Lubbock Begins Active Fight For Hospital

Options To Be Obtained On Tracts Of Land For Site Of New State Institution

By H. I. KIEFER
Avalanche Staff Writer

LUBBOCK has begun its active fight for the new West Texas state hospital for creation of which the recent legislature provided an $17,000 appropriation, chamber of commerce officials announced last night.

Sam J. McFarland and Glen Hess, real estate men, have been designated, the announcement said, to obtain options on tracts which may be offered to the state as site for the institution here.

Invited To Submit Land

While McFarland and Hess, according to C. E. Maedgen, chairman of the chamber's hospital committee, will be in the field seeking suitable locations, those with land which they consider desirable are invited to submit them.

"We have no hesitancy in letting it be known that we are seeking options, and who is seeking them," said a spokesman for the chamber of commerce. The large number of suitable and available sites will be ample protection against excessive price."

To Make Selection On Site

The quest for sites began almost immediately following a formal notification to Lubbock from the state board of control, of which Claude V. Teer is chairman, that the board is preparing to make its selection of a site for the institution.

One of the requirements to be considered is that the applying city must offer 300 acres of good, fertile agricultural land as a minimum for a site. The letter said further that 300 to 500 acres of such land is desirable, along with 500 to 1,000 acres of additional area. The committee here, it was disclosed, has not begun any consideration of how much land will be offered above the minimum requirement.

Requirements Are Set Out

Teer's letter said also that the hospital must be located west of the 100th meridian, which lies about half way between Abilene and Sweetwater and approximately 90 miles due east of Lubbock. It must be accessible and convenient to the greatest number of inhabitants of the area to be served, with consideration for such facilities as railroads, bus lines, highways and utilities, and must be at a sufficient distance where the city will not grow up to it but still near enough for employes to be temporarily or permanently housed.

Applications must be filed by June 20, the letter said, after

Congress Aims Guns At Tax Dodgers

WASHINGTON, June 1 (AP)—Congress levelled the double barrels of publicity and legislation tonight at wealthy persons whom President Roosevelt accused of dodging taxes.

Soon after Mr. Roosevelt demanded that the "evil practices" be stopped, the senate adopted a resolution for an investigation. Leaders said the inquiry would lay the facts before the public and furnish the basis for laws to circumvent the "clever little schemes" by which tax payments are avoided.

In his message, President Roosevelt included a letter from Secretary Morgenthau relating some of the methods of the alleged tax dodgers—numerous personal corporations, incorporation of yachts, racing stables and the like.

Motion Picture Strike Closed With Union Agreement Tuesday

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 1. (AP)—The motion picture strike of scenic artists ended tonight and 2,500 men prepared to return to work in the studios tomorrow, following announcement of an agreement by which the painters' union becomes absorbed with the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes.

The painters, major unit of the Federated Motion Picture Crafts, walked out of the studios a months ago today.

Beard Makes Futile Attempt To Escape From Death Cell

(By The Associated Press)

HUNTSVILLE, June 1. — Dwight Beard, 27, awaiting execution Thursday at midnight for the slaying of John Roberts, former city detective, at Dallas Dec. 23, 1935, made a futile attempt to escape from his cell today by using a gun made of soap. He was thwarted by the presence of mind of a guard.

Beard, released from his cell on death row to take a bath, confronted Guard T. W. Arnold with the imitation gun and forced the latter into a cell with three convicts. He made Arnold give up his cell door keys and locked the door. Then Beard forced Arnold to strip and pass his clothing through the bars while he dressed in them.

Keys Would Not Fit

Beard then went to a door opening on the prison yard but they keys he had would not fit the lock. He raced up and down the cell row seeking it. Finally he went to the door and as Guard Little came up to it form the outside he reached through the bars and grabbed his arm and told him to unlock the door. Little replied that he couldn't as he had no key.

Finally Little broke loose and summoned Warden W. W. Waid. By the time Waid arrived Beard had released Arnold and the latter had redressed. "When he ordered me into the cell, I carried the key to the door opening onto the yard into the cell with me and hid it," Arnold said. "Then he couldn't get out. After hunting in vain he gave up with the remark, 'I just can't make it'."

No Trace Of Gun Found

An intensive search into every nook and cranny of the death cell failed to reveal the gun, leading prison officials to agree with Beard's story that the gun was made of soap and that he crumbled it up and dropped it into a commode and flushed it from sight.

Waid said he had the sewer system examined but was unable to find a trace of the weapon.

The warden said Beard most likely would never have gone further than the death house doorway anyway since a picket guard with a rifle has a broadside view of the entrance.

Would Have Duplicated Escape

Officials agreed Beard was planning to pass himself through triple guarded doors of the prison under the guise of a guard. Had he been successful he would have duplicated his escape from a North Carolina prison Aug. 25, 1935, when he and a companion walked through the front door of the prison at Raleigh.

Since coming here April 29 Beard has steadfastly maintained he will miss the electric chair. "I missed it

House Revolt On Relief Crushed

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Embattled administration leaders crushed a house revolt aimed at earmarking more than one-third of the $1,500,000,000 work-relief bill tonight and passed the measure along to the senate.

Acting Speaker Vinson (D-Ky) announced shortly before midnight that tabulation of the roll call showed 323 for the huge bill and 44 against.

Work Hours Overtime

Working many hours overtime—most of them dinnerless and weary—house members stripped from the bill amendments which would have set aside $505,000,000 of the total for PWA undertakings, highway construction, flood control and kindred projects.

These amendments, previously voted, would have tied the presidents hands, restricting his freedom to allot the money to such work relief projects as he deemed advisable. The house also defeated an amendment previously approved which would have cut $2,000 from the $12,000 salary of Harry L. Hopkins, works progress administrator. The vote to restore the $12,000 figure was 272 to 96.

Government Fails To Secure 'Go Ahead' Signal On Power Plans

WASHINGTON, June 1. (AP)—The government failed today to obtain a "go ahead" signal from the Supreme court for federal financing of municipal power plants.

Before completing an epochal term and adjourning until next October, the tribunal overruled a government request that it refuse to review litigation challenging the contitutionality of such financing.

Officials of the Public Works administration declared the court's action means that "at least another six months" will elapse before questions affecting the release of $51,000,000 for 54 public power projects are settled.

Two Alternatives Said Open On Parking Meters Fight, Vote Or Court Injunction

LUBBOCK'S rolling park meter problem gathered further uncertainty last night.

Called into conference by their attorney, opponents of the return of the devices to Lubbock streets were told that of two alternatives open to them "the logical route would be to seek a repeal by an election" of the city ordinance under which the city commission proposes reinstallation of the meters by June 15.

Injunction Other Route

The other suggested plan would be by court injunction.

The alternatives were detailed by George W. Dupree, attorney, at his office to a group of business men who obtained an injunction last December which forced the removal of the meters from business streets 21 days after they had been put into operation. Dupree and C. C. Crenshaw, of the law firm of Crenshaw and Dupree represented the business group in obtaining that injunction.

Dupree said that no decision was reached at the conference as to which, if either, of the plans of attack would be adopted.

Latest Of Developments

The meeting of opponents was the latest of a series of developments which began Saturday. The city commission at that time adopted a new ordinance ordering the meters installed and at the same time repealing the measure to which the injunction applied. As a consequence of that act, dismissal of the attack upon the repealed ordinance became necessary in 72nd district court Monday. Dupree's statement, as prepared for the conference in his office, said that no course other than the dismissal was possible.

While expressing willingness to go ahead with new injunction proceedings aimed at the new ordinance if that should be desired, the attorney's statement discouraged such action. He explained that a Fort Worth appeals court decision favorable to the meters probably would cause a trial court to refuse an injunction. Thus, he said, the time and expense of an appeal to the supreme court probably would be necessary before a final decision could be had.

Procedure Is Outlined

The statement then outlined in detail the procedure to be followed if an election seeking repeal is desired. That porcedure, as explained, might consume a maximum of eight or nine months before a popular vote could be forced.

The step by step proceedings, as detailed, were:

Five qualified voters would file a statement with the city secretary asking that the ordinance be repealed.

This group, known as a "referring

European Peace Hanging Fire

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, June 1.—The return of Germany and Italy to Europe's 27-nation neutrality committee tonight appeared to hinge upon the committee's decision whether to use force against Spain in preventing interference with neutral shipping.

The two nations withdrew from the committee yesterday until they received guarantees against further incidents such as Spanish government air bombardment of the German battleship Deutschland and the Italian naval supply ship Barletta.

HULL ENTERS U. S. PLEA

WASHINGTON, June 1. (AP)—Secretary Hull disclosed today that he had urged both Germany and the Spanish loyalist government, in effect, to refrain from going to war with each other.

His plea, made to the ambassadors of each nation in separate interviews, expressed the hope of the United States that their governments would be able to adjust their difference peaceably.

Suggest Safety Zones

France and Britain suggested safety zones for neutral shipping, which both the insurgent and Madrid-Valencia governments appeared willing to consider.

Germany, however, wanted the further step, informed sources said—use of force by the neutrality committee's naval patrol, now seeking by peaceful inspection of transport ships to prevent shipment of arms or munitions to either side in the civil conflict.

There were some who believed that creation of a sort of inter-

Slayer Of Federal Agent Is Captured

GALLUP, N. M., June 1. (AP)—Guy E. Osborne, 24-year-old fugitive wanted for the slaying of Truett E. Rowe, department of justice agent, was captured without resistance tonight a few hours after the agent was shot and killed.

Kelsey Presley, Gallup chief of police, and Lesie Mahoney, Gallup policeman, made the arrest.

The fugitive was taken to the McKinley county jail and held under heavy guard.

Rowe was fatally shot through the right side as he stood by Osborne late this afternoon, waiting for him to pack his clothes. Rowe and Presley went to the home of the suspect's brother to make the arrest and while Presley watched members of the family, Rowe accompanied the prisoner to his room.

Presley said he heard a shot and Osborne appeared at the door with a gun leveled on him. Then Osborne fled on foot.

Perryton Man Is Selected For Local Schools

Dr. J. T. Hutchinson Reveals Choice Last Night; Is Given One-Year Contract In City

W. B. IRVIN, 37, superintendent of schools at Perryton, a native West Texan and distinguished among West Texas educators, was chosen superintendent of Lubbock city schools last night.

Announcement of the selection was made by Dr. J. T. Hutchinson, president of the city school board following a meeting of the board at his offices in Lubbock sanitarium.

