DESPERADOES SHOOT TWO ARDMORE OFFICERS

10,000 Children Extend Joyous Welcome To Santa Claus In Parade Here

CROWD CALLED GREATEST IN CITY'S HISTORY

Young and Old Find Thrills Aplenty in March Of Santa's Corps

25,000 SEE PARADE

Long-Heralded Event Ushers in Christmas Season With Flourish

Sparkling eyes of more than 10,000 feverishly expectant children almost popped out of their heads Wednesday afternoon as Santa Claus himself, bowing and smiling good-naturedly from a long red sleigh drawn not by Prancer and Dancer, but by five Dancers and five Prancers, rode through the downtown district of Wichita Falls as a feature attraction of a gigantic parade which ushered in the spirit of Christmas with an enthusiastic flourish.

But while the eyes of youngsters feasted themselves upon the closest view of Old Santa himself which they've ever had, astute observers along the line of march suspected the North Pole visitor of reflecting a great degree of amazement himself at the tremendous crowd which filled every street to mark the joyous advent of Christmas. No less than 25,000 persons lined the narrow avenues left on Ohio, Indiana and Scott avenues for the progress of the most elaborate Christmas parade ever staged here, according to estimates of several persons who endeavored seriously to reckon the number present.

THANKS

We are grateful indeed to all the members of the police and fire departments under the leadership of Chief Frank Burns and Capt. Johnnie Sewell who so skillfully handled the immense throngs largely composed of little children, which were on our streets greeting Santa Claus and his reindeer Wednesday. There was not an accident or lost child, and we feel this meed of praise is due our policemen and firemen after rendering this splendid service.

Thrills For All

Sponsored by The Record News and Wichita Daily Times with the unstinted cooperation of the Retail Merchants association and the chamber of commerce, Wednesday's event afforded the citizenship of this community a celebration of the Christmas season in which both old and young found keen enjoyment and a vivid reawakening of the thrill which marks the season of gift-giving.

Climaxing more than two weeks of preparation, devoted largely to letting every family in this entire section know just when and how Santa Claus would make his pre-Christmas visit here, the parade started almost exactly on the time which had been announced, and moved through the mile-length of its march amid hilarious shouts, gay laughter and a spirit of yuletide so strong that it really could be felt as plainly as Santa's excellent good nature could be seen in his smile and gestures.

But the presence of Santa himself, with his reindeer team and sleigh, was not all of the parade designed to delight the thousands before whom it passed. There was "Mary" Christmas, wife of the helpful old saint, swinging along in a picturesque palanquin borne on the shoulders of six stalwart men, proud to honor Santa's pleasant companion. And the Little Queen, who met the royal Christmas pair here, beautiful in a private car which permitted her to greet intimately the children who had waited for that sight of her. Near the head of the parade, Miss America, stately in figure and queenly in her array which featured the national colors of red, white and blue; nor must one forget the brown Eskimo, who must have sweltered in those polar-bear-skin pants and shirt as

For more than a mile, hundreds of children—and grown-ups, too—crowded the streets of Wichita Falls Wednesday afternoon to extend a great welcome to Santa Claus and his corps of assistants from the North Pole. The picture at the right was taken on Indiana avenue as the line of march was well under way, and shows Santa Claus (indicated by arrow) and his reindeer as the center of attraction. Streets were cleared of automobiles and the great crowd formed narrow lanes down which Santa and his crew marched.

In spite of the great crowd here from all over Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma, not a single person was injured before or after the parade so efficiently was the jam handled by Wichita Falls police and firemen.

Not a single child was lost during the excitement of the parade.

School pupils of Wichita Falls were dismissed early in order to attend the celebration, and scores of youngsters from other towns in Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma were also present for the event. Several rural schools sent their children here in trucks to witness the personal appearance of Santa Claus, and one giant truck brought the children of the day nursery down town to participate in the happy program.

CON KEIRSEY AND V. CASON STOP BULLETS

Car Theft Suspects Disarm Deputy Sheriffs At Wirt, Okla.

BATTLE IN HOUSE

Wounded Man Brother Of Cliff Keirsey, Former Officer Here

ARDMORE, Okla., Dec. 10. (AP)—Two young desperadoes shot and critically wounded two Carter county officers at Wirt, 35 miles west of here late today and escaped in the officers' car with the officers' guns.

Con Keirsey, 37, deputy sheriff, was shot through the throat. Vernon Cason, 35, under-sheriff was shot through the neck and through the abdomen.

Tracing Stolen Car

Keirsey and Cason, acting on a tip, went to Wirt in an effort to trace a stolen car. The car was standing in front of the house where the gun fight took place.

Keirsey went in and attempted to question two young men who were in the house. Suddenly one of them whipped out two guns and shouted:

"We're going to kill you."

They disarmed Keirsey, who pleaded with them not to kill him.

Meanwhile, Cason hearing the argument, came in the back door and covered the two men. One of them fired at Cason and Keirsey tackled him.

Return and Shoot Again

Cason fell to the floor, shot through the abdomen. The two stopped to disarm him and left. They came back in a few minutes and took two more shots at Cason, one bullet inflicting a flesh wound in his neck.

The two then left the alleged stolen car in front of the house and fled in Keirsey's car.

Keirsey is a brother of Jim Keirsey, Seminole officer, killed in a gun battle at Seminole about six months ago.

WOUNDED MAN BROTHER OF CLIFF

Con Keirsey, Ardmore deputy sheriff critically wounded in a gun battle Wednesday, is a brother of Cliff Keirsey, former Wichita Falls deputy sheriff and now assistant chief of police at Seminole, Okla.

Cliff Keirsey formerly was a plainclothes officer here and was appointed deputy sheriff by Sheriff W. G. Bralley. Later he was employed by a motor concern here.

All of the Keirsey brothers are well known as fearless peace officers and one or another of them frequently figures in gun battles with outlaws.

Witnesses Say Ruch Tried To Have Bud Walls Killed To Halt Rum Ring Expose

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 10. (AP)—Testimony to the effect that County Attorney P. V. Ruch had attempted to have Bud Walls, former deputy sheriff killed and had offered to bribe a newspaper reporter in connection with the alleged Tillman county liquor conspiracy was given by witnesses in the trial of seven defendants in the case in federal court here today.

Following rebuttal witnesses whose testimony strengthened the government's case against Ruch after his long session on the stand had presented a defense which seemed to be airtight, motions on the other defendants were presented Judge Edgar S. Vaught, who announced arguments would get under way tomorrow morning.

John C. Bellah, one of the defendants, who placed District Attorney Roy St. Lewis on the stand today and questioned him, was to be given an opportunity to testify in his own behalf before the defense closes. Bellah, who has not used the aid of an attorney, will be represented tomorrow by counsel appointed by the court.

Doctor Testifies

After Sheriff C. A. Wages, one of 17 men who pleaded guilty of the conspiracy charges, had told of an occasion when Ruch was said to have asked him, "Why don't you go down to Bud Walls' house and kill him? You are sheriff and I am county attorney and everything will be all right." Another witness charged Ruch had suggested killing the deputy.

Dr. T. S. Spurgeon, city health officer of Frederick, testified that in a conversation with Ruch when Walls was found to be sick "after overindulging in whisky," the county attorney said, "Can't you give him a shot of something that will get him out of the way?"

"You know I can't do that, Mr. Ruch," Spurgeon said he replied.

Walls' plea of guilty and testimony involved Ruch, Sheriff Wages and Constable Robert Rogers in the alleged conspiracy.

The bribe charge was made in

SHEPARD JURY TO HEAR STENO

Girl Takes Stand Today In Death Trial

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 10. (AP)—Nearing the climax of its case against Major Charles A. Shepard, the government announced late today that Miss Grace Brandon, blonde stenographer with whom the 50-year-old army medical officer was infatuated, would take the witness stand tomorrow in his trial for the alleged poison murder of his second wife.

A parade of witnesses today related how Shepard had showered flowers and gifts on the San Antonio, Texas, girl, including a $1,500 motor car, a pet canary, jewelry and clothing.

The prosecution brought out that Shepard had ordered flowers for Miss Brandon through F. H. Hauser, San Antonio florist, before and after his wife's death at Fort Riley, Kan., June 15, 1929.

Flowers Ordered

One letter from Shepard identified by Hauser was dated three days after Mrs. Shepard was stricken with the fatal illness which the government charges was induced by poison administered by Shepard in a plot to remove his wife so he could wed Miss Brandon. The letter ordered a dozen peonies sent to the Texas girl.

Endearing messages, composed by Shepard to accompany the flowers delivered almost weekly, were read into the record, giving the jury and the avid crowd of spectators a foretaste of the long, ardent epistles to Miss Brandon which the prosecution has announced will be introduced later.

T. & P. N. Advocates Claim Plains Line Would Bring Big Savings To Shippers

LUBBOCK, Texas, Dec. 10. (AP)—Rate savings to shippers which assertedly would result from construction of the Texas & Pacific Northern railroad from Big Spring north to the Amarillo territory were stressed for the first time today in the hearing on the application of the T. & P. N. to build.

J. B. Payne of Dallas, vice president of the Texas & Pacific, in charge of traffic, said the common point rate would apply to stations along its proposed subsidiary, the T. & P. N.

At the present time the territory generally between the Santa Fe north of Sweetwater and the New Mexico line, which the new road would serve, has to pay an added differential rate, Payne testified. The maximum differential is about 20 per cent of the common point rate.

Payne was not cross-examined on his rate figures because attorneys for the Santa Fe, the Fort Worth and Denver and the Rock Island, the roads opposing the application, asked and were granted added time in which to study the witness' approximately 30 statistical exhibits.

Opposing counsel asked that cross-examination of the witness be postponed until another hearing but Haskell C. Davis, Interstate Commerce commission examiner, turned them down. He said cross-examination would be held Friday morning.

Savings Shown

H. C. Pipkin of Amarillo, attorney for the Santa Fe, brought out from another witness that differentials were fixed by the commission.

Payne's exhibits showed rate saving to a large number of points, particularly markets in Texas, the Southeast and California. For instance the rate on Petroleum products from Houston to Dimmitt, on the T. & P. N., would be lowered from 41 cents a hundred pounds to 39½ cents. Livestock rates from Lamesa to Fort Worth would be lowered as follows: Cattle, 39 to 34

Anarchists Blamed For Attempted Chile Bombing

SANTIAGO DE CHILE, Dec. 10. (US)—Chilean police tonight blamed anarchists for the frustrated attempt to assassinate President Carlos Ibanez by blowing up the train in which the chief executive and members of his party were returning to the capital after inaugurating an agricultural show at Osorno.

They are reported to have arrested four of the conspirators grouped about a detonating machine about 250 feet from the charge.

JOHN W. BRADY LOSES APPEAL

Court Affirms 3-Year Term For Former Jurist

AUSTIN, Dec. 10. (AP)—John W. Brady, former appeals court judge, sentenced to three years imprisonment for the murder of Miss Lehlia Highsmith, 28, lost his appeal to the court of criminal appeals today.

Affirming the decision of the Dallas county jury which found Brady guilty of murder without malice, the criminal court found no merit in any of the grounds for reversal urged by Brady's attorneys.

Miss Highsmith was stabbed to death a year ago in front of an apartment house here.

It was the state's contention that Brady, jealous of younger men, stabbed her to death in a fit of jealous rage. The defense countered with a plea of insanity, picturing Brady as a one time brilliant jurist who had started drinking liquor as a result of political and other disappointments, with the result that his mind degenerated.

Evidence disclosed that Brady obtained the apartment in which Miss Highsmith lived and got her a job in an Austin court.

Brady was first tried in Austin, a hung jury resulting.

WOUNDED BANK BANDITS FLEE

Gun Battle Follows Holdup At Frankston

ATHENS, Texas, Dec. 10. (AP)—The small truck in which the four men who robbed the Frankston State bank escaped after a gun fight with officers was found here tonight.

The discovery was made by a youth who had attended a basket ball game. The truck was abandoned behind the agricultural building at Fair park on the edge of town.

In it were three dead squirrels which had been placed there by the man from whom the robbers took the truck 12 miles from Frankston. A canvas sheet was missing, and officers believed it had been used to carry two of the robbers said to have been wounded when overtaken by three officers.

The truck was covered with mud from top to bottom, as if it had been driven rapidly over bad roads. If any blood stains were on the body, it was impossible to detect them because of the mud.

The truck was found about 10:30 p. m., but officers said they believed it had been abandoned in Athens around 6 o'clock. They expressed opinion the robbers had followed back roads all the way from the scene of the gun fight to Athens.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Curry of Frankston and Charles Emmerson of Poyner, and Constable Charles Slaughter of Frankston met four men, whom they believed to be their quary, in a mud-stalled automobile near the Jack Miller ranch some 12 miles from here. Both groups, Slaughter reported after he was brought back here, began firing and two of the suspected bandits were shot as was Emmerson, who got a bullet through the chest and Slaughter himself, who was nicked in the hand.

Bandits Take Truck

The two suspects untouched by bullets aided their wounded companions in a dash through the roadside brush that brought them out shortly on the road again. Here they stole a truck from a passing driver named Hilton, placed their wounded in it and sped away to the west toward Wild Fence Ferry on the Trinity river and the town of Fairfield, Slaughter was quoted as saying.

Curry, seeing that his fellow officers had been taken in charge by a passing motorist, recruited a negro farmhand who chanced by and, entering the officers' machine, gave chase to the truck.

The bank was robbed just after noon. Four men entered together Cashier Ray Perry said, but two remained at the front while their companions walked back, held pis-

Bandits Take $45,000 From Kansas Bank

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 10. (UP)—Police were without clews tonight as to identification of four bandits who robbed the Interstate National bank of approximately $45,000 here today, after holding 24 employes captive for almost an hour.

Three bandits stationed themselves in the bank, located on the second floor of the Kansas City livestock exchange before the bank opened at 8:30 o'clock this morning. As the employes, 10 of them young women and girls, entered the bank for their day's work, they were herded into a private office and held captive.

he drove the reindeer team through the streets.

