency medicine that have graduated 1,100 physicians with 700 more in training, many of those staffing emergency rooms and clinics today did their residency training in other areas.

Birdwell has a family practice in Forth Worth while Waller had a general practice in Houston.

"A majority of the emergency room physicians are physicians that primarily were involved in some other field," Waller said.

There are about 15,000 emergency physicians and 60,000 emergency nurses in the United States, according to ACEP. All emergency physicians, whether switch-overs from other fields or graduates of emergency residencies, must participate in 150 hours of continuing education programs presented by ACEP every three years, according to ACEP. At least 60 of those hours must be approved by ACEP.

"General practice adequately prepares you," Waller said, explaining his first practice included surgery, maternity, pediatrics, internal medicine and a bit of emergency medicine. "You've been covering the emergency room before there ever were 'emergency physicians.'"

"I almost did an emergency room residency," Birdwell said, "but I liked family practice so much."

Birdwell, who works five to six days a month at the Midland Minor Emergency Center, also practices in emergency rooms around the Dallas-Fort Worth area. He spends about half of his time in emergency rooms and the rest in family practice.

Westwood Medical Clinic's Dr. Rosie H. Walia said she has "the best of both worlds."

"We do both emergency and family practice here — not only for this clinic, but for Midland Minor also," she explained. "We see patients and do follow-ups as well."

At both emergency clinics, patients who are in life-threatening situations are referred to MMH's emergency room. At all three facilities, the patient is encouraged to seek follow-up care with their regular physician, if they have one.

According to Walia, who began and plans to proceed someday with family practice, "emergency medicine encompasses everything. When a person goes through the emergency medicine residency program, they spend more time in the emergency room but they also spend time in sub-specialities.

"The main thing in emergency medicine is you need triage, to determine who is seriously injured and who can wait."

In the minor emergency clinics, Walia and Birdwell said the waiting room can be overflowing or empty.

"It is so varied," Walia said. "It's not like a doctor's office where you can set appointments. You can't predict."

"There is no rhyme or reason — no predicting," Birdwell said. "It changes with the time of year, the weather, what's going on in town. On Saturdays we're always busy — we're snowed in all day long. The weekdays change. We're usually fairly busy when we first open and we usually have a little bit of a rush when the kids get out of school in the afternoons."

For Waller, the scenario is different.

While both of the clinics are limited to minor emergencies, MMH's emergency room — like about 5,000 other hospital-based facilities in the U.S., according to the American Hospital Association — also treats trauma victims.

"We have the actual emergencies, the life-threatening injuries. Then we have the emergencies that are not life-threatening, like fractures, broken bones and lacerations," Waller said. "A considerable part is involved in taking care of medical patients, like the child with the high fever in the middle of the night.

"There also are a certain number of people that utilize the emergency room for routine problems rather than seeking a personal physician," he said.

As a member of a San Antonio-based group of emergency physicians, Waller works one to three 24-hour shifts in the MMH emergency room each week and averages about 50 hours a week as an emergency room physician. As a general practitioner in Houston for 22 years, his work weeks were 70 to 80 hours.

Waller, who also served as a flight surgeon in the Air Force for about four years, said he enjoyed the "wide range of activities" in the emergency room.

"The reason I went into it was in general practice, I always enjoyed the specific aspect of emergency medicine. I think it is the most challenging — diagnostically and therapeutically. You have to make the specific diagnosis under adverse situations — then you have to treat them."

There always is one person in every specialty on call who can be summoned to the emergency room within minutes, Waller said. When more are needed, they are available.

"Sometimes, in very acute emergency situations, we bring everybody in," he said, "the backup — when you have 10, 12, 15 people all devoting their particular expertise to one patient."

Although Waller said he couldn't remember the details of his first life-threatening case, he does remember his feelings.

"When you first begin, you almost always approach all of the problems with apprehension and trepidation.

"But then you have more self-assurance and feelings of security."

Airplane owners may find notices 'taxing'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Flying machines represent tax dollars.

Beginning in October, Roland Wilkinson, chief appraiser for the Midland County Appraisal District, will be sending out tax notices on aircraft and other taxable property. Midland County Tax Assessor-Collector Frances Shuffield will be doing the same.

And for owners of private aircraft, boats and recreational vehicles, those tax notices will reflect something new to Midlanders: They'll be paying taxes on them here for the first time.

"They're not escaping taxation," said Wilkinson.

Of the $4 billion countywide tax base, the 518 private aircraft in Midland County and the RVs and boats represent about $60 million in assessed values or approximately $938,580 in additional revenue for the taxing bodies within the county.

Altogether, Wilkinson collects about $50 million toward operation of the city of Midland, Midland College, Midland Independent School District, and Midland Memorial Hospital. Ms. Shuffield collects about $10 million revenue for Midland County and the Greenwood ISD.

From listings provided through the Federal Aviation Administration and other sources, including the network of fellow chief appraisers in Texas, virtually no aircraft owner will escape paying taxes on aircraft.

BY LEVYING TAXES on taxable properties from land and buildings and from machinery to aircraft, the tax burden for the people theoretically will be lightened.

Further, he says, the premise behind ad valorem — "according to value" — taxes is that "none of us can afford to buy something that we cannot afford."

"I sure would like to live in a $150,000 house, but I can't afford it," allowed Wilkinson. "You don't buy a $150,000 house unless you can afford to buy it and everything that goes with it and that includes the cooling bill."

Wilkinson said he has heard rumors of private aircraft owners moving their aircraft out of Midland Air Park and Midland Regional Airport and hangaring their airplanes elsewhere to avoid paying taxes on them.

It won't work, he said, even if the rumors were true.

"I think there's been a lot of rumors about the number of airplanes that have pulled out of Midland County due to the tax, but I suspect that's based on speculation and not fact," the chief appraiser said. "I believe the downturn of the economy has more to do with it."

EVEN SO, Lewis Travland, manager of Basin Aviation at Midland Air Park, said far fewer aircraft are hangared at Midland Air Park this year than last year. He said he had heard a "couple" of pilots say they were moving their aircraft "because of the tax."

"I just can't do a lot of hard work 'cause you get tired. I still do my farming — 'course, this year, farming hadn't been that hard of a job."

Area resident still awaits chance for life with transplanted liver

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

Friends have helped raise funds and their spirits, but for Jack and Donna Romine, there isn't anything left to do but wait.

Since he was diagnosed in Boston as having scherosing cholangitis last January, Jack knew he couldn't have any more surgeries on his liver.

What he needs is a new one.

Because he towers at 6 foot 3 inches and weighs about 190 pounds, finding a suitable donor could prove difficult.

"As big as I am, I guess there's not that many donors that size," Jack said, grinning sheepishly.

Following surgeries in July 1982 in Lubbock, and last January in Boston, the Big Spring-Stanton area native was told similar surgeries would be of no use.

His disease affects the duct that drains bile from the liver. Because his bile duct was deteriorating and causing blockage, which causes the cells inside of the liver to harden, the surgeries involved shortening the bile duct and tying it back into the small intestine.

When he left Lubbock after the first surgery, his color stayed good for about three or four weeks, Jack, 46, said. When the jaundice set back in, his physician in Lubbock told him to go to Boston.

"I was really kind of nervous about all of that," Jack said, smiling at his wife. "We'd never been up to that part of the country and we figured we'd be treated like total strangers. We were really happily surprised, they treated us great."

He said he was grateful to his physician in Lubbock for getting him into the Boston facility. "It's awful tough to get in there," he said. "It's a small area, and prestigious. My doctor thought they had the best there was — and after being there, I guess they did."

He spent close to 10 days at The Lahey Clinic in Burlington, outside of Boston, where he was operated on and diagnosed with the disease.

"It's such a big outfit in Boston," Jack said. "They knew immediately what was wrong. They did a little work on the bile duct but there wasn't anything more they could do."

The couple was told there wasn't anything left of the duct to operate on.

They were sent to Presbyterian University Hospital in Pittsburgh, Pa., in February to see if he qualified for a liver transplant.

"They run you through a pretty extensive physical and mental test," Donna, 42, said. "He went through about eight days of testing."

"If there is anything wrong with you, they know it," he agreed, laughing. "I even saw a psychiatrist there — I guess they thought I was going nuts."

The couple returned to the Permian Basin and began the long wait.

"We got a call in May from 'em," Jack said. "They thought they had a suitable donor. We got on standby (on an airline) and waited until they could check everything out. They kept us on hold for about three hours and finally decided it wasn't going to be suitable and called it off."

Since then, the waiting and wondering has continued.

Jack takes blood tests every six to eight weeks to monitor his bilirubin count. Bilirubin, an orange bile pigment, increases when the liver cells cannot excrete bile or the bile ducts are obstructed. According to Jack, a normal bilirubin count is 1.0. His last count was 15.1.

He feels fortunate that his life hasn't changed and he doesn't require special medication or treatment for his condition.

"They just told me I could eat anything that didn't hurt," he said. "About the only things I have to stay away from are sauerkraut and uncooked onions.

"My color kind of comes and goes. Besides that, I just can't do a lot of hard work 'cause you get tired. I still do my farming — 'course, this year, farming hadn't been that hard of a job," he added with a wink.

"We still sit and we wait and we think," Donna, a native of Big Spring, said. "But that's gotten better because we deal with it better."

"For a long time, that's all I thought about everyday," Jack said, grinning. "It's just not like going in for a tonsillectomy.

"There are times at night when you wake up and think about it," he said. "But it's gotten better 'cause I used to be awake most of the night."

Friend will live on through happy memories

We buried my friend Martin Scott the other day.

It was a simple ceremony, held in a funeral home chapel in a small West Texas town. There was music and the two Episcopalian priests read several biblical passages. Though my friend was not a deeply religious man — at least not in a conventional sort of way — I think he would have approved.

The Scriptures chosen were upbeat and that was most appropriate. For if Scotty (as he was known to everyone) was anything, it was upbeat. He had a lust for life that was contagious. He loved to laugh. Tell stories. Drink beer. He wanted to be happy and felt it imperative that everyone around him share that feeling. He had no patience for those who wallowed in self-pity. It was not a part of his emotional make-up and, therefore, he couldn't understand it in others.

Scotty was 66 when he died. I'm glad he did. He had a brain tumor and for the past several months had deteriorated badly. At the time it was detected, doctors were not optimistic. They gave him six months, tops. They were close. He lasted a little longer than that, but not by much. And for the last several weeks I'm told he could do little more than smile and nod when a friend dropped by. That's not what Scotty would have wanted. It was not his idea of living.

As the priest quoted from Proverbs, the words flew past me. My eyes, instead, were glued to the casket as memories flooded my slightly-tangled brain. For a few fleeting moments I was somewhere else.

It was the living room of a house I had in Plainview, a small town where he and I had worked together at the newspaper. He had taken early retirement and, to be honest, it was a decision I think he regretted. He was bored.

As a result, he spent more and more time at my house. Usually it was late afternoon when he would show up. He would have a six-pack tucked under one arm, plenty of cigarettes and lots of stories — some old and others new — to share. We would sit for hours at my all-purpose table, drinking, smoking and talking. Actually, he did most of the talking. I just listened and learned.

He was a philosopher of sorts. He read a lot and liked to share his opinions with others. Harry Truman was his favorite president but, though Scotty had served in World War II, he didn't like to talk about it much.

"War rarely accomplishes its intended purpose," he once said, "because we never seem to learn from the past. It just means more young men die and more mothers have broken hearts."

He had other wise sayings, too, and many dealt with money. He appreciated nice things but didn't believe money or material wealth should determine a person's success. Instead, he saw hapiness as the overriding factor.

"Learn to be happy," he often said. "When you go to bed at night be able to say you learned something that day. That you were able to laugh or, better yet, made someone else laugh. Never take happiness for granted. It's too valuable."

He talked about the unhappy people he had known. "You know, a lot of them had money. They were rich. Anything they wanted, they bought. But, you can't buy happiness and, as a result, they were miserable.

"And the sad part," he said, "is that young people seem to be falling into the same way of thinking. They are consumed with money, too. They don't seem to read or think enough. They just stare at the TV set or some video game. Sometimes I want to shake them and yell, 'use your minds.' But that would do no good. Some things you've got to learn from experience. And finding out what is really important in this world is one of them."

Yeah, we buried Martin Scott the other day. But, in at least one mind, he will live forever.

Airplanes, boats, RVs to be taxed

"So many of them (the aircraft) were sold because of the economy," Traviand said, and because other aircraft owners, in Midland to capitalize on the boom of the late 1970s and early 1980s, returned to their original homes after the boom went on the wane.

Nevertheless, Traviand said he was "sorry" that the tax was imposed because of its negative impact on aircraft owners and pilots.

Victor White, director of aviation for the city of Midland, said some aircraft have left Midland due to the impending tax on aircraft.

He said the number of aircraft hangared at Schlemeyer Air Field near Odessa has increased from last year. Other aircraft formerly hangared at Midland Air Park and at Midland Regional Airport have been moved to Harold Vroman's Skyranch Airport southwest of Midland, he said. Owners of aircraft at Skyranch would avoid the city tax of 44 cents per $100 valuation. Still, they would be paying other taxes on those aircraft.

THE COMBINED city, school, college, hospital and county tax for an aircraft hangared in Midland in 1983 would be $1.5643 per $100 valuation. Taxes on a $10,000 aircraft would be about $156.43 per year.

The 1983 tax rate is a half cent increase over last year's combined tax rate of $1.5593. Not included is Greenwood's tax rate of $1.22. The tax rate of each of the five taxing bodies making up the $1.5643 combined 1983 tax rate is: city of Midland, 44 cents; Midland ISD, 77 cents; Midland College, 10.2 cents; the hospital, 7 cents, and Midland County, 18.23 cents.

"If it's the law," White said of aircraft tax, "let's make sure that it's uniform in all counties...and is enforced properly."

Due to the communication system among appraisers in Texas, hardly an aircraft will go untaxed unless the owner lives in and the aircraft is hangared in a county, such as neighboring Martin County, where no tax is yet imposed on aircraft.

Wilkinson cited a case wherein Midland aircraft had been registered in Dallas County. The Dallas chief appraiser sent out tax notices to the aircraft owner, who said he lived in Midland and shouldn't have to pay the taxes in Dallas County. Dallas agreed, notified Midland, and Wilkinson in turn added an additional $2.75 million worth of aircraft on the tax roll. One of the Midland aircraft in the Dallas case was a Learjet, he said.

"That gentleman is now paying taxes in Midland County," said Wilkinson.

"IT'S WORKING the way it should work," the chief appraiser said of the reporting system. "The communication between appraisers is effectively eliminating the escaping of paying taxes."

The chief appraiser for Odessa and Ector County has added aircraft, boats and RVs to the tax rolls there, noted Wilkinson. He suggested that aircraft parked at Schlemeyer Air Field would not go untaxed.

"The communication network between chief appraisers rivals that of Southwestern Bell," he said. "It's true."

Wilkinson said that by law he is obligated to put all taxable property on the tax rolls.

"If you consciously and willfully leave off (certain) taxable property, then where do you draw the line? Assuming we knowingly turn our back, we are placing more and more of a burden on people who do pay taxes," Wilkinson said. "It is my sworn obligation to tax according to law rather than according to principle or theory."

Area man awaits chance for liver transplant

"We like to think we have a pretty positive outlook about it," Donna said. "We have lots of friends and neighbors that have done a lot for us."

A local radio station distributed almost 100 organ donor cards and information about The Living Bank. With the donor's signature and that of two witnesses on the cards, misunderstandings with the donor's family at the time of death can be eliminated.

Before Jack knew he would need a liver tranplant, he said he had never thought about donating organs.

"I always thought of this as happening to someone down the road or something — but never at home.

"I don't tell anyone what to do," he said, "but along with the several fund-raising projects, friends have gotten lots of information from the donor bank and my daughter even filled out a card."

The community in which they have always lived has not only supported them, but turned their tragedy into an event that has brought them all together, the couple said.

An auction is scheduled for the first of October and fund-raising events such as a three-wheel rodeo and a bike-a-thon have been well attended, they said.

"I knew we had friends, but I never knew how many," Donna said.

"The money kind of helps," Jack agreed. "But if you don't have friends, you're pretty much left out in the dark, I think."

Shriners offer advanced burn care for free

By CHRISTOPHER B. DALY

BOSTON (AP) — When David Rothenberg left the Shriners Burns Institute, his mother didn't have to worry about a bill for the 3½ months of care given the 7-year-old boy.

It was all free of charge — multiple operations, blood transfusions, skin grafts, tests, nursing and therapy to treat burns that covered 90 percent of his body.

"We don't charge any child or parent a dime," said Harold Foley, a spokesman for the renowned burn treatment facility. "It's all free regardless of race, color, creed or sex up to a child's 18th birthday. Nor do we accept third-party payments from insurance companies, the government or anybody else."

That philosophy has guided the 19 orthopedic hospitals for crippled children in North America run by the Shriners since 1922. It also applies at the group's three 30-bed burn centers — in Boston, Cincinnati and Galveston, Texas — which opened in 1968.

"Even though it's free, we have the very best," Foley said. At the Boston unit, doctors must be on the staff of neighboring Massachusetts General Hospital or hold an appointment at Harvard Medical School. Salaries are competitive with other major medical facilities.

Attention centered on the Boston burn center Friday when the Rothenberg boy was released. David was severely burned in March when his father, who is divorced from David's mother, doused the boy with kerosene and set fire to their motel room. The father, who said he feared losing his visitation rights, drew a 13-year prison sentence.

The Shriners, an outgrowth of the Masonic movement, are a fraternal organization known formally as The Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine for North America. Their 940,000 members — all men — devote their energies to raising money through rodeos, circuses and other events to support the hospitals.

"It is our only charity," Foley said. He said 98.5 cents of every dollar collected goes directly to patient care.

Foley said he had no details on the cost of treating David Rothenberg. "We don't run a tab, but you can bet it's a lot of money," he said. "We take on any patient we have room for."

Most cases are referred from physicians at other hospitals.

"But we do have empty beds, and we don't like it," he said. "An awful lot of peole don't know about us, and the sad thing is, an awful lot of doctors don't know about us either."

The group began in 1872 in New York City on the initiative of prominent Masons "who wanted an organization that was less ritualistic and more social," Foley said.

There are now 185 Shrine Temples in the United States; members are drawn from the ranks of the 3 million U.S. Masons.

"By around 1918, we had probably 60 temples, but each of these shrine temples was doing its own thing — its own charity locally," Foley said. "But in 1918, the shrine temples were proliferating at such a rate that the Imperial Council decided that it was time to call a halt to this business and have one philanthropy and work for that.

"At that time, tuberculosis and rickets were prevailing diseases that children were afflicted with, so the Shriners decided to open a hospital for children of Shriners who had those diseases and take care of them," he said.

"That lasted one year. By 1922, it was decided to change the whole concept and open a Shriners hospital for all crippled children." The first was in Shreveport, La. By 1960, 18 others were built in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

The Shrine medical system now operates on a $96 million annual budget. The money comes from a combination of sources: each Shriner contributes a $5 annual "hospital assessment," the local Temples raise more money through special events and interest from an endowment generates the rest.

The endowment is supported by bequests and contributions. More than half the donations are from non-Shriners, Foley said. "It's all voluntary, we never pass the hat."

Since 1922, he said, Shrine hospitals have "cured or substantially helped" 280,000 boys and girls, including 11,000 burn patients.

Natural gas bill's backers rally to drum up support

By The Associated Press

Backers of federal legislation to hold down natural gas prices went door to door and held rallies Saturday to drum up support for the measure and point out members of Congress who don't favor it.

Michigan Gov. James Blanchard declared Saturday and Sunday "Gas Protest Days" and said, "The natural gas situation across the nation has developed into a crisis in all areas for consumers."

Chicago Mayor Harold Washington issued a similar proclamation, saying the city "is deeply concerned about the inability of Chicago families to meet their monthly heat bills...."

The Reagan administration contends that deregulation of natural gas prices would encourage exploration, bringing new gas sources and increasing domestic supplies, ultimately driving prices down.

Actions in various cities around the nation were sponsored by the Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition, an organization of labor unions and consumer groups pushing for passage of a House bill that would roll back natural gas prices, extend price controls through 1987 and create more competition in the industry.

The Natural Gas Consumer Relief Act is "the main alternative to the Reagan plan for total deregulation of gas prices," said Tom Chalkley, a coalition member who held a news conference in Baltimore.

OUR FOUNDING FATHERS gave us a Constitutional Republic. Because of them, we were born free. Nevertheless, we could die slaves because we have lost sight of basic truths.

1. Freedom cannot exist without morality. The phrase immoral free men makes no more sense than dry water. Unless we have sufficient character and moral fortitude, we will not be able to govern ourselves.

When morality declines, the abuse of rights increases and more government is necessary. Just as criminals need jailers and domesticated animals need herdsmen, an immoral citizenry needs a police state. If we ever abandon our morality and adopt instead the law of the jungle, we will lose our freedom.

2. Ignorant and free can never be. In order to be capable of self-government, we must not only be moral but informed. If we are not informed, we will tend to vote for the politician who promises the most. We will vote for more and bigger government until one day we have total government.

An uninformed electorate, whether moral or immoral, will vote itself into slavery. Only a moral, well-informed electorate will vote for men of principle who will limit government to its proper Constitutional role.