Mr. Irvin will succeed Dr. Kenneth E. Oberholtzer who resigned recently to seek larger fields as superintendent at Long Beach, Calif. Dr. Oberholtzer's resignation becomes effective July 1 and Mr. Irvin will begin his one-year contract on that date.

Nearly 100 Applicants

Irvin's selection was by unanimous vote of the board from a list of applicants for the position here which, in the aggregate, numbered upwards of 100. Members of the board additional to Dr. Hutchinson, are W. B. Atkins, R. F. Bayless, Dr. Allen T. Stewart, E. J. Parsons, W. G. Alderson and Maple Wilson.

Irvin was one of several applicants who met with the school board here last Thursday as the final preliminary to the actual choice of superintendent last night. Advised by telephone of his election here, Irvin accepted contigent upon the Perryton board releasing him from a contract there which has a year longer to run. He expressed confidence that he would be given his release.

Board Released Oberholtzer

The Lubbock board recently released Dr. Oberholtzer from a contract which was effective a year longer.

Irvin has held positions of executive responsibility as an educator for 16 years. Graduating from Simmons university, the present Hardin-Simmons, in 1921 with a B. A. degree, he became principal and coach at Pampa High school for the period 1921 to 1923. He became superintendent there in 1923 and retained that position until his selection as Perryton superintendent in 1925. He has held that post continuously since. During vacation periods he taught summer schools at West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon and at Hardin-Simmons.

In 1927, he obtained his masters

First Leg Made On World Hop

(By The Associated Press)

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, June 1. Amelia Earhart set her twin-motored silver monoplane down here today, completing the first leg of her proposed "just for fun" flight from west to east around the world's equator.

The slim aviatrix, accompanied by her navigator Captain Fred Noonan, landed at 1:30 p. m., e. s. t. at the end of an uneventful 1,008-mile hop from Miami. She made the flight in seven hours, 33 minutes.

Has Fingers Crossed

Miss Earhart announced with fingers crossed that she would take off at dawn tomorrow for Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana on the second leg of her world flight.

The weather was slightly hazy with 25-mile headwinds on the journey which she said mostly was over open ocean.

Miss Earhart and Noonan motored out to Miss Clara Livingstone's country home to spend the night after declining an invitation from

Greatest Wheat Crop Since '31 Predicted

CHICAGO, June 1. (AP)—Mrs. E. H. Miller, widely recognized crop expert, predicted today United States winter wheat production would total 610,244,000 bushels, the largest since 1931.

This estimate represented a reduction from her May 1 forecast of 614,856,000 bushels and the government May 1 figure of 654,291,000. Winter wheat production in 1936 totaled 519,013,000 bushels.

She reported the heaviest winter wheat loss occurred in Kansas while the crop in Texas and Oklahoma also declined during May. These losses were partly offset, however, by gains particularly in the Ohio valley. The winter wheat crop was late, Mrs. Miller said, and unfavorable weather at this time would materially reduce prospects.

Big Spring Officers Drop Probe Of Reported Holdup Of Driver

BIG SPRING, June 1. (AP)—Sheriffs officers today said they had dropped an investigation into the reported hijacking last night of Alex Riddle, 21, truck driver for a wholesale liquor house.

Sheriff Jess Slaughter said he understood some $300 in cash and checks reported taken in the holdup would be returned to the firm. No further action was planned, he said.

Riddle had reported to officers last night that two men and a woman drove alongside his truck, that one of the men forced him at pistol point to alight and then struck him on the head, taking the money. The sheriff said the investigation was dropped today after a comparison of foot prints near where the truck supposedly was stopped.

House Thunders 6-1 Demand For Racing Repeal

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, June 1.—The Texas house of representatives thundered a 6 to 1 demand today for repeal of the four-year-old law permitting horse racing under the pari-mutuel system of betting.

By a vote of 112 to 18, it enthusiastically shot the senate a bill calling for immediate repeal. Opinions differed as to probable action in the upper branch.

The house vote came only five days after Gov. James V. Allred had called the lawgivers into special session to consider track betting alone. The chief executive has been urging repeal since his first campaign for governor in 1934.

While the house's second passage of a repeal bill was not surprising, the size of the vote was. Many legislators had expressed the opinion the number of repeal ballots would be less than 100.

Part of the racing proceeds has been used to purchase and distribute blooded jacks and stallions for breeding purposes. Opponents of repeal maintained benefits to stockmen and tax returns to the state offset any evils connected with racing.

Repeal advocates countered with arguments that the public had no chance to win on race bets and that legalization of track wagers had returned in a wave of gambling of all types.

A repeal bill similar to that which passed the house has been reported favorably by the senate committee on criminal jurisprudence and either may be the vehicle for expressing finally the sentiment of the legislature.

Tension Heightened In Steel's Strike

(By The Associated Press)

A multiplicity of events yesterday heightened tension along the steel strike front.

Nearly a thousand policemen were mobilized for duty in the vicinty of the Republic Steel corporation's South Chicago plant in response to reports Steel Workers Organizing Committee leaders planned a new march on the mill, operating with 1,400 workers in defiance of the strike call.

Disclosure that one of the five men killed in Sunday's bloody riot near the plant was a Communist stirred the opening session of a coroner's inquest. The state's attorney's office at Chicago announced an investigation of "outside agitation" of strike violence would be made.

John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, termed the riot deaths "planned murder." Republic officials replied that his statement was "preposterous."

Strike pickets prepared for an extended siege in Ohio's Mahoning valley, where 32,000 steel workers were idle. Snipers again fired on a plane delivering food to Republic's Warren, Ohio, plant also operating behind picket lines.

Theater Wedding To Be Staged Tonight

A husky high school backfield man and a petite and pretty high school brunette will trip down the aisles at the Palace theater at 8:45 o'clock tonight while the music plays and the parson waits on the "living room" stage to perform Lubbock's annual "official June wedding."

Elton Plowman will sing, accompanied by piano music.

Attendants will accompany the parties to the public contract.

The groom is 20 years old and was born in Texas; the bride is 17 and moved here with her family 10 years ago from Oklahoma, said J. C. Cooley of the Palace. Dr. W. F. Fry of the Tech Bible department will read the vows.

More than 30 merchants have announced gifts they will present to the couple.

Roswell Is Again Inundated; Texas Areas Included

DALHART, June 1.—Thirty-six passengers and a Fort Worth and Denver train were marooned tonight between flood-wrecked bridges over the usually-dry Rita Blanca creek northwest of here.

(By The Associated Press)

ROSWELL, N. M., June 1. — Relentless flood waters swept over Roswell tonight, borne into the city by the Hondo river from rain-battered mountains to the west.

At least two persons were dead. Dozens were rescued from precarious refuges in the inundated area north of the city. Hundreds flod their homes in advance of the approaching crest.

It was Roswell's second major flood in four days. Today's waters were even higher than those which washed in depths up to five feet through most of the city last Saturday.

National guardsmen, commanded by Adjutant General R. C. Charlton, patrolled the streets as "auxiliary police." The city was not under martial law.

The Hondo broke its banks in the city late in the afternoon, despite the fact that a diversion west of the city split the waters and sent much of the approaching flood crest harmlessly to the south and east.

The two known dead were Ysidro Llanas, Spanish-American sheepherder, and his wife, whose bodies were found on a slope in the Capitan mountains, 40 miles west after a torrential rain and hail storm last night. An inquest will be held here to determine the cause of their death. It was this storm which caused the rise of the Hondo, ordinarily almost dry.

Uhl Armstrong, employe of the state highway department at Hondo, 35 miles west, reported that rain was still falling there this afternoon and that a heavy storm appeared to be raging in the Capitan and White mountains.

SAN ANGELO TERRITORY IS THREATENED

SAN ANGELO, June 1 (AP)—A three-hour six-inch rain at Water Valley, watershed of the north Concho river, that winds through the heart of this city, crippled telephone and light service tonight in the northern part of Tom Green county. The river left its second banks at Carlsbad, 16 miles north of here near the state tubercular sanitarium. No damage or loss of life was reported from there.

The river reached a 10 foot rise early Monday morning from a three-inch rain Sunday night. Sterling City still farther north, received one inch.

WATERS RAGE IN OKLAHOMA AREAS

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 1 (AP)—A fresh flood crest on the north Canadian river Tuesday night left Boise City, in the western end of the Oklahoma Panhandle without gas or electric power and tore away some bridges from Guymon west to the New Mexico line.

The sudden rise was blamed on torrential rains in New Mexico.

The river flooded a large section of lowlands between Texhoma and Boise City.

Farther eastward, with the exception of at Woodward in western Oklahoma, conditions moderated. At Woodward, farmers of a three or four square mile area reported mixed hail and wind storm damaged wheat and gardens last night. They said a deluge fell for two hours in the small area.

Berrendo Whirling Torrent

Three miles north of Roswell, the tiny Berrendo river was transformed into a whirling torrent which inundated some twenty-five square miles of rich farm land.

The water there rose so suddenly last night that some residents along its banks were unable to reach safety before the flood swept down on them. Parties of sheriff's officers worked all day to rescue them from attics and the tops of marooned automobiles.

The Berrendo washed out two automobile bridges and swept completely over a main highway bridge and a railroad trestle. Late today it was receding slowly.

Roswell Residents Warned

Warned last night of the approaching crest in the Hondo, Roswell residents labored without sleep to protect their homes and business places against its expected ravages.

All day they waited for the advancing water, and just as they had begun to hope that its force was dissipated, the Hondo, flowing through the city, started its overflow.

Within a few moments, the water was rushing throught the streets and backing up into the lowland section

Early June News Centers Around Bridal Courtesies And Weddings

The Woman's Angle

By Margaret Turner

THE more we think about it the more alarmed we are by the thought that the time may come when everybody will be able to earn a living in two hours of work a day, or three months in the year. What will we do with our leisure time?

A lot of people in this country and elsewhere in the world need more leisure than they are getting, but nobody in his right mind looks forward to a two-hour day.

LIVING IN BRAZIL

WHEN Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Briscoe and K. N. Clapp visited with the George Spencers down at Dallas last week-end they learned a lot about the customs of the interior town in northern Brazil where the former Lubbock couple is living. In the states for a three-months leave, the Spencers plan to leave for South America within two weeks.