Elaborate Pageant

Reminders that Santa Claus has to visit other countries were included in the parade, too. There was the young Japanese princess, colorful in her quaint native costume, a bright yellow chrysanthemum merry in her shining black hair, and she riding quietly along in a real jinrickisha drawn by a strong-limbed, brown-skinned Japanese boy. Cheers greeted the demure Dutch maid, smart and clean in a blue dress with snowy white collar, cuffs and bonnet, who rode in a heavy Holland cart drawn by yoked oxen. One of the stateliest brunette beauties of Spain marched sedately through the streets, attended by two pages and richly costumed in the best traditions of Spanish ladies. Two black-haired, red lipped Italians were there, too, with their noisy grind-organ. Besides all these, there were the Spirit of Love, the Spirit of Peace, and the beautiful Peacock girl, all in bright raiment, to gladden the hearts of their myriad friends among the children of Wichita Falls.

For fun, the parade included a great number of clowns, quite as unusual and ridiculous as those brought by any big circus. The best known, probably, was Felix the Cat, strolling throughtfully down the street, switching his long tail in a thoroughly friendly fashion, and evidently not even looking for a mouse. Others bobbed joyously about, some towering almost to the clouds, others whose heads had grown so enormous that only their feet remained outside to carry them along.

Plenty of Music

All of these members of the big Christmas party, of course, had to have music, and Wichita Falls took care of that for Santa's train. The Caballeros, directed by Paul Seeds, the Lions Club Boys' band under the direction of Leo M. Underwood, and the American Legion Drum corps, were placed in the line of march so that all parts had music by which to swing along in holiday time.

Other local organizations joined in the celebration, eager to help the children of the city greet their best old friend. The city fire department and the police department, through the cooperation of J. L. McClure and Frank Burns, their respective chiefs, made the parade possible by their aid, and colorful by their presence. The Boy Scouts not only carried the colors to lead the procession, but were represented by a long line of marchers. Twenty automobiles in the parade were filled by smiling Girl Reserves, neatly uniformed, and the Camp Fire girls were present with a float on which they showed some of the toys which they have been making for the poor.

Many of the business men and others who have worked hard during the past few days making arrangements for the Santa Claus parade were carried along in the Santa Claus column. Local automobile dealers provided "official cars" through courtesy to the visiting party. Fritz Motor company, Davidson-Hamilton company, Victory Motor campany, the Fox Chevrolet company, Langford Motor company, McFall Brothers and others furnished shining new cars for the event.

The parade started at Tenth and Ohio avenue, moved north to Sixth, on Sixth to Indiana, south on Indiana to Eleventh, west to Scott, and north on Scott to Sixth street, where Santa Claus and his own little company bade farewell to his local helpers, and made haste to be on his way to other Texas cities for other parties. Horrace Robbins acted as Grand Marshal.

Members of the general committee, and the management of The Record News and Daily Times, expressed Wednesday evening their sincere gratitude to local business men and other agencies which gave their services to making the big Santa Claus parade a success. Members of the general committee were Rhea Howard, chairman; R. D. Kennedy, John Boswell, Dr. J. W. Cantwell, Marvin Smith, Mayor Walter Nelson Jr., and Lester Jones.

Girl to Testify In Shepard Trial

of these flowers, personally," and "the sweetness of these lilies are symbolic of my sweetheart," were some of the greetings signed with "love" from "Charlie."

Miss Brandon appeared in court ready to go on the stand but was not called today. No sign of recognition was exchanged between the girl and Shepard.

Objections Overruled

Defense counsel sought without avail to prevent introduction of testimony concerning gifts and attentions paid to Miss Brandon after the death of Mrs. Shepard on the ground such actions on Shepard's part were perfectly proper. Judge Richard J. Hopkins overruled the objections.

District Attorney Sardius M. Bewster indicated the prosecution may complete its direct testimony tomorrow or Friday. Expert testimony in support of the contention that Mrs. Shepard died of poisoning virtually was wound up today when Dr. Frank J. Hall, Kansas City pathologist, in answer to a hypothetical question stated death resulted from "mercurial poisoning."

Ten witnesses were called by the prosecution in rapid order to testify regarding gifts and letters sent to Miss Brandon by the defendant.

W. M. Ewing and A. E. Powell, credit managers of department stores at Denver, Colo., where Shepard was stationed at the time of his arrest several months ago, told of purchases of clothing by Shepard and forwarded to his fiancee in Texas.

R. R. Hochwater, San Antonio mail carrier, testified to delivering four or five letters a week to Miss Brandon from the army officer.

Jury Acquits Undertaker of Charge After His Tilt With City Officials

Conclusion of a case in which Albert Leimkuehler, owner of Albert's Funeral home on Ninth street, was charged with burial of a human body without a permit was reached Wednesday in the county court at law when a jury returned before Judge Irvin J. Vogel a verdict of acquittal.

The trial which took place before Judge Vogel Tuesday followed that held in justice court here several months ago, the defendant having been charged with burial without license in connection with the interment of an aged man in a local cemetery.

Admitting removal of the body from a local hospital, and interment under a contract with the county to handle such cases, the defendant claimed inability to obtain the services of local health officials with reference to the burial permit, and that it would have been unwise to postpone the funeral. Ralph Mathis and Walter Caldwell represented the defendant.

Many Suggestions Made for C.-C. Program of Activities in 1931

Improvement of Marketing, Industrial Expansion and Development of Lakes for Recreation Urged

Suggestions for the 1931 activities of the chamber of commerce here were discussed Wednesday afternoon at a session of the program of work committee.

Various sub-committees made reports on their findings and offered recommendations which will be considered by a group yet to be named who will draft the official recommendations and present them to the membership of the chamber of commerce at its annual meeting on Jan. 9.

Agricultural Program

Suggestions during the session Wednesday included a resume of the drainage, colonization and marketing facilities of the Wichita valley by J. N. Sherrill, who stated that consumption of produce here was of as much importance as the problem of production. Mr. Sherrill talked on the methods by which the chamber of commerce could give assistance to agriculture here.

Marvin Smith, in reporting for the merchants committee, suggested that a sum of money be set aside by the chamber of commerce to advertise Wichita Falls over the territory as a trade center. A means of marketing produce with an expert in charge was suggested as a means of furthering the usage of products grown in this section.

Support of the Junior college here was urged by B. B. Greever, who submitted a report of the committee on civic affairs. A solution of the city's water problem, an effort to allow for the payment of taxes in installments and an attempt to secure a larger proportion of automobile tax money for use locally were also urged by Mr. Greever's report.

Development of Lakes

The committeeman pointed out the need of better roads to the Diversion lake and Lake Kemp and the conservation and beautification of the lakes here for recreational centers. The necessity of moves to provide every vessel on waters here with life preservers for every occupant of a boat, to erect an athletic field and stadium and to provide for better mail service out of Wichita Falls was described. The committee also went on record as approving the Red river conservation project and recommended that the city change its slogan from one describing Wichita Falls as a "finished product" to one that would represent the city as still growing and in keeping with its potentialities.

Other recommendations made were for the paving of Scott avenue to join with the Henrietta highway and for the provision of greater transportation facilities and an industrial expansion and immigration move.

Saving to Shippers Would Result, Is Claim cents, sheep and goats, 49 to 43 cents, hogs, 45 to 39½ cents. The livestock rate from Lamesa to Kansas City would be the same as at present.

Payne stated stopover privileges in transit would be increased. He mentioned that farm implements originating at St. Louis might be stopped over at Dallas, Sweetwater and Fort Worth or partially unloaded there before proceeding to points on the T. & P. N.

Storage Offered

He pointed out that grain from this territory had to be stored for milling or reforwarding, and stated there were storage facilities at such points as Fort Worth, Sherman, Paris, Marshall, Dallas and Shreveport on the T. & P.

With the new road there would be marketing in transit privileges on livestock, the witness testified. Shipments might be stopped at Fort Worth and, if the market should not be satisfactory, might be moved on to Kansas City. The cotton concentration privilege at such centers as Dallas would be broadened, he asserted.

The new road would not parallel the Santa Fe, which has the most mileage in this territory, because the T. & P. N. when considered with the T. & P. is essentially an east-west line, while the Santa Fe is in the main a north-south line, Payne said. He maintained that markets would be opened in Texas, the Southeast and California. These markets are now reached by circuitous routes, he said. The opening of these markets would benefit the consumer, he explained. Distances to many points would be shortened, he said.

Trucks Promised

Payne stated that the T. & P., in estimating the T. & P. N. tonnage, which assertedly would justify the building of the new road, included the business which it considered would be recovered from trucks. The T. & P. will inaugurate its truck service on the new road, transporting the goods from the shipper's house to the railroad and from the railroad to buyer without extra charge, Payne said.

Ben Critz, manager of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce, H. B. Lockett of the John Deere Plow company at Dallas and representatives of the traffic committee of the chamber of commerce there, and T. E. Huffman, general merchandise traffic agent of the T. & P., were other witnesses today.

The Dallas men said their city favored the building of the new road. Lockett said the Fort Worth and Denver was giving satisfactory service to the Plains points it reached, but complained of slow service over the Santa Fe.

Dewey Lawrence, assistant attorney general representing the state's interests, took a hand in the questioning while Lockett was on the stand. He wanted to know if the sale of farm implements had not increased in the past when railroads had been built in this section. Lockett replied in the affirmative, asserting that more formers moved into the territory with the coming of a railroad.

HOME OWNERS ENTER CONTEST

Christmas Lighting Urged By Junior C-C Chairman

Wichita Falls home owners are beginning to enter the Christmas spirit contest.

Decoration and outside illumination of homes is now under way and already some beautiful electrical decorations and lighting effects have been installed. Among the first homes to be illuminated are two on Eleventh street.

"We are in hopes that many homes will be illuminated for the holiday season," said Irvin J. Vogel, chairman of the Christmas spirit committee of the Junior chamber of commerce. "Wichita Falls possesses some of the finest homes to be seen in any city in Texas and if the owners will enter into the contest they will be proud of their decision. We know of few things that will attract visitors to our city as artistic electrical lighting of the homes.

"Those who desire to enter the contest can do so at any time. The final entry date is Dec. 20. Decorate the home now and carry out the plan that the Junior chamber of commerce committee desires so much to make successful."

The awards will be made for three classes, each class being divided into the amount of money spent for installation of the electrical equipment. In addition to valuable cash prizes there are a number of merchandise prizes, all of which will be very acceptable in any home.

Tillman Rum Ring Trial Near Close

testimony by Roy Curtis, a reporter for the Frederick Press who said he approached the county attorney with information about the liquor conspiracy. Curtis said he told Ruch he had affidavits from individuals which his paper proposed to make public and that the attorney told him if they were not published there might be a "fat fee" for him.

"Bribe" Revealed

The reporter replied he was "not interested in fees but I am interested in good government," he said. The paper published a story on the information in the affidavits after Ruch obtained them and refused to surrender them. A libel suit was filed later by the county attorney, who turned the affidavits over to the United States district attorney at Oklahoma City. The statements had to do with the alleged bootlegging activities of Walls.

The government's star rebuttal witness was Frank Barbee, deputy sheriff, an officer whose record has not been impeached in the conspiracy trial. He helped raid several stills and previous testimony purported to show his efforts to enforce the law had often been thwarted by members of the alleged conspiracy.

Barbee testified that after the Jack Bock still was raided, he went to Ruch and told him that the wife of Holmes Tidwell, on whose farm the still was located, had said the whisky plant was protected and that money paid for protection was split four ways by Ruch, Walls, Rogers and Wages. Ruch had testified he had never heard of the alleged protection.

Motions Filed

The tall black-haired deputy's keen eyes revealed a fearless calm as he confirmed Wages' story that Ruch had asked the sheriff to shoot Walls. His answers were decisive and short, and little effort was made by the defense to impeach his testimony.

Just before court adjourned, counsel for the various defendants offered motions for dismissal of the cases against their clients. Judge Vaught granted the motion of Lee Slade, Chickasha Mortgage company man, a motion for dismissal of the case of Jake Strieber was taken under advisement when his client contended that he was merely a helper at the Bock still. Motions to dismiss the other four cases were overruled.

BOWIE ROAD CONTRACT LET

Paving to Close Last Gap In Highway

Special to The Record News:

BOWIE, Texas, Dec. 10.—The second week of the new year will see work started on the paving of Wise street, the last gap in the pavement between Wichita Falls and Fort Worth, following the awarding of a $21,336.60 city contract to the General Construction company of Fort Worth.

Highway officials have assured city council members that the state will pave the small strip between the city street and the end of the state road as soon as minor difficulties can be met.

The three-quarter mile strip will be paved with reinforced concrete measuring 18 feet through the residential section and 50 feet in the two downtown blocks. The work will be financed by city warrants to be issued within the next 30 days. A. W. Terrell, head of the construction company, declared that 30 working days would be required to complete the job, announcing that he expected the street to be open for traffic early in February.

tols on Perry and Mrs. Carrie Watkins, assistant cashier, and forced them in the vault.

Take $11,236.90

The robbers took all the money in sight—the $11,236.90—and backed out, closing the door and throwing the bolt. They failed, however to force the combination lock shut, Perry said, and in consequence persons who entered the bank when first news spread of the holdup were able to release the cashier and his assistant without great difficulty.

"These men told us that the two in the front part of the bank had a machine gun. I did not have time to see whether they did or not. They told us we would be all right if we didn't try to make trouble," Perry said. The loss was covered by insurance and would occasion the bank no financial embarrassment, he added.

The cashier estimated that the number of men who volunteered almost immediately to join the search was between 40 and 50.

The robbery followed by less than 24 hours that the State Bank of Velasco, which is some 250 miles south of here. The Velasco bank lost about $3,000 to three men and robbery charges were lodged at Angleton today against Jim Collins, 47, of Houston, Buster Dunn, 28, of Houston, and Jack Johnson, 30, of Chicago, in that holdup.

Buy Now!

If normal expenditures are withheld much longer business recovery will be postponed. It will cost the public less to fill their ordinary needs now than to continue the policy of not spending and later pay the high cost of shortsightedness.

Money in circulation helps all business. Money withheld — hoarded — stifles business and causes unemployment.

BUY NOW.

STOP
CHASING YOUR OWN TAIL

"Waiting for prices to drop to the bottom before you buy?" Then you're chasing your own tail.