3. Our rights come from God. When God created man, He gave him certain inalienable rights. Because rights existed prior to men joining together to form governments, the purpose of government is only to protect these rights. It cannot be to grant us rights that we already have. Nor can it be to legislate out of existence rights that are inalienable.

Our form of government is based on this fundamental truth. If we ever abandon it, we will lose our form of government.

4. The essence of freedom is the limitation of government. Because men are not angels, some government is necessary to secure our God-given rights. Because government officials are men, the powers of government must be strictly limited and constantly held in check.

The U.S. Constitution limits the powers of the Federal Government. Nonetheless, much that the Federal Government does today is unconstitutional. We have allowed this abuse of authority to occur because we have forgotten basic truths. We will preserve our freedom for future generations only if we recall the wisdom of our fathers and get back to basics!

1. H.R. 2957, INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND. The most controversial provision of this bill authorizes an $8.4 billion increase in U.S. participation in the International Monetary Fund. However, H.R. 2957 is much more than an I.M.F. bill. It also extends the life of the Export-Import Bank and authorizes U.S. contributions to the Inter-American Development Bank, the Asian Development Bank and Fund, and the African Development Fund. Representative Ron Paul (R.-Texas) estimates the total U.S. commitment in the bill at about $25 billion. (H.R. 2957 was passed 217-211. Congressional Record 8/3/83, pp. H6439-40, roll call 320.) Total Cost: $25 Billion	$298	★
2. H.R. 2973, INTEREST AND DIVIDEND TAX WITHHOLDING. The Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 imposed a 10 percent withholding tax on dividends and interest to become effective on July 1, 1983. H.R. 2973 would repeal this withholding tax, thereby reducing revenues by an estimated $13.4 billion for fiscal 1983-88. (A motion to suspend the rules and pass H.R. 2973 was agreed to 382-41. Congressional Record 5/17/83, p. H3016, roll call 123.) Total Savings: $13.4 Billion	$160 (savings)	★
3. H.R. 1983, EMERGENCY HOUSING ASSISTANCE. This bill authorizes $760 million in fiscal 1983 to provide temporary loans for unemployed homeowners threatened with foreclosure. And it authorizes $100 million in fiscal 1984 for shelters for the homeless. (It was passed 216-196. Congressional Record 5/11/83, p. H2831, roll call 106.) Total Cost: $0.86 Billion	$10		X
4. H.R. 3021, UNEMPLOYMENT HEALTH INSURANCE. H.R. 3021 authorizes fiscal 1983-85 block grants to states that wish to provide health insurance to the unemployed. It also authorizes grants to help hospitals care for needy, uninsured individuals. 5. H.R. 2780, REVENUE SHARING. H.R. 2780 entitles local governments to share $5.02 billion a year in federal funds in fiscal 1984-86. Because the Federal Government is operating in the red, and will have to go further in debt to provide this aid, the local governments will actually be sharing debt — not wealth. The appropriations included $13.8 billion for domestic food programs such as food stamps. TRIM IS A NON PROFIT, NON PARTISAN EDUCATIONAL ORGANIZATION. THE VOTES ABOVE ARE TAKEN FROM FROM THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

A Government Of Laws . . . Or Of Men?

BECAUSE MEN CREATED governments (and not vice versa), the rights of government are based on the God-given rights of the individual. An individual has the right to defend his life, liberty, and property; therefore, he also has the right to join with others and form a government to protect his rights. An individual does not have the right to violate the rights of another, and neither does government.

Government should be large enough to secure our God-given rights but not large enough to violate these rights. Anyone who understands this comprehends the proper role of government.

If there were no government whatsoever, our rights would not be secure. Individuals acting alone would be unable to protect their liberty against the criminal acts of unjust men. In the absence of any organized government, anarchy would prevail. Ultimately, the criminals would take control and enslave their fellow citizens.

Our rights also would not be secure under a system of total government control. Such a government might grant its citizens privileges from time to time, but it could also take away those privileges on a whim. Whenever government has total power, individuals have none. Remember, the root of the word totalitarian is total!

Communism and Nazism are not at opposite ends of the political spectrum as the public has been led to believe. They are ideological twins! Both are totalitarian, and both are examples of 100 percent government control.

Our rights can only be secure under limited government. Liberty is a way station between anarchy (no government) on one end of the political spectrum and totalitarianism (total government) on the other end.

Preserving liberty for ourselves and future generations is no easy task. As George Washington warned, "Government is not reason; it is not eloquence; it is force! Like fire, it is a dangerous servant and a fearful master." Because our Founding Fathers realized that government, like fire, had to be contained, they gave us a government of laws and not of men. They created a republic and not a democracy.

A democracy is majority rule and is destructive of liberty because there is no law to prevent the majority from trampling on individual rights. Whatever the majority says goes! A lynch mob is an example of pure democracy in action. There is only one dissenting vote, and that is cast by the person at the end of the rope.

A republic is a government of law under a Constitution. The Constitution holds the government in check and prevents the majority (acting through their government) from violating the rights of the minority. Under this system of government a lynch mob is illegal. The suspected criminal cannot be denied his right to a fair trial even if a majority of the citizenry demands otherwise.

We will either be governed by laws or ruled by men. Because of man's nature, rule by men has always ended in tyranny. Only under a government of laws will our God-given rights be secure. ● ●

Communism Nazism Fascism	Democracy		Republic	Anarchy

HAVE YOU BEEN DECEIVED?

QUESTION: When the Founding Fathers established our government, they gave us: (a) a democracy, or (b) a republic?

The question is basic, and the correct answer should be known to every schoolchild. Nevertheless, if you have been led to believe that our country is a democracy, you have been deceived.

Not only did our Founding Fathers establish a republic, they greatly feared democracy. James Madison, known as the father of the U.S. Constitution, wrote in "Essay #10" of The Federalist Papers: "... democracies have ever been spectacles of turbulence and contention; have ever been found incompatible with personal security or the rights of property; and have in general been as short in their lives as they have been violent in their deaths." Although such an attitude will surprise most Americans, it is accurate.

The U.S. Constitution does not contain the word democracy. It does "guarantee to every State in this Union a republican form of government . . . ." Also, when we recite the pledge of allegiance to the flag, we say, "to the Republic for which it stands," and not "to the Democracy."

The difference between a republic and a democracy was once widely understood in America. The U.S. War Department (superseded by the Department of Defense) taught that difference in a training manual (No. 2000-25) published on November 30, 1928. This official U.S. government document, used at the time for the training of American military personnel, said of democracy:

"A government of the masses. Authority derived through mass meeting or any other form of 'direct' expression.

Results in mobocracy.

"Attitude toward property is communistic — negating property rights.

"Attitude toward law is that the will of the majority shall regulate, whether it be based upon deliberation or governed by passion, prejudice, and impulse, without restraint or regard to consequences.

"Results in demagogism, license, agitation, discontent, anarchy."

It went on to state: "Our Constitutional fathers, familiar with the strength and weakness of both autocracy and democracy, with fixed principles definitely in mind, defined a representative republican form of government. They 'made a very marked distinction between a republic and a democracy . . . and said repeatedly and emphatically that they had founded a republic.'"

If you have been misled as to the type of government we inherited, you should ask why. ★★

Is It Constitutional?

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT operates under specific powers granted to it by the U.S. Constitution. Congress does not have the authority to make any law it chooses; it is bound by this Constitutional mandate.

The Constitution authorizes the Federal Government to protect our God-given rights and to provide for the common defense. It does not authorize federal to provide foreign aid handouts, temporary loans for unemployed homeowners, unemployment health insurance, subsidized housing units, food stamps, agricultural price supports, or other share-the-wealth schemes.

Please study the votes in this Bulletin. Much of this legislation is unconstitutional; yet, the House voted for passage. This abuse of authority has occurred because we have lost sight of basic principles.

Your Congressman has taken an oath to uphold the Constitution. Whenever a new bill comes up for a vote, he should ask himself: Is It Constitutional? If it is unconstitutional, he should vote against it. If he does not vote against unconstitutional legislation, you should ask him why. ■ ■

The price of freedom is eternal vigilance. An uninformed electorate will vote itself into slavery; an informed, moral electorate will vote for men of principle who will limit government to its proper, Constitutional role. This kind of in-depth understanding comes from staying abreast of a politician's record as well as his rhetoric. It comes primarily from year-round educational labors and not from political campaign rhetoric.

Tax Reform IMmediately (TRIM) is a nonprofit, nonpartisan network of educational committees organized by The John Birch Society to bring about "lower taxes through less government." If you wish to learn more about us, please mail this coupon to the committee that published this Bulletin.

City staff makes 'tactical retreat'

Midland's needs examined, priorities set

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

It's taken three sessions — each fall since 1981 — but Midland City Council and the City Hall staff may finally be pulling things together.

Two years ago, a boom slammed into the city and both council and staff were backed into a corner, unable to cope with the resulting problems. They discovered no long-range planning had been made, and the city was falling farther behind every day in trying to answer the needs.

Lyle Shumec, a municipal government affairs expert, was called in from Denver and the city troops gathered in Ruidoso, N.M., for a three-day retreat.

Out of that session came some priorities — problems that needed to be addressed immediately and on the long-range scale.

By this year's session in early September, the staff and council could see where some of those priorities have been addressed, said Mayor G. Thane Akins.

"BECAUSE OF THE boom, we never gave any thought to long-range, even mid-range, problems," he said. "No one had any time."

By way of lecture and group discussions, Shumec pulled the various groups together and "got everyone's thinking out on the table."

They talked about issues — big, little and in-between. Then they began to decide which ones were more important than others. And finally a priorities list was made and accepted.

The priorities list, said the mayor, would allow the council and staff at next year's retreat to gauge how much they had accomplished.

"A lot of those we set out in 1981 we'd accomplished by this year. And there was a high percentage under way.

"It's not a comprehensive master plan, but you're less likely to overlook a major issue if it's on a list and you can look at it and remember to check on it. The staff knows then it's their responsibility" to see the priorities are addressed.

Since that boom year of 1981, Midland's economy has reversed. But the problems, said Akins, are still similar. Two years ago, the top priorities were streets, water and effluent. This year it's the same plus Air Park.

WATER WAS PLACED at the top of the priorities list. The drought was cited as one reason. But complicating matters is a suit pending before the Texas Supreme Court that could kill Stacy Dam, according to the mayor.

Stacy Dam had been approved in the late 1970s, after months of testimony, to be constructed as part of the Colorado River Municipal Water District to serve its customers, of which Midland is one.

Akins holds little hope the dam project will be approved by the court, noting six writs of error have been accepted. The project can be killed if only one is found to be correct, and the attorneys aren't optimistic.

"Member cities (of CRMWD) have a real problem for growth in the future" without Stacy Dam, Akins said.

The drought and Stacy Dam, however, forced those who operate the city machinery to realize they need to start today on solutions. The city will begin looking at expanding Paul Davis well field. When the recently completed expansion was undertaken a few years ago, planning showed it should take the city up to 1990. "We're almost at that point," said Akins in pointing out the city's needs grew faster than expected.

City staff will begin a study on another expansion soon, he said.

A RESERVE FIELD to the west of Midland may have to be developed. T-Bar Ranch lies in Ward County, and Akins is considering appointing a blue ribbon committee to study how best to handle that project.

And an immediate solution would be conservation, said Akins. "That should be our number one priority. It's the quickest and cheapest way to keep water. We need to keep it from running down the streets. It's a waste of a precious resource and is damaging our streets."

Rationing isn't a consideration in the near future, he said, unless the drought continues and Stacy Dam is killed.

Streets ranked second on the priorities list. "We realize there's still a major problem, but it's a matter of money. We'll put as much in our budget as we can for maintenance. But when you talk of rebuilding streets you get away from ordinary budget items and you're looking at bond issues."

A comprehensive master plan for the city is a third priority, and that is about half finished.

Fourth on the list is making a decision about Midland Air Park. The council has advertised some of Air Park land for sale in hopes of getting a bid that would offer sufficient land in trade to move the facility, or enough money to make the switch. If the bids aren't what the council wanted, said the mayor, "it wouldn't necessarily kill the project, just slow it down."

THIS WAS THE best retreat of the three, assessed Akins. "We really felt more like a team."

Shumec designs the retreat to "open up communication — to show how or why the lack of it hurts and how it can help to solve problems. The staff gets a better feeling of what the council is thinking and vice versa. You get to know each other better and it helps when you get back to the day-to-day problems."

Midland may not have another boom like it did in 1981, said the mayor, but the city still should grow at a good rate. "So we need to plan ahead and be ready for it."

THIS WEEK IN GOVERNMENT

City Council to consider park

Developing a park and prohibiting dogs from enjoying it with wild abandonment will be decided by the Midland City Council when it tackles a 60-item agenda Tuesday. The meeting starts at 10 a.m. in City Hall Council Chambers, 300 N. Loraine St.

Midland Jaycees several months ago voted to develop the Downtown Park as one of its projects. Representatives of that organization will present plans and information on the park's development.

In addition, the council will look at an ordinance which would prohibit unleashed dogs in city parks except under certain conditions. It would also keep them out of Windlands Park Jogging Trail.

Planning Department will submit revisions to the Major Street Plan. And the Public Works Department will review streets to be rebuilt with funds from the 1983-84 budget.

The council will consider establishing three new school zones and four new stop sign locations.

A representative to the Midland County Appraisal District will be nominated by the council.

After hearing arguments at the Sept. 7 meeting on the qualities of NCR and Burroughs computer systems, the council will make a decision on which bid to accept. NCR's was lower, according to comments made at the last meeting, but a Burroughs system is in use by the data processing center. The system being purchased will be installed at the Police Department and Municipal Court.

Other items include granting a franchise to Classic Limousine Ltd. to operate a limousine service, hearing a request from Midland Center for funds for capital improvements and major building maintenance, approving statements from Midland Arts Assembly and discussing relocation of utilities in connection with the new effluent disposal area.

Public hearings are slated for 1:30 p.m. on assessment paving projects; 2 p.m. on a specific use permit for sale of all alcoholic beverages in a restaurant on the south side of Loop 250 west of Garfield Street; 2:05 p.m. on a specific use permit for sale of all alcoholic beverages in a restaurant east of Big Spring Street south of Palmer Drive; and 2:15 p.m. on annexation of a windowpane area south of Highway 80, between Cotton Flat Road and Johnston Street.

MISD Trustees

Midland school trustees will consider recommendations to close one block of C Street and one block of Ohio Avenue near Midland High School and to implement a summer internship program for juniors and seniors planning to pursue professional careers.

The board also will hear an analysis of population trends within the school district, consider approving the matching annuity program for employees and establish budget goals and guidelines for 1984-85. The meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the board room in the administration building.

IRS agent killed

CHEEKTOWAGA, N.Y. (AP) — A former employee of the Internal Revenue Service shot and killed a visiting IRS agent in his kitchen, officials said Saturday.

Cheektowaga police filed a second-degree murder charge against James F. Bradley, 63, who met officers at the door of his suburban Buffalo home Friday afternoon and led them to the body of the slain tax man.

Michael J. Dillon, 61, an IRS agent from Batavia, was shot at least three times with an M-1 carbine, a short-barreled military rifle, authorities said. Tax documents were scattered around the kitchen.

Cheektowaga police refused to speculate on a motive for the slaying. Lt. Fred Netzel said Bradley owed back taxes to the IRS, but said, "It wasn't very extensive." He refused to disclose the amount.

Bradley also could be charged with murdering an on-duty federal agent, a federal crime punishable by death "in certain circumstances," U.S. Attorney Salvatore Martoche said.

"There was some employment with the IRS in the past," said Bradley's lawyer, Terrence Connors, but Bradley had not been an agent. Connors said Bradley, who was retired, also had worked as a high school teacher and held other jobs, which he refused to specify.

The FBI said IRS District Director Marshall Capelli asked its agents to enter the case, and that lawyers for the U.S. attorney and Erie County district attorney were discussing whether to prosecute the case first in state or federal courts.

Bradley reported the slaying to police through an acquaintance, a retired sheriff's deputy, and was charged by Cheektowaga police with second-degree murder and weapons possession.

Bradley met the officers at his front door and led them to the kitchen, where Dillon's body lay in a pool of blood, Cheektowaga Officer Kenneth Jezioro said.

Local tastes in video cassette movies compare with what people are buying and renting nationwide.

Midlanders pick same movies

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

How do local tastes in video cassette movies compare with what people across the country are buying and renting?

They're pretty evenly matched, according to a Reporter-Telegram random survey of three video cassette outlets in Midland.

Based on next week's issue of Billboard magazine, the top-five sellers nationwide for the week ending Oct. 1 are:

"Flashdance", "48 Hours", "Jane Fonda's Workout", "An Officer and a Gentleman" and "The Outsiders."

The top-five rentals nationally are: "Flashdance", "48 Hours", "Porky's", "Bad Boys" and "The Verdict."

At Folger's Home Entertainment Center on Andrews Highway, "Officer and a Gentleman" and "Porky's" are both pretty big right now, said Manager Jim Shupe.

"We just got 'Flashdance,' and it's doing pretty good. So is '48 Hours.' It's a big one. And we get a lot of requests for oldies like 'Casablanca.' Clint Eastwood, Burt Reynolds and Elvis Presley are big, too. We do stock them — along with over 1,000 other titles.

"We sell very, very few movies. Most are rented. You can pay up to $150 for movies like 'The Godfather,' while you can rent them for as low as $2.86 a day. No, we don't handle porno tapes. I understand you can get them at some places in Odessa."

It's pretty much the same story at Video Concepts on North Midkiff, said Assistant Manager Russell Willingham:

"'Jane Fonda's Workout' has been number one for the past 30 weeks. We sell 10 times more Jane Fonda than any other."

Most tapes sell for between $59.90 and $89.90 at Video Concepts. "Warner Brothers has just come out with a line of $39.90 tapes," noted Willingham.

"The main reason is that they were losing money because, even though it's illegal, some people will rent a tape and then tape their own from it. We get a few requests for porno tapes, but we're a family-oriented store.

"However, we do stock the Playboy tape series (considered soft porn). They rent pretty well — mostly to middle-aged people."

The best rentals at Albertson's supermarket on Andrews Highway are, according to camera department manager Sam Dama, consist of:

"An Officer and a Gentleman", "Porky's", "Flashdance" "Jane Fonda's Workout" and "48 Hours."

"We carry oldies, too," said Dama. "Things like 'Rebel Without A Cause' and '42nd Street.' Nobody comes out and asks for pornos. We stay away from them."

Asking to remain anonymous, one local man said while he can't find X-rated flicks in Midland, he does rent them for party occasions from the Video Cassette Center on Grant Street in Odessa:

"It's run by a couple of sweet, little old ladies — honest. You can get most anything you want, from 'Debbie Does Dallas' to 'Deep Throat.'

"It's a legitimate video outlet, but they also have about 30 X-rated films. You have to put up a $125 deposit. If you don't return the movie, they keep the deposit."

According to store manager Elsie Underwood, the outlet complies with all state and city laws and does not advertise hardcore movies:

"'Up And Coming' and 'Insatiable' are our biggest, and 'Debbie Does Dallas' is still among the top. We do not rent or sell to anyone under 21."

As for "legitmate" movies, the top-three at Video Cassette in Odessa are about the same as those in Midland, she added:

"Jane Fonda's Workout", "Flashdance" and "48 Hours".

Joyce Brothers to address luncheon

The noted psychologist, columnist, author, business consultant, wife and mother was named, for the sixth year, in George Gallup's annual poll of the most admired women.

A United Press International poll named her one of the most influential American women and a survey conducted by the Greenwich College Research Center listed her among the 10 most admired by college students.

She was ranked tenth in the "Women in the World Most Admired" by Good Housekeeping magazine, for which she is a regular columnist.

As a consultant for the business world, Dr. Brothers creates and performs in films and seminars designed for corporate personnel training programs. She also is a television and radio news commentator and has appeared as a guest on several television talk shows.

A graduate of Cornell University, she received her doctorate from Columbia University. She is married to Dr. Milton Brothers, an internist, and resides in New York City.

Local group for deaf to join protest

Midessa Association of the Deaf, Inc., will sponsor a demonstration from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at KOSA-TV, the local CBS affiliate, according to Charles Archer, secretary for the association. About 35 to 50 persons are expected to participate.

This will be part of the national demonstration at CBS station affiliates called by the National Association of the Deaf to bring their displeasure and frustration to the attention of CBS policy-makers. This year CBS said that Extravision, the name of the teletext system, is being broadcast and has been since April.

It is being broadcast, acknowledged Archer, "however, no teletext decoders are available so no one can see the Extravision captions. Some decoder manufacturers are interested in developing and marketing teletext decoders. The prices they are discussing are very high. No teletext decoders are likely to be available for deaf people to purchase at a reasonable price for several years."

Dating service 'caters' to overweight

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Fed up with the notion that thin is in, Milton Beckner has started a dating service for singles with hungry hearts and heavy bodies.

"Me being heavy and at one time single, I understand the loneliness of heavy people, of being ostracized from the crowd. What we're trying to do is put together some people who are compatible and understand those feelings," the 5-foot-5, 245-pound Beckner said Saturday.