Water, which must be boiled, is turned on for two hours daily and electric lights only burn from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until about 10 o'clock at night. Mrs. Spencer has a maid, a butler, a yardman and a cook, but she told her guests she had rather have one negro servant such as is available here than all her native servants. Her cook is unable to read, so Mrs. Spencer has devised a method of getting the contents of a recipe over to her by a drawing method. For instance if the directions call for two teaspoons of baking powder she draws pictures of two spoons and a can; one-half cup of anything is a pictured cup with a line drawn through it. Simple, isn't it?

CAN YOU SOLE IT?

HOW are you coming with the riddle? We were told Tuesday that that was asked at Scotland Yard when the chief inspector attempted to discover the wisest man employed there. If you can't work it, don't take it too hard. We know of a Lubbock lawyer who has sat up nights trying to solve it and Sam West lost hours of sleep when he first heard about it. We also know a man who knows the answer.

NOT SO EASY

BY THE way, speaking of South America, if you have hopes of getting a job down there and saving enough from your salary to live in ease the rest of your life after about five years in the tropics, you'd better give the matter careful thought. In the first place, Americans rarely can acclimate themselves to native foods. And canned American foods are sky high. For instance, the Spencers said that asparagus is one dollar the can and other vegetables and fruits range from 75 cents and up.

ON CHERRY RECIPES

"BUT why should one want anything beter than cherry pies?" asks a reader who submits a spiced cherries recipe in answer to our request for new ways to use cherries. It doesn't seem very practical to us, but she says it is delicious with meats. It's made this way:

Six pounds seeded red cherries, 6 cups granulated sugar, 2 cups vinegar, 1 cup water, 1-4 cup bark cinnamon, 12 whole cloves. Loosely tie spices in a white muslin bag. Add to sugar, vinegar and water. Let simmer 10 minutes. Add cherries, cover and boil gently for 15 minutes. Pour into stone jar. When cool cover with a plate and store in a cool, dry place.

If others have recipes for cherries they are fortunate enough to get before little boys climb the back fence and get to them, please telephone or write us. You have never failed us yet. We want cherry recipes.

Total Of 1,874 Cars Inspected

A total of 1,874 automobiles yesterday were inspected by a group of traffic officers here in the first of a two-day free examination of automobiles sponsored by the Department of Public Safety.

Seven representatives of the Texas Highway partol, two traffic officers of Austin, four members of the Lubbock police department, and a member of the fire department, assisted in the examination of vehicles on Avenue N between Broadway and Thirteenth streets.

For a time, automobile owners desiring inspections congested the street so that two lanes were necessary to accomodate them, said Captain W. W. Legge of the highway patrol.

Of the nearly 1,900 cars which passed through the lane Tuesday, 555 were defective. More than 100 of the defective machines later passed through the lane again and were marked "OK" by inspectors.

Bad Brakes On 216

Of the defective automobiles, 216 had bad brakes, 21 defective mufflers, 228 falty lights, 124 bad horns, 7 faulty steering gears, and 132 defective windshield wipers.

Capt. Legge said more automobiles were inspected yesterday than in any previous test held in this district. Even a larger number is expected to take advantage of the courtesy service today, he said, provided inclement weather conditions do not prevent them.

He expressed appreciation to the public for their cooperation in the project and extended an invitation to others to take advantage of the opportunity offered. The first day of the work was more of a success than was expected, he said.

When automobiles entered the lane at the intersecetion of Broadway and Avenue N, drivers were given instructions on what to do. Children were not allowed in automobiles as a precaution against injuries when brakes were applied, it was pointed out. Machines were tested for defective brakes, lights, horn, steering gear, and windshield wiper, respectively. Any officer in the lane who detected a defect in the muffler made a mark on the running board. For every defect machines received a mark.

Automobiles going through the lane without any marks were rewarded with a blue sticker on the windshield. Defective automobiles were given pink stickers with lists of the defects.

Every automobile which went through the lane was recorded by license number with the defects, Capt. Legge pointed out.

Moving pictures in connection with the safety campaign were shown Tuesday at noon at the Lions club luncheon and will be shown to members of the Rotary club today. Sergeant Ross Dickey is in charge of showing the pictures. They also will be shown tonight at the fire station with the public invited to see them, highway officers said.

On Fourteenth Street Today

Today's lane will be held on Fourteenth street between Avenue H and Texas avenue with cars going west. After conducting similar tests in other sections of this highway district for the next two weeks, the crew will return to Lubbock for two more days of inspection June 17 and 18.

Assisting in the examinations were: Captain W. W. Legge of the highway patrol in charge; Hammett Vance and Tom Tidmore of the Texas Highway department; Jack Reaves, W. E. Renfrow, W. C. Alder, Weldon Lawson, J. C. Ferguson, and L. P. McCasland of the highway patrol; Lewis Kittrell, Bill Mabray, M. Q. Alvey, and Tom Cannon of the police department; and A. L. Bentley of the fire department.

Cattle Buyers From Midwest Active In South Texas Area

BEAUMONT, June 1. (AP)—Cattle buyers from Oklahoma, Kansas, and Nebraska are active in Jefferson county, the largest recent sale involving 850 steers from the McFadden ranch to Nebraska for fattening.

The first shipment, comprising 254 three and four year old steers, was bought from J. J. Hebert by August Lohman for delivery at a ranch near Four Akers, Okla. Herbert also contracted with Lohman for 131 additional steers.

Coastal cattlemen, selling animals outright for fattening, say Jefferson county cattle are in unusually good condition. In former years cattlemen in this area leased grazing acreage in the north.

The United States department of agriculture estimates the spring movement of cattle from Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona will be about 10 per cent more than last spring and about equal to that in the spring of 1935. Last spring South Texas shipped 167,000 cattle and calves of the 784,000 from the three states.

Bill Dietrich Enters No-Hit, No-Run Hall Of Fame As Chisox Blank Browns

Team Backs Fast Pitching, Beats Browns, 8 To 0

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, June 1.—Bill Dietrich, husky Chicago White Sox right-hander, achieved the goal of all pitchers today, a sparkling no-hit, no-run triumph as his mates staked him to an 8 to 0 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

Dietrich

Only three Browns reached first base as Dietrich turned in his masterpiece, two on walks and one on an error by Tony Piet in the seventh inning. The victory was the second this season for Dietrich, a former member of the Philadelphia Athletics and the Washington Senators, against one defeat.

The Sox backed up his hurling by clouting Elon Hogsett and Russ Van Atta for 10 well-clustered hits.

Dietrich's performance gave the White Sox the American League's last two no-hitters, Vernon Kennedy having stopped the Cleveland Indians dead, 5 to 0, on Aug. 31, 1935. Dietrich who wears glasses while pitching, fanned five batsmen.

Wrestling Persian Sheik Back In Local Ring; To Meet Jack Terry Tonight

SHEIK MAR ALLAH

TONIGHT'S LINEUP

Curtain raiser—Tarzan (Silent) Krause vs. Jack Hagen.

Semi-final — Vic Weber vs. Ace Freeman.

Main event—Jack Terry vs. Sheik Ben Ali Mar Allah.

Time and place—8:30 o'clock, at the Auditorium. Radio-broadcast from ringside, KFYO.

Dark-skinned, thick-muscled, well-proportioned Sheik Mar Allah, descendant of Persian royalty who wouldn't be tied down by court rules and rituals because he liked to wrestle, re-enters the local wrestling scenery tonight. Mat fans will remember the moustachioed, barefoot prince of Persia as an attraction back in 1934. He hasn't been here since—but he has been everywhere else.

The Sheik comes here direct from Honolulu. He has been in the United States very little since his departure more than two years ago. He meets Jack Terry, the whizzing biond from Canada, in the main event of tonight's all-star card at Sled Allen's arena.

Weber Meets Freeman

There's a grudge affair between Mar Allah and Terry. The latter also wrestled a few months in the Hawaiian islands. He lost to Mar Allah on a foul—the Sheik doing the fouling. Terry claims, and since then Terry has been on the Mar Allah heels, seeking another match. He has been booked with him once since the Honolulu fiasco, but claims that the Sheik "run out" on him. They get together in Lubbock tonight for what promises to be a bloody struggle.

Mar Allah, whose religion is his body and who goes to almost inhuman means to keep himself "in shape," is one of the wildest and wickedest of all the troupers who have appeared here, stopping at nothing short of serious mayhem to gain his point, and the falls. Whether he still wrestles barefoot is not known just now. He wore no shoes in the ring on his last visit here.

Terry, showing up well in recent bouts here, is on for his first main event. He's a strong, capable youngster, with a fighting heart and a desire to win.

New Talent On Card

The supporting card stacks up as highly promising. Vic Weber, beaten in last week's main event by Joe Kopecky and George Bennett, the latter doing the officiating, meets a fellow home towner, Ace Freeman, the clever, fretful Jewish boy who is always aching for a scrap. This meeting is figured to show a lot of wrestling and manhandling. Weber cannot be expected to be in a friendly frame of mind tonight, and Freeman seldom is that way.

Tarzan Krause, a deaf mute, is a newcomer to the circuit and the local ring. He is said to be quite a lad with his mat muscles. They'll be tested severely tonight when he meets Jack Hagen, the Louisiana punisher.

Trans-Miss Once More Postponed

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT

SAN ANTONIO, June 1. (AP)—Rain still plagued the women's Trans-Mississippi golf tournament today but tournament officials gave the "rain or shine" order for tomorrow's qualifying round.

Postponed one day because of a seven-inch downpour that inundated sections of the hilly San Antonio Country club course, play will start with the 18-hole medal round over water-logged fairways and greens.

The sun shone intermittently but heavy showers drove the contestants from practice tees almost before they had time to unpack their clubs.

"Putting Will Win"

Weather conditions caused the railbirds to predict a score close to 95 would earn a berth in the championship flight.

With the change in weather came the prediction from several leading contestants that the "pitch and putt" players would be the ones to beat.

"Most golf tournaments are won or lost on the greens," said the veteran Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, four times winner of the title, "but here is a tournament that most certainly will be determined by putting."

Catch Up On Bridge

Miss Marion Miley, the Lexington, Ky., youngster who has won the tournament the past two years, will not be required to qualify and was not listed in the pairings.

Loitering around the clubhouse, playing table tennis or bridge and waiting for a weather break were such stars as Miss Patty Berg of Minneapolis, Mrs. Hill, Miss Miley and Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite, all Curtis Cup team players; Miss Phyllis Buchan of Denver and Mrs. Patti Newbold of Wichita, Kan., former champions; Mrs. R. G. Roper of Phoenix, Ariz., Southwestern champion, and Miss Edna Saenger of Shreveport, La., Louisiana champion.