If you don't buy, you can't expect the next fellow to buy—and he won't! What's the result? Poor business, thousands of failures, hundreds of thousands of unemployed, hard times for everyone.

What's the remedy? Buy now! Buy your full normal purchases of the essentials, but—Buy!

If you don't buy essentials now, you're helping to create business disaster, for prices will come down with a thud.

If you do buy now, prices which have already been lowered, will continue to come down—but slowly and safely to your business and the country's business.

If you do buy now, you will be buying at reduced prices, yet helping to stabilize business in general. And when you help to stabilize business in general you are helping your own business.

If you do buy now, it will enable the man you bought from to buy, and the endless chain charted above will work to your benefit instead of to your disaster.

A Coin of Confidence

This advertisement is a coin of confidence published by us in an effort to do our share to stimulate buying and stabilize business—a coin of confidence which we urge all manufacturers, merchants and consumers to circulate.

PRUDENCE POINTS THE WAY

We believe it is the duty of everybody in the interests of the nation and in his own interests, to buy now. We believe it is the duty of everybody to assert confidence by spreading the word and stimulating others to buy. We believe the American good sense—once it stops to reflect will agree that prices should not descend in a few days from the height which they were five years in ascending.

At the present level of prices, they are fair: they will sustain wages and earnings.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

The living Christmas trees are already being lighted. Downtown streets are not the only ones gay with twinkling stars of color. But turning into one of the main streets from a side one, Eighth and Ninth, Scott and Indiana are real fairylands after dark.

What, we wonder, would those pioneers who first trailed through this country think if they could wake from 50 years of sleep and ride into the city?

As one grows with the improvements of years, inventions and manufactures that mean comfort and beauty and sometimes luxury do not seem startling things. One becomes accustomed to them day by day. But 1930 would mystify Daniel Boone and Davy Crockett quite as much as it would startle George Washington and probably more than Ben Franklin.

Telephones have changed enormously since we were a little girl. We remember quite well our first dial phone in Wichita Falls. We dialed everything until we accidentally found the receiver must come down before we could get a number.

Screens came in during the memory of many living people. We wonder now how health and happiness were ever possible without them. Personally, we have never had a thing irritate us more than a fly singing around us—unless it was some one being chirpy and optimistic when we had toothache or earache.

Electricity, we often think, is the greatest invention of the age. Not only for all its labor saving possibilities but because with them, "let there be light" was made possible in darkness. Lamps may figure on many romantic pages of history, but the modern electric glow is a boon to a reader.

We hold no brief for gas except for cooking. Gas heaters are quick and warm and passably clean but hot water heat and an open fire for cheer are perfection in our memory.

When we were a child we spent our summer vacation nine miles out from town with a paternal aunt. Our uncle or cousins came in early Saturday morning, sold their eggs and butter and produce, did their shopping and then started home late in the afternoon.

Nine miles in a surrey behind two slow trotting farm horses pulling up and down steep hills and through sandy creek bottoms made quite a journey. We remember the loneliness we began to feel as darkness fell and we drove through black woods, wondering how the horses knew the way.

Down a long narrow lane was the farmhouse and in the rooms where little lamps gleamed, warm welcome waited us. We always breathed a sigh of great relief over the perilous journey done. Now the same trip may be made in a car over paved roads in some 20 minutes.

Yesterday is a picture over which there is a glamour. People have a tenderness toward it just as men and women feel a tenderness for the little boys and girls they once were. But when it comes to comfort, give us today.

NO NEED TO BE TIRED OUT IN MID-AFTERNOON

By Eating or Drinking Something Sweet This Zero Hour Can Be Avoided

Millions of people engaged in business have the common problem of fighting fatigue in mid-afternoon. This condition is due, not only to the fact that energy has been expended during the early part of the day, but that business invariably speeds up in the afternoon and makes its greatest demands on the worker.

Scientific tests have proved that this mid-afternoon fatigue can be overcome or lessened materially by eating or drinking something sweet. The type of nourishment which has been used in the experiments are candy, ice cream, cookies, cakes, milk, carbonated beverages and the "athlete's cocktail"—a glass of water sweetened with sugar.

It is the sugar in these snacks that refreshes the system. Of all food products, none is more quickly digested than sugar and its energy becomes available immediately.

Since candy, cakes, ice cream and sweet beverages are within reach of nearly every one there is no need to endure the "gone" feeling during the daily zero hour. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Prize Money Buys Prints for Junior Travel Club Room

Mrs. Thelbert Martin was leader in discussion of the lesson on psychology from "Parenthood and the Newer Psychology," when members of the Junior Travel club met at the Woman's Forum Wednesday morning. Mrs. Martin discussed the topic in a most interesting manner, using chapters three, four and five, and a round table discussion was held at the conclusion of her talk.

Roll call was answered with stories of late magazine articles and in the business meeting, with Mrs. Grover C. Johnson presiding, officers' reports were made. Mrs. G. H. Watson reported on the T. F. W. C. conference held in Houston in November, and Mrs. O. T. Alles reported for a committee, composed of Mesdames G. K. Wilson and Fred T. Datson and herself, who had been appointed to purchase pictures for the clubroom.

Mesdames Grover C. Johnson and Thelbert Martin, with essays written representing the Junior Travel club, have won money amounting to $40 and it was voted that this amount should be used to purchase pictures. For their selection of "Happy Hours," a Dutch interior by Pothast and "Scotch Heather," a lovely print by Dr. Kurx Welly, members of the club gave the committee a rising vote of thanks. The pictures are beautiful additions to the clubroom.

Six Arrested Here For Shoplifting

Six persons were arrested here Wednesday by city police in two instances of shoplifting.

Following a call to police by a department store here, A. E. Robberson, city plainclothes officer, arrested a 50-year-old woman and her two daughters after watching their activities in the store.

Two women and a man were also arrested after a call from a second department store. Articles valued at $15 to $20 were taken from each of the department stores and were recovered by police.

$2,500 Damages Asked As Result of Crash

Damages amounting to $2,500 are asked by H. N. Pounds from H. D. Jones in a suit filed in district court here Wednesday, the plaintiff alleging that he suffered personal and property damage to that extent as a result of a collision with an automobile driven by Sam Jones, 15, son of the defendant.

The pleading sets out that on Nov. 23, the defendant's car was passing westward under a green signal at Ninth and Brook avenue when it was struck by a northbound car which was driven through the intersection by the younger Jones.

Personal injuries and damages to the Pounds car are named as the basis of the plaintiff's claim.

Jury Deadlocked On Damage Suit Here

Receiving the case at 10:45 a. m. Wednesday a jury in the 78th district court reported at 5 p. m. to Judge W. W. Cook that it was unable to reach an agreement in the suit of C. Y. Elliott against the Wichita Falls Traction company for damages amounting to about $10,600, and was ordered to resume its deliberations at 9 o'clock Thursday morning.

Trial of the suit occupied the court Monday afternoon and all of Tuesday, attorneys' arguments being given Wednesday morning.

Elliott asks damages for personal injuries alleged to have been received while he was riding in a street car here on July 4.

Test of City Food Ordinance Delayed

A test of the city food ordinance to have come before Judge W. L. Bass at a special session of municipal court Wednesday has been postponed to start at 1:30 o'clock Thursday, according to the announcement of court officials Wednesday.

The test case evolves from an arrest of a restaurant proprietor here by health officials last week. The city ordinance requires that foodstuffs displayed be protected under appliances for the safeguarding of health. The arrest was made here after an investigation by state health officials, it was said.

Testimony Closed In Suit Over Eviction

Hearing of testimony was completed late Wednesday afternoon before Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court in the suit of James Evans, negro, against L. V. Majors for damages approximating $1,000.

The plaintiff alleges in his pleading that eviction last spring from land belonging to the defendant occasioned a loss of one-half interest in 40 bales of cotton. The court's charge was completed Wednesday afternoon, and attorneys' arguments will be presented to the jury Thursday morning, it was said.

O Sirs! Wise and Sagacious, Rhymed News Nauseates Us

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 10 (AP)—With rings on his fingers and rings in his nose, the Zulu is happy wherever he goes, but Wheeler J. Johnson's content, if you please, with nothing to stop him in case he should sneeze. So he severed his marital ties yesterday, when the court heard his argument, stated this way:

"The study of American manners and life engrosses the time and the thoughts of my wife. To this I have never objected," he said, "but I fear that the subject has gone to her head. For while deep in the study, enmeshed in its throes, a hatpin she recently stuck through my nose.

"'You're a Zulu!' she cried, at which rightly I'm vexed."

"You divorce plea is granted," the judge mumured. "Next!"

Reader's Club Entertains Friends At Christmas Party

A lovely annual event was celebrated Wednesday morning when members of the Readers club were entertained at the home of Miss Frances Ann Saunders in Country Club estates with a delightful morning program and 1 o'clock luncheon. The handsome home had touches of exquisite color in great yellow chrysanthemums and bowls of crimson roses.

Mrs. Charles Reid, assisted by Mrs. Ben Bell was in charge of arrangements and Miss Marguerite Fisher, president, opened the morning meeting and announced the numbers. The program was given as follows: "Ma'amselle" was read by Miss Mary Hamilton in her usual graceful manner and Mrs. Harry R. Fuller followed with a group of readings. Tennyson's "Break, Break, Break," was given as a pianolog with Mrs. Fuller accompanying herself in an original musical arrangement that added beauty to the poignant words. "The Audience" by Daly was quite a contrast and another pianolog, "Little Gary Lamb," stressing the Christmas theme, was Mrs. Fuller's final number in which she was accompanied by Mrs. Ben Bell who played the pretty background of music in Schubert's "Night Song." Mrs. E. L. Fulton closed the program with a beautifully given 'Legend of the Poinsettia."

Members as usual had guest privileges for the Christmas party. A delicious luncheon was served to Miss Elizabeth Carrigan, Mesdames John T. Young, Elwyn Lomax, Ted Krohn, H. V. Empty Stockings At Quanah to Be Filled From Fund

Special to The Record News.

QUANAH, Texas, Dec. 10.—At a called meeting attended by 50 representatives of practically every lodge, church and civic and social organization in Quanah, plans were laid for an "empty stocking fund" and distribution so that no needy child or family within Quanah and the independent school district will be without a visit from Santa Claus.

Dr. T. D. Frizzell, mayor, presided at the meeting, and later appointed an executive committee consisting of A. B. Wey, chairman; Mrs. E. B. Saskey, Mrs. N. W. Walton, Mrs. S. B. Wells, Mrs. T. D. Frizzell, Mrs. E A. Sanders, R. R. Gilliland, J. H. Williams and C. E. Davis. Mrs. Jess Alexander is secretary for the committee.

This executive committee then appointed the following Committees: Finance, R. R. Gilliland, Carl Gallagher, Mrs. T. D. Frizzell and Mrs. E. B. Caskey; zone, J. H. Williams and C. E. Davis; investigation, Mrs. N. W. Walton, Mrs. E. A. Sanders, Mrs. S. B. Wells.

Churches, lodges and various organizations will carry out their own plans for Christmas giving, supplying baskets, etc., but through the combined efforts, and through the executive committee, overlapping of assistance will be avoided, and no family will be overlooked.

The zone committee will appoint subworkers who will canvass and make complete survey of the city and district; the investigation committee will investigate, and allotments are then to be made to the various organizations to cover any families listed who are not being cared for by either churches, lodges or others.

The plan is supplementary to the associated charities and is to be handled entirely by voluntary subscription to either the chamber of commerce or Quanah Tribune Chief, and through "empty stockings" placed in the downtown stores.

Beer Vats Made Into Abodes by Unemployed Man

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 10. (UP)—Springing up of a colony of "beer vat dwellers" was revealed here today as one result of the unemployment situation.

The "vat dwellers" have made use of abandoned vats of the Anheuser-Busch brewery—thanks to prohibition—and from 14 to 20 men call the huge cylinders home. The vats are scattered through a vacant field near the river front.

According to Henry Hilbir, 60, who lives in the largest one—nine feet in diameter and 18 feet long, a vat has its advantages. From drift wood gathered along the Mississippi river bank nearby he kindles a blaze under the vat and the flames lap the steel.

"In no time at all it is warm as toast inside," according to Hilbir, who works but two days a week, and solved the rent problem by fitting up the cylinder for a residence.

When Women Riot
A Shooting Reporter
Alois Lang's Racket

By EMILE GAUVREAU

Girl students lead a street riot in Havana which results in one policeman killed and another wounded. The riot is a gesture of protest by students to the reopening of the National university by presidential decree. The appointment of Dr. Rodriquez Molina as dean is also objected to. Dr. Molina some years ago ruled against a number of students charged with Communistic activities. A bomb placed under the dean's office fails to explode.

There is nothing startling or new in a riot led by women. There is a whole book on the Sword and Womankind. Aspasia started the famous Peloponnesian war. The Marquise de Pompadour dictated the plans of Marshal d'Estrees' campaign, and Mlle. d'Orleans, as well as Mme. de Longueville, had her own army. So we may yet live to see the day when another Joan of Arc will arise, not with a sword, but with a machine gun and gas bomb. Until then, however, it will be wiser to leave military matters in the hands of men.

In Madrid a reporter voices his protest of the regime, not with a paragraph, but with a bullet: The reporter, Joaquin Llizo, enters the office of Premier Berenguer and fires. His aim is either bad or deliberately misdirected, for the shot goes wide the mark, which evidently was the premier's headpiece.

In extenuation, Llizo declares that things are going to the dogs in Spain and that something will have to be done in a rousing manner to wake up the people and the government. Shooting is not a very good way to mend matters—especially when reporters turn gunmen. Llizo must have been taught that the pen is mightier than the sword, but he probably decided that the gun was mightier still.

When the Passion play opened in Oberammergau last season, business was reported good. The stalls, al fresco, did a thriving trade in toys and souvenirs. But, until today, it was not popularly known that Christus himself, Alois Lang, was making money on his own account, in a private way, by charging guests at his house a percentage in lieu of gratuities generally offered to the serving maids and pocketing the money. The maids were unable to recover this money, amounting to $475, and sued in court. Lang lost.