"Overweight people can be sensitive. We know how they feel because we're heavy people, too," added his wife Mary, a 5-5 190-pounder.

Beckner, 31, a laid-off dental technician, organized the Heavy Dating agency out of his suburban Wilkinsburg home about 2½ months ago. Overweight since childhood, he'd tried to lose weight but eventually gave up.

"Why try to lose weight just to please somebody else? If they aren't happy with my attitude, my personal faults or likes or dislikes, they don't want me as a friend, they want somebody else," he said.

Although Beckner didn't have too much trouble finding dates during his single days, he knew many overweight people who did.

"Sooner or later in any relationship, there's a familiar line that comes up: 'You'd be so beautiful if you just lost 20 or 30 or 40 pounds or so.' Weight becomes an issue," he said.

Within a month after advertising Heavy Dating in local newspapers, Beckner received more than 100 calls. Another 200 inquiries came in after he appeared on talk shows.

Only about 30 have actually joined the club. For $40, members receive other members' names, phone numbers, vital statistics and interests for six months. Additional six-month memberships cost $20.

Most members are women, ranging in age from 25 to 62 and carrying anywhere from a few extra pounds to a few hundred extra pounds.

"Men are too macho to come to a dating club," he said, "while women are accepting the fact that 'I may meet Mr. Right.'"

Daryl Sessions, Tony Sorensen and Chip Sorensen, cadets of the Midland Composite Squadron, Civil Air Patrol, recently spent a weekend at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo. They were met at Midland Regional Airport by an Air Force C-130, and with 60 other CAP cadets, were flown to the Air Force Academy for an orientation.

Academy officials briefed the CAP cadets on the qualifications and requirements to attend the academy. They also toured cadet quarters, visited the Air Force Museum and the academy chapel. The cadets were also shown prototypes of military aircraft and aircraft used to teach Air Force Academy cadets to fly.

The visit to the Air Force Academy is just one of many activities available to the members of the Civil Air Patrol.

Midlanders killed

Two Midland men were killed in a one-vehicle rollover Saturday when the flat-bed truck they were in overturned, exploded and burst into flames, according to Department of Public Safety reports.

Pronounced dead at the scene were Raymond L. Murray, 35, driver of the truck, and Melton Gale Akins, 23.

The accident occurred at 4:30 p.m. four miles west of Odessa on Interstate 20.

The truck was eastbound on I-20 when it left the pavement and hit a highway sign. The driver attempted to pull back on the road, causing the vehicle to slide sideways and overturn, according to a DPS spokesman. The vehicle came to rest on its top, exploded and burned, the spokesman said.

Akins, who was partially ejected from the truck, was pronounced dead at the scene at 6 p.m. by Justice of the Peace R.G. Hungerford. Murray was also pronounced dead at the scene at 5:10 p.m. by Justice of the Peace Virgil Lumpee. Both men were taken to Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home in Odessa.

WOODMAN DISTRIBUTING COMPANY
2000 Market St. - Midland

Give-away canceled

ORANGE, Texas (AP) — A non-profit agency has stopped distribution of government surplus cheddar cheese that started smelling like limburger and producing a gas that balloons the plastic packaging.

The surplus cheese was being distrubted by Programs for Human Services to low-income families in Liberty, Chambers, Hardin, Jefferson and Orange counties.

Don Johnson, co-director of the agency, said distribution was halted last week after "several hundred" of the 40-pound cases appeared to be contaminated.

The foul-smelling cheese produces a gas that bloats the air-tight plastic packaging surrounding each of the two-pound blocks. Some of the bloated cheese burst open the cardboard cases but the plastic wrapping was not broken, Johnson said.

"The cheese appears to be undamaged," Johnson said.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration told agency officials to repackage the cheese.

Book sale collection continues

Friends of the Midland County Public Library will hold its Book Sale Drive to collect books, magazines, records and other library items Oct. 3-7 at the old U.S. Postal Service depot in the 200 block of West Industrial Avenue.

Friends will be taking book donations that week from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on the west side of the building, which is also known as the Blanton Warehouse. The site is directly south of the downtown library.

Books, select periodicals and other material will be put up for sale Nov. 4-6 in the Friends' 16th annual Book Sale in the Midland County Exhibit Building.

The Friends organization has been collecting books for the sale since the 1982 sale, which grossed about $9,200 to benefit the library.

The group is particularly interested in getting hardcover and paperback fiction, Westerns and science-fiction books, which are popular in the sale, said Mary Mann, Friends board member and book-drive worker.

"The hardcover fiction sells well," said Mrs. Mann. "We're going to have a good selection of children and young adult books...because the library is clearing them out."

"We'll be glad to have all the books we can," she said.

Specialized magazines, such as those dealing with architecture, art, nature, history, antiques, computers, and travel, are needed.

Books in the disciplines, including the arts, sciences and humanities, may be donated. There's already plenty of textbooks in storage for the sale, Mrs. Mann said. "We have enough Reader's Digest (condensed) books for 1984."

Reference books, autobiographies, biographies and encyclopedias are sought-after sellers.

Last year, the Friends collected an estimated 20,000 books and uncounted magazines for the three-day sale, which grossed more than $9,200. The 1981 sale took in almost $8,600.

Friends President Rob Sutphen noted that a "tremendous" amount of books are needed to make the books sale really successful.

Proceeds from the annual sale go toward enhancing the library in forms other than books. The Friends recently purchased a computer for use by library patrons and is considering buying another for use in the library's business department, said Sutphen. Along with the computer, the Friends purchased $992.02 worth of computer books.

The group has donated audio-visual equipment, display cases, map cabinets, magnifying lenses, prints and paid for carpeting, painting and provided scholarships for staff librarians.

West PTA will meet

West Elementary Parent Teachers Association will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday. Parents will meet in the school cafeteria for an open house and introduction to the teachers.

UTPB plans seminar

The University of Texas at the Permian Basin will hold a seminar titled "The Parent, the Child and the School" Oct. 15 and 22 from 9 a.m. to noon at UTPB's Center for Behavior Analysis.

The course demonstrates ways parents can deal with problem children using an "investment and return" principle, where punishment is a negative influence and rewards are a positive influence. Fee is $50.

A second seminar the same days in the afternoon will deal with stress control.

UTPB enrollment up

Enrollment figures compiled at The University of Texas at the Permian Basin show more students are continuing their education beyond the freshman and sophomore levels. UTPB Director of Admissions Robert Warmann said there are 8 percent more students attending this fall than there were last fall.

He noted the state legislature's removal of the 60-hour entry requirement at UTPB has had an effect on enrollment. A record 1,971 students enrolled for classes fall term, 59 of which had fewer than 60 credit hours. The state legislature and the UT System Board of Regents approved removal of the requirement during sessions last summer. The rule required students to have completed at least 60 hours of study at the community or other college level before applying for admission to UTPB.

Warmann noted a 14 percent increase in graduate student enrollment during fall term and a 3 percent increase in undergraduate enrollment over last year.

Writing contest set

Divisions for the contest are grades K-3, grades 4-6, grades 7-8, grades 9-12, junior college and adult writers who have never been published or paid for their work.

Deadline is Oct. 6. Entries are to be mailed to the Scurry County Museum, Western Texas College campus, Snyder. For more information contact Eunice J. Irwin at 573-8511, extension 210.

Sailors save woman

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Two sailors, awakened in the middle of the night by their irksome smoke detector, searched their apartment building and saved an elderly neighbor from a fire Saturday, officials said.

The sailors said the smoke detector had become bothersome because it buzzed whenever they boiled water or burned toast. Sailor Daniel Waldenga, 22, of Genoa, Ohio, said the noise "can drive you crazy" when cooking.

Sex offender released without 'castration'

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A convicted sex offender who promised to be "chemically castrated" has been released from jail, even though authorities have not found a facility that will perform the treatments.

Joseph Frank Smith, 29, pleaded guilty to two counts of burglary with intent to commit rape and was sentenced by a jury to 10 years' probation after he agreed to submit to treatments with Depo-Provera, an experimental drug that reduces the sex drive.

A psychiatrist testified that Smith admitted raping a 26-year-old San Antonio woman on two occasions and attempting to enter her apartment a third time.

Smith was caught by neighbors who booby-trapped the woman's apartment. She was not at home at the time, investigators said.

A Bexar County Sheriff's Department spokesman told the Dallas Times Herald that Smith was released Friday into the care of probation officers.

A secretary to State District Judge Pat Priest, who ordered Smith released, said the judge would not talk to reporters. District Attorney Sam Milsap could not be reached for comment.

"He's not free," Ray Taylor, Smith's lawyer, said. "Unless I am very much misled, he is still under the powers of the court. I don't believe they will let him walk the streets of San Antonio. He's not coming and going as he chooses, as I understand it."

Taylor had offered to keep his client in the jail for his own protection until a treatment program out of town could be found.

Citizens, including the Bexar County district attorney and the woman Smith was said to have admitted raping, protested the probated sentence, and Taylor said he did not think his client would be safe if set free in San Antonio.

The University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston refused a week ago to admit Smith for evaluation. Officials refused to comment on the reasons.

"He wants the treatment," Taylor said of Smith. "I am sure he will get treatment. I just don't know where or when. This will all work out. It wil just take some time to get the rough spots ironed out."

Mom charged when child killed by dog

DALLAS (AP) — The mother of a 4-week-old girl who was dragged from her crib by a 100-pound dog could be given a life sentence in prison if convicted on charges of murder and injury to a child.

A Dallas County grand jury indicted Britt Rognaldsen, 36, on the charges Friday. Her baby, Cara, was killed Sept. 3 by her mother's dog, Byron, which police said had access to her room.

At a bail hearing last week, a Dallas homicide investigator testified that Ms. Rognaldsen, when asked for permission to destroy the animal, said, "I can always have another baby, but I can't replace Byron."

Ms. Rognaldsen and a friend were asleep in other rooms of her apartment when the infant was attacked.

"Our law provides that a parent and child have a relationship... one of the duties that the law requires of a parent is reasonable protection for a child," Assistant District Attorney Andy Anderson said.

Police chief pleads guilty

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A suburban police chief pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge that he pulled a handcuffed prisoner's hair during an arrest last March and then resigned from the job.

Doug Davis turned in his resignation from the Richland Hills post Friday. He is barred from serving as a peace officer in Texas for one year as a result of his plea-bargain agreement with prosecutors.

Davis was suspended without pay Aug. 9 when he was indicted.

POSITIVE THINKING

Misdirected ball leads to misdirected thinking

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

On the golf course I hit the ball into the rough and actually I'm glad that I did, for while hunting for my ball in the bushes I met a young fellow whose job it was to rake leaves on the golf course.

While he helped find my ball he said, "I would like to talk to you about myself some time."

"O.K.," I told him, "why not start talking right now while we look for this ball?"

He threw his rake in a pile of leaves and started off: "I'd like to get somewhere. I'm not satisfied with where I am or what I'm doing or anything about my situation. I want to get somewhere!"

"That's fine," I answered. "Where do you want to get?"

"Well," he said, somewhat bewildered, "I don't know. I just never thought about it definitely like that."

"What can you do best?" I asked him.

He hesitated a moment, "I really don't know what I can do best."

"Well," I persisted, "what would you like to do?" He looked blank. "I — I just don't know. I've never figured that one out either."

"Now look," I exclaimed. "You tell me you want to get somewhere and then when I ask you where you want to get, you say you don't know. And you tell me you don't know what you can do best, or even what you would like to do. These points just have to be cleared up before you can expect to get anywhere. When you're able to draw an absolutely clear picture of where you want to go and why you want to get there, then you'll be started on your way."

I had a talk with him some time later and he told me, "I haven't much education or background. I come from a poor family. I just haven't any opportunity."

"What do you mean, poor family and no background?" I asked. "Your folks are decent people; they're not in jail, are they? The people in this community think of them as fine people. Aren't they?"

"They certainly are," he protested.

"Well, then, don't talk your family or your background down. The only real problem you have is that you are a bit short on money, but I've known boys with money who can't stack up to you. You have every opportunity any American ever had. You just have to get organized within yourself."

Conversations like this went on until he was built up to a proper appreciation of himself. He started becoming a positive thinker. He began to realize that he was somebody. He got some real faith in himself and in his future. The next thing I knew he wasn't raking leaves but working in a factory.

"You have a good capacity in that brain of yours," I told him. "There is something in it."

Two out of three visits to family doctors linked to stress

By PATRICIA DIBSIE
Copley News Service

Two out of three visits to family doctors — be it for sleeplessness, dizziness, headaches, backaches or an assortment of other maladies — are directly linked to stress, according to a study recently released by the American Academy of Family Physicians.

Besides the obvious medical costs involved, stress is costing the U.S. business community an estimated $50 billion to $75 billion a year in lost productivity and absenteeism, according to a collective estimate by business leaders polled in a recent survey.

Most everyone experiences some type of stress daily, and both physicians and psychologists say this is good and healthy. But sooner or later most people want some control over what they feel and how it affects both their professional and personal lives.

"People are beginning to feel a need to understand what stress is and how it's affecting their lives," said Dr. Alan H. Roberts, director of the Behavioral Medicine Center at Scripps Clinic and Research Foundation in La Jolla, Ca.

Roberts works with individuals who are experiencing physical and mental symptoms due to stress overload. The people who come to Roberts for help realize that the alternative may be ailments affecting the heart and lungs (stress is a major contributor to these diseases), accidents, and a host of other stress-related illnesses or injuries.

Roberts offers these four simple signs that can alert people to the fact they are experiencing too much stress in their lives:

— PERCEPTION OF STRESS — "If you think you are experiencing more stress than you can handle, then you probably are," he said.

"This comes with feelings of time urgency, threats, inadequacy, exhaustion and irritation."

FEELINGS — "If the person finds himself worrying too much or unable to concentrate, then it's time to get some help. Also, feelings of not being able to attend to things and scattered thinking are good warning signs."

Watt on the loose

From the instant he was nominated as Secretary of the Interior, James G. Watt has been embroiled in one controversy after another. He hasn't always been to blame, but on some occasions he deserved the blame.

Nature groups led the initial charge against a man they saw as an arch enemy of their cause and that fact led us — and others — to take with a grain of salt the charges against Secretary Watt. By now, Watt's critics can be found in virtually every corner of the nation, in every political cloth, in every minority. Secretary Watt's "enemies" are mushrooming and he bears the blame.

A public servant is required to possess a certain demeanor, to embrace a degree of diplomacy. Secretary Watt, on the other hand, has exhibited repeatedly the diplomacy of a bull unleashed in a house of glass. For years he has shown an amazing lack of self-discipline and concern for others.

The most recent example is the secretary's comment about the members of the board he appointed to review his coal-leasing program. Said the bull, uh secretary, "I have a black, I have a woman, two Jews and a cripple."

We recognize the fact that the secretary was attempting to make a point. But how stupidly insensitive can you get?

His reputation for inflammatory statements is widespread. In an editorial published this week, the Philadelphia Inquirer said of Watt, "He reinforces the image of a record of environmental abuse. He heaps insult upon incompetence. He is no comic. He is the joke."

It matters not whether Secretary Watt intended to offend anyone or whether his comments are merely misconstrued. He now is perceived as a man whose comments reveal his true colors and, through guilt by association, the true colors of the Reagan administration.

At this point, President Reagan should strongly consider whether the political liability in Secretary Watt's continued presence in the administration is worth the potential cost.

Realist at the U.N.

Javier Perez de Cuellar has been a realist right from the start. When the Peruvian diplomat became secretary general of the United Nations a year ago he expressed disappointment over many aspects of the U.N.'s conduct, and now a year later he continues to be disappointed.

In his annual report the other day he said that "developments of the past year have been far from encouraging." The world body on the East River in New York "is too often on the sidelines as far as many major issues are concerned."

He can say that again. It so happened that his remarks were timely, disappointingly so, for they coincided with another example of the United Nations' failure to face up to the facts of an international crisis.

One of the "major issues" which found the U.N. sitting "on the sidelines" was the shooting down by the Soviet Union of a Korean passenger plane and the killing of 269 people. The U.N.'s creaky mechanism made it possible for the Russian representative on the Security Council to veto a resolution protesting the murders.

Little wonder the secretary general said 1983 "has been a frustrating year for the search for peace and for those who believe the United Nations is the best available international instrumentality."

Mr. Perez de Cuellar believes in the principles of the United Nations, but he is realistic enough, to his credit, to tell the world that those principles have little meaning when they are not put into practice.

Another View: It's time to act

Both the United States and Canada have an illegal alien problem — but that is as far as the similarity goes.

The U.S. population of 234 million is nearly 10 times the Canadian population of 24 million. The number of aliens residing in this country is put at 5 million and upward — or at least 100 times greater than the estimated 50,000 illegals in Canada.

Surprisingly, it is Canada, not the United States, that is attempting to do something about the problem. In contrast, the United States with its king-size problem hasn't changed its immigration laws in more than 30 years. Congress unsuccessfully sought to overhaul the laws last year. Capitol Hill is making a second attempt this year but the outcome remains uncertain.

Canada has tightened immigration checks at its largest airports in a test program that requires all foreign visitors on international flights arriving at Toronto and Montreal to make a written declaration to a number of questions, including destination, purpose of the visit and expected departure time.

Although the proposed legislation on Capitol Hill seeks to curb the nearly 500,000 million immigrants (most of them from Mexico) who illegally come to the United States annually, the House and Senate bills also contain humanitarian concerns. They would grant amnesty and permanent resident status to illegals who have resided in the United States since 1977 and temporary legal residence to people who had arrived here prior to 1980. Only illegal aliens who arrived after 1980 would be subject to deportation.

Capitol Hill has dragged its feet much too long already. The time is long overdue for Congress to take action toward enacting U.S. immigration laws that will get the task done. If the present problem at the U.S.-Mexican border is not resolved, the situation will deteriorate and the matter will become more difficult to solve satisfactorily.

ART BUCHWALD

Contractors are really collectors!

I never believe government figures when it comes to how the nation's economy is doing. I talk to people. In the past months I discovered, while orders are up in the building business, payments are slowing down.

Art Buchwald

A painter told me, "I can get all the work I want right now. The only problem I have is collecting for it after I do the job."

"Why don't you ask for the money up front?" I asked.

"If I do that I can't get the job. I have this building contractor I work for and he couldn't sell his condos until they were painted. So he came to me and said, 'I'll give you $25,000 to paint my apartments.' I said, 'When will I get paid?' And he said, 'As soon as you finish the job.' Then I said, 'Where do I get the money now to pay for the paint and my workers?' And he said, 'The same place I get mine, from the bank. Look, just tell me if you don't want the contract. I can always get somebody else.'"

"So what did you do?" I asked.

"A job's a job, so I painted his condos. When I finished I gave him my bill. He said he'd send me a check in the morning. A week later I called to find out where the check was, and his secretary said the contractor was racing in a sailboat to Bermuda.

"Three weeks later I bumped into him coming out of a fancy restaurant with a bunch of friends, and he introduced me as the best painter in Washington. He said it was lucky he ran into me because he was going to call me in the morning to ask me if I could paint a second group of condos he just finished in the same development.

"I said, 'I'd love to do it but I haven't been paid for the other condos yet.' He said he couldn't pay me for the first condos until he sold the second ones. I said, 'Why is that?' And he said because the bank wouldn't lend him any money to finish the new condominiums until he paid back his loan on the ones I painted. I said, 'It doesn't solve my problem because the same bank wants me to pay back the $25,000 plus interest I borrowed to paint the first condos.'

"He said I should never borrow more than I can afford to pay back. He wanted to know if I would do the painting job on the new development or not.

"I had to say okay. If I didn't paint the second ones I had no chance of getting my money back on the first ones. But I was tough about it. I demanded a deposit before I picked up a paintbrush."

"As a down payment for the second job?"

"No, as partial payment for the first one. How could I ask him for money for the second job when he still owed me for the other?"

"And he agreed to do it?"

"He said it was only fair. The next morning he sent over a small check with a nice note saying as soon as I finished the condos of the second development I would be paid in full for both jobs."

"So you painted the second condos, and then what happened?"

"I didn't hear from him for three months. I was about to turn it over to a lawyer when I got a call from him asking me if I was interested in painting an old office building he had just bought in downtown Washington. I said, 'Where's my money for the other two paint jobs?'

"He said he used it as a down payment on the old building he wanted me to paint. Once it was fixed up he planned to sell it at a large profit, and he had me down for a $5,000 bonus.

"I said I wasn't born yesterday and if I agreed to do the job it would cost him $90,000 plus a $15,000 bonus."

"What did he say to that?"

"He said, 'What choice do I have? Workmen always have contractors over a barrel.'"

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Union violence bill needs teeth

WASHINGTON — Cher Mungovan's secure and happy life was destroyed by union harassment. Her husband, Walter, is in hiding after testifying in the successful prosecution of Carpenters Union officials in Hawaii. His once-thriving construction business has folded. The family is deeply in debt.

Jack Anderson

Cher Mungovan has declined to join her husband in the federal witness protection program. Instead, she has borrowed money to come to Washington and lobby members of Congress for legislation that — while too late to help the Mungovans — could prevent the future victimization of others.

