French Socialists' cabinet resigns

PARIS (AP) — The Socialist-led Cabinet has resigned in the face of nationwide discontent with its policies, and President Francois Mitterrand named a fiscal conservative to be premier and tackle the job of forming a new government.

Laurent Fabius, an economic expert who favors a strong private sector, was appointed late Tuesday to replace Pierre Mauroy. At 37, he is France's youngest premier in more than a century.

Fabius, who is expected to begin forming his Cabinet today, is a principal architect of a drastic overhaul of French industry, a plan which calls for tens of thousands of jobs to be eliminated in an effort to streamline production and make the nation more competitive.

French Communists were among the most vocal critics of the plan, which has sparked strikes and other labor protests nationwide. The appointment of Fabius prompted speculation that the Communists, who held four seats in Mauroy's 41-member Cabinet, might be edged out of the new government.

Mauroy led the Cabinet since Mitterrand's Socialists came to power in 1981, but in France the real power lies with the president and not with the premier.

Mitterrand's term lasts into 1988, and elections for the National Assembly are scheduled for 1986. Under the French system, there is no need to call elections with the creation of a new Cabinet.

Mitterrand accepted the resignation of Mauroy, the presidential Elysee Palace announced, and promptly appointed Fabius. The new premier was minister of industry and research under Mauroy and is considered one of the most economically hard-headed members of Mitterrand's administration.

"What is needed is great calm, much determination and the wish that I have to modernize the country and bring together the French people," Fabius said after his appointment.

The announcement followed news reports about the resignation of Education Minister Alain Savary, author of a controversial bill to increase government influence over private schools. Hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen took to the streets to protest the measure.

Workers ready Dallas site

DALLAS (AP) — Construction crews have moved into the Dallas Convention Center as city workers officially turned over its main hall to be prepared for the Republican National Convention.

Construction crews moved into the center at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday to begin building a podium, network skyboxes, elevated seating, lighting and a sound system, as well as to lay the groundwork for computer and telephone communications to accomodate the Republicans for the event Aug. 20-23.

About 200,000 square feet of the convention center's grand hall will be renovated to host the 4,500 GOP delegates and alternates, 12,000 official guests and 1,200 members of the press.

Workers in Dallas worried about getting the convention center ready in the next 34 days.

"It's a faster time frame than they had in Detroit to get ready for that convention," said Gary Clark, project manager for the Freeman Decorating Co., which has never worked on a political convention.

Officials search for drugs

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — Increasing amounts of illegal drugs are being smuggled into the United States aboard commercial airliners, federal customs officials say, and their investigations are including airline workers.

"The use of ground service (personnel) and airline employees for bringing in narcotics" aboard the jets "seems to be on the upswing," said Vincent Dantone, a U.S. Customs Service official from Washington, D.C.

"Dallas is no exception," he said.

Stepped-up searches are part of a nationwide campaign launched this month by Customs officials to combat the increase in drug trafficking.

Air carriers have been asked to join in the anti-smuggling effort by signing "gentlemen's agreements" promising to institute new procedures to reduce drug trafficking on the planes.

Wife thinks husband dead

HOUSTON (AP) — The wife of a missing witness involved in an investigation of the Texas prison system says she believes her husband either is dead or kidnapped and heavily sedated.

"I don't really believe in what you call psychic but I believe two people can be so close, a family can be so close, they can have these senses," Rosalie Pitts said in an interview published in today's Houston Post.

Mrs. Pitts' husband, James Rodney Pitts, has been missing since July 3, the day after the state attorney general's office announced he had agreed to cooperate with the prison investigation.

That evening "I got a funny feeling in the back of my neck and was anxious for James R. to come home," Mrs. Pitts said. "You know the feeling with the hairs on the back of your neck, that uneasy feeling."

Appraisal roll delay ok'd

Directors for the Scurry County Appraisal District Tuesday agreed to give Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler a five-day extension on providing appraisal rolls to local taxing entities.

The action came at the July meeting of the board. Without the extension, the rolls would have been required by July 25.

Attending Tuesday's meeting were Kenneth Wilson, Pete Hester, Ross Blanchard and Bill Hairston. Billy Huddleston was absent.

Pool lifeguards Lance Alridge, Threasa Ashworth, Michelle Killion, Angie Lay and Kristy Key will be teaching the classes.

There is no age limit for students. A fee of $1 per day will be charged.

Chamber goes on record 'for' Houston plan

The board of directors for the Snyder Chamber of Commerce voted unanimously Tuesday to draft a resolution in support of a plan to extend Houston Ave. to the south and east, creating a new residential traffic route linking west Snyder to the Big Spring Highway.

The resolution is to be presented next Tuesday at a public meeting to be conducted by the Texas Department of Public Highways and Transportation and the Federal Highway Administration.

This meeting is to allow comment regarding construction of the road extension. It will be conducted at city hall beginning at 7 p.m.

The chamber's resolution was prompted by a request from City Manager John Gayle, who also fielded questions from the board prior to the decision to "support" the plan.

Chamber director Roy Baze asked Gayle what effect an election expected in January opposing annexation of property adjacent to the road might have regarding the road's construction.

"Annexation and construction of the road are two separate questions," Gayle responded. "You can't vote down extending a road.

"Someone always doesn't want a road or highway across their property. If you could vote against it, we wouldn't have a highway system period."

This echoed earlier comments from Ed Vernon, supervising resident engineer for the local highway department office. Vernon has said that the federal agency funding the road's construction has made no requirements that the road be located inside the city limits of Snyder.

"We're asking the chamber to comment regarding the road only, leaving the annexation question totally out of it," Gayle said. "We feel the road is an idea that will benefit all of Snyder. And if the chamber feels this is true, we'd like you're help."

When asked the city's reasons for extending the road, Gayle said, "access only," noting that the idea was first proposed as part of a city master plan in 1974.

As for why annexation of adjacent property was proposed along with building the road, Gayle said bringing the roadway within the city limits would allow both controling of speed and city controls over any future development of property beside the road.

"The city's not in the real estate business. The amount of property we would gain by annexation isn't enough to affect the tax rolls substantially either way."

Chamber director David Thompson asked Chamber Manager Mort Ewing his opinion regarding the chamber taking a stand on the issue.

Ewing acknowledged the controversial aspects of it, but said he felt the chamber was an entity formed to improve the overall community.

"The collective judgement of this board is probably as good as any in the county," he said. Following this, if the board had an opinion regarding the project, he said he felt it was within its responsibility to express that opinion.

After the approximately 20 minutes of discussion, the motion to draft the resolution was made by Director Wedge Turner. It then passed unanimously.

Nine directors were present with one abstaining from voting, Troy Williamson, who also serves on the city council. Those voting for the measure were Wedge Turner, David Thompson, Don Newbury, Phil Fortune, Murray Ann Ray, Max von Roeder, Roy Baze and Jerry Vestal. Chamber President John Jarrell presided and was not required to vote. Directors absent included Jack Denman and Gene Thomas.

Rodeo begins tonight

The first of four shows for the 49th Annual Scurry County Rodeo begins Wednesday night with more than 400 contestants signed up for the nine event schedule.

The rodeo will be conducted in the Scurry County Coliseum. Tickets to the rodeo are $4 for general admission and $5 for box seats.

The traditional rodeo parade was to kick-off the event Wednesday at 5 p.m. It will enter the Snyder square from 26th St., circle the courthouse and then head back south down College Ave. to disband at 37th St.

Rodeo performances Wednesday through Saturday will be at 8 p.m.

The rodeo will feature the stock of producer Smokey Davis and the Rafter "D" Rodeo Company of Fulshear.

Nightly events include bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, bull riding, calf roping, barrel racing, team roping, wild cow milking and the wild mare race.

Saturday, the traditional stockholders roping will be conducted also beginning at 8 a.m. at the old rodeo grounds. A $30 team roper fee and a $25 individual calf roping fee must be turned in at the coliseum by Friday at 5 p.m.

The rodeo dance will follow each evening's performance in the ag annex.

Glass reports increase

Snyder police are investigating two more window shooting incidents apparently connected to a string of vandalisms which occurred here Sunday night or early Monday morning.

Bill King of King & Brown Furniture at 1914 25th St. filed a report at 9:03 a.m. Tuesday.

He told police that a plate glass window at his store had apparently been shot with a BB or pellet gun sometime before 9 a.m. Damage was estimated at $600.

J.B. Tate, Jr. of Snyder Savings and Loan at 2619 College Ave. filed Tuesday's second report at 9:58 a.m.

He reported discovering BB or pellet gun damage to a window at that business early Tuesday morning. Damage in this case was estimated at $250.