Endowing the Passion players, making them financially independent, as has been proposed, will not help. An itching palm is not cured thus. Lang, and others of his tribe, should be unceremoniously ousted and others found who are above the lure of lucre. And if such cannot be found, the Passion play should be discontinued. Oberammergau should have been the last place in the world where the devil could find retreat. And yet, there we find him, comfortably installed.

Some years ago an American artist, Thomas Wilfrid, invented the clavilux, an instrument which was manipulated like a piano, but which produced instead of sound, color patterns in motion on a screen. More recently Prof. Leon Theremin, Russian inventor, demonstrated a device by which musical sounds were produced by the mere motion of the hands. Now a Frenchman, Maurice Martenot, astonishes the world with an even more unique invention by which, with the aid of electric waves, "music from the ether" will be conjured forth. From a small cabinet, properly handled, one will be able to get the human voice, the blast of a trumpet or a saxophone.

Monsieur Martenot has just come to America and will give his first demonstration in a New York auditorium which will overflow with the learned, the curious, and the superstitious.

Hambone's Meditations

Racketeers are grumbling that they are getting too much publicity. They should realize, however, that it is better to be in the spotlight than on the spot.

We have 1,500,000 specially gifted children. There lies the future leadership of the nation if we devote ourselves to their guidance.—President Hoover, before the White House conference on child health and protection.

If Santa Claus Forgets

LITTLE boys are pressing their freckled faces against the plate glass windows where trains go round and round the silver tracks, and little girls are holding out their arms to dolls that smile back understandingly. The magic season is here again.

All over the country children are measuring their stockings so they will be sure to hang the longest ones by the bedposts where Santa Claus can find them. And there isn't one heart that doubts that the benevolent old saint will climb down his chimney or use a pass-key on his door. Perhaps he didn't come last year, they understand. But that is all the more reason that he will be there this year.

Letters are going to the north pole every day, and switchboard operators are telling countless children that the shining workshop where the master toy-maker lives is too far to be reached by the longest long distance.

But when Christmas morning comes thousands of these same starry-eyed little boys and girls will find that their stockings are cold and flat, unless the rest of us understand how disappointed a little child can be when he is left out of the Christmas feast.

We accuse the innkeeper who would not make room for Mary the night that the Christ child was born. But we who wound a little child by making him think that he has been forgotten break trust with life just as surely.

It takes such a little bit to make a child happy. There are enough toys which aren't being used in our homes to make every child in the country wake up on the magic morning with a feeling in his heart that life is good and Santa Claus still comes.

Grown people have had experience enough to understand the reasons underlying things when their dreams don't come true. Children can't do this. They only know that Santa Claus has stood on the corner and in the toy shops, asked them what they wanted him to bring . . . and then forgotten them. They are puzzled, and their bruised hearts don't know how to understand a giver who can be so generous to some children and so thoughtless of others.

If we would keep alive the children's belief that life is good and dreams come true, we must not fail them.

They won't talk about the gifts that they didn't get, these boys and girls who are going around the streets with such shining eyes today. But they will have a dull little pain in their hearts if Santa Claus breaks trust with them. And nothing in all the world is so pathetic as a child who was left out.

A Fear That Is Baseless

IT isn't often that Joseph Stalin, chairman of the executive committee of the Russian government, gives aid and comfort to the enemies of Communism on this side of the water.

However, the remarks he recently made to an interviewer about propaganda ought to be very reassuring to those of us who live in mortal dread of a Red uprising in this land.

In effect, Stalin said that Communist propaganda in capitalistic lands is not, by itself, and never can be, very effective. Propaganda does not make Communists. They are produced by national conditions. If the conditions are not favorable, all the propaganda on earth will be useless.

Few people anywhere are as afraid of Communism as we are in America, and few people anywhere have so little reason to be afraid of it. Stalin's comment shows how groundless our fears really are.

As long as we maintain the kind of conditions here in which the ordinary workingman can be reasonably sure of finding and keeping a job, getting a decent amount of pay for his work and enjoying a fair amount of the luxuries of life, we shall have no earthly cause for getting exercised about the "Red peril."

All of this is perfectly obvious. But our professional patriots seem utterly unable to understand it. A short talk with Stalin might do them a lot of good.

Advice to the Jobless

WHEN a man cannot get work in his own town, his first impulse usually is to go on to some other city in the hope that conditions will be better there. When any business depression is purely local in character, this is a good thing; but J. Rogers Flannery of Pittsburgh, president of the National Association of Travelers' Aid societies, points out that conditions now are so nearly alike everywhere that the roving unemployed worker simply makes things worse for himself and for others.

"Men or women out of work," says Mr. Flannery, "need all of the resources that come from friendship and residence that are not available to the drifters into strange communities, each of which is concerned with the problem of its own people. The kindest advice that can be given to men and women out of work today is to remain, if possible, in their own communities—to stay in their own homes."

Raising the Postal Rates

IT IS to be hoped that congress will do some extensive investigating before agreeing to the proposal that the postage rate on first-class mail—ordinary letters—be increased.

It may be perfectly true, as the postmaster general asserts, that to increase the rates on other classifications will simply drive business from the government to the hands of private carriers. Nevertheless, the first-class rate should not be raised except as a last resort. Two cents is an ample price, and first-class mail pays its own way.

Perhaps it would be more to the point to begin by ending all franking privileges. There will be time enough to talk of raising the first-class rate after this petty form of something-for-nothing has been abolished.

On Broadway

(Copyright, 1930, Daily Mirror, Inc.)

Broadwaycasting

Good evening, ladies and gentlemen—for the 26th time this year, or has it seemed longer than that? . . . My final broadcast (until after the holidays) is distinguished by Miss Libby Holman of the "Three's a Crowd" revusical hit at the Selwyn theater. Miss Holman's swift and deserved success along the Grandest Canyon gave the ambitious something to aspire for. She crashed the local heavens, you know, in the original "Little Show" and made herself and the "Moanin' Low" ditty renowned. You will be enchanted by her seductive song deliveries in "Three's a Crowd," I am sure, and by her offering tonight, Miss Holman. (Song here) . . . Thanks, Libby Holman.

My recent paragraph about the Social Register aroused H. Seton, who appears to be more familiar with that tome, I asserted that if you were social, and you were sealed to an actor or an author, the Register dropped you like a Broadway friend drops you when you are broke and you look like you are. Seton points out that Louis Bromfield, the novelist, and Alice Duer Miller, the ditto, are listed, as is Sidney Howard, the playwright.

However, after the late Clare Eames, the actress and Howard were divorced, the fussy editors of Register omitted her. Julia Robbins (now Mrs. Louis Calhern) was dropped after she had it melted from Lydig Hoyt and went on the stage to shame the social set . . . Hope Williams, due next week in "The New Yorkers," was also dropped after her stage career and her divorce became news.

The vagaries of the Social Register are exemplified in the treatment of the L. G. Kaufman tribe. The pater and mater Kaufmans are recorded, as is their son, Gray, who ankled up a center-aisle with Mae Daw, a "Follies" charmer. But not so another son, Louis G., who took to wife Dorothy Dilley, a dancer.

The late first frau of the late George J. Gould was listed, having been Edith Kingdom, an actress. But the second squaw of the financier, Genevere Sinclair, was snubbed. The latter is now Viscountess Dunsford, if you please. So although she could not crash the Yankee Social Register, she did better—attaining the British Burke's Peerage, which is taken more seriously . . . Genevere, I hear, still aches all over from laughing.

Speaking of the snooty set reminds me of the chatter going on concerning a recent elopement between a show gal and a Park Avenuer, who is better described as being social—but no dough!

The "inside" is that the gal who had been arm-in-arming it with a Broadway man, wanted to become a bride and the Broadwayfarer kept deferring matters. Two months or so ago she barked: "Unless you marry me within six weeks I'll marry anybody!" . . . Along came her social but no doughboy, and before you could say "How've y been?" she married him.

By now, one presumes, she has discovered that if she wants to eat she must continue working in the show business. The lad she Jacked—and finally Jilted—feels wretched about it, they say, but he is entieing little, if any pity, because of his way with other fellows' girls.

The old street is comical like that. It will stand for murders, racketeers and almost anything, but not for a sweetheart-burglar.

In justice to the Massachusetts mayor, whose name was used last week in the night clubs by a phoney (who couldn't settle his bills and was punched silly by bouncers), let it be jotted down now that the mayor is busy running for re-election up there.

It might also interest the mayor to know that the local gendarmes are looking for the counterfeiter for this and that reason. They are seeking him, incidentally everywhere, except in the nearest hospital, where he probably is convalescing.

We recently paragraphed that you are never, never, never missed on Broadway . . . A concrete example follows: Arch Selwyn borrowed the Fulton Theater from the Erlanger firm the other day for his newest show . . . When Mr. Holzman, the exploiter for the attraction, went over the theater's first night list he discovered the names of four critics who have been dead for a year or longer . . . The names being Metcalfe, of Life; Davis of the Herald Trib; Osborn of the World, and the late Alan Dale. Imagine.

Incidentally, Mr. Selwyn's new play, "A Kiss of Importance," brings back Montagu Love. Almost throughout the proceedings at the premiere I couldn't suppress my titters over what Heywood Broun once wrote of Mr. Love when Broun was a dramatic critic . . . Broun said of Love: " . . . he plays the villain by throwing his chest out three inches—and following it across the stage.

The testimonial dinner in honor of the beloved Daniel Frohman the other night was packed with several amusing flippancies—some of which I published yesterday . . . Donald Ogden Stewart was there and he addressed some of his patter to Professor William Lyon Phelps of Yale . . . "When I was at Yale with you," said the clown, "you taught me Browning and Tennyson. Well, sir, I've made good since then—but what the hell became of Tennyson and Browning?"

The happiest news of the lot, at any rate, is that the adorable Lila Lee is recovering in her lonely retreat on the desert . . . Not because the doctors there are such-a-much, but because her former "heart," John Farrow (from whom she parted before she was stricken), came to see her, and cried it out with her . . . My deputies tell me that when Lila is able she and John will go to Yuirup to see his mother, and then the parson will do the rest. This cheers me more than you know, for I have known Lila since she was 5 years old . . . I do hope she recovers sooner than soon, and that she will be as happy as she was when we used to play tag in 1910, '11, '12, '13 and '14 back stage of all the Orpheum Circuit theaters when Gus and Mrs. Edwards weren't looking . . .

LITTLE MISS NOBODY

By VIDA HURST

"On the dresser was a note"

Dolores Graham, 36 years old, and unusually attractive to men, and Dr. Fenton, are found shot to death in each other's arms in the latter's office. Celeste, 19, and equally beautiful, is the daughter of Dolores. Because of the scandal attached to her mother's death Celeste is forced to quit her job and break her engagement to Norman Jackson.

Celeste had never been kissed until her engagement and she had held the respect of all the young people in her "crowd." After the tragedy, Harry Martin, one of Celeste's former friends, takes her for a ride. He insults her with his advances and she jumps from the car, intent upon walking home.

Dale Hamilton offers to give her a lift home in his roadster. Dale is the son of a millionaire department store owner. Thinking that knowledge of her family scandal would make Dale never see her again, Celeste decides to tell him nothing of herself. Later they go to a fashionable beach and grow rather fond of each other. To Dale, Celeste is known as "Miss Nobody."

Celeste gets another job through her former teacher at the Elite Department store. There she meets Blondie McManus, a girl the same age as Celeste in years, but much her senior in experience and sophistication. They grow rather fond of each other.

Blondie leaves the two at the table with the excuse that she has to return to the store early. Scott tries to make a date with Celeste and she refuses. Days go by and she hears nothing from Dale Hamilton. Dale happens into the office just as Scott is renewing his attempt to make a date with Celeste.

Wallace Scott, assistant credit manager at the Elite, tries to make a date with Celeste. She refuses, gets in bad with him and gets a notice that she is fired.

Russell Graham, Celeste's father, also quits his job because of the scandal. Dolores had saved some money for a rainy day. Celeste returns home to find that her father had found the money and had spent it to see a ball game.

Celeste has another date with Dale and he tells her that he has a job for her in the offices of Richard Randolph Clayton at $5 more a week than she earned at the Elite.

Dale tells Celeste he loves her. Afraid that love would spoil everything, Celeste decides to remain a mystery to Dale. Even though he now knows her name and all about her, she makes him promise that they will never be anything but friends.

Annette Grower, Celeste's former closest friend, calls to tell of her engagement to Norman Jackson. Celeste wonders how she could ever have thought herself in love with Norman. The next day Celeste goes to Clayton's office to work. She finds Clayton a man who looks much older than his 32 years and rather bored with the whole idea of working at all. Jennie Wilson, Clayton's private secretary, proves to be a rather difficult person with whom to get along. Dale also works for Clayton and often stops at Celeste's desk.

CHAPTER XIV

"Good morning, Miss Graham!"

"Good morning, Mr. Hamilton!"

That was all, but the brilliant smiles exchanged between the two made it obvious to every one in the office that their greeting was more than casual.

Mildred Harrison and the telephone operator had plenty of time to appreciate the situation before Dale sauntered to the switchboard to ask, "Any calls for me?"

"Nothing this morning, Mr. Hamilton."

"Tell R. R. C. I'd like to talk with him, will you?"

She complied, saying, "O. K.—the empress says you may have an audience with his royal highness."

Dale laughed and walked into the private office. It became evident to Celeste that Jenine Wilson was disliked. Obviously her high and mighty airs were not taken seriously by anyone except herself.

On his way out Dale stopped at her desk to murmur, "I have to stay home tonight, but I'm counting on seeing you tomorrow, if I may."

Deliciously flustrated, she answered, "Do you mean tomorrow night?"

"Of course! O. K.?"

"O. K.!" she agreed, scarcely able to conceal her delight in the fact that he intended to make no secret of their friendship.

"Known Dale Hamilton long?" inquired Lucille, the telephone operator.

Lucille was small and as delicately built as Celeste, with a tip-tilted nose which gave her a curiously childish look. She wore a black dress with a round white collar, which made her look even younger than she was. She looked not a day over 15, but her conversation indicated that she had been married, divorced and was now madly in love with a newspaper reporter. There was nothing reserved about Lucille. She gave her history freely and unexpurgated, probably expecting an equal confidence in return, which no doubt accounted for the question which she repeated to Celeste, "Known Dale Hamilton long?"