The law she wants amended is the Hobbs Act, passed in 1946, which made violence, extortion or threats of physical harm a federal crime punishable by up to 20 years in prison. But in an astonishing 1973 decision, the Supreme Court ruled that the Hobbs Act did not apply to violence or threats committed by union members engaged in the pursuit of "legitimate" union goals.

The ruling — from which even pro-union Justice William O. Douglas dissented — came in the case of United States vs. Enmons. The defendants were utility company workers who were seeking a new union contract. The federal government charged them with five specific acts of violence, including firing high-powered rifles at transformers, draining oil from a transformer and blowing up a transformer installation.

The high court's decision exempted union members engaged in labor disputes from prosecution under the Hobbs Act. Since 1973, many state laws have been rewritten to comply with the Enmons ruling.

In the words of Rep. J. Kenneth Robinson, R-Va.: "The Supreme Court sharply split from the intent of Congress and took the position, in effect, that the legitimacy of the ends sought by the union agents — contract concessions — excused from prosecution under the Hobbs Act the use of wanton destruction as a means to force employers to accede to their demands. It boils down to an 'end justifies the means' philosophy."

In Mungovans' case, the Carpenters Union persisted in trying to organize his 20 employees even after they had unanimously rejected the union in secret balloting.

According to a memorandum filed in federal court by U.S. Attorney Daniel Bent, union officials "transformed Walter Mungovan, a combat veteran, a carpenter and a successful contractor, into a man whose business and family life were virtually destroyed, and into a man who feared for the safety of himself, his family and his business." The memo summed up: "They bullied him, they threatened him, they shut him down."

The prosecutor attached to his memorandum a supporting statement by Cher Mungovan, which detailed the frightening events that followed her husband's refusal to kowtow to the union:

"Our employees have had their lives threatened; we have received a bomb threat at our house; our vehicles have been maliciously damaged; materials and tools have been stolen from our job sites; we have received threatening phone calls; family members have received threatening phone calls ...."

After Mungovan went to the FBI with evidence against the union officials, the federal government diligently prosecuted them. The prosecutors were hobbled by the emasculated Hobbs Act, so they cited union officials for perjury. Two have been convicted; two others are awaiting trial.

Recent Senate testimony revealed that in the past five years, at least 3,350 acts of violence have been reported against union members. Thanks to the loophole created in the Hobbs Act by the Supreme Court, few of the incidents resulted in prosecution.

Even if the states hadn't changed their laws in response to the high court's ruling, there are persuasive reasons why federal jurisdiction should be re-established over labor-management violence and extortion.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., explained why in a recent statement: "In reality, state and local authorities are not equipped or strongly motivated to deal with the consequences of clashes between powerful competing interest groups within their communities.

"This is particularly true with regard to labor disputes .... The political implication may be overwhelming to a local official who appears to take sides in a labor dispute by vigorous enforcement of criminal laws. I am sure the most comfortable position is one of non-involvement."

Cher Mungovan was interviewed at length by my associates Indy Badhwar and Dale Van Atta. She has been going from one congressional office to another in her tenacious effort to get the Enmons loophole closed. As a practical political matter, it seems unlikely that members of Congress — particularly the senators who are vying for the presidential nomination — will risk the wrath of organized labor by amending the Hobbs Act before 1985.

But not everyone is cowed by the unions' political clout. Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, has introduced a bill that would enable the federal government to punish actual or threatened violence — regardless of the perpetrators or their objectives.

GEORGE F. WILL

Why not use food as food?

WASHINGTON — The federal government is nibbling at the cheese glut. The Agriculture Department has proposed requiring that frozen pizzas contain a certain minimum amount of cheese and that the use of cheese substitutes be clearly confessed on packages.

George F. Will

The frozen pizza industry regards this proposal as the kind of Leninism that Ronald Reagan was elected to stop. But the cheese glut (which is just a portion of the dairy products surplus, which is just a bit of the agriculture surplus) demands boldness.

Jeffrey Birnbaum, a Wall Street Journal reporter, recently toured a dormant limestone mine in Missouri. There, the government "stores so much surplus cheese, butter and powdered milk that a visitor would be hard pressed to walk past it all in one day." A tour by golf cart reveals canyons of cheddar cheese in 500-pound barrels, towers of frozen butter in 68-pound boxes, endless aisles of 100-pound sacks of dried milk — 61 million pounds of dairy products, enough to cover 13 football fields 17 feet deep, or fill a train stretching from Manhattan to Toledo.

This is just two percent of the 2.9 billion pounds of dairy products that taxpayers have bought. In recent years they have paid $3 billion, or $13,000 for every dairy farmer. Taxpayers are currently paying $275,000 an hour to buy more surpluses, and are paying $5 million a month to store the stuff.

Well, now. Perhaps a dozen-trillion pizzas would cut the current cheese glut, but that many pizzas would lead to a terrible pepperoni shortage. We need another idea.

Perhaps we should sell frozen pizzas to the Soviet Union. Moscow might send some of our pizzas, as it sends grain, to Nicaragua, but that is commerce in fungible goods. If Moscow cannot afford the pizzas, we can do what we do regarding grain: Give them credits and generally fiddle things so that pizzas (like the grain) cost Moscow less than it costs Americans to produce them.

Here is another whimsical idea: We could stop paying farmers to inundate markets and limestone mines with dairy products. Today the government is taxing consumers (everyone) to pay farmers to produce food that is, because of price supports, unnecessarily expensive when taxpayers buy it at supermarkets and is expensive when taxpayers pay to store it.

One study says that a $1-per-hundredweight reduction in the support price would knock nine cents off a gallon of milk and a pound of cheese, and 11 cents off a pound of butter, and $1.2 billion off consumers' food bills in a year. Furthermore, dairy products, being cheaper, would be more exportable, so there would be less to store.

But here is a better idea: Use the food as food. America does not have enough productivity. Government should not pay people, as it today is paying farmers, to produce less — less of something that parts of the world need desperately. Surely it is not beyond the capacity of public policy to make America's agricultural bounty an asset to American policy. Indeed, it is a scandal not to.

Today in 18 black African countries (Morocco and Algeria, too, have desperate needs), 20 million persons face starvation unless 600,000 tons of extra food reach them. Since 1960, Africa's food production has increased less than two percent a year — less than population growth. In nine countries, food production is more than 10 percent below 1960 levels.

The World Bank estimates that nearly 200 million persons — 60 percent of all Africans — eat fewer calories daily than the United Nations considers a survival diet.

Drought is only part of the problem. Governments have made Africa unnecessarily vulnerable to such natural phenomena. Urban mobs demand food at artificially low prices, thus discouraging production. Government planners have tried to spur industrialization by holding down food prices in the hope that this would hold down urban wages. If someone could leash Africa's governments and unleash American farmers on Africa, the continent could produce 100 times more food than it does today.

Logistical problems (including problems posed by African bureaucracies) involved in even distributing food are staggering, and there is the danger that American food could produce dependency and further depress African agriculture. But an American attempt to solve these problems is as close as one can come in this world to an absolute moral imperative.

I am staring at a photograph of what looks, at first glance, to be a bald, wizened old man. Actually it is a child. The child is sucking the withered breast of a woman who could be 19 years old. It is a sight to concentrate the mind on limestone mines full of food.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Ten years ago: The three-man crew of Skylab II made a safe splashdown in the Pacific Ocean after a record 59 days in orbit.

Five years ago: A jetliner and a private plane collided in midair over San Diego killing 150 people.

Today's birthdays: Entertainer Juliet Prowse is 46.

Week's events reveal contradictory world views

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.
Editor-in-Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

Hearst

NEW YORK — President Reagan is here tomorrow to address the U.N. fresh from an invigorating bipartisan congressional compromise that will keep our Marines in Lebanon for at least 18 months as Soviet-supplied Syria tries raising the ante in combat. While the arrangement on Capitol Hill didn't please all legislators, it was meant to be decisive and backed action by the president.

The bipartisan spirit motivating the decision is certain to be cited by President Reagan who also will assail the Soviet Union for murderously shooting down the unarmed South Korean jet liner, killing all 269 passengers and crew aboard, Sept. 1.

Inside the Soviet Union and now in Britain, a ranking TASS and other U.S.S.R. officials disclosed that the Soviets are embarrassed for having shot down the aircraft. They obviously dare not go public with an apology and offers of indemnification, hence the military-and-regime stiff refusal to tell the world they were sorry for the wretched affair.

On that score it's worthwhile noting that Switzerland escorted a Bulgar civilian jet that strayed to another airspace channel. The Swiss are civilized while the Bulgars, like the Soviets, shoot down planes that wander into Bulgarian airspace. Soviet Foreign Secretary Andrei Gromyko had the nerve to say that the U.S.S.R. would shoot down any plane that again "violated" its airspace. The barrel of a gun is some defense!

Anyway, a preview of President Reagan's speech was highlighted by some tough talk from a U.S. delegate to the U.N. to a Soviet counterpart defending Moscow's ambush action against the plane. Charles Lichenstein, who holds the rank of ambassador and is deputy to our chief delegate Mrs. Jeane Kirkpatrick, suggested the the U.N. move elsewhere if members are dissatisfied here.

"We will put no impediment in your way," said Lichenstein, a deceptively frail-looking career diplomat. "We will be at dockside bidding you a farewell as you set off into the sunset."

Kudos rolled into the U.S. delegation headquarters personally addressed to Lichenstein who was 57 a day after he made the speech. I do think there is room for maneuver in this area. Keep the great glass house as U.N. headquarters for the U.N. in New York and rotate sessions annually to Moscow and maybe one of the Third World countries which always complain of being overshadowed. The moves would help delegates savor something besides New York hospitality.

I was pleased to see that President Reagan suggested that disgruntled delegates try meeting six months in the U.S.S.R. and six months at the U.N. in New York. That idea, according to the president, originated with Mrs. Kirkpatrick and I heartily endorse it.

To show its outrage over U.N. behavior the Senate in a bipartisan move voted overwhelmingly to make a drastic cut in our contribution to their operating budget which is about 25 percent. The cut would amount to $500 million over the next four years but the administration opposes the idea. The vote will certainly be noticed by anti-American U.N. members although the motion presently is doomed to defeat.

The veteran Gromyko complained that he couldn't attend this year's U.N. session because New York and Newark airports barred his big jets from landing. That's nonsense. In the years past, Gromyko flew in special regime planes and could have done so again. On another occasion years ago, Gromyko accompanied the late Nikita Khrushchev on a slow ship that docked in downtown New York. I believe that Gromyko didn't want to listen to delegations rip the U.S.S.R. apart for their brutal role in the South Korean plane episode.

This U.N. Assembly session at which President Reagan will talk will see about 35 presidents, premiers and heads of foreign states address the membership. Most permanent delegates anticipate torrid U.S.-Soviet exchanges, from human rights to nuclear issues. They anticipate little in disarmament here, except what may emerge from closed-door sessions where Americans and Soviets can get down to some brass tacks.

While attention will be centered on the U.N. for its annual star-studded show, the daily slugfest in and around Beirut continues without a letup. Right after the Congress struck the compromise with the president on having the Marines stay, leftist-Druse tribal gunners kept lobbing artillery shells at the U.S. Embassy residence. The Marines called in naval gun power and Navy jets rocketed Druse positions. Coming in to reinforce the Druse who are out to topple the legitimate Lebanese government of President Amin Gemayel is a motley array of Libyan units. Their strongman Col. Moammar Khadafy promised help — but not money — from his oil-rich revenues a few days ago.

Trying the quiet tactics for the time being, the PLO also has been infiltrated into both Druse and Syrian-occupied areas of Lebanon in the Bekaa Valley. I wonder why Lebanon does not demand U.N. condemnation of that occupation by the Syrians, a Soviet client with Red Army officers masterminding rocket installations. Ayatollah Khomeini also has his two cents' worth in the battle with about 600 "volunteers" at Druse front lines.

Watching the battle lines closely for their own security reasons are the Israelis who recently pulled forces back to southern Lebanon. The Israelis apparently have decided to intervene if PLO and Druse patrols cross a line at the Damur River.

In this mess, France had its nose out of joint. They didn't like what they regarded as American escalation of hostilities, Bernard D. Kaplan, Hearst European correspondent, reported. Then when more French soldiers were wounded in addition to 18 already killed, Paris ordered eight of their jets to rocket anti-government positions. The French are a funny race. Italy assigned a jet fighter group to maintain an alert holding pattern if needed. This situation cries out for a U.N. investigation or even a resolution condemning the brutalities. Let's wait and see if the Assembly membership bestirs itself to even temporary indignation. I doubt it.

EDITOR'S REPORT

SPEAKING OUT

American vet's life tougher than it looks

By GEORGE LEACH

George Leach, a Midlander since Jan. 1, 1952, is adjutant of Disabled American Veterans, Tall City Chapter 58.

The veteran's plight after discharge from the armed forces isn't what you may think.

Let's start with World War II. We had veterans that came home with wounds such as aggravated illnesses, wounds from bullets, shrapnel or other maliciousness. You'll see one of these veterans walking down the street or somewhere else and you may say, "I wish I was as healthy as that man." But that's just because his or her disability is hidden.

Prisoners of war have no medical records because their captors kept none. These men had been so demoralized by their treatment that they didn't want anything to do with anyone attached to the government.

Their disabilities, such as arthritis, amvitamosis and other diseases, didn't start showing up for a few years and by then, the time limit set by the government had run out for reporting these hidden disabilities to the proper authorities in order for them to get the benefits they were due.

As if this wasn't bad enough, there was a fire in the file section of military records that destroyed thousands of these veterans' medical records, which would have helped them establish service connection. Oftentimes it appears the fire was one of convenience because veterans run into dead ends in their attempts to establish their claims. No one will help them locate their records of origination.

All these veterans ask is a fair, legitimate claim for just compensation for their disabilities. They're still suffering and dying for your freedom. They don't complain; they're just thankful they were able to serve — and they're still serving.

These ex-POWs were worked like slaves in the labor camps and were not fed balanced meals. Their beds were of straw with one blanket in all kinds of weather, sometimes dropping to 5 below, with no heat in their barracks.

Now, let's step alongside a veteran of the Korean Conflict who fought a war that he wasn't intended to win. He was shot at by snipers who couldn't be identified. It didn't matter because the gun at his side or in his hands had no ammunition. What could he do? Pistol whip the snipers or beat them to death with his rifle butt?

After Korea came the Vietnam battle in the jungles — a place where they might send an innocent little child up to American soldiers with a live bomb strapped to him. When the soldiers picked up the child to cuddle him in their arms, the bomb would be detonated and kill the soldiers.

And if that wasn't gruesome enough, our own people used Agent Orange on us. You know the story: Agent Orange seems to be the service-connected disabilities. It seems so hard for doctors to diagnose because it doesn't remain in any one part of the body for any length of time.

It bears repeating: You can't imagine the nightmares and the hideous things a soldier goes through for your freedom.

Try unplugging that dreadful TV

If you really want to help your kids grow up to be mentally-balanced, intelligent human beings, get up out of your easy chair, walk over to the television, turn it off and, then, unplug it. Don't let anyone plug it back in.

Now find an alternative source for occupying their young minds — something that stimulates them and gives encouragement to seek out the morally uplifting values in life. Buy them a good book, a classic written to capture youthful imaginations, or take them out into the backyard or to a park and give them something irreplaceable that no one else can — your time and your love.

Bill Modisett

Television programming and the majority of movies today contain totally negative messages. Time after time after time kids are taught that in the "real world" cheating in your business and on your spouse is not only okay, but to be expected. It's the way of life; everyone who is "normal" does it. If your children are "normal," they'll do it, too. Right?

Violence is the way to settle all problems — provoked or unprovoked. Human life means nothing. If you don't believe me, just watch some of the television shows your kids watch or go to some of the movies they see. Blood flows openly, gratuitous sex is rampant and the principles that were taught to you and your schoolmates years ago — or should have been taught — are mocked.

Those messages are teaching your children a lie. They are teaching them that the real world is the way it's pictured on the silver screen. If you think the messages aren't harmful to your kids, you're operating in a dream world, too.

Young children, in particular, learn by association. They watch Mommy and Daddy and mimic their demeanor, their actions, their responses — even their moods. To a degree, we learn in this manner throughout our lives, but its predominant during the formative years.

In a society that requires or encourages both parents to work, that means that Mommy and Daddy are not there to imitate, so Junior must find a substitute. Junior does, but all too frequently the role model turns out to be one you wouldn't have chosen if you're playing with a full deck. The role model typically has the morals of an alley-cat and the virtues of someone you'd find in reform school or worse.

No long ago, a youngster was arrested here in Texas for holding up a convenience store with a pistol. He told officers he had gotten the idea from a television show. He is only one of the "victims" of violence on television and in the movies; he won't be the last.

Is television violence a harmful influence? Is it damaging to show a youngster violence, gratuitous sex and mania over and over without providing an indicator that in the real world "normal" people don't act that way?

Not all programming, not all movies are despicable, of course. But the majority is and that's regrettable. It's sad it has to be this way. It's also sad that a medium with such potential has been reduced to the status of a junkpile. Unfortunately, the people in televisionland and the movie industry aren't going to improve the situation; they're going for bucks and they don't care who they step on to get that profit. A lot of artists — actors and producers — will jump up and down screaming and trying to convince you that to censor their work is to strip away their First Amendment protections. Bull! They're just using the First Amendment as a shield to hide behind while peddling their garbage. If they're harming your family and you don't take the initiative to do something to protect yourself, you're about as principled as some of the characters that show up on prime time.

You probably won't get far if you attempt to sway them or to even organize any kind of movement promoting truth and realism in adequate proportions in movies and on television. The rating system for movies is a farce. It's not going to protect you.

But you do have another option, and you know it. No one can force you to have anything in your home that you don't want there. You still can take the time to tell your kids that life isn't the decadent heap they see on television and at the movies. Tell them that there still are people in this world who believe in decency and morality, and that there is a way to settle differences other than with violence. Tell them that the maniacs portrayed on the silver screen aren't to be revered but despised. Tell them that there is a lot of evil in the world, but that good still exists and still should win in the eternal struggle.

Television and movies still hold tremendous potential to help mankind, but just like a gun, they can help you or they can hurt you. They should be treated like a gun: carefully.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Act of cruelty

To The Editor:

I am writing in response to an article which appeared in the Sunday edition dated Sept. 18, 1983. The article to which I refer is that which expressed the hardship much of America is suffering as a result of the drought.

While this story is significantly newsworthy, and I must sympathize with the situation, I feel that the photograph depicting the carcass of a dead cow told a story which, to me, is an outrage and warrants further comment.

Granted, our farmers and ranchers are suffering financial losses. They have not had a productive growing season and are having great difficulty meeting their bank loan obligations. Why then, have they allowed their livestock to suffer such cruel deaths by starvation and exposure; rather than selling them to ease their financial burdens and spare these animals' sufferings.

I realize that animals of the wild have no recourse but to suffer in this natural disaster; however, a human being responsible for livestock through a purchase made the choice to neglect these animals! I assure you that there are still a number of wealthy landowners involved in agriculture in this state alone who could easily buy and provide for endangered livestock.

With the publication of this tragedy, I am reminded of an incident which received considerable publicity not too long ago. It was the case of a Texas rancher who came into possession of a good number of wild horses through an adoption program of conservation. This man neglected these horses to the point of starvation and death; and his actions resulted in litigation against him. Just as this man assumed a legal responsibility for these horses, as does every farmer or rancher for his livestock.

I would donate them as food for the thousands of unemployed and insolvent families in our country before I would let helpless animals starve and die from exposure.

As I said, this is an outrage, and it should not be allowed. Moreover, such an act of cruelty should not be excused by our press due to a national drought. This situation warrants and deserves a just penalty and resolution; not exemption and amnesty.

Biking hazards

To The Editor:

In response to the letter published Sept. 13, 1983, written by the biker, in no way is this letter in defense of the deplorable behavior of the "gentlemen" described by her. However, one can understand their rage and fury they directed at these bikers.

The hazardous conditions these bikers present the non-biking, car-driving general public through ignorance or indifference is unbelievable. I live four miles out of the city limits off of County Road 60 West and I have unfortunately encountered these bikers time after time, much to my dismay and aggravation. 60 West is a two-lane road upon which these same bikers ride three and sometimes four abreast. They block the entire lane, yielding not an inch to anyone as though the road was their own personal property. The speed limit here is 55. When approaching them from the rear, you can pass them only if no traffic is coming from the opposite direction; if there is, then you must slow to bikers' speed while a car or indeed a whole string of traffic goes by.

I'm certain these people are excellent bikers, goodness knows they are all tricked up for it with matching biking outfits and helmets. They probably can reach and maintain a jim-dandy speed for a bicycle; however, this has nothing to do with normal traffic speed. I personally can skate very fast but I don't feel that I and two or three of my friends should dash out on the streets and highway to hog a traffic lane and create hazardous driving because we have nifty skating costumes. It's always been my understanding that automobile taxes paid for the roads and they were designed for motor vehicles.

I am certainly not against bikers, joggers, skaters or pogo-stick hoppers as long as they do it in their own neighborhoods and stay off of major thoroughfares where the speed limit is 55.

Poking peddlers

To The Editor:

In response to the letter (published in this column in the Sept. 13, 1983 issue) regarding bikers, I wish to express my opinion on the subject. I wholeheartedly agree that such an episode was an act of violence and truly deplorable. However, that is where my agreement comes to a screeching halt!

