Death threat tape due FBI analysis

Police here say they have now turned their investigation of a threat against District Attorney Ernie Armstrong, received during the capital murder trial of Dorsie Lee Johnson Jr., over to FBI scientists.

The death threat was phoned in to the Snyder Police Department during the final day of the trial Nov. 14.

That call was automatically recorded by equipment at the police station which tapes all incoming and outgoing telephone traffic.

The tape — along with voice tapes of four possible suspects in the case — has been sent to the FBI crime lab in Virginia for voice print analysis.

Investigators are hoping that the analysis will match the voice on the tape of the death threat to the voice of one of the suspects.

The other tapes were secured during routine questioning of trial witnesses and other involved individuals related to the trial.

Murder appeal to be lengthy

By NOBLE B. YOUNG
SDN Staff Writer

The appeal process related to the capital murder conviction of Dorsie Lee Johnson Jr. will likely take from three to five years to complete, court officials say.

Johnson, 19, was sentenced by a district court jury here Nov. 14 to death by lethal injection. He was found guilty of killing an Allsup's convenience store clerk during a robbery of that store March 23.

According to District Attorney Ernie Armstrong, who successfully prosecuted the state's case, the local sentence is just the first step of a three to five year journey through state and federal courts.

Included in this, he noted, could be as many as three to four execution dates set and overturned.

The sentence cannot be executed until all legal avenues of appeal have been exhausted, and Armstrong said this could take up to five years "if every ruling is in the state's favor."

The appeal process begins now with the transferring of trial records to the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals in Austin for review.

That first appeal is mandatory under the capital murder statute and no execution date can be set until the conviction and sentence is affirmed by that court.

Armstrong said the first appeal would likely take a year to a year and a half.

Once the case is affirmed in Austin, Johnson will be brought back to Snyder where he would appear before 132nd District Court officials for the setting of the first execution date.

According to Armstrong, nothing is guaranteed or automatic after the first appeal.

Technically, the defendant could at that time petition the United States Supreme Court for a hearing conditional on that court accepting the case for review.

Armstrong said, however, that Johnson would not likely choose that route due to the fact that if the Supreme Court heard the case and ruled in favor of the state, the appeal process would be over and the execution could be carried out.

He said the more standard procedure for defense attorney's in these cases is to come back from the mandatory appeal and "attack the conviction" via legal action filed in state district court.

Assuming that that appeal was overturned here, they could then appeal the ruling on that writ back to the state court of criminal appeals.

If the application for the writ was overturned in Austin a se-

Ask Us

Q. — How much has the murder trial cost Scurry County?

A. — Some $35,000 to date--mainly involving attorney's fees and expenses related to sequestering the jury. Attorney's fees account for some $25,000 of this. The cost is expected to go substantially higher, however, since the appeals process--which might take up to five years--will constitute the majority of the expense.

Cotton's old rate assessed

The Scurry County Cotton Producer Board has voted to assess the 1986 cotton crop--one which they feel will rival the worst cotton year ever harvested locally--at one-half cent per pound.

This is the same assessment used since local producers okayed "at the gin" charges in a 1984 referendum election.

Simultaneously, the board approved spending just under $20,000 of the funds assessed to date. After these expenses, the fund will contain more than $60,000.

The majority of funds spent, some $17,000, will be paid back to the cotton board's parent organization, the Scurry County Producers Association.

This amount will reimburse the association for money it spent this past year for its boll weevil scouting program.

The remaining $2,500 in expenditures has gone to purchase sprayer equipment which will be used for research on early season insect control, fleahopper control, weed control and other areas of interest to local producers.

Marvin Ensor, county agent, and County Entomologist Deanna Myers will conduct this research.

The cotton board was formed to allow producers to assess themselves and to use these funds to scout and spray cotton insects and to conduct research and educational programs.

While its primary objective is to combat the boll weevil, its funds can be used in other areas affecting cotton production also.

Due to poor yields in the county the past few years, the cotton assessment's total collections have fallen far short of what was projected, noted Ensor Friday.

This year's assessment is not expected to greatly improve this situation, he noted.

Earlier projections for some 14,000 bales of cotton this year have now been downgraded. To date, the county has not produced its first ginned bale of cotton.

Ensor noted that crop in-

COTTON FUNDS USED — Cotton board officials recently approved a $2,500 outlay--money derived from the local "at the gin" assessment on cotton--to purchase this sprayer equipment. Goodfellows again slate Yule project

Beginning with this issue, needy families in Scurry County may apply for a Christmas food package provided annually by the Goodfellows organization.

An application form will be included in the SDN through Dec. 5, the cutoff date for these applications.

Goodfellow planners say they are preparing for a 20 percent increase in the number of individuals to be helped this year.

Because of this, they say, they will be depending more heavily on the donation of staple food items, particularly canned goods.

Again this year, county schools will be assisted in the canned food drive. Each Snyder school campus will be asking students to bring food items, and the Snyder High School Student Council will again be in charge of a food drive at SHS.

Both Hermleigh and Ira schools also annually contribute to the effort.

Donor stations will be set up in local financial institutions for money donations as well.

Applicants for the food package will be screened based upon need. Those chosen will receive a card in the mail notifying them of the distribution point for the food. Only those presenting cards will be given food, project sponsors note.

The distribution itself will be Dec. 20--a Saturday--at the coliseum ag annex.

Ministers here unite for Thanksgiving rite

Rev. John Dorn, pastor of Union United Methodist Church, will offer the sermon for the annual community Thanksgiving service slated Sunday at 7 p.m. in Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

A performance by the Snyder High School Choir, under the direction of Bill Lyon, is scheduled also.

Jackie Hackfeld will provide additional special music. Sam Robertson of First United Methodist Church will lead congregational singing.

In addition, Rev. Miller Robinson, pastor of Colonial Hill Baptist Church, will present the welcome and Rev. Mike Foster, pastor of Bethel Assembly of God, will offer the call to worship and opening prayer.

Rev. Bob Harper, associate pastor of First Baptist Church, will read the Scripture passage.

Rev. James Merrell, pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church, will explain during the service that 50 percent of the offering collected Sunday will be used to assist local needy individuals while the remainder of the funds will aid transients.

The annual service is sponsored by the Snyder Ministerial Alliance.

Pilots group plans board nominations

Members of the Scurry County Pilots Association plan to appear before commissioners Monday to submit three proposed names for nomination to the Scurry County Airport Board.

Commissioners will meet beginning at 10 a.m. in the courthouse.

Jimmy Thompson, president of the association, is listed as spokesman for the pilot's organization.

The airport board is charged with overseeing activities at the local facility. Appointments to it are announced each January by commissioners. The five-member board serves a two-year term.

Three members have terms due to expire at the end of this year--John Lacik, Andy Anderson and Charles Shaw. Other members are Olin Bunch and Seabourn Eicke.

The Pilot's Association, organized approximately two years ago, now has some 22 members, Thompson said.

Other agenda items before the court Monday include a proposal by Duane Force, a representative with the law firm of Gates-Steen, to collect delinquent taxes owed to Scurry County, and a presentation of the county's 1985 audit by Monte West.

In addition, court members will release securities currently held by West Texas State Bank and will discuss submitting $955 as annual membership dues to the Texas Association of Counties.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Isn't it ironic that the hottest item in pro football is called The Refrigerator?"

At least four "inquiring minds want to know."

Two Snyder families are keeping a close watch on the National Enquirer. Neither family is a regular reader of the supermarket weekly, but we predict a sellout when the right issue hits the news stands.

Last summer the Amarillo newspaper ran pictures of Kobe Looney playing in a city park. The first picture showed an Irish Setter kissing Kobe in the face. The subsequent picture showed Kobe reacting to the kiss by making a terrible face.

The feature picture was picked up and distributed over the AP wire service. Recently, the photo department of the National Enquirer called the Amarillo photographer asking permission to reprint the photos. Kobe is now 10 months old.

The parents, Becky and Greg Looney, alerted the Snyder grandparents--Ed and Jane Neeley and Bill and Anne Looney. Ed is a member of the Snyder police department and Bill is associate minister of the 37th Street Church of Christ.

Right now, as the TV ad proclaims, Snyder has at least four "inquiring minds."

Last Tuesday night, 21 Snyder residents were in Abilene to see Snyder Mayor Rod Waller installed for the second time as president of the West Texas Council of Governments.

State Sen. Ray Farabee of Wichita Falls was the featured speaker. In making his remarks, Waller noted the large Snyder delegation by saying 20 of those had come to hear Farabee.

"At least one," he mused, "came because of me. We haven't finished our budget and that's why City Manager John Gayle is here."

The White House says it's not true.

The President does not listen to instant analyses of his speeches and press conferences on TV to learn what he meant to say.

Kennedy...

Visitors still flock to shooting site

DALLAS (AP) — No ceremonies were planned Saturday to mark the 23rd anniversary of President John F. Kennedy's assassination, but county officials predicted the flow of visitors to his downtown memorial site would continue.

"Traffic picks up a little bit this time of year, but generally it's heaviest in the summertime," Shirley Caldwell, chairwoman of the Dallas County Historical Commission, said Friday.

Kennedy was shot to death Nov. 22, 1963, as he rode through downtown Dallas in a motorcade. Lee Harvey Oswald was arrested as a suspect, but slain two days later by nightclub owner Jack Ruby.

Spokesmen for the City of Dallas and the Dallas County Democratic Party said they planned no services Saturday.

"We chose a few years ago to commemorate his birth on May 29 instead of his death to focus on his vibrancy and his life," said Sandy Kress, chairman of the county party. "We found the meaning and joy and memory of his life on the night of his birth much richer."

Ms. Caldwell said she expects the number of sightseers to pick up Saturday around Dealey Plaza, the area where Kennedy was slain, which an estimated 150,000 people visit each year.

"I come down here every working day, five days a week," said Ms. Caldwell, whose office is near the assassination site. "There are tour buses here constantly."

Visitors from 23 countries and 36 states signed a visitors' logbook that was in the plaza for 10 hours last May, she said.

The Warren Commission, appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson to investigate the assassination, concluded Oswald shot Kennedy from the sixth floor of the Texas Schoolbook Depository. The commission said Oswald acted alone in killing Kennedy and wounding then-Texas Gov. John Connally.

The county bought the depository in 1977 and converted it into an administration building. The sixth floor, which now is closed to the public, will be converted into an exhibit commemorating the assassination. Ms. Caldwell said a foundation created by the historical commission is raising the estimated $3 million needed for the exhibit.

The Kennedy family will remember the slain president privately this weekend.

Stock prices have soared once more

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices soared again on Wall Street Friday, bolstered by computerized program trading and some bargain-hunting, as a rebound continued from steep lows earlier in the week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed at 1,893.56, up 32.90 points over Thursday and 19.97 points on the week.

Gainers outpaced losers by about 2-to-1, with 1,073 stocks up, 531 down, and 409 unchanged on the New York Stock Exchange.

Volume totaled 200.65 million shares, compared with 158.12 million shares in the previous session.

The performance capped three days of solid gains, including a 34.03-point surge Thursday, for a total of 76.35 points.

This compared with its Monday-Tuesday loss of 56.38 points, which included Tuesday's 43.31-point decline — the fourth-worst by points in the market's history — following the reported $100 million settlement of insider trading charges by Ivan F. Boesky, Wall Street's richest arbitrager.

Analysts said traders originally worried that the scandal might spread to some of the major investment firms that back takeover deals, weakening prospects that the deals would go through — and weakening demand for the "deals stocks" as well.

Selling of the stocks related to takeovers led the market down until Wednesday afternoon, when traders began moving into blue chips. That trend picked up Thursday and continued for the rest of the week.

In addition, analysts said the market was boosted by bargain-hunting among issues that had been hit hard earlier in the week.

Coca-Cola Enterprises' initial offering led the NYSE's most active list, unchanged at 16½, while Continental Illinois Corp. was unchanged at 5¼; Eastman Kodak was up 1⅜ at 69 and IBM was down ¼ at 123¼.

May Department Stores was up 2 at 37⅜.

TSTA/NEA PRIDE IN excellence

The School Team

This is the final part of a seven-part series sponsored by the Texas State Teachers Association and this newspaper to help parents to become a part of the total school team. We hope we have offered helpful advice to young parents and friends of education. This final series is about all the school employees who work behind the scenes to give your child the best education possible.

It takes a lot of good people working together to make a good school. The first person who comes to mind may well be your child's teacher, but it's important for you to know everyone who is important to your schools.

The school secretaries and clerks are indispensable. They do all the things that secretaries and clerks in most businesses do, but they also do a lot more. They are the key people to whom everyone comes for information. Students ask them everything. Parents phone constantly. Teachers ask about all kinds of rules and records. They type correspondence and tests. They make sure attendance records balance. They help find lost books and soothe over little hurts. They register all visitors and new students. They occasionally find lunch money when someone loses it. And sometimes, they keep track of their school's budget.

The maintenance staff keeps the school running. They operate the boilers and air conditioners to make classrooms comfortable. Who fixes the broken oven so your children can have hot lunches? The maintenance staff. Who fixes a stuck window so the class can get fresh air? The maintenance staff. Who remodels the classroom so it can be more effective or fixes the roof? The maintenance staff.

The transportation service is the group who takes your child to and from school and on special field trips. In some districts, each bus driver is responsible for as many as 400 children each day! That means he or she has to know each child to make certain everyone is safe and well-behaved. Bus drivers are responsible for keeping the buses running and ship-shape.

School aides are very special people and they help in many different ways. There are teachers' aides who help the teachers and let them spend more time in direct instruction. Some schools have library aides, cafeteria aides, clerical aides and playground aides. If there's an important job to be done, aides help do it.

How can you measure the value of a school nurse who's always there to bandage a sore thumb or take a temperature. School nurses teach and heal in many ways. The librarian helps uncover a vast new world that the children will explore for a lifetime. The cafeteria workers make sure your child gets a balanced, nutritious lunch. And the counselors who guide children in making important decisions. And, of course, there's the principal who tries to help all these people work together so your children get a better education.

By mentioning these people, we're sure we've left out others who deserve to be cited. The point is this: your children's classrooms are certainly the focal point of their education, but it is the whole school family that supports learning and makes it possible for your child to get a good education.

Agreement reached in wrong bid

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawyers for the state and a Wall Street financial syndicate reached agreement Friday on a way to let the syndicate get around a multimillion-dollar mistake it made in bidding on state notes.

Attorney General Jim Mattox said the state would reap a $1 million bonus and the syndicate — made up of Merrill Lynch Capital Markets and Dillon Read & Co. — would be able to charge a higher interest rate on $300 million in notes.

"The state will receive a bonus of $1 million, get a good interest rate on the money it borrows and be fair to a company that made an honest mistake," Mattox said.

"Merrill Lynch is a good corporate citizen, so we want to be fair in our dealings with the company. At the same time, the state is getting a very good deal," he said.

The Merrill Lynch syndicate on Tuesday made a successful bid on $300 million in short-term state notes. But in doing so, it mistakenly offered to charge the state as little as 0.03 percent interest.

Merrill Lynch officials said they had intended for their bid to include interest rates as much as 100 times higher, between 3⅞ percent and 4 percent.

Under the agreement both sides presented to a judge on Friday, Merrill Lynch will be able to raise its interest rate. Ron Dusek, a spokesman for Mattox, said the judge was expected to approve the pact.

The syndicate had filed a lawsuit in state district court, challenging the validity of its bid.

The agreed judgment will enable Merrill Lynch to purchase the notes at a "competitive" interest rate and pay the state the bonus, Mattox said.

State officials said that after figuring in the $1 million, the effective interest rate on the $300 million in notes purchased by the Merrill Lynch syndicate is 3.5 percent.

The error by the Merrill Lynch syndicate occurred in bidding on a total of $600 million in "tax anticipation notes" being issued by the state government to help ease cash flow problems expected for December and January. Several other bidders purchased the remaining $300 million.

The Merrill Lynch syndicate attributed the goof to "a mathematical error," which could have cost it an estimated $7 million.

Bank's failure is state's 22nd

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — The slumping real estate and energy markets are blamed for the failure of Texana National Bank of College Station, officials said.

The U.S. Comptroller of Currency declared the bank insolvent Thursday. It was the 22nd bank to fail in Texas in 1986, and the 126th nationwide, officials said.

The bank was closed because of a poor loan portolio stemming from the depressed real estate and energy sectors in the area, said Dean Marriott, senior deputy comptroller.