"Not so very. Why?"

"Just wondered. He's only been with us since June. Quite a social celebrity."

Celeste said nothing.

"I suppose you know his father owns the Elite Department store?"

"That's what I understand."

"They say he has a yacht of his own, but I'll bet he doesn't pay for it out of what he makes selling bonds."

Celeste attempted to change the subject.

"When will Mr. Smith be back?"

"Tomorrow some time. He's a nice old thing."

"How old?"

"Oh, all of 40. Don't worry about him."

According to their prearranged plan, Celeste returned to the store to have lunch with Blondie, who cried, "Picture my embarrassment when I sneaked up to your department this morning and was told you were no longer with us. What's happened?" I says to Scotty. 'We had to let her go,' says he, swelling up like a poisoned pup. 'Well, what's the idea? What's she done?' 'It's what she didn't do,' he answered. 'I was afraid he'd fire you.'"

"Don't let him know you've seen me," begged Celeste. "Don't tell him anything about me."

"I won't," Blondie assured her. "But, gee, how I'd love to see his face when he finds out you're working already and for more money."

Celeste had not confided the details of her good fortune. She considered it wiser to let Blondie think the position had been secured through an employment agency.

"I'm going to miss you dreadfully," Blondie said, regretfully. "I'm afraid we won't see so much of each other any more."

"Why not?"

"Oh, we'll intend to, but you know how those things go. Our interests will be different, and pretty soon we won't make the effort any more."

"I will," Celeste promised.

"I wish you could come over to the apartment and live with the four of us," Blondie added. "But there's only room for four and Elsie has been wanting to get her sister in if one of us should move out."

Celeste could imagine the fun it would be to live with three other girls of her own age, but the idea was impossible so long as her father was at home.

"Daddy needs me," she explained. "He's been terribly upset since my mother died. I wouldn't have the heart to desert him."

She stopped on her way home from work to purchase his favorite chops. Secure in the promise of $5 more a week, she could afford to be

EINSTEIN WILL ARRIVE TODAY

Famed Scientist 'Terrified' On Eve of Landing

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
Universal Service Special Radio
(Copyright 1930, by Universal Service, Inc.)

S. S. BELGENLAND, Dec. 10.—For four days, beginning tomorrow at 8 a. m. when this ship reaches quarantine, the most nervous man in the vicinity of New York City will be Professor Albert Einstein, author of the theory of relativity.

The solitude which has marked Professor Einstein's passage from Antwerp to New York will be blasted when ship news reporters, interviewers, photographers and news-reel cameramen come down the bay the greet the Belgenland and its distinguished passenger.

Fifteen minutes, according to the calculations of Frau Einstein, who guards her husband's peace jealously, will be sufficient for the questions of news gatherers, and at the same time not enough to ruffle the calm and dignity of the great, but terrified, physicist.

Stay on Liner

From the time the Belgenland docks at the foot of West Nineteenth street until 10 o'clock Monday morning, when she is scheduled to put out for San Diego, Calif., via the Panama canal, the Einsteins do not contemplate venturing from the protection the liner affords.

Nevertheless, there is the possibility that the professor will be whisked away from the Belgenland secretly by friends. He has many friends prominent in New York circles, and he may visit them over the week-end, doging reporters and photographers on the way.

Frau Einstein has arranged for quarters aboard the ship to be used throughout the four-day stay in America's busiest port, for the professor is fearful lest he be besieged by interviewers and the curious should he attempt to take up temporary residence in a hotel or with friends.

Arrangements Barred

Professor Einstein, although wishing in every way to evade the official welcome New York usually accords to distinguished visitors, is at the same time anxious not to give offense. This, it is understood, has precluded any arrangements which might have been made to take his party off the liner to a special craft as is customary.

When the Belgenland departs on Monday, Professor and Frau Einstein and his secretaries will remain aboard until the ship reaches San Diego. Here they will be met by Dr. Robert A. Millikan, of the Wilson observatory at Pasadena, who will be the noted scientist's host during his stay in the West. New York will not see Professor Einstein again until March, when he sails on his return to Berlin.

board Tuesday night were T. J. Waggoner Jr., first vice president; Augustus L. Hecht, second vice president; Paul Hines, third vice president, and Alvah Conner, treasurer.

Wilburn Page, secretary was re-elected to his office.

Mr. Waggoner is a local oil operator and has served for the past year in the capacity of chairman of the Junior chamber of commerce social meetings committee. Mr. Hecht is secretary of the Bridwell Oil company, serving the past year as chairman of the political education committee and is credited with being responsible last year for 100 new members of his organization. Paul Hines is associated with the Hines mortuary and has served as chairman of the membership committee, which, under his leadership achieved for the local Junior chamber of commerce the highest per capita membership of any organization of its kind in the United States. Mr. Conner is credit manager of the American Refining properties, serving the past year as vice chairman of the welcome newcomers committee.

Board of Directors

The directorate, including Henry Penix, T. J. Waggoner Jr., Floyd Randel, Pat Hardage, Joe A. Boy, 13, Held Here for Horse Theft

Accused Youth Escapes Officers Four Times

A 13-year-old youngster, wanted here for horse theft, was back in the juvenile ward of the county jail Wednesday night after he had wheedled his way out and then evaded the grasp of Charlie Gant, six-foot deputy sheriff, in the afternoon.

It was the boy's fourth escape from the law in two days. Three times Tuesday he outwitted Fort Worth officers who were holding him for James A. McDonald, juvenile officer here. He was recaptured each time, apparently more adept in obtaining than in keeping his freedom. Mr. McDonald brought him back here and within a few hours he had used his wits and his feet to get away again.

When Mr. Gant took another prisoner to the juvenile ward Wednesday afternoon, the suspected horse thief started his wiles.

"Mr. McDonald locked me up for fighting and said he would let me out at 4 o'clock. Do you suppose he has forgotten?" he asked.

"Come along and we'll see. I'll take you to his office," the officer said, influenced also by the fact that the new prisoner and the old were already on the verge of a scrap.

But the officer and the boy didn't get to the juvenile office in the courthouse basement together. Somewhere between the ward and the office, the lad disappeared.

He was rearrested about 10 o'clock Wednesday night by city policemen.

FORT SILL GUN SCHOOL STAYS

Artillery Camp at Lawton Made Permanent

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., Dec. 10.—All Lawton was jubilant Wednesday over a message received late Wednesday afternoon from Senator Elmer Thomas at Washington which stated that Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley has just signed the order permanently locating the field artillery school at Fort Sill.

The army board selected last spring to recommend the permanent location after investigation various posts, particularly Fort Sill and Camp Bragg of North Carolina, recommend Fort Sill but the order designating Fort Sill was not signed until Wednesday.

Fort Sill is now officially designated and strenuous endeavor will be made to secure an appropriation of substantial size for permanent improvements from the present congress. Heavy artillery now stationed at Camp Bragg is expected to be rolling toward Fort Sill in the near future. A $10,000,000 permanent improvement program with plans and specifications complete is now on file with the department at Washington.

Mrs. Snider Heads Group to Choose City Benefactors

Mrs. C. W. Snider was elected Wednesday to the chairmanship of the committee composed of representatives of all civic organizations of the city to receive nominations for the selection of Wichita Falls' two most valuable citizens during 1930.

Some six or eight nominations were received during the meeting of the committee which was held in the directors room of the City National bank and discussion was heard by the group as to the qualification of the nominees.

The selection of the two most valuable men to Wichita Falls during 1930 is being sponsored by the Advertising club, which will present to the honored men loving cups, one to the man judged to have given the greatest material service and one to the man who has contributed greatest through personal effort. In 1929 Frank Kell received the cup for the first service and A. E. Kelly the cup for the greatest personal service.

The several nominations received Wednesday will not be made public at the present, Mrs. Snider said, stating that it is urged that private citizens send in the names of men whom it is thought have contributed to the welfare of the city in measures to entitle them to the honors being bestowed. Individual nominations from citizens will receive the same consideration and deliberation as nominations made by the committee, Mrs. Snider said.

A second meeting of the committee will be held on Jan. 6, it was announced. The group will make final selections for the award which will be made in January. The committee is composed of the following persons: Mayor Walter Nelson Jr., Roscoe Staton, Dr. A. F. Leach, R. E. Shepherd, Rev. H. T. Wood, J. S. Bridwell, Mrs. Newton Maer, J. W. Cantwell, N. M. Clifford, Walter K. Campbell, Mrs. G. R. Ellis, S. S. Disbrow, Frank Cripliver, R. D. Kennedy, M. T. Junker, Ed Howard, C. A. Spragins Jr., Herbert Voelcker, Mrs. C. W. Snider, Mrs. I. R. Sheldon, Tariton Morrow, Jouette Bonner, Jerry Vinson, J. W. Lyle and W. S. Abbott.

Juvenile Officer Nabs 'Red' From Oklahoma

"Red," whose address is "Oklahoma," and whose age is 12 years, is in the juvenile ward of the county jail, and Juvenile Officer James A. McDonald is looking for the rest of his name and some details about his address. The boy, red-headed and freckled faced, won't tell.

"Red" says he came to Wichita Falls Wednesday to catch a glimpse of Santa Claus, but he spent the hour of the parade in jail instead. From his pockets were taken a collection of stolen articles ranging from a ring to a dog collar. He was arrested with the ring, the collar, two fancy penells, a pocket knife, a couple of pipes, a colorful cigaret holder and a miniature dictionary in McCrory's store.

The juvenile officer hopes the name and the description will bring him word of the boy's identity and home.

IN DEMAND EVERYWHERE

For sale everywhere!

And why is it for sale everywhere? What has been the reason for the tremendous continuous demand for this medical product? Aspirin is today the most popular of all medicines and St. Joseph's Pure Aspirin is the largest selling aspirin in the world for ten cents because the medical profession and the public alike have learned they can depend on its purity and its conformity to every government standard. Over nine million boxes of St. Joseph's Pure Aspirin are sold a year and thousands of people have learned it is unnecessarily extravagant to pay more than ten cents for one dozen five grain tablets of pure aspirin. Purity plus economy keeps St. Joseph's Pure Aspirin "on sale everywhere" because it is in demand everywhere pure aspirin is needed.

School Fight Goes To Court

Wheeler Re-Opening Battle Awaits Decision

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 10. (UP)—The three-month fight to force the reopening of Wheeler school, in the heart of the city oil field, was carried to district court toay.

The school has been closed since September when the state fire marshal ruled an oil well drilling on the playground constituted an undue fire hazard. Hundreds of pupils have attended other schools.

A month ago 800 pupils and patrons went on a strike in protest to the closing of the school.

One of the suits seeks cancellation of the Century Petroleum company's lease on the school ground and an order prohibiting completion of the well. The other suit asks a mandamus writ forcing the school board to open the school.

generous. He was not at home, but she knew he would not stay away long when it was so near dinner time. She flew about the apartment, which after its Sunday cleaning was not so dismal as usual; put a fresh cloth on the table, a bowl of oranges in the center, and broiled the chops to a perfection worthy of Dolores. But her father did not come.

Not until then did Celeste become worried. She ran to the bedroom and tried the handle of the door. It was not locked and it swung open to reveal a room barren of everything which had belonged to Russell Graham.

Her mother's things, with the exception of the tin box of money, had been left undisturbed. On the dresser was a note written incongruously on a sheet of Dolores' pale pink stationery.

"I'm going north to see if I can't find work. At least I won't be on your hands any longer and I'll be away from L. A.

"If you don't get a job, you'd better give up the apartment and go to stay with Annette. Her mother can look after you and you can pay for your room and board as soon as you find something.

"Don't worry about me!

"Daddy.

Nothing could have indicated his complete self-absorption more than the fact that he thought it possible for Celeste to live at Annette's. He hadn't even noticed that their friendship had not continued. Utterly selfish, he had taken Dolores' savings and left his daughter to manage for herself.

True, he had never been much of a financial asset. Even in the days when Dolores was alive he had done nothing but pay the rent. Yet he was her father, and as such Celeste had felt he stood between her and complete loneliness. Now she would have no one. Bereft of both father and mother, the girl flung herself on the bed and wept heartbrokenly.

Yet it was not for the father who had just deserted her that she longed, but for Dolores. If Dolores had lived, this would never have happened. She would have kept him cheerful and contented. Celeste could not believe he would not be sitting in his corner under the imitation parchment-shaded light reading the Evening Herald. If only she might wake to find it was all a dream and hear her mother singing as she darted about the kitchen.

Fumbling in the drawer for a handkerchief, her fingers touched the square of green chiffon which had been found the night of the murder. Celeste knew it had never belonged to Dolores. She held it in her hand, trying to visualize the sort of person who would have cerried it and, strangely enough could think of no one but Janine Wilson.

Would a person who intended to commit murder carry a frivolous chiffon handkerchief to the scene of the crime?

Celeste threw the handkerchief from her with aversion. She knew whoever had killed Dolores and Dr. James Fenton had come to that office without a weapon, since it was his own automatic which had fired the fatal shots. Some one besides her mother must have had a key to that inner office which the scrubwoman entered at 11 o'clock.

Unutterably confused and depressed as always when she attempted to solve it, Celeste returned to the dining room, but the smell of food sickened her. How was she to endure night after night in that lonely apartment? How was she to pay for it even if she could endure it? If only Blondie would insist that she come to live with her friends!

She put the lamb chops in the cooler and ate some bread and milk. She couldn't afford to be sentimental. Probably when his money was gone her father would return. His hazy notion of "finding work up north" might prove to be as illusory as most of his ideas. She told herself there was no use to worry about him, but tears were gathering again in her eyes.

"He was so helpless—so absolutely down and out"—

Suddenly, in spite of her resolution not to cry any more, her head was on the table and she was sobbing like a deserted child. Outside was the noise of the parking station. From next door came the sound of the radio. Everyone else in the world semed to be busy and happy. But she was alone—And although she repeated the beloved name over and over again, the one person who had never refused to come to her assistance lay cold and unheeding.

It was in the midst of this hysterical sobbing that the telephone rang.

When you put anti-freeze in your radiator put SOCONY in your crankcase!