Pity and woe to the masses of motorists doomed to spend an eternity trapped behind the ever-present "Biker Society" riding down 55 mph, two-laned, traffic-laden highways designed solely for motor vehicles. I have yet to encounter said group that would yield to motor traffic. As they are always riding three and four abreast, one can do nothing but slam on the brakes and crawl along behind, awaiting an opportunity to cross into the oncoming lane of traffic and pass around the wad of unconcerned "peddlers."

Even though these bikers have all the latest safety equipment, (i.e.-goggles, knee pads, sweat bands, helmets with rear-view mirrors, etc.) they can never seem to notice the string of automobiles mounting up behind them. It is a most frustrating experience, even for the very patient. What is more, these supposedly adult, experienced, regular bikers are setting extremely poor examples for my young children who are being taught the rules and regulations for biking safety, such as yielding to motor traffic and riding in single file!

I have seen many children riding their bikes along city streets all in single file and out of the way of traffic. Can any biker tell me how I can teach bicycle safety rules and regulations to my children when they can see for themselves the "grown-ups" not obeying these rules? I don't know how to answer their questions.

Perhaps if the "poking peddlers" were presented printed prohibitive papers by the plentiful patrolmen, they would probably be more prone to peruse the rules and pursue the preferred procedure as prescribed previously.

Quality of life

To The Editor:

For those of us who support the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing a woman's right to a safe abortion, the label pro-abortionist that Bill Modisett used in his column on Aug. 14th is highly inaccurate. The Roe vs. Wade decision was not decided upon the basis of pro vs. anti-abortion, but on the basis of constitutional protections guaranteed all citizens under the Constitution and Bill of Rights.

Does Modisett contend that "women who died in sleazy backrooms...rape victims, the unwanted children whose lives seemed to justify the hope of never having been born" were not legitimate enough concerns that justify the taking of life? Why is it that so many anti-abortionists fail to value the lives of women who already exist? I have been a rape counselor and have witnessed the manner in which a civilized society treats a rape victim as if she were responsible for the criminal act perpetrated against her. Are we also going to force her to carry a fetus that may be drug ridden or genetically defective? I have yet to see any individual or group come forward to share the financial responsibilities and emotional burdens of one who is pregnant as a result of rape. Who is it that decides the life within her is more important than her own?

Modisett states that the core reason for justifying abortion "provides men and women an option that relieves them of responsibility and furthermore," attempts to escape responsibility for one's actions always comes back to haunt you. I for one have never known a woman who opted for an abortion as a means of eliminating responsibility or as a means of birth control. For most, it is a last means, heartrending decision that she may or may not regret but it is her decision to make, no one else's.

Modisett's statistics concerning teen-age abortion in Texas cannot be denied. Furthermore, Texas rates second only to California in teenage pregnancy for children ages 14-17. Many of these girls are the victims of incest, rape and sexual child abuse, not sexual promiscuity. It is much more dangerous for these children to carry a fetus to birth than to abort.

Abortion is not the problem it is the last solution in a society that does not concern itself with the education of our young children about their sexuality and the responsibilities that that entails. Unfortunately, so many of the very same people who oppose abortion also oppose sex education in the schools.

I concur with Modisett that "sexual freedom doesn't eliminate responsibilty; it increases it." We as a society must pump funds into organizations that value life enough to ensure that individuals should not have to opt for an abortion by providing careful family planning and education. Women do not become pregnant to flaunt their sexual freedom. Many poor and uneducated women simply do not have access to information concerning birth control services.

It is precisely because I value life that I support a right to an abortion. A country which dictates black and white values in our most private and personal areas of life, in our human relationships, would not be the America whose precious freedom men and women have died for.

Nitrogen needed in fall

Applying nitrogen for small grains this fall will be important. There are four reasons why wheat and other small grains need nitrogen at planting or a short time afterwards:

— aid in developing of good root system,

— for early grazing,

— to hasten decomposition of excess residual straw, and

— for high production of forage and grain.

Sufficient fall growth for early spring grazing cannot be expected without adequate nitrogen at planting. The advantages of early planting and favorable fall growing conditions can be lost if nitrogen fertilization is delayed until late fall. Establishing a good uniform stand with good tillering requires nitrogen, and most soils are deficient in this nutrient.

To meet nitrogen requirements during the fall growing period, producers can apply the total requirement before planting on heavy textured soils for both forage and grain. Or, they can apply a small amount at planting, followed by topdressing soon after planting or in late winter for grain production only.

Of course, fall nitrogen fertilization is also affected by the amount of straw from the previous crop. The bacteria and other microorganisms needed to decompose the straw require nitrogen and can use that already in the soil, as well as that applied, thus reducing the amount available during the fall.

The general rule in applying nitrogen has been to increase the rate of nitrogen about 20 pounds per acre for each ton of undecomposed straw. However, a portion of this nitrogen is recovered during the final stages of decomposition so that as much as half of this may be available during the spring months. This means that about half of the "extra" nitrogen could be deducted from the late winter topdressing.

An upcoming meeting that should be of interest to Midland County pecan producers is the Permian Basin Pecan Seminar and Trade Show. It will be held at the John and Nadine Sims' Pecan Orchard at East Marigold Steet, Gardendale, Texas, on Oct. 15, 1983.

A part of the Sims' spacious new barn will be set aside for educational presentations. Several of the most knowledgeable people in the pecan industry will be there to help with problems which are encountered in the West Texas area. The rest of the barn will be used by exhibitors to display and demonstrate materials and equipment used in growing and harvesting pecans. Larger equipment and machinery will be displayed and demonstrated on the outside.

There will be programs of interest to all people concerned with pecans, whether they have a few trees or a large orchard. In addition to demonstrations, there will be orchard and shelling plant tours.

TDA recommends charges

AUSTIN — The Texas Department of Agriculture has recommended that charges of criminal misdemeanor misuse of pesticide be filed against a Brazos County farmer, W.P. Scamardo.

A farmworker, 39-year-old Sacarais Ruiz employed by the farmer, died Aug. 5 in a Bryan hospital after he apparently came into contact with the herbicide, Dinitro-3, while spaying weeds in a cotton field owned by Scamardo.

The charges were recommended after TDA investigators determined such use was a misuse of the herbicide. If charged and convicted, Scamardo could be fined up to $200. In addition, the TDA is considering filing against Scamardo a separate civil action which could result in a $1,000 fine for each day the herbicide was used for a non-approved purpose.

The TDA has asked retailers to stop selling the herbicide and is seeking to rescind the herbicide's registration for use in Texas for any purpose because the herbicide's label contradicts Environment Protection Agency recommendations for medical treatment of exposed persons.

"The label advises physicians to treat exposure victims 'symptomatically,'" said TDA Assistant Deputy Commissioner Ron White. "Symptoms of Dinitro-3 poisoning include a high fever and headache, which would be treated symptomatically with the use of aspirin. But the EPA specifically warns against the use of aspirin, because aspirin 'enhances, rather than reduces' the toxicity" of the chemical.

Agriculture economy in transition

COLLEGE STATION — The nation's agricultural economy is in a transition along with agriculture and policies affecting farming and ranching.

"We simply cannot continue to go down the same commodity program path of the past 50 years," said Dr. Ronald D. Knutson, economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service of Texas A&M University.

A substantial base of support is developing for change, yet major changes in policy seldom occur, he said. "Instead, changes are geneally incremental and deal with particular problems at a moment in time."

Several critical issues are likely to be the focal point of debate for changes in agriculture.

"Goals of agricultural and food policy from the 1940s through much of the 1960s were to raise farm income to the level of non-farm income. A shift in goals occurred in the early 1970s simultaneously with the adoption of more export-oriented farm policies," he said.

Brangus cattle to be sold

FREDERICKSBURG — One-hundred Red Brangus bulls, cow-and-calf pairs and heifers will be up for sale in the Hill Country Red Brangus Sale II Oct. 8 on the Gillespie County Fairgrounds here.

The sale will feature 60 two-year-old bulls, including a few herd sire prospects; 15 pairs and 25 bred heifers. Auctioneers at the sale will be Bert and Ruben Reyes and Ellis Menchaca Jr.

Brangus cattle in the sale will be from the Senesa Ranch at Yancey and Bernhard Ranch at Fredericksburg and from guest consignors, the Double L Ranch at Dripping Springs and the McAlister Ranches at Blanco and New Braunfels.

The sale will begin at 1 p.m. Oct. 8. Cattle will be on display by noon Oct. 7 in the show barn. A barbecue feed will precede the sale.

Management seminar to be held

FORT STOCKTON — A Property Management Seminar focusing on the co-existence of agriculture and energy producers will be held at 8:30 a.m. Oct. 4 in the Pecos County Large Community Building here.

The seminar, promoted by the "high interest" in the need to properly manage land and natural resources, will be co-sponsored by the Pecos County Livestock and Natural Resource Committee and by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service (TAEX).

Speakers will include:

—William Monroe "Bill" Kerr Sr., Midland lawyer, who will present aims, objectives, methods and ambitions of the Institute of Property Management. Kerr will also speak on estates in oil, gas and minerals and on the various types of land-use easements.

—John Merrill, director of the ranch management at Texas Christian University at Fort Worth. Merrill will talk on "The Need to Know What Papa Learned the Hard Way."

—Tom Linebery, Kermit rancher, who will talk on landowners' negotiations with energy companies. He operates the Frying Pan Ranch.

—Martha Mealy, land supervisor for Mobil Oil Corp. She will present the pros and cons of oil and gas leases.

—Dr. Charles Neeb, TAEX director, who will chair a discussion by panelists Kerr, Linebery, Ms. Mealy, Merrill and Carl Lawrence, Midland independent oil operator.

Those interested in attending the seminary may contact Zan Matthies, Pecos County agent, at 336-2541 in Fort Stockton or Gregg McKenzie, chairman of the Pecos County Livestock & Natural Resource Committee, at 336-6261 in Fort Stockton before Thursday.

Ranchers look toward wildlife

FORT STOCKTON — Increasing costs of ranching and the relatively low return on livestock products have forced many ranchers to look toward the economic potential of wildlife as an alternative source of income.

Administration against bail-out plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A hassle is developing in Congress over a proposal to write off $7.9 billion owed by the Rural Electrification Administration to the U.S. Treasury by converting the debt to permanent capital in the agency's revolving fund.

The American Farm Bureau Federation calls the legislation a "bail-out" operation that would mean higher taxes or a larger federal deficit. An alternative, says the farm group, would be to require REA borrowers to finance a greater share of their needs from private sources.

But the proposal has been introduced in both the House and Senate, with 153 and 37 sponsors, respectively. The House subcommittee on conservation, credit and rural development plans to hold hearings in early October.

The plan was advocated last spring by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, which represents about 1,000 rural power systems which serve more than 25 million people in the United States. It is recognized as a powerful, adept lobbying force in matters of rural interest.

However, the Reagan administration, as well as the influential American Farm Bureau Federation, is against the bail-out plan advocated by the co-ops. The plan, it seems, is bound to develop a few short circuits before it is fully wired.

The REA was created by executive order in 1935, and Congress a year later passed the Rural Electrification Act. Using REA loan money, local co-ops strung power lines and delivered light to millions of rural people.

In the beginning, REA lending rates were based on the cost of money to the federal government. But in 1944, the interest was set at 2 percent — which was about the going rate at the time.

Five years later, REA loans to rural telephone utilities were authorized. And in 1971 Congress created the rural telephone bank, a wholly owned federal corporation which acts as a supplemental source of financing for the REA telephone program.

In 1973, Congress authorized the current revolving fund and guaranteed loan programs now in use by the REA. The legislation provided that loans from the revolving fund carry a 5 percent interest rate, although some borrowers could get 2 percent financing if certain conditions were met.

According to Agriculture Department budget experts, REA could provide up to $4.6 billion in guaranteed loans to electric borrowers in the fiscal year that will end on Sept. 30. Those reflect interest rates in the commercial money market. Direct loans by REA — mostly 5 percent interest rates but some 2 percent — were set at $850 million.

But officials say that the actual REA guaranteed loan volume may drop sharply below the $4.6 billion level — perhaps to about $1.1 billion — because of general economic conditions and the uncertainty over new power generating facilities.

As part of the 1973 legislative action, all future collections of principal and interest on loans were to be put into the revolving fund. Also, fund was made liable for $7.4 billion worth of notes issued by REA to the U.S. Treasury from 1953 through 1973. The money raised by the issue of notes was used to make advances on 2 percent loans.

The notes, which now total $7.9 billion, come due in varying annual amounts from 1993 through 2016. As part of the 1973 action by Congress, all future interest on the notes was forgiven — currently, more than $300 million a year.

On Sept. 8, a regional meeting of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association was held here in which the association's general manager, Robert D. Partridge, noted that the bill was scheduled for House subcommittee hearings on Oct. 5-6.

"I frankly doubt that the Congress will have time to act on our measure this session," Partridge said. "Final action will most likely come in 1984. But I am optimistic about its chances for survival."

Partridge said the bill would assure rural electric co-ops that "a reliable source of loan capital" would be available for years to come "at costs that wouldn't send their electric rates soaring into the stratosphere."

The bill, he said, would convert the $7.9 billion in REA loan obligations to permanent capital in the revolving fund, beginning in 1993.

"The line that opponents appear to be taking is that rural electrics are not only heavily subsidized but that the loans REA has made to them will never be repaid," Partridge said. "Both assertions are false."

A GOOD USED CAR... MORE CAR FOR THE MONEY.

Year in and year out...cars depreciate in value. You've heard it. But it's not true! Cars only depreciate each year in price, not in value, because the next year's models have arrived.

There's a difference between price and value. Today's late model used cars, specially those that received good care, actually can give you as much value as a new one. When you can buy a good used car for thousands of dollars less than a new one...that's real value. Our reputation for offering good value for the money is your best assurance...buying your used car.

Midland, Texas 79707

"The quality of the apartment is much better than any others I've seen in Midland."

Mary and Perry Nelson talk about The Clusters:

"The extras included seem like a real bonus. We're former homeowners, so it takes a really nice apartment complex to satisfy us."

"I have a lot more kitchen appliances than I ever did in my own home. Dishwasher, trash compactor, garbage disposal, side-by-side refrigerator, built-in microwave, washer and dryer."

But that's not all. You also get French doors to patios/balconies, mini-blinds, ceiling fans and your choice of wall coverings.

Plus unmatched amenities such as luxurious clubhouse, two pools with Jacuzzis, lighted tennis courts, 4-station jogging trail, aerobics classes and exercise room.

Come and visit and you'll see why the Nelsons' say, "There have been many days we've come home and said, 'They've really done it again, they've gone first class.'"

The Clusters. Midland's finest adult community. Special pricing now available.

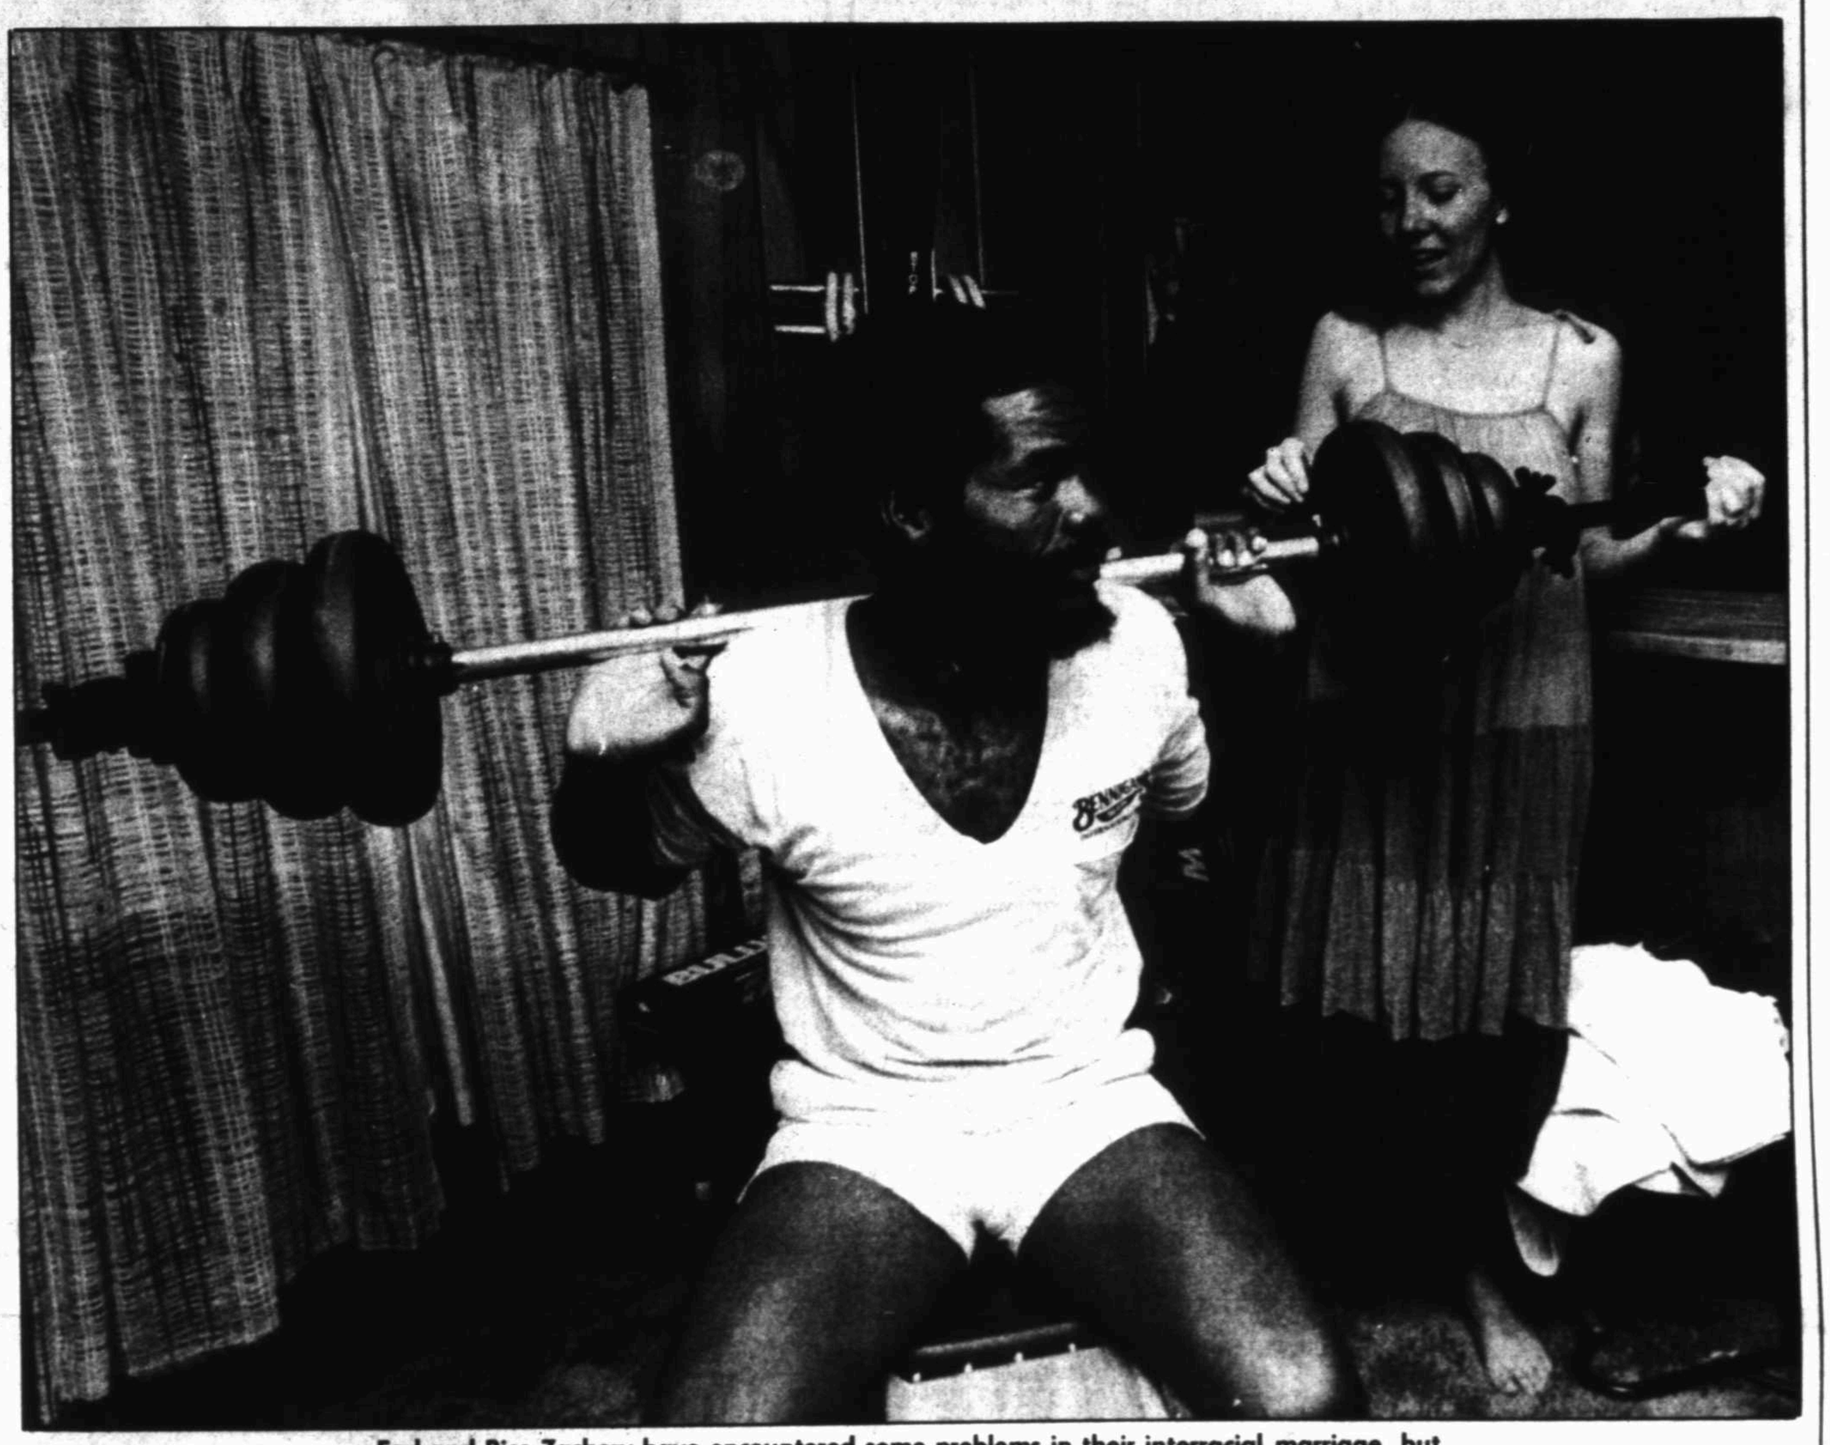
Zacherys, Shultzes say:

Life not all black or white



Earl and Rice Zachery have encountered some problems in their interracial marriage, but, Ms. Zachery adds, it "may be a lot better than most because of the strong base of support."