The bank, chartered Nov. 1, 1983, had total assets of about $12 million and deposits of $11.9 million as of Sept. 30, Marriott said.

The 1,400 depositors will automatically become depositors of First State Bank in Caldwell, subject to approval by the appropriate court, said Julie Amberson, a spokeswoman for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Students call in to A&M

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — More than 30,000 Texas A&M University students will avoid long lines by calling the campus to sign up for spring semester classes, officials predict.

The university has inaugurated a dial-in registration system that permits students with touch-tone phones to register for classes from anywhere in the United States.

The register-by-phone system is among the largest and most extensive in the nation, said Steven Williams, director of the university's Student Information Management System. Students dial a campus number for a taped message from the voice-response computer.

"The students' convenience is the overriding reason for developing this new system," Williams said. "We estimate that a typical student with a schedule already worked out and no time conflicts and few closed classes should be registered in under five minutes."

Officials says they expect more than 30,000 students to use the new system before spring registration ends in December.

'Finger blight' may cost growers

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — The Rio Grande Valley citrus industry, on the verge of its best season since the devasating freeze of 1983, faces another kind of worry this year that growers grimly refer to as "finger blight."

More than a dozen cases of citrus theft already have been reported in Hidalgo County since the harvest began, and officials predict more because short supplies since the freeze have kept prices high.

But growers this year are fighting back against the problem that has led to losses in the millions of dollars in years past.

They are funding more road inspection stations, and the Texas Citrus Industry Fruit Theft Committee has hired Deputy Sheriff Dayna Hill to run the theft program this season in Hidalgo County, where much of the Valley's citrus is grown.

The Texas Citrus Mutual is urging growers to post no-trespassing signs around their boundaries to aid prosection efforts if people are caught in their groves. For those caught with fruit, the fine for first offenders is $100.

"We want to make an example of folks taking advantage of growers" because of a prevalent attitude that citrus groves are public property, said Ray Prewett, executive vice president of the McAllen-based TCM.

"It might be a handful or a sackful of fruit and it's no big deal," he said. "But it all mounts up."

Ft. Worth woman regains home in burglar bar case

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A mortgage company that evicted a widow from her home because she could not pay for burglar bars has agreed to return the house and pay a cash settlement to the 71-year-old woman.

Trans-Continental Mortgage Co. of Dallas had financed Juanita Snell's loan to buy burglar bars, then foreclosed when she didn't make about $6,000 in payments.

Under the agreement reached Wednesday, Trans-Continental will pay $34,000 to buy Mrs. Snell's house from the present owner so that she can regain title to it. In addition to the house, she will receive monthly payments totaling $22,500 beginning in January.

"This is a case that everyone had written off and said there's nothing we can do," said Perry Cockerell, the Fort Worth attorney who heard about Mrs. Snell's situation from his minister and represented her at no charge.

"I think this is a good example of a horrible situation turning out to have some glimmer of hope because she got back her house," he said.

The lawsuit said Trans-Continental's claim against Mrs. Snell's house was invalid because she was mentally incompetent to sign the burglar-bar contract.

Sinee her eviction in February, Mrs. Snell has suffered problems requiring treatment at hospitals in Wichita Falls and Fort Worth.

"She is happy, but she's having to live with me" in a larger house, said Mrs. Snell's niece and legal guardian, Inez Thompson. "She said she doesn't want to live alone now."

Cockerell said Trans-Continental officials offered to settle just before they were scheduled to give sworn depositions about the case.

Gold Bond Co., which sold the burglar bars to Mrs. Snell, was not part of the lawsuit. The company sold Mrs. Snell's contract to Trans-Continental and closed its Fort Worth office last spring after the Tarrant County District Attorney's Office began an investigation.

No action was taken against the company or its owner, Mike Kowalsky.

When Cockerell filed the lawsuit, he said it could have implications for other buyers of home improvements, who, like Mrs. Snell, had no other liens against their houses when they signed contracts.

He argued that people who have paid off their mortgages cannot lose their homes for unpaid home improvements.

Entrepreneur offering drug free urine to skirt drug tests

AUSTIN (AP) — An Austin entrepreneur is selling drug-free urine for $49.95 a bag in a business that a civil liberties official says could boom as drug tests become more common.

The Byrd Laboratories ad in an entertainment-oriented Austin newspaper says the urine is "for experimental purposes only." It guarantees "100 percent pure urine" that is "suitable for unanticipated urine demand."

Lab owner Jeffrey Nightbyrd said he is not interested in what customers do with the product. But he speculated that the most common use could be to beat on-the-job urine tests for drug use.

"The government says they have a right to take bodily fluids. I just decided I'd make some money off that because people are going to resist," he said in an interview he consented to only after getting his lawyer's OK.

"I'm really startled that anybody would pay $49.95 for urine. I have a $5 pamphlet on how to beat the tests," he said.

Nightbyrd, 32, was publisher of the tabloid Austin Sun, which was published in the 1970s.

In his first two weeks in the business, Nightbyrd estimated he had sold about 100 8-ounce bags of urine. He said customers are "Yuppies and students going out into the job market."

"Isn't that great?" said Gara LaMarche, director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union, which opposes the urine tests as an unconstitutional invasion of privacy.

He predicted there will be "a flourishing black market in clean urine" as the drug tests become more common. LaMarche said that could lead to employers having to actually watch employees produce the urine to be tested.

"You are either going to have a test which isn't monitored, in which case the results are useless once this kind of clean urine market gets off the ground. Or you will have tests so degrading and intrusive that most people are going to find it very distasteful," LaMarche said.

Dr. Robert Bernstein, state health commissioner, said he knows of no state law that would prohibit selling urine.

"I just don't think it comes under the food-and-drug laws," he said. "I believe we have no jurisdiction over it."

He did not know whether customers who buy the urine and pass it as their own would be violating any laws.

Nightbyrd, who said he also has hired two chemists to work on develop "freeze-dried urine," said he gets his product through a deal with a local Bible study group at a fundamentalist church.

"That has worked out very well. I can report that elderly Bible students at fundamentalist churches are quite drug-free," he said.

Asked if he was serious about the business and everything about it, Nightbyrd said, "It's not only serious, it's quite profitable."

Austin Chronicle Editor Louis Black, in whose newspaper the ad appeared, said, "I wouldn't be surprised if it was a joke. I wouldn't be surprised if it was for real. I wouldn't be surprised if it started as a joke and he got some orders."

A Good Deal
Then Give It Away
In The Service

When you go out of town to buy a large item that may require service you could be asking for problems. Sure the company stands behind it's product. But often it's up to you to get it back to the dealer for the service. That could mean taking something 50 to 100 miles. It means time on the road--time away from your work--and needless money spent on gas and other charges. Just because it seems like a good deal--look at all the aspects before you buy out of town.

Workers seek to halt Texas Air takeover

MIAMI (AP) — Eastern Airlines employees called on a former company president and a famous defense lawyer to try to persuade a judge to prevent an imminent takeover they say will sound the airline's death knell.

"This is a capital case. This is the life or death of Eastern Airlines," F. Lee Bailey told U.S. District Judge James Lawrence King on Friday.

The employees, hoping to halt a takeover by Texas Air Corp. Chairman Frank Lorenzo, filed a lawsuit alleging that Eastern's board of directors cut an illegal deal with Lorenzo and that their own offer to buy the airline was financially better.

The coalition of Eastern's three major unions Thursday designated former Eastern President Samuel L. Higginbottom to lead their effort, and on Friday brought out Bailey, a lawyer best known for his defense of such people as Patricia Hearst and the Boston Strangler.

Bailey, an aviation buff who assisted union attorney Stephen Lowey, argued that Lorenzo would reduce Eastern from a major carrier to a "cheapie airline" that would use 30-year-old pilots at cut-rate wages.

Lowey charged that Eastern's board violated its fiduciary responsibility by failing to hear competitive bids for the carrier, and other union attorneys argued that the deal with Lorenzo was engineered long before it became public at the Feb. 23 board meeting.

They asked King to postpone Tuesday's stockholders' meeting, at which the takeover is expected to be approved, and give them 30 days to prove their case.

The judge said he did not expect to reach a decision until at least late Sunday.

Attorneys for Eastern and Texas Air warned that delaying the formal takeover could chase away financial backing. But they reluctantly agreed that the shareholders' meeting could be delayed a few days.

The company attorneys called the employees' last-ditch effort too late and too shaky to merit consideration.

"This so-called offer is essentially theater," said Paul Welsh, who represents Texas Air.

Houston-based Texas Air already owns 51 percent of Eastern shares, and has received government approval for the takeover.

Retired mortician remembers burial

PFLUGERVILLE, Texas (AP) — It has been almost 23 years since Paul J. Groody handled his most infamous burial, but the retired mortician remembers it like it was yesterday.

Groody remembers well handling the services for Lee Harvey Oswald, the only man he buried twice. Oswald was identified by the Warren Commission as the person who shot President John F. Kennedy to death in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963.

It's the time of year when every year since that burial that Groody starts getting telephone calls and requests for interviews about the Oswald burial and subsequent exhumation.

Groody was funeral director in charge at Miller Funeral Home in Fort Worth on Nov. 24, 1963 when Jack Ruby shot and killed Oswald in the basement of the Dallas police station.

His first contact came later that day when a Secret Service agent asked Groody to handle the burial of Oswald in Fort Worth because that was where Oswald's mother, Marguerite Oswald, lived.

It took Groody 17 years to find out that the reason he was chosen for the job was that the Secret Service agent's father had attended embalming school with Groody.

Groody says he decided to place Oswald's remains in a vault of steel reinforced concrete to preserve the remains.

"Knowing the circumstances, and being an old undertaker, I realized that they might want to dig this guy up some day," Groody said. "And if so, I wanted him to be preserved to the point where at least identification could be made."

Groody, who has retired from mortician work and now works in real estate and construction in this Central Texas city, said a Secret Service agent came to him three weeks after the first burial and asked if he could recall certain scars on Oswald's body.

Groody said he told the agent he had not made any note of any identifying marks on the body and asked why the agent was making the inquiry.

"And he said to me, 'We don't know who we have in that grave out there,'" Groody said. He said the agent gave no further explanation.

The former funeral director says he is at a loss to explain why the vault was cracked when it was unearthed 18 years later for the exhumation.

But he does know that the body in the vault was the same body he placed there before the Nov. 25, 1963 burial.

He remembers down to the socks the clothing he used when he dressed the body.

"I saw those same socks when I dug him up. I know the body I dug up was the body I buried," Groody said.

The burial was not an easy task, Groody recalls.

He had difficulty finding a cemetery that was willing to have the accused assassin buried at their facility. Rose Hill Cemetery finally agreed to allow the burial.

He got his instructions from Robert Oswald, brother of the accused assassin.

The funeral cost $710, Groody recalls, a figure that was below the $800 that Oswald's brother said he could afford.

Although the burial was held at Rose Hill Cemetery, it didn't take long for a cemetery official to have second thoughts, Groody recalls.

The very next morning, Groody says, a cemetery official called and offered him $5,000 to take the body out and bury it in some other location.

He said the official told him that people with relatives buried there had called to protest after learning that Oswald was buried there.

Coronado defeats SHS Lady Tigers

BIG SPRING – Snyder's Lady Tigers suffered their second straight defeat here Friday, falling 59-38 to Lubbock Coronado in the Spring City Tournament.

Snyder, 0-2, was to play El Paso High at 8:15 a.m. Saturday as the two-day tourney continued. El Paso lost 54-48 to Sweetwater, which was to play Coronado at 1:30 p.m. Saturday.

Coronado got heavy punching power from Sheryl Williams, who scored 25 points. Jackie Blair added 10 as the Lubbock school improved to 2-0 on the season.

Snyder was led by Teri Sue Henry's 12 points. Christy Comer scored 8 points and pulled down a team-high 6 rebounds. The Lady Tigers were outrebounded 38 to 26.

Coronado took an 18-5 advantage in the first quarter and led 37-10 at halftime.

A loss Saturday morning would have knocked the Tigers out of the tournament. A win would have put them in the 3:15 p.m. consolation game. Tuesday, the girls host Colorado City at 6:30 p.m. in Scurry County Coliseum.

Sophs outlast HHS Cardinals

Snyder sophomores defeated Hermleigh varsity in an area basketball game here Friday, 42-28.

The young Tigers outscored the Cardinals 8-3 in the first quarter and 15-4 in the second to take a 23-7 halftime advantage.

Hermleigh came back strong in the third period to pull within five, 27-22, but could not keep up the pressure in the fourth.

TCU wins opener in NIT over LSU

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) - There's nothing tricky about winning basketball, Texas Christian coach Jim Killingsworth says, it's a matter of getting the ball to go through the hoop.

"You can try a lot of tricky bleep, but it doesn't do any good unless you score baskets," Killingsworth said Friday after TCU came back from a 15-4 first half deficit to take an 83-74 victory over LSU in the preseason NIT.

"We should never have been down that far in the beginning," Killingsworth said. "We really didn't do anything different than we were doing before. Our shots just started to fall, that's all."

TCU started off cold, hitting just 2 of 15 attempts as LSU built an 11 point bulge in the opening period.

"I kept screaming at them to slow down, but the more I screamed, the quicker they'd shoot."

Killingsworth called a time out to settle his team down.

TCU returned to the court and outscored the Tigers 27-3 behind Larry Richard, who scored 8 of

Tigers fall in overtime, 53-47

ABILENE – Missed free throws and a good Abilene Cooper press combined to put the Eagles past Snyder in varsity basketball action here Friday night, 53-47.

The overtime victory was Abilene's first in two starts. The game was the season opener for Coach Larry Scott's Tigers.

Snyder led much of the way, and in fact held a 13-7 advantage after the first quarter and was still up 27-22 at the half.

Snyder found early success from its experienced inside duo of 6-4 senior Chris Garrett and 6-5 junior Trey Tippens, but was unable to find steady support from the perimeter. It showed, too, against Cooper's defensive press.

The other telling fact in the ballgame was Snyder's meek effort at the charity stripe. The Tigers went to the line 25 times, but managed to connect on only seven of occasions.

The press put Cooper back in the game in the fourth quarter. Snyder took a 47-46 advantage with 1:01 left when Reynaldo Gomez snaked in a free throw. Neither team could make a field goal stick, but Abilene forced an overtime on Jay Estes' single free throw at the 11-second mark.

Abilene dominated the extra period, outscoring the Tigers 6-0 for the victory. Scotty Pugh put in three of the Eagles' overtime points.

"The problems we had were pretty well what we expected. It's just going to take time to correct them," said Coach Scott. "When you've got eight people walking off the football field you are not going to have people coming on to the court and shooting real well. As far as the press, there is a lot of timing involved and a lot of ball handling skills and on four workouts there is no way you can get it like you want it."

Snyder was expected to be strong inside, and indeed the Tigers got 33 of their 47 points from the post position.