Plan gains 4th new physician

A fourth doctor is ready to begin medical practice here thanks to the scholarship program implemented in 1974 by the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

Opening his family medical practice effective next Monday, July 23, will be Neil Gibson, doctor of osteopathic medicine.

A come and go reception in his honor is now planned Thursday. It will be from 2 until 4 p.m. in the conference room at Cogdell Memorial.

Since the program was initiated, Drs. Paul Thompson, Bid Cooper, Stanley Allen and now Gibson have located in Snyder.

Gibson has just completed his family practice residency at an Amarillo branch of the Texas Tech University Medical School in Lubbock.

After ending this phase of training, he was named the "Outstanding Resident" of his class.

He entered the local scholarship program while a medical student at the Texas College for Osteopathic Medicine in Fort Worth from 1977-81.

Under the program, individuals interested in the study of medicine receive financial aid from the auxiliary and, in return, agree to practice medicine in Snyder for at least this same period of time.

The auxiliary has one other student still in the residency phase of their training.

Gibson is a native of Glen Rose and attended college at Howard Payne University in Brownwood, graduating magna cum laude in 1976.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Vacation agony is a mosquito bite on top of poison ivy on top of a sunburn."

The annual Bible camp ended last Friday out on the WTC campus. There are several awards such as best camper and neatest camper.

For two consecutive years, two young men vowed to win the neatest camper award--much to the amazement of their parents who knew from the appearance of their rooms they didn't stand a chance.

For two years, the boys worked at being neat, but counselors selected someone else. This year they were veterans--third year campers who knew all the ropes. There were more important things to do than worry about a neat room, there's no reason to try, they reasoned.

On Thursday night, at the awards banquet--guess who won the neat camper awards. Their parents are now expecting some of the same neat touch at home.

A local woman is said to have failed her written driving test--scoring a dismal 40. She was instructed she could study further and come back in two weeks and take the same test.

This time the score was improved to 50, and she couldn't understand why she hadn't passed. "I made 40 last time and 50 this time--anybody knows 40 and 50 is 90."

Another story without names is two Snyder fellows who got permission from their mates for a weekend fishing trip to a nearby lake.

The pair looked forward to the outing and as soon as Friday arrived, they hooked onto their boat and headed for the lake. At first opportunity, the duo stopped to restock their supply of beer.

It was said to be a six-pack drive on to the lake, and by the time the fishermen arrived, they had already caught a whopper or two.

When they got out to put the boat in water, it was only then they noticed that somewhere in between they had lost both the boat and trailer.

We just hope it wasn't a borrowed rig.

Cisneros is working for party unity

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — From the crowded meeting room of the Democratic Hispanic Caucus to the podium of the party's national convention, San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros is seeking parfy unity.

Cisneros, working to defuse Hispanic anger that the Democratic Party platform fails to specifically oppose the Simpson-Mazzoli immigration bill, Tuesday urged Hispanic convention delegates not to boycott the first presidential nomination ballot Wednesday night.

"Abstention will result in this — harming the man who has the best chance to be the nominee (Walter Mondale) and who has already said he is against Simpson-Mazzoli," he said.

Tuesday night, in a speech to the convention, Cisneros said millions of Americans owe a debt to the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

"Countless thousands of women, Hispanics, Asian-Americans, disabled persons, native Americans, working people are better off because there was a civil rights movement. Because the black community set the course for 20 years of change. And because Jesse Jackson ran for the presidency of the United States," Cisneros said.

Cisneros' efforts came on a day in which the Texas delegation scored a victory by leading the fight against elimination of runoff primary elections and state Treasurer Ann Richards gained the spotlight by being named one of Walter Mondale's nominators.

Ms. Richards, the state's top vote-getter in the 1982 elections, will second Mondale's nomination, the candidate announced. An enthusiastic Mondale backer, Ms. Richards was one of about 20 women who had met with him July 4.

Cisneros, a fast-rising Democratic star considered by Mondale for the vice presidential nomination, found himself defending Mondale against the first-ballot boycott campaign by some Mexican-Americans who don't think the party is paying enough attention to defeating Simpson-Mazzoli.

A boycott, Cisneros told them, will do little but help "the Republican incumbent who not only said he is for it but that he will sign it into law."

The legislation has passed both the House and Senate and now is in conference committee. It contains provisions that Mexican-Americans believe are discriminatory, inluding sanctions against employers who hire illegal aliens. Hispanics say that will cause businesses to simply refuse to hire Hispanic workers rather than try to determine who is an illegal alien.

Cisneros and Rep. Edward Roybal, D-Calif., told Hispanic delegates that Mondale strongly opposes Simpson-Mazzoli.

Roybal read a statement from Mondale which said: "It is my opinion that it is harmful legislation which will cause human suffering. I continue to oppose it and will work against it as it moves through the legislative process."

As dissident Hispanic delegates shouted "abstain, abstain," Cisneros insisted that a first-ballot boycott won't help the cause.

"The bottom line is — let's keep our eyes on what we are headed toward and the critical issue here is how we change votes in the House of Representatives and the Senate.

"I think the course we are on is the proper course," Cisneros said. "I believe we have started a process that will result in Simpson-Mazzoli being defeated in 1984."

Other Hispanic convention delegates said they doubted that a first-ballot boycott was likely.

Caravan of doctors turned away in Mexico

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — An annual mission of mercy into a remote area of Mexico by an American surgical team was halted by Mexican customs officials who would not allow the group's medical supplies into the country, expedition members said.

The team of 32 nurses, doctors and family members from Texas and Louisiana, who had made the annual expedition into southern Mexico for 15 years, was turned back in at the U.S.-Mexico border in Matamoros across Brownsville.

The caravan had driven 600 miles from Shreveport, La. and were scheduled to arrive Tuesday.

"It really stunned me," Dr. Charles Black told The Dallas Morning News. "I just couldn't imagine it happening."

Black, who has led the medical expedition every summer since 1969, said about 65 Mexican patients had been prepared for surgery and were awaiting the doctors' scheduled arrival in the remote town of Niltepec Tuesday.

"Can you imagine the disappointment of these patients who have suffered all their lives with cleft palates and club feet and other disfigurements?" said Black's wife, Mercedes. "The thing that hurts me most is that many of them spent money - money they don't have traveling to the village for help.

The group, as in previous years, planned to spend four days driving the 2,000 miles to Niltepec, four days performing surgery and four days on the return trip. The Blacks, as usual, were driving their 1968-model Ford camper-mobile hospital with "La Esperanza" — Hope — painted across the back.

As in previous years, the group was paying its own way and using vacation time for the mission of mercy.

Chicago elected a black mayor, Harold Washington, because black mayors have been significantly successful in Atlanta, Gary, Detroit...

It seemed logical for a city that's now 42 percent black to have a black mayor.

So, in the 1983 election, Harold Washington got 18 percent of the white vote, enough to win.

But today of the whites who voted for him, only five percent are happy about it.

A recent rally in Chicago brought together a thousand residents of the northwest and southwest neighborhoods. They accused the city's black mayor of "callous disregard for whites."

A spokesperson for one community organization, Jean Mayer, said it this way: "Our ancestors came to this country willing, through drive, tenacity and diligence to better themselves. We are America's success story—yet we are now knowing the pain of seeing our old neighborhoods boarded up and burned down."

"Well we say 'no more!'; it's our city, too!"

These whites are complaining that Mayor Washington has ignored their neighborhoods to concentrate on black areas.

Chicago has never been this conspicuously polarized before.

Resentment is festering and a lawsuit brewing over the sale of a city garage. It was not sold to the higest bidder. It was sold to black buyers for a lower bid.

The mayor is accused of reserving the city's favorite exposition site, Navy Pier, mostly for the use of his own friends.

Under Mayor Washington, city fireman and policemen may have less seniority and score lower on qualifying exams--but still receive favoritism in promotions if they are black.

While it is nothing new for mayors--especially for Chicago mayors--to favor their friends--under Harold Washington it is evolving into an unfortunate black-white confrontation.

Thirty community organizations with large black memberships are adamant in their contention that it is "their turn;" that under white mayors they have been short-changed.

"Now," they say, "it is our turn!"

The black mayor and white-dominated city council are waging a ceaseless battle over budget, appointments and patronage.

So Chicago--for generations a compatible black, white, brown and red technicolor tapestry of diverse groups, pulling together--is back to black and white; whatever that is, it's not progress.

Upset woman gives up

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Police negotiator Reuben Rendon never thought Lupe Guajardo would jump off the 250-foot KENS-TV tower in downtown San Antonio.

He was right. After five hours on the steel tower, at times as high as 175 feet, Ms. Guajardo climbed down.

Her face tear-stained, she hugged Rendon and then stepped into a car and rode off to see a doctor. Police said no charges would be filed against her.

The 30-year-old woman climbed the tower adjacent to the San Antonio Express-News at 6 a.m. Tuesday, apparently after arguing with her common-law husband.