ZACHERY

Rice and Earl have been married for six years. They have five cats and love to argue about politics.

Rice Freeman Zachery, 27, is public information officer for Midland Animal Control. Earl Zachery, 30, is a sports coach and physical education teacher at Goddard Junior High School.

Rice is white. Earl is black.

They maintain they are just like most young couples but some people see them differently because of the different color of their skins.

"People act like interacial marriage is so strange," she said.

Both said they have never had problems with their employers or co-workers regarding their marriage.

However, when they wanted to put their mobile home on property they owned on the east side of town, they were required to collect signatures from neighbors approving the request. One woman who lived nearby protested when she learned Zachery had a white wife, the Zacherys said.

She threatened to withdraw her signature from the petition.

THE REZONING REQUEST was approved despite the protests of the woman and others who do not live in the area. "They said they wanted to prevent driftwood and riff-raff from coming into the neighborhood," Ms. Zachery said.

"I really don't look at my marriage as interacial until someone points it out," Zachery said.

Refused lodging in several places on a recent trip through the south, they began taking turns checking into hotels. "If we registered together, they would be full, even though the parking lot was almost empty," Zachery said.

Until recently, they said they had never experienced anything more then dirty looks or rude comments from others.

"Once when we were dancing someone said to another person 'Why can't she find her a nice white boy,' " Ms. Zachery said. "At a football game a woman looked at us and said, 'That just makes me sick.' "

In May, the couple went to a local nightclub with four other people and seated themselves at a table with only five chairs. Ms. Zachery sat on her husband's lap. They were talking among themselves when the club manager approached Ms. Zachery and ordered her off her husband's lap.

Not long after the incident the couple left the establishment. They later learned the manager summoned police officers.

The following night, they returned to the club but were pulled out of the waiting line by the manager, Ms. Zachery said.

"SHE TOLD US 'I want you to go somewhere else to do your drinking.' "

The couple hired an attorney to represent them. Four months later, they received a written apology and compensation from the establishment in an out-of-court settlement.

"Twenty or 30 years ago people could have treated us that way," Zachery commented on the night club incident.

"Today they may think it in their heads but they won't come out in public and call you names or write on your car windows," Ms. Zachery said.

Acceptance of blacks and interacial marriage hasn't changed much in the past few decades, Zachery said. "There have been a lot of changes but they don't have anything to do with the way people think. If if wasn't for (the possibility of) litagation, I figure it would be just like it was. Our treatment is better but litigation is the only reason."

The two met in Midland seven years ago at a local nightclub.

Ms. Zachery said her parents accepted Earl as their daughter's "friend," but disapproved when they began dating.

THE BIGGEST PROBLEM encountered by the couple is her family's refusal to recognize her marriage.

"I wish they would accept him as the fine man he is," she said. "If everything about him was the same, but he was white, they would have been thrilled.

"Both my parents are college graduates and my father is a professional," Ms. Zachery said.

The couple sent wedding invitations with their portrait printed on the front to both families. "I didn't hear from a single one of my relatives," she said.

"I have relatives who will pass me in the store and look the other way."

The Midland woman said her parents were raised in small Texas towns and have "very conservative views regarding minorities.

"I learned those things (prejudices) were wrong in college," she said.

Although Zachery was not accepted by his wife's parents, Ms. Zachery said his parents and nine brothers welcomed her without hesitation.

"YOU COULDN'T ASK for better in-laws," she said. "They treat me like a daughter."

Mixed marriages are nothing new to the Zachery family. A younger brother married a white woman before Earl and Rice were wed and another brother's wife is white.

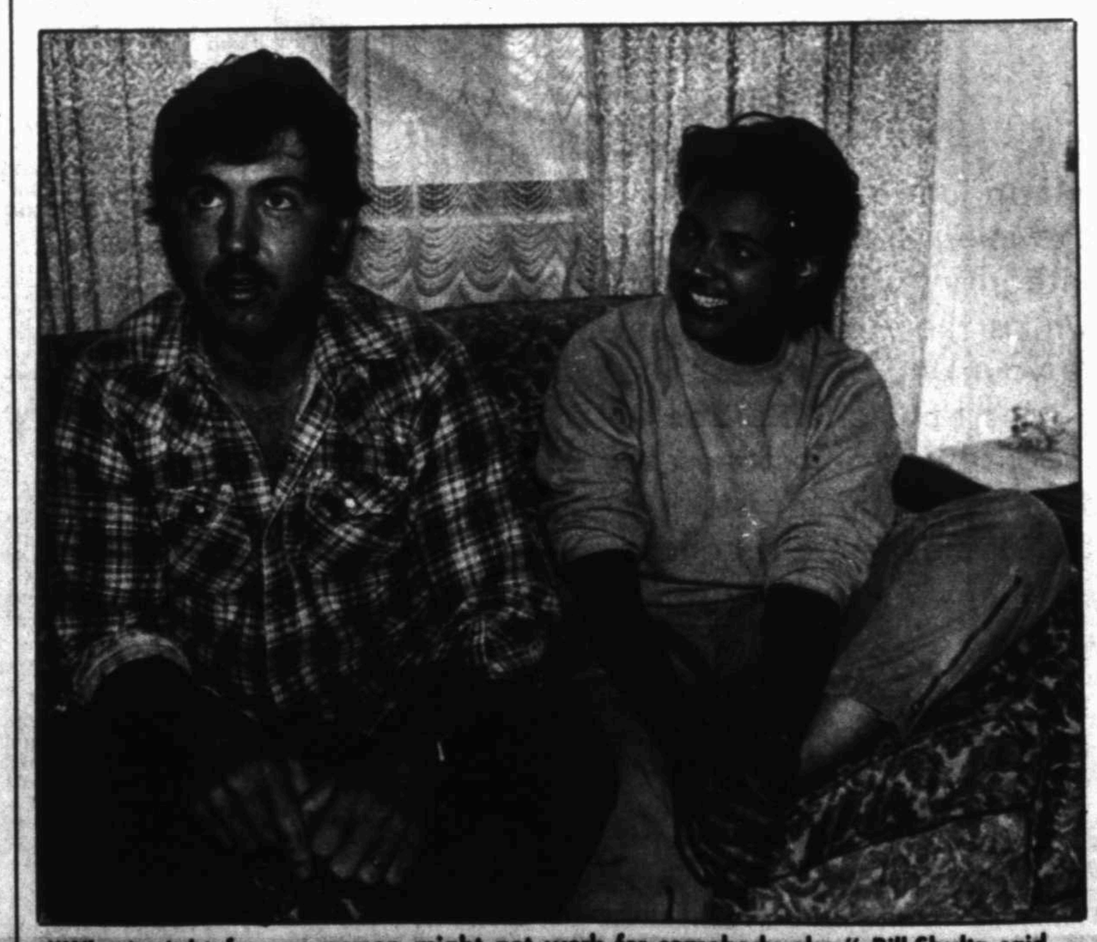
Zachery credits his parents with practicing what they preached. He said he was raised "to love others and treat them the way you would want them to treat you. My parents said people will be people."

He said his parents approved of the marriage because he was willing to make the commitment.

"I had expectations for the person I would marry. I didn't set a race or color code. I didn't sit down and think of all the things that would happen. I had a good idea what it would be like."

Ms. Zachery, an only child, has learned to deal with her parents' reaction. "Usually it doesn't bother me at all but sometimes it really hurts," she said.

(See ZACHERY, Page 2E)



"What's right for one person might not work for somebody else," Bill Shultz said. "No marriage is perfect. I don't care what color you are," Angie Shultz added.

SHULTZ

At their first meeting, she said Billy asked, "Angie, were you white when I talked to you on the phone?"

Bill and Angie Shultz said they have made a life together that is right for them.

Married for three years, the couple said they are more concerned with day-to-day life than they are with the fact that Angie is black and Bill is white.

"People don't look at us as being a mixed couple," said Mrs. Shultz, 24.

Raised in Amarillo, Mrs. Shultz said she was brought up to respect all people regardless of race. When public schools in the Panhandle town were integrated, her mother sent her to a Catholic school to avoid any possible problems.

"I never knew anything about being prejudiced," she said. "I was raised to believe everybody is the same."

Reared near Ft. Wayne, Ind., Bill, 33, who works for an oil drilling firm, admits he still has some prejudices toward blacks even though he is married to one.

"I HAD A NEGATIVE attitude toward blacks," he said, "But I never saw one until I was eight or nine years old."

Shultz said he wrestles with his feelings towards blacks and other minorities. "I still haven't gotten over them. It's hard.

"The biggest problem is people are brought up to think a certain way. What's right for one person might not work for somebody else. We have our problems just like any other marriage does."

Despite his background, the Midland man said his love for his wife overcame his prejudices. "It's a different set-up but it doesn't make any difference whether Angie is black. She's just the person she is. She's got all the right qualities. We get along well."

The couple said they knew each other well when they married and entered the union with their eyes wide open.

The key to a successful marriage is "deep love," Mrs. Shultz said. "You must know down deep you really love him no matter how mad you get.

"NO MARRIAGE IS perfect," she said. "I don't care what color you are."

Both partners have been married before. She was married at 18 to a black man. The marriage lasted 2½ years.

Shultz's previous marriage ended in divorce. His two children, whose mother is Hispanic, now live with the couple.

The result is a contented family, the couple said. Mrs. Shultz and her stepchildren, Trudy, 11, and Billy, 9, hit it off from the beginning.

"I figured they would get along," Shultz said. The children talked to their stepmother on the phone many times since their father remarried, but the children didn't meet the new Mrs. Shultz until four months ago when they moved to Midland.

At their first meeting, Mrs. Shultz recalled Billy asked, 'Angie were you white when I talked to you on the phone?'

SHULTZ SAID HIS children's eyes were probably opened when their father married a black woman. "They were raised in an environment in Indiana where people think blacks are no good," he said.

(See SHULTZ, Page 2E)

Zachery...

Despite the problems they have encountered, the couple said Midland is a good place to live. "People in Midland pretty much mind their own business," Ms. Zachery said.

The couple said communication and support is the key to their relationship. "We really trust each other. You've got to trust each other completely or you're up a creek. Our marriage may be a lot better than most because of the strong base of support," Ms. Zachery said.

"She's not just my wife, but my best friend," Zachery said.

The Zacherys have chosen not to have children, but not because of the problems they have faced as an interacial couple.

A product of a large family, Zachery said he does not want to be a parent because he wants time for himself. "At school everyday there are about 1,200 kids starving for attention and I try to give it to them. I don't think I could handle it at home. I have to have time to be me."

Ms. Zachery said she is uncomfortable around children because she was an only child. She prefers to surround herself with her pets.

Happy with her marriage, Ms. Zachery said, "If you know in your heart it's right, you're the only one who can make that decision.

"We know a lot of people on their second marriages. They supposedly had everything going for them, including their parents' approval, Ms. Zachery said. "they just didn't have what it took."

Shultz...

Although he married outside his race, the father said he hopes his children will not do the same. "When you're starting a new life you don't need that pressure."

Shultz believes his children are happier with their new life. "They are happy to be here. I don't think they would be too concerned if Angie were green."

The children have not reported any problems in school and the family said they have not experienced any difficulties with family, neighbors, friends or co-workers.

"Friends are friends," Mrs. Shultz said, "It doesn't matter.

"I'm gaining friends, not losing friends," Mrs. Shultz said. "I haven't lost a friend or an associate because I married Bill."

A soft-spoken man, Shultz said he minds his own business, "So I don't know whether they're looking or not."

He said he has not told all his friends, family and co-workers about his interacial marriage. "I didn't tell everybody," he said. "If they do have a reaction they don't say."

But it hasn't been easy for either of them. Mrs. Shultz said she quit her job as a draftsman for Atlantic-Richfield not long before the children came to live with them. "All of a sudden I've got two kids," she said.

She has enjoyed being a housewife but is looking for a new job now that the children are settled in school.

Because her husband's job keeps him away from home most of the time, the Midland woman said holding the family together is mostly her responsibility. "I'm in the middle of this whole thing. I try to keep the love going and keep everybody happy."

Mrs. Shultz hopes to have a child soon. The only reservations her husband has about the planned child is he isn't sure he wants to be a father again at his age.

"I don't think the kid will have any problems," he said.

An interacial marriage isn't as tough as some might think, Mrs. Shultz said, and she and her husband believe it's more acceptable in Midland than in the south or in Bill's native Indiana.

But Shultz said many people are opposed to mixed marriages. "Times have changed," he said, "But there are still a lot of people against that kind of relationship."

"Most people don't think about it," Mrs. Shultz said. "As long as you're happy with what you have then it really doesn't matter.

"We love each other," Mrs. Shultz said, "And that's all it takes."

Agency aids adoption search

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Sally File receives 30 calls a day from mothers hunting the babies they gave up years ago and from now-grown children searching for their natural parents.

And the organization she helped create five years ago to help in adoption searches has resulted in 254 reunions between families.

By law, the state Human Services Department cannot give out information about adoptions. It cannot tell a woman who adopted her infant; it cannot tell a man who his mother was.

But it can — and does — refer people interested in making the search to Mrs. File's non-profit group, Operation Identity.

The organization was founded by Mrs. File, 39, and a friend. Both had had a difficult time dealing with the official seal of secrecy as they searched for what Mrs. File calls a "biological family."

"I spent $5,000 fighting the courts and everything else. I was angry. I thought it was emotional blackmail that I had to go through to find my own heritage," she said.

In her search, she had developed contacts, had found sympathetic officials and had found loopholes in laws, and she believed she could help others avoid much of the frustration she had gone through.

"So I and a friend my age who had found her biological family advertised. Sixty people showed up for the first meeting," she said.

Most people begin their search with only sketchy information — a birthdate, a birthplace, perhaps the last name of their natural mother.

But Mrs. File said adoption papers and a lot of records have information and most searches last only a few months.

"Our fastest search was 17 minutes, our longest one five years," she said.

Mrs. File estimated 60 percent of the people who ask for help are adopted, while another 30 percent are natural parents and the rest are adoptive parents "who realize the need of their children to know the background of the natural parents."

Most people hunt for biological families, she said, "because it's a natural need to know who allowed you life regardless of the circumstances."

But, she said, before Operation Identity helps anyone with a search, "we tell them it could be a bad situation. It could be rape, it could be incest, it could be a case of abuse ... Before they start, they must say to themselves that they're ready for an unpleasant situation or rejection."

She also says the organization will not expose the natural mother to anyone unless she wants the contact.

Seven searches the organization aided ended with the relative being found, but not wanting any contact. One was a woman who had been adopted; the other six were the natural mothers.

"They had not told anybody, they had not told their husbands and they were not willing to," Mrs. File said.

But she said a large number of mothers who gave up children years ago now wanted to be found. She said often at the time their child was born, they were young, unmarried and under pressure to give up the baby.

Some of them since have initiated their own search. Often the search will not be active, but the mother will send a notarized letter to the state where records are held, relinquishing confidentiality and allowing the state to tell their children who they are if asked.

A large number of the people searching are looking for brothers and sisters.

Vision problems may create future learning difficulties

Copley News Service

Don't wait for a school vision screening to tell you if your child has a vision problem.

All too often, warns the American Optometric Association, school vision screenings rely on the familiar eye chart — which is about as adequate for examining vision today as a horse-drawn buggy is for interstate travel.

Moreover, no school vision screening will spot preschool-age children with vision problems that may later cause learning difficulties.

The trouble with the eye chart, says the association, is that it only tests one vision skill — the ability to see sharply and clearly at a distance. As a result, a child can "pass" the eye chart, yet still not be able to see clearly to read or do other close work. Or the child might have an eye disease that won't be detected, or a perception problem that makes it difficult for the brain to interpret what the eyes see.

Many children's learning problems are really caused by just this sort of visual-perceptual difficulty, says optometrist John Pierce, a professor at the University of Alabama School of Optometry.

A study of a group of learning-disabled children in the New York City area has confirmed Pierce's statement: Ninety percent of the children had "20-20" vision, yet all had other vision problems hampering their ability to learn.

Pierce reports about 15 to 20 percent of all children have what he calls "a visual processing dysfunction." With this problem, a child looking at letters of the alphabet has trouble picking out the distinctive features that make each letter unique. As a result, it takes the child much longer to learn the alphabet. Since they also have a hard time decoding words, they become so involved in figuring out what the words are that they have trouble comprehending the meaning of what they just read.

Visual-perceptual problems can be detected in children by the age of 4 or 5, Pierce says. "If caught early, such children can be helped before encountering problems in school. Then, by the time these children get in school, they have the skills they need."

In fact, a growing number of eye doctors recommend vision examinations for infants as well as preschool and school-age youngsters.

Richard F. London, an optometrist who is an assistant professor at the University of Houston School of Optometry, urges parents to bring each child for a vision examination within the first few years of life. Eye doctors, he stresses, can now identify the one out of every 20 infants who has a vision problem and prescribe appropriate care so the vision problem does not affect the rest of the child's development.

Parents should also be alert for common signs of children's vision difficulties: clumsiness, poor eye-hand coordination or short attention span for age; eyes tearing, frequent blinking, squinting; crossed or wall eyes; tendency to rub eyes; awkward head or body position when doing close work; covering one eye; or complaints of dizziness or headaches after visual concentration.

However, the American Optometric Association cautions parents not to wait for one of these signs before scheduling a vision examination. Even more important, parents should not wait for children to complain of vision problems. Even adults, says the association, sometimes don't notice gradual changes in vision — but most children and teenagers just assume everyone sees the way they do.

Army allows women to wear earrings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fashion has finally caught up with the U.S. Army: Women in uniform can wear earrings while on duty, as long as the jewelry isn't gaudy.

The change in regulations was ordered last month following a lengthy study by the Army's Uniform Board, a spokesman said.

"It's about time," said Spec. 4 Jane Thomson, who was wearing a tiny pearl on each ear Wednesday. "I think I look better with earrings, anyway. They're nice."

But the jewelry drew another reaction from one colonel, who didn't want to be identified: "It's not like the old days. You sort of wonder what's coming next."

The change brings the Army into line with the Air Force and Navy, whose women have been permitted to wear earrings for several years.

Like women of the other armed forces, the Army's 75,000 women must wear earrings that meet strict specifications. The earrings must be "spherical and unadorned, not to exceed one-quarter inch in diameter." They must be made of either gold, silver or pearl, which eliminates costume baubles. And the jewelry must "fit snugly against the ear."

Only one per ear, the Army said, ruling against a current fashion trend in which some women wear two or more on each ear.

None of the services permit men to wear earrings. "Are you kidding?" said an Army spokesman who was asked about the possibility.

From the people who invented culture.

By MARILYN McKNIGHT HARRISON

Celebrating a milestone birthday, Midland oil man Fred Newman was honored at a gala party by his wife, Chris. The party plans were clothed in secrecy, and Fred professed complete surprise when he arrived at the family home on Dengar Avenue the evening of September 17 to cries of "Happy 40th" and "Surprise," from a host of friends assembled for the occasion.

The mood was festive, but the theme somber, with black as the featured color for the decorations, including a bouquet of 40 balloons, a funeral wreath on the front door and an improvised coffin, covered with a spray of dead flowers. A large sheet cake with 40 trick candles that wouldn't extinguish and decorated with a figure of a man retired to his rocking chair carried out the "over the hill" theme. To add to the evening's fun, a "bellygram" was delivered by Laura Klauss.