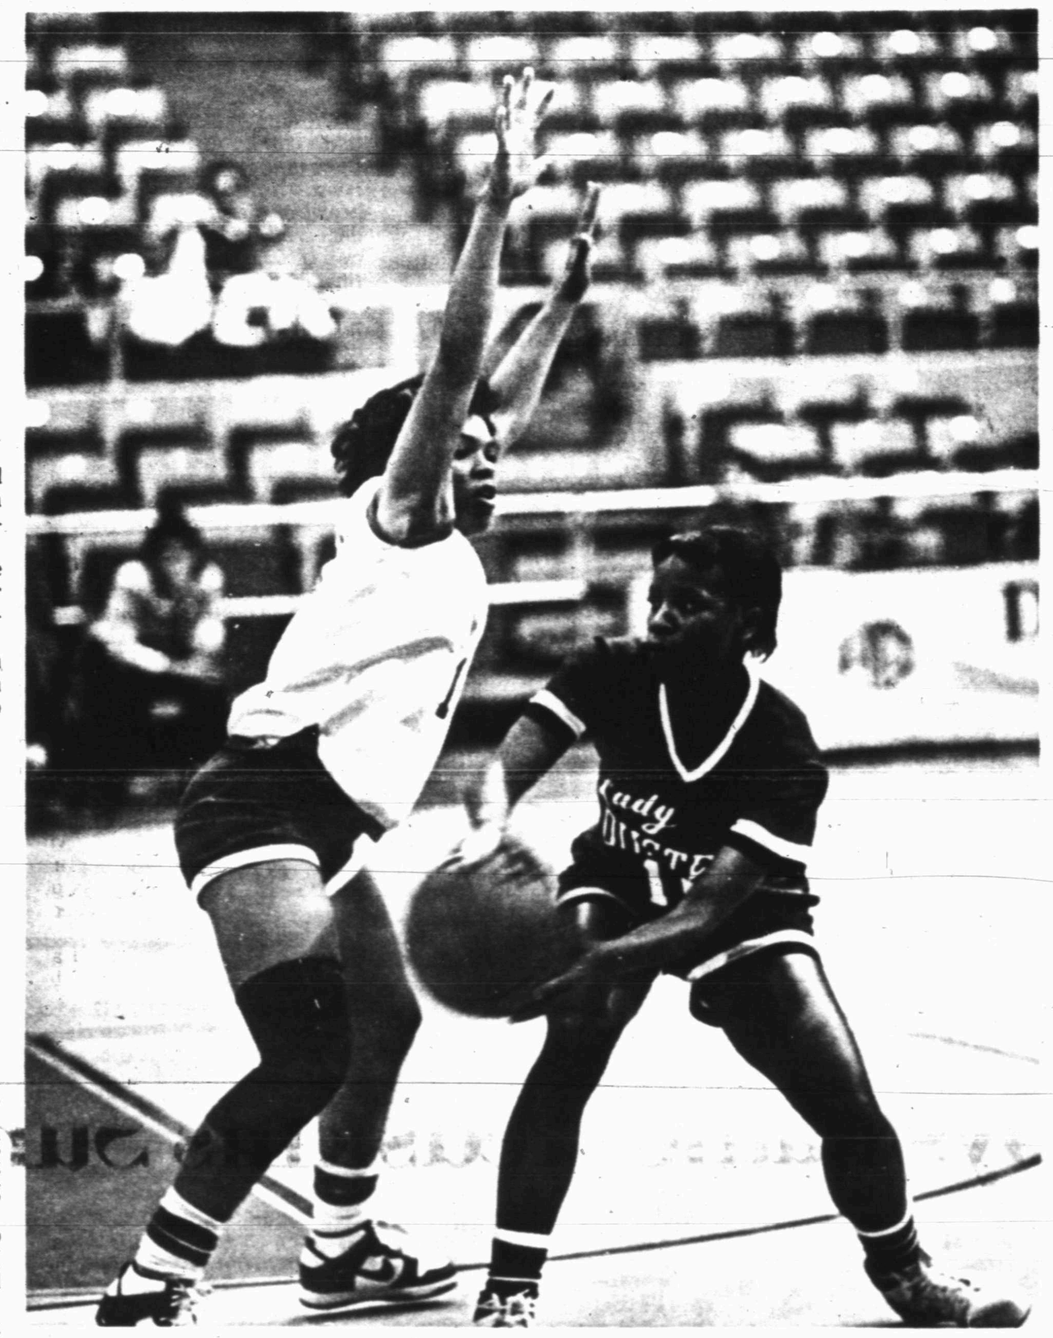

"We expected to start the season like that but we don't want it to end that way. We want a balanced attack," said Scott. "The kids on the outside are going to get more confidence and they'll play better with more workouts and more games."

Estes led Cooper with 22 points. Pugh had 9. Garrett sparked Snyder's effort with 16 while Tippens added 14.

Snyder was to play Lubbock High at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in Scurry County Coliseum and the game pitted two teams that are 0-1 - both losses coming in overtime.

"They've got a real good team. It will be another tough test. They run the same type press and zone defense that Cooper did," said Coach Scott. "They have one kid, Kurt Way, who scored 29 points against Estacado and a kid that scored 22 and the Christian guy (Toby) who scored 16 so you know they have the scorers. We'll have to play good defense."

Christian, 6-6, has already committed to Baylor next season.

Dusters blast Wharton, 75-47

BIG SPRING – Brenda Welch scored 12 of the game's first 22 points as she led Western Texas College to an easy 75-47 victory over Wharton County JC at the Hawk Queen Classic here Friday night.

Welch averaged a point a minute as she finished the night with a game-high 24 points - about the amount of time in minutes she spent on the floor.

The victory kept Coach Kelly Chadwick's Dusters undefeated at 9-0 for the season. Saturday, they were to go for their 10th win in a game scheduled for 3 p.m. with Angelina College.

Chadwick again wasn't pleased with the play of his team, but he pointed to the competition as being part of the reason.

"It's hard for these girls to come out and play well when the other team is not any better than it was tonight," said Chadwick. "I hope we don't have too many of these in a row. That's what bothers me. I'm afraid we'll begin to play like this all the time. It's so frustrating when we play so bad," said Coach Chadwick.

No statistics were available, but neither team shot the ball well.

Welch scored Western's first 8 points as the Snyder team jumped out to a quick 8-2 advantage. The lead stretched to 11 points, 17-6, when Dee Ann Marr popped a free throw at the 12:11 mark.

Wharton got help from 6-2 sophomore Tangelia Brooks and worked back into the game as Western suddenly went cold from the field. The Lady Pioneers pulled within three points, 21-18, with 7:51 to play in the half.

But Western's defense - perhaps its greatest asset - came through. The Pioneers scored only four more points before the halftime buzzer. Lisa Thompson, Robinson and Welch went strong to the boards, and Wendy Milner's three-point play with 3:41 left made it a 30-20 ballgame.

Nancy Bals came off the bench to hit a 12-foot jump shot and Milner scored three more points over the final minutes as Western took a 37-22 advantage into the dressing room.

The early second half belonged to Welch again. She hit the first three baskets of the period. Milner and Thompson added a couple more to spark the Dusters to a 47-22 lead. Charlene Belser finally scored the Pioneers' first second-half bucket five minutes deep into the period.

Welch went to the bench with 14:25 to play. Marr joined her moments later.

In addition to Welch's 24 points, Milner scored 16 and Thompson had 12. Nine Dusters put points on the board.

Wharton was led by Brooks' 10 points. Belser and Ida McKinney scored 8 apiece.

Pecos dominates all-district volleyball team for '86 season

Pecos High School, district volleyball champions, placed three girls to the 2-4A All-District Volleyball Team, announced this weekend.

Snyder, which finished fourth in loop competition, had one girl named to the first team, one to the second, and two honorable mention.

Pecos fashioned a 16-0 district record and was 29-2 for the season before losing to 2-4A runnerup Lamesa in the playoffs. Lamesa, 13-3 in district play, placed two girls on the first team, including the only repeat choice, 5-8 senior Monique Mason.

Mason was one of two unanimous choices. The other was Pecos' Anna Ozuna, a 5-8 senior. Also chosen from Pecos were Shelly McQueen, a 5-0 senior, and Lisa Meierhoff, a 5-10 junior.

Lamesa's other selection was Jolanda Demerson, a 5-3½ junior.

Snyder's only first-team player was Allison Adams, a 5-9 senior hitter. Adams had 22 kills on the season as the Tigers fashioned 7-9 district record; 17-14 for the 1986 campaign.

Selected to the second team from Snyder was senior setter-hitter Donna Clay, 5-6. Honorable Mention for the Tigers were 5-5 senior Sharnette Thompson and 5-11 sophomore Melody Pickering.

The rest of the 2-4A first team includes Cheryl Owens, a 5-8 senior from Sweetwater; Kim Payne, a 5-10 junior from Fort Stockton; Shannon Ogle, a 5-9 senior from Lake View; Yolanda Ramirez, a 5-5 junior from Lake View; and Annabell Ornelas, a 5-2 senior from Monahans.

Named to the second team were Clay, Sandy Ambriz of Lamesa, Lorena Archultea of Pecos, Sheri Myrick of Big Spring, Laura Lannom of Fort Stockton, Carmen Franco of Lake View and Chris Mendoza of Andrews.

Valley QB breaks national TD record

POST, Texas (AP) - Kirk Saul of Valley High School threw four touchdown passes Friday night against Bronte and broke the national record for the most scoring passes for a high school student.

Saul's peformance ran his season total to 54 touchdown passes, breaking the previous mark of 50 set by Sol Graves of Quachita Christian High School in Monroe, La. last season.

Valley, a consolidated rural school near Turkey, beat Bronte 34-6 in a bi-district playoff game at Post.

Saul, who tied the record with three touchdown passes against Roscoe the previous week, set the new mark with a 2-yard scoring pass to Matt Barrett with 7:53 left in the first quarter.

Playoff games are included in high school records, which are kept by the National Federation of State High School Associations in Kansas City.

Saul is a 6-2, 185-pound senior.

Cowboys battle Redskins Sunday

by The Associated Press

Even mild-mannered Tom Landry admits he gets a little excited when the Dallas Cowboys play the Washington Redskins.

Landry has coached the Cowboys in all 53 of their previous games against the Redskins, and he will be on the sidelines again Sunday when the NFC rivals meet at Washington's sold-out RFK Stadium.

"It's one of the few parks where the fans can influence the game," Landry said. "It's an exciting place to play. Even I get keyed up when the crowd gets to that level."

The Cowboys lead the series 31-20-2, including a 30-6 victory earlier this year and a two-game sweep last season.

"It's the best rivalry in football," Washington defensive tackle Darryl Grant said.

This time, Dallas needs to win to maintain its position for a berth in the playoffs.

Washington and the New York Giants are tied for the NFC East lead with 9-2 records, with the Cowboys third at 7-4. Dallas is a half-game ahead of San Francisco, 6-4-1, and a full game in front of Minnesota and New Orleans, both 6-5, in the running for the final wild-card playoff slot.

In other games Sunday, Denver visits the Giants, Green Bay is at Chicago, Atlanta is at San Francisco, Buffalo is at New England, Detroit is at Tampa Bay, Indianapolis is at Houston, Minnesota is at Cincinnati, Pittsburgh is at Cleveland, Kansas City is at St. Louis, New Orleans visits the Los Angeles Rams and Philadelphia is at Seattle.

The New York Jets visit Miami on Monday night.

On Thursday night, the Los Angeles Raiders beat San Diego 37-31 in overtime when Marcus Allen burst 28 yards for a touchdown 8:33 into the extra period. The Chargers had forced the overtime by rallying from a 21-point deficit in the second half and then blocking Chris Bahr's 35-yard field goal attempt on the final play of regulation.

Herschel Walker has played in just one Dallas-Washington game, but had a major impact in that one. Walker accounted for 200 yards in total offense and scored two touchdowns as the Cowboys won Oct. 12.

Walker has been slowed by a sprained ankle for the last two weeks, although he expects to be ready Sunday.

"It is getting better every day," Walker, the only NFL player with over 500 yards both rushing and receiving, said.

The other game affecting the NFC East race will be played at East Rutherford, N.J., where the Giants meet the Broncos.

New York's pass defense, which is ranked 19th among the NFL's 28 teams, will have to stop Broncos quarterback John Elway. Since 1984, Elway has directed 32 victories, more than any other NFL quarterback over that period, and the Broncos are 9-2 this year.

"The Giants are on a level with the Raiders as far as talent and playing a physical football game," Elway said of the New York defense. "They like to line up and say, 'come out and beat us.' They have a lot of confidence."

New York leads the NFC in sacks with 43. But quarterbacks who have gotten time to throw have caused the Giants trouble, and Elway's ability to elude the rush is additional reason to worry.

"Elway doesn't scramble to run," Giants Coach Bill Parcells said. "He scrambles more now to buy time."

"It hurts you a lot when a guy like that gets loose and freewheels," New York cornerback Perry Williams said. "It puts a lot of pressure on everybody, especially the defensive backs trying to cover. I'm sure the linemen are going to try to do a good job keeping him in inside the pocket and not let him scramble."

Mustangs upset Mats

SWEETWATER -- District 2-4A runnerup Sweetwater shocked state-ranked Lubbock Estacado in a Class 4A bi-district football playoff game here Friday night, 20-19.

District 2-4A champion Big Spring was to play Hereford in another bi-district encouter Saturday evening in Lubbock.

Estacado's Curtis Nealey tried a 43-yard field goal which would have put the Matadors on top with just 36 seconds left in the game, but his effort was wide and short.

The defensive battle was tied 7-7 at half as Sweetwater benefitted from an Estacado fumble to go in front but the Matadors used an interception to lock it the game up again.

Estacado took the second half kickoff and drove 80 yards to score on a 32-yard run by Edward Walker. Nealey's PAT try was no good.

Sweetwater came back as Chris Davis climaxed a 73-yard drive with a 33-yard TD run. Israel Vera's kick-after gave the Mustangs a 14-13 lead.

The other scores came on a 25-yard run by Estacado's Jimmy Doss and a 1-yard plunge by the Mustangs' Mark Redden. Both teams went for two-point conversions but neither was successful.

Sweetwater, 10-1, will advance to play Wichita Falls Hirschi next week.

TCU

the 19 unanswered points in the spurt that put the Horned Frogs ahead to stay.

Down 45-34 at halftime, LSU closed to within 5 points three times in the second period but ran out of steam.

Richard scored 17 points and pulled down 21 rebounds, while Carven Holcombe led TCU with 20 points. Jamie Dixon added 15 points, followed by Carl Lott with 14 and Norman Anderson with 10.

LSU's Anthony Wilson led all scorers with 21 points. He was joined in double figures by freshman Fess Irvin with 14 and Bernard Woodside with 11.

Wilson was the only starter remaining from the LSU team that advanced to the Final Four after finishing the regular season an undistinguished 22-11.

The Horned Frogs returned four starters from the 22-9 team that shared the Southwest Conference title with Texas last season.

The triumph advances TCU to a second round berth Monday against Western Kentucky at Bowling Green. The final and semifinals will be Nov. 28-29 in Madison Square Garden.

Coach Dale Brown said so far there is no resemblance between this year's squad and last year's Final Four team.

"We didn't execute, we didn't play hard, we had no leadership," Brown said. "The fans don't deserve to pay to watch the garbage we displayed."

Waco bank tries to recover money from convicted man

WACO, Texas (AP) — A Waco bank is trying to eke more than $20,000 in unpaid loans out of a death row inmate, but its officials concede that collecting the debt isn't very likely.

Republicbank Waco filed documents Thursday against Muneer Mohammad Deeb, 26, who was convicted in March 1985 of the murder of Jill Montgomery, one of three teen-agers found slain in July 1982 in Lake Waco's Speegleville Park.

Bank vice president Charles Jones said his firm filed the abstract "to reflect the fact we've got a judgment in case any property ever becomes availabe to attach."

He conceded there is only a "remote possiblity" of recovering the money and said he wasn't sure why the bank waited so long to file the papers.

"I would guess there's probably no real reason for the delay other than there were more important things to do," he said. "And why file an abstract against a person who has no property to attach?"

The murder received widespread publicity because of police work done by Truman Simons over a two-year period that brought Deeb and three other men to trial.

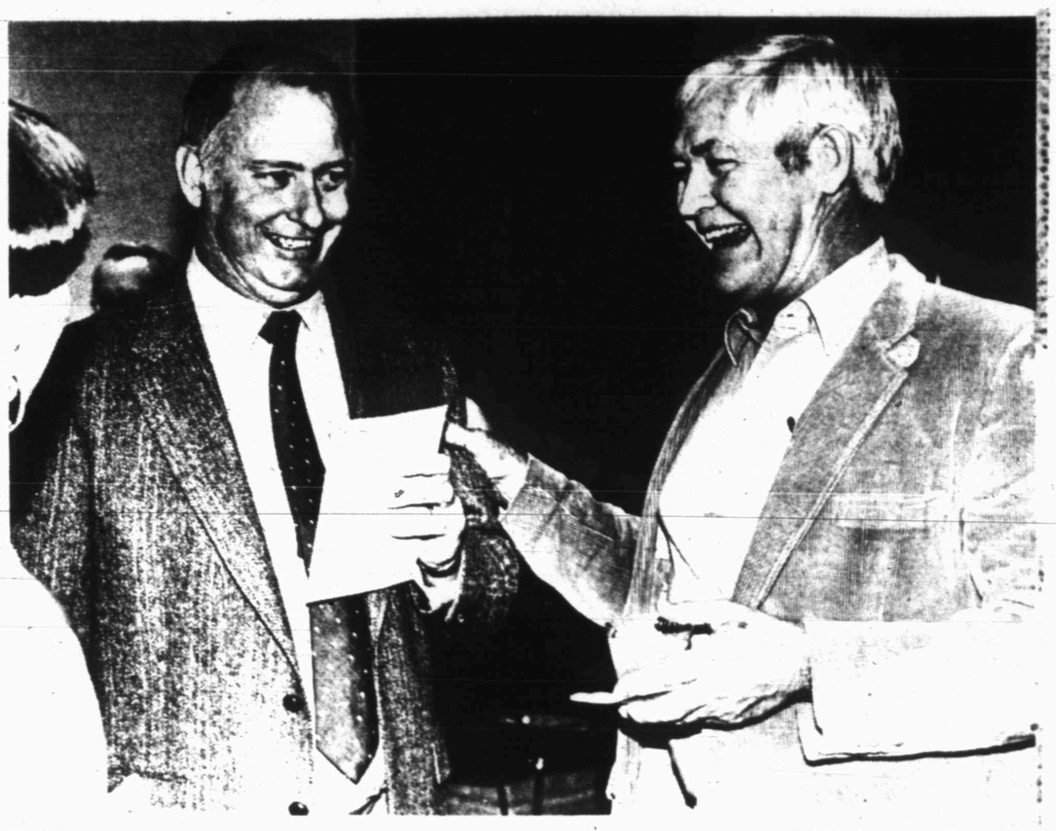

David Wayne Spence also got the death penalty and brothers Gilbert Melendez and Tony Melendez pleaded guilty in exchange for two life sentences each.