Pairings for the trans-qualifying round include:

Mrs. C. L. Dean, Lubbock; Mrs. C. A. Perguson, San Antonio; Mrs. Ben Harrison, Austin.

Mrs. Gordon Phillips, Big Spring; Mrs. Janie Nixon, San Antonio; Mrs. Claude Whalen, Fort Worth.

Mrs. D. A. Little, Dallas; Mrs. J. G. Campbell, Tulsa; Mrs. Irene Crowther, San Angelo.

Mrs. T. W. Snyder, Chickasha, Okla.; Mrs. H. B. Bullock, San Antonio; Mrs. S. B. Akin, San Angelo.

Miss Eleanor Keiser, San Antonio; Miss Doris Miller, Dallas; Mrs. Obie Britow, Big Spring.

McGonagill led a field of 27 amateurs and professionals in 36 hole sectional qualifying rounds at Colonial Country club here today with a 142, two over par. Coffey, Fort Worth city champion, and Jack Burke, runner up in the National open in 1914, were tied for second with 144's.

Twenty seven shooters made the test. There were three withdrawals before the firing started.

TWO OTHERS QUALIFY

PHILADELPHIA, June 1. (AP)—Byron Nelson, of Reading, and Ed Dudley, of Philadelphia, set the scoring pace as eight professional golfers at the Philadelphia district qualified today at the North Hills Country club for the United States open golf championship.

Nelson and Dudley shot sub-par 140s in the thirty-six hole test to top the field of 61 players. Par at North Hills is 71.

Two Texans, Jimmy Demaret, of Houston, and Sam Schneider, of Corpus Christi, carded 144 and 145, respectively, to join Nelson and Dudley in the group of qualifiers. Others were Bruce Coltart, of Woodcrest, Johnny Beadle, of Paxon Hollow, Dick Renaghan, of Moorestown, and Al Heron, of Reading.

Son Of Gallant Fox Favored In English Derby

By GAYLE TALBOT

EPSOM DOWNS, Eng., June 1. (AP)—Opposed by precedent and a score of the ranking three-year olds of Great Britain and France, William Woodward's Perifox tomorrow goes after the 158th Derby, England's most famous flat race won only once by an American-bred horse.

Not since the Derby victory of Pierre Lorrillard's Iroquois caused business to be suspended on Wall street in 1881 has an American-bred horse won the classic mile and a half, upon the outcome of which hinges the distribution of millions of dollars in the Irish sweepstakes.

Three other American owners have seen their colors borne home in front but they were carried by foreign bred horses. These were W. C. Whitney's Voldyovski in 1901, Richard Croker's Orby in 1907 and Herman B. Duryea's Durbar 2nd in 1914. Since then American sportsmen have gone without a winner of any description.

Ralph Beaver Strassburger, erstwhile Philadelphian, will have an English-bred representative in tomorrow's running but his Le Bambino was given only an outside chance in the pre-race betting.

"Winner For A Shilling"

Perifox, son of Gallant Fox, America's three-year old champion of 1930, ranked among the six leading contenders. Bred to run all-day like his blood-brother, Omaha, which is being pointed for the Ascot Gold Cup, the Woodward ace gained strong backing following his recent brilliant race over the Derby distance.

Meanwhile the strident voice of the "wonder lady of the north," aided by a loudspeaker, could be heard blaring across the downs until darkness tonight, offering for a shilling to give the winner of the big race.

An investment of a shilling disclosed she, like her hightoned but less voluable rivals among the professional tipsters thought Lord Astor's Cash Book was the best bet. In the absence of the customary swarm of the "second-sighted" gypsies, who've been banned from the downs for the first time, the "northern lady's" tip was about as expert as could be obtained.

Fine Weather Predicted

The odds against Cash Book shortened at the track during today's opening program. Word spread that the medium-sized colt, which ran only once as a two-year old and finished fifth, had looked like a world beater in his final workouts. Lord Astor thus was in the usual position of having had two favorites for the same race. His Early School, withdrawn several weeks ago, was favored for a short time in the winter book.

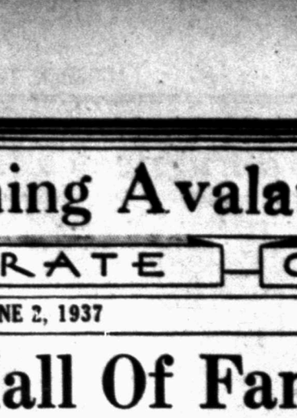

The sun shone hotly and perfect weather is promised for the big race. The king and queen are expected. Post time is about 9 a. m. (eastern standard time).

First magnitude stars are not necessarily the largest stars, but are those which, because of their nearness to the earth, appear the largest and brightest to the naked eye.

'The Fishing, Anybody Can Do,' Points Out Papa DiMaggio, 'But The Baseball—Ah, That Is Something Else Again; My Boys, Well—'

By RUSS NEWLAND

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1. (AP)—His face seamed and bronzed by the elements in nearly forty years of commercial fishing, a youngish old man sits every day in a modest flat of San Francisco's Italian colony poring over reports of baseball games on three battle fronts.

THIS IS JOE

Dominic DiMaggio is the name and he is the proud father of three rangy youths who bid fair to become the most famed brother outfielding combination in the history of baseball.

Joe, Vince and Dominic—he rattles off the names of his sons with an animation that is infectiously exhilarating.

His chest swells with pride at mention of Joe, one of the stars of the New York Yankees. It pleases him greatly that Vince, oldest of the three, is making good with the Boston Bees. Dominic, the "baby brother," 19 years old and sensational with the San Francisco Seals in his first season in organized ball, comes in for praise too, but only when he is not around.

Papa DiMaggio thinks too much

back-slapping is bad for the ego and Dominic lives at home. Mama DiMaggio nods assent.

In the sunset side of his life, retired two years from the fishing tanks, the senior DiMaggio has become a rabid baseball fan.

For nearly four decades the 65-year-old head of the DiMaggio clan sailed in and out of San Francisco bay with the fishing fleet. He had come to the United States with the former Rosalie Mecurio clinging to his arm as his girl bride; a citation from the Italian government for his part in the first war with Abyssinia and a burning ambition to make good in a new country.

When Vince showed a preference for baseball to fishing, Papa DiMaggio was fit to be tied.

The head of the family never saw a game until Joe's name began to top the headlines as the Seals' greatest star. His interest increased until it reached its peak when Joe helped the Yankees win the World Series last fall.

Of fishing, he says: "Anybody can do that—but the baseball, ah, the baseball—that is something else again."

Moxie Leaves Training Camp; In 'Great Shape'

NEW YORK, June 1. (AP)—Max Schmeling broke camp at Speculator today and came to town fit and ready for his heavyweight fight with Joe Phantom in the Long Island City bowl, Thursday night.

The German has a date to meet James J. Braddock for the latter's title, but the champion, busy training for his June 22 bout with Joe Louis, has promised not to cross up everybody by appearing to fill the engagement.

Lean and tanned after almost a month in the mountains, Schmeling says he is in great shape to grab Braddock's $5,000 forfeit; check the minute the New York State Athletic commission officially decides Braddock isn't coming.

This is expected to occur around 12 noon (E. S. T.) Thursday when the fighters are scheduled to weigh in before the commission.

Yankee And Ranger To Meet Today In Trial Test For America's Cup Defender

NEWPORT, R. I., June 1. (AP)—The America's Cup committee tonight selected Yankee, veteran of two campaigns, and Ranger, newly launched, to meet tomorrow in the first sailing contest of a trial series to determine a defender of "the ould mug."

Ranger is the sloop Harold S. Vanderbilt built at Bath, Me., at his own expense, in the hope of defending for the third successive time the most cherished of all yachting trophies.

The defense nomination twice escaped Yankee, first in 1930, the year of her launching, and again three years ago when Vanderbilt sailed Rainbow to victory by a one-second margin. Now Yankee is owned and sailed by Gerard B. Lambert, and Rainbow by Chandler Hovey.

Separate Journalism Department At Tech Approved; Budget And Faculty Changes Given O. K.

Budget for the next year was approved, creation of a journalism department authorized, and several faculty changes made by the board of directors of Texas Technological college at an annual June session held Tuesday morning in the office of President Bradford Knapp.

A budget of $645,153.45 for the next long session, beginning in September, and of $55,468 for this year's summer school were approved.

Subject To Allred's Action

Plains made by the board are subject to approval by the governor of an appropriations bill which has been passed by the legislature.

A called meeting will be held by the Tech board, probably in July, if the governor's signature is given to the bill. Tuesday's session adjourned at noon, business having been completed earlier than expected as a result of work disposed of in an extra session held Monday afternoon. Chairman Clifford B. Jones of Spur, who was reelected Monday afternoon, presided at both sessions.

Horne To Serve As Head

Cecil Horne, director of journalism instruction, will serve as head of the journalism department, the board announced.

Approval of work of President Knapp and the faculty and staff and thanks to Gov. James V. Allred and Attorney-General William C. McCraw for participation in graduation and alumni programs were voted in resolutions by the board.

The budget provided for return of Dr. C. B. Qualia, former head of the Tech foreign language department who has served the last year on the faculty of the University of Kansas. Doctor Qualia is to resume his former position at Tech with opening of the fall semester.

Dr. W. C. Holden, former acting head of the history department, was made head of the department, in charge of archaeological research, and curator of the West Texas museum on the campus.

Dr. J. O. Ellsworth will be offered position as head of the department of economics and business administration, made vacant by the death of Ben F. Condray. Doctor Ellsworth, who is on a leave of absence from the college while holding a position in Amarillo with the Resettlement administration, formerly served as head of the department of agricultural economics. He is to return to Tech Sept. 1.

Dr. W. A. Jackson will become dean of the graduate division, if the governor signs the bill giving approval to Tech's graduate division.

Appointment of an assistant dean of men and of other positions which would be created by passage of the bill was left for consideration in the called meeting.

The budget provides for increase in salary of all staff members on the budget.

Decision was made to confer an honorary degree of doctor of science to Clifford Winslow Seibel, supervising engineer of the Amarillo Helium plant, operated under the bureau of mines, department of interior. One former honorary doctor degree has been conferred at Tech, to Amon Carter of Fort Worth.