The turning point in the situation, Rendon said, was after the woman asked to have her 5-year-old son brought to the scene.

"When I mentioned it wasn't worth the kid watching her up there, that was the turning point," said Rendon, who perched on a fire truck ladder during the talks.

Going plus on defense

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

In tournament deals, one hears opening bids that no bridge teacher would ever recommend. Such bids are made in an effort to gain a plus score, valuable in tournament competition. An example is the opening bid by North in fourth seat today. Because of the favorable disposition of the diamond suit, East-West can make nine tricks in hearts. Yet which of them can judge to compete at the three level when neither East nor West could originally open the bidding? Because neither of them can, it is perfectly normal for South to play two spades and normal for the defense to try to punish North for opening such a garbage hand. However, East and West must defend in tiptop fashion to get a plus.

The opening lead is the king of hearts, on which East plays the deuce. In standard signaling methods, this discouraging card asks West to play something else. West leads a low diamond, declarer plays the jack from dummy, and East wins the queen. East returns a low heart to the queen in the West hand, and back comes another diamond. East takes two more diamond tricks and assumes that declarer is now out of hearts since West probably had three cards in that suit to raise. And so East plays the thirteenth diamond, enabling West to take the setting trick with the jack of spades.

In the local contest she competed in group interview and gave a presentation in party dress and casual wear. Children were judged on natural beauty, personality and projection. As the pageant's winner, Starling received the beauty crown, banner and trophy and the $75 entry fee to the Grand Finale.

The Kids of America Pageants, established by the Darry Modeling Agency of Dallas, are designed to help young ladies with poise, personality projection, grooming and self-confidence.

Brooke Gladson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronal Gladson of Rt. 3, Box 515, also participated. Brooke won a trophy as first alternate in the talent division in the three to six year age bracket.

Toilet shutdown triggered violence

JONES CREEK, Texas (AP) — Attempts to conserve water by shutting off toilets during the day apparently led to a disturbance in which 250 to 300 prison inmates broke windows, set fires and jammed cell doors, an assistant warden says.

Assistant Warden Roland Reynolds said Tuesday the Monday night violence at the maximum-security Clemens Unit was subdued by guards dressed in riot gear who used tear gas to subdue the inmates.

Reynolds said the major complaint from the inmates was a problem with water in the prison unit.

"We've had to shut off water to the toilets during the day," said Reynolds. "We turn it on at certain times so they could flush, but we've had trouble with our water storage tanks."

He said the water system has not been able to keep up with the demand, causing the level of water in storage tanks to drop to a low level. To conserve the water, prison officials have been turning off water to the cellblock toilets during the day, when the inmates were supposed to be working in the fields.

But lately, some inmates refused to work and stayed in the cells during the day, while water to the toilets was shut off, he said.

Reynolds said engineers are attempting to fix the problem, but officials believe conservation is necessary until the repairs are completed.

Reynolds said tear gas was sprayed from a fogging machine to force inmates to return to their cells. He said 17 of the inmates were treated at the unit infirmary for breathing difficulties from the gas and that one of those treated also received a cut from glass.

Reynolds said no guards were injured.

Thirty-six of the inmates were segregated for disciplinary reasons, he said.

The disturbance started, said Reynolds, at "rack up time." This is at 10:30 p.m. when the inmates are ordered to leave the day room and return to their individual cells for nighttime lock up.

He said about 250 to 300 inmates in one block refused to return to their cells. The inmates, he said, set mattresses and blankets on fire, broke out cellblock windows, caused automatic cell doors to be jammed open, threw trash at officers and shouted obscenities.

Additional guards were called in and a special riot squad donned masks and protective equipment. Some inmates returned to their cells, but others continued the disturbance.

Two inmates bolted past one guard, said Reynolds, but were caught before they left the cellblock and placed in disciplinary quarters.

Reynolds said inmates also complained because dinner was late and the prisoners did not get their usual amount of leisure time in the recreation rooms.

"When it came rack up time, they complained that they didn't get enough time in the day room," said Reynolds.

The assistant warden said this was the first time that a disturbance at Clemens has required the use of tear gas.

The Clemens Unit is located in Brazoria County near Jones Creek, a small town seven miles west of Freeport. The prison is a farm unit used to house inmates who are second offenders and includes felons aged 17 to 21 who were convicted of general crimes.

Inmates at Clemens usually perform agriculture work during the day and are in the fields. But Reynolds said there is little that can be done, except file a disciplinary action, if the inmates refuse to work and remain in their cells.

Texans defend primary plans

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Democratic National Convention's rejection of a proposal to scrap runoff primary elections was just what state party chairman Bob Slagle wanted.

Slagle and Bambi Cardenas-Ramirez of San Antonio both addressed the convention Tuesday as delegates debated a minority report to the party's platform, one which called for elimination of runoffs.

"Not once has a minority led the first primary (in Texas) and then lost the runoff. Not once," Slagle declared.

Slagle and Ms. Cardenas-Ramirez were joined by Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young in arguing against elimination of runoffs.

The minority proposal said runoffs should be eliminated because they are "a grave impediment to the right of the vote to be counted in our political system."

The proposal would have replaced the Democratic platform's plank that calls for a "serious, in-depth study of the use of second primaries and other practices that may discriminate against voting rights."

The platform further says that the party is committed "to use its full resources to eliminate any secondary primary" found to discriminate against minorities.

The three speakers favoring elimination of the runoffs contended that they have resulted in blacks winning the first primary with a plurality of the vote, then losing the runoff election when whites united behind the second-place primary finisher.

But Slagle said the Texas Democratic Party studied the results of all 150 Texas House races, the 31 Texas Senate races and all the state's congressional races in the 1976, 1978, 1980, 1982 and 1984 primaries.

No minority candidate ever won the first primary and lost the runoff, he said.

"We proudly elected our minorities who led the first primaries," he said, adding that Texans have elected more minority officials than there are minority-controlled legislative districts.

"We're proud of it. We want you to let us go forward electing our minorities, electing our Democrats. I stand before you the proud chairman of the tri-ethnic Democratic Party of Texas," he said.

Slagle said the national party should examine each state, but not force them to change their systems unless they are shown to be unfair.

"We would say to you, examine us on a state-by-state basis. If you find discrimination, fine, then we'll do something about it in that state," he said.

Ms. Cardenas-Ramirez said the platform's original language was strong enough to make certain that discrimination was ended.

"The majority plank before you affirms the existence of such discrimination and pledges this party today to its elimination," she said.

"The majority plank is a commitment to eliminate discriminatory electoral processes and particularly the dual primaries wherever and whenever these are found to have the effect of devaluing the vote of any man or woman because of the color of their skin," she said.

In the roll call on the minority proposal to eliminate runoffs, the Texas delegation voted 150 against it and 39 for it, with 11 abstentions.

Acreage noted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The total acreage of seven major vegetables for the fresh market this summer is estimated at 271,000 acres, a 1 percent increase from a year ago, says the Agriculture Department.

A survey report issued this week showed increases for celery, sweet corn and tomatoes.

Jackson nearing end of campaign

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, who has sometimes divided Democrat from Democrat, comes to the end of his path-breaking campaign for the presidency with the applause still echoing for his climactic sermon of unity and redemption.

With the eloquence that has lifted many audiences, the civil rights leader made an extraordinary plea for forgiveness in a prime-time address to the convention Tuesday night. Tears flowed from many delegates.

"If in my low moments, in word, deed or attitude, through some error of temper, taste or tone, I have caused anyone discomfort, created pain or revived someone's fears, please forgive me," he asked the Democratic National Convention.

Applause was frequent.

"Powerful, compelling, a stirring moral appeal to our nation for justice," said Walter F. Mondale, the man who will win the presidential nominaton on tonight's roll call.

"It was superb," added former rival, Sen. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina.

The stirring message — interrupted 34 times by applause — was also the last major act of Jackson's bid for the nomination. With Mondale's formal victory tonight, the black leader's campaign officially comes to an end.

With a final flourish Tuesday, Jackson repeated the plea he has made often in past weeks, asking for "a vote of conscience" on the first ballot.

After such a plea to the caucus of black delegates, they voted to back Jackson. But interviews with black delegates turned up no evidence the applause Tuesday would be joined by the votes of Mondale or Hart delegates tonight.

And Jackson quickly added: "There is a time to compete and a time to cooperate ... I will be proud to support the nominee of this convention for the presidency of the United States."

The speech included a long passage asking Jewish Americans to work with blacks once again, a plea stemming from the controversy following Jackson's reference to Jews as "Hymies" and his slowness in separating himself from Black Muslim leader Louis Farrakhan, who has been accused of anti-Semitism.