Deeb borrowed money to operate a drive-in restaurant across the street from Methodist Home, where orphans and other young people live.

According to the bank filing, Deeb owes $20,980 plus accumulated interest since the loan was made in September 1983. RepublicBank won a court judgment against Deeb in 1985.

He was convicted of soliciting the murder of Gayle Keely Reyes, who had lived at Methodist Home. Deeb had taken out a $20,000 accidental death policy on her.

According to trial testimony, Deeb hired Spence to kill Miss Reyes.

More indictments may follow probe

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal probe of alleged city corruption has produced charges including racketeering, mail fraud and extortion against two aldermen and five other people, and the prosecutor says it may be only the beginning.

The two-year investigation, dubbed Operation Incubator, was "part of a continuing commitment to protect the integrity" of Chicago city government and used a high-rolling mole who paid to influence the awarding of city contracts, U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas said Friday.

"The investigation is continuing, it's ongoing," Valukas said, adding that there might be other indictments.

Both Democratic aldermen have been strong supporters of Mayor Harold Washington, who said Friday he did not foresee any damage to his re-election chances next year because of the indictments.

"They are their own people," he said of the aldermen. "They got here on their own; they'll have to stand on their own."

Valukas said the investigation was "not an indictment of the administration. To suggest otherwise is not warranted."

The indictments centered on payments by Systematic Recovery Service Inc., a New York-based bill-collection agency, and Michael Raymond, a convicted con man who operated as the company's Chicago representative.

The FBI recruited Raymond after his July 1984 arrest in Nashville, Tenn., on weapons charges, according to his lawyer, William Aronwald.

Agents gave Raymond money and the alias Michael Burnett, then reportedly recorded his sometimes-lavish dinners and meetings with politicians and businessmen over 18 months.

Raymond, who recently was charged with murder in the death of a wealthy Florida widow, and Systematic Recovery figured prominently in a similar federal investigation of alleged bribery and influence-peddling in New York City.

That scandal led to the suicide of Queens borough president Donald Manes earlier this year, and a jury was to begin deliberations today in the trial of five officials and businessmen on charges stemming from the inquiry.

The owner of Systematic Recovery, Bernard Sandow, pleaded guilty earlier to charges of mail fraud. Sandow and the company were accused of bribing Manes and officials of New York City's Parking Violations Bureau to obtain or keep contracts to collect delinquent fines.

The Chicago investigation became public Christmas Day when several aldermen disclosed they had been interviewed by FBI agents about their involvement with Raymond or their roles in awarding contracts.

At the time, Systematic Recovery held a city contract that had earned it about $480,000 the previous year to collect delinquent water bills. The company, through Raymond, was pursuing a more lucrative multimillion-dollar contract to collect delinquent parking fines.

Aldermen Wallace Davis and Clifford Kelley were charged Friday with multiple acts of racketeering, mail fraud, making false statements to government officials and extortion.

Both were charged with corruptly accepting money or benefits from Raymond, and Davis also was charged with extorting money from businesses in his ward. The indictment alleged that Kelley helped Systematic Recovery by using tactics that included threatening city officials.

Kelley insisted he was innocent. Davis' home phone number is unlisted and he could not be reached for comment.

Also indicted were Michael Lambesis, chief investigator for the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court; Herman Mitchell, a former precinct captain in Davis' ward; Carmen Aiello, a former chief supervisor for collections in the Water Department; Raymond Akers Jr., a former lobbyist for Waste Management Inc.; and Paul Vesper, of suburban Elk Grove Village.

Mitchell, the only one not linked to Raymond, was charged with attempted extortion of a business in Davis' ward.

Ruby's rabbi tries to shed light on Oswald shooting

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Jack Ruby meted out "Texas justice" when he shot the accused assassin of John F. Kennedy 23 years ago in Dallas, says a rabbi who became Ruby's confidante.

"He did this in a fit of anger and passion," said Rabbi Hillel Silverman. "He was a great patriot and he thought he was doing a great favor for the people of the United States. He was doing justice, Texas justice, to a terrible man who had shot his beloved president."

Silverman, 61, has headed the Temple Sholom in Greenwich the past six years, but on Nov. 22, 1963 he was at the Dallas Trade Mart with about 500 other community leaders awaiting Kennedy's arrival at a luncheon. Ruby was a member of his Dallas congregation.

"It was a nightmare, and I don't really think about it anymore," Silverman told The Greenwich Time newspaper in a story published Thursday.

As Ruby's confessor, Silverman is convinced that Ruby acted alone and not as part of a conspiracy when he shot Lee Harvey Oswald.

"He was very neurotic, very psychotic. A number of times (in prison) he would go off the deep end in a very neurotic way. He would start accusing everyone of conspiring against him. He would duck under his table when he heard sirens outside."

On the night of the assassination, Silverman led a sabbath service at Temple Shearith Israel, where he had been rabbi since 1954. He recalled greeting Ruby after the two-hour service ended.

"To me it was very curious. Here everyone was in tears, the president of the United States has been assassinated, and he says, 'Thanks for visiting my sister.' I didn't think it peculiar at the time. But when I think back about it, that's where his mind was. He wasn't functioning on all of his cylinders," Silverman said.

Later that evening, Ruby stopped at the Dallas Police Department, where Oswald was being held. Ruby claimed to be an interpreter for an Israeli newspaper. On Sunday, Nov. 24, 1963, as Oswald was being transferred, Ruby fatally shot him in the abdomen with a .38-caliber revolver.

"He always carried a gun because he would empty the nightclubs' cash registers at night," Silverman said. "He told me he didn't know they were transferring Oswald that morning. He didn't even know it. He thought he (Oswald) was already transferred. He saw people gathered ... he got right in and that's when he did it."

Locals' granddaughter wins Gold Star award

EASTLAND--Karmen Hall, 15, a former member of the Rising Star 4-H Club, was honored recently at the annual Eastland County 4-H Awards Banquet.

She is the daughter of Cliff and Kathy Hall of Stephenville and is a member of the Stephenville 4-H Club. She is the granddaughter of Pauline Scrivner of Snyder and Welch Scrivner of Dermott.

Gold Star is the highest honor awarded to 4-H members on the county level. Hall's main projects include sheep, swine, leadership, clothing, foods, nurtition, and horses.

She is an active member of the Junior Leaders Association and has helped train younger 4-H members in modeling and fashion revue. She won county with her record book in clothing and placed second at district competition. She is also a horse judge and placed 8th high individual at the State 4-H Round-Up.

Crystal Akers Wilbanks, Eastland County Extension Agent, said, "As her former 4-H agent, I can personally say that Karmen Hall is an asset to any organization. Not only is she intelligent, but she is also adept at leading any crowd. Karmen has very high standards and always gives the best of herself. We are sorry to lose her from Eastland County; however, she will always be in our hearts."

Couple, children present when Kennedy was killed

DALLAS (AP) — The picture ran in newspapers across the country the day after. It showed a young couple shielding their children in Dealey Plaza in Dallas moments after the president of the United States was assassinated.

Twenty-three years ago, on Nov. 22, 1963, Bill and Gayle Newman had taken 4-year-old Billy and 2-year-old Clayton to see the President John F. Kennedy.

The Newmans were 22 years old. They weren't big fans of Kennedy and had supported Richard Nixon in the election. But they considered Kennedy to be their president.

"We just wanted to get a glimpse," Newman said.

At first they went to Love Field, where the president's plane landed. But the crowd was so disappointing that their view wasn't very good. They decided to go downtown.

They parked their car behind the Texas School Bookbook Depository and walked around in front to a spot on the lawn near the triple underpass. The motorcade was about 150 feet away when the shots rang out, Newman said.

"It was a 'Boom! Boom!' just like that. At the time, I though that someone had thrown some firecrackers beside the car.

"As the car got closer to us, we could see something was wrong. We could see Gov. Connally with the president, looking into the crowd with a bewildered look on his face.

"Just a few seconds passed -- I can't tell you the exact time frame -- and the car came toward us and the president was directly in front of me. We were there on the curb. He was the width of one lane away from us. That was when the third shot was fired.

"I turned to Gayle and said, 'That's it. Hit the ground.'"

They huddled the children under them as they lay on the grass. The photograph shows a motorcycle policeman racing by. Four men surround them. Three of them appear to have cameras in their hands.

The Newmans stayed at the sheriff's department until about 8 p.m. that night, recounting what they had seen. Then they went home.

At first they were afraid they had seen something that someone hadn't wanted them to. They kept a loaded shotgun in the house.

For several months, Bill Newman said, he was an avid reader of assassination stories. After the first year his interest faded.

The family doesn't talk about it much these days. They were flown to London earlier this year to appear as witnesses in the television drama, "On Trial: Lee Harvey Oswald."

When Newman drives near Dealey Plaza and sees the tourists pointing at the sixth-floor window of the school book depository, he sometimes thinks of stopping.

There's one government worker for every 14 Americans: Of the nation's 237 million people, almost 17 million work for federal, state or local government.

U.S. sheep industry said still in rut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite some recent signs of financial improvement, the sheep business shows little sign of major growth in the near future, according to Agriculture Department experts.

A cost study by the department's Economic Research Service says that the profitability of sheep raising increased significantly from 1983 through 1985. But other figures by the agency show that American consumers still prefer beef, pork and poultry to lamb — and by a substantial margin.

This year, the per capita consumption of lamb and mutton is expected to average 1.4 pounds of retail weight, down from 1.45 pounds in 1985. And the forecast for 1987 calls for consumption to remain at 1.4 pounds.

Comparatively, this year's beef consumption is expected to average 73.8 pounds of retail weight; pork, 58.3 pounds; and poultry, 73.4 pounds.

According to USDA records going back to 1909, Americans are eating less lamb and mutton than at any time in the last three-quarters of a century.

Consumption never ranked with other red meats, but lamb and mutton held a respectable share of the market at times, averaging 5 to 7 pounds per person each year during the 1930s and through World War II. It was about 1949 when Americans started turning more to other meats, with lamb and mutton dropping to 3 to 5 pounds for many years thereafter.

In 1976, the per capita consumption of lamb and mutton — the two are not kept statistically separate — fell below 2 pounds for the first time and has yet to recover.

Economists and livestock industry people cite many reasons for the decline, including erratic wool prices, predators in the West, scarcity of labor, and switches by producers to other enterprises.

The cost analysis on sheep and wool production says that "receipts less cash expenses ranged from an average gain of $3.86 per ewe in 1983 to $23.87 in 1985." During those years, the federal wool support program provided about a fifth of the average sheep producer's income, it said.

"Without the support payment, wool-sheep producers would have lost an average of $5.45 per ewe in 1983," the report said. "There would have been an average profit of $6.06 per ewe in 1984, and $10.67 in 1985."

Another report noted that lamb market prices rose to record levels this year but "have been quite volatile" and have not provided sustained profit margins.

Commercial lamb and mutton production this year is forecast at around 329 million pounds, down 7 percent from 1985, the report said. Production in 1987 may decline by another 3 percent to about 320 million pounds.

Lamb prices may average $68 to $69 per 100 pounds this year, and $66 to $72 in 1987, depending upon the level of lamb imports and discounting of heavy lambs, the report said.

Medical advance claim is retracted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harvard researchers are taking back claims that they had discovered a substance which could be a master switch for turning on the body's protective immune system.

Scientists at Harvard's Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, in a letter published Friday, retracted studies that reported finding an immune system stimulant which might boost the body to fight cancer and infectious diseases.

A committee of scientists from Harvard Medical School and the institute are investigating the case and the National Institutes of Health, the federal agency financing the work, has been notified, a spokesman said.

Such NIH notification is required when scientific misconduct is alleged. The agency has the option of investigating separately, following review of an institution's own findings.

Although the retraction did not mention the nature of the problem, it reportedly involves data tampering and research fraud — reasons usually cited for investigations like those under way.

In a letter published in the Nov. 28 issue of the journal Science, Dr. Ellis L. Reinherz, the senior author, and others said they were withdrawing data published in a paper appearing in Science last March.

The researchers originally said they had discovered a chemical molecule that appeared to vigorously stimulate the immune system.

The work raised the possibility that the substance, which the scientists labeled interleukin-4a, could fight cancers, infectious diseases and, perhaps, acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS).

"In our view, those biological data are not reproducible and are incorrect, and we wish, therefore, to retract the data and the conclusions based on them," said Reinherz, Dr. Claudio Milanese and graduate student Neil E. Richardson.

"We extend our apologies to the scientific community and trust that certain misinformation presented in that article can be rectified by publication of this retraction letter," they continued.

The incident may be the latest in a series of research tampering cases that have come to light at several institutions in recent years. In many of these cases, the problems stemmed from competitive pressure to publish good research results.

Science said problems with the research came to light in recent weeks when researchers in Reinherz's laboratory were unable to reproduce experiments after Milanese, a Ph.D. from Turin, Italy, returned home.

Trust of intelligence agencies said eroded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Revelations of the Reagan administration's secret arms sales to Iran are destroying a "relationship of trust" built over a decade between the U.S. intelligence community and Congress, leading lawmakers say.

CIA Director William Casey went before the Senate and House intelligence panels Friday in closed meetings to defend the administration's actions, but appeared to have won few if any converts.

"When trust breaks down, you have a problem," said Chairman David Durenberger, R-Minn., outgoing chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee.

Many lawmakers said they believe the only way President Reagan can put the festering controversy behind him is by admitting he made a mistake in creating the perception he was swapping arms for hostages held in Lebanon and deliberately keeping Congress in the dark about his actions.

Still others said changes in the law are needed to make sure that covert activities conducted by the White House's National Security Council are reported to the House and Senate intelligence panels.

"The damage here is to our intelligence community," said Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., a former Intelligence committee vice chairman. "They need the support of Congress. We've been working on this relationship for 10 years."

"Oh what a crash," Moynihan said. "That relationship of trust has clearly not worked and the question now is, that after all of that effort, can it work."

Some said national security adviser John Poindexter, the vice admiral who ran the Iran operation, may have to be fired.

Senate Democratic leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, asked by CBS News whether Poindexter should be removed, said, "He certainly has not served the president well. ... He may have to go. But I don't believe that a single scapegoat is going to solve the administration's problems."

Reagan also was urged to convene a conference of outside foreign policy experts to review the White House decision-making process.

House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas, after hearing Casey's report, said he has been told the Iranians paid $12 million for the U.S. weapons they received — including 2,008 anti-tank weapons — depositing the money in an account at a bank in Switzerland.

Group takes responsibility for slaying

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Communist New People's Army claimed responsibility for the slaying of a political ally of Defense Minister Juan Ponce Enrile, two Manila newspapers said today.

"We cannot allow fascist criminals to freely roam without punishment," said a letter purported to be from the guerrillas and published in the Philippine Daily Express and the Philippine Inquirer.

"True peace will remain elusive for as long as they are not punished," the papers quoted the letter as saying.

The Enrile ally, businessman David Puzon, was shot to death Wednesday along with his driver and a factory manager in an ambush. An official involved in the investigation said he did not see a copy of the letter but that the report seemed credible.

Military officials have said they believe the ambush, by gunmen disguised as women, was the work of Communists.

Chief of staff Gen. Fidel C. Ramos issue a statement today saying Puzon's murder shows that the Communist-led National Democratic Front coalition, which is conducting peace talks with the government on behalf of the rebels, has "very little control of NPA commanders in the field."

"While the NDF is talking peace in Manila, the NPA ... is assassinating people and attacking town halls," Ramos said.