The degree will be conferred in the August commencement exercises. Seibel has been in charge of design and construction of three helium purification plants and was co-designer for the plant at Amarillo. He is a member of the American Chemical society, Sigma Xi, Alpha Chi Sigma, Masonic order, and of the Cosmos club in Washington. He had done considerable work toward a doctor's degree when the United States entered the World war and he worked with the government in production of helium.

The building committee which will supervise construction of a $275,000 library if the governor signs the bill will be appointed soon by Chairman Jones. The committee to be selected also will supervise cooperative cottage construction to be undertaken with $15,000 allocated by the legislature.

Of the $645,153.45 for the next long session, $496,000 is to come from state funds and the remainder from local funds, obtained through payment of fees. The amount includes half of the sum for the library.

Contract Is Approved

The board approved a contract with the Lubbock sanitarium for medical service for students. The contract is for one year, with an option of the second year.

Officers elected Monday afternoon, other than Chairman Jones, were: vice chairman, Spencer A. Wells of Lubbock, re-elected; treasurer, Mrs. John A. Haley of Midland; secretary, W. T. Gaston, Lubbock, re-elected. Gaston is an ex-officio member of the board.

Other members who attended Monday were Tomas G. Pollard of Tyler, Mrs. W. R. Potter of Bowie, and L. L. Steele of Mexia. Joe T. Sneed, jr., of Amarillo attended Tuesday morning's meeting, besides those attending Monday. Two members were unable to attend because of illness.

Usual Rush To Qualify Here As Notaries Made For A Busy Day At County Clerk's Office

Usual rush to qualify as notaries of public made a busy day still busier for the office force of County Clerk Ed D. Allen Tuesday following his warning that commissions issued two years ago expired on June 1.

Approximately 250 of the 565 persons for whom appointments as notaries were approved by the recent regular session of the legislature filed bonds Tuesday and paid the $2 in fees required before they may take acknowledgements under their new commissions. All the old commissions have expired, although there is a difference of legal opinion as to whether the expiration time was the midnight beginning or ending June 1. About 350 have now qualified here.

Commissions become operative after payment of the fees, which is divided equally between state and county, the filing of a surety bond of $1,000 and the taking of oath before the clerk or any notary of public.

Those appointed by the legislature have until June 10 on which to qualify. Allen explained. The appointments become invalid after that date.

New Deal Teacher Tells Of Roswell Flood Incidents

The Roswell flood had its amusing angles. At least, Lawrence Shipman, vocational agriculture teacher in the New Deal Rural high school, found a grin or two in the midst of it.

Shipman, his wife and R. Freeman of Quemado, N. M., an uncle, were in Roswell. The Hondo and the Pecos were rampaging. The ugly torrent of muddy water had engulfed a great portion of the city. Thirty automobiles were parked on approaches to the Pecos bridge. A section of the railroad bridge had gone out.

They Make The Grade

On Monday, Shipman decided to try "fording" the bridge. He disconnected the fan belt of his automobile and, in water "up to our waists," attempted it.

"Floods wash up unusual flotsam. A fellow I had not seen since we were in the second grade at Ennis Creek came along in a baby Austin. He knew he couldn't get across unless towed. I hitched on to him. They laughed at us, all but five motorists who decided to try, too.

"It was funny. The water was up to my waist, but it reached the neck of the guy in the Austin. But we got over, and the other five, too. No one else would try it."

Shipman told of another unusual incident.

"The Pecos was five miles wide. A CCC worker was going to walk the railroad bridge to the other side to see how the roads were there. He got cut off when a fill went out. I had planned to go over with him, but a rabbit jumped up and I went after it with a target rifle. When I did start over I saw what had happened and went into Roswell to the Daily Record office and got in touch with the sheriff. They put out in a small motor boat to save him. When they got there he had been on the bridge from 9 o'clock in the morning until 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon—and was soundly sleeping!

"They got him in the boat and started for the bank. A shaft of the motor broke and the boat started drifting in the roaring river toward a dangerous eddy where the fill had been washed out. They paddled like mad, the sheriff and his men, but the CCC worker calmly sat in the bow with his arms folded.

Sits With Arms Folded

"When, with assistance of the rest of us—who waded out into the river as far as we dared and dragged the boat in from the shallows just as the sheriff's men appeared too fagged out to pull another stroke—the boat was brought to safety. The sheriff's men piled out and lay down on the soaked ground to rest and catch their breath. The CCC recruit, though, sat in the boat until we had dragged it upon a dry spot.

"He still had his arms folded."

Tech's Yearbook Is Considered Best In School's History But Others Recalled

By EVA ROB WATKINS
Avalanche Staff Writer

"Hey you—write in my annual before you get away."

Student sit on steps, prop books against a convenient wall, and let others jostle good-naturedly around them while they scribble good wishes on the pages of Tech's biggest and best yearbook—the Candid Camera edition.

Best In Schools History

Students and faculty alike unanimously vote that the book is the best in the history of the school. Winston Reeves from Plainview, and Wilson Grimes of Greenville, both seniors in the school of engineering, were editor and business manager, respectively. It is unique in that there are few posed photographs and it therefore graphically presents a real cross-section of campus life.

Its size, quality, and originality make the twelfth edition of La Venta compare favorably with yearbooks of the country's largest scools.

"Its general appearance is most attractive,' was Dr. W. A. Jackson's opinion. Cecil Horne said, "Its photography is the thing of course, that distinguishes it. I like it."

"Is Surprisingly Good"

"La Ventana is surprisingly good—as good in workmanship as the books of eastern scools. It is not so large, but, after all, I see no particular advantage in an annual with te proportions of an unabridged dictionary," said Mrs. W. B. Gates.

Yearbooks concededly are a true index to the growth and stages of a school's development. There are fat La Ventanas, thin La Ventanas, and La Ventanas which show unmistakable signs of growing pains. R. A. Mills of the Tech English department insisted that students, in their enthusiasm over the Candid Camera edition, not forget those first annual" at Tech.

"Of course this is the best book. It should be. It has the others to stand on," he said.

Pioneering Recalled

James Biggers and Rex Keys did the pioneering at Tech with Volume I of La Ventana in 1926. It carried pictures of the laying of the cornerstone of the administration building, and other buildings on a near-treeless campus.

The second yearbook was edited by Biggers, with Anna Belle Collins and Ogden Horne as managing editor and business manager, respectively. Miss Collins also was managing editor of the '29 annual when Wilburn Edelmon was editor-in-chief. That book had a western theme. Another La Ventana with a similar theme was that of '31 edited by R. C. (Flop) Marshall and F. M. Coker. F. M. Roark and Charles Wooldridge directed yearbook production in '28.

Modernistic Theme In 1930

Modernistic in its theme, the annual of 1930 was edited by Holmes Webb, with Ralph Brandenburg as his business manager. Robert Huff and Jessie Cooper in '32 decorated their yearbook with pirates and treasure chests. An unusual annual was that of '33 when Everett Fairchild used the geology theme and left dinosaur tracks across its pages. This was the first annual of the 9 by 12 size. W. R. Underwood was Fairchild's business manager.

In 1935, Howard Reed and Hal Hitchock edited La Ventana. The year before, Bruce Zorns, with Marvin Messersmith and Howard Reed, edited it. Last year the same Bruce Zorns turned out a bigger and better annual. Leonard Curfman worked with him.

And now comes the Candid Camera edition to take its place alongside the others in the file of Tech yearbooks. Editor Reeves, modestly and sincerely says, "But it is to Fairchild in '33 that we owe much."

of indigestion, gas, bloating and nervousness would follow every meal. The past year my kidneys and bladder caused me much distress and my ankles swelled badly. Then neuritis settled in my shoulders and neck and what I endured is really indescribable. Medical authorities failed to relieve me. It was all so discouraging that I did not know what to do next. Then I heard of Gly-Cas—it was doing so much for others I decided to put it to the test on my own case.

"Gly-Cas toned my entire system, freed me of those awful poisons in a most natural manner and I am now feeling like a different person," she continued. "My stomach and bowels are functioning properly, kidneys are regulated and I am able to eat the foods I want without any ill effects, sleep good the entire night through, and feel fine. Even those sharp pains of neuritis have been relieved. I am thankful for the day I learned of this new herbal Gly-Cas. I did not realize a medicine with such outstanding merit had been discovered."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug, 1219 Broadway, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns.—Adv.

Lions Club Members View Safety Films

Safety films showing dangers of traffic and how to avoid road hazards, were shown members of the Lions club yesterday noon at the Hotel Hilton by members of the state highway patrol. It was one of a series of showings which the patrolmen will give in Lubbock and at other clubs over this territory within the next two weeks.

Noel Stalnaker was program chairman for the day. He presented the male quartet of Roosevelt Rural high school, who entertained with a series of popular numbers. Frank Gray, Hubert and Lee Searsy and Floyd Tidwell comprise the quartet.

Captain W. W. Legge, local patrol chief, introduced Sergeant Ross Dickey and Patrolman Hammett Vance. He thanked the club for its support of the safety lane program and urged the civic club members to continue their work of safe driving.

Vance, in a brief talk, told the objectives of the work and how obedience to safe driving rules would greatly reduce death on the road. He urged car owners to go through the lane and have their cars tested.

A CHILD OF 12 BAKED THIS PERFECT CAKE HER FIRST TRY

First, she followed an easy recipe. Then she set the Heat Control and the Clock Control on her mother's new, automatic gas range. The range did the rest. Baking failures are almost impossible when you cook this modern gas way!

Success every time with a modern

HEAT CONTROLLED GAS RANGE

There's nothing like GAS for

BROILING
Gas gives you the intense heat needed to brown meats so fast that loss of juice is prevented. Full flavor is saved.

ROASTING
Gas gives you the oven ventilation which produces crisp, juicy roasts. Excess moisture is allowed to escape, preventing that "steamed" flavor.

BAKING
Baking requires even heat throughout the oven and unlimited range of baking temperatures, for light, evenly browned cakes, pies, breads. Gas gives both!

FRYING
Perfect, speedy frying requires instant high heat—even spread of heat under the skillet—numberless heat variations. Gas gives all three!

WATERLESS COOKING
is faster with GAS! Its instant high heat brings foods to steaming point sooner. Its greater flexibility provides extra low simmer heats.

FLUFFIER cakes . . . flakier pie-crust . . . foods never scorched on top before they are baked through. That's what a modern automatic gas range means to baking.