Jewish leaders responded favorably to Jackson's pleas but said much has to be done to overcome some of his previous comments and those by some of his supporters.

"One speech does not in itself undo all that has gone before," said Henry Siegman, executive director of the American Jewish Congress in New York. "But we are encouraged by his effort to heal the wounds, and by the apology he uttered for the pain he caused."

Sentence man in sexual attack on lone woman

HOUSTON (AP) — A laborer who ripped out a woman's intestines was not tried for murder in part because a prosecutor says he feared jurors would lack sympathy for the victim, who witnesses said was drinking and taking pills before she left a bar with three men.

Robin Lynn Cooper, 20, pleaded guilty to aggravated sexual abuse Tuesday in the death of Charlene Joy Handley. Visiting state District Judge Herbert Line accepted the plea and sentenced Cooper to 30 years in prison.

Ms. Handley died of her wounds a week after the May 15, 1983, attack, prosecutor Brian Rains said.

He said the woman suffered a "traumatic vaginal rectal tear with manual partial evisceration of the small and large intestines."

Rains said the sentence carried with it a guarantee Cooper must serve at least a third of his term before he is eligible for parole. To gain the same guarantee on a murder charge, Rains said, the state would have had to prove a deadly weapon was used.

He said the state could not demonstrate that.

Rains also said he did not wish to bring the case to trial because he was not sure "how a jury was going to perceive the complaintant."

"Some people could take the attitude that if she wasn't drinking and taking pills, it wouldn't have happened," Rains said. "Some people could take the position that she shouldn't have gone home with the guy to begin with."

Rains said Ms. Handley met Cooper and two other men in a north Houston bar and went to an apartment one of the men rented.

He said witnesses said Ms. Handley had sex with one of the men and was sleeping when Cooper went into the bedroom and attempted to have sex with her.

Trickle of ships slip into Houston

DEER PARK, Texas (AP) — Only a few vessels were allowed to slip in and out of the Houston Ship Channel as cleanup work continued following an oil spill from a Venezuelan tanker, Coast Guard officers said.

A woman standing the night communications watch in the Port of Houston early today said even the limited traffic had caused "problems with vessels coming through and breaking the boom" being used to contain the spill.

The woman refused to give her name. She said officers planned to close the channel to all traffic at 7 a.m. to evaluate the system of traffic.

She said she did not know how many ships were waiting to enter the nation's second-busiest port.

Tuesday's movement into the port was the first since the 520-foot Venezuelan tanker Turpial apparently developed mechanical problems and ran aground Saturday night near Shell Oil Co.'s Deer Park refinery.

The crash ruptured one of the ship's tanks, spilling oil that covered a three-mile segment of the channel.

Coast Guard officials said the tanker was hauled to the dock of the Oil Tanking Co. of Texas, where the vessel was reballasted to raise the damaged portion of the hull above water level. Officials also said the leaking tank has been emptied and no more oil is escaping.

Coast Guard Petty Officer Bruce Rutherford said the cleanup was expected to be completed by midweek.

Experts from the Coast Guard and a private cleanup company confined the oil with booms and were attempting to vacuum it from the water's surface.

Coast Guard Lt. Brian Binney said officials were trying to decide if the Turpial should be repaired before it is allowed to leave.

Officials said the tanker was between the docks of Diamond Shamrock Corp. and Shell Oil Co. on Saturday night when it struck the channel's bank. Coast Guard officials said the vessel apparently lost control of its propulsion system.

The Port of Houston competes with New Orleans as the nation's second busiest port, behind New York. In 1983, the Houston ship channel handled 74.6 million tons of cargo from 4,720 vessels.

Memories are revived

KHATYN, U.S.S.R. (AP) — A group of 5-year-old orphans, with their closely cropped hair and identical institutional garb, fell silent and clung fearfully to their teachers as they listened to the story of how 149 villagers were burned alive here 41 years ago.

The village of Khatyn was destroyed during World War II when 300 German soldiers invaded and forced villagers into a barn. According to Soviet history books, the barn was set on fire and residents who attempted to flee were shot.

The tragic tale has been told countless times at the Khatyn memorial complex, which stretches over many acres of lush grassland and white birch trees in the western Soviet republic of Byelorussia.

Khatyn includes a marble slab marking where the villagers perished and a concrete plaque that bears the names of those who died. Marble bell towers with constantly tolling bells mark where the homes of the villagers stood.

Byelorussia suffered 2.2 million wartime losses, local residents are quick to remind visitors, who on a recent day included the orphans, a busload of Kampuchean students, some West German tourists and a crowd of foreign correspondents.

Nearly 40 years after the armistice, memories of the war remain strong in the Soviet Union, where almost everyone can tell of losing at least one close relative.

The lingering bitterness over World War II can be traced in part to the extreme patriotism of the Russian people.

But some Westerners believe the government, through its tightly controlled press and publishing houses, uses the war to shape the public consciousness. The effort has become more intensive as the 40th anniversary of the end of World War II, an event that is sure to be a major nationwide celebration, approaches.

Recently, the government stepped up its publicity campaign about the war when the Western Allies celebrated the 40th anniversary of the D-day invasion of France.

The Soviet Union discounts the importance of the Normandy invasion. Kremlin officials may have objected to the publicity surrounding D-day because of a fear that it would detract from the 40th anniversary celebration in May 1985 of the Nazi surrender.

While playing down the role of the Western nations in defeating the Nazis, the government issues daily reminders of the Soviet war effort.

The state still gives medals for wartime bravery, and new articles and books regularly appear about the war. War movies are shown almost nightly on television, and there also are programs devoted entirely to beribboned war veterans reminiscing about their days at the front.

Across the Soviet Union, every town has at least one war monument. These are guarded by children wearing the orange scarf of the Young Pioneers, the Communist Party organization, and carrying automatic rifles.

In Moscow, every visiting official's itinerary includes a stop at the Kremlin wall to lay a wreath at the tomb of an unknown soldier killed in the battle to defend Moscow in 1941.

Planeloads of passengers aboard the Soviet airline Aeroflot to Moscow are reminded by the airline's pilots of the 20 million Soviets killed in the war.

Many Soviets say constant reminders about the war are necessary so that people will try to prevent the outbreak of another war. The sincerity of the belief among Soviet people that there should never be another world war is unquestionable.

But many Westerners believe that the government tries to use the war in creating fear and mistrust of the West among the Soviet people.

"The government's constant talk of war stirs up fears of future war. It creates hostility toward potential invaders and protectiveness toward the Soviet borders," said one Western diplomat, who asked that his name not be used.

The diplomat said Soviet fear of the Germans is being transferred to a fear of the West in general to maintain support for modern Soviet policy.

THE GROWTH OF CABLE TV

TV watchers in America are getting wired. More than one-third of the estimated 83.8 million U.S. households with television have some type of cable hook-up — with more than one-fifth paying extra to receive special channels. By 1990, the overall total is to increase to more than 50 percent.

Emergency landing fails to scare pilot

ADDISON, Texas (AP) — Vernon Thorp has had experience flying over "the Hump" of the Himalayas, so he didn't figure he'd get hurt belly-flopping an airplane with crippled landing gear onto a runway at the Addison Airport.

"I didn't feel like I was in a dangerous situation today," Thorp said Tuesday as he his crew got ready to move the slightly damaged Venture Mustang to a nearby hangar.

"I didn't figure I would hurt myself. I didn't get a scratch. When the plane stopped sliding, I just unbuckled my belt and climbed out, just like you'd get out of a car."

Thorp has 23,000 hours in the air over the last 38 years, including a stint as an Army Air Corp pilot flying cargo planes over "the Hump" of the Himalayas in World War II. Thus, the prospect of landing an airplane on its belly did not scare the pilot from La Feria, Texas.

"This really wasn't that bad," Thorp told the Dallas Morning News. "If someone paid for the airplane and paid me, I'd do it every day."

Airport officials said the airport's main runway was closed for landings about two hours while crews moved the damaged plane, a 2-3 scale replica of the single-engine Mustang P-51D fighter plane used in World War II.

The plane was production prototype of a kit that Venture Aviation of Addison will market later this year, said company president Phil Bachman.

Bachman said a landing-gear support apparently failed, crippling the retractable gear.

"I sat up there about 45 minutes," Thorp said. "We were burning up fuel and trying to figure out what to do. We were telling jokes."

Thorp took off from the airport at 7:40 a.m. Tuesday. At 8:55 a.m. he brought the plane down, cut off the engine and the ignition. He also turned off the radio 15 feet above the runway to avoid electrical sparks that might ignite a fire.

"When I touched down, the (crippled landing gear) started to pull me to the right, but I put on full left rudder and straightened her out," he said.

Before coming to a stop, he slid 70 yards on the concrete and about 50 yards on the grass bordering the runway.