Meanwhile, about 200 soldiers and officers closely identified with Enrile rallied today at a military camp in Cebu City to urge a tougher stand against the guerrillas and the removal of Cabinet members the military claims are incompetent.

The rally, about 350 miles south of Manila, was led by Lt. Col. Tiburcio Fusillero, who was provincial military commander until recently being accused of roughing up an official investigating alleged human rights violations by the military.

Fusillero claimed that President Corazon Aquino did not have a concrete plan for implementing a cease-fire she is trying to negotiate with the rebels.

Ramos and other senior generals asked Mrs. Aquino on Friday to fire what he called "Cabinet officials who have not performed adquately." Ramos did not name the ministers the military wanted fired, but denied he sought to purge lefists from the Cabinet.

A local television station on Friday quoted presidential spokesman Teodoro Benigno as saying Mrs. Aquino was about to replace one or two Cabinet members. Benigno, contacted by The Associated Press, denied saying that.

In Hawaii, deposed President Ferdinand E. Marcos said in an interview Friday that his supporters had no role in the killings of Puzon and leftist labor leader Rolando Olalia, whose body was found Nov. 13.

Marcos said Mrs. Aquino has lost control of her government. "My belief is that without lifting a finger, just sitting here, the government of Madame Aquino will collapse."

Marcos, the former president, fled to Hawaii in February after Ramos and Enrile led the revolt that placed Mrs. Aquino in power.

12 arrests noted here

Police logged 12 misdemeanor arrests Friday evening including one shoplifting suspect and 11 jailed on alcohol-related charges.

A 31-year-old male suspect was taken into custody at 8:19 p.m. following a report from employees of the Furr's supermarket who said they had a shoplifter in their custody.

A total of eight subjects — five men and three women — were charged with consuming alcohol after hours after midnight Friday.

Two of the men were also charged with public intoxication.

Other arrests included one person under 21 charged with minor in possession of alcohol, one charged with being intoxicated on a premises licensed to sell alcohol, and one charged with a single count of public intoxication.

Case appeals will be lengthy

cond time, the defendant would most likely carry the appeal to the federal district courts.

At that point, according to Armstrong, a number of federal district courts could become involved in the case including those in Lubbock — having jurisdiction over Snyder where the crime occurred and the case tried — and the court having jurisdiction over Huntsville — where Johnson will be held.

Rulings in the state's favor in the federal district courts would then be appealed to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Once in the federal courts, the case could, in Armstrong's words, "bounce around (between district courts and the 5th circuit) two or three times" before a final ruling is issued.

Once a final ruling is issued in New Orleans, Johnson would still have a right to petition to the U.S. Supreme Court for a hearing as the court of last resort.

In Armstrong's evaluation, it is unlikely that the Supreme Court would accept this particular case for review.

The multiple execution dates would result from the multiple rulings expected on the appeals.

Each time the conviction is affirmed by an appellate court, Johnson would be given a new execution date.

Each time the conviction is appealed to a new court, any previously set execution date would be wiped out pending a ruling on the new appeal.

Throngs pay respect to slain drug kingpin

CHICAGO (AP) — Thousands of people paid their respects to a reputed drug kingpin as he lay in a glass-topped mahogany casket, wearing a blue silk suit, tinted glasses and snakeskin shoes and clutching a phone to his chest.

Flower arrangements decorated with dice and poker cards surrounded Willie "Flukey" Stokes' casket at Friday's funeral.

Stokes, 49, who favored gold chains and a diamond earring, was gunned down Tuesday in what police described as an ambush.

In the casket, his hands clutched a white mobile phone of the type he used to conduct his affairs.

"He's into business, so the calls will come in to him so he can keep track of his business," said Michael Beal, 19, who identified himself as an acquaintance of the departed.

The funeral was not as flashy as the one Stokes arranged for his son, Willie "The Wimp" Stokes, who was shot to death two years ago and buried in a $10,000 Cadillac-shaped casket.

Mourning relatives at that service placed $1,000 bills between the deceased's fingers as his body reclined behind the steering wheel of the casket.

The elder Stokes was to be buried today at a South Side cemetery. Police estimated that 7,000 people filed past his casket on Friday.

Most of those who waited in the block-long line in front of the funeral home were curious spectators who wanted to glimpse the man who had become a living legend on the South Side.

"As far as I can see he was really nice, passing money around, and I was very sorry I didn't come into contact with him because I could have used the money," said Ora Head, 42, who said she came to see how Stokes was dressed.

Police said they are continuing to investigate the shootings of Stokes and his driver, Ronald Johnson, 48, who were slain as they sat in a car on the South Side.

Cotton outlook reported here

surance payments have allowed many cotton growers to shred fields which might otherwise have been harvested.

The $17,000 expense outlay approved this year will pay for the 1986 scouting program. It involved some 3,500 acres with most acreage scouted twice weekly. Myers, in her role as county entomologist, supervises the program.

Boll weevil pheromone trap monitoring was conducted also during 1986. It was noted trap catches were above the past two years, but not as high as 1983.

In general, the 1986 season was characterized as very high in insect numbers. These included fleahoppers, bollworms, aphids and armyworms.

Obituaries

Zula Owen

RANGER--Services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Sunday at Edwards Funeral Home for Mrs. Zula Owen, 71, who died Thursday in a Ft. Worth hospital.

Burial will follow in the Evergreen Cemetery.

Born in Eastland County, she was the sister of Bill Ervin of Snyder.

She had lived in Ranger most of her life and was a member of the Lampasas Church of Christ. She was a housewife and seamstress and had worked as an Avon salesperson.

Her husband, Maurice, preceded her in death.

Survivors include two sons, Maurice E. Owen of Arlington and Robert A. Owen of Longview; another brother, Lloyd Ervin of Albany, Ga.; one sister, Leta Fyfee of Lubbock; and four grandchildren.

Unusual disease affects appetite

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — At 22, after a lifetime of searching, my daughter was told she had Prader-Willi Syndrome. Few doctors are knowledgeable about this disease. What can you tell us about it?

DEAR READER — Prader-Willi syndrome is an unusual disease marked by lack of muscle tone, mental retardation and a phenomenal appetite. Children with the condition literally will eat everything in sight. It's not unusual for them to clean out the refrigerator in one sitting unless parents have padlocked the door. The cause is thought to be a lack of hormones from the pituitary gland or a malfunction of the brain's appetite center. Mild diabetes often accompanies the syndrome. The biochemical cause of Prader-Willi disease may be due to a chromosomal abnormality. The disease usually occurs sporadically, but familial cases have been reported.

DEAR DR. GOTT — On my package of K-Lyte there is a warning that in cases of hyperkalemia, it could cause cardiac arrest. What is hyperkalemia?

DEAR READER — Hyperkalemia is too much potassium in the bloodstream. Excess potassium causes nausea, diarrhea, muscle weakness and a form of heart stoppage called ventricular fibrillation. The product you are taking contains potassium, hence the warning about overdose.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have had glaucoma for 30 years. I was able to keep the pressure down using a variety of drops until last year, when I had laser treatments. Now the pressure is up again. Should I have another laser treatment or should I try more drops? My doctor is so busy that I've had to tell him about the new drops available.

DEAR READER — I don't know whether you are a candidate for further laser therapy or if you will need to take medicine. One way or another, the eye pressure must be kept down. An ophthalmologist can help you decide which type of treatment to use. Find one who is not too busy to give your eyes the attention they need.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Recently, during a physical exam, the blood test showed I have an SGOT level of 63. I do not drink alcohol or take aspirin. Could you tell me what this test indicates? My doctor does not feel it is a problem.

DEAR READER — SGOT is medical shorthand for serum glutamic oxaloacetictransaminase, an enzyme found in the liver and heart and muscle tissue. Ordinarily, small amounts of the enzyme are released into the bloodstream and can be measured. If liver damage is present or if there has been heart or muscle damage, more of the enzyme appears in the blood. In hepatitis or heart attacks, for example, SGOT can be elevated to several hundred times normal. Your value seems to be minimally elevated, if at all. I'd have it rechecked in several months, if your other blood tests were normal.

Another 'cure' bites the dust

Alternative methods of healing is a popular concept today. It means curing disease in a manner that bypasses traditional medicine. It's not new; for centuries, people have been seeking unique techniques by which to pass Go, collect $50 and avoid the medical establishment. Some systems, such as rituals performed by primitive shamans, rarely seem to work — except for a few diseases. Other procedures, such as spinal manipulation and hypnosis, have actually been incorporated into modern medical practice. Still other activities — acupuncture, for example — appear to have intermediate roles; they are being tested but have not been adopted by Western scientists.

Certain alternative methods are simply quack remedies: Laetrile, orthomolecular psychiatry, megavitamin therapy, high colonics and a host of other pseudo-scientific get-rich-quick schemes.

Thanks to a considerate reader, I have received a brochure from an oxygen-promoting organization that details a new form of knavery called oxygen therapy, which bears no relation to the oxygen you inhale in the hospital when you're sick. By following simple directions, I can mix plain old hydrogen peroxide (H_2O_2) with water so that, when swallowed, the tonic allegedly will clean out the most recalcitrant digestive tract. In fact, the brochure boasts that this fizzy turbo-cleaning "is capable of eliminating microorganisms in the human body to the extent that arthritis, cancer, ulcers, hives and a total of 35 diseases could be eliminated or controlled."

As a doctor who embraces scientific methods, I am automatically skeptical of claims that boost any common compound as a cure for 35 diseases. Even the newest antibiotic cures only half a dozen ailments. When I was growing up, about the only use for peroxide was for women who wanted to dye their hair.

Nonetheless, I wanted to understand the scientific principles behind oxygen therapy. I paid careful attention to the pamphlet's revelations about disease. My study was a real education for me, as I am sure it will be for you. This is what I learned:

Apparently, there are millions of microorganisms in our bodies (so far, so good). These germs are competing with us for nutrition and oxygen (true, no doubt). In the process of carrying out their little, malignant, self-centered lives, the microorganisms:

— "gnaw away at the joints (inflammatory arthritis)."

— "give off calcium waste matter that cements bones together."

— "lodge in liver and kidneys, and with their bile form stones."

— "live in the very lining of the arteries and leave their hard deposits on the walls of the arteries."

— "cling to the lining of the nervous system and short circuit some of the electronics in the central computer of the brain."

— "attack cells and enter them, building cocoons around the stricken cell; thus cutting off the blood supply and causing the cell to lose its specific function so that it can only live and multiply into cancerous tumors."

Whoa! Hold the phone. This bit of reductionist biophysiology turns the scientific world upside down. Is it possible that 200 years of carefully collected data, the lifework of thousands of legitimate investigators, is going to be dissolved by dilute amounts of H_2O_2? Unlikely.

The information contained in the pamphlet is presented as fact. Herein lies the flaw of many alternative healing methods. In attempting to define a rationale for gulping peroxide, the promoters have altered the facts to form a new, fanciful model of health and disease. In scientific medicine, the reverse is ordinarily true. Based on facts that are patiently collected, sifted and analyzed, scientists then pattern a treatment based on those facts.

Bacteria do not nibble at joints and cement bones together. Germs do not form bile. Microorganisms do not live in cocoons around dying cells. Even if they did these things, how could enough peroxide be consumed to make the slightest difference? People with arthritis, gallstones, arteriosclerosis and nerve disorders would be better served by demanding appropriate treatment that has been tested and found valuable. Hydrogen peroxide is a good antiseptic for external use. It should be reserved for that purpose ... and for women who are convinced that blondes have more fun.

Former farmer turns to counseling others

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — A few years ago, Roy Keith was raising wheat, cotton and grain and running cattle in King County.

But that was before Farmers Home Administration officials told him they could only help him stay in the business for one more year.

"It was a matter of choice, but the door was closing," said Keith, now pastor of United Methodist Church in Trent. "I chose to get out."

Now the Rev. Mr. Keith, like a lot of rural area ministers, is preaching to farmers and ranchers who are suffering through bad times.

Those who are walking a financial tightrope, Keith said, need ministers who understand their problems.

That's why a group, made up mostly of ministers, got together earlier this week for a Rural Crisis Resource Fair at McMurry College.

"The church's role is to be there as a friend, to be understanding, to be a resource," said Keith, who, as part of the United Methodist Churches, has helped put together other "Farm Crisis" seminars featuring topics ranging from stress to farm strategies.

Those in attendance at the "Rural Crisis" seminar this week learned what government and private resources are available to troubled farmers, what the agriculture situation is and how it got that way.

Speakers said hard times on the farm are nothing new.

"This farm crisis is not unique to the history of the United States," said Joe Wilson, Taylor County Agriculture Extension Agent.

But the difference today is that there are fewer farmers suffering from the "crisis."

When the United States was more an agrarian society, a farm crisis hurt most of the population, he said.

"Today's farmer, when he is going under, looks around and sees people who are not like him," Wilson said. "He feels isolated."

Texas Department of Agriculture statistics show the number of farmers "going under" continues to mount.

Agency: drug tests must precede hiring of agents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Customs Service said Friday it is instituting a hiring freeze for 3,000 positions involving narcotics interdiction because a federal judge overturned the agency's employee drug-testing program.

Customs Commissioner William von Raab said in a statement filed in U.S. District Court in New Orleans that the hiring, part of the Reagan administration's and Congress' stepped-up war on drugs, "cannot go forward at this time without drug screening."

He said the agency wants to test incoming agents in sensitive positions for drug use to protect the integrity of the Customs Service's drug interdiction efforts.

Von Raab's decision came as the Justice Department announced it was appealing a Nov. 12 decision by U.S. District Judge Robert F. Collins declaring that the agency's drug testing program was unconstitutional.

Robert Tobias, president of the National Treasury Employees Union, which filed the lawsuit leading to the court ruling, said von Raab's decision to institute a hiring freeze was "outrageous."

Von Raab is "jeopardizing the nation by attempting to blackmail the court by requiring Customs employees to surrender their constitutional rights as ransom," said Tobias.

"Von Raab agrees that there is not now nor has there ever been a drug problem among Customs workers," said Tobias.

Convicted man free on bond

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A Mexican businessman has been arrested 12 years after he was convicted on federal drug charges while a fugitive.

Gabriel Cepeda-Leal, 48, was released from jail earlier this week after posting $75,000 of a $150,000 bond, authorities said.

A lawyer representing Cepeda-Leal said he may appeal the conviction because the man, who skipped bond just before his trial began in 1974, was absent when he was convicted.

Cepeda-Leal, who was arrested in Dallas last month, has agreed to live in McAllen while out on bond.

The case against him began in August 1974 when he was indicted on a charge of conspiracy to distribute marijuana.

Court records indicate he was involved with undercover drug agents for the sale of 5,000 to 7,000 pounds of marijuana.

He was convicted by a federal court jury and a sentencing date of Dec. 13, 1974, was set by U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears.

Cepeda-Leal never appeared for his sentencing date and was not sentenced.

Haunted by childhood killing...

Fired official commits suicide

WAYLAND, Mass. (AP) — A former town official who stirred headlines when it was learned that as a child he had killed a playmate has now committed suicide, and friends said Friday he had never forgiven himself for the crime.

The body of Albert Thompson, 32, the former executive director of the housing authority in this Boston suburb, was found hanging by an electrical cord from a drain pipe in the basement of the Sweet Sis Cheesecake Co. in Newton, where he worked as an assistant to the manager. His death Wednesday night was ruled a suicide.

"We all knew he was suicidal," said Marion Powers, administrative assistant at the housing authority. "He had a lot of friends that care about him, but I don't think he knew it."

"He just couldn't forgive himself," said Patricia Nichols, who had been his assistant at the housing authority. "He couldn't accept it."

Housing Authority members knew Thompson's background when he was hired and supported him when his past became public. Differences with Thompson over how his job should be performed led to the board voting 4-1 not to renew his contract in May.

But Thompson told The Associated Press in June that his firing stemmed from pressure the board came under because of his past.

In 1967, Thompson had killed 6-year-old Mark Dupuis by stabbing him 26 times. Thompson, who was 12 at the time, said he lost control after a stray flip of the knife in a game of mumblety-peg hit the boy's chest and he would not stop crying.

Thompson went to a reform school for the killing, then drifted for years before getting a job running a prison pre-release program in New Hampshire. He returned to his hometown 18 years after the murder and was hired in June 1985 as the housing authority's executive director.

He became involved with tenants' organizations and a local theater, where he landed a bit part in a musical earlier this year.

But rumors about his past began to circulate and hate mail began to arrive at the theater, his car window was smashed and residents in the town of 12,000 people began to question why the housing board had hired him.