The reason is simple. These modern ranges give you the most accurate control of oven temperatures—at the turn of a dial. They are insulated to keep heat in—yet ventilated to let excess moisture escape—prevent "sogginess."

Many models have a Clock Control that turns the oven on and off automatically, at the exact times you select.

These new gas ranges have many other thrilling features! Their new high-speed grills cut broiling time practically in half . . . the "simmer settings" of their top burners mean lower fuel costs . . . their "table-tops" and drawer space save you steps.

See these new gas ranges at our showroom. You'll be delighted at their beauty, their many color combinations. And remember, they're the most economical automatic ranges to buy and to operate.

Pointing To Real Possibilities

NEARLY two months ago a party of scientists sailed from Honolulu enroute to one of the uninhabited Phoenix Islands, far out in the Pacific, where they will study a four-minute eclipse of the sun to come on June 8. There are 13 in the party, which has 11 tons of equipment, and doubtless this very day their apparatus is set up and tested to await the big event, only 240 seconds in duration.

When the eclipse is over, our little group will head for home again, having spent a good deal of money and a great deal of effort in the quest for a collection of facts which, from the dollars and cents viewpoint, will never do anyone the least good.

But the net result will be that the sum total of the race's knowledge about the infinitely mysterious world it inhabits will be increased, if only by a little.

THE point is that it is still possible for a disinterested job of this kind to be done. We can still get some high-powered brains together, spend important money and make elaborate plans for an expedition whose fruits can't be turned into cash or reserved as the exclusive property of anyone.

The knowledge gained by this expedition will be available to Germans and Russians and Englishmen and Japanese as well as to Americans. It will not be patented and let out on a royalty basis by any man or corporation, or jealously guarded in the archives of any foreign office. It will be as free as the air to any human being who has the wit to use it.

That sort of thing isn't as common as it might be, these days. For the keynote to this 20th century world seems to be unrestrained rivalry—every man (or nation) for himself, and the devil take the hindermost, as he is quite likely to do. The idea that the race will be better off if it works together and stops trying to gain advantage for one group at the expense of some other has hardly so much as dawned on us.

Yet it ought to be obvious that we simply aren't going to be able to live by this devil-take-the-hindermost creed so very much longer. The devil is following altogether too closely on our heels. The world has grown too small. Like it or not, the human race is going to—wherever it is going—as a group.

SO this little scientific expedition shines like a good deed in a naughty world. It is a hint that we aren't necessarily doomed to go on cutting one another's throats, after all. We can co-operate, we can make the gain of one the gain of all.

And if we ever do set out to live up to this example set by our scientists, what a world we can make for ourselves.

Only the sky and Utopia are the limits.

Why Not Sanitary Engineers?

THAT well known bard of Avon, Master William Shakespeare, once asked, ironically, "What's in a name?" Names may not have meant much during the days when Bro. Shakespeare was out and around, but in 20th century America names mean a lot—or, at least, we think they do.

One Mr. Samuel Fassler, commissioner of building for New York City, urged the other day that master plumbers adopt for themselves the new name of "sanitary engineer". That name, said Mr. Samuel Fassler, would make a better impression on the public.

And why not?

The whole idea these days seems to be beauty up your job with a fancy title. The Morning Avalanche has seen the press agent blossom out as a public relations counsellor; the undertaker become a mortician; the beauty parlor operator become a beautician, and animated Hollywood clotheshorses become artists.

If the plumber wishes to become a sanitary engineer, it's O. K. with us—especially if he advertises it!

With Our Contemporaries

"The statement made in the Lamb county Leader of May 20, namely, that the county commissioners had leased the city hall of Littlefield for a period of ten years, has been flatly denied by the county judge and commissioners." W. R. Scott points out in the Olton Enterprise.

The One-Minute Sermon

Ye shall diligently keep the commandments of the Lord your God, and his testimonies, and his statutes, which he hath commanded thee.

And thou shalt do that which is right and good in the sight of the Lord; that it may be well with thee, and that thou mayest go in and possess the good land which the Lord sware unto thy fathers.—Deuteronomy, VI, 17 and 18.

PASSES TO HEAVEN

In Johannesburg, South Africa, center of the immensely wealthy gold fields where thousands of African natives are employed, it was recently discovered that some unscrupulous racketeers were more easing their more credulous colleagues of cash amounts varying from a few shillings to as much as a pound, by issuing what purported to be passes to Heaven. The racketeers assured the natives that when they died the passes would be pinned on their chests and the keeper of the gate of Heaven would let them through without question.

THE GREAT DIVIDE

The Great Divide is one of the regular show-places for Eastern tourists in the Rocky Mountains. The stream seen on the left flows into the Yellowstone river, which in turn empties into the Missouri, thence into the Mississippi, to reach eventually the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic ocean. The stream on the right flows into a tributary of the Columbia river, and finally finds it ways into the Pacific.

Yesterday: Dorothy restrains Joan from a second attempt to flee New York and Joan decides to lay her full story before Mr. Hendry that night.

CHAPTER XXII

As Joan sped the four short blocks to Mr. Hendry's white cottage the stars gleamed brightly in a cloudless sky, lighting the path before her. There was a glad song in her heart, and for the first time in ten years, a bright hope for the future.

If Mr. Hendry would believe her!

Somehow she felt that he would. She would stand up before him, honest and unafraid, and tell him everything. She would make him believe in her father as she believed in him.

What was it Dorothy had said to her? "If you believe in someone so truly—so positively—you must be able to impress your certainty upon others."

Dorothy was right. She had been a coward all these years. She should have made people believe! From now on, she would. She would make the whole world believe her father was innocent. It might be difficult, at times. But it was such a little chance to take, to gain so much. . . .

No more would she cringe in terror every time she passed a face on the street that bore a familiar resemblance. No longer would she tremble when the name of her native state was mentioned. No further need she deny and protest and evade.

She was free!

She breathed a silent prayer for having found a friend like Dorothy . . . Dorothy, who was so strong, and sure, and loyal . . . Dorothy, who had first believed in her and then taught her that other might believe . . . Dorothy, who opened the gateway to a future of happiness.

Ahead of her, the little white house stood out brightly in the moonlight. She saw a light in the front windows—in the living room, that would be. Mr. Hendry was still up, therefore, reading, or smoking one last cigar before retiring. He would be astonished to see her burst in upon him at this hour, but he would not say so.

At the Inn, the steeple clock began to strike the midnight hour, and she hastened her steps. At any moment now, that light in the living room might be dimmed, to reappear again upstairs. In that event, she would have to postpone her mission until the morning.

She dreaded that. There was still the chance that Sybil might tell the story first. That would paint quite a different picture. Joan would be on the defensive then, admitting, apologizing, justifying. Mr. Hendry's eyes would be stern with disappointment, because she had been a coward.

In her mind, she framed the words that she must speak.

"Mr. Hendry, for 10 years I have been living under a cloud. I don't want to be married with that cloud hanging over me. May I tell you about it and ask your advice?"

Suppose his advice would be the same as her first inclination—to disappear out of Bob's life? That would be the worst he could do to her, yet hadn't she faced that already?

Even the worst would be better than this continual uncertainty and dread.

But he wouldn't advise that. He would believe her. He must!

At last she was at the house, running up the steps of the porch. Her heart pounded with thunderous quickened beats, and she stood still a moment to catch one long, strengthening breath. She assured herself that there was no need for fear now.

But she was afraid. For no reason at all, she suddenly felt herself in a swift panic of dread, and she stood there, trembling form head to foot, and her knees threatened no longer to hold her weight. Why was she so horribly afraid now, when it had seemed so simple a few moments before?

She leaned against the pillar of the porch, steadying herself. Cold chills possessed her, and her throat was dry. To save her very life she could have uttered no word at the moment.

In an instant, the world had gone completely still, and the only sound was the mad pumping of her own heart. But that was no sound, that was a feeling; and she wondered if she had lost her hearing.

Upon the streets, there was no steady hum of automobile motors, no brief note of horn, no footstep of a neighbor. It was as if a warning finger had quickly been raised, silencing all outdoors.

From within the house, there came no comforting cough of an old man smoking his cigar, no relaxing rustle of an evening newspaper, no creaking of furniture as a body adjusting itself. Within the house was only stillness, the enveloping, overwhelming stillness of the tomb.

Only a second Joan stood there, yet it seemed a vague eternity, a second suddenly suspended indefinitely with the infinite.

She struggled to pull her senses together, to throw off this unreasonable, overwhelming dread. She forced her thoughts into commonplace channels, reminding herself of her mission, and the hope it held.

But her thoughts would not be adjusted. Terror held them in its unearthly grip, and all the horrors of darkness enfolded her.

High above, the stars still gleamed in a cloudless sky, but now their brilliance was harsh and glaring, and as she lifted her eyes, her imagination painted a weird picture.

She saw an old woman, stupid and bedraggled, bending over four cards on a table. And in her eyes a harsh, cackling voice resounded: "A tall, dark man. And death!"

Then once more, the trembling seized her, and she knew that she was caught in a power stronger than life.

How long she stood there, she did not know. Perhaps but a second, perhaps— But of course it was no time at all. The clock in the steeple had not chimed the quarter hour; it was still but a few moments after midnight.

Gradually, as she thought of this, she composed her senses, and the terror subsided.

It was nerves, she told herself. Nothing but a case of nerves. For so long had she trembled and quailed, that now this sudden hope had overcome her. It was as if her heart, lightened of its load, had sought to burst its bonds.

She coughed lightly, taking new assurance from the simple sound. She squared her shoulders and walked across the porch, enjoying the noise her steps made. How foolish to have felt so fearful!

She pressed the bell quickly, and listened as it echoed and re-echoed through the silent house. There was no answering note.

Perhaps Mr. Hendry had dozed for the moment. Abraham, she recalled, went out on Thursday evenings.

She rang the bell again, longer this time. Still within the house silence reigned. She listened intently. Surely the sound must have awakened Mr. Hendry; his hearing was exceptionally keen.

For the third time, she rang the bell, holding her finger on the button. Soon the sound would awaken the entire neighborhood, she thought. Mr. Hendry must certainly have heard it, if he were inside.

She started. Perhaps he was not home yet; perhaps he was still down at the Inn, sipping another brandy and soda in solitude! Why hadn't she thought to phone there first and learn if he had left?

It was not too late, then. She might still catch him at the Inn. Or she could wait. She could sit right here on the doorstep and wait for him. She wasn't cold any longer.