In second-round matches, Wojtek Fibak of Poland ousted defending champion Sandy Mayer, the No. 4 seed, 6-4, 4-6, 6-2. And seventh-seeded Jose Higueras of Spain emerged as a top contender for the title, easily defeating unseeded Tim Gullikson 6-4, 6-1.

Nomination fight nearing the end

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Democrats deliver their presidential nomination tonight to battle-scarred Walter F. Mondale, ending the long season of setbacks and comebacks that kept him in combat against two dogged rivals almost to his hour of victory.

In their hearts they must have known they were whipped, but the Rev. Jesse Jackson and Sen. Gary Hart — one the candidate of the dispossessed and the other a new voice from the West — would not say die.

But Jackson removed the prospect that he might walk away from the party this year, telling delegates in a stirring prime-time television speech, "I will be proud to support the nominee of this convention for the presidency of the United States.'

With 1,967 delegates' votes needed, Mondale had more than 2,100. Triumph, at last, was in sight.

Only massive defections by Hispanic and black delegates to the Democratic National Convention could derail Mondale's first-ballot victory. Jackson sought exactly that, and some Hispanics plotted a symbolic abstention to flex their muscles, but it was mostly talk. Mondale's strength held firm.

But playing it safe to the last, Mondale was courting the constituencies today with visits to caucuses of Hispanic and black delegates to put down those threat of rebellion.

At most, the attempt to deny Mondale a first-ballot victory seemed to cost him a handful of delegates, and he had scores to spare.

So tonight, with the first call of the roll, the delegates are expected to award their nomination to a familiar figure on the American scene; the protege first of Hubert Humphrey and then of Jimmy Carter.

On Thursday, the vice presidential nomination will be awarded to his choice, Geraldine Ferraro, new to the national scene but a hit at this convention wherever she goes.

Son of the Minnesota plains, Mondale is a spokesman for rockbed American liberalism — "just plain old, ordinary Fritz Mondale," as he said across the country, appealing to the old New Deal coalitions to come to the aid of a man they knew and understood.

Hart and Jackson refused to make it easy for Mondale, however. They were carrying the fight into the presidential balloting, refusing to concede or withdraw.

Hart was still saying he is in the race for the good of the party as the candidate most likely to beat President Reagan in November.

Airline adapts okay

DALLAS (AP) — Although it was once emphatically opposed to federal rules that regulate airline computerized reservations systems, American Airlines Inc. says it will now "go with the flow" and work with the new system.

In a decision expected to become final later this week, the Civil Aeronautics Board will regulate airline computerized reservations systems. CAB officials say that will eliminate bias against a competitor's flights.

"We just decided to go with the flow," American spokesman Joe Stroop said Tuesday.

American strongly objected to the regulation when it first was proposed last September. The airline maintained it no longer would be able to reap benefits from a system it had developed.

Two months later, when it became clear the CAB would not relent, American did an about-face and dropped its opposition.

"We can work with those rules and everyone will be happy," said Robert Baker, American vice president for marketing automation systems.

American says it stands ready to make a quick and efficient adaptation that could mean more customers for its SABRE, the industry's largest automated reservation system.

Sexual Harassment at Office Doesn't End With Complaint

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My ex-boss was an animal. First he asked me if I ever fooled around, then he asked me what kind of birth control I used. I didn't answer either question. He invited me to have a drink with him after work. I refused. When he tried to put his arms around me, I decided I had had enough, so I reported him to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and filed a complaint. It was a hard thing to do, but I had to do it so he wouldn't pull the same stuff with his next secretary.

I work for the state and was immediately transferred to another job where I'm very happy.

Don't ask me how they found out, but the people in the office I left know that I filed a sexual harassment complaint against the boss. Now, whenever I see my former coworkers, I feel uncomfortable because they laugh and make jokes about the circumstances under which I left. To me it was a serious matter and I had to put a stop to it.

Do you think I did the right thing in filing that complaint? And why do they try to make me feel guilty?

UPSET

DEAR UPSET: You did the right thing in filing that complaint. Trying to make the victim feel guilty is a cruel game some people play. Don't let it get to you. Working women everywhere would do well to follow your courageous example.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I'm engaged to marry a guy who has to be the cheapest man in the world. He wants to start a chicken farm, but he doesn't want to invest any money. He refuses to buy an incubator; he wants me to hatch the eggs in my bra! He says there's a lot of good heat going to waste there.

He figures that every three weeks we should hatch from 6 to 12 chickens. Now get this, he says if my bra is too small, he'll buy me a bigger one.

BIG-BUSTED IN BIRMINGHAM

DEAR B.B.: Don't be a dumb cluck. Tell "Mr. Cheap Cheap" egg-sactly how you feel about his scheme. (Maybe he's making a yolk?)

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I drove my mother downtown for a doctor's appointment. I have stickers on my car signifying that it's used to transport a disabled person, but I was using my husband's car that day. My mother is 52 and the picture of health, but she has a very serious medical problem and can't walk very far, so I parked in a space reserved for the handicapped.

As we were getting back into our car, a woman who was pulling out of a space not reserved for the handicapped stuck her head out of her car window, and did she ever open up a mouth at us!

She shouted, "You two strong, healthy women should be ashamed of yourselves—taking a parking space reserved for some poor crippled person!" Then she shook her finger in our faces and drove off.

Abby, please tell people that not all handicapped people wear braces, walk with crutches or use a wheelchair. Some disabilities are not visible.

NOT GUILTY IN NORFOLK, VA.

DEAR NOT: Back off—the rights she was seeking to protect were yours! You should thank heaven for people who are willing to speak up when they encounter what they perceive to be a selfish disregard for the rights of others. Although the woman was mistaken in your case, I applaud her spunk and good intentions.

6 former distributors file suit

DALLAS (AP) — Six companies, including three with offices in Texas, have filed a $75 million lawsuit against one of the nation's industrial giants alleging the company caused them "irreparable harm" by terminating their contracts.

The six former distributors are suing Raytheon Company of Lexington, Mass., alleging that its computer division — Raytheon Data Systems Company — breached their contracts and committed fraud in selling the division.

Raytheon sold the computer division last month to Telex Corp. of Tulsa, Okla. for $200 million.

The attorney for the plaintiffs said Tuesday the six companies signed contracts in May with Raytheon, whose 1983 assets were $3.7 billion. Six weeks later, the company announced the sale and terminated the contracts, he said.

"We contend that Raytheon knew they were going to divest the division before they induced all of the plaintiffs in May to become distributors," said Dallas attorney Edwin DeYoung. "We believe they already knew they were going to dump the division onto Telex.

The plaintiffs in the suit include Computer Distributers, Inc., of Utah; EWA Corp., of Louisiana; Computer Services Corp. of Alabama; Commercial Equipment Inc. of Durham, N.C.; Automated Business Systems of Oklahoma; and Bytex Corp. of Austin, Texas.

The Utah-based Computer Distributers has offices in El Paso and Automated Business Systems also works out of Austin, DeYoung said.

"The sale was announced six weeks after Raytheon took on all six companies," DeYoung said. "We find it a little hard to believe that all this could have happened in six weeks."

The attorney said he doubts either company made provisions to fulfill the original contracts or make monetary compensation.

The six plaintiffs claim the sale would cause the firms "irreparable harm."

"In committing its breach of contract, Raytheon has acted willfully, wantonly, maliciously and in total disregard of its contractual commitment," the lawsuit states.

The suit was filed July 9 in U.S. District Court by the Dallas law firm of Liddell, Sapp, Zivley, Brown and LaBoon.

DeYoung said federal Judge Joe Fish, who is in charge of the case, has ordered executives from Raytheon and Telex to give depositions next week "because of the urgency of the matter." The closing is to take place the first week in August, said DeYoung.

"We want to find out what provisions Raytheon and Telex have made, if any, for our distributors," DeYoung said. "If none have been made, we plan to ask for a preliminary injunction to enjoin the sale."

Robert Suarez, spokesman for Raytheon in Lexington, said he was unaware of the suit.

"Unfortunately the company is on shutdown right now, and what that means is we shut down factories for two weeks each summer and that includes headquarters," he said.

Suarez said that even if he knew about the suit, the company couldn't comment on pending matter until it was resolved.

Raytheon — one of the nation's 100 largest industrial companies — does business in a number of areas including air defense missile systems, electronics, engineering construction, appliances, computers and office automation.

Raytheon's 1983 sales were $5.9 billion and its net income was $300 million. Its total 1983 assets were $3.7 billion.

Police arrest alleged accomplice in SW Ohio

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The FBI seized an alleged accomplice of Alton Coleman — wanted in a six-state murder, rape and kidnapping spree — and a police chief said the "trail is warm" as authorities stalked the fugitive in southwestern Ohio today.