Chronicling Fred's life, there was a display of memorabilia from his childhood and school days, and photographs of Fred as a boy had been enlarged to poster size.

Three of the Newmans' four children, Holly (home from Texas Tech for the weekend), Nancy and Steve were on hand for the celebration, and their oldest child, Jim, called during the party from the Colorado School of Mines to wish his dad a happy birthday. A few of the other well-wishers were Judy and the Rev. Fred Tinsley, Barbara and Clyde Wilson, Janet and Joe Overton, Sharon and John Holman, Ruby and Jim Caffrey, Betty Rae (Mrs. Paul) Davis, Lodema (Mrs. Paul) Kolm, Lee and George Harley, Dan O'Grady, Keary and Dave Wells, Ruth and Bill Crowe, Jane Brownson, Sharri Pruett, Jim Ketcham of Odessa and Chris' sister, Rose (Mrs. Harold) Evans of Fort Worth.

ENJOYING A WEEK'S stay at Hilton Head Island, South Carolina, recently were four Midland couples, Diane and Dr. John W. Young Jr., Lynne and Charlie Ray, Betty Lou and Pat Garrigan and Eleanor and Steve Harper. They stopped off in Savannah, Georgia, for an overnight stay en route, and the Harpers enjoyed a side trip to Charleston. Their relaxing pace included daily golfing for the men, walking he beaches, bike riding, shopping and dining in the area's many outstanding restaurants.

EIGHT MIDLANDERS have returned from a memorable two-week European vacation. Joining a group of 42 southerners for an agricultural tour, they visited France, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland and Germany. Making the trip from here were Christine (Mrs. Gil) Broxson, Joyce and Jimmy Lucas, Wanda and Bennett Moore, Mrs. Geraldine Padgett and Betty and Charlie Green. Mr. Green, retired county agricultural extension agent, assisted in making the trip's arrangements.

During their 2,000 mile bus tour, they were able to observe first-hand what farm operations are like in those countries, but they also enjoyed sightseeing visits to various cities, including Cologne, Paris, Brussels, Lucerne and Amsterdam, and the beautiful scenery along the way. They also were impressed with tours of Delft pottery and lace factories.

Paris, with its many historic landmarks, was a highlight of their two-week trip. They arrived in the French capital on August 25, the 39th anniversary of Paris' liberation by the Allied Forces during World War II.

RUTHIE AND RAY BARRON now have a brand new addition at their house. A Korean baby, Micah Cheon, joined them on August 31 and has brought added joy to his big sisters, Sydney, Adena and Bonnie, and brother Mitchell.

The Barrons flew to Oklahoma City to receive their adopted son, who was placed through Dillon Children's Services in Tulsa and who came halfway around the world from a foster home in Korea to be part of their family. His birthdate is April 22.

BACK FROM A VACATION at St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands are Sue and Craig Lee. They enjoyed a leisurely week of swimming, beaching, sightseeing and shopping. A visit to the beautiful nearby island of St. John was a highlight of their trip.

PAT AND WILLIE EAVES and daughters, Becky and Darlene, traveled to Eastland recently for a family reunion, which was highlighted by the 75th birthday of Willie's mother, Mrs. Ollie Mae Eaves of Gorman. The celebration took place at the home of Willie's sister and brother-in-law, former Midlanders Myrtle and Robert Martin.

Also on hand for the special occasion were the honoree's other children, Mrs. Coye Bird of Farmington, New Mexico, Mrs. Ruby Cummings of Tyler and Mrs. Odene Savage, Dickey Eaves and Buddy Eaves, all of Gorman and several of her 19 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Among Mrs. Eaves' many gifts were a diamond necklace to mark the diamond jubilee celebration and a grandparent's book in which she can preserve her memories and family history in writing.

HAVE YOU SEEN the delightful new Musical Birthday Card that plays the "Happy Birthday Song" when it is opened? Mrs. Thelma McCarthy was completely surprised when she received one on her birthday September 16. An amazing new computer micro-chip actually plays the song.

White wine still popular

By DAN BERGER
Copley news Service

There is still a great demand for white wine in the United States, continuing a trend that began nearly a decade ago when health-conscious consumers began to realize there are fewer calories in a glass of wine than in a martini.

As distilled spirits began to drop in sales and white wine became the most popular bar drink, wine makers throughout California began to plant white-wine grapes rapidly to meet the demand.

French Colombard, the modest-quality white-wine grape, became the heaviest-planted variety in the state, with some 38,500 acres bearing and 32,500 already planted. Of the statewide total of 71,000 acres, nearly 41,000 acres were planted since 1979.

Similarly, more than 7,500 acres of the state total of 11,600 acres of Sauvignon Blanc were planted since 1978. And current bearing Chardonnay land, 15,600 acres, will increase by more than 6,400 acres in the next two years — vines already in the ground.

All this planting, combined with the current recession in the wine industry and the resultant surplus of all wine, has meant lower prices for all wines, but especially whites.

An example of this may be seen in the development of an Inglenook Navalle Blanc de Blanc (a white wine blended from various white grapes) and a Grenache Rose, both made to sell for $1.99 a bottle. Both are better wines than Inglenook's previous Navalle wines.

And there are others aiming at the white wine market with lower prices. Fetzer Vineyards' Premium White, Sebastiani Country White, Pedroncelli Vintage White, and many others are being offered at substantial discounts.

One of the reasons Americans got turned on to white wine, marketing experts agree, is the clever job done through the 1970s to promote Blue Nun, "the white wine that goes with everything." Blue Nun is a German Liebfraumilch that does not really go with everything, but through the humorous commericals on radio and television done by comedians Anne Meara and Jerry Stiller, Blue Nun — a product that is not sold in Germany, but is made solely for export — became a smash success here.

Another ploy used in the last year to keep Blue Nun's sales high, even in the face of the current wine-industry recession, was promoting Blue Nun by the glass, in bars and restaurants, as a sort of "call brand."

This is a breakthrough in wine marketing, since the concept had never before been tried. But, Blue Nun's producers reasoned, if people get used to ordering Cutty or Beefeaters or Stolichnaya, then they could easily get used to ordering Blue Nun by the glass.

The man most responsible for the Blue Nun success story is Peter M.F. Sichel of H. Sichel Sohne.

Sichel, considered one of the world's few expert forecasters of wine-buying trends, says surveys show that if the American public were to be asked the question, "What is Blue Nun?" 94 percent would answer that it is wine.

Many 'weeds' once valued

Hearst Feature Service

What today we call weeds once were highly valued.

Most of the flowers that grace our highways and by-ways are what botanists call "aliens" — plants that are not originally native to an area, says Anita Sanchez, an environmental education assistant at the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation.

Wildflowers are not held in very high regard in this country, Sanchez admits. People say 'it's a weed, pull it out.' If we put a price of $2 a stem on say, goldenrod, people would rush to buy it."

The virtues of wildflowers may be overlooked today, but they were well-known in medieval times and to the early American settlers, when they were used medicinally and to ward off evil.

Sanchez says in medieval times, doctors believed in something called the "doctrine of signatures. If a leaf was shaped like a kidney, such as the leaf of gill-over-the-ground, a common wildflower that came from England, they believed it was good for kidney problems. The heart-shaped yellow wood sorrel was used for heart ailments."

The most popular medicinal plant, however, was the lowly dandelion. "Can you imagine people today cultivating dandelions?" she laughs. "The Latin name for dandelion is "taraxacum officinale," which, loosely translated, means the official remedy for all kinds of disorders. They believed it was good for baldness, loose teeth, general weakness and colds."

They weren't far off the mark, Sanchez notes. "Most of those things can be caused by a vitamin C deficiency, so a good mess of dandelion greens probably did help."

AT WIT'S END

Being born too soon bad

By ERMA BOMBECK

I was in an exercise class the other day when the instructor said, "Remember how we used to do sit-ups lying flat on our backs? You old-timers will remember that. Well, they have since discovered sit-ups are bad for your lower backs. Now we bend our knees. And you don't have to come all the way up anymore. It's been discovered that just getting your shoulders off the floor is just as beneficial."

That really ticked me off!

How long am I going to go on being penalized for being born too soon? New exercise techniques are only a part of it.

In 10 short years my soap powder has gone from "PERFECT FOR ALL YOUR WASHABLES" to "IMPROVED!" to "NEW ADVANCED FORMULA" and is now touted as "A SCIENTIFIC BREAKTHROUGH" for detergents.

How can you keep improving on something that was perfect to begin with? And how about suntans? Twenty years ago they were the sign of health, wealth and a good bod and if you didn't have one by April 30, you stayed in the house.

Nowadays, sun is out. "We know more about it now," they say, "and it's very bad for you." It makes you wonder how many other things we are living with today that in 10 years will be passe.

If I seem suspicious it is because I have been made to feel like a fool for learning how to baste clothes and then discovering 15 years later that basting is a waste of time.

How many other things are scientists and technology experts keeping from me? If lettuce and carrots are really fattening, I want to hear about it now. Even if you aren't real sure yet.

If there are plans afoot to cap a child's mouth and use it for energy, I urge whoever is working on this to share it with parents today. It could save lives. Lots of them.

No one wants to go on flossing their teeth for the next 20 years only to turn on the radio one morning and hear an orthodontist tell them it causes baldness.

So someone tell me. Is my coffee as rich and full-bodied as it's going to get? Is my peanut butter as creamy as I deserve? My aspirin as effective as is humanly possible, or do they still have plans for it? And what about my gasoline? Has the last additive been added?

Until I get some answers, I'm just going to sit around in a bathrobe in a state of inertia eating junk food and watching TV. Both are safe. I wouldn't believe anything anyone told me about junk food and as for TV . . . it never changes.

New hip okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has put its stamp of approval on a new artificial hip which physicians say could allow recipients to lead more vigorous lives.

Dr. Charles A. Engh of the National Hospital for Orthopaedics and Rehabilitation in Arlington, Va., said the new device also may allow more hip replacement operations for younger patients. He said followup studies on more than 300 patients indicate the device is successful in all age groups and even in patients who had previous hip replacements that failed.

Engh, an orthopaedic surgeon who did much of the clinical testing of the new device, spoke to a news briefing Wednesday following the FDA endorsement.

Total hip replacement operations have been done in the United States for about 15 years, and experts estimate that between 75,000 and 100,000 of the procedures are performed each year.

Those having the surgery usually are people crippled by arthritis, fractures, congenital deformities and other problems.

Artificial hips are metal and plastic devices that consist of an artificial socket affixed to the hip and a pivoting ball joint that fits the socket. The ball, in turn, is attached to a long, bladelike structure that secures it into the thigh bone.

The main difference between the new artificial hip and previous devices is how it attaches to the bone.

Parents' smoking feared harmful to children

BOSTON (AP) — Evidence of slow lung development and an increased risk of emphysema and bronchitis among children whose mothers smoke suggests that parents should snuff out their cigarettes when the youngsters are present, a researcher said.

The study by Dr. Ira B. Tager of Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston concludes that children may risk serious lung diseases later in life if they are brought up by mothers who smoke.

"I think there is reasonable grounds to advise parents that if it's possible, they ought to minimize the extent to which they expose their children to cigarette smoke," said Tager.

However, he cautioned that it is not yet clear whether the lung damage occurs before birth, when mothers smoke during pregnancy, or later, when the youngsters breathe smoke-filled air at home.

"Most of the mothers who were smoking when we did the study were also smoking during pregnancy," Tager said. "Therefore it's entirely possible that this is an effect that began in utero."

During five years of study, Tager and his fellow researchers found that the lungs of non-smoking children whose mothers smoked grew at 93 percent of the rate of those whose mothers did not smoke.

The doctors found that smoking by fathers had no effect on children's lung development, either because the children spent less time with their fathers or because their lungs were retarded by smoke exposure while still in the womb.

"These data suggest that maternal smoking contributes to a reduction in the rate of development of lung function in children and, along with the child's own smoking habits, may be important in the development of chronic obstructive disease of the airways in adult life," Tager and his colleagues wrote in the New England Journal of Medicine.

The most common varieties of chronic obstructive lung disease are chronic bronchitis and emphysema, which cause more than 50,000 deaths a year in the United States.

Tager noted that about 20 percent of heavy-smoking adults get disabling lung diseases.

Another study published Sept. 10 in the journal Lancet found that the risk of lung cancer is higher in smokers whose mothers also smoked.

United Way agencies help Midlanders

Many people in their day to day lives never consider the consequences of drug or alcohol abuse, a family breakup, or criminal acts such as domestic violence or sexual assault.

Until it happens to them, that is.

Two of Midland's United Way agencies are working to help prevent Midlanders from abusing drugs and alcohol. However, when preventive efforts don't succeed, the Palmer Drug Abuse Program (PDAP) and the Council on Alcoholism are there to assist on the long, trying road back to sobriety.

PDAP is an organization composed primarily of persons who have worked their way back to from addiction or abuse to freedom from chemical dependence. Through group support and extensive family involvement, PDAP has earned a remarkable reputation for helping to "free" persons from the consequences of drugs and alcohol abuse.

The Council on Alcoholism can be reached 24 hours a day for advise, counsel, information and referral to the alcohol abuser or to the family of the abuser,

It doesn't take drugs or alcohol to cause the pain and sadness of separation or divorce. There are enough stresses and strains in contemporary daily living to boost the divorce rate to an all-time high.

Family Services, a United Way agency, offers individual and group counseling and therapy to help husbands, wives and children sort out, understand and cope with the problems which may be leading them to a family break-up.

It is not always possible to repair the damage of family conflict. When divorce is inevitable, Family Services works with those affected to help them adjust to the circumstances of a fractured family.

Often couples lose control of their relationship before seeking help. All too frequently this leads to physical violence for woman like Jane (a fictious name).

With three children, ranging in age from 10 years to four weeks, she appeared at the Permian Baisn for Battered Women and Their Children with a long history of family violence. Although the family was now safe, the two older boys were extremely aggressive, probably a reaction to the violence. To help them adjust, both John and Joey attend the "Helping Kids Cope" after-school program at the center. They have since been able to display their feelings in a acceptable manner and have learned to show love and affection openly. The youngest child, Jack, needed clothing and, more importantly, orthopedic surgery.

Betty Dickerson, left, is one of the volunteers with the Midland Rape Crisis Center, a United Way agency. Often the center's assistance begins in the hospital emergency room and continues over several months. In 1982 the center helped 72 sexual assault victims.

Through United Way funding, the family's basic physical needs (food, clothing, shelter, medicine) were met. With the help of other community organizations, Jack was sent to Houston for surgery, and counseling and recreational activities were offered to the family.

Jane and her children will be moving in with her parents soon, just until she can find work and a place of their own.

Without the center, the United Way and several other organizations, Jane's story might have been totally different. In 1982 the Center for Battered Women housed 444 women and children. That total will swell to more than 500 in 1983.

Rape — an act which violates a person's body, mind and spirit — is usually quick and final. The aftermath, however, can be lenghty, devastating and unbearably lonely for an adult victim. What happens when a child is assaulted?

Such a call was answered one night by a Rape Crisis Center volunteer. Another volunteer was contacted to meet the child and her family at the law enforcement agency.

The volunteer helped explain the reporting and court process to the family as the young victim was examined by a pediatrician. The volunteer also accompanied the child and her parents to the District Attorney's office. The family was then informed of action which could be taken against the assailant, who was a friend of the family.

The same volunteer maintained close contact with the victim throughout the six months it took to convict the assailant.

Because of the Rape Crisis Center's trained staff and volunteers, a qualified person was available to step in immediately and help.

Today, the young girl seems to be doing well in school and at home. But her story could have been different.

How many teen-agers or adults in Midland will fall victim to drugs or alcohol in 1984? How many families will fall apart? How many men will brutally beat their wives and children? How many women will be raped? How many children will be sexually assaulted?

Not very pleasant thoughts to consider. Thankfully there are five United Way agencies ready to give aid, comfort, counsel and support to the victims of these unthinkable, sometimes unspeakable events.

Talking computer may aid operations

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

SAN DIEGO — Researchers at the University of California, San Diego, are working on a computer that anesthesiologists will be able to talk to during operations.

The computer would be programmed to understand words and allow the anesthesiologist to record the progress of the operation rather than take notes.

The technique, one of the first medical uses of computerized "speech recognition," has been tested during several operations at the university's Medical Center and the Veterans Administration Medical Center here during the last year, project leader Dr. Andrew Sarnat said.

During the operations, Sarnat wore a microphone connected to the computer, speaking slowly so the computer would understand him as he described another anesthesiologist's actions.

For example, if the patient were injected with 250 milligrams of the anesthetic thiopental, Sarnat would say, "Drug ... thiopental ... 250 ... milligrams." On the computer screen would flash the words, DRUG THIOPENTAL 250 MILLIGRAMS.

The computer has a vocabulary of 150 words that soon will be expanded to 200. If perfected, the device not only would spare an anesthesiologist the trouble of interrupting his work to take notes but also would eliminate the problem of deciphering scribbled handwriting.

Heart attack victims often fear sex unnecessarily

By The Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — Heart attack victims — both men and women — often have unjustified fears about resuming their sex lives once they recover and needlessly allow their closest relationships to deteriorate because of a lack of intimacy, one of the few experts in the field contends.

Men and women have roughly the same fears about sex after a heart attack, according to Dr. Chris Papadopoulos, a Baltimore cardiologist widely known in his field of special interest. He said sex after heart attack is a topic many doctors unfortunately avoid discussing with their patients, possibly because the physicians themselves are embarrassed to talk about it.

PAPADOPOULOS HAS published what may be the first thorough study of the sexuality of female heart attack victims ever presented in a major medical journal.

Heart attack survivors of both genders tend to avoid sex because they are afraid the exertion may set off a new round of chest pains and trigger another seizure, Papadopoulos said. And while those fears may occasionally be justified, both Papadopoulos and a cardiac rehabilitation expert at the University of California, Los Angeles, agreed that almost all victims of uncomplicated heart attacks can resume sexual relationships between three weeks and two months after they are released from the hospital.

PART OF THE FEAR comes from heightened attention to the behavior of the heart, Papadopoulos said. A heart attack victim who notices that his or her heartbeat has increased after orgasm, for instance, may erroneously conclude that the racing beat comes from palpitations that signal a new seizure when, in fact, the heart is responding normally to sex, just as it always has.

As a general rule, victims of heart attacks who can tolerate mild exercise without experiencing chest pains — climbing two flights of stairs or walking around the block, for instance — can safely resume sex, said Papadopoulos and Kathleen Dracup, a nurse specialist in sexual counseling at UCLA Medical Center's cardiac rehabilitation unit.

DRACUP, who also holds a doctoral degree in nursing science, has been advising cardiac patients in sexual matters for the last 10 years. Papadopoulos is associated with South Baltimore General Hospital and the University of Maryland School of Medicine.

Curiously, Papadopoulos said, although concerns about sex are common among heart patients, only a handful of studies of who can and cannot safely resume sex have been done. Most of what little has been published in medical journals has focused on male heart attack victims.

Now, however, Papadopoulos, who in 1978 conducted an in-depth study of the sex lives of 135 male heart attack victims, has published a similar review of the cases of 130 women. The new study appeared in the Archives of Internal Medicine, a publication of the American Medical Association. The men ranged in age from 37 to 80 and the women from 38 to 65.

AMONG THE observations in the two studies were these:

—Of the 84 women who had been sexually active before their heart attacks, more than 27 percent did not go back to sex once they recovered. Of women who resumed sex, most reported they had intercourse far less frequently than before. Of male patients, 21 percent did not resume sex, and like the women, a majority who did resume sex reported less frequent intercourse.

—Of women who resumed sex, 51 percent said they had some fear of renewed symptoms or another heart attack. Seven of the women expressed what Papadopoulos said is a common concern among seizure victims — the fear that they might die during sex.

—For both men and women who resumed sex, a large number reported apparent heart symptoms during intercourse. Of the women, 57 percent reported chest pain, racing heartbeat, shortness of breath, perspiration and fatigue. Of the men, 51 percent reported some symptoms, with shortness of breath the most common and chest pain the least.

PAPADOPOULOS NOTED that many of the symptoms reported by the patients are, under normal circumstances, considered routine adjuncts of sex and speculated that many men and women who have had heart attacks may simply pay more attention to their bodily reactions to sex because they fear renewed seizures.

Key to the Papadopoulos research was an observation the Baltimore physician said he found common to both sexes: When couples who have been sexually active before a heart attack do not resume intercourse, there is often serious damage to the intimacy of their relationships.

Of 23 couples who did not go back to sex interviewed in the study of female victims, 52 percent reported that their emotional ties had been seriously weakened and that they had become significantly more distant. Of 61 couples interviewed who resumed sex, 28 percent found themselves emotionally closer, 47 percent reported no change in emotional state and 25 percent found themselves more distant, despite resuming sex.

A FEW OF THE men and women said they were relieved that the heart attack gave them an excuse to stop having sex.

Kids' magazine on computers

NEW YORK (AP) — The Children's Television Workshop, producer of "Sesame Street," has launched a new monthly magazine designed to cover the realm of computers and computer technology for youngsters age 10-16.