The light in the living room disturbed her, however. If Mr. Hendry had not come home by, would it be lit?

She walked over to the large window and tried to peer through the shade. It was unusual to see the shades drawn in Mr. Hendry's house. One could always look into it, to see him siting by the fireside. He liked the shades up, he said. So the light in the window could shine out. But perhaps tonight—

Joan caught her breath, remembering that tonight there was a reason for drawing the shades. Tonight Mr. Hendry carried $40,000 in his pocket!

She felt a quick new fear. Suppose something had happened—

She knelt down on the floor of the porch, trying to see into the room through the half-inch space below the shade. She peered intently, trying to accustom her eyes to the shadows along the floor. Slowly things took form—she saw the carpet, the legs of the secretary, an easy chair—yes, there were two

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

CAPITOL Hill resentment against relief costs springs largely from President Roosevelt's apparent indifference to forceful protests against waste and laziness on the part of Harry Hopkins' wards. Scores against FDR's $1,500,000,000 appropriation were rounded up when a New Deal Congressman told cloakroom colleagues of his experience at the White House.

"I'm for helping out the needy," said the New Mexico member, "but you're wasting money under the leaf-raking system."

"My advisers tell me differently," replied Mr. Roosevelt.

"Who are they—Hopkins and his men?" When the President nodded his head, the member retorted:

"Well, they don't know and they have an axe to grind. I'm telling you what's going on in my own district, and I'm on the spot."

That conversation explains the state of mind which provoked a successful Democratic revolt in the House that may be duplicated in the Senate—despite leaders' cries to "be loyal."

REBUFF: White House Spokesman "Jimmie" Byrnes of South Carolina is the ringleader in the Senate movement to retain the House cuts, but he apparently has the unqualified approval of Vice-President Garner. These two stalwarts are more alarmed by rising federal expenditures than by the White House insistence on "packing" the Supreme court.

When the relief measure was before the House, a leading Democrat from the Middle West (Ohio) sidled up to "Bob" Bacon of New York, who had sponsored an amendment providing that federal funds of $1,000,000,000 be turned over to state relief administrators and the Hopkins organization disbanded except for a small administrative staff. "I'm rounding up Democratic votes for you, Bob," said the enemy emissary. "Jimmie Byrnes asked me to. He intends to propose the same thing in the Senate, and he wants moral support on this side."

The Democratic leaders split on the Supreme court issue, they despise the presidential demand inwardly, but the majority will go down the line for him. But they're virtually unanimous for reducing and emergency appropriations, even if they have to rebuff the President on a major issue for only the second time since he entered the White House. The other was their over-riding of the soldiers' bonus veto.

RECORD: Senatorial statesmen have been so irritated by reportorial comment that they were engaged in a sit-down strike that words almost choked them when they arose in rebuttal. No session in recent history, they orated, had labored so long and so conscientiously.

Here's the record: Reckoning an ordinary Senate day at five hours—noon until 5 o'clock teatime—they should have been in their seats or thereabouts for 65½ hours since the gavel fell on January 5. There have been 131 legislative days in that period. Actually they have been in session approximately 210 hours, or less than one-third of the potential sitting load. And that allows for many dreary hours when a member was delivering a speech for home consumption to an empty house.

It's obviously unfair to judge a Senator by his sitting hours within the chamber. He attends committee meetings in the morning, runs errands for his constituents, makes out-of-town speeches that may or may not be valuable and statesmanlike, studies presidential messages and measures, writes some himself. But so far the nearby golf fairways have shaken beneath senatorial shoes more often than has the capitol floor.

HUMAN: President Roosevelt himself is responsible for the Robinson-for-Justice boom. Contrary to some reports, it was not put over on him by Democratic and Republican reactionaries scheming to plug the Van Devanter hole with another conservative.

Some unknown friend operated quickly and effectively on the Arkansan's behalf. Almost before Mr. Van Devanter's retirement buzzed across newspaper wires, somebody (Pat won't say who) telephoned Senator Harrison, informed him of the unexpected development, and urged him to "get busy for Joe." The amiable Mr. Harrison leaped into a cab and drove to the White House. There he boldly brought up the rather delicate subject. Mr. Roosevelt responded:

You don't have to tell me about Joe's ability, loyalty—and essential liberality." FDR gave no commitment, but his words virtually meant acquiescence to a smart operator like Senator Harrison. He relayed the message to colleagues on both sides of the aisle and loving "Joe," they tumbled over themselves with avowals of their delight. It was a human, natural act all-around, and about as machiavellian a proposition as the multiplication table.

EVIDENCE: A Washington wanderer has returned to the Capital with the news that a certain town in Texas is more agitated over President Roosevelt's recent policies than it has been since the days of the Mexican war. They love the President, hate to be "against" him, but shake their heads sadly.

The town preacher warns his congregation every Sunday that the Pontius Pilate trial ought to convince folks how dangerous a "packed court can be." A determined old lady, who has a famous brother in Washington knows that he hates "all this spending," he has never said one word to me," she explains, "but I know HIM." She's "against" the court plan "tooth and toenail." When asked if he stands with the President on reorganizing the court, the leading business man replies: "Good God-no!" Most of the other folk feel the same way. They ask, dazedly: "What has got into Mister Roosevelt?"

Perhaps the town isn't typical. But it happens to be Detroit, Texas, Vice-President Garner's family home. And the "determined old lady" is his sister.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

A SHOWDOWN is coming between the National Labor Relations board and Consolidated Edison of New York which will set an immensely important precedent as to the scope of the board's authority.

The New York office of the Labor board has filed a complaint against Con Edison for alleged discrimination against the United Electrical and Radio Workers (a C.I.O. outfit) and alleged illegal cooperation with the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (A. F. of L.) in violation of the Wagner act. Hearings will begin shortly. Con-Edison has not as yet denied the charges. Its defense is that it is purely an intra-state concern—therefore not subject to the Wagner act or the Labor board's jurisdiction.

The Labor board people are confident they can penetrate that armor with ammunition provided by recent Supreme court decisions. The court has held in effect that if stoppage of a company's operations would affect interstate commerce—even though said operations are intra-state of themselves—the company is properly subject to the interstate commerce auhority granted to Congress by the Constitution.

SPADE-WORK: On this basis Consolidated Edison would appear to be in something of a spot. Not only does it provide power and light for all the New York City factories which ship their products across state lines. It also supplies power for the New York Central, New Haven and Pennsylvania railroads at their terminals—to say nothing of the Hudson tubes to New Jersey.

To the query whether a strike which tied up Consolidated Edison plants would interfere with interstate commerce, the only possible answer is "And how!"

The forthcoming test is of grave import to the utility system in other ways besides labor relations. If the courts find that it is engaged in interstate commerce on the line of reasoning above, Con-Edison will not only be subject to the Wagner act but also—and much more ominously—to the holding company act of 1935. Not even the S.E.C. has suggested this hitherto, but that agency could hardly fail to follow in the Labor board's footsteps when the latter had done the spade-work.

(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

A gold strike is reported in Alaska, and there is no reason why the rush this time can't be made a fashionable sports event with ski-joring over Chilkoot Pass.

Baylor Is To Erect $100,000 Physical Education Building

WACO, June 1. (AP)—Pat M. Neff, president of Baylor university, has announced that the $100,000 physical education building will be erected this summer. It is to be ready for use in September. Preliminary plans announced several weeks ago, Neff said, have been worked out and finances have been arranged to start work immediately.

TARZAN AND THE MAYAN GODDESS, No. 117

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Again the procession resumed its march through sinuous underground corridors. Its destination now was the pit of the jaguars, where Tarzan was doomed to die. Queen Zalya contrived that she and the captive should walk in the forefront, well ahead of the others.

By artful pantomine, she wanted to urge him to cry out in terror of his approaching fate. The sovereign of the monsters knew that the depraved subjects were more interested in gloating over his mental and physical suffering than in killing him at once.

Queen Zalya admitted to herself now that she wanted to save this fascinating stranger. But before she had opportunity to make her mute appeal, Tarzan had resolved upon a desperate plan. He seized the Queen, lifted her above his head, and shouted to her people!

They understood no word he said, but his threat was clear. Unless they freed him, he would dash their Queen to death against the stone floor! The Jungle Lord might have forced them to do his bidding had it not been for the cleverness of the Medicine Priest.

A Plan For Employment

Most high school and college graduates are interested in employment and careers. But millions have the same goal. Those who would lift themselves above the crowd—who want to enhance their chances for employment and advancement—must prepare to serve more acceptably than the average. Because employers in all lines of business know that our students come here for one purpose—to prepare to serve them profitably from the beginning—we can usually place graduates promptly. Social Security Man To Be Here

Jacob James, Dallas, representative of the federal Social Security board, will be in Lubbock and speak Friday afternoon in the Hotel Lubbock on the work of the board, Postmaster Amos Howard said yesterday afternoon.

"Employers and employes alike, who do not understand all the provisions, are invited to attend the meeting," Mr. Howard said. "He will speak at 4 o'clock and will be prepared to answer any and all questions about the workings of the law.

"We would like to have every one interested in the work, to attend. The meeting is open to every one."

WPA Offices Moved To Palace Theater Building Tuesday

Two divisions of district WPA offices here were removed to new quarters in Palace Theater building Tuesday as the first step toward making room at West Texas Gas company building for additional records and personnel resulting from recent enlargement of Lubbock district.

At the same time, district officials announced that they "hope" to complete the transfer of all records pertaining to five counties shifted from Lubbock to Amarillo district by the end of the week. Records, weighing with files several hundred pounds, are those of Parmer, Castro, Swisher, Briscoe and Hall counties.

Branches which henceforth will be located in the theater building are the tax survey division, of which Edgar Hutchins is district supervisor, and the adult emergency education division, Earl Kerr, district supervisor.

While reorganization of WPA districts will mean a net increase of one in the number of counties directed from Lubbock and consequent further crowding of offices already jammed, it also will mean, officials said, that for the first time, headquarters will be operated without use of borrowed furniture.

New furniture being moved here from the abolished Abilene office will replace that which has been borrowed from West Texas Gas company, it was explained. Shifting of the furnishings already has begun.

State Legislature

winter, a routine proceeding, and, in the meantime, the senate recessed until Thursday and the house until Friday. Much interest centered on several votes in the upper legislative branch relative to recessing or adjourning, some holding they were indicative of the way the wind was blowing.