Thomas Farrell Harris, 23, of Lexington, Ky., was charged with violating kidnapping statutes Tuesday after a Kentucky college professor was found unharmed in his car trunk in a Dayton park, said Terence Dinan, head of the FBI's Cincinnati office.

Coleman, 28, also was charged in the professor's kidnapping, adding to the mounting string of charges that last week put the fugitive on the FBI's "Ten Most Wanted" list.

He is also suspected of being the former houseguest who beat an elderly minister and his wife early Tuesday, and of stealing a car hours later from an elderly couple who were bound and gagged at gunpoint by a man pretending to be interested in a garage sale.

Although Coleman has slipped through police dragnets time and time again, police Chief Tyree Broomfield said Tuesday he believed Coleman's advantage had been cut from days to hours.

"The trail is still warm," Broomfield said. "We believe very strongly there are other people in Dayton and Cincinnati who befriended Coleman and his associates."

Broomfield said police are working overtime to hunt for Coleman and answer a flood of calls from citizens who either thought they had seen Coleman and a female companion, Debra Brown, 21, or were seeking information on how to protect themselves.

The chief said Coleman — described by the FBI as a "consummate con man" — preys on "people of high Christian morals."

Ann LaRoux retires from J. C. Penney's

With over 15 years service as a fulltime employee, Ann LaRoux retired from J. C. Penney's on June 30.

She began her association with Penney's in November, 1963 when she was employed on a part-time basis by then manager Charles Hartman.

In October, 1968 she became a fulltime employee. Working in the Pierce Goods and Home Furnishings Dept. for the past 20 years, LaRoux has seen many changes in the store and has worked for three managers.

With the transfer of Charles Hartman, she worked the next 10 years for the late Loren Sullivan and the last five years for Brian Boswell.

Mrs. LaRoux was presented a pendant with three sapphires for her 15 years fulltime employment. Employees of J. C. Penney's honored her with a retirement cake and punch.

PENNEY'S EMPLOYEES HONORED– Several employees of the Snyder J. C. Penney's store were recently honored for their years of service. Pictured with Brian Boswell, manager, are Lavada Hall, Linda Kubena and Nancy Myers, who each received a five-year service pin, and Ann LaRoux, who retired after more than 15 years as a fulltime employee. PUC official resigns effective end of week

AUSTIN (AP) — Public Utility Commissioner Al Erwin announced today he would leave his state post on Friday.

Erwin, whom Gov. Mark White appointed in February 1983, has said for about six months that he would not complete the full term that expires in 1989.

"It's been a very long and very demanding year-and-a-half for me," Erwin told fellow commissioners today, adding that he was grateful to White for selecting him.

"I thank him even more for so generously agreeing to let me go home now," Erwin added.

Erwin was an original member of the commission when it was established in 1975. He quit in 1979 and worked for a Houston public relations firm before returning to the commission.

He said today he would continue to work in Austin, adding that he plans to work on two novels and is considering going back to work for a public relations firm.

White is expected to announce a successor shortly.

Erwin said he did not know who White would appoint. Speculation has focused on Dennis Thomas, a gubernatorial aide, and Rafael Quintanilla.

Juarez businessmen protest dump site

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — The Mexican government's plan to dispose of radioactive materials at a site 21 miles south of this border city has local business leaders worried that an "obstacle" to growth will be created.

"To locate the dump in the middle of the path of growth is not thinking over the long term," said Gustavo Elizondo Aguilar, the director of the Centro Empresarial, a voluntary association of 320 Juarez business owners and managers. "It's trying to resolve the problem in the short term."

Elizondo was one of several business representatives who voiced their opposition to the proposed dump site at a Tuesday night meeting with Mexican federal health and nuclear officials.

The controversial dump site is to be used to dispose of radioactive material — including pieces of scrap metal, radioactive pellets, dirt, reinforcement bar and concrete — that came from the accidental release of cobalt 60 pellets from a stolen cancer-treatment machine.

The pellets were scattered about a Juarez junkyard last winter and mixed in with scrap metal that was sold to two Mexican foundries and melted down for use in various steel products.

The tainted steel products were found after thousands of tons of steel had been distributed throughout Mexico and the United States.

New doctor due welcome

prior to moving to Amarillo, he completed a one-year residency training at Steven's Park Hospital in Dallas.

Gibson's wife is a Snyder native, the former Pam Underwood, daughter of Ned and Polly Underwood.

The couple met while attending Howard Payne. She later graduated from North Texas State in Denton with an elementary education degree.

They have two sons, Brett, age 3; and Ryan, age 14 months.

Arrests noted

Police logged eight public intoxication arrests and jailed one man for DWI Tuesday evening.

Grass fire at highway

Snyder firemen extinguished a small grass fire on the Big Spring Highway just south of Cogdell Memorial Hospital at 4:17 p.m. Tuesday.

The blaze was quickly brought under control and no property damage was reported.

Jury call answered

Some thirty-one Scurry County residents appeared in 132nd District Court Wednesday morning for jury selection in a civil trial.

The selection process began shortly after 9 a.m. with twelve jurors to be selected to hear a divorce proceeding.

The average price for strict low middling 1 & 1-16 inch spot cotton declined 48 points to 66.72 cents a pound Tuesday for the eight markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were 40 cents a bale lower to $2.00 higher than the previous close. Oct 69.25, Dec 69.12, Mar 70.95, May 72.05, Jul 73.00, Oct b72.40, Dec b71.60.

Fire rages

DALLAS (AP) — A five-alarm fire, fanned by strong winds through the wood-shingled residences of a fashionable northside neighborhood, gutted two duplexes and damaged five homes, causing damage of almost $1 million, officials say.

Firefighters said the blaze Tuesday quickly spread first to one duplex and then a neighboring one, and sent burning embers to homes several blocks away.

also that Bob Tallman will return again this year as announcer for the show.

—Received an update from Senior Center Director Gloria Shaw regarding the senior citizen's housing project which let construction bids Monday. Shaw thanked the chamber for its support and assistance regarding the project.

—Heard a report from Bill Dryden, head of the chamber's Business Development Committee. Dryden called a Centennial tabloid sponsored by the committee and distributed through area newspapers a "great success." He noted for an estimated price of $35 per merchant, an additional 10,000 area housholds received Snyder-related advertisements.

—Heard an update from Scurry County Producer's representative Larry Schwarz regarding the upcoming cotton assessment referendum election now planned Sept. 7.

—Heard a report regarding the July 4th celebration here from Karen Carmichael, who headed up the July 4th Committee. She noted expenses for the event were slightly "in the red," mainly due to the cancellation of the queen's contest this year which traditionally pays for the fireworks display. The contest was dropped after only one organization proposed a candidate.

—Agreed to implement a previously granted pay increase for Chamber Manager Mort Ewing equaling a 10 percent raise. The increase was budgeted for the 1984 budget year but was not to go into effect until Ewing's anniversary date for employment Aug. 1.

School blocks student

EARLY, Texas (AP) — Early High School officials won't sign a release to let a student play sports at another school because they say he transferred to escape disciplinary action after being accused of taking NoDoz.

Charles Hardy, 17, transferred to San Saba High School in April and wants to play sports there, but Early school officials must first sign a University Interscholastic League release. They have refused to do so.

Early Superintendent Bobby Beard said he believes Hardy transferred because of a suspension in February.

In February, 10 high school students — five girls and five boys, including Hardy — were barred from extracurricular activities for the rest of the school year for allegedly taking or possessing over-the-counter caffeine pills.

UIL rules prohibit a student from transferring to a new school purely for athletic purposes.

A UIL executive committee meeting held in May ruled against Hardy's eligibility, but a second hearing has been set for Monday to reconsider the decision. San Saba Superintendent William Grusendorf serves as chairman of the executive committee.

Hardy's parents have filed a suit in district court against the UIL, saying that their son did not receive a fair hearing in May.

Bailey keys Astros, 3-2

By The Associated Press

Mark Bailey knew he could do better at the plate than he did in the top half of the inning. He proved it in the bottom of the ninth.

"Mark came through like a champ," Houston Manager Bob Lillis said after Bailey's two-run homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday night rallied the Astros to a 3-2 victory over the New York Mets.

The Mets had taken a 2-1 lead in the top of the ninth when Mookie Wilson led off with a pinch-triple and scored on a fielder's choice grounder by Keith Hernandez. On that play, first baseman Enos Cabell fielded the ball and threw home, but Wilson slid safely past Bailey.

"I didn't block the plate real well, but I knew I tagged him and I thought he was out," Bailey said.

The rookie catcher didn't have to wait long to make amends.

With one out, Met reliever Doug Sisk walked Terry Puhl. Bailey then blasted a 3-2 delivery into the right-field seats at the Astrodome.