THE moment it starts to get real cold, precaution tells you to put alcohol or some special anti-freeze solution in your radiator to keep it from freezing. What about the oil in your crankcase? Are you neglecting this most vital part of your motor?

Ordinary motor oils become sluggish and freeze stiff when the thermometer hovers around zero. Result: the motor is hard to turn over, unnecessary strain is put on the driving mechanism and crankshaft . . . the battery is exhausted through prolonged starting.

With the new Socony in your crankcase, things are different. You step on the starter and your motor turns over instantly . . . this new motor oil flows freely and lubricates at zero! Your motor doesn't labor . . . your battery isn't run down, forcing frozen oil into circulation.

The new Socony is as essential to comfortable, economical winter driving as anti-freeze solution is to your radiator. When you put anti-freeze in your radiator, by all means remember to put SOCONY in your crankcase!

Health and Diet Advice

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS NOT A RELIABLE FOOD STANDARD

For many years it has been my contention that the final proof of the value of a food is not in the test tube of a laboratory but in the living bodies of human beings and animals.

Only a few years ago food chemists had arrived at the conclusion that the human body needed certain food substances for its nutrition, such as proteins, fats, carbohydrates and minerals. These were the only substances that the chemists had been able to detect in foods. Other scientists, believing that proof is better than theory, fed rats and guinea pigs on apparently balanced rations of proteins, carbohydrates, fats and mineral elements and the animals died within a very short time. Thousands of experiments were used to prove that something was lacking in these foods even though the missing elements could not be detected by any known chemical method.

This new method of examining foods by observing their effects upon living animals is called the biological method of food analysis. It has resulted in the discoveries of the vitamins, the effects of the different mineral elements upon the body, the great difference between the proteins of various foods, and many other facts about foods. The discoveries of chemists about foods are very important, but they should not be regarded as conclusive until tested by biological analysis.

When I first became interested in the healing art, about 25 years ago, I noticed the many babies were affected with scurvy and rickets, inflammation of the eyes, digestive disorders, and malnutrition. Nearly all of the babies so affected were artificially fed—a few were nursed, but a relatively small number. Naturally, the only conclusion was that something was wrong in their diets. The babies most severely affected were those living on cereals, gruels, sugar and either boiled or skimmed milk. I thought that the cereals and boiled milk were at fault and told mothers to avoid the cereals and to give only raw milk.

The babies did much better on this diet, but still there was something lacking because the babies did not thrive quite as well as when nursing. After a number of experiments I found that when orange juice was used with cow's milk the babies fairly thrived and often did much better than when they were nursed. The reason for this was not apparent at the time, but the particular value was that this diet really worked for babies. The reason became apparent in later years when the vitamins were discovered by the biological experiments, such as McCullom, Funk, Eijkman, Mendel, Hopkins, Steenbock and many others.

The fresh orange juice contains vitamins A, B and C, and fresh whole milk contains large amounts of vitamin A and vitamin B, but not so much of vitamin C. The cereal and milk diet was deficient because vitamin A was absent, producing an improper development and inflammation of the eyes; vitamin B was absent, producing a lack of growth, digestive disorders and nervousness; vitamin C was absent, producing scurvy, improper teeth formation and a lack of resistance to infectious diseases.

Biological experiments are still being conducted and new discoveries are being made. It is quite likely that some more very important discoveries will soon be made about vitamins, mineral elements and the food combinations for the greatest efficiency. The point I wish to make in this article is that practical observation is more important than theory and that the alimentary tract is the final test tube.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Double Coxa Vara

Question: Mrs. K. L. asks: "Will you please tell me the meaning and cause of, also remedy for double coxa vara?"

Answer—Double coxa vara means two bent hips, caused by a bending downward of the neck of the femur, usually the result of rickets. In children the treatment is largely dietetic, to overcome the rickets; also, manipulation of various kinds is good. But with adults there is not very much hope of improvement. The only remedy would be a surgical operation, which is quite serious.

Baby's Teeth

Question: W. H. T. writes—"My baby 2 years old has 15 teeth, but there are two milk teeth that will not come through. Why is that, and should the gums be lanced?"

Answer—Do not be too quick to lance the gums. The full set of milk teeth do not all come through until the child is about 3 years of age. If you will give the baby plenty of greens and milk he will be sure to develop a good set of teeth.

Constipation and Water Drinking

Question: H. F. writes—"I drink quarts of water a day, and still I am constipated. I thought it was necessary to drink lots of water to overcome this trouble. What is your advice?"

Answer—I am sure that the drinking of large quantities of water is often one of the causes of constipation and therefore cannot assist in its cure. If you drink more liquid than the body requires, the intestines are discouraged in throwing out their lubricating fluids, and the result appears to be a gradual drying up of the intestinal fluids. To cure constipation, eat plenty of greens, exercise more, and cut down on the starches.

TALE OF WOE POURS FORTH FROM LAIR OF SLATON TIGERS

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

Now listen, folks it is the duty of this newspaper to tell the truth, and our correspondents are very conscientious about that. But if I catch a single Olney person believing what the Slaton story on this page says, there's going to be a big fight somewhere on the western front. Our Slaton correspondent informs us that tears are flowing in Slaton, and gloom as thick as bologney sausage hangs o'er the town, because the citizens don't feel their team can possibly whip the Olney Cubs.

Alright, Olney mates, you can read that if you want to, but first go down to Blackie Williams' hot dog joint and grab a salt shaker and jostle down a few grains. Mind you, our Slaton correspondent is doing his best to report the truth. No doubt Slaton officials actually did say they expected to be whipped, and our operative merely wrote what the officials said.

But don't you believe for a minute Slaton officials are all that heartsick. That stuff sounds like Knute Rockne, who sheds crocodile tears before a big game, lamenting that his team is outclassed, and then comes out with a big smile when the Ramblers win by about 50 touchdowns.

Slaton isn't all that weak. Don't fool yourselves, Olney mates. Last year Lubbock had one aitch of a time whipping Slaton 7 to 0, and Coach Henry Frnka of Lubbock told me over the telephone last night that Slaton has a stronger team this year than they had last season. No wonder they are going into class A next year. A team that can hold Lubbock to one touchdown ought to be in the Southwest conference.

Yes sir, I've learned a lot about Slaton the last few days. For one thing, I've learned that Slaton high is not putting out much about the strength of their players. Attention Coach Acker—I want you to get all of this. Slaton plans to journey to Olney and take the Cubs by surprise. Unless you have scouted Slaton thoroughly, you had better watch out. Information about their star players is absolutely nil. It's bottled up. That Slaton bunch is pointing for the Olney game just as much as I'm pointing for my vacation, which, alas, is still about two weeks off.

They report that their players are all in fine shape. Great news, that. It's in every report that ever comes from a coach. He's willing to tell you his boys are in fine shape, but what players form the main stem of the team, how heavy are the men on an average, where is the spearhead, as Talbot says, of the offensive department? These things are secrets, at least to me. Coach Acker, if you know these secrets, all is well. If you don't, warn those Cubs to get their eyes open.

I don't know whether this is accurate or not, but I have it that the Slaton players outweigh the Cubs about five or six pounds per man.

A week ago I thought the Olney Cubs would get their first real test of the year when they played Nocona. How I wish that had been true! But it wasn't. If that Nocona game was a test, then it was a kindergarten test. Olney next Friday will face its first real opposition, and the Cubs stand a darned good chance of getting their ears licked down.

There is one thing, and one thing alone, that stirs Olney to confidence that its team will win, and that is the feeling that the Cubs have better coaching than has Slaton. It is the feeling that Coach Acker has so trained his men that they can withstand a heavier attack.

It is that same feeling that makes the Rambler a howling supporter of Olney. The Cubs may be outclassed, but I believe that deep down in their noodles they know what to do with these hefty favored teams. Olney will win if the Cubs stick to their jobs, remember what their mentor has been drilling into them these many months, and cast out all signs of over-confidence. In regard to the latter, I don't see how a single man on the team can be overconfident. If an Olney citizen ever catches a Cub feeling over-confident before Friday's game, said citizen should give said Cub a punch in the nose then and there.

Olney will win if the Cubs forget they ever won a game, and do the things Acker has taught them. Not otherwise.

Culture in the Corner

Well, I've been gettin' my voice oiled up the last few days, for next week, on Dec. 16, the cultured people will observe the anniversary of old Beethoven's birth, and us boys of the Rambler's corner quartet plan to get together after work, along about midnight, uplift our throats to the sky and sing "Ivan Skavinsky Skivar," or some appropriate tune that will let the public know that we appreciate Beethoven, but have awful voices.

Now I might be crude, and I might have picked Breckenridge to beat Amarillo, but I do like old Beethoven. True, every now and then I become so low as to play jazz tunes. On the way back from Nocona last week a bunch of us on the special train raised the devil. There were two boys armed with clarinets, while yours truly performed with equal distaste on the trumpet and the bass horn. Some girls sang and generally drowned out the efforts of us amateur Beethovens. Aside from these atrocious excursions into jazz, I'm quite a music lover. If you don't know or understand Beethoven I'm ashamed of you, and also I feel sorry for you. If you want to mend your ways I'll lend you some records. I have Beethoven's fifth and third symphonies and also his concerto for the violin, to say nothing of some of his minor works. Come hear them and then you can celebrate the gent's birthday with more understanding. We'll even let you join the Rambler's corner quartet and sing "Ivan Skavinsky Skivar" with us on the night of Dec. 16.

TEAM DOESN'T EXPECT TO WIN

Cubs' Regional Rivals Are Training for Game

By L. A. WILSON
Record News Correspondent

SLATON, Texas, Dec. 10.—Coach Paul W. Wright gave his purple-jerseyed Slaton High Tigers a light workout Monday afternoon and heavier ones Tuesday and Wednesday as part of the week's preparation for the clash with the Olney High Cubs at Olney on Friday afternoon to determine the regional grid championship for districts 1, 2, 3 and 4, class B.

Wright said his men are all practically in perfect condition again, despite their recent injuries. Savage, whose position is right guard, has recovered from a leg injury.

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Texas, Dec. 10.—Officials for the Olney-Slaton game Friday will be Dutch Meyers, referee; John Roach, umpire; Rags Matthews, head linesman; and Earl Dayvault, field judge, according to announcement by B. C. Shulkey, superintendent of the Olney schools, today.

Johnson, right halfback, and Rucker, fullback, have each overcome the effects of bad knees, caused by their participation in recent difficult games. Coach Wright says he expects all of his men to be fit and fine for the battle with Olney.

Sad, Sad Story

But, as to the possible outcome of that Slaton-Olney fracas, Wright is inclined to be dubious of a victory for Slaton. He thinks the Olney Cubs have the edge on the Tigers, according to available dope and their season's record. This opinion is largely that of local fans, too.

But despite the serious doubt existing that Slaton has a chance to win, many fans from Slaton are planning the trek to Olney, largely as a means of expressing their appreciation of the team for what it has already accomplished in winning the bi-district title this season.

Coach Wright started the season with a lot of green material, but he has whipped his men into shape. The team is well-coached and has made a consistent record throughout the season. Fourteen games have been played, eight of them conference tilts, including the final district game and the bi-district battle with Dalhart.

The Tigers' scoring record in these conference clashes follow: Slaton 34, Idalou 0; Slaton 34, Tahoka 0; Slaton 12, Lamesa 0; Slaton 31, Brownfield 0; Slaton 31, Ralls 0; Slaton 26, Spur 6; Slaton 14, Littlefield 7; Slaton 7, Dalhart 0.

Among the non-conference games played, Colorado beat the Slaton eleven, 7 to 0; Snyder downed the Slaton team, 12 to 6, and Slaton defeated Lockney, 12 to 0. Snyder won the bi-district title last week.

They Finish Strong

This record is considered by grid fans of the district to be a most remarkable one, in view of the fact that Slaton was thought sure to be a weak contender when the season started.

However, the Tigers' record for several years has been just—that start out badly and finish strong. In the past four years, the team has won two bi-district titles and in each of the other two seasons they finished as district runners-up. In 1927, Slaton trounced Floydada to win the district, and then defeated Canyon high team, 31 to 5, for the bi-district flag. In 1928, the Slaton team lost to Post, 19 to 0, and Post was acclaimed the district winner that year. Last year, Lamesa won her first championship in the district, surprising the Tigers with a 32 to 14 defeat.

Even as far back as 1924 and 1925, Slaton was winning district grid championships in class B, and ever since that time the Tigers have had strong support of football fans here.

The bi-district victory over Dalhart was an upset in the minds of local fans, knowing that Dalhart's goal line had not been crossed this year, and that they boasted an imposing scoring record. But Dalhart was unable to show her usual form, or else the Tigers had the Wolves outpointed in every department. But for a muddy field and some bad breaks, the Tigers would probably have downed the Dalhart team 20 to 0 instead of 7 to 0, according to opinions of expert eye witnesses.

Ignorant of Cubs

Little is known of the Olney Cubs, except that they have shown themselves to be a powerful aggregation, sweeping aside all opposition and becoming bi-district champs. The 51 to 14 decision they won over Nocona last Friday has impressed Slaton fans with the fact that the Tigers will meet the hardest opponents of the season when they face the Cubs at Olney next Friday. Slaton fans are trying to develop that kind of grid philosophy that will enable them to witness the Tigers take a spanking without it causing too much grief for the fans. If such a philosophy can be formed, fans believe it will ease the pain considerably—if the spanking is administered.

As a result of the consistent record made this season and in past years by the Tigers, the executive committee of class A, district 1, voted at Amarillo last Saturday night to offer Slaton a berth in class A for the next two years, making 10 teams in that district. The board of trustees and other school officials here accepted the offer Monday night, and Slaton will enter class A athletics next season for a two-year period.

The committee in its Amarillo session voted to divide the district into two sections, five teams to each section. In each division the teams will play a round robin series, winners of the two divisions to meet on Thanksgiving day or by the Tuesday following in each season, to settle the district championship.

Since Slaton has accepted the class A berth, the Tigers next year will be up against Lubbock, Plainview, Pampa and Amarillo. The five teams in the other division will be Wichita Falls, Vernon, Childress, Quanah and Electra.