The new publication, called "Enter," will be filling a gap in the fast-growing computer periodicals arena, according to its editor, Ira Wolfman, who notes that children and teen-agers are among the most avid users of computer games and computers.

Editorial content will include "career opportunities and issues relating to the development of computer technology of the '80s," Wolfman says.

There will also be "how-to" articles, plus games, quizzes, puzzles and programming challenges, Wolfman says.

American masterpieces shown

BOSTON (AP) — Art works by Gilbert Stuart, John Singer Sargent and Thomas Eakins are among the many pieces of American art to be included in the exhibition "A New World: Masterpieces of American Painting, 1760-1910," at the Museum of Fine Arts here.

The display opened September 7 and continues through November 13.

Vaccine studied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first large-scale American test of an experimental vaccine against chickenpox indicates the vaccine is highly protective against the disease with no serious side effects, say the developers.

Scientists from Merck Sharp & Dohme Research Laboratories in Philadelphia said Wednesday that the vaccine still is years away from widespread use, but the initial results are promising.

Roy Walker, a company spokesman, said the firm is planning up to three more years of testing with up to 10,000 children before seeking final approval of the vaccine from the Food and Drug Administration.

Further tests are needed to define long-term safety and to determine the duration of the immunity provided by the vaccine, he said.

There is no approved vaccine against chickenpox, a common viral infection that mostly strikes children. The infectious disease is caused by a herpes-family virus called varicella zoster.

An estimated 3 million children get chickenpox each year in the United States and most ride out the resulting fever, blisters and discomfort with no lasting effects. In normal children, complications of the disease result in death in about two out of every 100,000 cases.

Doctors hope the vaccine will be useful particularly with youngsters whose infection-fighting immune systems are suppressed by disease or therapy. Children treated for leukemia and other cancers are highly susceptible to chickenpox because of their therapy and the disease has a fatality rate greater than 7 percent in these cases, experts say.

Former coach offers tips for football fans' families

By DAVID LEE FORREST
Lifestyle Writer

Richard Harvey would like more Midlanders to be able to appreciate the art of football.

A football coach for 21 years, Harvey offers simple advice to beginners — such as wives of some football fans — who want to learn to enjoy and understand the popular sport.

"I think they have to sit down, at a TV, preferably, and just listen to what the announcers are saying," he said.

A novice can learn a great deal about the game if he pays careful attention to the game and what the announcers say, he said.

"Most of the TV announcers are pretty good," Harvey said.

He suggested novices learn the names and positions of players on a team to develop a personal interest in the team.

"Getting to know them, I think, would help," he said.

"One of the best ways to learn strategy is to listen to the radio," said Harvey, so the listener can concentrate on the announcer's description of the team's field position and situation.

"They do it on TV, but you're watching all those other things," he said.

To learn the most difficult things , which Harvey said are defensive schemes and pass patterns, he recommended beginners read a book about football illustrated with diagrams.

"I think there are a lot of books on the subject," he said.

"It's not a complicated game," said Harvey. "You've got to want to understand the game. That's the primary thing."

He coached Grapevine's high school football team for seven years and Sul Ross University's team for 14 years. Following his coaching career, Harvey moved to Midland in 1976 and entered the real estate and insurance business.

He recently attempted to teach a Midland College community services class called "Football, Basic Information for Families."

Unfortunately, because of low enrollment, Harvey's planned class was canceled before it could kick off.

The two-night course, Harvey thought, would have been especially helpful for wives who wish to participate in the weekend and Monday night football-watching rituals of their husbands.

"If they want to do that together, they have to learn the game to enjoy it," he said.

"So many people weren't involved in it (football) in high school, weren't on the team or in the band," he said. "In some cases, it would be the husband.

"I know some ladies who are much stronger football fans than their husbands," he noted.

Midland also has a sizable population of people from other countries who aren't acquainted with football, but might enjoy the all-American sport if they knew more about it, Harvey said.

"They may know soccer real well, but don't know anything about football," he said. "It's kind of like me watching hockey.

"When in Rome do as the Romans do," he said.

He said he doesn't know why there was not more interest in the course, but he hasn't ruled out the possibility of trying again next season.

"It (the class) would certainly be helpful," he said.

"NFL Football Follies," a videodisc featuring a humorous look at pro football set to music, will be presented at noon, Oct. 5, by the Midland County Library, 301 W. Missouri Ave.

If public interest in the presentations appears to be high, said John W. Deats, county librarian, the library will continue the football-oriented documentaries every other Wednesday at noon.

The following list, compiled by the Midland County Library, includes some of the library's books which might be helpful to a novice football fan.

Some of the books contain general football information, biographies and autobiographies to provide an insider's view of the game and few of the books are about unusual approaches to football.

GENERAL INFORMATION

— "The Football Handbook" by Sam DeLuca

— "How to Watch a Football Game" by Frank and Lynn Barrett

— "A Wife's Guide to Pro Football" by Elaine Tarkenton and Michael Rich, with notes by Fran Tarkenton.

BIOGRAPHIES

"Don't Hit Him, He's Dead" by John McDonough with Paul T. Owens (a look at pro football from the viewpoint of a Super Bowl referee)

"Fighting Back" by Rocky Bleier with Terry O'Neil

"The Man Inside . . . Landry" by Bob St. John (a biography of Dallas Cowboy's coach Tom Landry)

"Staubach — First Down, Lifetime to Go" by Roger Staubach with Sam Blair and Bob St. John

"They Call Me Assasin" by Jack Tatum with Bob Kushner (a controversial book on the violent profession of football)

"Time Enough to Win" by Roger Staubach with Frank Luksa

ETC.

"The Armchair Quarterback" edited by John Thorn (This is a historical collection of short pieces on pro football running from the 1920s to the 1980s by various writers.)

"Rites of Fall — High School Football in Texas" text by Al Reinert, photos by Geoff Winningham and commentary by Don Meredith (a very heavily illustrated look at the native rituals surrounding Texas high school football games)

Sweet sounds of 'elevator music' elate Muzak market

By DAVID LEE FORREST
Lifestyle Writer

Muzak, the recorded instrumental background music often heard in elevators, waiting rooms and bank lobbies, seems to be almost everywhere, including Midland.

It has been estimated that more than 80 million people in 125 countries hear Muzak.

Mexico City is one of the largest Muzak markets in the world, Jerry Rogers, manager of the Midland Muzak franchise, noted.

"You go into a nice restaurant in Mexico City, and you'll hear Muzak," he said. "But if you go into a Mexican restaurant here they'll probably be playing what they think of as Mexican music."

Muzak is also played in the White House, the Pentagon, the offices of the Encyclopedia Britanica, Reader's Digest, General Motors, IBM and 22 of the top 25 largest insurance companies, according to the Muzak Corporation.

Muzak has 400 subscribers in the Midland-Odessa area, Rogers said, and the local franchise won a international award in 1981 for achieving the highest number of sales in its category.

Muzak's local subscribers range from banks and oil companies to beauty shops and grocery stores, he said.

Locally, services vary from $35-a-month one-speaker systems to a 300-speaker system which costs a few hundred dollars each month.

All Muzak comes from New York. Muzak arranges, produces and records each song it plays in its own studios in Westbury, N.Y. The selections are programmed in order by computer and played on automated tape machines in New York City. A Western Union antenna in New Jersey sends the signals to a satellite, which beams the music back down to all the local franchises.

The local franchise then transmits the Muzak on a special FM frequency to all the subscribers in its area. Most of these subscribers lease Muzak's own receivers and sound equipment on a monthly basis, although Rogers said some businesses own their own sound systems.

One result of the Muzak distribution system, Rogers said, is that at any given time of day, every Muzak subscriber everywhere will hear the exact same sounds.

The system is set up so that a Californian will hear the same song at 1 p.m. Pacific Standard Time as a New Yorker hears at 1 p.m. Eastern Standard Time, even though there is a three-hour difference between the two coasts.

This is important because Muzak is designed to give different effects at different times of day, Rogers said.

According to Muzak's studies, a worker feels his worst at 10:30 a.m., when lunch is still more than an hour away, and 3:30 p.m., when quitting time is more than an hour away.

Muzak is planned to be moderately upbeat early in the morning, becomes brighter at 10:30 a.m., is restful at lunchtime and then builds up to give another mood boost in the afternoon.

It is also designed so each 15-minute segment progresses from less stimulating music to more stimulating tunes to give "employees a sense of forward movement and a psychological lift," according to a Muzak brochure.

"A proper sound environment is as important as proper air conditioning or proper lighting," said Rogers. "Just the hum of the lights can be distracting and a cause of fatigue."

Fewer typing and clerical errors occur in offices equiped with Muzak, according to Rogers, and shoppers in stores with Muzak stay longer in the stores and spend more.

The Muzak Corp. said a study by the Bank of St. Louis showed a 33 percent reduction in transaction errors and a 20 percent increase in productivity with Muzak.

The company also cites a study of three New York banks showing that more than 87 percent of 1,335 depositors surveyed liked the music and thought it created a friendly atmosphere.

"Our music is designed not to be distracting," he said. "You're trying to sell a car to a guy and then he hears his favorite song on the radio, he's not going to be listening to what you're saying.

Nothing ever happens on Muzak that would be distracting."

The company's promotional literature states flatly that "Muzak is not entertainment. In a very real sense, Muzak is not music at all.

"Most music is meant to entertain. It requires active listening and intellectual involvement. But Muzak is meant to do just the opposite. It is meant to aid concentration."

Rogers is not fond of the derision Muzak often receives, including comments about "elevator music" or "dentist office music."

"We do have it in a lot of elevators in Midland," he said. "But we serve very few dentists' offices in Midland."

Dentists often seem to prefer recording their own music and using their own equipment, Rogers said.

"Muzak" has become a well-known name, Rogers said, and is often misused to identify all recorded background music — including home made recordings — much like some people refer to all soft drinks as "Coke" or all tissues "Kleenex."

He also said Muzak has been updated to include newer, more popular songs.

"It's more of a contemporary sound," he said. "They even have Rod Stewart and Paul Simon songs."

Despite Muzak's international, satellite-transmitted high technology the idea of special music to work by is not a new concept, Rogers said.

"Even when they were building the pyramids they chanted," he said.

The manager of one store that uses Muzak said he really doesn't know whether it has any effect on his customers, although most of the customers who were asked, said they enjoyed it.

"I've never worked without it," said Gene McClintick, manager of M-System Food Store No. 15, 400 Midland Dr.

"I know what it's supposed to do," he said. "It's supposed to put people in a relaxed, receptive mood."

However, McClintick said, since he has never worked in a store without Muzak, he has no previous experience with which to compare it.

He said he has never had any complaints or compliments on the background music.

"Maybe if we didn't have it," he said, "we would have (complaints)."

As some M-System customers were leaving the store, the Reporter-Telegram asked them for their opinions of the background music. The majority of the shoppers questioned said they liked it. Almost as many said they didn't even notice it.

When asked if she noticed the store's Muzak, June Ason said, "That's weird. Normally I don't but today I did."

The music caught her attention, she said, because it was playing "a more popular tune, 'Something's Got a Hold of Me.' "

"I liked it fine," she added. "It was up, perky."

Delores Stanley said she wasn't aware of the Muzak at all. Asked if she thought it could affect her shopping habits anyway, she said, "No, I don't really think so."

Wayne Harris also doubted the background music influenced the amount of items he purchased.

"I wouldn't think it does," he said. "I try to have a list."

"I didn't particularly pay attention to it, but I like music," said Terry Kendrick. "I think it makes it more pleasant. I like any kind of music."

"I notice music anywhere I go," George Barker said. "Any kind of music is my kind of music."

Hazel Roberts said grocery shopping was her "relaxing time" and the soft music helped.

"When you're shopping in there it makes it really nice," she said. "Every aisle you see a different food and it creates a different mood.

"You can come in here not feeling too well and it can make you feel better. It wouldn't be very pleasant if it were just silent."

Not everyone gave the background music such rave reviews.

"It was okay," Shelly Sicks said, but "I like country and western better."

"I didn't even notice it," said Steve Marcom. "If it's not country, I don't usually even notice it."

Jill Penn also said she didn't notice the music. She works for a firm that puts scanners in grocery stores, she said. "So when I'm in there I'm pretty much thinking about business. I hear the beeping of the scanners."

Jo Praisnar had a definite opinion on background music.

"I hate it all," she said. "Most of it is too loud. The absolute worst is Midland Park Mall."

She was the only person interviewed who said that the music did affect her shopping habits in some way.

"I will leave the store if it interrupts too much," she said.

'Document' fabrics recreate a feeling of past

By The Associated Press

An authentic copy of an old fabric is known as a "document." Those seeking to create a historically accurate interior rely on such documentary fabrics to recreate a feeling of the past with today's home furnishings.

Once hard to come by — especially for American interiors — reproductions are now more widely available. One authority recently estimated that documentary fabrics are available for every year in American history between 1700 and 1850. A growing number of fabrics are also based on the later Victorian, Art Nouveau and Art Deco periods.

To make use of these fabrics, consumers must educate themselves about the period they are trying to recreate. This research can be carried out at libraries, historical restorations and museums as well as in books devoted to the past.

Start with the general period of your house. If it is an old house, chances are you can find out when it was constructed. If the house is new, but was built to reproduce the past, a book on American building techniques through the ages should help to identify the type of house and the approximate era to which it belongs.

The next question is what were the commonly available fabrics and fabric treatments of that period, says Jane Nylander, textile curator at Old Sturbridge Village restoration in Massachusetts.

Use whatever you know of the house and its real or imagined occupants as a basis to search for similar interiors in books, museums and fabric collections, says Ms. Nylander, who has written a useful book on the subject, "Fabrics for Historic Buildings," published by the National Trust for Historic Preservation in 1980.

Actually, today's machine-made fabrics do not exactly duplicate the color and texture of handmade fabrics of one or two centuries ago. Today's chemical dyes produce different effects from the old vegetable dyes and fabrics that were printed by hand engraving, copper plate or wood block techniques, while those printed today use silk screen, steel roller printing and photo-engraving methods.

Despite these changes, reproductions are closer to the past than they used to be. For one thing, scholarship is more advanced. "We have learned that earlier reproductions were too dull, relying on documents that had faded over the years," explained Milton Sonde, textile curator at the Cooper Hewitt Museum of Design in New York.

Recently, it was learned there was a marked preference for bold and dramatic designs and bright, almost glaring, colors such as yellow, orange, scarlet and bright blue. In the 18th and 19th centuries, these colors were used together at times in effects that today might be thought garish.

Gaining accurate information about decorating ideas of the past has become easier as more museums and restorations have opened to the public. Books on historic architecture and interiors are also more plentiful. Furthermore, a new spirit of authenticity is making itself felt.

Thirty years ago, it was enough to save the artifacts. Today, the emphasis is on uncovering, down to the smallest detail, how homes were furnished, according to Susan Swan, textile curator at Winterthur Museum in Wilmington, Del.

Restorations such as Winterthur with its 196 rooms dating from 1700 to 1850, Colonial Williamsburg, in Williamsburg, Va., and Old Sturbridge Village offer guidance. Smaller local restorations are also excellent sources for information, not only in their rooms but also in publications.

Viewing restorations and pictures of them provides a sense of how period rooms ought to look, which will be helpful when it is time to go shopping for fabrics.

"Ask me how somebody furnished an 18th- or 19th-century home, and I couldn't give you an answer unless you also told me what their economic status was and where they bought their furnishings," said Sonde. Just as today, a variety of choices was possible, depending on one's taste and resources.

Most documentary fabrics come in several colors, but only one is likely to be true to the period. This color is known as the documentary colorway or, for example, "documentary blue." The other shades are chosen by the manufacturer with an eye to what is selling and generally have little relevance to the past, so opt for the documentary color for authenticity.

TEA INFORMATION

Although we Americans may have shown some rebelliousness over a few crates of tea in times gone by, it seems that the "civilized" beverage is gaining popularity again in the colonies.

In keeping with this not-unwelcome trend, Lipton introduces The World of Tea, a 48-page, full-color booklet that outlines some of the fascinating history and heritage of tea. The booklet starts with a history of Lipton Inc., itself a romantic rags-to-riches story. It then braces the route a tea leaf makes before it reaches your tea-thirsty lips.

Brewing instructions are accompanied by tea tips, followed by procedures for making the All-America favorite — iced tea. Recipes for turning the simple cup of tea into everything from a summer cooler to the punch of the party are also included. An international glossary of tea terms and a trip around the tea world finish off the package.

Children's signals varied

Hearst Feature Service

How can parents recognize early warnings that their children may be facing problems that can threaten school performance?

The signals, according to psychologists Steven Sobelman and Hava Bonne, may be aggressive and overt or passive and subtle.

"Young elementary school children generally exhibit fear and anxiety which they cannot easily verbalize, Sobelman said. Fear of going to school -- schoolphobia – is really a misnomer, according to Sobelman, who said that children are actually expressing a fear of leaving home.

Bullies in the classroom and schoolyard raise fears, but it's not school itself that the child fears. If that child believes he has a support system – both at home and at school –

As children grow older, rather than show fear and anxiety when under stress, they express anger and withdrawal. Teenagers also withdraw, and although some rebellion at that age is normal, watch out for signs of excessive anger.

No matter what the age, when a child is in trouble, academic performance slips. If grades began to fall, ask questions.

Truancy, a reluctance to participate in extra-curricular activities and poor academic performance because of dyslexia and hearing or sight difficulties should trigger parental concern.

FABRIC SECRETS

BETTY MARTIN
Straighten the ends of a woven fabric by pulling a crosswise thread until the fabric puckers. Then, cut along the puckered line across the entire width. The ends will now coincide with the crosswise threads. Although tearing the fabric offers a much quicker method of straightening fabric ends, the pulling action may throw the first several inches off grain at both fabric ends. Or, the cloth may suddenly take off and split along the lengthwise grain. For knitted fabric, cut along a crosswise line of loops to straighten fabric ends. Use chalk or thread tracing if the loops are not easily seen.

DEAR ABBY

Mother's model son may go to top

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My good-looking, 19-Year-old son, "John," was encouraged to go to modeling school here in our city. Upon graduating he was accepted by a well-known modeling agency in New York.

My husband and I have been warned by someone in the fashion industry that most of the men in the modeling profession are homosexual. Since John expects to go to New York in a few months, do you or any of your readers have any advice for him other than to "forget it"? Do you think he can make it in that profession without being compromised or intimidated when he makes it plain that he is heterosexual?

Is a young man's sexual preference formed by this age, or is a man always vulnerable to try anything? – CONCERNED MOM

DEAR MOM: I have no advice for "John," since he has asked for none. But I have some for you, Mom: If your son is heterosexual, you need not worry about the possibility of his being "compromised or intimidated" by homosexuals in the modeling/fashion profession; his sexual orientation – not "preference" – will have been formed by that time.

And whether a man (or woman) is always vulnerable to "try anything" depends on the man or woman.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow of 70. My husband and I raised all our children with the same amount of love and understanding, but the only one who has shown any love and caring for me is our youngest. If my husband knew how the other children ignore me, he would turn over in his grave.

Abby, the youngest telephones me every evening to chat for at least half an hour and visits me often. The others I rarely hear from (unless they want something), and if I want to know how they – or their children – are, I have to do the calling. We are on friendly terms, but it is apparent that they couldn't care less if I were dead or alive. Of course if I invite them for dinner they are all here to put their feet under my table and fill up. But they never invite me.

The big question: Do I treat them all alike in my will? My husband left me everything. I am thinking very strongly of leaving my estate to the one who deserves it.

If I tell the others now, they will probably treat me nicer only for the money, which is as empty as an upside-down bucket. That kind of "love" I don't need. What do you say, Abby? – HEARTBROKEN MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Where is it written that children should automatically get what their parents have worked and saved for? Tell your lawyer how you feel. Do exactly as you please, and surprise your heirs.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter wants a big, fancy church wedding, plus a reception, band and everything that goes with it, but we can't afford it. Not only that, but she and her fiance have been living together as man and wife for two years already. Maybe we're old-fashioned, Abby, but we don't think it's right for a couple who have been living together that way to have that kind of wedding.

Our daughter is very upset with us and thinks we should try to find the money somewhere. Both she and her fiance work, and his parents are well-off financially. We are not. We love our daughter and want her to be happy. What should we do? – WEDDING WOES

DEAR WOES: If you can't afford to give your daughter the kind of wedding she wants, that should settle it.

Tell your daughter that you love her and want her to be happy, but she will either have to settle for a wedding that's within your means, or she and her fiance should try to "find the money somewhere."

Mind complicated

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — What's big and gray and has four legs? An elephant — but how do we know that?

University of Rochester Professor Patrick J. Hayes, a researcher in cognitive science, is studying how the mind works, using computer programs as models. But computers have a long way to go before they can answer the elephant question, he says.

Lemon sherbet has tangy taste

LEMON SHERBET

It has tangy flavor.

1 cup light corn syrup
3 cups milk
Grated rind of 2 lemons
¾ cup lemon juice

Stir together the sugar, corn syrup, milk, lemon rind and lemon juice until sugar dissolves — it will look slightly curdled. In a 2-quart electric freezer, freeze according to manufacturer's directions. Makes about 1½ quarts.