In other NL games, Los Angeles halted Pittsburgh 5-0, San Francisco shellacked St. Louis 7-2, Philadelphia tipped Cincinnati 4-3, Montreal blanked Atlanta 2-0 and San Diego tripped Chicago 6-5.

Bailey's blast marked the third straight game in which he had homered. It was his seventh of the season and also the first allowed by Sisk in 59 2-3 innings this year.

Sisk, 1-2, took over in the ninth in relief of starter Ron Darling, who allowed an unearned run in the first.

Frank DiPino, 4-5, relieved Dave Smith after Wilson's triple and struck out three to get the victory.

Giants 7, Cardinals 2

In the second inning, St. Louis hurler Joaquin Andujar hit Manny Trillo with a pitch. In the third, Giants pitcher Mike Krukow knocked down Andujar.

Both dugouts emptied - no punches were thrown - and home plate umpire Billy Williams warned Krukow, which draws an automatic $50 fine.

Following the 11-minute delay, the Giants let their bats do the damage. They scored four runs in the fourth, keyed by Brad Wellman's two-run double. In the fifth, San Francisco scored three times, sparked by Joel Youngblood's two-run double.

San Francisco finished with 15 hits in pinning the loss on Andujar, 13-8. Krukow, 6-8, got the victory.

Olympic site won't change

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Rejecting pressure to move the 1988 Summer Games out of South Korea, the International Olympic Committee says it has every intention of keeping the Games in Seoul.

But IOC President Juan Antonio Samaranch admitted that escalating U.S.-Soviet tensions threaten the Olympic movement.

Samaranch emphasized that the IOC's position on Seoul's status "is very clear. As always the IOC is honoring its contract. We signed a contract with Seoul and the 1988 Games will be held in Seoul."

At news conference Tuesday, Samaranch said the future of the Olympics "depends on the future of the world. If we have peace and normal relations between mainly the two superpowers, we will have great Games in 1988."

Ballinger three-banger stops Snyder Stars, 3-1

MERKEL -- Chris Luera banged a three-run homer in the first inning here Tuesday to lift Ballinger past the Snyder All-Stars 3-1 in Little League playoff action.

The best-of-three series continues here Thursday night at 8. A third game, if necessary, will be held Friday.

Luera's homer was all Ballinger needed to stop the All-Stars, whose bats were quieted by curve ball pitcher Freddie Quirino. Quirino gave up only four hits, including two in the fourth when Snyder scored its only run.

Snyder hurler Tommy Lane allowed only three hits and struck out seven. The difference however, came with two outs in the first inning when he walked Larry McCoy on five pitches, then went to a full count before giving Robert Martinez a free trip. Next up Luera slapped Lane's zero-two count over the fence for all the scoring Ballinger would need.

Snyder put runners on in the second, third, fourth and sixth innings, but was unable to string together enough hits to pull off a rally.

Tracy Braziel singled to lead off the second inning and Brandon Martin reached on an error. Next-up Randy Morris chipped out and Toby Goodwin struck out before Quirino got Jason West on a pop-out to the catcher.

In the fourth, Braziel scampered all the way to third when right fielder Andy Gallant dropped his fly ball. The runner then scored on a ground out by Martin. One out later, Goodwin singled. He was left stranded.

Snyder's final comeback attempt came in the sixth when Martin drew a one-out walk. Though Goodwin also walked in the inning, both were left stranded.

In all, Ballinger left seven Snyder runners standing on the bags. Quirino struck out five and walked only one.

After giving up two hits in the first inning, Snyder's Lane single-hit Ballinger the rest of the way. He struck out five over the final three innings.

Greene, Braziel, Goodwin and West got Snyder's four hits.

Snyder made three errors; Ballinger two.

TENNIS

STUTTGART, West Germany (AP) - Henri Leconte eliminated Bjorn Borg 6-3, 6-1 in the first round of a $100,000 Grand Prix tennis tournament.

Borg came out of retirement to play the match, but was unable to show the form that made him a five-time Wimbledon champion.

In other matches, Jose Higueras beat Alvaro Fillol 6-4, 7-6; Givaldo Barbosa beat Ruediger Benz 6-3, 7-6; Sergio Casal eliminated Wojtek Fibak 6-3, 6-1, and Lloyd Bourne beat Butch Walts 7-6, 6-1.

BASTAD, Sweden (AP) - Top-seed Anders Jarryd made short work of West German Christopher Zipf, winning 6-0, 6-1, while second-seed Henrik Sundstrom whipped Hans Simonsson 6-3, 6-2 to highlight first round action in the $75,000 Swedish Open Tennis Championships.

In other matches, fourth-seed Joakim Nystrom breezed past Peter Carlsson 6-1, 6-0; third-seed Stefan Edberg wore down Martin Jaite, 7-6 (8-6), 6-1; Horacio de la Pena upset Stefan Simonsson 6-3, 6-7, 7-6, and Victor Pecci whipped Kent Carlsson 6-3, 6-1.

Jackson ties Gehrig; Rangers smash Yanks

By The Associated Press

It takes a lot to get Reggie Jackson excited these days. Equaling a record by the great Lou Gehrig will do it, though.

"I don't get thrilled easily anymore but this was exciting," said Jackson after his 493rd career home run, a two-run shot, helped the California Angels beat the Toronto Blue Jays 5-3 Tuesday night. "I'm no Lou Gehrig by any stretch of the imagination but it took me sixteen and a half years to get here and I'm happy."

Jackson's 15th homer of the season tied him for 13th place on the all-time list with Gehrig and proved to be the margin of California's victory.

"Something like this makes you proud, although my ego doesn't need any help," said Jackson, who also lifted his average to .250 with a three-hit game.

In other AL action, Texas beat New York 10-4, Cleveland took a doubleheader from Kansas City 9-7 and 6-2, Baltimore beat Minnesota 3-1, Detroit nipped Chicago 3-2, Seattle turned back Milwaukee 3-1 and Boston stopped Oakland 6-1.

Jackson hit his homer with two outs in the seventh inning off left-hander James Key, who had just come on in relief after Fred Lynn's single.

Earlier in the inning, Bobby Grich's solo homer off Jim Acker, 2-5, had given California a 3-2 lead.

Right-hander Mike Witt, 10-7, surrendered two runs and six hits over the first three innings. He left in the ninth after giving up a run-scoring double to Rance Mulliniks.

Rangers 10, Yankees 4

Tommy Dunbar smashed his first major league home run, a three-run blast in the fifth inning, and Larry Parrish homered and drove in two runs as Texas pounded out 17 hits in routing New York.

Charlie Hough, 10-7, allowed 10 hits, striking out five and walking none in winning for the eighth time in his last nine decisions. The 36-year-old knuckleballer registered his 11th complete game in ending Texas' four-game losing streak and halting a six-game New York winning streak.

Phil Niekro, 12-5, suffered the loss.

Indians 9-6, Royals 7-2

Carmen Castillo's two-run homer capped a four-run uprising in the third inning that carried Cleveland over Kansas City in the opener of their double-header.

The Indians pounded out 15 hits to help Neal Heaton, who had given up seven hits and took an 8-4 lead into the eighth. But George Brett led off with a double and Hal McRae followed with his second home run of the season, finishing Heaton, 6-9.

Under new coach...

Oiler camp opens

HOUSTON (AP) -- Houston Oiler rookies and free agents report to training camp tonight at Angelo State University and they've been promised a fair chance from new Coach Hugh Campbell to make the team.

"The one thing I've pledged to all players is that the guy I think gives us the best chance of winning the most games will be playing regardless of when he was drafted or if he was drafted or if he's a veteran or rookie," Campbell said.

The Oilers dipped to a 2-14 record last year and Campbell is not anxious to maintain the status quo.

"In the past, I've always been willing to look at everybody during the preseason," Campbell said "Otherwise you end up keeping the same veterans you had the year before."

Eighty-six rookies, veterans and free agents are scheduled to be in camp by Friday night when all veterans are due on campus.

The rookie contingent is headed by offensive lineman Dean Steinkuhler, the Oilers' No. 1 draft pick.

The most attention among the veterans is being directed toward quarterback Warren Moon, who signed a five-year $6 million contract during the off-season and will be making his National Football League debut.

Six of 13 draft choices remained unsigned today, including the Oilers' two second-round selections, defensive end Doug Smith of Auburn and safety Bo Eason of California-Davis.

Nicholls State linebacker Johnny Meads, ninth round defensive back Jeff Donaldson of Colorado and free agent running back Richard Calhoun of Eastern Michigan, signed their contracts Tuesday night.

Smith and Eason are expected to bring immediate help to the Oiler defense that allowed 460 points last season, 27th among the 28 NFL teams, had the worst defense against the run and managed only 31 quarterback sacks.