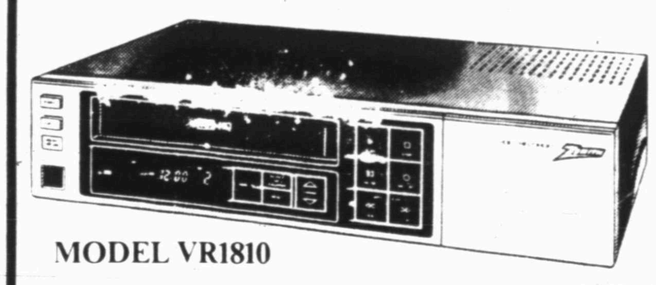

Although he initially denied knowledge of the boy's death, Thompson decided to tell his story last year to dispel the rumors.

Scurry County Folks...

By Vicki Brown

The annual reunion of Company G of the 142 Infantry, 36th Division, this weekend brought back 40-year-old memories for Maurine Swint of southeast Scurry County.

Maurine is one of several wives who attend the yearly affair with their husbands, who were known as "Matney's Raiders" in the European theater during World War II.

A few women, like Maurine, chose to travel with the unit to different training locations in this country prior to their service overseas.

Formed as a National Guard unit in the 1930s, Company G attracted local young men who "joined for spending money and adventure." One of those youth who wanted "a little pocket money," Robert "Bob" Swint enlisted for a one-year stint when the unit was mobilized in January, 1941. The group began training in Brownwood.

Bob and Maurine married in Texarkana on July 3, 1941. On that same date, two other Company G soldiers and their fiancees — Jess and Maurine King and L.B. and Billie McCravey — were also married.

The attack at Pearl Harbor stretched Bob's service from one year to five. "At the time we got married, we believed his year would be completed in December. We came back to Snyder (Bob's home) for two weeks. Later, he found me an apartment in Brownwood," Maurine said.

When she learned the men would not be released at the end of the year, she noted, "It was devastating because all our plans had to be tossed out the window. Can you imagine being a new wife and facing the prospect of not really having your husband for at least three more years?"

Maurine decided to travel as much as possible with Bob because "of the desire to be with my husband, just like any young wife, and because he always wanted me to be with him."

Traveling across country proved to be an eye-opener for a sheltered Texas girl. "I didn't know about all these exotic things except in a social studies book," she explained.

When Company G was sent to Camp Blanding, Fla., for training in February, 1942, she boarded a train to join her husband.

While the unit was stationed in Florida, recruits from northeastern states were placed with them. "Company G had the responsibility for training them. This group went through the war together," she noted.

Maurine returned to Snyder as the soldiers moved to North Carolina for maneuvers in July. But when he called and asked her to join him, she immediately packed and headed east.

Because she had driven only in Snyder, she asked Mary Nell Reynolds to accompany her. Maurine King, Maurine Neidecken and Ouita Pitner and her two sons completed the entourage.

The trip to North Carolina helped Maurine realize that she could weather problems as they arose. During the war, many items including gasoline had to be rationed. Confident she had enough gas stamps for the trip (she had been told her stamps would be accepted in North Carolina), the women began their journey.

Low on gas after nearly reaching their destination, they stopped to refuel. "But the stamps were not good and it was already 5 o'clock that afternoon and we couldn't get more stamps. We ran out of gas right in front of a police station," Maurine said.

She and Mrs. Reynolds remained with the car that night while their companions accepted beds offered by an officer with the juvenile department. "The next morning we got tickets from the ration board for just enough gas to get to Charlotte where our husbands were to meet us. They found a taxi driver who helped us get gas that weekend to be able to get back to camp."

That August the men were sent to Camp Edwards, Mass., to complete their training. "Mary Nell decided to return to Snyder, so I had to drive to Massachusetts myself," Maurine explained. A little afraid to attempt finding her way through unfamiliar territory, she followed Ona Mae Spence — another adventurous West Texas wife.

Maurine now laughs when she remembers how terrified some aspects of the trip were. "We decided to get up early and go through Washington, D.C. There were eight lanes of traffic when we were only used to two.

"I had to drive onto a double deck ferry for two miles and we went through the Holland Tunnel in New York during a blackout," she said.

Their most memorable experience came when they took a wrong turn and found themselves in the New York harbor area. "A man told us we were a long way from our highway. He rode on Ona Mae's running board for several miles to get us back to the right road," she explained.

After arriving at Onset near Camp Edwards, the women reached a summer cottage the men had rented. "Because it was the off-season, the summer cottages were the only things available. We had a four bedroom cottage for four couples.

"Unfortunately they were not winterized. Once when it was 30 degrees below zero, our breath froze in little ice balls on the walls."

The men remained on the base during the week, but were granted a weekend pass to remain with their families. "Each couple put $5 a week in the kitty for groceries. I'm amazed that $20 fed all eight people," she added.

Because the cottages were used mainly during the warm summer months, they contained no showers or bathtubs. A shower was attached to an outside wall so that swimmers could rinse before changing clothes.

Maurine explained that rationing also caused homeowners to install "quarter-meter stoves." The gas stove was timed to offer heat for a specific period per quarter inserted in a cash box. "We always made sure we had quarters," she laughed.

Later, she shared a brick home with Mrs. Pitner until the soldiers were sent to Camp A.P. Hill in Virginia.

"While there, we lived in an apartment house owned by a single lady. She would not heat

Nannies find role in American homes

SEATTLE (AP) — The English nanny — with her whalebone-stiff, starched white uniform and spoonful of sugar — is dead. Long live the new American nanny!

Wearing sweatshirts and jeans, students in Seattle Central Community College's Certified Nanny Training Program bear little resemblance to their Victorian counterparts. But they are as capable as they are casual.

According to the mother of Washington's first nanny school, 61-year-old Gloria Myre, they're also the answer to the child care crisis in this country.

Of three private nanny schools in England, Norland Nursery Training College near London is the most famous. Founded nearly a century ago, it was considered quite revolutionary in its day. Then, as now, people asked, "Why does anyone need special training to care for children?"

At the close of World War II, the National Nursery Examination Board was established by an act of Parliament to train and certify nursery nurses, as English mothers went to work outside the home for the first time in history. Since then, about 40 polytechnic schools, the equivalent of American community colleges, have begun to offer nanny training programs.

While there has never been a bigger market in the United States for NNEB-certified nursery nurses, in the past five years immigration laws have made it nearly impossible to hire an English nanny.

Nanny training courses started to emerge in this country in the early 1980s. In 1985, Mrs. Myre and 30 other members of the National Association for the Education of Young Children formed the American Council of Nanny Schools to set standards for programs in this country. Before that, she says, "Anybody who wanted to could call herself a nanny."

Natural-born nannies are special people, insists Mrs. Myre. It's not enough to love children; they must also be stable, independent and self-assured.

"They're not just someone who can't do anything else. Parents want a mature, trained professional," says Mrs. Myre.

Students in the Seattle Central Community College nanny program range from 19 to 40 years of age. Some of them have families of their own. There are even two men in the nanny program. Mrs. Myre calls them "mannies."

The four-quarter vocational program includes classes in child and family development, as well as skills courses and practical child care experience in three different settings.

For two quarters, students spend 10 hours per week taking care of children in five Early Childhood Care and Education laboratories, where 65 infants and toddlers are coddled in sunny, spacious playrooms.

Nannies next spend three hours per week for one quarter at Childrens Orthopedic Hospital, an experience Mrs. Myre says "really opens up their eyes to caring for sick children." Students work in the hospital's infant intensive care department, the parents' resource room, and supervise arts and crafts activities for young patients on the wards.

Finally, students are placed in private homes. Nanny instructors go out into the field to supervise their work, and parents agree to keep track of students' progress.

DECEMBER WEDDING PLANNED — Mr. and Mrs. Herman A. Hanzalik of Chickasha, Okla. (former Snyder residents) announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Cynthia Renae, to Robert Ray Richter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin R. Richter of Snyder. The couple will exchange vows at 3:30 p.m. on Dec. 13 at Epworth United Methodist Church in Chickasha. (Family Photo)

Pressure all around

By James Jacoby

Mike Edwards had an interesting deal to show me at the St. Louis regional in August. Mike, sitting South, arrived in three no-trump. Prospects weren't great after the opening lead, but there are always chances when you have eight tricks off the top. Cashing a lot of tricks can put the defenders under some pressure, and that was Mike's plan.

He grabbed the first trick and ran four rounds of clubs, West throwing a spade. Declarer next played king and ace of spades, West shedding a heart. Now Mike played the heart 10. His plan was to force West to lead away from the king of diamonds he presumably held. Although East had the king all along, look what happened. West blithely took all four of his heart winners. On the last heart East had to reduce to two cards, and he telegraphed his agony. Eventually, to keep a high spade, East blanked his diamond king. By this time Mike had the right reading, and so when West led the jack of diamonds, declarer played low from the Q-6 in dummy and made his contract when the king came up.

Although declarer played well, West could still have won the day had he taken only three high hearts and then played the jack of diamonds. Then East would have been able to both preserve a high spade and keep his diamond king guarded, and the contract would have failed.

SCULPTURES TO BE DISPLAYED — Bronze sculptures by artist Pamela Gilbreth Watkins will be displayed at Snyder National Bank Dec. 1-12. (Rendezvous Bronze Works Photo)

Sculpture exhibit slated

Bronze sculptures created by former Snyder resident Pamela Gilbreth Watkins will be featured during a holiday exhibit Dec. 1 through Dec. 12 at Snyder National Bank.

Mrs. Watkins will be present for an informal reception at the bank's facilities from noon to 3 p.m. on Dec. 3. The event is open to the public.

Exposed to painting and sculpture since childhood, Mrs. Watkins' interest in literature and in historical, cultural and religious expressions was reenforced at Tarleton State University where she received the Distinguished Student Award and at Western Texas College where she was named Outstanding Art Student.

Her award-winning work deals with subjects ranging from familiar contemporary scenes to the American Indian and European, Mediterranean and Biblical themes. She has received numerous special commissions and is widely exhibited throughout the state.

She pursues her art expression in Buffalo Gap. With her husband, Doug, she owns Rendezvous Bronze Works where her sculpture is cast under direct supervision.

Watkins gained his casting expertise while managing Warrior Creek Foundry, and while working in Snyder for Terry Gilbreth. He later managed Hidetown Bronze Works in Snyder which he eventually purchased, combining it with foundry facilities at the Buffalo Gap Historic Village.

The couple regularly conducts tours, lectures and demonstrations for the Abilene Convention and Visitors Bureau, the Abilene Fine Arts Museum, for area schools and colleges and for private groups.

FDR: THE NEW DEAL YEARS, 1933-1937. By Kenneth S. Davis. The third and most impressive volume of Davis' grand, sweeping history of America begins in one of the darkest hours of the republic. The whole capitalistic world was gripped by economic depression, and democracy everywhere was in retreat against a relentless totalitarianism. The American people were demoralized. Into this darkening scene came a bold, confident president-elect. Davis' opening narrative describes Roosevelt's inauguration and its revitalizing impact upon the nation. Davis manages to imbue with suspense a story whose outcome we know, so that the Democratic victory of 1932 becomes an adventure.

water until the men came in. If there was any warm water left, we (the women) got to bathe. She didn't have much use for women because another woman had stolen her sweetheart," Maurine said.

A few months later, the women followed the soldiers to the coast and watched them board the ship bound for North Africa. Admitting that she would have boarded the ship too if that had been possible, Maurine added, "That was as far as the wives could go and we all went to bawling."

She returned to Snyder to visit Bob's parents, then headed for her family's home in Texarkana to work. For two years, she centered her life around Bob's letters.

Members of the 36th Division saw action in six European campaigns, fighting in Southern France, Central Europe and Germany. The men fought some of the bloodiest battles of the war and were among the first American troops to invade Italy at Salerno on Sept. 9, 1943.

"Sometimes the only thing we ever knew was by watching the local news," Maurine said.

She also lived with the fear that Bob might not return. "Once I received a telegram. A week earlier a friend had received word that her husband was killed. And a few days before (her telegram arrived) another friend heard her husband had been wounded. When I saw the Western Union car pull up out front, I nearly walked over my father while trying to get to the door. I just knew something had happened to Bob. But it was just a telegram congratulating us for our anniversary."

Bob was the last of the original 1941 enlistees in Company G to return when the war ended in 1945. Offered a commission, he turned down an Army career and retired as a first sergeant.

He returned to Scurry County to farm.

The annual Company G reunion began at the Towle Park Barn in 1973 and attracts members now living in Iowa, Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, Illinois, Colorado, New York, North Carolina, South Carolina, Pennsylvania and California.

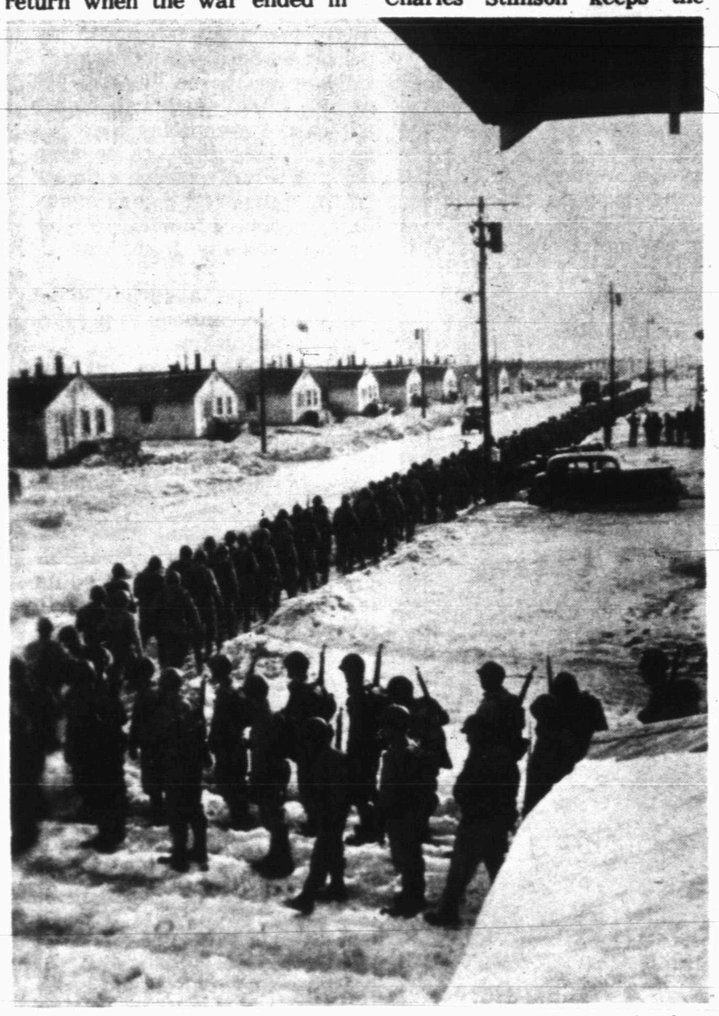

Charles Stimson keeps the group in touch with one another throughout the year with a quarterly newsletter. "I think that's the secret of our unity," Maurine said.

In addition to a business session, the members spend two days visiting. A memorial service is also conducted to honor former members who have died.

"I really think the reunion is as much for the wives as the men, because it gives us an opportunity to remember how we handled the war years too," Maurine noted.

The reunion is held on the weekend nearest the anniversary of the unit's mobilization on Nov 25.

Serving as reunion officers this year were Don Adams, president; Lynn Fenton, first vice president; Bob Swint, second vice president; Rae Adams, treasurer; and Alonzo Johnson, chaplain. John Portis, Kenneth Painter, Wyatt Swint and Bob McKinney serve on the group's board of directors.

May question assumptions

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Astronomers may have to question some assumptions about the nature of the universe in the wake of theories presented by Emil Wolf, professor of physics at the University of Rochester.

Wolf says he found that some kinds of light do not behave in a consistent manner. It's been thought that it doesn't matter how far away from a light source you are when you measure the light's spectrum. But Wolf found that for certain types of light, the spectrum does change with the distance.

This is important, Wolf says, because astronomers use the measurements of spectra to learn about the temperature, distance and nature of stars and other celestial bodies.

If you try to tell your doctor what is on your mind, you will be interrupted within 18 seconds on average after you start describing your problems. That was the case in 52 of 74 videotaped interviews by researchers at a university in Detroit.

TALKING TURKEY SAFETY

Turkey isn't a hazardous food, but what the cook does — or doesn't — do to the bird can literally make you sick.