Team Drills Plays

The light workout Tuesday afternoon, including drills on various plays that have featured the team's performance during the season. Wright said that his men are showing up fine physically, much better than had been expected after recent hard games. The team played five crucial tilts within 16 days recently.

The Slaton coach said his team's drills this week would not be strenuous at any time. An effort will be made to strengthen the main weak points and have the boys trained for coordinated play when they meet the Cubs at Olney.

The Slaton eleven is not a one-man or two-man team, but has shown up in recent games as a well-oiled machine, every man playing his part well.

Noted for its clean play and sportsmanship, the Slaton team has held the reputation for several years for being one of the cleanest grid aggregations in West Texas. They have, at times, shown their ability to cope successfully with teams that were inclined to use unfair and unsportsmanlike tactics, however. The Olney eleven is believed to be a clean bunch, too, local fans say, and no difficulty is expected between the elevens along this line.

Team Leaves Today

It was Coach Wright's plan Tuesday to leave here Thursday morning with 23 men en route to Olney, reaching there in the afternoon of that day, resting overnight and being fresh and ready for the battle Friday afternoon.

Plans were proceeding for the Slaton High band and the high school girls' pep squad to leave here Friday morning by motor caravan to attend the Slaton-Olney fracas in the afternoon. The band has 25 members and the pep squad about 65. The band and the pep bunch wear purple and white uniforms, these being the high school's colors.

A number of fans are also planning a trip to Olney, but how many would go, or whether the band and pep squad would go or not was largely dependent on weather conditions. The trip by automobile is the only practical method of journeying to Olney since railroad routes are not direct between the two cities. A long, roundabout journey northward or southward is the only means of reaching Olney by rail from Slaton.

Fans continued today to make predictions that the Tigers will take a licking at the hands of the Olney crew Friday afternoon. They didn't tell this to the Tigers, but it was the talk about town in hotel lobbies and drug stores, wherever groups of fans congregated.

Hopes have been raised slightly by Wright's announcement that Savage, Johnson and Rucker, who have recently been nursing injuries, would be as good as new when the whistle blows Friday afternoon. But even this encouragement did not convince Slaton grid lovers that the Tigers had heavy chances to capture a victory.

Johnson, right half, saw less than 10 minutes' service in the Dalhart go last Friday, and both Rucker and Savage did only part time duty. This treatment has hastened the boys' recoveries.

The announcement Monday night that Slaton High will enter class A, district one, athletics next season for two years was received enthusiastically by most of Slaton fandom, although a few feel that the Tigers will have hard sledding if they are able to get anywhere at all in class A. The try is worth it, though, they believe. And, considering the class B record of the team since 1924, it may be that the Slaton gridmen will be able to hold their own fairly well, even with the teams from the larger schools, such as Amarillo, Wichita Falls and Lubbock.

Guvner Dan Goes A-Fishin'

Moody Tells by Tug on the Line What Kind of Fish He's Snared

GALVESTON, Texas, Dec. 10.—Gov. Dan Moody of Texas is another of the nation's statesmen who resorts to fishing for relaxation. A day's angling, he says, will do more to drive way worry than a week at any other sport.

Governor Moody is a frequent visitor at Galveston, where he comes to fish with friends. His trips, which he generally makes on weekends, are usually planned on the spur of the moment, according to Robert A. Lyons Jr., prominent Galveston business man who has been a member of the governor's fishing parties on numerous occasions.

The youthful executive uses an East-Texas-Cutty-Hunk fish line with a long Louisiana cane-stalk for a rod. Tis fondness for this type of tackle dates back to his early boyhood days in East Texas, he says.

According to Mr. Lyons, the governor can fish for six hours straight without pause. He can tell by the tug of his line with a great degree of accuracy what kind of fish he has hooked. His line seems to hold an especial lure for speckled trout or red fish, his friends say.

The governor and his party, however, are not the only ones to enjoy fishing here. The beaches and piers in this vicinity teem with male and female anglers of all ages who report excellent catches. According to expert fishermen here, this season is one of the best for many years for trout, mackerel and tarpon catches.

Lamesa Basketeers Train for Opening

Special to The Record News.

LAMESA, Texas, Dec. 10. — According to Coach F. T. McCollum, the high school basket ball squad is going through stiff workouts at this time, in preparation for the opening of the cage season here, which will be shortly after the holidays. Much good material is available this year, and the coach expects to turn out a championship team.

Spur Makes Last Home Stand Friday

Special to The Record News.

SPUR, Texas, Dec. 10.—Canceling a game with McCamey and moving a game with Post all-stars up to Friday, the Spur Bulldogs on that date will make their last home appearance of the season.

Post will bring the team that won the regional championship in 1928 to Spur with stars of 1929, seven of them all district players, Captain Brode Puckett, Jim Hahn and C. W. Barrett. Spur's three all-district players will play their final home game.

Spur will end the season Dec. 19 at Lubbock against an all-star team of former Lubbock High players.

Paralysis Threatens Injured Grid Player

CORSICANA, Texas, Dec. 10. (UP) —Paul Carruth, 20, candidate for captain of the Weatherford Junior college football team next year, probably will be permanently paralyzed from the waist down as a result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident Saturday, physicians said today. Jake Cawley, 18, was killed in the accident. The youths were en route to a football game here when the accident occurred.

TUFFY FAVORED OVER WILLIE

Winner May Be New Champ of Heavyweights

By DIXON STEWART
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Dec. 10. — Max Schmeling's successor as world heavyweight champion probably will be decided Friday at Chicago stadium when Young Stribling and Tuffy Griffiths meet in a 10-round decision bout.

The ability of these two to defeat Schmeling has never been questioned seriously and with the National Boxing association ruling that the champion must defend his title against the winner the bout has assumed championship proportions.

Wagering Is Light

It is the first important heavyweight attraction since Schmeling acquired the title on a foul six months ago, but despite its importance, has attracted less wagering than any major fight of recent years. Stribling has been established as a 2 to 1 favorite with the "wise money" loath to take sides.

Past records of the two fighters have made close followers of the sport wary over backing their opinion. Spectators who will pay more than $100,000 to witness the show, which is a charity project for the Illinois State Unemployment commission, expect the bout to provide the best scrap since Jack Dempsey ruled the heavyweight class, but there is a strong possibility that it may be "another one of those things."

Both Stribling and Griffiths are "in and outers" and unless each of them happens to be "in" Friday, their fight may develop into a tiresome clutching affair which would eliminate both from further consideration as a title contender.

Back Against Big Ones

Stribling, generally recognized the best heavyweight of the day, has turned in many unsatisfactory showings. His quick knockouts of Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott make him a favorite but it is impossible to overlook other performances which won him the name of "Willie the Clutch." His two most recent appearances against Arthur Dekuh and Kayo Christner did little to enhance his reputation and he is faced with the necessity of defeating Griffiths decisively to retain his standing. In the past Stribling has failed when faced with a big chance and this has given Griffiths supporters confidence regarding Friday's bout.

Griffiths, unlike Stribling, always has done his best work against topnotchers. Many second raters have made Tuffy look bad, but he never has failed to win decisively from men rated as topnotchers in the class.

Christians and Temple Basket Ball Teams Win

The First Christian and Jewish Temple basketeers emerged victorious in court tournaments held at the Floral Heights Presbyterian church. The First Christians defeated the First Southern Presbyterians, 48 to 18 and the Grant Street Methodists were defeated by the Jewish Temple, 13 to 11. First Methodist forfeited to the First Baptists and the First Christians took on the First Methodists in a practice game to round out the program, the Christians winning 24 to 23. Scores:

Subsidization Sleuth to Report To Texas Athletic Conferences Today

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Dec. 10.—Some 25 colleges and universities of the Southwest, including members of Texas' three major athletic conferences, are scheduled to sit up and receive their own private "Carnegie report" at the annual meeting of the Association of Texas Colleges here tomorrow.

Major John Griffith, official of the Big Ten conference, who has spent the better part of a year investigating the conduct of athletics in Texas, has announced ready to tell whether there exists such a thing as subsidization within the Southwest conference or the Texas Interscholastic Athletic association. Officials of the three organizations voted a year ago to retain Major Griffith for the purpose, and he is reported to have done a thorough job.

Sleuth's Report Secret

There has been no inkling of the nature of the report to be made by the visiting sleuth, but there have been rumors that he would make several important recommendations for the future guidance of business managers and coaches. Few observers believe Major Griffith will make any sensational disclosures; but there is a chance that he will. Hence the consuming interest in his appearance before the athletics fathers tomorrow.

While the Griffith report stands out as the most important feature of the annual gathering, which will attract delegates from a 1,000-mile radius, there is a deal of interest attached to a decision up before the faculty committee of the Southwest conference. The committee will, in effect, either sanction the annual Dixie classic here Jan. 1 between all-stars of the Southwest and Midwest, or hand it a jolting blow.

Last year the ruling body voted, 4 to 3, to bar seniors from participating in post-season football bouts on pain of being ineligible for other sports the remainder of the term. President Joe Utay of the Dixie classic has conducted a vigorous campaign toward having the rule rescinded and has been assured it will be brought to another vote tomorrow. He has further assurance that the University of Texas, which favored the edict last year, will switch to the other side this time. Only the one vote is needed to abolish the rule and assure the future success of the charity game.

Stars Disregard Rule

Unless the rule is erased, several of the Southwest's outstanding athletes will be ineligible for baseball, basketball and track. They already have accepted invitations to play in the East-West tilt at San Francisco, and others have voiced intention of taking in the Dixie classic regardless.

Two floors of the Dallas Athletic club will be given over to the various phases of tomorrow"s sports convention. There will be separate meetings of business managers and directors, football and basket ball coaches, and football and basket ball officials, in addition to the executive session of the three conferences. Basket ball and baseball schedules will be completed and a good start made on 1931 football programs. And there will be the customary array of booths, where anyone interested can see the very latest in sports paraphernalia. The meeting is, withal, quite an event.

A minor topic up for review before the Southwest Faculty committee was the recent ruling on the eligibility of Weldon "Speedy" Mason, Southern Methodist university halfback. The committee doubtless also will receive application from Centenary college and Texas Tech for admission to the Southwest conference. The consensus is that neither will be admitted, no matter how just their claims for recognition. They have tried it before.

Coach Francis Schmidt of Texas Christian university was scheduled to lead basket ball officials in a discussion of the rules, new and old, and Coach Ray Morrison of Southern Methodist was slated to do some football interpreting.

Hawks Open Cage Season at Archer City

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Dec. 10.—The Iowa Park Hawks will journey to Archer City Friday night for their first encounter of the season in basket ball. This week will be the first practice game of the season.

Coach O. H. Stowe is very pessimistic in going into the coming game on the Archer City court and as to the number of new inexperienced men that he has. Many of the most promising men at the beginning of the season have been proven ineligible to play.

No real playing is expected on the part of either team tomorrow night but a continuous drill on the fundamentals that have been taught to the members of the squads.

The Independent team of Iowa Park promises to be the best that has ever been in this vicinity in many years. With many of the outstanding players that have been in the local schools in past years and a few who have tasted of college basket ball. The cage loop has not been completed for the Independents but arrangements are being made to play many of the teams that will be in shape for the current cage season.

SOUTH BEND FETES RAIDERS

Rockne's Team Cheered On Arrival Home

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 10. (AP) —Knute Rockne and his famous Notre Dame troupe of raiders came back to their home stamping ground again today to receive probably the noisiest double barreled ovation ever boomed for an athletic team.

Thousands of people fought and stormed to greet and get a glimpse of the national football champions as they paraded through Chicago's streets; the entire citizenry of South Bend, and the entire student body of Notre Dame shouted themselves hoarse as they ended their epic odyssey here.

Notre Dame and Chicago have held ovations for explorers, celebrities, of every sort and for mighty teams of yesteryear, but few compared with the one given the "Fighting Irish" today.

It resembled somewhat the foray and tumult which greeted the Armistice of the world war. Hundreds of police were powerless to stop the surging throngs, fighting to get to the team that forged its 19th straight victory in two years at the University of Southern California's expense Saturday.

Jacksboro Cage Teams Busy With Opponents

Special to The Record News.

JACKSBORO, Texas, Dec. 10.—The Jacksboro High school basket ball teams played the Graham High school teams last week. The girls' score was, Graham 27, Jacksboro 19. The boys' score was, Jacksboro 29, Graham 14. The boys' game was very interesting, the teams being more evenly matched than the girls. The games were at Graham.

Saturday night the Jacksboro boys played Alvord and the girls played Perrin. Jacksboro won both games, the girls' score ending, Jacksboro 33, Perrin 23. The boys' score was, Jacksboro 39, Alvord 19.

The Jacksboro boys stand an excellent chance to win district championship this year in basket ball. They have Christian, H. K. Turner, J. K. Turner, and Black, all excellent forwards, and Lester, a six-foot-four man at center, and Martin, Felkner, and H. Turner on guards. These are the first string men, and first string substitutes.

The Jacksboro girls play Graham again on their own court Friday, Dec. 13, and the boys play Graham on Friday and go to Alvord on Saturday night.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 10. (AP)—An opening gain in cotton on covering promoted by relatively steady Liverpool cables was followed today by declines which carried prices into new low ground for the season under Southern selling and renewed liquidation. March contracts, after selling at 10.58 early, broke to 10.31, or 16 poins net lower, and closed at 10.34, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 11 to 17 points.

Offerings were not heavy, being mostly in small scattering lots, but the market appeared to be without any aggressive support. And it was said in some quarters that foreign trade orders to buy at limits had been either filled or withdrawn.

Reports that business in the cotton futures market in Alexandria had been suspended by the government cotton commission for a period of 15 days beginning tomorrow, because of the recent severe decline, was not generally mentioned, but may have had an unsettling effect on sentiment. The factors most generally discussed were the unsettled ruuling of the stock market and the apparent falling off in demand.

Liverpool cables reported covering and foreign buying in that market, but said sales of cotton cloths and yarns were below production.

Exports today 17,409, making 3,484,756 so far this season. Port receipts 28,510. U. S. port stocks 4,178,688.