Four veteran players remained unsigned Tuesday, wide receiver Mike Holston, offensive guard John Schuhmacher, kicker Florian Kempf and center Les Studdard.

The Oilers will work out twice daily until July 26 when they travel to Greeley, Colo., for a series of workouts with the Denver Broncos. Houston travels to Tampa for its first preseason game Aug. 4 and opens the regular season Sept. 2 in the Astrodome against the Super Bowl champion Los Angeles Raiders.

Newsome figures as 'Poke fullback

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Timmy Newsome, who backed up Tony Dorsett at tailback the past two years, will move to fullback this season, Dallas Cowboys' coach Tom Landry said Tuesday.

"We're looking for a fullback who makes linebackers wish they were in another line of work," Landry said. "We think Timmy may just fill the bill."

Newsome will have to beat out incumbent starter Ron Springs to win the starting fullback position.

A powerful 6-1, 235-pound fifth-year veteran from Winston-Salem State, Newsome was a reserve fullback his first two seasons before being switched to tailback during his third training camp.

Newsome is considered to be the strongest member of the team, according to conditioning coach Bob Ward. Newsome bench-pressed 430 pounds during the season.

"A fullback in our offense needs to be able to catch the ball in addition to being a tough runner and blocker," Landry said. "Like Springs, Newsome has the size and pass-catching ability to shift from the fullback spot to a second tight end. That gives us flexibility in certain situations. We don't always have to bring in a second tight end from the bench."

In other news at the Cowboys' California Lutheran College training camp, two more free agent rookies were released Tuesday. They were center Gary Massaro of Clemson, and cornerback Tuqwan Taylor of Fort Valley State.

Robertson Spurs' top-dollar rookie

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Alvin Robertson is adding to his list of firsts with the San Antonio Spurs.

The 6-3 guard from the University of Arkansas was grabbed by the Spurs on the seventh pick of the first round - the highest draft slot the San Antonio team has ever had.

Tuesday, he became the highest-paid rookie in Spurs history when his agent agreed to a three-year contract.

The agent, Tom Selakovich, and Spurs owner Angelo Drossos would not reveal the financial terms of the contract.

But they did say it is for three years with an additional one-year option and a signing bonus. And they did agree the contract makes Robertson the highest-paid rookie in Spur history.

"I don't think it serves any purpose to reveal the terms," Drossos said in a news conference. "I don't think anyone could have gotten any more out of the rag."

Robertson was with the Olympic basketball team in San Diego and could not be reached for comment.

However, Selakovich said Robertson is "aware of the parameters of the contract" and is pleased with it.

When Robertson was drafted, Selakovich said he would seek a $1 million to $2 million contract for three to four years.

The totals would have put Robertson at salary levels above starters Johnny Moore, Gene Banks and Edgar Jones. Those three make about $150,000 a year.

Denver expected to hire Gamblers' Davis today

DENVER (AP) - Houston Gamblers offensive coordinator Darrel "Mouse" Davis is expected to be named the Denver Gold's new head coach at a news conference Wednesday at the United States Football League club's headquarters.

Gold owner Doug Spedding, who fired former Denver Bronco quarterback Craig Morton as head coach last month, announced the news conference.

Davis, 51 is the author of the "run-and-shoot" offense which features a super back, no tight ends and four receivers, two split wide and two slot backs.

Davis developed quarterback Jim Kelly into the USFL Western Conference's top-rated quarterback and guided the Gambler offense that broke all USFL passing, scoring and total offense records. The Gamblers averaged 34.3 points per game.

Davis coached then-Portland State quarterback June Jones and brought Jones with him to Houston as quarterback coach. Jones said last week he expects to join Davis with the Gold.

Not much of a plot, but the ending's great!

No surgery for prostatitis

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have had chronic prostatitis for more than 10 years. My doctor said that it did not call for an operation and that there is no known cure. Will I have to take medicine the rest of my life? I take Septra twice a day, drink plenty of water and at night take one tablet of Tranxene. It seems to be working out fine. I am not to use any spices.

DEAR READER — Don't knock success. You are doing better than many who have that diagnosis. Actually, chronic prostatitis is a poorly understood condition. When an infectious cause can be identified, then antibiotics are helpful. But in many cases, no bacteria can be found as a cause for the inflammation.

In many ways, having acute prostatitis, which occurs more often in young men, is better for the patient. Usually a culture of secretions can be obtained and the organism identified. Antibiotic treatment in those cases usually cures the problem.

The condition is not treated with surgery. Some doctors have tried zinc treatments, but the evidence that it is helpful is questionable for this condition. When used the dose is usually 50 to 150 mg. a day for two to 16 weeks. If it hasn't helped by then, it never will.

I do think you should also eliminate coffee, tea, colas and chocolate. If you smoke, it might be helpful to stop that, too. Alcohol seems to make the condition worse. Sitting for a long time as on a long trip or at a desk job seems to aggravate the symptoms.

I have discussed both acute and chronic prostatitis in The Health Letter 15-6, Prostate Gland Problems, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My daughter was stricken with Bell's palsy eight months ago, three weeks before she gave birth to her first baby. She was treated with steroids and has recovered about 85 percent. We know that she may not recover fully.

My daughter is fearful of this happening to her again. Is this possible? She is 25.

DEAR READER — It is a shock to suddenly discover that half of your face is paralyzed. Most people affected look at their face and think they have had a stroke. Indeed, a stroke can produce similar findings of the face. The fact that the changes are limited to the face helps to point toward Bell's palsy as opposed to a stroke, but, of course, a physician should be seen at once to have a proper diagnosis made.

Rarely, a case of Bell's palsy is caused by herpes zoster virus, the virus that causes chicken pox, but that is not true of most cases. The cause is usually not known. A high percentage of patients recover rapidly. A few may have residual weakness and permanent loss of complete control of the facial muscles.

Since the cause is not known, it would be a brave soul who would say it couldn't happen again, but there is little reason to think that it would. Your daughter will probably not have such an occurrence again based on the natural history of the disease.

The eyelids may not work properly during the acute illness. It is important to protect the eye with a bandage in that case, and that includes at night while sleeping during the acute illness.

Relief pitching has become a bigger part of baseball with almost every year since World War II, but as far back as 1921 Jesse Barnes of the Giants won two games in relief against the Yankees in the World Series.

USSR, China announce grain deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — China and the Soviet Union have bought additional U.S. grain, including some for delivery next year, according to the Agriculture Department.

In separate deals announced Tuesday, China bought 300,000 tons of wheat for delivery in the 1984-85 marketing year that began on June 1. That included 210,000 tons for this calendar year and 90,000 tons in the first five months of 1985.

The 210,000 tons will be credited to China under terms of a long-term agreement with the United States, which operates on a calendar year basis. This is the fourth and final year of the pact, and there has been no indication that a new agreement is in the works.

If no new agreement is forthcoming, it means China will be operating in the regular U.S. market for the 90,000 tons specified for calendar 1985. The current pact is due to expire on Dec. 31.

Under the agreement, China is supposed to buy at least 6 million tons of wheat and corn annually. However, according to USDA's latest accounting, sales totaled only 3.83 million tons in 1983. The shortfall was a result of a trade dispute over U.S. import restrictions on Chinese textiles.

So far in 1984, including the latest sales, a total of 3.85 million tons, all wheat, have been purchased. China, however, has indicated to U.S. officials that it would live up to the agreement by making up for last year's shortfall.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

Sales are made by private trading companies and then reported to USDA. No prices or terms are announced. However, at the current estimated farm price of about $3.25 per bushel, the latest wheat sale of 300,000 tons — about 11 million bushels — would have a farm value of about $36 million.

In the other sale, the Soviet Union bought 350,000 tons of corn for delivery after Oct. 1, the first grain to be purchased for delivery in 1984-85, the second year of Moscow's long-term agreement with the United States, which coincides with the U.S. fiscal year.

At USDA estimates of $3.30 a bushel, the 13.8 million bushels of corn would have an estimated U.S. farm value of about $45 million.

The Soviets have bought almost 12.4 million tons of wheat and corn under terms of the agreement for delivery in 1983-84, including 6.05 million tons of corn and 6.31 million tons of wheat. Also, 416,200 tons of soybeans have been sold.

The Soviets are committed to buy at least 9 million metric tons of wheat and corn annually over a period of five years. If they choose, the Soviets can substitute up to 500,000 tons of soybeans for 1 million tons of grain in meeting the minimum.

An additional 3 million tons of wheat and corn can be bought at the Soviet Union's option — making a total of 12 million tons — without further talks with the United States. If more than 12 million tons are wanted, consultations must be held.

The United States has given Moscow clearance to buy an additional 10 million tons of grain this year, a grand total of 22 million tons.