By a vote of 16 to 13, the senate tabled a proposal to include the senate in a concurrent resolution authorizing the house to adjourn until Monday, a proposal which was sponsored by Senator Frank Rawlings of Fort Worth, anti-repeal leader, and was supported by other avowed opponents of repeal.

Repealists Lead In Votes

It then refused to adjourn until Thursday, 12 to 17, and approved the recess until that day, 15 to 14, leading repealists voting on the winning side each time.

A repeal leader said he wanted the recess until Thursday, instead of adjournment, so the parliamentary situation would be more conducive for final action at that time.

After the senate agreed for the house to adjourn until Monday if it wished, the latter refused to avail itself of the privilege. Speaker Robert W. Calvert of Hillsboro and others warned that if the senate acted on a repeal bill Thursday or Friday and the house was not in position to pass on amendments or otherwise conclude its business then it might appear in an unfavorable light before the people.

LEADING ISSUES DROP

NEW YORK, June 1. (AP)—Light but persistent selling loosened stock market prices today and leading issues dropped fractions to more than 3 points at the worst.

A little buying support came into the list in the final hour and extreme losses were reduced in many instances.

Board room diagnosticians attributed the relapse partly to the new Spanish crisis involved in the German reprisals at the port of Almeria, to rumors abroad Washington was considering a cut in its gold price and to strike troubles faced by leading independent steel makers.

Business news, on the whole, was cheerful. Supreme court decisions furnished nothing in the way of a prime market stimulator. The president's message urging an inquiry into tax evasion and the putting of teeth in the revenue laws also was in line with expectations.

The turnover aggregated 748,170 shares, compared with 558,550 last Friday which was the lowest full day's total since April 4, 1935.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues as off 1.3 points at 66.4. This was the largest drop since May 13, last. At today's level the average was one point above its 1937 bottom and nearly 10 points under its peak of the year.

U. S. government securities were resistant most of the time but slipped later with corporation bonds.

Pictures Pertaining To Medical Profession Shown At Session

After a business meeting, three moving pictures pertaining to the medical profession were shown at a regular monthly meeting of the Lubbock-Crosby county medical society held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night at the Lubbock hotel. Twenty-two doctors were in attendance.

In charge of showing of the films were Dr. H. E. Mast and Dr. J. T. Krueger.

After the medical meeting, the doctors went to the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Robert T. Cannon at 2613 Nineteenth street where Mrs. Cannon and Mrs. O. W. English were hostesses to doctors and their wives.

Cotton..

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, June 1. (AP)—An early decline met a sustaining demand in cotton today and the market closed steady at net advances of 2 to 6 points.

Liverpool cables were not up to expectations. Advices from that market said the uneasiness in Europe and favorable weather in the American cotton growing region induced some selling which, however, met local buying and covering on technical considerations. As a result opening trades here were a few points below the previous close.

After the official cotton region weather bulletin was issued showing rains in the drouth sections of the west there was some liquidation by recent purchasers and a little short covering. Prices sank to levels about 7 points net lower.

July contracts closed at 12.53, Oct. at 12.64, Dec. at 12.75, Jan. at 12.75, and March at 12.78. The first sale in May, 1938, was made today for the first time since trading in that option was inaugurated. It closed at 12.83.

Spots were steady. Sales amounting to 200 bales and middling closed 6 points net higher at 13.03.

Domestic and foreign markets were inactive. Manchester cables business was limited and trading quiet.

Port receipts 2,275; for week 20,920; for season 6,675,130, exports 4,043; for week 23,142, for season 5,339,181. Port stocks 1,373,331. Stocks on shipboard at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 50,344; last year 58,626. Spot sales at southern markets last year 5,624.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, June 1. (AP)—Following losses of about 1.00 a bale under selling today, cotton recovered partially as trade buying appeared late in the session. October which had sold off from 12.62@12.54 rallied to 12.65 and closed at 12.67. Final prices were 7 to 10 points net lower.

Nervousness over the European political situation and rains in Oklahoma nd Texas brought in foreign and domestic selling at the opening when prices were 12 to 16 points lower.

When late price-fixing orders appeared, after the market had sold off to net losses of 19 to 21 points, locals covered and prices rallied 11 to 14 points from the lows.

Dull conditions were again reported from the cotton goods and spot cotton markets. Exports today 9,649, making a total of 5,358,791 for the season thus far. Port receipts 7,695. U. S. port stocks 1,373,075.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, June 1. (AP)—Stirred by warlike European developments, liberal export business and bullish domestic crop figures, wheat values rose 2⅛ cents today, and held most of the gain.

Some of the late buying of wheat was associated with preparations for the majority of June unofficial crop estimates to be issued here tomorrow. One leading trade authority today figured the 1937 United States winter wheat crop as indicating a yield 44,251,000 bushels less than the government's May forecast.

Latest estimates of today's export business in Canadian wheat as totaling upwards of 1,000,000 bushels. There was also some United States No. 2 hard winter wheat disposed of for first half of July shipment to Rotterdam at 9½ cents over Chicago July.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1 cent to 1⅞ above Saturday's finish, July $1.13⅞@1.14, Sept. 1.12½@1.12⅝, Dec. $1.13⅝@1.13¾, corn unchanged to 1¾ lower, July $1.21¾@1.21⅞, Sept. $1.09¼@1.09½, Dec. 80½, oats ⅜ to ⅝ off, July 44⅝, and rye ½ to 1⅛ down, July $110½. The outcome in provisions was unchanged to 7 cents up.

Chicago September delivery of wheat led the market upturn here, rising to a top of 1.12⅞, and closing at $1.12½@1.12⅝.

Hop Was Test Flight

She called the hop from Miami a test flight for the monoplane that was seriously damaged in Honolulu in her first round-the-world attempt after flying successfully from Oakland, Calif., to Hawaii.

If anything had gone wrong she had planned to return to Miami, but after the uneventful journey Miss Earhart prepared to proceed along the Pan-American Airways route to Paramaribo and then to Natal, Brazil.

From Natal, her schedule called for a hop across the South Atlantic to Dakar, Africa and thence around the world sticking as close to the equator as seemed practical.

The route would carry her to Honolulu and Oakland to end the 28,000-mile journey.

which the control board plans hearings in the applicant cities. Teer instructed that no delegations appear before the board except at those hearings.

Five Cities Contenders

While definite information was lacking, reports to officials here Tuesday were that cities considered at this stage to be leading contenders are, additional to Lubbock, Big Spring Midland, San Angelo and Sweetwater. It is considered certain among local observers that there will be additions and possibly alterations in that list. Unbiased observers also conceded that Lubbock faces an uphill fight although all expressed the conviction that this city can offer a more satisfactory combination of advantages than any other contender.

Communications from Austin tended to further emphasize the value of the hospital as an asset to the city which may be chosen.

Initial Expenditure Cited

Not the least of those assets, it was pointed out, would be the initial expenditure of $817,000 for bringing the institution into being as a hospital to care for 540 patients.

However, it was pointed out, the other five state hospitals now in existance have an average of nearly 2,500 patients. That in Lubbock would be designed for expansion to care for at least 3,000 patients. That would mean, it was added, an investment largely in new construction of some three to five million dollars in the next eight to 10 years.

The initial annual maintenance expense, on the basis of similar hospitals, would be in the neighborhood of half a million annually, most of it in payrools for a skilled initial staff of 125 to 150 employes.

Visiting Of Worth To City

Another advantage, as cited from the experience of other cities, has been the number of visitors an institution of that type attracts. A survey in Wichita Falls, it was said, has shown that the number of visitors there to see friends or relatives employed or being treated in the state institution there averages several hundred each week.

A specific advantage to Lubbock, it was declared, would be its enhancement of this city as a medical center. Chamber officials recalled that spokesmen at a recent convention of hospital executives here gave Lubbock first ranking as a medical center among cities bounded on the east by Dallas, the south by San Antonio and the northwest by Denver, Colo.

and from Texline, on the Texas-New Mexico border.

A rise in the Punta de Agua, small creek rising from the New Mexico mountains, was expected as the result of hard rains around Clayton.

Another hard rain also set in at Dalhart tonight.

Canadian river points south of here reported that the stream was running bank full though no extensive overflows were noted.

Fears were that dangerous condition might exist when flood waters now coursing the streams here poured into the Canadian, bringing a new high water mark late tonight or early tomorrow.

No casulaties were reported but fear was expressed for the safety of several ranch families who reside along the creek between here and the Canadian river.

His North Carolina sentence, given about November, 1933, was commuted to life March 29, 1935. Beard was convicted of murder with malice in the slaying of Roberts when the latter tried to halt a holdup of a garage.

large, black-shod feet. Mr. Hendry was at home then!

She stood up quickly. Perhaps he had taken sick, all alone in the house. Perhaps he had had one brandy too much.

* * *

She went back and tried the door. It was unlatched. Without hesitating, she went inside, shutting it behind her. She walked across the hall and into the living room.

"Mr. Hendry!" she called softly.

She saw him, sitting at his desk, staring dully at her. His head rested on the back of his chair, as if he were too tired to hold it erect. Something in his attitude frightened her.

"Mr. Hendry!" she called gain. Still he did not move.

He is intoxicated, she thought, and wondered what to do about it. There would be no point in talking to him tonight. She felt vaguely disappointed. She had never thought of him—like this. She was sorry to have intruded. Perhaps Mr. Hendry had his secrets, too.

But why did he sit there so stonily, staring at her in that vacant, frightening way?

Was he ill? A sudden stroke . . . a shock.

She rushed over to his side, felt his hand quickly. And then, in a flash, she knew the reason for the wild fear that had engulfed her a few moments before. She sought her breath violently, choked the cry that swelled up in her throat and would have strangled her. His hand was cold and clammy, and the fingers were almost stiffened.

"Mr. Hendry!" she cried in a hoarse, rasping whisper. "Mr. Hendry! Answer me, for God's sake!"

She shook his shoulders roughly, trying to bring back some semblance of life. And as she did so, she glanced behind him. The hilt of a knife protruded from between his shoulders; the back of the chair was stained a dull, deep red.

Not since a minor debt claim proceedings was instituted last May 18 has a notation been made in the file docket which is kept in the office of County Clerk Ed D. Allen.

Filings during May usually are light, the total number of cases for the month having been only eight. But not during the period of more than two years checked has there been so long an interval without any new filings.