Futures closed quiet, 11 to 17 points lower; spot quiet; middling 10.15.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 10. (AP)—Following an early bulge of 7 to 8 points in sympathy with more favorable Liverpool cables than due, cotton became nervous and reactionary today and prices eased off 20 to 23 points by early afternoon. The decline was attributed to hedging and the transfer of short hedges from Liverpool to American markets, owing to the narrow difference between the markets. After rallying a few point at the end the general market closed steady at net declines for the day of 13 to 19 points.

Liverpool came in 5 penny points better than due and first trades here showed gains of 5 to 8 points. The opening figures proved the highs of the morning. Private cables attributed the rally abroad to foreign buying and shorts covering.

The market soon turned easier, however, and somewhat nervous due to a renewal of long liquidation and an easier stock market and the transferring of short hedges from Liverpool to this side. January traded from a high of 10.30 to 10.10, off 20 points, and March declined from 10.57 to 10.34 down 23 points. These declines carried active months to levels 10 to 14 points under the previous close.

The market continued to ease off in the late trading on rumors of a probable bearish extile report, Wall street selling and the closing for 15 days of the Alexandria, Egypt, market. Active months made new lows at 10.07 for January and 10.30 for March, or 23 to 27 points down from the early highs. There was a slight rally at the end, January closing at 10.35, down 13 points net.

Port receipts 28,510, for week 154,780, for season 6,405,879, last season 6,196,504. Exports 17,359, for week 71,478, for season 3,384,59, last season 3,552,920. Port stocks 4,256,996, last year 2,662,195. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 141,569, last year 161,793. Spot sales at Southern markets 21,629, last year 30,769.

Futures closed steady, 13 to 19 points down:

Fear of 'Something' Holds Stocks In Check to Diminish Trading

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 16. (US)—Another weak market, even fearful of "something" which didn't develop during the session, was witnessed on the stock exchange today. The rumor spread so as to become known to the entire speculative fraternity, yet the market at the very close of the session rallied rather vigorously from the lows, but insufficiently to offset the earlier losses, which for the market as a whole brought prices down virtually to the Nov. 10 lows.

The railroad stocks declined into new low territory, representing for the average highest-grade rail shares the lowest quotations since 1925. Public utility stocks, at the day's low, were below the Nov. 10 final prices, while the industrial stocks closed somewhat above the early November lowest levels.

The industrial news of the day might be classified as a shade in favor of the bullish side, with the U. S. Steel unfilled tonnage report, disclosing an increase of 157,000 tons during November, substantially better than had been forecast. Its influence, however, was offset by a lowering in copper prices, forecast here today.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Dec. 10. (AP)—Demand for corn and sorghums was only fair on the cash grain market today while other grains were hard sales. Estimated receipts: Wheat, 9 cars; corn 3; and sorghums, 8 cars.

No. 1 hard wheat of any protein was probably worth around 82½@83½c, basis delivered Texas common points. Bids and offers on other grains ranged nominally as follows, carloads delivered Texas common points, freight paid:

Corn, No. 2 mixed 84@85c; No. 2 white or yellow 87@88c.

Oats, No. 2 red 47½ to 48½c.

Sorghums—No. 2 Milo per 100 pounds $1.33@1.35; No. 2 kaffir $1.30@1.31.

Dealers also quoted as follows, delivered Texas group one points: No. 2 mixed corn, 82½@83½c; No. 2 white 86@87c; No. 2 yellow 84½@85c. No. 3 white oats 45¾@46¼c, to which add one cent for delivery group three.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 10. (AP)—Corn broke 3 cents a bushel today from an early advance that accompanied an increase of speculative buying of future deliveries. Buying was based on unexepected smallness of receipts and on prospects of rainy weather over the corn belt. However, selling out by early buyers disclosed that the market was minus adequate support.

Corn closed heavy, 1⅝@2¼c lower than yesterday; wheat irregular at ¼c decline to an equal gain, oats ⅜@⅝c down, and provisions unchanged to a set back of 30 cents.

Weakness of securities markets apparently affected late grain selling. Contributing to corn weakness was a report of Argentine corn offered for May arrival in Montreal at as low as 53 cents a bushel, delivered.

Wheat suddenly snapped out of the rut at one stage on indications that government-sponsored agencies had started to buy wheat above quotations at which the market was pegged by farm board allies.

Provisions went lower responsive to downturns in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—March (bid) 79c; May 80c, 81⅝c; July 71¾c, 73⅞c. Corn—December 70¼c, 73¼c; March 73⅝c 76⅜c; May 75½@75⅝c; 78½c; July 76⅝c, 79⅞c.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Dec. 10. (US)—After the effect of the sharp advance in wheat had worn off on the reaction, traders were of the opinion that for the near future such would be the trend on all upturns, inasmuch as buying demand shows no disposition to broaden.

In corn, the increased activity is having its reflection in more active price movements. This in itself is an incentive to increased trading, though locals are of the opinion that outside interest will not increase substantially unless there is a sustained movement upward.

Most of the commission houses are friendly to the corn market, and though advising caution while the market is erratic under influence of the movement to market, recommend purchase on reactions.

Broomhall, in commenting on his agent's surprisingly small estimate of the Australian crop, says that apparently most of the damage to the crop was the result of below average rainfall during September.

MIDWESTERN LIVESTOCK REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 10. (AP) (U.S.D.A.)—Livestock trade around the 11-market circuit was very slow with lower prices prevailing on most all classes. Cattle trade was marked by a slump of 25-50c on short fed steers and yearlings and at some markets finished offerings also shared in the decline. Other killing classes of cattle ruled weak to lower with the in-between grades of light yearlings very difficult to move. A few loads of choice yearling steers in Chicago realized $13.50@13.75, while choice matured steers sold up to $12.75. Short fed offerings cashed down from $10.00 with many sales of medium to good lots considered $1.00 lower than the best time last week. Receipts of cattle were estimated at 42,300.

Hogs were unevenly 15@40c lower with late trade to packers at most centers very slow. The top of $8.25 was paid both at Chicago and St. Louis. Offerings were around 123,600.

The sheep supply numbered around 58,400. Fat lambs were tendered a general decline of 25@50c and some weakness developed on aged stock. Outsiders at Chicago paid up to $8.35 for choice fat lambs and at Omaha shippers on early rounds bought fed Westerns up to $8.20.

GASOLINE TANK STOCKS CLIMB

Crude Runs to Stills Show Drastic Decline

Special to The Record News:

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 10.—In spite of the drastic curtailment in crude runs throughout the Mid-Continent area, gasoline stocks in the division continue to show a gain.

Crude runs in the area show a decrease of 12.5 per cent for the week ending Dec. 5, under the previous week. Kansas lead in the curtailment with a reduction of 24.9 per cent with North Louisiana-Arkansas next, West Texas with Oklahoma in fourth place in the program.

A total of 264,119 barrels of crude oil a day was run in the district against 301,874 barrels for the previous week. Oklahoma continued to lead the state in runs.

The runs by districts were as follows: (figures given below in barrels)

	Last Week	Prev. Week
Oklahoma	98,004	107,958
Kansas	42,032	55,958
North Central Texas	63,999	66,230
West Texas	26,609	30,886
North Louisiana-Arkansas	33,475	40,842
Totals	264,119	301,874

Gasoline stocks in the area showed a gain of 1.9 per cent for the past week or 1,872,000 gallons increase for the districts. Oklahoma lead in the increase with .3 per cent or 2,368,000 gallons while North Louisiana-Arkansas lead in the decrease with 6.9 per cent or 643,000 gallons. Kansas and North Central Texas both show a gain with West Texas also showing a loss.

Production in the area showed a decrease of 8.7 per cent for last week, with the area producing 42,834,000 gallons. Oklahoma lead in the production with 37,668,000 gallons.

Shipments as a whole for the area show a gain of .9 of 1 per cent or a total of 40,862,000 with Oklahoma leading with 13,645,000 gallons.

Stocks of gasoline in the area are as follows: (figures below in thousands of gallons)

	Last Week	Prev. Week
Oklahoma	40,036	37,668
Kansas	18,529	17,773
North Central Texas	29,681	29,447
West Texas	11,184	11,927
North Louisiana-Arkansas	8,672	9,315
Totals	108,102	106,130

Kerosene in the area showed a decrease of 13.7 per cent in production or a total of 4,648,000 gallons produced with Oklahoma in the lead. There is a total of 26,603,000 gallons in stock or an increase of .6 of 1 per cent. Shipments show an increase of 4.2 per cent or a total of 4,482,000 for the area.

Cold weather brought about an increase of 192.7 per cent in the shipments of stove distillate for the entire area or a total of 3,700,000 gallons with Oklahoma far in the lead. Production, however, showed a slump of 13.7 per cent for the Mid-Continent with only West Texas showing a small gain. Stocks, however, despite the heavy shipments show a 12.9 per cent decrease.

Gas oils show an increase both in production and shipments with production leading, which caused a 1.5 per cent increase in the stocks of the area.

Fuel oils, with a increase in shipments of 4.9 per cent, also show a decrease of 7.4 per cent in production and of .7 per cent in stocks for the area.

Crane-Upton Output May Be Cut Sharply

FORT WORTH, Dec. 10. (AP)—If no additional nominations are made for production from Crane and Upton counties before Jan. 1, the district's outlet probably will be cut about 5,000 or 6,000 barrels daily below the present limit of 29,000 barrels daily, according to a statement issued after a meeting of the proration committee held in Fort Worth today.

There are to be no changes in the method of prorating production allowing 12 barrels daily per well plus a percentage of potential above the minimum.

Four pipe lines serve Crane and Upton counties, being Gulf, Humble, Magnolia and Texas.

FARM EXPERT TO VISIT HERE

U. S. Agent to Make Survey On Sweet Clover

M. A. Crosby, representing the bureau of agricultural economics at Washington, D. C., will arrive in Wichita Falls next Monday morning for the purpose of conferring with farmers in this community relative to the growth of sweet clover, County Agent G. C. McGown announced Wednesday.

Mr. Crosby is making a survey of the entire state of Texas, it was said, with reference to potential production of sweet clover. He will interview during his visit here farmers who have been using sweet clover for pasture, hay crop, soil improvement, or seed crops. Mr. McGown will accompany Mr. Crosby on a tour of the county, he said.

Third—But Not False

ANDERSON, Ind.—It's never too late to cut teeth—even the third set of them—according to Hiram Bolton, 87, whose third set of "grinders" are getting along nicely. It's causing Hiram no little trouble, however, to have this curiosity set itself on him, because, as he says, "people literally form lines to have a look at them."

It is bad enough to be "laid up" and suffer from pain and incapacity without having the question of income as burden. Let us explain an additional mental, our accident policies. Call today.

POULTRY SHOW READY TO OPEN

Fine Display of Turnips Also Arranged

Preparations were completed Wednesday for the combined poultry and rabbit show sponsored by the Wichita Valley Poultry association and the turnip exhibit sponsored by the chamber of commerce agricultural committee, both to be staged at the Industrial Mart building, 911 Eighth street, on Dec. 12, 13 and 14, it was announced by those in charge.

According to C. O. Smith, secretary of the poultry association, a large number of entries already received from all over this section of Texas, and from Southern Oklahoma, indicate that the show will present one of the largest and most varied arrays of poultry ever seen in this city.

Entries in the rabbit exhibition also have been numerous, approximating 200, it was said, and the many breeders in this community will see their chosen stock in competition with entries from a wide territory. All entries in both poultry and rabbit sections, it was stated, must be in by 9 a. m. Thursday, Dec. 11.

In addition to numerous cash premiums for winning birds, the Wichita Valley Poultry association will present a silver loving cup for the grand champion turkey in the show, it was announced.

One of the features of the coming industrial display, it was pointed out, will be the exhibition of Wichita county turnips. According to G. C. McGown, county farm demonstrator, this will be the first turnip show ever staged in this section of the country. The follow list of prizes for various turnip entries was announced:

Peck measure—First, $7.50; second, $5; third, $3; fourth, $2; fifth, $1.

Large turnips, (three turnips in each entry)—First, $3; second, $1; third, 50 cents.

Bunch turnips, (three bunches, three turnips each)—First, $3; second, $2; third, $1.

J. N. Sherrill, chairman of the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce, is cooperating with Mr. McGown in preparing the turnip show as a means of revealing to this community one of its most dependable money crops.

Terracing School At Clara Today

Farmers from Wichita and surrounding counties are expected in large numbers at a terracing demonstration to be staged on the O. W. Prechle farm, 1½ miles west of Clara Thursday under the auspices of the agricultural committee of the Burkburnett Chamber of Commerce, according to G. C. McGown, county farm agent, who will supervise the terracing.

The school will begin at 10 o'clock Thursday morning and last throughout the day, Mr. McGown said. Lunch will be served at noon by the home demonstration club of Burkburnett, it was announced. Demonstrations will be given on a 160-acre tract of land which is to be terraced on the Prechle farm. Its location is on the main highway between Electra and Burkburnett, it was stated.

PIONEER TEXAN SPEAKS HERE

Times Getting Better, Says Dr. J. E. Nunn, 80

Reiterating frequently his conviction that "it is better farther on," Dr. J. E. Nunn of Amarillo, introduced as "the Panhandle's first citizen," convinced members of the Optimist club Wednesday noon that genuine optimism may exist even beyond a man's 80th year.

Presented as a surprise feature of the day's program, Dr. Nunn, who for many years was publisher of the Amarillo News, declared his lack of sympathy with "fellows who think the world is fast going to the bow-wows."

"From a superiority of years which can not be challenged by any one in this room, I tell you that road is not getting any rockier, nor the clouds darker. It is better farther on."

Meeting some people, the speaker said, is like entering a damp, dark cellar, while it is equal to entering a room full of bright flowers to meet other individuals.

"Some, don't frown," he said; "encourage, don't discourage; build, don't tear down."

Dr. Nunn was introduced by John Boswell, manager of the chamber of commerce.

Mayor Emory Menefee of Haskell present with Dr. Nunn as guests of the chamber of commerce, talked briefly. Walter Nelson Jr., mayor, commended the Times Publishing company for having sponsored the Santa Claus parade.

Musical entertainment was furnished by Ed Reeder and Don Bright, accompanied by Miss Thelma Adams. Clifford Deaton arranged the musical program. J. L. Randel urged the purchase of Christmas seals now being sold by the Wichita County Tuberculosis association.