Like all protein foods, turkey can harbor food poisoning bacteria, such as salmonella. Because it's a large, dense food that requires several steps in preparation, bacteria have even more opportunity to grow if proper precautions aren't taken.

While food-borne illnesses are rarely fatal, they can cause unpleasant symptoms that can last for several hours or even days. Medical experts estimate that a high percentage of symptoms attributed to overeating or flu are actually food-borne illness.

Nutrition specialists advise the following precautions in preparing a stuffed turkey:

—Thaw the turkey in the refrigerator as recommended on the package directions. Thawing the bird in a microwave oven or by putting it in a watertight package under cold running water are also safe thawing methods. But don't thaw the turkey by letting it sit on the kitchen counter since room temperatures allow bacteria to grow.

—Wash the defrosted turkey thoroughly, running water inside and outside. Drain the body cavity and wipe the turkey fairly dry.

—Stuff the turkey right before you cook it. Warm, moist dressing is an ideal medium in which bacteria can grow.

You can prepare the dry stuffing ingredients the day before, cover them tightly and leave at room temperature. But keep the perishable ingredients, such as butter, mushrooms, oysters, cooked celery, onions and broth in the refrigerator. Then combine ingredients just before stuffing the turkey.

—Cook the turkey in a 325 degree oven. Cooking in a very slow oven at 200 to 250 degrees is not recommended. Because of the low temperature, the turkey and stuffing could take more than four hours to reach a high enough temperature to destroy bacteria.

—Make sure the turkey is fully cooked. Insert a meat thermometer into the thickest part of the thigh muscle without touching the bone. Then cook the bird until it reaches 180 degrees fahrenheit to destroy salmonella bacteria.

—Once the turkey is completely cooked, remove all the stuffing from the cavities. Harmful bacteria is more likely to grow in the stuffing if it sits in the bird after cooking.

—After dinner, refrigerate the turkey and stuffing immediately. Food poisoning bacteria can grow quickly in high protein food left at room temperature.

CHECK HEAT SYSTEM TO IMPROVE EFFICIENCY

Cooler weather has brought relief both from the heat and high air conditioning bills. But another kind of heat — from the furnace — will begin to drive utility costs up again.

Fine-tuning your heating system may help hold utility costs down by increasing its efficiency.

Gas heating systems should be checked and cleaned at least every other year.

Dirt accumulation inside the furnace is difficult to remove and reduces heating efficiency.

Electric furnaces don't need much maintenance, but heat pumps require periodic servicing. A trained service technician can clean and adjust your system to assure maximum efficiency.

With a forced air system, simply keeping the filters clean will help save money.

The entire volume of air in a house is circulated through the furnace three to four times in a single hour of operation.

The furnace filter traps airborne lint and dirt, preventing it from coating the fan and furnace heat exchanger. But when the filter accumulates dirt, it begins to restrict the air flow and heating efficiency.

Filters should be checked every four to six weeks during the heating season, and dirty filters should be replaced promptly.

Disposable fiberglass filters cost 50 cents to a dollar each, so you may find it easiest to buy a season's supply and keep them on hand.

Metallic or plastic filters can be cleaned and reused, but they must be sprayed after each cleaning with a special coating that allows them to attract small dust particles.

Mains are polyethylene

DALLAS (A) — More than 80 percent of all gas mains being installed to supply natural gas to homes and plants in the United States are made of polyethylene, one of the most widely used plastics.

The trend away from steel has grown in recent years.

TO CELEBRATE GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY — Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Stipe will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary with a reception Saturday from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Union Community Center. County residents for the past 44 years, the Stipes have four children including three sons, Mike, Robert and Gary, and a daughter Billie Marie Houk. They also have nine grandchildren. (Family Photo)

SCS Notes

By Sam Buchanan
District Conservationist

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District will be selling windbreak trees from now until Feb. 13, 1987, according to Charlie Henderson, chairman of the board of directors.

The types of trees the district plans to sell include Mondell Pine, Native Plum, Desert Willow, Skunkbush Sumac, Scotch Pine, Russian Olive, Green Ash, Hackberry, Black Walnut, Osage Orange (Bois-d-'arc), Arizona Cypress, Austrian Pine, Ponderosa Pine, Bur Oak, Pecan and Eastern Red Cedar.

Originating in the regions of Southwest Asia, the Mondell Pine will reach a height of about 18 feet in five years, and some 40 feet in 15 years. This pine can be used for windbreaks as well as for landscaping.

The Russian Olive is a fast growing shrub or small tree that is excellent for wildlife. Its beautiful foliage also makes an excellent large hedge.

The Native Plum is also excellent for wildlife and its fruit can be used for preserves and jelly.

Protection from rodents and wind should be planned for the trees by using cans, containers, shingles, hailscreens, old tires, etc.

Water is essential. A minimum of five to eight gallons per tree each week will be needed the first growing season and about 10 gallons the second growing season. An inexpensive "drip" irrigation system is recommended. The system can be constructed with plastic pipe and emitter tubes and is also available through the conservation district.

Payment for trees is due upon placement of the order. Refunds will be offered if delivery is not completed. Due to variables in weather conditions and care required, no guarantee of liveability is made.

Because of a shortage of some trees, orders should be placed as soon as possible.

Order forms can be picked up at the Soil Conservation Service office in the Snyder Shopping Center at 3423 Avenue T. Individuals may also request a form by calling 573-1268. Conservation personnel can be contacted for additional information.

Couple wed in Lubbock

Mr. and Mrs. John Leftwich of Snyder announce the marriage of their daughter, Linda Viscousi to James Pritchett. The couple exchanged vows Nov. 15 in Lubbock.

After a honeymoon trip to New Mexico, the couple will reside in Snyder.

First Baptist will be site for Neill recital

Kristi Neill will present a senior piano recital Sunday at 3 p.m. in the First Baptist Church chapel. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Neill of Snyder.

An active member of First Baptist Church, she participates in youth activities and the music program including youth choir and youth ensemble. She also assists with the children's choir program.

A senior at Snyder High School, she has served as accompanist for the a capella choir for four years. She was selected for the All-District Choir in her freshman, sophomore and senior years, the All-Zone Choir in her junior year, the All-Region Choir in her freshman, junior and senior years, and named an alternate to the All-Area Choir as a junior.

In addition, she has ranked scholastically in the top ten in her class each year and has been a member of the National Honor Society for two years.

An SHS golfer for two years, Kristi is active in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. She was 1985 Football Sweetheart and a 1986 Homecoming Queen nominee.

Entered in the National Piano Guild audition for the past 11 years, she has earned the Top Critics Circle rating eight times. In 1984, she earned the Paderewski Gold Medal. Kristi studied under Judy Neill for 10 years. Barbara Perkins has served as her instructor for the past three years.

Kristi plans to major in music at Baylor University upon graduation from Snyder High. She will audition for a music scholarship to Baylor on Jan. 31.

Heart symptoms noted

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you have trouble breathing when you climb stairs or take a short walk?

It could be a symptom of heart trouble, says Dr. Frank Field in Family Circle magazine.

A healthy heart must pump more than 8,400 quarts of blood throughout the body each day. A damaged heart, unable to do the job efficiently, allows fluid to collect where it doesn't belong.

When fluid builds up in the lungs, you become short of breath if you exert yourself. If your ankles become swollen for no apparent reason it might be because the fluid has collected in your legs.

Children feel safe at home, school

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — Children feel safer at home and at school than in other places, according to a survey conducted by the Weekly Reader classroom newspaper.

A study of nearly 400,000 children in grades 2-6 found that the kids were most often afraid in stores and shopping centers. But the survey indicated that older children are less fearful than younger ones.

The "eddie-tur" will see you now.

That's what Crazy Helen, a bookkeeper-slash-ad seller used to call us back when we roosted at a Panhandle weekly some 10 years back.

Helen didn't much care for the "news" end of the paper business. She figured the ads paid the bills and the news was what got you all of those irate telephone calls.

So, folks coming in the front door with news business got directed to the "eddie-tur's" office.

Her pronunciation forever ruined the title for us, consequently we wince everytime we're introduced as the editor of anything.

For if a writer writes, an editor must "edit." Put another way, it means you spend your day looking at people's private stuff.

In this respect, "eddie-ting" is not unlike other professions. Accountants and doctors come immediately to mind.

This comparison first occurred to us while we were staked out with a bunch of other folks at the scene of one of those "developing" stories which occur from time to time.

So developing, in fact, that the day's newspaper was delivered--detailing the incidents of the morning--while all of the story's principal players were still hanging around.

The net result was the poor news writer had to sit there while everyone he had just written about got to read what he had written.

"I hate this," he commented, comparing it to letting everyone look at a private part of his anatomy.

Some years later, it occurs to us that "eddie-ting" is just that.

Serious writers strive, re-write and sweat blood over what they crank out. (We've commented in the past that most people who take their writing seriously think they write some pretty serious stuff.)

But if you choose to write in the newspaper business, you've got to let the "eddie-tur" screen your copy.

Not only that, by his title he has the right to change, rearrange and, in general, fiddle with it. Fix it, in other words.

Nobody likes it particularly. But, it goes down better if you think of it as similar to your annual trip to the friendly, neighborhood tax accountant.

To most folks, revealing such facts as your annual income, credit card bill to Sears and in general indentured status is about as much fun as fighting fire ants with a tennis racket.

But, despite its negative side, some times you just got to do it.

Using our other example, liken it to that checkup room visit with your gynecologist or proctologist, depending on your particular internal persuasion.

Consider that what he is perusing for possible problems he has seen a zillion times before.

And while it's a private package to you, it's significance is reduced in his eyes--a simple equasion that responds to a black and white mathematical formula.

Like we said, the "eddie-tur" will see you now.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

Turn on the evening news most any night, most any channel, and you are likely to see a be-capped farmer, standing in the middle of a barren field, or next to a towering mountain of grain, shaking his head and talking about how hopeless it all is.

In fact, it's been a long, long time since anyone has even heard the word "parity" whispered, much less viewed lines of tractors up and down Pennsylvania Ave. The auction scene has replaced all that, complete with close-ups on the tears.

I don't buy it. Not all of it, anyway. There is no doubt that farming is in a painful period of transition, and there will be casualties, just as many craftsmen did not survive the Industrial Revolution. But I maintain that there were just as many craftsmen who did survive, by adapting to their changing world and streamlining their businesses in order to compete in a mechanized marketplace. Farmers, who routinely survive things like cyclones and floods, are no less enterprising, no less adaptable. Farmers have survived feudalism, civil wars, and economic depressions. Surely they will survive this.

In this season of Thanksgiving, maybe it would be a good idea to stop a moment and reflect on the positive, the uplifting, the hopeful. And to be thankful.

Fifty years ago the drought-to-end-all-droughts sent thousands of farmers on the road, with all their possessions strapped to an old pick-up bed, looking for a way to feed their family. John Steinbeck captured their hopes, fears, and courage beautifully in the immortal novel, "Grapes of Wrath." Back then, a farmer had no hope, no second chance to overcome failure.

Nowadays, in spite of all its faults and all the debate it inspires, the truth is that government programs do provide farmers that second chance. It could be argued that the government has gone too far the other way, has made the farmer too dependent. I'm not going to get into that argument here, but I will say that many farmers owe their survival to the government, and survival is the name of the game.

There was a time when there was no such thing as crop insurance, a time when farmers were totally dependent on Mother Nature to make or break them. Like government programs, crop insurance has its failure, but if it can make the difference between paying off a bank note and turning your land over to the banker, I say it's worth it.

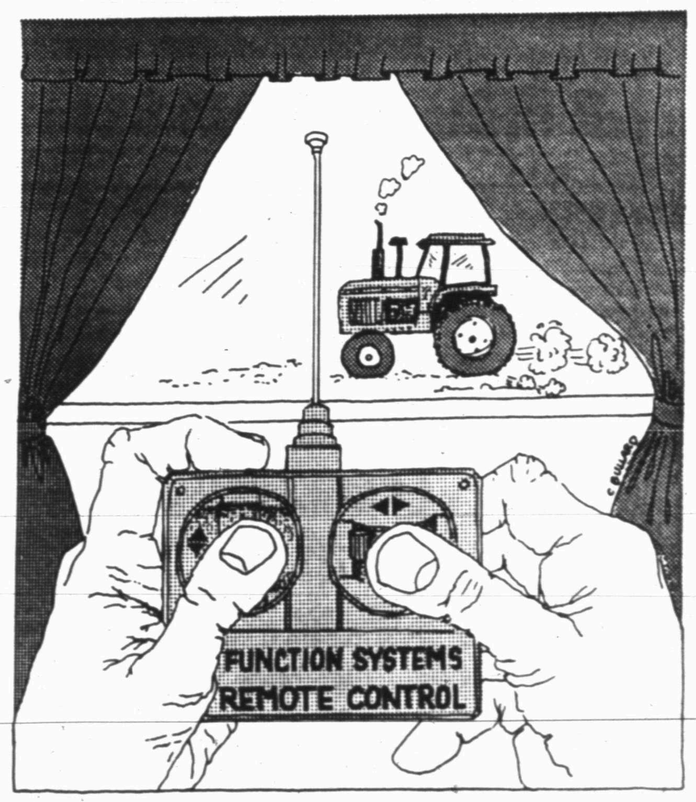

Time was when few farm kids even dreamed of going to college. Now, with a profusion of state institutions to choose from, federally insured government loans, grants, and other aid, most kids have a shot at it. Some of the most successful farming operations today are run by young farmers who have had the chance to study the most effective methods of land management, crop rotation and animal husbandry. By combining this knowledge with the latest methods of computer technology and business management, these farmers are making it work against overwhelming odds. And their parents are learning from them.

It is an ancient truth that weather travels in cycles. Just last year we were caught in the grip of a drought so severe some argued that the land would never recover. In one year's time, we caught up with and exceeded the moisture needed to replenish the land. While many farmers may lose some crops, ranchers are rejoicing (and most farmers also run cattle). The pastures are lush, the cattle are fat, the market is good. This time last year, no one would have guessed it.

In spite of upholding a staggering debt, most farmers still enjoy the love of their families, the peace of their faith, the tautness of a healthy body, and the quickness of a sound mind, not to mention a resilience of spirit that will see them through.

That is, indeed, something worth bowing our heads for in thankfulness.

FRIDAY
November 21

The three-day 13th annual reunion of the men of "Company G" included a reception and barbecue dinner Friday, to be followed Saturday morning by the unit's annual business session.

The group was to gather again Saturday night for a reunion dinner in the WTC Student Center dining room. An estimated 25 members of the Army company still reside in Scurry County.

Thirty-six Snyder Junior High School choir and drama students were featured in the first performance Friday of the children's musical, "The Swinging Piper."

Two shows were to follow Saturday at 2:30 and 7:30 p.m. in the junior high auditorium.

"The Swinging Piper" is based on Robert Browning's narrative poem "The Pied Piper."

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

The Scurry County Advisory Council/UBS wishes to thank all the people who contributed in any way to make the M*A*S*H blood drive so successful.

The 335 people who came and registered, the 303 people who donated a pint of blood, and all the people who contributed in another way are greatly appreciated.

Many times people say what I do does not matter, but it really does matter. At noon, Long John Silvers called to see how many technicians were at the armory, and then brought lunch. George Gann loaned a cooler for UBS to take blood back to Lubbock. Adams Wholesale donated all the fixings for popcorn to be given to all the people who came out. Whataburger gave a coupon so that all donors and technicians could get a hamburger. Dr. Pepper-Pepsi donated soft drinks so every fifth donor could have a six pack. Lawrence IGA super market gave cookies so donors could have a snack when they finished donating.

The National Guard Armory personnel helped by providing the place and answering the phone for the people at the drive. The Boy Scouts helped by cleaning up the armory after the drive.

Door prizes were donated by the hospital gift shop, Anthony's, Travis Flowers, Toys Galore, Burgess McWilliams, Snyder Drug, Hastings, Bar-H-Bar, Art Style Beauty Shop, Merle Norman, Suits Us, Hallmark, Sunnyside.

The owners of the restaurants got many of their employees to come and donate. Many were first time donors. We hope they will come back. Those participating were The Shack, Whataburger, Spanish Inn, Great Western, Dairy Queen-East, Dairy Queen-College Avenue,

Dear Abby

Rage Over Affair Fuels Wife's Fire for Revenge

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Fifteen years ago, when I was 43 and pregnant with my seventh child, I found some pictures of a pretty young girl in my husband's wallet. Steve swore he didn't know how they got there, but I'm not stupid. I had enlargements made and hung them all over the house. My kids thought I was nuts, and Steve and I have been fighting ever since.

Last year I had a tap put on our phone and I learned plenty. Steve and this girl, Jill, have been seeing each other for 15 years and they have a 9-year-old son together. Jill's married and has two sons with her own husband.

Steve and I own our business and if it weren't for me we wouldn't have anything. He can hardly read and write, and he needs me to do all the paperwork.

I called up Jill's husband and told him everything. He couldn't believe it. He said Jill was a perfect wife and mother. And get this — she never misses a Sunday at church! I called her minister and told him all about her, and all he said was, "If she were perfect she wouldn't need to go to church."

To make a long story short, Jill's husband is giving her a divorce because (as he told me) after 15 years, Steve and Jill must really love each other, and he wants her to be happy. He told me I ought to do the same for Steve. I said, "Over my dead body."

Abby, I hate my husband and want to make his life miserable. What should I do? I know he loves Jill, but why should I step aside after what he did to me?

HURTING BAD

DEAR HURTING: Don't make any decisions while you are in this bitter, vengeful state. You desperately need to vent your anger and unload your hostility. See a counselor and try to get your emotions under control. Then decide if you will be better off with him than without him, under the circumstances.

Living to make someone miserable will only make you a miserable old woman in the end. Think about it.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, a reader came down hard on you for using the term "Army brat" in your column. For your information, that term is alive and well. As a matter of fact, at my husband's 50th West Point reunion last June, Gen. Bruce Palmer said, "Many of us were 'Army brats' — as my mother used to call us."

Since Gen. Palmer is over 70, that term has been around for at least that long.

My son, a retired colonel, was an Army brat, and his son was an Army brat, and we're proud of it.

MRS. R.J. QUINN JR.,
SAVANNAH, GA.

DEAR MRS. QUINN: Finally! Many wrote to say that they were called "Army brats" and never felt that the term was offensive, but I had hoped that some high-ranking Army officer would use that term publicly, thereby officially confirming its respectability. Your letter made my day. And a 21-gun salute to Gen. Palmer.

DEAR ABBY: A family problem has arisen recently and I'd like your opinion. My parents' divorce was final a year ago. They had been married for 33 years.

Every year our family (parents and seven brothers and sisters) go to Colorado on a skiing trip. This year my dad wants to bring his girlfriend along, and our mother refuses to go if the girlfriend goes. My older sister says Mom and Dad are divorced so Dad has the right to bring anyone he wants, and Mom has nothing to say about it. I say, this is a family trip, and Dad's girlfriend is not "family" — she's just a girlfriend — so she should stay home, especially since she and Dad would share the same cabin if she went along.

What is your opinion? And would your answer be any different if my Dad and this girlfriend were married?

DEBATING IN DALLAS

DEAR DEBATING: Dad's girlfriend? No. If she were his wife. Si.

Postal Service re-opens bidding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The postmaster general, looking to clear the air, will reopen the contracting process before choosing a new mail-sorting machine.

The former vice chairman of the Postal board of governors, Peter E. Voss, was sentenced to a four-year prison term earlier this year after he admitted trying to steer the contract for the mail sorters to Recognition Equipment Inc. of Texas in return for payments funneled to him by a public relations firm hired by REI.

Libyan raids are condemned

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The United Nations has condemned the United States bombing raids on Libya as illegal and says the North African nation is entitled to compensation for "material and human" losses suffered in the attack.

The world body on Thursday passed a non-binding resolution condemning the raids by a vote of 79-28, with 33 abstentions.

The resolution was sponsored by 27 countries, mostly Arab and Soviet bloc states. The United States, most of its Western allies, Japan, Israel and a few Third World nations opposed it. NATO members Greece and Turkey abstained.

Ali Abdussalam Treiki, the Libyan U.N. ambassador, welcomed the vote, saying it "affirms the falsehood of all the charges" made by the United States.

Irene Payne, spokeswoman for the U.S. mission to the United Nations, said the resolution "failed to address the central issue of importance, which is Libyan terrorism."

The resolution said the raids violated international law, called on the United States to refrain from threatening or attacking Libya again and said Libya was entitled to compensation for the "material and human losses inflicted upon it."

Libyan officials said 37 people died in the bombing raids and 93 were injured, while Western diplomats put the number killed at 100.

Libya had asked the 15-member U.N. Security Council in April to condemn the raids, but the measure was killed by a veto from the United States, Britain and France.

A condemnation by the Security Council would have carried more political weight than one by the General Assembly.

U.S. officials said the April 15 raids on Tripoli and Benghazi were in retaliation for Libyan-sponsored acts of terrorism, including the bombing of a West Berlin nightclub that killed two American soldiers and a Turkish woman.

During the two-day debate, Treiki accused the United States of "blatantly hostile acts" against his country since Libya closed U.S. bases and took control of its own oil resources after the 1969 revolution that brought Col. Moammar Gadhafi to power.

"We want to be friends of the United States," Treiki said, "but we refuse to be the lackeys or puppets of any country, including the United States."

Sen. Larry Pressler told the assembly during the debate that the U.S. raids were carried out in self-defense "to reduce Libya's ability to continue to commit unlawful aggression through terrorist force against the United States and its nationals."

Accord reached in hazing event

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Black leaders and Citadel officials have agreed to set up a committee to look into race relations at the state military college in the wake of the resignation of a black cadet who was hazed by white students.

Black leaders said Thursday they were dropping their demand for the resignation of retired Maj. Gen. James Grimsley Jr., president of the college.

And while they still don't agree with the punishment of five white cadets involved in the hazing, they said the committee can look into that when it is appointed after Thanksgiving.

"We believe we are on the way to meeting the objectives in regard to the Kevin Nesmith incident and urge all citizens of Charleston to strengthen our community and put this incident behind us," said the Rev. Frank Portee of the Old Bethel United Methodist Chuch.

Six black ministers and community leaders met with Grimsley because of the incident Oct. 23, when five white cadets wearing sheets and towels entered Nesmith's room chanting curses.

Lawsuit filed against Boesky

NEW YORK (AP) — An investor who contends Ivan F. Boesky rigged the stock market has filed a class action suit against him and others implicated in a massive Wall Street insider trading scandal.

Angelo Oriolo of Pennsville, N.J., claimed in the suit filed in federal court Thursday that he was hurt financially when he sold 100 shares of General Foods common stock on Sept. 30, 1985.

It was believed to be the first suit filed against Boesky, one of Wall Street's weathiest speculators, since the announcement last week that he had agreed to pay a record $100 million penalty for illegal insider trading on about a dozen corporate takeover situations in 1985 and 1986.

The stock market's turmoil over the scandal subsided Thursday, with stock prices rebounding from the dive they took earlier in the week. Wall Street's best-known indicator, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, jumped 34.03 points to close at 1,860.66.

Boesky neither admitted nor denied guilt in his settlement of a Securities and Exchange Commission civil action, but he also agreed to plead guilty to a single federal felony charge of securities fraud.

Half of the $100 million penalty is set aside for people who claim they lost profits because of Boesky's activities.

"We're not waiting for the SEC," said Lester L. Levy, Oriolo's attorney. Oriolo and other small investors were looking for money "wherever we can find it," Levy said.

Also named in the suit are three limited partnerships and three companies controlled by Boesky.

United Way

Thanks for helping us toward our goal of $85,000

Agency	Allocation
Boys Club	$29,000
Buffalo Trail Council of Scouts	$13,000
Noah Project	$11,500
Snyder Child Day Care Center	$10,000
West Texas Girl Scout Council	$8,000
Oil Patch Foster Parents	$4,000
Red Cross	$2,000
Salvation Army	$1,500
West Texas Rehab Center	$500
Local expenses	$5,500
CAMPAIGN GOAL	$85,000

United Way dollars don't go away. They stay to benefit:

—Boys Club: Since 1955, the Boys Club has offered "somewhere to go" to boys age 7-18. The club averages 60 youngsters served per day.

—Buffalo Trail Council of Boy Scouts: Snyder Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorer Scouts take advantage of these United Way dollars. Scurry County counted some 350 boys and 100 adult leaders this past year.

—Noah Project: A new United Way agency effective this year. This organization offers a temporary resting place for battered wives and their children. This past year, the center became a temporary home for 31 women and 65 children. Out of shelter help was given to another 49 women and 71 children.

—Snyder Child Day Care Center: The center offers parents in need of work a "daytime home" for their children at costs geared to their income. Often, the center also serves as a refuge for children victimized by abuse or neglect. Some 56 kids are helped daily.

—West Texas Girl Scout Council: Girl Scouting in Scurry County now equals some 26 troops representing 263 girls. They are aided by 75 adult leaders.

—Oil Patch Foster Parents: Some 26 youngsters are now served — each homeless because of circumstances they cannot control. Coming to their aid are 16 county families.

—Red Cross: In addition to its disaster relief, both swimming classes and CPR first aid courses are available locally at no charge. Some 267 individuals took advantage of these this past year.

—Salvation Army: The random and desperate individual is helped by the Salvation Army. In addition, eight local youth were sent to Camp Hoblitzelle this summer.

—West Texas Rehabilitation Center: The Abilene-based center continues to support Scurry County. Estimates for this past year include 876 treatments administered to Scurry County residents.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Nov. 23, 1986

Lots of pleasant surprises are in store for you in the year ahead. Lady Luck will be doing her best to see that there is always a smile on your face.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your attitude and demeanor will be very pleasing today to persons with whom you share activities, whether they be of a formal nature or just casual events. Major changes are ahead for Sagittarius in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It behooves you today to be generous and charitable when dealing with others. First, it's in line with your character, and second, what you give you will later receive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Compromise is an enormously effective tool in your hands today. You can gain advantages, provided you loosen up and concede a bit yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You could be lucky at this time with products or ventures that offer something novel. Keep your eyes peeled for the unusual.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Owing to your rising popularity, you could have some extra demands placed on you socially today. People who like you will also be lucky for you materially.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A doubtful situation that involves both friends and money is going to work out as well as you hope. All will be pleased.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A chance remark by someone you run into today could put you on the track to a big opportunity. Your new information will give you an edge over your competition.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Conditions are stirring today that will give you a second shot at two situations where you didn't fare as well as you could have. Don't miss this time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Someone with ulterior motives may test you with a relatively easy assignment today. If you handle it cleverly, he has something bigger in mind for you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you may find yourself in a position where you are able to help another clear up a matter he or she has been unable to resolve alone. You'll enjoy assisting.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Persons with whom you'll have contact today won't be reluctant to do you favors. Your requests are apt to be granted whether they are large or small.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) As of today, the pieces will start coming together in a matter that's extremely important to you materially. Soon you'll have reason to celebrate.

Your Birthday

Nov. 24, 1986

You are now in a good achievment cycle, but you will have to work hard for what you hope to gain. If you're prepared to pay the price, you'll be extremely successful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Even though career conditions may be a trifle hectic today, remain hopeful regarding the outcome of events. Positive thinking assures positive results. Major changes are ahead for Sagittarius in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Companions will overlook your shortcomings today, provided you don't make an issue of theirs. Look for the good in friends, not their faults.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Business conditions look favorable for you today. However, if you need advice, consult experts, not close friends.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be doing yourself a great disservice today if you pre-judge persons with whom you're involved. Those you write off could turn out to be good people.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Joint ventures should work out reasonably well for you today, even though there is likely to be some discord between you and your associates.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have good judgment today, but you may also have strong inclinations to ignore it. This could create a problem in your financial affairs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The support you've been hoping to get from another might be forthcoming today. But it's best to rely solely upon yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Things you enjoy doing you will do extremely well today. However, if you're plagued with a distasteful chore, you might botch it up.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Being too hasty or impulsive will work against you today in your financial affairs. Time is your ally, so use it patiently to make the best deal possible.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) In order to be an effective leader today, you must be both tactful and considerate. If you throw your weight around, your methods will prove counterproductive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Unfortunately, we sometimes get in our own way. Be mindful of this today so that you don't disturb a financial situation that thus far is running smoothly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This can be a very rewarding day for you if you apply yourself. Hopes and wishes can become realities only if you act upon them properly.

2 South Texas colleges mull merger proposals

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A proposal to merge universities in Corpus Christi and Kingsville has opened the door to serious discussions of creating a comprehensive university in South Texas, says the president of Corpus Christi State University.

But residents of Kingsville fear merging Texas A&I with CCSU may cause an economic loss the city can ill afford.

The University System of South Texas' regents voted 4-3 Wednesday in favor of the merger proposal put forth by Larry Temple, chairman of the Select Committee on Higher Education.

The vote came at a meeting in Kingsville attended by about 400 people, many of them local residents opposed to the plan.

Campuses would be maintained in both cities, but CCSU would be the lead university, according to the select committee's recommendation.

CCSU is a two-year upper level university with 3,827 students. Texas A&I has an enrollment of about 5,000.

Battered by declines in the oil and gas industry and in cattle ranching, Kingsville would be unable to absorb the loss of students, faculty, staff and research dollars that could result if Texas A&I loses its status as a free-standing university and becomes a branch, said Regent Gilbert Acuna, a Kingsville pharmacist.

"It would be too big of a blow," said Acuna.

"Emotions are so high right now," said CCSU President Alan Sugg, who endorsed the regents' vote.

The board's decision "continues the dialogue ... not to maintain the status quo of higher education" in South Texas," he said.

"The action of our board supports the recommendation of Mr. Temple to at least keep the door open for future discussions with the select committee regarding the need for a comprehensive university in South Texas," said Sugg, also the interim chancellor of the University System of South Texas, which governs A&I, CCSU and Laredo State University.

"We need to make sure we don't slam the door shut at this time ... it may be a very small door of opportunity," Sugg said. "It's not in the best interest of the region or the state or anyone else" to close that door.

The media, KSNY, SDN and SCAT, always publicizes our drives. This time, we saw or heard about it because many people told us where they had seen or heard about the drive.

Last, but certainly not least, are the members of the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary and the other volunteers who spent many hours preparing for the drive and helping at the drive.

Again, thanks to everyone who had any part of the very successful drive. If we forgot to name you, please accept our apologizes and know that we appreciate you.

To the editor,

Have we ever thought about reading the Communist Rules lately or how close we are to following them? Sports are great if they're fun, but are they building up characters when they're money making projects?

In May, 1919 the Allied Forces obtained a copy of some of the "Communist Rules for Revolution." Some 50 years later, are the Communists still following them?

A. Corrupt the young; get them away from religion; get them interested in sex. Make them superficial; destroy their ruggedness.

B. Get control of all means of publicity, thereby:

1. Get people's minds off their government by focusing attention on athletics, sexy books, and plays and other trivialities.

2. Divide the people into hostile groups by constantly harping on controversial matters of no importance.

3. Destroy the people's faith in their natural leaders by holding the latter up to contempt, ridicule and disgrace.

4. Always preach true democracy, but sieze power as fast and as ruthlessly as possible.

5. By encouraging government extravagance, destroy its credit, produce fear of inflation with rising prices and general discontent.

6. Incite unnecessary strikes in vital industries, encourage civil disorders and foster a lenient and soft attitude on the part of government toward such disorder.

7. By specious argument, cause the breakdown of the old moral virtues of sobriety, self-restraint, faith in the pledged word, ruggedness.

Does the foregoing suggest a pattern which has been emerging in America? Are we fiddling while the republic burns. Let's think about it!

Sincerely,
Mrs. J. E. (Agnes) Sorrels

Oil firm profits take dip

By The Associated Press

British Petroleum Co. PLC, the world's fourth-largest oil company, said Thursday its third-quarter profit fell 17 percent because of the steep fall in crude oil prices.

The London-based company, which owns 55.5 percent of Cleveland-based Standard Oil Co., said it earned 345 million pounds in the quarter ended Sept. 30, or $511 million at the average exchange rate prevailing during the period of about $1.48 to the pound.

That compared to profit of 416 million pounds in the year-earlier period. Earnings per share fell to 18.8 pence from 22.7 pence a year earlier. Earnings per American Depositary Receipt, each of which equals four shares, were $1.12, down from $1.24.

Revenue for the quarter fell 34.5 percent to 5.92 billion pounds, or $8.76 billion, from 9.42 billion pounds a year earlier.

British Petroleum's financial statements are based on British accounting methods and cannot be directly compared to those of most American companies. Inventories are valued on the basis of first in, first out (FIFO) instead of the typical American system of last in, first out (LIFO).
